St. Joseph's Hospital.

Just before coming to the hospital on May 31, I happened to read in The Memphis Democrat that J. Claude Wells was observing his 58th year as an editor and publisher. Can you imagine a man with enough vitality to even endure in this sometimes nerve wracking and often strenuous business for well over half a centry? But he has done it with courage, charm and understanding. So many of my close friends in this business have gone on when they were just reaching their peak that I can't keep from marveling at the healthy mind in a healthy body and the extraordinary constitution that has kept him active and useful so long. He is by many years the dean of the Panhandle editors. Homer Steen of Floydada is the only one who is even close to him. Here is a salute to the great old man with the young mind.

His wife, Pearl Wells, has been one of my favorite people for many years. I was sixteen when I started working as a printer's devil on The Wellington Leader. Cousin Pearl was working on the paper at that time and as late as 1925 when they moved to Memphis. She has been my confidante and counselor since I was sixteen. You might say that I have had two wonderful, wonderful mothers since the year my father died.

As usual I have received hospital care that is unsurpassed here at St. Joseph's, and would like to express my appreciation. But I will let S. E. Conway of San Angelo do the talking for me. He is the man who was in the car wreck on May 31 at the Quail intersection on Highway 83. He suffered a broken leg, a broken ankle on the other limb, a broken arm, four broken ribs and severe mouth injuries. He was transferred to a Veterans Hospital in San Angelo Monday, where he will be from eight to ten weeks longer.

Mr. Conway said: I want you to put something in the paper for me about this splendid hospital. I never dreamed that you could find such personal attention on the part of nurses and phys-

CHIN HIGH WHEAT

Dodson area wheat grew chin-high to the smallest of this trio of Dodson girls, pictured last week as the harvest was in full swing in the southeast part of the county. The wheat, one of the larger fields around that town, belong to Hugh Painter, and the three young beauties in it are Judy Lewis, 9, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Lewis; Kathlyn Scott, 7, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Mack Scott; and Donna Tabor, 8, whose parents and Mr. and Mrs. Herschel Tabor.

Funeral Here Monday for Hazel Adams

Miss Hazel Adams, a life-long county resident until moving from here five years ago, died Thursday, June 8, in Bakersfield, Calif., following an illness of two months.

Pall bearers were E. W. Clement, Bob Copeland, Ernest Harwell, John Eron Forbis, Elmer Black and Leslie Moore.

Burial was in the family plot in West Wellington cemetery with Kelso Funeral Home in charge of local arrangements.

Quail Girls Win Ribbon at Round-up

The Quail Bobbettes, singing as the Collingsworth County 4-H Club share-the-fun entry, received a blue ribbon in the Texas 4-H Club Roundup at College Station last week.

Only five entries from the entire state were in the blue-ribbon category, and these include Dallas, Matador and Bastrop entries.

Approximately 20 red and white ribbons were awarded, Miss Kathryn Potter, county home demonstration agent said.

The girls' entry included vocal selections.

Mrs. Lowell Wells has trained the group, pre-high school girls during the past year, and they have appeared as the Bobbettes at a number of public functions in recent months.

Members going to the Roundup were Shirley Horton, Lonette Neeley, Alcie Holliman, Diane Moseley and Sue Saunders. Jan Langford was their accompanist.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Moseley and Miss Potter went with the group.

Commissioners Meet Monday

The Commissioners Court met in a short session Monday, June 12, with canvassing the recent Senatorial and tax elections as the chief order of work.

Claims were approved, one payment was made for hospitalization on one charity case and a check which had been lost was voided.

A trip to Austin and Denton was authorized for the commissioners and County Judge C. C. Bishop on business concerning the Disaster and civil defense programs.

The Commissioners Court will convene again Thursday, June 15, at 1 p.m. to sit as an equalization board.

52nd Anniversary Observed in Europe

A 52nd wedding anniversary celebration, a surprise, awaited Mr. and Mrs. A. Y. Bell in Brussels, Belgium, during their recent European tour, made with the Amarillo European Jet Holiday this spring.

This was but one of several out-of-the-ordinary occurences that came to this couple, along with the things that every tourist in Europe does.

The anniversary came as the tour party was dining out one evening. The wedding cake was brought in, and the cafe orchestra played "Silver Threads Among the Gold."

"It was a little sad," Mrs. Bell recalls. Brussels became one of their favorite cities on the tour.

The couple was impressed by the age of many of the buildings, and their excellent state of repair.

"And they're all in use," Mrs. Bell reminded, showing pictures of many of these historic sites.

Italy was probably Mrs. Bell's favorite country. In Venice, a boat—not a gondola, though—took them to the door of their hotel. In Rome she enjoyed the beautiful and historic churches.

"It was my least favorite country," Mr. Bell says, for he preferred the neat orderliness of the German farmlands. "But there's lots of grass going to waste in Italy, between the

Sales Training Course Set for County Business People

An outside and direct sales training course will be conducted here from Monday, June 19, through Thursday, June 22, by the Collingsworth Chamber of Commerce.

Open to everyone who has anything to sell, it is for both sales personnel and managers and owners of businesses, N. M. Higdon, C-C manager, explained. The course is similar to others held each summer for several years.

Jule Thomas, training specialist for the University of Texas, will conduct the course. He has engaged in outside selling, and has managed outside salesmen for business firms. He has been advertising manager, district manager and executive vice president for life insurance companies.

Thomas is a graduate of Ouachita College in Arkansas.

"We have never had a course that more directly affects every business house in Collingsworth county," Higdon said.

"It is something every one of us can benefit from, and it is also one that Chamber of Commerce directors feel you will find both interesting and meaningful for your business."

The course will contain five sections: personal effectiveness, organization for selling, psychology for selling, sales presentation, and methods of closing sales.

Classes will be held in the community building and will begin at 7:30 p.m. each evening. The cost will be $3 per person for the entire course.

Business firms of the area will be contacted and urged to enroll several employees in the course, and the heads of these firms also will be invited to enroll, Higdon said.

Anyone wishing additional information may contact Higdon at the Chamber of Commerce office.

Mrs. R. A. Barton Dies Following 4-Year Illness

Mrs. R. A. Barton, a Collingsworth county resident for 41 years, died at her home at 12:30 a.m. Friday, June 9 following a four-year illness.

Funeral services were conducted Saturday at 2:30 p.m. at the First Baptist Church by the Rev. Glenn Hickey, pastor, and burial was in North Wellington Cemetery by Kelso Funeral Home.

Pall bearers were nephews and included Gus Barton, Morris Barton, Bob Barton, Raymond Barton, George Barton, and R. L. Goode Jr.

Mrs. Barton was the former Miss Pearl C. Goode, and with her sister, the late Mrs. Laycock, came here from Wichita Falls. For a number of years they operated a millinery shop here and were active in the town's business life of that period.

She was born July 29, 1880 in Woodlandville, Mo., and before coming here lived for a number of years in Wichita Falls.

Wellington Men in AF Recovery Squad

Several Wellington men will participate as members of the 9416 Recovery Squadron of the Air Force Reserve to be opened in Childress July 1.

One of these, Lt. Col. Jack Sanford, explained that the group will be made up of reserve officers and local citizens from Childress and the surrounding towns, will have headquarters at the Childress Air Base, and will go into action in an emergency, such as a retaliatory war. In that case, the Childress Air Base, now inactivated, could be put to use on an emergency basis.

Sanford and M/Sgt. J. B. King met with the other reservists in Childress recently to hear plans for operation.

A maximum of 140 men will be trained at Childress on at least one week end a month. Only one permanent person will be stationed there to start.

Lt. Col. Edward D. W. Hardin, Jr., director of training for the 2484 Air Force Reserve Sector, will be commander of the squadron and Maj. Frank C. Gready, training officer for the 2693 Air Reserve Sector, will be training officer.

The mission of these Air Reserve organizations is to provide recovery assistance for the nation in event of attack.

Reserve Recovery units will be located at selected civil airports and inactive facilities capable of accommodating military aircraft. Primary job of the units in event of attack is to provide safe landing sites for USAF and allied aircraft returning from missions, as well as "turn-around" points for continued missions.

Military planners anticipate that many U. S. Air Force bases may be destroyed or heavily damaged in event of an attack to the extent that some of the aircraft returning from combat missions may be unable to land at their home stations or pre-planned alternate fields.

Under the new Air Reserve Recovery program, the Reserve would provide emergency landing facilities and sites for con-

One Kennedy Program That Makes Sense

There is one program of the Kennedy administration that makes sense. This is the Food Stamps Plan which is now being tested in seven parts of the United States. In short the plan would provide for food stamps to be given to needy people in depressed areas. Half of the stamps would be good only for items made from surplus farm products. The other half would be good for other types of food to provide a balanced diet. Both kinds would be redeemable at your local grocery store and would keep this type of relief in normal business channels where it would naturally be handled more efficiently than by bureaucrats. The plan is humanitarian and practical.

The plan will help reduce the food surpluses some; but to reduce the tremendous over-supply such as in wheat will require exports of vast quantities as was done under the Benson Administration. Although he will never get credit for it from the Democrats, Secy. Benson did a whale of a job in disposing of a tremendous bulk of wheat and other grains. But at the same time he ran into a series of the greatest bumper crops the United States has ever known. Therefore the surplus continued high just as it will again increase under Kennedy. Benson did eliminate the cotton surplus. The Department of Defense notified the Department of Agriculture that the 1960 carry-over of cotton was not sufficient in case of an emergency. That is the reason cotton growers received a 15% increase in acreage for 1961. Old much cussed Benson should be given the credit for that increase.

We Must Speak, Individually, Against the Omnibus Farm Bill

Farmers, long used to stringent government production controls, should look more closely at the administration's proposed Omnibus Farm Bill, and then speak out clearly and decisively on it.

Only about 60 farmers appeared when the Farm Bureau sponsored its public meeting to explain the program here recently. Any who missed it, or the account of the meeting which appeared following it, can get information from the Farm Bureau office. He can also get it by reading farm magazines.

This bill, if carried out, would put unprecedented power in the hands of the department of agriculture. It would make real the possibility of a stranglehold on the nation's agricultural production. And for all that we are becoming more and more industrialized, it remains forever true that our basis, and the basis of our greatness, is in our soil and what comes out of it.

Farm leaders are concerned.

Besides the Farm Bureau, the Omnibus Farm Bill is opposed by the American National Cattlemens Association, which is made up of state and local cattlemen's and cattle feeders' associations, among them the Texas Cattlemens Association, and Panhandle Cattlemen's Associations.

These groups represent a large segment of American agriculture, particularly here in the Southwest. They speak out, and we too, must speak.

Congress to date has not been pushed into action on the Omnibus Farm Bill, mostly because the members doubt its wisdom. We can have our voice in defeating this measure, individually, by letting our congressmen know how we feel, and that at the cost of a 4-cent stamp.

If enough of us make our oppostion known, it will have its effect. No doubt about it.

CROSSROADS REPORT

Dear Editor:

The news is good that we have got our Mr. Kennedy back to home base, without anybody throwing any rocks at him, and without it costing us any tractors yet.

But my worst-expecting neighbor says we won't know for sure it was a cheap trip until the bills all come in, on account of our leaders have always used the summit-now-pay-later plan.

Says though we can now settle down to routine crises for a while, unless Bobby gets suckered into a summit meeting in Alabama.

The Situation has got my broad-brain neighbor very upset, on account of feeling like he ought to get on one side or the other of the Liberals vs. Conservatives uncivil war.

But says he can't tell who is a Conservative by the Liberal description of one, nor vice versa, so he is trying to figure out his own definitions.

Says it appears a Conservative is a citizen who wants to put the brakes on while going downhill, whereas the Liberal wants to make Progress a drag race.

I see where a super-hep foreign correspondent says the country of Ecuador and some of its neighbors are in transition from the 16th century to the 20th century.

My do-tell neighbor says finding a state of transition somewhere is not much to be writing home about, as practically everything and everybody is in transition, one way or the other, mostly from bad to worse.

Says the Ecuadorian transition to modernism is just the current foreign shift, from paddling their own canoe to letting U.S. taxpayers paddle it for them.

My high-philosity neighbor says everybody is getting so far behind with his relaxing these days that we couldn't get along without ready-rolled cigarettes, canned biscuits, and other conveniences.

Says, in fact, we are even too busy coffee-breaking and the like to do our own thinking, so we subsist on the pre-thunk thoughts put out by the newspaper editorialists and TV documentarians.

He figures, if this goes on, the human brain will evolute backward from disuse, and finally get to be as vestigial as the human tail.

News is that a group of Japanese sub-citizens here the other day disfavored some pending legislation and scotched same with a large riot.

My spend-sick neighbor says he notes this riotous type of guidance for breachy public servants seems to get better results than writing letters to congressmen.

Says, for instance, right here in America, no letter writing campaign ever made as much impression on leadership as the taxpayers' riot which was later known to history as the Boston Tea Party.

FCC Boss Minow says our TV programs are a wasteland of doubtful entertainment; they bore him, and he is going to culturize them.

My bigwig-bored neighbor says different people get bored by different things, and maybe Mr. Minow is bored by TV because he already knew his stomach looked like a jug of water and that the route to same was very crooked.

But he says, personally, he is more bored by paying taxes to hire herds of academized brains to tell him what he is bored by.

Three Rural Accidents Here During May

The highway patrol investigated three accidents on rural highways in Collingsworth county during the month of May, according to Sgt. D. R. Dowdy, highway patrol supervisor of this area.

These wrecks accounted for three persons injured and property damage of $3,500.

This brings the total for the first five months of 1961 in this county to eight rural traffic crashes resulting in six persons being killed, eight injured, and a combined property damage amounting to $8,300.

After noting the accident picture for this county for the first five months of the year, Sgt. Dowdy pointed out another significant fact: As summer approaches with longer days and additional good driving weather, the driver should be especially aware of the danger period at dusk. Many accidents happen during this period. One cause of this is the driver fails to turn on his lights soon enough. Although the law sets out when lights must be turned on, the driver should also use his own good judgment. Any time a driver cannot see an unlighted object approximately one-half mile away, he should turn his lights on. He may be able to see the other driver, but can the other driver see you?

Ford Receives Safety Award

In 1956, Ford became the first company in the automobile industry to install front seat belts and padded dashboards and visors on all its products used for driver-training. Ford supplies seat belts without charge on driver-training units.

The National Safety Council recently awarded Ford a plaque for its 1960 series of motion pictures on driver education. The three films, a joint effort of the company's Motion Picture department and Traffic Safety and Highway Improvement department, are entitled "City Driving," "Driving Under Special Conditions," and "Highway Driving."

Scholarships for 4-H Girls in Home Economics

Six $800 college scholarships will be awarded next November on a national basis to 4-H Club girls majoring in home economics, and enrolled in their junior year.

The awards are offered to either current or former 4-H members who have completed a minimum of three years in 4-H work. They must have a good scholastic and 4-H record as well, according to the eligibility rules. A primary interest in the home economics field and need for financial aid also is a prerequisite.

The Chicago deadline is Oct. 20, so applicants should contact their deans and the state Extension office well in advance of that date, the 4-H Service Committee advises.

The six successful candidates will be selected in Chicago by a committee of Extension Service personnel. The winners will be announced during the National 4-H Club congress held Nov. 26-30. The recipients, however, will not attend the Congress, but will receive their scholarships through the state 4-H Club office.

Livestock and Meat Imports Lower in 1960

COLLEGE STATION.—During 1960, U.S. livestock and meat imports were equal to 6.5% of the total domestic production, compared with 8.6% for both 1958 and 1959, reports Lloyd Bergsma, extension livestock marketing specialist. Beef and veal imports declined 23% during 1960.

Imports of live animals during 1960 declined 5% to a total of 664,000 head. Due to lower cattle prices, the reduction in import value was considerably greater than the reduction in import numbers. The value of cattle imported during 1960 was 50% below the peak year of 1958, says Bergsma.

The value of meat and other livestock products imported during 1960 totaled $464 million, which was a decline of 16% from the 1959 total. During 1960, however, meat and other livestock products accounted for 87% of all livestock and livestock products imports.

Mexico, Canada, New Zealand and Australia were the major exporters of cattle and meat to the United States during the 1959-60 fiscal year. These four countries accounted for 62% of the total cattle and meat imports.

For the six-month period ending Dec. 31, 1960, the value of livestock and livestock products exported from the United States exceeded the value of imports of these products by two million dollars.

Accident Prone Follow a Pattern

The experts have traced definite personality patterns among accident-prone people.

Almost invariably they are impetuous, following impulses without deliberation or planning. Their decisiveness is, in reality, a drive for independence and self-reliance.

For the most part, investigators have found they have a history of neurotic traits in childhood. They simply reach a point, in their failure to handle an emotional situation, when an unpleasant happening becomes a physical and emotional necessity. Result: an "accident."

Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Bryan of Tulare, Calif., visited with friends in the Wellington area the first of the week. They are former area residents and he had lived at Lutie several years before going to California. Tulare has been their home for about 23 years. The couple was also visiting with her relatives at McLean.

Here visiting with relatives are Mr. and Mrs. Howard Frost and their daughter, Miss Pam Frost of Wichita Falls. They are guests of Mrs. Frost's sisters and brother, Miss Bonnie Willis, Mack Willis, and Mr. and Mrs. Deskins Wells and Henry.

Miss Rama Camp is in Abilene this week to attend a music workshop at Abilene Christian College.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Cudd, and Jim left Tuesday morning for Corpus Christi where they will make their home during the summer months. Their daughter, Jan, will stay here with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Light for a few weeks before joining the family in Corpus.

Visiting Mr. and Mrs. Tom Cunningham of Samnorwood over the week end were their daughter and son, Mr. and Mrs. Jody McBrayer and children, Diane, Denise, Ernie and Eddy of Fort Worth; and Mr. and Mrs. James Allen Cunningham and sons, Mark and Allen of Whiteface. Sunday the entire group attended the Cunningham family reunion at Childress.

Visiting recently in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Colson were his brother, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Colson of Dumas.

IT'S THE LAW in Texas

A Public Service Feature by the State Bar of Texas

TRESPASSING CHILDREN

What are your duties as a landowner toward children who come on your property without permission? In what circumstances do you have to pay when they get hurt?

A landowner has a special duty to trespassing children to see that they do not get hurt on highly dangerous things about his place. You can well expect them to wander on your place; it is up to you, within reason, to see that they don't get hurt.

Must you pay for their injuries? Not, for example, if the child should have recognized the dangers, or if he could look out for himself but doesn't.

The law expects only what is reasonable to protect the child without excessive costs.

In one case a 12 year old girl played hide and seek on a lot the owner was building on. Chasing a playmate, she failed to jump over a stack of windows and fell and hurt herself. The landowner was not liable, the court held. This trespasser was old enough to have seen and kept out of danger.

As a landowner you need not childproof your place; you have only to use care and to guard against dangers the trespassing children aren't likely to know about. Where a child realizes the risk and incurs injuries "in a spirit of bravado," the courts have often held that the owner is not liable.

In another case, though, neighborhood children played in a home owner's swimming pool during the summers. In the winter he partly drained it, but decayed leaves and dirt made the pool slippery. Although he fenced the pool off, the owner did not repair a gate that opened on to it. Playing children could see the pool from the street. One day a two year old boy strayed through the opening, slipped into the water and hurt himself.

This time the court held the owner liable. He should have drained the whole pool, put in the gate, or both. Otherwise the risk was too great: The slippery, partly filled pool was like a "trap," easy to reach, and concealing unusual dangers—dangers that a child was not likely to realize—dangers which the owner could have repaired with ease at small cost.

Pool owners owe a duty of care to neighbor boys and girls when the dangers are great, and could be avoided by proper care.

Spending in City Drains Little Towns of Opportunity

(Roy Brinson, operator of the "Big B Country Store" in Borger, recently made a speech at a Borger civic club meeting. His thoughts and remarks were published recently in The Borger News Herald, and are equally applicable to Wellington and a great many other community town areas.)

YOUR TOWN AND YOUR FUTURE

By Roy Brinson

In considering ways and means to pursue proper economic and political objectives, it might be well to examine the position of the smaller American towns and cities, said to be the "bulwark of Americanism." When our towns were established, they were built around a "Main Street" where individuals of every trade and talent staked their "claims."

There was a general store, a restaurant, a harness shop, a carpenters shop, a shoe repair shop, and similar individual enterprises. Soon there was a bank, and maybe a few small manufacturing plants, and, of course, a lumber yard.

These early "independents" made "Main Street" U.S.A. a highway of opportunity. Hotels were built and were patronized by salesmen with their sample cases; boys grew up in these communities and increased the number of "father and son" signs on "Main Street," U.S.A.; and there were none who looked to the federal government for relief, for loans, for social security, for free medicine, for subsidized housing or subsidized crops.

Self-reliance, self determination, individual enterprise and initiative were on the march, and although troublesome times visited the people of these pioneer communities, they continued to push forward, opening the way to the "Edisons," "the Fords," the "Wright Brothers" and all the rest who were to light up the U.S.A, to put it on wheels and to travel its skies.

Poor farm boys and newsboys rose from rags to riches. From the ashes of its great fire, Chicago was fast becoming the railroad center of the world, and the furnaces of Pittsburg, Detroit and other growing industrial centers were roaring their challenge to the venturesome of the far off lands across the seas.

Then came the mail order catalogue, and the farmers and townspeople alike made the postoffice the busiest place in town. Hardware dealers, farm machinery dealers, dry goods stores, the local bank and every other enterprise began to feel the loss of purchasing power that was their life blood—their life blood because it is the magic plasma that furnishes life to every single business on "Main Street, U.S.A. When these businesses are endangered so are schools, churches and parks of these towns. When these things are threatened, Americanism is being attacked through the back door.

Soon the father and son signs began to disappear from "Main Street, U.S.A." and boys and girls who might have become accountable, responsible citizens in their own home town, were forced to make their way to these distant cities where mother and dad were spending these dollars, this economic dollar plasma of their own home town.

Mother wonders why her son must leave his home town to find a job, when it is her own "bargain mania" that is sending him away.

Today, in your home town, you see the wife of an insurance man coming out of the de-personalized chain super market in the city, loaded down with groceries paid for out of commissions earned on policies sold to neighborhood independent dealers. You will see the banker's wife pushing her cart around the same store that never uses her husband's bank for anything but making change and withdrawing by checks. Keep watching and out will come the mother and wife of the local florist who delivers more flowers to the funeral of one little merchant than are delivered to the funerals of ten chain store managers who never get their roots in the community, and who have little if any contact with suppliers, salesmen or anyone else with whom the chain does its distant buying, right behind them will be the wives and mothers of bread salesmen, doctors, printers, auto dealers, wholesalers and all of the rest whose jobs, freedom and hopes of the future are all wrapped up in the future of the independent stores they are passing by.

Why must "Mrs. Borger" have to have a label from Amarillo in her coat? Why must Mrs. Amarillo feel disgraced unless she is sporting a coat from Dallas, and "Mrs. Dallas" feel positively naked unless she wears a New York label. Most likely the coats are all made by the same Chicago manufacturer. Each town is losing its economic lifeblood to its larger neighbor.

In other words, the women of America are engaged in a mad rush to buy their husbands out of business, their children out of opportunities to become important, accountable citizens in their own community, and buy their country out of its freedom. To forestall this threat of economic dry rot to our own city, the independent merchants here must at all cost offer the people of this area merchandise and services at prices competitive to any anywhere. Not only must this be done, we must tell the customer over and over by every means at our command, word of mouth, newspaper and by radio. Only then can we expect the people to realize that there lies a great danger to their town from this evil of economic dry rot of non-support. Our failure to awaken our people to the folly of their "bargain" mania may well nullify any worthwhile effort to preserve "Main Street, U.S.A."

What can you do as an ordinary citizen? . . . You, as a citizen of Borger, by supporting your home town merchants with your "dollar plasma" may guarantee your children those opportunities to which they are entitled; guarantee that son the dream that he is dreaming today, that he, too may some day be his own boss on "Main Street, U.S.A.—Borger, Texas.'"

WHAT PUBLIC SCHOOLS CAN DO

In these days of hemming and hawing, tacking and yawing, it is pleasantly encouraging to discover the people of a community generating vigorous intrest in perpetuating old-fashioned Americansim. It is encouraging to see people who know what they want, who have evaluated our basic ideals and found them worthy of being taught to our youngsters. This kind of straight thinking and straight-forward planning will insure the future of the American way. This kind of action will extend the American dream and preserve our heritage. It is worthy of wide imitation.

Down in Wichita Falls, citizens there realized that the young people of today are the full-fledged citizens of tomorrow. This idea may sound as trite as most commencement addresses, but they thought it made sense and believed it implied certain serious obligations upon the adults of the community. This is indeed refreshing in a day when too many Americans are talking about someone else's responsibility and passing the buck on to Washington, D.C. No federal aid was required for their program, either.

Local Initiative

I refer to the program of citizenship training and Americanism in the Wichita Falls public schools. They are using there virtually all the materials that we have prepared here in our Americansim education workshop, and we are delighted to have them use these items from our arsenal. However, I want to emphasize that it is their own program and that we had nothing to do with establishing it or underwriting it. Actually, this is another fine example of local American initiative. Texas style.

Their cooperation, their initiative, their desire to build a positive program are all so commendable that they provide a splendid example for other communities to follow. This is surely the kind of vigorous action that will preserve this nation against every effort to destroy her, whether it comes from within or from without. The antidote for pessimism, for uncertainty, for lassitude, my friends, is action. Let us "be up and doing."

Citizenship Training

The Wichita Falls story is simply this: a group of local citizens, mostly businessmen, decided to make available to their public schools the entire arsenal of materials for educational purposes that has been prepared by our National Education Program. The schools appointed various committees to study the materials and after weeks of careful study and analysis they recommended all of the materials for use at various levels in the school system. Their whole aim in doing this was to develop the highest type of citizenship.

In a letter sent out shortly after the school year began to all his secondary school principals, Supt. Joe B. McNiel of the Wichita Falls public schools, said: "This gift was prompted by their feeling that if the threat of Communism is to be thwarted it must be done by a vigorous, positive program designed to re-kindle a national pride in America and its position of leadership in this time when free men all over the world are being threatened.

Assistance Appreciated

"You have heard me express this same theme many years in opening faculty meetings, and you know that we were happy to have this assistance from our citizens. A school committee was appointed to review the material and make suggestions as to its proper place for the greatest emphasis to our own 'Americanism' program. I submit their recommendations and urge you to continue your efforts to make America strong by educating the very best citizens possible."

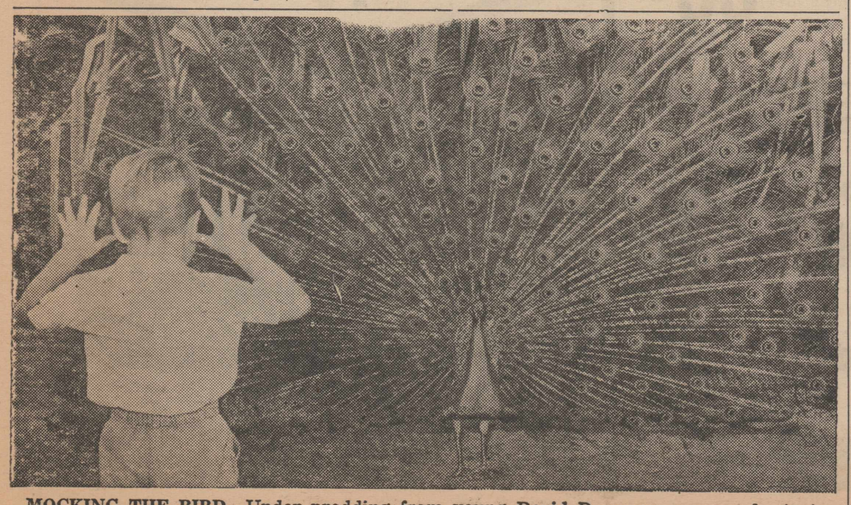

He then went on to list films, filmstrips, and graphic presentations, indicating their usefulness at various levels and in areas such as American history, world history, civics, and economics. Altogether 24 different items were listed and made available for classes and for adult groups. Mr. McNiel has instructed his principals to observe and record student reaction to the material, and to study its effectiveness in influencing attitudes of students and faculty, with the idea of refining and improving their own program and its progress. Indeed, here is an exemplary approach to a serious educational problem. There is no reason why other communities cannot develop similar programs.

COTTON FERTILIZER TESTS

There was a half-bale per acre difference in the yield of the cotton in rows at left in this picture and those to the right. County Agent Bob Lynch stands at the dividing mark where fertilizer was put down in the Northwest Texas Research Demonstration test on the Jack Aaron farm at Rolla. The plot at left was the check plot and received no fertilizer. It yielded at the rate of 422 pounds of lint cotton per acre. Cotton in the right half of the picture received fertilizer at the rate of 230 pounds of 16-20-0 per acre and 661 pounds of lint cotton per acre was harvested.

In On-the-Farm Tests

Nitrogen Ups Cotton Yield By Half Bale

Want an extra half-bale of cotton per acre? It's a full cotton crop for some producers! That result has been reached here in Collingsworth in cotton fertilization test plots.

Pure nitrogen, applied on cotton, paid the greatest return per dollar invested in test plots conducted by the Northwest Texas Research Demonstration program here in the 1960 season, County Agent Bob Lynch revealed this week.

"We have always felt that we should use some phosporus along with the nitrogen in fertilizing, and the only explanation we can come up with is this:

"Our soils are very low in nitrogen because of our low inorganic matter, and we feel that until our soil has enough nitrogen, the other elements don't come into play. The application of nitrogen, then, will bring about an activation of phosphorus, as well as other elements," Lynch explained.

The tests generally known here as the On-the-Farm research programs, are carried out in Wheeler, Hall and Collingsworth counties in a combined program of the Extension Service and Texas Experiment Station.

Lynch and Dwane Scott, farm demonstration assistant, carried out two cotton fertilization projects in Collingsworth last year, and these are described fully in the results published recently.

One of these was on the Jack Aaron farm at Rolla, where fertilizer was put down at five rates with a check plot. It was applied in dry form, in bands 20 inches apart, a week or two before planting.

For the purpose of making the results clearer and more easily followed, they have been listed on the acre basis.

Aaron's cotton, of the Gregg variety, produced at the rate of 661 pounds of lint per acre when 230 pounds of 16-20-0 fertilizer per acre was used. That is against 422 pounds where no fertilizer at all was used. This plot netted an increased profit of $43.47 per acre, after the expense of fertilizer, $9.71, and all other costs were deducted.

The second high production came from the application of 55 pounds of commercial urea (45% nitrogen) and from this 571 pounds of lint per acre was harvested, giving a net profit of $29.40 per acre. The low cost of this fertilizer, only $3.75 per acre plus application, made it the highest in yield per dollar invested.

Cotton having 70 pounds per acre of 16-20-0 yielded 495 pounds of lint; 120 pounds of 15-15-15 per acre yielded 542 pounds of lint; and 125 pounds of 16-20-0 yielded 516 pounds per acre.

A different situation existed on the N. E. Childers test at Marella, in the deep sandy area. Childers used Western Stormproof cotton — and 1960 wasn't a good year for that in the sand. There was too much moisture for this late-maturing variety. That resulted in lower yields than on the Aaron plot, Lynch explained.

Land that had no fertilization yielded 88 pounds of lint per acre, and that with 230 pounds of 16-20-0 made 306 pounds. This application was the highest yielder again, giving him an increased net profit of $39.46. The next most profitable was the application of 120 pounds of 16-20-0, an increased net profit of $15.90.

These tests were about average for those in the three counties of the Northwest Texas Research Demonstration work.

What about 1961?

"We have revised the rates at which we are putting fertilizer down, and we are using liquid fertilizer," Lynch explained.

"We want to fully investigate this nitrogen response we have been getting. We want to see how high we can go with it and still make nitrogen pay. In some tests, we'll be running the nitrogen up to 100 pounds of pure nitrogen per acre. The nitrogen and phosphorus ration will vary some from last year.

"Last year we couldn't put down nitrogen at a higher rate because the fertilizer stripper wouldn't go any higher. With liquid you can use any amount.

"We're not using liquid fertilizer because we think it is better, but because it is more flexible.

"We don't know where the top limit of nitrogen is. Most of our soils are low in phosphorus, too, but cotton is a low user of phosphorus, using nitrogen at about a three-to-one ratio. We don't know how many years we can continue using nitrogen alone, or at what point we may have to begin adding phosphorus," said Lynch.

Four Little League Games During Week

tinued operation. Recovery squadrons at emergency sites would furnish communications, crash and rescue service, refueling, transportation, medical care, food service, emergency maintenance, billeting and a security force.

CONAC will organize an additional 75 Air Reserve Recovery groups and 193 Recovery Squadrons in July. Seven Recovery groups and seven Recovery Squadrons have been operating since September 1960.

Current plans call for Reserve Recovery missions to perform inactive duty training and attend a 15-day active duty training tour yearly. In addition CONAC plans to integrate non-prior service airmen into the Recovery program starting in the fiscal year 1963.

Collingsworth county men wishing additional information on membership in the Recovery Squadron can contact either Lt. Col. Sanford or M/Sgt. King.

icians in a hospital any more—so many of the larger ones are so impersonal, he said. And he continued: I am amazed at the remarkable facilities of the physical plant.

My wife decided that I should have special nurses for the first few days of my stay here. These were Mrs. Fern Johns, day nurse, and Mrs. Jean Paschall, night nurse. You never dreamed of such wonderful, cheerful, competent people in their line of work. They just plain spoiled me for ordinary hospital routine even if it is superb.

George Shadid came by and was telling me about the giant hail that fell in Childress last Wednesday. "Were you under cover?" I asked. "Sure, I was in a store." "I mean was the car under cover?" He waved his hands airily. "Oh, the car belonged to Mack Saied Sr."

Another visitor was by to wish me well. After a time the conversation lagged. To start it again I asked brightly: "Have I told you all about my operation?" "No, you haven't, Deck, and I sure appreciate it."

Well that is the way things are. I don't believe I will say much about it, except maybe to people like C. T. Hubbard, Ed Crowder, etc.

Many thanks to all who sent flowers, toiletries, cards, bread, etc. Maybe I will get around to writing thank you notes, but maybe not. I am one of the worst in town in observing this simple courtesy.

By the time you read this I will be at home keeping Old Socks company, since both my wife and son are working.

On my last morning in the hospital, Mrs. Shirley (Robinson) Lodihoff, who graduated from Quail high school in 1954 came by to get my luncheon menu. First I told her I would not be there for lunch. Then I called her back and gave her what I would really like to have for lunch, namely, enchiladas, tacos, hot peppers, and avocado salad. Shirley not only wrote it down, she turned it in with the rest of the menus. I have yet to hear what the cook said when she read the request.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Ratzlow and children, Janis, Linda and Russell, of Phillips, were here during the week end to visit her brothers, James Sullivan and Henry Sullivan, and their families, with other relatives.

A bake sale will be held Saturday, June 27 from 9 a.m. until noon at Wellington Hardware.

Special orders for cakes and pies will be made and those wishing to place orders may contact Judi Bailey or LaQuinta Hollingsworth.

Sylvia will be one of sixty girls from Texas to attend the national FHA meeting.

Members of the family said it will be several weeks before Mrs. Camp will be moved in as some remodeling will be done and a complete redecorating of the house before she moves.

Sisters Enroll for College Work

Mrs. Charles Holman and two younger daughters, Patricia and Rebekah, of Denton, visited here last week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Riggs. Her older daughter, Beverly, and a friend Mary Anne Bonnell of Dallas, were here the week before.

Mrs. Holman will go to Brownwood for a two weeks workshop in radio. She is a graduate student in North Texas State College during the regular term.

The Riggs' other daughter, Mrs. Eldon Wildman, and her two small sons, of Dallas, have gone to Nashville, Tenn., for the summer, where she is enrolling for doctoral entrance courses in special education at George Peabody College.

mountains, and not a hoof on it," the Wellington rancher declared.

They were not impressed with the beef served, and found it poor in quality compared to what they have at home. The fish, on the other hand, were delicious.

Heidelberg, Germany, was another city of surprises for them. Awaiting Mr. and Mrs. Bell at their hotel was a great-niece and her family, stationed with the armed services. Then a few hours later, Marjorie Wilson Barnes, formerly of Quail, and her husband, an Air Force officer, came to visit from their base not too far from Heidelberg.

The young couples showed them many points of interest they otherwise would have missed.

In one sense, London was a disappointment, for it rained the entire time they were there. Nevertheless, they visited the House of Parliament, Westminister, the Tower of London and other points in this historic city, and they almost saw the Queen. She passed before the tour group realized who she was.

The tour itself was divided into four groups, each with about 40 members. As impressive to Mr. and Mrs. Bell as the places they went were the friends they made. These were of all ages, and most came from the Texas Panhandle.

The trip, both to and from Europe, was by jet plane, and the tour is under the sponsorship of the Amarillo News and Globe-Times.

Mrs. Bell took notes on the various trips the group made, and these refresh their memories of a thousand little happenings.

Both were impressed by the cleanliness of the European countries, the lack of trash or litter along highways and the intensiveness with which the land is cultivated.

In Switzerland, they rode a cable car high into the Alps. At other times, in Italy, their train went through tunnels, miles long.

A full evening of visiting doesn't begin to exhaust the memories Mr. and Mrs. Bell have of their European tour. And their memories are as much fun as the trip itself.

TWO TO MARRY

The Michigan Senate voted to keep down at least the initial cost of matrimony. They rejected a bill to increase the marriage license fee from $2 to $3.

Mrs. Oleta Burquist and Adelle were in Amarillo part of last week visiting friends and relatives.

Mrs. Ruth Hightower, who has been attending Bethany College, is home for the summer months.
