Mae Murray Faces Trial On Charge

Famed Movie Actress Must Answer Charge of Forcibly Entered a Home; $500 Bail Is Made.

(By Associated Press)

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Oct. 13. Mae Murray, star of the films and stage, will go on trial here October 23 on a charge of forcibly entering a home.

A ten minute hearing before a police judge after Miss Murray had surrendered to police resulted in her being held for trial on charges preferred by Jack Donovan, Hollywood architect. Police held a warrant for the arrest of the actress on charges of forcibly entering Donovan's Santa Monica home.

Is Not Bothered

Miss Murray, headlining at downtown vaudeville house, appeared in fine humor and not bothered.

She walked into the police station shortly before noon today and calmly said: "Well, here I am. What can I do for you?"

After it was explained that Donovan had sworn out a complaint on which bail for $500 had been set, counsel for Miss Murray asked for immediate arraignment.

And that she be tried before a judge instead of a jury. The request was granted.

Brooking stated that he was crossing the street, when the car bore down on him and that he was unable to escape from it.

Cotton Ginning Is Underway; Report Shows 1,000 Bales

Shortage of Pickers Noted As Gins Start Up; 317 Bales Ginned Here; This Week Finds All Started.

Agricultural leaders in the county are predicting that the coming week will see gins throughout the county running in full blast. Pickers are badly needed in almost every section, most of the correspondents appending a cry for pickers to their ginnings report.

Bureau Gin Starts

The new $40,000 Farm Bureau gin at Lubbock started operating yesterday as a bale produced by J. J. Bumpass of Woodrow was sent through this addition to the seven gins heretofore located in Lubbock.

The city of Lubbock led the county, its eight gins reporting an approximate 317 bales up to date. The report was compiled shortly afternoon and it is probable that enough bales were received later in Applause Wild As Nominee Makes Charge Against GOP Stand On Tariff; Nine Points Are Given.

Enthusiastic Ovation Given Candidate; Spectators Clambor Over Seats To Shake Governor's Hand.

(By Associated Press)

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 13.—Governor Smith in his one and only campaign address in Kentucky tonight ripped into Secretary Jardine and accused the secretary of agriculture with having made a "deliberate, cold-blooded and willful misrepresentation" of what he had said on the tariff in his acceptance speech.

While the applause to this utterance still was ringing through the packed Jefferson County armory, the democratic candidate outlined nine points which he described as his "prescription" on this issue and one which would, to his mind, meet the situation.

Reads Nine Points

With deliberation the nominee read each of the nine points from a prepared manuscript and declared he would relieve the republican party and its managers from the "necessity of spreading false propaganda" about the democratic attitude on the question by saying that neither the underwood nor any other tariff bill would be taken as a pattern for carrying out the principles set forth in the prescription.

"With this prescription honestly put forth," he almost shouted, "with a clear cut and definite promise to make it effective, I assert with confidence that neither labor nor industry, nor agriculture, nor business, has anything to fear from

PERMITS ARE ACTIVE

Week's Building Shows A Good Total

The past week's building record in Lubbock shows a total of $56,700 which brings the month's total to $75,150 and that of the year, to date, up to $2,823,769.

During the week there were 21 permits issued, the last one of yesterday being for $300, to a Mr. Odom, at 1404 Avenue X, for construction of a one-room frame store building. W. S. Mood is named as contractor for the job.

Pollard Approves Petition Calling For Lubbock County Road Bond Issue

Paper Will Be Put In Circulation This Week

Jed Rix, chairman of the Lubbock County Good Roads association, was notified yesterday that Attorney General Claude Pollard has given his approval to the legality in which the petition, sent to him from here last week, has been drawn up, terms, provisions, clauses, and so on.

"We forwarded the petition to the attorney general for his okeh, because we wanted to have every technicality worked out in true legal form, before presenting the petition to the county commissioners," Mr. Rix stated. "In this way, there can be no hitch for technical reasons, after we have the petitions signed and presented and ready for the election's call."

Circulated This Week

Mr. Rix stated the petition would be circulated throughout the county perhaps early this week and be ready for presentation to the commissioners court by a week from Monday.

The bond issue, an election for which the petition calls, will include paving and hard-surfacing of every important road in Lubbock county. State Highways No. 7, 9 and 52, are to be paved over all sections in the county. The county roads to be hard-surfaced are, the road north from the Lynn county line, running through Slaton and Idalou, and to the Hale county line; the road east from Lubbock, through Canyon and Acuff to the Crosby county line, and the road west from Lubbock, running to the Hockley county line.

Amounts Are Stated

Stated amounts to be spent on each unit of all these roads are given in the petition and will appear in the election order and on all legal papers pertaining to the bond issue. These amounts are based on figures furnished by competent engineers and cover the cost of building the roads, as outlined. In this way the money voted cannot be spent for anything except the construction of the roads named, and the Good Roads association, the good roads committee of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, as well as others interested in the proposal, have carefully had the costs checked so that there will be enough money to pay for building every section of all highways named.

Mystery of Sub's Fate Is Carried To Bottom of Sea

Ship Rests On Ocean Bottom, 6,000 Feet Below Service; French To Make Investigation.

(By Associated Press)

PARIS, Oct. 13.—The submarine Ondine, turned into a steel coffin for forty-three young officers and sailors of the French navy when she was rammed off Vigo by a Greek freighter, seems to have carried the mystery of her fate with her 6,000 feet down in the Atlantic ocean.

Neither the public nor officialdom tonight knew much more about the disaster than when the first meager news of it came from the French consul at Rotterdam last night.

Reports Are Conflicting

There was some conflict between press accounts and the official announcement. The latter said the captain of the Greek steamer abandoned the search for survivors two hours after the collision. Some of the press accounts from Rotterdam indicate he remained in the vicinity for 13 hours. The accident occurred about 11 p. m., October 3.

The ministry of marine sent Captain Fecet of the general staff to Rotterdam to take part in the investigation.

The dirigible Graf Zeppelin expects to reach its journey's end at Lakehurst, N. J., this (Sunday) afternoon.

Direct radio messages from the Graf Zeppelin received by naval stations at Washington and New York placed the ship somewhat east of Bermuda but differed in the longitude given. New York reported the longitude as 52 degrees west and Washington as 56.10 west. Apparently the figures had been garbled in transmission.

Lieut. Com. Charles E. Rosendahl, U. S. N., guest on this first commercial trans-Atlantic flight, radioed at 7 o'clock, Eastern Standard time, last night that the Zeppelin was proceeding "comfortably" at about three-quarters of its normal air speed, which would bring it into Lakehurst this afternoon.

One interpretation of the message was that Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the dirigible, finding it possible to arrive at his destination this morning, had slowed the speed of the craft in order not to defeat elaborate reception plans made on the assumption he could

THIS HAS HAPPENED

SYBIL THORNE, Boston society girl, surprises here sister-in-law at a roadhouse—drinking cocktails and making love with Sybil's own husband! In all fairness to VALERIE (the sister-in-law) it should be explained that she had no idea the man with whom she was [illegible] planning to elope was her sister-in-law's husband.

Valerie did not, as a matter of fact, even know he was married. He had made love ardently, and promised to get her in the movies. Marriage with TAD THORNE had palled, and Valerie, a selfish and frivolous girl, was ready to escape boredom through any avenue.

Sybil, learning that Valerie was preparing to desert Tad, determined to stop it if she could. She had no idea when she hurried to the roadhouse where Valerie was spending the evening that she was going to encounter her husband.

Sybil's marriage with RICHARD EUSTIS had been a secret affair. It lasted only two weeks, and only two of Sybil's friends had met her husband. She had never used his name, nor spoken of him to Valerie. At first it was difficult to convince Valerie that her lover was actually her own brother-in-law—Sybil's husband. But his own craven attitude revealed him in his worst light. Sybil takes Valerie back to Tad.

Sybil regards Val with a sort of pitying contempt and because pity is akin to affection, she grows to like her a little. Finally Valerie begs Sybil to divorce Eustis, in order that she may gain undisputed custody of her child. Eustis has never heard of the birth of Sybil's baby, and Valerie is afraid that when he learns of it he will seek to assert his paternity. She predicts legal difficulties and persuades Sybil to see a lawyer, to whom Sybil tells the strange story of her marriage.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVII

Mr. Peterson beat a gentle tattoo with his spectacles on the bridge of his nose.

"Mm-m," he said. "A most unusual case. And the defendant living in New Haven, is ignorant of the birth of a child? Have you no mutual friends—no acquaintances? The situation is almost incomprehensible.

"You realize, of course, that it will be necessary to apprise your husband of the existence of a child? You wish complete custody. Separate support, perhaps?"

"N—no." Sybil interrupted eagerly. "I don't want any money at all. Only Teddy. I don't even care about my freedom, except for Teddy's sake. I only want the right of my own name, and the right of my child to be known as Edward Thorne."

"He is called," she told the crusty old lawyer simply, "for my father. I should like to perpetuate his memory through my son. There are Thorne traditions—Thorne pride. It would be idiotic for my son to carry on for the Eustises. He means nothing to them, nor they to him."

Mr. Peterson smiled.

"Jurisdiction," he informed her "recognizes no sentimentality. The child's father has a legal right to dispute your fitness as guardian of his minor son. He can, if he chooses, bring various unpleasant allegations. He can contest your suit for divorce, and defend himself publicly against your charges.

"However, judging from the circumstances of the—er—romance, I think we need anticipate no trouble from the young man. You are quite sure madam that you have omitted no important detail of your marital life? You have not seen your husband in the last 21 months? Not since you left him in Havana?"

Sybil hesitated.

"Yes, I have—once. I didn't think it necessary to tell you. It was for only a few minutes. I—I surprised him. It was in a public place. In New Haven—at a roadhouse. He was with another woman."

"You talked with him?"

"Yes."

"And what was the nature of that conversation?"

"I upbraided him. He was with a girl I knew. They were planning to elope."

"How did you know they were planning to elope?"

"Oh, I KNOW they were."

"And you know the woman? We might subpoena her. Had you witnesses to the affair? And what are this woman's feelings toward you at thi stime?"

Sybil threw out her hands.

"Oh, Mr. Peterson—you don't understand. I shouldn't have mentioned it. I couldn't possibly drag anyone into this—particularly this—this lady."

"Who is she, madam? And what have been her relations with your husband? Has there been an open liasion?"

Hidious questions! Horrible man! Sybil shuddered.

Really, Mr. Peterson, must decline to answer. It seems hardly necessa."

The old man smiled patiently. "My dear young woman, it is MOST necessary," he explained indulgently. "Surely you do not think I am vulgarly curious. I am a man old enough to be your father. You have come to me, presumably, because you trust me, and wish me to help you. You must be absolutely frank with me. If you wish to withhold certain facts, I must decline to accept the case."

Mr. Peterson peered through tortoise-shel lglasses at his finger nails, and, for the space of 60 seconds, while he appraised them thoroughly, you could have heard a pin drop. Then Sybil broke the throbbing silence.

"I beg your pardon," she said. "Let me begin at the beginning, and tell you everything. Then you will understand how absolutely impossible it is to bring the charge you have in mind."

Gravely he heard her out. And when she had finished, she concluded hopefully, "—and now you see why I want so fearfully to get the divorce on some respectable ground—incompatibility, or something like that."

Mr. Peterson inclined his head.

"That would be nice," he conceded with grim humor, "only in Massachusetts we don't do things that way. There are seven grounds for divorce in this state. Most of them ugly. Incompatibility is not one of them. Non-support is what you might call the most 'respectable.' In your case we might fall back on 'gross and confirmed habits of intoxication,' or 'cruel and abusive treatment.'"

Sybil squared her shoulders.

"I'm going through," she said, and placed her hand in his.

When she had gone, the old lawyer rang for the junior member of the firm, and ranted harshly:

"What's the young generation coming to? Answer me that, if you can! The foibles of innocence! License and immorality. You're all going to the dogs. You've gone crazy—crazy as loons. Such carryings-on! Little girls and married women. Flask-sucking lizards. I don't know what the world's coming to. You're going to the devil!"

The irascible Mr. Peterson paused for breath.

The junior member smiled.

"Yes sir," he conceded good-naturedly. "I suppose we are. You old fogies are to blame for it."

The summer was full of conferences. Richard wanted to see Sybil. First one emissary and then another pleaded his cause.

They hinted at possible reconciliation, and a settlement out of court. Defiance followed on the heels of conciliation. There were veiled threats. If Richard had a child, then, by the Lord Harry, he proposed to see him. Panic stricken, Sybil refused to let Teddy from her sight.

Richard's lawyer, a smooth young man with a face like a ferret, glibly submitted unpleasant innuendoes. Did Mr. Thorne know of his wife's friendship with Mr. Eustis? No? Ah! Probably Mrs. Eustis would not wish to have him informed of that—er—regretable little affair.

Don't call me Mrs. Eustis!" snapped Sybil.

"But it is your name!" expostulated the ferret, and continued suavely. "Of course, Mr. Eustis would be loathe to resort to such tactics. But, really, Mrs. Eustis was proving quite unreasonable. Now if Mr. Eustis were permitted to see the child."

"Never!" Sybil shrieked her defiance.

"Or if Mrs. Eustis would meet her husband."

"I'd die first!" she assured him.

"But consider your husband's feelings. The child is his."

"The child is mine!" Sybil's outraged maternity flared hotly. "Teddy's mine. I tell you."

The ferret smiled suavely.

"Yours? Oh, yes. But you say," he interpolated smoothly, "that it is also his."

Oh, the hateful insolence of that purring voice. Sybil sprang to her feet, and her open palm shot swiftly through the air. Full on his cheek he received it, and when her arm dropped like lead to her side, there was a vivid mark across his face.

"You—you—! Leave my house!" she screamed. "Get out. Quick! Or I'll call my brother to beat you. You . . . you . . ."

She was pointing a shaking finger toward the door, like a tragedy queen in a melodrama. And the palm of her hand itched for further contact.

The ferret fondled his cheek.

"You shall pay for this indignity," he told her, fuming angrily. "The courts protect men from the tantrums of female tigers. I shall get a warrant for assault and battery."

He leered at her evily. "And what a story that will be for your swell friends. Gettin' dragged to police court like a common rowdy. I guess that will make 'em laugh—the high and mighty Miss Sybil Thorne up on an assault and battery charge!"

Muttering darkly, he took his derby and departed like a "vilain" on the stage. Then Sybil, apprehensive of the trouble her temper might cause, hurried in town to relate the afternoon's developments to her lawyer.

Mr. Peterson listened gravely, but she saw the twinkle in his wise old eyes.

"Good girl!!" he approved judicially when she finished. "It takes an angry woman to handle a musical comedy detective properly. You needn't worry about any warrant. He wouldn't let anybody know you struck him, for all his cheap talk. He will keep that right under his tin hat—and he'll lie his head off about the mark on his face. But, after this, refer all rats to me. I don't want you talking with them at all."

(Craig Newball, Sybil's old sweetheart, hears rumors of the impending divorce, and drops in to talk things over. The stage is set for society's biggest scandal—in the next chapter.)

Although Six Wed, Justice Is Idle

Although it was a busy day at the county clerk's office yesterday, in issuing marriage licenses, six having been issued, "Uncle Billy" Clark, justice of the peace, did not get to perform a single ceremony.

With only until midnight tonight remaining, "Uncle Billy" has but a few hours in which to perform two ceremonies in order to reach the 200 mark for his two years as justice. So far his record is even with the one he made last year, when he had issued 99 up to the close of the fiscal year.

The six licenses issued yesterday were to the following:

Sam Lee Bass and Miss Kittie Lynn. George Fredrich Keesee and Miss Winnie Lee Moore. Russel Odom and Miss Lorene Stringer. W. B. Manous and Miss Alma Busher. Bill W. Davis and Miss Verda Craft. F. E. Knox and Miss Annabel Burton.

Looking Into Real Estate Purchase

A Series Of Articles Dealing With The Problems Surrounding Home-Owning

STORY III. THE FIRST MORTGAGE

This is the third of a series of articles prepared by the National Association of Real Estate Boards to be published weekly in this newspaper for the information of its readers on real estate matters.

Not so long ago a mortgage was a stain on the family honor. Mortgages were never discussed in public and their owners shuddered about them in private. The books and plays of fifty years ago reflected the horror with which the mortgage was regarded; and mortgages were always villans who demanded the beautiful golden haired daughter on the date of maturity or threatened to move the family heir looms into the street.

Times have changed and the mortgage should not be looked upon now as the first step toward the poor house. For mortgages are no longer held by heartless villans who foreclose on the stroke of twelve o'clock and evict the family into a snowstorm. The activity of these cruel and picturesque Shylocks has been developed into a great business, dignified by sagacious minds and safeguarded by state and federal legislation.

Yet many people have the obsolete idea that a mortgage is undesirable and a threat of failure, and it is for these people that the following facts concerning mortgage are set forth.

General Facts

We will deal today only with general facts about first mortgages. Technical and legal information on this subject will be treated in subsequent articles; and forms of first mortgages, and junior liens or second mortgages will be discussed later as these all subjects that require space to describe.

A real estate mortgage is an instrument by which real estate is pledged to secure the debt of a lender (called a mortgagor) usually evidenced by notes or bonds, so if the debt is not paid the real estate may be sold and the proceeds used for that purpose. In other words, a mortgage is a document pledging the security of a property, given by its owner to a person or organization advancing money to the owner. Most first mortgages on homes are undertaken in connection with buying or building the home and the buyer or builder secures enough cash in this way to finance his project by pledging as security the property his own money partly purchased.

People whose homes were bought with cash often find it necessary or desirable later to place a first and sometimes a second mortgage on their property in order to obtain funds for various purposes.

Credit Is Essential

Very few businesses today can go very far without credit. Even the little corner grocery store requires credit in order to pruchase new stock. The man who can command credit today can command the modern world. And the man who can't secure a mortgage is a man who can secure credit. The very fact that he can obtain a mortgages mean that he has something behind him. He must have the security of property, if he is borrowing on a home already paid for, or he must have the security of equity if he is borrowing to buy or build a new home. Why should such a man blush at the thought of a mortgage?

For a prospective home buyer or builder, a mortgage is a means of acquiring a home that could not be secured in any other way unless the prospective buyer or builder could pay all cash; and statistics show that very, very few homes are purchased by complete cash payments. For the man with a little money to invest the mortgage is a good place in which to put his savings. First mortgage loans will bring a return of from five to seven percent; and indeed so popular has become this form of investment that in many parts of the country today, "fractional" mortgages or parts of large mortgages can be bought in $100, units, thereby making it possible for the small investor to enter this field.

Mortgage Sources

The organization that now deal in first mortgage loans include great mortgage companies, banks, trust companies, and building and loan associations. Also as a result of the passage of the recent McFadden Act, national banks are permitted now to lend mortgage funds. These institutions, organized with the borrower's interests in mind, presided over by able minds, are a far cry from the dingy one room offices where some honest and a good many dishonest money lenders drew up foreclosures a hundred years ago.

The man in the street sometimes may think that mortgage interest and commission rates are high and it is well to point out that one of the reasons for existing rates lies in the difficulty of foreclosure in modern times. The time required after the default of the borrower before the lender can acquire title to the property varies from a few weeks in some states to as much as two years in others. In Missouri the time is 20 days, in Michigan it is 15 months, in Maine it is one year. This means that if the borrower defaults the lender of mortgage money in Maine in order to protect his interests has to pay the taxes and insurance on the property for an entire year.

The lender must do this so the property will not be seized for taxes or burn down and net him nothing. In addition, he must forgo the interest on the mortgage for this time. And the day before the year period expires, the borrower can pay the interest and avoid foreclosure. In view of these conditions and the fact that the law protects the borrower much better than it protects the lender, it is not unreasonable for the lender to expect the prevaling mortgage rates.

But foreclosures are unbelievably few compared to the vast sums loaned in mortgages. The interest lending money in this field rely on what is known as good will for their very existence. Competition is keen, there is an adequate flow of capital for mortgage purposes and the mortgage interests can not secure public good will by foreclosing on the stroke of twelve o'clock. Therefore, every consideration is given to mortgage borrowers and foreclosure is resorted to only when all else fails.

The man with a mortgage today thinks he is a pretty fine fellow, because he can command credit and because he knows that no black haired villain will come around on the date of maturity and demand his beautiful daughter.

Packing Business Expands In Lubbock

Three Concerns Find Territory In Need Of Products; Many Workers Employed

A getting-down-to-earth analysis, along brass tack principles, of some of the conditions under which we of the South Plains, or of any other primary agricultural section live, brings to light one distinct fact that greatly changes our attitude towards the farm, the farmer, farm relief, farm problems, present-day affairs of business and our entire relationship one with another.

It should here be stated that two things which affect this agricultural section more than any other two phases of human endeavor, are the one-crop system, principally cotton, and the system towards which the South Plains is rapidly leaning—that of producing more than one crop, or the branching out into various production of diverse commodities, namely diversification, a word which has been widely used, but not so widely understood.

Change Is Slow

A problem which has long confronted the handling of cotton, our largest single crop, is that of getting the product from the producer to the manufacturer. Farm organizations have been wrestling with the particular problem of cutting down the difference between the price paid to the raiser of cotton and the price paid by the manufacturer at the mill. And the cry of bringing the mill into territories where cotton is produced has brought about a movement of the manufacturer into these territories to a small extent. This fact proves the problem as stated.

But, in handling other products the farmer raises to sell, we have not thought of these things in terms of manufacturing. Yet we find that all livestock, poultry, milk and cream, are bought from the farmer by manufacturers, referred to primarily as packers.

Plants Near Source of Supply

As manufacturing institutions, the packers have, in a big way, built their plants as near as possible to the source of the raw supply. There is not that problem of the farmer combating big costs of carrying his diverse products to the end of his market.

Logical reasoning tells us that the straightest way to reach from one point to the other is the shortest distance. It is reasonable to declare that quicker profits, then, are to be made by the producer of anything if he produces an article which will reach its ultimate market-source with the least bit of lost motion.

Lubbock and the South Plains section have three big concerns which are equipped, at this time, sufficiently well to absorb all the livestock, poultry, including chickens and turkeys, milk, cream, butter and eggs—that farmers of the entire area can produce for many years to come.

Market Is Available

An immediate market for these products of the farmer are available every day in the year.

Specifically, these firms, which are included in the known term of "packing industry" here, are the McDonald Packing company, strictly a local concern and a growing one, Armour & company, and Swift & company.

The McDonald Packing company, of which W. K. Dickinson, Sr., is president; Alex McDonald, is vice president and manager, and F. S. Walker, is the secretary-treasurer, was organized four years ago, with an original capital of $10,000. At its beginning this concern confined its activities to feeding and killing livestock. In its beginning it had only one employee and served only the city of Lubbock.

This company's first year witnessed a volume of business of approximately $40,000. It has grown steadily until today it owns its own grounds and buildings, with a complete packing plant, all valued at about $75,000. Last year's volume of the company was in the neighborhood of $150,000. This year's business will be close to $500,000.

New Buildings Added

A new building has been added to the plant each year, and it will be necessary to add another structure next year, to take care of its volume.

"It keeps us hustling to keep up with our business, right now," is the remark of Alex McDonald, manager.

"We do a general packing business, manufacturing all kinds of cured and lunch meats, in addition to keeping many beef cattle and hogs on hand, which we feed and kill to insure our plant a supply," Mr. McDonald said further.

Much Stock On Hand

At this time there are more than 1,000 head of hogs on hand and about 250 head of cattle. This concern is building up a reputation on its leading lines, such as "Sugar Lump" hams and bacon, "Banker's" breakfast bacon, "Country Maid", high grade pork sausage, a line of chili, boiled ham and breakfast style pure pork link sausage. A specialty of white face baby beef is contributing much towards the company's success, also.

The company has expanded to where it has 26 men on its payroll and its products are shipped into all of the South Plains territory. Also, its products are purchased from all over this section from the farmers who raise what they want of raw product for manufacturing.

Armour Expands

Armour & company established a sub-branch office of its Amarillo branch distributing house in Lubbock in 1925, with an initial payroll of three men. The volume of business has increased so rapidly that this concern decided to put in a branch here and has just completed building a new brick and tile structure, 52 by 115 feet in dimensions, one story, with provision for adding another story.

In this new structure, which cost in the neighborhood of $35,000 a cooling plant costing $17,000 was built, where fresh meats of all kinds are kept. About three carloads of provisions are shipped to Lubbock every week to serve this territory, and the payroll will include a dozen persons. The branch office will not be in actual operation from this city until November 1 although the new building is now being occupied.

Armour & company keeps a livestock buyer, R. C. Harris, located in Lubbock at all times. He purchases livestock, hogs and cattle, from all over the South Plains part of New Mexico, and adjacent territory, for the company's packing plants.

"We believe in the future of this section," said W. E. Schmid, manager of this company's branch here "and that is why we have established the Lubbock branch. If necessary the company will no doubt increase as its business justifies."

Three salesmen travel for Armour out of this city and Manager Schmid calls attention to the fact that about 40 tons of Star ham and Star bacon went with the Byrd South Pole expedition.

Swift Has Sub-Branch

Swift & company operates a sub-branch distributing house here out of its Amarillo branch, and has one of the most complete produce plants and creameries in the entire southwest located in Lubbock.

Virgil Wolf, manager of the sub-branch, explains that the company established itself here in 1924, with three employees, expanding with the South Plains growth until it now has six and occupies a building about 30 by 110 feet with a cooling plant for keeping fresh meats. It keeps three salesmen busy covering the territory and brings about four carloads of all kinds of packing plant products into Lubbock every week, to serve this section.

"Business has grown to the extent that we have found our present facilities inadequate," says Mr. Wolf, "and we expect to in the near future build a modern plant to take care of our volume and to serve the growth that is certainly coming to this section."

Payroll Is Large

Swift & company's produce plant and creamery has one of the largest payrolls in Lubbock, with its employees numbering from about 60 to 100 or more. The produce plant was established in October 1925, the creamery being added and opened in November 1927.

The entire plant has a total floor space of about 23,000 square feet and cost in the neighborhood of $65,000, with its equipment.

Poultry, including turkeys, are fed and dressed here, the farmers of the South Plains furnishing them, some coming from New Mexico. The daily capacity of this plant is 12,000 per day, which represents a steady stream of dollars pouring into the coffers of poultry producers throughout the year.

"Farmers will never be able to produce enough poultry to exceed the capacity of our plant," was the declaration of S. V. Alford, manager. "One thing we want, and that is more poultry, more eggs, more cream. Also, we want better quality. With better quality comes higher prices. It doesn't cost the farmer any more to produce good eggs than it does inferior ones. Neither does it cost him any more to milk the better quality cows than it does the poorer ones."

Capacity Is Great

The creamery has a weekly capacity of between 65,000 and 70,000 pounds of butter. And Swift & company is known to be among the world's largest manufacturers of cream and butter. Never has this concern turned down any of these products because of their plant's lack of capacity for handling.

"If they'll produce in Lubbock, we'll handle it," said Mr. Alford. He then stated that the company employes two cream solicitors over the South Plains, with about 90 cream stations affiliated with them in supplying raw products.

Failure To Make Extra Points Is Costly To Texas

Commodores Open With A Fast Offense and Attempts Of Longhorns To Come Back Frustrated.

(By Associated Press)

DALLAS, Oct. 13.—Two of Dixie's greatest football teams battled each other today with all the bitterness of the traditional foes they are and when darkness settled on Fair Park stadium and the capacity crowd of 18,000 moved out of the exits, the Vanderbilt Commodores had raised their Orange and Black standard in victory over a hard-fighting Texas eleven.

The narrowest of margins, one point, was all that separated the teams. Vanderbilt won, 13 to 12, because Rufus King, Texas captain, and Cowley failed at both tries for the extra point.

Offensive Yields Point

Two attempts made by Jimmy Armistead also failed, but after the Commodore captain had passed to McGaughy for the first touchdown, Texas was offside, giving the Tennessee team the point that enabled them to avenge Texas' victory last year.

It was a determined and seemingly inspired Texas team that came back after Vanderbilt had scored two touchdowns in the opening quarter, the second occurring when Baldwin's punt was blocked and Hawkins fell on the ball over the Longhorn goal line, and all but snatched victory from the opponents.

Texans Pass Well

After Coach Clyde Littlefield replaced his battered Orange eleven with reinforcements early in the second quarter, the Texans uncorked a dazzling aerial offense that accounted for one touchdown and was largely responsible for the second.

Higgins returned Abernathy's kick off to the Texas 40-yard line. King passed to Rhoades, who a few seconds before went in for Ford at end, and the Texas wingman eluded tacklers and dashed to the Commodore 20-yard stripe before he was brought down by McGaughy. A moment later King darted back of the line, raised his arm and hurled the ball into the outstretched arms of Higgins just as the latter stepped over his opponent's goal line.

With the ball on their own 34-yard line, the Longhorns started their march down the field. A long pass, Shelley to Rhoades, was good for 40 yards, and Meadows made it first down on a thrust at right end, placing the ball on Vandy's three yard line.

Two jabs at the Commodore forward wall brought only one yard, then Captain King dived through a mass of tacklers over the chalk line. King's kick was low to the right of the standards.

Early in the third quarter the Texans made a determined scoring bid—only to fail when Shelley dropped Beulah's pass on the goal line, after leaping high after the oval. Less than three minutes later, after Armistead had punted out of bounds on the Vandy 43-yard line, King fumbled the ball with a clear field before him and the ever-alert Hawkins recovered.

Texas made one more scoring effort in the fourth quarter, but apparently had spent its power against the stalwart Commodore defense. Vandy, in turn made its most effective advance during the final two quarters and missed a touchdown by inches two minutes before the game ended. Meadows dropped a punt on his five yard line and Lusky conquered. Three line thrusts failed, and the ball went over as the final gun sounded.

Record Throng Sees Navy Bow To Notre Dame, 7 to 0

Over 120,000 Watch Fighting Irish Beat Middies

BY ALAN J. GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

SOLDIER FIELD, CHICAGO, Oct. 13. (AP)—The greatest gridiron spectacle American football ever has known furnished the background for Notre Dame's comeback today and a 7 to 0 triumph over the battered forces of the United States Naval Academy.

Before a record shattering crowd unofficially estimated at 122,000, surpassing any outpouring this historic field or any other has ever handled for football, the green-jerseyed warriors of Knute Rockne seized a "break" late in the third quarter and scored the only touchdown of the game early in the final period on a forward pass.

Poor Punt Hurts Navy.

A poor punt from the toe of Big "Whitey" Lloyd, navy back which slanted off at a queer angle and travelled only seven yards, gave Notre Dame the ball on the Middie 28-yard stripe. The flashy Hoosier backfield, with Jack Chevigny and John Niemiec doing the heavy work, aided by "Billy" Dew, opened up the big charge. They slanted off tackle to the 13-yard mark in a succession of short thrusts, then changed goals as the gun barked to end the quarter.

The short interval gave an opportunity for Rockne to employ some strategy which he did by sending in Colerick to replace Collins at left end. The Navy suspected this meant a passing threat but was thrown off guard perhaps as Chevigny and Niemiec hit the line, bucking their way to the 10-yard mark.

Expecting another thrust at the line, the Navy massed its defense in a desperate stand. Reinforcements were rushed in but on the next play Niemiec dropped back and threw a wide slanting pass to Colerick, who caught the ball as he stepped over the line. The scoring honors went entirely to the Hoosier substitute forces, for Carideo, who had replaced Brady at quarterback in directing the successful drive, kicked the goal after touchdown.

Navy Battles Hard.

Navy, which had exhibited nothing but a gallant defense for the first three quarters of the game, aroused itself to fighting pitch after the Hoosiers had scores. For the rest of the game the Middies launched three successive drives into Notre Dame territory, penetrating once to the six-yard line, only to lose the ball on downs. Their last offensive was broken up in the last minute of the game, a forward pass being intercepted by Montroy, another Notre Dame substitute, after the Middies had battled their way to the 15-yard line.

This was the third successive defeat for the Naval Academy's eleven, which has yet to score a point in three engagements with Davis and Elkins, Boston college and Notre Dame.

Score by periods:

Ex-Notre Dame Mentor Sees Game

Jessie C. Harper, former Notre Dame coach, who organized the athletic department at that institution, was on the sidelines at the Tech-St. Edwards game yesterday to witness the team coached by his former pupil, Jack Meagher, in action against the Matadors.

Sitting on the St. Edwards bench beside the Saints' mentor, Harper commented frequently on the plays the Catholics were using which he had originated at Notre Dame. He not only organized the athletic department at Notre Dame, but started the eastern football schedule which is in use today and the present scheme of play at the eastern Catholic school.

The Rockne shift which is usually attributed to the present Notre Dame mentor was originated by Harper while Rockne was his pupil.

Coach Meagher gained all-American mention as an end on the Notre Dame eleven while Harper was head coach there.

HARVARD WINS 20-0

South Carolina Succombs To Second Period Attack

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 13. (AP)—Had Alladdin's lamp been available for the University of North Carolina football team during its game with Harvard here today it would have rubbed and wished for the elimination of the second period an interval that provided Harvard with 20 points and a victory.

For three periods the visitors, who did not score, lived up to their name of "the Tarheels", but Harvard crowded all its offensive power into one quarter and demoralized the defense of the Southerners.

Rejuvenated Owls Come To Life And Whip Trinity, 20-6

Rice Eleven Recovers From St. Eds Lacing and Wins Well Played Game From Bengal Crew.

(By Associated Press)

HOUSTON, Oct. 13.—Changing form to better the miserable showing made last week when St. Edwards tallied a 31 to 0 victory over them the Rice Owls today scored a well earned 20 to 6 win over Coach Barry Holton's Trinity Tigers.

A fighting line and charging backfield raced through for long gains and a sensational aerial attack carried the Tigers off their feet. Rice's forward passing was one of the best exhibitions shown by an Owl eleven in several seasons.

Team Was Determined

The fighting spirit was instilled in the Owl squad by Coaches Rothgeb, Daugherity and Schultz during the past week and the Blue and Grey eleven took the field determined to avenge the trouncing handed them by a Texas conference team.

Although held scoreless in the first quarter, the Owls gained much ground and then, making the breaks and taking advantage of them, Rice pushed over a brace of touchdowns in the second period of play.

Payne scooted around end for one of the scores while Spud Braden made a remarkable catch of a long pass from Allnoch shook off would-be tackles and raced over the line for the other score.

Blocked Pass Hurts

Trinity's lone touchdown came as the result of a blocked pass which was recovered by Cochran before it touched the ground. Cochran, after batting the ball into the air pulled it down and stepped the remaining 18-yards in nothing flat for the score.

Cochran may be a husky lineman, but when a touchdown is in view he can show plenty of speed.

Rice tallied late in the fourth period. The aerial attack with Ables on the starting end and the eligible men—for all of them were taking passes Saturday—on the other end, the Owls corked the ball deep into Trinity's territory. Kenedy then opened an attack on the center of the line that brought gain after gain and he finially spilled off left tackle for the final score of the game.

Trinity's score was made in the third quarter and in that period the Tigers held a slight advantage over the Owls. Rice seemed to let down after the half, taking the 13 point margin as a safe affair but thata thought was soon erased.

LEVELLAND, Oct. 13—The Levelland Wildcats and the Amherst Loboes, elevens representing their respective high schools, battled to a 6-6 tie on the Amherst grid on Friday afternoon.

GANS WINS

NEW YORK, Oct. 13. (AP)—Baby Joe Gans, Los Angeles welterweight, punched out a ten-round victory over Billy White, of Jersey City, here tonight.

A Crack Back

The Princeton Tigers look for another strong eleven this fall and expect Eddie Wittmer, halfback, to be one of the most potent members of the eleven. The Tigers have a tough schedule, including a game with Ohio State at Columbus, but have hopes of coming through satisfactorily. Wittmer plays a nice game, both defensively and offensively.

T. C. U. Goal Line Yet To Be Crossed After Fourth Of Season's Combats; Austin College Battles Gamely.

FORT WORTH, Oct. 13.—For the fourth time in as many starts, the Texas Christian football Frogs scored three touchdowns today and at the same time kept their goal line inviolate. Austin College was the victim and the final score was 21 to 0. Playing good football the Christians whipped over three touchdowns in the first minutes of play and then quit—not voluntarily, but because they were stopped by the fiery play of the Crimson-perseyed invaders.

Despite their defeat by a Texas Christian University team that was playing its loosest football of the season, the Kangaroos put up a harder fight and exhibited more snap and class than any team the Purple has played this year. They made nine first downs, more than all the other three opponents combined, and limited Texas Christian University to 12 less than they have made in any other one game.

The first touchdown, which came in the first five miuutes, was well earned. Austin College received the first kick-off, couldn't gain, and punted to T. C. U.'s 27-yard line. From that point the Frogs started a driving attack that swept the thin Red line backwards nearly the length of the field. Off-tackle rushes made three consecutive first downs and placed the ball on the Austin College 28-yard line. Toler broke through the line for 18 yards. There the march on running plays was topped, but Roberts passed to Mratin for the last 9 yards needed to make a touchdown. Toler circled left end for the extra point.

Right after that Austin put on a counter offensive that carried the ball to the A. C. U. 15-yard line as the quarter ended. The first three plays in the next period netted a four-yard loss. On the fourth down Price tried to pass. Atkins broke but left the latter's hands it was through, rushed Brice and as the deflected by Atkins. Buster Walker, who was also rushing the passer, caught the ball and ran 40 yards before he was pulled down from behind by Brice on the Austin College 30-yard line. From there Morgan Grubbs and Griffith drove the ball over for a touchdown. Griffith made the final five yards, Grubbs passed to Walker for the extra point.

Morgan Makes Nice Run.

The next touchdown came quick. T. C. U. made a short kickoff and recovered the ball on the Austin College 40-yard line. On the third play, Grubbs passed 25 yards to Morgan, who ran another 15 through a clear field for six points. Griffith place-kicked a field goal for the last point.

Last Minute Flip Across Goal Line Brings Gents Win

Scoreless Deadlock Rages For Three Periods When Centenary Field General Springs Surprise Pass.

(By Associated Press)

COLLEGE STATION, Oct. 13.—Coach Homer Horton's Centenary College Gentlemen dropped in from Shreveport Saturday afternoon to hand the Texas Aggies the first licking they had received on Kyle Field since 1926. The score was 6 to 0.

The Gents and Aggies had battled on even terms during the first two quarters of the game and the Farmers held a slight advantage on first downs when the Gents pushed over their winning touchdown, in the closing period.

A penalty calling back a 74-yard punt by Zarafonetis placed the Aggies in a bad position, as the second kick fell far short. The Gents passed and ran to the Aggies' five-yard line. After being thrown for two consecutive losses the Gents turned to the air and two nice heaves, the last from Hanna to Hamel carried the oval over the line. Hanna failed to convert.

The Aggies started out as though to rush the Gentlemen off their feet. From the fhitial kick-off Coach Bible's machine drove down the field almost to the visitor's goal, only to falter when the Gents' defense stiffened. Again in the third period the Aggies made a sustained march goalward, but lost by fumbling when deep in Centenary territory.

In a final effort to score after Centenary had chalked up its six points, Coach Bible sent in a substitute Aggie backfield which opened up a passing attack that penetrated within four yards of the visitor's goal. Again the Centenary line braced and held and the Farmers had lost their last chance.

Jake Hanna, fleet Centenary back, lived up to advance notices and was the outstanding ball lugger on the field. Brooks Conover, Aggie half, shared honors with him in this department.

Sidelights On The Game

BY JACK HAWKINS

Tech usually starts the game with a burst of power. Yesterday was no exception. Early in the first quarter, Walker stepped back and heaved a 30-yard pass to Payne, who was playing a whale of game at end.

Just as spectators had decided it was an incompleted pass, the Matador end leaped high to spear down the heave and make it a total gain of 35 yards. It was a real circus catch, and it is doubtful if a more spectacular one will be made on the Tech gridiron this year.

A moment later a similar formation was used. Walker stepped back exactly as he did before, and a flood of white-jersied linesmen surged toward him. Then Walker tucked the ball under his arm and, with the opposing ends and tackles drawn in on the play and the backfield looking for a pass, outran the straggling Saints for the remaining 24 yards and a touchdown.

And, gentlemen, after citing these two plays one is forced to call it the end of the sentence, so far as Tech's offense was concerned. There simply wasn't any more.

Tech scored again, of course, on the Saint fumble in the third quarter, and that was "heads up" football, but the ground gaining from scrimmage was somewhat conspicuously absent.

St. Edwards boasted a versatile and a consistent offense. Twenty-yard runs around end or through tackle became uncomfortably frequent, and passes were mixed in good measure. A modification of the old sweeping end runs—it is called the "in and out," by Henry Frnka of the Lubbock Westerners—was used to advantage by them in rolling up their amazing total of 21 first downs. Sammy Dyer, St. Edwards captain and scoring ace, looked especially good to me on the "in and outer" which now and then, however, was tossed for a loss by the charges of Tech's forwards.

Still, the St. Edwards offense was harmonious and smooth in operation. It furnished the customers with the majority of the day's thrills.

Charley Wooldridge, who suffered a broken nose in the Schreiner encounter, played most of the game, the disabled organ being encased in a protective device. Wooldridge was especially consistent on the defense.

Co-ordination seems still to be somewhat lacking between the Tech line and backfield. The team runs good interference—say when Walker is away on a long sprint or, for instance, when Knowles dashed away with that fumble. But on most of the line plays, the backs hit where the holes are absent. The defense is stalwart enough when the goal line is near.

St. Edwards score came on a 20-yard pass, Dyer to Brotherman over the goal line. Twice before, similar passes by the Saints had been grounded. It seemed that the old rule about the third time being a charm held true.

The Tech defense functioned much better as the game neared a close. The work of Knowles at tackle was one of the bright spots of the second half. There's a man who is getting consistently better with each game. Ox Reed likewise was breaking through all too frequently for the opposition. Corley played his usual highly consistent game at center, figuring in nearly every down. Hempel and Lockhart and Vinzant all looked good at the end positions. Chubby Dewitt was his same dogged self on the defense also.

St. Edwards worked the forward and lateral pass on Tech to perfection. The ball is first passed forward and when the receiver is tackled, he flips it laterally to a teammate who is supposed to be located somewhere in just about 20 yards each time. It is a beauty when perfectly executed.

It looked like Tech was to have another score presented them when in the fourth quarter St. Edwards fumbled and a Tech man recovered on the Saint six-yard line. However, the play was called back and an off side penalty administered to the Matadors.

The Matadors punting was unusually good. The average of 37 yards is a high one for any college or university. With the wind, several 50-yard punts were uncorked. Against the wind an average of about 30 yards was maintained.

The Tech spirit is better this year. Both the boys' and girls' pep squads were there with their stunts yesterday. The girls, or the Arena Ritas as they are now called, led by Anna Belle Collins, looked mighty pretty and trim in their new scarlet and black uniforms. They were unusually well drilled. Their "T" and other formations got a round of rousing applause from the crowd. The boys' pep squad, too, had some new stunts, and the yelling of the students was good for this early in the season.

Matadors Take Advantage of Breaks To Trounce Catholics, Despite Hard Battle On Part of Visiting Huskies

Lone Saint Marker Comes As Result of Pass Over Goal Line, Although Invaders Threaten Throughout Tilt And Lead In Yardage and First Downs

BY ALLAN CARNEY
Avalanche-Journal Sports Editor

A 67-yard gallop by Sid Knowles, giant Matador tackle, and a brilliant sweeping end-run by Captain "Handsome Ransome" Walker sent the powerful St. Edwards university eleven down in defeat before Texas Tech Matadors here Saturday afternoon in a fast and thrilling exhibition of the collegiate pastime. Although outplayed three to one from the standpoint of yardage, the Matadors took advantage of the breaks of the game to send the invaders home with the short end of a 13 to 6 score.

In piling up their impelling yardage, the Catholics flashed a variety of running and passing plays. On more than one occasion the aerial pass was executed to perfection for long gains. Down after down the Saints carried the ball in scoring range of the Matador goal line only to lose the ball on a forward pass over the goal line or fumble. A number of touchdowns were missed by hair's breadth in this manner, causing near heart failure for many loyal Matador fans.

Lines Well Matched

The Saint forward wall held the powerful Matador line as has no other team this season. Led by the giant Sercinny at center, the Saint linesman charged hard and fast against the Scarlet jersies. In the backfield for St. Edwards, Capt. Dyer, Palmer, Jansing, Kilday and James plowed the Matador line and slashed off gains around the ends which gave the visitors a decided advantage over the Matadors in yardage. The Saints were equally as dangerous at the passing game and in all ran up a total of 20 first downs.

Captain Walker led the Matador attack, scoring the first touchdown on a beautiful, sweeping end run for 22 yards to cross the enemy line. The Tech's lone offensive flash completely outran his interference as well as the St. Ed's tacklers and crossed the goal line untouched. In addition to his brilliant performance in carrying the ball, Walker played a whale of a game on the defense, and except for his injured jaw which he was forced to favor, he would have been able to set the Saints back on many more occasions.

Payne Makes Fine Catch

Walker's run for the first touchdown came in the first period after the teams had battled back and forth, exchanging punts and neither side taking any noticeable advantage. A remarkable catch of a 35 yard heave by Ameral Payne paved the way for the score. The rangy end leaped high in the air to bring down the oval which he could just reach with the tips of his fingers. He came down with the oval in the midst of a host of white jersied Saints. The gain placed the ball on the St. Edwards 20 yard line. Waller made 10 at end, the Matadors took a five yard penalty as the backfield was in motion and the ball was brought back after Marr's long gain around end, and then came the run which put the stands in an uproar. Walker had again proved his ability as a scoring ace and everyone was happy. The try for point was missed.

Coach Jack Meagher sent in Captain Dyer in the second quarter and the Saints put over their touchdown in short order. After the Matadors were given a 15 yard penalty, James shot a pass to Kilday for 15 yards to put the pigskin on the Tech 15 yard line. Dyer crashed through the line for 5 yards, again for 4 yards and on the next play sent a perfect pass to Brotherman over the goal for a touchdown. Dewitt broke through to block the place kick for extra point.

Wooldridge Grabs Pass

The Saints kicked off to Wooldridge who returned the ball to the 25 yard line. After Walker failed to gain through the line, the Matadors kicked. The first Saint pass was incomplete and the second was intercepted by Wooldridge on his own 21 yard line. Levi Walker made five through the line as the half ended.

The Catholics continued to gain almost at will in the second half, making long gains on sweeping end runs and passes. The Matadors also opened up with passes, many of which were intercepted. The Saints were in possession of the ball on their own 33 yard line when the break came. Up came Sid Knowles, 194 pound Matador tackle, who scooped up the ball and raced 67 yards for the deciding touchdown. The fans cheered as the giant tackle dug his cleats in the turf to gain speed and perfect interference allowed him to reach his goal. Sid couldn't run fast, but his teammates knocked of tackler after tackler as he plodded his way toward the goal line. Chubby Dewitt kicked goal.

The last quarter found the teams passing, passing, passing to gain an opening for a score. The Saints were in scoring distance time after time but just couldn't put over the winning punch. Meagher sent in a number of substitutes to give power to his eleven but all was in vain. The Matadors had the lead and wouldn't give up. The game ended with St. Edwards in possession of the ball and still throwing passes into the air for gains which didn't come at the right time.

Arkansas Porkers Run Roughshod Over Baylor Bears By Tally Of 14-0

Hume Gallops To Second Tally As Mates Draw Fine

Officials Call Pony Flash Back and One Touchdown Represents Scoring; Tilt Played In Wichita Falls

(By Associated Press)

WICHITA FALLS, Oct. 13.—Southern Methodist university eked out a hard won victory over Simmons university of Abilene, 6 to 0 in a football game here today. The Cowboys had the ball within six yards of the S. M. U. goal at one time and proved dangerous in every quarter.

For two periods Simmons held the S. M. U. team on even terms and broke up every offensive the Methodists launched. Charlton Fincher, S. M. U. halfback scored the only touchdown of the game in third period when he found a broad highway through the center of the Simmons line and raced 55 yards to the goal line. A few moments later Redman Hume, S. M. U. star ground gainer, returned a punt 70 yards for what appeared to be a touchdown until the play was called back and the Methodists penalized for being off-side. Several times S. M. U. threatened Simmon's goal line, but the Cowboys played their best football in their home territory.

Simmons Dubs Chance.

Simmons' big chance came late in the third period when Hume dubbed a punt from behind his own goal line, the ball rolling out of bounds on his own six-yard line. A fumble, covered by S. M. U. ended the threat.

The low score was due largely to Sanders' fine punting for the Abilene eleven. The Cowboys, however, were unable to match the Methodist's offensive strength and made only two first downs to 11 for S. M. U.

Ball Club Denies Report on Johnson

NEW YORK, Oct. 13. (AP)—The Newark International League baseball club today denied the report that its manager, Walter Johnson, had agreed to manage the Washington club next year. A statement from James P. Sinnot, club president, said Johnson had been asked to consider such a proposition but had not yet agreed to accept. Should Johnson decide to take the offer, Paul Block, owner of the Newark club, would not hold him to the contract he has signed to manage Newark, the statement said.

Virginia Holds Proud Princeton Eleven In Upset

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 13. (AP)—The fighting football Cavaliers of the University of Virginia held proud Princeton to a scoreless tie before an astonished crowd of some 12,000 in Palmer Stadium this afternoon.

Battling bravely, checking the Tigers spring again and again when it seemed that Princeton was sure to score, this gallant band of boys from "Ole Virginny" gained a great moral victory in one of the biggest upsets of the dope the young season has yet seen.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 13. (AP)—William Agee, sergeant in the Third Corps Area and member of the 1928 Olympics marathon team, won the Federal Athletic Association's 25-mile endurance walk, from Laurel, Md., to Baltimore, today. His time for the distance was 4 hours, 31 minutes.

Uses Both Hands And Both Feet

Any football coach considers himself lucky when he has some young man who can kick and pass well. Imagine how proud Wittenberg College must feel with Bill Edwards on the squad because he can do those two things well—and with either foot or either hand. Edwards can pass with either hand and kick with either foot and you can't tell the difference in so far as his accuracy and distance are concerned.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 13.—Three Army football teams, first, second and third, got a taste of battle today when the Cadets swept over Providence College for a 44 to 0 score. The Rhode Islanders had no chance in the one-sided contest and the Army unloosed its whole repertory of long runs, passes and line plays. The game was played in a fine drizzle of rain which did not keep 10,000 spectators away. There were few thrills in the game, which was just one touchdown after another for the Army. The second and third teams contributing almost as much as the Varsity players.

Texarkana Is Scene Of Big Battle In Which Porkers Triumph In Easy Fashion Over Bear Machine

(By Associated Press)

TEXARKANA, Oct. 13.—Upsetting heavy odds, Arkansas defeated Baylor 14 to 0 here today in the opening game of the Southwestern conference, and took the top rung of the conference standing for at least a week.

The Baylor team, accompanied by a squad of rooters and a band was a heavy favorite before the game, but the Bears failed to get under way in the first quarter, Arkansas scored in the second an dagain in the third and the Baylor eleven was unable to get within scoring distance thereafter.

A blazing sun beat down on the field and both teams punted frequently in the first quarter, but in the second period the Porkers opened a series of line and off tackle plays from the center of the field. Beavers carried the ball on almost every play until the ten yard line was reached. Here a short lateral pass, Beavers to Miller, found the Baylor defense off balance. Dale kicked the extra point.

Neither team scored in the third quarter but Arkansas continued her line smashing tactics and carried the ball to Baylor's four yard line just as the period closed. Beavers smashed through the Bear line for the necessary yardage on the first play of the final period and Dale again added the extra point.

Baylor's most dangerous bid occurred after Arkansas first touchdown. Two passes were successful for good gains and Washam, who starred in the Arkansas-Baylor game last year, swept 20 yards around end and placed the ball on the Razorbacks 20 yard line. Baylor was unable to approach closer than this point at any time in the game. After Arkansas' second touchdown the ball remained near the center of the field unill the final whistle.

Arkansas' line largely was responsible for the victory as it stopped Baylor's smashes consistently and gave the Porker backfield consistent protection on the offensive.

Who's Who among GRID LEADERS

By NEA Service.

DALLAS, Oct. 13.—It didn't surprise folks in Texas much if any when Southern Methodist university held the Army when they played at New York on October 6. For the Texans know, the S. M. U. eleven is a tough team tobeat.

Ray Morrison, rated by many as the greatest quarterback ever produced in the South, is responsible for the respect Texans have for the Methodists. His teams during the past five years have made a record second only to that of Notre Dame, and, along with the Texas Aggies, have ddominated southwestern football.

Earl Baccus

Morrison, who graduated from Vanderbilt, is a strong believer in the use of the forward pass. He had one of the best passers in the country last year in Gerald Mann and he has two good passers this year in Sammie Reed and Redman Hume, his star backs. And he looks for another successful season.

Ray Morrison

Earl (Ug) Baccus, a veteran guard, captains the Mustangs against oppcnents this fall. He is from Frisco, Texas, and is a senior in school. He weighs only 170 pounds, but bears the distinction of being the hardest man to handle on the forward wall of Morrison's eleven. He's wide-awake at all moments during the game and is popular with his teammates.

Alabama Trounces Mississippi Team

Crimson Tide Sweeps Hopes Of Aggies From Picture In A Brilliant 46 to 0 Victory.

(By Associated Press)

STARKVILLE, Miss., Oct. 13.—Washing Mississippi Aggies' fond hopes farther out of the picture, Alabama's Crimson Tide surged to an impressive 46 to 0 win over the Maroons here this afternoon.

Hicks, Holm, Suther, Deal and company were unstoppable and the team played "under wraps" throughout the tilt. Brasfield, backfield ace, saw action for but one play, while Wallace Wade shifted his line up frequently leaving first string eleven intact for only short periods in the first and third quarters.

Play Is Ragged.

Play was ragged on both sides the tideman not being pushed seemed careless and over-anxiousness was blamed for a number of the Aggie fumbles. Alabama's rugged charges in the line and swift, versatile backfield swept through the Mississippians at almost every try, while the Maroons only once crossed the Tide's 40-yard line.

Summary: Scoring for Alabama touchdowns Hilicks 4; Campbell Holms 2. Goal after touchdown Deal (place kicker).

Yale Eleven Wins Off Georgia Team Despite Injuries

Elis Use Their Crutches As Clubs to Down Southern Eleven 21 to 6 In Following Example of Yanks.

BY BRIAN BELL

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 13. (AP)—Yale's football team today followed the example of another notable group of Athletes, rising from hospital beds and wheel chairs to decisively defeat the University of Georgia, 21 to 6. The Elis were effective as the Yankees in the recent world series in using their crutches as clubs.

Johnny Garvey was the Babe Ruth of the contest. Read, out of the game in advance on account of illness, his name not even in the printed lineup distributed at the bowl, the elusive half back was Yale's greatest gainer. He played briefly but his yardage per minute will take rank with sterling football performances of ancient and modern history. He stepped off sixty yards in two plays to count two touchdowns after a dash of 23 yards and the other as the result of a 37 yard sprint.

Score by periods:

Yale	7	7	7	0—21
Georgia	0	0	0	6— 6

Yale scoring: Touchdowns, Garvey 2, Lampe (substitute for Garvey) points after touchdowns, Oldt 2, Miller (kick blocked but Georgia off side) Georgia scoring touchdown, Dudley.

Cherokee Indian Star Wins Almost Singlehanded As First Great Iowa Eleven In Years Makes Bow.

CHICAGO, Oct. 13. (AP)—Behind its giant Indian battering ram, Mayes McLain, Iowa's ponderous Black and Gold football machine started its drive for Big Ten prestige today by whipping the University of Chicago, 13 to 0, before 30,000 spectators on Stagg Field.

Kicking, passing, plowing through the line and skirting the ends, the big Cherokee Indian who lead the nation in individual scoring in 1926 with 253 points while at Haskell, made his Big Ten debut amid glory. Twenty-two times he carried the ball for an average of slightly more than five yards.

Last Old Wooden School Building In Lubbock County Is Torn Down

Grovesville Community Opens New $14,000 Plant Next Thursday; Completion of Building Recalls Time Ten Years Ago When County Had One Brick

The last old wooden school building in Lubbock county has been "ship-wrecked" to make room for another one of the 24 modern school buildings in the county, this last one being the old Grovesville school. A new and up-to-date $14,000 structure will take the place of the old one and will be started next Thursday, October 18. The new plant is to contain four rooms and an auditorium.

Cares For Present Needs

"The board of trustees at Grovesville are to be highly commended for their persistence in fighting several obstacles that have been placed in their way and in making this new school possible," stated County Superintendent Pevehouse, yesterday. "But the building will only take care of the district's present needs. As the community grows additional rooms will have to be built and other teachers employed".

In 1918, just ten years ago, Lubbock county had only one brick school building, the one at Canyon, a $3,000 affair, which has since been replaced with a two-story $14,000 plant.

Only One Is Frame

Only one of the 24 school buildings now in this county is made of frame construction, it being the small two-room school on the Lindsey ranch, west of Lubbock. This building has just been repainted, garage and coal house built, the ground refenced with a plank fence, the windmill and tower also being repainted.

Every school district in Lubbock county is being equipped with additional books and equipment in their libraries, in order to conform to the new regulations made by the state department of education. These regulations will be made 100 per cent, Mr. Pevehouse states, and already 80 percent of the district have stocked up with equipment needed and the others are rapidly doing the same.

Sea-water stains on shoes can be removed with washing soda and hot milk.

Avalanche-Journal's Sixth Annual Cooking School Draws Praise From Local Women Who Know Mrs. Dougan

Those Interested In Better Balanced Meals Urged To Remember Dates, October 22 To 26, Inclusive

The forthcoming cooking school to be held in the Uptown Dance and conducted by Mrs. Myra Oliver Dougan, under the auspices of the Avalanche-Journal, will be the most successful ever held in Lubbock, if the laudatory comments received from the women are to be taken as a creterion. Complimentary messages by the score have been received from women who have heard of Mrs. Dougan and her unusual success in teaching the doctrines of foods and their preparations.

Mrs. Dougan is being brought to Lubbock with the thought that her unique teachings on the art of homemaking and the concoctions of dishes out of the ordinary will be a boon to her listeners. She will teach how to make the art of cooking as intriguing as other arts become to those who master them. The musician would not think of starting his career without instruction under the masters. The art of maintaining the home is just as important, which is attested to by the stress laid on home economics in our school and colleges. Many women have not had these opportunities in their youth and now they can have this knowledge imparted in a clear concise manner by a woman who has devoted her life to this particular phase of the arts.

Mrs. Dougan, beginning Monday afternoon, October 22, will give lectures and demonstrations each afternoon for five afternoons between two o'clock and four o'clock. She will doubtless amaze the women of their vicinity with the contributions she is able to make in one short week, to that greatest of all institutions the home. The problems discussed will be those that are daily encountered in the home.

Her solutions are practical and based on economy and utility. The saving that the housewife will be able to accomplish by attendance at the school with it's scientific and modern ideas, will more than repay her for the time spent there. How to use leftovers and how to purchase in a scientific manner will be shown by Mrs. Dougan.

New suggestions, new receipes, new dishes and many new ideas on the kitchen and home will be presented. Here the young housewife will be taught many valuable things and the experienced housewife will also find a veritable storehouse of knowledge for her use. No longer need she complain of cooking "The same old thing."

A model kitchen will be installed for the use of Mrs. Dougan, where the preparation of meals will be demonstrated. She will preside over the kitchen, presenting her subjects to the women most graphically and in a manner that will be readily understood.

The housewives of Lubbock should remember the dates, Oct. 22 to 26, inclusive,—of the different cooking school, and make plans so as not to miss a single lesson.

Fire Department's Boat Waits Season's Opening

The green boat, which has been lying on the floor of the central fire station for the past few weeks awaiting opening of this year's duck season, was being eyed closely by members of the fire department yesterday. Chief W. E. Twitty perhaps looking at it as longingly as any one.

Next week, Tuesday, the 16th, to be exact, the boat may not be on the floor, but bouncing on the rippling waters of some lake in this vicinity, an aid to firemanhunters.

Smith Speech

democratic success at the polls in November."

The governor as he spoke perspired freely. Frequently he paused to wipe streams of prespiration from his face.

Audience Totals 13,000

The audience which filled every seat in the Armory, estimated to have capacity of 13,000, also perspired with him.

The crowd packed the aisled and the galleries. Boys and men climbed up on the big steel rafters and every inch was filled.

It was an enthusiastic gathering. The democratic nominee was cheered and cheered and was six minutes late in getting started on his speech which was carried out over the nation by a 36-radio station hook-up.

General Stampede Follows

After the speech hundreds of spectators rushed over the press tables, disconnecting wires and causing utmost confusion in a general stampede to reach the platform and shake the nominee's hand. The governor was escorted through the crowd on the rostrum to the street with the mob on his heels.

Three official stenographers were unable, because of the jam in the press section and the aisles, to work their usual relay to transcribe their notes of the speech. Consequently they had to wait until the address was concluded before beginning the work.

Cheered and Applauded.

The governor was cheered and applauded at many junctures of the speech, and cries of "atta boy, Al," and "hurrah for Al Smith" punctuated his reading of his nine point tariff "prescription."

So crowded was the platform that Alfred Smith Jr., one of three Smith children on the rostrum, had to be content with a half sitting, half kneeling position on the floor in front of his father.

The nominee kept fairly close to his prepared text until near the end, when he skipped many quotations, apparently to get under the radio deadline.

Cotton Ginning

the day to make the figure 325 bales.

Slaton Gins Busy

Slaton's six gins were second to those in Lubbock, the total there being 216 bales. No report was available yesterday from the three rural gins generally included in the Slaton territory.

Ninety bales had been ginned at Shallowater up to noon, the report being that cotton had started moving fairly generally there. Only six bales, however, had passed through the Hurlwood gin nearby. The gin at Canyon has not yet started operation and no report was available all day from Monroe.

Wolffarth reported picking in good progress with eighty bales ginned. Estacado and Acuff could not be reached for a report. Woodrow reported 45 bales ginned. Becton gin had not started operations yesterday.

Idalou Has 150 Bales

The four gins at Idalou reported 150 bales as the total. Here came also the report that pickers were badly needed and that maize and hegeria were averaging from a ton to a ton and a half an acre.

Abernathy, whose gins lie just a few feet in Hale county reported about sixty bales total.

Daily Markets

FORT WORTH LIVESTOCK

FORT WORTH, Oct. 13. (AP)—The hog market here continued to advance today, prices being steady to 5c higher. The top was 9.75 with the bulk selling from 9.00 to 9.70. Sows traded from 7.00 to 8.00.

The cattle trade was a nominal affair.

Although 1,100 sheep receipts were recorded, all were on through billing, and the trade also was recorded as a nominal affair.

KANSAS CITY LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 13. (AP) —(United Department of Agriculture) —Cattle receipts around the market group this week approximated 255,000 as compared with 306,409 last week and 327,800 the same period a year ago curtailed supplies resulted in unevenly steady to higher prices on beef steers with highly finished offerings showing the most upturn. Prime heavy steers in Chicago scored 18.35, the extreme top.

Increased hog supplies resulted in a general decline of 60c@$1.00. Present values, however, around 15c to 25c higher than the week's low time. Packers displayed considerable interest when the bulk of the supply was selling around $10 and below. The closing top at Chicago was 10.35. Total offerings were around 400,600 an increase of 72,000 over last week and 64,000 more than a year ago.

Fat lambs are closing unevenly strong to 50 cents higher and aged stock is on a steady 25c higher basis. Choice native lambs in Chicago reached $13.75, while best westerns topped at 13.50. The supply totaled around 539,600 against 47,186 last week and 545,405 a year ago.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, Oct. 13. (AP)—The stock market continued its upward trend today. Bull operators, tossing whatever of ill luck may be attached to the 13th into the bear pen, bought eagerly of "Blue Chip" issues and lifted prices violently as much as 13 points. Yesterday's holiday served to permit an accumulation of buying orders which resulted in large blocks of stock changing hands at the opening of the market at prices several points above the previous closing quotations.

The upward movement continued virtually until the close. There were a few minor recessions, but they represented chiefly wek-end liquidation and some apprehension among holders of a few of the motor and specialty shares.

Numerous new issues established new high prices and the average price of 20 leading industrials, compiled by the Associated Press, moved up more than 2 points to a new all-time high at 221.05.

The half-day session easily was one of the strongest and most active since the prolonged upward movement began. Total sales approximated 000,000 shares.

Easier credit conditions, with the comparatively low-time money rates holding over the week-end, favorable trade reports and the bullish enthusiasm of earlier in the week apparently combined to offset any apprehension caused by the rise of the brokers' loan total to a new high record.

It was almost entirely a one-way market, with steel, merchandise and specialty shares prominent in the advance. Montgomery Ward was pushed up 13 points to a new peak at 295 and closed 11 points net higher on the day. Coontinued heavy buying of Sears Roebuck lifted that issue more than 6 points to a new high at 160 7-8 after one block of 10,000 shares had changed hands at 160.

U. S. Steel, which opened at 163 3-18, moved to 165, an all-time high, on buying encouraged by reports of a pending stock split-up. The issue was acquired in quantity and although it slumped to the opening price, it moved back to close at 164 3-4, up 1 3-4 points net. Other steels were sympathetically strong, notably Bethlehem and Inland, both up about 2 points.

The bulls did not limit their purchases to any one group however, for buying was spread over a wide variety of issues. Motor products rose 13 points to 209, Commercial Solvents 12 points to 224 and International Harvester 3 1-2 points to 320 1-4, all new high records.

Rails also were active, with Rock Island, which soared 4 1-2 points to a new high for all time, the feature.

Liquidation for the week-end, setting in most noticeably just before the close, left Allied Chemical off 4 points on the day. Radio converted an early gain of 3 points into a net loss of fifth. Another outbreak of selling, apparently based on the current investigation of earlier transactions in the issue, made Dodge Brothers the outstanding weak spot of the list. It closed at 25 off more than 8 points net on the day and around 20 points below the market price of earlier in the week. Chrysler closed with a fractional loss.

Foreign exchanges were easier. Spanish Pesetas declined to a new low for the year.

Strolling Down Sports Lane

With Allan Carney
Avalanche Sports Editor

The Golden Bears of Baylor who have been doped as the "Dark Horse" of the Southwest Conference met their first test yesterday in the first conference game of the season. Cocah Morley Jenning's crew went down in defeat before. There was too much Jake backs, 14 to 0, and thus made a rather poor start in the conference race. Those who had predicted a win for the Bears were given a distinct surprise.

Dana X. Bible's Texas Aggies also failed to make the showing expected of them after their smashing victory over Sewance the week before. There was to much Jake Hanna on the Centenary team. In winning, 6 to 0, over the Farmers, the Centenary crew appear to be on their way to anbther championship in the S. I. A. A.

By missing both goals after their two touchdowns, the Texas Longhorns lost to the Vanderbilt Commodores in their annual clash on the gridiron. This game, always a classic, was staged again at the Dallas Fair, the Tennesseeans winning, 13 to 12. Vanderbilt also missed both goals but Texas was off-side on one of them and victory went to the Orange and Black by the scant margin of one point.

The S. M. U. Mustangs' 6 to 0 victory over Simmons also came as a surprise after the brilliant showing made by the Methodist at West Point last week. We didn't expect Coach Morrison to shoot the works but we did think he would pile up a nice score against the Cowboys. Maybe the Bridges team was "inspired." That's the usual explanation when the underdog holds the stronger team to a low score.

Matty Bell's T. C. U. Horned Frogs continue to show strength in their early season skirmishes. The Bellmen scored 20 points against the strong Austin college eleven and put aside all rumors that the Frogs are set-ups this year. The Fort Worth institution always has a fighting defensive team and may give the so-called leading teams in the conference plenty to worry about before the season is over.

After their miserable showing against the St. Edwards Saints a week ago, the Rice Owls came to life yesterday and played a brand of football more in keeping with the Southwestern Conference standards. In smothering the Trinity University Tigers, 20 to 6, the Owls showed a complete reversal of form. They may yet prove a strong contender in the 1928 race.

The Lubbock high school Westerners are likely to have a well-earned rest this week unless negotiations under way for a game with Snyder high school goes through. Facing four tough battles with the contending teams in this district, the squad can very well afford to put in a full week of training without any game for the week-end.

After meeting the Electra Tigers on the 26th, the Westerners will return to the home grid to take on the powerful Golden Sandstorms of Amarillo on November 2. With the Sandies whipping leading teams from other states, the outlook for the remainder of the Class A teams in the district looks about as bright as a dark winter night.

The real strength of the Lubbock eleven is yet to be tested. Only class B teams have been on the schedule up to date. With another week of strenuous drill, the Gold and Black gridsters should be ready to tackle their class A rivals. Considerable brushing up on their offense as well as extended work on defense play will come in during this week's practice.

The team showed worlds of improvement over the showing of the previous week in the game at Slaton against the hard hitting Tigers. The plays went off smoother and the team play as a whole was commendable. One thing is noticeable: the team lacks a defense for a passing attack. Passes completed by the Tigers demonstrated this.

More than 200 from Lubbock attended the football game in Slaton Friday afternoon. The Lubbock high school group at the game made their presence known with a large cheering section and the 40-piece band. During the intermission between halves, the Lubbock band furnished music for the girls' pep organization of Slaton high.

By the way, the Slaton pepsters looked mighty sweet in their purple and white outfits. The purple sweaters with white, lettering together with white skirts and white "bell boy" caps gave the co-eds a collegiate appearance. Their formation between halves was well executed and was appreciated especially by the male fans present.

The Slaton side lines were backing their Tigers to the limit. High school fans in that city believe in their team and show an admirable spirit in boosting for the Tigers. In fact, they were behind their gridsters to the extent that many imagined the officials who happened to go from Lubbock were partisan. Figures show that the Westerners were penalized many more yards than were the Tigers.

Pork has become so popular an article of diet in the United States that there is a shortage in hides used for making leather.

not reach Lakehurst before afternoon.

Mishap Occurs.

After its mishap of the morning, when torn fabric on the port horizontal fin had reduced the dirigible's speed for several hours, the ship made steady progress through the day and evening. American radio stations were enabled to maintain good communication with the big airship while European stations had lost contact.

Informed by The Associated Press that the Zeppelin passed over Bermuda, tonight, naval officers said that she had approximately 720 miles to travel by air line to Lakehurst.

Will Buck Winds.

Officers expected her to reduce her speed west of the Bermudas because of trade winds which are not favorable in that section at this time of the year. They expect the ship to take either if two courses from Bermuda, one heading toward Cape Hatteras, and then up the coast to Lakehurst, and another toward Long Island Sound, down to New York City and then to Lakehurst. The officers said that she would buck the winds before turning in-shore by going the northern route or buck them after turning in-shore by the southern route. Even if she arrives before dawn, they said, she would probably hover above the Lakehurst station until day light before attempting to make a landing. If the weather is unusually rough she probably will spend several hours over the station before dropping her landing lines.

Lakehurst Awaits Arrival Of Trans-Atlantic Ship

LAKEHURST, N. J., Oct. 13. (AP) This little town in the New Jersey pineland is ready for the second time in four years to greet a trans-Atlantic airship at the end of a notable voyage.

If the Graf Zeppelin reaches Lakehurst Monday, she will arrive on the fourth anniversary of the landing of the ZR-3, now the Los Angeles, at the naval air station.

Look for Big Crowd.

With prospect of colder weather tomorrow, Lakehurst still looked forward to being the mecca for thousands of visitors.

Four hundred fifty men have been detailed to pull the dirigible to earth and run her into the hangar. No trouble in landing is anticipated.

Postal authorities here have been instructed to transfer the Zeppelin's mail to an airplane for dispatch to New York.

Telegraph wires have been installed in the hangar and at the railroad station to carry the news of the ship's landing.

Dr. E. D. Salkfeld of Abilene, who spoke at Littlefield last Thursday, plans to speak here October 25. He is pastor of the First Christian church of Abilene, and urges other ministers to take up the fight against Smith.

Hoover clubs will be organized this week by Mrs. Chas. F. O'Neall, Mrs. C. E. Maedgen and others at following places: Sudan, on Monday at 2 o'clock in the Methodist church. On Thursday at 2:30 the ladies will organize a Hoover-for-President club, and at 3:30 that same day, the ladies of Crosbyton will organize. The Lubbock Ladies' Hoover club are well pleased with the enthusiastic responses received and are working for Herbert Hoover.

"The mothers of this section will not leave any stone unturned to prevent Al Smith bringing back the whiskey evil, stated Mrs. O'Neall, and we intend to devote our hearts and prayers to making fast the benefits of a dry America."

The telephone rang..

"Let me speak to one of the night reporters, please," a pleasing voice requested.

"Hello," from one of the night reporters.

"Do you want a little story?"

"Yes, Sir!" promptly answered ye scribe.

"Wait a moment, then," was said, and a lively tune from a phonograph was listened to. At its completion, the voice again:

"This is Joe Hess. I'm having a little celebration out at my house, just me and my wife. The occasion is my 68th birthday. How'd you like the music? Sounded like a real party, didn't it?"

This was acquiesced in.

A few queries from the reporter, the last one being: "Where were you born, Mr. Hess?"

"I'm a native of Ohio. But I'm a Democrat. Have always been one, and I am going to vote for Alfred E. Smith on November 6. You can tell them that, if you want to."

Mr. Hess explained that during those 68 years of his he has spent 40 years in the real estate and loan business, coming to Lubbock seven years ago. In 1921 he organized the Lubbock Building and Loan association, and prior to coming here he organized the Oklahoma City Building and Loan association, which is now nearly thirty years old.

"The real estate business has been the main thing with me," stated Mr. Hess, "the building and loan a sort of hobby."

D. 1928, then and there to answer Plaintiff's Second Amended petition filed in said Court on the 13th day of September A. D. 1928, in a suit, numbered on the docket of said Court as No. 3164, wherein the Citizens National Bank of Lubbock, Texas, a corporation, is Plaintiff, and J. H. Patrick, R. G. Patrick and Mrs. Mattie L. Patrick, J. W. Teague, W. C. Cook and wife, Mrs. W. C. Cook, Mary E. Spurlock, are Defendants. Said petition alleging.

This being a suit on a $2,000.00 note given to plaintiff by defendant, J. H. Joe Dundee, the world's welterweight champion, has signed a contract to defend his title against Young Jack Thompson in Tex Rickard's garden on November 16. Thompson knocked Dundee out a little back in a fight in Chicago in which the title was not at stake, because of this there is a disposition to feel that things will be different for Dundee when they [illegible] through on the line [illegible] Eddie Roberts that Dundee and Jack Thompson are just too bad [illegible] to look them up.

Reigh Count is going to race again next year... But Mrs. Herts isn't sure she'll ship him to England for the Ascot cup treasure ... Vinnie Richards drew 100 at the opening of his pro tennis tournament... The Yanks could have saved five grand on the George Burns deal... If Ed Barrow had waived on him... One of the smallest fellows in the big leagues is one of the hardest talking... He got into words with a big feller in a western mirth place... And the big feller said—"Sit down. You'll never win nothing standin' up"... And he sat down... The Yanks said the picture of a certain pitcher on another club having his knee bandaged by two nurses was a boloney.

SUMMARY

Market down 15 to 20 points for the day. This side did not respond to strong Liverpool cables. Better weather than expected, failure of the predicted cold wave to materialize and unsatisfactory mill takings for the week combined to cause a moderately lower level in prices today.

Wall Street was credited with selling 100,000 bales of cotton and there was considerable hedging. Very little rain fell in the belt over the holiday and temperatures remained well above normal.

BOLL WEEVIL IS BUSY

In most sections, the boll weevil took care of the top crop some time ago. The world's spinners took this week 390,000 bales of American cotton against 420,000 bales last year and 408,000 bales two years ago. These compartively small takings are mainly due to the curtailment of production still under way among American mills but it should be remembered that American mills in September spun 50 per cent more goods than was produced. Any unfavorable weather over the weekend will no doubt cause the market to be higher Monday.

The New York Daily Times stated "Knit goods more active than for some time."

British Board of Trade makes September exports cotton cloths 298,000,000 square yards against 341,000,000 square yards in August this year, 336,000,000 September last year and 317,000,000 two years ago.

Memphis, Tenn.: Spot cotton sales thus far this season 2,265,229 bales.

Spinners' takings for this week 390,000 bales against 420,000 bales last year and 408,000 bales the year before. Total takings since August 12,641,000 bales against 2,815,000 bales last year and 2,387,000 bales the year before last.

New York: Certificated stock of cotton 7,281 bales.

THE WEATHER FORECAST

Warm weather continued over the belt with temperatures generally four to 14 degrees above normal even in northwestern districts. Moderate to heavy rains occurred in Florida with a few scattered showers in the northwest. Heavy rains were reported in Florida at Jacksonville, 1.08, in Texas at Clarendon, 1.60 and at Mexia, 1.12.

Forecas: Eastern belt—North Carolina, fair, slightly warmer in extreme west portion tonight. Sunday increasing cloudiness. South Carolina part cloudy preceded by showers in extreme south portion tonight. Sunday partly cloudy. Georgia, partly cloudy preceded by showers in southeast portion tonight. Sunday partly cloudy. Florida, probable showers tonight or Sunday. Alabama, fair tonight, partly cloudy, slightly cooler in extreme north portion. Mississippi, part cloudy, slightly cooler in northwest portion tonight Sunday partly cloudy cooler in north portion. Western belt—Louisiana: Tonight and Sunday partly cloudy light to moderate southerly winds on the coast. Arkansas, tonight partly cloudy, cooler except southeast portion. Sunday partly cloudy. Oklahoma, tonight cloudy colder east portion Sunday part cloudy. East Texas: Tonight and Sunday partly cloudy light to moderate easterly winds on the coast. West Texas tonight and Sunday cloudy and scattered showers.

Candidates Launch Final Intensive Bid For Votes

Southern Border Strip Comprises Battleground For Both Standard Bearers During Week Just Passed

Republicans Claim Demos Have Gone Beyond Zenith In Western Farming States

BY BYRON PRICE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 13.—Politics has reached its torch-light season, and no quarter of the whole horison is left in darkness.

In every section of the country, the final intensive bid for votes is on. This time it is no part of the scheme of things on either side to leave any debatable precinct undebated.

During the past week the southern border strip, host successively to Hoover and Smith, has been the hub of the pre-election whirl, while other sections have been under the exhortations of the lesser leaders. In Tennessee the republican nominee made his appeal not only to the border states, but to the South as well. His democratic opponent has carried his "meeting and greeting" campaign through Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee and Kentucky with only a few short speeches as he approached Louisville, where he is to deliver his first prepared address tonight.

Uncertainties Prevail

Throughout the whole border strip, from Maryland on the east to Missouri and Oklahoma on the west, many uncertainties continue to figure in the calculations of the politicians. All of these states are claimed by both sides, but when they speak of majorities neither sets the figure very high. They are down to the infighting now, and three weeks of terrific effort lie ahead.

Over the western farm country republican leaders are saying they have seen definite indications that the democratic farm campaign has passed its zenith, and that a steady pre-election swing to Hoover has succeeded a period of uncertainty. Over the South the democrats speak of a rebound from the anti-Smith agitation, and a return to the normal order of democratic solidarity.

Both of these assertions are denied as often as they are made, nor does there appear to be any diminution of the fervor with which the anti-Hoover leaders are wooing the west, or any armistice in the anti-Smith operations in the South. The Smith farm leaders have begun a far-flung radio campaign in the corn belt, and a lock-out and a shower of eggs failed to prevent W. D. Upshaw from making good his determination to speak against Smith in Mississippi.

Issues Are Doubtful

One of the peculiar features of this peculiar campaign is the continued failure of the disputants to agree upon what issues the campaign is being waged. In most of the other stirring battles of political history, at least one clear-cut and definitely-joined issue has stood in relief. This time the situation is not so easily resolved.

The Republicans are putting greater and greater emphasis on the tariff, but Chairman Raskob has declared that Gov. Smith fully understands the need for protection, and that the tariff has no place in the campaign.

While Senator Curtis has been hammering away on the tariff in the northwest, Senator Robinson has been making a series of speeches in the far west accusing Mr. Hoover of inconsistency in regard to Boulder Dam, and Mr. Hoover, in Washington, has further clarified his views regarding muscle shoals and the St. Lawrence waterway.

Record Vote Is Seen

As the last of the states complete their registration, prospects for a record-breaking turnout of both men and women on November 6 grow better every day. Great proportionate increases in the registration lists are reported alike from the crowded wards of New York City and the sparsely-settled rural counties of New Mexico. In 1920, the first year of nation-wide woman suffrage, the total vote for president was twenty six millions. In 1924 it was twenty nine millions. Some political observers now predict a vote of forty millions in 1928.

Slaton Building Has Good Total

(Special To The Avalanche)

SLATON, Oct. 13.—The last three months of 1928 will probably see more building permits issued in Slaton than did the first nine months, although an excellent, steady record of building has been seen throughout the year. New residences, a new sanitarium to cost over $150,000, including equipment, and other projects are dependent upon to give a total between now and January 1 to exceed the mark of $225,000 established up to October 1.

WORK ON COTTAGES

Littlefield School Is Building 120 For Use

LITTLEFIELD, Oct. 13.—R. O Connor, business manager for the Littlefield college, states that work will begin by November 1st, on 130 residence buildings on the college ten acre tracts. These tracts have all been sold, and just as soon as the residences are completed they will be occupied by the owners who have children who will enter the college. The Waller Construction Co. of Dallas, has charge of this building campaign. The houses will all be of stucco, modern in every way, to cost from $2,000.00 up for each residence. Arrangements are being made for the laying of water mains, gas pipes, light wires, etc. for the accommodation of these residences.

It doesn't take them long! Two days after Hinkler arrived in Bundaberg I overheard a small boy in a Brisbane street say to his little brother, dawdling behind him, "Come on, Ginger, get a hinkle on or we'll be late for tea."—Australian Woman's Mirror.

CURTIS TO EAST

Vice Presidential Nominee Back From West

EN ROUTE WITH SENATOR Curtis to Washington, Crestline, O., Oct. 13. (AP)—Traveling to the eastern front for two weeks campaigning, Senator Charles Curtis, republican vice presidential nominee, put in his time, crossing Indiana and Ohio today, in preparing for his new assignment.

While crowds were out at several stops to greet him, Curtis saved his voice and instead of delivering any back platform addresses, devoted his time at the larger places to shaking hands with the welcomers.

After a month in the west, where he centered his talks on the farm relief question, Senator Curtis was busy today shaping up addresses on the tariff, immigration and other subjects, which he considers of interest in the east.

The proposed thirteenth month could be very useful if it were made a sort of month-at-large, to be inserted anywhere as another 30 days of grace.—Detroit News.

Moody Will Vote Straight Ticket, He Tells Crowds

Governor Bows To Majority Will In Accepting Smith As Nominee, He Says In Demo Rally At Austin

(By Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Oct. 13. — Governor Moody reiterated his declaration of intention to support the democratic ticket throughout at a local democratic campaign rally here last night.

"I have always voted the democratic ticket," he said, "and in this election I will vote the ticket from top to bottom."

The governor said that before the nomination of Governor Smith he had opposed the New York governor as presidential nominee but that since he was nominated he (Moody) would "accept the philosophy of Jefferson or the will of the majority."

To Stay With Party

"I stay with my party and shall support Governor Smith as the democratic nominee," the governor said.

He repeated former declarations for prohibition and expressed belief that Governor Smith could not change it.

James Young of Kaufman, general chairman of the state democratic campaign committee, who pleaded for party loyalty, rapped the republican party, the Anti-Saloon league, Tom Love and O. B. Colquitt, prominent bolters.

It is the first national campaign speech the governor has made, but it contained in substance nothing more than he has told newspaper men before.

The Woman's Day

By Allene Sumner

Miss Betty Simpson, 23, is back home in Ada, Oklahoma, after serving 28 days in jail in Winchester, England, for stowing away on the Aquitania and getting caught. However, Miss Betty airily confides that she had a good view of the famous Winchester cathedral from her window, and that since she stowed away anyway in order to see cathedrals in such, her jail sentence wasn't hard to take.

The lady stowaway has done her stuff about five previous times and seen as much of the world as a marine. She confides that she won't really stop her stowaway tricks till she has reached Egypt and ridden a camel, but that meanwhile she will probably marry her hometown sweetheart and "settle down for a while."

That hometown sweetheart must be an amazing human being for if there's one thing men as a class seem to want to be sure of in the women they marry is that said women have no roaming tendencies. To marry a girl who frankly confides that most any time she may hide a boat and sail to Patagonia or Tahiti takes courage!

No Dates, Teacher!

Schoolma'ams of Newcomerstown, Ohio, may not "date" with their pupils. A very stern edict says that those who do must automatically resign, and that those who marry their pupils must resign, too. Sensible enough. One can hardly imagine a very high standard of schoolmasterism demanded from a pupil by a teacher who was "dating" with said pupil.

Does it mean that an era of flapper schoolmarms means a school problem which did not exist in an age when girls looked older at 17 than they do today at 30?

Can Hurt Rocks

Throwing stones at a mother-in-law's home is "only malicious mischief." At least that's what a Chicago court ruled when William O'Grady hurled a rock at his [illegible] home because his [illegible] and mama-in-law [illegible] her.

Perhaps the court was justified though such a ruling does seem hard on mother-in-laws who, methinks, rarely get a fair deal due to the tradition against them. I hate known more sons-in-law roped out of tight places by mothers-in-law that I unjustly treated by them.

Life's Tragedy

Who hasn't read "Bambina" or at least seen the movie of it? The publishing of a new edition of this famous novel, the 100th printing by the way, announce that its author, Joan Muriel Jackson, died just a year after writing the book, never knowing of course, that she had created almost a masterpiece.

Just another example of life's constant tragedy—the dooming of the human soul never to know what it has accomplished.

Another Girl

Hardly do I compare some dumb modern girls than I read Another Country, by one H. Dux Coudray and learn that the author is an 18-year-old girl student at Lady Margaret Hall College, Oxford. The book is amazing with its conception of character and handling of situation which an 18-year-old mind cannot be imagined as grasping.

It just means that "there are girls and girls, dumb as such on observation is."

Flush Pink, Biege Ivory And Other Delicate Colors Enhance Long Sleeved Gowns For The October Bride

The pink brocaded gown at the left has a circular skirt with train made in one with the back bodice panel. The veil is of Alencon lace. At the right is an off-white velvet gown featuring a novel sleeve treatment and a tiered skirt.

NEA Service Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—September belongs to the college girl. November is the debutante's month. But October is reserved for the Autumn bride, the second most popular wedding month of the year.

Miss October-to-be this year will have a lovely time choosing her wedding gown. Fine is the mode that puts a premium on individuality. Second, there is a riotous mass of beautiful fabrics. Last, creeping into the bridal [illegible] but not much color, to be sure, some of the prettiest October weddings will see flush pink, beige, ivory, egg-shell, off-white and such delicate tones. One of the smartest of Washington weddings will have flush velvet for the bride with rose velvet for her attendants.

Agree on Two Points.

Long sleeves, preferably tight ones with perhaps an unusual cuff treatment, and some kind of a train that begins below the waistline are the two latest style points upon which all modish wedding gowns agree.

Necklines are apt to be modestly rounded, bateau shaped, a modified square, or V. For necklines are not the battle-line of style they once were. Everyone now concedes that one bride will look charming in a V, another in a sweet, demure, rounded neck.

Velvet bids fair to be the most popular autumn fabric, with lace a close second. There are always dozens of brides who just can't be married in anything but Duchess satin, the conservative choice since time immemorial. Moire, tulle, and embossed taffeta add their sprightly beauty to the choice the young bride may make for her slightly bouffant gown.

Five New Favorites

But the sleeker, slinkier fabrics—satin, velvet, real lace, mousseline de soie, chiffons—lend themselves more gracefully to this season's modes.

The fitted bodice, called semi-princess by some, is a very safe choice for the bridal gown. At hip-length tiers, ruffles, panels, circular godets, shirred panlers and other ingenious skirts can give individuality. The wedding gown is a little longer than summer frocks, too.

Enhance Gown's Beauty

Veils this autumn are practically all cap-veils. But they are designed on the bride's head, with one eye on enhancing her beauty, the other on heightening the gown's style. Lace skull caps with tulle veils, jeweled caps with lace, tulle turbans or glittering diamante ones are all good. Slippers can be had this autumn for every type of gown, crepe de chine ones with lace inserts, satin, velvet, kid with modernistic appliqued decoration and embossed taffeta ones.

Two of Paris' loveliest October bridal gowns show the preference for color, one using off-white velvet, the other a very handsome brocade in flush pink.

Both agree on the authenticity of princess lines to hip-length, and on long, tight sleeves. But their skirt and sleeve interpretation is quite different.

Turban of Pearls.

A pink brocaded gown cuts its skirt circular, with the train made in one with the back bodice panel. The veil is a gorgeous one of Alencon lace flushed pink as the gown. It has an extremely regal looking turban of pearls and lace and the veil falls from it to extreme length over the brocaded train.

The off-white velvet gown has an extremely chic sleeve interpretation, a circular flare handing over a tight cuff. The skirt is fivetiered, with the circular back falling its full four yards from the hipline.

The tulle veil is attached to a beautiful lace skull cap, which has its pattern outlined with diamante.

With the pledging of new girls in the Technological college, two members of social organizations, Sans Souci and Las Chaparittas, have given a series of parties, the last of these coming last evening when Las Chaparittas new members were introduced at a tea in the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. One of the most delightful affairs of the week was given on Wednesday by Mrs. G. E. McCelvey, who had 20 friends in her home for a luncheon at 1 o'clock. The group attended the matinee performance of "Naughty Marietta" at the Palace theatre later in the afternoon.

Two other affairs of Wednesday came at twilight. One of these was a bridge and linen shower for Mrs. Stiles, given by Mrs. Vaughn F. County Club Work Assists Women In Union Community

Income In 13 Homes Larger Because Of Activities Of Women In Home Demonstration Club Work

Something of the constructive work done by members of home demonstration clubs in Lubbock county is seen in a report of the Union Home Demonstration club made by the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. D. R. Payton. In this one group, with a membership of 21 members, incomes of 13 families have been assisted through poultry raising.

Improvements have been added to the homes as a direct result of this club, foods have been canned, gardens planted and clothing made.

Purchase Canners

This club was organized on February 23 with a membership of 12 women. On May 21, a play was given, proceeds amounting to $24.20. After that dinners were served to the Slaton Rotary club during July, and a total of $86.25 was cleared. With this money the club purchased a canner and sealer in July and another canner and sealer in September to care for the increased membership.

The club members had a complete exhibit at the Panhandle-South Plains fair and several ribbons were won.

Itemized reports of the club have shown that, in addition to the spring gardens, 13 members planted fall gardens; that 247 quarts of fruit, 2,160 quarts of vegetables and 133 quarts of meat were canned.

Produce Poultry, Eggs

There were 1,065 standard bred chickens among the club members on the first of this year and, through the directions of the club work, 2,610 more standard bred chickens have been raised. Fowls valued at $668.49 have been sold and used during the summer and 5,737 dozen eggs, valued at $1,128, have been produced. Five individuals culled flocks for the first time this year, discarding 150 of the 265 birds in their flocks. Nine women adopted improved practices in early hatching and chick raising and two homes controlled poultry insects for the first time.

Among the other things accomplished by the club women were the production of 6,162 pounds of butter; remodelling of 50 garments and the making of 307 dresses and coats, 288 under garments and 8 hats. Five homes obtained labor saving devices. Five kitchens were rearranged to afford more convenience, furniture was repaired and refinished in seven homes and water systems were installed in three homes. Twelve houses were painted or whitewashed and yards were planted in flowers and grass at five of the homes.

These same women canned 5,300 pounds of meat and made 865 pounds of soap.

Mae Murray Will Testify At Quiz

Charge Actress With Forcibly Entering Home Of Architect At Los Angeles

(By Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 13.—Mae Murray, screen and vaudeville actress, today termed "silly" the charges of Jack Donovan, Hollywood architect, that she had forcibly entered his home. She declared she was "only peeking in to see if my furnishings were still there." She added with considerable emphasis, that she was "not arrested and not going to be arrested" on the warrant Donovan obtained on the charge.

The actress explained that tomorrow morning her attorney "is going to surrender me in the Santa Monica court" to answer the charge.

The forcible entry was declared to have been made March 15, prior to which Donovan had sold the furnished home to the actress. Later she charged him with misrepresentation, and won a court judgment for the return of $32,000 she had paid on the property. This week Donovan's charge that the actress perjured herself in the trial testimony was ordered to be placed before the grand jury next Monday, when the actress is expected to be called to testify.

Concerning the grand jury probe the actress declared that she would testify if summoned.

"But I can only repeat what I said at the trial, which was nothing but the truth."

Marriage Is Bar

ST. LOUIS.—A queen of love and beauty is likely to be dethroned because she is a bride. The rule is that the queen shall remain unmarried during her reign of a year. It turned out that Miss Smith was married in August to Dr. T. C. Udsall at Winston-Salem.

Dame Fashion Is A Consistent Winner In Sports

MRS PERSIFOR FRAZER, 3rd

MRS HENRY G. DAVIS

By BETSY SCHUYLER
NEA Service Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 13—Polo, being the aristocratic game it is, seems to bring out the most notable gatherings and the smartest togs of any autumn sports.

Everybody was at the Meadowbrook international polo matches, including Lady Nancy Astor and her daughter just arrived from England, looking very euthentically English in their rose beige tweeds.

Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock, mother of "Tommy," the famous polo player, must have an endless number of lovely hand knitted sports things. At each game she wears a new frock with cardigan or scarf of matching color, often lavender.

Woolen Hose Seen

Mrs. Virginia Fair Vanderbilt is black. She looked slender and gracious in a lovely black coat, with crepe back and a soft shawl collar of ermine that dipped to a point in the back. She was one of the many who stepped out in woolen hosiery. It looks as if women will wear much wool thise winter, though there's no use contending they have as much beauty as silk.

Fur coats appeared on many of the best arms, for the day was warm. Mrs. Persifor Frazer, 3rd, of Philadelphia, stepped along jauntily in the smartest flat fud packet seen. She had an orange, white and deep brown scarg tied right under her chin. Her brown hat flared a lot at both sides.

At the Astor one day recently Mrs. Oliver Harriman wore a perfectly lovely frock of black velvet, circular skirted, with hand painted roses in soft pinks adorning the lower sleeves that puffed mightily and then were caught into the narrowest of cuffs. The front width of the skirt had a couple of roses on them too. As usual she wore a black picture hat, for n owoman in New York chooses becoming hats more consistently than Mrs. Harriman, unless it is Mrs. Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte.

Flair for Velveteen

Velveteen suits are having a fling with the younger set. Mrs. Henry G. Davis, the former Grace Vanderbilt, has a bottle green one that is lovely with her hald and eyes. She wore a tight fitting turban of chenille in matching green and a fur tight around her neck. With beige gloves and hosiery and some mighty smart antelope oxfords she was very chic.

Petunia shades are excellent now, if I may judge from those assembled at the Colony restaurant for luncheon one non. Mrs. William Goadby Loew wore a cloth suit in petunia color, and Mrs. Julian Gerard was one of several in frocks in petunia colored crepe satin. Her scarf collar was important, fastening far out on the shoulder as it did.

Dorothy Benjamin Caruso, an honor guest at Neysa McMein's house party last week end, wore a stunning little rose sports suit, with a flaring hat that smart winter resorts will undoubtedly see copied this year.

Church Worried Over Porto Rica

'Curse' Of Island Held To Be Low Moral Standard Of Its Unchurched Natives

(By Associated Press)

ERIE, Pa., Oct. 13.—The board of the American missions, in making its report to the biennial convention of the United Lutheran church in America here today, declared the "curse and blight" of the land of Porto Rico was the "low moral standard" of the unchurched natives. The situation, it was said, was a matter for great concern.

* * * * to combat this serious menace and inculcate Christian teaching and practice, many Protestant denominations are actively at work in Porto Rico. Naturally, the strongest church is the Roman Catholic, but all are striving heroically to elevate the morals of the people and to cultivate right life.

On the mainland of America, the report said, the Lutherans found a vaster untouched problem among the 14,000,000 negroes, adding that it was still wrstling with the problem of whether and how to go about missionary work for them.

Dr. E. Clarence Miller of Philadelphia, treasurer of the church, suggested to the convention today that the Liberian mission work in Africa be dropped because of the high cost. He said every African converted to the Lutheran faith cost the church $50,000.

The Miller motion aroused such overwhelming adverse sentiment that its sponsor withdrew it.

Hoover Ready On Tariff Address

Foreign Trade Also To Be Included In Speech For Delivery At Boston Soon

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Spending a second day in the quiet of his study, Herbert Hoover today neared the end of his work on the speech on the tariff and foreign trade he is to deliver Monday night in Boston.

The republican presidential candidate spent but little time in his personal headquarters, returning to his home at noon to pass the remainder of the day in grinding out the address in which he will launch his second offensive on the industrial east.

With Massachusetts described as one of the pivotal states in the election, Hoover probably will make his appeal for the Bay State electoral vote one of the strongest utterances he yet has made in the campaign.

Massachusetts leaders are placing much dependence in the power of the nominee to corral votes.

Robert S. Weeks, chairman of the arrangements committee for the Boston meeting, has reported that there are 30,000 requests for tickets for the meeting Monday night. The seating capacity of the arena, where the candidate will speak, is only 9,000 and plans are being made for setting up a battery of amplifiers which will make the address audible to other thousands they expect to congregate about the vicinity of the building.

Federal Man Is Here to Aid In Labor Situation

Everhart Will Be Stationed In City for Cotton Season To Aid Farmers And Pickers.

The representative of the U. S. employment bureau of Fort Worth, M. Everhart, who was sent here by C. W. Woodman, in charge of the Fort Worth office of the bureau to take charge of handling cotton pickers for the South Plains section, arrived here at noon yesterday and is on the job at chamber of commerce headquarters in the city hall.

Mr. Everhart announces that he wants every farmer needing cotton pickers to get in touch with him immediately, so he can learn just how many pickers are needed. He will then help them to secure their necessary hands.

Aid Farmers and Pickers

He also announces that any pickers who have come here in search of work get in touch with him and advises all those who are intending to come here seeking this sort of work get in touch with him first.

Every day during this week the chamber of commerce has been receiving requests from farmers of this section who want cotton pickers, some by telephone, others by mail and quite a number of them calling at the offices in person. The greatest number requested was that coming from west of Littlefield, when a call for 500 pickers was sent out.

From every report available the cotton in this area is opening rapidly and it is expected picking will be in full swing by the middle of the coming week. Some farmers state their crops are only waiting on the arrival of pickers.

Chairman Of PTA Resolutions Asks For Club Reports

Resolutions Adopted This Fall At Meeting To Form Platform For Year, Mrs. Wood States

No one thing that will come up for discussion at the twentieth annual convention of the Texas Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher association in Amarillo November 12-16, will be of more importance than a report of the resolutions committee headed by Mrs. A. F. Woo of Athens, first vice president of the state organization and chairman of the resolutions committee, according to members of the state board of managers who appointed Mrs. Wood to this responsible position in November, 1927. It was pointed out that the resolution which will be adopted in Amarillo will form the platform or working basis for the organization during the coming year, and as such should have the most careful consideration.

Mrs. Wood, mindful of the responsibility placed upon her and desiring to have the entire state organization united and moving forward along the lines of endeavor set forth in the purposes and aims of the congress, is asking the membership through the press and through the Texas Parent Teacher, the official organ of the Texas Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher associations, to give careful consideration to the problems that confront the organization and the state at large, and she is asking further that if, after such thought, individuals or organizations have in mind resolutions that bear upon those problems, they be sent to her before November 1.

Her Letter

Mrs. Wood says:

"The time is near at hand for our annual state conference. This is to be held Amarillo the third week in November.

"Many are thinking seriously about the problems confronting our organization and the citizenship of our beloved state as well. Some, no doubt, have in mind resolutions they would like to have presented. If you have, please forward them to the address given below not later than November 1, 1928. In offering resolutions we should consider the people as a whole and not any particular group.

"Each parent teacher association should be familiar with all resolutions passed at our district and state conferences—they should keep in close touch with our legislative program to the end that ach member of ever yassociation in Texas will have first hand information about this phase of our work. We should plan carefully and then carry these plans into execution.

"As above stated please forward your resolutions by November 1 to the state chairman.

"MRS. A. F. WOOD,
"First Vice President."

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton
©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

One mother said to me, "All the fineness in our character is developed by sacrifice, sorrow, and service to others. If children are to grow into the sort of men and women the world needs, they must be developed through just such methods."

Once we had a garden. The soil was clay and shale. Moreover, the garden lay on a hillside where moisture refused to linger. Dry and hot and barren, it was, and our neighbors laughed when we put it in.

We did not expect much the first year, but we wanted a garden, and it had to be started some time, so we dug in. To our amazement and the neighbors', the seeds not only sprouted, but flourished. The radish bed was a robust green, the peas were ready for vining in no time, the wax-beans had leaves almost as large as saucers by the first of June, the tomato plants grew into tall young trees before our amazed eyes. We were ambitious and had put in potatoes. Up they rose like Aladdin's genii.

It was as pretty a garden as I ever have seen, and proud we were of it. I can see it still, its patches of vari-toned green swaying and rippling on that windy hill.

How we watched for the first beans and the first pea-pods; how we scanned the tomato vines daily for the first golden-starred blossom! Breathlessly we pulled up the flourishing radish tops, hoping to see the der stringy roots filled out a little more toward a toothsome harvest.

But never a bean came, nor a pea, nor a tomato, nor a radish, nor a beat, a potato, nor carrot!

There wasn't a thing that came out of our garden on the barren, stony hill.

I don't say that a child's life should be all coddling and cushions and comfort. A little sacrifice, certainly, and service, absolutely. But as for the sorrow—a little of it goes a great way. I should try to keep sorrow out of his experience.

Happiness there must be. It is the nitrate and the lime and all the elements that make for his mental, moral, and physical growth. The greatest tragedy in the world is an unhappy child.

With all the training of children, this should be kept in mind. There may be wind and storms and cloudy days, and even clay and shale, but they won't grow without the nourishment of happiness.

The Morning Avalanche Menu for the Day

BREAKFAST—Sliced peaches, cereal cooked with chopped figs, cream, liver and bacon, corn muffins, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Cream of tomato soup, cheese crackers, fresh fruit salad, peanut butter bread, milk, tea.

DINNER—Chartreuse of rice and meat, stewed celery, head lettuce with Thousand Island dressing, lemon jelly cake, milk, coffee.

The dinner main dish uses up the left-overs from the pot roast of beef served for the previous dinner. This chartreuse is most palatable and good to look at. A well buttered brick-shaped pan is lined with cooked rice. This is filled with meat chopped and seasoned and made moist with left-over gravy or milk or tomato juice and a slightly beaten egg. This is covered with a layer of rice and steamed 45 minutes. Turn out on a hot platter and cut in slices to serve.

Lemon Jelly Cake

One-half cup butter, 1 3-4 cups sugar, 3 eggs, 3 cups flour, 1 cup milk, 4 1-2 teaspoons baking powder 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon lemon extract.

Cream butter and gradually sift in sugar, beating hard. Sift in 1-2 cup flour and mix thoroughly. Mix and sift remaining flour, salt and baking powder. Add yolks of eggs well beaten to first mixture and add dry ingredients alternatively with milk. Add flavoring and fold in whites of eggs beaten until stiff and dry. Turn into four layer cake pans which have been oiled and dusted with flour and bake 20 minutes in a moderate oven. Put together with the following jelly.

Lemon Jelly

One cup sugar, 1 egg, 1 cup water, 1 teaspoon butter, 2 tablespoons of flour, grated rind 1 lemon, 2 lemons, (juice).

Mix and sift flour and sugar. Stir into egg and add water and lemon juice, grated rind and butter. Cook over hot water until thick. Cool and spread on cake.

BETTER THAN GOLD

"Better than grandeour, better than gold than rank and titles a thousand fold, is a healthy body, a mind at ease and simple pleasures that always please. A heart that can feel for another's woe, and share his joy with a genial glow, with sympathies large enough to enfold all me nas brothers, is better than gold. Better than gold is a conscience clear, though toiling for bread in an humble sphere, doubly blessed with content and health, untried by the lusts and cares of wealth. Lowly living and lifty thought adorn and ennoble a poor man's cot; for mind and morals in nature's plan are the genuine tests of a gentleman. Better than gold is the sweet repose of the sons of toil when the labors close; betler than gold is the poor man's sleep, and the balm that drops on his slumbers deep, bring sleeping draughts to the downy bed, where luxury pillows its aching head, the toiler simple opiate deems a shorter route to the land of dreams. Better than gold is a thinking mind, that in the realm of books can find a treasure surpassing Australian ore, and live with the great and good of yore. The sage's lore and the poet's lay, the glories of empires passed away; the world's great drama will thus unfold and yield a pleasure better than gold. Better than gold is a peaceful home, while all the fireside characters come, the shrine of love, the heaven of life, hallowed by mother, or sister or wife. However humble the home may be, or tried with sorrow by heaven's decree, the blessings that never were bought or sold and centre there are better than gold."—Pine Needles.

Heralded as one of the outstanding picture dramas of all times "The King of Kings" is now to be shown for the approval of Lubbock theater goers. It will be here for a week's showing beginning next Sunday, October 21, at the Palace theater.

Cecil B. De Mille master producer of the film world, spent an entire year in producing this super-picture. The story deals with the last two years of the life of Christ based on an adaptation of the New Testament narratives by Jeanie Macpherson.

Historic Scenes Shown

In the "King of Kings" are produced the great historic locales of Galilee, the Temple, halls of Pilate, the hill of Calvary, and the Easter Garden—all familiar to the readers of the narrative or those who have traveled in the Holy Land.

In the cast is included 18 principals, 530 named roles and 4,228 supernumeraries. Among the stellar performers are H. B. Warner, Dorothy Cummings, Ernest Torrence, Joseph Schildkraut, Jacqueline Logan, Montague Love, Rudolf Schildkraut, Julia Faye and Victor Varconi.

Leading up to this peak of cinema productions this week will be offered an array of diersified entertainment at the local theaters. The week's amusement menu includes such shows as "Old Ironsides," "The Great Mail Robbery," and "The Fleet's In" with Clara Bow.

Old Ironsides Here

"Old Ironsides," the historical and romantic spectacle production that has experienced record attendance throughout the country, will be at the Lindsey starting Thursday. It is claimed to be the most perfectly cast photoplay ever filmed. The director, James Cruze, spent three months in the selection of the cast. Each actor, even including the two thousand men used in the battles, were picked after careful and deliberate consideration and with meticulous care.

Charles Farrell, George Bancroft, Wallace Berry, Esther Ralston and Johnie Walker are included among the performers of the historic story of the old frigate "Constitution." The entire United States was combed in search for men familiar with the old time boat rigging of the 1804 windjammers model used in the production.

Melodrama at Lyric

Slashing melodrama of the roaring rails and Uncjye Sam's marines is promised with the showing of the "The Great Mail Robbery" which begins tomorrow at the Lyric. The picture is an F. B. O. production, directed by George B. Seitz. The story includes a graphic battle between the marines and powerful band of outlaws engaged in robbing the U. S. mails. Suspense and intrigues a plenty are promised in the picture.

Clara Bow at Palace

Clara Bow at her best will be shown in the picture "The Fleet's In" which begins today at the Palace. This vivacious red topped star whose bubbling personality and the undeniably possession of Elinor Glynn's well known "it" has pushed her to the top of screen popularity becomes more popular with each picture. The picture that shows here today, her latest is said to be one of her best.

Miss Bow's unprecedented popularity is shown by the enormous amount of mail sent to her by movie fans from all parts of the world. Three tons of mail, for the delivery of which more than $5,000 was spent, was recently removed from her dressing room. More than 250,000 letter were included in her last year's mail receipts. She average between 25,000 and 35,000 letters each month. The letters are not destroyed but are stored away in a store room.

Scene From 'King Of Kings'

Jimmie Cruze, Great Director, Is Loud In Praise Of 'Old Ironsides'

"Old Ironsides," the historical and romantic spectacle production which is breaking all attendance records at the Lindsey theater this week is declared by motion picture experts to be the most perfectly cast photoplay ever produced.

In explaining the selection of players for the production James Cruze, Paramount director, has this to say:

"Three entire months were required for the choosing of the players for 'Old Ironsides.' Each part was given the most careful and deliberate consideration. Even the two thousand plays used in the gigantic battle sequence between the frigate 'Constitution' and the Barbery corsairs were selected one by one with meticulous care.

"For the part of the boy, the leading male role, the requirements were as follows: He must be six feet two inches tall and must weigh around 170 pounds. He must possess a rugged build and his personality must be ever changing. At times he must have the appearance of an awkward New England country boy. Again he must have the fire, daring and courage to sweep one off one's feet.

"This part was by far the most difficult to fill of any of the featured roles in the production. Think over all the players on the screen today and see if you can find one who fills all of these requirements. Hundreds of interviews and scores of screen tests were taken of possible candidates before Charles Farrell was found. Those who have already seen the picture know that he fitted the role perfectly.

"For the role of the gigantic master gunner of the frigate 'Constitution,' George Bancroft was our first, last and only choice. Bancroft fitted into the part as completely as the door to a bank vault fits into its opening. There was no doubt that he was the perfect type for the role.

"The mate on the windjammer 'Esther' could have been played by no one but Wallace Beery. The part was written especially with Beery in mind. This role was therefore the least difficult to cast of any in the entire picture. Beery has more than filled every expectation.

"Several score of well known actresses were interviewed for the role of the heroine before Esther Ralston was finally chosen. Beautiful, young and typically American, Miss Ralston plays her part in a manner that could not be improved upon.

"Johnnie Walker was selected from among hundreds of young actors for the role of the heroic Stephen Decatur. Walker is almost a living image of this famous commodore and is exactly the type I was after.

"Listed among the two thousand extra players are beautiful young girls, sturdy youths, fine, brown skinned babies, grizzled and wrinkled old sea dogs, swarthy skinned sailors, and hundreds of gigantic negroes. The entire United States was combed in a search for men familiar with old time boat rigging to man the fifty 1804 model windjammers used in the production."

New color combinations appear in the sports wear field. An English ensemble is of hand woven black homespun, shot with four tones of yellow, while the angora sweater blouse is the brightest yellow.

Clara Bow Keeps Busy Looking At Mail From Fans

Three Tons Of Letters Are Removed From Her Room And Monthly Average Is 20,000 Pieces

Three tons of mail, for the delivery of which over $5,000 was spent, was recently removed from the dressing room of Clara Bow, popular Paramount actress, who appears in her latest starring picture: "The Fleet's In!" at the Palace theatre this week.

The removal was caused by the increasing amount of space this huge amount of letters occupied. It was found that over 250,000 letters were included in the huge stack, and were sent the little star from every civilized country in the world.

According to post office officials of Los Angeles, Clara Bow's fan mail will now average 25,000 a month. The actual amount of mail received by the star during the month of May was 33,727 letters. For the month of June the number increased to 35,339, with every indication that this number will be increased to over 40,000 for the months to come this year.

The three tons of letters represented the accumulation of one year's fan mail received by the star. Another month, and the star would have been crowded out of her dressing room apartment. Every one of these letters were answered with an autographed photograph being sent. A special staff has been assigned to handle Miss Bow's fan mail, and their work increases daily.

Miss Bow tops any star in moviedom for the amount of fan mail received. Her closest rival is Charles "Buddy" Rogers, another Paramount star, who is now receiving over 10,000 letters a month, or more than the late Valentino when at the height of his career.

Miss Bow refused to have the mail destroyed, the letters being stored away in the studio store room. As far as it is humanly possible, Miss Bow personally goes over her mail, realizing that her work on the screen is greatly influenced by the wants of her tremendous following.

Smart Body Lines Feature Erskine Six Royal Sedan

Immediate Popularity Won For New Model Recently Announced By Studebaker Corporation

Smartest of body lines, the lates Fall colors, and the added distinction of wire wheels with two spares mounted in the front fenders have won immediate popularity for the Erskine Six Royal Sedan, an entirely new model recently announced by the Studebaker Corporation. The latest Erskine offers a wealth of de luxe equipment, a high standard of performance, thrifty operating and upkeep cost, and outstanding beauty at the remarkably low price of $1045 f. o. b. factory.

The Autumn color schemes of the Royal Sedan is Alcona Gray and Sable, with deep orange wire wheels and orange and ivory striping. Adding to this color harmony and emphasizing the "graceful upper wide contours of the body are window reveals in Ute Brown. The wide crown fenders, hood, cowl and running gear are finished in darker Sable, which is also used on the belt moulding and graceful cowl beading to emphasize the low hung appearance of the body lines.

New Radiator Shell

The new Erskine radiator shell is deep and narrow, topped with a winged radiator cap symbolic of the fleet performance of its powerful L-head motor. Flanking the radiator are brightly plated headlamps joined by a plated tie rod with a graceful "E" medallion in the center. Cowl lamps flare from a gleaming nickeled bead, and are miniature replicas of the headlamps. Additional bright touches are found on the large diameter hub caps and there is a sturdy folding luggage grid at the rear.

Rich Upholstering

The interior of the Erskine Royal Sedan is upholstered in rich mohair and is amply proportioned to seat five passengers in roomy comfort. The rear seat is flanked by comfortable arm rests and the wide lounge seats both front and rear are deeply cushioned. The appointments of the rear compartment include a recessed ash receiver, silk curtains in rear and quarter windows, and dome light controlled by a convenient switch in the door post. Door and windows mouldings are finished in Sable Lacquer.

It's the demand of this modern age

Those things that were considered luxuries just a few years ago, have been turned into NECESSITIES by those who live in this modern age.

And one of the most important of these commodities is electricity, both for home use and industrial use. Neither can do without it today, because modern manufacturing machinery and labor-saving devices used in the home are electrically driven.

It is economical and clean, and its greatest feature is that due to ample facilities for its production, it is placed within the reach of all.

Serving as many South Plains communities as we do, our facilities must be kept ahead of the demand of this fast growing territory—and will be at all times.

Wave Length Changes Bring Widespread Protest

Hearing Will Be Held For Stations Ired By New Rule

Numerous Changes In Power, Hours Of Operation And Wavelength Decreed By Radio Commission

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (AP).—Requests for changes in wavelengths, increases in power and alterations in hours of operation are pouring into the federal radio commission from broadcasters dissatisfied with assignments under the new allocation effective Nov. 11.

The commission plans to start hearings about October 17. When a protest is received from a station, the commission forwards an application blank to the station owner. The application must specify what frequency, powers and hours of operations are desired by the applicant, and no application will be considered which fails to comply with this requirement, the commission says. Stations directly interested in the proposed changes are notified of the hearing.

Among the stations, which have made formal application for modification of their assignments, are the following in the central part of the country.

WCFL, Chicago Federation of Labor, requests change of frequency from 620 kilocycles to 670, 720, 770, 810, 870, or 1,000 kilocycles. Asks increase of power from 1,000 to 25,000 watts. Requests change in hours of operation from sharing with WJJD and WRM to unlimited time.

WTMJ, the Milwaukee Journal, requests change in frequency from 620 kilocycles to 820, 840, 620, 610 830, 590 or 570 kilocycles. Requests change from sharing with WHA to full-time.

WMBC, Detroit, asks change in frequency from 1,420 to 670 kilocycles and increase in power from 100 to 500 watts. Requests change from sharing with WAFD to unlimited time.

WGES, Chicago, seeks increase in power from 500 to 1,000 watts and change from sharing with WJKS-WPCC to two-thirds time on 1,080 kilocycles.

WGN, the Chicago Tribune, asks change in frequency from 1,000 to 1,000 watts.

WHAS, 34 requests [illegible] frequency to 1,000 kilocycles, [illegible] power from 250 to 1,000 watts day time and 500 watts nighttime. Asks change in hours of operation from one-seventh time to maximum of 32 hours a week.

Eastern stations which have asked for hearings include:

WLWL, Brooklyn, N. Y., asks increase in power from 250 to 1,000 watts and change in frequency from 1,400 to 920 kilocycles daily until 9:30 p. m. 1440 kilocycles after 9 p. m.

WEAN, Providence, R. I., requests change in frequency from 780 to 890 kilocycles, reduction in power from 500 to 250 watts and change in hours of operation from unlimited to unlimited.

WMES, Boston, asks increase in power from 50 to 100 watts, change in frequency from 1,500 to 1,120 kilocycles and change in hours of operation from sharing with WLOE to daylight hours.

WNAC, Boston, requests change in frequency from 630 to 940 kilocycles.

In the far west, KLX, Oakland, Calif., asks change in frequency from 1,270 to 550 kilocycles and change in operation from sharing with KTAB to unlimited time.

In the south, KFJZ, fort Worth, Texas, seeks increase in power from 50 to 500 watts, change in frequency from 1,200 to 1,250 kilocycles and change in location of station in Ft. Worth.

Radio Companies Fight For Waves

Commercial Battle Between Wireless Firms And Wire Corporations Is Of Vital Interest

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (AP)—With the political campaigns and the new allocation of stations holding the radio spotlight the fight of commercial companies for the valuable short waves has attracted relatively slight public interest.

Radio men and government observers, however, declare that the preamble for those assignments and the threatened battle between the land wire companies and the radio concerns for the communication business in the United States is of more vital commercial importance.

Having heard arguments of rival applicants for point to point radio service in the United States, the radio commission plans to get the recommendations of engineers preparatory to formulating a policy in the assignment of these channels. With the supply of wave-lengths insufficient to meet all of the requests the commission says priority of claims must be determined on the basis of greatest public service.

Because of the shortage of wave-lengths, the commission heretofore has been reluctant to assign radio channels for communication purposes where wire facilities are available. Some time ago the Radio Manufacturers' association recommended to the commission that radio be used only for those services where wire communication is impracticable or impossible.

Three rival companies now seek permission to establish networks of radio telegraph stations handling public messages in competition with the wire systems of the country. Representatives of the Radio corporation of America, one of the applicants, maintain that the service they propose would be clearly in the interest of the public. They claim that the Radio Corporation's competition in the trans-oceanic field resulted in the first reduction in cable rates in 38 years.

The other applicants are the Mackay Radio and Telegraph company and the Universal Wireless Communications company, a new corporation formed at Bufalfo. The Mackay concern contends that it is better equipped to serve the public because of its connection with an established land wire system, the Postal Telegraph company. The Universal Wireless company bases its plea for priority on the fact that it was first to propose the establishment of a national radio network to compete with the wire lines.

mrosch, World Famous Composer To Give Radio Musical Education

Walter Damrosch at the microphone ready for his children's concerts.

Nation - Wide Program Is Planned For Oct. 26th

By NEA Service

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—The latest of Walter Damrosch, famous composer and conductor, is poised for the inauguration on Oct. 26 of a nation-wide radio movement for the musical education of children.

From the former leader of the New York Symphony orchestra will broadcast the first of 48 concerts to over a large hook-work of the NBC system. Children of ages ranging from eight years upward, college students and adults will listen on these music lessons by perhaps the greatest master in America.

The 48 concert-talks planned by Damrosch are graded into three series according to the mental development of those expected to listen to them.

"The first series" he explains, will be for children in the third and fourth grades; the second for the fifth and sixth grades; the third for the seventh grade and junior high school; and the fourth for the high schools and colleges.

Loud Speakers in Classrooms

Educational institutions throughout the country are preparing to set aside those hours when the Damrosch talks will be broadcast for the special purpose of listening in to them. Radio receivers are being installed and loud speakers set up, so that whole classrooms, and in some cases auditoriums, of students may listen.

The project this year, says officials of the NBC is an enlargement of the experimental broadcasts made by Darosch last year. Now, however, benefiting from the experiences of his former work, Damrosch will be able to present a more systematic program. He has his work at the Carnegie Hall children's concerts as a basis for his radio broadcasts.

"First I shall introduce the children's orchestra," he explains. "They will learn to recognize the various instruments to distinguish the sound of the piccolo from that of the flute, the trumpet from the horn, the viola from [illegible] them what [illegible] of an obbligato, what [illegible] and why the trombone [illegible] for solemn effects, the trumpet [illegible]

BEFORE THE MICROPHONE

The mike is the way to more and more millions of listeners as winter approaches. Already one radio manufacturer is reaching the production of his two-millionth receiver and another is not far behind.

As winter comes, too, some of the popular hours that were relegated on the schedule for the summer return for their full time. The Atwater Kent hour is one, the Philco hour is another, the Smith Brothers Theater Magazine hours are others.

The Philco hour returns to its Saturday evening broadcasts, for a full hour. An operetta will be the feature of each program, just as it was last season.

Betty Crocker returns to the air with her famous cooking school. She begins her fifth year in radio appearing every Wednesday and Friday morning.

The Pacific coast chain of the NBC gets another feature direct from New York, in the Wrigley Review. Twenty-four stations broadcast this program weekly.

KGO, Oakland, is another station that recognizes the importance of its announcers. They're to sign off with their full names instead of their initials, hereafter.

It was a sad error the organist of WLW, Cincinnati, made when he followed the radio talk of vice-presidential nominee Curtis with the song, "It's the Baloney." Now everyone at the station has strict orders to look before they leap.

The Theater Magazine hour is another feature that returns to the mike this season. WGBS, New York, is the broadcaster.

New series on the air:

National Home hour, NBC system, Wednesday and Friday morning at 10 eastern time.

Theater Magazine hour, WGBS, New York, Monday at 7:30 eastern time.

Cooking course by Ida Bailey Allen, Columbia system, Tuesday morning at 10, eastern time.

WNYC Air College, WNYC, New York, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at 7:30 eastern time.

Brandies Players, KOIL, Council Bluffs, 5:30 central time.

The Song Shop, NBC system, Thursday at 8 eastern time.

Brooklown Symphony legiure on the air, WGBS, New York, Monday at 9:30 eastern time.

Champion Sharkers, NBC system, Thursday at 8:30 eastern time.

Cookery school, WEAL, Baltimore, Tuesday at 3:45 eastern time.

Smith Brothers, NBC system, Wednesdays at 9 eastern time.

The WPG, Atlantic City, microphone responds to some 150 entertainers daily, reports that station's director.

Fall schedules are beginning to come in. That means longer time on the air and more pretentious programs. The past summer has been exceptional, but the winter is even more promising.

WEAL, Baltimore, is to extend its Sandman Circle programs from one day a week to every day except Saturday, from 6 to 6:30 eastern time.

The Porto Rico relief committee adopted a resolution thanking WOR, Newark, for its cooperation in appealing to its listeners for funds to help hurricane sufferers.

Station Hunting To Be Revived By New Wavelengths

Four Big Texas Stations Affected By Change In Waves, Effective On November Eleventh

BY ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
(Associated Press Feature Writer)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (AP)—Millions of radio listeners will start the big hunt for stations November 11 when the new allocation is scheduled to go into effect.

The fans will find a large majority of the stations, including the old favorites, those easy to tune in and the remote ones that have lured the "distance hounds" in new places on the dial. Wavelength changes have been made in all parts of the country, and many of the larger stations which formerly operated during all the night hours will be on the air only part of the evening.

The time limitation which the federal radio commission insists is necessary to accommodate all of the stations on an equality basis in the limited number of channels, has resulted in many complaints by dissatisfied broadcasters. Such stations as WGY, Schenectady, and WAIU, Columbus, which will be on channels cleared at right for Pacific coast stations, are especially hard hit. They will be compelled to sign off at sunset, Pacific coast time, in order to prevent interference.

The old and new wavelengths, respectively, as announced by the commission, follow:

BORDEAUX TEST SETS

BORDEAUX, France, Oct. 13 (AP)—A municipal radio competition was staged by Bordeaux officials. On a large open square entrants lined up their instruments, some on park benches, others on taxicabs or private automobiles. An aerial was put at the disposal of competitors and each in turn was given a couple of minutes in which to demonstrate what his receiver could do.

TEST PLANE PHONE

Work is being rapidly completed on a Boeing Transcontinental airplane in Seattle, which is to be used in a series of tests to determine the practicability of radiophone communication between airplanes and points on land or other airplanes. The plans call for an ocustically and electrically silent radio.

WOC, Davenport, has prepared a questionnaire asking the opinion of its listeners on the wave length assignment for the station under the changes going into effect November 11.

CLOCK CONTROLS BEACON USED ON FLORIDA COAST

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 13 (AP)—A semi-automatic radio beacon, the first of its type to be installed in the United States, has been placed in operation at St. John's river lighthouse, Florida.

The apparatus consists of standard 200 watt radio beacon transmitters designed by engineers of the lighthouse bureau, power being furnished by two automatic engine-generator units.

FAIR EXHIBITS

Fair exhibits have been considered a fair means of advertising a community or a county or state, and there has been in years gone by considerable benefits derived from agricultural exhibits at fairs, and there still is much to be gained. We do not wish to be understood that the idea should be abandoned at all, but there must be more than a well filled score card, if we are to attract more than passing attention to the exhibits and the merits of the community from which they come. The score card idea is a standard by which judges can determine the points in favor or against the exhibits, and it is a very easy way to determine them, but it is no longer an effective way of advertising the country from which it came. All exhibits are necessarily very much a like—they must be if they are made according to the rules of the score card. The Lubbock county exhibit at the State fair this year, was in addition to being a full score card had a very unique arrangement of publicity in regard to the section of country surrounding Lubbock county. It gave in good clear lettering some of the chief industries, and advantages of the city and this section, and some facts and figures that one could easily grasp. It was a new idea put forth in the exhibition halls of the agricultural department of the State fair and it was thoroughly tested out that Lubbock county and the South Plains was well advertised by this new idea, in as much as by actual comparison by the watch, people stopped at the space occupied by the Lubbock county exhibit from three to five times longer than at any other booth, even the first prize booth. Why was this so? It was because of the difference in the arrangement, and there was really something there besides the regular score card of corn and grains etc. There was information about the entire South Plains Section and Lubbock in particular. Information that many people wanted and were interested in. The new idea while it could not under the rules of the fair and the old score card idea win any prize, was worth many times the amount of the prize money by the additional and favorable publicity that it gave this section. Thousands saw the exhibit and learned something about the South Plains who would have under the old style of a score card exhibit have passed it by with merely a glance at the name of the county or place, and possibly some freak exhibit that might be there, but would have been none the wiser in regard to the general information about the county. We are glad to know that Lubbock county and the South Plains was broken the spell, and that there will be many more exhibits than ever before, but have some other system of advertising than merely filling a score card, which is all of the requirements under the old rules.

TWO SCHOOL AMENDMENTS

When voters go to the polls in November to cast their ballots in the general election, they will find four proposed constitutional amendments awaiting their attention. Two of these relate to changes in the public school system, and it would be well for voters to think about them before election day. Constitutional amendments usually are approved or rejected without careful attention, because the average voter devotes little time to consideration of the amendments submitted and goes to the polls without adequate understanding of the proposals. Sometimes, in fact, the voter does not know that a constitutional amendment is submitted until he finds it on his ballot. Naturally, the amendment is usually rejected by the voter who does not understand it.

The two school amendments offered in November relate to the State Board of Education and the election of district school trustees. It is proposed that the State Board of Education be appointed by the Governor, with the advice and approval of the Senate, and that it contain nine or more members. At present the Board is made up of the Governor, the Comptroller and the Secretary of State. Since the Governor names the Secretary of State, the present system makes it possible for the chief eecutive actually to control the Board of Education, and this is not a desirable condition. A larger board, appointed with the approval of the Senate, would be more nearly representative of the educational forces of the state and its decisions would be more likely to promote the welfare of the state's school system.

The second school amendment proposes that trustees of school districts be elected for a term of office not to exceed six years, the Legislature being authorized to determine the length of their term. A longer term for school trustees, so arranged that the terms of the individual trustees would overlap, would tend to stabilize the local boards of education and would make it more difficult for political influences to gain control of the schools. This amendment may not be regarded as especially important, and perhaps it is not especially important; but it occurs to us that it would bring about a measure of improvement in the management of the public schools, and for that reason it ought to be adopted.

Voters should give to the proposed constitutional amendments just as much study as to the issues involved in the fundamental law of the state, and any proposal to alter it is of supreme importance to all the citizenship.

FAULTY MORTALS

Everybody has faults, and we do not mind even some of the glaring ones so much when one admits he posseses them. It is a person's utter blindness to his own failings, his supercilious way of criticizing others for errors more pronounced in himself, his patronizing attitude which magnifies these irregularities and causes impatience on the part of the observer. Carlyle has said: The greatest of faults, I should say, is to be conscious of none." The fact that a person has offensive quirks in his temperament does not cut him off from love and friendship. There are numerous very lovable individuals who by no means are perfect, but nobody is more aware of their shortcomings than they. Their knowledge that they are found wanting and their efforts, feeble though they might be, to overcome the irregularities, save them from dislike. Unless we recognize our errors there is no hope of our correction of them. The creature who regards himself as very near perfect is sure to fall farther from that point day by day. His very conceit causes him to deteriorate. It inhibits the work of constructive forces which are generated by observation, intelligent comparison and the desire to improve. Everybody in the world can teach us something. Each day has a vital lesson for us, regardless of our schooling or experience or age. We should bear these things in mind when inflated with a feeling of super-sufficiency or when on the verge of criticizing others. One of the best means of curing ourselves of the habit of criticism is to resolve to pause before scoring others for their errors and see if we are not guilty of the same lapse. That will prove a chastening influence, because there are few of us who haven't a large measuure of deficiencies, and it is much better we spend our time in correcting these than in calling attention to those of our neighbors. It won't be the easiest thing in the world to accomplish this because the average person is frequently beset by the temptation to criticize others disparagingly, despite the reminder of his better judgment that minding his own business is the best policy. Faults look different from various angles. Errors seen in ourselves are frequently excused while similar ones in another are made the subject of censure. The gossip and calumniation we hear are products of the overly imaginative brain, the glib tongue and idleness. The self-sufficient, jealous attitude also promotes back-biting which, treated by the unconscientious Dame Rumor, reaches huge and erroneous proportions. We all have our faults and as has been said their chief harm lies in our ignorance of them. Hence, instead of the blindly censorious attitude, it would be better for us and society generally that we be more introspective and determine our own errors with a view of correcting them. Should we do this we would be too busy to gossip about our neighbor or meddle in his affairs.

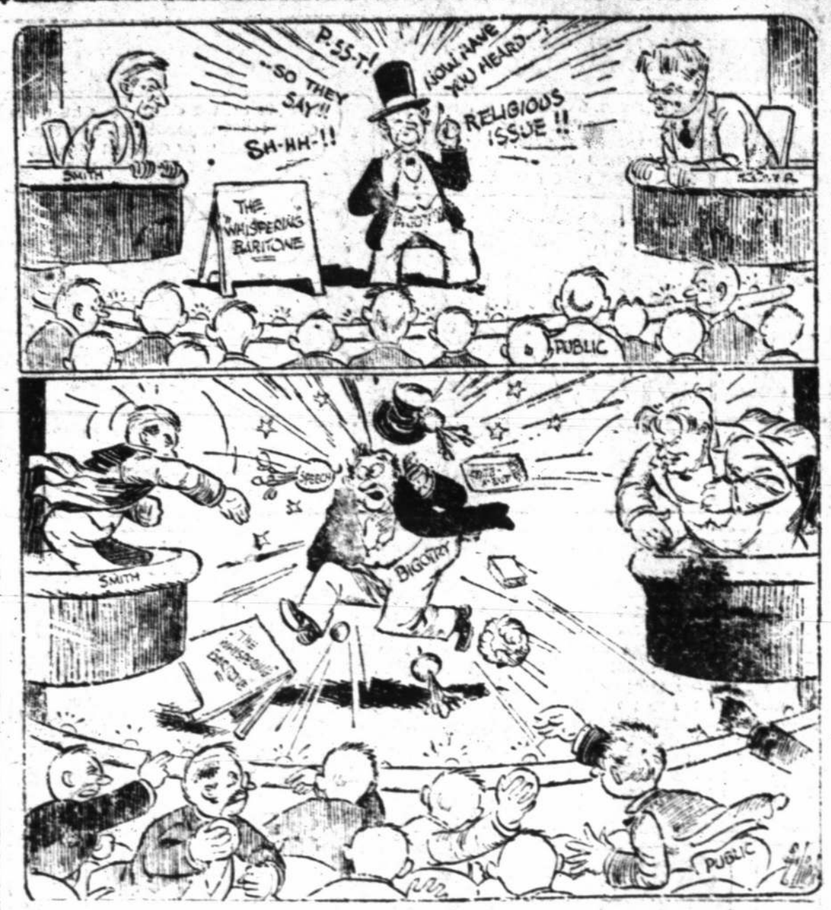
SUBMARINE HEROES

England recently gave military burial to the bodies taken from the hull of a British submarine which was sunk, in 1919 in an engagement with a Bolshevik warship in the Baltic sea. The Russians recently brought the submarine to the surface.

One wonders how the relatives of these dead British sailors feel. What did these men die for? England was not officially at war with Russia. The World War itself was over. Their deaths accomplished nothing. The soviet is as secure today as it would have been if that submarine had stayed at home.

The answer, of course, is that some British officials got excited and blundered. It was all a mistake. That may be cold comfort for the relatives of the dead soldiers—but it is about all that can be said.

An Act On Which The "Critics" Seem About Unanimous!



SO THINK WE

We think if all the criminals would only stop to think for a few brief moments how few criminals escape punishment sooner or later they surely would not take the chance, but it seems that the warnings they get from time to time merely fall upon them and glide off.

—o—

We think more people will vote in the presidential election this year than have ever voted before in the history of the nation. This is probably due to the issues involved in the campaign, and a lot to the great amount of newspaper space being devoted to getting the people out to the polls. Anyway, no matter what has brought about the interest, it is nothing but right that the people should vote. It is their privilege as American citizens and they should exercise that.

—o—

We think Lubbock should have a better street marking system. There are very few streets that have the names and the number on them. We can not imagine how it is expected that house numbers will be of very great benefit if they are not guided by the name of the street or the number of the street. Home folks, of course, can learn these streets, but that is not the idea for street numbers. They should be marked so anyone who comes to town with a house number and street number or avenue name should be able to find the location without having to stop strangers and ask every few blocks.

—o—

We think when the psychologists advise young men to be dignified, they do not mean for them to be high-hatted and live beyond their income.

—o—

We think it would be real interesting if some one could tell which party is right as to the overwhelming majority it will receive in the general election.

—o—

We think a lot of folks certainly will be glad when this general election is over no matter which way it goes. American people get tired of too much of most anything.

—o—

We think, after all, that the democrats and republicans are not very far apart in their promise to the people. When it is finally simmered down they promise the people that shall have a living provided they can earn it.

—o—

We think there is one thing that we need never fear and that is there will never be a saloon on every corner in the city, for there is a filling station or a hamberger station on every one of the best corners in every good town in America, so fas as we have been able to find.

—o—

We think this thing of voting will never be quite up-to-date till the voters are permitted to vote by radio. Voting by mail is too tame now.

"This is Mrs. Warrior's third husband, isn't it?"

"Yes. She's two down and one to go."

MEDITATION

THE EMPTY TENT

SUNDAY: Meditation for the day (to be read aloud as part of the Sunday Home Service) Genesis 5:21-27. "And Enoch walked with God: and he was not; for God took him." Could any epitaph be nobler than that? How sufficiently it sums up the godly life! Walking with God, taken by God! He was no longer on earth, because he was with God in heaven. That is all we need to know about the deep mystery of death and the still deeper mystery of life.

When we know this, we know enough to prevent any fear of death or any prolonged grief for the departed. Such grief is selfish, magnifying our brief loneliness and forgetting their endless joy.

Sir Edwin Arnold, in his wonderful poem, "After Death in Arabia," put the matter strongly and wisely.

"Sweet friends! What the women lave
For its last bed of the grave,
Is a tent which I am quitting,
Is a garment no more fitting,
Is a cage from which, at last,
Like a hawk, my soul hath passed.
Love the inmate, not the room—
The wearer, not the garb—the plume
Of the falcon, not the bars
Which kept him from these splendid stars.'

If we truly love our dear dead, we shall be exalted by their glorious gains that we can not think much of our loss. Their gains are eternal, while our loss is temporary. Their gains are infinite, while our loss is finite. Let our thoughts follow them where they are, and not remain behind with the earth which they have so profitably abandoned.

He used to bring her roses
When they were scarce and high;
But since they are so plentiful
Their bloom he passes by
He buys her orchids now, and such,
Nor at the charges balks,
For in the floral language
He knows that money talks.

YOUR HEALTH

TO THOSE WHO CAN'T TELL COLOR OF TRAFFIC LIGHTS

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN,
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

Some people are unable to distinguish between red and green, others between blue and yellow. The commonn form of color blindness is that involving the red and green distinction.

The blue-yellow difficulty is much rarer. Some people, very few, are totally color blind. They are unable to distinguish between colors, everything having about the appearance of objects seen by a normal person at twilight.

Effect of Shades

In a recent investigation of the subject, Dr. S. J. Beach points out that there is a loss in such persons of what is called central vision. By day if we catch a glimpse of an object to one side we can, by looking directly at it, see it much more clearly. At twilight, on the contrary, it becomes still less distinct to the direct gaze.

Persons with total color blindness see objects as lighter or darker, but are unable to distinguish the shades having to do with the spectrum. Such color blindness tends to appear in families, so that heredity seems to play some part in its development.

Unfortunately there is little that can be done for a person with such a defect of vision. Because they are adapted to the dark rather than to the light, it has been found that cutting down of the light with shaded lenses helps the vision.

Doctor Beach described one patient who was able to thread a needle and do some sewing, the family telling her the colors of the thread which she was able to remember by having each color in a certain place in the work box. She was also able to distinguish by varying degrees of brightness.

Persons who are color blind are sometimes able to distinguish between red and green signals on roadways through their variation in brightness.

Sometimes a good detour is not a bad road, but it is hardly ever as good as the main highway except when it is under repair, and it does not look like the democrats are much on repair work this year. However, they claim they are going to give us a thorough renovation of the old state house if they move in after next March. It needs cleaning up, and if the democrats can do it why not give them a chance.

History Of Presidential Elections

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN
Author of "The American Government"

XIV—THE FOUR-CORNERED FIGHT OF 1860.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Lincoln in his debates with Stephen A. Douglas in 1858 had foreseen the split in the Democratic party over slavery, and had steadily forced Douglas on record in favor of lettings territories determine their own slave or free status. The South insisted that slaves be taken anywhere, and no decision made about territories until they became states. The attitude of Douglas had won him the Illinois senatorship from Lincoln, but lost his the presidency two years later. In 1858 Lincoln had said: "It's bigger game than a senatorship I'm stalking. The battle of 1860 is going to be worth a hundred of this one."

By 1860 prudent men were convinced the election of a northern Republican would be the signal for secession by the South, and civil war. Alexander Stephens, afterwards Confederate vice president, declared he left Washington never to return unless as a prisoner of war.

The Democratic convention met in Charleston. Douglas in the lead but never able to get two-thirds. The southern forces, aided by California and Oregon delegates, won the platform plank for declaring slaves as property and that could be taken anywhere. Deadlocked over a candidate, the convention adjourned to meet later in Baltimora. There the Douglas forces controlled, and nominated their champion, but fifty delegates had bolted at Charleston and another group walked out at Baltimore. Both sets of bolters nominated John C. Breckenridge.

A group of conservatives, mostly former Whigs, formed the Constitutional Union Party, declared for peace and the Constitution, and named John Bell of Tennessee.

The Republicans met in Chicago, in Wigwam, a temporary frame hall built for the event. Seward was the leading candidate, while a western group favored Lincoln, and Edward Bates of Missouri had the support of Greeley and other leaders. Thurlow Weed managed the Seward forces, and was accused by Greeley and others of making illicit deals for delegates and financial help. David Davis, Lincoln's manager, proved a better trader than the great eastern boss. Although explicitly told in writing by Lincoln to make no deals or promises, Davis undoubtedly offered cabinet places to Caleb Smith of Indiana and Cameron of Pennsylvania in exchange for votes of those delegations.

On the first day it seemed certain to be Seward. On the second, the Lincoln boosters packed the galleries with a shouting claque, while the Seward bands and marchers, after a grand parade, found the Wigwam packed and the doors locked. Davis had been busy through the night, and had won over many delegates. The Rail Splitter was nominated. His cousin, John Hanks, gave him that nickname in 1858 by carrying two rails into the state convention with a sign, "Made by Abraham Lincoln and John Hanks in the Sangamon bottom in 1830."

Lincoln made a careful, front-porch campaign, declaring that his speeches of earlier years had expressed his views. Of slavery he said: "Wrong as we think slavery is, we can yet afford to let it alone where it is, because that much is due to the necessity arising from its actual presence in the nation." He hoped to preserve peace and the Union.

Democratic Fusion Hopeless

The opposing forces sought means of consolidation. Bell authorized Jefferson Davis, future president of the Confederacy, to offer withdrawal of the Constitutional Union ticket if Breckenridge and Douglas would withdraw and permit selection of one Democratic ticket. Breckenridge is said to have agreed, but Douglas certainly refused to deal with the bolters. He declared that even if he did withdraw, Lincoln and not the Democrats would get his northern support.

In a number of states, the electoral tickets were made up on a fusion basis, with agreements to support whichever Democrat might have a chance. Fusion would not serve to win New York or Pennsylvania, and accomplished only a division of the New Jersey electoral vote. The Democrats also had

Our Sunday Morning Sermon

THE LIKENESS OF CHRIST

By REV. CERHARD E. LENSKI, D.D.

Text: "I am Crucified with Christ: nevertheless I live: Yet not I but Chirst liveth in me."—Gal. 2:20.

Christlikeness! The likeness of Christ reproduced in human lives! Not I living, but Christ living in me! Let that be the subject of our sermon at this time. Let our thought on this subject follow three general lines: first, the need of such living; second, the method of attaining it; third, the glory to which it leads.

As we begin it is not possible to stress too much the reverent approach required by our subject. "Christlike!" a certain writer exclaims. "Do not speak that word lightly. It is the heart of God's predestination. It is our high calling."

Such an attitude is eminently proper. If we are called to be like Christ, if Christlikeness is God's will for human lives, then the mere mention of this one word, "Christlikeness," ought to stimulate the Christian like a powerful electric current. It ought to call for his best spiritual effort far more effectively than the sharp call "Attention!" arouses the lounging soldier and causes him to stand erect to receive the orders of his commanding officer.

As we speak of the reverent approach, we will also do well, by way of preliminary observation, to make mention of the difficulty of the way. The attainment of Christlikeness is not easy. It is a struggle that lasts a lifetime, a struggle that is beyond our unaided human powers, a struggle that will take its toll of blood and tears from us even as it once led the Lord Christ to the cross.

The need of Christlikeness! It is a need, not so much for a sermon that ought to be preached, as it is for a life that ought to be lived.

True enough, Christ did once say to His disciples: "Go, preach the Gospel." But before He gave that command He was very careful to instruct these disciples to reproduce in their lives the virtues that were pre-eminent in His own. In that noblest of prayers which Christ offered up shortly before His crucifixion, He did not pray for the gift of tongues upon His chosen ones, but He did pray most earnestly for their sanctification, for their growth in godliness and grace. Following the resurrection, Peter, instructed to feed Christ's lambs and sheep, asks concerning John: "What about him, Lord? What shall he do?" Very instructive is the answer of Jesus. "And if I shall say to him, Tarry thou till I come, what is that to thee? Follow thou Me!"

The first business of a Christian at all times is to follow Christ, to be Christlike, to reproduce the life of Christ in his own life. The work of making converts for the kingdom is important, but the nature of circumstances requires that the worker himself be converted before he goes forth to strengthen his brethren. We must be something, to borrow the words of one of our spiritually minded presidents, before we attempt to do something. The spirit that lies behind our work is more important than the method by which the work is done.

A great philospher has said: "There is no such thing as individual isolation. He who solves his personal problem helps every one else." One reason, we may be sure, Why Christian work often lags and fails is because we who attempt that work have not fully solved our own problem. We are talking about Christianizing other nations, and we have not yet converted our own. We are planning a clever campaign to bring our brother to Christ, and we have not yet subjected our own hearts to His dicipline. It is too much to say that we have been weak in our work because we have been content to preach Christ in sermons when we should have been more careful to live Christ in our lives?

The proper technique in teaching and soul saving is never to be despised, but it is not as important as private prayer and a heart that is in love with its Lord. Success in church work is our aim, but the true success must have a solid foundation under it. Let new methods be tried—new fields explored—new leaders come forth to challenge us with their brilliant endeavors. What is that to you and me? Our great business as His followers is first of all to keep our eyes on Him—to follow Him—to strive to become like Him! That is the peculiar need for Christlikeness that con-

Today's Poem

WHEN THE GARDEN BEGINS TO FADE

Looking back from the top of the hill,
To the places far below,
It is easy to mark the paths we took,
And the way we tried to go.
It is easy to see in the pleasant fields,
That are green and wide and fair,
A hint of the joys we used to know,
When our souls, and youth, were there!

Looking back from the top of the hill,
There is little left to see,
For the soul that knew a bitter climb,
To the heights of mastery!
But to those who lingered for pleasant words,
And for smiles, and the touch of hands,
There are memories left that will lend a glow,
To the slovely fading lands!

Looking back from the top of the hill,
At the country sweeping wide,
We can see the spots where our hopes were born,
And those where our faiths have died.
We can see the places where gardens grew,
With color and perfumed breath,
But the leaves are brown and the petals sway,
In the last, dim dance of death!

Auto World Looks To Women Buyers

Oldsmobile Owner Predicts Equal Number Of Men And Women Auto Salesmen; Change Soon

The time is not far distant when woman will consume at least half of the number of automobile salesmen, according to Mrs. W. W. Hayes, of Tulsa, Okla. And she bases this viewpoint on her personal experience this year as an Oldsmobile saleswoman during spare hours.

"It is the woman who can buy an automobile today," says Mrs. Hayes, "Everyone knows that as the American woman began to decide what kind of a car the family should own, the manufacturer started to devote more attention to color and style.

"It was not many years ago that men were the leading salesmen in women's ready-to-wear stores, but those positions have been taken by women. A similar change is due in the automobile business.

Understand Color and Style

"I am sure a women will find out quicker than a man just what color or particular style of automobile a woman customer desires. They are more difficult to sell than men, I am sure, because they are more particular about little things, such as upholstery and interior conveniences. As a result it requires more time for them to make a decision. And it is a recognized and understanding of that peculiar psychological fact that makes a saleswoman more effective with woman customers."

The purchase of an Oldsmobile early this year was the primary cause of Mrs. Hayes becoming an automobile saleswoman. She was so pleased with her Oldsmobile that she brought several women friends to the Barry Motor Co., Oldsmobile dealer at Tulsa. Her arguments in favor of the car were so convincing that Mr. Barry induced her to try her hand at selling during her leisure hours.

Earned $2,000

In five months time Mrs. Hayes earned about $2,00 in commissions, more than enough to pay all expenses of an extended vacation trip for her family. The family toured in their Oldsmobile to Los Angles, San Francisco, Washington and through the Yellowstone Park and other interesting points in the northwest.

Sunday Sermon

fronts the church of today. It is a need that can be met only in consecrated lives.

By what method is Christlikeness attained? First, by a clearer understanding of the person and work of Jesus Christ.

The radiant source of our Christian faith is not an incomprehensible spirit, an undetermined First Cause appearing suddenly out of a mysterious void. Jesus Christ is God. He is a person. As a person He can be known. As a person He should be known. If we are to become like Him we must know Him—know Him personally. We must hear His voice calling us "o'er the tumult of our life's wild, restless sea." His must be a real voice, a real call. Our theologies are good, but we must never encourage a theology that hides the kindness of His voice or the the gentleness of His voice. Our creeds are good, but we must never confess a creed that keeps us from knowing in a personal way this Saviour who loved us and gave Himself for us.

Too many of us know Jesus Christ only in the way we admire George Washington or Abraham Lincoln. Too many of us, as some one has said, have only a stained-glass-window conception of Jesus. He has never stepped out of the frame that encloses Him. He ape there at all times, and is locked at only on Sundays. Such attitudes have their advantages, but we must get beyond them. He must be more than a noble conception enshrined in art. He must become a living, loving, now present Person, who knows us, and whom we know and love.

Furthermore, in our desire to attain Christlikeness, we must know Jesus, not alone as the Saviour, but as our Saviour. Christlikeness must come as the fruit of Christian experience.

E. Stanley Jones in his book, "Christ at the Round Table," tells of his experiences in asking learned men in India to tell him about their acquaintance with God and what it had meant in their lives. He tells how he insisted that they tell him, not what they thought or what they had read or what some one had told them, but that they speak out of actual experience what God had come to mean to them. Their answers were pitiful indeed. In most instances they had had no real experience at all. They professed to be religious, but they lived in an atmosphere of conjecture, superstition, vague hopes and blind faith.

What of our experience with God? Can we tell of actual instances when He answered our prayer? Can we speak from experience and relate how the Spirit drew us to the cross and how there we found forgiveness? Can we name the Saviour as our Saviour? Without pressing the inquiry too closely, let us repeat that we must seek Christlikeness in the field of Christian experience. By having fellowship with Him we will become like Him. Our experience must be that of him who speaks for himself when he says:

"I know a soul that is steeped in sin,
That no man's art can cure;
But I know a Name, a Name, a Name,
That can make that soul all pure."

To name the name of Jesus as the One who has lifted me up out of the dust, this is the way to Christlikeness.

The glory of Christlikeness is an inward goodness that becomes the regulative and controlling force of life. If we dwell in Him and He in us, we will not become daily victims in a terrible strife between good and evil. We will not stand dismayed in the presence of duty not knowing what to do. We will not go to our rooms with hearts desolate like battle grounds because of the tumult that has ravaged them. Christ in us will be a power over us to enable us always to choose and to do right. This power will simplify the course of life. It will supplant indecision with right decision. It will in the endb ring peace. It will breathe glory into our commonplace lives, glory like the goodness that was His.

Christ in us will become the power of eternal life springing up in us. of life that now is and that shall never cease to be. We shall see the eternal kingdom through His eyes and we shall not fear for any changes that time may bring. In the midst of a decadent civilization, the disciple John looked forth with the eyes of Christ and saw "the new Jerusalem" that should never perish. How movingly he has written of it in his book Revelation. How that vision cheered and upheld him in the days of his suffering. The experience of John is a promise of what Christ in us can do for us. Our world, like that of Greece and Rome, may change. Our country, loved and great, may pass away. Christ in us will lift us above the wrecks of time.

Tradition relates as Christ toiled in Nazareth He was maker of yokes and that he fitted these yokes to the necks of animals that they might bear their burdens more easily. The union of our lives with Christ is a yoke upon us—not a thing to gall and hurt—but a gracious means by which burdens may be shared with Him and thus more easily borne.

Christlikeness! Christ with us! Christ in us! This yoke is easy. This burden is light. And in it there is rest for every soul that receives it.

ruled that there would be no electoral majority, and the choice would go to the House of Representatives. That body might also be deadlocked, but the Senate would at least have chosen a vice president, and Lane, on the Breckenridge ticket, would probably have been named and taken the presidency on March 4th.

All of these hopes were dashed as the north went almost solidly for Lincoln, and he won a clear majority of electors, although far short of a popular majority, as he had few votes in the South. The Bell ticket carried Tennessee, Kentucky, and Virginia. Douglas, although second in popular votes, carried only Missouri and three votes from New Jersey. Breckenridge won Delaware, Maryland, and the South. The rest, including four votes in New Jersey, were for the Republican ticket. The popular vote was: Lincoln, 1,866,918; Douglas, 1,376,-664; Breckenridge, 849,081; Bell, 591,900. The electoral vote was Lincoln, 180; Douglas, 12; Breckenridge, 72; Bell, 39.

The campaign had not been so lively as some previous contests. Every one regarding the business as too grave for light campaign methods. The element of a sporting event, which is strong in our political contests, was missing. The election of a president had become a grim and serious business indeed. All but the most extreme partisans made some effort, as exemplified by Lincoln on the slavery question, to speak with judgment and moderation, and to avoid closing the door against a peaceful settlement.

Confederacy Is Formed.

Nevertheless, in this strain of events there was no little unconscious humor. In the Republican convention, for example, a plank was proposed for the platform declaring that all men are born free and equal. Joshua Giddings proposed it. It was solemnly voted down as being a practical declaration against slavery. Giddings walked out of the convention, and George William Curtis later proposed reconsideration, as it seemed hardly wise for the party to refuse to accept the basic statements of the Declaration of Independence, and the plank was adopted. The same similar episodes in the present day when agitators, barred from holding public meetings, get themselves arrested for reading the constitution on a street corner as a demonstration of their right to free speech.

Immediately after the election, the secession movement got under way in the South, and by February the Confederacy was formed. Congress struggled to avoid the coming conflict, and adopted a proposal by Douglas to amend the Constitution with a provision that slavery should never be abolished. War intervened before this was submitted to the states. Like various other efforts of Congress and of President Buchanan, this effort failed to stay the wrath of the southern states, which [illegible] to possible [illegible] of the Union.

An interesting sidelight of the campaign from its political side has been the charges of corrupt spending of money. Production Peak Reached By Hupp On 20th Birthday

Anniversary Finds Company Enjoying Greatest Year As New Century Cars Set All-Time Sales Records

Rolling up a new all-time September production and shipment record, the Hupp Motor Car Corporation last week rounded out the twentieth year of its business.

Back in 1908 a small group of Detroit men formed what was known as the Hupp Motor Car Company, to build a small runabout, as it was called in those days.

In its first year's operation the total production was 1618 cars.

In 1928, the twentieth year of the company's existence, there have been individual weeks in which that first year's production was surpassed.

Announcement on October 1 showed that September, 1928, was the eighth consecutive month in which shipments exceeded any corresponding period of the company's history, reaching a total of 6,536 cars. The number was 65 per cent greater than in any previous September and 166 per cent greater than in September 1927.

Shipments are Numerous

In the first nine months of 1928 according to the announcement, shipments were 56,982 cars, a figure not only 91 per cent more than the shipments for the first nine months of last year but actually 38 per cent more than the shipments for the entire year of 1927.

Hupmobile growth in factory area and facilities has been as striking as in production. In 1908 the company's operations started in a small group of rented buildings on Bellevue avenue, Detroit. Today its factories cover 20 acres of ground with over 1,500,00 square feet of floor space and with additional units under construction. It has also its own axle plant and heat treating plants at Jackson, Michigan.

Expansion First in 1910

Hupmobile's first step in expansion was made in 1910 when the plant was moved to new quarters on East Jefferson avenue. There the little red runabout blossomed into a touring car and a coupe, and into what was called at the time a torpedo roadster. In 1913, the model "20" was supplanted by the model "32", a product designed on European lines, both as to its small bore, long-stroke engine and as to body design.

By 1913 the company's business had outgrown the plant on Jefferson avenue and a new building was erected at Milwaukee and Mt. Elliott avenues, the present site of the factories which today produce the Hupmobile. But the original plant erected there in 1913 was merely the nucleus for a great group of buildings which now spread over acres of ground and today house the finest and most modern facilities which have been devised for the production of fine automobiles.

Model Follows Model

Model followed model in Hupmobile production as advancing automobile demands called for larger and more luxuriously cars but until 1924 only a four cylinder engine had been installed in any product of the company. The Hupp Four established a reputation for Hupmobile quality that was world wide. But the company was not blind to the progress of the industry in which it was a conspicuous factor and in 1925 it announced the first Hupmobile Eight, a model which met with immediate and lasting success. This was followed by a Six which scored an equal record in popular demand.

With the introduction last Fall and Winter of its present line of Century Eights and Sixes, the Hupp Motor Vorporation entered upon the most active and prosperous period of its entire history. Adding a new ideal of beauty to the longstanding qualities of performance and durability which had always characterized Hupmobile products, the new cars have proved one of the outstanding sensations of automobile annals during the present year and bid fair to continue indefinitely the widespread volume of record-breaking sales which has made the twenthe climax of a long and honorable series.

Saginaw's Fame Being Regained

Former Timber Capital Of America Is Selected As Home Of New Chevrolet Casting Foundry

Saginaw, Michigan, one of the finest industrial centers in the middle west because of its proximity to Great Lakes water transportation, is mast regaining the fame it knew back in the rugged days when it was the timber capital of America.

Today, Saginaw is the home of the Chevrolet foundry with a pouring capacity of 1,000 melting tons a day. The first of next year, by reason of intensive construction work now home of one of the world's largest foundries with a capacity of 2,000 tons a day, and will boast one of the world's most modern inland docks at which pig iron and sand will be unloaded from lake points to be cast into millions of Chevrolet castings.

Double Floor Space

Foundations for the 212,364 foot addition, which will almost double the present floor space, are now completed.

As early as December 1, it is anticipated, the foundrymen will be at work in their new quarters. And by the time the ice breaks on the Great Lakes next spring, the great 650 foot dock will be receiving the lake freighters with a loading capacity of 40,000 tons a month.

The present foundry, originally the Grey Iron Foundry of Saginaw Products Company, a subsidiary of the General Motors Corporation, was built in 1919 and was taken over by the Chevrolet Motor company in September, 1927. Prior to that time it had been specializing on Buick, Oakland and part of Chevrolet's cylinder block and head casting.

The present foundry in the relatively small space of the present buildings has been showing a daily output almost the equal of foundries with three and four times the room and double the man power. Arnold Lenz, superintendent of the Saginaw foundry, and generally the remarkable output record, says that concentrated effort, more than revolutionary equipment, has accounted for the showing.

The new foundry, however, Lenz says, will introduce several innovations. There will be many labor saving devices. The new cupolas will be so constructed as to be capable of 20 consecutive hours operation instead of the nine they now operate. Mechanical charging of the furnaces will be another new feature.

De Sota Found To Be Smooth Riding

Dealers Report Popularity Of Latest Chrysler-Made Product; Roadability And Riding Qualities Please

Riding ease tnd general roadability are two DeSota Six characteristics which neveh fail to provoke favorable comment from those driving the newest Chrysler-built car, reports from dealers all over the country show. The smoothness with which the DeSota Six negotiates roads of every description surprises and satisfies even veteran drivers, they say.

These features of riding ease and roadability were by no means arrived at accidentally. Chryler engineers say that in working out their ideal of superior riding qualities for the DeSota Six they went far beyond the old method of merely balancing spring deflections to car weights. In designing the car they had definitley in mind a smooth road performance. As a result they planned the entire spring suspension to conform with the sprung and unsprung weights, thus obtaining the proper balance and stability necessary to insure smooth riding under all conditions.

Use New Spring

Unsprung weight, engineers explain, is all of that weight of the car not supported by the chassis springs. Reducing the unsprung weight to a minimum materially improves the riding qualities and roadability of the car, because the less the unsprung weight the less will be the tendency of the wheels and axles to bounce on rough roads. By minimizing the bouncing of these units severe shocks are not transmitted through the springs to the frame.

Under normal load conditions the semi-elliptic springs of the riding point while rebound is cared for at all four points by means of Lovejoy hydraulic shock absodbers. The springs are made up of a number of thin leaves which provide additional snubbing action to assist the shock absorbers. These are graded very carefully in pairs to avoid any tnedency of the car to sag to one side or the other. A noticeable feature is that the DeSota Six springs are especially designed to operate properly with the hydraulic shock absorbers used on the car. This assures an unusual degree of riding comfort and roadability because the shock absorbers match the springs used.

DeSota Six springs are mounted with their front ends bolted to the frame. The rear ends of both the front and rear springs are mounted in special shackles which insure automatic shackle adjustment. This is accomplished by means of a flat spring between the head of the shackle bolt and the shackle. By drawing this spring to a predetermined position, tension is kept on the shackles where they fit onto the spered ends of the spring bushings.

Adulterated Gas Racket Is Found

Cleveland Probes Sale Of Poor Fuel; Conspiracy Of National Scope Believed To Have Been Uncovered

By NEA Sedvice

CLEVELAND, Oct. 13.—A "gasoline racket" that may prove to exist nationally has been disclosed by the Cleveland Automobile Club from a survey it made of the types of fuel sold in this area.

The survey shows that much adulterated gasoline is being sold to motorists unler various guises and that back of the attraction of lower prices lie greater profits due to the mixture of inferior oils with the gasoline.

This situation was revealed by the auto club after it had been led to make the survey and analyze some 49 different brands of gasoline sold in the Cleveland area, upon complaints made by motorists and dealers.

"The reason back of this adulteration is two-fold", says Fred H. Caley, secretary of the Cleveland Auto Club.

Cheap Fuel Tax

"One is to cheapen a product so that it may be sold unled a price that deputable firms, selling an honest product, are compelled to charge.

"The second is that adulteration of gasoline permits the sale of a product upon which partial payment of the state gasoline tax of three cents a gallon may be evaded.

"The 'racket' works pretty much in this fashion:

"A certain quantity of gasoline is purchased—100 gallons, for instance. On this purchase the state gasoline tax of three cents per gallon is paid.

"A quantity of kerosene than is purchased, but on this no tax is required.

Make Double Profit

"Then, by mixing with the 200 gallons of gasoline about 30 gallons of kerosene, 130 gallons of alleged motor fuel are produced motoring public, who pay the full These 130 gallons are sold to the tax on each of the 130 gallons of alleged gasoline.

"Hence, adherents to the practice of adulterating gasaline not only defraud the state but also the unsuspecting motorists."

The answer to this situation, according to Caley, is legislation that will halt the sale of such products. The Cleveland Automobile Club is going to use its influence toward the passage of such a law in Ohio.

For the benefit of deaf people, to whom the ordinary alarm clock is of no use, a new invention of a Bavarian bounces a rubber ball on the sleeper's head at the hour selected.

Doctor Removes His Own Appendix

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 13 (AP).—Robert Meals, young Hollywood surgeon, who three days ago removed his own appendix, today said he felt well enough to get up and walk, and "I would do so now instead of waiting the necessary ten days if I thought it would be safe."

Neither economy, necessity, nor desire for publicity prompted his self operation the doctor said. Rather the operation was an experiment to verify his previous conclusion that the "shock", which most paatients suffer from operation was due largely to anesthesia rather than the operation itself. This theory, he said, had been corroborated.

Sueh an operation has been performed only two or three times before in surgical history, doctors said.

Poison Booze For Rival Is Potent; Slayer To Jail

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 13 (AP)—Morris Cohen, a 22 year old junk dealer, was under sentence of life imprisonment today for the murder of Hyman Friedman through the use of poisoned liquor.

Evidence brought out at the trial was to the effect that Cohen, to get rid of Friedman's son, his rival in love, poisoned a bottle of liquor and left in in his rival's automobile. The elder Friedman found the liquor, drank it and died.

"Short Measure" Sale Of Gasoline To American Car Owners Results In Loss Of $20,000,000 Yearly, A. A. A. Reports

Estimate Of American Auto Association Is Based On Check Of 'Gyp Operators' Of Gas Pumps In U. S.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 13.—Urging the importance of administrative machinery in all states for the enforcement of weights and measures laws, the American Automobile Association declared today that the loss to car owners of the country at the hands of "gyp" operators of gasoline pumps is conservatively estimated at $20,000,000 a year.

The statement of the national motoring bory, it is said, is based on an analysis of a check-up made by affiliated A. A. A. motor clubs and by civic authorities at widely separated points throughout the country.

Charge Dishonest Vendors

"This estimate of loss to the car owners through disronest vendors of motor fuel," said the statement, "is in all probability an understatement rather than an overestimate. The inadequacy of enforcement machinery is at the root of the evil and in order that this may be corrected, we have prepared as the basis of action by our clubs, an analysis of the situation as regards weights and measures laws and the the enforcement thereof in all states".

A. A. A. Statement

The statement continues:

"In the middle western city, a check-up of gasoline stations disclosed that out of 91 stations tester, fifteen or one out of every six was short-selling the motorists. This shortage ranger all the way from one pint to six quarts out of every five gallons sold. This occurred in one of the states where a weight and measure law is in effect and actively enforced.

"There were 11,500,000 gallons of gas sold in the United States in 1927. It is safe to assume that at least one-sixth of this total, or approximately 200,000,000 gallons, was subjected to short sales aid that the shortage averaged one quart in every five gallons.

$20,000,0000 Lost

"This simply means that the motorists were 'gyed' out of some100,-000,000 gallons of gasoline in 1927 and that at the current average cost of gasoline, their money loss was at least $20,000,000.

"Not long ago the weights and measures inspector of an Eastern city with a car population of less than 100,000, declared that the motorists of the city were losing $400,-000 a year through sales. It will readily be seen if this average held true for the country as a whole, the total annual loss would be more than three times the minimum estifate of loss we have made.

Vendors Prosecuted

"In an important suthern city, a check-up of 100 purchases of gasoline resulted in twenty-five prosecutions with twenty-three convictions, the evidence proving shortages ranged from one quart to two gallons in a five gallon sale.

"The method employed in conducting periodical check-ups provides that men actingin cooperation with A. A. A. clubs and civic authorities, have their cars equipped with dummy gasoline tanks, which are in their usual place on the car, and a second tank, with which to operate the car, is usually concealed under the seat or in some other location where it is not noticable. These men visit gas stations of questionable reputation and make five gallon purchtses. The gasoline isthen taken out of sight and measured for accurate volume."

BOND ISSUES APPROVED

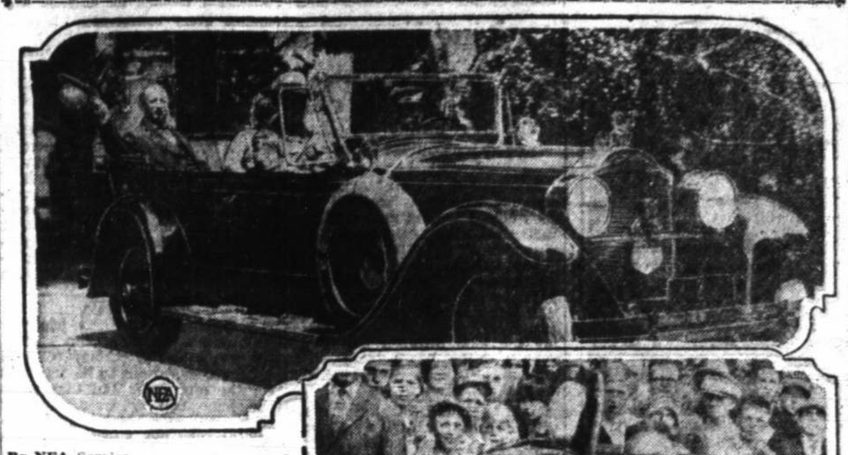
Both Hoover And Smith Favor Good Roads In U. S. A.



By NEA Service

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Whoever of the two leading presidential candidates takes the oath of office next March, the American motoring public will not want for extended co-operation from the White House

For both Herbert Hoove and A' neither sits at the wheel and drives his car himself. In fact, Governor Smith recently remarked that he doesn't even know how to drive an automobile.

Sitting behind their chauffeurs however, the presidental candidate have been in position to know wha troubles automombiling today and to learn what remedies are needed.

Hoover, for instance, is best known in motoring circles for his sponsorship of the First National Conference on Street and Highway Safety. This is popularly termed the Hoover Conference, for he called the highway experts together for that meeting in 1924.

Adopt Hoover Code

Many states save already adopted the uniform motor vehicle code that came out of this conference and there is promise of its early adoption in the rest of the United States.

Hoover called a second conference for the further study of municipal traffic and for standardizing city motoring. This group also has drawn up o system of regulations which is being submitted for adoption by cities throughout the country.

What Hoover has done nationally, Governor Smith has more than duplicated in his state. For New York is considered one of the best motoring states in the country. It is one of the few that require examination of drivers before issuring a license and its strict atdol of the highways is brought home to the more reckless motorists from other states.

When it came to building highways, Smith got Col. Frederick S. Greene, who built the military roads in France for General Pershing, and made him New York state highway commissioner. By the end of 1927 New York had 3,000 miles of concrete roads and 7,000 miles of other tyes.

This year, New York will spend $95,000,000 alone for state roads and bridges. Local units in the state will spend an additional $40,000,000 for the same purpose.

Governor Smith has fought for the elimination of railroad grade crossings and has opposed the operation of toll bridges. Safety especially has been his greatest conecrn, as it is Hoover's.

Both Smith and Hoover have been members of the American Automobile Association for a decade. And both have worked with this organization for the improvement of motoring conditions.

Yet neither has called upon this organization to any great extent for help, report officials of the A. A. A. Hoover has gone so far as to call for routes to fishing points where he could follow his favorite sport. And that is about the extent to which Smith, or rather his chauffeur, has gone.

Contrast as Motorists

As motorists, the two candidates have little in common. Hoover likes to take things easy. Entering his motor car he relaxes, and his drives even from his home to his office are leisurely planned. He doesn't hurry and he apparently gets little thrill out of the rush of traffic.

Fishing is his hobby and he likes to get to his mavorite fishing resorts by motor.

Smith, on the other hand, likes the feel of the wind as he sits back in his open touring car and his chauffeur drives rim along the right-way well up toward the speed limit. He hasn't been known to exceed the limit, but he likes speed nevertheless.

The governor's auto, always with the top down in good weather, bears license tag number 2, with the governor's insignia and that of the state. In front, beside the chauffeur, almost invariably sits a member of the state highway police, while Smith sits comfortably in back with Mrs. Smith or his guests.

Both Smith and Hoover carry the emblem of the A. A. A.

Motoring Through Europe Made Easy

Custom Regulations Present Little Trouble To Foreign Traveler, Reports Pontiac Owner Following Tour

Good news for America's thousands of motorists who are planning to tour Europe by automobile, and a vivid account of the experiences likely to be encountered there, were relater recently by W. Clegg Butt, ... returned from a tour of ten months on the Continent.

Customs regulations—that bane of the foreign traveler—need not deter the American motorist, Mr. Butt reported. "The American touring Europe by motor has little trouble with customs regulations at the various international boundaries, and receives good treatment from the officials as well as from the natives" he said.

Why Small Cars Are Popular

"I had to get a license at once, at the rate of five dollars for each horsepower of the car's engine. This method of taxation explains why small cars of only eight or nine horsepower are so popular in Europe. All foreign cars receive the QQ international license plate, and the number remains the same for the life of the car."

Mr. Butt left Los Angeles last November in his 1926 Pontiac Six sedan and drove to New York, where the car was put on board the liner Olympic, landing at Southampton. Among the experiences he reported was having to pay 35 cents to have a tire pumped up, and idling along idling along in traffic while myriads of hose-drawn vehicles and bicyclists took their time.

"In touring through France and Germany, I found that motorists there are not bothered with any speed limit," Mr. Butt told an afficial of the Oakland Motor Car Company. "You may drive as mast as road conditions will permit. I made the 1187 kilometers from Paris to Monte Carlo in two days, or at the rate of more than 300 miles a day."

Marmon Triumphs In Acceleration, Endurance Tests

Straight-Eights Win First Prizes At Guatemala And Holland In Competition With Other Stock Cars

Marmon straight-eights, in competition with a number of other makes of American and European cars, won first prize in official tests of stock car acceleration and endurance conducted by automobile clubs in Guatelmala and Holland according to word received by H. H. Brooks, general sales director of the Marmon Motor Car Company.

Because acceleration and endurance are two of the qualities most desired in a present day automobile, this double victory is particularly significant since official supervision of the tests and sanction of the results present evidence that Marmon engineers have perfected the performance features of Marmon straight-eights to a remarkable degree.

Test Is Made

The acceleration test was conducted in Guatemala City by the Guatemala Touring Club. It was run over a course 700 meters, or less than half a mile, from a standing start. The winning car was a straight-eight Marmon 78 four-passenger speedster driven by Senior Juan Iriegyen, Marmon dealer in Guatemala, who covered the distance in 34 3-5 seconds at an average speed of 42 miles an hour. To attain this average it was necessary to reach a top speed of more than 80 miles an hour near the end of the short course.

The best time of any of the other cars participating in the event was several seconds slower than that of the Marmon. In winning the Guatemala event, Senior Iriegyen won a second leg on the Marmon Trophy to be permanently awarded by the Guatemala Touring Club to the car which is victorious in three different events. A Marmon straight-eight was the first race a Marmon dealer ever won in the Dutch Indies.

Woman Wins Race

In another race on the same day Senora Isabel Iriegyen, wife of the Marmon dealer drove the same Marmon 78 speedster to victory in a match race over the same course against a man at the wheel of another American car. Senora Iriegyen covered the 700 meters in 38 seconds, a speed of a second less than the winning time of her husband's car.

Two other events were won by Marmon in a twenty-four hour non-stop reliability run conducted by the Royal Dutch Automobile Club in Amsterdam. A straight-eight Marmon 68 sedan entered by Dick Van Ded Mark, Marmon dealer in Amsterdam, finished the trip with the seals which fastened the hood place without the loss of a single joint in the sealing.

A cup also was awarded to the Dutch Marmon dealer for the most regular performance in reaching the checking stations along the route of the test. The drivers of the various cars entered, which included the products of a number of European as well as other American automobile manufacturers, were permitted to travel at any speed desired, the only stipulation being that neither the car nor its engine must stop at any time and the driver must follow the course outlined by the Royal Dutch club officials.

The Marmon 68, however maintained a comfortable lead over its opponents during the run and led at the finish by a considerable margin.

Slump And Your Nerves Fail You

Driving for hours in a slumped position causes fatigue, compresses the lungs so they won't take in air freely, subjects the spinal column to continuous strain and sans nervous energy, warns Dr. William M. Ccholl, orthopedic scientist of Chicago. It's just as easy to sit erect as to slump, he says. And sitting erect, he adds, enables the feet to respond 50 per cent fasteh on the clutch, brake and throttle in emergencies. Photos show the right and the wrong positions in thedriver's seat.

Solomon Levitan, Treasurer Of Wisconsin, Believes His State Has Been Aided By Fuel Tax

By NEA Sedvice

Madison, Wis., Oct. 13.—The gasoline tax is the fairest plan yet devised for financing road construction, according to Solomon Levita, state treasurer of Wisconsin.

Levition is vice president of the North American Gasoline Tax Conference, meeting at Memphis, Tenn., this year.

"The gasoline tax," he says, "has accomplished more toward the construction of good roads throughout the nation than any other factor. Since ancient days good roads have been one of the evidences of a progressive civilization and good government."

But the co-operation of all branches of government is needed to make possible a nationwide system like that being built up in this country, Levitan insists.

"With the extensive travel by should be planned so they are continuous from state to state. This course has been followed to some many of out highways are patchwork of several miles of concrete leading to some small town, and from there on a number of miles of bad road that is likely to be impassable in stormy weather.

"The financing of road construction by means of the gasoline tax is the most equitable plan yet devised. It eliminates the necessity of bonding the community for this purpose and places the burden of cost on those who deap the direct benefits of good roads.

"Every automobile owner realizes that good roads save more in the wear and tear on a car than the gas tax he pays amounts to in a year."

Not only that, Levitan contends the benefits of the gac tax come back to the motorist in the form of stimulated industry, improved farm conditions and a more friendly and personal relationship among the people of the country.

Smith Backers Wreck Auto Decorated For GOP

RALEIGH, N. C., Oct. 13 (AP).—David Peebles and Harry Seawell attempted to drive a car decorated with their Hoover banners in the Smith parade here yesterday.

A mob of spectators broke ranks at the curb halted the car, smashed its headlights, wrenched off a door, ripped up the upholstery, slashed a tire and plastered the body with Smith stickers. Seawell and Peebles fled.

Travel Value Of Marmon Shown By Long Excursion

Economy, Speed, And Comfort Is Proven In Cross-Country Jaunt By Engineers In Tourist Role

Assuming the role of a party of everyday tourists or business travelers during a 2,412 mile trip from Indianapolis to Los Angeles, four members of the Marmon experimental engineering staff have completed one of the most unusual journeys on record during which they demonstrated, conclusively, the growing value of the modern motor car for long distance travel, not only from the standpoint of speed and comfort, but economy as well.

Summing up the results of the trip, it is apparent that the family which wishes to "See America First" in a manner that, without the hindrance of fixed schedules, suits its own fancy may do so by automobile with no fear of excessive cost. The expenses of the Marmon party were, in fact, only about one-fourth the total estimated cost by train for four people who allow for overnight stops in comfortable hotels rather than continuing railroad travel day and night.

Test Cooling System

From an engineering standpoint, the primary purpose of the cross-county journey was not one of speed or endurance but to make a final test of the cooling system in the New Series Marmon 68. Only one quart of water was used on the journey although the "68" sedan with four passengers was driven over the Southern route to the coast which includes travel in desert and mountain regions as well as over almost every conceivable kind of roadway.

The party arrived in Los Angeles on the evening of the fifth day after leaving Indianapolis. Distances of 400 to 507 miles were covered each day and nights were spent in hotels in Kansas City, Kans, Syracuse, Kans., Albuerque, N. M, and Williams, Ariz. But 61 hours of driving time were required to complete the entire trip, making the average speed approximately 40 miles an hour, a rate that may be maintained steadily without fatigue and with ample opportunity to "see the sights" along the way.

Expenses $400

A detailed log of the trip was kept and a final checkup showed the entire cost of gasoline, oil and hotel accomodations to be only $110 for the four men. Had they made the same trip by train, stopping each night in a hotel and combining, as they did, speed with comfort and pleasure, their total expense would have been in the neighborhood of $400.

AAA Recognizes Five Endurance And Speed Marks

New World Records Made As Stock Cars Of U. S. Compete On Atlantic City Speedway In Five Classes

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 13.—Officials recognition of five new world speed and endurance records made by an American stock car has just been granted by the International Association of Recognized Automobile Clubs in Paris, according to the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association.

The new world records were all made by a strictly stock Studebaker Presirent Eight roadster, one of four Studebaker President Eight models which covered 30,000 miles on the Atlantic City Speedway at sustained averaged speeds ranging fram 64 to 68 miles per hour.

Record Runs Listed

International recognition was accorded the records made by the fastest of the four cars at five periods during the run. The new marks are as follows: 10,000 miles, average speed 68.82 m. p. h.; 15,000 miles, average speed 68.59 m. p. h.; 20,000 miles, average speed 68.55 m. p. h.; 25,000 miles, average speed 68.59 m. p. h.; 30,000 miles, average speed 68.37 m. p. h.

According to A. H. Means, Asst. Secretary of the Cotest Board of the A. A. A., the International Association does not differentiate between special built racing cars and stock cars in record trials. Thus the new world records made by the Studebaker President exceed all previous racing car performances and are the best for any class of car for all time.

During the course of their run the four Studebakers shattered all previous records for fully equipped stock cars from 3,000 to 30,000 miles. The official record distances for 3,000, 4,000 and 5,000 miles were accorded recognition as American decords by the international authority. At these distances, the President Eight averaged 68.71, 68.72 and 68.82 miles per hour respectively.

DOCTOR INJURED

Men Who Ask Physician To Make Call Attack Him

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Oct. 13 (AP).—Slugged by two men who appeared at his office and asked him to make an emergency sick call, Dr. H. C. Alston was in a hospital today. The physician was weak from loss of blood, and it had not been determined if his skull was fractured.

Dr. Ralston, 35, was in his apartment adjoining his office in the Citizen's Bank building, when the two men appeared this morning and asked that he visit a woman who was seriously ill. As the doctor turned to a desk to take the address of the woman, both men struck him with blackjacks, rendering him unconscious.

Detectives could find no motive for the attack.

Graham Brothers Trucks Tested On Proving Grounds

Careful Checking Is Given All Products That Leave Plant Despite Schedules Of Record Production

High standards of dependability and performance demanded in trucking and commercial hauling are insured by road tests for every truck that leaves the final assembly line of the Graham plant, truck division of Dodge Brothers. Despite record-breaking production and a heavy bank of unfilled orders, the company insists that all trucks and commercial cars must be carefully tested on a concrete proving course within the factory grounds.

On this test track all capacities and types of Graham trucks range from the Merchants Express to the three-ton units are carefully checkewinged before final delivery to dealers. It is a common sight to see a dozen different types on the track at once, following each other around the track in rapid succession, and representing the hundreds of varied types in which the company furnishes trucks. Particular attention is given engine performance, acceleration and brake operation, and trucks failing to pass the road tests are sent back to the final test department where adjustments and final tuning are made.

Ready For Immediate Use

Graham engineers point to these tests as a distinct advantage to the buyer, who has a right to expect a truck for immediate service with every mechanical detail carefully checked by thorough inspection and actual road tests.

The track is 18 feet wide with the turns elevated five feet, and circles the final test building. In this building, inspectors and mechanics supervise the work of final testing.

In addition to the track tests of every units, the company sends a fleet of trucks on long cross country runs through rugged sections several times each year for tests of new models and mechanical improvements. On these grueling grinds, the trucks are operated on the steep mountain grades 24 hours every day by relays of drivers who subject them to all conditions encountered in commercial hauling.

HOW'S SHE HITTIN'

By ISRAEL KLEIN

BY ISRAEL KLEIN

Summer may have spelled us for the rest of the year. Driving, so fas as care of the car was concerned, went along smoothly and lack of trouble enhanced ouh enjoyment of the season.

But cold weather is coming along and we should be prepared for it. Fully prepared, thereis no reason why we shouldn't continue enjodment of the automobile, despite the cold.

Preparation for the inter driving should begin now. With so long a start, time may be had for leosurely attending to all parts of the automobile.

Reviewing the troubles most common to motoring in winter, we find uppedmost that of overheating the engine. Therefore our first thought should be that of avoiding motor overheating so far as possible.

The first step in avoinding overheeating is maintaining a perfect cooling system. The radiator must be intact, not a hole in it, and it must be cleared of all rust and other matter that might clog it up. The cylinder head should also be cleaned of rusty accumulations—and summer is the time when this happens.

The hose connections must be in good shape and should be tightened up where they connect with the radiatoh and cylinder head. And the water pump must be tight and leak-proof.

To keep the radiator and cylinder head clear of rust and other material that is liable to clog the circulation, the cooling system should be cleansed thoroughly. This, in wact, should be done at least four times a year.

It is a simple operation. First the water in the system is drained out. Then fresh water is poured in clowly, the engine kept dunning so that it may be pumped through the entire system, and the thumbscrew at the bottom of the radiator kept open to let the water flush out.

Then the thumb-screw is shut and the radiator filled about half way with fresh water. A solution of baking soda, about two tablespoonsful to a glass of water, is pourel into the system and the radiator filled the rest of the way with fresh water. This soda solution eats out the rust that accumulates on the walls of the cylinder head and in the radiator and clears the system of this refuse.

After running the car for a day or so this solution should be drained out, the system should be flushed again with clear water, and then refilled.

Flushing and refilling the cooling system will do much toward avoiding overheating troubles. But the rubber hose couplings should be renewed or tightened, so that there is no chance of any leakage through them.

The water pump must also be tightened up, especially the nut that covers the packing, so that there is no leakage from here. If the nut cain't be tightened any further, and the pump still eaks, new packing will have to replace the old. This is a simple operation.

As part of the cooling system, the fan is an important factor. The fan belt must be kept tight and in good condition, so that the utmost air cooling may be added to that of the water. Let the fan belt slip a little and it will show in the thermometer.

If there happens to be a leak in the radiator, no matter how small, have the leak soldered up by a competent radiator repair man.

Roadster Success Of Past Leads Chrysler To Make 5-Passenger Models In New Colors And Designs

Sparkling lines, bright colors and dashing appearance, combined with mush special equipment and considerable design improvements over those of "touring cars" as they were built and known several years ago, are features Chrysler believes will win, for the phaeton it is announcing today as an addition to its "75" body styles, a popularity similar to that which the company achieved with its roadster when Chrysler began recreating "the vogue of the roadster" four four years ago.

The new car has a custom body of five passenger capacity, with distinctive design that instantly attracts and holds attention. One for seven, also on the "75" chassis, is to accompany it soon.

"The design of the car is so leasing in its appeal to the eye that it will attract immediate attention," says Joe Hilton, local Chrysler dealer. "Many of our regular roadster patrons will be among its first purchasers. It will also be bought by many whose second car heretofore has been a coupe or two-door sedan.

Objections Overcome

"Objections to the types of five passenger open cars, as they were known several years ago, were due to air currents that proved bothersome to rear seat passengers at steady highway driving speeds, and to the inadequacy of the side curtains. Both these difficulties, apparent in the earlier days of the industry, have been overcome by Chrysler's modern design methods. Raising and lowering of the top of old style open cars, also difficult, can be done with this new phaeton as easily as with any of the Chrysler roadsters."

Changed tonneau construction includes building rear doors and rear body lines higher, with windshield and integral folding cowl for the rear compartment offered as special equipment. Both this and the front windshield are of non-shatterable glass.

Flashing Color Scheme

The standard color combination is Mexican torquoise blue, with mouldings in Sarasotæ blue, striped with ivory. Both blues are of light shade and, in combination, present a flashing appearance. This same distinctive combination of colorings is carried throughout the car, including wheel spokes, hub, felloe and brake drums, fenders, splash guards, radiator shutters, gas tank and cover, and other chassis parts. Tan-colored Colonial grain hand-buffed leather is used for seat cushions, side arms and arm rests.

Top is of special construction and folds down completely when lowered. It is finished in tan, the fabric being thoroughly dyed, shrunk and waterproofed. All door curtains and the wide back curtain are removable, with space for storing them. The tool kit compartment, built into the left front door, is equipped with lock and key.

Much other standard and special equipment, including top boot, brightly finished tonneau windshield stanchions and ventilators, windshield wiper, rear view mirror, robe rail, wire wheels, fender wells, trunks and trunk racks, is available.

New Factor Seen In Field Of Low Priced Car Line

Executives Of Chrysler Co. Find New Plymouth Models Surpassing Expectations With Record Sales

A new and powerful factor in the field of low-price cars is seen by executives of the Chrysler Corporation, it's the Plymouth, introduced by Chrysler three months ago.

No less an authority than J. W. Frazer, Chrysler and Plymouth Sales Manager, makes the statement that the success of this car to date has far surpassed even the high expectations of its executives when the car was launched.

"Greeted by the American public with an enthusiasm which immediately caused us to enlarge our productive facilities in an effort to meet its demand, the Plymouth's growing buying has necessitated further plant rearrangements and considerable enlargement of its production," he said in Detroit yesterday. "As quickly as we increase its production new buying sources arise."

Reasons for Success Given

Mr. Frazer attributes the phenomenal success the Plymouth is enjoying to five primary factors. These are its distinctive appearance, large size, remarkable performance capacity, the care with which it is built under the company's Standardized Quality principle, and its extremely modes price.

"It is literally a car amply large to accommodate five adult passengers in comfort," he continues. "As such, our dealers tell us that the two and four door sedans, in particular, have been eagerly sought as the car for their families by parents of average means. The coupe is enjoying a tremendous sale to those whose business requires the use of a car to save time and money and who feel that a car of modest price answers their purpose practically as well as one involving a larger outla yof funds. The roadster, likewise being heavily bought, is selling splendidly because of its swager appearance, the snap and zest of its performance plus the roadster vogue particularly among younger people."

Applications for rights to sell the Plymouth have been received by the hundreds since its announcement.

The crown of an uneven brimmed black hatters' plush hat is swathed in a three cornered piece made of grosgrain and satin ribbon, joined to make diagonal stripes. It is tied, like a kerchief in front, with the short ends flaring.

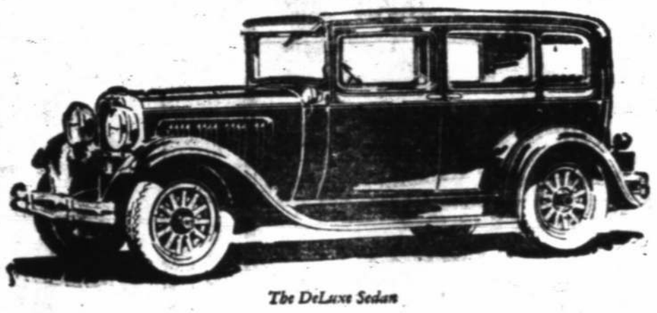
DODGE BROTHERS
NEW VICTORY SIX



The DeLuxe Sedan

Smarter in Appearance — More Luxurious in Appointments — With Increased Room and Still Finer Performance

Style stands out in all nine new Victory body types. There is an inviting swagger in the sweep of the improved one-piece fenders, an assurance of power in the higher and more massive radiator and hood lines.

Bodies are not only smarter, but larger, providing increased head-room, leg-room and seat-comfort. Deeper, softer cushions and specially selected hardware and upholstery sound a distinctive note of interior luxury, while higher and wider doors facilitate entrance and exit.

The new Victory Six emphasizes the unusual structural advantages first introduced in the original Victory. The chassis frame is so bolted to the body that it literally becomes a part thereof—a simplified, more rugged, and squeak-proof construction that reduces weight, eliminates rattles and lowers the center of gravity.

This unique Victory design provides roadability and riding ease as remarkable and unusual as Victory pick-up, power and flexibility.

There is just one way to find out how different and better Victory performance really is. Drive the car yourself!

A GREAT ACHIEVEMENT
IMPROVED COLD WEATHER PERFORMANCE Resulting from the CROSS-FLOW RADIATOR

Successful Six now winning Even Greater Success

The cross-flow radiators in the cooling systems of the Pontiac Six and the Oakland All-American Six reduce to a minimum losses of water and alcohol. An automatic thermostat prevents water circulation until the engine reaches correct operating temperature. As a consequence the engine warms up quickly and less choking is needed, reducing dilution of crankcase oil.

Because of the protection the cross-flow radiator provides against losses of water and alcohol, the Pontiac Six and the All-American Six require less attention in winter than other cars. This is only one of the many advancements which only the Pontiac Six and the All-American Six provide.

New Era Of Prosperity For Lamesa And Dawson County Opens; Building Permits Reflect Section's Growth

More Land Goes To Plow, More People Erect Homes And Everthing Generally Improves, Report Says

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

LAMESA, Oct. 13.—Lamesa continues to grow. The building permits by the first of October show a total of $240,343.50. Other building is planned and will be permitted within the next few days. These building permits include business houses, garages, filling stations and dwellings, all of which are the very best and most modern. In the residence section the fad of building is brick and stucco, while in the business section, all of course are brick and of permanent type.

When one compares the figures of a few years back with the present day figures in Lamesa the result is hard to believe, the change is so marvelous. As in most West Texas cities, Lamesa has made equal strides forward in building and development. At the very best, it is predicted that yet this forward marching stride has just started in this most westward agricultural section.

Comparisons Made.

In the matter of comparative figures we take the following: In the high school in 1924 there were 270 students; today the records show an increase of exactly 100; the enrollment of the grammar school has an equal proportionate increase showing in 1924 less than 500. Today the grammar school shows 741 enrollment. The total enrollment of the school system in 1924 was only a little less than 800. Today the total enrollment is better than 1100 with an attendance at this time of better than 1300. The school enrollment and attendance of the county has shown an increase of from a little better than 3,000 in 1924 to around 3,600 today.

In 1924 Lamesa had 86 good business homes with this number increased today to 118. In the corporate limits of Lamesa in 1924 there were less than 450 homes, while today there are better than 1,000 good, modern dwellings. The population of Lamesa in 1924 is shown to be around 4,000 people and today the estimate is placed between five and six thousand, with all houses filled and a demand for more homes.

Cultivation Increases.

In Dawson county in 1924 there were less than 200,000 acres in cultivation while now there are better than 300,000 acres in cultivation with approximately 200,000 acres in cotton. In 1924 the hog population was less than 1,000 head for the county. Today, the county can boast of having not less than 10,000 head of swine. The cow population of the county in 1924 was less than 900 head of good grade jersey dairy stuff. A recent survey shows the county to have close to 5,000 head with better than 100 head of this amount registered and pedigreed. The cream sales of the county in 1924 were less than $2,000 per month. Now the sales are averaging better than $6,000 per month.

The bank deposits in 1924 went as high as $2,000,000. It went as low as around $1,000,000. This year the figures show better than a million average with expectation of peak to run close to $2,000,000 or better. It will be remembered that 1923 and 1924 were known as "Big Business" years for Lamesa and Dawson county. It was an era of what was termed "boom" years. Today, and since these times there has been no "boom," but a steady forward marching development. The postoffice receipts have about the same comparison as the bank deposits, reaching this year almost the figure in 1924.

Feed Crop Is Good.

Dawson county will harvest above an average feed crop this season. She has planted to feed around 100,000 acres and it will produce as good quality and as much per acre as heretofore according to those who have taken occasion to make comparison in the matter of feed. It is estimated that 200,000 acres of cotton are planted this year. Cotton however, is not so good as usual and it probably will yield one-fourth bale per acre on the average. But cotton has not had a fair chance in Dawson this year. The continued and heavy rains in August brought a duluge of all kinds of worms that made fast devastation of forms and bolls as quickly as they could put on. The plant went to stalk and became too rank for fruiting. But since the middle of September, with the early fruiting of cotton and the passing of the pest, cotton has done well. With an open October, with no freeze until the first of November, it is estimated that the county will produce 40,000 bales or better. When it Dawso county is one of the leaders in West Texas and of the South Plains. The recent Dawson county fair was a creditible show window of Dawson county products. This fair was dubbed as the "The Little State Fair" and there all sorts of farm products were shown including corn, maize, grain cotton, feterita, kafir, fruits, vegetables, livestock of all kinds and of course textile hand work, cookies, relics, and all that would be expected in a county fair and they were the very best.

Some fine hogs and dairy cattle including circle bulls were shown in the Dawson county fair. These same entries took first places in the Panhandle-South Plains Fair at Lubbock, as did a number of other entries. Dawson county was the first county of the South Plains this year in the Panhandle South Plains Fair, being awarded third place of all exhibits there, the first going to Roosevelt county, New Mexico and the second to Potter county on the North Plains leaving Dawson first for the South Plains.

It is generally felt here that this section is beginning a new era of prosperity and development, not the boom type, but a steady and permanent kind. Yet, there are more than 200,000 acres of land to be under the plow. These lands are as good as that now in cultivation and can be purchased at reasonable low figures.

Lamesa is now making a fight to locate here a milk plant or creamery which would help the county to take its place with the leading counties of the Southwest in the dairy industry.

Next spring the Panhandle Sa... Auction Sale convenes here, in the midst of the South Plains blooded hogs population.

Egypt is nearly twice as large as the state of Texas, but only a small part of its immense area is settled and cultivated.

GIRL BROUGHT BACK

Two States Make Search For Her Abductor

ROCKFORD, Ill., Oct. 13 (AP).—Anna Domino, 19, is back home with her parents while police of northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin are looking for Peter Scifo, a former suitor, whom the girl charges kidnaped her Thursday while she was on her way home from work and held her prisoner overnight in a grocery store at Janesville, Wis.

Miss Domino was rescued from her abductors today after she had managed to telephone her parents, informing them of her plight.

Scifo, Miss Domino said, tried to force her to marry him.
