Delvalle urges Panamanian strike

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Ousted President Eric Arturo Delvalle called Friday night for a national strike to show that Panamanians repudiate the leadership of Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega.

The general accused the United States of instigating Delvalle's failed effort on Thursday to end his military rule and said Washington waged a campaign of "psychological warfare" against him.

Noriega addressed a rally of his supporters Friday night and said Panamanians who consider "betrayal, because they are born traitors, meet a bad end here."

Up to 10,000 people attended the rally at the central garrison of the Defense Forces.

The Noriega-dominated National Assembly turned Delvalle out of office in a 10-minute session early Friday after the president tried to fire the armed forces chief following Noriega's indictment in the United States as a drug trafficker.

Noriega has denied all accusations against him.

The legislature named Manuel Solis Palma, the education minister, as new president, but Delvalle insisted to reporters he was still president.

In Washington, the State Department said it still recognized Delvalle as Panama's president.

Delvalle told reporters Friday night, "I don't have a seat of government, nor military support, but I do have two million Panamanians who are tired...of living under a regime that one man has governed capriciously, and because of that I call for national resistance to paralyze the entire country starting Monday."

The opposition National Civic Crusade on Friday evening called for a "progressive, nationwide strike" starting immediately.

Aurelio Barrilla, president of the Panamanian Chamber of Commerce and Industry, one of the groups in the coalition, said the Crusade was seeking "total paralysis" of the country by early next week.

However, only one of several strikes called last summer by the coalition of about 200 organizations was notably successful, and the government has shut down opposition newspapers, radio and television stations, limiting the Crusade's ability to spread its message.

In his address at the central garrison rally, Noriega said, "The Defense Forces offer subordination, total support and our cooperation to the new president, our best efforts to be able to reach presidential elections in May 1989."

"Panama is not a tribe," he said. "The Americans who live in Panama should sleep easy, because this people is not a tribe, it is a healthy people."

Panama, a nation of 2.2 million people, is headquarters for U.S. military programs in Latin America with the U.S. Southern Command that has 10,000 military personnel and their 20,000 dependents in Panama.

After the rally, Noriega walked with his supporters to the presidential offices about a mile away.

Throughout the day there were fewer vehicles and people on the streets, but Panama City was calm and businesses operated normally.

Delvalle said the protest strike would be peaceful, saying, "I don't pretend to be the leader of the resistance. I pretend to be the president who returns to the presidency." He also urged a worldwide trade embargo against Panama.

He called Solis Palma "an opportunistic politician."

Delvalle's bid to remove Noriega as head of Panama's 15,000-member Defense Forces was thwarted Thursday night when the military closed ranks around the general and said no officer would replace him.

Bush calls for Robertson 'to prove it'

By ROBERT FURLOW
Associated Press Writer

George Bush took his strongest verbal shots yet at GOP rival Pat Robertson Friday, accusing him of frightening voters with loose talk and challenging Robertson to "prove it." Democrat Michael Dukakis took new jabs at Richard Gephardt's record on taxes.

Dukakis, campaigning in Austin, Texas, called President Reagan's 1981 tax cut "one of the biggest mistakes in recent American history" and also asserted that "building walls around America" is a serious mistake.

He didn't mention anyone by name, but he has strongly criticized Gephardt for voting for the Reagan bill and for sponsoring what critics contend is protectionist trade legislation.

Dukakis and Gephardt were among the Democrats gathering for a dinner Friday night and then a debate today in Atlanta, heart of the South which dominates the 20-state delegate bonanza on March 8, known as Super Tuesday. The Massachusetts governor and the Missouri congressman split the first four major Democratic contests and have been attacking each other ever since.

Bush, Republican Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas and Rep. Jack Kemp of New York and Democratic Sen. Albert Gore Jr. of Tennessee made strong comments objecting to events in Panama, with the vice president declaring "we will do whatever is necessary" to protect American interests and Gore suggesting economic sanctions.

Dole echoed his rival's words during a rally in St. Louis where he warned Noriega: "If you think you can put the heat on us by meddling around with the canal — we will do whatever is necessary, including the use of military force, to protect our security interests and the lives of American citizens."

Jesse Jackson, in Florida, said the United States, particularly the Central Intelligence Agency, has been "an accomplice" to Panama military strong man Manuel Antonio Noriega, and he said Noriega's alleged involvement in drug trafficking is another example of the failure of U.S. foreign policy to take the drug threat seriously.

Gore, also campaigning in Florida, addressed another Latin American subject, calling on his rivals to support a humanitarian-aid package, now pending in Congress, for the Nicaraguan Contras.

Dukakis urges expansion of pipeline

By STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Democratic presidential hopeful Michael Dukakis pushed for the expansion of natural gas pipeline capacity Friday, saying industries in the Northeast are "dying to get" the Texas fuel.

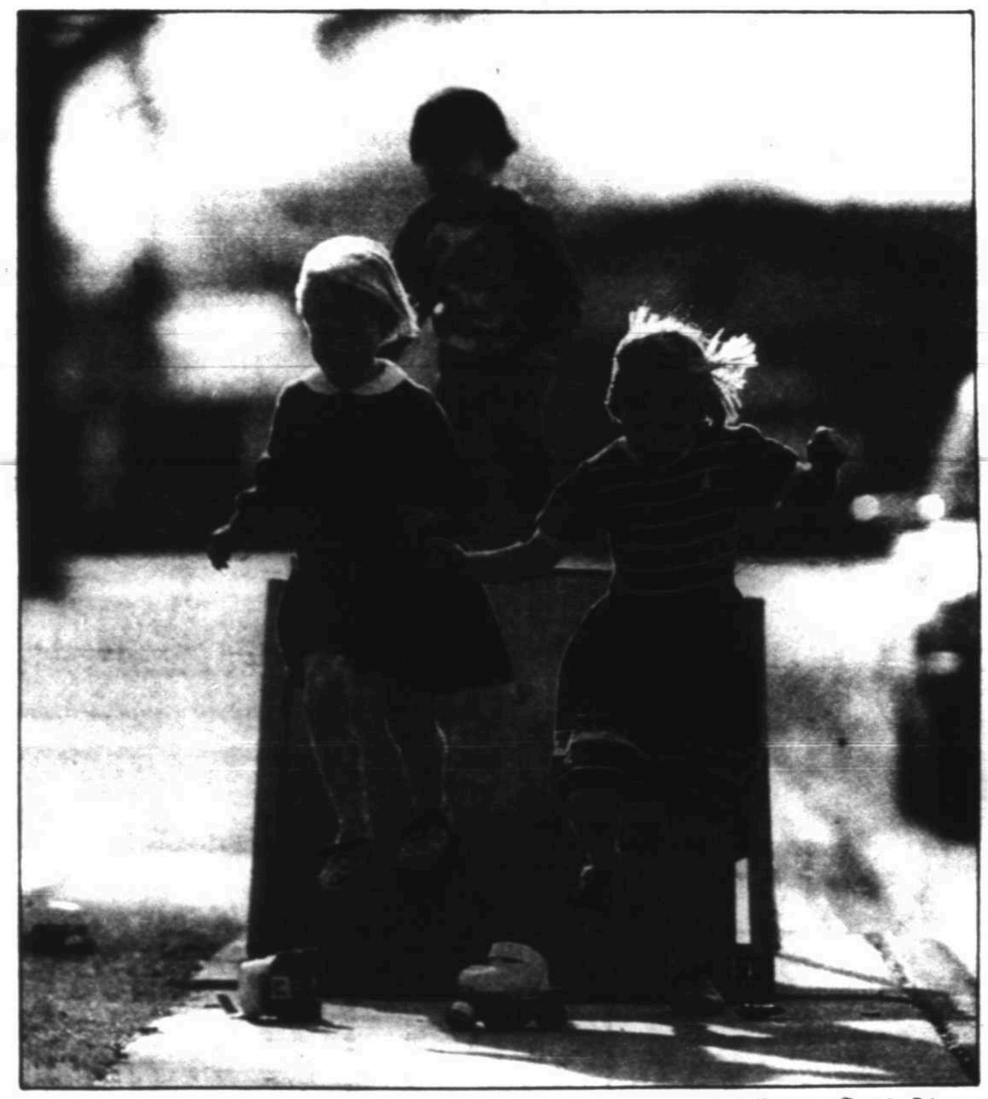

In a well-received speech to an overflow crowd at the Lyndon B. Johnson Presidential Library, the Massachusetts governor quoted Johnson and President John Kennedy extensively as he drew several analogies between the JFK-LBJ campaign of 1960 and his own presidential quest this year.

In 1960, Dukakis said, "a son of Massachusetts and a son of Texas together summoned the people of this country to a 'New Frontier.'" But he hedged later when a member of the audience asked if he would pick a Texan or other southerner as a running mate should he win the nomination.

"The single most important criterion...for the nominee who is seeking a running mate is whether or not that person can be a first-rate president if — God forbid — something happens to the president," Dukakis replied. "If you find that person or persons and he or she happens to come from a different region of the country and provides real strength for you — not just as a candidate, but in your administration — so much the better."

During the half-hour speech interrupted a half-dozen times by applause, Dukakis took several indirect jabs at Democratic opponents Albert Gore and Richard Gephardt and swung heavily at the Reagan administration's economic and foreign policies. He stressed his own programs for education, labor and high-tech research.

Suspension of Swaggart to be debated

■ Prostitute fails lie detector test — 4A

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — National leaders of Jimmy Swaggart's church decided Friday to have a state panel reconsider a proposed three-month suspension of the reigning television evangelist, who tearfully confessed to unspecified sins amid allegations of sexual misconduct.

G. Raymond Carlson, general superintendent of the Springfield-based Assemblies of God church, announced the decision after 11 hours of discussion over two days with other members of the church's Executive Presbytery.

"No final decisions have been reached," he said.

The home district of the Baton Rouge, La., evangelist, who acknowledged his sins in the pulpit Sunday, recommended earlier this week that Swaggart be barred from preaching for three months and undergo two years of rehabiliation and counseling.

Many church members who called the church headquarters said they felt the punishment recommended by the Louisiana District was too lenient and felt the Executive Presbytery should require a longer suspension.

But Carlson refused to describe the content of Executive Presbytery discussions or any information or recommendations the group may have sent to Louisiana officials.

Other board members refused comment while Carlson made a brief statement to reporters and spectators in the auditorium of the church headquarters.

Once the Louisiana district has reviewed the Swaggart case, the Executive Presbytery will take it up again.

"A final decision on these matters could be several days or weeks away," Carlson said.

Although Swaggart and church officials never specified the evangelist's sin, an admitted prostitute said in interviews this week that she had performed lewd acts for Swaggart for about a year.

Church officials say no other minister accused of moral misconduct has been allowed to return to preaching in so short a time as three months and questions were raised about the financial support the Louisiana district receives from Jimmy Swaggart World Ministries.

Off-duty Dallas police officer dies after shootout at grocery

DALLAS (AP) — An off-duty Dallas policeman was fatally wounded Friday in a shootout with three men who attempted to rob the grocery store in west Dallas where he worked part-time as a security officer, police chief Billy Prince said.

The officer, Gary D. McCarthy, 32, died at Parkland Memorial Hospital shortly after 9 p.m., four hours after the shootout at Brancato's Warehouse market, Prince said.

McCarthy was shot three times, and one of the bullets lodged in a ventricle of his heart, Parkland spokeswoman Paula Sears said. McCarthy died after his family authorized doctors to take him off life-support systems, Ms. Sears said.

McCarthy served with the Dallas police for 14 months, said Deputy Lowell Cannaday, commander of the department's central patrol division.

McCarthy, who was clad in street clothes, was escorting the store's manager, Mark DeCardenas, from a bank visit when a man jumped out of a car and attempted to rob the manager, police Sgt. S.G. Shaw said.

"The officer went for his weapon and they got into a shootout," Shaw said.

"The black male shot twice from (behind the officer). He didn't say anything at all," DeCardenas' brother, Arthur, said of the assailant. The attack took place about 20 feet from the store, which he said was in a "pretty rough neighborhood."

Arthur DeCardenas said that after the man shot the officer, he grabbed money from the manager and ran back to the getaway car where two other black men were waiting.

Odessa girl bitten by lioness

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — A 2-year-old girl who was bitten by a 3½-year-old African lioness northeast of Odessa late Friday afternoon was listed in stable condition late Friday night in Medical Center Hospital in Odessa.

The child, Nicole Stroops, suffered multiple-bite wounds to her left arm.

"This little girl was so lucky," said a hospital spokesman.

An Ector County Sheriff's deputy said that the child apparently strayed into a neighbor's backyard, where the lioness was kept, when she was bitten.

Owner of the cat later destroyed the lioness, the deputy said. The deputy declined to release the name of the owner of the lioness.

The injury occurred about 6:15 p.m.

Despite added day, calendar still not perfect

WASHINGTON (AP) — The legacy of Julius Caesar is returning once again, as calendars around the world add an extra day on Monday.

Feb. 29 is Leap Day — an added 24 hours slipped in about every four years to make calendars nearly perfect.

The day is designed to compensate for the fact that calendars count in whole days, 365 or 366 depending on the year, while it takes the Earth 365 days, 5 hours, 48 minutes and 46 seconds to orbit the sun.

Adding an extra day every fourth year helps compensate for that difference of about a quarter day.

It also gives Leap Day babies a real day to celebrate birthdays, gives calendar wristwatch owners something extra to think about, keeps calendar makers on their toes and generally coincides with the years of U.S. presidential elections and the Olympics.

The quadrennial event generates floods of questions at the U.S. Naval Observatory, where astronomer LeRoy Doggett considers it a "thoroughly messy subject."

Doggett's naval almanac office is charged with keeping track of time and dates for use in navigation, and thus is required to be extremely accurate.

There was somewhat less need for precision in the time of the Roman Empire, but problems became obvious as their inaccurate calendar got three months out of line with the seasons.

So, in 46 B.C., known ever since as the "Year of Confusion," Julius Caesar added 67 days to the calendar to set it right again. And to keep the calendar accurate he instituted the system of slipping in one more day on Feb. 29.

That reform, suggested by the Roman astronomer Sosigenes, became known as the Julian Calendar and remained in use for centuries.

"There was one small problem," noted Gail S. Cleere of the Naval Observatory. "Sosigenes had done a little too much rounding off."

Asian carpetbagger entangling Dixie pastures

FLORA, Miss. (AP) — Travelers know they're in the South when: A) The Confederate flag is flying over the state capitol; B) There are more pickups than cars on the highway; C) A transplanted Asiatic vine entangles practically everything.

Unfortunately farmers, loggers, utilities and lovers of roadside scenery know the answer is C.

People all over the South know and curse kudzu (pronounced kuhd'-zoo). The transplanted vine once thought to be a savior has acquired a status akin to a carpetbagger.

Planted heavily in Mississippi and other Southern states during the Depression to control erosion, kudzu's welcome soon wore out as it spread from the gullies it was planted in. It now covers an area the size of Belgium.

"There are mixed opinions about it," said James Wolfe, a plant materials specialist with the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service, an agency responsible for kudzu planting during the 1930's.

"A lot of people seem to fear it quite a bit. I don't think it's as bad as some people would say," Wolfe said last week. "It may not be beneficial, but it's got a lot of character about it as you travel down the highway and see it climbing all over trees."

Kudzu has spread as far as 25 miles on each side of the road where it was planted 40 years ago, covering trees, old houses and abandoned cars. The lumber industry, in particular, is not fond of the plant because it can kill trees by blocking out the light.

Some of the heaviest concentrations in Mississippi can be found in the rich cotton-farming area in the Delta region. Macabre formations of the clinging vine can be seen suffocating trees as travelers pass through towns such as Flora, Yazoo City and Tchula on Mississippi 49.

The vine, brought from Japan in 1876 as an ornamental plant, can grow as much as 100 feet in a summer — a foot a day. And without harsh winters to kill it, or natural predators, it picks up each spring where it left off the previous fall.

The weight of its vines has been known to pull down utility lines.

"Kudzu is tough to control. If we don't keep it down it will climb the poles and guidelines and cause electrical outages," Mississippi Power & Light spokesman Ed Jussely said. "Through a consistent maintenance program we have been successful in stopping the outages, but it is a difficult problem for us every year."

Kudzu now covers over 7 million acres in Mississippi, Georgia, Alabama and parts of surrounding states. It extends as far north as southern Missouri and West Virginia, and as far west as Texas.

Farmers, utilities and the lumber industry are engaged in a never-ending battle against kudzu — Alabama even passed a law against owning kudzu seeds or seedlings.

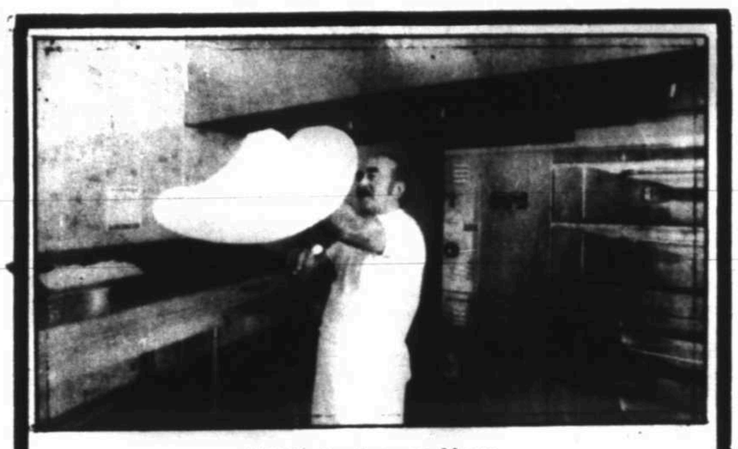

The only thing that will stop it is constant cutting. Farmers often let cattle feed on kudzu because its nutritional value is about the same as alfalfa and overgrazing will kill it.

"Generally, programs involve a paper company or a few farmers, but there is not a statewide program to get rid of it," said Wayne Houston, a weed specialist at Mississippi State University.

Today's street people aren't tramps of past, professor says

By LYNN LUDLOW
Hearst News and Feature Service

Jobless Americans of 1933 ("Buddy, can you spare a dime?") suggest at least a panhandling comparison with homeless Americans of 1988 ("Spare change?"), but social scientists argue that the two disasters are far from parallel.

"In the Depression they were relatively young people, mostly young men, who despaired of finding jobs in their home towns and went on the road to look for work," said Peter Rossi, a professor at the University of Massachusetts. "After about two or three months, in most cases, they would return home."

Rossi, who directed a Chicago census of homeless, says virtually every survey has shown that today's street people aren't the hobos, tramps and migrants of the past.

"Most of them are local people," he said. "The migration theory is a myth."

In any event, today's homeless population doesn't have homes to return to, says Louise Stark at Arizona State University, president of the National Coalition for the Homeless. She says housing costs are too high for poor families and the unemployed.

"Another difference is a feeling of tolerance," she says. "In the '30s, people were truly banding together. There was a real feeling that the suffering was universal, and people in the Hoovervilles were helped out with food and clothing."

She says the homeless of 1988 don't get much sympathy.

"We see ourselves as a successful, booming society," she says. "The homeless show another side to society, one with real problems, but a feeling is prevalent that they are trying to rip us off, abusing the system."

Another kind of comparison was stressed in a report by Boston Mayor Raymond Flynn last month to the U.S. Conference of Mayors.

"Homelessness and hunger are perhaps more understandable during periods of economic distress, such as the Great Depression, but not during a period of economic recovery and at a time of national prosperity," he said. "As a nation, we have no greater shame than the vast numbers of our fellow citizens who live on the streets, in alleyways and in shelters."

Rossi says a survey by the Federal Relief Administration came up with an estimate of about 1.5 million Americans on the roads in 1933-34. Average age of these job seekers was 24, he says, based on a study in Buffalo, N.Y.

"They could get work in casual labor," he says. "That's just not the case today."

In 1933, he says, unemployed young men could catch rides on freight trains from one place to another. In 1988, surveys show that in most cities, only 10 percent of the homeless are from other areas.

An exception in the 1930s was the cross-country migration of poor farm families from Dust Bowl states to the migrant-labor camps of California. Their number is usually estimated at more than 350,000.

The homeless of 1988 are a matter of attention until reported personally to Eleanor Roosevelt in 1936 by the late Paul Taylor of the University of California-Berkeley.

Rossi says few scholarly studies are available of the homeless in earlier recessions, panics and hard times, but in 1875 the plight of migratory farm workers was described in a San Francisco newspaper as a problem for society itself.

WEATHER SUMMARY

Cool, wet weather in weekend forecast

From Staff and Wire Reports

The weekend may be a bit damp should the odds of morning showers gracing the landscape pay off today.

The weatherman at the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport has predicted a 30 percent chance of showers this morning.

This afternoon is to become partly cloudy. The high temperature is to be in the upper 60s, and winds are to be northeasterly at 10 to 15 mph.

Skies are to be partly cloudy tonight and Sunday. The low tonight is to be near 40, and the high Sunday is to be in the upper 60s.

The high temperature Friday was 66 degrees, which wasn't close to the Feb. 26 record high of 87 degrees in 1986. The overnight low was 51 degrees, and the record low for a Feb. 27 is 17 degrees set in 1934.

STATE

Cloudy skies and warm and southerly breezes combined for combined for a mild Friday with precipation reported in some parts of the state during the afternoon.

Wildly scattered showers dotted the southern portion of the Panhandle while scattered patches of light rain sprinkled north central and northeast Texas.

Light drizzle also fell over a sections of the Rio Grande plains near Del Rio as a thick layer of low clouds covered the southwestern third of the state.

The cloud layer stretched from the lower coast across parts of south Central Texas and the Rio Grande plains into the Edwards Plateau. Otherwise, mostly mid to high level clouds blanketed the rest of the state.

National Weather Service forecasters predicted the mild conditions would continue today with scattered showers in South Texas.

NATION

The sky was clear over much of the nation Friday as two large areas of high pressure over the Rockies and the Southeast swept most clouds away.

There were only a few areas of spotty precipitation.

Light snow or flurries extended across eastern Upper Michigan, northern New England, and western and upstate New York.

Isolated showers dampened Arizona, New Mexico, western Texas and northwestern Washington state.

The temperature hit 71 as far north as Emporia, Kan.

Today, snow was forecast from the upper Ohio Valley through New Jersey and New England. Scattered showers were forecast over California, and from southern Texas across the central Gulf Coast region.

Midland statistics

FORECAST

Cloudy today with a 30 percent chance of morning showers. Partly cloudy this afternoon with a high in the upper 60s. Winds northeasterly at 10-15 mph. Partly cloudy tonight and Sunday with a low tonight near 40 and a high Sunday in the upper 60s.

BUSH

Maine Republicans began a weekend of caucuses with representatives of Bush and Dole teaming up to stop Robertson's supporters. The state's Democrats were to meet Sunday, with Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis the apparent sure winner.

Robertson supporters warred with Bush backers over voting rules Friday night at the Republican caucus in Portland, Maine's largest city. State party chairwoman Karen Stram, watching the Portland voting, said the turnout was at least three times the size of previous years.

In Washington, the State Department said it had no record of contact with Robertson's Christian Broadcasting Network at the time of the hijacking of a TWA plane to Beirut in 1985. Robertson said this week his network had had information about the whereabouts of hostages from the plane and that the information had been relayed to the State Department, which "must have dismissed what we had to say or else they didn't refer it up the line to the president."

Bush, in Greenville, S.C., also talked of religion in remarks to about two dozen fundamentalist and evangelical church leaders. He said he had been frustrated by the administration's lack of success in bringing back prayer in public schools.

In separate remarks to the South Carolina Press Association, Bush made his most forceful criticism to date of Robertson, the former television evangelist who hopes to capitalize on fundamentalist support in the Southern state to win its GOP primary on March 5.

Bush listed recent Robertson campaign statements, including his contention that there are Soviet missiles in Cuba, his suggestion that Bush was behind the timing of revelations concerning sexual misconduct by TV evangelist Jimmy Swaggart and his campaign's statement that Robertson pulled out of a Dallas debate because questions had been leaked to Bush.

After each assertion, Bush demanded, "Prove it."

DUKAKIS

Speaking to reporters later, Dukakis said his national energy policy would include repeal of the windfall profits tax, filling up the strategic petroleum reserves and "targeted incentives for small independent producers." He opposes a fee on imported oil.

"By far the most promising initiative, I believe, is natural gas," he said, pointing out that Texas has a 150- to 200-year supply. The industry is "dying to sell natural gas to New England," Dukakis said, "and we are dying to get it."

He accused the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission of "holding up" the growth of gas pipelines. "We need a president who can...get the bureaucracy moving, get those permits for expanded pipeline capacity moving and approved so we can get the gas you produce and we need," he said.

On other issues, Dukakis attacked the Reagan administration's "failed and illegal policy in Nicaragua" and promised to bring up what he called Vice President George Bush's "sit there and do nothing" involvement in the Iran-Contra scandal should he and Bush face off in the November elections.

Dukakis finished first in the New Hampshire primary and Minnesota caucuses and held a 10-point lead in recent Texas polls. He finished third with 13 percent of the support behind Jesse Jackson and Gore in a New York Times-CBS News poll of southern and border states joining Texas in the March 8 Super Tuesday primary.

"In 11 days, we're going to have something which I affectionately refer to as 'Super Martes' and it's going to be very, very important," he told the audience Friday. "If we can do well in Texas, that's going to send a message all across this country that will be heard loud and clear."

LEAP

He had estimated the year at 365.25 days, while it really is 365.2422 days. That means Sosigenes was about 11 minutes off, over the course of a year.

"Although Caesar and his astronomer were long gome before anyone noticed it, some 1,500 years later, 11 minutes per year had added up to a whopping 10 days. And so, the seasons were slipping backwards again — spring into winter, winter into fall, and so on," Cleere said.

That prompted the current calendar, instituted by Pope Gregory in 1582, which dropped the offending 10 days — a change that took a while to be accepted in non-Catholic countries. Indeed, England and her colonies didn't join in until 1752, by which time the error had grown to 11 days. Japan came over in 1873, China in 1911 and Russia held out until its Bolshevik Revolution in 1917.

That's why many history books refer to dates during the transition period as either "old style" or "new style" depending on whether a country was following the older Julian or new Gregorian calendar at the time.

In addition to dropping the added days, Pope Gregory ruled that not every fourth year would be a leap year.

In the Gregorian Calendar, centennial years are leap years only if they can be divided evenly by 400.

Thus, the year 2000 will be somewhat unusual in being a leap year. The last centennial leap year was 1600; the next will be 2400.

The calendar's still not perfect, Cleere admits, with the Gregorian year still 26 seconds too long. But that only amounts to a bit over a half-hour per century, so it will be a long time before any further adjustments need to be made.

STRIKE

President Reagan said the United States was not behind Delvalle's attempt to get rid of Noriega but was "very much aware of it." He said there were no plans for military intervention.

The White House called on Noriega to resign after he was indicted Feb. 5 in Florida on drug trafficking charges. Noriega was accused of using his authority to let Colombian drug traffickers utilize Panama as a base for smuggling cocaine and marijuana into the United States. The charges said Noriega received kickbacks from drug profits.

Soldiers on Friday surrounded and closed the Chamber of Commerce building, headquarters for the National Civic Crusade.

Opponents of Noriega met elsewhere to discuss actions to protest his rule.

Police closed the offices of the Christian Democratic Party, whose president, Ricardo Arias Calderon, has been a leader of the Crusade movement.

Arias Calderon and a Miami Herald reporter, Andres Oppenheimer, were detained for two hours Thursday night when they arrived on a commercial flight from Miami. Oppenheimer was released but Arias Calderon was put on a flight to Costa Rica.

Panamanian authorities refused entry to three American journalists when they tried to land early Friday in a charter plane from Costa Rica.

Miami Herald Central America correspondent Sam Dillon, Washington Post correspondent Julia Preston and John Siceloff, a Nicaragua-based producer for NBC-TV returned to Costa Rica.

The rally was Noriega's first appearance in public since Delvalle acted. In an interview broadcast by the government's Radio Nacional earlier Friday, he said of the United States: "They have been using a web that includes psychological warfare...slander, lies, injury, conjecture, and ...misinformation."

Asked if there was U.S. involvement in Delvalle's attempt to oust him, Noriega said: "Totally, they have maintained a web."

He said Delvalle "is in his home, with his family, without any problem."

Relations between the Reagan administration and Noriega have deteriorated since June, when opposition leaders launched a campaign of strikes and protests in Panama to force the general out.

Paper says prostitute fails lie detector test

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The prostitute who claims to have posed nude for evangelist Jimmy Swaggart failed a lie detector test given by the National Enquirer, the supermarket tabloid said Friday.

The National Enquirer said Debra Murphree voluntarily took the polygraph test administered Monday by a expert with 15 years' experience with the New York City Police Department.

National Enquirer senior editor Paul Levy said the expert concluded the 28-year-old woman failed on six questions, including one in which she denied making up the story. Levy said the Enquirer would not print her story.

"I was very nervous. I had been doing crack and cocaine just the day before. I had trouble remembering some of the questions," Murphree told WVUE-TV in New Orleans by telephone Friday.

Murphree says she performed pornographic acts for Swaggart for about a year but never had sex with him.

After allegations of misconduct arose, Swaggart made a tearful public confession of sin and faces a three-month suspension from preaching recommended by the Louisiana Assemblies of God hierarchy.

John Martinez, a companion of Murphree, told The Palm Beach Post that Murphree visited Swaggart weekly for a year in New Orleans-area hotel rooms at $50 per meeting.

Martinez is peddling Ms. Murphree's story. "This is a shot for me and a shot for her," he said Wednesday. "It's the American way — see an opportunity and jump on it."

Martinez said he talked with the National Enquirer about a $100,000 contract for Murphree's story and also contacted other media.

"I don't want to see her end up with nothing and on the streets," Martinez, 28, said in a telephone interview Thursday. "She's not after the money, but I'm looking out after her future."

Levy said Murphree failed questions about whether she was paid or promised money to "set up" Swaggart, and whether she made up the story in order to make money from it. Both times she had answered no, he said.

SWAGGART

Two officials of the state district — general superintendent Cecil Janway, also a member of Swaggart's evangelical enterprise, and Forrest Hall, the treasurer — met with the Executive Presbytery on Thursday. Louisiana District officials had no comment Friday.

Juleen Turnage, spokeswoman for the Springfield headquartrs, said earlier that if the Executive Presbytery disagreed with the Louisiana district's recommendations, it would pass on its concerns to the lower body and ask officials in Louisiana to reconsider.

Mrs. Turnage said the church's constitution made the disciplinary process a lengthy one. She said this has been frustrating for church members, who have flooded headquarters with calls expressing their concern.

"It just continues to hang there in the forefront of everyone's mind," she said.

Mrs. Turnage added that officials want to conclude the matter as soon as possible, "and get out of the public spotlight."

It is the second time in a year that the Assemblies of God, the nation's largest Pentecostal denomination, considered disciplinary measures against a prominent minister caught in a scandal. Last year, PTL founder Jim Bakker lost his Assemblies credentials after it was disclosed that he had had sex with a woman other than his wife and then tried to pay her to keep silent. Bakker rejected a rehabilitation proposal.

Swaggart, who reaches around the world with broadcast sermons and contributes $12 million a year to the foreign missions programs of the Assemblies of God, stepped down from his pulpit Sunday after confessing to an undisclosed sin.

He has not appeared in public since then and was not at the closed meetings here.

James Story

Story

Services for James Richard "Dick" Story of Midland will be at 3 p.m. today in the First United Methodist Church with Dr. Charles Lutrick, pastor, officiating. Burial will follow at Resthaven Memorial Park with Ellis Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

Story died at his home Thursday night.

He was born March 2, 1922 in San Angelo, where he was reared. Following graduation from high school, he attended and graduated from Texas Tech University in 1944 with degrees in Geology and Petroleum Engineering. He entered the U.S. Navy during World War II, commissioned as a Lt. jg and served aboard a destroyer escort in the South Pacific.

Upon his discharge he began his business career with Cities Service Oil Company and was sent to Midland in August of 1946 as a staff geologist. He married the former Ruth Anthony of Lubbock on Feb. 2, 1946. In 1951 he joined Southland Royalty as a staff geologist and continued with them for four years before becoming an independent geologist.

He was a member of the First United Methodist Church, where he served on the Administrative Board and was a member of the Fellowship Staff. He served on the YMCA board and was cited for his efforts in establishing the Alamo branch of the YMCA. He was a member of Midland Exchange Club, member of West Texas Geological Society and the American Association of Petroleum Geologists.

Survivors include his wife, Ruth Anthony Story of Midland; two daughters, Carol Story Dawson of Crockett and Lyn Story Burkett of Los Alomitos, Calif.; four brothers, Hal Story and Bob Story, both of Austin, Rector Story of San Angelo and Winford Story of Corpus Christi; three grandchildren; three nieces and six nephews.

The family requests memorials be directed to Hospice of Midland, P.O. Box 2021, Midland, Texas, 79702, or the Youth Ministry Fund of First United Methodist Church, or the Allison Permian Basin Cancer Therapy Center or to a favorite charity.

Pallbearers will be Charles L. Snure, Joe L. Thompson, Curt Inman, Wilbur Rocchio, Dan Rodgers, Robert L. Noah, Ronald McWilliams and Billy C. Johnson.

Honorary pallbearers will be O.H. Berry, Carroll Grafa, J.H. Crough, John Stringer, John Scherer, L.A. Klebold, Lou Halstead, David Bledsoe, Floyd Copeland and Granville Waters.

Thomas Weaver

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Thomas Elwood Weaver, 70, of Las Vegas, Nev., formerly of Odessa, died Wednesday at his residence following a brief illness.

Funeral services will be at 2 p.m. (PST) today at the St. Matthews Episcopal Church in Las Vegas, Nev. Burial will be in Eden Vale Memorial Park under the direction of Bunkers Mortuary.

He was born July 1, 1917 in Sioux City, Iowa. He was a petroleum consultant engineer. He married Anetta Mitchell on July 25, 1939 in Los Angeles. He was a former area superintendent for Tidewater Oil Co. in the Midland-Odessa area from 1962-65. Previously, he had lived in Hobbs, N.M., from 1960-62. He was a graduate of the University of California-Berkely in 1941 in petroleum engineering. Weaver was a licensed petroleum and mechanical engineer and a member of the American Petroluem Institute, Society of Petroleum Engineers. He was an expert in under-reaming drilling and assisted in preparing test shot holes for atomic energy testing in Nevada. Weaver also was an off-shore drilling specialist, working domestically in overseas drilling. He was a member of the Masonic Lodge in Bakersfield, Calif. and the Episcopal Church.

Survivors include his wife of Anetta Weaver of Las Vegas, Nev.; three sons, Thomas E. Weaver Jr. of San Diego, Calif., Brian L. Weaver of Plano and Christopher R. Weaver of Midland; two brothers, Russell Weaver of Sacramento, Calif. and Charles Weaver of Vacaville, Calif.; and 11 grandchildren.

The family request that memorials be directed to the St. Matthews Episcopal Church Building Fund, 4700 S. Nellis Blvd., Las Vegas, Nev., 89121.

Mrs. Donnie Barker

Services for Mrs. Donnie Barker of Midland will be conducted at 11 a.m. today in the First Christian Church with Rev. Ray Bristol officiating. Burial will follow in Resthaven Memorial Park with Ellis Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers will be Foy Boyd, J.W. Mulloy, Keith Singleton, Keith Somerville, Skip Baca and Craig Neatherlin.

She is survived by her husband, Roy L. Barker of Midland; one daughter, Barbara Blackman Dillon of Dallas; two grandchildren; six nieces and two nephews.

Meeting slated to discuss bond election

From Staff Reports

Alamo Junior High School Auditorium will be the site of a public information meeting concerning a bond election for elementary school expansion under consideration by the Midland Independent School District.

The meeting will begin Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

School district staff members and trustees will be present to inform the public of the need for the expansion, the nature of the facilities to be built, and the sites on which the expansion will occur.

In addition, the plans for the reactivation of West Elementary School will be outlined.

The public is encouraged to attend this meeting in order that full and accurate information can be learned about this important issue.

SHOOTOUT

"He got out, shot the officer and left in the same vehicle," he said.

After the officer, who is white, fell to the ground, he was able twice to fire shots at the gunman's fleeing vehicle and shattered its rear window, police said.

Officers found a car believed to be used in the robbery attempt a few blocks away in a housing project, where witnesses said they saw three men flee on foot.

Chief Prince, who earlier had faulted City Council criticism for creating a public so hostile that police deaths were inevitable, said the latest shooting does not reflect racial tensions in the city.

"I don't see how you can make anything racial out of this. The problem is we have too many people on the streets who should be in the penitentiary."

Justice to file ethics grievance against former Chief Justice Hill

STATE

By JEANETTE ALLEN
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Supreme Court Justice Franklin Spears said Friday he will file an ethics grievance against former Chief Justice John Hill, who now is representing the city of Austin in a court proceeding presided over by a judge Hill appointed.

Spears said he will file a grievance with the State Bar of Texas, citing Hill's actions as an example of the kinds of abuse possible should the state turn to an appointed system of choosing its judges.

Hill is representing Austin in its suit with Houston Lighting & Power Co. over the South Texas Nuclear Project. Spears said then-Chief Justice Hill appointed Judge Clarence Guittard in a letter dated March 31, 1987 to preside at the trial before the 101st District Court in Dallas. Hill appointed Guittard to replace Judge Craig Enoch, whom Gov. Bill Clements had named chief justice of the Fifth Court of Appeals in Dallas.

Both Hill and Spears testified on judicial selection Friday before the Joint Select Committee on the Judiciary. Hill blasted Spears for using the debate to launch a personal attack, adding that he does not think his actions even appear to be wrong.

"We can't have a public policy debate in this state without having these kind of personal attacks to deal with, but if that's the way he chooses to do it then I will be there to present the facts," Hill said. "The facts are going to speak for themselves and I think when they do, it will be clear that I haven't done anything unethical."

Hill resigned his post in January to lobby for changing the present elected system of selecting judges to one of merit selection through appointments by the governor. Austin hired Hill to represent it last month.

Spears accused Hill of violating a canon of the bar's Code of Professional Responsibility which states, "After a lawyer leaves judicial office or other public employment, he should not accept employment in connection with any matter in which he had substantial responsibility prior to his leaving, since to accept employment would give the appearance of impropriety even if none exists."

Spears also cited a bar disciplinary rule which states, "A lawyer shall not accept private employment in a matter upon the merits of which he had acted in a judicial capacity."

Spears said Hill's actions are "just a different twist on the abuses inherent under an appointive system for judges."

Larry Fitzgerald, director of communications for the State Bar of Texas, said he could not comment on whether Spears had filed the grievance. If it has been filed, Fitzgerald said, it will go to the grievance committee in Houston, where Hill resides.

Father gets life sentence for not getting son aid

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — A judge, citing the cruel abuse of two infants, sentenced an Iowa man to life in prison Friday for failing to obtain medical aid for a 1-month-old baby.

Gary Dale Elliott Sr., 28, of Des Moines, received the stiff sentence in connection with the April 25, 1987, death of Gary Elliott Jr.

Injuries to the infant were reported on April 24, 1987, after the child stopped breathing while Elliott and his 21-year-old wife, Tricia Lynn, were staying at a South Padre Island hotel.

Autopsies conducted in Texas and Iowa concluded that the baby died from head injuries suffered 10 to 14 days earlier.

The infant's twin brother, Gregory, reportedly has lost the use of one arm and suffered brain damage from similar injuries.

"I think that this sentence I impose on you cannot possibly make up for what has happened," State District Judge Robert Garza told Elliott before he imposed the maximum sentence. "You'll never be able to make up for what has happened to these children."

Although he had been indicted on a charge of injury to a child, Elliott pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of failure to obtain medical aid for the infant.

Meanwhile Friday in another Brownsville courtroom, Elliott's wife was sentnced to 10 years in prison and fined $5,000 for causing injury to Gregory Elliott.

The Elliotts were arrested at a Des Moines hospital after taking Gregory for treatment of various injuries.

State District Judge Jane Akin Brasch was skeptical of claims by Mrs. Elliott's defense attorney that the woman had been terrorized by her husband and forced to take drugs.

President's death a mystery, judge says

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A judge deliberated on the 65-year-old puzzle of President Warren G. Harding's untimely death before concluding, "It's a mystery to me."

The "ruling" by Judge George T. Choppelas came after an uproarious session earlier this week of the mock Court of Historical Review, which considered suggestions that Harding's wife killed him in 1923.

But the "spirit" of Harding's widow, testifying in a standing-room-only City Hall courtroom, said "Madame X," her fortuneteller, told her that Vice President Calvin Coolidge killed the 29th president.

It was the 50th session of the just-for-fun court that since 1975 has taken up such weighty questions as "Who invented the fortune cookie?" and "Is chicken soup Jewish penicillin?"

Harding, whose administration was torn apart by such corruption scandals as Teapot Dome, died at age 57 on Aug. 2, 1923, in San Francisco's Palace Hotel. No autopsy was performed, and his body was whisked back to Washington for burial.

Attorney Frank Winston, arguing that Florence Harding killed her husband, opened by ordering the courtroom to pay no attention to his opponent, U.S. Attorney Joseph P. Russoniello.

"We'll set the record straight," snarled Winston, drawing snorts of derision from Russoniello.

Medical board will allow doctor to treat baby with adult AIDS drug

DALLAS (AP) — The institutional review board of the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center on Friday decided to allow a 10-month-old baby girl dying from AIDS to receive a drug authorized for use only by adults, a spokeswoman said.

After the board's decision, Dr. Charles Ginsburg, medical director of Children's Medical Center, authorized the use of AZT for the infant, who is called Baby J.

AZT is an anti-AIDS drug approved two years ago by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration for use in adults.

The baby's physician, Dr. Richard Wasserman, said he began administering AZT on Thursday after discussion with the infant's parents, who consented to the treatment. The baby's mother said Wasserman had fully informed her of the possible risks and advantages of using AZT.

However, hospital officials suspended the treatment pending Friday's review of the decision.

Spokeswoman Lori Waggoner said no reasons for the board's decision were disclosed immediately. Doctors said Baby J is the first Texas child known to receive the drug.

The baby had been scheduled to participate in an AZT children's study that begins March 15 in Washington D.C., but Wasserman said Baby J's steadily declining health made him "concerned she would be too sick to participate. The care of my patient comes first."

The AIDS virus was passed to the child from her mother, who got it from her hemophiliac husband, doctors said.

He is believed to have been exposed to the virus through a contaminated blood transfusion. Both parents are suffering symptoms of the disease.

Ginsburg said the decision to review Wasserman's action was standard policy in such circumstances.

"All drugs non-approved for use in infants and children are investigational and must receive approval from the institutional review board," Ginsburg said. "This in no way should be construed as obstructive. Everything we do is to protect the children and adults."

Wasserman, the medical center's director of immunology, said he thinks AZT is the baby's only hope against the fatal disease, which attacks the body's immune system.

AZT, or azidothymidine, is not a cure for acquired immune deficiency syndrome, which attacks the body's immune system, but inhibits the spread of the virus and can reduce the number and severity of infections that attack AIDS patients, doctors say.

But some receiving the drug suffer side effects including anemia, nausea and a reduction in the number of red and white blood cells. The drug is being tested under controlled conditions on 50 children at three research centers.

Many adults who take AZT require blood transfusions or discontinue the drug because of side effects.

Some experts said Wasserman's decision strays from acceptable practice.

"We definitely don't recommend that," said Dr. Margaret Oxtoby, a pediatric AIDS expert with the national Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta. "AZT hasn't been fully studied in children. It's not licensed for children and it hasn't been evaluated."

Dr. Charles Alexander, head of the state health department's Bureau of AIDS, said, "If everything is fine, nobody will criticize. But what if the patient dies and the doctor has used the drug? Then he has the burden of proof that he did the right thing in using an unlicensed drug."

Two American Medical Association officials, however, agreed with Wasserman's treatment of the child with AZT.

"It's between a physician and patient, or patient's parents," said Dr. Nancy Dickey, the AMA medical ethics representative. "There's an assumption that the parents will make the best choice for their loved one."

Army investigating helicopter accident

DALLAS (AP) — Tight-lipped military investigators set up camp Friday in a North Texas cow pasture where an Army helicopter crashed after catching fire in mid-air, killing 10 soldiers and injuring eight.

They had little to say about the Thursday accident as Fort Rucker, Ala., officials searched in a light mist for pieces of the twin-rotor CH-47D Chinook, a workhorse cargo helicopter with a history of mechanical problems.

"We don't have any information about what happened on board. What we're telling...is that the Army is investigating the crash, but anything else I tell you would be either rumor or speculation," Fort Hood Capt. Michael Monnett said.

A soldier who leaped 35 feet from the burning craft said a fire had broken out at its rear and that the soldiers had tried to move to the front to get away from the flames, Department of Public Safety Sgt. Robert Rankin said Thursday.

But Army officials at Fort Hood and Fort Sill, Okla., refused to disclose any preliminary details of their probe and would not comment on reports that the helicopter had undergone repairs hours before it crashed.

A Pentagon source who asked that his name not be used told The Associated Press that Army officials had been told "there was some maintenance work done on the ground after the Chinook landed at Fort Hood."

"But whether that's germane to anything remains to be seen," the official added. "The investigators will have to check into that. There's no indication yet that mechanics worked on something at Hood that later could have caused a fire."

Another Pentagon official said there was no evidence of an explosion aboard the helicopter while it was flying — only of a fire.

"The aircraft appears by and large to have been intact when it hit the ground," said the source. "There's no evidence of an explosion before impact. It got ripped apart traversing the ground after impact."

Meanwhile, one of the injured soldiers told the AP from his bed at Dallas' Parkland Memorial Hospital that he had been ordered not to talk about the accident.

Fort Sill Sgt. 1st Class Frank A. Prater, 33, of Daytona Beach, Fla., said he could not even discuss his medical condition.

The death toll, which started at six and continued to mount throughout the day Thursday, reached 10 Friday morning when one of the soldiers died at Brooke Army Medical Center in San Antonio.

Monnett said the Chinook was returning to Fort Sill from Fort Hood with 18 soldiers aboard. Five crewmen from Fort Sill had gone to Fort Hood to pick up soldiers for a training mission at the Oklahoma post. The helicopter left Fort Hood at 2 p.m.

Witnesses said the helicopter was tilted forward at a 45-degree angle, puffing smoke and descending rapidly when it sliced through a power line and went down about 3:30 p.m. CST.

"All of a sudden a little thin streak of smoke came out of it and there was a small explosion on the right side underneath it," said Joe Haworth, who was working near the crash site in Wise County, about 50 miles northwest of Fort Worth. "Then it put out a little more smoke and it flew straight for a ways, then parts went to coming out of it."

The craft skidded about 75 feet before breaking apart in a sheet of fire, said Wendell Berry Sr., 53, who watched the accident from his home a half-mile away.

One witness said only one body remained inside the charred helicopter, and another man tried to douse the burning bodies with a small fire extinguisher.

"Some of them were just sitting there screaming," said 17-year-old Dale Christopher, a Chico High School student who was among the first on the scene. "And they kept asking us 'Help us. Help us.' And then we'd say 'Help is on the way.' That's all we could do for them."

An Open Letter to Midlanders Interested in

TRUTH IN POLITICS

Dear Fellow Citizens:

We want to express our disappointment at the tactics of Nick Taylor's political campaign.

Taylor and a group of his supporters are conducting a campaign designed to divert attention from the main issue of this election: THAT JUDGE BASKIN IS VASTLY BETTER QUALIFIED THAN NICK TAYLOR TO BE OUR JUDGE.

The Taylor campaign has repeatedly made FALSE and MISLEADING STATEMENTS. Here are some examples:

#1. FALSEHOOD: Mr. Taylor stated in a letter that "Judge Baskin was chairman of the McGovern for president campaign." At a Taylor news conference it was stated that Judge Baskin had a McGovern bumper sticker on his car.

#2. FALSEHOOD: Mr. Taylor stated at a news conference that Judge Baskin "is a liberal."

#3. FALSE IMPLICATION: A Taylor mass mailing implied that Crime Stoppers, Neighbors Against Burglary and Drugs, and Mothers Against Drunk Driving are endorsing Mr. Taylor.

#4. FALSE INSINUATION: Mr. Taylor insinuated at a Meeting of the Republican Women's Club that Judge Baskin had received a $300 contribution from a certain local citizen whom Mr. Taylor claims to be a "liberal.".

NOW TAKE A LOOK AT THE FACTS:

✔ FACT #1: Judge Baskin supported the 1972 Republican candidate. He did not manage, or in any manner whatever, aid, support, vote or contribute to the McGovern campaign.

Nevertheless certain supporters of the Taylor campaign have continued to spread this rumor through phone calls. When one Taylor phonecaller was firmly and correctly informed that Judge Baskin neither chaired nor supported the McGovern campaign, the phonecaller defensively retorted that, "Well if Baskin didn't do it, his wife did!" So, a brand new falsehood was born, this time against Mrs. Baskin (who also supported the 1972 Republican nominee for re-election).

✔ FACT #2: Judge Baskin is a conservative and has been for his 34 years in Midland.

Judge Baskin has long supported conservative candidates, from President Eisenhower to President Reagan.

Judge Baskin has an impeccably conservative voting record as a Midland City Councilman and Mayor Pro-Tem.

Judge Baskin has long supported conservative political positions such as restoring the depletion allowance, opposition to the windfall profits tax, maintaining a strong military defense.

Judge Baskin's court routinely assesses the toughest sentences of any sizeable county in West Texas, brings criminals to trial quickly, and applies the law as a strict-constructionist.

✔ FACT #3: Crime Stoppers, Neighbors Against Burglary and Drugs, and Mothers Against Drunk Driving have not endorsed Mr. Taylor and do not intend to do so.

Although the Taylor campaign now says that they did not mean that those groups were endorsing Mr. Taylor, the implication was there.

"The (Taylor mass mailing) letter was so strongly anti-Baskin, there's no way it can look like anything but an endorsement....This was done without our knowledge or consent....We don't endorse any candidate."--President of Crime Stoppers.

"We have had people call us and say they would not support our organization because we were supporting a political candidate....We just want to make it clear we are not endorsing anyone."--President of Mothers Against Drunk Driving.

"From the outset NABD has agreed, and it has been etched into steel, that we are non-political as far as personality and individuals are concerned." President of Neighbors Against Burglary and Drugs (NABD). (He added the group's membership is comprised of supporters of both Baskin and Taylor).

✔ FACT #4: Judge Baskin never received such a contribution from that person.

This is a trivial item, but it typifies the Taylor campaign's willingness to make statements without checking the facts.

WHY HAS THE TAYLOR CAMPAIGN MADE THESE FALSE STATEMENTS?

WE ASSUME THE EXPLANATION IS CARELESSNESS, NOT DISHONESTY. HOWEVER, CARELESSNESS WITH FACTS IS NOT A DESIRABLE CHARACTERISTIC IN A MAN WHO WISHES TO SERVE AS OUR JUDGE.

Our community deserves an honorable political contest, and our judicial candidates, more than anyone else, should set the highest standard of political behavior.

Henceforth, let us demand through our votes that candidates refrain from attacking their opponents with false statements and innuendos of the kind that the Taylor campaign is using.

We urge you to join us in voting for the best qualified candidate, Pat Baskin.

Sincerely,
Citizens For Accuracy In Campaigning.

WARNING:

Don't be misled. You may hear these and other false and misleading statements during the next two weeks. Check the facts. We urge you to speak out for truth in campaign practices.

Young American cheers for her team

Bonnie Blair adds bronze to laurels

By JOHN NELSON

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) — Bonnie Blair raced to her second medal Friday and became America's most decorated Olympian of 1988, while East German Karin Kania became the most decorated speed skater of all Winter Games.

Now, at least, America won't have its worst Olympics while the Soviets have their best. Shooting for gold in Friday night's hockey game against Sweden, the Soviets were one medal away from equaling their high of 27 in 1976 at Innsbruck.

Blair added a bronze in Friday night's 1,000 meters to the gold she won in the 500 last Monday. Christa Rothenburger of East Germany won the 1,000 in world record time.

"I wasn't really prepared mentally for the race," said Blair of Champaign, Ill. "With all the things going on and trying to let everything sink in for the 500 — it's kind of hard for everything to sink in."

Kania took the silver, making her the most successful woman speed skater in Olympic history. Kania now has seven Olympic medals — two from these Games — spanning three Olympics, moving her ahead of Lidija Skoblikova of the Soviet Union.

Friday's other Olympic stars:

— Vreni Schneider of Switzerland won her second ski race, becoming the only double Alpine gold medalist of these Games and joining only four other women who have won two in one Olympics.

— The Soviet biathlon team won its sixth straight Olympic relay, extending the longest winning streak of the Games.

— Soviet biathlete Valeri Medvedtsev, who already had two silver medals, became the fifth triple medalist of the Games.

Saturday night, Debi Thomas will further improve America's dour Olympic effort when she battles Katarina Witt of East Germany for the figure skating gold. How much will it improve?

Tina Burgen, 41, Amarillo Tascosa, tries to hold back the tears after the Rebels' loss to Richland High.

Region I finals at 11 a.m.

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

The two state ranked blue bloods of the Class 5A Region I girls basketball tournament had their day at Chaparral Center Friday night, but both No. 3 ranked North Richland Hills Richland and No. 4 Duncanville had their troubles with the unranked teams from District 3-5A.

Richland's Rebels disposed of Amarillo Tascosa 64-56 in the opener while Duncanville got past Lubbock Monterey 85-79 in the nightcap to vault into today's early 11 a.m. wake-up call final, which will send one of those teams to the Final Four in Austin next week.

Today's final will also feature a battle between two of the most impressive posts in the state when Richland's 6-2 senior Joanne Benton goes against Duncanville's 6-4 junior Cinestra Henderson.

Benton, who has the University of Texas drooling over her talents, scored a tournament high 37 points against Tascosa, hitting 12 of 16 shots from the field and nailing 13 consecutive free throws after a miss in the first quarter. She was also the top rebounder in the game with nine.

"This was just my night," said Benton. "I've been averaging around 21 points a game, but I just went out there hoping to have some fun and concentrate on what I was doing. We have five seniors starting this year and that experience really helps us."

Henderson scored 21 of her 28 points in the second half against Monterey after being called with three, first period fouls, forcing her to sit out all of the second quarter. She finally fouled out with 30 seconds left in the game. Henderson also had a tournament high 17 rebounds.

Henderson would not comment on her showing after the game.

Still, these two clubs had some anxious moments.

Tascosa held seven-point leads in both the first and second half, but went into a fourth quarter scoring swoon, failing to swish the net from the 5:10 mark until only 44 seconds were left. Richland took the lead for good at the 4:40 mark of the game, 54-52, on a pair of free throws by Mindie Markham.

Tascosa and Richland are no strangers. These two schools met in the Region I volleyball finals at Chap Center last fall with Richland winning that encounter also.

"We recognized some of the names on the Tascosa team from volleyball and we really thought they would be after us," noted Markham, who is also a volleyball player. "But that very fact also helped to pump us up for this game."

Richland's Jenna Hawkins, another volleyball player, added, "In volleyball, Tascosa is always the team to beat and that carried over into basketball. I had my doubts out there, but I have doubts when we are leading by 20 points."

In addition to Benton's 37, Richland got 13 points from Lana Rutledge. Tascosa, which ends the season with a 27-4 record, got 12 from Elayne Maddox and 11 each from Jennifer Fritz, Sheri Hermesmeyer and Tiffany Hobbs.

Monterey, falling to 24-8, looked to have Duncanville on the ropes with leads of 10 points four times in the first half. The Plainsmen's Suzanne Copeland turned in 20 of her 27 points in the first half while helping to get Henderson in foul trouble.

Joan Delk holds stroke lead

HONOLULU (AP) — Joan Delk battled stiff winds on Oahu's north shore Friday to shoot a 3-under-par 69 for a one-stroke lead after two rounds of the $300,000 LPGA Hawaiian Open.

Delk, winless in two years on the LPGA Tour, matched the best round of her career despite winds gusting to 25 mph on the 6,220-yard Turtle Bay Resort course.

Delk made four birdies against one bogey for a 140 total, 4 under par, going into Saturday's final round of the 54-hole tournament.

Hall of Fame member JoAnne Carner and 1987 LPGA Player of the Year Ayako Okamoto were one stroke back at 3 under par. Carner shot a 71, while Okamoto finished with a 72.

Anne-Marie Palli shot a 71 for a 142 total and sole possession of fourth place.

Hawaiian Open

Five players, including Thursday's leader Jan Stephenson, were three strokes back at 143. The others were Sally Quinlan, Kathy Postlewait, Beth Daniel and Cathy Gerring.

Judy Dickinson and Pat Bradley were four strokes off the pace at par 144.

Delk trailed Stephenson by three strokes going into Friday's round, but Stephenson failed to make a birdie all day and finished with a 75.

Delk, starting on the back nine, took over the lead by shooting birdies on the 10th, 11th, first and fifth holes. She bogeyed the seventh hole.

Delk said she played conservatively, trying to avoid forcing shots in the high winds.

"The strategy for today was going for the fairways and greens," Delk said.

"My husband (John) told me I hit 17 greens today," Delk said. "I didn't know it, I was concentrating so hard."

Delk's previous best finish was a tie for 20th.

Carner, looking for her 43rd LPGA victory, birdied four holes. But she bogeyed three, including her last two.

"I should be 6-under — I blew three shots," Carner said.

Okamoto, playing in her first LPGA event of the year, led in the early going Friday with an eagle on the par-4, 332-yard 12th hole.

Sixty-five players failed to make the cut of 151, leaving 79 participating in Saturday's final round.

Tascosa eliminates OHS

From Staff Reports

LUBBOCK — Odessa High, District 4-5A's runnerup, took a quick tumble in the state basketball playoffs here Friday night, losing to District 3-5A champion Amarillo Tascosa 63-46 in a bi-district game played at the Lubbock Coronado gym.

Tascosa, advancing to the area playoffs with a 26-5 record, bolted quick from the gate and taking a 12-5 first quarter lead.

OHS post Lester White led all scorers in the game with 15 points, but Tascosa got 12 points from Bobby West and 11 from Matt Harkins.

The Bronchos end their season with a 20-10 record.

Drexler sparks Blazers

CHICAGO (AP) — Clyde Drexler scored a career-high 42 points and Kevin Duckworth added nine of his 27 points in the final quarter Friday night, lifting the Portland Trail Blazers to a 104-96 NBA victory over Chicago despite 52 points from the Bulls' Michael Jordan.

NBA

Terry Porter's jumper gave Portland a 95-93 lead with 4:28 remaining, and the Trail Blazers went on to outscore Chicago 11-3 down the stretch.

The Bulls made four turnovers in the final four minutes while scoring only one basket, a jumper by Jordan.

Jordan's 52 points tied his own NBA high for the season that he established against Cleveland on Dec. 17.

The triumph was the first for Portland at Chicago Stadium since Feb. 8, 1983.

The Trail Blazers opened a 91-85 lead with 7:21 left as Duckworth, playing with five fouls, contributed six points. But Chicago outscored Portland 8-2 in the next two minutes to tie the score at 93-93.

Celtics 132, Bucks 96

BOSTON — Larry Bird scored 19 of his 32 points in the first quarter Friday night, leading the Boston Celtics. Bird's first-quarter performance, which boosted Boston into a 38-29 lead, included three 3-point field goals.

Hawks 116, Pacers 101

INDIANAPOLIS — Dominique Wilkins scored 32 points and Spud Webb scored seven points in a decisive 10-2 fourth-quarter spurt that carried the Atlanta Hawks over the Indiana Pacers Friday night.

Jon Koncak put the Hawks ahead for good, 82-80, with 40 seconds remaining in the third quarter as Atlanta scored the final six points of the period.

The Hawks led 92-88 after Wayman Tisdale's dunk with 9:04 left.

Webb then started the 10-2 spurt with a basket and a free throw with 8:30 remaining. He then hit a five-footer and followed with a 20-footer at 7:09, giving the Hawks a 99-89 lead.

Pistons 137, Nets 109

PONTIAC, Mich. — Rick Mahorn scored 13 of his career-high 34 points in the first quarter as Detroit handed the Nets their 25th NBA road loss in 26 games.

The Nets, whose lone road win of the season came Feb. 1 at Dallas, have lost five games in a row and six of their last seven.

The Pistons, 9-2 since the All-Star break, are 21-4 at the Silverdome, including victories in their last nine.

Bulldogs sweep Monahans

From Staff Reports

Midland High opened the 1988 baseball season with a doubleheader victory over the Monahans Lobos at Angels Stadium Friday night.

Scott Mowles homered in the first game as the Bulldogs took a 14-4 victory. In the second game, the Bulldogs won 6-1.

The Bulldogs return to action at Lubbock Coronado Tuesday with a 5 and 7 p.m. doubleheader and then play in the Tall City Tournament of Champions next Thursday through Saturday.

Other Wadkins narrowing gap on more famous brother

Murray

Then, there is the trivia question: Which brother act hit the most home runs in major league history? Answer: The Aaron brothers, 768. Henry hit 755, Tommie hit 13.

Now, the trick question goes to golf. Which brother act has the most tour victories? Answer: the Wadkins brothers, 17. Lanny has all of them, Bobby, none.

But, life isn't fair. Especially, golf.

A case could be made that Bobby Wadkins is the best golfer never to win a tournament. In fact, an informal poll, with no prompting, in the press room at the 62nd Los Angeles Open, elicited exactly that response.

And there is no question the gap between the Wadkins brothers is narrowing by the tournament. It used to be said around the locker rooms, "Lanny is 20 months older and 2 shots better than Bobby." That's no longer so true. Lanny finished 13th on the money list last year with $501,727 and one tournament won. Bobby finished 25th with $342,173, one second- and three fourth-place finishes. He had 7 top-10 finishes (Lanny had 6) and 22 in-the-money (Lanny had 19). Bobby had a 70.60 stroke average. Lanny had 70.73.

SIBLING RIVALRY is a fact of life for any family. Prowess seems to be spread in unequal proportion. Jackie Robinson's brother, Mack, for example, might have been the historic legend his brother was to become — except Mack came along in the era of Jesse Owens. He finished second to Jesse in the Berlin Olympics in 1936 — or he might have been the one the Fuehrer walked out on and made a media hero of. Joe DiMaggio's brother, Dom, was as good a center fielder as the game has seen. If he'd been anybody else's brother, he'd have been a star in his own right.

Bobby Wadkins knows the syndrome well. When he goes anywhere to play golf and he arrives on a green, he can all but overhear the crowd whispering "Lanny Wadkins' brother." When he goes to a dinner party and is introduced to a fan, the general questioning always starts with "And how is Lanny?" Bobby has one stock answer: "I had him here a minute ago — oh-oh, someone's cut the string."

Neither is Lanny his brother's keeper. No one asks Lanny, "How !or where? is Bobby?" Bobby is his brother, Lanny is not Bobby's brother. The distinction is subtle but evident.

THE WADKINS brothers of Richmond, Va., are a fascinating contrast. Bobby is younger, bigger, tougher. At least, he looks that way. Lanny has this deceptive baby-faced look that a lot of assassins prove to have. Bobby looks like the linebacker he once was. Lanny couldn't be anything else but a golfer. Lanny has a teddy bear appearance to him. Bobby runs more to a Kodiak. Yet, Lanny on a golf course is as aggressive as Mike Tyson. He slugs it out with a course. He has a killer instinct. Lanny not only wants to win, he wants to win by KO.

Not that Bobby doesn't. Probably the basic difference between the Wadkins boys is not talent, it's experience. Bobby gave Lanny more than the two-year head start in their ages. Bobby gave him more like seven years in golf.

"Lanny always knew he was going to be a golfer," Bobby explains. "Lanny knew by the age of 10 that he wanted to become the No. 1 golfer in the world some day, and he never took his eyes off that goal. I played football and basketball. I thought I might be a coach some day. I spent my time trying to get teaching credentials, Lanny spent his trying to get 65s. Lanny was out on the golf course while I was underneath my car, working on my '64 GTO any spare time I had. I worked loading trucks from 1 to 10 p.m. every day."

MEANWHILE, out on the fairway, Lanny was getting rich and famous not lifting anything heavier than a 1-iron. He won the U.S. Amateur in 1970, and hardly anybody since Nicklaus and Palmer came into golf as universally heralded. Lanny won his first tournament, the Sahara, and $116,000 in 1972 and $200,000 in 1973. Bobby just stood there loading sacks.

Bobby got the message. But he didn't step on the Tour until 1975. "I was a junior in college before I even decided on golf," the "other" Wadkins ruefully admits. "I was 20, 21 years old."

MISL could close shop

Midway through its 10th season the Major Indoor Soccer League appears to have hit a crossroads and one of the forks could lead to a dead end.

"This is the most important year as far as I'm concerned," said Dallas Sidekicks coach, vice president and part owner Gordon Jago. "This is the turning point of the league. I think this year is the opportunity for the owners to make the right decisions.

"We can't spend more than we take in and we can only live off the generosity of owners for a short time."

The league on Friday said it will go out of business in June if the players' union does not accept a proposal to reduce the salary cap from $1.275 million to $896,000 per team by April 15. The salary cap was instituted 1½ years ago as part of a three-year collective bargaining agreement.

"The league's proposal offers a compensation plan that will stabilize the league and add to its potential for growth," Commissioner Bill Kentling said in a statement. "With the emphasis on stabilization and expansion, the league's players will benefit signficantly over the next two years."

John Kerr, the director the MISL Players' Association, which received the proposal Wednesday at a meeting in Washington, did not immediately respond.

But last week, Kerr said he was willing to listen to suggestions of a lower cap.

"It may not be a question of who is in a stronger position," Kerr said. "It may be a question of survival."

Many players already have expressed disatisfaction with the cap and any suggestions to lower it further.

Six months ago, the MISL boasted that every team was back in the city where it played the previous season. But it probably won't be able to make that boast next year.

GAMES

Saturday night, Debi Thomas will further improve America's dour Olympic effort when she battles Katarina Witt of East Germany for the figure skating gold. How much will it improve?

Her coach believes the judges already have chosen Witt. All Witt has to do is stand up, like a heavyweight champion, and she won't be voted out as she defends her Olympic title.

Both women will skate to Bizet's "Carmen."

"I'm on my way to doing a near-perfect competition for myself," Thomas said, adding that "I've also had millions of people tell me it's better" than Witt's.

America's five medals are more than its two worst efforts in 1924 at Chamonix, France, and 1936 at Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany. While the Americans were safe statistically, they still were having a lousy Olympics.

Consider that in 1924, there were 14 medal events. There were 17 in 1936, and there are 47 this year.

The Soviets now have 26 medals, including 10 golds. East Germany has 19 medals, eight gold, and Schneider's victory gave the Swiss 12 medals, three gold.

Blair skated ahead of both Rothenburger and Kania, turning in a time of 1 minute, 18.31 seconds. Kania came next, lowering her own world record of 1:18.11 to 1:17.70, and Rothenburger trimmed it even further, to 1:17.65 in winning the race.

"I wanted to come out here and have a good race," Blair said. "I opened up really hard and got a personal best by 1.2 seconds, so I'm real happy. I got tired. Especially the last corner was really hard."

Schneider added a gold in the slalom to the giant slalom title she won on Wednesday. She beat Yugoslavia's Mateja Svet by 1.66 seconds to become the fifth woman Alpine double gold-medalist and first since Hanni Wenzel of Liechtenstein in 1980.

"I don't want to be a superstar," Schneider said. "This was a one-day race. Everything was perfect, and I was very lucky. But I'm not a superstar."

The Soviets, meanwhile, won their sixth straight 30-kilometer biathlon relay, extending the Winter Olympics' longest winning streak in a sport that has become typical of American failure. West Germany won the silver, and the bronze went to Italy.

The United States finished ninth of 16 teams.

"I've never had three bad races like this in my life," said U.S. biathlete Josh Thompson, a world championship silver medalist who could do no better than 24th in either of the two individual races. "I don't even want to come back (in 1992) right at this moment. But my attitude will change."

In earlier hockey action, Czechoslovakia beat Finland 5-2 and Canada downed West Germany 8-1.

Now, the world awaits the meeting of Witt and Thomas on Saturday night. Witt and wisdom say this is her year, and even Thomas' coach admits it.

"The die is cast," said Alex McGowan, borrowing a line from Julius Caesar.

And cast in the die of a champion is Witt, who renews her campaign of seduction on skates Saturday night in the women's freestyle.

"I'm used to getting my way," Witt says.

At Mount Allan, where the weather was so warm that six shirtless guys sat on the ground to watch the women's race, Schneider put together two runs that blew away the rest of the field.

She won in 1 minute, 36.69 seconds, easily beating Svet's 1:38.37. Veteran Christa Kinshofer Guetlein won the bronze in 1:38.40 to go along with a silver she won in the giant slalom.

Camilla Nilsson of Sweden was just .01 seconds behind Schneider's first-run time of 48.81, but she straddled a gate about 20 seconds into the second run and did not finish.

Beth Madsen of Aspen, Colo., finished 11th.

Besides Schneider and Wenzel, the other women double gold Alpine medalists were Rosi Mittermaier of West Germany in 1976, Marie-Theres Nadig of Switzerland in 1972 and Andrea Mead Lawrence of the United States in 1952.

The Swiss now have 11 Alpine medals compared with six for Austria in their battle for Alpine supremacy.

Thomas was leading Witt after the short program Thursday night, but she actually was trailing in this subjective, often controversial sport.

"Katarina's going to have to fall a couple of times to lose here," says Carlo Fassi, trainer of figure skating champions such as Dorothy Hamill and Peggy Fleming.

McGowan was particularly displeased by the judge's marks for artistic merit. When Thomas' marks were posted, McGowan sat in front of the TV camera, waved his hand, held his nose and said, "It stinks."

Only Thomas' lead in compulsory figures kept her in the No. 1 spot.

For freestyle, the music will sound the same, but the routines won't.

Witt's routine features a few tap-dance moves, some triple jumps and a black-and-red Spanish-style outfit lacking only the castanets for effect. The piece de resistance of Thomas' program is two triple toe loops in combination, a move Witt doesn't do, with a dash of ballet, courtesy of Baryshnikov.

"Hopefully, I won't give anything away," Thomas said. "I really want to fight for this and hold it. ... That's what I'm hoping to do. This is my one and only Olympics, and I want to nail it."

Debi Thomas to do talking tonight

By BARRY WILNER

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) — Debi Thomas is hoping for the last word in women's figure skating at the Winter Olympics.

While her coach does most of the talking, Thomas plans to make an emphatic, golden statement with her skates Saturday night in the long program. If she beats reigning Olympic and world champion Katarina Witt of East Germany in the free-style, worth 50 percent of the total score, Thomas will win the gold medal.

She can even finish second as long as Witt is third or worse, and still take the title. But the 20-year-old two-time U.S. champion from San Jose, Calif., isn't thinking about anything but the top spot.

"Skating last is a long wait," Thomas said of the draw for the freestyle, which has Witt going four skaters before Thomas. "But it's also like I'm finishing the whole Olympics.

"I'm on my way to doing a near-perfect competition for myself. I know that I have the more difficult program and I know it's a great program when it's done, even artistically. I've also had millions of people tell me it's better (than Witt's)."

But will the nine people who count, the judges, find Thomas' presentation of "Carmen" better than Witt's?

"I've always known that I've had to skate way better to get what I deserve," Thomas said. "It's really made me determined that I will go out there and skate great."

The marks for the short program were steeped in controversy. After Witt received strong but not sensational marks Thursday night, Thomas thrilled the sellout crowd at the Olympic Saddledome with a flawless performance.

Technically, her marks were as good or better than Witt's — Thomas' program was more difficult. Artistically, Thomas was not as impressive and she lost to the three-time world champion on seven of nine cards.

That sparked loud booing from the crowd and a critical blast for the judges from Alex McGowan, Thomas' outspoken coach, who held his nose and said, "It stinks."

"No matter what Debi does, I'm afraid the die is cast," he said, referring to the long program. "I get worried when I see a skater not get what she deserves, and I saw that tonight."

Witt had watched Thomas skate. She applauded her opponent's performance, then walked off smiling after the marks were posted.

She also was smiling about the draw.

"I find it very good that I am starting before her," Witt said. "The judges will leave a little room in the scoring, I know. But the short program showed that it is not a decisive element (to skate first).

"I just have to come in ahead of Debi in the free skate if I want to win."

Liz Manley of Canada was third through two disciplines, with compulsory figures winner Kira Ivanova of the Soviet Union fourth, followed by Americans Jill Trenary and Caryn Kadavy.

Kadavy missed Friday's practice. She had a fever of 102 Thursday afternoon and wasn't feeling any better on Friday. She is expected to skate in the long program.

Thomas, Witt, Manley and Trenary all had shaky practice sessions. None of them stood up for their entire long program rehearsals. None were available for interviews after the practice.

Thomas said she has gotten inspiration from fellow-Californian Brian Boitano, who won the men's gold medal last week.

"Brian did it the same way," she said, noting that Boitano also was second in the figures and short program. "What he did gets me fired up. I know there is hope."

NY Giants cut punter Jennings

NEW YORK (AP) — Punter Dave Jennings and center Joe Fields were among four players released by the New York Jets.

The Jets also released offensive tackle Gordon King and defensive end Barry Bennett.

Jennings, 35, was a four-time All-Pro selection during his 11 seasons with the New York Giants before being claimed on waivers by the Jets in 1985.

Josh Thompson's nightmare is over

CANMORE, Alberta (AP) — Josh Thompson's nightmare — the Winter Olympics — is finally over.

In the early days of the Winter Olympics, before the first biathlon event of the Games, the slender, blond-haired, 25-year-old was a celebrity. People were actually expecting this American to win a medal away from the Eastern European powerhouses that traditionally dominate this peculiar mix of cross-country skiing and target shooting.

There appeared some reason for optimism. Thompson won a silver medal at 20 kilometers in the 1987 World Biathlon Championships at Lake Placid, N.Y., serving notice that he could compete with the best.

At the Olympics, the best were waiting for him.

Thompson's first race ended not with a medal but with tears. He finished 25th in the 20-kilometer race. Then came the 10-kilometer event and a 27th-place finish. Friday's 30-kilometer relay ended with the Americans back in ninth place — hampered by two missed targets, one of them by Thompson.

SERVIC BATTLE— It's still 21 months until an Army-Navy football game can be played anywhere but Philadelphia, but at least four cities are trying to take the prestigious clash from its traditional site. Baltimore, Dallas, Jacksonville, Fla., and East Rutherford, N.J., are trying to lure the game, which has been played in Philadelphia in all but one of the last 43 years.

NO NEGLIGENCE— There was no negligence in the death of the Austrian ski team's doctor during a recreational ski run on the mountain used for the Winter Olympic Alpine events, authorities said Friday. The Calgary Olympic organizing committee said all security measures were functioning properly and could not have prevented Dr. Joerg Oberhammer being crushed to death by a snow-grooming machine.
Oberhammer collided with Brian Nock, a tv technician, at the convergence of two ski runs on Mount Allan Thursday. Oberhammer was thrown underneath a snow-grooming machine working on a rutted portion of the slope and was killed instantly.

Katarina completes short program without raid

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) — Katarina Witt completed her Olympic figure skating short program, and the vice squad stayed home.

Wearing her hotly debated blue skating costume, which is complemented by feathers at her hips, hair and shoulders, Witt captivated the Saddledome audience Thursday night, winning the short program and moving into second place behind America's Debi Thomas in the overall standings.

But for fans excited at the prospect of seeing her perform in what Canadian Coach Peter Dunfield called a G-string, well, other skaters bared more than Witt.

Thomas herself wasn't exactly understated, wearing a black body suit, the only skater who didn't use the traditional skater's skirt. Nobody called it controversial, though.

Some people thought Witt had added a few feathers in strategic places, but Katarina didn't exactly look like Mother Hubbard. Just because she comes from East Germany doesn't mean she has to go around in a babushka and overcoat.

If figure skating's fuddy-duddies think Witt is wild, they ought to check out Calgary's downtown strip. Katarina and her feathers are positively tame compared to the things that go on down on Electric Avenue.

Witt does what she has to do. Figure skating is more entertainment than sport, and she knows how to entertain. She has a panache about her, flashing a little smile over here, throwing a sidewards glance over there. She is sultry and sexy. She knows it and she's not afraid to show it.

On Thursday night, she showed a coquettish, playful side as well, seemingly consumed by the fun she seemed to be having.

Katarina is performing from the moment she steps out on the ice for her warmups. She is a star, and people watch stars. She gives them plenty to see, feathers, smiles, anything that will draw them to her. She plays to the crowd and to the judges, which is, after all, the idea.

Witt is just 22 but she knows how all about mind games, on the ice and off. She made sure to watch Thomas' routine, and made sure Debi could see her watching.

"I was aware she watched," Thomas said. "I couldn't miss her — she was next to my coach. It's not unusual for Katarina to watch. I do it, too. You want to see. I don't think I'd stand there, though."

Was Witt trying a little psychological warfare? Thomas laughed at that suggestion and said, "I don't usually get psyched."

Witt watched the scoreboard with an icy stare as Thomas' marks were posted. This was not Katarina the carefree entertainer with the winning smile. This was Katarina the intense competitor, calculating just where she stood for Saturday night's long program.

Her prospects are good, even though she is second in the standings with 50 percent of the grade completed. Witt has not lost a long program since 1982 and you can expect her to saturate the Saddledome with all of her charm as she defends her Olympic title.

Technique is one thing. Witt performs the mechanical part of her craft as well as anybody. Where she excels is those little extras. She piles up points on style.

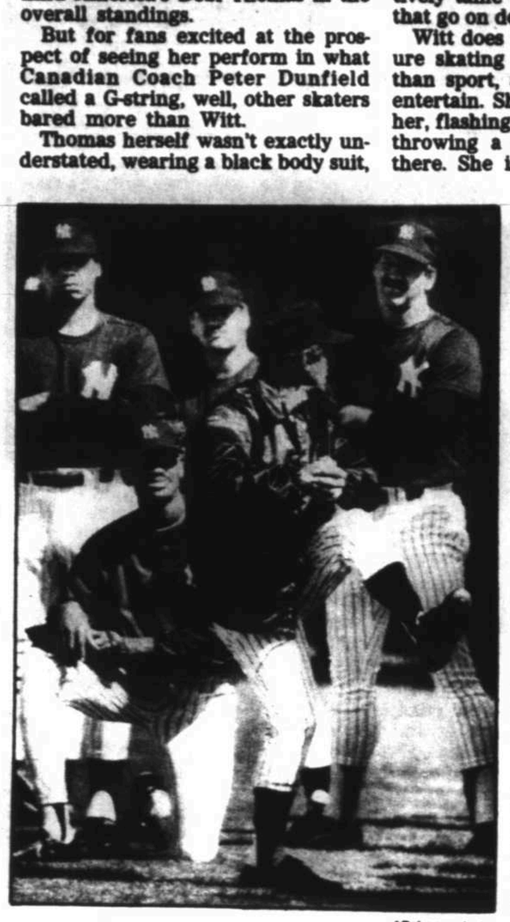

Witt had higher marks for presentation — eight 5.9s and one 5.8 — than she did for required elements in her two-minute program Thursday night. Thomas did not do nearly as well in that department. The disparity between the two skaters' grades irked Thomas' coach, Alex McGowan.

"There are seven male judges," he said dryly, as he compared Thomas' marks with Witt's. "Debi has her style and Katarina has her style."

For Thomas, that style is commonly stereotyped as athletic. For Witt, it is artistic. Whatever the difference, it is more than a few feathers.

Murray, Guerrero join clubs in Florida

Associated Press

Eddie Murray and Pedro Guerrero, two sluggers who are being counted on to reverse their teams' poor showings last year, worked out for the first time Friday.

Guerrero, who arrived Thursday at the Los Angeles Dodgers' complex in Vero Beach, Fla., pronounced himself fit and ready for a productive 1988, particularly since the Dodgers have added Kirk Gibson and Mike Davis from the American League to last year's punchless lineup.

Guerrero, who finished last season at first base after starting in the outfield, said he didn't care what position he played this season.

"I feel good," said Guerrero, who finished second in the National League in hitting last season with a .338 average even while the Dodgers finished fourth in the National League West. "I'm in good shape. I've been working out this winter. I'm just glad to be here."

Murray, who hit .277 with 30 homers and 91 RBI for the 67-95 Baltimore Orioles, seemed in just as good spirits after arriving in camp Thursday, although he wasn't talking to the press. He drove one ball over the scoreboard at the Orioles' Miami training stadium and Manager Cal Ripken said he was looking forward to a prime season by his slugging first baseman.

"Everybody looks to Eddie Murray because he's a guy who has hit 30 home runs and driven in 100 runs over his 11-year career," Ripken said. "Everybody here knows what he can do and what he means to this ballclub."

LINEUPS

Manager Davey Johnson of the Mets indicated that Dwight Gooden will be his opening day pitcher against the Montreal Expos April 4. The exhibition pitching rotation announced Friday has Gooden, 15-7 last year after missing two months for drug rehabilitation, starting the second game, March 6 against Boston.

INSPIRATIONAL SPEECHES

Manager Bob Rodgers of Montreal was a little more upbeat this season when he greeted his full squad.

"I told them that we can win it this year if we do the things we're supposed to," Rodgers said. "Last year, I told them that if everything works out, we should be able to compete.

"That's a big difference."

INJURY UPDATE

Montreal outfielder Tim Raines has tendinitis in his right shoulder and won't throw for about two weeks. Raines said he suffered the injury working out with some high school players near his Heathrow, Fla., home two weeks ago.

"I just aired it out too fast and I hurt myself, but it's no big deal," Raines said. "I won't be able to throw anybody out from left field for awhile, but I was never able to do that anyway."

Bruce Hurst, who had mononucleosis during the winter, and Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd, who had shoulder surgery last August, continued to impress observers at the Boston camp.

"Oil Can and Hurst threw the ball well, very well," Manager John McNamara said. "Their progress is very encouraging."

Baltimore reliever Don Aase, recovering from shoulder surgery, threw for 10 minutes on the sidelines and then pitched batting practice for another 10 minutes. It was the first time since May that Aase, who had 34 saves in 1986, has thrown to hitters. But he's not expected to be ready by opening day.

"I've been pleased he's been able to come right in and take his regular turn," said Ripken said. "He's on schedule with the rest of the pitchers."

CONTRACTS

Cleveland signed free agent first baseman-outfielder Terry Francona to a minor-league contract. Francona, who has a career average of .276 in six seasons, hit .227 for Cincinnati with three homers and 12 RBI. ... Seattle signed pitchers Scott Bankhead and Mike Trujillo to one-year contracts. Bankhead was 7-5 in 15 starts before injuring a shoulder last year. ... Cincinnati signed second baseman Jeff Treadway and reliever Pat Perry. Perry, obtained in a trade with St. Louis Aug. 31, was 5-2 with a 3.56 earned run average and two saves in 57 games for the two teams.

The Expos signed infielder Casey Candaele to a one-year contract. Candaele hit .272 with one homer and 23 RBI in 123 games as a rookie last year.

The Red Sox signed rookies John Leister, a right-handed pitcher, and Jody Reed, a shortstop. Leister had an 11-5 record at Pawtucket and 0-2 in eight appearances with Boston last year. Reed hit .296 for Pawtucket in the International League and .300 in nine games with the Red Sox.

Crenshaw's masterful 64 pulls him into tie for LA lead

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ben Crenshaw, an extremely disappointed runnerup in the Los Angeles Open a year ago, crafted a 7-under-par 64 Friday to share the second-round lead in the this year's tournament at the Riviera Country Club.

Crenshaw's masterful round put him in a tie with Jay Haas at 9-under 133 midway through the $750,000 event.

Haas, in a four-way tie for the lead at 65 after the opening round, shot a second-round 68.

Chip Beck, who also had a 65 the first day, shot a 69 to join three others at 134, one shot behind the leaders.

Last year at Riviera, Crenshaw made an 18-foot birdie putt on No. 18 Sunday to take a one-shot lead over T.C. Chen. But Chen then calmly rolled in a 16-footer to send the tournament into overtime.

Crenshaw missed a 3-foot par putt on the first playoff hole to give Chen the victory.

The 36-year-old Crenshaw, who likes the history-steeped Riviera course, appears poised to make another run at the LA Open title.

"I had nine birdies (during the second round); I never thought I could do that here," said Crenshaw, who has won 13 events since joining the PGA Tour in 1973.

"It's the first time this year I've seen some of my putts go in. I've been very inconsistent. It was an exceptional round for me."

Haas, who leads the PGA earnings list this year with $261,331, said: "I like my position here and I'm playing well. I've had good tournaments in the past when I started out well."

Also in the group with Beck at 134 were Ed Fiori, Donnie Hammond, Steve Lowery and Rick Pearson, an alternate who made it into the tournament only after Mark O'Meara pulled out Thursday.

Pearson, who made it into just three PGA tournaments last year and has won only $8,164 since he began playing on the Tour in 1982, fired his second consecutive 67.

Lowery, Fiori and Hammond each had second-round 68s. Hammond's round included a hole-in-one on the 238-yard fourth hole.

The final two rounds of the tournament, which has a $135,000 winner's prize, will be nationally televised by CBS Saturday and Sunday.

Struggling Hill leads by one

NAPLES, Fla. (AP) — Dave Hill struggled with his putter Friday but still overcame cool, windy weather to shoot a 4-under-par 68 for a one-stroke lead after one round of the $300,000 Aetna Challenge for Seniors.

Bob Charles, Bruce Devlin and Don Massengale were tied for second after shooting 69s at The Club at Pelican Bay.

Hill said he was dissatisfied with his putting, but still managed a 34s on both the front and back nines. Hill said he's one of the two best tee-to-green players on the PGA Seniors Tour.

"It's me and Orville Moody," said Hill, 50.

Three shots separated the top 10 players after the first round in the 54-hole event. Gary Player was alone at 70, with Gay Brewer, Bill Collins, Harold Henning, Gordon Jones and Larry Mowry at 71.

"It'll come down to Sunday," Hill said.

Charles, playing in a threesome with Hill, hit 17 of 18 fairways.

"I played quite steadily," the left-hander said. "If I wasn't on the green (in regulation), I was around the green within 30 feet of the hole."

Dale Douglass, who won last week's tournament at Tampa, overcame a quadruple-bogey 8 at the 392-yard fourth hole and was tied with Bob Goalby at even-par 72.

"That's a great comeback," Hill said. "Today it definitely played the toughest of any of the holes. I mean I hit a good drive and then took a four-wood and banged its brains loose."

Most top athletes not in drugs

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) — Six percent of the world's top athletes are using illegal drugs, the head of the International Olympic Committee's medical commission said Friday.

Prince Alexandre de Merode of Belgium made the statement at a news conference where the IOC and the Canadian government announced plans to co-host the first international conference on drugs in sport.

The aim of the June 27-29 meeting in Montreal is to draft an Olympic Charter against drugs, which will be submitted to the full IOC for approval next September in Seoul, South Korea.

The charter would call for universal testing and uniform penalties for those who resort to drugs to enhance their performance.

"It's a major breakthrough," said Canadian Sport Minister Otto Jelinek, a former Olympic figure skater who proposed the initiative after toughening Canada's penalties against athletes who use drugs.

With two days to go in the Winter Games at Calgary, random IOC urine testing has found only one of more than 1,700 participating athletes with an illegal substance.

Polish ice hockey player Jaroslav Morawiecki was banned from the Games, and his team deprived of two points it earned by defeating France, after an excess of the steroid testosterone was found in his system.

Polish officials defended the athlete, who pleaded his innocence, and suggested that drinks in the dressing room might have been doctored. They did not say by whom.

The prince said IOC statistics last year showed 2 percent of 39,000 athletes tested at random were using illegal drugs, about 780 athletes.

SMU hopes to end 12-year wait

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

It has been 21 years since Southern Methodist has claimed an undisputed Southwest Conference basketball title, but the Mustangs are just two games away from doing it this year.

SMU, 22-5, can claim at least a tie for the crown Saturday in Austin against the Texas Longhorns, who have won seven of their last nine games to edge into a third-place tie with Houston and Baylor.

SWC

The Mustangs are 11-3 in league play, followed by Arkansas at 9-5. Baylor, Houston and Texas are 8-5.

SMU's last piece of an SWC title came in 1972, when the Mustangs tied with Texas.

"We know how tough it is to play in Austin, and Texas really has it together," SMU Coach Dave Bliss said. "The Longhorns have developed a very tough inside game."

SMU earned a critical 82-80 road victory over Texas Tech Wednesday night, the Mustangs' first victory in Lubbock since 1984.

"That win should give us a lot of confidence," Bliss said. "It was one of the best games we played all year. We've always had trouble in Lubbock."

SMU has already clinched its third 20-game season in the last five years. The Mustangs have proved to be tough road warriors, winning 11 of 15 games away from Moody Coliseum.

SMU hosts Texas Christian Wednesday night in the Ponies' SWC regular season finale. Bliss has scheduled a March 6 game against Chicago State to keep his team sharp for the SWC Post-Season Classic.

Arkansas has league games left against Rice Saturday, then road games at Houston on March 3 and at Texas Tech on March 6. The Razorbacks have not been a good road team.

In other games Saturday, Baylor is at Houston in a 1 p.m. regionally televised (Raycom) matchup and Texas Tech is at Texas A&M.

Arkansas, 18-6, and Baylor, 17-9, have chances for 20-win seasons. Baylor last won 20 games in 1947-1948, when the Bears advanced to the NCAA championship game before losing 58-42 to Kentucky.

Baylor's Michael Williams needs just 28 points to break into the SWC's all-time top 20 scoring list.

Other SWC records include Texas A&M 6-7, Texas Tech 4-9 and TCU and Rice, each 3-11. The last-place team doesn't qualify for the Post-Season Classic.

Olympics offer too much talk

By RICK WARNER
P Sports Writer

Too much talk. Not enough insight.

That's what we've been getting from ABC announcers at the Winter Olympics.

With a few notable exceptions, the commentators in Calgary have not turned in medal-winning performances. More often than not, they detract from the event rather than enhance it.

The worst offenders.

Jim McKay (host) — Has acted more like a cheerleader than a reporter. When the U.S. team was knocked out of the hockey competition, he immediately began talking about the "amazing number" of events still to come. He also defended the frequent cutaways from U.S. hockey games, saying ABC was in Calgary "to cover the Olympics, not just hockey." If ABC didn't want viewers to focus on the U.S. team, then why did it arrange to show all the games in prime-time?

Gary Bender (speed skating) — The king of cliches doesn't know when to quit. Last weekend, he called U.S. speed skater Eric Flaim "a future superstar" about 20 times. His second favorite description of Flaim was "confident, almost cocky," which he used about 15 times.

Lynn Swann (bobsled) — A graduate of the "gee-whiz" school of broadcasting. Rarely tells us anything we don't already know.

Mike Adamle (cross-country skiing) — See above.

Sam Posey (luge) — Great vocabulary, but what's he talking about? I'm still trying to figure out what he meant when he called Bonny Warner the "Paul Newman of luge."

Peggy Fleming (figure skating) — One of the few announcers who doesn't talk too much. The problem is, she apparently has nothing to say. Her idea of in-depth commentary: "I love the music."

Frank and Kathie Lee Gifford (hosts) — They look nice in front of a fireplace, but what else do they contribute to the late-night show? Very little except adjectives like "terrific, wonderful and amazing."

Keith Jackson (host) — Keith is a hoss-and-a-half on college football, but he's lost at the Olympics. His down-home expressions would be perfect for the Calgary Stampede, though.

Bob Beattie (Alpine skiing) — His shrill voice makes you want to wear earplugs.

David Santee (figure skating) — His specialty is pushing a microphone into the face of skaters seconds after they finish performing and asking, "How do you feel?" Tired, David, tired.

IN THIS broadcasting desert, a few flowers have bloomed:

Ken Dryden (hockey) — ABC's best Olympics analyst. The former NHL goalie has a knack for explaining the game in laymen's terms. And he doesn't pull any punches. Even when the U.S. was winning, he pointed out the team's lack of defense and concentration.

Al Michaels (hockey) — It isn't easy pronouncing all those foreign names, but he does it with ease.

Al Trautwig (Alpine skiing) — Lucid, literate and quick-witted. When favorites Pirmin Zurbriggen and Alberto Tomba bombed in the super giant slalom, he said, "This big Tomba-Zurbriggen shootout turns out to be a shootout with corks in the guns." After the downhill was postponed, he quipped, "They call this the white circus, but the circus will not be held today."

Lendl heads strong Italian Open field

ROME (AP) — Ivan Lendl, the world's top-ranked player, will head one of the strongest fields in years in this year's Italian Open tennis championships April 3-May 15.

Organizers said entries will also include defending champion Mats Wilander, Boris Becker and Yannick Noah, and that Kent Carlsson, Andres Gomez, Joachim Nystrom and Henry Leconte are also expected to play.

Heart O' Texas...they are taking it out of Waco

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

It will be semi-sad to see Heart O' Texas Coliseum go.

You could always count on an "experience" every time you covered a Baylor basketball game in the haunted edifice.

Birds would fly around looking for a perch; rats would saunter by searching for food; and cockroaches, resembling small, arrogant tanks, demanded the right-of-way.

Regrettably, there were never any bat sightings in the spacious, dim-lit, building which was made for rodeos, not basketball. It would have made great sports page headlines: "Vampire Bat Buzzes Crowd During Baylor Basketball Game."

But there were cats, born and raised in the coliseum who would amuse Sports Information Director Maxey Parish by prowling the stands after games in search of popcorn and hot dog wrappers and perhaps successfully stalking a mouse or two.

Baylor plays its last scheduled college basketball game in H.O.T. on March 5th with the University of Texas as the guest team.

It's appropriate that Texas be the opponent because the Longhorns suffered some deep miseries in the airish, dank building where you could catch a cold even if you had just been cured of one.

Perhaps the worst night was when Mike Wacker, center of an unbeaten Longhorns' team, slipped on a wet spot and so tore up his knee that it ended any chance of an NBA career.

Like a curse from some Egyptian tomb, the voodooed Longhorns sank to a miserable season, giving Abe Lemons' detractors their chance to fire him.

The next year when Texas visited, one Baylor coach wanted to shake the 'Horns by putting a black X where Wacker fell. But more tasteful and cooler heads prevailed.

Spooky things always happened at H.O.T. Of course, there was the first rain delay in college basketball history this year when the roof leaked, holding up play.

But that was small trick-or-treat stuff compared to one game I remember years ago involving the visiting Texas A&M Aggies.

I believe an Aggie was at the free throw line when a late-running Baylor tuba player crashed his automobile into the power pole outside.

It plunged H.O.T into darker darkness.

The place had always been so dim that rival coaches threatened to issue their players coal miners' lamps.

Of course, A&M Coach Shelby Metcalf was fit to be fried. The lights never were restored to full power. The Aggies finally agreed to play the game out under eerie, twilight zone conditions. They lost.

"You had to listen for the swish to know you made one," Metcalf quipped.

Powers failures were always numerous in H.O.T.

More than one deadline was blown by electrical outages which sent stories to editorial graveyards. One sports writer slam-dunked his chair into the stands in one outage outrage.

More recently, the Baylor mascot knocked a Dallas radio off the air briefly by stumbling over an electrical cord.

Just getting into the building could be fun. I recall arriving at a game early for prime position on gravel within several blocks of the coliseum on a rainy evening.

Feeling smug, I advanced to within 25 yards of the building before almost disappearing in a mud hole large enough to lose a Shetland pony.

Baylor always had a big advantage in this "pit."

The Bears at least knew where the dim rims could be found. Crowd seating on the floor also gave the Bears a huge psychological edge.

But Baylor was hurt in the recruting wars because of the decaying coliseum.

Former Coach Jim Haller always liked to talk about school academics and such on recruiting visits. He knew he was dead if he had to take the kid to the barn.

Baylor's "dressing room" to this day is a trailer parked at one end of the coliseum.

Once a goal weighing hundreds of pounds fell to the floor only 20 feet from where Pam Davis' Baylor womens' team was exercising. Another time a retaining wall collapsed just yards away from where spectators were seated.

At least the building had a heart: Nobody was ever killed in it.

The Bears' new coliseum is expected to be ready for Coach Gene Iba next fall. It's going to be a compact 9,000-seater which will put the fans within easy shouting distance of the opponents' ear pans.

Baylor recruiting should be a lot easier, but opponents will never have the fear they had amidst the spiders and cobwebs in H.O.T.

It was the pit of pits, but on March 5th will become a nostalgic page in Southwest Conference basketball history.

MURRAY—

Adds Bobby: "By that time, our pro had died, and I went into the game on a learning-on-the-job basis. It's no way to learn golf. I had some terrible practice habits. It was not that I didn't practice, it's that I was practicing the wrong things. I was building bad habits into my swing."

Lanny's game was built on enormous confidence and a zest for the victory. Bobby's game was based on defending himself and a quest for money. "Winning is everything to Lanny," his brother explains. "Lanny cost himself a lot of money over the years trying to win. He never cost himself victories, just money." Lanny's game was predicated on the belief the next card was always going to be an ace. Bobby's was more commercial.

UNTIL A COUPLE of years ago. It was then Bobby took his game to a new teacher, Peter Kostis. He didn't get a new swing so much as a new attitude. Bobby began to try to knock the course into the ropes or clear out of the ring. He went, so to speak, from a club fighter to a contender.

He would like to become a champion.

Lanny is not in immediate peril of becoming Bobby's brother, but Bobby is one of the few players who has won more than $1 million without winning a tournament. He was fourth in the U.S. Open last year. Only the good players make the leader board in that tournament. He was only one shot off the lead after three rounds at the PGA. In short, he is one of the best. His long-iron game is considered one of the finest on tour.

The Wadkins brothers are each other's best fans. That doesn't mean Bobby wouldn't like to win this week at Riviera and maybe once or twice more so that he can step on a green and not be somebody else's brother. And maybe even, one day, have Lanny come in sight and have someone say, "Who's that?" And have the answer come: "Bobby Wadkins' brother. Can't think of his name at the moment." Or, maybe, when Lanny goes to a club party, a fan will come up to him and say, "Wadkins? Oh, how's your brother, the golfer?"

Legend has it that, long ago, the dogwood came into bloom on Calvary and that, afterwards, a cross was implanted into the flower itself, to remain for all time. You can see it if you look closely; rust brown against the white of each individual blossom.

Many of us carry crosses, faint like the dogwood's emblem but with us, nevertheless. Somehow, in the Lenten season, we become particularly conscious of them and of our need for help — a certain kind of help, that can be found only through the things we learn in Church.

The Church doesn't pretend to banish our cares and woes. But its teachings realistically consider the experiences of life itself. No matter what our personal cross may be, we seem able to bear its burden with more strength.

Lent is a wonderful time in which to begin making church going a regular part of your life — if you haven't already.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Four part AIDS series scheduled by FUMC

A four session series dealing with AIDS titled "The AIDS Crisis from Four Perspectives" will be presented during the March meetings of Wednesday Night Live at First United Methodist Church, Main Street at Illinois Avenue.

Presentors and topics for Wednesday's session are Lamar Hebert, assistant superintendent of instruction for the Midland Independent School District, "State Mandates...Why We Have AIDS Instruction in the Schools"; Maridell Fryer, director of secondary education, MISD, "Development and Application of AIDS Program in the High Schools"; and Jan Artley, coordinator of secondary science, MISD, "Development and Application of AIDS Program in the Junior Highs."

For the March 9 session, speakers will be from Midland Memorial Hospital. Their names and topics are Maudie Raines, RN, director of education, "Historical Development of AIDS, Statistics"; Mimi McKnight, RN, director of infectious disease control, "Hospital's Perspective of AIDS in the Permian Basin"; and Janet Cortroul, RN, CCU nurse, education program, "Direct Care of the AIDS Patient."

The March 23 program will be presented by Hospice of Midland. Speakers and their topics are Mark Mercer, hospice counselor and social worker, "Psychological Involvement of the AIDS Patient and Family"; and Carol Armstrong, interim director of Hospice, "Hospice Care of the AIDS Patient in the Home Setting."

The program concludes March 30 with the Rev. Bill Weir, minister of program and education for First UMC, talking about "The Church's Perspective of the AIDS Crisis — What We Can Do."

The Wednesday Night Live Series is open to the public and child care is available. Dinner is served at a nominal fee at 5:15 p.m. in the fellowship hall. Class begins at 6:15 p.m. and lasts an hour. A $3 fee will be charged for the four-week course. March 16 is being omitted because of spring break.

Other courses in the Wednesday Night Live Series are Lenten Bible Study, led by Marie Coleman, and "Making Fabric Baskets," led by Becky James.

For more information call the church.

Kelview helps children

"How to Help Your Children Say No to Sexual Pressure," an eight session video seminar for parents of all ages, is being sponsored by the Kelview Heights Baptist Church, North Big Spring Street at Scharbauer Drive. The video seminar, presented at 5:45 p.m. Sundays, is in its second week.

"Statistics show that more than 50 percent of American teenagers between 15 and 19 have had sexual relations," says a news release from the church.

"Teenage pregnancy and sexually transmitted diseases are vital concerns, with abortion or even suicide as potential consequences. Parents often feel that they are powerless to intervene, but there are ways parents can help to prevent premature sexual involvement."

The video features Josh McDowell, a well-known Christian speaker who usually gives talks to high school and college groups.

Topics in the videos include why young people become sexually active, how to help them stay out of potential pressure situations, building self-esteem and the ability to say no and how to reinforce positive influences.

The church's pastor, the Rev. Frank Johnson, invites the public to attend.

FCC opens doors to WELL

The First Christian Church, 1301 W. Louisiana Ave., invites the public to attend its Wednesday Evening Laity Learning, referred to as WELL, from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. on Wednesdays.

Study topics over the next few weeks include Family Medical Emergency, Great Decisions of 1988 of National and International Concern and Lenten Bible Study.

For more information call 682-2541.

Choirs to present musical

The Junior Choir and Carol Choir of First United Methodist Church will present the musical "The Story-Tellin' Man" by Ken Medema at 7:15 p.m. Sunday in the church's sanctuary, Main Street at Ohio Avenue downtown.

The program is directed by Jane Kisner, associate director of Music Ministries.

"'The Story-Tellin' Man' is about a teacher who told lots of stories," says a release from the church. "Some were happy, some were pensive and sad. Some were full of adventure, some were quiet and thought provoking. Some made obvious points, others were difficult to understand."

The musical tells the story of four parables — "The Lost Coin," "The Lost Sheep," "The Prodigal Son" and "The Good Samaritan."

Mary Beck serves as the accompanist for these two choirs.

No admission will be charged. Although small children will enjoy the performance, child care will be provided for infants and toddlers.

Church greets speaker

Gorker

Bishop John G. Gorker of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints is the guest speaker for the 10 a.m. adult Sunday School class and the 11 a.m. sermon on "Faith, Repentance and Baptism" at the central YMCA, the meeting place of the local church.

Gorker has been assigned to the office of estate and financial planning since July of 1983.

"While in Midland, he has assisted interested persons in trusts, wills and estate planning," says a news release from the church.

The office of estate and financial planning is located in the central Professional Building in downtown Independence, Mo., with world headquarters of the church located in the Auditorium, Independence.

Gorker began his series Wednesday at the High Sky Children's Ranch. Gorker's theme talk was "Restoration Scriptures Witness of Christ." Thursday evening gorker continued the series with the theme "The Three Minds. Friday's sermon was titled "Life After Death and Eternal Judgement."

The series continues in the activity room at High Sky at 12:30 p.m. today with the topic "Introducing Our Friends to the Church" and at 2:30 p.m. with "Conducting Cottage Meetings." A potluck dinner is planned for 6:30 p.m. followed by his talk on "The Church's World Missions" at 7:30 p.m.

The public is invited to attend.

Chartered group meets

Eaves

The Midland Outreach Women's Aglow Fellowship will have its first meeting since receiving its charter.

The meeting, set for Tuesday at the Holiday Inn T-Dome, will begin with a salad supper at 6:30 p.m. Cost is $4.

Pat Eaves, a frequent speaker at Aglow and Bible Studies, will give her testimony beginning at 7:15 p.m. Along with her husband, she owns Classic Hair Designs. She has been married 29 years and is the mother of three daughters and has three grandchildren.

Aglow is an interdenominational group of women who reach out to share the good news of the gospel with other women.

For more information call 682-8386.

Group helps single parents

The Singles Ministry of Golf Course Road Church of Christ has begun a support group for single parents which continues through May 8.

The group, conducted by Tom Vermillion, singles' minister for the church, will consist of instructional time as well as sharing and encouragement.

Topics addressed will include discipline in the single parent home, building self-esteem, balancing personal needs, cooperating with a former spouse and blended families.

The group will meet from 5:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. Sunday's in the church's family center.

No charge will be made for the group. Interested parties are invited to attend. For more information call Vermillion, 694-8836.

Grace welcomes speaker

The Rev. Dr. Paul Alexander is the guest speaker Wednesday at Grace Presbyterian Church.

Alexander, who has served as dean of the Science College at Tunghai University since 1979, is presenting a program following the 5:45 p.m. Family Night Supper.

His educational background includes a bachelor's degree in biology from the University of Indianapolis and a doctorate in zoology with a specialization in endocrinology from Indiana University. He is a graduate of Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary.

Alexander served as assistant professor of biology at Northwestern State University of Louisiana prior to becoming a missionary in Taiwan in 1958.

During their most recent term of office, Alexander and his wife, Lucille, have been leading marriage communication retreats and workshops in English and Mandarin for churches, students and non-Christian groups. In the last year, they have designed a Family Wellness Center at Tunghai University and Alexander has served as the new center's director.

Midlander answers call

Barrow

Midlander David William Barrow, 19, has accepted a call to serve as a missionary in the Brazil, Brazilia Mission for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Wylie R. Barrow Jr., Barrow is a member of the Midland Second Ward of the LDS Church.

Barrow will enter the Mission Training Center in Provo, Utah, March 16 in preparation to learn the Portuguese language.

Like all LDS missionaries, he will receive no pay for his time spent in teaching the gospel of Jesus Christ. He is supported entirely by his own savings and help from family and friends.

Born in Lafayette, La., Barrow moved to Sulphur, La., and Houston before making Midland his home along with his family six years ago.

A graduate of Lee High School in 1986, Barrow played on the varsity baseball team while there. He worked with the children in the Casa de Amigos program and attended Midland College.

He is the fourth son of the Barrow family to serve a two-year mission for the LDS Church. When he returns, he plans to attend Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge.

A Sacrament Meeting will be held in his honor at 9 a.m. Sunday in the chapel at the corner of Crestgate and Gateway, north of Loop 250.

Visitors are welcome.

Marriage Enrichment topic

A series of films entitled "Marriage Enrichment," originally scheduled to begin Feb. 24, will be presented for eight Wednesday evenings beginning Wednesday at Golf Course Road Church of Christ's Family Center.

The film series, the work of Dr. Carl Brecheen and Dr. Paul Faulkner, has been seen by more than 11.5 million people in the United States.

Brecheen, a college professor in the field of family studies for 20 years in Abilene, is a member of the National Council of Family Relations and co-author of the book "What Every Family Needs."

Faulkner, a supervisor for counselor certification for the American Association of Marriage and Family Therapy, serves as the director of the Marriage and Family Institute, Abilene, and has been featured on his own film series based on his book "How to Make Things Right When Everything Goes Wrong."

The first film, "Made for Each Other," deals with mate selection and adjustment. It will be shown at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

No offerings will be taken, and child care will be provided.

Female prayer retreat set

An all-female Prayer Retreat, entitled "The Church Starts Here," is being held Friday and Saturday, March 5, at Circle Six Ranch, Stanton.

"We want to honor the Lord by learning about mission efforts and by praying for missions and other matters," says a release from Crestview Baptist Church.

Registration begins at 6 p.m. Friday. Cost for the weekend is $18 which includes lodging and three meals. Those attending must bring their own linens or sleeping bag and towels.

The retreat is open to all women. Groups will be meeting at Crestview Baptist Church at 5:30 p.m. Friday to travel together to the retreat. For more information or to register call the church office, 694-7701.

Evangelist pays visit

Wood

Evangelist Gary Wood is conducting services at Living Way Foursquare Church, 415 Alta St., Sunday through Wednesday.

Wood, who lives in Houston, was attending Wayland Baptist College, when he was critically injured in an automobile accident and died, says a news release from Living Way Foursquare Church.

"Gary spent 20 minutes in heaven and was commissioned by Jesus to make him real to people wherever he went," the release says. "His vocal chords were severed in the crash and doctors said he would never speak or sing again. God miraculously healed Gary and promosed him that wherever he told his story, people would be saved, healed and delivered."

Service times are 10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. Sunday and 7 p.m. Monday through Wednesday. A nursery will be provided.

State workshop scheduled

"Out of Many, One: Ethnic Relations in the Body of Christ" is the theme of the annual statewide workshop of the Texas Baptist Christian Life Commission, Monday through Wednesday, at Brentwood Baptist Church, Houston.

The Rev. Charles Adams, pastor of Hartford Memorial Baptist Church, Detroit, Mich., will bring the theme interpretation throughout the three-day conference.

Seminar topics include "Challenges and Opportunities in the Multi-Ethnic Church," "Inter-Ethnic Cooperative Ministries," "Second Generation Ministries for Immigrant/Refugee Families," "Immigration and Legal Issues" and "Developing Skills in Community Involvement," "Blended Families/Step Parenting," "Drug Abuse Prevention," "Ministry to Persons with AIDS," "Crucial Issues for the 71st Legislature," "Marriage Enrichment" and "Becoming Better Parents."

Panel discussions are scheduled on "The Meaning of Oneness," "Overcoming Barriers in Church and Denomination," "Going Beyond Rhetoric" and "Including Everyone in Church."

Registration fee for the conference is $15 which includes child care for all sessions as requested. For more information call the Christian Life Commission, 1-214-720-0550.

Christ-a-Thon scheduled

DALLAS — Healing Hands Ministry is presenting a National Cycling for Christ-a-Thon April 23 at Euless. Registration is being held March 1 through April 9.

The purpose is to, a news release says, "offer all denominations the opportunity to fellowship together" and to "promote positive health practices within the Body of Christ."

The proceeds go toward purchasing medical equipment for Healing Hands Christian Medical Center.

The National Christian Olympics will hold three events annually — Cycling for Christ, Christian Water Olympics in July and Running for Jesus 10K in October.

For more information write to Healing Hands Ministry, P.O. Box 610949, Dallas, Texas 75261, or call 1-214-570-3044 Monday through Friday.

Teresa to be honored

NEW YORK (AP) — Mother Teresa, founder of the Missionaries of Charity and winner of the 1979 Nobel Peace Prize, is to receive Greek Orthodoxy's Athenagoras Human Rights Award at a banquet today.

The award, named for the late Eastern Orthodox Patriarch Athenagorus, is made by the Archons of the Order of St. Andrew, an organization of Greek Orthodox laymen.

Former President Jimmy Carter received the award last year.

LIFESCOPE

Planning A Big Feast This Year? Lifescope Says, "Why Not Invite A Stranger To Join You?"

Religion that God our Father accepts as pure and faultless is this: to look after orphans and widows in their distress and to keep oneself from being polluted by the world. Dear brothers, how can you claim that you belong to the Lord Jesus Christ, the Lord of glory, if you show favoritism to rich people and look down on poor people? Listen to me, dear brothers: God has chosen poor people to be rich in faith, and the Kingdom of Heaven is theirs, for that is the gift God has promised to all those who love Him. Yes, indeed, it is good when you truly obey our Lord's command, "You must love and help your neighbors just as much as you love and take care of yourself." What's the use of saying that you have faith and are Christians if you aren't proving it by helping others? Will that kind of faith save anyone? If you have a friend who is in need of food and clothing, and you say to him, "Well, good-bye and God bless you; stay warm and eat hearty," and then don't give him clothes or food, what good does that do? It isn't enough just to have faith. And let us not get tired of doing what is right, for after a while we will reap a harvest of blessing.

And remember this - if you give little, you will get little. So let each one give as he purposes in his heart, not grudgingly or of necessity; for God loves a cheerful giver. God is able to make it up to you by giving you everything you need and more, so that there will not only be enough for your own needs, but plenty left over to give joyfully to others. It is as the Scriptures say: "The godly man gives generously to the poor. His good deeds will be an honor to him forever." So, two good things happen as a result of your gifts - those in need are helped, and they overflow with thanks to God.

Prayer Day begins 2nd century

World Day of Prayer begins its second century of celebration Thursday. Locally, World Day of Prayer observances will be held in the sanctuary of First Christian Church, 1301 W. Louisiana Ave., at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

A prayer movement of global dimensions, World Day of Prayer is a worldwide expression of mutual prayer and Christian unity which began 101 years ago in the United States as a day of prayer for mission.

Today, it has expanded to being a common day of prayer for thousands of Christians in 170 countries and regions of the world. The same theme and worship materials, translated into hundreds of languages and dialects, are used worldwide.

"In many countries, the event serves as a catalyst for women to come together to bring about changes in their lives," says a news release from Church Women United. Since it's founding in 1941, CWU has become the official sponsor of World Day of Prayer in the United States and has assumed responsibility for the preparation and distribution of World Day of Prayer resources and materials.

The theme for the 101st World Day of Prayer is "Open Doors." Written by prostestant and Roman Catholic women from Brazil, the theme reflects the background and concerns of South American women who are struggling to achieve greater freedom and to elevate the quality of life for themselves and for all people.

CWU is an ecumenical movement that brings protestant, catholic and orthodox women together into one Christian community of prayer, advocacy and service. It represents a broad spectrum of religious tradition, race, age, economic status and ethnic background and works through a national unit, 52 state units, including greater Washington, D.C., and Puerto Rico, and 1,800 local units.

World Day of Prayer offerings make possible, in part, the mission of CWU, including the Intercontinental Grants for Mission Program that funds national and international self-development and teaching projects for women, as well as community services and disaster relief at home and abroad.

Court won't delay Mecham's trial

Mecham

NATION

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Arizona's Supreme Court on Friday refused to delay the start of Gov. Evan Mecham's immpeachment trial on Monday but said it would consider blocking the proceeding once it is under way.

The ruling came in an emergency session during which the governor's lawyers cited danger to his constitutional rights and the justices expressed concern about breaching the separation of judicial and legislative powers.

The high court said it would decide on Tuesday whether to issue an injunction against it.

In another development, Mecham's chief attorney has withdrawn from Mecham's case.

Thomas Crowe, another attorney for the first-term Republican, had told the high court delay that Mecham's rights would be violated if an impeachment trial were held before related criminal charges were heard in court.

John Ludin, representing the Senate, told the justices they were "being asked to enter an arena that has never been entered into by any court in this nation."

The justices indicated by questions that they were reluctant to interfere with legislative matters in light of the state constitution's separation of powers.

"I DON'T think one can say that fundamental rights of fair play don't apply to impeachment proceedings. But who decides what is fair play? Isn't it the Senate that decides what the rules are?" said Vice Chief Justice Stanley Feldman.

Feldman said he believed that the framers of the constitution "wanted to keep us out of" matters involving legislative bodies.

Feldman presided place of Chief Justice Frank X. Gordon, who has removed himself from such matters because he will preside over the impeachment trial.

Meanwhile, the Arizona Civil Liberties Union filed a friend-of-the-court brief arguing that Mecham's right to a fair trial on criminal charges of concealing a $350,000 campaign loan would be violated if the Senate proceeding were held first.

"We are taking no position on the impeachment," said ACLU lawyer Alice Bendheim. "But we are asking that the state Supreme Court ensure that Governor Mecham gets due process."

Senators, who previously delayed the trial's start a week, refused earlier this week to give Crowe and Washington attorney Jerris Leonard more time to prepare the governor's defense.

MECHAM WAS impeached Feb. 5 on a 46-14 House vote. Several days later the House approved 23 impeachment articles, the equivalent of an indictment in a criminal case. They outlined details of three broad charges against the first-term Republican: that he concealed a $350,000 loan to his 1986 campaign, misused $90,000 from the governor's protocol fund by lending it to his auto dealership, and tried to thwart an investigation of an alleged death threat by a state official.

Murray Miller, who has represented Mecham since October, withdrew from the case abruptly, saying Friday that he decided late Thursday night to drop out.

He said Leonard was now in charge of the defense. But he expressed uncertainty at whether Leonard, who was hired by the governor Tuesday, could be prepared to proceed on Monday.

However, Leonard said, "I think Evan Mecham is entitled to the best representation he can get. I don't say this braggadociously at all, but if he feels he wants me, he should be entitled to have the lawyer of his choice."

Miller declined to elaborate on his reasons for bowing out but he said he hoped senators would not suspect he had deceived them about his role in the case. As late as Wednesday night, he said,"I was fully in charge of the case and defending the governor."

Senate Majority leader Robert Usdane, a Republican, said he suspected the change of lawyers was planned and was a delaying tactic by Mecham.

"Anything to try and tie this thing up until May 17th," he said, referring to the date when the Republican governor faces a recall election. "We are not going to do that."

SENATE MINORITY Leader Alan Stephens, a Democrat, said, "I see no reason to delay."

"I think it is absolutely disgusting and an outrage...," said Assistant Minority Leader Leia Alston. "I think it's part of the governor's strategy to continue delays."

Miller, denying any devious actions, said, "My main concern is that the governor gets a fair legal shake."

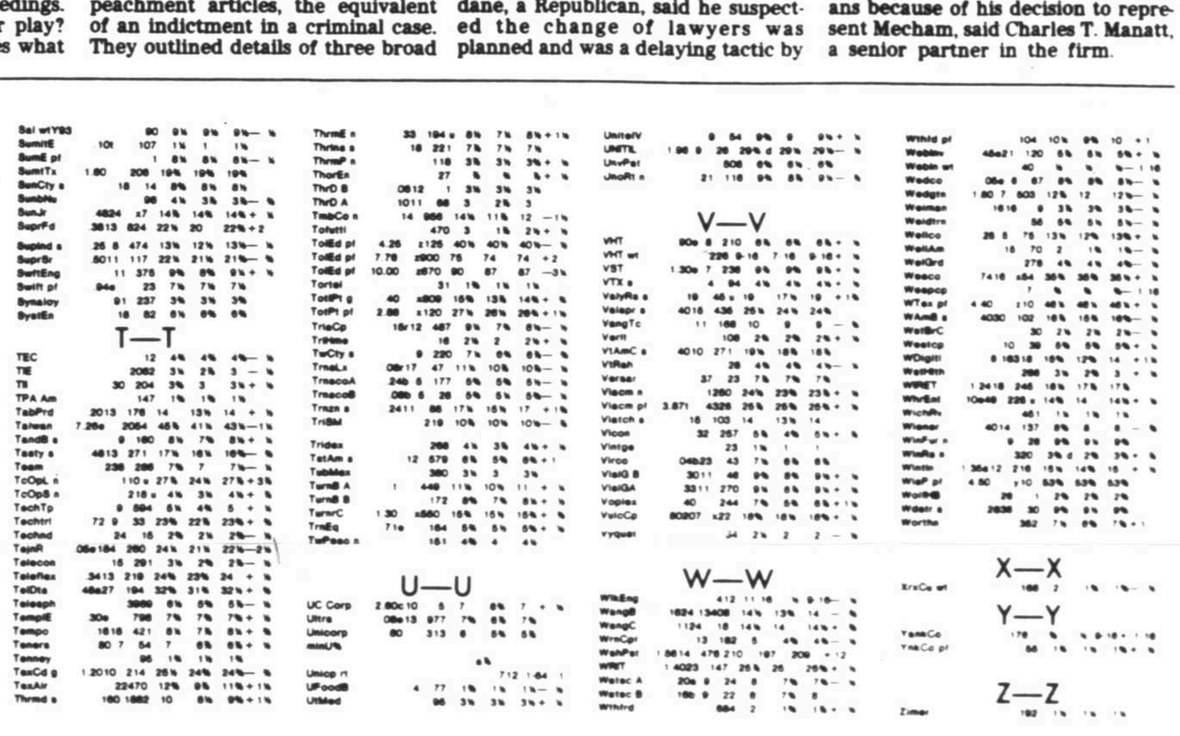

Mecham did not immediately return a telephone call Friday from The Associated Press, but The Arizona Daily Star of Tucson on Friday quoted him as saying: "Murray withdrew from the case. We parted friendly, but that's really all. You'll have to ask him why."

Impeachment prosecutor William French said Miller will be required to submit a motion on Monday seeking Senate permission to withdraw from the case. French said he may oppose the motion if he believes Miller's withdrawal might be used for a later claim that the new attorneys did not have time to prepare for the trial.

Leonard was in his office but sent word through a secretary that he was too busy to talk to a reporter who visited his office Friday.

Leonard has resigned from the Washington law firm of Manatt, Phelps, Rothenberg, Tunney and Evans because of his decision to represent Mecham, said Charles T. Manatt, a senior partner in the firm.

Gary Wood was outstanding as a soloist for three years in New Mexico and was preparing himself to preach and sing the gospel by attending Wayland Baptist College when he was critically injured in an automobile accident and died. Gary spent 20 minutes in heaven and was commissioned by Jesus to make Him real to people wherever he went. His vocal chords were severed in the crash and doctors said he would never speak or sing again. God miraculously healed Gary and promised him that wherever he told his story, people would be saved, healed and delivered.
Gary received the Baptism in The Holy Spirit after attending the 1979 Southern Baptist Charismatic Conference where Dr. Howard Conatser had him give his testimony. While pastoring and traveling, Gary has seen God heal leukemia, cancer, blindness, arthritis, deafness and all manner of sickness and disease.

Judge rules astronaut's widow can't sue government

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The widow of Challenger astronaut Michael Smith cannot sue the government for $1.5 billion in damages because her husband was on military duty when the space shuttle exploded, killing him and six others, a federal judge has ruled.

U.S. District Judge Patricia Fawsett cited earlier court decisions holding that military personnel or their dependents could not sue the government for injury or death while on active service.

Smith, the Challenger's pilot, was a Navy captain who was assigned to NASA in 1981.

"Smith's death occurred during activity incident to his military service," the judge said in removing the federal government as a defendant in the suit filed by Jane J. Smith.

The judge also agreed with government lawyers who argued that military personnel "receive generous statutory veterans' disability and death benefits."

Mrs. Smith's lawyers had argued that her husband was not on regular military assignment and had no military duties at the time of his death.

The order, filed this week in U.S. District Court in Orlando, maintained Morton Thiokol Inc. as the principal defendant in the civil lawsuit. Morton Thiokol built the solid-fuel booster rocket blamed for the explosion that destroyed the space shuttle on liftoff at Cape Canaveral on Jan. 28, 1986.

The shuttle fleet has been grounded since then.

The families of the other six victims have accepted financial settlements, four from Morton Thiokol and the government and two from Morton Thiokol alone.

Ms. Fawsett also dismissed one count in the Smith lawsuit seeking to bar Morton Thiokol from supplying NASA with any other booster rockets. The court, she said, had no jurisdiction in any of the counts involving the federal government.

In a separate action on Thursday, the judge denied a request by Mrs. Smith and her attorneys to transfer her lawsuit from Orlando to the federal court in Richmond, Va. The judge did not explain the order.

Mrs. Smith had sought to move the case because of a heavy caseload in the court system here and because she now lives in Virginia Beach, Va.

Kerry Nesbit, a spokeswoman for Mrs. Smith's lawyer, William F. Maready, said the lawyer was considering appealing the judge's order Monday dismissing the federal government from the lawsuit.

Another defendant named in the Smith lawsuit is Lawrence B. Mulloy, manager of NASA's solid booster rocket program at Marshall Space Flight Center at the time of the Challenger disaster. Federal attorneys have filed a motion seeking his removal from the case, but Ms. Fawsett has issued no decision.

U.S. Justice Department spokeswoman Amy Brown said the government contends that Mulloy was acting in an official capacity for an agency of the government, and therefore cannot be sued.

Engineer says another shuttle disaster possible

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A former Morton Thiokol engineer who tried to stop the fatal launch of the space shuttle Challenger says another shuttle disaster is possible because what he feels is a poor redesign job.

"The shuttle's return flight is not going to be a safe one," Roger Boisjoly told student engineers Thursday during a speech on professional ethics in Oklahoma City.

Morton Thiokol managers, not engineers, directed the effort to redesign new booster joint seals, and the result is "an incredibly lousy design," he said. The new seals are no better than the old ones, he added.

Company spokesman Rocky Raab was out of his office in Brigham City, Utah, on Friday and could not be reached for comment.

Boisjoly was considered Morton Thiokol's expert on the booster rocket joint seals. He warned NASA officials not to launch the Challenger on Jan. 28, 1986, when below-freezing temperatures beset the Kennedy Space Center.

The shuttle exploded when O-ring seals on its solid fuel booster joints failed and allowed gases to escape the booster and ignite the massive fuel tank. The seven astronauts were killed.

The next space launch is tentatively set for August. Boisjoly said he wouldn't fly on it, and wouldn't advise anyone else to.

Boisjoly has filed two federal lawsuits against Morton Thiokol Inc. He took a long-term disability leave from the Chicago-based company, saying he suffered depression and post-traumatic stress following the explosion.

He contends the company hurt his reputation by portraying him as a disgruntled employee after he testified before the Rogers commission, which investigated the Challenger explosion.

Boisjoly contends in another suit that Morton Thiokol and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration conspired to ensure that the company would be the sole supplier of solid-rocket motors.

The lawsuits also charge that Morton Thiokol falsely certified the safety of its O-rings.

The FBI is conducting a criminal investigation of fraud allegations made by Morton Thiokol employees. But the Justice Department has declined to enter the case.

Man sentenced to NAACP work charged in ethnic attack

CHICAGO (AP) — A young white man sentenced earlier this week to work for the NAACP by a judge who hoped to end a "cycle of hate" faced new charges of ethnic intimidation Friday for allegedly punching and shouting slurs at a pregnant woman.

"It's very disappointing," Cook County Circuit Judge Stuart Nudelman said of the new charges against James Kalafut Jr., 21. "I've done these type of community-service sentences before and they've been successful.

"Unfortunately, perhaps this one may not be. That remains to be seen."

Kalafut was back in Nudelman's court Friday to face charges of ethnic intimidation, battery and violation of his court-supervised sentence, accused of punching a pregnant woman in the stomach and shouting ethnic slurs at her.

The woman has an Hispanic surname.

Kalafut had pleaded guilty Tuesday to ethnic intimidation and aggravated assault for an Aug. 16, 1987, incident in which a group of whites brandishing baseball bats, hurling bottles and shouting racial slurs chased two blacks from their neighborhood.

Nudelman said Kalafut had been "taught to hate blacks" and sentenced him to perform 200 hours of community service for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. He also sentenced the young man to one year of court supervision.

The judge said he imposed the sentence in an effort "to stop the cycle of hate." However, the sentencing plan was put on hold and will be set aside if Kalafut is convicted on the new charges, the judge said.

Nudelman said Friday that if the younger Kalafut is found guilty of the new charges, "the young man unfortunately will be in a position where he may need an alternative form of punishment, such as some time in the county jail."

Defense attorney Barry Silver said Kalafut had met with NAACP officials and worked out a plan to collect and distribute clothing to poor families and victims of house fires.

The judge transferred the two new charges to Judge Leo Holt, saying, "It wouldn't be fair for me to hear them." A trial before Holt was tentatively scheduled for March 28.

Silver said the new charges were trumped up and said he believes Kalafut was framed because of his guilty plea and sentence in the earlier incident.

"I interviewed two witnesses who tell me he never touched the girl," who lived nearby, Silver said. "I'm told there has been bad feelings between the families for quite some time."

The charges stem from an argument late Wednesday in front of the Kalafut home between Virginia Flores, 27, who is 4½ months pregnant, and Kenneth Kolokowski, 25.

The couple said Kalafut came out of his house, yelled at them and then got into a struggle with Kolokowski, said police Officer Al Murphy.

Kalafut then allegedly punched Ms. Flores in the stomach and shouted an ethnic slur, Murphy quoted the couple as saying.

The defendant apparently considers Ms. Flores to be of Hispanic origin, although Ms. Flores told police she is primarily of Irish heritage with some Indian background, Murphy said.

She suffered minor injuries but her fetus was not harmed, said a spokesman for Holy Cross Hospital, where she was treated and released.

The couple also told police the defendant's father, James Kalafut Sr., 45, came out of the house during the confrontation wearing pajama bottoms and exposed himself, Murphy said.

Silver said Friday the allegation was false.

The elder Kalafut, charged with ethnic intimidation and battery, faces an April 14 court hearing.

Kalafut's teen-age brother, Larry, was sentenced last March to six years in prison for firebombing the home of a black family who moved into Gage Park, a predominantly white neighborhood.

Bill would allow installment payments to IRS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Taxpayers who underestimated their income-tax withholding this year would be allowed to pay the Internal Revenue Service in installments under legislation introduced Friday in the Senate.

Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., said broad changes in the income tax law make it more likely that taxpayers failed to deduct enough from their paychecks.

The bill, sponsored by Levin and Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, would allow taxpayers who underwithheld to pay off their debt, with interest, in three payments after April 15.

SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1988

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Career developments will come fast and furious. You will be especially busy in April, October and November. Do your homework diligently and you will have a big advantage. The competition is counting on you to continue doing things in the same old way. Change your game plan and you will surge ahead! Your popularity grows. People love you for your outgoing, affectionate manner. Enter a relationship with your eyes open and everything will come together.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: Broadway star Tommy Tune, auto racer Mario Andretti, cartoonist Milton Caniff, actor Charles Durning, football's Bubba Smith, actor Gavin MacLeod, director Vincente Minnelli.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Center your attention on domestic affairs. Long journeys are best postponed. Visit friends and relatives who live nearby. Hobbies enjoy better influences than business deals today. Tackle the latter tomorrow.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Nothing should stop you from putting a plan into action today. The emphasis now is on pleasure. Loved ones will cooperate. A change of scenery appeals to some. A great day for romance.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Tread lightly. Watch what you say and do around a sensitive family member. This is not a good day to conduct business. Postpone contacting influential people. The Sunday papers yield good job leads.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Slow down and relax. Working around the clock could lower your productivity. Change your routine. Creative endeavors prove satisfying. Spend time on a favorite hobby.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Take care of odd jobs early in the day. A sermon could give you new insights. A trip to visit nearby friends is fun. Walking a favorite canine gives you welcome exercise.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Money may be a mite tight now, but your ingenuity helps you overcome this hurdle. Entertaining at home is fun and inexpensive. Play a more active role in family affairs. Others seek your advice.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Devote more time to your family. Loved ones deserve an opportunity to do what they want now. This is not the day to contact someone influential.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) A better day for completing old projects than starting new ones. Do not ignore a health problem. Creative work proves satisfying. You may be thinking about switching jobs. Bring your resume up to date.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Devote more time and attention to family matters. Your loved ones are easy to get along with now. Bring your accounts up to date. Singles will be lucky in romance. Seek introductions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A blind date turns out better than expected. Pay a call on a relative or friend confined to home or hospital, taking along a homemade gift. Hoping for mail? Write some letters.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Get out of your way to make loved ones more comfortable. A change of lifestyle leads to new contentment. A hobby could become a source of income.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Keep your temper when dealing with difficult people. You need to seek professional advice before committing yourself to a long-term agreement.

Zappa honorary secretary of state for concerts' voter registration drives

Zappa

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Veteran rocker Frank Zappa will be made an honorary secretary of state next month for the voter registration drives he stages at his concerts.

Secretary of State Sherrod Brown said he would present the Grammy nominee with the title when Zappa plays in Columbus next month.

Brown, who talked with the singer Wednesday night, said workers would have voter registration tables at Zappa's March 6 concert at Veterans Memorial Hall. He said he might do the same thing at Zappa's concert in Cleveland the night before.

"I don't know a lot of his songs, but I guess he's got a new song out about fundamentalist preachers called 'Jesus Thinks You're a Jerk,'" said Brown, who confessed to seeing Zappa perform as a warm-up act to Chuck Berry in 1971.

Zappa, 46, made national news in 1985 as an outspoken critic of the Parents Music Resources Center, which wanted to put warning labels on records with sexually explicit lyrics. His album "Jazz From Hell" has been nominated for Grammys in jazz and rock instrumental categories.

Scoggins

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Actress Tracy Scoggins was attacked in a hotel elevator while in town to serve as a co-host of the Miss USA Pageant, officials said Friday.

Miss Scoggins, who played Monica Colby in the ABC-TV series "The Colbys," suffered bruises in the Thursday night attack, El Paso police Lt. J.R. Grijalva said.

Antonio Garcia, 35, of El Paso, was arrested and charged with attempted sexual assault, Grijalva said. Garcia was released after posting $100 bail imposed by Adolfo Romero, associate municipal court magistrate.

Garcia apparently followed Miss Scoggins to the Marriott Hotel, where she was staying, and then into the elevator, Grijalva said.

"He pulled down the front of her evening gown and attempted to sexually assault her," Grijalva said. "She was able to fight him off, and when the door opened, she was able to get out and call for help."

Hotel guests pulled Garcia, who lives a few blocks from the hotel, out of the elevator and subdued him until hotel security and police arrived, Grijalva said.

Meanwhile, Miss Maryland-USA, Rowann Brewer, has been named Miss Photogenic for the Miss USA pageant.

Ms. Brewer, 23, of Silver Spring, was chosen Thursday night by a panel of photographers after the swimsuit and evening gown competitions were taped.

Photographers said the brown-eyed brunette model was the clear favorite from the moment the 51 contestants began taping "fun scenes" around El Paso and Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, about two weeks ago.

Miss USA will be crowned Tuesday in the nationally televised contest.

FREEHOLD, N.J. (AP) — Fashion designer Oleg Cassini rode a 10-1 shot to victory at Freehold Raceway on the second day of his new career as a professional harness racing driver.

Cassini, 74, the oldest man ever to be given a driving license in harness racing, led wire to wire on Hi Po Bay Myst Thursday, said track spokeswoman Lauren Fundler.

"I feel great," Cassini said in the winner's circle. "I am very happy to show everyone that I can be competitive."

Cassini, who said he decided to try his hand at professional racing after doing well in several charity races, was coming off an inauspicious debut on Wednesday. He finished last in his first race, was thrown from his sulky in the second race, and a track physician said the designer's blood pressure was too high after the accident to compete in his final race.

Princess Anne

MAPUTO, Mozambique (AP) — Britain's Princess Anne arrived in Mozambique on Friday for a five-day tour of charity projects run by the Save the Children Fund, of which she is president.

The daughter of Queen Elizabeth II was greeted at Maputo International Airport by Health Minister Dr. Fernando Vaz. The royal entourage then drove to the Maputo offices of Save the Children Fund, where the princess was briefed by the charity's field workers.

The Fund has been working in Mozambique for the past four years, concentrating particularly on the central province of Zambezia, one of the areas hit hardest by drought and th 12-year-old guerrilla war. In 1987, the Fund made about $23 million in aid available for people displaced by the war.

Princess Anne is on a three-nation tour of Africa which has already taken her to Uganda. She next flies to the East African nation of Somalia.

Burns

WEST HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Comedian George Burns will receive an honorary doctor of humanities degree, his first ever, at a special convocation March 31, the University of Hartford has announced.

The 92-year-old Burns has fashioned a career spanning nine decades, but has never been recognized with an honorary degree, the university said Thursday.

"Like a superb wine, he has improved remarkably with age," said university President Stephen J. Trachtenberg.

INDIO, Calif. (AP) — Movie producer Darryl F. Zanuck's daughter has filed a malicious prosecution suit against her late father's mistress, who had contested the movie czar's will.

The suit, filed Wednesday in Indio Superior Court by Darrylin Zanuck de Pineda, seeks unspecified damages against Genevieve Gillaizeau, 41, of New York, for alleged malicious prosecution. It also seeks unspecified damages against her attorneys for allegedly failing "to investigate the facts and law."

Zanuck, a co-founder of the 20th Century Fox studio, died in 1979. According to court papers, he and Ms. Gillaizeau were romantically involved from 1965 to 1973 while he was married to Virginia Fox Zanuck.

Ms. Gillaizeau claimed Zanuck suffered from Alzheimer's disease and was influenced by his family to change his will in October 1973, eliminating her as an heir to his estate, valued at $3.4 million. An earlier will had left her 40 percent of the estate.

Delvalle gains respect for action against Noriega

Eric Delvalle

By REID G. MILLER

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Eric Arturo Delvalle, called a puppet of Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega a few days ago, may have lost the presidency but he has gained respect.

After 2½ years in the obscurity of Panama's presidency, he went on television Thursday and ordered Noriega, the man who is really in charge of the country, to leave his post as military commander.

On one side of the contest was a man with high political office but no power, on the other a man with no political office but control of the army, navy, air force, police and national legislature.

A colonel Delvalle appointed to succed Noriega declined the job. Other officers rallied around their boss. The National Assembly convened for 10 minutes, long enough to declare Delvalle an ex-president.

The legislature's action was unconstitutional, Delvalle said, and the United States continued to recognize him as president, but it was clear that he had lost.

Delvalle, 51, was the fifth president in six years of a nation whose presidents serve at the pleasure of the military. He said he would take his case to the Supreme Court, but acknowledged that his chances there were "very slim because it also is controlled by General Noriega."

Even so, he refused to relinquish the office. "I am the president of Panama this morning," he said Friday.

By Friday afternoon, the two remaining numbers to the five-line telephone system to Delvalle's residence were answered by a recording: "Because of damage to the system, the number you have dialed is being repaired." The other three lines were cut Thursday night.

Delvalle was vice president in the fall of 1985. Noriega moved him up after dismissing President Nicolas Ardito Barletta for recommending an independent investigation into the death of one of the general's leading opponents, Hugo Spadafora.

The dead man's relatives claim Noriega was behind the killing. Spadafora's headless body was found stuffed in a canvas U.S. Mail bag in Costa Rica.

He had been threatening to offer proof of Noriega's involvement in drug trafficking, the same charge on which two federal grand juries in Florida indicted the general earlier this month.

Before becoming vice president in the 1984 election that opponents claim was rigged, Delvalle had not held public office. He had spent most of most of his time since graduating from Lousiana State University running a family sugar mill.

When asked Friday whether he regretted getting into politics, he said: "No, not at all. I think when you have an opportunity to serve your country and you believe you can, you have to take the risks involved.

"I discussed it fully with my family before running for vice president and we knew it would be a difficult task. But I thought that I could help and maybe I could make the difference."

He shrugged and added: "I couldn't."

Just last month, retired Gen. Ruben D. Paredes had urged Delvalle to act. The former Panamanian military commander said the president should "look at the tomb of his father, be a man and do his part to tell Noriega" it was time to go.

Shamir urges Shultz to move slowly on plan for self-rule

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir urged Secretary of State George Shultz to move slowly on Palestinian self-rule, and 15 prominent Arabs didn't show up for a meeting Friday night to which Shultz had invited them.

Shultz went to a hotel in Arab east Jerusalem, stood in the floodlit courtyard and read a statement suggesting the Palestinians were fearful of working with the United States.

"Peacemaking is difficult," he read. "Peace has its enemies, but peace is a necessary ingredient to a decent life. Even small steps toward peace can be significant in moving beyond distrust and hatred."

Shultz is here pursuing new American proposals for Middle East peace.

The no-show was not new for him. A group of Palestinians also refused to meet him in Jerusalem during a visit last October.

In the statement he read Friday night against a backdrop of Moslem evening prayers in the distance, Shultz still pursued the goal of bringing Palestinians into Middle East peace talks.

"Opportunity knocks loudly on your door," he read out in the hotel courtyard. "Now is the time to get to work. We have a workable plan, and we are ready to commit our efforts to it. The time is right, together, to make decisions of historic proportions."

Earlier Friday, several Palestinians issued statements saying they would not attend the meeting. The Palestine Liberation Organization had told Palestinians from the West Bank and Gaza Strip, where riots began more than 11 weeks ago, not to meet with Shultz in Jerusalem.

"Mr. Shultz seems to be trying to make a political statement by insisting on a meeting here: that the Palestinian problem is in the context of civil, religious and perhaps economic rights," said Sari Nusseibeh, a professor at Bir Zeit University in the West Bank.

"By saying I will not attend, I'm saying this is wrong. The problem is one of the national rights of the Palestinians."

Hanna Siniora, editor of the newspaper Al Fajr, said he told Shultz "I regret I cannot accept because the Palestinian people have decided that we have to have a delegation reflecting the true composition of the Palestinian people." Siniora conferred with the secretary earlier this month in Washington.

Shultz met on Friday with the three principal members of Israel's coalition government — Shamir, Foreign Minister Shimon Peres and Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin.

He put "no pressure whatsoever on Shamir," an Israeli official said, on condition of anonymity. The official said Shamir urged Shultz to move slowly on self-rule in the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

During a two-hour meeting, Shamir told Shultz there should be "a time of testing" of up to three years before negotiations on a final settlement in the occupied territories, the official said. The American plan calls for negotiaitons on an overall settlement by December.

The attempt by Shamir to keep alive the 1978 Camp David formula for interim Palestinian self-rule puts Shultz in the middle, between Israel and the Arabs. Egypt and Jordan have declared the process out of date.

Shamir also insisted that Palestinian "autonomy," which would involve some self-rule but not statehood, not be "accelerated" because of the current violence, the Israeli official said.

Peres, Shamir's partner and rival in the "national unity" coalition, said he found Shultz "open-minded and very attentive, looking for fresh ideas and information."

"He brought workable proposals," the foreign minister said."We have some workable proposals, and for that reason we have started to work."

Rabin, the defense minister, said Arab demonstrators should have "no illusion that by force they can change the position of Israel."

A solution is possible only through negotiations involving Palestinians who live in the West Bank and Gaza, along with Jordan and Israel, he said.

He told reporters: "They are going to suffer more than anybody else by the violence...By military means we can achieve tranquility, but not a solution."

Peres and Rabin represent the center-left Labor Party, which for 20 years has proposed that Israel yield some of the occupied territory as part of an overall peace settlement. Shamir and his conservative Likud bloc oppose trading land for peace, which Shultz has suggested.

Shultz flies to Amman today to meet with Prime Minister Zaid Rifai of Jordan, then to Damascus to see the Syrian president, Hafez Assad.

He also will travel to Cairo during his five-day shuttle, for which Jerusalem is the base.

Four Palestinians killed in street battles with Israelis

JABALIYA, Occupied Gaza Strip (AP) — Young Arabs went from weekly Moslem prayers to street war with Israeli soldiers Friday, and four Palestinians were killed in melees that swept the occupied territories.

U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz met with Israeli leaders to explore new peace proposals in the second day of his mission to the Middle East.

Friday's dead included a 12-year-old boy accidentally hit by a piece of concrete thrown by protesters outside a Gaza Strip Mosque, the army said. Hospital officials said Israeli gunfire wounded 11 Arabs.

The army reported the arrests of four soldiers on charges of beating and kicking two young Palestinians who had been detained, as shown in footage taken Thursday in Nablus by a CBS News crew.

"We were shocked and couldn't say a word after we saw this film," said Maj. Gen. Amram Mitzna, the army's West Bank commander.

Mitzna said he suspended the unit's deputy commander, a captain, and ordered the two Arabs released.

Before the violence Friday, U.N. figures listed 65 Arabs killed by gunfire and beatings since riots began Dec. 8 in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip. Hundreds have been wounded.

Shultz is on a five-day mission to Israel and Arab countries with new U.S. proposals for stopping the violence and reviving Arab-Israeli peace talks.

Leaflets signed by the "United Nationalist Leadership for the Uprising" exhorted Arabs to street protests this weekend as an accompaniment to the Shultz visit.

Haaretz said Syrian-backed Al Quds radio announced plans for six weeks of violent protest and strikes. The newspaper said Arabs were using firebombs more frequently and suspected collaborators were being targeted for attack.

A West Bank Palestinian accused of collaborating with the Israelis was hanged by his fellow villagers Wednesday.

Israel stationed 1,500 extra police in Jerusalem, doubling the force, brought in soldiers to help with security during the Shultz visit and put army units on alert throughout the occupied territories.

It did not stop violence on the Moslem Sabbath, sometimes instigated by prayer leaders.

"Thank God we are still alive to fight our enemy Israel," a masked prayer leader told worshipers at Nasr Mosque in the West Bank city of Nablus.

"This is the time that we have to use to launch a holy war. We have already paid a very high price, and we have to be willing to pay more."

In Gaza's Jabaliya refugee camp, the body of Iyad al Ashqar, 12, was brought to a U.N. clinic after a clash at Al Qassam mosque.

According to the army, a military doctor said the boy died from a gash on the head inflicted by a chunk of concrete. Initial army reports gave the cause of death as gunfire.

Hospital officials in Jabaliya said a woman was wounded by gunfire and 20 Arabs were treated for injuries caused by beatings or tear gas.

Ahmed Attallah, a witness, said soldiers broke into the mosque and took 30 people away after Palestinians inside began shouting "Allahu Akhbar!" (God is great).

At Hebron, south of Jerusalem, hundreds of worshipers streamed from a mosque chanting and throwing stones, and soldiers opened fire when tear gas and rubber bullets did not disperse the crowd, an army spokesman said.

Arab reports said Fuad Shaarawi, 47, was killed but conflicted on the cause of death. The army said it was not clear whether he was shot or died of tear-gas inhalation.

Razk Daraghmen, 55, bled to death after being shot in the right thigh during a protest in Toubas, a the West Bank village, hospital officials said.

A Palestinian was killed as a result of disturbances in Al Arub, south of Bethlehem, the army reported. Hospital officials and the Arab-run Palestine Press Service said Israeli soldiers shot Hassan Abu Kheiran, 22, in the chest.

Three Arabs were wounded in Jenin, also in the West Bank, after 3,000 Arabs staged a march that led to a clash with soldiers. Arabs threw stones and glass bottles and troops fired tear gas, rubber bullets and live amunition, witnesses reported.

Soldiers sought in drug probe

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Federal authorities are seeking two Americans, one of them a U.S. soldier, in an investigation of a large-scale drug smuggling ring involving U.S. military personnel, it was reported Friday.

The San Juan Star, citing unidentified official sources, said the Americans were stationed in Panama and that one of them was discharged from the Army more than a year ago.

The English-language daily reported that one American had established drug contacts in Panama shortly before or after being discharged from the Army and the other had supplied members of a drug ring with bogus travel orders and military identification papers.

The newspaper quoted the sources as saying one of the men had established contacts with Panamanian military leader Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega, who is under indictment in the United States on drug trafficking charges.

"The authorities now think that the ring had been using military aircraft for at least a year, making weekly trips to the U.S. with the drugs," the Star reported.

The paper said the ring used fake travel orders, and the men who would transport the drugs would leave on Fridays from Howard Air Base in Panama and travel to South Carolina and Texas, where the drug cargos were unloaded. The carriers would be back on the base by Monday, before they could be declared AWOL, it said.

In another development, two U.S. soldiers facing federal charges of possessing and importing 17 pounds of cocaine into the United States from Panama on a military transport plane pleaded innocent Thursday at their arraignment in U.S. District Court in San Juan.

Minister won't OK road construction near Pompeii

ROME (AP) — Italy's minister of culture said Thursday he won't approve construction of a four-lane highway adjacent to Pompeii's famous ruins and across the ancient city's unexcavated necropolis.

Carlo Vizzini, whose ministry protects and preserves archaeological sites, said "in no case" will he approve a project "that not only edges, but minimally touches" excavations at Pompeii.

Some members of Pompeii's city government proposed reducing traffic congestion in the modern city by linking two existing highways with a new one streching a little more than a mile along the famous tourist attraction.

Opponents argue the exhaust and viabrations will damage the ancient stones, and that the highway will prevent excavation of Roman archaeological treasures in the necropolis.

The eruption of Mount Vesuvius in A.D. 79 buried the city of Pompeii.

Guiseppe Galasso, a member of Parliament from the town of Pozzuoli in the shadow of the volcano, calls the highway proposal "the kiss of death" for the ruins.

Britain's telephone chat link gets out of hand

LONDON (AP) — It seemed at first like an innovative way of getting the British to talk about something other than the weather. But things apparently went too far.

Talkabout, a telephone company service linking strangers together for chats in groups of up to 10 at a time, was forced to hang up permanently this week under a barrage of public criticism.

For British Telecom, the country's main telephone company, Talkabout was a gold mine. The company's privatization in 1984 after decades of state ownership has made it far more profit-conscious and Talkabout earned it up to $17.5 million a year.

But parents complained Talkabout rang up huge phone bills. Members of Parliament claimed it had become a dating service and drug exchange. Lurid tales circulated of girls being seduced by older men and of young neo-Nazis pouring out racist hatred.

While the tabloid press highlighted the sensational aspects of Talkabout, the Office of Telecommunications (OFTEL), the phone company's watchdog body, warned that British Telecom's monopoly privileges would be reviewed unless customers could have Talkabout blocked from their lines.

British Telecom said the cost would be prohibitive and on Monday it stopped the service.

No one claims to have actually heard the service being seriously abused, and British Telecom hotly denies the seduction stories. If anything, say critics who called in to hear Talkabout for themselves, the conversations generally were dull and witless.

British Telecom says it was prepared for trouble from the outset, and built in safeguards.

Nonetheless, Terry Lewis, a lawmaker for the opposition Labor Party who campaigned against Talkabout, insisted "the service is obscene, dangerous, addictive and costly."

Costly, definitely. At up to 71 cents a minute at peak time, Talkabout cost eight times more than an ordinary call.

Addictive, perhaps. Youngsters calling in to a radio talk show said they sometimes spent up to four hours a day on Talkabout.

But obscene and dangerous? British Telecom says the service attracted 40 million calls but only 27 complaints since its inception in 1983.

Indians watch Hindu epic religiously

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — One of the biggest hits on Indian television is not shown in prime time and is based on a story 2,600 years old.

Starting at 9:30 every Sunday morning, life comes to a near-halt for 40 minutes all over the country as people gather in front of television sets to watch the latest installment of "The Ramayana," the Hindu epic of the same name.

To some, the show is a religious experience. In the eastern city of Cuttack, incense sticks are lit, bells are rung and conch shells are blown like trumpets to herald the start of the weekly exploits of the warrior god Rama.

To others, it's a soap opera obsession that transcends sectarian divisions in this country of many religions.

Newspapers complained in December that doctors and nurses in at least one hospital in the central city of Lucknow stopped tending their patients to huddle in front of TV sets.

In Chandrapura, a village near Baroda, authorities said two women died of heart attacks while watching a particularly tense episode.

Riots broke out in Jammu and Kashmir in northern India when a power failure blacked out the weekly broadcast. Protesters blocked roads and tried to burn down an electricity authority office.

Television critics estimate that more than 100 million people watch the trial and tribulations of Rama as he grows up, marries, is crowned king of Ayodhya, spends 14 years of banishment in a forest and battles demons to rescue his kidnapped wife Sita, only to have the earth swallow her up.

"It's holy, isn't it?" said Maya Devi, an illiterate 32-year-old New Delhi woman who irons clothes for a living. She bought a television set just to watch "The Ramayana."

The show's Sunday-morning time slot, although not prime time in India, has a special significance. Devout Hindus bathe and pray before eating Sunday breakfast and for many, watching the show then is a way of appeasing the gods. Some chant prayers in front of their television sets.

About 80 percent of India's 780 million people are Hindus. Moslems, the second largest sect, make up 11 percent, and the remainder are Christians, Sikhs, Buddhists, Jains and several other sects.

"The Ramayana" is also big business.

The Illustrated Weekly of India recently estimated that the serial's producer, filmmaker Ramanand Sagar, was making a profit of at least 150,000 rupees (about $12,000) per show.

The money comes from the serial's sponsors, a textile company and a leading toothpaste manufacturer.

It started in February 1987 and recently reached the saga's midway point.

Doordarshan, the state-run television station, is also reaping rich dividends, according to the Illustrated Weekly. It said about 40 companies pay a total of 3 million rupees (about $231,000) a week for 10-second commercials shown before each installment.

But the program has come in for a few darts.

Amita Malik, who writes a weekly column for the Indian Express newspaper chain and is one of the most widely read media critics in the country, says "The Ramayana" appeals only to devout Hindus.

"The serial is subordinated to the narrow mass needs of viewership," Ms. Malik said in an interview.

She added that the serial is full of "ham acting" and suggested the government was promoting the show to win the Hindu vote in future elections.

The Telegraph, a newspaper in Calcutta, said in a recent article the serial's popularity could be traced to "an outburst of neo-Hinduism."

"The serial treats the Ramayana not as a universal epic with a tragic end, showing man's glories and failings in a certain social background, but as a religious scripture resting above all literary or historical considerations," the Telegraph said.

Regardless of what the critics say, the show's faithful viewers include many Moslems.

"I watch it every week," said Zakia Hasnain, a Moslem housewife in Allahabad.

Mohammed Irfan, a New Delhi carpenter, said his family has not missed a single episode.

"If I don't wake up in time, my wife or one of my three children drag me out of bed to see it," he said.

Odessan killed in accident

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — A 74-year-old Odessa man, John Barron Zimmerman, was killed Friday morning in a car-truck accident north of Odessa, according to the Texas Department of Public Safety.

The 1988 Cadillac driven by Zimmerman and a 1982 Chevrolet welding truck driven by Jules Joseph Ingram of Odessa collided at the intersection of Golder Avenue and 81st Street about 7:55 a.m. Zimmerman was pronounced dead at Medical Center Hospital in Odessa almost an hour later.

A DPS spokesman said Zimmerman was not wearing a seat belt at the time of the crash.

DPS Trooper John Hunt investigated the accident.

Funeral services will be held at 4 p.m. Monday in the Hubbard-Kelly Funeral Home Chapel in Odessa. Burial will be in Sunset Memorial Gardens in Odessa.

Breakfast to be served for benefit of Casa

From Staff Reports

The Third Annual Benefit Breakfast for Casa de Amigos Social Services will be today from 8 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at 1101 E. Garden Ln.

All proceeds go directly to the Social Services Discretionary Fund which assists families with emergency food, medical and utitlity needs.

Eggs, bacon, sausage, pancakes, juice and coffee will be served.

Tickets are $3.50 for adults and $2.75 for children.

MC receives grant to enhance computer information system

From Staff Reports

The cooperation of civic, education and private industry forces have combined to set the stage for a three-dimensional computer model of Midland, which city agencies will be able to use in multiple ways in coming months.

Midland College received a $5,000 grant from Wild Heerbrugg Systems to enhance the college's computer information system.

The city's Geographic Information System will store geometrical data of buildings, streets and other objects as three-dimensional digital computer maps. The system allows for precise location of property boundaries, water, sewer and power lines, ownership and land use data.

Harvey Hansen, director of engineering and transportation for the city, said that a base map of the city should be complete and ready to attach other data within two to three months. Hansen worked with Dr. Jerry Jones, chairman of business studies at Midland College, on the design and implementation of the program. It is expected to become a model for Wild Heerbrugg in other locales.

Dr. Jones explained that the college initiated a special computer programming course in UNIX/C computer language for city employees. The course was preparatory to arrival of the Wild Heerbrugg GIS.

"The ($5,000) grant will be used to assist students in the study of computer information systems at Midland College and to provide financial assistance to a student particularly interested in geography, planning, and mapping as a career," Jones said.

Presentation of the grant was made at a Friday luncheon, attended by representatives from the college, the city, Wild System, and Sun Microsystems.

The Wild Heerbrugg System 9 at the City of Midland is one of the initial installations of the system in North America. Wild's system operates on Sun Microsystems hardware.

Bruce Wald

According to Dave Watts, western regional sales manager for Wild, "The Midland College grant is a win-win project for Wild, Midland College and the city. The program allows Wild to maximize its resources and gain exposure for System 9, enhances the college's contribution to the local community, and allows the city to utilize the talent resources of the local college on an everyday, practical City function."

Bruce Wald, Wild's director of sales, used slides to show the various functions and applications of the Wild System 9 for government entities and private industry.

City staffer Hansen said that eventually the police and fire departments will have access to the "intelligent" computer map, which will improve city services.

FOR ANYONE STILL UNDER THE IMPRESSION SAAB MAKES VERY EXPENSIVE CARS, HERE'S A LITTLE DOSE OF REALITY.

900

The sporty Saab 900 is equipped with a long list of standard features-including front-wheel drive, air conditioning, four-wheel disc brakes, Clarion AM/FM cassette stereo system, central door locking, electrically heated front seats, and fold down rear seats. Available in 3 door or 4 door. $16,267

900S

In addition to the features found on the 900, the spirited 900S provides the extra muscle of Saab's 16-valve engine, as well as standard features like electronic cruise control, sliding sunroof, power windows, electrically adjustable outside mirrors, and front and rear stabilizer bars. Available in 3 or 4 door. $19,970

900 TURBO

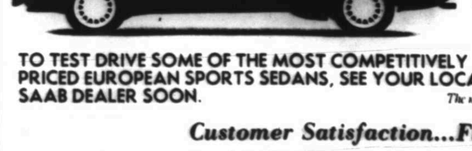

In addition to what's included with the 900 and 900S, the 900 Turbo offers the exhilaration of an intercooled turbocharged engine with Automatic Performance Control to maximize fuel efficiency. Among its many other standard features are front and rear spoilers, electric sunroof, and a seven-band graphic equalizer/amplifier. $23,247

9000S

The 9000S comes with everything found on the 900 series Saabs, but uses Saab's sophisticated naturally-aspirated 16-valve engine. Additional standard luxury features include automatic climate control, Clarion AM/FM cassette stereo with 8 speakers, cruise control, electric tilt slide sunroof, telescopic steering wheel, tinted glass, and lightweight alloy wheels. $24,722

9000 TURBO

In addition to all the amenities you get the 9000S, the racy 9000 Turbo is powered by an intercooled turbo engine with Automatic Performance Control. Leather upholstery, fog lights, and V-rated Pirelli P600 radials are only a few of the other standard features on the 9000 Turbo. $28,479

The Audi 5000 is one of the "10 Best" cars. For the 5th year in a row.

We're pleased to have been selected as one of Car and Driver's "10 Best" for 1988. Just as we were pleased to have been selected in 1984, 1985, 1986 and 1987. And it's not surprising when you consider the level of performance, style and handling the Audi 5000 delivers. Come in for a test drive and see what all the excitement is about.
