City Answers Tony Bonilla On Ownership of Local Cemetery

Tony Bonilla, Corpus Christi, state director of the League of United Latin American Citizens, complained in a letter regarding the City of Rockport's method of operation of the Rockport Cemetery.

The City Council on Monday night approved the following letter to be sent to Bonilla,

Classes Scheduled For Retarded

Two classes for mentally retarded children in this area will be started August 23 in the Sacred Heart school building, it was announced by Miss Marion Moore, staff member of the Corpus Christi State School for the Retarded, at a luncheon meeting of Rotary Club July 19 at Corky's Restaurant.

Miss Moore said there are approximately 20 children in this area who are eligible for enrollment in the school from age three into teenage. Older students will attend a similar school in Aransas Pass which also will enroll adults.

Two full-time teachers and two aides, plus a number of volunteer assistants will staff the Rockport classes, according to Miss Moore. Regular school hours will be maintained. At the beginning the state school supplies teachers, aides and teaching material, while the community supplies the place for classes, according to Miss Moore, who added that once the school is established it is hoped that local school authorities will take over, incorporating classes for retarded children in the regular school system.

Centennial Funds For Beautification

Former mayor Delmar R. Hiller, who was president of the Rockport Centennial, informed the City Council Monday night that after all debts were paid in connection with the 1970 Aransas County - Rockport Centennial celebration, a total of $2,133.83 was left over.

He said the directors of the Centennial Corporation had agreed it would be a good idea to use $2,000 of the funds for a local beautification project and contact the Coastal Bend Council of Governments to seek a matching grant from the Federal government.

The City Council expressed enthusiastic approval of the proposed project.

Hiller said the remaining $133.83 would be used to defray the costs of moving the Centennial time capsule, now buried near the City Hall, to the grounds at the Chamber of Commerce Building across the street.

NOTICE

The Band Boosters will meet Thursday (tonight) at 7:30 p.m. at the band hall.

The City Council Monday night gave approval to Herman Johnson, City Tax Assessor-Collector, to attend an election law seminar at San Antonio on August 4.

City Council Questions Part Of Highway No. 35 Relocation

The City Council Monday night expressed concern about one part of "Revised Route A," as announced last week by the Texas Highway Department in connection with the relocation of Highway 35.

The section the aldermen are concerned about, as stated by the Highway Department, is:

"The second section of Revised Route A departs from Public Hearing Route A in the vicinity of FM 2165 and proceeds on new location in a northerly direction parallel to and just west of the Fulton outlots until it intersects with existing FM 1781 West of Aransas County Airport.

"From there, it skirts the Aransas County Airport on the signed by Mayor Walter S. Falk, Jr., and answering Bonilla's complaint:

Dear Mr. Bonilla:

I refer to your letter of April 28, 1972, addressed to Mr. Ray of the Human Relations Department, a copy of which you directed to me, complaining of the method of operation of the cemetery.

After receiving your letter, Mr. David Pena of the LULAC chapter in Rockport attended a meeting of the City Council, and expressed concern about the same general problem, adding that he had been informed that the City of Rockport had an ownership interest in the cemetery property, from which it might be concluded that same degree of managerial responsibility lay with the City. Accordingly, I am submitting these comments in order to set forth the City's position with regard to both matters.

With regard to your complaint concerning the financial assistance provided by the City to the Association, I can assure you that the City's contribution has been burdened with the express condition that it be used for the benefit of the cemetery as a whole. Indeed, this had been accomplished by the City Council forthwith upon the presentation of a complaint by a local LULAC representative, and, significantly, some time

Lebermann was a leader and generous contributor in the fund raising campaign last summer which produced about $3,500 in contributions for the local water safety campaign. About $1,800 was spent on the new tower and the rest for salaries for the water safety director and lifeguards.

Col. W. M. Brown, Jr., another Navigation District commissioner, points out that the Navigation District, the City and Aransas County have no current budgeted funds to pay salaries of lifeguards and he urges community-minded citizens to contribute whatever they can afford to raise money for this purpose. Contributions may be mailed to the Navigation District Office, Rockport, or taken there in person.

Andrew Cross, 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Cross, Corpus Christi, was injured Sunday in an accident at the salt water swimming pool at the north end of Rockport Beach.

According to Chief of Police Everett D. Taylor who took the boy to Lyman - Roberts

Hospital in Aransas Pass, the youngster fell from a swing rope and hit his head on the side of the pool.

Chief Taylor asked Navigation District officials to remove the swing rope which had been the source of several accidents. The swing rope was removed.

Fire Dept. Officials Say Alarm System "Inefficient"

Describing the present telephone network fire alarm system as inefficient, two representatives of the Rockport Volunteer Fire Department Monday strongly recommended to the City Council that a new electronic alarm system be purchased and installed as soon as possible.

Fire Chief Coy Truelove and

Eddie Ratliff of the Fire Department appeared before Mayor Walter S. Falk, Jr., and Aldermen Charlie Garrett, N. F. Jackson, Joe "Pepe" Zambrano and Murray McMillan.

Ratliff said, "Frankly, we have a poor alarm system now. There is considerable time delay in initiating the alarm from the dispatcher's office in the Sheriff's Department. Sometimes, the delay in sending the alarm is as much as five minutes."

Ratliff said the present system involves the dispatching of a fire alarm call which is supposed to be received immediately on 34 phones to ring simultaneously.

To replace the telephone network alarm system and speed up the dispatching of fire alerts, Ratliff and Truelove strongly recommended an electric alarm system which they indicated would cost between $4,500 and $5,000.

In explaining the system, they said the equipment would include 34 receiving units, each the size of a portable radio, which the firemen could plug into a wall socket at home, take the units with them and plug them into the cigarette lighter of their cars, and plug them into wall sockets at their offices or places of business.

They said the electronic system would have a range of about 25 miles.

The alarm would be initiated, they explained, by a dispatcher in the Sheriff's Department pushing a button and talking, telling where the fire is and giving any other information known.

Truelove said the Portland Fire Department had been using the electronic fire alarm system for several years and is "highly pleased with its operation."

From a cost standpoint, they said they understood that Rockport presently is paying about $179 a month in phone bills for the use of seven phones required in the current alarm system. With the electronic system, they said phone costs would be reduced approximately $110 per month.

The City Council expressed interest in the electronic system and asked the Fire Department representatives to bring specifications for the system to the next Council meeting. The City then will get bids to determine exact costs and then make a decision.

Record High Shrimp Landings Reported for Month of June

Shrimp landings at Texas ports amounted to 6.1 million pounds valued at $7.9 million. This was the second highest June volume on record being surpassed only by June 1967. Total landings for the 1972 January-June period were 17.6 million pounds compared with 12.4 million during the corresponding 1971 period. The Brownsville-Port Isabel area accounted for 53 percent of the State's current landings followed by Aransas Pass-Rockport, 17 percent; and Galveston, 11 percent. The following table represents landings of headless shrimp for specified areas and periods:

Area	June 1972	January-June 1971	January-June 1972
	Pounds	Pounds	Pounds
Port Arthur-Sabine	153,500	464,700	627,400
Galveston	705,800	2,056,200	2,220,800
Freeport	607,800	1,436,600	1,824,500
Matagorda-Palacios	68,900	258,000	216,300
Port Lavaca-Port O'Connor-Seadrift	300,900	581,700	796,600
Aransas Pass-Rockport	1,057,700	2,287,800	3,572,300
Brownsville-Port Isabel-Port Mansfield	3,222,800	5,297,600	8,371,900
TOTAL	6,117,400	12,382,600	17,629,800

Trawl vessels working waters from southeast of Corpus Christi to southeast of Port Isabel made good to heavy catches of young-of-the-year brown shrimp throughout June. Culling was moderate to heavy all month. Reports indicated catch discard of 60 percent in early June diminishing to 20 percent at the close of the month. Vessels working small shrimp were required to head all or part of their catch, consequently, some captains chose to work larger shrimp and eliminate the heading problem.

Vessels working larger shrimp in deeper waters made trip catches of 200-300 pounds per night. Hand labor for heading shrimp is very scarce in some ports and not available at all in others. The dockside heading of shrimp presents three major problems for buyers--time consuming, expensive, and a sanitation problem with trash fish brought in with the unculled catch as well as shrimp heads from the heading process.

Blue crab landings amounted to 650,000 pounds in June compared with 769,000 in June 1971. This decline in landings began early in the year and is still evident. Current landings, however, are consistent with the 1970 volume.

Cyster landings were restricted to private reefs and at the normal seasonal low. Eight new large vessels entered the Texas shrimp fishery in June. In addition, four smaller documented units made maiden voyages. All are Texas owned and will operate from Texas ports. No vessels were reported lost at sea.

Sport fishing was considered only fair along the entire coast as extremely hot, dry weather associated with high winds made bay fishing difficult. Off-shore party boats made only fair catches of red snapper around oil platforms. Live bait was plentiful along the entire coast.

Lions Club Hears Du Pont Executive

Employment of 300 to 320 persons with an annual payroll of approximately five million dollars plus local purchases amounting to several million dollars were predicted for the Ingleside Du Pont Chemical plant by Bob Franz, plant general manager speaking at a luncheon meeting of Rockport Lions Club July 20 at Sandollar Motel Restaurant.

The first phase of the plant will be in operation by the summer or early fall of 1973, according to Franz, who added that the plant will be expanded later to embrace additional manufacturing operations. Basic purpose of the facility is to produce chemicals from which the refrigeration gas Freon is made. Freon also is used in aerosol sprays. Raw material used in the process will be Texas natural gas.

Construction of the plant already is under way on 200 acres of the 1,500-acre tract purchased by duPont adjacent to the Corpus Christi ship channel. Products will be shipped from the plant by water, rail and highway, according to Franz. He said between 200 and 225 of the plant's employees will be from this area. Approximately 90 families from other duPont facilities will be transferred here, Franz said.

Important consideration involved in selection of the Ingleside location for the plant included availability of raw material, ability to ship by water, rail and highway, cost of buildservationalists, duPont decided to set even higher standards. These recently were approved and construction of the plant is proceeding.

"Even though we were certain our original standards were adequate, we wanted to be sure that all possible objections were met. It is the policy of duPont to be regarded as a good 'citizen' of the community," ing the plant, availability of an adequate labor force and good quality of communities in the vicinity of the plant, according to Franz.

Franz said that once the duPont plant is in operation, there will be a distinct possibility that it might attract satellite industries which will use some of the plant's products.

Referring to the recent controversy over the plant's possible effect on the environment, Franz said extensive studies indicated there would be no adverse effects on the quality of air and water. However, because of objections from con-

LULAC Parade Set for Sept. 16

2,632 Homes In County Have TV, 1970 Census Shows

The 1970 Census of Housing counted 4,431 housing units in Aransas County, and 2,632 households had at least one television set (1,733 UHF equipped), the Bureau of the Census, U. S. Department of Commerce, announced today. The figures are from the first report for Texas which presents detailed statistics on housing for each county.

The report shows that in the county:

There were 1,969 housing units with air conditioning (980 with room units and 1,009 with a central system), 1,799 units with a clothes washing machine, 1,128 with a clothes dryer, and 491 with a dishwasher.

The 1970 population was 8,902 with an average of 3.0 persons per housing unit.

A total of 1,110 housing units were built before 1949, 1,103 during the 1950's, 714 during 1960-64, and 1,204 within the five years preceding the April 1970 census.

Utility gas was used to cook the meals in 1,797 households, electricity in another 697, and bottled, tank, or LP gas in yet another 443.

There were 3,997 housing units with complete kitchen facilities and 3,889 with complete bathrooms, both for the exclusive use of the households. The number of bedrooms in all housing units ranged from none (in 125 units) and one (in 608 units) to four or more (in 235 units).

Owners occupied 2,225 units, renters 720 units, and a total of 1,186 units were vacant year round with 160 for sale and 194 for rent.

Copies of the report, Detailed Characteristics, 1970 Census of Housing, Texas, HC(1)-B45, are available for $5.25 each from the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. 20402, or from U.S. Department of Commerce field offices located in major cities.

Youths Charged With Burglary

The Sheriff's Department reported this week that two local youths, Mark Brooks and John Laird, had been taken into custody and charged with burglary of the B&J Grocery Store in Copano Cove on April 1. It was reported that beer and cigarettes valued at $146 were taken.

Chief Deputy E.A. Stautzenberger arrested Brooks, and Deputy Sheriff Jerry Lindsey picked up Laird. Lindsey said Brooks was being held in jail in lieu of bail, and Laird was released after posting bond.

Third Party?

Chances appear good Governor George Wallace of Alabama won't accept the Democratic Party platform recently adopted at Miami Beach. No doubt Wallace supporters will carefully analyze the G.O.P. platform also. (Most Wallace delegates left the Democratic convention disgusted with Senator George McGovern's platform and delegates.)

If Wallace and his supporters can't live with the Republican platform, either, after close analysis, the prospect may be another third-party effort, Wallace's health permitting.

In 1964 Wallace refrained from campaigning because of his respect for Senator Barry Goldwater and his political philosophy. No doubt Wallace will find much in the G.O.P. platform more to his liking than that which emerged from the Democratic convention, though the economic proposals of Senator George McGovern contain something of certain Wallace themes.

To wield any decisive power in November, however, Wallace will have to have electoral votes; the only way he can get them is to run as a third candidate. Thus the chance of that remains.

Crime Down

The latest statistics in New York City indicate this long-time cesspool of degradation might have slowed its decay rate in 1971. A recent announcement by the New York Police Department claims major crimes down by 21.1 per cent last year.

In addition, the number of burglaries was down by over twenty per cent, motor vehicle thefts by 24.6 per cent and robberies down by 18.8 per cent.

One reason for the decrease in crime, it's believed, are innovations by the new Police Commissioner. Another is the gradual return of respect for law and order, and greater support of law enforcement efforts and departments from Washington under the Nixon Administration.

Public opinion, and public support for law enforcement, greatly affect crime rates. In the nation's largest city—still a scandalous example of excessive crime and violence—the hope is now raised that progress can be achieved. All Americans hope that proves true, that American cities can eventually become decent places in which to live—inhabited by residents who understand what good citizenship, patriotism and orderly democracy mean.

August, 1972

The flowers withered on their stems,
The leaves hung limp and wan,
Within the trees a wistful breeze
Whispered and was gone
—Anne Mary Lawler

August, named after Caesar's nephew, Augustus, is remembered as the month in which World War II finally ended. President Truman announced on August 14th, 1945, Japan had surrendered.

Colorado Day is the 1st (the state was admitted that day in 1876), Columbus sailed on the 3rd in 1492 for the new world, and the first atom bomb used was dropped on Hiroshima August 5th, 1945.

Three Presidents were born in August. Herbert Clark Hoover, the 31st, was born at West Branch, Iowa, August 10th, 1874. Benjamin Harrison, 23rd, was born at North Bend, Ohio, on the 20th in 1833. And Lyndon Johnson, 36th, was born near Stonewall, Texas, on the 27th, in 1908.

Peter Zenger was acquitted in a momentous libel trial in New York on August 4th, 1735, an event which has done much to enable American editors since to print the truth. Fulton sailed the "Clermont" up the Hudson on the 11th in 1807.

Davie Crockett, son of a Revolutionary soldier of Irish descent, was born on the 17th in 1786 in Hawkins County, Tennessee. The famous jousting tournament near Staunton, Virginia, dating from 1821, is held each year in mid-August.

The American frigate "Constitution" won her great victory over the "Guerriere" August 19th, 1812. On St. Bartholomew's Day (the 24th) in 1572 began the mass murders of French Protestants, sending so many to America and on the 29th, at Cambridge, Mass., in 1809, one of the country's great minds was born—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Youth Baseball

The Youth Baseball season came to a close Monday night with both All Star teams beating the Managers. Sloppy fielding on the part of the Minor League Managers helped the Minor League All Stars to a 36 to 9 win. The Major League game was much closer with the All Stars pulling it out in the last inning by a 7 to 6 score.

During the regular season the winners of the leagues were the Yankees of the Minor League and the Dodgers of the Major League.

Last Thursday night the members of the All Star teams were announced and were presented trophies during the ceremony. The following boys made All Star from the Minor League: Daniel Garcia, Pewee Solis, George Solis, Mike Covarrubias, Ronald Dominguez, Bill Jennings, Jim Eaton, Bubba Scott, Mike Garza, Clyde Forshew, Kroy DeForest, Travis Jennings, Danny Brooks, Orlando Pina, and Danny Gaftan.

The All Stars from the Major League were: Juan Duke, Jeff Goff, Jimmy Crusier, Reggie Morgan, Gilbert Flores, Joe Brooks, Daniel Brooks, Charles McLead, Charles Edler, Sammy Solis, Dickie Oliver, Mark Bodie, John Solis, Donnie Meeker, and Kenneth Klamm.

News Bites The Dust

For more than fifty years the Daily News was one of the newspapers on the scene in the national capital. But, like the late Times-Herald, it now has ceased publication. The last issue was that of July 12th.

The national capital now offers readers and residents only two local daily papers. The Evening Star is the afternoon paper, the larger Washington Post the morning paper. Perhaps the News' passing is best for all concerned, because both the evening newspapers were reportedly losing money and if the capital is to offer readers an editorial choice, survival of one is necessary. The News was, in any event, a Scripps-Howard paper, and there is less pain, somehow, in the demise of a chain paper than in the death of an independent.

The Post, like its counterpart in New York, the New York Times, is a liberal paper, strong financially. Moderates and conservatives often shudder at the power of both these newspaper giants, which own additional media outlets and continue to grow. Thus moderates and conservatives fervently hope The Star will survive and prosper, now that its afternoon competition is eliminated. (The Star bought the name and certain assets of the News.)

The disturbing trend in recent years, in the newspaper field, has been the rapid gobbling up of small independent newspapers by ever-growing chains, and the failure of second and third dailies in city after city, which had in earlier times supported a number of competing newspapers, each with its own editorial voice. The stage has now been reached where newspapers in most cities have no local competition and while that has become unquestionably economic necessity, it is nevertheless regrettable in a democracy.

Russia's Debt

After more than twenty-five years of waiting, the United States is perhaps to receive from Russia payment, or partial payment, for lend-lease aid to that nation in World War II.

The amount of that aid is estimated to have been in the billions but Washington has settled its account with other nations at lesser figures and offered, when serious negotiations on the issue were resumed in April, to accept $1,000,000,000.

The Russians reportedly offered $300,000,000 and insisted they pay only two per cent interest, an interest figure charged England many years ago in settlement of that country's lend-lease account. The United States initially sought six per cent interest from Russia.

Chances now seem good (negotiations on a settlement resumed in Moscow on July 20th) that a sum of approximately $500,000,000 will be agreed upon by both sides, with a low interest rate. In return for such payment the United States is prepared to grant Russia favored nation treatment in matters of trade and help her obtain certain Export-Import credits.

If the Nixon Administration is successful in negotiations settling the old lend-lease debt with Russia, that will represent a diplomatic triumph. It will also clear away an obstacle to better relations between the two nations which has been a bitter and emotional barrier to such progress for three decades.

Flood insurance rates reduced substantially in Texas.

Today many Texas counties, cities, towns and villages are eligible for special flood insurance under the auspices of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and the National Flood Insurers Association, made up of nearly 100 insurance companies countrywide. Under this program, new lower rates for flood insurance protection have been announced for residents and businessmen effective July 10, 1972.

Protection is available for homeowners, for tenants, for owners of small businesses and for general property. To find out whether you are eligible for this special flood coverage — call or see . . .

reach and is designed to keep retarded children in their home environment rather than sending them to a state institution, where costs are $6,000 a year per pupil in contrast to $1,600 a year for the same type of training, Miss Moore said. Keeping the child at home provides a number of training advantages, she added. She urged parents with retarded children to contact local school authorities or State School representatives once the program has started in August.

Miss Moore said a surprising number of retarded children can be enrolled in regular school classes after they have had as much as three years of training in the special classes. At that time they may be enrolled in the class which their attained learning level matches.

Among the subjects and areas of instruction covered in the classes for retarded children are self help in eating and dressing, good health habits, safety, simple skills, such as cleaning teeth, washing, and toilet training, writing and speaking, use of abstract words, following directions and group exercises.

prior to my receiving your letter.

With regard to the impression left with Mr. Pena concerning ownership of the Cemetery property, I can advise that the City does not own any property or interest in the Association, and indeed has no connection with it, and no responsibility for the management of the cemetery property.

Consequently, it is the belief of the City Council that its contributions to the Association for maintenance of the cemetery property, burdened with the condition above-mentioned, is proper. It is also our belief that we have taken prompt action in response to the inquiries of your local representatives, and I can assure you that the City of Rockport remains willing to discuss with you or your local representatives any questions or complaints.

Should you have any questions concerning the City's position, please let us hear from you.

Easy Bookkeeping

Everybody knows about the convenience of checks even though they may not have a checking account of their own. Checks are such a familiar and accepted aspect of everyday life that they pass from hand to hand almost as freely as currency.

However, not everyone is familiar with all the advantages of a checking account. Even some people who have checking accounts fail to make full use of their convenience and safety in paying for goods and services.

A very important advantage of a checking account is the permanent record it provides of expenditures and receipts. A cancelled check becomes a signed receipt for money spent, and accounts paid, as well as payment for services rendered.

A checking account actually operates as a simple bookkeeping system, with checks recording money paid out and deposits recording money received.

All deposits at First National Bank up to $20,000 are insured through the Federal Insurance Corporation, and First National pays the premium.

Article Traces History of Lighthouse at Port Aransas

The following article, titled "Lighthouse vs Father Time," was written by Leslie S. Willey and appeared in the Eighth Coast Guard District OCTAGON.

The article, which traces the history of the construction of a lighthouse at Port Aransas, follows:

If you think 20 years is a long time before retiring, try going 97!

In the winter of 1855, the state of Texas started construction of a lighthouse on Lydia Ann Island, two miles north of Port Aransas, Texas.

Progress was slow at first when one of the worst "Northerners" in Texas history blew its icy breath from Maine to Brownsville. Man prevailed however, and by 1856 a circular red brick tower stabbed 67 feet into the Texas sky. The "Aransas Pass Light" had started the fight against "Father Time."

The lighthouse was designed to stand winds up to 200 miles-per-hour. The brick walls are four feet thick at the base, with 69 wedge-shaped steps circling their way to the top. Each step was molded in the walls, and all but a few stand as solid today as they did in 1855.

A lighthouse without a light is about as good as a boat without a bottom. Ask any old time "Keeper," and he would tell you that it was the French who made the best lenses for lighthouses.

The lens for this lighthouse was ground in France in 1854 by H. L. LaPute. It was a hand polished, multi-prism lens of the fourth order. It stood about four feet high, and weighed close to 100 pounds.

It had been a long time since Ben Franklin had discovered electricity, and it would be longer still before any would reach this neck of the woods.

Power for this light--and others like it--was supplied by a kerosene lamp. A hinged gate on the lens permitted the "Keeper" to light the lamp and trim the wick. A mirror was inserted in the gate of the lens to reflect the light out into the Gulf.

In later years the mirror was removed and a 500-watt electric light installed. This made the light visible for 16 miles while showing a flash of five seconds on, and five off.

The "Pass" at Port Aransas opened the way to both Corpus Christi and Aransas Bay. Vessels used these bays and inlets to unload their cargo, which was then carried overland by the many wagon trains headed west.

It was in this area that the famous pirate, Jean Lafitte, was said to have buried treasure. Here he played hide-and-seek with federal ships, while helping himself to the cargo of those unwary enough to fall into his trap.

The shot that echoed across the water at Fort Sumter ushered in the Civil War, and brought increased activity to the bays and inlets of the Texas gulf coast.

The South was in the grip of one of history's bloodiest wars. As troops and supplies were shipped out of the pass in increasing numbers, the Northern blockaders were soon ordered to cut this vital life-line to the sea.

In 1863 the North threw a blockade around the entrance to the pass and were about to seize the lighthouse itself. The Confederates were quick to see the outcome of such action and plans were made to blow the lighthouse up.

Things don't always go as planned, and this was no exception. After several attempts the old girl was still standing. Since they couldn't destroy her, they did the next best thing--they took the lens and buried it in the marshes, thus preventing the enemy the use of the light.

It would be five long years before the light would once again light up the Texas sky. And the attempts of the Confederates to blow up the lighthouse caused such great damage that she had to be rebuilt in 1867.

With her lamp burning once again, the old lighthouse settled down to stand its lonely vigil for the next 50 years.

The year 1919 found America in the aftermath of World War I. It was also the year that one of the most devastating storms in history hit the Texas Gulf coast. Five thousand people perished in the city of Galveston and property damage ran into the millions.

As the storm raged closer, it was decided that the lens must be saved at all cost. So for the second time in 64 years, the lens was once again taken down--this time to escape the raging fury of mother nature.

The storm came roaring down the flat Texas coastline, destroying everything in its path. What the winds didn't destroy, the angry seas did. The small town of Port Aransas was all but wiped out. Still, the old lighthouse stood, her wooden buildings were gone and there was other slight damage, but the old girl stood proud and tall in her finest hour.

It wasn't long until she was in full swing again, and around the early 20's or 30's--the records are not too clear--a radio beacon was established at the light. It had a range of 75 miles, and sent out the signal "Kilo."

Just as progress builds, so it also destroys. In 1952 the death knell tolled for the 97 year old light. For years the main ship channel had been moving to the south until finally the old light no longer served its purpose.

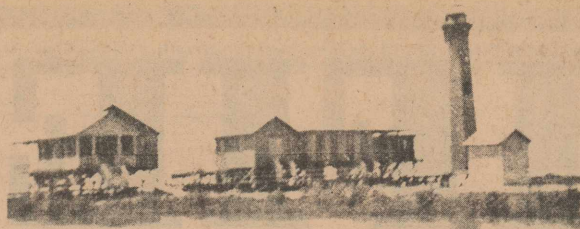

The light was to be moved to the Coast Guard station at Port Aransas, where it could better serve the new channel. It would be installed on a steel tower, and with the new equipment in the field of aids to navigation, the old lens would not be needed.

The lens was taken out of the old lighthouse in December 1952 and stored in the Coast Guard Depot in Corpus Christi.

The last resident personnel living at the light were W. A. "Bill" Jones, a civilian lighthouse keeper, and ENS John Lewellen and Lee Harrington, both of the U. S. Coast Guard.

All the men had their wives with them, but only Jones had any children. All in all, there were nine people and three dogs at the light at the time it was closed down.

Mr. Jones moved to Gulf Port, Miss. where he was a light keeper until he retired in 1969. John Lewellen went on to make first class engineman, and finally got out with 15 years in the Coast Guard.

Looking north, the large building at the center was the main living quarters. The large chimney in the center of the building served fireplaces in four separate rooms.

No one knows what happened to Lee Harrington. We do know that one of the dogs passed on a few years back and another one is reputed to have gone mad--too much lighthouse duty.

What was life like on the lighthouse you ask? Well, I can't answer for the old timers, but as for Mr. Jones and crew, they had it made.

They all pitched in and kept the station clean. Then there was fishing and hunting to enjoy on their time off. Each morning Mr. Jones would put his daughter Margaret, and son Alvin, in the outboard and ferry them to the city of Port Aransas where they attended the local school.

After the lighthouse had been abandoned, it sat idle until 1955, when Farnsworth and Chambers--a construction company from Houston--paid $27,330 for the property. At the time, the company planned to make a hunting and fishing camp out of it.

It has been 116 years since Henry LaPute ground the lens somewhere in France. Today, anyone can view the lens as it sits in the small museum at Port Aransas.

A piece six inches long is missing from one of the prisms where the Confederates tried to blow her up. There are also a few "Mind-Ball" nicks remaining where "Yankee" sharpshooters took pot shots at it during the Civil War.

Considering its age and the way the glass still holds its glitter, I would say "Old Father Time" has a fight on his hands. It seems this lens is here to stay.

What about the lighthouse itself? Well, to be 115 years old, and still standing after one civil war and two world wars--not to mention three major storms--is something in itself.

One gets the feeling when looking at the old girl, that if he were to give her back her lens, relight her lamp, and trim her wick, she would be ready for another hundred years.

Mrs. Patricia Blackmon and girls from Monterrey, Calif., have returned home after a month's visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Webb.

SILENT SPEECH

A research project that could lead to the development of a new measure of brain activity during sleep is getting under way with support from the National Institute of Mental Health.

Scientists at the University of Texas are monitoring the activity of the tongue and laryngeal muscles during sleep to determine whether "silent sleep"--known scientifically as subvocal motor activity--accompanies dreams.

If it is found that "silent speech" does occur, the phenomenon could be used as a measure of dream content and sleep talking.

The method of study is to make recordings during sleep from representative points in the laryngeal and upper articulatory musculature to determine the frequency and patterning of subvocal muscle activity.

College student volunteers are being selected on the basis of a sleep questionnaire which includes questions about dream recall and sleep talking.

Dr. Peter F. MacNeilage, Director of the University's Linguistics Laboratory, says that if "silent speech" is found to occur, it may be a useful index of neurological organization during sleep and a useful manifestation of dream content.

Scientists have found, in previous studies of sleep, that rapid eye movements (REM's) accompany most dreams. Thus careful studies of REM's have been used widely as overt measures of sleep and dream activity. This and other research information has aided sleep research immeasurably.

If "silent speech", or subvocal motor activity, can be determined and informative data on it collected, the conclusions from its analysis should add yet another significant step to the important research going on to bring useful understanding of what man's physiological and psychological needs and patterns are for sleep, in health and illness.

Fix-It Tip

● You can apply exterior paint by brush, roller or spray. Most homeowners use a brush.

● Paint windows, trim and doors before painting the body of the house. Paint wood porches and steps last.

● Always read the paint-can label carefully before starting to paint. It will contain specific directions for applying the paint.

Library Community Project Explained

Mrs. Corinne Crabb, librarian, demonstrated one of the talking books and some of the records available from the Texas Library Association at the meeting of interested parties in this community

ANDY R. CRAWFORD DIES

Andy Ray Crawford, 20, died at 7:30 a.m. Tuesday in a Houston hospital after a long illness.

He was a lifetime resident of Rockport and was attending Southwestern Assembly of God in Waxahatchie when he became ill.

Funeral services were held Wednesday in Marshall Funeral Home Chapel with burial in Rockport Cemetery.

Surviving are his parents Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Ray Crawford of Rockport; his paternal grandmother Mrs. Seburn Crawford and his maternal grandmother Mrs. Pearl Davis, both of Rockport.

project for the disadvantaged held at the Library, Wednesday, July 19th.

Represented at the meeting were several of the church groups, area groups, the Concerned Women of Arkansas County and some of the users of the materials available.

The record player is a simple one to operate and is constructed to facilitate operation by an individual who has a vision or physical handicap.

structured to facilitate operation by an individual who has a vision or physical handicap.

Mrs. Crabb explained that application for these instruments can be filled out and submitted to her and delivery can be made to rural routes or to the Library if the size of the instrument might present a problem.

The case or delivery packet for the records was also demonstrated and the simplicity of addressing for return pointed out. Records, the talking books, periodicals or large print books may be kept for four weeks.

It was pointed out that the initial objective of the plan is to secure the names of people who might benefit from the service. If there is any hesitancy in applying for the service because of the thought of disturbing others in the household, ear phones come with the sets and the talking books may be used without disturbing anyone.

In an attempt to get the program progressing, Mrs. Crabb felt that it would be helpful if some individuals headed groups or committees to work on the specific phases of the program.

Accordingly she asked Mrs. M.W. Cochran and Mrs. David Crooks to act as chairmen of a group of their selection to work on the "Golden Age Story Hours" to be held at the Library on Friday mornings at 10 o'clock a.m., beginning in September.

Replying to questions, the Librarian stated that it was hoped that groups could gather to learn more about the desires of those using the talking books, hear some book reviews, perhaps just visit and in some cases get information valuable to the handicapped in the field of cooking, or perhaps even some form of hand work they might do.

David Crooks will handle publicity for the general program, outside the field of the Library announcements.

Plans are being developed to provide transportation for individuals to the Friday morning Golden Age Hour, also delivery and pick-up of materials to and from the individuals home.

Mrs. J. Alfred McMurtry will coordinate the group from Key Allegro. Mrs. W.R. Schocke, Blas Ramirez and Mrs. P. Bunton offered immediate service in this capacity until more formal plans can be worked out.

Mr. and Mrs. James Brown, who were celebrating their 53rd anniversary on that date, visited the meeting briefly and Mrs. Brown spoke on how much the talking books had meant to her during a time when she had surgery and was unable to read at all because of bandaged eyes. Some one had kindly supplied her with a player and talking records. She was high in their praise pointing out that with nothing to do and the inability to do much of anything, how much this equipment had meant to her.

Many a girl is just attracted by the simple things in life—men.

Anyone interested in helping or knowing of anyone who might benefit from the use of this material should call the Library for further information. The telephone number is 729-2390.

Mrs. Crabb voiced a public thanks to Joe Sedlmeyer of the Coastal Electronic firm for his assistance and advice to her regarding the operation of the record player.

Jongleur
The word jongleur frequently appears in reference to folk music. A jongleur was an itinerant medieval musician whose activity was singing, playing instruments and doing acrobatics.

Persons of Spanish Heritage Compose 18 Percent of Texas Population

Nearly one in five (18 percent) residents of Texas is of Spanish heritage, according to a report from the 1970 census by the Bureau of the Census, U.S. Department of Commerce. It shows that of the State's 11,195,416 total population, 2,059,671 were of Spanish language or had a Spanish surname. The population of Spanish language is composed of (1) persons who reported Spanish as their mother tongue, that is, the language spoken in the home during childhood, and (2) all members of a household related to the head or wife reporting Spanish as mother tongue.

The census report, released by the Department's Social and Economic Statistics Administration, shows that 1,723,531 (84 percent) of Texas' population of Spanish heritage lived in urban areas. Among the 23 urbanized areas, the El Paso area had the greatest number 190,582 or 56 percent of the total population. However, Brownsville urbanized area with 45,115 persons of Spanish heritage and Laredo with 60,084 had the highest proportion, 86 percent in each.

Of the 336,140 rural population of Spanish heritage in Texas, 18 percent lived on farms.

Eighty-nine percent (1,840,214) of the State's Spanish heritage population was born in the United States; 563,877 were of foreign or mixed parentage (514,058 of these persons had one or both parents born in Mexico). Of the 219,457 foreign born persons of Spanish heritage, 193,143 were born in Mexico.

The median age of the Spanish heritage population was 19.3 years, compared with 28.5 years for the population of Texas as a whole.

Persons of Spanish heritage 25 and older averaged 7.2 years of completed schooling, compared with 11.6 years for the total population 25 and older. Among the 600,425 persons of Spanish heritage 16 and older who were employed in 1970, 8 percent held professional, technical, or similar jobs; 14 percent were clerical or kindred workers; 15 percent were in crafts; 16 percent were operatives (mostly machinery); and 14 percent were service workers other than private household.

Median income in 1969 of the 423,780 families of Spanish heritage amounted to $5,897 as compared with $8,490 for all families in the State.

Tabulations in the report show that 6 percent of the Spanish heritage families had incomes of $15,000 or more, while 17 percent of all Texas families were in this income bracket. At the opposite end of

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

Driscoll Foundation Children's Hospital has asked Aransas County Commissioners to pay 75 percent of the bills of county children who are patients there. Before financial commitment is made, the hospital board should answer questions arising from an article in the Corpus Christi Caller of Feb. 8, 1972.

It reported a study by Stanford Research Institute which had been investigating operations for 4 months. Criticisms made by the team were broad and sweeping, citing evidence of mismanagement by the governing board, trustees, and administration. There were six specific charges of gross inefficiency, adding that $300,000 a year alone could be saved without cutting any services to patients.

Also, the Caller reported that a full disclosure of the reports was declined by Driscoll officials, but that information contained in them would be released by six task forces named to work on specific problems. The complete restructuring of the foundation was to be completed June 30.

That date has passed and still the public has had no significant report from the committees as promised. Almost six months have gone and the remainder of the report is still secretive.

Before Aransas County supports any program at Driscoll, we taxpayers are entitled to some straight answers. What is the board doing to reorganize? What steps are being taken to alleviate the management and administrative problems that have shattered the image of the "charity" hospital? Why haven't they published a financial report?

As parents of a child who has been a patient at Driscoll several times, we know from our experiences that many changes must be made before we want our taxes supporting that bureaucracy.

Jerry and Frances Isles

(Editor's Note: Aransas County Judge John D. Wendell said the County Commissioners Court recently rejected a request from Driscoll Hospital requiring Aransas County to pay 75 per cent of the cost of medical care for any indigent patient from Aransas County. (This was reported in the Pilot). Judge Wendell explained that one of the main reasons for turning down the request was that comparable medical care can be and is being procured in other hospitals at lower costs.)

Those who think they're too smart to be governed by the laws of their land are over-estimating their smartness.

New Books In Library

The Aransas County Public Library has several new books on their shelves of current interest, one in particular is "Jonathan Livingston Seagull", which is being made into a movie; also "The Godfather Papers and Other Confessions" by Puzio. The Library has the new book "Washington PayOff" on order.
