Rains Soak South Plains Areas

U. S. JETS IN BRITAIN—British airmen are shown above as they walk past a line of F-80 Shooting Stars on an RAF field at Odiham, England, after the fighters, part of the 56th Fighter Group completed the first jet-propelled air crossing of the Atlantic ocean from the United States. Sixteen planes which made the trip will remain in England for two days before moving to Germany to take part in tactical exercises with the U. S. Air Force in Europe, which has been bolstered the past week by 60 huge B-29 Superfortresses. In addition, a large number of additional jet planes are to be flown to Germany soon. Plane Drops 'Bomb' On UN

(By International News Service)

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., July 22—A small, private plane buzzed low over United Nations headquarters late today and dropped an apparently home-made bomb that exploded with a roar heard for more than a mile.

No damage was done and no one was injured.

A short time later a plane answering the description of the mystery plane was landed at La Guardia by a self-identified student pilot from Connecticut who had to borrow 40 cents to make up the $2.50 airport fee.

Charge To Be Filed

The pilot, who gave his name as S. J. Supina, left the airport saying he was going into New York City.

Police identified Supina as a former B-17 gunner with the Eighth Air Force. They asserted he shot down two Nazi planes during the war.

A state police official said he would be charged with "malicious mischief."

When word of the Lake Success incident reached La Guardia, a police guard was immediately thrown around the small two-seater and it was searched.

Map Is Found

Tonight, Lieut. G. D. Vaine of the New York state police said a map was found in the plane of the Lake Success area, and that several UN buildings had been circled on the map.

Lieut. Vaine said the map was turned over to agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. He added:

"An arrest definitely will be made in this case. A search is under way for the pilot."

Plane Identified

Lieut. Vaine said "it has been established" that the plane under guard at La Guardia field is the same ship that flew over Lake Success.

The plane held at La Guardia field is an Aeronca, and authorities identified its owner as Allied Aviation of Williamantic, Conn.

The plane's papers bore the name of Raymond Ives, secretary of Allied Aviation. Ives was notified and asked that the plane be held for him. He was quoted by police as saying Supina took

Ford Strike Averted By Wage Agreement

DETROIT, July 22 (INS) — A strike of 116,000 Ford Motor company workers was averted today when the UAW-CIO accepted a 13-cent wage boost offered by the firm plus additional last-minute fringe concessions.

Ford thus became the last of the automotive "big three" to grant a third post-war pay increase.

The union estimated that the agreement, reached after 23 hours of continuous negotiations, will cost the company $32,000,000 annually.

A Ford company spokesman said the hike would bring the average hourly Ford wage to $1.66. The UAW calimed the pay-hike actually totals nearly 17 cents an hour when social security and other fringe benefits are included.

The new contract extends to June 16, 1949, and will be retroactive to July 16 if ratified before Aug. 16.

The agreement, approved by union negotiators, must now be endorsed by the UAW National Ford council and ratified by rank-and-file members.

QUAKE RECORDED

BERKELEY, Calif., July 22 (AP)—An earthquake of moderate intensity, estimated at 950 miles distant was recorded on the University of California seismograph at 1:08.37 California daylight time today. The direction was not determined. The movement lasted 20 minutes.

New Source Of Water Seen In Blanco Area

Budget Given Okay; Mayor Hits Action

By H. I. KIEFER
Avalanche Staff Writer

FIRST steps toward investigating Blanco canyon, near Crosbyton, as a possible solution of Lubbock's long-range water problem were taken at the semi-monthly meeting of the city commission Thursday afternoon. The action represented the first serious consideration ever given to that as a source of permanent supply.

Another surprise provided by the meeting was Mayor W. H. Rodgers' action in voting against the city budget proposed for the fiscal year which started last April 1. He argued that the budget provides "too many salaries that are entirely too high," and objected particularly to the creation of the new position of director of public works at $630 a month.

Budget Is Approved

The budget, however, was approved when Commissioners Clarence Whiteside and E. K. Hufstedler, jr., voted for its adoption. Only three of the five members of the commission attended the meeting, Commissioners W. B. Price and John Spikes being out of the city.

Also of high importance in the business transacted was the approval of resolutions which marked the start toward the paving of 65 blocks—approximately five and one-half miles—of city streets, the largest project of its kind ever to be given a green light. Curbs, gutters, and caliche bases are to be laid this summer and fall, with paving to be completed next spring.

Overshadowing all other matters in its potential importance was the business pertaining to Blanco canyon, through which the Salt fork of the Brazos river flows. It is one of the headwaters streams of the Brazos. Members of the commission credited Col. E. V. Spence, chairman of the state board of water engineers and former city manager of Big Spring, with having suggested the investigation.

Everyone acknowledged at the outset that the possibility, at this stage, is an unknown quantity. Factors were cited which both encourage and discourage optimism.

Large Lake Foreseen

On the optimistic side were estimates, described as tentative but with some basis of fact, that approximately 75,000 acre feet of water could be impounded there. That would amount to around 25 billion gallons—more than 15 times as much water as Lubbock ever has used in a year. The watershed of the Salt fork unquestionably is large. The contour of the canyon was described as a natural for a big reservoir impounded behind a large dam at one of several possible sites.

The most optimistic picture visualizes a lake some 40 miles east of Lubbock which would be six to 10 square miles in area with

Oil Field Opened Near Brownfield

BROWNFIELD, July 22. (Special)—Discovery of a new oil field 10 miles northeast of Brownfield was greeted with optimism in Brownfield today as a wildcat made a show of oil at 9,400 feet.

Seabord Oil company of Delaware No. 1 E. M. Hinson, wildcat located eight and a half miles east and three and a half miles north of Brownfield, has been announced as a discovery in the Pennsylvania lime.

The project, which started drilling 94 days ago, ran a one hour and 30 minute drillstem test at 9,405-28 feet using a five-eighths inch bottom hole choke.

Good Show Reported

Gas showed at the surface in five minutes. Oil started flowing at the top in one hour and 25 minutes and flowed to pits for five minutes before the tool was closed.

It was estimated that the flow during the five minutes was at the rate of 40 barrels of oil per hour.

After the tester was closed 30 stands of oil were unloaded from the drill pipe while it was being pulled. In addition 5,650 feet of pipe line oil and 450 feet of heavily gas-cut drilling mud was recovered when all the drill pipe had been pulled and broken down.

There was no water. Open flowing bottom hole pressure was 1,300 pounds at the end of the test was increasing. Shut-in bottom hole pressure, after 15 minutes, was 2,500 pounds.

New Field Seen

Informed sources say that the operator will run casing and complete the discovery as it is. The new producer is 660 feet from north and west lines of section 91, block 4-X, PSL survey. The drilling contract reportedly stipulated a 12,000-foot depth.

Top of the current Pennsylvanian lime was picked at 9,402 feet. Exact age of the formation has not yet been determined.

Bankers and other businessmen at Brownfield expressed opinion that the discovery may mean development of a new field in the Brownfield area. Although it is estimated that 100 producers have been completed in Terry county to date, they have been almost entirely in the Adair field near the south line of the county and in the Hockley fields at the extreme northwest of the county.

The wildcat is situated on the old Green and Lumsden ranch. Hinson owns a section and a half of land in that area.

Premier Resigns In Finland; New Government To Be Formed

LONDON, July 22 (INS) — The Soviet news agency Tass said tonight that Finland's Premier Mauno Pekkala and his cabinet have resigned.

President Juho Paasikivi was said to have received the resignations and then started a series of conferences with political leaders preparatory to naming a premier-designate to form a new government.

He reportedly will continue talks of this nature with parliamentary chiefs tomorrow.

B-29 Superforts Wing East On First World-Girdling Flight

(By The Associated Press)

TAMPA, Fla., July 22—Three B-29 Superfortresses landed at MacDill base here today on the first stop of an around-the-world flight which began at Tucson, Arizona.

The big ships from the Strategic Air command's 43rd bomb group at Davis-Monthan base refueled and headed for the Azores where they expect to stop tomorrow morning.

The planes left their Arizona base early today. They departed here at 3:33 p. m. (CST).

MacDill officials declined to say how long the planes stopped here or how many were in the crew.

This will be the first globe-circling flight for B-29s.

The Air Force planned such a project more than a year ago, but the proposal was turned down by the State department at that time.

There were reports that this country did not want to arouse Russia then by any display of U. S. air power.

Today's announcement described the flight—which will go eastward by way of the Azores, Africa, Asia, Japan and Alaska—as a "routine long-distance train-

HST Declares Outlook For Peace Bright

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, July 22—President Truman expressed belief today that prospects for peace are excellent. He threw his full support behind efforts to work out a peaceful settlement of the Berlin crisis.

Then, in a meeting of the National Security council, he received a first-hand report from Gen. Lucius D. Clay on conditions in the Soviet-blockaded German capitol.

At a news conference the President not only endorsed the program of Secretary of State Marshall for exhaustive use of diplomatic negotiations and other measures to try to break the deadlock over Berlin but also indicated the belief that they had a good chance of success.

In response to a question, Mr. Truman said that he thinks the chances for world peace are good —in fact excellent. He said he was in complete agreement with the statement Marshall made on the subject yesterday. Marshall had said that the United States would exhaust every effort of diplomacy to find a peaceful way out of the crisis but that it would not be coerced or intimidated.

The meeting of the security council, which followed closely upon the news conference, was held in the office of Mr. Truman who is its chairman.

The council includes in its membership Secretary Marshall, Secretary of Defense Forrestal and the civilian heads of the Army, Navy and Air Force departments.

Afterward, White House secretary Charles Ross told newsmen —"General Clay simply talked to the group about the situation in Berlin."

When he was asked whether the session foreshadowed any change in American policy, Ross replied—"The meeting foreshadowed nothing."

"No conclusions can be drawn from it," he contniued. "The council simply listened to General Clay. General Clay himself is going to hold a press conference tomorrow."

When Clay left the White House, he told reporters that he had reported on the German situation and that he would take off by plane to return to Berlin tomorrow night.

Russian Planes Fly In Corridor

BERLIN, July 22 (INS)—The British announced tonight that the Russians apparently have opened a direct campaign to drive the Western Allies out of the air corridor to Berlin.

They said the Russians sent fighter planes zooming close to British supply aircraft and also towed "target sleeves" for practice gunnery directly across the corridor.

Other "nerve war" developments in the Russian ground blockade was the Russian seizure of three Americans in Soviet sectors and a charge through the Soviet army press that U. S. General Lucius D. Clay had been recalled to Washington for a rebuke over his demonstrations of U. S. strength.

U. S. MPs "Overpowered"

The U. S. provost marshal's office announced that three Americans arrested by the Russians are a civilian engineer and two military policemen.

The office is investigating the cases of the three who still were held by the Russians tonight.

The two U. S. military policemen, said to have strayed into the Soviet sector of Berlin where they reportedly were "overpowered after a scuffle," were identified as Pvt. George G. Hunt, of Camp, Ohio, and Pfc. Ellwood Dwinnel, of Mabton, Wash.

The third person was R. F. Goff, a civilian engineer of Altoona, Pa., who is attached to the American

Two Crippled Veterans Charged With Intent To Commit Murder

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 22 (AP)—Two veterans—paralyzed from the waist down—were arraigned today on federal charges of intent to commit murder in connection with the shooting of a third paraplegic.

Held under $5,000 bonds are Wallace Rice, 28, of Amarillo, Texas, and Dow Duckworth, 20, of Gainesville, Texas. A preliminary hearing in the case was set for Wednesday by U. S. Commissioner Leslie Nicholson.

Kennedy veterans hospital authorities said Rice shot Richard Hicks, 31, of Canalou, Mo., in the left thigh following a fist fight July 15 in which the two men fought until both fell from their wheelchairs.

Senatorial 'Big Three' Lead Field In Vote-Getting Efforts

Candidates Set Fast Pace In Primary Campaign Windup

(By The Associated Press)

TEXAS Democratic political candidates headed today into the last day of their campaigns before voters start making ballots in the state's first primary election Saturday.

U. S. senatorial candidates continued to set the pace. Coke Stevenson yesterday made his last go-round in north Central Texas; Lyndon Johnson helicoptered his campaign to Houston and the Harris county industrial cities of Baytown and Pasadena; George Peddy wound up his campaign except for efforts from his home district with a speech at De Leon amid peach and melon festival celebrants. Roscoe Collier held a night rally in Dallas, his home town.

Candidates Are Confident

Johnson said his confidence in winning in Saturday's election had led him to complete arrangements to attend the opening of the special session in Washington Monday.

"I am confident the people will give me a majority Saturday but regardless of whether there is a runoff I shall not neglect my duties," the Texas congressman said.

Peddy predicted he would lead the primary ticket. Stevenson, who also has said he would attend the congressional session—as an observer, predicted victory without a runoff as he made an early morning broadcast. He then set out from Dallas on a handshaking tour of Glen Rose, Midlothian, Stephensville, Hico, Meridian, Valley Mills, and Clifton, before going to Temple for the night.

Jester Predicts Victory

Stevenson said he would keep his campaign quiet and make no last minute charges against his opponents. "I'll stay in character. I can get to more people on the streets than I can at meetings," he said.

Peddy, discussing the international situation, said "the next six critical years in our nation's history is no place for a pussyfooter and fence-rider."

Predictions of vistory were not confined to the senatorial race. Governor Beauford Jester confidently said he believed the state's voters would return him to office without a runoff.

Stevenson Hit

A Stevenson supporter, former legislator Tom Bullock Hyder of Denton, in a 6:30 p. m. broadcast, urged listeners to "take time to see or telephone" friends to vote for Stevenson.

"Ask them to join the rest of us in sending Mister Texas to Washington," he said.

Johnson in Houston, Peddy's home town, punched at Stevenson but had no criticism of Peddy.

Of Stevenson, he remarked—"This opponent who says he has not been an isolationist is changing his tune in the closing days of the campaign. He has taken a forthright stand on international questions."

Peddy Warns On Berlin

Former Gov. James V. Allred announced from Houston that he and former Gov. Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson would go on the air for Johnson tomorrow.

At DeLeon, Peddy warned against relaxing our military stand in Berlin. Backing down, he said, would mean to bring all our soldiers home, abandon the Marshall plan, and "dig in to fight alone" against the Russians controlling all the rest of the world.

The former colonel in the military government in Germany spoke from the bed of a truck on a public square while celebrants flocked to town for the three-day festival.

Earlier at Houston, millionaire philanthropist H. R. Cullen endorsed Peddy's candidacy.

In the governor's race, incumbent Gov. Beauford H. Jester was in Fort Worth to officiate at the opening of a new mill. Opponent Caso March campaigned informally through central Texas, waiting "anxiously" for answers to challenges hurled at Jester yesterday from the capitol's front steps. Candidate Roger Q. Evans at Marshall promised to "burn the governor's breeches" in a radio address at Denison.

UN Observers To Investigate Sporadic Palestine Fighting

TEL AVIV, July 22. (INS)—Scattered battles and air raids were reported today in the sporadic Holy Land war and United Nations observers prepared to fly to key trouble areas.

Port Said, Egypt, was alerted for 15 minutes and anti-aircraft guns opened up against an unidentified plane which swept over a beach area at the important Suez canal port.

Reports from the Syrian capital at Damascus said that 14 Jews were killed and a quantity of arms captured when a Jewish band attempting to infiltrate Syrian lines at Tel Assisiyat, in northeastern Palestine, reportedly were repulsed.

At his Mediterranean island of Rhodes headquarters, Count Folke Bernadotte, UN peace mediator, announced that he has accepted the invitation of the Lebanese president and Arab league secretary Abdul Rahman Azzam Pasha to meet with them Saturday at Beirut.

Bernadotte said that the demilitarization of Jerusalem probably will be discussed.

PRECINCT CONVENTIONS SLATED

Final Plans For Democratic Primary To Be Made Today

By R. C. HANKINS
Avalanche Staff Writer

FINAL arrangements will be made at 3 o'clock this afternoon for Saturday's Democratic primary election in Lubbock county.

Precinct chairmen will meet at that time on the second floor of the courthouse to receive election supplies and instructions on conduct of the primary, it was announced by L. C. Ellis, chairman, county Democratic committee.

Polls at the 26 election precincts will open at 8 a. m. and be closed at 7 p. m.

Ellis also reminded Democrats that precinct conventions will be held at 2:30 p. m. Saturday to elect delegates to the July 31 county convention. Ellis said that precinct conventions will be held, at call of precinct chairmen, in each precinct.

Early Vote Is Urged

The Democratic chairman also urged that:

1. All vote Saturday as early as possible, so as to facilitate an early count of ballots that may reach an all-time total of from 15,000 to 16,000. Lubbock county has a potential voting strength of approximately 22,000, Ellis said.

2. Poll taxes be presented whenever possible. That too will facilitate making of returns.

3. That no one bring to the polls a copy of the sample ballot found on Page 10, or any other list of candidates. It is prohibited by law to use any guide by which to mark an official ballot. Election judges are charged with guarding against such practices.

Quick Tabulation Sought

Election judges were requested late Thursday by Ellis to make returns of the election as quickly as possible to him. Ellis said he would, as usual, "accept the returns in first floor offices of The Avalanche-Journal."

The Avalanche-Journal also will play host over radio station KFYO, 1340 on your dial, at an election news party. Commencing at 7:30 p. m., news from local, state, district and congressional races will be announced.

The Avalanche-Journal will present the state and district and congressional news through co-operation with other newspapers of the area, the Texas Election bureau and through efforts of its own staff.

Composite Ballot Shown

Ellis said election judges would be urged to employ "plenty of

State To Get 47 New Legislators

(By The Associated Press)

The Texas legislature will have at least six new senators and 41 new representatives when it convenes in January.

A check of state legislative races Thursday showed 10 of the 16 senators whose terms expire this year are seeking re-election, and 109 representatives are asking voters to return them to the House.

Only three senatorial candidates are unopposed, while 50 of the 150 House places are uncontested.

Women Seek Election

One woman is competing for a senatorship. She is Mrs. Neveille Colson of Navasota, seeking promotion after long service in the house. The senate already has one woman member, Mrs. Lacy Stewart of Houston, who has two more years before her term ends.

There are women candidates in six house races. Miss Elizabeth Sutter of Winnsboro is campaigning for re-election. Her opponent is C. T. McKnight, jr., of Quitman. Mrs. Rae Files Still of Waxahachie, also up for re-election is challenged by T. O. Jones of Waxahachie.

Asking election to first terms are Mrs. J. C Gray of Longview; Mrs. Barbara B. Ware of Dallas; Miss Ellen Vietery of Teague; and Mrs, D. L. Pillow of El Paso.

Three Men Charged In Littlefield Thefts

LITTLEFIELD, July 22 (Special)—Three Littlefield men have been charged with burglary in connection with the break-in of the Kline-Hufstedler Implement company here last week, Sheriff Hugh Rice of Lamb county announced tonight.

The three men, charged in the justice court of Sam Farquhar, are Bobby Holder, 24, Billy Dosher, 19, and R. L. Boykin, about 24. Holder and Dosher have made signed statements in connection with the theft, Sheriff Rice said.

The men are accused of taking a heavy safe, tools, a radio and four auto tires. The loot was recovered from behind a vacant building about 15 miles north of Littlefield. The men were traced through "odd" tracks of their borrowed car at the scene of the break-in, Sheriff Rice said. Their case will come up at the August term of the grand jury in Littlefield.

Assisting Sheriff Rice in the investigation were Texas Rangers and Littlefield police.

Johnson Holds Slight Lead In Senate Race, Texas Poll Shows

By JOE BELDEN
Director, The Texas Poll

AUSTIN, July 22—The race for U. S. Senator is now a nip-and-tuck fight between Lyndon Johnson and Coke Stevenson for first place. Neither has enough support to win without a runoff, according to the latest survey of The Texas Poll.

In the race for governor, however, Beauford Jester is certain to receive a majority of the votes Saturday.

Returns of the pre-election Texas poll, 98 per cent complete Thursday night, give a slight edge to Johnson over Stevenson among persons who probably will vote Saturday. Johnson takes the lead in the poll, not because he has more supporters than Stevenson among all the qualified voters interviewed, but because his supporters appear more certain than Stevenson's to turn out to vote on Saturday.

The standing of senatorial candidates among probable voters is as follows:

Lyndon Johnson	41.9%
Coke Stevenson	39.1
George Peddy	16.0
All others	3.0

Fall Measures Four Inches In Two Sections

By BILL HAMS
Avalanche Staff Writer

RAIN, and in some sections plenty of it, swept across a wide strip of the South Plains, including the immediate Lubbock area, late Friday afternoon and last night, to further brighten already record prospects for crops.

Becton, a community about 15 miles northeast of Lubbock, reported probably the heaviest downpour with three inches measured.

Good rains also were reported at Crosbyton, Ralls, Lorenzo, Idalou, Abernathy, Shallowater, Ropes, Meadow and Farwell.

More Rain Forecast

Prospects for continued moisture were good late last night as heavy clouds hung over most of the South Plains section, and the Weather bureau forecast thundershowers in the area again late today.

The precipitation Thursday came in on the wings of heavy thunder clouds from the northeast that were loaded with heavy charges of electricity, wind and some hail.

Ottis King, Becton farmer, reported that at least three inches of rain fell at his place, starting at 2 p. m. He said the rain quickly overflowed fields and left cotton with only tops showing.

Some Hail Reported

King said considerable hail fell in scattered areas over the community northeast of Lubbock, but that he did not believe there was any general damage from the hail or high winds that accompanied the torrents of water. However, he said some small areas surely suffered damage from the hailstones.

An estimated four inches of rain fell in other sections of the Becton community, but no official measurement was given.

The weather station north of Lubbock reported .73 inch of rain Thursday afternoon and early night. A 32 mile an hour wind velocity was measured at the height of the thunderstorm. The mercury which stood at 93 when the storm struck plummeted to 66 degrees in a short time.

The downtown area was believed to have received considerably less precipitation than the

Red Issue Jars Wallace's Party

PHILADELPHIA, July 22 (AP)—Henry Wallace's third party convention gets going tomorrow with vice-presidential hopeful Glen Taylor already openly accepting any votes the Communists want to offer the ticket.

In fact, the issue of Communism in one form or another stalks through nearly all the preliminaries to the formal founding of the "new party."

It comes up in platform making, committee meetings and news conferences.

Party Called Tool Of Reds

The rules committee, even met in the pink room today at convention headquarters at the Bellevue Stratford hotel. And the badges passed around to the press were—bright red.

Americans for Democratic Action called the New party a Communist "tool."

But Taylor and other convention figures say they aren't worried about all the talk of Communist infiltration into the party, because the party isn't Communist and isn't being run by Communists.

When party founder Henry A. Wallace comes to town tomorrow he is expected to say plenty more along the same line.

Platform Worked Out

The pattern for this convention has been all worked out ahead of time. Wallace, former vice-president who was fired from President Truman's cabinet for his ideas about Russia, will be the presidential nominee. Taylor, the

Arizona Excavators Seek Traces Of Ancient Indian Civilization

By FREDERICK KESSINGER
United Press Staff Writer

WINDOW ROCK, Ariz., July 22 —Nine women and twenty men are spending eight weeks this summer on the San Carlos Indian Reservation, digging into the remains of a long-departed civilization.

They are students and staff members at the University of Arizona archaeological field school. They are under the direction of Dr. Emil W. Haury, head of the university's anthropology department.

Early Indians of the region had no thought for the problems of an archaeologist. The Indians of one century built their pueblos (villages) on top of their predecessors' pueblos. So, archaeologists must take great pains in uncovering one ruin not to destroy one that might be under it.

During the field school in 1947, a 14th century pueblo was excavated and pit houses were found under it dating to the 1100's.

600-Room Pueblo Found

Last year the crew also started work on a 600-room pueblo which has one of the largest kivas ever found, measuring 50 x 55 feet. Kivas were rooms used for religious ceremonies and, possibly, lodge meetings by the pueblo inhabitants. Part of the work this year will be on that ruin.

One of the mysteries archaeologists and anthropologists are trying to solve is why the Indians left their idyllic pueblos and where they went.

Dr. Haury says they had a "fairly advanced" culture and the region was well suited to farming.

There was an abundance of fish and game, evidenced by remains found in excavations.

Dr. Haury favors the theory that cultural disintegration some time in the early 15th century caused the exodus. The noted Southwestern archaeologist believes that between 10 and 15 summers' work will be necessary to complete the piecing together of the area's history.

Destination Sought

As to the destination of the Indians who left the fertile area, the camp director believes that by tracing some marks painted on a stone slab found in the large kiva, he may be able to establish a connection between the ancient Indians and some existing tribe.

He thinks it likely that the Zunis, who now live near the Arizona-New Mexico border, are descendents of the 14th century tribe.

Another of this summer's projects at the school is preliminary testing of a "pure" pueblo near Turkey Creek. The testing is necessary before any digging is started because the distinction between ancient adobe and "just dirt" is a fine one. Once destroyed, a section of a buried wall or floor can never be reconstructed. The diggers follow careful plans—haste is not the byword at Point of Pines.

This summer another type of exploration is to begin. Surface water storage basins, long since filled by sand and earth, were an early Indian precaution against dry spells. Some of those near the ruin will be investigated by trenching.

Oklahoma Vote Slated July 27

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 22 (AP) —Party nominations for six offices —including the Democratic nod for U. S. Senator—are at stake in Oklahoma's July 27 runoff primary.

Former Gov. Robert S. Kerr meets attorney Gomer Smith for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

Kerr, keynote speaker at the 1944 national Democratic convention, and Smith, a former congressman, led a field of ten in Oklahoma's July 6 primary.

Meet GOP In November

The winner in their contest next Tuesday will face Rep. Ross Rizley (R-Okla) in the November general election. The November winner will succeed incumbent E. H. Moore who did not seek re-election.

The only other contest for a Democratic bid for national office is in the fourth Oklahoma congressional district.

There Ton Steed, a former Shawnee newsman, opposes former congressman Lyle Boren in a tight race for the Democratic nomination for U. S. representative.

The winner will meet Republican nominee Claude T. Patrick in November. Incumbent Glen Johnson gave up his post to try for the U. S. senatorial nomination.

In four state races to be decided Tuesday, both Republicans and Democrats will choose nominees for a post on the corporation commission, the Democrats will nominate a first district supreme court justice and the Republicans a sixth district supreme court justice.

Big Savings Every Day!

The Woman's Angle
By Margaret Turner

NOT much new or startling has happened in our pre-primary campaign, but we have been disconcerted from time to time in listening to candidates over radio to find they appealed to the selfish interest of the voter, rather than to his patriotism. We believe one great trouble in our present age is there are too many of the "What's in it for me" boys and girls.

Too, we have been upset to hear friends and acquaintances say they are not going to vote for such and such a person because they (1) don't like his looks or (2) think he has a "terrible" radio voice or (3) believes he lacks the experience. All of which leads us to ask what are the requisite qualifications of a winning candidate anyway.

Is it not enough that he be honest and qualified and sober, requisites specified by Jefferson? Could a person not be competent to fill an office or a trust or responsibility even if he wasn't an Adonis or possessed a voice like a lion?

We think we need men with the abdominal capacity to stand up and shout "no" when the occasion arises and to say "yes" with just as much emphasis and to stick to their convictions. And while we would like for them to be big, tall and sun-crowned, we realize those men usually are to be found only on the screen. And as for experience, when you analyze some of the actions of the incumbents, don't you think it may be time we set about helping others to get experience?

MORE ABOUT "BETSY"

IN the excitement of trying to play Cupid and help "Frank," the Alabama ex-serviceman and law student, to get in touch with "Betsy," whose family recently moved to Lubbock we failed to get the name of the woman who called about the airmail letter that came to her house from Frank.

If the recipient of the letter will telephone us again, we'll be glad to help her get in touch with Betsy's mother. In the meantime we learned that the young woman has been trying to get in touch with the Alabaman. So it may be one of those things that is "all's well," if only the woman telephones us her identity.

NOVEL AWARD

A NEW YORK woman who invented a liquid she vows will keep lipstick where it belongs; on a woman's lips and off glasses, cups, cigarettes, napkins and "the man in your life," has been presented with an award by 15 New Yorkers who formed a "Kiss Test Club." The club was organized in protest against what the members term "the national scourge of lipstick smudging."

If the invention will serve as a lip stay, it will be welcomed by women as well as men. What woman hasn't felt a pang of conscience when she smeared a dainty napkin or ringed a coffee cup. Beauty experts advocate blotting the lips with a tissue but many women do not heed that caution because they think the lipstick left on the blotted lips will not remain.

YES, the cosmetic industry has spent many years in perfecting facial makeup. Education of the public by beauty editors and cosmetic manufacturers was responsible for the disappearance of the two bright blobs of rouge on cheeks, the caked complexion and the beaded eyelash.

What we'd like to see them manufacture next is a lipstick that will stay on. And if the lady's invention does that, we say power to her.

Truman Hints He May Ask Congress For Powers To Ration Some Goods As Well As Curb Prices

By FELIX COTTON
INS Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 22.—President Truman intimated today that he will ask Congress for price ceiling and consumer rationing powers. Administration sources said he may also request subsidies to permit a roll-back of prices on such necessities as food.

The President hinted strongly at a news conference that he will submit drastic recommendations for curbing inflation in his address before a joint session of the House and Senate Tuesday.

A newsman asked:

"Mr. President, what agencies will administer price control and rationing?"

Mr. Truman replied that this will be set out in his address.

A few moments later the newsman asked whether the President's reply meant that he would recommend price controls and rationing.

The President apparently realized then that the first question had been a trap. He retorted that the question had been the newsman's own and that his address would speak for itself.

Up to this point, Mr. Truman had refused to divulge the nature of his recommendations. He told news writers to "wait and see" and smilingly said he would tell all next Tuesday.

GOP Leaders To Return

Republican leaders, meanwhile, prepared to cut short vacations to be in Washington Monday for the opening of what is being termed the "turnip day" special session. Their offices indicated that most of them will arrive in the capital Sunday and Monday.

The President said empnatically that he will not campaign for the presidency while Congress is in session.

He disclosed, however, that he will talk with Democratic leaders in a series of White House conferences starting immediately, as announced by Sen. McGrath (D) R. I., chairman of the Democratic National committee.

Asked whether Southern Democrats would be included in the conference, the President smiled and said he imagined they would However, he told newsmen to consult McGrath on what leaders would be invited to the White House.

McGrath proved to be more tight-lipped than the President He said he would not announce in advance the names of those who would go to the White House. He refused to say whether southerners would be included.

Politicos look upon the conferences as a move by the President to try to bring together, as far as he can, the warring factions of his strife-torn party.

The President was asked about Wallace third party charges that the arrest of Communist leaders was an attempt to "smear Wallace." He replied that he did not know of the arrests until he read about them in the newspapers.

He said it would be up to Congress to decide whether the session starting Monday would be a "rump" session, the description given to it by Herbert Brownell, Jr., chairman of the Republican National committee.

Mr. Truman insisted, in response to a question, that the United States had been on the gold standard all the time. Reminded that a citizen could not obtain gold for currency, he replied that the currency nevertheless was backed by gold.

An administration source disclosed that the President probably would "throw the book" at Congress Tuesday with a request for executive powers much more drastic than the 10-point anti-inflation program first submitted to Congress last November.

This program included stand-by price and wage ceilings and consumer rationing powers to be used selectively.

Bid Call For Tech Museum Announced

Retha Martin, president of West Texas Museum association, Thursday announced a call for bids for completion of the museum building on Texas Technological campus.

Bids are to be received by 7:30 p. m., Aug. 12, when they will be opened in room 209 administration building at Texas Technological college, which is the office of Dr. W. C. Holden, curator of the museum.

Plans and specifications are available in the office of O. R. Walker, architect.

The cost will be borne jointly by the board of directors of the college and the museum association.

Supporters of the museum long have looked forward to completion of the museum building. The museum now is housed in one floor. Plans call for a complete structure of three floors.

Meat, Butter Prices Said Forced Down

NEW YORK, July 22. (AP)—Balky housewives are forcing down the retail price of meat and butter in many shops, storekeepers say.

Chain stores in Chicago and New York have cut their meat prices four to six cents a pound during the past two days and butter is three to five cents lower.

Soviet's Diplomats Refuse Inspection Of Huge Estate

GLEN COVE, N. Y., July 22 (INS)—A Glen Cove official reported today that Soviet diplomats have erected an "iron curtain" around a swanky hunk of Glen Cove real estate occupied by Russian U. N. attaches.

Joseph Stanco, Glen Cove's public works chief and building inspector, said he was given a polite brush-off when he sought to enter the 40-room mansion to investigate reports of an overflowing cesspool.

Stanco also said that he wanted to find out if more than 15 persons were living in the mansion since Glen Cove's building code stipulates that homes occupied by more than 15 dwellers must be fireproof.

Don't Want Interference

He reported that all he got for his trouble was assurance the cesspool no longer overflowed into Long Island sound and a courteous, but firm invitation to leave the 20-acre estate.

Stanco quoted J. Krasivoco, a Soviet attache as saying:

"Your country is so funny. You just leave us alone and that is all that we want. There are laws for American people and laws for Russian people, and yours do not concern us here. Don't worry about us."

He also said he asked Krasivco whether the fire department should be sent to the mansion in case of fire. The Soviet official was quoted as declining the invitation and added:

"We Russians are very careful people. We do not smoke in our bedrooms."

The Soviet government leased the one-time Maxwell estate to house attaches assigned to Lake Success.

LOAN GROUP TO MEET

FORT WORTH, July 22 (U.P.)—An estimated 100 National Farm Loan Assn., members in the Texas Federation are expected for the annual meeting here Aug. 9. Officials of the federal land bank of Houston and out-of-state district representatives also are expected.

Allied Withdrawal Would Leave Berlin Democrats Facing Death

(EDITOR'S NOTE: A leading anti-Communist German official in Berlin declares in the following article that the lives of thousands of democratic Berliners "would not be worth a cent" if the former capital of Germany should be evacuated by the western allies. The author of the article, Franz Neumann, who was exiled by the Nazis, is chairman of the Social Democratic party in Berlin.)

By FRANZ NEUMANN
(Written Expressly For INS)

BERLIN, July 22—If the Allies bow to Moscow's threats and evacuate Berlin they will have on their hands the blood of thousands of courageous Berlin Democrats who have stood rock-like against Red totalitarianism.

I do not refer to the leaders of anti-Communist parties like myself but to the great masses of their followers who have rallied to the democratic cause on this island in the Soviet zone.

Revenge Would Be Swift

Western Allied evacuation would mean swift and merciless revenge by the Soviets and their Communist hirelings on these little people who have proved themselves better Democrats in the past weeks than many in the western democratic nations.

I am informed that some of our friends in the United States are pleading with the State department to draw up a list of prominent anti-Communist leaders who would be taken out by plane if the allies decide to leave Berlin.

But there are not enough planes to take out all Berlin Democrats who believed Allied promises that they would stay.

These people compromised themselves fatally in the eyes of the Soviets by fighting the Communists.

The lives and liberties of these people would not be worth a cent if Berlin is sacrificed to Red terror.

That is something for the west to remember if it does not want a crime on its conscience.

For reborn German democracy is threatened today with more ruthless totalitarianism than under the Nazis.

I know because I spent two years in Nazi prisons and remained under house arrest until the end of the war.

But the Nazis let me live, which is more than I can expect from the Soviets in view of the fact that scores of my Social Democratic colleagues in the Soviet zone have disappeared from the face of the earth.

Who should be better able to judge the quality of totalitarianism than Berliners who have lived 12 years under Hitler?

The people of Berlin are suffering privations under the Soviet blockade but Berliners can take it as long as the Allies do not show a sign of wavering.

Retreat here would detonate a chain reaction of capitulations running through west Germany, Vienna, Trieste, Italy, France and Scandinavia.

It is because that is so obvious that I am confident the western Allies will not yield in Berlin.

SERVICES ARE SET

HOUSTON, July 22 (AP)—Funeral services for Lee E. Barrows, 66, former manager of the Texas company's producing department, will be held here tomorrow. Barrows, who directed the company's producing operations east of California from 1935 until his retirement last year, died at his home here yesterday.

Nationwide Union For U. S. Entertainers Is Rejected

HOLLYWOOD, July 23. (INS)—A proposal that entertainers throughout the nation merge into one industrial-type union was flatly rejected today by the Screen Actors Guild.

Directors of the organization that includes every movie star in the country voted unanimously against any such merger.

The Guild directors objected chiefly to the fact that the proposed union would require a supreme governing body in New York on which film actors would have to be represented by paid employees instead of by working actors.

They felt also that one big union would deprive the various entertainer groups of their present democratic set-ups.

Pan American Seeks New Routes In U. S.

WASHINGTON, July 22 (AP) — Pan American airways called today for nation-spanning routes to unite its world system in the interest of national defense.

This plea was made by Henry J. Friendly of New York, Pan American counsel, in a statement prepared for final hearings before the Civil Aeronautics board.

The airline, operating more than 90,000 miles of routes reaching from this country's borders to all parts of the world, has applied for eight domestic routes to link 13 major cities which now serve as terminals for the international flights.

Friendly said it would be "inconceivable" for the board to continue to permit Pan American, "which has made the largest contribution to national defense and should be in a position to do so again, to be split asunder by gaps across its own country."

Representatives of the 13 cities —New York, Miami, New Orleans, Houston, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, Washington, Philadelphia, Boston, Detroit and Chicago—supported Pan American's application.

Eichelberger To Retire; Texas General To Get Post

WASHINGTON, July 22 (U.P) — The Army today announced the retirement of Lt. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger who has commanded the Eighth Army in Japan since September, 1944.

He will be succeeded by Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker, a native Texan, now commander of the Fifth Army with headquarters in Chicago. Walker commanded the 20th Corps of the Third Army during the war. He will take up his new duties in September.

EXPORT PROSPECTS SAID GOOD

USDA Secretary Sees Bright Future For American Cotton

DALLAS, July 22. (AP)—The outlook for American cotton in the immediate future is better than for at least two decades, Secretary of Agriculture Brannan said today.

He cautioned, however, that "it is not safe to put too much dependency on foreign markets."

Addressing the ninth annual Cotton congress, Brannan said cotton exports this year are expected to be about 2,000,000 bales compared with 3,500,000 bales last year. He added that this country should be able to maintain a sizeable export market for the next few years.

Future Is Uncertain

"What will happen after that will depend upon the supply of foreign cotton, the degree to which synthetic industries have been restored or expanded, the price of American cotton, and the ability of foreign nations to pay for imports from the United States," he said.

"For the next few years at least," Brannan said, "the largest market by far for American cotton will be the domestic market. The outlets for cotton here at home have, by no means, reached their upper limits."

A Texan took an even more optimistic stand.

Cotton now has opportunities for growth and development "which have never been paralleled in the history of our industry," Burris Jackson told the congress.

Pressure Increases

At the same time, the Hillsboro man said in a keynote address, "as our economy returns to one based on the normal functioning of the basic law of supply and demand, the pressure exerted on cotton by its competitors both at home and abroad daily becomes greater.

"Our answer can only be one of increased sales effort through promotion, reduction of costs through efficiency, and improvement of quality through research.

Jackson is chairman of the Statewide Cotton committee of Texas. He said that approximately 1,000 persons from 20 states were on hand for the first session of the ninth annual congress.

Pigs Given Credit For Tip On Value Of Clams As Food

DUXBURY, Mass. July 22 (U.P.)—Clam eating in America, they say, originated here in early days of the republic.

One Ruth Alden Bass, a Duxbury housewife, noticed one day that pigs in the community were busy along the shores rooting up clams and eating them.

Observing that the clams didn't harm the pigs, she tried them and found them good. Ultimately came clams on the half-shell, clam chowder and fritters.

Two More San Francisco Bay Spans Planned, Engineer Says

SEATTLE, July 22 (AP)—Ralph A. Tudor told the American Society of Civil Engineers today the San Francisco bay bridge was inadequate after only 12 years of use and two more crossings are being planned.

Both could be built at the same time, starting in 1950 and ready for use in about three more years, said California's engineer in charge of bay toll crossings.

The downbeat of a bird's wings drives it forward.

More than $12 worth of fuel is wasted annually by the average farm tractor owner in the United States, according to surveys.

Professional fighting made a successful return to Lubbock and the South Plains last night at Rosenthal Field under murky skies, a crowd of approximately 3,000 persons watching seven bouts unreeled.

Of the seven fights, only two ended in decision, the second fight of the night involving Abner Bettingfield of Dallas and Enrique Villa of El Paso, middleweights, and the final go, which brought together Howell Steen of Lubbock and Billy Louderman of Dallas, also middleweights.

If there wasn't one other redeeming factor, the fights staged by Featherweight Bill Henderson of Levelland and Light Heavyweight J. D. Kirkpatrick of Petersburg were worth the price of the show. Both South Plains boxers won by TKOs, Henderson stopping Ignacio Godinas of El Paso in 1:28 of the fifth round and Kirkpatrick ending his fight with Baltimore Hernondez of El Paso in 2:38 of the fourth canto.

Body Attack Counts

Henderson fought a tricky little Mexican boy who refused to go down, although Henderson pumped stinging lefts and solid rights to his head. A good body attack weakened Godinas in the third, after Henderson had bloodied his nose in the second and staggered him in all three rounds. In fact, Godinas went down for no count in the first [illegible] Henderson had him from that point on.

Kirkpatrick had trouble with Hernandez, not a particularly outstanding fighter, but one who refused to go down under the hard left hooks and crushing right jabs of Kirkpatrick. The Petersburg boy absorbed three or four blows himself, but picked off his opponent's lefts and rights easily, crossing with his own in return. Kirkpatrick showed a left hook that travelled like lightning and his right was as strong as ever.

Ends In Fifth

Henderson's fight ended in the fifth round, when he smashed a straight right to Godinas' nose, the game Mexican boy falling flat on his face in the center of the ring. Referee Jack Dempsey picked him up and, aided by Henderson, helped him to his corner, where Dempsey raised Henderson's hand.

Kirkpatrick's fight ended in the fourth after the protege of Gus [illegible]vich landed a solid left to the heart and mid section, [illegible] right following to Hernondez' left side as he was falling. The El Paso fighter grimaced as he fell, obviously in pain and with no desire to continue. Dempsey raised Kirkpatrick's arm and that was that.

Two fights only lasted one round, Skeets Gilbert of El Paso dropping Johnny Brown of Dallas in the first round on a TKO at 1:28. Lefts and rights dropped Brown after he had become groggy.

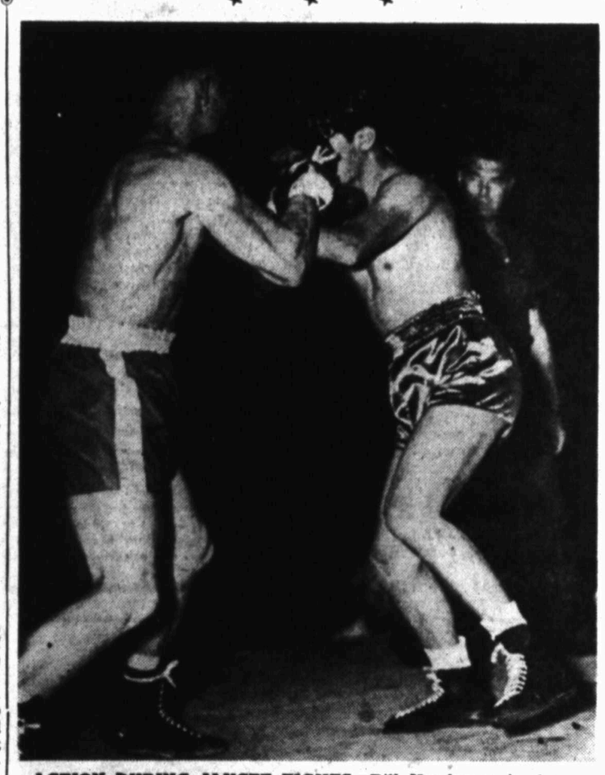

The second fight to go only one heat involved Heavyweights Joe Music of Lubbock and Tommy LeNoir of El Paso. Music won the first round, but Le Noir butted during a clinch and opened a bad cut over Music's left eye. The referee stopped the fight.

Bettingfield Wins

Bettingfield won a unanimous decision over Villa, "The Congo Kid," in the second fight, both boys standing toe to toe and slugging madly throughout most of the fight. Bettingfield had the better of the slugging, as well as the in-fighting.

Tony Olivas of El Paso lost a tough decision to Jose Andres of Dallas, the referee stopping the fight at 2:34 of the fifth round and awarding it to Andres on a TKO. Andres fouled Olivas, who was not equipped properly and fell writhing to the mat. A slight delay ensued, during which Referee Ray Simmons decided to award the bout to Andres.

The slugfest, or grand waltz to most spectators, between Billy Louderman of Dallas and Howell Steen of Lubbock, ended in a clear decision for Steen.

Hubs Smash Lamesa For 16-12 Win

The Lubbock Hubbers batted runs all over the Lamesa home field including one that was a mile high, to give the Lamesa Loboes a 16 to 12 defeat, behind the heavy hitting of Manager Jackie Sullivan, and what seemed to be every other hitter on the team.

The Hubbers opened up the first inning with a homer down the centerfield line, but it was only a few minutes before the Loboes opened up when Melillo came up to the mound and scored. He was followed by Pinto who hammered out another one, and it began to look as if the Lamesa nine was really rolling. It was a tie in the second frame. But when it came the Hubbers turn at the bat in the third, they exploded and scored six runs, starting off with Hixson's single. Sullivan then singled to the left field, and Richardson opened up with a mighty swing that sent the ball about a mile high over the right field fence.

Moore then flied out, but Fowler knocked one over the right center field. McAlexander walked. Chet Zara then relieved Lee Allyson for the Loboes.

Scarborough greeted him with a homer and the Hubs rolled on, with everyone on the squad belting them except Mills.

In the fourth it was Sullivan who smashed out another long blow that was good for a trip around the diamond.

In the eighth frame Moore started the Hubber batters off again with his second homer; and when the ninth rolled around, the Hubs kept it up with Scarborough banging out another. Mills came on in the ninth to relieve Layne, and struck out Pinto. Buckel then grounded out.

The Crystal Ball, Tech And The SWC:

It Looks To George White Like The Conference Can't Say "No"

(EDITOR'S NOTE: George White, nationally known sports editor of the Dallas Morning News, has been in Lubbock for the past two days, attending the fights and studying Texas Tech's athletic picture. The Morning Avalanche asked Mr. White to do a column on the general subject: "The Southwest Conference and Texas Tech," feeling that his viewpoint, based upon many years of observation of the conference, would be interesting here. Mr. White graciously accepted the invitation. His remarks appear below.)

By GEORGE WHITE
Sports Editor
The Dallas Morning News

CRYSTAL ball gazing being a part of the profession there should be no harm in risking a somewhat scarred neck now to forecast an event that can prove the most important in the history of the Southwest Conference.

That, of course, is the admission to membership of the Texas Technological college of Lubbock.

In the light of events that already have transpired, that seems no more hazardous a guess than a few others that have been made and fulfilled in entirety during the last twelve months. There was, to illustrate, the double prediction last September that Southern Methodist would win the Southwest Conference football championship and that the Mustangs' Doak Walker would prove the South's outstanding individual player. The one that Fort Worth would show the way in the 1948 Texas league pennant race is another that wasn't exactly comforting to fans in some quarters and they still are dissenting, although the Cats are still out in front.

Predicting that the Red Raiders will be taken into the fold after all these years of struggling would be an easy matter which could be put aside just as easily as another wild guess by a person who merely took a wild stab at the answer to a true or false question. Or it might be attributed to wishful thinking.

The December Answer?

But, a careful analysis of proven facts, and a two-day study of conditions as they are, can leave no doubt that this should be the correct answer when the conference fathers assemble in December to decide upon an action they, themselves, have instituted.

When the Southwest Conference last May, voluntarily and entirely free of pressure, appointed a committee to investigate and make recommendation on the advisability of admitting Tech, it put itself on a spot if its intentions were anything but favorable. Tech did not make application for membership, because it did not care to be embarassed again as it had been many times in the past.

It seems reasonable then to assume that the intentions of the faculty men, the coaches and athletic directors, were entirely honorable in looking into this situation. That is completely in harmony with their character. While conservative, they've never been known to be catty or unfair I've never known them to go out of their way to offend an innocent bystander. This action could have no other result if, finding the situation in this area as I have found it, they were to decide against extending the big state school on the Plains a warm welcome.

IF there are any good reasons why Tech should not be admitted, I haven't found them. Sound arguments for its inclusion—both for the good of Tech and of the conference—pop up in your face every where you look.

The only plausible cause for denial is that the conference does not wish to enlarge its membership for anybody. But, an eight-team league in athletic competition always has been considered better than seven. And eight is enough!

Being a state-supported school, the third largest in Texas, with recognized academic standing, the same aims and purposes as the others, and a physical plant that is a source of great pride, there can be no argument on this score.

Tech observes now virtually the same eligibility requirements of the Southwest Conference and is completely willing to go all of the way.

Tech Has The Facilities

Located in the center of a trade area with 300,000 population in the hub of the greatest sports center, per capita, in the Southwest, there is not the shadow of a doubt that Tech can and will support Southwest Conference sports The handsome new stadium, with a present seating capacity in excess of 16,000, already is practically equal in size to those at Baylor and Arkansas. It can be, and, prognosticating again, will be enlarged to accomodate no fewer than 27,000 almost as soon as Tech gets into the conference.

The quality of competition the Red Raiders have been able to offer always has been high. For several years Tech has been averaging four games in football with Southwest Conference members and they've been winning their share or more. If by reason of beating a sufficient number of member teams they earn official rank as the third place team in the league, why not make it official?

EVERY member school in the conference has thousands of old grads and friends in this general area. Most of them are represented on the Tech faculty. These people still are being asked to support their alma maters. They do so willingly and enthusiastically. It also would seem a matter of propriety that they should be able to see the standard bearers of their schools in action in this territory biennially, as would be the case if Tech were admitted to the conference and the round robin schedule were continued, as undoubtedly it would be Academically, scholastically, physically, financially and morally there isn't a sound argument, I've been able to find against Tech's membership. The State schools, Texas and Texas A.&M., certainly should support a similar institution. Rice and SMU now engage Tech regularly in competition which they have found wholesome and desirable. TCU, located in Fort Worth, which continually courts the patronage of the residents of this area, would seem geographically committed to an affirmative vote. Arkansas, like Tech, located slightly out of the way, has no sound objection to offer. Baylor, always friendly and especially to its old head coach, Morley Jennings, can't be viewed in advance in an opposition role.

The conference will have to find a new answer through some form of higher mathematics unknown to me if it says "No" to Tech in December.

Legion A Defeats Clarendon, 8 To 2

By EARL SCUDDAY
Avalanche Sports Writer

MEMPHIS, July 22 — Tight fielding and steady hurling by four pitchers gave the Lubbock American Legion A nine an easy 8 to 2 victory over Clarendon here tonight in the first tilt of a two out of three game bi-district series.

The Hub city nine collected only six safeties off Clarendon's Bobby Everett, but they capitalized on five Clarendon errors and eight bases on balls to chalk up the triumph.

Big Jim Wilson started on the mound for Lubbock, giving up two hits in the three innings he worked. Lefty Jackie Martyn took over in the fourth, then Jack McCabe and Hulen Fowler completed the tussle. Clarendon touched the four hurlers for a total of five hits—four singles and a double.

Dorrance Guy, veteran left fielder, paced the Lubbock nine at the plate with two hits in two times at bat. Other safeties were knocked out by Bob Brown, Fowler, Jack Cook, and Jimmy Richards. Jim Jenkins topped the Clarendon crew with two bingles in three trips.

The Hub city boys went ahead in the third stanza as hurler Jim Wilson tallied an unearned run. Wilson, second batter up in the third, drew a free pass from Everett and went all the way around on a passed ball and a wild throw. Lubbock clinched victory in the fourth frame when Richards singled home Garnett Reeves and Cook.

The two nines will meet in the second game of the playoff series Saturday afternoon at Lubbock Rosenthal field.

CIO UNDECIDED

WASHINGTON, July 22 (AP)—CIO President Philip Murray said after a conference with President Truman today that his organization has not decided which presidential candidate it will back this year. He said that question will be taken up at a meeting next month, probably in Washington, of the CIO-PAC executive committee.

Red Sox Beat Chicago Twice

BOSTON, July 22. (AP)—With Junior Stephens, the American League's most-runs-batted-in slugger, homering in each game, the Boston Red Sox broke their third-place tie with the New York Yankees today by sweeping a doubleheader from the Chicago White Sox 3-0 and 5-3.

Stephens clinched the opener for the five-hit pitching Denny Galehouse by lofting into the left field screen in the first inning after Stan Spence walked with two out.

And in the third inning of the nightcap, Stephens hit his 20th four-bagger, again with Spence aboard via the base on balls route. Junior also knocked in the first run of that game with a single off the left-center wall with Dom DiMaggio on second base.

Ellis Kinder gave the Chisox eight hits, four of them bunched with a walk for all three runs in the second inning.

Dairymen Meet Bennett Motors In A.S.A. Play

Bennett Motor company of Seminole and Cloverlake Dairy of Lubbock will meet in one softball game and Hardy's Bottling Works of Tahoka and Culligan's Soft Water nine will meet in the other tonight at Jumbo Webster Field in the A. S. A. softball tournament.

Both games will be in the consolation bracket of the double elimination tourney, with the winners meeting Saturday night for the right to play Golden Light Coffee. This winner will advance to the semi-final round and will play Baldridge Bakery, eliminated from the top bracket Wednesday night by bowing to the Thomas-Sunbeamer nine.

With the games getting better every night and competition improving, the largest crowd of the tournament is expected to be on hand. Culligan's is rated a slight favorite over Tahoka, while Cloverlake has an edge over Bennett.

The first game will begin at 8:30 p. m., with the second tilt following about 9:45. The winners advance to the quarter-final round, with the semi-finals being played Saturday. Finalists will clash Monday night, as the successful tourney closes.

Dalrymple's Homer Gives Bears 8 To 5 Win Over Apache Nine

Kenneth Dalrymple smashed out a homer to end a 5-5 deadlock Thursday afternoon and give his teammates, the Bears, a slim 8-5 victory over the Apaches at Jumbo Webster field.

Billy Lingle was the winning pitcher, and Donald Ray Smith the loser. Lingle struck out seven Apache hitters, while Smith struck out nine for the losing team.

Berry Allen and manager Billy Clark did the heavy hitting for the Apaches, with each getting two for four. Today's tilt was the third of a series of ten games between the Bears and the Apaches.

MRS. SOASH WINS FLIGHT

Mrs. George Soash won the 18 hole flight in the weekly Ladies Shoot at the Lubbock Country Club Wednesday, with the 9 hole flight coming out a tie between Mrs. O. D. McCoy and Mrs. Helen Humphries. Mrs. Al Townsend won the 9 hole beginner's flight. All holes are blind in the weekly play.

Sports Study

By Earl Scudday

Formal opening of the Olympic games is just a week away and athletes from all nations are busy with last-minute drills and preparations for the tough competition ahead. The lucky sports scribes with the United States squad faithfully report such apparently trivial items as the swimming team trying out a new pool, the cinder path specialists unlimbering the kinks resulting from the boat trip and various ailments picked up by some of the performers in the few days since they left home. But the "little" incidents very often develop into the factors that affect the final results of the games.

In fact, the coaches and officials of the squads are the last to laugh at any thing, real or imagined, that might hurt their athletes in action. Even superstitions have received attention — a prominent track coach with the American squad gave one of the boys a black rabbit's foot in order to buck up the boy's morale. Sports fans can be sure that, in most cases, the every want of the performers will receive the ultimate in consideration from their mentors. The glory and prestige of victory in the Olympics is at stake, and to most of the coaches and competitors it is the highest goal that can be attained.

On the humorous side, Malvin Whitfield, America's top Olympic middle-distance runner, is watching out for blunders like the one that cost him a victory in the National Collegiates a month ago. Whitfield, reports NEA's Lou Miller, was running the 400 meter in the Collegiates and shadowed Reggie Pearman around the oval. The race was run in lanes from a staggered start, so it was hard to tell who was leading. Whitfield was confident that Pearman would keep up with the pace-setters, however.

When coming off the last turn Mal was stunned to find that he had been trailing the wrong man. Pearman, no longer the stellar performer he was when he defeated Whitfield for the National AAU 880 crown in 1947, had let the pack get away. It took a whirlwind finish for Whitfield to salvage fourth in the event.

Whitfield was a double winner in the U. S. Olympic finals at Evanston, copping the 800-meter and 400-meter races within one hour. Dean Cromwell, head American Olympic coach, is reportedly opposed to letting Mal go in the 400 at London, planning to let him run in only the 800 and the 1600-meter relay. Mal, however, hopes that he will be allowed to compete in both the individual contests. He thinks he has the stamina to pull through the tough grind in top shape and believes that it would increase the team's chances.

Whitfield is apparently hoping to accomplish something that no other American has done since 1906. That year Paul Pilgrim won the 400 and 800. Such a feat would be much more difficult under present conditions, where more preliminary heats are run.

The Texas Aggies' great quarter-miler, Art Harnden, will team with Whitfield, Colorado's Dave Bolen and Villanova's George Guida in the 1600-meter relay and, if experts are correct, the quartet should be a sure bet for first spot. Some other nations have a single top 400 speedster, but none of the countries has four such great competitors.

Hester Leads Texas Softball Batting

SAN ANGELO, July 22 (Special) —Lindsey Telford, all-state third baseman in 1947 and a standout for Baldridge this season, boosted his batting average to .345 last week to move into second place in the Texas Softball League.

Bert Hester, Ragsdale of San Angelo pitcher, was idle and stayed in the lead with .362 and Ralph Earhart of Bluebonnet of Lubbock is third with .342.

Jackie Neel's one-hitter against Monahans and his 10 strikeouts left him at the top of the pitchers. Neel now has 203 strikeouts in 14 games. Red Denham of Crane is next with 155 and Warren Pope of Odessa third with 148.

This week's games could make or break the first division and Shaughnessy playoff hopes of several entrants. Every team but last place Cosden of Big Spring now has a shot at the playoff. Second-place Monahans catches red hot Stamford squad at Stamford. Ragsdale of San Angelo could move into the select foursome with a twin win over the Odessa Elks at San Angelo.

Bluebonnet, which clinched the No. 1 spot in the playoff with a double win over Monahans last week, goes to Cosden, Nathan's travels to Crane and Baldridge gets a bye in other games.

Three new pitchers got under the player deadline last week. Wayne Ward won for Baldridge over Crane with a two-hitter. Don Ashby joined Nathan's and allowed Big Spring only one hit and Lloyd Waisman hurled a two-hitter as Nathan's swept the Cosden series.

GRID DUCATS SOLD OUT

AUSTIN, July 22 (AP)—University of Texas already has sold out its quota of tickets for the Rice-Texas football game Oct. 23 at Houston. Athletic business manager Ed Olle said 5,500 tickets were set aside for university students and the Longhorn band.

Official's Wife Addresses Yank Olympic Team

LONDON, July 22. (AP)—America's Olympic athletes listened soberly today while Mrs. Lewis Douglas, wife of the American ambassador, told them they bear a "grave responsibility" in the games beginning next week.

She addressed them as they stood banked before the men's living quarters at Uxbridge for a flag-raising ceremony.

"The manner in which you win or lose will be remembered far longer, on this side of the Atlantic, than the names or faces of individuals among you who will return home with highest honors," Mrs. Douglas said.

"You have a grave responsibility—you can prove the American ideal of a united world of friendly people. Your mission is a thrilling challenge. I know it is in capable hands."

The assembled athletes, impatient to be off to their practice, were addressed also by Lord Burghley, captain of the games organizing committee. Avery Brundage, president of the American Olympic committee replied briefly.

The ceremony concluded with the playing of the Star Spangled Banner by an RAF band, whose instruments glistened in bright sunlight. Minutes later the athletes scattered to their various training sites, the girls by bus back to their camp at Wimbledon.

The man who enjoyed the show most was Wally Ris of the University of Iowa, Uncle Sam's best speed swimmer. He was just standing there listening when—pop—his "football knee" snapped back where it belonged. It went out of joint last Sunday.

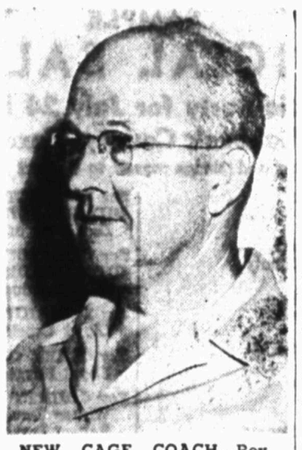

Lubbock Black Hubbers Will Meet Austin Pioneers Sunday

Manager Roy Lewis announced Thursday that the Lubbock Black Hubbers will travel to Austin Sunday for a game with the Austin Black Pioneers.

Rockin' Chair Brown, the colorful Black Hubber catcher will be in his usual spot, and will perform for the fans.

The last time Austin's Black Pioneers and the Black Hubber nine met was on June 19-20. The Austin team took the first tilt, 6-5, with the Black Hubbers coming back in the second affair to take a slim 1 to 0 win.

Cards Nose Red Sox, 8 To 6 In Kid Game

The Pee Wee League Cardinals managed to gain a slim 8 to 6 victory over the Red Sox in a four inning game at the Lubbock Boys Club Thursday afternoon.

Don Kerr copped three singles in three times up before the rain halted the game in the fourth. Jerry Pruitt paced the Red Sox nine with three singles for three. Don Wilson was the winning pitcher.

In the Junior League, the Jaycees edged by the Methodist Men, 7 to 6, with Carroll Walker hurling for the winners. Mike Brady paced the Jaycee attack with three singles in four times up.

John Bonredden did a good job for the Methodist Men by walking three men and doubling in four times at bat.

The White Sox will meet the Dodgers in the Pee Wee League tilt Friday, while the ABC's will tangle with the Exchange Club in the second tussle.

Texas Seaman Is Thrown From Motorcycle, Killed

NEW ORLEANS, July 22 (AP) — A Texas sailor was killed here today when thrown from a motorcycle at a railroad crossing.

The Algiers naval base identified him as Robert W. Steele, 22, of Mart, Texas. His next of kin is listed as John D. Steele, of Mart.

GAVILON BEATS ALVAREZ

NEW YORK, July 22. (AP)—Kid Gavilan, the bolo-punching dandy from Cuba, moved another step toward a welter title bout tonight by carving out a unanimous 10-round decision over rugged Roman Alvarez, a game Brooklyn club fighter, as boxing returned to Madison Square Garden after a lapse of seven weeks. Gavilan weighed 147, Alvarez 142½.

Golfers Equal Course Mark In Reading Open

READING, Pa., July 22. (AP)—Four par busting pro golfers equalled a course record of 65 made only once in the 26 year history of the Berkshire country club today to head a field of 146 professionals and amateurs in the first round of the 15,000 Reading Open.

E. J. Dutch Harrison, defending champion of Little Rock, Ark. Rod Munday, York (Pa.) country club; Fred Haas, Jr., New Orleans La., and Johnny Palmer, Badin N. C., all toured the 6,438 yard course in seven under par.

Three of the brilliant shotmakers missed establishing a new course mark by the proverbial eyelash.

Harrison drove 300 yards into a trap just off the 18th green pitched out poorly and then in his own words, "missed the best hit putt of my life." He holed out for a par four and a one quarter temporary interest in the $2,500 first prize money. He scored 34 on the way out and 31 in.

Munday, a native of San Francisco, Calif., came within an inch of firing a 64. His 14 foot putt on the last hole rolled to the lip of the cup and said no. The 36-year-old Munday, who claims to be the only three way putter in pro golf—left handed, right handed and cross handed—attributed his fine game to booming drives and sharp green shots. Munday went out in 31 and came home in 34.

Haas, who learned his golf from "pop" back in Portland, Ark., was the third of the trio to give wide-eyed onlookers a momentary thrill. He chipped 40 yards to the edge of the cup on the same 18th green, missing an eagle and a new record by the thinnest of margins.

City Budget Is Given Approval

depths of 90 to 100 feet. If a dam for such a reservoir should be undertaken, efforts would be made to secure federal and state help for a project which also would have an important flood control function.

Cited as being on the pessimistic side were these considerations:

The expense which, although as yet unestimated, unquestionably would be huge.

The consensus of most of the limited engineering opinion available is that there would not be enough runoff on the watershed to fill a lake, if a dam should be built.

There is uncertainty as to whether the bottom of such a lake, if one could be filled, is watertight — whether it would hold water.

There is doubt whether any dam site is close enough to Lubbock to be practical for this city.

There is a question as to whether the water, if any, would be fit for human and animal consumption. The mineral content undoubtedly would be high.

Cost Would Be High

The cost of getting any water impounded to Lubbock would be large. Every gallon of it would have to be pumped up-grade, and pumping is the biggest expense in the operation of any water system.

But the commission members present were unanimous in agreeing that the possibilities demand investigation. The first step in doing that was the authorization of an application to the state board for rights to any water which might be impounded in the canyon. This filing will cost $250.

Th next step will be to investigate water runoff through the canyon, the feasibility of dam sites, whether the floor of the canyon is water-tight and other factors. In that program, assistance is expected from the state board, the U. S. Geological survey and probably others. But most of the expense which, according to tentative estimates, will not exceed a few thousands dollars, will fall on the city.

Rodgers Hits Budget

The permit requested is renewable for a maximum total period of three years. Members of the commission expressed confidence that Lubbock can ascertain definitely within that time whether the project is feasible. If so, then will come the problem of financing and building it.

Mayor Rodgers' vote against approving the new city budget was wholly unexpected. The budget had been set for a public hearing Thursday afternoon, as required by law, and the the expectation was that it would be approved almost as a matter of routine. The fact that no one appeared to protest its adoption strengthened that expectation.

Consideration of the matter was wholly without fireworks. There was neither debate nor discussion. When the budget came up for consideration, the mayor asked the routine question whether anyone wished to protest its adoption. No one did. Then, after a pause—

"I move adoption of the budget," said Hufstedler.

"Second the motion," said Whiteside.

"I vote 'no'," said the mayor, emphasizing the "no."

There was no further discussion of the budget in the meeting. Mayor Rodgers gave reasons for his opposition later.

He said he thought City Manager Marlin R. Smith's salary of $12,000 is "entirely too much, and more than the job is worth."

He added the opinion that the city has "too many high-powered men who are drawing $500 a month and more."

Paving Is Listed

"In fact," he continued, "you might say that the city is employing too many people, period. Back in 1940 and 1941, the city had fewer than 150 employes. The payroll totaled less than $300,000 a year. Now there are about 450 on the payroll, costing around $1,-300,000 a year. That is too big an increase to be explained by growth, rising living costs, or anything else.

"The obvious explanation is too much dead timber—too many people drawing bigger salaries than they earn. I'm going to do my best to correct that condition before another budget is approved."

The streets for which paving was ordered were:

Adams, from College View addition to Thirty-fourth; Harrison, Nineteenth to Twenty-first; Jackson, Twenty-second to Twenty-third; K, Twenty-fifth to L; M, Second to Fourth; Sanders, Vernon to Uvalde; U, Fifth to Sixth; V, Second to North Second and Thirty-second to Thirty-fourth; Vernon, First to Fourth; W, Nineteenth to Twenty-seventh.

Eighth, N to O; Twentieth and Twenty-first, Tyler to Polk; Twenty-third, H to L and N to P; Twenty-fourth, P to Q and T to U; Twenty-fifth, Tyler to Polk; Twenty-sixth, Q to S; Twenty-seventh, Jackson to Van Buren; Twenty-eighth, Monroe to Van Buren; Twenty-ninth, H to Morningside Heights and Monroe to Jackson; Thirty-first, L to P and College to Adams; Thirty-second, Washington Monroe; and Thirty-third, L to P and College to Monroe.

Highlighting the routine business transacted was the purchase of a street sweeper from Berry-Hill Equipment Co. for 7,133, conditional upon delivery by Sept. 15.

The commission also bought radio equipment to be installed in seven service automobiles of the water and electric departments from Motorola Co. for $4,129.

J. E. Garrison was granted a loading zone at 818 Main street, and one-hour parking was ordered at the Homer Hill grocery at 1602-4 Nineteenth.

J. C. Davis' offer of $300 for part of a lot on Avenue Q near Second street was refused. Also declined was Earl Deubre's $225 offer for part of a lot near Wolfarth street and Avenue C.

The commission agreed that when it determines what property the city should sell, this fact will be publicized. Everyone will be given an equal chance to buy, members declared.

The proposal to change several blocks in Morningside Heights from a residence to an industrial zone was referred back to the city planning commission for further study. Several property owners had protested the change.

help so as to hasten the count of ballots."

He explained that the sample ballot on this page is a "composite ballot." for instance, it shows candidates for each precinct commission place, but voters will find on their official ballot only the candidates for the commissioners precinct in which they live. For instance, Lubbock voters in the southwest quadrant would vote only for those seeking to be commissioner of county precinct 1. In the southeast quadrant they would vote only for those in county precinct 2, in northeast Lubbock for those in county precinct 3, and in northwest Lubbock for those in county precinct 4. As said, their ballots will not be confusing, because there will be only one set of precinct commissioner candidates on the ballot they will mark.

Plane 'Bombs' UN

Search Started

According to Lieut. Vaine, he had been informed Supina was "very interested in world affairs." The state trooper said Supina's home is at Stafford Springs, Conn.

When he left the airport at about 4 p. m. Supina said he would return at about 8 p. m. He did not return at that time and it was then Lieut. Vaine announced that a police search was underway.

FBI agents declined to discuss the case and it was not known if they had joined the search.

In addition to Lieut. Vaine and two other state troopers, the plane was examined by New York city police and by United Nations guards headed by UN security chief John Cosgrove.

Plane Comes In Low

Cosgrove described the explosion over UN headquarters as very sharp and loud. Other guards said the blast was "louder than a mortar."

One guard, Emmett Rogers, said the concussion gave him stomach and chest pains, but he declined medical attention.

Police theorized that the explosion may have been caused by a crude type of home-made bomb, or might have been a "torpedo" of the type used in mail drops.

Cosgrove said he picked up bits of cotton which might have been "gun cotton" but that no metal was found. Bits of adhesive tape were picked up indicating the explosive might have been taped together.

The little plane came in so low over the main UN building that it almost flew into a radio antenna.

Planes Search Area

Cosgrove estimated the explosive was dropped from about 150 feet and that it went off perhaps not more than 20 feet from the ground—and some 100 yards from the UN main office.

The only important UN meeting going on at the time was a session of the trusteeship council. But there were hundreds of UN employes and spectators walking about the buildings and grounds.

Detective Edward C. Horning, one of the first to enter the investigation said: "This may all have been a gag. But no one is laughing."

Immediately after the incident six P-61 planes from Mitchell field made a quick air survey of the UN vicinity without spotting any aircraft answering the description of the mystery plane.

Peace Outlook

forces in Berlin. He apparently tried to run the ground blockade to leave Berlin and was picked up at the Soviet checkpoint at Marienborn near the western occupational frontier.

The British are drafting a protest on these charges:

That an outbound British York plane pilot sighted three Soviet Yak fighter planes following four Russian planes drawing "target sleeves" near his transport.

That two Yaks zoomed only 100 yards from a second outbound York plane.

Both incidents are judged a violation of four-power safety rules which forbid an approach closer than 500 yards.

A third incident found a formation of Yaks darting in and out of clouds in the aerial supply corridor—also a violation of flight rules.

The American-licensed Der Abend reported the Russians openly are operating German passenger trains between Magdeburg and Dreileben along the railway which the Soviets said needed repairs and thus had to be closed.

The British charges of Soviet aerial corridor interference followed a Russian press acknowledgement that the Russians had underestimated the effectiveness of the Anglo-American air lift.

Third Party Meets

crooning Idaho senator who says he originated the "cowboy campaign" and expects to sing in this one, gets second place on the slate.

The platform was hammered together ahead of time. It is against the Truman doctrine and Marshall plan for European recovery. It is for cooperation with Russia to obtain world peace.

Dr. Rexford Guy Tugwell, Chicago university professor who was an original New Deal brain truster, is running the platform committee. He gives out a few splinters at a time in a sort of strip-tease effect.

Townsend Urges Pension

For today's installment, Tugwell announced the platform recommends that anyone 18 years old be allowed to vote, that laws be passed against lynching, poll taxes and racial discrimination, that the House Un-American Activities committee be abolished.

And at hearings on the platform, 81-year-old Dr. F. E. Townsend said the New party would get "millions of votes" if it would go for his plan for $100-a-month pensions for the old and needy.

Both Wallace and Taylor have said they don't like Communism but expect to get some votes from Reds.

Lubbock Man Is Injured When Hit By Car On Downtown Street

Vernon Mandrell, 20, of 229 North Ave. H, was treated at Lubbock Memorial hospital last night for minor injuries suffered when he was struck by an automobile in the 1200-block of Ave. H.

Driver of the car was Truman Edward Richerson, 16, of Abernathy, box 423, according to police reports. Richerson said he was blinded by the headlights of oncoming cars.

Mandrell, struck by the left headlight and fender of the car, was treated for a cut on the back of the head and a bruised shoulder, the hospital said.

weather station. Little water was running down the gutters and the shower was of short duration.

The weatherman refused to budge from his "usual" forecast. Scattered thundershowers were forecast for Friday afternoon and evening. Little change in temperature was foreseen.

Two miles northwest of Lubbock on the Littlefield highway, W. W. Nelson, farmer, reported that he measured four and a half inches of water in the bottom of a straight sided barrel. Nelson said that fields and many rural roads in that section were entirely covered with water, and that the highway was covered with water near the Dean gin.

At 9 p. m. Thursday night it was reported that water still was covering the highway and that state highway department workers had placed markers along the edge of the pavement so that motorists could drive through the water without inadvertantly leaving the pavement.

W. A. McKay, Shallowater filling station operator, said that from .75 to an inch of rain fell there late in the afternoon during a heavy thunderstorm. McKay said there was no hail or hard wind, but that the rain fell in about 30 minutes. Another source in Shallowater reported an inch of rain had fallen there.

Sheriff L. E. Haynes of Crosbyton reported the Crosby county seat received an inch and a half of rain. The precipitation was preceded by a severe electrical storm and considerable wind.

Haynes, who was delivering election boxes to communities in the northwest part of the county, said Estacado, Cone and Big Four communities received from two to three inches of moisture from the storm. Haynes said the hard downpour caused no apparent damage to crops although he saw a number of fields covered with water.

Heavy In Ralls Area

C. W. Mann, secretary of the Ralls Chamber of Commerce, reported 1.22 inches of rainfall was measured in Ralls in a 30 to 40 minute downpour Thursday afternoon, starting about 4 p.m. Three miles north of town, 1.8 inches of rain was recorded, and a heavy downpour brought 2.25 inches to the Pleasant Hill community.

Homer Steen, Floydada newspaperman, reported the rain apparently skirted Blanco canyon to the south as no rain had been received at the Floyd county seat since .6 inch was measured Wednesday night from a sudden thunderstorm.

Lorenzo received 2.25 inches of precipitation between 2 and 4:15 p.m. Thursday, Alvin F. Hamm, Lorenzo groceryman, reported. The rain, he said, was not of the cloudburst type, but was a hard steady rain which covered the entire two hour period. Hamm said he believed the rain was general in the Lorenzo area.

The Petersburg area received approximately .25 inch of rain, it was reported.

Two inches of rain, measured, was reported at Idalou by an employe of the Santa Fe railroad. The rain there, as at Lorenzo, fell rapidly over about a two hour period.

Littlefield and Anton reported showers, but no rain of consequence. Crops in both areas were reported in good condition except in widely scattered sections. Recent showers, it was said, had kept the crops in excellent growing condition and that rain was not badly needed.

Allan Hodge, Littlefield newspaperman, reported that Earth had received a half inch rain during a thunderstorm in that area. He said fields were soaked by the short downpour.

Farwell reported a half inch of rain had fallen there during the afternoon, and that at 9:30 p.m. it again had started to rain.

West of Lubbock, Levelland reported a light drizzle falling late Thursday night, but little hopes were held for precipitation of any value.

Mrs. Anne England, Morton newswoman, reported .25 inch of rain had fallen there up to 9 p.m. but had begun to slacken at that time She said that about 50 per cent of the crops near Morton had been hailed or "blown" out, but the crops that remained were in good condition.

Ropes and Meadow reported two inches to an inch and a half of rain fell there Thursday afternoon accompanied by some hail and high wind. No crop damage was reported however.

Brownfield reported a light shower.

Abernathy received .32 inch of rain during the afternoon, while Hale Center and Plainview reported light showers.

The area southeast and south of Lubbock failed to receive any rain from Thursday thunderstorms. Tahoka reported a heavy dustorm, but no rain. Slaton, Lamesa and Post also reported no precipitation.

challenges Rep. John L. Crosthwait of Dallas. Miss Victery is in a three-way race for the seat being vacated by Rep. Elmer McVey of Teague. Other candidates for the post are W. W. Keils jr., of Teague and Jerry A. Steward of Fairfield.

Mrs. Pillow competes with Louis J. Ivey of El Paso and G. M. Langdon of Van Horn for Rep. Woodrow W. Bean's place. Bean is shooting for the job of United States representative.

The senatorial race in which Mrs. Colson is engaged shapes up as one of the hottest throughout the state. The incumbent is Sen. Roger A. Knight of Madisonville, and three other men also want the job. They are C. L. McIver of Leona, Rep. J. B. Sallas of Crockett and E. R. Wright of Huntsville. The candidates are all from different counties.

Bitter Fight Underway

A bitter fight is underway in an East Texas contest for the job vacated by Sen. T. C. Chadwick of Quitman. The three entries are George T. Hinson of Mineola, Warren McDonald of Tyler and Tom P. Cooper of Lindale. Cooper was a member of the house some years ago.

Sen. A. B. Crawford of Granbury initiated a campaign for re-election but later withdrew, leaving four others to fight it out. They are E. T. Underwood of Itasca, Crawford C. Martin of Hillsboro, Charlie Pigg and Jess Cariker, both of Waxahachie.

Another torrid race has been going on in San Antonio. Sen. Walter Tynan faces a serious challenge from V. E. "Red" Berry and Pat Dwyer. Burton W. Morris has withdrawn.

Three Oppose Parrish

Four men are traveling the long distances between Del Rio, Fort Stockton and El Paso to round up votes for the office vacated by Sen. H. L. Winfield of Fort Stockton. The candidates are Rep. Charles B. Moore of Del Rio, Henry A. Coffield of Marfa, Maurice T. Bobbitt of El Paso, and Hill D. Hudson of Pecos. Lester C. Boone of Midland has dropped out.

Another four-man contest in West Texas has Sen. Sterling J. Parrish of Lubbock campaigning hard for re-election. His opponents are Kilmer B. Corbin of Lamesa, Ralph Brock and Dudley K. Brummett, both of Lubbock.

One of the state's veteran legislators retired from the political scene this year. He is Rep. Claude Gilmer of Rocksprings, a former speaker of the house, chairman last session of the powerful house appropriations committee, and the strongest floor leader in the house for Gov. Beauford H. Jester's administration.

Candidates for his place are Callan Graham of Junction and Jim Nugent of Kerrville.

Rep. W. O. Reed of Dallas, speaker of the house during the 50th legislature, is asking re-election. He is opposed by Pat O'Neil of Dallas.

Andre Marie Agrees To Try To Form New French Government

PARIS, Friday, July 23 (AP) — Andre Marie said early today he has agreed to try and form a new French government.

The ailing premier-designate said he would seek the national Assembly's approval of his premiership Saturday. This meant he cannot begin forming his cabinet before then. Marie said he telephoned President Vincent Auriol at his summer home outside Paris early today and accepted the nomination. His announcement came after outgoing Premier Robert Schuman's Popular Republican Movement (MRP) announced its "sympathy" for Marie.

Auriol asked Marie to try to shape a new government after Schuman resigned Monday night. The retiring premier quit when the assembly voted to cut his proposed defense budget.

Johnson Holds Lead

were interviewed between July 19 and July 21. Of these, 71 per cent indicated they were practically certain they would vote. The rest either admitted they would not vote or indicated they were uncertain.

In two previous surveys, The Texas Poll has shown Stevenson the leader among a cross-section of elegible voters. In the latest survey, Stevenson holds the same position; this tabulation, however, includes people who probably will not vote.

Survey Ending	June 12	July 3	July 21
Stevenson	46.6%	46.5%	45.2%
Johnson	36.8	38.2	38.8
Peddy	12.0	10.9	14.5
All Others	4.6	4.4	3.5

In the governors race, the present standing of the candidates among probable voters is as follows:

Beauford Jester	70.4%
Roger Q. Evans	14.4
Caso March	13.1
All others	2.1

During the last six weeks, there has been very little change in the candidates' standings among a cross-section of all eligible voters. Tabulation below includes, with the probable voters, those who probably will not vote:

Survey Ending	June 12	July 3	July 21
Jester	74.0%	72.5%	71.5%
March	11.8	13.7	13.1
Evans	8.5	10.1	12.7
Others	4.7	3.7	2.7

At the time of the latest survey, 14 per cent of all the voters had not decided upon their choice for senator, while 20 per cent had not made up their minds in the governor's race. These undecided voters were excluded from tabulations above.

The Texas Poll began another survey Thursday, which will continue Friday, to find out if there is any change in opinion immediately before the election.

It has used the same language recently to describe missions of B-29s going to England and Germany.

From the Azores they will fly to Whellus field, at Tripoli, Libya, arriving there Saturday morning.

Other stops will include Aden protectorate, Arabia; Negumbo field, Ceylon; Clark field, Philippines islands; Yokata, Japan; Elmendorf field, Anchorage, Alaska, and return to Tucson, on the morning of August 3.

The announcement said that "the mission is part of SAC's program to train B-29 crews in flying techniques and operations procedures involved in long-range, over-water flights and to acclimate personnel with world-wide regional conditions."

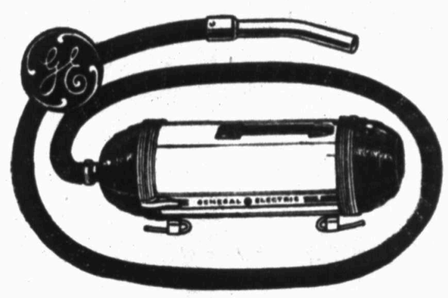

The flight, the Air Force said, is a continuation of the program under which SAC crews have trained in Alaska, the Caribbean, Japan, the Middle East, England and Germany during the last year.

Lubbock Home Builders' League Presented National Association Charter At Dinner Meet

By ROGER SOUTHALL
Avalanche Staff Writer

Members of the Lubbock Home Builders' League met Thursday night at Hilton hotel for a dinner meeting, and officially became affiliated with the National Association of Home Builders when they were presented their charter by Dick Hughes of Pampa on behalf of the national organization.

The local league was recently organized, and is composed of Lubbock building contractors and members of affiliated trades and groups.

New Chapter Accepted

Vernon Thompson, local contractor and president of the local organization, introduced honor guests, including Hughes and Fred Seal of Amarillo. A third guest, Gus Anders of Fort Worth, also was present.

Thompson accepted the charter for the Lubbock group. Hughes, a representative of the National Home Builders association, spoke briefly. He pointed out that the national association was organized in 1942, with a comparative few members. It now has over 13,000 individual active members, and local affiliated groups throughout the country, as well as in territorial possessions, and in a period of six years, has grown into a strong and influential organization.

The Pampa contractor reminded members that National Home Week, sponsored by the National Home Builders association, begins Sept. 5, and that widespread publicity is to be given the event through such mediums as newspapers and national magazines.

Low Cost Housing Stressed

Seal, an Amarillo contractor, spoke on some aspects of low cost housing, stressing that while the majority of home building being carried on at present by building contractors is of a low cost nature, it is not of low enough cost to accomodate the numbers of home seekers with little money. The strongest argument, he pointed out, against government-sponsored housing is to build houses that people without much money can buy.

In conjunction he showed floor plans of a house that could be built to sell for about $3,200—a plan that has met with the approval of the national association.

He also pointed out that this house plan is adaptable to later additions and improvements. He urged that some member of the local group construct such a house in Lubbock in time for National Home Week.

Officers of the local group in addition to Thompson are Jim Reid, vice president; Floyd Read, secretary; and J. D. Sanders, treasurer. Directors are Sam Lemons, J. W. Gray, D. C. Kennedy, J. J. Tyson, and J. C. Clark.

North Carolina Reports 47 New Infantile Paralysis Cases

RALEIGH, N. C., July 22 (INS)—Infantile paralysis raged apparently unchecked across North Carolina today as the disease claimed 47 new victims.

It was the second time this week that 47 persons have fallen prey to the disease in one 24-hour report. Eight hundred and thirty persons have been stricken by the disease so far this year.

In 1944, the worst polio epidemic in North Carolina's history afflicted 878 persons.

Spaniards Glad To Stay In U. S.—Even Though In Jail

NORFOLK, Va., July 22 (AP)—Three Spaniards, hailed into federal court as stowaways, were tickled pink today when Judge Sterling Hutcheson sentenced them to six months in jail.

"They wish to thank you, your honor," an interpreter told Judge Hutcheson as he pronounced sentence.

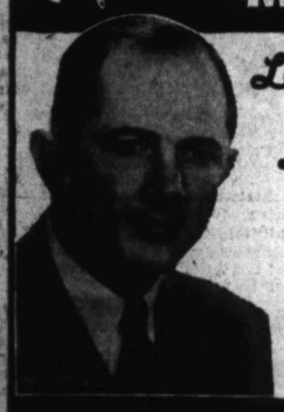

The prisoners, glad to stay in the U.S.A. even as little as six months, smiled broadly.

Farmer-Druggist's 'Master Cell' To Be Tested On Chickens

WASHINGTON, July 22 (INS)—Farmer Brown's solar crystal matrix battery, commonly called the "master cell" claimed to possess life-giving powers, is about to meet its greatest test in gallus domesticus, commonly called the common chicken.

The "cell," a concrete discus-like affair with holes in one side, arrived at the Federal Food and Drug administration today from farmer-druggist John Brown's Massachusetts laboratory.

Tests Are Slated

Officials of FDA—watchdog agency of the public health—took one puzzled glance at the gadget and sent it to the FDA experimental station at nearby Beltsville, Md., where it will be tried out on galli domestici.

The FDA men, who didn't say whether the chickens would sit on the cell, peck at it, or what, did say that 10 days to two weeks would provide the answer.

Up till now, FDA has been unable to do anything about the cell, which according to reports has stimulated growth of giant cornstalks, basketball-size tomatoes and all manner of wondrous plants.

Brown has not attempted to ship his circular fountain of youth out of the state nor has he tried to use it on humans.

But FDA is watching for a slip-up. Meanwhile, science rests its faith in gallus domesticus—chickens, that is.

FBI To Be On Guard In Dallas Election

DALLAS, July 22 (AP)—The Federal Bureau of Investigation today was asked to alert its Dallas agents to watch for attempts to vote "fictitious and fraudulent" poll taxes in Saturday's Democratic primary.

The request for intervention by the federal agency came from Cong. J. Frank Wilson of Dallas in a telegram to FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover.

Wilson made the request after many irregularities in the issuance of poll taxes were uncovered by investigators in tax collector Ben Gentle's office.

United Air Lines To Add Third Crewman To Big Planes

CHICAGO, July 22. (INS)—United Air Lines announced today that a third crewman—a pilot-engineer—will be added to all its Douglas DC-6 flights.

The Civil Aeronautics board issued an order last April 14 requiring such crews on larger planes, such as DC-6's and Constellations by Dec. 1.

United's third crew member will be known as a second officer. He will be required to have 500 or more hours of pilot time, a commercial certificate with an instrument rating, a flight engineer's certificate and an aircraft radio operator's license. He will serve in the cockpit with the first officer and captain.

AMAZING RESULTS WITH MERTOX TONIC

Mrs. Ben Grossman of Houston writes us as follows:

"For a long time I have had occasional bilious spells. My head would hurt and I would vomit my food. My last spell was very severe and I just thought I would die. My appetite was poor and I couldn't sleep at night. I was so troubled with my limbs stiffening just before I would have a spell of gas and bloat. I would be dizzy and I would have a severe headache. My food soured and it just seemed as if everything was wrong with me. To anyone suffering like I was, I recommend Mertox highly."

This splendid medicine, containing 25 ingredients, works fast to eliminate poisonous matter from your system. Helps to build rich, red blood. Relieves constipation within a few hours and helps to create a more rhythmic bowel action. Get Mertox Compound today from any Texas druggist at the new REDUCED price.

Temperamental Actress Joins Selznick; Parkyakarkus Performs While Paralyzed

By DOROTHY MANNERS
INS Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD, July 22—Undaunted by stories about "temperament," David Selznick has signed Cathy O'Donnell on a long-term contract and announces her for his whopping circus picture, "The Greatest Show On Earth."

Cathy didn't sound temperamental when she called me last week to protest that she and Sam Goldwyn had parted after a row.

"Mr. Goldwyn is just like an uncle," the timid little voice over the telephone insisted. "He was just as sweet as could be when I told him I did not want to do a certain picture."

That ain't the way I heard it—but, anyhow—Cathy now becomes the newest little filly in David's stable of beauties—Jennifer Jones, Dorothy McGuire, Valli and Shirley Temple.

Parky Fights On

I have just heard the most amazing story—almost impossible to believe.

For a year, Parkyakarkus has been paralyzed from the waist down! Two male nurses have carried him onto the stage of his radio show without anyone in the audience being the wiser.

The affliction followed a spinal operation in June, 1947, and the reason Parky kept it a secret is "a crippled man is not funny. People come to my show to laugh!"

Talk about "the show must go on!"

He managed to keep his secret by being carried on while the curtain was down. He sits behind a counter all during the broadcast. Right now Parky is able to walk with two canes and the doctors hope a summer of swimming and exercising his muscles will completely restore the use of his legs.

LONG BEACH, Calif., July 22. (AP)—The first shipload of the largest iron ore shipment in history will start from here to Japan next Wednesday, port manager E. J. Amar announced today. The entire shipment, which will take several months, will be far in excess of 400,000 tons, Amar said.

Sen. Robertson Of Virginia To Back HST-Barkley Ticket

ROANOKE, Va., July 22. (INS)—U. S. Senator Robertson (D-Va) announced today that he would support the Truman-Barkley ticket although disagreeing with the President's civil rights program.

Robertson said:

"I have been a Democrat all my life and intend to vote the Democratic ticket this fall.

"But I have no idea of accepting the interpretation of our Democratic platform with respect to a civil rights program which Mr. Truman has placed on it.

"The platform in 1944 and again in 1948 provided for action within the framework of the Constitution.

"The Congress has no constitutional power to act and even if it had such power it should not attempt to exercise it, because such legislation would do more harm than good."

Robertson also announced his opposition to the Democratic plank favoring repeal of the Taft-Hartley act. He said it was his opinion that the Taft-Hartley act was "definitely in the interest of the rank and file of labor as well as all consumers."

Verdict In Tokyo's War Trials Delayed

TOKYO, July 22 (INS)—A verdict in the Tokyo war crimes was expected today to be delayed until September or October because judges of the Allied Far East tribunal have been unable to agree in a majority opinion.

A tribunal source disclosed that the judges from the eleven nations have not even been able to agree on the guilt or innocence of "Pearl Harbor premier" Hideko Tojo, number one defendant among the twenty-five who went through the longest trial in history.

A strong minority dissenting report is expected to be issued at the time the final verdict is announced.

The judges completed writing their individual opinions last week. These covered 2,500 typewritten pages of which 1,500 are used to cover what will apparently be the dissenting opinion.

The tribunal expects to give the verdict into the hands of a corps of interpreters for translation into the Japanese language August 1. Personnel employed by the tribunal in the task will be isolated to insure secrecy.

Allies May Let Reds Lift Berlin Blockade Without Losing 'Face'

By J. M. ROBERTS JR.
Associated Press Staff Writer

The western Allies seem to be moving toward a position which might permit Russia to lift the Berlin blockade without too great loss of face.

And that, I was told the other day by a former official of the German foreign office who was a wartime member of the anti-Hitler underground, is the big hope for a solution.

Germans Dodged Pressure

He said the Germans got along best with the Russians when not accusing them of anything and not being demanding. This was the policy of Von Schulenburg, German ambassador to Moscow who put through the famous 1939 friendship pact.

When ticklish issues arose Von Schulenburg attempted to anticipate the Russians, telling them "I know Russia would never think of doing so and so. If anyone did so and so, the German position would be thus and so." It worked frequently.

I asked my informant, now a public official and democratic leader in Germany, what the principal Allied fault was in Berlin and what could be done.

"Too many threats," he said. "Too much talk about the use of force to break the blockade, making it as impossible for the Russians to back down as it is for the Allies. It would be better, the way things are now, to tell the Russians quietly that the blockade must be lifted within a time of flexible length, and that they could devise their own means of doing it without loss of face."

This may sound naive to those who have to deal with a proud and aggressive postwar Russia.

At any rate, what the Allies want now is the lifting of the blockade before going into new four-power discussions of general German problems.

They didn't want any more delay in their plans for incorporating western Germany into the ERP. But it seems to be boiling down now to the prospect that, if Russia will lift the blockade, she can have the conference she has been demanding.

Russia, unless she is actually pressing for a showdown now, can then proclaim to the German people that she has won a fight to make the Allies reconsider the dismemberment of Germany. That's something, apparently, that the Allies will just have to take, relying upon European intelligence to properly evaluate the situation.

But if it will lift the blockade it will remove, at least for a little time, the persistent fear of a fatal incident.

President Truman said yesterday he believed the chances for world peace were just as good as they have ever been and that he thinks the world will get peace eventually.

That can be read in a multiplicity of ways, depending on how good you think the chances for peace have ever been, and how far you think it is to "eventually."

Whenever in history two nations have become as crossed-up as the United States and Russia, whenever any nation has become dedicated to a fanatical belief in its destiny to conquer the world, almost always it has led to war.

Fast Gangster Cars Captured In Raid On Garage In Chicago

CHICAGO, July 22 (U.P.)—Detectives raided a secret garage where "souped up" automobiles are built for Chicago hoodlums and bandit gangs.

Police tests showed that some of the "hot rod" cars were capable of accelerating to speeds of 90 miles per hour, from a standstill, within a few hundred feet.

Some were capable of speeds up to 140 miles an hour on a straightaway.

One car found in the garage was a 1934 Ford with a 1947 Mercury engine, equipped with dual carburetors, dual mufflers, double gas injectors and special gears. It hit 140 miles an hour in a test run.

Man Puts Portable Radio On Lawn Mower For Night Chore

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 22 (U.P.)—Winfred C. Wingo, 64-year-old department store manager, cuts the grass at night and listens to his favorite programs without keeping his ear close to the radio in the house.

Wingo now mows his large lawn in the evenings because he works six full days a week. His electric mower has a long cord with the usual plug in socket.

He attached a headlight for his night cutting and a portable radio "to keep me in good humor."

Texas Woman Hopes Hens Will Quit Laying In Fork Of Tree

BOERNE, July 22 (INS) — Mrs. Fritz Weber doesn't want to get up in the air over this matter, but, if those hens don't come down to earth, her temper is liable to blow sky high.

Several unorthodox members of her flock prefer to climb an eight-rung ladder in the back yard to lay their eggs in the fork of a tree.

And Mrs. Fritz is in no mood to climb the ladder after them.

World Meeting On Peace Set In Poland

WARSAW, July 22 (U.P.) — A world congress of intellectuals is to be held in Wroclaw, Aug. 25-28, to "discuss the defense of peace."

Among those expected are Prof. and Mme. Joliit-Curie, the artist Pablo Picasso, the Danish writer Anderson Nexo, the Brazilian writer Jorge Amando and the president of the Italian Academy of Science.

Officials said four problems will be debated:

1. Participation of representatives of the world of culture in the stabilization and strengthening of peace.

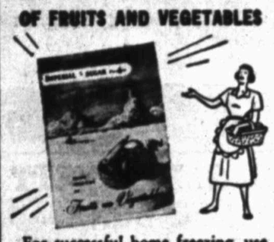

2. Participation of European and world intellectuals in the defense of liberty and development of national culture.

3. Creation of an atmosphere for co-operation and community of culture between nations.

4. Connecting the efforts of representatives of the world of culture with progressive social movements.

Hungary Accuses U.S. Program Of Making False Statements

WASHINGTON, July 22. (INS)—The State department revealed today that the Communist-controlled Hungarian government had accused the United States "Voice of America" program of beaming false statements to Hungarians.

This charge was disclosed in a department news release making public a denial by Hungary that it had "persecuted" its own nationals for listening to the "voice" broadcasts.

No Curbs On Broadcasts

The denial was in reply to a statement by Assistant Secretary of State George V. Allen, who directs the "voice" broadcasts, that political offenders arrested in Hungary had the fact that they listened to the "voice" used as evidence against them.

Hungarian Charge D'Affaires Andrew Sik filed with Secretary of State Marshall a note on July 14 saying he was obliged to "denounce" Allen's statement as "entirely mistaken and not covering the facts."

Sik declared that there are no restrictions against citizens listening to American broadcasts in Hungary and that "never has anybody been persecuted or arrested" for doing so.

Statements Are Cited

He added, however, that Hungary has a law covering political offenders and said the police must enforce this law. He said the U. S. surely would not want Hungary to forego enforcing one of its laws, since this amounted to "interference" in Hungary's internal affairs.

While the news release did not expand this point, the implication was that Hungary believed some of its citizens were using "voice" statements to stir up feeling against the government, in violation of the law.

Sik cited a "voice" report that Hungary plans to collectivize its land and said "the truth is" that the Hungarian government has repeatedly stated it does not intend to do so.

He also challenged reports that Hungarian monks and nuns are fleeing the country rather than serve in nationalized schools.

Marshall, in a reply to Sik, welcomed the Hungarian denial that "voice" listeners were persecuted. He added that the United States welcomes the Hungarian assurance that it will stand by commitments to allow full freedom of information.

Marshall also applauded the denial of reports that Hungary will collectivize its lands.

'Fly British' Policy Is Too Expensive, Government Decides

By ROB ROY BUCKINGHAM
United Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 22 — Britain's nationalized air lines are finding it hard to "Fly British" and still make money.

All three—British Overseas Airways Corporation (BOAC), British South American Airways (BSAA) and British European Airways (BEA)—are in the red. One of the major reasons is that government dictum insists that, at all costs, they must fly British made aircraft to maintain British prestige abroad.

The howl in the press and parliament, however, has caused the cabinet to reconsider. It is believed the "Fly British" policy will be scrapped temporarily until Britain can get her jet-engined passenger liners into commercial production, but that is several years off.

Irish Planes Bought

BOAC received special permission to fly Constellations on her North Atlantic route — London-Bermuda - New York - Montreal —and has six in operation. She bought five more (but for sterling, not dollars) from the Irish air line, Aer Lingus, and will put them on the Australian route.

Six Boeing stratoliners are on order, and probably will be delivered next year.

But the bulk of Britain's equipment are home-made Yorks, Lancastrians and Tudors.

Britain's "Fly British" policy has not been dictated solely by nationalism. It also has its economic side.

Constellations, for example, are said to cost around $1,000,000 plus. A few large orders take a big whack out of Britain's shrinking dollar reserves.

Canada in Market

If Britain can be persuaded to change her slogan to "Fly Empaire," Canadair Limited of Montreal expects to fill a lot of British orders.

Canadair's president, H. Oliver West, is in London waiting to see what the cabinet will do. He has seen most of the top BOAC and government people.

Canadair is seeking to sell the Canadian Four, a Canadian developed version of the DC 6. It is equipped with Rolls Royce engines and other British equipment, which will enable the Canadians to accept part payment in sterling. West told the government that they could pay about $100,000 of the price in sterling, which will cover the cost of the British equipment.

West says his plane is better and cheaper than the Constellation, besides being an "Empire product."

British airmen are pinning their eventual hopes on the jet-engined airliner, which is being rapidly developed by British engineers. It is said to be ahead of American competitors.

Quiz Program Is Conducted At Kiwanis Club Luncheon

Members of the Kiwanis club meeting for luncheon Thursday at Hotel Lubbock conducted a member-participation quiz program made up of questions concerning club activities.

The program was directed by Kenneth D. (Dinty) Moore with a board of three judges ruling in most instances in favor of nominal fines against those answering.

Club President L. E. (Jack) Davis was in the chair, with invocation by Dr. Jack M. Lewis.

Mexico Drops Control On Peso

MEXICO CITY, July 22. (AP)—Mexico today turned the peso loose from government control so it can seek its own level on the international exchange.

Treasury Secretary Ramon Beteta said in a radio speech to calm the country that Mexico was faced with two choices: Strict exchange control, or complete freedom.

He said Mexico chose the second because all other countries which have experimented with exchange control have suffered from black markets.

Must Have Stability

Beteta told reporters after the speech the actual decision to free the peso was touched off by an "unusual flight of dollars in the last eight days and particularly in the last three days."

He said "about 6,000,000 dollars left Mexico in this period which does not correspond at all with the ordinary turn over of the Bank of Mexico."

He said that flight was "psychological" and "it is difficult to determine the reasons in such cases." He added he believed "war fear" contributed to the flight.

Beteta said for the time being the Bank of Mexico will not guarantee the peso exchange rate, but will study the movement of the peso until it reaches a relatively stable level and then intervene again. At that time the rate will be fixed at a level to avoid speculation and guarantee stability.

"Stability is much more important than a high or low exchange rate," he said.

The secretary said Treasury experts will be in contact with officials of the international monetary fund to determine what rate will be most stable. When Mexico and the fund are in agreement on a rate Mexico will again borrow to peg the peso at that level.

Beteta said President Miguel Aleman "probably will take strict measures to avoid price increase in locally produced goods." He mentioned among other measures an agreement which the government has made with 500 retail stores and the major chain stores in Mexico to eliminate the wide difference between wholesale and retail prices. He said in basic foods such as wheat and corn the government will continue its subsidies and direct buying and resell to distributors at the same price to avoid price increases.

He said the reserves of the Bank of Mexico early this week were 114 millions of dollars, some in gold. He declined to say when the Bank of Mexico would again buy and sell dollars. He likewise declined to give any estimate of what the eventual dollar-peso exchange rate will be.

Klan To Burn New Cross In Georgia

ATLANTA, July 22 (AP) — The Ku Klux Klan laid plans today for mammoth cross burning and initiation atop Stone mountain and not far from the unfinished carving of God-fearing Gen. Robert E. Lee.

The Klan's grand dragon, Dr. Samuel Green, said the ceremony tomorrow night would boast a new and "the most peculiar cross you ever saw" and 1,000 new Klansmen.

He predicted that all told some 8,000 to 9,000 Klansmen in robes would be on hand to welcome the new members into the "invisible empire."

Dr. Green said the Klan's new cross would be 42 feet high with crossarms extending 10 feet on either side.

GOP NOMINEE SLATES TALKS

Dewey To Discuss Berlin Crisis With Sen. Vandenberg, Dulles

By LEO W. O'BRIEN
INS Staff Correspondent

PAWLING, N. Y., July 22—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, gravely concerned over mounting tension between the United States and Russia, announced tonight he will confer at Pawling Saturday with Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, Senate Foreign Relations committee chairman.

John Foster Dulles, Dewey's chief advisor on foreign affairs, also will attend the meeting, which will take place at the Republican presidential nominee's farm.

Dewey, Stassen Confer

Dewey had a long talk on the same subject yesterday with Harold E. Stassen. It is believed he is working toward a bi-partisan approach to the problem.

James C. Hagerty, executive assistant to Gov. Dewey, said Vandenberg and Dulles will arrive about 6 p.m. Saturday. They will dine with Dewey and spend the evening discussing the foreign situation generally and the Berlin situation "in detail."

During the Philadelphia national convention, there were reports that Dewey, if elected, would ask either Dulles or Vandenberg to join his cabinet as secretary of state. The two men have worked closely together since Dewey in 1944 named Dulles as his representative in the field of bi-partisan foreign policy.

Friends of Senator Vandenberg believe he would not be interested in the State department job and that he would prefer to remain as chairman of the Foreign Relations committee.

Problems To Be Discussed

Dulles never has indicated whether he would accept the cabinet post, but he has devoted most of his adult life to foreign affairs and might be willing to cap his career as secretary of state.

The Dewey meeting with Vandenberg will take place just two days before the opening of the extra session of Congress called by President Truman. In view of that fact, the two Republican leaders also may discuss the party's approach to the problems which will arise at the session.

In his talk with Stassen, the Republican presidential nominee touched upon the Berlin situation, the special session and Stassen's promised all-out participation in the campaign.

Gov. Dewey has not attempted to minimize his concern over the recent developments in Germany. He told reporters that "serious consequences" can develop there unless the Berlin situation is handled with "the greatest of care and the highest degree of skill."

Dewey believes much of the present trouble goes back to agreements made with the Russians by President Truman at the Potsdam conference. He described existing arrangements in Berlin as "extremely unsatisfactory."

Saturday will be one of the busiest days Dewey has had since his nomination.

He will address a luncheon meeting in Pawling of between 75 and 100 farm editors and take the latter to his Quaker hill farm for a discussion of cattle problems prior to his session with Vandenberg and Dulles.

Commission To Select 72nd District Grand Jury Named

Judge Dan Blair of the 72nd judicial district Thursday signed an order appointing a jury commission of five men to select a grand jury for the August term of the 72nd district in Lubbock county.

The commission was instructed to appear at 10 a. m. today and make its selection.

$20,000 Damage Suit Filed In 72nd District Court

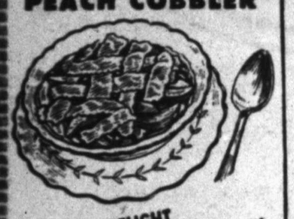

John A. Mulliens of Lubbock filed a suit Thursday afternoon in the 72nd district court of Judge Dan Blair asking judgment for $20,000 in damages.

He named as defendant Fort Worth and Denver City Railway Co.

The petition was filed by the law firm of Berry and Ball. It alleged total and permanent injuries suffered March 25 when, the plaintiff said, he was employed as a section hand and was loading creosote crossties on a handcar.

Most of the higher groups of birds had been evolved by the end of the Cretaceous period, 60 to 70 million years ago.

Third Party Appeal Strongest Among Young And City Voters

By GEORGE GALLUP, Director
American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., July 22—As the political spotlight turns on the first national convention of the Wallace Third Party, these are the main features about the rank and file supporters of Henry A. Wallace:

1. He is proportionately twice as strong among young voters as he is among those over 50 years old. Out of every 100 voters under 30 years, eight today say they would vote for Wallace, compared with four out of each 100 over 50 years of age.

WALLACE VOTE BY AGE

21-29 years	8%
30-49 years	7
50 & over	4

2. Relatively three times as many people in the Pacific Coast and Middle Atlantic states support Wallace as in the Solid South. One out of every ten voters in the Pacific Coast states want him as president.

WALLACE VOTE BY SECTIONS

New England	4%
Middle Atlantic	9
Central	5
South	3
West	4
Far West	10

3. Wallace's strength among manual workers is relatively double his support among the nation's farmers, and union members are even a little more inclined to vote for him than unorganized labor.

WALLACE VOTE BY OCCUPATION

Prof. & Bus.	6%
White Collar	6
Farmers	4
Manual Workers	8
Union Members	9

4. Voters supporting the Third Party are relatively three times as numerous in the large cities as in small communities. While every eighth voter in cities over 500,000 population is a Wallace supporter, in the small towns the Third Party votes gets down to one in 25.

WALLACE VOTE BY CITY SIZE

Under 10,000	4%
10,000 to 100,000	6
100,000 to 500,000	6
Over 500,000	12

5. But the group where the new party makes its most powerful and effective appeal are the independent voters, who were so largely responsible for President Roosevelt's successes at the polls. About one in every seven independent voters today say he will support the Third Party candidate.

6. Veterans of World War II also give Wallace above average support, one in 11 of these men today naming him as their choice for president.

The above analysis of the Wallace following is based on the Institute's most recent "presidential trial heat" conducted prior to the major party conventions. The survey pitted Wallace against Truman and Dewey, Wallace receiving six per cent of the national vote at that time.

While, as shown by an Institute poll earlier this week, most Americans believe the Third Party is run by Communists, it is significant to learn the reasons given by the six per cent of voters for preferring Wallace as president.

To uncover these reasons Institute interviewers from coast to coast tried an unusual experiment in public opinion polling. First they asked a national cross-section of representative voters whether they had talked to anyone who planned to vote for Wallace. Fourteen per cent replied they had, and they were then asked: "What is the main reason they give for supporting Wallace?"

In terms of frequency of mention, these are the chief arguments of Wallace voters:

1. Wallace is for the "common man."
2. He is for peace and the prevention of war.
3. Because the nation today needs another party to oppose the major parties.
4. Wallace is fair and not a politician.
5. He will follow Franklin D. Roosevelt's doctrines.
6. He has a good foreign policy.

Patman Battles Four Opponents

(By The Associated Press)

Four opponents are challenging Rep. Wright Patman of Texarkana in his 11th race for Congress for the first Texas district, but he says "I've had tougher opposition."

Patman has never been forced into a run-off election.

Ben Woodall, husky attorney of Marshall has waged a vigorous campaign, needling Patman principally on the size of the national debt. Patman and Woodall slammed at each other heavily through late June and early July, but counter-attacks have dropped off.

Seeks 11th Term

Patman is fighting for his 11th term with evidence that he has produced for the district in a material way. Recently he delivered the War Assets administration's deed to the Lone Star Steel plant in Morris county, most promising of East Texas' new industries. On July 24, primary election day, he will be the honoree at a ceremony signalling work on the $26,000,000 flood control project known as the Texarkana dam on Sulphur river.

He also is "standing on his record of aid to the farmer in parity prices, flood control, soil conservation, REA; farm-to-market roads; aid to the veteran, and potential aid to the school teacher through the federal aid to education bill now pending in Congress, which would aid schools without federal controls."

Woodall's chief weapon has been the asserted need for a change in office.

He is 41 years of age and served in the Marines in World War II. The third most prominently mentioned candidate is Goebel Templeton, 41-year old school teacher of Cooper in Delta county.

Hughes Springs in Cass county, where Patman was born, has another "son" in the race in F. G. Cloninger, 45-year old farmer.

The fifth candidate is Isom P. Hydrick, jr., 51-year old cabinetmaker of Marshall, in Harrison county, also Woodall's home county.

Big Spring Expects Record Rodeo List

BIG SPRING, July 22. (Spl.)—Early entries point to a record number of contestants in the fifteenth annual Big Spring cowboy reunion and rodeo, which opens here August 4, according to Charles Creighton, reunion vice president and rodeo general chairman.

Purses will carry $3,400 added to entry fees in the event, which is produced by Earl and Jack Sellers of Del Rio.

Top Performers Expected

A number of the nation's top performers will come to the Big Spring event direct from Cheyenne's Frontier Days celebration which closes late this month. Included in the group is Todd Whatley of Bethel, Okla., world all-round champion cowboy. Others who will attend the event to defend their 1947 Big Spring titles are Paul Gould of Sweetwater, bareback bronc riding; Doug Bloodworth of Phoenix, Ariz., saddle bronc riding; Ray Wharton, Bandera, calf roping; and R. L. Bland, Abilene, steer wrestling.

Also at the rodeo will be champions of the recent Kerrville rodeo, among them Tony Salina, Encinal, calf roping; James Bynum, Waxahachie, steer wrestling; Lloyd Burt, Cedar Valley, bull riding; Bill Barton, Abilene, bareback bronc riding; Gould, saddle bronc riding; and Rosemary Beck, Coleman, winner of the championship cowgirl event.

Both cowgirl riding and cutting horse contests will be added to the five regular rodeo events this year.

Feature events in the rodeo will include trick roping by Calgary Red of Cody, Wyoming, and acrobatic roping by Jack and Bobbie Knapp of Hollywood, Calif. A clown team will be Johnny Miller of Vernon and Jack Knapp.

Father To Be Only Escort For Soldier On Way To Burial Place

ATLANTA, Ga., July 22 (U.P.) — The Army agreed today to send the body of a soldier killed overseas to his burial place without a uniformed escort.

Dr. M. M. Thompson, 64, of Logan, N. M., came here to take possession of the box containing his son's bones, and asked that he be the only person to continue the last journey. He will bury Glenn T. Thompson in Mount Lebanon, La., beside their dead wife and mother.

"It's a comfort to me to have Glenn home—in his own country," the physician said. "It'll be a comfort to have him rest beside his mother. She's waiting for him."

Officials of the Graves Registration service in the Atlanta clearing area said this was the first time that a father had asked permission to be the escort for his son. Young Thompson was killed April 1, 1945, in Germany.

MANY FOREIGNERS STAY IN U. S.

Government Unable To Prevent Some Agents Entering Nation

By LEON SHLOSS
INS Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 22 — A State department passport expert today described to Congress a scheme by which subversive agents may infest the United States and leave this government no way of throwing them out.

Robert C. Alexander, witness before a Senate immigration subcommittee, admitted that "many" of the 365,000 foreigners admitted temporarily in the last year stayed on by hook or crook.

Richard Arens, subcommittee staff director, charged that the Justice department rejected his request that the FBI investigate the activities of alien Communists in the United States on "temporary" or "limited" passports.

Papers Are Destroyed

He said that other countries almost invariably refuse to take back persons illegally in this country and testified that the "visitors" go to great lengths to establish "illegality," even destroying travel permits issued to let them pass through the U. S. enroute to other lands. He told the committee:

"We can do nothing. We now have several thousand cases. We are unable to establish that they are citizens of other countries."

Alexander, who previously testified that foreign agents are swarming into the U. S. through the United Nations, urged Congress to devise a means of making the world organization responsible.

He asserted that "because we are not a police state we must await an overt act" before moving to curb activities of U. N. passport holders. He said the situation existed because limits within which these people may operate in this country are not clearly defined in the U. N. headquarters agreement.

Marshall Defends UN

Repeating his earlier testimony that "several hundred" Communists were given freedom to propagandize in the U. S. as U. N. visitors, Alexander appealed for an arrangement under which the U. N. would be responsible for the behavior and eventual departure of aliens admitted to the country through it.

After the earlier testimony, Secretary of State Marshall defended the U. N., saying he knew of no subversive act committed under the headquarters agreement and pointing out it would be impossible to operate the world organization without liberal interpretation of the immigration laws.

Alexander admitted today that "we have to make it (U.N.) work."

The passport authority recommended formulation by the U. S. of reciprocal treaties under which the contracting countries would agree to take back immigrants or temporary visitors when either nation wants to deport them.

Mrs. Helen Eckerson, immigration service statistician, told the Senate subcommittee that 143,000 aliens got temporary permits to enter this country in the last 10 years as foreign officials, employes of purchasing missions, and other international organizations.

Her report covered the World War II period and the years preceding, during which the United States was bulwarking the anti-Nazi nations with arms and supplies.

TEACHERS TO GET BOOST

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 22 (INS)—School teachers in St. Paul were slated for a raise today without recourse to a strike. School Supt. Selmer H. Berg said he has begun action to boost the basic salary schedule for teachers with bachelor's degrees from a top of $3,500 to $4,200.

Ohio Court Rules Wallace Party Can Go On Ballot

COLUMBUS, O. July 22 (AP) — The Ohio supreme court ruled today that the Henry A. Wallace third-party ticket could go on the state's election ballots next November.

Secretary of State Edward J. Hummel had declined to put the third party ticket on the presidential ballot in Ohio on two grounds—

1. That Ohio election laws contained no provision for the nomination of independent candidates for president and vice-president, and—

2. That Wallace supporters had failed to submit a suitable loyalty affidavit, as required by a 1941 law barring from the ticket "parties, or groups, engaged in un-American activities."

In hearings before the supreme court, Hummel had contended that several Wallace adherents in Ohio were Communists.

TEXAS PIONEER CLAIMED

DALLAS, July 22 (AP)—The man who went through the woodlands of Texas just after the turn of the century with a sacred songbook and a Bible under his arm will be buried here tomorrow. He is Horace Neely Lincoln, 89, who died last night. Lincoln came to Texas from Missouri in 1868. After attending music schools in Chicago and New York he came back to Dallas and began writing sacred music and spiritual books.

Consolidated May Help In Making New Flying Wings

HAWTHORNE, Calif., July 22 (AP)—Northrop Aircraft, Inc., announced today that it is negotiating to subcontract production of B-49 flying wing bombers to Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corp.

The Air Force has ordered 30 of the 100-ton jet-propelled flying wings developed by Northrop. Speed in production and delivery is the reason for turning over part of the work to Consolidated, the announcement said.

Under the subcontract plan Consolidated would use its big bomber plant at Fort Worth, Tex., for output of flying wings.

Northrop also is engaged in starting production of 23 C-125 assault transports for the Air Force and in other research and production projects. The company said it has a $100,000,000 backlog, composed entirely of military orders.

MARINE ENLISTMENTS HIGH

WASHINGTON, July 22. (AP)—The Marine corps said today enlistments have been so high that no draftees will be needed for that branch of service in 1949. The 1949 Marine quota is 36,000 men plus 6,000 18-year-olds.

400 Texans, Riding Two Special Trains, Leave For Lions Meet

ABILENE, July 22. (Spl)—Texas will be represented by two trainloads of 400 persons at the Lions International convention in New York Monday through Thursday, according to Marlowe Fisher, executive secretary of the Lions.

Marlowe predicted that, including wives of delegates and "native" Texans now in New York, more than 1,000 Texans will be at the convention.

Two special trains left Fort Worth Thursday afteroon, carrying the Lions to their national meeting. On one of them will be a specially prepared express car which will transport the six white horses of Hardin-Simmons University. They wil be under the supervision of Sheriff Will Watson. The H-SU Cowboy Band, to which they belong, will leave for New York by plane Friday morning.

The six white horses will be ridden by Watson and five Hardin-Simmons coeds. The girls who will ride the horses are Pat Murray of Byers, Johnny Dell Brock of Snyder, and Jesse Myers, Pat McDaniel, and Doris Reid, all of Abilene. Miss Myers was the champion cowgirl of the Stamford Cowboy reunion July 2, 3, and 5.

It is expected that the Lions, like the Hardin-Simmons Cowboys, will be attired in the western uniform of a 10-gallon hat, a yellow shirt, blue tie, boots, and brown trousers. Lions from all over the state have indicated that they are going to wear the colorful uniform.

District Governors To Go

The Hardin-Simmons Cowboy Band, directed by Marion McClure, will provide color for Texas delegates as it leads the parade Monday morning.

It will be a delegation of distinguished Lions which will make the trip to New York, the 31st national meeting of the service organization. Included in the group will be eight district governors of Texas: John McLen, Hereford; M. O. Woolam, Andrews; Marvin C. Culbertson, Vernon; Robert Coffey, Longview; Frank Robertson, San Antonio; William E. Edwards, Beaumont; Dr. M. M. Mihovil, Galveston; and Harry E. Kelly, Austin.

Drilling Slated To Start On Gaines Test

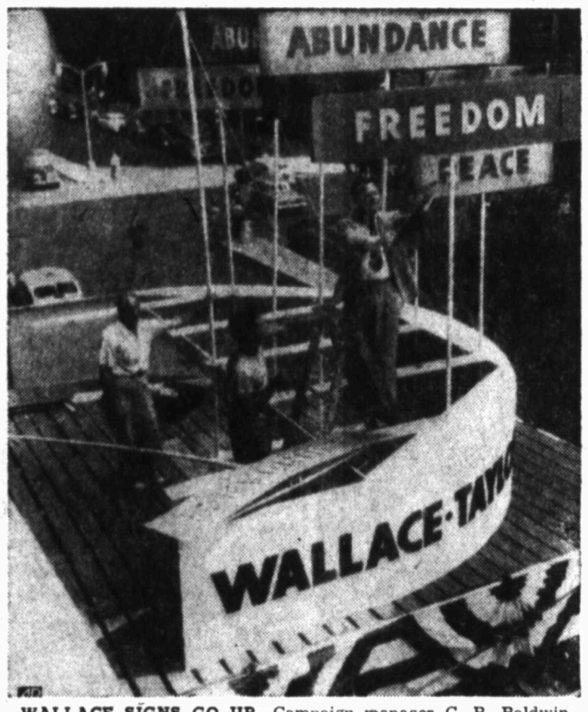

W. H. Black Drilling company No. 1 James B. Riley, et al, is slated as a 7,500-foot wildcat in west-central Gaines county, to explore into the Clear Fork-Permian.

The venture is to be 660 feet from north and west lines of section 259, block G, WTRR survey That puts it about midway between the Seminole and the Riley fields. The drill site is five miles west and two miles south of the town of Seminole.

The exploration is on acreage farmed out to the Black company by the Atlantic Refining company.

Lubbock Man Sent To Jail For Contempt

An order to remain in jail until he has purged himself of a total of $400 in fines and 12 days in jail was issued Wednesday morning against Charley Anderson, 21, described by officials as a Lubbock taxicab driver, who was adjudged in contempt of a June 10 decree of 99th district court.

In addition, Judge G. V. Pardue ordered that Anderson pay $15 weekly into the registry of the court, including the four weeks in which he is in arrears: the weeks of June 15, June 22, June 29, and July 6.

Judge Pardue sternly rebuked Anderson when the defendant appeared before him to show cause why he should not be adjudged in contempt of a decree directing him to pay support of three children whose ages are 4, 3 and 1. He charged that Anderson had claimed the court could not force him to make the payments. He reminded Anderson, whom Mrs. Helen Anderson had divorced in June, that the June 10 decree further ordered payments to continue weekly until the youngest child reaches the age of 16.

The four fines, it was specified, shall not be allowed to run concurrently—but are cumulative.

Judge Pardue also issued Thursday morning a two year state penitentiary sentence for Ernest McDougal, 22, of Wellman, Terry county community, when the youth waived a jury and pleaded guilty of a 99th district indictment charging burglary.

The jury panel was dismissed for the remainder of the day, and ordered to report back at 9 a.m. Friday, when the state will announce ready to try cases charging Billy Joe Short with burglary, Bud Shankle with swindling, Fonzie Johnson, jr., a negro, with assault with intent to murder, and Danny Floyd with theft by bailee.

Philippines Leaders Announce Program Of Social Reforms

By WILLIAM P. AYERS
INS Staff Correspondent

MANILA, July 22—The Philippine government today announced a six-point social reform program designed to remove causes of unrest which led to the Hukbalahap rebel movement.

At the same time Congressman Luis Taruc, former leader of the outlawed Hukbalahap peasant army, said the Huks will begin surrendering their arms July 26 and accept a government amnesty.

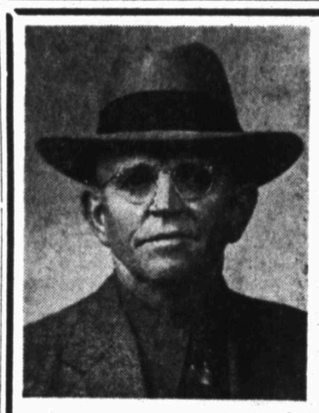

Program Is Given

The social reform program was drawn up by a conference of twenty-four government leaders headed by President Elpidio Quirino and Taruc. The program contains the following points:

1. Acquisition of certain large estates, opening of agricultural colonies and government distribution of seedlings, implements and work animals.
2. Construction of roads and bridges.
3. Immediate opening of schools for Huk children and development of adult education.
4. Crop and home loans from the Philippine bank.
5. Emergency food and clothing relief.
6. A medical aid plan calling for mobile clinics which will tour the provinces.

The entire program will be financed mainly from a two million dollar fund appropriated by Congress for the president's use in restoration of peace and order."

President Quirino, commenting on the program, said "improving the life of the masses" is a special concern of his administration.

Crosbyton Gains Place On Plains

Crosby County City's Colorful Past Dates Back To Turn Of The Century

By BILL CLARK
Avalanche Staff Writer

CROSBYTON, July 22—To one looking for the genuine spirit of the old Southwest, Crosbyton is a good starting place.

For it is here that one still finds the friendly, unhurried spirit that was so typical of the days when the South Plains area was a wide-open frontier. Today, this Crosby county seat preserves much of the colorful flavor that existed when Crosbyton was a great ranching center shortly after the turn of the century.

Although the town's population has increased to approximately 2,700 since the 1940 census which showed a population of 1,615, the visitor will find little evidence of change. New paving, fine new homes and business buildings mark the prosperity of the area, but they have changed the general perspective of the city but little.

History Is Colorful

Its history is a colorful one. Crosby county's district clerk, Bill Ezell, can tell you most of it from personal experience, for he has been a resident for 49 years, having first come with the opening of the area as ranch country when he was 20 years old.

Ezell will tell you that Crosby development started at the turn of the century when C. B. Livestock company of Chicago, acquired control of 500,000 acres of land comprising the eastern half of Crosby county, and portions of Dickens, Floyd and Kent counties.

Ezell worked for the ranch and later became the county's third county-district clerk at the old county seat at Emma, a position which he has held most of the time since 1906.

The ranch built a railroad from Lubbock through Crosbyton, and it was the railroad which spelled the end of "Old Emma", the old town south of Ralls, Ezell recalls.

County Seat Moved

In 1910, after a fierce series of disputes, the county seat was moved to Crosbyton and offices set up in the Citizens bank building here. The present courthouse was completed in 1914, and the late Sen. Pink L. Parrish was county judge at the time.

The town of Crosbyton was not incorporated until 1917, with a population of approximately 1,000 at the time.

Today farming has replaced ranching as the county's chief production.

James E. Winters, administrative officer of the Crosby County Agriculture association, estimates that 318,000 acres are under cultivation this year, with another 200,000 acres still used for graz-

$1,000 Bonds Set In Theft Cases

Bond of $1,000 each was set Thursday afternoon for two young men on charges of chicken theft, and they were remanded to custody in lieu of bond, the sheriff's department said.

They were charged as Monk Massingill, 19, of 15 miles southeast of Snyder, and Dewey Lee Duke, 20, of Lubbock route 7.

Returned Early Today

The complaints, filed in the court of C. E. Lynn, justice of peace, for action of an Aug. 9 grand jury, charged that the men stole fowls Monday night from N. J. Robnett of Forty-fourth and College Ave.

The defendants were returned here at 1:15 a.m. Thursday from Chillicothe, where they were arrested late Wednesday by Dep. Sheriff Earl Horton and Texas Ranger Razz Renfrow.

Both executed statements, officials said.

Fowls Are Recovered

The officers said four turkeys and 10 hens had been recovered.

They had been loaded in a borrowed automobile and taken to Levelland for sale. Horton and Renfrow were informed. The man who purchased them in Levelland resold them to a produce firm here.

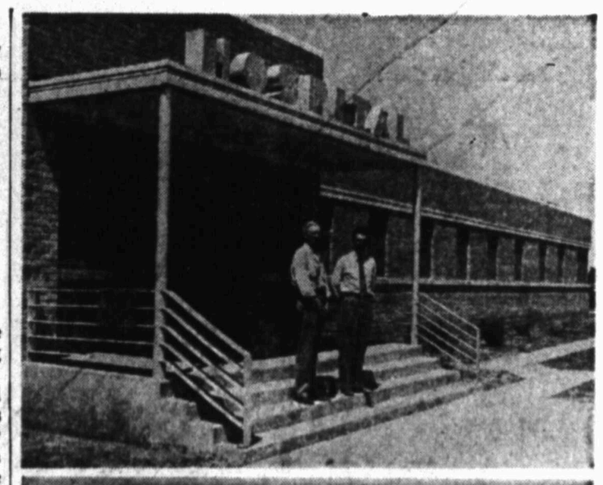

The trail of the two suspects led to Crowell, then to Chillicothe, after the officers had checked Levelland information. Sale price at Levelland, it was learned, was $30.09.

Four Enter Pleas

County court officials said four persons had entered pleas in connection with misdemeanor charges.

John Hamilton, about 45, was fined $150 and costs on a charge of liquor law violation. Ivison Brown, 24, and Lasse Kirtz Malone, 25, Lubbock negroes, were

Status Of Former Capone Gangman Is Still Clouded

CHICAGO, July 22. (INS)—The status of Paul "The Waiter" Ricca, one of four former Capone gangmen paroled after they had served only a third of their sentences in a million-dollar movie extortion plot, still was uncertain today.

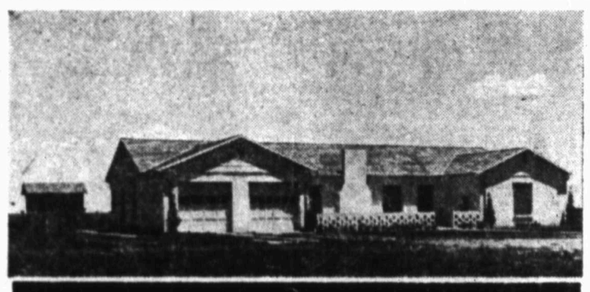

A congressional committee probing circumstances of the men's paroles adjourned yesterday after questioning Ricca at length.

Ricca proved a witness with an uncertain memory. He failed at first to identify a photograph of a "Mike Ryan." Texas lawyer Maury Hughes said "Ryan" gave him $15,000 for legal work in effecting the paroles.

Later, Ricca said the man was known to him as "Mike Kelly."

Rep. Hoffman (R) Mich., identified "Ryan" or "Kelly" as a former bodyguard of Al Capone.

Ricca was arrested last June for parole violation. His three movie plot pals—Phil D'Andrea, Charlie Gioe and Louis "Little New York" Campagna—still are at large.

Quarterback Club Organized By Sundown Athletic Boosters

SUNDOWN, July 22 (Special)—The Sundown Quarterback club, an athletic booster club, was organized here last night in a meeting of about 50 business and professional men of the community in the Sundown High school auditorium.

Officers named were Bruce Burney as president, E. E. Smith as vice president, and E. A. Edwards as secretary-treasurer.

The session included a talk by head coach D. S. Green of Sundown High school on the value of a quarterback club to a school athletic program, and brief remarks on organization activities by Doc Wilkins, O. W. Marcom and Harry Mann. The latter are members of the Levelland Quarterback club who assisted in formation of the organization here.

Club Secretary Edwards announced that the next meeting will be held Monday night at 8 o'clock at the high school auditorium, and he extended an invitation to anyone interested in becoming a member.

Texas' feuding Democratic party factions are set for more fireworks Saturday night.

While election returns pour in from the first Democratic primary, neighborhood Democratic conventions throughout the state will ponder the question—who should Texas Democratic electors support in the national election?

Factions Seek Control

The state Democratic convention in Brownwood last May resolved to support "the nominees of the Democratic party." There are now two parties so labelled—the Truman-Barkley backers and the Thurmond-Wright backers.

Both factions want party machinery control through Saturday's precinct conventions, county conventions July 31 and the state convention in Fort Worth Sept. 14.

The Thurmond-Wright "Dixiecrats" prefer to decide the whole issue at the second primary election in August through a popular vote on which nominees Texas electors should support.

Referendum Is Asked

Merritt Gibson, Texas Regular leader of 1944 and active participant in the Dixiecrat movement, said from his home Thursday that "a bitter fight" at the September convention could be eliminated by such a referendum.

"This would be a people's mandate to the electors and a fair solution. Nobody could complain about the results," Gibson said, adding that the proposal would be placed before the Democratic executive committee.

Court rulings have held that a party's electors may not be legally bound to vote in any given way. The moral obligation however, has long been recognized.

The same two factions battled over the Truman issue at the party's Brownwood convention. But a third faction—the middle-of-the-roaders led by Gov. Beauford H. Jester's forces—gained control to put over a resolution for Texas delegates to fight Truman policies but support Democratic party nominees whoever they might be.

March To Fight Group

Caso March, former Baylor law professor and candidate for governor, has promised in his campaign to fight to wrest party machinery from "Jestercrats" for Truman-loyal Democrats. He has vociferously complained of actions of Jester and delegates at the Philadelphia convention, charging them with "sabotaging and de-

Cotton Insect Warning Given

Although there are no boll weevils and very light to medium infestations of fleahoppers in South Plains cotton, an indirect warning came yesterday with announcement by the Texas agricultural experiment station system that "the bollworm has become a serious menace in many cotton fields in south central, central, and north central Texas."

The information came in the weekly report on the cotton insect situation in Texas, in which the bureau of entomology and plant quarantine, the extension service, and the experiment station system cooperate.

Leafworms In Valley

The report gave no indication as to whether it was felt the pests might show a migratory tendency, but asserted that "a determined and continued fight is now essential" if a most promising crop of squares and bolls are saved from destruction.

Leafworms were found in not too menacing numbers in six Valley counties, but no rapid increase or spread was expected in the near future. In the northwestern portion of the state a general increase in fleahoppers was noted, but in central and southern areas this infestation remained about the same as last week. The state average this week was 10 fleahoppers per 100 terminals, compared with eight last week.

Boll weevil infestation in 617 fields in 38 counties over the state averaged 18 per cent punctured squares, three per cent higher than last week, and five per cent higher than two weeks ago.

Boll Weevils Increase

Central Texas showed a rapid increase in boll weevil infestation, with the average percentage of punctured squares in 322 fields in six counties being 19 per cent this week, compared with 12 last week.

In north-central Texas 121 fields inspected in nine counties

THREE MORE STILL SOUGHT

Ninth Red Official Surrenders To U.S. Federal Authorities

NEW YORK, July 22 (INS)—Surrender of Irving Potash, 45, member of the Communist party's national secretariat, today brought to nine the number of members of the Communist high command now in custody.

Three other indicted members of the high command still are being sought by the FBI.

Potash pleaded not guilty to indictments charging him and the other Communists with a plot to overthrow the United States government by force. The manager of the CIO furriers' joint council and vice-president of the Fur and Leather workers' union, surrendered at the federal court house with his attorney, Abraham Unger.

Federal Judge Vincent L. Leibell set bail at $5,000. Potash, who has a criminal record, already was under $5.000 bail in a deportation proceeding.

He was convicted and sentenced to three years in jail April 23, 1920 in Brooklyn for criminal anarchy. He was convicted and sentenced to two years for obstructing justice on July 20, 1940, but the conviction was reversed.

Potash's surrender came as a federal official indicated that evidence of an actual plot to overthrow the government by force has been uncovered. The assertion that the prosecution in the trial of the 12 Communist leaders expects to prove an actual plot against the government came from Frank H. Gordon, special assistant U. S. attorney, working with U. S. Attorney John F. X. McGohey.

Charge Is Assailed

Gordon said: "We are not trying to convict these men by mere association (in the Communist party.)"

Potash said to newsmen at court:

"The charge is ridiculous. They tried it in 1920 and failed. The workers won't take this as a substitute for higher wages and peace."

He is said to be a member of the Communist party for more than 20 years. He was arrested in deportation proceedings last March and was in a group of aliens who took part in a six-day hunger strike on Ellis island.

Still sought by the FBI are Gilbert Green, identified as a district chairman of the Communist party in Chicago, who is on vacation with his family; Gus Hall, identified as chairman of the Ohio Communist party, and Robert G. Thompson, identified as chairman of the New York state Communist party.

CAIRO STORE DAMAGED BY 'AERIAL MINE'—Egyptians view damage to a large department store in Cairo's Fouad 1st Street, caused by an explosion. Anti-aircraft guns went into action when the plane raided the city and dropped the bomb. (AP Wirephoto via radio from Cairo).

Youth Is Charged In Slaying Of Woman

MARTINEZ, Cal., July 22. (INS)—Eleven-year old Tommy Harrington, calmly chewing on bubble gum, heard himself formally charged today with murder for the slaying of a 42-year old Martinez woman.

The boy, one of the youngest murder defendants in San Francisco bay area history, was charged with the fatal shooting of Mrs. Daisy Ebling at her grocery store in an attempted robbery yesterday afternoon.

He appeared for arraignment before Justice of The Peace Thomas P. Meehan who transferred the case to the juvenile court for a later hearing.

The boy did not enter a plea. He was stolid and nonchalant throughout the hearing in justice court, sitting in a big chair with his feet dangling several inches from the floor.

Young Tommy told authorities that he "accidentally" shot Mrs. Ebling when he went to her store "to get money to go to camp." The death weapon with a .22 caliber rifle which belonged to one of his older brothers.

He said he tied a handkerchief over his face as a mask, went to the back door of the grocery and told Mrs. Ebling:

"This is a holdup. Stick 'em up."

Mrs. Ebling, recognizing Tommy who had been a frequent visitor, laughed and said: "Oh, no it isn't. I know who you are."

Tommy said the gun went off. The woman fell dead, the bullet having severed a main artery in her right side.

The boy is one of nine children. The father, an oil worker, brought his family to California from Oklahoma five years ago.

FDR Refused To Use Invasion Of Africa For Politics, Is Report

NEW YORK, July 23. (INS) — Author Robert E. Sherwood said today that President Roosevelt refused to make the invasion of North Africa a political football and left the final decision to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower—a decision which came five days after the 1942 elections.

Sherwood, in the current installment of "The Secret Papers of Harry Hopkins" appearing in Collier's, said that the invasion was scheduled before the Nov. 3rd election but the expansion of the operation necessitated a postponement. He added:

"The postponement had considerable significance in the United States; Nov. 3rd was election day and it would have been obviously advantageous to Roosevelt to have this exciting news received before the voters went to polls—but this was a decision, according to Roosevelt's order, that must be made by the responsible officer, Eisenhower."

Sherwood also wrote that the late President had a deep and affectionate regard for Wendell Willkie despite wisecracks he made at the expense of his political rival.

Sherwood said that he once heard Hopkins make a slurring remark about Willkie and the President slapped him down with as sharp a reproof as "I ever heard him utter." Sherwood quoted the President as saying:

"Don't ever say anything like that around here again. Don't even think it. You of all people ought to know that we might not have had lend-lease or selective service or a lot of other things if it hadn't been for Wendell Willkie.

"He was a Godsend to this country when we needed him most."

Plans For 'Foreign Trade Zones' Studied By Several Texas Cities

By TEX EASLEY
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, July 22 — The day may come when Texans can go to any of a number of cities throughout their state and shop for foreign-made goods just as if they were in some exotic, far-away land.

The key to such a situation is the so-called "Foreign Trade Zone."

There already are three such zones operating in the United States—in New York, New Orleans and San Francisco.

A Foreign Trade Zone is the American counterpart of the "Free Port" in other parts of the world. Europe has had them for centuries; there were 43 in operation on the continent at the outbreak of World War Two.

Buyers May Examine Goods

A "Free Port" is one where goods of a foreign land may be unloaded exempt from all tariff and custom regulations, so long as they are kept within a restricted area. There they may be examined by prospective buyers.

If taken out of the compound gates for use in this country, the goods are subject to all existing tariffs. The purchaser may be an American exporter who acquires the stuff for shipment on to some other foreign land; it thus would never be subject to the U. S. custom fees.

Under existing law, only merchants or wholesales buyers or exporters may inspect the goods being held in a free trade zone. Legislation was introduced during the past session of Congress to broaden the law to permit exhibits or fairs in these zones so the public in general could enter and pick out miscellaneous items they would like to buy.

Area Is Restricted

An entire waterfront of a city may be designated a free port, as in the case of Hamburg, Germany before the war. It may be, and usually is, a fenced-in portion of a city.

While the "zone" usually is a large tract of several acres, it might be limited to a single warehouse. Rent would be paid for the time the goods occupied space in the area, whether withdrawn for delivery elsewhere in the United States or sent abroad.

So far, the three free trade zones in the United States are limited to water-front cities. That's where Texas may come in for a "first." San Antonio business people have indicated an interest in establishing a free trade zone in that city, particularly for air cargo from Mexico and other Latin-American countries.

Thomas E. Lyons, executive secretary of the government board which designates foreign trade zones, says that the San Antonio Chamber of Commerce and a large warehouse operator in that city are corresponding with him on the matter.

Three Cities Interested

A few days ago Secretary of Commerce Snyder said he is expecting applications soon from San Antonio, Los Angeles and Seattle for permission to establish free ports.

San Antonio would differ from the three existing free trade zone cities in that it has no water commerce, and it is not a border city, which is noteworthy.

However, with air traffic steadily increasing, such inland points as Fort Worth and Dallas might well become the unloading spots for goods moving along high in the sky when they cross the border. They would become "free air port" cities.

Foreign trade zones are authorized under a 1934 act of Congress. The board which designates a zone is comprised of the secretary of commerce, treasury and army.

Houston is the only city in Texas which has gone so far as to file a tentative application for a free port zone. That was during the war years. Brownsville and Laredo have shown more recent interest in establishing such a zone.

Ancient Tree In Utah May Be Among Oldest Yet Discovered

NAVAJO LAKE, Utah, July 22 (U.P.) — The Utah fish and game commission reports the discovery of a tree that may be the oldest one on record.

A commission field inspector, Lee Kay, said the scrub oak tree's age of "thousands of years" probably tops the record of California's famous redwoods.

The ancient tree stands in the mouth of Deep Creek canyon, sheltered for years from human eyes in a sparsely settled mountainous stretch of southern Utah. It is 48 feet high and 18½ feet in diameter.

ASKS DAMAGES PLUS

RICHMOND, Va. (U.P.)—The Rev. Edward D. Rogers charged in court that an automobile struck his horse and buggy and reduced its value from $90 to $5. He asked $5,700 damages.

Some Atomic Scientists Oppose Federal Loyalty Check System

By ROBERT E. GEIGER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, July 22—Some atomic scientists are objecting to the way the government has handled accusations against the loyalty and character of people working on secret atomic projects. The Atomic Energy commission (AEC) has not disclosed how many employes may have been released for security reasons. Some scientists say that because there has been no announcement it is likely not more than a very few people, if any, have been dismissed.

But M. Gerson and M. L. Lesser, atomic scientists at Oak Ridge, Tenn., writing in the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists, say two research men at Oak Ridge have been suspended pending a hearing and six others notified there is "uncertainty" over their cases. T. H. Davies, assistant professor of chemistry and member of the Institute of Nuclear Studies at the University of Chicago, says in the same issue that several employes in the Argonne National laboratory at Chicago; several at the Brookhaven, N.Y., laboratory and one at the Hanford, Wash., plant also have been notified.

Set Of Rules Issued

Atomic officials who were asked about this said it is the policy of the commission not to comment on any loyalty cases. They added that the issue is not over, the giving away of atomic secrets to spies or other governments. Such a case probably would be a criminal one, handled by the courts.

But the Atomic Energy act requires the AEC to keep a check on the character, loyalty and associates of the thousands of persons working in atomic plants and related projects who have access to secret information. The main purpose is to weed out any likely to become disloyal in the future, or ones who may carelessly give out secrets by accident—just by talking too much.

The commission has issued a set of rules, called the interim procedure, for local hearings. Analyzing the situation and the hearings that have been held, Gerson and Lesser, members of the Association of Oak Ridge Engineers and Scientists, propose some changes. These are based on a study made by a group of association members They say two problems are involved:

1. Dealing with people who disclose atomic secrets. (Who under the AEC act would be tried in courts of law.) 2. Constantly checking employes to be sure they are and will remain completely trustworthy.

"We are concerned with the way in which the second principle can, in practice, be abused," the two men write. "'Assuring that employes are completely trustworthy' may be changed to 'assuring that employes hold exactly the same political opinions as those held by persons in political power.'"

Accusers Protected

They recommended that all accusations be backed up by witnesses; that the prosecution be required to prove the accusations are true, as in a court of law, and that the prosecution be required to explain why the accusations, if true, might led to a future disloyal act. Under present rules, prosecution witnesses are not necessary. Thus the accused may not have the chance to confront his accuser, may not even know who he is. Officials of the AEC say this is necessary because:

1. They do not have authority to subpoena witnesses. 2. The FBI investigates the cases, and the FBI feels it is necessary to protect the people who give it information.

Furthermore, AEC spokesmen say, the accusations are not "charges," in the legal sense, but represent information about an employe which it seems necessary to have the employe explain. But Lesser and Gerson say an adverse decision can seriously cut the earning power of an employe, because of the cloud cast upon him. The bulletin article suggests all decisions should be subject to review by federal courts.

The employe now has the right to appeal to the commission's personnel security review board, headed by former Justice Owen J. Roberts, but not to the courts.

A statement by the Oak Ridge association says at least some accusations are no more than "unsubstantiated" rumors. AEC officials emphasize these accusations did not come from the commission itself but are statements from people who know the employes involved and in the interests of security must be investigated. They also emphasize they want to work out a way to do this which will be the least objectionable to atomic workers. Present rules, they say, are subject to any change that might erase some of the problems.

Take Off Ugly Fat With Grape Fruit Juice Recipe

It's simple. It's amazing, how quickly one may lose pounds of bulky, unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this recipe yourself. It's easy — no trouble at all and costs little. It contains nothing harmful. Just go to your druggist and ask for four ounces of Liquid Barcentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill bottle. Then take two tablespoonsful twice a day. That's all there is to it.

If the very first bottle doesn't show you the simple, easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender, more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't just seem to disappear almost like magic from neck, chin, arms, bust, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles, just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow the easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears — how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Shameful Situation

THE U. S. Bureau of Internal Revenue is reminding those who manufacture, wholesale, or retail oleomargarine that their federal license tax is due. This amounts to $600 a year for manufacturers, $200 for wholesalers handling uncolored oleo; $480 for those handling colored; $6 for retailers of uncolored and $48 for selling the colored product. The aggregate is a good many million dollars.

But the consumer is the fellow who really gets socked. Estimates are that the tax and the cost of compliance with provisions of the tax law add a minimum of 5 cents a pound to the retail price of oleo. Since Americans eat more than a billion pounds of the product a year, the added cost to them because of the tax exceeds $50,000,000.

For this addition to their cost of living, Americans can give thanks almost exclusively to the United States Senate. The House approved overwhelmingly the repeal of federal oleo taxes a few months ago. But the bill bogged down in the senatorial red tape which enabled a handful of the membership to block consideration of the measure. The lush and powerful butter lobby, which fought the repeal of oleo taxes tooth and toenail, scored a victory almost as effective as if the bill had been defeated. It was a great triumph for one small and selfish group over the interests of the masses.

It is a shameful state of affairs which justifiably might cause Americans to ponder more and more how long they can afford the luxury of rules of procedure under which the Senate blocks, rather than carries out, the unquestioned wishes of the masses of the people.

Good For All

NEVER has thorough understanding and hard work paid off better for a political candidate than they are paying off for Ernest O. Thompson, of the Texas Railroad commission. Running for re-election, Colonel Thompson has only token opposition as balloting day nears.

Conceded to know more about the oil business—and about control and legislation connected with it—than any other man, Colonel Thompson's announcement for re-election this year was tantamount to election. That's the way it should be.

When the people get a man who first, intelligently and energetically learns all there is about his job; and who, secondly, works hard and fairly at it, the people want to keep him. Surely, the people of Texas want to keep Ernest Thompson on the Railroad commission.

Colonel Thompson is to be congratulated for the overwhelming support he long has enjoyed from the voters of Texas. By the same rule, the people of Texas are to be congratulated, first for electing Colonel Thompson to his first term; and, secondly, for enthusiastically re-electing him at the expiration of every term.

Note on gambling: The person who has plenty of money doesn't need to win, and the person who hasn't plenty of money can't afford to lose.

Bitter Reprieve

MARCUS STERLING, playboy scion of a liquidated fortune, was desperate because he owed $10,000 he could not pay . . .

In a fashionable community on New York's outskirts, he brought his long car to a stop halfway along the driveway to his garage. He shut off the motor and slid forward in the seat, his broad shoulders slouched back against the cushion.

It was a gesture of spiritual defeat. It bothered him that he had put in the day as a fugitive from something to which he knew he would have to return.

He grinned bitterly when he thought of himself as a fugitive. To dodge the telephone, he had tarried only a few nervous minutes at his desk, had avoided his regular noonday club, had driven aimlessly to Connecticut. On the way back, after dusk had fallen, he had stopped at an obscure place in Westchester for dinner.

A faint ray of hope had crept into his low mood during the drive back to Clifston. But the hope had died when he turned his car toward the driveway and the beam of the headlights swept the gray-rock house set back from the road. The house was ominously dark, a sprawling sepulcher to match Sterling's returning despair.

Sterling had known the servants would not be there. They would be at their homes on a Thursday night. He knew, too, that Miriam generally found something to take her out on Thursday night. But tonight, he had thought, she would be there, awaiting him. Awaiting him to relent, he had confidently expected. Miriam had taught him to expect that, although she never before had been so positive in denying him as she had been at breakfast.

Recalling his wife's cold refusal, Sterling jerked up in his seat, shut off the headlights. That left the driveway a well of black shadow between the house and a screen of tall evergreens. The tall French windows of the library alcove, a few feet to the right were barely definable.

Outside the car, Sterling sniffed at the soft atmosphere of the May night, fragrant from late afternoon showers. Rounding from the driveway to the front porch, he found the silent house suddenly welcome. It beckoned to him encouragingly as a haven for his weariness.

AT the library door he paused briefly in the shadowed hall, then flooded the large room with light. He crossed to the amply equipped bar and mixed a drink, downed it quickly. He had passed up drinking during the day. That had been a recurrent struggle against temptation. His victory had been a selfish one. He had still been counting on Miriam. That had brought him home stone sober.

Sterling had reached a chair with his second drink when the telephone rang. He went to it eagerly. That would be Miriam. She had probably rung up half a dozen times during the evening, hoping to find him home. He spoke into the telephone brightly, then something inside him sank when he heard the gruff, throaty voice that came over the wire.

"Sorry, Bindle, but I just got home," Sterling said.

"I guess it ain't none of my business where you have been all day," came the angry rejoinder. "How about the messages I left for you?"

"Wasn't at the office. Had to get out on a trip."

"And I guess you couldn't remember my number. You made promises last night, Sterling. You didn't say nothing about a trip. Noon today, in case you don't remember, was the deadline."

"I know, Bindle, but it was all unexpected. I'll get in touch with you tomorrow."

"Tomorrow you won't be giving me another runaround. I'm seeing you tonight."

"But it's after 10. I can't do anything more tonight."

"I knew it was after 10 when I called, Sterling. I don't fool with people who break promises. You deliver tonight."

"But that's impossible."

"We'll see, Sterling. I'm giving you a little time. It's now 13 after 10. Look for me at your home at 11."

"But Bindle . . ."

"I'll be there at 11 on the dot."

Sterling's further protest died unspoken. The bang against his eardrum made it emphatic that Harry Bindle was no longer on the line.

* * *

MARCUS STERLING'S immediate decision was flight. He used his interrupted drink to rescue him from the unexpected blow. His effort of the entire day had been nullified by his impetuous overconfidence that only Miriam would have been calling him. But he couldn't face Harry Bindle tonight . . . have him here in

Looking At Life - - By Erich Brandeis

HAVE you written your autobiography yet?

Why not?

Everybody else is doing it—you and I must be about the only ones in this country who haven't put down their lives in book-form and made a fortune by washing their linen in public.

BRANDEIS

Here is the latest thing in autobiographies.

It is called "Yellow Kid Weil: The Autobiography of America's Master Swindler."

I am not going review the book. This is not a book review column, and I certainly wouldn't recommend this particular book to you. I haven't read it and I don't intend to read it. But I have read several of the reviews of it, and my favorite critics agree that it is a very mediocre piece of writing.

The only reason I mention it to you at all is that it contains one bit of philosophy which strikes me as very true.

This fellow Weil was one of the slickest confidence men this country ever had. He served a couple of prison sentences but he was darn clever, just the same.

He sold phony stock, fleeced his victims with phony tips on horse races, opened a fake bank, and did just about everything else that could be classed as phony.

Weil claims in his book that he cleaned up more than eight million dollars with his swindles, although he hasn't any of it left at seventy years of age.

And here is his philosophy: You can't fleece an honest person. The confidence man's success, he maintains, depends upon the dishonesty and avarice of his suckers.

Most of his swindles offered his victims profits that they knew could not be made legally. None of the "clients" objected to the dishonesty until they had been fleeced. Then they squawked. Sometimes however, they didn't squawk. Either they were ashamed to be branded as suckers by the ensuing publicity, or they were afraid that they themselves might go to jail.

So much for Weil, America's master swindler.

HERE is something that seems to tie up with his story, and his philosophy.

New Jersey recently put a tax of three cents a package on cigarets. There had been no state tax on cigarets before, and thousands of cartons were bought by New Yorkers and brought into their state.

Just before the tax went into effect, the New York State Division of Taxation planted thirty agents at the different entrances to New York. Cigaret runners by the hundred were stopped and their loot, averaging from forty to fifty cartons per runner, was impounded for taxes.

Most of those runners intended to resell those cigarets and make the extra profit.

Do you know what made it so easy for the tax agents to nab the cigaret smugglers?

Most of them bought their stuff at special stores and stands set up near the ferries and tunnels. The operators of those stands and stores would take their automobile licenses, phone them in to the tax bureau which, in turn, would give the numbers to their agents and —presto, there you are.

Thus, the New Jersey cigaret sellers made two profits—one from the people on whom they squealed and one the reward from the tax bureau.

I guess "Yellow Kid" Weil knew his suckers all right!

OLD FEUD REVIVED

Bitter Campaign Seen

Special Correspondent
BY RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—The Democrats and Republicans will lock in a "little people" against the "big interests" struggle on the basis of strategy already planned for the 1948 presidential campaign by Truman-Barkley managers, with the President himself as generalissimo.

TUCKER

It will be the nearest approach to the Bryan-McKinley affair of 896 and the Roosevelt-Hoover conflict of 1932. It will be Truman of Independence, Mo., and Barkley of Paducah, Ky., against Dewey of New York, Warren of Sacramento and Grundy of Pittsburgh. At least such is the Democratic plan, as their platform and speeches reveal.

TECHNIQUE: The President and his running-mate will represent themselves as the champions of the laboring man, the farmers, the house wives, racial and religious minorities—in short, of all those who toil and suffer and feel themselves to be the victims of economic, political or community discrimination.

The disclosure of this technique has led many hard-boiled politicians to revise their earlier forecast of the prospective outcome in November, and to keep their fingers crossed until the two road shows have begun to stage their campaign performances. Indeed, such a seer as James A. Farley now believes that the Democrats have more than a fighting chance.

ATTACK: This sort of strategy can work both ways, however, and it will be the task of the Dewey-Warren forces to unveil another side to the political shield.

They will attack the opposition ticket as economically and geographically unbalanced, and will denounce the Democrats' victory formula as an appeal to "prejudices" and "demagoguery" in contrast to the New York Governor's cry for "national unity."

They will scrape the Congressional records of Messrs. Truman and Barkley in an effort to prove their theory that the men from Missouri and Kentucky have shown themselves neglectful of the broader concerns of the country, especially on such problems as industry, railroads, corporations and business interests generally.

APPEAL: They will argue that no nation can remain prosperous, powerful and influential on the world stage by making a political whipping boy of these great institutions.

They are hoping that this depiction of the Truman-Barkley combination as a sectional setup will carry a vote-getting appeal in the Northeast, along the Atlantic Seaboard, in the Midwest and in Governor Warren's area beyond the Rockies.

They do not subscribe to the thesis that a people steaming along under almost total employment, high wages and generally prosperous conditions will respond to the strategy that succeeded in the depression year of 1932, but failed whenever the voters were getting along so well as they are now.

PLEDGES: They will also ask why, in view of Democratic eulogies of the sixteen years of the Roosevelt-Truman regime, with their recital of accomplishments for the "underdog," it is necessary at this belated hour to repeat the pledges of 1932.

The Administration's reply will be, of course, that the logical extension of New Deal "reforms and gains" has been blocked by Republican reactionaries on Capitol Hill.

MILLSTONES: Regardless of how these tactics test out in November, it seems clear that President Truman got rid of several millstones which the G.O.P. expected to anchor around his neck.

The earlier opposition of the big city bosses —Ed Flynn of New York, Frank Hague of New Jersey and Jake Arvey of Chicago—tends to answer the charge that the protege of Tom Pendergast was still loyal and responsive to machine controls. And, in view of their attitude, he may be more independent, if elected, than he has been in the past.

The bitterness shown toward him by the New Deal faction, including the Roosevelt sons, the Hendersons and Mayor Hubert Humphrey, Jr., of Minneapolis, frees Mr. Truman of the innuendoes that he is a "more rabid" radical than FDR himself.

PLANK: The adoption of the stronger Civil Rights plank should soften up colored people and other racial groups which have thought him to be weak or too unconcerned to wage a real fight for their enactment by Congress.

It is true that the amended pledge was forced on the White House, but it is in the platform. So are promises designed to satisfy the Jews, the Poles and the sympathizers with every struggling nation overseas.

Top labor leaders may change their tune, which had been anti-Truman, in view of the platform bids for their important vote. Whether they do or not, it is politically probable that their millions of followers will.

Lastly, it is generally believed that all these factions "have no place to go" in the light of the extremely high offers which the political auctioneers have made and will make for their support.

A wasp is just as busy as a bee, but we don't praise him for being industrious, because he doesn't make honey for us to steal.

"A decrease in automobile fatalities is noted." Perhaps motorists have about killed off all pedestrians with slow reflexes.

The luckiest person we've heard about so far this year is the Norwegian farmer to whom a friendly glacier has been delivering frozen reindeer at intervals.

Today's couplet: Throughout the world at every point the cursed time is out of joint.

"A Gary man shot his wife dead because she didn't cook his biscuits brown enough to suit him."—Press report. A woman should be extremely careful with respect to anything concerning her husband's first love, food.

"While practicing making a fast draw of a revolver from her brassiere, a Knoxville girl suffered a flesh wound when the firearm was accidentally discharged."—News item. We have been suspecting for a long time that some girls were supplementing nature in certain localities, but we had no idea they were doing so with artillery.

Another expansive thing to maintain these days is a bay window.

The proprietor of the Crossroad Store indulged in a little sarcasm the other day. He replaced the sign, "Don't Spit on the Floor," with one reading, "Don't Spit on the Ceiling."

What sort of person would you be if you were granted immunity to punishment, penalty and pain, and were in position to do exactly as you pleased? Well, that's the sort of person you are.

PARTY DIDN'T CARRY OUT PLEDGES

GOP Leaders Also Play Politics

By THOMAS L. STOKES
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON. — The bold, taste-of-victory spirit of Republican leaders after their Philadelphia convention seems to have wilted under the first challenge to the party which came, unexpectedly, in President Truman's call for a special session of Congress to do some things that its Republican managers thus far have neglected.

Instead of seizing the opportunity made for them by the President, they have exhibited a tendency to dodge behind such excuses as that of Governor Dewey's manager, Herbert Brownell, that the party should wait until it wins the White House and assumes complete control of the government before acting on the program pledged in its platform, or the more illusory alibi of Rep. Clarence Brown of Ohio that the party is under no obligation to carry out its 1948 platform until after the election reveals whether the voters prefer this or the Democratic platform.

STOKES

This looks like a grabbing at very weak straws.

Agree On Some Items

It would appear to be quibbling on a flimsy technicality. For both party platforms are in agreement on such necessary measures as housing, aid to education, extension of social security and civil rights, to name a few among outstanding issues, so the voter has no choice there.

They also agree generally on other problems that should be met, though differing on method, as, for example, health and medical aid. Some measures on which they agree, notably housing and aid to education, are so far advanced in Congress, the Senate having approved both, that very little time and work still are necessary to get them through the House and make them law. If this action is not completed, then these measures must start all over again in the next Congress, so that valuable time will be lost. The public will understand that.

The public also understands something else—and from cruel current experience—which is the need to do something about inflation, perhaps the biggest issue of all just now. There is a feeling that this cannot wait several months for another Congress.

It is unlikely that the public generally can appreciate the fine distinctions about when a party platform does or does not apply and it might very well look upon the resort to technicalities as, of itself, a species of "playing politics," which is the accusation made by Republicans against President Truman.

But it is not even necessary to quibble about whether the 1948 platform applies now or after the election. The Republican party wrote a platform in 1944 which presumably, under the rule laid down by Rep. Brown, may properly be taken as a mandate. That platform carries ample authority for proposals of President Truman for the special session.

Okayed Housing Bill

On the subject of housing that 1944 platform advocated:

The stimulation of state and local plans to provide decent low cost housing properly financed by the Federal Housing administration, or otherwise, when such housing cannot be supplied or financed by private sources."

That describes the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill which has passed the Senate and is bottled up now in the House Rules committee.

Other 1944 platform pledges include:

"Extension of the existing old-age insurance and unemployment insurance system to all employes not now covered.

"A careful study of federal-state programs for maternal and child health, dependent children, and assistance to the blind, with a view to strengthening these programs.

"A continuation of these and other programs relating to health and the stimulation of federal aid of state plans to make medical and hospital service available to those in need without disturbing doctor-patient relationships or socializing medicine."

And, on civil rights, both the 1944 and 1948 platforms advocated anti-poll tax and anti-lynching legislation. The 1944 platform went further than this year's platform by specifying "the establishments of a permanent Fair Employment Practice commission." The 1948 platform endorsed the principle but did not specify the FEPC.

There is plenty for the Republican party to do in this special session of Congress to catch up on its 1944 platform, without even bothering about what it promised at Philadelphia this year.

Senate's Rejection Of Deal With Texas Saved State's Rich Land

By MAC ROY RASOR
Associated Press Staff Writer

AUSTIN, July 22—Had a 10-million-dollar real estate deal gone through 104 years ago it would today be considered perhaps the costliest mistake in Texas History.

In 1844 Texas wanted to join the United States. She offered the federal government all her public domain if it would assume 10 million dollars of her public debt. The Senate refused. Congress decided instead that the new state of Texas would keep both her public debt and her public lands.

Many Projects Financed

Out of that deal that fell through, state land office records show, Texas generously granted land to settlers, to war veterans (Texas Revolution and the war between the states), to railroads for transportation facilities, to build a capitol, to encourage irrigation, drainage and iron works, to create an independent school system.

Out of the deal that fell through the state created two giant permanent education funds—the permanent free school fund and the University of Texas and Texas A and M. permanent fund. Together they now total 210 million dollars.

In the past 10 months alone, a minute portion of the remaining public lands brought 44 million dollars to the school funds. Land Commissioner Bascom Giles estimates "untold millions" will flow into the funds for years to come. From tidelands alone he expects a "conservative" billion dollars.

Public Education Benefits

All public lands which now remain from the original domain are dedicated to public education.

About two million acres—mostly West Texas pastures dotted with oil wells—are held in the university permanent fund. Revenue from those lands have built the fund to its present 82 million dollars.

All other unsold public lands have been appropriated to the permanent free school fund, now totaling $130,000,000. Only about one and a half million inland acres and 18 million tideland acres.

All royalties and sale receipts are poured into the permanent fund in both the case of the university and free school holdings. Those funds cannot be spent outright but instead are invested. Thousands of dollars in interest from the funds are siphoned off monthly into the university available fund and the free school available fund. The available funds are spendable for education purposes.

Out of the deal that fell through "land office business" has become no idle phrase in Texas.

CURIOSITY HOOKS CAT

BROCKTON, Mass. (U.P.)—Neighbors called police when they heard sounds like a fight mingled with yowls coming from a closed hardware store in the early morning. With pistols ready, police entered and found the proprietor's cat had been poking around and hooked its nose in a small bin containing fish hooks.

Nebraska Diggers In Search For Solution Of Indian Mystery

CAMBRIDGE, Neb. July 22. (U.P.)—A Smithsonian Institute archeologist is trying to solve a three-fold mystery concerning the prehistoric people who once inhabited tiny villages along Medicine Creek in south Nebraska.

The archeologist, Marvin Kivett, is investigating remains of villages on the site where Medicine Creek dam now is being built.

He is trying to determine where the aborigines came from, at what period they lived, and what happened to them.

"It is interesting to note," Kivett said, "that remains of a similar culture have been found in the Texas Panhandle. The only difference was that the Texas villages had stone huts, while the Medicine Creek people used logs for their homes."

Carving Is Puzzle

Kivett also reported that a piece of shale, in which was carved a picture of a human face, was found recently.

"This type of carving," he said, "usually is associated with the prehistoric inhabitants of the southeast."

Now working on the remains of a third village in the dam site area, Kivett believes that each was occupied at a different period. All were before the coming of the white man, he said.

There is no evidence of horses, metal or glass, which were brought by the whites. Kivett would like to ascertain as definitely as possible the times of the settlements, but hasn't found too much in the way of clues.

As to what happened to the people, the researchers still are baffled. Kivett said he has found no evidence of warfare, or any sign that such peaceful farming folk were wiped out by invading tribes.

Skeletons Missing

In fact, Kivett admitted that so far he has found only one burial place, and that contained only one skeleton—that of a man, with one arm missing. The archeologist still has many people to account for. Kivett had expected to find that the people buried many bodies in each burial place.

This one burial place, he said, was on a high hill, was dug only about 17 inches deep, and contained a few pieces of pottery, arrowheads and some beads made from gulf coast shells. Kivett conjectured that the shell beads must have been traded from one tribe to another, to reach Nebraska.

These people kept two kinds of dogs, Kivett said. They raised corn, beans and domesticated sunflowers. They kept bees and caught fish, mussels, crayfish and turtles in the creek.

Kivett said Medicine Creek valley is receiving possibly more archeological attention this year than any other site in the United States, with three agencies participating: University of Nebraska Nebraska Historical Society and Smithsonian Institution.

THIEVES PROVE THOUGHTFUL

NEVADA, Mo. (U.P.) — Thieves who robbed a tobacco store showed consideration. They removed a plate glass window to enter the store. They took it out carefully and placed it on the grass. It wasn't even scratched.

Nebraska Man Withdraws From Senate Race Because Pay Low

LINCOLN, Neb., July 22 (U.P.)—W. E. Brazda, Fremont, has withdrawn as a candidate for the legislature because "salaries of state senators and all state employes are too low."

Nebraska state senators receive $872 a year.

"State employes are foolish to work for the amount they receive," Brazda said in his letter of withdrawal to the secretary of state.

He recommended general increases for state senators to at least $5,000 a year.

Chocolate Sundae Fails As Holdup Weapon For Youth

FORT WAYNE, Ind. July 22 (U.P.)—Dewey Lamle, 22, was arrested on a charge of trying to hold up a drug store with a chocolate sundae.

Police said Lamle ordered a sundae "with plenty of nuts" and when the proprietor puts it in front of him said, "This is a stickup."

When police arrived they found Lamle unarmed and starting on his sundae. They didn't let him finish it.

BUSMAN'S HOLIDAY

MILWAUKEE (U.P.)—A man who catches the bus to work every morning enjoyed a two-week vacation. He got up earlier than usual every morning and sat on the porch, watching the other folks hurry downtown.

CREDITS RETONGA FOR RELIEF AFTER MANY YEARS OF SUFFERING

Wife Of California Oil Man Tells Her Story Of Suffering With A Happy Ending. Gives Full Credit To This Famous Gastric Tonic.

MRS. INEZ MITCHELL

"Anyone who is suffering as I did is missing a bet if they don't try Retonga," declares Mrs. Inez Mitchell, of 811 Funston Ave., Norwalk, Cal., whose husband is a well-known oil man.

"I don't suppose I was any more miserable than lots of people with acid indigestion," continues Mrs. Mitchell, "but I certainly suffered tortures. I had to be very careful about what I ate or I would have the most terrible gas pains and become so bloated with gas that I couldn't seem to get rid of it. I was made miserable by a stubborn case of constipation and had to take strong laxatives regularly every other day. I seldom got a full night's sleep. I felt so awfully jittery and rundown that what little housework I had the energy to do was only half done.

"I thank my lucky stars for the day I started taking Retonga, for in just a short time I began to get relief from the discomforts that had hounded me for years. Today I can eat anything I like. I sleep soundly and have been relieved of my constipation. I've got plenty of pep and energy, too, and can do all my housework the way it should be done. Retonga deserves all the credit for the way I feel today."

Retonga is intended to relieve distress due to insufficient flow of digestive juices in the stomach, loss of appetite, borderline Vitamin B-1 deficiency, and constipation. The active ingredients of Retonga are purely herbal, combined with Vitamin B-1. You can get Retonga at all good drug drug stores, including Walgreen Drug Store. Adv.

MARKET BOUNCES BACK

NEW YORK, July 22. (AP)—The stock market carried its recovery through the third session in a row today although trading volume dropped to one of the smallest totals for the year.

The upward trend developed soon after an early mood of indecision had been shaken off. Late in the day prices became highly sensitive to only small demand and the market closed with gains running to around 3 points.

This third rebound erased almost half of the losses incurred in the severe drop which started a week ago and culminated Monday in the sharpest decline in nearly two years.

More optimism regarding the international situation, plus a flood of favorable corporation news, provided a background for the upward price movement.

Railway and oil shares took their customary place well in advance of the rest of the list. Steel stocks didn't get very far one way or another and a good handful of issues backed down a trifle.

Trading was largely in the hands of professional operators with public participation at low ebb. The market was the narrowest of the month, only 955 issues appearing on the ticker tape. Of these 486 advanced and 274 declined.

Sales of 850,000 shares compared with 1,200 000 Wed., This was the smallest since only 820,000 shares changed hands on July 1.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced .4 of one point to 69.5. A week ago, on the eve of a selling drive which took the starch out of Wall Street's bull market, the index stood at 72.2.

Highly favorable earnings and dividend news gave the market a boost.

Another favorable factor was an expected announcement from the Interstate Commerce Commission concerning a final judgement on a general boost in freight rates. Evidently there is a widespread feeling that the ICC will allow the railroads all, or nearly all, of what they have asked.

Cotton

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, July 22. (AP)—Cotton futures were steady today on scattered local and trade buying which met only limited hedge offerings. Less pessimism over the foreign situation and optimistic comment by Secretary of Agriculture Brannan on cotton prospects had a steadying influence. Some buying in deferred deliveries was attracted by the fact that those months are selling not far above the expected government loan on the next cotton crop.

Late afternoon prices were 45 to 65 cents a bale higher than the previous close. Oct. 32.20, Dec. 32.15 and March 32.08.

Futures closed 85 cents to $1.10 a bale higher than the previous close.

Grain

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, July 22. (AP)—Grains inched up a bit today but the gains were not large enough to cause any market excitement.

Wheat got some aid from milling interests, presumably lifting hedges against sales of flour to South American and European countries. Corn showed the widest gains at times, largely because of short covering in the July contract. Advances ranged to around 2 cents at one time.

For a good part of the day oats showed some recovery powers following yesterday's drop into new seasonal low ground. But toward the close pressure again developed against the July delivery.

Cash market were little changed from yesterday.

Wheat closed ⅛-⅝higher, July $2.26¾-⅞, corn was ¼ lower to 2 cents higher, July $2.08¾-½, oats were ¾ lower to 1⅛ higher, July 77-77¼, rye was ½ lower to ½ higher, December $1.58, and soybeans were unchanged to 3 cents higher, July $3.78.

ing land and open range.

Of the farm land approximately 125,000 acres are planted in cotton, 110,000 marked for wheat and 65,000 acres for grain sorghums. Other crops include sudan pastures and truck gardens.

Irrigation has become increasingly important in the county, with 350 irrigation wells now in use.

Terracing is widely developed in the county, with 2,730,405 feet of terraces reported in 1947, Winters said.

Ranching Also Important

The county's present tax valuation is $6,524,830, according to Roy Karr, the county tax assessor-collector. Wealth of the county is also indicated by the passenger car registration of 2,250 and truck and pickup registration of 800.

Ranching is still carried on extensively in the county, one of the largest ranches being the L-7 ranch of 110 sections operated by W. W. Brunson south of Crosbyton. The J. S. Bridwell ranch three miles east of the city contains 17,000 acres.

Industry and commerce of Crosbyton is based on agriculture. The town has three elevators and three cotton gins.

The town has 37 blocks of paving, of which 21 blocks were completed last year. Work is underway on farm-to-market road paving extending north of the city, and a $132,000 bond issue for road improvements in the eastern part of the county carried recently.

Bank deposits at Crosbyton's National bank totaled $2,395,224.82 at close of business June 30, according to a statement released by Russell McCurdy, executive vice president.

The Crosbyton Clinic Hospital, Inc., is one of the projects of which Crosbyton is proudest. The $120,000 36-bed hospital was completed last year, said F. M. Dunn, its manager, and patients come from all over the county and adjoining counties for treatment. It is staffed by two doctors, Dr. M. R. Snodgrass and Dr. Dale R. Rhoades. It was financed by individual stockholders. Dunn has recently succeeded Keltz Garrison, the former manager of the hospital.

Crosbyton is one of the few South Plains towns which owns and operates its own electric power plant and ice plant.

The town has the city manager form of government. Jack Arthur is mayor and Hugh Nation is city manager.

Perched near the edge of Blanco canyon and the White river, Crosbyton has numerous recreational opportunities nearby. Silver Falls park, on highway 82 a few miles east of the town, is maintained by the highway department and provides a cool and unusual picnic ground. Swimming, which a few years ago was permitted above a concrete dam near the highway, has been discontinued.

feating" the Democratic party.

Woodville Rogers of San Antonio, leader of Truman-loyal Democrats at the Brownwood convention, said from his home that he has had to devote all of his time to his candidacy for congressman in that district.

"I don't know who will lead the fight in September," he said.

Mayor Tom Miller of Austin, the pro-Truman faction's unsuccessful nominee for national committeeman against successful Wright Morrow of Houston, said—"I assume the governor and Morrow are going to support Mr. Truman? (He added the question-mark himself) and if they are I'm ready to do everything I can to help that cause."

Gov. Jester's office said the governor would have a statement tomorrow. Last week he wrote friends telling them that "it is essential that the friends of my administration control that (state) convention." He urged they attend precinct and county conventions.

In northwest Texas boll weevil showed an average of 16 per cent infestations were light or nil, but fleahoppers increased sharply. Counties were in the area of Wilbarger, Cottle, Haskell, and Dickens, where last week the average was four fleahoppers per 100 terminals, compared with 16 this week. Wilbarger, the highest, showed 76 per 100 terminals. Dickens had 12.

In the South Plains no boll weevils were found, and fleahopper infestations were "very light to medium." An average of seven fleahoppers per 100 terminals were found in 49 fields in four counties, but counties where inspections were made were not named.

Bitter Reprieve

his own home. In his overwrought state, he could think of no plan beyond postponing the inevitable meeting with Bindle. He'd drive out to his country club and stay there overnight.

In his room, Sterling needed only five minutes to pack a traveling bag. He was switching off the light when he thought of his wife. Miriam was still his sole chance . . . better not antagonize her by letting her think he was having a night out because of what had happened at the breakfast table. He'd leave a note for her. He went to his desk and wrote it rapidly.

Across the hall, he let himself into his wife's room turned on a light. The room was luxuriously feminine. In his haunted mood, Sterling studied the room with vague longing, depressed momentarily by the consciousness that he alone was denying himself the comfort and protection it offered. He shrugged off the unwelcome accusation and crossed to the dressing table.

Sterling found amusement in the assortment of bottles and vials, recognizing perfume containers he himself had given Miriam on the three Christmases of their married life. A small bottle arrested his attention. It seemed out of place, like a shabbily dressed peasant at a costume ball. The label caught his eye . . . POISON in red letters. Sterling breathed more easily when he discovered that it had been prescribed by his wife's physician. The directions read: Not more than six drops in liquid upon retiring.

Sterling remembered vaguely that Miriam used some sort of sleeping potion. He was relieved to find that the bottle was almost full. Evidently, Miriam used the drops rarely. Not more than six drops . . . Sterling thought over that . . . must be potent. That design of skull and crossbones warned that an overdose spelled danger.

ROUSING himself from an unbidden trend of thought, Sterling slipped his note against the mirror, where he was sure Miriam would see it. He pictured her discovering it. Probably her comb would pause in her thick black hair as she'd reach for the note and read it eagerly. There'd be a flush in her cheeks. Sterling's normal ego was returning. He was sure Miriam would appreciate his thoughtfulness. His wife asked for nothing, he was sure, beyond reassurance that he cared for her. This was good strategy, leaving the note. It might pay off.

Sterling left his traveling bag in the lower hall beside the door. He was more composed, moved less hurriedly. His wristwatch showed only 10:30 . . . half an hour before Bindle was due . . . time for a drink or two before starting. Back in the library, he had just relaxed in his chair, sipping at a drink, when a thought jolted him abruptly: what would happen when Bindle arrived? Suppose Miriam should be home and open the door, or suppose Bindle should wait until Miriam arrived?

The thought of that possibility was staggering. Sterling knew he would have to wait for Bindle . . . handle him somehow . . . devise some way to delay the crisis. He studied his half-empty glass, thought of his well-stocked bar. No, he couldn't hope to drink Bindle into a conciliatory frame of mind. Bindle's voice on the telephone was too definitely unremitting. Then Sterling grinned. Bindle would accept at least one drink. There was Miriam's bottle. If nothing more than to get Bindle drowsy. Then he could bundle him out of the house . . . into a cab, or even into his own car. He'd be rid of Bindle for the night.

Sterling selected a clean glass at the bar. In Miriam's room, he was amused by his own caution when he used a handkerchief, to avoid fingerprints. Six drops . . . that was for Miriam . . . Bindle was of tougher fiber. Sterling counted carefully until 12 white globules had dropped into the glass.

In the library, Sterling placed the prepared glass on the bar, among others. He went back to his chair with his drink. He was annoyed at the heavy pounding of his heart. He'd have to settle down. He was a novice at what he was planning to do. It wouldn't do to be nervous. Bindle probably was by nature suspicious. He'd notice it. Sterling knew he'd have to go about it calmly. He forced himself to lean back, relax.

Then the sound of a motor reached him.

Experts Offer Suggestions On More Common Polio Symptoms

By THOMAS J. FOLEY
Staff Correspondent

ATLANTA, July 21—"Does my child have polio?"

Every time a young boy or girl gets sick, the anxious parent thinks of the present polio epidemic in North Carolina — the country's worst—and asks this question.

One of the country's top polio specialists offers some information and advice that should help these parents. He is Dr. Robert L. Bennett, director of physical medicine at the Georgia Warm Springs foundation.

Dr. Bennett says the symptoms can be divided into two stages. The first are those common to any childhood disease — fever, nausea, a cold and a headache.

Will Be Nervous

These are not dangerous in themselves, Dr. Bennett says, and parents should not get excited.

Children should not be brought to hospitals or to doctors, especially in epidemic areas where existing polio treatment facilities are already overcrowded, unless headaches last over night or fevers persist for 48 hours or so.

Dr. Bennett says that most medical men can tell almost right away whether a child has polio. The children infected with polio will be much more restless, nervous, tense and apprehensive than other sick children.

Two Types Of Polio

There are two types of polio—spinal and bulbar—and, of the two, spinal is about ten times as common as bulbar. The spinal type affects the muscles and bulbar the nervous system. Dr. Bennett says deaths from polio almost always come out of bulbar cases.

Actually, he says, every polio patient is infected with both types but with one more than the other. It is the second or danger stage of symptoms that the difference between the two types shows up.

In spinal polio, aching and paining muscles — maybe in an arm or maybe a leg — will follow usually a day or so after the first stage of common symptoms. Then comes stiffness and in a day or so the dreaded weakness.

Sometimes, Dr. Bennett says, the stiffness may come without the preliminary headache and fever. If parents notice the child favoring a certain group of muscles, they should find out if the muscles hurt or if they're just weak.

Symptoms Are Given

If the child complains of soreness, parents should find out if the child can explain how they got sore. If he can't or if he says they're just weak, he should be brought to medical attention immediately.

The more serious but less common bulbar cases affect breathing, circulation and heart action. The danger symptoms here are jerky breathing and pulse that are much out of proportion to the fever.

These are accompanied by difficulties in breathing, speaking and swallowing. Dr. Bennett says voice changes, such as to a harsh or strident voice or one with a nasal twang, are danger signals and such persons should be brought to doctors without delay.

It is not necessary to isolate children that aren't infected just because polio has broken out in a community. Parents are advised to follow the dictates of local health officers who work with the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis at all times during polio outbreaks.

Petroleum Research Expansion Planned

WASHINGTON, July 22. (U.P.)—The bureau of mines said today it will expand its petroleum research during the next 12 months because three-fourths of the nation's oil wells are declining in production.

The bureau said it will concentrate on methods of secondary recovery of oil from these wells to step up their production.

Congress voted $300,000 for secondary recovery work and refinery research in current fiscal year, plus $606,000 for engineering field studies and other oil and gas research.

Stripping Tests Planned

The bureau said greatest emphasis will be put on secondary recovery in so-called "stripper" well fields. These are fields where the rate of production is declining gradually so that they fluctuate between profit and loss. The bureau said about three-fourths of the 425,000 producing wells in the United States are in the "stripper" class.

The bureau said its engineers and other petroleum authorities believe "billions of barrels" of oil can be brought out of the ground by such secondary recovery methods as renewing underground pressure with compressed air, gas or water.

The bureau said it also will conduct research on new and more efficient refinery processes, on diesel fuels, and on the use of low grade crude oil in conventional refining processes.

MOOSE NOT SO PEACEFUL

MILWAUKEE (U.P.) — Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bassler don't agree with the pblicity men who say the moose in Washington's Glacier national park are peaceful. When the Basslers drove out to see the moose, one tried to butt their car off the road, smashing a fender and a door.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

National Park Service Warns Of Fire Danger In Southwest

WASHINGTON, July 22 (AP) — The National Park service today asked visitors to parks and monuments in the southwest to use special care when handling matches and fires.

Lawrence Cook, park service assistant chief forester, said the continued drouth has made the southwest the most critical area from the standpoint of fire hazards.

Already, Cook told a reporter, several fires have broken out in that region. The three largest destoyed about 650 acres of forest in Big Bend national park in Texas.

Cook said the Big Bend fires and the 1,500-acre blaze still smoldering at Isle Royale national park, Mich., probably were lightning-caused.

Fort Worth Man Invents Better Mousetrap; Now Draws Royalty

FORT WORTH, July 22 (U.P.) — Eight years ago W. A. Uttz caught his finger in a mouse trap. Today, with Bing Crosby's aid, he has done something amout it.

Uttz has invented a better mouse trap. The six-inch strip of pressed aluminum has saw-teeth, tapered jaws operated by a spring lever that permits disposal of the catch, untouched by human hands.

Uttz perfected the trap and sent it to Crosby's California research foundation, a clearing house for gadgets. The foundation approved the design, sold the patent and obtained Uttz the guaranty of a royalty each month.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (U.P.) — B. C. Joyner told his work crew not to disturb the mama robin who built her nest and hatched her young on a water pipe in a building under construction. The robin keeps to her noisy home unmindful of carpenters, plumbers and other workmen.
