North: Casey used fund

Inouye sees plan as 'secret government'

Iran-Contra Affair

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lt. Col. Oliver North testified Friday that the late CIA director, William J. Casey, embraced the fund created by arms sales to Iran because he could use it for secret operations other than supplying the Nicaraguan Contras with weapons.

However, in his fourth day of testimony before the congressional Iran-Contra committees, North denied that using the fund meant "a CIA outside of the CIA" was being created, as a committee lawyer suggested.

Sen. William Cohen, R-Maine, a member of the panel, said the testimony about the fund was "perhaps one of the most serious revelations" of the hearings because it showed a plan to circumvent Congress for secret operations.

Senate committee chairman Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, saw the plan as "the creation and maintenance of a secret government within our government."

Despite that, said Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H., North "has been accepted into people's homes as almost a folk hero." He said part of the reason is that North "was made a scapegoat by those he worked for."

The irony of North's new-found hero status, said Rudman, is that "the very things he is espousing," — such as aid to the Contras — are opposed by nearly three-fourths of the American people.

North said that once, by using the Iran arms-sale money, he was able to obtain a ship overnight after Casey had said, "We can't find one anywhere else: Get a ship."

After that success, he said, he received a note from John Poindexter, his boss at the National Security Council, objecting that North's operational role was becoming too public and ordering him not to talk to anyone else, including Casey, about it.

At one point, North said, Poindexter said to him in regard to the diversion of Iranian arms sales profits to the Contra rebels, "This had better never come out."

"I took steps to ensure that it didn't and they failed," North said.

The committees had planned to complete North's questioning this week, but announced he would return for more on Monday after finishing another long day of testimony on Friday.

He will be followed on Tuesday, and the rest of next week, by Poindexter, whom Rudman called "the single most important witness" of the hearings.

Committee members finally got their first chance to question North Friday afternoon after 3¼ days of lawyers' questions.

North told Rep. Richard Cheney, R-Wyo., the ranking House Republican, that the Hostage Act dating back to the 1800s says in effect "here is the authority to do whatever is necessary to recover the hostages" and Congress may be notified after the fact.

"We ought to think very carefully about proscribing presidential authority to do those kind of things...to bind him in such a way that he cannot act," said North.

He said the United States has not seen the last of hostage-taking, no matter what happens to the men still held in Lebanon. However, said North, strong actions, like those the United States took after the Achille Lauro hijacking, will lead terrorists "to come to the conclusion that it's not wise to mess with Americans."

North, who has apparently been winning wide national favor with his impassioned comments, wound up his week by declaring "the cause of the Nicaraguan resistance is our own."

"Hang whatever you want around the neck of Ollie North," he said. "But for the love of God and for the love of this nation, don't hang around Ollie North's neck the cutoff of (money to the) Nicaraguan resistance again.

Before Friday's session, North placed two big stacks of what he said were supportive telegrams on the witness table in view of the committees and the television cameras.

On a somber note, security at the hearings was increased after a death threat against North was received, said a committee aide, who spoke on condition of anonymity. No details about the threat were revealed.

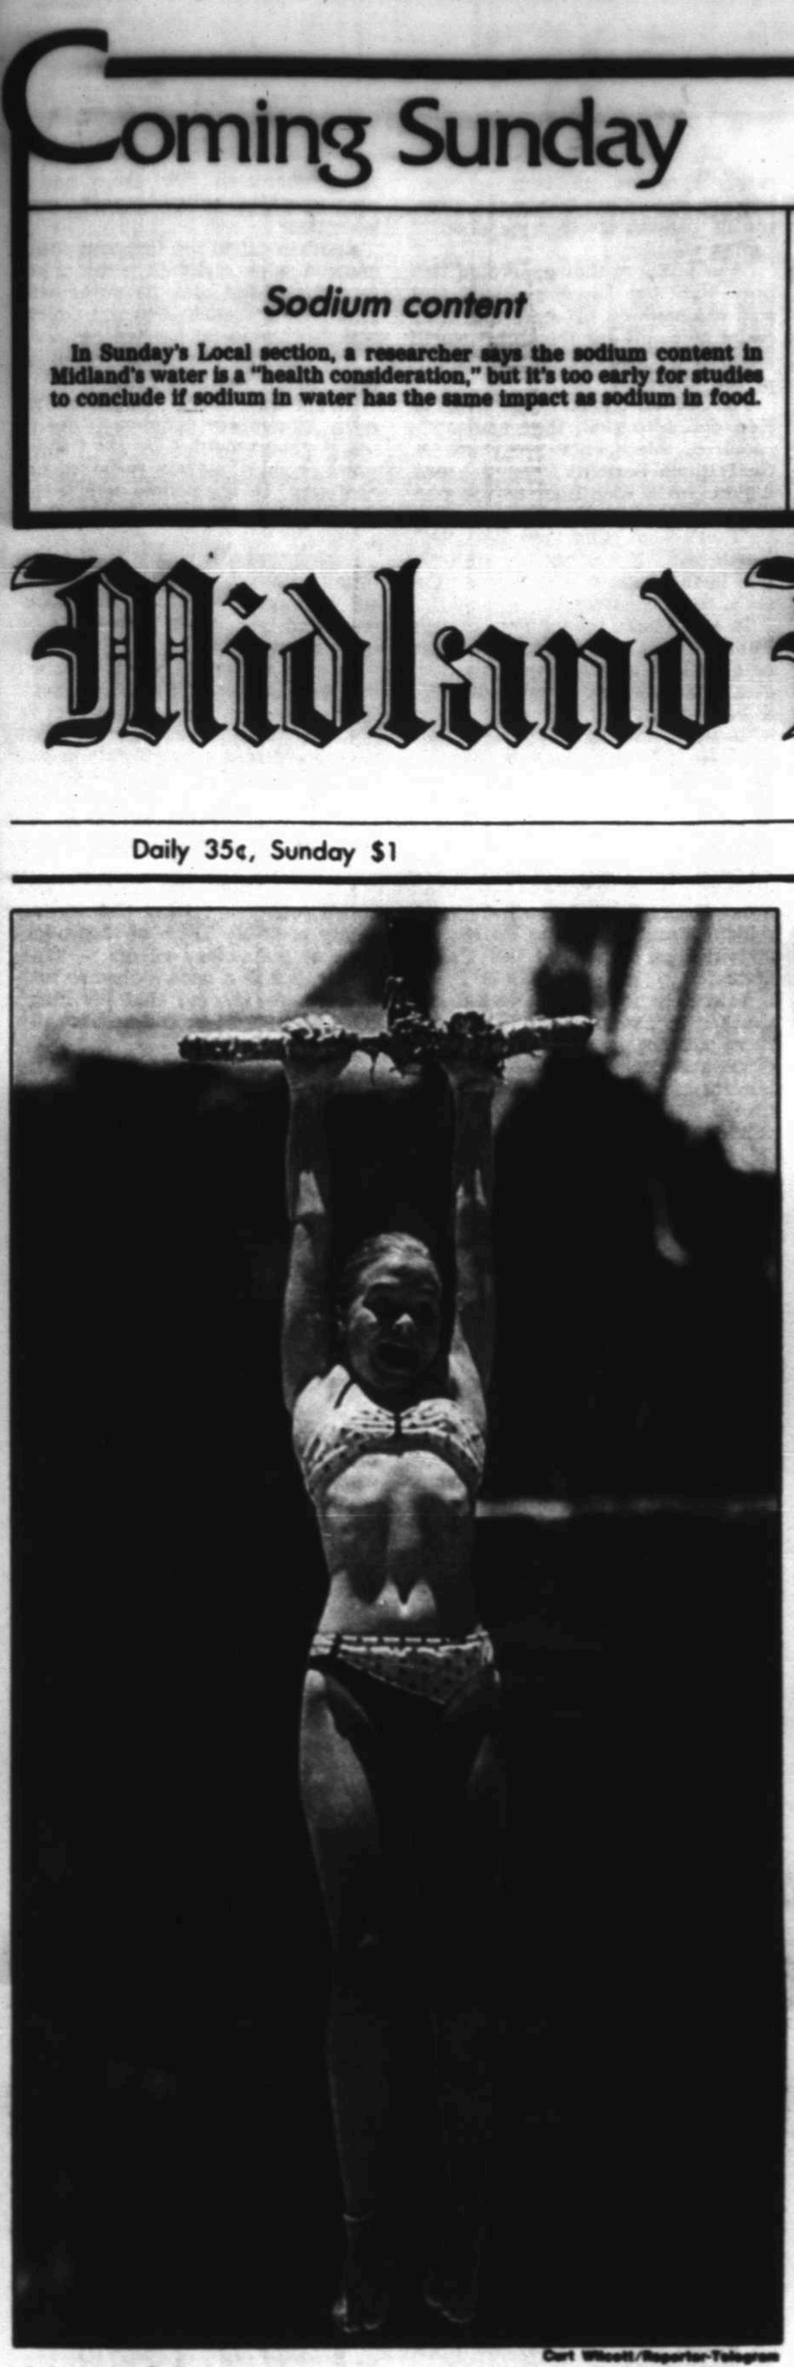

For the first time since the hearings began, members of the House and Senate committees squabbled publicly with each other, arguing over the questioning of North by Senate committee counsel Arthur Liman.

There were complaints of unfairness from House Republicans, including Florida Rep. Bill McCollum, who said Liman was "acting like a prosecutor...instead of a fact-finder."

Senators of both parties disagreed, and Sen. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., retorted that he thought Liman's questioning was "clearly within proper bounds," citing McCollum's previous words as supporting the need for close interrogation.

American dies in crash in Suriname

PARAMARIBO, Suriname (AP) — A Surinamese army helicopter piloted by an American and carrying another American crewman crashed near the border with French Guiana, killing the pilot, according to the army and a survivor.

An army spokesman, who refused to give his name, on Friday identified the pilot as Billy Pearson. The helicopter mechanic, who appeared in a television interview from his hospital bed, identified himself as Lymm Bevan and said he was an American.

Neither the hometowns of the two nor Bevan's condition were provided.

The U.S. Embassy said it could not confirm the death or that Americans were aboard the helicopter, but said it was looking into the report.

According to the army spokesman, the helicopter was on a reconnaissance mission when it crashed from a mechanical failure Tuesday night.

Rebels led by former army Pvt. Ronny Brunswijk who are trying to overthrow the government of Lt. Col. Desi Bouterse often clash with government troops in the jungle region where the crash occurred.

The army spokesman said the Americans, whom he believed to be Vietnam veterans, had been hired by the government. He said they were aboard a Bell helicopter, one of three helicopters owned by the army. The two others are French-made Allouttes.

Bevan said in a television interview Thursday night that four Surinamese soldiers were also aboard the helicopter.

Lying on his back with his eyes completely bandaged, Bevan appeared to be in pain during the interview broadcast by the Suriname Television Foundation.

He said that before the crash, he heard an explosion and the craft's motor failed when it was about 300 feet above the ground. The pilot tried to land, said Bevan, but the helicopter overshot the nearest clearing and hovered about 30 feet above the ground before going down.

According to the Suriname News Agency, the five men were flying between Paramaribo, the capital, and the border, where Brunswijk's forces have a base on an island in the Maroni River that divides Suriname and French Guiana.

During a news conference Thursday, interim Foreign Minister Ali Mahomed reported the helicopter crash and said the survivors were being treated at the Academic Hospital in Paramaribo.

Suriname, a tropical nation of about 400,000 people on South America's northeastern coast, gained its independence in 1975. Five years later, the military seized control of the government.

Watkins expects budget agreement

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Democratic State Rep. Gary Watkins expressed the belief Friday the House, Senate and Gov. Bill Clements will finally reach agreement on a budget but it may take a second special session to do it.

During a news conference at the Ector County Courthouse in the second floor courtroom of County Court-at-law Judge Carol Gregg, Watkins said the budget approved by the House is "slightly under $38.4 billion" for the biennium. This is about $1 billion under the Senate proposal, he said, and "is probably $200 million to $300 million over what Gov. Clements would have liked for us to approve."

However, Watkins said he believes the House proposal is "a workable budget, in the ballpark with what the governor will go along with."

A Senate-House conference committee is going over the budget now, trying to work out a compromise budget, the Odessa area state representative said. "I anticipate there will be some cuts come out of the conference committee, although I don't believe there will be major cuts," Watkins stated.

The first term representative said he believes "there's basic agreement between the governor and the House that we can't cut below this ($38.4 billion) level and continue to provide the central services. Any significant cuts," Watkins stated, "and we're talking about major closures of institutions, not just in West Texas, but throughout the state."

Asked about the possibility of a lottery, Watkins said he voted to put the question on the ballot so voters in his district would have an opportunity in November to voice their opinions. However, he said, only 85 House members voted for approval and 100 votes were needed. He said he doubts supporters will be able to muster the remaining votes needed to get the controversial issue on the ballot this year.

Another issue generating considerable debate is the proposal to tax insurance premiums, he said. This has produced major opposition from the Texas insurance industry, which he described as one of the strongest lobby groups in the state. The Odessa representative expressed the belief the tax would fall heavier on large companies than on individuals.

Watkins sees no threat to the Texas Tech Medical School in Lubbock or the health science facility in Odessa, though Texas Tech will realize some impact from general budget cuts in the system.

He noted that Odessa College has had some of its funding restored and expressed the belief that the University of Texas of the Permian Basin "has fared well." Observing that the UTPB funding formula is enrollment-based, Watkins said the budget for this biennium will be down somewhat, to about $12.4 million. "The only problem we're really having," he said, "is the Center for Economic Diversification is in the Senate budget for $374,000 per year and it was zeroed out in the House version."

However, Watkins said he is "optimistic that we can get some partial funding for that center in the final budget."

As far as closing schools in this area, Watkins said, "There have been some rumblings, but no serious efforts."

Lancaster starring in film based on play pope wrote

KRAKOW, Poland (AP) — A play about married life written by Pope John Paul II when he was a Polish priest 28 years ago is being made into a major motion picture starring Burt Lancaster.

The film, "In Front of the Jeweler's Shop," is the story of three married couples as seen through the eyes of a shopkeeper in Krakow. It is based on a play of the same name written by the pope, the former Karol Wojtyla, when he was a university teacher in 1960.

The Italian, American and Polish production is being filmed on location in the medieval heart of this southern Polish city. John Paul was archbishop of Krakow before becoming pontiff in 1978.

Also starring are British actor Ben Cross, British actress Olivia Hussey and Poland's leading film star, Daniel Olbrychski. The director is Michael Anderson, a Canadian.

The chief producer is the Italian television network RAI, and the movie is expected to be released in the United States and Europe next year.

Crowds of smartly dressed young Poles jammed behind barricades outside historic St. Mary's Church this week to watch the filming during evening hours on the city's huge market square.

Onlookers snapped pictures with pocket cameras as Lancaster, sporting a beard and drab black suit for his role as the jeweler, repeated a scene in which he locks up the shop.

Shooting in Krakow began last week and is expected to last four weeks. The cast then travels to Toronto for five weeks to complete the filming there.

The pontiff wrote the play in 1960 when he taught ethics at the Catholic University of Lublin. It is subtitled "Meditations on Marriage Which at Times Evolve Into a Drama."

The play had its public premiere in Poland at a theater in the southwestern town of Walbrzych in 1981 during the heyday of the now-outlawed Solidarity labor movement.

The work expresses the pope's traditional Roman Catholic view of marriage as a holy union and that the vows of fidelity, love and mutual honesty couples make to each other are also made to God.

"It's one man's concept of what is important in human nature," said Lancaster.

He described the jeweler as "a symbolic figure representing God as it were," in the sense of knowing everything about the characters, though not playing an active role in their lives.

The young Wojtyla, a budding actor in Krakow's underground theater during the Nazi occupation in World War II, wrote his first drama in 1940 before he decided to become a priest. He was ordained shortly before the end of the war, but continued to write drama and poetry, often using pseudonyms.

Permian Basin Food Bank gets building from Terk Distributing

By JAMILAH OWENS
Staff Writer

As a philanthropic gesture to the Permian Basin area, Terk Distributing Co. Wednesday donated a building to the Permian Basin Food Bank.

According to David Terk, president of Terk Distributing Co., the 16,721 square-foot warehouse, which is valued at $300,000 with all 1987 taxes paid, was contributed to the non-profit organization — which collects, sorts, cleans and redistributes wholesale and unsellable food to 93 agencies in 13 counties — as a memorial tribute to the company's founder, Phil Terk.

"This single project will serve to benefit the most people...not only, the people in Odessa but in Midland and other areas as well," Terk said of the building.

"The PBFB is an organization involved in helping feed the hungry and that in itself is a worthwhile cause...and it is an excellent recipient because it provides so much in the community," he said.

According to Dolly Neff, executive director of the Permian Basin Food Bank, although there are no plans as yet to move in the building, "we are very appreciative of the concern and interest expressed by the Terk family."

The Second Harvest National Network affiliate, only in its second year of operation, has collected and distributed over 1.2 million pounds of food to its numerous agencies, said Ms. Neff.

Most of the food received by PBFB are contributions from various area grocery stores such as Skaggs Alpha Beta, Safeway, Gandy, and many others, she said.

"We made eight pickups daily from the various grocers, averaging about 150,000 pounds per month," Ms. Neff said.

The food that is not damaged — in terms of food quality — goes directly to agencies for immediate distribution. Food that is badly damaged and/or is not safe for human consumption, is given to two pig farmers to feed their pigs.

Midlander injured in accident

From Staff Reports

An unidentified 30-year-old Midland man was hospitalized and listed in stable condition Friday night after a pickup rolled over on Interstate 20, a hospital spokeswoman said.

The man was admitted with head injuries and was being X-rayed late Friday night, the spokeswoman said.

The Midlander was injured around 9 p.m. Friday after being thrown from his '78 Ford pickup as it rolled over, said Department of Public Safety Trooper Jim Swain.

Another unidentified male passenger in the car was not injured, Swain said.

The accident occurred about five miles west of County Road 1788 after the driver tried to pass a car in the eastbound lane of I-20, Swain said.

As the driver was attempting to pass he lost control of his car, crossing into the median and rolling over once in the westbound interstate lane, Swain said.

The pickup landed on its side, north of the westbound lane.

The two men were not wearing seat belts, Swain added.

Locomotive rear-ends underground train

MERCURY, Nev. (AP) — A locomotive rear-ended an underground train carrying workers to their posts inside a tunnel at the Nevada Test Site on Friday, injuring 23 people, federal officials said.

Three people were examined at Las Vegas hospitals, but none of the injured required hospitalization, said Chris West, a spokesman for the Department of Energy.

West said the locomotive was following the train through the tunnel so it could pull the train back out after it discharged the workers. For some reason, he said, the locomotive banged into the rear of the train when it made a stop.

The workers, employed by site contractor Reynolds Electrical and Engineering Co., were preparing the tunnel for an underground nuclear blast when the accident occurred, West said.

NORTH

McCollum, he said, had declared in regard to earlier testimony about secret activities by North and others, "I think that that in itself may well be a crime. If it is not a crime it is certainly one of the highest acts of insubordination."

North, during his testimony, repeated his earlier statement that he lied to Congress about his activities with the Contras to save lives, but Liman asked him if the real reason was because Congress did not want the Contras supported.

"If Congress decided nobody in the United States should render support whatsoever to the Nicaraguan Democratic Resistance then it should have passed a law saying that," replied North. The law passed by Congress forbade military support and covert aid by intelligence agencies.

Despite the seriousness of some of the topics, the tone during much of Friday's proceeding seemed less tense than on previous days.

Once, North asked Liman with a smile if the attorney was criticizing him for not shredding well enough.

"My eyesight has suffered from reading what you left behind," Liman answered, provoking laughter in the Senate Caucus Room.

As the hearings continued on Capitol Hill:

— In a legal setback for North at the nearby U.S. Courthouse, Chief U.S. District Judge Aubrey E. Robinson Jr. upheld the Justice Department's March 5 backup appointment of independent counsel Lawrence E. Walsh, whose authority to investigate the Iran-Contra affair has been challenged by North on several fronts.

— At the White House, presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said North's testimony has provided President Reagan with a wealth of new information about events that occurred in his White House. "We don't know the facts of what happened. We don't know about meetings. We don't know about conversations," he said.

Lt. Col. Oliver North

Fitzwater also corrected initial White House statements this week which said Reagan had not taken any time out during his workday to watch North's testimony. He said Friday that Reagan watched the live broadcast of the hearings on Wednesday for a half hour before a speech-making trip to New Britain, Conn., and also watched for a half hour Thursday afternoon, in addition to keeping up with news reports.

At the hearing, Liman questioned North about the Poindexter memo on not sharing information with Casey.

"Would you agree this here is the ultimate covert operation — even one you should not talk to the director of central intelligence about?" Liman asked.

"The problem that generated this note was that Director Casey had told someone on his staff that they could go to me for the ship," North responded. "I was out of town or out of the office."

The call was placed to the office of Ken deGraffenreid, then senior director of intelligence programs for the National Security Council, a man whom North identified as the normal contact with the CIA.

"That's what generated this note," North said. "It was not my indiscretion in that case, it was Director Casey's, unfortunately."

To that Liman responded: "So this business of covert operations reached a point where not only Congress was regarded as too indiscreet to be told, but that even the director of central intelligence made that list." He referred back to North's earlier testimony that he lied to Congress and withheld information because he wanted to protect secret sources.

North said Casey, who died of brain cancer May 6, "was interested in the ability to have an off-the-shelf, self-sustaining entity to do certain activities on behalf of the Unites States."

Asked whether he was not shocked by the proposal, North said there was not necessarily a violation of laws if Casey used the organization for covert activities. "Maybe I'm overly naive," he said, "but what would be wrong with that?"

Committee sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said it appeared that Casey and North had plans for a series of covert actions around the world, possibly including some in support of rebel fighters battling leftist governments in Angola and Afghanistan. "Bill Casey had a very fertile mind," said one lawmaker.

Rudman called the fledgling organization "a government within a government," but said its cover was blown before other planned covert activities could be carried out.

"No damage was done" by those other plans, Rudman said.

Inouye said larger questions remain: "Should the people approve of secret governments? Do the people consider the Congress to be an impediment? Do the people believe the Constitution to be a worth document?"

Noting that this year is the Constitution's 200th birthday, Inouye added: "I suggest we study this document and how it was torn apart by this episode."

On another topic, North testified that Reagan pressed his aides to seek the release of American hostages in Lebanon "as early as possible," but never suggested a target date linked to the 1986 elections — as North had told one of his Iran-Contra operatives — or any other key domestic event such as his State of the Union address.

North testified that hostage William Buckley, a former CIA station chief, probably died of complications of pulmonary edema — "and that is that he'd been kicked so brutally in his kidneys that his lungs filled up with fluid, and he basically suffocated."

Buckley was kidnapped in 1984 by a group calling itself Islamic Jihad, a pro-Iranian fundamentalist organization that claimed it executed him in October 1985.

North said U.S. officials viewed photographs and a videotape of Buckley's torture, which he said was "one of the most difficult things that I experienced in this rather lengthy ordeal."

Police seize film taken of Israeli, PLO meeting

JERUSALEM (AP) — Police seized 12 rolls of film from a West German photographer who covered a meeting between Israelis and Palestine Liberation Organization members in Hungary, police and the photographer said Friday.

"I'm angry," said Andre Brutmann, a free-lance who has worked in Israel for five years. "I've worked in Thailand, India and Kampuchea (Cambodia) and never had my film confiscated."

Authorities said the film was seized as evidence.

Brutmann took the pictures in Budapest last month at a meeting between a 22-member Israeli delegation and PLO officials. Some of his pictures appeared in Time magazine.

Police subpoenaed six members of the Israeli group to question them about alleged violation of a law passed last year that bars meetings with members of terrorist organizations.

The law does not name the PLO, but Israel considers it a terrorist organization.

Brutmann, 40, said police questioned him for more than three hours Thursday at the Ramle police station in central Israel.

"They asked me about the meeting. I didn't want to answer and said it's not my duty to inform the police about people I take pictures of," said Brutmann, who has works for several German and Scandinavian newspapers.

He said police interrogator Itzhak Amsalem asked him to identify his pictures that appeared in Israeli newspapers and identify the people portrayed.

"I identified the photographs, which were credited to me, but not the people," he said. "Then Amsalem said: 'Well, Andre, we will now get a court order and confiscate the films as evidence.' "

Central District Police spokeswoman Orit Daka said confiscation of Brutmann's film "was not a police decision. The fact is we asked for a court order and it was indeed signed and issued."

"There are no charges against Brutmann. He was summoned as a witness. We just wanted to know what happened at the meeting," she said.

Ms. Daka said confiscation is "a usual practice when we need evidence material. We also take films from Israel television when needed."

The acting chairman of the Foreign Press Association, Jay Bushinsky, condemned the action.

"I have never heard of such practices being the norm in Israel, and I speak with experience of being for the past 21 consecutive years a foreign correspondent in this country," he said. "I am shocked and deeply concerned."

Defense motions delaying AIDS-related court martial

SIERRA VISTA, Ariz. (AP) — An Army judge was asked Friday to grant a change of venue for the first soldier to face an AIDS-related court-martial.

The military judge, Col. Raymond Cole, was given copies of newspaper articles and videotapes of television news reports about Pvt. Adrian Morris Jr. of Caseyville, Ill. Morris is stationed at Fort Huachuca here.

Morris, 27, is charged with three counts each of aggravated assault and conduct bringing discredit to the military, and one count of sodomy.

He is accused of failing to protect two female soldiers — one of whom was married — and a male soldier from the AIDS virus, because he did not tell them he carried the virus when he had sexual relations with them.

Defense lawyer John Caldwell said Morris could not get a fair trial in Sierra Vista because of extensive publicity about the case.

Cole did not immediately rule on the change of venue request, instead adjourning proceedings until Aug. 3.

Caldwell also asked the judge to describe in greater detail the charge related to bringing discredit to the Army. Caldwell said he wants to know whether the prosecution will use the same definition of "wanton disregard for human life" that is stated in a murder statute under the military justice code.

There is no definition of "wanton disregard" in the aggravated assault statute, but the definition in the murder statute requires the action to have been premeditated, Caldwell said.

Among the seven motions filed by the defense are motions to dismiss the charges and suppress certain evidence. The defense claimed that use of Morris' blood test results in a court-martial would violate U.S. Defense Department policy, and also that the blood was drawn without Morris' consent.

Morris faces up to 17 years in prison, loss of pay, demotion and a dishonorable discharge if convicted on all seven counts.

One of the female soldiers with whom Morris had sexual relations, Spec. 4 Patricia Pruitt, 21, of Atlanta, is engaged to Morris and is expected to have their child soon.

The Army has refused to say whether Ms. Pruitt has been tested for the AIDS virus.

FOOD

After a year, the pig farmers donate two pigs to PBFB — which are slaughtered and converted into sausage for distribution for human consumption, according to Ms. Neff.

"Services of this nature are very necessary and are a vital part of our community. It provides a much needed service. With the economy as it is today and the enormous amount of paperwork and time that is involved in certain social help programs, organizations like the Permian Basin Food Bank are necessary in providing immediate relief," said Fay Jones, social service director at the Salvation Army.

"We provide at least 11,000 people in the Midland-area with food," she said. "The recipients are no longer as predictable...there are whites, anglos, blacks, Mexican-Americans, rich, middle-class and poor people who come to here for food."

Ms. Neff added that "if agencies such as these were not able to help with emergencies, three to four thousand people would be without food."

According to Ms. Jones, the Salvation Army on-site feeding program and pantry can exist without the help of the PBFB but it is with their help "that we are able to expand our food budget dollar and serve more people."

Captive dolphins learning how to survive in the sea

MIAMI (AP) — Two dolphins caught for research in 1980 are getting lessons on how to catch their own fish so they can be returned to the sea.

Atlantic bottlenose dolphins Joe and Rosie, each thought to be about 9 years old, were studied in California between 1980 and 1984 by John Lilly, a physician who gained fame in the 1950s and 1960s for his efforts to communicate with the friendly, curious sea mammals.

When he stopped his work with Joe and Rosie, they became a popular attraction at the Dolphin Research Center in the Florida Keys.

"Everybody wanted to come see the Lilly dolphins," said Dolphin Research Center spokeswoman Jeanie Gargano. The center staff hopes to start its own research on teaching captive dolphins to return to the ocean, she added.

Last month, a small San Francisco-based group called Orca took Joe and Rosie to an undisclosed island off Georgia. They are working under the first federal permit issued for studying how to free captive dolphins.

The National Marine Fisheries Service issues permits for catching and keeping dolphins, which are federally protected.

Orca member Micky Remenn, in a telephone interview from San Francisco, declined to say whether any date has been set for releasing the dolphins.

To be ready for freedom, the dolphins must learn to catch and eat live fish and become acclimated to the ocean, said Linda Urb, chief dolphin trainer at the Dolphin Research Center in Grassy Key.

The Dolphin Research Center was formerly the Flipper Sea School, home to Mitsi the dolphin, the star of the pilot movie that spawned the television series "Flipper."

Mitsi died several years ago and was buried at the research center.

Talent scout for animals successful

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — If you think your dog is the next Lassie, your cat is another Morris or your horse is a ringer for Mr. Ed, your pet's ticket to stardom could be Sadie Hawkins, animal agent.

"Everybody wants their dog or cat to be a star. I've got hundreds of files from people who think they've got a talented dog," said the 78-year-old Hawkins, who runs Sadie Hawkins Animals Inc.

Hawkins saw there was a need for animals in advertisements in the early '60s, when her husband Robert was working as a model and actor and she was breeding dogs.

Her business soon grew to tracking down ostriches, snakes, monkeys and parrots, and Hawkins built a network of contacts.

"It might take me a little while, but I can find just about any kind of animal you need," she said.

She has signed the contracts of the basset hounds in the commercials for Hush Puppies shoes; Roy, the long-horned steer in Oldsmobile ads and Bonnie, a mutt who nevertheless found stardom on NBC-TV's "Remington Steele."

Hawkins also finds work for Zippy, an East Coast monkey and one of her favorite clients. A few years ago, Zippy spent a weekend with Hawkins, and fascinated neighbors by riding around on a bicycle.

He was a good house guest," she said. "Nice table manners."

Senate to vote on bill that would set debt limit at $2.565 trillion

NATION

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee voted Friday to raise the national debt limit to $2.565 trillion and sent the bill to the full Senate where it will become the battleground for this year's major fight over budget reform.

Meanwhile, the White House ordered federal agencies to come up with $10 billion to $15 billion in new spending cut plans, to show President Reagan intends to meet his deficit-cutting promises under the Gramm-Rudman law without the tax increases Congress proposes.

The debt legislation, approved by voice vote for Senate action next week, is needed quickly because the government's statutory borrowing limit of $2.32 trillion expires July 17. Committee Chairman Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said the total in the bill would probably reduced to a two-month short-term debt extension to speed passage.

Without new borrowing authority, no new government notes could be sold and, by month's end, the Treasury would be out of cash and forced to default on its obligations.

"I cannot overemphasize the damage that would be done to the United States' credit standing in the world if the government were to default," said Treasury Secretary James A. Baker, in a letter to the finance committee.

Knowing that the debt bill is "must pass" legislation, some senators are focusing on efforts to attach an amendment that would restore automatic spending cuts to the Gramm-Rudman budget-balancing law.

Gramm-Rudman was designed to force a balanced budget by fiscal 1991, but the Supreme Court threw out the automatic spending cuts that were to enforce the deficit-reduction program.

Democrats and some Republicans hope reviving the threat of those cuts, which would hurt Pentagon and domestic programs alike, might force Reagan to compromise on the budget and on tax increases. Reagan has promised to veto any tax-hiking bill.

"I expect that if a Gramm-Rudman (amendment) is attached" to the debt bill, "it will cast a whole new light on Republican cooperation in the budget process, including spending and taxes," said Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore.

Senate Budget Committee Chairman Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., and Sen. Pete V. Domenici of New Mexico, the panel's senior Republican, announced Thursday they were compiling a bipartisan package of budget reforms.

Chiles and Domenici said they also planned to ease the deficit reduction program, delaying a balanced budget until fiscal 1992.

The current maximum deficit target for fiscal 1988, which begins Oct. 1, is $108 billion. But budgets proposed by Reagan and approved by Congress failed to meet that goal, and Chiles and Domenici confirmed they were looking at a new target nearer to $150 billion.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, co-author of the original law who had planned to offer his own strengthening amendment, said he was willing to adjust the targets if the enforcement mechanism had teeth again.

Joseph Wright, deputy director of the president's Office of Management and Budget, said the administration might also consider a compromise on the deficit targets. "It depends on the whole package" of budget reforms, he said.

Congress is unlikely to give Reagan power to veto individual items in spending bills or a constitutional amendment to balance the budget. But the package may include other measures to tighten Congress' fiscal procedures.

Wright said the order to federal agencies, including the Pentagon, to find more spending reductions was aimed at keeping a pledge to comply with Gramm-Rudman. Congress has already rejected Reagan's budget, but Wright said the new suggestions could be put into future spending bills.

The administration's new spending cuts would provide alternatives to the $19.3 billion in tax increases Democrats proposed in their fiscal 1988 budget, he said.

Electric insect killers recalled

WASHINGTON (AP) — Electric insect killers which could catch fire are being recalled by Lowe's Companies Inc., the Consumer Product Safety Commission announced Friday.

Fires could occur in the machines if they are not cleaned frequently when being used in humid conditions, the agency said. It said Lowe's has been advised of 14 fires in the machines, four of which caused property damage.

The recall involves about 21,000 model BK-2000-7 bug killers sold in 21 states since March 15. They retailed for $19.99.

The model BK-2000-7 "Insect Electrocutor" is black, about 13 inches tall and 8 inches square. It has a short black cord. A label on the top contains the model number and item number 73012 as well as the UL listing.

Owners of the machines were urged to discontinue using them, and to return them to the nearest Lowe's store for a replacement. People needing more information can contact the safety commission at 800-638-CPSC.

The bug killers were sold at Lowe's stores in Alabama, Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Missouri, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, Mississippi, North Carolina, and West Virginia.

Doctor trying to find organ donors

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — A medical professor whose brother-in-law needs a heart transplant has mailed thousands of letters to health professionals in a bid to find organ donors.

Dr. Myron Genel, a Yale professor who helped write the National Organ Transplant Act, said his relative, noted immunologist Michael E. Miller, is one of a legion of critically ill people who suffer because of the shortage of organs.

Genel said Friday that at least 4,800 letters had been mailed and thousands more will be sent in a bid to increase awareness of health professionals to the organ shortage. The letters have been mailed by Genel and professional health organizations that support his effort.

Miller, 50, is waiting in a San Francisco hospital for a heart transplant after suffering a massive coronary June 19. His case is considered a "most critical need" by the national organ transplantation network set up as a result of the 1984 law Genel helped write.

Genel said earlier this week that there were an estimated 17,000 to 26,000 potential donors in 1984, but only about 3,290 cadavers were made available for organ donations. That was a 20 percent increase from 1983, he said.

Judge dismisses speeding charges

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) — Dozens of drivers had speeding charges dismissed when prosecutors failed to show up in Superior Court.

One young man yelled with joy, kissed his ticket and skipped all the way to his car after his ticket and those held by 62 other people were thrown out Thursday by Judge Howard J. Moraghan.

"There will be people here to handle the court's business or the cases will be dismissed," he said. "It's as simple as that."

Moraghan said he dismissed the cases knowing that there were people ready to plead guilty.

Two prosecutors, including Danbury State's Attorney Walter D. Flanagan, are on vacation. Two others are in the midst of criminal jury trials. The fifth prosecutor was handling the daily cases involving more serious motor vehicle matters, criminal cases, cases on a pretrial list and arraignments.

Assistant State's Attorney Brian Cotter said Moraghan acted correctly.

Doctor says Reagan bruises eyelid

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan bruised his lower left eyelid while removing a contact lens, creating a small bruise, the president's physician announced Friday.

Photographers noticed the tiny red bump when Reagan appeared at a meeting with administration supporters at the Old Executive Office Building.

Queried about the matter, the White House released a written statement from Reagan's physician, Army Col. John Hutton, saying the injury occurred Thursday.

"While removing the contact lens from his left eye, the president created a slight, superficial contusion (bruise) to his lower eyelid," Hutton's statement said. "The inside of the lid and eye are totally normal."

Authorities say officers had no chance to fire

INKSTER, Mich. (AP) — Policemen sent to a motel to serve arrest warrants on bad check charges encountered a woman and her three sons armed with several guns and apparently had no chance to shoot or negotiate before three officers were killed Friday, authorities said.

The four suspects, who had claimed to be holding the officers hostage, kept police at bay for 10 hours at the Bungalow Motel in this Detroit suburb before surrendering at 3:15 a.m. Friday.

Police Chief James Buckley said an automatic weapon, a high-powered rifle, a shotgun, handguns and a flare gun were found in the motel room. Mayor Betty Miller said police also found flak jackets and gas masks.

One of the suspects was identified as Alberta Easter, 69, the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office said. The other three suspects were her sons, said Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano.

The names of the sons were withheld pending issuance of warrants and arraignment, tentatively scheduled for noon today in Westland, said a secretary who refused to identify herself.

The slain policemen were identified as Sgt. Ira Parker, 41, a 15-year veteran, and officers Clay Hoover, 24, and Dan Dubiel, 36. Dubiel had been with the department 13 years, and Hoover joined the department in March, officials said.

Each was shot five to nine times, said police dispatcher Philip Rogers.

Buckley said Friday morning that no motive had been determined.

The woman had told reporter Bill Proctor of WXYZ-TV during the standoff that she was upset about a real estate deal that had soured and led to the bad check charge.

Hoover and Dubiel apparently encountered a problem when they tried to serve the warrants, and they called for Parker's assistance, Buckley said.

"As soon as he (Parker) entered the room, a barrage of shots erupted," the chief said. "Right now it does not appear extremely likely they (Hoover and Dubiel) encountered any weapons initially."

The officers apparently had no chance to return fire.

When the suspects emerged from the motel, "I think everybody was optimistic that the officers were OK and it was quite a shock when we found them," said Police Inspector Wilbert Reid.

On Friday, dozens of people crowded along barricades while police, reporters and residents milled in the courtyard of the Bungalow Motel. Broken glass from parked cars and the motel crunched beneath their feet. A burned tear gas canister and spent shells lay on a stripped bed in Room 106, where the officers were found dead.

Gov. James Blanchard ordered flags lowered to half-staff in tribute to officers, who were the first to die in the line of duty in Michigan this year.

Male prostitute ordered to undergo psychiatric exam

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A male prostitute accused of attempted murder because he sold blood and had sex despite knowing he might expose others to AIDS was ordered Friday to undergo psychiatric examination.

Bailiffs wore latex gloves and defendant Joseph Markowski, 29, wore a blue surgical mask, hospital gown and hand shackles during the hearing before Municipal Court Judge Florence Bernstein.

Defense attorney Guy O'Brien claims Markowski is incompetent to understand the four counts of attempted murder, four of assault likely to produce great bodily harm and two of attempted poisoning.

Ms. Bernstein appointed two psychiatrists to interview Markowski and report their evaluations before a July 30 competency hearing.

"On Tuesday, he was on a gurney in four-point restraints twitching uncontrollably, his hands in particular. He was babbling incoherently and was unresponsive," O'Brien said of his meetings with Markowski at County-USC Medical Center.

"There's no question he was totally unaware of what was going on," O'Brien said.

O'Brien said he believed Markowski's mental condition was caused by psychological problems rather than dementia sometimes associated with later stages of AIDS.

Deputy District Attorney Antonio Barreto said if Markowski is deemed mentally incompetent, he will be sent to a state mental hospital until he's capable of understanding the charges.

NATO submits new arms reduction plan

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The 16 NATO countries on Friday submitted a long-awaited proposal for new talks on European military security and conventional arms reduction.

It was the most significant proposal from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization since 1980, said Warren Zimmermann, U.S. ambassador to the 35-nation Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe.

The Communist bloc had given the conference several proposals on security talks and had criticized the Western alliance for not presenting one earlier.

NATO and the seven-member Warsaw Pact have been holding exploratory talks since Feb. 17 on the possibility of new all-European arms negotiations.

On Friday, the West proposed two sets of talks within the framework of the conference, which is the third follow-up conference to the 1975 Helsinki conference on military security, economic cooperation and human rights.

The proposal differed from the Warsaw Pact's proposal last month by omitting mention of battlefield nuclear weapons.

One set of talks proposed by the Western alliance would involve all 35 nations in what would amount to a continuation of the Conference on Security Building Measures, which ended last year in Stockholm, Sweden.

In Stockholm, the 35 NATO, Warsaw Pact and neutral nations agreed on some forms of verification, including informing each other about military maneuvers and inviting observers to military exercises.

The new proposal would make the verication agreements binding. Verification has been a stumbling block at the 13-year-old talks on Mutual and Balanced Force Reduction, also held in Vienna.

The West also would like to see agreements on a broader exchange of much more detailed military information, said Portuguese Ambassador Jose Queiroz de Barros. The West contends the East has more troops in Europe and does not give accurate accounts in official statistics.

The second set of talks would involve only the 23 nations that make up NATO and the Warsaw Pact because they have the most military power in Europe, Zimmermann said. These talks would concentrate on arms reduction.

France had agreed with the Warsaw Pact that all 35 nations, including neutral and non-aligned countries, should participate in these talks. But France later dropped its objection.

Western delegates said they proposed that both sets of talks be held in the same city.

Zimmermann said the Western nations agreed on the proposal only after six months of "very difficult, very vivid work within NATO."

Iran says ships searched for Iraq-bound cargo

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iran said Friday its marines in gunboats intercepted and searched 13 commercial ships in the Strait of Hormuz, but let them go after failing to find any cargo bound for Iraq.

The vessels were intercepted Thursday. The official Islamic Republic News Agency, monitored in Nicosia, did not give details, including the vessels' names or the countries of ownership or registration.

The Iranian navy has been intercepting commercial vessels sailing through the strait, the Persian Gulf's only outlet, in search of goods bound for Iraq. Iran and Iraq have been at war since September 1980.

The latest action was believed to be in retaliation for Iraqi attacks on Iranian oil tanker routes in the gulf and around Iran's Kharg Island oil terminal.

Iran also has been retaliating for Iraqi air strikes on its ships, which began in earnest in 1984, by attacking commercial vessels of Iraq's Arab allies.

In a related development, Iranian Parliament Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani renewed an offer to suspend raids on ships if Iraq called a truce in attacks on Iranian oil installations and tankers.

The United States plans to reflag 11 Kuwaiti oil tankers and provide them with U.S. warship escorts in the gulf as protection against Iranian attacks. Kuwait also has rented three Soviet tankers, which will be escorted by Soviet warships.

Rafsanjani told IRNA his country was "generally against U.S. flagging of ships belonging to a regional country."

"But if Iraq stops mischief and does not attack our ships, there would be no aggression against any ship by our side, whether that ship carried the U.S. or any other flag," he said.

Rafsanjani said that if attacks on Iranian targets were not halted, "retaliation will continue no matter whether the ship belongs to the United States, the Soviet Union or other countries."

Rafsanjani spoke Thursday night after a meeting in Tehran of the Supreme Defense Council, the body that directs war policy. His comments signaled a softening in Iran's stand toward the U.S. reflagging operation after weeks of threats of retaliation.

The Iranians have been attacking Kuwait-related tankers and freighters in recent months in retaliation for Iraqi attacks on Iranian ships. Tehran accuses Kuwait of supporting enemy Iraq.

A U.S.-operated supertanker, the Liberian-registered Peconic, was attacked Thursday by an Iranian gunboat off Kuwait, in apparent retaliation for Iraqi air strikes on two ships earlier in the week.

The Iranian National Liberation Army, an Iraqi-backed umbrella organization for guerrillas fighting Iran's government, meanwhile said in a communique its fighters killed 60 troops and wounded 50 in attacks on seven military bases in western Ilam province across the Iraqi border.

Five other fighters were captured in the raids near Kani Sakht, said the communique. It was issued by the Mujahedeen Khalq group from its office in Baghdad, Iraq, and telexed to The Associated Press bureau in Nicosia.

Iran did not comment on the report.

War claims by either side in the long conflict can rarely be verified.

Zambia lowers barge death estimate

JAMES CHIWASHA VILLAGE, Zambia (AP) — Officials on Friday sharply lowered their estimate of the number killed when a barge sank on a river crossing from Zaire to Zambia, but said the exact figure may never be known.

Local officials also said the barge, the Maria, apparently was dangerously overloaded.

Authorities initially said the Maria was carrying 470 people when it sank Sunday, that 80 people swam to safety and 44 bodies were recovered. They said 346 people were missing and feared dead in the flood-swollen, crocodile-infested Luapula River.

But officials said Friday the known death toll was 51, and that about 190 passengers swam to safety. They estimated the total number of passengers at about 250.

Rescue workers searching for bodies near James Chiwasha Village on the river, overlooking the wreckage in northern Zambia, said the actual toll may never be known. They said bodies were still being washed ashore as far as 20 miles away, and crocodiles may have eaten other victims.

The Maria was making a routine crossing of the muddy Luapula River when it struck a rock or sandbar in early-morning darkness.

Local officials said the diesel-powered barge was licensed in Zaire to carry 150 passengers.

Besides carrying extra passengers, the barge was packed with 900 crates of Zairean beer that passengers intended to smuggle past customs officers, according to coxswain Chisanga Mwila. Mwila, a Zambian, was being held by police pending an investigation into the accident.

Police earlier maintained Mwila was dozing when the Maria sank, but refused Friday to say if he faced charges of negligence. Mwila said he had just handed the helm over to a crewmate when there was a crash.

Residents of James Chiwasha Village said the Maria often smuggled beer into Zambia and returned with cornmeal, goats, chickens and dried fish.

Zambian Secretary of State Alex Shapi inspected the wreckage Friday and said he real cause of this tragedy is "smuggling."

He said smugglers used barges such as the Maria to travel at night and evade customs inspectors who, by law, charge heavy duties on most imports in both countries. Shapi called on the two governments to abolish import tariffs for goods trafficked on the river.

Today will be partly cloudy with less than a 20 percent chance of late afternoon thunderstorms. The high will be in the mid 90s with winds south at 15 to 20 mph.

STATE

Isolated thunderstorms and scattered showers dampened the upper and middle coasts and parts of Southeast Texas Friday, while moist, unstable Gulf air kept humidity readings high in the rest of the state.

A thunderstorm rumbled over the Big Bend of West Texas, while scattered showers moistened the hills around San Antonio and Austin, the National Weather Service reported.

Skies were mostly cloudy over most of Texas, although the Panhandle, the Trans-Pecos and far West Texas were sunny and clear.

In the forecast, South and East Texas should be mostly cloudy this weekend, and the rest of the state should be partly cloudy with a chance of afternoon thundershowers.

NATION

The eastern part of the country continued to swelter Friday, and scattered thunderstorms were reported in parts of the nation's midsection.

A severe thunderstorm watch was posted for parts of northeastern Wisconsin, much of upper Michigan and northern lower Michigan, and the adjacent waters of lakes Superior, Michigan and Huron.

Winds clocked at more than 90 mph were reported at Waseca, Minn., early Friday morning. One woman was injured when she fell while running to a shelter, and property damage was expected to be in the thousands of dollars, said Waseca County Sheriff Ed Kubat.

Early Friday afternoon, a strong thunderstorm moved through Unionville, Mo., damaging trees and power lines. Another heavy storm flooded streets and low-lying areas of Mount Clements, Mich., while in Phillipston, Mass., a storm brought hail and wind gusts to 60 mph.

A storm in Adair, Iowa, brought more than 2 inches of rain in a little more than two hours Friday morning.

Jerry Mennenga/Reporter-Telegram

Midland's Norm Carrasco awaits the throw from Angel catcher Doug Davis as Tulsa's Ruben Guzman is thrown out stealing in Friday's Texas League game at Angel Stadium.

Hill's blast downs Angels

Pinch hit homer one of seven in 14-11 game

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

When Tulsa pinch hitter Brad Hill connected with a Vinicio Cedeno fastball in the top of the ninth, he wasn't sure just how far it was going to fly. All he knew was he hit it hard enough to score the go-ahead run. And, he was right.

With two on, one out and the score tied at 11, Hill sent Cedeno's pitch toward the center field fence. It wasn't a towering shot, more like a floating line drive. Midland center fielder Damon Farmar kept drifting back, back, back and, finally, had to watch it drop over the fence to give the Drillers a 14-11 Texas League victory.

"I was just looking for something to hit," said Hill. "A guy coming in as a pinch hitter can't be looking for anything special. If you see a pitch you can hit, hit it. I knew I hit it hard and I knew it was over his head and at least one run would score. I didn't know if it was going out though."

"Just one pitch," said Midland manager Max Oliveras. "A good hitter hit a good pitch."

Hill's three-run blast erased a tremendous seventh inning rally for the Angels, a rally from eight runs down, 11-3.

With one out, Robbie Allen started it off with a walk and moved around the bases on singles by Norm Carrasco and Doug Jennings. Stan Holmes added another single to load the bases. All-Star third baseman Joe Redfield followed with a grand slam homer over the left-center fence for an 11-7 game.

Redfield's homer, his 19th, chased Tulsa reliever Dave Harman for Jose Cecena. The Angels didn't treat him any better.

After striking out Brian Brady, Cecena walked John Hotchkiss and Damon Farmar and gave Doug Davis the pitch he needed to tie the game with his first homer of the year, a three-run shot to left-center.

THE GAME was a long ball contest from the very beginning. Wes Clements gave Tulsa a 2-0 lead with his first TL homer of the year. It was, however, only Clements' sixth game.

Holmes tied the score in the Midland half of the inning when his single plated Robbie Allen and Norm Carrasco. Then came the top of the third and the real Midland downfall.

Angel starter Mike Romanovsky, who used a double play to get out of a small second inning jam, could find no escape in the third. The Drillers unloaded with a two-run homer by Jim St. Laurent and followed with two walks and a single.

Midland sent out reliever Barry Dacus, but he fared no better, allowing a pair of RBI singles and a sacrifice fly before the Drillers ran themselves out of the rally.

Jerry Mennenga/Reporter-Telegram

A pair of ex-Big Leaguers, Tulsa Manager Bill Stearns (12) and Eddie Jurak (22), discuss a Midland pitching change as Jurak takes a breather on third base.

George Threadgill was the first troubled runner, getting caught in a 9-4-6-3-4-3 rundown after Carrasco cut the throw from right fielder Brian Brady to start the chase. Then, after hitting a single, Ruben Guzman was caught stealing by Davis to end the inning.

The Drillers collected their third and fourth homers with back-to-back shots in the fourth, the first by Eddie Jurak, who leads Tulsa with 10, and the second by Clements.

The way the ball was sailing out of the park prompted both managers to make similar comments.

Strawberry, others, not All-Stars for NL managers

By RONALD BLUM
Associated Press Writer

Darryl Strawberry may be a hit with the fans, but he's off the team as far as National League managers are concerned.

Strawberry, the New York Mets outfielder who was elected by fans to start the All-Star Game for the fourth straight season, failed to appear on a single ballot cast by NL managers in a survey conducted by The Associated Press.

He was not alone in his absence from the managers' team.

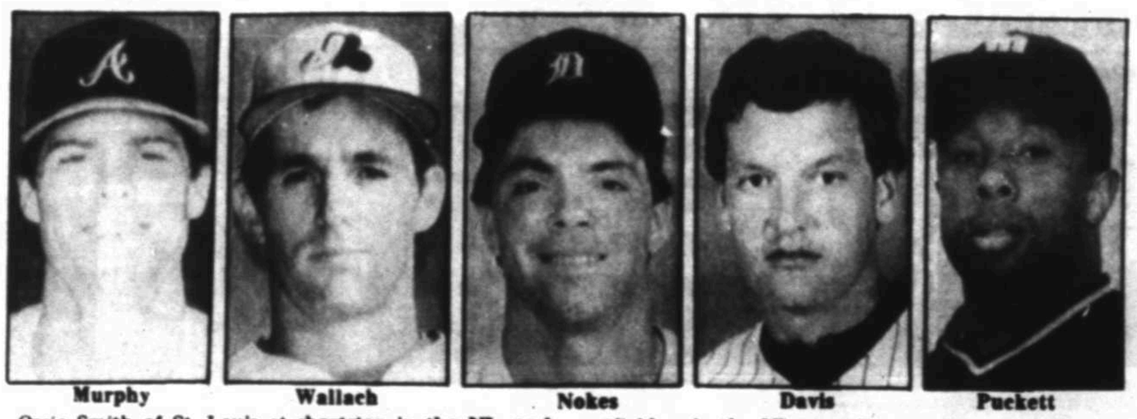

Neither Mike Schmidt nor Gary Carter, both elected by fans, would start for NL managers. Cal Ripken and Terry Kennedy of Baltimore, and Dave Winfield of New York would not start if American League managers made out that lineup.

Instead, Dale Murphy of the Atlanta Braves would take Strawberry's place, Tim Wallach of Montreal would play third instead of Schmidt, and Jody Davis of the Chicago Cubs would catch instead of Carter.

In the American League, Tony Fernandez of Toronto would play shortstop instead of Ripken, Kirby Puckett of Minnesota would start in the outfield in place of Winfield and Matt Nokes of Detroit would catch instead of Kennedy.

Twenty-four managers responded to the AP survey, conducted from June 29 to July 8. Tom Lasorda of the Los Angeles Dodgers and Tony LaRussa of the Oakland Athletics declined to pick a team.

Managers could not pick their own players. Three players received the maximum possible vote total —

Murphy | Wallach | Nokes | Davis | Puckett

Ozzie Smith of St. Louis at shortstop in the NL, and Wade Boggs of Boston at third base and George Bell of Toronto in the outfield for the AL.

The All-Star Game will be played Tuesday in Oakland.

Strawberry, who has been criticized by his New York Mets teammates for not playing hurt, seemed to feel vindicated by the fans' selection.

"It's a big honor," he said Wednesday when the final fan votes were released. "It just shows there are people out there who do care. I'm just honored about the whole situation. No matter what happens, my being criticized, the people believe in me."

BUT STRAWBERRY was not among the eight top outfielders in the NL according to the managers. Besides their starting trio of Eric Davis, Andre Dawson and Murphy, the managers voted for Tony Gwynn, Vince Coleman, Jeffrey Leonard, Willie McGee and Tim Raines instead of the Mets' outfielder.

"Basically it doesn't bother me," Strawberry said when told of the survey results. "If I'm not a starter, I would have been selected to the team anyway. I know that quite a few other outfielders are hitting for a better average, but I'm quite sure a lot of managers would pick me even if it were not to start."

Murphy, who had been the first NL outfielder to start in five consecutive All-Star Games since Hank Aaron, edged Gwynn 6½-6 for the final NL outfield spot behind Davis and Dawson. He said being chosen by the managers was some consolation.

"It's a nice feeling. It's an honor to be picked on anybody's all-star team," Murphy said. "Last year in my situation, the fans picked me and I started in the All-Star Game. I probably should not have."

Nokes finished 15th in fan voting for catcher as a write-in candidate with 33,688 votes, nearly 900,000 behind Kennedy. But he defeated Ernie Whitt 6-5 in the managers' voting with Kennedy getting two votes.

In another one-vote AL race, Fernandez edged Alan Trammell at shortstop 6-5. Ripken, who received 852,832 more votes than Fernandez from the fans, got just one vote from the managers.

Henderson got the third outfield spot with six votes, just ahead of Winfield and Jesse Barfield, who had five each. Puckett, who finished 56,121 votes behind Winfield in the fan balloting, had eight votes from the managers, second to Bell.

THIRD BASE was the only other close race in the NL. Wallach beat Schmidt 6-5 and at least one manager had mixed feelings.

"No question Schmidt is the guy, but Wallach was the key to Montreal's good start without Raines," Pittsburgh Manager Jim Leyland said. Leyland wound up voting for Wallach.

Davis, who finished more than 350,000 votes behind Carter in the fan balloting, got eight votes from the managers to one for Carter.

At pitcher, NL managers chose Mike Scott 6-2 over Sid Fernandez of the Mets.

1914 — Babe Ruth made his major-league debut for the Boston Red Sox and received credit for a 4-3 victory over Cleveland. Ironically, he was removed for pinch hitter in the seventh, and Duffy Lewis' single led to the winning run.

1939 — Yankee Stadium was host to its first All-Star Game, with the American League winning 3-1. Joe DiMaggio, one of six New York Yankees in the starting lineup, homered in the fifth inning for the third AL run.

Sierra's extra effort hammers Indians

Associated Press

ARLINGTON — Greg Harris pitched a four-hitter for seven innings and Ruben Sierra had three extra-base hits and three RBI as the Texas Rangers snapped a four-game losing streak by beating the Cleveland Indians 10-4 Friday night.

Harris, 3-8, allowed one earned run, walked two and struck out three as the Rangers ended Cleveland's four-game winning streak with four-run innings in the third and sixth.

Phil Niekro, 6-9, was the loser, allowing seven runs on nine hits in five innings.

After issuing consecutive one-out walks to Julio Franco and Pat Tabler in the first, Harris retired nine straight batters before Joe Carter got Cleveland's first hit, a double in the fourth when Texas already led 6-0. Cory Snyder followed with an RBI double.

The Rangers got two in the first on Sierra's RBI triple and Pete O'Brien's sacrifice fly. They added four in the third for a six-run lead.

Sierra's one-out double and O'Brien's RBI single made it 3-0. One out later, Larry Parrish walked and Oddibe McDowell tripled home two runs, then scored on Mike Stanley's single.

AL Roundup

After the Indians scored an unearned run in the sixth, Sierra hit a two-run double and Pete Incaviglia a two-run single in the bottom of the inning for a 10-2 lead.

Carter hit a two-run homer, his 20th, in the eighth for Cleveland.

Yankees 9, White Sox 5

NEW YORK — Don Mattingly hit his third grand slam in less than two months and Dave Winfield followed with a solo homer as New York scored seven runs in the second inning and defeated Chicago.

Both home runs — Mattingly's 12th of the season and fourth in the last three games and Winfield's 20th — came off Joel McKeon after the Yankees tied the score 2-2 with two runs against starter Scott Nielsen, 2-3, on RBI singles by Rick Cerone and Rickey Henderson.

McKeon relieved Nielsen after he walked Willie Randolph to load the bases, and Mattingly lined McKeon's 2-1 pitch into the bleachers in right-center. His other grand slams were May 14 against Texas and June 29 in Toronto after failing to hit one during his first four seasons in the majors.

Winfield capped the biggest inning against the White Sox this season with his solo homer.

Blue Jays 7, Royals 0

TORONTO — Dave Stieb pitched a four-hitter and George Bell hit his 29th homer and drove in two runs as Toronto blanked Kansas City.

It was the fifth victory in a row for the Blue Jays while Kansas City, which has been shut out 12 times this season, lost for the fifth consecutive time.

It was the first shutout and complete game of the season for Stieb, 7-5, who walked two and struck out seven. His longest previous outing this season was 7⅔ innings against the Royals.

Stieb got all the support he needed when Kelly Gruber hit an RBI single in the second, and Bell and Lloyd Moseby each added an RBI in the third.

Charlie Moore led off with a double, moved to third on a single by Tony Fernandez and scored on Moseby's single to right.

Cecil Fielder made it 4-0 when he started the sixth inning with his ninth homer, and Bell added his 29th leading off the eighth. Garth Iorg and Tony Fernandez added RBI singles later in the inning.

Orioles 13, Twins 12

BALTIMORE — Larry Sheets hit a sacrifice fly with one out in the ninth inning as Baltimore got two three-run homers from Fred Lynn and came from behind four times to defeat Minnesota.

Eddie Murray, who had four hits and three RBI, opened the ninth with a single, one of 27 hits in the game, and went to second on a walk to Lynn.

George Frazier, 5-4, then was relieved by Juan Berenguer. Murray went to third on a fielder's choice bunt by Ray Knight, and after an intentional walk to Terry Kennedy, Murray scored on Sheets' fly ball to right.

The winner was Mark Williamson, 3-6, the fifth Baltimore pitcher.

The Twins tied the score 12-12 with two runs in the top of the ninth on RBI groundouts by Dan Gladden and Tim Laudner after they loaded the bases with no outs.

Minnesota scored four runs in the first off Dave Schmidt, the last on a double by Tom Brunansky. But an RBI single by Eddie Murray and Lynn's first homer tied it 4-4 in the bottom of the inning.

Kirby Puckett's RBI groundout put the Twins ahead 5-4 in the second, a lead lost when Murray hit a solo homer in the third.

Ruidoso pays $94,000 pot

From Staff Reports

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. — Professional gamblers took home a $94,000 jackpot on Friday at Ruidoso Downs when two winning tickets returned $47,000 in the track's Twin Trifecta events.

A partnership of six businessmen from Roswell, N.M., called Pic-Six Limited held one of the $47,000 winning tickets, while another professional gambler from El Paso pocketed the remaining $47,000.

A woman who identified herself as "a close friend" of one of the Pic-Six Limited partners cashed the ticket for the group.

Pic-Six Limited spent spent $1,700 to peg 20 exchanges in Friday's Twin Trifecta events.

The El Paso handicapper, who also asked to remain anonymous, said he bet $676 to have 15 exchanges for the second half of the Twin Trifecta.

"This is the third time I've hit the Twin Trifecta since it started at Sunland Park this spring," he said. "I play it every day and bet anywhere from $72 to $144 when there's no carryover. As it goes up, I adjust my bet upward."

Strikes threaten All-Star game

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Two unions that have threatened to set up picket lines at baseball's All-Star Game next Tuesday sought the support of other unions at a Central Labor Council meeting on Friday.

Labor leaders for Local 28 of the Hotel Employees and Restaurant Employees Union and Local 53 of the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians want the backing of the 11 unions that operate at the Oakland Coliseum.

Owen Marron, assistant council secretary, said the 11 unions at the Coliseum had been notified of the upcoming vote. Although he wouldn't predict which way the council would vote, he noted that local labor history has demonstrated that unions generally support each other.

Marron said on Thursday that about 600 workers could be involved in the labor action, even without additional support from other unions.

In all, three separate labor strikes were threatened for the event, including caterers, workers at the Holiday Inn and Hilton Hotel and broadcasters from Los Angeles-based Local 53. The caterers and hotel workers belong to Local 28.

Danny Cassidy, spokesman for Local 28, said his union would also ask the AFL-CIO and Teamsters Union to support the strike. He said that would add the support of workers from the building and construction trades, guards, ticket-takers, ushers and janitors.

The NABET strike against NBC began nearly two weeks ago and involves 2,800 workers. Union spokesman Tom Kennedy said NABET members are willing to resume negotiations "anytime, anyplace," although no talks are planned.

NBC has offered to raise salaries 3.64 percent in the first year and 4.68 percent in the second year of a contract. It wants to be able to expand the use of temporary employees and daily hires.

Chi Chi leads the legends

FAIRFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Chi Chi Rodriguez, winner of five tournaments already this year, shot his second straight 68 Friday to take a one-stroke lead at the midway point of the U.S. Senior Open.

Former NFL quarterback John Brodie was in front by as many as three strokes until he went a bogey-double-bogey on his final two holes.

Brodie, who finished with a 70, dropped into a tie for second place with Gary Player who closed his round with birdie putts of 18 and 30 feet for a 68. They were a stroke behind at 5-under 137.

Arnold Palmer shot his second straight 69 was two strokes back at 138.

The par-71, 6,599-yard Brooklawn Country Club course yielded 36 sub-par rounds through the first two rounds to smash the four-round Senior Open record of 31 rounds under par set last year.

Rodriguez, 51, had six birdies and three bogeys as he took advantage of Brodie's misfortune on the final two holes.

"This is about the only time in your life you're going to see a jockey take down a quarterback," the slightly-built Rodriguez joked.

Brodie, who had a 4-under 67 in the opening round, picked up where he left off as he pursued his first pro victory.

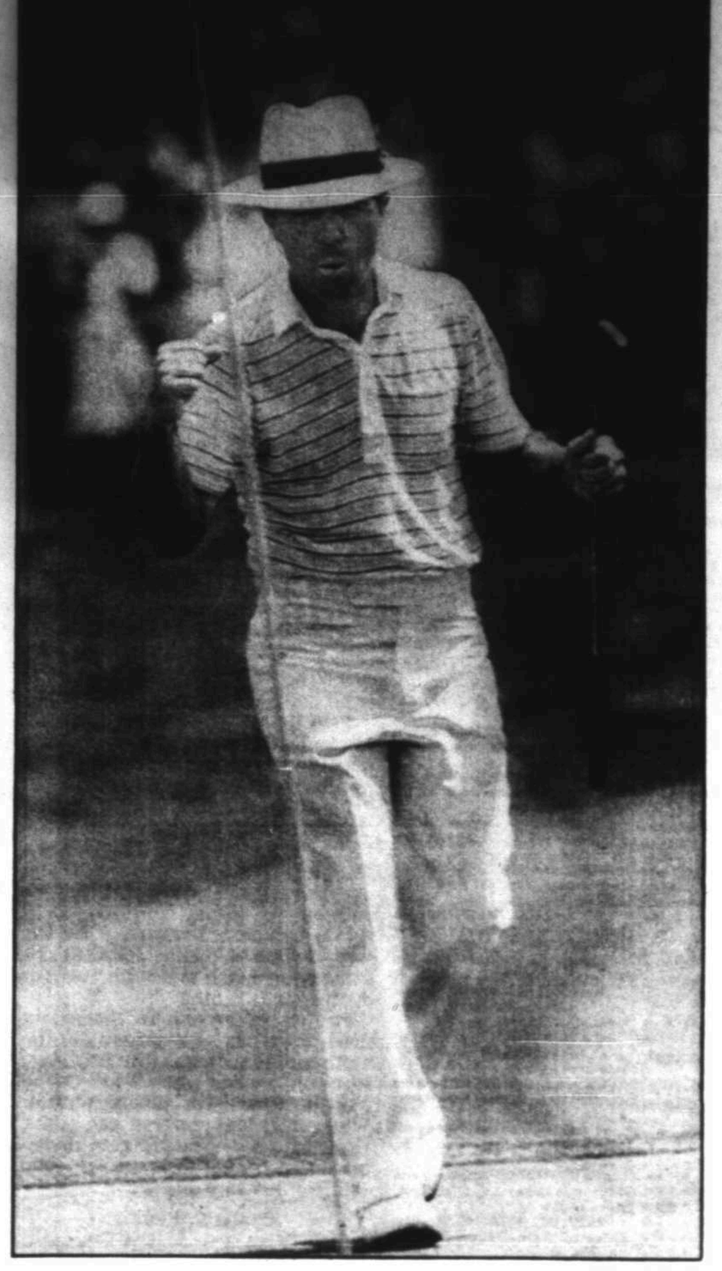

The former all-pro with the San Francisco 49ers had four birdies and no bogeys until the last two holes, both par-4s. He called his second shot on No. 18, which went into a sand trap, the worst shot of his life.

"I guess that's what happens when you're paying your dues," he said. "I tried to hit a cute little seven iron ... I won't do that again.

The first round co-leaders, five-time British Open champion Peter Thomson and little-known Gordan Jones, both faltered.

Thomson, an Australian, shot a 2-over 73 but remained three strokes behind Rodriguez in a group with Doug Sanders, Don Massengale and Bobby Nichols.

With himself, Rodriguez and Player coming on strong, Palmer, the oldest of the leaders at 57, remarked, "If you wanted a script, you couldn't write one any better."

Gary Player recaptures some glory, sinking a long birdie putt at the U.S. Seniors Open in Fairfield, Conn., Friday.

Simpson putts field behind, takes lead in Busch Classic

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Tim Simpson, crediting a new approach to putting he said came to him in a dream, shot a 6-under-par 65 Friday to take a one-stroke lead after the second round of the Anheuser-Busch Golf Classic.

Simpson started on the back nine, where he rolled in four straight birdie putts, and carded three more birdies after making the turn.

His two-day total was 132, 10 under par on the 6,776-yard Kingsmill Golf Club course.

"It's good to be playing well again," said Simpson, whose only victory in 11 years on the PGA Tour came at the 1985 Southern Open.

"What I was doing wrong, believe it or not, came to me in a dream after the first round of the U.S. Open," said Simpson. The 31-year-old resident of Dunwoody, Ga., said he did not want to divulge the specific nature of the dream "because somebody might use it this week to beat me."

"I really don't want to say exactly what it is but ... it relates to the mental aspects of putting," Simpson added.

Closest to Simpson at 133 were first-round co-leader Tom Sieckmann, John Cook and Scott Hoch.

Sieckmann, winless in 10 years on the PGA Tour, followed his opening-round 65 with a 68. Cook shot a 67 and Hoch carded a 66.

Mark McCumber, who shared the first-round lead with Sieckmann, had a 69 and joined Dave Eichelberger and Steve Pate at 8-under 134 going into Saturday's third round of the $612,000 tournament, which carries a $110,000 first prize.

Bobby Clampett, Mike Sullivan and Ron Streck were at 135, with Jay Don Blake, Vance Heafner and Jim Gallagher another shot back at 136.

Seventy-five of the 156 golfers survived the cut, which was set at even-par 142. Among those who missed was defending champion Fuzzy Zoeller, who shot a 143.

Simpson parred his first hole, No. 10, and bogeyed the 11th before bouncing back with birdie putts of 15, 2, 7 and 8 feet on the next four holes. He didn't get into trouble the rest of the way, and added three birdies on Nos. 5, 6 and 7.

Simpson nearly aced the par-3 fifth hole when his 6-iron rolled to within six inches of the cup.

"I have been the most negative person out here for the last 10 years about my putting," Simpson said. "I finally decided to stop beating on myself."

The temperature, which had reached 98 degrees Thursday, was lower throughout the day Friday, and a steady breeze also helped make playing conditions more comfortable.

"It was actually quite a bit cooler out there today," Sieckmann said.

Okamoto leads Canadian stop

LPGA

LAVAL, Quebec (AP) — Ayako Okamoto of Japan birdied three of the last four holes Friday to shoot a 3-under-par 69 and take a two-stroke lead after two rounds of the $400,000 du Maurier Classic, the lone Canadian stop on the LPGA Tour.

Okamoto, who shot a 65 to lead after the first round, matched par over the first 14 holes, but rode a hot putter on the last four four holes to finish the first 36 holes at 10-under-par 134.

Jill Briles, who shot her second consecutive 68, was alone in second at 136. Kathy Postlewait also had a 68 and was at 137, while first-round runner-up Shirley Furlong could only match par-72 and dropped into a group of five players tied at 138.

Okamoto was playing consistent but unspectacular golf until she birdied the par-4, 15th hole with a 20-foot putt to go 8-under.

She then rolled in a three-foot putt to birdie the par-5, 488-yard 16th hole, and sank another 20-footer for a birdie on 18.

"I was leaving my putts maybe three feet short on almost every hole on the front nine," said Okamoto, the third-leading LPGA money-winner in 1987.

Breland keeps title by decision

SANTA MARGHERITA DI PULA, Sardinia (AP) — World Boxing Association welterweight champion Mark Breland outpointed Venezuelan Juan Rondon in a 10-round non-title match early Saturday.

From the start, the unbeaten 24-year-old from Brooklyn pounded Rondon with his powerful left hand, showing no effects from a March operation to fix a sore tendon in his hand.

Breland knocked down his outclassed opponent late in the third round with a devastating right to the mid-section, but Rondon, 19-4, quickly recovered and fought defensively for the rest of the bout.

Dodgers go from scourge to dirge

By JIM MURRAY

Murray

Once upon a time, there was this team called the Dodgers and they were the scourge of the National League.

Other players used to dream of joining them. They were known as The Organization and they were supposed to be the best in the business.

When they came to town, autograph seekers lined up in force around the hotel lobbies, in the airports and on the approaches to the ballpark.

Other teams cursed when they looked down their lineup card. Cleanup hitters came up with mysterious back ailments on the days they had to face Dodger pitching. Good pitchers found they had developed blisters overnight and would have to skip a turn in the rotation.

The Dodgers didn't overwhelm you, they just beat you. They didn't have any guys who were in danger of batting .400. They didn't have anybody challenging Babe Ruth's records. But they had a whole bunch of people who played to win. They did have Cy Young Award winners on the mound and they had a guy who revived the art of base-stealing, but this was Jackie Robinson's team. And Branch Rickey's. And once, long ago, Leo Durocher's. Whatever it took.

There was an aura to being a Dodger. They didn't swagger exactly. They weren't haughty like the Yankees but they came through the front door, all right.

But, most of all, I think, they expected to win. It was, after all, a Dodger tradition. Occasionally, they lent the title to somebody else for a year or two. Bobby Thomson hit a once-in-a-lifetime home run, they let a playoff with the Giants get away from them.

But they never let it get permanent. In a year or so, order would be restored.

THE BALLCLUB was owned by the O'Malley family and the patriarch was a rasp-tongued, cigar-smoking, Irish-whiskey-drinking canny old party who, like England, expected every man to do his duty.

Walter O'Malley was particular who became a Dodger. You kept your shoes shined and your hair combed and you were good to the wife and kids and it didn't hurt if you went to church on Sunday.

O'Malley had paid a steep price for this team and Walter liked to get interest for his money. He was patient. But he wasn't Job. He had jerked the team out of Brooklyn when he got sick of the politicians' lies but he didn't come 3,000 miles to preside over a second-division operation. When the team finished next-to-last in its first full season in L.A., Walter let them know that would be all right. Once. But not to let it become a habit.

When they won the pennant and the World Series the very next year, O'Malley acted as if he was the least surprised person in town. That's what he paid them for.

L.A. went ape over the Dodgers, and Walter O'Malley didn't want to let it down. He never interfered with the day-to-day operation of the team. No one ever saw him in the locker room. But he checked the standings very carefully. Walter was a bottom-line man. If the players were bad, he went to the man who had hired them. If the ship ran aground, O'Malley looked to the bridge, not the crew.

"Dynasty" may be too strong a word for the Dodgers, but the pennants flowed. In 1963, they stood the baseball world on its ear when they did the unthinkable. They took the lordly Yankees, no less, pulled their hats down over their ears, kicked their tails and swept them in four humiliating games. That was supposed to be the Yankees' trick.

SO, WHAT happened? When did the Dodgers turn the clock back to the '30s when they were the Flatbush Follies, the laughingstock of the game?

That wasn't supposed to happen west of the Gowanus. Dodger Stadium is not Minsky's. It's the Old Vic.

Baseball changed. But people thought the Dodgers wouldn't. They were no longer the third banana in the Big Apple. They were a Star in Hollywood. No one else in the game got 3 million people a year just by opening the doors.

Walter O'Malley died, but Peter O'Malley is Walter II. A Xerox. It isn't as if they sold the club to some conglomerate with some fuzzy notion that a ballteam could be run like a fast-food chain.

But you would have to wonder what Walter O'Malley would do with the cast of characters the Dodgers have become. The teams that won five pennants in the '50s and three in the '60s and again in the '70s, the team that had the Jackie Robinsons and Duke Sniders and Don Drysdales and Sandy Koufaxes and Steve Garveys suddenly had a lot of guys who played in three other places and couldn't remember how to do it.

This O'Malley can't seem to stop the bleeding.

THE DODGERS limped St. Louis Monday night with all the civic fanfare of a guy hopping off a freight. The once-feared cast of characters was about as excitement-causing as a road company of "Carmen."

So far as the host Cardinals were concerned, this cast was just the piano for their latest concert. The Cardinals are the ones winging their way to the National League pennant this time. The Dodgers are just an easy little par-3 over a brook. An almost a rest-the-regulars opponent. If they were in the same division, the Cardinals would be leading by 13.

Were the 1937 Dodgers any funnier? Was Chaplin? Sooner or later, Hollywood spoofs everything — "Camille," "The Three Musketeers," "Cyrano" — and turns it into script for the Ritz Brothers. All these Dodgers need is a busty blonde, a pig's bladder, a bottle of seltzer, horned-rim glasses and baggy pants. They have to learn to wait for their laugh. This has to be a remake of "A Night at the Opera." The Keystone Dodgers.

All-Star Brett picks up an extra $50,000

Associated Press

George Brett earned an extra $50,000 when he was named to the American League All-Star team. He doubts he deserves it.

Brett, who is hitting .320 with 7 homers and 30 runs batted in for the Kansas City Royals, was named as a reserve third baseman.

Because of an injured shoulder, Brett has missed about half of Kansas City's games and, since his return, he has played first base. By making the All-Star team, he earned $50,000 because of a clause in his contract.

Andre Dawson of the Chicago Cubs has a similar contract clause, and his election by the fans to the National League starting team also earned him $50,000.

Brett, who had started in 11 consecutive All-Star Games, was surprised.

"I already wrote myself off the team. I thought there was no way I would make it," Brett said after he was added to the team Thursday by AL Manager John McNamara and league president Bobby Brown.

Of the 56 players who will participate in next Tuesday's game in Oakland, Calif., 25 will get bonuses for being selected. They range from $5,000 for Milwaukee reliever Dan Plesac to $50,000 for Brett and Dawson.

But their gain is nothing compared to the $300,000 pitcher Roger Clemens of the Boston Red Sox lost by failing to make the team — $150,000 this year and $150,000 in his contract for next season. Clemens, the American League's Cy Young Award winner and Most Valuable player last year, held out for most of spring training and is just 7-6 with a 3.70 earned run average.

Mottet takes yellow jersey

FUTUROSCOPE, France (AP) — Frenchman Charles Mottet took the overall leader's yellow jersey Friday after finishing second in the 10th leg of the Tour de France cycling race, behind Irishman Stephen Roche.

Roche, of the strong Carrera team, captured the 54-mile leg, an individual time trial from Saumur to Futuroscope, in a time of one hour, 58 minutes, 11 seconds, riding at an average speed of 27.5 mph.

Jesper Skibby of Denmark placed third, 53 seconds off the pace.

Mottet, of the Systeme U, team finished 42 seconds behind and was jubilant after his ride in hot weather.

"To wear the yellow jersey is every cyclist's dream," Mottet said. "It's great."

Switzerland's Erich Maechler had worn the jersey, and led the overall standings since July 4.

Mottet, in eighth place overall and 1:36 behind after Thursday's ninth stage, Mottet gained 2:42 over Maechler to take over the overall lead. He now heads the tour by 47 seconds, ahead of West German Dietrich Thurau. In third place is Jorg Muller of Switzerland, 50 seconds behind.

Tour de France

Maechler is fourth, 1:06 off the pace, while Roche has moved up from 26th to sixth reducing his deficit from 5:41 to 3:23.

Monique Knol of the Netherlands captured the second stage of the women's race in a sprint and took the overall lead.

Defending champion Jeannie Longo finished fourth in the 53.4-mile race in the same time as Knol in 2:11:52.

Knol capitalized on bonus points to move into first place in the overall standings with a time of 3:56.05. Longo is 12 seconds behind.

Finishing second in Friday's stage was Laima Zilporite of the Soviet Union, with Jutta Niehaus of West Germany in third. They had the same time as the winner.

Zilporite is third in the overall standings, 16 seconds behind Knol, while Maria Canins of Italy is fourth, 17 seconds behind the leader.

Major League Notebook

And Bill makes three

BALTIMORE (AP) — Veteran infielder Rick Burleson was released Friday by the Baltimore Orioles, opening the way for the American League club to add another Ripken to its roster.

The Orioles said a replacement for Burleson would be named after Friday night's game, and it was expected to be Billy Ripken, son of Manager Cal Ripken Sr. and brother of shortstop Cal Ripken Jr.

Reached at Rochester, where Pete Stanicek already has been called up from Charlotte as a replacement for Ripken, the youngest member of the baseball family said it was "a great feeling. I'm overwhelmed."

Ripken this week had eight consecutive hits for the International League club. He was hitting .286 with 11 homers as the regular second baseman.

Never before in major league history has there been a manager with two sons on the same team.

Besides the current Ripkens, there have been only two other father-son combinations — Connie and Earle Mack of the Philadelphia A's in 1910, 1911 and 1914, and Yogi and Dale Berra with the New York Yankees in 1984 and 1985.

Burleson, signed as a free agent after playing out his option with the California Angels, hit .209 while splitting second base duties with Alan Wiggins.

"I didn't produce offensively," the 36-year-old Burleson said as he packed his bags prior to the game. Burleson, who played more than 12 seasons with Boston and California, said he didn't expect to be contacted by another club.

M's acquire 'Sarge'

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs on Friday traded left-fielder Gary Matthews to the Seattle Mariners in exchange for a minor-league player to be named later.

Matthews, one of the standout players of the Cubs' divisional championship team in 1984, had been relegated to a pinch-hitting role this year. Nine of his 13 hits were pinch hits.

"I'm happy about the trade and about being given a chance to play,' Matthews said after the trade was made. "But, I'll always have warm memories of 1984."

Surgery on both knees has slowed Matthews in the field and he is expected to be used as a designated hitter with Seattle.

The Cubs are expected to activate second baseman Ryne Sandberg this weekend to take Matthews' roster spot. Sandberg, selected by the fans to start in Tuesday's All-Star Game, was placed on the 15-day disabled list June 14 with a sprained right ankle.

Matthews, 37, helped Chicago to the National League East title by hitting .291 with 14 homers, 82 RBI and a league-leading 19 game-winning hits.

Dodgers woo Gillick

TORONTO (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers have approached Toronto Blue Jays vice president Pat Gillick with an offer to take over running their baseball operations in 1988, according to a published report.

Gillick, who has been with the Blue Jays since 1976, one year before they actually began play in the American League, would neither confirm nor deny the report.

The Dodgers have been short-handed in their front office since Al Campanis, the vice-president for player personnel, resigned early in the season. Campanis said during a nationally televised interview that blacks lacked the necessities to hold key positions in baseball's front-office.

His job was taken over by Fred Claire, the executive vice-president ofthe Dodgers, but unlike Gillick and Campanis, Claire was never a professional player. He was a sports writer who joined the Dodgers in a public-relations capacity, and then worked his up way to the vice-presidency.

Cox breaks foot bone

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals, front-runners in the National League East despite a number of injuries to their pitching staff, received another jolt Friday when they learned that right-hander Danny Cox suffered a broken bone in his right foot.

Cox suffered the injury Thursday night when hit by a line drive by Mike Aldrete in the seventh inning of a game against the San Francisco Giants.

Cox, the Cardinals' most reliable starter with an 8-3 record, was placed on the 21-day disabled list and purchased the contract of outfielder Lance Johnson, 24, from Louisville of the American Association.

REASON FOR THIS SALE...

With the end of our fiscal year we've had a chance to reflect back on our past year, and we've had the best year ever Thanks to you! THIS IS THE WAY IT WORKS...

Any open stock item on the floor will be sold at a special cost. Some at actual dealer cost, some even below our cost, some slightly above. In all cases, the price will be sensational! If they are one-of-a-kind items you can take them with you at the time you're in the store. If they are displays, you must leave them in the store til the sale is final. Once the displays are sold you may buy a brand new item in a box for just an additional 5%. Some items are guilty of only being uncrated, sometimes only to be inspected. But hurry! It's first come, first served! NO RAINCHECKS-ALL QUANTITIES ARE LIMITED! NO SPECIAL ORDERS!

Our floor models, and displays, when purchased, will be marked "sold" and our customers must leave them until after the sale. If you would like a new item already in a box, just add 5% and it's your's! (IF ONE IS IN STOCK). NO RAINCHECKS. ALL QUANTITIES LIMITED. NO SPECIAL ORDERS!

The mummy of ancient Egyptian king Ramses II is shown in the Egyptian museum in Cairo. The mummy, along with 14 other royal mummies, will be put on public display seven years after the late president Anwar Sadat ruled that displaying them would be against the dignity of the dead.

Royal remains to go public

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Ancient royal mummies are going on public view for the first time since then-President Anwar Sadat ordered them put behind locked doors seven years ago because he felt gawking tourists violated the dignity of the dead.

Starting in October, visitors to the Egyptian Museum will be allowed to look at the remains of Pharaoh Ramses II, among the grandest monarchs of the 25 centuries of Pharaonic Egypt, and of 14 other kings, queens and princesses.

They will be displayed in a renovated museum chamber across a hallway from the fabulous treasures of the boy Pharaoh Tutankhamun — King Tut.

Although hundreds of mummies of ordinary people have been excavated, only 27 royal mummies dating from 3,000 to 3,800 years ago survived tomb raids by ancient-treasure seekers. They were discovered in a common tomb in 1881 across the Nile River from the southern city of Luxor, where ancient priests had hidden them from grave robbers.

The royal remains were on display from 1958 until 1980, when Sadat decided during a visit to the museum that the display of royal remains violated religious concepts and desecrated the dead.

"Sadat was right in stopping their display under those conditions, which were bad and undignified," said Ahmed Kadry, head of the government's Egyptian Antiquities Organization, "but he had no right to forbid their display forever.

"Tourists and Egyptology-lovers have the right to see an important part of ancient Egyptian life, the fascinating mummification process."

The offhand decision by Sadat, who was assassinated a year later by Islamic fundamentalists, never was put on paper as an official presidential order. Nevertheless, antiquities officials, speaking privately, said the dcision to open the mummies again to the public required delicate political maneuvering.

The problem, they indicated, was to construct the decision so that it would not be seen as an aspersion on the assassinated president's prestige or judgment, yet to show that it was not wrong to reopen the doors on the mummies.

Kadry, who did not head the antiquities organization when Sadat closed the mummy room, said a new chamber is being prepared in the 85-year-old Egyptian Museum off Liberation Square in downtown Cairo.

"They have to be displayed in a refined way that maintains their dignity," he said in an interview. He added that the new display conditions will include scientific controls to stop disintegration of the fragile mummies, some of which are deteriorated badly.

The mummy of Ramses himself was taken to France in the 1970s for treatment of a fungus condition that threatened its ruin.

U.S. origins in religion

NEW YORK (AP) — Although modern commentators sometimes argue about whether religion should have anything to do with politics, it was a religious concept that produced the nation itself.

That transcendent principle was the backbone of a document celebrated on July 4 — the Declaration of Independence — which initiated the very nationhood that gives politics its life.

The declaration "ought to be commemorated as the day of deliverance, by solemn acts of devotion to Almighty God," wrote John Adams, one of its signers who became the country's second president.

He also suggested fireworks and parades would be in order, the sort of festivities that mark issuance of that formative document in 1776.

In its essential reasoning, it was a theological treatise, challenging the prevailing theory that kings inherited divine rule.

The justification that it sets forth for the birth of these United States was that human beings are "endowed by their Creator with certain unalianable Rights" that cannot be usurped by any other power.

They belong inherently to people, rights derived from the "Laws of Nature and Nature's God," the declaration says, and they cannot be given nor taken away by any monarch or government.

Kwikscan printing process to aid Bible readers, schools tested

RELIGION

WINDERMERE, Fla. (AP) — Two years ago, Max Morris went through a spell of enforced idleness. Cataracts in one eye made it difficult for him to read his Bible.

He tried different ways to improve his reading ability and settled on emphasizing key words and phrases by making them larger and bolder.

The result was Kwikscan, a printing process designed to let readers absorb the content of written material while reading only 40 percent of the text. A learning specialist says it might keep some slower students from dropping out of school.

Morris, an entrepreneur with a doctorate in divinity, is showcasing his work through the Bible, emulating the example of Johann Gutenberg, the German credited with inventing movable printing type more than five centuries ago. Morris is publishing the King James version of the New Testament in Kwikscan.

Kwikscan enlarges and boldfaces words within the regular text to form separate sentences, synthesizing the message into a few words that can be more quickly and easily digested than the whole work. The text remains intact for those who want to read the complete book.

The process employs narrower columns and uses indicators to direct eye movement to each line containing the key words.

"We don't distort the text in any way. Every word is there," says the bearded Morris, 57, a Southern Baptist who has preached, served as a consultant to television ministers Jerry Falwell and Rex Humbard, and run several businesses.

"But Kwikscan's greatest value," according to Morris, "is in acquiring quick information. You can scan it (the text), get the kernel of it and improve your understanding and retention of it."

The patented system can be applied to any text: novels, the classics, legal reports, trade journals, technical documents.

Still, the success of the system hinges on public reception of the Kwikscan New Testament. Some 650,000 copies of the 421-page paperback volume were ordered and began moving into bookstores around the nation a few weeks ago at $7.95 each.

"We think it could be very, very big," says Mike Anderson, a marketing executive at Riverside Book and Bible House Inc. of Iowa Falls, Iowa, one of the country's largest Bible wholesalers.

In adapting the Bible to Kwikscan, Morris hired three Bible scholars and trained them in the special computer program devised for the process. They decided which words, phrases, sentences and paragraphs should be emphasized to provide for quick, smooth reading. The computer program containing the entire text was then sent to a printer.

"Depending on the text, we have to get somebody very knowledgeable in the subject," says Morris, who notes there were "discussions and consensus" among the scholars on what Bible phrases to emphasize.

An example from Morris' New Testament (with capital letters substituting for the boldfaced upper and lower case of Kwikscan), from John:

"10: THEN THE DISCIPLES WENT AWAY AGAIN unto their own home. 11. BUT MARY STOOD without at the sepulchre weeping: AND AS SHE WEPT, SHE stopped down, and LOOKED INTO THE SEPULCHRE AND SEETH TWO ANGELS in white sitting, the one at the head, and the other at the feet, where the body of Jesus had lain."

Micro-Books Inc., a company formed by Morris and his wife, Nila Vae, is publishing the Kwikscan books, which will include a series of "how-to" books to be sold in supermarkets.

Their latest project is to set up a division of Micro-Books called Micro-Tech, which would adapt industrial and military manuals and materials to the system.

Then there's the possibility of textbooks.

"If students really understand and remember their subjects better, textbook publishers would want to use it," says Margaret Miller, director of a research project on Kwikscan at the University of Central Florida.

LIFESCOPE

Everything Seem To Be Going Wrong? Your Lifescope Says, "Walk With God And Nothing Shall Defeat You!"

O my afflicted people, tempest-tossed and troubled, I will rebuild you on a foundation of sapphires and make the walls of your houses from precious jewels. I will make your towers of sparkling agate, and your gates and walls of shining gems. And all your citizens shall be taught by Me, and their prosperity shall be great. You will live under a government that is just and fair. Your enemies will stay far away; you will live in peace. Terror shall not come near. If any nation comes to fight you, it will not be sent by Me to punish you. Therefore it will be routed, for I am on your side. I have created the smith who blows the coals beneath the forge and makes the weapons of destruction. And I have created the armies that destroy. But in that coming day, no weapon turned against you shall succeed, and you will have justice against every courtroom lie. This is the heritage of the servants of the Lord. This is the blessing I have given you, says the Lord.

O Lord God! You have made the heavens and earth by Your great power; nothing is too hard for You! You are loving and kind . . . You have all wisdom and do great and mighty miracles; for Your eyes are open to all the ways of men, and You reward everyone according to his life and deeds.

Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and you shall find; knock, and the door will be opened unto you, for with God nothing shall be impossible.

Christian film makers 'make offering' to motion picture market

AP Laserphoto

Brothers Darryl, left, and Frank Kuntz, two Dallas film makers, are filming "Dakota in Texas," their first-ever theatrical feature film, in Texas, with an all-Texas cast and crew.

By KEVIN B. BLACKISTONE

DALLAS (AP) — When Frank and Darryl Kuntz, two Dallas film makers, release their first-ever theatrical feature film, it undoubtedly will receive a G rating — for general audience, guts and God.

Kuntz Bros. Inc. is in the midst of becoming the first company in the small but recently profitable Christian film industry to make an offering to the giant billion-dollar major motion picture market.

"It's always been in the back of our minds to do a feature film," said youngest brother Darryl, 41, explaining the company's unprecedented decision to produce the $1.1 million "Dakota in Texas" for the secular movie market. "And with the industry the way it is right now — with video and foreign markets — there's a good possibility it can be real profitable."

Kuntz Bros. recently completed principal shooting near Roanoke on the film, made in Texas with an all-Texas cast and crew and scheduled for release next year.

Not everyone, of course, in this heretofore hidden niche in the film industry is as optimistic about the Kuntz Bros.' experiment.

"I'm skeptical about them doing that, especially if they keep to their Christian values," said Harry Bristow, owner of Christian Cinema Inc. in Ambler, Pa., and one of the pioneers of the evangelical film industry. "The commercial field has never been acceptable to this kind of thing."

The Christian movie industry, however, has experienced a popularity boom of sorts that has translated into profits. And Kuntz Bros., which has been a part of that, is gambling that the time is ripe to take its wholesome, family-oriented dramas into the general motion picture market.

Kuntz Bros., a family-owned company that includes Darryl's wife, Lynn, as script writer and Frank's wife, Sandy, as publicist and business manager, is among more than 80 evangelical film production companies in the United State, according to the loosely organized Christian Film Distributors Association, based in Oak Park, Ill.

Bristow, who co-founded the association in 1973, said Christian film producers make between 30 and 40 films annually, including about a dozen short feature films.

The films are distributed through a network of more than 80 domestic and 30 foreign evangelical film libraries that have access to more than 3,000 titles. The libraries rent the films to churches and other religious groups for anywhere from $35 to $150, according to the association.

"It's not a very large market," said Michael Korpi, a Baylor University professor of telecommunications who is studying the Christian film industry. "It's maybe $20 million a year in rentals. And probably the top five titles account for 40 to 50 percent of the market."

The association reported that many of the producers, like Kuntz Bros., are based in Texas, including the largest, Waco-based Word Inc.

In 1980, Word Inc., a subsidiary of media conglomerate Capital Cities-ABC Inc., produced a series of films featuring lectures by a popular California evangelist, the Rev. James Dobson. Korpi estimated the series has grossed about $20 million.

The Kuntz brothers, who started their company in 1980, also have realized success in what has become a highly competitive industry. They entered the fray after producing Channel 39's "The Good Time Gang," a 30-minute children's show, between 1976 and 1980.

"We saw there was a crying need for good children's films," said Frank Kuntz, 49. "And we felt the TV situation was about to dry up on the local level, but we wanted to continue what we were doing. So producing that show evolved into making films."

Like many start-up small businesses or independent film companies, Kuntz Bros. did not have the capital to support its venture. But the brothers' background as a music and comedy duo gave them an idea of how to raise financing.

"We invited some businessmen down to the Chaparral Club and gave them a show," Frank said. "We got 12 investors out of it."

Kuntz Bros. created its limited partnership, and the investors committed $150,000 for the first production, "The Penelope Gang," a 35-minute film released in early 1982. The film, which rented for $45, struck a lease rate of 300 per month, which the association stated is a very healthy rate in the industry.

"It wasn't enough by itself to support us, but it did bring in some revenue, and we were able to to make a second film," Darryl explained. "And as the films rented, they brought in royalties for us."

During the next 4½ years, Kuntz Bros. produced four more films at a cost of no more than $210,000 each. They included two more children's films, "The Big Money Mixup" and "The Tunnel," and two youth movies, "Angel Alley" and "Harley."

Jim Tuell, president of Educational Evangelism Inc. in Euless, a distribution and production house, said Kuntz Bros. films rank in the 95th percentile of all Christian film rentals.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Samaritan Counseling Center gets accreditation

Norman D. Godfrey, executive director of the Samaritan Counseling Center of West Texas Inc., has announced that the Center has been awarded full accreditation for the period from July 1987 to July 1990 by the Samaritan Institute of Denver.

"Accreditation is a significant hallmark for the Center and the community," according to Richard Bollinger, assistant director of the Institute. "To achieve accreditation, the center met 44 standards in organizational structure, staff affiliation, financial management, administrative process, and professional accountability. The board and staff have put together the ingredients needed to build and maintain a highly professional, well-managed, church related counseling center."

Samaritan Centers provide counseling for individuals, couples, and families; educational programs; and consultation for physicians and pastors. A team approach unites the resources of the counselors, ministers, and physicians in helping people under stress.

The Samaritan Counseling Center of West Texas Inc., was established in 1973 be a local board representing a cross-section of the community and several congregations. The board of directors, led by President James Bell, has full legal responsibility and control for the center.

The center is located at 202 Pilot Rd. at Midland Air Terminal, and employs a staff of six counseling professionals and three administrative persons.

Through its association with the Samaritan Institute, the center is part of a network of 65 Samaritan Centers serving more than 130 communities.

Crestview films continue

Three film series, which are currently under way at Crestview Baptist Church, will be continuing Sunday at 5:45 p.m.

"Building Bonds Between Adults and Their Aging Parents," in its third week, is designed to help adults and their parents understand and accept changing roles, define and express their needs, cope with adjustments and typical problems, choose best options, and used biblically-based guidelines for building and maintaining healthy, happy relationships. The class is led by Jo Ann Bridges.

"Strengthen Your Grip on Attitudes," third in the series "Strengthening Your Grip on Essentials for Living in an Aimless World," features Charles R. Swindoll, president and Bible teacher of the radio ministry "Insight for Living." This series is offered to single adults.

"Maximum Marriage" will conclude with "How Do You Spell Relief?" The series, by Tim Timmons, offers "hope, encouragement, and handles for maximum marriage."

Crestview Baptist Church is located at 3300 Thomas Ave. Kenneth Hall, pastor, says the public is invited and child care is offered.

The children will be participating in Bible story times, art activities, music, service projects, recreation and worship. The activities will center on five themes — Jesus, the Saviour-servant; Blessed with Gifts; Partners in Gospel; Serving Others; and Celebrate New Life.

The church is located at 2705 W. Michigan. For more information, call 694-1373.

District convention set

The Watchtower Bible and Tract Society of New York has announced a three-day district convention has been scheduled for July 17-19 at Chaparral Center.

Frank Garig, convention manager, said 2,500 persons are expected to attend the annual convention.

Garig said 123 conventions are planned in the United States this summer with more than one and a quarter million delegates visiting 65 U.S. cities.

In addition to English, Garig said conventions are arranged for the Spanish, French, Greek, Italian, Japanese, Korean, and Portugese languages.

"The program will focus on the major problems that affect humanity," Garig said, "and will offer practical suggestions on coping with these problems. The pressures on the family in these times of tremendous change is of special concern to us."

The principal address of the convention, "In Our Fearful Times, Whom Can You Really Trust?" will be delivered by Orville Weldon, July 19 at 2 p.m.

College dean to speak

Dr. Mark Ballard, dean of Mount Vernon Bible College in Ohio, will be the guest speaker Sunday at the Living Way Foursquare Church, 415 Alta.

He will speak in the 9:45 a.m. and 11 a.m. services.

According to a church spokesman, the public is invited to both services.

Second in film series set

The second in the film series, "Maximum Marriage," will be shown at Golf Course Road Church of Christ Wednesday evening, 7:30 p.m.

The film, entitled "The Eleven Battlegrounds of Marriage," deals with the most common difficulties facing marriage today.

The program will be held in the church's family center. Classes for children will be held concurrently. The public is invited to the free presentation, according to Emory Mansour, a spokesman for the church.

Homecoming scheduled

The congregation of Macedonia Baptist Church, 201 S. Carver, will hold their fourth annual homecoming Sunday.

The Rev. Tony Lightfoot of Midland will speak at the 11 a.m. service; and the Rev. Dudley Johnson of Denver, Co., will speak at 2:30 p.m.

Johnson is the founder of Beth Salem Baptist Church in Denver and has served as its pastor for the past 17 years. A former member of Macedonia Baptist Church, he holds a doctor of theology degree from The United Theological Seminary in Denver. He founded and organized the Truelite Gospel Singers and the Spiritual Wonders of Midland.

He is a member of the Ministerial Alliance and the Baptist Ministers Conference of Denver.

Friends and former members of the church are invited to both services, according to a church spokesman.

Dignity Masses banned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington's Roman Catholic Archbishop James A. Hickey has banned Sunday night celebrations of Mass by Dignity, an organization of Roman Catholic homosexuals, at Jesuit-run Georgetown University.

Missionary ministers to society's leaders

ATLANTA (AP) — Once a missionary among the poor, the Rev. Emmit Young now ministers to the powerful — politicians, bureaucrats and business leaders.

His work, developed over the last 12 years under Presbyterian sponsorship, is carried on both in this country and several Latin American countries.

It involves helping society's leaders transfer "scriptural principles into the decision-making process of their professional life," he says.

Young, based in Atlanta, previously had served for a decade as a missionary among the poor of Brasilia, the capital of Brazil, but he says working with the elite is just as important.

Scripture shows "God is concerned about public life," Young said in an interview.

"I am absolutely convinced that the place for our obedience to Christ to be the most authentic is in the midst of our secular life."

He shifted to his present work in 1975 in Brazil, moving his base to the United States in 1983 and establishing prayer groups among politicians in Washington and businessmen in Atlanta.

He also continues work with groups of legislators and other government leaders in Brazil and 11 other Latin American countries.

He said the meetings, including a Washington group that meets the second Tuesday of the month, follow a general structure beginning with "a short study of a biblical text" on Christ's teachings.

The studies are led by members of the group and "are not a platform for professional religious people," Young said.

The group then discusses such topics as "What does it mean to be a congressman, or on the commission of education, responsible in that area of public life, and clearly to be a Christian?"

The Washington group consists of about 10 people, including officials of the Organization of American States and the World Bank, and is headed by Sen. Paul Trible, R-Va.

Unlike some politicians who make their Christianity a part of campaign rhetoric, Young said most of the participants in his various fellowships go about their work quietly.

Whether in Brazil or in the United States, Young said, legislation is never sought nor decisions made in the name of the group.

But if the group decides a particular action needs to be taken, or a position put forth, they will work that into speeches and votes, Young said.

In Atlanta, where he has been given office space by a downtown Presbyterian church, Young has established the Atlanta Resource Foundation, which brings influential businessman together with people running various community programs.

The foundation's goal is to tap the resources of business for use in underfunded programs for helping others pursue their aspirations.

He said the foundation allows businessmen and other leaders to undertake projects that are "not wound up in religious cliches."

Young's first missionary assignment was in 1964 in poor areas of Brasilia, but he said he began to have difficulties relating to the poor, and was asked in 1975, when another Presbyterian returned to the United States, to take over his role with Brazil's Christian leadership movement.

Young was brought to the United States in 1983 to help establish similar fellowship groups here.

Pennzoil, Texaco talks not renewed

STATE

HOUSTON (AP) — Pennzoil Co. and Texaco Inc. have not renewed talks in an attempt to settle the multibillion-dollar judgment Texaco was ordered to pay Pennzoil, despite recent speculation, the Houston Chronicle reported Friday.

"There are no settlement talks. Everything that has been reported is bull," the newspaper quoted a Texaco source as saying.

Rumors about a settlement of the $11 billion judgment have been rampant on Wall Street since the Securities and Exchange Commission said it would intervene in the case.

The SEC is expected to file a brief with the Texas Supreme Court supporting Texaco's position that Pennzoil's agreement to merge with Getty Oil Co. was not binding because it would have violated federal securities regulations.

In November 1985, a Houston jury found that White Plains, N.Y.-based Texaco had interferred in the planned Pennzoil-Getty merger. The decision was affirmed earlier this year by the Texas 1st Court of Appeals. Texaco is asking the state Supreme Court to review the case.

While the SEC intervention may have strengthened Texaco's position, it wasn't enough to move the two sides back to the bargaining table, the Chronicle quoted its sources as saying.

"Nothing has changed since then except that Texaco's settlement offer following the SEC announcement got a lot lower," another Texaco source told the newspaper.

The two sides had several negotiations sessions in the week before Texaco and two financial subsidiaries filed for protection under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code on April 12. Those talks followed the unanimous U.S. Supreme Court decision that overturned two lower federal court decisions and directed Texaco to seek relief from the Texas appeals bond requirements in state court.

The newspaper reported its sources as saying Houston-based Pennzoil and Texaco executives have not met face-to-face since the day Texaco filed for protection from Pennzoil and other creditors.

The communications lines between the two, however, has been kept alive through outsiders such as industry executives and other informal talks continue on an almost daily basis, the Chronicle reported.

The rumors and speculation have had a dramatic impact on the prices of stock for the two companies.

On Monday, the first trading day after the settlement talk comments were made in bankruptcy court, Texaco climbed to 44¾. Pennzoil has recovered most of its lost ground, moving up to 79¼ on Monday.

Texaco was among the most heavily traded securities Friday on the New York Stok Exchange, with more than 1.3 million shares changing hands. The stock was down 25 cents to $45, apparently because many investors were cashing in gains made during the stock's recent runup. A week earlier Texaco traded at about $41.

Pennzoil stock closed at 80⅝ Friday, down ⅜.

On Friday, Australian financier Robert Holmes a Court said in a filing with the SEC he has raised his stake in Texaco Inc. to 9.5 percent, the second time this week the investor has disclosed an increased holding in the troubled oil giant.

Texaco stock was among the most heavily traded securities Friday morning on the New York Stock Exchange.

There has been speculation that a takeover of Texaco would provide the company's management with a way of escaping the litigation with Pennzoil. On the other hand, industry analysts say, Texaco is not considered a good takeover candidate because of its bankruptcy-law status.

Former director thinks AIDS hospital will fail

HOUSTON (AP) — The nation's first AIDS hospital may fail in the next two to three months because administrators lack a plan to keep it alive, a former director at the hospital said.

Daniel Moreschi, the former director of development at the Institute for Immunological Disorders, who now works as a medical consultant, said he left the hospital in May because, "the only thing advancing at that point was the virus."

The institute began with Moreschi's vision of a hospital devoted to AIDS treatment and research. He says he's not ready to give up on the idea, but he fears that American Medical International, the company that operates the institute, no longer supports it.

But American Medical International spokeswoman Ann Wheeler said Moreschi is wrong in saying AMI plans to close the hospital, although she acknowledged it is suffering severe financial problems.

Ms. Wheeler and corporate executives say the hospital loses hundreds of thousands of dollars each month. The bill for indigent care at the hospital in Houston tops $3 million already, and the hospital stopped accepting new indigent patients and laid off staff in March.

Despite those problems, Ms. Wheeler said AMI continues to search for a solution.

Moreschi said AMI executives flatly refused to consider solutions that he believes could salvage the hospital — promoting the institute to companies and insurers by stressing the low-cost, high-quality care it provides acquired immune deficiency syndrome patients.

The antagonism of private doctors and hospitals that treat AIDS patients has hurt the institute, he said.

"We had private doctors telling patients not to go to the institute — don't be a guinea pig," Moreschi said.

There have been six executive officers at the hospital, formerly Citizens General Hospital, since it opened last September, he said.

By early 1987, more than 50 percent of the patients lacked money to pay for their care, Moreschi said. As patients ran out of money, they were taken to the institute because other hospitals would not admit them, he said.

The hospital's AIDS focus enabled doctors and nurses to find ways to treat patients out of the hospital. Most of the institute's patients are outpatients, and those who are hospitalized spend, on the average, 10.2 days in a hospital bed. This figure is much lower than that at many other hospitals, Moreschi said.

The institute's patients get first crack at the newest drugs because the hospital is one of 14 national centers for AIDS drug testing and evaluation. A five-year, $5.8 million grant pays for the research.

Search continues for boy sucked into storm sewer

JACINTO CITY (AP) — A search continued Friday for the body of a 3-year-old boy who was sucked into a storm sewer following thunderstorms that dumped about 5 inches of rain in the area.

The boy, Brandon Mines, is presumed dead after he disappeared into the storm sewer during thunderstorms Thursday morning that flooded streets in this Houston suburb, authorities said.

An emergency medical technician went into the culvert and searched an eight-block area with no luck Thursday morning. By afternoon, city public works employees and divers from the Houston Police Department searched fruitlessly for the boy. The search resumed Friday morning.

"The current is moving so swiftly, and the child has been in the water so long, he may already be in the Ship Channel," Lester Neely of the sheriff's marine division said Thursday.

Two of the boy's playmates and a neighbor tried to rescue the child when he disappeared but powerful currents caused by the early morning thunderstorms swept the boy away.

"He grabbed on with both of his hands to my arm, and he slipped away," said the boy's cousin, Frank Bear, 8. "I pulled his head up and walked back, but he slipped away and said, 'Momma.'"

At that point, neighbor Don Castillo ran over and reached into the culvert for the boy.

"The water just sucked him under. I tried to get him, but the water was too strong. I couldn't hold on," Castillo said.

Witnesses said the boy was playing with two cousins about a block away from his home by dropping sticks into the whirlpool created by the rushing water when he lost his balance and slipped into the culvert.

Charges filed against men believed in smuggling ring

DALLAS (AP) — Federal authorities filed charges Friday against three Mexicans said to belong to a smuggling ring that has been linked to the deaths of 18 illegal aliens in a locked boxcar.

One of the men was held without bond Friday in the El Paso County Jail, but authorities believe the other two have fled to Mexico.

Arturo Hernandez Garcia, 31, of El Saucito in Zacatecas state was arrested Wednesday in Dallas on charges of transporting and encouraging aliens to enter the United States illegally, officials said.

Hernandez Garcia is the brother of Enrique Hernandez Garcia, 33, known as "El Chapulin" or "the Grasshopper," who authorities say locked the boxcar door before the train left an El Paso freight yard July 1. Only one of the 19 men aboard survived the 14 hours in the boxcar as temperatures hit 130 degrees.

Two of the dead were working with the smugglers, officials said.

Enrique Hernandez Garcia, also of El Saucito, faces 18 counts each of transporting aliens and of concealing aliens, and two counts of conspiracy, Chandler said.

The third man, Manuel Hernandez Hernandez, 33, of El Saucito, was charged with conspiracy, transporting and concealing aliens, he said.

"We believe Chapulin is the one who did close the door on the boxcar, and the guy in custody is one of the principals of the operation," said U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service spokesman Mario Ortiz. "I don't believe that we're drawing the conclusion that he (the man in custody) is directly involved or that he did cause the deaths."

"The indignation is not all on this (U.S.) side," said Oliver Farres, consul general of the Mexican consulate in Dallas. "We hate as much as the American authorities the traffickers of human beings, and a lot of them are in jail in Mexico. Not all, unfortunately."

Mike Williams, chief agent of the U.S. Border Patrol in El Paso, said the two fugitives are believed to be in Mexico, although "we don't rule anything out any more."

Stephen Martin, commissioner of the INS Southern Region, said additional agents would be hired to increase the INS and Border Patrol presence in North Texas.

STATE IN BRIEF

Car slams into back of bus that had stopped

HOUSTON (AP) — Twenty people were injured Friday when a car ran into the back of a city bus that had stopped for passengers, authorities said.

The driver of the car and 17 other people injured were taken to Hermann Hospital, officials said.

They were listed in stable condition Friday evening and were being evaluated in the emergency room, said hospital spokeswoman Terry Sampson.

She said, "A lot of them were standing around and walking," but said did not know what specific injuries the people had suffered.

Police said most of the injuries were minor. One man near the back of the Metro bus was thrown out from the impact.

The driver of the car may be cited for for a traffic violation.

TDC closes for 14th time

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — The Texas prison system closed its doors Friday — the 14th time this year — after exceeding a state-mandated 95 percent of capacity limit, prison officials said.

The inmate population at midnight Thursday was 38,577, or 95.34 percent — 139 over the legal mark, Texas Department of Corrections spokesman Charles Brown said.

The population went over the legal mark after the prison admitted about 245 inmates Thursday while only 29 were released and 15 others released on furlough. Friday, the prison system admitted about 125 new prisoners and released about 175, Brown said.

"We'll have to let out quite a few this weekend," in order to open next week, Brown said. He did not know how many convicts would be released over the weekend.

Earlier this year, the prison department was operating under an open-and-shut system of being opened two days and closed the rest of the week.

Luna: Program lacks funds

AUSTIN (AP) — Rep. Al Luna, D-Houston, head of the Mexican American Legislative Caucus, says Texas' bilingual education needs more money to be successful.

Luna commented Friday in reply to a recent statement by the American Ethnic Coalition that an "entrenched" minority in the Legislature was causing the state to "squander millions of dollars" on bilingual education.

Luna said Texas Education Agency figures show the bilingual education budget was cut about $2 million in 1986-87 from the previous year.

"As it is now, the current funding level does not allow us to provide the necessary services to ensure bilingual education's success," Luna said.

Luna said lack of funding and shortage of bilingual teachers have been a major problem of the program.

He said TEA estimated an additional 2,600 bilingual teachers are needed currently.

Execution date set for killer

HOUSTON (AP) — A man who admitted terrorizing more than 100 families during late-night burglaries has been scheduled to die for killing a man during one of the burglaries.

An Aug. 20 execution date was set Tuesday for convicted killer Herman Robert Clark by State District Judge William Harmon.

Clark, 40, was sentenced by a jury to die by injection for the April 4, 1981, fatal shooting of bartender Joseph Edward McClain.

Evidence showed Clark broke into McClain's home, awoke the family and attempted to sexually assault McClain's wife. McClain, 36, was shot during a struggle with Clark.

Clark, an ex-convict, said he regularly broke into homes, sometimes sexually assaulting both mothers and daughters before leaving with the families' valuables.

Official defends MHMR

AUSTIN (AP) — Commissioner Gary Miller said Friday the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation thoroughly investigates deaths within its facilities, generally more than in community hospitals.

Miller said he issued the statement Friday in reply to criticism that MHMR deaths are not thoroughly reviewed.

"MHMR's death review is a positive action," Miller said. "Our process is uniquely in-depth, going beyond what is generally done in community hsopitals.

"It was put in place on our own initiative — not as the result of pressure from outside the department," he said.

Dr. Earl Mathew, consulting physician for MHMR services, said their death reviews have an additional advantage of being conducted by a multi-discippline team, both medical and program staff members.

Fire insurance companies formed 1700s

Associated Press

Wednesday, July 11, 1787
PHILADELPHIA TODAY

On this day, the Mutual Assurance Company completed its survey and issued a policy on Benjamin Franklin's two new three-story rental houses on Market Street.

The ingenious Franklin "fireproofed" his houses by plastering the floors between the joists, under the steps and risers of the stairs, and the walls and ceilings as well. Since the insurance surveyor, I. Jones, made special reference to the extensive plaster work in his report, he obviously was impressed with the extra fire suppression details made by the inventive doctor.

CONFEDERATION TODAY

An ordinance to establish a government in the vast area north and west of the Ohio River was read before Congress for the first time today. It was assigned for a second reading the next day.

Secretary of War Henry Knox reported that hostile Indians were plundering villages and murdering the inhabitants on Virginia's frontiers. Although a 1,500-man army could protect the frontier, he noted that the government could not support such a large force. The secretary recommended that Col. Josiah Harmar, commander and chief of the armed forces, should try to make a peace treaty. If he failed, Harmar could call out the Kentucky and Pennsylvania frontier militia to attack the Indians.

CONVENTION TODAY

The delegates agreed that a census would be taken every 10 years to measure the population and determine representation in the House. But just how the census would be counted was not clear and the debate on the issue was lively.

Many delegates had balked at a proposal to count slaves at a three-fifths ratio of the actual population. South Carolinians Pierce Butler and Charles Pinckney believed blacks should be counted equally with whites, which was voted down. Northerners such as James Wilson of Pennsylvania wondered if blacks should be considered as citizens — each would be counted in the census — or as property, which would mean none included. The convention recessed without reaching a decision on how the census was to be implemented.

DELEGATES TODAY

John Langdon of Portsmouth, N.H., was in such a hurry to leave for Philadelphia that his friend, Richard Champney, did not have an opportunity to ask him to purchase a flax cleaning machine. Champney hoped Langdon could buy the equipment for about 30 pounds and have it delivered by September for the flax harvest. With the new machine, Portsmouth would not need to rely on Boston for processing flax seed. Langdon purchased the machine and shipped it home.

William Paterson of New Jersey noted in a letter to his wife that during this week of intense debate Philadelphia was unbearably hot. In fact, he wrote that it was "the warmest place I have been in."

LOOKING BACK
Fire Insurance Companies

Fire insurance companies formed in England shortly after the Great Fire of London in 1666 and were well established by the early 18th century. Not until 1752 when Benjamin Franklin and other prominent Philadelphians formed The Philadelphia Contributionship for the Insurance of Houses from Loss by Fire, however, was fire insurance successfully launched in the New World. An earlier attempt in Charleston, S.C., had failed after only four years when a large fire swept the city and bankrupted the company.

Franklin and his colleagues planned their new venture carefully, presumably patterning the company after the mutual system of insurance of the Amicable Contributionship of London. They drafted articles of agreement, which hung in the courthouse, and obtained favorable responses from 75 individuals. Within a few months the Philadelphia Contributionship began operation, its directors examining surveys, issuing policies and ordering fire marks — four clasped hands on wood — to be placed on insured structures. The company's success paved the way for other insurance ventures, but it wasn't until 1784 that its first competitor — The Mutual Assurance Company for Insuring Houses from Loss by Fire — formed. A decision by the membership of the Contributionship to ban trees in front of insured properties (no doubt fearing it hampered the efforts of fire fighters) caused a number of policy holders to break away and, together with other Philadelphians, form a new company which would accept trees in front of such properties as an additional risk. Not surprisingly they chose as their symbol a green tree which appeared on policies, the company's seal and its fire marks — resulting in the company's nickname, The Green Tree. This,too, was a mutual company where no one individual achieved personal gain; it provided protection for all.

Residents of other states were, no doubt, aware of these ventures, and eventually followed suit, the earliest being The Mutual Assurance Company for Insuring Houses from Loss by Fire in New York in April of 1787.

Portland council agrees to Bowie concert

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The City Council has agreed to allow an outdoor rock concert by David Bowie, despite a noise officer's warning that the performance could cause temporary hearing loss.

While the concert date is still tentative, Pacificoncerts Inc. of Los Angeles confirmed it is negotiating to bring Bowie to Portland's Civic Stadium on Aug. 14.

Noise control officer Paul Herman told the council on Thursday that the concert "will cause harm. It will also bring pleasure, but it will cause harm."

He said the show would be as loud, if not louder, than a concert last year featuring Bob Dylan and Tom Petty and the Heartbreakers, which he also opposed.

NEW YORK (AP) — Judd Nelson, who once said he'd never do television, has gotten an offer he can't refuse.

Nelson, whose big-screen hits include "The Breakfast Club" and "St. Elmo's Fire," will star in an NBC-TV miniseries, "The Billionaire Boys Club," according to his agent, Loree Rodkin.

"He starts filming the movie at the end of the month," she said. "I know he is on the record as saying that TV isn't his medium, but this was too good."

Nelson will star as Joe Hunt, the former leader of a group of wealthy young men in Southern California known as the Billionare Boys Club who had dreams of making millions by pooling their investments.

Hunt was sentenced this week to life without parole for the April murder of Ronald Levin. Hunt thought that he had been tricked into thinking that Levin had parlayed a $5 million investment into $13 million.

"They told me to 'change your name and fix your nose," the actor recalled recently, laughing. "They're always so quick to judge. But that kind of gave me the idea that 'I'm different, I'm me.' I didn't think I had to change my name, even that's special."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A venture into baby-sitting at age 10 helped Elisabeth Shue's movie career in ways she couldn't have foreseen — she's the star of "Adventures in Babysitting."

The 23-year-old actress from South Orange, N.J., who previously appeared in "The Karate Kid," recalls that her parents had her baby-sit her two younger brothers when she was only 10 years old. Later, to compensate for the lack of an allowance, Ms. Shue said she baby-sat for anybody and maintained discipline even when a group of boys once tried to start a fight with her.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Terra cotta figures found

BEIJING (AP) — Archaeologists in northern China have found 1,700 terra-cotta warriors and horses from an imperial tomb believed to be more than 1,500 years old, the state-run Xinhua news agency reported Friday.

Archaeologists believe the figures will provide clues about the migration and mingling of north China's ethnic groups, Xinhua said.

It said the figures, shown singing and dancing, were discovered in an emperer's tomb in Hebei province. The tallest figure is 5 feet high, Xinhua said.

The tomb, in Houwanzhang village, Cixian county, is believed to date from the Northern Dynasties of A.D. 386 to 550, according to the agency.

China's most famous terra-cotta figures are life-size warriors and horses believed to be more than 2,000 years old. They are displayed in the central city of Xian in Shaanxi province.

Border program praised

MATAMOROS, Mexico (AP) — President Miguel de la Madrid says the program to help Mexico's border region with the United States is working.

"I can say, without any fear of exaggeration, that the balance is very positive," de la Madrid said of the 4-year-old Program for Development of the Northern Border.

He spoke Thursday at the conclusion of a four-day tour that took him from Tijuana across the border from San Diego to this city south of Brownsville, Texas.

De la Madrid said it is no longer possible to talk of an economic crisis on the border. He said that, to the contrary, it is a region showing great dynamism in industrial and commercial activities.

Soldiers break up protest

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Soldiers fired shots and tear-gas grenades to break up a large anti-government demonstration Friday and several people were injured in a long afternoon of street skirmishes throughout the city.

No figures were available on how many people were injured. Reporters at the scene said none appeared seriously hurt, but they saw soldiers hitting some with rubber truncheons. The reporters said they also saws troopers fire shotguns toward crowds.

Thousands of demonstrators tried to gather at the church of El Carmen in the downtown banking district, in defiance of a ban on public assembly, to demand the removal of Panama's military chief and strongman, Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega.

About half an hour before the rally was to begin at 3 p.m., several hundred soldiers swept down the main avenue, Via Espana, in front of the white rococo church. Firing tear gas and shotguns, the soldiers moved the crowds off the streets and sidewalks for several blocks in each direction.

Four helicopter gunships hovered over the scene, but did not fire.

Demjanjuk fires lawyer because of infighting

JERUSALEM (AP) — John Demjanjuk has fired the chief attorney defending him in an Israeli court against charges of brutalizing prisoners as a Nazi death camp guard, another lawyer for the retired Ohio autoworker said Friday.

Demjanjuk's family decided to fire Buffalo, N.Y., lawyer Mark O'Connor because of the "long difficulties plaguing the defense team," attorney John Gill said in a telephone interview from his home in Cleveland, Ohio.

O'Connor has represented the 67-year-old Demjanjuk for the past five years. The attorney could not be reached for comment Friday.

O'Connor's dismissal came as he and his two associates, Gill and Israeli attorney Yoram Sheftel, were mapping out their case after five months of testimony by prosecution witnesses.

Demjanjuk is accused of being the sadistic "Ivan the Terrible," who beat and mutilated prisoners before pushing them into the gas chambers in 1942 and 1943 at the Treblinka death camp in Nazi-occupied Poland.

He claims he is a victim of mistaken identity.

O'Connor also represented the Ukrainian-born Demjanjuk in the trial leading to his extradition from the United States.

Gill said the dismissal letter, signed by Demjanjuk, was delivered to O'Connor on June 30.

The defense team has been plagued by bitter infighting almost since the trial began. Escalating tensions last month led to a public spat between O'Connor and Sheftel.

"There were too many difficulties and not enough harmony," Gill said. "The problem was Mark was so insistent he was the boss."

Parts of Willie Nelson's Farm Aid may be on TV

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Plans are being made to televise a portion of the Sept. 19 Farm Aid III concert at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln to solicit contributions for farmers, a concert organizer said Friday.

Farm Aid event coordinator Tim O'Connor told reporters that Dick Clark Productions of Los Angeles has "agreed essentially" to produce an undetermined amount of the benefit concert for television.

O'Connor said details of the contract to stage Farm Aid III at UNL's Memorial Stadium have been hammered out, and singer Willie Nelson will come to Lincoln within a few days to sign the document.

"Willie Nelson is on tour...and he's agreed that when his schedule allows, which would be in the next few days we feel, he will be here at Lincoln to sign the contract," O'Connor said.

Nelson will sign the contract along with UNL Chancellor Martin Massengale, he said. Farm Aid and university representatives have been working on the legal document for several months.

O'Connor said the addition of Dick Clark Productions will give Farm Aid another platform from which to seek contributions and showcase the financial hardships of farmers.

"What he brings is the ability to take a live event such as this, in a stadium of some 70,000 folks in attendance, and turn it into a television show with which we can ask for donations," he said.

"And his history has been proven to take telethons and not make them boring; make them interesting, so that we keep the attention of the American public on the subject matter, being the American farmer and raise dollars" O'Connor said.

O'Connor said he did not have a dollar amount on Farm Aid's contract with Dick Clark Productions. He said the Dick Clark organization has indicated there wouldn't be any fees "above and beyond the production costs."

Once the production teams are assembled, he said, concert organizers will concentrate on getting network coverage. The concert will run about 10 hours, O'Connor said, but the amount that would be televised has not been determined.

"We have contacted several networks," O'Connor said. "There is a lot of interest, we just have not yet made an agreement with any of those."

O'Connor said Nelson will announce the list of performers for the concert when h comes to Lincoln to sign the contract. The style of music will be similar to the first two benefit concerts, which "crossed over a lot of musical boundaries," he said.

The approximately 70,000 available tickets probably will be sold for $20 apiece, the same as the first to concerts, he said.

O'Connor said the biggest sticking point in the negotiations between UNL and Farm Aid has been distance. He said the principals in the talks were scattered across the country.

At one point, Farm Aid officials had called off talks, citing technical problems with the stadium and claiming that negotiations were moving too slowly. However, the talks resumed the next day.

"I don't think this university has done anything but act in good faith," O'Connor said.

Tim Moore, who was named UNL's project manager for Farm Aid III, said, "I don't think anybody has been trying to put roadblocks up, or anything. It's simply a matter of, when you're putting on an event of this magnitude...in a place that has never had anything like this before, it takes a lot of time and a lot of steps to go through."

Sitting in his home in Fort Worth, Mike Smith watches Lt. Col. Oliver North testify. Smith was North's radio operator from 1968-69 in Vietnam, and he remembers the colonel as being cool under pressure.

Ex-Marine says North was cool under pressure

FORT WORTH (AP) — As a young platoon commander in Vietnam, Oliver North was a "gung-ho" U.S. Marine and "under pressure he was cool," says a man who served as North's radio operator.

North's performance before the Iran-Contra congressional hearings this week is consistent with his actions as a commander facing enemy bullets, said Mike Smith of Forth Worth.

"Under pressure he was cool," said Smith, who served as North's radio operator in Vietnam for eight months. "I'd never seen him lose it before, as far as that goes."

Smith, 37, said he carried about 30 additional pounds of radio equipment on his back for North, who was known as "Blue," the radio code name for the northern direction.

A recently unemployed car saleman, Smith said he put in his four years in the military and got out.

North, he said, "went for the gusto" and opted for a military career.

"He's real gung-ho and patriotic," Smith said. "I don't believe he was doing anything for his personal gain, unless it was personal gain for higher rank."

"In Vietnam he told us that's what he was after," Smith said. "He was going to stick his neck out to get it, although he was real scared of something happening to him because (his wife) had just had a baby."

Smith described his relationship with North in Vietnam as "pretty close" although the two had a different outlook toward military service.

"I was anti-military, kind of redneck, I guess you could say," Smith said. "I didn't care for military authority. But he (North) was Mr. Military."

Smith said when he first met North he was an 18-year-old rebel who joined the Marines because he was "bad." Smith has a blue Marine bulldog tattoo on his left arm as a permanent reminder of his service.

"He's (Lt. Col. Oliver North) real gung-ho and patriotic. I don't believe he was doing anything for his personal gain, unless it was personal gain for higher rank. In Vietnam he told us that's what he was after. He was going to stick his neck out to get it...that war is where you get it."

— Mike Smith, former radio operator under Lt. Col. Oliver North

"He (North) told us right up front he was a lifer," Smith said. "That he was out to get rank, that war is where you get it."

"He used to volunteer us for things for more points for his career," Smith recalled.

Smith, who said he respected North, recalled that the former Naval Academy middleweight boxing champion once knocked out a drunken soldier with one punch after the soldier refused to go to sleep.

North treated his men as equals, he recalled.

"He didn't make us get in the mud unless he got into the mud with us," Smith said. "There wasn't nothing that he would tell us to do that he wouldn't do right there with us."

Smith recalled a special mission when the squad had to go into the Demilitarized Zone to capture a hill under North Vietnamese fire.

"North wasn't in the back of us, telling us to run up the hill, he was in the front with us," he recalled.

"He's a helluva man," Smith said. "He altered my life a lot, just in his attitude toward everything."

We Stand Behind Every Car We Sell.

Maybe you think the only used car warranty you can get is the one soaped on the windshield.

At Rogers Ford Used Car Department, we inspect every used car we sell. We test, we tune and then we attach a Special warranty on the engine, drive train and transmission-for Parts and Labor-on every used car in our lot.

So when we say we stand behind the cars we sell, that's a promise written in stone. Not just on a windshield.
