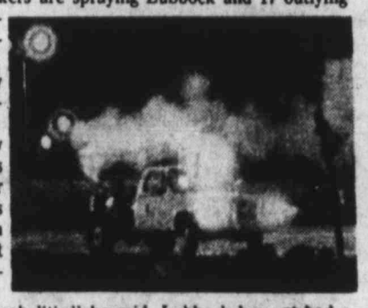
Annual Mosquito War Launched

By NANCY DORN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

MOSQUITO SEASON opened in March and the City Health Department's "mosquito man" E.M. Smith and seven workers are spraying Lubbock and 17 outlying communities nightly to combat the influx of mosquitoes encouraged by the recent rains.



"We have mosquito problems any time you fill up all those playa lakes — it's like clockwork," Smith said.

Four inches of rain in May and a few more in June have filled low-lying areas and made excellent breeding grounds for mosquitoes. Smith said mosquitoes usually hatch five or six days after a hard rain, but that a swarm "won't hit the city for 12 or 13 days later." Mosquito season peaks in July, Smith said.

"Naturally, our main concern is encephalitis," he said. Lubbock has not had a confirmed case of encephalitis (inflamation of the brain) in a human since the 1960s, but traces of the Western Equine virus were found in horses in 1976 and 1977.

More than 300 cases of encephalitis were reported in a mid-1950s epidemic in the Lubbock area. Thirteen deaths were attributed to encephalitis, or "sleeping sickness," in that epidemic.

Smith, director of vector control in the city health department, said an outbreak of encephalitis is still a very real possibility in the Lubbock area.

"We could come up with 400 to 500 cases," he said. "It just depends on the virus population."

Smith said most of the mosquitoes now in the area are not the type that carry encephalitis. In a recent test only 418 of 2,500 mosquitoes were the type of insect that could carry the virus.

"The Aedes floodwater type is the most common," he said, calling this type "prolific biters and just nuisances." No harmful virus has been detected in this strain to date, Smith said.

City Health Department sprayers go out every night this time of the year, Smith said. Lubbock County pays the city to spray countywide.

Sprayers work from 10 p.m. until daylight. "Around here you take your vacation after mosquito season," Smith remarked.

Mosquito spraying will continue until November, when the first frosts will kill

FBI To Aid Strike Control

Carter Backs Reduced Trucking Regulation

A-J Wire Services

PRESIDENT CARTER, declaring that violence and lawlessness will not be tolerated in the truckers' strike, Thursday ordered the FBI to "provide all appropriate assistance" in keeping the nation's highways open.

Meanwhile, the president joined with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., in proposing a bill to reduce government regulation of the trucking industry, which he said would save consumers an estimated $5 billion a year.

In the background of these moves, gunmen hiding in roadside brush and riding in pickup trucks shot up at least 31 trucks in 18 states, Thursday, in a stepped-up effort to shut off the nation's supply of food and fuel.

Other rigs had their windshields smashed by rocks hurled from bridges or lost their tires to nails strewn in the highway. It was the most violent day yet in a nationwide protest by independent truckers over prices, fuel supplies and regulations.

There were no reports of serious injuries.

FBI Director William Webster, appearing at the White House with the president, said agents already were at the scene to investigate the shooting death of an Alabama trucker earlier this week.

"Violence and lawlessness will not be tolerated under any circumstances," Carter said. "Murder, vandalism and physical intimidation are criminal acts, and they will be treated as such."

In announcing his deregulation proposal, Carter told an audience in the packed State Dining Room at the White House, "The best anti-inflation medicine, in my opinion, is the American free enterprise system."

He said deregulation of airlines "already has saved American consumers over $2.5 billion in reduced air fares," while increasing airline profits.

"According to the Council on Wasge and Price Stability, this truck deregulation bill will save consumers $5 billion," he added.

Carter's proposal was opposed by truckline owners and the Teamsters union, which said the present protest by independent truckers is only a sample of the chaos that could result from a completely deregulated industry.

With farmers in the South and West unable to get their fresh foods and meats to market, the president of the Food Marketing Institute, which represents half the nation's grocers, appealed to Carter to take action.

"Food distributors urge the president to take the necessary steps to increase limits on truck length and weights to enable truckers to haul products more economically while conserving fuel," Robert Aders said in a telegram to the president.

Meat packers earlier asked Carter to provide armed guards on caravans to get their products to market. Dairy farmers in Bradford County, Pa., were dumping milk, and vegetables and fruits were rotting in the fields and storage bins of the farmlands of the South.

Spikesman John Epperson said Thursday that three-quarters of Texas' independent truckers are shut down, but no shipments have been affected yet.

Epperson said he represents 585,000 independent truckers, mostly produce haulers, throughout the nation.

He said most trucks on the road in Texas are corporate trucks, though he has seen a couple of trucks heading for the Rio Grande Valley to pick up produce.

"We have asked truckers to permit trucks to go across Texas. They have to cross our state going home," Epperson said.

A uniform weight limit of 80,000 pounds per truck — in place of limits which now vary from state to state —

Burn Unit Okayed For Hospital Despite Warnings On Finances

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

REGIONAL HEALTH planners approved construction of a sophisticated burn unit for the financially troubled Health Sciences Center Hospital Thursday night, despite warnings from a Lubbock County Hospital District official.

The Board of Directors for South Plains Health Systems approved the certificate of need for the four-bed unit — which would cost approximately $182,000 for construction alone.

But the board's approval was a conditional one, including a request that the hospital make sure they could afford to operate the unit before it was built.

Board member Joe Stanley — who also sits on the county hospital district board of managers — abstained from voting on the issue, claiming a conflict of interest. But he warned that financial problems at the hospital made construction of the unit questionable.

"Under the financial conditions we're in, I think the project should be deferred," Stanley said. He added that he was concerned more with the unit's long-range operating costs than the financing of its construction.

Health Sciences administrators are claiming that the primary teaching hospital for the Texas Tech School of Medicine may close its doors in a few months if alternate funding is not secured. The hospital has amassed more than $7 million in uncollected bills since it opened in February 1978.

Approval of the certificate of need does not provide funds for construction or even require that the unit be built. Getting the go-ahead from the board simply means that the counties on the South Plains will have an ongoing need for the services it will provide.

Health services chairman Dr. John Selby noted that members of the projects committee that originally studied the proposal also had expressed hesitancy to approve funding in light of the hospital's financial crunch.

"If the hospital closes, there will be

Roloff Backers Foil Takeover Of Homes

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — The state official in charge of closing down the church homes of evangelist Lester Roloff admitted Thursday that the large show of resistance by Roloff supporters has thwarted his efforts.

At the same time Roloff came under criticism by a Baptist minister in charge of an association dealing with mostly church-run — and licensed — homes in Texas.

About 300 Roloff supporters, rallying behind a one-armed, one-eyed former Marine in uniform with his flag and Bible, gathered Thursday morning at Roloff's People's Church, prepared to resist state workers from shutting down the homes and carting off the children.

At a Thursday afternoon news conference, Marlin Johnston, associate commissioner for the Department of Human Relations, in charge of closing the homes, admitted that the Roloff supporters' actions have stalled the effort.

"We did not feel we could go in without a major confrontation," he said. This echoed what Gov. Bill Clements told newsmen earlier in the day in Austin. He said there would be no violent confrontation.

Johnston had met with Roloff at the homes briefly Wednesday before deciding not to bring his 100-member task force to the homes.

"We seriously considered going in but we took a look at the number of people and the volume of the crowd and in my judgment it would have been dangerous," he said.

A horde of Roloff supporters had blockaded the entrance to the church. Residents of the homes were inside the church.

Johnston said the state agency has been told by Attorney General Mark White that the Austin judge who ordered the closing of the homes has decided

Hijacker Surrenders At Airport In Ireland

SHANNON, Ireland (AP) — An anti-communist Serbian nationalist, who hijacked a New York-Chicago flight with 127 passengers aboard, surrendered to Irish police Thursday after switching to a larger jet in New York and flying across the Atlantic with his lawyer, authorities said.

The passengers had already been freed in Chicago, after the first leg of the hijacker's 22-hour journey.

Authorities said it began when Nikola Kavaja, carrying what he said was dynamite, commandeered an American Airlines Boeing 727 en route to Chicago in an abortive bid to free a jailed compatriot, the Rev. Stojilko Kajevic, a Serbian Orthodox priest.

The two men, plus four other Serbs, were arrested last November in connection with alleged bombing and assassination plots.

Irish police said that when it was all over, explosives experts took explosive device" off the plane that flew the Atlantic — a Boeing 707 — after Kavaja surrendered peacefully.

Police Superintendent Tom Kelly said that a small amount of explosive, believed to be gelignite, had been retrieved. Gelignite is a blasting mixture that includes nitroglycerin.

Earlier, FBI agent John Otto said in Chicago that Kavaja had "a number of sticks of dynamite" in a bag with a "hand grenade simulator" as a detonator.

Kavaja, 45, was free on bond and was on his way back to Chicago from New York to be sentenced for his part in the 1975 bombing of the Yugoslav consul in Chicago when, the FBI said, he hijacked the 727.

Kavaja and his friends allegedly belong to a Serbian terrorist organization known as SEPO, after the Serbo-Croatian words for "Freedom for the Serbian Fatherland." It seeks independence for the region from the Yugoslav communist regime of President Josip Broz Tito.

The passengers and five of the eight crew members on the 727 were freed in Chicago, where Kavaja's lawyer joined the odyssey. They flew to New York and switched to the longer-range 707, with a fresh crew of three.

At one point, the hijacker said he wanted to go to Peru. But once in New York, officials said, Kavaja apparently had decided to head for Johannesburg, South Africa, after a refueling stop in Shannon.

Soon after landing at Shannon, on Ireland's west coast, however, Kavaja walked off the silver and red 707 accompanied by the lawyer, David Boeschich.

Officials said there had been a two-way radio exchange with Irish officials in the airport tower, in which the details of Kavaja's surrender were worked out.

As the airliner taxied to a halt a half-mile from the airport terminal, the tower radioed the plane: "We want the hi-

Another City Man Arrested In Drug Case

A 27-YEAR-OLD Lubbock man, named in the sixth sealed indictment returned by a federal grand jury June 7, was arrested by Drug Enforcement Administration agents Thursday.

Following the arrest of Robert Wayne Lindley of 1921 39th St., U.S. attorneys unsealed the indictment which accuses Lindley of conspiring with others to distribute methamphetamine and five counts of possession of the drug, also known as "speed," with intent to distribute it.

The multi-count indictment was the last of six sealed indictments returned by the 18-member federal panel two weeks ago.

DEA agents arrested Lindley about 11 a.m. in Lubbock and he appeared before U.S. Magistrate Bill Brister at 2:30 p.m. Brister set a $25,000 bond for the defendant, who was transferred to Hale County Jail in Plainview by U.S. marshals.

The indictment alleges that Lindley and "divers other persons whose names are to the grand jury unknown" entered into the conspiracy to distribute methamphetamine "on or about prior to May 8, 1978."

Lindley made a trip to Dallas earlier this year, the indictment charges, "in furtherance of said conspiracy." The five possession of methamphetamine with intent to distribute counts cite specific dates in May, July, September and October 1978 and January 1979.

Slightly more than 8 1/4 ounces of the drug was listed as the amount of methampetamine involved in the five possession counts.

Lindley is scheduled for arraignment before U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward at 8:30 a.m. Monday.

Torrid Weather Encore Certain

ISOLATED thunderstorms skirted north Lubbock County Thursday evening, but made no dent in Lubbock's scorching weather.

The National Weather Service recorded a high of 102 degrees in Lubbock at 4:30 p.m. two hours later the mercury still stood at 100. Humidity readings hovered in the 20 percent range during the hottest hours.

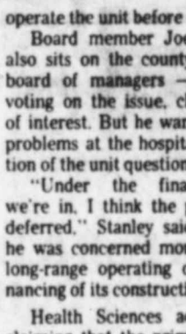
Today is guaranteed to be another scorcher, with afternoon temperatures in the upper 90s. Southerly winds 10 to 15 mph are forecast and no rain is anticipated.

Tonight's lows should be in the upper 60s.

Dean Of Tech's Nursing School Undismayed By Fundless Future

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

WHEN THE governor axed funding for a Texas Tech School of Nursing last week, it left the university with a nursing school dean, but no money to operate a school of nursing.



DR. LANGFORD

Officials say they haven't "fully discussed all the ramifications," but one thing is clear — the elimination of the school's funds clearly took Tech by surprise.

Dr. Teddy Langford was named dean in February when officials felt confident the state would provide funding for a nursing school.

Her annual $43,000 salary began June 1, three weeks before the governor used his line item veto power to eliminate the nursing school's funds.

Dr. Richard Lockwood, vice president of Health Sciences Centers (of which the nursing school is a part), and Dr. Cecil Mackey, Tech president, will meet Monday to discuss, as Lockwood said, "what we now need to do."

Two choices seem apparent. Either the university will obtain some operating funds for the nursing school by trimming other university budget items or officials may discuss the feasibility of continuing the salary of a dean who has no school.

Without nursing school money to provide her salary, Tech administrators changed Dr. Langford's title to assistant to the vice president of Health Sciences Centers so that she could be paid.

Her paychecks now are drawn from the general administration portion of the Health Sciences Centers budget, which covers administrative salaries, offices, accounting, purchasing and other services shared by the Health Sciences Centers and the university.

Both Mackey and Ken Thompson, vice president for finance and administration, are out of town and could not be reached for comment on what services in general administration will be cut to provide Dr. Langford's salary.

Having no state funds "obviously (is) going to be a setback," Dr. Langford said, but she also noted she isn't the type to "fold at the first difficulty."

Others add that Dr. Langford also isn't the type to twiddle her thumbs for the next two years in hopes that the school will be funded for the 1982-83 biennium. They believe she soon will be announcing her resignation.

As one person said, "If I had seen my ship sunk, I'd get off the boat."

But Dr. Langford talks with diplomacy and optimism of her "challenging" job and says she can spend the next two years in planning and hopes that the school will be funded at that time.

Six months is the minimum lead time required before opening a nursing school. Before the governor's budget veto, officials had planned about a year lead time before admitting the first class in the fall of 1980.

That class is now canceled, but Dr. Langford said, "I don't feel it's hopeless." She said collecting data is important in developing a new school and that she will have time now to fully prepare for the school's opening.

Clements vetoed the nursing school on the grounds that "enrollment and growth potential of existing programs is adequate" and therefore "establishment of a nursing school at Texas Tech University is not necessary at this time."

Dr. Langford, however, said she believes the governor's information on the subject "was not sufficiently complete."

"Nurses tend to cluster where they complete their education," she said in explanation of why Lubbock needs a

Scientists Reveal Electrical Pollution Phenomenon In Air

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new type of pollution, invisible thunderstorms of highly charged electrical particles, is being generated by devices installed in smokestacks to clean the air, according to government scientists.

The scientists speculated that inceasing airborne electricity could affect the amount of rainfall, and they cautioned that little is known about the effect on plant and animal life of electrical charges in the air.

They added, however, that it would be surprising if organisms in the area of such electrical chages were not affected in some way.

The scienists said the anti-pollution devices are very efficient, removing 99.8 percent of the particulates which would otherwise be released into the air.

But, they added,some very small, negatively charged particles still escape and are transported downwind where they add their charge to the normal atmospheric electrical condition.

Measurements taken from an aircraft about 800 feet downwind from smokestacks recorded an atmspheric electrical charge equivalent to that in a thunderstorm, the scientists said. And the electrical charge plume from one power plant was observed to extend more than 50 miles at one time.

Smokestack anti-pollution equipment already in use could produce a total electric charge in the air equivalent to that generated by 40 thunderstorms all at the same time, according to a study by the National Oceanic and Atospheric Administration.

The scientists said this is equivalent to about 3 percent of the atmospheric electric charge normally generated by thunderstorms, but they predicted that the amount will rise as more anti-pollution devices go into service.

The study was conducted by William Cobb, Billy Caldwell and Dennis Wellman of NOAA's Atmospheric Physics and Chemistry Laboratory in Boulder, Colo.

They report that electrostatic precipitators, devices which effectively reduce the fly ash from smokestacks, create plumes of these highly charged particles that elude pollution control equipment. These precipitators had been installed in 10,000 chimneys at coal-fired power plants worldwide by 1970, the study reported.

The scientists said it would take about 250 smokestacks to equal the electrical charge of one thunderstorm.

Thunderstorms, of which there are normally about 1,500 underway worldwide at any moment, play an important part in the earth's electrical circuit. Positive charges carried from the air to earth in fair weather areas are returned to the ionosphere in thunderstorm areas.

"The possibility exists that the increasing production of electrical charge in the atmosphere may at some point affect the global circuit current," they said.

The introducton of charged particles into the air could be similar to cloud seeding, Caldwell explained.

Bentsen Asks Residency Status For Mennonites

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, who described 653 West Texas Mennonites as "temperate, devout and peaceful," Thursday urged the Senate Judiciary Committee to take quick action on his bill extending them permanent residency status.

In his letter to the committee's chairman, Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., Bentsen said most of the religious settlers fled Mexico in the spring of 1977 under threat of land expropriation. Other Mennonites immigrated to the Seminole area from Canada.

The Mennonites arrived with temporary visas, Bentsen wrote, believing "that if they were to come to the United States and purchase land, they would be allowed to remain and would not be subject to deportation."

"Unfortunately, the group had been misinformed and they found themselves subject to the possibility of deportation, despite their numerous good faith efforts to comply with American law," he said.

The Mennonites originally were told by the Immigration and Naturalization Service they would have to leave the country by January 1978, but the deadline was eliminated when legislation sponsored by Bentsen and then Sen. James Eastland, D-Miss., was introduced to grant them permanent resident status.

The bill died, however, when the 95th Congress adjourned without acting on it. Meanwhile, the INS set a new departure deadline of February 1979.

Again this year, INS set aside its deadline after Bentsen announced he would introduce another bill. That legislation, which Bentsen urged the committee to consider favorably, would grant permament residence status to the Mennonites living in and near Seminole.

"They came to this country with the hope of practicing their religious faith and contributing to their new home," Bentsen said.

"They received, and continue to receive, strong support from members of the community they settled in. It is hoped that this bill will remedy some of the severe problems that have afflicted these 653 temperate, devout and peaceful people."

Robbery Suspect Breaks Jail

PLAINVIEW (Special) -A 29-year-old Hale County prisoner who was arrested Tuesday in connection with the armed robbery of an Edmonson store, managed to walk away from the minimum security section of the jail Thursday afternoon.

According to Hale County Sheriff Charles Tue, the escapee, identified as Lavett Tinner of Plainview, walked away in a crowd of visitors around 2 p.m. Thursday.

"Due to overcrowded conditions in our jail, he (Tinner) was housed in the minimum security section of the jail," the sherif said.

Tinner was taken into custody in Plainview Tuesday about an hour after a reported armed robbery at Page Food Store in Edmonson. He and another man identified as Charles Blacksnake, 25, of Plainview were charged with aggravated armed robbery and bonds of $25,000 were set on each by Justice of the Peace Glenn Stone.

The black male was last seen wearing blue jeans and a blue t-shirt. Tue said Tinner was sporting a mustache but indicated the suspect might have shaved it off.

Tinner was also charged with burglary of a habitation this week and now faces additional charges of escape, Tue noted.

Tinner reportedly told other inmates "he would rather be dead than go back to prison," Tue said Thursday afternoon.

City, county and state authorities were notified of the escape around 2:50 p.m. Thursday after a jail trustee alerted deputies. Blacksnake remains in the maximum security section of the county jail.

Agency Wants Firm To File Reports

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Securities and Exchange Commission filed a court motion Thursday aimed at forcing Schick Inc., of Westport, Conn., to file periodic reports with the commission.

The SEC charged that the company, which makes hair driers, electric shavers and other personal care products, failed to file an annual report with the SEC for the fiscal year ended last Feb. 28. The deadline for the report was May 29.

The SEC said Schick failed to file annual and quarterly reports when they were due over several years.

Carter May Propose International Energy Fund

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter may propose during next week's economic summit in Japan the establishment of an international energy fund of as much as $10 billion to develop synthetic fuels as an alternative to oil, an administration official said Thursday.

"The idea is that there ought to be a greater degree of government involvement to reduce the risk" of commercial investments in developing such fuels as solar energy and gasified coal, the official said.

"We are seeking a collective way to bring new technologies out more rapidly," said the official, who briefed reporters on the summit on the understanding he would not be identified. He said no final decision had been made on such a proposal.

The Tokyo meeting will be held against the background of "an increasingly urgent need for broader international management of the world economy" to keep it from sliding into chaos, the official said.

President Carter leaves Saturday on a 12-day trip that will include the economic summit on June 28-29, official visits to Japan and South Korea and a vacation stop in Hawaii over the Fourth of July holiday.

The official who briefed reporters said the ability of the world leaders to deal with the energy crisis will provide a key test of whether industrial nations can meet the challenges of a changing world.

"There is a very basic transformation in the international economy, as well as the political order," said the official. "The choice we all face is whether this transformation will be stable and peaceful, or whether it will become increasingly chaotic."

The Tokyo summit will be in session just 48 hours after the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries meets in Geneva to decide whether to increase world oil prices again.

Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal said Wednesday that if OPEC keeps pushing up prices, which have already risen 35 percent since last year, it could push the world into a recession.

The official who briefed reporters Thursday said the oil crisis is the major example of the transformation under way in the world economy. Another is "the profound structural changes in the character of the international economy."

Major changes in lifestyles of Americans and other peoples are inevitable, the official said.

The most urgent U.S. need is to reduce imports in the short term and then to increase energy production to correct the current imbalance between supply and demand that is causing OPEC to raise prices, he said.

The official ruled out any confrontation tactics by consuming nations against OPEC.

A buyers' cartel-type negotiating group would "not be a particularly useful way of approaching the issue at this point," he said. "We are not rejecting dialogue with OPEC...we are stressing the need for cooperation."

Another official acknowledged there is disagreement among the nations at the summit over suggestions that they try to negotiate a ceiling price for oil with OPEC. "There is a problem with the ceiling on price, because different countries have different needs," he said.

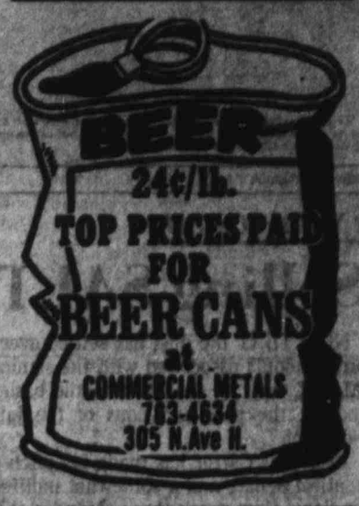
But the official emphasized the hope that the summit will succeed in advancing cooperation among Europe, North American and Japan, which he said is the "source of stability for the international economic system."

"The summit itself is a recognition that collaborative measures are urgently needed," he said.

The official said Carter's visit to Japan and Korea reflects the "emerging role of Asia in world affairs." He said the visit also will demonstrate that "the United States remains actively involved as a Pacific power."

In Korea, he said, Carter will visit both Korean and American troops in a move that "underlines our commitment, an unaltered commitment, to the security and defense of South Korea."

A major issue to be discussed with the Koreans, the official acknowledged, is the withdrawal of American troops. Some troops have been withdrawn, against the wishes of the Korean government. But the official said the United States is currently reviewing intelligence data concerning the military strength of North Korea. He indicated the outcome of the review could determine whether the U.S. troop withdrawals continue.



President Announces Trip To China

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says he intends to visit China within the first half of 1980.

Carter made the statement in an interview with the Japanese Broadcasting Corp. Wednesday. The White House released a transcript of the interview Thursday.

"I would like to visit China within the next 12 months," the president said. "I will not go this year. ... But I have received an invitation ... and I have told them that when the occasion permits, hopefully within the next 12 months, I would like to visit China."

Shortly before the transcript was released, White House press seretary Jody Powellannounced hat Vice President Walter F. Mondale will make an official visit to China in August as Carter's personal representative.

Powell said the Mondale trip should not be considered a substitute for a presidential visit, but he gave no indication when Carter was likely to travel to China.

A trip to China in the first six months of 1980 would coincide with the presidential primary season. Carter is an unannounced candidate for re-election in 1980. The head of his re-election committee has said the president intends to enter every primary.

Looking ahead to his upcoming trip to Tokyo, the president said he and Japanese Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira will discuss an energy program to present to leaders of other industrialized nations who will gather there for an economic summit June 28 and 29.

Carter leaves Saturday for Toyko and will make a state visit to Japan before the economic summit. Other countries participating are Canada, Italy, West Germany, Great Britain, and France.

"Obviously we will have to explore new ways to conserve energy, to cut down on waste and to reduce our dependence in the future on imported oil," Carter said.

"What we want is predictability, conservation, new sources of energy, and closer consultation and cooperation between our countries," he added.

The president said the summit "will go down in history as the first multi-national conference at which the energy question has been explored so deeply. It is long overdue."

As a scientist, the president said expects the highlight of his visit to be meeting Emperor Hirohito, a marine biologist and poet.

"I have a scientific background myself," he said, "and so that is one reason that I am very excited about having a chance to meet him personally."

Jazz Festival Kicks Off

NEW YORK (AP) — The "kickoff event" for this year's Newport Jazz Festival in New York will feature Benny Goodman, who was 80 in May, and a group of high school musicians from New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, playing a couple of numbers they rehearsed on Wednesday.

Host will be Mayor Edward Koch, at gracie Mansion, Friday noontime.

Last year, on the Sunday before the 25th anniversary Newport Jazz Festival, President Jimmy Carter hosted a kickoff event at which a variety of musicians played for three hours. There, Dizzy Gillespie called on the President to proclaim the lyrics of "Salt Peanuts."

This year, Dizzy plays on opening night of the festival, Friday, at Carnegie Hall. Anybody who wants to start the festival with something more modern than hearing this architect of bebop can go farther uptown, to the Symphony Space, and hear pianist Cecil Taylor and Sun Ra and his Arkestra.

From then on, through July 1, jazz of many stripes will be heard in those two locations, plus Lioln Center, Radio City Music Hall, the Society for Ethical Culture and St. Peter's Lutheran Church. There will be tributes to Hoagy Carmichael and to Muddy Waters, who will attend, to the late Billie Holiday and to "black Broadway." Eubie Blake, Alberta Hunter, Mabel Mercer, Adelaide Hall, John W. Bubbles and Honi Coles are among those who will appear there, who remember a good deal of black Broadway history.

Officials Outline Arrest Of Henley

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Pasadena police officers and a municipal judge outlined to a jury Thursday procedures used when they arrested mass murder defendant Elmer Wayne Henley.

The investigation that night in August 1973 led to the eventual discovery of 26 bodies.

Officer J.B. Jamison told how Henley, then 17, told them where there were more bodies.

Henley's revelation eventually led to the recovery of the remains of 26 boys buried in three mass grave sites in and near Houston.

AN EDITORIAL:

Selling SALT II Through Fear

NOW THAT the dust has settled over the formal hoopla associated with the signing of SALT II, we can get down to the basics of studying the pros and cons of the fateful document.

President Carter has made his pitch to a skeptical Senate and a somewhat indifferent populace. How much those attitudes change in the next few weeks may determine whether the pact is ratified "as is" or with major or minor changes.

Out of it all, however, one thing has emerged in early talk, from Soviet Leader Leonid Brezhnev and Mr. Carter—and that is SALT should be approved because of what might happen if it isn't.

IT IS WHAT amounts of a psychology of a "fear of rejection," The Wall Street Journal notes.

In other words, if the Senate flatly rejects the package or makes such changes in it that the Russians do, then the consequences could be dire indeed is the pitch.

For a nation where certain segments of the populace took to the streets in emotional reaction to the Three Mile Island incident, the "fear" ploy is a powerful one. After all, who wants to turn into an atomic toasty?

But, the sermonizing that if SALT II is not approved in toto the Russians will send the world up in a puff of atomic anger tomorrow is falacious on the surface.

Russians, like their counterparts who do believe in God and a hereafter, still want to live now.

BUT, THERE is no question but that one of the major arguments for Senate approval of the controversial package will be "what will happen if we don't..."

The first thing, of course, would be that the Soviets would make a big propaganda thing out of it. That is, unless the U.S. was smart enough to counter such a reaction ahead of time.

The second thing is that the arms race would continue more or less unabated. Not surprisingly, both Moscow and the U.S. are going to be busy amassing new nuclear weapons while ostensibly dismantling others.

While we are hopefully coming up with deployment of the new MX mobile missile—although far later than we should—along with the cruise missile, Russia will be doing likewise in another area.

UNDER SALT II, Moscow will be required to deactivate some 250 missile silos. But, in the same move, the Reds can add some 5,000 warheads to existing weapons.

The argument is made if SALT II is rejected, Russia will react by shutting off emigration of Jews and other groups, and especially dissidents, completely.

It is also said that Moscow would step up its adventures in such trouble spots as Africa and the Middle East.

And there is the outside chance the hotheads in the Kremlin might even arrange a serious confrontation of sorts.

BUT, THERE is no proof any of this would happen.

Also, such a "doomsday" premise is based on the Soviet reaction. Hopefully, the U.S. would not be idle in such a circumstance.

The point to remember here is that while SALT I, which also was supposed to impose restraints on both Russia and U.S. atomic arsenals, and make Detente a household word from the Potomac to the Volga, it did nothing of the sort.

It is now known that the Russians cheated extensively under the terms of SALT I, increasing their heavy payload space missiles, moving silos, building up their naval and air forces.

Too, it was during the period of SALT I that Moscow, in concert with Communist Cuba, extended by bloody force its tentacles into South Vietnam, Laos, Cambodia, Angola, Ethiopia, Afghanistan, South Yemen and to a degree in Iran.

This is peaceful co-existence between two old friends!

NO, WHAT it all boils down to is that SALT II should be studied, exposed, debated and taken apart from every conceivable angle.

The truth is that about the only restraint Moscow will be under under SALT II is an economic one. Even a Communist "paradise" can spend just so much on weapons instead of butter.

The bottom line, then, should be "Does SALT II really enhance world peace, does it assure U.S. security beyond a shadow of a doubt and can we live with it?"

Fear of rejection is the worst of all reasons to vote "for" SALT II. This nation's security is the only measure to use.

Sweet On Treats

AMERICANS may not be cutting down on their consumption of gasoline, but they are on another popular commodity.

They're eating less candy. Commerce Department statisticians, adding up national production of sweets during 1978 and dividing by population, come up with a per capita consumption of 14.9 pounds. That's down from 15.4 pounds the previous year.

But a jawbreaker declined does not necessarily work out to a nickel saved. Increases in the costs of most of the ingredients meant that although total candy production was down, total price paid by the public for indulging millions of sweet teeth was up—by some $22 million.

How sweet inflation isn't.

M. STANTON EVANS:

Party Unfaithful Put Kennedy In Spotlight

MINNEAPOLIS—Dissident Democrats from the upper Midwest and elsewhere across the nation are trying to start a prairie fire behind Sen. Edward Kennedy—with dubious prospects of success.

Last weekend, some 300 party faithful disenchanted with President Carter gathered here to promote a Kennedy bid for President in 1980.

In the forefront of the rally, billed as a meeting of "Minnesotans for a Democratic Alternative," was Rep. Richard Nolan, an extremely liberal Democrat from the central area of the state.

Appearing with him was Rep. Edward Beard of Rhode Island, one of five House Democrats to have ventured an open break with Carter over the 1980 nomination.

The gathering was heavily covered by the national media, including the TV networks, the Washington Post, and the Washington Star.

THIS TYPICALLY intensive coverage of anything to do with Kennedy—replete with TV film of fervently applauding members of the audience—conveyed the impression that a Kennedy boom is in the making.

Such a boom could possibly develop in the future, of course, but the present reality inside the Democratic Party, in Minnesota and most other places, is at present rather different.

To begin with, the turnout at last weekend's rally wasn't that impressive. Rep. Nolan sent out 8,000 invitations to the meeting, so an assemblage of 300 or so was not exactly earth-shaking.

Also, the conspicuous absence of public officials in higher office, excepting Nolan and Beard, suggests the usual reluctance of party functionaries to come out on the firing line against a sitting President.

This problem is intensified in Minnesota, whose Democratic Farmer Labor Party contains numerous liberals in sympathy with Kennedy, had they the luxury of a free choice in the matter.

BUT THE DFL's Walter Mondale is Carter's Vice President, and an open break with the Administration would at this point be perceived as an embarrassment to a native son.

None of which is to deny the problems Carter faces in this state, and numerous others, or the latent strength of Sen. Kennedy. The Nolan rally was an obvious portent of unrest, whatever its practical impact on the nomination process.

The numerous polls of recent months that show the President trailing Kennedy in party popularity and public favor indicate the same thing.

IT IS ALWAYS tough to defeat an incumbent President in his party, whatever his asserted deviations from accepted orthodoxy, and whatever his popularity ratings.

Gerald Ford, Richard Nixon, and Lyndon Johnson are proof of that. It is sometimes forgotten that LBJ was not defeated in 1968, only wounded—and that, in fact, the Johnson elements controlled the party convention of that year.

If memory serves, the eventual nominee was Johnson's second-in-command, Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota.

Even assuming these problems can be overcome, however, and that Kennedy could succeed in toppling Carter from within, the question arises as to what the nomination would then be worth.

The party would be badly split by such an exercise. Carter loyalists in the South could be expected to jump ship or stay home on election day, and the Republicans generally would stand to benefit.

THESE ARE THOUGHTS that must occur to Kennedy—even as he seeks to distance himself from the Administration and/or leverage it in his direction.

A further thought must be that by simply waiting until 1984, when he will still be a relatively young man, Kennedy could, on present readings, have the nomination free and clear: No internal squabbling, no spoiler's role, no open bitterness from the adherents of an ousted President.

A number of factors could change all these considerations—foremost among them the possibility that California's Gov. Jerry Brown might lead an anti-Carter charge next year and threaten to take the play away from Kennedy.

In that event, the senator could find his hand is being forced and have to throw his present caution to the winds.

'Back To The SALT Mines...'

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

Coy Won't Cut It

NOVAK

CONCORD, N.H.—Worried Democratic leaders of New Hampshire are passing pointed hints that if Sen. Edward M. Kennedy continues his coyness about 1980, he may soon suffer political retribution.

Certainly, no anti-Kennedy campaign is being plotted today by the President's men.

But implicit in the whispers about political retribution is the prospect that President Carter's forces would for the first time encourage attacks on Kennedy based on his familiar vulnerabilities, starting with Chappaquiddick.

One informed estimate says 90 percent of the state's elected Democrats would jump to Kennedy's side at Cater's expense—if and when the senator announces for President.

But since he clearly has no intention of doing that, there is apprehension among the state party leaders that the Kennedy cloud over New Hampshire's first-in-the-nation presidential primary is endangering hard-won Democratic gains in this Republican state.

Thus, there is growing impatience for Kennedy to end the suspense. Among such Carter backers as state Rep. Chris Spirou, that means Kennedy owes it to his party to change his backhanded support for the President into a firm endorsement—if he really is not running himself.

Spirou, Democratic leader in the House of Representatives, is characteristically outspoken.

"The senator keeps telling everyone he is for Jimmy Carter," Spirou told us. "It is about time he came to New Hampshire to campaign for the President and let us hear it from him personally."

REMARKABLE THOUGH this challenge is, it will not make much impression on Teddy Kennedy.

Kennedy intimates here and elsewhere agree on only one element of the senator's future course: he will do or say nothing to move either into or out of the 1980 presidential sweepstakes until after Labor Day.

That attitude by the man who is the overwhelming presidential choice of New Hampshire Democrats makes more difficult the commitment to Carter by party leaders such as Gov. Hugh Gallen.

Gallen, the upset winner in last fall's election, called a closed-door meeting of his county chairmen in mid-May and laid out his position on the primary:

For Carter all the way with no possibility of switching to Kennedy or anybody else.

GALLEN'S LOVE of Carter, in the words of one intimate, is strictly political business—in response to Carter's help in last fall's campaign and conspicuous federal goodies ever since. But that does not make the governor's position any less difficult.

Consequently, he has made no effort to crack the whip on other party leaders.

The fact is many of them would fall to the steps of the state capitol on their knees in gratitude if Kennedy would switch to active candidate from his present role as one of the biggest political teasers in history.

But there are no Democrats here, for or against Kennedy, who believe that the senator will do that any time soon, if ever. In prospect is a continuation of Kennedy smiling and biding his time.

AT A JUNE 11 meeting of the State Democratic Executive Committee, Kennedy's coyness was the subject of criticism for the first time—led by Jack Meehan, chairman of Hillsborough County, the state's most populous.

Meehan told us the following day that Kennedy will confront a "blacklash" if he does not clarify his 1980 intentions.

"I think the senator is near his saturation point right now," Meehan said. "Kennedy is good and hot, but he is not so good that he can keep us on a razor edge much longer. Some party people think the blacklash is starting."

From this emerge the hints of retribution. The Kennedy specter hovering over the primary campaign fires up emotional reactions from Carter followers fearful of an adverse impact on New Hampshire Democrats up for re-election in 1980:

GOV. GALLEN, Sen. John A. Durkin (uncommitted in the presidential primary) and Rep. Norman D'Amours (also uncommitted).

If the Kennedy write-in now being planned by liberal activists is not stamped out by Kennedy, there is a possibility of both Kennedy and California's Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. coming in ahead of Carter, with the party's top echelon split and humiliated.

Correctly or not New Hampshire Democratic leaders see that as a threat to all they have won here, and they are beginning to blame Teddy in advance.

ANDREW TULLY:

Teddy In A Draft?

WASHINGTON—Although the Presidential election is still more than a year away, voices are being raised and wattles are swelling redly as Jimmy Carter and Teddy Kennedy dance about the ring in the preliminary bout.

At the White House, Carter's people are furious at Kennedy for refusing to come clean and announce he won't run for Top Banana under any circumstances, even as he keeps saying he'll support Carter for the Democratic nomination. Meanwhile, there is squabbling between two wings of the Kennedy party.

"If Teddy's not going to run, why all the coyness?" asks a Carter lieutenant.

Old Kennedy supporters talk almost as tough. They're annoyed at what they call "those opportunists" who are putting together a draft-Kennedy movement in various states.

THEY'RE WILLING to get behind a Kennedy candidacy, but only if Kennedy publicly admits he's running.

Then there is the concern of the Democratic professionals that if Kennedy keeps playing The Perils of Pauline he'll divide the party and elect a Republican President.

John White, the Democratic National Chairman, spelled out this danger the other day when he told reporters all the horsing around could produce an independent Democratic candidate who would steal votes from the national ticket.

White noted that former Sen. Gene McCarthy's candidacy in 1976 lost Carter the electoral votes in four states—California, Iowa, Maine and Oregon. Gerald Ford won all those states because McCarthy's name was on the ballot.

THE PROBLEM, of course, is that Kennedy refuses to issue a Sherman-like statement disavowing any interest in the Presidency next year. He keeps saying Carter will be nominated and that he'll support his President.

But by refusing to take himself out of the race, he's encouraging the draft-Kennedy people, who logically interpret his position as saying maybe he'll give it a shot in 1980.

Obviously, Kennedy is playing coy because he lacks faith in a Carter candidacy. Given the polls that show Carter's popularity at a low ebb, Kennedy can be forgiven for wondering whether Jimmy could be re-elected.

This is not the sort of talk calculated to produce a peace treaty between the two camps.

KENNEDY TOLD White that he knows of no liberal alternative to Carter and said he intends to support the President against California's Gov. Jerry Brown or any other Democratic opponent.

"What Kennedy was saying, in effect, was that he wouldn't reject a draft," said a White aide. "How the hell else can you figure out his cuteness?"

So the anger and resentment builds up on both sides, while Republicans named Reagan, Connally, etc. giggle all the way to their next fund-raising dinner.

If Teddy Kennedy, with his enormous popularity, has his doubts about Jimmy Carter, the GOP could make a race of it next year by nominating Attila the Hun.

JAY HARRIS:

The Tax Bite...

THE EXPRESSION "the natives are restless tonight" may well apply to a certain segment of Lubbock's citizenry this week.

In the wake of the annual wave of tax reappraisal notices which hit the mails in recent days, some old wounds, complaints and threats are being voiced.

In brief, to quote one homeowner, "a lot of people are damned unhappy with the huge increases..."

It was about this time a year ago that the same drums of discontent were heard. The echoes then had been given credence by Proposition 13 in California, and culminated in Lubbock's own Tax Protest.

As a result, the City Tax rate was cut appreciably, the School rate less than it should have been. The action benefited all residents, although it didn't eliminate protests by homeowners and businessmen whose property valuations had been boosted.

THIS YEAR, we have the Same Song, Second Verse, with variations on the chorus.

Not only are many residents "fighting mad" about 50 to 80 percent increases in the values of their homes for tax purposes, but others are complaining about "unnecessary cuts" in city services, including brush and trash pickups.

It's a no-win situation for both the homeowner and city officials in some ways.

People at City Hall and the City-School Tax office were braced for the fallout. The reappraisal notices went to more than 20,000 property owners in an area north of 34th Street and west of University Avenue and those with homes south of 50th and between University and Avenue P.

Commercial property south of 34th Street and west of University also was reappraised this year.

AS THE NOTICES went out, Assessor-Collector John Brooks said that boosts in the assessed valuation—60 percent of market value—of homes went up between 20 and 80 percent.

Older, more expensive houses bore the brunt of the largest increases. The Cain Terrace, Rush and Westgate areas were among those hardest hit, with most increases ranging from 56 to 83.9 percent.

In most instances, this will mean a hefty dollar boost when the tax bills are mailed out this Fall.

There are a number of aspects to the tax hassle, including the obvious one: Inflation. No one argues but that the cost of building a home has soared in recent years. Or that the value of older homes also has increased. But, at that point—how much and over what period—there is a wide divergence of opinion.

ANOTHER ASPECT of the tax picture is that some of those hit by reappraisals last year take the attitude of "Well, they got me last year, now it's your turn."

Such a stance is understandable. But it doesn't solve the problem. At some point in time, the vicious cycle of constantly upgrading property, particularly homes, must come to a halt. At some point in time, taxes will be equal to what the house payments are!

Many elderly people on fixed incomes already face hardships because of tax boosts they never anticipated when planning their retirement. And the increases in utilities, food and now fuel and gasoline are playing hob with such budgets.

It is easy to make the point that boosts in taxes and gasoline this year alone will gouge deeply into all family budgets. As one irate homeowner said: "The more the tax man and the others take, the less my family has to spend on clothing, autos, appliances and other items, including the extras." It is the stuff of which recessions and depressions are made.

THERE IS another side to the tax coin, of course.

It is that it takes money to run a city, a state and the federal bureaucracy. It shouldn't take what it does, and wouldn't if the people didn't make the demands they do, or the bureaucrats and politicians didn't try to buy the votes they do.

But, competent public servants, policemen, firemen, City Hall workers, all have to make a living. They also face the same inflationary pressures the rest of us do. They also pay taxes.

At the same time some homeowners were calling in or dropping in to complain of the reappraisals, we got some calls and a letter concerning "trash, limbs, Christmas trees and such" piling up in the alleys. "Why can't the city do something about this?" was the plea.

Well, trash pickup was one of the "services" cut in last year's budget because the lower tax rate meant less revenue, City officials say. Ditto for street lights.

SO, WHAT is the answer, one might ask.

Where did things get off the track? How do they get back on?

As for the tax reappraisals, we feel that many are out of line, especially in a "down" or buyers' market. Housing prices may have peaked. Appraisals set at today's levels for four years obviously are out of line. In fact, events of the past few months have changed the whole economic outlook.

Also, just because a neighborhood seems to be affluent does not mean that every house in a given block or area also is like all others. Far from it. "Windshield" appraisals, if that were the case, can be misleading.

It may be that some other tax base needs to be broadened to reimburse cities and take up the slack created by relief for homeowners. The sales tax, on a city basis, has appeal for many in this respect.

In the meantime, several days in July have been set aside for Boards of Equalization to hear complaints. It may not do any good, and then it might. But, one thing is for sure. Sooner or later, the people on both sides of those tables are going to pay dearly for the monster of ever-spiraling taxes...

L.M. BOYD:

...Pass It On

Q. I JUST saw a line in the paper that read, "Back in the days when gasoline was cheaper than rum..." How far back is that?

A. Pretty far back. And long before gasoline. Rum in 1802 sold for 61 cents a gallon.

The ancient Mayans played a team game, much like racquetball, in a walled rectangular court. No doubt it was pretty exciting. And winning really was not just everything but the only thing then, too. Sometimes, though not always, the post-game ceremonies included the sacrificial murder of the losing team.

Bomb Threats Fizzle

Community Hospital of Lubbock was evacuated Thursday afternoon after officials received four bomb threats.

One nurse told police that the evacuation of the building about 1:30 p.m. caused five patients to suffer further complications when they were moved outside where temperatures hovered in the high 90s.

Contacted around 6 p.m. Thursday, Hospital Administrator Walter Allinger said the hospital just had received its fourth bomb threat of the day but discounted the notion that the health of the patients had been affected by the evacuation.

"We've not had any repercussions as yet," he said, noting that most patients at the hospital were not of the intensive care type.

Police were called about 1 p.m. after a male caller issued a bomb threat. The caller reportedly told the switchboard operator, "You've ruined my wife. I'm going to blow every —— one of you up."

The second threat was received at 1:13 p.m. with a male caller saying, "Twenty-three minutes."

The third threat was reported at 1:20 p.m. with the message, "You better get everyone out."

Allinger was attempting to secure cooperation from the telephone company in obtaining a tracing device Thursday evening.

Police also investigated a burglary in which 25 exterior doors and windows, seven dishwashers, seven smoke detectors and 22 venetian blinds were removed from an apartment complex under construction in the 7000 block of Elgin.

The items were reportedly being stored in an unfurnished apartment.

Police about 2:30 a.m. Thursday arrested a 19-year-old man for allegedly ramming his car several times into the front of a food store at 3116 Amherst Ave.

A witness said he heard a loud crash Thursday morning and looked out his window to see an older model Buick partially inside the front of the business. He said the driver backed up and rammed the building again.

Reports indicate the motorist did this three times, then drove off.

While officers were at the scene, a man drove up in a 1966 Buick and told them he had seen a vehicle leave the business. The man was taken into custody after they noticed that mortar matching that of the damaged building was on top of the Buick's hood, reports state.

The vehicle also appeared to have sustained recent damage to the front end, reports add. Owner J.D. Adams said the damage amounted to about $1,000.

In other activity, a 19-year-old Lubbock woman said she was attacked by a man about 2 a.m. Thursday while she walked across a parking lot in the 300-block of Indiana Avenue.

The woman said the man grabbed her and began dragging her across the lot and that he said nothing, just laughed.

Reports indicate the complainant struggled with the man and that he hit her in the head and stomach with his fist. She then broke loose and ran to her nearby apartment where she called police.

The assailant was described as white, very tall, medium build, blond hair and with a two-day-old beard.

City police said that about 3:30 a.m. Thursday they arrested a 20-year-old man who is wanted in Amarillo for escape.

A Potter County Sheriff's spokesman said there is a warrant out for the suspect for escaping from Amarillo police.

The suspect was apprehended in Lubbock near Alamo Automotive Specialities at 2216 Fourth St. where police were dispatched on a burglary alarm.

Reports indicate a window in the business was open and about $12 in change had been taken from a vending machine. Police spotted the suspect walking near the shop. Police said they arrested the man and transported him to the county jail after it was learned he was carrying a large amount of loose change in his pockets.

Burglars plagued the city Wednesday and early Thursday, resulting in heavy losses for several Lubbockites.

Peggy Mike of 2011 62nd St. said burglars struck her house between 10:30 p.m. Wednesday and shortly after midnight and made off with $3,500 in loot, including jewelry, a television set and a gun.

Betty Monroe said she lost $500 in cash and a stereo turntable when burglars entered her 1821 E. First Place residence between 1:30 p.m. Wednesday and 12:30 a.m. today.

More than $2,000 in guns was the loss Lowell Russell Dorn said he suffered when burglars entered an apartment at 4645 52nd St. sometime Wednesday.

Katherine Briley of 2212 Fifth St., Apt. 46, said that between 5:30 a.m. and 5:05 p.m. Wednesday her residence was broken into and $1,172 in property was stolen, including two TV sets and $50 in change.

A 37-year-old woman was arrested about 2:20 p.m. Wednesday at Lubbock International Airport after police discovered a .22-caliber pistol in her purse.

The woman said she had forgotten the weapon was in her purse and that she was only taking some friends to the airport.

A Lubbock couple said their son assaulted them during an altercation at their home about 7 p.m. Wednesday.

Reports indicate the 45-year-old mother suffered a cut on her nose and the father sustained several broken ribs.

The father was treated at Methodist Hospital.

Lubbock police rounded up three prostitution suspects — two of whom were city-licensed masseuses — early Wednesday.

The women, ages 20, 27 and 29, were taken into custody and transported to the county jail.

Two Lubbock youths suspected of burglarizing two Lubbock garages in May were taken into custody by police Tuesday and Wednesday.

The youths, ages 15 and 18, were arrested after police received a tip from a caller through the Crime Line Inc. program.

Police recovered a number of auto tools taken from Zeh's Auto Repair Shop, 802 Texas Ave., and Taylor Garage, 3709-C Ave. Q.

Both garages were burglarized in mid-May.

Police said the two youths had sold most of the stolen items.

Tools taken from Zeh's were valued at $944 while Taylor Garage sustained a loss of between $4,000 and $6,000.

Also reported to police Wednesday was a burglary at the home of Saverio J. D'Angelo, 1706 W. 26th, where almost $2,000 worth of appliances and an assortment of jewelry, liquor and food were taken.

Investigators in their report indicated a television, a sewing machine, radio, digital clock and toaster were removed from the residence.

Another burglary was reported at an office building on North Indiana Avenue and Loop 289, where a camera, three lenses, a cassette recorder and 30 cassettes were taken.

The equipment was the property of Steve J. Bromberg of Massachusetts.

Israel was proclaimed an independent state in 1948.

TOURISTS OF THE WEEK — Loren Langston, left, of Lubbock, and his sons, Larry, 14, and Lonny, 10, were selected as last week's "Tourists of the Week" by the Clovis, N.M., Chamber of Commerce. Russell Muffley of the chamber presents the trio with a box of fruit. The Langstons received free motel accommodations , theater tickets, bowling passes, free meals and a tank of gas from Clovis merchants.

Bandido Charged With Lying To Feds

EL PASO (UPI) — The second El Paso resident in a week to be arrested in connection with an FBI investigation into the attempted assassination of U.S. Attorney James Kerr has been charged with lying to federal officials conducting the investigation.

James Eugene Hicks, 37, and a member of the Bandidos Motorcycle Club, surrendered to federal marshals Wednesday and was released on $10,000 bond. He is accused of lying to federal officials investigating the Nov. 21 ambush of Kerr in San Antonio.

Hicks was accompanied by his attorney, former El Paso Mayor Bert William. He was the second El Paso resident arrested in the past week on perjury charges in the Kerr investigation.

On June 14, former El Paso County Sheriff's Department employee Ransom Patrick Cross posted $10,000 bond on a similar complaint.

Both charges involved alleged conversations that Hicks and Cross had with a San Antonio man identified as "Timken."

The complaint against Hicks identified "Timken" as Timothy Kenneth Larson, a former Bandido. At a bond hearing, an FBI agent testified Larson was a "prime suspect" in the attempt to kill Kerr near his San Antonio home.

The tattooed Larson was arrested earlier on a weapons charge and appeared in a police lineup viewed by Kerr. But he has not been charged in the ambush in which 19 rifle bullets were fired into the hood and fender of Kerr's car.

The complaint against Hicks said he "did state to special agents of the FBI that on or about Dec. 9, 1978, he attended a meeting in San Antonio at the residence of 'Timken' Larson, which was attended by some members of the Bandidos."

It also said, "The attempted murder of Kerr was discussed. Hicks made this statement to said agents knowing the same to be false because no such meeting ever took place."

According to the complaint, the basis for the FBI charge was sworn testimony received by the federal grand jury in San Antonio from Sid Ordway, who was identified as an attorney allegedly at the Dec. 9 meeting.

In the earlier complaint, Cross was accused of lying when he swore under oath he did not hear of the Kerr assassination attempt from a member of the Bandidos Motorcycle Club, identified as "Timken."

Alternate-Day Fuel Plan Draws Plaudits

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements said Thursday the alternate-day gasoline selling plan is working so well, even before it starts, that other Texas counties want to be included.

"I've had a few feelers from several counties around Harris County that are considering asking us to include them," Clements told a news conference.

Clements said Brazoria, Fort Bend and Montgomery counties had made inquiries, "but no formal requests." News stories said Montgomery County commissioners voted Wednesday to be included in the plan.

The governor said there have been "really no complaints" about the gasoline restrictions that go into effect Monday in Harris, Dallas and Tarrant counties "and no question of authority of enforcement."

He was asked how he planned to pass the state authority — which comes from a presidential order to governors — to local governments in ordering gasoline restrictions.

"We will cross that bridge when we come go it, but there has been no one questioning my authority so far," he said.

"This is essentially in the jurisdiction of the county courts of the counties involved and the commissioners courts. It's a county matter."

Clements said the Department of Public Safety to enforce the 55 mph speed limit "with the forces available" to the best of its ability. "I am not going to add several hundred troopers to enforce it," said Clements, who has pledged to eliminate 25,000 state employees in the first two years of his tenure.

He added that he hoped local officers would 'vigorously enforce" the speed limits in cities.

Clements was asked if he would include the so-called "Roloff Bill" if he called a special session. The bill that would have exempted child-care institutions operated by evangelist Lester Roloff and other religious organizations from state licensing was defeated in the recent legislation.

"I have no plans at the moment for a special session," Clements said. "And I have no reason to believe legislators would be any more responsive in a special session to the bill than they were before. They were very unresponsive before."

Clements said he still planned to call a special session on the initiative and referendum issue "but I am not calling a special session on anything soon."

The governor indicated previously he might call a special session just before the political filing deadline in early February 1980.

Sen. A.R. Schwartz, D-Galveston, asked Clements Thursday afternoon to include Galveston and Brazoria counties in the odd-even rationing plan.

"Brazoria and Galveston counties are both a part of the greater Houston metropolitan area and should be included in additional fuel allocations for that area. Brazoria County is one of the fastest-growing counties in Texas and Galveston County is at the height of its tourist season," Schwartz said in a letter to the governor. "I also ask that you encourage Brazoria and Galveston county officials and city officials within those counties to come under your odd an even day rationing plan for Harris County."

Outrunning Tornado May Be Death Race

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you try to outrun a tornado in your auto, it could be your last race, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration warns.

Weather experts report that fleeing from a tornado, especially in an automobile, could be the mistake of your life unless you're in open country where terrain will permit you to drive in any direction at relatively high speeds.

If there's even the slightest question as to the speed and direction of the tornado relative to your car, don't take a chance. Leave your vehicle and seek shelter.

Officials at the weather service pointed out that in the devastating Wichita Falls tornadoes in April, 25 deaths involved people in cars trying to flee the storm.

Not All Aliens Survive Trek Across Desert

TACNA, Ariz. (AP) — Border Patrol agents who recovered the body of a Mexican alien and rescued 30 others from the Arizona desert this week fear more may become stranded as temperatures soar above 100 degrees.

"Our primary job is to track and apprehend illegal entrants," Buck Brandemuehl, Border Patrol chief in Yuma, said Thursday. "That's when we come across these tragedies."

The body of a man was found in the southwest Arizona desert on Wednesday. Border Patrol agents came across the 3-month-old remains while hunting for another man reported missing by his companions.

Five other aliens have died in the desert this year and authorities said 11 died there in 1978.

The 30 aliens who were rescued during the past week had run out of water as the temperature in Yuma neared 115 degrees. The air temperature normally is about 15 degrees hotter in the desert valleys, and the desert sand can approach 200.

"They take off with just a gallon jug of water and use that up pretty rapidly," said Brandemuehl. "Most of them are trying to get into the farming land around Tacna."

About 1,300 illegal aliens are apprehended and returned to Mexico each week in the Tacna area. Many have to be chased down, but "when they run out of money or water, they flag us down," Brandemuehl said.

"That's when we pull off our regular units and our airplane and everything else for a search," he added.

Among those rescued last weekend was a family of nine, including a grandmother and children 6 months to 10 years of age. They indicated that an alien smuggler gave them a gallon of water and dropped them near the Mexican border, telling them to walk 10 miles north to Interstate 8 where a partner would pick them up.

The interstate is 40 miles north of the border in an area with a single water hole, which is too far to help much, Brandemuehl said.

"Who would let out a group of kids and old lady out there?" he asked. "The guy's gotta be pretty ruthless."

Brandemuehl noted that Yuma temperatures had been below 100 for the past couple of days, but added, "it's supposed to be 104 or 105 today. We're sort of hoping the news media will carry this back to Mexico."

Bangladesh has the highest population density of any country in the wrld with 521 persons per square mile, according to the United Nations Demographic Yearbook.

A PROVEN SCIENTIFIC TREATMENT PLAN FOR BEAUTIFUL, HEALTHY SKIN

If you are an average modern woman you have tried a myriad of cosmetics hoping to capture the clear luminous look of a Vogue model's skin. You have probably thought that the more expensive the make-up and the more elaborate the cleaning ritual, the better your skin would look. But no, that's not the way it works. Your expensive bar of soap only cleans the surface.

The DermaCulture philosophy for good radiant skin is very simple and basic — clean, pure skin is beautiful skin. With the scientific cleansing treatments, expert technicians, and naturally pure products of DermaCulture, you can literally grow a new flawless skin.

The 40 year old DermaCulture therapy procedure is a sophisticated and unique one. A steamy infra-red mask opens each pore to soften and purge unwanted accumulation of oil, make-up and dead skin cells. A vacuum process then gently lifts this grime and stimulates circulation.

Then replete with surgical mask and magnifying glasses, your technician deftly pulls out stubborn blackheads, whiteheads, and other debris. The final step is a clarifying and firming one called ionization, which consists of a patented facial electrode that carries a special moisture solution under the skin to firm up sagging undertissue — sort of a natural face lift with a clean tingle.

The resutls, after a few treatments, is skin with a procelain quality. Pores seem to disappear into fine textured complexions. Your own natural moisture will replace your expensive creams. Evened color tone and stepped up circulation creates a natural blush. Now you can stop worrying about a pimple suddenly erupting to ruin a week-end.

Several other good things can hapapen to you at DermaCulture, too. Besides feeling good about yourself and your appearance, you can also save money, even with the cost of the treatment, because now you're not buyng those expensive commercial products.

Rich Countries Blamed For High Price Of Oil

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — Saudi Arabian oil minister Sheik Ahmed Yamani on Thursday blamed the high cost of oil on "rich countries prepared to pay any price."

The problem is not price but availability of oil and the cure is to reduce consumption drastically, he told a news conference.

He was visiting Denmark briefly to have his annual medical checkup and talk with government leaders

He also told an audience of businessmen that "something should be done about the spot oil market in Rotterdam."

Asked to be specific, he said it was necessary to "remove the psychological hysteria by showing the traders of Rotterdam they will suffer losses if they continue to speculate."

He added that this could be done by equating supply with demand. And he said the way to do that was to reduce consumption. This was also the remedy he proposed for surcharges imposed by some members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

"Cut demand and the surcharges will disappear," he predicted.

On the prospect of achieving unified prices at the OPEC meeting in Geneva next week he said, "I am not so optimistic."

Yamani warned that any increase next week above $20 a barrel would "cause a deep recession" and promised that Saudi Arabia would fight against any such price level. The present base price is $14.55, but with surcharges the average is $17.

Yamani refused to comment on whether Saudi Arabia was prepared to increase production to relieve the current crisis.

"We have huge reserves but to exploit them will involve massive investment and a depletion of our natural resources in a short time. One day the world would curse Saudi Arabia if we dissipated these reserves, which are for the whole world, not just for us," Yamani said.

He said it would cost $25 billion to boost Saudi production to 14 million barrels a day from the current 8.5 million. He said the Saudis would expect assistance, especially financial and transfer of technology as compensation for producing more oil than they needed.

He urged collective action by consuming nations to curb consumption rather than allow the prosperous ones to buy at any price.

He hoped that this would emerge from the coming economic summit meeting in Tokyo.

CORN EXPORTS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says the Soviet Union has bought an additional 700,000 metric tons of U.S. corn for delivery through Sept. 30. Officials said the grain previously had been listed by private exporting companies as intended for "unknown destinations" but was switched to the Soviet Union.

Riots Follow Ouster Move In Uganda

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Troops fired machine guns into the air Thursday to disperse thousands of Baganda tribesmen protesting the ouster of provisional President Yusufu Lule.

Official sources reported three dead and 50 injured after a day and night of street demonstrations.

Hospital spokesmen said the three dead, including an 8-year-old boy, had been shot, but it was unclear by whom. They said many of the wounded suffered severe injuries when they were beaten or stoned in clashes between rival groups.

Among the victims were two British bankers who suffered leg and neck wounds. They said they were hit when their car was shot up by soldiers at a roadblock.

Troopers fired their weapons, including machine guns, into the air when a mob marched near Parliament and approached a luxury hotel where many government ministers are living.

The power struggle over the presidency came barely two months after Ugandan exiles and Tanzanian army units ousted dictator Idi Amin in a bloody war.

Lule was named provisional president, but on Wednesday leaders of the Uganda National Liberation Front voted to replace him with lawyer Godfrey Binaisa, 59.

Lule's supporters poured into the streets late Wednesday and held protest demonstrations through the night.

On Thursday, an estimated 20,000 persons, most of them Baganda tribesmen like both Lule and Binaisa, roamed Kampala. They demanded Lule's return and charged that Binaisa was a frontman for exiled former President Milton Obote.

Lule, a 67-year-old former teacher, remained in the official residence near Kampala and insisted he was still legally in office. Binaisa's whereabouts were not announced but a spokesman claimed he was in full control.

Most of the demonstrations ended late Thursday and Kampala was calm.

In Tanzania, top-ranking officials said President Julius Nyerere considers the removal of Lule "constitutional and binding." The officials said thousands of Tanzanian soldiers, who have remained in Uganda mopping up Amin's stragglers, were ordered to protect both Lule and Binaisa and avoid confrontations with Ugandan civilians.

In Kampala, reinforced military units patrolled streets deserted by civilians. Bus pasengers were ordered to open their luggage at roadblocks.

Obote was ousted eight years ago in a military coup led by Amin and went into exile in Tanzania. He had divided the country by suspending civil rights and introducing socialism in the 1960s.

Many Bagandans, traditional adversaries of the northern Acholi and Langi tribes that backed Obote, say Binaisa supports Obote because he once served under Obote as attorney general.

There were rumors that Obote's return to Uganda was imminent, but in Dar es Salaam, the Tanzanian capital, Obote told a reporter who telephoned him: "I'm still here and I have no plans to go anywhere."

Pigeons May Succeed Where Others Fail

WASHINGTON (AP) — In this age of laser and sonar and other sophisticated wizardries, the Coast Guard has hit on a new way of finding people lost at sea.

Hungry pigeons.

A man at the Naval Oceans Systems Center in Honolulu has taken five pigeons under his wing, training them to spot the color orange. When the bird sees orange, it pecks at a switch and is rewarded with food.

After graduating from land-training with an orange flag that pops up randomly, the pigeons are strapped into a plexiglass pod attached to the underside of a helicopter and taken for a ride over the sea.

"We found in some tests last year that the birds would detect the target about 90 percent of the time on the first pass," said Douglas Conley, who runs the project. "The pilots and crews would detect it about 40 percent of the time and they know where to look."

The pigeons ride three to a pod, each facing a different direction. Lights in the cockpit tell the pilot which bird spots the target and from that he knows which way to look. The winning bird gets food.

Do they cheat? "As far as I know, we havn't had many false alarms at all," said Conley, who is in the Coast Guard's Office of Research and Development.

At first, chopper captains thought flying co-pilot with pigeons was for the birds, but changed their minds with the results.

"The birds seem pretty happy about it," Conley said. "We haven't had any complaints."

It took 18 months to train the first set of three. They were used to look for a small motorboat off Hawaii in February, but the helicopter crashed and the birds were lost. Five birds are in training now and they expect to be flying by the end of September and October.

If it works out, the Coast Guard hopes to use simulators to train the birds. Right now the target color is orange; later they'll be trained on yellow — the color of most liferafts — and red. And, who knows, eventually pigeons may be trained to peck when they see anything man-made on the water.

This year, the Coast Guard is spending $73,000 on the project which pays for bird-training, a new observation pod and better electronic components.

Pigeons are used, Conley says, because they don't get bored easily and have a long attention span — and not, as one pilot claimed, because they are dumb.

"They find the target long before the pilots do," he said. "They can't be too dumb."

Army Building Quick Reaction Force

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army staff is drafting plans for a new type of "quick reaction" military force of up to 110,000 troops who could be sent to the Persian Gulf or any other critical trouble spot worldwide.

Gen. Bernard Rogers, outgoing Army chief of staff, told reporters Thursday the planned "unilateral corps" would be drawn from Army forces other than those earmarked for early deployment to Western Europe in event of a war emergency there.

The Army said the official title comes from the concept that such a "rapid reaction force will provide the basis for a unilateral U.S. response to worldwide non-NATO ontingencies."

Rogers, who leaves Friday to become Supreme Allied Commader in Europe, did not limit the mission of such a corps to the Persian Gulf area, but it is known that this is a center of Carter administration studies because of political uncertainties and threats to U.S. oil supplies from that area.

Rogers stressed that the basic idea is to earmark forces for what he called a "self sustaining corps" that would not have to depend on resources from a host nation.

Other military sources said the objective would be to fashion a corps that could sustain itself for about 60 days without major resupply and reinforcement.

Rogers indicated that the current Army structure does not include enough support units to sustain such a corps and at the same time back up combat elements in NATO and designated for NATO.

Toxic Chemicals Threaten N.J.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Toxic chemicals in a hazardous waste dump and warehouse along the waterfront in Elizabeth, N.J., could explode and send dangerous fumes over a wide area of northern New Jersey and neighboring New York City, a Senate panel was told Thursday.

Dr. Glenn Paulson, an assistant commissioner of the New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection, said the state is gingerly attempting to remove 34,000 drums of "toxic, explosive, corrosive and flammable chemical wastes" from the site.

But some of the other chemicals are so dangerous that attempts to store them safely at the site would risk "a fire and explosion that would potentially spread the chemicals over a large chunk of the northern-New Jersey-New York metropolitan area."

Paulson and other state officials testified before a Senate subcommittee on environmental pollution which is considering President Carter's proposals for dealing with hazardous wastes.

Almost all said the proposed legislation is inadequate to meet a major environmental problem which the states are unable to handle by themselves.

Other major chemical dump sites have been discovered in recent years at the Love Canal near Niagara Falls in upper New York State, and in Kentucky, California and Michigan.

In New Jersey, Paulson said the Chemical Control Corp., a firm which has declared itself bankrupt, stacked up tens of thousands of barrels of toxic wastes along the Elizabeth River.

About 10,000 of the barrels are rotting and leaking toxic and explosive chemicals, some of them into the river, the officials said.

They said that many of the chemicals are unidentified, although believed to be dangerous.

Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., told the subcommitee, "The potential effects of an explosion at Chemical Control are staggering. One need only remember that Manhattan is just across the river."

He said the "lives of millions could be endangered in the event of a fire or explosion."

Among the substances found in the barrels, Bradley said, are "chemicals and acids which in combination produce the same poisonous gases used in the Nazi gas chambers."

Some volatile chemicals are being removed by federal explosive material experts who take them to a naval base for detonation, an aide to Bradley said later.

All those who work at the site must wear gas masks and carry oxygen tanks, according to the Bradley aide who has visited the area.

The aide, declining to be identified publicly, said Environmental Protection bile chemical analysis laboratory any closer than a mile and a half from the site because of the fear of fumes or explosion.

House Votes Panama Canal Bill

Carter Victory Removes Last Obstacle To Turnover

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House approved legislation Thursday to implement the Panama Canal treaties, clearing a major obstacle to handing the waterway over to Panama.

The vote gave President Carter a big foreign policy victory.

The House approved the bill 224 to 202, after rejecting amendments that Carter's supporters said would have wrecked the treaties, which provide for the United States to turn the canal over to the Panamanian government.

Final Defeat

Approval of the bill, which legislates the details of carrying out the treaties, marked what may be the final defeat for forces opposed to placing the canal in the hands of the Panamanians.

The canal treaties already have been ratified by the Senate. The implementing legislation approved by the House now goes to the Senate, but is not expected to face as much difficulty there.

Under terms of the treaties, the canal will be turned over to Panama on Oct. 1, but a U.S.-controlled commission will operate the waterway until Dec. 31, 1999. Among other things, the bill approved by the House provides for creation of that commission.

President Carter said he was pleased with the passage of the bill, but said he would work for "improvements" in the legislation when it goes to the Senate.

"Vital Legislation"

In a statement read to reporters, Carter called the bill "vital legislation providing for our management and defense of the Panama Canal." He added: "I deeply appreciate ... the courage of all those members who recognized the national interest by voting for this legislation."

Rep. Robert E. Bauman, R-Md., a leading opponent of the treaties, said after the vote, "I predict, in two years' time, the canal will be nationalized" by Panama.

Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., who managed the bill on the House floor, said passage of the legislation would have the opposite effect. He said it would guarantee that the canal will remain open and under U.S. control until the turn of the century.

Although a number of amendments aimed at frustrating the treaties were turned back, the House approved one condition stating that canal payments to Panama may be halted if President Carter or Congress determines that it is supporting revolution in Nicaragua or anywhere else.

The House held its first secret session in 149 years on Wednesday to hear allegations that high Panamanian officials have been involved in gunrunning and have provided other support for revolutionaries in Nicaragua.

However, the State Department has said it has no evidence that Panama's government is aiding revolutionaries. The condition added by the House was approved by voice vote with little debate.

Treaty opponents lost by a hairline vote of 213 to 210 an effort to attach an amendment that Carter's supporters said would have been a clear violation of the treaties.

The amendment, by Rep. G.V. Montgomery, D-Miss., would have required Panama to pay about $75 million for U.S. military equipment it will get when it takes full control of the canal in the year 2000.

The treaty opponents also lost 274 to 142 in a vote on an amendment aimed at forcing Panama to hold free elections.

House leaders had canceled votes on the canal legislation three times before Thursday because opponents of the treaties had appeared to have enough strength to defeat the measure. Treaty opponents had accused Carter of giving away the canal.

Carter made major concessions to win approval of the bill but told House members at the White House two weeks ago that he will try to reverse some of those concessions in the Senate.

In his statement after passage of the bill, Carter said: "Improvements in the bill are still needed to make certain that the legislation is fully consistent with our obligations under the Panama Canal treaty. We will be seeking those improvements as the legislative process continues."

The turning point in the House came late Wednesday night when it rejected 220 to 200 a major amendment by treaty opponents. The amendment would have required Panama to pay all U.S. costs of the treaty, estimated from $870 million to $2.3 billion. Later, treaty opponents tried again and the amendment was narrowly defeated on a 216-210 vote.

Carter's supporters said such an amendment would have amounted to a clear violation of the treaties and Rep. Jonathan Bingham, D-N.Y., said it would be "reneging or welching."

But Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, who offered the amendment, said U.S. taxpayers should not have to pay millions of dollars to give away the canal.

Hijacker Surrenders At Airport In Ireland

jacker to show himself at the aft door before we put up the steps to the aircraft. We want him to make himself visible."

Boeschich agreed and said: "I am going to come out with a detonating device and turn it over to the authorities. I will then back up the ramp and come back with my client and he will surrender to the authorities."

He later cautioned: "We want to make sure there is no armed intervention."

As about 100 Irish soldiers and armed detectives of the police Special Branch anti-terrorist squad ringed the plane, the tower replied: "That is understood."

In Chicago, Federal Judge Hubert J. Will blamed himself for the hijacking and revoked the bonds, Thursday, of five of six Serbian terrorists convicted in a 1975 bombing incident.

Bond for the sixth, Nikola Kavaja, was revoked Wednesday evening.

The rear door opened and Kavaja and Boeschich walked down the steps. Police took them away in a three-car convoy for interrogation.

Capt. Richard Werneck, who volunteered to fly the jet from New York, said he was not physically threatened but feared for his life during the trans-Atlantic flight.

"I just want to tell you how beautiful it was to see Ireland for the first time," he said. "The hijacker had explosives strapped to his body. We feared for our lives. It would be wrong to say that we did not."

Barry Gore, duty officer at Shannon, told The Associated Press that Kavaja, after identifying himself to Irish police officers at planeside, went back in for his explosives."

It was not immediately clear whether Kavaja would face charges in the Irish Republic or be escorted back to New York to face charges that were the basis of a federal arrest warrant issued in Brooklyn, N.Y.

"There is no extradition treaty between Ireland and the United States, but these people are illegal immigrants and could be deported as such," said Superintendent Kelly.

Airport officials said the jetliner would stay in Shannon overnight and be flown back to New York by its crew Friday.

The hijack was the second in the United States in the last two weeks and the fourth this year.

U.S. officials said Kavaja had spent a total of 19 years in Yugslav prisons for his underground activities. His face is scarred from injuries he received in a leap for freedom from a moving prison train several years ago when he was serving a sentence for the slaying of a border guard.

At the time of his arrest in the United States last year, he was allegedly running a bomb factory in his home in Paterson, N.J.

that the church is not technically a part of the homes, although it is on the same grounds.

"W are not going into the church," Department of Public Safety Lt. Harold Hale, in charge of state troopers for the project, said at the news conference.

However, Johnston guaranteed that the court order will be carried out.

"The court order is not going to go away," he said. "It's not a matter of whether, it's just a matter of when and how."

Johnston said the department's force is prepared to stay as long as necessasry.

"We do not want this to drag on forever. We will bide our time," he said.

He indicated that negotiations between state officials and Roloff attorneys may lead to some compromise that will allow the department to remove the children.

"The way I've got it figured out, I'm not going to have a good image whichever way we go," Johnston said..

After the news conference, Charles Wright, president of the Texas Association of Licensed Children's Services, said he represents more than 50 licensed facilities. Most of them are church-related, he said, and 90 to 95 percent of those facilities "have a radically different view than Mr. Roloff does."

Wright, administrator of the Texas Baptist Children's Home in Round Rock, said: "In my 15 years there, not one time has there been one problem. We are free to preach and teach and establish a curriculum with no interference from the state."

He said the association in 1975 helped write an updated state law that prevents state interference in religious programs or curriculum in licensed church-related facilities.

Panelists Undecided On Overton South

The Urban Design Commission, which met Thursday night to decide whether to designate much of the Overton South neighborhood a Design-Historic District, had not reached a decision by presstime.

At a late hour, the commission still was discussing whether to make the protective zoning designation, which could affect plans by the First Baptist Church for expansion.

no effort to raise funds because there will obviously be no place to put it," Selby added.

The chairman noted that the hospital district's executive director — Gerald Bosworth — has assured him that the hospital probably will stay open.

"Is there a credibility question there?" Selby asked. Bosworth's time as the top administrator may be limited after several board members called for a change in leadership at a recent board meeting.

Director of Project Review Judy Atcheson explained that by law the planning board is required to assess if construction of the unit would put an undue financial strain on the hospital. But other board members said their primary function is to determine community need.

In making their presentation to South Plains Health Systems, hospital representatives said that private corporations and granting institutions had expressed an interest in funding the unit.

In addition to anticipated donations, the hospital indicates revenue necessary to finance the project will be obtained from the hospital's permanent available funds — amounting to $392,936.

Nursing School Dean Victim Of Funds Cut

Bachelor of Science in Nursing program to produce registered nurses.

Statistics from the South Plains Health Systems Inc. estimate that 1,648 additional registered nurses will be needed in the South Plains area in the next 12 months to meet existing needs.

Nursing programs in the area include a BSN program at West Texas State University in Canyon, a diploma program at Methodist Hospital and a diploma program in Amarillo.

The Coordinating Board created the Tech nursing school in April 1975 in response to what it called "a demonstrated need for more nursing personnel in the South Plains area."

Although the school never has been funded since its creation, Tech officials believed this year that the money would be approved.

Tech requested $260,935 for 1980 and $394,817 for 1981 for the school of nursing. The Legislative Budget Board recommended the full amount for the first year and $381,997 for the second year.

In its priority list, Tech named the nursing school as its number one project and stressed to legislators and the governor that if cuts in the Tech budget were necessary, to spare the nursing school.

Although Clements vowed to slash the state budget by more than $250 million (and he did), many expected he would approve the nursing funds after lobbying efforts in the legislature gained the school the full amount recommended by the budget board.

Early in the session, Clements's budget recommendations included money for the nursing school, although it was a lower amount than the budget board suggested. Clements recommended $124,800 for 1980 and $150,084 for 1981.

In her sparsely furnished office, Dr. Langford sits amid a sea of paperwork, looking into the possibility of receiving some money from federal grants or private foundations for nursing school operating expenses. Such money normally is used to supplement state funds, but in this case, it may be the only money available.

Dr. Langford compared the dilemna to that of a classroom situation when a student finds the first solution doesn't work.

In those cases, she said, she looks at the student and says, "Well, that didn't work. What are you going to do now?"

The question remains to be answered.

Rare Surgery Removes, Rebuilds Skull Of Hydrocephalous Child

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Surgeons removed the entire cranium of a 6-year-old girl, whose head had swollen to the size of a 35-pound watermelon, and rebuilt it in a rare operation that reduced it to near normal.

Laurie Montgomery of Flatlands, New Brunswick, was listed in critical condition at Tampa General Hospital on Thursday, but doctors said she was responding well.

"We took the skull completely off and reconstructed it smaller," said plastic surgeon Mutaz Habal, one of two doctors guiding the University of South Florida medical team in the delicate 14-hour operation. Actually, the surgeons removed the cranium, that part of the skull extending from the base of the neck to the forehead. The operation was performed last Friday, but details were not made known until Wednesday.

Laurie suffers from hydrocephalus, commonly known as water on the brain. In normal babies, fluid is produced to cushion and nourish the brain and tiny pathways form to drain the fluid off. In Laurie, the pathways didn't develop.

Her head grew to 93 centimeters in circumference. It was too heavy for her to hold up and left the child pinned to a bed most of the time. Doctors held out little hope.

"We couldn't believe it was possible for a human being's head to swell like that," said her father, Thomas Montgomery.

"She was a write-off, you might say," Montgomery said. He said he and his wife Arlene first sought treatment in Canada, but were told it was futile. They refused to give up, he said, "although that was the advice, to give up and forget about her."

Neurosurgeon Jack Maniscalco, who worked with Habal in the surgery, said "she won't be out of the woods until about two weeks after the operation. But she is better."

The operation was the second of its kind that Habal and Maniscalco have performed. They did their first one two years ago at Shands Teaching Hospital at the University of Florida in Gainesville.

That patient was a 6-year-old boy who is now said to be developing naturally. A Canadian doctor who heard of that case referred the Montgomerys to the Tampa team.

In Laurie's case, Habal removed her skull in pieces and Maniscalco says he "literally deflated her brain" by removing the fluid.

Then Habal built a scaffolding from pieces of skull. On that bony framework, he refitted her pieces, moving some around and reducing the size of others until he had reshaped her head, giving her a normal appearance from the front and top.

The back of her head is still larger than normal, and Maniscalco said a second operation will be necessary in about six months to correct that.

Once the shaping was done, Maniscalco reattached the brain and its protective covering to the "new" skull and reinflated it with fluid.

Laurie has been in intensive care since the operation but the doctors say she is responding to commands and has begun to move.

Her release is not expected for about 30 to 40 days.

"She should be completely rehabilitated," Habal said. "We solved a functional problem."

was one of the demands of the Independent Truckers Association, which had called for a nationwide shutdown June 11. The association, which represents 30,000 of the nation's 100,000 independent truckers, also wants 100 percent diesel fuel allocations for truckers and an increase in the speed limit to 65 mph so that runs can be completed faster.

Truckers also insist they need at least a 10 percent surcharge on freight rates to help them meet the rising prices of fuel; they say the six percent authorized by the Interstate Comerce Commission is inadequate.

Leaders of several groups of independent truckers met Thursday in Washington in an attempt to write a uniform set of demands and forge a coalition to deal with government officials.

The meeting, called by William Hill, chairman of the Independent Truckers Unity Coalition, was closed, but reporters could hear discussion on the issues of rate surcharges, speed limits, diesel fuel allocations and deregulation.

Georgia's Gov. George Busbee said Thursday that the state will set up daily convoys with state patrol and police escorts until the truckers' strike and violence are over. He said plans are for "three convoys per day originating from select points ... convenient to intensive farming operations."

Florida Gov. Bob Graham declared a state of emergency and ordered the National Guard to start trucking gasoline in southeastern Florida.

Annual Mosquito War Waged Across County

the population, but Smith said the worst months for outbreaks of encephalitis are August, September and October.

"An encephalitis outbreak could occur as early as July, though," he said, adding that it is very difficult to confirm cases of encephalitis. Doctors must take blood samples at different stages of the illness in order to identify it.

He said two or three cases have been suspected in the last two years in the Hale Center area.

Dr. Marjorie Orr of the City Health Department said she has not seen a true case of encephalitis in several years. She said that in addition to encephalitis, mosquitoes can carry several varieties of malaria and yellow fever.

The heaviest concentrations of mosquitoes seem to be in the Idalou area and in sections of East Lubbock, Smith said. He attributed the heavy mosquito populations to vegetated playa lakes, bodies of stagnant water and an unusually large number of empty containers that attract mosquitoes.

Old tires, abondoned swimming pools, golf courses and bar ditches are especially good breeding places for mosquitoes, Smith said.

Except during the height of mosquito season when sprayers go out every night, citizen complaints are one way Smith determines which areas of the city and county need to be sprayed.

The mosquito control department also monitors the mosquito population in 29 locations around the county by using light traps. A large number of insects in a location indicates to Smith that the area needs to be sprayed.

"You could spend all day answering the phone this time of the year, though," Smith said. This year's excessive rains have made citizens more aware of mosquito problems after two years of relatively dry weather.

Some residents, ironically, complain about the spraying.

Although some are allergic to the chemicals used, Smith said, "Most of our complaints come from environmentalists...and the word chemical is just a bad word." Many of the most effective chemicals in mosquito control have been banned at either the local, state or national level because of their damage to the natural environment, Smith said.

All employees operating sprayers for the city must pass a state examination and obtain a certified pesticide applicator's license. Smith said mixing chemicals can be tricky work. Too much of a certain chemical can kill grazing cattle, Smith said.

Even after mosquitoes stop tormenting local residents, the pesky insects still keep workers in the Mosquito Control Division of the City Health Department busy. Workers must repaint all the sprayers and other chemical-related equipment and overhaul the engines to prepare for another mosquito season.

Smith and his crew must obtain a release from every owner of property that contains a lake treated by the city, Smith said.

The department even plows playa lakes to rid them of vegetation if the land is city-owned or if the land owner doesn't have plowing equipment, Smith said.

Although this is shaping up as a bumper year for mosquitoes, Smith has seen worse. Nowadays, light traps are netting about 40 to 50 mosquitoes a night. "In 1961," Smith recalls, "we were getting over 1,500 in each lamp."

Americans Call On Somoza To Surrender Leadership

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, declaring there has been a "breakdown of trust" between the government and people of Nicaragua, called Thursday on President Anastasio Somoza to step down as an initial move toward national reconciliation.

Vance issued his dramatic appeal before a hastily arranged meeting of Organization of American States foreign ministers called to try to end spreading warfare in Nicaragua.

In his remarks, Vance said any effort to deal with the crisis will fail if it does not take into account the breakdown of Nicaragua's internal political process.

"We must, then, seek a political solution which will take into account the interests of all significant groups in Nicaragua," Vance said.

"Such a solution must begin with the replacement of the present government with a transitional government of national reconciliation, which would be a clear break with the past," he added.

He said the time has come to bring the "full strength" of the OAS to bear on the crisis. As a first step, he said, the organization should move immediately to send a special delegation to Nicaragua.

Vance proposed that the delegation be charged with seeking a solution that takes into account "the legitimate interests of all elements of Nicaraguan society.

"The efforts of the delegation would be directed toward facilitating the formation by the Nicaraguans of a transitional government of national reconciliation, leading to free elections in which the will of the Nicaraguan people can be freely expressed," Vance said.

Initial elements of a solution would include formation of a government of national reconciliation, a halt in the flow of arms to Nicaragua and an effective cease-fire, he said.

Vance also called on the OAS to consider on an urgent basis the need for a peacekeeping force to be sent to Nicaragua.

He said the present crisis also requires outside resources — money, supplies and technical assistance and that the United States is prepared to contribute generously to this effort.

Vance spoke before a standing room crowd at the OAS council meeting room. Nicaraguan Foreign Minister Julio Quintana listened impassively as he sat across from Vance at the horseshoe-shaped table where the delegates from the 27 OAS counties were gathered.

In reply, Quintana said Somoza is "open to dialogue, open to conciliation." But he made no reference to Vance's suggestion that Somoza be replaced.

He praised Vance's appeal for an end to arms shipments to the Sandinistas, ignoring the fact that the secretary was asking for a moratorium on arms transfer to both sides in the conflict.

Vance's proposals were part of a seven-point draft resolution. After Thursday's public speeches, the delegates were to meet in private to offer their own ideas on how the resolution should be worded.

A two-thirds majority is required for adoption.

The Carter administration has steadily been disassociating itself from the Somoza government as discontent with the 40-year-old family dynasty has spread.

But Vance's speech marked the first time the administration had publicly called for Somoza to step down.

Vance couched his appeal for swift action by citing accelerating humanitarian problems that have grown out of the recent nationwide armed clashes between Somoza's Nicaraguan National Guard forces and the Sandinista guerrilla movement.

The administration has become deeply concerned about the possibility of an outright military victory by the Sandinistas, which would have uncertain consequences for U.S. interests not only in Nicaragua but elsewhere in Central America.

Officials, speaking privately, do not rule out the possibility that Marxist elements within the Sandinistas could take command if Somoza is forced from office.

Reporter's Alleged Killer Goes Before Tribunal

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — A national guard corporal accused in the execution-style shooting of an American television reporter claimed Thursday that another soldier was responsible and that the killer was slain in combat later in the day.

Cpl. Lorenzo Brenes testified before a tribunal of three colonels ordered convened by President Anastasio Somoza to investigate the death of ABC correspondent Bill Stewart, slain with his Nicaraguan interpreter Wednesday at a national guard roadblock in Managua.

In the continuing fighting, Somoza's guardsmen pressed an offensive aimed at crushing Sandinista guerrilla strongholds in Managua's eastern slums. But their push, in its fourth day, appeared to have slowed.

The guerrillas, in communiques issued abroad and broadcast by the clandestine Radio Sandino, claimed Sandinista planes operating from a secret base in Nicaragua bombed Somoza's "bunker" headquarters in northwest Managua, leaving it "in flames."

The bombing supposedly occurred at 1:30 a.m., but reporters staying in the Intercontinental Hotel adjacent to Somoza's headquarters complex saw no damage or other evidence of such an attack.

The national guard, on the other hand, claimed a "pirate" plane based in Costa Rica bombed non-military targets in northwest Managua, including the 14th of July Hospital, a health center in the Morazan neighborhood and a refugee center in the Las Brisas district.

A guard spokesman said there were casualties in the attack on the hospital, but no number was given.

The 37-year-old Stewart's death was recorded on film by an ABC news crew that was accompanying him.

With his Nicaraguan presidential press card in his hand, the American TV correspondent approached soldiers at a roadblock in embattled eastern Managua. One ordered him to lie down, kicked him once in the ribs, then shot him once in the head with a rifle.

His Nicaraguan interpreter, Juan Francisco Espinoza, also was killed, apparently by another soldier.

President Somoza's press secretary, Max Kelly, said Cpl. Brenes stood before the military tribunal accused of killing Stewart. But the corporal maintained in his testimony that he was not even present during the incident.

Brenes, who said he was leader of the patrol at the roadblock, told the court Stewart was shot by a Pvt. Gonzales, whose first name he said he did not know.

Iranian Official Reveals Amount Of Shah Bounty

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — A revolutionary court judge said in an interview published Thursday that the killer of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi will receive a reward equivalent to $143,000.

In an interview with the newspaper Bamdad, Ayatollah Sadeq Khalkhali said that even Empress Farah Diba, the shah's wife, would be eligible for the money if she killed her husband.

Khalkhali said Crown Prince Reza and other children of the royal couple will not be harmed by assassins that he claims have been sent to kill the shah in Mexico. He did not say who would pay the reward.

In May, Khalkhali put out a list of those "authorized" for death which included the shah, his wife and her mother, as well as the shah's sister, his last three prime ministers, and his former ambassador to Washington.

The shah, ousted last winter in a revolution led by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, is now living in exile in Mexico.

Khalkhali is head of the Islamic Fedayeen, a guerrilla group that led military operations from the underground against the shah. He said last week that assassins had been dispatched from Iran to kill the former monarch.

Khalkhal has appeared at some revolutionary court trials, but his purported role as chief of the Tehran Islamic court has been questioned in recent weeks. He traveled to the Persian Gulf states recently to discuss the Iranian revolution, but religious authorities in the holy city of Qom later said Khomeini had not assigned him to make the trip.

North Korean Military Stronger Than Believed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Harold Brown said Thursday "there clearly is a larger North Korean force than had been thought a couple of years ago," acknowledging intelligence assessments which have upgraded the threat to South Korea.

On Capitol Hill, intelligence officials also confirmed publicly that North Korea is far stronger militarily than previously thought.

While Brown gave no specific figures, the intelligence officials reluctantly confirmed that North Korea now has the world's fifth largest army.

The new assessment was made by Army intelligence last summer and led to President Carter's reducing the first scheduled withdrawals of U.S. ground troops from South Korea last year.

The CIA and the Defense Intelligence Agency are known to have reviewed the Army assessments and to have endorsed them in general.

The question of North Korean strength surfaces again as Carter is preparing to leave for a visit to Japan and South Korea next week, and the revised intelligence estimates provide the Korean leadership with ammunition to argue for a reversal of the Carter administration's withdrawal policy.

An inter-agency study group has been considering what, if anything, to recommend that Carter do about the U.S. ground troop withdrawal. Senior Army officials say they have received no new signal from the White House on whether to plan to go ahead with the withdrawal later this year.

Brown told reporters, "I feel no decisions, no conclusions, are going to be reached" before Carter's return from the Far East.

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., a member of both the House Armed Services and Intelligence committees, testified on Capitol Hill that he has reviewed the studies and that they show North Korea has an army of 550,000 to 600,000 troops — not 450,000 as had been believed.

He said North Korea also outnumbers South Korea in tanks, artillery and armored personnel carriers by a wider margin than had been estimated earlier.

Aspin told the Armed Services investigations subcommittee the estimates have caused him to withdraw his support from President Carter's plan to pull out all U.S. gound troops from South Korea. The administration has suspended the withdrawals while reviewing results of the studies.

Rep. Sam Stratton, D-N.Y., chairman of the panel and an outspoken critic of Carter's plan, tried to draw out intelligence officers on what the studies show.

Is it fair to say, he asked, that the studies show a substantial increase in North Korea's military strength?

"Yes," replied Nathanial Thayer, a CIA specialist in Far East and Pacific Affairs. He did not elaborate beyond his one-word reply.

Would the increase have a bearing on the military balance between North Korea and South Korea, Stratton asked.

"Yes," Thayer repeated.

Thayer said North Korea has the world's fifth largest army, and then was asked how South Korea ranks.

"Not that far off," he replied.

Thayer identified himself as a "national intelligence officer," and said his statements represent not only the view of the CIA but also the Defense Intelligence Agency, the National Security Agency and "about 30 others."

The first signs of a North Korean buildup, he said, were in 1976 when intelligence agencies noticed "more hardware around than people to use it."

Aspin said the Army launched an intelligence study last year because it felt "the numbers we were looking at were too low." The Army concluded its study last November, and the CIA and DIA completed their work last month, Aspin said.

He said there were minor differences in the numbers among the different studies but that "the conclusion is the same. There is a lot more than before."

Aspin said it has been determined that North Korea started a gradual and continuing buildup in 1970-71. "All of the newly discovered units are in the rear area," he said.

"Now it seems they have adopted a defense in depth posture," Aspin said. "We were previously looking for North Korean units and equipment close to the North Korean-South Korean border."

Publisher Hangs Onto Synanon Notes

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — David Mitchell, publisher of the Pulitzer Prize-winning Point Reyes Light, has refused during a deposition to turn over notes or answer questions about sources for stories on Synanon, the controversial drug and alcohol rehabilitation group.

The Light was awarded the Pulitzer this year for the series of articles on Synanon.

Mitchell's refusal came Wednesday while he was giving a deposition to Synanon attorneys in connection with a subpoena seeking unpublished material and records used to write the articles.

During the deposition procedure, Mitchell produced copies of published stories and answered some questions, but on the advice of his attorney, Weyman Lundquist, refused to produce unpublished material and refused to answer questions about his sources.

The subpoena was issued in connection with a $32 million lawsuit filed against the organization by Los Angeles attorney Paul Morantz.

Morantz alleges in the suit that Synanon is responsible for placing a rattlesnake in his mailbox ast October. The snake bit him and Morantz was hospitalized for six days after the attack.

Researchers Investigate Relationship Between Foods, Cancer

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fifth of 10 articles detailing the little-known story of amazing progress being made against cancer in humans. It is the story of some battles won, some being fought, and some coming up. It tells about the skilled doctors, researchers and thousands of volunteers whose costly efforts to solve the incredibly intricate mysteries of the disease are backed by the faith and funds of America. The author, retired Associated Press science editor, is one of the best-known science writers in the country.)

By ALTON BLAKESLEE

Is our food giving us cancer?

Some foodstuffs may well be guilty. A few specialists even estimate that 40 to 60 percent of cancers in Americans are linked in some way to food and nutrition. Others think these figures are far too high, or based on insufficient evidence.

Getting hard evidence to identify and then remove dangerous foodstuffs can be awesomely difficult. We eat many different things. Cancers occurring today may be due to what we ate 20 to 40 years ago, and "it's hard even to remember what you had for dinner last night," says Dr. Philip Cole of Harvard University. "It's not so much a question of more money to look at the problem, as a lack of people and analytical tools for the job."

Cancers of the breast, large bowel, ovary, prostate and endometrium (the lining of the uterus) cause 40 percent of cancer deaths in men, and 60 percent in women. It is assumed that diet plays a role in all these cancers. The estimates are based mainly on studies of people who move from one country to another, and special groups such as Seventh Day Adventists, whose diet differs significantly from the typical American fare.

A major suspect is the high intake of fats in our foods. Typically, Americans have been getting about 40 percent of all their daily calories from fats, a diet blamed for promoting heart attacks. In support of this, Drs. Ernst Wynder and John Weisburger of the American Health Foundation report:

The Japanese consume a diet with fats supplying only 15 to 20 percent of total calories. Japanese women living in Japan have a low rate of breast cancer, although that rate has risen recently as their diet came to include more fats. Japanese women who migrate and adopt an American style of diet, higher in fats, have shown a rising incidence of breast cancer.

Breast cancer, whether spontaneous or induced by chemicals, occurs more frequently in animals fed high-fat diets. The higher risk is related to increased production of a hormone, prolactin. Wynder says animals given anti-prolactin do not show an increase in breast tumors. He believes prolactin and estrogen may be potential tumor promoters.

Rats given a chemical inducing bowel cancer develop more of those tumors when also fed a high-fat diet. Such diets may promote greater production of bile acids.

These hypotheses of theories are being investigated more fully. Meanwhile it is suggested that the "prudent" diet, one lower in fats, designed to ward off premature heart attacks may also protect agaist breast cancer, Wynder says.

From such human and animal studies, "A complex picture emerges of multiple causative factors, involving combinations of cancer-causing agents, co-factors, and natural or acquired metabolic peculiarities of the individual," says Dr. Arthur C. Upton of the National Cancer Institute. Obesity is thought to contribute to the high incidence of cancers of the colon, breast, ovary, prostate and endometrium, Upton adds.

The basic questions return: How and when can we be confident that something, in food or environment, is really dangerous?

Upton says mutagenicity — the ability to produce genetic changes in some living organism, as in the Ames test — cannot be relied upon as predicting cancer "because the correlation between mutagenicity and carcinogenesis (producing cancer) isn't perfect.

"I think we must acknowledge that the cancer process is a multi-causal, multifactorial, multi-stage process leading ultimately to a malignancy, but beginning with a sort of genetic determinant in the cell that can be influenced by environment," he adds.

"Two or more carcinogens acting in combination may be mutually inhibitory, additive, or multi-provocative in their effects," and basic differences among human individuals may be important also, Upton says.

Sherlocking the real hazards in what we eat cannot be easy, but the search must be made. In fiscal 1977, the American Cancer Society devoted more than 13 percent of its total research grants budget — more than $4 million in 78 grants — directly or indirectly to nutrition and cancer. The NCI is spending $7.5 million in fiscal 1979 on nutrition research.

PRE-FLIGHT CHECK — Getting a propeller aircraft ready for flight is a bit different from pre-flighting an Air Force jet, but Maj. Dennis Way keeps the rules straight. Way, who is coordinating the August civilian fly-in at Reese Air Force Base, also has flying time in gliders.(Staff Photo by Gerry Burton)

Reese Civilian Fly-In, Open House Set For First Weekend In August

By GERRY BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Flying was the way it always had to be for Dennis Way, who grew up in Old Saybrook, Conn., cleaning planes and pumping gas at small airports for the privilege of going skyward now and then.

He doesn't recall his exact age — it was 11 or 12 — when he first went up in a plane, but he remembers vividly the trip over Long Island Sound that was "absolutely great," far better than all his dreams.

At 14 he was taking flying lessons and immediately following graduation from a South Carolina military college, he joined the Air Force.

In addition to current duties as commander of the headquarters squadron for the 64th Air Base Group at Reese, Way is heading up a civilian fly-in which he hopes will bring 300 planes to Reese runways during the base's two-day open house festivities the first weekend in August.

A "window" in military scheduling has been set aside for landings and takeoffs on both days and transportation downtown is arranged for those wishing to stay overnight.

Fly-in visitors will take part in open house activities highlighted by the U.S. Thunderbirds aerial show, U.S. Navy parachute team demonstration, street dance, barbecue, chili cookoff and fiddle contest, plus a host of other events.

Military aircraft will be available for viewing along with a civilian trade show of the latest aerial equipment.

In addition, fly-in personnel will attend special sessions geared to their interests and a tour of the simulator building also is scheduled.

"We try to make fly-ins educational," Way, project officer for the event, noted. He has headed quite a few such events, including one, more than a week long, to the Bahamas.

Way will be making air stops at all area air fields to add a personal invitation while putting out posters about the civilian fly-in and the open house.

Way, president of the Rocky Mountain Chapter of the American Bonanza Society, is hoping for a group of his special planes, the Beachcraft Bonanza.

He doesn't expect the fuel situation to affect the fly-in, because his family outings in the Bonanza are cheaper, "going direct and fast," than the same trip by car.

Right now, Way is "between Bonanzas" in his longtime habit of buying a particular one, then keeping it until he falls in love with another.

"I always have one spotted before I sell the one I have," he said, adding that he will have another in time for the August fly-in.

The F4C Phantom was his plane during nine months of Vietnam duty.

The plane was shot up, which was normal on missions, but not shot down.

Back in the states, Way was a flight instructor at Craig Air Force Base in Alabama, before going to Williams Air Force Base in Arizona to help work out the visual systems for the advanced flying simulator which debuted for the Air Force at Reese.

Before coming to Reese, where he will be teaching the systems he helped develop, Way was chief of the soaring branch at the U.S. Air Academy which has the largest soaring school in the world.

"The program is very cost-effective and beneficial," Way, who made 1,000 soaring flights, emphasized. In the three years he was at the academy, there were 65,000 sail flights logged.

Tax Relief Amendment To Cut Into School District Funds

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Lubbock Independent School District could lose an estimated $1.25 million in school taxes largely due to exemptions permitted by the new Tax Relief Amendment, tax office figures show.

The decrease in school tax money is figured at the current tax rate of $1.38 per $100 of assessed value on an estimated $94 million in exemptions that will not be reimbursed by the state.

The figures, prepared by city-school tax assessor-collector John Brooks for the school district, show that the 1979 tax roll will be approximately $1,310,500,000 — about $14,350,000 less than the 1978 tax roll of $1,324,852,083.

Both Brooks and Superintendent Ed Irons stressed that all figures are preliminary estimates.

According to Irons, the tax roll from year to year usually increases anywhere from $70 to $200 million due to reappraisal of property and the addition of new construction value.

The 1978 tax roll, for instance, jumped about $218 million from the 1977 roll. The 1977 roll increased about $110.3 million over 1976 figures.

The bulk of the exemptions that will not be reimbursed is made up of about $74 million in automobile valuations.

Though Brooks assumed in his figures that automobiles would be exempted in 1979, the school board may still choose to retain the automobile tax.

If the board takes no action on the tax it will automatically be exempted, according to Irons.

"If the city doesn't tax autos, it will be almost impossible for us to collect them," said Irons. "People wouldn't pay them."

He said he does not know what the school board will do, but said he will take up the subject before the trustees at the next board meeting scheduled for June 29.

Other exemptions include those for the elderly and for disabled veterans, granted last year by the local school taxing authority. Those exemptions, totaled this year at about $17.2 million, will not be reimbursed.

Exemptions granted by the new tax law are the $5,000 exemptions for all homestead owners, the $10,000 exemptions for the disabled and elderly and intangible and auto exemptions. Exemptions for the autos and intangibles will not be reimbursed by the state.

Figures show a total of about $199.3 million in exemptions for 1979, with about $105.4 million in reimbursements.

Brooks said he did not include the new agricultural use exemption because he has recommended that it not be implemented this year.

He said he did not recommend implementation for 1979 because of all the tax relief "hitting at one time" and because the School Tax Assessment Practices Board has not yet released its guidelines on valuation and collection of the tax.

Irons said he will not know the impact of the tax losses on the school district until he can get an estimate of the district's income.

TEA is currently criss-crossing the state with personnel to interpret the new school finance law.

Irons said, however, that "the tax base is really being eroded. Once we lose the money, it's hard to regain it."

Irons said that without an income to which he can refer, the preliminary tax losses "look bad."

He added, "What really worries me is that the reimbursement is written in (the new law) for only two years. We just don't know what to expect after those two years."

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

The gas shortage is affecting a lot of vacations this year, and it's not unlikely that many families will forsake the open road for a week or two of leisure in their own back yard.

Well, don't kid yourself, it won't be the same. Convenience and comfort are not what vacations are all about. How are you going to feel going back to work rested, relaxed, and ready to face another year? No one will believe you had a good time if you return looking wonderful.

Since it is a nationwide problem, I think we have to address ourselves to ways in which a vacation at home can be simulated to the fun-filled time you might have had if you went on the road.

Pack the car. This is a ritual no vacation should be without. Remember, water, snacks and carsick pills in the trunk locked in behind the spare wheel; picnic basket and any other breakables under the dirt bike and sports equipment. On the roof: the cardboard suitcases, clothes, linens and other items that can be destroyed if it rains, and of course, an inflated air mattress that hangs out far enough to cut off the vision in Dad's rear-view mirror.

Buy postcards. Spend the first day writing all your friends telling them what a wonderful time you are having. Do this before you get sick from too much charcoal lighter fluid on the grill, the baby is bitten by a ground squirrel but thinks she can make positive identification, there is a leash law on children and the 100-year flood arrives 57 years early.

Go primitive. No one respects you as a vacationer until you learn to live without life's basic necessities. The more hardship you endure, the better time you will have. Turn off the water, the electricity and limit your existence to two burners, a skillet, a double broiler, an axe, 50 yards of clothesline, three buckets, a spatula, a box of bandages, a tube of ointment and 38 boxes of aluminum foil.

I know what a lot of you are thinking. You're thinking I can sit in a mosquito-free back yard with clean air and clear skies and commune with birds and chipmunks. I can spread out a picnic of non-charred food straight from the microwave oven. I can sleep on sand-free beds and enjoy the benefits and privacy of indoor plumbing. I can have my own private laundromat and if it rains stay indoors and watch television. I can be perfectly comfortable and relaxed in my own home.

Yes, but is it a vacation?

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY

DR. PAUL E. RUBLE

Dear Dr. Ruble: I have very dry skin on my arms and legs. It itches and I scratch until I get my arms bleeding. I was told this is due to old age. I am 59 years old. When I scratch my arms or legs they look scaly. What doctor should I see? — A.P.

Old age gets blamed for a lot of things. And who defines old age? At 59 you aren't considered old anyway, so you have to lay the itching to a health problem that requires treatment. Old age may bring with it a lessening of skin gland production and some loss of skin elasticity, specifically in tissue under the top layer. For some elderly people (certainly, not all) there may be small areas of skin changes with pigmentation. That may cause itching. Some elderly get itchy skin because of cold weather sensitivity or from too vigorous washing and drying.

At your age (and it's wise at any age), look for other causes. One of the chief ones is scabies (no matter how careful you are hygienically). It's increasing in all age groups. If this is ruled out the doctor might investigate drug allergy of such internal problems as lymph node disturbance or diabetes. There's a whole list of other trouble points that can produce skin symptoms — kidney, liver, or the blood itself — a condition called polycythemia. The thyroid gland controls skin quality and can also be involved.

Consider the skin an organ of the body. It acts as a two-way early warning system — both for problems caused by outside factors and things going on inside. Rashes, itching, and scaling usually have identifiable causes. It takes detective work to determine what the skin is trying to tell us. Dermatologists have special training in this field.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Will the chlorine used to kill germs in swimming pools affect your health in any way? Can it get into your system and cause cancer? — C.R.

It won't hurt you unless you're sensitive to it. Chlorine is used in many places to purify drinking water. It won't cause cancer.

Opening lead: ♣K

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Today's hand was sent to us by a Canadian reader with several questions about the bidding and the play, so the article will also include the "Ask the Experts."

West's king of clubs held the first trick. He shifted to the jack of hearts which South won with his ace. South studied the hand for a while and finally decided to play East for at least four hearts and the king and jack of diamonds.

Then South made his slam by means of a Vienna coup. He led a diamond to dummy's ace and then ran off all his eight trumps. He retained the king-nine of hearts in dummy, while his own last two cards were the ten of diamonds and the deuce of hearts. East was squeezed in the red suits and the slam waltzed in.

Our reader's questions were about our opinion of his doubles and of his partner's opening lead of a club.

Here are our expert answers:

1. The double of four hearts was bad. East knew the hand wouldn't play there and he didn't really want a heart lead against spades.

2. The double of five diamonds was reasonable. A diamond lead actually would have broken up thh Vienna coup before it got started.

3. The club lead turned out to be unfortunate but we can't really blame West. It is tough not to lead a suit headed by ace-king.

Finally, if east had never opened his mouth South would surely have tried the simple diamond finesse and gone down at the slam.

Cards Help Teach Photography

By IRVING DESFOR
Associated Press Writer

An entirely new system for teaching photography at home or anywhere on location has been originated by Yale Joel, former LIFE Magazine staff photographer. Joel has devised sets of handy and accessible "photocards" to get away from the usual "how-to" books and manuals.

Each photocard is 5-by-8-inches, with a photograph printed on one side and a thorough description of how the picture was achieved on the other side. Each has basic technical information of how similar situations can be photographed, including types of film, shutter speeds and exposure, lighting and special filters, accessories or lenses that may be required.

But, more important, he provides professional advice and information to stimulate creative thinking, planning and "seeing" for that type of picture-taking in many situations.

Joel's photocard system is called "Creative Camera Techniques." The photocards come in a set of 15 pictures, each on one topic. Among the categories are: Travel, People, Pets and Wildlife, Sports and Action, Children, The Family, The Nude, Nature and Still Life, Fun and Humor. The sets are packaged in a book-like portfolio which contains two categories, two sets of photocards.

When completed, there will be 20 categories of photocards, a total of 300 picture situations — a mini-library for instant and handy reference. The comprehensive explanations on each are simple enough for a beginner to follow and yet sophistiated enough to permit more advanced amateurs to gain new insights for further development in creative directions.

The concept developed over a long period of time from courses and lectures at the International Center of Photography and New York University and from Joel's own photography workshops in his Croton-on-Hudson home area. Almost all of the 300 photographs in the complete photocard system come from the pictures he has amassed in his career and which brought him a "Photographer of the Year" award.

His idea was to make it easy for an amateur photographer to refer to a handy source of advice or technical data when in a picture-taking situation. What was easier than having a card in the gadget bag with helpful information while shooting a sunset, a pet or a portrait?

"I'm a visual problem solver," says Joel. "At LIFE magazine, they gave me assignments that many considered unphotographable. I respond to those challenges, and the rewards have been many memorable pictures. Visual problem solving to me is an adventure with a camera. It involves a willingness to look at things differently — and not be locked into rules.

"I don't believe in photographic secrets. Technique is public information. My approach is to simplify technique and provide people with shortcuts learned from experience."

Joel's primary interest in teaching and lecturing is to stimulate the individual to think visually, to be aware of the relationships of light and shadow, forms and shapes, the photogenic moods of nature and of people that make arresting images.

He felt that many "how-to" books and guides were written first with pictures rounded up later to support the writing.

"My approach is exactly the opposite," Joel points out. "I start with the accessible and appropriate picture and build the text around it. These are the situations that normally confront beginners and serious photographers and I offer guidance based on past experiences that will help produce successful results.

"Many of the "how-to" books are beautiful to look at," Joel acknowledges, "but they're cumbersome to work with when you're out shooting. I felt a need to develop a "how-to" photography system that would overcome the drawbacks.

"I came up with the instant-action card approach. The format is unique and the idea is simple — a photocard. With both an appropriate photograph and professional advice and explanation on that card, the "how-to" can be grasped both visually and technically, anywhere and any time it is needed."

Carry a CC30M color compensating filter to make more spectacular sunsets. This magenta filter enhances color hues and requires a 2-3rd f-stop exposure increase although single-lens-reflex cameras automatically compensate for the exposure if the filter fits directly on the lens.

For candid pictures in a strange city, take a leisurely walking tour with your camera. Dress unobtrusively and carry a minimum of equipment on you without a gadget bag.

Use a telephoto lens (105, 135 or 80-to 200-mm zoom) to avoid close-up confrontations. Include surrounding environment for local atmosphere.

Postal Service Issues Stamp Honoring Seeing Eye Dogs

By SYD KRONISH
Associated Press Writer

Seeing eye dogs get their just recognition on a new 15-cent stamp issued by the U.S. Postal Service.

The 1979 commemorative stamp is being released during the 50th anniversary year of the founding of the first guide-dog program in the United States by the late Dorothy Harrison Eustis.

Procedures for ordering first-day cancellations are the same as in the past. If you purchase your own stamp at the local post office, just affix it to the envelope in the upper right corner. All envelopes must be addressed in the center and return addresses at the right side at least ⅝ths of an inch up from the bottom. Forward your request to: First Day Cancellations, Postmaster, Morristown, N.J. 07960. It must be postmarked no later than June 30. No remittance is required.

Should you prefer the Postal Service to affix the stamp, then follow the same procedure but enclose a money order of 15 cents per stamp. Address your order to: Seeing Eye Dog Stamp, Postmater, Morristown, N.J. 07960, no later than June 30.

Kenya honors its National Theater with a special issue of five new stamps. The National Theater performs works usually of a Western nature but with traditional African tones. Ritual dances with accompanying music are commonly seen in local theatrical performances.

The 50-cent stamp depicts a National Theater group performing "The Lion and the Jewel." The one-shilling shows a scene from "Utisi" featuring native dancers and drummers. The two-shilling illustrates heater programs of the great plays performed by the National Theater. The three-shilling pictures an exterior view of the National Theater inNairobi. The five-shilling portrays a scene from the Nairobi City Player's production of "Genesis."

Finish Can Protect Brickwork

By ANDY LANG
Associated Press Writer

Q. — I have just moved into a new house. The front of it is brick. Can I avoid moisture getting into the joints by applying some finish which will not change the color of the bricks?

A. — Yes. Use one of the colorless silicone water repellents. If the brickwork was done properly, you should not have to worry about water getting into the joints for many years. It may be a wise precaution, however. Some types of brick are more porous than others, although here again, there should be no reason to worry about that for years.

Q. — A neighbor of mine pours coffee grounds down the drain of her kitchen sink. I use instant coffee nearly always and seldom have grounds, but my husband says not to follow the practice of the neighbor. He says they can get stuck in the drain. Is he right?

A. — Yes. If there is any accumulation of hardened grease in the pipe, the grounds stick in it and make the situation worse. There used to be a theory that coffee grounds helped to keep the pipe clean, but that has been pretty much disproved.

Q. — I am having a new roof of asphalt shingles put on. How long should they be expected to last?

A. — Anywhere from 15 to 25 years, depending on a number of factors, including weather conditions and the weight and quality of the shingles. Discuss this with your roofer, especially determining the guarantees or warranties offered by the manufacturer. In deciding on which type of shingles to use, remember that the labor cost of application is usually the same whether the life expectancy is 15 years or 25 years.

Wire Art Projects Fun For Family

Here's a craft that the entire family can enjoy — wire art. The designs can be as simple or as intricate as the artist desires and the finished product is a creation that is awesome.

The basics behind the craft medium are quite simple. You need a ½ inch wood base, copper wire and nails, burlap background, actual size nail pattern, a nail height gauge and a little ingenuity.

First, decide how big you'll want your finished hanging to be. Trace your design on a piece of paper and make sure it's the actual size. Attach the burlap to the wood base, put the paper design on top, and you're ready to start nailing. Using your nail height gauge (a popsicle stick works great), check your nails once in awhile to make sure they're fairly even or it will give your design an uneven effect. After your nails are nailed in place, tear off the paper pattern and you're ready to wrap the wire around the nailed pattern. In a matter of a few minutes, you'll see your creation come to life.

Some ideas: make a replica design of a favorite ship or a floral bouquet. A teenager might try a wire art hanging of a car, or even a disco scene. By combining various colors of wire with different sizes and heights of nails, your wire art hanging will be unique.

You and your family can make "Bridled and Brilliance," pictured here, for your family room of den. The different height of the nails in the pattern gives the 11-inch by 14-inch wall hanging a 3-dimensional effect that truly adds brilliance.

INFLATION HIGHEST IN ITALY

Italy will continue in 1979 to be the industrialized nation with the highest rate of inflation, according to a Conference Board panel. Prices in Italy are expected to rise by about 13½ percent this year. While cost increases in Germany are forecast to edge up from 3½ percent in 1978 to 4 percent in 1979, it will remain the Western country with the lowest inflation rate.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

When my first child was born over 22 years ago, I started a "medical record" for him. This record noted routine visits to the doctor, showing height, weight and any immunization or other shots received. I also kept a day by day acoount of any serious illness, such as measles, and also anything causing the need for a shot of any type.

Minor ailments were included for reference should they be needed. I used a looseleaf notebook for this so notes or any other papers might be inserted in order.

We have kept three such records and they have proved beneficial more than once, plus saving hours of research time.

I highly recommend "one per child" from date of birth. — Marguerite Cooper

Ladies & Gents, this is an excellent hint. I have some friends that have spent many needless hours trying to find papers or receipts from doctors in order to prove their child has had certain shots.

This is especially important when the child starts to school. It doesn't end with elementary school either, it goes on through middle school and even high school.

It seems so cruel for children to have to take unnecessary shots two or three times simply because you can't remember or find out when and if they had them before.

HINTS FROM HIM

DEAR HELOISE:

Ever bothered by a drip in your kitchen sink that will not stop, no matter what?

Cut a piece of string about two feet long and tie it around the nozzle of the faucet, then put the rest of the string down the drain as far as it will go.

The running water will hit the string; then run down it and into the drain.

Eureka! You can get a good night's sleep!! — Jose T. Del Rosario

This is great, but only as a temporary solution. Don't put it off another day, get that leak repaied. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I use wooden spoons for practically everything.

You know, you season those spoons, just as you have to season iron skillets.

First, scrub each spoon good and place it in hot water for a few minutes. Take it out of the water and towel dry. Let the spoon dry for a few hours.

Now heat some cooking oil to medium hot and dip the spoon in the hot oil. After it is cool, wipe it dry.

This will prevent odors from clinging to it. You can mix butter frosting and not have to worry about getting a garlickly taste. — Rose Segovia

DEAR HELOISE:

This is one of my favorite tricks.

Buy a new dust mop and use only on ceilings and walls for cobwebs, dust, etc.

Store it in a plastic bag or in the rag bag. It is always clean when you need it. — Minnie G. Fisher

DEAR HELOISE:

Three small children can have endless fun with three cardboard cartons, each large enough for one child to sit in when playing train.

Paper bands cut with a visor and stapled make caps for engineer, brakeman and conductor.

Loads of fun! Take it from one who has — Been There

Soil-Testing Techniques Aiding Texas Farmers

New soil testing techniques developed by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station here are helping High Plains farmers know how to fertilize their fields to produce the most profitable yields.

Fertilizer needs change from year to year as certain nutrients are depleted and certain nutrients are built up.

"It is necessary to try to understand and account for these changes for the next year's crop," said Dr. Arthur B. Onken, soil fertility scientist with TAES.

Years of research, including more than 200 off-station tests involving every county on the Texas High Plains, have helped develop new tests for nitrogen which now are routine. Similar research is focusing on phosphorous, after nitrogen the next most limiting nutrient to plant growth.

Use of fertilizer materials has wide acceptance on the High Plains, particularly under irrigated conditions, Onken noted. Fertilizer use in this area has increased from 55,000 tons in 1955 to more than 660,000 tons today.

Returns on each dollar invested in fertilizers are high, ranging from $2 to $10, depending upon the soil, crop and yield obtained.

"The use of fertilizer materials is an economic investment and must be considered in the light that too much applied is an unwarranted production cost, whereas too little applied results in lost returns due to less than optimum yields," Onken said.

The soil fertility and soil chemistry research program conducted by TAES at Lubbock is directed toward the most efficient use of fertilizer materials for optimum production and quality.

The research is designed and conducted to develop soil fertility programs that fit within the various cultural practices used by producers. These practices are dictated by soil type, availability of irrigation water and climatic factors, Onken noted.

The research is conducted not only at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center North of Lubbock but in fields throughout the High Plains. More than 200 tests have been conducted at off-station locations on major soil types in cooperation with producers and county extension agricultural agents.

It has resulted in the development of a soil test to determine buildup and depletion patterns of nitrogen in soils of the area. Nitrogen most often is the first limiting nutrient in plant growth. This test has been adopted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service Soil Testing Laboratory at Lubbock and is used routinely on all soil samples.

This test has significantly improved recommendations for use of nitrogen fertilizers, the TAES researcher said.

Current research has developed a procedure which increases the ability to predict responses by crops to phosphorus, most often the second limiting nutrient to plant growth.

"Slight modifications of this same procedure are being used to study the solubility-and thus the plant availability-of native soil phosphorus and the reaction products of applied fertilizer materials," Onken said."

"While this research has just begun, we have established some solubility and rate of release guidelines based on known crop response. We feel that this research approach is going to greatly increase our knowledge of the behavior of phosphorus in High Plains soils.

"We need this information to make most efficient use of that which is native to the soil and that which we apply as fertilizers."

Plants obtain nutrients required for growth from several sources. These include the supply native to the soil, previous fertilizer applicaitons and fertilizer applied in the current crop year.

"From a production standpoint it is most desirable to be able to determine, prior to planting, the nutrient status of the soil and make a reasonable estimate of the amounts of nutrients to be applied to produce a projected yield," Onken said.

Soil testing is the best tool available to meet these needs, he said. Soil test correlations must be based on research data from carefully controlled plots.

Natural soil variations must be taken into account and the materials must be applied to the test plots with a relatively high degree of accuracy to assure a reasonable degree of certainty of the amount of fertilizer applied.

"In this way, then, the guesswork can be taken out and the responses from different types of soils for different crops and different climatic conditions can be taken into account," Onken explained.

Soil test results and correlations are generally used in conjunction with anticipated yield potential to make fertilizers use suggestions, he said.

The soil scientist noted that fertilizers are added to soil to change the chemistry of that soil and the plants growing on it.

"This means," he said, "the chemistry of the High Plains soils is being changed continuously and irreversibly, and it is necessary to try to understand and account for these changes for the next year's crop."

TAES research, he said, aims at keeping track of these year-to-year changes for the producer in order to furnish him "the best possible information."

Hog Farmers Plan To Increase Baby Pig Output Through Fall

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hog farmers plan to boost their output of baby pigs sharply from now until fall, meaning consumers can expect about 15 percent more pork on store shelves in the first half of 1980, the Agriculture Department said Thursday.

Beef production is down sharply this year but larger supplies of pork and poultry are taking up the gap and may help stabilize retail food prices the rest of this year, according to agriculture experts.

The department's Crop Reporting Board said that as of June 1 the total inventory of hogs and pigs was about 64.9 million head, up 18 percent from a year ago and the most on U.S. farms at this time of year since 1971.

But most important for consumers — and for farmers looking ahead at possible hog market prices — the report said producers intend to have 7.42 million sows give birth to litters in the six-month period, June through November.

At that level, planned farrowings would be up 16 percent from the same six months of last year, the report said.

Pigs born in the June-November period will provide most of the hogs sent to slaughter for pork in the first half of 1980.

In a related report, the department said that socks of livestock feed grains, mostly corn, were up from a year ago.

Corn supplies, the chief feed grain for hogs and other meat animals, totaled 3.23 billion bushels, a record for June 1, the report said. Sorghum grain, at 323 million bushels, was up 1 percent.

Soybean stocks were put at 523 million bushels, up 3 percent from June 1, 1978.

The June 1 wheat inventory, however, was down 22 percent to 922 million bushels from a year ago. June 1 stockpiles represent "old crop" wheat carried over as the new harvest and marketing year begins. It was the first decline in June 1 carryover wheat steks in five years.

Regarding the hog inventory, officials had said previously that if the June-November pig crop turns out to be 15 percent larger than last year's, it would mean about the same increase in hog slaughter in the first half of 1980, compared to this year.

Other figures in the report included:

•The June 1 inventory of hogs kept back for breeding was 10.4 million head, up 17 percent from a year ago.

•Hogs being fed for market, at 54.5 million head, were up 18 percent.

•The pig crop for the period from last Dec. 1 through May was 50.6 million head, a 19 percent increase from the same period in 1977-78.

Farmers began stepping up hog production significantly last year as cattle and beef prices rose steadily, acting as an updraft on other kinds of livestock and meat.

However, because hog production can be increased quickly compared to the much slower cattle cycle, the larger output has caused hog prices to decline from their peaks earlier this year.

Further downward pressure is expected on hog prices later this year as marketing increases seasonally, according to Agriculture Department economists.

Farmers May Lose Diesel Allocations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Energy Secretary James Schlesinger said Thursday farmers probably will lose their special allocations of diesel fuel shortly, now that the spring planting season is over.

Asked when the allocations — providing all the fuel a farmer needs — would be cut off, Schlesinger said, "It would be very shortly."

He did not say outright that the allocations defintely would be ended, but noted that White House press secretary Jody Powell had told reporters Wednesday the special treatment "would probably be terminated."

Schlesinger said farmers in the fall usually need only about two-thirds of the fuel required for planting.

"We will continue to monitor very closely during the harvest season the availability of diesel fuel in the agricultural areas," he said.

Since May 11, the government has made it a rule to give farmers 100 percent of the diesel fuel needed for their machines, with consumers, truckers and others getting what was left over.

The special alloation was intended to make sure farmers had enough fuel to plant all their crops, since, the administration said, a shortage of food supplies would mean more inflation.

The special treatment of farmers is scheduled to end July 31, but Weldon Barton, the Agriculture Department's energy director, said it may be discontinued earlier.

With independent truckers striking to protest the short general supply of diesel fuel, Barton said, "The requirements for interstate transport are more pressing at the moment than agriculture's requirements, now that we are pretty much through the planting period."

Barton said farmers now need to move their crops by trucks — powered by diesel fuel — and more fuel also is needed to build up home heating oil stocks.

Even if farmers lose their special allocation, however, Barton said the administration has "no intention in this of abandoning agriculture."

A few weeks ago, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said he would ask that the July 31 deadline on farmers allocations be extended, but that was before independent truckers began their strike.

Now, Barton said, the department thinks agricultural problems can probably be met best through the state set-aside program. Under that program, state governments receive a certain amount of fuel they can use wherever it is most needed. Barton said agricultural states probably will want to allocate the set-aside fuel for agriculture when harvest comes.

Beef Supplies For July Adequate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The latest food marketing alert from the Agriculture Department says consumers in July can expect beef supplies to continue only adequate, but other items such as pork, chicken and turkey will be plentiful.

The July beef supply will be down 10 to 12 percent from a year ago, some 15 percent below average for the month.

Pork Seminar To Deal With Piglet Losses

This little piggy went to market. This little piggy stayed home. This little piggy was weaned at three weeks, went into shock and died — an all too common occurrence now that the trend in pork production is toward younger weaning.

At the Texas Tech University Swine Short Course on June 28, Dr. Bobby Moser of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln animal science faculty will discuss management practices that cut excessively high death loss in newly weaned pigs.

Younger pigs under stress are expecially vulnerable to scours, nutritional or infectious, gut edema and "post weaning slump."

Conditions contributing to stress include removal from the sow, different physical surrounding, more drafts and lower environmental temperature, commingling with pigs which are not littermates, the need to establish a new "pecking" or social order, diet changed from liquid to dry, change in the drinker, and the shock of being castrated and vaccinated.

One Nebraska study indicated that 70 percent of pigs dying after weaning do so during the first post weaning week.

Pigs must undergo all stress conditions mentioned above at one time or another, according to Moser, but good environmental conditions and a good health and nutrition program will avoid exposure to all of them at weaning and cut losses.

Moser will discuss procedures shown to reduce post weaning mortality rates, especially creep feeding, iron supplements, starter diets, watering, commingling of litters, and preheating nursery pens.

The registration fee for the short course, which will be at the new Texas Tech Livestock Arena, Indiana Avenue and Brownfield Highway, is $10. Registration begins at 8 a.m. and the course concludes at 3 p.m.

CHINESE COTTON IMPORTS this season (ending July 31) are expected to total a record 500,000 metric tons, compared with 350,000 in 1977-78.

In a report on the agricultural situation in China, the U. S. Department of Agriculture says the continuing large imports result from low stocks, rising demand, and reduced levels of domestic production.

China's textile fiber requirements increased significantly last year, with the gross value of output in the textile industry reportedly rising by 16 percent.

However, much of the increase is attributable to the larger production and use of synthetic fibers.

CHINESE PLANS CALL FOR INCREASES of 10 percent or more in national cotton production during both 1977 and 1980, the USDA says.

The crop in 1978 was estimated at 2.13 million metric tons, up from the 2.05 million in 1977, but excluding that year still the smallest crop since 1972.

Policies last year shifted toward renewed emphasis on cotton production as state procurement prices were raised, increased grain and input supplies to cotton growing areas were promised, and other forms of incentives for cotton production were introduced.

However, most of the policy measures were too late to have any appreciable effect on 1978 production and their effect on this year's crop is uncertain, the USDA says.

MAJOR DOMESTIC MARKETS FOR COTTON in 1978 were men's and boys' trousers and shorts (688,000 bales), towels and wash cloths (618,000 bales), and sheets and pillowcases (493,000 bales).

These and other facts about cotton's use are presented in a new edition of "Cotton Counts Its Customers," just published by the National Cotton Council.

The report shows apparel accounts for about 50 percent of U. S. cotton consumption, home furnishings 35 percent, and industrial uses 15 percent.

While the importance of cotton knit fabrics grew from 33 percent in 1976 to 36 percent of cotton apparel materials in 1978, woven constructions declined from 67 to 64 percent.

COTTON'S SHARE OF ALL DOMESTICALLY manufactured textile products was tabulated at 25 percent in 1978, down two percentage points from 1977.

James T. Howell, the NCC's end-use analysis coordinator, cited continued increases in cotton textile imports as the major reason for the drop.

"Cotton apparel purchases by U. S. consumers have been increasing anually," he said, "but the expansion has been accounted for by imports, which are not included in the council's data."

CASTRO COUNTY FARMER CHARLES AXTELL of Springlake has been named chairman of the 1979-80 Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., finance committee and has set the committee's first meeting for Wednesday.

The appointment was made by newly elected PCG president Joe D. Unfred of New Home. Axtell succeeds Gary Ivey of Ralls, who now is PCG vice president.

Henry Kveton of Petersburg is vice chairman of the 11-man committee. Other members include Alvia Calvert of Brownfield, Lloyd Cline and Frank Jones of Lamesa, W. B. Criswell of Idalou, Ivey, Myrl Mitchell of Lenorah, Claude Nowell of Morton, J. D. Smith of Sudan, Dan Turner of O'Donnell, Jack Wolf of Coahoma, and Kenneth Wofford of Lockney.

The committee at next week's meeting will begin development of a proposed budget for the 25-county organization's 1979-80 fiscal year. The recommended budget then will be considered by the full 50-member PCG board on July 11.

THE HOUSE APPROPRIATIONS COMMITTEE this week endorsed a bill, passed by the Agriculture Committee last month, which would boost 1979 wheat and corn target prices by about 7 percent.

Action by the Appropriations Committee came by voice vote. It sets the stage for consideration by the full House, subject to scheduling by the leadership.

The bill is sponsored by Rep. Glenn English of Oklahoma and supported by Reps. Kent Hance of Lubbock and Charles Stenholm of Stamford. It would boost the wheat target to $3.63 per bushel, a 23-cent increase, and the corn target to $2.35 a bushel, a 15-cent increase.

IN ITS REPORT ON THE AGRICULTURE bill, the Appropriations Committee recommended that a similar 7 percent increase be applied to other basic commodities covered by the target price system.

It also proposed that the Agriculture Committee review the administration's action earlier this week in reducing the loan rate for sugar from the previous year's level.

Both those proposals are merely advisory, however. The committee made no changes in the bill language itself.

Chicago Mercantile Exchange's Cattle Futures Finish Higher

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 40 to 150 points higher led by distant August at the limit advance Thursday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. Sales totaled 29,827 cars. The market climbed the limit after two limit losses.

Prices were higher from the start with the exception of a brief loss of 2 in December. Short covering and other buying was touched off by light cattle arrivals and reduced slaughter while beef meanwhile held steady despite curtailed truck shipments. There was also covering ahead of the pig crop report.

There have been 191 deliveries thus far. Wholesale beef was unchanged at 104½ cents a pound, f.o.b. river. Cash cattle were steady to off 50 cents with the best top $69 per hundredweight. Slaughter was 113,000 head. About 2,300 head are expected today at the major terminals.

Feeder cattle futures closed 87 higher to 12 lower on 5,254 lots. April was up the most after March gained 92 with August off the most.

Earlier, May set a new season's low. The erratic trade saw prices range 127 lower at times. Support spilled over from live cattle futures with resistance traced to concern over soaring feedgrain prices. The truckers strike and pig crop report were also in the immediate background.

Cash feeder cattle were steady to off $1 with the best top $95.75 per hundredweight at Oklahoma City. Receipts at the major markets today are expected to total 800 head.

Hog futures closed 45 higher to 40 lower on 7,063 contracts. Distant July was up the most after gaining 85 with August off the most.

The market slipped 50 for a time in erratic trade reflecting up evening up ahead of the pig crop report. Support was generated by light runs and slaughter along with gains in cattle futures. However, cash hogs prices were extremely unsettled as traders noted trucker shipping disruptions.

There have been 36 deliveries thus far. Wholesale hams were unchanged to up 1 at 69 to 73 cents a pound, f.o.b. river points. Cash hogs were up $2 to off $1.50 with the best top $44 per hundredweight at Indianapolis. Kill was 226,000 head. The major markets today are expecting about 19,000 head today.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture reported hogs and pigs on farms on June 1 in the U. S. totaled 64,890,000 head, 18 percent more than one year ago. The total kept for breeding, 10,373,000 head, was 17 percent more than the year earlier total. Eighteen percent more (54,517,000 head) was the total for market.

Wholesale bacon was unchanged to up ½ at 43 to 48 cents a pound, f.o.b. river.

Producers Learn Cotton Loan Rate

The Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., of Lubbock has learned that the 1979 cotton loan rate at High Plains warehouse locations will be 50.35 cents per pound, basis strict low middling inch-and-a-sixteenth, 3.5 to 4.9 micronair.

That's 12 points (.12 cents) above the national average 1979 loan rate of 50.23 cents announced earlier.

The loan rate at various U. S. warehouse locations is adjusted each year to reflect differences in freight rates from each area to mill sites and ports.

Last year's High Plains rate was 10 points above the U. S. average. In previous years the Lubbock area rate has been from three to 12 points below the average.

Premiums and discounts that will apply to cottons above and below the base quality were announced by USDA in mid-May, revealing increases over last year of 15 to 25 points in discounts applicable to a majority of High Plains qualities.

Discounts on low micronajre cottons are also up, from five points for 3.3 through 3.4 to 40 points for 2.6 and below.

Premiums and discounts assigned to the loan programs, according to USDA, are calculated from spot market quotations for the August through April period of the previous marketing year.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean and grain futures soared to new season's highs for the second consecutive session Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Distant delivery contracts for soybeans closed slightly lower, however, under pressure of liquidation. Nearby soybean contracts covering the 1978 crop gained up to 15 cents a bushel. There was talk that exporters at Gulf shipping points were paying unusually high prices for soybeans because of transportation problems related to a nationwide truckers' strike.

Wheat futures rose sharply, partly on continuing talk of heavier Soviet demand for grain because of crop problems there. Another factor was an unexpectedly large Mexican purchase of wheat, reportedly of more than 400,000 metric tons.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Heartline is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions and solve problems — fast. If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write Heartline, 114 E. Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio, 45381. You will receive a prompt reply, but you must include a stamped, self-addressed envelope. The most useful replies will be printed in this column.)

HEARTLINE: I am 69 and I have been on Medicare for four years now. I have been quite sick during these last four years and I have used my Medicare quite frequently and it has helped me to pay considerable hospital and doctor bills. Since Medicare has paid so much money on me, could they ever cancel my coverage? — N.E.

No, Medicare cannot cancel your coverage. Once a person turns 65, he or she has Medicare hospital insurance because of his or her work credits (or the spouse's work credits), and this guarantees the coverage as long as the person lives or as long as the coverage is wanted. Medicare medical insurance is also guaranteed as long as the premiums are paid or the recipient authorizes Social Security to deduct the premiums from his or her monthly Social Security check.

HEARTLINE: My husband is 59. He recently had a bad accident at work and he is now permanently disabled. He is receiving his Social Security disability benefits. Due to his accident, I had to quit my job in order to look after him. Would there be any way that I could draw Social Security benefits because I have to take care of him? I am 54. — R.J.

You cannot receive any Social Security benefits for staying at home and caring for your husband. The only way that you could be eligible for Social Security benefits now is if you have a child under the age of 18 in your care. If not, then you will have to wait until the age of 62 to be eligible for Social Security wife's benefits. Or, should your husband pass away, you would be eligible for widow's benefits at age 60 (or as early as age 50 if you are a disabled widow).

HEARTLINE: I am 64. I have been drawing my Social Security widow's benefits for the last four years. Do you know if we will get a raise in our benefits this year? — D.A.

Yes, there will be a raise in Social Security payments this year. The raise this year will be 9.9 percent. Under the law, Social Security checks increase automatically each year if the Consumer Price Index rises by 3 percent or more over specified measuring periods. Through this mechanism, the purchasing power of Social Security recipients is maintained despite inflation. You should receive the raise in your July 3 check.

Heartline has written a guide to Social Security for those persons, drawing Social Security or going to start, who would like a better understanding of the program. To order, send $2 to Heartline's Guide to Social Security, P.O. Box 11934, Chicago, Ill., 60611.

HEARTLINE: I am 57 and still working. I have worked at many different companies in my lifetime. I have no idea how much money I have paid into the Social Security fund. Since I am nearing retirement age, is there any way that I can receive this information? — J.C.

To find out how much money you have accumulated in the Social Security fund, you need Social Security form OAR-7004, Request for Statement of Earnings. Heartline feels that people working under a Social Security-covered job should fill out one of these forms about every five years to insure that your record has been given the proper credit.

These forms are available at your local Social Security office, or just write to Heartline OAR, 114 E. Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio, 45381, and we can supply you with one of these forms and save you a trip to the Social Security office. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request for this form.

Police Group Names Lubbock Officer As President

Major C.W. Bell of the Lubbock office of the Texas Department of Public Safety was elected this week as president of the Texas Police Association.

Maj. Bell was selected to replace Col. Wilson E. Spier during the TPA's annual convention in Amarillo. The yearly gathering focuses on issues and problems facing law enforcement officers in the state.

Bell already has selected the topic for next year's meeting, and the theme for his term in office — "Our Dilemma — A Public Toleration of Lawlessness."

"Education of all Texas police agencies is the key to better law enforcement," Bell said. "By upgrading our Texas police through the TPA, this gives the law abiding citizens a more secure position. This is the ultimate goal of all Texas police administrators."

The TPA, some 80 years old, consists of more than 2,300 Texas police managerial personnel from city, county, state and federal governments.

Louis XIV became king of France in 1643.

Building Of Cathedral Holds Many Dreams

NEW YORK (AP) — A six-ton chunk of limestone rolled into a churchyard Thursday amid music and solemn ceremony, bearing the weight of audacious dreams.

Dreams of finishing the Cathedral Church of St. John the Divine, the world's largest cathedral; of rebuiding a decayed neighborhood; of rebuilding, indeed, the whole city of New York.

Big dreams for a church that is nearly empty most Sunday mornings.

The Episcopal cathedral, a great Gothic pile looking down on Harlem from Morningside Heights, is officially building again after 38 years, raising a $20.8 million testament to faith in God — and New York City.

"The whole thrust is that this city is going to make it," says the Rev. James P. Morton, dean of the Cathedral. "The resumption of construction is a very positive sign for the city and the neighborhood, that the cathedral is here to help concretely."

Morton, 49, speaks with the impatience of a self-described "frustrated architect" who inherited an unfinished building, and with the resignation of one who will not see its completion.

When the cathedral trustees voted to resume building, they faced questions about whether their commitment was to people or monuments.

"I suppose there is the option of doing nothing," Morton said in an interview. "There is the option of doing nothing physically, just social programs. But both leave aside the tremendous energies that come from building and the symbolic energies which come from it."

The question, Morton notes, is as old as Christianity: When a woman anointed the feet of Jesus with costly oils, his disciples protested that the oil should be sold and the money given to the poor, so that they could buy bread.

"You cannot deny people bread. That is the inescapable commitment of being a religious person," Morton said. "But you cannot live without beauty, without ecstasy, without wonder."

Returning to medieval methods, the church has hired a British master stone mason, James Bambridge, to direct construction. He will teach his ancient craft to five apprentices — three of them from Harlem — and if all goes well, the south tower will start to rise above the entrance next year.

Morton sees the construction as part of the church's involvement in residential rehabilitation, and he envisions teams of cathedral-trained masons someday going forth to rebuild the city's thousands of brownstones and stone-trimmed brick buildings.

Through its federally-funded Urban Housing Assistance Board (UHAB) the Cathedral has helped low-income families take over 100 abandoned buildings since 1970 and rebuild them into homes. It is also just launching a job-training program for youths.

"If UHAB is not just a shot in the dark, if the city is serious about rehabilitation, then you will be rehabilitating stone buildings," Morton said. "We aren't training people in basket-weaving, as some of our critics suggest. This will be one of the most coveted crafts in the city in the next 50 years."

Today's FOCUS

When the cathedral's building plans were announced in December, Roy Innis of the Congress of Racial Equality protested that "building beautiful towers will not do a thing for the community."

But James Dowdy, executive director of the Harlem Commonwealth Council and a cathedral trustee, says the activity may prompt the people of Harlem to see what else the "castle on the hill" is doing. "It puts the cathedral on the spot to do more," he said.

The great choir, begun in 1892, is Romanesque, with round arches and cylindrical columns. After it was completed in 1911, the architect was fired and his successor designed a Gothic nave, with soaring pointed arches and fluted columns. The nave, completed the week before Pearl Harbor, was the last construction until now.

When the towers are completed, work will begin on the crossing, where raw uncovered arches link the choir to the nave. Still to be built are the north and south transepts, which form the horizontal arms of the traditional cross shape of the cathedral.

It is a daunting task for a church with fewer than 500 regular worshippers. Although it has about $2 million in its building fund, the church also has a list of 30,000 prospective donors, not all Episcopalians.

Durkin Determined To Run

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Sen. John Durkin, D-N.H., admits his political future may be no better than "a tailgunner in a B-17 over Europe in World War II," but he says he will run against President Carter as a favorite son in the New Hampshire primary.

DURKIN

The 43-year-old first-term senator said Thursday that he would become a candidate to try "to force Carter to deal with the energy issue." He said he would only back off if Carter "moves and moves immediately" to get adequate home heating oil to New England.

At a news conference in the Statehouse, Durkin said the U.S. Energy Department is "in never-never land and in a catatonic state."

Months ago, Durkin said he "kissed off" Carter's chances in New Hampshire's primary, saying "If their homes aren't heated, people will crawl through the snow to vote against Carter."

Blind Man Rescues Workers

DENVER (AP) — When an electrical fire broke out in the basement of the office building where Ed Erickson works, he guided 15 persons to safety down a staircase in total darkness.

Erickson, a petroleum engineer, is ued to the darkness. He was blinded by a brain tumor four years ago.

To hear Erickson tell the story, there wasn't much to his feat last Friday afternoon. He just stayed calm and told people "to take nine seps down and then turn."

The fire was started by exploding electrical devices in the basement of the 31-story Security Life Building in downtown Denver.

When it started, Erickson left his 20th floor office and headed for the staircase with assurance. He said his company has offices on several floors and he finds it more convenient to use the stairs than the elevator.

Bishop Views Homosexuals

LONDON (AP) — Dr. Mervyn Stockwood, Anglican bishop of the London ection of Southwark, said in his diocesan newsletter Thursday that lov between two men "can achieve a pure and glorious relationship."

Dr. Stockwood, 66, said the Church of England should rid itself of "its obsession with physical sex and concentrate upon wholeness in personal relationships."

Sexual make-up "is not a question of either-or, black-or-white, but shades of grey," he said. "People are capable of loving and caring relationships with both sexes, and such relationships may be necessary if fullness of life and true happiness are to be obtained.

"... Love, whether between man and woman or man and man, can achieve a pure and glorious relationship provided it is expressed with restraint and discipline," Stockwood said in the newsletter, which was distributed to all churches in the diocese.

Official reaction from the Church of England was not immediately available.

King Eyes Unemployment

GENEVA, Switzerland (P) — King Juan Carlos of Spain urged on Thursday that nations make an international effort to tackle unemployment, a problem he said was affecting young people "with particular severity."

In an address to delegates from 139 nations at the annual conference of the International Labor Organization, the king said unemployment problems were becoming so serious that "imaginitve, generous solutions" were now needed to attract all potential workers.

His speech rounded off a three-day state visit to Switzerland.

"Nothing is more demoralizing for young people than to have completed their vocational training and to believe they can make themselves a place in society (and) then to find that it cannot offer them the opportunity they seek," the king said.

The king said employment was a "fundamental human right."

Demonstrators Exonerated

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Yale President A. Bartlett Giamatti fell accidentally and not because of shoving from students after a Yale Corp. meeting in April, officials have decided.

GIAMATTI

A Yale spokesman said Wednesday the school would not take action against four students involved in a demonstration at the meeting.

About 125 students had tried to get Giamatti to meet with them to discuss divestment of Yale's $175 million in holdings in companies doing business with South Africa.

There was some pushing and shoving as campus police cleared a path for Giamatti, who fell as he walked through the crowd. Officials thought at the time that Giamatti may have been thrown to the ground by protesters.

T-Shirt Advocates Executions

AUSTIN (AP) — A T-shirt advocating the death penalty is being distributed by members of the Austin police department.

The figure in the chair wears an Austin Police Department identification number of 58720, the criminal record number assigned to David Lee Powell. Powell is the convicted killer of Austin policeman Ralph Ablanedo and is on Death Row awaiting word of his appeal to the Texas Court of Criminal Records.

Freedom 'Constantly Rewon'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, in a Fourth of July statement, said Thursday freedom and justice are not permanent and "must be constantly rewon in a thousand daily battles."

He said the heritage received from our forefathers "was not a perfected nation, but the dream of a nation dedicated to the fulfillment of the highest human ideals and aspirations."

It's the best thing to happen to O.J. since the Screw Driver. We call it a Q Driver and it's very different, decidedly smoother and better-tasting. That's because it's made with Don Q Rum.

Don Q, like all Puerto Rican Rums, is aged by law for at least one full year. And when it comes to smoothness, aging is the name of the game.

So if you like Screw Drivers, try a Q Driver. It's a much better way to enjoy your O.J.

Mart Posts Mild Rally

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market staged a mild rally Thursday as traders anticipated some favorable news on the money supply.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up more than five points at its mid-day peak, wound up with a 3.81 gain at 843.64.

New York Stock Exchange volume reached 36.49 million shares, up from 33.79 million Wednesday.

Some buying interest was attributed to expectations that the Federal Reserve would report a drop in the basic measure of the money supply, offsetting some of the previous week's record $6.9 billion increase.

As it turned out, the statistics issued shortly after the close showed a $2.6 billion decline. The growth rate of the money supply is watched closely by Wall Streeters because it is a primary factor considered by the Fed in setting monetary policy.

New York (AP) — Thursday's national prices for New York Stock Exchange issues as of NYSE close. Prices and volume consolidated for securities also traded on other markets.

Board Approves EMS Mobile Home Proposal

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The location of an ambulance substation in a mobile home on 50th Street cleared its first hurdle Thursday with the approval of the Zoning Board of Adjustment.

Doak Enabnit, acting director of Emergency Medical Services, asked the board to approve a special exception to permit the substation in a mobile home to be located behind the Precinct One clubhouse at 5012 50th St.

The substation is needed to improve ambulance response times in southwest Lubbock, which now range from seven to 10 minutes, Enabnit said.

Southwest Lubbock residents now are served by ambulances operating out of Health Sciences Center Hospital on Fourth Street and essentially "have no ambulance service," Enabnit said.

If a person is in cardiac arrest and the ambulance does not reach him within four minutes, "that person is not going to make it," he said.

Previously, EMS representatives approached the Lubbock City Council about sharing city fire stations with the fire department, but that idea was vetoed as unworkable.

Attempts to secure an apartment site or a rent house to use as a substation in southwest Lubbock were unsuccessful, Enabnit said.

"We have no allocated funds to build a big, fancy station," he said. "We're trying to save tax dollars."

Although some opposition was expected to the request because of the noise the EMS ambulances might create, none materialized at the meeting.

Enabnit emphasized it is a "small handful of people who don't want the ambulance station," but 40,000 to 60,000 people will benefit from the 50th Street substation.

"You're going to hear sirens no matter where you live," he said.

Enabnit admitted it will be a problem for ambulances at the substation to cross 50th Street, since there is no cut in the median near the clubhouse. However, he said the drivers would go a short distance down the alley and down a street between two restaurants, where there is a crossing.

In approving the substation location, board members instructed ambulance drivers to "use discretion and reasonableness in the use of sirens," and not turn on the siren before reaching a major street.

The mobile home to be used as a substation must meet the city building code, the board decided, and the special exception will have to be renewed in two years.

EMS still must obtain a change in zoning from high density apartment (A-2) to apartment-medical (AM) before the substation can become operational.

The board continued the request of Coy Harris, representing St. John's parish, for a variance in height restrictions to allow four 80-foot-tall wind chargers at 22nd Street and Frankford Avenue.

Board members asked Harris to reanalyze the site of the wind chargers in terms of safety and asked the city staff to contact property owners north of the location for their reaction to the wind chargers.

The board also asked for more information from Martin P. James, representing Calvary Full Gospel Church, who requested a special exception to allow construction of a church at 1302 25th St.

The request of the Heath Co., for Steak and Ale, for a variance in the sign requirements for a sign to be located at 50th Street and Utica Avenue was denied.

The restaurant wanted a sign 10 square feet larger than permitted by city regulations and 10¾ feet higher than allowed.

The board also denied the request of Nolen O'Briant for a special exception to allow a mobile home to be used as a dwelling at 1101 E. 78th St.

Requests approved at the meeting were those of:

•Burl D. Bourns, representing Luther T. Bourns, for a renewal of a special exception to allow a mobile home to be used for dwelling purposes at 3508 Ave. J.

•H.C. Lonis, representing Bernice Scott, for a special exception to allow a mobile home to be used for dwelling purposes at 504 81st St.

•Jason Ross for a special exception to allow a mobile home to be used for a dwelling at 1711 E. 49th St.

•Robert D. Kizer, representing D.L. Daniel, for a special exception to allow a television repair service in a residence at 5206 39th St.

•Janie C. Salinas for renewal of a special exception to allow a mobile home to be used as a dwelling at 1012 Zenith.

•Kennett Hobbs, representing Brittany Restaurant, to provide additional required parking off the development lot at 4001 19th St.

•M.L. Collins, representing Double C. Inc., for a special exception to allow self-service gasoline pumps and vary the front yard setback at 8210 Hudson St.

White Awaits Nuke Waste Hearings

By A—J AUSTIN BUREAU

AUSTIN — Attorney General Mark White's office still is awaiting word on when and where hearings will be held in Texas on the Department of Energy's proposed nuclear waste storage facility at Carlsbad, N.M.

Hearings were held earlier in Albuquerque on the environmental impact statement on the Waste Isolation Pilot Project (WIPP), with Texas sending "observers" from the attorney general's staff.

Assistant Attorney General Rick Lowerre says it now appears the hearings will be held in late July or early August, most likely in Odessa, if a suitable meeting site can be found and if the Federal panel can convene at that time.

Texas will present its principal case at that hearing, Lowerre says.

One major area of concern with West Texas residents and White's office is transportation — with DOE having no transportation plan for consideration at this time, Lowerre says.

El Paso began work on passing a city ordinance setting out routes for transporting nuclear wastes through its jurisdiction and other cities are eyeing similar measures.

However, it appears the role of the state in control of nuclear wastes moving through Texas is cloudy.

Department of Highways and Public Transportation officials report they can, and are willing, to mark routes designated for transportation of such wastes, but say the department has little or no authority over such movements.

Department of Health officials say their difficulty lies in receiving notice of such shipments, and of knowing what routes may have been designated.

It also appears probable the Department of Energy could override local regulations, particularly on highways for which federal funds were used in their construction — as is the case for most Texas roads.

And the Railroad Commission reports it has "very little" authority over such shipments, either on roads or by rail, being pre-empted by Federal regulations.

State officials also agree that the problem "is something we should be looking at," particularly in view of the lack of clear cut authority and existing regulations.

But they also indicate that likely it will be Washington, not Austin, which has the ultimate authority and decisions in the matter.

Library Board OKs Change For New Site

By NANCY ALLEN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Plans for Lubbock's new branch library, to be located at Leroy Elmore Park at Quaker Avenue and Loop 289, moved a step nearer completion Thursday as Library Board members OKed minor changes by architect Joe McKay.

Among the changes in plans proposed by the board and included by McKay, was easier drive-up access to the building's front door, intended to benefit handicapped patrons.

McKay, representing Brasher, Goyette and Rapier Architects, added a semicircular drive to the design of the parking lot, which was not previously included in the plans.

He reported that architects presently are making an in-depth study of the soil in Elmore Park and the holding capacity of the park's lake, to determine what foundation should be used for the library and its precise elevation.

Lubbock's recent heavy rains left standing water at the library site, but McKay contends careful planning and construction will eliminate any problems in the building when it is finished.

The architect expects plans for the library to be ready for bids by Sept. 1, and anticipates a nine-month to a year construction time on the project.

Previously, the new branch was scheduled to open its doors "no later than July 1980," according to community facilities director Jim Weston.

Also discussed at the noon meeting were tentative plans for an above-ground storm shelter to be built into one of the library's meeting rooms. Board members generally were favorable to the idea, although it is not yet known whether funding will be available for the feature.

City Councilwoman Carolyn Jordan, who was present at the meeting, warned board members to be prepared to defend their budget at city hearings later this summer.

Members of the Lubbock Property Owners Association, who last year forced cuts in city services to decrease taxes, may try the same thing again this year, Jordan warned.

The library, she explained, could be a prime target for recommended budget cuts, advising board members to know their budget and be prepared to defend it if necessary.

Also present at the meeting were County Commissioners Alton Brazell and Edgar Chance.

The Orkney and Shetland Islands, now part of Britian, once belonged to Norway.

Some ideas work and some won't! In 1978 over 2000 growers from California to Delaware and from Canada to Florida agreed that the Spray Sickle is one weed control idea that really works.
The 1979 Spray Sickle is better than ever — (Over 35 New Improvements.) If you have Johnson Grass (or any other problem weed) the Spray Sickle is really the only sure way to eradicate it.

IMPRESSIVE SCENERY — The monoliths at Monument Valley have staggering dimensions — often over 1,000 feet high. Nearby are hogans (round one room Indian dwellings), and trading posts where the Navajo and Hopi exchange sheep, rugs and turquoise for provisions. Travelers then exchange their money for jewelry, rugs, and the famous Kachina dolls.

'Mountain Safari' Offered

Here comes an opportunity for outdoor-oriented travelers to camp out in some of America's most scenic country. And the participants don't have to worry about gasoline for nearly two weeks while traveling from park campsite to Indian reservation, from desert canyon to mountain pine.

An escorted tour through the heart of America's most spectacular mountain and canyon country is a new package tour offered by Foremost West, a cooperative travel program of the states of Colorado, Utah, New Mexico, Arizona and Nevada.

"Mountain Safari" is a 13-day vacation into the mountains, valleys, and canyons of Colorado, Utah and Arizona. Modern explorers will trek the three-state scenic and historic trail via a 15-passenger air-conditioned club coach, exploring natural wonders, enjoying cook-out meals from a modern chuck wagon, and tent camping under the stars in unforgettable settings.

Priced at $515 per person, the Foremost West Package includes travel, sightseeing and admission; all meals at the chuck wagon and on the trail; campground admissions and fees; use of camping and cooking equipment, including foam mattress, warm sleeping bag, and a four-person tent for every two adventurers; and day packs and canteens for hiking.

The unique safari through the high Rockies and the great desert Southwest starts its trek from Denver and passes through granite-walled Clear Creek Canyon en route to the historic mining town of Central City. Then it's over 11,992-foot Loveland Pass to picturesque Dillon Reservoir where camp is readied for the first night.

The second day is devoted to touring Colorado's highest country around Leadville and Climax and then over Independence Pass via Twin Lakes to the famed resort of Aspen for the night's camp.

From Aspen, the trail is westward bound along the Colorado River through Rifle, De Beque Canyon, Grand Junction, and Colorado Monument, one of the most colorful spots on the Colorado plateau. Then, it's off the main highway for a back-country drive along the Colorado River past sky-piercing Fisher Towers and on to Moab, Utah, for camping at nearby Arches National Park.

The fourth and fifth days are spent exploring the grandeur of Arches National Park. Approximately 114 square miles in size, the park contains more natural rock arches, pinnacles, spires and windows than any other known area. It's a fantastic outdoor natural art museum created by wind and water erosion. Good views of the distant snow-capped peaks of the La Sal Mountains are afforded at several sites in the park. Exploring Natural Bridges National Monument, and boating on Lake Powell en route to Rainbow Bridge, and camping both nights at canyon-framed Halls Crossing is also included.

Day six is a big one! Zion National Park is the overnight campsite. On the way to Zion, the safari roams terrain not unlike another planet as it crosses the Waterpocket Fold at Capitol Reef National Park. The trail then detours to the ethereal Chorus of Millions formation at Bryce Canyon National Park, and the safari arrives at Zion in time to watch the sun set on the magnificent Great White Throne.

DISCOVERY

The seventh and eighth days are devoted to exploring and photographing the awesome majesty of the Grand Canyon. A leisurely hike into the colorful chasm is scheduled, and the safari campsite for both nights is an ideal vantage point on the canyon's North Rim.

From the Grand Canyon, the safari crosses the Colorado River at Marble Canyon near historic Lees Ferry and then on to Page, Ariz., site of Glen Canyon Dam which created Lake Powell. The adventurers are then welcomed into Navajo Land with a visit to Indian trading posts such as Kayenta, where authentic turquoise, Navajo rugs, and Kachina dolls may be purchased. The spires, columns, and minarets of Monument Valley and the grotesque Goosenecks of the San Juan River are on the trail en route to the safari's campground at Mesa Verde National Park.

The next morning, the culture of an ancient Indian civilization comes into focus as the group is guided through Mesa Verde, some of the most extensive and best-preserved Indian cliff dwellings and artifacts in the world. Then it's on to Durango, Colo., where the group takes in an 1800s saloon, an Old West show, and then beds down at Durango KOA Campground.

From Durango, it's on to Silverton via the spectacular Million Dollar Highway. Most of the day will be spent in this still active mining town sightseeing, hiking, mine touring, and gold panning. Then it's on to Ouray in the "Switzerland of America" for the night.

After breaking camp at Ouray, the expedition takes a modern motor trail to the Black Canyon of the Gunnison, where from an observation platform the group will look down sheer granite walls to the Gunnison River some 1,700 feet below. Then it's through the massive Curecanti National Recreation Area and on to Buena Vista where camp is set up for a "good view" of the towering Collegiate Peaks.

On the 13th day of the odyssey, it's back to mile-high Denver with every mile en route unfolding more magnificent mountain panoramas. From Denver, the safari adventurers return home to reminisce of 13 days on the trail through one of America's most colorful vacationlands.

Complete information on the "Mountain Safari" and other exciting Foremost West travel adventures may be obtained through your travel agent or from Foremost West, 4400 Grape St., Denver, Colo., 80216.

Several airlines serve Denver from Lubbock International Airport. Bus service to Denver via TNM&O from Lubbock is $84.10 round-trip. For the traveler headed for Denver via private automobile, a program to provide travel information plus updated gasoline availability has been established by the Colorado Office of Tourism. Motorists may call Colorado's toll-free WATS line at 800-525-3083 for current statewide information. The news media, information centers, chambers of commerce, and auto clubs will also keep tab on fuel availability.

CAMPFIRE FUN — Everyone enjoys an evening campfire, and frequently it provides an unbeatable natural flavor to the evening meal. A guitar is always welcome, and safari participants quickly lose their self-consciousness and join the singing.

River Cleanup Aid Asked

WASHINGTON (AP) — New York State is trying again to secure federal aid to clean up the Hudson River, even though it was turned down on such a request less than three months ago.

The Environmental Protection Agency turned down the original request for $29.8 million to dredge about 250,000 pounds of PCB sediment from the riverbed and dispose of it on land.

The EPA said the proposal was a good one, but found it was outside the scope of one federal program and too expensive for another one.

But the state's environmental conservation commissoner, Robert Flacke, disputes that ruling. He has resubmitted the application.

Holmes Set For WBC Fight Gamble

The champ's gamble, in the eyes of most watchers of the fight game, is in the area of money. He is an overwhelming favorite to beat Weaver.

Holmes if fighting for a percentage of the revenue in the fight which all three major networks shunned. His percentage figures to be far below the $1-million-plus guarantees a heavyweight champion commands when he fights on network TV — no matter who the opponent may be.

"As long as I keep fighting and winning, the money will come," said the 29-year-old Holmes, already signed to defend against Earnie Shavers on ABC from Giants Stadium in New Jersey's Meadowlands Sept. 14.

Promoter Don King admits he could take a financial beating. He rented the Garden for $150,000 and tickets are scaled from $150 down to $30. The building which holds about 21,000 for a fight is scaled for $1.2 million. Estimates for the turnout range from 10,000 to 15,000.

About 2,500 of Holmes fans from Easton, Pa., will be on hand according to the champion's attorney, Chares Spaziani. They'll be coming by car, bus and on the "Larry Holmes Express" train.

In a bid to attract other fans, King signed Roberto Duran, the former lightweight champion, and Carlos Palomino, the former welterweight champion, to meet in what promises to be a sensational fight.

King also set up a closed-circuit television network in about 45 locations throughout the United States, excluding New York. But some cable TV customers in the New York area will be able to see the fights because King sold the show for $200,000 to Home Box Office, which reaches 2 million sets in the United States.

The 26-year-old Weaver, of Los Angeles, is getting $50,000 for his big chance. He goes into the ring with the WBC's No. 8 contender rating earned with knockout wins in his last five fights which boosted his record to a mediocre 20-8 with 14 knockouts.

"It don't bother me what the experts say," said the challenger. "What do experts know about boxing?"

Holmes says, "I will win from one to seven."

Weaver is known as "Hercules" because of his 44½ inch chest (normal) and his 17-inch biceps. But Holmes is bigger in more important areas.

The 6-foot-3 champion weighed 215 pounds to 202 for Weaver and enjoys a 2½-inch reach advantage over the 6-1 challenger. That is a lot of reach advantage for a fighter who has a left jab that is not only fast and accurate but also is damaging.

Holmes, 30-0, with 21 knockouts as a pro, will be making his third defense of the title he won on a split decision over Ken Norton on June 9, 1978. In previous defenses he knocked out Alfredo Evangelista of Spain in the seventh round Nov. 10, 1978.

Newton Leads In Canada...

OAKVILLE, Ontario (AP) — Jack Newton, a globe-trotting Australian veteran, scored two eagles on his way to a course-record, 7-under-par 64 that put him in the first round lead Thursday in the $350,000 Canadian Open Golf Tournament.

"I played my socks off," said vhe 39-year-old Newton, winner of 18 tournaments around the world.

While his spectacular effort shattered the record on the 7,050 yard, par 71 Glen Abbey Golf Club course by three shots, his leadwas only two strokes over the irrepressible To Watson, who, incidentally, beat Newton in an 18-hole playoff for the 1975 British Open.

Watson, the year's leading money-winnerand gunning for a fifth victory of the season, one-putted 11 times on the way to a 66 which also broke the old record.

"I putted very, very well and that was the reason for the score. I'm ready to play this week," said Watson, who failed to make the cut for the final two rounds in the U.S. Open last week.

Masters champion Fuzzy Zoeller, two-time Canadian Open winner Lee Trevino and slump-ridden Johnny Miller matched the old standard of 67 as the ideal playing conditions — mild, overcast weather with just the hint of a breeze — and a course set up to handle the forecast showers and thunderstorms produced exceptionally low scores.

"This was a day when they caught Glen Abbey in the easiest conditions," said Jack Nicklaus, who designed the course that will become a permanent home for this national championship. "Some of the fellows took advantge of it. And some of us," Nicklaus continued with a rueful smile, "didn't take as much advantage as we'd liked to have."

By SCOTT SUDDUTH
Avalanche Journal Sports Staff

A little over a year ago, Stacy Nix moved to Lubbock just in time to enter his first area golf tournament—the 1978 Lubbock City Junior Golf Championship. His opponents barely had a chance to introduce themselves before the Amarillo native stormed the Meadowbrook golf course for the Junior title.

A year later most of the golfers in the 16-18 age bracket knew Nix and he was no longer an alien threatening their territory. However, the familiar faces failed to

"The pressure was tougher this year because I was playing against friends," said Nix. Last year I didn't know anyone so I didn't feel any direct pressure from the opponents."

However, Nix carded a 77 Friday for a three-round total of 229 to become the first golfer to win two Lubbock junior championships. He edged Monterey teammate Tom Lauer by three strokes for the crown. Lauer, however, won the last round with a 76 on the par-71 course.

Nix collected two birdies during the final round yet his three day total was five strokes off his winning effort of 224 a year ago.

"The weather got to me this year," said Nix. "The heat took a lot out of me plus plus my putting was terrible today," explained the youngster. I didn't three-putt any greens but I missed a lot of easy birdie putts," he complained.

"At least I was hitting the ball well," he said. "I want to improve my putting and short range game so I can play on the college level," said Nix, who hopes to earn the No. 1 position on the Monterey golf team next year.

Lauer edged Steve McCutcheon and Chris Osborne for second place in the 16-18 age group. McCutheon trailed Nix by one stroke after Tuesday's opening round but he settled for an 83 and 79 on the last two rounds.

Jeff Cranford, who hopes to make the MHS golf team next year as a sophomore, snatched the crown in the 14-15 age group. He had a three-round total of 241 to beat Brad Simnacher by three strokes.

Wilson To Announce Queen Coaching Plans

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Cathy Wilson is expected to be named head coach of the Wayland Baptist Flying Queens at a news conference this morning in Plainview, The Avalanche-Journal has learned.

Although Wayland Baptist College officials would not comment on the expected announcement, sources said Miss Wilson has accepted the job, making her the first woman to hold the post in the 41-year history of the program.

Miss Wilson was not available for comment Thursday night.

Wayland officials said Miss Wilson had not signed a contract as of Thursday night. But a reliable source told the A-J the school is "very optimistic" that she will.

The 10 a.m. news conference will be held in the office of WBC President Dr. Roy McClung.

Miss Wilson had been offered the position Tuesday afternoon after an interview on the Plainview campus. However, she told the Avalanche-Journal Wednesday evening that she "needed to get out of town awhile and do some thinking."

"I just don't know what to do," she said. "I haven't talked to any of the people at Slaton, yet. And I certainly need to do that."

Miss Wilson met with Slaton School Superintendent J.C. McClesky Thursday night, presumably to submit her resignation.

One of the premier high school coaches in the state, Miss Wilson led Slaton High School to back-to-back cage championships in 1978 and 1979. Before moving to Slaton, she also guided Nazareth High School to a Class B title in 1977 and the state semifinals in 1976.

Miss Wilson also is a former Flying Queen who played her final two years under departing coach Dean Weese. Weese recently resigned to become the head coach of the

Austin Qualifies For Semifinals In Eastbourne Tennis Action

EASTBOURNE, England (AP) — Tracy Austin suffered a pre-Wimbledon scare Thursday, pulling a leg muscle as she reached the semifinals of the $100,000 Eastbourbe international grass courts tennis tournament.

The 16-year-old Californian schoolgirl defeated South Africa's Ilana Kloss 6-2, 6-4, hurting herself in a fall in the second set.

"There is no worry about being fit for Wimbledon," Miss Austin said, looking ahead to next Monday's start of the classic tournament. "I am sure I'll be fine."

But she added she will have treatment this morning and will decide then whether to go ahead with her semifinal against Martina Navratilova in the afternoon.

Miss Navratlova, the reigning Wimbledon champion, stormed to a 6-4, 6-1 victory over Wendy Turnbull of Australia.

Two former Wimbledon champions, Chris Lloyd and Virginia Wade, had comfortable victories in the other quarter-finals. Mrs. Lloyd defeated 31-year-old Australian Kerry Reid 6-3, 6-4 and Miss Wade overcame American Bettina Bunge, the 16-year-fold surprise of the tournament, 6-0, 6-4.

Austin said she was undecided whether to go on with her match against Kloss when she fell. "I decided to get the match over as quickly as possible," she said. "I don't think I have served so well in a long time."

Tracy is the third American woman star to be hurt in the warm-up to Wimbledon. Pam Shriver, also a 16-year-old American, has a shoulder injury and Billie Jean King pulled a leg muscle.

All three hope to be fit by the time the big tournament starts.

Miss Navratilova ended a long run of success for Miss Turnbull, who had won 26 of 27 matches, singles and doubles, losing only to Mrs. Lloyd in the final of the French Open in Paris.

The exiled Czech commented: "The better the opponent, the better I play. I concentrated and now I feel I'm hitting the ball really well."

Mrs. Lloyd finished both sets of her match against Reid in grand style. In the first set she reeled off 22 straight points from 3-3. In the second she came from 3-4 to win three games in a row.

Veteran Golfer 'Plays Socks Off'

Hale Irwin, the recently-crowned United States Open champion, could do no better than a 72. Defending titleholder Bruce Lietzke matched par 71. Gary Player, a runner-up last week, finished double bogey-double bogey for a fat 80.

Newton, whose only victory on the American tour came last year in the Buick Open, said his round was "as good, if not better, than I've ever played before."

In addition to his pair of eagles he had five birdies and two bogeys.

Both eagles, on the par-5 fifth and 13th holes, came off 3-wood second shots that reached the putting surface. He holed a 25-foot putt on the fifth and scored from eight feet on the 13th.

While Newton had the lead, Zoeller indicated it was Watson who is the man to beat.

"When he's in the field," Fuzzy said, "you just say, 'Oh, hell, I'm playing for second again'."

Watson, first or second in more than half his starts this year, made his round with a string of four consecutive birdies beginning on his sixth hole, where he dropped a 20-footer. The key to the whole round, however, was on the first hole, he said. He drove poorly, had to play out of the trees and eventually faced a 12-foot par-saving putt. He made it and "that, on the first hole, was quite a lift."

Trevino chipped in from 18-feet on the final hole for a birdie that gave him a share of third place.

Miller's 67, however, ranked as one of the more subtly-dramatic efforts of the day. It was only the third time this year the one-time golden boy had broken 70. He's missed the cut in five of his last seven starts.

"It was like I was reborn," Miller said. "It must have looked like it was a different guy out there. I was just teeing it up and letting it fly. I feel I've bottomed out and am on the upswing. I'm getting near a crest. I don't know if I'm ready to win yet or not, but I'm getting close."

TRAP SHOOTING—Tom Watson, who failed to make the cut last week in the U.S. Open, blasts out of the trap during first round action of the Canadian Open Golf Tournament. Watson regained his old form with a 66, and trails leader Jack Newton by 2-strokes. Both Watson and Newton broke course records. (AP Laserphoto)

Wilson Near Decision

As a collegian, Miss Wilson was named the Queen's VP during the 1974-75 season, the year WBC posted a 34-1 mark and won the national AAU title. The Queens finished fifth in the AIAW tournament the same year.

According to Athletic Director Bob Clindaniel, Miss Wilson was selected from a field of 15 applicants. The field was narrowed down to three, including Miss Wilson, Duane Hunt of Borger and Marsha Sharp of Lockney. However, Clindaniel said Miss Wilson was a first choice "all the way."

Miss Wilson recently was offered the head women's coaching job at the University of Texas at Arlington. She also was interviewed for the same position at North Texas State University and as an assistant at the University of Texas.

Minor League Finals Tonight

The Furrs Reds beat the Cleveland Athletics 8-3 Thursday night to advance in the loser's bracket of the Babe Ruth junior division post-season tournament.

The Reds will play the loser of the Elks Blazers— A & B Muffler Rangers contest tonight at 8:30 p.m. at Mackenzie Park.

Danny Moncibiaz, the winning pitcher, connected for a double as the Reds had four hits in the contest. Steve Aguilar added a triple for the winners.

In a late game Wednesday night, the Blazers and Athletics went 8 innings before the Blazers emerged with a 11-10 victory.

Javier Flores was the winning pitcher; he collected 17 strikeouts. The losing pitcher, Joe Benavidez, fanned 12 batters. Flores also added a homerun during the contest and Rodney Wheeler, who went 3-for-5 at the plate, had a triple for the winners.

The Minor League championship will be decided tonight at 6 p.m. between the Great Plains Tigers and Bruckner's Mack Warriors. The game is at Mackenzie Park.

Oakland Posts Royal Victory

By The Associated Press

Tony Armas got three hits, including a home run and a double, to lead the Oakland A's to a 10-7 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

The Royals scored three runs in the first, two on a triple by Al Cowens, but were held scoreless by Steve McCatty, 5-2, until the eighth. In that inning, they scored four runs — two on George Brett's eighth home run of the season.

Bob Lacey relieved McCatty in the eighth and in turn was followed in the ninth by Dave Heaverlo, who recorded his fifth save.

The A's got only three hits in the first three innings but scored six runs off Royals starter Steve Busby, 2-5. They capitalized on four walks and two Kansas City errors.

Oakland scored once in the first, on Dave Revering's sacrifice fly, and went ahead with three runs in the second, when the Royals made two errors.

Busby walked the Larry Murray, who led off the inning, and Armas doubled to put runners at second and third. Then a ground ball by Mike Edwards went through second baseman Frank White for an error and two runs scored.

Dwayne Murphy sacrificed and reached first when catcher Darrell Porter was unable to pick up the ball, Dave Chalk also sacrificed and Edwards scored the go-ahead run on a grounder by Wayne Gross.

Armas belted a two-run homer in the third, and Reveing homered in the fifth off reliever Bill Paschall.

The A's scord two runs in the fifth, one in the sixth and one in the eighth when Gross hit his ninth home run of the year.

RANGERS—ANGELS TIED

At press time, the Texas Rangers and California Angels were tied 2-2 after nine innings.

The Rangers took a 2-0 lead in the sixth inning when Oscar Gamble lined a double to the wall in right center field. The hit brought home Buddy Bell and Pat Putnam.

Tiant, 3-2, worked into the eighth inning before surrendering a two-out double to Rico Carty. Jim Kaat came out of the bullpen to retire John Mayberry, then Ron Davis pitched the ninth inning and earned his second save.

The Yankees picked up two unearned runs in the third inning against Dave Lemanczyk, 7-4. Rookie Jerry Narron led off with a liner to left and was safe when Al Woods dropped the ball for an error. Narron reached third on Bucky Dent's hit-and-run single and scored on a grounder by Fred Stanley. After Mickey Rivers flied out, rookie Bobby Brown singled Dent home.

BREWERS 7, TWINS 3

Paul Molitor's third hit, a bunt single with two out in the seventh inning, scored Robin Yount wth the go-ahead run, lifting the Milwakee Brewers to a 3-2 victory over the Minnesota Twins.

Steve Yeager and Reggie Smith belted home runs and right-hander Don Sutton snapped his personal three-game losing streak as the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the Atlana Braves 6-4.

Yeager belted a three-run homer, his fifth of the year, off Atlanta starter Mickey Mahler, 2-8, in the fourth inning following a double by Ron Cey and a walk to Joe Ferguson. Cey's double scored Smith, who had walked.

Smith's seventh homer of the season carried into the right field seats and came after reliever Adrian Devine had walked Bill Russell in the fifth inning.

Sutton, 7-7, had lost his previous three starts but built his career record against the Braves to 31-11 with relief help in the eighth inning. The Dodgers used four relief pitchers, including Dave Patterson, who gained his first save after pitching out of a bases-loaded situation in the ninth.

WHITE SOX 9, MARINERS 5

Lamar Johnson drove in three runs with a homer and a single and Milt May hit a solo homer to lead the Chicago White Sox to a 9-5 victory over Seattle, snapping the Mariners' four-game winning streak.

Francisco Barrios, 7-3, was the winner but could not get through the sixth inning. Beck replaces Joe Marlett who resigned the position he had held for four years and asked to be reassigned as a teacher in order to pursue a certificate in adminstration.

Beck, the head coach at Perryton since 1972 before stepping down last year to entire private business, has a 16-year record of 118-47-7, an average of seven wins per season.

He has also coahced at Lockney and Olton, along with stings in Wellington and Sunray. In all he has won seven district championships.

Cowboys Sign Draft Picks

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League signed three players Thursday including fifth-round draft choice Bob Hukill, an offensive tackle from North Carolina.

Lemon To Manage All-Star Team

NEW YORK (AP) — American League President Lee MacPhail said Thursday that Bob Lemon will manage the AL All-Stars in the July 17 game against the National League at Seattle.

Lemon was the American League Manager of the Year in 1978 when he took over the New York Yankees at midseason and piloted them to the World Championship. He was replaced as Yankee manager on Monday by Billy Martin.

"Bob wanted to be the All-Star manager, and he certainly earned the honor," MacPhail said. "It seems to me that Bob is the perfect choice. He has been active in the league and has seen all the teams this year, and he knows all the league talent throughly. Together, we hope to select the best possible club to oppose Tommy Lasorda and National on July 17 in Seattle," MacPhail said.

This is not the first tie that a manager has been called in from the sidelines to handle an All-Star team. In 1974, Dick Williams piloted to American League team after resigning as Oakland manager following the 1973 World Series. Shortly before the game, he had been hired by the California Angels.

In the first All-Star game in 1933, John McGraw managed the National League team, although he had been replaced as manager of the New York Giants by Bill Terry a year earlier. The American League team was managed by Philadelphia's Connie Mack, even though Joe McCarthy's Yankees had won the pennant the previous year.

In 1965, managers Johnny Keane and Yogi Berra, who had opposed each other in the previous year's World Series, had moved on to other jobs. They were replaced by the runnerup managers — Gene Mauch in the National League and Al Lopez in the American.

Brewers Activate Veteran Infielder

The Milwaukee Brewers Thursday activated veteran infielder Don Money, who had missed all but 11 games of the baseball season because of a pulled hamstring.

Money, a starter on the American League All-Star team last year, injured the hamstring in a game against Baltimore April 14 and was placed on the disabled list after he aggravated the injury in a game against Cleveland May 2.

The Brewers had a roster vacancy and did not have to drop anyone to make room for Money.

Waits Gets Married

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland pitcher Rick Waits was married Thursday as the Indians took the day off, but the baseball team said "an extremely short honeymoon is planned" as they prepare for an 11-game road trip starting Friday to New York, Baltimore and Detroit.

The 27-year-old Waits married Tucson, Ariz., nurse Anne Elizabeth Goff in a private ceremony at the home of a friend in exclusive Bratenahl. The couple met earlier this year in Tucson, where the Indians hold spring training.

Mulligan, Murdock Top Wrestling Card

Black Jack Mulligan will take on Dick Murdock in the main event of tonight's wrestling card at Fair Park Coliseum. Action gets underway at 8:30 p.m.

In other matches, Co Co Nut Willie and Ricky Romero team up to meet Little Tokyo and Akio Sato, the tag-team match pits both midgets and big men. Also on tap, James Dillon wrestles Larry Lane, El Mongol goes against Manny Fernandez and Kiyo Moto pursues Ted Heath.

When the first five men were named to the Baseball Hall of Fame in 1936, Ty Cobb received the most votes, beating out Honus Wanger, Babe Ruth, Christy Mathewson and Walter Johnson.

Gottfried Hits Prix Net Peak

SURBITON, England (AP) — Brian Gottfried hit peak form Thursday and blasted fellow American Tim Wilkison 6-3, 6-2 to reach the semifinals of the Debenhams men's grand prix grass court tennis championships.

Gottfried made only one unforced error in a spectacular performance, only four days before the start of Wimbledon.

Foyt Grabs Pole Spot In Pocono Auto Race

MOUNT POCONO, Pa. (AP) — "I just gritted my teeth and hoped," said A.J. Foyt after his dramatic qualifying run snatched the pole position away from Danny Ongais by 1-100th of a second today in time trials for Sunday's $375,000 Music 500.

The 44-year-old Foyt, a two-time winner of 500-mile races at nine-year-old Pocono International Raceway, averaged 182.334 mph on his five-mile timed run, while Ongais averaged 182.315 mph. Both drivers fielded almost identical Cosworth-powered Parnelli racers.

Johnny Parsons took the third spot on the front row with a speed of 179.104 mph in a Lightning-Offenhauser. Janet Guthrie was fourth fastest at 179.051 mph in a Lola-Cosworth, just .03 of a second slower than Parsons.

The 36-year-old Ongais, the only Championship Auto Racing Team (CART) regular to enter this U.S. Auto Club sanctioned event, had the fastest lap of the session, at 182.852 mph, but his first lap was considerably slower and pulled his average down.

"I guess sometimes it just takes a driver a lap or more to really get into it," Ongais said. "The second lap was a very good one, no problems whatsoever. We achieved a speed close to that only once before (in practice)."

Ongais added that Foyt's run didn't srprise him, even though Foyt had been considerably slower in practice. "A.J. is capable of that wherever he goes," Ongais noted.

Dublin Wins Race

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. (Special) — Dublin The Green won only the second race of his career Thursday capturing the feature event at Ruidoso Downs.

Going wire to wire for the 5½ furlongs victory, Dubin The Green pulled away from a three horse pack down the backstretch, then moved out to a two-length lead around the turn for home.

Jockey Stuart Dolphu then guided Dublin The Green to an easy 1½ length win over Net Net Net at the wire.

Dubin The Green as an 8-5 favorite returned his backers 5.20, 3.40 and 3.20. It was the first win this year for the Scheky Green sired colt, owned by Nance Whitehead of Menard, Tenn.

Lopez, Bradley Top Ladies' Golf

The Lady Keystone Open has special significance for Lopez.

It was here last year that Miss Lopez met Tim Melton, a Harrisburg sportscaster. Last January, the couple married and settled in Hershey.

The tournament also marked the end of Miss Lopez' record-breaking winning streak. She arrived here in 1978, with five triumphs in a row.

"I was tired last year when I came here, real tired," Miss Lopez said. "This year I feel real good. I didn't have my concentration last year. This year I will."

Miss Lopez said that playing in her adopted hometown is kind of different. "I think I'll enjoy the week a lot better."

Actually, it is sort of a last hurrah for Miss Lopez in Hershey.

After the Lady Keystone, she and her husband are moving to Cinncinnati, where Melton has recently taken another job.

Miss Bradley is the third leading money winner this year, despite not having won a tournament. The Westford, Mass., golfer, however, has 13 top-10 finishes in 16 starts this year.

Others who may challenge for the $15,000 top prize include JoAnne Carner and Sally Little.

The 54-hole event continues through Sunday.

Governors Adopt Three-Point Shot

AMELIA ISLAND, Fla. (AP) — The three-point goal was voted in and the third referee was voted out by the National Basketball Association's Board of Governors Thursday.

The Governors — one executive from each of the league's 22 teams — adopted a three-point field goal rule on a one-year trial basis. Under the rule, similar to that used in the old American Basketball Association, any shot made from beyond a designated area on the floor, roughly 22 feet from the basket, will be worth three points instead of two.

"It was a very tough debate and a very close vote," said Joe Axelson, president of the Kansas City Kings, and chairman of the NBA's Rules and Competition Committee.

The three-point goal had been recommended overwhelmingly by the league's coaches and general managers, who met last week in Washington. Despite opposition from some NBA old-timers, its adoption by the Board of Governors was anticipated.

The rejection of the three referee system was not.

The NBA used three-man refereeing teams on an experimental basis last season, and league officials favored making the setup permanent. The coaches voted 17-3 in favor of keeping the third official, and the general managers also expressed their support of the system.

But the final decision was up to the owners, and they balked at picking up the tab for the extra official. No official figure ever has been released on that cost, but estimates have ranged from $500,000 to $1 million.

"Frankly, it was felt by the Board that the improvment in the refereeing, if any, did not justify the expense," said Axelson.

The league employed 38 referees last season. That number will be reduced to 26 or 27 because of the cutback, according to Norm Drucker, the league's supervisor of officials.

"I don't think going back to two referees is going to hurt the league any," said Drucker, who will have to decide over the next two months which officials to keep and which to dismiss. "I was brought up on two officials and always thought two could do the job."

A proposal to legalize the zone defense died in committee, as did several other proposed rule changes. One that was adopted will force teams to get the ball into the frontcourt within 10 seconds even if the ball is batted out of bounds. The clock will not be reset to 10 seconds, as was done previously when the ball went out of bounds.

In their first action of the day, the Governors formally approved the sale of the Houston Rockets to George Maloof, a businessman based in Albuquerque, N.M.

Approval of Jerry Buss as the new owner of the Los Angeles Lakers was delayed pending the presentation of further information to the league's Advisory Committee.

"It's a matter of getting the file completed," said NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien. "This is a very large transaction in terms of the number of elements in it, and not all the material was ready in time for today's meeting."

The governors also heard a report from the NBA's Expansion Committee, which held the first in a series of meetings Monday in New York. The league is committed to adding two new teams by the 1980-81 season, with Dallas and Minneapolis-St.Paul considered the front-runners.

In addition, the league adopted a rule requiring that any fines levied by the commissioner be paid by the individual fined, and not by the team.

O'Brien conceded that rule might be tough to enforce.

"First you get the rule built in, then you worry anout enforcing it," he said. "But you're right. It may be well be a two-staged rocket, with the second stage (enforcement) being tougher than the first."

The Board of Governors' annual summer meeting resumes Friday.

Fight

then knocked out Ossie Ocasio in the seventh last March 23.

The welterweight—considered by many to be the main even—matches two of the top fighters in the world.

Duran is a Latin legend nicknamed the "Manos de Piedra (Hands of Stone)." The name fits. The 28-year-old Panamanian, who gave up the lightweight title because of difficulty making the 135-pound limit has a record of 65-1 with 53 knockouts.

He won the lightweight title by stopping Ken Buchanan in the 13th round June 26, 1972, and made 12 defense, only one of them going the distance. He has not lost since Esteban DeJesus outpointed him in a 10-round nontitle bout Nov. 17, 1972—36 fights ago.

"If I was Palomino, I wouldn't fight Roberto Duran," said Duran.

Palomino appears equally confident. He has right to be.

The 29-year-old Mexican-born U.S. citizen had a record of 27-2-3. He is a tremendous left-hooker and that is the punch DeJesus used to knock Duran down in his upset and in a losing title bid.

Palomino, of Huntington Beach, Calif., won the WBC welterweight title by stopping John Stracey in the 12th round June 22, 1976, and defended seven times before being outpointed by Wilfredo Benitez of Puerto Rico in San Juan last Jan. 14.

Palomino is guranteed $250,000. Duran had the same guarantee but agree to help King by cutting $100,00 "against a due Bill later," according to the promoter.

DeVito's Bewilderment With Hollywood Gives Way To TV Role

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Danny DeVito, the diminutive despot of ABC's "Taxi," admits he was bewildered the first time he came to Hollywood.

"I was from New York and I had no idea what it was like," he says. "I didn't know it was spread out. I didn't understand why Michael Douglas couldn't pick me up at the L.A. Airport just because he was going to college in Santa Barbara."

Devito, 34, was about 22 then, and had just graduated from the Academy of Dramatic Arts. He was coming to Hollywood to become a movie star.

He arrived in Hollywood — after a detour downtown because he thought that's where movies were made — wearing a black raincoat. "I hung around for two years," he recalls. "I wasn't exactly Ratso Rizzo, but close. Michael Douglas — I'd known him a few years — straightened me out."

When next he arrived in Hollywood, after a successful off-Broadway stage career, it was to make a movie for his friend, Douglas. He played Martini in a stage version of "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," and was selected for the screen version.

Jack Nicholson, who won one of the movie's five Oscars, asked DeVito to appear in "Goin' South." He played Hog, a violin-playing member of Nicholson's inept band of desperadoes.

DeVito had done a few television guest shots, but he really hadn't thought much about the medium. Then, as the saying goes, he got a fateful call. "They said they had a part I was right for," he says. "I hadn't sought this kind of employment before. I wanted to do movies, go back to New York for a play.

"I was clued in to the reputation of the guys behind 'Taxi.' They had done 'The Mary Tyler Moore Show.' The script was great, the characters were well drawn. I really wanted the part."

He began to develop a plan to land the role of Louie DePalma, the tyrannical taxi dispatcher.

"I walked into the audition and was introduced to everybody," he remembers. "I had the script in my hand. I said, 'All right, one thing I want to know beforehand, who wrote this garbage?' I threw the script on the table.

"There was a moment of stunned silence, then a big laugh. Louie had walked into their lives. I felt Louie had been written for me. It was my role."

But, with that New York Italian accent and that deep, growly voice, DeVito can make bigger men jump. As Louie, he runs the garage of the Sunshine Cab Co. like a Prussian drill sergeant.

"I love it," says DeVito, "it's so rewarding. The whole experience. Louie gets some great things to say, some points to make. He knows himself, he takes care of his people. He loves those cabbies.

"Louie is a combination of what they've given me in terms of the character and my own work as an actor. He's no one particular person."

As "Taxi" begins a second season in September, DeVito says he hopes to explore the character more. He finds it difficult, however, to talk too much about Louie. "Talking about the character is too personal. I'd rather describe my underwear to you."

DeVito has also appeared in such movies as "Car Wash," "Lady Liberty," "Hurry Up or I'll Be 30," and "Scalawag." He's just finished playing a beach character in the ABC movie "Valentine," starring Mary Martin and Jack Albertson.

Although he's now making good money, he continues to live simply. He and his companion, Rhea Perlman, live in a working class neighborhood in Hollywood. She is an actress and writer and they are working on several projects together.

Artist Prepares Art Demonstration For Television

A well-known California artist, visiting the Lubbock area with her family this week, will give a painting demonstration at 9 a.m. today on "People Place," seen on Channel 11 and hosted by Alice French.

Joan Horton, her husband Clarence and daughters Yvonne and Stephanie of Long Beach, Calif., are in the area this week to visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dutch Horton of Spur.

Mrs. Horton also is here to do research on western scenes for a 1980 calendar she has been commissioned to do.

The Hortons are in the process of opening an art gallery in the village around the ship Queen Mary at Long Beach, which Horton will operate while his wife fulfills her personal appearance engagements and provides material for the gallery.

SMALLEST PLANET

Mercury, nearest planet to the sun, is the smallest of the nine planets known to be in the solar system. It moves with great speed in its journey around the sun, averaging about 30 miles a second to complete its circuit in 88 of our days. Mercury rotates on its axis over a period of nearly 59 days, thus exposing all of its surface periodically to the sun.

Ohio TV Station Changes Ownership

ATLANTA (AP) — Cox Broadcasting Corp. and General Electric Co. announced Thursday that they have reached an agreement under which Ohio Valley Broadcasting Corp. of Dayton will acquire Cox's Dayton television station, WHIO-TV, for $47.5 million.

The announcement said the agreement is contingent upon approval of a pending merger between Cox and General Electric by Cox shareholders, the Federal Communications Commission and other governmental agencies.

Ohio Valley Broadcasting is a newly formed corporation which will locally own and operate WHIO-TV, the announcement said.

YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHMS

By Bernard Gittelson, Author of "Biorhythm: A Personal Science"

The personal science of biorhythm can tell you how your day will go. Now you can judge the highs and lows of not only yourself, but loved ones and friends, and celebrities and stars. Biorhythm, our newest scientific discipline, is the study of the built-in natural cycles that powerfully influence our behavior.

BIORHYTHMS FOR JUNE 22, 1979

PHYSICAL
Criticals: 3, 14, 26, 37, 49, 60, 72 ... Reflexes off
Highs: 4-13, 27-36, 50-59, 73-75 ... Day for hard physical work

EMOTIONAL
Criticals: 6, 20, 34, 48, 62, 76 ... Beware today, slow up
Highs: 1-5, 21-33, 49-61, 77-85 ... High spirited day for you
Lows: 7-19, 35-47, 63-75 ... Self-pity prevails

INTELLECTUAL
Criticals: 17, 33, 50, 66, 83 ... Acuity off
Highs: 18-32, 51-65, 84-95 ... Originate today
Lows: 1-16, 34-49, 67-82 ... Ponder all decisions

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Step 2: Now find the corresponding number for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

Step 3: In the figure chart, enter your day of birth three times, one each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I). (If you were born on April 3, for instance, place a 3 in each column.)

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's rhythms.

NBC To Field Sunday Night News Show

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Snyder is back in New York as host of "Prime Time Sunday," NBC's new weekly magazine shown determined to avoid a confrontation — or even comparison — with CBS' "60 Minutes."

"It's not our intent to kill '60 Minutes,' or wipe it from the Sunday night schedule, or even to compete with it then," Snyder said the other day. "That would be self-defeating, and besides, we're going to be different than that program."

Indeed, comparison with the eminently successful, 10-year-old "60 Minutes" is inevitable, and Snyder and the people who run NBC News are anxious to minimize the kind of relationship that contributed to the demise of "Weekend," the predecessor of "Prime Time Sunday."

"As the program evolves," Snyder said, "you will see distinct differences in the way 'Prime Time Sunday' approaches people and issues. We will be different than the other news magazines."

"Prime Time Sunday" premieres this coming Sunday night at 9 EDT. "Weekend" found it next to impossible to raise an audience in that time slot, but Snyder & Co. are more optimistic this time 'round.

"We're going to be the only non-repeat show on the air at that time during the summer," Snyder said, "and that will give us a chance to build a following while we experiment with the program."

Les Crystal, the president of NBC News and Snyder's boss, noted "60 Minutes" has the only protected time period on the schedule — 6:30 P.M. Sunday is restricted to news and children's programming — But said, "There are a lot of adult viewers watching at 9 o'clock Sunday, and we think 'Prime Time Sunday' will appeal to them."

NBC obviously isn't expecting high ratings from the start. "In our minds, the success of the program will come at 10 p.m. Sunday," Crystal said, "When we can tell ourselves, 'That was a damn good show.'"

Snyder said one distinction between "Prime Time Sunday" and the other magazine-type programs — including ABC's "20-20," begun last season and broadcast Thursdays at 9 p.m. — will be the live segments, primarily interviews and discussions from the program's New York studio.

The NBC show will include three packaged reports each week, with correspondents Jack Perkins on the West Coast and Chris Wallace in the East handling two of the stories. Snyder will do the third.

NBC built a new set for "Prime Time Sunday," with the control panel on camera and seats for spectators within view. Paul Friedman, who produced NBC's "Today" show from 1976 through April, is executive producer.

Snyder's return to New York — he was anchorman for WNBC's "News Center 4" evening news program from 1974 to 1977 — brings the network's "Tomorrow" back from the West Coast. Snyder has been host of the late night interview show since 1973, and will continue in that role at least for the present.

Snyder is one of the network's leading on-air personalities — he denied published reports he is paid $1 million a year for his services — and NBC clearly is counting on him to attract at least respectable ratings.

Crystal indicated, however, that "Prime Time Sunday" might be given more of an opportunity to survive than "Weekend." "This is part of the commitment Fred Silverman has made," he said, referring to the network's president, "to have an innovative, important news magazine on the air, permanently."

'Alien' May Change Actor's Career

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — With theater receipts of "Alien" pushing into the rarified "Star Wars" territory, Tom Skerritt should be feeling good.

He is. The actor would feel even better if he owned a percentage of the space thriller in which he stars. He doesn't.

"Halfway through production, I realized that it was going to be a highly successful film," he recalls. "I offered to trade my entire salary for half a (percentage) point. Ron Shusett, the executive producer, just laughed."

Not that Skerritt believed in "Alien" from the beginning.

"When I first read the script I was not impressed. I'm not a fan of science fiction, and anyway, it's not the kind of film that can be visualized from a script. And originally, the picture was going to be made on a fairly low budget."

Then Ridley Scott was assigned as director. He is the Britisher whose visual sense was developed by making TV commercials; his "The Duellists" was a visual feast though a commercial failure. Skerritt re-read the "Alien" script with a new perspective. He also was encouraged when 20th Century-Fox elevated the budget to $10 million.

The hit of "Alien" might well boost Tom Skerritt to the star status that has eluded him since his 1962 debut in "War Hunt," which featured another young actor named Robert Redford. Skerritt almost turned the trick with "M-A-S-H."

"That was another script that wasn't impressive in the reading," said the Detroit-born actor. "But I knew Bob Altman, and I had faith that he would turn it into somethig that was wild, crazy and delightful. I spent much of my time trying to convince Elliot and Don of that; they thought it was crap."

The irony is that "M-A-S-H" brought new fortune to Elliot Gould and Donald Sutherland but nothing to co-star Skerritt. The added irony is that Skerritt declined a chance to play in the TV Version.

"I thought they would make it into just another sitcom," he explained. "I didn't realize it was going to be a quality show. They eliminated my character from the series, so now people have to ask me what role I played in the movie."

Skerritt's career continued with films like "Run Run Joe" and "Big Bad Mama" and he appeared in dozens of TV series, mostly as heavies. Then came his Italian period.

"I was in Italy for three and a half years," he said. "Here I am too obviously Anglo-Saxon to be cast as anything else, but over there I was cast as Italians.

"My agents at William Morris kept telling me that Clint Eastwood and Charles Bronson became stars by working in Italy. But the whole situation had changed by the time I got there. On my last film, it took me nine months to get my salary. That's when I decided to come back here. And to change agents."

"The Turning Point" may have been just that for Tom Skerritt. His performance as Shirley MacLaine's husband proved one of the strengths of that well-liked film. Afterward he played Lynn-Holly Johnson's father in "Ice Castles" and now the space commander in "Alien."

The story concerns an ever-mutating creature that feeds upon the crew of a space vehicle, and the meal times bring shrieks from audiences. Hard to believe, but Skerritt says there was more gore in the script — "Ridley toned it down."

What has happened to Skerritt since "Alien"?

"There was an immediate upsurge in scripts. One of them is 'Flash Gordon,' which I don't think I'll do. Who knows if the public won't be tired of space movies by the time 'Flash Gordon' comes out, two years from now. Especially after the 'Star Trek' movie and 'Star Wars II'."

Clements Cuts Museum Funds

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements' veto of state funds for seven university-affiliated Texas museums is a "shocking" blow, a spokesman for Texas museums said Thursday.

"We are fully aware that the governor anticipates each affiliated university picking up the slack, but this just will not happen in some instances and certainly not the whole budget," said Calvin Smith, vice president of the Texas Association of Museums and director of museum services at Lamar University.

"I do not see any hope of continuing with any of our educational programs, no cultural awareness series, no more publications except what is now in progress, no special exhibitions or other public services. We will be reduced to caretaker status."

Smith said the vetoes cut $1,280,957 from the 1980-81 budgets of the Texas Memorial Museum at the University of Texas at Austin, Centennial Museum at UT-El Paso, Spindletop Memorial Museum at Lamar, North Texas State University Historical Collection, Museum of the Big Bend at Sul Ross State University, John E. Conner Museum at Texas A&I University and Stone Fort Museum at Stephen F. Austin University.

GOP CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Samuel L. Devine, R-Ohio, was elected chairman of the House Republican Conference. Devine, 63, an 11-term veteran from Columbus, won the third-ranked post in the GOP House leadership by defeating Rep. Henry J. Hyde, R-Ill., 75-72, on the second ballot.

Dizzy Gillespie Staying On Track

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — Back in 1941, John Birks Gillespie, a young trumpeter with a sturdy lip, incredible technique and a merry prankster's approach to life, got fired from Cab Calloway's band.

"Something about spitballs being thrown on stage," he recalls. Even to this day, he denies being the guilty party and stoutly insists, "I was as innocent as a lamb."

Of course. And the kid they came to call Dizzy plays on, his lip, technique and humor unravaged by age. At 61, he may be a senior citizen of modern jazz. But he hasn't the slower schedule of one.

Tonight, for example, he's at Carnegie Hall, kicking off the 26th annual Newport Jazz Festival, both with his own four-man group and an eight-drum salute to "our biggest bulwark" in jazz — drummers.

During the 10-day, 35-event festival, he'll also play at a June 30 salute to Latin-American jazz, a form he helped pioneer in the late 1940s, and at a 12-hour bash July 1 in Saratoga, N.Y.

Then, on July 4, he heads to Europe and a two-month tour that includes Italy, Germany, Belgium, the Nice Jazz Festival in France and three weeks in London in August. Plus some odds and ends.

Such as a guest shot on "The Muppet Show," of all things, and an Aug. 5 gig in Dublin, of all places. Then it's off to California in September to play at the Monterey Jazz Festival.

A lot of travelling. But he's been on the move physically and musically since 1935, when he broke in with the Frank Fairfax band, working in the trumpet section alongside Charlie Shavers.

That was the beginning. He considers his ejection from the Calloway band, though, the turning point in his career: "That was the biggest move in my life, a dynamic move. Sure, it was a good job.

"He had the best musicians in the United States at that time. But it wasn't something to foment creativity."

What did the fomenting for him was a stint playing and arranging in Billy Eckstine's big band a few years later, and his historic work in the new thing called bop in 1945 with the late Charlie Parker.

It was an era of musical revolution, of great melodic, harmonic and rhythmic change in jazz, and led to the emergence of both men as major forces in modern jazz.

But Gillespie today calls it "just a matter of evolution. .that's the course of our music, evolution." He cites the world of jazz trumpeters as a prime example:

"The ball goes from King Oliver to Louis Armstrong to me to Miles Davis, and onward. It's like a musical relay race, one passes the baton to the other one."

Interestingly, he doesn't see himself as the strongest influence on modern jazz trumpeters. He gives the honor to the late Clifford Brown, who died in a 1956 car crash at the age of 25.

"The way he played, his phrasing, that's what makes it," he says. "It's not the music itself that makes the change, because everyone's got the same 12 notes. But it's the way you play them that provides the style for future generations."

Gillespie, who always seems to be on the road, was in fact working a club in Denver when was tracked down for a phone chat earlier this week. He was asked if, with nearly 45 years on the jazz path, he'll ever cut back on his comings and goings here and abroad.

He muttered something about doing it someday. He wasn't vague when asked if he's ever regretted being a musician.

"Naw, man," laughed the Diz. "Where else can you have as good a time and get paid for it as I have?"

Eddy Arnold To Be Co-Host Of NBC Radio Old-Time Special

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — You can join Eddy Arnold on the radio Sunday night and, in a sense, "make the world go away."

Arnold, the smooth singer known for songs like "Make the World Go Away," is co-host of an NBC Radio Network show that sets aside stars of today's world while resurrecting some of the best-loved entertainers of old radio.

The show's producers went into the archives to get excerpts of radio shows by Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, Mary Martin, Jimmy Durante, Groucho Marx and others. Arnold and veteran announcer Ed Herlihy narrate the hour-long show around the tapes.

"The show will appeal to people who remember this kind of thing," Arnold said in an interview. "To people who have never heard it, they will listen to hear what radio was really like."

EDDY ARNOLD ON RADIO — Eddy Arnold will be co-host of a show, Sunday night on the NBC Radio Network. The show includes excerpts of old radio shows starring Bob Hope, Bing Crosby and others. (AP Laserphoto)

"People are going to perk up and say, 'Is that the way they did it?'"

During the show, Crosby sings "By the Light of the Silvery Moon" and joins the Andrews Sisters in "Dont Fence Me In." He also sings with Miss Martin and later joins Hope in a comedy routine.

Others on the show include Nelson Eddy, Charles Boyer, Bob Burns, Roy Rogers and Dale Evans, Al Jolson, Dinah Shore, Spike Jones, Nat King Cole, Victor Borge and Larry Adler.

"I remember all those people," Arnold said. "I loved hearing the jokes and that kind of thing. I thought the show was great."

Arnold does not sing on the show, which will be broadcast at various times Sunday night, depending on the station carrying it.

Now 61, he still is an active performer, doing concerts and singing with symphony orchestras. And he still puts out records, but nothing as successful as his past hits like "Cattle Call," "Bouquet of Roses" and "Any Time."

Pop music, as a whole, he likes.

"I like some of the rock.— the light rock," he said. "I like Neil Diamond, Barry Manilow, John Denver, that kind of thing."

He cited "You Needed Me" by Anne Murray as one of his favorite recent songs.

"As far as rock concerts, I don't go. It doesn't touch me. I want to hear the melody and the words. It's so loud it hurts my ears."

He likes disco a little better.

"It's better than rock — more contagious. At least I can hear the melody. I like the beat and everything. People have fun with their dancing and people need to have fun and enjoy being together."

Arnold, one of Nashvilles wealthiest entertainers, has a reputation for being stingy. For a recent interview, he showed up driving a 6-year-old car and wearing an inexpensive-looking sport shirt.

"The only extravagant thing I ever bought was a boat — a yacht, I should say," he said of his lifestyle. "It doesn't take a lot to make me happy. I live a simple life."

He believes he's been successful because he took his career seriously.

"I've always treated my career as a business. I just believe that's the way it ought to be. I've never missed a show or walked on stage drunk."

Skateboard Ban Proposal Rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Citing a decline in the number of youngsters injured while skateboarding, the government rejected a move to ban the popular playthings as safety hazards.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission on Thursday turned down a petition from a consumer group calling for the ban. An estimated 20 million skateboards are in use, primarily by youths between 10 and 19 years old.

Commission chairwoman Susan King said the injuries result mainly from how skateboards are used, rather than how manufacturers build them.

The agency staff reported that 87,000 people needed treatment in hospital emergency rooms last year because of skateboard mishaps. This was down from 140,000 in 1977 and a reversal of a four-year trend of increases in the injury toll.

The staff said there were 25 deaths from 1975 to 1977, mainly involving skateboarders struck by cars.

"The sales are going down and the injuries are going down. That is the compelling reason for me," Commissioner R. David Pittle said in explaining his opposition to the ban.

Douglas Noble of the commission staff had told the commissioners that only about 1 percent of the injuries can be attributed to defects in the products.

"There would be serious enforcement problems with a ban," he said. Taking skateboards off the market might lead some youngsters to construct more hazardous homemade skateboards, Noble said.

He said some young skateboarders joined industry representatives in opposing the ban that was suggested by the consumer affairs committee of Americans for Democratic Action.

Noble said some youths wrote the agency to attack federal regulation in general. "In short words, about four letters long," Pittle added.

The commissioners expressed interest in efforts by the American Society for Testing and Materials, a private group, to develop a voluntary standard on how manufacturers can build safe skateboards.

They also said the agency would continue a campaign of television and radio messages urging skateboard safety. The spots urge the wearing of helmets and other protective equipment and the use of skateboard parks, considered safer places for skateboarding than the streets.

Many injuries to skateboarders are caused by holes in a road or by such unsafe practices as jumping from a moving board, the commission staff said.

"One of the reasons for the downward trend in injuries may be a decrease in the popularity of the sport," the agency staff said in memos to the commissioners. It cited an estimate that skateboard sales are off 50 percent from last year.

Only about 1 percent of the 1978 injuries was caused by the skateboards themselves through such mishaps as wheels falling off or decks breaking, the staff said.

Nearly 40 percent of the people living in the world's poorer countries are less than 15 years of age, The Conference Board reports.

Established Singer Turns To New Fields

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — If Deniece Williams is affected by the energy shortage, she should consider plugging herself into something besides her musical career.

This 27-year-old dynamo, who shared an American Music Award with Johnny Mathis for their hit duet, "Too Much, Too Little, Too Late," has already established herself as a major new singing talent.

But Miss Williams, whose ability to achieve goals seems surpassed only by her penchant for setting new ones, already is turning her excess human wattage to other aspects of the entertainment business: record producing, acting and her real love, songwriting.

"That is still my dream," she says of the latter endeavor. "It is happening and other people are continuing to do my material, but there are still a lot of goals as a songwriter I haven't reached yet. I don't know what will happen on the day that I accomplish it."

Actually, to hear Miss Williams talk, she was repeatedly sidetracked into singing by a series of people who kept discovering her while she was trying to do something else.

As a teen-ager in Gary, Ind., she was discovered in 1968 by the owner of a record shop where she held a job.

"I would sing around the record shop, and the owner heard me and went over to Chicago and got some talent scouts," she recalls.

"We made a record, and nothing became of the record. I thought I was going to be a star overnight. I was going to take the money and go to school to study nursing, which was my particular career goal at the time. I made no money, but I went away to school anyway."

Two years later, she was back in Gary, disenchanted with nursing and casting around for other possiblities. Enter discovery No. 2: a call from Stevie Wonder's office, where her demo had made an impression, inviting her to audition for his backup group, Wonderlove.

"I stayed with him for 3½ years, and then I decided I was tired of singing and I wanted a career as a songwriter," she says. "So I took off a year and a half to get my writing together and do demos."

The demos attracted interest — but not in her songs.

"I began to get offers to be an artist (industry shorthand for recording artist), and I said, 'Oh God — I don't want to do this.' But nobody was buying the material. Eventually I started selling the material but I was not getting a hit record off of anyone, so I figured, what the heck."

The offer she finally accepted came from discoverer No. 3, Maurice White of Earth, Wind and Fire, who had heard a tape of a song she wanted to sell to the group. Through him, she made her first album, "This is Niecy," and got the exposure which eventually led to the chance to record with Mathis.

Things have been falling in place ever since, with the recording career providing a big boost for her songwriting. She co-authored all the tunes on her debut album, and contributed compositions to her second album as well as her latest LP, "When Love Comes Calling," which she also co-produced.

She also co-stars in a Home Box Office movie, "Road to Yucca Luna," although she views acting as a sideline which will enhance her performing talents.

And, mindful of the help she has received from other stars, she is involved in several projects aimed at helping other young hopefuls. She has sponsored a contest for fashion designers, encourages aspiring songwriters to send her their work for her opinion, and is currently shopping for a record contract for a band that won a talent competition she held last year in Gary.

"I just like doing those kind of things, and I think that for the things that have happened to me, in turn, I can help other people get into the business like Stevie Wonder helped me. So I give back what I get."

Booklets Available On Hearing Aids

WASHINGTON (AP) — There are millions of hearing impaired persons across the country, and a pair of government agencies have produced a new booklet on the problem.

"Facts About Hearing and Hearing Aids" is a consumer guide jointly produced by the Food and Drug Administration and the National Bureau of Standards.

The 28-page booklet explains how human hearing works, how it can go wrong and what can and cannot be done about it. It explains the function of hearing aids and how they work and discusses what steps should be taken to obtain help if hearing loss is suspected.

Also covered are ways to detect hearing loss in young children and the problem some people may encounter in growing accustomed to a hearing aid.

The booklet is available without charge from FDA-Hearing Aids, 8757 Georgia Ave., Silver Spring, Md., 20910.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I want to exchange a municipal bond which is registered in my name to a bearer bond, with interest coupons attached. I wrote to the office of the comptroller of the city which issued the bond and received the following reply:

"Registered bonds cannot be returned to bearer form. To do so, the bank note company would have to engrave a new plate at a cost of $650, plus $10 for each bond."

My bond is obviously printed on a stock form, with space in the "boiler plate" for over-printing the serial number, amount, etc. I feel the city comptroller's answer is a brush-off. To whom can I appeal to have the bond changed to bearer form?

A. Sorry, you can't.

To begin with, most issues of municipal bonds come only in bearer form. When that's the case, no registered bonds are available.

Some municipal bonds are made available, at the time they are first issued, in both bearer and registered form. In such a case, only enough bearer bonds are printed to supply investors who want bearer bonds. Then, the engraved plates from which the bonds were printed are destroyed.

Extra registered bonds are printed and kept by the trustee — usually a big bank. This makes it possible for the owner of a bearer bond to turn it in and get a registered bond.

Printing a bond is much more complicated than you seem to think. The engraving — far from being "boiler plate" — is close to an art form. The terms under which a bond might be able to be changed from registered to bearer form — but never from bearer to registered — are spelled out in the "indenture" covering each individual bond issue.

Q. I have a few questions about money market mutual funds, which I understand are growing "like Topsy." How big are those funds? Are any or all of the dividends they pay tax exempt? How easy are they to sell, if the need arises for quick cash?

A. At last count the total assets of all the money market funds in this county came to $23.2 billion. To put that in perspective, it's about half the amount held by all U.S. credit unions.

None of the dividends paid by money market funds is tax exempt. Their entire yield is subject to federal and state income tax. Local income tax, too, if you live in an area which levies one.

Shares of money market funds can be redeemed quickly. Many of them allow redemption by telephone call or by check. The details are spelled out in the prospectus issued by each fund.

Because almost all money market funds are "no-load" mutual funds, you don't have to worry about paying commissions on either buying or selling — as long as you steer clear to the ones that lay on a "load."

Q. Do you know of anyone, or maybe a service, that can trace old stocks and bonds, to see if they have any value?

A. The best organization I know of for that kind of work is R.M. Smythe & Co., 170 Broadway, New York, N.Y., 10038. That firm has been in the business of tracing old securities since 1880.

Smythe's fee for its service is $20 for securities of U.S. companies and $25 for securities of foreign companies. The people at that firm assure me that readers of this column who write in will not have their names placed on "mailing lists."

Q. I would like to have the companies in which I own stock send the dividend checks directly to the bank where I have a savings acoount. Will companies do this for stockholders?

A. Many will. First check things out with your bank and, then, with the office of the corporate secretary of each company in which you own stock.

Doyle welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

Manufacturer Sets Pacemaker Recall

BOSTON (AP) — American Pacemaker Corp. announced Thursday that it is recalling 552 pacemakers that have been implanted in the chests of people with heart trouble.

In a statement, the firm said that the model 1613 pacemakers "may contain defective transistors supplied by an outside vendor."

The pacemakers, which help regulate the heartbeat, should be removed from patients and replaced "in cases where it would be consistent with good patient management," the company said.

The firm said the Food and Drug Administration is reviewing the defective pacemakers.

Dan Lundberg Knows Facts On Gasoline

NORTH HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Irascible, big-bellied and constantly on the go, Dan Lundberg is a man of myriad experiences.

Public relations was once his game. He has written magazine articles, screenplays, a novel, and worked as a broadcaster and a talk show host.

These days the 66-year-old Lundberg seems happiest tilting with government energy officials, oil industry executives and others about why there's less gasoline and what should be done about it.

Lundberg is probably the most widely quoted expert in the gasoline retailing business. His Lundberg Letter, a weekly collection of gasoline marketing statistics and observations drawn from surveys of gasoline stations, is attracting more than industry attention in these days of high prices, long lines and rationing plans.

"On March 9, we were able to tell about the shortfall and that there would be shortages and station closings this summer," he bellows during an interview in his compound-like headquarters here.

"Then on April 5 — I remember the date exactly, you don't have to look it up — Carter said there MIGHT be a shortage. Hell, we were already there!"

Lundberg's forecast of substantial gasoline shortfall in March leading to "days of lines and hoses" was right, the Department of Energy later said. Lundberg gained in reputation as the man to go to on gasoline.

Lundberg set about gathering that type of information 25 years ago, assembling and training a group of "reporters," now numbering about 350. They visit hundreds of gas stations every week to record prices and service characteristics on each one.

Lundberg's own survey material is combined with nationwide gasoline sales tax statistics, oil industry figures and other energy information to produce weekly surveys and forecasts.

He can in fact tell you how many stations still clean your windshield automatically or give free road maps. If they sell convenience foods or repair mufflers, he knows that too. Such information is not only useful but crucial to those in marketing, he contends.

Much of the flair and showmanship of his earlier days, still remains in Lundberg's style today. He wrote a novel, "River Rat," in 1941 and by the early 1950s was combining a career in public relations with work as a news announcer and talk show host on a local television station. He gradually got out of those occupations to get into the gasoline retailing business in depth by the 1960s.

Controversy surrounds Lundberg these days, both because of his irreverent predictions and his expertise on the oil industry. His Lundberg Survey Inc. now employs 30 and grosses more than $1 million annually. He has a standard reply to those who say he's too friendly with oilmen.

"No company ever loaned us one penny," he says. "No other company owns one share in this company. Somebody told me the other day they heard an oil company helped us with our computers."

Not so, says Lundberg. "They use their computers to keep track of their credit cards. They can't come near what we do," says Lundberg, a man not known for humility.

Lundberg is also outspoken in his criticism of government regulation.

"The Department of Energy just rolls on," he roars, "making mistakes left and right which cost you and me plenty, buster, encroaching on our freedoms with their regulations ... and the only thing the private sector has as a defense is good and reliable independent information."

GAS AUTHORITY — Dan Lundberg, 66, recognized as one of the nation's foremost independent authorities on what's happening in the gasoline business, works with a computer in his North Hollywood office. Lundberg, a former novelist, playwright, and foreign correspondent, is now in the business of surveying the gasoline industry's statistics. (AP Laserphoto)
