Sale of technology to China approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration, eager to promote closer American ties with China, disclosed Friday it has given preliminary approval to a Chinese purchase of technology that has military applications.

The equipment being sold includes sophisticated airborne infrared scanning devices and high-speed recording devices that can detect potential earthquakes and help locate oil deposits.

An initial export application from Daedulus Enterprises of Ann Arbor, Mich., was rejected early last month on grounds that the equipment could be used to intercept U.S. military signals, according to sources, who asked not to be identified.

The reversal of that decision may have been linked to a May visit to Peking by national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski, who was accompanied by an Asian expert in the Defense Department and an assistant director of the White House office of science and technology.

In an unusual statement after his return from Peking, Brzezinski assailed Soviet policies in Africa and elsewhere and said the United States hopes to use its relationship with Peking to moderate Soviet behavior.

However, administration officials insisted the decision was not connected to Brzezinski's trip or to cooler relations between the Soviet Union and the United States.

"Our position on all these cases of dual technology (equipment with both military and civilian uses) is even-handed as far as the Soviet Union and China are concerned," said State Department spokesman Jack Cannon.

In making the announcement Friday, State Department press officer John Trattner gave no reason for the policy reversal, but other officials said the decision was based on Chinese assurances that the technology would be used only for civilian purposes.

Baker certified for primary ballot

By BILL RAWLINS

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Sen. Howard Baker was certified for Tennessee's Aug. 3 primary ballot Friday, one day after the state's Democratic-controlled Election Commission refused to approve his petition on grounds his signature might have been forged.

Baker, the Senate minority leader who is running for his third term, had threatened court action Thursday after the five-member commission refused to approve his qualifying petition.

The commission took only 15 minutes to certify the senator's candidacy Friday.

Informed of the action at his home in Huntsville, Baker said, "Obviously I'm pleased that they reversed themselves and certified my petition."

"Politics is a tough business, it really is. It's a shame it gets tougher when things like this happen. I guess you have to expect things like this. I hope it's not a harbinger of things to come."

The senator declined to comment on whether the publicity surrounding the commission's earlier stand would help or hurt his campaign.

The commission was furnished with an affidavit, signed by Baker earlier in the day and attested to by Scott County Court Clerk Lloyd Cross. It related Baker's account of how he signed the petition in his Washington office May 25, the day before it was filed in the Tennessee Capitol complex.

Commission Chairman Richard Holcomb of Chattanooga, a Democrat, said the commission did not really reverse its position of Thursday, since "no action was taken, one way or the other."

Had the commission stood its ground, it would have prevented Baker, a 1980 presidential prospect and the nation's highest elected Republican official, from the ballots for the Aug. 3 primary and the Nov. 3 general elections.

The deadline for filing the petitions passed June 1. Baker could have asked voters to give him the nomination and election by writing his name on the ballot, but since voting is done by machine the chances of a successful write-in campaign are considered slim.

Jack Seaton, one of two Republicans on the five-member commission, was absent Thursday and a motion by the other Republican, Jim Harpster, to certify Baker's petitions died for lack of a second. Seaton said he had not been notified.

Fred Thompson, a Nashville lawyer and minority counsel to the old Senate Watergate Committee when Baker was vice chairman, had a lawsuit ready to file in Chancery Court if needed.

Baker said four persons watched him sign the petitions in his Washington office on May 25, the day before they were filed with state Election Coordinator David Collins. And House Speaker Ned McWherter, a Democrat, said, "I've known Sen. Baker a long time and if he told me he signed his petition, I would say he's qualified."

Collins and Democratic commission members conferred Friday morning in McWherter's office.

Collins said he compared Baker's signatures on a Federal Election Commission report and a letter with Baker's signature on the qualifying petition. "I don't think you have to be handwriting expert to see the difference," he said.

Collins says the "H," "o" and "d" in "Howard" and the "J" in "Jr." all appeared to be different on the qualifying petitions than those on other documents bearing Baker's signature. He said he did not contact Baker before the qualifying deadline because it is up to the commission to decide on a petition's validity.

In addition to Holcomb, Democrats on the commission are Tommy Powell of Memphis, and Lytle "Jug" Landers of Shelbyville.

miles north of Washington, D. C., Friday, injuring at least 68 persons. Spokemen for nearby hospitals, to which the injured were Nation's gas estimates too high?

By STAN BENJAMIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Research Council, which earlier found little chance of increasing natural gas production in six offshore fields, has told the Interior Department that the nation may have less gas than it thinks.

The council's final report to Interior Secretary Cecil D. Andrus has not yet been formally published, but a copy was made available to The Associated Press on Friday.

There was no immediate comment from the Interior Department to the final council report.

The council study, commissioned by Andrus in April 1977, was intended to answer the question of whether gas production in the Gulf of Mexico can be increased. Six fields were selected "for their apparent potential for increased production, not as a representative sample."

The council conceded its study was focused on older, more fully-developed gas fields whose production capability was already declining.

But its final report to Andrus says a consulting firm found 43 percent less gas remaining in those fields than the council had expected from the reserve estimates of the U.S. Geological Survey.

"If results similar to ours apply to other fields — in the federal domain and elsewhere — total proved gas reserves for the nation may be significantly lower than previously estimated," the final report said.

"Because reserve estimates are important elements for framing national policy," it added, "we believe it is important to determine whether our results are indicative of the status of reserve estimates in general."

"Our findings suggest that some actions to verify and update available reserve figures are warranted."

The council suggested that the difference could represent overly optimistic early estimates made by the geological survey or petroleum companies in the early years of field development and never updated.

If that has been common practice, it warned, the nation may have considerably less natural gas in the ground than it thinks.

The council noted that in making early reserve estimates, "the incentives for companies appear to be for optimism rather than pessimism. Success in exploration results from adding more, rather than fewer reserves."

Meanwhile, a consumer group called Energy Action urged Andrus to begin a new, more comprehensive study on the question of increasing natural gas production in the Gulf of Mexico.

The group cited the council's six preliminary reports on the individual gas fields, but not the unpublished final report.

"The objective of a comprehensive investigation has not been met, and the original question posed, whether gas production from the Gulf of Mexico OCS (outer continental shelf) can be increased remains unanswered," the group said.

Soviet charge 'absurd,' State Department says

By ROBERT B. CULLEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department on Friday dismissed as "absurd" Soviet charges that electronic devices found in a chimney at the U.S. embassy in Moscow were protective devices aimed at foiling American espionage.

However, department spokesman John Trattner said he did not expect the bugging incident to have a lasting effect on U.S.-Soviet relations.

In an unusual step, the department summarized the content of its May 31 protest note to the Soviets over what it regards as a "secret listening post" operated by the Soviets.

The note said there was "no doubt" the eavesdropping device was operated by the Soviets. It added that the "responsibility for the consequences rests with the Soviet side." Trattner refused to speculate on what the consequences might be.

The Soviet countercharges were leveled in a dispatch by Tass, the Soviet government news agency. The Thursday dispatch reported on a formal protest Tass said had been filed by the Soviet Foreign Ministry.

But, Trattner said, the State Department had received no such protest as of noon Friday. "Presumably there has been a mixup and the Soviets will straighten it out," he said.

According to Tass, the Soviet protest said the Americans who found the listening post had illegally entered and destroyed Soviet property in an apartment building next door to the embassy. According to the United States, that apartment was connected by a tunnel to the listening devices in the chimney of the embassy.

Tass said the device found by the Americans was a protective device designed to counter "intelligence and subversive activities conducted by the American special services from the U.S. embassy."

Carter plans visit to Texas

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter will make a two-day, four-stop trip to Texas later this month, the White House announced Friday.

Carter will fly to Fort Worth on June 23 and address a joint luncheon of local service clubs, then go to Houston for a Democratic fund-raising dinner.

After spending the night in Houston, Carter will go to Beaumont on Saturday and speak at the dedication of a federal building named for Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas.

Later in the day, the president will tour Fort Hood, a base for Army armored units, and return to Washington in the evening.

Skylab wobbles corrected

By HOWARD BENE-DICT

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP)—After being stabilized in orbit, the Skylab space station rolled out of control for a tense 90 minutes Friday before space scientists here regained the upper hand.

By late afternoon ground controllers reported the unmanned station again was stable and they were moving ahead with preparations for a final maneuver Saturday intended to delay the high vehicle from dropping out of orbit and possibly striking a populated area.

Early Friday, the Houston control center sent a critical command which tilted the Skylab so that its solar panels will continually point at the sun. The maneuver was so successful that it was completed several hours ahead of schedule.

But in early afternoon, while controllers were sending up routine commands, the 85-ton station, the world's largest man-made satellite, began rolling out of control. Officials said that an unexplained spurious signal from the on-board computer changed the position of the control gyroscopes.

This caused small steering rockets to fire and send the spacecraft into the uncontrolled roll.

Before controllers could troubleshoot the problem Skylab passed out of radio range and it was nearly 90 minutes before it again passed over a ground station.

A series of commands from the ground corrected the gyroscopes positions and stopped the thruster rockets.

National Aeronautics and Space Administration spokesman Bob Gordon said the controllers had spent an anxious hour and a half, but now everything appears normal.

He said they may go ahead with Saturday's maneuver about 3 a.m. (CDT), about 4½ hours earlier than planned. He reported the uncontrolled firing of the jets used up 3,900 pounds of Skylab's fuel, leaving 8,300 pounds. Only about 1,000 pounds is needed for Saturday's maneuver.

A parallel position will reduce the drag slowly pulling Skylab toward Earth and could add six months to a year to its orbital life.

Pari-mutuel question to Legislature

By GARTH JONES

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Horseracing Association said Friday it considers the May 6 voters poll on horse race betting a "photo finish" and will push the issue in the 1979 Legislature.

"There can be little doubt that horseracing legislation will be considered by the next legislature," Douglas McCrory, Calvert, chairman of the association, told a news conference. "The exact nature of the bill to be supported by our association has not been determined but we are committed to local option, and a regional approach is being considered."

The exact outcome of the referendum on the May 6 ballot has been in doubt since the first primary. When other results of the Democratic primary were canvassed and certified on May 16 the state Democratic committee said it had not been able to count the referendum votes. On May 24 the committee announced that the pari-mutuel wagering opinion poll failed by 685,012 to 720,012.

A report on transportation will head the agenda when the Midland Community Action Agency holds its monthly board meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday in Midland County Courthouse.

The report will be given by Pete Conga with the Texas Department of Community Affairs and Landre Doan with the Department of Human Resources.

Officers will be elected and new board members will be introduced. The budget will be presented.

Texas Republicans said they voted it down 74,281 to 69,638.

McCrory said Friday that mistakes and discrepancies uncovered since then have resulted in a change of more than 47,000 votes. He said the association's figures show the referendum failed on the Democratic ballot by only 754,791 or 50.94 percent to 702,666 or 49.06 percent.

The state Democratic committee is scheduled to canvass its votes on the referendum at its June 13 meeting.

KcCrory said the association would not appear cing, and the statewide vote was a photo finish."

He said association figures show that Bexar County voted in favor of horse race betting by 67 percent, Cameron, Hidalgo and Webb counties by 69 percent, Travis County by 57 percent, Galveston County by 64 percent and Harris County by 53 percent.

Charles W. Hancock, Caldwell, association secretary-treasurer, said the referendum carried in legislative districts that elect 86 of the 150 Texas House members and 21 of the 31 senators.

Prosecution piles up evidence

TYLER, Texas (AP) — The prosecution in the racketeering trial of Fannin County Sheriff Raymond Taylor brought in stacks of evidence Friday — poker chips, dice, and cash confiscated in gambling raids.

FBI agent Jim Blanton, who took part in a raid near Bonham, said Friday under cross examination he had never seen Taylor at the barn where the raid took place, but added that since he didn't know what Taylor looked like, that didn't mean anything.

Defense lawyer F.R. Files established under cross-examination of Blanton that there wasn't any type of alarm system at the barn or at a nearby trailer.

However, Blanton testified under redirect questioning by the prosecution that a Texas Ranger once tried to gain entrance to the barn by pretending to be a player, but was refused admittance because the man at the door did not know him.

The prosecution contended this was a type of security system.

The prosecution entered 26 exhibits Friday, many gathered from the raid. They included a cigar box of chips and $2,000 cash, plastic envelopes of red and green chips, blank chips and envelopes of money, which was estimated to be about $12,000.

Blanton, who specializes in gambling operations, testified that no ledgers are kept in such instances and that blank checks with names, amounts of money and telephone numbers listed "could very well be some type of ledger."

Friday's testimony ended the full week of testimony and indications were the federal court trial might last another full week.

Minister wounds woman

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — An 80-year-old retired minister allegedly wounded a neighbor with a rifle shot from his house and held police at bay for more than an hour Friday morning before surrendering peacefully, authorities said.

The Rev. Sam L. Holland, identified by relatives as a Methodist minister, was jailed, but detectives said formal charges would not be filed until after a psychiatric evaluation.

"I'm no desperado," the man told police as he walked from his east San Antonio home with his attorney. The man allegedly fired two other shots with a .22-caliber rifle before police arrived, but did not exchange shots with officers.

Holland's neighbor, Billie Phillips, told police she and Thelma Cabness, 55, were talking in the Cabness front yard when Mrs. Cabness was struck in the shoulder.

The man then allegedly locked himself in his house, refusing to come out despite the urgings of police, relatives and neighbors. The siege ended after the man's attorney, David Carter, talked to him on the telephone and met him at the front door as he surrendered.

The wounded woman was listed in satisfactory condition Friday morning.

Candidate offers comments on race

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Jim Lacy, Republican candidate for the Railroad Commission, said Friday that voters have a clear choice in considering him or Democrat John Poerner.

"They can either elect a man of proven ability, who has risen from roustabout to president of an oil firm or they can elect a man whose chief qualification for the office is that he is a friend of the governor," Lacy said at a Capitol news conference.

Lacy, 53, an independent oil operator from Midland, said that he and Poerner both have name identification problems but Lacy thinks he is better qualified for the Railroad Commission than the Democratic nominee.

"While my opponent is a man of honorable professions as a surveyor and farmer, he is not qualified to regulate an industry as complex as the oil and gas industry," Lacy told a Capitol news conference. "I understand the oil and gas business, its regulations, the effect of regulation on the industry and its ability to continue to explore for oil and gas."

He added that "exploration is the only method left to increase oil and gas production in Texas and keep Texas healthy."

Day-by-day club offered by YMCA

Summer vacations often interfere with a summer camp schedule or other activities a child is involved in. To alleviate that problem the Central YMCA is offering a day-to-day pay-as-you-go program called Fun Club, said a worker at the Y.

The program, which starts Monday at 8 a.m., is open to children ages 6 to 12. They bring a sack lunch, swimsuit and fee for the day to the Y and they are ready to join in, said Anna Garcia, director of the program.

The cost is $3 for a Y-member and $5 for a non-member. The day ends at 5 p.m., and the program runs until Aug. 4.

Activities include bowling, skating, movies, arts and crafts and swimming. A new program called Feelin' Good will also be held for an hour and a half each day along with the other activities.

Feelin' Good is a cardiovascular fitness-health program. The purpose is to help children understand basic physical fitness concepts in cardiovascular health.

The key concepts include the anatomy and physiology of the cardiovascular system, heart rate, blood pressure, exercise, diet, stress, overweight and smoking.

Ms. Garcia said they would also have a vegetable garden.

"There will probably be 45 to 50 children participating," she said, "but the number will vary all summer."

Annual fete honors early day Frenchman

By H. THOMAS KAIB
Claveland Plain Dealer
PORT CLINTON, Ohio (AP) — "We want that bunch of phony descendants of the Mayflower to know who was here first," says Ottawa County Common Pleas Judge Don Wargowski.

He is founder and honorary chairman of the Toussaint Founders Club, which maintains that Frenchman Etienne Brule discovered and claimed an area just west of here Nov. 1, 1615 — five years before the Pilgrims landed on Plymouth Rock.

Wargowski wrote the song, "Vive Le Grand Brule," years ago when he was reading history voraciously and discovered Brule's story. He has also written "Hail to You, Oh Toussaint."

Seven years ago, he helped organize a three-day Toussaint festival on the banks of the river by that name 12 miles west of here. The area is unincorporated but has two saloons, a few houses, the Toussaint River and the Davis-Besse nuclear power plant. Wargowski grew up there.

"Brule was 17 years old when the explorer Champlain brought him to Canada from France to learn about the Huron Indians," Wargowski said.

Brule led an expedition across the lake in canoes and discovered the Toussaint River and the marshes it drained. He discovered it on All Saints Day and named it Toussaint, which means All Saints.

The celebration, which is always held on the weekend closest to Nov. 1, has been growing since the first one, which "just sort of fell together," Wargowski said. "We emphasized wine, because Brule was French, and food, fun and song."

"I had written those songs and when someone suggested we have music, I said we'd have the Toussaint symphony. That was my wife, who plays concert accordion. But we gave her a crash course in the 'Beer Barrel Polka,' and she's been doing it every year since."

"Last year we had thousands. What we do is hold French and Indian games — archery, dog retrieving, arm wrestling and canoe races."

"Everybody who comes is a Toussaint. All they need to do is get a bottle of wine and a fish sandwich and join in the fun."

Health generates many jobs

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The myriad of health services here generates more than 55,000 jobs for Kansas City area residents, according to a recent study by city officials.

Compared to the city's growing convention and tourism industry, which employs 12,700 persons, medical care is big business. Health-related jobs comprised 9.6 percent of regional employment during 1977, according to the study.

That paper, according to officials in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, is the closest the federal government has come to examining the question of selling human organs.

Currently, organs donated by the living are only a small fraction of those used in transplants. Most are from people who have authorized, upon their death, use of their organs under provisions of the Uniform Anatomical Gift Act.

Cook thinks many more people, who never got around to signing papers, would be willing to donate organs, so he'd like to see the donor program reversed. "I think we ought to put the burden on the individual to opt out if for any reason — religious or otherwise — he doesn't want his organs used for a transplant. This would end the shortage overnight."

Coe, of Michael Reese Hospital, suggests altering the existing act to allow people to arrange for the sale of their organs after they die.

"This would eliminate the problem of risking the health of live donors or sellers and, by encouraging more people to arrange for the disposition of their organs before they die, would go a long way toward solving the shortage."

"What is happening is that we're advancing very rapidly in one area — medical technology — but we're not giving any attention at all to the legal and ethical questions that this advance is raising. We're going to have to do it sooner or later."

Sale of body organs on increase

By WILLIAM C. WERTZ

CHICAGO (AP) — Would you sell one of your eyes for $50,000?

A kidney for $100,000? If you or someone in your family were dying, how much would you pay for a healthy organ for transplant that could prolong life indefinitely?

Is it wrong to buy and sell human organs? Or is it right to let people die because there aren't enough donated organs?

The debate, involving complicated legal and ethical questions, arises as transplants become more common, suitable donor organs more scarce and offers to sell organs more frequent.

In Chicago and elsewhere, dozens of people have been calling eye banks and kidney foundations offering to sell an eye or a kidney. All have been refused.

Some of the callers say they were inspired by "Coma," the novel and movie about a scheme to murder hospital patients in order to profit from the black market sale of their organs.

In Pittsburgh last year a man named George Evans advertised to sell his kidney for $3,000. Nettie Dymond of St. Joseph, Mo., wanted to buy it for her son but doctors refused to perform the operation.

In 1975, a man from Kane, Pa., Donald Schloppy, offered to sell an eye. The offer attracted $8,000 in donations from sympathetic people. Schloppy kept his eye.

Dr. Fred Coe, who heads the renal dialysis department at Chicago's Michael Reese Hospital where many patients have waited years for a kidney transplant, says the commercial sale of organs could prove practical.

But Dr. Allen Kanter, a colleague of Coe's at Michael Reese, disagrees. "For any doctor to remove an organ from a healthy person so that it can be sold would be unethical and immoral."

Bruce Nortell, staff director of the American Medical Association's judicial council, says "... you would have people with money preying on people without money."

The AMA has no specific guidelines forbidding doctors to perform surgery on saleable organs. Nortell says such a ban might be considered in the future, but he says an AMA ethical statement issued in 1967 prohibiting the use of any commercially obtained tissue for fetal research could be construed to cover the sale of organs as well.

"The whole concept of organs for transplantation is based on donations," he says. "Every state now has passed a version of the Uniform Anatomical Gift Act, which covers that subject."

Albert Jenner, a Chicago attorney and chairman of the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws, says the sale of human organs was not mentioned when the Anatomical Gift Act was approved in 1968 "because this was unheard of then. That's the only answer. It might well be different now."

Dr. McCarthy DeMere of Memphis, Tenn., former chairman of the American Bar Association's medicine and law committee, says he sees nothing morally wrong with selling organs, although it would raise several legal questions.

"You are dealing with something touchy," says DeMere, both a doctor and a lawyer. "When a doctor transplants a kidney donated by a mother to her son, he knows she's not going to sue him later if she has problems with her remaining kidney. I think a doctor might worry about that in a commercial transaction."

In addition, he says, any doctor who removes an organ from a healthy person for no valid medical reason could theoretically be prosecuted by the state for "mayhem."

In the meantime, doctors worry over the fact that the thousands of organs donated for transplant each year are not nearly enough. In Illinois alone, there are nearly 1,000 people awaiting kidney transplants. Most, thanks to dialysis machines, will survive the wait, although their lives will be far from normal. But some will undoubtedly die before suitable kidneys are available.

"There is a great shortage of transplant organs today, and demand is just going to mushroom in the future," says Dr. Robin Cook, a Boston ophthalmologist who wrote "Coma."

"They're already doing transplants involving the liver, the lung, testicles, parts of the pancreas and other organs," Cook says. "There's going to be a great spinoff from the intensive cancer research going on now because there is such a dovetailing of the immunology problems in both areas."

Cook says the black market in human organs he describes in his novel is purely fictional. "But because of the shortage of organs, a situation does exist that seems to me to be very close to a black market," he adds. "You and I both know that money and power and influence speak. And there are some people who just don't have to stand in line."

Cook says the principal objection to people selling their organs is that it may jeopardize their health. "Well, we permit people to put themselves at risk for money in other areas. Some drive race cars, others dive off towers. I don't see any ethical reason why selling an organ is any different. It ought to be up to the individual."

There is some question, however, as to whether an individual has the right to sell portions of his body — or even to use his body for such things as prostitution or medical experiments.

"There is no question that you own your body, but there is considerable question about what you can do with it," says Dr. Marx W. Wartofsky of Boston University's philosophy department.

"The body is not considered alienable property. That means you cannot dispose of it as you wish. You cannot, for example, sell yourself into slavery — that is, sell the rights to your body to someone else. You cannot commit suicide. Society prohibits this. So I think it's an open question whether society should permit you to dispose of parts of your body — particularly for money, because there is a coercive element involved in that."

Wartofsky wrote a paper titled "On Doing it for Money," which was part of the report of a congressional commission studying the question of medical research on prison inmates.

That paper, according to officials in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, is the closest the federal government has come to examining the question of selling human organs.

Currently, organs donated by the living are only a small fraction of those used in transplants. Most are from people who have authorized, upon their death, use of their organs under provisions of the Uniform Anatomical Gift Act.

Cook thinks many more people, who never got around to signing papers, would be willing to donate organs, so he'd like to see the donor program reversed. "I think we ought to put the burden on the individual to opt out if for any reason — religious or otherwise — he doesn't want his organs used for a transplant. This would end the shortage overnight."

Coe, of Michael Reese Hospital, suggests altering the existing act to allow people to arrange for the sale of their organs after they die.

"This would eliminate the problem of risking the health of live donors or sellers and, by encouraging more people to arrange for the disposition of their organs before they die, would go a long way toward solving the shortage."

"What is happening is that we're advancing very rapidly in one area — medical technology — but we're not giving any attention at all to the legal and ethical questions that this advance is raising. We're going to have to do it sooner or later."

BEST PERFORMANCE

All he has to do is stay on for eight seconds. But that can be the longest eight seconds of the day when the rodeo performer gets a particularly spirited bronco. He knows that when he gives the final nod of his head and that big gate is swung open, some horses turn into twisting, turning beasts who seem to breathe fire and stomp lightning. Yet every performer hopes he will get that very kind of mount. Unless the horse puts on a wild display during the ride, the judges will score the rider low and he will miss the prize. Anything that brings a special reward usually requires a person to go beyond his normal performance. Shouldn't we all then be ready to give an extra share of our talents and abilities if we want eternal life—the greatest reward ever promised to man? This Sunday come to church and find how it's done.

First Church of the Nazarene, 1208 W. Wall Ave., will hold its VBS from 9:30 to 12 noon next Monday through Friday.

According to Jan Fortune, director of the school, classes will be offered for children between the ages of 2 and

12. All children of the community will be welcomed, and transportation to and from the school each day may be arranged by telephoning 682-4524 or 694-3359.

Midland's two Episcopal parishes, St. Nicholas' and Holy Trinity, will hold a joint vacation church school next week at St. Nicholas' Church, 2900 Princeton Ave.

Theme of this year's school will be "The Patriarchs," based on the Old Testament. Classes will begin at 8:45 a.m. Monday through Friday. The school will conclude with a picnic and program for all children attending the week's classes.

Dellwood Baptist Church, North Midland and West Ohio streets, will begin its annual Bible school Monday, with classes continuing daily through Friday. Theme of the school is to be "Sing A New Song." Hours will be 9:30 a.m. to noon daily.

Classes are planned for children 3 years old on to those of ninth grade level. Sessions will feature Bible study with practical, contemporary applications, as well as music, recreation and handicrafts. A picnic and roller skating party will conclude the Bible school Friday afternoon. The school will be open to all interested young people in the city, said Barbara Hardy, director. Parents may enroll their children for classes before and after the Sunday morning worship hour at Dellwood Baptist Church.

The 1978 vacation church school at First United Methodist Church downtown will begin Monday morning, continuing through Friday. Class sessions will be from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. each day.

According to Sharon Heidelberg, director of the school, there will be daily class sessions for children who reached the age of 2 on or before last Sept. 1, on up to youngsters of 7th grade level.

For the third year, the church school will be a joint project of First Church and Hollowell United Methodist Church. Children of these two congregations will be participating, and all other youngsters of the community who wish to attend class sessions will also be welcomed.

The school will end Friday morning with a closing ceremony and sharing time in the church courtyard, beginning at 10:35 a.m.

Christian Scientists hold 83rd annual meeting

BOSTON — Christian Scientists were told at their 83rd annual meeting here this week to put aside "busywork, organizational mechanics, and zeal for media exposure."

"The need today," according to the Christian Science Board of Directors in its message to the denomination's global membership, "is for more healing, more spirituality, meekness and humility." In a strongly-worded statement, the directors warned against "powerful mental cross-currents at work against religion and against the moral code inculcated by Christianity."

"It is obvious that the present period is marked by a conspicuous lack of stability — in our homes, schools and institutions, our commercial and public life as well as in individual experience," the statement read.

The directors are principal officers of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, of which Christian Science congregations around the world are branches. Attending this week's annual meeting were representatives of many of those congregations, including the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Midland, Tex.

The board statement was read to the assembly by board chairman DeWitt John.

During the annual meeting, John R. Peterson, a Christian Science practitioner and teacher who also is the church's general counsel, was named as new president of the Mother Church (The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston). The directors also announced the establishment of an endowment fund for The Christian Science Monitor, to help the church's famous daily newspaper cope with spiralling publishing costs.

Mormons open priesthood

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Mormon Church announced Friday that a revelation from God will permit it to bestow priesthood on "all worthy male members," reversing a long-standing policy which denied full blessings to blacks.

A leader of black church members said he would accept the priesthood, if worthy, and felt the statement was an indication that "we are getting close to the end of time."

The church's ruling First Presidency said in a letter to local leaders that "all worthy male members of the church may be ordained to the priesthood without regard to race or color."

elder, seventy and high priest.

In the past, blacks of African descent were the only males denied those offices, necessary for most leadership positions. All women are barred from the priesthood.

Church President Spencer W. Kimball and counselors Nathan Eldon Tanner and Marion G. Romney said promises had been made by past church prophets that one day all worthy men would receive the priesthood. Many hours had been spent in the Salt Lake Temple "supplicating the Lord for divine guidance," the church leaders said.

Baptists worry over declines

NEW YORK (AP) — Southern Baptists, the biggest, most burgeoning body of American Protestants, see some disturbing and puzzling clouds on their horizon.

Although steady gains in membership, rising almost twice as fast as the general population, have put the denomination over the 13 million mark, the number of baptisms, oddly, has declined.

So have enrollments in Sunday school and church training classes.

Both setbacks added an undertone of uneasiness to an otherwise surging set of plans and statistics as the Southern Baptists made ready for their annual convention next week in Atlanta, Ga.

"There's a kind of queasy feeling down inside that's not quite panic yet, but we're wearing worried frowns on our brows," says the convention president, the Rev. Jimmy Allen of San Antonio, Texas.

Another "Jimmy" surname, the president of the United States and also a dedicated Southern Baptist, will speak at a post-convention finale, following appearances by other denominational luminaries such as singer Anita Bryant, lately a crusader against homosexuality.

She's considering a bid to be nominated for a denominational vice presidency.

While membership climbed 1.2 per cent last year, continuing a steady upward pattern that has contrasted sharply with the slump in most major Protestant bodies. Enrollments in Sunday schools and church training classes declined.

The Rev. Roy T. Edgemon, director of the church training department, said he senses that "pastors are now recognizing that the failure to train our people in Bible doctrine, discipleship and ministry is the cause of an erosion in all Baptist life."

"I also believe that pastors are now ready to move aggressively to equip, build up and grow their people in the Lord."

The drop in baptisms, which fell 10.1 per cent last year to a total of 345,690, the lowest number since 1949, was causing even more concern as well as considerable perplexity.

The decline hit last year even in Texas, where Baptists had staged a million dollar media blitz and statewide revivals. Eying the drop in baptisms despite the special efforts, the Rev. L. L. Morris, the Baptists' state evangelism director, says:

"If we hadn't pulled out all the stops, there's no telling where we would have come out."

Virginia and South Carolina also experienced large declines in baptisms despite massive evangelistic efforts. "It's very disheartening," says South Carolina's evangelism director, the Rev. Earl Crumpler. "I have no concrete answers."

At a conference about the matter, state evangelism directors cited various demographic factors that have previously hit other denominations, such as falling birth rates, population mobility, the lure of quasi-religious movements, as well as people moving into the Southern "sunbelt" without roots in its strong church emphasis.

"I think God is trying to say something to us, but we are like Rip Van Winkle and are sleeping through it," says the Rev. C. B. Hogue, the denomination's evangelism section director. "Maybe God is trying to bring spiritual renewal, but we are not involved in it."

"Southern Baptists seem to be lying under the tree asleep while things are happening out there."

The dip in baptisms came despite a tendency to baptize children at a younger age, differing with the Baptist tradition of baptizing at an "age of decision."

Citing a growing trend to baptize children before school age, the head of the Southern Baptist historical commission, the Rev. Richard D. Patton, says it appears to "put us precariously close to the practice of infant baptism."

The Friday night concert here will be open to the public. There will be no charge for admission, it was announced.

Luis Torres

Former addict slated to address church group

Luis Torres, a former drug addict and fugitive from the law, will be guest speaker Sunday night at Gardens Assembly of God, 2901 W. Kansas Ave.

Torres, after years of lawlessness, entered the Teen Challenge program at Philadelphia in 1970, and after graduation from the program entered a Bible college in Missouri where he received his education for the ministry. He now combines a dynamic, old-fashioned preaching ministry with an up-to-date message. His personal testimony alone has been tremendously effective in persuading young people against drug abuse. His ministry has been heard by thousands in churches, high schools, colleges and elsewhere across the U.S. and Canada.

Torres will speaking at the local church at 7 p.m. Sunday and the public has an invitation from the Rev. Paul Cox, host pastor, to attend the service.

Date set for Building moves service ordination

ODESSA — The Rev. Joseph R. Pickett will be ordained to the priesthood of the Episcopal Church in ceremonies scheduled here June 17.

Pickett, a Midland native, was ordained a deacon in the Episcopal Church in ceremonies held last June in Midland's Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity. During the last year he has served as curate at St. John's Episcopal Church and St. Barnabas Chapel in Odessa.

The forthcoming ordination ceremony will take place at 10:30 a.m. June 17 in St. John's Church in Odessa. The Rt. Rev. Willis R. Henton of Lubbock, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Northwest Texas, will lead the ordination service.

Speaker at the service is to be the Rt. Rev. John E. Hines, a former bishop of the Diocese of Texas who later served as presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church in the U. S. Clergy and laity from throughout the Diocese of Northwest Texas and clergy from several other dioceses also will participate in the ordination. The Rev. Donald Hungerford is rector of St. John's parish of Odessa.

Pickett, son of District Judge and Mrs. Perry D. Pickett of Midland, is a graduate of Midland High School and The University of Texas. He received the master of divinity degree in 1977 from the General Theological Seminary in New York City.

The ordination rites will be open to the public.

Leadership given firm ultimatum

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — Officials of the American Lutheran Church have given the denomination's largest congregation, the 1,750-member Central Lutheran Church, 60 days to regularize its pastoral leadership or be suspended from the denomination.

Its North Pacific District executive committee ruled that two of the congregation's assistant pastors had not met requirements for clergy credentials, were ineligible to serve and unless their status was changed, the congregation would be dropped Aug. 5 from the denomination.

The senior pastor, the Rev. Rueben Redal, affiliated with a group which says the ALC has strayed from its historic doctrines, says he's uncertain what will be done about the matter by the congregation, which can appeal the ruling. District Bishop Clarence Solberg says the congregation has refused to meet with him about the issue.

Traditional arguments rejected

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A report issued Friday at the Catholic Theological Society of America convention rejects traditional arguments against ordaining women and says it is unjust to exclude women from the priesthood.

"The bottom line of the report is that there is no good reason not to ordain women," said the Rev. Edward H. Konecny, secretary of the society which includes many leading Catholic scholars.

The forward to the report points out that while the society authorized the three-year study by a committee of three women and two men and printed the findings, "This does not imply either approval or disapproval."

The society called for further discussion and study of the subject. The convention was attended by about 300 of the society's 1,100 members from Canada and the United States.

Revival starts Sunday

The Rev. A. L. Patrick of Lubbock will be the evangelist for a special revival scheduled here next week.

The city-wide revival emphasis will begin with a service at 3 p.m. Sunday in New Hope Baptist Church, 2400 E. New York Ave., and continue with meetings nightly through Friday. The services will be open to the public, said the Rev. I. L. Patrick, pastor of New Hope Church.

The guest evangelist, A. L. Patrick, is pastor of Mt. Gilead Baptist Church at Lubbock.

Tent revival in city

A tent revival is under way at 910 E. Washington Ave.

The evangelistic tent ministry is under the direction of the Rev. C. A. Guthrie, a widely-known minister and evangelist from Jamaica. Services begin at 8 p.m. each day of the week and are open to all residents of the city and surrounding area.

The revival will continue here for several weeks.

Handbell festivals scheduled

Handbell choirs of several Midland churches are participating in regional handbell festivals.

Bell ringers from First Presbyterian and First Christian churches will be in attendance this week at the Region IX handbell festival in Tulsa, Okla. Robert Poer, minister of music for First Presbyterian Church, and Stephen Spain, choir director at First Christian Church, accompanied their respective ensembles to the festival.

A bell choir from Midland's First United Methodist Church, made up of representatives of the church's youth and adult handbell ensembles, will go to Albuquerque, N.M., next week to participate in the Region XI festival on the campus of the University of New Mexico. The 11 bell ringers making the trip will be accompanied by George DeHart, organist-choir-master for First United Methodist Church.

'Israel betrayed'

CHICAGO (AP) — Sister Margaret Traxler of the National Coalition of American Nuns' committee for Jewish-Christian relations, says that in agreeing to sell "bombers to Arab nations, the United States betrays Israel."

Priest gets escort

ROME — Father Pedro Arrupe, head of the Jesuit religious order, now leaves his home only if he has a police escort, a spokesman for the order said here Friday.

Italian security services recently told him these precautions were necessary but gave no precise reasons why.

The feeling in Jesuit circles is that their leader is on one of the Red Brigades "hit lists."

There have been no known terrorist threats to churchmen in Italy so far but a German extremist group plan to kidnap the Archbishop of Cologne, Joseph Cardinal Höffner, was revealed earlier this week by a Dusseldorf court spokesman.

Guest speakers at pulpits of churches

Guest speakers will be in the pulpits of several Midland churches Sunday.

Dr. J. D. Thomas, head of the Bible department of Abilene Christian University, will be guest speaker Sunday morning at North A and Tennessee Streets Church of Christ here. His topic will be "The Value of Christian Education."

Dr. John C. Stevens, president of ACU, will also be in Midland, to speak at the Sunday morning service of Golf Course Road Church of Christ and at a covered dish luncheon Sunday noon in Midland Christian School. The event will be open to former students, parents of students and friends of ACU.

Dr. Dallas D. Denison, a former pastor of Midland's St. Paul United Methodist Church, will return here this weekend to fill the pulpit at the church during the Sunday morning and evening services. Dr. Denison now is retired from the active ministry and resides at Brownfield.

Dr. Ray Bristol, executive director of the Pastoral Counseling Center of Midland-Odessa, will be guest speaker Sunday morning at First Christian Church here. Dr. Bristol was senior minister of the church from 1968 to 1973. Assisting in the worship service will be the Rev. Steve Edwards, current senior minister of First Christian Church.

Chapel Choir in Atlanta for concert

The Chapel Choir of Midland's First Baptist Church, consisting of high school students, currently is participating in the "Hallelujah Festival" in Atlanta, Ga., sponsored by the Southern Baptist Convention.

The festival began Wednesday and continues through today. Directors of the event are composers Ronn Huff and Ragan Courtney.

In addition to participating in the festival, the Midland choral ensemble during its trip is presenting concerts in numerous southern cities, among them Nashville and Gatlinburg, Tenn.; Atlanta, Savannah and Decatur, Ga.; Pensacola, Fla.; New Orleans, La., and Houston.

Accompanying the singers on the tour are a brass choir and a handbell ensemble, along with a group of adult sponsors.

The touring group will return home June 15.

CHICAGO (AP)—Former Midland Cubs righthander Dennis Lamp pitched a one-hitter and Dave Kingman blasted a two-run homer in the first inning Friday to lead the Chicago Cubs to a 5-0 victory.

Lamp, gaining only his second victory against five losses, helped his own cause with a pair of run-scoring singles as the first-place Cubs captured their seventh victory in their last eight starts.

Lamp, a 25-year old right-hander, had a no-hitter going until Gene Richards singled with two out in the sixth inning. The only other baserunner for the Padres was Gene Tenace, who walked in both the second and seventh innings.

Lamp struck out two.

KINGMAN, THE National League's home run leader, walloped his 13th of the season after Gene Cline had doubled off loser Bob Ojeda, 3-6.

Lamp singled home a run in the second inning and Cline followed with a run-scoring double to give the Cubs a 4-0 lead.

Chicago picked up another run in the sixth when Kingman beat out a

Luzinski sparks Phils' win

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Greg Luzinski hit two home runs and batted in three to back the six-hit pitching of Larry Christenson and trigger the Philadelphia Phillies to a 6-1 victory over the Atlanta Braves Friday night.

The Phillies, who have won seven straight games and nine of their last 10, reached Atlanta starter Eddie Solomon for two runs in the first as Mike Schmidt and Luzinski walked to load the bases, and Richie Hebner lined a two-run single to right.

Luzinski, who slowly has been emerging from the longest slump of his major league career, walloped his

NEW YORK (AP)—Willie Montanez' 40th RBI of the season drove home Steve Henderson with the winning run in the eighth inning as the New York Mets rallied for two runs to beat the San Francisco Giants 3-2 Friday night.

Bob Knepper, 7-3, the Giants' starter, gave up only five hits until the eighth inning, and appeared to be in command. He struck out Elliott Maddox to start the inning, but then walked Lee Mazzilli. Henderson doubled to score Mazzilli with the tying run, and Montanez followed with his

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Jose Cruz blasted four hits, drove in five runs and scored twice to pace the Houston Astros to an 11-7 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals Friday night.

Houston right-hander J.R. Richard, 5-6, fanned 12 batters, boosting his National League-leading total to 111, before needing relief help from Joe Sambito during a Cardinal rally in the sixth.

Richard yielded five St. Louis hits, including Keith Hernandez' RBI tri-

Pirates outslug Reds, 11-9

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Bill Robinson and Willie Stargell drove in three runs each as the Pittsburgh Pirates came from seven runs behind to defeat the Cincinnati Reds 11-9 Friday night.

Cincinnati led 8-1 after five innings with the help of a three-run homer by George Foster and the five-hit pitching of Paul Moskau.

But Moskau left the game with a stiff shoulder, and Pittsburgh erupted for four runs in the sixth off reliever Dave Tomlin. Tomlin allowed four straight hits, including a run-scoring double by Robinson and a two-run single by Stargell.

The Pirates took the lead with six runs in the seventh inning, during vision. Norton was knocked out in two rounds by George Foreman in 1974 in a bid for the title and lost a controversial decision to Muhammad Ali in 1976. He got a share of championship recognition when the WBC decreed last March 17 that Leon Spinks, Ali's conqueror who is still recognized as champion by the World Boxing Association, was not living up to an agreement to defend against Norton.

The fight was filled with action throughout, as both men earned their money—$2.3 million for Norton, $500,000 for Holmes.

Holmes, who weighed 209, 11 less than Norton, came out jabbing and had Norton distracted in the early rounds. The Pennsylvanian, known as the "Easton Assassin," looked more like the "Easton Dancer" as he moved from side to side and speared Norton with sharp jabs.

But if Norton was distracted, he was not discouraged.

In the fifth round, he began jabbing well himself and began slipping many of Holmes' jabs. All the time, Norton kept coming on.

Norton brought blood from Holmes' mouth in the eighth round as he landed well to the head and to the body. In bunt single and came around to score on an infield single by Lamp.

Lamp retired the first four Padres on ground balls before Gene Tenace walked with one out in the second. Tucker Ashford hit into a force play but reached second when Manny Trillo's relay went into the dugout for an error, but Lamp got Dave Roberts to fly out to end the inning.

Lamp then retired the next 11 men in order before Richards sliced a line single to left. Ozzie Smith followed with a line shot to left, but shortstop Ivan DeJesus made a leaping one-handed stab to end the inning.

Tenace drew a walk with two out in the seventh after Dave Winfield had sent Cline to the right field wall for his deep fly. But Ashford flied out to end the inning.

Lamp retired the Padres in order in the last two innings, but needed two great catches by Kingman in the ninth inning to preserve the one-hit-ter.

Kingman's homer provided all the offense the Cubs needed behind Lamp's brilliant pitching. However, they blew some excellent scoring chances and left seven men stranded in the last three innings, including a wasted eighth-inning triple by DeJesus.

Then, in the fifth, Larry Bowa doubled with one out and scored on Mike Schmidt's single. Luzinski worked a 1-1 count and walloped the next pitch over the left-center field fence for his 12th of the season and a 6-1 Philadelphia lead. Solomon, 1-4, was relieved by Craig Skok.

Meanwhile, with the exception of a home run by Biff Pocoroba, Christenson held the Braves scoreless for his fourth victory in eight decisions, and first since beating Cincinnati on May 14.

Clyde, 4-0, gave up a run in the first inning, then settled down and held the Twins hitless until Craig Kusick's lead-off single in the seventh.

Larry Wolfe followed with a run-scoring triple and Butch Wynegar's single chased Clyde and cut Cleveland's margin to 6-3.

Tigers cool KC Royals, 3-2

DETROIT (AP)—Jack Billingham and John Hiller combined on a three-hitter and Aurelio Rodriguez slammed a two-run homer Friday night, leading the Detroit Tigers to a 3-2 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Billingham, 5-3, gave up an unearned run in the opening inning, but needed ninth-inning relief help from Hiller when the Royals put men on first and second with none out. The lefty relief specialist got out of the inning surrendering a sacrifice fly to Cowens to pick up his seventh save of the season.

Jason Thompson opened the Tigers' second with a grounder that third baseman George Brett booted for an error. Rodriguez then lined a Paul Spittorff pitch into the lower deck in left field for his fifth homer of the season.

Detroit added its third run in the fourth off Spittorff, 7-5. Lance Parrish walked, took third on a hit-and-run single by John Wockenhusen and scored on a single by rookie Alan Trammell.

Kansas City's scored in the first scored on a groundout by designated hitter Hal McRae after Wilson led off and was safe at first on an error by Billingham, stole second and went on to third when catcher Parrish's throw went into center field for an error.

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP)—Bill Nahorodny's two-run single capped a three-run sixth inning Friday night, giving the Chicago White Sox a 4-3 victory over the Texas Rangers.

The victory was Chicago's fifth straight and 12th in their last 13 games.

The White Sox, handcuffed on two hits over the first five innings by Texas starter Doc Medich and trailing 3-1, broke through in the sixth. Ralph Garr singled, Bob Molinaro doubled and Jim Breazeale's sacrifice fly to center scored Garr.

Medich, 1-2, walked Henry Cruz and then threw a wild pitch that put runners at second and third. After Ron Blomberg drew an intentional walk to load the bases, Nahorodny drove in MILWAUKEE (AP)—Ben Oglivie's single with none out in the tenth inning scored pinch-runner Jim Gantner from second base, lifting the Milwaukee Brewers to 3-2 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays Friday night.

Cecil Cooper singled leading off the tenth and Gantner, pinch running, took second on a single by Larry Hise. Oglivie, who twice failed to sacrifice the runners along, then singled up the middle off loser Tom Murphy, 2-2, scoring Gantner.

Want to lose 20 pounds?

By JIM MURRAY
Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Like to lose 20 pounds in two weeks? Go where there aren't any pizza parlors, junk food emporiums, TV dinners, where the tuna is free, the phones don't ring, where there's no air pollution, signalers, you don't need the Arabs' oil, and the office can't reach you?

A fat farm in Escondido? No, a sailing cockpit in the South Pacific.

All you need is about $30,000, a sextant, a pair of rubber-sole shoes, a harness and a fondness for salt spray. Then, you buy a yacht with the money, shake it down and take it up to San Francisco by June 15 where you will take off in the Transpac 1978 Singlehanded Sailing Society's crossing from San Francisco to Hanalei Bay on Kauai.

SOLOING ACROSS the Pacific has been a dream trip of man's — or woman's — from the days of Captain Cook to the days of Amelia Earhart. The regular Honolulu Transpac race, on odd years, is a conventional blue-water sail with a full ship's company, a scratch boat, ship's cook, skipper, foredeck crew and maybe even a crow's nest.

On this trip, you are captain, cook, galley scut, foredeck crew, navigator and sail-setter. The trick is to find the Pacific high, then head down for the 'rades, or ply the Great Circle route, watching out for merchantmen from the Orient, or the great oil tubs from the Middle East.

You clew yourself onto a rail running the length of the boat so you can have movement and safety. You must be prepared to get your sleep 15 minutes at a time, because the passage might turn from a downwind slide to a black squall tempest and rolling seas where you might need 10 men to reef the sails and you have only one. One day it can be like the isthmus at Catalina. The next day, the Bermuda Triangle.

JOHN CARSON is typical of the one-man crews who will attempt this audacious crossing.

A refugee from a prosecutor's office — he was deputy district attorney in Los Angeles County before he went down to sea — the son of the late movie star, Jack Carson, John would be instantly cast as a member of the villainous ship's company in a remake of "Treasure Island." If he had a ring in his ear and a peg leg, and a parrot on his shoulder, he could do Long John Silver tomorrow. He's 6-8, 260, red-bearded and red-haired, and he tired of the voir dire and plea bargaining some years ago when he bought his first sailer and went off rounding a mark at Richardson's Rock.

A sail with a friend, another lawyer, to Tahiti whetted his appetite for the surrealistic solitude of the sea. "I met myself out there," he said. He threw away the briefcase, and has since been at sea more than a shark.

Singlehanded sailing is a comparatively new development, pioneered by Sir Francis Chichester in races from London to Plymouth, Mass. The North Atlantic can be crueler than the South Pacific, though, and some boats disappeared in the passages like many a four-master before them — but sailors prefer perishing at sea to crashing on a freeway, anyway.

RETIRED ARMY colonels, Swiss financiers, airline pilots, sailmakers, and computer executives make up the fleet which will leave in two sections this month, the under-30-footers on June 15, the rest of the flotilla on June 19. There's no money involved, just trophies — and personal satisfaction.

For Carson, it will be a health kick, a saltwater diet. "I keep an egg timer to see to it that I do not sleep too long, particularly in the shipping lanes at night, and, in singlehanded sailing, you're exercising every waking minute of the day. I put no alcohol aboard and low-calorie canned food. Twenty pounds just roll off before I get to the mark."

It is not likely, however, his diet will ever be a best-seller. Not one that begins "First, buy yourself a $30,000 Cresslock 37, a mizzen stays'l, storm gill and several genoa's, study up on astronomy, practice tying yourself to the mast in heavy seas, draw up your will before leaving — and in no time at all you can get back into those size 36 slacks and tapered body shirts again!"

Italians take big Cup game

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Enzo Bearzot, manager of the Italian soccer team, prepared Friday to take the biggest gamble of the World Cup by fielding six reserves against Argentina, favorite for the trophy.

Star strikers Paolo Rossi and Roberto Betegga were among those apparently being left out of the lineup. Italy is already assured of a place in the second round, win or lose today against Argentina.

Bearzot's strategy recalled the historic gamble taken by Sepp Herberger, the West German coach in the World Cup of 1954. He fielded eight reserves against Hungary and lost 8-3 but the Germans came back to defeat Hungary in the final and win the Cup.

BEARZOT delayed official announcement of his team, but told newsmen:

"Italy has achieved its main goal and qualified for the second round. Now my main concern is to do well in the second half of the tournament, not in the game against Argentina. I don't want to run any risks and I want to give some of my players a rest."

"You all know which players this could involve — Betegga, Rossi, Cabrini and Bellingh, but perhaps others too."

Bearzot said all the players he mentioned had taken minor knocks in the two games played thus far.

"They could play if it were on the eve of the final, but the tournament is long and I shall need them later," he said. "Judge for yourselves."

Bearzot said he was also concerned about Marco Tardelli, who has received a yellow warning card. One more warning, and Tardelli would automatically collect a one-game suspension.

"It's in the second round we will need him most," the manager added.

ITALY and Argentina are both safely through to the second round. Saturday's game between the two teams at Buenos Aires' River Plate Stadium will decide top place in Group 1. The top team will play its second round matches at River Plate — an obvious advantage for Argentina because of the big partisan crowds that cheer on the national team. The second team will play in Rosario.

Argentina will be without star striker Leopoldo Luque, who has an elbow injury.

Meanwhile another notoriously cunning team manager, Helmut Schoen of West Germany, announced blandly that he believed he had found a lineup to play right through the tournament.

Schoen guided West Germany to victory in the last World Cup in 1974.

Announcing an unchanged team to face Tunisia in Group 2, Schoen said: "Of course I could make tactical changes the situation requires, but in general the team that beat Mexico 6-0 is the team that will play either to the final or to the point where we are eliminated."

The Germans need only a draw to go into the second round.

Cubs trade Fryman for player-to-be-named

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs Friday traded left-handed pitcher Woody Fryman to the Montreal Expos for a player to be named later.

Fryman, 38, had a 2-4 record and a 5.14 earned run average. He was acquired last winter for Bill Bonham from the Cincinnati Reds after he had announced his retirement in midseason 1977.

Taking Fryman's place will be left-handed pitcher Dave Geisel, who was recalled from Wichita.

Jim Simons leads by one stroke

MEMPHIS (AP) — As he often does, Lee Trevino offered the key, cogent observation.

"How are you gonna get a bad lie in the fairway? Look up, move your head when your fingers are placing the ball?"

A series of thunderstorms have drenched the Colonial Country Club course and forced officials to allow players to lift, clean and place the ball in the fairways at the $250,000 Danny Thomas-Memphis Golf Classic.

And Jim Simons, a recent winner of the Memorial Tournament, took advantage of the ruling to fire a 4-under-par 68 and a one-shot lead Friday halfway through the chase for a $50,000 first prize.

"If you drive the ball well, then you're in the fairway," he explained. "If you're in the fairway, you can place the ball. And, by placing it, you're able to maneuver the ball, control it. It helps a lot."

Simons maneuvered himself into position for six birdies in the second round, but it took some spectacular putting to achieve his 136 total, 8 shots under par. He scored four times from the 12-to-15-foot range and dropped two more from about 25 feet.

"I putted the ball very well," Simons said. "But, basically, the key was that I didn't make many mistakes."

Tied for second at 137 were veteran Kermit Zarley and Alan Tapie. Zarley, who reeled off one string of four birdies in five holes, had the best round of the mild, sunny, pleasant day, a 5-under-par 67. Tapie shot 69.

Severiano Ballesteros, the spectacular young Spaniard who has ruled European golf for two years and earlier this season had his first American victory in the Greensboro Open, was followed by a huge gallery as he fired a 70 and moved to within 2 shots of the lead at 138.

"This is a good course for me," said Ballesteros, who occasionally is wildly erratic off the tee. "It's open. Not so many trees. It's ready for my drives."

He was tied with Bob Gilder, Mike Sullivan and big Andy Bean, winner of the Kemper Open last week. Bean had an eagle-3 in his round of 68 while Gilder and Sullivan shot 70s.

Trevino remained in contention at 139 after a 71.

But Gary Player of South Africa and Johnny Miller were down the road, victims of the cut. Player, who won the Masters and two other titles earlier this season, shot 74-147. Miller was 78-153.

Beth Daniel loses semifinal golf match

HOLLINWELL, England (AP) — U.S. amateur champion Beth Daniel of Charleston, S.C., was beaten in the semifinals of the women's British Amateur Golf Championship Friday.

Daniel, favored to win the title, was defeated 3 and 2 by Julia Greenhalgh of England.

The 21-year-old American did not putt well at all. Greenhalgh won the second and third holes to go 2-up although Daniel, who intends to turn professional next year, fought back to take the fifth and sixth holes.

The English player regained her lead at the seventh but then went behind as Daniel had birdies on the eighth and ninth holes to take a 1-up lead at the turn.

Greenhalgh then rallied to win three holes in a row and she increased her lead to three at the 14th.

The big-hitting American could only halve the next two holes.

Earlier Friday Daniel had beaten former Welsh champion Tegwen Perkins 3 and 2.

Greenhalgh now meets Australian junior champion Edwina Kennedy in Saturday's final. Kennedy beat French champion Cecilia Mourgue D'Algue 2 and 1 in the other semi-final.

IN CASE the Ken Norton-Larry Holmes fight didn't live up to expectations, fight fans could turn to dancers Susan and Michael for entertainment. They were part of the scene at Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas. (AP Laserphoto).

Grimsley sees third roll coming up Alydar

BY WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — It's too pat. The champagne corks are popping too soon. The klieg lights are beaming, and nobody has touched the switch. It's a great big bubble ripe for bursting.

The balloon pops for Affirmed and the fabulous kid Steve Cauthen in Saturday's Belmont Stakes.

This fearless forecast stems not from any reigned knowledge of horse flesh or perusal of the form sheets. Strictly a gut feeling. It's a long, long, road that has no turning.

EVEN FAIRY tales — and this horse and kid comprise one of the best — have abrupt endings. The clock tolled midnight, even for Cinderella.

In a season in which two great thoroughbreds have gone head to head, the dice have finally come up with another number. After being beaten out by Affirmed in both the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, stretch-running Alydar should get his revenge in the 1 1/4-mile Belmont.

Too bad. It's spoils a wonderful story.

Don't bet the family farm on it. It's strictly intuitive. It's a hunch that was enhanced by the pre-race launching Wednesday evening of Cauthen's biography, "The Kid" authored by Pete Axthelm.

IT WAS some clambake — wall-to-wall smart people jammed into a midtown eatery, television lights flashing all over the place, camera bulbs popping, a giant horseshoe of roses and paperback books forming a backdrop.

One would have thought it was a preview of "Gone With The Wind".

Sponsors waited until the room had filled and then had the 18-year-old, 96-pound riding phenomenon walk in through a rear door. Cameramen had been alerted.

Stevie looked spiffy in his blue Bill Blass blazer with brass buttons. His ear-length hair was perfectly groomed.

As usual, he was the picture of poise and decorum — a young man who already has achieved enough for a lifetime. But a biography at age 18? How ludicrous. It should be equipped with loose-leaf pages.

STEVIE LOOKED uncomfortable in the wild, teeming setting. He is only at ease astride a horse, where the two meld into a unit.

Yet he never lost his cool. Like the late Gary Cooper, Cauthen is a "yup" and "nope" man. He replies in monosyllables only when a nod or a shake of the head won't do.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Coach Jerry Tarkanian denied to Congress on Friday that he committed NCAA recruiting violations that resulted in the basketball program at the University of Nevada-Las Vegas being placed on a two-year suspension last summer.

Tarkanian, who has kept his job as head basketball coach through a lower court decision that is now on appeal to the Nevada Supreme Court, said he believes many of the rules of the National Collegiate Athletic Association "lack any amount of humanity."

As an example, he told the House Investigations subcommittee, it could be a violation if a team booster has a player over for dinner during a holiday when the player is separated from his own family.

Or, he said, it could be a violation if the coach takes a player to lunch, if the coach loans the player a jacket, if a new player arrives and stays a few days with the coach or another player, if a player has dinner with a coach and his family, or if a coach gives a player a ride home after practice or to work or to class.

"Some of today's rules basically eliminate much of the personal interaction between a coach and athlete," Tarkanian testified.

"And in this day and age, so many student athletes as well as other students need that extra interaction, some special consideration, the extra personal warmth that shows that a coach and his family do care."

"I am not talking about expensive actions, but through the interpretation of current NCAA rules, they could be called 'extra financial benefits' by NCAA investigators," Tarkanian said.

Tarkanian said he does not think an athlete should receive any better care or treatment than another student should expect. "But the student athlete should not be forced to take anything less."

"I feel that often a strict application of the NCAA rules and interpretations deprive the student athlete of what every other student should expect from a good college education and a good college educator," he added.

The panel, headed by Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., is scheduled to hear from representatives of Kansas, Yale, and North Carolina Central universities next week. Hofstra and the University of Nevada-Reno on June 22 and from the NCAA itself on July 12-14.

CBS is due winner's circle, no matter what

By HOWARD SMITH

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS will be in the winner's circle Saturday even if Affirmed isn't.

For the second straight year the Triple Crown is at stake in the Belmont Stakes and, while ABC had the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness, CBS has the Belmont.

"As a guess, normally if two different horses win the first two races, the ratings for the Belmont will be between 10 and 12," says Kevin O'Malley, vice president of communications for CBS Sports. "But if there is the possibility of a Triple Crown, the Belmont rating could go as high as 17 or 18."

Considering that each rating point translates to about 730,000 homes, that is quite a difference.

CBS also has the added ingredient of Steve Cauthen, the teenage sensation of the horse racing set and The Associated Press Athlete of the Year for 1977.

"Normally the element of people interest in a jockey is pretty low," says O'Malley. "Not many people tuned in to see Jean Cruguet or Ron Turcotte, but there is tremendous interest in this kid. He's the kind of a star horse racing needs, a human star instead of a star horse."

Like Cruguet, who rode Seattle Slew to the Triple last year, and Turcotte, who guided Secretariat in 1973, Cauthen will be going for the glory Saturday afternoon before a national TV audience. CBS has assembled a cast of racing-wise commentators to cover the event — Jack Whitaker as host, Chick Anderson to call the race, veteran trainer Frank Wright as an analyst-commentator and Charley Cantley as analyst-interviewer.

Wright is in a unique position to provide insights into the race. As a long-time trainer, he has often used both Cauthen and Alydar's jockey Jorge Velasquez on his horses. What does he think of the race?

"I don't think there's a 3-year-old in the country that can touch these two horses," says Wright. "I think the difference that separated Affirmed and Alydar in the Kentucky Derby can be accounted for by the abnormally hard surface. It discouraged Alydar a bit."

"Affirmed beat Alydar home by about 12 inches in the Preakness."

Possibly Alydar will have a little edge at the longer distance. The grind of a Triple Crown has a cumulative effect on these horses and Alydar is bigger and stronger.

"Still, if I was a percentage better, I would have to stay with Affirmed. He won the first two. But I think it should be a really grueling gunfight."

THE NATIONAL Basketball Association championship series has not been a tremendous success in the ratings this season. Seattle and Washington do not have national followings like, say, the Boston Celtics of seasons past. Neither team has any glamour players of note. The series has failed to stir the national interest you would expect of an exciting seven-game title series.

The ratings have been down from last year, particularly the prime time games. The series will probably be the lowest rated since the 1975 Golden State-Washington affair. CBS is aware of the problem.

"Right now there is something going on in Seattle that is incredible," says O'Malley, "but it's a secret. It hasn't been covered very well by us or by the written press. Maybe there isn't as much interest as there would be in a Celtics-Lakers series."

O'Malley admits that a part of the problem is the length of the NBA season. All but the hard-core fan has lost interest in basketball. It's June. This is baseball season and football training camps are just around the corner.

But CBS recently signed up the NBA for another four years and one provision of the contract is that the network will telecast the entire championship series, carrying the night games in prime time.

O'Malley says CBS hopes to increase regionalization of regular-season games to try and make fans more familiar with the different teams. He hopes to build a national audience for some of the lesser known clubs. But that still won't solve the problem of the long, drawn-out season. Not many fans can maintain interest in a sport that begins in early October and ends in June.

"Playing basketball in June is like fighting a war on Christmas," says one network observer. "It's just not appropriate."

Pfister, Mayer claim French Men's Doubles

PARIS (AP) — Americans Hank Pfister and Gene Mayer won the French Open men's doubles title Friday with a 6-3, 6-2, 6-2 victory over the Spanish team of Jose Higueras and Manuel Orantes.

Pfister, 24, and Mayer, 22, played crisp, aggressive tennis to gain the $18,000 title and to uphold a bit of American honor here at Roland Garros Stadium.

Dick Stockton of the United States faces defending champion Guillermo Vilas in the men's semifinals Saturday, but no other Americans are left in the final rounds of clay court play.

The final pairing for the $24,000 women's title was decided in semifinals matches on center court with No. 1 seed Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia and Romania's No. 2-seeded Virginia Ruzici scoring straight set victories.

The 21-year-old Jausovec got a scare in her second set with Regina Marsikova of Czechoslovakia, losing four straight games after jumping to a 4-0 lead. She held on, though, and took the match 6-3, 6-4.

Ruzici, a tall, rangy, powerful 23-year-old from Bucharest, overpowered France's rising hope, Brigitte Simon, 6-3, 6-0.

The petite, blonde 21-year-old French player was the darling of the hometown crowd, of course, but there was little she could do against the powerful baseline ground strokes and neat drop shots of her swifter and more powerful rival.

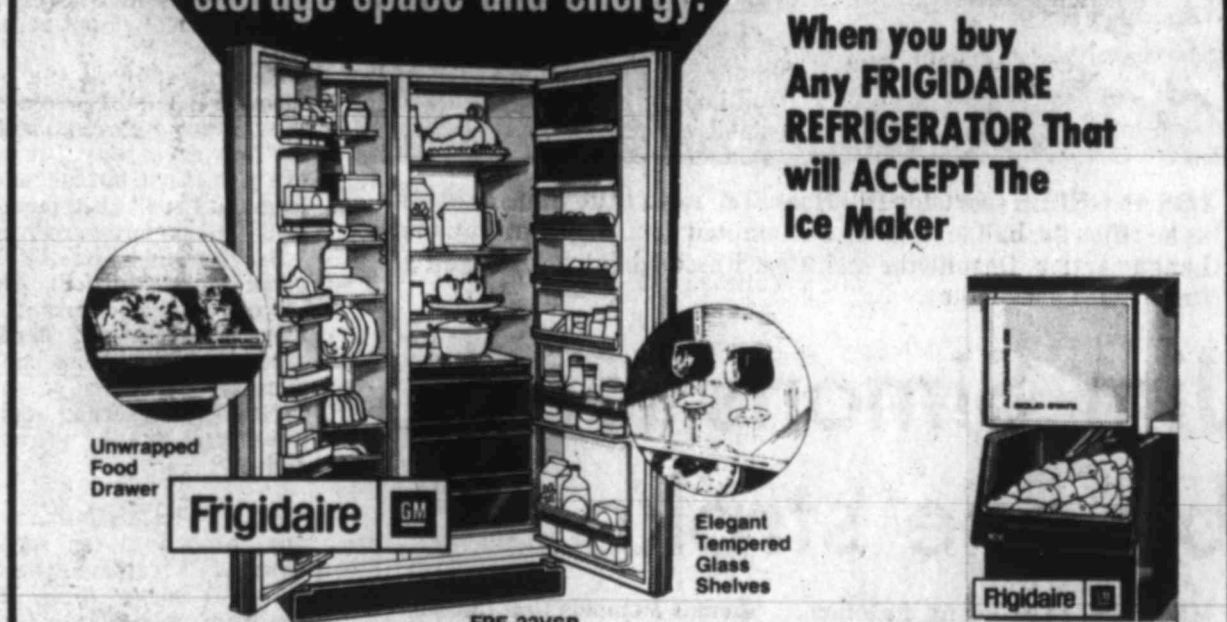

Friday was the lightest day of competition in the 14-day tournament, with most attention focused on Saturday's semifinal matches for the $48,000 men's title.

LE MANS, France (AP) — German Porsche speedsters went into the 46th Le Mans 24-hour motor race classic Saturday the favorites to fight back a second challenge from the might of the French Renault factory.

Porsche was gunning for its third straight win. The lead driving pair of Belgian Jackie Ickx and France's Henri Pescarolo were out for records — Ickx trying to take an unprecedented fifth win and Pescarolo trying to equal the previous best four successes in the world's most prestigious race.

Ickx shattered the absolute record for the 8.4-mile track Wednesday in qualifying his open 936 speedster and took the pole position.

Pescarolo said Friday the record was "really psychological, to worry the opposition into thinking we can keep up a high speed throughout the race."

Renault, whose first attempt at victory in the event failed ignominiously last year, was fielding four works cars, backed by two Renault-engine Mirages entered by Harley Cluxton of Phoenix, Ariz.

Cemetery: a place for the living

The early morning sun filters through the branches of a tree at Fairview Cemetery.

Alton Winburne reflects on some of the different tasks he does while employed at the cemetery.

Story and photos
by MIKE KARDOS

The stillness is always there. The birds chirp in the distance, a slight breeze wafts through the branches of the trees and the even rows of headstones add a sense of order and calmness to a cemetery.

Some might shudder at the idea of working in such a place. The possibility of spirits floating around might be too much for some people to deal with.

But, for Alton Winburne, an employee at Midland's Fairview Cemetery since about 1954, the possibility of ghosts haunting the place is something he doesn't even think about, he said with a grin.

He explained the cemetery is visited by people for a number of reasons.

"You'd be surprised at the people who come out here with a pair of field glasses and look" at the birds, he said.

During his workday, he often finds golf balls left by some golfer practicing his drive on the 40-acre tract.

And he has come across the results of vandals, who on occasion take apparent pleasure in destroying some of the beautiful headstones that grace the plots.

After talking with Winburne awhile, one realizes he enjoys his work and in a sense has made an acquaintance with some who are buried at Fairview.

As a matter of fact, "if they give me time to think about it," he is usually able to direct a visitor to a particular headstone without having to look up the location in the records.

He said during the day "you catch yourself reading everything you come to."

There are some persons who come to the cemetery to sit because of the calmness that pervades the area.

A sign near the entrance informs a visitor that Fairview has been in use since May 31, 1885, and Winburne said about 125 persons are buried there each year.

The cemetery "sure has filled up since I've been here," he said.

Strolling through the cemetery and looking at the headstones reveals names which are familiar to many Midlanders: Scharbauer, Midkiff, Cowden. Many of the families have sections, possibly to allow them to remain together.

Other areas of the graveyard have been set aside for specific uses.

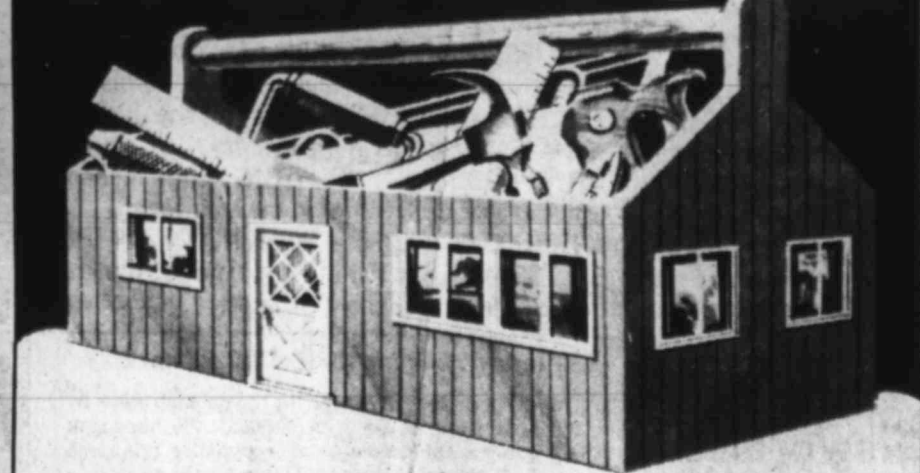

Veterans usually are buried around the flagpole situated near the entrance.

Mexican-American and black persons usually are buried in the northwest and north central areas of the cemetery, while those unable to afford a conventional burial are tucked away in the northeast corner.

Technology has come to the business of gravedigging, as in all other things. Winburne said a new gravedigging machine now carves out a smooth-walled grave in a mere 20 minutes, versus the half-day task of before.

The methods may have changed, but the minister's traditional recitation "earth to earth, ashes to ashes, dust to dust," still rolls across the lawn of the cemetery, reminding the huddled group of people why they have gathered on that occasion.

El Dorado MINI-WAGON

THE HEIGHT OF QUALITY AND DESIGN!

Quality has been no accident...it's been El Dorado's number one rule for nearly 20 years.

The new Mini-Wagon is lower, narrower and lighter than conventional-type mini-motor homes, but careful planning and space utilization plus the use of durable sandwich construction eliminates the need to sacrifice interior room. The unique front cabover design plus overall lighter weight provides impressive fuel economy and excellent road handling.
