

THREE GRAY COUNTY FARMERS ON SPECIAL AAA TRAIN TO WASHINGTON

WILL SUPPORT GOVERNMENT'S FARM POLICIES

LOCAL MEN ALSO TO STUDY CONTRACT PROCEDURE

Thoroughly in accord with government farm policies, and determined to show the national capital as much, three Gray county farmers are among those now "marching" on Washington.

They are L. L. Palmer, representing cotton farmers; Irvn Cole, secretary of the wheat division; and Edwin G. Nelson, member of the wheat control body's board of directors. They left Saturday night, going to Fort Worth to board the special train. County farmers are contributing to their expense today to join the march for 4 days, they will consult the Texas representatives and others and will spend some time in the AAA offices, studying procedure to enable them to co-operate more effectively in submitting contracts for approval. They will return here next Sunday.

WASHINGTON, May 13. (AP)—More than 600 Texas farmers, intent on demonstrating how well they like the administration's farm policies, were on their way to Washington today to join other growers of principal commodities from southern states.

C. H. Day of Plainview, Texas, sponsor of the "march on Washington," said 301 were on the special train and 310 on another. They left Fort Worth and Longview yesterday and are scheduled to reach the capital early tomorrow. A delegation of ten from Cottle county, Texas, arrived by automobile at dawn today. Although his plans were not complete, Day said at least four Texans, representing the wheat, corn, hog, cotton and rice areas of their state, probably would be on the two-hour program tomorrow morning in the department of labor building.

"We plan one speaker representing growers of each principal commodity," Day said as he welcomed early arrivals in his downtown hotel suite. "I don't know just who they will be until the big crowd arrives tonight and early tomorrow. We also will have a 'key' speaker to start the meeting off."

Day said the visiting Texans would make headquarters in their pullman cars to be placed at an advantageous spot in the railroad yards. Tentative plans call for a visit to the Texas delegation in congress tomorrow afternoon, with Wednesday being given to sight-seeing. The farmers will leave for home Wednesday night.

Day said he also was trying to arrange a dinner for tomorrow night for the farmers and their congressmen.

McLean Woman In Jail Here, to Face Complaints

Mrs. F. C. Barnett of McLean, driver of an automobile which crashed into another car near McLean on the night of May 5, causing the death of Robert David Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Smith of McLean, was brought to Pampa yesterday and lodged in the county jail. She is charged with driving while intoxicated and with theft of an automobile.

County Attorney Sherman White said this morning that he would file murder charges against Mrs. Barnett. District Attorney Lewis Goodrich and Dr. R. A. Webb, county health officer, drove to Amarillo this afternoon to ask Potter county officials to hold an inquest. Mrs. Barnett had been in St. Anthony hospital in Amarillo until yesterday. While in the hospital, Mrs. Barnett was under guard of Deputies O. T. Lindsey of McLean and Frank Heskey of Pampa.

Zane Smith, the father, and Zane Smith Jr., and Dickie Smith remain in St. Anthony hospital. Their condition is satisfactory. Mrs. Smith and Peggy Smith have been released from the hospital.

Funeral arrangements for Robert David have not been made.

Game Tonight Is "Off"—Wet Field

A wet field will cause postponement of the scheduled baseball game between the Pampa Road Runners and the Huber Carbon Blackfaces tonight at 8:30 o'clock. Date of the game will be announced later.

Road Runner officials visited the field early this afternoon, finding several wet places that would not be dry tonight.

On Friday night at 8:30 o'clock, the Phillips "66" Oilers of Borger will tangle with the Road Runners here. The two teams will meet in Borger on Wednesday night.

Escaped Convict Shot Down

GIVES BATTLE TO POSSE WHEN DOGS FIND HIM

ONLY ONE MAN YET AT LARGE FROM PRISON FARM

CROCKETT, May 13. (AP)—Sam Grant, 40, one of two convicts at liberty of a group which fled from the Eastham prison farm Friday, was shot and instantly killed today in an exchange of fire with a posse composed of guards and peace officers.

Grant, who was under a life sentence for murder from Eastland county, fell with seven slugs in his body.

A fisherman, whose name was not learned immediately, recognized Grant as he sought a place to cross the Trinity river several miles southwest of the farm. The fisherman notified farm officials, and Captain B. B. Monzingo, the farm manager, immediately organized the posse.

Led by bloodhounds, the posse came upon the convict about seven miles southwest of the farm.

R. C. Tipton, also under a life sentence for murder, was the only one of the convicts remaining at liberty. The break in which they made their escape Friday took the lives of a guard and a convict.

No trace was found of Tipton today. He was believed to have slipped out of the river bottoms, and fled in a stolen car.

Family Dies

Five deaths in his family in a month led to arrest of Frederick Gross, 49, above, $20-a-week book-keeper for a New York City chemical firm. He firmly denied knowledge of how his wife and four children met their deaths, after thallium sulphate was found in tissues of the mother and one child. A homicide charge has been filed against Gross.

WHEAT PLANS TO BE TALKED AT MEETINGS

WOMEN, BUSINESS MEN URGED TO HEAR DETAILS

Wheat farmers in Gray county will have an opportunity to discuss the wheat referendum of May 21 at local meetings to be held at the various wheat producing communities of the county, according to County Agent, Ralph R. Thomas.

The chairman of the local community farm organizations will be in charge of the arrangements for these meetings. Women are especially invited to these meetings. Business men are also invited and urged to attend at least one of these meetings to familiarize themselves with the wheat situation. Although the national vote is to be May 25, permission for an earlier vote in Gray county was granted.

Meetings will be held the following dates at the times and places: Bell, Monday, May 13, 4 p. m. Pampa, Monday, May 13, 8 p. m. Laketon, Tuesday, May 14, 8 p. m. Hopkins, Wednesday, May 15, 8 p. m. Schaffer, Thursday, May 16, 4 p. m. Grandview, Thursday, May 16, 8 p. m.

The new wheat program will be similar to that now in effect, but will be modified to avoid conflicts with the provisions of the corn-hog, cotton, and other contracts.

Under the new four-year program planned, 1936 through 1939, a check-up will be made at the end of two years to balance the books. Any farmer who has signed a contract may drop out at the end of this two-year period if he is dissatisfied with the results of the program. The latest proposal enables 25 percent of the farmer in any district to petition for discontinuance of the program at the end of any year. Also, more freedom will be given local wheat committeemen in deciding allotments.

"It has been planned," John R. Edmunds, special wheat compliance agent for Texas from College Station, explained, "that these community meetings will enable every farmer to learn the terms of the new contracts and to understand that he has the right to vote whether he is a contract signer or not, as long as he has a base acreage."

"Growers will have ample opportunity to discuss all the various phases of the wheat situation and the outlook of the future, as well as proposals for the new program, before the actual vote is taken," Clarence W. Bowers, chairman of the Gray County Wheat Production Control association, announced.

She hurried into the court and up the narrow flight of stairs in the rear of the building without pausing to speak.

After the hearing was completed a court bailiff ordered the halls of the court house cleared.

HALF INCH IS RECEIVED HERE EARLY TODAY

DUST STORM AREA IS GRADUALLY BEING DRENCHED

Heavily pattering rain fell from a black sky early today to bring Pampa 33 of an inch of moisture—the most received in months. The sky lightened and the rain ceased at mid-morning, but the forecast continued favorable.

Rain was general but not heavy in most directions from Pampa. However, week-end rains fell at Jericho, McLean, Shamrock, Wheeler, and other points. Shamrock had 88 of an inch Friday.

Curbs ran deep with water here early today as the rain fell heavily. Roads were made slippery for several hours. Heavy clouds moved across the sky and there was rolling thunder—music to the ears of dust-distressed motorists.

Culvert Washed Out

Commissioner Tom Kirby of Precinct 3 reported that a new culvert, 8 feet wide and 5 feet high, on the Groom-Kingsmill road had been washed out when a cloudburst sent water roaring down a draw yesterday afternoon.

LeFors was visited by a heavy downpour this morning which put water in the north fork of the Red river for the first time in several months. Laketon farmers reported a heavy rain in that area. They estimated the fall at about one inch. Rainfall north and east of Pampa was not as heavy as in other sections, although roads were made slippery for some time.

Downpour Is General

AMARILLO, May 13. (AP)—Rain was general if not heavy yesterday and today over Texas' segment of the southwestern "dust bowl."

Pampa and Borger reported good precipitation, which continued. A steady fall began at Pampa at dawn and continued steadily into the morning. Borger had a two-hour downpour yesterday, accompanied by some hail, and the rain began again at 7:30 a. m. today.

Plainview had a heavy shower, and overcast skies promised more moisture.

Amarillo received 15 of an inch between 6:30 and 8:30 a. m., and Lubbock reported 14 of an inch.

"Bow" Is Reduced

HUTCHINSON, Kan., May 13. (AP)—The narrowing borders of the southwestern dust belt were denied again today by rain.

Parched and dust-blown acres in the heart of the Oklahoma wheat belt were drenched by rain, the heaviest in about a year. Half of an inch of rain fell in southwestern Oklahoma county in the Panhandle, more was reported in the counties to the east. Heavy clouds hung over many other sections of the dust belt early today and in Pampa, Texas—in the Panhandle—loosed a steady rain. Amarillo reported 15 of an inch of rain.

Rain began in the dust arch of southeast Colorado at 4 a. m. and was continuing four hours later. There was dust in Baca county last night and another dust pneumonia death from effects of three hours' exposure in a severe storm April 14. Since May 1, rain has fallen in the northern, western and southern fringes of the dust belt in Kansas, Colorado, New Mexico and Texas.

Traces of moisture were reported last night at Dodge City. A five-inch rain west of here Saturday night resulted in an overflow in the northwest part of the city. Streets of the residential section were flooded and many basements were filled.

River Runs High

ALVA, Okla., May 13. (AP)—Rainfall, already totaling 2.98 inches, continued unabated here today, causing the Salt Fork river to overflow its banks and tying up traffic on highway 14.

Other heavy falls were reported at Cherokee, where 3.5 inches was officially recorded. Bartlesville, recipient of a 3.15 inch rain, and Newkirk, where 2.7 inches fell overnight.

At Guymon, the heart of the Panhandle wheat belt, a heavy mist filled the air.

BASIC LAW NECESSARY FOR SOCIAL SECURITY

Failure of the railroad pension bill to get by the U. S. Supreme Court suggests that we shall have to revise the Constitution before we can put through any really comprehensive social security program.

As the Constitution stands, we have to go sideways when we want to embody social reforms in the national law. The railroad pension bill illustrates the process perfectly.

There is nothing in the Constitution giving the federal government any direct control over the railroads, for the very excellent reason that no one on earth had ever heard of steam railroads at the time the Constitution was written.

What the Constitution does do is give Congress power to regulate interstate commerce, and it is under that authority that all our railroad legislation has been devised.

In the pension plan, Congress tried to extend this power in a new direction.

It set up a social security program—for that is really all the pension plan was—to affect one particular industry, and put it through under the plea that such legislation was a proper part of the regulation of interstate commerce.

The supreme court didn't see it that way, and it is hardly to be wondered at. It ruled that the pension plan was not in any real sense an integral part of the regulation of interstate commerce, and that, since it was not, Congress was powerless to order it. If we lay aside our preconceived notions about the intrinsic merit of pensions, we have to admit that the ruling is pretty sensible.

Now all this illustrates the handicap Congress is under in trying to advance any social program. It simply lacks direct constitutional authority—for when the Constitution was written it never occurred to anyone that government would find it necessary to do such things.

It has to make its advances by indirect means, which means that any social program it puts through is apt to be upset by the courts.

The logical thing to do would be to amend our Constitution, giving Congress the powers it needs. Then when a social security law comes up, it could be decided strictly on its merits, and not on an obscure legal point arising from a document which was drawn up before anyone imagined that social security legislation would ever seem advisable.

To do this would simply be to recognize the fact that the whole scope of government has changed since the Constitution was written.—B. C.

Legislature, Adjourned at End of 124 Days, Has Left Much Work to Be Finished

AUSTIN, May 13 (AP)—The Texas legislature, adjourned today after a biennial session of 124 days, left in its wake four interim investigating committees.

Committees were authorized to inquire into:

Alleged official misconduct of J. E. McDonald, commissioner of agriculture, charged with irregularities involving chiefly purchases of jackals and stallions from a state tax on horse race wagers. McDonald, denying the charges, defended himself in an appearance requested before the house in its final session.

Reports of production of thousands of barrels of illegal or "hot" oil in East Texas. Rep. August Celaya of Brownsville, chairman, called a meeting for May 21 at Austin but said principal sessions would be held in East Texas.

Alleged monopolistic activities in the milk industry, a house committee. Alleged illegal activities of officials, insurance laws, and all matters affecting the state's revenue, a senate committee.

The McDonald investigation developed from a report of a house committee inquiry, conducted during the session, of all state departments. The senate investigating committee replaced two created by the 43rd legislature, one to investigate crime, the other all state matters.

The session theoretically ended Saturday noon, but actually not until early yesterday morning. Clocks were stopped for more than 12 hours while bills previously passed were enrolled and signed by presiding officers.

Most of the approximately 400 bills passed were approved by the final 10 days, giving Governor Allred the remainder of May in which to sign or veto them. Twelve hundred-odd bills failed of passage, most of them smothered by the volume of proposed laws.

Last acts of the legislature killed a constitutional amendment to exempt homesteads of local taxes; automobile drivers licensing; and modified universal hunting and fishing licensing, but submitted an amendment to limit the governor's pardoning power and passed a bill taxing marble tables and other coin-operated vending machines, estimated to yield $750,000 annually.

In retrospect, outstanding affirmative action of the legislature included:

Submission of constitutional amendments to repeal prohibition, authorize old age pensions, and permit submission of amendments at special sessions.

Passage of appropriations of $58,000,000, about $13,000,000 more than for the present biennium, while levying only one new tax; appropriation of $3,000,000 for a Texas Central; creation of a state planning board as an agency to chart state recovery; merger of the ranger force and highway patrol into a modernized state department of public safety; enactment of numerous bills to strengthen conservation of oil and gas; creation of three new water and soil conservation agencies; re-budgeting of $3,500,000 remaining of relief bonds to last through December, and enactment of many bills to permit the state to take advantage of federal recovery acts.

Outstanding legislation killed included: Public utility regulation; a sales tax; ratification of the child labor amendment; repeal of horse racing; organization of a state agency to obtain a $60,000,000 PWA loan to construct gas pipelines from the Panhandle to St. Louis and Detroit.

Necessity for regulatory legislation in event of prohibition repeal at an August 24 election, and likelihood of need for new revenue to start toward balancing the state budget focused attention on predictions of a called session in September.

OIL STILL TRAPPED

GLADEWATER, May 13 (AP)—Thousands of barrels of fuel oil that escaped from flood-damaged earth pits, rode the backwaters of the Sabine river at the edge of Glade-water today.

It was estimated that more than 950,000 barrels of oil had escaped and that 1,000,000 more barrels were in danger of being lost.

Operators prepared to continue efforts to keep the fugitive oil out of the main river, which had been on a rise several days and was expected to start receding today.

Official statistics show corn is North Carolina's biggest crop, the normal yield being about 50,000,000 bushels.

THE NEW DEAL IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Between attacks on the administration, members of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States had much else to say. Some of it was worth hearing.

For instance, there was new light on what's happening to the nation's oil supply. A few years ago the depletion of oil reserves was almost a national bogey.

Many scientists were warning that before many years there'd be no more oil or gasoline and it would just be too bad. Then some big new fields were discovered and nearly everyone forgot about the fears.

Wallace E. Pratt of Houston brought us up to date on the situation. Pratt is vice-president of the Humble Oil Company and has been a geologist all his life.

It seems there are between 10 and 12 billion barrels of proved oil reserves in the United States which compares with nearly 17 billion barrels already taken from American wells, which is about equal to proved reserves elsewhere in the world.

Those reserves, if not augmented, would last about 12 years at the present consumption rate. To maintain them in face of anticipated future demand, Pratt said, would require discovery of about one billion barrels of new oil each year for the next decade.

But Pratt showed that annual discoveries had at last dropped well below the amount of annual production. In the four years 1931-34 annual discoveries were less than the average in any five-year period since 1911-15.

The discovery amount dropped to 580 millions from 1990 million barrels a year for 1926-30 and 820 millions for 1921-25.

If both present production rate and discovery rate were maintained, oil would give out in about 25 years. Consumption may increase and discovery decline. Or vice-versa. Pratt didn't say that. But he based his plea for conservation of crude oil reserves partly on the belief that the time will eventually come when gasoline from coal would gradually replace gasoline from petroleum—and be more expensive.

It was Sidney J. Weinberg of Goldman, Sachs & Co., New York, who pointed out that annual interest requirement on the big federal debts are even less today than 10 years ago, when the debt was eight billion dollars smaller.

The key to the administration's frigid attitude toward proposed action against imports from Japan was supplied by Assistant Secretary of State Francis B. Sayre. The administration figures that Japan is our third best customer, behind only England and Canada; that she buys goods worth nearly twice as much as those she sells us; and that if we start busting up trade with good customers like that, we'll be cutting our own necks.

Sayre said that even in 1933, with exports shrunken, this country was exporting 66 per cent of its cotton, 39 per cent of its leaf tobacco, 41 per cent of its copper, 16 per cent of all industrial machinery, 37 per cent of its aircraft engines, 28 per cent of its canned fruits, and so on.

He had figures which added up to indicate that elimination of foreign markets would toss about 10,000,000 persons on relief rolls.

Romance will probably end between the Chicago circus wild man and the Ubangi native woman with the 14-inch lower lip when she gives him some of her lip.

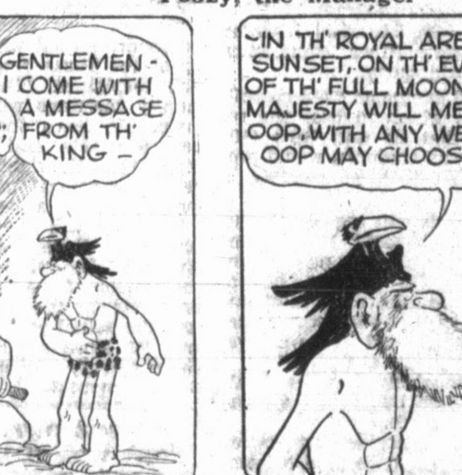

If a 67-year-old Elwood, Ind., man marries and adopts four children, he'll get $6,000,000. He may decide to qualify in view of the Townsend uncertainty.

Death of Pilsudski Has Left Peace Outlook for Europe Even More Hazy

WARSAW, May 13. (AP)—The death of Marshal Joseph Pilsudski, Poland's dictator, gave diplomats fresh cause for concern today over the outlook for peace in Eastern Europe.

Much may depend on who succeeds the iron-willed marshal. It may determine the future of the peace pact system which France is attempting to promote, as well as Germany's future attitude toward France's program.

It may also decide whether Poland henceforth will cast her lot with France and Russia, which have just concluded a mutual assistance agreement, or whether she will continue along the lines of German rapprochement which Pilsudski himself marked out.

Death came to the 67-year-old ruler of Poland's destinies last night after a three-days' illness. His body will be buried among the great in the cathedral of Wawel castle at Krakow, but his heart will rest in Wilno and his brain will be given to science.

His body will lie beside those of King John Sobieski and three other Polish heroes, Thaddeus Kosciuszko, who fought in the American revolution, and the poets Adam Mickiewicz and Julius Slowacki.

Church, army and war office representatives conferred this morning, afterward expressing the belief that Pilsudski could not be buried before the end of the week because of the great public demand to view his body.

A requiem mass was held today for members of the Pilsudski family and the old marshal's closest collaborators, and later Cardinal Kakowski and Monsignor Francisco Marmagel, the papal nuncio, expressed their condolences to Madame Pilsudski. The cardinal also requested all Catholics in Poland to unite in prayers for the dead marshal. Beginning tomorrow there will be continued prayers in all churches.

Captain Casimir Lapecki, the late marshal's personal aide who is now in Lithuania gathering material for a book on Pilsudski's mother, has been entrusted with the transfer of his mother's remains from Lithuania to Wilno. This was the marshal's most emphatic command before his death.

Messages of condolence poured in to Warsaw from all parts of the world. It was expected Foreign Minister Pierre Laval of France, who left Warsaw for Moscow shortly before Pilsudski died, would return to attend the funeral.

After the news was made public in Warsaw that the old soldier and statesman had succumbed to intestinal hemorrhage caused by cancer of the stomach and liver, crowds of bareheaded and weeping women gathered outside his home, Belvedere Palace.

The only official position Pilsudski held was that of minister of war. Yet his power over Polish governmental affairs was virtually absolute. Recent constitutional reforms had concentrated large powers in the hands of the presidency to which Pilsudski was expected soon to have succeeded after the resignation of President Ignacy Moscicki.

Speculation over who may be his political heir named General Edward Rydz Smigly, his close friend and popular army leader. Dr. Joseph Bek, the foreign minister, and General Kasimir Sosnowski. It was generally believed the dictator left a political testament designating his choice.

Pilsudski's death occurred on the ninth anniversary of the 1926 coup which brought him the powers of a dictator. He remained unconscious for the last three days, but the true gravity of his condition had not been made known to the public.

The marshal's health had been precarious for ten years. Ever since his return in 1922 from the Siberian exile into which he was sent under the czarist regime, he had been compelled to take unusual precautions to preserve his strength and submit to frequent rest cures.

GREAT RICHES

Chapter 40 GOOD ADVICE

"Well, I see that James has become a model husband, trained and housebroken," Judge Holcomb remarked angrily to Miss Julia next spring, a week or so before he died. It was the last time he ever talked to Miss Julia of his erstwhile prodigy.

The old man passed away in his sleep very quietly just before James' thirty-third birthday. James missed him more, and leaned on him more, than perhaps either had realized. Although in his last year the Judge had been a silent rather than an active partner he was always there to advise James, prompt to laugh him out of an absurd enthusiasm or spur him from his now too frequent sloth.

"You lost your case today because you talked too much," Judge once cautioned James. "You had it won hands down on two or three occasions, but you were revealing in the sound of your own voice and kept at it until you talked yourself and your client out of a victory. Never forget that talk is cheap . . . the cheapest thing in the world. Lincoln's best speech was written on the back of an envelope." James never again talked himself out of a case.

But the Judge was not always critical; far from it. When James won a case or put up a good fight the Judge was the first to slap him on the back and say the heart-warming things he most wanted to hear. It did not matter so much that James made light of his small successes as long as James knew that he had pleased the Judge.

But now the Judge was dead. His empty office, kept temporarily by Nappy in a state of unnatural order and cleanliness, was a daily, almost hourly, reminder that his best friend and protector had gone from him forever. James had no one now to depend on but himself.

James slept these days alone in a back bedroom and no longer awakened joyfully, anxious to work off his superfluous energy by romping with his wife. He ate his breakfast alone, tiptoeing cautiously down the back stairs for fear he might awaken Jane, who had long since developed insomnia.

His hair no longer stuck up aggressively from his crown even on special occasions, but lay meekly down where he plastered it; and he almost never wore a blue coat with checked trousers or vice versa. He smoked only two cigars a day—and those at the office—and he spent his Sunday afternoons in a big chair in the Northrup library sleeping off his over-large, over-rich mid-day dinner.

Jane had quarreled with his Aunt Sarah, and the latter had to come to the office to see her nephew, and she occasionally to see her mother-in-law when he was not busy, though he never mentioned these visits at home.

He grew stooped, thinner than ever, his red hair lost its brilliancy and was sprinkled with gray. He stopped going to conventions and making speeches or telling funny stories and no one predicted a brilliant future for him. His law practice ceased to expand, remained stationary and began to shrink.

James realized with a lump in his throat that his town had lost faith in him, as he had ceased to believe in himself. He and Jane only quarreled a half dozen times a year now—or at least James answered that often his wife's complaints. But sometimes when she looked full at him James felt that she hated him—and knew that it was because he was a failure. He felt extremely sorry for himself but sorrier for Jane.

He believed that he had won her under false pretenses and he never really blamed her for ceasing to love him after she found him. He wondered at intervals, reading the papers, whether Jane, if he had lived in a city would not have asked him for a divorce. God knows she could have it for the asking. He had no desire to keep her tied to him.

In the last ten or fifteen years there have been few kind words wasted on the Great War that was to end all wars. But at least there is to be said in its favor—the War ended an intolerable situation between Jane and James Stimson.

From the invasion of Belgium James had been strongly pro-Ally. Jane, seemingly from pure contrariness, became as strongly pro-German. When in 1917 the United States finally decided to throw in its lot with the Allies, Jane had to sing a different tune. This made James' home life none the easier.

James enlisted as much to get away from Jane as from patriotic reasons. This is not a war story. James went overseas as a captain in a regiment composed largely of men from his own state, Missouri and Oklahoma. He fought at St. Mihiel, fought through the Argonne, swore, sweated, hunted cooties, laughed, worked and died his dammedest along with two million other Americans.

Eis was record was good, though not particularly brilliant. He was noted, unfortunately, more for the fluency of his language under stress than for any feats of unusual daring.

The things their captain could think to say on occasions were matters of great pride to James' company. But Captain Stimson was really only at his best when he was fighting. He always went over the top swearing under his breath. His wound was not a particularly serious one, but he walked over after with a slight limp. . . . And was for a long while proud enough of that limp to burst.

James returned home a major and rode a prancing charger in front of his men when they marched in the big parade St. Louis arranged as their home coming. A million people lined the streets and gave them welcome.

CONGRESS IS EXPECTED NOT TO END THIS SESSION MUCH BEFORE JULY—ROOSEVELT IS ADAMANT

EVEN LONGER STAY IS LIKELY BECAUSE OF ARGUMENTS

BY NATHAN ROBERTSON, Associated Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, May 13. (AP)—As leading democrats now assay the situation, this congress will not be ready to quit much before the time fireworks begin popping for the Fourth of July celebrations.

Home from a week-end outing with president Roosevelt in the Blue Ridge mountains—where they apparently heard nothing to lead them to believe Mr. Roosevelt had altered his desire to see a 5-point legislative program enacted—the leaders were seeking to speed things.

There were many non-convergers fraught with potentialities for a longer session. Though the house went ahead more or less serenely today with a legislative appropriation bill, the senate faced three matters bearing the germs of much talk and delay.

Senator Long (D., La.) planned to deal at length with the post office committee's majority report turning thumbs down on his attempt to obtain an investigation of Postmaster General Farley on a long list of charges.

Then, too, the senate faced the situation revolving around the attempt of Senator Norris (R., Neb.) to get action on his bill to strengthen the Tennessee Valley Authority's powers. There was a threat of another republican filibuster against this.

Because of the high farm income in North Carolina, mules sell for an average price of $140 in that state in contrast to an $89 average for the nation as a whole.

Road Runners Lose to Huber In 5 to 4 Game

Heavy Rain in 8th Inning Stops Contest—Blackfacs Present New Athletes.

BORGER, May 13.—The Road Runners paid their first visit of the season to Borger yesterday and brought good luck to everybody but themselves. To the Huber Blackfacs they brought an eight inning 5 to 4 victory, and to Borger, a good rain—at least they can take credit for the rain.

The game was called upon completion of the eighth inning. Clouds had been hovering over the field all through the game and some rain fell during the fourth inning, but that soon subsided without interrupting the game. However, it started in earnest during the eighth inning and by the time Huber had been retired it was so dark play was impossible.

The Blackfacs presented a number of new men including Simpson at second base, Wilkinson at first, Fowler in right field, Brown catching, Wade at short, and Conner, pitcher.

Conner, a rather small right-hander, started the game, and between some ineffectiveness on his part and slips by his mates, it looked like a walk-a-way for the Road Runners. After spotting the visitors to a four run lead in the first three innings, he settled down and allowed only three hits during the remainder of the game.

Summers opened the game with a walk, but was forced at second by Seitz. Seitz was safe at second when Wilkinson's throw was wide to Wade on Seitz's grounder. Patton scored Seitz with a single to right. Ward was called out on strikes and Brickell fled out to left to end the threat.

The Road Runners added three more markers to their lead and scored what proved to be their final runs of the game in the third. With one out Seitz was safe on an infield hit towards third base. Sealing walked and Patton again scored Seitz with a single, this time to left. Ward was safe at first and Sealing scored when Wade elected to try for Sealing at the plate, but his throw was late. Brickell scored Patton with an infield hit. Lysie singled to right, but Ward was caught at the late on a nice throw by Simpson from short and right field. Cox walked, but Daney ended it with a line drive to Wilson.

The Blackfacs put themselves back in the ball game in their half of the same inning when, with one down, Wilkinson reached second when Patton dropped his high fly. Moore followed with a triple to right, scoring Wilkinson. Fowler tripled to left center scoring Moore, and scored a moment later on Brown's infield out. Wilson got an infield hit, but was forced at second by Lister to end the rally one short of a tie.

Huber went into the lead in the fifth when Moore led off with a long home run over the right field fence. Daney got the next two hits, but Wilson tripled to right and scored on Lister's infield hit, which removed Daney from the mound. Stewart replaced him and hit Wade, but retired Conner on strikes to end the inning. Stewart held his opponents hitless for the remainder of the game, except for a scratch hit by Lister in the eighth.

MOTOR STOCKS BRISK

NEW YORK, May 13. (AP)—A late buying flurry in the motor stock market today after the list had milled about diffidently during the early hours. Preferred sugar issues and other specialties also developed strength, although many of the leaders were restrained by profit taking. The close was steady. Transfers approximated 1,100,000 shares.

WHEAT PRICES DROP

CHICAGO, May 13. (AP)—Maximum breaks of around 2 cents a bushel in wheat values took place today.

Highly beneficial rains that amounted to about 1 inch for central Kansas were an outstanding feature. The new setbacks of prices took the wheat market to 11 cents below a high point reached on April 23, and were in the face of the fact that the United States wheat supply total today was the smallest since August 1927.

Wheat closed weak, 1 1/2-1 3/4 under yesterday's finish, July 82 1/2-1/4, corn 3/4 off to 1/2 up, July 80 1/2-1/4, oats 1/2-1/4 down, and provisions varying from a cents decline to a rise of 2 cents.

CONVENTION

Principal speakers on the conference program were R. C. Hoping, director of Lubbock and J. E. McDonald, Texas commissioner of agriculture. The group planned to tune in on a broadcast by Dies on his proposed plan.

The elections committee, of which S. T. Harrison of Memphis is chairman, completed a list of chamber directors. Group meetings this afternoon prepared to select ten district directors.

Future policies of the regional organization were discussed at a directors' luncheon, presided over by James D. Hamilton of Parwell.

Governor James V. Allred advised convention officials he would fly to Lubbock tomorrow morning, and come here by motor car for his address tomorrow night.

Preliminaries began in the "My Home Town" speaking contest, which attracted a record total of 60 entries.

Shows this morning and overcast skies cut down the opening day attendance, but brought cheer to dust-weary West Texans.

Return from Snyder

City Manager and Mrs. C. L. Stine and family returned late Saturday night from Snyder where they had been at the deathbed of Mrs. Stine's father, J. H. Gordon, Mr. Gordon, 68, died at his home Thursday. Funeral services were conducted Friday.

Commission to Meet

The city commission will hold its regular meeting tonight in the city hall. The swimming pool situation will be discussed and a contract may be negotiated with one of the bidders who submitted figures for operation last week.

Buses Through Pampa

Greyhound trans-continental buses which usually traverse Highway 66 were routed through Pampa this morning because of a heavy rain in the south part of the county. There is still a gap in the highway in southern Gray county which becomes slippery and dangerous during a rain. The buses go from Pampa to LeFors to McLean.

Commission Meets

County commissioners arrived in Pampa this morning for a regular session. All were jubilant over the rain, even though culverts in some of the precincts had been washed out by the downpour. Approval of bills was in order during the morning session. Other business was to be transacted this afternoon.

Called to Missouri

W. L. Alsop, supervisor of music in the Skellytown schools, left this morning for Skidmore, Mo., to attend funeral services for a brother, James Alsop, who was killed in an automobile accident yesterday.

Attending Convention

The Rev. C. E. Lancaster, pastor of First Baptist church left this morning for Memphis, Tenn. to attend the convention of Southern Baptist churches this week.

Just Week-end

County and city police officers had a fairly quiet week-end arresting only a few on charges of being intoxicated or for being vagrants. No thefts had been reported up to noon and no wrecks had been investigated.

Oil Workers Seek Labor Convention

WACO, May 13. (AP)—Fifty recently organized oil field workmen from east and south Texas served notice on the thirty-eighth annual convention of the Texas Federation of Labor today that they intended to take the next convention to Tyler or Houston.

Resolutions were prepared for presentation to the convention urging payment of the soldiers' bonus, protesting prison system printing, and asking free textbooks for private and parochial schools.

The opening session was devoted largely to welcoming addresses. The platform in the meeting room at the Roosevelt hotel was draped in black in memory of John R. Spencer of Labor today that they intended to take the next convention to Tyler or Houston.

EX-CONVICT SHOT

VICTORIA, May 13 (AP)—Elmer P. Meadows, 46-year-old ex-convict, shot by officers yesterday after he had rushed from a garage with stolen articles and later assaulted an armed scissors grinder, lay at the point of death today.

Fleeing from a nightwatchman who shot him, Meadows took refuge in an old barbecue pit that Joe Abernathy, 63-year-old oil sharpener had converted into a home.

With three victories in four starts, Paul Derringer of the Cincinnati Reds seems to be headed for the best year he has enjoyed since he made his big league bow with the St. Louis Cardinals in 1931. He was the outstanding rookie pitcher of that season with 18 victories against eight losses.

The following season was not so good but he hit a real low in 1933 when he was traded to the Reds with Sparky Adams and Allyn Stout for Leo Durocher. In that unhappy season Paul led the league in games lost with the staggering total of 27. Last season he had 15 victories against 21 defeats.

Hard luck plagued him every time he stepped out on the mound. The Cincinnati batters simply could not hit when Paul was in there. Times after time he would hold his opposition to few hits only to lose close games when he received no run-making support.

Freely Hit, But Wins!

At the start of the 1934 season he lost two heart-breakers and then caught a cold which put him on the sidelines for three weeks. For the remainder of the season old man hard luck was in the Reds' lineup every time Paul was scheduled to pitch.

This year started out a bit better. In his opening game against the Pirates he allowed 13 hits yet won his game despite the fact that his team-mates made but 11.

The Cubs outthit the Reds in Derringer's second start—a struggle that went to the twelfth inning before Cincinnati came out on top, 8-4. It took a triple play, the first of the season, to pull Paul through but when the smoke cleared he had Victory No. 2.

If Derringer's good fortune continues he'll lose all claim to the title of "the unluckiest pitcher in the majors."

Fitz May Get Title.

Fitzsimmons worked hard in camp this spring and was in grand shape, but couldn't get going when the season opened. Although his team-mates' bats came through with hits a-plenty, "Fitz" could not survive the barrage of hits ringing off enemy bats long enough to get credit for a victory.

A share of credit for the fine showing of the White Sox' recruit right-hander, John Whitehead, must go to the veteran catcher, Luke Sewell.

The White Sox bought Sewell from the Browns last January and have been rewarded with the steady brand of catching they have enjoyed since the days of Ray Schalk, and some wise handling of their young hurlers.

John E. Hearn, state game warden in Webb county, Texas, has killed 69 Mexican lions since appointed to the service in 1930.
