COMPENSATION ACT EXPLAINED TO EMPLOYERS

CROZIER ADDRESS IS HEARD BY 300 HERE

Intricate workings of the recently enacted Texas Unemployment Compensation act was explained to more than 300 employers last night in city auditorium when Bob Crozier, field representative, outlined the act and then answered questions...

Because of illness, R. B. Anderson was unable to come to Pampa. Crozier, another outstanding young Texan, ably presented the plan of action and then answered questions both in open meeting and to individuals after the session.

The meeting was arranged by the Board of City Development and the Pampa Credit association. Travis Lively, president of the credit association, introduced the speaker. Copies of questions and answers regarding the act will be furnished association members in the next bulletin. Secretary Walter Daugherty said.

Every firm or individual employing eight or more persons is liable for the tax. For this year the tax is one per cent of the payroll of 1936. Next year the tax will be two per cent and the third year it will be three per cent. Nine-tenths of the tax goes to the state and the other one-tenth to the federal government.

Benefits to unemployed will be available after Jan. 1, 1938. The employee with the best record for steady work will get a proportionately higher benefit check. The employer who has the least "turnover" of employees will receive a lower tax rate after 1941.

Every penny of the tax paid to the state goes into the unemployment fund, all expenses of administration being paid by the federal government, Mr. Crozier pointed out.

Mr. Crozier impressed the business men of Pampa with his emphatic assertions that the Texas Unemployment Commission is to be operated on sound, sensible and practical policies and that employers will be relieved of all the inconveniences possible in the keeping of their records.

He likewise emphasized that the new act is not one to be regarded as placing a premium upon idleness but See NUMBER 1, Page 8

Dust Bowl Families Are 'Moving To California'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—The Southern California congressional delegation was pledged today by Rep. Thomas F. Ford, Los Angeles democrat, to attempt to obtain "a generous allocation" of whatever new relief funds Congress appropriates to care for persons moving there from the nation's dust bowl.

Southern California has become the "Mecca for thousands of these families," Ford said, adding: "If these people had remained in their native habitat, the federal government would have cared for them there. It is, therefore, just and fair to demand that since they were permitted to migrate to Southern California, the Federal government should supply the funds for their care in their new residence."

Defendant In Statutory Case Found Guilty

Acting Judge B. S. Via doesn't believe in turning a jury loose when an announcement of disagreement is presented. His stand brought results in 31st district court yesterday when a jury considering the case of Thomas Lee Compton, charged with a statutory offense involving a 12-year-old girl, returned a verdict at 11 o'clock last night.

After deliberating from 5 o'clock Tuesday evening, the jury finally returned a verdict of guilty of aggravated assault with a penalty of 90 days in jail and a fine of $300. Judge Via twice refused to dismiss the jury following reports of a deadlock.

Judge Via dismissed the jury panel yesterday afternoon and this morning issued a call for any non-jury cases ready to be heard. He was scheduled to study a divorce petition this afternoon.

Illness removed Judge W. R. Ewing from the bench Monday afternoon. On Tuesday morning attorneys selected B. S. Via to act as referee until the return of Judge Ewing who is slowly recovering at his home from an attack of influenza.

Texan to Fight to Send 2 Children Back to School

BRAZORIA, Jan. 15 (AP)—L. D. Shinn, Brazoria county tenant farmer, mapped plans today for a legal fight to force reinstatement of his children in the Brazoria school.

The children, Flora Mae, 8, and Billie Lee, 6, were expelled for failure to salute the flag.

Shinn's attorney, W. A. Combs, said he would file an injunction suit at Angleton within a week. He was notified yesterday that the school board would not revoke the expulsion.

The Shinn's are members of a religious sect which believes saluting the flag is a violation of biblical commandments.

Hunted Ex-Convict Gives Up In Mattson Kidnaping

TACOMA, Wash., Jan. 15 (AP)—Fred Orrin Haynes, ex-Folsom, Calif., prison convict, sought for questioning in the Charles Mattson kidnap-killing case, surrendered here today and was interrogated in Detective Capt. Marshall Scraftoff's office.

The detective said Haynes came into the city police station early today while state police today hunted a man and a woman who disappeared from a four-room furnished cottage five miles north of Seattle Wednesday—two days after the body of 10-year-old Charles Mattson, Tacoma kidnap victim, was recovered near Everett, Wash.

The man was tentatively identified here and in San Jose, Calif., as Fred Haynes, former California convict who is wanted for questioning about the kidnaping.

Chief William Cole of the state police inspected the house early today on information furnished by Mrs. Melvin Smith of San Jose, Calif., who said she rented the cottage two months ago to a man she was certain was Haynes. She formerly lived in Seattle.

Cole said what he learned caused him to believe the man was "hot and probably wanted for something, though he may not be Haynes or be involved in the kidnaping."

TACOMA, Wash., Jan. 15 (AP)—Chief William Cole of the state police early today examined a house five miles north of Seattle in the belief it might have been used by Fred Haynes, ex-convict sought for questioning in the Charles Mattson kidnap-killing.

Neighbors, shown a photograph of Haynes, said the man who occupied the house until Wednesday resembled him closely.

Cole went to the place upon learning Mrs. Melvin Smith at San Jose, Calif., owner of the cottage, had identified Haynes' photograph as a man to whom she rented the cottage.

The four-room furnished cottage was "spotlessly clean" and there was nothing in it by which the tenant could be traced, Cole said.

A barbecue pit, dug in blue clay, was found along a creek in back of the house, Cole said, but this was not considered especially significant.

A bouquet of apologies to two young men from Canadian who were picked up by police here Wednesday. They were in a local business place when the man in charge saw something that made him scamper to the telephone and call the police. The pair, one of whom is married, was taken to the police station and questioned. Then Chief Art Hurst called Sheriff Jones at Canadian. "Who did you say they were? Those fellows! Why they're all right. Not any better in town!" And the two were allowed to leave, still nervous and rather upset.

NEGOTIATIONS TO CONTINUE FOR 15 DAYS

VICTORY CLAIMED BY BOTH SIDES IN AGREEMENT

DETROIT, Jan. 15 (AP)—A truce arranged before dawn today pointed the way to peace in the country-wide General Motors automobile strikes.

By Monday morning, "sit-down" strikers whose two-week occupancy of several General Motors plants has brought rioting and bloodshed, will march out.

Representatives of the corporation and of the United Automobile Workers of America will open negotiations looking toward a permanent settlement of their dispute at Detroit at 11 a. m. Monday.

Unless final agreement is reached sooner, the negotiations will continue for 15 days. Lacking a settlement at the end of that time, Homer Martin, U. A. W. A. president, said, "We will come back to the governor's office."

The armistice in the far-flung struggle of the union against the giant automobile concern terminated a 17-hour conference between representatives of each, meeting for the first time since a Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan. Representatives of each revealed their agreement in statements to Gov. Frank Murphy, who made them public. Strikes called by the union have made more than 114,000 General Motors workers idle and led to rioting at Flint, Mich., in which 27 persons were injured.

"The evacuation of sit-down strikers will be effectuated as soon as practicable and before Monday morning," the union said. General Motors has stipulated ever since Gov. Murphy's announcement that it would arrange a peace parley that such a move must precede the opening of conferences for collective bargaining.

"The union will in good faith endeavor to arrive at a speedy settlement," its letter to the governor said.

The statement from General Motors executives said the negotiations "will be conducted frankly and without prejudice to anyone." It added there will be "no discrimination against any employee of union affiliation."

"Negotiations," said General Motors, "shall continue until a satisfactory settlement is reached."

P-TA Associations Hear Interesting Addresses

Members Speak For Sam Houston Program

Instead of inviting a guest speaker, members of Sam Houston Parent-Teacher association yesterday heard two women of their group present an interesting discussion of the day's topic, Honesty. Mrs. Earle Scheig and Mrs. Frank Perry formed the speaker combination.

The general meeting followed a board session when tentative plans were made for presenting a play soon. The idea was approved by the group and a committee will select the play.

Three committee heads were named. Mrs. Sidwell to the radio committee, Mrs. W. C. deCordova to the motion picture committee, and Mrs. Ralph Stine as legislative chairman.

Mrs. W. C. deCordova, Blue and Gold band director, C. O. Croson, opened the program. Mrs. R. W. Lane conducted a devotional. A dramatization of the coming of a new year was presented by little Anne Sidwell and Joe Hamlin.

Mrs. C. S. Boston, program chairman, introduced Jack Hesse, Eagle Scout, representing Sam Houston Troop No. 14. He gave a short history of the troop, told of its activities, and announced that the troop will appear as a whole in a program at the next P-TA meeting.

Miss Ruby Thompson, new public school music teacher, was introduced. The attendance award went to Miss Florence Jones, room which had the largest per cent of the 160 members present.

In her talk on Honesty, Mrs. Perry said, "Deep in our consciousness there is something that tells us right and wrong. The reward of honesty is the feeling of having done the right thing. We sometimes teach dishonesty by our little lies. Fear of punishment and jealousy also cause dishonesty. Parents must train the child in practical ways to make decisions, and must be examples of sincerity."

Mrs. Scheig discussed Cheating in School, giving several causes and probably remedies. "Sometimes a child who feels that he cannot meet requirements of a course cheats to make a passing grade. Each parent needs to feel the joy of achievement instead of competition with students far above him in ability. Cheating affects the honest student as well as the cheater because few students will refuse to help the cheater and most will shield the guilty one. Parents and teachers can help only by finding the causes and remedying existing conditions."

International Sunday School Lesson

JESUS THE WATER OF LIFE.

Text: John 4:7-26.

The story of the meeting of Jesus with a woman of Samaria at Jacob's well has some interesting aspects that are not indicated in the lesson itself.

Perhaps one of the most striking angles is the way in which the story emphasizes the unconventionalality of Jesus, and the extent to which He disregarded well-established codes and customs of His day that were out of accord with reality.

Repeatedly His enemies challenged Him on this ground, and Jesus had to defend His free and commonsense practice against the formal rules and regulations with which tradition had curbed the mind and the spirit.

In the east there has been no such freedom of public conversation between men and women as has been the practice in the western world. It was decidedly unusual for a man to be found conversing with a woman at a public place, such as a well, and one can easily understand the amazement of the disciples when they returned from the city and found Jesus thus engaged.

When the woman concerned was one whose reputation was none too savory, whose character, not unlikely, may have been indicated in her appearance, the amazement was all the greater.

And yet it is in this story of the conversation of Jesus with a much-married woman, at that time living in adultery, that one feels the purity and beauty of Jesus Himself, and the quality of that life which drew forth all that was best in those with whom He came in contact, even though that best was buried beneath sinful characters and environments.

The story has some very interesting sidelights. When Jesus began to question the woman, in a somewhat pressing and embarrassing way, concerning her own personal life, she immediately switched the conversation to other things. She wanted to know why Jesus, being a Jew, should ask for a drink of water from her, a Samaritan woman. It was a very pointed question, and indicated that she wanted to turn the conversation away from the subject of personal sins to that of social and religious customs. People who have been justly concerned about the practice of Christian virtues and the upholding of Christian truth often have been the most ready to discuss theoretical questions of religion and theology. They have, in fact, been known to become rather violent and intolerant over the discussion of doctrines which they have done little to put into practice.

When the woman interjected the question concerning worship—whether the true place for it was in Jerusalem, or in the Samaritan mountains—Jesus turned her question and the discussion very quickly to higher things.

It was to this woman that He gave that deep and beautiful word concerning truth and worship: That God is a spirit, and that they who worship must worship in spirit and in truth; and that neither at Jerusalem, nor in any mountain, but wherever devout souls are found, there the true worship

PANHANDLE SCORES ENOUGH FREE SHOTS TO BEAT PAMPANS 12 POINTS

AYER EJECTED FROM GAME IN SECOND FRAME

CONNIE SPARKS MAKES 23 POINTS FOR PANTHERS

Connie Sparks, tall, beefy center and four team-mates who did not matter so much, overcame an 8-point lead established by the Harvesters in the first quarter, and plastered a 34 to 22 defeat on the Pampa cagers by looping enough free shots to pile up a 12-point margin of victory.

Albert Ayer, veteran Harvester guard who played center last night, was ejected from the game in the second quarter on personal fouls. This came as a surprise because Ayer has not fouled out this year, and usually does not commit over one or two fouls.

Sparks scored 23 points, more than the entire Pampa team, and 15 of those tallies were chalked up after Ayer left the game. The score at the half was 17 to 10.

Letors Beats White Deer 40 To 12 In Miami Tournament

The Harvesters quickly established a nice lead. Ayer outjumped Connie Sparks a mile more or less and a tip-off play worked. Reynolds, who started at guard, scored four points from the floor. Dewey got two in the first quarter. Panhandle had time to draw one good breath. Then Dewey who was going like a house afire bounded after the ball, rolling and stumbling part of the way. He grabbed the ball and sank it into the basket.

Then Referee Slick Naylor called the players together and told them they were playing too rough, and that he'd throw them all off if they didn't quiet down. Well, the Harvesters quieted down all right, but apparently they did not in the matter of fouling, because Referee Naylor called two fouls right and left.

Panhandle made seven straight free shots, and a total of 15 points by the free-throw route. The Panthers made only two baskets from the field in the first half.

The Harvesters came back believing they can whip the highly-touted Panthers, definite favorites to win the district. Panhandle will play here Jan. 26, and the Harvesters will be laying for them. Then, if the Panthers survive the county play-off between White Deer and Croom, they will represent Carson county, in the district tournament.

On the whole, Pampans were pleased with the Harvester performance last night, despite the fact that the local cagers missed numerous setups, exhibited a poor defense in the last half, and couldn't get their plays working. Topsy Reynolds found the basket for four points, adding to the testimony that he is becoming an offensive as well as a defensive player.

Dewey scored six points, Cox 5, Ayer 2, Noyitt, who replaced Carson county, in the second quarter 2; Heiskell 3. Connie Sparks made 8 points in the last half by the simple method of dribbling off toward the goal, and leaving his guard behind.

Panhandle had one of its best basketball teams in years. Sparks, invincible under the basket, will likely make a great name for himself in basketball.

Cox left the game on personal fouls in the latter part of the struggle. Noblitt had three against him, Heiskell two, and Dewey several. Sparks played brilliantly the entire game.

MIAMI, Jan. 15.—Lopsided scores featured games opening the Miami Invitation basketball tournament last night. The first major upset of the tournament was registered in the opening game when the LeFors Panthers stormed the White Deer Bucks with an avalanche of shots for a 40 to 12 victory.

Wheeler's Mustangs had more difficulty downing the Canadian Wildcats, 28 to 16, in a hard-fought defensive game.

Scoring broke loose again in the nightcap attraction, however, when the Miami Warriors swamped the Mobeetie Hornets, 45 to 13.

Play was to be resumed again this afternoon at 1 o'clock and continue until tomorrow night. The two Pampa Harvesters teams were to swing into action this afternoon at 2 o'clock in the "B" team play at 3 o'clock and the "A" team one hour later.

METHODISTS WILL PLAY ARKANSAS IN WEEK-END

DALLAS, Jan. 15 (AP)—Two toss-up games between Arkansas' Porkers and Southern Methodist headline a Southwest conference weekend in a humpy-dumpy basketball race.

On top with two straight victories, the Methodists, earlier doped for the second division, may tumble from the heights or drop Arkansas back in the rut.

Surprising goal tossing accuracy, centered around Eagle-Eye J. D. Norton, a gangling sophomore, put the Methodists in first place but holding it against an Arkansas team humiliated by a supposedly inferior Baylor team last week is something else. The Razorbacks, dull in an opening defeat, opened up to bury Baylor in the second game.

Coach Glen Rose blamed over-confidence for the first licking and promised his lowering basketweavers would be in better mental shape for the Methodist series. Coach Jimmy St. Clair at S. M. U. said his boys "looked good in the Texas and Texas Christian games but will have to do better against Arkansas."

They play tonight and tomorrow night.

University of Texas picked on Texas A. & M. for their first victory after losing to Texas Christian and the Methodists and believe they will have the range when Rice's untrimmed Owls invade Austin Saturday night. The Owls buried the Aggies in their only appearance.

Baylor, by virtue of its clever defensive play against Arkansas, is favored to make it three lincings in a row for the Aggies in their Waco game Saturday night.

PANHANDLE REPAYMENT RECORD IS CREDITABLE

AMARILLO, Jan. 15.—Despite the light crops produced in 1936, and the continuation of the long drought, farmers in Texas and Beaver counties, Oklahoma, and in 12 Kansas counties, have made a more creditable repayment record. This part of region 12 of the Resettlement Administration, under the administration of L. H. Hunter, has been one of the most seriously affected areas of the nation. Loans were made only to farmers who would have been unable to continue operations without this assistance by the federal agency.

Farmers who borrowed funds from the Resettlement Administration to operate their farms in 1936 are making substantial repayments, according to Raymond W. O'Hara, a district supervisor for Kansas and Oklahoma. He reports that in the 12 Kansas counties under his jurisdiction 473 borrowers have repaid $46,319.85; while in the two Oklahoma counties 173 borrowers have repaid $10,993.64 to date.

The policy of the Resettlement Administration in making loans in the future will be to give preference to those farmers who have made the best repayment records. The effort the farmer and his family have made to carry out their farm and home plans and the cooperation shown will be carefully considered.

Grant and Budge Advance to Finals

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 15 (AP)—California's Don Budge today drew near up the finals of the Dixie tennis tournament and a chance to avenge a recent licking by Bryan Grant of Atlanta.

The lanky red head from Oakland indicated he feels he again is approaching the form that won him No. 1 national rating last year and expressed confidence he could beat the tireless little Georgian.

Grant said he would welcome another meeting with Budge. "And I'll do it again, next time we meet," said the Georgia mite, the nation's third ranking player.

Elwood Cooke of Los Angeles, Budge's opponent today, was figured to give the favorite little trouble.

A merry tussle apparently was in store for Frankie Parker of Lawrenceville, N. J. He drew Walter Senior of San Francisco, 12th ranking player nationally, for his quarter-finals foe.

YAWKEY WILL QUIT TOSSING CASH AROUND

HOPES HIS PLAYERS WILL ABANDON TEMPERAMENT

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (AP)—Cooling off with the baseball's hot stovers: Tom Yawkey has not only quit tossing his bankroll around for big name players, but he's going to take personal pains this season to see that those already on hand forget all about "primo donna-tis." Word from the Red Sox wigwag tells that Boss Tom is working on a plan by which the temperamental members of his cast will learn to leave their temper in the closet at home, along with the family skeleton and last summer's straw hat.

The Pittsburgh Pirates are trying with the idea of benching Woody Jensen and letting Rookie Johnny Dickshot roam his outfield beat. Dickshot, up for his third big league tryout this spring, packed plenty of batting punch for the Buffalo International league Bisons last year, finishing with a .335 average for the pennant winners.

If he sticks this season, it will have taken Frank McGowan, the Boston Bees slugging prospect, 17 years of roaming around the bushes to make the big time. He's had tryouts galore, showing up at the Philadelphia Athletics' training camp as far back as 1922 and with the St. Louis Browns in 1928, but each time he barely lasted long enough for the Grapefruit league windup. Meantime, he's been doing duty with such double A organizations as Milwaukee, Kansas City, Minneapolis, Baltimore, and, lately, Buffalo.

Vines and Perry To Resume Play

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 15 (AP)—Fred Perry, czar of the amateur tennis ranks for three years, picked up his match tonight with Ellsworth Vines, professional champion, as the "rubber" of their national tour.

He referred to illness which forced Vines to enter a hospital in Chicago, and said: "It certainly put me in a hole. 'If I won from Vines, I defeated him because he was not at top form.'"

"Had he won from me, fans would say that Vines, though off his game could defeat me."

"I am glad that Vines has had this six-day rest and says that he is fully recovered. There will be no question of tonight's match."

Vines, meanwhile, came from Chicago by train, unable to carry out his plans to fly here yesterday because of a bad weather.

The professional champion lost the first three matches of the tour in New York, Cleveland, and Chicago, before halting the campaign because of a severe cold.

LOUIS DEFEAT AIDED BOXING SAYS OFFICIAL

SPORT INCREASING IN FAVOR ALL OVER COUNTRY

(Note: This is the ninth in a series of stories written for the Associated Press by outstanding sports leaders. They deal with 1936 developments and 1937 prospects.)

By EDWARD C. POSTER (Executive Secretary, The National Boxing Association)

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 15 (AP)—It seems impossible to say anything about boxing during 1936 without mentioning the greatest upset of the year, the defeat of Joe Louis by Max Schmeling.

Personally, I believe it was a great thing for boxing because many people had been led to believe that Louis was invincible. Schmeling's victory proved this sport was on the level and endeavoring to produce the best men in the various classes.

Boxing is increasing in favor all over the country. It certainly seems to have earned this increased patronage, for I believe the boxers and their handlers are doing a much better job than they have in the past three or four years.

I mean the boys are well matched and in almost every instance are giving to the best of their ability.

The National Boxing association, with its 36 member states, is earnestly working now on a plan to alleviate some of the tribulations of old, broken-down boxers. It is planned to organize a fund to be earmarked for indigent boxers. We believe boxing, fans all over the country would be willing to stand perhaps a one-cent tax on each ticket to go toward this fund.

However, no really definite plan has been adopted.

The heavyweight division is certainly in a chaotic condition. There is no reason in the world why Jim Braddock should not have been compelled to defend his title within the year after he won that title, or declare publicly it was impossible for him, owing to physical disability, to continue as champion.

However, there seems to be a rainbow in the sky, and 1937 no doubt will see the heavyweight division represented by a champion who not only is capable but willing to defend his title.

One of the big disappointments to boxing fans this year was a practical rescinding of the so-called no foul rule, which has been in effect since immediately after the Sharkey-Schmeling bout some few years ago in New York.

The National Boxing association, at its meeting in Houston, voted to keep the no-foul rule intact.

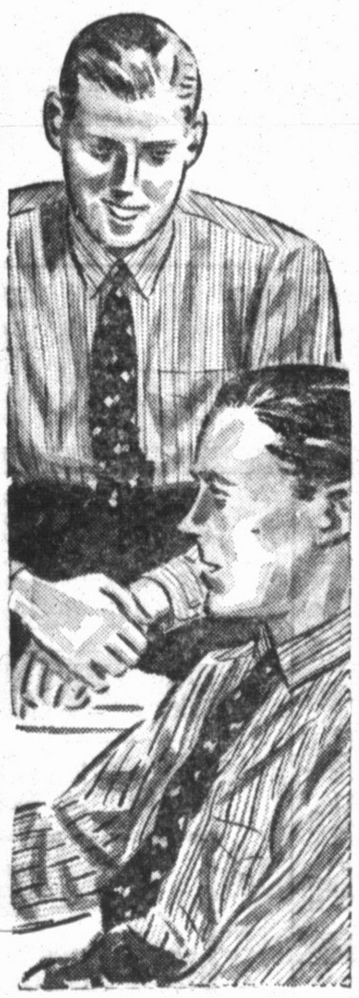

CUNNINGHAM AND GENE VENZKE MEET SATURDAY

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (AP)—Glenn Cunningham and Gene Venzke, perennial board track rivals who met in previous years only in the big indoor meets, will clash in one of the lesser fixtures tomorrow but only the stop watch will decide the winner. The famous Kansan, now a graduate student at New York university, and his Pennsylvania rival both are expected to run 1,000 yards in the 69th regiment meet. They have been placed in separate races of the 1,000 which has been divided into three sections because of the large field.

Hunters reported many cases of screw worm in deer in the Davis mountain section of Texas this year. The worms were the same type that afflict cattle and sheep.

Basketball Over The Panhandle

CAREY Wins 28-5
CAREY, Jan. 15 — Back in the home fold after trampling the Wichita Falls Coyotes over a 28-5 deluge the Cardinals started preparing the home stage today for the annual invitation tournament presentations this weekend. Foust scored 15 points.

Ten teams have already signified that they will be present Friday and Saturday, and an additional half dozen more quintets are expected to enter before the opening game. The Cards are defending champions and pre-tourney favorites to again land the top chair.

Crowell Wins Game
CHILDRESS, Jan. 15 — Consistency and temper control were the vital factors as Grady Graves' Crowell Wildcats triumphed 27-23 over the Bobcats in the opening game of the 1937 Northwest Texas Conference cage race.

Foust Ineligible
CHILDRESS, Jan. 15 — Ineligible was written on the decision slip handed down Monday by the executive committee in the case of Carroll "Slats" Foust, Carey forward, and today the Carey school officials prepared an appeal to be sent to the state executive committee for a ruling.

Conflicting testimony of a hospital birth record and oral evidence in the case was given by the committee members as the reason for their decision.

The case first came to light last spring, and Carey school heads asked the county group to rule on the player's eligibility before the team participated in any league contests. No protest was filed.

"The investigation and ruling was carried on in a friendly manner and with no hard feelings whatsoever," said Frank B. Hill, committee chairman.

Spearman Beats Phillips
BORGER, Jan. 15 — A last minute rally in an overtime period failed to materialize for the Phillips team Whittenburg and the boys from the nearby oil community dropped a hard fought contest to a fighting Spearman, five, 20 to 20. The Phillips girls were more fortunate during the evening and amassed enough points to down the feminine basketweavers from Spearman, 19 to 11.

Determined to avenge a defeat suffered earlier in the season at the hands of the Phillips cagers, the Spearman boys put forth their best playing efforts to eke out a win in a hoop-dropping battle which was finally forced into the 3-minute overtime session. The Blackhaws, after lagging directly behind the invaders during the first part of the second half, pulled themselves together and chalked up enough points to tie up the ball game, 20-20, at the end of the regular playing time.

Borgers Lose
BORGER, Jan. 15 — The old coddler who wields the stick of destiny jabbed a hole in the hopes of predicting Borgans with the Perryton basketball clubs as the medium. The Borgers boys took graveyard rank, losing to the Perryton five 13 to 18, and the local girls were out-disturbed by the visiting sextet 10 to 23.

SPEDY UP THE LAW

Washington dispatches make it seem very doubtful that congress will take any action to limit the U. S. supreme court's right to pass on federal legislation. But it is reported that much sentiment is developing in favor of a law that would increase the supreme court's work on constitutional cases, instead of diminishing it.

What is being proposed, in fact, is a law to confine constitutional issues to the supreme court, thus cutting out all lower court delays.

As things are now, if you wish to test a law's constitutionality, you file suit in the lower court. In a year or so, you get a decision. This, in all likelihood, is carried to the court of appeals.

After another six months or more, that court hands down its decision. That, in turn, is carried along to the supreme court, which has the final say.

Very, very rarely does the ruling of a lower court as to a law's constitutionality stand by itself.

So there is good sense in the suggestion that all such cases be confined to the supreme court from the start. Decision on weighty constitutional issues should be much speedier under such system.

BE ON YOUR GUARD!

For several years we have joined with other newspapers all over the country in sounding a warning along about this time of year against the dangers arising from carbon-monoxide gas. And yet, notwithstanding all warnings, the nation is forced to suffer a heavy casualty list each year.

Research has shown that carbon-monoxide gas, which is nothing more than the fumes from an auto engine, is the most deadly form of gas in the world. Unlike other gases, it sounds no warning of its presence since you cannot see it or smell it or hear it escaping. And yet so deadly is it that death from it can easily ensue within a period of five or ten minutes. Even if a victim of carbon-monoxide poisoning does survive the system is left in such condition that recovery requires a long period, in many instances, and most generally leaves the victim weakened, physically for the balance of his life.

So here is our annual to motorists around Pampa. Be on your guard. Don't start your auto in a closed garage. Don't work on it with the motor running in a closed garage. Don't sleep in your car with the motor running, unless a window is left open for ventilation. Keep the motor tuned up in cold weather and the exhaust system tight. These rules are your only precaution against the most deadly gas in the world. Be on your guard!

SYNDICALISM LAW

The Supreme Court's recent unanimous decision on the Oregon Criminal Syndicalism Law, setting aside its constitutionality, is of importance to all lovers of liberty.

Chief Justice Hughes' declaration, on behalf of the court, that "peaceable assembly for lawful discussion cannot be made a crime" is regarded as most significant, since it applies specifically to a Communist subscribing to his party's principles of overthrow of capitalistic government by force.

There is probably no one in the country who is better posted on what real liberty means than Dr. Everett Dean Martin of Claremont College.

In his book, "Liberty," he says, "Assuming that the foolish could be protected by the denial of free speech, truth could not possibly be the gainer thereby, for the pursuit of truth necessarily takes place in the open."

He also says, "Men who are officially occupied within the prevention of error have little time for the pursuit of truth."

FLAW OF MACHINE AGE

Whatever this modern era of technology may do for us, it does leave us completely at the mercy of mechanical breakdowns. Never was the fact more strikingly illustrated than by the failure of the electric power system at Newark, N. J., the other day.

A small fire, unimportant in itself, swept a substation and cut off the power line which brought current into Newark. For 5 1/2 hours the city was dark.

Elevators stopped running, lights went out, movies were suspended, hospital traffic was checked, radios went off, traffic lights stopped blinking, and the thousand-and-one little gadgets that run by electricity ceased to operate.

Service was resumed before anything very terrible happened. But how graphically does the incident show our utter dependence on the smooth working of the intricate machinery on which we have built our civilization!

One little accident can mean chaos for an entire city.

RANSOM PAYING

The kidnap-slaying of the Mattson boy of Tacoma brings to the American people the need of a federal law making it a crime to pay ransom to kidnapers.

Canada has a law which makes it a criminal offense for anyone to pay a kidnaper for the return of a kidnaped person. The result is that Canada is almost wholly free of kidnap cases.

It is too much to ask a private citizen under great duress to refuse to give ransom for the return of a loved one. If it were a national law, however, the motive for kidnaping and the probability of success would be so greatly reduced that there would be very few cases of kidnaping, as evidenced by Canada.

GERMANY AND FOOD

In a syndicated article by Eugene J. Young, the desperate condition in Germany, as to food, is pointed out.

Mr. Young says that the Frankfurter Zeitung recently blurted out the truth that 1,000,000 tons of wheat would have to be imported this winter and 1,000,000 tons of rye must be taken from the seed supplies needed for next year's crops.

This means about a half bushel of each for each German citizen.

When people are producing guns, they cannot be producing food.

From Leap Year, it seems, we have passed into a Sit Down Year.

The fur-lined cup and saucer on display at a New York surrealist exhibition seems just the thing for that "morning after" breakfast.

"Rubinoff has been on the air a long time, but never has uttered a word." Dora thinks it serves him right for teaming up with a politician.

A Londoner has walked 9500 miles in three years but the news doesn't say whether it stopped the baby from crying at night.

Italy has banned handshaking in favor of the Fascist salute, which might be an idea to stop our gangsters from putting the finger on their pals.

Washington Letter

By RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON.—In ordinary times it would be almost impossible to pass a bill providing that all members of Congress be painted with red and green stripes and paraded down Pennsylvania Avenue in that costume. But these are not ordinary times.

All you need do is to insure victory for such a proposal is tag it "neutrality legislation."

Never was there such a popular issue in the Capitol. It was so popular that the Senate voted 80 to 0 and the House voted 406 to 1 to embargo arms, ammunition, and implements of war to Spain, though members had no printed or mimeographed copies of the bill before them, no committee had considered the measure, and many members voted aye while holding their noses.

The administration's steam-roller tactics, Roosevelt's eagerness to make a witch-hunting grandstand play to American peace-lovers over export of an admitted pile of aerial junk by one Mr. Cuse, the alacrity with which Congress jumped through the hoop at the magic word and the actual source of this piece of legislation—all these factors combine to make it seem increasingly likely that the permanent neutrality legislation promised for this session will be by no means the McCoy, insofar as it pretends to guarantee keeping us out of war.

The immediate practical effect of the law is to bust contracts between American citizens and the duly constituted Spanish government, with which this country theoretically has friendly relations. That reverses precepts of international law, yet it unquestionably will be satisfactory to the overwhelming mass of American citizens who want no part of the Spanish mess.

But the question why the law wasn't written to apply to Germany, Russia, Italy, France, Portugal—nations in the Spanish war up to the neck—and other countries which may or may not be pouring arms into Spain presumably is best known to manufacturers of munitions, who are doing a thriving export business.

Sales of planes and parts to Germany for the first six months of 1934, the last reported period, were $1,445,000—and then on the increase.

Hardly any of the members who voted for the bill knew where it came from, so they might as well be told. The measure was concocted in the State Department, where the dominating clique is largely Fascist.

Instead of making the existing neutrality act applicable to all civil wars, the new law merely picks on Spain. The president remains free to permit shipments to any other nation where there may be a civil war, regardless of whether those who benefit most therefrom are government forces or rebels, Fascists or Communists, Norwegians or Senegambians.

Also, American interests may still export oil, copper and similar materials of war to Spain or anywhere else. These materials can be just as useful to a belligerent nation engaged in murdering persons as actual ammunition, sometimes more so.

And the traffic would be just as likely to get us into war. The State Department opposed embargo on oil to Italy during the Ethiopian war on the ground that this would have been an unfriendly act toward Italy—Ethiopia being inaccessible to our oil.

BOUND IN MOROCCO?

MAN ABOUT MANHATTAN

NEW YORK.—Paul de Laboulaye is ecstatic over the skyline of New York—including the sky.

Amazement and admiration lights up his dark French face as he points to the twilight over Rockefeller Center, where his first American exhibition is being held.

There is, however, one qualifying note to this surrendered enthusiasm. We were talking, this bachelor son of a French ambassador and I, from a point 18 floors above the sidewalk, and he pointed to the lean, upward thrust of gray buildings which come seemingly from nowhere to wound the sky with gleaming arrows and polished bronze spires.

"New York—what shall I say—is a wonderful city to paint, but if you begin at the top you never know when to stop at the bottom. It is very difficult. It always looks as if a piece of picture has been scissored out. A real impression of New York is so hard to get in a small canvas. Perhaps it could be done on a screen or something very big."

He meant, of course, that in panoramic sweeps the sidewalks and streets must always be obliterated by the tangled maze of skyscrapers and buildings.

"It is different in Europe" he said. "There artists may invent and fictionalize. He may even rearrange whole landscapes for purposes of composition. But in New York one shouldn't change anything. This city has so much strength by itself. You can't leave anything out without sacrificing character. Yes, I have tried to paint your city. Once I tried from the Statue of Liberty. I am not pleased."

One looks at this well-dressed young man and concludes that he seems more of a fencing-master, or a tennis champion, than an artist. He is lean and dark, with raven hair already touched with white (a family characteristic), and he is French in thought, word, and accent, although he was educated in American universities, and has spoken English for years.

As for his painting the city from the Statue of Liberty—you could count the artists on both sides of the ocean and not find one with the better right to post his easel at the hem of that august lady's skirts. For he is the grandson of the man who first conceived the idea of presenting some such statue to the United States.

Joe Glaston reports that Vincent Lopez, who bids fair to become known as the master of trick compositions, has another tune with lyrics that are calculated to drive listeners crazy. This is "How Do You Doodle?" and it relates to the drawings and meaningless scribbling done by most persons in abstract moments—such as those weird abracadabra you jot down on tablecloths, telephone pads (during calls), etc. Lopez himself is a confirmed doodler. He got the idea from "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town."

Russel Crouse writes plays for amusement and profit, but he would rather dig out old murders and do books about them than anything.

HOW'S your HEALTH

Edited by DR. IAQO GILDSTON ITCI. for the New York Academy of Medicine

It is due to parasitic invasion of the skin a variety of salves and baths can be employed to destroy the parasites. Where the cause resides in organic disease, the underlying condition must be treated.

In essential pruritis, psychotherapy and palliative treatment, making use of bland baths and mild phenol-containing salves, will at times prove effective. In the pruritis of old age, the judicious use of X-rays by those skilled in their administration frequently brings relief.

The pruritis may also be a symptom of several other conditions. These include skin diseases, diseases of internal organs and "essential conditions in which no organic disease is demonstrable."

As a symptom of skin disease, itch is commonplace. It occurs in erythema, eczema, dermatitis, hives and numerous other forms of skin involvement. Sometimes psoriasis is intensely itchy. Frequently itch develops because the skin condition is treated over-vigorously.

In diabetes, itch is a fairly common symptom, and a wise precaution to have the urine examined for sugar when itch is persistent. Bright's disease also is sometimes associated with generalized itching. Here again a careful examination of the urine proves of value. In diseases of the liver, particularly those giving rise to jaundice, itch is an occasional symptom. When certain drugs—like alcohol, veronal, chloral, bromides and certain laxatives, notably those containing phenolphthalein—are taken internally, they may irritate the skin and give rise to pruritis.

The essential type of pruritis in which no organic disease is demonstrable and which is charged to "mental conditions" is fairly frequently found in elderly people.

The treatment of pruritis naturally depends upon its causes. Where the greatest gifts parents can give their children is the ability to live in and enjoy the present moment. For many people, all of life comes to be a preparation for something else, until at last death comes with life still un-lived.

The baby longs to be a big boy, the boy can hardly wait to be a man, the young man is straining every nerve to reach the top in business, and having reached it, to have a fortune, for his family. All to what end? At what time has he really lived and enjoyed the present moment?

Childhood, childhood, youth, maturity, old age, are not merely classes in school, each one merely preparation for the one to come. The future depends upon the past, but only insofar as one has lived every day and hour to the full and for itself.

The man, woman or child who is always planning for the morrow is always planning for the morrow as something better than today, who

Q. What breed of chicken is the dreams of "when I am a man," or "when I am married," or "when my ship comes in," neglecting this little moment of Now, cannot be truly happy.

Because of this emphasis on the future, this feverish grasping for things to come, children are disappointed, over-sophisticated, snatching from the grab bag of tomorrow behaviors and experiences they are not prepared for.

A baby is an individual with his own life to lead, his pleasures to enjoy. A little boy or girl is not merely in process of becoming an adult, he is a person in his own right, with experiences and occupations and pleasures to go through which must be tasted to the full at their time. There is no more reason for rushing these early years than for the old man to hustle into his coffin.

Life is unreasoning and unsatisfactory unless it is taken as it comes, accepted and lived now.

1936 champion, Miss New Deal? P. M.

A. She is a White Leghorn. She laid 327 eggs in 365 days and scored 347.25 points—a two-ounce egg equaling one point.

Q. What are the most important mineral elements in food? B. L. C. A. Probably calcium, phosphorus, and iron.

Q. When was the Mississippi River formed? M. T. A. The river, as it now exists, was formed during the latter part of the Ice Age, more than 20,000 years ago.

Q. Can you tell me something about Elizabeth Fry? A. W. S. A. Elizabeth Fry was a Quaker, the wife of a prosperous London merchant. AROUND HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD.—The most interesting thing about Patsy Kelly's wisecracks is the unstrained, casual ease with which she tosses them about.

She is a comedienne, and a first-rate funny gal, but she never makes you squirm by trying to live up to the reputation. Among people to avoid out here are those who are funny, egad, and heaven help you if you don't think so—heaven help you because they're going to keep on trying until you laugh. If they think you didn't hear the first time, they'll repeat willingly.

Patsy Is Natural

Not Patsy. The girl just talks that way, and doesn't try. That may be why, when you try to reduce her humor to print, it seldom jells. As they always say of the village cut-up, "it's not what she says so much as the way she says it."

She was telling us on the set the other day she thought she'd have to start saving her money. Once she'd thought she was safe, she was no glamour gal, but she had something the glamor gals hadn't. She was always willing to be the Patsy. Custard pie? Sure, right in the face.

"But I went to a movie last night," she said, "and what d'ya think? The beauties are stealing my stuff. When gorgeous girls like Irene Dunne, Carole Lombard and Joan Crawford are going in for comedy, will anybody there see Kelly—with a pan like mine? I'm saving my money from now on."

So saying, she went into a scene which demonstrated how little she needs to worry.

Ben Bernie, here for a picture, was telling her how his recent tour made him gladder than ever, yowah, she was going to be in the Bernie-Winchell movie. Everybody wanted to know about Patsy Kelly.

Most actors you're welcome, Bernie, are happy to have Patsy Kelly in their films. She may steal them, but she also will keep an audience from feeling it's been robbed. She is kept pretty busy.

"Twenty minutes between pictures," she said, "and I'm getting tired. I go to bed early Saturday night when I can't stay up, and then last night I stay up till 5:30 talking over old times with a visitor from Brooklyn. That's Kelly—no sense."

PARKING METERS OUTLAWED

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Jan. 15 (AP)—The Alabama Supreme Court outlawed traffic parking meters in Birmingham today as an "unauthorized exercise of the taxing power" of the city. The court ruled a Birmingham ordinance authorizing the installation of parking meters on downtown streets was invalid, the decision affirming the judgment of Jefferson county circuit court.

TWO HELD AS SUSPECTS IN MATTSOON KIDNAPING

MCKINNEY, Jan. 15 (AP)—Collin county officers awaited a fingerprint report today from the federal bureau of investigation at Washington on two men held here as possible suspects in the kidnap-slaying of Charles Mattson.

Deputy Sheriff W. E. Button said one of the men strongly resembled a newspaper picture of Fred Corin Haynes, former California convict, sought in connection with the case.

The men were arrested at Farmersville. Officers said they returned to establish their identities and explain their presence satisfactorily. At Dallas, near white detectives sought a man answering the description of Haynes. He approached Roy Roberts, used car salesman, and said he wanted to buy a car if "the price is right." Roberts said he noticed the resemblance and tried to telephone the police but the man disappeared before the call was completed.

Will Fritz, inspector of detectives at Dallas, said he received calls from more than 40 persons who believed they had seen Haynes.

that to the contrary it will reward the man who strives to keep on a payroll—and it also will reward the firm that maintains a firm and stable payroll.

"It's simply a business proposition," he said, "in building up a fund to give a man temporary compensation when he loses his job and to help him find another as quickly as possible."

The unemployment law is not to be confused with the old age pension act, which calls for payments from both employer and employee.

The unemployment law deals solely with benefit payments to employees who are out of work and the tax is to be paid entirely by the employer.

"Giving rise to considerable confusion as the old age benefit provisions of the Federal law. Without attempting an explanation of those provisions, I call to your attention the fact that the State of Texas has nothing whatsoever to do with the Federal old age benefits law. It is enforced solely by the Federal government. It is under Federal law that employees, the workers, are assessed a direct tax. Keep in mind this fact: The tax, or contribution, required under the Texas law, is placed wholly upon employers. There is positively no tax upon the workers; further, that the Texas law specifically forbids the employer from passing on the tax to those who work for him.

"Much of this confusion has arisen from the fact that employers must pay an unemployment compensation tax regardless of whether their particular state has a law. In other words, if Texas had no law today, you nevertheless would pay the full contribution to the Federal government, and your employees would be entitled to no benefits. Texas has a law. You pay no greater tax. The only difference is that you will pay part of the tax to the Federal government and a part of it to the state.

"The purpose is not to put anybody on the dole; it is not meant to place a premium on idleness. Its sole and only purpose is to provide a manager income to workers during periods of unemployment brought about through no fault of their own. Not only are payments under this act meager; they are limited very rigidly in point of duration. And the steady worker, the man who has proved by his past record that he wants to work, will draw a proportionately larger benefit than the drifter, the shiftless man or the occasional worker. In fine, it was meant to stabilize employment.

Whether it accomplishes that purpose remains for the future to demonstrate; but any man who understands this law must be impressed with its fine, humanitarian aims and ideals. Many theories fall when they are put to the test of practice; but I have high hopes that this will work."

Athletics Will Be Discussion Topic

Supt. R. B. Fisher of the Pampa schools will be in charge of a round table discussion on athletics when the Northwest Texas Superintendents association convenes in Amarillo Saturday.

Principal speaker at the meeting will be J. M. Bickley, superintendent of the Clovis school and widely known educator in New Mexico. Dr. L. B. Cooper from the department of research of the Texas State Teachers association, will be the other speaker. He will discuss the teachers retirement bill.

Rue Parcells of Amarillo, George Heath of White Deer and Skellytown, and F. P. Wilson of Gruver will assist Supt. Fisher in his discussion on Texas athletics.

Black-Draught High In Quality Without Being High In Price

Black-Draught is "easy to pay for" because it is so economically packaged and so reliable. But as to quality, there's nothing "cheap" about it. For instance, its principal active ingredient is the leaves of a certain species of plant that are brought 10,000 miles from where they grow to the factory where the medicine is made. These leaves from far, far away, help to give Black-Draught its well-known "laxative reliability." They could not be left out, or substituted, with out real loss of good medicinal quality.

For a good, purely vegetable laxative, insist on Black-Draught. About 25 doses in each 25-cent package.

MARKET BRIEFS

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (AP)—Buying currents swept through the stock market today, hitting selected issues fractionally to 3 points on new recovery tops.

The trace in the General Motors strike brought a fast upswing in automobiles, steels, rubbers, and specialties in the morning. Many extreme gains were later reduced as the volume dwindled, but last-minute support put most of the leaders back to their day's best marks. There was an assortment of losers, however, at the close. Transfers were around 2,900,000 shares.

Table with columns for stock symbols and prices. Includes Am Can, Am Rd & S, Am T & T, Anaconda, etc.

Will Fritz, inspector of detectives at Dallas, said he received calls from more than 40 persons who believed they had seen Haynes.

injured were brought to cottage hospital here.

All the dead and injured lived at the Gulf company pump station, seven miles southwest of Strang.

The break in the line occurred about a mile and a half north of the company's pump station. Drivers of three ambulances were dispatched to the scene as the news of the disaster reached here.

"They said the automobile in which the women were trapped still was blazing when they arrived.

A truck standing nearby also was in flames. The truck was used to transport workmen to the job.

Mark Gist, Seminole, one of the workmen, who received a slight burn on the right hand, gave the first eye-witness account of the disaster.

"It all happened so quickly," he said, "like a flash of lightning, that no one knew exactly what happened.

"One minute those women were sitting in the automobile alive and talking, and the next they were a mass of flames.

"There was no move, no outcry. Death was instantaneous.

"The bodies were burned so badly that when they were taken from the wreckage they bore little resemblance to the human form. They were cremated.

"The car itself looked like it had been thrust into a blast furnace. There was nothing but a melted mass of metal.

"One of the women had a little dog in the car with her. It burned up too."

Hospital attendants said the condition of the other four workmen still in the hospital was "satisfactory."

At the Gulf station near the scene of the blast, officials said an investigation would be made.

They said first reports were that a torch being used to weld a patch on the line set fire to the oil as the line burst, scattering flaming fuel over the occupants of the car.

'Lynch Him!' Cry Women at Negro

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (AP)—The threatening cries of screaming women still rang in the ears of Major Greene, 33-year-old negro, today as he awaited trial February 1 for the bathtub slaying of Mrs. Mary Robinson Case.

The wiry porter, who, authorities said, had signed a complete confession, was sullen and seemingly unmoved last night as detectives led him from Queens county court where he pleaded innocent before Judge John S. Cadden.

Outside, a noisy crowd of spectators, most of them women, surged toward the negro when he appeared under heavy police guard.

"Lynch him!" the crowd cried. "He's no good! He ought to be hung! The chair's too good for you!" Greene threw up his unmanicured hand to shield himself.

They again pummeled him with umbrellas, sticks and pocket-books, but most of the blows fell on the shoulders of detectives who swarmed around to elbow him unharmed to the Queens county jail 200 yards away.

The arraignment was completed only 72 hours after Mrs. Case's strangled and beaten body was found by her husband, Frank Case, 30, in an overflowing bathtub in their Jackson Heights, Queens, apartment.

as the "whole country there is of blue clay formation."

Blue clay of a kind commonly found along streams in western Washington was discovered under the 10-year-old Mattson boy's finger nails after a rabbit hunter stumbled across the body last Monday five miles south of Everett, Wash.

In a whatcom confinement cell of the Shelton county jail, Lee Haskell Fowler, 36, under a long sentence for robbery, awaited another round of questioning by justice department agents, who grilled him for several hours last night.

An official source said Fowler, admitting the robbery of a milling company the night of Dec. 17, refused to account for his whereabouts from the time of the kidnaping, Dec. 27, until his arrest last Thursday.

The same source said federal officers' suspicions were aroused when he pleaded 'guilty' to the robbery charge.

After justice department agents left the jail last night, taking with them the prisoner's woman companion, Fowler was placed in solitary confinement.

Investigators sought new clues in brushlands near Everett, where, an abandoned shack containing apparently bloodstained boy's clothing was reported found yesterday along with a knife and a machete's hammers.

Federal agents, leading the man-hunt for the 10-year-old boy's killer, refused comment on the numerous clues, reports of arrests or any other developments in the case.

The Seattle Post-Intelligencer in a copyrighted story today told part of the details of the unsuccessful negotiations to pay $28,000 for the boy's release. It said a reliable source revealed the boy wrote three letters to his family at the dictation of his kidnapers.

"The last of the letters, it said, appeared six days after the boy was stolen from his Tacoma home Dec. 27. Five days after the last note the boy's father, Dr. W. W. Mattson, made a futile attempt to contact and pay the kidnapers in response to telephoned instructions.

"Told of the story, Dr. Mattson said, 'there is nothing to it.' Gus B. Appelman, a family spokesman, said: "Some of it is right. Most of it isn't."

"The Seattle Times quoted a close friend of the family as saying Dr. Mattson, attempting to pay his son's abductors in Seattle shortly after the kidnaping, saw two men in an automobile, one of whom resembled the swarthy man who took Charles from the Mattson home Dec. 27. Both were frightened away by an accident to an oil truck.

This and similar reports, including a remark by J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, indicated officers were seeking two men, rather than a lone kidnaper.

"We won't discuss the case until we catch him," Hoover said in Washington, D. C., then added hastily, "I don't mean him—I mean him or them."

factory settlement shall be effected, if possible.

"The corporation has no intention and will not during the negotiations remove any dies, tools, machinery, materials (except for export trade) or equipment from any of the plants on strike and agrees during said period not to resume operation of any plant."

The U. A. W. A. had insisted ever since attempts were started to arrange for negotiations that the "sit down" strikers would not vacate the five General Motors plants they occupied unless the corporation promised not to remove equipment or resume production.

The "sit down" strikes affecting General Motors' plants have cost the automobile company and its employees close to $10,000,000 to date, an unofficial survey indicated today, shutdowns and curtailment of operations in related industries, principally steel, flat glass and transportation, have added several million dollars to this estimate of business losses. An Associated Press compilation, based on the number of idle employees, working days lost in each plant and the company's report of its average daily wage, shows that General Motors workers have lost $6,156,661, including today.

With about 115,000 General Motors employees idle—and the number increasing daily—informed sources report that the losses of wages, current profits, prospective stock dividends and trade would amount to "a staggering figure."

arillo chamber of commerce to Austin and Washington to seek state and federal aid in the program, and to handle other portions of the program.

County was given a quota of $88. County commissioners to date have taken no action on appropriating the sum. Mr. Walker, chairman of the county committee, intimated after yesterday's meeting that his committee would ask the county commission to discuss the matter at its next meeting. Recently a group of representative citizens of the county met here and approved the Panhandle program, which is for the conservation of water through contouring, terracing and lakes.

Mr. Walker urged county representatives to immediately prepare maps showing streams and watersheds and sites of proposed projects in their county for presentation to the committee. He also urged the preparation of a prospectus on each county's project and suggested that wherever possible engineers be used to outline the projects.

It was pointed out at the county meeting held here that Gray county had many available locations for small and large dams. Terracing and contouring was also stressed at the Pampa meeting.

Something about the program follows as presented at yesterday's meeting:

1. The association selected as its foremost objective the building of many small lakes and ponds "to impound water at its source." Attention will be given as well to larger projects but emphasis will be given to work which will give greater benefit to the largest number of persons in the shortest time.

2. Close co-operation with federal agencies was pledged, with the idea of securing initial appropriations through existing agencies but definitely "earmarked" for the Panhandle.

3. The association decided to incorporate as a non-profit organization and to employ H. V. Robertson and company of Amarillo as its auditors.

4. Representatives of the different counties expressed confidence in Carl Hinton as executive secretary and pledged full support of the movement.

5. Twenty-two counties reported they had raised their first quarterly payment toward the association's $10,000 budget and guaranteed they will meet all payments.

THE FINANCIAL WHIRLIGIG

By LOUIS SCHNEIDER

OUT
 The administration's new silver policy is to keep the price stable around the 45 cents per ounce level. This will be accomplished by the direct buying from producing countries such as Canada and Mexico. Silver trade insiders say that the day of trying to boost the price is definitely over regardless of what moves are started in Congress.

COCKEYED
 Wilson & Company stockholders can't understand why the delay in reporting the company's annual fiscal report. The fiscal year ended as of October 31st last year and the delay ran into over two months. They feel certain that something must be wrong because they have received proxies for the annual meeting even before the financial report was made public. The company's annual meeting is slated for February 16. Because of these irregularities there is a feeling in the financial district that something is cockeyed somewhere.

FACTS
 The London Stock Exchange almost closed last week due to so many members being absent with influenza. New York Stock Exchange members sick list a bit above normal. Railroads are sure when the lower passenger fare rates established this summer really increased revenues. Radio Corporation of America's shares were the most actively traded issue on the Big Board during 1936—transactions totaled 8,318,000 shares with net change of minus 7-8 in price. By organizations absorbing subsidiaries to escape taxation, working personnel will be reduced. The Elingtons of Elington Schild company sold the largest part of their shareholdings during December. Because the price can't be increased the size of penny candy products will be reduced due to higher commodity costs. Although the steam locomotive is known as the "Iron Horse" each one contains nearly 8,000 pounds of copper or its derivatives. Foreign affairs not a market factor these days as much as are labor difficulties now confronting domestic industries.

IMPROVED
 For the first nine months of 1936 Mack Trucks reported an income of $1.46 a share. Insiders say that the last three month period added 90 cents which makes an estimated 1936 net of $2.36 a share. If so it's the best showing since 1930 when the company earned $2.60 a share. For 1935 a deficit of $395,516 was incurred. The favorable showing is attributed to the larger sales volume which reduced overhead costs and thus permitted an improved margin of profits.

REFUNDINGS
 During the first few months of this year bond dealers expect new financing to run to the merry tune of about $2,000,000,000. Up to this writing close to $750,000,000 in applications are being in the hands of the Securities Exchange Commission. Others are pending. With the Supreme Court reading a favorable decision for the utilities in the Utility Holding Act matter the total refunding operations over the first six months of 1937 may run close to the full figures for all of 1936. With that possibility, money brokers insist that low coupon rates will continue for at least the first half of this year.

INVESTMENT
 With more money in its pockets the public has been spending for cameras, films and prints. Eastman Kodak gets the lion's share of the improvement. In addition the company benefits from the increased production schedules of the motion picture industry. Even the foreign demand for Eastman's products has been rising. Those accumulating the shares for investment purposes say that the 1937 per share net will run above the $8.50 expected to be reported for 1936.

FAVORABLE
 Most all tire manufacturers are in strong inventory position. With crude rubber having shown fancy price advances these organizations will report inventory profits for 1936. Sales, too, were larger. With the higher tire prices ruling all through the last five months of the year, net 1936 income of tire manufacturers will make favorable reading.

REPORTS ARE THAT:
 Louisville & Nashville has 1,170,000 share outstanding of which Atlantic Coast Lines owns close to 600,000. Fairbanks Morse benefits from increased demand for Diesel engines. Market inactivity accounts for lack of speculative Interest in Sweets Company shares. Phillips Petroleum continues in favor with portfolio buyers. Vanadium's speculative following has switched to Barber (formerly General Asphalt). Phelps Dodge growing in importance as a fabricator—has unusually large research department. Curtiss-Wright common being switched into the class A shares which are convertible into common. Based on capitalization and outlook Consolidated Coal is in a better position than Pittsburgh Coal. Long pull rail interests like Southern Pacific.

Dividend prospects are not a near term possibility on Erie's $4 1st preferred—which lets common out. Evans Products' ventilating system used in cabs on White Trucks. American Sugar Refining's raw position accumulated at low levels. Texas Corporation will not merge with Barnsdall as tipsters insist—this is official. Loe's priced at only ten times estimated earnings. Keystone Steel's bad market action attributed to bad earnings—dividend cut last week. International Mining bought as an inflation hedge—holding company. Chrysler Corporation produced over 1,000,000 cars last year—that's one car for about every four shares of stock outstanding.

MUNICIPAL DISCOVERY

CLEVELAND, O.—After a year in office, Mayor Harold H. Burton discovered his city hall is equipped with a $50,000 inter-office telephone system. Jack Jones, custodian, told the mayor he knew about it all along, but that the batteries always were running down, following the installation in 1916, and that no one had bothered trying to use the phones in years.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—A decrease of 858,000 barrels in stocks of domestic and foreign crude petroleum at the close of the week ended January 2 was reported today by the Bureau of Mines. The stocks totaled 287,859,000. Decreases of 796,000 and 62,000 barrels in stocks of domestic and foreign crude, respectively, were recorded.

ALLRED TO BE INAUGURATED NEXT TUESDAY

TAXES ON CRUDE OIL AND SULPHUR URGED

AUSTIN, Jan. 15 (AP)—Texas lawmakers began preparation today to inaugurate the governor and lieutenant governor Tuesday, prepared new bills and contemplated proposals submitted the first three days of the session.

The legislature adjourned yesterday for the weekend. A joint house and senate committee worked on the inaugural program at which Supreme Court Justice John H. Sharp will administer the oaths to Gov. James V. Allred and Lieut. Gov. Walter Woodul for their second terms.

The governor will make a short address at the ceremony in front of the statehouse at high noon. Mrs. R. Allred, his mother, will attend the inaugural ball and reception that night. The ball will be staged simultaneously at Gregory gymnasium of the University of Texas, the capitol and two hotels.

Legislators meanwhile concerned themselves with the governor's statement of $13,000,000 in new revenue annually was needed to put the state on its feet financially. Measures submitted included one by Rep. Jasper Reed of Texarkana for a 10 cents per barrel tax on oil, a similar proposal by Rep. Clarence Farmer of Fort Worth, a bill by Rep. Herman Jones of Decatur to levy a 5 per cent net income franchise tax and Rep. Harry Graves' proposal to increase the levy on sulphur from $1.03 to $2 per ton.

In the house Speaker Bob Calvert noted 146 bills and 13 proposed constitutional amendments already introduced, readied himself for innumerable more and worked on committee appointments, which he said he would not complete until after the inauguration.

The senate's lawmaking machinery was primed for action with 62 bills and four constitutional amendments introduced, all committees appointed and only new rules of procedure awaiting adoption. The senate will be committed to the body for the present operating under old rules.

Fireworks were expected next week when Representative Graves, veteran investigator from Georgetown, presses his demand for an inquiry into disbursements of the Texas Gulf Sulphur company for public relations.

JUDICIAL COUNCIL NAMED.

AUSTIN, Jan. 15 (AP)—Gov. Allred announced today the appointment of one new member and re-appointment of three to the civil judicial council. Paul Bolton of Austin was named to succeed Roscoe B. Fleming, formerly of Fort Worth, who has resigned and moved out of the state. Judge R. W. Hall, chief justice of the court of civil appeals at Amarillo; Judge James W. McClelland, chief justice of the court of civil appeals at Austin, and District Judge W. R. Chapman of Abilene were reappointed.

DELIVERIES TO CLOSE

DETROIT, Jan. 15 (AP)—Continuance of the present strike situation in the automotive industry will mean a complete suspension of General Motors deliveries to dealers in about three weeks, it was indicated in authoritative sources today. Heavy demand greeted the introduction of all new models throughout the industry last November.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

THE MOON SOMETIMES IS FAR NORTH, AND SOMETIMES FAR SOUTH, IN THE SKY, BECAUSE IT DOES NOT REVOLVE IN THE PLANE OF THE EARTH'S EQUATOR!

THE moon travels around the earth in a plane that is inclined to the plane of our equator at an angle that varies from 18 to 29 degrees. Therefore, in any month, the moon may be seen at least 18 degrees south of our celestial equator, and, two weeks later, 18 degrees north of the celestial equator.

AIRCRAFT MANUFACTURERS HAVE BIG ACCUMULATION OF ORDERS

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (AP)—Aircraft equipment to modernize and build up the United States air forces. With European aircraft factories crowded for deliveries on military orders, domestic manufacturers also looked forward to an expanding export among foreign commercial transport lines.

Moreover, many air men expect additional appropriations in this session of Congress for the army and navy to provide more orders. Leading companies have spent or set aside millions of dollars for new factory and transportation equipment, growth of air transport in the United States has combined with the military program to revive activity in aircraft plants after slack depression years.

Expansion in domestic passenger air traffic from about 5,000 to more than 1,000,000 yearly in the last decade has been accompanied by a tense fight for business among the big airlines, resulting in heavy orders last year for larger and swifter transport planes, some costing as much as $10,000,000 each. Many of these remained to be delivered this year or later.

Unfilled orders of three companies, according to latest available figures, approximated $58,000,000. They are the Douglas Aircraft Co., Santa Monica, Calif.; Consolidated Aircraft Corp., San Diego, Calif., and Curtiss-Wright Corp., with plants at Buffalo, St. Louis and Patterson, N. J.

Delegates Oppose Ratification of Argentine Pact

EL PASO, Jan. 15 (AP)—American National Livestock association delegates, on record to a man against ratification of the Argentine sanitary convention, prepared today to wind up their fortieth annual meeting.

Election of officers and selection of the 1938 convention city were the principal items of business. Asked for a rising vote to indicate a violent protest against the ratification, the 600 delegates stood.

F. E. Mollin of Denver, secretary of the association, cited outbreaks of the foot and mouth disease in Great Britain as "the latest and best argument against the ratification." "This is the last silent vote this association is going to take on this proposition," said Albert K. Mitchell, president. "We will be heard from in many quarters."

Jay Taylor of Amarillo, Tex., vice-president of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers association, said he learned on a recent trip to Washington that the convention probably would be ratified. The cattlemen did not limit their criticism to that proposal, however. James Smith of Stafford, Ariz., member of a county board administering the conservation act, aimed an attack at the federal range conservation policies.

"If we don't watch out," he said, "we'll be conserved off our ranges." Mrs. Jake Terrell and son have returned to their home in Wichita Falls after visiting with relatives in Pampa, McLean and Kellerville.

SOLONS SEEK 13 MILLIONS VIA TAX LEVY

ONE LEGISLATOR FAVORS HIGHER TAX ON OIL

AUSTIN, Jan. 15 (AP)—Legislators discussed informally today how best to raise the additional $13,000,000 annually which Gov. Allred told them would be needed to support the government, finance old age pensions and other social security programs and reduce the $15,000,000 deficit.

The governor's message was the highlight of the opening week of the lawmakers' biennial, four-month session. Several tax proposals were among the approximately 75 bills and suggested constitutional amendments ready for introduction in the House. Rep. Herman Jones of Decatur proposed to increase the corporation franchise tax to five per cent of net income and Rep. Jasper N. Reed of Texarkana presented a bill to boost the oil production levy from its present 2 3-4 cents a barrel to 10 cents.

Allred recommended higher taxes on oil and other natural resources and a franchise tax increase. A tighter drivers' license law, requiring motorists to pass examinations, was proposed by Rep. Fred Harris of Dallas. The governor told the legislators yesterday that "no single accomplishment could be greater than intelligent, effective legislation to diminish the astounding, appalling and for the most part avoidable daily traffic tragedies resulting from our indifference."

The Senate was ready to begin committee and floor consideration of bills. The House, however, still had no regular committees. Speaker Robert W. Calvert of Hillsboro said he could not complete their personnel until next week.

TAKES POISON AFTER SONS 'DISGRACE HIM'

CHICAGO, Jan. 15 (AP)—Police Sergeant Joseph Murrin said that Bronislav Rumsnik, 43, believing himself disgraced by the arrest of two schoolboy sons in a "prank" extortion case, swallowed poison at his home today.

Physicians said Rumsnik would recover. The boys, Stephen, 14, and Marion, 12, were held in the juvenile home. They confessed yesterday police said, that they left a $30,000 extortion note, patterned after communications in the Mattson kidnapping case, at the home of a neighbor, Dr. Meyer S. Pedott.

The note threatened Dr. Pedott's daughter, Shirley, 10, and was signed: "From Ann to Mable." "Ann" and "Mable" were names used in communications between the kidnaper of Little Charles Mattson, Jr., and the Mattson family in Tacoma, Wash.

Marion's captors said he admitted writing the note and related that his brother placed it in Dr. Pedott's mailbox. "I did it to get even with Shirley," Marion told the police. "Her mother is always telling us she'll call the police. When I beat Shirley at marbles she told her ma and I had to give them all back to her."

King without a country by Robert Bruce

BEGIN HERE TODAY
PAUL I, King of Northumbria, becomes private citizen PAUL FERRONE when he abdicates for the love of ARDATH RICHMOND, Canadian-born actress, and his younger brother, JOSEPH, succeeds to the kingship.

With calm finality, Paul signs the formal abdication papers at his royal lodge, says, "Well, gentlemen, it is all over." Then, after briefly wishing his brother well, he speeds to the royal airport, boards a plane and soars off into the night, leaving his empire behind him forever.

Paul and Ardath marry, choose a charming villa on Bay St. Francis. Paul revels in his new freedom. He's deliciously happy with his bride. And then one day he walks into the nearby village of San Lorenzo. He overhears curious tourists asking a shopkeeper where that "and his girl friend had hid out."

Angry, terrified lest he be recognized, Paul turns back to the villa, thinking only of the protection behind its walls.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
The characters and situations in this story are wholly fictional and imaginary and are not intended to portray any actual persons or events.

One of the tourists seemed to Paul to be the perfect example of the cartoonist's caricature of the touring American. He was big and stout, he wore plus fours and a tweed cap and horn-rimmed spectacles, and his voice was nasal and penetrating. As Paul entered the man was talking with a white-skirted and red-capped girl.

"Sure it is," he was saying. "I read it this morning in the paper on the train. This is the town, San Lorenzo, where that runaway king and his girl friend had hid out."

Paul turned quickly and looked away, in a sudden terror lest his face be recognized.

"Oh," said the girl, "let's find out where they're staying and drive by there. Maybe we could even get a look at them. Do you suppose we could?"

"Okay, if you want to," said the man. "It'd be just as much worth looking at as those cathedrals you've been dragging me through."

The man bit off the end of a cigar and jabbed it in his mouth.

"That spic we hired the car from will probably know where they're staying," he went on. "I wouldn't mind having a look at that dame, myself. She must have something to make the poor sap do what he did."

Blindly, Paul groped his way to the street. Without another thought for the things he had come to buy he hurried back up the road. He could think of nothing except his overwhelming need to get behind the sheltering walls of the villa again.

Chapter III

"But dearest," Ardath was saying, pouting prettily, "these are all people we know. There won't be any strangers there."

"I know," said Paul. "It's just that—that oh, I guess the truth is I hate to run the gamut of the tourists at San Lorenzo. I hate to see them all swarming their cameras at me, to hear them jabbering, 'Look—there he is!' in five languages."

He grinned ruefully. "I suppose it'll be all right, though, especially since it'll be fairly dark."

"And anyway," said Ardath, "they won't be at the Casino. That, thank heaven, is too expensive for the ordinary run of tourist. Besides, the countess is expecting us. It would look a bit boorish, if we turned her down at the last minute."

"I suppose so." Reluctantly, Paul turned to go to his dressing room and change to evening attire.

"Though I must say," he said, "the Countess di Marco is not precisely a lady for whose good opinion I would lie awake nights and worry."

"Why, Paul! She's nice—" began Ardath, but Paul had gone. He undressed and bathed moodily, and told himself that he must not quarrel with Ardath—he must not, for he was all she had and she was all he had. And as he told himself that, he stopped in the act of troweling himself, and said, "Why, that's absurd! We have everything—freedom, our whole lives to do with as we wish."

And then he thought of the petty things that had come in to limit that freedom in the six weeks that they had been at the villa; the gaping, unendurably nosy tourists who lurked outside the gates with cameras to take pictures of Ardath and himself; the buzz of comment that followed them when they walked through the town or appeared in any of the shops; the reporters who had dogged their every footstep on that trip to Milan a fortnight ago; the remarks that he overheard now and then in the town; the feeling it all gave him of living in public, so to speak, of being followed everywhere by the accumulated busybodyness of the whole world.

He crossed to a cabinet in the wall, took down a bottle and poured a drink, to lift himself out of this depression. He had, he reflected, been using this remedy rather frequently of late. Oh, well, the tourist season would be over by and by. Or maybe, as time went on, people would simply get used to the idea of an ex-king being around and would stop making such a fuss. He finished his dressing and went to rejoin Ardath.

They drove down the road, sped through the town and went to the gimerack gilt-and-stucco Casino. Twilight had not yet deepened to night, and the Casino's festoons of lights looked harsh and garish against the soft dusk. Long rows of expensive cars were parked by the entrance. Paul added his car to the rest and led Ardath inside.

The Countess di Marco met them in the vestibule. She was small and pert, with black hair and alert eyes. A decade ago she had been spoken of as "petite"; now, as the years inexorably added successive increments of flesh, she was more than a little plump. In another decade she would be openly and unashamedly fat.

"Darlings!" she said extending a hand to each. "I'm so glad you're here. Reggie Van Twyne has come, and he has the most scandalous collection of songs for us. Do come right in!"

They entered a large room. At one end, there was a bar; at the other, a raised dais where a small but energetic colored orchestra was doing things to a torch song. A few couples were dancing; others sat at little tables, sipping drinks; still others came and went through the double doors that gave on the game rooms; but most of the guests—of whom there were at least fifty—were simply standing about in groups, chatting.

A slim young man with an old face disengaged himself from a group and came over to them. The Countess di Marco slipped an arm about his waist and said, "Reggie Van Twyne—Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ferrone." She said it rather pridefully; not yet had the thrill gone out of introducing the former king of Northumbria as plain "mister."

Reggie Van Twyne bowed. He was an American, of the type known to the Sunday supplements as "rich young playboy." Paul knew him by repute; a gay youngster, not particularly depraved or vicious, but cursed from childhood by the fact that he had always had unlimited freedom and unlimited money. He was now in his third marriage, to an ex-queen of the Follies; she was standing by the bar, glass in hand, talking with a swarthy nobleman from some forgotten duchy in southeastern Europe.

ous. When the countess announced that Mademoiselle de Lys of the Deauville Casino would now favor them with her sensational fan dance, Paul excused himself and wandered to the balcony that overlooked the water. He stood there, leaning idly against a pillar and smoking in silence, when a bulky shape appeared in the doorway.

"Oh—it's you, Ferrone?" said a gruff voice. The shape came nearer and resolved itself into the person of Baron Lanzia, one of the wealthiest industrialists in all Northumbria. He swaggered over to the railing, looking—as he always did—as powerful and ruthless as a grizzly. Lighting a cigar, he stood surveying Paul with an expression on his face which Paul could not quite make out.

"You know," said the baron suddenly, "good job, your quitting when you did. Good job for me, I mean. Those tours of yours. They didn't do me any good."

"Tours?" said Paul. He had never liked Baron Lanzia; nor did he like the half-contemptuous way in which the man said "Ferrone."

"Uh," said the baron. "Down into the coal fields and around Lazare. Depressed areas—you know. Stirred up too much talk. Made my stockholders ask a lot of silly questions. No good."

He puffed a cloud of smoke derisively.

"Glad you got out," he said. "Maybe the stockholders'll go back to sleep now." He turned and glanced in through the open door. "Say, that fan dancer's thrown away her fan. Better come on in."

He stepped inside. Paul remembered his last tour to the Lazare coal fields, along the north coast of Northumbria. He had gone into that hopelessly depressed region some six months ago, and had seen there poverty and degradation such as he had never before dreamed of. Hardly of all to endure had been the look of hope and trust with which the jobless miners and their families had greeted him. Their king, they had been sure, could do something for them—what, they did not know, but surely something.

There had been so little that he could do. He could, and did, give money to a relief fund; he could, and did, focus national attention on the problem by the mere fact that he went there; beyond that, he had been powerless. It was that visit which had clinched his feeling that the kingship was a sham and a pretense—what good was a king who could do nothing to help the most desperately needy of his subjects?

It was that which had helped him, perhaps. What Reggie did was to repeat verses in a manner half way between singing and ordinary reciting, playing an apparently improvised accompaniment and underlining the significant parts of his ditties with no end of eyebrow-arching and head-wagging. The verses themselves were mildly risqué—the sort of thing Paul had heard in a dozen night clubs in his native capital. Reggie's insistent smirking gave them an offensiveness they did not intrinsically possess.

Reggie got down, at last, to be surrounded by gushing folk who cried, "Reggie, how simply marvel-flushed, was arguing with the eastern potentate and an Argentine polo player.

"Can, too," she said shrilly. "Can dance just as good as de Lys ever did. Don't need fan. Look!"

She made her way suddenly to the end of the room by the orchestra and said something to the director. There was a rattle of drums, which stopped the conversation and drew all eyes to her.

"Fan dance! By me!" she cried. Stopping, she peeled her gown off over her head and tossed it blithely away. It fell on the neck of the drummer, who leered delightedly. Before she could go any farther Reggie was at her side. Grinning shamefacedly, he managed to pick her up in his arms and carry her away, while someone retrieved the discarded frock and bore it after them. The orchestra struck up a new tune and the wave of conversation broke out again.

Paul felt a sudden, acute desire to get out of the Casino and away from the vacuous folk who peeped at him. As he looked about him for Ardath, he heard a man's voice, at his elbow. Someone was asking him, "Well, Paul, was it such a bargain—giving up your throne for ... THIS?"
