Reagan welcomes Soviets' proposal for reducing arms

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, welcoming a new Soviet proposal to reduce nuclear arms by 50 percent, said Saturday he hoped the fine print will be "free of preconditions and other obstacles to progress."

"There is no reason why real reductions cannot begin promptly," Reagan said in his weekly radio address.

Reporting on his meeting Friday with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, the president said he welcomed what he called the Soviet counterproposal that was outlined at the session.

But Reagan added that "it is important that the counterproposal address our concerns about reductions and stability, just as we have sought to address Soviet concerns, and we hope it will be free of preconditions and other obstacles to progress."

At their White House meeting, Shevardnadze outlined to Reagan a Soviet proposal calling for 50 per cent reductions in U.S. and Soviet nuclear arsenals.

The proposal would also ban efforts such as Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative search for defensive systems against offensive missiles. Shevardnadze said the proposal would be presented in more detail next week at arms control talks in Geneva.

Before heading back to Moscow, Shevardnadze was asked by reporters at Andrews Air Force Base if he saw a good chance of agreement, and he replied: "We always think about the real good chances."

"When we arrive here, it was very bad weather, as you know," Shevardnadze said in remarks translated by Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin. "When we just begin our talk with the president, it was raining. When our talk with the president was over, the sun appeared, and now again have good weather. It's a good omen."

Shevardnadze declined to comment on particulars of the Soviet offer.

Reagan said he and Shevardnadze agreed to set up a series of discussions between senior U.S. and Soviet experts to prepare for the president's Nov. 19-20 meeting with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in Geneva.

The president said he told Shevardnadze that leaders of the two superpowers have "an overriding responsibility ... to work for peaceful relations between us."

The president said he also called for "a more productive Soviet response" to U.S. proposals on nuclear arms.

"We will take further steps to show our readiness to do our part," Reagan said. "We will judge the results as Soviet actions unfold."

"I told the foreign minister I am hopeful about my upcoming meeting with General Secretary Gorbachev, and I put forward some new ideas as well as my plans and expectations for that meeting," Reagan said.

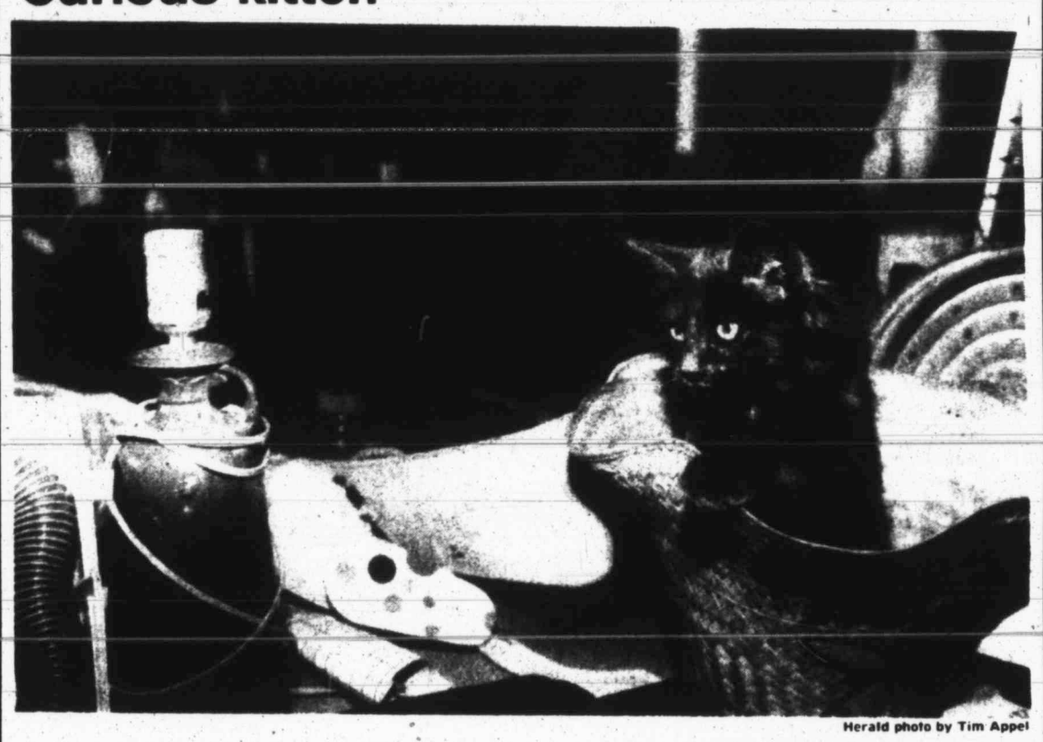

He cautioned, however, that "success will not come from one meeting; it must come from a genuine long-term effort by the leadership of the Soviet Union as well as ourselves."

"I went over with Mr. Shevardnadze Soviet actions in various parts of the world which we feel undermine the prospects for a stable peace, and I discussed with him the need for the Soviet Union to work with us seriously to reduce offensive nuclear arms," the president said.

"Finally," Reagan said, "I emphasized the need for a more productive Soviet response to our efforts in Geneva to begin a a U.S.-Soviet dialogue now on how to fashion a more stable future for all humanity if the research in

Bentsen poll shows Hispanics support immigration control

By WILLIAM GARLAND
Harte-Hanks Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — By wide margins, Texas Hispanics support sanctions against employers of illegal aliens and use of a national identification card to verify citizenship, according to a poll released Saturday by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas.

Bentsen said the poll, conducted by his staff and researchers with the Library of Congress, backs up his position on the immigration control bill that passed the Senate on a 69 to 30 vote last week.

The Texas Democrat voted in favor of the proposal — which includes provisions for employer sanctions, eventual legalization of some aliens and a greatly expanded "guest worker" program. The Senate bill does not include a provision calling for a national worker identification card.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, said he voted against the bill because of the amnesty provision which eventually would give legal status to illegal aliens who have resided continuously in the United States since Jan. 1, 1980.

"This is the third time I voted for that bill and I could give you 20 reasons why someone should vote against it, but none of them good enough," said Bentsen.

The poll — gathered from 652 respondents with Hispanic surnames in Texas — showed that 71.3 percent of the Hispanics favored making it illegal to hire illegal aliens. Only 26.5 percent said they opposed such laws, while 2.1 percent had no response.

Other findings in the poll included:

- 63.5 percent of the Hispanics said they supported a national identification card to be shown at the time of seeking a job. 34.2 percent said they opposed such a card.
- 15.3 percent said they were "very familiar" with the issues relating to immigration reform. 41.3 percent said they were

Ramirez's sister says he wants to plead guilty

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Richard Ramirez, the Texas drifter charged with 14 slayings and 22 sexual assaults in the "Night Stalker" string of attacks, wants to plead guilty but his lawyer won't let him, his sister says.

"He just said that his life was in danger in there (jail) and that's the plea he wanted to enter," Rosa Flores said in an interview with KCBS television. She was relaying the message for her brother, she said.

"Due to the extensive publicity, he says he cannot receive a fair trial and wants to give himself guilty," Ms. Flores said, adding she traveled from Texas with other family members to be near Ramirez.

She said her brother's attorney was aware of Ramirez's wish, but kept him from appearing in court Friday. Officials couldn't confirm if Ms. Flores had visited her brother, sheriff's Deputy Steve Lee said Saturday.

Municipal Judge Elva Soper has imposed a gag order that forbids attorneys and investigators from discussing the case with reporters.

Ramirez, 25, was arraigned Friday on 68 felony counts based on 20 attacks upon 28 victims in Los Angeles County between June 27, 1984, and Aug. 5, 1985, District Attorney Ira Reiner said. The charges include eight filed earlier, one of them a murder count.

The defendant also has been named by San Francisco authorities in an arrest warrant for investigation of the Aug. 17 slaying of Peter Pan, 66.

FAA safety panel suggests changes for D-FW airport

GRAPEVINE (AP) — A special Federal Aviation Administration safety panel has recommended that emergency access roads at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport be improved after a fatal plane crash in August.

But the team declined to reveal more dramatic suggested improvements it said could have "national implications" and which will be released after further review.

The proposed changes are included in a draft report of the five-member FAA safety evaluation team that inspected the airport after the crash of Delta Flight 191 on Aug. 2.

The preliminary report was released by the Washington, D.C., team to airport trustees on Friday.

It suggested 14 improvements, most of them designed to give emergency vehicles quicker access to accident scenes.

No significant access problems have been noted in reviews of the emergency response to the Delta crash, and the team found the airport does not have obstructions that violate FAA standards.

"The study basically confirmed what we've known all along — that D-FW Airport is a well-designed and well-operated airport," said Hugh Lyon, assistant manager of the FAA's southwest region airports division.

FAA officials said the other, more significant recommendations made by the panel will not be released until they are reviewed by the agencies affected, a process that may take several weeks.

Lyon said those changes involve weather detection and reporting — an area that has come under criticism since the accident, which killed 136 people.

Mayors bet on Sunday's game

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Mayor A. Starke Taylor wants to lose his shirt in a bet he's placed on Sunday's game between the Dallas Cowboys and Houston Oilers for football bragging rights in Texas.

If the Cowboys win, Houston Mayor Kathy Whitmire will wear a Dallas jersey, courtesy of Taylor, one day next week.

If the Cowboys lose, Taylor will wear a Houston jersey to Wednesday morning's City Council meeting.

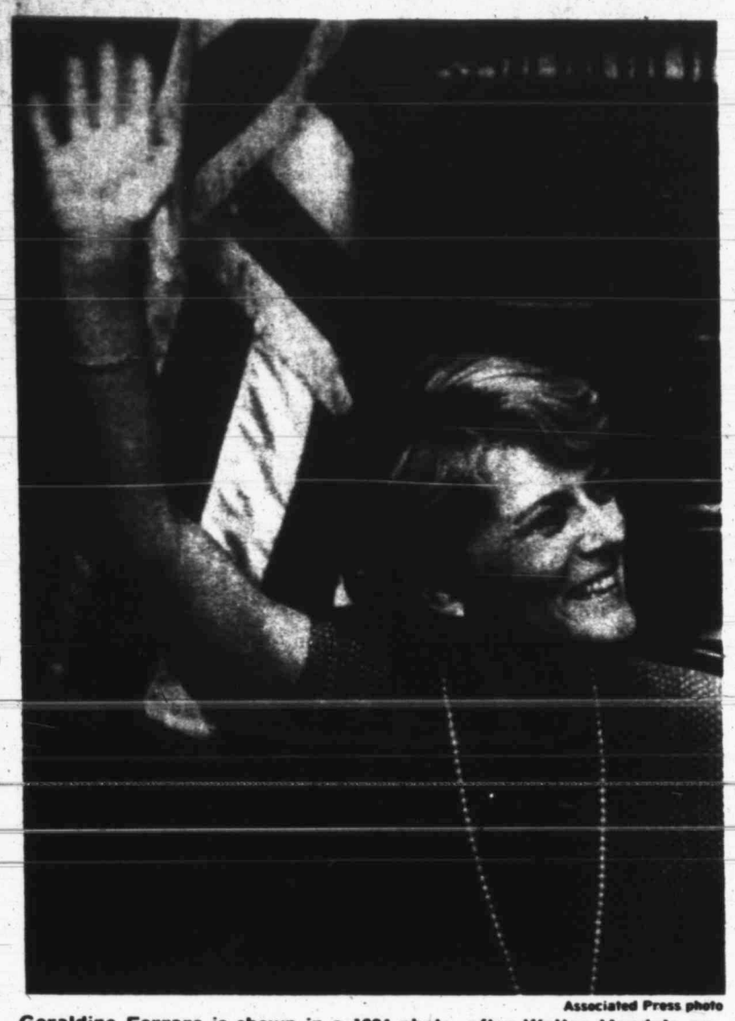

Taylor and Whitmire agreed to the wager Friday morning.

"A Cowboys jersey should already be on its way to Houston," said Dorothy De La Garza, Taylor's administrative assistant.

She said Taylor told Whitmire that although he was a graduate of Rice University in Houston, he had "the good sense to move to Dallas."

Paul Mabry, Whitmire's press secretary, said all of Houston was excited about giving Dallas residents the opportunity to see high-quality TV pictures from the Astrodome, where cameramen don't have to contend with shadows caused by a hole in the roof like the one at Texas Stadium.

Ferraro: campaign was agony

Geraldine Ferraro is shown in a 1984 photo, after Walter Mondale announced her selection as his vice-presidential running mate. She tells of the campaign in a soon-to-be published book.

NEW YORK (AP) — Geraldine Ferraro says her campaign last year for vice president was "almost unbearable," as she was subjected to scrutiny, bigotry and sexism.

Yet the hardships were offset by the opportunities her candidacy opened for women like her two daughters, "expanding their life options a thousandfold," the former New York congresswoman wrote in Ferraro: My Story, to be published by Bantam Books in November.

Excerpts of the book about her campaign on the Democratic ticket were printed in the Oct. 7 issue of Newsweek.

"I wasn't prepared for the depth of the fury, the bigotry and the sexism my candidacy would unleash," wrote Ms. Ferraro, the first woman to be a major party's national candidate.

She called anti-abortion pickets who dogged her steps "vicious" and said the Italian-American community abandoned her.

She said her husband, John Zaccaro, was "devastated" and depressed by scrutiny and criticism of his financial dealings, and said she began to bite her nails and eat "almost compulsively" because of the pressures of the campaign.

Ferraro said she incited a furor over her husband's tax returns by inadvertently approving a news release saying he would release them when he had told her he would not. The documents eventually were released.

Ferraro said she told Walter Mondale to remove her name from his list of possible running mates because members of his staff had been criticizing her anonymously in news reports. She said she considered the criticism to be an assault on her political reputation.

" 'Please take my name out of consideration,' I told Mondale. 'I do not want to be part of this process anymore. I never really did want it,' " Ms. Ferraro wrote. "But he refused."

Mondale promised her the criticism would stop, she said.

On the night of her nomination in San Francisco, she and Mondale and their spouses celebrated with champagne.

"There wasn't a cloud on my horizon," she wrote. "What I didn't know then was the personal agony that lay ahead, an agony that at times would seem almost unbearable."

Ferraro said she was not distraught over losing the election.

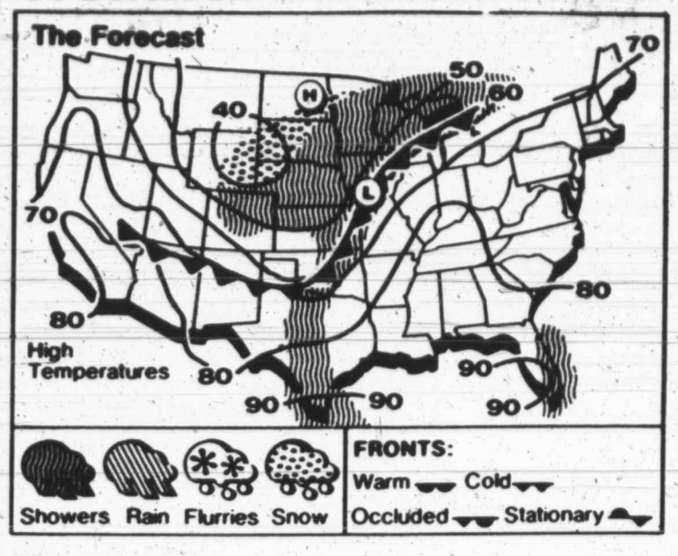

"Short of a major disaster that he couldn't grin away or shrug off helplessly, (President) Reagan was virtually unbeatable," she said.

Ferraro called Cardinal John J. O'Connor of New York "a single-issue bishop" who criticized her pro-abortion position in "an increasingly strident voice."

A Catholic, Ferraro accused O'Connor of focusing on abortion to the exclusion of other moral issues, such as nuclear weapons and hunger. She also criticized his comment that he could not see how a Catholic could vote in good conscience for a supporter of legal abortion.

"That is not my church," she wrote.

What a job U.S. congressmen have

By PHILLIP SWANN
Harte-Hanks Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — How would you like a job that pays $75,100 a year with free health care and education expenses, a leased automobile and an exemption from all parking violations?

If so, you'll have to run for Congress. Those are some of the benefits to members of the U.S. House of Representatives, according to the recent edition of the Congressional Handbook.

"The Congressional Handbook," published this month by the House Administration Committee, offers a detailed account of the benefits and other services available to lawmakers at taxpayer's expense.

The guide, which is updated every year, is not available to the public. However, the Harte-Hanks Washington Bureau recently obtained a copy of the five-inch thick document.

Although some public citizen groups have estimated the cost of these perks to run into the millions, lawmakers have maintained they are needed to attract talented people to Washington.

According to the handbook, the federal government picks up the tab for the members':

- Education costs for courses of study, information or training programs if the subject matter relates to his "official duties."
- Expenses for the long-term lease of an automobile used "in support of the conduct of his official duties."
- Health care, including ambulance service, complete laboratory, X-ray, pharmacy and physiotherapy services, electrocardiographic service (each member is provided with a wallet-size copy of his electrocardiogram) and immunization and allergy injections. Consultations and hospitalization can be arranged with Walter Reed Hospital, Bethesda Naval Hospital or private physicians at bargain rates.
- Expensive office equipment, including a signature machine, a radio telephone and a video recorder and television.
- 20,000 consumer information booklets and 2,500 official House wall calendars that can be distributed to constituents.
- Official congressional license plates, giving him immunity from parking violations.
- Use of house gym, which features a swimming pool, a paddleball court and a steamroom.
- 40,000 postage-free envelopes per month for his office.
- Potted palms and floral centerpieces from the U.S. Botanic Gardens for his office.
- Travel costs (at a rate of 20 cents a mile) from his legal residence to Washington to attend each session of Congress and from Washington to his legal residence upon the adjournment of each session. In addition, the House pays for travel expenses to and from his congressional district during the session.

strategic defense technologies which both the U.S. and the USSR are conducting bears fruit."

The talks in Geneva are virtually stalemated, with the Soviets continuing to insist on severe limitations on Reagan's search for a missile defense system known popularly as "Star Wars."

Last week, the president vowed not to give up research, testing or development of an anti-missile shield.

"We are ready for tough, but fair negotiating," Reagan said Saturday. "You, the people, can distinguish diplomatic progress from mere propaganda designed to influence public opinion in the democracies."

Until now, the Reagan administration has accused Moscow of making propaganda statements about a willingness to curb the arms race, but not offering anything worthwhile at the bargaining table.

Reagan told his listeners, "I will be reporting to you further as preparations for the November meeting proceed."

Secretary of State George P. Shultz, who sat in on Friday's meeting, said afterward that the United States welcomes the Soviet proposal. Soviet spokesman Vladimir Lomeiko described it as "certainly important and, we hope, useful."

Delivering the Democratic Party's response to Reagan's speech, Rep. Nick Rahall of West Virginia praised the president's summit plans.

"From the darkness of your first-term Cold War hostility toward the Soviets, the Democrats are glad you have seen the light and are going to meet with Mr. Gorbachev in a summit. Our hope is that through this meeting we can prevent a militarization of the heavens."

- 72.1 percent said they would favor an expanded seasonal worker program if American workers were not available, while 23.6 percent said they would oppose such an expansion.

The Senate's immigration bill, introduced by Sen. Alan K. Simpson, R-Wyo., would allow up to 350,000 guest workers into the United States each year for three years for the harvesting of perishable commodities.

The House version of the immigration bill — still before the House Judiciary Committee and unlikely to go to the House floor before next year — does not include a greatly expanded guest worker program.

"I think you have to look at what's right for your country and it's just absolutely critical that we regain control of our borders," said Bentsen about his support for the bill.

The plane crashed as it was attempting to land in a violent thunderstorm. Investigators believe the storm may have contained a wind shear, or airburst, that could have slammed the plane into the ground.

Although the airport weather observer notified controllers of threatening winds approaching the airport, no warning was relayed to the pilot of the Delta flight.

The wind shear detection equipment at the airport did not sound until after the crash.

In a statement earlier Friday, the FAA said some of the weather recommendations will go "beyond the D-FW airport and have national implications."

Carter blasts 'Star Wars'

LEWISTON, Maine — Former President Jimmy Carter on Saturday called President Reagan's proposed "Star Wars" weapons system "the key obstacle to success" at the U.S.-Soviet summit meeting in November.

Carter called the Strategic Defense Initiative "ill-conceived, a total waste of money and counterproductive."

His assessment was echoed by former Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie at a ceremony at Bates College marking the opening of the Maine Democrat's archives.

Muskie said prospects for an arms-control agreement "would appear to be very dim" without some U.S. give on the space-based system.

The Democrats also criticized Reagan's economic policies, blaming his 1981 tax cut for the spiraling federal deficit.

'Mountain Man' gets 85

VIRGINIA CITY, Mont. — "Mountain man" Don Nichols, saying he "respected" the woman he and his son kidnapped for a wilderness bride, has been sentenced to 85 years in prison.

State District Judge Frank Davis on Friday sentenced Nichols, 54, to 10 years for kidnapping Kari Swenson, 24, a member of the U.S. biathlon team, as she jogged near a ski resort in southwestern Montana on July 15, 1984.

Nichols, convicted in July, also was sentenced to 75 years for the murder of Alan Goldstein, who was slain when he tried to rescue the woman after he found her chained to a tree.

New shuttle to debut

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Atlantis, the fourth and possibly last space shuttle, makes its debut Thursday on a secrecy-shrouded military mission that reportedly will launch two satellites built to withstand nuclear assault.

The Air Force has said Atlantis and its five-man crew will be launched sometime between 10:20 a.m. and 1:20 p.m. EDT Thursday. The precise time will be disclosed nine minutes before the planned liftoff.

Throughout the flight, even less public information will be forthcoming from the Pentagon than was the case during the first all-classified Defense Department mission last January.

Even the length of the flight is a secret, but the landing will be announced 24 hours in advance.

Officials decline to reveal any details about the payload, but the Federation of American Scientists, citing public sources, reported last month the shuttle's cargo bay contains two Defense Satellite Communications System satellites, the advanced model known as DSCS-3.

Gloria cleanup

Crews hard at work in wake of hurricane

Utility crews worked Saturday to restore power to an estimated 1.6 million customers who remained blacked out by Hurricane Gloria, which was blamed for eight deaths and tens of millions of dollars in damage even though it proved less destructive than expected.

In the wake of Gloria's dash up the East Coast and across New England, sunbathers and strollers returned to beaches, and card dealers went back to work in the casinos of Atlantic City, N.J.

Connecticut and New York's Long Island bore the brunt of the storm but much of the damage was caused by fallen trees that blocked streets and pulled down powerlines. An estimated 3.5 million customers lost power temporarily as the hurricane passed.

Bob Blair, a spokesman for the Federal Emergency Management Agency in Washington, said Saturday that FEMA had requests from the states of New York and Rhode Island for federal declarations of disaster areas and was surveying damage elsewhere.

New York Gov. Mario Cuomo estimated "millions and millions of dollars" in damages, mostly on Long Island.

"I think we have a good chance for qualifying" for federal disaster aid, Cuomo said Saturday after viewing overturned cabin cruisers, flattened trees, and isolated places where roofs were peeled back like sardine can lids.

Cuomo acknowledged the damage was not as great as feared, but said, "We got hurt ... We don't have any exciting pictures to put on television, but the damage is there ..."

"It could have been a lot worse," Connecticut Gov. William O'Neill said after flying over his state. "From the air, it didn't look that bad, but there was a lot of damage. All in all, I would say the people of Connecticut were very lucky."

The storm brought a benefit in the form of heavy rain that raised New York City's drought-lowered reservoirs, which have sprouted grass on land that should be deeply submerged. However, water use restrictions will remain in effect, city officials said.

A small part of Gloria's destruction was welcomed. It ripped up the boardwalk along the beach at Ocean City, Md., where residents had set aside $1 million to replace the 23-year-old structure.

"Now we don't have to tear it up," said city manager Tony Barrett.

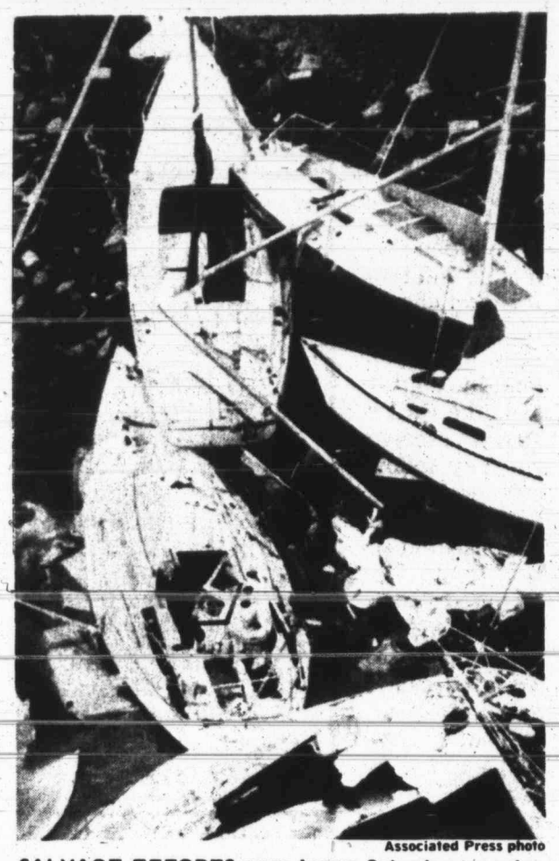

But in Connecticut, just over 500,000 electric customers remained without power Saturday and utilities said it may take a week to restore all service. At the height of the storm, Northeast Utilities counted 650,000 customers without power and United Illuminating said 184,000 of its clients were blacked out.

The repair costs to Northeast Utilities could run as high as $20 million, company President E. James Ferland said.

More than 100 crews of two to three linemen each headed for Connecticut from Canada on Saturday to join 189 others from Pennsylvania and New York and 425 from in-state, spokesman Jeff Kotkin said.

Gloria had grown to one of the strongest Atlantic storms on record with 150 mph wind as it neared the East Coast last week, and when it veered northward it threatened to be the strongest to hit New York City this century. More than a half-million people fled from its path.

But its strongest winds stayed out over the sea until the eye ran into Long Island, east of the city, and by then Gloria's highest sustained winds were down to 100 mph.

SALVAGE EFFORTS were begun Saturday morning near Beebe Cove in Noank, Conn., after Hurricane Gloria's visit Friday. Scores of boats were tossed ashore and many wrecked on the rocks along southeastern Connecticut.

More than 1 million New York electrical customers remained without electricity Saturday.

Long Island Lighting Co. spokeswoman Carol Clawson said crews were called in from utilities as far away as Cleveland. "It will be many days before all power is restored," she said.

Hundreds of workers labored around the clock clearing roads of trees and debris, said Herb Davis from the Suffolk County Emergency Control office.

"We're just trying to make the roads passable for emergency vehicles, to get all the trees and branches out the way so we can get through," Davis said.

"It's just devastating when you come home and see this," Donna Belford of Islip, Long Island, said of a huge oak tree lying across her front yard. "But I'm alive, my house is not damaged, my cat is OK and this I can cope with. You can't replace life, but you can replace trees."

More than 125,000 Massachusetts residents waited for electrical service Saturday.

In all, the storm blacked out about 3.5 million electrical customers from North Carolina into New England, according to utility estimates.

Pro-Syrian forces attack

TRIPOLI, Lebanon — Pro-Syrian militias attacked Tripoli from three fronts today and inched toward the heart of Lebanon's second-largest city, while fighting in Beirut left at least 24 dead and crippled the airport, officals said.

Christians and Moslems hammered each other along Beirut's dividing Green Line with artillery and rockets for several hours, killing at least 24 people and wounding around 50, police and hospitals reported.

Panama leader resigns

PANAMA CITY — President Nicolas Ardito Barletta resigned, blaming opposition from politicians and Panama's powerful military, and the first vice president was named today to succeed him.

Ardito Barletta's resignation cut short his term as Panama's first democratically elected president in 16 years. It followed reports that labor, business and military leaders were pressuring him to step down in what one lawmaker labeled a "coup."

The National Assembly voted to accept the resignation today, and inaugurated First Vice President Eric Arturo Delvalle to succeed him, as provided for in the constitution.

Terrorist suspect seized

KARLSRUHE, West Germany — A suspected member of the terrorist Red Army Faction was arrested after being wrestled to the ground by passersby during an attempted robbery, a spokesman for the federal prosecutor's office said Saturday.

Spokesman Hans-Juergen Foerster said Karl-Friedrich Grosser, 29, and an unidentified accomplice attacked two women who were depositing bags of money Friday in a bank night deposit chute in the southern town of Ludwigsburg.

Passersby wrestled Grosser to the ground and held him until police arrived, according to Foerster. The second suspect escaped.

Foerster said Grosser is believed to have become an active member of the anarchist Red Army Faction last November.

Czechs foil defection

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia — Border guards and police foiled an attempt by two gunmen to defect to Austria with a hostage in a stolen official car, the official news agency CTK reported Saturday.

The gunmen surrendered Friday with the hostage after a siege at the Petrzalka border post, the report said. CTK said the gunmen and hostage were unhurt.

Czechoslovak authorities closed the crossing 25 miles east of Vienna, Austria for 18 hours, blocking it with army trucks and tanks.

Opinion

Margin of safety dangerously thin

For the third time in a month, the Federal Aviation Administration has come under scathing criticism of its enforcement of air safety. The latest is a congressional report charging that the air traffic control system suffers a "diminishing margin of safety" because of staffing shortages, employee stress and fatigue and an unseasoned work force. In August, another congressional study found serious gaps in the FAA's airline inspection program and said some air carriers receive virtually no inspections to determine whether they follow federal safety standards. A week after that report, an internal Transportation Department survey found that the FAA has been slow in devising safety regulations and inconsistent in carrying them out.

Although none of the recent air crashes in the United States has so far been blamed on the FAA, they do underscore the seriousness of the criticisms of the agency's operations, particularly since deregulation of the airlines has led to increased traffic in the skies at a time when the FAA is still in the process of rebuilding the air traffic control system. That system was virtually dismantled by the administration's firing of 11,400 controllers who went on strike four years ago.

The new report by the House Public Works and Transportation Subcommittee on Investigations and Oversight concludes that because today's 14,300 controllers are handling far more traffic than the 16,250 controllers were handling before the strike, and because they are suffering the same overwork, fatigue and poor management that prompted the strike, air safety has been adversely affected. And while only about 6,000 controllers are considered experienced, the report declared "an autocratic management" has failed to increase the force sufficiently and to improve employees' working conditions and morale.

These are indeed serious charges that the FAA should take with equal seriousness by stepping up the hiring and training of controllers and tightening aircraft inspection procedures. On the face of it, the smaller air traffic control force has to be stretched dangerously thin, and its controllers pushed beyond safe working-hour limits. Even if the system was somewhat overstaffed for 1981 traffic levels, as the administraion contended at the time, it's hard to believe 2,000 fewer controllers — in a work force that's relatively inexperienced — can handle today's sharply increased traffic and still maintain the necessary safety standards.

Baseball fans are fed up with litter

To the editor:

My name is Michael Irwin. My brothers Stanley Biesemeyer, Christopher Biesemeyer, and Kevin Irwin and I are very disappointed. We love playing baseball at the American League Ball Park. We think that the citizens of Big Spring are being very immature and irresponsible throwing trash and busting glass all over the ground. Please ask them to stop this littering because it is very dangerous.

'Old timers' must show faith in city

To the editor:

On 9/12/85 Settles Hotel issued a challenge to Big Spring businesses to match our $250 contribution to the Johnnie Johansen Scholarship Fund. The scholarship is sponsored by the Big Spring Garden Council with trustees Edna Womack, Doris Guy, Erma Balch and Annie Matt Angel who is chairperson.

This fund helps agriculture students and has to be one of the most worthy projects in Big Spring. After all, if we do not encourage and aid our youth to learn better ways to grow food, we all might starve.

Dave Ziebell of KKIK AM and KWKI FM (another newcomer to Big Spring) accepted the challenge to match the Settles Hotel contribution of $250.

I wonder WHY Big Spring busineseses such as other radio stations, banks, newspaper, restaurants, etc. have not responded to this challenge to help a worthy cause. Most businesses seem to be prospering and should be more than willing to contribute some of their profits to help the youth of our community.

Perhaps businesses did not hear all Big Spring radio stations talking about the Scholarship Fund and the interviews with the trustees. Perhaps they did not read the article in the Herald (9/15/85, page 3C) about the fund.

If the businesses are not aware of the challenge, I can understand why they have not responded. If they are aware, I wonder, WHY???

As newcomers to the Big Spring community, Dave Ziebell and Settles Hotel have shown faith in and commitment to Big Spring. I believe it is about time some of the "Old Timers" showed some faith in their community. We believe in Big Spring. If you do too ... call Erma Balch, 267-6725 and match the challenge.

Thanks to college for well-done play

To the editor:

I would like to express my appreciation to Tim Haynes, Rick Hamby, Tumbleweed Smith and the Howard College Drama Department for their presentation of a Late Night Reading Thursday night.

Not only was Tim's play thoroughly entertaining, but the reading and discussion which followed offered a cultural exposure not often found in Big Spring.

I am already looking forward to the next Late Night Reading. Not only will I take my drama class, but my family and friends as well.

Television choice is clear

KTVT-TV is the clear choice to take WFAA's place. It's got the Texas Rangers. It's got Southwest Conference Football. It's got the Dallas Mavericks. What more could you ask?

The only civilized choice to replace WFAA on Channel 8 is ARTS, the artistic network. The last thing the world needs is more sports on television. We've got Monday Night Football, and Thursday night and Saturday and Sunday. We've got Atlanta baseball. We've got wrestling and roller derby and highlights of Super Bowl VI. We need ARTS.

ARTS, schmartz. I might give a look at WGN out of Chicago. After all, they've got the Cubs. But then, who cares about the Cubs?

Honey, the problem here is that you are suffering a breakdown. When they started putting football on at Easter time it took a terrible toll of your capacity to filter out harmful stimuli. You know, you really are not well.

Well, what about Bozo?

Bozo?

Yeah, if we compromise on Chicago we can let the kids watch Bozo the Clown every morning.

The kids don't need Bozo. There's plenty for them to watch already.

Well then let's vote for KTVT. This is great stuff. Mannix and Ironside and Death Valley Days. Movies like "Secret of the Black Dragon."

Super. We can add that to the USA fare of Dragnet and Kung Fu Theater. We don't need more reruns. We need culture. We need art.

If we vote for ARTS we can watch musical shows like Jazz at the Smithsonian, opera like The Tales of Hoffmann and The Marriage of Figaro and specials like Dudley Moore at the Hollywood Bowl.

Look, I'll grant you that not everything on ARTS will be something we'll want to watch. But those special shows that we do like — well, you just can't get them on any other channel.

Probably for good reason. If we vote for KTVT we'll get the Texas Rangers. You can't get them on any other channel either.

Thank goodness.

If you want to tune in Icebound in the Antarctic and Women in Jazz, that's your business. But I'm voting for the Jim Wacker show and Solid Gold.

You're too late, sweetheart. I've already sent our ballot in. And remember, it's one vote per subscriber household. You, and Saturday Night Wrestling, are out of luck.

God will guide decisions

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Do you think God will help me make right decisions in life? How can I find out what He wants me to do? I'm afraid I'll make the wrong decision and be a failure. — L.W.

DEAR L.W.: Yes, God wants to help you make the right decisions, because He loves you. Furthermore, He has a perfect plan for your life, and the most important thing you can do is discover His plan and then do it.

What is God's will for you? First of all, His will is that you would give your life to Him by accepting Jesus Christ as your Lord and Savior. Have you ever made your own personal commitment to Christ? If not, take that step today. You can do that by a simple prayer of faith.

Then God's will is for you to follow Him every day and seek to live a life that is pleasing to Him. How do you know how He wants us to live? He has told us in His word, the Bible. Make the Bible your constant companion. In it you will discover what God has done for you and what He wants you to do in return.

In the Bible you will find the guidelines He has given us to direct us in life. There are some decisions in life we do not need to pray about — because God has already told us what is right and wrong in His Word, and He never leads in a way that is contrary to it.

In addition, God will help us when we face specific decisions — and remember, His way is always best for us. How can you know His will in these situations? First, commit it to God in prayer. Then see if the Bible has any direction to give on this decision. Then seek the advice of more mature Christians, and prayerfully examine every aspect of the decision.

When you do, you will often sense in your heart which way God is leading. He has promised, "Trust in the Lord with all your heart ... and he will make your paths straight" (Proverbs 3:5-6).

Around The Rim

Shock waves travel far

BY ROBIN WARD

Two earthquakes struck Mexico City hundreds of miles away from Big Spring, but the tremors have had far-reaching effects even on folks around here.

Many area residents have anxiously awaited news of relatives or friends who live in areas devastated by the quakes. The local Red Cross chapter has had more than 100 local inquiries since the first quake hit Sept. 19.

Some of the concerned relatives have been lucky.

Maria Castrejon of Big Spring heard via a telegram from the Mexican Embassy this week that her parents and brothers and sisters in Mexico City survived the quake.

Earlier, Fred and Martha Cave of Ackerly learned that their son and his family, who are missionaries in Mexico, were unharmed.

And on Thursday, Fran Riley of Sterling City Route, received a letter from her brother, a missionary in Mexico City, in which he describes the experience and assures relatives that he and his family are all right.

Others, like Gavina Ramirez of Stanton, still hope for news of relatives.

Ramirez was visiting her mother-in-law in a suburb of Mexico City at the time of the quakes and has since returned home. But she hasn't heard from other relatives living in another, harder-hit suburb of the city.

Even those of us without personal ties in Mexico City find it impossible not to be touched by the widespread tragedy. In the days since the quakes, we've heard reports of deaths and injuries, tales of hundreds left homeless, and stories of courage and perseverence as rescuers raced the clock to find trapped victims.

Maybe that's why Texans were so quick to round up medicine, clothing, tools and other relief supplies for their neighbor to the south.

The relief efforts have gone on despite criticism from U.S. officials, who consider providing aid to Mexico a ticklish diplomatic problem. Mexico's government has traditionally shunned any dependence on the United States.

When Mayor Henry Cisneros of San Antonio announced plans to visit Mexico City shortly after the earthquake, he was publicly rebuked by Assistant Secretary of State Elliott Abrams. Cisneros ignored the rebuke and flew to Mexico on a plane loaded with relief supplies.

Cisneros now is chairman, along with former U.S. ambassador Bob Krueger, of a 26-member task force appointed by Gov. Mark White to oversee Texas' efforts to provide relief to quake-stricken area.

It's hard to believe the Mexican people will not appreciate this gesture of goodwill from Texans -- even if their government does not.

Opinions expressed in this column are those of the staff writer and do not necessarily reflect the views of the newspaper's management.

Looking to live where 'nothing happens'

By ED GRAHAM
First in a series of five

"You won't like Big Spring," we were told by several people we met in Austin. "Nothing happens in West Texas. If you moved to Big Spring you'd be bored to death."

Their comments helped convince us that Big Spring might be just what we had been seeking.

My wife, Mary, and I had been "on the road" for two months, along with our 2-year-old son, Gabriel, and we were eager to find the right place to put down roots again.

Austin had seemed attractive from a distance. We had heard rave reviews of it from a number of people who had visited there. But when we arrived in Austin we found that its busyness, fast pace, traffic jams, and high cost of living were too much like what we had hoped to leave behind when we pulled up our roots from the too-popular San Francisco Bay Area.

The intensity of our lives in the Bay Area had been exciting, but both Mary and I had been longing for a change of pace and place.

As we travelled we became clear that it would be good for me to step back from the paid workforce for awhile and enjoy being a full-time parent to Gabriel. Mary, on the other hand, was eager to find a job in which she could use and develop her skills as a sign language interpreter.

We also realized as we drove through and visited in a variety of cities and towns that highly urban areas now felt too jangling to us.

We wondered, though, if it would be possible to find a place having a sufficiently large deaf population to support full-time interpreters, while at the same time being small enough to allow us the more peaceful life we were craving.

This was probably impossible. However, while visiting in Austin, we learned of such a place — Big Spring.

After seeing Austin, in which we felt that too many people were doing too much too fast, we sensed that there would be something refreshing about a place in which it might appear that "nothing happens."

Our AAA Tour Book informed us of two events that do happen in Big Spring, a rodeo and a rattlesnake roundup. Well, we chuckled, our lives wouldn't be totally boring!

In any case, we wanted to see for ourselves if this West Texas city met our needs. So we drove to Big Spring.

Ed Graham of 2620 Langley Dr. moved his family to Big Spring in August.

Hotline for aging solves diverse problems

By JANET WARREN
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — An elderly woman traveling in South Texas didn't know what to do when her car broke down. Another senior citizen didn't have any groceries and was hungry.

A daughter fretting over her aged parents automobile trip from Texas to New Jersey was searching for ways to help if they had problems on the road.

A man in his 60s had to leave the apartment he shared with a man who was 80-plus and about to marry. The younger man needed to find a place to live.

In all four cases, the answers began at the Texas Department on Aging's hotline, 800-252-9240, where an information and referral coordinator handles questions 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The number is not really designed for "crisis intervention" and receives few true emergency calls, said coordinator Cheryl Cordell. It serves primarily as a sort of matchmaker, pairing people in need with the services, agencies or information that can help them.

Nursing home complaints are common. Depending on the gravity of the gripe, hotline officials notify one of their local "ombudsmen" for mediation, or the agency relays the information to the Texas Department of Health, which polices and licenses the homes.

For the car repair and grocery cases mentioned above, agency officials contacted the regional or local aging agencies, which contacted the appropriate charities or services for help.

There are 28 regional aging agencies across the state, most of them serving more than one county. Many of the regional offices also have toll-free lines for information and referral, although none in this area have them.

Regional offices include the Permian Basin Area Agency on Aging in Midland, 915-563-1061; and West Central Texas Area Agency on Aging in Abilene, 915-672-8544.

dor the cross-country car trip, Cordell said she rounded up the names of senior citizen contacts in several states whom the elderly couple could call in case of trouble along the way.

On housing questions such as the one from the displaced roommate, Cordell said she has a statewide listing of senior citizen housing stored in computer banks, which she can retrieve by city or by county and mail to the interested person.

Four to five calls a day come in on the hotline, which has been in operation for more than two years and also is equipped with a telecommunication device for the deaf, Cordell said. Wallet cards with the toll-free number are available through the agency and the number is posted in all nursing homes, she said.

Queries also come through the agency's main number at 512-444-2727, she said.

Sometimes, Cordell said, she will step in and make calls for a person who seems to have had trouble soliciting help. And often people are lonely, she said, and call just to talk.

Typical calls include:

- "Does Medicare pay for ...?" Cordell said she will mail a Medicare handbook or refers them to the Social Security Administration.
- "Please send me retirement information on Texas." The agency has a lot of pertinent data, as well as a brochure outlining its services, Cordell said.
- "I just need $100 more a month to make it." The agency can not hand out money, Cordell said. But it can offer other services that may cut costs, such as transportation to senior centers for lunch, physical fitness, recreation or health screening, she said.
- "My parent is in need of long-term care. What should we do?" The agency has booklets on picking nursing homes or choosing alternatives.

Nursing home complaints account for about 10 percent of the calls, Cordell said.

Grievances commonly involve nursing care, food service, air-conditioning and other comforts, said John Willis, agency chief of special programs.

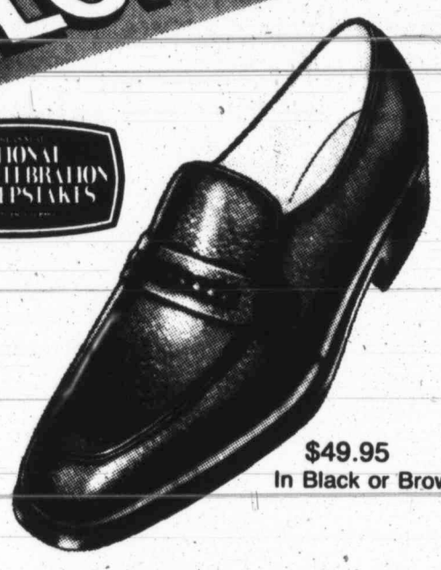

Willis marshals a 400-member volunteer ombudsmen force, whose members receive and try to reconcile resident complaints at the state's 1,000 nursing homes. Also, there are 28 paid, part-time ombudsmen at the regional aging agencies.

Willis said he would like to have one ombudsman for every nursing home in the state.

A strong point of the program, Willis said, is that the volunteers sit down and lend an ear to the residents.

Dispute looms over records in McMartin case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The judge in the McMartin Pre-School molestation case has ordered prosecutors to turn over records of a meeting in which they reportedly discussed dropping charges against five of the seven defendants.

The ruling by Municipal Court Judge Aviva Bobb came Friday, after defense attorneys asked for any notes, tapes and memoranda that may have been recorded during the March 16 meeting of prosecutors.

Attorney Forrest Lainer, who represents defendant Peggy Ann Buckey, 29, said Ms. Bobb's ruling meant that records from the meeting had to be turned over to defense attorneys by Tuesday morning.

Gilbert Garcetti, a chief deputy to District Attorney Ira Reiner, said prosecutors would oppose surrendering any material from what he said was a confidential meeting.

"We would never be able to have a meeting evaluating a case if the court permitted defense counsel to have a look at notes of those meetings. That's ridiculous," Garcetti said.

The seven defendants are accused of molesting students at the defunct Virginia McMartin Pre-School in suburban Manhattan Beach.

The Daily Breeze newspaper in suburban Torrance reported Friday that some prosecutors and investigators who attended the meeting questioned the testimony of child witnesses.

Citing unidentified sources, the newspaper said prosecutors raised concerns that the children may have been influenced by therapists who interviewed them.

At the meeting of 23 prosecutors, deputy district attorneys Glenn Stevens and Christine Johnston disagreed with lead prosecutor Lael Rubin about the legitimacy of the case against five of the defendants, the newspaper said.

One prosecutor reportedly recommended dismissing charges against all defendants except Raymond Buckey, 27, and his mother, Peggy Buckey, 58.

The defendants originally were charged with more than 300 counts of rape, sodomy and other abuses dating back to 1978. But Bobb dismissed 193 of the charges after more than half the original 41 child witnesses refused to testify. So far, 13 children have taken the stand.

Also charged are the school's founder, Virginia McMartin, 78, and three former teachers.

Some children have testified about playing "naked games," being photographed nude and being taken to a church and houses where they said they were molested and cult rituals were performed.

The judge also ruled Friday that an 8-year-old boy may testify by closed-circuit television in accordance with a new law signed in May.

The child could become the first to testify from a separate room since the law, prompted by the McMartin case, was passed.

During three weeks of testimony, prosecutors held that teachers had threatened the lives of the boy and his parents, making him afraid to appear in court.

Prison workers may be given tests for drugs

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — The director of the Texas Department of Corrections is considering the use of random drug testing to weed out employees who abuse drugs or smuggle the contraband to inmates, a prison spokesman said Saturday.

Employees working inside the system's 27 units would be required to submit to unannounced urinalysis tests under the plan now being reviewed by Director O.L. McCotter, spokesman Phil Guthrie said.

Most of the drugs given to inmates are smuggled into the prison by employees, Guthrie said. About 30 employees have been dismissed in the past year for drug violations, he said.

McCotter believes that eliminating drug use among inmates would reduce gang violence. Gangs get some of their power within prison society from a control of the distribution of drugs, Guthrie said.

Prison rules currently require employees and inmates to undergo urinalysis testing only if they are suspected of using drugs. Employees also can be required to take a polygraph test when there is an investigation of criminal activity, including drug smuggling.

'Dead letter' warehouse gets some unusual mail

ATLANTA (AP) — Parcels containing everything from snakes to ashes have ended up in the U.S. Postal Service's 38,000-square-foot warehouse in southwest Atlanta, which serves as the repository for undelivered mail from Georgia, Texas and nine other states.

Only about 15 percent of the packages and 20 percent of the letters can be returned to their owners, said Shirley Batchelor, supervisor of the 34 postal workers who sort through the undeliverable mail.

Most of the items have incorrect or insufficient mailing addresses and no return address.

"I'd like to put us out of business in this branch," Batchelor said. "If people would just put a return address and use the right address, such as including the apartment number ...

"It really hurts you to get a package with a letter that says, 'Mother, I love you very much. Here's your birthday present,' and the package comes back stamped, 'No such number,' " she said.

About 30 million pieces of mail that cannot be delivered reach the Atlanta warehouse every year.

The warehouse handles letters from Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee and Texas.

As of Oct. 1, it will have responsibility for undeliverable parcels from Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, parts of Kansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia.

Batchelor recalls receiving a telephone call from a distraught woman who told her, "My Uncle Lewis is out there. You've got him, and I've got to have him back."

"She was hysterical," she said. "Then she told me he was in an urn, and I knew we had problems."

Fortunately, the cremated remains of the woman's uncle were located and returned to her.

On another occasion, the warehouse ended up with a nonpoisonous snake that was packed in a box and covered with confetti.

"They guy who opened the box jumped into an 80-pound hamper when he realized the snake was not a decoy," Batchelor said. "Another employee argued for the snake's rights, took it out and turned it loose."

The Postal Service keeps undeliverable letters for about eight days before they are discarded. Legal documents, such as wills, are kept for 14 months. Packages are kept for 60 days before their contents are sold at public auction.

PART THREE SOFT LENSES

This is the third in a series of five articles on the pros and cons of various types of contact lenses.

Soft contact lenses are made from a gel-like plastic that absorbs water like a sponge, which keeps the lens flexible. Soft lenses are bigger than hard lenses, and may cover part of the white part of the eye as well as the cornea, resulting in less glare noticed by the wearer.

The Pros ... can be worn part-time ... feel comfortable on the eye almost immediately ... seldom pop-out of the eye ... remains centered on the eye ... foreign particles are less likely to lodge under lens ... ideal for athletes since they will not shatter on contact.

The Cons ... more expensive and harder to clean than hard lenses ... less durable and must be replaced more often than hard lenses ... vision may not be as sharp as with hard lenses ... tend to absorb cigarette smoke, chemical vapors and aerosol sprays which could possibly make them unsuitable if your work environment exposes you to those vapors or fumes.

Soft lenses can usually be fitted in one or two office visits. When properly fitted and after a gradual build-up of wearing time (under your eye doctor's supervision) many people can wear soft lenses safely and comfortably for up to 18 hours a day. Key points to rememeber about successfully wearing soft contact lenses; proper fit, proper handling and care, proper cleaning.

Next week: Extended wear soft lenses.

Socialists convene to challenge Thatcher

LONDON (AP) — Britain's main opposition Labor Party opens its annual convention Sunday with its strongest public backing in six years, but demands by coal miners after their defeated strike threaten the party's fragile unity.

The socialists, who have been out of power since 1979, are now contending with moderates for the lead in public opinion polls, while Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's ruling Conservatives have become least popular.

The weeklong convention will take place under unprecedented security at Bournemouth, in south England. Similar security will be imposed at next week's Conservative gathering in Blackpool, on the northwest coast.

The Irish Republican Army bombed the Conservatives' convention hotel last year in Brighton, another south coast resort, killing five people. Mrs. Thatcher was unhurt.

The IRA is fighting to drive the British out of Northern Ireland and unite the mainly Protestant province with the Roman Catholic Republic of Ireland under a leftist administration.

Labor is divided over a demand by the miners' Marxist leader, Arthur Scargill, that a future Labor government reimburse the equivalent of $1.4 million his union lost in fines and confiscated funds during the year-long strike that collapsed last March.

But Labor leader Neil Kinnock said of the reimbursement demand, "The reality is there will be dancing in the Conservative Central Office (party headquarters) if we support it."

The Labor Party is funded by labor unions.

The National Union of Mineworkers had called a strike against the state-owned coal industry in an attempt to prevent the government from closing unprofitable mines.

Scargill, a Labor party member, also will try to get the socialists to advocate reinstatement for 600 fired miners and amnesty for about 160 miners jailed on charges of picket line violence.

Two of the jailed miners were convicted of homicide for hurling a concrete slab onto a cab that was carrying a strike-breaker to work, killing the driver.

Kinnock has proposed "reviews" of the sentences and firings to water down the demand for amnesty for the jailed miners, described by Scargill as "political prisoners."

The next election is not due until mid-1988, unless Mrs. Thatcher calls one earlier.

But a victory for Scargill this week could, in Kinnock's view, destroy his work during two years of party leadership to quell internal squabbling and moderate the party's leftist image.

Two new suspects arrested in case of German spies

KARLSRUHE, West Germany (AP) — Authorities said today they have arrested two more West German spy suspects, bringing to 11 the number of alleged Communist spys that have either fled the country or been arrested in recent weeks.

Spokesman Hans-Juergen Foerster identified the two new suspects as Harm Alken and Michaela von Hourten of Mainz. He said they were arrested on Thursday.

Foerster described Alken as the brother of a spy suspect who fled to Communist East Germany earlier this month, and said Hourten was an acquaintance of both men.

Foerster declined to give details of their alleged spy activities.

"They have been under suspicion for some time," he said in a telephone interview.

The new pills contain a powerful clinically proven appetite suppressant that an advisory panel of doctors have determined to be "safe and effective for weight loss."

In addition, the pills also contain a remarkable calorie-free dietary fiber that expands in your stomach and tends to give you a partially satisfied feeling before you eat. A Lifetime Of Memories

Dear High School Parent,

We all know high school is an important part of a person's life; an experience never forgotten. Detailed memories, though, become less distinct with time as responsibility and maturity replace these years of excitmeent and self-discovery.

Many students, caught up in the daily activity, don't take time to realize how quickly their high school years are passing. These same students may not appreciate the importance of holding onto their pasts as they progress toward their futures.

The El Rodeo yearbook staff hopes you will encourage your son or daughter to buy a 1986 yearbook. As the present becomes the past, students come to understand the value of yearbooks that provide a look back at high school. The yearbook not only records the high school experience but is an important part of that experience.

The El Rodeo, which costs only $20.00 today, will become priceless in time. Sale date is October 3 at school, but you can order a copy of the yearbook by mail. Just complete and return the enclosed order form below by October 4 to Steve Poitevint at Big Spring High School, Eleventh Place "attention El Rodeo staff."

Sincerely,
The El Rodeo Yearbook Staff

Vols stun No. 1 Auburn

By the Associated Press

Tony Robinson, the nation's total offense leader, fired four touchdown passes and set up another score with a 39-yard run Saturday as Tennessee outscored top-ranked Auburn, which has college football's most prolifi offense, 38-20.

Robinson completed 17 of 30 passes for 259 yards as the Vols built a 24-0 lead and cruised past the No. 1 Tigers in a Southeastern Conference battle. His 39-yard romp highlighted a 76-yard drive on Tennessee's first possession.

Charles Wilson scored Tennessee's first TD on a 3-yard run. Robinson then completed two of his TD passes — 37 yards to Tim McGee and four yards to Vince Carter — after two Auburn fumbles.

Carlos Reveiz kicked a 28-yard field goal for a 24-0 halftime lead, and Robinson hit Joey Clinkscales for 10 yards and Eric Swanson for 30 yards in the final period.

The Vols held Auburn tailback Bo Jackson to only 80 yards on 17 carries, with Jackson leaving late in the third quarter with a slight knee injury.

"I think we played as well as we can play against a good football team," said Tennessee Coach Johnny Majors. "It was fabulous from every standpoint. This was one of our biggest wins at UT."

Elsewhere among ranked teams, No. 3 Iowa downed Iowa State 57-3; No. 5 Ohio State belted Washington State 48-32; No. 9 Penn State beat Rutgers 17-10; No. 12 Michigan blanked No. 17 Maryland 20-0; No. 13 UCLA was upended by Washington 21-14; No. 15 Alabama romped over Vanderbilt 40-20; No. 16 Nebraska embarrassed Oregon 63-0, and No. 20 Virginia was surprised by Navy 17-13.

At night, it was second-ranked Oklahoma opening its season at Minnesota, No. 4 Florida State against Kansas, No. 6 Southern Methodist at Texas Christian, No. 7 Oklahoma State vs. Miami of Ohio, No. 10 Arkansas against New Mexico State, 11th-ranked Florida at Mississippi State, No. 18 Southern California at Arizona State and No. 19 Air Force at New Mexico.

No. 8 Louisiana State and No. 14 Brigham Young were idle.

Top Ten

Chuck Long passed for three touchdowns, Ronnie Harmon ran for two and Rob Houghtlin added three field goals for Iowa, 3-0, which erupted for 34 points in the second quarter en route to a 41-0 halftime lead. Iowa State committed four turnovers in the second quarter.

Iowa, which leads the nation in scoring and total defense, has outscored its first three opponents this year 163-23.

Ohio State scored three touchdowns in a 2:58 span of the second period for its third straight triumph. Washington State turned over the ball deep in its territory three times to set up the scores.

The Buckeyes, down 14-7, tied it on a 31-yard pass from Jim Karsatos to Mike Lanese at 1:05 of the period. Two plays later, a Mark Rypien pass was intercepted by Sonny Gordon and returned 15 yards to the Cougars 24. Karsatos then hit tight end Ed Taggart on a 17-yard scoring strike.

On WSU's first play after the kickoff, Reuben Mayes fumbled at the Cougars 20. Three plays later, Karsatos carried it over from the 7.

"Right now we're scoring a lot of points for both teams," said Jim Walden, coach of Washington State.

Karsatos praised his receiving corps.

"I'm getting better. I still have a lot of work to do, but I think I'll get better as I go because my receivers are the best in the country — Taggart, Lanese, and (Cris) Carter. They all showed it today. They made some great catches."

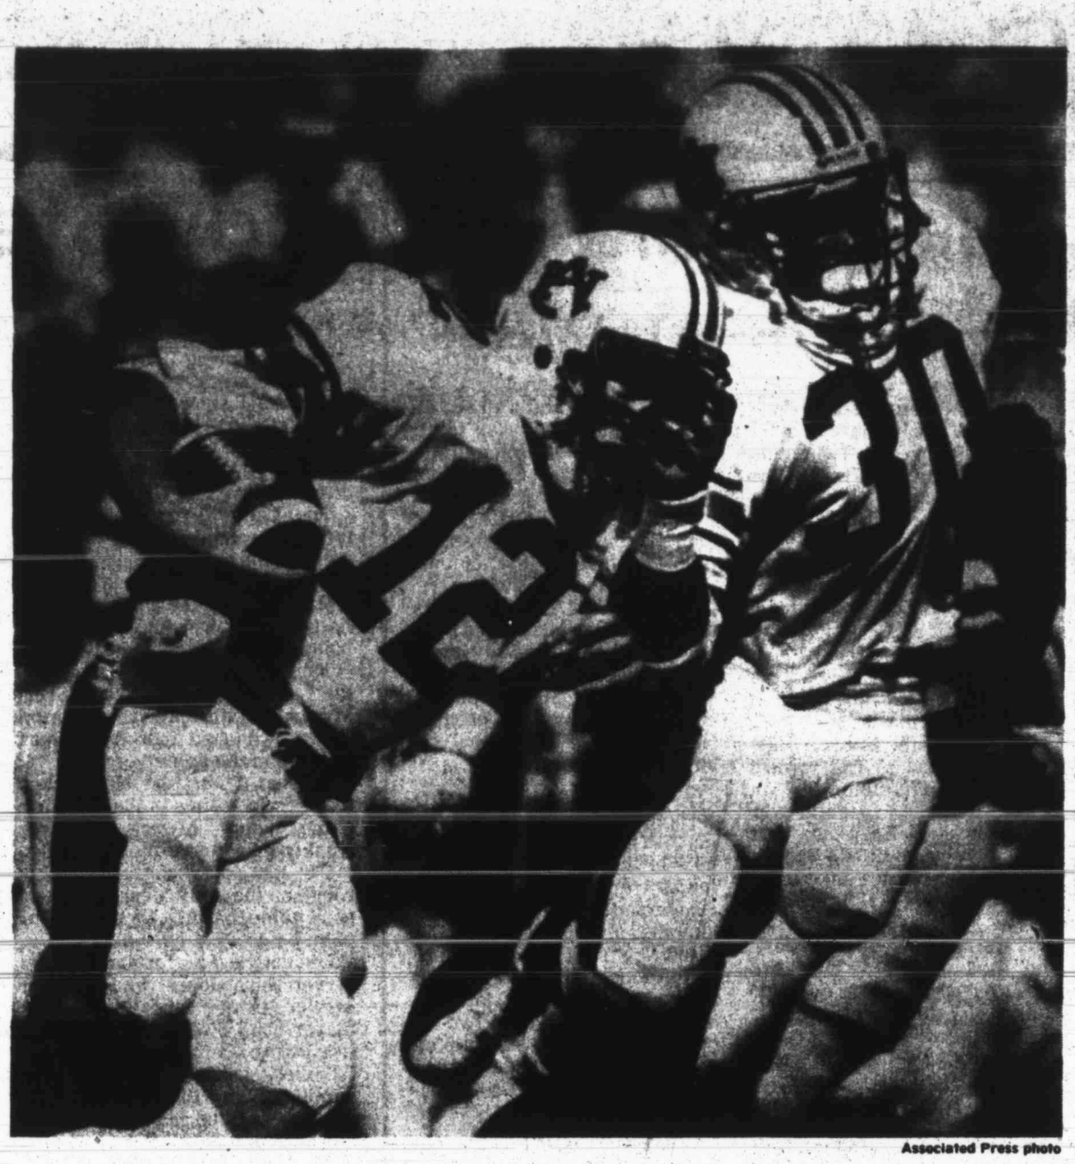

Second Ten

Jim Harbaugh threw two touchdown passes to tight end Eric Kattus and the stingy Michigan defense kept its opponent out of the end zone for the third straight game, all victories over ranked teams. Kattus, who had caught only one pass for 10 yards all season, had six catches for 81 yards.

"I really don't know how Eric got open so much, but he was always there when I needed him," said Harbaugh, who hit 16 of 20 passes for 196 yards.

Alabama took control late in the second quarter, scoring twice in a two-minute span. Halfback Bobby Braggs skirted right end to score from the 5, then safety Ricky Thomas recovered a fumble at the Vandy 26. Five plays later, quarterback Mike Shula bootlegged into the end zone from the 6.

Reserve I-back Paul Miles rushed for 156 yards and two touchdowns to lead Nebraska, which rolled to a 42-0 halftime. as Miles scored on runs of 46 and 1 yard and rolled up 113 yards rushing by intermission. He had replaced Doug DuBose, who is ranked fifth nationally in rushing, after DuBose hurt his knee.

Purdue throttles Notre Dame

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Purdue quarterback Jim Everett passed for 368 yards and three touchdowns Saturday, while the Boilermakers' defense consistently held Notre Dame in check for a 35-17 college football victory.

Purdue, leading 14-3, held the Irish to 113 yards offense in the first half, then allowed only eight yards in the third period.

With starter Steve Beuerlein and backup Terry Andrysiak sacked six times and never able to move the Irish, Purdue maintained control with Everett's devastating passing attack.

The Purdue senior, primarily utilizing five receivers, guided scoring drives in each of the four quarters. Two of his touchdown passes were to fullback Ray Wallace, who made four receptions for 77 yards and led the Boilermakers with 65 yards rushing.

In three games, Everett has passed for 1,106 yards and 10 touchdowns. Against the Irish, he completed 27 of 49 attempts.

A 14-yard run by Everett set up a 1-yard touchdown run by Rodney Carter in the first quarter. Then Everett hit touchdown passes of 15 yards to Wallace in the second period, 12 yards to Steve Griffin in the third quarter and 32 yards to Wallace in the final period.

Purdue safety Rod Woodson iced the victory with a 30-yard interception return for a touchdown with 2:18 to go.

Notre Dame, whose only points had come on a 48-yard field goal by John Carney in the second quarter, finally got a touchdown midway through the final period. The Irish benefitted from a Purdue holding penalty, then reached the Purdue 3 on a 33-yard pass to Tony Eason. Allen Pinkett ran in for the score, and Beuerlein passed to Pat Cusack for a two-point conversion.

Notre Dame got its second touchdown on a 1-yard run by Hiawatha Francisco with 1:23 remaining, capping a five-play, 80-yard drive.

Coupled with last year's 23-21 victory, Saturday's triumph marked the first time since 1968-69 that Purdue has beaten Notre Dame two straight years. The Boilermakers raised their record to 2-1 this season, while the Irish fell to 1-2.

Army 41

Penn 3

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Unbeaten Army amassed 449 yards on te ground, 120 by Doug Black, to romp past Penn 41-3 Saturday.

Black, who set a single-season rushing record of 1,148 yards last year for the Cadets, spearheaded a balanced attack. Bill Lampley added 95 yards and a touchdown in 14 carries, while quarterback Rob Healy ran for 69 yards and a touchdown. Healy also passed for 76 more yards.

The Cadets led 14-3 at halftime on scoring runs of one and six yards by Clarence Jones. Army, 3-0, wore down the Ivy League champions with a relentless wishbone attack.

The Cadets broke the game open in the third period on Craig Stopa's 41-yard field goal and Healy's 2-yard run following an interception by Larry Biggins.

Penn, 1-1, had played the Cadets close until then, getting on the board with Ray Saunders' 41-yard field goal, but they gradually found themselves overmatched.

Homebody Sims prefers East Texas to the Motor City

By MARK MCDONALD
Dallas Morning News

HOOKS, Texas (AP) — Don Marie Sims was pregnant with Billy when she left East Texas to have her baby in St. Louis. So an argument could be made that Billy Sims was running before he was born.

Today, 29 years later, he is still running, and not just from tacklers in the National Football League. He is dodging Detroit's fast pace and cutting back against the grain of urban living.

Always, his runs take him the same place — to tiny Hooks, a town of 2,489 people, where Texas, Louisiana and Arkansas meet in the Piney Woods.

Hooks phone numbers all start with 547.

"Going to town" means driving about 10 miles into Texarkana.

"Detroit is where I work," Sims says. "East Texas is where I live. This is home."

Home is a sprawling five-bedroom, ranch-style house on a grassy knoll overlooking a pond in the middle of 40 wooded acres. In front, there are cows and horses. Out back, there is a swimming pool, tennis court, guest quarters, a 1955 Chevy — "my hot rod," Sims says — and a garage with three models of Mercedes that get less use than his Ford pickup.

Sims tries to keep from knocking the place that made him a wealthy Lion on the playing field and a young Lion in business. But in Detroit, No. 20 keeps only a condominium, five minutes from the Silverdome.

During the season, he asks his wife Brenda to take Billy Jr., age 4, and Brent, 3, home every once in a while "to keep in touch." Until this year, when Sims needed therapy after knee surgery, he has always left Motown quickly after the season is over.

"When I won the Heisman Trophy at Oklahoma, and the Lions drafted me, bam! I was supposed to be the savior of the franchise," Sims says. "Everything you saw and heard in Detroit was Sims, Sims, Sims. The notoriety was fine for a couple years, but I've always been a player who likes to see the publicity get spread around. There's plenty for everybody.

"I wasn't used to all the pressure, the demands by the public and the press in Detroit. It all gets to be pretty cutthroat. The pace can get you," Sims said.

"So I started taking every chance I could to get out of that. I'm not ripping Detroit, really. If I was single, I would stay there during the off-season," he said. "But here, you've got good neighbors, and they're not right on top of you. They are hundreds of yards away. I do as I want to do. In a small town, they care for you. There are no games, no tricks."

In East Texas, Billy is just "folks," driving his pickup, wearing a blue gimme cap with a white script "H" for Hooks, where he was an All-State football player.

He gave $5,000 to his old school to update its weight-training facility. He still keeps a key to the school gym in case he ever wants to shoot a few hoops.

This is the guy who helped support himself in high school with all sorts of odd jobs — hauling hay, cleaning out the sewage plant, paving roads for the city. He may be the only running back in Texas schoolboy history who filled the stadium on Friday nights with his ball carrying, then swept it on Saturday mornings with his broom.

"Bill was a hard worker, quiet, didn't brag, very popular with the other kids, went to class and tried his best," says Charlie Phillips, superintendent of the Hooks schools.

Sims' belief in the work ethic and his deep roots in the sandy soil combine to make him cautious around those who are not so earnest.

"A lot of that attention is not for real," Sims says. "I see through all that stuff. Some day I will make my last run and score my last touchdown. Then it will be, 'Billy who? Hell with you.' Here, the people know me. they knew my people. They know my family."

People know his wife, Brenda, too. She's Curley Campbell's girl. Curley has been working the graveyard shift at the Lone Star Ammunition Plant in Hooks since Brenda was a cheerleader at nearby New Boston, and Billy was a kid who kept saying he would come to visit and never would.

"At first, I wasn't impressed with him," said Brenda. "Twice he told me he would come to the house, and both times he didn't show up."

Sims kept his third date, however, and eventually they went to New Boston's all-sports banquet together. The local cheerleader dating the star football player at arch-rival Hooks? The gossip was fierce.

Brenda graduated, got engaged to Billy and went to Texarkana College and the Air Force Reserves while Sims was running free against, first schoolboys, then collegians. He won the Heisman Trophy in 1978, fulfilling a recruiting promise made him by Barry Switzer.

"I learned in a hurry that he is a players' coach," Sims says. "He believed in me, even when I was hurt and really not producing that well.

"I almost went to Baylor. I really did. They were running the I (formation) and our communication was good. But Switzer got into the act by calling me at halftime of OU games. I would be pumping gas at the filling station and he would call and say, 'Well we're here in Lawrence and kicking the hell out of Kansas.' "

Sims said he chose OU over Baylor because Switzer vowed that, in Norman, he eventually would earn his degree and win the Heisman. "I found out later," Sims said with a laugh, "that he tells all good backs that."

Sims' grandmother died in his freshman year at OU, and Sims became more convinced he would return to East Texas some day. His marriage to Brenda, then the hoopla of his rookie season in Detroit followed by the stormy year in which he signed the USFL (Houston) and the Lions cemented those feelings.

"People who don't know me," Sims says, "don't really know me. I am more than just a football player. I planned to play just through the end of this contract (through the 1988 season) any way, regardless of the knee injury.

"If this knee (injury) ends my career, I will just go on to other things. I have my degree. I can get a job. I am developing some business contacts. Right now, I am in a syndicate that is acquiring a 750-unit apartment complex. My name is on a $12 million note. Football is the start for me, not the end.

"I've got cows, so we will have beef. I've got land. I can grow something to feed myself and family," he says. "I know what it's like to work. Work never hurt anybody."

Brenda Sims says "we want to bring up our kids the way we were brought up. Out here, the boys have open spaces, and you can keep an eye on them."

"I might move from here some day," Simms says. "If it's meant to be, it will be. I do know one thing. I will be here 17 more years at least. I'm going to raise my kids here."

Elway, Marino set to clash

By the Associated Press

The Denver Broncos and Miami Dolphins meet at Mile High Stadium Sunday in a game that should stand on its own merits as a meeting of the two teams with the best records in the American Football Conference last season.

But the game is overshadowed by the first meeting of John Elway of Denver and Dan Marino of Miami, two peas from the same pod who have taken divergent paths to stardom since being plucked from the 1983 National Football League draft.

Elway was the prize of that quarterback-rich crop, the first pick overall. Marino, coming off a poor senior year at Pitt, was the last quarterback taken in the first round and the 26th player overall.

But while Elway went through the typical ups-and-downs of young NFL quarterbacks in Denver, Marino emerged as an instant star in the tropics. Last season, his second, he threw for 5,084 yards and 48 touchdowns, both all-time records.

Now it's Elway's turn to emerge.

"I still say I wouldn't trade anything I've got for what he's got," he says. "Dan was in a totally different situation than I was. He walked onto a team that was in the Super Bowl the year before."

Elway currently ranks fifth among AFC passers in the American Conference with an 89.4 rating — the highest of his pro career — to 82.5 for Marino, who missed 39 days of preseason in a contract dispute.

"I know there are always going to be comparisons between us," Elway says. "But don't forget that this is a team sport. It's Miami vs. Denver, not Marino vs. Elway. I'm just going to do what I can to help us win. The bottom line is getting the ball in the end zone."

Miami, 14-2 last season, has taken two straight since losing its opener to Houston, including a 31-0 blanking of previously unbeaten Kansas City last week. The Broncos, 13-3 last year, are also 2-1 — in a four-way heap at the top of the AFC West.

The game is rated a toss-up, but Broncos Coach Dan Reeves thinks he knows who should be favored.

'Miami is the type of football team that as a coach I'd like to have," he says. "They have achieved what we're still building for."

On other fronts, meanwhile, two preseason favorites will be trying to avoid dire early season trouble.

The Washington Redskins, winners of three straight NFC titles, will be trying to avoid dropping to 1-3 when they go to Chicago to meet the Bears, one of just two unbeaten teams left in the NFL after three weeks. So will the Los Angeles Raiders when they travel to Foxboro to meet the New England Patriots.

The Monday night game is Cincinnati at Pittsburgh.

Dallas (2-1) at Houston (1-2)

After the Cowboys beat Cleveland 20-7 last week, Coach Tom Landry warned them about the same kind of letdown they suffered two weeks ago in Detroit.

"We'd better get excited every week regardless of the team we are playing," says Landry, who said he was showing his team films of Houston's win over Miami to keep up its intensity.

Washington (1-2) at Chicago (3-0)

This may be the pivotal game of the season for Washington, whose win over Houston was a gift from officials who negated two Oiler touchdowns with what the league later conceded were erroneous calls.

Last week the Redskins lost to the Philadelphia Eagles 19-6 in a game that pointed up their offensive difficulties — after averaging nearly 30 points a game for three years they have just 36 points in three contests this year.

Southwest Conference Football Roundup

Baylor 31

Texas Tech 0

WACO, Texas (AP) — The Baylor Bears Saturday proved their upset victory over Southern California last week was no fluke.

Baylor mauled previously unbeaten Texas Tech 31-0 in a Southwest Conference football opener, and the Bears dominated on both sides of the ball.

"That was just a good old licking by Baylor," said Texas Tech Coach Jerry Moore. "They took it to us on both offense and defense. We never could do anything in the game."

Baylor Coach Grant Teaff said, "Our defense played great. We just shut 'em down. Wishbone teams have trouble coming back when you get them down."

Bear quarterback Tom Muecke agreed, adding that "I just hope that we are as good as we played today. I think we are a definite Top 20 team for two reasons — our schedule and the way we are playing right now."

The Baylor Bears' Eugene Hall and Steve Grumbine destroyed Texas Tech's Wishbone-T while a hard-striking horde of runners overpowered the Red Raiders.

The Bears, who upset a No. 3 ranked Southern California 20-13 last week, increased their season record to 3-1 while the previously unbeaten Red Raiders suffered their first defeat in four outings.

Baylor dipped deep into its third string as it unleashed fresh runners on every series of downs out of the veer offense.

Seven different runners carried the ball with Ralph Stockemer scoring from 40 yards out and junior college transfer Randy Rutledge dashing seven yards for another touchdown.

Muecke threw a six-yard touchdown pass to Derrick McAdoo and scored himself in the final four minutes on a 23-yard run.

Baylor built a 14-0 halftime lead on Muecke's touchdown pass and Stockemer's touchdown run, which came off of fourth-and-one with the Red Raiders deployed in a goal line defense.

The Bears upped it to 17-0 in the third quarter on Terry Syler's 26-yard field goal and put away the Red Raiders with 14 points in the final quarter.

Texas 38

Stanford 34

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Texas' wishbone offense and Stanford's high-flying aerial show ran up nearly 1,000 yards, but the game came down to one play that didn't work.

Texas tailback Charles Hunter's second touchdown, a burst from three yards out with 3:55 left, ended a 75-yard drive led by quarterback Todd Dodge that put the Longhorns ahead 38-34 after a furious Stanford comeback.

The Cardinal had outscored Texas 24-7 in the second half before Hunter's TD, and went to the air again. Quarterback John Paye, who finished with 365 yards passing, completed three passes to the Texas 42.

But Stanford then ran the ball four times, the last one a three-yard loss on fourth-and-two, and failed to get the first down. Texas took over on its 37 and ran out the clock.

Texas, 2-0, wound up with 527 yards — 380 rushing and 147 passing. Stanford, 1-2, finished with 448 yards.

David Sweeney's 22-yard field goal put Stanford ahead for the first time in the regionally televised game, 34-31, with 8:36 left.

Stanford tied the game 31-31 early in the final period as quarterback John Paye fired a 44-yard pass to Greg Baty, hit Jeff James with a 25-yard TD pass and handed off to Brad Muster for a two-point conversion.

Hunter's 1-yard TD run 10 seconds into the fourth quarter capped a 13-play, 79-yard drive that gave Texas a 31-23 lead.

After Texas rolled to a 24-10 halftime lead before a crowd of about 53,000, Stanford scored two TDs in the third period, but missed an extra point, to close the gap to 24-23.

Paye scored on a sneak a few inches from the goal line on the opening drive of the second half after Thomas Henley's 53-yard kickoff return to the Texas 46.

Stanford got good field position again with an 18-yard punt return by Craig Landis to Texas's 34. Paye scrambled for 24 yards, then fired a TD pass to Muster, who made a leaping catch in the far corner of the end zone. However, Sweeney squibbed the extra point kick wide.

Texas scored in the first half on three big plays: starting quarterback Bret Stafford' 74-yard touchdown run on the third play of the game; Dodge's 55-yard TD pass to Donovan Pitts, and Darron Norris' 62-yard TD run.

Texas, which also got a 26-yard field goal from Ward, racked up 289 yards rushing in the first half and 380 yards overall.

After Norris' jaunt with 1:53 left in the half, Paye capped a four-play, 75-yard drive with a 29-yard touchdown pass to James.

Houston 49

Louisville 27

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Michael Simmons rushed for two touchdowns and Gerald Landry passed for one and ran for another as Houston defeated Louisville 49-27 in a non-conference college football game Saturday night.

The victory was Houston's first in three games this season and ended a five-game losing streak, while Louisville dropped to 1-3.

Houston scored on all but one possession in the first half enroute to a 35-14 lead at the break as Louisville's defense was constantly fooled by the Cougars' veer offense.

Simmons, a 6-foot, 200-pound junior tailback, had scoring runs of nine and 56 yards in the first half.

Landry hit fullback Sloan Hood from 12 yards out with 1:09 left in the first quarter and then lunged over from 1-yard out with 5:21 left in the half.

Landry's 1-yard run was set up when Tim Britton blocked a punt by Louisville's Kirk Kennedy and Houston recovered at Louisville's 18-yard line.

Hood broke lose up the middle for a 19-yard scoring run with 1:31 left to give Houston a 21-point lead at the half.

Houston threatened on its other possession in the first half, but fullback Mat Pierson fumbled on the Louisville 10-yard line and defensive end Mike Minogue recovered for the Cardinals.

Houston racked up 398 yards total offense in the first half, with Landry connecting on eight of 10 passes for 137 yards. Simmons had 95 yards on 10 attempts in the first half.

SMU 56

TCU 14

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Southern Methodist tailbacks Jeff Atkins and Reggie Dupard exploded for four second-quarter touchdowns Saturday night as the Mustangs splashed to a 56-14 Southwest Conference verdict over Texas Christian.

Dupard raced 62 yards to break an early 7-7 deadlock and open the scoring floodgates as the sixth-ranked Ponies hiked their record to 2-0 and extended the nation's longest unbeaten, untied streak to eight.

Dupard bolted a yard for a second touchdown and Atkins contributed scoring runs of 10 and seven yards as SMU rolled up 356 yards and a 35-7 halftime cushion in a game billed sardonically as the "Bag Man Bowl."

SMU quarterback Don King winged a 21-yard scoring pass to tight end Albert Reese with 4:20 left in the opening quarter before the Dupart-Atkins duo came on to torpedo TCU's flimsy upset bid.

Tony Jeffery scored TCU's second touchdown from the 1, and Stephen Howland wrapped it up with a TD from the 7, both in the final period.

Atkins and Dupart both picked up second half TDs, Atkins from the 1 and Dupard on a 46-yard pass from second-team quarterback Bobby Watters.

Atkins wound up with 139 yards rushing on 23 carries. Dupard got 182 on 21 trips.

Rice 29

Lamar 28

HOUSTON (AP) — Rice quarterback Mark Comalander ran for one touchdown and handed off for another to rally the Owls to a 29-28 victory over Lamar Saturday night, ending the nation's longest major college losing string at 11.

Rice's fourth-quarter comeback spoiled a school record rushing performance by Lamar's Burton Murchison, who ran 10 and 76 yards in the third quarter to rally the Cardinals, 3-1.

Trailing 17-7 at the half, the Cardinals switched to quarterback Dave Money to operate a ground-oriented attack and turned Murchison loose in the third quarter.

Murchison rushed with a school-record 259 yards on 31 carries, breaking his own record of 222 yards. Brinkly finished with 244 yards on 25 carries, his best rushing day as a collegian.

Murchison's 76-yard run put the Cardinals ahead 17-14 and on the first play of the fourth quarter. Randy Levias ran five yards into the Rice end zone, fumbled and Card center Randy McFarland recovered for a touchdown.

The Owls gained first downs at the Lamar 15 twice and their 6 once, and managed only three points before their fourth-quarter surge.

Texas A&M 45

Tulsa 10

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Quarterback Kevin Murray, starting his first game in a year, threw four touchdown passes Saturday night as Texas A&M rolled over Tulsa 45-10 in an intersectional football game.

The loss was Tulsa's third straight to a Southwest Conference school after the Missouri Valley Conference team defeated the SWC's Houston in its opener. The victory was A&M's second after an opening-game loss to Alabama.

Murray, who broke an ankle on Sept. 29, 1984, threw touchdown passes of 8 and 13 yards to flanker Jeff Nelson in the first half, and fullback Roger Vick carried a Murray swing pass 59 yards for a touchdown early in the third quarter.

Murray's fourth touchdown throw was a 23-yard swing pass to Harry Johnson with 7:13 left in the game.

Vick, subbing for leading rusher Anthony Toney, who sat out with a hyper-extended knee, banged over from the Tulsa 5 for a second-quarter touchdown and scored on a 1-yard run late in the third quarter.

The field was slick from a heavy pre-game rain that carried on into the first half. But Tulsa's Gordon Brown kept on his feet on a 47-yard sprint to the A&M 5, and quarterback Steve Gage ran 5 yards for a 7-0 Tulsa lead with 10:11 left in the first quarter.

The 58-yard drive started with an interception of Murray by Tulsa linebacker Steve Kropp — the first given up by A&M this season.

A&M responded with a 26-yard scoring run by Keith Woodside and Murray's scoring toss to Nelson.

Arkansas 45

New Mexico 13

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Quarterback Greg Thomas completed five of six passes for 125 yards and 10th-ranked Arkansas scored on its first five possessions in a 45-13 rout of New Mexico State Saturday night.

Thomas, a sophomore, had passes of 25, 44, 21 and 31 yards in the Razorbacks' first three touchdown drives and didn't play after the first 17 minutes of the first half.

Less than two minutes into the second quarter, Arkansas had run 30 plays for 265 yards and led 31-7. The Razorbacks went 66 yards in nine plays, 82 yards in seven plays, 53 yards in four plays and 73 yards in six plays for touchdowns.

Thomas got the first touchdown drive started when James Shibest, suspended last week for disciplinary reasons, made a fingertip catch for 25 yards on third-and-8. Six plays later, Carl Miller scored from the 11. Thomas' 44-yard pass to Miller on a deep crossing pattern carried to the Aggies' 23 and, on fourth down, Jamie Lueders tossed to Terry Tatum on a fake field goal. That play netted three yards to the 13 and James Rouse scored from the 9.

After Greg Horne's 48-yard field goal, Thomas passed to Theo Young for 21 yards and Shibest for 31 yards. Two plays later, Marshall Foreman made it 24-0 with 1:25 left in the quarter with a 1-yard scoring run.

Sammy Van Dyke, benefitting from a block by Rouse, went 59 yards down the right sideline to set up the Razorbacks' fourth touchdown. Van Dyke scored from the 1 in the opening minutes of the second quarter.

ACNE
Acne is a major skin problem in teenagers & young adults caused by excess sebaceous gland activity & hormonal influences. It can also affect people in their 30s. Acne is not caused by foods, drink, what you use on your face or improper cleansing. However, all of the above factors along with stress can cause the condition to worsen in some individuals. Many people try over-the-counter products unsuccessfully for long periods of time before they seek the advice of a dermatologist. Scarring, infection & pigmented (dark) spots can result from picking at the acne. There is no medication that can permanently cure acne. But, there are medications your dermatologist can prescribe to control acne & produce long remissions. If you have an acne problem, see your dermatologist.

Q.: We are considering taking back a second mortgage to sell our home. What should the term of the loan be? Should we conform to traditional mortgage payback terms?

A.: No. Keep the term of the loan as short as possible. It should be kept to one or two years and not go over three years. The longer the term of the loan, the deeper the discount will be when and if you sell the loan. Also, remember, longer term loans are also harder to sell. Some mortgage bnrokerage companies charge a 10% commission to sell a two year loan, and 15% to sell a three year loan. A properly originated and serviced mortgage will probably be easy to manage.

Howard College opens cosmetology program

By CAROL BALDWIN
Lifestyle Editor

Former students and visitors to the practical arts (PA) building on the Howard College campus won't recognize the building if they've been away from the campus for long.

The cosmetology department, a new program being offered for the first time this semester at the school, opened earlier this month and admitted 31 students. Prior to opening, extensive remodeling transformed the inside of one side of the building from drab, gray rooms to a bright pink and white beauty salon.

The cosmetology lab floor has 24 stations, 10 shampoo bowls, 10 dryers and two manicure tables.

Other rooms have been transformed into classrooms and office space.

The new facilities will be shown off to the public during an open house at 6-8 p.m. Oct. 7.

The cosmetology program is the realization of a plan which was put into motion several months ago. Howard County Junior College District officials were contacted by the public schools more than a year ago and asked about the feasibility of opening a cosmetology department at the school.

Big Spring has a private school of cosmetology but the program offered through the public schools was stopped when a local school decided to close on Mondays. Because of educational reforms, students had to attend class on Monday.

Howard College decided to step in with a proposal for the cosmetology program.

Barbara Holdampf, dean of the division of allied health and chairman of the technical and professional division, conducted a feasibility study on the proposed department after having been approached by HCJCD president Dr. Bob Riley.

Teri McCarty has her nails done by Marsha Mann in the manicure area of the new cosmetology lab.

Holdampf accepted the challenge because, "I like to develop new programs. I found this very challenging."

Holdampf discovered that cosmetology students must adhere to strict guidelines before receiving their licenses in Texas.

"The (Texas Cosmetology Commission) is as stringent in terms of rules and regulations as any agency I've worked with," Holdampf said.

Before gaining their licenses, students must complete 1,500 hours of lab and lecture work. They must then take written exams in Austin and do an actual demonstration of their skills with a client of their choice in front of state reviewers.

Holdampf selected an advisory committee to get "valuable input from people in the business" before proceeding with the program. Included are Gary Don Carey, Diane Clinton and Josie Paredez. Also on the committee are Roger Goertz and Loren Spencer from the Big Spring ISD, and counselors from the Forsan, Coahoma and Stanton schools.

College district personnel went through several additional steps before opening the program. A form questioning the need for such a program was sent to Big Spring and surrounding communities and "results were positive."

The district then submitted a proposal to the Texas Education Agency. A building was selected, the local board approved the program, and remodeling began.

Job opportunities, career changes draw new students

Students enrolled in the cosmetology program at Howard College say they are seeking their licenses in cosmetology for a number of reasons, but one heard most often is that the students simply like to work with people.

"I enjoy it," said Starla Hatfield, a student who has accumulated 1,150 hours of experience at both Howard College and programs in other cities.

"I love working with people," Hatfield said. "And I love working with other people's hair."

Hatfield was complimentary of the Howard College program. "It's the best I've seen. I've been to other schools in other towns and this is great."

Hatfield spends about 40 hours a week working in the program and said she needs about 2½ months of work before completing the 1,500 hour requirement the state mandates before seeking her license.

A student with a different story is Frank Moore, the only man enrolled in the program now.

Moore worked as a welder for a number of years. In March of 1984, he broke his back in an accident on the job.

Moore realized after a painful rehabilitation period that his career as a welder was over. He thought about other professions, and decided he wanted to be a barber.

"I wanted to be a barber, and I looked into barber schools in San Angelo, Lubbock and Odessa. But I didn't have the money" to relocate or commute to those cities, he said.

"My wife convinced me to try this. I'm still not fully convinced," he said with a laugh as he looked around the room filled with women. "But I'm working on it."

As he talked, Moore concentrated on sculpting the nails of a fellow student. He occasionally stopped talking as he concentrated on getting the assignment just right.

LUPE GUTIERREZ has several relatives in Mexico City, including her parents and 13 brothers and sisters. She has been helping the Red Cross pack clothing and canned goods to be sent to the earthquake-striken area in return for help in locating her family.

Mexico City earthquake has effect on many local families

By KIM KIRKHAM
Lifestyle Writer

The earth quaked Thursday, Sept. 19. Over a week later, 4,596 are reported dead, 5,638 still missing.

Through the help of local Red Cross programs, families wait for news of relatives missing and feared dead in Mexico City.

One of 103 local inquiries, Lupe Gutierrez contacted Marianne Brown with the Howard-Glasscock chapter of the Red Cross Monday.

Her parents, nine sisters, three brothers and numerous neices and nephews live in Mexico City. Several of her siblings are married and have children of their own, some with a dozen children.

There's a "magnitude of people involved even in just one family," Brown said.

"Most of them live around where it really happened," said Brown. They are poor, said Mrs. Gutierrez, living in the slum areas of the city.

After a person contacts Brown, she calls the Abilene Red Cross and tells them the name and phone number of the relative or relatives. The Abilene Red Cross then contacts volunteers in Mexico and the search is on.

At this time, information can only be obtained on relatives with telephones, said Brown. It is too dangerous for volunteers to go directly to the homes of families.

The Red Cross is using Mrs. Gutierrezes aunt as a contact in Mexico City because she is the only one with a phone. Brown has not been able to reach the aunt since the disaster.

The only one of her parents 13 children living outside Mexico City, Mrs. Gutierrez, who speaks little English, hasn't seen her family in seven years.

She moved to Big Spring six years ago, never returning to Mexico City. She has been married to Rudy Gutierrez, an American, for six years. They have three children.

"We seen in the paper how the Red Cross was helping" locate family members in Mexico City, said Gutierrez. "We'd been trying since Thursday to locate them and hadn't had any luck."

Mrs. Gutierrez has been doing volunteer work, packing boxes of clothes and food, in return for the Red Cross trying to find her family.

"We just need all the help from Big Spring that we can get," Brown said. "Cash is really needed." The Red Cross also is collecting canned goods and clothing.

The Howard-Glasscock Red Cross, a United Way agency, is taking donations at P.O. Box 1970 or at the Red Cross office inside the Northside Community Center, 108 N.E. 8th.

"Every time the phone rings I say 'which one are they calling me about and what are they gonna say,'" Brown said. So far, 87 of the inquiries have been answered with good reports. But she fears for a phone call bringing bad news for a family.

Meanwhile people like the Gutierrezes wait and hope and pray for some news, whether good or bad.

Tax & financial planning

PAID UP BUT FILING LATE

If you file your tax return late (after the due date or the expiration of any extensions you have been granted), you can be assessed two types of penalties:

1) A late filing penalty of 5% a month of the unpaid tax up to a maximum of 25% and
2) a negligence penalty of 5% of the "underpayment."

If you file a late return but owe no tax because you've already paid in all you owe via withholding or estimated taxes, you would not be charged either penalty, right? Not according to a recent IRS ruling that defines "underpayment" on late returns as the full tax liability computed on the return. The fact that your taxes were fully paid, or even overpaid, through withholding or estimated tax payments will not prevent the assessment of the 5% negligence penalty.

The ruling resulted from an individual case where a taxpayer failed to file his 1981 and 1982 returns. After being notified by the IRS, he filed late returns. He had overpaid his tax liability through withholding and estimated taxes, so he claimed refunds for both years. The IRS, nevertheless, assessed a penalty on the full amount of the individual's computed tax liability, stating that the penalty was imposed for the taxpayer's negligence in filing late returns. The total tax liability was considered the "underpayment" on which the 5% penalty was calculated.

Such rulings as this one are written statements issued by the IRS in response to a written inquiry by a taxpayer. They do not carry the weight of published IRS revenue rulings or IRS regulations. This particular letter ruling may be set aside, or a court ruling may prevent the IRS from issuing such penalties in other cases. However, it is an area that bears watching. Late filing, even if your tax liability is fully paid, could result in a penalty.

Dear Abby

Bachelor's Day would honor host of people

DEAR ABBY: We have a Mother's Day, Father's Day, and now someone has proposed a Wife's Day. Therefore, why not a "Bachelor's Day"?

There is a long list of bachelors who have made worthwhile contributions, and I think it's time the state of bachelorhood was appropriately honored. Some famous bachelors:

The saints: Paul, Luke, Francis of Assisi, Thomas Aquinas, Jerome and both Augustines.

There were Plato, Voltaire, Immanuel Kant and Thomas Paine. Also, Christopher Marlowe, Walt Whitman and Marcel Proust. And the famous artists Leonardo da Vinci, Raphael and El Greco. Musicians: Beethoven, brahms, Liszt, Chopin, Schubert and Handel.

And let's not forget Roger Bacon, Sir Isaac Newton, Andrew Carnegie and Thomas E. Lawrence (known as Lawrence of Arabia). Also J. Edgar Hoover.

What do you say, Abby? Does Bachelor's Day get your vote?

ED P. IN RICHMOND, VA.

DEAR ED: Absolutely. If Congress can rule that Oct. 26 be declared Mule Appreciation Day, I see no reason why it would not also approve a National Bachelor's Day. And lest you think I jest, Rep. Robert Garcia, a Democrat from New York, introduced the bill to "honor" the mule, and it was passed unanimously.

P.S. You overlooked two of the most important bachelors of them all: Jesus Christ and the pope.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My sister is 35 and I am 32. We're both married and have families. We get together occasionally and have always gotten along fine, until now.

The other evening my husband and I decided to go to bed early. He was in his briefs and I was in my nightgown when our doorbell rang. It was 8 p.m. and we weren't expecting anyone, so we didn't answer the door.

The next day my sister called to say that she and her husband had been in the neighborhood around 8 p.m., had rung our bell, but apparently nobody was home.

I told her we were home but didn't answer the door because we weren't expecting anyone and were ready for bed. She became very upset and said she thought we were very rude. I said I thought they were rude to ring our bell without calling first. Now we aren't speaking. I want very much to make up with her, but she's still mad.

Is she blowing this all out of proportion, or am I the one who's wrong.

RIGHT OR WRONG?

DEAR RIGHT: Your sister is wrong. They should have phoned in advance to ask if it was convenient for you to have company. This is a basic rule of common courtesy, and family members are no exception to the rule.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Immediately after the death of my father, my sister parked "Sara," her 30-year-old, unmarried, unemployed, lazy daughter, in my mother's home to keep her company and cheer her up. After four months, Sara, who is supposed to be on a special weight-loss diet, has done nothing but sit around, watch television and gain weight. She's even rejected offers of employment.

Mom feels trapped in her own home. It is obvious that Sara is doing nothing for her morale. In fact, I know my mother wishes that Sara would go home already, but she doesn't want to offend Sara's mother.

What should I do?

NO RIGHT ANSWERS

DEAR NO RIGHT: Wrong! There is a right answer. If you "know" that your mom feels trapped and wishes Sara would go home already, encourage her to tell Sara that she appreciated her visit, but the crisis is over and she can go home now.

gram have already accumulated a number of hours in other programs and are already working on clients. Appointments can be made by contacting the cosmetology department at 267-6311, ext. 264.

Students who are working with clients are also doing volunteer work in the community, Holdampf said.

"We want the students to develop a sense of community," Holdampf explained. Students have worked with several senior citizens and with patients from the Big Spring State Hospital.

Faye Damron, one of the coordinators of the program, said beginning students must stay in classrooms and workshop areas before working with clients. Student with enough experience to work with clients are called "seniors" in the program. They work under the supervision of instructors.

Students at Howard College also have the option to enroll only in shampoo specialization, a course requiring 150 hours of instruction, or manicure specialization, a course which also requires 150 hours of instruction.

Students completing the 1,500 hours of instruction at Howard College will have earned 36 hours of college credit, Holdampf said. Students wishing to accumulate more college hours may take "the second year option," Holdampf said.

This is designed "for students who want to go out and open their own shop." Students must take courses in management, psychology and other basic education courses in the second year option. This leads to an associate degree in science.

Weddings

Kelley-Heinatz

Dru Elizabeth Kelley became Mrs. Jeffrey Owen Heinatz in an afternoon ceremony Saturday at Hillcrest Baptist Church. The Rev. Wayne Oglesby, pastor, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Norma Nell Kelley, 1203 Settles, and the late Jesse D. Kelley. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Kinser Heinatz of San Angelo.

The couple stood before a brass archway entwined with greenery. Two candle trees, accented with white gladiolus, spider mums and killion daisies, flanked the archway.

Mrs. Wayne Oglesby, pianist, and vocalists Torrey Sparks and Wayne Plunkett provided music for the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her brother, Gary Kelley, the bride wore a formal-length white organza gown trimmed in chantilly lace. It featured a fitted bodice overlaid in lace with V-shaped ruffle and high embroidered yoke encrusted with seed pearls and sequins. Puffed organza sleeves were accented with satin bows at the elbow and with lace lower sleeves. The skirt fell into a beruffled chapel-length train with long satin bow in the back. The veil with two tiers of illusion was held by a Juliet cap adorned with seed pearls, sequins and chantilly lace.

Bridesmaids were Melody Young of Lubbock, Lorie Little of Abilene and Vanessa Wilson of Midland, cousin of the bridegroom.

Crystal Heinatz, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl.

Cliff Heinatz served his brother as best man.

Groomsmen were Stan Hemphill of Centerpoint, Mark Bell of Lubbock and Jim Tidwell of San Angelo.

Gene Key and Mike Smith, both of San Angelo, were ushers.

A reception followed in the fellowship hall of the church.

The bride's table featured a three-tiered white wedding cake decorated with cascades of rose-colored roses and icing swags with loops over a bubbly fountain. A Precious Moment bride and groom figurine was positioned between top and middle layer. The cake was topped with an ornament of bells surrounded by a garden of roses.

Her table was centered with an arrangement of pale pink spider chrysanthemums, mauve-colored carnations, killion daisies and baby's breath in a silver eperge.

The bridegroom's table held an oval-shaped chocolate cake decorated with chocolate roses and his initials. A silk arrangement of burgandy and rose flowers accented with silver grey eucalyptus centered his table.

Diana Beltran and Angel Miranda exchanged wedding vows Saturday at the Homestead Inn. Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin officiated at the 4 p.m. ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Ricardo Beltran, 804 Lancaster, and Esther Palacios of Costa Mesa, Calif. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Miranda of Big Spring.

Given in marriage by her son, Andrew Gomez, the bride wore a gown overlaid in lace with a full-length train. Her veil was decorated with pink baby carnations and white daisies.

The bride carried a mixed arrangement bouquet.

Donna Morris was matron of honor. Flower girl was Catherine JoJola, daughter of the bride.

Midland woman presented achievement award

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. — Joyce O'Bannon, HNG Oil Company of Midland, was presented the Association of Desk and Derrick Clubs (ADDC) Special Achievement Award for her service and dedication throughout the years, and her commitment to education, which is the association's primary goal.

O'Bannan was nominated by the Midland Desk and Derrick Club.

In addition to the praise she received from fellow members in the association, O'Bannon received high recommendations from Curtis Kruse, director of the Petroleum Extension Service (PETEX) at the University of Texas at Austin.

O'Bannon was mainly responsible for the development of the association's latest book "Land and Leasing," which is the second petroleum-related textbook sponsored by the association.

The 275 page book covers aspects of land ownership, transfer ad leasing which are necessary to a basic understanding for those interested in the petroleum industry.

The first joint ADDC-PETEX project, "Fundamentals of Petroleum," is in its second edition and is distributed worldwide.

The textbook has become the basis for many seminars and a correspondence course. Both books are published by the Petroleum Extension Service of the University of Texas at Austin.

Dr. Donohue

Strength useless without power

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Maybe you sports medicine guys can explain this to me. I am a coach of a high school JV football team. I have a kid who can outlift any of the others in the weight room, yet when I get him on a line he seems totally useless and gets pushed around. How can you explain a kid with that kind of ability losing it all in a game and always getting pushed out of position when he's up against smaller linemen? — L.B.

The distinction between strength and power is an important one. And it goes directly to the problem this boy has. You are dealing with a youngster who has oodles of strength but is coming up short in power.

Let's say that an athlete can lift a 100-pound weight over his head, and another can lift only 80 pounds. The first athlete is stronger, that's true. But have both lift the 80-pound weight as rapidly as they can. It's a sure bet that the second athlete will do it faster. That's power. You measure it by introducing the element of speed, for power means the amount of work you can do in a given length of time.

You can see the power vs. strength competition going on across almost any line of scrimmage you watch — one of quickness and strength against sheer strength.

The youngster you are dealing with has to concentrate on speed of motion. When he displays ability to speed up his lifts, he'll begin to demonstrate his power in actual play. Soon, there won't be any of that pushing around.

FOR F.R. — Rigorous practice is OK when theh wet bulb temperature is below 18.9 degrees. Between 19 and 25 degrees, let the boys have unlimited access to water. In fact, at this level demand water breaks every 25 to 30 minutes. When the wet bulb temperature is over 26 degrees, curtail practice or cut it off altogether.

LEGAL RESTRAINTS

Legal restraints influence the siting of residences. In addition to state and federal regulations, local zoning ordinances, building, housing and sanitation codes, health ordinances, flood plain regulations and deed restrictions have to be considered. Zoning ordinances frequently establish front, side and rear yard setback requirements as well as the limitations on the height of buildings. Another restriction may deal with the type and height of fences, hedges, gardens and freestanding walls. The general contractor is familiar with the building and housing codes for your area. This knowledge is but one aspect in the process of building quality housing.

Since we've lived and worked in the area for many years, we have the experience and knowledge of local codes and zoning restrictions to help you plan your project properly. At BOB'S CUSTOM WOODWORK, we do all kinds of remodeling and rebuilding including room additions and enlargements, carports, decks, and sun porches. We can cover or enclose your patio. Come to Bldg. 613 in the Industrial Park. Tel. 267-5811. Open M-F, 8-12, 1-5 or by appt.

— HINT —

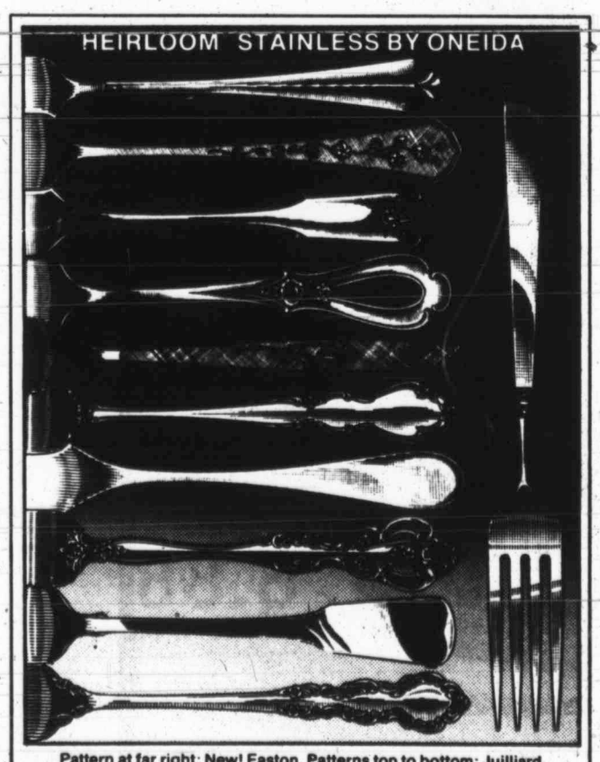

In a remodeling, the new copper piping should last as long as the house itself.

Grain elevator is fraternity home

Editor's Note: Herald photographer Tim Appel is a graduate of Bowling Green University. His photograph which appears with this AP wire story is from his college portfolio.

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP) — The 34 members of Phi Delta Theta have new bait for prospective pledges: they guarantee a room in a grain elevator.

At first glance, the brick building next to Bowling Green State University that is housing the "Phi Delts" this fall looks odd, and it's hard to tell why. But the roof line gives a clue: it matches the silhouette of grain elevators which dot the countryside in northwest Ohio.

And until the Phi Delts decided this spring to move in, Bowling Green's Hub Grain Association elevator was just an old wood building next to railroad tracks, wearing weathered gray shingles and a "Master Mix Feed" sign.

The restored building, with a modern brick exterior and new walls inside, still has hand-hewn beams, in some places 2-feet square, and heavy wood walls.

What fraternity president Shawn Mamasis and other members are sold on is location: one short block from the university's cluster of sorority houses.

"It's gonna be great," Mamasis says. "The location is perfect."

He isn't discouraged by the noise of trains running nearby, saying, "We'll get used to the sound, I guess." Nor is he bothered by jokes about living in a grain elevator at a rural university in a farm town surrounded by fields.

"It won't look like a grain elevator by the time it's finished. At least I hope not," he says, telling of a wood deck to be added to the front of the building.

"I guess it's quite the talk of the town that we're moving in here," he said. "I think most of the fraternities around here are a little jealous because we don't have to adhere to the campus rules that govern fraternities ... they are extremely strict.

"I think the other fraternities are worried that we'll steal all their pledges now that we have this."

Mamasis was not so enthused last year when 1965 fraternity alumnus and property owner Robert Maurer proposed turning the elevator into a frat house.

"I couldn't believe it when I first talked to him about it. I thought he was crazy," Mamasis said.

Remodeling is costing about $500,000, which Maurer will finance. He will collect $375 to $525 per month from fraternity members who rent 12 apartments in the building, Mamasis said. The fraternity also will have two offices and a party room, the only part of the building which will resemble its original form.

This grain elevator at Bowling Green University is being converted into a fraternity house.

It will take a while for the barn-like smell to disappear in the basement party room, Mamasis said, but he is counting on its retaining an air of rusticity — or something.

He also hopes the new house will upgrade his fraternity's standing on campus. Phi Delta Theta was kicked off campus four years ago after allegations of hazing and sexual harassment.

Current members were not involved then and have been invited back on campus but decided they would rather have a private house, he said.

"Before, we had nothing," he said, telling how they met in classrooms or at members' apartments. "With this house we're hoping for it to just boom."

Pat Porter discusses 'seriously funny' things about life during Hyperion meeting

The joint meeting of the Hyperion Council Clubs was held at the Big Spring Country Club with Mrs. Joe Bader of the 1948 club presiding.

Pat Porter of Gail was the speaker. His talk was entitled "Seriously Funny About Life."

Each club president gave a thumb nail sketch of her club's programs and projects for the coming year and an account of its attendance at the joint meeting.

The 1905 club and the 1970 club tied for the top honor with 76 percent of their members present.

The head table bouquet was given to the 1905 club member Florence Read in honor of her 91st birhtday. She said she was not a charter member of her club.

Decorations for the luncheon were done by Cecil McDonald and Modesta Stokes of the 1905 club and carried out the Texas Sesquicentennial theme.

Each table was centered with a red and blue boot topped by a bandana and a large white flower. Small Texas flags and greenery completed the look.

The 1946 club was responsible for the menu of crepes stuffed with chicken, broccoli salad, rolls and fruit cup.

Arthritis can cause foot pain

ATLANTA (AP) — Some forms of arthritis can cause foot pain and deformity, according to the Arthritis Foundation.

If you have problems due to arthritis, it says, you should make sure your shoes provide good ankle and arch support as well as a comfortable fit. If your feet are tender, look for a pair of shoes with soft soles — such as rubber or crepe — or put inserts of rubber or foam into hard-soled shoes.

Metatarsal bars added to the soles of hard-soled shoes can help relieve pressure on the balls of the feet. A good pair of running shoes will also give good support and provide cushioning.

We will be pleased to announce the news of your engagement, wedding, silver or golden anniversary in the Lifestyle section of the Big Spring Herald. We try to use the story on the date you request, but sometimes space does not permit this.

The information must be submitted to us on a form available at the Herald no later than Wednesday noon before the Sunday it is to be published. The form must include a name and telephone number of a person whom we can reach during the day for more information.

We will use a picture of the couple in the announcement. Or in the case of engagement announcements where a picture of the couple is not available, we will use one of the bride-elect. The picture must be a professional quality studio photograph. We prefer a 5 x 7 glossy black and white print. We ask for this kind of photograph so that it will reproduce well in the newspaper. Following the picture's publication, it may be picked up at the Lifestyle department.

The information for the story may be brought to the Lifestyle department of the Herald, which is located at 710 Scurry. Or it may be mailed to Lifestyle Department, Big Spring Herald, P.O. Anything closer than three weeks will not be published. The engagement form must be submitted no later than Wednesday noon prior to the Sunday it is to be published.

If the bride-elect, prospective bridegroom or their parents do not now or have never lived in our area, we need to know why you are submitting your engagement to the Herald. If only grandparents live in our area, please give their names and addresses.

WEDDINGS

If a wedding writeup is submitted to the Herald after the wedding has occurred, the space allotted to it will diminish according to the length of time that has passed since the wedding.

Around town

Mother, daughter reunited by local man

BY JOHNNIE LOU AVERY

Municipal judge Melvin Duratt received a phone call a few days ago from a woman in Oklahoma with an unusual story and request. She told Duratt that at the age of two she had been taken from her 17-year-old mother by in-laws. They passed her from relative to relative and finally put her up for adoption.

Adopted by a family who raised her in a loving home, she was given an education and security. The woman, now 47, had been searching for her mother for some time and had little information to go on. She had found out her mother's married name at the time she was taken from her. And she learned that they had been in Big Spring at one time.

She asked Duratt if he could help her locate any possible leads in Big Spring. Duratt, using hours of his own time and expertise, began to search records, make calls, trace leads — and patiently he achieved success. He found her mother working as a cook at a hospital in a town about 100 miles from here. When Duratt called her, she was at first disbelieving, then surprised, then ecstatic. She, too, had been searching for her daughter taken against her will 45 years ago.

Immediately she left for Oklahoma for a reunion — thanks to a Big Spring public servant who cared enough to do something.

We have a real nationwide television star in our midst. Pat Porter, local humorist and businessman, has a weekly program on Sat Com 4, Channel 5, called "Insight Out." Owners of satellite receivers can watch this funny, common sense commentary every Tuesday night from 8 p.m. to 8:10 p.m.

It is produced in Wisconsin and Pat flies there once a month to tape four programs at a time. He writes all his own material and in a short time has already garnered a following.

A Midland woman, after his first show, called to tell him that she just returned from the hospital after surgery and she laughed so hard she pulled out the stitches.

The program is already being considered for an increase to bi-weekly. Skeet and Lela's boy from Gail, Texas, is having the time of his life discussing his news and views to the 100,000 people who own satellite receivers across the nation.

Dr. Tim Leutzenheiser was a special visitor to the Big Spring High School band Thursday at the invitation of Director Ricky Mitchell. Tim conducted a special motivation workshop for all band members from 4:30 p.m. to 7 p.m., then he held a leadership training from 7:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. for band leaders.

After hearing him at the Tech band school last year, many of the students wanted to have him come to Big Spring. They weren't disappointed. He was dynamic, positive and contagious.

The American Gold Star Mothers is an organization of mothers whose sons or daughters served and died in line of duty in the armed forces. The last Sunday in September was proclaimed as Gold Star Mother's Day by President Franklin D. Roosevelt on Sept. 14, 1940.

The Day is always observed by attending church services as a group at the Chapter president's church. This year the Big Spring Chapter will attend the Trinity Baptist Church with President Mrs. T.D. Peacock.

The Big Spring chapter has 19 members who meet the second Thursday of each month. Dads are eligible as associate members but pay no dues, hold no office and have no vote.

From its small beginning in Washington, D.C., in 1928 when 25 mothers organized the Gold Star Mothers, the national membership has grown to more than 21,000 with chapters in nearly every state.

SESQUICENTENNIAL UPDATE:

The West Texas Republican Women have adopted a project to plant native wild flowers on Scenic Mountain.

Neighbors on Washington Boulevard are sprucing up that area by planting new flowers and shrubs and beautifying the boulevard. Jane Thomas and friends are already well into this project.

Annie Matt Angel has put together an informative, interesting program idea for short meetings. It is entitled "Texas — Past, Present and Future." Call her to schedule a date for your club program.

Looking ahead to Jan. 1, when the year-long celebration is officially kicked off by the ringing of bells, chimes, factory whistles, car horns, alarms, sirens and every sound imaginable, Big Spring will join the rest of the state. Statewide there will be six days for Texas cities and towns to "ring out:" Jan. 1, March 2 (Independence Day for Texas), April 21 (San Jacinto Day), July 4 (American Independence), Nov. 3 (Stephen F. Austin's birthday), and Dec. 31 (the close of the very special and exciting year.)

Books about Big Spring and Howard County history are always in demand and sometimes hard to find. The Heritage Museum has copies of these books: Big Spring by Shine Phillips; Getting Started by Joe Pickle; Caylor by A&M Press; Howard County in the Making by John Hutto. These are excellent gifts.

Volunteer opportunities:

The Big Spring State Hospital has three special needs for time and talent: 1. Cookies and cakes for unit parties; 2. Laundry bags made for individual patient use; 3. The making of ceramic luncheon favors for the quarterly volunteer lunch.

Cooks, seamstresses, craftspeople who can help out with these special jobs should call Evelyn Anderson, assistant coordinator of the Big Spring State Hospital, to get specifics.

Christmas dolls are in need of dresses. Each year the Salvation Army delivers almost 600 dolls to little children at Christmas. Only 60 are still waiting for some loving fingers to sew their dresses. Call or go by the Salvation Army and choose one or more to dress.
