

The Infantry Ain't What She Used To Be.....

By The AP Feature Service
Part of it isn't, at any rate. The Fort Warren, Wyo., regiment has been streamlined—and the army high command is watching closely this summer to see what it can do. The streamlining is getting its first widespread test, as the Fort Warren regiment makes a trek to Texas for maneuvers lasting until September 25. If its speed and efficiency are proved, the whole U. S. infantry may be streamlined.

Motors and trailers have replaced horses and mules. The regiment now can move up to 200 miles a day. Formerly, on foot, the men could cover about 20.

Fast-moving infantry cannot depend on slow-moving artillery to silence enemy artillery or machine-gun nests. So the streamlined regiment carries such equipment as:

Mortars: They throw a "high angle" projectile from behind the infantrymen, over their heads, into an enemy as much as a mile away.

Machine Guns: The squad carrying them moves right along with the infantry. There is also a "high angle" anti-aircraft gun and a special squad of anti-aircraft troops.

Jap Air Raids Draw Protest

SHANGHAI, Aug. 7 (AP)—British accused the Japanese today of making a premeditated attack on British interests in air raids yesterday at Ichang in which two British river steamers were destroyed with the death of four crewmen and injury to five and property of the Asiatic Petroleum company was damaged.

All the victims were Chinese except H. J. Denyer, a Canadian, who was reported in a grave condition from bomb fragment injuries. Ichang is more than 1,000 miles up the Yangtze river from Shanghai.

A strong British protest was lodged with Admiral Koshiro Oikawa, commander of the Japanese naval forces in China waters, who said he was referring it to army authorities because "no navy planes attacked Ichang yesterday."

A Japanese army spokesman said "we have no information. If it happened, it is a regrettable mistake." Furthering their drive to block the China coast, Japanese naval authorities announced they would close at 11 a. m. tomorrow the port of Haimen in Chekiang province, 250 miles south of Shanghai.

Foreign consuls here were notified and requested that their shipping and nationals withdraw from the port and vicinity which, the warning said, "is destined to become an area of hostilities."

Japanese disclaimed any responsibility for damage that may be suffered by third-power nationals or property in future operations. Consuls reserved comment but indicated their attitude was the same as on similar notifications in the past—that they would hold the Japanese responsible for any harm to foreign lives and property.

BUILDING-LOAN UNIT HAS GAIN IN ASSETS

Further increase in assets to $120,000 and the closing of $5,075 of new loans during July were noted Monday on the monthly report of the First Federal Savings and Loan association.

The loan total at the end of the month stood at $110,846 and cash on hand at $5,055. Total local share liability amounted to $77,572 locally and $38,000 to the government. Undivided profits totaled $2,500. Amount of share investment during July was listed at $7,068.

WOMAN IDENTIFIED

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug. 7 (AP)—Detective Chief Paul Rappert said today a 27-year-old woman drowned in a gravel pit here Friday had been identified as Nellie Blackmore, daughter of Sheriff H. G. Blackmore of Madison county.

Club Members Playing Pool

Closed since the first of the year, pool halls are reopening in Big Spring, but this time as private clubs.

Monday there were at least two establishments operating, but both posted notices that only those holding memberships in the club could play on the tables.

While the state law against pool tables precludes the selling or renting of a rental fee for cues for games, it does not touch upon tables maintained for club purposes. The local units have been set up to charge monthly dues, and to operate from this revenue.

One official commented that the arrangement was entirely legal but that a close watch was being maintained to see that the operators lived up to the law and did not charge any fee outside the membership.

JOHNSON AND SWOPE LEAD IN KENTUCKY

LOUISVILLE, Aug. 7 (AP)—Lieut. Gov. Keen Johnson, democrat, and Circuit Judge King Swope, republican, held to their leads for Kentucky's gubernatorial nominations as counting on ballots cast in Saturday's primary was resumed to day after a law-required Sunday recess.

Unofficial returns from 1,173 of 4,307 precincts gave Johnson, Richmond newspaper publisher, 55,882 votes to 73,928 for John Young Brown of Lexington, former U. S. representative, his nearest opponent.

In the republican race the Lexington judge defeated by Governor A. B. Chandler in 1935, had 25,141 votes to 17,213 for John Sherman Cooper, Somerset attorney, in 912 precincts unofficially tabulated.

CONGRESSIONAL RECESS SIGNALS THE START OF WORK TOWARD VARIOUS COMMITTEE PROBES

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (AP)—Adjournment of congress was the signal today for investigators and clerks to start on the groundwork for nine congressional inquiries for which $845,000 was appropriated.

About 40 congressmen will come back to the capital in the early fall for hearings on such things as un-American activities, the national labor relations board, banking, and the general economic condition of the country.

Others will travel to Alaska to inquire into the fisheries situation there, and one committee will hold hearings in California on how employers are treating labor.

FORMER GOVERNOR LECHE INDICTED

Europe Turns Attention To Maneuvers

Danzig-Polish Quarrel Eases; Outwardly Things Are Calm

By The Associated Press
European war machines were geared to a swifter pace for August maneuvers today but the continent's surface calm remained untroubled.

The Danzig-Polish quarrel, one of the most closely watched hotspots, seemed somewhat eased by Warsaw reports that authorities of the Free City had agreed to negotiate a customs dispute.

Word of the agreement came after a Krakow patriotic demonstration yesterday in which Marshal Edward Smigly-Rydz, commander-in-chief of the Polish army, replied to German demands for return of the free city by saying Danzig is "the lungs" of Poland's economic life.

Britain was keeping an alert eye on German and Italian military operations while she sent her own land, sea and air forces into two months of unprecedented peacetime maneuvers.

More than 1,300 Royal Air force planes prepared to start a mock air war over southeastern England tomorrow. On the following day King George VI is to review the reserve fleet prior to its joining the home fleet for joint maneuvers through most of September.

Foreign military attaches in Belgrade said more than 2,000,000 might be under arms by September 1 in southeastern Europe as the result of summer maneuvers in six gary.

Bm-countries—Rumania, Bulgaria, Hungary, Yugoslavia, Greece and Turkey.

Britain accused Japanese of making a premeditated attack on British interests near Ichang, a Yangtze river port about 450 miles above Hankow, in two Sunday air raids.

Four Chinese were killed and five others, one a Canadian, were injured in the raids which destroyed two British river steamers and damaged property of the British Asiatic Petroleum company.

Britain protested to the Japanese naval commander who declared his forces were not involved and turned the protest over to Japanese army authorities.

ONE DEAD AND TWO INJURED IN MISHAP

LUBBOCK, Aug. 7 (AP)—Marion Finis Ball, 21, ice cream plant employee here, is dead with a broken neck; Lucian Thomas, 22, Texas Technological college senior, is paralyzed with a broken back and Aubrey O. Smith, about 25, of Hobbs, N. M., is recovering from injuries received when the automobile owned and driven by Smith crashed from the highway near Littlefield Sunday afternoon, according to reports this morning at the offices of the state highway patrol.

Funeral for Ball is to be held in Hobbs, his former home, Tuesday afternoon. His wife and a small daughter survive.

The crash with Smith are in a Littlefield hospital. Thomas resides in Ft. Worth, Texas, but has been employed with the soil conservation service in Clovis this summer.

CANADIAN FREIGHTER STRIKES AN ICEBERG

BOSTON, Aug. 7 (AP)—The 503-foot Canadian Pacific Steamship Line's freighter Beaverhill, bound from Montreal to London, struck an iceberg early today off the north-east coast of Newfoundland, but several hours later she reported she was in no immediate danger and the coast guard said she was proceeding.

Laconic radio messages ashore gave few details of the accident and none to explain whether the Beaverhill had been badly damaged.

The liner Ausonia reported nearly five hours after the accident that the Beaverhill was proceeding slowly in dense fog and the Ausonia was standing by.

New Dealers Think Their Measures Will Be Adopted By 1940 Congress

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (AP)—A new struggle to swing popular opinion for or against unfinished items on the Roosevelt program was in the making today as members of the first $13,000,000,000 congress laid their record before the "house of folly."

Administration leaders took the attitude public reaction would force the 1940 congress to adopt most of the new deal measures shelved during the session which ended Saturday night.

Indications pointed to a record amount of political and legislative debate throughout the country before the final congress of President Roosevelt's second term meets in January.

The president, who will leave tonight for Hyde Park, N. Y., to study the last batch of congressional bills, may discuss the situation when he goes to the west coast in October.

He was represented by Senate Leader Barkley (D-Ky) as believing that when opposition congressmen have sounded out their constituents, they will modify their views on such measures as the neutrality and lending programs. The former was held over until next year, and the latter was killed by a bi-partisan coalition in the house.

After a Sunday luncheon conference at the White House, Barkley said the president did not intend to abandon his major legislative objectives. He expressed belief that on the whole Mr. Roosevelt seemed fairly well satisfied with the 1939 record.

In direct contrast with the administration view that the new deal forces would be more successful next year, Senator Austin (R-Vt) the acting minority leader, contended the anti-Roosevelt coalition would show even greater strength than in the last session.

Rep. Martin (R-Mass) the house republican leader who held his men firmly together throughout the session, said the new deal forces would be more successful next year, Senator Austin (R-Vt) the acting minority leader, contended the anti-Roosevelt coalition would show even greater strength than in the last session.

New Threat Of Auto Strike

DETROIT, Aug. 7 (AP)—A new strike threat loomed in the automobile industry today as a back-to-work march started in General Motors plants which had been affected by a walkout.

Local 100 of the CIO United Automobile Workers voted yesterday to authorize its officers to call a strike at the Packard Motor Car company if sanction is received from the union's international executive board.

There was uncertainty, however, whether the strike actually would be called.

"We took the strike vote not because we want to strike," said Curt Murdock, president of the local, "but to make sure we don't get another double-cross on the election. There won't be a strike unless the AFL concedes us out of the election or unless the Packard management refuses to consider our grievances."

Murdock referred to an election to determine whether the workers should be represented by the UAW-CIO or the AFL United Automobile Workers. He said the National Labor Relations board set the election tentatively for August 17.

C. E. Weiss, Packard industrial relations director, said the management would meet representatives of either union but could neither exclusive rights until their claims were settled by the election. Murdock said about 9,000 employees were engaged in producing 1940 model cars.

Chrysler, Hudson and Nash likewise are turning out new models and other producers are nearly ready for the changeover. Ford is the only manufacturer still building 1939 cars.

General Motors called back the first of 1,500 skilled workers whose strike was settled last week and the remainder are to report tomorrow, permitting completion of tools and dies for manufacturing 1940 cars.

Of Execution

AUSTIN, Aug. 7 (AP)—On the plea of the doomed man's mother, the state pardon board today recommended a seven-day stay of execution for Francis Marion Black, Jr., who had been scheduled to die early Wednesday.

Governor W. Lee O'Daniel granted the recommendation. Black, former student of the University of Kansas, was convicted of slaying Dale Noblitt, 13, by pushing him off a cliff near Alpine June 9, 1938. The state alleged he killed the boy in an attempt to collect $5,000 in insurance.

T. C. Andrews, pardon board member, said Mrs. Francis Marion Black, Sr., of Kincaid, Kan., and other petitioners for the clemency asserted they could supply "some more material facts in the case if granted a few days' time."

Andrews and Board Member Walter C. Strong said: "Only two members of the board are in Austin at this time and this being such an important case we think all three members should be present when the case is finally passed upon."

J. B. Keith, board chairman who spends most of his time at Huntsville, was expected here late this week or early next week.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 7 (AP)—Former Governor Richard Webster Leche, who left office just six weeks ago, was indicted by a federal grand jury here today along with Seymour Weiss, hotel owner and powerful political figure, on charges of violation of the Connally "hot oil" act in a transaction in which each allegedly received $67,000.

Economy Acts Directed At Roosevelt?

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (AP)—A bumptious congress, which rallied behind "economy" banners to kill President Roosevelt's lending program and which flouted the White House to vote more direct spending than asked, left impressed on this paradoxical record today these political questions:

How deeply threaded in the political fabric are demands for a real slash in government spending?

Was the fight against the administration lending bill in reality a "stop Roosevelt" movement, an effort to block presidential control of the next democratic convention?

The session just ended met after 1938 congressional elections had delivered the first setback in eight years of steadily mounting democratic majorities in the house. While those close to the White House stressed "local issues" and discussing the outcome, the republican gains also were interpreted by some as a drift away from such New Deal policies as government spending to bolster national income.

Whatever the true motives, when congress assembled in January, Roosevelt critics sounded a vocal keynote in terms of less spending and a balanced budget.

Mr. Roosevelt took up the challenge in his annual message. The president expressed the opinion it

The Plane And The Truck

One vital point in the modernization of armies was generally overlooked while the United States Army air corps last week celebrated the 30th anniversary of the purchase of its first airplane.

That is the fact that the modern army, as well as the modern airplane, is almost wholly dependent on the proper functioning of another means of transportation whose development has almost exactly paralleled that of aviation. That is the motor vehicle.

Someone pointed out a few days ago that the army acquired its first automobile in 1914, which was four years after it bought its first airplane from the Wright brothers. The next army purchase of motor vehicles was made in 1916, when three trucks were bought to facilitate General Pershing's pursuit of Pancho Villa.

From that point on the development of armies is just another angle to the story of the development of the automobile and its brood of accessories. Few of us stop to think that the automobile is coeval with the airplane. The two have grown up together. The automobile can get along without the airplane, but the airplane could not exist without the automobile; that is, it can't exist efficiently. Absence of motor transportation would slow the airplane to the pace of the horse and buggy, since the servicing of planes is the most important factor in their operation.

The modern army would be pretty helpless without either or both these swift-moving space-and-time annihilators. Together they are pretty apt to take the boys out of the trenches, for they will return warfare to the open type in vogue before Marston Lee built his trenches at Petersburg. The next war will be one of movement and quick thrusts, and it will be fought principally on gasoline.

It may change an old saying. In the next war, the Pates will be on the side of the biggest trucks, airplanes and gasoline supply.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

HOLLYWOOD—Everybody's being so wonderful to me—this is Leatrice Joy speaking—and it makes me so happy—makes me think the pleasure at my return might be mutual. I'm thrilled about it...it's wonderful to be working again....

It's been all of 10 years since the famous De-Mille star faced the cameras. In that time she has changed from slim and charming glamor girl to slim and charming matron. She's been being Mrs. W. S. Hook, society matron, and a mother to Leatrice Joy Gilbert, daughter of the late Jack Gilbert who was Miss Joy's first husband.

She still has both jobs. Mr. Hook, who is wealthy and owns a baker's supply business, is "very understanding" about her desire to work again, and Little Leatrice, well—

"She's 14 now. She'll be away at school. She's at that age now—you know, mother thinks she'll have a fine afternoon with daughter and she tells daughter so, and daughter looks a bit dismayed and says, 'Oh, mother, I'm so sorry, but I'd planned to go out with Mary and Sue today.' And mother smiles and says 'Of course, dear, that's fine. I have something else I can do—think nothing of it.'"

"Oh, I've been busy. Golf. I'm not very good at it—not a club champion like my friend Vilma Banks, but I like to play. And I've done a little painting. Portraits...But nothing quite takes the place of working in pictures."

"I started in my home town, New Orleans.... We did all kinds of pictures.... I went to Fort Lee, N. J., and worked some more, then came to Hollywood.... Got an interview with Mr. DeMille.... It's my favorite story.... I went into his office, where there was a great animal-skin rug near the door.... I stepped over it, not on it—and I think it impressed Mr. DeMille.... He decided I was a lady, because a lady would step over, not on! And he gave me a test, and I was.... Things have changed so much since then, in those 10 years.... The sound is better, the film and lighting are so much better.... And 'natural' acting is possible—in the old days, because we couldn't talk, we had to act and act with our faces."

"Not long ago I was visiting Zasu Pitts who was working at RKO.... May Robson was there, and we were talking about the fun of working.... They said, 'Why don't you try it again?' and I said 'I'd love to—but how?' And May said she'd tell her agent, and he called me, and a month later—to my surprise and delight—here I am working. I'm playing Deanna Durbin's flighty, astrology-minded aunt in 'First Love.'"

"Cigarettes? No, thanks. I never have. Not that I disapprove, it's just that I never liked them, always felt awkward. I used to watch Gloria Swanson with envy—the way she held a cigarette, the way the smoke curled so gracefully around her head. There was a real glamor girl! I've got to get back to work. To work! Isn't it marvelous—to have to get back to a movie set!"

Scientists say that 100,000 years ago men were chinless. In case of any argument, however, they carried chins—Cincinnati Inquirer.

Chapter 15
MYSTERY MAN

"I must tell you about how I learned to make an Italian salad," Locke said. "It was in Venice—the Lockes were dogs, of course—and I used to putter around in the kitchens, a floor below the canals and very convenient, too. Many a cabbage did I look at as it floated past our kitchen window. Have you ever been to Venice?"

"Yes, I have, and nary a cabbage did I see floating in the canals. You must have been very lucky that day you caught a cabbage."

"Well, maybe you have to be Irish to sense those things," he answered readily. "Where was I?"

"In the kitchen under the canal."

"Not under it, Cecily. How would you expect me to fish unless I were on a level with it?"

Cecily sighed. "I don't expect you to do anything that makes sense."

"Good! That's the best start I've ever made with a girl."

Cecily thought: This is the most insane conversation—but please don't stop.

"You don't mind if I make a start, do you?"

Cecily felt the quick flush that rose to her cheek. The nearest she had ever come to conversation of this sort was the night that Ted Pryor had asked her to marry him. And that brief conversation could hardly have been called light banter. She didn't know what to say.

She said, "I'd like another cup of coffee, would you?"

He gave her a quick glance and said he'd make it.

"If I remember, you said that you learned to make coffee on the desert?"

"Did I? I thought it was when I was a beach-comber," he replied glibly.

"When you run out of a story-book background, would you tell me what you really do? There! She had started asking him questions again and she really hadn't meant to!

It didn't really make any difference. No matter what she said Locke was not for answering her seriously.

"Do you mean how do I live in this workaday world? I'll tell you. I get along on very little, earning a few cents here, a few cents there. Just enough to get around and see what's going on in the world. Why, only yesterday I sold a mess of fish to Mrs. Arnold down the road. Made a pretty penny, too. May take fishing up seriously."

"It's nice work," Cecily felt unreasonably aggravated by the results of her probing.

"I say!" He got up and walked toward her window. "You've got just the place for it!"

"For what?"

"You could put a partition up here, cover it with glass and floor it with salt ice."

Cecily watched him, amused.

"It would attract attention to the books and bring the curious."

"Whatever are you talking about?"

"The window. Make a great display case and add a little life to the place to see it filled with a few fish. We might catch only the ones that matched the color scheme here."

"Fish in the window!"

"Certainly. I'm offering you a partnership. How about it? I'll catch the fish and you'll sell 'em. Would you like to see it?"

Cecily's lips parted and her eyes glowed.

"Yes," she said softly.

"Sunday?"

"Great! No high heels and no powder puffs. We'll adventure life in the raw, in a manner of speaking. Got a good stout pair of boots?"

"Yes, and a warm sweater."

"I see. You've experienced such a great adventure before?"

"Not like this one," she said truthfully.

"We shall see," he answered.

"Now, then, all else that you will need is a good appetite a long stride and a stout walking stick."

"For walking or protection?"

"Only for walking," he said reassuringly and Cecily felt embarrassed.

She hastened on. "What time will you come for me?"

"I'm not coming to Dareles," he said. "I'll meet you at the fork leading to the North road at three o'clock. On?"

"Why won't you come to Dareles?"

He looked away from her her face setting. Then he looked back and he was grinning. "Have you forgotten the posse?"

Locke left Cecily at the gates of Dareles. He stood in the shadows until he saw the big door open to let her in. If she could have seen his face then she would have seen that the bantering light had left his eyes that the lines beside his laughing mouth were set resolutely.

He lingered there for a few minutes. Then—when the door had closed behind her—noisily, with an Indian tread, he entered the gates. His feet made no sound on the pebble path. He left the path where it turned toward the porch and swung around to the side of the house. Toward the side where the long drawing-room windows showed a slant of light be-

Washington Daybook

WASHINGTON—In its program for organizing the building trades workers, C.I.O. is steering clear of any discussion of the annual wage scheme, which involves lower pay per hour but higher pay per year.

"We haven't gone far enough along the road for that," said Denny Lewis, younger brother of John L. Lewis. John L. put Denny in charge of organizing the building trades workers along industrial lines. Now they are mostly under A. F. of L. organized by trades.

We went over to see Denny in his office in the national headquarters of the United Mine Workers. It used to be the exclusive University club and still looks like it. The patrons are different, though. No University club with a full quota of ex-football players ever housed such big men. Labor leaders don't come in pocket sizes. They come in 200-pound jobs.

Denny and Brother John are no exceptions. Both are big. Denny looks like John, with a large head and a larger head of hair. His face is not so rough cut as John's.

We hadn't been in the building two minutes until we discovered dignity is being added to Denny. The staff calls him A. D. Lewis. Denny sounds a bit familiar, you must admit. Denny is a more genial sort than John L. He laughs with you when he talks. He laughs occasionally into the telephone. When John smiles it is newsworthy.

IN GOVERNMENT TRUCE

Denny cut about the same path for himself up through the labor movement as did John, starting in the Iowa coal mines at 16 and following the union trail upward. He stepped into government once in Illinois in 1930 to hold a job in the Department of Labor under "Puddler" Jim Davis, staunch Hoover Republican, now senator from Pennsylvania. He became an assistant to Brother John L., when the New Deal moved in in 1933.

While we talked, a steam triphammer was driving foundation pilings for an office building close by. We shouted questions. He shouted replies. Sometimes the triphammer would pause suddenly for a "breather" while one of our untripped shouts roared along a corridor leading from his office.

"Right out on that building," he said, waving a hand toward the triphammer, "eighteen A.F. of L. building trades unions will be working before it is completed. C.I.O. wants to organize them all into one union and end jurisdictional disputes."

Theoretically, an A.F. of L. concrete pourer can't sharpen a peg to plug a leak in a form. He must call a carpenter. If he does it himself without calling the carpenter, the carpenters may raise a jurisdictional issue, and possibly strike. As Denny explained the C.I.O. system, the concrete pourer could put in the peg but would have to insist on the carpenter's rate of pay while he did it.

A LITTLE LATER

But we were curious about C.I.O. views on this annual wage business. Many persons have held the idea that if building trades workers would accept an annual wage rate and do more work per year at less hourly pay, they would contribute toward a building revival. This is the idea: A carpenter gets $12 a day. But, labor statistics indicate, he works, on an average, only enough to bring in $1200 a year. That is about five months' work.

If an employer would guarantee him 10 months work at $8 a day, he would receive about $1700. A.F. of L. has been suspicious that the main result of the scheme would be to cut wages to $8 a day and the yearly guarantee would go up the chimney.

Denny indicates C.I.O. feels about the same way on that. He said he would look a long time at the contract and at the contractor before agreeing.

"We may look into that," he said, "when we have gone farther along the road."

Man About Manhattan

NEW YORK—At all hours of the day and night people drift through the high, massive doors of St. Patrick's Cathedral, on Fifth avenue. It is the most beautiful church I ever saw. I am no student of architecture, but it does not take one to know that here against the background of Rockefeller Center is the most impressive contrast in schools of architecture that exists in New York.

The contrast is so vivid, so stunning, that I always think of that line from Robert Louis Stevenson—"A sprig of parsley against a silver plate"—whenever I come upon it.

I imagine the Cathedral itself is 50 feet from the curb. You rise to it by two flights of marble steps that extend to the vaulted Gothic doors. Inside all sense of space dissolves into an infinity of gorgeously stained windows, chapels, pews, and altars.

Its spires are 330 feet high. From Fifth avenue to Madison avenue, the Cathedral is 420 feet long. It is more than 200 feet wide. Its doors are 15 feet high and 15 feet wide. It has been called "the outstanding monument of Romanticism in the country."

On the left, as you enter the Cathedral, is the Book Rack, where pamphlets and other forms of literature on the creed and customs of Catholicism may be found. Then you come to the Window of St. Vincent De Paul, founder of the Fathers of the Mission, who died in 1660. All of these magnificent windows are dedicated to the memory of great figures in the history of the Catholic Church. The Window of St. Elizabeth of Hungary, St. Andrew the Apostle and St. Catherine of Alexandria, reveals Catherine leaning on a wheel, the instrument with which she was tortured, before she was beheaded, in 305. The Queen-Saint has a basket of roses that were loaves which she distributed to the poor.

Another impressive window is that of St. Henry, the German Emperor, shown in a counter-attack on those who drew priests and pillaged the church.

The title-window of the Church, St. Patrick's, portrays scenes from St. Patrick's life, concluding with his death and entry into Heaven. This window is said to have cost $11,500. To recount these windows is to weave a history of the heroes of the Catholic Church.

In the Cathedral, too, is the Crypt, where lie the remains of the prelate-rulers of the Archdiocese of New York. Among these is Archbishop Hughes, founder of St. Patrick's. The Crypt is guarded by bronze doors and contains 48 vaults. The occupied vaults are sealed and on them are the names of their occupants.

Almost every hour of the day you will see artists on Fifth avenue, sketching the imposing magnificence of this edifice. It is a thing of beauty for hundreds of thousands of Protestants and Catholics and Jews as they walk the street and gaze upon its high arched domes, its twin spires, its reminder of the "universality and continuity of Christian Civilization."

One trouble with this country may be that so often the voice of the people can't speak above a whispering campaign.—Worcester Gazette.

Feller, Harder Stifle Heavy Bats Of Foe

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer
Word has been getting around that the world champion New York Yankees are just another ball club against good pitching. Sometimes this is like saying what the country needs is a good five cent cigar. You've still got to find the cigar.

But the record shows the Yankees and the good pitching have found each other fairly frequently of late and a crowd of 76,753 at Yankee Stadium yesterday can attest the rumors are true.

Bobby Feller and Mel Harder rattled the entire corps of famous sluggers to a total of nine hits in two games and brought the Cleveland Indians 5-4 and 7-1 victories.

The feat gave New York, which earlier in the campaign sported a record in winning four out of every five games against all opposition at home and abroad, a show-off of seven victories and five defeats during its latest 12-game stand against the western clubs.

Good hurling was the order of the day all around the major league front.

The National league leaders, Cincinnati's Reds, were shut out 5-0, by Luke Hamlin of the Brooklyn Dodgers in the first game of a doubleheader. The Reds reversed the tables in the nightcap to win 8-6.

The second place St. Louis Cardinals won their eighth and ninth consecutive games, 11-0 and 8-3, with the Phillies as victims.

Hal Schumacher and Cliff Melton combined to hold the Pittsburgh Pirates to six hits as the New York Giants took the first half of their double bill, 9-5, and in turn were blanked, 6-0, by the five-hit pitching of Bob Klinger in the second.

A 12th inning home run by Max West broke a five-game losing streak for the Boston Bees with a 4-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Freddie Hutchinson, much-publicized rookie right-hander, whipped the Boston Red Sox, 10-1, on six hits in one game of a doubleheader but his Detroit Tiger teammates were handcuffed, 8-3, by the seven-hit hurling of Jack Wilson in the nightcap.

Jimmie Fox, first baseman and last year's leading hitter in the American league, pitched the ninth inning of the first game for the Red Sox and did better than any of the regular staff.

The St. Louis Browns and Philadelphia Athletics brightened their cellar struggle with fireworks and this proved what the Browns needed to win both games of a double bill 11-4 and 8-6.

Acting Manager Earl Mack, Coach Charles Berry and First Baseman Dick Siebert of the Athletics were expelled at various stages of the proceedings and fans, much disturbed at it all, showered pop bottles on Umpire Steve Basil.

Washington's winning streak was extended to seven straight with a 4-3 triumph over the Chicago White Sox when Ted Lyons, usually calm and collected, became upset at three successive bunts in the ninth inning and threw into right field, letting in the winning run.

Wilson Stars At Bat; Rally In Ninth

Johnny Tyko Is Victim; Pat Patterson Tosses Tonight

BORGER, Aug. 7 (AP)—The Big Spring Barons continued to show contemptuous disregard for right handed pitching by shelling out a 9-5 victory over Johnny Tyko and the Borger Gassers here Sunday afternoon. It was their seventh straight win.

The Regemon couldn't get started against the Ochsens' slants for seven innings but found the range by the eighth and by the ninth were pounding him heartlessly.

Sparked by Red Wilson, new left gardener who drove in three runs with a triple and double, the Big Springers exploded a four-run rebellion in Tyko's face in the ninth after tying the score in the round before.

Edson Bahr started on the hill for the Barons but was wild and gave way to Will Ramsdell in the second after giving up all the enemy runs. Ramsdell pitched scoreless ball through the last seven innings.

Mack Short had a homer for the Gassers. Of the six other hits the Barons collected off the Big Spring pitchers, Spencer and Bell had two each.

Tex Walton had a triple along with a single while Pat Stacey contributed to the Barons attack with a double and single.

Pat Patterson was slated to toss for the Big Springers in the second game of the series tonight.

OILERS TRIPPED BY PALESTINE

By the Associated Press
Palestine stepped on the toes of the East Texas league leaders, the Henderson Oilers, 7 to 1, yesterday while second-place Kilgore was splitting a double engagement with Tyler.

Palestine collected eleven safeties off Stephens for the win. Bill Robertson's six-hit pitching led Tyler to a first-game victory, 5 to 2. Kilgore took the second, 10 to 2, as Ernie Jefferson held Tyler to 7 safe hits.

Ray Sparr singled Dave Short home in the tenth to give Longview a 5-4 win over Marshall and Tarkenton hit Len Frazer for 12 safeties to down Jacksonville, 7 to 5.

Using more than 45 of the best high school senior gridlers of the state on a gridiron blackboard, they officially opened the meet with a blocking and running lecture by "Bo" McMillin, Indiana University coach, and one of the best athletes ever turned out of Texas.

Then they left the practice field and listened to a blackboard lecture by Raymond "Bear" Wolfe, another Texas coach who now is head mentor at North Carolina University.

The coaches face a busy week of football and fun, with the climax of the school to be the football game in Rice stadium Saturday night, when the North Texas all stars, coached by McMillin, and the South Texas all stars, tutored by Wolf, clash in their annual game.

A crowd of more than 15,000 is scheduled to turn out for the tilt, first night game ever played in Rice stadium.

Aside from the Texas coaches, there were several here from out of state and others here due before the school closed. Frank Holt of San Luis Obispo, Calif., Joe Debelly of Turlock, Calif., H. C. Sullivan of Chicago, George Grant of Fordyce, Ark., and A. L. Swanson of Baton Rouge, La., were among the out of state men here.

Jamenson In Field
DETROIT, Aug. 7 (AP)—A six-day bombardment of the Oakland Hills country club course got under way today as more than 100 female golfers from 12 states set out in quest of the women's western closed championship.

The contestants were shooting for the title held by Patty Berg, who took the championship at Chicago last year. Patty herself, was not present, a recent operation forcing her to forego defense of her crown.

Favorite in the field was Edith Estabrook, 16-year-old Dubuque, Ia., schoolgirl, who lost to Miss Berg 4 and 3 in last year's 36-hole final.

Other prominent entrants included Betty Jamenson of Dallas, Tex., former women's Trans-Mississippi champion.

Briton Back On Game After A Long Illness

NEW YORK, Aug. 7 (AP)—Recovered from an illness that kept her off the links for a year and once more back at the top of her game, England's Pamela Barton is here to scrap for women golfers in the national championship at Noroton, Conn., Aug. 21-26.

When she got in last night Pam said she was "full of hope," which is a very optimistic statement for her to make and should constitute fair warning to our girls to polish up their games. For Pam is a golf invasion all by herself.

Still only 22, the stocky British girl was the "kid wonder" of women's international golf back before Patty Berg began getting her freckles in the rotogravure sections. Pam won the French championship when she was 17, and in 1936, at 19, captured both the British and American titles.

There wasn't a woman capable of matching her game at that time, and it looked like her reign would be a long one. But her fine touch deserted her the next year. After losing in an early round of the 1937 British championships, she announced that illness would prevent her playing in 1938, and in England they feared she was through.

She was plagued by a lengthy dispute with British golf officials because of her literary efforts. All that, that evidently has been straightened out, for she recently came back to win the British title again after a lapse of two years. They say her golf is better than ever.

There is no assurance Patty will defend the title she won last year. The Minneapolis marvel underwent an operation for appendicitis less than three weeks ago, and both her father and her mother are said to want her to stay home.

Still, there will be plenty of competition for Pamela. She will find Dorothy Kirby, Marian Miley, Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page, Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, Mrs. Opal Hill and the others capable of keeping her fully occupied.

Falkner Loses To Dub Elrod

Avery Falkner's bid for the eighth ranking slot on the ladder of the Big Spring Tennis association was repelled by J. W. Elrod Sunday afternoon on the city park courts.

Elrod, who is seeded eighth and who defeated Falkner for that post a week ago, turned the trick again, 6-3, 6-2.

Elrod also played a practice match with George Tillinghast, No. 1 netter, winning a first set, 6-2, and losing a second, 6-8.

Bisons Within Game Of Texas League Lead

With the aid of the Shreveport Sports, the Houston Buffs have climbed to within one game of the Texas League leading San Antonio Missions.

The Buffs defeated Beaumont yesterday, 10 to 1, while the Sports administered a double trimming to the Padres, 7-5, 6-5. Houston gained one and one-half games in the standings.

The Sports, Dallas Rebels and Fort Worth Cats remained in a tie for third place, the Rebels trimming Tulsa, 4-3, 5-2 and Cats taking the Oklahoma City Indians, 8-3, 1-0.

Crime Drive Is Underway

NEW YORK, Aug. 7 (AP)—The nation's greatest assault on organized crime, delving into underworld terrorism in half a dozen major cities, opened today with presentation of a 500,000-word "encyclopedia of crime" before a special federal grand jury.

Thirty patrolmen were assigned to guard witnesses in the sweeping investigation.

Dominated by the shadowy figure of Louis "Lepke" Buchalter, 42, Manhattan racketeer and will-o'-wisp target of an intensive "dead or alive" manhunt, the inquiry was described by Attorney General Frank Murphy as the outgrowth of secret, concerted action by federal agents for several months.

Simultaneous offensives, Murphy said, will be launched in Chicago, New Orleans, Boston and other key centers.

"One of the major objectives will be to get at corruption and crime in politics," the attorney general added.

Although U. S. Attorney John T. Cahill, directing the nationwide anti-crime war through a central "clearing house" here, said the inquiry was "broader than any case of crime," it was known that the grand jury would quickly direct its attention to the Buchalter case.

A fugitive for two years, sought both in this country and abroad at a cost of $250,000 a year, "Lepke" is wanted as the alleged master mind in narcotics operations, in various industrial rackets and in a series of mouth-silencing murders of witnesses against him.

Farm Price Bolstering To Continue

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (AP)—Administration farm officials went ahead today with plans to maintain artificial props under prices of major agricultural products after congress, in one of its final acts, voted $119,000,000 to restore capital stock of the Commodity Credit Corporation.

The appropriation gave the agency about $250,000,000 for loans to farmers on surpluses of wheat, corn, cotton, wool, dairy and other farm products withheld from markets until prices improve.

Officials explain such loans, made at rates in excess of market prices, as a way to "hold" and maintain prices above what they otherwise would be.

The corporation expects to use about $100,000,000 for wheat loans and about the same amount for corn. The balance will be held for the other commodities.

With corn selling as low as 20 cents a bushel in local markets in the midwest, the government plans to offer loans at between 55 and 57 cents a bushel. It also is offering farmers 7 cents a bushel to keep 257,000 bushels of old corn stored under loans for another year.

When loans expire, farmers have the privilege of paying them off and reclaiming their stored crops, or of surrendering the crops as full payment of their obligations.

MOTHER, 14, WOULD LIKE TO HAVE DOLL

PENNSBORO, W. Va., Aug. 7 (AP)—A 14-year-old mother cuddled her new-born second child today at her hill cabin home near here, but sighed wistfully for a doll because she has never had one.

The blond, blue-eyed wife of 23-year-old John Stackhouse gave birth to an eight-pound daughter last Thursday, with only her mother attending her.

Her first child was born in July 1935, but died a month later.

She and her husband live in a three-room shack on her father's farm, where she has spent all her life except for a trip into Pennsylvania to marry Stackhouse when she was 13.

She proudly exhibited her daughter to visitors but expressed hope someday she might have a doll, too.

New Dealers

out the season, issued a statement saying the minority had "substantially redeemed" its 1938 pledges to "check one-man government, stop rubber-stamp legislation, and restore constitutional processes in national administration."

Martin listed 14 accomplishments which he said testified to sincere republican cooperation with the real democrats in the fight to save America from the "new deal."

They were: a "beginning to ward economy, rejection of the lending program and of an increase in the national debt limit, defeat of efforts to 'pledge American involvement in European power politics,' tax revision, social security revision, limitation of 'subsidized government competition with private enterprise,' passage of the Hatch bill, 'expulsion of politics in the WPA, curbs on alien communism and fascism, retention of a congressional check on government reorganization, investigation of the labor board, a house republican survey on the president's emergency powers, attempts to return monetary powers to congress, and advocacy of a congressional inquiry into the reciprocal trade program."

Senator Barkley, on the other hand, described as major administration accomplishments passage of the government reorganization bill, extension of the president's monetary powers, adoption of the defense program, additional farm aid legislation, and revision of the tax structure, including postponement of scheduled increases in old age insurance taxes.

Economy

would be "unsafe to make abrupt reductions at any time in our net expenditure program."

Mr. Roosevelt's advocacy of maintaining government activities to help develop $50,000,000 national income intensified demands of the less-developed regions for sizable reductions in funds asked by the president. Quickly, those urging "economy" centered their fight on relief money for WPA.

The outcome was that congress cut $50,000,000 from Mr. Roosevelt's requests for WPA funds during the session. But there was little trimming elsewhere.

Record national defense appropriations were through with only a slight ripple. The usual $4.5 billion for ordinary government expenses was passed with minor changes; such big fixed appropriations as interest on the national debt could not be trimmed; the customary hundreds of millions for veterans pensions were not questioned, and the social security program was expanded rather than contracted.

When agricultural appropriations were reached, the farmer once again demonstrated his political power, and "economy" became a mere whisper. The AAA was voted about $300,000,000 more than the president asked for his farm program.

The session's net result was appropriations exceeding $12,000,000,000—a pennant high.

Mrs. E. E. Gay had as her guests during the weekend Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Olds of Abilene.

Leche

the understanding Burford was to pay Leche and Weiss ten cents per barrel for all "produced under said illegal orders."

Additionally Weiss was charged with another indictment with evading payment of income taxes for 1936, and he and Louis C. Leache, suspended assistant to the president of the Standard Oil company of Louisiana, were named in a third indictment as conspiring together to violate the income tax laws.

Weiss and Leache had been previously indicted on mail fraud charges.

Leche allegedly received his money in 67 $1,000 bills.

The indictment related Weiss and Leche were parties to an agreement by which Burford paid a 50-mile pipeline from the Rodessa, La., oil field near Shreveport to East Texas, and the Pelican Oil company given a daily allowable increase from 5,000 barrels to 50,000 barrels for the state conservation department.

The government alleged the East Texas Refining company agreed to take 1,000,000 barrels of the "hot oil," but that only 450,000 barrels were actually shipped on which commissions of $48,800 were paid Weiss for distribution.

The pipeline, which cost $490,000, then was sold for a reputed price of $900,000 and $100,000 paid Weiss as a commission.

After payment of $14,800 as attorneys fees, the government alleges Leche and Weiss split the remaining $134,000 in equal shares.

The indictment was handed down in federal court at 11:25 a. m. by a jury which has worked more than five weeks investigating charges ranging from hot oil law infractions to jury tampering and election fraud. The federal bureau of investigation now is inquiring into charges witnesses before the body have been intimidated through increased property assessments.

Gripped with arthritis since January, Leche gave ill health as the reason when he resigned June 24, one day after resignation and disappearance of Dr. James Monroe Smith, former president of Louisiana State university, whose alleged manipulations with school funds plunged the state into the far reaching federal investigations.

The infraction allegedly occurred between March 24, 1936, and July 31, 1937.

Named as co-conspirators, but indicted today were the East Texas Pipe Line company, Martin B. Winfrey, an attorney, Dillard Estes A. C. Glaswell, and the Pelican Oil and Gasoline company, Inc.

Leche, Weiss, Burford and the refining company were named on sixteen counts, in one of which it is alleged the conspirators "did produce and induce one Robert S. Maestri, as commissioner of conservation" to sign an order dated May 15, 1936, which remained in effect for thirty days.

Another count of the indictment alleged Leche "did receive from the said defendant Seymour Weiss a large sum of money in the total amount of, to-wit, $67,000, in currency of the United States, to-wit, sixty-seven one thousand dollar bills, as his share of the illicit gains and profits of said conspiracy."

Another Resigns LSU Supervisors' Board

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 7 (AP)—Resignation of A. Miles Pratt resigned States college of customers at New Orleans, from the board of supervisors of Louisiana State University, was announced today by Governor Earl K. Long.

Pratt cited a state constitutional provision prohibiting federal officers from holding positions with the state and said his attorney had informed him there was doubt of his eligibility to serve on the L.S.U. board while holding the customs position.

"Under the circumstances," he said in his letter to the governor dated Aug. 5, "I feel I should not continue to serve as a member of the board and therefore tender you herewith my resignation effective this date."

Long issued a statement on the resignation in which he praised Pratt as "sound and public spirited" and "against wrong doing."

and a free man as long as I live." Mr. Garner said he would not go fishing the first day of his stay in Uvalde, where, Washington sources said, he will conduct a "front porch" campaign for the democratic presidential nomination.

"I'm going to sit around home the first day, and then get out as quickly as I can. I'm going to go out on the river, get full of chiggers and feel natural once more."

The vice president said he had been "fabbering" in Washington since December 26, "so you know I'm glad to get back to Texas."

between the drawn curtains. Unobserved, he peered into the room that Cecily had entered, then quietly faded into the night.

Cecily sank into a chair. "Well," Philip inquired brightly, "how did the party come off without my scintillating presence?"

"It wasn't a party," Cecily returned. "It was strictly a business arrangement and it was quite a success."

"Olivia"—Philip appealed to his hostess by the name she had insisted upon—"what am I going to do with my little career woman? Do you suppose when we're married that she's going to take her work seriously?"

Under his lids, he flashed a mocking glance at Cecily. Cecily wanted to slap him.

"You know Cecily better than I do, Philip," Olivia answered. "You must know that she is not the flip pant type. I trust that you'll be able to handle that situation when the time comes."

A lot he knows me! Cecily thought would have heard Philip not to mention Olivia—had she known what was passing through her mind.

She thought: Every day this situation gets more difficult. I ought to speak to Aunt Olivia, but if I do, I'll only make her unhappy. It would sound so terribly silly of me to have done such a thing as to lie about Philip.

SCHOOL BUILDING IS DESTROYED BY FIRE

CAMERON, Aug. 7 (AP)—Officials today sought the cause of the fire which destroyed the $70,000 rural school building in the Sharp community a day after it was completed.

The blaze was discovered yesterday at 3:30 p. m. The Cameron fire department arrived soon afterward at the community 16 miles southwest of here but lacked water with which to fight the blaze.

Architect J. E. Johnson said insurance covered part of the loss.

MISS LANCENOTES

By Mary Whaley

Green, purple, and gold, it appeared across the sky after the storm and stretching from one horizon to another, it seemed to carry the promise of the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow.

The sky from overcast gray had changed to brilliant blue dusted with a few drifts of smoky clouds. The storm was over but the clouds were sulky still and only the rainbow stood out clear in the background of the blue and gray.

A second rainbow, as if in an attempt to rival the first, rose half way beside the splendor of the other and then in evident despair, disappeared in the sky. Beneath the glory of the sky, man-made miracles of progress seemed drab and colorless. They were puny-sized structures compared with nature's handwork splashed across the heavens.

Too soon it faded and the breathtaking colors were obscured to leave an everyday picture in its place. But the sight of nature's calling card following the thunder, lightning and rain, a riot of color stretched in a narrow ribbon across a great expanse of sky, remained in one's mind to challenge the thoughts of man and his efforts.

Byron Nelson Favored At Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 7 (AP)—Jimmy Thomson, Shawnee-On-Delaware sharpshooter, figures the big-time pros in the $10,000 Dapper Open may run into trouble on the Wildwood country club course. One of the first to arrive in town for the rich classic starting Thursday, the blond powerhouse polished off a one over par 71 on the 6,543 yard course and prophesied: "The course is in great shape. Of course you can't tell what the fellows will do the way they have been busting par of late. But I don't think they'll tear this course apart."

He declined to venture a guess on the winning score of the 72-hole medal play but calculated it would take par or better to pull down the $2,500 top prize.

Thompson credited some of the low scoring recently in tourney play to new equipment and better balls.

Johnny Bulla of Chicago and Lloyd Mangrum were among early arrivals but they did not play the course. Byron Nelson of Reading, Pa., National Open champion and tourney favorite was expected today or tomorrow.

Storms And Fires Take Heavy Toll In The N'west

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 7 (AP)—One life was lost and property damage mounted to hundreds of thousands of dollars in western storms and fires the weekend.

A limb ripped from a tree by a violent wind storm killed Mrs. Josephine Tobler Graff, 51, of Santa Clara, Utah, yesterday. A three-hour fire, conquered early today by combined efforts of firemen from five communities, destroyed $275,000 worth of property in Centralia, Wash. At least 25,000 acres of timber and brush land in Washington, Oregon and Idaho lay in blackened ruins.

The Centralia fire swept through main holdings of the Eastern Railway & Lumber company and burned a residence, a blacksmith shop, 10,000,000 feet of lumber and damaged the Driscoll Boiler Works and five freight cars before it was controlled.

Much property damage resulted from a southern Utah wind storm. Trees were uprooted, windows broken and harvested crops scattered in the fields.

A turn in the wind brought fire fighters hope of conquering a 15,000 acre north Idaho-Washington forest fire. Nearly 1,200 men were on the firelines.

POWER LINE TO DAM PROJECT IS DYNAMITED

GREEN MOUNTAIN DAM, Colo., Aug. 7 (AP)—Mysterious dynamiting of the power line to strike-troubled Green Mountain Dam project and smashing of a newspaper editor's camera were being investigated today by national geyser officers.

The blast, in a canyon five miles north of Dillon Sunday morning, cut down two poles in the power line to the town of Kremmling and the site of the $44,000,000 dam—Big Thompson federal reclamation development. Repairs were made within a few hours.

J. E. Jacobsen, of Breckenridge, Colo., editor and publisher of the Summit County Journal, reported to guard officers his camera was seized, stripped of a roll of film and trampled by three men he did not know, just inside the project area late Sunday.

Work on the project resumed Friday after being halted since July 12 by a strike of members of five American Federation of Labor unions seeking collective bargaining recognition. National guardsmen have been on duty in the project area since Thursday, called out after seven men were injured in two shooting outbreaks during a "back-to-work" movement.

Buxby Upsets Wayne Sabin

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 7 (AP)—If alarm clocks went off earlier today in the Westchester section, the fault probably was Martin Buxby's.

Because Buxby rewarded yesterday's early risers with the match of the day as the Eastern grass courts tournament got underway. He defeated Wayne Sabin, 7-5, 5-6, 8-4.

Buxby, always considered a pretty fair sort of player, seldom has come through with a victory so startling. Sabin was seeded seventh. Otherwise the day's matches went off about as scheduled with the interest in the men's singles centered on the play of the always colorful Billy Grant.

Detectives Escort Davis And Bride On Honeymoon

NEW YORK, Aug. 7 (AP)—The red-haired showgirl who influenced J. Richard (Dick) Davis to overturn the underworld with revelations of lush racketeering was honeymooning with the little disabled lawyer today under chaperonage of detectives.

The bride was Hope Dare, now 28, who was arrested in Philadelphia with Davis Feb. 2, 1938, and of whom Davis' first wife, Martha, said: "The red-heads always get them, don't they?"

It was after Davis was allowed to leave the Tombs prison many times to visit his dentist, and permitted each time to stop by at Miss Dare's apartment, that he detailed for the district attorney the dark ramifications of the old Dutch Schultz numbers racket that Davis served as "attorney general."

His testimony figured largely in conviction of ex-Tammany district leader James J. Hines for selling political protection to the Schultz mob.

Davis was released recently but ordered to remain in the southern New York federal jurisdiction, always with detectives guarding him against gangster violence.

It seems likely his closely guarded honeymoon will be interrupted time and again for appearances before various investigative bodies now making a concerted assault on crime throughout the country.

SURGEON HAILED AS HERO IN ATTEMPT TO SAVE A LIFE

SOMERSET, Pa., Aug. 7 (AP)—A small-town surgeon who risked his life in a vain attempt to save one of four men crushed by a 20-ton rock fall in a highway tunnel was hailed as a hero today while two agencies sought to fix responsibility for the tragedy.

Ignoring dust and small stones that crumbled from a gaping hole in the ceiling of the tunnel, Dr. John D. Spencer stood on a step ladder and cut away William Leach, 33, from his plumed left arm. Leach, who had dangled by the arm for an hour, died a few minutes later in an ambulance.

Hardened tunnel workers, accustomed to fatal mishaps, called Dr. Spencer a "guy with guts," but the surgeon modestly said:

"I was scared, scared stiff, but I knew it was the only chance to save a life."

The four victims brought to 11 the number killed in the construction of the tunnel, which will carry the state's $60,000,000 express highway under Laurel hill.

Is Your Nose Drying Up?

Is your nose dry and itchy due to excessive dryness or dust in the air? Does the lining of your nostrils feel irritated and "tight"? You can relieve this condition in the following easy way:

Just apply a little Mentholatum to the nostrils. This will bring you wonderful comfort. Mentholatum soothes the irritated mucous membrane, keeps it moist, and makes your breathing easier. Mentholatum is equally beneficial for sunburn, windburn, and cracked lips. Ask for Mentholatum at any drug counter. In jars or tubes. Only 30c.

Here lie the remains of Suzanna Snayve,
It really isn't surprising.
She worked herself into an early grave
By running all over town looking for bargains and sales and unusual values instead of reading the advertising.

SPORTS
ROUNDUP
By EDDIE BRIETZ
NEW YORK, Aug. 7 (AP)—Baseball: The hottest fettle of 'em all right now is Deacon Bill McKeebie of the Red Sox. And are the fans out there getting tough? They booed Billy Myers for his first boot in 21 games. Lee Handley of the Pirates picked a fine time to come down with the whooping cough, didn't he? Flash-Old Bill Klem will be out there yelling balls and strikes not later than Wednesday. When the Indians sent him to St. Louis, Julius Solters told Oscar Vitt: "Little as I like St. Louis, I'm tickled to death to get away from you."

Football: Don't laugh when Coach Dutch Meyer tells you Texas Christian will have a passer who'll make you forget Davey O'Brien. He told you O'Brien could make 'em forget Sammy Baugh, didn't he? The U. of Mississippi team which traveled 11,000 miles a year or two ago, will go no further south than New Orleans and no further north than Memphis this season. North Carolina will use two quarterbacks—George Starnwell and "Sweet" Lalanne—each of whom pitches almost as well as Bobby Feller.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR
Art Conn, Oakland (Cal) Tribune: "The New York Giants really must be in a bad way. Because Bill Terry's ace ivory hunter, Heinie Groh, spent the other afternoon scouting the Orinda Reds, a local bush club."

Personals: Babe Ruth is golfing in New England. Tony Galento will be master of ceremonies in a local hot spot Wednesday night. Glenna Collette Vane, the six-time women's golf champion, has become a tennis addict. Joe Di Maggio was the guest star when Jimmy Kelly, "mayor of Sullivan street," gave away 900 bats and balls to Greenwich Village kids today.

KIM TOO.
Charlie Keller of the Yankees, has gone and now has joined Max Baer, Tony Galento, Baron Bouts Poffenberger and other well known gobs in the "I've-got-something-to-work-for-club."

BACK FOR TRY
BOSTON, Aug. 7 (AP)—John Cobb, British automobile racing driver, traveled westward today to Bonneville, Utah, where he hopes to break the speed record of 357.5 miles an hour in a racer equipped with two new engines with a capacity of 1,300 horsepower.
