Old Items Make New Displays At Pioneer Museum

Tahoka Pioneer Museum s received a number of teresting and valuable ms for exhibit the past few eks.

Last week, a pioneer ggy was donated by Dr. b J. Roberson and -in-law, Robert Lee Watns, of Levelland. A mi-retired dentist, Dr. berson's hobby is rebuildbuggies and wagons ich he gives to area seums. The restored ggy he gave Tahoka seum is valued at about $8,000 on the antique vehicle market.

The buggy was probably built by Columbus (Ohio) Buggy Works about 1895 to 1900. It is a fancy run-about type vehicle with a spring "boot" behind the seat. The buggy's body is black, running gear and shaves are painted red. Upholstering is red imitation leather, the carpet is red, and the enameled leather dashboard has a whip socket. The buggy is completely restored to usable condition.

Dr. Roberson has made donations of several team-drawn vehicles to Texas Tech Ranch Heritage Center, to Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum, Canyon, and to other museums.

Mrs. Ivan Cathcart has assembled and placed on display a pioneer-type kitchen, complete with wood stove, cabinet-safe, cooking utensils, dining table set with dishes, a churn, old pictures, and other items used in the early days.

Jack Alley Robinson has made available about 50 pictures from Col. C. C. Slaughter's and later Jack Alley's Tahoka Lake Ranch, dated about 1898-1910, Tahoka street scenes, family pictures, etc.

The G. R. Milliken daughters and Mrs. Ward Eakin have on display a number of relics and pictures from the A. R. McGonagill, Milliken, Joe Stokes, and Harrison families.

Mrs. Mozelle Guinn of San Angelo has donated $500 as a tribute to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Dyer, 1905 settlers, whose names will be placed on the honoree plaque. She also gave some early pictures.

Mr. and Mrs. Grayam George, New Home, donated the antique folding bed given his parents, the Elton Georges, as a wedding present back in 1905 by Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Petty. They also gave a number of pictures.

"Buck" and Neva (Doak) Barnes of Clovis, N. M., sent down several early day Tahoka pictures.

In addition to a number of pioneer pictures and Christian Church records, Mrs. Fenner (Juanelle Windham) Tubbs, Lubbock, has donated Dr. S. H. Windham's medical bag, a medical book, spurs, 1898 Dictionary, and other items.

Mrs. Clint Walker is assembling material for a pioneer doctor's office, and the Will Montgomery daughters are seeking an organ to go in an early day church exhibit.

Also, Police Chief Jack Miller is planning a peace officer exhibit booth, and Lynn County has donated an early day desk and chair for an office exhibit Mrs. Audie Norman is planning.

Bill Craig has just about completed restoration of an old Eclipse windmill to be installed inside the museum.

Winston and "Cap" Wharton, Jess Gurley, and others are completing booths for the office and peace officer exhibit.

Dr. Roberson, who first contacted Donald "Shorty" Williams in regard to donation of the buggy, has promised to restore an old wagon into a ranch-style chuck wagon if a suitable wagon can be found. Cass Edwards of T-Bar Ranch had previously donated a wagon, but two of the wheels on it have deteriorated too badly for restoration. If anyone knows of an old wagon that possibly can be restored, please notify Frank Hill, Dr. K. R. Durham, or Bill Craig.

DON'T KNOW if the job is up for grabs, but in e we need a new head man in the Federal mmunications Commission, maybe we could get Ayatollah Khomeini to take the job. He has gested that Iranian radio and television not any more music. And his suggestions are kind ke those Hitler used to make to his people.

he Iranian religious figure whose government been executing people it doesn't like said that ic "takes people out of reality to a futile and y livelihood...and makes the brain inactive and olous."

also hurts the eardrums if you listen to the most of the radio stations in the Lubbock area . And while a few play the kind of music I onally prefer when I want my brain inactive frivolous, I'd be willing to sacrifice what I like o get rid of all the racket that masquerades in ame of music.

ave often wished that juke boxes had a space em for three minutes of silence. I think a lot of would play that one in some of the pizza es and restaurants.

ntrary old Ayatollah has all the oil and all the r and now he wants to eliminate music on the ys. If he stops that, maybe we should start ing in Voice of America broadcasts featuring c.

Some Cleaned, Some Didn't

Residents did a good job around homes in Tahoka during the recent cleanup week, but some business property owners didn't do anything, the chairman of the Tahoka Chamber of Commerce Beautification Committee said this week.

Some businesses did do some weed-cutting and cleaning up which greatly improved their property, but others ignored it and a few downtown eyesores remain, said Winston Wharton. He commented that it would be of benefit to the entire town if some of these people would take care of their trash and weeds and rundown facilities.

Tahokans In Austin Hear Of Ways To Woo Industry

By DALTON WOOD

Five basic steps in industrial development of a community were discussed by staff members of the Texas Industrial Commission as an all-day seminar was conducted in Austin Monday for 19 Tahoka residents who took time out from their businesses to make the trip.

Community Development Consultant Homer Tucker, who guided the program conducted solely for the Tahoka group, was impressed by the good turnout of persons who paid most of their own expenses to Austin for the seminar as the trip was organized by the Tahoka Chamber of Commerce.

"This large turnout indicates the interest of the community leaders in the progress of the city of Tahoka," Tucker said, adding that past experience has shown that the cities which send delgations to Austin for the one-day training event have had a 3-1 edge over other cities attempting to attract new industry.

Favorable Outlook

Tucker and others on the program said that conditions currently are favorable toward attracting new industry from outside the state and for encouraging expansion of existing industries.

Along that same line, the group of Tahokans was reminded by Wayne Franke of General Telephone Co. that "the most important source of new jobs is in existing industry in your town...take care of the people you have." He pointed out that community leaders should take any opportunity to express appreciation and give help to those industries already operating in the city, and to encourage them to expand.

Chamber President Richard White and Vice-President Jim Chambers, who organized the trip, led the delegation to Austin. The group which boarded an airliner in Lubbock early Monday morning and returned late that evening also included:

Mrs. Betsy Adams, Arlys Askew, Frank Barrow, Melvin Burks, Eual Davis, Ed Hamilton, Charlie Louder, Tommy Lawson, Lionel Miller, Gerald Moore, Larry Phillips, Carl Reynolds, Harold Roberts, Jim Solomon, Winston Wharton, Dalton Wood and Joe Hays.

Appearance Factor

The first of the five steps outlined by the group as necessary to a program to attract industry or new residents came under the heading of "attitude and appearance."

Tucker showed slides illustrating what other communities had done to improve the appearance of downtown areas and the approaches to the city, including Littlefield, which renovated its downtown section a few years ago. He stressed that any beautification project requires the cooperation of everyone.

The second step involves "research, analysis and planning" and was presented by Chuck Newell and Danny Choate. Choate discussed data processing and how the Texas Industrial Commission (TIC) can provide statistical data to communities regarding themselves and comparing them to other communities which may be competing for industry. He also said the TIC can give information on the expected impact of the payroll of a specific industry on a community.

Tucker presented step 3 on helping prospective industries to obtain financing. He discussed financing from Small Business Administration, Farmers Home Administration, money from local lending institutions, and combination packages which the TIC will help put together to get an industry in business in a community. He also discussed a new revenue bond bill which passed the recent legislature, making it possible for local non-profit industrial corporations to issue revenue bonds to finance new industry, and told how such a local corporation could be set up.

"Evaluating, securing and presenting industrial sites" was listed as step 4 and was presented by Joe Ferran of TIC. Commenting that a prospect will want to look only at a site definitely available, Ferran urged the group to find sites and then be sure they can be optioned or bought if needed. Among items to consider in site selection, he mentioned rail service, shape and number of acres in the property, prevailing wind direction, zoning, drainage, easements, utilities, proximity to highways and adjacent properties.

Opening the afternoon session, Tucker stated that industry makes decisions based mainly on three factors: raw material availability, market proximity and labor availability. He gave illustrations as to how each factor has worked to bring industry to some cities.

Step 5, "where to find prospects," was presented by Franke, who stressed that although this usually seems to be the first thing people want to do--go out hunting prospects--it really should not be first. "You have to do your homework first, and get all these other things taken care of before you go wooing prospects," he said. Urging creation of an industrial team in Tahoka, he said each member should be well informed in a specific area, such as financing possibilities for industry. "You also need to cultivate people with ideas," he declared, "encouraging any citizens to come to the chamber or industrial foundation with any ideas for new industry or ways to create new jobs, even if it is something which means only three or four new jobs in town." Also, he said, tips and leads from citizens on prospects for new businesses should be sought.

In closing, Tucker touched on the importance of considering existing buildings, saying that 87 per cent of inquiries received by the TIC have been seeking existing buildings. He concluded by again commenting on the number of persons who made the trip from Tahoka and added:

"Get everybody you can thinking about economic development and improvement in the community and you can do anything you want to in Tahoka."

TAHOKA GROUP IN AUSTIN-- These Tahoka business persons made the trip to Austin Monday for a training seminar on attracting industry. The photographer was there, too...

Youth Tries To Enter Woman's Home Here

Several prowler incidents in the north part of the city recently were believed to have been cleared this week with the arrest of a 14-year-old Mexican youth who reportedly tried to get into a woman's apartment here Sunday night.

According to witnesses, a young man came to the front door of the apartment and asked to be admitted "to use the phone." The young woman living there refused to admit him, and called police. When an officer arrived, he chased the suspect on foot, but could not catch him. However, a bicycle was left at the scene, and officers traced the suspect from this, apprehending him the next day.

According to police, the youth also has been a suspect in some obscene phone call incidents here.

Law enforcement officials released the youth in custody of his parents with a warning that the parents would be held liable for any further incidents.

Police also investigated a report of some gas caps stolen from Bray Chevrolet recently, and a report of theft of a .22 rifle belonging to James Roberts.

The Lynn County Sheriff's Dept. Wednesday morning was investigating a report of a burglary at Bryant Seed & Delinting north of town. No details were immediately available.

Deputies also investigated a trailer home burglary near FM212 and U.S. 380, the home of Al Craig. Stolen were a television set, sleeping bags, camera, watch and clothing. The burglary was reported Saturday.

Also reported by Roy Kahlich of Wilson was theft of 30 joints of 5-inch pipe from farm property off U.S. 87 near the Lubbock County line.

Publisher Is Club Speaker

Mistakes that have been made by the speaker and others in news stories of papers where he has worked was the subject of a talk at Rotary last Thursday by Dalton Wood, editor and publisher of The Lynn County News.

Most of the errors he told about were typographical errors which turned out to be on the ridiculous side, humorous to the readers and sometimes embarassing or even tragic on some occasions to the publisher. Most of his stories were of errors he had made or seen made while working for the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, the Dallas Times-Herald and the Plainview Herald.

President Jim Solomon stated most reports from committee chairmen were in preparatory to the upcoming visit of District Rotary Governor J. Davis Armistead.

Dear Editor:

This morning was just the "last straw" which caused me to write to the Editor concerning the loose dogs in Tahoka. (Yep, here's another one).

Each morning, for some time, a red Dachshund enjoys a swim in the pond out front. Now, I know it's tempting and irresistable to most dogs to enjoy during these hot summer days; but I don't like it, the fish, which are being killed one by one, don't like it; and the water lily given to me by a friend doesn't thrive after being dragged out onto the lawn by this red dog!

We love our dogs, too; enough to keep them in our own yard. I wish the dog owners in Tahoka would realize that not everyone loves their dogs as much as they do.

We've been serenaded most all night each night by Beagles, which are never penned up. They've destroyed our property to the extent of $75.00; our dogs have been attacked in our front yard by good "lovable pets" of the nice people here.

I wonder when dog owners intend to obey the law...or, are they "EXCEPTIONS"?

You can develop eye strain, altered depth perception, a distorted view of surroundings and a chance for physical injury if you buy the wrong kind of sunglasses. The American Society for the Prevention of Blindness recommends holding the sunglasses at half an arm's length, then looking at an object with strong horizontal and vertical lines. If the lines seem to waver when you move the glasses sideways, up or down, the lenses are distorted. You should also check to see if lenses are of equal color and density. Otherwise, they may cause eye strain due to altered depth perception. Altered views of your surroundings could contribute to accidents. Odd shades of colored lenses are not recommended. The best colors for your eyes are grey or smoke color, followed by green or brown tints. If you can look in a mirror and see your eyes while wearing sunglasses, they are not giving adequate protection against the sun's glare.

COTTON TALKS

FROM PLAINS COTTON GROWERS, INC.

The crop protection bill reported recently by the House riculture Committee doesn't even come close to meeting objectives of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., Lubbock, ording to Joe D. Unfred of New Home, PCG President. PCG's policy calls for extending the current disaster pro- m until it is proven that an all-risk crop insurance program workable and adequate replacement.

"It will take several years just to determine if the crop rance plan envisioned by the Ag Committee bill will act the level of producer participation necessary to make work at all," Unfred states, "and there is serious doubt it ever provide the protection High Plains producers need inst weather hazards and other conditions beyond their trol."

Without an extension, the present disaster program will re with the 1979 crop. The Senate Committee, perhaps eeing that it will take time to develop and prove the osed insurance program, earlier reported a bill which ld extend the disaster program for 1980 and give pro- ers a choice of the disaster program or Federal crop rance in 1981.

The House measure, while it would make the disaster ram available to all cotton, wheat, feed grain and rice ducers in 1980, would deny disaster program eligibility 981 to producers in all counties where the new Federal rance was generally available.

To its credit, the House Committee did approve in its authority for the Secretary of Agriculture to make the ster program available to producers in 1981 if on a county ational basis he determines that Federal crop insurance tection is inadequate, or if he determines it is necessary chieve compliance with set-aside or diversion programs. It hasn't been made clear exactly what this latter 'if' ns," Unfred said, "but I wouldn't want to count very ily on the Secretary admitting that the insurance program sored by him and his administration is not affording quate protection', particularly when such an admission t occasion an additional Federal expenditure."

Unfred is quick to note that Congressmen from this area are on the Committee, Kent Hance of Lubbock and les Stenholm of Stanford, served their constituents well ttempts to get an unconditional two-year extension of the ster program and in an effort to raise the level of govern- participation in premium costs.

The opposition was too strong on these points," he tinues, "but they were successful in removing a $200,000 tation on subsidized crop insurance and in deleting a irement that eligibility for insurance depend on com- nce with recommended soil conservation practices."

The outcome of the two bills is very much in doubt n they reach Senate and House floors, Unfred points "And if one or both fail to pass, we'll then be asking ress for a simple two-year extension of the disaster ram."

COTTON TODAY

A NATIONAL COTTON COUNCIL SERVICE

Cotton Use UP: The seasonally adjusted annual rate of U.S. mill fiber consumption rose to 6.44 million bales in June. Cotton's market share advanced a full percentage point above the year-to-date average. National Cotton Council economists attribute the increased consumption rate to strong consumer appeal of natural fiber fabrics like denim, corduroy, and velours and to excellent market acceptance of all-cotton durable press shirtings. Also significant is a substantial improvement in cotton textile export volume during the first half of 1979, combined with lower imports.

DUST STUDY HIT: Sen. Ernest Hollings (D-S.C.) has expressed concern about the failure of a Labor Department study to adequately assess less costly and more technologically feasible alternatives to OSHA's cotton dust standards. Hollings said that the study "falls far short of the intent of Congress...I strongly regret the shortcomings of the report and its failure to provide Congress with pertinent data and reasonable alternatives." In support of his statement, Hollings entered into the record a letter from National Cotton Council President Hoke Leggett and a copy of NCC's critique of the Labor Department study. Leggett stated it was clear that the Department had made "no serious effort to evaluate more cost-effective alternatives to the burdensome standards OSHA promulgated."

COTTON EXPORTS INCREASE: Exports of 92,200 running bales during the week ended July 15 brought the season's total to 5,689,000, compared with 5,020,100 a year ago. The week's new sales of 13,400 bales pushed total commitments for the current marketing year to 6,895,800, compared with 6,492,000 a year ago. New sales of 120,000 running bales for 1979-80 delivery brought the total to 2,352,600 thus far. Major buyers were China, Japan, Korea, and Thailand.

TRADE SERVICING TEAM REPORTS: Cotton Council International's trade servicing team reports that Philippine textile mills have expressed interest in cotton fiber properties necessary for open-end spinning and properties of U.S. medium and long staple fibers sitable for production of fine-count yarns. Local industry sorces also project increased consumption of U.S. cotton during FY 1979-80. Indonesian textile industry officials emphasized plans to expand the existing 1.5 million spindles to about 2.2 million by 1983-84. Harry Arthur of Lubbock is a member of the trade team.

AND COTTON YESTERDAY: The King Cotton March was written by Sousa in 1895.

Big poly bags of frozen vegetables are money Savers.

Pour out only as much as needed, and save the rest, suggests Gwendolyn Clyatt, a consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Congressional Comment

Washington, D.C. — Much of America's economic development in the early days of the Industrial Revolution can be attributed to the building of the railroads. Railroads are a safe and reliable form of transportation that could run in almost any kind of weather. During the latter half of the nineteenth century, owning a railroad was a sure road to wealth. European monarchs would pour millions out of the public coffers into American railroad stocks. Corporate wars were fought by robber barons over control of this transportation system.

Looking back on the history of the railroads it is hard to imagine that this once-thriving industry has fallen on such hard times. The idea that some railroads would one day become nationalized would have been considered heresy just 20 years ago. Railroading has been in decline and our whole economy is suffering because of it. This industry has been subjected to an extensive rate and service regulation system administered by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The ICC has been slow to act on numerous important cases, and often companies were not allowed to make a reasonable profit. Over the last several years the industry's rate of return has been around 1%, among the lowest for any economic sector in the Nation.

Not all of the blame, however, can be placed on the government. Railroads have lost much of their business to subsidized trucks, airplanes, pipelines, automobiles, and barges. The railroads did not stop growing because the need for passenger and freight transportation declined. . .that grew. The railroads are in trouble because often the need was not filled by the railroads themselves. Management has not been responsive to competition and has not shown a willingness to enter the 20th Century and compete. Labor is also to blame. Some labor rules that are in effect today date back to World War I. Prominent among these were rules of the "100-mile day" and other featherbedding techniques such as the use of firemen. The 100-mile day refers to the option open to train crews to elect to be paid a full day's pay for working eight hours or for operating a train for 100 miles. The two methods yielded roughly equivalent results in the World War I era, but today many trains cover much more than 100 miles during an eight hour period. By the late 1950's the transition of locomotives from steam to diesel was nearly completed but firemen have remained on many trains.

As this industry has become cash starved, services have declined and capital improvements have been delayed. A particularly critical area is the rail car shortage. The rail car industry reports a backlog of 50,000 cars. Also, a tremendous backlog has built up in the maintenance and capital improvement of roadways and equipment. The shortage is particularly severe during intervals of unexpected demand or peak demand periods. Our farmers have produced an unexpected large grain crop. Many of our elevators are full and wheat is being put on the ground because transportation facilities are inadequate. Farmers and elevator operators are unable to receive payment and their loans are running out. Because the shortage is nationwide we have few options in the short term. But eventually it is going to be essential that we formulate a national railroad transportation policy.

CHEERLEADERS RETURN FROM SMU-- The T. H. S. varsity cheerleaders and Hedy Bufe, their sponsor, returned Friday night from Dallas where they attended cheerleading camp at SMU. They were awarded three "excellent" ribbons, a "superior" ribbon, and a "Super Squad" Ribbon for doing an outstanding job. While in Dallas they also visited Six Flags Over Texas and a Texas Ranger baseball game. During the game the girls and Mrs. Bufe were recognized by the Rangers with a welcome flashed across the score board. Cheerleaders also expressed appreciation to Mr. and Mrs. Edwin and Cowboy Ed Roberson, Mr. and Mrs. Wainscott, and Miss Slack. Pictured, top to bottom, are head cheerleader Amy McNeil, Kellie Paris, Debby Gwin, Lani Brown, Andra Draper and Jhoni Caswell.

Little League All-Star Tournament

The Tahoka Little League Association was host to a 5 team all-star tournament in Tahoka. Teams entering the tournament were Slaton, Cooper, Post, North Lynn and Tahoka.

The tournament play began on Monday night July 16th. The first game was played between Slaton and Post with the second game between Cooper and North Lynn. Tahoka drew a bye so was not scheduled to play the first night. Slaton defeated Post in a close game 4 to 1 while Cooper defeated North Lynn All-Stars by a score of 21 to 2. Due to rains, the Tuesday and Wednesday games were rescheduled for Thursday and Friday.

Thursdays games matched Post with North Lynn and Slaton with Tahoka. Post won over North Lynn by a score of 34 to 1 to advance to Friday nights consolation game and Slaton defeated Tahoka to advance to Friday nights finals against Cooper.

Friday night proved to be two well played games. Johnny Morin pitched a shut out game for the Tahoka All-Stars to defeat the Post All-Stars by 2 to 0. Runs were scored by Danny Hart who walked in with bases loaded and Scott Isbell stole home for the second Tahoka run. This win over Post gave Tahoka the win for the consolation game.

In the finals, Cooper defeated Slaton 3 to 1 to win the tournament and advance to the Lubbock all-star play-offs. Bobby Mendez was the winning pitcher for Cooper and Steve Johnston was the losing pitcher for Slaton.

Coopers first place win gave them the honor of representing area 4 in the district Little League Tournament in Lubbock.

Congressmen To Add More Personnel

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 23, 1979--Congressman Kent Hance (D-Tx-19) last Friday voted in favor of a measure that allows U. S. Representatives to add four addition employees to their personal staffs.

Until last Friday, Congressmen were limited to a staff of 18, including part-time and summer employees. However, with the passage of a resolution offered by Rep. John Brademas (D-IN), Members will now be able to hire four part-time staffers in addition to 18 permanent staff persons.

The resolution gained wide support, passing the House 214 to 120 because the increase entails no additional money for salaries. But many viewed the move as merely a first step in eventually making the additions permanent and full-time.

Voicing that belief was Rep. Lucien Nedzi (D-MI) who called the move "a staff expansion resolution."

"However disguised, however sweetly argued, however cleverly sweetened [illegible] innocent-sounding definitions, it remains an unfortunate idea and a bad bill," Nedzi said. "What the resolution would allow - and encourage - is a 22 percent increase in personal staff. The practical effect is to raise the allowable number from 18 to 22."

Opposition was also based on the secondary effects the increase would have on Capitol Hill's facilities. Increased staff will mean increased requirements for office space, furniture and telephones. The move would also place an increased strain on the already overburdened parking and dining facilities available to House staff members.

"I personally believe that it is possible to have a better quality with fewer Numbers," Nedzi concluded. "Let us not entangle ourselves in a bureaucracy of our own making."
