Roads, Streets Covered With Ice; More To Come

A slippery coating of ice slowed travel to a virtual standstill in the Snyder area today, and forecasts indicated that the weather situation would get worse before it improves.

A fine mist fell intermittently through the night and continued this morning as sub-freezing temperatures maintained a firm grip on the area.

Local schools were closed, as roads were considered too treacherous for buses to make their runs.

Traffic was thin in Snyder, and vehicles that ventured out were travelling with extreme caution. This was credited by law enforcement agencies with keeping down accidents this morning.

Neither the city police department nor the sheriff's department had made any accident investigations late this morning.

Temperatures remained in the low twenties and were not expected to climb above the freezing mark during the day.

The overnight low reading here was 18 degrees, following a maximum Monday of only 25 degrees.

The forecast called for more freezing mist and rain with a possibility of some snow and sleet during the remainder of the day and through Wednesday.

The ice sheath enveloped a strip from far West Texas to the Louisiana line. Scores of schools were closed, and in some areas roads were littered with stalled automobiles.

The ice drew blame for a traffic death near Fredericksburg in the Hill Country.

Freezing drizzle or rain fell from Wink and Midland in West Texas into the South Plains eastward across North Central Texas to Northeast Texas.

The Weather Bureau said the icing line stretched southward to Junction and Waco, and at midmorning Kilgore in central East Texas and Texarkana in extreme northeast Texas reported freezing rain or drizzle. Paris in northeast Texas near the Oklahoma border reported a quarter inch of sleet on the ground.

Light snow fell in the Panhandle, and drizzle or rain occurred south of the freezing line.

Severe icing in the Cleburne and San Angelo areas closed numerous schools.

Schools closed in the Cleburne area included Glen Rose, Godley, Alvarado, Liberty Chapel, Joshua, Rio Vista, Parker and Grandview.

U.S. 67 in the Chalk Mountain area between Glen Rose and Stephenville was almost impassable. Several cars were reported stalled or in ditches but no injuries were known.

Schools closed in the San Angelo area included Carlsbad, Wall, Mertzon, Robert Lee, Water Valley, Veribest, Miles, Grape Creek and the Lake View system of San Angelo. City schools in San Angelo remained open.

U.S. 67 about 12 miles north of San Angelo was next to impassable because of ice. A truck of the San Angelo By-Products Co. overturned and scattered tons of waste material on the highway.

Numerous schools closed in the Fort Worth area. These included Rhome, Haslet, Justin, Roanoke, Eagle Mountain - Saginaw and Newark.

Schools in Celina, Collin County, were closed.

Icing caused electrical service interruptions for several hours in some areas.

A huge mound of unseasonably cold air centered in Illinois. A flow of warm, moist air over the cold air caused the icing from southeastern New Mexico and Southwest Texas through southeastern Oklahoma into Arkansas.

All except the southern portion of Texas was expected to receive freezing rain Tuesday. Hazardous driving conditions were expected to continue.

Light snow fell Tuesday over Northwest Texas and Oklahoma and the freezing rain or sleet hit from Southwest Texas northeastward into Southern Arkansas.

Ice knocked out electrical power in parts of north and east Dallas early Tuesday for hours.

All bridges and overpasses in North Texas were covered with ice and were very dangerous. The State Highway patrol said Highway 287 about 8 miles south of Decatur, in Wise County, was closed because of ice.

"The road is impassable," a highway patrolman said. He warned that travel in North Texas should be discouraged.

Sanding crews in Dallas County were out during the night spreading sand on bridges and overpasses.

Air traffic was normal at Dallas' Love Field early Monday. No flights had been cancelled and incoming planes were allowed to land.

Texas Power and Light Co. officials said they had only momentary interruptions of service during the night.

Temperatures dropped to a low of 15 degrees at Dalhart early Tuesday and the high was 84 at Galveston and Houston.

Freezing drizzle hit San Angelo, Waco, Dallas, Fort Worth, Mineral Wells, Abilene, Midland, Lubbock, Wichita Falls, Tyler and Texarkana. Light snow fell at Dalhart and Childress.

Rain was reported at Corpus Christi and Laredo.

One death was blamed on icy roads. Mrs. Thelma Marschall, 52, a waitress at Fredericksburg, died when a car overturned about 15 miles north of Fredericksburg.

Officers said the car hit a slick spot on the road, overturned and crushed the woman.

Temperatures Monday ranged from 9 degrees at Pampa to 70 at Presidio.

Rainfall included: Abilene .02 inches; Amarillo .03, Austin .04, Brownsville .13, Dallas .10, Fort Worth .06, Laredo .07, Presidio .05, San Antonio .15, Lufkin .01, Cotulla .08, Junction .01, Cotulla .08, Lufkin .01, Dalhart .03, Big Spring and Del Rio .01 and Harlingen .07.

Road Hazards Widespread Over State

AUSTIN (AP)—Icing on Texas roads is widespread today, the Highway Department reported after a mid-morning survey in all areas.

Road conditions, by districts:

Abilene: All roads covered with thin coat of ice. Not expected to clear today.

Austin: Mason, Llano, Gillespie, Burnet, and Blanco counties and north portion Williamson County have ice on bridges and spotted ice on hills. Bridges are sanded but traffic should proceed cautiously.

Waco: Ice on bridges and spotted on highways in Coryell, Hamilton, Bosque and Hill counties. Rest of district has ice on bridges.

Brownwood: All highways iced and hazardous.

San Angelo: All roads iced over and hazardous. Bridges and hills sanded.

Wichita Falls: Some freezing rain falling. Most highways hazardous except in Coke County and in some areas around Wichita Falls. Conditions expected to continue today.

Paris: Ice covers roads in Fannin and Grayson counties. Travel is hazardous. Roads open.

Dallas: Traffic moving slowly in Collin and Denton counties due to ice on all highways. Traffic almost normal in rest of district with bridges being salted to prevent icing.

Atlanta: Light drizzle with ice forming on highways and bridges in north, central, and west portions of district. Expect ice to extend southward today.

San Antonio: Bridges and sections of highways iced over in Kerr and Kendall counties. Areas are sanded but driving hazardous.

Del Rio: Ice on bridges and hills in north and west portions of Val Verde, Edwards and Real counties. Areas are sanded and traffic normal. Conditions expected to continue today and possibly tonight.

Tyler: Misting rain with ice forming on trees. No ice on roads or bridges at mid-morning.

Fort Worth: Highways covered with ice. Driving extremely hazardous. Roads open but motorists advised not to travel.

Amarillo: One to three inches of snow throughout district. Ice conditions on most highways north part of district. More snow predicted.

Lubbock: Practically all of district has ice covered highways. Driving hazardous.

Childress: Light snow or freezing rain over district making travel hazardous.

Two Solons Clash On Payola Issue

By GEOFFREY GOULD

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman John C. Doerfer of the Federal Communications Commission and Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark) have clashed publicly on whether payola is widespread in television and radio.

Both men spoke Monday to about 200 representatives of stations affiliated with the CBS television network. Doerfer, who opposes Harris' idea for federal monitoring of programs, had the first inning.

He told the broadcasters: "I would suggest to the printed media that if a chill is put upon the freedom of expression in the broadcasting media, how far behind can a bleak winter be for the printed media?"

Harris, chairman of the Legislative Oversight committee which exposed rigging of quiz shows and some payola abuses, then got his licks.

He said "the exposures have been well publicized. They have been admitted and it has been widespread. It is not a hoax, nor is it a canard."

That was a direct slap at Doerfer, who in a speech a week ago said charges of widespread corruption in the industry "are, in my opinion, canards." In the same speech Doerfer said "admittedly there have been some reprehensible deceptions and practices. Proportionately, it has been small and no greater than in other industries."

Harris contended Doerfer's comparison of broadcasting with other industries is an argument for the status quo. Harris cited the testimony before his committee of Boston disc jockey Stan Richards, who said he got $6,000 in loans and gifts from record makers but saw nothing wrong with it.

Harris said Richards viewed this as the American way of life: "Here's what I'll do for you; now what will you do for me?"

Harris added, "If this is the acceptable concept of American business, how can we expect to maintain a high standard of morality and ethics?" He added, "Anyone who is not concerned with morality has no business a license."

Doerfer defended his claim that malpractice was not widespread. "I challenge anybody to show me more than a handful of licensees who have ever been charged. A few get hands in the till but they shouldn't be allowed to smear a whole industry."

He said although he accepted many of the Harris committee's recommendations he opposes the idea of FCC monitoring of program material because it would add "more red tape" to the commission's work and would be a step toward censorship.

Giant Quake Wrecks Port In Morocco

By STEPHEN O. HUGHES

CASABLANCA, Morocco (AP)—Two giant earthquakes, fire and a tidal wave wrecked the south Moroccan port of Agadir in the night. Officials feared the death toll was 1,000 or more. French military authorities said at least 700 persons had been killed.

U. S. and French armed forces joined in relief efforts for the city of 40,000 on the Atlantic about 340 miles south of Casablanca.

Planes flew in doctors and medical supplies. The powerful U. S. 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean was alerted to send units to Agadir at full speed if the need arose.

The earthquakes, an hour and 22 minutes apart, were of such magnitude that measuring instruments in the Casablanca Observatory were damaged. The first came at 11:41 p. m., 6:41 p. m. EST, Monday, the second at 1:03 a. m., 8:03 p. m. EST. Fires broke out while rescue work was in progress.

The tidal wave apparently dashed 300 yards into the city through the harbor, guarded by a massive citadel atop a 720-foot rock. A Spanish ship, the Avelino Correa, radioed that the dock was cut in two and all the loading cranes collapsed.

Morocco's health minister, Dr. Youssef Ben Abbes, took to the Rabat Radio to appeal for blood donors. He asked full support from the people "in this terrible catastrophe."

Communications were wrecked. The French estimate of 700 dead, the first official account of casualties, was radioed from the French air base just outside Agadir.

Algeria Had Worst Quake

PARIS (AP)—The worst earthquake in North Africa in recent years occurred at Orleansville, Algeria, in 1954. Some 1,400 were killed.

The most recent was at Melousa, Algeria, Feb. 21 of this year. It killed 40.

The world's most serious earthquakes have always occurred in the Far East—830,000 killed at Shensi, China, in 1556; 300,000 at Calcutta in 1737; 180,000 at Kansu, China, in 1920; 143,000 at Tokyo in 1923.

The Messina earthquake, at the tip of the Italian boot, killed 75,000 in 1908.

Ike Pledges U. S. To Meet Its Obligations Promptly

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—President Eisenhower declared today the United States "is ready to fulfill its treaty obligations with strength and promptness and firmness" if any American nation becomes a victim of aggression.

The President told the Chilean Congress that the United States is prepared to cooperate in any practical step for reducing expenditures on armaments, a step advocated by President Jorge Alessandri of Chile.

Eisenhower warned, however, that "procedures for achieving limitations and assurance of compliance will not be easy."

"The level of armaments which a nation feels it must maintain to assure the safety of its people involves a decision which the sovereign authority of that country must make for itself," he said.

"Multilateral agreements can be achieved if each nation of the hemisphere has confidence that it need not fear unprovoked aggression."

Pronounced fit despite the fast pace of his South American tour, the President launched into another heavy schedule on the second day of his stop in this Pacific Coast nation.

Prior to his appearance before Congress he told 1,200 American residents and members of Chilean-American organizations that the United States "wants every American republic to become strong economically as well as politically and socially."

"We know that only strong nations in our divided world can be sure of retaining their precious freedom," he said.

There was no contradiction in the American policy of nonintervention in other nation's affairs with its forstering of "freedom representative democracy through the hemisphere," he told the Americans.

The President told Congress the United States was sympathetic to Latin American plans for some form of common market or regional market which would lower trade barriers among its members.

But he stressed that a common market should be designed to increase not only regional trade but the level of world trade as well.

Touching on economic aid, a problem high in the consideration of many Latin Americans, Eisenhower said the principal impetus for any country's economic development must be its own will but that increased cooperation among neighbors as well as assistance from abroad can push development programs along.

This question of aid was brought up dramatically when Hernan Videla, president of the Senate, in introducing Eisenhower, said the United States, as leader of the American nations, must come around to one definite attitude, "that of preferring your nearest neighbors, your truest friends, when the need arises for support and help."

"The reality of an America organically united already exists," the senator continued. "Your nation should ratify it with the full intensity of its power."

Taking note of Alessandri's suggestion that effective means be found to reduce armament burdens in Latin America, Eisenhower said "the quest for peace is the imperative of our time."

He referred to the 1947 Rio de Janeiro Treaty which pledges that an armed attack against one nation of the hemisphere will be considered an attack against all and declared: "My government supports this solemn agreement."

In his speech in a downtown theater, Eisenhower also addressed his fellow Americans. He told them it is heartening to meet individuals who actually are practicing a "people to people program."

Despite an unfavorable financial balance in international transactions of several billion dollars yearly, "we are not decreasing our help to Latin America," he told the Americans.

Snyder In Form For Olympics

By GERRY BURTON
Daily News Staff

Snyder was holding its own winter olympics this morning with ice covering the ground, windows, and dripping from the eaves.

Bobsleds (commonly called cars when the wheels roll instead of slide) slid merrily along, cautiously giving more than half the road to any other bobsled they might meet coming or going in any shape form or fashion.

Drivers inch along with one foot dragging off the pavement for maybe (?) a little more traction on the gravel. Some sleds go forward some go sideways, and some do a figure eight down the street. And some come to a little rise and sit there looking embarrassed.

Skaters step off sidewalks and steps to cut brilliantly executed fancy swirls and swings that would be the envy of any figure skater in Squaw Valley.

Even the schools have turned out for this event so that pupils can sail down the sidewalks, peel ice from tree limbs, suck icicles they break off the hydrant, and hold neighborhood contest down just any little incline to see who skis the best.

So far the casuality list is nil-no broken bones or twisted ankles, not even a dented snow plow or bobsled. Respect for the other fellows right to take a good spin on his and also their side of the street, seems to be prevailing all over town.

"I spin and then you take your turn, but you wait till I stop" works out just fine as long as the street has four lanes and there are only two cars within a block of each other.

Long Senate Meet Endures

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate, in a dawn test, voted 55-6 today to continue indefinitely the around-the-clock session on civil rights.

The vote came shortly after 6:30 a. m. after the Senate had been in session 18½ hours in a drive by the leadership to break the deadlock over the rights legislation.

Both Democratic and Republican leaders are supporting plans to keep the Senate in session night and day this week without any recess in an effort to bring a civil rights bill to a decision.

The 55-6 vote defeated a motion by Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore) to adjourn the Senate at 8 p. m.

Morse announced he was offering the motion to test sentiment on whether the around-the-clock session should continue.

Only six Southern Democrats supported the motion. It was opposed by 27 Republicans and 28 Democrats.

Later in the morning the Senate took another vote which showed a 55-5 sentiment for tough measures to keep the marathon session rolling.

That came after Sen. Lister Hill (D-Ala) had finished a speech of an hour and 33 minutes and called for a quorum. Hill's was the seventh quorum call since the Senate convened at noon Monday.

The rundown of Senate names did not produce a quorum, and Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas made the customary motion to ask the sergeant at arms to produce the absentees.

Morse jumped up and asked for a roll call on the motion. It was this which produced the 55-5 vote. However, the tally itself showed a quorum, so it was not necessary to send out any Senate attaches for a roundup.

Only six Southern Democrats supported Morse's earlier motion for adjournment tonight. It was opposed by 27 Republicans and 28 Democrats.

It required 48 minutes to round up the necessary 51 senators after the Southerners, making an all-out fight to filibuster the civil rights measure to death, had pulled the surprise quorum call.

The quorum was obtained only after Johnson had moved, and the Senate had voted, to direct the sergeant at arms to round up absentees.

Elvis Leaves Girl Friend In Germany

FRIEDBERG, Germany (AP)—Elvis Presley flies home Wednesday to get his Army discharge and return to show business. The rock 'n' roll singer leaves behind a 16-year-old American high school girl he has been dating often — but quietly — for several months.

The pretty brunette, Priscilla Beaulieu, said she is very fond of Elvis, "but you shouldn't think there is anything serious." She said she doesn't know if she'll see him after he returns to America, "but I certainly would like to."

Priscilla's father, U.S. Air Force Capt. Joseph P. Beaulieu Jr. of Waco, Tex., is stationed at Wiesbaden Air Base. She attends the high school for U.S. dependents in Wiesbaden.

Presley told a news conference he had been dating Priscilla for three or four months.

"She is very mature," he said. "She's got beautiful blue eyes. A very pretty brunette and I like her very much."

Presley is scheduled to leave aboard a Military Air Transport plane and probably will land at McGuire Air Force Base, in New Jersey. An Army spokesman said Elvis could expect his discharge within 2 to 24 hours after returning to the United States.

Krush Arrives In Calcutta For More Talks With Nehru

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

CALCUTTA (AP) — Nikita Khrushchev arrived in Calcutta today for more talks with Prime Minister Nehru and U Nu of Burma amid speculation that the Soviet Premier might be bringing some word from Peiping on the India-China border dispute.

Khrushchev flew from Jakarta for an overnight stay en route to Afghanistan, last stop on his South Asian tour. Nehru arrived half an hour earlier from New Delhi to meet the Soviet leader for the second time in less than three weeks.

U Nu, Burma's former prime minister who is slated to take over the government again in April, also conferred with Khrushchev in Rangoon Feb. 17.

Khrushchev is believed to have been in touch with his Chinese ally since his visit to Nehru in New Delhi. It was assumed the Soviet Premier and Nehru would again discuss the bitter dispute between Peiping and New Delhi over 51,000 square miles of Himalayan territory claimed by both nations.

During his previous visit to India, Khrushchev took neither side in the dispute. Publicly he said only that he hoped India and China would soon reach an agreement. While the Soviet Premier was in Indonesia, Red Chinese Premier Chou En-lai accepted Nehru's invitation to meet in New Delhi to discuss the border dispute.

Burma also has been involved for years in a border dispute with Peiping but recently reached an agreement. A Rangoon newspaper reported Monday that U Nu was making the Calcutta trip to discuss the possibility of a conference of Asian and African leaders similar to the Bandung conference of 1955.

After a brief, informal airport reception by Nehru, Khrushchev drove into Calcutta with the Indian leader. Police were prepared for large crowds along the route, but only thin lines of people turned out in the midday heat of a working day.

It was in Calcutta, on Feb. 15, that Khrushchev began a series of strong attacks on Western economic aid to underdeveloped nations. He called Western aid a dole designed to keep the underdeveloped nations in colonial slavery and contended that Soviet aid, by contrast, is given to build up independent economies.

At a farewell banquet Monday night in Jakarta, the Indonesian capital, the Soviet Premier approved Indonesia's neutral policy but reiterated his conviction that communism will win out over capitalism eventually.

Acquittal Motion Denied Van Rie

By TOM HORGAN

BOSTON (AP)—Judge Frank J. Murray today denied three defense motions to direct verdicts of acquittal in the case of Willem van Rie, Dutch wireless operator, on trial for murder in the death of a pretty ship passenger.

The three motions specifically asked directed verdicts on charges of murder in the first degree, murder in the second degree and manslaughter.

Before Judge Murray made his rulings, Defense Atty. W. Langdon Powers argued at considerable length that "not one iota of evidence" had been presented linking Van Rie with the alleged crime.

Final arguments by defense and prosecution and the charge by Judge Murray were awaited by the all-male jury.

If Van Rie wishes, he may address the jurors before their deliberations. His lawyer says this is for Van Rie to decide.

The prosecution alleges Van Rie, 31, beat, kicked and otherwise mauled pretty Lynn Kauffman, 23, into unconsciousness, then threw the gay divorcee into Boston harbor to drown as the Dutch freighter Utrecht steamed for New York the evening of Sept. 18.

The tiny young woman's body—she weighed 95 pounds—was found next day stranded on a harbor island.

The jury must decide whether, as Asst. Dist. Atty. John F. McAuliffe contends, Van Rie put the girl through a porthole of her cabin, left by another porthole and then threw her over the side, or as the defense maintains, her many injuries were suffered in a 40-foot plunge, possibly suicidal, from the steamer.

Judge Murray Monday called the state's evidence "wholly circumstantial."

As in all murder cases, the jurors must be convinced of guilt beyond a reasonable doubt.

Much of the prosecution's case was based on a statement of Van Rie to police which he now says was a false statement made under compulsion. Van Rie denied he had any reason to believe the girl was pregnant during a 44-day voyage from Singapore. He was supported by a medical examiner's report, thus removing a possible motive.

Van Rie on the stand admitted a liaison with Miss Kauffman during the voyage.

Soviets Mum On Action Over Flights

By REINHOLD ENSZ

BERLIN (AP)—The Soviet Embassy in East Berlin said today resumption of high-altitude flights to Berlin by Western Big Three planes would be violating past practices.

But an Embassy spokesman declined to say whether Soviet fighter planes would be sent up against U. S., British or French planes flying above the 10,000-foot ceiling imposed by the Soviet Union on isolated Berlin's air corridors.

Soviet fighter planes buzzed but did not attack U. S. supply planes last April, when they defied the ceiling rule. None of the Big Three recognizes the ceiling.

The United States halted the high altitude flights at the prompting of the British, who feared a serious incident. A report from Washington Monday said the Allies are notifying Moscow of their intention to resume the high altitude flights.

"If we get something concrete in the form of a note," the Soviet spokesman said, "then we can talk about it. Naturally we would have to talk with our allies, especially the GDR (Communist East Germany) about it."

He indicated that any high-altitude flights would be considered a violation of East Germany's air space.

The flights would have a double purpose: To demonstrate that giant C130 cargo planes—which fly more efficiently at altitudes above 10,000 feet—could be used to supply West Berlin, and to show that the Allies would not allow Moscow to dictate to them on flight levels or anything else involving Berlin.

Saturn Due First Test

WASHINGTON (AP) — The giant Saturn rocket engine is almost ready for its first ground test.

Milton Rosen, chief of rocket vehicle development programs of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said Monday the goal of a full-scale Saturn firing by the end of 1959 had not been achieved, "but we are very close to it now."

Each Saturn is made up of a cluster of eight rocketdyke engines. It would be capable of landing large payloads on the moon or nearby planets, placing a heavy communications satellite in orbit, or putting a manned vehicle weighing 10 to 20 tons into orbit 200 to 300 miles above the earth.

Discrepancies In Testimony Cited

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The defense in a slashing summation has listed a dozen "discrepancies" in a housemaid's stories of the nght socialite Barbara Jean Finch was slain.

But the lawyer called 19-year-old Marie Anne Lidholm a "loving, wholesome girl" and told the jury: "I do believe she was trying to tell the truth."

The Swedish maid was a key state's witness in the murder trial of Dr. R. Bernard Finch, 42, handsome surgeon, and Carole Tregoff, 23, his shapely mistress and former receptionist.

Marie Anne listened wide-eyed among the spectators Monday as Finch's smooth gray defender, Grant B. Cooper, dissected her testimony.

Cooper said his summation to the jury of seven women and five men probably would continue through all of today and on into Wednesday.

The attorney said many of the "discrepancies" seemed minor but that one was critically important.

Miss Lidholm testified that Mrs. Finch got into her car from the right-hand door when the doctor ordered her into the car moments before her gunshot death on the lawn of the Finch estate late last July 18.

Finch said she entered through the left-hand door. His version explained how bloodstains got on the driver's side of the seat. He said Mrs. Finch was bleeding from a head wound he inflicted in subduing her in a furious struggle for a gun.

However, Cooper said, Marie Anne admitted on cross-examination that she had told a sheriff's investigator that Mrs. Finch entered on the left-hand side and the investigator told her she had to be mistaken. Cooper said she changed her story after that.

Cooper said that in the maid's first account of struggling in the Finch garage she said the surgeon pointed a pistol toward her and fired it to emphasize his demand that she get into the car. Later, he said, she said the gun wasn't pointed her way.

"Why did she correct herself?" he continued. "She said she was against the north wall (of the garage) when he shot at her. Wouldn't there be a bullet hole in the north wall if he'd shot towards her?

"This didn't fit. So the little lady had to change it."

Cooper said the maid's later story indicated the gun was aimed out the door, where the bullet would disappear. Finch said the gun fired out the door when his wife grabbed for the pistol.

Of Marie Anne he said: "I don't think she had any conscious bias, but it would be less than human if she didn't favor Mrs. Finch. Her employer had apparently unloaded her innermost thoughts and confided in her."

Army Hunts Lost Cattle

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Husky mechanized Army units poised today to assist about 100 isolated ranchers and 4,000 stranded cattle in blizzard-torn southern Colorado.

Two convoys of Weasels, bulldozers and trucks were standing by at Ft. Carson, Colo., in readiness to dash 200 miles southeastward to the snowbound Kim area of Las Animas County.

The convoys were organized Monday night, but departure was held up until an advance party could scout the area and determine exactly the equipment needed to clear roads clogged with drifts as deep as 12 feet.

Ft. Carson's rescue groups were formed after Las Animas County officials reported the area, about 275 miles southeast of Denver, had suffered extremely heavy blows from snows and subzero cold the past two weeks.

CHICAGO (AP) — Two 60-story circular apartment towers will feature the union-financed 36-million-dollar apartment and commercial development to be built on the north bank of the Chicago River in the downtown district.

The project also includes a 10-story commercial building, a theater, a boat marina with storage facilities for 700 small craft, an ice skating rink, a restaurant, and a swimming pool.

Farm Rolls In Decrease

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department reported today the number of farms in the United States declined about 2 per cent in 1959.

The year ended with 4,460,900 operating units, and a further decline to about 4,540,000 was forecast for this year. Texas had 287,000 farms, compared to [illegible] at the end of 1958.

The 1959 decline is about the same rate of annual decrease estimated for several recent years. The present number is 32 per cent below the record peak of 6,812,000 in 1935.

Farms gained slightly in size from purchases and consolidations. Suburban developments made further inroads into farming areas.

The number of farms by states at the end of 1958 and 1959 included:

Oklahoma 116,000 and 113,000; Colorado 42,100 and 41,600; and New Mexico 21,600 and 21,000.

WOMEN

Altrurian Daughters Club Hears Program On Communism, Foreign Aid, And Courts

The Altrurian Daughters held their regular meeting at the Martha Ann Woman's Club Wednesday at 2:30 p.m. Mrs. Ross Carroll Jr. president presiding.

Mrs. W. R. Everett and Mrs. Frank F. LeFeuvre presented the program "American Foreign Policy and Communism in America".

Guest speaker for the afternoon [illegible] talk was composed by excerpts from Wayne Paucher's book "Foreign Aid". She said:

"From Asia to Africa to Eastern and Western Europe, the world is involved in self - conscious nationalism. Britain is for Britain. France is for France. Israel for Israel. Russia is for Russia. The Arab states are thinking first of all, about their own interests.

"Everyone of the nations we have subsidized so heavily since the end of the war is motivated first, last, and all the time by national self interest and that's the way it should be.

"Paucher says, 'I for one, do not believe most Americans have lost their interest in freedom. I believe that the great majority of our people want our government to give first attention to what is best for the United States. And if that is called nationalism, that we should be for nationalism."

"One hundred years ago Abraham Lincoln warned us against entrusting to any hands, but our own, the preservation of our own Nation. We have not heeded his advice and most of our troubles in the world today can be traced to that unfortunate fact. The crisis we now face is the result of a foreign policy that places American interests LAST instead of FIRST.

"Only is official Washington is Internationalism held up as a symbol and respectable goal.

"Our Foreign Aid Policy has been going on ever since the war. Our position in the world is worse now than it was when we started handing out money to all comers. It has been claimed that foreign aid giveaways will improve living conditions in the less developed countries of the world and create new markets for American products. Again this year we are being subjected to a heavy barrage of propaganda in favor of continuing the foreign aid program—a program whose cost already amounts to more than fifteen hundred dollars for every American family.

"Day after day, week after week, we are told that the United Nations is the symbol of peace in the world. The internationalists among us ignore or brush aside that kind of 'peace' brought by the United Nations that killed thirty three thousand boys in Korea and wounded one hundred and ten thousand more. They offer no explanation for the fact that the United Nations' brand of 'peace' has not prevented the necessary establishment of nearly one thousand United States military bases that we now maintain outside the continental limits of our nation.

"What about the spread of Communism during the lifetime of the United Nations? When the U.N. was born, two hundred million people struggled under the yoke of Communism. Today the number has increased to nearly nine hundred million.

"In the field of world trade our American policies are guided not by what is best for American producers but by other policies laid down in the capitals of Europe and Asia.

"The American people have never been accorded a chance to say yes or no to proposals to compromise the National independence of the United States. Slowly in the beginning to be sure, but persistently always, and much faster in recent year — the sovereign independence of our nation has been worn away by secret diplomacy and deliberate misrepresentation linked with an international conspiracy against freedom.

"It has been claimed and is still being claimed, that Washington's handouts, of your and my money, will win friends and hold allies for our country in the struggle against the international communist conspiracy. The facts show, that these claims have no justification.

"If the entire national income of the United States were spent to improve the living conditions of the hundreds of millions of people in undeveloped areas, their living standards would not be raised by even one per cent.

"The greatest myth of all is that communism can be weakened and defeated by the American Foreign Aid Program. As a matter of fact, it is part of the communist doctrine that productive workers shall support the incompetent and the lazy. Isn't that exactly what we have been doing on an international scale with our foreign aid program? In fact, we have turned great sums of money over to outright communist governments of such countries as Poland and Czechoslovakia.

"Why does foreign aid go on endlessly year after year? Who favors such squandering of our resources on this program? There are several groups: one is made up of unrealistic sentimentalists who presist in believing aagainst all evidence to the contrary, that we can buy international friendship. Another group includes those who hope to sell their products to the agency directing the program and still another group, the most dangerous of all, is made up of the mistaken —those who, for whatever reasons, are enemies of freedom and who see in this giant giveway program a means of weakening this nation where freedom is the keynote of our governmental and economic systems.

"Foreign aid has been called a design for national suicide. The term is not too strong. There are those, and we must never forget [illegible] of God-given freedom in America, and the foreign aid program is one of the weapons they use. A bankrupt America means freedom in the world is bankrupt too.

"Quoting from Eugene Castle, 'American citizens have never had the chance to express their opinions and desires, with regard to foreign aid. We are the sole remaining internationalists in the world. All other nations are looking to their own interests. Our foreign aid program has become a substitute for "foreign policy," and is an engraved invitation to financial ruin. For any government to borrow money in order to give it away is incredible folly. Yet that is what the United States is doing, year afte year.

"We have paid for free airplane trips for thousands of Arabs to visit their religious shrine at Mecca. We pay tuition and all living expenses for the sons of wealthy Persians attending American Universities. In Portugal we financed a fifteen mile, six lane highway, connecting Lisbon with a gambling resort. We have provided dress suits for Grecian undertakers. We have built an Italian village that no one will live. The United States soon will complete work on a new modern $2,000,000 embassy building in Karachi, which at the present time, is the capital city of Pakistan. There is a fly in the ointment, through, the government of Pakistan is preparing to move the capital to another city seven hundred miles away. Pakistan, President Mohammemed Ayab Khan has expressed sympathy for the American position, but said his cabinet members and typists and other government people, totaling approximately twelve thousand, would be happier and more comfortable in the cooler climate around the city where the new capital is to be located. The moving of the capital comes as no surprise to anyone concerned. Many months ago a ten-man commission appointed by President Khan recommended the change. But it seems that the United States already had plans drawn for the $2,000,000 embassy building in Karachi so the work was started and completed.

"Our State Department says we have nothing to worry about. The building will not be allowed to go to waste — No Sir. The U. S. Information Service, our military assistance missions, and various other bureaucratic agencies will take over the modern edifice. And then of course, we can go ahead and build another embassy in the new capital city.

"No nothing to worry about. After all, this isn't costing anybody anything that is, not anybody except the hardpressed American taxpayer."

Miss Harrell also gave a most informative talk on "The World Courts".

Mrs. Everett spoke on Communism in America. She read portions from "Masters of Deceit" by J. Edgar Hoover and "America the Vincible" by Emmet John Hughes. In her talk on "The Challenge of Communism" she said: Soc add altrurian daughters tues.

"The totalitarian state, or communism, as expressed by its leaders, gives us a true picture of communist thinking and objective.

"Lenin made Marxism a highly disciplined, organized, and ruthless creed. How can revolution be achieved? Not by democratic reforms, ballots, or good will, but by naked, bloody violence. The sword is the weapon. The party must be a small, tightly controlled, deeply loyal group fanaticism, not members, was the key.

"True Bolshevik courage, observed Stalin, does not consist in placing one's individual will above the will of the Comintern. True courage consists in being strong enough to master and overcome one's self and subordinate one's will to the will of the Collective, the will of the higher party body. The totalitarian man denies the testimony of his private nerves and conscience until they wither before the authority of the party and of history; he is persuaded [illegible] party's will and judgment, the agent who knows no misgiving and no scruples.

"Marshal Zhukov in his hey-day, expressed that man under freedom is an undisciplined, unoriented entity; and Simonov says that under communism, each person becomes a particle of the soviet system. Further, he states, 'A personality, can not bear loneliness. If you ask what the soviet system has done for the writer, I would answer that, first of all, it has erased from his inner self, all sense of loneliness, and given him a feeling of complete and absolute belonging to society and the people.'

"The device used is dictatorship, as expressed in these words: 'We stand for the dictatorship of the proletariat, which is the mightiest and strongest state power which has ever existed'.

"The method used is conspiracy, Lenin explained it thus: 'Conspiracy is so essential a condition of an organization of this kind, that all other conditions must be made to conform to it. The whole art of conspiratorial organization must consist in utilizing everything and everybody, and at the same time maintaining leadership of the whole movement.

"The weapon they use is violence as urged by Mao-Tse-Tung, 'Political power grows out of the barrel of a gun. Yes, we are advocates of the omnipotence of the revolutionary way, which is good and is Marzist."

"Marx wrote it was their interest and task to make the revolution permanent, but Lenin assured conflict with this statement: 'We are living, not merely in a state, but in a system of states, and the existence of the Soviet Republic side by side with imperialist states for a long time is unthinkable. One or the other must triumph in the end. And before that end supervenes, a series of frightful collisions between the Soviet Republic and the bourgeois states will be inevitable."

"Communism invades homes as systematically as nations — it tutors men in treason; it corrupts words as well as men; whoever and whatever defies, it tortures; especially the truth.

"Why then, do people in the United States join the party? One can understand communist strength in countries like China and South Africa, where cruel oppression affords little choice. But, America has been through the longest period of liberal government in its history. The labor movement has never been so strong. Why should Americans submit themselves to the intolerable discipline of party membership. We find that even America has its quota of lonely and frustrated people, craving social and intellectual fulfillment which they can not obtain in existing society. For these people, party discipline is no osbstacle —it is an attraction — they want to be disciplined.

"It is hard work being a communist in America, which is one reason for the turn - over being so great. However, once fully committed, the party is his world. It gives a sense of comradship in a cause guaranteed to succor the helpless and to triumph over the wealthy and satisfied. The party winds him up and keeps him going. Like a platoon isolated behind enemy lines, the American communists perform marvels of daring at their leader's command, each acting as if he embodied the impersonal force of history. In the end, they become so involved socially and psychologically, that the threat of expulsion strikes them as excommunication would a devoit Catholic. This is enough to keep them in line long after they begin to develop intellectual doubts about the infallibility of Russia. Many well meaning citizens are swept into the communist camp by high sounding words of freedom. Justice and equality, and the claim that communism alone has the answer to discrimination, exploitation and economic want.

"The outreach is to youth too. Consider this deceptive line for them, to get them interested in the party: Increase trade with all countries, including the communist bloc to make hundreds of thousands of new jobs for young [illegible] Reduce military expenditures and repeal the draft. Restore full academic freedom for students and faculties. Outlaw all destructive weapons (atomic bomb).

"For youth, we could substitute veterans or women, because the above are things, concerning us all. However, theirs is a sinister interpretation.

"They have worked hard to infiltrate labor unions. Communists are not interested in the laboring man, higher wages, better working conditions, or shorter hours. They want to get inside unions in order to aggitate for communism. Mr. Hoover states that an overwhelming majority of American labor-union members are honest, hard-working, loyal citizens. They detest communism. This has been proved time after time; and, alerted to the presence of communists, they'll throw them out. He further states that we should not be afraid to stand up and be counted.

"What a contrast to the utterances of communist leaders is this one by Thomas Jefferson: 'I have sworn upon the alter of God, eternal hostility against every form of tyrammy over the minds of men."

"This is a battle for the control of the minds of all men, be they on main street, in schools and churches, factories and mills, cities and capitals of all countries. The future of mankind depends on its outcome. As a nation, we have given political, economic, and military aid to our allies around the world, but we have not yet used the one weapon the communists most fear, and that is religion, — our belief in God. It is our best shield against the menace of communism, the best refuge, and a common meeting ground for all Christian races. Russia can give political and military aid in the same, or even greater amounts than we are giving. Belief in God is the one thing we have that the Soviets not only do not have, but repudiate.

"We should stress religion in our homes and educate our youth so that they will resist evil and will fight for things which endure.

"Essentially, we are a Christian nation. Our coins bear the legend "In God We Trust", and there is a Bible in every court room in America. George Washington gave first breath to the tremendous phrase, "So Help Me God", which seals the oath required of each government official and is part of the solemn pledge to speak the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, required in the halls of justice. Mr. Hoover tells us that the membership in the Communist party has dropped considerably, but this should not let us relax our protection and ease up on security measures, or we'll be in a fool's paradise. Wiliam Z. Foster said as did Lenin, they do not measure the importance of the organizations in America by size, as actually in some instances, where there are only one or two [illegible] not be measured, even approximately by statics.

"No longer is there a need to send party recruits for indoctrination to The Lenin School in Moscow, because the communist party, USA has its own educational system, functioning right here in America. They talk of freedom, but their whole purpose is destruction of the American way of life. They do not propose to remodel our government, or retain any part of it — they would tear it to the ground, abolishing the constitution and all our laws. All industry would be nationalized — small business is as guilty as large business, so both must be liquidated. Farms would be taken from owners, and action would be complete, and without appeal. Indeed, just to own anything at all is an offense against the state.

"The communist party, USA, endeavors in every possible way to convince this country that it is American. The communist movement was born abroad, imported into the United States, and grew up under personal direction of Russian leaders in Moscow. The Kremlin has never relinquished that control.

"We have believed that the challenge of Soviet communism was a transient threat; we conceived that it's vices would slowly assure it's weakness. The truth of the matter is, that from the ruins of two World Wars, two great new forces have arisen—America and the Soviet Union. The Soviet union is a system of power. It's very precept and definitions, disdainful of old national frontiers, are written in language for the hearing of the world. It skillfully deploys force, rationally summons science, and invites allegiance from men of all nations. It proclaims itself to belong to this age of man, and this age of man to belong to it. This, and nothing less awesome, is the issue that America is called to answer. We must face it as a nation and as a civilization. And, as women, and individuals, we can not ignore this challenge to keep America free".

Big Rail Disaster Of 50 Years Ago Recalled

EDITOR'S NOTE — Fifty years ago today, as some passengers sang to pass the time and others prayed for deliverance, an avalanche roared down upon two snowbound trains in the Pacific Northwest.

By PAUL WELLS

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP)—In the torn, muddy handbag turned up [illegible] was a water-stained note.

"I trust in God to save us," the shaky handwriting read.

But Sarah Jane Covington, 69, never reached Seattle for her golden wedding anniversary celebration only a few days away.

She was one of 96 who died a half century ago, on March 1, 1910, in the nation's worst rail avalanche disaster near the summit of the Cascades 80 miles northwest of here. There were only 23 survivors.

For seven days the Pacific Northwest lay in the grip of the great storm.

Hour after hour the snow piled deeper in the high Cascades where slides had trapped a westbound Great Northern Railway passenger train and a four-car mail train through the final week of February.

Drifts measured up to 30 feet at the rail point of Wellington, at the west portal of the 2½-mile old Cascade Tunnel on the transcontinental Great Northern Line through Stevens Pass. The elevation was 3,105 feet.

Above the trains, parked on a narrow siding carved from the flank of the steep ravine, lay an ominous 2,000-foot snowfield.

Anxiety, tension, anger and fear spread like an infection among the passengers. Only 43 were left of the 55 who had started west from Spokane Feb. 22. Many were women, children, sick and infirm.

Twelve men had hiked out in two parties over dangerous slides and armpit-deep drifts to scenic Hot Springs four miles to the west.

Many of the scores of laborers and trainmen striving to free the trains were unable to hide their worry.

Ruby El Hult, Seattle author, tells of the mounting crisis in her forthcoming book "Northwest Disaster."

For days there had been a clamor among the passengers for the trains to be backed into the tunnel for added safety.

James H. O'Neill, 38, superintendent of the GN's Cascade division, rejected the requests and repeated insistently no safer place could be found.

Never had there been a slide from the slope above the sidings, he said. And the cold, dark tunnel was impractical because smoke from the engine, kept going to warm the coaches, would suffocate those aboard.

By the final day, moving the trains was impossible because the four rotary snowplows were either out of commission or trapped between slides.

A committee headed by Edgar Lemman, 47, a Hunters, Wash., lawyer, demanded a showdown with railway officials. With telegraph lines down, O'Neill had gone to message for assistance. Trainmaster Arthur Reed Blackburn saw the committee.

After an angry exchange, Blackburn said nothing could be done. But he would not put his refusal in writing.

The passengers gathered to pray in one of the coaches, led by the Rev. James H. Thomson, 57, of Bellingham, Wash. That night there were stunts, recitations and group singing to allay mounting terror. Two women and six men laid plans to walk out the next morning.

The peril became acute the night of Feb. 28 as 43 passengers and 73 railway workers slept fitfully on the two trains and three other workmen rested in small cabins nearby.

Snow turned to rain. Thunder shook the canyon walls, loosening new slides.

Shortly after 1 a.m. on March 1 lightning lit the sky. A horrified workman saw the giant snow cap give way above the trains and roll down.

As Charlie Andrews watched, the mighty avalanche engulfed 15 cars, half a dozen engines and the cabins, sweeping them to the bottom of the ravine 150 feet below.

By midmorning 8 passengers and 16 railway men were found alive. Then only bodies. A fireman died later of exposure, leaving only 23 survivors. The dead included 35 passengers and 61 laborers and trainmen.

Blackburn, the trainmaster, was among the casualties.

So were the Rev. Mr. Thomson, Mrs. Covington, Nellie Sharp McGirl, who had drawn straws with a fellow writer for McClure's magazine to see which headed to Seattle on an assignment; Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Beck and their three children en route back to Pleasanton, Calif., to escape the rigors of winter at Marcus, Wash.—and many more.

The Great Northern described the three-week tieup of its line as "the most calamitous and greatest blockage of a railway system in all American railroad history."

In 1914 the Washington State Supreme Court reversed a lower court award of $20,000 to the small son of one of the victims and held the railway blameless. The avalanche was ruled an act of God.

The Great Northern later spent 25 million dollars to relocate 40 miles of track and build an eight-mile tunnel — longest in the Western Hemisphere — through the Cascades at a lower elevation. The new route was opened in 1929.

Overhead, Wellington — renamed Tye to help blot out memory of the tragedy — fell into decay. Only 3,900 feet of concrete snowsheds erected after 1910 remain as a monument to the dead.

Belgian composer Cesar Franck, who died in 1890, wrote only one symphony, it in D minor. It is very popular today.

Carr Is Heading Into Campaign

AUSTIN (AP)—Speaker Waggoner Carr announced plans today to campaign his way this week from the Gulf Coast to West Texas in preparation for his first formal address next Tuesday.

The candidate for attorney general was in San Antonio Monday after several days of handshaking in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

He planned to visit Columbus today and in Houston Wednesday. On Thursday Carr will speak in Austin and tonight in Monahans. Friday he will be in Odessa and Saturday in San Antonio.

FEARSOME FORWARDS—Both beauty and talent will be in evidence here in Tiger Gym tonight, as evidenced by the above shot of Roby's starting forwards who will go up against Sundown in a bi-district tilt. At left and right, respectively, are twin sisters Judye and Joyce Murff, while Becky Summerlin is at center. Each of the girls is averaging 20.2 points per game over the span of the season, so that tonight's game is thus shaping up as a wide-open offensive type contest.

BI-DISTRICT AT STAKE

Lionesses Out To Nip Sundown

For the second night running, the city of Snyder will be privileged in playing host to a girls playoff encounter, as Roby's Lionesses tangle with the likes of Sundown in a bi-district tilt.

Roby (24-1) was recently crowned champion of District 6-A, while The Sundown lasses rule the 5-A roost.

Tipoff time for the game is 7:30 o'clock, the site for same being Snyder's High School Gym. Admission prices range 75 cents for adults and 35 for students.

In romping to their district crown Roby has posted a 59.5 point-per-games played with forward Judye Murff being high for the team with a total of 566 points, or an average of 20.2 per contest. Her twin sister Joyce and Becky Summerlin, the other two starting forwards for the team, have tallied 546 and 383 points, respectively, over the season's span, Joyce having played one less game than Judye 27—and Miss Summerlin having participated in only 19.

Each of those starting forwards can thus boast of identical 20.2 point - per- game averages— an awesome wrecking crew.

In the Lioness guard positions will be Annette McCormick, Judy Long, and Leta Warren.

Between You And Me

By Jerry Jackson

Casey Stengel has his faults, admitted, but being of a bashful nature definitely isn't one of them. Many are prone to belittle him, and few are those who will go so far as to admit that he has played even so much as a remote hand in bringing his New York Yankees pennant after pennant after pennant.

His latest word-filled binge came on the heels of a comment he happened to hear which seemed to imply that Kansas City has become a sort of farm club for the Yank Dynasty. (Approximately 15 "deals" have been realized between the two clubs in the past five years, with the New Yorkers reportedly getting the better of the transactions.)

And that's all it took for Ol' Case to mount his high horse—just a whisper of a suggestion.

"Farm club, shucks," he snorted. "That's the silliest thing I ever heard of."

Times Is Rough Everywhere, Case

THEN HE REALLY got his teeth into the already chewed-up subject. "We talked trade with nearly every club in both leagues. But all they keep offering us was crumbs for applepie. I see where Al Lopez (White Sox manager) says we made a bad deal with Kansas City and predicts (Norm) Siebern will outhit (Roger) Maris. It's too bad he didn't offer more for Siebern if he likes him so much."

And foidermore ..."t's a funny thing. Now they say we made a bad deal with Kansas City. When the trade was made these same fellows hollered we was robbing them poor Athletics." (What Casey lacks in grammatics is more than made up for in his flair for dramatics.)

This monologue took place way down among the sheltering palms of St. Petersburg, Florida, midst balmy breezes and such. Meanwhile, however, back in the hinterlands of Texas, a storm continued to brew and rumble ever-so-slightly.

This latest controversial caper had nothing to do with far-off Kansas City, however, and its brave little band of cellar-dwelling Athletics. Instead, it involved Mickey Mantle, who did no more than a semi so-so job of playing centerfield last season for said New York, the perennially proud papa of the American League who fell to a miserable (for him) next-to-last finish in the first division this past season in a fall heard 'round the sporting world.

Mantle isn't too overly tickled with what the Yank moneymen consider to be his worth for the coming season, and—although he was prepared to take a "reasonable" cut in his pay check—the cut to which he is seemingly being subjected can't be patched up with iodine.

Sic 'Em, Mick!

AND HE DIDN'T hesitate to let the dollared powers know how he felt about the thing, as they attempted to lure him to Palm Tree Territory so as to discuss his contract for season '60. George Weiss (Mr. Front Office) and his assistant, Roy Hamey, each tried to lure him to St. Pete, but to no avail. For from his cozy little nook by his Dallas fireside, Mr. Mantle growled like a big bear aroused from hibernation: "They want me to go down to St. Petersburg where they are and talk about the contract down there. I don't want to go down there. I want to settle it before I get in Florida."

And that is how things stood yesterday as Mighty Mickey began to pack his overnight kit in readying himself for a little trip up to Joplin. Rumor has it that he's thinking about buying the state of Missouri and wants to look the place over before investing his hardearned cash in anything which he might later regret.

Cage Powers In Playoffs; Ciney Tops

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

The top ten college basketball teams in the country, with Oscar Robertson's Cincinnati Bearcats the No. 1 attraction, all appear on the road to either the NCAA or NIT post-season glamor events.

Overwhelmingly chosen as the nation's top-ranked club in the Associated Press poll the Bearcats went out Monday night and clinched at least a tie for the Missouri Valley Conference championship with the record-breaking Big O scoring 43 points in a 110-64 thumping of Tulsa.

The Bearcats, who drew 70 first-place votes and 1,506 points in the weekly balloting of sports writers and casters, automatically qualify for the NCAA tournament if they retain the top spot in the tough league.

Ohio State, No. 2, nailed an NCAA berth by copping the Big Ten championship while defending titlist California, third-ranked in the latest accounting, Monday was selected for an at-large berth.

The Buckeyes collected 26 first-place votes and 1,356 points to edge the Bears, who polled 20 first-placers, by 94 points for the runner-up spot.

Bradley's Braves, running behind Cincinnati in the Missouri Valley race and fourth-ranked nationally, likely will go to the NIT in New York's Madison Square Garden if they fail to overtake the Bearcats.

Fifth-ranked West Virginia and All-America Jerry West captured a place in the NCAA classic with a weekend triumph in the Southern Conference's championship playoffs.

Utah's Skyline Conference leaders, who dropped to sixth this week, get into the NCAA if they maintain their lead over runner-up Utah State, 10th ranked. The Aggies likely will head for the NIT.

Georgia Tech, seventh-ranked and No. 2 in the Southeastern Conference, is in the NCAA by virtue of Auburn's ineligibility. The Plainsmen, who hopped up to the 11th spot in the poll, took the SEC crown but still are on probation for recruiting irregularities.

The first 10 teams with points on a 10-9-8 etc. basis and first-place votes in parentheses:

1. Cincinnati (70)	1,506
2. Ohio State (26)	1,356
3. California (20)	1,262
4. Bradley (12)	1,034
5. West Virginia (8)	734
6. Utah	728
7. Georgia Tech (2)	334
8. Miami (Fla) (7)	318
9. St. Bonaventure (4)	274

Czechs Gain Credit For U.S. Victory

BOSTON (AP) — The Cleary brothers —amid a delirious homecoming — give Czechoslovakia an unwitting assist for the U.S. hockey team's Olympic victory.

Bill and Bob Cleary, local insurance salesmen who were last-minute additions to the U. S. roster, received a tumultuous welcome Monday along with Capt. Jack Kirrane of Brookline, Dick Rodenhiser of Malden and Trainer Ben Bertini of Lexington.

Texas Nabs Flag; Tech Lends Assist

By The Associated Press

Texas won its first clear-cut title to the Southwest Conference basketball crown in 13 years and gained a berth in the NCAA playoffs when it took an easy 86-62 victory over last-place Rice Monday night.

Texas Tech helped clear the path for the Longhorns by edging Southern Methodist, 71-69, in a game that erased any hopes the Mustangs had for a share of the crown.

Texas A&M, another contender for the title, defeated Texas Christian, 64-56, Monday night but the Longhorn victory also eliminated the Aggies slim chance to tie for the championship.

The Longhorns are now 11-2 in loop play, while SMU and the Aggies have 9-4 marks. Each team has one game left but the most the final tilts can do is to determine whether SMU or A&M wins second place.

Texas was co-champion in 1951 and again in 1954 but the last time it was sole owner of the crown was in 1947. The Longhorns, by winning this year's title, will meet the Big Eight champions in the NCAA regional tournament.

In the fourth loop game Monday night Arkansas defeated Baylor 83-74.

Arkansas is in fourth place with a 7-6 record. The Tech victory and the Baylor loss ties the two teams for fifth place with 6-7 records.

The Monday night tilts pushed TCU, now 3-10, and Rice, 1-12, farther down the ladder.

Wednesday night SMU is host to Arkansas at Dallas. The conference play winds up Thursday night with Texas going to Fort Worth to TCU. Baylor is host to A&M at Waco, and Tech goes to Houston for a game with Rice.

Albert Almanza tossed in 22 points to lead the Longhorns to their victory while Jay Arnette added 20. At one time Texas held a 35-point lead.

The Mustangs were trailing 44-34 at the halftime and had to come from behind to give the Raiders a last minute fight. Del Ray Mounts chalked up 21 points in leading the Tech assault.

The Aggies had to fight back from a 15-point deficit to beat TCU and it wasn't until well in the second half that they were able to make the lead. Carroll Broussard of A&M was high scorer with 18 points and became the school's first 400-point scorer. He also set a new school record for the most points in one season of conference play with 226 points.

Three Texas Boxers Win In Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Three Texas boxers advanced and one was eliminated as the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions began Monday night.

Lightweight Reggie Davis won an impressive TKO over Ernie Cousin of Indianapolis in the first round and then decisioned Jerry Walters of Springfield, Ill. in the second.

The other Texans to advance were Humberto Barrera, 112, and Carlos Rodriquez, qqi. Barrera won a TKO over Ray Pepel of Des Moines and Rodriquez took a close decision over Frank Glovers of Zanesville, Ohio, in the first round. Both drew second round byes.

The Texas team now has 4 points in the tournament. Chicago and Cincinnati led with 6 points each.

Ira Falls To Trent

Ira's girls were bounced out of the playoff picture here in Tiger Gym last night, as they succumbed to Trent (District 15-B) by a score of 47-40 in a bi-district clash.

Ira was recently crowned champ of District 16-B, as they downed Westbrook in a best two of three game playoff for the title.

Grief, misery, Payne and woe plagued the Ira sextet, as they were unable to quell the point-making of Trent star Sarah Payne, who succeeded in pouring a total of 31 points through the hoops during the course of the evening. She, along with forward Syra Swinney who scored a total of 14 for her night's effort, accounted for all but two of the Trentsters' aggregate for the game.

The Ira onslaught was led by Anita Patterson, a senior forward, who meshed a total of 23 points on the strength of 9 field goals and 5 gratis tosses.

Lena Farmer, who took high-point honors in Thursday's Ira-Westbrook game here, popped the nets for a total of 5 field goals and 10 points, while Kay Ford completed the Bulldogette scoring by looping in 7 points.

The Trent girls now stand 29-4 in the won-lost column for the season. The loss was the eighth of the year for Ira, while they have won a total of 24.

Air Force Captures Snafu Championship

EDITOR'S NOTE: Controversy and confusion surround the Air Force these days as it tries to explain its manuals to churchmen, congressmen, and the public. Arthur Edson [illegible] ly and penetrating look at the situation.

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — It has been a long, relentless, fuzzy fight, but the Air Force today finally owns the snafu (situation normal all fouled up) championship of the world.

This has taken considerable doing. The competition in this town is fierce.

But by steadily pounding away, by resolutely issuing instruction manuals on everything from communism in churches to how to run a successful bingo party, the Air Force steadily muddled ahead.

It clinched its title by handling, or mishandling, these episodes so that it wound up:

1. Getting caught in the middle between two large church groups;

2. Attracting the interest of at least three congressional committees;

3. Bringing almost everyone in the Pentagon up to the secretary of defense into the act;

4. Focusing attention on what is primarily a side show at a time when a great and vital debate is going on in the main tent over whether this nation's defenses are strong enough.

Yet in all this to-do, some sobering, some hilarious, the manuals must be kept in perspective.

Around 2,000 such publications are put out by the Air Force, Army and Navy.

Most are routine; probably all but a tiny few are non-controversial.

Every service man of World War II remembers these manuals.

One had helpful hints to Air Force men unlucky enough to be caught on a desert. Another told soldiers how they should act when they moved into North Africa. One suggestion: If you value your safety and maybe even your life, don't fool around with Moslem women, and that includes Moslem women who want to fool around.

The trouble began when the services wandered into other fields.

Several congressmen, for example think the services use manpower foolishly, and prove their case by pointing to manuals.

Rep. Frank Kowalski (D-Conn) objects to using military men as servants. His textbook: "Open Mess Operational Manual," put out for Air Force officers assigned as secretaries of officers' or non-commissioned officers' club.

It included tips on how to mix five different martinis, on how to round up dates for bachelor officers, on how to furnish youngsters who finally eat their spinach and other essentials with "good eating certificates."

This was preceded by a hearing before the manpower subcommittee of the Armed Services Committee at which another Air Force manual was studied.

It included tips to aides and stewards, once called orderlies or dogrobbers. The names have changed, the congressmen noted, but the instructions haven't.

"Occasionally pets require baths. The best way to accomplish this is by using soap, water and plenty of elbow grease."

"Shoepolishing isn't a large task but does require some exacting effort."

All this was embarrassing to the Air Force, but the roof really fell in after Paul Galanti, an Air Force reserve sergeant in Trenton, N.J., conscientiously did his homework.

Galanti, was reading a manual with this scarcely breath-taking title: "NR-45-0050, Increment V, Volume 7." He ran across some stuff about churches in it, and dutifully took it to his preacher.

"The only think I asked was, 'Were the charges true?' " he said later.

Galanti was to find out there is no agreed answer to that question.

For the manual contained these sentences:

"It is known that even the pastors of certain of our churches are card-carrying Communists, The National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A. officially sponsored the revised standard version of the Bible. Of the 95 persons who served in this project, 30 have been affiliated with pro-Communist fronts, projects and publications."

A spokesman for the National Council promptly protested.

The Air Force announced it would withdraw the manual.

Then another church group, made up mostly of fundamentalist denominations complained about the withdrawal. So did Chairman Francis E. Walter (D-Pa) of the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Walter said the manual is true. "If they had looked into it they would have found it correct," he said. "I hope the Air Force conducts its other affairs more intelligently."

At one time or another during the hubbub Air Force officials have been quoted as saying the manual would be withdrawn permanently, that it would be revised, that a part of it would be rewritten, that it would remain essentially as it is but the names of organizations would be deleted.

But the criticism wasn't exclusively with the discussion of the clergy.

One passage dealt with secret information and said:

"A foolish remark often heard is that Americans have a right to know what's going on. Most people realize the foolhardiness of such a suggestion."

This came in for sharp criticism from Chairman John E. Moss (D-Calif) of the special House Government Information subcommittee.

Surgery On Lion Is Tedious Event

DETROIT (AP)—Nuby the lion, strong as an ox underwent surgery Monday night, but it took three veterinarians 1½ hours to put him in the mood.

First they tried knock-out pills. That didn't work. They sprayed ether into his cage, but Nuby was indifferent. It took rope and a hypodermic before he could be anesthetized.

The three vets were hired to remove Nuby's claws.

Don Hunt bought the year-old 165-pound lion for his pet shop in nearby Ferndale. Hunt said he decided on the operation after Nuby clawed an employe.

Man Laying Out Fine For Tickets

DETROIT (AP) — Charles W. Lewis, 37, chose to spend 90 days in jail rather than pay fines totaling $523 for 105 parking tickets, dated in December 1958.

The most recent ticket was dated Dec., 1958.

Lewis told Traffic Judge John D. Watts he had been walking since then.

A routine check disclosed the unpaid tickets after Lewis was arrested for jaywalking.

First Woman Mayor Is 100

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—America's first woman mayor will celebrate her 100th birthday Wednesday.

Susanna Madora Salter baked her own cakes for the festivities at which she will be visited by her five surviving children.

The chipper little lady, mother of eight and a widow since 1916, was mayor of Argonia, Kan., in 1887. Argonia is about 40 miles southwest of Wichita.

Norman's woman mayor, June Benson, and Frank Schumacher, mayor of Argonia, will be here to help Mrs. Salter celebrate. Both cities have proclaimed Wednesday as Susanna Madonra Salter day.

The election of Mrs. Salter as mayor was the result of a prank. Women in Kansas received the right to vote in 1887 and the Women's Christian Temperance Union took a stand on the wet-or-dry issue that marked the Argonia Town Council election that year.

A group of wets prepared a slate of candidates with the 27-year-old Mrs. Salter, a WCTU official, as mayor. They reasoned she would draw only a few votes and that the WCTU would be discredited as a political organization. She received a two-thirds majority of the ballots.

"We didn't do much that year," Mrs. Salter recalled. "I think there were two arrests all year, and we warned some children about throwing stones at a vacant house."

She describes herself as a "good Republican" and says she never misses an opportunity to vote. A daughter, Mrs. M. O. Harris, is staying with Mrs. Salter who is recovering from a hip injury.

Her other living children are Lesie E. Salter, U.S. Circuit Court judge in Chicago; William E. Salter, curator of the geological department of the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D.C.; Lewis Salter, dean emeritus of the University of Oklahoma College of Fine Arts, and Bertha E. Stover, Wichita, Kan.

Noted FBI Agent Dead

FLORENCE, S.C. (AP) — Funeral services will be held Wednesday for Melvin Purvis, the famous FBI manhunter who died by his own hand.

The 56-year-old former FBI agent, depressed and in ill health, shot himself Monday at his home.

Following services at St. John's Episcopal church, he will be buried in Mount Hope Cemetery.

Purvis, who weighed only 127 pounds and stood 5-foot-7, gained national fame when he led a team of FBI agents that shot down John Dillinger and Pretty Boy Floyd during the 1930s. He later left the service, returned to law practice and, at his death, owned Florence radio station WOLS.

Purvis had been in Washington three weeks ago, his office said, to prepare recommendations for the improvement of federal justice administration for the U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee. A family physician said that while there, Purvis had an attack of flu and suffered an arm injury. The physician also said Purvis had been depressed recently.

Demos Warned To Tighten Campaign

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—A memorandum advising Democrats they may lose the presidential race while retaining control of Congress was circulating among influential party members today.

In blunt language, California's Paul Ziffren told his colleagues on the Democratic National Committee that unless steps are taken to dramatize "bread and butter" issues, Vice President Richard M. Nixon may be the next president.

He said this should be done by surveys in depth of the issues and action to sell the party's policies to the voter.

Ziffren, who has been critical of the Demcratic leadership in Congress as too middle-road made it clear he doesn't believe the "party of responsibility" slogan of Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas will be effective.

"The voter doesn't care whether government is responsible," Ziffren said. "The voter wants to know what it is doing for him. We have got to give him some answers — dramatically, concretely and quickly."

Similarly, Ziffren said he doesn't think there is much political mileage in contending that President Eisenhower has been a weak president. Several Democratic hopefuls, including Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, have taken this line.

"The voter isn't concerned with whether a president is weak or strong," Ziffren said. "In fact some of them like their presidents to be weak—others like him to be strong, but each of them is concerned with what it means to himself—the voter."

Ziffren said Republicans had succeeded in putting Democrats in a "strait jacket" on economic issues by accusing them of favoring excessive spending.

"I believe the reason Mr. Nixon has been able to neutralize our advantage on bread and butter issues is that the Republicans have convinced many of the voters that the high cost of living is due to the 'spending' policies of the Democratic party," the California committeeman said.

"We must get out of this 'strait jacket' if we are to be able to discuss these issues properly. I believe the most effective way to do this is to demonstrate that high price have been caused largely by the fact that during the last seven years the Republican party has permitted big business to develop monopolistic tendencies with obvious price control power," he added.

Ziffren said President Eisenhower's trips and those of Nixon appear to have sold the voters on "the Republican desire to talk, not fight."

He said to counter this the Democrate are going to have to "get the people to insist on the facts and to face up to them—not only in foreign policy but in the other critical issues."

Kind Treatment Of Words Urged

By G. K. HODENFIELD
AP Educiation Writer

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Words are about the most expensive thing we have, and we ought to treat them with more care.

So says J. N. Hook, one of the authors of a proposed new program for teaching English in junior and senior high schools. He told the convention of the National Assn. of Secondardy-School Principals:

About half of all the taxes you pay every year are spent on words.

When you buy a new $3,000 car, you are getting about $1,500 worth of words.

About half the 41 billion dollars Uncle Sam pays annually for national defense buys nothing but words.

to fire his rifle. Bennett is free on bond pending sentencing on the assault charge.

Even the average cost of a business letter today is between $1.50 and $2.00.

If this seems all out of line, consider that automobile.

"The salesman and the dealer get a sizeable commission for persuading you to buy their make rather than another. You pay handsomely for their words—perhaps from $100 to $500," Hook says.

You also pay for all the words, written or spoken, in board meetings, order forms, telegrams, telephone calls, newspaper, radio and television advertisements, sales conferences—you name it, you're paying for it.

About those taxes, and the words they pay for:

"Most of the people in Washington are communicators," says Hook. "They make words, not something tangible. The same applies to most state and local government employes.

"About half our huge military expenses is for communication."

Hook, executive secretary of the National Council of Teachers of English, Champaign, Ill., is a member of a 15-man committee named by the high school principals to come up with a statement of policy on the teaching of English from the 7th through the 12th grade.

The committee's suggestions, submitted to the convention Monday, call for much more emphasis on the basics of the English language, particularly reading and writing.

The committee said there should be a regular diet of writing, reading and spelling for every student, every year.

Students learn to write only by writing, not by reading about it or talking about it, they said. All students, even the good readers, should be taught to read better.

Man Charged Second Time

EL PASO (AP) — Marfa rancher Lyman Moody Bennett Monday was charged with intimidating a witness and inducing the witness to make a false affidavit.

Last month he was convicted of assault with a deadly weapon upon two U.S. Border Patrol officers where were rounding up wetbacks along the Rio Grande on Bennett's property.

Attorneys for the 50-year-old rancher last week moved for a new trial after two prosecution witnesses signed affadavits that they lied on the witness stand.

Both witneses, Carlos Aopdaca Soli and Ascension Mora, testified they saw Bennett fire the first shot during the shooting spree between Bennett and the Border Patrol.

In the affadavits they signed in the motion for a new trial they said there were two shots fired before Bennett was in a position

Says Loan Sharks Repel Industry

HOUSTON (AP) — A firm hand by the state against organized racketeering and loan sharks should attract new industry, Atty. Gen. Will Wilson said Monday.

He is seeking his third term in office in the May Democratic primary.

"If our high school graduates are to stay in Texas, we need about 60,000 new jobs a year," he said. "The principal thing that the attorney general can do to promote this is to prevent organized racketeering and exploitation of the working people by loan sharks.

"This ought to be a major inducement to people looking for locations for a new plant," he said.

New Chaplain For Rangers Takes Over

VICTORIA (AP) — A minister with a preference for Stetson hats and cowboy boots, The Rev. Dr. John H. Newton, Monday assumed duties as chaplain of the Texas Rangers.

The minister has been interested in law enforcement for some time. He attended an FBI crime detection school and also rode with the Victoria County Sheriff's Posse.

Dr. Newton is the minister of the First Presbyterian Church of Victoria.

Sifting Of Steers Today

HOUSTON (AP)—More than 500 fat steers from all over Texas cram into Sam Houston Coliseum today for qualification for competition in the annual Houston Fat Stock show's Junior division.

The high price which the grand champion brings every year makes the event tops among livestock show competition.

The steers were checked Monday for age at weighing-in time.

Actual judging will get under way today for commercial steers and dairy heiffers under the direction of Dr. I. W. Rupel, head of the Texas A&M Dairy Department.

Fat steer judging starts Wednesday under A.L. Darlow, dean of agriculture at Oklahoma State University.

Daily Crude Flow Rises

TULSA (AP) — Daily average domestic oil production increased 3,180 barrels to 7,332,540 during the week ended Feb. 27, the Oil and Gas Journal said today.

The best gain was in Oklahoma, up 4,650 to 567,800 barrels.

The Journal estimated 1960 production at 419,796,200 barrels compared to 418,158,800 a year ago.

Other increases were in Colorado, up 700 barrels to 130,000; Louisiana, 75 to 1,089,850; and Arkansas, 75 to 84,550.

Production was unchanged in Texas, [illegible] barrels and New Mexico, 304,600.

This Would Be A Silent Era If Ghosts Suddenly Faded

By INEZ ROBB

If a modern Macbeth in this year of grace were to bump into Banquo's ghost trespassing in Glamis Castle, he wouldn't make a scene, screaming, "Avaunt! and quit my sight! Let the earth hide thee!"

He — Macbeth — would sensibly ask Banquo's shade to take a seat and then ask him his standard fee for a forceful but folksy 20-minute speech to soothe both the restive sharecroppers and the neighboring landlords.

"Throw in something flattering about the neighborhood witches and make at least passing reference to Hautboys, Local 502," Macbeth, smoothing his charcoal flannel, would say. "Keep in mind that my speech comes after the bagpipes and before the haggis. A joke or two at the beginning won't hurt, but don't forget to let 'em know who's boss!"

The great difference between medieval and modern man is that one was hysterical with ghosts and the other would be hysterical without them. Modern man lives in a haunted house of his own devising, terrified least some fool accidentally exorcise the shades—and the whole structure come tumbling down like a house of marked cards.

If ghosts were suddenly cast out, a silence as golden as summer sun would envelop the earth. If shades returned beyond the River Styx, who would write speeches, reports, memoirs, personal histories or true confessions for poets and presidents, movie queens and motor moguls, tycoons and teevee comics, politicians and publicans or for Lassie and J. Fred Muggs?

Ghost-writing is one of the tools of modern civilization. The current discription of a big, public dinner is not "everybody and his dog were there," but "everybody and his ghost showed up."

So it is scant wonder that a part of the academic world has decided that if ghosts are good enough for Congress, they're good enough for the campus.

The district attorney is now raiding and investigating ghostly agencies that have been aiding the 10 o'clock scholar in New York. But not extending the helping hand for any dillar or dollar!

Inflation is everywhere. Ghosts receive $18 for a minor paper; $40 for acting as a substitute and taking an examination for Joe College (in a class of 150, who knows the real Joe?); $50 to $350 for term papers, depending upon length and cerebration, and up to $3,000 for a doctoral thesis. So it is obvious that an ambitious student today must not only be a gentleman and a scholar, but also a financier. Anyone planning to work his way through college ought to start in Wall Street.

As one with a do-it-yourself degree who produced her own college themes, term papers and examinations, I suppose I ought to be wildly indignant at this expose of greasy-grinds-for-hire. On the other hand, isn't some scholar to be congratulated for discovering that what is good for General Motors is also good for the Ivy League?

Where does one draw the line with ghosts? Is the academic ghost more reprehensible than the corporate ghost? Who is to say which Toni should have the permanent, built-in guilt complex about his dealing with the shades?

As we swing it in college circles now, the old song goes:

"School days, school days,
Dear old cash-and-cool days;
Reading and writing and
'rithmetic,
Nothing at all that money
can't lick;
You were my queen in calico,
You were the one who paid
the dough
When I wrote on your slate,
At the standard ghost rate,
And your grades were great!"

Waitresses Tired Of Hearing This

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that waitresses get tired of hearing, or overhearing:

"What's a pretty dame like you doing working in a joint like this?"

"I know I asked for my steak well done, but I changed my mind. Take it back and ask the chef if he can make it rare."

"Whaddaya have to do to get service around here, keel over dead?"

"Her legs wouldn't be half bad if only they were on a piano."

"Poddon me for being alive. After all, I'm just a customer."

"Whaddaya got on for tonight, kiddo?"

"I know you call it coffee, but what is it really?"

"I asked for Java, not lava."

"I'm a talent scout, kid. How'd you like to leave all this and go to work in Hollywood?"

"I know it says no substitutions, but can't you make it sliced tomatoes instead of the succotash?"

"Whaddaya do for excitement in this town, watch haircuts?"

"What happened, did the dishwasher swap jobs with the chef again?"

"Naw, I haven't been waiting long. I needed a shave when I came in."

"Never mind the sugar, honey. Just dip your finger in it."

"Let me speak to the manager, or, better still, someone from the Board of Health."

"The coffee's usually good here on Mondays. That's the day they clean out the urn."

"If George Washington syed here, he must have used this same table cloth."

"Here y'are, kid. Buy yourself another Rolls Royce."

"I hear in this place even the chef brings his own lunch."

"It couldn't be a statue. I saw her move."

"I tell you I ordered chow mein, not lemon meringue pie. But what's the difference? Leave it here anyway."

Rights Bill Fight Organized Chaos

Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate's around-the-clock fight over civil rights is headed for organized chaos before it's finished. This looks like the wooliest civil rights fight in recent years.

The Senate leaders — Lyndon Johnson of Texas for the Democrats and Everett Dirksen of Illinois for the Republicans — have agreed on around-the-clock sessions endlessly to smash the Southern Democrats' fight against any civil rights measure.

The idea is to make them shut up finally through exhaustion. This is disorderly enough. But the usual way of doing Senate business has also been abandoned, leaving the door open for a free-for-all.

This is the orderly way:

Bills on a certain issue, like civil rights, after being introduced in the Senate are sent to the appropriate committee whose members and staff examine the bill for good, and bad parts, workable and unworkable parts, and gimmicks.

Hearings are held so both sides can speak their piece. Then the committee senators agree on one bill, or put together a combination of bills, and send the finished product to the full Senate for action, with a report and explanation.

On the floor, of course, changes can be made in the committee-approved bill through amendments offered on the floor. But by this time the senators have, or should have, a pretty good idea of what they're voting on.

But this year civil rights bills have been stymied in both House and Senate committees which are headed by Southerners. So Johnson and Dirksen decided to go ahead and try to get some kind of civil rights bill passed without committee approval.

The bill supposed to get first consideration was proposed by the Eisenhower administration. First, it was offered in bits and pieces last year. This year Dirksen put all the pieces together and offered them in one bill.

But there probably have been more than 200 civil rights bills, with all kinds of proposals, introduced this year, not one of which got through a committee.

Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga), leader of the Southern Democrats, said Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R-NY) has by himself introduced at least 57 civil rights bills.

Angelo Man Is Missing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A native of San Angelo, Tex., has been missing since he left a note telling his wife he was going "to swim out in the ocean as far as I can and drown."

"They are threatening you and the kids, "Sam Joe Townsend, 27, wrote his wife, Joan.

Both were seniors in the UCLA Archeology Department.

Townsend's sport shirt and jacket were found at the edge of the water on rocks near Malibu Sunday night.

Townsend graduated from Woodrow Wilson High School at Dallas in 1950 and attended Southern Methodist University.

His parents are Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Townsend, Los Angeles.

Officers said Townsend wrote: "I got involved with some gamblers over my head about $15,000—I drew $1,000 out of the bank but they would not make a deal. This way, they have no hold on you.

"Don't feel bad—you can collect the insurance. Be a good archaeologist and keep the kids with you.

"Bye, dear—it will be over quick—I plan to swim out in the ocean as far as I can and drown—I love you. Sam."

PRACTICAL APPLICATION OF READING AND WRITING goes into these notebooks in this junior high school Language Arts Class.

FINDING ADVENTURE IN BOOKS IS FUN and each first grade pupil starts the road to reading adventure in a reading circle of friends like Mrs. O. S. Clark's class from East Elementary.

Language Arts Form Backbone Of Program

(Editors note— This is the second in a series of articles dealing with courses of instruction in the Snyder Public Schools. The series has been developed in cooperation with the school administration in connection with observance of Texas Public School Week).

The Language Arts program in the schools might well be thought of as the backbone of all programs.

Anyone, and everyone must learn to read spell and write. In teaching reading, the aim is not mearly to help children master the mechanics of reading. Teachers strive to cultivate in children from the very beginning a thoughtful attitude toward reading and skill in grasping the meaning of what is read, so that reading will contribute richly to children's personal growth.

In order to reach the aim, teachers strive first to develop in children the attitudes that make a good reader, namely, a consistent demand for meaning, a thoughtful, inquiring attitude toward everything read, and interest in reading as a source of pleasure and information.

Next, effort is made to develop basic word perception and interpretation abilities needed for all reading. There is concern with satisfying and broadening children's reading interests, promoting effective oral reading and setting into action a program that meets the needs of individual pupils. In addition to basic reader, a large number of supplementary readers are used, from which children may choose to read almost anything they are interested in, whether it be history, biography, adventure, science, etc.

In recent years, each elementary school has been equipped with a good library. It is used by each grade in some way. Primary children enjoy stories read to them by the librarian. They learn how to check out books and how and when to check them in. In some of the upper grades, the students learn to use the card catalogue and do research work. They too may check out books to read for their own enjoyment.

The library also contains current magazines and newspapers which may be taken to the room and kept for reference during any particular unit of work.

Spelling and writing go hand in hand along with the language program. Manuscript writing is taught in the first grade and in the first half of the second grade. Cursive writing is taught from then on. Writing precedes spelling. As children begin to read, the desire to record their experiences follows closely. The first writing done is usually copy work and then as children progress they go through a period of group writing and finally into independent writing. As a child becomes more independent in writing the need for spelling arises. A first grade child may use more phonics than is apparent but having been taught phonetic skills in his reading he is able to spell many words on his own before any formal teaching has begun. When formal spelling lessons are started, the first words on the list are those taken from the child's own speaking and reading vocabulary. As children move along to a higher grade, spelling words are added to the ones of the previous year in order to meet his needs until finally when he has finished elementary school he should be able to spell and use several thousand words.

A person never ceases to read, spell, and write and so much time is spent in teaching the Language Arts in our schools.

In the Junior High School Language Arts is taught for two periods each day. One period devoted to English grammar and Literature, and one period for reading and spel'ing.

Four credits of English are required for graduation from the Senior High School. The fourth unit of English may be substituted by speech to meet this requirement. In the Senior High School Literature is taught one semester and grammar one semester. However, correct sentence structure and correct grammar is stressed in both semesters. In the Senior High School library assignments are made throughout the year for selected reading. Also classes are conducted in the library by teachers to assist students in research work.

Why not visit your child's school and ask questions about the Language Arts Program?

Many Growers Overplanting

WASHINGTON (AP)—California and Texas growers are taking the lead this year in electing to overplant 1960 cotton planting allotments under the new federal cotton program.

Under this program, growers may exceed federal allotments 40 per cent if they are willing to take price supports at 60 per cent of the parity price goal of farm programs. Growers planting within allotments get supports at 75 per cent.

The Agriculture Department's first report on a signup campaign showed that through Feb. 19, a total of 15,736 farmers had elected to overplant. They increased their allotments a total of 303,587 acres. Of this, about 117,000 acres were in California and 102,000 in Texas.

To the comparable date last year, 17,067 farmers had elected to increase their allotments 176,249 acres. Final date for signup under the new program is March 16.

The new program, in its second year, is supposed to increase the supply of cotton available at prices more nearly in line with competitive cotton grown abroad and with man-made fibers.

Hearing Reset For Georgia Escapee

AUSTIN (AP) — An extradition hearing for a Georgia chain gang escapee 15 years ago will be held here April 1.

The hearing was postponed Monday because the attorney for Edgar Marion Thompson of Sherman submitted medical certificates showing Thompson suffered from diabetes, a respiratory ailment and other illnesses.

Georgia asked Thompson's return after he was identified earlier this year as Richard Pressley, a resident of Sherman who had been active in crippled children's work.

He escaped from the Reedsville Ga. prison after serving 2 years of a 14-year sentence on robbery charges.

ADVANCING TO THE LIBRARY FOR ADVENTURE AND LEARNING—From the very first pupils are encouraged to read in the library—exciting books on science, biology, history, farm life, everyday life, and even space travel, line the shelves to tempt these early travelers on the road to reading adventure. This view of Stanfield Elementary's library shows the newest feature in schoolroom procedure—the "open door" policy featured throughout the building.

Six Children Are Found Abandoned

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP)—Officers smashed open a door in a home Monday and found six children trying to keep warm by burning newspapers in an old stove. The only food they had was dry bread.

Custody of the children, two girls and four boys all under 9 years old, will be considered in a hearing today.

The mother was not at home and the Welfare Department said they were told the children had been left unattended for more than a day. The children were put in foster homes.

Two deputy constables who went to the house to serve a legal paper in connection with evicting the family found the children. The front door was nailed shut.

Praying Woman Is 100 Years Old Today

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Martha Grant, who "gets down on her knees beside her bed every morning and night and prays," celebrates her 100th birthday today.

Her daughter, Alma Mabray with whom Mrs. Grant lives, told of her mother's daily prayers.

"She never owned a pair of glasses and can still read large print," Mrs. Mabray said.

Mrs. Grant had 14 children and has 20 grandchildren and 52 great-grandchildren. Her husband is dead.

BES Adding To Its Staff

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bureau of Employment Security is increasing its staff of field inspectors enforcing regulations covering the employment of Mexican farm workers.

Robert Goodwin, the bureau's director, said the president's budget for the 12 months beginning July 1 provides for 28 more field positions.

He told the House Appropriations subcommittee in testimony made public today that the additions would bring the field staff to 97 compliance men and 21 clercal employes. He sadi teeharuubi ical employes. He said the bureau believed it needed at least 40 more men, but the request was scaled down by the Budget Bureau.

Goodwin said the additional staff will permit an increase from 20,000 to 24,000 in the number of employer payrolls inspected to be sure Mexican workers are being paid the prevailing wage rate in the area.

In addition, he said, the number of housing inspections will be increased from 7,600 to 8,800.
