MR. AND MRS. J. FRANK SMITH GIVE ANNUAL BANQUET TO FIRE BOYS

Last Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Smith of the Smith House gave their annual banquet and reception honoring the members of the Crosbyton fire department and their wives. Baskets and vases of flowers made the spacious reception rooms attractive for the seventy-five or more guests assembled for the occasion.

The town orchestra furnished pleasing popular music throughout the evening entertainment.

A generous plate luncheon was passed by the Smith House girls. After the feast a very entertaining program was rendered with Judge W. P. Walker acting as toastmaster. Judge Walker said many things to make up our progressive city and one of these is the Crosbyton fire department. Judge Walker eulogized the department and Chief Arthur Swearingin for faithful unselfish service in behalf of the citizens.

Miss Cora Lee Woody gave two delightful readings and the Crosbyton Chamber of Commerce quaterly rendered two numbers that were well received.

C. C. Head Talks

W. M. Romane, president of the Crosbyton Chamber of Commerce spoke of the progress made in fire fighting from the horse drawn fire wagons to the modern fire trucks and equipment. He assured the fire boys that Crosbyton appreciated their services.

Miss Geneva Woody, accompanied by Miss Pauline Buck at the piano contributed a violin solo.

C. C. Williams, secretary of the Crosbyton Chamber of Commerce gave an interesting account of the methods of fighting fire in the Philippine islands. Mr. Williams has just recently returned to America from a four year stay in the Philippine islands as instructor in the government schools there. He stated that the bamboo houses were made in sections and with a section caught fire it was ripped from its place and carried away.

Arthur Swearingin, chief of the department, and Russell McCurdy, secretary, spoke chiefly of their appreciation of the fire boys' cooperation in their work of fighting fires.

The concluding numbers were rendered by the ever popular quartet and the orchestra, after which the fire boys and their ladies and others who desired to stay, were entertained with music and dancing.

CUBS TO OFFER HARD COMPETITION FROM BEGINNING OF CHASE

WINTER DEALS VERY FEW BUT CLUB IS AIDED

CUYLER PLEASED WITH PROSPECTS; PITCHING TO BE OF BEST

(By Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—The desperate bid on Chicago's Cubs for the National League pennant in the mid-season race of 1927, is to be duplicated right from the fall of the flag in the 1928 season. President Veeck and Manager McCarthy declare, with extra talent in those spots on the club which proved weakest last August.

The winter deals of the Cubs have been few in number but momentous in possibilities, beginning with the trade which brought Haas "Kiki" Cuyler to the team in exchange for Sparky Adams. Manager McCarthy is the kind of a leader who could sell Grover Cleveland Alexander down the river at the height of his ability for the mere price of a drafted rookie. He said he had no fear of Cuyler's temperament, or whatever it was that caused all the rumpus while "Kiki" polished the bench at Pittsburgh during the 1927 world's series.

Cuyler Delighted

Cuyler said he was delighted to be taken by the Cubs, and his acquisition gave the team six heavy hitting outfielders. Wilson, Stephenson, Webb, Heathcote and Kelly being the others.

To strengthen the pitching corps, where the strain of the pennant chase really caused the beginning of the slump, the Cubs bought the 1927 strikeout king of all the league in the country, Pat Malone of Minneapolis. He turned back 214 batters last year. Malone's purchase makes six pitchers figured to be ready for regular turns—Charlie Root, who won more games than any other Major League pitcher last year; Carlson, Sheriff Blake, Guy Bush and Percy Jones. Back of these is the veteran southpaw, Art Nehf, who is being primed as the relief pitcher.

MaGuire At Second

To fill the place of Sparky Adams at second, the Cubs already had a string on Freddy MaGuire, a youngster from Toledo with a little Major League seasoning and a fielder expected to rank with the best in the game when he gets accustomed to Major League diamonds. The season's third base, the Cubs have a flock of candidates, and assuming that MaGuire will go in at second, there is admittedly a big question mark hovering over the third bag.

All kinds of coming the bushes during the winter with a sack of dollars in one hand and a bunch of players in the other, failed to bring forth a player who could be relied on in advance to handle the hot corner acceptably. Captain Charley Grim at first base and "Woody" English at shortstop are definite fixtures. Hartnett is young enough to keep on improving behind the bat.

TOUGH TO GET ON INSIDE OF RACE RESULTS

THAT IS IF YOU'RE ON THE OUTSIDE OF THE REIGNING FEW

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 11.—Brave and hopeful humans who lay their daily dollar, two or ten, on the horses are interested in the daily print one line of type in the daily print—the WINNER.

"They do not realize the battle of wits, skirmishes of trickery and matching of mechanics that enter into the gathering of the facts on the winner and the price.

The privilege of sending all information on the results and the prices at the Jefferson Park track here, for instance, is sold to a Chicago news bureau for $250 a day and no information of any kind is supposed to be sent from the track by any other agencies.

The arrangement is similar to that in the major league baseball parks where one of the big telegraph companies pays each league thousands of dollars annually for the exclusive wire privilege in the park.

But race track information can not be contained by the fences around the track and the restrictions on the use of telegraph and telephone wires from within.

Last year there were some chuckles over the stunt of a rival agency which equipped its men with tiny radio sets of German manufacture which carried and operated from the coat pocket of the bearer. This trick was discovered and vigilance was ordered of the special policemen to watch for bulging pockets.

Another stunt was then pulled to get the results and the prices from the official board inside the track. Officials of the track had leased all of the ground in the immediate vicinity of the park with the exception of a very small plot owned by an Italian, which was thought

Lindbergh Guest Of Zone Americans

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Jan. 11.—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh today became the guest of the 27,000 Americans in the canal zone, visiting the city of Balboa after his stay at Panama City where he landed Monday from San Jose, Costa Rica.

This small plot, however, was rented by a rival agency and upon it was built a tall wooden tower from which a view of the board inside the track could be commanded. A huge sheet of canvas was also could see agents wig-wagging and semaphoring inside.

Officials of the track then resorted to aeronautics to close this source of information. They erected two high poles some distance apart in front of the tower and extended a cable from one pole to the other. A huge sheet of canvas was hung from the cable and the center of the sheet was attached to a captive balloon. The poles were spliced enabling the operators to release a spring which lowers and lifts the balloon and the sheet at will.

Operators of the tower, however, said they were not dependent entirely upon their skyscraper as their radio men were still working inside the track. They insisted that the special cops could not find every one of the radio operators every day and that if they did find them and throw them out of the park they had another trick by which they could get the information.

The officials were warned that, if necessary, the outside operators would get airplanes and fly them over the result board after each race or that they can get a captive balloon of their own which could be moved from place to place away from the canvas wall.

SIX TEAMS ARE ENTERED HERE IN CAGE LOOP

SIX WEEKS SCHEDULE IS ARRANGED FOR COURT FOLLOWERS

The Lubbock city league for basketball became a reality last evening when six teams made entrance applications for the organization and regular scheduled games will begin on next Tuesday evening at the Lubbock high school gymnasium. The six teams to make entrance into the league were: Hemphill-Price Super and Main service station, Axtell company, Wholesalers, Bankers and the 131st field artillery.

After the six teams organized Henry E. Frnka, originator of the league, was named as president of the organization. J. A. Riley, jr., and James R. Dow were named with Coach Frnka as the board of arbitration and will act on the eligibility of the members of the league and other rulings that might arise during the season.

Six Weeks Schedule

A six weeks schedule with each team playing two games a week was adopted by the league. Season tickets will be placed on sale early next week at a price of $1 for the season, which will average about 2 cents per game for the year. The sale of the tickets will be promoted by the respective teams. Each team will begin with the sale of 50 tickets.

Thursday evening, Coach Frnka announces another meeting of the managers of the teams will meet and pass on the rules and regulations of the league that will be drawn up by the board of arbitration.

Here Are Rules To Make Winning Team

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 11.—The recipe for a successful basketball team is the same old recipe needed for a success in any sport—condition, teamwork and spirit.

That is the opinion of Edward Wachtel, basketball coach at Harvard.

"These three attributes are needed for a winning team," Wachtel says, "and they must be found together. If any two of them are disconnected, the chain will not be complete—and success will be found wanting."

In Greek marriage ceremonies a gold and silver ring is used.

will come to the Orioles from the American League club in the exchange but the amount of cash involved in the deal was not made known.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Rogers Hornsby, captain of the New York Giants and the biggest star in the National League, has gone in a lightning trade to the Boston Braves.

The deal came as a stunning surprise to baseball circles and was equally unexpected to Hornsby, who at his hotel in St. Louis at first said: "I cannot believe it."

Get Two Unknowns

In return for Hornsby, who is the National League's highest salaried player at a reported sum of $40,000 a year, the Giants receive Catcher Francis Hogan and Jimmy Welsh, an outfielder, both virtually unknown. They are just ordinary players. No cash was involved.

A brief statement signed by President Charles A. Stoneham and Manager John J. McGraw said the trade was made "for the best interests of the club."

Made Good Showing

as acting manager of the Giants Hornsby made a brilliant showing during the closing days of the 1927 race during McGraw's illness, driving the team into a contending position for the pennant. Desire on the part of the Giants to bolster a weak member of the National league, is believed partly responsible. The Braves have been battered around the cellar of the circuit for the past few years and the patronage dropped at an alarming rate, in Boston.

After receiving a telegram from Judge Emil E. Fuchs, owner of the Braves, notifying him of the deal, Hornsby said it didn't make any difference to him whether he was with the Braves or any other club. However, Hornsby was puzzled over the "best interests" section of the Giants' announcement and declared he didn't believe McGraw was responsible for that part of the statement.

Hornsby was born in Winters, Texas, in 1896 and started his baseball career in 1914 with the Dallas club of the Texas League. He was with the Cardinals from 1915 to 1926 when he was traded to the New York club in a sensational deal in exchange for Infielder Frank Frisch and Pitcher Jimmy Ring.

TONY LAZZERI

Most baseball experts say Tony Lazzeri of the Yankees is the best second baseman in the American League. But that's not all they say of the Yankee youngster. They also say that Tony could easily be the best shortstop in the league if he were transferred to that position. Lazzeri came up to the majors as a shortstop but has been used at second base.

LONGER SKIRTS ARE PREDICTED IN SPRING MODE

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Women of fashion will wear longer skirts next spring—fully one inch below the knee—if the modes displayed at the semi-annual style review of the Garment Retailers of America are followed.

There are new colors for spring wear, independence blue, a light navy blue, water blue, a blue with a greenish tinge, and natural beige, a grayish tone of beige.

Evening models disclosed an even greater skirt length than the gowns for informal wear, having shorter lengths in front and the backs almost touching the floor.

The virtual disappearance of the silhouette was evident, most of the models being along straight lines. A return to femininity also, was indicated with the introduction of tucks, profuse lace trimming and embroidery.

Sports togery included a three-piece bathing suit in china blue, with short trunks, jumper and a very brief jacket.

Twenty-five per cent of the women employed in the United States are married.

TECH TO MEET BILLIES HERE THIS WEEKEND

GAMES CHANGED FROM 20 AND 21 DUE TO SCHOOL PROGRAM

Due to the fact that the Daniel Baker semester examinations fall on the dates on which the Hill Billies of that school were to have played the Tech Matadors in Lubbock, January 20 and 21, through the courtesy of the Tech athletic department the games have been moved up one week and will be played here on Friday and Saturday of this week instead of the dates originally scheduled, according to H. C. Hervey, manager of the Tech athletic teams. By moving the Hill Billies up one week it will throw four games for the Matadors within a period of five days as the scarlet and black take off to Canyon on Monday and Tuesday of next week to meet Sam Burton's herd of Buffaloes.

Taking Out Rough Spots

Since the two opening contests with the Amarillo Gassers, which were both taken by the Matadors, Coach Victor Payne, handler of the Tech basketbats, has been taking out the rough spots that were evidenced by him in the work of his combinations and hopes to have a much improved machine to combat with the Billies in their games with the Amarillo quintet. Coach Payne's secondary concern is to give the Tech players a uniform a chance to perform and by doing so, he has fairly good check on his recruits.

Both games with the Hill Billies will be played in the Matador gymnasium beginning promptly at 7:30 o'clock of each evening.

SLATON C. OF C. EMBARKS ON 1928 PROGRAM AFTER BANNER BANQUET AT HIGH SCHOOL; OFFICERS RE-ELECTED

(By Staff Correspondent)

SLATON, Jan. 11 (Special)—With the best year in its history just behind it, the Slaton chapter of commerce today faced its 1928 program of work with a vow to break all previous records as the result of a banner annual banquet, held last night in the senior high school. At the conclusion of the program J. W. Hood was re-elected as president; Sam E. Staggs was again chosen as vice-president; four retiring directors were returned to their posts and a similar number of new directors were chosen.

The largest crowd to ever attend a chamber of commerce banquet in Slaton, 140 men and women in all, was on hand for the meeting which got under way at 7:45 o'clock after the Slaton high school band, natively uniformed and composed of 35 pieces under the direction of Ernest Pogue, rendered a well received concert in the school auditorium. President Hood acted as toastmaster for the banquet and for the program which followed.

Wilson Makes Report

A fine dinner, prepared and served by the Catholic ladies of Saint Joseph's church, opened the meeting after Rev. M. S. Etheridge, of the First Methodist church, led the invocation and those present sang two verses of "America." Immediately after dinner Secretary Lloyd A. Wilson touched upon the high points of the chamber's accomplishments in 1927 and Howard Hoffman, accompanied by Miss Grace Bailey at the piano, presented three violin numbers which were well received.

Directors Are Named

In the election of directors which followed A. J. Payne, J. W. Hood, J. A. Elliott and M. W. Uzzell, directors whose two year terms expired last night, were re-elected and A. G. Taggart, Dr. W. E. Payne, O. Z. Ball and Irvin M. Brewer, new directors, were chosen. These eight men will serve with seven others who just completed the first year of their two year terms, to which they were elected in 1927. They are Sam E. Staggs, J. Overby, P. G. Stokes, Earl King, W. B. Hestand, W. H. Smith and Claude F. Anderson.

Secretary Wilson next led a short discussion of the 1928 program of work and members in written suggestions for the coming year. Reverend B. G. Holloway of the First Baptist church introduced a resolution thanking the Catholic ladies for the dinner, which was passed unanimously by a rising vote.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Loman, who are holding a revival here next week, several musical numbers which were generously applauded. They sang and carried their own accompaniment on stringed instruments. Reverend Mr. Holloway's benediction closed the meeting in which the directors announced officers for the coming year. Secretary Wilson was re-elected to his post last November.

NAVY PROGRAM

type of vessel for the reason that Great Britain has that number of tons or because to do so would bring us up to a parity with Great Britain nor do we ask you to construct a certain amount of tonnage in order that we may be on a 5-3 ratio with Japan.

Advice of Board

The general board has advised the secretary of the navy as follows:

"The program proposed, if carried out, will create a properly constituted fleet, will furnish sufficient strength to insure the protection of the legal rights of our citizens under international law, provide refuge in time of disorder, protect commerce, preserve our ocean routes of trade, and provide adequate national defense.

"We have not such a fleet at the present time. Each postponement of the undertaking increases the already pronounced inadequacy still farther into the future.

"Delay in building up the fleet to the standard of its requirements deprives the country of an adequate national defense for a period of years and will entail extraordinary financial burdens in future years. Prompt adoption of the program proposed will result in a fleet adequate for national defense and will avoid excessive peak loads in future financial demands."

Shipbuilding Industry

The general board's report called attention to what it said was the need of maintaining a shipbuilding industry and added that "lack of modern cruisers" is very serious and constitutes the navy's greatest weakness today.

The report added that there are 22 cruisers of a total displacement of 164,000 tons carried in a decommissioned status that should be re-commissioned for "all lack speed, gunpower, and a general fitness for modern service." The report also said that the efficiency of destroyer squadrons as a whole "suffers from the lack of squadron leaders" and that the "art of submarine construction and submarine operation has advanced materially in recent years, so that it is possible to operate submarines of a suitable type for long periods at sea." It added that "we can not afford to neglect this development."

Limited to 10,000 Tons

Mr. Wilbur pointed out that because of limitations of the Washington naval treaty the new cruisers would be limited to 10,000 tons displacement and to guns of 8-inch calibre. He said that the 25 new cruisers would be in addition to the eight under construction and the 10 cruisers of 7,500 tons displacement already built, making a total of 43 modern cruisers.

The secretary recalled that under the Washington treaty with the launching of the new airplane carriers Lexington and Saratoga and the scrapping of the Langley, the United States would have 69,000 tons left for aircraft carriers. He added that if five carriers were to be built their size necessarily would be limited to 13,000 tons each but that he felt the exact tonnage should not be determined until experience had been gained from the Lexington and Saratoga.

March sold off to 18.94 and May to 18.95; net declines of 8 to 14 points on the active months. A few stop orders were uncovered on the break, and after their execution the market steadied on trade buying and covering, prices showing rallies of 5 or 6 points from the lowest at the end of the first hour.

The market was less active later, but held generally steady on covering and further trade buying. Prices more than recovered the early losses, March selling up to 19.00 and May to 19.15, and the general list rallying about net unchanged to 10 points higher at midday. Stocks And Money

WALL STREET TRADING
NEW YORK, Jan. 11 (AP)—The stock market resumed its upward march today after an early period of irregularity. Operators for the advance, acting on the theory that the recent reaction had sufficiently corrected the weakened technical position of the market and that there was no immediate danger of a new 40-point slide. Started aggressive operations in a dozen or more specialties. Early gains in these issues ran from 4 to 10 points with a much more moderate recovery in the standard industrials and rails.

Borden's soared 93-4 points to 181 by early afternoon and Mullins Body jumped 6 points to 84, both new high records. Freeport Texas, Ford Ice Cream, Christie Brown, Curtis Alpine preferred and DeVoe and Reynolds also reached their best prices since 1926 or longer. Early losses of a point or so in General Motors and Radio were converted into moderate gains.

Speculative interest in the railroad group was divided between the establishment of new peak prices by the St. Paul issues and the resumption of the rise in Texas & Pacific to new high levels.

LINDY IS GIVEN GOLD EAGLE AS PANAMA TOKEN

PANAMA, Jan. 11—A golden eagle dug from the grave of an Indian chief today bore witness to Panama's delight in the coming of the Lindy.

The talisman was given to Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh at a farewell banquet by the Panama reception committee. The eagle is of solid gold and of primitive design, weighing 312 grains. It was dug from a grave in the Chirique mountains. The tail and wings of the eagle are spread and its talons clenched.

The present was in a box of native mahogany and cedar. Panamanians carved eagles on each corner of the box.

Given Red Panama Hat
Another unique gift for the collection was an exceptionally fine Panama hat, rarely seen outside this section. It was concealed in a box fashioned to look like a book, on which was a wooden globe tracing the liner's routes. The present was from Masons of Panama.

In a day crowded with other events, Lindbergh found time to slip away to view the ruins of old Panama along the famous Camino real, where mules bore the gold of conquest across the isthmus. Lindbergh was especially interested in the ruins of the old Panama cathedral which was blown up by Morgan, the raider, but whose wooden beams have stood intact these four hundred years.

Many Turkeys Are Entered In Show

HICKMAN CASE

battle in which C. Ivy Thoms, the druggist, was fatally wounded, entered a plea of not guilty yesterday to an indictment jointly charging him and Hickman with the murder. District Attorney Asa Keyes asked time to prepare a counter motion. Judge Carlos Hardy gave Keyes until Friday afternoon to prepare the motion.

Scout Girl's Theory
Sheriff's officers placed little stock in testimony given by a girl witness in a murder trial yesterday indicating that Hickman might have been involved in another drug store holdup killing. The witness in the three men accused of murdering A. V. Miles, the druggist, said Miles' slayer looked more like Hickman than one of the three defendants.

Officers pointed out, however, that the Miles slaying was on Nov. 1, and they were certain that Hickman was in the middlewest at that time.

TROOPS CRUSH NEW REVOLT IN MANAGUA ZONE

LOYAL GUARDSMEN IN CONTROL OF AREA IN SOMOTILLO

(By Associated Press)
MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 11.—A short lived revolt in Somotillo, Department of Chinandega, was ended by loyal Nicaraguan national guardsmen and they were in control of the situation today, marine corps headquarters announced. The revolt followed the desertion of a number of members of the national guard, inspired, according to marine headquarters, by followers of the rebel general Augustino Sandino.

Marines Sent to Scene
A marine detachment was sent to Somotillo, when it was reported the whole town was in revolt. While they were on their way the cheering word was received at headquarters that loyal troops had gained control of the town.

One Killed in Break
Marines killed a man on trial for murder at Bluefields when he attempted to escape. P. Escobar, the accused man, dashed away as a marine corps lieutenant started to lock him up in prison on his return from the court house.

Situation Held Like Philippines
WASHINGTON, Jan. 11 (AP)—American marines in Nicaragua are dealing with a situation in many ways similar to that which marked the last phases of the pacification of the Philippines. A handful of hostiles, fitting through the jungle covered area along the Honduran border, must be rounded up and that process has begun with the return of the dry season making jungle trails available again to the marine patrols and detachments of Nicaraguan national guard under marine commanders.

Seize Coffee Crop
The main source of revenue of the Sandino and Saigada bands, Washington officials say, has been the coffee crop seized from the scattered cultivated patches in the area where they operate. A market for this coffee is found across the border in Honduras where it is sold at half the usual price.

Government reports here are declared to show that sufficient revenue has been derived from the coffee source to account for purchase here and there in Honduras of whatever additional arms and ammunition the hostile forces have received recently. Suggestions that some outside agency is supplying Sandino are more or less scouted at the state department.

Washington political officials also seemed inclined to look upon estimates of heavy casualties among the Sandino forces in clashes with the marines as highly imaginary.

Leader Not Recognized
Sandino himself has never had any previous importance, politically speaking, in Nicaragua. The state department bluntly calls him a bandit leader, intent only on pillage. Moncada, the liberal military chieftain with whom the Stimson disarmament agreement was put through and the probable liberal candidate for president at the elections this summer, is said to have informed American authorities that Sandino was always

CONFERENCE ON HIGHWAY ROUTE HELD IN ABILENE

R. Ely, Abilene member of the State Highway Commission. It was shown that the route suggested will shorten the distance to travelers from southern sections to the Panhandle several miles, eliminating a 90 degree angle in the highway.

This is G. M. Gordon, widely known Dallas, Texas, pharmacist, who spent twenty years developing "Gordon's," an Internal Antiseptic for the stomach and bowels, for which he received $80,000 for the rights to the secret process of compounding.

"The greatest obstacle to the successful treatment of stomach troubles," said Mr. Gordon, "was fermentation (souring of food matter in the stomach and bowels), which inflames and irritates these organs and produces gas that causes much distress. Fermentation can be stopped only with an antiseptic."

ROTARY HEARS OF ITS RULES

N. L. PETERS, W. W. RIX AND VISITORS ARE SPEAKERS
Following the program committee's arrangement to turn a part of each meeting program over to a study of organization rules and by-laws, N. L. Peters was the principal speaker at noon today when members of Lubbock's Rotary club gathered in regular weekly luncheon session at Hotel Lubbock.

SCRIVENER, FORD

Jury had received the case late at a night session and had deliberated one hour and fifteen minutes. Defense counsel immediately filed notice of appeal.
Scrivener based his defense on an alibi asserting that he was at his home in Houston when the Texas City bank was robbed. The state combated this defense by introducing witnesses who testified that he was seen in the vicinity of the bank before the hold-up.
To Ask New Trial
Sentence will not be passed by Judge C. C. Dierel until motion for a new trial has been acted upon some time during the present term of court, which ends January 28. When the verdict was returned at 12:55 a. m., Mrs. M. M. Sedgwick, sister of Scrivener, fainted. Scrivener attempted to go to her, but deputies restrained him. He also was denied permission to "speak to the jury" after the verdict had been returned.
The reason there are thirty-six columns outside the Lincoln Memorial at Washington, is because there were only thirty-six states in the Union at the time of Lincoln's death.

ROTARY HEARS OF ITS RULES

N. L. PETERS, W. W. RIX AND VISITORS ARE SPEAKERS
Following the program committee's arrangement to turn a part of each meeting program over to a study of organization rules and by-laws, N. L. Peters was the principal speaker at noon today when members of Lubbock's Rotary club gathered in regular weekly luncheon session at Hotel Lubbock.

The Blazing Horizon

THE STORY THUS FAR
The story is laid in the Indian territory and along the Kansas border in the '80's, when a fight was being waged by the "Boomers" for the opening of the territory to settlement of the territory.

Chief characters are:
TONY HARRISON, orphaned at 13 when his father was murdered in a poker game.
PAWNEE BILL, adventurer, Indian interpreter and showman.
JOE CRAIG, who takes Tony to the Bar K ranch to live.
TITUS MOORE, owner of the Bar K.
RITA MOORE, his little tomboy daughter.

When Tony is 15, Rita and her mother depart for Virginia and the boy learns for the first time how much he cares for the little red-haired, arrogant miss.

Months pass and Tony is recruited by DAVID PAYNE, leader of the "Boomers," and chief agitator for the opening of Oklahoma to settlement. Tony is one of Payne's sympathizers, and so is Tony, although his benefactor, Titus Moore, opposes the opening with all his might. When Pawnee Bill goes out the following year with a wild west show he takes Tony along, and when the boy returns Rita is back.

CHAPTER XXVIII
"Isn't it beautiful, Tony?"
"It was, Tony agreed. They sat their horses on the crest of a little rise overlooking a broad green valley. To the south, partly veiled from their vision by the timber growth, flowed the salt fork of the Arkansas. Cattle grazed peacefully in the valley, checked off on the west by a seemingly limitless stretch of barbed wire fence.
"Everything is so big," Rita continued, "so vast and limitless. I got awfully homesick for it at times, Tony."
"I'm glad to hear it. I thought maybe you'd get too civilized to want to come back."
She darted him a searching look. It had seemed to her that his remark had carried some bitterness with it. But Tony met her eyes and smiled. "No one could blame you," he said. "A young lady has to have something more exciting than a landscape in her life. I guess. How did you like the east?"
"Oh, it's wonderful. I'd be perfectly happy if I could have both. But there were times when I felt cramped—shut in. And no one seemed to understand me. They couldn't. Tony, they didn't know what it meant to be able to look all directions as far as the eye could reach without seeing the limits of one's own back yard. Some of them refused to believe me."
The youth nodded.
"Perhaps I know what you're thinking," she went on with some spirit, a little annoyed at his silence. "You're saying to yourself that isn't my own back yard at all—aren't you?"
He reddened and lifted his eyes. "I was merely thinking," he answered, "that it would be nice if Titus Moore could only get the title to it. It'll sadden me somewhat when they take it away from him."
"And what makes you think that is so inevitable?"
"The population's drifting westward, and this," with a wide sweep of his arm, "is right in the path. People will battle right hard to get something for nothing. I must have been asked a million questions in the east this summer by folks who are thinking of going west and looking for a free quarter section."
She shrugged impatiently at his bent forward to pat Cherokee's nose. "I'm sure I can't understand why they think they have a right to come in here. This is Indian land."
"And the boomers contend that the presence of the cattle ranches proves the Red men have more land than they need in the territory. They claim that a man has as much right to farm on a quarter section as to raise cows on a ranch that's three or four hundred times as big. They've been agitating for the removal of all the cattlemen's fences in the strip, and they made such a racket about it that a few weeks ago President Cleveland ordered all the fences torn down."
She jerked up her head to look at him. "Does my father know that?"
"Sure," he answered easily and smiled.
"And will he tear all this fence down that he's been so long in building?"
"Not so as you could notice it. The Cherokee Live Stock association decided not to pay any attention to the president's proclamation."
"But, Tony, that's wrong, to disobey the president's orders."
"I know it. At the same time, that fence cost considerable time and money."
She frowned angrily. "Tony, you're making fun of me. Come, Cherokee, we'll look for someone with better manners."
"Not at all," Tony disclaimed. "I'm being real serious. If the president wants to enforce the proclamation he has plenty of troops in the territory to see that the fence is torn down. The cattlemen don't want to go to the trouble of removing their fence and then, after the job's done, learn that the government was only fooling. So far, Joe Craig tells me, there hasn't been a cavalryman around to inquire as to the Bar K's intentions."
He glanced about him. When he spoke again it was on a different subject. "This spot here is where Joe Craig and I were sitting when I got my first look at you. Do you remember it? You came scooting down that stretch there like a bat out of—excuse me—like a Comanche Indian."
Her lips parted in a flashing smile. "I remember it, Tony. And you were such a bashful little boy. It's been five years, hasn't it? I suppose I must have seemed a terrible person."
"Well," he drawled, "you had a habit of making me feel uncomfortable. I was pretty girl-shy in those days. I'd have run five miles to get away from anything in skirts."

"Whereas now," she mocked, "you are the man of the world—after a summer in the show business. You couldn't call me your bashful any longer. Tell me, Tony, did you meet your fate while you were traveling?" She regarded him archly, her eyes beneath their drooping lids sweeping over his lithe, handsome figure.
"Then and there he wanted to tell her that she had no right to ask such a question when she was the only girl who could possibly matter to him. He wanted to tell her of the thousand and one longings that filled him. Instead he turned a trifle pale beneath her veiled scrutiny and forced a careless little laugh."
"Not much chance, Rita," he said and turned away.
Her eyes as they lingered on him were a bit wistful.
"How about yourself?" he inquired with assumed nonchalance as he turned back to her.
"Have I met my fate, you mean?" She waited for his nod and laughed. "I'm not sure, Tony. I may have for all I know, but I haven't recognized it yet." Her eyes were dancing as she tossed her head in a gesture of abandon and her hair, like burnished copper, threw back the sun in a thousand glints. "Come, Tony, we must get back."
She urged Cherokee forward and the youth followed in silence, drawing a dozen answers from her laughing answer to his question, all of which were torturing. The only interpretation to put on her remark, he kept telling himself, was that she had met someone in the east, after all, about whom she was unwilling to talk.
He meant to bring up the subject again but the opportunity kept eluding him. Several times he tried to direct the conversation into the right channel, but without success. Her mood, when it was not so unresponsive, was capricious. The nearest he came to it was when he offered to give her Cherokee.
She had been singing the praises of the young horse in a sudden outburst of enthusiasm for his beauty.
"I'd give anything if I had him, Tony," she cried, putting her arms around Cherokee's neck.
"He's yours, then."
The terse offer amazed her. She stared at him, as if trying to learn whether he was in earnest, and for a moment or two she could not speak.
"Tony, you don't mean it, surely."
"Why not?" he replied carelessly. "Barring myself, you're the only one the horse will have anything to do with. He seems to have worked up a real affection for you and I'm plumb jealous."
"But Tony, that's not the point—that's not."
"No? Well, let me put it this way, Rita: I've been living at the Bar K for five years and Colonel Moore has been like Santa Claus to me. He's the most generous man I ever saw. I'd like to do a little giving myself."
She saw then that beneath his flippant reckless air was a deep earnestness, a desire to hurt himself if, by so doing, he could gratify a whim of his benefactor's daughter.
She shook her head slowly. "No, Tony, I couldn't do it. He's yours and you must never part with him. I didn't realize what I was saying. Thank you very much, though. His hand was resting on Cherokee's saddle and she impulsively reached over and laid hers on it. "Thank you," she repeated, then swiftly withdrew her hand from his and walked off.
The blood pounded madly through his veins. "Rita," he called, and then checked himself.
But she had stopped. "Yes?" He fumbled helplessly for words. "I—I just wanted to say that if you won't take him, he's at least yours when you're here."
Rita smiled her thanks and as she walked away he began to curse himself. "There was your chance to say something," he roared, "and you were like a dummy. Well—"
The night before Rita left, the Moores and the Bar K hands sat in the warm grass beneath a full moon and Rita, at Colonel Moore's request, sang and accompanied herself on the guitar.
She had been taking vocal lessons in Washington, her father informed them when Craig had loudly applauded her first song. "Rita, play something all the boys can sing. What's that one Pawnee Bill's always singing, Joe?"
"I saw the train come around the bend.
Goodby, my lover, goodby;
All loaded down with wild west men.
Goodby, my lover, goodby."
Tony continued with Buffalo Bill's show. In San Francisco there is a fight in a gambling hall. In the next chapter.

Thought For Today

Man shall not live by bread alone.—Matt. 4:4

THE contemplation of celestial things will make a man both think and speak more sublimely and magnificently when he descends to human affairs.—Cicero

Two Sides

It wasn't so very long ago that the average citizen had a deep and abiding distrust of this country's great international banking houses.

He didn't know for certain, but he had a smacking feeling that the Wall Street gentlemen who control the purse strings of a good share of the world were forever cooking up plans that were going to get him, the average citizen, into trouble.

Every once in a while it appeared as if his suspicions were justified. American battleships would go to some minor nation or other to protect Wall Street's loans or investments.

A few of the average citizens, sailors or marine khaki men might get killed. In the background there would loom the menacing shadow of a miniature, but expensive and irritating war.

But the international bankers seem to have seen a new light. In proof of this remark we refer you to this country's relations with Mexico.

The government of Mexico owes a huge sum to a number of New York bankers of whom the House of Morgan is not the least important member. Thus far Mexico has been paying only the interest, a payment on the principal is due this year, but probably can not be met.

Now if the suspicions of the average citizen were correct, it is to put it another way, if Wall Street were to operate in this case as it has one or twice in the past in connection with other nations, this might mean a great deal of trouble. There would be considerable talk of intervention. There would be threats, unpleasant ultimata and certain intervention would be working overtime to find some way of getting our armed forces to collect the debt.

But what is actually happening? Well, Mr. Dwight Morrow quits his post with Morgan and becomes our ambassador to Mexico. It seems reasonable, safe to assume that while fulfilling an ambassador's functions he has not forgotten that Mexico is heavily in debt to Wall Street and Morgan.

Morrow finds that Mexico can not possibly meet the payment of $60,000,000 that is due this year, can not meet it without wrecking her government. Furthermore, he finds that Mexico now has what looks like a stable government, that her program of internal development, particularly as regards her oil wells, seems to bear promise of better times in the near future. Soon, according to present indications Mexico will be more prosperous, receipts will be greater, and the government can pay its debt.

As a result, nothing is being said about intervention. There are no threats. Instead, the bankers are about to negotiate with Mexico under Morrow's guiding spirit—a new agreement based on Mexico's capacity to pay. The bankers want to see Mexico prosperous; they want Mexico's business to boom; they want her to have a stable government.

This relations between the United States and Mexico are very good. Both governments are happy, and the average citizen of each nation is to be benefited—for a more prosperous Mexico, you know, will mean greater markets for American manufacturers and consequently greater prosperity here.

So, we repeat, it begins to look as if the traditional suspicions of the international bankers were all wrong just at present, at least, the bankers seem to be operating for the good of the common people of both nations.

We are not authority on statistics, but the average run of motorists is about sixty miles an hour.

THE PLAINSMAN

Says:

That Girl on Broadway says a girl's popularity on auto rides is sometimes set by how many laps she makes to the mile.

Lyman F. Barber, American mining engineer kidnaped by Mexican bandits, escaped from his captors by killing his four armed guards with stones and bottles. Mr. Barber has promised himself to be a brave man. Honor always has, always will and always should go to the brave.

As The Plainsman sees it Mr. Barber displayed just as much nerve in escaping his captors, who had promised to slay him, as Colonel Lindbergh displayed when he pursued the nose of the Spirit of St. Louis toward Paris and "let 'er buck!" Of course, there can be no measure of bravery, but certainly there was nothing lacking in the engineer's achievement.

But Mr. Barber, aside from some homage by his friends and neighbors, will not become the public celebrity Colonel Lindbergh has become for two great and sufficient reasons. First, Mr. Barber is not the first man to overcome great physical odds to save his own life. Second, the slaying of his captors benefited no one aside from himself and members of his immediate family. In other words there is no "future" to Mr. Barber's feat while that angle is the most important of Colonel Lindbergh's achievement.

The world has always been ready and waiting to acclaim the first man to do a thing which has been the desire of his rivals and which everyone is awaiting. Hence the unprecedented popularity of Colonel Lindbergh—and the reason that another brave man will go uncheered.

There are many men and women in the world whose every day life requires of them just as much courage as Colonel Lindbergh displayed when he successfully flew across the ocean to Paris. There are many ordinary humans who are bearing up in the face of almost overwhelming odds—martyrs, heroes—but nobody knows about it because their acts of bravery are not spectacular. They do not appeal to popular fancy.

Not all the people who deserve praise get it, by any means. That's a good thought to carry with you for emergency the next time you feel yourself mistreated.

That Man on Avenue Q says the man who tries to force his opinion off on the other fellow is generally the man whose opinions are not worth much.

Miss A. Maude Royden, British evangelist who has recently come to America to lecture, has found herself in the middle of a big fuss because she smokes. A discussion of woman's rights, as women have demanded and secured them.

If women have the right to equal rights with men, and remembering that many noted male divines are converts of Lady Nicotine, why should woman preachers be allowed to follow their own dictates in the matter? If the opera and stage stars of the feminine sex, who have recently endorsed this or that brand of cigarette, are to be sheltered from criticism for doing things which their male contemporaries do, why shouldn't the women preachers be given the same right? Sooner or later they'll have to be given that right if we continue to be fair.

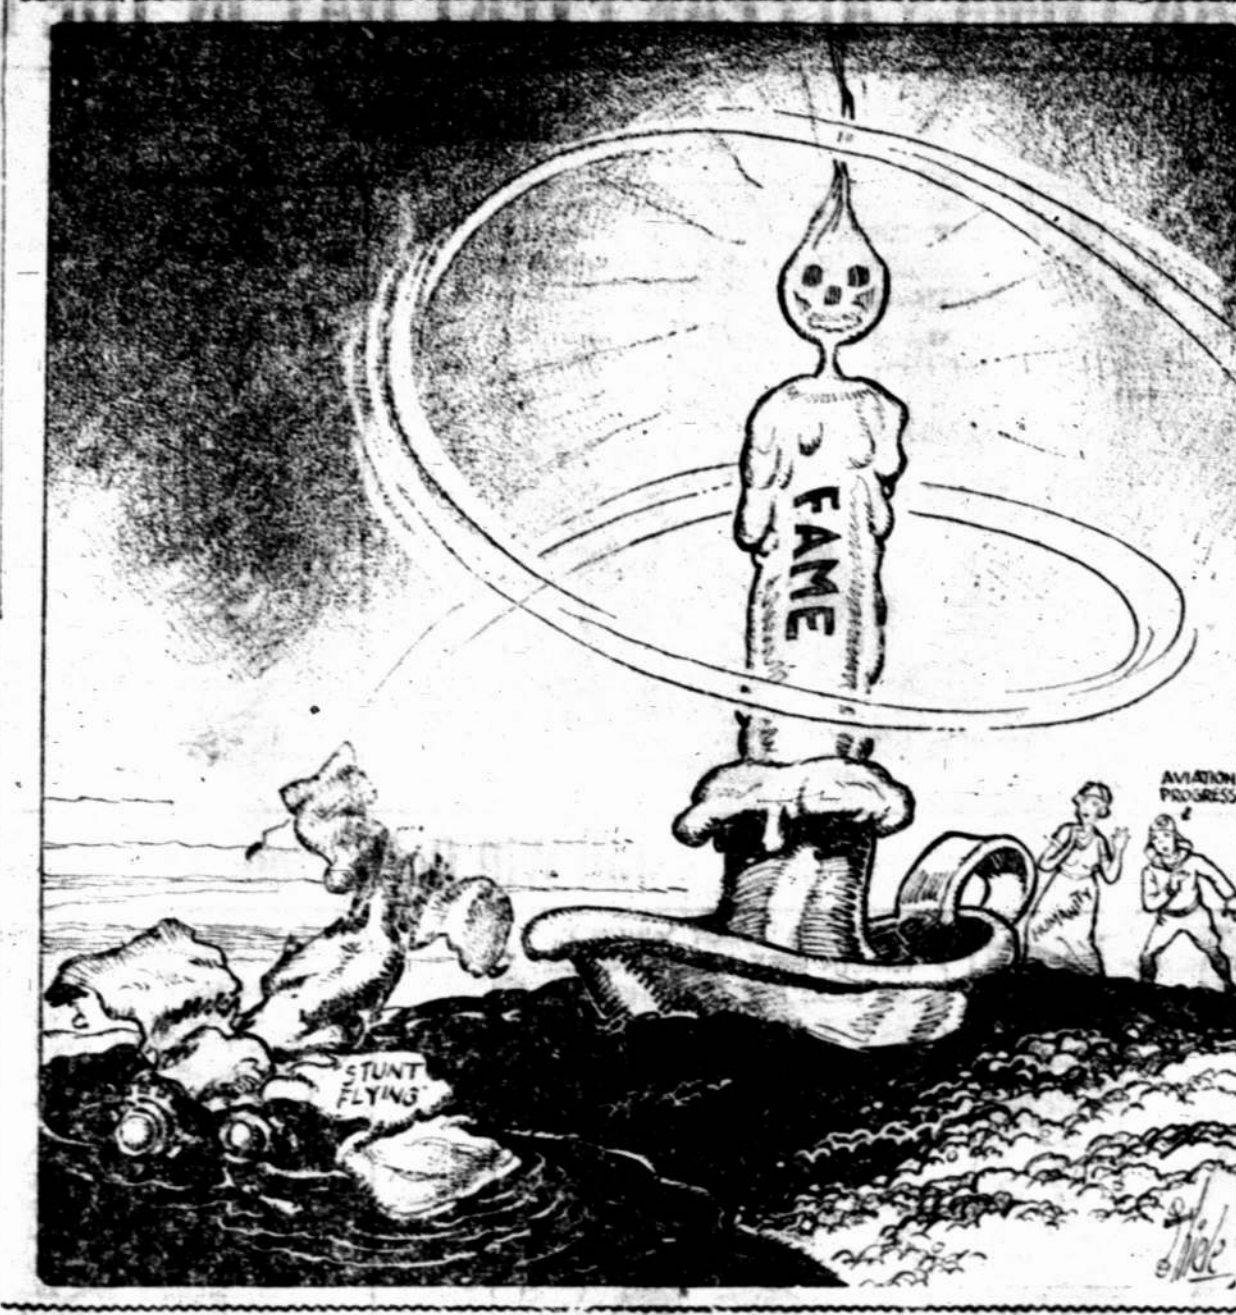

The Plainsman doesn't advise women—or men either—to smoke cigarettes. But he'd rather see a woman preacher smoke cigarette and then fill her pulpit than to get mixed up in any of several controversies which Aimee McPherson has been mixed up in and then assume a saintly air—and that's his most assuredly that!

The trains was coming down the track. There was a loud kerplunk. What used to be an auto, now is just a pile of junk.

There isn't any use trying to make both ends meet. They wouldn't recognize each other any more if they did.

Distance doesn't always lend enchantment. All some people ever see of opportunity is the tail light.

Here Are Some Samples Of The Legislation That Some Of Our Congressmen Have Brought To Present Session

IN NEW YORK SEE-SAWING AND BROADWAY

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—In those grand old days, before chowmein palaces had grabbed up the best Broadway corners, there existed in Manhattan certain individuals who looked upon eating as an art. Their fame spread far and wide. Presidents, in from Washington, were to be seen in their places, statesmen and gentlemen from every corner of the world knew of them.

Such a place was Jack's—behind the fame of which stood Jack Dunstan, the Irishman from Cork, who got his first job, in New York waiting table. He became head waiter of a famous old eating place, quarreled with the proprietor and walked out into the night saying: "The next time you see me, I'll be back here buying this place out."

Jack died the other day, at the age of 74. His place had long been closed because he refused to sell. He was afraid someone would get hold of it who wouldn't serve food as they did in "the old days." He gave up the ghost when he saw the changing times bringing the great parade of drug, cigar, counters, quick-and-hasty bean emporiums and sandwich carving stands where men dive and graze and knock off each other's hats. He was too old to change, he commented.

HE began with an oyster bar. But even an oyster bar can bring fame. "It was said that Albert King of Belgium, once stood at this bar and paid Jack a most pretty compliment. When his eyes were turned to a café you would be likely to meet three personalities such as Theodore Roosevelt, or from Platt, or Richard Croker, or Booth Tarkington, or William Travers Jerome. In the gay fillet's most night life soirees, they were for bacon and eggs. He could match hansom cabs with Sherry's, Demoneiros or Rector's."

A couple of years after prohibition, however, some prohibition agents interfered with his hundred thousand dollar cellar. That finished Jack. He said he refused to operate a bootleg resort. The old-timers say of him that he was the last of the true restaurateurs.

IT was in front of Jack's that Sam, the most famous of Manhattan's taxi drivers, flourished. It was said that he seldom if ever actually drove a fare. His game was to "move in" on bibulous gentlemen, who generally paid him his fare in advance and then forgot about it over their next drink. When Sam would return to his seat, to keep an alert eye open for the next one. Invariably Sam would get at least one "set up" out of it for himself. When he had collected a sufficient amount without leaving his stand, he would drive back to the stable, a night's work done.

SPEAKING of back drivers, there is another Sam—this one colored and still clinging to Broadway after midnight. He is known to every member of the theatrical profession, particularly the old-timers, and brings them a flavor of "those times—in a world cluttered with taxis and noise. Al Johnson is the particular favorite of this particular Sam and few weeks pass without at least one back ride from the theater home.

Sam invariably gives Johnson the first chance for losses in the "Tex" at the stage door. If Johnson does not care to ride, Sam goes elsewhere in search of customers. Meanwhile he picks up a few dollars from tourists who like to see the Gray White Boy in old-fashioned style.

With Our West

TEXAS BY JAMES L. DOW

Contemporaries

THE SUPERIORITY COMPLEX. The "holier than thou" attitude is always baneful. The person who regards himself superior to every-body else and makes issue of his assumed ascendancy is a social and economic misfit; and whether or not his elevated opinion of himself concerns education, knowledge, talents, power or appearance, he is unpleasant company.

In our school days we always scorned the so-called "goody-goody" who tattled to teacher and got his school mates into many varieties of trouble. We disliked the "goody-goody" because his virtues seemed all sham to us. He was deceitful which was the very antithesis of comradeship. He scorned good times, and even the immature mind recognized such pleasure as lawful instead of the prudish self-denial the "goody-goody" practice seemed to appear to practice. That is why the lad or lassie who was playful and mischievous was honored and loved a hundred times more than the little angel who proudly spread his wings at the expense of his play mates.

There is something seriously wrong with the person who does not enjoy wholesome pleasure. The person who never smiles because he spurns frivolity is repellent to us. We feel that cheerfulness and joy should harmonize and bring gain for him the respect and admiration of his fellows. Capacity for enjoyment is essentially a characteristic of the well balanced man, woman and child. He who prates of his virtues, his elevated tastes and his scorn of sports and habits which afford clean recreation can not be entrusted with the happiness of a fellow being because he is biased and self-centered.

Some of the most virtuous characters in history were fun loving and jovial. The same is true today. Amusement is a natural right and being objected to by persons of honor and integrity, is regarded as a medium of moral and mental growth and, therefore, is welcomed by them. Mirth and good cheer sustain virtue. Sound amusement and recreation are the best means from trouble and problems, and for that reason is vital to human equipoise.

But one is not to confuse clean pleasurable pursuits with vulgar enjoyment. The latter are sinister and destroy soul and body. A normal adult's conscious has no difficulty in deciding between right and wrong. Computation is certain to precede steps unwise in a moral sense, either precluding the commission of immoral acts or bringing reformation if conscience dictates and is violated. Wholesome diversion is an effectual armor against sin and misery.

We never get too old or too dignified for occasional play. We never get so wise or so great that we haven't something more to learn.—Denison Herald.

Indeed this is one of the great draw backs to some people in their efforts to succeed. We have known some young men and some young women as well as older ones who were unable to get anywhere because of the attitude they carried in regard to matters of business as of pleasure. There seems to be in the lives of some folks that air of we hardly know what, that keeps people from liking them, and there is no special reason for not liking them if conscience dictates and is violated. Wholesome diversion is an effectual armor against sin and misery.

Where one sheep goes they all follow, especially if it is a black sheep.

DEMO LEADERS MEET SOON TO NAME NOMINEE

FIRST NATIONAL MEET SINCE 1920 PLANNED AT WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—Probable starters in the democratic presidential nomination derby will go through their paces before party leaders at the Jackson Day dinner here tonight in the first national get-together of the party since 1920.

Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York, Senator James A. Reed of Missouri and a half dozen or more others whose names have been linked with democratic White House hopes will gather around the banquet board to give their views to the men who administer party affairs.

John W. Davis, democratic standard bearer in 1924, will wield the gavel after being introduced by Owen L. Shaver of the national committee, and Claude G. Bowers of New York, author and authority on the administrations of Jackson and Jefferson, will deliver one of the principal addresses.

Twelve hundred invitations have gone out to prominent democrats in the nation, and the fact that the national committee goes into session on the same day to decide a time and place for the national convention is expected to draw a host of acceptances.

Decided Contrast The present get-together will offer a decided contrast to the situation eight years ago. Then the democratic party had been in power for eight years, Woodrow Wilson still was in the White House and the democratic donkey was surfeited with political favor.

It was at that last Jackson day dinner that Wilson and Bryan parted company on whether the league of nations should be made an issue at the coming election, and it was there that Gov. James M. Cox of Ohio entered the 1920 campaign.

Now, after eight years in which the republican pachyderm has held the favored spot, the democratic donkey has heard the call to arms of the presidential campaign, in President Coolidge's "I do not choose to run" statement, and it is gauging its possibilities for leadership.

At the last rally the interests in President Wilson's message overshadowed the interest in the selection of a convention city. This time the convention site will be one of the liveliest issues. Cleveland, Detroit and San Francisco have been mentioned prominently, but friends of half a dozen other cities are active.

Highway Patrol Is Urged For Safety

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 11.—State patrols as a means of promoting safety on the highways were recommended by C. M. Babcock, president of the American Road Builders' association, here for a meeting of the organization today.

He said there was "little use of building more and better highways if they are to be but pathways of death and injury."

Mr. Babcock, who is the Minnesota highway commissioner, declared the public roads building program was "nothing short of marvelous."

"Twenty five years ago," he said, "a pavement outside of a municipality was a curiosity. Now one can drive on continuous pavement from the Atlantic coast to mid-continent."

He predicted the two coasts soon would be connected by paved roads.

Special Attorney To Aid Bank Case

AUSTIN, Jan. 11.—Retention of W. W. Hair, of Abilene, as a special attorney to aid in the prosecution of three men charged with robbery and murder in connection with the spectacular holdup of Cisco, Texas First National bank during the Christmas holidays, was announced today by Governor Moody.

Mr. Hair will assist J. Frank Sparks, Eastland county attorney. One of the cases has been set for January 26; the others have not yet been set. Henry Helms and Marshal Rathoff, ex-convicts, and Robert Hill, are those to be tried.

Another man suspected of participation in the robbery died from gunshot wounds.

Still Burned When Raid Is Conducted

SAN ANGELO, Jan. 11.—A quantity of whiskey made in Tom Green county was subjected to a fire test today when officers raided a still on the river near here. The rum makers set fire to their liquor, and flames consumed all the evidence, none being left for prosecution in the rum-making charge.

No arrests were made.

FARMERS PLAN FOR BIG CROP IN ICE REGION

ALASKANS HAVE SHORT TIME IN 'THAW' BUT SAY CROPS PAY

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Jan. 11.—On the rim of the Arctic circle, ice-bound and battered by the bleak winds of winter, Alaskan farmers are planning for the golden days of summer sunshine still five months away. Slightly more than 100 in number, but each almost 24 hours long, those days mean everything to agriculture north of 61°.

In the Matanuska Valley, 45 miles northeast of Anchorage, every fire-side is a forum and each front porch a platform where the farmer has been forced down by competition of the offices of the Magnolia Petroleum company.

Under this increase, Magnolia gasoline is to sell for an average of 18 cents in all Texas towns. It was 12 cents in 1916, before prohibition, and the increase was made only at points where the retail price was below 18 cents.

Waco was among the towns having an increase in price. Gasoline has been selling there for 13 cents a gallon, "because of local conditions," officials here said.

The brief includes mention of the recent port bond issue, original port investment, cargo already handled and potential tonnage to be developed.

Aide To Calles In Mexico To Resign

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 11.—El Universal today quoted "persons close to" Secretary of Interior Calles, who ranks next to President Calles in the cabinet, as saying he has announced he will resign next April. He will then take charge of the political campaign being made in his behalf for the governorship of the State of Vera Cruz.

factor in the success or failure of farming operations in Alaska. Growth and maturity of crops are governed by the length of the frost-free period, the amount of sunshine and rainfall, and the summer temperature. The government has experiment stations, only a few hundred miles apart, but each in strikingly different farm regions.

Boost In Gasoline Prices Is Posted

DALLAS, Jan. 11.—Increases in the retail prices of gasoline from 2 to 5 cents a gallon in 30 or 40 Texas towns where the price had been forced down by competition were announced here today at the offices of the Magnolia Petroleum company.

Under this increase, Magnolia gasoline is to sell for an average of 18 cents in all Texas towns. It was 12 cents in 1916, before prohibition, and the increase was made only at points where the retail price was below 18 cents.

DRY ORDER IN CRITICISM OF PRESS IN U. S.

W. C. T. U. MAKES LONG ANALYSIS OF RUM DEATHS

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—Deaths from alcoholism in Chicago in 1927 probably will exceed those of any year in the prohibition period.

The press should also report that the 1927 estimated alcoholism death rate though higher than in 1920, is lower than the average rate for the normal pre-prohibition years, 1912-1916; that it is nearly 20 per cent lower than in 1916, according to the National W. C. T. U. comparison.

The W. C. T. U. also points out that during the seven prohibition years about 400 fewer persons have died of alcoholism in Chicago than would have died had the average rate prevailed of the years 1912-1916 before prohibition.

Chicago's "high mark" in alcoholism death rates in fifteen consecutive years is not in 1927 but in 1913 and 1916, before prohibition, the temperance union asserts and its "high mark" of the prohibition period was reached in 1923 and 1925.

"If the smallpox death rate had been increasing, health agencies would have left no stone unturned to warn of the precautions to be taken to avoid the disease," according to a W. C. T. U. statement.

"Yet, in Chicago, about ten times as many people still die of alcoholism annually as die of smallpox in the whole state of Illinois. What are the health authorities doing to prevent or reduce this death loss?"

"A bulletin of the city health department warns against 'bad' liquors, but press stories about alcoholism say that almost none of these deaths are due to wood alcohol or denaturants.

partment warns against 'bad' liquors, but press stories about alcoholism say that almost none of these deaths are due to wood alcohol or denaturants.

PREVENTION OF FIRES IS ASKED BY C. C. BODIES

(By Associated Press) FORT WORTH, Jan. 11.—Co-operation of the South and East Texas chambers of commerce is being asked by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce in a fire prevention program to be launched February 1.

The West Texas organization made a promise when it opposed proposed insurance rate increases before the state insurance department in 1925-27 that if the increase be refused it would seek to reduce fire losses by such a campaign, according to E. M. Whitehead, publicity director.

The plan calls for two-fold work in removing fire hazards and in education of people in prevention methods and will call for business-like co-operation with city officials, school heads, fire department heads and clubs in every town in West Texas. The average person breathes 18 times per minute.

It takes 1606 days for light from Alpha Centauri, the nearest star to reach the earth.

1927 Showed Rapid Swing to Orange Vitamine Poultry Feeds

Thousands Realized Better Egg Production --Reduced Chick Losses by New Discovery in Feeding

FROM an "idea" less than five years ago to a proven success that is now making money for thousands of chicken raisers is the record of Superior Orange Vitamine Poultry Feeds.

When Gaylord J. Stone, president of the Universal Mills at Fort Worth, witnessed his young daughter's quick recovery from a serious stomach disorder through a diet of orange juice, he got the idea that orange vitamins could be added to poultry feeds with similar good results.

The answer was Dehydrated Orange Pulp and Peel—which proved to be the most practical means of including these health-giving vitamins in egg mash and chick feeds. During three years of careful testing, the results were so good that Dehydrated Orange Pulp and Peel was included in the formula of Superior Egg Mash and Superior Chick Feeds in July, 1926. From that date on, users all over the Southwest have put this feed to all practical tests.

Poultry raisers got the same good results we had obtained—more eggs per hen—fewer chick losses—better chick growth. Success after success in the hands of our customers caused a rapid swing to Superior Orange Vitamine Poultry Feeds in 1927. As we go into the new year, 1928, every indication is that this swing to Orange Vitamine Feeds will be even more pronounced.

Superior Orange Vitamine Egg Mash Produces Net Profit of $603.55 from 250 Hens

Here is one instance of the increased profits to be realized from feeding Orange Vitamine Feeds. Wm. J. Mikesko, manager of the Big Elm Poultry Farm at Temple, Texas, wrote in part, Nov. 14, 1927.

"Just to show you what I have done with a pen of 250 pullets fed on Superior Orange Egg Mash. From Nov. 1, 1926, to Nov. 1, 1927, these pullets laid an average of 19% eggs each, or 4,125 dozen. These eggs were sold on local market to grocery stores for $993.80. These pullets consumed 7,400 pounds of Superior Orange Egg Mash, costing $239; 7,000 pounds home-grown and mixed grain, costing $105; 500 pounds oyster shells, costing $6.25; 200 pounds Poultry Tonic (Panaces), $20.00 Total expense,
