Baker-Hanna To Open Store With Mosely Manager

Complete Line Of New Merchandise Will Replace Stocks

Following the purchase of the bankrupt Baker-Hanna stock here by Fred Hanna Saturday, April 15, it was announced today that the store would reopen under the management of Bill Mosely.

Mr. Mosely returned to Wellington in February to take over the management of the local store shortly before it closed, and since that time has been renewing old acquaintances in this county that he knew as a boy.

He states that the store plans to secure new stock in every department and replace old merchandise with the new and latest styles within a short time.

Mr. Mosely is an experienced store manager, having worked for several different stores and managed stores at Hollis and Childress.

Due to the fact that he has been in the dry goods business in this section of the country for a number of years, he knows what the people of this section want and states that he plans to buy merchandise that will suit the needs of the local people—and to sell it to them at prices in keeping with the present times.

Fees Waived To Use Jail Labor

Members of the commissioners court this week publicly thanked the peace officers of this county for their cooperation in the use of prison labor on the roads of this county.

"Under the law where prisoners are worked on public roads, the officers making the arrest and the county attorney are entitled to one-half of their regular fees," County Judge Luther Gribble said. "But in order that the commissioners might profitably work county prisoners, each peace officer of city, precinct and county and the county attorney have waived any claim against the county for their fees."

The officers will continue to receive their fees where accused persons pay fines, but where prisoners work on public roads they will waive their fees just as if the prisoners had spent their time in jail. If the prisoners remained in jail and did not work, no fees would be rendered to the officers.

Over $20,000 Sought By Farmers In Form Of Crop Loans

Other Loans

R. A. C. C. Division Receives No Order To Stop Loan Division

With only eleven remaining days for farmers of this county to make application for seed and crop production loans, Miss Katherine Boverie, local director, said today that no loans would be available through this source after April 30. Well over 20,000 has already been applied for through this division and a large number of applicants have already received their checks. The loans average around $100 each and range as low as $25.

R. A. C. C. Still Available The R. A. C. C. reported no notice to cease taking applications, however, and it was reported that this division had secured payment on 20 loans in this county. The loans amount to approximately $7,000 and something like 40 more loans, amounting to $14,000 have been applied for through this division.

The loan divisions differ in view of the fact that the production loans have the crops as a security and the R. A. C. C. loans hold property as security.

The combined division report applications amounting to approximately $41,000.

May Get R. F. L. A. Loans

The R. F. L. A. division here also hopes to start activities in the near future if the proposed two billion dollar bill passes through the proper channels. C. J. Glenn, local director, said. This division has made few loans during recent years due to the fact that funds were not available, but President Roosevelt has advocated this source and if the proposed bill is passed considerable attention will be focused on this loan division in Wellington.

Expect To Open City Park May 1

As different committees representing various clubs worked toward the improvement of the City Park here this week, Mrs. C. E. High, chairman, said Wednesday that plans were being made to open the park on May 1 or May 15. "The opening of the park will depend upon the weather conditions on May 1," Mrs. High said. Under the leadership of the City Federation, the park has this year seen many improvements and will be more beautiful than ever before. Different clubs had been given corners and portions of the park to beautify and flowers have been planted to improve the general appearance of the park.

School Board To Announce Policy In Near Future

That the Wellington School Board at present had no information to announce publicly concerning the 1933-34 school terms was made known today by L. A. Manzer, president.

"We have not completed our plans as yet. All of the positions have not been filled and the entire policy of the board has not been determined," Mr. Manzer said, "for that reason we do not care to announce the action of the board until we determine the problems with which the schools are faced and the method in which the board will deal with them. By next week we may have completed the outline of the year's work and will publicly announce our actions and policies."

YOUR HOME TOWN DRUGGIST

Joe Hardy, pioneer Wellington druggist, announced this week upon the event of the twenty-first birthday of his store in Wellington, that he had filled approximately 200,000 prescriptions.

Naturally, hundreds and hundreds of pounds of drugs have gone into the filling of those 200,000 prescriptions and many, many hours have been spent tediously compounding the orders issued by the doctors.

People, it sometimes seems, fail to realize the real, significant importance attached to the drug store, one or more of which is always to be found in practically every American village. Men who operate drug stores in small towns are almost invariably leaders in the community and generally demand the respect of their fellow citizens and, although this fact is seldom considered, there is a reason.

The druggist, like a doctor, holds the fate of a patient in his hands. A mistake made by a druggist is ordinarily of more sequence than that of a doctor. In the present stage of civilization there is hardly a man in any community who has not, at some time in his life, been forced to resort to medical attention—and to have prescriptions filled at a drug store.

As time goes on and civilization reaches even more advanced stages, carrying with more comforts and easier living methods, the human race will naturally become more and more susceptible to sickness and disease. For this reason the people of America—and especially of the small towns—should rejoice over the fact that they have capable druggists; druggists in little towns who know their work equally as well as druggists in the larger cities.

LOSS OF THE AKRON

Again the highest modern engineering skill has been set at naught by the elements, resulting in the loss of the world's greatest airship, the Akron, with a loss of 73 lives, only three of those on board being saved. This marks the most disastrous tragedy in the history of aeronautics.

The Akron's fate recalls that of three other American dirigibles—the ZR-2, the Roma, and the Shenandoah.

The ZR-2, built in England for the American Navy, buckled and exploded over Hull, England, on August 25, 1931, causing the death of 62 of the 66 men aboard, 17 of whom were Americans, the nucleus of a crew sent to bring the ship to the United States.

The Roma, built in Italy for the United Army, went out of control at Hampton Roads, Va., struck electric wires which broke, setting fire to the airship, causing the death of 35 out of a crew of 46, on February 25, 1932.

The Shenandoah broke in three pieces and fell to earth during a storm over Noble county, Ohio, on September 3, 1925, killing 14 out of 41 on board, and seriously injuring two others.

At present the United States Navy has two large dirigibles, the Los Angeles, temporary out of commission as an economy measure, and the Macon, sister ship of the Akron, just completed. In the light of what has happened to nearly every other dirigible sooner or later, we may well ask whether they are worth while.

More than 100 German dirigibles were destroyed during the war without inflicting and serious damage upon their enemies. The allies lost a dozen or more, practically all they ever had. Of all the large dirigibles built by various countries since the war, only two or three remain, the rest having met with disaster.

The whole history of dirigibles, like that of submarines, is one of wasted money and wasted lives. The world would perhaps be better off if neither of these death-traps had ever been invented.

WHO IS EDUCATED?

Amidst the confusion among various schools of thought regarding present-day education, it is really difficult to find a satisfactory yardstick with which to measure that elusive individual, the educated man.

Many hold the view that no one is truly educated unless he is familiar with the classics, proficient in several languages living and dead, versed in higher mathematics, and so on. Another school, while recognizing the desirability of a classical education when circumstances permit, denies that the classicists have license to lord it over their more practical brethren, or to lay exclusive claim to real education.

In this connection a thought expressed by the Boston philanthropist, Edward A. Filene, is pertinent. He declares that "the educated mind today is the mind which best learns how to use the knowledge in existence, particularly those truths which apply to the thing which he is doing."

And that seems to be a very good definition.

Poor old Hindenburg! Who could have thought he would ever become a Nazi rubber stamp?

Jean Garnett of Altus, Okla., was chosen by students at the University of Oklahoma as the "university sweetheart."

Mrs. J. C. Crothers of St. Louis sold an old sofa in which her husband had hidden $1,200.

Democracy is a form of government in which those who holler the loudest get what they want.

Perhaps the woman most envied for her supposed knowledge is the wife of a small town doctor.

WELLINGTON People . . . Places . . . Philosophy

The best story of this week concerns the new "three point two" beer that people are now drinking in 19 states. The story invariably crops up every time there is an argument concerning the intoxicating powers of the new brew.

Best Story Of The Week

As the story goes a man in one of the 19 states decided that he would give the new beer a trial before putting on his own batch of private brew. He drank four bottles of the new beverage—and then for good measure, drank another bottle. Pretty soon he felt so good that he decided to go home and eat some strawberries and cream. When he walked in his wife noticed his condition and realized that he must be pleased.

"I want some strawberries," the man said, "some good old strawberries with cream."

As it happened there were no strawberries in the house, so his wife just served him a dish of radishes covered with buttermilk—and the man went to bed happy and contented.

Recent press reports declare that President Roosevelt works fifteen hours a day. And speaking of work, Senator Clint C. Small was in Wellington last Saturday and reported that his bill for stamps was over $80 a month. How would you like to write 2,667 letters a month,

Anything To Satisfy!

Kelly Pigg has been going around telling a parlor joke all week about a Chinaman who was walking through the snow in Yellowstone park. Looking back the Chinaman saw a big bear sniffing at his tracks.

The Chinaman hesitated a moment, looked back at the bear and said:

"You like-um tracks. Velly well, Make-um some more." Which he did without more ado.

We read that bad weather costs the United States half a billion dollars a year. However, the raw material it furnishes for conversation must be worth it. And if sandstorms are counted we certainly cannot complain about our share.

More About A Relief Garden

No one seems to be interested in my relief garden idea. In fact not one single person has mentioned the subject, which goes to prove that the idea is not so good—or else people are not interested in offering relief to people that need jobs. Even the bankers haven't mentioned the article, and heretofore the bankers have been urging everyone to cultivate a garden. Maybe people just didn't understand the plan. The idea was to let the Federal Relief money be paid to workers for cultivating a garden; the vegetables from the garden to be canned by women (also paid from relief money) and next winter instead of paying off for relief work in cash, to pay off with cans of vegetables. Production. It seems to me that if all of the millions of people working on this money were to produce food, rather than do general work, the money should go at least twice as far. What does someone think about this plan?

Give These Boys A Hand

Do you remember Monroe and Marvin Kennan, nephews of P. E. Keenan, who lives west of town. These two boys went to school here in Wellington and then journeyed out to California, where they became interested in aviation. After learning to fly, the boys bought a plane, paid it out by carrying up passengers and now one of them is manager of the Kerkley field, while the other is a transport pilot—and was offered a job flying Uncle Sam's mail over the Rockies into Denver, which is said to be one of the most hazardous trips made by the service. He didn't take the mail job, however, because it offered too much blind flying. Right there is a couple of boys that have certainly made good. It isn't every day that you see twins, and orphans at that, who do so well. They write to Mr. Kennan quite frequently and haven't forgot how he helped them when they were kids. If you want to hear more about them just ask him. He sure is proud of the boys and their splendid records—and he should be, too, because they are a couple of swell kids.

Churches Report Easter Crowds

The churches of Wellington were certainly crowded Sunday. In fact, it seems that churches were crowded everywhere Sunday. It is indeed gratifying to know that the people of Wellington have taken a new hold and started out doing just like they used to do before anyone ever thought of the old depression. Wellington has some mighty fine church buildings, which are a tribute to the mighty fine people that live in this county and now that people are starting back to church regularly, it looks like the community is going to get the most from its investment in church buildings. Always churches have been a forerunner to civilization—and who knows, if we all start living Christian lives, that may unintentionally be the forerunners to prosperity.

Southland Life Owns Oil Field

The Southland Life Insurance Company today informed its local representative, Eugene Vaughan, that his company is the first in America to own a complete oil field.

The property on which the field is situated was acquired several years ago and is three miles southeast of Weleetka, Oklahoma. The field recently was given far more potential value when an old well was drilled deeper into pay sand. There are now seven wells, five of which are producers and two nearly completed.

The Southland Life owns 2,280 acres, of which 400 are under lease to oil companies, including The Texas Company. About 1,600 acres are included in the probabilities as producing territory. It is likely that some time in the near future a test well will be drilled to the deeper Wilcox Sand, from which Oklahoma gets its greatest producers. Geologists who have inspected the field have expressed the opinion that the Wilcox Sand underlies the shallow pool from which present production is obtained.

Amigas S. S. Class Enjoys All Day Picnic

The Amigas Sunday School Class of the First Baptist Church was entertained with an all day picnic last Saturday, April 15, at Salt Fork River.

Wading, hiking, and a delicious picnic lunch were enjoyed by those present.

Attending were: Eileen Tittle, Erma Rhea Clement, Naomi Slay, Mary Alice Manzer, Othella Dennis, J. L. Burt, Jr., Ora Sharp of Knox City, and chaperones, Misses Mary Lewis and Dela B. Burt.

Mrs. S. G. Henry presented her expression pupils in a costume recital last Sunday afternoon at the High School Auditorium. An appreciative audience assembled for the entertainment.

The program opened with the entire class appearing in black and white gym suits doing cart wheels across the stage where they read an "Ode to Posture," in unison. Special acrobatic work was presented by Martha Jeanne Henry and Billie Voca Brickey.

"The Nurse's Lullaby" was a very pretty number presented by a group of girls dressed in black costumes with dainty white organdie aprons and caps, as they lullied their dollies to sleep and placed them in their beds.

A one act playlet, "Brave Little Mary," was enacted by Carolyn Ellis, Ruth Marie Hall and Zula V. Porter. "The Minuet" read by Frances Stevenson and danced by a group of girls in lovely Colonial costumes of dainty organdie with their high standing lace collars and buffont skirts, was one of the loveliest numbers presented.

Students presented in readings were James Berry—"The Fisherman"; Betty Margaret Berry—"Pies," "Singing," by Stevenson; "Stop Pretty Water," Follen; Dan Bevers—"Vacation Accomplishments," Guest; Nell Trew—"Whispers," "The Little Plant," "Tiny Snowflakes," Phoebe Cory; Robert Lewis—"Those Pants that Mother Makes"; Neva Clay—"Something to Be Thankful For," Denton, "My Shadow," Stevenson; Carolyn Ellis—"Play with Me," Edith Matilda Thomas, "What Would You

Dick Morgan Expects To Open Boy's Baseball Training School At Vernon

Dick Morgan, son of C. R. Morgan of this city and former ace pitcher of the Wichita Falls Spudders baseball club, will open a baseball training school for boys between the ages of 7 and 20 years at Vernon, according to an announcement Wednesday. Morgan, whose home has been at Hedrick, spent several months visiting his brothers, who live in the Quail community, during the past summer and planned to play with the local baseball team here this summer.

The training school will be conducted at the City Park field in Vernon one afternoon of each week and will probably open Saturday, April 22. The object of the school is to arouse interest in baseball, which has lagged the past few years in Vernon, and to develop players in this section for possible entrance in professional baseball. Morgan conducted a similar school in Quincy, Ill., late last summer and approximately 300 boys attended the training sessions. The school will be free of charge.

While in Vernon, Morgan will probably take over the management of the Vernon baseball club, this city's entry in the Red River Valley league, according to F. B. Henderson, present manager. Morgan attended a workout of the Vernon club at 1:30 Thursday afternoon/prior to the club's scheduled practice encounter at 3 o'clock at the City Park with the Ferners Valley team of west Wilbar or count.

Morgan is a star hurler with the Wichita Spudders in 1923 and 1924 and earned a trial with the Chicago Cubs of the National League in 1925 but was returned to Wichita Falls. He won nine games while losing three in the Three-Eye league last season before that circuit disbanded in mid July.

Feasts And Food Of Hawaii

By R. L. WEBER

It is impossible to tell you of a real Hawaii feast without the use of many of their words, so far your enlightenment it might be well to give you an idea of their correct pronunciation.

Would not our children (and lots of grownups) be tickled if our language contained but twelve letters, the sounds of which are always the same with no letters silent: a as in arm, e as in they, i as in machine, o as in note, u as in rule, and w as v. Add to these letters h, k, l, m, n, and p and you have the entire alphabet. Remember that each vowel is the end of a syllable except the diphthongs ai as in aisle, and au as in loud. Now that you know the sounds say the name of a small native fish—"Humuhumunukunukuapuaa." Easy isn't it?

The native Hawaiian feast is called a luau and calls for days of preparation. First the pit or underground over is dug to a depth of about five feet and about three feet wide. Now haul up a ton or two of blue lava rock of reasonable one man size. That done haul up about three or four cords of sound hard wood—ho, ohia, and kiawi preferred.

Wagon Load Banana Leaves
Then procure a good sized pig, several bundles of ti leaves, a broad leaf from a mountain shrub, and a wagon load of banana leaves. Do not forget taro roots, yams, etc., not overlooking fish and squid. Next the fire is built and the rocks are placed in it and, while they are getting red hot which usually requires the entire night, the pig is killed and dressed and the fish, etc., is prepared for cooking. While this is all going on, if we live up to the Hawaiian tradition, we may get rather "mellow" ere the sun rises up out of the sea.

The rocks being red hot, they are moved into the pit and covered with a thick layer of banana leaves and after stuffing the pig with hot rocks and a few handfuls of Hawaiian salt it is placed on the banana leaves, surrounded by yams, fish, squid, the breadfruit, bananas, etc., each wrapped in ti leaves. Now a few pails of water are thrown over the leaves to help start the steam. The food in the oven is then covered with another layer of banana leaves and the entire pit is covered with dirt, leaving a very small hole for the escaping steam. About twelve hours is required to properly cook this feast but it is worth it, for no meat tastes better than lau lau pork and yams.

Yum; Yum!—Good Taro
Taro has been mentioned and it might be well to explain that from taro is made the poi which to the Hawaiian means what rice does to the Oriental and bread does to us. The plant is much like the "Elephant Ears" we grow for decorations in our yards and gardens. Besides being baked like sweet potatoes its roots are gathered and peeled and then pounded or ground into a sticky, pasty pulp that has the appearance of dirty flour paste, and is preferred a day or two old when it has slightly soured.

After the food in the oven has been well cooked it is removed and placed on a mat of green leaves on the ground and the feasters squat around and "wade in." Within reach on the mat are placed bowls (calabash) of poi, probably one bowl to each six persons, and those dining reach into the sticky mass with their fingers, two or three fingers, around which they deftly wrap a portion of the poi and transfer to the mouth. Does not sound too sanitary but there are no knives, forks, or spoons at a luau. Poi is known as two and three finger poi, depending upon its consistency. If it is thick enough so that a good big mouthful can be picked up on two fingers it is termed two finger poi. It can be bought at any grocery or market in Honolulu and is used by the Islander and Haole (whites) alike. The poi from a special purplish taro root (was tabu (Forbidden) to the common people in the days of royalty and reserved for the royal household alone.

No Hula, No Appetite
No feast is a luau without the favorite Hawaiian entertainment, the hula. The hula generally seen on the mainland is a distorted and off brand "hoochy koochy" and bears but little resemblance to the hula as danced by the Island girls. There are various kinds of hulas and to me the Queen's Hula is by far the prettiest and the least suggestive. Each movement of the hands and body in the hula has a meaning and describes the form and beauty of the queen together with the important events in her young life. The rhythmic movement of the bodies of from two to twenty girls in these hulas is pretty to say the least.

Accompanying the movements are words, which with the use of the hands convey the whole story. The song at a real hula is accompanied by real old Hawaiian music. Do not confuse the old Polynesian music with the adopted Hawaiian instruments of today. The guitar and the "uke" are unknown to the Islanders until after the coming of the Portuguese. The old Hawaiian instruments consisted of a number of gourds containing pebbles, with which they marked the time while the only other instrument was a bamboo flute blown by the nose instead of the mouth.

Many of the favorite Hawaiian airs of today owe their composition of Henri Berger, who died in Honolulu a few years ago at the age of eighty-seven. Mr. Berger was imported from Germany by King Kalakaua to instruct and lead the Royal Hawaiian Band after Kalakaua had made a visit to that country. This king was greatly responsible for the beginning of the modernization of the city of Honolulu.

Shoe for Calling Cards
The feast food of the Japanese is sukiyaki and when prepared at your table by a pretty Japanese maid garbed in the native dress of Japan it not only is delicious but offers a pleasing novelty. When entering a Japanese home or tea house one removes his shoes as it is considered very bad manners to enter with shoes on. You can always be sure that the occupants of a Japanese house are at home by the lineup of shoes and sandals on the front porch. Each white person entering is loaned a kimona, men and women alike, and are shown places at a table which stands about six inches high. One sits on mats.

Then the girl waiting on your table brings in a charcoal brazier and places it on the table together with the meat to be cooked and the various condiments to be used. Peanut oil is poured in the pan over the brazier, soya sauce and coconut milk is added and when smoking hot the cooking begins. The girl picks up the meat (beef, chicken, fish or what have you) in her chopsticks and quickly cooking it serves it piping hot. Help yourself to the tea, rice, Chinese cabbage, Japanese turnips, bamboo shoots, etc., and if you can handle the chopsticks the meal is on.

Chopsticks are two slender round sticks about one-third the size of a leadpencil and about nine inches long which are held in one hand and used as tweezers. Try picking up your food with them. It is lots of fun. Even an apple or ball can be picked up with them after you learn. What? You can't make the grade? Alright Ewasan will get you a fork and spoon but the "kick" is gone from your Japanese meal.

A Splendid Idea
To be sure you are wondering how one would pick up rice from the bowl and transfer it to the mouth with chopsticks. It's easy when you know how—just pick the bowl up in one hand, place it to the lips and scoop the rice into the open mouth. Not a pretty operation but eating at the best is not pretty.

If this is a regular party you care for further entertainment, Geisha girls will be called in, who will see that you are comfortable, play, sing, and dance for you, and if it is required do a nice job of Javanese flirting. Not bad by a whole lot as they are professional entertainers and educated in that particular line.

To give you an idea of a Chinese feast may I describe Ah Leong's birthday dinner to which Mrs. Weber and I were asked. Ah Leong, a wealthy Chinese merchant and property owner of Honolulu was eighty years old on this day. And did he "throw a real feed?" The place: Hip Sing Tong House, on Smith Street. The time: 3:30 p. m.

With about three hundred other guests we climbed the narrow stairway to the second floor of the tong quarters. At the head of the stairs we were received by Ah Leong and presented with a brass medal-appearing affair on a ribbon and pin which he pinned on the breast of each man with many expressions of gratitude for our having honored him on this auspicious occasion. His breast looked like that of an old veteran of many engagements as he wore the medals commemorating each of his birthday parties, fifteen or twenty in number. Receiving with him were his young wife and his eldest son, a man of fifty. The ladies were given bardinias.

We were seated at a table laid with chopsticks, plates, rice bowls, condiment bowls, short handled china spoons, and the "mallest tea cups I had even seen, the use for which soon became evident. A waiter entered and placed a very small teapot in the center of the table. Very little tea for eight persons. I immediately sampled the tea. The small cups were plenty large enough as the teapot contained a most potent imported Chinese liquor.

Firecrackers And Tea
Amid the explosions of thousands of firecrackers, large and small, the two and one-half hour meal was on. One of the poor shell-shocked war veterans went all to pieces and had to be taken home. Too many firecrackers assisted by too much tea.

First came a course of cooked pickled spare ribs with vegetables cooked in the same manner, then a dish made up of shredded shark fins and eggs. Not fresh eggs, but eggs shipped from China and seasoned (?) there in mud and straw for years. Less than five years and it is a rotten egg but ten or fifteen years produces a much desired mellowness. Yes, we ate it and liked it.

Then came oysters cooked as only the Chinese can cook them. They too are mellow and can be seen in the Chinese markets, dried and strung on reed hoops. Would not know how to describe the dish except that the oysters were whole in a dish of a heavy sort of sauce of very wonderful seasoning. Following this came pink pork which was fresh bacon cooked in a way that made it pink and absolutely greaseless. The Chinese boy told me that it took thirty-six hours to prepare it.

Next came a whole cooked duck floating in a bowl of soupy gravy. One of the ladies asked how in the world we would cut up that duck without a knife or fork. A man at our table who was acquainted with Chinese food took the china spoon and served the duck. There was not a bone in it, yet there was no evidence that the skin had been broken. These ducks are prepared in China, packed in peanut oil and shipped to Honolulu in five gallon cans.

Then came a course of beef cooked with mushrooms, tomato, green peppers, water chesnuts, bamboo shoots, etc., and over all was poured a sweet pickle sauce. We were next served with a lobster dish the like of which is seldom equaled. Do not know the mode of preparing this dish but the tender pieces of the lobster were served in a sauce with a like amount of fresh litchnuts.

Though we had eaten enough for two meals now came chicken with almonds, Peking style. In this dish the vegetables are prepared much the same as for the American Chinese dish chopsoi, but everything is diced. It contains bean sprouts, water chesnuts, bamboo sprouts, Chinese peas and mixed in this the diced cooked chicken and over the entire dish is spread chopped blanched almonds. This is my favorite of all Chinese dishes.

How To Cook Rice
With the courses mentioned above we consumed bowl after bowl of rice and noodles. Let me tell you here how the Oriental cooks rice. Wash the rice until the water is clear, then place in a tightly covered bucket or sauce pan and add cold water to cover the rice about one inch. Bring to a boil as quickly as possible, then cut down the fire and cook until tender. Add more water if necessary but cook until dry. By all means do not stir. Cooked in this way each grain is plump and separate.

Reversing the Occidental order of the meal we were next served with the famous bird's nest soup. Yes, it is made of the gummy substance that a sort of swallow uses for sticking together the parts of its nest. When cooked it has the appearance of tapioca and is delicious.

After this never-to-be-forgotten meal we expressed our appreciation to our host, and being uncomfortable from so much food we drove home to go to bed and dream of silver dragons and Chinese devils. So ended Ah Leong's birthday dinner. May he live to be a hundred.

Things Often Look Different In Cold Black Type

"I hear," said the friend, "that you have just made $50,000 in the insurance business."

"Right—except for one or two little particulars. It was real estate—not insurance. It was $75,000, not $50,000. And I didn't make it—I lost it!"

Has it ever happened to you that something you've told an acquaintance comes back, after many days, so distorted that you hardly recognize it? The spoken word so changes and colors much that we say, that by the time it passes many lips only the skeleton of truth remains.

But how different it is with the printed word! That is why you can trust the advertisements. Had you thought of it that way? Because the manufacturer and merchant are compelled to be accurate in type, you know that the quality of soap, ginger ale, clothing, butter or furniture you buy is as standard as the calendar. It's all the manufacturer and retailer claim for it. It has to be!

Read the advertisements. Read them carefully, critically. Read them for profit! Read them knowing that the truth pays . . . you and the advertiser!

"Southern Brevities"

They Are Coming "Southern Brevities" in "A Night Club Revue" RITZ THEATRE

Something new in vaudeville and musical revues will be instituted by Jimmie Allard and his "Southern Brevities" in "A Night Club Revue" which opens at the Ritz Theatre on Tuesday for a one day engagement. Jimmie Allard—better known as "The South's Favorite Comedian," and who has headlined on all the major vaudeville circuits is the feature of this bright musi-girl revue. Besides the "Brevities Chorus," a bevy of beautiful girls who can really entertain you with new and peppy song and dance ensembles, an abundance of high class vaudeville specialties will be introduced. Emmett Powers and his "Louisiana Buddies," a stage band hot and sweet, will furnish the music background for this petite revue. "The Dixie Four," known as "Southlands Sweetest Harmony Singing Quartet," will offer a routine of read harmony and humor, and many new song-dance and comedy skits will be presented by the other members of this stage presentation. Sixteen entertainers—rhythm dancing—good music—wholesome comedy and beautiful girls gorgeously presented make up "Southern Brevities" an outstanding stage show and real entertainment. This stage show will be presented in addition to regular screen program.

Texas Takes Lead In U.S. Exports

Texas moved ahead of New York to first place in the country as an exporting state in 1932, according to figures issued by Sherwood H. Avery, manager of the Dallas office of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

Exports from Texas during the first nine months of 1932, his figures showed, were greater than those of New York by nearly $19,000,000, and were greater by about $6,000,000 than from Texas ports for the corresponding period of 1931.

Texas exports for the first nine months of 1932 were $209,835,362. New York's were $190,119,423. Texas' for the same period of 1931 were $203,313,132. New York's for the 1931 period were $314,694,313.

"The increasing value of exports from Texas," Avery said, "was due to larger shipments of unmanufactured cotton in the 1932 period. Exports of unmanufactured cotton, including linters, from Texas during this period amounted to 3,376,766 bales, valued at $134,427,669, as compared with 2,132,537 bales valued at $115,799,521 for the same period of 1931."

Gasoline exports from Texas decreased during this period. In 1932 they were 10,097,533 barrels valued at $21,951,095. In 1931 they were 12,621,529 barrels valued at $29,168,923.

Exports of lubricating oil for the same period increased. In 1932 they were 1,538,352 barrels valued at $7,590,590. In 1931 they were 1,416,993 barrels valued at $7,449,757.

These figures were based on "states of original shipment" given by shipper in export declarations. Figures for the last three months of 1932 were not available.

The sink saves Mrs. Simmons 100 steps, daily, she says, and the whole cost, including paint, was less than $1.00.

Deck's DIDACTICS

By H. D. W.

Last fall and early this year I wrote about the need of a controlled inflation. There have been vague rumors to the effect that the Government intended to undertake such a program. On the strength of these rumors wheat went up and other grains followed up and other grains followed inflation sends them up, what will the actual thing do. It will send prices up, which will enable many people who are in debt to pay off thereby liquidating the internal debt by a much more pleasant process than the slow one of bankruptcy. When inflation comes, you may not recognize it, because it can be done by a number of means besides that of changing the amount of gold back of every dollar. It can be done by using the government's credit. The banks did it in prosperous times by extending credit. If you are interested to a greater extent in this subject there is an article in the last issue of the Saturday Evening Post that you should read. It will show by facts and figures how a high priced money in the United States is penalizing the working people, the farmers as well as every industry and business.

What a difference thirty-one miles can make! Recently I was talking to B. F. Holmes of Shamrock, who is one of the owners who supplies that town with gas. His company has never been asked to make a reduction in the rates over there. In fact they started with a 50 cent rate, which we would be proud to have now. Then they lowered it to 40 cents, and last year they again reduced the rate to 30 cents and that is what the people over there are paying now. And they were never asked to reduce the rate at all. It wouldn't do for such a thing to happen here—too many people would drop dead from heart failure if the company which serves Wellington were to voluntarily make a 40 per cent reduction in the rate.

Last week I passed up an advertisement from a big store in a nearby town. I feel that I had a perfect right to run the advertisement just as any merchant has a right to sell merchandise to anyone who wants to buy it, but I didn't feel like sending business to another town when our own merchants are as hard pressed as they are. With very little dry goods advertising being done in Wellington, I am convinced that an attractive ad from another town would have drawn business away from us. However, I don't expect I will get any thanks for passing it up. A number of papers ran the advertisement, and I will be willing to bet that they carry more dry goods advertising in the next four weeks than this paper does.

I am not saying this in a spirit of bitterness, for I know that Wellington has the finest set of merchants of any town anywhere, and most of them are doing the best they possibly can. But it isn't going to be so many months until it is going to take a little more pep to keep a thriving business than ever before. When the paved road is completed it will bring a number of advantages, but it will also bring an equal number of serious problems. The day when a town could expect a certain amount of business due to its location is fast passing. It will be past for Wellington when the road is completed. With a paved road to Shamrock and Childress, Wellington is going to have to compete with those towns or else start going backward. I am not talking about advertising alone. That is only a part of it. I am also talking about merchandising, proper buying of new and desired merchandise, intensive and effective use of window displays, attractive arrangement of merchandise within the stores, displays inside the store, etc. All of these things will have to receive active and energetic attention not just once in a while, but every day in the week and every week in the year. I hope and pray that commodity prices will go up enough to give the entire town heart enough to tackle the job. Right now I am concerned as much about the loss of spirit in Wellington as I am about the loss of money. Some time or other we are going to make that money back we have lost, but the community morale is harder to build back and it is eminently more precious. We should treasure it as a priceless thing, and build it back while there is still time.

So far I have been talking principally to merchants. Now I want to say a word to the people for a while—particularly the women who do most of the buying. This is a time when buying at home means more than it ever did before. If our schools, churches, and other things mean anything at all, this is the time to support the community which made them possible. Unless Wellington business houses continue to receive patronage, the very things that make the town worth living in will suffer. Every time a dollar is spent somewhere else, the town has been weakened just that much. If you like to live in Wellington, you ought to have a passion for trying to build it up. If you don't like here, you ought to move. I know it is easy to point to someone else and say they buy out of town, why shouldn't I. Every one of us has done that same thing at some time or other. But after all, that doesn't solve the problem. It only offers an excuse. What we need in this town is a little patriotism for our own community.

Lion Walker won the two year subscription to The Wellington Leader for guessing the nearest to the number of bales of cotton that were ginned from the 1932 crop. The actual total was 45,652, and Lion guessed 45,251. H. F. Thomas didn't miss it much with 46,520, and J. A. Gordon came close with 44,444. To A. J. Peters, one of the best truck farmers in the county, goes the doubtful honor of missing the mark the most. His guess was 33,333.

You have heard about these patent medicines that are good for heart trouble, liver complaint, stomach ailments, dandruff and toe itch. Well, I've got one like that for plants. The only difference mine will work. It will kill bag worms on trees, kill insects on rose bushes and stimulate a heavy growth on most anything. Here is the recipe. Mix thoroughly 10 lbs. of lime, 4 tablespoons of sulphur, 4 tablespoons of black antimony, and 2 tablespoons of nuxvomica. To apply to roses dig a little trench around the bush and put one tablespoon of the mixture in dry form in the trench and then wet it down. Also sprinkle a little on the leaves. For trees use one tablespoon for every inch the tree is in diameter.

Wade Arnold tells this one about his father. In the old days Mr. Arnold ran a newspaper in Wellington. The name of the paper was The News. Frequently people would stop him and ask: "What's the news today." "A dollar a year," he would reply. As soon as Wade told me, I tried it out on the first man who asked me that question, and he politely informed me that he was paid up for a year. So I bought him a drink and we call it square.

On the school contracts recently submitted to the teachers there was a notation telling them to please sign and return, but a few got one which said: "sign" and return. Shuck, Bud, there wasn't no need to tell them to do that.

Prehistoric Skull Of South America

Considerable scientific interest has been manifested in the photographs and measurements of some skulls brought from South America by W. C. Bennett of the American Museum of Natural History. The skulls were found in Venezuela, and Mr. Bennett said that Dr. Rafael Bequena, secretary general of the Republic of Venezuela, the discoverer of the skulls, believed they belonged to a race of prehistoric men and held the theory that perhaps they might be older than the Java ape man. Pittdown man or Peking man or any of the other celebrated skulls of the world. Mr. Bennett said that perhaps these heads were not so ancient as Doctor Reguena believed and that it might have been possible that their remarkable ape-like structure might have resulted from artificial deformity. However, he had taken the detailed measurements and photographs for future study and investigation.—Washington Star.

Clyde Beatty, one of the most noted wild animal trappers in the entire world, is being featured along with his wild animals of circus life in "The Big Cage," which shows at the Ritz on Saturday of this week. The Ritz is showing in their lobby a facsimile of the affidavit signed by Mr. Beatty that not a single scene in the picture is faked. This affidavit is made in the face of one of the most thrilling adventures anyone witnessed with wild animals, subdued to trainers orders with rules—abruptly broken.

Special Interest to Children As Well As Adults
Manager Bonner stated to a representative of this paper that he hoped every child as well as adult in Wellington and trade territory would be privileged to see this picture. He said he would like to encourage teachers, clubs and parents to arrange special parties for the showing of the "Big Cage." He supplemented his statement with the assertion that he would gladly admit free any child who was absolutely financially unable to attend, when proper authorities or vouchers for such parties made the requests. Mr. Bonner said in about these words, "I am trying to operate a business with as little loss as possible until conditions permit of profitable operation, but occasionally something comes along that impresses upon me the obligation and responsibility of serviceable citizenship, and I try to forget the necessity of revenue to balance the budget. This is one of those occasions, and I am anxious that every one in this community has an opportunity to see "The Big Cage" next Saturday. That's why I am offering to admit free, anyone who are not financially able to come, when properly vouched for. I think it is a treat that every one should be privileged to see and I'll do my part toward that end." Such liberality on Manager Bonner's part should be an excellent recommendation of the picture. It is in line with the policy of leadership of this paper, and should receive consideration from the citizenship of the community.

INVENTS NEW MATCHES

A rival of the match has been invented by an Austrian scientist. It is a lighting stick capable of being used 600 times. Its stone-like stem is made up of chemicals and burning gases develop at once upon its being struck. As the burning gases raise the temperature, nitrogen gas is released in sufficient quantity to choke the flame after allowing time to light a fire or a cigarette.
