Vance meets with Waldheim

Hostages speak out

By the Associated Press

Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr has repeated his demand for a U.S. admission of guilt for alleged misdeeds during the shah's reign as a condition for the release of the American hostages, Tehran radio said today.

The inquiry by an international commission into Iranian allegations against the deposed shah will not be sufficient to ensure the release of the 50 Americans, now in their 107th day of captivity, Bani-Sadr was quoted as saying after a meeting of the ruling Revolutionary Council Sunday night.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, meanwhile, arrived in New York and went into a meeting with U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim. A spokeswoman for the American mission to the United Nations was asked the purpose of Vance's visit and said she thought it was for a general discussion but "I would expect that the subject of Iran would come up."

One of the hostages in Tehran, U.S. Marine Capt. Gallegos, said in a filmed interview that he had expected the shah to be returned to Iran in the second week of U.S. Embassy siege. He said after two weeks he had thought he would remain in the embassy forever or leave "in a plastic bag."

Gallegos and Marine Sgt. Paul Lewis spoke on Feb. 10 with a group of the visiting 49 members of the Committee for American-Iranian Crisis Resolution. The interview was filmed by Greek television and broadcast on NBC-TV's "Today" show.

Bani-Sadr's declaration came as Waldheim was awaiting the Iranian government's response today to his choice of a five-member commission that will probe Iran's charges against the deposed monarch, now living in exile in Panama.

"The freeing of hostages will depend on the compliance by the United States to three Iranian conditions," he was quoted as saying in a report monitored in Kuwait.

It listed the conditions as:

"Admission by the United States that it had interfered in Iran's internal affairs during the rule of the shah. A pledge to refrain from any such interference in the future. A promise not to block efforts by the Iranian government to ensure the extradition of the shah and the recovery of his fortune."

Bani-Sadr's statement confirmed a hard-line tack he took in two weekend interviews and offset statements he made last week indicating that the Americans might be released once the U.N. commission began its inquiry.

In a news conference last Wednesday, President Carter said he supported formation of "an appropriate commission with a carefully defined purpose" as a means to free the hostages. But he ruled out any U.S. admission of guilt during the alleged misrule by exiled Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

Bani-Sadr told a Greek television interviewer Saturday that the hostages would not be released until the commission released its findings and the United States "undertakes" its "obligations."

He repeated his three conditions for release of the hostages in an interview Saturday with the U.S. news magazine Newsweek.

"The United States must take the initiative on three different points if its wants to change the political climate," the magazine quoted him as saying.

Bani-Sadr also told Newsweek that Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini was in "complete agreement" with his plan and would "make his opinion known" to the militants holding the 50 American hostages "when the time comes." The militants, who occupied the U.S. Embassy in Tehran Nov. 4, have said they would free their captives only on direct orders from Khomeini.

Meanwhile, U.N. spokesman Rudolf Stajdhar said in New York Sunday the United States had already agreed to the makeup of the U.N. commission. The Iranian response was delayed for reasons "of a purely technical nature," he said.

"Some aspects still have to be clarified and the matter has to be coordinated before the secretary-general can make an announcement," the spokesman added, without elaboration.

The Washington Post reported today that the commission members would gather Tuesday in Geneva, Switzerland and leave from there later in the week for Tehran. Waldheim presumably will brief the panel before it leaves.

White House spokesmen have refused to comment on the reported makeup of the U.N. commission, but they said the administration felt some positive developments had occurred.

U.N. diplomats had said earlier the commission would consist of five lawyers, from Bangladesh, Algeria, France, Syria and Venezuela. But the chosen member from Bangladesh, former President Abu Sayeed Chowdhury, was ill and Waldheim had to find a substitute, the sources said.

He chose a lawyer from Sri Lanka, H.W. Jayewardene, 63, Sri Lanka's Foreign Ministry reported today. Jayewardene is the younger brother of Sri Lanka's president, Junius Richard Jayewardene.

The other commission members have been identified by diplomats as Algerian U.N. Ambassador Mohamed Bedjaoui, former Paris Bar Association President Edmond Louis Pettiti, Syrian presidential aide Adib Daoudy and former Venezuelan Justice Minister Andres Aguilar.

In another development, the lawyer representing the Iranian regime in its effort to extradite the shah from Panama said he expected the extradition to be completed shortly and predicted that formal proceedings against him could begin within two weeks.

However, other Panamanian lawyers disagreed with the assessment by Juan Materno Vasquez, the former Panamanian Supreme Court justice assigned to represent Iran in the case.

In 118th District Court

Assault trial under way

By DON WOODS

The aggravated assault trial of Robert Ortega, 18, 2701 E. 25th, began this morning in 118th District Court with the testimony of stabbing victim Rickey Solis, 16.

Probationer Jesse Curry has been subpoenaed in the case. According to Solis's testimony, Curry was with the defendant, Robert Ortega, the night of July 28 when Solis was stabbed at the Jet Drive-in Theatre.

Curry was convicted Dec. 19 in the involuntary manslaughter of his mother, Lillian Curry.

Solis testified that he and his two brothers were watching the movie "Up in Smoke" when he was told that Ortega was harassing Danny and Pete Salazar. Solis said the two were 14 or 15 years of age.

George Solis, 14, went with Rickey to the concession stand where he had words with Ortega. Solis told Ortega that he was too old to fight with the two Salazars and asked him if he had maligned the Solis brothers on another occasion.

Ortega told Solis he had said the Solis brothers were "no good" and that he could "whip" him if he tried.

Meanwhile, one of Ortega's associates, Daryl Martin, 19, was pushed over the concession stand rail by a youth named Sonny Trevino. Solis testified that he didn't know what they were arguing about. Curry had returned to their car when the arguing began.

Martin also returned to the car to the north of the concession stand, but Trevino had followed him to the car where a fight began behind the car.

Solis testified that they were followed to the car by himself, his two brothers, the two Salazar brothers, Mike Pickel and an unidentified youth.

Ortega had reached into the car, said Solis, during the fight and walked to the back of the car where Solis was standing. Solis asked him what he had in his hand. A minute or two later Solis turned his head toward one of the Salazar brothers. Solis alleged that Ortega then "jumped" him and stabbed him in the center of the chest and the left shoulder area.

Solis said he didn't know what happened afterwards but that his last thought was of being carried to a pickup. He was admitted to Malone-Hogan Hospital where he stayed for

for men likely

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress appears ready to restore military draft registration — but only for males — as President Carter's controversial plan for registering youths of both sexes begins an uphill trek through the House and Senate.

Also in apparent trouble this week in Congress is a proposal to force the FBI to turn over to congressional investigators videotapes and other evidence it has collected thus far in its "Abscam" bribery inquiry.

The House is observing the Washington's Birthday federal holiday today like many other Americans — by not working — while the Senate has scheduled a brief session that will include a reading of George Washington's farewell address.

seven days recuperating.

Solis was questioned twice by each attorney, District Attorney Rick Hamby and defense attorney Alan Moore.

Moore asked Solis if he had gone to the car when the fight began with the intention of fighting with Ortega if he attacked either of the Salazar brothers. Solis said he hadn't intended to fight with Ortega. He said he went to the car to watch the fight but that he didn't watch it when he got there.

Ortega was arrested on suspicion of aggravated assault. Bond was set by Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin at $5,000.

The movie "Up in Smoke" was playing in a double feature with "The Warriors" the night of the assault.

Ortega was arrested on suspicion of aggravated assault.

The eight-man-four-woman jury in the trial consists of Lambert Misk, Gregory Meeks, Judith Bynum, Clarence Hawkins, W. Decker, Herbert McPherson, Willis Owen, Jimmie Daniels, Miguel Sanchez, Oralia Armendariz, Mary Paredes and Barbara Bracy.

The trial climaxes a two week period. Three trials were planned: Ronnie Ray Barber was sentenced to a five-year probation by a jury consisting of Clarence Hawkins, Judith Bynum, Cynthia Hernandez, Gregory Meeks, Alice Olson, Lambert Misk, Johnny Bedell, Verla Paige, Harold Pearce, Jimmie Daniels, Alfonso Escovedo and Miguel Sanchez.

The trial planned for Lonnie Ray Greene was dismissed when charges against Greene were dismissed due to double jeopardy.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Commonwealth

Q. How come Puerto Ricans are allowed to vote in the presidential elections and have representatives in the Miss U.S.A. beauty contest? Isn't it an independent nation?

A. Puerto Rico is a self-governing commonwealth in union with the United States. Its people were granted voting privileges by the Congress of the United States. Some of the firebrands in the country have clamored for independence and there have been several moves toward statehood but industry (and such growth has been substantial there) benefits from some tax breaks which it might lose if statehood were granted. It could well become the 51st state in the union in time, however.

Storm sparks new flooding, mudslides in California

By the Associated Press

For the sixth straight day, a Pacific storm battered Southern California today, triggering more flooding and mudslides and forcing hundreds of persons to flee their homes.

"There's one storm right after the other," said National Weather Service forecaster Al Bascomb. "There's so many I can't keep track."

While the downpour halted briefly Sunday, homeowners sandbagged their property and crews tried to unclog drains and clear muddy roads, but by nightfall rain was falling again.

The weather service said the rain could last until Friday, and posted a flash flood watch through tonight for Ventura, Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino, San Diego counties and portions of Los Angeles County.

By 6 p.m. Sunday, 17.02 inches of rain had fallen in the Los Angeles area — 7.59 inches above normal for the rainy season, which runs from October to June. The storms have claimed 11 lives and caused millions of dollars in property damage.

In Phoenix, Ariz., meanwhile, thousands of persons were back home after fleeing raging Salt River waters. Only three of the 10 bridges linking north and south Phoenix were open, but police reported no significant traffic problems today, which was a holiday.

About 400 homes in the Phoenix area were damaged in flooding, along with hundreds of streets and bridges. No estimate of the damage was available.

Babbitt said it was likely that employers would be asked to stagger work hours this week to aid traffic at the Salt River crossings.

Arizona officials have reported three flood-related deaths since Friday.

Meanwhile, officials were adjusting the levels of reservoirs to accommodate more rain from another storm expected late today.

"There will be plenty of room to accommodate the additional inflows caused by this latest storm if it stays under two inches," said Sally Keck, spokeswoman for the Salt River Project.

In Southern California, more than 50 people fled their homes late Sunday in Mandeville Canyon and Laurel Canyon, both near Los Angeles. About 300 persons were evacuated from hilly areas in Palm Springs and nearby areas. A 3½-square-mile area of San Bernardino was evacuated when muddy water began pouring over Harrison Dam.

More than 20,000 sandbags were sent to hard-hit residents of the Sunland-Tujunga area north of downtown Los Angeles.

Baxter Ward, chairman of the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors, estimated that structural and personal property damage had exceeded $20 million.

Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley has declared a state of emergency, and police officers on tactical alert have been assigned 12-hour shifts with all leave days canceled.

Gold higher in London

LONDON (AP) — Foreign exchange markets were quiet and gold markets were more so Monday as a variety of local holidays closed trading centers around the world.

With markets in America, Hong Kong and parts of West Germany closed, gold was higher in London and lower in Zurich, Europe's leading bullion marts, while the dollar was narrowly mixed.

The closing price of gold in London was $661.50 an ounce compared with $659.50 at the close Friday. In Zurich gold closed at $662.50 compared with $669.50.

A Zurich gold dealer said the market there was "absolutely dead." A colleague in London said trading was "very quiet."

The price of silver closed slightly higher in London at $35.75 an ounce compared with $35.50.

A Frankfurt dealer described foreign exchange dealing as "extremely quiet and very thin."

Here are late prices for the dollar compared with prices late Friday:

Tokyo—243.775 Japanese yen, up from 243.075

Frankfurt—1.7407 West German marks, down from 1.741

Zurich—1.6285 Swiss franc, up from 1.6242

Paris—4.078 French francs, down from 4.079

Milan—806.4 Italian lire, up from 805.4

Barring write-ins

46 legislators are 'home free'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Voters won't have any choices to make in electing almost a third of the members of the Texas House this year.

Barring upsets by write-in candidates, 46 of the 150 House members were — in effect — re-elected on the Feb. 4 candidate filing deadline because nobody filed against them.

Three senators of the 16 whose seats will be filled by this year's elections — Carl Parker of Port Arthur, Tati Santiesteban of El Paso and Walter Mengden of Houston — also drew no opponents.

John Liston of Orange, says, however, he will run against Parker as a write-in candidate.

House members who are home free include four conservatives who have lined up for a shot at the 1981 speakership if Speaker Bill Clayton's troubles with an FBI "sting" investigation cause him to resign. Clayton appointed each to an important committee chairmanship last year.

They are:

— Rep. Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, chairman of the House Committee on Intergovernmental Affairs.

— Rep. Lynn Nabers, D-Brownwood, chairman of the House Committee on Criminal Jurisprudence.

— Rep. Tim Von Dohlen, D-Goliad, chairman of the House Committee on Regions, Compacts and Districts and speaker pro tem of the House. Clayton chose Von Dohlen to oversee 1981 legislative and congressional redistricting and to make preparations for the politically and technically exhausting task.

— Rep. Bennie Bock II, D-New Braunfels, chairman of the House Committee on Environmental Affairs.

Skating to elections without opposition will give speaker candidates plenty of time to seek advance pledges of support from other representatives.

Clayton himself is unopposed for a tenth two-year term as representative from a chiefly agricultural district northwest of Lubbock.

Clayton has a subpoena to tell a federal grand jury next month about his encounter with FBI agent Joseph Hauser and union leader L.G. Moore of Deer Park in which Moore left $5,000 behind as a "political contribution."

Several representatives and lobbyists say they believe Clayton would resign as speaker if he is indicted. That could set up a speaker election in August if Gov. Bill Clements goes through with his plan for a special legislative session then.

Normally, House members choose the speaker at the start of each regular session in January of odd-numbered years.

EXUBERANCE — Jeb Bush, son of Republican presidential candidate George Bush, shares a moment of elation with Julia Rivera de Vincenti, Republican national committee woman and the chief local organizer for the Bush campaign, in San Juan Sunday after the nation's first 1980 presidential primary. Returns showed Bush winning the island's 14 delegates to the Republican National Convention.

Bush rolls to easy win in Puerto Rico election

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — George Bush says winning all 14 delegates in Puerto Rico's first-ever presidential primary will give his presidential bid momentum for the New Hampshire primary next week.

Bush defeated Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee by a 3-2 margin in the Republican balloting Sunday in 1980's first presidential primary. Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, not on the ballot here, received a handful of write-in votes.

The voting was held without the privacy of voting booths because there wasn't time to set them up when a judge ruled that the Caribbean island commonwealth could not spend public funds for a party primary. To offset the cost of the primary, coffee cans were set up at the voting places to seek donations.

The Puerto Rico victory will illustrate "the national aspect of our candidacy,"

Bush said Sunday while campaigning in Nashua, N.H. "It is not just a one- or two-state campaign."

The former CIA director and ambassador said the victory "will lift up our workers and continue our momentum. It will help us in New Hampshire and set off some of the attacks on me."

Actually, the 3.3 million Puerto Ricans are U.S. citizens but have no vote in the November presidential election because the island is not a state. They also pay no federal income tax.

The victory gave Bush a total of 17 committed delegates on the first ballot at the Republican National convention this July in Detroit. Reagan has nine delegates; Baker, five. It takes 998 to clinch the nomination.

Bush built a 2-1 margin in early returns, mostly from the cities, and saw it shrink only marginally when the rural vote came in.

When the party stopped counting votes early today, with tabulation 99.7 percent complete, Bush had 123,217 for 59 percent to Baker's 80,782 for 38 percent.

Of the other candidates in the primary, former Texas Gov. John Connally got 1,934 votes; California businessman Benjamin Fernandez, 1,912; former Minnesota Gov. Harold Stassen, 631; and Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas, 513.

Dole had asked his supporters to vote for Baker.

Two unknowns on the ballot, Bodo Istvan Karoly of Washington, D.C., got 87 votes and Gerald de Felice of Hamden, Conn., got 48.

Reagan, who was not on the ballot, received about 50 write-in votes.

Oreste Ramos, a member of the Puerto Rico Senate and the man in charge of running the primary for the GOP said eight rural voting places remained uncounted.

Kennedy trailing by 2-to-1

KEENE, N.H. (AP) — A survey taken by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's own pollster shows Kennedy trailing President Carter by a margin of about 2-to-1 among Democratic and independent voters in New Hampshire, sources say.

Aides traveling with Kennedy said Sunday night the survey, taken by pollster Peter Hart, shows a sizeable group of uncommitted voters, said by one source to be about 25 percent.

The New Hampshire primary is Feb. 26.

California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., the third major candidate in the Democratic race, is said to have the backing of fewer than 15 percent of the potential voters polled.

Tom Southwick, Kennedy's press secretary, confirmed that a Hart poll taken a week ago showed Kennedy trailing the president in the first primary election state of 1980. "It's going to be an uphill battle," he said.

But Southwick declined to provide details of the survey, such as sample size or the precise breakdown of figures.

Kennedy, campaigning extensively through New Hampshire, arranged to continue stumping the state most of today before flying to Massachusetts for several evening fund raising events and then a return trip to New Hampshire late tonight.

Kennedy himself said more than once Sunday that polls show him trailing Carter in advance of the primary.

"Quite frankly, the polls show the president far ahead," he told an evening rally in Keene. Earlier, campaigning at a series of coffee shops at private homes in Manchester, he told reporters, "I think we still have a long way to go in New Hampshire, but I think we are making progress."

A source who asked not to be named said the Kennedy poll, taken early last week and shown to Kennedy a few days later, showed the president's support to be "soft," meaning some of Carter's backers may be wooed successfully by Kennedy.

Sources also say the survey shows an increasing feeling among voters that the president's refusal to debate Kennedy is a political judgement, rather than a decision made on foreign policy grounds, as the president has said.

Kennedy's aides also say the poll shows voters are expressing renewed concern about the economy and energy after a long period of focusing their attention on foreign policy matters such as the Iranian crisis.

CLEAN-UP BEGINS — Mrs. Colleen Molczuk has her mattresses stacked atop an oil drum as she cleans the mud from her living room floor Sunday after flood waters from the Salt River swamped the river Friday and Saturday in the Phoenix area.

World of toys for '80 unwrapped in Gotham

By the Associated Press

While most Americans are just recovering from Christmas past, the country's toymakers already are in the middle of Christmas future.

The manufacturers have gathered in New York City to show their 1980 lines, offering thousands of old and new items which they hope will wind up under the tree some 10 months from now.

The Toy Manufacturers of America, Inc., an industry association, estimates that 1979 sales reached $5.8 billion at the retail level, an increase of about 13 percent from the year before. Prices last year were 15 percent higher, on the average, than they were in 1978 and the trade group predicts they will go up another 15 percent this year.

The fourth-quarter of the year is still the biggest selling season for toys, but the manufacturers say the introduction and popularity of electronic games has widened the market. People buy the games all year long and they seem willing to pay higher and higher prices.

The manufacturers estimated that 3,600 new items were on display at the annual toy fair this year, but some of the so-called "new" products are simply variations on existing lines.

Mattel Toys of Hawthorne, Calif., the biggest toymaker in the world, listed 241 products as new. Among them were new accessories for the "Barbie" doll, now in its 21st year. The "Barbie Dream Furniture" collection now includes bathroom items.

"The commode can be filled with water and has realistic flushing action," says the company. The doll-size bathtub also "can be filled with water and drained realistically — the water going into a storage tank in the bottom half of the tub to be drained later."

Going from beauty to the beast, Mattel offers "Gre-Gory," the vampire bat.

"Press Gre-Gory bat's back," explains Mattel. "Blood" surges into his see-through belly. "In case you're worried, the company is quick to point out that the 'belly' is tightly sealed."

Kenner Products of Cincinnati, a division of General Mills, Inc., described 85 of its offerings as new. Like Mattel, however, Kenner is sticking with success and that means "Star Wars." Sales of "Star Wars" toys, introduced in 1978, increased by 30 percent last year alone. Included in the 1980 line are 23 toys linked to the upcoming movie, "Star Wars: The Empire Strikes Back."

Tom Clark, Kenner's "Star Wars" product manager, indicates there is little relief in sight for parents who tired of the Force being with them. "There are 12 written scripts for movies, offering endless possibilities for new toys," he said.

Abd, from the Milton Bradley Co., the people who brought you "Simon," there is "Milton." Describing the new electronic game, which involves completing phrases correctly by pushing buttons, the company says: "Milton" not only talks, he talks back.

Energy Record sales, earnings reported by W.R. Grace

NEW YORK — W.R. Grace & Co. has announced record sales and earnings for 1979. Sales exceeded $5 billion for the first time in the company's 125-year history, reaching $5,266,629,000, up 18 percent from $4,448,184,000 in 1978, which was restated for poolings of interests and the effects of FAS No. 19, "Financial Accounting and Reporting by Oil and Gas Producing Companies."

Net income reached $222,580,000, or 30 percent over last year's $171,197,000, as restated. Outstanding performances were achieved in specialty and agricultural chemicals as well as in natural resources.

Primary earnings per common share in 1979 were $5.02, an increase of 26 percent over the $3.98 for the prior year, as restated. Non-operating factors — foreign currency translation (FAS No. 8) and divestments — did not have a significant effect on 1979 results, but had a favorable net effect of $6,065,000 in 1979.

Excluding these factors from both 1979 and 1978, net income was $216,515,000 or $4.88 per share in 1979 versus $170,905,000 or $3.98 per share, increases of 27 percent and 23 percent, respectively.

For the fourth quarter of 1979, net income rose 66 percent to a record $63,861,000 from the $38,486,000 reported for the last three months of 1978, as restated. Per share earnings were $1.43 compared with 88 cents. Excluding the effect of FAS No. 8 and divestments from both fourth quarters, per share earnings were $1.39 versus 97 cents, an increase of 43 percent.

Quarterly sales reached a record $1,471,867,000 in the 1979 fourth quarter, an increase of 20 percent over the $1,222,881,000 for the 1978 comparable period.

Forecasters insist mercury will rise

By the Associated Press
A warming trend was under way in Texas today, although if you live in Midland where it was 21 at dawn, you might ask the meaning of "warm."

Forecasters insist temperatures will rise today and Tuesday into the 50s, 60s and even the 70s, a sharp contrast to the cold weekend in which snow and sleet frosted parts of the state from the northern border to the Hill Country.

Winds shifted to the south in most areas during the night, and the National Weather Service said they will be blustery in some areas today.

Dense fog reduced visibilities to near zero in the Lubbock area at daybreak. Fog was also reported in Amarillo, Tyler and Wink.

A travelers' advisory for the Hill Country was cancelled at 3 a.m.

Native of Big Spring heads energy analysis

STILLWATER, Okla. — Dr. Joe H. Mize, professor and head of Oklahoma State University's School of Industrial Engineering and Management, has been named director of the university's Institute for Energy Analysis, effective Monday, Feb. 11. The action was approved by the OSU Board of Regents during its February meeting.

The Institute for Energy Analysis was established on the OSU campus to assist in the coordination of energy related activities and to enhance communications among those at OSU who are engaged in energy research, extension and instruction.

"During the next two decades, the U.S. and the world will encounter numerous crises resulting from interruptions of energy supplies," Mize said.

"These crises will result from a variety of causes, political and otherwise, and will trigger many proposed regulations, laws, policies and procedures for dealing with the resulting effects," Mize continued.

"Each proposal will have far-reaching implications for our economy, quality of life, national defense and other important factors. That's why it is extremely important to have the ability to objectively analyze the overall impact of each proposed energy-related regulation, policy and procedure, and to pass these analyses to decision makers in government and industry," he said.

The multi-discipline insti-

tute will initially involve approximately 15 and 10 graduate assistants from most of the colleges on the OSU campus.

Mize, a native of Big Spring, Tex., has been at OSU since 1972. He completed his undergraduate studies in industrial engineering at Texas Technological College. His M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in industrial engineering are from Purdue University.

He has received various awards from the Oklahoma Society of Professional Engineers, the American Institute of Industrial Engineers, Purdue University and the Governor of Oklahoma for spearheading studies of engineering techniques to improve the quality of life in the state and the nation.

Politics makes for strange alignments

Save for those die-hards who refuse to accept the consequences of the Civil War, the Union of South Africa's apartheid stance has always been incompatible with the philosophy of the average American.

The Russian blitzkrieg into Afghanistan, however, could cause the United States to seek closer ties with South Africa. Politics and geopolitics makes for some strange bedfellows.

IT'S NOW BECOME obvious what Russia is up to in the Middle East: Bring Afghanistan, Pakistan and Iran into the Russian orbit one way or another, thereby cutting off Western oil supplies, and insuring a sorely-needed warm-water port.

The best minds in the West think that the Soviet strategy is long range, that they want to cast a shadow as far into Africa as Kenya and other countries on the African coast.

It is as if the United States were awakening for the first time to the threat of Russian expansion. President Carter has said the U.S. would join a consortium of countries in the Middle East and Western Europe to protect Pakistan following the Soviet invasion of her neighbor, Afghanistan. It may take more than that.

Carter would use air and naval facilities offered by Oman, Kenya and Somalia, to defend the Persian Gulf area against possible Soviet expansionism.

For a long time, South Africa has been the whipping boy of the civilized world because of her internal policies. As a result, her warnings of Soviet aggression in Africa have gone unheeded.

Now the Americans find themselves in the situation of beefing up their naval base at Diego Garcia in the Chagos Archipelago in the Indian Ocean while Simonstown, with ready-made facilities and a strike capability in the Indian Ocean, is disregarded.

The Simonstown base could be vitally important in protecting the Cape sea route carrying oil to America and Europe.

A CHINESE DIGNITARY has proposed a global alliance to check the Russians' operations in which much-maligned South Africa could play a key role.

The Afghan crisis has again underlined the world's fears about Moscow's designs on the West's oil lifelines, starting in the shaky Gulf area and winding around the Cape along the super-tanker route to Europe.

The South Africa navy and air force could play a key role in policing the Cape sea lanes and the strategic Mozambique Channel. (And the South African military forces do have awesome fire power, let it be added.)

It will take a major rethink by the West before South Africa could come into her own as a watchdog of the Indian Ocean. The country has the resources and the ability to cope. It now needs the support of the West.

Things improving

Around the rim

Andrea Cohen

"The name is Loyce," the man said to me. "L-O-Y-C-E?" I asked. "No. L-O-I-S." "Oh, Lois!" "That's right," he said. "Loyce."

Yes, it really happened. I still have an accent problem though things are improving. But people are becoming more patient. They have to. I don't think they have any other choice.

I OFTEN GET asked how certain things are going after I've gripped in a Rim. And one of them is if I'm having an easier time understanding people.

Well, the answer is yes — basically. I'm used to it. But sometimes — I get a conversation like this.

Where are you from?
Philadelphia.
Wow. You're a long way. Do you like Big Spring?
Yes.
Do you miss the north?

Every so often. Like now, as I watch the Winter Olympics.

And in answer to those who ask me what else I miss about Philly, the answer is easy. All-night supermarkets, good seafood, a steak sandwich made correctly, a bigger selection of Jewish food, the Philadelphia Inquirer, Philadelphia Magazine and Mom's home cooking.

I get asked many other questions referring to my Rims. For instance, Has your check book balanced yet?

No.
Do you still get disgusted with the telephone company?

Yes. Especially the twelfth of the month when my bill comes.
Have you done your income taxes yet?

No. I needed more forms and some records from up north. Everything has arrived. I have no more excuses. My heart is beating faster.

Do you still hate Richard Nixon?
Yes.
Do you still think Jimmy Carter runs a kinky dink administration?

Yes.
Do you still believe in abortion?

I NEVER SAID THAT. I said it's a woman's choice and not the choice of a bunch of people who have never met her. If she wants to have it, fine. If she doesn't, fine. But I never forget that every birth is a miracle.

Have you decided what to do with the ten pennies yet?
No. There's still sitting there.

Do you still have a crush on Robert Redford?
Yes.

Do airports still drive you up a wall? Yes, along with the airlines and their schedules.

Are you de-yank-ee-ised yet?
Someone who will remain nameless says he has given up trying to de-yank-ee-ise me. He said I'm a lost cause.

Blue plate miracles

William F. Buckley, Jr.

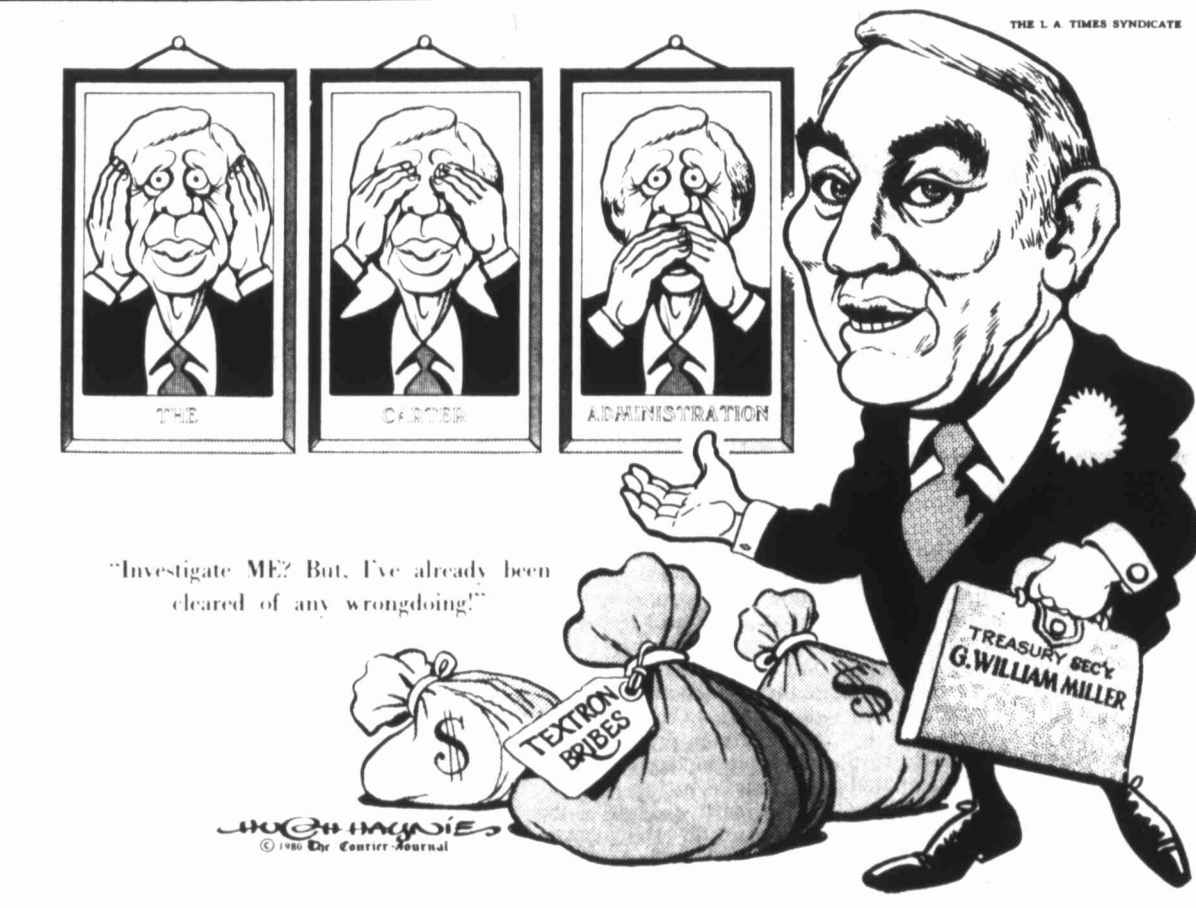

Merv Griffin, a national institution of long standing, manages on his television program to bring together, and somehow to make sing in barbershop harmony, men of quite disparate vocation and temperament. I mean, would you believe a two-act opera featuring Milton Friedman, the Nobel winning economist who sings the song of the free marketplace as the flower of rationalism, alongside the Rev. Ernest Angley, the Topeka-based faith healer who, to be sure with circumspection, presents himself as capable of healing other people's blindnesses even as, manifestly, he cannot cure his own baldness?

ADD RICARDO MONTALBAN — all of them there, taking their turn before Merv Griffin, in the altogether wholesome pursuit of commerce. Mr. Montalban has completed his autobiography, and anyone listening to his account of his life under the prodding of Merv, may or may not wish to get the fuller account from the book, but Montalban found it perfectly easy to answer, as debonairly as he would a question asking him how many times a week he plays golf, the question how frequently could he be intimate with his wife given the Catholic rubric on birth control. The marvel of it is that there are people like Montalban who can say, without giving offense, a) I am a Catholic; b) I accept the regulations of the Catholic Church in respect of birth control; and c) I and my wife (Loretta Young's sister, by the way) are very happy with our four children. And now ladies and gentlemen, I give you the Reverend Ernest Angley.

THE REVEREND ANGLEY hails from Akron, Ohio, and Merv tells us that his followers are legion ("millions"), that his personal congregation is 6,000, his television audience infinite. The Reverend Angley advises the audience that the power of Christ includes the power to heal, and before we know it, Merv has hoisted the screen on which we see a video tape of the Reverend Angley working his "Ah never said it was me. It's the Lord Jesus Christ, Ah'm just his instrumentality" numinous fingers on the closed eyelids of an elderly lady, blind, who has been brought forth by her daughter, an unbeliever, to be cured.

The Reverend Angley needs first to cope with the skepticism of the daughter, who exorcises herself on stage, before the cameras. Whereupon the Reverend Angley lifts his thumbs to the eyelids of the mother, who opens her eyes and declares that, suddenly, she can see except for a "blur" in her left eye. Don't you worry about that, sweet-heart, says the Reverend Angley in effect, reapplying his thumbs to the lid of the imperfect eye. Upon contact with which, the old lady pronounces herself fit to spot a cow jumping over the moon. Indeed, the Reverend Angley informs Merv, since that miracle the old lady has read through the Bible once, has read other materials, and is restarting the Bible. And majorem Dei gloriam, which means to the greater glory of God, which is not only OK by me, I am fervently in favor of the whole idea.

Milton Friedman comes on, to talk about his new book, "Free to Choose," which is an eloquent indictment of the efforts of the public sector to do good, resulting almost inevitably in brilliant achievements in mischief. Dr. Friedman's resourcefulness and eloquence are likely recognized, and although he does not dispose of the problem at hand with the facile supernaturalism of Dr. Angley, he is visibly disconcerted by the juxtaposition of economic rationalism and supernaturalist eye opening.

"Investigate ME? But, I've already been cleared of any wrongdoing!"

Migraine and foods 'revisited'

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: In a column that discussed migraine headache, you noted that allergies do not cause migraines. But it is certainly true that many foods do "trigger" them, some of the more common ones being chocolate, salt, monosodium glutamate and chemicals in cheese. I think you would do migraine sufferers a service by pointing out this fact. I realize that diet is only one factor contributing to migraine, but it is an important one, I think — Mrs. L.P.H.

You are absolutely correct. Sometimes if one bends over backwards to be correct one falls flat on one's fanny. Strictly speaking, an allergic reaction is due to the formation of certain proteins in the body in response to the presence of a foreign substance (antigen) meets the body substance (antibody) symptoms appear; an asthmatic attack, for example. That's allergy.

Strictly speaking, a migraine headache is thought to be due to a more dramatic event, a sudden narrowing of blood vessels in the head. The narrowing is followed by expansion — and there's your migraine headache. There is no evidence that this sequence of events is due to allergy as defined above.

Yet, many foods can trigger headaches because of a peculiar action of some substances in them, even though there is no antibody produced. The foods you mentioned are common "triggers," and avoiding them has helped many migraine sufferers. The difference between an allergic reaction and some other kind may be important to the medically precise. It means exactly nothing to the migraine headache sufferer. I apologize to those who may have misunderstood my previous comments. A great difficulty in discussing medical problems is medical terminology itself. It is not, one learns, used with great precision in daily language. Stick with me folks. I'm learning, learning. Later this week I'll discuss cluster headaches.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Can gall bladder stones cause upper back pain and chest pain sometimes around the heart without necessarily hurting where the gall bladder is? — A.R.

Yes, pain can be felt elsewhere than where the gall bladder is. Doctors call this "referred pain," and there are many other examples of it. Even appendicitis is felt at points other than at the site of the appendix at first. The gall bladder gets its nerve supply from the chest area, so pain is often felt in the chest and not in the abdomen. The same is true of appendicitis. Often a doctor suspects appendicitis only to find the patient has pneumonia. Conversely, often a doctor will immediately trace severe chest pain to a problem with one of the abdominal organs. This is how diagnosticians earn their money.

WASHINGTON — For the technological backward Russians, the United States is like a gigantic candy store stocked with super-sophisticated computers and other electronic goodies that simply don't exist in the Soviet Union.

But the Russians aren't content to press their noses, urchin-like, against Uncle Sam's display window and drool. What they want, they go after — and usually get.

SOME MILITARILY USEFUL technological equipment they acquire by lying. They solemnly assure the Commerce Department that the high-speed computers and machinery they want to buy will never be diverted to military use. I've already reported on the disgraceful laxity in our export control system that allowed the Red Army to ride into Afghanistan in trucks produced at a Soviet factory built with American know-how.

On the rare occasions when the Russians are rebuffed by the Commerce Department bureaucrats — who are more interested in encouraging exports by U.S. manufacturers than in the danger that we might be helping the communist military machine — they get what they want through third parties who buy the American equipment and resell it.

A secret Commerce Department report lists 16 cases that it says are typical of the flourishing international black market in high-technology items which are embargoed by federal law for sale directly to the Soviet Union.

THE REPORT STOPS short of naming the industrial pirates who traffic in U.S. technology to the detriment of our national security. It does name the manufacturers of the products that have been traced on their circuitous route to the Kremlin's armaments industry. Sources told my associate Dale Van Atta that the scale of the illicit transactions, and their strategic implications, have led the Justice Department to investigate some of the cases.

Here are some of the shocking examples the report lists:

Some highly sensitive Hewlett Packard gear was bought by another U.S. firm which is "believed to have acted in concert with a West German national by furnishing the controlled commodities domestically, knowing the intended illegal disposition" to the Soviet Union, where it ended up.

Miniaturized technology was sold to the British subsidiary of a U.S. firm without the proper licenses between June 1972, and March 1974. "Many exports were hand-carried to the United Kingdom and Bulgaria. One delivery was made to the Bulgarian Embassy in London."

Laser parts were exported to South Africa in 1977. The purchaser "misrepresented the intended use of the equipment, and with the help of a West German national is believed to have re-exported the equipment to the U.S.S.R."

Sensitive items were shipped to dummy firms in Canada, an ally on which few export controls exist. From there they were trans-shipped to Switzerland and then to the Soviet state firm Technopromimport.

A British subsidiary of a U.S. corporation bought computers from General Automation Inc., incorporated them into its own equipment and sold the resulting product to Hungary. The same subsidiary sent computers to Russia under a demonstration license for exhibit there, whereupon "another U.K. firm purchased the equipment from the subsidiary at the exhibition...and sold it to the U.S.S.R."

From 1976 to 1978, technical data relating to Intel Corp., integrated circuits was hand-carried to Austria, then to Poland, East Germany, the Soviet Union and possibly Red China.

"In October 1974, a U.S. firm exported (Texas Instruments) equipment without the requisite license by placing it on a Polish vessel under charter to a Norwegian company. The equipment was transported to Poland and installed in a Norwegian vessel. The latter vessel, reportedly, was subsequently sold to the U.S.S.R."

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Do you think it's possible for a person to confess faith in Christ and yet not change his way of living? — M.G.E.

DEAR M.G.E.: The Bible makes it clear that when we come to Christ our lives are to change. This change may not necessarily be dramatic; a person may not, for example, understand at first all that is involved in being a Christian. But the Scriptures indicate that a person who shows no change of life at all (either in action or in attitude) has not really experienced the spiritual new birth which comes from God. Faith by itself, if it is not accompanied by action, is dead. As the body without the spirit is dead, so faith without deeds is dead" (James 2:17,26). In other words, unless there is some indication of a change, there is no reason to believe that a person's faith is genuine.

The Bible suggests that there are actually several kinds of belief — only one of which is true, saving faith. For example, there is intellectual belief, in which you believe in your mind that something is true. Now it is important to believe that the facts of the Gospel are true — that we are sinners in need of God's grace, that Jesus Christ was God's Son who died on the cross for our sins, that by faith in Him we can be saved. But intellectual belief alone is not enough to save you. True, saving faith in the Bible involves actual commitment. You not only believe that Jesus Christ can save you, but you turn to Him in repentance and faith and trust Him, totally, for your salvation.

There are many people today — including many who may be members of a church — who may believe that the Gospel is true, and yet they have never been born again. They have never taken that step of commitment and yielded themselves to Jesus Christ as Savior and Lord.

A person who truly trusts Christ will begin to understand how great God's love is for him. He will want to leave sin behind and serve God in his life. He will want his life to change, so others "may see your good deeds and praise your Father in heaven" (Matthew 5:16).

Big Spring Herald

Mailbag

Dear Editor:

I made my usual trip to the City Council meeting when they approved the audit for the City for the year ending 9-30-79. I did not have access to a copy of the audit until a day before the meeting, but in checking over it I found the following facts and figures which I believe will be of interest to the citizens, which figures were not reported by the Herald in its article on the meeting:

In my opinion there are five operating funds, some of which are consolidated with other funds. For the purpose of this letter reference will be made to the General Fund, the Enterprise Fund (which consist of the water and sewer fund and the airport fund), and the Intra-governmental Fund (which consist of the garage and warehouse funds).

As of 9-30-79 the General Fund had a cash balance of $24,818; the Enterprise fund had a cash balance of $1,320 (Water & Sewer $227.00 and Airport $1,093); and Intra-governmental Fund had a cash balance of $5,521 (garage $197 and warehouse $5,324). The three balances for these funds total $31,659 cash.

Liabilities for these accounts, with current accounts payable due on 9-30-79: General Fund $63,837; Enterprise Fund $183,837; and Intra-governmental Fund $48,138; for a total liability of $295,812; or a deficit between cash on hand and current accounts payable of $264,153.

These figures leave the City with a ratio of $1 to pay each $9.31 of current accounts payable.

In addition to the above accounts payable, transfers back and forth from one fund to the other shows: Funds due from Other Funds: General Fund, 147,500; Enterprise Fund, 8,100; Intra-Gov. Fund, 7,375; Totals 162,975. Funds Owed to other Funds: General Fund, 12,790; Enterprise Fund, 301,500; Intra-Gov. Fund, 27,000. The difference from funds due and funds owed ($341,290 less $162,975) is $178,315. The question now is from what fund sources has this $178,315 been borrowed?

I found that under the TRUST & AGENCY ACCOUNTS, "SOCIAL SECURITY AND WITHHOLDING TAX," a loan of $98,000 was made to the Water & Sewer Fund. I have not been able to identify the other funds from which such funds were borrowed, but they are all apparently restricted accounts — just as the Social Security and Withholding Tax fund is restricted — and actually is a "Trust Fund" held by the City for money withheld from employees checks and matched by the City until the same is due to be paid the Internal Revenue.

I realize these are mighty big figures — for the citizens to deal with — and likewise for me to sift through. But what it all boils down to is that these funds have approximately $460,000 worth of current liabilities and funds due to other funds, with only approximately $30,000 to pay them. This means that in order to balance out the $430,000 will have to be deducted from funds received for the current year to pay for expenses incurred during the fiscal year ending 9-30-79.

This is more commonly called "deficit spending" — which no one can afford except governmental agencies who, having overspent their budget, come back to the tax tired citizens and say, in effect, the cost of services must increase, or ad valorem taxes must be raised — while the same tax tired citizen is called upon to tighten his belt and get by with fewer necessities in order to pay for the extravagance of a governmental body that only deals with facts and figures when it is forced to — and then deals with them by assessing them back to the individual citizen.

There has to be an easier way to pay as we go — but this method will have to be devised by a new Council conscious of spending as it goes.

PEKING (AP) — On a billboard towering over one of Peking's bustling shopping streets, an enormous astronaut strides across the surface of the moon. An offshore oil rig shimmers in the sunset.

"China is in the course of a modernization drive," says the billboard in red Chinese characters. "Kodak is proud it can make a contribution."

The new billboard is one of several purchased by American firms. SmithKline Corp., the pharmaceutical company, advertises along the capital's main avenue, pushing cold tablets, stomach medicine and medical testing equipment.

A planned Coca-Cola billboard will be the newest addition to a surging advertising campaign for foreign goods in China.

Some 30 foreign firms have rented billboard space in Peking, and about 70 Chinese enterprises are touting their wares to foreign buyers in prime locations.

China solicits foreign outdoor advertising through its Peking and Shanghai advertising companies, said Ling Wang Juan, a spokesman for the Peking enterprise.

"Any good businessman working abroad knows advertising is a very important part of his business," Ling said in an interview. "China is not much of an immediate market, but it is potentially a great market and that's why they are advertising here."

Foreign companies request their location and design their billboards. They are painted by Chinese artists.

Kodak's billboard and those for several other companies are at least twice the average size. In full color, it touts the virtues of Kodak photographic equipment, processing, microfilm and industrial and medical photographic equipment.

Foreign advertising was accepted before the cultural revolution, but it was banned during that 10-year period from 1966 to 1976 when China turned inward, emphasizing self-reliance and rejecting foreign influences.

Now billboards are making a comeback, especially in the more cosmopolitan port city of Shanghai.

"This is only our first batch. We are just beginning," said Ling. "Advertising has a great role to play in our nation's future. Advertising is something which enhances trade between our two nations. "Therefore," he said pragmatically, "it is allowed."

He noted that foreign products can be bought only with foreign currency and most Chinese do not have it. "Ordinary citizens are not able to buy Kodak film," Ling said.

CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION — These five women were among those that participated in the celebration of the Texas Woman's Missionary Union's 100th birthday at the Calvary Baptist Church Feb. 13. Left to right, clad in period costumes dated back to 1880 are Mrs. J. C. Pickle, Mrs. Fe Acosta, Mrs. Mabel Kirkland, Mrs. A. L. Gatewood and Mrs. J. L. Baugh.

Women dress the part for WMU Centennial

Approximately 65 women from 18 Baptist churches in the area gathered at Calvary Baptist Church Feb. 13, to begin the year-long celebration of Texas Woman's Missionary Union's 100th birthday.

Many of the women, outfitted for the Centennial Celebration in period costumes from 1880 and forward to the modern woman, enjoyed a time of fun, fellowship and history. The history of Texas Woman's Missionary Union was based on the recent publication by Inez Hunt, A Pilgrimage of Faith. Elizabeth Pickle served as history teacher as she interviewed women representing the 12 Texas WMU presidents who told of important events which happened during their tenure of office.

Following a salad luncheon, Mrs. R.C. Thomas, Associational Centennial Director, recognized various achievements such as, the oldest woman present, the youngest, those who had been in WMU 40 years or more, those who had served in WMU earlier, and the officers of today.

On display were items of yesteryear which each owner identified. Mrs. A. L. Gatewood, WMU Director, urged all the women to be faithful in their Christian pilgrimage in order that women who follow might be inspired to follow our Christian heritage.

San Angelo retreat is rescheduled for March 1

The local unit of the Texas Chapter of the National Association of Social Workers met for the regular noon luncheon on Feb. 13, at Herman's Restaurant. Gordon Cavnar, chairman, conducted the meeting.

Chuck Preston reported that the membership committee has approached several new prospects, and two have signed up. Further efforts are being made with other social workers.

Bill Shaffer reported that the "retreat" in San Angelo was cancelled due to bad weather. This trip has been rescheduled for March 1, 1980.

The chairman of the publicity committee, Jake Glickman, reported that the Herald has been very responsive in publishing articles about the meetings, and will continue to put reports of them in the paper.

There were two guests present, Elsa Bains and Dale Piper, from the Abilene Mental Health and Mental Retardation Center.

Dear Abby

In This Home, Gay Means Sad

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from the young boy who suspected that his sister was gay because she and her girlfriend ate, slept and even bathed together. (You told him not to worry—that it was probably just a warm friendship.) Well, I have a daughter I'll call Karen, who also had a "warm friendship" with a classmate named Rita. We thought nothing of it until Karen told us that she and Rita were "in love." They were both 18. We were shocked and sickened, and forbade Karen to see Rita again. We even saw a psychologist with her for several months without any success. That was two years ago. Now Karen has moved into an apartment with Rita, and they plan to live happily ever after.

We are ashamed and heartsick. Now I wish we had never found out because we feel so helpless. Karen refuses to change; she insists she's "happy" as she is. We think she's sick or twisted, and wonder where we went wrong, where we failed.

We raised two daughters. The older one is happily married. We never considered the possibility that this could happen in our family.

Abby, how do parents learn to cope with a problem like this? We've tried for two years and it's still as repulsive as ever. I am too ashamed to give my name and address.

HEARTSICK

DEAR HEARTSICK: First, get over the notion that you have "failed." You haven't. No one "knows" what causes homosexuality, but consider this: Karen's sister was raised by the same parents in the same house as Karen, and she turned out to be heterosexual. Doesn't this suggest that perhaps homosexuality could be an inborn biological trait?

For enlightening information, write to: Parents of Gays, 201 W. 13th St., New York, N.Y. 10011, or Box 24528, Los Angeles, Calif. 90024. Be sure to enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope. They are a fine, non-profit, support group who perform a life-saving service for parents (such as you) who love their children dearly but are heartsick because they don't understand homosexuality and can't accept it.

One thing is certain, God made gays just as surely as He made straights. And all His children are entitled to live and love in dignity, without shame or guilt.

DEAR ABBY: You told of the "Orr Maneuver" in which a Mr. Orr tape-recorded the annoying barking of a neighbor's dog, amplified it, and played it back at the dog. The pooch was quickly silenced.

Well, that maneuver has even a better use: My friend, "Tiny," a Phoenix insurance executive who needed his sleep, lived about 10 feet from a house of heartless klutzes who played their stereo at a high decibel volume until well after midnight every evening.

Polite protests to the neighbor got him nowhere, so one evening Tiny recorded their music, set a loud speaker just inside his fence facing their bedroom window. He turned the volume on high and played their own concert back to them 3 o'clock in the morning!

Once was enough. Problem solved.

OREN A. IN LAGUNA HILLS

DEAR OREN: Thank your friend, "Tiny," for the free sleep-insurance-policy. I'll underwrite it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO STEADY READER IN KANSAS CITY: No one described "friendship" better than George Eliot: "Oh, the comfort, the inexpressible comfort, of feeling safe with a person, having neither to weigh thoughts nor measure words, but to pour them all out just as they are, chaff and grain together, knowing that a faithful hand will take and sift them, keep what is worth keeping, and then, with a breath of kindness, blow the rest away."

Getting married? If you want a traditional wedding or a do-your-own thing ceremony, for some great ideas write to Abby for her "How to Have a Lovely Wedding" booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Join an Extension Homemakers Club

Learners — doers — shakers — movers — are all good descriptive adjectives for Texans belonging to Extension Homemakers Clubs.

They are people interested in learning to weatherize their homes, save energy, improve nutrition, garden, preserve food, cook, decorate, do household repairs, manage their finances, sew, care for their health, and dozens of other concepts and skills that help them cope with today's world and enjoy life more.

Members learn through regular meetings with programs presented by through booklets, fact sheets, newsletters, demonstrations and field trips.

Homemaker club members have an influence for good that extends beyond their own club and family into their communities — they help make their communities better places to live for all residents.

During the past year, Homemaker clubs worked toward improvement of community services. Some service projects were health related. Homemakers sponsored and assisted with CPR training and mental health activities. Other projects were related to safety, including defensive driving and poison prevention.

Projects benefitted the lives of the less fortunate. Time and money were donated to the state hospital, needy families, senior citizens, nursing home residents and child care facilities.

One unique phase of Extension Homemakers Club work is the training offered by the Extension Service for all Club officers. This enables officers to know what is expected of them and increases their satisfaction in doing a good job. State and district meetings provide homemakers an opportunity to learn new things and to share with others what they've learned.

You too can join a group of learners and doers — phone Janet Rogers, County Extension agent at 267-8469 today. Howard County has nine clubs. You may wish to contact one of the club presidents.

They are listed as follows: Airport Club, Mrs. Vern Vigar; Centerpoint Club, Mrs. J.R. Petty; City Club, Mrs. Frances Zant; Coahoma Club, Mrs. B.L. Mason; Creative Homemakers, Mrs. Gordon Cavnar; Elbow Club, Mrs. Ben Boroughs; Fairview Club, Mrs. C.A. Smauley; Spring City Gals, Mrs. Rodney Fugua; or Lomax County Girls, Mrs. Robert Adkins.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Skit is presented

The home of Mrs. D.H. Griffith was the site of the Feb. 12 meeting of the Center Point Extension Homemakers Club. Co-hostess was Mattie Wren. Mrs. J.R. Petty, president, presided over the 14 members present.

A skit was presented on health by a group of members, including Reba Griffith, office nurse; Irene Smith, the mother; Lola Mitchell, the daughter; and Zan Burriell, the physician.

Mrs. Petty was elected as the nominee delegate to attend District Meeting April 21 in Monahans. The door prize was received by Mrs. Aldan Ryan.

New info on drugs

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Teens: It's been known for a long time that the drugs taken by a prospective mother can affect the health of her unborn baby but recent research by Dr. Lester Soyka and Dr. Justin Jaffe, both of the University of Vermont, indicate that drugs taken by the prospective father can also cause harm.

Testing was done with morphine and Methadone because these drugs are so widely abused.

This finding places an equally important responsibility on the male not to get involved in the drug scene.

Dr. Wallace: I read your column about the white girl who had family problems because she was dating a black boy. I'm a 17-year-old Mexican-American girl who has the same problem. I don't need any advice but I'd like to tell my story. I feel like I need to get it off my chest.

I'm dating a black guy who I like very much. Yes, my parents are prejudiced and yes, they told me that if they caught me dating a black that I would have to leave home.

This shows my parents are more interested in what people say than in my happiness. I've been seeing this boy for over three months, behind my parents' backs and I don't feel I'm doing anything wrong.

I love my parents but I can't allow them to dictate who I can or cannot see. Can you see my point of view? — Carla, El Centro, Calif.

Carla: Yes, I can see your point, but I don't feel you should be doing anything "behind your parents' backs." When you live at home, you should abide by the rules, regardless. If you find that you can't, then make plans to move out.

Dr. Wallace: It started as a joke but it ended in a problem. My friend and I told this guy that she liked him. She whistled and winked at him and told him that he had nice legs, and the guy took it seriously. Now he is mad at us because he found out the truth.

We did not mean to hurt him but I guess we did. Somehow saying you're sorry is not enough. Please tell us what to do. — Gina, Florence, Ala.

Gina: Sometimes the written word is more effective than the spoken. Find a nice appropriate card and both sign it and say something like, "We want to be your friend and we are honestly sorry that we hurt you."

Tell him you have both learned your lesson and that it will never happen again. Then make sure it doesn't.

Dr. Wallace: My best girlfriend misses a lot of school. Last week she told me that she would not miss another school day, but this week she missed four days. What can I do? I hardly ever see her. — N.L., Sulphur Springs, Texas

N.L.: Chronic school absences can usually be traced to permissive parents. Unfortunately there is little you can do except to keep setting a good example.

Write to Dr. Robert Wallace, TwEEN 12 and 20, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Pollution junkies

Corn, cabbage, cotton are becoming addicted

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Corn, cabbage, cotton and other crops have become addicted to sulfur dioxide pollution from power plants, and cold turkey withdrawal from the daily 15,000-ton habit could cost more than $300 million a year in crop losses, a Tennessee Valley Authority researcher says.

Eliminating or reducing the sulfur dioxide pollutants coming from TVA plants in seven states could eventually cut farm production as much as 10 percent, says J.C. Noggle, a TVA soil chemist in Muscle Shoals, Ala.

And to avoid such a costly crop loss, he said, farmers would have to spend more than $6 million annually to add sulfur to fertilizer.

Noggle has concluded after four years of research that air pollution from coal-burning power plants has taken the place of fertilizers in providing the sulfur nutrients needed by many crops.

"The air pollution problem is complex and this is just one little parcel of it,"

Noggle said. "But if we clean up the air, then the cost of putting sulfur back into fertilizers should be considered in the costs of the cleanup."

TVA, under pressure from court suits and the threat of fines, is spending $6 billion in a program that will raise its consumers' electric bills 10 percent by 1983 to reduce its sulfur dioxide pollution 40 percent over the next five years.

Sulfur dioxide has been linked with human lung ailments and even Noggle agrees that excessive sulfur pollution can harm plants. He has proposed more studies to determine the benefits of pollution to plant life, however.

"The notion that it is essential or desirable, or even marginally acceptable, to continue supplying sulfur indiscriminately by using polluted air masses instead of fertilizer is just that — fertilizer," said Norman Glass, a researcher for the Environmental Protection Agency in Corvallis, Ore.

Behind nitrogen, phosphorous and potassium, sulfur ranks fourth as the nutrient most needed by crops, Noggle said. It is a building block for protein and chlorophyll, the green substance that allows plants to use energy from the sun.

Sulfur is abundant in manure and, until 20 years ago when TVA developed new methods of producing nitrogen-based fertilizers, most plants got all the sulfur they needed as an incidental ingredient of fertilizer.

Moslem Brotherhood eight killed in Syria

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Syrian security forces killed eight members of the banned Moslem Brotherhood today in a gunbattle in the northern city of Aleppo, a high-ranking Syrian security source here said. There was no official confirmation.

The Moslem Brotherhood has been active for a little more than a year in Syria. It has been accused by authorities of carrying out a large number of assassinations and sabotage attacks against government targets.

The source said the security forces launched the dawn attack on a house after being told it had been used as a hideout by the underground group.

All eight members of the brotherhood hiding in the house were killed during a gunbattle, the source said. He had no word on whether there had been any casualties among the security forces.

The source said all eight were directly involved in a series of recent assassinations and other anti-government sabotage operations in the Aleppo district. He said the security forces found 24 automatic rifles, seven rocket-propelled grenade launchers and 22 rockets as well as handguns, grenades and explosives in the house.

The organization was accused of the massacre of 53 officer cadets in Aleppo's artillery school last June and of murdering three Russians — two military officers and a civilian adviser — in the central Syrian city of Homs last month.

The brotherhood, a fanatical Moslem sect, wants a close adherence to Islamic principles. The Syrian government has called it a tool of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

Rebounds ice Celtics

By the Associated Press
The way the Seattle SuperSonics were hitting, Dennis Johnson was a longshot to make one against the Boston Celtics.

But the way they were rebounding, actually it didn't matter.

"Seattle had better second shots than first shots all day," noted Boston Coach Bill Fitch, referring to the Sonics' incredible 32 offensive rebounds in Sunday's National Basketball Association game.

Johnson didn't need a second shot, though, putting one in from the baseline with 11 seconds left to give the Sonics a dramatic 109-108 victory over the Celtics in a battle of NBA superpowers.

Johnson's winning shot came "when I wanted it," said Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkens. "If he missed, we had the chance for the rebound."

The Sonics, Pacific Division leaders with a 45-16 record, were outshot by the Atlantic-leading Celtics (44-

15) from the field 48 per cent to 41. But they beat the Celtics off the boards by a whopping 71-52 advantage.

In other NBA games, Los Angeles trimmed Washington 111-107; Kansas City edged San Diego 108-107; Atlanta beat Detroit 108-99; Indiana topped Chicago 108-100; Denver defeated the Houston Rockets 112-99; Phoenix walloped New Jersey 128-98; Philadelphia outscored Cleveland 116-100; San Antonio nipped Milwaukee 135-134 and Portland whipped Golden State 103-98.

Lakers 111, Bulls 107
Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 25 points and Jamaal Wilkes added 23 to lead Los Angeles past Washington. Wilkes and Norm Nixon each contributed two points in the final 23 seconds to preserve the triumph for the Lakers, who trailed by 19 points at one stage.

Kings 108, Clippers 107
Otis Birdsong scored 30 points to lead Kansas City past San Diego. The Clippers had a chance to pull it out at the end, but Lloyd Free's jumper at the buzzer went off the backboard.

Hawks 108, Pistons 99
John Drew scored eight of his 18 points in the last quarter to protect Atlanta's victory over Detroit. The loss gave the Pistons a team-record 10 straight losses.

Pacers 108, Bulls 100
Billy Knight scored 26 points to lead Indiana past Chicago. Knight, coming off the bench, hit 11 of 13 shots from the field, pulled down 5 rebounds and handed out 3 assists.

Nuggets 112, Rockets 99
George Johnson scored 28 points to lead Denver over Houston. Johnson's career-high point total helped the Nuggets battle back from deficits in the first half as high as 10 points.

Suns 128, Nets 98
Truck Robinson and Paul Westphal led a third-quarter rally with eight points apiece as Phoenix ran away from New Jersey. The Suns put the game out of the Nets' reach with a 34-23 third quarter.

76ers 116, Cavaliers 100
Darryl Dawkins scored 27 points and pulled down 18 rebounds to lead six double-figure scorers as Philadelphia defeated Cleveland. Mike Mitchell led the Cavs with 26 points.

Spurs 135, Bucks 134
George Gervin scored 42 points and James Silas delivered the winning basket with a 15-footer at the 28-second mark to lead San Antonio over Milwaukee.

Trail Blazers 103, Warriors 98
Abdul Jeelani scored 26 points, including six in the final 3:18, as Portland broke a four-game losing streak by beating Golden State.

Connors wins

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Jimmy Connors eliminated Fritz Buehning 6-3, 6-3 in his third-round match and then defeated Harold Solomon 7-5, 6-2 in the quarterfinals to reach the semifinals of a rain-delayed $250,000 tournament.

In other matches, Brian Teacher advanced by beating Marty Riessen 5-7, 6-4, 6-1 and Andrew Pattison 6-4, 6-4; Peter Fleming whipped Eliot Teltscher 6-3, 6-4 in the third round and upset Guillermo Vilas of Argentina 6-1, 6-4 in a quarterfinal match.

TRAFFIC STOPPER — Houston Rockets forward Rudy Tomjanovich discovers Denver Nuggets Alex English between him and the basket. English and the other Nuggets put on a defensive effort that gave them a 112-99 win over the Rockets Sunday.

White melts Gold

The Runnels Junior High White Team played a thriller in Snyder, Thursday, for its final game of the season.

White defeated Snyder Gold, 42-41, to give the team its seventh straight win, and an 8-10 record for the season.

Runnels led 40-39 with less than a minute to play in the game. After Snyder missed its chance to take the lead, Runnels grabbed the ball, and went into a specially designed delay to protect against a turnover.

Officials, however, did not take kindly to the delay, and called a foul. Snyder again got the ball, and this time capitalized to take the lead, 41-40.

Runnels again took possession of the ball, but had it snatched away with 15 seconds left in the game. Then, as the clock ticked down to only 10 seconds, Charlie Reagan turned the tables, stealing the ball and sinking what proved to be the winning basket.

High scorers for Runnels were Victor Wilson, 16; Tom Dunnam, 10; Leon Barraza, 8; Charlie Reagan and Robert Porras, 4 each. Jay Gonzales was cited for excellent defensive play.

Baby no problem!

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — After she had her baby less than one year ago, champion figure skater Irina Rodnina of the Soviet Union had doubts about whether she would skate again. But her coach urged her on, and the payoff was golden — her third consecutive Olympic pairs gold medal.

Tears streamed down her face Sunday night as Rodnina and husband-partner Aleksandr Zaitsev stood on the highest step of the winner's platform after the pairs finals and listened to the Soviet Union national anthem.

"It's true, I cried a little," she said through an interpreter at a news conference later. "But I think it's only natural. Before the gold medal, it was a lot of work, doubts, and so on. It was a long way to go."

Their powerful performance led a one-two Soviet finish, with Marina

Cherkosova and Sergei Shakrai taking the silver medal and East Germany's Manuela Mager and Uwe Bowersdorff winning the bronze.

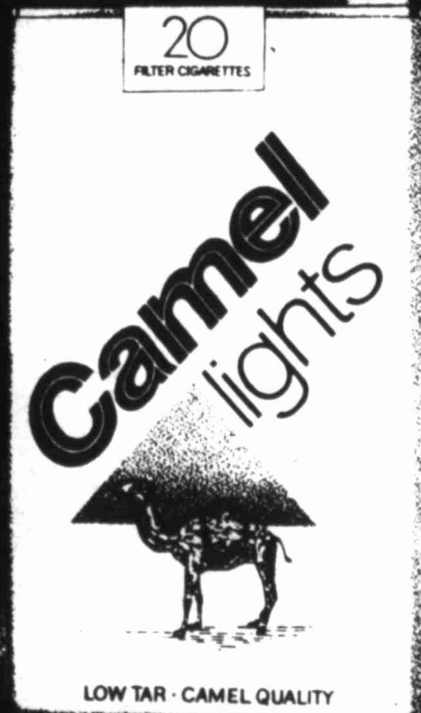

Americans Peter and Caitlin Carruthers, of Wilmington, Del., placed fifth and Sheryl Franks, Lexington, Mass., and Michael Botticelli, Weston, Mass., were seventh.

The Olympic figure skating events continued today with the men's compulsory figures, the first of three events leading to a medal. The No. 1 American skater, Charlie Tickner, is one of four medal favorites.

The Soviet champions received a large round of applause from the 8,500 capacity crowd at the Olympic Fieldhouse on Sunday. Afterward, Rodnina said she felt the audience was "positive toward me."

Chicago firefighters off job for fifth day

CHICAGO (AP) — Defiant union leaders vowed to keep firefighters off the job for a fifth day today, and said they would refuse to pay $40,000-a-day fines levied for ignoring a judge's back-to-work deadline.

There will be no work "without a signed, sealed" contract, Chicago Fire Fighters Union president Frank Muscare told 2,000 cheering members at a rally Sunday night.

"We're not going to pay. We might as well go to jail now," Muscare had vowed as he left court earlier in the day.

At a three-hour hearing, Circuit Judge John Hechinger told seven union leaders: "I beseech, I implore you...to order your men back to work."

Several fires were reported over the weekend, and one man was critically injured early today after a blaze in a North Side hotel room. About 40 striking firefighters reportedly heckled non-strikers who battled the fire.

On Sunday morning, a fire forced 60 residents to flee a South Side hotel, and 20 others were left homeless after a fire Sunday night at a West Side apartment building.

Hechinger issued a back-to-work order three hours after the strike by the 4,350 uniformed firefighters began Thursday and at the time set a 10 a.m. Sunday deadline for the firefighters to return.

The contempt citations came after the collapse of weekend bargaining sessions, mediated by Hechinger.

For several hours Sunday, the judge shuttled between negotiators in separate rooms in the courthouse, attempting to break the impasse.

However, Muscare said he could not "go back to the membership without a contract."

Charging the union with "willfully defying this court," the judge ordered fines of $25,000 a day against the union and $5,000 a day each against Muscare and Michael Lass, a field representative for the International Association of Fire Fighters. The remaining union leaders were each fined $1,000 a day.

He did not sentence any of the seven to jail.

The union's strike has just destroyed all the mayor's hopes for their ever acquiring a contract, Hechinger said.

He also issued a preliminary injunction prohibiting all fire department employees from continuing their first-ever strike, inducing others to strike or picketing fire stations.

Firefighters struck after the city refused to drop demands for a no-strike clause that would send disputes to binding arbitration. The written contract would replace the handshake agreements under which the firefighters have customarily worked.

At one point since the strike began, the city — with 3.5 million people — was protected by a crew of 289 men — officers, Fire Academy cadets and non-striking firefighters. Deputy Fire Commissioner Charles Pierce said during the hearing.

BREAKAWAY — Liberal leader Pierre Trudeau breaks from the crowd while skating at Toronto City Hall Sunday and bolts toward the photographer. Trudeau spends most of Monday in Ottawa awaiting election results, except for an appearance in Montreal in the morning to vote.

Canadian election

Trudeau's Liberals given giant edge

TORONTO (AP) — Canadians vote for a new Parliament today, choosing as leader either conservative Prime Minister Joe Clark or the politically "born-again" Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

Clark, elected only last May, asked for a "fair chance" to carry out his tough economic programs. But the opinion polls indicated the voters would not give him another chance, making his briefest tenure of any elected prime minister in Canadian history.

In large part a Clark defeat would be traceable to an attempt by his Progressive Conservative government to raise the gasoline tax by 18 cents a gallon.

Liberal Party chief Trudeau, Canada's prime minister from 1968 to 1979, tried not to appear too confident in the final days of the 67-day campaign. But after flying home to Ottawa

Sunday he told an airport crowd, "I can smell victory here."

Clark and his Progressive Conservatives insist the polls will be proven wrong.

The 40-year-old prime minister sounded like a cheerleader Sunday in a talk to parliamentary candidates in a restaurant high up in the needle-like CN Tower, 1,000 feet above this sprawling lakeside city.

"We had long odds," he told them. "...Don't let up for a moment...every second counts."

Some 15.4 million Canadians are eligible to vote in one of 282 districts that will send representatives to the House of Commons.

The weather, which can be terrible at this time of year, was forecast to be relatively mild nationwide. The turnout in the May 1979 election was 76 percent.

Most attention was focused on Toronto and the rest of Ontario, Canada's most populous province and the area where voter loyalties swing most readily from one party to another.

The last national Gallup poll gave the Liberals a 48-to-28-percent edge over the Conservatives among decided voters, and a 10-point lead in Ontario. But a Canadian Television poll showed the Liberals with only a 10-point lead nationally and a one-point edge in Ontario.

The Liberals can win more votes than the Conservatives and still lose the election, since so much of the Liberal vote is, in effect, wasted on big majorities in districts in solidly Liberal Quebec, while the Conservative vote is spread more evenly over districts in the rest of the country.

This happened in last May's election, when the Liberals received 40 percent of the vote and the Conservatives 36 percent, but the Conservatives won a plurality of 136 seats in Commons, and the Liberals won only 114. The socialist New Democrats won 26 seats, and the rightist Social Credit Party six.

The new election was called so quickly after the last election because the Liberals and New Democrats combined to topple Clark's minority government Dec. 13 in a parliamentary vote of no-confidence based on a proposed Clark budget.

Texans searching for romance

Bentsen playing cupid?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texans searching for romance are ready to try anything, apparently, even ask for a senator's help.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, received a letter from a constituent who wanted to sponsor an immigrant to the United States.

"I would like to sponsor a pretty young woman who would like to get married as soon as possible," the letter said. "I don't promise her a bed of roses but I think I can make her very happy."

The Texan said he would like his immigrant bride to be between 18 and 37 years old, have no more than one child and be able to become a citizen.

"When I get word that she is coming, before she moves in with me it that is possible, tell her that I make $7,000 a month. Tell her that I have one son," the letter said.

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, is postponing his traditional Texas Independence Day party in Washington this year by a day to participate in a March 2 ceremony at the Washington-on-the-Brazos state park.

The senator will be reading William Barrett Travis' letter from the Alamo.

He plans to read the letter again at his office party March 3.

The park is between Navasota and Brenham.

Rep. Jack Hightower returned from a congressional delegation's visit to Asia saying he plans to support President Carter's requests for military and economic aid to Pakistan.

"We certainly need to reduce tensions in every way we can within that area," the Democrat from Vernon said in an interview. "I think that area is very vital to our national defense."

Hightower said he believed the Pakistani government was increasing its domestic support and did not appear shaky. "I do not think that this is going to be a risk for us," he said.

The six congressmen toured Afghan refugee camps near the border, where Hightower said younger men are bringing their families before returning to Afghanistan to fight as rebels against the Soviet Union's troops.

The delegation also stopped in India and Saudi Arabia before returning Feb. 9 to Washington.

Hightower said Indian leaders were concerned about the possibility of U.S. aid to Pakistan but interested in reducing their border tensions.

He said Saudi officials were apprehensive about a possible pincer movement of Soviet influence and getting caught between the events to the north in Afghanistan and Iran and to the south in Ethiopia and South Yemen.

Former Texas Gov. John Connally spent about $160,000 for the national broadcast Thursday night of his "Freedom from Crisis" speech and fund-raising pitch for his campaign to win the Republican presidential nomination.

The broadcast took care of part of the $500,000 loan the campaign took out recently.
