State School Fund Plan To Aid Local Taxpayers

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock taxpayers, who often gripe about systematic property revaluation by the city-school tax office, may get a big reward from state government because the office has done such a good job.

A legislative committee has endorsed an idea to appropriate more state monies to school districts — including Lubbock — that accurately appraise taxable property.

The concept, intended to encourage school officials to upgrade their tax appraisal practices, could mean a bonus of up to $1.4 million for the Lubbock Independent School District.

"I'm in full agreement with the idea," state Rep. Froy Salinas, Democrat from Lubbock's eastside District 75-B, said.

"The Lubbock tax office does a good job of appraising property. Unfortunately, a lot of school districts across the state do a terrible job — and as a result, we in Lubbock end up paying more than our share in taxes.

"The (House committee's) recommendation would reward districts for appraising property accurately. We need that kind of incentive for tax equalization in Texas."

The House Ways and Means Committee voted Thursday to recommend such a carrot-and-stick approach in reimbursing school districts for revenue losses caused by the 1978 Tax Relief Amendment.

The state constitutional amendment, passed by voters in November, requires local districts to give each homeowner a $5,000 exemption — and more to the elderly and disabled; to tax agricultural land on its productivity, instead of its higher market value; and to provide other tax breaks. Some of those mandates still require enabling legislation.

State officials have promised to reimburse school districts for all or part of the tax-revenue losses caused by the amendment.

—In 1980, a district would be reimbursed dollar-for-dollar for its lost revenue.

—But after that, a district could receive as little as 90 cents on the dollar if its property appraisals for tax purposes stray from market value by more than the state average. On the other hand, school districts whose appraisals are at least as good as the statewide average would get more than their actual losses.

The state School Tax Assessment Practices Board last year found the Lubbock city-school tax office to be among the most accurate in the state. On the average, the office's appraisals of tangible property deviate from market value by only 3 percent, according to the study.

In contrast, the average school district in Texas was found to be under-evaluating its property by 33 percent.

The Lubbock tax office attributes its accuracy in part to the four-year cycle of revaluing real estate here. Regular reappraisals of homes and businesses keep the tax values close to market values, as mandated by the state constitution.

A computer printout shows that of the state's 1,100 school district, 253 are doing an above-average job of appraising property. There could be more such districts in the 1981 fiscal year when the carrot-and-stick treatment would begin.

Among the most accurate large districts are Waco, Austin, Amarillo, Corpus Christi, Wichita Falls, Kerrville, Lubbock, Borger, Galveston, Killeen, Hous-

READY FOR TALKS — Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, left, and President Carter prepare to resume their Mideast peace talks today at the White House. The first meeting between the two leaders Thursday night went better than expected, according to a statement by Begin, who earlier had vowed not to yield to U.S. pressure. (AP Laserphoto)

Begin Gives Boost To Mideast Hopes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter and Menachem Begin, publicly ignoring the Israeli prime minister's tough arrival statement, are casting their efforts at reviving stalled Mideast peace talks in a hopeful light.

After meeting alone for nearly two hours Thursday night, Carter and Begin got together again in mid-morning today, with the prime minister driving to the White House a few minutes ahead of schedule.

The two leaders also planned an afternoon session of crucial talks that could lead to a new Camp David summit, and agreed to a festive evening dinner with their wives at the start of the Jewish Sabbath.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance also arranged a luncheon meeting with the prime minister at the State Department.

The encouraging tone was in sharp contrast to the blunt thrust of Begin's vow, voiced upon arrival at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., that his government "cannot be pressed into signing a sham document" with Egypt.

Mincing no words, Begin said, "We are asked to sign documents which are in contradiction of the Camp David peace agreements (reached last September) and enabling our southern neighbor (Egypt) at any moment to declare the treaty null and void and to make war against Israel."

Later, though, declaring himself encouraged by his initial discussion with Carter at the White House, Begin told reporters, "There was not even one difficult moment."

As he entered Blair House, the official guest residence across Pennsylvania Avenue, Begin added, "I think it was one of the most important and constructive talks I ever had with the president."

Before their discussions in the White House Oval Office, Carter and Begin stood shoulder to shoulder and talked with muted optimism about the task before them.

"There may be ups and downs," Begin told reporters, "but when it comes to a time of crisis, we make another intellectual effort and we overcome the difficulties. Hopefully, this will be the case also during my several days in Washington."

Although Carter acknowledged "we still have some way to go," he declared: "We're determined to succeed. We'll be tenacious in our efforts ... hopefully leading to the conclusion of a comprehensive peace in the Middle East."

Before Begin's arrival, diplomatic sources made it clear the United States backs Egypt on issues blocking completion of a treaty.

Possible Abuse Of Tot Probed

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A 2-year-old boy, the apparent victim of child abuse, was listed in critical condition this morning at Health Sciences Center Hospital, suffering from multiple injuries, including a broken leg.

The Lubbock child was hospitalized about 5 p.m. Thursday by state child welfare worker Nora Stinson, who also obtained temporary custody of the child.

The boy, suffering from multiple injuries, was thought to have been beaten earlier in the week at his Emory Street home. Police say the live-in boyfriend of the child's mother is a suspect in the assault, but no arrests had been made by early today.

Mrs. Stinson, with the Texas Department of Human Resources, said the child was seen Monday without injuries. She said an anonymous phone call was received Thursday that an injured child was at a babysitter's apartment. When Mrs. Stinson arrived at the location, she rushed the tot to the hospital, she said.

The boy, who is taken to a babysitter each day while the mother is at work, reportedly was left at home Tuesday. The mother said she had come home about 5 p.m. Tuesday and found her boyfriend drunk and that he had not gone to work that day. She said she noticed bruises on the child's face, but did not discover his other injuries.

The sitter told police she attempted to ease the child's pain by walking him "all day" Wednesday, apparently unaware the little boy was suffering from a broken leg.

Mrs. Stinson said the child suffers from a brain disease — requiring a tube to be inserted to drain fluid — and cannot walk or talk. The case worker said the boy's injuries caused him to cry out in pain when he was touched or moved. He reportedly was suffering from injuries to the cheek, chin, scrotum, shoulder, back, thigh and foot, along with the broken leg.

Mrs. Stinson said the mother's boyfriend was thought to be 39 years old, and the child's 27-year-old mother, who has three other children, was being questioned by authorities today.

Vietnam Rejects Plea For Parley

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnam today rejected a Chinese proposal for talks to end their two-week-old war, calling it a "trick" to hide Peking's "war intensification." Sources here said Chinese troops meanwhile were closing a vise on the Vietnamese defenders of Lang Son.

In a televised address in Moscow today, Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev demanded that China immediately halt its invasion of Soviet-allied Vietnam and withdraw its troops "to the last soldier." Brezhnev threatened no specific action, however.

Intelligence sources in Bangkok and elsewhere have been expecting the war's major battle to be fought around Lang Son, a strategic crossroads town 80 miles northeast of Hanoi and 10 miles south of the Chinese border.

Bangkok sources said today the Chinese have virtually encircled Lang Son and cut off its highway arteries — Highway 4 running east-west and Highway 1a connecting the front-line town with Hanoi.

Voice of Vietnam radio said Vietnamese troops killed almost 2,500 Chinese soldiers in fighting Thursday around Lang Son. It was unclear whether the Chinese would try to seize the town.

Hanoi Radio said China's call for negotiations was "a trick" that Peking authorities are using "to fool the public and to cover up their war intensification.

"Chinese troops have been invading Vietnam, destroying villages and causing numerous crimes against the Vietnamese people. So what do they mean by proposing negotiations?"

The broadcast said the Vietnamese people are "far from being deceived" and demanded China withdraw all its troops from Vietnam and undertake to respect Vietnam's independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity.

Meanwhile, Japan's Kyodo news service quoted Chinese Deputy Premier Ku Mu as saying China's assault has been progressing smoothly and that Peking "will be able to pull out its troops as originally scheduled."But Ku said if Vietnam attacked China that "China will punish Vietnam again in a limited space and degree."

The Chinese offer to talk was made in a note Thursday delivered to the Vietnamese Embassy in Peking. It said it was repeating a proposal made Feb. 17 — the day Chinese troops invaded Vietnam — to "discuss the restoration of peace and tranquility along the border ... and to settle disputes concerning the boundary and territory."

Expressing regret that the Vietnamese "failed to make a positive response" to the earlier statement, the note proposed that vice ministers of foreign affairs from each government "meet as soon as possible ... for concrete negotiations on ending the current border conflict, ... any constructive measures that can ensure peace and tranquility along the border, and the proceed to settle the disputes between the two countries concerning the boundary and territory."

Hsinhua, the official Chinese news agency, said on Wednesday that the Chinese would withdraw if Vietnam withdrew from Cambodia.

Curbs Eased On Gasoline

By The Associated Press

The Department of Energy announced today it was easing price controls on gasoline — a move that will boost prices by a nickel a gallon in the coming year.

The action came as the United States and other industrialized nations agreed to try to cut their energy use by 5 percent to offset the impact of the Iranian revolution which has disrupted petroleum supplies.

The gasoline increase will result from implementation of an Energy Department rule called a "tilt" regulation, which will allow refiners to pass along more of their gasoline production costs to consumers.

Bill Webb, a spokesman for the department's Economic Regulatory Administration, said the average cost of a gallon of gasoline will rise by an estimated 4.9 cents in the coming year. Over the next two years, he said, the new rules will mean a total increase of 5.1 cents. That would be on top of the 9-cent-a-gallon boost expected by the Department of Energy because of price hikes by members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries and other factors. Webb said he did not know how much of the increase would show up at pumps immediately.

In Paris, the International Energy Association made the announcement of the planned voluntary consumption cutback by the 20-nation group, which includes most of the world's major industrialized countries. The association left it up to each nation to decide how to implement the cut, but Chairman Niels Ersboll of Denmark said: "We expect contributions from individual members to be similar."

The U.S. delegate to the conference said specific measures had not been decided on. In Washington, American energy officials have estimated that a reduction of 600,000 barrels a day — about 3 percent of consumption — would be achieved with relatively mild measures, including enforcement of the 55 mph speed limit, use of car pooling and mass transit and reduction of heating and air conditioning in buildings.

The United States had been urging fellow IEA members to adopt such a conservation plan, calling for a consumption cut of 5 percent to 7 percent.

Before the recent revolution, Iran produced 10 percent of the oil used by the non-communist world and 5 percent of that used in the United States.

There is some disagreement over the exact impact of the shutdown of Iranian oil production. Federal energy officials have said the situation caused a net loss of 2.5 million barrels of oil a day — 12.5 percent percent of American consumption.

But a study by the Library of Congress, released Thursday, said the actual decline has been only 240,000 barrels a day because of increased production by other oil-exporting nations.

U.S. oil companies already have announced restrictions on the amount of heating oil and gasoline they will supply to dealers.

Tornado Watch Issued For South Plains Area

A-J News Services

The season's first threat of severe weather popped up near noon today, prompting the National Weather Service to issue a tornado watch covering much of the South Plains.

The watch area extended 70 miles on either side of a line from 30 miles north of Childress to 50 miles south-southeast of Midland.

Weathermen warned that the threat of tornadoes, large hail and damaging thunderstorm winds is possible in the watch area from 2 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Earlier today, thunderstorms erupted in portions of Northwest Texas, western Oklahoma, eastern New Mexico and southeastern Colorado and the NWS had warned that some severe storms are possible on the South Plains this afternoon and tonight.

Thunderstorms were edging into the northwestern section of the South Plains early this afternoon, part of the system lashing the Panhandle and northeastern New Mexico.

A powerful upper level disturbance from the west is expected to sweep across Northwest Texas during the next 24 hours, bringing the chance of thunderstorms over Lubbock as early as this afternoon. Forecasts listed a 70 percent probability of rain today and 50 percent tonight. Light rain fell in the Lubbock area early today.

Scattered heavy thunderstorms were raking the Panhandle and neighboring portions of Colorado, Kansas and Oklahoma this morning. Near noon, the heaviest was in the Dalhart area, where pea-to marble-size hail was reported. The storm was moving north at 25 mph.

Other thunderstorms were reported in the Clovis, N.M., area and in the northern edge of the South Plains.

Winds in the Hub City area this afternoon were expected to swirl in a south to southwesterly direction at 20 to 30 mph with gusting, creating the likelihood of blowing dirt, the National Weather Service said.

Winds tonight should shift to a west to northwesterly direction and calm to 15 to 20 mph.

Lubbock temperatures today were expected to be balmy, with a high in the low 70s forecast, but as the western disturbance infiltrates Texas, cooling conditions are predicted. The mercury should drop to the mid 30s here tonight, the NWS said, and rise to the low 60s Saturday.

High temperatures in the South Plains early next week may hover in the 50s before warming to the low 60s by Tuesday, said a NWS spokesman this morning.

Precipitation generally measuring about a quarter of an inch is expected from the South Plains thunderstorms today, but amounts in spots could reach near an inch, weather reports said. The Royal Gifts Branded As Influence-Buying

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Silk rugs, Persian carpets, gold coins, and prostitutes were among the gifts used by former Iranian ambassador Ardeshir Zahedi to buy influence with members of Congress and the news media, a Dallas newspaper reported today.

A copyright article in The Dallas Morning News said at least 20 senators and dozens of representatives and reporters received gifts such as $20,000 rugs, boxes of gold coins and $200 cans of caviar.

Sources said the gifts arrived at the Iranian embassy about once a week, stamped with the seal of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, and were delivered to the homes of congressmen and reporters. More gifts were sent to the Lubbock home of the shah's son, Crown Prince Reza, for further distribution.

The News quoted a source as saying there were instructions not to restrict the cost of the gifts and that they went to people considered unfriendly to the shah as well as supporters.

"They could spend as much as they could for any purpose," the source said, "including buying people, bribing people.

"Zahedi did not restrict himself in corrupting people. Zahedi was prepared to make friends any way possible."

Texas Man Raps Beef Import Plan

HEREFORD (UPI) — A representative of the American Agriculture Movement has accused President Carter of being "irresponsible" in his decision to remove beef import quotas, but a cattle industry spokesman is grateful Carter gave advance notice.

Jerome Friemel of Hereford said Carter announced in the Federal Register Monday his plan to suspend quotas because domestic production has been unable to meet domestic demands for beef.

American beef production is near an all-time low.

Carter invoked his powers to suspend a 1.13 billion pound import quota and allow an aggregate of 1.57 billion pounds to be imported this year.

"We feel that (Carter's) action is very irresponsible," Friemel said. "The president has made promises over and over that he would not do this very thing. The Secretary of Agriculture (Bob Bergland) has made the same statements over and over," the AAM spokesman said.

"I believe this action further takes away from the credibility of the president and the Secretary of Agriculture," he concluded.

Friemel also charged the president's action would spur inflation because of its negative effect on the nation's balance of trade deficit.

But Lynn Heinze, communications director for the Texas Cattle Feeders Association in Amarillo, said his industry does not consider Carter's proclamation a broken promise.

Heinze said the TCFA was shocked initially by the move but analyzed the situation and realized the president was merely taking steps he had outlined in December. Heinze said the cattle industry was grateful for the advance notice.

"We'd just as soon know up front (about additional imports) rather than have an adjustment later in the year," Heinze said.

An "adjustment" announced without warning last June telegraphed panic through the livestock market and precipitated a $10 to $12 per hundredweight price slump within a week, Heinze said.

An additional 200 million pounds of beef imports that resulted may have amounted to only one "Big Mac" per person, he said, "but it's the psychology of that Big Mac ... that we hope will not be repeated in 1979."

Heinze stressed extra beef imports would not upset the market price structure since they were announced earlier.

Delegation Wants More Minorities

WASHINGTON (AP) — A delegation that wants more minority hiring by members of Congress says a meeting with House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill "is only round one" and "the battle is on."

The Revitalization Corps met with O'Neill after a confrontation with Capitol police en route to the speaker's office without an appointment. O'Neill then agreed to meet with the group, whose spokesman later said: "His basic reaction was that the black chauffeur he has is a good chauffeur."

Byrd To Perform

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Senate Majorit Leader Robert Byrd is wrestling with a problem that has nothing to do with inflation, energy policy or foreign affairs.

BYRD

The West Virginia Democrat has to decide what tunes to play on his fiddle when he appears Saturday night on a nationally televised edition of the Grand Ole Opry.

Byrd, a fiddler since childhood, will be a guest on a special Public Broadcasting Service telecast of the 53-year-old country music show.

"I haven't decided what to play," he said in a telephone interview from his Washington home. But he said it's likely that "Turkey in the Straw," "Red Bird" or "Will the Circle Be Unbroken?" will be among the choices.

Talmadge Returns

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Herman Talmadge rose time and again to acknowledge the tributes of his colleagues. The last time he appeared on the Seante floor, he'd had trouble standing at all.

TALMADGE

Talmadge returned to the Senate on Thursday after five weeks of treatment for alcohol abuse.

"I am overwhelmed by the warm, generous and eloquent remarks ... I shall always cherish your friendship," the 65-year-old Georgia Democrat said after nearly a score of senators offered public greeting.

The scene was in poignant contrast to his last appearance, on opening day of the 96th Congress, when he had to steady himself at each passing desk as he walked down the aisle while others whispered.

Discussing his five weeks of hospitalization in Maryland and California for alcohol rehabilitation, Talmadge said: "The most difficult decision I've ever had to make in my life was to go out there to the hospital. But now I'm feeling wonderful. I've worked hard all of my life, and I'm going to continue to work hard."

Talmadge, who still faces Senate and federal grand jury probes into his official finances, insists he will run for re-election in 1980.

Asner Looks Part

WASHINGTON (AP) — Actor Ed Asner is everyone's city editor; he might even be able to ride roughshod over the Washington press corps.

ASNER

Asner, the star of the "The Lou Grant Show" in which he plays the city editor of the mythical "Los Angeles Tribune," appeared Thursday at a National Press Club luncheon, where a number of reporters said he looked like their first city editor.

Asner said he thought he looked like a city editor because he was "bald, had the bulk, and a boss' stance. But then I could also be the foreman of a factory or the owner of a used-car dealership. It's that bossist attitude."

The actor also confessed he once really was a newspaper reporter.

He held up a yellowed, wrinkled copy of the Wyandotte High School Pantograph in Kansas City, Kan., and read his contribution to the feature page: a column called "The Question Box," in which years ago he asked, "What do you want for graduation and what do you think you'll get?"

Trudeau Fires Back

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau, his tongue as sharp as ever, returned to the House of Commons after an unexplained five-day absence and immediately ran into flak. He gave flak right back.

Welcoming Trudeau, Conservative Member of Parliament John Crosbie said, "I hope he's had a lift while he was away from the House for the last week and that his spirits are improved."

Trudeau shot back that he never has such concerns about Crosbie because Crosbie "always has his spirits with him."

GE Opposes Show

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A brief reference to a new movie about a potential disaster at a nuclear power plant is not brief enough for General Electric Corp., which says it withdrew its sponsorship of a Barbara Walters television special because of it.

General Electric, which has sponsored Miss Walters' specials since 1976, said it is withdrawing because the show "contains material that could cause undue public concern about nuclear power."

In the show, scheduled for airing March 13 on ABC, Miss Walters interviews Jane Fonda, who stars in the soon-to-be released film "The China Syndrome." Miss Walters introduces Miss Fonda by saying she plays "a television reporter trying to expose an accident at a nuclear plant."

In a statement, GE said, "this is an issue of public controversy and as a supplier of nuclear power equipment, it would be inappropriate for General Electric to sponsor the program."

Tennis Star Miffed

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Tennis star Bjorn Borg is so angry that Swedish newspapers printed stories about a death threat against him that he won't play in his home country any more this year, his manager says.

Several Swedish news organizations Thursday received a letter purporting to be from the Red Brigades that said the Italian terrorist gang had "sentenced him (Borg) to death."

Borg, who has been involved in several clashes with the Swedish media over the years, shrugged off the threat when informed about it, but became upset when he saw stories about the threat in Swedish newspapers, said his manager, Lennart Bergelin.

It Pays To Advertise

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The owners of the Texas Best Bar-B-Que No. 2 didn't like it at all, so they sued.

The Lighter Side Of Today's News

And on Thursday, it was agreed they would receive $14,750 in cash and $966.60 in free advertising because the eatery was listed in the 1977 Yellow Pages under "kennels."

The owners — William Chapman, who has since sold his interest, and Ralph Tanasoca — sued Southwestern Bell and Gulf Printing Co. of Houston for $200,000, saying the incorrect listing was libelous and damaging to their business.

A deposition filed by a telephone company official said the error was one of 159 made in that year's Yellow Pages.

The settlement was reached as the case was going to trial.

Gunman Steals Sandwich

EAST ROCKAWAY, N.Y. (UPI) — A gunman held up two supermarket employees outside a bank Thursday and made off with a chicken sandwich.

Detectives said the robber apparently believed that Howard Mayer, 64, and Jeffrey Weinstein, 20, were about to make a large deposit of receipts from a Food Town store in Island Park, N.Y.

When the two men pulled their car into the parking lot outside the National Bank of North America in East Rockaway, the robber shoved a gun through a window and grabbed a paper bag from the front seat.

Police said the bag contained nothing more than a chicken sandwich Mayer had brought for his lunch.

Detectives said one of the supermarket employees was carrying $100 which was to be converted into small change at the bank. When the incident was over, he still had the money.

SIGNS AGREEMENT — U.S. Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal smiled as he initialed an agreement settling a long-standing claims dispute between the United States and China today at Peking airport. Blumenthal's Chinese counterpart, Hang Ching-fu, right, initialed the agreement for China. (AP Laserphoto)

U.S., China Announce Settlement Of Dispute

SHANGHAI, China (UPI) — China agreed today to pay the United States $80.5 million in cash over the next six years to settle a long-standing claims dispute and place the two nations on the brink of a historic trade arrangement.

Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal announced today that every American with a formal claim against China would receive 41 cents on the dollar, far above any previous such arrangement with other communist nations.

The agreement to unfreeze assets seized after the communist revolution was initialed by Blumenthal and Chinese Finance Minister Chang Ching-fu just minutes before the U.S. delegation left Peking for Shanghai.

Blumenthal had spent four grueling days in the Chinese capital negotiating the deal while at the same time presenting the U.S. position on the China-Vietnam War.

The initialing ceremony took place today in an anteroom of the Peking civil airport.

The claims-assets issue was considered the key stumbling bloc in U.S.-China trade relations. If it had not been resolved, no further progress on trade expansion could have been made.

Later in Shanghai, Blumenthal said resolving the issue was his "first priority."

The settlement was "good and fair for both sides and we can be very satisfied with it," he said during an impromptu news conference inside a huge bicycle factory he was visiting.

Blumenthal was authorized to sign the agreement in a cable from Zbiginew Brzezinski, chairman of the National Security Council, after President Carter had personally reviewed the settlement.

The issue involved $196.8 million in U.S. property which was seized by China in 1949. In retalitation, the U.S. blocked the release of $80.5 million in Chinese bank deposits and securities in the United States.

Officials said 380 American corporations and individuals had filed claims against the Chinese.

The cable from Brzezinski read: "The president authorizes you to proceed and initial the settlement. Congratulations."

Here is what the agreement will accomplish.

—The Chinese have agreed to pay the United States $30 million on Oct. 1 of this year and additional installments of about $10 million on each Oct. 1 thereafter through 1984.

—In return, the United States will release the $80.5 million in blocked Chinese assets. It is up to China to recover as much of that amount as it can. Some of the blocked assets are unavailable because they are being held in third countries.

—Each American claimant will receive a minimum of $1,000. For every additional $1,000 they would receive $410. Officials said the Chinese would pay the money to the U.S. Treasury, but it has not yet been decided how to distribute the funds to the claimants.

Carter's Tax Proposal To Be Modified To Fit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats on the House Ways and Means Committee are willing to keep President Carter's proposed wage-insurance tax credit alive a little longer. But if it becomes law, he may not recognize it.

Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the committee, said Democrats have agreed informally to make room in the budget for $2.5 billion worth of the tax credit, a key part of Carter's fight against inflation.

But that agreement "is in no way a commitment" to support wage insurance if it ever comes to a vote, Ullman told reporters after committee Democrats met Thursday.

And, he added, despite sharply escalating estimates of the cost of an effective wage insurance, "it would be ill-advised to go beyond $2.5 billion."

This could mean that even if the House and Senate approve wage insurance, it would have a far less impact on inflation than the administration envisions.

The informal decision of the Ways and Means Democrats is identical to that reached Wednesday by the Senate Finance Committee.

The judgment, which the Ways and Means panel is expected to approve formally next week, means only that the two tax-writing committees think next year's budget should accommodate $2.5 billion worth of wage insurance if Congress wants to enact the program.

More Indictments Issued In Drug Probe

EL PASO (AP) — Three more persons have been indicted by a federal grand jury probing narcotics trafficking and other alleged crimes.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Mike McDonald said Thursday the three were named in a sealed indictment handed down earlier in the week.

The federal grand jury is conducting a wide-ranging investigation into narcotics trafficking, prostitution and other areas. It is an outgrowth of the shooting death last December of defense attorney Lee Chagra, whose specialty was defending persons charged with narcotics-related offenses.

The special agent in charge of the FBI office in El Paso has warned local businessmen who may be involved on the fringes of narcotics traffic to come forward now if they expect any help.

"We have found in this area that some of our finer businessmen have been corrupted by some of the young ladies that they have access to around here," Special Agent O. Leon Dobbs said. "They've been placed in an extortion-demand situation. All of a sudden, they're in and they're forced to give financing and other things."

Dobbs called for such persons to come forth in a speech he gave Wednesday to an El Paso civic group.

"It was more or less a pitch to businessmen who had somehow got corrupted, either with women, money or other things, to assess their situation and let us know about it," he said.

Dobbs said the implication that cooperative witnesses would be dealt with sympathetically is correct.

Dobbs said cooperation from citizens corrupted by organized crime would be a short-cut for his agents.

"I made the point that in order to convict a prominent businessman, I would have to run (interrogate) 25 'mules' — people involved in drugs at the lowest level — whereas if I had the witnesses, upstanding businessmen...

"We're going to make an example of a few investors.

"I have encouraged them to come to me with their attorney...hopefully it will not be one of the attorneys involved in the group...they need an attorney who can represent them and not themselves.

"We have found in our cases that one attorney here tries to represent all the people charged in dope. We have definitely found a high conflict of interest."

Dobbs did not identify the lawyer.

He said the FBI is also actively looking into alleged political corruption regarding the federal probes.

Mayor Issues Police Ultimatum

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Mayor Ernest Morial, armed with a new court ruling that a strike by city police is illegal, says officers could lose fringe and pension benefits if the union doesn' accept what he called the city's "final, final offer."

There was no immediate response from the Teamsters union-affiliated Police Association of Louisiana, but the union scheduled a meeting at 8 tonight to discuss Morial's ultimatum.

Morial said Thursday that the city's legal authority to offer amnest was running out and set a deadline of 7 p.m. today for a response.

The strike by about 1,000 of the city's 1,514 police, which disrupted the city's Mardi Gras celebrations this week, entered its third week today with no resumption of negotiations scheduled.

Earlier Thursday, the state's 4th Circuit Court of Appeal upheld a lower court's finding that the police strike was illegal.

"More swiftly and surely than any other, a strike by law enforecment officers takes law enforcement and consequently the rule of law itself from our society," the appellate court said.

The union said it will appeal the ruling to the state Supreme Court.

Morial said that if the city's latest proposal is rejected, "the city will be compelled to reassess its situation in the light of requirements of the civil service rules and state law."

The mayor said a vote must be taken swiftly because the New Orleans Civil Service Commission and the state retirement commission had asked for status reports on absent employees. Unless the striking officers return to work quickly, the mayor said, their records may show a break in service.

"Such a break in service could cost individual officers pension and fringe benefits — without any authority in the city to remedy that situation later," he said.

Within hours after the mayor issued his statement, one group of union firefighters voted to accept a new contract replacing a pact that expires at midnight tonight. Union President Clarence Perez said Thursday's vote was 226-225 in favor, and added that he expected narrow ratification when the remaining 350 union firemen vote tonight.

Subcommittee Formed To Investigate Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the House ethics committee is promising its investigation of convicted Rep. Charles Diggs will be "expeditiously handled" following a House decision brushing aside a move to expel the Michigan Democrat.

Rep. Charles Bennett, D-Fla., told the House Thursday a two-member subcommittee already has been established to look into Diggs' case, and he expects an investigation can be completed within 60 days.

The committee presumably has a number of recommendations it could make to the full House, ranging from taking no action against Diggs to calling for his expulsion.

Bennett offered his assurances during a debate in which the House, in a victory for the Democratic leadership, decided to refer Diggs' case to the ethics committee.

Rep. Parren Mitchell, D-Md., arguing against expelling Diggs, said to do so would leave his Michigan constituents without voting representation in the House.

In addition, House Democratic Leader James Wright warned that the "total irretrievable severity" of ousting Diggs may wind up depriving him of his rights because his convictions may be overturned on appeal.

Greens Named In Warrants

BOSTON (AP) — Arrest warrants have been reinstated for a couple who failed to return their 3-year-old boy to the United States for leukemia treatment.

Arrest warrants for Gerald and Diana Green, parents of Chad Green, were reinstated Thursday. Two months ago they left Massachusetts rather than obey a court order forbidding them to give their son Laetrile, vitamins or enzymes as part of his treatment.

The Greens took their son to a Laetrile clinic in Tijuana, Mexico.

"The (arrest) warrants were held up for two weeks to allow the Greens a chance to come back voluntarily, but they did not," said Peter Lucas, a spokesman for the state attorney general. "So now Judge (Guy) Volterra's bench warrants stand."

The warrants mean that the Greens could be arrested if they try to cross the border into the United States.

Ernesto Contreras, who runs the Mexico Laetrile clinic, said he spoke to the Greens on Thursday.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Based On Past Experience

POLLSTER GEORGE Gallup Sr. says one of the great gulfs between the silent majority and the garrulous government elite is that the former is "more results oriented."

This may be why Americans appear ahead of academics, media and politicians when it comes to perceiving public issues.

"To be 'results oriented,' one must rely in part on evidence and experience as the basis of judgment," Gallup explains in the current issue of Enterprise, journal of the National Association of Manufacturers.

Business, to stay in business, must also be results oriented, i.e., guided by evidence and experiences of the past and present as the basis for shaping the future.

JEFFREY ST. John, Mutual network broadcaster and Enterprise contributor, notes that this concept obviously is neither novel nor new.

Patrick Henry invoked evidence and experience in his famous "Give Me Liberty or Give Me Death" speech 204 years ago in arguing for independence:

"I have but one lamp by which my feet are guided, and that is the lamp of experience. I know no way of judging the future but by judging the past."

Recently, many businessmen were surprised, says St. John, to discover that a growing majority of American consumers perceive the connection between the costs of government regulation of business and the rising costs they must pay in the end for goods and services.

"Consumers, of course, based this on the accumulated hard evidence and experience with inflation by legislation," he writes. "Their conclusion was drawn despite the persistent assertion of many in government...that rising consumer costs were the product of rapacious (consumer) greed."

HERE BUSINESS can make appeal to the evidence and experience of history itself.

As Professor Donald Dozer notes in History As Force (Institute for Humane Studies), an appeal to the evidence and experience of history is an appeal to reason.

"Only mature individuals," he writes, "are able to particularize about the past, to see the sequences and consequences in history of this relatedness between the past and the present that makes us adults."

Lacking it, we remain half men or children and our actions both as individuals and as members of society not only are short-range but impulsive and blundering.

"YOU MENTIONED in your Feb. 23 column," Jim Goodwin, public relations manager for Southwestern Bell here, writes, "Why, in the Lubbock directory, does the Area Code map show Amarillo and not Lubbock in the Area Code 806 division?"

He proceeds to explain:

"The answer is for the same reason we show Sweetwater in the 915 Area Code. Amarillo and Sweetwater are 'toll sectional centers' for the 806 and 915 Area Codes, respectively.

"That means long distance calls are switched through those locations when a direct path isn't available between a city in the Area Code and the distant location.

"I guess there's no rule that says we must do it that way but that's one logical way to do it."

Well, Jim—and Bob and Chet—I'm glad to get that explanation but, in all candor, I'll have to say it'd seem more logical if your directory maps would show the Division headquarters city, which in Area Code 806 is Lubbock.

Lubbock, Goodwin notes, "is the first multi-office city to be served in total by three innovations: computerized switching, pushbutton telephones and Zero-plus dialing. So, we haven't ignored Lubbock completely."

True. But how's about putting us on the map so's other folks won't be ignorant about us?

It won't really cost you anything and it might even help your public relations in the biggest city in Area Code 806.

JOHN C. SAWHILL, was Federal Energy Administrator under President Nixon during the Arab oil embargo. He is still singing the tired refrain that a 15-cent to 25-cent per gallon tax on gasoline is what we need to convince Americans there is an "energy crisis."

The crisis, now as then, is in political leadership to develop all forms of energy domestically and to preserve and protect our friends abroad such as was the deposed shah of Iran, who was selling us oil at $13 instead of the $20 being threatened by his deposers.

There is no physical shortage of energy; the shortage is in political and economic leadership—and that won't be solved by levying heavier taxes.

Carter Can't Keep It In Neutral

WASHINGTON—Let us put it in the plainest language. The Battle of Asia is about to join between the two Communist superpowers, China and Russia, with their puppet-proxies, Cambodia and a united Vietnam already engaged as advance elements.

The question for Americans is an old one, but being raised more on the opposite side of the earth than in the past. Have we got the gumption, the diplomatic skills, the military police power to stay neutral?

We blundered into both phases of the Battle for Europe during this century. In that theater of war beyond the Atlantic, the big contestants for supremacy were Germany and France in 1914 and again in 1939.

British foreign policy for a century has been one called "balance of power," which means a reliance on allies.

WHEN BRITAIN went to war in the teen-age century, every trick of the international game was used to draw the U.S. into the conflict, and the same happened years later.

First Woodrow Wilson and then Franklin Roosevelt vowed to the American people to remain neutral. It could have been done by forbidding trade and business deals with the belligerents, but the pressure of the munitions industries and the Wall Street bankers proved an invisible but irresistible pressure on Congress.

However, Congress did not lead us into war. Our battle for Europe was joined by our Presidents, Wilson and Roosevelt, for reasons of vanity and fancied prestige.

IT SEEMS necessary to review the battle of Europe because Roosevelt behaved essentially as Wilson had, also, he sought world power as certainly as the Kaiser, Hitler and Stalin sought it, but by methods that hopefully would be acceptable to the American people.

We stand now to view the joining of the battle of Asia, and it will be remarkable if President Carter has learned enough from observation of history to avoid Wilson-Roosevelt errors, not identical ones, but similar.

Carter will soon be under pressure to take sides between China and Russia, and to join the death dance of nations where the music never ceases to play.

Carter is pressed by the business world to open wide the trade-gates with China. Chinese Vice Premier Teng's chief accomplishment in his recent trip was to cement the "normalization" ties, and make arrangements to receive U.S. machinery.

Carter will be solicited to become an ally, only this time it is not the charming, brilliant, historical-minded Winston who is the suitor, but Brezhnev. He must bargain with the Soviet Union on limitation of strategic arms (SALT). It will be hard for him to withstand the implied threats of annihilation which a SALT failure can raise.

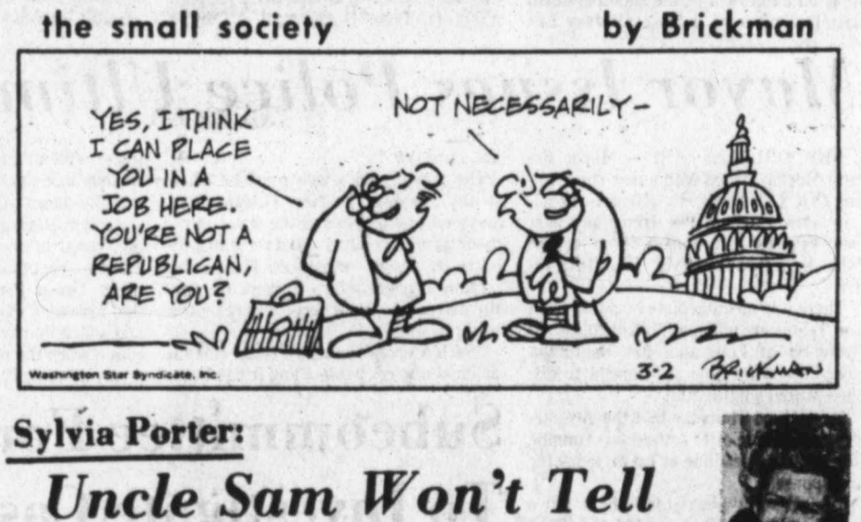

The battle for Asia differs from the battle of Europe in many ways, one of which is that we have no sentimental ties to draw us toward either China or Russia.

It is entirely possible to reject each of them as trading partners, treaty partners, and to avoid fighting either of them while they are fighting one another.

But it requires surpassing wisdom to pull this off. It requires a Presidential administration that is internally united and strong.

Americans can only watch the coming battle of Asia here in the late '70s with trepidation. For the third time in the 20th century we stand in danger of joining other people's wars, in which we have no legitimate stake.

Uncle Sam Won't Tell You 'All' About Taxes

(Ninth of 11 columns)

YOU'RE NO more than normal if your final thought as you mail your return is, "What are the odds on my return being audited?" The reassuring answer: statistically, very small.

According to latest IRS figures, your chances of having a field or office audit depend on your type of return and the total income you show. Specifically:

If you do not have business income, for every 100 returns filed, the odds on an audit are as follows:

Form 1040, using standard deduction—0.68 percent.

Under $10,000, itemizing deductions—3.45 percent.

$10,000 and under $50,000—2.40 percent.

$50,000 and over—11.35 percent.

IF YOU do have business income, your odds are:

Under $10,000—3.12 percent.

$10,000 and under $30,000—2.07 percent.

$30,000 or over—7.36 percent.

Your chances of being audited also depend on where you live. In Manhattan, reports the Research Institute of America, 3.85 percent of the returns filed are audited; in San Francisco, the proportion drops to 2.52 percent; in New Orleans, to 1.64 percent.

But even if your return is plucked for examination, that does not mean you have to pay additional taxes. If you have filed a fully supported return, you generally will have only the annoyance and aggravation of having to back up your figures.

IF YOU disagree with an IRS agent, you no longer have a two-step appeal procedure. Formerly, you could appeal the added tax assessment to a district conference—an informal get-together to try to settle the dispute. Then you could appeal to the Appellate Division of IRS for a second opportunity to argue your case.

Now you have only one chance to argue your case—on appeal to the Appellate Division—less informal than the district conference. The IRS contends this eliminates duplication and permits the first hearing before an agent with full settlement authority.

You might feel, though, that a one-shot chance to argue is rarely as good as a two-shot.

Just what determines why the IRS computer picks returns for audits is a closely guarded secret—but a major factor undoubtedly is what IRS considers to be an excessive itemized deduction.

THUS, THE following national averages of itemized deductions in various categories may be an extraordinarily valuable guideline for you. Based on '76 returns (latest available), here are average deductions claimed, based on adjusted gross income in thousands of dollars.

For incomes of $9,000 to $10,000, the average return in 1976 showed $896 in medical deductions, $958 in taxes, $441 in contributions and $1,268 in interest (including mortgage); for incomes of $10,000 to $15,000—$855 in medical expenses, $1,129 in taxes, $414 in contributions, $1,378 interest; for incomes of $15,000 to $20,000—$586 in medical expenses, $1,503 in taxes, $472 in contributions and $1,690 interest; for incomes of $20,000 to $25,000—$487 in medical expenses, $1,869 in taxes, $542 in contributions, $1,836 interest.

For incomes of $25,000 to $30,000—the average return showed $442 in medical expenses, $2,262 in taxes, $646 in contributions, $1,977 in interest (including mortgage); for incomes of $30,000 to $50,000—$523 in medical expenses, $3,050 in taxes, $939 in contributions, $2,366 in interest; for incomes of $50,000 to $100,000—$700 in medical expenses, $5,383 in taxes, $2,015 in contributions, $3,954 in interest; and for incomes of $100,000 and up—$1,095 in medical expenses, $13,296 in taxes, $9,902 in contributions and $9,249 in interest.

THESE, IT MUST be emphasized, are strictly national averages, resulting from examination of tax returns. They are not official—as are the IRS sales tax tables which tell you how much you can deduct for sales taxes, no matter what you actually paid in sales taxes.

You cannot claim these averages as "your" deductions. You can deduct only the amounts that you actually spent for medical expenses, taxes, contributions, interest—home mortgage alone and total interest.

Note: Average deductions also vary from state to state. The IRS computations disclose, for instance, that New Yorkers deduct higher average taxes than California residents, while California residents deduct higher average interest than New Yorkers.

But the national averages serve a fundamental purpose inherent in the totals themselves.

IF YOU ARE way below the average for deductions in your income category, are you overlooking deductions to which you are entitled? Are you being lazy, cheating yourself merely by not checking your records?

On the other hand, if you are way above the average for deductions in your income category, are you prepared to back up your claims with convincing proof, should your outsized deductions flag the IRS agent to audit your return?

Are you asking for "trouble" just by claiming totals that stand out as unusual?

James J. Kilpatrick:

No Business Like Snow Business

SCRABBLE, VA.—More than a week has passed since the Great Snow of '79 fell upon us. The event thus has slipped into the classification of stale news, but the snow is worth writing about nonetheless. There were lessons here, and they are worth remembering.

Ordinarily, those of us in the Washington area have to apologize for our snows. Compared to the blizzards of Nebraska, the travails of Buffalo and the disasters of Chicago, our worst winter ills are the merest sniffles.

In the usual course of events, we endure a few hours of snarled traffic; then the slush turns to worse slush and that's it.

The snow that began falling on Sunday afternoon, Feb. 18th was something else entirely. This was a snow to make a man quietly proud, to mark births and deaths by.

IT STARTED as a powdery mist. By mid-afternoon two or three inches had accumulated on top of the six inches February already had delivered. In early evening the storm picked up speed and muscle.

At some point past midnight, this snow decided to go for a record. Peering outside, one saw great waterfalls of snow, high curtains of snow; the heavens were one vast flour sifter turning at top speed. By late morning on Monday, it had stopped.

In Washington, the snow was reckoned officially at 18.7 inches. Here in the Blue Ridge Mountains, our yardstick said 21 inches. Before dawn Monday morning the wind began gusting at 20 to 25 mph.

We awoke to feast upon massive scallops of whipped cream, towering dunes of crisp meringue, rolls of hay iced like angel food cakes. A five-foot drift, 50-feet long, made the driveway impassable. For the first time in 12 years, we were literally snowed in.

IN WASHINGTON, city dwellers saw the best and worst of human nature. Ordinarily Washingtonians communicate as stiffly as so many strangers in an elevator. Now the anonymity receded.

In the common exhilaration, human beings reached out—however briefly—to touch other human beings. Members of the American Agricultural Movement, who had been making the city's life miserable with their tractorcades of protest, suddenly became heroes.

They put their great waddling machines to work. It was a good day. After night fell, reports of looting began to sift in, soot staining the purity of the snow, but there were not so many of these in Washington.

Here in the mountains we learned old lessons all over again—which, come to think about it, is what one usually does with old lessons. We absorbed the beauty and the power of nature; we wondered at the awesome energy of a storm.

In our isolation we learned the meaning of good conversation, loving companionship.

MAINLY, THE Great Snow of '79 taught us the importance of so much that surrounds us. A yardstick that measures snowfall measures values also. To be effectively prevented from doing many things is to discover how many things do not need to be done.

At the very least it is to discover how many things do not need to be done right now. A vast deal of busywork that engages us can be put off.

What is important? It is important to thrust through banks of snow to fill the bird feeders. It is important to keep firewood dry lest the electric power go out. Sooner or later it will be important to dig ourselves out to Rudisill's Mill Road and thence to the highways beyond. But not right now.

For now, it suffices to talk a while, to be silent for a while, to see images in licking flames and darkening embers. We learn from the squabbling sparrows, the grosbeaks, cardinals, bluejays, juncoes, doves, quail, finches, starlings.

THEY FLUTTER about the feeding stations like flung confetti at a winter party, scraps of colored paper on a white and brown collage.

We are as dependent as the birds and as independent as they also; we depend, of course, upon all the unknown hands that somewhere are performing the hard, essential work of clearing roads and restoring power.

But to turn inward to one's own resources is to discover a kind of curious freedom. For a little while, no outside commitments, no distant compulsions, can break through the drifted snow.

By ourselves, in and of ourselves, we survive. It is not a bad reflection for a snowbound afternoon.

So They Say...

A boy asked his girlfriend if she thought her father really disapproved of their getting married.

"Well, I told Dad you couldn't live without me," said the girl, "and he offered to pay your funeral expenses."

At last I've gotten the cookout procedure down to a science—if I can just work the bugs out of it.

Army Not Convinced Man Served In War

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Travis Dykes says he's positive he served in the Army during World War II and should be collecting veterans benefits. He's even tried hypnosis to prove it.

So far, the Army isn't buying his story.

Dykes, 53, and a Red Cross worker who is helping him have tried the FBI, the Veterans and Social Security administrations and even hypnosis in an effort to unravel the mystery. So far, however, it has all been to little avail.

Because of a 1973 fire that destroyed millions of files, researchers at the Military Personnel Records Center in St. Louis cannot find service records for Dykes.

Another fire left his memory blank for eight years, says Dykes, who is unemployed and uneducated and lives in a public housing project here on a $255 monthly Social Security pension.

Dykes says he was left for dead after a load of ammunition exploded in a South Pacific harbor in 1944. He says he sat up in the morgue and started talking, so he was sent home, still in a daze and in serious condition. He came to eight years later in Cleveland, remembering his name, his birthday and his childhood, but nothing since the war.

He remembers the explosion, though.

"We had unloaded the whole convoy, 210 ships," Dykes recalled. "The last one, there was an explosion. You've never seen such an explosion — the sea was just red."

Charles Moyd, the Red Cross worker, believed the story.

"Eventually, I think we'll find some kind of record," says Moyd, who's spent nearly a year trying to track down evidence of Dykes' service. "Or we'll find out he's living in a world of fantasy, which is not unheard of."

So far, Dykes and Moyd have had no luck with various federal agencies or with people who might have known Dykes in the mid-'40s.

They had a Red Cross representative in Fort Valley, Ga. — from where Dykes says he was drafted in 1943 — check birth, death and draft records. So far she's found nothing, Moyd says.

Dykes says he remembers his parents, but they're dead, and his 12 brothers and sisters, most of them dead, too. He says he's not close to most of his surviving siblings, and the sister he is closest to can't verify his story because she was away from home during the war.

After drawing a few more blanks, Moyd turned to Dr. U. Walter Geertz, a clinical psychologist. Geertz said he hypnotized Dykes and took him back in his memory to the explosion.

"He was again in the explosion and I had him read the numbers off his dog tags," Geertz said, adding that Dykes also recalled bits and pieces about his company.

The tag numbers didn't help prove Dykes' assertions, but the information fleshed out his story, Moyd said. He told the psychologist he was drafted in Fort Valley and sent to Fort Bennning, Ga., and Beaumont, Texas, before traveling to an outpost in the South Pacific, possibly Midway Island.

"He was actually in a labor group, and wherever he was they called for volunteers to load ammo on ships," Moyd said. "During the loading there apparently was an explosion. His next recollection was sitting up in a room with a lot of bodies stretched out."

Something as simple as a letter from Dykes during the war with a complete military address could be the key, Moyd said.

"One possible avenue is to check Army records for mention of the explosion, Moyd said, adding, "If we can establish that his company was at the location of that explosion, we're home free."

Spring Planting Starts Off Slow Due To Cold

COLLEGE STATION (UPI) — Spring planting in South Texas is off to a slow start due to cool soil temperatures, wet fields are hampering planting along the Coastal Bend and supplemental feeding continues in cattle areas, says the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Despite the slow start of the 1979 crop season, soil moisture conditions will generally support early crop growth, the service said this week. Moisture is adequate over all the eastern half of the state and in parts of the Plains and in western Texas, with some preplant irrigation being started in the Trans-Pecos area, it said.

However, cool soils will delay seed germination in many early planted fields, said the extension service, citing National Weather Service figures showing soil temperatures at the four-inch depth the past week averaged as follows: Beaumont, 56; College Station, 53; Austin, 52; Eagle Lake, 50; Uvalde and Dilley, 57; Beeville, 56; and Weslaco, 62. Recommended minimum planting temperatures are 50 for corn, 55 for sorghum and 65 for cotton.

Because of warmer weather, the cotton harvest has wound down in western areas, the service said. Only the Rolling Plains area has any significant amount of cotton remaining to be harvested, with 20 peccent of the crop still out in a few counties, it said.

Plowing and application of fertilizer and herbicides are active over much of the state as farmers prepare their land for spring planting, noted the extension service.

Panel Suggests Food Law Change

WASHINGTON (AP) — A National Academy of Sciences panel recommended today a sweeping revision of the nation's food safety laws which might allow continued sale of saccharin, now set to be banned from the market.

The long-awaited report recommends that the Food and Drug Administration be allowed to classify foods and additives as posing a high, moderate or low risk.

The agency also should be allowed, under limited circumstances, to weigh the benefits as well as the risk of food additives, the report said.

Under this policy, the FDA could justify continued use of saccharin, the last generally used artificial sweetener remaining on the market. Saccharin is known to cause cancer in male rats.

The FDA tried to ban saccharin in 1977 as potentially hazardous to humans. Congress stepped in and passed an 18-month moratorium on the ban, while requiring warning labels and further study. The moratorium ends May 23 unless Congress acts to reinstate it.

The panel of the prestigious panel of the academy, an independent organization which conducted the study under a federal contract for Congress, suggested several options in case Congress wants to handle the saccharin issue separately from any proposed revision of food safety laws.

The academy said options under existing law range from a total ban to unrestricted use, but suggested Congress focus on an option between the extremes.

Most members of the academy panel said they believe saccharin should not be banned outright, nor should it be allowed distribution freely without special warnings.

Five of the 37 panel members dissented, saying there was enough evidence for an outright ban on saccharin.

Some 50 million to 70 million Americans consume saccharin regularly, one-third of them children under age 10, the FDA says.

The government's current food safety law, passed in 1938 and amended in 1958, states flatly that all additives must be shown to be safe. It does not provide for different categories of risk or allow the benefits of an unsafe substance to be weighed against the risk.

The 1958 Delaney Clause requires the FDA remove from the market any food additive known to cause cancer in animals or humans.

FDA Commissioner Donald Kennedy has said his agency already is drafting its own legislative proposals for changing the food safety law.

The national academy report will go to the FDA, which will forward it to its parent agency, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and then to Congress.

The FDA and the Agriculture Department are confronted with another situation, similar to the saccharin problem, involving nitrites.

Nitrites, widely used as a preservative in meats and other products, are suspected of causing cancer. The FDA and Agriculture Department have asked the Justice Department if they could legally phase out the substance's use over a long period. They reportedly were told recently that the answer under present law is no. Kennedy and others have warned that an outright ban could disrupt the nation's meat supply and increase the risks of botulism.

In the first phast of its report, the National Academy panel concluded Nov. 4 that saccharin is a carcinogen in animals, although one of low potency.

Community Caring, Knowledge Keys To Ending Wife Abuse

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Community caring and knowledge are the keys to battling the problem of battered wives in our society, according to the keynote speaker at the South Plains Conference on Family Violence, which opened today at First Christian Church.

Terry Davidson, author of "Conjugal Crime," a book on abused wives, said that "world consciousness is rising" concerning the problem and cited the progress that churches and community organizations have made in recognizing the situation.

She said that one significant change was in the attitude of churches toward the problem. "The churches were not responsive at one time," she said. "Back in the Middle Ages, the Church exhorted men to beat their wives for the glory of God and for their own good, and that type of feeling hadn't changed much until recently."

Miss Davidson said that churches are now sponsoring conferences on wife-beating and providing shelters for battered wives and their children.

She also noted the improved responsiveness of community groups and governments, who are providing shelters and passing legislation to assist in solving the problem of battered women.

Miss Davidson said that wife beating exists "when a wife is in fear of her husband's superior strength," and when she has not agreed to his subsequent behavior and "has no options."

She said that the wife-beaters with whom she has spoken typically feel sorry for themselves. "They feel oppressed by the world, and not necessarily by their wives. They feel justified in what they do, and they are hurt and angry.

"They all seem to feel as though the wife should somehow have stopped them," she said. "They feel their pain is worse, and they feel good when they beat their wives."

Miss Davidson, who grew up in a household where her father abused her mother, spoke of the need of counseling and help for the beaters as well as the victims. She said that one of the problems, however, is that more than half of the abusers refuse to go for help.

She said that once the abusers begin counseling, they find that they are, indeed, being helped. In some areas, a 24-hour hotline has been established to help the wife-beater who can "call when he feels that anger mounting. And the hotline praises him for taking the courage to do something about it."

She said that the husbands, who are law abiding citizens in other respects, will sometimes sign a contract which states they will stop their abuse, and they often feel bound to this contract.

Miss Davidson said that "we need nonviolent men to show their support. We want them to go on record and say that wife-beating is wrong, is not occasion for jokes, and is unmanly."

She said that the children of wife-beaters and abused wives also need special assistance. These children "have a conflict about their guilts concerning the situation and they have a lack of coping skills."

She suggested that programs be started in the high schools in order to educate students about the social problem and to help them understand the roles of men and women and their expectations of each other.

Miss Davidson spoke specifically of the need for shelters for battered women and their children which can be furnished by churches and civic organizations. "Every time a shelter opens, the need for it is demonstrated because it's immediately filled up to overflowing."

The author said that education of the public about wife abuse is essential and "that we must educate people to know that it exists in all classes."

She said that the problem is not confined solely to the lower classes and minorities, but that middle-class wives who are beaten have a special problem. "It is clear that it is much harder for them to be believed when their husband is a prominent doctor or noted chief of police," said Miss Davidson.

She said that in order to change a battered wife into a former victim, she must learn self-esteem and the skills to cope.

The conference will continue through Saturday morning.

Former Solon Succumbs To Lung Cancer

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Former U.S. Senator Dewey Bartlett, a maverick who became one of Oklahoma's most successful politicians despite belonging to the wrong party and the wrong church and being born and educated in the wrong place, is dead at the age of 59.

Bartlett, who retired in January after one term in the Senate, died in his sleep Thursday night after a two-year battle with lung cancer.

Vice President Walter F. Mondale said in a statement today that Bartlett represented Oklahomans "with integrity, intelligence and dedication."

"I was privileged to serve with Dewey in the Senate where I came to respect his knowledge and understanding of government and politics, his deep commitment to principle and his courage in the face of personal adversity," Mondale said.

Bartlett knew when he underwent surgery for lung cancer in 1977 that he was in for a tough fight. But he said he had had a lot of practice in tough fights.

Oklahomans have always been partial to other Oklahomans who were educated in Oklahoma. They are also partial to Democrats and Baptists.

So when Bartlett, a Marietta, Ohio-born, Princeton-educated, Roman Catholic Republican, became involved in Oklahoma politics 25 years ago, the odds were against him.

But Bartlett overcame those hurdles to become the only Roman Catholic ever to serve as governor or senator from Oklahoma.

Rites Scheduled For Actress

FALLBROOK, Calif. (AP) — Former stage and film star Dolores Costello, daughter of a theatrical family and the third wife of actor John Barrymore, died Thursday after a brief illness. She was 73.

Miss Costello had been living in retirement for several years at her San Diego County avocado ranch.

She made her stage debut in 1924, at age 19, as a dancer in George White's "Scandals" in New York and soon afterward traveled to Hollywood where her father, matinee idol Maurice Costello, had established himself in silent films.

She co-starred in three feature films before she met Barrymore, but gave up her career when she married in 1928.

Milk Truck Hits Pole

A milk truck driver, making his early morning deliveries, escaped injury when his vehicle skidded into a light pole near 19th Street and Chicago Avenue, causing a brief power outage and sending a billow of smoke in the air when the truck's gas tank exploded.

Eldin Lofgren, 43, an employee of Borden, Inc., walked away from his burning milk truck and the Lubbock Fire Department was called to put out the blaze.

Police said Lofgren was westbound on 19th Street about 6 a.m. today when his truck skidded on rain-slick pavement and rammed into the light pole.

A Lubbock Power and Light spokesman said the impact caused nearby homeowners' lights to flicker. A representative for Southwestern Public Service said the accident caused 10 SPS customers to be without electricity for 42 minutes.

Woman Moves To Heal Rift With Democrats

CHICAGO (UPI) — The rift is beginning to heal between Jane Byrne and the Democratic Machine she bucked in her stunning primary election upset over Mayor Michael A. Bilandic.

Mrs. Byrne said Thursday if elected mayor next month she will not dismantle the machine built by her mentor, the late Mayor Richard J. Daley.

She telephoned George W. Dunne, chairman of the powerful Cook County Democratic Central Committee, trying to heal the wounds of the primary campaign.

Dunne said he believes the regular Democratic organization, which vigorously supported Bilandic, will officially endorse Mrs. Byrne.

"Yes, I think so," Dunne said when asked if the regular Democats will endorse Mrs. Byrne. "The reactions that I have received from members of the central committee is in concert with that thinking."

Mrs. Byrne, 44, who will face Republican millionaire-banker Wallace Johnson, 53, in the April 3 general election, said she believes her victory will even make the organization stronger. She cited what she said is a wide base of support among independents, regular Democ.ats, liberals, conservatives and members of all ethnic groups.

Mrs. Byrne said she got phone calls of support from P.J. Cullerton, a Northwest Side Democratic Party elder, and several aldermen. And officials of the Chicago Federation of Labor and Industrial Union Council said organized labor is confident it can work with her.

Although Mrs. Byrne — who was hired as consumer sales commissioner by Daley and fired by Bilandic — challenged and beat the Chicago Democratic organization in the primary, she dismissed any thought of dismantling the machine.

"I have no intention of doing that," she said at a news conference. "I think it's foolish."

The true power of the Democratic organization is at the ward committeemen level, where jobs are handed out in return for party work and votes.

"I believe we did not run an anti-committeemen campaign," she said. "I worked for those men for 10 years. Patronage does not bother me."

She compared city job applicants with letters from their Democratic ward committeemen to college graduates seeking career employment with letters from their college professors. However, letters alone will not get unqualified people hired in her administration, she said.

She said one of her first priorities would be to meet with representatives of the police and fire departments to fashion a contract. A handshake was substituted for a contract during the Daley era, and Bilandic thwarted efforts by the fire department last year to receive a written pact.

Official Vote Count Due From Board

CHICAGO (AP) — The Board of Election Commissioners today makes its official count of votes cast in Tuesday's primary election, when Jane Byrne upset Mayor Michael Bilandic for the Democratic Party mayoral nomination.

The board is to certify Tuesday's unofficial returns and announce the official results late today.

With all but 110 precincts out of 3,100 reporting before the canvass began, Mrs. Byrne led Bilandic by a margin of 50.96 percent to 49.03 percent.

Mrs. Byrne, 44, former city commissioner of consumer affairs who was fired by Bilandic last year, is expected to face Republican Wallace Johnson, 53, in the April 3 election.

Don Rose Delights In Upset Over Democratic Machine

CHICAGO (AP) — For three decades, Don Rose has been an ant in the pants of regular Democrats, making them squirm at times but little else. Now, as chief strategist behind Jane Byrne's amazing primary win, he is suddenly the regulars' biggest bugaboo.

A lot of top city jobs are on the line and Rose may have a say as to who goes — he says all he wants in the Byrne administration is a temporary job heading a group to pick new city department heads.

"The thought of running the butcher shop for several weeks is very enticing," he said.

Rose, 48, hates the Chicago Democratic machine so much he has made fighting it his life's first love. He's been battling since 1947 when he worked for an anti-organization slate of judicial candidates which received 40 percent of the vote.

"I've been looking for the other 10 percent ever since," he said in reference to most of the causes he's taken on, such as open-housing marches and anti-war demonstrations in the 1960s.

Although he lost many of his campaigns, when he won, it always made headlines.

Rose was the Rev. Martin Luther King's press secretary during Chicago open-housing marches in the 1960s. Those marches gave Mayor Richard Daley fits.

In 1968, Rose was the press secretary for Abbie Hoffman, Tom Hayden, the rest of the Chicago 7, and the mobilization committee which brought thousands of demonstrators to the Democratic National Convention here.

He coined the chant, "The Whole World is Watching!" when television cameras filmed police clubbing demonstrators. And he was the first to call the machine's control of Chicago's black wards a Daley exercise in "plantation politics."

"I guess you can call me a professional dabbler," says the bearded Rose, a free-lance writer, lover of jazz, gourmet food and anti-establishment causes.

Until Mrs. Byrne's victory Tuesday, Rose's biggest political victories came in 1972 and 1976, when Republican Bernard Carey was elected Cook County state's attorney — a post Democrats considered crucial to the smooth running of the machine.

Also in 1976, Rose helped engineer the victory of the late Rep. Ralph Metcalfe, who faced strong primary opposition by a machine-backed candidate after he broke with Daley over the issue of police brutality.

In the 1972 and both the 1976 elections, black voters, who traditionally sided with the machine, defected and gave Rose's candidates the winning margins.

The same thing happened Tuesday.

Mrs. Byrne carried 14 of the city's 16 predominantly black wards. In three, she rolled up margins of more than 20,000 votes — greater than her overall edge of victory over Mayor Michael Bilandic.

Men Still Dominate Halls Of Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jane Byrne's Democratic primary victory is likely to make Chicago the fifth major American city with a female mayor.

Yet women, making dramatic strides in working their way up the political ladder of state and local government, are still struggling to enter the halls of Congress.

The nation's state legislatures now include 767 women lawmakers, 10 percent of the total and a net increase of 63 spots won by women in November's elections.

In Washington, however, men continue their lopsided domination of national politics. Only one woman, Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., is in the 100-member Senate. In the House, there are just 16 women — two less than a year ago — out of 435 representatives.

Many political strategists say women will inevitably increase their national political influence and that they are making an important beginning with recent state and local victories.

"Male domination is clearly on the wane" at the local level, says one close observer of urban polical trends, who requested anonymity. A spokesman for the U.S. Conference of Mayors says, "The increase in the number of women who now serve as mayor reflects the shift of women into the work force and the move by women to become more active politically."

Nine years ago, all the nation's top 88 cities were governed by men. At that time, the mayors conference said, Hartford, Conn. (then-mayor Antonina P. Uccello) and Hampton, Va. (Ann Kilgore), were the largest cities with female mayors.

Altogether, in 1970, just nine cities with populations of more than 30,000 had a woman as mayor. Today, the conference says 53 women are holding down the mayor's job in big cities, with almost that many more in cities of 10,000 to 30,000.

Women who head top 20 cities include Lila Cockrell of San Antonio; Margaret Hance of Phoenix, Ariz.; Dianne Feinstein of San Francisco and Janet Gray Hayes of San Jose, Calif.

Further down the population list, Bobbie Sterne is mayor of Cincinnati and women run city hall in five state capital cities: Patience Latting in Oklahoma City; Carole McClellan in Austin; Helen Boosalis in Lincoln, Neb.; Isabella Cannon in Raleigh, N.C.; and Kathleen Ramey in Helena, Mont.

Space Noise Picked Up By Voyager

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The far-ranging Voyager 1 spacecraft, which already has produced spectacular pictures of Jupiter, is also transmitting the eerie whistling and popping sounds of space.

The sounds heard from 400 million miles away are essentially sonic booms that are made by tiny particles racing from Jupiter toward the sun, said Frederick Scarf of TRW Stystems, who heads the plasma wave experiment for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration mission.

Officials at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory here played recordings of the space noise at a news conference Thursday, as Voyager 1 soared toward Monday morning's close encounter with Jupiter. A sistership, Voyager 2, will fly by the giant planet in about four months. Both are to continue toward Saturn.

The space tapes included sounds like squealing car tires, wind whistling through a tunnel and popping popcorn. Deep, artillery-like booms were heard periodically as the spacecraft and its instruments added their noises.

Scarf said the major sounds heard so far involved the solar wind — a stream of electrically charged particles, called plasma, that the sun continually flings out in all directions. The wind travels deep into the solar system at speeds of perhaps 250 miles a second.

Jupiter's magnetic field acts as a shield that deflects the solar wind and slows it down, producing a shock wave of sorts called a bow shock.

"The same processes also accelerate a small number of electrons and protons (subatomic particles in the plasma) to energies that are quite high," Scarf said. "This causes some of them to go faster than the solar wind toward the planet," where many are bounced back into the wind at supersonic speeds.

As they go crashing back into the solar wind, they produce sonic booms — shock waves that ripple through the plasma and are heard by Voyager.

"The entire region well upstream from Jupiter is filled with these upstreaming particles and the waves they radiate," Scarf said.

The recordings are made, Scarf said, with "kind of a microphone on Voyager that is capable of listening to the sounds around the spacecraft."

As Voyager 1 closes in on the planet, he said, "We hope to hear many of the other (audible) phenomena that develop around Jupiter in the next few days." Such signals would include some of the enormous radio emissions from the planet itself.

English explorer Sir Francis Drake died aboard ship in the West Indies and was buried at sea in 1596.

Professor Proposes 'Continuing Week' Theory

By ANDRES OPPENHEIMER

NEW YORK (AP) — While Washington's economic troubleshooters are beating their brains out trying to reduce government spending without hurting the poor, a New York University professor has it all figured out, with a revolutionary theory he calls "the continuing week."

Here it is: If the government buys 10 buildings to attend to its bureaucratic needs, and operates them Monday through Friday, closing them on Saturdays and Sundays, then it is working at exactly 71.5 percent of those buildings' capacities. In other words, it is throwing away 28.5 percent of its original investment.

The solution? Separate the public employees into three different groups — say, the first one working Tuesday through Saturday, the second Wednesday through Sunday and the third Sunday through Thursday — and you'll need only seven buildings to carry out the same amount of work.

It may sound too good to be true, but Carlos Varsavsky, 45-year-old associate director of NYU's Institute for Economic Analysis, is convinced that the simplest ideas are the best — even if they're the last to be taken seriously.

Varsavsky has just completed a 118-page report on "the continuing week" with a grant from the Ford Foundation, and has found a staunch supporter for his theory in Vassily Leontief, the 1973 American Nobel Prize-winner in economics.

Both Varsavsky and Leontief believe that not only government, but also private activities, should be continuous. They claim that all countries in the world could improve substantially their standards of living by simply eliminating the practice by which we all work and rest at the same time.

The trend toward continuity already has begun, they say: journalists, physicians, policemen, bus drivers, restaurant attendants, entertainers, airport employees and whole industries, like the petrochemical, already are working seven days a week.

"Private businesses are increasingly getting continuous, but government hasn't gotten the message yet," Varsavsky says.

—Bureaucratic and economic activity would speed up: Every kind of work, from issuing of driver's licenses to erecting a building, would be completed more quickly, considering that activities are presently at a standstill nearly 30 percent of the time.

—Costs would diminish, first because in any activity, starts and stops are costly (machines, as well as people, take time warming up and cooling off). Continuity would eliminate starts and stops. And second, because investments would be completed faster and begin to produce benefits earlier.

—Absenteeism would diminish, since it is partly due now to people not being able to go to the doctor or to attend to other private business on the weekend. In a continuing week, banks, doctors and government offices would be open seven days a week.

Of course, there is one big question to be raised at this point. When does a Tuesday-to-Saturday man find a minute to meet his Thursday-to-Tuesday wife? What if this particular couple's children go to school from Wednesday to Sunday?

"This wouldn't be a problem, because all jobs and schools would offer three shifts, and statistically one should not expect any particular shift to be overcrowded. They would all work and study at the same time," Varsavsky says.

Varsavsky currently is figuring out how many billions of dollars could be saved by going continuous in many government and private activities. The sociological impact of his "continuing week" remains to be measured, but he assures, "economically speaking, there is no reason why it wouldn't work."

Bell Says Pressure May Be Conflict

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Griffin B. Bell says members of Congress may be involved in conflict of interest if they exert pressure "on behalf of their constituents in an inordinate manner to obtain grants or loans or contracts for them."

Bell, in a speech prepared for the Palm Beach Round Table in Florida Thursday, said he is examining whether "this type of conduct gives rise to conflicts of interest even though the members of Congress obtain no monetary consideration for his or her efforts."

Snowmobile Rescues President

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) — When two new snowmobiles were hauled into the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md., a couple of weeks ago, there was speculation President Carter and daughter Amy had acquired new toys.

Such was not the case, however.

It seems the snow-scooters were purchased for Carter's Secret Service bodyguards as a necessary tool of their trade.

When the Carters took up cross-country skiing as a weekend pasttime at Camp David, the Secret Service pondered the problem of tracking them during their outings through the forested expanses of Catoctin Mountain Park, which embraces Camp David like a blanket.

But tracking was only part of the potential problem. What if Carter fell on his face and was injured? How could he be hauled back to Camp David over rugged terrain?

The snowmobiles arrived and quickly proved their value. Within 48 hours, Carter's skis hit a patch of ice on a steep downslope, precipitating him onto his face.

Cut, bleeding and shaken, the president was put aboard a snowmobile and hauled several miles back up the mountain to his lodge.

Nastier Spill

So Carter proved the hard way that a far more experienced presidential skier, Gerald R. Ford, had no monopoly on taking pratfalls, or facefalls, at the highest level of government.

Still, it was an embarrassment that could not be covered up, inasmuch as Carter needed heavy makeup for a few days to mask his facial abrasions from the unforgiving eyes of television cameras.

Aides made the best of the situation, saying, in effect, "You should have seen the other fellow."

The other fellow was park guide John McFadden, the president's skiing partner of the day, who was said to have taken an even nastier spill. Reporters were told, rather pointedly, that McFadden is "a very good skier."

Kennedy Visits

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., visited the White House this week, with results that were somewhat intriguing for observers of the U.S. political scene.

Kennedy, who is viewed by more than one Carter aide as a potential challenger for the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination, met with Carter to give a boost to legislation they both support. The bills would be designed to streamline the federal judiciary.

As reporters gathered in the White House press center for a briefing on the subject, Secret Service agents began to filter into the room.

An irreverent newsman loudly suggested the bodyguards were on hand "to protect the next president" — meaning Kennedy.

Of course, they were on hand because Carter subsequently made a brief appearance to extol the proposed legislation.

Kennedy was nowhere to be seen.

Carter then turned the podium over to Attorney General Griffin Bell, who briefed reporters on details of the legislative package.

As Bell spoke, word circulated that Kennedy would be available to the press outside, on the White House driveway.

In a twinkling or two, Bell lost more than half his audience, which may prove nothing save the fact that no one expects Griffin Bell to run for president.

Erasable Ink Scares Banks

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) — A new ballpoint pen with ink that erases as clean as a pencil has thrown a scare into the banking community.

Bank security experts met this week to discuss ways to keep people from erasing the figures on any checks written with the removable ink — and writing in new figures to collect a windfall profit.

The Paper Mate Division of the Gillette Co., which plans to market the new pen as Eraser Mate next week, has agreed to include a warning on the back of each package. The warning reads, "The American Bankers Association recommends that you should not use Eraser Mate to sign or endorse checks or other similar documents in order to guard against any possible alterations of these instruments."

Paper Mate has given samples of the pen to the New Jersey Bankers Association for study by its security committee.

An association spokesman said bankers want to have "first-hand experience with the pen by the time it is in use."

Slowdown Of U.S. Economic Growth Predicted

AUSTIN (AP) — A slowdown in the nation's economic growth is probable through the rest of the century and requires a truce among special interest groups, says President Carter's special representative for trade negotiations.

Robert S. Strauss said, "Slower growth rates will present us with new and difficult economic and social issues requiring us all to pull together.

"We need cooperation, not confrontation, and involvement, not isolation. ... It is essential that we move toward national consensus on the key economic issues of our times."

Strauss, participating Thursday in a University of Texas symposium on business and government partnership, said social tensions in the past were often smoothed over by a rapidly expanding economy.

"When the pie keeps growing, everybody can get a bigger slice," he said.

A possible way to strengthen the nation's position in the international market might be to follow the example of Japanese and Korean trading companies, Strauss said.

The Japanese steel and shipbuilding industries soared to world prominence after World War II because of "carefully planned investment and export promotion strategies," he said.

Similar methods were first applied to the Japanese computer industry in 1972 and the aircraft industry is next, Strauss said.

Strauss said small and medium-sized American companies hesitate to enter the international market but suggested that joint operations might help them weather its unpredictable nature.

"This will require a careful re-examination of our antitrust laws and a balancing of competing national priorities. Maybe we should, maybe we shouldn't. But it is the type of question we need to be asking," Strauss said.

Chairman Testifies Cut To 'Handicap'

WASHINGTON (AP) — An alleged lack of concern about minorities could result in the Census Bureau underestimating the nation's 1980 population, a Senate subcommittee has been told.

The Rev. George E. Riddick, chairman of the Census Advisory Committee on the Black Population, said a planned $2.4 million cut in the census budget is a "handicap." Even worse, he said, is a lack of minority groups on the bureau's policymaking level. "It is essential that all minorities be given a role proportionate to their numbers and percentages in the population," he said.

Justice Says Court Should Dismiss Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department says the U.S. District Court here should dismiss a suit brought by military doctors who contend they didn't receive promised promotions and educational opportunities.

The suit, filed by eight doctors, asked that they be promoted and paid benefits they lost. The Justice Department said Thursday contracts the doctors signed provide no rights to promotions and "to rule otherwise would create a chaotic situation in the armed services where each soldier would be subject to a different set of regulations and statutes. ..."

Investment banker Felix G. Rohatyn, keynote speaker at the two-day conference at the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs, also predicted a harsher future.

"With many of our governmental institutions paralyzed or inept, with overregulation and bureaucracy stifling the basic entrepeneurial drive of business, austerity is where we are headed if we are lucky, much worse if we are not," he said.

Rohatyn, a partner in Lazard Freres and Co., was the first chairman of the Municipal Assistance Corp. for the City of New York that was formed to head off the city's bankruptcy in 1975. He now is a special adviser on economic affairs to New York Gov. Hugh Carey.

Rohatyn said new institutions should be formed with the cooperation of business, government and labor to tackle massive economic problems like the energy shortage.

The nation's economic situation today resembles the plight of New York City in 1975, he said.

"What is the difference, after all, between the Republic National Bank in Dallas refusing to buy New York City notes and the reluctance of the Swiss Bank Corp. to hold U.S. dollars?" Rohatyn asked.

Valley Citrus Harvest Cut Short

HARLINGEN (AP) — Chuck Schneider's prematurely empty citrus packing shed stands as testimony to his abilities as a prognosticator.

Back in January, after a hard freeze crippled the Rio Grande Valley's multimillion dollar citrus industry, Schnedier said, "most of us will be out of fruit by the end of February."

And on Wednesday, the end of February, the owner of Progressive Groves Packing Shed in Weslaco said, "Today's going to be my last day. I've got a few grapefruits to run but I'm out of oranges."

A check of Valley packing sheds and citrus associations showed much of the same throughout the area. Two freezes — a mild one in December and a hard one in January — have cut the shipping season by more than two months.

"We may be able to go through next week," said Charles Rogers, owner of a Donna shed. "Usually we go through May."

Les Whitlock, general manager of the Texas Valley Citrus Committee, said only nine of the about 30 shippers are still sending fruit north.

"But it's just a little bit. It's a trickle compared to what it should be," Whitlock said. "It's just about over with, all except the history writing."

Jay Holford, president of the Texas Citrus Exchange, said the crop loss has been great, but many growers were able to salvage the season by rushing damaged fruit to the juice plants. Holford and Whitlock agreed that juice prices have been good this season.

The juice plants have been working 24 hours a day since the Dec. 10 freeze, Holford added.

Whitlock estimated that the Valley shipped 25 percent fewer early oranges this season as compared to last. He also estimated that up to the late orange crop will be down some 75 percent from last season.

Holford figures the current grapefruit crop will be about half of last season's.

Stave Daines, executive assistant director of the Texas Citrus and Vegetable Shippers here, said he understands that the major shipping cooperatives have closed down.

"Some are still shipping, but they are being very careful as to the fruit they select. It's on a grove-to-grove and day-to-day basis," he said.

An official of one of the large cooperatives said his plant has "just about" ended work for this season. Tom Newell of RioTex said the association has nearly 500 members.

Whitlock said the great freeze of '79 will not be soon forgotten.

"We will very definitely see some freeze effect next season. The big quesion is how much are we going to be down," he said. "The intelligent guessers, the ones who have been through freezes before, say it could be down 30-60 percent."

Economist Says Controls Root Of Inflation

HOUSTON (UPI) — If Congress won't administer the "bad medicine" necessary to curb inflation, it could become a fixture of the economy, grow to 30 percent annually and destroy the nation's free enterprise system and government, a banker and former Federal Reserve economist predicted.

Dr. Leslie C. Peacock, vice chairman of the Texas Commerce Bank system, said many Washington politicians may favor wage and price controls over extremely high interest rates.

"There is certainly a basis for expecting that some will be looking rather strongly and favorably at the imposition of wage and price controls as a means told the Houston World Trade Association.

"If that happens — helped along by gasoline shortages which contribute to a rationing and price control environment — then we probably will lose for a very long period of time the only opportunity we are likely to get to deal with the inflationary cycles," he said.

Peacock said "considerable economic severity and a very painful downward adjustment" of the economy may be required.

"That is possible and the politicians don't like it," he said.

Reluctance by officeholders to support tough measures of restraint then could push the nation toward the kind of rampant inflation existing in other parts of the world.

"You don't see any countries which are having 30-35 percent inflation sustained over time that haven't already lost a large measure of their representative forms of government or their economic freedomes or both," Peacock said.

Peacock identified Lyndon Johnson's Great Society and Vietnam policies and Richard Nixon's wage and price controls as the roots of the inflationary spiral.

Johnson's Great Society programs raised the level of nondefense spending by almost 75 percent in a five-year period.

Exchange Announces Plans For Expansion

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Stock Exchange has announced plans to begin trading futures contracts on government bonds, bills and foreign currencies in an effort to expand into new areas.

The NYSE, in a statement Thursday, said it planned to apply in April for government permission to set up The New York Futures Exchange, Inc., as a wholly owned subsidary. It hopes to begin operation in early 1980.

The new market will "diversify and broaden the line of products offered by the exchange," chairman William M. Batten said in a statement following approval by the 21-member board of directors.

In announcing the plans, the NYSE is following the lead of the much smaller American Stock Exchange which last September opened the Amex Commodities Exchange, ACE. Only one type of futures contract, linked to a government mortgage certificate, is currently traded. But ACE has applied to the Commodities Futures Trading Commission (CFTC) for a number of additional financial futures.

The NYSE board authorized $12.4 million in funding for the new exchange and said it would ask the CFTC to approve plans to trade eight financial futures, including 90-day Treasury bills, 20 year Treasury bonds, loan or repurchase agreements and currency futures on the British pound, Canadian dollar, West German mark, Swiss franc and Japanese yen.

Financial futures are relatively new and, until last fall when the Amex set up ACE, had been traded only on the New York and Chicago mercantile exchanges and the Chicago Board of Trade.

Futures contracts have long been applied to commodities, such as coffee, wheat or copper, where traders buy contracts for future delivery as a way of hedging or speculating on changes in price. Such contracts are usually bought on margin by putting up only a portion of the total value at time of purchase.

Financial futures work the same way only the contracts are tied to interest rates on various bonds or bills or to changes in currency exchange rates between the time the contract is purchased and the stated delivery date.

Thursday's announcement by the NYSE marks the second time in recent years the exchange has sought to expand its operations into new fields.

A 1977 attempt to trade in stock options was blocked when the Securities and Exchange Commission declared a moratorium on expanded option trading. The Amex, which entered that area earlier, trades options on 69 stocks. Options are agreements to buy or sell stocks at a specified price within a set period of time.

It is unclear whether the NYSE may run into more difficulties with its latest proposal on futures contracts. Its application is likely to bring protests from competing exchanges, and the Treasury and Federal Reserve have recently expressed some concern about the impact financial futures may have on the government's ability to manage its debt.

During February the CFTC held up consideration of any applications for trading in new financial futures to give those agencies time to study the question, but the CFTC plans to resume its next hearing on a pending application March 14.

Archaeologists Find Prehistoric Remains

NARRAGANSETT, R.I. (AP) — Archaeologists from Brown University say they have unearthed the remains of a prehistoric settlement inhabited by people believed to be the ancestors of American Indians.

Archeologist Peter Thorbahn said diggings along the banks of the Narrow River turned up ancient fire pits, small tools, arrowheads and quartz chippings. He said the artifacts indicate the people who used them were hunters who lived here about 4,500 years ago. However, the discovery — considered one of the most significant ever made in the state — may be in jeopardy because it lies directly in the path of the town's $3 million sewer system.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Someone may ask you for advice tomorrow, but you won't be helpful if you tell her what she wants to hear instead of leveling with her. Be forthright.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Trust nothing to luck tomorrow where your resources or the assets you are managing for others are concerned. Gambles could backfire.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Tomorrow you may be tempted to embellish your achievements and you could appear to be a braggart. Modesty is more becoming.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Think twice before requesting favors from associates or companions tomorrow. It could embarrass them if they have to refuse.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be on your best behavior at social gatherings tomorrow. A lack of tact could leave an impression that would be difficult to erase.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Whether you like it or not, the spotlight will be on you tomorrow. Your audience won't be solidly packed with admirers. Watch your demeanor.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In social situations tomorrow try not to corner the market on conversation. Others may have topics as interesting as yours to discuss.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be wary of butting in tomorrow where you don't belong, or assuming responsibilities of others that are beyond your scope. You may mess things up.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Normally, when making decisions, you weigh all alternatives carefully. Tomorrow, you could cloud your judgment with overly optimistic reasoning. Tread cautiously.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Do-it-yourself projects could turn out to be rather costly tomorrow if you lack expertise. Look before leaping.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Flattery will get you nowhere tomorrow, so think twice before laying it on a bit too thick. Sincerity is a safer option to adopt.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Tomorrow may not be a very productive day for you, owing to a tendency to put things off. You may never get around to those projects you shelve tomorrow.

Viral Complication Kills Fourth Child

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Reye's Syndrome, a rare complication of viral diseases that strikes mainly children, has killed a third Michigan child this year, and Wisconsin officials say the disease has taken its first victim there.

The disease has struck 35 Michigan children since an outbreak of Type A-Brazil flu. Wisconsin officials say two children there were suffering from the ailment and that two others had recovered.

Book, Gift Shop Moves To Permanent Quarters

The Plaid Door, an outlet for used clothing and religious gift items located in a temporary frame building at the 42nd Street and Elgin Avenue site of St. Christopher's Episcopal Church grounds, has recently been moved into permanent quarters in the new church addition.

A permanent book and gift shop has been established in the church building, following the recent removal of temporary structures and the addition of space to the church.

Religious gifts, books, jewelry, statuary, all occasion cards and gift wrappings have been offered for sale to the public as an outreach program of the parish since April, 1978.

The shop is staffed by volunteer workers and is open weekdays from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Purchases also may be made following the 10 a.m. Sunday worship services.

Inventory examples include handmade ceramic artifacts from the St. Andrew's Priory of Valermo, Calif. An offshoot of the Abbey of St. Andre in Bruges, Belgium, the Benedictine Monks were sent to China in 1929. After being expelled from Chengtu in 1952, they resettled at Valyermo, located in the high desert where they now fulfill their motto of "Work and Pray." The artifacts reflect Benedictine reverence for the saints of the Old and New Testaments and joy in nature, executed by hand with natural materials and no duplications.

Another of the special offerings of the shop is a selection of James Avery jewelry in sterling. Avery, a resident of Kerrville, is renowned for his unique designs in silver and gold and special orders also will be taken for his work at the Lubbock shop.

Also in the inventory is an exclusive St. Francis garden statuary made in Lubbock. There also are stained glass pieces from Santa Rita Abbey of Sonoita, Ariz., pewter from Italy, Abbey Press sculpture, wall crosses and plaques, brass, and articles from Holland and Germany.

Among the books in the shop's inventory are Bibles and religious theme books from Spire, Augsburg Press and Addington Publishers. Also in the shop's book inventory are a cookbook, entitled "Divine Temptations" compiled over a three-year period by the churchwomen of St. Christopher's; a unique assortment of children's articles in the children's corner; and the Concordia Concept Series.

The church and shop are located at 2807 42nd St.

Church News

St. John's Receives 'New Media Bible'

St. John's United Methodist Church in Lubbock has recently received 10 films in the New Media Bible series. The local church was one of three United Methodist churches in the Northwest Texas Annual Conference to be chosen for the $2,500 gift.

An unnamed private donor gave a $500,000 gift to the Board of Discipleship of the United Methodist Church to make it possible for 200 churches across the United States to have copies of the "New Media Bible."

The "New Media Bible" is an interfaith, international project to translate the written language of the Holy Scriptures into the language of the visual media. The massive task of translating the entire Bible into film is expected to take at least 30 years. New films are produced each year covering texts from both the Old and New Testaments of the Bible. Even at today's prices it is estimated that the project will cost $256 million.

Financed by an international group of businessmen and artists and produced by the Genesis Project, under the direction of John Heyman, the films are being shot at actual historical locations in the Holy Land, with actors speaking in the languages of the period. The English language translations are narrated by Orson Welles and Jose Ferrer. Ultimately, there will be translations into at least 26 other languages.

The efforts of more than 1,700 people —historians, Bible scholars, archaeologists, educators, technicians and creative artists—have gone into the making of the first 10 films. The first 10 films cover Genesis, from the Création to the sacrifice of Isaac, and the Gospel according to St. Luke, from the Annunciation to the Nativity. The films, supplemented by a variety of discussion aids, are aimed at assisting the teaching of the Bible "in an age dominated by electronic media and widespread Biblical illiteracy."

In announcing the completion of the first edition, Heyman described the New Media Bible "as a means of bringing people back to their religious and cultural roots."

The church's education work-area, under the leadership of Donna Cash, will be organizing the study of the new "teaching library" for the church.

THE BLACKWOOD BROTHERS

Blackwood Brothers To Give Free Concert On Tech Campus

The Blackwood Brothers, one of the best-known groups in gospel and sacred music, are presenting a free concert at 8 p.m. Saturday in the Lubbock Municipal Auditorium on the Texas Tech University campus.

The group was formed in 1934 and has sung to more people, sold more records and traveled more miles than any other gospel group.

They have recently toured in Russia, Holland, Finland, Sweden, Denmark, England, France, Israel and Egypt. Altogether, they have held tours in 30 foreign countries. They have just returned from a tour of the Far East into Japan, Taiwan, the Philippines, Hong Kong, Korea and China. They have been invited to India, South America, parts of Africa and to most all important countries of the world.

A new television show, "Grand Ole Gospel," starring the Blackwood Brothers soon will be syndicated throughout America. The Blackwood Brothers are currently seen by viewers on the PTL Talk Show in more than 200 cities in America and 15 foreign countires.

They were chosen as the only music provided for the 1978 Presidential Prayer Breakfast in Washington, D.C. There were 3,500 dignitaries at the breakfast, including President Carter. The Blackwood Brothers also were chosen by the Billy Graham Association to be a part of the Memphis Crusade, where more than 400,000 people attended the services.

Linguistic Translators To Return

Jack Keels, a former Lubbock resident, and his wife will be returning soon to Columbia, South America, where for the past seven years they have been linguistic translators with the Guyabero language group located between the eastern plains and the jungle.

The Keels are members of Wycliffe Bible Translators, Inc., a worldwide organization with headquarters in California. The organization is a group of 3,700 people from all walks of life who have come together for one purpose, that every man, woman and child some day soon would have a Bible in their own language.

Translators are sent out in teams to live in the jungle villages, create an alphabet, teach people to read and write and help them to translate the Bible. The final goal is to see a body of believers established in the villages.

Keels was aware of the Wycliffe Bible Translators work from attending Lubbock Bible Church. After graduating from high school, he spent a year as a summer student in Peru with the organization.

Attending a missionary conference after their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Keels decided to become linguistic translators. Though in his senior year at Texas Tech University as an architect major, Keels changed his major to linguistics and attended the University of Texas at Austin.

Adult Outreach Clinic Scheduled

A-J Correspondent

LEVELLAND — A South Plains Baptist Association "Reaching Adults" Clinic will be held March 12 in the First Baptist Church in Levelland. The event will be held from 7 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.

Theme for the event is "Reaching Adults for Bible Study, Christ and Church Membership."

The purpose of the clinic is to deepen awareness of the need to reach adults and to provide guidance for enlarging and accelerating adult outreach, according to an association spokesman.

According to the association spokesman, the target audience of the clinic is pastors, ministers of education, general officers of the church, adult division directors, adult department directors, adult outreach leaders, adult teachers, adult group leaders and adult class members.

Hazel Rodgers of the Baptist Sunday School Division from Dallas will be the director of the clinic.

A general session at 7 p.m. March 12 will explore a theme "Strategic Nature of Adult Outreach." Three selective conferences slated from 7:45 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. will provide information in these areas, "My Church Taking Its Adult Frontier for Christ," "Leading in Aggressive Outreach to Adults," and "Improving Personal Skills in Outreach."

Conference Designed For Family

University Christian Church, 3601 82nd St., is hosting a Christ in Youth, Inc., Family Conference today through Sunday.

The conference features the Transition Singers, magician Scott Middleton and a girl's trio. The family conference is designed to meet the needs of the entire family through special services and events, according to a church spokesman.

At 7:30 p.m. today a family hour is slated, followed by a Teen Happening at 9 p.m. in the church's fellowship hall.

A Children's Hour at 9:30 a.m. Saturday consists of a magic show, fun time concert and devotions. The Children's Hour is for children kindergarten through the sixth grade.

A family hour is slated at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, followed by a college-singles rap session in the church's fellowship hall.

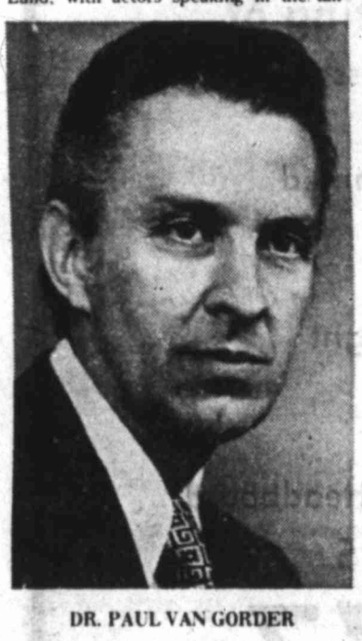

At 9:30 a.m. Sunday Bible classes for all ages will be held, followed by a 10:30 a.m. family worship hour and noon fellowship dinner. At 5 p.m. Sunday a puppet show and song fest will be followed at 6 p.m. by a sermon in song concert.

CHURCH BRIEFS

A Ron Willingham Course will be taught at the Broadway Church of Christ Tuesday through Friday from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily.

A regional deaf leadership workshop is being held today and Saturday at the Oakwood Baptist Church. The event is sponsored by the Texas Baptist Missions Support Section and planned in session with local ministers to the deaf. There will be a banquet and fellowship tonight and individualized workshops Saturday.

DR. PAUL VAN GORDER

Bible Class Teacher To Speak

Dr. Paul Van Gorder, associate teacher of the Radio Bible Class, will be the featured speaker Sunday during Western Hills Baptist Church's 16th anniversary observance.

Dr. Van Gorder will speak at 9:45 a.m., 2:30 p.m. and 7 p.m. Sunday in the local church, located at 5505 Wayne Ave.

The Sunday morning worship service will be two hours in length and will be held in the church's gym-auditorium. The church's anniversary cake will be eaten at 4 p.m. Sunday at the close of the afternoon service.

The guest speaker is heard each week on the national and international radio programs originating from the Radio Bible Class headquarters in Grand Rapids, Mich. In addition, he is frequently the featured speaker on the weekly half-hour color telecast "Day of Discovery" presented by the same organization.

For nearly a quarter of a century, Dr. Van Gorder pastored the Colonial Hills Baptist Church in Atlanta, Ga. For many years he has traveled widely as a speaker for Bible and missionary conferences. Not only has he authored a number of study booklets, but he also is a regular contributor to "Our Daily Bread," a devotional publication of more than 2 million circulation per month.

Church Sponsors Evangelism Forum

The first Stateside Evangelism Forum, sponsored by the Sunset Church of Christ, is being held today through Sunday at the local church.

Emphasis of the forum is geared toward sending missionaries to cities and towns in the continental United States where there are few or no congregations of Churches of Christ at the present time. Also featured is Sunset's thrust toward evangelism efforts in the Pittsfield, Pa., area where the Chuck Young family is now serving. A mission program is being planned which will send groups of college and high school young people, as well as adults, to Pittsfield this summer.

Featured speakers and their topics for the event include the following: Ted Kell of Lubbock, "Opening The Flood Gates"; Richard Whitehead of Gainesville, Fla., "Remember Not The Sins of My Youth," and "The Deluge of The Hoary Head"; Jim Hitt of Conroe, "Floodtide of Youth"; Mike Hammons of Lubbock, "Changing The College Tide Through Training"; Robert Parham of Lubbock, "The Swell of Youth"; Young, "Receiving The Floodtide"; Ron Warpole of Pomona, Calif., "The Impact of The Floodtide in Non-Evangelized Cities"; and Richard Rogers of Lubbock, "Here Am I, Go With Me."

Film Pays Tribute To Miss Ten Boom

The First Church of the Foursquare Gospel, 3115 2nd St., is sponsoring the showing of the film, "Corrie: The Lives She's Touched," at 6 p.m. Sunday in the church.

The film is a new color motion picture from World Wide Pictures and the Fleming H. Revell Company.

The film details the highlights of a special evening honoring Corrie ten Boom and her lifelong ministry of love and compassion. She has written many books, one of which was the film, "The Hiding Place."

Paying tribute to Miss ten Boom in the film are Cliff Barrows, Evie Tornquist, George Beverly Shea, the Bill Gaither Trio and film star Jeannette Clift.

LCC Professor Publishes Book

Dr. Leon Crouch, an associate professor of Bible at Lubbock Christian College, has recently published his first book, entitled "The Diety of Christ."

Dr. Crouch, who has been at LCC since 1972, spent eight months in actual writing of the 112-page book, but said he did "research off and on for years" concerning the subject.

"It's just a small book devoted to a study of the Biblical content concerning the Diety of Christ and there is no historical theology.

"It's a study of Old Testament prophesies, the birth account of Christ, his works, the Titles of Christ and Greek grammar as it relates to the title. The basic point of the book is to give help to those dealing with the Jehovah Witnesses or others who deny the Diety of Christ," Crouch said.

The book was published by Starr Bible and Tract Publications of Fort Worth.

Crouch received his bachelor of science degree from West Texas State University, his master of arts degree from Harding College and his doctor of ministry degree from Lutheran Seminary.

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM The Newspaper Bible©

Luke 11:11-20, The Living Bible

11 You men who are fathers — if your boy asks for bread, do you give him a stone? If he asks for fish, do you give him a snake?

12 If he asks for an egg, does he get a scorpion from you? Of course not!

13 And if even sinful persons like yourselves give children what they need, don't you realize that your heavenly Father will do at least as much, and give the Holy Spirit to those who ask for Him?"

14 Once when Jesus cast out a demon from a man who couldn't speak, his voice returned to him again. Most of the crowd was enthusiastic,

15 But some said, "No wonder He can cast them out. He gets His power from Satan, the king of demons!"

16 Others asked for something to happen in the sky to prove His claim of being the Messiah.

17 He knew the thoughts of each of them, so He said, "Any kingdom filled with civil war is doomed, so is a home filled with argument and strife.

18 Therefore, if Satan is fighting against himself by empowering Me to cast out his demons, as you are saying, how can his kingdom survive?

19 And if I am empowered by Satan, what about your own followers? For they cast out demons! Do you think this proves they are possessed by Satan? Ask them if you are right!

20 But if I am casting out demons because of power from God, it proves that the Kingdom of God has arrived!

The Saxons had a word for Spring. It was Lencten, shortened, in time, to Lent.

So the name Lent was given to that springtime period of 40 fast days from Ash Wednesday until Easter.

Lent came to mean a time of penitence. And it is. But it is also a time of preparation, and of promise. For because Lent means Spring, it heralds good things to come. It forecasts the glorious message of Easter. It is the dawn of the most beautiful season of the year.

The bare branches of these trees will burst into bud and leaf with the touch of Spring. Our thoughts during Lent, our personal preparations, also will reach fruition when the 40 days are through.

Lent is the time for prayer and self-examination. Make this Lenten season really mean something by seeking help and guidance at your church services.

Farmers, Officials Differ On Results Of Protest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farm protesters, most of them now heading home, believe they caught America's ear in dramatizing their economic plight. But government action seems an unlikely result of the month-long demonstration at the foot of the Capitol.

Indeed, some members of Congress, the Agriculture Department and farm leaders believe publicity about destruction of property and police clashes may even have hurt the farmers' national image.

Leaders of the American Agriculture Movement, the Colorado-based group that organized the protests, strongly disagree and call their actions a success. They say they've jolted the public into a better understanding of their arguments.

"People are beginning to recognize the problem," Bud Bitner, a farmer from Walsh, Colo., and early member of the protest movement, said Thursday.

But as the farmers moved toward the city's Sunday night deadline to get out of town, congressional sources said the farmers' demand for substantially higher government supports will get nowhere on Capitol Hill this year.

"As far as getting what they (the protesters) want, it's pretty well close to zero," said Rep. Berkley Bedell, D-Iowa, a member of the House Agriculture Committee. And he said any major changes in the farm program would surprise him.

Other sources familiar with the House and Senate agriculture committees echoed similar beliefs, noting that inflation, particularly soaring food prices, is foremost on lawmakers' minds this year.

At the same time, the Agriculture Department says farm prices have risen to the point they're now 24 percent higher than a year ago.

Long lines of tractors, clogging Washington's major commuter routes, marked the beginning Feb. 5 of what one farmers' protest button described as "The Great American Tractorcade."

Several clashes with police and 19 arrests later, the farmers were confined by a wall of city buses, wreckers and police cruisers to the eastern end of the Mall. At one time more than 800 tractors and 1,000 support vehicles were boxed in.

Fewer than 300 tractors were left Thursday. And many of those were slowly leaving the city to return to such towns as Hereford, Freedom, Okla., and Kimball, Neb.

Authorities said 50 tractors could stay as a "symbolic" reminder of the demonstration. Protest leaders promise hundreds of farmers — without their tractors — will shuttle to Washington in the coming months to lobby Congress.

The protesters' main demand has been that the government, through administrative action or through a mandate from Congress, nearly double the loan rate to farmers. That in turn would boost market prices.

"There is no chance you can get that passed by the House," says one congressional source, who, like the others, asked not to be identified. A knowledgeable Senate source said passage there also was remote.

President Carter and Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland all along have opposed such a move, saying it would increase retail food prices 14 percent and price America's grain out of much of the international market.

Some farm industry leaders and government officials, including Bergland, believe the protests have seriously hurt the image of the American farmer.

"I think if a poll were taken, the admiration of the general public for the farmer would be lower than it was before the demonstrations," said Allen Grant, president of the National Farm Bureau Federation, the largest farm group with more than 3 million members. The federation has been critical of the tractorcade as a means of protest.

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., told aides that farmers in his home state have expressed serious concern the demonstrators have "damaged their cause." Other farm-state congressmen expressed similar reactions.

This week Carter, in a nationally televised news conference, said he deplored damage — estimated at $1.2 million by the National Park Service — to the Mall and other property as the tractors churned up the soggy grass.

But that was not on the mind of Garland Hill, a cotton and rice farmer from Oak Grove, La., Thursday as he helped load two tractors on a flatbed truck for the trip home.

"I think we'll get some good out of this," he told a reporter, although adding quickly, "I don't know what it will be yet."

Brezhnev Proposes New Defense Pact

MOSCOW (UPI) — President Leonid Brezhnev today said a new SALT pact with the United States is near completion and for the first time proposed a non-aggression pact to cover both conventional and nuclear warfare.

In his first major speech in five months. Brezhnev called the arms race and the threat of nuclear war the "most burning problem for mankind" and renewed Kremlin pledges of support for Vietnam.

The Soviet leader demanded "an immediate end to the Chinese aggression against Vietnam" and said Peking's current policies were the "gravest threat to world peace."

Brezhnev's remarks, made to an election rally in the capital, indicated he planned to meet in the near future with President Carter to sign a new Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty.

"The most urgent and burning problem for mankind in our days is to end the arms race and prevent the threat of a world nuclear war," Brezhnev said.

"Elaborating a new Soviet-American treaty on the limitation of strategic offensive arms is undoubtedly one of the major tasks in this field.

"The work of more than six years appears to be near its completion now," Brezhnev said. "The new treaty, when finalized, will probably be signed during my meeting with President Carter — in the near future I hope."

"We also expect to discuss a number of questions pertaining to the further development of Soviet-American relations, the consolidation of detente and the strengthening of universal peace."

Discussing European security, Brezhnev said, "The paramount task now is to extend detente to the military sphere.

"This is especially necessary because the NATO bloc is hectically building up its armaments and thus complicating the situation in Europe."

Brezhnev said that the Warsaw Pact nations had proposed in 1976 that the Helsinki signatory nations pledge not to make any first-strike use of nuclear weapons against each other — but the West said that would only make conventional warfare more likely.

"Well, let us then agree to renounce the first use of both nuclear and conventional arms.

"In other words, let us conclude something like a pact on non-aggression between participants in the All-European Conference.

"I think that this would fully accord with the spirit of Helsinki," Brezhnev said.

Turning to the Chinese invasion of Vietnam, Brezhnev reiterated Soviet warnings it would stand by Hanoi.

"By their unprecedentedly impudent piratic attack on a small neighbor country — socialist Vietnam — the present Peking rulers have finally disclosed before the entire world the treacherous and aggressive nature of the great-power policy that they have been carrying out.

"Now everybody sees that it is this policy that at the present time poses the gravest threat to world peace," Brezhnev said.

"The Soviet people, together with all peace-loving nations of the world, demand an immediate end to the Chinese aggression against Vietnam, the withdrawal of all interventionist troops to the last soldier from Vietnamese land," Brezhnev said.

Area Gets Threat Of Twisters

light rainfall this morning measured .04 inches at Plainview and trace amounts at seven other South Plains communities, Lubbock included.

As the major effects of the storm pass over the South Plains today, Lubbock skies are expected to become partly cloudy Saturday and further clear early next week.

Elsewhere in the state today, cloudy, warm and windy weather was widely forecast, with temperatures reaching the 70 s in most locations, and scattered thunderstorms expected over much of the state.

Farther west, a travelers advisory was issued for today in the south central mountains and southern portions of the western mountains and central highlands of New Mexico due to snow accumulations Thursday and the expectation of some blowing snow this afternoon. In the lower elevations of eastern and southern New Mexico, widely scattered rain showers and blustery winds were predicted today.

Tehran Rocked By New Clash

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Power-hungry guerrillas fired off bullets and propaganda blasts in Tehran early today, underlining the continuing turbulence in Iran following Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's revolution.

The shots echoed through areas controlled by Khomeini's Mojahedeen Islamic forces and presumably were fired by leftist Fedayeen guerrillas. No casualties were reported.

Both groups are heavily armed with hundreds of thousands of weapons taken from military barracks as the army collapsed Feb. 10 under the weight of desertions in the enlisted ranks.

Shooting incidents have become almost a nightly occurence as the rival political groups jostle for position.

The exchange of fire was followed by an hour-long barrage of words through powerful bullhorns as the rival groups harangued each other across sandbag bunkers set up in parks and squares.

One of the areas is overshadowed by the 14-story Intercontinental Hotel where most of the Western press resides.

Khomeini returned to his native holy city of Qom Thursday to live there permanently, but he stressed in a major speech hours after his arrival that he was not relinquishing the reins of power and would continue to direct the Islamic revolution.

Officially left behind in the capital to attend to political affairs was Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan's government. However, Bazargan appears powerless to restore order out of the continuing chaos that has enveloped Tehran and other major cities throughout Iran.

In an apparent display of frustration Wednesday, Bazargan threatened to quit if the rival guerrilla groups did not stop their "anarchistic acts." He accused revolutionary peoples committees, set up by Khomeini, of "obstructing government."

Western observers predict a long period of unrest for Iran before social, political and economic stability is restored.

The future of the armed forces is also seriously in doubt as extremist groups, mostly leftist, have demanded it be disbanded and replaced by a peoples army.

The Iranian Tudeh Communist Party and the Fedayeen want to be officially recognized and allowed to participate in the country's political life, contending they played a key role in the revolution that brought an end to the rule of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and the monarchy.

But Khomeini, apparently waiting for the outcome of a referendum at the end of the month that will decide whether Iran becomes an Islamic republic, has branded the leftists "atheists" who have no role to play in an Islamic society.

In his speech Thursday, the 78-year-old Shiite Moslem leader told hundreds of thousands of supporters that Iran's culture, "destroyed by colonialism, must be turned upside down." He promised to purge the country of Western influence.

"The remaining one or two years of my life I will devote to you to keep this movement alive," Khomeini said, indicating he will not take a back seat in plotting Iran's future. An aide said Khomeini will live permanently in Qom, 100 miles south of Tehran, but has "no intention of retiring."

Ex-Cowboys Scout Shot By Woman

DALLAS (UPI) — Police today said an airlines flight attendant apparently shot and killed her ex-boyfriend, a former Dallas Cowboys scout and SMU coach, in self defense.

Karen McMurray was in serious condition today after surgery for face and shoulder wounds suffered in a bathroom shootout Wednesday night with Jim Clark, 33, a former coach at Southern Methodist and a Cowboys scout from March 1977 to September 1978.

"We're pretty well satisfied that it was self defense," said Sgt. C.R. Myers of the University Park Police Department. "It'll be referred to a grand jury, but only as part of normal procedure."

Myers said Miss McMurray and her date, Robert D. Franklin, 43, were leaving her apartment Wednesday night when Clark confronted them.

"The ex-boyfriend was standing outside the door with a gun," Myers said. "He forced the other man in a closet and forced her to disrobe. Then the shooting started.

"We don't know who shot first, but she had a gun too. He couldn't have shot himself."

Myers said Miss McMurray and Clark had dated for about six years, but recently Clark had been bothering the woman and she filed a peace bond against him.

When officers arrived at Miss McMurray's apartment, they discovered her lying next to Clark, who was dead of gunshot wounds to the chin and chest. Franklin was found trapped in the closet.

Dogs Skinned For Hides

LAS ANIMAS, Colo. (UPI) — A market for dog hides apparently prompted the slaying and skinning of 13 dogs in southeastern Colorado, authorities report.

Bent County Sheriff Darrell Emrie said the skinned carcasses were found stuffed in plastic bags along the Purgatoire River two miles south of Las Animas.

He said Wednesday the carcasses were believed to be those of dogs, and all the animals had been killed several weeks before.

There recently have been reports of dog carcasses found in Colorado and Wyoming, which Ermie said apparently stemmed from a market for the hides. The sheriff said he heard a report that a man was buying dog hides for $100 each.

The carcasses of 10 animals were found in the Vineland area south of Pueblo Saturday.

State School Fund Plan To Aid Taxpayers Here

The House Ways and Means Committee at first voted to limit a district's reimbursement reward for accurate appraisals to 15 percent. But on Thursday, the panel removed that ceiling.

As the bill stands now, explained committee Chairman Bob Davis of Irving, a district could receive as much as 48.3 percent more than its actual dollar losses.

Lubbock school Superintendent Ed Irons last week told the school board that the Tax Relief Amendment could knock as much as $200 million off the local tax roll. At the current tax rate, that would mean a loss of about $2.8 million — an amount for which Irons hopes to get reimbursed by the state.

Under the bill recommended by the House committee, Lubbock would be eligible for a bonus of up to 48 percent above the $2.8 million loss — that is, an extra $1.4 million.

"I'd certainly go for the reward idea," Irons said upon learning of the committee action. "There should be some incentive for districts with accurate tax methods. This would encourage all of us to do a good job in appraising property."

However, Irons noted that the recommended bill has a long way to go in the legislative process.

"I'll be happy with 100 percent reimbursement. There have been rumors that districts might be reimbursed only 75 percent," he said.

The House committee expects to take its final vote on legislation implementing the Tax Relief Amendment on Monday. Speaker Bill Clayton wants the House to debate the bill March 12.

Clayton disagreed with using reimbursement as a lever to improve school district property appraisals.

"My perception of reimbursement was reimbursement dollar-for-dollar. I would think that anytime you mandate somebody to do something that costs them money, you are required to reimburse that full dollar loss," he said.

But Davis said federal courts have held dollar-for-dollar reimbursement unconstitutional in Louisiana because such a scheme rewarded districts for under-appraising property.

The two-year cost of reimbursement is pegged between $420 million and $450 million.

In its current draft, the tax relief implementation bill also would:

—Exempt $10,000 of the market value of disabled persons and those over 65 from school taxes, without regard to income and in addition to exemptions granted by local school boards. This exemption would come on top of the $5,000 exemption every homeowner would get.

—Exempt two cars or light trucks per family from property taxes, starting in 1980. This was proposed by Rep. Salinas to in effect eliminate taxes on family cars.

MOTORISTS GET SURPRISE — Motorists who left their cars on a parking lot in Chicago's Lincoln Park during a recent snowstorm received unwelcome news Thursday when a thaw showed that the vehicles had been stripped and vandalized. Some of the cars had been towed to the lot by police trying to clear the clogged streets during the blizzard. The area is near Montrose Harbor on Chicago's north lake front. (AP Laserphoto)

Students Stage Terrorist Act

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — The "terrorists" knew they were play-acting but the city police officers who were held hostage during four hours of negotiations thought it was the real thing.

A group of University of Oklahoma students, acting out their roles as terrorists in a training exercise, held seven officers hostage at a Tulsa oil refinery, police officials said Thursday.

The OU political science students kidnapped the officers Wednesday evening outside the Police Department, ordered them into a commandeered police bus and held them prisoner for four hours in a vacant building at the Sun Petroleum Products Co.

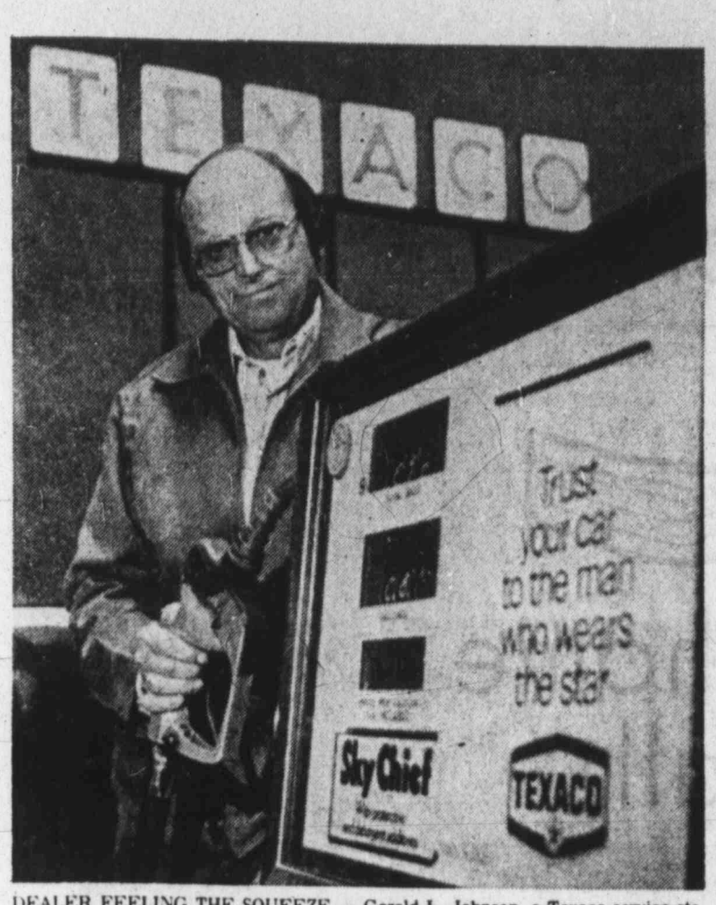

"It was the real thing for them (the officers)," Police Chief Harry Stege said. "They had no idea it was staged and even after they began to suspect, they went along.

"We made it as real as possible," he said. "I think the students called themselves the New World Revolutionary Group and they made all kinds of ridiculous demands, like $10 million and an airplane."

Stege said police officials arranged for the demonstration, but did not inform the "hostages."

The students, displaying real M-16 automatic rifles, surprised the officers as they were leaving the hostage situation training session.

"We told the students they were participating at their own risk since we didn't know how the officers would react," Stege said.

Federal Agency Bans Herbicides

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — In April 1978, eight women living in Oregon's isolated coastal mountains told federal authorities they believed a herbicide sprayed on nearby forests had caused their miscarriages.

Harold Freedlund, a Pittsville, Wis., farmer, says his children's nosebleeds and his wife's three miscarriages were the fault of 2,4,5-t that drifted onto his land when a helicopter sprayed an adjoining woodlot.

On Thursday the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency said there is strong evidence Freedlund and the women were right. The EPA banned the spraying of 2,4,5-t and its chemical cousin, Silvex, on forest land pending the outcome of further studies.

The federal agency said it took the drastic action because of "significant evidence" linking the spraying with the miscarriages suffered by the women in the Siuslaw River basin near Alsea, Ore.

In five years, the women wrote, they had 11 miscarriages. All followed the spraying season.

Scientists say both 2,4,5-t and Silvex contain miniscule amounts of a substance known as dioxin. Tests have shown dioxin to cause birth defects, cancer and miscarriages in laboratory animals.

Dioxin is also found in Agent Orange, the defoliating chemical used by the Army during the Vietnam War. Agent Orange is the basis for several suits by Vietnam veterans claiming damages for children allegedly born deformed because of the GIs' exposure to the chemical.

Pat Hendrix, 31, one of the Oregon women who wrote to the EPA, had four children without complications prior to suffering a miscarriage five years ago. She was pleased with the EPA ruling: "It's not going to bring the babies back, but maybe it will keep it from happening somewhere else."

Mrs. Hendrix, who has since moved and had another child, said she has no doubt 2,4,5-t caused her miscarriage. She said spray often drifted over houses and into a reservoir that supplied her home with water.

Freedlund, 59, said his experience with 2,4,5-t was "the worst hell I ever went through. It was worse than World War II."

He said that since the herbicide settled on his land in August 1971, his wife, Nellie, now 43, has suffered three miscarriages. "My doctor says they were caused by the spray," said Mrs. Freedlund. "I feel they were."

Freedlund says his joints ache, five of his six children have recurring nosebleeds and his farm animals abort their offspring.

Freedlund applauded the EPA ban and said it might make believers out of neighbors he says have been skeptical of his family's ailments.

The EPA estimates seven million pounds of 2,4,5-t are used each year to control weeds and kill unwanted trees.

William Butler, general counsel and acting executive director of the Environmental Defense Fund in Washington, D.C., said the EPA ban affects 75 percent of the 2,4,5-t spraying and 65 percent of the Silvex spraying in the United States.

The EPA said it would still permit the use of the herbicides on rice crops and cattle rangeland because these uses "appear at this time not to involve human exposure comparable to suspended uses."

But Butler said the two permitted uses may be even more dangerous than the forest spraying because they involve products destined for human consumption. He said he felt the EPA didn't want to take on three huge industry lobbies at once, so it chose the timber industry and ignored rice growers and ranchers.

While environmentalists supported the EPA ban, representatives of the forestry industry predicted a severe economic impact on the Pacific Northwest if the ban is made permanent. Forestry officials say no economically feasible means exists to destroy the brush.

Bob Matthews of the Washington Forest Products Association, said industry studies indicate a loss of $801 million to the U.S. timber industry in the next 10 years if 2,4,5-t cannot be used.

Matthews questioned the EPA's findings, noting preliminary results of the same investigation found no direct link between the spraying and the miscarriages.

Texaco Announces Phase-Out Of 2,200 Gasoline Stations

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Texaco dealers in Ohio are finding it tough to convince their customers to trust their cars "to the man who wears the star."

Ohio motorists, over the next three years, will find their neighborhood Texaco station either boarded up or pumping another brand.

Texaco Inc. announced Thursday a "phase out" of 2,200 gasoline stations in portions of Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, Indiana and upstate New York.

The closings will affect 484 of the approximately 497 Texaco retail outlets in Ohio, virtually the entire state.

Eventually, Texaco products will only be available in the southeast section of the state — Meigs, Scioto, Lawrence and Gallia counties.

"We have no official word from Texaco," said George Slane, a Columbus-based dealer. "The first word I got was when I heard it on the news this afternoon."

Slane and his partner, Gerald L. Johnson, have hawked Texaco products from the same location for 27 years. More than 25,000 gallons of fuel flows through their station's six pumps on a monthly basis.

"It don't come as a complete surprise. There's been something amiss." Texaco hasn't been near as aggressive as they used to be," Slane said.

"I was not totally suprised," Johnson admitted. "The first hint came during our lease negotiations. Our lease expires later this year. When they came out with the figures, it was almost like they really didn't want us to agree. They've raised the price substantially and it was presented to us almost on a 'take-it-or-leave-it' basis."

Cleveland-area Texaco dealers also were jolted by Thursday's announcement.

"We're totally up in the air," said Richard A. Myers, part owner of a West Side Texaco station. Myers, who has sold Texaco gasoline for about 15 years, said there had been no official word from the company, although there were recent rumors that something was in the wind.

Texaco obviously wasn't pleased with its performance in Ohio; while it ranks as the third largest oil company and fourth largest gasoline marketer, it's estimated the company ranks ninth in the volume of gasoline sold in Ohio.

The company promised it would not leave dealers high and dry, saying it would work with them to help them find another supplier.

Although there are strict federal guidelines governing an oil company pulling out of a marketing area, Johnson doesn't express much confidence in them. He believes Texaco, if it wished, could skirt the rules by bringing economic pressure against dealers either under the leasing rate structure or by uncompetitive pricing.

"What we're really upset about is our customers," said Johnson. "Some of these people have been with us almost since the day we opened. They've been loyal. What are they going to do? Who are they going to trust now?"

Marvin Trial Wears On; Sessions Bogged Down

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Lee Marvin breach of contract trial wears on and on, the items of evidence now number more than 150 and tempers are beginning to get short.

In fact Thursday's session was so bogged down in objections, legal details and getting mis-numbered exhibits in order that the court could hear from only two witnesses, one of them Hollywood agent Meyer Mishkin.

Mishkin testified that when he wrote to Marvin, he addressed his letters to "Lee and Michelle" because he felt Michelle Triola Marvin, the actor's live-in girlfriend at that time, deserved the "courtesy."

Miss Marvin, 46, is seeking half of the actor's estimated $3.5 million income for the six years they lived together, 1964-70, contending she gave up her own singing career to help promote his career.

Her lawyer, Marvin Mitchelson, said his client wrote to Mishkin while she was with the actor on location in the South Pacific where Marvin was filming "Hell in the Pacific."

Her letter to Mishkin, Mitchelson said, discussed Marvin's alleged drinking and other problems and the proposed movie, "Monte Walsh." Then Miss Marvin's lawyer argued that Mishkin answered her directly by mail.

But Mishkin insisted, "I wrote the letters to Lee ... I always felt I should write 'Dear Lee and Michelle.' I felt I should give Michelle the courtesy." He said he kept in touch with Marvin's work only through the production company, not through Miss Marvin.

The trial dragged on so much that even Judge Arthur K. Marshall, who is hearing the trial without a jury, leveled his temper against lawyers for both sides as the the trial approached the end of its seventh week with the prospect of at least three more weeks to go.

During one lengthy attempt by defense lawyer Berendt Lohr-Schmidt to enter a letter in evidence to establish the date of a movie release, Marshall asked testily, "When you have established that, what will you have accomplished? What difference does it make?"

At another point, Mishkin testified briefly about Marvin's alleged drinking problems, but when Mitchelson tried to pursue the matter, the judge snapped, "We've been over this ground before."

Marshall has asked the lawyers to try to end their cases by March 20. The trial results from a landmark state Supreme Court ruling that women living as unmarried companions may claim a share of the man's income if a contract was implied.

Chavez Returns To Arizona

EL CENTRO, Calif. (AP) — United Farm Workers leader Cesar Chavez returns to Arizona today for the second time in a week to rally support for his union's six-week strike against vegetable growers in two states.

The mass rally for UFW members and supporters in Phoenix comes as growers in California go to court here in an efiort to further restrict mass picketing by strikers.

The proposed court injunction was sought in the wake of a violent confrontation between more than 1,000 pickets and some 200 police officers a week and a half ago. That melee left at least five persons injured.

An existing injunction limits the number of pickets to 100 at three of the 11 struck companies, but growers want that limit extended to all farms.

The main effect of the walkout, which began Jan. 19, has been on the nation's winter lettuce crop, nearly all of which is grown in California's Imperial Valley. Harvesting of about 40 percent of that crop has been virtually halted, at a loss of some $6 million to growers.

Contract negotiations have remained stalled since talks began late last year. The union is demanding a one-year raise of 40 percent in its base wage of $3.70 an hour, plus substantial boosts in piece rate wages and fringe benefits. The growers are offering a 21 percent increase spread over three years.

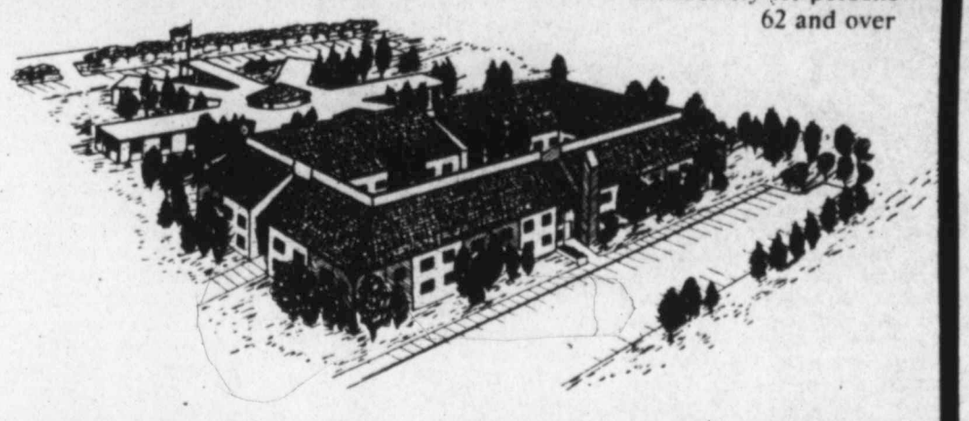

On Thursday, growers spokesmen Jon Vessey and Tom Hubbard met in Sacramento with acting Gov. Mike Curb to discuss the situation.

Afterward, Vessey and Hubbard said growers were taking out full-page ads in major newspapers throughout California calling on Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. to persuade Chavez "to come off these exorbitant demands."

SPAG Charges Rile West

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Allegations that Lubbock City Manager Larry Cunningham lied to the city council about the South Plains Association of Governments are "incredible and stupid," Lubbock Mayor Dirk West said Thursday.

A member of the SPAG Criminal Justice Advisory Committee accused Cunningham Wednesday of lying to the city council about funding priorities set by the advisory committee.

West, who said he was "incensed" over the incident, said "anyone who would question Larry's integrity and honesty is either stupid or not acquainted with Larry."

Although the committee is "made up of some excellent folks — some good friends of mine," West called it "unfortunate" that one committee member would "make these incredible allegations about Mr. Cunningham."

"Larry has briefed the council, as is his responsibility, on many activities of SPAG," West said. "His reports to us are factual, non-personal and objective.

"We do question SPAG's activities and decisions — we will continue to question them — and the council will continue to look to our excellent city manager for his concise and valuable appraisal of SPAG's activities," West said.

The city council has scheduled a Thursday meeting with Lubbock County Commissioners to discuss mutual problems with SPAG, including difficulties with the Criminal Justice Advisory Committee.

The committee has not recommended funding for any city projects since 1977 and this year ranked Lubbock's projects too low to receive the federal criminal justice funds.

And at a committee meeting Thursday, committee member Jimmy Ward, a Texas Youth Council parole supervisor, lambasted Cunningham for his role in the city-SPAG dispute.

"I wish city officials had the manhood to tell the truth once in a while," the Texas Youth Council parole supervisor said.

Ward, who asked not to be quoted on his comments at the meeting, said Cunningham "stood there and flat lied to the commission (the city council)" by saying Criminal Justice Planner Dorothy Miller had influenced the committee on the priorities which were set.

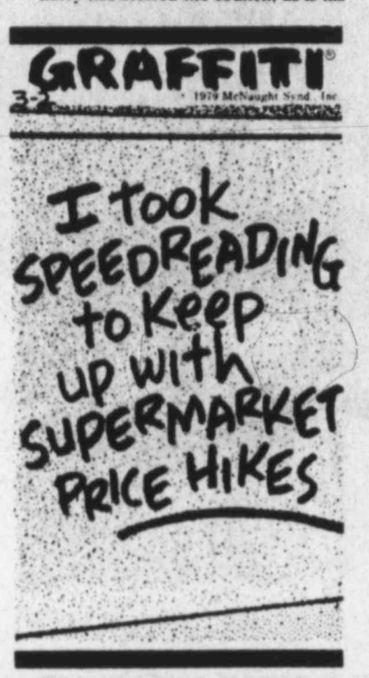

"I don't appreciate him lying about Dorothy Miller," Ward said.

"Nobody has bent over backwards to not influence the committee like Dorothy Miler," Ward said. "It's just terrible somebody can just do that."

Cunningham denied ever lying to the city council about the criminal justice committee, saying "I've never lied to the city council about anything at all — I've only been straightforward."

City Police Protect DA After Reported Threat

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock police are taking security precautions to protect Criminal District Attorney John T. Montford on discovery of a possible conspiracy against his life, The Avalanche-Journal has learned.

Police Col. C. G. Bartley said Thursday that Montford was under 24-hour police guard at his home for two days last week after an informant reported a $25,000 "contract" had been made with a Dallas hoodlum to kill the new district attorney.

Montford declined comment but reportedly had asked for the 24-hour guard to be lifted.

Five of his assistant prosecutors have been sworn in as peace officers to allow them to carry pistols, however, and Montford, who took office Jan. 1, has not driven a car for more than a week. He is being driven to and from work.

The 35-year-old former prominent Lubbock defense attorney reportedly has received nine or 10 death threats since announcing in January that his office would be taking a harder line against crime in Lubbock County.

Non of the threats was taken very seriously until the recent secondhand report of $25,000 being offered and then possibly upped to $27,000, for his death.

Bartley said police were given a description of the killer and the car he would be driving and that Dallas police reported three underworld characters fitting that description in Dallas. The Dallas authorities said one of them was in jail and the other two still were in town, he said.

The informant told Lubbock police the money might have been offered by relatives of a defendant in a criminal trial conducted since the first of the year, Bartley said.

Montford had begun trying a heroin possession case last week when police talked to the informant. On their advice, he turned the case over to an assistant and stopped appearing in the courtroom while security measures were drawn up.

Former State Agents Indicted By Jury

AUSTIN (AP) — The Travis County grand jury has indicted two former field agents for the Texas Real Estate Commission on charges they falsified and tampered with travel vouchers.

Named in the indictments are Warren Sloane and Les White, who were based in Houston.

They are accused of submitting travel vouchers and claiming expenses for trips they did not take.

Sloane was freed on $50,000 bond. White was released on $35,000 bond.

Life Involves Sacrifices

By KENT BENSON
Player, Milwaukee Bucks

At the end of my junior year at Indiana University, I faced a dilemma.

Since I was the center on the basketball team that had won the national championship that year, I was offered a lot of money to join a professional club. I wondered: Should I take it? Maybe I won't get this chance next year.

BENSON

I agonized over the decision for weeks. Then, something a Catholic priest told me helped straighten my thoughts. I often talked with Father James P. Higgins in his office on campus. One day, he said, Remember, Kent, what you are is God's gift to you. What you make of yourself is your gift to God.

I reflected some more, then decided that earning my degree and fulfilling my responsibilities to Indiana was more important than extra money and an extra year on my pro career.

Sure, it involved a sacrifice. But I think life itself involves a lot of give and take. I certainly took a lot as a kid. In first grade, I already was taller than my teacher because my body grew so fast. I still can hear the taunts that made me sensitive about my height.

One evening, my dad told me: You're getting stoop-shouldered. God made you tall; be proud of it. Someday you'll be able to use it.

Even back then, I found basketball fascinating, and joined my school's 5th- and 6th-grade team. Except for serving as altar boy at Saint Anne's, and doing some chores, I began to devote myself completely to basketball.

In high school I made the varsity team. We made the sectionals the first year and then, in a heartbreaking game, our team was defeated in the state finals.

The coach found me slumped in the locker room. When I heard his footsteps, I looked up and said, Sorry, Coach. But instead of talking about the loss, he said, Kent, the sky's the limit for you. But it's all up to you. Dedicate yourself, and you'll have a great future.

Coach, I murmured, I will do my best. And I promise you we'll win every sectional for the next three years.

We did. And with the new success came new honors. Too many honors too

Board Begins Process To Select Successor

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Glenda Robinson, executive secretary for the South Plains Association of Governments since 1968, was named acting director of SPAG Thursday following the death of executive director Truett Mayes on Wednesday.

At a two-hour special called meeting, the executive committee of the SPAG board of directors also recommended steps to locate and hire a new executive director.

The committee recommended to the board that the four-member personnel committee be expanded to include representatives of the entire 15-county SPAG region and all types of governments.

That committee, to be appointed by SPAG President Medlin Carpenter of Plainview, would recommend qualifications for the $25,000-a-year position and establish a timetable on accepting applications and interviewing.

The committee recommended it screen the applicants, then recommend candidates to the full board of directors for final approval.

Lubbock City Councilman Alan Henry, SPAG first vice president, said it is "absolutely critical that every member of the SPAG board and every member government have input" into the selection of a new director.

Carpenter urged committee members to put aside "political or selfish interests" and cautioned, as he has before, that disagreements about SPAG should be resolved within the association "not in the newspaper or news media."

Hale County Judge Henry Heck, SPAG second vice presidne president, commented, "SPAG can come out of this stronger than it's ever been or come up in a jumble.

"If we will be consistent in what we say and do and be responsible in our actions, we can come out stronger," he said. "Or we can play it low key and come out in a mess."

Also at the meeting, the committee recommended Ed Paul, SPAG alcohol and drug abuse planner, be named acting assistant executive director.

The board of directors will meet on March 13 to consider the executive committee's recommendations.

Tech Regent Resigns Faculty Post

Dr. Nathan C. Galloway, Jr. has resigned his clinical faculty post with the Texas Tech School of Medicine to avoid a conflict of interest in his new role as a Tech regent.

The appointments of Galloway, J. Fred Bucy of Dallas and B. Joe Pevehouse of Midland to the Texas Tech Board of Regents were unanimously confirmed Thursday by the State Senate by a vote of 28-0.

Following his confirmation, Galloway told The Avalanche-Journal that he sent a letter of resignation "sometime last week, I don't remember the date" to Dr. A.W. Holmes Jr., chairman of the medical school's department of medicine.

Galloway had been a member of the Tech medical school's clinical faculty in internal medicine, but he said that after being named a regent, "I really didn't think it was appropriate that I hold a position over which I had approval."

Clinical faculty members are unsalaried community physicians who maintain a full-time private practice, but donate time to the medical school.

Galloway replaces Judson F. Williams of El Paso on the board, while Pevehouse, a Midland oilman, replaces A.J. Kemp of Fort Worth.

Bucy, president of Texas Instruments Inc. in Dallas, was reappointed to a second term.

At Wit's End...

BY ERMA BOMBECK

If I ever stage a telethon, it will be for one of the most underrated diseases of the 20th century — Cabin Fever.

Cabin Fever has been with us for as long as there has been children, but during snowstorms the disease reaches epidemic proportions. A minister in Iowa recently noted that the city's 'Dial-a-Prayer number increased 125 calls a day due to the malady. "There's no doubt about it," he said, "Cabin Fever is a reality and people are depressed when they're shut in and unable to get around."

Back in Ohio when the kids were little, I used to crawl out of bed every morning during the winter, fall to my knees and pray, "Please God, let there be school." For my intentions, I would offer up 18 shirts to be ironed by the end of the day, 30 pounds of hand washables to be dunked, and a promise to return the bank's call.

Everything gets through to you when you have Cabin Fever. It's as if you have no control over your own actions. You find yourself sitting there watching a child force a button up his nostril and saying nothing. You see them coloring your marriage license and you mumble, "Stay in the lines." You observe the chandelier over the dining room shaking as they jump up and down on their beds above and you are numb.

You go to the window and for the life of you can't remember what color the lawn used to be...or what the downtown area looked like. To keep in touch with reality, you count by sevens backwards...recite the Greek alphabet...or name the presidents in order.

Your mind drifts back to your youth when the most traumatic moment in your week was when you had used up all your no-shower days after phys. ed.

Bitterly, you envy nuns their social life and make plans for all the things you're going to do when the weather clears. These include: training for the Boston Marathon, finishing college, and dedicating your life to Population 0.

Cabin Fever is nothing to kid about. I've seen women who retreat into the house just after the New Year's Eve party as vivacious, spirited women only to emerge in April pale, heavily sedated, and nearly catatonic.

Help stamp out Cabin Fever by taking a mother to lunch or offering to carry her coloring book. We're making progress. Due to last year's sparse donations, we have research going on. To date, one rat has responded to a cure for Cabin Fever.

Now, all we have to do is cure him of his acute alcoholism.

BRANDIED PINEAPPLE DESSERT CREPES

½ cup flour
¼ cup milk
¼ cup water
1½ tbsps. butter
1 tbsp. sugar
¼ tsp. salt

Combine all ingredients in blender jar. Whir until smooth. Or combine all ingredients in mixer bowl. Beat until smooth. Heat 7-inch crepe pan. Lightly coat pan with oil. Pour in two tablespoons batter. Tilt pan to evenly coat bottom. Borwn, turn and lightly brown other side. Repeat until all batter is used. Makes eight crepes.

Brandied Pineapple Filling:
2 cans (1 lb. 4 oz. crushed pineapple in juice
6 tbsps. dark rum
2/3 cup apricot jam
2 tbsps. cornstarch
¼ cup butter, melted
1/3 cup brandy
2 tbsps. honey
Whipped cream
Taosted slivered almonds

Drain pineapple 10 minutes, reserving 1 cup juice. Combine pineapple, two tablespoons rum, jam and one talbespoon cornstarch. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens. Combine reserved juice, remaining rum, butter, brandy, honey and cornstarch. Cook stirring constantly until mixture boils and thickens. To serve, spoon equal amounts of pineapple mixture in center of warm crepe. Fold sides to overlap. Place two crepes into each of four individual dessert plates. Spoon sauce over crepes. Top with whipped cream and almonds to srve. Makes four servings.

The Slim Gourmet

By Barbara Gibbons

What else to make with high-fiber bread except toast? Today we've got a trio of recipes that take advantage of the new low-calorie fiber-added breads that are becoming so popular among dieters.

Our first is an easy-do blender batter for pancakes that's extra rich in lean protein as well as fiber ... and more delicious than any pancakes you can make from a commercial mix.

HIGH-PROTEIN HIGH-FIBER BREAD PANCAKES
For each serving:
1 egg, large
¼ cup skim milk
optional: ½ tsp. vanilla
scant tsp. baking powder
2 slices bread, low-calorie, high-fiber, wheat or white

Combine in blender (or food processor using steel blade); cover and blend smooth. Spray a non-stick skillet with cooking spray until slick. Heat over moderate flame. Pour batter by quarter-cupfuls. Rotate skillet slightly to spread batter in a larger circle. Lower heat a little. Cook undisturbed until top of pancake is lightly bubbled and slightly dry. Turn with a spatula and cook other side until golden. (If making only four pancakes, it's simpler to make them one at a time.) These pancakes are best if cooked at a little lower temperature, and a little longer, than conventional pancakes. Makes four large pancakes, under 30 calories each. For smaller pancakes, use a coffee measuring spoon. Makes eight small pancakes at 15 calories each. (Top with heated chunky unsweetened applesauce or juice-packed crushed pineapple ... not syrup!)

MAIN COURSE PANCAKES — Omit vanilla. Serve with "creamed" chicken, turkey or tuna, using a white sauce made with skim milk and no fat.

Mrs. J.G. Grigsby of Maumee, Ohio and Jerri Smith of Houston, Tex. are the winners of this month's Reader Recipe Contest for their low-calorie bread-muffin recipes, each moist enough not to need any spread, and delicious served warm. Both have been awarded copies of my "International Slim Gourmet Cookbook" ($13.95, Harper and Row).

MRS. GRIGSBY'S LOW-CAL BLENDER CHEESE MUFFINS
2 slices bread, low-calorie, high-fiber, wheat or white
3 slices cheese, low-fat, "diet"-type (or 1½ oz. sharp cheddar)
optional: dash of MSG
½ cup egg substitute, low-fat, no-cholesterol, defrosted (or 2 eggs)
4 tsps. water
2/3 cups of dry milk powder, instant, non-fat
2 tsps. baking powder
1½ tsps. onion flakes, dried

Break up bread and cheese in blender; add MSG, if desired. Cover and process until crumbed. Add remaining ingredients and mix well. Spoon into eight non-stick muffin tins, which have been sprayed until slick with cooking spray. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until golden. Makes eight moist muffins, only 60 calories each (75 with fresh eggs and Cheddar cheese).

JERRI SMITH'S BLENDER APPLE SPICE MUFFINS
3 slices bread, low-calorie, high-fiber, wheat or white, dry or toasted
1 cup dry milk powder, instant, non-fat
½ tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. baking soda
½ tsp. ground nutmeg
½ tsp. ground cinnamon
1 cup applesauce, unsweetened (or regular)
2 eggs (or half-cup egg substitute, low-fat no-cholesterol, defrosted)
½ tsp. vanilla extract

Break up bread and combine with other dry ingredients in blender or food processor (using steel blade) and process until crumbed and well-mixed. Beat remaining ingredients together, then thoroughly beat in dry ingredients. Spoon into 12 non-stick muffin cups which have been sprayed with cooking spray. Bake in a preheated 375-degreee oven 25 minutes, or until golden brown. Makes 12 muffins at 55 calories each (65 calories with sweetened applesauce).

You, too, can be a winner! Enter your decalorized recipe in our friendly and informal contest with no rules. All recipes published will be awarded a book. Print clearly, send your name, address and zip code with your recipe to SLIM GOURMET READER RECIPE CONTEST, in care of this newspaper, Sparta, N.J. 07871.

Bidding a reasonable contract is only half the battle. You also need the skill to reel in the necessary tricks. South's technique on this hand merits study.

When North bid two suits and then jumped in support of South's suit, he was marked with no more than a singleton in the unbid suit. Therefore, South decided that his good trump intermediates, in conjunction with the ace-queen of diamonds, merited pushing on to slam.

West led the king of hearts, ruffed in dummy. As the cards lie, it is very easy to go down in six clubs. Assume declarer cashes the king of clubs and continues with the jack. When East shows out, declarer must win the ace and try for discards on diamonds. Unfortunately, that plan is thwarted by the bad break in the diamond suit. East ruffs the second diamond, and the defenders can then cash two heart tricks.

To make the slam, declarer must retain a trump in dummy, while at the same time drawing trumps. That would seem to be a contradiction in terms. But watch how South overcame his problem.

At trick two, he led the jack of clubs from dummy and ran it! Since West could not gain by ducking (indeed, it would cost him a trick), he won with the queen. The duel was not yet over.

West returned his singleton diamond. Had declarer won and carelessly led a club to the king, West could not have been prevented from obtaining a diamond ruff.

However, having executed the play flawlessly so far, declarer was not about to make a fatal error. He won the ace of diamonds and cashed the ace of clubs, unblocking dummy's king perforce. Since he was still in his hand, it was a simple matter to draw the last trump and take the rest of the tricks in high cards.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. RED SEA SLAW

1 tsp. salt
10 cups (about 2 lbs.) shredded red cabbage
3 cups boiling water
1/3 cup lemon juice
¼ cup peanut oil
3 tbsp. sugar
¼ tsp. pepper
1½ cups diced apple
¼ cup minced onion

Sprinkle salt over shredded cabbage; add boiling water. Let stand 10 minutes; drain. Combine lemon juice, peanut oil, sugar and pepper. Add to the cabbage along with the diced apple and minced onion. Toss until well mixed. Chill at least ½ hour before serving. If desired, garnish with apple slices. Makes 12-15 servings.

Survey Indicates Dieters Prefer Sweets Over Most Other Foods

NEW YORK (AP) — Liver is the most disliked food among dieters, according to a recent survey of members conducted by The Diet Workshop, which also revealed apples are the favorite food for eating in bed.

The favorite "comfort food" named was ice cream, with sweets in general, and chocolate chip cookies in particular, as close runners-up.

Three members yearn for hot yeast bread when they're in need of comforting; another wants a stuffed pepper. One New Englander requires more substantial comforting: a hot fudge sundae.

About 44 percent of those responding crave soup when they're sick, with nearly 10 percent listing that predictable "home-made penicillin," chicken soup. And 28 percent said nothing could be so awkward to eat that they would avoid it.

Members listed as foods they "absolutely refuse to try" raw oysters, liver and snails, and 2 percent listed rattlesnake.

Seafood, prime ribs and lobsters are regarded as food to be savored in restaurants on special occasions, with chicken, spaghetti and tuna leading the list of home fare.

"What food triggers you to eat other food?" triggered a response of "sweets" from 18 percent and "potato chips" from another 13 percent.

"When a dieter knows sweets are the trigger, the answer is clear. Just avoid them," says Lois L. Lindauer, international director of the workshop. "But the three members from Massachusetts who said 'anything' are in real trouble."

REFRIGERATION A MUST!

If you must delay eating your fresh pineapple, refrigerate it until serving time.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I'm 17, pregnant, and not sure what I want to do about it. Some say I should marry the father, but I'm not sure who the father is because I was going with three guys at the same time.

I'm afraid of abortion, although I've heard there's nothing to it. I sure don't want to raise a kid without a husband, but I wouldn't feel right about giving it away to strangers either. I suppose my mother would take it, but she's got her hands full with 12 kids, and the youngest is only 2.

I'm nearly three months along. Everybody I talk to tells me something different. I'm confused and need some good advice fast.

In A Mess In L.A.

Dear In: Please quit talking to friends. Get some sound advice from a professional counselor. Call Planned Parenthood. It's listed in your phone book. Tell them Abby told you to call for an appointment for counseling.

The counselor will help you make a decision you can live with. You will also be taught how to prevent unwanted pregnancies in the future.

DEAR ABBY: I am happily married to a handsome, hardworking, successful executive. I've never had any reason to doubt him until last week. While hanging up his overcoat, a key from a local motel fell out of the pocket. Since we live in town, I wondered why my husband would need a motel room, so I asked him.

He told me he has a lot of business to talk over with his new secretary, and that he can't very well take her out to lunch because she's an attractive young divorcee with a reputation as a swinger, and people might talk. Since he values his reputation as a straight-laced family man, he rents a motel room occasionally so they can have lunch and talk business without stirring up gossip.

What do you think about this?

L. In Indiana

Dear L.: Your husband says he's concerned about gossip. What does he think he'll cause if people find out he goes to a motel to talk business with his new secretary who's an attractive young divorcee with a reputation as a swinger?

Living Legend In Spotlight

By IRVING DESFOR
Associated Press Writer

The most recent achievements of Alfred Eisenstaedt, a living legend among photojournalists, place him once again in the photo spotlight.

Eisie, as he is affectionately known by his colleagues, was the focal point of four newsworthy events recently:

1. The publication of his eighth book, "Eisenstaedt's Guide to Photography," by Viking Press ($17.95), a helpful manual for amateurs based on a pro's half-century of experience.

2. The celebration of his 80th birthday, a party hosted by LIFE magazine, which brought top celebrities in photography and communications to cheer him on further.

3. His participation in the recent rebirth of LIFE, photojournalism's most potent popular publication. Eisie, one of LIFE's four original staff photographers, who remained throughout its 36 years of existence, was on hand again with an assignment for the opening issue of the new LIFE. And once again he will be an active contributor to today's pictorial history.

4. And the presentation by the American Society of Magazine Photographers of their ASMP Lifetime Achievement Award, a recognition by his peers of Eisie's dedication to photojournalism.

While his colleagues know him by his remarkable record and as the recipient of the profession's highest awards, the public has a chance to know him by his books. His latest, "Eisenstaedt's Guide to Photography," can be a valuable teaching tool for anyone, from beginners to advanced photographers, if they absorb his thoughts and study his illustrations.

He writes simply and clearly, stating his ideas on how to make better pictures. His topics include composition, lighting, portraits, children, travel and special effects, among others. He has made his share of mistakes and tells about them to avoid their being repeated. His ideas, technical guidance and pictorial illustrations provide a personal home study course which, if studied and applied, can improve anyone's photography. None of it is unusual, startling or out of reach but all of it is time-tested, professional and proven.

Acquiring skill in photography, just as in any art or craft, takes practice and learning from mistakes made. "Anything that makes you stop, look and ponder for a second is probably a good picture possibility," Eisie says. "But what doesn't particularly interest you may attract another photographer who has other ideas in mind. Everyone's point of view is a little different."

Always prepared for the unexpected, he carries a 35mm rangefinder camera with him almost everywhere he goes. He constantly checks the exposure situation for the film in the camera and sets the shutter speed and aperture for anything that might catch his eye. He suggests shooting anything of interest immediately, then, if there is time, improving the first quickie shot by shifting to a more suitable lens or a different angle.

For good composition, he believes nature does a beautiful job of arranging things and the photographer's job is to select the best view of natural arrangements. But patience is often required and one has to wait for better lighting perhaps, or more interesting shadows or the arrival of a missing element — human, animal or maybe an object such as a sailboat or vehicle — that can enhance the setting or provide a scale.

Good composition can be learned by studying the paintings of old masters, he suggests, and then it becomes a matter of good judgment and taste. In time, one becomes aware of balancing light areas with dark ones, large objects with small. It's also important to review one's work frequently, to analyze the shortcomings and see where improvement can be made.

The direction of light in relation to the camera makes an enormous difference in the mood of photographs and must be studied always, Eisie emphasizes. Strong side lighting brings out textures; back lighting can be dramatic and objects become silhouettes. Direct sunlight produces strong shadows which are too harsh and contrasty for photographing people. Eisie prefers sunlight diffused by overcast because it gives good modulation of tones and is a soft, pleasing light.

In shooting formal portraits, he usually has the camera on a tripod so that he can talk to the subject without continually raising the camera to his eye — an action likely to make a sitter nervous. For informal portraits, he doesn't bother with the tripod but tries to establish an atmosphere of ease for the sitter. People are apt to be tense and self-conscious at first but you should keep shooting — even wasting some film — until the initial inhibition passes away and the subject becomes used to the camera.

For vacation and travel pictures, Eisie advises traveling light and not taking all the equipment you possess. Your concern should be in making a good picture, not in choosing a piece of equipment. Three lenses are enough to cover nearly every situation: a normal lens for general coverage; a wide-angle lens for confined spaces; and a telephoto lens when it's not possible to get closer. A monopod or tripod is helpful for dimly-lit interiors and night photography.

Eisenstaedt's advice is practical and serious, a reflection of his own personal nature.

Second Tax Credit May Be Taken

By ANDY LANG
Associated Press Writer

Q. — I just finished reading your article on tax credits for insulation and other energy-saving home improvements. According to what you said, I qualify for such a credit because I had mineral-wool insulation installed in my house in December of last year. Presumably I will get the maximum tax credit of $300 that you mentioned. What I would like to know now is whether I also can get a tax credit if I have solar-energy equipment put in later this year? Or do you just get the one credit?

A. — You will qualify for a second tax credit. The law says that you get a credit of 15 percent of the first $2,000 spent on components to conserve energy. Insulation falls into that category. The law also says you can get an extra credit for what is called a renewable energy source expenditure, which includes the installation of solar, geothermal or wind-powered equipment. This credit amounts to 30 percent of the first $2,000 spent plus 20 percent of the next $8,000 spent. That would make a credit of $2,200 if you spent $10,000 for solar energy equipment.

Q. — I am thinking about installing a solar-energy system just to take care of hot water, not for heating. Where can I get some information about what it entails in money?

A. — Write to the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C., 20402, and ask for the "Solar Hot Water Handbook." It costs $1. This booklet provides a form for estimates of costs and performances and for a comparison with conventionally fueled systems.

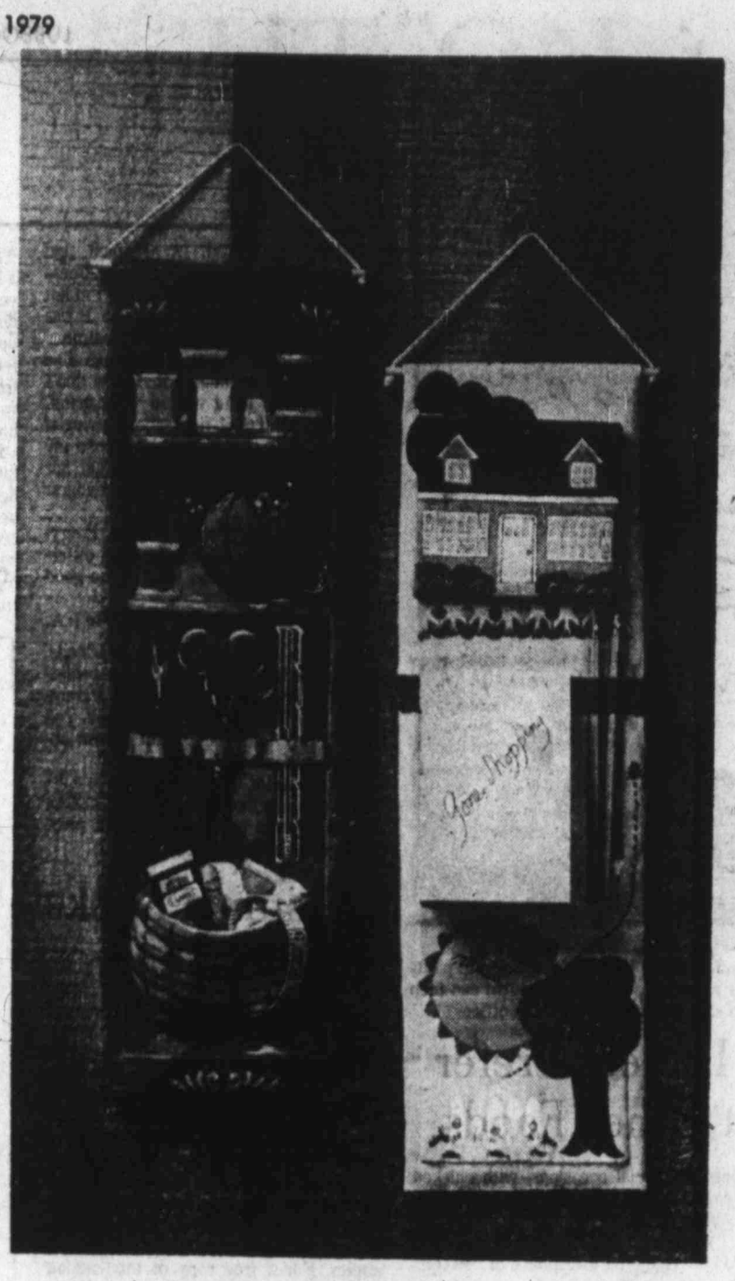

Q. — Someplace I saw a way of estimating how many floor tiles are necessary to use on the floor of a room of a specific size, but I never saved the information. Can you help me? I intend to use standard 9-by-9 tiles.

A. — Yes, but you probably don't need any assistance. Take the measurements of the room to your tile dealer. He has a chart which will show how many tiles you will need. However, if you want to figure it yourself, here is the formula. Get the square footage of them multiplying the width by the length. Then multiply the square footage by two. The result will be the approximate number of tiles needed and is geared to take care of the extra tiles required for cutting and fitting around irregularities.

(The techniques of installing resilient floor tiles are detailed in Andy Lang's Resilient Floor Tile booklet, which can be obtained by sending 35 cents PLUS a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column, but individual correspondence cannot be undertaken.)

INDONESIAN VILLIAGES BURIED

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Landslides touched off by heavy rains buried 15 villages on the remote eastern Indonesian island of Flores, killing 35 persons, injuring about 100 others and leaving 91 missing, the newspaper Sinar Harapan reported Thursday.

Hanging Helps Keep Items Organized

Do you have trouble finding a note pad when you need one? The scissors have taken off on their own? And you can't find a needle when you need to sew a quick button on your jacket?

If this sounds familiar, back up and make a better-late-than-never New Year's resolution to get your organization together. There's an easy and decorative solution to end this chaos — notion's nook or note 'n tote. The Notions Nook holds sewing notions and has a removable pin-cushion. The Note n' Tote keeps notes handy and a removable pocket lets you carry notes, savings stamps, store coupons and the like. It's also great for storing correspondence, the telephone bill, keys — all the things you can never quite seem to lay your hands on when you need to.

It'll be a great start to a newly organized you and it'll give you something to keep you busy while you're wondering where you last saw the appointment card for the next trip to the orthodontist. Cut a vertical strip of washable fabric (ours are 6½-inches x 21½-inches), stitch on pockets and decorate with embroidery floss, fabric crayons or water proof markers.

If you would like a little help with the design, the pictured kits come complete and are truly a snap to make. They combine a basic quilting technique, (if you can handle sewing a simple two-hole button, you'll breeze through the quilting stitch required) basting, stuffing, (to give that three-dimensional quilted feel) and if you'd like, there's some touch-up-here-and-there embroidery.

If you're one of the lucky few already organized, the Notions Nook/Note n' Tote would make great shower gifts for the soon-to-be bride.

Order Notions Nook, Kit No. 14981 for $5.99 plus $1.45 postage and handling. The Note n' Tote Kit No. 14982 is also $5.99 plus $1.45 postage and handling. If you order both kits, postage and handling is $1.95.

Israel Stamp Honors Christian Friends

By SYD KRONISH
Associated Press Writer

Israel pays tribute to its Christian friends who helped save Jewish lives during World War II and the holocaust with the issuance of a new commemorative stamp.

Numerous Jewish people were rescued from certain death by their Christian neighbors who knowingly endangered themselves. They acted out of conscience, religious belief and opposition to the Nazi conquest. They were called "the righteous among the nations."

The new stamp is entitled "Salute To the Righteous Among the Nations," according to the Israel Philatelic Agency in America.

A second new Israeli stamp is dedicated to the 30,000 men and women of the "Yishuv" — the Jewish community in Palestine which volunteered its service in the British Forces during World War II, carrying with them the hopes of the rebirth of a Jewish nation. The stamp features a Star of David and the years 1939-1945.

Both of these stamps are available at your local stamp dealer or stamp department.

The UN Postal Administration will issue a new commemorative stamp May 4 on the theme "International Year of the Child."

To coincide with this stamp, the agency will also issue a souvenir card reproducing its four "International Year of the Child" stamps as well as five other stamps issued in the past to honor "UNICEF."

The cards, priced at $1 each, will be printed in 12 colors and may be purchased directly from the UN Postal Administration, P.O. Box 5900, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y., 10017. The cards will remain on sale for three months from the date of issuance.

DID YOU KNOW THAT: The dolphin is a popular fish when it comes to stamp designs. Dolphins have appeared as the main designs of stamps from Bulgaria, Greece, Russia, San Marino, Senegal, Tristan da Cunha, to mention a few... The tale of the Pied Piper of Hamelin was the basis for a design of a recent stamp from West Germany. It featured the piper followed by a flock of children... In 1952 the U.S. honored the newspaper delivery boys of this country with a 3-cent stamp.

DR. LAMB

Trouble Digesting Milk

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I don't believe there is such a thing as milk allergy. It's all caused by the plastic it's in. You know that milk is a universal antidote, so it keeps busy absorbing the poison out of the containers until it's used and you have a bad reaction.

DEAR READER — I'm not going to defend all the types of packaging present in commercial food marketing, but I can assure you people have trouble with milk because of the milk itself, not because of its container.

There are basically two problems that can occur. The first is a true milk allergy which is noted primarily in infants, because their digestive system hasn't matured properly and some of the milk protein is absorbed directly into the bloodstream. The allergy, in this case, is to milk protein.

The other, and larger, problem is lactose intolerance which is not an allergy. It is the problem one sees in adults. It's very well defined. Lactose is a sugar and you can disolve pure lactose sugar in water, and people who drink this have difficulties. So, the problem can be created irrespective of the container, just with milk sugar.

About 10 percent of the adult Anglo-Saxons have this problem and as high as 80 percent of most other ethnic groups in the world may have some degree of it. I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-2, Milk Products: Good and Bad, which will give you more information about this disorder.

Primarily, it causes digestive complaints — gas bloating, abdominal cramping and, in some people, severe diarrhea. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like for you to settle an argument we are having. I say medication in capsule and pill form should be given after breakfast. Which is right, before or after breakfast, and what about other meals?

DEAR READER — You may be right and you may be wrong. The correct answer is to take the pills the way the doctor told you to. I'm not being facetious. The doctor prescribes some medicines long enough before the meal to be rapidly absorbed. Still other medicines are better taken with the meal or after the meal so their absorption will be slower. It depends entirely upon the medicine prescribed and why the doctor is giving it. If you try to second guess him, you may not be getting the concentrations of medicine in your bloodstream when he wants you to.

To this generalization, I would like to add some comments about aspirin because so many people take them without a prescription. This also applies to many medicines that contain aspirin. If you want to avoid irritating your stomach, it's a good idea to break up the aspirin into small pieces and dissolve it in half a cup of milk, or at the very least, take the aspirin with a meal or immediately after a meal. If you break the aspirin up into a powder, it's less likely to have any particles that will lodge against the stomach and burn the lining.

You may not get as fast or immediate relief from pain if you are taking aspirin for that reason, but the effect will be longer and more sustained.

Ability To Predict Weather On Long-Range Basis Limited

By ELAINE S. POVICH

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If industries knew what the weather was going to be like in July, they could figure out expenses now. If oil companies knew, they could adjust their refining process. And if you knew, you could plan your vacation — or put it off until August.

It all sounds nice. But — even though some maverick weather forecasters disagree — don't count on techniques becoming that precise any time soon.

The National Weather Service admits its ability to predict weather on a long-range basis is limited. About 60 percent accuracy is the best they can do — and that's only for predicting whether temperature and precipitation will be above or below normal.

"Essentially, you can do 50 percent with the toss of a coin, so we're not much better than that," said Jerry LaRue, meteorologist in charge of the NWS Washington forecast office.

Forecasts of two and three days are fairly accurate, LaRue said, but about 60 percent accuracy is average for everything after five days, including 30 and 60-day forecasts.

"What we can't do is pinpoint when a particular storm will occur or when record-breaking temperatures are going to occur," said Bob Dickson, deputy chief of the NWS's long-range prediction group.

LaRue and Dickson agreed that the day when someone can predict weather for a specific future date is a long time in the future, if it ever comes. Dickson said there is some thinking that there may be an upper limit to the range of forecasting, perhaps two weeks.

"When someone wants to have a forecast for their daughter's wedding in the garden in June, we have to go to the climate books and just get average temperature and precipitation," said LaRue. "As an ethical scientist, I can do no more."

Private Washington meteorologist Gordon Barnes, who claims he uses more advanced methods to make long-range forecasts, disagrees. Barnes, who appears on both television and radio in Washington and has many clients around the country, said he once spiced up Congressional testimony by predicting the weather for a Congressman's daughter's wedding.

"But if I had to give a forecast on a day-to-day basis it would be impossible," said Barnes.

What if the weather could accurately be predicted on a long-range basis?

A Georgetown University law professor, Edith Brown Weiss, has determined that average temperature is directly related to energy consumption — a development that could be crucial in today's world. But current climate forecasts are not used by industry because they are not accurate enough.

"If we could predict, then we could manage the consequences," said Mrs. Weiss. "But how well do we need to know in order for it to make a difference?"

Currently, the best "official" information, the NWS's "Average Monthly Weather Outlook," is full of caveats.

A "cautionary note" takes up nearly a third of the first page. After using phrases like "estimate," "great complexity," "imperfectly understood" and "uncertainties," the note concludes:

"It should be kept in mind that nearly always there are changes in the local weather every few days, sometimes of a sudden and severe nature."

Wine Consumption To Rise In U.S.

NEW YORK (AP) — The consumption of wine will register the highest annual growth-rate among America's favorite beverages from now until 1990, according to an industry magazine.

Soft drinks, however, will continue to be the nation's top beverage, gaining from a per capita intake of 36 gallons in 1978 to 50 gallons by 1990, according to the publication Impact.

Talks' Outcome Appears Gloomy

By BARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's talks here with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin are off to an unhappy start. And the outcome could be even gloomier.

It's no secret that Carter and Begin don't get along well. That need not be a big problem, however.

Yet U.S. relations with Bonn haven't suffered any noticeable setback as a result.

But apart from their very different outlooks and personalities, Carter and Begin are approaching the Middle East in divergent ways.

Carter told the nation's governors the other night that the issues separating Egypt and Israel are "absolutely insignificant."

Begin does not see them that way.

Analysis

"With all due respect," he said, they are big issues, affecting Israel's future and security.

Besides their different perspectives, there is the feeling in Israel that Carter is out to pressure Begin.

That's denied at the State Department where spokesman Hodding Carter says "we neither mean to imply, nor do we wish anyone to infer that."

But the feeling persists.

And, of course, there is the very real problem that the United States supports Egypt in most of the key unresolved issues.

There is little in the American package that leans toward the Israelis.

The United States approves.

Sadat does not want the treaty to take priority over Egypt's defense ties to other Arab countries.

The United States is for that.

And Sadat, again with U.S. support, wants to hold back on an exchange of ambassadors with Israel until there is total Israeli withdrawal from the Sinai Peninsula and steps are taken toward Palestinian self-rule.

Begin has resisted these Egyptian demands until now.

There seems little reason to believe he will give ground, especially on all of them, now.

Carter is not entirely defenseless, however, in trying to gain Israeli concessions to wrap up the treaty.

He can offer U.S. bankrolling for the new Israeli airfields to be constructed in the Negev desert after the Sinai bases are relinquished to Egypt.

He can speed up delivery of top-notch U.S. fighters and other advanced weapons.

And, if he finds Begin in any sort of a compromising mood, he can get on the telephone and urge Sadat to join them.

Another three-way summit just might clear the remaining hurdles. It just might duplicate the amazing success of last September's Camp David summit.

That, after all, set the stage for completing about 95 per cent of the treaty.

On the key, unresolved issues, Sadat also has resisted compromise. In fact, in many ways, he has hardened his position since Camp David.

But he, too, needs U.S. aid.

A poor country, Egypt has a growing population. In the last five months, half a million Egyptians were born. The total is now 40.5 million people.

Transportation, telephone service, housing, sewage and agriculture pose enormous problems.

There is talk in Cairo now of an ambitious "Carter plan," rivaling the Marshall plan of post-war Europe.

Up to $15 billion in U.S. aid would be pumped into the Egyptian economy over five years.

The figure is astronomical, but Egypt now gets about $1 billion a year from this country and it could surely get more if it comes to terms with Israel.

But that's looking at the brighter side.

There are the facts, too, of deep disagreement, even distrust between Egypt and Israel, between Israel and the United States.

There is Carter's impatience with what he sees as hair-splitting.

There is his desire to move on to other international problems, which have been piling up at an accelerated rate over the last several months.

Carter has spent more of his personal time on the Arab-Israeli conflict than on any other foreign issue.

He feels he can't keep that up.

Nor is Cyrus Vance, his secretary of state, prepared to embark on open-ended shuttles to the Middle East, despite the precedent set by his predecessor, Henry Kissinger.

Should the talks with Begin fail, Carter might just wash his hands of the treaty and let Egypt and Israel try to work it out alone.

CITATION FOR OFFICER — Barbara Miller, a University Police officer at North Texas State University in Denton, displays a citation while seated in her squad car. She was cited by the NTSU Board of Regents for displaying "courageous calm in the face of danger," on Feb. 12 when she was abducted by a fugitive, escaped, was shot twice in the leg, and still made it to the University Police Station with a description of the suspect. Study Shows Rate Of Strokes Down Significantly Since '40s

BOSTON (UPI) — Strokes, the nation's third largest killer behind heart attacks and cancer, appear to have declined significantly since 1945, according to a Mayo Clinic study published in the New England Journal of Medicine.

Overall rates of stroke have decreased by 45 percent, according to Dr. Jack P. Whisnant, principal investigator of a research team at the Rochester, Minn., clinic.

"The striking thing is this is one of the chronic diseases which badly incapacitates some patients, which is clearly decreasing in new cases," Whisnant said in an interview.

Although researchers were unable to pin down the exact cause, they said improved health care methods and changes in smoking and dietary habits may be responsible.

Whisnant noted that risk factors related to the occurrence of stroke can now be identified. "And if we pay attention to them and get treatment, now we have evidence that it pays off in terms of stroke prevention," he said.

Mayo physicians studied more than 1,800 Rochester-area cases of stroke occurring between 1945 and 1974. They examined the occurrence of several major types of stroke found in all major age groups and both sexes.

Stroke — a disability of the nervous system caused by the loss of blood supply to the brain — is often caused by high blood pressure, arterial disease or a combination of both.

Whisnant said drugs that combat high blood pressure may in part be responsible for the drop, but not the major cause.

"A lot of cases of stroke are related to cardiac problems, and the more satisfactory treatment of these may be a factor," he said.

"We're also preventing some stroke by better treatment (of mild forms of stroke known as TIA), but we don't have any scientific evidence to state which is the most critical factor that has caused the decline."

Other factors that may have contributed to the improving picture are the 1964 Surgeon General's report on the health hazards of smoking and the American Heart Association announcement the same year calling for decreased intake of saturated fats and cholestrol.

"We think that (smoking) certainly could play a role," Whisnant said, "but a smoking decrease occurred in men and not in women — and stroke has declined faster in women.

"It (smoking) may be a factor, but not the critical factor. Conceivably it could also be related to better dietary habits," he said.

Whatever the cause of the overall reduction, Whisnant said, the elderly have benefited more than the younger age groups. Individuals over 80 experienced a decline of 60 percent.

Research in the next five years should provide physicians with information on what the major factor, or factors might be for the decline. "It would give us a better idea were to put pour efforts," he said.

The decline was generally slower for men than in women for certain periods of time. However, he said both men and women are now experiencing about the same overall rates of incidence.

The figures also revealed that women above the age of 75 had a higher incidence of stroke than men in the same age bracket.

HY GARDNER HAS THE ANSWER:

Glad You Asked That!

Q: Is presidential assistant Hamilton Jordan about to resign his top job in the Carter administration? — Bill Kiley, Seattle.

A: Jordan always answers that frequently asked question the same way: "I'll be here as long as the president wants me. But some day, I don't know when, I'd like to walk away from politics and get into another activity."

Q: Didn't Nelson Rockefeller "work" his way through college teaching a class of girls? — W. B., Syracuse, N.Y.

A: It wasn't work — it was play. When Rocky was at Dartmouth he taught a Sunday school class of 12-year-old girls.

Q: With spectator sports seemingly out for all the loot it can get, how come team owners haven't sold ads on the backs of their player's uniforms? — T. Mandon, Milwaukee.

A: Maybe not domestically — but in Sweden top hockey stars already carry paid advertising messages on their sweatshirts! (And, although it's not quite the same thing, don't tell us you've never seen an amateur or little league team sponsored by "Sam's Hardware" or "Joe's Bar and Grill"!)

Q: We thought dirty movies were on their last legs. Now I read that a film company has secured TV rights to some notorious X-rated epics. What's the very low-down? — D. Cameron, Pittsburgh.

A: As Variety reported, an outfit called Video Programs International has acquired "Deep Throat," "The Devil in Miss Jones," and other features for televising over cable and closed circuit TV.

Q: Before he won the heavyweight title from Muhammad Ali, then lost it to him, Leon Spinks publicly acknowledged that Ali was his idol. How does he feel about him today? — S. Walsh, Hallandale, Fla.

A: "He's still my idol," says good sport Spinks. "That hasn't changed at all. As a person he'll still be my idol before, after or during a fight."

Q: We missed Dean Martin's TV roast "honoring" Joe Namath. What goodies did we miss? — Evelyn Grippo, Los Angeles.

A: Well, here's a handful: Bruce Jenner's remark — "Joe and I have something in common; I trained for 12 years working for a career that lasted one week. Joe trained for one week for a career that lasted 12 years" ... Said comedian Joey Bishop, "It's ironic that Namath was a football star who underwent many, many operations. Yet, when it came time to sign a new contract with the Jets, he refused to take a cut!" ... Red Buttons, staring at Mark Spitz, the Olympic gold medal swimming champion, transposed an ancient motto: "If you can lead a horse to water, I'll race him" ... "Police Woman" Angie Dickinson tackled Namath's frequent fraternization with beautiful dolls — "He made more passes off the field than he did on, usually more successfully."

Q: What was Warren Beatty's first job in a theatre? — P.D., Hutchinson, Kans.

A: Warren's first job was at the old National Theater in Washington, where he was employed as a backstage rat catcher. "The only rats I ever caught," he smilingly recalled, "were onstage!"

Hospital Program Encourages Eating

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Children at Rhode Island Hospital are being served pizza, "cookie monster cookies," cakes and other foods that mothers might frown on, but the doctors don't mind a bit.

It's part of a new program to get the little patients used to a strange hospital environment and interested in eating when mom and dad are not around.

For the past month, a multicolored menu featuring Chicken Little's Chicken Leg, Ma Potter's Pizza, Chocolate Pinocchio pudding, Peter Pan pancakes and Snoopy's French Toast has been placed before the children's eyes.

"It's going great," said Thomas Salem, associate director of dietary services. "Children are definitely consuming more food these days and mealtime has become a more enjoyable time of day.

"The adult master menu has things like roast beef and Salisbury steak — things children don't necessarily do cartwheels of joy over when they're placed in front of them," Salem said.

The kid's menu is color-coded to teach children the basic food groupings — milk, meat, breads and fruits and vegetables. Each dish has a color next to it to correspond with the nutritional content code.

Pizza, for example, gets a four-color rating. "It's absolutely good for you. It has vegetables and meat in what we put on top of it, cheese for the milk category and bread," Salem said.

The appetizers, entrees and desserts were selected through a survey a few months ago of the 65 patients at the Potter building, the hospital's pediatric unit.

But not all the children's requests could be met.

"French Fries aren't on the menu because the animal fat in French Fries is not considered a good nutritional item," Salem said.

The big sellers are the chirken drumstick, apple pie and ice cream dishes.

Sorghum Plight Outlined

Growers' Loss Mounts Despite Price Increase

WASHINGTON (Special) — Comparisons of the price received by farmers for grain sorghum with the cost of producing it were given to the House Agriculture Committee here recently by the Grain Sorghum Producers Association, headquartered at Lubbock.

Mabry Foreman, a Felt, Okla., farmer and legislative vice president of the GSPA, said his comments were based on U. S. Department of Agriculture statistics.

"I'm not speaking of isolated incidents of farmers who used bad judgment," he said, "but the national averages of all sorghum farmers."

Foreman said the cost of production figures he used were based on USDA's actual and projected cost studies.

Cost of production is established by taking the total average cost (USDA figures) of producing an acre of sorghum and dividing it by the tenant's share of the crop, after deducting the expenses paid by the land owner, he said.

This gives the average net cost for tenant farmers, he added. Fifty-five percent of all the sorghum in this country is grown on a crop-share basis, he said, with the tenant paying slightly more than one-third of the total crop as rent (cost of land).

Foreman pointed out tha Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland has said average farm income is up 25 to 40 percent from the previous year.

"Here are the facts: Sorghum prices have decreased over the last five years. In January 1979, the average sorghum price received by farmers was $3.53 per hundredweight. That was up from January 1978 by 38 cents, but it was $1.43 below 1975," Foreman testified.

While the grain sorghum market price increased 38 cents last year, he said, the cost of production increased by 49 cents.

"That's an increased net loss of 11 cents per hundredweight," the GSPA official said.

"Secretary Bergland told you U. S. agriculture is healthy," Foreman continued. "The fact is that grain sorghum farmers are losing $1.84 on every 100 pounds they produce. There is nothing healthy about that. Sorghum farmers are in a worse depression today than they were a year ago."

Foreman said he often was asked why a farmer would keep planting if he knows there isn't a profit in it.

"My answer is that he has no choice if he intends to keep farming," he said. "Land and equipment maintenance cost continues. A tenant farmer must plant in order to keep his land.

"A farmer who operates on borrowed capital must at least attempt to repay it. Farming is not a business that can operate only in profitable years, even if we could know which years would be profitable.

"A farmer will continue to hang on as long as he can. When he quits, he loses the investment of a lifetime of labor and sacrifice.

"In most cases, a farming operation has been built over several generations of 12 to 16-hour workdays, frugal living, and good business management. A man doesn't abandon that until he has exhausted all resources. Today, many farmers have reached their limit."

Foreman's testimony blamed much of the present situation with feed grains on the Carter administration's "minimal implementation" of the set-aside program under the Agricultural Act of 1977.

As a result, he said, feed grain reserves were filled and surpluses actually were increased. Now, he said, "another record crop is practically guaranteed."

Another problem, Foreman said, is the administration of the reserve program.

Bergland has announced that he will demand payment of feed grain reserve loans when the market prices reaches 140 percent of the loan rate.

"This is only $4.75 per hundredweight when the average cost of production is $5.37," Foreman said.

He said this "recall" price limit sets a maximum market price because few farmers are in a financial condition to redeem the grain and hold it for higher prices.

"It, in effect, forces the grain into the market and holds maximum prices at that level until all reserves are depleted," he said.

The GSPA made these recommendations:

Price support program — Congress should establish government farm programs with price support levels (target price and-or net loan to the producer after storage and other charges are deducted) at not less than the national average total cost of production for each commodity.

Reserve program — To solve the problem of price ceilings on grain, the release prices should be established under the farmer-held reserve program at not less than full cost of production for the minimum release price and the market price at which the secretary of agriculture may call the grain out of reserve should be not less than 115 percent of the cost of production, plus carrying charges of storage, interest and so on.

YEAR	JANUARY	OCT. - SEPT. MARKET YEAR
1974	$4.03	$3.82	$4.18
1975	4.96	4.95	4.52
1976	4.06	4.23	4.70
1977	3.59	3.62	4.88
1978	3.15	3.09	5.37
1979	3.53

Increased Net Loss: $.11 more than 1 year ago

COST-PRICE COMPARISONS — This table, prepared by the Grain Sorghum Producers Association of Lubbock from U. S Department of Agriculture data, shows comparisons of prices received by U. S. sorghum farmers with the national average costs of production. It shows sorghum prices have decreased over the last five years while production costs have increased. The January price of $3.53 per hundredweight was up from a year earlier by 38 cents but it was $1.43 below the 1975 price.

GETS FARM AWARD — Horace Gilmore of Levelland, supervisor of the Farmers Home Administration in Hockley County for 33 years, is shown with a plaque he received at the recent convention of the Texas Young Farmers Association in Abilene for being named the Outstanding FmHA supervisor in Texas for 1978. Hockley FmHA Chief Gets Texas Honors

LEVELLAND (Special) — Horace Gilmore, supervisor of the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) in Hockley County for 33 years, has been named the Outstanding County FmHa Supervisor in Texas for 1978.

He was selected for the award by the Texas County Supervisors Assocation of the FmHa. He was presented a plaque at the recent convention in Abilene of the Texas Young Farmers Association.

A distinguished graduate of Texas A &M University, where he received a B. S. degree in vocational agriculture in 1937, Gilmore has been ranching for 40 years in Hockley and Cochran counties, raising registered Angus and Chianina cattle.

The Hockley County FmHA caseload included a total of 657 borrowers, including 127 operating loans, 284 emergency loans, 7 soil and water loans, 94 farm ownership loans, 118 individual housing loans, 14 guaranteed operating loans, 2 rural rental association loans, 3 loans to organizations, associations and cooperative borrowers, 7 emergency livestock loans and 1 youth loan.

Obligations for all new loans and grants for the 1978 fiscal year totaled $16.5 million. The estimate for the 1979 fiscal year is $32 million.

When Gilmore joined the FmHA here in 1946, the agency made about 100 loans totaling approximately $200,000.

Gilmore has been with the FmHA as a county and district supervisor for 40 years.

Reared on a farm at Turnersville, in Coryell County, Gilmore taught rural school and vocational agriculture at Hico and Molene for seven years.

Gilmore is a past stockholder and director of Superior Pork, Inc. He made one of the first FmHA farrow-to-finish hog loans in Texas about seven years ago.

Gilmore is an honorary Chapter Farmer of the Future Farmers of America and is an honorary State Farmer of the FHA.

He is a director of the American Chianina Cattle Association from the Southwest region, a past director of the Levelland Youth Center and of Cook Memorial Hospital at Levelland, and is an adult 4-H Club leader.

Overseas Sales Key To Farm Prosperity

By RODERICK TURNBULL
Kansas City Board of Trade

KANSAS CITY — In the popular musical comedy of a few years ago, "The Music Man," the opening song carried the message, "You Gotta Know Your Territory." The scene depicted a bunch of traveling salesmen riding a coach on a train and the theme of their conversation was that no matter what you were selling, to be a success you had to know the potential of your sales area.

More and more, the world is becoming the "territory" as a market for produce from American farms. Expansion of American exports and, in fact, the economic prosperity of U.S. farms depend to a major degree on increasing sales overseas.

But sales are not going to be increased by a fixed percentage to each and every country. The opportunities for expansion vary greatly. So, looking ahead, it behooves the American farmer, his government and the grain trade to know their territory.

In the trade and in government parlance the world currently is divided into three categories, the developed or industrial nations, the developing (poorer) nations and the centrally controlled economies, the latter being the Communist nations including the Soviet Union and the People's Republic of China.

Next in line was the Federal Republic of Germany. The next 13 in order were the Netherlands, Canada, The Soviet Union, United Kingdom, Korea, Italy, Spain, Mexico, Taiwan, Egypt, Belgium-Luxembourg, France and Iran.

The newest big market for U.S. farms has been the centrally controlled economies, the Soviet Union, Eastern Europe and the People's Republic of China. Also growing as buyers are the new oil-rich countries.

But the greatest potential for growth in food demand and U.S. exports is in the developing countries, which include some of the oil exporters.

Bob Bergland, secretary of agriculture, in a talk in Washington recently, said the developing countries now account for about 30 percent of U.S. agricultural exports.

"In these (the developing countries) increased consumer income goes to buy more and better food," the secretary explained, "whereas demand changes in the developed countries are apt to be from one type or quality food to another."

Commenting on government policy toward boosting farm exports, Bergland said, "Our market development objectives are to maintain and expand demand for U.S. products in traditional markets and to develop and fill demand in emerging markets."

He added that the developing countries (including China) now have about three-fourths of the world's population and in most of these nations incomes are increasing, a situation that suggests a tremendous potential for growth.

"World demand for agricultural commodities will continue to rise," Bergland said. "It is our belief that a world system in which trade can move relatively free in response to market forces offers the most efficient use of the world's agricultural resources — which are not infinite — in meeting demand."

It is difficult to make definite predictions for the future on food exports because so many things are involved. Weather continues as one of the most unpredictable factors.

Obviously, any country which suffers a shortfall on domestic production becomes a candidate for increased imports, at least temporarily. The Soviet Union and the People's Republic of China are the most erratic of major importers because what they buy is tied so closely with their own production. And, because of weather, both experience wide variations in domestic output.

Political decisions also become major determinants in certain countries on the volume of their imports.

But there are certain trends which appear logical for the future. One is that as the world population increases, the world will need more food. Another is that growing incomes increase demand for food plus the fact that demand rises for higher quality foods.

Thus the developed countries likely will increase their imports of feed grains, oilseed crops, fruits, vegetables and high quality meat products.

On the other hand, the developing countries will continue to need more food grains such as wheat and rice. The Federal Reserve Bank in Kansas City, in a study on export potential, observed that the People's Republic of China, a developing country, for the near future may be most concerned about meeting adequate dietary standards.

Thus for a time, maybe a decade or more, demand for food grains will increase substantially. But eventually, China, and other developing countries, will also begin to upgrade their diets and then they will shift their emphasis on imports from food grains to feed grains and oilseed (soybeans and others) crops.

Such data as mentioned here is being studied in the grain trade and obviously by the U.S. government. Future developments in the export business, as reflected in the market, will help to guide farm production in America.

Feed Yard At Hale Center Sold

HALE CENTER (Special) — Frank M. Phariss, executive vice-president and general manager of Producers Grain Corp., and Pat Shepard, president of South Plains Feed Yard, Inc., have announced the signing of a contract for the sale and purchase of Producers Grain Corp.'s South Plains Feed Yard, located eight miles west of Hale Center.

No purchase price was announced.

Although the contract calls for a closing date of April 30, there are still some details to be worked out that might delay the change in ownership.

Producers Grain Corp. retains an interest in the facilities through ownership of common stock in the new company.

Shepard indicated that there is no contemplated change in the present personnel at the South Plains Feed Yard.

Dan Valentine Elected

HOUSTON (Special) — The Texas Charolais Breeders Association has elected Dan Valentine of Whiteface as president.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

A COMPREHENSIVE REFORM OF FEDERAL farm disaster and crop insurance programs to provide producers with "more balanced insurance coverage" against losses caused by natural disaster was formally proposed to Congress this week by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The proposed Farm Production Protection Act of 1979 is the Carter administration's top priority in farm legislation for this session of Congress, said Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland.

The bill would combine the insurance programs of USDA's Federal Crop Insurance Corp., federal farm disaster indemnity and other payment programs and the subsidized interest portion of emergency loans made by the Farmers Home Administration and the Small Business Administration.

After consolidation, the USDA's Commodity Credit Corp. would be responsible for the new insurance program, and FCIC would be dissolved.

UNDER THE PROPOSAL, THE CURRENT federal disaster payment program, due to expire at the end of this year, would be extended one additional year to allow the gradual phasing in of the new program. The present disaster payment program is administered by the USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

First-year coverage would be offered on 18 crops, including, among others, barley, corn, cotton, grain sorghum and wheat. The USDA intends to expand insurance coverage into all other commercially produced farm products within 10 years.

Speciality insurance could be developed on livestock, agricultural products, prevented planting situations and others on an experimental basis.

The proposed all-risk, all-county, all-producer plan would cost no more than current federal protection, USDA said. The USDA estimates that about $632 million would be necessary to operate the program fully for the initial 18 crops. This compares with $653 million for the existing programs.

• • • •

A STANDBY GASOLINE RATIONING PLAN submitted to Congress this week by the Carter administration makes no apparent provision for a full priority for agricultural needs.

The plan covers on-farm needs but leaves all other agricultural operations the option of filing individually with the Department of Energy for a gasoline allocation during rationing.

Farm groups say this would be detrimental to full U. S. food and fiber production. They will be working with USDA during the plan's review period to try and secure a "reasonable priority category" for the complete food chain.

Meanwhile, Energy Secretary James Schlesinger predicted a serious gasoline shortage this summer and said prices could rise three to four cents by July. He added that rationing, which could cost up to $2 billion per year to administer, should be approached with caution.

Expansion Project Advancing At Plainview Oil Mill Ltd.

PLAINVIEW (Special) — A $3.5 million expansion of the Plainview Oil Mill, Ltd., is scheduled to be completed here by November.

"When we complete the project, we will have one of the newest, best designed plants in the entire oil mill industry," said Bill Quattlebaum, executive vice president and general manager.

The mill, first opened in 1965 to crush castor beans, was renamed from Plains Co-Op Mill when a group of area farmers and ginners purchased the facility last summer.

Although currently involved in an interim-type crush of sunflower seed, the facility will be undergoing the massive construction project starting almost immediately and will be ready to begin receiving cotton seed the first of November.

"The mill not only will have solvent extraction but mescilla refining, which enables us to sell refined cottonseed or vegetable oils instead of crude oil," Quattlebaum explained.

Using the latest equipment, the facility will be able to handle up to 275 tons of cotton seed per day with annual purchases estimated at 90,000 tons per year.

"We will be paying area gins about $13,410,000 for their commodity, which in turn should help out the farmer," Quattlebaum said.

The meal from the milling operation will be sold to area feedlots as livestock feed. Quattlebaum expects the plant to have annual sales of $19 million to $20 million, including oil, meal, hulls and lint.

At the height of the milling season the plant will employ about 85 to 90 workers.

There now are 28 persons working at the plant, but Quattlebaum expects an annual payroll of almost $1 million after renovations are completed.

The facility is unique in the area in that it offers limited partnerships to area independent ginners.

"The gins will be 50 percent owners in the oil mill," Quattlebaum said. "This is the first time in this area where the gins actually are part-owners of an oil mill itself."

As limited partners, the ginners will be able to share profits based on the amount of cotton seed they bring to the mill. However, the mill will serve other gins as a conventional oil mill, whether they are a limited partner or not.

The general partners, in addition to Quattlebaum, are nine Dawson County cotton farmers and ginners, including Frank and Jerry Jones, Charles and Bobby Warren, George and Randy Eiland, Jerry Harris, A. J. Broyles and James Grammar.

"To show the scope of the mill's operation, our capitalization is $5.25 million," Quattlebaum said.

"Of the 23 oil mills in Texas, we are one of only five locally owned and independently operated...The corporate arrangement is such that we are trying to get a congenial, compatible group of general and limited partners together to work as a team to insure a stable price. Also, it gives ginners an additional source of revenue which they can pass on to their producers. It helps cut out one of the middlemen."

Although geared toward crushing cotton seed, the plant will be able to handle all types of oil seed — sunflower seeds, soybeans, peanuts or sesame seeds. The plant currently is finishing a crush of sunflower seeds that began in November.

"We sold about 5 million pounds of this oil to Frito-Lay, so before long we might be eating corn chips fried in Plainview sunflower oil," he said.

All contracts for the updating and expansion project have been let and actual construction should start immediately, Quattlebaum said. All machinery for the new portions of the facility is to be delivered by July 25.

"The mill will be able to use every part of the cotton seed when we get into full operation," he said. "First of all, the seeds will undergo a delinting process with the lint being cleaned and baled.

"This lint is an important source of cellulose used in making plastics, paper and gunpowder. The lint also is used in upholstery for padding."

The meal is used in cattle feed and the refined oil is used in cooking oil and in making margarine. The hulls are important to the oil exploration industry, serving as loss circulation material in oil well drilling. They also are used as a roughage in cattle feeding rations.

Quattlebaum is a native of Abilene and a graduate of Texas Tech. Reared in the ginning industry, he was with Anderson Clayton & Co. for 22 years, the last seven in oil mill management at the Lubbock oil mill.

He is a past president of the Texas Cotton Ginners Assoication and the Texas Independent Ginners Association and a past director of the Oklahoma Cotton Exchange.

A. J. Franklin, a former resident of Plainview, oversees the 40-acre operation as mill superintendent. He has 28 years of experience in the oil mill industry as mill superintendent, sales engineer and master mechanic.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Buying by local traders and a shortage of wheat in Chicago warehouses pushed wheat futures to new season's highs today on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Analysts said commission house and local trading pushed wheat futures 2 to 8 3/4 cents higher. The maturing of the March futures contract has highlighted the shortage of wheat in Chicago deliverable against it, analysts said.

Soybean futures rose by 3 1/2 to 9 cents a bushel in generally quiet trading. Reports of heavy deliveries against the March contract pushed nearby prices lower early in the session, but renewed buying came in sympathy with higher silver prices.

Reports that Pakistan bought 10,000 tons of soybean oil and a 20,000-ton oil sale to unknown destinations helped support prices in the soybean complex. Taiwan also reportedly bought 198,000 tons of U.S. corn.

At the close, soybeans were 3 1/2 to 9 cents higher, with March contracts quoted at $7.53 1/2; wheat was 2 to 8 3/4 cents higher, March $3.84 1/2; corn was 1/4 cent lower to 1/2 cent higher, March $2.36 1/4; and oats were 1/2 to 2 cents higher, March $1.30.

Cotton Futures

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures No. 2 closed $1.10 to $5.25 a bale lower Thursday.

The average price for strict low middling 11-16 inch spot cotton declined 84 points to 59.42 cents a pound Wednesday for the ten leading markets, according to the New York Cotton Exchange.

HIGH PLAINS COTTON
U. S. Department of Agriculture

Trading on the Lubbock spot cotton market Thursday was slow. Supplies of cotton for sale were heavy and demand was light.

LUBBOCK SPOT COTTON

Quotations are the approximate prices reported to the Agricultural Marketing service for qualities equal to the U.S. Official Grade and Staple Standards. Prices are for micronaire (mike) readings of 3.5 through 4.9, in mixed lots, uncompressed, free of all charges in the warehouse in the market.

Price trend: steady on Thursday.

Livestock Contracts Soar Anew

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 92 points higher to 5 lower on 25,895 cars Thursday on the Chiago Mercantile Exchange. April was up the most after climbing 115 with only December ranging lower.

The advance carried all contracts to new highs for the season with April up to a new historic high at 72.25. The market rallied sharply after slipping 5 in distant August. Limit high feeder cattle futures generated buying as did continued strength in cash cattle and beef.

Wholesale beef was unchanged at 98 to 99 cents a pound, f.o.b. river points, which is a record high. Cash cattle were steady to up $1 with the best top $68.50 per hundredweight. Slaughter was 129,000 head. The major markets are expecting about 3,650 head today.

Feeder cattle futures closed 27 to the daily limit level of 150 higher led by March through May at the limit. Sales totaled 3,646 lots. The limit advance was the second in a row with March and April locked limit up most of the day.

The advance lifted all contracts to new seaosn's highs with April rising to a new historic high at 90.10. Aggressive short covering continued and traders also noted good demand from commercial feeders.

Deliveries total 23 thus far. Cash feeder cattle were steady to firm with the best top $124 per hundredweight at Oklahoma City. About 2,125 head are expected today at the major terminals.

Hog futures closed 27 to 80 higher led by April at only a tick away from the day's high. Volume was estimated at 5,541 contracts. The market rallied after an early loss of 17 in July on weakness in cash hogs.

The reduced hog supply along with continued strength in the cattle complex sparked short covering and other buying as did firmer tone to pork products at noon.

Wholesale hams were unchanged to up 2 1/2 cent at 85 to 89 cents a pound, f.o.b. river. Cash hogs were steady to off $1 with the best top $54 per hundredweight, which is a six-week low at Omaha. Kill was 287,000 head. Receipts at the major markets today are expected to be 20,800 head.

Pork belly (bacon) futures closed 110 to 137 higher led by March with all contracts at the day's highs. Sales totalled 4,842 cars. Prices rallied after an early loss of 20 in August extended Wednesday's selling.

Support on the break came from continuing strength in the cattle complex and firmer tone to cash bellies after earlier softness.

CLEAN UP FOR NIAGRA

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — Niagara Falls has hired a public relations firm to help clean up an image tarnished by pollution problems at a former chemical dump in the city's Love Canal area. The City Council earlier this week voted to pay $28,000 to Doremus Co., of New York, to quell any tourists' fears about the chemical dump, now a state and federal emergency site.

Identifying Pest Helps Problem

By EARL ARONSON
Associated Press Writer

Keep your garden clean, inspect plants frequently, don't be queasy about picking off some bugs by hand, and you won't have too much trouble with insects. Some insects are easy to treat with insecticides, and you can pick off caterpillars, loopers and hornworms and destroy them. But cabbage-family attackers such as small green cabbage worms can be troublesome.

Some plants don't have have consistent bug troubles big enough to require regular spraying or dusting. If insecticides are needed, they will probably include methoxychlor, rotenone, Sevin, malathion, diazinon and-or pyrethrins, which are quite safe as long as you follow instructions.

Some insecticides may be banned in your state, so check.

Identifying the culprit insect will help you control the problem. So here is some identification and treatment information regarding some common destructive ones:

APHIDS: These small juice-sucking insects are with us from spring to late fall. They are soft-bodied, come in many sizes, shapes and colors and reduce plant vigor. They can also carry diseases. They can hurt the appearance of ornamentals by secreting a clear, sticky liquid that adheres to leaves and twigs. A mold fungus lives on the liquid and gives the plant a blackened appearance. When the weather is cool and damp, aphids are a major problem. Spray with malathion or diazinon preparations, covering all parts of the foliage. Ladybirds help control the aphid population.

ROSE CHAFER: This one enjoys rose buds and leaves but can seriously damage grapes, apples and other plants. It is one half-inch long, has a reddish-brown head and body and black underbelly. The body is covered with short yellow hair. Control with thorough sprays of malathion or Sevin, 7-10 days apart, first when the insects appear in early June.

OYSTERSHELL SCALE: Attacks woody plants, causing retardation of growth and yellowing of leaves. Evidence is grayish-brown scales, one-eighth-inch long, on the bark. Eggs hatch at apple-blossom time, small crawlers emerge from scale coverings and suck plant juices all summer. Control with malathion, Sevin or diazinon, starting late in May.

LECANIUM SCALE: This oval, mahogany-colored juice sucker also likes woody plants, robbing vigor and causing leaves to yellow and wither. In late spring or summer spray with malathion, Sevin or diazinon, repeating in 10 days.

MITES: This tiny pest, one of the most destructive to shrubs, flowers and trees, is barely visible to the naked eye. It is related to the spider, has four legs and as an adult lays eggs. Mites increase rapidly in dry, hot weather and may cause leaves of deciduous trees to fall early and conifers to brown. Spray foliage thoroughly with Tedion or Kelthane every four days for three weeks. Kelthane kills mites; Tedion destroys eggs.

LEAFHOPPERS: Dark brown to green, these insects suck juices from apples, raspberries, trees and some herbaceous flowers. They love honey locust trees. Foliage attacked becomes pale with specks of greenish-white on the leaf underside. Overwintering in the egg stage, the nymphs appear in June and there are several generations each year. Spray with Sevin wettable powder or malathion concentrate.

You can avoid harmful residues from sprays by making sure the correct number of days elapse between the time the last spray or dust application is made and the time the crop is harvested.

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW

by Whipple and Borth

Solon Sponsors Legislation Requiring Buyer Information

AUSTIN (AP) — Northerners escaping to the South Texas coast should know before they buy a beach cottage that a hurricane might destroy it in the next three decades, a Senate committee has heard.

"As certain as we sit here, a hurricane's going to rip through there (South Padre Island)," Sen. A.R. "Babe" Schwartz, D-Galveston, said.

"Persons investing their life savings in property need to be protected against loss of that property," he told the Senate Natural Resources Committee.

"South Padre Island today is what Galveston Island was in 1900 except the construction is prettier," Schwartz said, referring to a hurricane that killed 6,000 people at the turn of the century in Galveston.

Schwartz is sponsoring a bill that would require real estate agents to inform prospective buyers of propery hazards, including fault lines, eroding shorelines and channel washouts.

The next hurricane to hit the Texas coast will cost $1 billion in insurance losses, he said.

Under the statewide wind storm insurance pool, future hurricane losses eventually will be paid by policyholders throughout the state, he added.

"It'll mean a 25 percent statewide rate hike when a hurricane comes, plus the 25 percent hike along the coast," the senator said.

Gerhardt Schulle Jr. of the Texas Association of Realtors opposed the bill. He said it picked on real estate agents.

"If you want to be a crook, you could sell your own home and this bill wouldn't affect you," Schulle said. Under Schwartz's bill, real estate agents could lose their license for not disclosing property hazards.

Schulle said lawyers and persons who sell their property without an agent would not be covered by the bill.

Woman Challenges Country Bill At His Own 'Burial' Game

GRAND PRAIRIE (UPI) — Country Bill White is having a hard time getting himself buried, but he's experienced at that sort of thing and there's a special challenge this time so he vows it's going to happen this week.

Last time White, 45, spent 134 days, two hours and 55 minutes buried underground in New Bedford, Mass. — setting the world record — but in discussing that feat on a television talk show he said he made a mistake.

Country Bill said he didn't think a woman should stay underground that long, and within days Linda Barker, 26, from Henderson, Tenn., challenged him. The whole show, including White, Miss Barker, a promoter and manager, moved to suburban Dallas to have it out, or, rather, under.

"Bill likes Texas and this is going to be his last burial (at least his next to last) and so he wanted to have it here," said the manager, Otha Reddick.

Bill's been buried seven times before, but he said he's never had such trouble as this time.

"First it was the rain last weekend," White said. "The telephone company and the electric company couldn't get the telephones and electricity into the box.

"Then they were taking the box off in a pickup to a place where they could keep it dry and it fell off the truck and busted all to hell. So we got to build another box. They're working on it and they say they'll have it finished.

"If it all comes together, we'll do it Friday. I'd say we're going to do it Friday. I want to get started and get it over with because I got other things to do."

Miss Barker and White will be buried in a double coffin which is 6 feet, by 6 feet by 3 feet. They'll be separated by a three-quarter-inch plywood partition. The coffin will have ventilation chutes at their heads, telephones and electricity. Food will be passed down a pipe, and people on the outside also will be able to look at them through the pipe.

The telephone number has not been released yet, but when it is White said he expects calls from all over the world, as he has received during past burials.

White, of Bonifay, Fla., is a stunt man who said he has "done it all."

"I was an alligator wrestler, rode the bell in a motorcycle, I do trick parachuting. One thing I'm going to do is attempt to drive a car out of an airplane and parachute down in it. I'll do it as soon as the engineers get it so I won't kill my fool self."

White protested that Miss Barker misunderstood him in the television broadcast.

"I didn't say women couldn't do it," he said. "I said they shouldn't do it. I figure women have a lot more problems under there than a man, just cause they are a woman.

"Why? Well, women are different. For instance, they have to go to the bathroom a different way a man would. They got to wash their hair every day and all that sort of thing.

"We're going to stay down there until somebody gives up. I got the world record, and I am going to defend my world record."

The site of the burial is the "entertainment strip" at 2515 West Jefferson in Grand Prairie.

INTRODUCING
THE 21 DAY LAWN

It may sound incredible, but it's a fact. You will be mowing your new lawn three weeks after EVERGREEN Landscape & Maintenance installs it. We accomplish this by utilizing a revolutionary process called HYDRO-MULCHING, whereby seed, water, fertilizer, and a wood fiber mulch are mixed together and sprayed over the ground. This process greatly increases seed germination and assures a quick, uniform, thick stand of grass. Discounts on Bermuda Grass.

ARRANGES 'EVENTS' — This is Bonnie Schachter, who runs "Rent-An-Event." For a given price she'll arrange any event that is within the bounds of law and decency. She's rented things from $5,000 Roman orgies, to $1,000 breakfasts complete with Dom Perignon champaigne, caviar, strawberries tarisiennee, fresh roses and whatever else you might fancy with your cafe-au-lait, not excluding belly dancers. (AP Laserphoto)

Renting Event Excites Customer's Senses

By JULES LOH

NEW YORK (AP) — Bonnie Schachter is five-three, black eyes, a face as bubbly as the Dom Perignon champagne she pours for breakfast. Not her breakfast. Yours — if you're willing to fork over, say, $1,000.

The fee also covers the caviar, strawberries Parisienne, fresh roses and whatever else you might fancy with your cafe au lait not excluding belly dancers.

Miss Schachter runs an outfit called Rent-An-Event.

Any event. Any, that is, within the bounds of the law and decency but not of extravagance. Just the other day, the prospects in New Orleans being what they were, she rented to a New Yorker his own Mardi Gras.

"We had a float, jazz band, sword swallowers, fire eaters, a fantastic meal," she bubbled. "We put the whole thing on in a Fifth Avenue apartment. How much? Just $3,500."

That's nothing. She once rented, for $5,000, a Roman orgy. It did not overlook togas, fountains, a suckling pig on a spit and a barefoot grape-stomper who sang opera.

She rents less grand events.

A customer needed understanding. She rented a Jewish mother.

A group in Queens, angry with a neighbor who wouldn't tidy up his property, summoned Bonnie Schachter. She rented Lady Godiva, in a body stocking, galloping a white horse through the neighborhood shouting, "Mr. Jones is a litterbug."

A Manhattan dame wanted a birthday surprise for her husband, a man who, of course, had everything. She buzzed Miss Schachter.

When the big day arrived the indulgent wife shook her spouse awake and led him to the window. Across the street, on the broad steps of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, in the first rays of morning, 10 ballerinas danced. "Just for you, dear."

"What I do," Bonnie Schachter said, "is put emotions in motion for people for whom money is no object. There are lots of them.

"I feed egos. People who are too busy or too lazy or too unimaginative to think up ideas themselves call me. It's fun. I've done about 200 events so far."

Miss Schachter, who is 26, got into the events business last August by way of the tour-guide business.

Oddly, her calling after college was not to indulge the privileged but to help the handicapped. She organized tours for blind tourists — "tactile tours" — and for the deaf.

"I relied on exciting the senses of taste and touch and smell. That's what I do with Rent-An-Event, excite the senses."

She operates a theatrical talent agency for physically disabled artists and actors, Momentum Talent Management, but, at least at this stage, Rent-An-Event is what subsidizes the talent agency.

Has any Rent-An-Event request stumped her?

"Yes, one. A big Texan wanted to wrestle a woman wrestler in the mud. I couldn't put it together. No, I didn't ask why he wanted to do that. What can I tell you? He was a Texan."

LOT OF POWER

Earthquakes worldwide annually generate the power equivalent of 300 billion kilowatt hours — enough to keep New York City, at its current rate of usage, in electricity for 10 years.

Agency Claims Study Justified

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Transportation Department says it was justified in spending $120,126 to develop an experimental, backward-steering motorcycle.

Department spokesman Hal Paris says the experiment was designed to examine problems "inherent in motorcycle design," such as braking and maneuverability. "We believe the study is justified," he said.

Sen. William Proxmire disagrees. He awarded the department his monthly "Golden Fleece" award for wasteful federal spending.

The Wisconsin Democrat said the Transportation Department awarded the contract despite a report from the National Highway Safety Administration that the motorcycle "would be difficult if not impossible to steer."

He said that after 19 months of testing, the contractor was able to produce a motorcycle whose record run was 2.5 seconds — and with training wheels at that.

Proxmire said government officials insisted the testing continue despite objections from the contractor. He said the final results of the "Advanced Concept Motorcycle" will be submitted in the near future.

President Accepts Two Suggestions

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter apparently has accepted suggestions to nominate Richard L. Williams of Richmond and James P. Jones of Abingdon to fill two of four new federal court judgeships in Virginia.

Sen. Harry F. Byrd, I-Va., says he has been advised that Carter accepted the two from a list of 10 white men proposed by Byrd. The Justice Department and civil rights groups have attempted to get Byrd to add women and blacks to the list of potential judges. A Justice Department spokesman said no decision had been made on how the other two vacancies would be filled.

Turkey's Democracy Strained By Extremists

By JULIUS B. HUMI

ISTANBUL, Turkey (UPI) — Turkey appears to be at a dangerous crossroad in its history.

After 60 years of relative stability and economic growth, the country's democracy is being strained by extremists from the left and right while its economy totters perilously close to bankruptcy.

In Istanbul, one of the 13 Turkish cities under martial law, heavily armed commandos in twos and threes patrol the crowded, winding streets. They disconcert the foreign visitor with their weapons at the ready, although local residents seem to take them for granted by now.

In one of the city's best known restaurants plainclothes policemen, with light machine guns slung over their shoulders, interrupted diners, politely but firmly checking identities and looking for unauthorized arms.

Officials estimate that in 1978 more than 800 Turks, mostly college and high school students, were killed in political violence.

But even martial law has not been able to bring peace to this ancient intersection of Eastern and Western civilizations.

The latest victims of sectarian violence have been two of Turkey's leading journalists. Abdi Ipecki, editor of the centerist Istanbul newspaper Milliyet, was gunned down in early February. His assailants are still at large.

Last week Ardogan Hancerlioglu, owner of the right wing newspaper Hursoz, was shot dead as he walked to his home.

"Something has got to change and we think it will be soon," said one newspaper publisher. "We need strong government and we don't have it."

The government they do have is led by sometime poet Bulent Ecevit. Ecevit's main rival is Suleyman Demirel, leader of the rightist Justice Party, a man who has ruled Turkey on and off since the mid 1960s.

The center of political debate here is the economy. Turkey's total foreign debt is more than $12 billion, most of it owed to banks and corporations in West Germany and the United States.

The debt was built up over years of government support for unwieldy, overmanned and uneconomic state enterprises which lost almost $2 billion in 1978. Added to this has been Turkey's tendency to borrow abroad to pay for oil imports, which do not in themselves produce new capital.

Widespread tax evasion has not helped the economy either.

"Turks have some $10 billion in foreign accounts," said one Turkish newsman. "If they brought it all back, it would wipe out half the country's debt."

The main reason Turks are putting their money in foreign banks is because their own currency is losing value daily. The annual inflation rate is estimated to be about 40 percent.

The injections of foreign aid required to stabilize the Turkish economy have many political strings attached. Ecevit knows his country needs money to begin paying off its foreign debts, but he does not want to leave himself politically exposed by caving in to foreign demands to restructure the economy or make concessions to Greece on Cyprus.

Most foreign banks are holding off sending the Turks any more dollars until they comply with International Monetary Fund recommendations to devalue their currency, restrict the money supply, and cut govenment subsidies to uneconomic state companies.

Also, American aid has been curtailed because of Turkey's unwillingness to withdraw from areas it invaded in Cyprus in 1974.

"We must fix the Greek problem," said one influential newspaper executive. "Why should 45 million Turks suffer for the sake of 85,000?" — the number of Turks who live on Cyprus.

The Americans may look more kindly on aid to Turkey now that they have lost, at least temporarily, key intelligence bases in Iran. Only the U.S. bases in Turkey, which listen to missile testing and troop movements in the southern Soviet Union, can replace the Iranian outposts.

Given Turkey's strategic importance to NATO defenses, many Western analysts are worried that turmoil in Iran might spill across the border and spark a similar "Islamic revolution" in Turkey.

But most Turks reject such a scenario. Said one observer: "We have no Khomeini and the Turkish army serves the state, not a single ruler like the shah."

POOH BRIDGE CALLING

HARTFIELD, England (AP) — Pooh Bridge, the wooden bridge made famous by A.A. Milne in histories about Pooh Bear, is in danger of collapse. Two neighboring councils disagree about the future of the bridge at Cotchford Farm, where Milne wrote the books.

KIDS-ONLY CLUB

Old Games Still Fun

By SHARI LEWIS

Next time you and a group of friends have a party, club meeting (or are just plain stuck indoors) you don't necessarily have to look for something new to do. Some of the old games are fun, too, if you haven't played 'em in a while.

For example, try the "Who Am I" game. Go through old magazines and cut out pictures, all of one sort (all animals, or things with wheels, or foods). Everyone gets a picture taped to his back. Then, one at a time, each person stands in front of the others and asks questions, trying to figure out what sort of food (or animal, or whatever) is attached to his back.

As in 20 questions, the answers can only be "yes" or "no." (Questions like: Am I a nut? Am I brightly colored? Is that color yellow? Do I grow in the ground? Do I have a shell? are the very best.)

YESTERDAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: Two men played checkers. Each played five games and each won the same number of games, with no draws. Can you figure out how?

ANSWER: They didn't play each other.

TODAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: What day of the year is a command? (Look for the answer in Sunday's Kids-Only Club column.)

Once-Avid Fans Down On Stocks

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Yes, the stock market is still there, but like Billy Carter, it is considerably less obvious of late, exhausted after having caused another of those spasmodic commotions for which it is famous.

Too much else is going on anyway, and so its ordinarily avid fans seem to have forgotten it. In view of high interest and international uncertainties and energy shortages, they ask, where can it go?

No matter that old pros claim to be loading up on bargains, as the legends tell us. No matter that the tiny, 8.1 price-earnings ratio of the Dow Jones industrial average, seems to confirm the bargain thesis.

Can such tempting prospects for distant gains compete with the glossy promises of the gold pushers? Isn't the vision of gold at $300 an ounce sometime this year more thrilling than a 10-cent dividend increase?

Gold has hardly lost its ancient luster, and every time it seems about to gather tarnish there comes a messiah proclaiming it to be the light to follow. It's a cult, the stock brokers say. But cults convert.

Some cult leaders, in fact, magically transmute the economic despair of their followers into gold in their own rather than client pockets. Geared to the despairing, their survival seminars are big money.

But not all those who despair of the stock market switch to gold. They move to fixed income securities such as bonds, for example, or to the relatively new money market mutual funds.

The latter pool the funds of their shareowners and buy into securities yielding high interest returns. In January, $13.4 billion was held by these funds. A year earlier, the total was only $4.6 billion.

Analysis

They're still growing swiftly. In January alone, says the Investment Company Institute, an industry group, $2.5 billion was added to their assets. And indications are that the trend continued in February.

Farsighted? Hard to say. But Merrill Lynch Economics, which has a pretty fair reputation, foresees the prime rate, the commercial paper rate and the three-month bill rate plunging in 1979.

All those are short-term rates, the kind favored by the money market mutual funds. But M-L also expects declines in long term rates, such as for mortgages, and for corporate, municipal and government bonds.

Other potential stock market investors have been sinking their money into six-month savings certificates at savings institutions, earning for this minimal effort a return of more than 10 percent, pretax.

No matter that General Motors offers 11 percent, Ford almost 9 and Texaco more than 8. Stocks are out. The crowd crowds, as they say. They move together into the latest rage, and that's anything but stocks.

Meanwhile, back on Wall Street, what are the successful professionals saying? Nothing that they haven't been saying for years: That the small investor shouldn't try to outguess the marketplace.

Such an attitude seems heavy with pomposity and condescension, which is probably so. And maybe loaded with hypocrisy as well, because pros also have been known to lose their socks trying to beat the odds.

But history does provide some evidence that in-out trading doesn't do much for a person's portfolio except reduce it by the size of the commissions paid. Better, it is said, to hold for the long term.

While nobody can say where the stock market is headed, it wouldn't be surprising some day to see returning to stocks the prodigal children who fled into gold, the survival cults and fixed-interest securities.

They will come, say the old hands on Wall Street, when stocks are back in favor. When they are "in." And when anything is in, they say, those trying to get in are simply out. It's too late..

States Named 'Mild Belt'

WILMINGTON, Ohio (UPI) — First came the "Sun Belt," then the "Frost Belt," and now, if a Wilmington College professor has his way, comes the "Mild Belt."

"Sun Belt" terminology came into use to describe that warm, inviting expanse of Southern and Southwestern states. Then, of course, Northern states picked up the tab "Frost Belt."

Now, Wilmington College economics department chairman Dr. Martin Giesbrecht has labeled those states inbetween the "Mild Belt" in order to make a business pitch for them.

"As oil and gas prices go up," Geisbrecht says, "industry may find it too costly to operate the air conditioning units needed in the 'Sun Belt.' High heating costs likewise rules out the 'Frost Belt.'

"That leaves us with the 'Mild Belt,' that part of the country embracing southern Ohio, Kentucky, a small part of West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee, southern Illinois and Indiana, most of Missouri and Kansas and the cooler parts of Oklahoma, Texas and New Mexico.

"Only in the 'Mild Belt' are the winters reasonably short and not too cold and the summers not unbearably hot," says Geisbrecht.

Stability Of Population Indicates Range Quality

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Fewer young eagles and ospreys hatched last year on national forest land in Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota than in peak years, but wildlife officials say the eagle population is stabilizing.

The stability of those two predators, whose numbers have declined drastically during this century, has been viewed as an indication of the environmental quality of their ranges.

Aerial surveys of seven national forests in the three states are made twice each year — first in April to observe how many nests contain incubating parents, and the second in July to count fledglings.

The highest production rate was recorded in 1976 when 71 percent of nesting pairs of eagles and 60 percent of ospreys contained fledglings, the U.S. Forest Service said.

Last year, 22 eaglets were counted compared with 212 the year before. The 44 osprey counted last year was the lowest total reported since the 39 counted in 1969.

Officials said the lower osprey birth rate may have been caused by storms and low temperatures during last year's nesting season.

"Despite the increase in eaglet fledglings, populations appear to be stabilizing because pairs of eagles were observed in 264 territories during 1978," the forest service said. "This compares favorably with an average of 266 pairs for the previous five years."

Officials said activity on state and private lands in the three states equals that on national forest lands. In addition, 67 percent of the total production of eaglets in the contiguous 48 states is concentrated in the Midwest and 38 percent in the Great Lake states.

The eagle, highly sensitive to human encroachment, has been listed as a threatened species in all of the lake states.

Teen-Ager Charged In Hired Murder

CLEVELAND (AP) — An 18-year-old man accused of accepting $60 from two teen-agers for killing their father has been charged with aggravated murder.

Jerome Watkins appeared in municipal court Wednesday. At the request of the prosecutor, no bond was set, and Watkins remained jailed at the Justice Center. Police said tests were underway to determine if a .38-caliber pistol taken from a west side house on Tuesday, the day after Watkins was arrested, is the one which killed John White Sr. on Feb. 9. White's son and daughter were arrested nine days later and charged with delinquent aggravated murder.

State Senate Approves Speed Limit Resolution

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas needs no advice from Northeastern states in setting its highway speed limits, the Senate said Thursday.

By voice vote the Senate approved and sent to the House a resolution asking Congress to abolish the national 55 mile-per-hour speed limit and let the states set their own.

"This is exactly the same resolution Oklahoma and several other states have passed," said Sen. John Traeger, D-Seguin.

"It is ridiculous for states with about three miles of straight away to tell Texas and other states with good highway systems what to do."

Traeger's resolution, if approved by the House and Gov. Bill Clements, would be forwarded to the president and all members of the Texas delegation.

"Since the national speed limit has increased shipping times and costs, the fuel-saving benefits have not been substantiated, the motorists have not been complying with such causing enforcement officers to be called from the more dangerous two-laned roads," the resolution said. "The Senate and House of the state of Texas join in support with U.S. Sen. S.I. Hayakawa in maintining tha the right to set such standards be left to the states and as such support the efforts of Sen. Hayakawa in abolishing the natial speed limit of 55 miles per hour."

Following passage of the resolution, Sen. Walter Mengden, R-Houston, made a special privilege speech saying federal plans for gasoline rationing discriminated against Texas and other states in the South and Southwest.

Mengden, a member of the Southwest Energy Council, said if rationing is started as planned after a 25 percent reduction in the supply of gasoline, the federal government plans to give Pennsylvania motorist coupons for 94.6 percent of their normal supply while Texans would get only 65.9 percent.

Mengden estimated Texas would lose $70 million to $75 million in state revenue from the rationing.

The House passed, 132-2, and sent to Gov. Bill Clements a bill requiring health insurance policies that cover eye care to pay optometrists as well as medical doctors.

House members approved and sent to the Senate a bill plugging a loophole left when lawmakers passed the Natural Resources Code last session. The measure restores the General Land Office's authority to lease public land for dent of any minerals, not merely oil and gas.

A bill empowering the Texas Board of Corrections to lease unused land for any purpose for up to 20 years won tentative approval on voice vote. Currently, the board may execute mineral leases only.

P&Z Grants Radio Station's Zoning Request

By PAULA TILKER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Planning and Zoning Commission Thursday modified, then approved a request by KFYO, Inc., to change the zoning of its transmitter site north of 82nd Street and east of Quaker Avenue.

The radio station and South Plains Broadcasting, Inc., both of whom own the tract, had requested a change from single family residential (R-1) to R-1 specific use and local retail (C-2).

However, the commission decided to approve the specific use portion but radically diminished the C-2 area, opting to leave most of it R-1.

The radio station plans to move its operation from downtown Lubbock to the transmitting site. Representatives for the station argued to commissioners that residences in the area would be impractical because radio signals wuold disrupt television reception.

However, the commission agreed with Planning Director Jim Bertram that to turn the entire section over to retail usage would be strip zoning.

The commission also approved a request by the YWCA to amend a site plan to allow expansion of the existing YWCA building.

The site is south of 35th Street and west of Flint Avenue.

Georgia Wilson Dingus, represented by Ralph Brock, won commission approval for a change from R-1 to neighborhood retail (C-1) property located north of 81st Street and east of Ash Avenue.

All commission recommendations are forwarded to the City Council for final approval.

The commission denied Dalton Ellis' request for zone changes on a multiple-family (R-3) tract east of Avenue P and south of Loop 289. He had requested general retail (C-3) and high density apartment (A-2) zoning.

Commissioners also approved requests by:

—MBFA Housing, Inc., a nonprofit foundation, for a zone change on property south of 51st Streeet and west of Albany Avenue. The change from R-1 and R-2 to family apartment (A-1) zoning will allow the building of a housing complex for the elderly.

—Tinker Development, Inc., to amend a zoning ordinance to allow storage of merchandise in conjunction with retail sales east of Villa Drive and south of 54th Street.

—Royce Lewis III for R-1 specific use on an R-2 tract west of Slide Road and north and south of 73rd Street. Townhouses will be built on the site.

—Ken Williams for A-2 zoning on an R-2 tract to expand an apartment complex south of Sixth Street and east of Avenue X.

—Sam Reyes to change R-1 to R-2 on land south of 74th Street and east of Utica Avenue.

—Commercial Concrete Construction Company for C-2 zoning on a C-3 lot to permit a restaurant on property east of Utica Avenue and south of 48th Street.

Player Finds Life Involves Give, Take

quickly, maybe.

One day, my mom told me, Kent, your head's getting too big for your shoulders.... Your talents are not yours; they come from God. He gave you your body, your strength, and your determination to play basketball.

As the importance of those words began to sink in, I realized my height — which I'd regarded as a trial all the time I was growing up — had become a gift. God had given me something to help me at what I wanted to do.

It meant that I had responsibilities, too. One day I was about to enter a store just as a mother and her little boy were coming out. I took the top of the door and held it open as they walked out under my arm. As I started in, the little fellow dashed to the next door and tried to open it as I had done. Go through, Mommy, he said, go through.

The little guy was trying to imitate me! I was learning that God did have a purpose for me, so I studied the Bible for guidance.

One passage in I Timothy 4:6 (Living Bible) seemed to speak right to me: Bodily exercise is all right, but spiritual exercise is much more important.... So exercise yourself spiritually and practice becoming a better Christian....

I made my mind that whatever I did, I would do it for Jesus Christ.

Although my senior season at Indiana started out poorly, I looked forward to joining the professional league.

Then, in the twenty-third game of the season, with only four games left to go, we played Purdue. Attempting to block a shot, I collided with one of their players and found myself staring at the ceiling while pain shot through me. X-rays taken at the hospital showed two broken bones, and muscles torn in my lower back.

It seemed a cruel trick. If I'd taken that earlier pro offer I never would have been hurt in a game against Purdue.

God, I tried to let You take care of my life, I prayed as I lay in that hospital bed. Am I going to lose everything? And then I stopped to think. What was it Father Higgins had said? What you make of yourself is your gift to God. What had my mother said? Your talents are not yours; they come from God. What had the Bible said? Practice becoming a better Christian.

When I let those thoughts displace frustration, the answer seemed plain: God had a plan for my future, and if I was finished with basketball, it was all right. He would have other things for me to do. I slept soundly that night, knowing that the load on my shoulders was light, indeed, as long as I gave my trust to God.

Estes Ordered To Stand Trial

DALLAS (AP) — Paroled financial manipulator Billie Sol Estes and three associates have been ordered to stand trial May 14 on federal charges similar to those which landed Estes in prison in the early 1960s.

Estes was released on a personal recognizance bond Thursday after pleading innocent at arraignment here to federal fraud and conspiracy charges.

U.S. District Judge Sarah T. Hughes ordered Estes and his three co-defendants to be tried in the court of U.S. District Judge Robert Hill.

In the 1960s, Estes stockpiled a fortune on mortgages using non-existent anhydrous ammonia tanks as collateral. He was convicted of fraud in 1963, sentenced to 15 years in prison and paroled in 1971.

One of the new indictments spells out a similar scheme to bilk investors using non-existent oil field steam cleaners.

Co-defendants Sue Goolsby of Abilene, Raymond K. Horton of Midland, and M.L. Copenhaver of Houston also pleaded innocent to the charges.

Attorneys for Miss Goolsby, Horton and Copenhaver also indicated they would file motions to dismiss the indictments, to continue the trial or separate the defendants.

Estes' attorney, G. Brockett Irwin, objected to the arraignment, saying a federal judge in Fort Worth had not yet ruled on his motions stemming from an Oct. 18, 1978, plea agreement. U.S. District Judge Eldon Mahon rejected that plea agreement in January.

WHY BUY OR LEASE PURCHASE?

Lock in todays prices! The single family home has been and will be the best investment you can make for your family! History will show an 8%-12% increase per year on single family homes in the correct locations in Lubbock. Compare todays prices with 1960, 1970, 1979. Had you purchased a home in 1960 you would have paid $10 per sq. ft.. In 1970, $20 per sq. ft.. In 1978 $28 per sq. ft. YOU CAN STILL BUY MORE HOUSE FOR THE MONEY IN LUBBOCK THAN ANY OTHER AREA IN THE SOUTHWEST!

ALL OUR HOMES ARE FULL ENERGY SAVING HOMES!

4 BEDROOMS UNDER $35,000?

Yes, we have one listed at 5431 6th Street that's all brick with new paint, carpet and a storm cellar for your family's protection. An F.H.A. appraisal has been ordered and the owner says "SELL".

RUSHLAND PARK

A charming 4 BR, 3 bath with formal dining, large den-living, gameroom and plant room. Situated on a corner lot, and priced under $125,000.00

ONE OF A KIND

Best describes this spacious 4 bedroom (could be 5 bedrooms) with step-down formal living, large family room with wet bar, and a dream of a kitchen. Pool with jacuzzi installed last summer. Everything is included for family living and entertaining. Exclusive.

PAPALOTE ESTATES

Want a place for horses or a quiet neighborhood away from city traffic with lower taxes? Let us show you two outstanding homes — one 3 BR, 2½ bath with basement — and the other 4 BR's with large den-living plus a gameroom.

LEASE-PURCHASE

Owner is moving and will lease with an option to buy this immaculate custom-built 3 BR-2 bath home with large den-living, and isolated master. Truly one of the cleanest, well decorated homes on the market today with custom drapes and professional landscaping.

YOU'LL BE DRIVEN WILD BY SPECTACULAR DEALS ON NEW DATSUN 210 WAGONS AND SEDANS.

It's wild. It's crazy. But it's true. We are being driven up the wall to move out our new 1979's. So we're prepared to drive you absolutely wild with unbeatable prices on the Datsun 210 Sportwagon. It's our newest and lowest priced wagon.
Or price the Datsun 210 Sedan...but get a grip on yourself first. It's an unreal deal. And just look at some of the standard equipment:
• Split, fold-down rear seats* • 4-cylinder OHV 1,397 cc engine • Power-assist front disc brakes • Cut-pile carpeting* • Fully reclining bucket seats* • 2-speed windshield wipers more, more, more!
So what are you waiting for?
Come on down and be driven wild!

SALE ITEM — This warehouse and another just like it will be sold by bid Wednesday to make way for the first phase of a multi-million dollar mini-mall at Reese Air Force Base. Construction contracts for the base exchange segment of the exchange-commissary complex will be let July 1. The complex will be built in the present commissary area. (Staff photo)

Exchange-Commissary Complex To Be Built At Reese AFB

By GERRY BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A multi-million dollar exchange-commissary complex is in the near future for Reese Air Force Base.

A mini-mall to be constructed in the present commissary area with easy access from the Reese gate will put all shopping in one location.

Lt. Col. Hirum E. West, base engineer, described the new "community complex" as a very nice base addition where the service wife or retired person can come to one parking lot for all shopping purposes. Even the bank is nearby.

Bid date for the base exchange segment of the complex is July 1, but the preparations begin Wednesday with the sale, by bid, of the first two of several buildings which will be cleared away for the project.

The last building to go will be the commissary, which will stay open until the new commissary facility is complete, then will give way to a parking lot.

Normally, base construction is completed and then existing facilities are replaced or removed.

With the new complex, which is not from appropriated funds, the land must be cleared before the contract is let. The mini-mall will be paid for with exchange and commissary profits.

Buildings giving way to the new construction are warehouse type facilities constructed with the base in 1941-42. They have served a number of purposes from warehouse to office to commissary. A massive warehouse completed several years ago now fills the storage needs of the base.

The structures for bid Wednesday are two of eight which flanked either side of a railroad spur. Originally, the eight received all supplies for Lubbock Army Air Field.

Today, pavement covers the area where rails were taken up long when the spur was abandoned in favor of truck transport.

Both buildings are 60 feet by 153 feet covering 9,190 square feet each.

One, still in use, has outside walls with no partitions while the other shows changes made inside as it was adapted to different purposes — clothing and equipment shop, pilot clothing sale store and administrative offices for base supply.

The wooden buildings with sheet metal covering must be razed in 90 days so cement docks can be removed in time for July construction.

An adjacent warehouse with the same dimensions will be shortened for additional space needed immediately for the project.

A representative of the Army Corps of Engineers will be at Reese Wednesday to open bids on the two structures and also on three houses and a barn purchased in Hurlwood by the corps to provide a clear zone for Reese.

As space is needed for the complex on the base and as property is acquired in Hurlwood within 3,000 feet of the end of Reese runways, other structures will be sold by the corps.

Rape Suspect Arrested Shortly After Attack

A fight outside a Fourth Street club about 1:30 a.m. today resulted in the gathering of a large crowd, the arrest of three persons and the shattering of a car's back window.

Police reported that when they arrived at the nightspot in the 2200-block of Fourth Street there was a "very large" gathering, with much yelling, cursing and fighting. Reports show two male participants, ages 18 and 19, were arrested and a juvenile was taken into custody.

Daniel Garcia of 3104 Second Place said his car window was broken out when he backed his vehicle into the crowd attempting to break up the ruckus.

Officers said when they ordered the crowd to disperse, the 18-year-old walked to the east side of the parking lot, picked up a rock and threw it at a parked truck. When police went after the man, the suspect picked up a handful of gravel and tossed it, hitting two patrol cars and a television station's staff car.

The teen-ager was arrested in an alley after a brief struggle with two policemen, reports indicate.

The other man and the juvenile were taken into custody after they reportedly refused to obey police orders. Both briefly resisted officers, according to reports.

In other police activity, Kim Bailey of 2304-B 16th St. reported that her parked car was pushed into a telephone pole, causing about $225 damage, at 2:35 a.m. today in the 1500 block of Avenue W.

A $1,200 stereo was reported stolen in the break-in of Grey Uhorchok's 2207 Seventh St., Apt. 106, residence between 8 p.m. and shortly before midnight Thursday.

City police arrested a 21-year-old man shortly after 3 p.m. Thursday, approximately four hours after he allegedly raped a 19-year old woman in her apartment.

The suspect, who was placed in Lubbock County Jail following his arrest in the 1700 block of E. 14th St., allegedly knocked on the door of the woman's 36th Street apartment about 11 a.m., and told her he was a friend of her husband and wanted to speak to her about finding an apartment, according to police reports.

The woman said she let him in but asked him to leave soon thereafter, when he asked to see her body. She said he picked up a glass vase and told her to lie on the couch or he would hurt her.

After she got on the couch, she said the man told her this was the sort of thing that could happen to her while she was alone, and began to leave.

But, as the woman tried to lock the door behind the man, he pushed his way back inside, saying he had changed his mind. She said he forced her into a bedroom where he disrobed her and raped her.

A rural Lubbock resident reported losses totaling about $2,300 after his home was burglarized during the day Wednesday.

Randy Daniel of Route 2, Lubbock, told sheriff's department officers he found a door kicked open when he returned home late Wednesday afternoon. He said a stereo system, tools some water skis and equipment were among the missing items.

A microwave oven and a dishwasher, together worth about $1,400, were taken early Thursday from a house under construction at 5315 85th St. belonging to L.L. Bates, according to police reports.

Bates said the house also was damaged because the burglars left the water running, flooding much of the new home.

Alfred Velasquez said someone removed $875 worth of tools from the back of his pickup while it was parked in the driveway of his 5710 74th St. residence early Thursday. A spare tire, tools and a survey transit were taken, he said.

Wayne Storrs of Amarillo said Thursday that someone removed a radio-tape deck unit from a truck parked in a fenced lot at 1802 Erskine. He reported the unit was worth $300.

No Traffic Fatalities Posted in February

February was a noteworthy month for Lubbock — not because of what happened, but because of what didn't happen.

Lubbock Mayor Dirk West announced Friday that last month was the first traffic fatality-free month since December 1976, and that traffic accidents had dropped 33 percent from February 1978.

So far this year, there has been only one traffic fatality, and West credited the five-month old Selective Traffic Enforcement Program and the Lubbock police for the reduction in accidents and fatalities.

In January and February 1977, there were 11 fatalities, and last year Lubbock had more traffic deaths per capita (51) than any other U.S. city.

But West noted he still sees "hot dogs" on the street, and pledged the traffic crackdown will continue until those drivers either slow down or lose their licenses.

"Obviously the program is working and it is going to continue," he said.

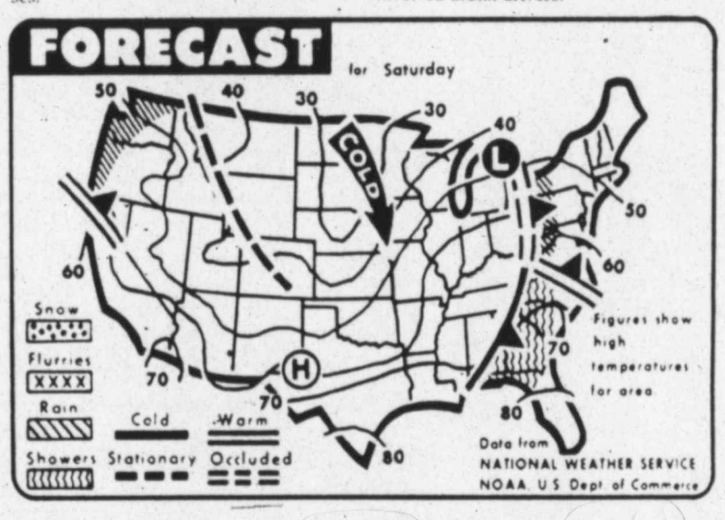

"We had a big problem and we're whipping it."

Comparing the five months the STEP officers have been patrolling city streets and the same five months (October-February) in 1977, West said accidents have dropped from 5,171 to 4,778.

Accidents with injuries dropped from 719 to 652, the number of persons injured was reduced from 1,002 to 898 and fatalities dropped from 20 to 9 during the period.

Arrests for driving while intoxicated (DWI) have risen since a special DWI enforcement program was launched, West said. Through Feb. 23, 109 such arrests had been made, compared to 177 DWI arrests in Lubbock for all of 1978.

West noted five percent of all accidents and 12.5 percent of the fatal accidents in Lubbock during the last quarter of 1978 involved drunk drivers.

LCC Student Recognized

Cindy Taylor, a freshman pre-law major at Lubbock Christian College, has been named an Outstanding Young American by the OYA Foundation of Pensacola, Fla.

Miss Taylor earlier this year was named as a finalist in the 1979 Texas National Teen-Ager Pageant to be held in Fort Worth June 1-3.

Her biography will appear in the 1978-79 edition of the Enclycopedia of Young Americans and she will compete for a scholarship. The OYA annually offers scholarships in five categories. Miss Taylor's category is performing arts.

The OYA seeks to recognize and honor the youth who have committed themselves to excellence and service. Young people are accepted into OYA membership by invitation only and must typify the organization's motto: "Pride of the Present-Hope of the Future."

Miss Taylor, who will celebrate her 18th birthday March 14, is the daughter of Dr. John M. Taylor of Lubbock and is a 1978 graduate of Lubbock Christian High School.

Man Proposes Long-Distance

SHREVEPORT, La. (UPI) — Gina Gordey and Jack Dabney plan to marry May 26 in a face-to-face ceremony. It could be a major breakthrough in their long-distance, electronic relationship.

Dabney, a news supervisor for the Mutual Broadcasting System in Washington, D.C., popped the question to Miss Gordey over the phone — which isn't so unusual.

But Miss Gordey, a reporter for KWKH-Radio in Shreveport, said "Yes" without ever having seen her future husband.

"We owe it all to AT&T," she said.

Miss Gordey first encountered Dabney when she fed news tape of a March 1978 train derailment in Lewisville, Ark., to the Mutual Network and he handled the call.

Miss Gordey continued to phone-in news stories but the business relationship softened as the calls increased.

"We started talking about such things as our philosophies and where we wanted our lives to go," she said.

The two exchanged pictures in December and that just added fuel to the electronic romance.

"At first, it seemed too crazy — I started having feelings like, 'Hey, I'd like to spend the rest of my life with this guy,'" she said.

"But I didn't say anything to anyone about it because it was just too absurd. It's very much of a fairy tale."

With the long-distance phone bills mounting as the couple kept in contact every other day, Dabney decided enough was enough.

"He asked me on the phone to marry him and I accepted before I ever saw him," Miss Gordey said. "After that we figured we had better meet each other. He came down here a couple of weeks ago and he was everything I expected him to be."

Dean Targets Date For Plant Opening

By ESTHER LONGORIA
Avalanche-Journal Staff

PLAINVIEW — Jimmy Dean has targeted June 15 as the date for the reopening of his Plainview meat-packing plant, which the company is renovating from a sausage production facility to a slaughtering operation at a cost exceeding $1 million.

Vincent Bernard, president of the company, said the plant will begin operations with 110 local employes at an annual payroll of $1.5 million and that in about 14 months the company plans to be paying area pork producers up to $60 million annually for hogs.

Dean and company officials talked to about 50 area pork producers and Hale County officials about the reopening of the facility during a noon luncheon Thursday at the Plainview Country Club.

Dean, a Plainview native and founder of the company, said the company's major problem right now is getting enough hogs from the area to supply the plant, which plans to butcher 3,000 to 5,000 hogs and produce one and a half million pounds of fresh pork weekly.

In two to three years, Dean said, he hopes the plant will be slaughtering 12,000 hogs a week and employ 200 persons.

One area producer told Dean that he didn't think the area could supply the Plainview plant with enough hogs.

But, Dean said that initially the availability of hogs would not control the company's acceleration. "We'll import hogs from the Midwest until we get off the ground," Dean said. "But, being that this is my hometown, I eventually would like to see all the hogs at the plant coming from this area. It's imperative to me that this plant work."

Company officials said they have talked to area swine specialists and have been told the number of hogs available on a monthly basis would be 25,000 to 30,000 within a 200-mile radius of Plainview.

"I see no reason to have to go to Nebraska or Missouri to buy hogs," Dean told the producers. "I think this area is most conducive for raising hogs."

Dean added that the company will be competitive with the Omaha market in paying area producers for their hogs.

He said that pork products from the Plainview plant will be sold to Cudahy Foods of Phoenix, Ariz. Cudahy trucks will be picking up the majority of fresh pork cuts, transporting them to Cudahy meat plants for further processing and marketing the products under the Cudahy name throughout the Southwest.

Rick Goss, a pork producer from Hereford, called the reopening of the plant "a tremendous asset" to area producers.

"I think the plant's reopening is going to especially benefit the small producer because it'll be affordable for him to send a load of hogs to Plainview rather than sending them to Oklahoma City or San Antonio," Goss said.

"If nothing else, the reopening of the plant will bring in more competition," Goss said, adding that most area producers he has talked to are very interested in seeing the plant get started again.

The Plainview facility, which was shut down in the early part of 1978, was closed to consolidate sausage production to the company's plant in Osceola, Iowa, company officials said.

Although the renovated Plainview plant will be basically a slaughtering operation, Bernard said about 5,000 square feet will be used for sausage production. "We also plan to ship lots of hogs at the Plainview facility to Iowa for sausage production," he added.

The Plainview facility, located northwest of the city, was the first Jimmy Dean sausage plant and opened in May of 1969.

Father Charged With Murder

A 49-year-old Wichita, Kan., man Thursday was charged with murder in the Jan. 15, 1977, beating death of a 3-month-old infant boy whose body was found here Feb. 19.

Patrick Brito Olivas is being held by Kansas authorities, and the criminal district attorney's office has recommended $100,000 bond for him.

His common-law wife recently told authorities in Amarillo that Olivas had beaten the child to death after an argument the couple had at a Lubbock motel, Sheriff C. H. "Choc" Blanchard said.

The woman led Blanchard and other authorities to where she said she had buried the body about a mile north of Farm 1729 and North University Avenue.

Olivas is accused of "repeatedly hitting the infant child with an open hand, holding the infant by the feet and striking the body of the infant child against the bed and holding the infant child in a sitting position, repeatedly bending the child forward, then striking the child, thereby causing the death of said individual."

White House Plans To Promote ERA

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House is escalating its efforts on behalf of the Equal Rights Amendment and is planning an unspecified "major event" to promote the proposed constitutional amendment.

Sarah Weddington, special assistant to President Carter for women's issues, said Wednesday the White House was setting up a special task force as part of the ratification campaign.

Huston Sparks Raiders To Overtime Victory

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

HOUSTON — Only a black suit and white sh irt with a little black bowtie and, oh yes, a pair of wingtip shoes, could have been more conservative than either the Texas Tech or Texas A&M basketball squads Thursday night.

But the Red Raiders got a carnation, in the form of senior Geoff Huston, pinned on their lapels just when they needed it and Tech went on to defeat the Aggies 63-62 in overtime to advance to the semifinals of the Southwest Conference Post-Season Basketball Classic. The Red Raiders will take on Arkansas tonight at 7 p.m.

In the second game of the double-header, the Houston Cougars rallied in the second half to nip Baylor 83-82.

For most of the night, though, things were pretty drab. That is, until Huston decided to dress things up right.

The senior, the only one starting for the Raiders, pumped in 24 points (the second most in his collegiate career). But more important for the Raiders, he hit — get this — the layup that threw the game into overtime with 25 seconds left, and four of Tech's seven points in the extra period. The final two free throws came with just 12 seconds remaining after he was fouled by Aggie David Britton.

But not only was Huston offensive to the Aggies, he was also extremely defensive.

For lo and behold if it wasn't the Brooklyn, N.Y., native who pulled down a rebound after giant Rudy Woods missed an apparently easy shot with Tech on top 61-60.

Don't get things wrong though. He wasn't Superman. He did miss the front end of a one-and-one with a couple of ticks left. But it didn't matter because only the Soviet Olympic team could pull out a win with that much time left.

"I wasn't looking to go one-on-one with them," explained the articulate Huston. "I just looked for an opportunity and when it came I just went after it."

Huston, the only Tech player left off the team that won the SWC tournament back in 1976 added: "Once the game started, I began looking to the basket more. It seemed A&M was disrespecting me. They covered (teammate Kent) Williams very well so I knew I had to score for us to win."

Had the Raiders lost it would have been Huston's final game, something he said he wasn't and isn't really looking forward to. "I really came in pumped up," he pointed out. "Hey, there ain't no tomorrows for me, you know. And I want to go out on a high note ... leave a winner."

Huston ended the night by hitting 9-14 from the floor and six-of-nine from the free throw line. Ralph Brewster and Williams were also in double figures for Tech with 11 and 10 points, respectively.

Vernon Smith, the powerful sophomore, led the Aggies with 16 points (8-16 from the field). He had 10 of those in the first half and was the only Aggie in double numbers.

"It was just another typical Texas Tech-Texas A&M basketball game," sighed winning coach Gerald Myers. "I thought both teams were a little tight at the start of the game and played rather conservative. But things changed later on and we both started playing a lot harder."

"But the key to the game," Myers continued, "was the play of Huston. I really give him credit. He has been a very unselfish basketball player his entire career at Tech. He really took things into his own hands in the second half and showed some good leadership."

It was during that first half that things came almost to a standstill at times, as both teams played a slow-down type game, looking for the best shot in town. The Aggies ended the first 20 minutes on top 31-27 thanks primarily to the strong play of Smith, who constantly moved inside the key for close shots.

Junior guard Ken Williams scored 18 of his 24 points in the second half and freshman Or Goren hit the winning free throw with 39 seconds to play to lift Houston over Baylor.

Baylor built a seven-point lead in the second half behind the shooting of sensational freshman Terry Teagle, but Williams rallied the Cougars with an incredible shooting performance.

Seminole Advances In State Cage Tourney

By A-J News Service

AUSTIN—Mike Grass, Dann Wrenn, Albert Villalva, Joe Stewart and Glenn Moore gave Seminole varying degrees of control, but the Indians were in firm command at the end in beating Boling 49-42 here Thursday for a berth in Saturday's 11 a.m. Class AA state schoolboy basketball championship game.

Alonzo Moore, Boling's tallest player at 6-3, gave the Bulldogs a 2-0 lead, but Seminole, working effectively inside the southeast Texas school's zone defense, blazed to a 19-8 lead after seven minutes, rolled a bit with James Greenwood's scoring punch, then opened up a 28-16 lead with three minutes left in the first half.

Boling began its long climb back into contention midway in the third period behind the shooting of Moore and Greenwood. Seminole's lead was cut to 34-32 with 4:26 left in the third stanza and both squads went scoreless for the next four minutes.

After Villalva and Moore each hit a free throw and Wrenn canned a baseline jumper to give the Indians a 38-34 lead with 4:30 remaining the the game, Boling tied the score on field goals by Greenwood and Moore.

Stewart then made one of the game's finest clutch plays. He emerged from a welter of arms and hands to seize an offensive rebound and put in a difficult layup shot for a 40-38 Indian lead with 2:11 to go.

Boling then contracted the turnover virus again (the losers finished with 16, setting up 14 Seminole points, but collected only six of 17 Indian turnovers) and the next two minutes the West Texans spurted to a 47-40 lead, hitting 9 of 10 free throws.

Although Greenwood and Alonzo Moore teamed for 26 Boling rebounds, Seminole won the board war 54-41, with Wrenn grabbing 15, Glenn Moore 12 and Stewart eight. Seminole hit 18 of 54 field goal attempts, while Boling was a modest 20 of 67 from the field.

Greenwood was the game's top scorer with 18 points, while Grass and Villalva netted 12 each for Seminole, which will carry a 29-5 record into Saturday's title game.

In the Class B game, rebounding strength and penetration of Snook's full court press kept Whitharral in contention through most of the first half, but the Blue Jays then broke away for a 69-41 victory in the Snook, now 44-2 and booked to play 44-0 Krum in the championship contest at 9 a.m. Saturday, had early difficulty in coping with the rebounding of Whitharral's 6-4 pair of Jimm Avery and Mark Bryant and with the drives of point guard Jimmy Polk.

After Whitharral carved out four two-point leads in the early going, Snook's defensive pressure forced four turnovers and the Jays scored following all of them. Snook's 17-11 lead provided enough momentum for the Jays to cruise the rest of the way and sent them into the finals for the seventh time in 12 tournament trips.

Snook, alternating eight players, forced 28 Whitharral turnovers, turning them into 21 points, while the losing Panthers netted 13 points on 19 Jay errors.

"Our mistakes hurt us," said Whitharral coach Phil Warren, "and our turnovers allowed Snook far more shooting opportunities (59, with 31 field goals) than we had (33; with 13 hits) and we just faded out of it.

Whitharral, finishing its season at 26-9, used the early scoring of Roger Reding, Bryant and Avery for leads of 4-2, 6-4, 8-6 and 11-9. But then the turnover virus hit and James Washington, Mike Junek, Clifton Butler and David Kovar scored following the errors to give Snook control.

Avery, with 16 points, and Reding with 11, were Whitharral's most productive scorers, while Junek, with 19, Washington, with 17 led Snook.

Huntsville and Krum joined Snook as defending state champions that survived semifinal contests Thursday.

Huntsville was awesome in crushing once-beaten Daingerfield, 69-37. Huntsville will meet Mineral Wells, a 57-50 victory over Bay City, in the Class AAA final.

Krum extended its record to 44-0 with a 68-56 victory over Petty West Lamar and will tangle with Snook for the Class B crown.

LaPoynor (Larue) (32-6) plays Hull-Daisetta (23-8) in the first Class A semifinal contest Friday morning. Reagan County (Big Lake) (29-5) follows against Vega (26-6). LaPoynor is going after its fourth state crown in the last eight years.

Houston Madison (39-0) meets Lufkin (29-6) in the first Class AAAA semifinal game Friday for the right to play the winner between Fort Worth Dunbar (35-3) and Austin Lanier (33-3) for the championship.

All championship games will be played Saturday at the University of Texas Special Events Center.

Mayers Stay Alive

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — There were three pairs of brothers competing in the $250,000 U.S. National Indoor Tennis Championships this week, but only two brothers are still in the running and they'd prefer that things weren't so close.

"It's just not a real pleasant experience," Gene Mayer said Thursday after beating Yannick Noah 6-2, 6-2 in the third round. "To play against your close friends is very difficult, and it's five times harder against your brother."

Mayer's older brother, Sandy, also gained today's quarterfinals with a 7-6, 4-6, 6-3 victory over fifth-seeded Brian Gottfried.

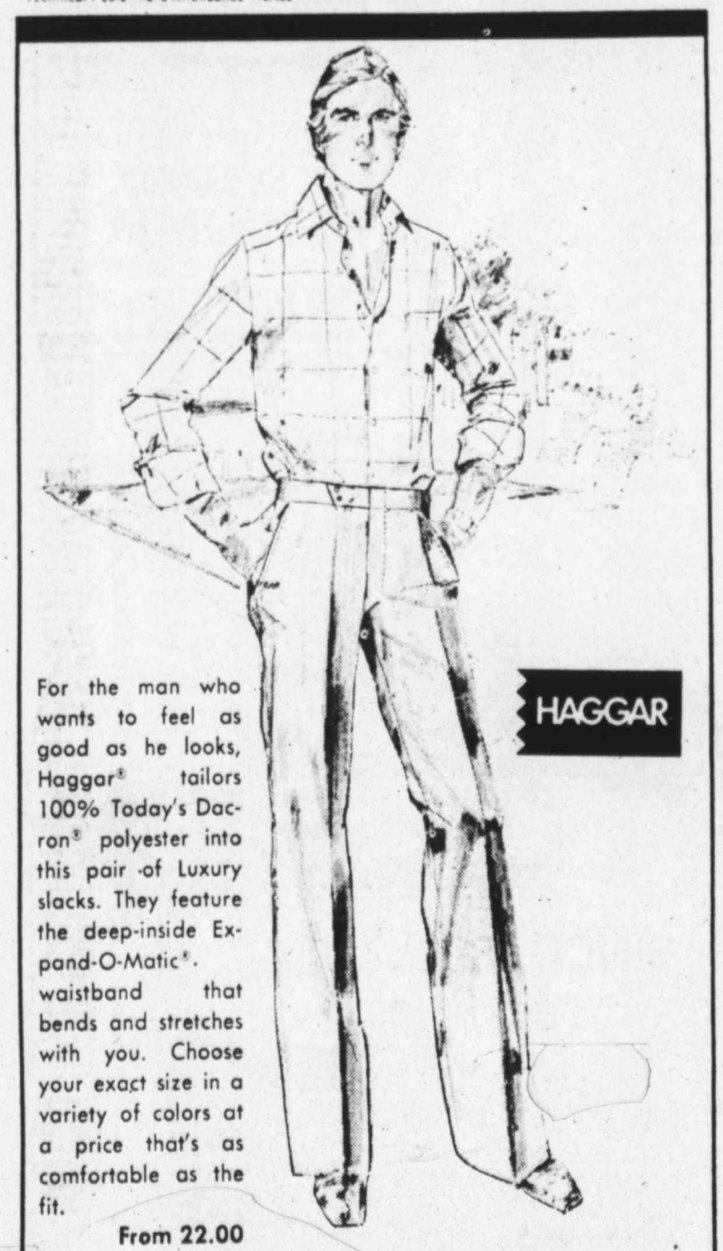

Although four years separate them in age — Gene is 22, Sandy 26 — just two rounds stand in the way of a brother-brother confrontation.

Sandy was scheduled to play defending champion Jimmy Connors today. Mayer and Connors are members of a group of players who came up through American junior tennis together. In about 20 matches, Mayer recalls, he has beaten Connors only once — when they were about 13.

Gene was to face veteran Arthur Ashe today. In their only previous meeting, at San Jose, Calif., last year, Ashe won in three sets.

Gene and Sandy have played each other once in a professional match, and the lower-ranked Gene beat big brother Sandy 6-4, 6-4 at Guadalajara last year.

In the other brother act here, twins Tom and Tim Gullikson and Vijay and Anand Armitraj have been eliminated.

Kentucky, Duke Emerge Winners

By The Associated Press

Kentucky and Duke, who fought it out for college basketball's national championship a year ago, had their hands full turning back challengers in their own conference tournaments.

Kentucky, which beat Duke 94-88 for the NCAA title a year ago, hit 68.3 percent of its shots from the field but needed a free throw by freshman Dwight Anderson with eight seconds remaining to edge Alabama 101-100 Thursday night in the second round of the Southeastern Conference tourney.

Meanwhile, top-ranked Indiana State raised its record to 23-0 by beating Southern Illinois 79-72 in the semifinals of the Missouri Valley Conference tourney. All-American Larry Bird led the Sycamores with 25 points.

In non-tournament games involving ranked teams, No. 3 UCLA defeated California 77-68, No. 4 Michigan State whipped Minnesota 76-63, No. 10 Marquette overpowered Air Force 61-43, No. 11 Iowa was upset by Michigan 61-53, No. 17 Ohio State bowed to Wisconsin 76-73 and No. 19 Purdue beat Indiana 55-48.

Truman Clytor, making his first start in seven games, hit nine shots in a row in the second half to help Kentucky beat Alabama and move into a semifinal matchup against eighth-ranked Louisiana State, the Southeastern Conference's regular season champion.

"I just had the feeling he was going to have a good game," said Kentucky coach Joe B. Hall. "I needed to give him a shot of adrenalin so I gave him the start. He didn't know until about three minutes before the game."

In another first-round Southeastern Conference game, Auburn got last-minute layups from Bobby Cattage and Eric Stringer to outlast Georgia 95-91 in four overtimes.

Duke blew a 14-point halftime lead but recovered to win on the foul shots by Spanarkel, who led all scorers with 20 points.

"We didn't show much at the end," said Duke Coach Bill Foster. "We didn't show the poise we have. Thank goodness for Jimmy Spanarkel at the end."

In other ACC first-round action, Kendal Pinder's 20 points helped North Carolina State hold off Virginia 82-78 and Albert King's 20 points led Maryland past Clemson, 75-67.

Indiana State trailed 32-23 in the first half but closed the gap to two by halftime, then took control in the final 20 minutes.

"They just took us out of our offense in the second half," said Illinois State Joe Gottfried. "And everything has got to be perfect to beat Indiana State."

Next in line for the unbeaten Sycamores is New Mexico State, which beat Wichita State 85-81 in the other Missouri Valley Conference semifinal behind 26 points and 19 rebounds by Robert Gunn.

Michigan State now has sole possession of the Big Ten lead following losses by Iowa and Ohio State.

Jay Vincent scored 25 points, Gregory Kelser added 23 and Earvin Johnson had 21 as Michigan State beat Minnesota at Minneapolis.

The Spartans can do no worse than tie for the league championship and will go to the NCAAs in any case because they have defeated Iowa and Ohio State twice this season.

Michigan, led by Mike McGee's 21 points, bolted to a 20-4 lead and never trailed in beating Iowa at Iowa City. McGee had a basket and two free throws in the final 30 seconds to clinch the victory.

Claude Gregory scored 23 points and Wes Matthews added 21 to lead Wisconsin over Ohio State.

Joe Barry Carroll scored 21 points and grabbed 12 rebounds and Brian Walker sank three clutch free throws to enable Purdue to remain one game behind Michigan State. Iowa and Ohio State also are one game back.

UCLA recorded the 1,000th victory in the school's history, beating California for the 40th consecutive time. Brad Holland led the Bruins with 25 points and David Greenwood had 22.

Sam Worthen scored 18 points and Bernard Toone 17 while Marquette limited Air Force to just seven points in the first 14 minutes of the second half in beating the Cadets.

Rutgers outscored West Virginia 21-6 from the foul line and beat the Mountaineers 55-52, while Sammie Ellis scored 24 points to help Pitt knock off top-seeded Villanova 77-64 in the Eastern Eight semifinals.

In first-round games of the Metro Conference tourney, junior forward Murray Brown scored a tournament-record 34 points to lead Florida State to a 101-92 victory over Tulane; Les Hanson tallied 23 points to help Virginia Tech beat Cincinnati 80-74, and Rodney Lee had 17 points and 15 rebounds to lead Memphis State over St. Louis 62-58.

Wayne McKoy scored 22 points to lead St. John's, N.Y. to an 86-82 overtime victory over Wagner and Iona got 19 points and 16 rebounds from Jeff Ruland in beating Seton Hall 80-73 in the ECAC New York-New Jersey regional semifinals.

In the semifinals of the ECAC-New England tournament, Connecticut whipped Boston College 91-74 and Rhode Island edged Holy Cross 75-71.

GAME NEEDED

DENVER (AP) — A tie between Brigham Young and Utah for the Western Athletic Conference basketball title would lead to a playoff game next week to determine the conference representative to the NCAA championships, says WAC Commissioner Stan Bates.

UP FOR ANOTHER SCORE — Kentucky's Truman Claytor (22) goes up for a score as Alabama players Phillip Lockett (50), left, and Reggie King (52) move in to try to stop him. This action was during the second half of the contest between the two squads in the Southeastern Conference tournament Thursday night in Birmingham, Ala. Kentucky won, 101-100. (AP Laserphoto)

HE FLOATS THROUGH THE AIR — Michigan State forward Gregory Kelsor (32) soars over Minnesota center Kevin McHale (44) and forward Gary Holmes (50) as he bats a shot away from the net in the first half of Thursday's Big 10 game. The Spartans won by a score of 76-63. (AP Laserphoto)

Tech, Rice Begin SWC Action With Three-Game Weekend

The Texas Tech baseballers will open Southwest Conference play today when they face the Rice Owls today at 3 at the Tech diamond. The two squads will meet again on Saturday at 1 p.m. for a doubleheader.

Steve Ibarguen, 0-1 this year, will be on the mound for the Raiders. This will be only the second start of the year for Ibarguen, a junior college transfer, who picked up the loss in Tech's 5-1 loss to Texas Lutheran last week.

On the mound for the Owls will be either Matt Williams or Doug Watson. Rice sports a 2-4 slate while the Red Raiders are 5-3.

"Rice has always been a tough series for us over the years," said Tech coach Kal Segrist. "Our club has been playing with good enthusiasm and if (Robert) Bryant and (Gary) Moyer can come around and pitch like they're capable of, we will be able to give Rice a tough series."

Both Moyer and Bryant are scheduled to see action in Saturday's double-header.

The Owls have been hitting at a team average of .250, while the Raiders are hitting .299 as a team. Leading the Raiders at the plate has been Larry Selby with a .438 average.

Slaton, Crane To Meet In Regionals

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

For one quarter Tuesday night in Snyder, the Slaton Tigerettes looked like anything but the defending state champions, in their game against Merkel.

After outscoring Merkel 22-7 in the first quarter and 17-10 in the second, Slaton appeared to have things well in hand at the intermission as it led 37-17. Keying that first half onslaught was Cindy Robinson with 11 and Esolita Whaley with eight points. The girls finished with 17 and 11 points respectively.

Then came that third period. The Tigerettes gave up 12 unanswered points and were outscored 14-4 in that quarter.

"Our kids were able to keep their poise in the third quarter though," said Slaton coach Kathy Wilson. "And we played fairley well in the fourth quarter."

Well, when a team is the defending state AA titlist's, playing "fairly well," entails outscoring the opposition 12-3 and rolling on to an easy 56-34 victory.

And now, with the Merkel game notched as just another win, the Slaton girls must look towards the regional competition that begins Saturday moning in the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum. Slaton will face Crane (20-8) at 12:30 p.m. in the second AA contest of the day. If the Tigerettes can survive that contest then they will face the winner of the Dimmitt -Henrietta game at 8:30 Saturday night.

"We haven't seen them (Crane) play," said assistant coach Janet Fails. "But what I've heard on them from other coaches is that they've got one big girl and some quick, good-shooting outside people."

Slaton should be able to handle the Crane offense all right but the Golden Cranes could give the Tigerettes some problems defensively.

Crane employees a no-holds-barred, all-out full court press for the entire length of the game.

"We've really been concentrating on breaking the press in practice," said the assistant coach. "We've never been up against a team that presses that much."

But press or no press, the Slaton coaches have a positive attitude about the regional tourney. And why not, the Tigerettes have three returning starters back from last year's championship team and the Slaton depth extends even further than that. Six members of this year's team saw extensive duty last year.

"If we play as good as we're capable of playing we'll have an excellent chance in regionals," said coach Fails. "Of course, there are a lot of good teams in regionals."

But what the Slaton assistant coach didn't say is that the Tigerettes should be the strongest team in the tourney. And in her four years as a head coach, Kathy Wilson, has yet to miss the state finals in Austin. Twice she took Nazareth to the finals in Class A competition and of course last year she guided the Tigerettes to their state title.

LCC Baseball Coach Looks For Ways To Replace Stars

EL PASO (Special) — The way Lubbock Christian College baseball coach Larry Hays figures it, losing three players off a 47-24 team isn't all that bad, but it could be better.

"Three's not hard to replace," he said while packing for today's season opener against the University of Texas at El Paso. "But when it's those three. . ."

Let's complete that statement for him. When "those three" include a pair of All-Americas and a .340-hitting catcher, that's a bunch of people to try and replace.

The All-Americas were center fielder Darius Copley and relief ace Oscar Acosta. Mark Lisle was the receiver.

As if they weren't enough, there's a chance that last year's starting shortstop, Glenn Wilken, may not be fully recovered yet from the shoulder injuries that have beset him during his stay at LCC.

"If Wilkens shoulder doesn't come around," Hays said, "We'll be without four instead of three."

But is he down? Hardly.

"We've got some good ballplayers," Hays said. "Our season will just depend on how we fill in for what we've lost.

Leading those good ballplayers is returning junior All-America Tim Leslie. A 1976 Monterey High grad, Leslie hit .359 including 34 home runs in earning co-Most Valuable Player honors on last year's team.

He'll be batting clean-up this year, following leadoff hitter Tommy Inman (.343, left field); Steve Brigante (.344, second base) and either right fielder Richard Bowles (.263) or designated hitter Bobby Doe (.353).

Following Leslie in the lineup will be Kenny Toney (.321, third base); either Bowles or Doe; Wilken; Brady Brashear .419, center field and then catcher Bob Nottebart.

LCC will hit the road running this season, playing its first eight games in only five days. Where this will really hurt, says Hays, is in the pitching corps.

Fully 11 of the 28 players leaving town on the Chaparral team bus are throwers, but when you have that many games that quickly, even that might not be enough.

"That only leaves us three in the bullpen," says Hays. "I believe that that's lost us ballgames in years past, games we would have won if we'd had the luxury of going to the bullpen.

"But we just have to face up to it. If a pitcher gets in trouble early in the game we'll stay with him. We'll let him try to work out of it. It may cost us the game but we haven't really got much choice.

"Besides, we'll learn something about him -who can work out of trouble - and around playoff time that'll start paying off.

"Then we'll be used to playing on the road and unusual umpiring and all that."

It's good Hays can see some advantages to playing on the road, because with a schedule that looks like it was made out by a greedy travel agent, he's going to need all the silver linings he can get.

Of LCC's first 27 dates, 23 are on the road, including 12 away doubleheaders. All tolled, 35 of the Chaps first 42 games will be played in unfriendly confines.

Browns Trade Defensive End

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Browns traded veteran defensive end Joe Jones away for the second time Thursday, this time to the Washington Redskins for an undisclosed draft choice.

Jones, 31, an eight-year National Football League veteran, started the first four games last year but played little from then on.

Parker, Otis Fail To Show Up

By The Associated Press

Dave Parker, Amos Otis and Otto Velez have failed to show up for spring training.

And you'll never guess why.

The excuse offered by Parker, Pittsburgh's $4.5-million outfielder, was that he was "under the weather" and probably wouldn't make it to Bradenton, Fla., until Saturday.

No one was exactly sure where he was when he picked up the telephone and embarrassed the Pirates, who had planned to turn the arrival of baseball's richest player ($900,000 a year) into an event comparable to the debut of Pete Rose ($800,000 a year) for the Philadelphia Phillies the day before.

Amos Otis, a high-priced outfielder with Kansas City, was supposed to be in Fort Myers, Fla., with the rest of the Royals. Instead, the team said he was in a car somewhere, en route from his home in Virginia.

Velez, who makes considerably less than Parker or Otis to patrol the outfield for Toronto, had a more novel excuse. He wasn't in Dunedin, Fla., working out with the Blue Jays, he said, because he was home in Ponce, Puerto Rico — working on his income tax.

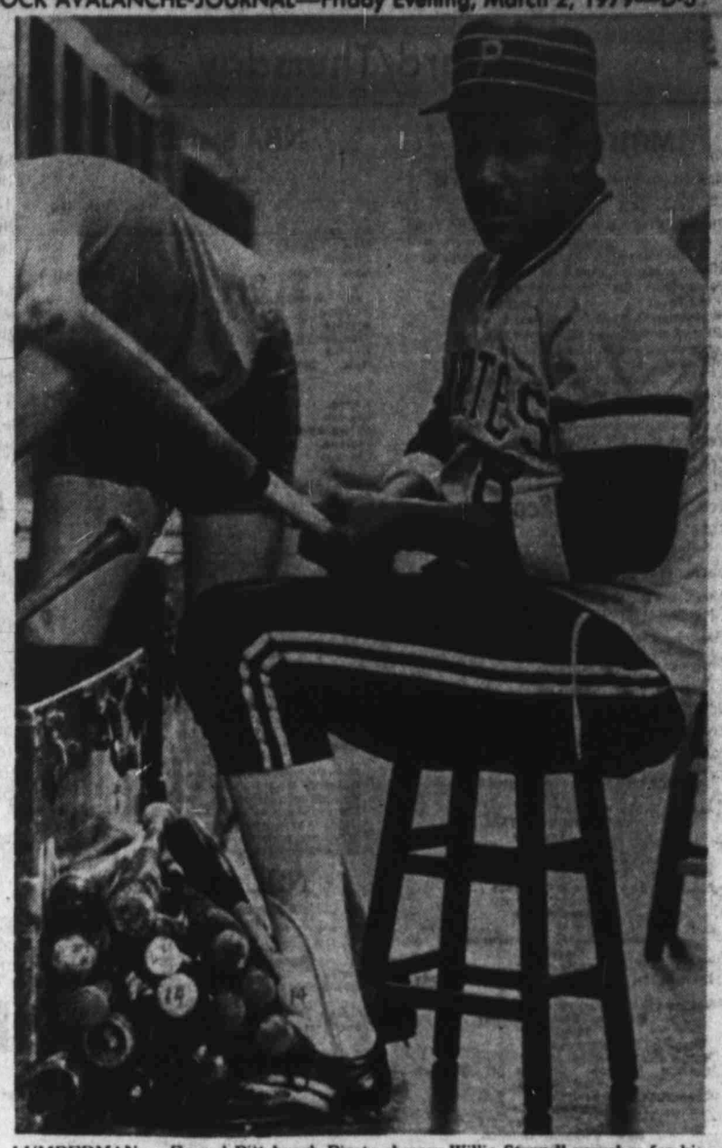

Thursday was generally a slow day around the training camps. Most of the players spent their time on calisthenics or relearning the basics.

Rich Gossage, the ace relief pitcher of the New York Yankees, spent the day on crutches. He was treated for an infected big toe on his right foot, then was dismissed from a Fort Lauderdale, Fla., hospital.

In Vero Beach, Fla., the Los Angeles Dodgers split into two units for an intrasquad game. Although the National League doesn't have a designated hitter, Joe Ferguson was assigned the DH role — for both sides. And he homered once for each squad.

In Mesa, Ariz., Ted Sizemore of the Chicago Cubs offered his opinion that his his new teammates won't miss Manny Trillo, the pivotal player in the Cubs' trade with the Phillies.

"I'll do better than Trillo," said Sizemore, who hit .219 last year while Trillo was batting .261. He also said the deal was a steal for the Cubs because they got two starters — catcher Barry Foote and outfielder Jerry Martin — in exchange for Trillo.

Allisons Nudge Yarborough For Top Row

"Well, it is kinda interesting, ironic anyway," Allison said, referring to the much-publicized battle the trio had two weeks ago in the Daytona 500, which netted them all disciplinary action.

"It should be forgotten," he said of the post-race fight at Daytona between himself and Yarborough, and the last lap crash of his brother and Yarborough while dueling for the lead. "It is as far as I'm concerned. It should be for all of us. We need to leave Daytona at Daytona.

"If we didn't, it would be a sorry state of affairs. Eventually that kind of happening would have a very deadening effect on the enthusiasm and excitement in the sport," Allison said.

All three were fined $6,000 for fighting — $5,000 of which will be returned over the next five races, assuming there is no more trouble. Donnie Allison was placed on six months' probation for allegedly running Yarborough off the track. The Allisons have appealed.

Bobby Allison, who noted his fine was deducted from his Daytona winnings, said, "I've run side by side with another car for a full lap at Darlington and never had a problem. When you can ride side by side and make it there, you oughta be able to run side by side and stay out of trouble any place on the circuit."

Based on the closeness of Thursday's qualifying at North Carolina Motor Speedway — the day's 15 qualifiers were separated by less than half a second — Allison predicted plenty of close competition Sunday.

"Cale ran away from everybody in this race last fall, but we feel we've caught up with him a little. And the rest of competition is much tougher too — much tougher," Allison said.

Allison commented that, to his recollection, this is the first time since 1971 that he and his brother have qualified 1-2 in a Grand National stock car race.

Their speeds were only .033 of a second apart: Bobby at 136.780 mph and Donnie at 136.612 mph. Yarborough was another .038 of a second slower at 136.418 mph.

The speeds overall Thursday were more than one second off Yarborough's track record of 142.067 mph. All the drivers said a coat of asphalt sealant applied last fall made the track slicker.

Later qualifiers blamed their relatively poor showings on light rain that was reported in the last 15 minutes or so of the session.

Dave Watson, who earned 15th starting position, spun into the second-turn guardrail and caused minor damage on the second lap of his qualifying run in the day's only mishap.

Mustangs Capture City Mat Title

Coronado finished with a score of 44 1/2 points, 4 1/2 points better than the runner-up Panthers. Lubbock High was third with 37 points, Monterey had 35, and Estacado was fifth with 17 points.

Chris Sustiata of Dunbar claimed the 119-pound class crown with a decision over David Guajardo of Lubbock High. Robert Todd of Dunbar was the 126-pound champion with a decision over Garland Timms of Coronado. Jimmy Matthews of Monterey decisioned Mickey Coleman of Estacado in the 132-pound class, in the 145-pound class, Brian Davis of Coronado won a decision over Alan Lynch of Lubbock High. Jerry Pritchard of Lubbock High took a decision over Jesse Alamanza of Estacado. Charles Deatherage of Monterey won the 167-pound class over Geoffrey Crawford of Dunbar, and Eric Johnson took a decision over Herman Carter of Lubbock High in the 185-pound class.

Team Results -1. Coronado 44 1 2; 2. Dunbar 40; 3. Lubbock High 37; 4. Monterey 35; 5. Estacado 17.

Top Seeds Advance In Dallas Tourney

DALLAS (AP) — Top-seeded Martina Navratilova and No. 2 Chris Evert took easy victories Thursday to advance to the quarterfinals of the $200,000 Women's Pro Tennis Tournament here.

Thursday's results increased the probability that Navratilova and Evert, making her first appearance here in five years, would meet in Sunday's singles championship at Moody Coliseum.

The Czech-born Navratilova needed by 36 minutes to rout 18-year-old Caroline Stoll of Morristown, N.J., 6-0, 6-0. Navratilova will meet Stacy Margolin in Friday's quarterfinals.

Evert put away baby-faced Ilana Kloss of South Africa, 6-1, 6-1, in her third test of the tournament. Evert played a flawless first set and although her opponent steadied in the second set, she could not match Evert's placement and service.

Evert will meet Sue Barker of Great Britan in the quarterfinals. Barker ousted eighth-seeded Kathy May Teacher in Thursday's play.

In other third round matches Thursday, Australian Dianne Fromholtz beat Rosie Casals, 6-3, 6-1; Margolin downed No. 7 Marise Kruger of South Africa, 6-1, 6-2.

Tracy Austin moved into the quarterfinals by beating Mima Jausovec, 6-2, 6-1. The third-seeded Austin will face Renata Tomanova in the quarterfinals.

Veteran Virginia Wade, who also earned a quarterfinals berth, will play Fromholtz in the quarters.

Van Brocklin Added To Staff

ATLANTA (AP) — Pro football great Norm Van Brocklin, former coach of the Atlanta Falcons, is back in Atlanta as a coach. But this time it's as assistant to Georgia Tech football Coach Pepper Rodgers.

Van Brocklin's appointment to the Yellow Jacket staff as an offensive backfield coach was announced Thursday night at the team's football banquet, but sources within the Tech athletic department had confirmed the news earlier.

The Oregon All-American quarterback led two teams, the Los Angeles Rams and the Philadelphia Eagles, to National Football League championships before turning to coaching in 1961.

"I'm very pleased that Norm is coming to Georgia Tech," Rodgers said in a statment released at the banquet. "He has a great football mind and should help us develop the pro-type offense we're going to emphasize this fall."

Van Brocklin has been a pecan farmer at Social Circle, Ga., about 40 miles east of Atlanta, since he was sacked as Falcons coach midway through the 1974 season.

"Sure I've missed football. I've missed it very much," Van Brocklin said.

Nevada Commission Suspends Galindez For Skipping Fight

LAS VEGAS (AP) — The Nevada State Athletic Commission, which suspended light heavyweight Victor Galindez for backing out of his title fight with World Boxing Association chemp Mike Rossman, appears to be willing to work out a compromise agreement with the WBA that might bring the fight back to Nevada.

Roy F. Tennison, the executive secretary of the commission, said Thursday a WBA-suggested compromise would be taken up at a commission meeting in Reno next week.

"One of the main things they're going to discuss is a proposal submitted to the commission by the WBA," he said. "They have proposed to work out an agreement where the WBA could be involved in the selection of officials, as well as our commission."

Galindez, who lost the light heavyweight title to Rossman at New Orleans last September, stalked out of his dressing room just minutes before the nationally televised 15-round bout was scheduled to begin.

The WBA had withdrawn its sanction for the bout and Galindez said he did not want to fight unless it was for the title.

The flap began when the WBA demanded that it select the officials for the fight. A commission source said the WBA then said it would drop the demand if Nevada would join the WBA, which it did the day before the bout.

But at that point WBA president Mandry Galindez, no relation to the fighter, withdrew the association's sanction of the bout because the Nevada commission refused to allow the WBA to name the judges.

Tennison said WBA president Galindez and promoter Bob Arum would be invited to the March 7 meeting in Reno because "it would be a hell of a lot better if the man was sitting there.

A&M Favored To Take Meet

LAREDO (AP) — Texas A&M, featuring four winners from last year's meet, is the favorite to capture this weekend's 47th Annual Border Olympics track meet here, according to the coach of the team that edged the Aggies here last year.

"Texas A&M won the conference easily and they should be the favorite, but that will depend on how far along they are this early," said Rice coach Bobby May.

May's Owls surprised the field last year by piling up 120 points to take the crown. The Aggies were second with 116 points.

The annual meet, billed as the first major outdoor event of the year, was set to begin today with junior college and high school division preliminaries.

The university division competitions, including seven Southwest Conference schools, and the college division events, featuring powerful Abilene Christian, begin Saturday.

Although Rice beat Texas A&M in a dual meet last week, May still thinks the Aggies are the team to beat. The Rice win came over an Aggie team minus Curtis Dickey. The muscular sprinter watched from the stands after returing from a New York meet.

Rice and Texas return two winners each. Rice's Bruce Gingrich took the 880 last year while teammate Darrell Mouton flashed to a win in the 220.

Other university division teams here are Texas Tech, Texas Christian, Lamar and North Texas.

A&M also seems strong in the relays — bringing back three members of its sprint relay champs and two runners from last year's mile relay winners.

The college division is expected to be topped by Abilene Christian. The Wildcats scored 111 points here last year to easily take the meet over second place Angelo State with 75 points.

ACU brings two pole vaulters who have topped the 17-foot mark — Billy Olsen and Frank Estes. The Wildcats also sport Carl Williams.

Bean's 64 Good For Citrus Early Lead

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Andy Bean shot a 64 — then apologized for it.

Arnold Palmer shot a 70 — his best round of the year — and was fuming.

"They used all the soft pin placements," said Arnold, his discomfort growing as more and more sub-par numbers were splashed across the scoreboard. "And they used two members' tees. I can fix that. I'll plow 'em up. That's what I'll do. I'll get a tractor and plow 'em up."

Absolutely ideal playing conditions — mild to warm temperatures and no wind — and the perfect condition of the golf course combined for some extremely low scores Thursday in the first round of the $250,000 Bay Hill Citrus Golf Classic. In all, 53 players — more than one-third of the field — was at par or better on the Bay Hill course, owned by Palmer and being used as the site of a PGA tour event for the first time.

Bean's superb, 7-under-par effort was the best.

"Arnold's not gonna like you shooting that kind of number on his golf course," chided Jack Nicklaus, who had a 68 that left him in solid contention.

"I know," said Bean. "I apologized to him, but I told him I'd like to have three more just like it."

"We haven't played a golf course in this good condition in several years," said Leonard Thompson. The touring pros generally agreed. And, as to the weather, Ray Floyd called it "absolutely perfect playing conditions."

But the weather can change. Winds are traditional in Florida, and that could make it a tougher course.

"The course played about as easy as it could. With the wind, it could be a monster," said Ed Sneed.

"When the wind comes up, you'll see all those red numbers (indicating sub-par rounds) change to black (over par)," said Nicklaus.

Despite Palmer's dismay and the relatively low scores, it took some heroics to achieve the leading positions.

The enormously powerful Bean didn't make a bogey and flew a four-iron second shot to within a foot of the drooping flag for a tap-in eagle on the 511-yard first hole.

"They played the tees up on only two holes," said Bean. "It's to my advantage if they push 'em back. I just go up one club. Everybody else goes to a wood."

Jim Colbert, rankled by the burr of a $200 fine assessed for slow play in last week's Los Angeles Open, played his back nine in 30, capped by a 175-yard five-iron second shot on the final hole that found the cup for an eagle 2. That finished off a 65 that left him in second, 1 stroke behind Bean.

Sneed and Floyd matched 66s.

The group at 67 included Bill Rogers, Thompson, Bobby Nichols and Bob Byman.

Nicklaus, making only his second start of the season, didn't make a bogey and scored birdies on his first, 17th and 18th holes to lead the group at 68. Defending champion Mac McLendon had the same score. Hubert Green and Hale Irwin led a big bunch at 69.

"It was fun to play," said Rogers.

But Palmer, proud of his course and upset at the scores it yielded, failed to see the humor.

"They (PGA tour officials who set the pins and tees) set it up too soft," he said. "I'd be delighted to talk to them about it, but I don't think they want to talk to me.

"They made a pitch and putt course out of it."

Defending Champ Meets Cason To Decide Match Play Title

Rohde, 58, sank a 15-foot birdie putt on the 14th hole Thursday to wrap up a 5 and 4 victory over two-time winner Billy Bob Coffey of Fort Worth in a semi-final match.

Cason, a former defensive back with the San Francisco 49ers who won the tournament in 1972, defeated Jack Williams of Plainview, 2-and-1. Cason and and Rohde overcame gusty winds to post victories at the Harlingen Country Club.

Rohde fired a 1-under par in defeating Coffey, the winner here in 1974 and 1975. In addition to his long birdie put on 14, Rohde also birdied the eighth hole. But he suffered bogeys on the seventh and 10th holes.

"Fortunately, my only mistakes were the bogeys," said Rohde. "I put it together from the 11th hole to go 1-under par from that point."

Cason also had Williams in a deep hole early, winning the first three holes over the 1976 champion.

"I really played well," said Cason, who sank a 10-foot putt for a birdie on No. 13 to go 4-up.

Williams came back to win the 14th hole with a birdie, but saw his hopes of a comeback dashed on No. 15. He made a spectacular 35-foot chip in for a birdie, but then watched Cason sink a 15-foot putt, giving him a birdie too.

SMU Dominates Swim Meet

AUSTIN (AP) — Southern Mehodist University used overall depth to grab a 50-point lead after the first round of the Southwest Conference swimming and diving championships.

The Mustangs dominated the meet as they have for the past 22 years, jumping out to a 268-218 lead despite victories by Texas in three of five events.

Kelly Rives of Texas set a conference record in the 200-yard medley relay with a 1:50.23, breaking the old mark of 1:50.89 which he set earlier in the preliminaries.

Jerry Spencer of Arkansas broke his old record of 20.39 in the 50-yard freestyle with a time of 20.23.

Texas' Joe Lajoie won the 500-yard freestyle in 4:25.39. Tony Scott of Texas won the 1-meter diving and SMU bettered the SWC record in the 400-yard medley relay with a time of 3:21.99.

Lubbock Nine Downs Dunbar

Only the number of sand particles in the air was greater than the amount of walks relinquished in the baseball season opener between the Dunbar varsity and the Lubbock High junior varsity.

Twenty five batters stolled to bases-on-balls. Broken down, Dunbar walked 15 batters, while the Lubbock High junior varsity's pitching staff gave up 10. The Lubbock High junior varsity took better advantage of the opportunities to record a 17-9 victory.

In other games, Gene Segrest pitched a one-hitter, to lead the Coronado Mustangs by Abilene 9-1 and the Lubbock High varsity was involved in a suspended game against Amarillo Caprock.

Segrest's one-hitter included 17 strikouts and only three walks. Lee Brock paced the Mustang hitting attack with two hits and three RBIs. Jim Wells had two doubles and one run batted in.

The Lubbock High-Caprock contest was called in the middle of the sixth inning because of darkness.

Down 8-6 at the end of five frames, Lubbock High exploded with 9 runs in the top of the sixth. Jaime Green started the fireworks with a three-run triple.

Dodger President To Undergo Tests

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Walter O'Malley is expected to undergo further tests at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., but the Los Angeles Dodgers chairman of the board "is doing very well," according to Peter O'Malley, Walter's son and president of the club.

"There is no bad news," Peter O'Malley said of his 75-year-old father Tuesday. "He will undergo more tests."

Peter O'Malley accompanied his father to Rochester on Monday, when he was flown to the Mayo Clinic after complaining of dizziness while at the Dodgers' spring training complex at Vero Beach.

Meanwhile, the Dodgers signed pitcher Rick Sutcliffe, 22, completing their 40-man spring roster. Pitcher Lance Rautzhan signed just prior to the National League team's departure for Florida.

Gifford's Son Hurt In Crash

ENGLEWOOD CLIFFS, N.J. (AP) — Sportcaster Frank Gifford's 24-year-old son is in critical condition and two companions were killed Thursday afternoon when their car ran off the Palisades Interstate Parkway, rammed a tree and split into three pieces.

Kyle Gifford, of Scarsdale, N.Y., was reported in critical condition Friday morning at Englewood Hospital with skull and internal injuries, a hospital spokesman said.

The son of the ABC sportscaster had been in surgery for several hours.

The dead were identified as John Buckingham of Cold Springs, Colo., and Warren Mascetti, of Connecticut, both in their 20s.

They were pronounced dead at Englewood Hosptial.

Authorities were still investigating the 5:57 p.m. accident. Mascetti was driving the car, which was traveling southbound when it veered off the highway onto the median, traveling 20 feet before striking the tree.

The two men killed were thrown from the car. It took rescue workers several minutes to free the young Gifford from the wreckage.

Jews Recall Shanghai Ghetto

RECALLING TOUGHER TIMES — David Kranzler, an assistant professor at Queensborough Community College in New York and an author, holds a book he has written entitled "Japanese, Nazis and Jews" at his Brooklyn, N.Y., home Thursday. "Shanghai was a real haven for Jews fleeing Nazi Germany," Kranzler say. "It was the only place you could get without a visa." Kranzler was among those who fled Europe to Shanghai. In front of him are sandals from those tougher times of his past. (AP Laserphoto)

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Treasury secretary Michael Blumenthal's trip to China highlights an intriguing footnote to the Holocaust — the survival of almost 20,000 Jewish refugees from Adolf Hitler in a crowded ghetto in Shanghai during World War II.

About 18,000 German, Austrian and Polish Jews arrived in Shanghai, then an international settlement already including many Jewish refugees, between 1938 and 1941. Blumenthal was one of them.

"Shanghai was a real haven for Jews fleeing Nazi Germany, it was the only place you could get to without a visa," said David Kranzler, author of "Japanese, Nazis and Jews."

Many were penniless. Some found it hard to adjust to the semitropical climate and contracted typhus, dysentery, beriberi, cholera and other diseases.

After the war, virtually all the Jews left China. Half of them moved to Israel. Others landed in San Francisco, where they remain a close-knit community.

"In this ghetto, we developed deep roots," said Hans Cohn, a 52-year-old cantor of a Redwood City, Calif., synagogue that recently was gutted by fire. "There was a lot of hardship and suffering, disease and poverty, but people discovered their internal strength."

Cohn left Berlin at age 13 after seeing the Nazis burn his synagogue to the ground. He and his parents escaped through Italy and took a boat to Shanghai.

He quit school to support his family as a restaurant cook, learned Chinese and sang at religious services. After the war, he stowed away to Australia and then made his way to the United States.

"I came here with $80 in my pocket, but I had a tremendous sense of commitment and a willingness to work and get ahead," says Cohn.

"This is something I share with all the Shanghai refugees," he added. "All of them had enormous energies and a desire to rebuild their lives."

Kranzler described the Shanghai community as "disparate groups that worked together" in a teeming city of four million Chinese and 100,000 foreigners.

About 2,000 Jews had come to Shanghai before those who fled Hitler after 1938. There were also two groups of Jews long established in the city — the Sephardim, who came from Baghdad via India in the 19th century, and Russian Jews who fled the revolution.

About half the newer refugees were totally or partially dependent on relief committees for their room and board and medical expenses. Most of them lived in the dark, rubble-strewn ghetto known as Hongkew.

Refugees opened restaurants, drycleaning shops, bookstores and other businesses.

"One man had a fine pastry shop, but couldn't afford to eat any of the pastries himself," said Kranzler, an assistant professor at Queensborough Community College in New York.

Despite the poverty, the ghetto produced three daily newspapers, a first-rate symphony and 60 plays, as well as original scripts, Kranzler said.

"To support ourselves, we sold everything, even our wedding rings," said Hede Heyman, 81, interviewed at her home here. "It was terribly dirty in Shanghai. Dead bodies lay on the streets, surrounded by hungry rats. The bodies were picked up in bundles, like garbage."

During an American bombing of Japanese-occupied Shanghai on July 17, 1945, the compound she lived in took a direct hit which killed 12 and wounded 40.

"It was so terrifying, fragile houses collapsed, we were black from dirt and smoke," she said. "I wore a kitchen pot on my head for days. But throughout my experiences in Shanghai, I felt lucky to be alive."

The Japanese restricted the Jews — giving passes outside the ghetto only to those with jobs — because they believed much of the anti-Semitic propaganda that Jews were wealthy and powerful, according to Kranzler's research.

But, unlike the Nazis, they made no attempt at genocide. Instead, trying to harness the Jews' alleged power, the Japanese used them in China to send peacefeelers to the United States.

"There were atrocities, but they weren't daily occurrences," said Trixie Wachsner of Los Angeles, who met her husband in Shanghai and was married there. "We had our trials and tribulations. As a result, we are very clannish and tight-knit. We stay in touch."

Mrs. Wachsner and her husband Frank were visiting China when the United States announced plans to recognize China. "We were excited," said Mrs. Wachsner. "All in all, China was good to us."

But not everyone has fond memories of Shanghai.

Blumenthal, who fled Germany at 13 and is to visit Shanghai today, once described the wartime city as a "cesspool" and a "den of iniquity."

His family lived in a ghetto and Blumenthal took odd jobs to help support them. Blumenthal's mother sold the family's possessions to buy her husband's freedom from Buchenwald and to book passage out of Germany. They went in 1939 to Shanghai, where no visa was required.

The treasury secretary attended a British private school where he learned English, until the Japanese closed it. The Blumenthal family was sent by the Japanese to an internment camp for two years.

Other Shanghai refugees point to Blumenthal and others as examples of the drive and success war-time Shanghai produced.

"There are a lot of American success stories," said one refugee. "Many of them are Shanghailaenders" — Shanghai Jews.

Fraternity Men Defend Playboy

ITHACA, N.Y. (UPI) — About two dozen Cornell University fraternity brothers, wearing only athletic supporters and sneakers, crashed a feminist protest of Playboy Magazine's planned photo feature on women in the Ivy League.

Shouting "We support Playboy," the semi-nude Delta Upsilon brothers tried to upstage the feminists who were busy chanting "Don't expose your bodies" to prospective models talking with photographer David Chan inside Statler Hall.

Playboy has been interviewing coeds on the eight-school Ivy League circuit for a September feature. The women may pose clothed, partially clothed or nude.

Chan's visits to other schools have triggered similar feminist demonstrations, but the seminude counter demonstration by male students added a bit of spice Thursday.

"They're very saucy guys," said senior Dale Schomer, who encountered the display while she was on her way to work at Straight's information desk. "I haven't seen the movie 'Animal House.'

ANNOUNCING AN IBM SEMINAR ON SMALL COMPUTERS

If you're in charge of any kind of business, you've probably thought about how a computer could help with your expanding information needs.

Well, now there's a free IBM seminar designed for businessmen just like you. It features a discussion of the applications and benefits of IBM's small computers.

Small computers can handle a wide range of important jobs, including order entry, invoicing, receivables, payroll sales analysis, and inventory management to name just a few.

There are small, easy-to-use, low-cost IBM computers for the first-time user, available with programming already written for over twenty different industries. And there are small IBM computers that can be programmed specifically for your use.

But whatever your data processing requirements, the IBM seminar on small computers can help you with the kind of basic information you need to make an informed decision about the role of a computer in your business.

If you'd like to attend this free IBM seminar, call your Lubbock —IBM General Systems Division Office ... Ask for Ronna Davis to reserve a seat.

War Threatens Idi Amin's Rule

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Fierce fighting involving jet planes and tanks was reported today in the eastern Ugandan town of Tororo in an apparent battle between forces loyal to President Idi Amin and others opposed to him.

The new fighting 75 miles east of the Ugandan capital of Kampala deepened the military threat against Amin's eight-year-old rule. To the south, a combined force of Tanzanian troops and Ugandan rebels in recent weeks has pushed Amin's troops back to the town of Masaka, 80 miles from the capital.

Officials at Mbale Hospital, 25 miles north of Tororo, said they had received an undetermined number of dead and wounded from today's fighting.

Residents said the fighting centered on the barracks of the Tororo Battalion. They said it began about dawn, with repeated explosions until about 10 a.m., and was continuing late this afternoon.

"It started about 6 a.m. So far, it has been confined to the barracks, about 1½ miles from town," said a Tororo resident telephoned from Nairobi. One unconfirmed report said, however, that parts of the town, including the main hotel, were burned.

"There are jet fighters flying overhead and tanks and armored personnel carriers in the town," the resident said. "We don't know exactly what is going on but we can see the barracks burning."

Some informants said it was a mutiny within the 1,000 men of the air-and water-borne battalion at Tororo, eight miles west of the Kenyan border. Others said an unidentified force fought its way to Tororo from the area of Lake Victoria a few miles to the south.

Ugandan exiles in Nairobi described the Tororo fighting as a mutiny. They said anti-Amin soldiers removed weapons from the battalion armory and distributed them to civilians.

Military sources in Jinja, near Kampala, the Ugandan capital, said Amin ordered troops from the Khaddafy barracks at Jinja to go to Tororo, 75 miles to the east. But they said the Khaddafy units were blocked on the Jinja-Tororo road by anti-Amin forces.

Besides the invasion from the south, Amin in recent weeks has been hit with reported mutinies in his Suicide and Lion battalions in the key southern towns of Masaka and Mbarara.

Strife Afflicting Major Portion Of World

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON

LONDON (AP) — War, guerrilla conflict, terrorism and other death-dealing strife afflict more than a score of nations in Asia, Africa, Latin America and Europe. The most critical of them is China's war with Vietnam — a conflict that carries the threat of Soviet intervention and the prospect of new worldwide tension.

Other nations are involved in various disputes that could lead to conflict. Still others have been drawn into struggles that began outside their borders.

These countries range in population from China's 865 million to South Yemen's 1.7 million. In all, they make up about a quarter of the earth's 4.2 billion people.

China's invasion of Vietnam, which began on Feb. 17, came on the heels of the Vietnamese invasion of Cambodia and sent shock waves through world capitals.

North Yemen and South Yemen have been fighting for eight days in a strategic part of the Middle East. The four-month-old war between Idi Amin's Uganda and neighboring Tanzania has intensified in east-central Africa. Another African nation, the former French colony of Chad, faces the possibility of civil war, according to diplomats there.

Sporadic guerrilla violence continues in the Central American nations of Nicaragua, Honduras, El Salvador and Guatemala. Palestinian guerrillas occasionally set off bombs inside Israel and Moslem-Christian violence continues on and off in Lebanon.

The crisis in Northern Ireland remains unsettled, although the situation is considerably calmer than it was, and Basque separatists remain active in Spain.

In Asia, the government of the Philippines still battles a Moslem separatist movement in its southern islands. Rebel action is still under way in Burma. Guerrilla activity continues in southern Thailand and Malaysia and has sprung up against the new pro-Soviet government in Afghanistan.

Iran and its 33.5 million people are experiencing much less bloodletting, but the oil-rich nation still is in search of a permanent solution to the upheavals resulting from the overthrow of the shah.

The search for permanent peace between Israel and its Arab foes remains shaky. In the latest effort, President Carter is once again trying to seal an Egyptian-Israeli peace accord in Washington.

The intensity, seriousness and scope of a number of the conflicts are difficult for outsiders to gauge because of the limited access they have to information on the hostilities.

In Africa, a mixed force of Tanzanians and dissident Ugandans are loosening President Amin's grip on Uganda. The trouble began when Amin tried last fall to annex a slice of Tanzanian territory he claimed for Uganda. Now he is fighting for survival.

Rhodesian bombers have been hitting guerrilla bases in Mozambique, Zambia and Angola. The guerrillas have been fighting Prime Minister Ian Smith and white rule of Rhodesia for more than six years.

Ethiopian troops helped by Cubans and armed by the Soviets are still warding off nightly assaults by neighboring Somali irregulars aiming to wrap the disputed Ogaden province into their own land. The Ethiopians also are trying to crush Eritrean separatists seeking their own state.

Across the Red Sea at the southern corner of the Arabian Peninsula, South Yemen, backed by Moscow, claims its forces have taken the three North Yemeni towns on their border and that an internal revolt against the Washington-backed government of North Yemen is growing. Washington sees the fighting as a Moscow bid to replace the conservative regime in North Yemen with a Marxist-oriented government that would extend Soviet influence further in the Mideast and the Horn of Africa across the Red Sea.

In Chad, the opposing forces of President Felix Malloum and Premier Hissen Habre are observing a cease-fire that took effect a week ago, but diplomats in N'Djamena, the capital, believe a full-scale civil war will result. At the root of Chad's crisis is age-old hostility between nearly two million Moslem Arabs herders in central Chad led by Habre and 2.5 million black Christian or Animist farmers in the south led by Malloum.

In North Africa, Morocco is fighting Polisario guerrillas for control of the former Spanish Sahara. Morocco and Mauretania annexed the territory two years ago. This led not only to fighting but also to a lineup between France, Morocco and Mauretania on the one side and Algeria and Libya on the other.

In South America, Argentina and Chile have raised war alarms in their dispute over ownership of three tiny islands in the Beagle Channel, at the tip of the continent.

And this year is the 100th anniversary of a war in which Chile swallowed Bolivia's land corridor to the sea and a chunk of Peru. Bolivia has set 1979 as the deadline for recovering its access to the sea while Peru is prepared for possible hostilities.

Centralists Claim Wins In Spain Elections

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Premier Adolfo Suarez's Centrists were the winners today in the elections for a new Spanish Parliament, beating back a Socialist challenge and falling short of a majority by only seven seats.

With 89 percent of Thursday's ballots counted, Suarez's Union of the Democratic Center had 34 percent of the popular vote and 169 of the 350 seats in the lower house of the Cortes. This was four more than it won in 1977, in Spain's first free democratic election in 41 years.

Interior Minister Rodolfo Martin Villa predicted the Centrists would win unchallenged control of the 208-member Senate with a majority of at least four.

The premier's campaign manager, Rafael Arias Salgado, said Suarez would continue to govern with an all-Centrist cabinet even if the party did not get a majority in the lower house.

Felipe Gonzalez's Socialists had 119 seats, three less than they won in 1977, and 29 percent of the vote. Santiago Carrillo's Communists were third with 10 percent and 23 seats, a gain of three, while the conservative Democratic Coalition and the moderate Catalan Party each had won nine seats.

The rest of the seats were divided among minor parties, including one seat won by ultra-rightist Blas Pinar, whose Francoist Party got 2 percent of the vote.

The premier's victory rebutted opinion polls that gave an edge to the Socialists because of unemployment, inflation and Basque terrorism. Some of Gonzalez's support was drained off by a rebellious faction of the party in Andalucia that took five seats. The Socialists also lost ground in the Basque region of northwest Spain, where the vote was divided among the moderate Basque Nationalist Party and two far-left parties advocating Basque independence.

The election center said 67 percent of the 26.8 million eligible voters cast ballots, 16 percent less than in 1977. The voting age was lowered from 21 to 18, adding 3 million to the voting rolls. But many of the 1.5 million Spaniards working in other European countries could not vote because absentee ballots did not get to them.

Suarez, 46, who began his political career under dictator Francisco Franco, was named premier in 1976 by Franco's successor, King Juan Carlos, to lead Spain to democracy.

GROWING OLDER

Aged Blamed For Inflation

By LOU COTTIN

We seniors are being blamed for everything that has gone wrong in the country.

Is the dollar down in value? Blame the aged. Is the nation being ruined by inflation? Blame the aged. There goes the economy straight to hell in a haywagon!

We seniors are becoming the chief targets of conservative economists. Unless we organize to expose the fallacies in their propositions, we may suffer untold miseries.

They have even coined a new phrase — "the graying of the budget."

In The New York Times of last Dec. 27, Steven V. Boberts explained the phrase: "Every year, people over age 65 eat up a growing percentage of the federal budget. This year $112 billion, or 24 percent of the budget, will go to the elderly, and in 50 years the outlay will be $635 billion, 40 percent of the total, according to federal estimates."

That's a neat trick. What it fails to consider is that production costs may have gone down by 2029 as technology and science advance.

"Supporters for the elderly," continues Roberts, "resent the implication that they are somehow imperiling the nation's economic welfare."

Jack Osofsky, executive director of the National Council on Aging, made a significant comment on the subject: "In a sense, the graying of America is a great victory for society. Those who predict the possibility of an inter-generational battle may be fanning one."

That's a wise statement. The birth rates during the last two decades have gone down. A limited number of younger people will be doing all the work of the country.

But that need not be a frightening prospect. Working hours can and probably will be reduced. Workers will enjoy more leisure. There will continue to be a need for all the products the nation produces — and a vast increase in demand for leisure-related items.

After all, we seniors spend nearly all the money we receive. Wasn't the depression of the 1930s caused by a simple equation? Unemployed people had no money to buy what the manufacturers made. Therefore, more people were thrown out of work. And so on.

Most of the $112 billion we now get goes right back into the economy. So will the $635 billion seniors receive and spend half a century from now.

In October, Congress passed a re-authorization of the Older Americans Act. But that measure has yet to be accompanied by an appropriations bill for fiscal 1979, which began last Oct. 1. (An appropriation must be approved before authorizations are translated into funds for senior programs.)

As a result, Older Americans Act programs are operating under a continuing resolution at fiscal 1978 funding levels. Without immediate additional appropriations, inflation may cut up to 10 percent from all present Older Americans Act programs — social services, ombudsmen, legal services, area programs, home-delivered meals and senior centers.

For example, the Rev. James G. Amos, president of New York City's Council of Senior Centers, notes: "The 85 center programs in New York will suffer the elimination of important social services and educational, social and recreational programs unless increased federal appropriations for the Older Americans Act are voted on and passed."

It will take all the strength of the senior-citizen movement to get an appropriations bill through Congress. The time for action is now!

First, write to President Carter. Urge that the request for funds be made early in this session and that it include the increases already authorized by Congress.

As of this writing, a staff spokesman for the House Select Committee on the Aging doubts that the administration will seek increases for anything but the new program for home delivery of meals.

Second, write to your representatives in Congress. If you belong to an organization, get your congressman to speak at a meeting and put himself or herself on record for immediate increases.

Your congressman and senators may have voted in favor of seniors last fall. But now judge them by whether they vote for the appropriations bill.

Inflation will clobber every program in every title of the Older Americans Act unless each of us takes pen in hand.

Individual letters, postcards and phone calls to our elected officials in Washington will do the job. Petitions alone won't.

An appropriations bill must be passed or we're in the soup!

HAIR TODAY GONE TOMORROW — Rep. James Weaver, D-Ore., decided to return to the "natural me" by descarding his toupee. Back in 1972 Weaver lost to his Republican opponent who also was bald. Weaver felt he looked too much like the winner and went for a new look with a toupee. In 1974 he won and still is a member of Congress. Just goes to show you what a little hair-do can do. Callers Critical Of Rural Fire Group

BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP) — A stream of profanity blistered the ear of Bozeman Fire Chief Bud Simpson when he answered the telephone.

"It was two people talking, and they called him everything they could, with a lot of profanity," city manager Sam Gesko said. "As near as we could tell, they were calling from New York or New Jersey."

The call was the worst in a series of critical telephone calls from around the country — and some from Canada and Australia — which city officials have received since a rural fire association allowed a house to burn down because the owner hadn't paid his membership fee.

But it was a private association — not the city fire department — involved, Gesko pointed out, and the home was seven miles outside city limits, where the city's authority ends.

The city fire department was not summoned and "was in no way involved in this unfortunate fire, nor in attempting or refusing to extinguish it," Gesko said in a statement aimed at disassociating the city from the fire.

"I had another call this morning from Houston," Gesko said later. "It was not as abusive, but very critical. They just wanted to vent their wrath on any jurisdiction that would do anything like that."

Not only officials are feeling the heat. A Bozeman firefighter said, "The general consensus of the guys is to lay low and not tell anybody who you are right now."

Members of the Rae Fire Department began fighting the fire early Saturday at the home of the Harry Petroff family, who had begun moving in only 10 hours earlier.

An hour later, when firefighters discovered Petroff hadn't paid the $40 fee to join the rural fire district, they quit.

"They had the fire almost smothered out. Then they just shut their hoses off and watched it burn," Petroff said.

Frank Trunk, president of the Rae Fire Department, offered no apologies for the incident. He said his men had no choice.

"... Our responsibility lies with the membership and our volunteer firemen," Trunk said. "The insurance coverage we have for the protection of our volunteer firemen covers them only when they fight a member fire....

"I think it's real unfair for the public to expect these people to go out on a non-member fire, risk being hurt or killed and have no protection for themselves or their families."

Use Of Native Energy Sources Has Potential

WASHINGTON (AP) — New England, heavily dependent on foreign oil, could produce from 10 percent to 45 percent of its own energy from native sources like wood and water, wind and sun power, a congressional study has concluded.

The study, prepared by the New England congressional caucus, said wood-burning stoves and heaters, already in wide use throughout the region, have the greatest potential for reducing use of heating oil.

Wood burning could replace up to 55 million barrels of oil per year the mid-1980s, the report said.

Wood is the region's most abundant energy resource. More than 80 percent of New England is covered by forests, the report said.

Small hydroelectric plants could displace another nine million barrels of oil by 1985, accounting for about 1.5 percent of New England's energy demand, the study said.

For New England as a whole, 10 percent of total energy needs could be met from alternate energy sources by 1985, the report said. It added that for the northern states — Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont — this figure could rise to between 40 percent and 45 percent.

The report said solar and wind power could also make a contribution to the region's future energy needs, but to a lesser degree than wood and hydropower.

Solar power could displace up to one million barrels of oil annually in New England by 1985, the report said. Wind power also has potential but further research and development are needed to make it economically competitive with oil.

Rep. James C. Cleveland, R-N.H., told a news conference that steps called for in the report should be viewed in light of recent price increases by oil-exporting nations and the cutoff of Iranian supplies.

"According to the report, wood not only is available but economically competitive as well. Shockingly, Congress and the administration have done little to encourage its use thus far despite the efforts of some of us from New England."

Alaskan Trip Upsets Balance

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
Associated Press Writer

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. — The year Greg went north for the winter — well, to avoid bombastic rhetoric, it just didn't set right with everyone.

The club really hasn't been the same since Fred and Sue decided that Point Barrow, Alaska, would be ideal for their February vacation.

Mulligan's Stew

You see, Graham and Carla, who always have been the trend-setters around here, had just gotten back from this fabulously expensive resort on the Yucatan peninsula where everyone has his own private thatched cabana on a beach like talcum powder.

"It was five below when we left O'Hare and the snow was higher than my window air conditioners," said Graham over a round of Margaritas that included his personal instructions to the bartender on how to frost the lips of the glasses with salt. "I wanted to hug the first palm tree I saw getting off the plane."

Greg declined the Margarita. He ordered a Russian vodka on the rocks and asked the bartender to keep a bottle encased in a block of ice, "Siberian style," so in the future he could drink it neat. Like the North Slope oil workers.

"The drifts were higher than the aircraft hangar when we landed," he said, "and it was still snowing. I guess the wind chill factor was somewhere near 50 below. You almost expected the breath from those sled dogs to spell out A-R-F, A-R-F."

This information seemed to frost Graham, who was wearing his straw sombrero and the serape hand-woven by the local tribe in an ancient Mayan design.

"We brought back some fantastic pottery too," enthused Carla. "The old craftsmen are fast dying out but our guide knew a stall way back in the marketplace where this wizen old Indian woman...

"It's like scrimshaw," Sue cut her off sympathetically. "You know, carving on whale bones and walrus teeth. Not many left who still take the time to do it, but we got lucky. The missionary who flies in once a month to say Mass took us to this Eskimo village..."

The waiter arrived with another round of Margaritas about then, and, of course, Greg's Russian vodka-rocks.

Showing us where his sunburn was still peeling on the back of his neck, Graham got the floor long enough to tell us how the Mexican government had used a computer to locate this resort, feeding into it data on weather, humidity, texture of the sand, insects, safe, unpolluted beaches, available fresh water, etc. "Statistics showed the place had 240 days of sunshine a year," he continued, "and we hardly saw a cloud the whole time we were there. The Caribbean was so emerald green and clear, you could snorkel that reef all the way to Honduras."

Emerald green did it. Greg saw his cue as clearly as if it were flashed on an idiot card in a TV talk show.

"Funny," he said, "emerald green exactly describes a glacier on a clear subzero morning. Of course we only got two hours of sunshine a day, but that didn't stop us from trotting around on snow shoes and snow-mobiling under the northern lights, which also, come to think of it, have kind of a greenish tinge." Right here, he showed off his frostbite blotches.

That's pretty much the way it went the rest of the evening.

Carla showed us her black coral necklace with matching earrings and described the Brazilian string bikini she never would have the courage to wear at the club pool. Sue had on her shark's teeth pendant and couldn't wait for the next cold snap to dazzle them down at the supermarket with her genuine wolverine parka that the Arctic Institute had approved for 80 below or something like that.

Graham, the gourmet, raved about cochinita pibil, pork in a Yukatan hot sauce, and ceviche de caracol del Caribe, a sea snail marinated in lemon, chile and olive oil. Gregg countered with whale steaks, Cooked over a seal oil stove, and bannock and pemmican for hors d'ouvres.

Graham and Carla had explored the Mayan ruins at Chicken Itza and danced the Mexican hat dance to the music of a real Mariachi band. Gregg heard Sue had visited the site of an old Russian whaling station and "right in the heart of dowtown Barrow" had found a way-out discotheque called the Malamute Saloon, Moo-Moo Uckluk and His sled-dog Six "could sure shake the ice cubes from your mukluks."

Tempers grew a mite strained when they compared the bargains to be had on Isla de Mujeros, which is a free port, with the duty free shop at Nome, but we thought the whole thing might still be settled in a civilized fashion with color slide shows at 100 paces.

Then it suddenly turned violent. The subject of condominiums came up.

Graham said for a small down payment and $34 a month, he and Carla had bought the use of a beach hacienda for one week out of every year for the rest of their lives on a beautiful isolated cove fringed with coconut palms.

For less than half that price, Greg said he and Sue had bought into a condominium complex of geodesic villas, made to look like igloos, on a completely unspoiled stretch by the Bering Sea.

And Sue dumped the avocodo dip down Graham's pineapple fibre shirt front.

Like they say, traveling can be adventurous.

Banks Change Focus Of Trust Business

By STEPHEN M. BROWN

NEW YORK (AP) — The trust departments of banks have long been reserved for the very rich, who were just about the only people who needed them. But banks have plans to change all that and tap what they see as a big market ready for attention — the middle class.

Bankers have even come up with a new name for their trust business — "personal financial services."

These services are aimed at the affluent middle class, which is expanding, whereas the traditional trust departments were designed to meet the needs of the very wealthy, a group that is barely growing.

W. Kenneth Bonds, president of the American Bankers Association trust division, defines the affluent middle class as persons with net worths of $50,000 to $100,000. He says this group is increasing at the average annual rate of 14 percent.

If trust departments are to expand their volume of business, they must "follow the migration of wealth to its new owners, the affluent middle class," he said.

Bonds cited Internal Revenue Service figures that show there were less than three million persons with assets over $200,000 in 1977, but there were more than 18.5 million Americans with assets of $60,000 to $200,000.

He said the trust industry would like to serve the latter group, — now about 10 percent of the population and is growing — as well as providing the traditional personal trust services to the very wealthy, a group that comprises about 0.5 percent of the population.

To best serve this middle-class group with smaller amounts to be put in trust, banks should be allowed to pool small trusts when investing, Bonds said.

At present, that is illegal. Under the Glass-Steagall Act of 1933, pooling small trusts is too much like running a mutual fund — something banks are not allowed to do.

Bonds said the American Bankers Association will probably ask Congress to change the prohibition on pooling trusts.

David E. Ellison, senior vice president, trust division, of Seattle-First National Bank, has noted that many of the new, affluent middle-class families have two well-educated, informed wage earners, both of whom want to participate in managing their assets. These clients, he said, have different needs than the traditional trust customers — male heads of households, or their widows, who left the management of assets entirely to the trustee.

An example of the new approach to trust accounts can be found in Providence, R.I., where Rhode Island Hospital Trust National Bank has opened a trust banking center within its trust and investment management division.

At the center, the bank's trust customers can handle all their typical commerical banking chores but also can consult a personal investment-planning counselor and, in the future, consultants who specialize in real-estate tax shelters.

The Almanac
TODAY IN HISTORY

By United Press International

The moon is moving toward its first quarter.

The morning stars are Venus and Mars.

The evening stars are Mercury, Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Pisces.

Texas frontier hero Sam Houston was born March 2, 1783.

On this day in history:

In 1899, Congress established Mount Rainier National Park in Washington state.

In 1927, Babe Ruth of the New York Yankees signed for $70,000 — the highest paid ballplayer at the time, with practically no income taxes.

In 1945, units of the U.S. 9th Army reached the Rhine River opposite Dusseldorf, Germany.

A thought for the day:

British statesman John Viscount Morley said, "In my creed, waste of public money is like the sin against the Holy Ghost."

NBC Fires Engineer Of Expensive 'Supertrain'

By PETER J. BOYER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — NBC has a problem; rather a big problem, even for much-troubled NBC. It has to do with this $12 million train the network recently bought.

It doesn't run. At least, "Supertrain" hasn't been going anywhere in the ratings. It made an unscheduled stop at the lower end of the ratings, and NBC hasn't been able to get it going.

The train is too expensive to junk, so they fired the engineer, executive producer Dan Curtis. The network's explanation, from programming executive John McMahon:

"Dan did a terrific job on 'Supertrain,' in mounting it and getting it ready. There are just some things, some minor disagreements on future directions of the show. We kind of agreed to disagree."

Dan Curtis, known straight-shooter:

"You want to know the truth? I don't think they really know what the hell the show should be. It ended (his association with the show) because a lot of money was being spent on it — you're talking about $10 million or $12 million — and it wasn't getting a big share (in the ratings)."

"Supertrain," in case you haven't heard, is an hour-long mystery-drama-comedy-fantasy, or something like that, on NBC Wednesday nights. NBC President Fred Silverman ordered "Supertrain" last August for the February season. That gave Curtis's bunch six months to put together a show many thought really needed a year or more to prepare.

The show is about an eccentric billionaire's favorite toy, an atomic powered, 200-mph train that is twice as large as ordinary trains and twice as luxurious (with spa and disco) as an ordinary hotel. Curtis' crews worked around the clock at MGM in designing and constructing the thing, just finishing in time for the two-hour premiere Feb. 7.

That show gathered about 32 per cent of the audience, respectable enough. But the following episodes dropped, and last week, "Supertrain" only attracted 20 per cent of the audience.

Curtis was fired. "As onerous as it sounds," he says, "my original idea was to make the thing something like a 'Love Boat' on wheels, where you could do little stories that involve all your train people and all that. And that's what I gave them, as difficult as it was."

NBC wanted something else. "We want to have a light, bright show," McMahon says, "a mystery-adventure wth an innocent getting on the train and speeding across country, having to solve problems that he or she ordinarily wouldn't be equipped to solve."

Curtis says the network kept talking about Hitchkock-type shows, occasionally dropping titles like "North by Northwest."

"I'll tell you what that means," says Curtis, "that means 'Can't do it every week.' You want a light, bright show with mystery and comedy and sophisticated humor and suspense? And you want it once a week? Good luck!"

There is one point on which Curtis an NBC agree — the network will stick with "Supertrain" much longer than it would an inexpensive sitcom with similar ratings.

Curtis says "There's a lot of money in it and yes, I think they'll stick with it. There's no reason it can't work, once they get a handle on it. They'll try various approaches until they've either kicked it to death or have gotten it to work. There's too much in it and the potential's there."

NBC's McMahon says the network might move the show from its early evening time slot, maybe insert new cast members, "things like that. But we're gonna stick with it." NBC has hired Robert Stambler to take Curtis' place.

Curtis, meanwhile, has other things on his mind. He's about to begin production on a 12-hour adaptation of Herman Wouk's powerful novel, "The Winds of War" for NBC. You get the feeling he's a little relieved to be out of "Supertrain."

"A little bit? Can I take the Goodyear blimp and ride over the city with an advertisement telling 'em how glad I am? A little bit? I'm off to do 'Winds of War.' It's a real biggie. Of course, it's no 'Supertrain'."

COUNTERFEIT BILLS SEIZED

DETROIT (AP) — A Detroit couple is free on bond after U.S. Secret Service agents raided their home and their print shop and seized more than $500,000 in counterfeit $50 bills. An alleged accomplice also was freed on bond. George and Jan Knost were arrested Monday and appeared Tuesday before a U.S. magistrate on charges of possessing counterfeit Federal Reserve notes. Secret Service agents said they seized printing plates, negatives and a printing press at the couple's home and at Knost's Quality Graphics Print Shop.

New Mary Tyler Moore Show Familiar

By JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — There's a new Mary Tyler Moore Show coming on the air that will strike fans as decidedly familiar — in many ways it's just like the old Mary Tyler Moore show we loved for so many years.

The new program, which premieres Sunday at 9 p.m., Central time, has dropped the variety format of the ill-fated "Mary" show that opened last fall and closed within a few months.

The puzzle was solved by creating a situation comedy about a television personality — "Mary McKinnon" — who sings and dances on her show but who possesses a "Miss Nice Guy" personality almost identical to Mary Richards, the television newswriter Miss Moore played on her old show.

The new show offers an office "famiy," just as the old show did. This time there's Joyce Van Patten as her personal assistant, Michael Keaton as the brash post-adolescent go-fer who brags that when it comes to romance on the slopes, he's known as "the Defroster." Michael Lombard plays the show's bald producer, and Ron Rifkin the director.

Guest stars on the opener are Lucile Ball and Mike Douglas, always a pleasant personality. Lucy and Mary have a ball in a drunk scene, and they mug shamelessly and delightfully as they try to swallow octopus and eel. Miss Ball at one point looks like a snappish Pekinese while Mary tries to hide her disgust behind an unconvincingly polite smile.

Another fine comedy talent comes to CBS in the half-hour before the MTM hour in the form of "Stockard Channing in Just Friends."

The basis for the show is the off-beat character of Miss Channing — a kind of zany pragmatism that can be delightful and, at the same time, touching.

City Cuts Off Hotel's Water

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Millionaire Robert Short's Leamington Hotel was short of water recently for about 15 minutes when the city discovered the hotel owed a water bill.

The city shut off the hotel's water because of nonpayment of a water bill — reportedly about $10,000. Service was restored to the hotel when a check was delivered to the city for the full amount of the water bill.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Patty Hearst must have one fantastic yarn to tell. Maybe someday she'll tell it. In the meantime, ABC offers "The Ordeal of Patty Hearst."

This Sunday night TV movie should be called "The Charles Bates Story." The star of the show is FBI agent Bates (played nicely by Dennis Weaver), and the action turns on the FBI's frustrating efforts to root Patty and the SLA out of the underground.

It is not, as the title and network promotion might suggest, an inside-the-SLA account of Miss Hearst's strange year-and-a-half experience with her fellow fugitives. What we see of Miss Hearst (Lisa Eilbacher), Cinque (Felton Perry) and the rest of that little revolutionary band is largely what we already knew from reading newspaper accounts.

We hear a lot of slogans, but the SLA must have talked about something besides Marx and Che. Surely they didn't wake up in the morning, yawn, and scream, "Death to the fascist insect that is preying on the lives of the people." I mean, did Patty ever make eggs Benedict for her fellow travelers? Did they ever watch reruns of "The Beverly Hillbillies"?

The SLA we see in this thing is a group of very one-dimensional people. Maybe Patty's own account will flesh them out someday.

For this, however, Miss Hearst did not lend her crucial perspective. The story was constructed from the recollections of San Francisco agent Bates, now retired, and from newspaper and magazine stories.

Since this is three-hours long, and since Bates is the central character, we get a little too much Charles Bates trivia, such as his many arguments with the "New FBI" boys back East over post-Watergate public relations and the bureau's mandatory retirement policy. And then there is the telling scene when Bates asks his teen-aged daughter why a nice bunch of kids would turn into SLA terrorists and she replies, "Kids need to do their own thing."

As a cops-chasing-outlaws piece, though, this excels. We see the kidnaping and chase from the FBI's perspective, a maze of blind alleys and sparse clues made more difficult by San Francisco's fringe-radical community that saw the FBI, not the SLA, as the enemy.

Patty Hearst is reportedly upset about this production. She shouldn't be. She is portrayed as a trendy rich-kid, really All-American at heart, who is terrorized into denouncing her millionaire parents, changing her name to Tania and learning the ways of revolution.

Since Bates was sympathetic to Patty, this movie is sympathetic to Patty. When you see the girl locked in a ratty closet for three weeks with a bunch of unkind strangers pounding the door and verbally abusing her, you'll likely believe she was brainwashed, like her lawyers said.

There's also that psychological report early in the drama that predicts Patty will join her captors, that she will confuse "her friends for her enemies, her tormentors for her protectors."

TODAY'S STOCK PRICES

Prices Hold Steady After Rally

Gainers held a 3-2 edge on losers in the mid-day count of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

But the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, coming off a 7.02-point rally Thursday, pulled back .35 to 815.49 by noontime.

Analysts said investors seemed to have mixed feelings about the government's report Thursday that the index of leading economic indicators fell 1.2 percent in January, for its biggest drop in four years.

While the decline raised the specter of a possible economic slowdown later in the year, analysts said investors seemed to conclude that it might also portend a moderation of inflationary pressures and interest rates.

Similar expectations also were prompted by the decline in the basic measure of the money supply reported by the Federal Reserve late Thursday.

Boeing rose ½ to 64¾ in active trading. British Airways agreed to buy 19 Boeing 757 medium-range jets.

Foster-Wheeler gained 1¾ to 41¼ on top of a 4¼-point jump Thursday, when McDonnell Douglas said it had acquired nearly 400,000 Foster-Wheeler shares.

The NYSE's composite index rose .03 to 54.33. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .51 at 162.78.

Volume on the Big Board came to 11.04 million shares at noontime, up from 10.09 million at the same point Thursday.

IRS Agents Probe Firm

CHICAGO (AP) — Internal Revenue Service agents are investigating allegations of a multimillion-dollar tax fraud by the largest trader on the Chicago Board Options Exchange, an affidavit filed by an agent reveals.

Federal agents with search warrants went through the offices and warehouse of Price and Co., last week and seized nearly 100 boxes of books, records and computer printouts.

They reportedly are investigating accusations that the firm uses questionable accounting procedures and alters its computer records to generate millions of dollars worth of phony tax losses.

A lawyer for the firm said Thursday the IRS is relying on information provided by a former girlfriend of E. Lawrence Price, the firm's president.

The lawyer, John Enwright, said the woman was rejected by Price and left the company the day Price married his present wife. He said the woman is tying to peddle "lurid and bizarre allegations to other agencies" to get back at Price.
