By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD
Record News Staff.

PAT MORRIS NEFF has retired to private life. Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson is governor of Texas. James E. Ferguson is at her elbow. There is a woman governor, a woman secretary of state and a woman messenger will carry the electorial vote of Texas to Washington. Is this the beginning of a new era or a new civilization? Yes.

It was an enormous inauguration audience. It was a most impressive ceremony. There was not a single jar from the firing of the canon until the curtain rang down on the outgoing and the incoming new. The precedents have been shattered. The first was shattered or rather broken to pieces when recess appointments were thrown into the discard without cause or provocation.

* * *

ANOTHER was shattered when the outgoing governor promptly made new appointments in the dying hour of his reign. Thus it has been established that in future years the recess appointments of an outgoing governor may be cast into the wastebasket by the senate and senators able to point to the precedent established by the upper house of the 39th legislature. Where do we go from here. Mrs. Ferguson, in the heat and bitterness of a by-gone campaign promised the democrats of Texas to be satisfied with one term if they could call her to the high office of governor as a vindication of her husband. She was called.

* * *

NOW it is whispered in the corridors of the State house and the lobbies of the hotels that there was an "if" attached to her declaration. It is very early in the season, but there are five avowed candidates for governor already in the running. What of the "if"? Well, the gossipers say that Mrs. Ferguson will be satisfied with one term if there is a legislative vindication of her husband. The plain English of this is that his impeachment and sentence must be expunged from the official record. This is a sufficient hint to men ambitious to be governor in the coming years and to the law makers who are assembled under the big dome. There is one main issue under the surface wherever declarations made by the faithful are read between the lines.

* * *

ON THE day before the speaker contest closed, an anti-klan leader who was backing T. K. Irwin remarked to the writer, "I am supporting Irwin because he is solid on the main issue and the only one of the three aspirants for speakership honors who is solid on the main issue." Irwin was tossed into the discard. There was a curious combination backing him. Satterwhite won the gavel. Yes, where do we go from here, or rather where will the new administration and the 39th legislature go from here and how far will they go on the main issue.

The writer has witnessed the inaugural ceremonies of governors for 30 years. He has viewed the crowds assembled for 30 years. That which attended the inauguration of the first woman governor was the largest, the most tense and the most exultant in the history of 30 years. It was composed largely of what is known as the old guard—in the Politics of Texas, and every county must have had its representatives in the hall where the people were packed like sardines in the box.

* * *

IT GOES without saying that a vast majority of these visitors know all about the main issue, but discuss it privately among themselves. This is not guess work on the part of the writer. Incidentally and to keep the record straight a president pro-tempore of the senate was elected by a vote of 17 to 14. It is significant that the recess appointments were rejected by a vote of 17 to 10. Where were the four slackers and why did they dodge the firing line.

Now when the main issue is before the senate will the vote be 17 to 10 or 17 to 14. There has been history made since organization day. There is history in the making. There may be tall spots or high lights before the close of the regular session of the 39th legislature for the main issue may to a certain extent be under cover, but unless a study of the political stars is futile or rather misleading the main issue will bob up serenely at an opportune time.

LOVE NEST IS SUIT'S BASIS

Mrs. Real claims she and her husband were married August 17, 1917, and lived together until July 5, 1924, when Mrs. Dies "wickedly and maliciously and with the wicked intent" to cause Real to quit his wife, did "entice, woo, induce, allure, seduce, influence and persuade Real to transfer to the defendant the courtesy, love and affection formerly bestowed upon his wife."

Sues Wichita Falls Electric Company as Result of Alleged Injuries

Stogner, who alleged that injuries sustained by his wife last December through the alleged carelessness of the defendant have caused his family damages to that extent. Actual damages of $5,000 are asked, with the balance exemplary.

In his petition the plaintiff recites that he, his wife and baby were driving on a public road near Holliday early last month when their car was struck by a long telegraph pole, loaded on a truck of the defendant company, and which swung into the Stogner car. Mrs. Stogner and the baby were injured by flying glass, it is alleged, and she was also so unnerved by shock and fright that she has been in serious condition since that time.

JIM FERGUSON IS SILENT ON VINDICATION

Conference Arranged With the Authors of Two Resolutions

ANOTHER ONE UP

Price of Daingerfield Follows Hardin of Kaufman

AUSTIN, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Silence on removal of the impeachment blot from his name is to be the part of James E. Ferguson, husband of the new woman governor of Texas, he announced today, in an interview, which he conducted for his wife.

He said he expected to confer with Senators J. Roy Hardin of Kaufman, and Lloyd E. Price of Daingerfield, who introduced two impeachment removal resolutions in the senate yesterday. Some plan of action is to be determined on, it was understood.

Mr. Ferguson made the announcement as he sat in the governor's chair. He granted an interview to newspaper men while his wife, the governor, was at the Mansion, supervising the moving. The Fergusons ate their first meal of this term in the Mansion today, and expect to sleep there tonight.

Refers to "My Wife."

"It seems every person in Texas, has seven or eight children," said the husband of the governor, as he brushed aside a stack of pardon applications that came into the office today.

Throughout the announcements, he used the expression, "My Wife."

"My Wife," he said, "had received a pleasant call from Mrs. A. W. White of New York, bringing a message from the Federation of Women's club, and also from Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, national suffrage leader. 'My Wife,' said Jim, 'through Mrs. White, extended an invitation to all club women of America, to come to Texas to make stronger the tie that binds all women in the campaign for equal rights, equal justice and equal liberties for American womanhood.'"

Mr. Ferguson said he hoped the legislature would finish in 60 days, but reminded the newspaper men, that it was too early in the session to make a guess along this line. He said, his wife's first message to the legislature had apparently been received with thoughtful attention by the members, and that they would take several days, to study it, before making any open announcement.

Legality Is Questioned.

Asked whether he would have appointments for the board of regents, and other positions which apparently are vacant by failure of the senate to act on Governor Neff's last minute appointments, Mr. Ferguson said, there was still some question as to the legal effect of the senate's omission to pass on the appointments. He said, however, that a number of Mrs. Ferguson's appointments, would be sent to the senate tomorrow.

Among these will be the following: Mark C. McGee, adjutant general; J. J. Timmins, fire marshal; Dr. H. O. Happington, health officer; Edward Edwards, tax commissioner; Frank Denison, mine inspector; W. R. Dulaney, prison commissioner; Mrs. S. W. Meharg, secretary of sate, and Charles O. Austin, bank commissioner.

Lynch Davidson, appointed by Governor Neff to the board of the West Texas Technological college, declined today in a letter to Mrs. Ferguson, in which he said, he did not wish to embarrass either her administration or the senate, by accepting the appointment.

SHOTS IN AIR HALT SUSPECT

One man is in jail and, so far as is known, two others are still running, as a result of a chase through a down town alley early Thursday night. Two shots fired in the air by Plainclothesman Carmichal of the city police force, were responsible for the capture of the one, but they brought different reactions from the other two and last seen of them they were speeding south out of the Scott-Indiana avenue between Eighth and Ninth.

A man came to the city hall early in the evening and stated that he had found the person who recently stole a suit of clothes from him. The man was standing in front of the Staley building, he said, with two friends with him. Carmichal immediately went to the scene with the accuser, but no sooner did he get in sight than the three turned and ran west on Eighth. They turned south in the alley behind the building and by the time the officer reached the entry way all three had put a full block behind them. He fired and one man stopped. The others kept traveling.

The man captured was not the one wearing the missing suit but officers believe they will locate the two missing ones in a short time.

SCION OF OLD FAMILY FIGHTS FOR HIS LIFE

He Killed Prominent Dallas Church Worker and Lawyer

WIDOW ON STAND

Graphic Story of American Exchange Lobby Death Told

DALLAS, Jan. 22—(AP)—Following the selection of the twelfth juror to hear the murder trial of William Lester Crawford, 28, a series of dramatic incidents unfolded in Judge Charles A. Pippen's criminal court today which tended to appease the curosity of the audience that had packed the dingy count room, for four days. Testimony for the state was introduced.

Crawford, son of the late Colonel Wm. L. Crawford, barrister known throughout the southwest, came face to face in the court room with Mrs. Jessie O'Day, pretty widow of Paul M. O'Day, lawyer, who died here September 11, of wounds received from a gun, in the hands of Crawford.

Arraignment Spectacular.

Arraignment of the accused was spectacular, when state's attorneys declared that they will prove that the defendant held a "personal hatred and grudge against the deceased," as a result of his participation in the struggle over the $200,000 estate of Colonel Crawford in behalf of three children, by a former wife. It was climaxed when Crawford unfalteringly declared himself "not guilty."

Garbed in heavy mourning, the young widow walked steadily to the witness stand and related in deep pathos the last moments she spent with her husband, before he died in the American Exchange National Bank building, about 8:15 o'clock in the morning.

Asked when she saw her husband again, she replied, "in his coffin." Her voice, was interspersed with sobs and tears welled to her eyes, but were quickly repressed through effort.

Walter C. Sharp, an architect, who made a model of the elevator entrance where the shooting occurred, preceded Mrs. O'Day on the stand.

G. G. Cannon, lawyer, testified he saw O'Day enter the building and Crawford carrying the gun, standing nearby. He heard three shots fired, he said. He identified the pump gun on exhibit.

Shooting Is Retold.

L. S. Generis testified he saw Crawford before the shooting; in an automobile across the street from the bank building and remembered seeing a gun in the machine.

Police Sergeant Spencer told the court of hearing three shots and running into the building, saw Crawford standing there with a pump gun in his hand. He also identified the exhibit. The witness admitted that when Ben Eton asked Crawford what was the trouble he said, "that man insulted my mother."

J. R. Childress, eye-witness, told a graphic story of the shooting. He said he heard shuffling of feet and turning he saw Crawford as he called the name of Paul O'Day three times in succession. Four shots were fired, he stated, one as O'Day turned his head, another as he staggered and two when he was lying prone.

Several clashes occurred between the court and counsel for the defense, the latter declaring a dozen exceptions, when Judge Pippen over-ruled motions. Especially when the state's attorneys stated they expected to prove O'Day's reputation and character to be good and that the deceased revered and honored womanhood.

Exceptions Are Taken.

The judge told the attorneys, "to take your exceptions."

Prosecution attorneys declared their intention to divulge the divorce proceedings of Mrs. Lester LaMar, and her subsequent marriage to Colonel Crawford. They told of the dissatisfaction of Mrs. Lucy Craycroft, and her two brothers, with the colonel's will and their legal battles of four years to break it.

The firm of Locke & Locke, with which O'Day was connected, handled the will suit and it is claimed by the defense, that allusions made by O'Day in a brief incited the defendant to the shooting, in an effort to protect the good name of his mother.

Katy Loses Suit By Oil Companies Over High Rates

Favoritism to Wichita Falls Refineries Alleged in the Action

AUSTIN, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Damages today were awarded the Clayton Oil & Refining company and the Producers Refining company in the sum of $15,187.73 and $25,005.49 respectively by the Texas railroad commission, on a petition of these companies against the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railroad against alleged excessive rates on casing head gasoline. The oil companies contended the rates favored refineries at Wichita Falls and Shreveport, La., against theirs located at Gainesville and Harrys, Texas.

The railroad maintained that the commission had no jurisdiction, but the commission declared that it had the same authority over intrastate tariffs as the interstate commerce commission has over interstate rates.

The railroad commission held that the railroad had charged rates which exceeded the maximum of 25 cents a hundred pounds.

Highbrow Will Radio A Picture Of The Eclipse Saturday Morning As He Photographs It In An Airplane

Prof. David Todd, Noted Amherst Astronomer, Will Use Martin Bomber in First Attempt of its Kind in History of the World

AMHERST, Mass., Jan. 22.—Pictures of the eclipse of the sun broadcast by radio from an airplane immediately after they are taken!

This is what Prof. David Todd, noted astronomer of Amherst university, will endeavor to accomplish on January 24, when the moon will get between the earth and the sun, darkening the skies of the northern part of the United States.

The attempt will be made in a Martin Bomber flying three miles high.

"The radio broadcasting of what the sun looks like in eclipse is the stunt of stunts," Dr. Todd said. "It looks now as if we would be able to carry it out.

"In 1926, when there is an eclipse twice as long as the one next week, but one which can be observed best from at sea, there will be no need to send out a great many observation expeditions," he predicted.

"By that time I believe it will be possible to send out one radio-equipped airplane expedition and the rest of the astronomers can stay at home and tune in on the phenomenon as it is happening, carried to them by radio pictures so that they can see it on a screen in their laboratories."

Weighs 70 Pounds.

Dr. Todd intends to take up in his bomber a sending set of the radio photographic machine developed by C. Francis Jenkins, a Washington inventor.

The transmitting machine, which weighs about 70 pounds, will be up above the clouds. The receiving set will be located in Washington.

Prof. Todd used an airplane to photograph a minor eclipse in 1919.

EINSTEIN THEORY WILL REMAIN IN THE DARK.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 22.—It seems doubtful if observations of the sun's eclipse Saturday will throw any new light on the Einstein theory of relativity, in the opinion of Captain T. J. J. See, professor of mathematics in the United States navy and government astronomer at Mare Island, California.

"Yet radio investigators," he added in a statement today, "will take account of the moon's shadow to investigate the increase in sending power due to this dark shadow and certain magnetic observations will be made while the sun is hidden. These various lines of study will aid us in extending our theory of the ether, on which Michelson has worked for 44 years, and which is really the most important research in contemporary physics. It is believed now that all forces—magnetism, electricity, gravitation, lightning, molecular, forces etc.—come from waves, disturbances in the ether."

FILE OF SNOW WILL BE USED BY BUREAU.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 22.—With the aid of a pile of snow the United States weather bureau here will attempt during the eclipse of the sun Saturday morning to obtain information never before collected relative to the "shadow bands" visible only during a total eclipse.

The snow will be spread on the roof of the federal building and an official at the bureau with a stop watch, delicate measuring instrument and other apparatus will endeavor to measure the size, shape and speed of the shadows as they flit over the white background.

NIAGARA FALLS WILL LEND IT'S BEAUTY TO SCIENCE.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 22.—Niagara Falls with its magnificent cataract banked with great pillars of crystal ice, never darkened by a total eclipse in the memory of the white man, will be of especial interest in the total eclipse of the sun Saturday.

It is expected that the eclipse will afford an unprecedented opportunity for study of the effects of carrying light and shade over the cataract.

Early in the winter heavy storms and low temperatures covered the islands and shore lines with a soft white blanket formed a massive ice bridge, piled ice floes into grinding mountains and festooned all the trees near the catarract's brink with tiny sparkling ice gems, evolved from frozen mists.

What will be the effect of the gradual changing of the character and intensity of illumination in the eclipse and the pale light of the sun's corona on the dancing prisms of snow and water in the catarract, is a matter for conjecture.

The Cleveland astronomical Society will take observations from the roof of a hotel near the falls.

KIRBY PETROLEUM LOSES.

Bell et al against the Kirby Petroleum company in the sum of $80,000. The case is styled A. H. Bell et al vs. Kirby Petroleum company and is an appeal from the judgment of the eightieth district, Harris county.

FRIDAY—SAFE INVESTMENT DAY

THRIFT WEEK

Sixteen Per Cent for the Shareholders of the "Poor Man's Bank"

WICHITA FALLS FINANCE COMPANY

(Incorporated)

Industrial Banking—Authorized Capital $150,000.00

A safe financial investment for the large or small investor, paying wonderful returns and working a philanthropy at one and the same time.

THERE'S NOTHING SPECULATIVE ABOUT THIS—

just one of the few opportunities to make honest dividends in a clean, high-class, cannot-fail method, which is already proven.

A workingman needs $100. He, with the THREE ENDORSERS he is able to secure, is not only willing but ABLE to pay it back, provided he is given a bit longer than the ordinary banking time to return it. He is glad to pay a fair interest charge of only 10 PER CENT per annum.

We loan him the $100 at 10 per cent interest and give him 12 MONTHS in which to pay. At the same time we loan him the $100 we sell him a certificate of deposit upon the installment plan, to be paid in 10 equal installments, each installment equal to 10 per cent of the amount owed by him. We PAY HIM the usual savings bank interest of 4 per cent upon the money he thus places on deposit. At the end of the 12 months' period his certificate of deposit is paid in full, and with this $100 certificate of deposit he takes up his $100 note and the transaction is closed.

As quickly as each 10 per cent installment is paid in on the certificatee of deposit this money is loaned to some other worthy workingman or woman, and this process is continued over and over, the effect being a continued compounding or pyramiding of our funds, with the result that it is possible for us to have NINE different borrowers using what is in effect the same money before the first borrower has paid for his certificate of deposit. Thus handling our funds, it is possible for us to pay our shareholders as high as 16 per cent on the par value in dividends and eventually from 16 to 34 per cent per annum on the investment. We are NOW PAYING DIVIDENDS of 16 PER CENT on the par value and accumulating a surplus reserve fund at the same time.

In addition to paying its shareholders large dividends, the Wichita Falls Finance Company is performing one of the greatest acts of philanthrophy possible to conceive. It is helping the workingman over his difficulties, furnishing him a modern, clean, honorable way out of his financial troubles and teaching him THRIFT. Because experience teaches us that many borrowers soon become shareholders, they learn how easy it is to lay aside a few dollars each month and keep it up. These customers become our greatest assets, because they go among their friends spreading the word of our work, attracting other borrowers to us. The heavy dividends that come to the shareholders are, therefore, honestly and cleanly come by—a philanthropy that PAYS the philanthropist good, honest dollars in return for his good deed in aiding the man in temporary need.

We offer the large and small investor of Wichita Falls and surrounding territory an opportunity to profit with us. The demand for good, clean, SAFE loans, secured by the signatures and pledges of THREE ENDORSERS, is always in excess of the supply of funds.

Losses from unpaid loans are practically nil, and it is impossible for such an industrial bank as this to lose any LARGE sum, for the reason that it does not loan large sums. It is impossible for it to suffer a "run" for the reason that it does not carry checking accounts. And by the same token, that of no checking accounts, its overhead is always at the minimum. Any banker will tell you that the handling of checking accounts is the most expensive feature of banking.

We want to explain our plan not only to all prospective borrowers, but especially to those who have any sum of money to invest. It is so simple that a child can understand it. There NEVER HAS BEEN A FAILURE RECORDED of an institution operated upon our plan, because it is the most nearly automatic system of banking known to the financial world. It offers, first of everything, demand, SAFETY, then SURENESS OF LARGE PROFITS.

Mr. George B. Wragg has founded and is now connected with the Wichita Falls Finance company.

READ THESE LETTERS FROM MEN OF WICHITA FALLS

Wichita Falls, Tex. Sept. 5, 1924.
TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

I have been connected with the Wichita Falls Finance Corporation of Wichita Falls, Texas, since its organization about nine months ago, and acting in the capacity of director and treasurer.

At the time I went into this organization, about the time it was organized about the first of January, I was just a little reluctant in going in on account of two things. First, I was rather doubtful of the demand for loans on which we could get proper security, as contemplated in the operation of the company; and, also, I was very doubtful that these payments would be made promptly; in fact, I almost felt like we would be carrying a lot of delinquents all the time. I must say that I have been very agreeably surprised in both of my objections. We have been able to do a very nice business, and the demand is strong, and have been able to get A-1 endorsements, and the borrowers have been meeting their payments very promptly; in fact up to Aug. 2nd, our last monthly meeting of the directors, I think there were only one delinquent at the time, and that was only for two or three days.

I am well pleased with the workings of the company, and with the contemplated capital working all the time, there is no reason in the world I can see, that this could not be made a permanent paying proposition. I feel like the institution is doing a lot of good in this community in furnishing credit aid to borrowers on investment plan payable in monthly installments, and in this way they are able to take care of their obligations promptly and at the same time keep up their credit ratings to a very high standard. I think well of it as an investment, and see no reason why the institution should not pay quarterly dividends as it has been doing. They will possibly increase as additional capital is raised and put to work. I AM WELL PLEASED WITH MY INVESTMENT IN THE INSTITUTION.

Yours very truly,
C. E. BASHAM

New York Office 2-16 West 33rd. St. — 812-14 Indiana Ave. Wichita Falls, Tex.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

In my letter of Aug. 16, 1923 referring to the Wichita Falls Finance Co. Inc. I spoke of the fine record similar banks in other localities had established and that they had in every instance, as far as I could find out, proven profitable as an investment.

After more than eight months experience with the local company I know from actual contact that an investment in this company would be profitable.

Two quarterly dividends of 4 per cent each, making 8 per cent for six months has been earned and paid besides passing to surplus in addition and I see no reason why this record cannot be continued because there is a steady demand for loans of this character; the management is efficient and from past experience we find that the loans, with very few exceptions, are paid promptly and so far not a dollar has been lost.

The "System" under which this bank operates is the strongest, best and most complete I have ever known.

The possibilities as well as the probabilities of making money for the shareholders are almost unlimited.

The above is all that one can ask of an investment and I strongly recommend your consideration of this bank when seeking an Ironclad Investment.

Yours very truly,
JACK C. BARNARD.

We are now selling shares at $12.50 each, terms, one-third down, and balance in 10 equal monthly payments without interest. This is a splendid investment opportunity. Shares in Wichita Falls Finance Company have paid 4% quarterly dividends on the par value since the opening of the bank 12 months ago.

TEXAS AS A WHEAT STATE.

Texas is going to be placed on the map as a wheat producing state. There are big flour mills dotting the Texas map from Amarillo to Galveston. There are big wheat farms in the west and northwest. There are big elevators to be found in many cities and towns.

Jules E. Smith of Ft. Worth is an elevator man. He has been in the grain business many years. He visited Austin the other day and increased the capital stock of the Ft. Worth Elevator company to two million dollars. Men say Smith has vision, that he has peered into the future and that he sees in the distance twenty-five bushels of wheat grown where one bushel is grown today and each succeeding year the yield of wheat greater until Kansas will fall behind Texas in the annual output of the soil planted to wheat.

This Ft. Worth grain elevator man is a native Texan, born in Smith county and a native who battled his way to the top of his business, or rather the field of endeavor in which he invaded years ago. He began his business career as a newspaper carrier or distributor for one of the daily newspapers of the commonwealth and then he evoluted into the position of local correspondent for the same newspaper.

Now he is a millionaire. He never climbed to the top by keeping his eye eternally on the clock. Cotton was the principal crop of Texas when Jules E. Smith began to hustle for pennies. Cotton is the principal crop today, but Texas farmers are feeding themselves and in what was once known as the open spaces there are thousands of newcomers from the wheat growing states of the west and the northwest.

They know wheat and they are going to produce it, according to this millionaire elevator man of packing town.

THEY DEMAND LAW ENFORCEMENT.

Five hundred representative business men of America assembled in the city of New York not long ago. Elbert H. Gary of the house of Steel presided. These five hundred representative citizens demanded drastic enforcement of all laws, including the prohibition laws of nation and state.

President Coolidge is said to be in hearty sympathy with the representative citizens. He is of Puritan origin. A spirit of law enforcement is a part of his inheritance or nature. He insists that laws are made to be obeyed. He contends that the violation of one law leads to another contempt for all laws. In this he is eminently correct.

There may be millions of Americans who scoff at the prohibition laws, but in time they are going to be enforced in every American commonwealth. Woman has the ballot. She is going to cast it solidly against the return of the saloon.

Rural America, call it Main street if you like, is in the saddle insofar as prohibition and prohibition law enforcement is concerned.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE.

Aquarius.

During the early morning the conditions are fairly good, but thereafter and until noon, Mars reigns and makes the period adverse. It would be well to stick to your customary round of work and duty, without attempting anything of a forceful or an energetic nature. Between noon and sundown the aspects are favorable, and if you have anything of importance to accomplish today, this is the period in which it should be attempted, as it is the only time that indicates success or achievement. The evening's conditions are distinctly adverse and denote, unless great self-restraint is exercised, an inharmonious trend and consequent discord.

A child born today will be exceptionally robust and healthy. The chief risk to it will consist in unforeseen accidents to which this child, without constant vigilance, will be subject, as a result of the chances that, realizing its own strength, it will be willing to take. Temperamently its nature will be tempestuous and turbulent, and it will be liable to sudden fits of anger, although it will quickly gain control of its emotions. It will be energetic and persistent, and always busy. Its nerves will not permit idleness. Its love will be impulsive and demonstrative, and it will demand steadfast love in return. It should marry young.

If today is your birthday you are inclined to be obstinate, and, at times very difficult. It is hard to drive you to do anything, but you are easily ruled by those who know your weaknesses. You are generally well liked and have the respect of all who know you. Your married life should be very happy.

Your obstinacy, which some of your friends call "pig-headedness" is largely responsible for the fact that you have not achieved more material success in life. In spite of the fact that you are often convinced of the untenability of your own viewpoint, you are rarely willing to concede this to others, and maintain outwardly an opinion that is contrary to your belief, simply because you are not willing to admit that your ideas are subject to change. This, as you must admit, has often militated against you, and results would have been different if you had been able to fall in gracefully with others' opinions, more especially as they agreed with your true, but not expressed, thoughts.

More Truth Than Poetry

KEEPING UP.

I was wholly devoted to Fido,
A pug with a flattened-in face,
And ugly as mud, but of ancestral blood
That went back to the dawn of his race.
He took all his meals from my fingers,
And followed me always about.
And it pained me a lot when he had to be shot
The next season, when pugs had gone out.

I soon learned to love little Ping Pong,
A low built but warm-hearted Pom;
He came of a breed that was noble indeed
And his manners were haughty and calm.
By his tiny but dignified presence,
Our hearthside was mightily cheered,
And no comfort I found when he went to the pound
In the year that the Poms disappeared.

In time a new German police dog
(Called Belgian, you know, for a while)
Got a grip on my heart; he was lively and smart
And carried himself with rare style.
But under the snow-laden lilac,
Poor Heinie is now laid away;
Life had to be short for a dog of his sort,
For they're not in the fashion today.

I shall buy me a Cairn very shortly;
They seem to be quite up to date.
I shall love him a while till he goes out of style
And meets with the usual fate.
And then I shall visit the dog shows,
And purchase a new model pup,
Who will last just as long as the game of Mah Jongg
But a fellow has got to keep up.

House for Ex-kings.

News has recently come that the estate of Wood Norton, in England, has been purchased to be used as a home for ex-kings.

To many this will come as a great relief as its walls are fragrant with all the romance of exile splendor.

Society is gradually getting rid of kings, but there is a certain sentiment in treating well those who remind us of the past.

At Wood Norton there came to shelter the Duke of Orleans, head of the House of Bourbon king of France, if his claims had been recognized.

The estate has priceless exterior and interior fittings including the beautiful wrought iron gates which once adorned the Royal Palace at Versailles, and which, torn from their surroundings, might have given magnificance to the home of some war profiteer.

In this age when democracy has risen like a giant over the world it is well to preserve, if only as a relic, some tangible evidence of those wonderful days that are past.

Here at Wood Norton, the Princess Louise of Orleans was married to Prince Charles of Bourbon. Every reigning house in Europe was represented except Germany.

The Duke of Orleans was a figure, tall, with carefully brushed beard, not easily forgotten. He was strangely handsome and usually wore a light grey frock coat and a hat of the latest model.

The name of the purchaser of Wood Norton has not been revealed, but there is reason to believe that the old Bourbon home has fallen into the hands of an admirer of France.

If Chequers has been given to the nation as a home for premiers, Wood Norton may well be preserved as a home for royal exiles.

England has sheltered anarchists, like the Prince Kropotkin. Why not monarchs whose only fault may be that they do not fit in to the social evolution of the age?

Will You Love Him When He's Gray?

Haven't you noticed that worried expression on the face of one of your engaged girl friends? Haven't you wondered what on earth she had to worry about, with an attractive fiance, with a good income?

Well, a hundred to one, if she's a conscientious young person she's asking that age-old question "Will we love each other when we're both old and gray and unattractive?" That's one of the favorite questions an old-fashioned mother asks her daughter: "Yes, I know you love him now, but will you love him when he's bald and maybe a bit fat, and just a little bit inclined to tell the same story four times running?"

And the poor daughter conjures up that dismal picture, and begins to wonder whether she really will or not. All of which is rather foolish.

For you see, married people, if they really marry for love, get used to each other's faults and caprices and whims—getting used to seeing each other sometimes unattractive—in short just get used to each other—and still remain in love! It's actually been done.

And so as they grow old together, the fact that Tom's hair is growing a bit thin doesn't impress Ethel one way or another. You see he's just Tom to her, with or without hair. Perhaps she'll reflect that it's a pity Tom should be getting to stout, when he used to have such a slim athletic figure, but it would never occur to her to stop loving him because of his increased weight.

Of course when an about-to-be-bride tries to imagine what her husband will look like after fifty years of married life, she imagines something pretty terrible. The thought of baldness and paunchiness and crowsfeet is distasteful anyway to a young thing of her age.

But when she's beginning to get a little on the stout side herself, when her schoolgirl complexion is fading a bit, she won't mind the fact that her husband is keeping step with her in the march toward old age. Growing old as gracefully as possible with someone you love isn't half the awful nightmare well meaning prophets are always intimating it is.

Think of the humiliation of having your husband stay young looking and brisk while you faded away to a ton, and desperately tried every sort of mud pack and skin lotion for your multiplying wrinkles. Think of the harrowing anxiety of trying to keep young with your husband. You'd probably age much faster in the struggle.

No, girls-about-to-be-married, if some kind soul says to you with a deep searching look: "Will you love Bill when he's fat and old?" You just reply sweetly: "I can't tell till I've seen him that way. And as I'm not likely to see him that way until I'm pretty ancient myself, I can't get very excited about it now, when we're both young and beautiful." (You may be pardoned for this brief exaggeration.)

Don't let the future worry you, with its wrinkles and crowsfeet. Keep wielding the old cold cream rag and make sure of the present.

Cross-Word Puzzle

How To Solve The Cross Word Puzzle

Every number in the form represents the beginning of a word reading either horizontally or vertically. If there is a black square to the left of the number, the word is horizontal; if above it, the word is vertical. The same number may of course begin both a horizontal and a vertical. The definitions for the correct words to fill the form are found below, with numbers corresponding to those on the form. Run through the definitions until you find one that you recognize, and put it in its proper place on the form, one letter for each white square. This will furnish several cross-clues to the words linking with it at right angles. Continue in this manner till the form is completely filled. If you have solved the puzzle correctly it should read both horizontally and vertically with words corresponding to the definitions.

ANSWER TO YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE.

GLEANINGS

FROM THE BOOK OF LIFE

"Nothing But the Truth."

What is Truth? The question is often asked, as though it were harder to say what truth is than anything else is. What is anything? An eternal contradiction in terms meets us at the end of every inquiry. We are not required to know what the truth is, but to speak the truth.

Samuel Butler said that we can neither define what we mean by truth nor be in doubt as to our meaning. He supposed this must be due to the antiquity of the instinct that on the whole directs us towards truth.

It seemed to Butler that the search after truth is like the search after perpetual motion or the attempt to square the circle.

All we should aim at, he thought, is the most convenient way of looking at a thing—the way that most sensible people are likely to find gives them the least trouble for some time to come.

"It is not true that the sun used to go round the earth until Copernicus' time, but it is true that until Copernicus' time it was most convenient to us to hold this."

Butler points out that obvious convenience often takes a long time before it is fully recognized and acted upon, but there will be a rise toward it as long and as widely spread as the desire of men to be saved trouble.

"If truth is not trouble-saving in the long run, it is not truth; truth is only that which is most largely and permanently trouble-saving.

"Our concern," he explains, "is with the views we shall choose to take and to let other people take concerning things, and as to the way of expressing those views which shall give least trouble.

"If we express ourselves in one way we find our ideas in confusion and our action impotent; if in another our ideas cohere harmoniously, and our action is edifying. The convenience of least disturbing vested ideas, and at the same time rearranging our views in accordance with new facts that came to our knowledge, this is our proper care.

"But it is idle to say we do not know anything about things—perhaps we do, perhaps we don't—but we at any rate know what sane people think and are likely to think about things, and this to all intents and purposes is knowing the things themselves. For the things only are what sensible people agree to say and think they are."

A professional wise-man, answering the question of a curious king several centuries ago, said it was impossible for men to fly through the air. His answer was truth then, for men didn't know how to fly. Now we put it down as ignorance. And that is the way future generations will account for our own statements that certain things are impossible.

The pursuit of truth is chimerical. That is why it is so hard to say what truth is. There is no permanent absolute unchangeable truth; that is why Butler says what we should pursue is the most convenient arrangement of our ideas.

MATTERS OF HEALTH

Another reason for immunizing against scarlet fever is that the disease often leaves, as a sequel, kidneys that are seriously and permanently damaged.

The destruction of rats and the abolition of rat harbors prevents bubonic plague, the scourge that once decimated the population of London.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE.

Mental Dessert.

"I am a great friend to public amusements," said Dr. Johnson, "for they keep people from vice."

There were not many amusements in Dr. Johnson's time.

Those which are now popular and most widespread—the movies and the radio—were not to be heard of for many years after the dour old gentleman had long been in his grave.

But such amusements as were to be found in his time—open air games, the theatre and the constant pageantry that accompanied the goings out and comings in of royalty—were of endless benefit to the people.

Today, amusements not only keep people from vice, but they also give them something to think about.

The radio is instructive as well as amusing, and so in a lesser degree perhaps are the motion pictures.

The idle minds which are such rich soil for the seeds of mischief can always be occupied with something interesting if they choose.

Whatever may be said against certain sorts of dull and banal moving pictures, the screen as a whole is helpful and educational.

The schools have not yet discovered its importance to the great science of instruction.

But many children today have a clear idea of geography, which they never could have gathered from books, simply because they have looked at the pictures of actual moving life in all parts of the world, in the news reels that are shown with almost every moving picture program.

And the same children, in their own house, or in those of other children have heard the voices and listened to the words of distinguished men and women, of whom they never would have heard if science had not found a way to send thought through the air. Amusements of all sorts are merely mental dessert, and can never take the place of real work and study.

But there is no reason why the dessert served at the end of the dinner should not be wholesome as well as more appetizing than the beef and potatoes of the regular fare.

And there is still less reason why the mental dessert that is served in the form of amusements should not prove nourishing food to the brain, as it is coming to do more and more.

Ideas, which are the foundation of all progress, come to us at all times and in all manners of ways.

But they never come to the idle mind, not to the mind which is bent on self-indulgence.

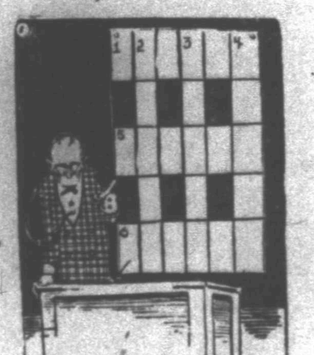

It is an excellent thing for this generation that mental desserts are the right kind of desserts, that they stimulate thought as well as serving to amuse.

If Dr. Johnson could have known what forms amousement was to take after he had passed on, he would have been ever a better friend to amusement than he was.

Irrigation

AN ANALYSIS OF SOME BAD WATER

A request has been made to publish the worst analysis we could find. What is meant by the worst analysis of the water of the Wichita river. In this case is the one showing the greatest amount of dissolved mineral matter.

We have one made by the Fort Worth laboratories from a sample of water taken from the river at the Diversion dam by Thackwell on May 19, 1922. It is noted in this analysis that the river was at a low stage. Mr. Thackwell was an engineer employed by the irrigation district at that time.

This is what the chemist found:

Calcium carbonate (limestone) 88 parts per million.

Calcium Sulphate (gypsum) 1029.4 parts per million.

Magnesium sulphate 119.5 parts per million.

Magnesium Chloride 119.8 parts per million.

Sodium Chloride (table salt) 1402.6 parts per million.

This is surely a bad water from any standpoint. As a boiler water it would drive a fireman crazy even if it did not blow up the boiler. As a laundry water it would be impossible to get clothes clean it is so hard. For drinking purposes it would taste brickish and be very unpalatable.

From the standpoint of irrigation it is very bad. The sodium exceeds the calcium and it would ruin any land it was put on.

But please note that this water is not irrigation water or any other water which will ever be used here. It is the low flow of the Wichita river. The water stored for irrigation is the high water flow which is a good water.

POEMS THAT LIVE

THE CLOUD.

I bring fresh showers for the thirsting flowers,
From the seas and the streams;
I bear bright shade for the leaves when laid
In their noonday dreams.
From my wings are shaken the dews that waken
The sweet buds every one,
When rocked to rest on their mother's breast,
As she dances about the sun.
I wield the flail of the lashing hail,
And whiten the green plains under;
And then again I dissolve it in rain,
And laugh as I pass in thunder.

Interest In Lunches of City's School Children Praised by Food Expert

"I am delighted with the plans that have been made for the opening of the Record News cooking school," said Mrs. Ida Chitwood, instructor of foods and cookery, who arrived in the city Thursday afternoon.

"Indications point to the probability that it will be one of the best schools in Texas, largely due to the interest displayed by Wichita Falls women in foods and their preparation." Mrs. Chitwood said, "it takes intelligence to build intelligence, and the more one knows of food and cookery, the more one wants to learn."

"News has come to me over the state of the splendid work being done by the mother's clubs of Wichita Falls in providing hot lunches and correct food for their school children; of the interest of all your local organizations in good food and good health, and particularly the work done by the Health and Effficiency club of which Mrs. J. W. Akin, I believe, is at the head," Mrs. Chitwood continued.

"There are a few principles that everyone should bear in mind in selecting food for the family, and these principles will be explained in detail in my opening lecture of the Record News cooking school at the Kemp hotel ballroom Monday afternoon.

"The body needs food for three purposes: To build and repair tissues; to supply energy; to regulate the bodily activities.

"Therefore, the well planned diet will provide foods in which there is a sufficient supply of protein, for protein builds tissues. The foods which furnish the principal supply of protein are milk, cheese, eggs, fish, poultry, meat, peas, beans and nuts.

"There will be fats, starch and sugar for they are the energy producers. The foods which furnish the principal supply of fats, starch and sugar are: for fats, butter and cream, shortening, salad oil and bacon; for starch, cereals, bread, cake, macaroni and potatoes; for sugar, syrups, honey, molasses, cakes, sweet puddings and candy.

Salt Foods Told.

In Mrs. Chitwood's lecture she will speak of foods in which there is a supply of mineral salts which regulate the bodily activities. The foods which furnish the principal supply of salts are fruits and vegetables, both raw and green.

Vitamines which have been discovered in recent years present another necessary constituent of the diet. They are present in milk, eggs, green vegetables and fruits and are essential to health and growth.

A knowledge of food values helps in planning meals that are economical. For example, old-fashioned housekeepers frequently served macaroni and cheese at a dinner where roast beef was the principal dish. The modern housewife understands that this would furnish an excess of protein. She studies values and finds protein in beef, protein in cheese, protein in milk.

Balances Diet.

She knows that macaroni is a paste made with flour and that while it belongs to the starch group, it also provides protein. Consequently she will save the macaroni and cheese dish and serve it at a meatless meal, and with her roast she will probably serve potatoes and a green vegetable, such as spinach.

When she has provided a meal where the vegetables are of the starchy sort she will not follow them with a desert such as cornstarch or rice pudding, but will serve instead fresh fruit, if it is in season, or else a light gelatin desert.

It is hard to plan meals for a family, as the needs are varied. But it is possible to serve plain, wholesome food so that the nutritive values dovetail into each other and make a balanced diet. The way to judge as to whether the food is all that it should be is by the health and appearance of the family. If the family is energetic, strong and ambitious, one may be pretty sure that it is well nourished.

Hardeman Seeks Pure Bred Cows For Milk Product

Recent Profits on Sale of Dairy Stuffs Starts Move

QUANAH, Jan. 22.—The sum of $1,075.00 paid to two men for milk during the month of December is making Hardeman county farmers "sit up and take notice" of the possibilities of milk and cream sales. Stepp Brothers milk about 50 Jersey cows, and find the demand much greater than the supply.

Since the dairy school held in August, 1924, through the joint efforts of the chamber of commerce, the county agent and the A. & M. extension service, and the agricultural agent of the Fort Worth & Denver railway, much more interest has been taken in the development of milk and cream sales. An intensive campaign by the chamber of commerce and county agent, with the co-operation of the Quanah newspapers is expected to bring many pure-bred cows into the county. All efforts are directed toward only pure-bred stock, both sires and milk cows.

Somehow it's always easy to tune out the station that has the better program.

WILTING OF FLOWERS THREATENS UNEXPECTED CHANGE IN DESIGN OF MIDDLEWEIGHT FISTIC MAP

Surprising Victories of Delaney Perfect Reason to Send Him Against King of Middles

The wilting of Tiger Flowers threatens an unexpected change in the middleweight map. Flowers was all ballyhooed up for a championship contest with Harry Greb. He had a spectacular style of fighting, handled a kayo punch and looked like a good successor to some of the old time dusky champions. But there was Jack Delaney, selected as the last obstacle between Flowers and a match for the title. A funny thing about Delaney is that no one has taken him seriously as a championship contender. He is always picked out a likely fellow to boost some other more ballyhooed bird's reputation. When he goes into the ring he is expected to make a pretty showing before he is whipped. On these occasions Delaney always fights better than a champion and knocks the ballyhooed party for a goal. For a few days everybody talks about Delaney and wonders when he'll fight for the championship. A couple of weeks later Delaney is heard of boxing some fairly good middleweight somewhere out in the sticks and away from the big arenas. He seems to be an indifferent performer. Bert Colina, winning four-round fights out on the coast a couple of years ago was sent back east to show his goods in New York. Colina was clever and he had a punch. A Mexican, he was classed with Aurelio Herrera and Joe Rivers. The west thought New York would fall on Colina's neck and proclaim him the greatest middleweight ever seen under the old Garden's girders. Something fell on Colina, but it wasn't New York, probably he thought it was the roof. In fact, it was Jack Delaney's right hand, Delaney having been selected as a preliminary victim, simply crossed that right and Colina went down and out.

✣ ✣ ✣ ✣

The next famous middleweight to meet Delaney was Paul Berlenbach, who had been busy rolling up a list of 26 straight knockouts and looked invincible.

✣ ✣ ✣ ✣

Jack An In-and-Outer?

Dan Hickey was told that Delaney would be extremely dangerous if Paul rushed him, that Paul's best chance was to wear him down a bit by fighting carefully the first three or four rounds. Dan thought otherwise. Berlenbach rushed Delaney furiously from the start and hammered him all over the ring. Delaney has a trick of seeming to take a beating, but avoiding the more dangerous blows while he gathers his strength for a sudden attack.

At the end of the third round Delaney reeled to his corner. At the beginning of the fourth Berlenbach leaped across the ring, tiger-like. Coming up slowly from his chair Delaney started a punch almost from the floor and caught Paul on the chin, a hard knock down. Berlenbach nearly out, got up two or three times to take more punches, weakened until he could not lift his hands and then the hurtling sponge admitted a knockout.

That was last March. Delaney boxed a few times around the country, some times well, sometimes not so well. They said he had bad hands. He was brought back to New York to be knocked out by Tiger Flowers, the new sensation. With a knockout over the man who beat Berlenbach, Flowers could be sent against Greb for a half-fillion-dollar gate. Flowers went leaping at Delaney,, pounded him against the ropes, seemed to be winning according to schedule. Second round Flowers leaped at Delaney and Delaney, who had been waiting for just this chance to time a knockout punch with his own peculiar knack, stepped in and met him with a sharp uppercut on the chin. Flowers' arms flew wide and his knees sagged. Before he could fall Delaney cracked him again. Complete knockout.

There's only one thing to do with a fellow like Delaney. Give him a chance at the champion.

The Worm Turned on Gibson

Here's a little inside yarn on Billy Gibson, manager of Benny Leonard, and Gene Tunney. Bill is a keen golfer, and he has spent his past two summers at the Westchester Biltmore course playing around with the professionals and picking up a fair game. Gibson and Tunney recently spent sometime at Miami.

Bill showed Tunney the game, spotted him strokes enough to make it interesting and nicked Tunney's bankroll with a long string of bets.

After each game Gib let a big slice of Florida know how he had taken Tunney's measure, and the amount of his winnings. Then one day Billy had to run up to New York for a week on business.

As soon as Bill was on the train Tunney retained Mike Brady and Leo Diegel, two of the best professionals in Florida this winter. He took lessons all day long and practiced from dawn to moonrise. He picked up very quickly.

Gibson returned, full of the idea of making Tunney his meal ticket for the rest of the vacation in Florida. The first day Tunney lagged close beside Bill for several holes, then began to grouch, duck, and demanded a higher ante so that he'd have something to pay for. Bill tried to conceal his delight and consented. Then Tunney cut loose and won seven holes in a row, walking off with the match. Bill thought it was an accident. Said he was stiff from the long train ride.

Tunney suggested that they double the bet next day to give Bill a chance to get even. That suited Bill. Next day Tunney gave Bill another cleaning. In the evening Bill sleuthed around and met the two professionals, who gave him the laugh. To show what kind of a bird Bill is he laughed too, and began taking lessons from Brady himself.

✣ ✣ ✣ ✣

But he says he won't take on Tunney again until the outdoor season opens around New York.

Walter Johnson To Sue Brooklyn Paper And Feature Service For $50,000; Alleges Writing Fraud

Defendants Publish Spurious Stories of His Life, He Says; Seeks Injunction to Halt Further Articles

NEW YORK, Jan. 22. — Walter Johnson, veteran pitching hero of the last world series, today asked the supreme court to issue a restraining order enjoining the Thompson Feature Service, Inc., the Brooklyn Daily Eagle and other newspapers throughout the country from further use of syndicated articles purporting to be a history of his baseball career.

Wants $50,000.

The star of the Washington twirling staff also served notice in the courts that he would sue for $50,000 damages and for an accounting of receipts from publication of eight of twelve articles dealing with his life. The vetran pitcher alleges the series is a sham, a fraud and a fake. His injunction plea will be argued before the supreme court by his attorney, Hyman Buhl, next Thursday. Johnson's complaint recites that since November, 1924, the Brooklyn Daily Eagle and many other papers in the United States have been publishing articles in the series. The articles, written by Lillian Barker, represent Johnson as having related his experiences to the writer for the purpose of publication. The complaint charges that the Thompson service sold the series on the representation that they had been related to Miss Barker in his own words and that the concern had the sole right to dispose of the articles in the United States.

Made Another Contract.

Before the closing game of the world series, the complaint charges, Johnson made a contract with the Christie Walsh Syndicate for the publication of the history of his baseball career, with the understanding that the articles were to be written by his wife, Hazel Johnson. At no time, the pitcher complains, did he give the Thompson company permission to publish and sell the story of his life.

The accounting is asked in addition to damages in the sum of $50,000 because, the complaint says, Johnson has no way of estimating the profits that have accrued through the sale of the alleged spurious series by the Thompson company.

FRENCH FEDERATION DISQUALIFIES DUNDEE

PARIS, Jan. 22.—Johnny Dundee, former featherweight champion of the world, and his manager, Jimmy Johnson, were disqualified indefinitely today by the French Boxing Federation.

The disqualification was imposed because of Dundee's leaving France for the United States last week instead of remaining to keep his engagement for a bout with Fred Pretonnel in Paris, January 27.

The national boxing association and the New York state athletic association will be requested to apply penalties similar to those imposed by the French federation.

The International Boxing Union and the British Boxing Board of Control will be asked to take similar measures toward Dundee and Johnston.

ZIVIC TO FIGHT PINKY MITCHELL IN TITLE GO

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Jack Zivic of Pittsburgh and Pinkey Mitchell of Milwaukee have been matched to fight at Los Angeles in April or May in a bout involving the junior welterweight, or 140-pound championship.

Mitchell is recognized by the National Boxing Association as junior welterweight titleholder. Zivic gained prominence a few days ago by knocking out Lew Tendler.

Doak Roberts Is In A Receptive Mood, Is Report

Waco Situation Muddled and Oak Cliff Is Being Considered

GALVESTON, Jan. 22.—Galveston stands at excellent opportunity to regaining its berth in the Lone Star Loop, if the proper offer is made to league officials, according to a telephone communication from Doak Roberts, to N. E. Leopold, former owner, today. Mr. Roberts was in Houston, having returned from Beaumont, where he went into the deals between the Exporters and Chicago White Sox. The league head has been ordered to appear before Judge Landis in New Orleans, Friday, in connection with the probe of affairs.

Mr. Roberts during the course of conversation, told Mr. Leopold that the Waco situation, was muddled at the present time, and it looked as if it would be necessary to place the club in Oak Cliff, during the coming season. In his conversation, the league head intimated that there are two factions in Waco, one pulling for Texas League ball and the other standing by the Texas Association.

Roberts did not broach the subject of the Texas League operating the eighth franchise in Galveston, and it is hardly likely that the league will take such action, considering the fact that Oak Cliff is making a strong bid for it.

Going further into his visit to New Orleans, Mr. Roberts declared to Mr. Leopold, that he was of the opinion, that the matter was likely to be more important than newspaper dispatches had indicated, otherwise his presence would not be deemed necessary. He spent Wednesday in Beaumont gathering details on the transactions, which would aid him in the inquiry before Judge Landis.

Supreme Test For Nurmi To Come Feb. 7

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—The supreme test of Paavo Nurmi's American campaign will be made in the Wilcox A. A. games in the 13th Regiment armory, February 7, when he will attempt to break four world's records in a single performance. The flying Finn is entered in the 3,000-meter special together with Joie Ray, Verne Booth, William L. Cox and Eddie Kirby. In filling his entry for this race today Nurmi said he would better his own mark of 8:26 4-5, made in the Municipal games, and establish the mark at 8:20. En route to the 3,000 mark, Nurmi will attempt to break the one and three-quarter mile mark, at the conclusion of the 3,000-meter race Nurmi will continue on to the two-mile point and endeavor to shatter the one and seven-eights-mile mark and the two-mile mark.

Joie Ray holds the two-mile record at 908 2-5, the fastest two miles ever made by a runner, inside or out. Nurmi said he would attempt to run the two miles under nine minutes.

Indians Wallop S. M. U. Freshmen

DALLAS, Jan. 22.—The S. M. U. freshmen lost the basketball game with the quintet from Wichita Falls junior college tonight, 32 to 22. The Methodist freshmen were leading 14 to 6 at the half, and had a lead of 20 to 10 when Coach Freeland ran in his second string men, who lost ground so quickly that the Wichita aggregation was able to win by the ample margin of 10 points.

LOCKWOOD PULLS MOCK WRESTLING TILT FOR LEGION

"Daredevil" Lockwood, airman, movie star, and auto racer, who has been brought to Wichita Falls by the Frits Motor company to stage a number of daring stunts, refereed a number of the bouts on the American legion fight card last night.

Between two of the bouts, Lockwood single-handed staged a very realistic mimic of two wrestling champions in the throes of a title match. The acting brought down the house.

OKLAHOMA AGGIES NOSE OUT RICE, 20 TO 16.

HOUSTON, Jan. 22.—After leading the Southwestern Conference leaders for the first period, the Rice Owls slipped in the final half of play and were forced to bow in the second of a two game series, with the Oklahoma Aggies, 20 to 16. The game was fast and rough with the Owls scrapping the visitors to a standstill until the middle of the last half. The score at the half gave Rice a 7 to 6 margin.

YANKS TO MOBILIZE 38 FOR SPRING TRAINING

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—The New York Yankees today announced that 38 players would be mobilized for spring training at their St. Petersburg, Fla., camp. The list includes 13 twirlers, five catchers, 10 infielders and 10 outfielders.

Rookies of the squad will report about February 22 to Manager Miller Huggins, while several veteran pitchers, together with Babe Ruth, will "boil out" for two weeks at Hot Springs, Ark., prior to reporting March 1 to St. Petersburg with the rest of the regulars.

Will Jack and Benny Step From Youth to Rocking Chair?

Trammel Finishes Strong, Simpson Winds Up Weak, But Bout's Draw

Monte Beats Jones in Ten-Round Battle, and Levine Outpoints Volley in Six-Rounder

Johnny Simpson, San Antonio welterweight, surprised Wichita Falls fandom by staying the limit with Duke Trammel, Fort Worth knockout artist, and earning a draw in the legion 10-round main event Thursday night. Simpson was given the even-Stephen verdict although Trammel led the fighting throughout the final three rounds by wide margins.

The bout from the opening canto on through was a rather slow affair with Johnny staying in close to his opponent and depending on infighting solely to carry him through. At close quarters Simpson had a bit the better of the argument during the early rounds. Trammel, though striving hard to measure Simpson for his famous right hook in every stanza, failed to get across with the blow. In fact, hardly a clean punch was landed.

Duke Willing to Mix It

Trammel displayed again that he is no infighter and stands little chance to beat a man very badly who uses this style of battling.

The Fort Worth lad showed willingness to stand back and mix it, but every time he endeavored to shoot over a right or left Simpson ducked in and clinched, and then followed with a body attack. Though no offensive infighter, Duke is good on the defense, and took very little punishment at this style of milling.

Trammel earned a shade in the first round. The second was a draw with Duke possibly having the edge. But Simpson bested the Fort Worth scrapper in the third and fourth rounds. Duke had the better of the fifth, but few of the ringsiders could see it that way. Johnny swung many a blow, but not a one landed in clean cut manner. However, lots of noise emanated from the ring every time Simpson hit, and regardless of whether or not the punch landed an arm, shoulder, or glove, the ringsiders cheered.

Trammel Begins Winning

Johnny stayed in close, very close, in the sixth, didn't land on Duke to any appreciable extent, but received a number of short jolts in return. Ringsiders said it was Johnny's round. They wanted to see Duke get whipped. Not because he is disliked necessarily, but because he has beat so many boys that it has become more or less monotonous to some fans. No harm was done in the seventh. The round was a good draw, but fandom ordained that this round surely was Johnny's.

Johnny began lagging in the eighth. Trammel socked him back and fourth, but couldn't land cleanly because Simpson kept diving in to clinch. The ninth and tenth rounds were repetitions of the eighth. Trammel having clearly the better of the going with Simpson attempting to hold, but finding it harder and harder.

Simpson had wanted to fight Trammel over a longer route. Declared that he could beat him in a 12-rounder. Last night had the scrap gone two rounds longer, or had the rounds been three minutes in length instead of two, judging by Simpson's work in eighth, ninth, and tenth, he could not have stuck it out.

There came near being no Trammel-Simpson scrap. Both entered the ring about the same time, but Simpson demanded the legion pay him a certain amount right there. Legion officials refused, so Johnny climbed back out again.

Maywood Wanted to Fight

Ray Maywood, local fighter who has long been calling for a return bout with the Fort Worth lad (he has fought Duke several times) declared willingness to substitute. For a moment it appeared that there would be no main event or Maywood, not in very good condition, would have to do the scrapping. Finally, Simpson was coaxed back into the ring.

Wildcat Monte of Amarillo was given a decision over Jack Jones, Oklahoma City featherweight, in seven rounds. The bout was scheduled to be an eight rounder, but the referee lost out in his calculations. For some reason the decision was not popular, although Monte easily earned at least a shade.

The first round was even up with neither boy doing any good. Monte had the better of the going in the second frame. He also floored Jones with a short right hook to the chin. The Oklahoman came up without a count, however. Monte had the better of the third round for awhile, but Jones rallied late and with several hard punches and clips to the head earned the round.

Monte Wins 4th and 5th

Wildcat took the fourth with ease. A stiff left jab and a good right hook intermingled with starboard uppercuts gave him the round. Jack stayed on the defensive. Monte again took the offense in the fifth, didn't do so well, but had a shade the better of the chapter. Jones again kept on the defense. Jones put Monte in hot water in the sixth. More hard body punches and jolts to the head came near to stowing the Amarillean away. The final round could have been called a draw, but Monte undoubtedly had the better of the going.

Tabby Levine, Wichita Falls feather, shaded Jack Volley of Archer City in every round of a six rounder. Volley again showed that he can catch 'em and keep his feet.

Joe Turner went down before Buckshot Peoples in the fourth round of a scheduled four-rounder. Turner was outpointed and winded, but he went down several times without being hit, finally to stay.

Two negro boxers stepped three rounds and then one quit with a damaged wing. A fair of fleaweights fought the three-round curtain raiser. One weighed 45 pounds, the other 40.

Landon-Hill Beats Burk Teachers

Landon-Hill basketball five defeated the Burkburnett Teachers at the American Legion hall Thursday night by the count of 42-26. The score at half was 27 to 12 in favor of the home team.

The shooting of Metzer and Shaw featured. The Landon-Hill pair tabulated 14 points each. Shaw won six baskets from the field and two free tosses. Metzer threw seven from the field. Yet Shaw played but three-quarters of the game, while Metzer played the complete game. The usual fine guarding of Rice was another feature to the game. Howard led the losing five in counting with nine points, one a free toss while four went from the field.

This makes Landon-Hills third victory in three days, defeating Iowa Park Tuesday night at the legion hall by the count of 33-23. On Wednesday night they journeyed to the Park for a 28-32 win, in the second game an extra five minute session was needed to break a 32-32 tie.

The score of Thursday's game:

Landon-Hill	FG	FT	TP	Burkburnett	FG	FT	TP
Shaw, f	6	2	14	D'Daniel, f	2	0	4
Metzer, f	7	0	14	Williams, f	0	1	1

DEMPSEY AND LEONARD RETIRE FROM BOXING WHILE IN PRIME

Speckled Bob, Jeffries and Others Fought and Earned Titles At Ripe Old Age

By NORMAN E. BROWN

CLEVELAND, Jan. 22.—Jack Dempsey and Benny Leonard, champion of the heavyweight and lightweight division respectively and the only really great champions of the present day, have announced their retirement.

The announcement can, of course, be taken with a grain of salt.

But, accepting the statements as serious, the situation thereby presented, is an odd one.

According to their life histories both men are just 29—one year shy of the 30 mark. And here they are stepping out of active life as far as their accepted vocation is concerned into retirement.

The situation is an unheard of one.

Consider Dempsey's case.

The world's heavyweight champion steps out at the age when many of his predecessors were in their busiest days. Why, Bob Fitzsimmons was six years older than Dempsey when he won the heavyweight crown from Jim Corbett. He held the title two years, losing it in 1899 to Jim Jeffries in 11 rounds of rip-snorting fighting at Coney Island.

Fitz was 40 when he met Jeffries again in San Francisco and for six rounds threatened to regain the sky piece he had lost three years previously.

At 41 he was still fighting. Records show that he gave George Gardner a real licking in Frisco when on the road to 42.

Bob Lost Title At 43.

The freckled one was at the ripe old pugilistic age of 43 when he finally relinquished his second title, that of light heavyweight champion, to Philadelphia Jack O'Brien. For 13 rounds Fitz fought O'Brien to a draw. Then his strength gave out. Call Fitzsimmons' case an exception if you will. Take that of Sullivan. The great old mauler was five years older than Dempsey now is when Corbett showed him that science could win over brute strength.

Jack Johnson, cleverest of the black fighters of modern times at least, tackled Jim Jeffries when the latter was 35. Johnson himself was 37 when Jess Willard, old as champions go, stepped into the ring to batter the dissipated black man down.

Kid McCoy was a busy willing fighter at 38.

The list of lightweight champions contain several men who fought long after the 35 mark.

Frank Erne was fighting at 33. Leach Cross was still in the game at 37. Joe Gans was 34 when he stepped out—and he had fought several battles to Leonard's one.

Lavigne Fought At 41.

Other divisions contain men who fought long after the 30-year mark. Stanley Ketchell was going good at 33. George Dixon, greatest of featherweights, was in the ring at 36.

Kid Lavigne was boxing exhibitions at 43.

On the other hand, however, many men ended their days in want—their money gone—or found themselves burned out and worthless as a result of repeated beatings in the ring.

Dempsey and Leonard may be selfish in deserting the ring in their prime. But no one can blame them for wanting to dodge the fate of those who gave their all to the ring—and died young or wandered down through their remaining years handicapped as a result of the pommelings or injuries, physical or mental, they received from padded mitts.

GIBBONS MEETS HERMAN

DETROIT, Jan. 22.—Tommy Gibbons has been matched to meet "Tiny" Jim Herman of Omaha in a 10-round bout here January 30, it was announced today.

Little Had Charge Wolverines When Grange Ran Wild

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—(AP)—The acceptance by George Little, head football coach at Michigan, of the directorship of athletics at the University of Wisconsin disclosed today one of the "behind the scene" events of the famous Michigan-Illinois football game last fall when "Red" Grange startled the athletic world by scoring four touchdowns on Michigan in the first 12 minutes of play.

The bonds of affection between Fielding H. Yost, director of athletics at Michigan and Coach Little, were so strong that Yost, while allowing football fans to believe he was directing the team, actually gave Little complete charge of the squad.

The irresistible sweep of the red-haired tornado of Illinois so affected Little that he was in tears over the wreckage of the Michigan hopes, strewn over the Illinois field before 67,000 frenzied spectators.

Blaming himself for an apparent lack of defense against such remarkable broken-field running, Little was inconsolable.

"Never mind," the veteran Yost told Little. "I doubt if any team could have stopped Grange today, and I will assume complete responsibility. You are too young to feel such regret over such a defeat. I have seen many ups and downs, and the blame, if any, is mine.

The Michigan team "came back" so strongly after the Illinois disaster that they overwhelmed Minnesota, the team which finally defeated "Red" Grange and Illinois.

QUANAH BEGINS HOLE-IN-ONE CLUB

QUANAH, Jan. 22.—The "Hole in One Club" has another eligible member in the person of E. B. Caskey, president of the First National Bank of Quanah and director of the Quanah Country club, who yesterday sunk a mashie shot from the tee on No. 7, a 142-yard hole.

Mr. Caskey is the first person to hole in one on this course, and is the second member of the club to achieve that distinction on any course. S. J. Bailey made a hole in one on the Wichita Falls Golf and Country club course last spring while playing in the Rotary tournament during the convention of the 13th district.

WHERE'S WAYNE MUNN?

New Mat Champs Agreed to Wrestle in Oklahoma City.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 22.—Looks like Wayne Munn has gone back on his agreement to wrestle for Lou Cutler here.

Munn was to have defended his title against anyone of Cutler's selection between January 20 and 25.

Cutler obtained the services of Charlie Hansen who agreed to give $1,000 to charity if he failed to pin the new champion's shoulders.

Since then, Cutler has been unable to hear from Munn or Gabe Kaufman, his manager.

CHAPTER XXI.

Comparisons Are Dangerous.

Rosalie had to rush in order to get her torn frock changed in time for Pendleton's early dinner hour. Besides, her bandaged hand made it awkward for her to dress. She was a flustered little teacher as she slipped into her place at the table over which it was always difficult for her to preside.

Her charges were regarding her with impish glances on this particular evening. Some of them had seen her depart for her afternoon's ride with one man and several of them had seen her return with another and being the female of the species they were devoured with curiosity.

Nor were the youngsters the only persons in Pendleton Hall who were whispering about her. While the children indulged in their somewhat monotonous evening dancing, the a Vassar graduate moved toward Rosalie and dragged her to a window seat in in the corner of the great drawing room.

"It's none of my affairs," she said quietly, "but I think somebody ought to tell you you're taking pretty long chances, Miss Blanchard. Mrs. Hartwell isn't unduly fussy, but you can see for yourself that it doesn't do for teachers in a school of this sort to go dashing about the country with the unattached male relatives of the pupils."

Rosalie flushed angrily. She really had a very guilty conscience about her afternoon but she wasn't willing to admit it.

"She didn't say anything to me," she began stiffly.

"She didn't say anything to you but she said a whole lot to Miss Anderson, the history teacher, which Miss Anderson repeated to me."

"I think they're just jealous cats," Rosalie began tempestuously.

"Undoubterly," the Vassar graduate had a friendly grin. "But do reflect, you're going away from here in a few days and admittedly you haven't any job. A good reference from a school like this means a whole lot to you and you know it."

"Him," said Rosalie sweetly, "the man I'm going to marry doesn't want any references with me."

The Vassar graduate gave a little squeal of surprise.

"You don't mean to tell me that old Dicky Converse—I mean, you aren't really going to marry Dick?"

Rosalie laughed.

"Oh, no! Just a boy in my home town," she was perfectly good humored now, really very pleased with herself. It was fun to let these long faced teacher persons know that though they didn't thing her perfect somebody else did. She thanked the older teacher rather nicely for the good wishes that followed. "I shan't forget how pleasant you've been to me," she added shyly, "because everybody else has been so horrid."

"Everybody except the aforementioned men relatives of the Quimby child, eh?" teased the Vassar graduate.

The Quimby child herself, coming up with a stiff little bow, begged the honor of a dance with her adored one. And as they danced she panted artlessly:

"I was so surprised when I saw daddy bringing you home today. I don't 'member he ever took anybody riding only grandmother or me. But isn't he fun to go riding with? And isn't he just the very best looking man you ever saw? Doesn't he make other men look perfectly ordinary? I don't know a single girl here that has a daddy as good looking as mine." Her artless pride in him made the little teacher smile. "Did Cousin Dick's car smash up or anything? Is that why daddy brought you back? I've been dying to ask you ever since you got back. The girls asked me a thousand things—"

The juniors' retiring gong saved her.

Two or three days of routine followed during which she behaved with exemplary discretion. And on the evening of the third day, Chet's cousin, looking wan and thin after her operation, appeared in the station bus.

Small Nannette Quimby cried herself to sleep in Rosalie's arms that night.

"I shall be so bad they will have to take me home," she sobbed with youthful extravagance. "I hate Fergy—all the girls hate her! You're the only pretty teacher Pen ever had and now you're going and—and—"

Rosalie quieted her as best she could, hugging the thin little body to her, thinking gratefully, that she glad to have one sweet memory to take away with her.

Otherwise, her departure, which took place during a study hour the next morning, was fraught with no regrets. The principal bade her a final farewell, Miss Ferguson gave her chilly thanks for having served in her place and added crushingly: "Of course I hope you will make Chet a good wife."

Which, Rosalie found herself thinking mournfully, sounded exactly like a judge pronouncing sentence. Her journey back to Emsville was tedious, more than half of it in a rickety, dirty day coach. Her fellow travelers looked unkept and frowsy after her weeks of living among smartly groomed people.

Chet met her at the station with the battered flivver. His eyes were shining his welcome but unfortunately he had had a busy day. He had evidently come directly from the freight yards; his clothes were covered with dust from the hateful "hay, grain, lime and cement" and when he kissed her it was painfully evident also that he had not had time to shave.

"Gosh," he ejaculated above the rattle of the engine, "but it's good to have you home. You can just bet I never let you get away from me again! Iwas telling Jean last night your being away had been a sort of lesson to me."

She didn't answer him. She was thinking that last night at this time she had been whirling along a wonderful boulevard in Harrison Quimby's powerful roadster. She shut her eyes and seem to see his splendid figure beside her. How smartly groomed and distinguished looking he was. She thought of Nannette's rapturous praise of her father, of the child's "doesn't he make other men look perfectly ordinary?"

He made poor Chet Ferguson look ordinary that was sure.

They stopped at Chet's house a moment. Chet's dumpy [illegible] wiping her hands on her kitchen apron, ran out from the side door of the ugly "queen-anne-front - mary - ann-back" cottage to welcome her prospective daughter-in-law, with a cheerful and ungrammatical "Ain't you glad to be home? I always say the best part of any joshing around is gettin' back where you belong."

Jean and Aunt Sarah were waiting on the porch of their dingy little cottage. She loved them, of course, she loved them!

But that night she cried herself to sleep.

QUESTIONS BRITAIN'S ACT.

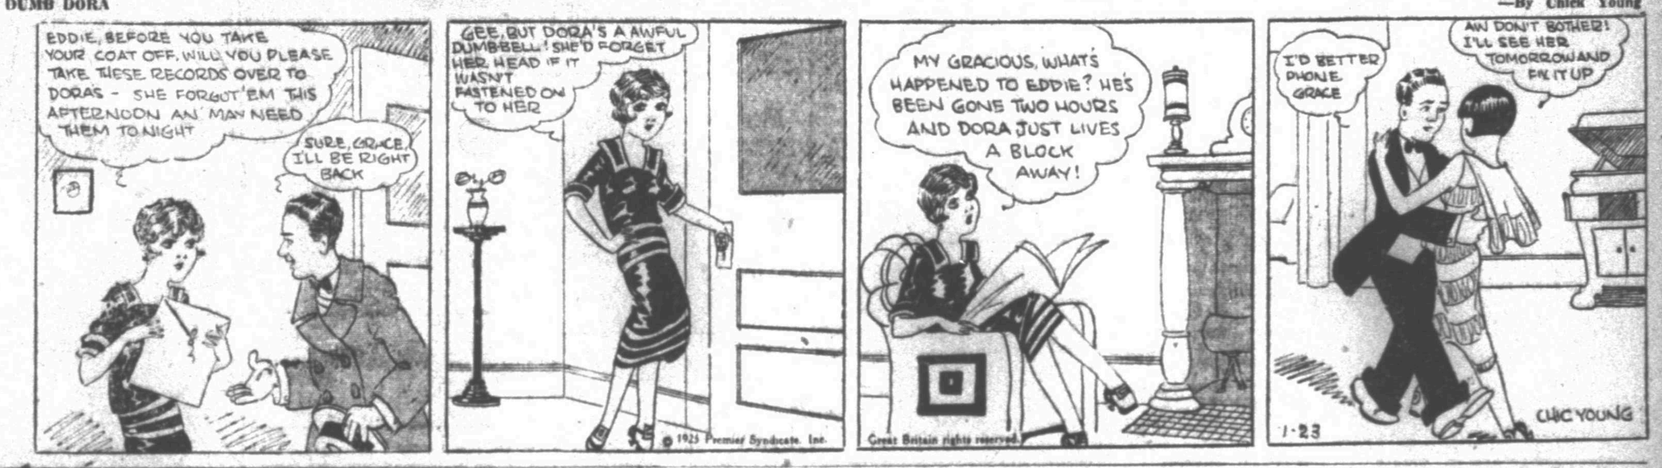

WASHINGTON, Jan 22—President Coolidge would be asked to order an inquiry as to whether Great Britain had violated the arms treaty by construction of the battleships Rodney and Nelson under a resolution presented today by Senator McKeller, democrat, Tennessee.

It is probable that a man can obey all of the 2,074,326 laws and yet be darned disagreeable.

EPISCOPALIANE TABLE CHILD LABOR AMENDMENT QUERY

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 22.—Members of the West Texas Diocese of the Episcopal church, failed to take action on the child labor amendment when a resolution, endorsing it, was tabled by delegates in session today. The reason for tabling the resolution was the political trend of the discussions.

Building, Loan Idea Promotes Constant Thrift

Associations Designed to Encourage Home Life Have Great Growth

One of the most important factors of the present day contributing to the building of homes, particularly the building of homes for individuals whose income is of moderate size, is found in the building and loan association, a modern day version of the "building society" idea that was first advanced in England in 1789, almost 136 years ago.

Generally speaking, the building and loan association is an organization conducted along banking business lines that offers the small investor an opportunity to realize the most from his money with a maximum safeguard relative to the return. In Texas and other states as well, such associations are regulated by rigid laws. In this state the building and loan associations are under the supervision of the commissioner of insurance. These associations have two general purposes—to assist and encourage saving and to provide ways and means by which homes may be built or procured or existing indebtedness upon homes refinanced by small monthly payment loans.

Million Dollar Pools.

Through the instrumentality of building and loan associations, home building pools aggregating considerably more than $1,000,000, have been established in Wichita Falls within the past few years. Three such enterprises are actively in the field in this city, soliciting savings accounts, and lump sum investments and the privilege of extending home building, home buying and home refinancing loans.

Assets of the building and loan associations in the United States, January 1, 1924, the date of the last complete report was $4,942,939,880, and taking the ratio of growth of these associations for the year 1923 as a basis, the assets of the associations January 1, 1924 are in excess of four and one-half billion dollars.

In Texas these associations are incorporated by the state and are under the supervision of the commissioner of insurance through a special act of the legislature in 1913. Since that time no record of a single failure of one of these associations in the state has been registered. In this connection, the United States government of commerce after an exhaustive investigation in every state, recommends building and loan shares as being "as nearly absolutely safe as can be."

Thrift Week, has occassioned, many thousands of people to become acquainted with the building and loan plan of saving money at a profit and brought to the attention of the public generally that the building and loan associations are the principal source of loans for home buying and financing. Great impitus has been given to the movement by the endorsement of the building and loan idea by our leaders in national affairs.

FINLAND CAN THANK ATHLETES FOR LOANS

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—The athletic conquests of Nurmi, Ritola, Stenroos and others have given Finland the greatest advertising of its history and have greatly enhanced the nation's credit rating, in the opinion of Leonard Astrom, minister of the republic of Finland, who recently came to America to decorate with the order of the white rose an American banker, Charles E. Mitchell, sponsor of three recent Finnish loans.

Mr. Astrom made his statements at a dinner in the home of Mr. Mitchell and estimated that the minimum value of these accomplishments was $10,000,000. Their feats, he said, surpass in advertisement even Finland's declaration of independence.

SLUGGERS EARN MORE COIN THAN PITCHERS

BROOKLYN, Jan. 22.—"Dazzy" Vance has been offered a contract by the Robins that calls for a salary of $10,000 a year. Babe Ruth, Rogers Hornsby, a dozen or more hitters of lesser fame, are drawing larger salaries than that right now. Which indicates again the relative value of pitching and hitting in the eyes of the big league bosses.

McGraw Gives Harper Chance

Harry Harper, who served time with the Yankees, Red Sox and Senators, is the latest has-been to be given a chance by John McGraw. The southpaw has McGraw's word that he will get a chance if he can get his soupbone into condition. Harper plans to work out at Hot Springs, Ark., until the Giant squad reports at Sarasota, Fla.

W. F. Lorenz, president of the Wisconsin board of control, and world famous psychiatrist, has appealed to the U. S. for aid in obtaining his release from a Mexican prison. He shipped as a mate aboard a freighter in hopes of regaining his health, was shipwrecked on the coast of Mexico, then taken prisoner.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 22.—The cotton market was again very quiet today with trading narrow and fluctuations limited to an extreme range on the most active months of 16 points. While there was a slight bulge following an easy opening which made the high points of the day but six points above the previous day's close for March, the trend was slowly downward until the lows of the day were reached in the late afternoon on eleventh hour liquidation in advance of the publication of the ginnings totals tomorrow. The close was near the low points, March showing a net loss for the day of 10 points.

The start developed a slight decline of 1 to 4 points due mainly to unsatisfactory cables. There was a slight rally right after the opening which carried March up to 23.76, May 23.99 and October 23.58, or 3 to 6 points above yesterday's close. These prices proved the highs of the day. For the rest of the day prices moved but slowly, but the trend was downward and in the late afternoon when some belated liquidation developed, March traded down to 23.60, May 23.84 and October 23.50, or 8 to 16 points down from the early highs. The close showed net losses for the day of 10 to 12 points on old crop positions and of only three points on the only active new crop month, October.

Financial

STOCK

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Stock prices surged upward today under the leadership of United States Steel common, which advanced three points to 129¼, the highest price since 1917.

Buying orders, which were spread over a broad list, were influenced by the further rise in sterling exchange to the highest level in 10 years, increased mid-continent crude prices and favorable earnings reports.

Transactions in United States Steel common alone approached 150,000 shares, or about one-tenth of the day's total stock business. Steel closed at 129 for net gain of 2⅝ on the day. Indications of the improvement that is taking place in the steel industry were furnished by the report of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation for the fourth quarter, which was issued after the market closed. This showed net earnings of $9,550,715, as against $6,495,731 in the third quarter of the year.

TEXAS LIVE STOCK

FORT WORTH, Jan. 23.—Live stock receipts Thursday were of very small proportions. Only 1,200 head of cattle, 500 calves, 1,000 hogs and 150 sheep were posted. The combined total of cattle, calves, and hogs is below the number received a week ago, and during the corresponding period a year ago.

The trend of cattle market was unchanged, for the most part, and the yards were cleared early. Two cars of steers were desirable about three loads of good heifers and yearlings appeared, and a few small lots of cows were of better quality than the average, but the bulk of the receipts was of a fair sort only. With the exception of one car and a piece of a load, the calf run was common. Calves sold generally 25c higher.

The net result of the storage movement was a loss to the coolers of 21,118 cases of eggs and 184,081 pounds of dressed poultry compared with a net withdrawal a year ago on the same date 28,797 cases of eggs and 137,469 pounds of dressed poultry.

The advance in crude oil prices became general today when higher rates were posted for the product in the mid-continent, Tonkawa, Kentucky and a few minor fields. This advance the first general increase since last March, follows the drop in production in the new Wortham pool. At present there is no area in sight to upset the strength of the oil market and the development of any field, if found would require several months' work.

VARSITY ROWING REGATTA TO BE FOUR MILE RACE

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(AP)—The struggle for this year's intercollegiate "varsity rowing championship," blue ribbon event of the annual Poughkeepsie regatta, will be contested over a course of four miles for the first time since 1916.

Fixing Monday, June 28, as the date for the regatta, the board of stewards of the intercollegiate rowing association decided at their annual meeting today to lengthen the distance of the varsity event from three to four miles.

The change is the culmination of several years agitation for return to the longer distance that prevailed from 1895 to 1916.

Mass Dancing, That's What it was at Ma's Inaugural.

Sidelights on the Legislature

By W. BOYD GATEWOOD

By W. BOYD GATEWOOD.

The inaugural ball was not a ball, mua more like a subway pam or class rush.

Crowds out of all proportion to the capacity of the floor space in the senate chamber and in the Stephen F. Austin and Driskill hotels essayed the art of terpsichore. And while the modern dance does not require an acre of ground space for shank shaking, skeptics were inclined to view the probable results of the inaugural ball rush with something like apprehension, not to say trepidation.

Perhaps the committee on arrangements had foresight when it moved to confine dancing at the capitol to the senate chamber. The house chamber was used only for concert purposes on inaugural evening. Therefore, when middle-aged and more venerable hoofers, dowagers or their masculine partners, began to show signs of distress house to recuperate while giving ear to restful music.
they hobbled across the hall to the

The ubiquitous street fakirs are beginning to strut their stuff in Austin. Already Congress avenue echoes them as they cry their wares.

One of these venders offers little red devils for sale. He inflates them to a degree of corpudence that is grotesque. He can make them whistle and, as he says, has taught his chief demonstrator to whistle "Texas, Our Texas," proposed as the state song.

Another peddles shing Lone Stars as medal souvenirs of "Ma's" inauguration.

One of the most appropriate souvenirs is a steel engraving of the state capitol with an inset of Mrs. Ferguson. It proclaims that, next to the national capitol, the Texas state house is the biggest structure of its kind in the Union. It is a spacious building, but on Tuesday its granite walls will bulge with visitors.

Those who have a taste for the wine cup find the flowing bowl and the hip flask conspicuous by their absence.

Austin has the reputation, and justly, of being one of, if not the driest city in Texas. Liquor hereabouts is nil and its peddling gentry strictly persona non grata with the authorities, state and local.

Enjoining the rangers from their efficient prohibition enforcement does not appear to have lifted the lid as much as a crack. Bootleggers, knowing the reputation of the rangers, have hitherto given the state capital a wide berth. And even on the eve of the incoming throng there appears to be no influx of the rum sellers.

The distinction of being one of two capitals to install a woman governor is proving a boon to Austin, one of the oldest cities in the state. It has attracted and lined up conventions galore.

According to the chamber of commerce, approximately two dozen state conventions have chosen the capital city for their sessions within the next six months. Plans are under way to increase the number to the extent that easily 25,000 visitors will be attracted here by assemblies of one kind or another within the next twelve months.

But of course no single event will ever touch the mark expected to be set by "Ma." Sixty thousand is a conservative estimate.

Borah Says That Factor Is Most Important in Problems of French Debt

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—The real problem with respect to the French debt is that of repudiation, Chairman Borah of the foreign relations committee declared in the senate.

Replying to the speech in the French chamber of deputies yesterday by Deputy Marin, Senator Borah said no one could read that debate or the French press without concluding that "acquittal" of the debt is now the issue; "that no part of it is to be settled, that no part of it is to be paid."

Town Talk

Hairs on His Head Skyscrapers and Winter Back in the 1900's Rachmaninoff's Prelude

WHEN is a man bald? When isn't he?

That's a query which sometimes is difficult to answer, so say bank associates of R. Vaughn Ray, newly appointed assistant cashier of the City National bank. And they're all getting a laugh out of it, including Mr. Ray himself.

Now, Mr. Ray's noble brow is absolutely devoid of hirsute adornment or anything pertaining to such, but the cut reproduction of his photograph clearly reveals a mass of wavy locks which Bernarr Macfadden himself would be proud to display.

How come? The hero of this story has not divulged the secret as yet even under the pressure of "kidding" and joshing by his friends and especially members of the First Baptist church choir of which he is the director.

Some say Mr. Ray posed for that picture back in 1900, the days of his youth when there was no cause for worry over lack of hair on his head. But W. S. Abbott, also assistant cashier of the City National bank, gives what he declares is the most plausible answer: "Why, R. Vaughn borrowed a wig to use while sitting for that picture."

Correct this sentence: "Oh, come on as you are," said the wife; "you don't need a shave."

SKYSCRAPERS may be blessings from a civic point of view, but they are banalities of deepest dye for the street cleaners who have recently been attempting to remove the snow-drifts that line the south side of Eighth street.

Both the City National and the Staley buildings are veritable sun shades for half of the street, it seems, and the snow that has caked up along the south side curbing refuses to melt under anything other than the direct rays of the sun. The tall piles of brick and masonry effectually ward off the warmth until late in the afternoon, and then it is of such short duration that it makes but little headway against the close packed banks of ice.

Streams from fire hose were turned on the miniature glaciers Wednesday night but they had small effect.

Wagons and shovel seem to be about the only way out.

Middle age is the one that makes you wonder why young idiots delight in snow.

TOWN TALK knows Bill Morrison right well. Rather surprised when he read in the pepper the other day that Bill had become a speech-maker. Bill just recently addressed the Tech club on the subject of pavin.

Town Talk knew Bill way back in the 1900's when Bill was an engineering student up north. Bill hasn't changed physically, but his pocketbook has grown considerable since Town Talk was intimate with him. Bill's just as good looking as he was back in the good old days, too.

It all goes to show that give Time her way she'll work out all things.

Atta-boy, Bill!

WELL-ADVERTISED as she is, Wichita Falls has yet to learn a few things in the publicity line, and in learning, she could do much worse than to go to Houston for pointers.

If ever a town believed in tooting its own horn and telling the world of its glories, Houston is the place. Ever since the Harris county seat found out it had metropolitan potentialities it has kept its advertising bureaus working over time. Not only as a civic whole, but as an aggregation of aggressive units it has sung, preached and painted Houston in superlatives or vivid hues.

The latest propaganda is an elaborate catalogue issued by the port commission, setting forth the advantages of Houston as a marine gateway of the southwest. "Where 17 Railroads Touch the Sea and the Flags of the Nations Meet," is the lyrical caption on the cover; and inside are reams of profusely illustrated stories descriptive of Houston's shipping advantages.

Several copies of the book have been received by local business men.

Advertising costs money, but if properly applied it gets results. Wichita Falls might very well take some lessons from her big sister to the southeast.

In the good old days he won a bride by applying a stone to her head instead of her finger.

WITHOUT meaning any disrespect, Town Talk feels constrained to remark that Wichitans are a bunch of low-brows.

This is his feeling, at least, after watching the responses at the Wednesday night concert of the Eight Victor Artists. Disclaiming any inclination toward high-browism himself, he nevertheless feels that the crowd which packed the Palace got a bigger kick out of so-called jazz and popular airs than it did out of the admittedly classic numbers. And this, too, is also bearing in mind the fact that even jazz selections in the hands of the Victor Artists assume classic qualities.

For instance, Frank Banta opened his piano solos with Rachmaninoff's "Prelude," a piece difficult of execution but not especially spirited in rhythm. Mr. Banta first played it as it was written—in typical classic or, if you please, high-brow manner.

Everyone listened interestedly. Then he swung into a syncopated tempo of his own arrangement; he "jazzed it up" with runs and trills that Rachmaninoff never suspected—and lo and behold, ye audience slid to the edge of the seats and watched and listened with fascination.

If that wasn't low-brow appeal, what was it?

Similarly, Rudy Weidoeft was applauded to the echo after he came back for an encore and gave a popular snort or two on his "big pipe," as Billy Murray called it. His first selections were valses, written by himself, which were more tuneful than syncopated and which revealed the player's artistry rather than appealed to the rhythmic instincts of the listeners. He was warmly applauded, of course, but it was nothing as compared to the storm of handclapping that followed his "Saxophobia," "Saxomania," "Sax-o-Phun" and other arrangements.

Low-brow appeal once more, it was.

But then, who wants to be a high-brow?

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 22.—There was the smell of powder about the capitol when E. J. Davis, carpetbag governor and his negro troops were driven from the capitol.

There was the smell of powder as Miriam A. Ferguson took office as governor.

The first was gunpowder. The second was flashlight powder. In the olden days the muskets rattled, and there were threats of violence; but in the latter day the flashlight pans of the cameramen who photographed the epoch-making event of a woman taking over that office, flashed bloodless explosions over the heads of the spectators.

The great event, the inauguration of a new governor, overshadowed and dwarfed every other event, and at the same time raised every minor event and detail to clearcut, sharp importance, for to those five million people who are the state of Texas, every word and act of Tuesday's history-making events is of importance and, interest and concern.

The optometrists are back again, but will sponsor nothing drastic, they announce. They are seeking minor changes to clarify and perfect the bill creating the optometry board, and announce they are expecting no opposition in any quarter.

It has not been disclosed whether the bill to recognize chiropractic as a distinct profession, and to create a board of examiners, is to be offered at this session.

Representative Luke Mankin of Georgetown, with the bills to make public membership of the klan and other organizations, and to punish masked assault, will hold the spotlight for several days when these bills come up on the calendar for action in the house.

But few state officers retired to private life as a result of the changing administration. Treasurer S. L. Staples, Attorney General W. A. Keeling, Railroad Commissioner W. A. Nabors, Adjutant General Thomas D. Barton.

Henry Hutchings, secretary of state for a few weeks, is to go to another post in the government.

A sweeping investigation of "grafts, extravagances, waste and brutal treatment of prisoners," all alleged to exist in the Texas prison system, was authorized by a resolution adopted in the house. It was sponsored by Representatives T. K. Irwin of Dallas and concurred in by Representatives Wells, Maxwell, Jasper and Robinson. The resolution carried 126 to 4.

Regulation of "recreation establishments," including pool and billiard halls and gymnasiums in the interest of clean sport is proposed in a bill introduced in the house of representatives by Representative Petsch of Fredericksburg.

Southern Train Splits Switch at Lake Wichita and Crowd Starts Walking

Inbound passengers on a Wichita Falls and Southern railway train navigated the last few miles between Breckenridge and the city via foot and street car Thursday afternoon when the train on which they were riding split a switch and was derailed near the asylum grounds at Lake Wichita. The accident came about 12:30 Thursday afternoon, and rather than wait for repairs, most of the passengers began walking. No one was injured in the derailment and the damage was repaired in the afternoon.

ROSENBERG FOR ROIZBERG.

San Antonio Man Petitions Court for A Change in His Name.

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 22.—Because his name is Yiddish and his friends cannot pronounce it and custom has given him another name, Idel Roizberg, today asked the 73rd district court to give him another. Roizberg said he has resided in San Antonio for several years and that his friends have acquired the habit of calling him Julius Rosenberg, because they could not pronounce his Yiddish name.

Crude Oil Price Boosted Here By Big Purchasers

General Increase in Scale of Midcontinent Comes Thursday Morning

39 GRAVITY AT $1.60

Production Gains in all Midwest Sections, Says Institute Report

Falling in line after the first price increase was posted Wednesday, practically all of the major purchasing companies in the mid-continent field Thursday announced boosts of from 10 to 42 cents a barrel in the price of crude oil. The increases were made effective at 7 o'clock Thursday morning.

Local buyers of crude are now paying $1.60 a barrel for crude of 39 gravity and above. This is an advance of 10 cents a barrel in this grade. The local offices of the Texhoma, American and Texas companies yesterday posted the following price scales:

Local Prices.

39 and above, $1.60 per barrel.

North Texas and north central Texas output is included in the advance.

An advance of from 33 to 42 cents a barrel was posted at the Tulsa offices of the Marland Oil company for north Oklahoma and south Kansas crude. The new schedule is as follows:

The Prairie Oil and Gas company raised its prices on Kansas, Oklahoma and north Texas crude 25 cents per barrel, in an announcement posted at Independence, Kansas. Its scale is now the same as those posted in Wichita Falls offices, with $1.60 being paid for oil of 39 gravity and above.

Corsicana, Powell, Richland, Currie, Wortham and Mexia crude prices were advanced 25 cents a barrel, bringing the high gravity price to $1.50, in a new schedule posted at Corsicana by the Humble company. The Humble also met the price raise on Ranger and north Texas crude, posted by the other companies.

Delinquents Paying Up

City Attorney George Gets $10,000 in Last 10 Days; Will File Suits

More than $10,000 in delinquent taxes have been collected in the last 10 days by City Attorney W. E. George who has been busy on the delinquent city rolls of the past two years. The entire amount taken in was on the books for 1922 and 1923. This sizeable sum swells to still larger proportions the amount of delinquent taxes brought in since the city started its campaign last fall for the old assessments.

Mr. George is now preparing some 30 or more tax suits that will be filed soon against property owners here who have shown no inclination to settle up their taxes.

Don't Let That Cold Turn Into "Flu"

Rub on Good Old Musterole

That cold may turn into "Flu," Grippe or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once.

Rub good old Musterole on the congested parts and see how quickly it brings relief.

Colds are merely congestion. Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.

As effective as the messy old mustard plaster, does the work without blister.

Just rub it on with your finger-tips. You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief.

To Mothers:* Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

Grand Jury in Recess

Will Hear Few More Witnesses and Make Report to Judge Wilson Monday

A recess until next Monday morning was taken Thursday afternoon by the grand jury of the 30th district court, which is expected to make a report to Judge H. B. Wilson sometime during the day. Assistant District Attorney Robert K. Crain who has been working with the inquisitorial body is now busy writing up the bills of indictment found by the jury.

There are still a few witnesses to be examined Monday, Mr. Crain stated Thursday afternoon, but it is believed that these will be dispensed with in short order and that at least a partial report will be made.

The grand jury has been at work since Tuesday morning when it was called back from recess by Judge Wilson.

51 Pneumonia Deaths

Whitworth Finds This Disease Takes Heaviest Toll of Life in 1924

Pneumonia proved the most effective weapon of the grim reaper in Wichita Falls last year, Dr. J. M. Whitworth, city physician has found in compiling his annual report on health conditions here for 1924. A total of 51 deaths from this cause were reported in the 12 months, while tuberculosis, generally considered the great white plague, accounted for but 11 deaths. Typhoid fever also killed 11 persons here. Eighty-nine of the city's 509 deaths were attributed to infectious or contagious diseases. The balance were from natural or violent causes.

The report has been sent to the U. S. Public Health service at Washington.

W. F. Finance Co. Has Big Growth In Past Year

Pays 14 2-3 Per Cent in 4 Dividend Installments in Eleven Months

A payment of four dividends, amounting to 14 2-3 per cent at par value, has been paid by the Wichita Falls Finance company during its 11 months of operation.

This industrial bank, though less than one year old, has experienced unusually rapid growth. It is capitalized at $150,000, and today the organization has almost completed its sale of its $12.50 shares after which the stock will increase to $15 per share. Shares are almost without exception placed among Wichita Falls people as the policy of the concern has been "A Wichita Falls institution established for the benefit of the salaried and working men and women of Wichita Falls."

Considerably over a $100,000 in small installments have already been loaned out to working people who were in need of assistance. The repayment of such loans is spread over a long period of time at a low rate of interest and under the Wragg system, American plan, the demand for industrial loans have been greater than can be handled.

George B. Wragg announced that on January 1, the company mailed its fourth quarterly dividend check to shareholders.

The following Wichita Falls men compose its officers and directors: R. D. Kennedy, president; W. R. Ferguson, vice president; C. E. Basham, treasurer; J. D. Moulder, secretary-manager; Raymond M. Meyers, general counsel; Jno. F. O'Donohue, Jack C. Bernard, S. M. Daniels, directors.
