Financial markets fighting way back

By The Associated Press

U.S. stock prices edged higher today, extending Monday's gains that had quelled fears of near-panic on markets in Europe and elsewhere around the world. The London and Tokyo stock markets, meanwhile, made strong recoveries today.

In New York, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 3.90 points to 846.46 in the first half-hour of trading. On Monday, the Dow index fell more than 14 points at the opening before rallying to finish with a gain of 18.55 points to 842.56 — its best daily gain since March 25, when it rose 19.09 points.

The Japanese market, which closed before Europe's opened, gained back all of its losses, recording its biggest one-day rise after its worst single-day decline in history Monday. The Nikkei Dow Jones index of 225 major stocks, which lost 302.84 points Monday, recovered 320.56 points to close at 7,357.68.

In London, brokers raised prices sharply as soon as the market opened. By midday, the Financial Times index of 30 industrials had climbed 18.1 points to 475.6, more than wiping out Monday's 17.2-point loss.

General Electric, one of the hardest hit stocks in a two-week slump, rose nearly 7 percent, from $11.52 to $12.31, in the first five minutes of hectic trading.

"It's a big bonanza," said one London broker. "After the panic rush to get out on Monday, it looks like a panic scramble to get back in today."

However, volume was light, and another broker observed, "There's caution on both sides and the market remains very nervous. The game's not changed."

In Hong Kong, however, an attempted rally failed and the Hang Seng Index dropped 27.06 more points after falling 105.75 Monday to 1,245.26, its lowest level of the year.

The selling wave that hit Tokyo and London struck New York for the first 30 minutes of trading Monday, but the American market soon stabilized in heavy trading and surged to post substantial gains on the day.

Stock prices around the globe were under pressure in part because of concern over whether the United States budget deficit can be controlled to help ease interest rates, analysts said. There was also uncertainty over Britain's ailing economy, the threat of recession in several countries, and a dire prediction by American market analyst Joseph Granville.

In London, where stocks have been sliding for two weeks, prices plummeted Monday and about $8.4 billion in the value of stocks was wiped out of investors' accounts. The London Financial Times index of 30 industrials dropped nearly 30 points Monday before recovering to close at 457.5, down 17.2 points.

Gavyn Davies, chief economist at Simon and Coates in London, likened the decline to a "free-fall without a parachute."

Prices also fell Monday in the Zurich, Paris, Singapore, Frankfurt and Sydney markets.

It appeared the debacle might include Toronto, but the 300 stocks in its composite index rallied and the measure closed up 42.96 points at 1855.44 — recouping an early loss of 54.48 points.

In New York, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell more than 14 points at the opening, then overcame that loss and by the end of the day had gained 18.55 points to 842.56 — its best daily gain since March 25, when it rose 19.09 points.

The market value index at the American Stock Exchange, off more than 7 points in early trading Monday, rose 9.03 points to 285.79. The New York Stock Exchange's composite index gained 1.47 to 96.43. NYSE volume was 61.33 million shares, compared with 54.39 million Friday.

President Reagan, whose latest spending cuts are projected to leave a $43.1 billion deficit in the fiscal year beginning Thursday, discounted any relation beteen his programs and the market's actions.

Midland brokers don't give Granville credit

By GAIL BURKE
Staff Writer

Although the international stock exchange made a record 35-point plunge Monday, stock and bond brokers in Midland feel confident that the "double dip pattern" wasn't necessarily a direct influence from American analyst Joseph Granville's prediction of a "blue Monday."

According to The Associated Press, "stock prices around the globe were under pressure, in part because of the concern over whether the U. S. budget deficit can be controlled to help ease interest rates...and a dire prediction by market analyst Joseph Granville."

AP also stated the markets in London and Tokyo made "strong recoveries from a world wide nosedive that caused a finanical turmoil." In addition, "the selling wave that hit Tokyo and London struck New York for the first 30 minutes of trading, but the American market soon stabilized in heavy trading and surged to post substantial gains of the day," Monday.

"Friday and Monday would have been normally weak market days because of so much selling or margin calls outstanding, and Granville knew this," said Joe Liberty of Rauscher Pierce Refsnes Inc.

Liberty said the market will be determined by "economic factors, not by what Granville or any other economic analyst says."

Liberty's comments were a reaction to Granville's prediction that the market would fall sharply Monday. Moreover, international stocks have been sliding for the past two weeks and, although prices plummeted as Granville said they would, the market made a sharp turnaround today.

And Liberty claims that Granville "is just an opportunist."

"I could have predicted the market would go down. We've been in a very long down market for about nine or 10 months now. Anyone with a high visibility, as Granville, can cause a panic," Liberty said.

He added that "one man didn't do this. The biggest problem is the short term and long term cost of money."

Granville, who had been touring Europe last week, predicted that the market would take its worst-ever decline. The Wall Street guru, as he has been dubbed by the press, "was a catalyst to what would have happened anyway," according to Daryl Faris, branch manager of Shearson Loeb Rhoades Inc.

Faris explained the markets were already lower Monday, "based on interest rates, slowing economy and lower corporation earnings expected in the third quarter."

He added the media attention Granville receives concentrates his predictions.

"I'm not saying the market will go up. It may very well be that it will go down, but this attention just compounded the present situation," Faris said.

Although Faris agreed that the market slump was partially a result from the Granville situation, "it was more of a panic and it is a dangerous thing for Granville or anyone else to have that much influence."

He noted that "then again, if a person or institution has that much of a following, as in this case, Granville played on the fears of people. He has had some success, but I think it has been a self-fulling prophecy."

Frank Maggio, of E.F. Hutton, said although Granville has made these predictions before, he isn't always right.

"But it's interesting. He has been right for so long in the past ten years. He does his homework, but in this case the markets were going down anyway," he said.

Maggio explained the market has to be tested and now is the time to "rally around and test that bottom again."

"The climatic low, as what occurred yesterday, usually produces a brief, sharp rebound, but several tests or secondary lows usually follow."

Landrum Henderson, vice-president of Merrill Lynch Pierce Fenner & Smith Inc., agreed with Maggio's explaination.

"Apart from what Granville said, we feel the market made a climatic reversal yesterday. I think it will lead to a two to five day bounce to the up-side of the Dow Jones. In other words, the market will go higher in a very short term," he said.

Henderson added that the market should go back down to about "800, give or take a few points of the

Fast figuring

Doing some fast figuring after Monday's record dive in worldwide stock prices are representatives of the London and Tokyo stock exchanges. The London dealers, above, record in ledgers Monday's drop, comparable to a 54-point plummet on the American Dow Jones Industrial Index, based of current prices. At left, Japanese traders use the sorobon, a variation of the abacus counting tool, to calculate Monday's losses in the opening moments of trading today.

Haitian refugees entangled in nation's bureaucratic web

By RICHARD OKR
Staff Writer

Haitian refugees who fled their homeland in search of a better way of life have not found it in America. Instead, they're trapped in a legal limbo full of disappointment, frustration and fear.

The 100 Haitian men transferred from overcrowded detention centers in Florida to the federal prison camp at Big Spring July 18 thought they were coming to Texas for jobs. They wound up working — but at menial tasks on the grounds and in the laundry of the minumum security camp, which also houses Texas notable Billie Sol Estes.

Although they're growing restive, according to camp Superintendent John Allman, they have not caused any problems. Said Allman: "But they're anxious to talk to someone for direction on what their future will be."

A recent court order has forbidden the Immigration and Naturalization Service from conducting hearings on their desire to stay in this country. The reason for the temporary injunction — which could remain in effect for years — was to keep the Haitians from having to go through the hearings without legal counsel.

"To my best understanding," said Allman, "hearings can't be held until the (men) have a lawyer present."

West Texas Legal Services of Midland-Odessa has been informally asked to represent the Haitians but — owing to Reagan Administration budget cuts — doesn't have the staff to do so. And overburdened legal aid groups across the country are also having trouble keeping up with the influx of refugees, whose numbers are estimated in excess of 1,000.

"We've not been officially asked to help," said Legal Services Managing Lawyer Jerry Lopez of Odessa. "Some people have called us, but we don't have the (resources) to handle 100 hearings."

The hearings would determine if the Haitians could be granted political asylum because of the potential for persecution if they returned to Haiti. "They can make that claim," said an INS spokesman in San Antonio, "but they'd have to establish it in court."

Doing so may prove difficult, according to lawyers who handle immigration cases, because — like Mexican aliens — most of them are here for economic, not political, reasons.

Until legal counsel can be obtained for the refugees, it appears they will continue to wait out their disappointment in federal camps and detention centers, the unintended victims of a system designed to help them.

Reagan's crime platform challenged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The tactics President Reagan proposes to use in an attack on "an American epidemic" of violent crime are under challenge by civil libertarians, lawyers and some members of Congress.

The American Civil Liberties Union decried many of the president's major proposals Monday as a threat to constitutional rights and said independent studies show they have no chance of being effective.

The American Bar Association said it opposed some of the key planks in Reagan's anti-crime platform, including "preventive detention" by which judges could keep suspects in jail without bail if they appeared to be a danger to the community.

And Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said the administration was trying to fight crime "on the cheap" — without spending money to improve local law enforcement or build new prisons.

Addressing the International Association of Chiefs of Police in New Orleans, Reagan said: "It's time for honest talk, for plain talk. There has been a breakdown in the criminal justice system in America. It just plain isn't working.

"All too often, repeat offenders, habitual law-breakers, career criminals — call them what you will — are robbing, raping, and beating with impunity and...quite literally getting away with murder. The people are sickened and outraged. They demand that we put a stop to it."

He proposed a sweeping overhaul of federal criminal laws which the Senate Judiciary Committee coincidentally began to review Monday at about the same time Reagan was speaking.

Reform of the federal criminal code has been under consideration since 1966 but has been bottled up for years in Congress. The Senate passed a bill in 1978, but the House didn't. Senate and House leaders reportedly were close to reaching a compromise last year, but still nothing passed.

Griffin B. Bell, attorney general in the Carter admininstration, urged adoption of the code in testimony Monday before the Judiciary Committee but said it should not include a Reagan proposal to allow illegally obtained evidence to be used against suspects in some cases. Bell said he personally liked the idea but suggested it would jeopardize passage of a revised code because it is so controversial.

In attacking the so-called exclusionary rule, Reagan said he opposed throwing out a case — "no matter how guilty the defendant or how heinous the crime" — because of "technical...law enforcement error."

But John Shattuck, head of the ACLU office here, said a 1979 study by the General Accounting Office of Congress showed that evidence was excluded on grounds it violated constitutional rights of privacy in only 1.3 percent of 2,084 cases checked.

He said the exclusionary rule was the only sure-fire protection against police abuse and that its abolition would do practically nothing to make law enforcement more effective.

The American Bar Association said it opposed pretrial detention of suspects "based solely upon a defendant's past conduct or upon a general prediction of future dangerousness."

Kennedy said Reagan showed he was trying to fight crime "on the cheap" by refusing to renew the defunct Law Enforcement Assistance Administration which once provided hundreds of millions of dollars for local law enforcement.

Hijackers demand freedom for leader

LAHORE, Pakistan (AP) — Hijackers forced an Indian jetliner from New Delhi to Lahore today, where they released 46 of the 117 people aboard and demanded India free a jailed a Sikh independence leader, Pakistani officials said.

A Sikh extremist group in India called Dal Khalsa claimed responsibility. At a news conference in Amritsar, the group named the leader it wanted freed as Jarnail Singh Bhindranwale, arrested Sept. 20 on murder charges. It also demanded India pay $500,000 and free all jailed supporters of the Sikh independence movement in exchange for the remaining hostages.

One of the hijackers in Lahore told an Indian-Pakistani negotiating team that the aircraft was seized to gain publicity for the Khalistan movement which demands a homeland for India's 13 million Sikhs.

Those released included Indian women and children and the husband of an ailing woman, and 19 foreigners, including American, Swiss, Kenyan, Canadian, British and Singaporean nationals, officials said. They said they did not know the number of hijackers aboard.

United News of India said there were 11 hijackers on the plane and that they had daggers, which Sikhs are allowed to carry on domestic Indian flights.

Security police cordoned off the aircraft after it landed without permission from the control tower in Lahore, 12 miles from the Indian border.

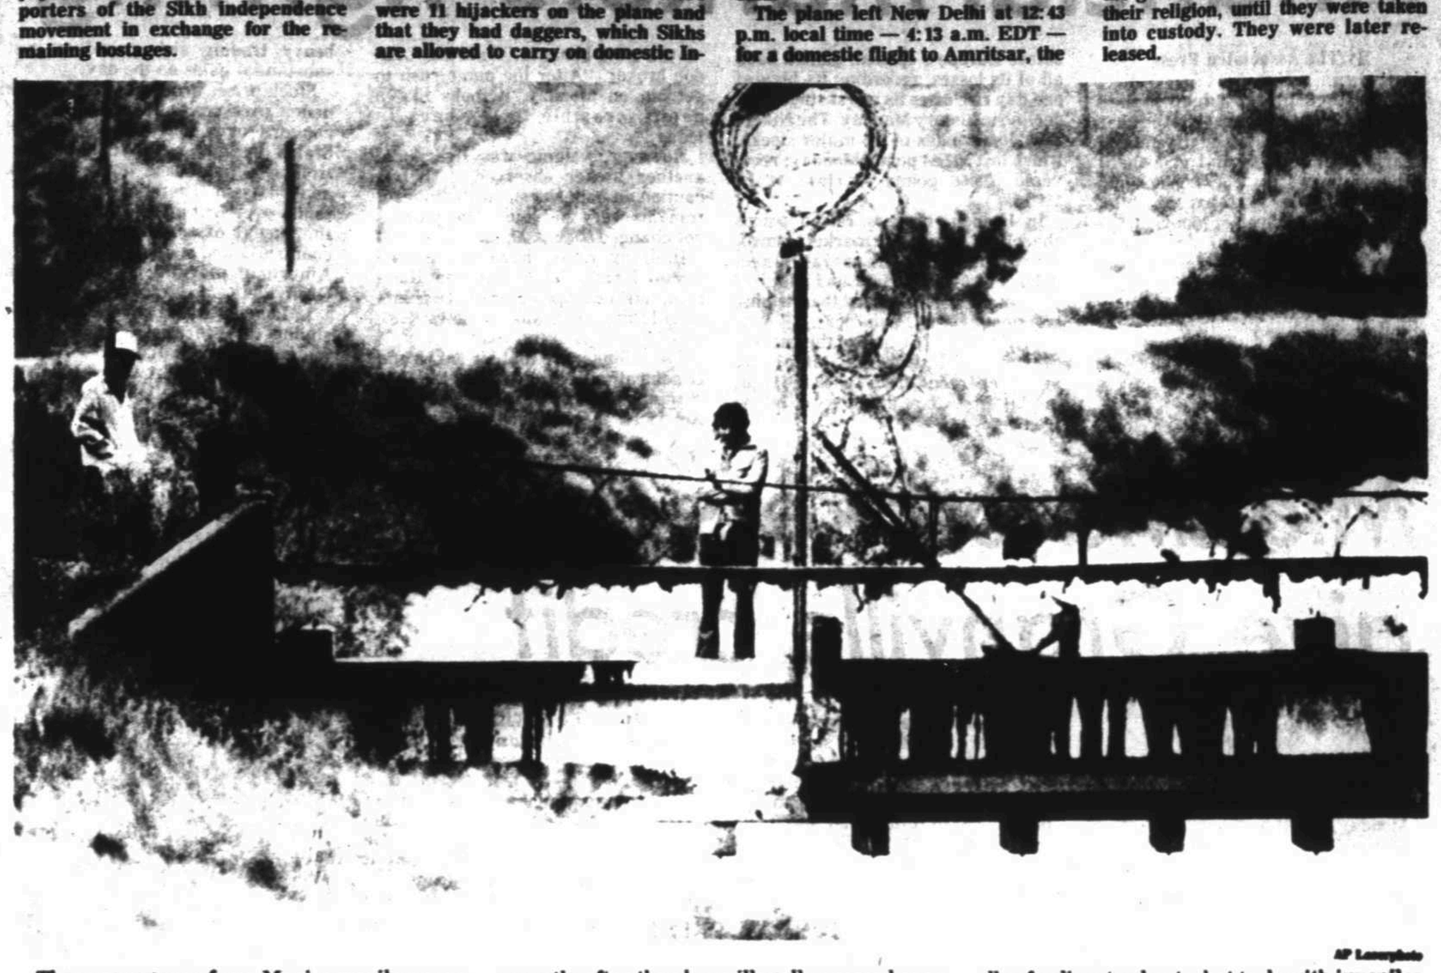

The plane carried 111 passengers, including three children, and a crew of six when it left New Delhi, United News said.

The hijackers shouted slogans on the Indian Airlines Boeing 737 before demanding the pilot fly here after it departed New Delhi, about 275 miles southeast of Lahore, United News said.

The plane left New Delhi at 12:43 p.m. local time — 4:13 a.m. EDT — for a domestic flight to Amritsar, the Sikh religious center, and Srinagar, the capital of Kashmir. It was commandeered shortly after it took off from New Delhi.

A leader of the Sikh independence movement was arrested Sept. 14 in what was believed to be the beginning of a crackdown on Sikh secessionists by Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's government. He was charged with sedition.

The week before hundreds of Sikhs shouting "Death to Indira Gandhi" demonstrated in New Delhi, charging the government was interfering with their religion, until they were taken into custody. They were later released.

Iran announces execution of 119 more leftists

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iran's revolutionary regime announced the execution of 119 more leftists, raising the official total to 993 in the three-month-old war between Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's forces and the Mujahedeen Khalq guerrillas.

Tehran Radio said 57 guerrillas were put to death for participating in the street fighting in Tehran Sunday, 52 were executed in Isfahan, and 10 died before firing squads in other cities.

Meanwhile, Iraq denied Iran's claim that Iranian forces lifted the siege of the oil refining city of Abadan. But an Iraqi military spokesman admitted that the besieging force pulled back from the north-south highway to the city.

Although the Iranian government did not issue its Abadan victory claim until hours after the fighting broke out in Tehran Sunday, Parliament Speaker Ali-Akbar Rajsanjani charged the Mujahedeen Khalq "created disorder" to undermine the effect of the regime's military success.

"When they became certain that the victory of Islam was certain at the battlefront and they could not foil its military significance, they began creating disrorder," he said in a speech broadcast by Tehran Radio.

"They wanted, even before the news of the victory of Islam reached the people, to make themselves felt. We witnessed a military-like order that even the children were pulled out of schools and sent into the streets."

Eyewitnesses in Tehran reported that the first clash occurred when 150 Mujahedeen marched out of Tehran University, once a center of support for Khomeini, chanting "Khomeini's end is near" and "The regime will collapse this month," the Kuwait news agency reported.

Residents of Tehran told The Associated Press by telephone earlier that the guerrillas fought the revolutionary guards with machine guns and rocket grenades, and the street fighting was the worst in the capital since the 1979 revolution.

Jomhoori Eslami, the newspaper of the ruling Islamic Revolutionary Party, said 10 Mujahedeen, eight revolutionary guards and four bystanders were killed. In addition, Tehran Radio said two Mujahedeen leaders who "organized the demonstration and another previous demonstration were identified and gunned down," and two other "terrorists" were shot and killed when they tried to avoid arrest.

Tehran Radio said a large number of arrests were made but did not say how many.

The official radio said after the fighting subsided and the government announced the victory at Abadan, most of the city's 7 million inhabitants took to the rooftops to chant the Islamic battle cry "Allah is great" in celebration.

Iran said that the Iraqi force which had held Abadan under siege for 10 months had been driven back to the west bank of the Karun River, opening the main north-south highway between the city and Ahwaz, the provincial capital, and the east-west highway to Bandar Mashur.

Iraq called Iran's victory proclamation an "empty claim" and said its forces tightened their hold on Abadan. But an Iraqi military spokesman in Baghdad, quoted by the Gulf News Agency, admitted the Iraqi forces retreated to the west bank of the Karun, which runs west and north of Abadan, and that the Iranians had knocked out the bridges the Iraqis put across the river.

Since the river runs alongside the Abadan-Ahwaz highway, it appeared that the presence of Iraqi forces on the west bank would make travel along the road hazardous if not impossible.

Iran upped its casualty claim in the Abadan fighting from 600 Iraqis killed or wounded to 1,000 killed, said 2,000 were captured and admitted 70 Iranian dead. Iraq said 108 Iranians and 18 Iraqis were killed.

Although the oil refinery at Abadan, the world's largest, was knocked out by Iraqi air and artillery attacks early in the siege, the city is the last major Iranian holdout on the Shatt al-Arab, the 120-mile waterway into the Persian Gulf. Complete control of the Shatt is Iraq's chief goal in its year-old war against Iran.

Partly cloudy weather in store

Partly cloudy conditions are expected to greet residents of the Permian Basin for the next couple of days, although no rainfall is forecast.

The high Monday reached 90 degrees, 10 degrees off the record for the date set in 1977, and similar afternoon temperatures should reign on Wednesday.

The low this morning of 59 degrees also may be matched tonight, leaving the mercury far above the record of 41 degrees set in 1941.

Winds should pick up somewhat tonight, ranging from 10-15 miles per hour, while Wednesday they may reach 20 mph, according to the National Weather Service.

The month's rainfall total stands at 1.68 inches and the year's at 12.02 inches.

Watch stolen from invalid

The reported theft of a $5,000 gold watch from an invalid topped the list of criminal complaints being investigated by city police today.

According to police, the man, Jerald Self of 910 W. Harvard Ave., is under home nursing care and kept the watch in a nightstand beside his bed. It was discovered missing Monday and is believed to have been taken sometime in the past two months.

Three pieces of silverware valued at $500 were reported missing Monday from the Hilton Hotel at Wall and Loraine streets. The silverware, which was owned by Maxine Hannifin of 2307 Gulf Ave., was left with a desk clerk and could not be located later.

Police Roundup

Steve Bellis told officers a .243-caliber bolt action rifle and a scope were taken from a closet in his bedroom. The loss was placed at $425.

Lamesa man listed as serious

LUBBOCK — Delmer Oller, who suffered second and third degree burns to 50 percent of his body in an oil field explosion that killed three of his fellow workers, was listed in serious but stable condition late Monday at Lubbock General Hospital.

Oller, 48, of Lamesa, was taken to the hospital after the explosion of a 12-inch natural gas line on a drilling site 30 miles northeast of Stanton in Howard County Sunday afternoon. Those killed included 20-year-old Joe Gregg Dawson of Midland.

A Howard County sheriff's deputy said the crew was drilling a "rathole" and struck a Santa Fe Pipeline Co. gas line, which exploded and burned for more than an hour after both ends of the line were closed. A witness said the force of the blast sent one of the victims flying through the air.

The other two dead men were identified as John Hemphill, 32, and Willie Joe Waller, 41, both of Lamesa. The witness took Oller to a Lamesa hospital and he was later transferred to the burn unit at Lubbock General. Repairs to the pipeline were completed Monday.

Robbery suspect in city jail

A Midland man was in the city jail this morning awaiting arraignment on aggravated robbery charges in connection with an incident at Midland Center in downtown Midland late Monday morning.

According to police accounts, a 39-year-old Midland woman put her purse in a chair at the center about 10:30 a.m. When she returned 10 minutes later, the purse, which contained $68, was gone.

The suspect, an 18-year-old man, whose residence was listed on North Baird Street, was found in an upstairs bathroom by a center employee. A fight ensued when the man asked the suspect to empty his pockets. The woman ran downstairs and asked two city employees who were working on the grounds to help. Instead, the two men looked inside the building, then went back outside.

The suspect stopped fighting and ran outside after the woman picked up a large metal microphone stand and hit him with it. Police obtained a description of the suspect and arrested him in the 700 block of North Weatherford Street a few minutes later. The purse and its contents were recovered. The suspect was expected to be formally charged sometime today.

Haig, Gromyko agree to try again

UNITED NATIONS (AP) - Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko made little apparent headway in resolving U.S.-Soviet tensions during nine hours of meetings, but they agreed to try again early next year.

Haig and Gromyko met for five hours Monday, following a four-hour session last Wednesday. The first meeting produced agreement to begin arms control talksNov. 30 in Geneva. After the second meeting, State Department spokesman Dean Fischer said they covered "the full range of international and bilateral issues" and "agreed to continue their discussions early next year."

The spokesman said the next meeting would probably be held in Geneva.

The talks were the first high-level contact between the Reagan administration and the Soviet government, and Fischer indicated the administration had not expected any major agreements.

He told reporters the talks were "frank, businesslike and serious," and "the outcome...essentially met our expectations."

"I wouldn't want to characterize it as the opening of a new rapprochement," he said. "...I think it is important to bear in mind that this was the first series of meetings that the secretary has had with Foreign Minister Gromyko. They did agree on the TNF negotiations and they did in fact discuss at great length all of the issues of bilateral and international concern."

The TNF or Theater Nuclear Force negotiations are the arms talks beginning next month to limit the deployment of medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe.

Fischer said Haig emphasized to Gromyko the U.S. desire "to resolve international questions on the basis of restraint and reciprocity." This underscored the Reagan administration's insistence that the Soviets must exercise what the administration considers good behavior if they want better relations with the United States.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, said Gromyko emphasized "the fruitlessness of attempts to achieve military superiority." He said future arms negotiations between Moscow and Washington should preserve "everything positive" accomplished so far and recognize "the principle of equality and equal security of the sides," Tass reported.

"He confirmed again that the Soviet Union is not seeking confrontation with the United States and, as always, gives preference to efforts in favor of relaxing international tensions, scaling down the arms race and settling conflict situations through talks," Tass said.

Haig and Gromyko met for more than seven of the nine hours with only interpreters present, because they "preferred to have the initial talks between themselves conducted on that basis," Fischer said.

Despite the months of harsh rhetoric exchanged between Washington and Moscow, the two leaders appeared relaxed and good-humored at the start of both meetings.

Administration pushing AWACS compromise

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is pressing a new compromise proposal on Saudi Arabia in an effort to save its Saudi radar plane sale from a congressional veto, sources say.

The proposal, which ignores a Saudi leader's "no deal" statement, is "a variation" of earlier ones requiring U.S. manning of radar or other surveillance equipment on the AWACS radar planes, according to a knowledgeable Senate source who did not want to be named.

He said the proposal was carried to Riyadh by U.S. Ambassador Richard Murphy and Saudi Prince Bandar bin Sultan, who met with President Reagan and senators last week in an effort to work out a compromise.

The Washington Post Monday quoted an unnamed member of the Saudi ruling family as rejecting any proposal for U.S. manning of the planes, saying Americans would be allowed on the planes only during a training period.

But Sen. John C. Danforth, R-Mo., said Reagan's national security adviser, Richard V. Allen, told him that "is not entirely accurate."

The administration and Senate supporters hope the compromise, which would maintain some degree of U.S. control over Saudi AWACS, can win over enough Senate votes to save the sale from defeat.

Congress has until Oct. 30 to try to veto the $8.5 billion sale of five Airborne Warning and Control System radar planes plus weaponry for 62 Saudi F-15 jet fighers.

House rejection appears assured but a congressional veto would require Senate rejection as well.

A number of Senate opponents' have rallied behind a demand by Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, for joint U.S.-Saudi control of the planes.

"It might take several months, but the 800-850 range should build a good base to take off to a bull market in 1982," the Merrill Lynch representative added.

The biggest gainers in Midland, according to Maggio, were the oversold energy stocks and technology stocks. He attributed this to the fact that these stocks are "really cheap on a comparative basis."

And if the market goes down, people will stop and decide to buy next week when they feel the stocks will be even lower, Maggio added.

Sugar import fees could slow, stop price decline

By BOB FICK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Plunging world sugar prices have triggered increases in U.S. import fees that probably will slow or stop the decline in retail prices consumers have enjoyed this year.

After nearly two years without an import fee on raw sugar, Agriculture Secretary John Block has been forced to reinstitute it and then increase it.

The increase of just over a half-cent a pound was announced Monday after the spot price of sugar on the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange averaged just slightly more than 11.9 cents a pound over a period of 20 marketing days.

It is the lowest New York spot price for sugar since the last quarter of 1977. Less than a year ago, the spot price was more than 37 cents a pound.

"World prices have been falling for seven straight months," said Robert Barry of the Agriculture Department's Economics and Statistics Service.

"Wholesale and retail prices have been falling," Barry said. "So all this might do is slow that decline. It won't increase (consumer) prices."

From December through July, the national average retail price of sugar has dropped from 56.5 cents a pound to 35.5 cents, he said. Wholesale sugar prices fell another penny in August, suggesting a further decline in the retail average as summer ended.

Effective Sept. 11, Block imposed an emergency import fee of 1 cent a pound on raw sugar because of falling world prices. A regular quarterly review verified the need for an even higher import fee, and Block added another 0.53 cents, effective Thursday.

Imposition of the fees is mandated by a 1978 presidential proclamation that in effect sets up a protection mechanism to stabilize domestic raw sugar prices at no less than 15 cents a pound. Other fees and duties are also used to keep the price at least at that level. Refined sugar prices are kept about a half-cent higher.

The United States, which imports nearly half the sugar it consumes, last had an import fee on raw sugar in October 1979.

The decline in world sugar prices has been triggered by expectations of bumper crops in many major producing countries and prospects for heavy subsidized exports from the European Economic Community.

Because of that situation, a quick return to rising retail sugar prices would come only if Congress decides to support domestic sugar production at higher than the 15-cent level set out in the 1978 presidential proclamation, Barry said.

Health foods a growing concern

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers, particularly those smaller operators who prefer to work without pesticides and other chemicals, may want to take note of a new Agriculture Department report about health foods.

"Consumer demand for health foods — foods with minimal processing and that are chemical and additive free — is leading the food industry to emphasize nutrition," it says. "As a result, more and more supermarkets are adding health food departments to their operations."

The report was written by Judy Brown of the department's Economic Research Service and was included in the agency's current National Food Review.

Safeway, the nation's largest supermarket chain, plans to add health food departments to 200 stores this year. It opened its first in 1980.

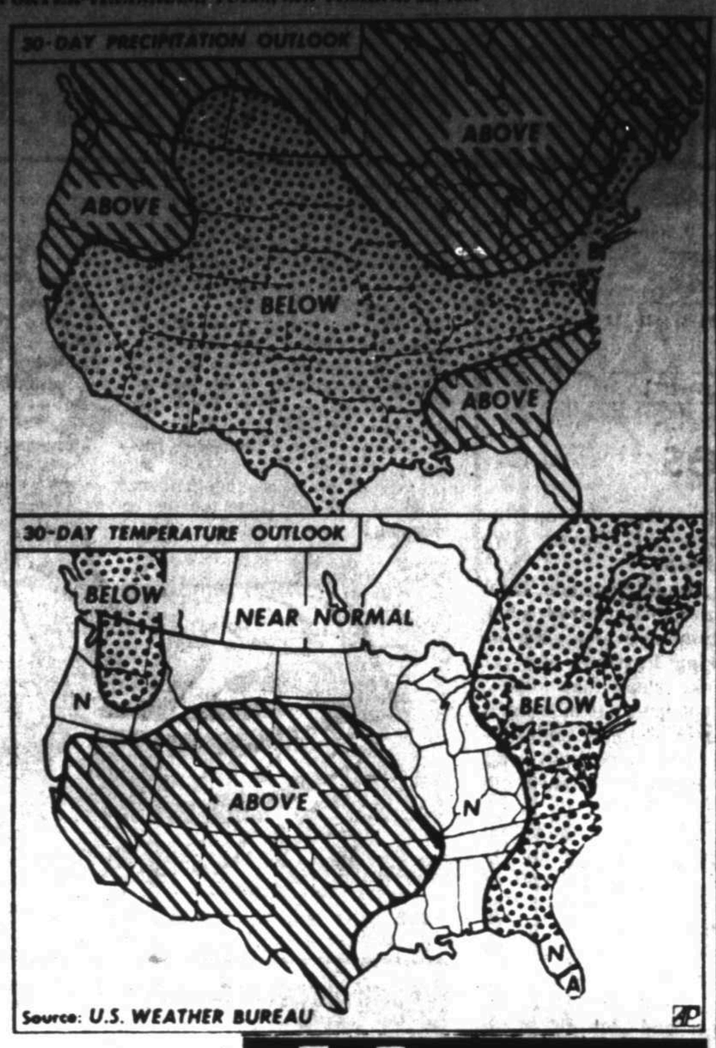

"The departments average 800 to 1,000 square feet and stock up to 3,000 items usually sold in health food stores," the report said. "Health foods are selling well enough to generate 12 turns a year — the number of times a product is restocked by a supermarket."

The average annual turnaround for regular grocery store items is 18 to 20.

A spokesman for Safeway quoted in the report said that "the real importance of the health food units is to keep the business of the senior citizen population and to gain and build the loyalty of the younger generation."

According to an Agriculture Department survey last year, 26 percent of 1,353 consumers checked in a national random sample said they shop in health food stores, many of whom said they did so because they couldn't find what they wanted elsewhere.

Another national survey conducted by an independent national research firm, Yankelovich, Skelly and White, showed that one of three of some 1,221 people surveyed had purchased natural food, the report said.

Record potato prices reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — A strong market in 1980 gave the nation's potato farmers the bright spot they needed in a harvest that was well below previous years.

The Agriculture Department says record market prices turned that reduced 1980 crop into the most valuable in history.

The department's Crop Reporting Board said the situation was much the same for sweet-potato growers, who harvested their smallest crop on record but took to the bank earnings substantially higher than in early years.

Total potato production last year of 30.3 billion pounds was 12 percent below 1979 and 17 percent less than 1978, the board reported Monday. The average yield of 26,200 pounds per acre was 800 pounds lower than a year earlier and 500 pounds under 1978 yields.

But an average market price over the year of $6.55 a hundred pounds, nearly double the price of the two previous years, pushed the value of the 1980 crop to a record $1.98 billion.

That was more than 60 percent higher than either of the two previous years and the first time in five years the value of the potato crop had increased, the board said.

The smaller 1980 crop came off of 1.15 million acres compared to 1.27 million the year before. But the board said shrinkage and loss last year was only 2.3 billion pounds compared to more than 3 billion pounds in 1979.

The 1980 sweet potato harvest was less than 1.1 billion pounds, 18 percent below the 1979 crop. The average yield of 10,700 pounds an acre was a 1,000 pounds less than the two previous years.

But again, the board said the small crop was offset by a record market price of $13.60 a hundred pounds, up more than 50 percent from the previous year. The overall value of the 1980 sweet potato crop was $148 million, 25 percent higher than a year before.

Nigerian agribusiness leaders ending U.S. tour

WASHINGTON (AP) — A team of nearly three dozen Nigerian agribusiness leaders is winding up a U.S. tour today in Illinois following meetings over the weekend with top Agriculture Department officials.

The team is part of the U.S.-Nigerian Joint Agricultural Consultative Committee, which has been trying to improve Nigerian agriculture and strengthen trade relations between the two nations for the past year.

Since going to the Midwest Monday, the Nigerian officials have been discussing possible investment opportunities in Nigerian agricultural projects with interested American agribusiness companies.

They return home Wednesday after visiting the Farm Progress Show in Peoria, Ill., today.

World's cotton crop estimates up slightly

WASHINGTON (AP) — The world cotton crop is estimated at a record 70.6 million bales, up slightly from prospects a month ago and 8 percent larger than last year, the Agriculture Department says.

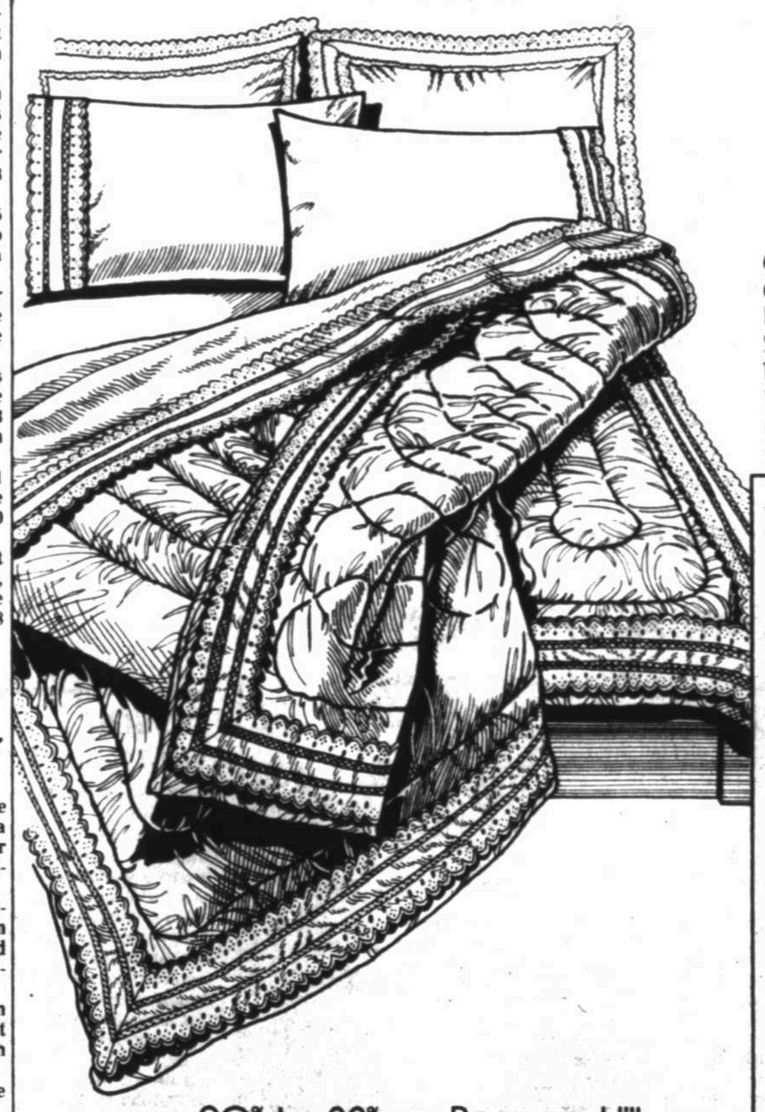

Favorable growing conditions in the United States and China have been major factors in the outlook, according to a recent analysis by the department's Foreign Agricultural Service.

U.S. production is currently indicated at 15.5 million bales, the largest crop since 1953. Last year's harvest was 11.1 million bales.

Chinese production is estimated at 13.3 million bales, compared with 12.4 million last year.

The Soviet Union, another large producer, is expected to harvest 13.5 million bales, down from 14.3 million in 1980, the report said.

Restive Muscovites

When the Soviet government announced last week that the prices of alcoholic beverages, tobacco and gasoline were going up sharply, it was same-song, second-verse for the Russian people. They are used to seeing consumer goods priced out of reach or not available at all.

But these price increases have produced a response that should make the Kremlin nervous. Western reporters in Moscow say the 30 percent increase in the price of vodka is the subject of graffiti appearing on walls and of jingles sung by young people when police are out of earshot.

The verses complain about the high price of vodka. That could be expected, but the final lines are something new. One version says that if the officials raise the vodka price any higher, "We'll bring Poland to their front door." Other versions hark back to the uprising against the czar in 1905 and the revolution of 1917, saying "We can do it again."

No one would conclude from this that a vodka-inspired rebellion is imminent, even among the hard-drinking Russians. But the verses make clear that Muscovites are not ignorant of what is happening in Poland, and they know their own leaders are worried that the Polish disease will spread.

The official Kremlin line is that Poles supporting the Solidarity movement are being led astray by outside anti-socialist forces. The new graffiti is telling Chairman Brezhnev and his colleagues that the Russian people know the truth — that the Polish unrest is rooted in shortages and high prices for food and consumer goods, conditions which differ only in degree from those in the Soviet Union. And that's not music to the Kremlin's ears.

Tyler will be missed

The unexpected death Saturday of Fred Tyler leaves all of Midland with a void that likely will not be filled in the near future. He was an important individual in the business and industrial life of the Tall City.

Although probably best known in Midland for his work with the Midland Chamber of Commerce, Tyler was a vital force behind many of the projects that have made Midland a better city in recent years. As a chamber executive he was expected to and did promote the city's good points. But he did more than that; he "lived Midland."

Tyler was in a key role for the chamber, yet he managed to maintain a low profile in what ordinarily would be considered a high visibility position. But that did not compromise his effectiveness; in fact it seemed to enhance it.

There will be many who will experience a personal loss in the death of Tyler. But for Midland as a whole, the entire city has lost a friend and a supporter. Midland will miss him.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, Sept. 29, the 272nd day of 1981. There are 93 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On September 29, 1066, William the Conqueror invaded England to claim the English throne.

On this date:

In 1918, Allied forces scored a decisive breakthrough of the Hindenburg Line in Germany during World War One.

In 1923, the British mandate in Palestine began.

In 1961, Syria seceded from the United Arab Republic and formed the Syrian Arab Republic.

And in 1978, Pope John Paul I died in his sleep at the Vatican after a reign of 34 days.

Ten years ago: the prime ministers of Britain, Ireland and Northern Ireland, meeting in London, appealed for an end of violence in Ulster.

Five years ago: Syrian troops in Lebanon drove Palestinian guerrillas out of their key mountain positions east of Beirut.

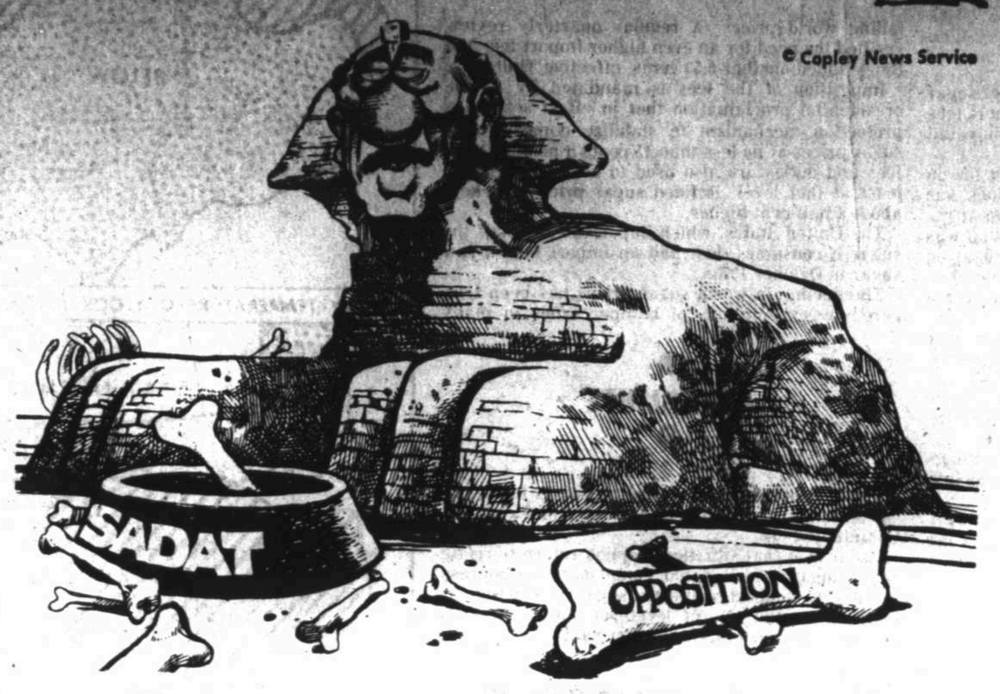

One year ago: a draft Senate report said President Carter was shown no favoritism by the Justice Department in its investigation of his brother Billy's ties to Libya.

Today's birthdays: Former cowboy star Gene Autry is 73. Republican senator John Tower of Texas is 56. And actress Madeline Kahn is 39.

Thought For Today: An obstinate man does not hold opinions, but they hold him. — Alexander Pope, English poet (1688-1744).

California airport loaded explosives for Amin

WASHINGTON — At the lowest point in U.S. relations with Idi Amin, a Ugandan airliner made an unauthorized landing at a California airport and was permitted to leave with what was apparently an illegal shipment of high explosives. Amin is the homicidal maniac who ruled Uganda until his overthrow two years ago.

Jack Anderson

The incident was yet another chapter in the weird saga of Frank Terpil and Ed Wilson, the fugitive ex-CIA agents whose sordid exploits I have been reporting for the past year. The two renegades had made a lucrative career supplying explosives and terrorist training to Amin and his Libyan buddy, Muammar Qaddafi.

The airport incident occurred on Sept. 20, 1977, according to secret Justice Department reports examined by my associate Dale Van Atta. The United States had not had an embassy in Kampala since 1973; just seven months before the mysterious cargo pickup, President Carter had denounced Idi Amin as a ruler whose actions "have disgusted the entire civilized world."

The assistant manager of the Ontario (Calif.) International Airport told federal investigators he had initially directed the Ugandan airliner to Los Angeles. But the pilot refused, "stating there was cargo at Ontario to be picked up."

On landing, the plane was directed to a remote area of the field and sealed off. Several hours later, U.S. Customs agents boarded it and found an Egyptian captain, a Ugandan copilot, a Lebanese flight engineer and several Ugandan flight attendants.

An attorney for Jerome S. Brower, a well-known explosives dealer, arrived and said the cargo was waiting at the Aerojet Inc. hangar. Next came the terrible Terpil, who said he was "a representative of Ugandan Airlines" and would handle everything.

One of the Customs agents, having determined that the cargo was electronic equipment, OK'd it for shipment.

But the Customs agent returned the next day, Sept. 21, because "the situation at the airport bothered him," according to one of the secret reports. This time he found a shipment of explosives waiting to be loaded.

"The liquid explosive, with a flash point of 110 degrees or 120 degrees, was sitting on the runway in cans," he told investigators. "As the day got hotter, the cans began to burst and the liquid was seeping out onto the runway and later onto the floor of the aircraft."

The explosives had come from Brower's company. The Customs agent also spotted some 55-gallon drums of an unknown substance nearby, but was told they weren't part of the shipment. He told investigators he didn't know if any of the mysterious drums had been loaded on earlier, but another Customs agent said he had seen some in the cargo hold.

But when the agents checked with the State Department in Washington, they were told there was no reason to prevent the export of the explosives. The plane was approved for departure, and flew out that day after filing a flight plan to Canada.

"All bills for food, fuel and airport services were paid in U.S. currency out of a suitcase held by the pilot," the reports said.

Brower pleaded guilty earlier this year to one count of illegally shipping explosives to Libya in 1976 through Terpil. The Aerojet Inc. facility chief at Ontario, Frank Dolinski, told investigators he had let Brower, who once worked for the company, use the hangar, and was shocked when he learned it had been used to load a Ugandan aircraft. Dolinski was reprimanded by Aerojet officials, according to one report, "for allowing Brower, known to do anything for money, to use their facility."

One thing is not clear: High explosives had been embargoed for shipment to Uganda. So why was a Ugandan airplane allowed to pick up explosives? One Customs agent at the airport said the load was not inspected because he "wouldn't know one explosive from another anyway."

Footnote: Indictments are expected soon in a similar case a month after the Ontario incident. It involves Wilson, Brower and the illegal shipment of 20 tons of C4 plastic explosives from Houston to Libya.

INSIDE REPORT:

Cyrus Vance breaks ranks to lead anti-AWACS campaign

WASHINGTON — The leak of a private letter from former secretary of state Cyrus Vance opposing the AWACS deal has undermined President Reagan's plan to line up a pro-AWACS bloc of all living ex-presidents and former secretaries of state and defense in favor of the deal.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

Vance's letter, written to anti-AWACS Democratic senator Alan Cranston was not intended for public consumption. Sources in the senator's office, however, leaked word that Vance opposed the sale of five AWACS radar aircraft to Saudi Arabia. What makes Vance's position so valuable to anti-AWACS senators is the reputation he built during the Carter administration as pro-Arab.

Vance told us his letter was a response to a request from Cranston. He said he opposed selling AWACS to any country in the Middle East, including Israel. Former secretaries of state are usually scrupulous in not attempting to defeat another president's policies, but Vance broke that rule earlier in criticizing Reagan's arms control policy.

NO AID FOR POLAND

One of the victims of the latest Reagan administration budget cutting was Secretary of State Alexander Haig's bid for substantial new U.S. aid to the virtually bankrupt communist regime in Poland.

Officials from the Treasury and the Office of Management and Budget (OMB), who have been waging a year-long backstage war with the State Department over foreign aid, ganged up on Haig to defeat Polish aid. Only Richard V. Allen, the White House national security assistant, backed Haig as a Cabinet council and later the National Security Council decisively voted down new funds for Poland.

Murray Weidenbaum, the usually understated chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers, delivered a passionate argument in the Cabinet council against Polish aid. He reflected the objection by Reagan economic policymakers to both the effectiveness of foreign aid and its propriety in a time of budgetary restraint.

AN ANGRY NIXON

Former president Nixon is fuming over the failure of the Reagan White House to periodically give him complete briefings on national security policy.

Nixon confides to friends that he has had only one briefing since Jan. 20, when White House aide Richard V. Allen went to Manhattan to fill him in on foreign, military and intelligence secrets.

There has been no second visit, even though in recent years most presidents have taken elaborate precautions to keep their predecessors fully informed on the behind-the-scenes intelligence. Nixon is demanding similar treatment.

FRITZ MODERATES

A sign of former vice president Walter F. Mondale's gentle drift toward the Democratic Party's center in preparation for his 1984 presidential campaign was his appearance at a Sept. 15 fund-raising roast for Mayor Edward Koch of New York, whose campaign for a second term has been under intense attack from the left.

Mondale's general rule is not to take sides in contested Democratic primaries, and he had agreed to attend the Koch fund-raiser only because it was to follow the Sept. 10 primary. But when a federal court forced the delay of the primary until Sept. 22, Mondale showed up anyway (roasting Koch as "the John McEnroe of politics").

Mondale's appearance confirmed the judgment by Democratic insiders that he is consciously moving to the right of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, his possible rival for 1984. The black-liberal coalition that supported State Assemblyman Frank Barbaro's unsuccessful challenge of Koch in the New York City primary is also Kennedy's power base.

LABOR FEUDING

Machinists union leader William Winpisinger was less than happy about the way the AFL-CIO's Solidarity Day demonstration against Reaganomics was conducted, not so much because he was excluded from the list of speakers but because United Auto Workers (UAW) President Douglas Fraser was included.

Winpisinger, famed for the volume and variety of his profanity, has been wondering aloud how speakers were chosen. He had understood that AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland, as organizer of Solidarity Day, and Jerry Wurf of the state county and municipal employees union, as the union president who brought the most members to the rally, were to be the only labor speakers. How, then, asks Winpy, did Doug Fraser get to the rostrum?

Since the return of the UAW to the AFL-CIO this year, Fraser has become Winpisinger's rival for dominance on the labor federation's left wing. Both are uncomfortable with the AFL-CIO's traditional hard anti-communist foreign policy, and each has toyed with the notion of a new left-labor political party.

Let's sacrifice the 'sacred cows'

To The Editor:

News commentators are saying if the federal budget is cut as Reagan wants, many more families will fall below the poverty line. Possibly that is so. We will all hurt. However, those in the "poverty class" will still be living better than this writer lived until he was forty years old.

Now, let's look at the other side of the coin. If the budget is not cut a lot more, the deficit of the next few years might make that of the last several years look puny; inflation could become rampant and we could see a panic that would completely ruin the value of our currency.

We could avoid that tragedy if enough people would resolve to accept a cut of just a few percentage points in income and would let their congressman know they want to do their part. This writer is seventy years old, is depending mostly on Social Security for his livelihood, but has hollered far and wide that he is willing to take a reasonable cut. Our congressman has been notified of my wishes on this subject several times.

There should be no "sacred cows." I haven't seen anybody too good to make his sacrifice.

If you loved the Sixties, you'd love Washington, D.C., this fall. It's a protest revival as Ronald Reagan delivers on his promise to bring back the old days.

●

"Solidarity Days" kicked off the season as a quarter of a million angry union workers rode into the capital. This is expected to be followed by a march of schoolchildren called, "Where's The Other Half of My Sandwich Day."

●

After that will come busloads of Social Security recipients for the observation of "I Didn't Kick Into This Plan for 40 Years Only to Have Baloney and Jell-O for Dinner Day."

●

Then, make way for the nation's welfare receivers and their "If I Can't Possess Over a Thousand Dollars' Worth of Belongings, Do I have to Hide My Cat Day."

●

As the familiar busloads of protesters roll into Washington, you can't help wondering if this is what the administration meant when they said they would get America moving again.

She was born July 1, 1902, in Mills County. She married Ernest Langford in 1924 in Goldthwaite. He died in 1970. She was a resident of Brownwood for the past 45 years and was a homemaker. She was a member of the First United Methodist Church.

Other survivors include two sons, two daughters, three sisters, 13 grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

Media critic apologizes for attack on Donahue

By RON BARKER
Associated Press Writer

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — While apologizing that his group's attack on television talk show host Phil Donahue wasn't backed up with facts, the founder of the National Federation of Decency says it still might boycott the show's sponsors.

The Rev. Donald Wildmon, the federation's executive director, publicly apologized to Donahue Monday during a taping in Salt Lake City of the popular daytime show. The segment is to be broadcast later this year.

Wildmon said figures used in a news release criticizing the "Donahue" program were not based on any research of the show.

But Wildmon repeated his contention "Donahue" deals too frequently with sexual topics and portrays abnormal sex in a favorable light.

Four Chicago members of the federation issued a news release Aug. 1 calling Donahue a "sex activist broadcaster," claiming that many of his programs "are sex shows" and that most of those promote abnormal sex. The group threatened a boycott of sponsors for "Donahue."

Wildmon said he hadn't seen the release before it was issued, but had to accept responsibility for it.

"Donahue" has dealt with such topics as incest, birth control, abortion, rape and homosexuality in the 11 years it has been syndicated nationally.

THE PROGRAM, which also has focused on non-sexual topics and interviews with celebrities, has won a George Foster Peabody Award and nine Emmy awards, including one this year as Outstanding Talk or Service Series.

After apologizing, Wildmon said "nine or 10 of the 23 shows we monitored" since the first of the year dealt with sex. Some urged acceptance of sex practices contrary to traditional Christian morality, he said.

The Tupelo, Miss.-based National Federation for Decency was started by Wildmon, who earlier this year also launched the Coalition for Better Television. Wildmon has said the Moral Majority is a member of the coalition, the biggest of 300 affiliated groups nationwide.

He said 3,000 volunteers nationwide would monitor television shows this fall, and if sex and violence are exploited, a boycott of sponsors is possible.

Kermit man dies in auto accident

ODESSA — One man is dead in the wake of a two-car accident late Saturday night on the Kermit Highway near Odessa.

Dead is 21-year-old William Zimmerman, a laborer from Kermit. He died about midnight Saturday in Odessa's Medical Center Hospital. Released following treatment for cuts and bruises was Leroy Bozarth, 21, also a laborer from Kermit.

According to the Department of Public Safety, Bozarth was a passenger in a 1974 Oldsmobile driven at a high rate of speed by Zimmerman. The car was westbound on Texas 302 about six miles west of Odessa when it struck the rear of a 1979 Oldsmobile driven by Donald Compton, no age available, of Kermit.

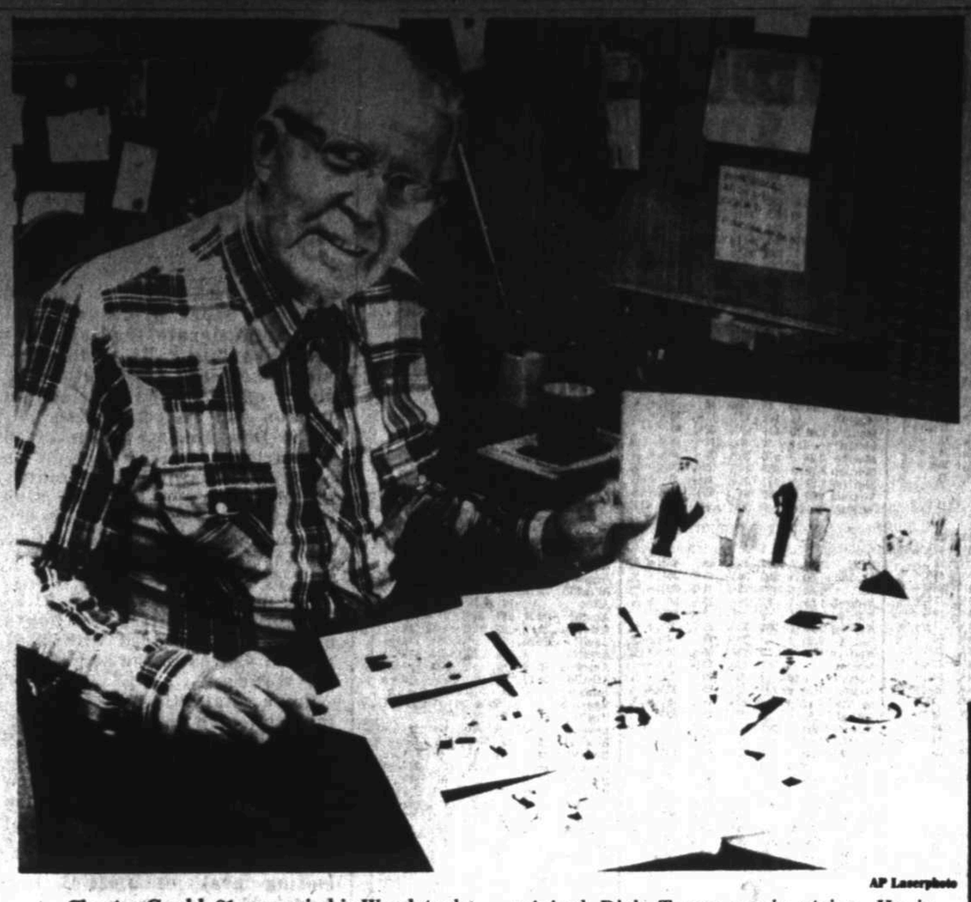

The Zimmerman car rolled over several times, throwing him out before coming to rest in a bar ditch. His body was taken to the Hubbard-Kelly Funeral Home in Odessa. Compton was not injured.

Chester Gould, 81, poses in his Woodstock, Ill., studio recently with several of his original Dick Tracy comic strips. He is holding his first strip in his left hand.

Dick Tracy celebrates 50 years

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dick Tracy, who matched violence with violence as he mopped up the likes of B.B. Eyes, Flattop, Mumbles and the Brow, observes 50 years on newspaper comic pages Sunday — still black of hair, steely of eye and square of jaw.

The strip was the first to depart from the "funnies" approach, delighting in showing death in graphic detail: bullets passing through heads, a pool of blood, a body trapped under ice.

Dick Tracy's "immorality" brought complaints back in 1931 — and in 1981. Last May, the Harrisburg, Pa., Patriot-News dropped Dick Tracy and another strip saying, "These strips are not marginal, violence is the sole reason for their existence, terrorism is grist for their mill."

Tracy first appeared on Sunday, Oct. 4, 1931, in the old Detroit Mirror as a witness to a robbery who is called to view a police lineup. He notices a woman in a cell, has a hunch and throws a punch, and from the masculine way she ducks unmasks a male crook in women's clothing.

Eight days later he proposes to Tess Trueheart, watches helplessly as Big Boy's thugs kidnap Tess and gun down her father during a holdup. Then this colloquy between the police chief and Tracy:

"How'd you like to join the plain clothes squad?"

"You've taken the words right out of my mouth."

Thus the super-detective was created, to sally forth in print, in Saturday matinee movie serials and on the radio as the tough dick who could gun down a gangster and deliver this sermon to his tender audience:

"Johnny Mintworth paid the price for living a loose, careless life. He made his first mistake when he kept company with a girl who was a perfume thief. He thought she was cute."

Dick Tracy was even parodied in another comic strip, Li'l Abner, as "Fearless Fosdick," a detective so inept that he once killed 42 people while trying to arrest a balloon vendor.

Tracy was born in the days of depression, prohibition and gangsters, the brainchild of Chester Gould. In "The Celebrated Cases of Dick Tracy," published last year by Chelsea House, Gould is quoted as saying, "I decided that if the police couldn't catch the gangsters, I'd create a fellow who would."

There followed a memorable set of bad guys: "The Blank," a faceless man whose name was Frank Redrum (murder spelled backwards); Jerome Trohs, a midget who is scalded to death in a shower; the Mole, a miser who lived underground; B.B. Eyes, a World War II bootlegger; Flattop, a killer for hire; Pruneface, Haf-and-Haf, Angeltop and Torcher.

Their names often spelled their worst traits backwards and nearly always matched their appearance. "I wanted my villains to stand out definitely so that there would be no mistake who the villain was," Gould said once.

Three plead innocent in Ray's stabbing

WARTBURG, Tenn. (AP) — Three black inmates have pleaded innocent to charges in connection with the June stabbing of James Earl Ray and have selected a Chicago attorney to represent them.

Ray, 53, serving 99 years in the 1968 death of civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr., suffered 22 stab wounds from a homemade knife in the June 4 attack in the law library at Brushy Mountain Penitentiary in Petros.

The three inmates, charged with assault to commit murder, entered their pleas Monday at a hearing in Morgan County Circuit Court. A preliminary hearing was scheduled for Nov. 23.

They will be represented by Illinois attorney Isaiah Gant, one of a team of lawyers who represented 10 inmates acquitted in May of killing three guards during a 1978 riot at the Pontiac Correctional Center in north central Illinois.

The three accused in Ray's stabbing are John W. Partee of Nashville, sentenced to 99 years on a 1977 first-degree murder conviction; Jerome N. Ransom of Chattanooga, sentenced to 15 years on 1979 convictions of second-degree murder and larceny of an automobile, and Doc Walker of Memphis, sentenced to 100 years on a 1970 conviction of robbery with a deadly weapon.

Noel Raney plays piano for diners aboard the shake-down run of a luxury train it promotors plan to run between New York and Los Angeles. The nine-day trip will cost $2,300 and includes two-day stops in New Orleans and Phoenix. The run Monday was between New York and Washington for reporters and travel agents.

Mystery on the American Express: How many people will ride it?

By RICK HAMPSON
Associated Press Writer

ABOARD THE CROSS-CONTINENT (AP) — America may be getting into training, but Americans will be getting into debt if they book passage very often on the Cross-Continent.

How many couples will be willing to pay $4,600 for a nine-day, one-way "land cruise" between New York and Los Angeles on what promoters bill as "a grand hotel on wheels?"

As many as 200 a year, predicts American Express and 20th Century Rail Tours, the companies that will offer 10 trips next year in restored cars that date back to the grand days of railroading.

The train rolled from New York to Washington on Monday on the first leg of a shake-down trip before beginning coast-to-coast runs next spring.

"We're definitely looking for a very upscale type of passenger," said Ronnie Cox of American Express, "mainly married couples between 40 and 60."

"There's a certain amount of ego involved here," said Jack Mannix, also of American Express. "It's something the guy down the street hasn't done."

Mannix stood in the mirrored, mahogany-paneled private bar and observation car built for the Canadian national railroad in 1926. Its passengers have included King George V and Queen Elizabeth, mother of England's current monarch.

Although the Cross-Continent's four cars are hitched to the end of regular Amtrak trains, "the first class section will be off limits to regular passengers," Mannix said. "Our passengers can go forward, although I don't know why they'd want to."

The trip includes two-day stops in New Orleans and Phoenix, with nights at the Royal Orleans and Arizona Biltmore hotels.

The train is a nostalgic treat for people "who will go anywhere, anytime on restored rail cars," Mannix added.

For those who "are old enough to remember the great trains," it could be a romantic voyage — despite the upper and lower berths.

"There were many love affairs on these trains," said Gary Lumsden, one of the founders of 20th Century, which rents the cars from the enthusiasts and collectors who restored them.

"Also, it will be attractive to foreign tourists, because it offers an easy, antiseptic way to see the country," added Lumsden's partner, Tucker Lampkin, as he relaxed in the sleek "Palm Beach" bar car.

On Monday's trip, the air conditioning had failed and it was getting stuffy. Lampkin grabbed a vase that slid across a table every time the train rounded a sharp bend.

Despite such snags, reporters and travel agents who rode from New York to New Orleans appeared to enjoy themselves. They boarded the train on a red carpet; the women received corsages, and several minutes later champagne was served as New Jersey's parking lots and highways whipped by.

But is it worth $2,300, a sum tour officials acknowledge can buy a cruise on a luxury ocean liner?

"We don't have a swimming pool or a racquetball court," Mannix admitted.

But they do have former Pullman porter Jesse Mitchell, a veteran of 41 years on the railroad, who is one of several former Pullman stewards to come out of retirement to work on the new run.

Passengers also get lots of little extras — chocolates in their rooms at bedtime, a complimentary shower robe, and things trains never offered, such as a telephone, video recorder and a shower.

And there are some of the old touches, including embossed stationery, overnight shoeshines and chimes to announce dinner.

The food, billed as a key inducement to make the trip, will be available via room service 24 hours a day.

Wampanoags approve settlement to get land

GAY HEAD, Mass. (AP) — More than a century losing the land, Wampanoag Indians have approved an out-of-court settlement giving them back 238 acres of valuable oceanside property in this exclusive Martha's Vineyard community.

Ballots counted Monday night showed tribe members voted 115-to-60 to accept the agreement rather than press their case in court for return of the entire town.

"It's a resounding acceptance of the settlement," said tribal coordinator Donald Widdiss. "I think we have a clear indication of what the tribe wants. I'm happy we got that out of the way and now we can deal with the process of trying to effect the settlement."

The settlement, reached after more than four years of negotiation with the non-Indian Gay Head Taxpayers Association, was voted on during the weekend in a Quonset hut.

The votes were counted Monday night at the Wampanoag Tribal Council offices in this tiny town of 150 year-round residents that grows to a population of 500 during the summer season.

Under the agreement, the 300-member tribe would get back 238 acres of shorefront property worth an estimated $2.8 million, while the town would retain rights to a 50-foot strip of beach to guarantee access to the water by non-Indians.

The compromise also would allow the Indians to apply for federal funds and buy 175 acres of buildable land from a bankrupt development firm. That land would be used in part for housing for Indians who otherwise could not afford to stay in the fashionable Martha's Vineyard community.

Congressional approval is needed for funds to pay for the buildable land, and for ratification of the settlement's other provisions. The tribe also must vote on a land use plan for the properties it will acquire, and on the language of proposed federal and state legislation to carry out the settlement.

Widdis said the process could take "at least a year."

Some tribe members wanted return of the entire town, claiming Gay Head violated the federal Indian Non-Intercourse Act of 1790 by taking the land from the Indians in 1870 without federal approval.

Some of the Indians petitioned U.S. District Judge John McNaught Aug. 31 to allow expansion of the original suit, asking that the original demand of 238 acres include the entire 3,400 acres in town.

But Widdis said, "The tribe could not have expected to get more than it is getting. You have to be realistic."

Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis lives in Gay Head, but her home lies outside the 238 acres offered as a compromise.

Houston professor asks court to reverse prison reform order

HOUSTON (AP) — A University of Houston law professor has asked a federal appeals court to overturn U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice's order for sweeping reforms of the Texas state prison system.

Law professor Bill Crump accused Justice of using unfair procedures at a trial that resulted in Justice's controversial order demanding a complete overhaul of the Texas Department of Corrections.

Crump filed a friend-of-the-court brief Monday asking the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals to overturn Justice's ruling.

The Tyler judge ordered TDC and the state of Texas to make major changes in the prison system because living conditions violated prisoners' constitutional rights.

But Crump contends the judge ignored evidence favorable to the state, made sweeping generalizations of facts on insufficient, flimsy evidence and showed partisanship by helping inmates and their attorneys structure the suit.

Crump was especially critical of Justice's appointment of a special master to oversee the prison system and the judge's requirement that each inmate have a private cell.

Although Justice's order did not ban two-person cells, it in effect forbids housing two inmates in cells smaller than 60 square feet. The 5th Circuit has issued a stay on that part of the order, pending the appeal.

Crump said many people never convicted of a crime live in state institutions such as college dormitories and hospitals without "the luxury of individually assigned rooms."

"Persons who have served their country in the armed forces, even those drafted involuntarily, have never been able to claim such a right."

Prosecutor wants probe in beating

LAMPASAS, Texas (AP) — District Attorney Arthur Eads has asked federal officials to investigate allegations than Lampasas police chief Jerry Weems struck and threatened a burglary suspect.

Eads, district attorney for Bell and Lampasas counties, said he called Edward Prado, U.S. Attorney for the Western District of Texas, to request the probe.

Eads asked that Prado's office join with the FBI in conducting an investigation.

U.S. Vice President George Bush, addressing a Republican fund raiser in San Juan, Puerto Rico, said "...in the White House, you have friends who feel that the country would be stronger, that we all would be better, if Puerto Rico was 51." Bush said he and Reagan both favor statehood for the U.S. commonwealth.

Puerto Rican statehood favored

By MARC D. CHARNEY
Associated Press Writer

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Vice President George Bush renewed his support for Puerto Rican statehood and said President Reagan shares his desire to see the Caribbean island become the 51st state.

"We will not retreat from our conviction, the president nor I," Bush told 400 guests at a $500-a-plate dinner given by the island's pro-statehood Republican Party Monday night to raise money for the national GOP.

"It's a matter of self-determination, a referendum, however you all decide to do it," he said. "But in the White House, you have friends who feel that the country would be stronger, that we all would be better, if Puerto Rico was 51."

Puerto Rico is a U.S. commonwealth. Residents are U.S. citizens but do not vote in national elections. They are represented in Congress only by a commissioner who has a voice but no vote in the House of Representatives. And though they participate in federal benefit programs, they pay no federal taxes.

Bush criticized Cuban President Fidel Castro and said the United States would back its friends in the Caribbean.

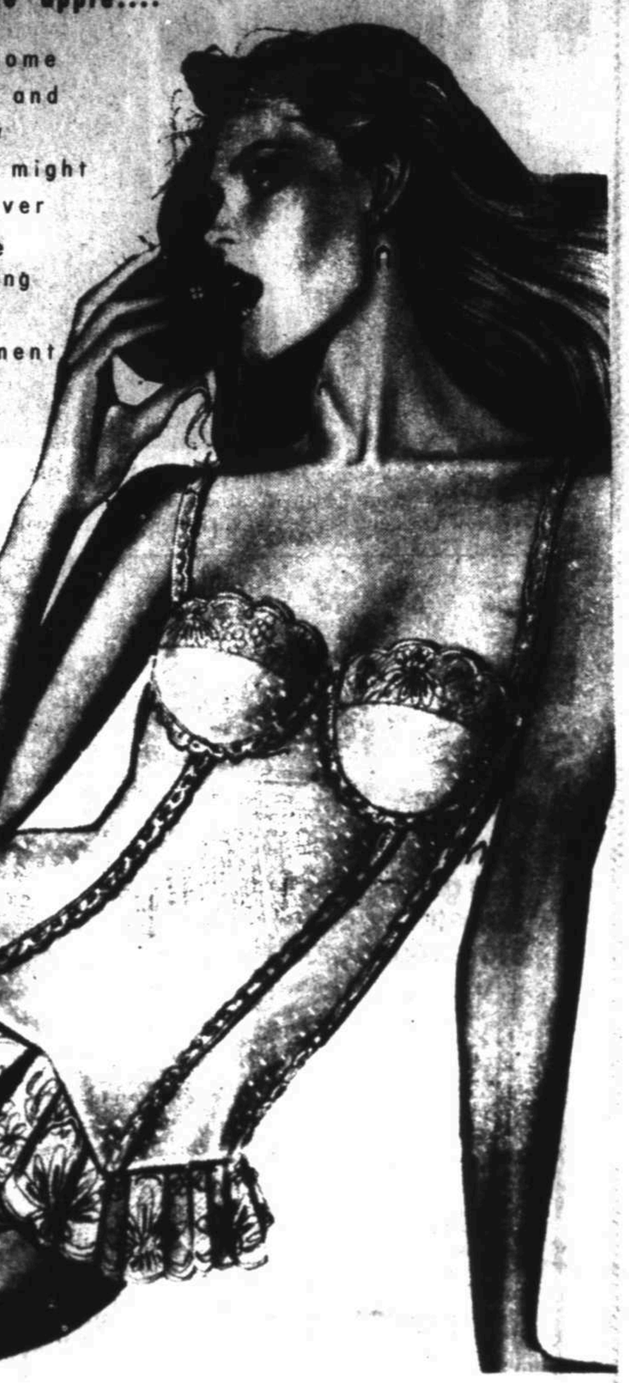

"We have embarked on a very ambitious Caribbean development program," he said. "We've been criticized for some. But I'd like to use this occasion to let Fidel Castro know that we are going to stand by the cause of freedom, we are going to stand by our friends in the Caribbean.

"We are going to help people like Mr. Seaga in Jamaica (Prime Minister Edward Seaga). We are going to say to those who are trying to export revolution, 'You're not going to have your way any more.' That's the way we feel about it."

Following court ruling, Trudeau, premiers to attempt compromise

OTTAWA (AP) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau and provincial premiers fighting his constitutional proposals say they will make another attempt to compromise following a Supreme Court ruling agreeing partly with both sides.

The court, in a 52-page opinion Monday, said there is no legal bar to Trudeau's plan to ask the British Parliament to incorporate amendments opposed by most of the provinces in the Canadian constitution and then transfer the charter to Canadian control.

But the court also ruled that because eight of the 10 provinces oppose Trudeau's package, the proposed amendments violate a tradition requiring provincial agreement to legislation affecting provincial powers.

Trudeau, on a state visit to South Korea, indicated to a news conference in Seoul he would be willing to meet the dissenting premiers again if that could produce results.

"We would very much like to have the agreement that is politically desirable from the provincial governments," he said. Otherwise, "I see no alternative but to press on. But I assure you that we will do so prudently, conscious of the magnitude of our enterprise and sensitive to real and meaningful change in the attitude of provincial governments."

Justice Minister Jean Chretien said the government is confident it is within the law and would continue seeking approval of the Trudeau package.

"We intend to finish the job," he said after a telephone conference with Trudeau, whom he described as relieved and pleased with the court decision.

Premier Bill Bennett of British Columbia, acting as spokesman for the provinces, said he would begin a nationwide tour today to see if a compromise can be reached. He warned Trudeau that chaos will result if he goes ahead without more provincial support.

Jonathan Aitken, the Conservative chairman of the British Parliament's all-party committee on the Canadian constitution, told Radio Quebec that the court's ruling seriously reduces the chances of British approval for Trudeau's plan. But Aitken, on a fact-finding visit with three other Conservative members of the committee, said he was speaking for the four Tories and not for the committee.

Only Ontario and New Brunswick side with Trudeau. The other provinces object to two points in the prime minister's plan: inclusion of a bill of rights and an amending process calling for ratification by six of the 10 provinces — Ontario and Quebec, because they are the two most populous, any two Western provinces, and any two Eastern provinces.

Various provinces object to various provisions in the bill of rights, and different provinces favor different amending procedures. The Western provinces, for example, object to Ontario and Quebec having a veto.

Former Prime Minister Joe Clark, leader of the opposition Progressive Conservatives, said his party will "fight with every means at our disposition," if Trudeau proceeds.

Canada's constitution is the British North America Act of 1867, under which Britain gave Canada semi-autonomous status. Canada won autonomy within the British Commonwealth in 1931, but to bring the constitution home as the Canada Act, requires the consent of the British Parliament.

The prime minister said he planned to discuss the ruling with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and other Commonwealth leaders after he joined them in Australia today for the Commonwealth conference.

Solidarity hears another attack

By THOMAS W. NETTER
Associated Press Writer

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — The Solidarity congress heard another attack on Poland's Communist leaders as the official media charged that the dissident group KOR was going underground inside the independent labor federation.

The 800 delegates to the union's first national congress applauded 93-year-old economist Edward Lipinski Monday when he told them the Polish Communist Party's brand of socialism "has been destroying us for 30 years."

"I consider myself a socialist and have been a socialist since 1906," said Lipinski. "But the socialism created was a socialism of mismanagement unequaled in 200 years — a socialism of prisons, censorship and police.

"It is this socialism that is is anti-socialist and anti-revolutionary," said Lipinski, a founder of KOR who announced its dissolution to the congress.

KOR — the Committee for Social Defense — was founded in 1976 to help workers who were punished for participating in riots over food-price increases. Its leaders have been among the chief advisers of Lech Walesa and other leaders of Solidarity.

KOR's chairman, Jacek Kuron, told the congress trhe committee is ceasing to exist because it "has fulfilled its function. ... Now, with Solidarity, it has become superfluous."

Some union theorists believed the disbanding of KOR would remove a major target of Soviet and Polish leaders, who accuse it of manipulating the union. But the response of the official media indicated any such belief was groundless.

"KOR has made Solidarity its heir," said Warsaw Radio. "The illegal opposition organization numbering a few dozen wants to become a legal organization numbering millions."

Trybuna Ludu, the Communist Party newspaper, said: "KOR is planning to declare that it has given birth to an enormous child in the person of Solidarity. The actions of KOR will continue within Solidarity."

Meanwhile, new labor unrest was brewing.

Union leaders in the Katowice coal region in southern Poland declared a strike alert to protest the arrest of the publisher of a union paper and pressure to work the mines on holiday Saturdays.

The government has sent troops into the mines to help boost lagging production of coal, Poland's chief export. It says 175 million tons is the minimum necessary this year, but only 163 million are expected so far.

A spokesman for a "free trade union for policemen" told the Solidarity congress 2,000 police officers participated in a national founding congress on June 1. Zbigniew Zmudziak said 40,000 policemen support a union "to demand that police will not be used to stamp out the protests of the working class."

The CD for All Savers...From First National

Beginning October 1st, First National offers a program for "all savers" to enjoy savings with high interest yield plus a tax benefit. It's called the All Savers Certificate of Deposit. Here's how it works: Beginning October 1, 1981 and until December 31, 1982, you may invest as little as $500 in a First National All Savers CD for a maturity of one year. During that year, interest earned by the CD may be excluded from your taxable income up to a maximum $2,000 for couples filing joint tax returns, $1,000 for those filing separately. The current annual rate is 12.61%.

The interest rate on the CD will change every 4 weeks, but the rate in effect at the time you invest is fixed for the full one year term. Although the interest rate is not compounded, you may receive interest payments monthly, quarterly or upon maturity. If the CD principal is withdrawn prior to maturity, the tax exclusion is forfeited and there is substantial penalty. Deposits are insured by FDIC.

Compare First National's All Savers Certificate to other investment alternatives, consider your tax plan, then visit one of our CD representatives in our main lobby.

Combine practicality, elegance

By BARBARA HARTUNG
Copley News Service

Q. Our children are now all grown and away from home and it is time to redecorate our living room.

I want a cool and elegant look. For many years we had to settle for practical fabrics in dark colors because this room got such heavy wear. I no longer feel so constrained by practicality although the room must still be serviceable.

Please give me some ideas for practical but elegant decorating. I like calm, natural tones. — W.F.

A. You might be inspired by a beautiful living room created by designer Marlene Dibrell.

She first chose a practical nylon in pearl beige for carpeting to give a soft, floating effect to the floor. The crushed pile picks up highlights and creates an irridescent look.

Her upholstery fabrics are in soft blues and taupes — a plain fabric on an occasional chair, a stripe on a pair of chairs and a stylized art deco-inspired print on the sofa, all modest but elegant and interesting fabrics because of their contrasting finishes, patterns and textures.

Instead of traditional draperies at the large windows, the designer hung sheer panels of a slightly textured weave at the windows. Walls and ceiling were wood paneled and given an antiqued wash, complementing a marble-faced fireplace.

Be certain when you select your elegant fabrics, they have been treated for soil resistance at the factory or have them treated before you use them. This will, of course, extend the period of looking fresh.

With new man-made fibers, you can often approximate the look of luxuriously delicate natural materials such as silk and damask with long-wearing acrylics and nylons. To further add to the practicality of your choices, choose some pattern on upholstery that will carry the hardest wear, lighter, plainer fabrics for lesser-used pieces.

Q. Our living room-dining room is L-shaped. The dining room furniture is oak. Must we use oak also in the living room? Or would light and dark tones of walnut be all right? — K.J.H.

A. Many fine designers reccommend mixing shades of wood and types of finish for an interesting look. You should be able to use oak in your dining room and walnut in the living room with most compatible results. In fact, the contrast is good.

Most people prefer mixing woods that are of similar formality or informality and this has to do both with the wood itself and the style in which the wood has been fashioned. Most oak pieces today are informal and likewise, many pieces of walnut are informal.

If you are talking antiques, consider pairing formal pieces. Of course, you sometimes see an all-contemporary house with sleek oak tables and other furniture with one outrageously elaborate antique walnut breakfront. The result can be startling and dramatic. But for most of us, following either an informal or formal feeling is easiest and gives the most pleasing results.

DEAR ABBY

New curves bend him out of shape

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Your answer to "Flat in Front" was all wet. "Flat" wanted to surprise her husband and have her breasts surgically enlarged because he always ogled big-busted women. You said, "Don't surprise him. Ask him. He may like you just the way you are."

Abby, I went through this kind of surgery 10 years ago because, like "Flat," my husband ogled big-busted women. When we'd go to a party, he'd wander off, and I'd always find him next to a woman who was well-endowed.

Finally I went to a plastic surgeon to ask about silicone implants and was told it would cost $2,000 (this was in 1970). I asked my husband for the money. He refused, so I sold my car and paid for the operation myself, and it was the best investment I ever made.

I got a gorgeous figure out of it (37-26-38), but my husband couldn't take the whistles and compliments, and the confidence I had acquired. I realized then what a loser he was, and I divorced him.

Now I'm married to a real winner who loves me the way I am. — BUILT AND LOVING IT

DEAR BUILT: Hubby No. 1 was a loser for sure. But Hubby No. 2 is a winner only if he also would have loved you the way you WERE.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a wonderful guy, but he is very unreasonable when someone is late. Abby, I don't mean really late like 45 minutes or an hour — I'm talking about five to 10 minutes.

Both our kids are married and they are responsible adults, but they sometimes run a little late.

Well, yesterday we were going out for dinner with our kids, and we had a 7:00 p.m. reservation at a place about a 10 minutes' drive from here. Our daughter and her husband weren't here at 6:30 like they were supposed to be, so my husband insisted that we leave at 6:45 on the dot! I begged him to wait another five minutes, but he wouldn't do it. My husband is the kind who has to be at the airport an hour early, and he has absolutely no patience with anyone who is even five minutes late for anything.

Is there any way to cure him? — MR. PUNCTUALITY'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Don't look for a cure where there's no disease. Mr. Punctuality will probably train his family before they "cure" him.

(Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (35 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, 12060 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250.)

American stenos are sunny bunch

HOLYOKE, Mass. (AP) — American secretaries are an amenable group, so long as their bosses' requests are within reason, according to a national survey.

The study, conducted by American Pad & Paper Co., a maker of office supplies, revealed that 80 percent of the secretaries polled said they had never refused a request by the boss. Of those who had, one claimed she was asked to clean a restroom and another to backdate a company postal meter. Most often cited was refusal to run personal errands such as Christmas shopping.

Plastic program for engineers

PARKERSBURG, W. Va. (AP) — Six Chinese engineers have been brought to America to be taught all phases of the plastics industry by Borg Warner Chemicals.

The project will become a "training pipeline" for the Chinese with engineers continuously brought over and cycled back after training to give their country a large cadre of plastics specialists.

The company has already been shipping cycolac plastic to the Chinese along with American engineers to coach them in production techniques.

Painless prevention against tooth decay

CHICAGO (AP) — The modern dentist can use two painless procedures to fight tooth decay, according to the American Dental Association.

Studies have shown, the ADA says, that certain fluoride liquids and gels applied directly to the teeth by a dentist can bring about a substantial reduction of decay — as much as 30 to 45 percent. This fluoride application is to help the tooth's enamel become more resistant to decay and is recommended at age 3 for protection of children's primary teeth and again when permanent teeth are erupting.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Camouflaging burn injuries

DEAR HELOISE:

When I put a glass coffeepot, which had boiled dry and was red hot, on my laminated countertop, the plastic bubbled up and popped in two places underneath it.

I was sick until a friend told me she had repaired her burned countertop by placing standard bathtub appliques over the burned spots.

Then I purchased a package of large flower-shaped appliques (don't punch the centers out) and stuck a big flower on each burned spot. You can even scatter more flowers around to give a planned look.

The appliques come in a lot of colors and designs, and could also by used to cover scratches and chips.

Mine stayed pretty for several years. — Vivian Reinhard

+ + +

Fantastic! And remember, gals and guys, when it's time to replace them (or you tire of them), use a pre-wash spray to remove the glue residue! — Heloise

HANDY WRAP

Dear Heloise: It's so handy to reach in a container or plastic bag in the freezer and get just the desired amount of food, instead of having to defrost a larger portion and cutting away what is used.

When preparing foods for the freezer, wrap chicken parts separately. Shape ground meat into patties, balls, one pound portions, etc. Now, place the individually wrapped pieces of meat on a cookie sheet. Even cake, meatloaf, etc., can be done this way.

Arrange in a single layer and, when completely frozen, place in marked containers or bags.

No more frayed nerves or broken fingernails. — Mrs. F.L. Burns

MAKE YOUR OWN

Dear Heloise: Instead of making or purchasing disposable nursing pads, I make washable ones.

I used an old white knit T-shirt for the first layer (next to the skin). An old light colored but faded sweatshirt became the inside, absorbent layer, and a beige double knit was the last layer.

Beige was used last, as this color doesn't show through light colored clothes as easily as white.

Cut out an equal number of circles from each fabric. Stitch the three layers together with a half-inch seam, stretching the T-shirt knit slightly to give a contour shape.

Trim the edges even to a quarter-inch seam and zig-zag the edges. A dozen and a half lasted me six months, and I just threw them in the washer along with the baby's clothes.

If more absorbability is needed, add an extra layer of the sweatshirt. — A Thrifty Mother

MANY USES

Dear Heloise: I've found that mild liquid dishwashing detergent takes the place of most laundry aids.

I use it to wash out stockings and fine washables. It's great to replace liquid soap when the container becomes empty.

So, instead of having to buy detergents for dishwashing, laundry and bars of soap for hand washing, I find one bottle of liquid detergent does all the jobs, and what a savings! — Mrs. Paul Hicko

Prepare for sewing when the mood hits

By BETTY W. KINSER
Copley News Service

Which would you rather face — a stack of fabric you can't find the time to make up, or no fabric at all when you get in the mood to sew?

A lot depends on your personality, I guess. But one thing is for sure. When you are ready to sew, it sure helps to have something you can get your hands on quickly.

Why not have a "cut-out" day? Mate your fabrics and patterns, set up your cutting table, and cut out as many garments as your sanity will tolerate. Put each cut-out garment and pattern in a separate bag or box. Now, when the sewing bug bites, you are halfway there. You'll be surprised at how much further your sewing time goes.

Time-savers, whether in sewing, cooking or cleaning, are always welcome. But we mustn't sacrifice quality work just to save a minute or two.

Here are a few time-savers that really work:

When shopping for fabric and pattern, always purchase everything that goes with it — zipper, buttons, interfacing, etc. An extra trip to the fabric shop certainly can waste time.

Find a spot where your machine and ironing board can be left up at least until you finish your project. Time wasted in setting up and taking down is not redeemable.

Cut out interfacings, linings and other pieces at the same time you cut out your fabric. Do all markings while you still have everything on the cutting table.

Send me your time-saving tips. We will share.

Waxing tests for cars

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — How do you tell when a car needs waxing?

According to a manufacturer of car waxes and finishes, the best way is the "water beading test."

"Go outside after a rainfall and look at the water drops or puddles on the car. If the water is puddling or sheeting, that means you have no wax left," says Jeanette Jankowski, a scientist at Du Pont.

"If you look at one of the drops and see a tall, well-rounded bead standing up, however, that means a good layer of wax is still left on your car."

Midland County Chapter of Young Homemakers of Texas officers are, from left, Sue Nuessle, vice president; Pam Brown, reporter-historian; Phyllis Vinson, president; and Nancy Medley, social chairman. Not pictured is Janice Rabenaldt, secretary-treasurer. Membership to the group is open to individuals up to 35 years of age. Associate membership is available to persons over 35. Persons interested in becoming a member should contact Mrs. Vinson at 694-5418 or Nell Davenport at 694-2551, ext. 74. The group will begin the year's activities with a get-acquainted salad supper for members and guests Oct. 8 in the Lee High School homemaking department. A presentation will be given on wardrobe planning and makeup. Purpose of the group is educational, with emphasis made on homemaking skills. The group is sponsored by Mrs. Davenport, Lee High School homemaking teacher, and the Texas Education Agency. Activities planned for the year include the making of ceramic Christmas ornaments, tole painting, dough art, cake decorating and making and arranging silk flowers. A Christmas dinner for couples and a family picnic is also planned.

AT WIT'S END

Breakfast cereal boxes

By ERMA BOMBECK

I don't know how in the world you can expect nations to reason together when you cannot get five people to agree on one breakfast cereal.

At the moment, we have 37 boxes of cereal on our shelves — all open. Some snap. Some explode on impact with milk. Some puff up. Some die from the humidity. All attract ants.

I have a dream. A dream that before I go to that big utility room in the sky, every box of cereal on the shelf will be emptied. I've tried it before with little success.

"Hey gang, how about polishing off the Chock Full of Pimples?"

"They're stale."

"How about the Cavity Flakes?"

"They get caught in your teeth."

"Anyone for Shredded Natural Bran Harvest Nuggets with no preservatives?"

"That's for old people who have nothing to lose by eating sensibly."

What this world needs is a one-size-fits-all cereal. A cereal that would fight sog, fortify you with vitamins, talk back to you from the bowl, contain a 194-piece plastic replica of a Civil War battle and keep you regular.

For some unexplained reason, a box of cereal is something a woman cannot throw away. I can throw away a box of baking soda that has been in the refrigerator for three years, a box of raisins that has entered the Twilight Zone, or a clove of fresh garlic that has gone to live with Jesus. I cannot evict a 32-ounce box containing two tablespoons of Captain Clown Krinkles.

Yesterday, I decided to do something about the 37 boxes. I crumbled the stale Bran Brittles and sprinkled them over a casserole. I baked a cookie out of the leftover cup of Fruit Lips. The puffed Crunchies I made into a necklace. The two remaining bite-sized Fun Wheats I made into earrings. I was down to 33 boxes when my husband came in with a box of Early Morning Chewies.

I'm losing the battle.

Designs for home furnishings

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Don't depict onions on kitchen towels if you expect to sell them. Forget about bugs or thorns on flowers, eliminate knives with pointy blades showing, and shun anything that looks like snakes.

These prohibitions and numerous others go without saying in the world of mass-market home furnishings design because stores won't stock such products. To the artists who create the designs, these restrictions are "just part of the job," says John Sacks, an agent for a number of artists.

Sacks runs Jane-Albert Studio, a design workshop where about 15 designers turn out thousands of motifs which are eventually used to decorate sheets, tablecloths, wall coverings, upholstery fabrics and other home furnishings soft goods.

Such studios, along with free-lancers working alone, supply most of the home furnishings designs in the mass market, Sacks said. Even name designer collections are usually produced by manufacturers working with an outside design studio.

While some large companies employ staff artists to create their products, the majority of home furnishings firms do not. Instead, they buy designs from studios such as his. The manufacturer usually has a design director or stylist on the staff who initiates the basic concept and then hires outsiders to create the actual designs, he said.

An independent studio works with the manufacturer in several ways.

"First of all, we maintain an open library of original designs they can consult here or in their own office," Sacks noted. These designs, prepared by artists on large, flat sheets, are filed according to subject. Typical headings might be flowers, geometrics, stripes, plaids or ethnic subjects. Clients pay varying amounts for each design — usually between $400 and $1,000 — depending on how complicated it is and the reputation of the artist.

Studio artists also collaborate directly with a manufacturer. For example, one artist was asked to work on a special sheet for a department store promotion. "The client suggested something to do with wisteria and our artist took it from there," explained Sacks.

Sometimes he originates a marketing concept himself and sells it to a manufacturer.

Most of the studio's artists are serious painters and illustrators who do this work to support themselves, according to Sacks.

However, the amount of money they can make generally is small. Their names rarely if ever appear on the products and most earn from between $10,000 and $20,000 a year from this work. Artists are paid a straight fee for their work and only in rare cases do they receive royalties.

As agent, Sacks earns a commission on everything sold through the studio.

"We have 300 clients, all in home furnishings. About 25 of them are European manufacturers," he said. Nowadays, Europeans look to the United States for leadership in home furnishings design. "They admire the softness of our flowers and the flow of our patterns. The characteristic informality of American designs appears to be unduplicatable in Europe," he said.

While cities such as Chicago, Dallas and Los Angeles have studios where original work is done, Sacks estimates that "60 to 70 percent" of the designs come from New York City.

One might assume a good design would be suitable for a certain type of product, regardless of its price level. But this is not the way the market operates. High-style and mass-market trends are entirely different, Sacks said.

Right now, he said, what's selling to the mass market is "anything that is pretty, and clever novelties. You could sum up the design trends as: "romantic, Americana and easy to live with."

Masonry cleaner works on architectural stone

By GENE GARY
Copley News Service

Q. You have given instructions on how to clean brick and stone from soot and smoke on a fireplace, but how do you clean soot and smoky dirt from a fireplace made of manufactured architectural stone?

We have such a fireplace and would appreciate an answer in your column. — Mrs. Ellen T., Warner Springs, Calif.

A. Any cleaning method recommended for masonry can be used on your manufactured stone.

Smoke is a difficult stain to remove. A thorough scrubbing with scouring powder, particularly one containing bleach, and a stiff bristle brush works surprisingly well.

For the more stubborn stains, a poultice using trichloroethylene will pull the stain from the pores. Extreme precaution should be taken to ventilate a closed space in which trichloroethylene is used, as the fumes are harmful.

Another suggestion: You might try a solution of tri-sodium phosphate, one cup mixed with one-third cup detergent in a gallon of warm water. Scrub with a stiff brush.

Q. A question in your recent column related to installation of outdoor carpeting over two-by-six-inch hardboards on a patio deck.

How would outdor carpeting be over asphalt roll roofing, two layers tarred to one-half inch plywood? Would that be satisfactory?

The roof joints are 16-inch on center on a 2 percent sloping roof. The area is about 15 feet square which we propose to use as a roof deck. — Edward M.B.

A. Outdoor carpeting should be satisfactory over this base as long as there is no way for moisture to work up underneath the roofing paper.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Wednesday, Sept. 30, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Actresses Deborah Kerr and Angie Dickinson share this birthday with you. Also born on this date: writer Truman Capote. Your creative ideas receive enthusiastic support in the year ahead. You have a chance to make many worthwhile new contacts and friends. Outsiders will have considerable influence on your thinking. Do not be taken in by flattery or false tales of woe. The business outlook is especially favorable for those who are self-employed. Marriages become stronger, but singles may find romance both exciting and short-lived. The best profession for you is one which allows you to help others.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Be alert to possible fraud and deceit on the part of coworkers. New monetary gains are possible. Postpone signing agreements. A fulfilling romantic relationship may be in the offing.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Strive to create a more harmonious atmosphere at home. It is up to you to reduce the tension! Take some positive steps towards increasing your income.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A heavy workload could leave you with an "energy crisis" of your own. Get better organized and learn to delegate more authority. Advice is available for the asking.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Keep experimental ideas under wraps for the time being. Friends offer financial support but there are strings attached. Postpone signing contracts, agreements. Romance is terrific!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Use the mail or telephone to cut down on travel expenses. The savings will be worth it. New ideas should be put into operation. Handle distant affairs with kid gloves.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A visit from an old friend will add something special to your day. Carry out your personal plans. Share the good things that come your way with those who deserve them.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Get in touch with key people to sort out a difficult problem. A stranger may attract your attention. Keep your guard up until this person proves his or her reliability.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You, your career and prestige are in the spotlight. Dress conservatively, but smartly. An emergency may demand more cash than you have on hand. A friend will help you out!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A love relationship that develops slowly is likely to be long-lasting. Keep appointments on time. A social event enables you to cultivate influential people who can help your career.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): The news from afar should be encouraging now. Return phone calls and answer correspondence while you have the opportunity. A partnership may prove more profitable than going it alone.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be aware of mate's priorities as well as your own. You may both have to compromise to avoid a serious misunderstanding. An argumentative co-worker should be ignored.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your chances for a raise or promotion are quite good now. Secret transactions can contain many pitfalls. Be careful. Use all of your resources to build a stronger financial base.

Opening lead: Two of ♠.

The Ruitenboer Tournament in Holland produced a number of interesting hands. We want to thank "Bridge," the official magazine of the Dutch Bridge Federation, for their excellent report on the event, from which these hands were taken.

Because of the possibility of a misfit, South should do no more than bid two spades at his second turn. North has enough in reserve to raise to three spades (Queen-x is more than adequate support for a suit that has been rebid), and South's continuation to game is automatic.

Assume the neutral lead of a trump. If declarer gets careless and banks all on the heart suit, he will go down. After drawing trumps and cashing the top hearts, he will end up losing three diamond tricks and a club (or four diamond tricks), unless the defenders err.

It does not take a great knowledge of the probabilities to be aware that six missing cards are likely to break 4-2. If the hearts aren't going to run, declarer must cast about for some other means to fulfill his contract.

The club suit offers such a possibility. See what happens if declarer wins the opening lead in his hand and immediately leads a low club, while carefully retaining a trump in dummy to prevent the defenders from collecting three diamond tricks after winning the ace of clubs. Even if East has the ace and wins it, declarer will be able to get two diamond discards, one on the hearts and one on the high club, after drawing trumps.

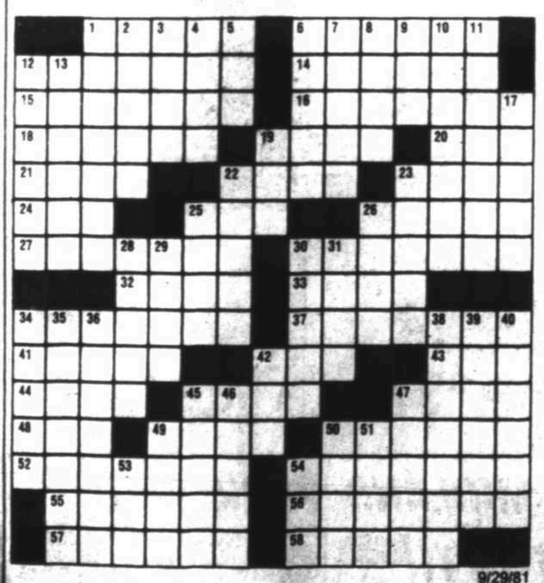

The situation is at least as good if West has the ace of clubs. If he rises with the ace, the defenders will have to cash their diamond tricks at once to prevent declarer from scoring an overtrick. And if West ducks the ace to prevent setting up two good clubs in dummy, declarer has no trouble holding his losses in diamonds to three tricks. Simple but effective.

Amount of 'good' cholesterol not depend on exercise

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've read every book you've written, so I know you consider exercise important. In one book, you explained that exercise helps increase the good cholesterol in the body. You have also written that moderate use of alcohol can accomplish the same thing.

My question is: If I exercise and use alcohol, how do I know which is responsibile for increasing the good cholesterol? Maybe it's just the exercise. — Luke, Detroit

Dear Luke: The increase in high-density lipoprotein (HDL) cholesterol in moderate drinkers, the good cholesterol to which you refer, does not appear to depend on the amount of exercise they engage in. One study that supports this conclusion involved 90 male physicians who were marthon runners. The average HDL concentration of the doctors who usually did not use alcohol was lower than that of those who did.

It is important to note that despite these findings, and the belief that high HDL levels appear to protect against coronary disease, the researchers say it would be premature to recommend that nondrinkers start using alcohol as a means of preventing a heart attack.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My fiancee and I both have relatives with a genetic disorder. If we were to have a child, and if the defect were transmitted to the child, would it be apparent at birth? — Randy, Vineland, NJ

Dear Randy: A child who has an inherited defect may not display at birth any of the symptoms associated with the disorder. In fact, the age at which a diagnosis is made in such conditions varies widely.

For example, while cystic fibrosis may be evident at birth, and sickle cell anemia and Tay-Sachs disease when the infant is about six months of age, the diagnosis for Duchenne muscular dystrophy is usually not made until the cyld is from two to four years old. Moreover, a condition such as Huntington's disease may not be diagnosed until the person is in his late 30s or even older.

Dear Dr. Solomon: In one of your columns you said that pregnant women who smoke give birth to babies of lower weight. Some women I know who smoke, eat a lot less than other women who do not smoke. Isn't it possible that women who smoke simply have smaller babies because they eat less? — Lynn, Chicago

Dear Lynn: The available data suggest that growth retardation in babies born to women who smoke during pregnancy is probably directy related to the effect of the smoke on the fetus. One study of more than 500 women showed that babies born to smokers had significantly lower birth weights than those born to nonsmokers. Moreover, this difference held true for each maternal weight category. It would appear, therefore, that it is not the mothers' dietary intake that accounts for the lower birth weights in their infants, but the fact that they smoke.

(If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

The only companion who ever kept confidences

By SCOTT KRAFT
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — They're consultants in canary yellow. Disposable and indispensible. And they keep confidences.

President Reagan finds them good listeners. Garry Trudeau bounces ideas for "Doonesbury" off them. Richard Nixon turned to one when he decided to resign.

More than just an office supply, yellow legal pads are tight-lipped companions. They carry the musings of presidents and criminals, coaches and cartoonists. They are mirrors for the mind — a place to unfurl ideas for private viewing.

Three of the ubiquitous pads are born every second. Americans use 100 million a year — a stack that would rise 300 miles.

Uncle Sam buys 7.2 million a year for executive offices around the world. The Senate buys 72,000; the House 92,000.

Lauren Bacall wrote "By Myself" on one. Stingo in William Styron's novel, "Sophie's Choice," wrote on one. And so does Styron.

Hours after former Secretary of State John Foster Dulles died in 1959, President Eisenhower carried a yellow pad to his sun porch in Gettysburg, Pa., and penciled a tribute to his frend.

But the courtroom is their everlasting home. They are to the lawyer what the slide rule is to the engineer, the clipboard to the foreman, the whistle to the lifeguard.

It's been that way since the turn of the century, when a Massachusetts judge carried his unlined yellow pad into American Pad & Paper Co.'s Holyoke, Mass., offices. He wanted an unruled pad with a left-side margin for his notations. The company now makes 32 million a year.

The legal process is awash in the pads. Judges, prosecutors, defense attorneys, defendants, and victims carry them.

"It's a rare bird who doesn't use a yellow legal pad," says Scott Turow, a federal prosecutor in Chicago. He totes three or four in his briefcase.

Change a lawyer's stapler and he'll hardly notice. Give him new paperclips and he won't say a word. But pull a switcheroo on his yellow legal pad, and you've got a problem on your hands.

They tired it on Turow, swapping a pad without a perforated top for one with perforation. Purists can't be fooled.

"I complained bitterly," he recalls. He laughs about it now; they got him the most expensive pads. "There's no cost-cutting when it comes to yellow legal pads," he says.

There also is no methadone for the legal pad addict.

When the Carter White House put a freeze on the pads, one worker swapped information with federal agencies based on how many legal pads he could get in return.

Given Reagan's affection for them (he even wrote a Fourth of July essay on one), it seems unlikely the current White House crew will be cutting back.

There's certainly no scrimping in the Senate, where offices are supplied with high-quality pads bound in imitation leather. Each yellow sheet is "watermarked," with the brand name, Gold Fibre. That doesn't make them easier to write on, but it does help justify the cost — 41 cents each at the bulk rate. At retail, they go for more than a dollar.

"They're the most functional," explains David Marcos, whose official Senate title is: "Keeper of the Stationery."

The House pays a paltry quarter for each of its pads, and only a trained eye could tell the differences. But there are many trained eyes among afficionados.

Most legal pads are a quarter-inch thick, 8 to 8½ inches wide, 11 to 14½ inches long, rest on cardboard and are bound at the top by staples or plastic. Each of the pad's 50 sheets wears 25 to 35 horizontal blue lines spaced one-third inch apart, and two or three vertical red lines that create a 1½-inch margin on the left side.

Life for foreigners improved at Leningrad U.

By DAVID MINTHORN
Associated Press Writer

LENINGRAD, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Hot water and newly painted rooms have brightened dormitory living for foreigners at Leningrad University, despite continuing complaints about inadequate food.

Thelma Lowe of Berkeley, Calif., who has just completed a year of archeology studies at Leningrad University, says life for exchange students has improved noticeably in recent years.

"Foreign students who were here three or four years ago can't get over that there is hot water all the time in the dormitories," she said. "Our rooms are being repainted. There's even a new photocopying service."

Other sources familiar with campus life in Leningrad say that meat, fresh fruit and vegetables are often in short supply at the university's dining halls, reflecting chronic food shortages in the Soviet economy.

"I lost 15 pounds in six weeks. They weren't serving any meat until we kept complaining," said an American student who attended a summer exchange program at Leningrad University this year.

"Food is not a highlight of the trip for U.S. exchange students here," said another American close to the situation. "They have to stand in line at state shops for oranges and other scarce food items just like the Russians."

Mrs. Lowe, a Ph.D. candidate at the University of California, was one of 10 American graduate scholars who spent the 1980-81 academic year at Leningrad University.

Despite frosty U.S.-Soviet government relations, she said American scholars didn't encounter any more difficulties than usual pursuing their research in Leningrad.

However, during a six-week study trip to Soviet central Asia this summer, Mrs. Lowe said she had been permitted to visit only one archeological site under excavation outside Samarkand.

"Archeologists identify closely with the sites they are excavating and are very possessive of the material," she remarked.

Other informed U.S. sources said exchange students often encountered problems getting access to Soviet research, but most were reluctant to publicly criticize the Soviets because they feared they could be denied visas for future visits.

About 80 U.S. graduate students in all attended Soviet universities during the year, and the same number of Russians studied at American institutions, U.S. sources say.

Mrs. Lowe, the only science major in the Leningrad contingent, is studying ancient technology used in producing ceramic seals in the second millenium B.C. Artifacts with similar pictographic symbols have been unearthed in Soviet central Asia and the Indus valley of northern India and Pakistan, suggesting possible links between the peoples, she said.

Archeology in the Soviet Union apparently can serve ideological as well as historical purposes. Mrs. Lowe said that in Soviet central Asia, "they are studying traces of early farmers and herders to support a theory of an early class society. The theory appears to be valid." Soviet ideology holds that societies should evolve from ones with strict class systems into more egalitarian socialist states.

Holder of two degrees in archeology from Berkeley, Mrs. Lowe pursued her studies during three decades of living in Asia, where her former husband worked for the Ford Foundation.

After her four children reached college age, she decided to obtain a doctorate. She chose Leningrad University for advanced study because its archeology department specializes in central Asia.

Before coming to the Soviet Union, Mrs. Lowe took an intensive Russian course at a language institute in Monterey, Calif.

Dormitory life, she said, "was the pits at first. But I settled right in and learned to like the lifestyle, including cross-country skiing and Russian saunas."

In Leningrad, Americans share dormitory rooms with Soviet students. Exchange students from "capitalist countries" are segregated in separate buildings from students of developing countries.

Heinz ought to know ketchup no vegie

WASHINGTON (AP) — Take it from a senator who ought to know: Ketchup is not a vegetable.

Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa., took to the floor Friday to brand as "ludicruous" a proposed Agriculture Department rule that would permit ketchup and relish to be considered vegetables in subsidized school lunch menus.

"Ketchup is a condiment," said Heinz.

"This is one of the most ridiculous regulations I ever heard of, and I suppose I need not add that I do know something about ketchup and relish, or did at one time."

Heinz formerly worked in the financial and marketing divisions of the family firm, H.J. Heinz Co. of Pittsburgh, which makes ketchup among other food products.

He was a right end before he became a swinger

SEWANEE, Tenn. (AP) — These days, you can watch Miles O'Keeffe swinging through the treetops in Hollywood's latest movie variation on the Tarzan theme.

O'Keeffe, a native of Ripley, Tenn., plays Bo Derek's muscular lover in the movie, "Tarzan the Ape Man."

But it hasn't been very long since O'Keeffe was catching and running with footballs for the University of the South's Purple Tigers. He graduated from the Episcopal university at Sewanee in 1978 after transferring there from Mississippi State University.

In 1975, the right end caught 35 passes for 451 yards and a Sewanee football brochure lauded him as "an excellent blocker and hard runner, looked to for the big play."

"He was a heck of a football player," Tigers Coach Horace Moore recalls. "I remember him breaking the game wide open at Millsaps. He caught a little dump pass, read the linebacker real well and went 80 yards for a touchdown. You didn't catch him when he got ahead."

There have been some changes since. In his Sewanee days, he went by the name Miles Keefe, but he later reclaimed his family's original Irish name, O'Keeffe.

"He weighed more at Sewanee than he does in the movie," says Barry Ray, a former Sewanee football player who now coaches in Memphis. "I remember the first day he walked in the dressing room. We had all heard about this new tight end from Mississippi State. We looked at him and thought this guy must spend all his time in the weight room."

O'Keeffe also took part in drama at the university, playing a role as a member of a street gang in a Sewanee production of "Three Penny Opera."

Faculty and old acquaintances remember O'Keeffe in his Sewanee days as a quiet, but personable and well-liked sort.

"He was a free spirit — he let his hair grow long and he had a goatee," Moore said. "But he was a great kid. It was nothing but 'yes, sir,' 'no, sir.' He had a very strong character. I never heard him utter a curse word in his life, and I don't remember Miles ever taking a drink."

Moore said O'Keeffe, who majored in psychology, enrolled at Sewanee planning to enter seminary school after he graduated.

Water project financing plan urged

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — House Speaker Bill Clayton, Austin Mayor Carole McClellan and Water Development Board Chairman Louis Beecherl, Dallas, shared a press conference Monday to urge Texas to support a constitutional amendment creating a new source of financing for water projects.

Ms. McClellan, who also serves as president of the Texas Municipal League, said the "Water for Texas" committee will be working for passage of Proposition No. 4, adding, "I know of no issue more critical to the future of Texas than that of meeting the challenges ahead concerning water resource needs."

"It's a mistake for the people of Texas to think about water as strictly a West Texas problem," she said. "Water is an all-Texas problem."

Passage of Proposition 4 would allow financing of new sewage treatment facilities, replacement of worn-out water distribution systems, flood control measures and water quality projects such as control of salt in the Red River, besides construction of reservoirs, she said.

Ms. McClellan argued the amendment, which would dedicate half of any future State surpolus revenues to water projects and would create a $500 million loan guaranty fund backed by the State's credit, will be needed even more with cutbacks in Federal funds for water projects.

She also argued the amendment wouldn't result in other State needs being ignored because the Legislature could interrupt the flow of funds into the trust fund in case of "unforeseen urgencies."

She asked voters to reject "nit-picking technical argument," commenting that "if we're in trouble on water, we're all in trouble."

Clayton, who spoke briefly, said the amendment would allow Texans to "have an opportunity to guide their own destiny."

He also said the proposal would allow for research on methods to use water more effectively.

Beecherl also urged approval of the amendment, saying that Texas received a $77 million cut in its water quality projects construction funds this year, and that no funds are proposed in the Reagan budget for 1982.

Jim Kaster, former El Paso House member and now aide to Gov. Bill Clements, told the press conference Clements has restated his support for the proposal.

Kaster said that "it may be unfortunate" that the amendment is to be voted on in a year when Texas has had high rainfall, noting El Paso normally has seven inches a year but has had 12 inches of rain this year.

"Personally," Kaster said, "I'll vote for it because I want to get a drink of water when I turn on the tap in 10 years."

Demonstrating one of the newest Bell Telephone innovations is Bill Haehnel, who was to give his talk on "Blue Sky of Communications" to the Optimist Club today.

Telephone that brews tea among those in Bell program

A telephone that brews tea, a video system that enables doctors to make house calls and a miniature model of the telepone are highlights of this year's new Southwestern Bell science demonstration.

It's called "Blue Sky of Communications" and it was to be presented at noon today in Connor's Banquet Room to the Optimist Club.

Bill Haehnel, Southwestern Bell science demonstrator, says the new program shows there are no limits to enriching lives through communications.

"There's a whole universe waiting," he says.

Haehnel's presentation — complete with lighted display and removable panels — begins with a demonstration of a Bell solar battery. By applying light, he activates a solar battery that causes a music box to play. When he blocks out the light, the music stops.

The Bell solar battery has paved the way for other intriguing uses of the sun — in solar-powered cars, telephone lines, homes and satellites in space. In his 25-minute program, Haehnel demonstrates a variety of more recent innovations that he says will mark the beginning of tomorrow's world of communications.

Included are a communications system that instantly translates spoken English into other languages and a silicon chip the size of an infant's fingernail that holds the equivalent of 150,000 transistors.

Haehnel introduces his audience to an electronic data retrieval system that calls up such information as a patient's medical records or a perfect match for bridge.

"Because telebridge knows exactly how you've played your last 1,500 hands, you're instantly matched with three other players in a system of equal ability," he explains.

But future telecommunications will serve more than recreational needs. One special relay device, for instance, uses a flashing lamp to alert deaf persons when a phone rings. Another innovation makes it possible to call up two weeks' bills so one can balance a checkbook by phone.

250 arrested as protest closes

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (AP) — Authorities arrested about 250 demonstrators and a diagram error forced engineers to halt the loading of nuclear fuel as the two-week siege of the controversil Diablo Canyon power plant ground to an end.

Greg Pruett, a Pacific Gas & Electric spokesman, said Monday, "We're very relieved it's over. It's going to be refreshing for workers to be able to go to work unimpeded and without having to go past a line of sheriff's deputies."

The Abalone Alliance, which organized the two-week protest, has said it is ready to move into a new phase of opposition to the nuclear power plant, with community demonstrations and support for court action. The protesters' campsite near the PG&E property will remain open for about a week to allow jailed protesters to regroup for the return to their homes, an alliance spokeswoman said.

More than 1,900 people were arrested in the showdown, with about 250 being picked up outside the plant Monday in what demonstrators said will be the last day of the blockade. Among those jailed were rock singer Jackson Browne and actor Robert Blake.

Browne, who wrote and recorded such songs as "Doctor My Eyes," "Take It Easy" and "The Pretender," had been released just last week after pleading no contest to a Sept. 18 charge of trespassing at the gate.

Blake, star of the "Baretta" TV series, had escaped arrest when he participated in a sea assault early in the protest. But he was arrested when he joined the blockade at the gate Monday, San Luis Obispo County Undersheriff Arnie Goble said.

In downtown San Luis Obispo, 17 women were arrested for trespassing Monday after they moved into a PG&E office building and attempted a sit-in, according to Abalone Alliance spokeswoman Mary Moore.

TACB to conduct course

ODESSA — The Texas Air Control Board will conduct a visible emissions evaluator's course in Odessa Oct. 6-8.

To be a certified evaluator in Texas, an observer must have successfully completed the authorized training program and have been certified or recertified within the previous six months.

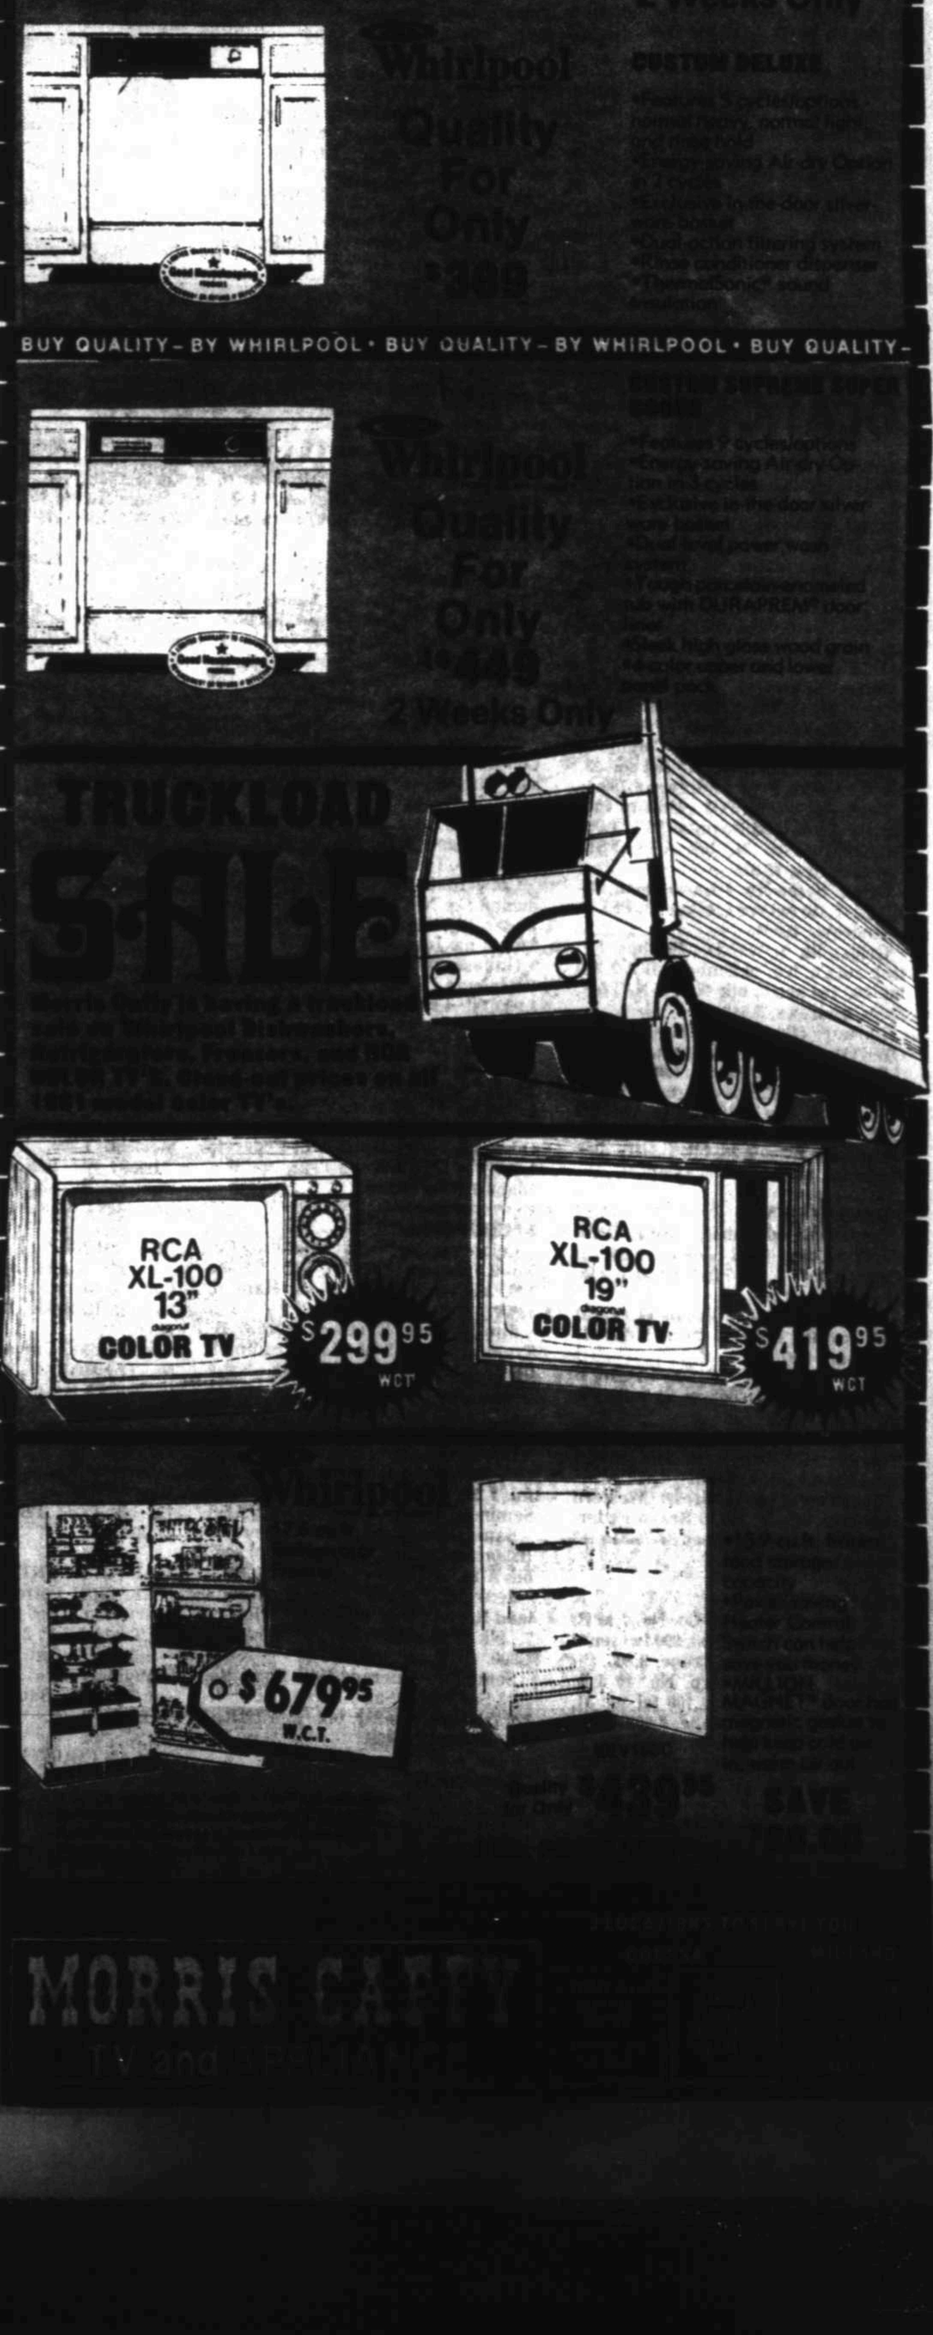

The Air Control Board is the certifying authority in the state. Trainees are taught to read emissions from a smoke-generating device capable of emitting black and white smoke in varying degrees of opacity.

The course will begin with a classroom session for all new certifiers and those whose certification has lapsed for more than six months at 9 a.m. Oct. 6 at the Ector County Health Department, 221 N. Texas St. Field training will begin at 2 p.m. at Sherwood Park, with certification beginning at 9 a.m. Wednesday.

For more information, contact TACB Region 6 office at 337-5496 in Odessa.

HOW TO EARN UP TO $2,000 INTEREST AT THE DROP OF A HAT.

★ Introducing a financial first. From First Savings & Loan Association of Midland. The All Saver's Certificate, a fully insured savings plan that earns up to $1,000 tax-free interest on individual returns or $2,000 tax-free interest if you file a joint return.

★ Now for the first time, Uncle Sam will not only fully insure your savings plan, he'll give you a tax break on it as well. Here's how it works: to equal an assumed tax-exempt yield of 12½%, a taxable investment would have to earn 17.86% if your family income is $25,000 and your tax bracket is 30%.

★ Just check the chart.

IF YOUR FAMILY INCOME IS:	YOUR TAX BRACKET PROBABLY IS:	THE INTEREST RATE YOU'D HAVE TO RECEIVE TO NET 12.5% AFTER FEDERAL INCOME TAX IS:
$50,000	50%	25%
$35,000	40%	20.83%
$25,000	30%	17.86%
$20,000	25%	16.67%

Figures above are approximate and based on 1981 tax tables. Interest rate on 12.5% is an assumed average investment yield on the All Saver's Certificate. Actual rate is 70% of the average investment yield on one-year treasury bills at date of purchase.

★ You can see why the All Saver's Certificate is a savings break-through. But you may not see it for long. The program begins October 1, 1981 and ends December 31, 1982. So hurry to First Savings and Loan Association of Midland and purchase your All Saver's Certificates.

A dozen wildcats planned for Basin

Twelve wildcats have been scheduled for drilling in West Texas by area oilmen.

ANDREWS 'CATS

Quanah Petroleum Inc., Midland, will drill three 7,600-foot wildcats in an area 16 miles northwest of Frankel City.

The No. 2 Ward will be cut 660 feet from the south, and 2,041 feet from the west line of section 5, block A-29, PSL survey.

No. 3 Ward will be sunk in the same section, 1,980 feet from the south line, and 2,041 from the west.

A No. 1 Marshall Winston will be drilled nearby, at 600 feet from the north, and 1,106 feet from the west line of section 6, block A-29.

The drillsites are generally north of the Littman field.

All three projects are scheduled as offset tests of Abo production at 7,300 feet, and as tests of the Littman at 4,300 feet.

GLASSCOCK WILDCAT

Ike Lovelady, Inc., Midland, will drill the wildcat No. 01 Powell "3" to 11,300 feet, 12 miles northwest of Garden City.

The project spots 2,310 feet from the south, and 990 feet from the west line of section 3, block 35, T-3-S, T&PRR survey.

The drillsite is about one mile northwest of Amoco's No. 1-D Powell, abandoned April 9, 1975 at 8,300 feet.

The operator will test the Blalock Lake (Wolfcamp) at 8,200 feet.

GARZA VENTURE

Supron Energy Co., Dallas, will sink the No. 1 Parus, an 8,300-foot wildcat, 10 miles southwest of Justiceburg.

The stake is 660 feet from the south, and 1,980 feet from the west line of section 21, block 2, T&NO survey.

KENT 'CATS

Fisher-Webb Inc., Abilene, will drill the wildcat No. 1 Smart to 7,000 feet, seven miles southwest of Girard.

The location is 660 feet from the north, and 1,980 feet from the east line of section 3, block 1, H&GN survey.

The drillstie is 4/5 of a mile north of Lytle's No. 1 Swenson, abandoned December 23, 1954 at 7,050 feet.

****

Lario Oil & Gas, Odessa, will drill the 8,000-foot wildcat, No. 1 Connell, three miles southeast of Polar.

The Drillsite is 1/2 mile northeast of Viking Drilling No. 1 Connell, abandoned April 10, 1975, at 7,750 feet.

The project is staked 1,980 feet from the south, and 2,310 feet from the west line of section 1, block 5, H&GN survey.

SCURRY PROSPECTOR

J.E.M., Midland, will drill the wildcat No. 1 Sullivan to 7,400 feet, two miles north of Snyder.

The stake is driven 467 feet from the south, and 1,980 feet from the east line of section 122, block 3, H&GN survey.

YOAKUM MYSTERY

L&B Oil, Houston, will drill the wildcat No. 1 Brannin six miles southeast of Plains.

Our reporter in Lubbock said the depth is, "Unknown."

The site is 1/2 mile northwest of Yeager's No. 1 Fitgerald, abandoned at 5,515 feet, September 2, 1955.

The location is known. It is 660 feet from the north and west lines of section 484, block D, John H. Gibson survey.

TOM GREEN EXPLORER

William B. wilson & Sons, Inc., Midland, will drill the 6,800-foot wildcat No. 1 Shepperson, two miles northwest of Christoval.

The location is 990 feet from the north, and 2,100 feet from the east line of section 7, block 22, H&TC survey.

The drillsite is 3,000 feet northeast of the Hovgard E. Fitzgerald No. 1 Shepperson, abandoned Dec. 30, 1965 at 6,510 feet.

MENARD VENTURES

Texas Stock Tab, Inc., Luling, will drill the 4,400-foot wildcat No. 2 U.E. Rogers "C", 14 miles north of Fort McKavett.

The site is 2,000 feet west of Patton's No. 2-D Rogers an apparent wildcat Strawn gas discovery of unknown depth.

The stake is set 1,000 feet from the south, and 660 feet from the east line of section 6, block B, GH&SA survey.

International Western Oil Co., Luling, will drill to 4,400 feet the wildcat No. 3 U.E Rogers "C", 14 miles north of Fort McKavett.

This Rogers "C" will be sunk 3,316 feet from the south, and 1,600 feet from the west line of section 5, block B, GH&SA survey.

The drillsite is 500 feet northwest of the Rogers No. 1-A Rogers, completed August 16, 1962.

Natural gas prices may increase 25 percent

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — People who heat with natural gas will pay an average of 25 percent more for the fuel this winter, a consumer group predicts.

The Citizen-Labor Energy Coalition said the typical residential customer will pay $398 in fuel bills for the five months from November through March. That compares to $331 during the same period last winter.

"Home heating costs continue to rise at a terrifying rate, far outstripping inflation," said William R. Hutton, an official of the coalition, which represents 200 labor, elderly and consumer groups.

And if President Reagan gets approval of a plan to quicken the decontrol timetable, said Hutton, the price hikes will be even more "cruel and unrealistic."

Under the accelerated timetable being considered by the president, the study predicted homeowners in the winer of 1982-83 will be paying $627 for gas, 58 percent above this winter's projected bill.

However, the Natural Gas Supply Association, the main industry group campaigning for faster decontrol, disputed those findings. It said its own analysis showed prices will rise only about 12 percent this year under current law and would go up 20 percent in the first year of an accelerated decontrol program.

Both consumer and industry groups have been fighting for months over what impact faster decontrol of natural gas would have.

The latest Citizen-Labor Energy Coalition study found that the current law is allowing wide pricing differences among regions. That comes about because not all gas is treated the same. Gas which began flowing after April 1977 is classified as "new" gas and is being escalated upward in price each month until Jan. 1, 1985, when all controls will be removed. "Old" gas flowing before that date is kept at much lower rates and will under current law never be removed from controls. Thus, pipeline companies with access to large amounts of old gas can offer their customers much lower rates.

The study predicted that the average residential cost of 1,000 cubic feet of gas could vary this winter from a low of $3.88 in the states of Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas to a high of $6.57 in the New England states. It predicted the national average would be $4.80 with the average consumer using 83,000 cubic feet.

When the larger amount of gas needed in colder climates is also taken into consideration, New England residents are projected to have fuel bills of $618 for the five months — the highest in the country — as compared to $210 in Texas and its bordering states.

Reagan had been expected to forward an accelerated decontrol plan to Congress in September, but Energy Secretary James Edwards said last week that timetable had been pushed back by the latest round of budget cuts. Energy Department aides now predict the proposal will go to Congress in December.

WYOMING 'OIL LOTTERY' CONDUCTED MONTHLY OPEN TO ALL CITIZENS

CARSON CITY, NV— Hundreds of average citizens will acquire oil lease rights in upcoming public drawings conducted by the State of Wyoming. Some may achieve overnight wealth by selling their rights to oil companies and retaining lifelong royalties on any oil or gas production.

Incredibly, most will risk no more than $25 and a minimal filing fee to enter the little-known program that offers every American the opportunity to compete on an equal basis with giant oil companies for leases of public lands.

Information and entry details are available from The H. Kirk Sanders Co., Oil Lease Division, P.O. Box 660, 404 N. Valley, Carson City, Nevada 89702. Enclose $1 for postage and handling.

Official entry cards will be rushed by return mail to permit the timely filing of entries before cut-off date.

TED BATTLES

BATTLE SCENE

Texas Christian University's Amon Carter Stadium is not the highest point in Texas. It only seems that way. And steep, that upper deck's incline is so severe sometimes they stop games because of nose bleeds in the press box. They drip on the players.

From behind home plate in the fifth deck of Los Angeles Chavez Ravine, it's like looking down into a barrel. Same thing at TCU, only it's unsettling when you can't see the bottom.

The first time we saw a game in the Los Angeles Coliseum, we climbed up to the top, 366 rows, I think, out of curiosity to see if we could read the players' numbers. Amon Carter is the same way, only you don't worry about numbers. The guy next to me said, "I think I saw movement down there."

STILL, THE press box offers a beautiful view of the big buildings and surrounding area in downtown Fort Worth, same as Baylor Stadium in Waco, but who wants to look at downtown Waco. You remember Waco, most people remark on how nice it's laid out and then immediately wonder, "How long has it been dead?"

We had to park a couple of blocks away, but when we arrived at the end of the elevator trip to the press box, it was almost like finding yourself in Lubbock on a Saturday night. There was Ralph Carpenter, slim, trim and smiling a welcome.

Ralph was Sports Information Director at Texas Tech for 10 years before leaving for Ole Miss when Steve Sloan resigned at Tech to become head coach. It was understandable. Steve seemed like he'd be a great guy with whom to work.

Now after four years, Ralph is back in Texas as TCU SID.

RALPH RUNS a tight press box, no nonsense, cheering or groaning and no free loaders. It was under Ralph at Tech that we first heard the pregame warning, "This is a press box for the working press. There will be no cheering or outward demonstrations of partisanship. Violators will be removed from the press box."

Ralph never said how, down the elevator or out the window.

We still remember the time the distinguished looking out-of-town couple got into the press box at Tech on a couple of passes. It was a foolish try. Their appearance was a dead giveaway. The man was cleanly shaved, wore a suit and his hair was neatly trimmed, no sagging dungarees, long hair, dirty beard, open shirt with permanent ring around the you know what. The woman was the same way. She came in carrying a Tech pennant and wearing a Mum, more excited about the post game dance than the game.

If that wasn't telltale enough, they gave themselves away when they didn't drop everything and rush for the barbecue line.

Ralph had them cornered by the elevator reading the riot act. He wasn't as mad at the innocent victims of the cruel hoax as the sports writer who had given them the tickets. We don't know whether Ralph ever found out, but we'd hate to have been that writer.

JOHN CONLEY, Tech's present athletic director, also felt Ralph's wrath. Once during an exciting game that dangled by a thread, something happened and John uttered an emotional sigh, didn't slam his fist or say "skunk cabbage" or anything, just a sigh that gave away his sentiments. Ralph was over in an instant conversing.

Later going down in the elevator, John remarked, "For a few minutes there, I thought Ralph was going to throw me out of the press box."

BUT NOW, after four years at Ole Miss, Ralph is back. "Sure, I enjoyed it, but I missed Texas."

Of course, there was more to it than that, we could see it in his eyes. They confessed unabashedly, "It's Millsaps College. They are ruining it for everybody else in Mississippi, not only Ole Miss, but Southern and Mississippi State. It's no fun any more. When we play in Jackson, it's right across the street from Millsaps' field. They play in the afternoon and we play at night. We are forced to bring in somebody like LSU and if they've played Sewanee that afternoon, it creates a terrible traffic jam when their game is over and hurts out attendance."

Big Bad Bears just Sad Bears

CHICAGO (AP) — Even the towels thrown in the Chicago locker room fell short of their intended mark, strewn sloppily about the carpeting like a reminder of the soggy performance most of the Bears thought they'd left behind on the playing field.

"It looks like we can't do anything right," defensive tackle Alan Page said after the Los Angeles Rams had dismantled Chicago 24-7 before a national television audience Monday night. "I think everybody on this team has done enough soul-searching and trying to do things right — but we're just not getting it done."

How bad were the Bears?

So bad that the only thing that prevented Bob Parsons from punting following each of the Bears' first 12 possessions were a pair of fumbles by Chicago's Walter Payton and an interception by Los Angeles' Joe Harris.

SO BAD that three Chicago quarterbacks managed to complete just one pass to a wide receiver, and that one went to Brian Baschnagel for all of three yards.

"I really don't have a whole lot to say," said Bears Coach Neill Armstrong. "We got beat and we looked bad getting beat. Sometimes you can lose and play tough, but the Rams made us look bad tonight."

The Rams started the game by moving 71 yards in just five plays, capping the brief — 1:42 elapsed time — drive when Wendell Tyler powered over from the 2-yard line for the first of his two scores.

And Los Angeles quarterback Pat Haden, who finished 13 of 29 for 210 yards gave Chicago an idea of what the night would be like by completing his first three passes in the drive, the big play coming on a 44-yard hookup with Billy Waddy to the Chicago 2.

"That's the first chance I've had to get it together," said Haden, architect of the Rams' second victory in four outings. "It seems that in every game something happens. Yes, it was a big game for me."

THE RAMS' lead was extended to 10-0 by the intermission after placekicker Frank Corral connected from 24 yards late in the second quarter.

Lee at home; MHS travels

Barring a complete collapse of San Angelo or Big Spring, the Tall City's chances of a first-half District 5-5A volleyball title is slim.

The Bobcats and Steers are on top of the heap with 4-0 records while Midland High and Midland Lee are tied for third with 2-2 district marks.

Tonight, MHS will be on the road to tangle with the Odessa Permian Panthers. Permian is winless in four district outings this year.

The Purple Pack gained a little confidence over the weekend with a third place showing in the Key City tournament.

Lee's Rebels will be entertaining the Odessa High Bronchos at the Lee gym this evening. Action gets underway at 6 p.m. with the junior varsity followed by the varsity clash at 7 p.m.

Snake, Craig; two sack sagas

An AP Sports Analysis
By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Between them, Ken Stabler and Craig Morton don't have one good leg to stand on.

Put them within a mile of a pack of hungry animals and they'd end up as Wolf Chow.

They've got a lot of brains, but they're not too swift. The Statue of Liberty play was named after them. The real Statue of Liberty is a veritable Nureyev compared to these two.

All they ask of their offensive linemen is a few moments of their time, just enough to find a receiver now and then.

Morton asks and Denver delivers. Stabler asks ... and ducks!

If quarterbacks do get too much credit when they win and too much [illegible] when they lose, then it's time [illegible] to take a bow and Ed Biles to take a hike.

EACH IS in his first year as a head coach, Reeves with the Broncos and Biles with Houston. They ultimately get the credit or blame for victories or defeats. They pick their players, their assistants.

Reeves knows his quarterback. Their pro careers began in Dallas in 1965. When Reeves arrived in Denver this year, bringing with him the complex offenses of the Cowboys, more than a couple of people figured the 38-year-old Morton's days might be numbered.

Biles is defense-oriented. His job, when he was the defensive coordinator under Bum Phillips, was to keep the other team's quarterback from doing his job. Now that he's the boss, Stabler suddenly can't do his.

Nine days ago, Morton took the field against Baltimore and took the Colts to the cleaners. Twenty-eight passes, 20 completions, four touchdowns.

Nine days ago, Stabler took the field against Miami and managed to escape with his pants and not much else. Eight sacks. Sixty-two yards lost.

Last Sunday, Morton took the field against San Diego and took the Chargers downtown. Eighteen passes, 17 completions, four touchdowns.

LAST SUNDAY, Stabler took the field against the New York Jets and got himself undressed again. Seven sacks. Sixty-six yards lost.

Can Morton be that good? Well, to survive for 17 seasons in the NFL you've got to have something on the ball, even if it's not velocity. But Morton has never been a high-percentage passer. The odds are, Reeves' hand is behind some of those astronomical numbers.

Can Stabler be that bad? Can he, in his 12th pro year, have suddenly lost his touch? Of course not. Nobody loses it overnight. The odds are, Biles' hand is behind some of those atrocious numbers.

Morton talks about the confidence he has in the system, in the people who develop and implement it. A Denver offense which had turned to sludge the past few seasons has awakened with a vengeance.

And Morton has nothing but praise for everyone concerned, from the line which protects him to the people who pay him.

STABLER IS wise enough to know

CFA rebels... what took 'em so long?

Los Angeles Times

Perhaps you noticed in the public prints where 61 major football schools in the U.S. have rebelled against the National Collegiate Athletic Association and threaten to form their own institutional governing body, the better to get television money, grandma.

What I wonder is, what took them so long?

The NCAA is an irritating bunch of self-satisfied overseers who have tweeked the noses of television for so long that they consider it like a pet retriever. They say "Fetch!" and it goes and fetches.

LISTEN! How thrilled were you to know you're getting that annual fall classic Appalachia State vs. The Citadel on a national network last Saturday? Or, would you have preferred that stirring renewal of the ancient rivalry between Jackson State and Mississippi Valley State? Maybe you wanted San Jose State vs. Cal-Berkeley? Or did you prefer Oregon State vs. Minnesota?

The network, ABC, gave us USC-Oklahoma later in the day. Fine. But, there was a catch. With USC going on national television against Oklahoma, that used up its options to the point it cannot now be televised against Notre Dame or UCLA later in the year. The network must choose one or the other of those games. It cannot televise both. Presumably, on Nov. 21, instead of USC-UCLA we may be getting San Jose State vs. Long Beach State.

Sez who? Sez the NCAA. They're the program directors in this cockeyed TV series. They're the only ones who even know where Appalachia State is.

NETWORK TELEVISION is an otherwise all-powerful conglomerate. Its customer is every man, woman, and child in America. It ordinarily controls what it puts on the air. With exceptions. Its deal with the NCAA is one of them.

Years ago, when ABC won the bidding – such as it was – for NCAA football, it had to make compromises. One of them was, it had to let the NCAA dictate product. This necessitated restrictions which were largely galling to the network and infuriating to the rest of the country. For instance, on a day when Notre Dame would be playing Michigan State or someone else for the national championship, the western region of the network would most likely be getting Brigham Young vs. Boise State. Or Utah State. Even the alumni of those worthy institutions would rather have been watching the Notre Dame game. It's for certain any non-Mormon east of Sioux Falls would.

It doesn't make any sense. It's as if a network contracted for a fall season of Charlie's Angels and had to alternate episodes with a high school performance of The Pirates of Penzance. Or, if Sugar Ray Leonard could make only one appearance on national TV a year.

It was the conceit of the NCAA that a television audience was interested in the football fortunes of its sub-Ivy League institutions – schools with 14,000 bleacher seats and uniforms that looked like costumes for a road company of "Brother Rat." The left halfback might be willing to die for dear old Rutgers but ABC didn't want to. They'd be better off televising opera on Saturday afternoons.

THE NETWORK hand of NBC is bloodily visible in the breaking off of the 61 major institutions which formed the College Football Association, the secessionist group splintering off from the NCAA, but you have to think ABC and CBS, who now have NCAA tie-ups totaling $263 million for four years, are not all that displeased, either. They don't want to pay that kind of money for Appalachia State, either.

The 61 schools who broke off from the NCAA comprise the football factories of the nation, minus the Big 10 and the Pac 10. The sneer went immediately up from the Establishment that this new league would just be the NFL South, but the facts of the matter are the NCAA is a cumbersome 900-member association, and there's no way that Walt Byers, the executive director, can ever make The Citadel, or even East Horsehoe State a household word.

The new association would be a break for the viewing public, but it would be a bigger break for the member institutions. Some conferences require their members to share television money; so, you would have the spectacle of a USC, maintaining a multi-million dollar football program, and filling the Coliseum every Saturday, having to share revenue with a Northwest school which is running a scaled-down, mini-Ivy League operation, and having only to sell out Pullman or Corvallis on alternate weekends. NBC's $108 million, four-year package has the virtue of guaranteeing every member of the CFA a million dollars over the life of the contract.

Well, for once, the little old viewing public can't lose in a controversy. One of two things can happen; the CFA will make good its threat and secede, automatically upgrading the content of Saturday afternoon football programs; or, the NCAA will recast its restrictions, reorganize, and, in its own defense, put on a big time show on Saturday. If USC wants to play three times a year – or even six – it can. Let someone else die for dear old Rutgers, not our ratings.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Manager Jim Fanning says National League President Chub Feeney will be able to take a look at a disputed call that proved costly to his Montreal Expos.

"Take a look at that," Fanning said in the Expos clubhouse long after Montreal's 6-2 loss Monday night to the St. Louis Cardinals. "Terry Tata will have that on his locker tomorrow. I'll guarantee it."

The source of Fanning's indignation was a photograph by The Associated Press showing a slide at home plate by the Expos' Rodney Scott in the fourth inning.

Scott attempted to score from first base on Andre Dawson's double. He was ruled by umpire Tata to have missed home plate, but the photograph showed his left hand clearly touching the target.

Not only was Scott called out by Tata but the mild-mannered Fanning was quickly ejected when he appealed.

"I really only wanted to go out and make peace. I wasn't boisterous," said Fanning. "I can't believe that I was thrown out of the game so fast. There was no explanation."

Fanning said his appeal was based on marks made in the dirt around home plate by Scott's arm during the Expos infielder's head-first slide.

"There was a long hand mark. You could tell at home plate," he said. "The slide mark was probably three feet long. I pointed to the umpire and told him, 'Look at this.' By the time I pointed, I was gone."

During a lengthy argument, Montreal outfielder Rowland Office was ejected by third base umpire Satch Davidson for siding with Fanning.

"I never use abusive language. I don't even swear," said Fanning. "That particular play, had the play been called correctly, could have turned the game around."

Following Tata's call, a budding Expos rally was cut short at a single run on Gary Carter's double before Larry Parrish flied to left for the third out.

Brouhard's first homer since May beats Red Sox, 1-0

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Mark Brouhard hadn't hit a home run since May 10 — but he sure picked a good time to hit another.

Reaching the fences for only the second time this season, the Milwaukee outfielder drove in the game's only run Monday night to help the Brewers take a 1-0 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

"I just wanted to hit the ball hard," Brouhard said after leading the Brewers into first place in the American League East. "I hadn't hit a home run for four months and 90 times at bat, or something. I'm just happy I hit it for (Pete) Vuckovich because he wanted this one badly. With the stuff he had, I knew he was going to pitch a shutout."

Vuckovich pitched a three-hitter as the Brewers climbed over Detroit by a half-game after the Tigers lost 7-3 to Baltimore. The Red Sox dropped 1½ games back in third.

Frank Tanana had a three-hitter after six innings until Brouhard lined one of his pitches into the left center field seats at County Stadium.

"Roy Howell told me in the dugout to look for the fastball because Tanana had started me out with fastballs my first couple of times up," Brouhard said. "He gave me a fastball out over the plate. It was a good pitch to hit. I was fortunate that it hit my bat."

OF HIS gopher ball, Tanana said he threw a fastball on the outside part of the plate because he thought Brouhard "would be expecting one inside."

"I'd given him fastballs inside, yet he wasn't smart enough to change, to look for it again," Tanana said. "That's the problem with pitching to young guys. They don't know enough to get set up for a pitch."

Tempers flared after Jim Gantner, the next hitter after Brouhard, pushed a drag bunt which Tanana fielded along the first base line. The two collided as Tanana tagged Gantner near the bag, and Tanana tumbled to the ground.

Tanana jumped up and started toward Gantner, shouting angrily as players from both sides streamed onto the field. There was some pushing and shoving, but no punches were thrown and no players were ejected.

Vuckovich improved his record to 14-4 while Tanana dropped to 3-10.

Orioles 7, Tigers 3

Eddie Murray drove in four runs with a double and a home run and Benny Ayala had a two-run homer as Baltimore defeated Detroit. The Orioles trailed 3-0 when they rallied for four runs in the third, with Murray's two-run homer capping the rally off George Cappuzzello, 1-1.

Baltimore reliever Sammy Stewart, 4-7, who came on after Jim Palmer had retired only two Detroit batters, checked the Tigers on seven hits the rest of the way to pick up the victory.

"The difference tonight was that I'm seeing the ball pretty good of late," Murray said. "There's still a shot at the championship, but we really seem to have started late."

The Orioles are in fourth place, two games off the pace, with six days left in the regular season.

Royals 6, Twins 1

Willie Aikens and Hal McRae each clubbed two-run homers and Dennis Leonard pitched a five-hitter to lead Kansas City over Minnesota. The victory put the first-place Royals 3½ games ahead of the Twins in the AL West.

Aikens' blast, his 27th of the season, came in the second off loser Brad Havens, 3-8. McRae connected for his seventh homer in the ninth off reliever Dan Cooper.

Leonard, who has won five of his last six starts, struck out eight and improved his record to 12-11.

Indians 6, Yankees 2

Jorge Orta drove in three runs and iguel Dilone scored three to support the six-hit pitching of Tom Brennan and spark Cleveland over New York. Brennan, 2-1, struck out three and walked two as he buried his first complete game in the majors.

Orta slugged a two-run single to knock out Yankee starter Rick Reuschel, 4-3, and give the Indians a 3-0 lead. Orta then singled home another run as the Indians put the game away with a three-run seventh.

Reggie Jackson had a solo homer for the Yankees, his third in three days and his 15th for the season.

Angels 6, White Sox 0

Don Baylor and Brian Downing drove in two runs apiece, Rod Carew scored two runs and Mike Witt hurled a six-hitter as California blanked Chicago and ended the White Sox' playoff hopes for the 1981 season.

Witt, 7-9, had four strikeouts and walked one as he earned his first career shutout. Dennis Lamp, 7-6, was the loser.

Rangers 6, Mariners 5

Mark Wagner's three-run double gave Texas an early lead and the Rangers held on to beat Seattle. Wagner delivered with two out in the second inning after the Rangers loaded the bases on a single by Pat Putnum, a double by Jim Sundberg and a walk by Leon Roberts off Seattle starter Glenn Abbott, 4-8.

Rick Honeycutt, 11-6, gave up 10 hits in six innings for the Rangers. Three relief pitchers followed, including Jim Kern, who posted his fifth save.

Bum upset over 'loss'

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The San Francisco Hat Caper illustrates the need for tighter security at sports events, said Coach Bum Phillips of the New Orleans Saints.

"It's just poor security when they can run down there and do something like that," said Phillips, who never goes anywhere without a cowboy hat of the sort that was snatched from his head Sunday in Candlestick Park. "He could have run down there and stabbed me.

"We need better security everywhere — all of us."

And although the hat was grungy when he got it back, Phillips declined to press charges when police finally caught the man who snatched it as the Saints' coach was heading toward the locker room at halftime.

"They finally got it back to me — in used condition," he said Monday. "It was so bad, I just left it."

Phillips also made light of what some television viewers interpreted as an obscene gesture — pointing what appeared to be his middle finger in the stands. He said he was pointing out the fleeing culprit.

"There he is. Yonder he goes," was how Phillips interpreted the gesture.

Stabler story

that the people who protect him are doing the best they can. It's not their fault, he says, that he's being treated like the last lamb chop on the boardinghouse platter. The blame, he says, belongs somewhere higher up in the chain of command ... a chain whose links are not quite as strong as they might be.

"I'm trying to please this guy, I'm trying to please that guy," he complained after the Jets game.

When Bum Phillips coached the Oilers into the playoffs the past three seasons, nobody complained too loudly. But when they got bounced out in the preliminaries last year, Phillips was castigated, precipitously fired on New Year's Eve.

THE CRITICS called the Houston offense unimaginative. The Oilers, they said, weren't utilizing Stabler's talents fully. Even Stabler himself said he'd been amazed when he first joined the team at the lack of offensive sophistication. Biles would change that.

It's not very sophisticated to spend half an afternoon on the seat of your pants.

It's not very sophisticated to be encased in the vise-grip of an unfriendly behemoth.

Bum got a bum rap.

Coming October 1: A tax break for saving at Commercial Bank!

TAX-FREE interest on All Savers' Certificates

If you're in a 30% tax bracket or better, it's to your advantage to participate in the new All Savers' Certificates. Beginning October 1, the All Savers' Certificates offer a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to receive tax-free interest on a fully insured bank certificate of deposit. The program expires December 31, 1982, and the maximum tax-free interest is limited to $1,000 for individuals and $2,000 for couples filing joint returns.

All Savers' Certificates are issued in minimums of $500 for one-year periods, and earn interest equivalent to 70% of the current investment yield on 52-week U.S. Treasury bills. And the equivalent taxable yield is much higher, depending on your tax bracket.

Find Your Equivalent Taxable Yield

Joint Taxable Income	Tax Bracket	Equivalent Taxable Yield
$24,600 - 29,900	32%	18.54%
29,900 - 35,200	37%	20.02%
35,200 - 45,800	43%	22.12%
45,800 - 60,000	49%	24.73%
60,000 - 85,600	54%	27.41%

Examples above assume an All Savers' Certificate rate of 12.61%. Actual rates may be higher or lower. Figures are based on 1981 tax tables.

There's a catch

The All Savers' Certificate rate on October 1 will be 12.61%, but don't make your deposit then. By waiting until October 2, when new rates will be determined, you will have a choice of selecting 12.61% or the new rate, depending on which is higher.

Tax exemption is lost if the account is closed before the end of a year, and there is a substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal.

Will the real Cardinals stand up?

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

Will the real St. Louis Cardinals please stand up? Perhaps tonight will tell the story.

The Redbirds have spent most of the second half of the season trading hot and cold streaks, going from hope to happiness to despair and back again.

Darrell Porter hit a two-run double in St. Louis' five-run fourth inning and the Cardinals beat first-place Montreal 6-2 Monday night, bringing them to within one-half game of the lead.

Another victory over the Expos tonight will put the Cardinals back in the National League East lead with five days left in the season.

"That was a big one tonight and tomorrow's just as big," said third baseman Ken Oberkfell after Monday night's game. "We're getting good pitching and starting to get the big hits. All we've got to do is play our game. Hopefully we've got the momentum right now."

Momentum has been a sometime thing with the Cardinals since the season resumed Aug. 10 after the players' strike.

They won seven of nine from Aug. 26-Sept. 4 to take a 3½-game lead, lost five in a row from Sept. 5-9, won seven of eight from Sept 11-17, then lost seven of eight the next eight days. Now they have won three in a row again.

"We've been playing pretty good," said Cards Manager Whitey Herzog. "Last week we messed up a few plays. They're going to do that when it's their first time in a pennant race."

Tommy Herr's infield hit ignited the Cards in the fourth after the Expos grabbed a 1-0 lead in the top of the inning on Gary Carter's RBI double.

Garry Templeton and Keith Hernandez singled to load the bases before George Hendrick's grounder tied the game and Dane Iorg's sacrifice fly gave St. Louis a 2-1 lead off starter Scott Sanderson, 8-7. Then Porter's double off Grant Jackson brought in two more runs and pitcher John Martin capped the rally with an RBI single.

Martin, 7-5, was relieved by Jim Kaat with one out in the seventh after Larry Parrish's solo homer. Kaat earned his fourth save.

Astros 2, Padres 1

Art Howe slapped a two-out, bases-loaded single on a checked swing in the ninth inning to give Houston its victory over San Diego and give the Astros a 2½-game lead over the Reds in the NL West.

Juan Eichelberger, 8-8, had allowed only four hits in the first eight innings, but he allowed a single to Tony Scott and two walks in the ninth before Howe connected for the game-winner.

Giants 4, Reds 0

San Francisco stayed 3½ games behind the Astros and dropped Cincinnati to 2½ games back as little-used Al Hargesheimer and Greg Minton combined for a four-hit shutout.

Hargesheimer, 1-1, scattered four hits, struck four and walked four in seven innings before Minton relieved in the eighth. Jerry Martin hit a two-run homer and scored twice for the Giants, who handed tme Reds only their third loss in 14 games.

Phillies 12, Mets 4

Lonnie Smith increased his consecutive-game hitting streak to 17 with two singles and a triple to lead Philadelphia's 12-hit attack against New York.

The Phillies exploded for five runs in the third inning. Two runs scored on singles by Gary Matthews and Keith Moreland and two more scored on first baseman Dave Kingman's error.

Braves 2, Dodgers 1

Glenn Hubbard tripled home Atlanta's first run in the seventh inning and scored on a single by Matt Sinatro. The Braves broke a four-game losing streak and assured that Los Angeles would not win both halves of the season. Rick Mahler, 7-6, gave up only five hits in seven innings, including Steve Garvey's solo homer.

Pirates 4-1, Cubs 0-3

Pittsburgh's Rick Rhoden pitched a four-hitter in the opener for his second shutout of the season and former Midland Cubs Dave Geisel and Randy Martz combined on a five-hitter in the second game for Chicago. Steve Henderson hit a two-run homer and a run-scoring single for the Cubs in the second game.

Kissinger gets train ride

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, who travels the world by jet as a lecturer on foreign policy, got a thrill out of a ride on a much slower form of transportation — the world's largest operating steam locomotive.

"It was great," Kissinger said, beaming. "I'm a buff of toy trains. Now I get a chance to play with the real ones."

Kissinger and his wife Nancy are guests of UP Chairman James Evans on a rail tour from Seattle to Mexico City on the tracks of the merged Union Pacific and Missouri Pacific railroads.

DALLAS (AP) — Whether Mick Jagger wears a fragrance produced by Jovan Inc. is beside the point.

What's important is that he and the Stones are "innovative, irreverent, bold and provocative, and that's what we are," said Dick Miller, advertising director for Jovan, the fragrance manufacturer that's sponsoring the rock group's 28-city U.S. tour.

Jovan was given the chance to sponsor the tour after Schlitz Brewing Co. declined.

"When they came to us, it took us all of six seconds to decide," Miller said.

The poster is "a picture of five tongues flying across America, to symbolize their national tour," Miller said. "When Mick Jagger saw it, he loved it."

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Andre Previn, the conductor whose name is linked with Pittsburgh as closely as that of U.S. Steel, will remain in the Steel City for at least another two years.

Previn has signed a two-year contract to remain music director of the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra.

Hinckley's lawyers ask for split trial

WASHINGTON (AP) — After acknowledging for the first time that John W. Hinckley Jr. shot President Reagan, lawyers for the 26-year-old defendant are planning an insanity defense that would include a split trial with two juries.

The defense decision means competing psychiatrists could have a major role in Hinckley's trial, testifying on whether or not he understood his actions were wrong.

Were Hinckley found innocent by reason of insanity he would be sent to a mental institution until a judge ruled he was no longer dangerous to himself or to others because of mental illness. Hinckley could face life imprisonment if convicted of crimes in the 13-count indictment.

If the request for a split trial with two juries is approved, the first part would be devoted to testimony about the shooting of the president and three others March 30. The second phase would be the attempt to prove Hinckley innocent by reason of insanity.

It is unlikely the trial will begin until December.

In their proposed stipulation entered in federal court Monday, the defense attorneys wrote: "On March 30, 1981, within the District of Columbia, John W. Hinckley Jr. fired a .22-caliber handgun and struck Ronald Reagan, Timothy McCarthy, James Brady and Thomas Delahanty."

Hinckley was captured at the scene of the shooting outside the Washington Hilton, where Reagan, Secret Service agent McCarthy, police officer Delahanty and presidential press secretary Brady were wounded. Brady remains hospitalized.

Because of the defense decision, Hinckley's life history, including his obsession with actress Jodie Foster, probably will be presented during the trial. Before the shootings Hinckley had written he would "get Reagan" to impress the actress.

The prosecution had no immediate response to the proposed stipulation, which is an agreement between the defense and prosecution on certain facts surrounding a case. But the government often has opposed such shortcuts, preferring to spell out its evidence to a jury.

Hinckley's lawyers waited until the last moment to raise the insanity defense. District Judge Barrington D. Parker had set Monday as the deadline for notification.

Attorneys Vincent J. Fuller and Gregory B. Craig said Hinckley's right to an impartial jury would be in "grave jeopardy if the same jury that has been exposed to the emotion-laden evidence ... is also asked to decide the question of the defendant's mental responsibility at the time of the shooting."

They wrote that "understandably, there will be great rage and anger directed at Mr. Hinckley" by jurors exposed to evidence, including videotapes, of the shooting.

Since the shooting, Hinckley has been examined extensively by three teams of psychiatrists.

The law provides that a jury shall bring in a verdict of innocent by reason of insanity if, at the time of the criminal conduct:

— "The defendant, as a result of mental disease or defect, either lacked substantial capacity to conform his conduct to the requirements of the law, or lacked substantial capacity to appreciate the wrongfulness of his conduct."

For example, if the jury found that Hinckley's love fantasy for Miss Foster made it impossible for him to realize his actions were wrong, he could be found innocent on insanity grounds.

Legal experts, however, have said it is unlikely the case will revolve solely around Miss Foster, who starred in the movie "Taxi Driver."

It is too early to tell, experts say, what role the Jodie Foster connection would play or whether she would be called to testify. There has been no evidence she ever even met Hinckley.

In an unmailed letter to Miss Foster the day of the shooting, Hinckley purportedly wrote: "Jody, (sic) I would abandon this idea of getting Reagan in a second if I could only win your heart and live out the rest of my life with you, whether it be in total obscurity or whatever.

"I will admit to you that the reason I'm going ahead with this attempt now is because I just cannot wait any longer to impress you."

Texan charged in murders

DUNCAN, Okla. (AP) — A 22-year-old Huntsville, Texas, man has been charged with two counts of first-degree murder in connection with the August slayings of two brothers found shot in their beds, investigators say.

Mark Hamilton Tobler, an unemployed oil field roughneck, was charged Monday in connection wth the deaths of Carroll Hayden, 25, and Paul Hayden, 20, whose nude, decomposed bodies were found Aug. 14 in a house they rented. Authorities believe they were slain Aug. 9.

Also, a $100 reward is being offered for recovery of a rifle believed to have been used in the incident.

A car belonging to the brothers was found abandoned near Davidson on the Oklahoma-Texas border the day after the bodies were found, officials said.

Truman in fair condition

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Former first lady Bess Truman was in fair condition early today at Research Medical Center and responding well to treatment for a mild stroke she suffered this weekend, hospital officials said.

Mrs. Truman, 96, was admitted to the center Sunday morning. She originally was listed in serious condition, but improved and showed stable vital signs Monday, her doctor said.

"She is currently responding so well she is no longer serious," Dr. Wallace Graham, the longtime Truman family physician, said Monday. "We anticipate a more restful night for her tonight."

He said the widow of President Harry S. Truman had become dehydrated due to a problem she had swallowing, but he said a tube inserted in her chest to give her nourishment and medication had helped.

"It has given her adequate hydration," Graham said of the tube. "Her cardiovascular status is generally in very good condition."

Mrs. Truman was thinking clearly Monday morning and spoke to him, Graham added. He did not indicate how long she would be hospitalized.

Mrs. Truman developed a problem with swallowing shortly before her release from the hospital in June, after almost 1½ months of treatment for a broken hip and complications that included pneumonia and high blood pressure.

Joseph Helmich speaks to reporters after leaving court Monday where he pleaded to a spy conspiracy charge.

Former Army officer changes plea to guilty

By MATT BOKOR
Associated Press Writer

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Joseph G. Helmich Jr., a former Army officer who admitted he sold military secrets to the Soviet Union, could get 10 years to life in prison for his guilty plea to a charge of conspiracy.

U.S. District Judge Susan Black ordered Helmich back to court Nov. 5 for sentencing on the charge. Helmich at first pleaded innocent, but switched to guilty Monday in a plea bargain.

The 44-year-old Jacksonville Beach man had been charged with four counts — three of espionage and one of conspiracy. Under the agreement, prosecutors dropped the espionage charges.

"This defendant was an absolute traitor to this country," U.S. Attorney Gary Betz told reporters. "The information he gave out caused serious harm to this country at a time when we had some of our countrymen serving in Vietnam."

Helmich was charged with contacting the Soviet Embassy in January 1963 while working with the U.S. Signal Corps in Paris. By July 1964, he allegedly was paid $131,000 for selling communications secrets.

Helmich's relationship with the Soviet spy network KGB spanned 17 years, the charges said.

Helmich told Mrs. Black the information he sold — code keys and maintenance instructions for a coding machine — wasn't as crucial to the nation's security in 1963 as the government contended.

"It was really getting limited use," he said.

He told the judge that "while I knew it was to the advantage of a foreign nation, it wasn't done with the intent to injure the United States of America." He enlisted in the Army in 1954 and quit as a chief warrant officer in 1966.

Peter Dearing, court-appointed defense attorney, said Helmich entered the plea agreement because a conviction on all four counts would have meant at least 40 years in prison before parole. One count means a 10-year minimum, he said.

Helmich also was concerned about the trial's effect on his family, Dearing said. The trial began Wednesday.

Helmich, a Fort Lauderdale native, was indicted by a federal grand jury July 14 and arrested the next morning. He pleaded innocent to the four counts July 16.

The plea change came early Monday afternoon.

Franklin gets life sentences

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Terming Joseph Paul Franklin a man who does not accept society's "moral rules or religious rules," a judge sentenced the 31-year-old avowed racist to two consecutive life terms in state prison for the sniper slayings of two young blacks.

Third District Judge Jay E. Banks told Franklin, "It will be my recommendation to the (state) Board of Pardons that you never get out of prison."

Franklin responded with a string of obscenities and a ethnic slur to the judge as he was taken from the courtroom.

A 12-member, all-white jury convicted Franklin Sept. 19 of first-degree murder in the deaths of Ted Fields, 20, and David Martin, 18. The two were gunned down near a city park Aug. 20, 1980, while jogging with two young white girls.

At a penalty hearing last Wednesday, the jury said it could not unanimously agree Franklin should be sentenced to death by firing squad. Under Utah law, that effectively imposed a life sentence.

In March, Franklin, of Mobile, Ala., was convicted in federal court here of violating the civil rights of Martin and Fields by killing them. He was sentenced to two consecutive life terms on those counts.

He also faces murder charges in two other states.

Banks turned Franklin over to federal custody, recommending he first serve the federal terms before beginning the Utah sentences.

Under federal regulations, Franklin must serve 10 years before being eligible for parole consideration. Utah has no minimum sentence before parole can be considered.

Williams' lawyers seek review of coroner's report

ATLANTA (AP) — An attorney for the man accused of killing two black youths wants a coroner's inquest into the death of one of the victims, a medical examiner says.

Fulton County Medical Examiner Robert Stivers said Monday that Mary Welcome, attorney for Wayne B. Williams, asked last week if a coroner's inquest is possible in the death of Jimmy Ray Payne, 21.

Williams, 23, is charged with murder in the deaths of Payne and Nathaniel Cater, 27, two of 28 young blacks whose slayings are being investigated by a special police task force.

Sources familiar with the Payne case say Williams' attorneys want an inquest to review medical evidence in order to determine if Payne's death could have been an accidental drowning.

Payne's body was found April 27 in the Chattahoochee River. Associate Medical Examiner Saleh Zaki ruled Payne probably died of asphyxiation, but listed the manner of death as "undetermined" on the death certificate.

Later, however, Zaki changed the death certificate to indicate the manner of death was "homicide."

Stivers said he does not think Williams' attorneys can obtain a coroner's inquest because Fulton County is one of the few counties in Georgia that has dispensed with coroner's juries.

"I don't really think it's legally possible because we have all the powers, duties and responsibilities of a coroner and we can't appoint juries," Stivers said.

OIL & GAS PROFESSIONALS

Find out why we call ourselves SUPERIOR

...IN MIDLAND INTERVIEWS
FRIDAY-SUNDAY, OCT. 9-11

There are many reasons why we're called SUPERIOR and generally regarded as the largest independent oil and gas producer in the U. S. Perhaps the most evident is the quality of our people. Aggressive, innovative people applying advanced technologies have brought us accomplishments that are the envy of the industry. A significant wildcat success ratio and hydrocarbon replacement greater than total production were no accidents. Want to join an expanding leader? Talk to us in Midland. We have immediate opportunities for experienced supervisors and professionals in the disciplines listed below:

- PRODUCTION, DRILLING, FACILITIES, RESERVOIR ENGINEERS
- PRODUCTION GEOLOGISTS & GEOPHYSICISTS

Please call Jeanne Buchanan, (713) 751-4598

- EXPLORATION GEOLOGISTS GEOPHYSICISTS/LANDMEN

Please Call Jim Tobin, (713) 751-4298

- ACCOUNTANTS/FINANCIAL ANALYSTS AUDITORS
- PROGRAMMERS/SYSTEMS ANALYSTS

Please call Susan Vingoe, (713) 751-4211

- PERSONNEL REPRESENTATIVES

Please Call Marcia Kellner, (713) 751-4588

For advance appointment, call one of the numbers listed above (no agencies please)

Openings are available in Midland, Houston, The Woodlands (30 miles north of Houston), Denver, New Orleans and Lafayette, Louisiana. All offer excellent salaries, a competitive benefits package and clear prospects for advancement in a company large enought to provide wide avenues for growth and small enough to make your contributions visible.

If you can't meet with us in Midland October 9-11, please send your resume with salary history and location preference to the attention of one of the persons listed above.
