In Brief

Spotted owl

WASHINGTON (AP) — An administration panel voted today to override the Endangered Species Act and permit logging on 1,700 acres of Oregon forests critical to the threatened northern spotted owl.

On a 5-2 vote, the Endangered Species Committee agreed to exempt federal logging from the act in an effort to postpone the loss of Northwest timber jobs.

It marks only the second time the high-level panel has granted an exemption under the law, which requires the government to save threatened and endangered species from extinction.

For county, city...

Jobless rate holds at 6.5%

Unemployment held at 6.5 percent for Scurry County in April, according to the Texas Employment Commission.

TEC also released March unemployment figures for the City of Snyder.

According to TEC, Scurry County had an estimated civilian labor force of 11,501 in April. Some 10,750 of those people were employed. The remaining 751, who were unemployed, represent 6.5 percent.

Scurry County began the year with a jobless rate of 8.7 percent. It dropped slightly to 8.2 in February and then to 6.5 percent in March.

Unemployment for the city almost mirrored that of the county, dropping from 8.1 in February to 6.5 percent in March. April figures were not included in the TEC release.

The information showed a labor force of 8,161 for the city in March. Of that number, 7,632 people were employed and 677 were unemployed.

TEC estimated statewide unemployment for April at 7.4 percent, slightly below the nationwide jobless rate of 7.7 percent.

Unemployment for Scurry County was comparable to area counties; however, the city witnessed a lower rate than other nearby cities.

Andrews County had an unemployment rate of 6.2 percent while the jobless rate was 7.6 in Dawson County. Other rates were 4.4 percent in Garza County, 9.0 in Mitchell, 8.2 in Nolan, 6.0 in Howard, 6.4 in Lubbock and 6.5 in Taylor.

The City of Snyder's unemployment rate of 6.5 percent compared to 7.0 in Big Spring, 7.1 in Lamesa, 8.4 in Sweetwater and 6.3 in Andrews. Among larger cities, Abilene had a rate of 7.4 percent and Lubbock a rate of 6.8

Texas EMS Week observed locally

To help Texas citizens know what to do in a medical emergency and to recognize the lifesaving efforts of emergency medical services personnel, Governor Ann Richards has proclaimed this week as Texas Emergency Medical Services Week.

Snyder EMS, Inc., the local ambulance service, is contracted to provide emergency medical care to Snyder and Scurry County.

The service is based at Cogdell Memorial Hospital and is under the medical direction of Dr. Bid Cooper.

"Without the support of the city and county and from local citizens, the level of care we provide and the quality of personnel would not be available," said Snyder EMS Director Perry Westmoreland.

Besides responding to calls for pre-hospital emergency medical care, the Emergency Medical Technicians and Paramedics of Snyder EMS play an important role in educating the community about preventing injuries.

National Safety Council statistics show that nearly 50,000 people die in motor vehicle accidents every year. More than 3,000 of those deaths occur in Texas."

Other nationwide statistics show that some 11,000 people die each year from from falls, while 5,600 die from drowning incidents. Fires and burns account for approximately 4,800 deaths annually, and poisoning for 4,000.

During Texas EMS Week, Snyder EMS is joining with the Texas Department of Health to urge people to prevent accidents on the road, in homes, at play and at work.

Concerts set at auditorium today, Friday

A band concert this evening and a choir concert Friday are free to the public at Worsham Auditorium.

Snyder High School concert band and symphonic band will perform at 7:30 this evening in the auditorium.

The concert will include "Shostakovich Festive Overture" and "Robin Hood, Prince of Thieves."

The high school choir department will present its final concert of the year at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

The event will be the farewell performance for retiring choir director Bill Lyon and all choir exes are especially encouraged to come. It will also be the final performance for this year's seniors.

The concert will feature traditional choral music. Included will be a piece featuring Melanie Smith as soloist and Reid Johnson as boy soprano soloist. Leticia Ledesma will play the flute and Janice Moore will play the organ.

Treatment plant bids are higher than anticipated

Bids for the construction of a wastewater treatment plant for the City of Snyder all came in over the projected costs.

Bids were opened Wednesday by representatives of the city and engineers from Parkhill, Smith & Cooper of Lubbock.

Just over $637,000 separated the high and low bids, which ranged from $3,942,264 to $4,579,664. All bids exceeded the engineers' projection of $3.25 million for the treatment plant.

"We will have to work through the budget to determine the available funds, and work with the Texas Water Development Board for approval to award the contract," said Terry Bilberback of PS&C, who is serving as project chairman.

Bilderback said a low interest loan through the State Revolving Fund Program was approved in March of 1991 for construction of the wastewater treatment plant. The approval was for $4 million.

However, the construction bids do not include approximately $540,000 in costs for engineering, testing and surveying, bond issuements, legal and financial assistance and operational plans.

Even the low bid, when coupled with engineering costs, would be about $500,000 over budget.

Bilderback said that PS&C will review the project to see if some reductions can be made, and will probably also go back to the water development board to seek an increase in funding.

"We will try to work through it as quickly and efficiently as possible," said Bilderback. He said he is still hoping for construction to begin in August or September.

Each bid received by the city included a $39,764 fixed-cost licensing agreement, to insure that the plant will perform up to requirements.

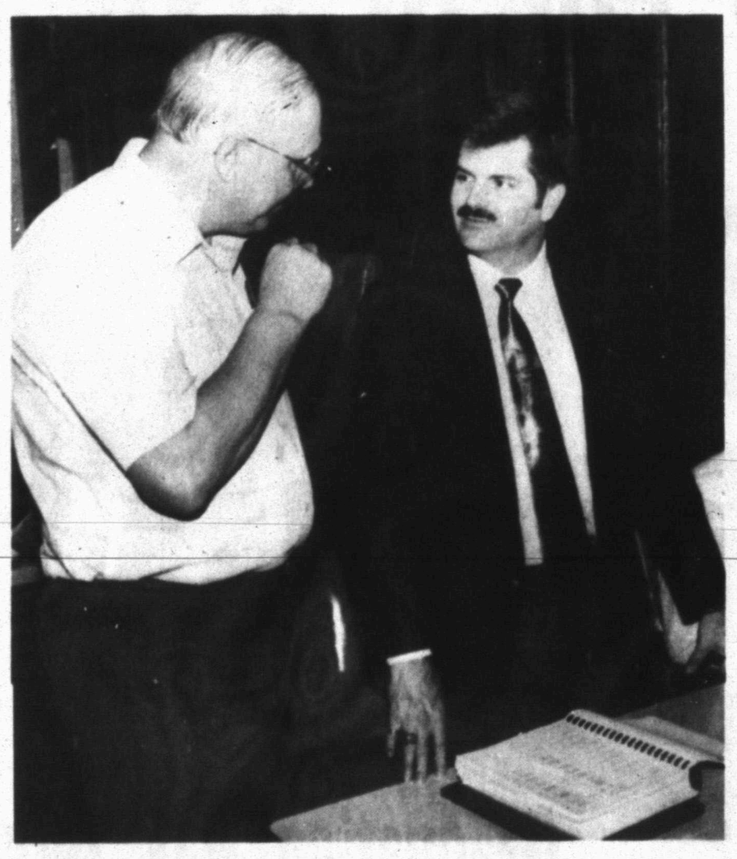

R.P. Contractors of New Braunfels turned in the low bid on the construction project, at a total of $3,942,264. This price included a $3,900,000 base bid for construction of the plant, a $2,500 bid on the trench system plus the $39,764 license agreement.

Bryan Construction Company of Bryan submitted a base bid of $4,093,000 and a $5,000 bid on the trench system. Bid total, including the licensing agreement, was $4,137,764.

Craig, Sheffield and Austin of Grand Prairie bid a total of $4,171,264. This included a base bid of $4,130,000, trench system bid of $1,500 and the licensing agreement.

A total bid of $4,310,264 was submitted by Rhode Construction Company of Lubbock. The com-

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Courage is being able to be the only one who knows you're afraid."

Someone once said that Americans believe in life, liberty and the purchase of happiness — with a credit card.

There's been a lot said recently about American companies losing ground to foreign competition. Someone left an item on our desk suggesting that all American companies — both big and small — may require an attitude adjustment.

The note said that companies and their employees should avoid the following phrases:

--We've already tried this.
--Our company is unique.
--It probably will cost too much.
--It won't work.
--Our company is too small for this.
--We're too big for this.
--The workers will never accept it.
--We've never done this before.
--We're doing fine, why change?
--Let's think about it.
--It's impossible, the public won't accept it.
--A good, but impractical idea.
--Let the long-range committee study it.

There are two ways to know when a store understands its buying public. Such a store is open when its customers are available to shop.

Another characteristic is savvy in advertising. We noticed that one local store put its physical fitness equipment on the same page with heating pads and massage devices.

Scholarship fund at WTC established for Ira teacher

A scholarship fund at Western Texas College has been established to honor Mrs. Betty Burrow's 23 years of dedicated service to the students of Ira Independent School District. Mrs. Burrow has announced her plans to retire at the conclusion of this school year. Contributions may be mailed or turned in at the superintendent's office.

Mrs. Burrow began her career in 1954 as the business teacher for Ira Independent School District and has taught in no other district. Other classroom assignments have included first, third, fourth and fifth grades.

Additionally, she served as school secretary for half of the year and has instructed the third, fourth and fifth grade computer keyboarding classes.

A reception in her honor was held last Sunday at the Ira School Cafeteria.

Second U.S. woman to walk in space

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — After being excluded from the satellite "manhandling" squad, astronaut Kathryn Thornton was offered a chance to shine today as the second American woman to walk in space.

She's honored, but nervous.

"To some extent, if I mess up really bad, I will hurt opportunities for other women," she said in a preflight interview. "They will say, 'There's proof they can't do it.' So to some extent I have a responsibility to other people."

Thornton and astronaut Thomas Akers are to practice methods for building space station Freedom.

The commander of space shuttle Endeavour, Daniel Brandenstein, passed over Thornton in favor of Akers when he needed a third astronaut to catch a wayward satellite on Wednesday. Akers joined astronauts Richard Hieb and Pierre Thuot.

Brandenstein told Mission Control that "since we're going to be manhandling the satellite we'll go with Tom, Rick and Pierre."

Each of the three men and Thornton, the only woman among the seven-member crew, had trained for months to walk in space. Each has a spacesuit aboard.

NASA flight director Al Pennington, at a news conference today, defended the selection of Akers. Pennington said Akers was "the best choice" because of his height.

Akers is 6 feet tall, Hieb 6-feet-3 and Thuot 5-feet-9.

"The discrimination is size-wise," said Thornton, who is 5-feet-4 and weighs 115 pounds. "There are some things that are difficult for me to do because of my reach. I work harder at it, I think, because I have to position my body a little bit more carefully because I have less work area, less things that I can reach. But it's doable, it is."

Thornton, a 39-year-old physicist, said that when she became an astronaut in 1985, the word at work was that most women were too small and too weak for spacewalks.

The first American woman to walk in space, Kathryn Sullivan in 1984, is 5-feet-6 and weighs 150 pounds. Only one other woman has been on a spacewalk, Russian cosmonaut Svetlana Savitskaya, who beat Sullivan by three months.

Thornton says the novelty of being one of only three spacewalking women "doesn't mean anything to me."

Poll: top three are statistically tied

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush, Democrat Bill Clinton and independent Ross Perot are in a virtual dead heat in a new nationwide poll.

A Washington Post poll published in today's editions says Bush had 33 percent support to Clinton's 29 percent and Perot's 28 percent. The poll of 858 registered voters had a 3 percentage point margin of error.

State appeals court acts on 2 murder convictions

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals has upheld the Harris County conviction of a former tree-trimmer and ice cream salesman sentenced to death in the slaying of a man during a restaurant holdup.

Martin Allen Draughon was found guilty in the shooting death of Armando Ibarra Guerrero, 21.

According to testimony in the case, Draughon entered the Long John Silver's restaurant on Nov. 23, 1986, armed with a .25-caliber automatic pistol.

After robbing the employees of the restaurant, and while fleeing, Draughon shot Guerrero, a bystander, the court opinion said. His conviction was affirmed Wednesday.

In other action, the Court of Criminal Appeals:

— Sent back to a lower appeals court the case of Chance Edward Saunders, who was convicted of murder after his girlfriend's five-month-old son was found dead in his crib in their Pasadena apartment in 1987.

Saunders, who was 17, was sentenced to 75 years in prison after being charged with killing the child by squeezing the infant's head.

The boy's mother was sentenced to 70 years in the same case after being convicted of injury to a child by omission. The jury found she failed to protect her infant son.

Saunders, on appeal, complained that the jury was not allowed to consider whether he was guilty of criminally negligent homicide, a lesser offense. The trial court denied his request for such a jury instruction, and an intermediate appellate court said it acted properly.

But the Court of Criminal Appeals said the instructions should have been given. It sent the case back to the lower appellate court and told it to analyze why the jury did not consider the charge.

— Affirmed the murder conviction of Bobby Paul Cox of Odessa, who was sentenced to life in prison in the 1989 death of Deborah Hulsey. Ms. Hulsey was killed by being smashed in the face and head with a rock, according to the court opinion.

The 8th Court of Appeals in El Paso had reversed Cox's conviction, stating there was insufficient evidence of his guilt. The Court of Criminal Appeals said the lower appellate court did not properly apply the law on accomplice-witness testimony.

Also Wednesday, the 3rd Court of Appeals in Austin reversed the capital murder conviction of Jack Warren Davis, sentenced to life in prison in the 1989 strangulation death of Kathie Balonis in New Braunfels.

The road home is found by counting

Last year at the Sunday Times tournament in London, the World Women's Pairs and Teams champions from the United States, Karen McCallum and Kerri Shuman, were slated to play. However, Shuman had to withdraw at the last moment, so McCallum teamed up with Sally Horton, a World Women's Teams champion from Britain. For this year's event, also sponsored by the Macallan Malt Whisky Company, McCallum and Horton revived their partnership. Lack of practice worked against them in such a strong field, but Horton played today's hand perfectly.

Horton opened with the maximum pre-empt, five clubs. In response, McCallum decided that they were unlikely to make exactly 11 tricks. Either the hands would fit well and they would make a slam, or they would fit badly and not even make a game. This made the six-club bid logical.

West, trying to find a safe lead, opened with the spade seven. Declarer ruffed and cashed the club ace. Needing to find the diamond queen for her contract, Horton embarked on a journey of discovery. She played a heart to dummy's ace, ruffed a spade in hand, ruffed the heart jack in the dummy and ruffed another spade in hand. West, realizing he would be endplayed if he overruffed, discarded a heart. But declarer exited with a trump.

Now West could lead a heart safely as dummy was out of trumps, but when East discarded, the hand had counted out. West was known to have begun with 2-8-1-2 distribution. Horton ruffed West's heart, played a diamond to dummy's ace and finessed the diamond 10 for her contract.

Skills, quilt construction program

Redesigning used materials and clothes was studied at the May 11 meeting of Patchwork Squares Home Extension Club at Dana Barnes home in Hermleigh.

Dorothy Campbell gave members a pattern for using demim jeans to make purses, jackets and coats. She gave several tips for decorating, completing the program by displaying items that had been made by other clubs and friends.

Terri Williams presided over the business where Ruby Clark was elected to select an "adopted grandparent" for Patchwork members to visit and help in numerous ways.

One guest, Shoyne Williams, daughter of Terri, and five other members were served refreshments.

The club's next meeting is set for Sept. 14 in the home of Dycie Kemp, 2006 37th No. 35.

Cake frosting without fuss

By NANCY BYAL
Ap Special Features

Frosting makes the cake, or so the saying goes. Yet it's a step that many bakers avoid because they think frosting is difficult or too time-consuming.

Besides adding flair and flavor, frosting a cake takes only minutes to do, especially when you have a pastry brush, a metal spatula and these no-fail frosting tips in hand:

— Completely cool your cake before decorating.

— Use a pastry brush or your hand to brush loose crumbs from the sides of each layer. This keeps crumbs from mixing with the frosting as you spread it.

— Before you position a cake layer on a cake platter, arrange strips of waxed paper around the edge of the platter to keep it clean.

— Position the first cake layer, top side down, on the waxed paper-edged plate. If the cake layer is too rounded on the top side, it will not sit securely with the top side down. To steady the cake and make it level, use a long-bladed serrated knife to slice a thin piece from the top.

— Using a small metal spatula, spread about one-fourth of the frosting over the first layer. Or spread some filling over the cake layer, if you prefer.

— When using a firm frosting, such as fudge or butter frosting, spread it to the edge of the cake.

— When using a soft, fluffy frosting, leave about 1/4 inch unfrosted around the edge. The weight of the second layer will cause the frosting to flow to the edge.

— Place the second cake layer, top side up, over the frosted layer so the edges of the layers align. This method of assembling the two layers gives the finished cake a slightly rounded top and avoids the space that results when you position the second layer top side down. If the cake top is too rounded or lopsided, use a sharp, long-bladed knife to level it by slicing off a piece.

— Spread the sides of the cake with a thin coat of frosting. This thin layer seals in any crumbs that may still remain. For even spreading, hold the spatula vertically.

— Use about two-thirds of the remaining frosting to spread a thicker layer over this thin coat on the sides, making decorative swirls.

— Spread the remaining frosting over the top of the cake, joining the frosted sides at the edge. Swirl the frosting with a spatula.

— Carefully remove the waxed paper strips.

— To serve, cut the cake into wedges with a sharp, thin-bladed knife, slicing with an up-and-down motion, and pulling the knife toward you.

— To prevent fluffy frosting from sticking to the knife, dip the knife into hot water between cuts.

Polly's hint

DEAR POLLY — I mix one box of colored fruit-flavored or cocoa-flavored cereal with two boxes of the same type of cereal in its plain, unsugared version. I store this in a large empty popcorn can for the kids' breakfast. They scoop it out and enjoy the blend, which has much less sugar.

They also enjoy homemade icy slush drinks that are merely frozen juice concentrates reconstituted in the blender using ice cubes and just enough water for them to run well. — MARGARET 100-meter dash qualifier...

Thompson runs for SHS at state meet

Snyder senior Trina Thompson will line up for a shot at the state Class 4A 100 meter dash title shortly before 8 p.m. Friday.

Less than 12 seconds later, whether it's her or one of the seven lined up against her, a new state champion will be crowned.

"I definitely think the winner will have to run in the 11s," said Snyder girls' track coach Patty Grimmett.

Thompson, Ft. Worth Arlington Heights standout Tinesha Jackson, Donyale Canada of Austin Reagan and Allen's Chanteau White, will be the favorites in the headline event of the girls state track and field meet, to be run Friday and Saturday at Memorial Stadium in Austin.

TRINA THOMPSON

"I think Trina has a good chance to do well," Grimmett said. "The way I've told her to look at it, is that hundreds of good runners have had to stay home. She's one of the top eight in the state. That, in itself, makes her a winner."

Jackson's 11.7 was the top 4A girls' time of the year. Canada carries a personal best of 11.86 into the state meet while Thompson and White each boast an 11.89 best.

The bottom half of the 100 meter field includes Austin Travis' Shawntel Morris, who carries an 11.98 personal best and Yvonne Hill of A&M Consolidated, Kim Phillips of Houston C.E. King and Texarkana Liberty Eylau's Danielle Brown, all of whom take a 12.14 clocking to Austin.

"I don't really know anything about the girls, other than Trina and the girl from Arlington Heights who ran in our region. But, from what I've seen and what I've read, Trina is rated pretty high."

The 100 meter starter's gun will fire at 7:55 p.m.

Snyder's home district, District 2, will also be represented by Adrien Sawyer of Frenship in the triple jump and the long jump and Dunbar discus thrower Muffin Miller.

Sawyer's 37-111/2 in the triple jump places her in fifth in the state. Eylau's Brown is the event favorite, registering a personal best 41-13/4. Sawyer is also listed fifth among long jump qualifiers with a 19-03/4 standard. Brown is also the one to beat in this event, carding a 19-11 during the Region 3 meet.

Miller heads into the discus throw with a 125-6 qualifying toss. Sheila Sims of Sulphur Springs is favored to win the event, by virtue of her 134-5 throw in the regional meet.

In addition to the qualifiers in the girls' meet, six thinclads from District 2 will grace the boys gathering, including Esteven Golightly of Levelland and Typail McMullen of Dunbar in the 100, Taje Allen of Estacado in both the 110 and 300 meter hurdles, Marlon Jackson of Dunbar in the 110 hurdles, McMullen and Estacado's Chike Lewis in the long jump and Estacado's Payton Williams in the shot put.

Allen will carry the favorite's mantle into both boys' hurdle events. He posted a 4A best 37.4 in the 300 meters and 13.8 in the 110 meters to win both events at the Region 1 meet in San Angelo two weeks ago.

Another good chance for district recognition appears to be in the 100 meters where McMullen and Golightly each have posted 10.4 times, just .02 off the state's best, a 10.38 by Scott Andrews of Austin Reagan.

Ehlo guides Cavs to playoff victory

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Craig Ehlo adopted a new attitude this year. The occasional bad game wasn't going to bother him.

"But an 'oh-fer' night; you keep track of those," Ehlo said Wednesday night after he bounced back from an 0-for-9 performance by making his first eight shots as Cleveland beat the Boston Celtics 114-98, giving the Cavaliers a 3-2 lead in the Eastern Conference semifinals.

The series moves to Boston for Game 6 Friday night. A seventh game, if needed, would be played in Richfield on Sunday.

Ehlo, a Lubbock Monterey product, was an unlikely hero because he has struggled with his shooting throughout the playoffs. A sprained knee sidelined him for 19 games late in the year, giving him little chance to work back into shape before the playoffs began.

He shot 30 percent from the floor in Cleveland's first eight playoff games and was outscored 42-1 by Boston counterpart Reggie Lewis in Sunday's game in Boston, which Cleveland won in overtime.

"I'm not a pure shooter, but I'm a good shooter," Ehlo said. "You leave me alone, I think I can knock it down. I only went 0 for 9 on Sunday so they'd leave me alone."

Ehlo's shooting helped keep the pressure off Cleveland's front line of Brad Daugherty, Larry Nance and Williams, who responded by completely outplaying the Celtics' front line. Daugherty scored 28 points and Nance and Daugherty had 18 each. Ehlo had 20 points, a career-high 13 assists and six rebounds.

Boston got 13 points from Larry Bird, four from Robert Parish and two from Kevin McHale.

Texas ripped early by O's

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — It only took seven pitches for Kevin Brown to put the Texas Rangers in a 4-0 hole.

"I'd like to have a little better luck. It's not very often you throw two bad pitches and you're down four runs," Brown (5-3) said after the Baltimore Orioles' 4-2 victory Wednesday night.

Brady Anderson and Mike Devereaux led off the game with doubles, Cal Ripken hit a run-scoring single and Sam Horn hit his second home run this season.

Rick Sutcliffe (5-2) improved to 4-1 against Texas, allowing seven hits in seven innings. He took a four-hit shutout into the sixth before Rafael Palmeiro and Ruben Sierra hit consecutive home runs. Greg Olson got five outs for his seventh save.

Sweetwater and Big Spring will tangle in a one-game baseball playoff at Moffett Field Friday at 7:30 p.m. to determine District 3-4A seedings heading onto post-season play.

The Steers and Mustangs wound up tied for the loop crown at the end of the regular district season with identical 7-4-1 marks, including Tuesday's 4-3 Sweetwater win.

Sweetwater brings a 14-6-1 overall mark into Friday's contest while Big Spring carries a 12-13-1 slate.

The winner of Friday's game will meet the Lamesa-Dumas winner in the second round of Class 4A playoff action, while the loser faces the Frenship-Canyon Randall winner.

A steak lunch, provided by Benny Marricle, will be available for $5 at noon.

Skyline trophy buckles will be awarded the winners in each event and the combination roper in calf roping and team roping.

Ropers may enter at Brewster's Saddle Shed through Friday or at the roping, up to an hour before events begin.

Proceeds will benefit the WTC Rodeo Scholarship Fund.

Area schools choose new coaches

A pair of area high schools made their choices for new football coaches earlier this week.

Colorado City's Tom Ramsey will leave the Wolves to become head coach and athletic director at Levelland and Rotan hired Rockwall assistant coach Steve Warren to take over the Yellowhammers' grid fortunes.

Ramsey has posted a 99-64-5 record in 13 seasons at Colorado High, including last year's 3-6-1 mark.

He replaces Buster Leaf, who accepted a like position with Lubbock Monterey High School recently.

Levelland competes in District 2-4A, along with Snyder, Lamesa, Estacado, Frenship and newcomer Plainview.

Major projects in Texas included

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Armed Services Committee is using the threat of cuts in Pentagon spending to force Defense Secretary Dick Cheney to use money appropriated for the V-22 Osprey.

The $274 billion military budget approved Wednesday for fiscal 1993 included language to force Cheney to spend $1.7 billion appropriated by Congress to date for the experimental tilt-rotor.

Cheney, who has tried to cancel the V-22 for the past four years, contends the aircraft is "simply not affordable."

The committee, which authorized $755 million for the Osprey next year, approved language that would cut 5 percent from the budget of the Pentagon's comptroller until the V-22 funding is released.

"Congress is sending, not a shot across the bow, but a torpedo right into the secretary's ship, saying: 'We are tired of your playing games with the program,'" said Rep. Chet Edwards, D-Waco, a committee member.

One of the V-22's leading supporters took to the House floor Wednesday afternoon to decry Cheney's efforts to kill the Osprey despite strong congressional and Marine Corps support.

"It is unfortunate that we've reached the point in our dealings with Secretary Cheney that we were forced to put language in this bill that forces him to obey the law," said Rep. Pete Geren, D-Fort Worth.

The V-22, which takes off like a helicopter and flies like a plane, is being jointly developed by Bell Helicopter Textron in Fort Worth and Boeing Helicopters in Delaware County, Pa.

The budget approved Wednesday by the committee contains funding to keep one Texas production line open and save another program with Texas ties.

"Congress feels that generally we need to shift more of the defense pie to conventional weapons," Edwards said. "Because Texas does a lot of work in areas of conventional warfare, we did well."

Embattled shelter will not move

DALLAS (AP) — A youth shelter, under fire by Houston residents who say it attracts crime, has banned guns and drugs and makes its residents work to improve themselves, an official says.

Covenant House's operators have no plans to move from the city's Montrose area despite a lawsuit that contends they attracted crime-prone youth.

"We see ourselves as helping rather than hindering," Carolyn Larsen, director of Covenant House-Texas, told The Dallas Morning News in today's editions.

A man who was robbed and shot in 1990 by three Covenant House-Texas residents has filed a $10 million lawsuit. The youths, arrested with their gun inside Covenant House, pleaded guilty and are serving prison terms.

Shelter officials have declined to comment on the lawsuit by Joe Noffsinger, who was attacked in the garage of his town home two blocks from the $3.5 million, three-building facility.

The Rev. Bruce Ritter, founder of the New York-based chain of shelters for troubled youths, gave up the helm two years ago amid accusations he had sex with some male clients.

Donations have dropped nationwide, while the Texas operation shrank by 40 percent. The Houston shelter's operators have hired an Austin public affairs consultant to try to improve their image with the neighborhood.

Papers filed in the lawsuit against Covenant House-Texas contend it was grossly negligent in failing to control its clients.

"This is about taking back the neighborhood," said James T. Evans, a Montrose resident and lawyer for Neighbors of Covenant House Inc.

Satellite rescued; astronauts to rest extra day

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Endeavour's astronauts got ready for a record fourth spacewalk today as an epilogue to their six-handed catch of a huge communications satellite.

"It's another day, another EVA," Mission Control's Jeff Wisoff told the shuttle crew. EVA is NASA-speak for spacewalk.

"That's the type of game plan we like," replied shuttle commander Daniel Brandenstein.

The activity in the shuttle's cargo bay, scheduled to last from midafternoon into the evening, involved rehearsals for building a space station and for self-rescue methods by astronauts.

Three astronauts grabbed the satellite by hand in unison Wednesday, held it in place for 11/2 hours and spent several hours more attaching a rocket designed to lift it out of the uselessly low orbit in which it was stuck for two years.

The rocket was to be fired this afternoon when the shuttle was thousands of miles away. The Intelsat-6 satellite was to be sent to a working orbit 22,300 miles high.

Overnight, the crew was awakened by an alarm indicating a dip in their cabin pressure. Mission Control quickly determined it was caused by a valve that inadvertently had not been closed by the astronauts. The crew was not in any danger.

NASA today said Endeavour would remain in space until Saturday — for a total of nine days — to give the crew an extra day of rest. The landing at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif. landing strip was set for 4:57 p.m. EDT.

The mission had already been extended one day to accommodate the rescue effort after two failed earlier attempts, in which a single astronaut tried to snare the satellite with a 15-foot bar instead of his gloved hands.

Astronauts Kathryn Thornton and Tom Akers prepared for a fourth spacewalk today, a shuttle record, to test construction techniques for a space station.

Intelsat, the international communications consortium, said it expected to have the satellite's 120,000 telephone circuits up and running in time for the Olympics in July.

"I think we have seen some incredible work by some awfully brave men at NASA," said Irving Goldstein, Intelsat chief executive. "This means that we are out of the woods."

A miswired rocket had left the satellite in the wrong orbit. Wednesday's spacewalk — the first by three people — was the last chance for Endeavour to retrieve the satellite. The shuttle did not have enough fuel for a fourth try.

The astronauts risked puncturing their spacesuits, which could be fatal in the vacuum of space.

For officer in King case...

Prosecutor to seek new trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A judge will have the final say on a prosecutor's wish to retry one of the police officers charged in the beating of Rodney King and to hold the new trial in a city, not a suburb.

Meanwhile, four alleged gang members were to be arraigned today in the televised attack on a truck driver that occurred as riots erupted after the officers were acquitted on most of the charges.

District Attorney Ira Reiner said Damian Monroe "Football" Williams, 19, Henry Keith "Kiki" Watson, 27, and Antoine "Twan" Miller, 20, faced charges of attempted murder, aggravated mayhem, torture and second-degree robbery. Gary Williams, 33, faced one count of second-degree robbery.

The four black men were arrested Tuesday in the April 29 beating of white truck driver Reginald Denny. Authorities said they were affiliated with a street gang called the 8-Trey Gangster Crips.

On Wednesday night, a crowd from a gang unity march near the flash point of the rioting banged on sheriff's squad cars responding to disturbance calls.

About 300 law officers and National Guardsmen set up a command post and authorities cordoned off an eight-block area, but the crowd of about 200 people dispersed without additional incident. No injuries or arrests were reported.

The riots were touched off by a jury verdict acquitting three white officers of all charges in the beating of King, who is black, and acquitting Officer Laurence Powell of all but one charge.

The prosecutor also said he wanted the retrial to be held in Los Angeles County or some other urban area.

'Brady Bunch' patriarch dead at age 59

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Robert Reed, who trained as a Shakespearean actor only to gain fame as the father of TV's "The Brady Bunch," died of colon cancer at age 59, his family said.

He died Tuesday night at Huntington Memorial Hospital, said his daughter, Karen Baldwin. "He fought a very tough battle for about six months," she said.

Reed appeared in movies, on Broadway and in several TV shows, but was best known for his role as widower Mike Brady, the father of three boys, who married a widow, Carol, played by Florence Henderson, with three daughters.

"A few weeks ago, he asked me to call all the kids to tell them it didn't look good for him," said Miss Henderson. "We were all devastated. We cried. We are a family and we have lost our father."

"I loved him dearly and I'll miss him very much," said Maureen McCormick, who played the oldest daughter, Marcia.

It was a vintage American family show, where minor events as driving tests and jilted dates were the basis for entire episodes, but an uncomfortable role for Reed, who attended acting schools in London with Diana Rigg, Albert Finney and Peter O'Toole.

"We fought over the scripts," he said in a 1983 interview with The Associated Press. "Always over the scripts. The producer, Sherwood Schwartz, had done 'Gilligan's Island' ... Just gag lines. That would have been what 'The Brady Bunch' would have been if I hadn't protested."

The series made its debut Sept. 26, 1969, and was an ABC Friday night fixture until Aug. 30, 1974. It lives on in reruns.

A "Brady Bunch Hour" was broadcast briefly by ABC in 1977, with much of the original cast, including Reed. In 1990, CBS presented "The Bradys," which also featured Reed.

A stage version of "The Brady Bunch" has played in New York and is now playing in Los Angeles.

Barry Williams, who played big brother Greg, wrote in his new book "Growing Up Brady" that despite sticking with the role, Reed never really reconciled himself to the lowbrow sitcom format.

Reed, who was born in Highland Park, Ill, studied drama at Northwestern University and attended London's Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts and the University of London.

Study links body shape and family history of breast cancer

BOSTON (AP) — Women with so-called "apple-shaped" bodies and a family history of breast cancer appear to be at higher risk for the disease after menopause than "pear-shaped" women, a study published today concludes.

Experts have long noticed an association between obesity and breast cancer. The study, published in the New England Journal of Medicine, shows that body shape, not just weight, is also important.

The study also found that having a first child after age 30 was another especially important risk factor in women with a family history of the disease.

Most overweight women are pear-shaped, with large bottoms and thighs but relatively narrow waists. Some women, and most overweight men, are apple-shaped, with large stomachs and small behinds.

The new study found an especially strong association between apple shape — what doctors call a high waist-to-hip ratio — and the risk of breast cancer in women past menopause with a family history of the disease.

Among women with a family history of breast cancer, the risk of getting the disease was three times higher in those with apple shapes compared with those with pear shapes.

Among those without a family history, the risk of apple-shaped women was not significantly raised.

Dr. Thomas A. Sellers of the University of Minnesota, who directed the study, said it was the first to show a link between family history and body fat distribution.

While annual mammograms are recommended for all women after age 50, Sellers said health workers "might want to pay extra attention to women who had high waist-to-hip ratios and some of these other risk factors."

The study also found that among women with a family history of breast cancer, those who started their families late were six times more likely to get breast cancer than were those who had children before age 30.

For those without a family history of the disease, the risk was double among women having a first child after age 30.

The study was based on questionnaires completed by 41,837 women in Iowa in 1985. Among these women, 12 percent had a family history of breast cancer. During four years of follow-up, 493 of the women developed breast cancer.

15-year-old shot in school courtyard by fellow student

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A 15-year-old student at Huntsville Junior High was shot in the abdomen early today by another student after the two quarreled in a courtyard before school began, school officials said.

Dale Dixon, superintendent of the Huntsville Independent School District, said the injured student had been transferred to Huntsville Memorial Hospital where he was undergoing surgery this morning.

"Apparently there was a dispute between two students — one was 14 years old and one was 15 years old and both are in eighth grade," Dixon said. "This dispute had apparently developed yesterday afternoon off the school grounds."

Dixon said the 14-year-old brought a .32-caliber pistol to school today and the two resumed their argument while they waited for school to start. He said the 15-year-old was shot about 7:45 a.m.

School officials secured the weapon and the younger student was taken into juvenile custody, Dixon said.

He said officials did not immediately know what the two were arguing about.

The Huntsville School Board recently adopted a zero-tolerance policy for firearms on campus, which could lead to the younger boy's expulsion.

On The Issues

Financing the super collider

Editor's Note — The Associated Press asks the major presidential candidates their views on a particular issue each weekday.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are the views of the major presidential candidates on the question: "Do you support continued federal financing for the $8.25 billion atom-smashing superconducting super collider, which is expected to advance scientists' knowledge about the origins of the universe?"

DEMOCRATS

—Jerry Brown: "It is premature and the lack of full support shows it is not time to have this kind of research. The priorities of research that need attention require this project to be deferred."

—Bill Clinton: "I support the superconducting super collider."

REPUBLICANS

—George Bush: Bush is a strong supporter of the super collider, consistently requesting more money than Congress has appropriated for research and development since it began financing the project in fiscal 1990.

—Patrick Buchanan: A spokesman said Buchanan had no position on the issue.

Residents don't show excessive cancer rates

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Neighbors of the Pantex nuclear weapons assembly plant doubt a Texas Department of Health study showing their cancer rate is below the state average.

Jeri Osborne, a member of the group Panhandle Area Neighbors and Landowners which requested the study, says her data shows a high rate of cancer for residents in southwest Carson County, where Pantex is located.

She said she plans to seek a full copy of the study recently conducted by the health department and the names of cancer victims used in the study.

"At no time did I ever say that one of these cancers was the result of Pantex, but I do feel like there is certainly that possibility," Mrs. Osborne said. "I think the TDH went about it that they were going to prove that there was not a problem."

Pantex, which is 15 miles northeast of Amarillo, is the nation's final assembly point for nuclear weapons.

The study by the TDH, which was funded by a grant from the Department of Energy, noted cancer cases detected from 1980-1990 of those living in the southwest portion of Carson County.

The research showed 72 out of 18,914 men who lived in the area over the 11-year period contracted cancer. While 63 out of 19,561 women were diagnosed with cancer over the same time period.

"Based on the cancer incidence data, no significant excess of cancer exists in the southwest quadrant of Carson County," Tim Rainbolt, a DHS epidemiologist, wrote in a letter to Mrs. Osborne.

"The finding parallels a previous analysis, which showed the total cancer experience of Carson County to be lower than what would be expected based on the cancer mortality experience of the entire state of Texas," the letter said.

"I believed from the very beginning that they were going to give us the company line, and I believe that's what we got," Mrs. Osborne said.

Many area cancer victims may have since moved out of Carson County, said Mrs. Osborne, whose house is adjacent to the weapons plant.

"It is possible some of the people moved away that weren't included," Rainbolt said Wednesday. "And probably some who moved away never had cancer. It's practically impossible for us to track them down."

Energy Department spokesman Tom Walton said the study simply backs up previous findings.

"We've never had any toxins or radioactive materials seattered around the area off-site, so I think this verifies ... that we're still running a clean operation out here," Walton said.

The Environmental Protection Agency, citing a possible threat to the underlying Ogallala Aquifer, has proposed that Pantex be placed under the Superfund cleanup program because of waste practices.

Dear Abby

Couple's Love Is Sweet In the Ripeness of Life

DEAR ABBY: I am a 62-year-old retired lieutenant colonel in the U.S. Navy (female Navy nurse). The brother of a close friend recently lost his wife, so they invited me to dinner and brought a gentleman along. Al was a widower, and I had never been married. We hit it off right from the start and soon became a steady foursome. This happened in August, and by November Al and I knew we were in love. We were married in December. He is 68.

No sex, as he had prostate surgery and radiation, but I adore the man, and we give each other back rubs. I am kissed, hugged and told that I am loved more times a day than I can count. His hearing is poor — hearing aids don't help his kind of deafness — but Al doesn't need to hear to know that I love him.

For Valentine's Day, he bought me a white orchid corsage and took me to dinner. I will love this man and will care for him happily as long as the good Lord lets me. We love our God and each other, and I just wanted to share my good fortune with you because I consider you a friend.

BLESSED IN SAN DIEGO

DEAR BLESSED: What an "upper" your letter is! You are both blessed to have found each other. May God bless you for many years to come.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I went to the grocery store today and my purchases came to $8.21, so I gave the cashier one $5 bill, three $1 bills, a quarter and a penny.

The cashier looked puzzled. Then she said, "I have to give you something back, don't I? How much should it be?"

Abby, I had to tell her I wanted a nickel back. She said she was new on the job and wasn't used to making change. This is not the first time I've had to tell a cashier how much change to give me.

Some cash registers are so sophisticated nowadays, the cashiers don't have to know how to add 2 and 2. I mentioned this to the manager of a supermarket, and he told me that nobody has to know how to add and subtract anymore — there are machines that do it for you.

I am not against progress, but when a college graduate can't add a column of four figures without running for a calculator, there is something wrong.

I do volunteer work for the American Red Cross, and a fellow who works with me there is a graduate of a college in Iowa, and he asked me how many "j's" there are in "emergency"!

Little kids can't even tell time on an old-fashioned watch with numbers because most watches are digital now. I am 63 years old, but I think American technology has come too far too fast. I'm no old fogey, but I don't want a machine to do all my thinking for me.

What do you say, Abby?

'DOC' IN FARIBAULT, MINN.

DEAR 'DOC': Amen, brother.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: After seeing all those limericks in your column, I decided to send mine. I entered it in a limerick contest last year and won.

KATHRY LEON, SEATTLE

DEAR KATHRY: I begged my readers to stop sending limericks, but yours is irresistible ... so I'm sharing it:

Two elephants — Harry and Faye
Couldn't kiss with their trunks in the way,
So they boarded a plane,
They're now kissing in Maine
'Cause their trunks got sent to L.A.

Perot sought early exit from Navy

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Ross Perot sought help from Texas Sens. Lyndon Johnson and Price Daniel in 1955 in an unsuccessful effort to be released two years early from his Navy obligation, according to documents reviewed by The Associated Press.

Perot, who is readying an independent presidential bid, said he raised the question because the Korean conflict was over and he hoped to change a four-year pledge of service back to the original two-year commitment.

Johnson's presidential library in Austin and Daniel's Senate papers, stored in Liberty, east of Houston, yielded correspondence from Perot's father, a cotton broker from Texarkana, who appealed to the senators for help in getting the 25-year-old lieutenant off active duty.

"Ross has now served two years in the Navy and has sent in his resignation asking for release from active duty and transfer into the reserve," said a July 11, 1955, letter from Ross Perot Sr. to Daniel.

"Ross has definitely made up his mind that he does not wish to make the Navy his career and is very anxious to be released, serving in the reserve the number of years required," the letter said.

"Inasmuch as we are not in war at this time and the Navy is just training a young officer who desires to be released I was wondering if you could assist us in this matter through the Secretary of Navy."

A similar letter also appears to have gone to Johnson, who was then Senate majority leader.

A response from Johnson aide Arthur C. Perry, dated July 21, 1955, said: " ... with reference to your son who desires to be released from active duty in the Navy. I know how important this must be to him and, in the senator's absence, I am anxious to be as helpful as possible."

It added, "I'm sure you realize, however, that the Senator has no personal authority in matters of this kind, which are under the sole jurisdiction of the Navy. Nevertheless, I am immediately getting in touch with the proper Navy officials here in the Senator's name in an effort to see what might be done to help."

Perot did not return numerous telephone calls to take questions about the matter. His staff returned written answers to a list of questions from the AP.

That written response said Perot's inquiries stemmed from confusion about how many years the U.S. Naval Academy graduate was obligated to serve and that they don't tarnish his patriotic reputation.

Perot said that when he entered the academy, he signed an agreement to serve in the Navy for two years after his 1953 graduation. He said the Navy, however, extended that obligation to four years because of the Korean War.

"Perot raised the question in 1955 about whether or not his original obligation of two years was back in effect because the war was over," Perot's statement said.

Dr. Gott

By Peter M. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What can be done about pericarditis? I've been told I have it but don't understand what it is all about.

DEAR READER: Pericarditis, inflammation of the envelope surrounding the heart, has many causes, ranging from infection to autoimmune diseases and kidney failure. The affliction occurs after open-heart surgery and, occasionally, from heart attack. In many cases, no cause can be found, suggesting that viruses play a role.

Symptoms include chest pain, fever, cough, malaise, rapid pulse and weakness. With a stethoscope, a doctor can hear the characteristic sounds of the inflamed pericardium, a sequence of noises — called a "rub" — similar to the sound of rhythmically rubbing the fingers together.

The diagnosis is established by blood tests, a cardiogram (showing electrical changes in the heartbeat), an echocardiogram (revealing fluid between the heart muscle and the pericardium) and — sometimes — examination of this pericardial fluid.

Treatment depends on the cause. Antibiotics may be necessary, as may aspirin or cortisone. In instances where the cause is undetected, bed rest and general supportive measures are appropriate. Most patients recover uneventfully.

In rare instances, pericarditis can lead to scarring that causes a form of heart failure.

I suggest you return to your doctor and request a full explanation of your disease. You're entitled to this information. It's always more scary not knowing about a disease (and fearing the worst) than obtaining a description of what's going on and being able to deal with it rationally.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Help I — Physical Illness." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Can you provide information about pink eye? Is it true it can last up to two months? I suffer from glaucoma and wonder if it will make my condition worse.

DEAR READER: "Pink eye" (conjunctivitis) simply means inflammation of the white of the eye. In its most common form, acute conjunctivitis is a highly contagious, uncomfortable but relatively harmless eye infection that is most common during the spring and summer. It is usually treated with antibiotic eye drops.

Reddening of the eye is also seen in a wide variety of disorders, ranging from a speck of soot under the lid to vision-threatening glaucoma. In my opinion, anyone with conjunctivitis should see a physician or, if the inflammation is severe or chronic, an ophthalmologist.

I'm not so much concerned about whether your "pink eye" is affecting your glaucoma as whether the conjunctivitis and redness may represent a consequence of this serious eye disease in which a buildup of pressure within the fluid of the eyeball can lead to disastrous loss of vision. Make an appointment with your eye doctor.

Firms sold technology to Iran, Iraq

WASHINGTON (AP) — Iran, which may be trying to develop nuclear weapons, bought technology with potential military use from U.S. companies in recent years, documents show.

The U.S. government approved the exports even though the State Department steadily has labeled Iran a supporter of international terrorism.

Eleven of the companies also sold equipment to Iraq with U.S. permission, according to documents obtained by The Associated Press, and experts say the material ended up in Iraq's nuclear and missile programs.

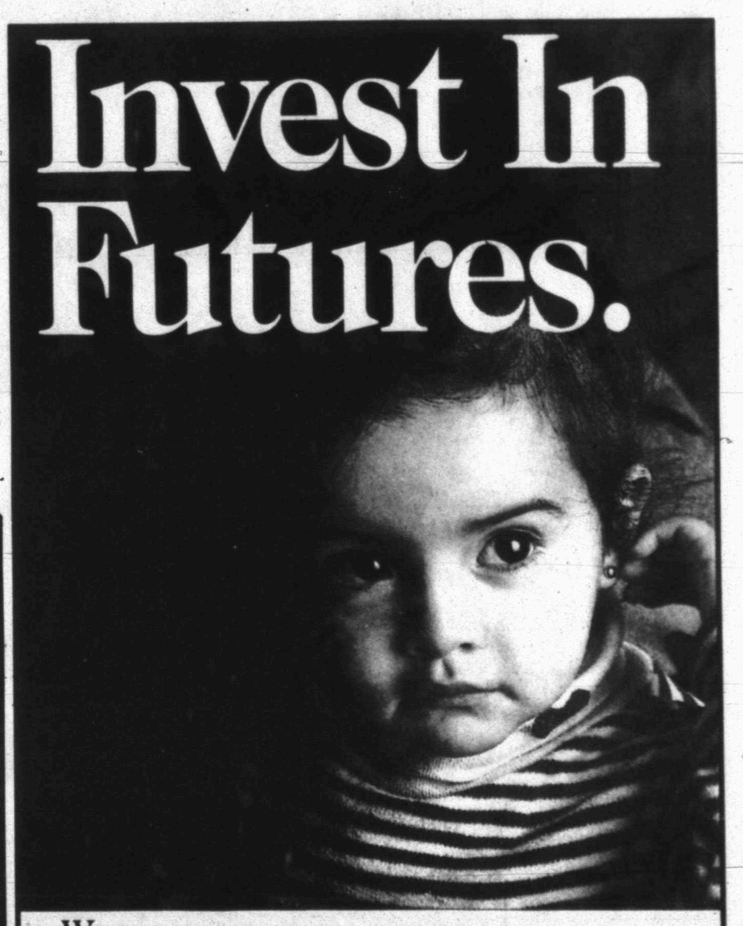

Government and private experts in this country say Iran is working hard to rebuild its military in hopes of becoming the dominant power in the Persian Gulf region. There are suspicions that Iran also is trying to develop nuclear weapons.

Honeywell Inc., Rockwell International Corp. and Siemens Corp. are among companies that legally sold $40 million in computers and other items with both civilian and military uses to Iraq and Iran. Some equipment was sold during the eight-year Iran-Iraq War, which ended in August 1988.
