'Black box' contains no data about flight's final 6 minutes

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia (AP) — Divers have retrieved Swissair Flight 111's flight data recorder despite an emergency that endangered their lives, but experts say the "black box" contains no information from the final six minutes of the doomed flight.

Crash investigators had high hopes after the data recorder was recovered from the ocean floor Sunday. But laboratory examinations on Monday revealed that there was no data from the last minutes right before the MD-11 jumbo jet plunged into the sea off Nova Scotia late Wednesday, killing all 229 people aboard.

Vic Gerden, the chief crash investigator, said the data recorder stopped once the plane dropped below 10,000 feet altitude. A power failure seems probable, he said.

In Zurich, Swissair's chief pilot-designate, Rainer Hiltebrand, rejected as "irresponsible" suggestions that the plane's pilots reacted too late to the situation.

A total loss of power was virtually unthinkable, he added today. The MD-11 has three normal generators, as well as a back-up generator and an emergency generator. There is also a battery which would power all the plane's essential functions for 15 minutes, Hiltebrand said.

In a scare Monday night that was reminiscent of last week's crash, a charter plane belonging to a subsidiary of Swissair's parent company returned to Halifax shortly after reporting smoke in its galley.

The Balair/CTA Airbus A-310 was on a flight from Zurich to Vancouver via a scheduled stop in Halifax with 144 passengers on board, SAirGroup spokeswoman Beatrice Tschanz said in Zurich. The smoke was caused by a short-circuit, she said.

"It was not an emergency landing" and went without any problems, Tschanz said. The plane continued to Vancouver early today, she said.

In Halifax on Monday, Gerden said the data recorder from Swissair Flight 111 was in good condition and should provide useful evidence about 100 types of information ranging from altitude and airspeed to whether the plane's smoke warning lights were on.

The data recorder, found at a depth of 190 feet, nearly didn't make it to the surface. Navy Capt. Phil Webster said one of the two divers developed a leak in his suit, and the pair had to make an ascent much more rapidly than is considered safe.

One of the divers became ill from the rapid change in pressure. Both were put in a decompression chamber, then taken to a hospital. Both were recovering at home, Webster said.

At the crash site, in the Atlantic five miles off shore, divers equipped with hand-held sonar searched Monday for the plane's other black box — the cockpit voice recorder. The signals from the device have been detected, but bad weather forced suspension of the diving until Wednesday at the earliest.

If retrieved intact, the voice recorder would reveal other noises in the cockpit besides the pilots' conversation with controllers, portions of which were released Saturday. That conversation was cut off 10 minutes after the pilots reported smoke in the cockpit and minutes before the crash.

Divers also were trying to confirm if three large pieces of wreckage found near the flight data recorder are sections of the plane's fuselage.

Second suspect is in custody following shooting rampage

AURORA, Colo. (AP) — Two teen-agers allegedly shot four other teens and a woman to death in a rampage at two homes in this Denver suburb. One of the suspects was later found dead in a field and the other was taken into custody.

Witnesses who saw the attack at one home Monday told police "two kids wearing bandanas" barged into the house carrying shotguns and opened fire, police spokesman Bob Stef said.

"They just walked in, fired the shots and walked out. Apparently it happened pretty quickly," Stef said.

A body at first believed to be a sixth victim of the rampage was identified early today as that of a suspect, Michael Martinez, 18, Stef said.

Police then tracked down the second suspect, a 17-year-old boy, at a home in the suburb, and he was taken to the police station accompanied by his father, Stef said. Stef declined to identify the boy. Police believe he shot Martinez.

Officers were summoned to a baby blue two-story home in an upscale neighborhood Monday afternoon by neighbors who heard shots and screams. They found the bodies of a mother and two teen-agers — a boy and a girl.

Stef said police have responded to four previous calls at the house for family violence, all late last year, but no details were available.

Police also received a report of shots fired at a home about six blocks away about the same time, but saw nothing out of the ordinary there when they checked it out.

When they identified Martinez and realized he had friends in the area of the second house, they returned there, forced their way in and found two bodies of boys in their teens.

Clues there led them to a sixth body in a field 10 miles away, but it was several hours before that body was identified as Martinez.

Stef said police were not sure which house was attacked first. They also were unsure of a motive, but didn't think it was related to robbery, drugs or gang rivalry.

"Martinez was apparently an acquaintance of all five victims," Stef said. "Whether the second suspect was just along for the ride, or whether he knew them, too, is uncertain."

The shootings shook up residents of the upscale neighborhood, who were told to stay indoors for about five hours while police SWAT teams hunted for the fugitives.

David Clere, 41, who has lived in the area for 32 years, said the shootings brought back memories of a 1993 rampage that left four dead in a Chuck E Cheese restaurant in Aurora.

"This is a pretty wealthy neighborhood. It's not like we should have these bad elements around here," he said. "Crime has gone up because a lot of people have moved here from other states, trying to get away from crime, and I think they just brought it with them."

Now is the time to purchase oil banquet tickets

Tickets remain on sale for the Oil Appreciation Celebration Dinner Oct. 17 at Scurry County Coliseum.

The tickets are available at the chamber of commerce office for $12.50 each.

The celebration will mark the 50th anniversary of the discovery of the Canyon Reef oilfield and the 75th anniversary of the Sharon Ridge field.

It will also mark the 25th year since the billionth barrel celebration in 1973.

Espy Price, vice president of Chevron's North America Exploration and Production division, will be guest speaker for the dinner.

Numerous oil-related exhibits will be displayed at the coliseum on the day of the event, and a variety of entertainment will also be offered.

Only two misses wins first place in grid contest

The second SDN Football Contest of the season proved to be a bit easier for entrants than the first. The first place winner had just two misses, and the other winners had only three misses.

Juanita Wright of 3618 41st was the $50 winner, missing one college game and one pro game.

The tie-breaker procedure was used to determine the rest of the winners. Kay Bradberry of 1101 28th St. was the $25 winner.

Due to two entrants picking the same number of total points on the tie-breaker, Pat Maxfield of 1593 Laurel Lane and Claudia McCravey of 4101 Avondale will split $15.

Honorable mention goes to Una Boles who also had three misses.

Winners will be mailed their checks.

Another contest appears on page 10 of this issue and readers have an opportunity to win $250 for a perfect score.

Pick all 20 games correctly and pick the exact score of the tie-breaker and a $1,000 prize will be yours.

Entrants are reminded that the entries from this issue of the newspaper must be in the office of the Snyder Daily News by 5 p.m. Friday.

Friday circus performances feature trained lions, tigers

It's almost circus time again as the Jordan World Circus has two performances scheduled for Friday at Scurry County Coliseum.

Performance times are 4:30 and 7:30 p.m. and advance tickets may be purchased at the Snyder Daily News.

Readers of the News' classified pages have an opportunity to win a free family pass by finding their name among the classified ads.

Five randomly selected names will appear in the classified section through Thursday.

If your name is among the ads, come by the newspaper office and claim your family pass.

Coming direct from Las Vegas, the Jordan World Circus has been bringing entertainment to children of all ages in every corner of the United States for many years.

There is something for everyone in this year's show, including wild and domestic animals performing.

There will be a mixed arena of both jungle and captive bred lions and tigers.

The trainer will demonstrate a complete understanding of these magnificant beasts by training, but not taming them.

There will also be a ring full of alligators in which their trainer will risk life and limb in an almost unbelievable demonstration.

RING OF FIRE — Lions and tigers will highlight the Jordan World Circus Friday at Scurry County Coliseum. Performances are set for 4:30 and 7:30 p.m. (Contributed Photo)

THE SDN COLUMN

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "I once missed a hole-in-one by only three strokes."

Thanks to the current issue of the Rotary International magazine, the following are famous quips concerning one of those games that both delights and disgusts:

--Show me a man who is a good loser and I'll show you a man who is playing golf with his boss.

--If you think it's hard to meet new people, try picking up the wrong golf ball.

--Columbus went around the world in 1492. That isn't a lot of strokes when you consider the course.

--Swing hard in case you hit it.

--Former President Gerald Ford said he knew he was getting better at golf when he started hitting fewer spectators.

--It was three over: one over the house, one over a patio and one over a swimming pool.

--I'd give up golf if I didn't have so many sweaters.

--Bob Hope said, "If you watch a game, it's fun. If you play it, it's recreation. If you work at it, it's golf."

--The president of the anti-golf society said, "If every golfer in the world, male and female, were laid end to end. I for one, would leave them there."

--At age 77 Sam Snead remarked, "It's a grind trying to beat 60-year-old kids out there."

--Baseball great Hank Aaron observed, "It took me 17 years to get 3,000 hits in baseball. I did it in one afternoon on the golf course.

--Golf is golf. You hit the ball, you go find it. You hit it again.

--It's good sportsmanship to not pick up lost golf balls while they are still rolling.

--Another diamond great, Ernie Banks, said, "Baseball reveals character, golf exposes it."

--Playing golf is like chasing a quinine pill around a cow pasture.

--Golf is so popular simply because it is the best game in the world at which to be bad.

--Old golfers never die, they just putter away.

--Jack Benny once said, "Give me golf clubs, the fresh air and a beautiful partner, and you can keep my golf clubs and the fresh air."

WTC's John Gibson was the culprit, but we drove the getaway vehicle.

Somebody in the Bassridge Addition is missing an American Flag. Two members picking up Rotary Club flags Monday picked up a personal flag and holder.

If the owner of the missing flag will call, we'll drive Gibson to return it.

Police find suspected drug money in vehicle

ABILENE (AP) — A husband and wife said they have no idea how $167,210 in suspected drug money ended up in their vehicle, so police let them go on their way — without the money.

Authorities told the Abilene Reporter-News in Tuesday's editions the discovery could be the largest in Erath County history.

Department of Public Safety trooper Ken Bratton stopped a 1985 GMC Suburban Saturday afternoon for a suspected traffic violation three miles west of Stephenville on Highway 377.

Bratton said when he questioned the driver, 35-year-old Marcos E. Garcia of Del Rio, and his wife, he received conflicting information about where they had come from and how long they had been away.

"Because I was getting conflicting information, I had a reasonable suspicion and asked the driver for permission to search the vehicle," which he gave, Bratton said.

The trooper said a sheriff's drug-sensing dog was brought to the scene and discovered something in the truck's right quarter panel.

When officers searched that part of the vehicle, Bratton said, they found wadded-up bunches of bills that were held together with rubber bands and stuffed behind the right stereo speaker.

Police let the Garcias go because the dog did not react with suspicion when they pulled the money from the truck. If the dog had barked, Bratton said, police could have taken the vehicle.

Officials said they're holding the money until someone can prove ownership and claims it.

If no one claims the money, a federal court will award it to the Department of Public Safety and the Erath County Sheriff's Department, Bratton said.

Stephenville is 90 miles east of Abilene.

Clinton woes may mark next elections

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic voters disheartened by President Clinton's relationship with Monica Lewinsky and a political system "on the brink of moral bankruptcy" might not vote on Nov. 3, a bipartisan poll says.

That would help give Republicans the edge, especially in races for open congressional seats, says Celinda Lake, a Democratic pollster who joined forces with GOP pollster Ed Goeas to release their "Battleground 1998" survey today.

The poll says Clinton's personal problems have elevated "moral and religious issues" to the top of the voters' agenda. It ties with crime and drugs as the No. 1 problem facing the nation.

Voters surveyed give the Democratic Party credit for an improved economy, yet the poll suggests that Democrats won't do well in November unless they shift discussion away from Clinton and moral values and rally their party's constituents around issues like Social Security, health care and education.

The Aug. 23-25 telephone survey of 1,000 registered voters found 35 percent of respondents identifying themselves as Republicans, 34 percent Democrats. But when the focus turns to those who say they are extremely likely to vote, the Republicans take the lead, 38 percent to 32 percent.

The poll had a margin of error of plus or minus 3 percentage points.

"Democratic voters, demoralized by President Clinton's problems and seeing little incentive to vote for politicians and a system teetering on the brink of moral bankruptcy, may choose to stay home on Nov. 3 while Republicans may turn out at average or higher than average levels to help cure the moral ills of politics," Lake says.

A Pew Research Center poll released late last month following Clinton's Aug. 17 grand jury testimony found 61 percent said the Clinton-Lewinsky controversy would not affect their vote in November.

In the upcoming congressional elections, a gain of 11 seats would give Democrats control of the House, which would hold impeachment proceedings if warranted. Goeas says that's not likely.

He says Republicans' advantage in key House and Senate races and the fact that Republican voters are showing a higher tendency to vote could allow the GOP to pick up 15 to 20 House seats and give Republicans a better than even chance of reaching 60 seats in the Senate.

"The bottom line is that Americans are deeply troubled by the president's actions, a fact that will be much more tangible on November 3," Goeas says.

According to the poll, frequent voters like seniors, college graduates and married people identify themselves more as Republicans than Democrats. The GOP advantage among seniors is 36 percent to 31 percent Democrat; college graduates, 38 percent to 30 percent; and married people, 40 percent to 29 percent.

The poll says 62 percent of voters disapprove of Clinton personally. His job approval rating, however, stands at 56 percent, down from the mid- to low 60s before admitting he lied about having what he called an "inappropriate relationship" with Ms. Lewinsky, a former White House intern.

Goeas says Clinton's high job approval rating simply parallels a humming economy.

Historic Rainbow Bridge monument to hard work

BRIDGE CITY (AP) — It has been 60 years since the Rainbow Bridge was opened to span the Neches River in Southeast Texas.

The steel-truss wonder, which at 176 feet was the tallest in the South when it opened on Sept. 8, 1938, stands as a monument to hard work.

Workers toiled for more than two years to complete the $2.5 million Rainbow Bridge, earning wages that seem little by modern standards, but were significant at the end of the Great Depression.

Mechanics, for example, got $1.25 an hour for their welding or pipe fitting services. Hoist operators earned 80 cents an hour. Truck drivers, 60 cents. And a helper, 50 cents.

"Back then, that was a lot," Marc Shepherd, a regional spokesman for the Texas Department of Transportation, told the Beaumont Enterprise.

"It's much more different today than it was back then," Shepherd said. "Back then, all it took was to go out there and do it. Now we have all types of procedures to follow and federal and environmental guidelines to go by."

The Rainbow Bridge was completed in two years and four months. The nearby Veteran's Memorial Bridge, which opened in 1990, took six years to build from the time a contract was awarded and cost about 20 times as much.

Planners for the Rainbow Bridge had to battle some public opposition to the project, but didn't have to worry about much federal government oversight.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service wasn't established until 1956. The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers didn't require a wetlands development permit.

The modern Occupational Safety and Health Administration would have certainly investigated the six deaths that occurred during the Rainbow Bridge's construction.

Diners Who Are Rushed Today May Not Come Back Tomorrow

by Abigail Van Buren

© 1998 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: About the restaurant closing time item in your column — how many restaurateurs did you interview before writing your answer? If my closing time is 9 p.m., that is when we close the door to new customers. Whoever arrives before 9 receives our best service until they leave.

Indeed, I do fault the employees and management of the restaurant in question. In my judgment, that restaurant's policy lost a minimum of four future customers in that one incident alone.

WARD HORNBLOWER PROESCHER,
COMMODORE DINING EVENTS,
LAYFAYETTE, CALIF.

DEAR WARD: I didn't interview any — and I apologize for that answer, which generated some eye-opening mail. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: A restaurant's posted closing time means no additional customers after that time. Or, that's when the kitchen closes. Or, no more food service after that time. But it does not mean that the door is locked at the stroke of 9 and diners should stop what they're doing and get out. If a person has been seated 15 minutes before the posted closing time, certainly the expectation is that the customer will have time to eat.

What kind of stupidity allows employees to make a customer's dinnertime so miserable that they not only won't return, but will surely tell all their friends about their experience? That's no way to do business. I think the restaurant was at fault.

S. DAVID IN SHERMAN OAKS, CALIF.

DEAR S. DAVID: After chewing on it for a while, I must agree. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Speaking as a lifetime restaurant worker, the posted closing time is when no more customers are allowed into the restaurant. Guests entering before that time have the right to receive the same quality of service as those entering at the height of business hours.

Owners and managers who care about their guests would have disciplined employees acting like those at the restaurant in San Carlos.

The problem with that restaurant, and too many others, is the employees forgot the most important rule of proper service: Guests are never an inconvenience. Guests are our livelihood! Without them, we might as well be dishing out food at a school cafeteria, instead of practicing the fine art of restaurant service, one in which many of us take a great deal of pride.

DONNA WILLIAMS,
NASHVILLE, TENN.

DEAR DONNA: I stand corrected, but I did receive a small percentage of mail such as the following:

DEAR ABBY: Thank you! Thank you! Thank you for the terrific answer to "Disappointed Diner in San Carlos, Calif." I have worked in food service for 30 years, 23 of which have been in management. Closing time for late customers has always been a problem. For some reason, people think that when the last customer leaves, all the manager and crew have to do is lock the doors and go home.

We want customers to have a pleasant dining experience, and most people do respect our closing times. However, I have seen many instances where my entire crew has been held up for two hours due to inconsiderate customers. Sometimes I feel like asking customers how they would like to stay an extra two hours at their jobs after their scheduled quitting time!

GOOD NEWS

By Wayne Horton

This Jesus we preachers talk about is really an amazing person. And he doesn't act at all the way we'd expect. He breaks all the conventional molds. He never does what we religious folk think He should. He always surprises us.

He befriends pagans and prostitutes. He forgives Apostles and adulterers. He relates to Samaritans and lepers. He even touches them. A racist, He isn't. He attacks religious leaders, welcomes little children, calms storms (on seas and in hearts), and never attempts to defend Himself before His accusers.

None of us would have written such a scenario for a religious leader. But aren't you glad Jesus is that kind of Savior? You see, that means He can love even me-and even you.

Forgiven! Free from sin's consequences! It sounds great, doesn't it!? Maybe some of we preachers ought to be a little less judgmental and a little more loving-and accepting. In other words, a little more like Jesus. If we were, we might find that people would like us and respect us like they did Him. And wouldn't that be Good News?!

Ask Anne & Nan

By Anne B. Adams & Nancy Nash-Cummings

Prevent sheets from wadding up

DEAR ANNE AND NAN: Whenever I dry my bed sheets in the dryer, they end up in one big ball. Is there any way of preventing this? I always have to unfold the wad of sheets and re-dry them. — ELVIRA ROTTIGNI, Chalfont, Pa.

DEAR ELVIRA: Give your sheets a good shake before you put them in the dryer, and that should solve your problem.

DEAR ANNE AND NAN: I lived in northwestern Indiana for twenty-some years and enjoyed gyros sandwiches with cucumber sauce at Greek restaurants. Gyros aren't available here in central upper Michigan. I do miss the cucumber sauce and ask if you can supply me with the recipe. — GENE VARDA, Kingsford, Mich.

DEAR GENE: This is our recipe for cucumber sauce, which we serve with hamburgers and Greek meatballs:

Yogurt Cucumber Sauce
1 cup plain yogurt
2 cloves crushed garlic
1 tablespoon olive oil
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
2 cucumbers
salt and pepper to taste

Combine the yogurt, garlic, olive oil and lemon juice. Peel and seed and quarter the cukes. Add them to the yogurt mixture. Refrigerate to chill. For a variation, add 1 teaspoon of crushed dried mint.

DEAR ANNE AND NAN: I've looked high and low for a soft synthetic pillow, nice and fluffy like the kinds in hotels. The soft pillows I have aren't soft enough and flatten quickly. If the pillow is too firm, it hurts my ears. — CINDY QUIGLEY, Hawthorn Woods, Ill.

DEAR CINDY: We found some peachy pillows called "Beautyrest" at Kmart for around $10 a pop. We've used them for ages and find them very satisfactory. They are cotton and polyester and sound perfect for you.

FEEDBACK: STINKY FREEZER — Here's another solution for Pearl McCall's stinky freezer. Iva Willie says to wad up newspaper and fill the freezer with paper balls. Let it sit for a couple of days and repeat the procedure until the smell is gone. Iva had to do this three times, and finally the smell was gone.

DEAR ANNE AND NAN: When I lived up North, I used to get a magazine called, I believe, "Law Enforcement." After I retired as a police officer and moved to Florida, I couldn't find the magazine on the newsstand. Could you find the address for it? — WALTER ORZE, Belleview, Fla.

DEAR WALTER: We turned to our copy of Bacon's Magazine Directory (Bacon's Information Inc., 1995) and found several magazines for the law enforcement community. Among the magazines listed are: Law Enforcement Product News, at 100 Garfield St., Denver, CO 80206; Law Enforcement Technology, at 445 Broad Hollow Rd., Melville, NY 11747; and Law and Order, at 1000 Skokie Blvd., Wilmette, IL 60091. If we haven't found the magazine you're looking for, go to your public library and ask the librarian to help you find a magazine reference source.

DEAR ANNE AND NAN: I have an expensive yellow golf shirt which was accidentally washed with something red. As you can imagine, there are now light red stains all over the shirt. I am an avid reader of your column, but I've missed it if you have addressed this problem — that of salvaging clothing like this. Thanks a million for your advice, even if it is to wear the shirt only when cutting grass. — S. GLOVER ROWE, M.D., Centre, Ala.

DEAR DR. ROWE: You have just acquired a spiffy, but red-splotched, shirt for lawn mowing. If your shirt were white, we would recommend Rit Color Remover, but it isn't. We don't know how to get red dye out of colored clothing, Readers, do you?

DEAR ANNE AND NAN: I would love to know what to do so the meringue on my pies does not separate on one side of the crust. MAUDIE MILLER, Bristol, Tenn.

DEAR MAUDIE: The solution is simply to spread the meringue over the crust so there is no space between the crust and the meringue. This will keep your meringue from slipping.

FEEDBACK: VEGETABLE JUICE — We had the nicest letter from Beverly Reinertson of Ravenia, Neb. She writes, "You guys are so wonderfully down to earth, women after my own heart. I thoroughly enjoy reading your column and learning new stuff. The request for vegetable juice from Bonnie Workman of Beatrice, Neb., hit me just right. Decades ago I developed my own method for making vegetable juice. Use a blender. Throw in halved tomatoes, onions and big chunks of green pepper; 1 teaspoon salt for each load. Blend till totally liquid and then put in a stew pot on the stove. Bring to a boil and then simmer until the juice is a bright deep red and it tastes done. I put up about 15 quarts every summer and use it in cooking casseroles all year. It's a great drink, hot or cold. If you are fussy, strain. If you have a Vita-Mix machine, straining won't be necessary; but washing the veggies is a must. On a cold day, crackers served with hot juice is a great snack.

West Bank has casino

JERICHO, West Bank (AP) — Claudia Schiffer is expected to join several Israeli entertainers at next week's opening of the first casino in the autonomous Palestinian areas.

The casino just outside the West Bank enclave of Jericho is to open Sept. 15. Operators hope to attract Israelis and foreign tourists.

Singer's daughter solo's in stardom

NEW YORK (AP) — She may be Diana Ross' daughter, but when it comes down to getting acting jobs, Tracee Ellis Ross has to audition like everybody else.

"Any child who uses their name in a way to get them places, it will get back to them," Ross, 25, told Monday's Daily News. "It doesn't really mean anything if you can't get the work done."

Once more, up the mountain

By Phillip Alder

Yesterday, I compared mountain climbing to bridge. They aren't relatives in the normal sense of the word, but success at each no doubt leaves one with a big smile on one's face.

On today's deal, you and your partner have overbid to a debatable slam. (Yes, all right, it's totally your partner's fault for opening with only 11 high-card points. But I find it hard to pass a hand with ace-king, ace, especially when I can open in a good suit.) How would you try to bring home six spades after West has led a club, a diamond or a spade?

Faced with two club losers, you must establish dummy's heart suit to supply discards.

If West finds the annoying club or diamond lead, you will have no option but to assume a 3-3 heart split. You win with the club ace or diamond king, draw trumps, play a heart to dummy's king, cash the heart ace, and ruff a heart in hand. If all has passed off safely, you lead a diamond to dummy's ace, cash the five-four of hearts, discarding both your club losers, and claim all 13 tricks.

After a trump lead, though, you can handle a 4-2 heart split, which is more likely than an even division. Draw all the trumps, then duck a heart. Win the club or diamond return in hand, play a heart to dummy's king, and cash the ace, discarding a club. Have all the missing hearts appeared? If so, claim. If not, ruff a low heart, return to dummy with a diamond to the ace, and cash the last heart, throwing away your final club loser.

"HE SAVED US"

Paul wrote, "He saved us, not on the basis of deeds which we have done in righteousness, but according to His mercy, by the washing of regeneration and renewing by the Holy Spirit" (Titus 3:7). Jesus is our Savior in at least two wonderful respects. He forgives us and saves us from the guilt and punishment for our past sins. Also, by our changed nature, we are prevented from committing many future sins after we become a Christian.

This is what Augustine meant when, upon seeing some wretch, he said, "There but for the grace of God go I." When considering the earlier tendencies of our lives, thinking on what might have been can produce deep gratitude and humility for our salvation.

First inning shot ties Maris; McGwire goes for 62 tonight

ST. LOUIS (AP) — As Mark McGwire circled the bases, following a path taken by only one player before him, Gary Gaetti was transfixed at third base.

Earlier in the season, the two were teammates with the St. Louis Cardinals, so Gaetti was hardly surprised when the power lurking within Big Mac's gargantuan biceps showed itself for the 61st time this season.

Still, the enormity of watching McGwire pull even with Roger Maris' home run record managed to overwhelm even those who've witnessed this astonishing spectacle from the inner circle of history.

"It's like the last out in the seventh game of the World Series. It's almost like it's unreal, even though it's happening right before your eyes," said Gaetti, who was playing third base for the Chicago Cubs on Monday when McGwire gave new meaning to the M&M Boys. "It's a really strange feeling."

With 19 games to go, no one is questioning whether McGwire will break the record. The only concern is when it's going to happen — the Cardinals play the Cubs again tonight at Busch Stadium — and how many he might hit before he's done.

Will it be 65? Perhaps 68? Or a nice, round number like 70, as McGwire himself has joked about?

"Nobody can put an asterisk on it," McGwire said, alluding to the fate that befell Maris when he broke Ruth's revered record while playing eight additional games.

On the same field where Maris played his final game in 1968, McGwire's sense of timing was impeccable, as usual. He had his son in the dugout, his father in the stands on his 61st birthday, his biggest rival applauding the moment from right field.

"I've hit 61, Mark. I don't know why you shouldn't be able to do it," John McGwire told his son when the two had dinner the night before.

It didn't take long. In the first inning, McGwire launched Mike Morgan's fastball inside the left-field foul pole, the ball slamming off the third-deck facade some 430 feet away, setting off a wild scene below when it deflected back into the crowd.

Waiting at home plate was McGwire's 10-year-old batboy son, Matt, who had arrived from California only minutes before Dad made history. The slugger hoisted the youngster in his massive arms and gave him a bear hug.

Tonight will likely be McGwire's last realistic chance to break the record at home. The Cardinals leave on a five-game road trip, and McGwire's longest stretch without a homer is 29 at-bats.

Frosh finish 1-2 at tournament

Snyder's freshman volleyball squad posted a 1-2 record over the weekend while hosting the Snyder tournament.

The young Lady Tigers fell to Midland Greenwood in the opening match, 15-9, 15-1.

Snyder's defense then stiffened against Lubbock Cooper, capturing a 15-0, 15-5 win.

Laura Billingsley led all players with 15 service points.

Abilene Cooper toppled the Lady Tigers in the consolation final, 15-13, 15-6. Mary Wesson paced Snyder with four points.

Snyder will be in action again today at 5 p.m. at Abilene High.

Midland Greenwood def. Snyder 15-9, 15-1

JV volleyball squad earns second place

Snyder's junior varsity volleyball squad fell only a few points short of capturing the top spot at the Snyder tournamment.

After winning their first two matches, the Lady Tigers were edged by Midland Lee, 15-7, 3-15, 15-11, in the title match to give Snyder the runner-up finish.

Brooke Williams paced the Snyder effort in the championship tilt with 10 service points.

The Lady Tigers began the tourney with a 15-7, 15-6 victory over Big Spring. T'Leah Eicke led SHS with 10 points.

Snyder earned its shot at the crown with a 15-4, 15-10 win over Frenship. Eicke was once again top server, this time with 16 points.

Snyder will be back on the court today at 5 p.m. at Abilene High.

16-under par wins Baugh golf tourney

Raising money for the Snyder High School golf program is the main objective of the Sammy Baugh Classic.

The golfers themselves, however, have a different agenda — low scores.

On Saturday, both were accomplished.

David Lee, Russell Fisk, Jason McGrath and J.P. Nickell teamed up to fire a 16-under par 70 to take the top spot in the four-man scramble event.

"This was a great tournament. We had 26 teams this year," Snyder golf coach Matt Glenn said. "This is our only money maker of the year. Without the contributions that people make during the tournament, we wouldn't have some of the luxuries that we have in the golf program."

Despite low winning score, the event wasn't a runaway.

Grabbing the runner-up spot, just one stroke back of first place with a round of 55, was the team of Don Sasser, Charlie Garcia, Abel Alvarez and Mark Deaver.

The competition got even tougher for the next four spots.

With four teams knotted at 56, a scorecard playoff determined the places.

Glenn, teamed with Brooke Lowrance, Daysha Weaver and Bryan Word to claim third place.

The foursome of Wade Lancaster, Jody Day, JoAnn Reed and Ricky Daniels took fourth.

Wayne Monroney, Mike Carter, Larry Anderson and Chad Carter were fifth.

Sixth place went to Pop Kidd, Jay Kidd, Marc McQueen and Jim Erwin.

Defending champs open with 27-21 win over Pats

DENVER (AP) — This was the old John Elway, not old John Elway, at quarterback for Denver.

Playing more like a 28-year-old than a 38-year-old, Elway threw for 257 yards and a touchdown as the Broncos beat New England 27-21 Monday night to begin defense of their NFL title and what is more than likely to be Elway's final season.

Terrell Davis added two rushing touchdowns as Denver beat New England for the 11th straight time dating to 1980.

But the Patriots, who had lost their previous three games to Denver by a combined 105-24, gave the Broncos plenty.

They committed three critical penalties on special teams, two of which cost them 48 yards and were offside on another punt that let the Broncos continue a touchdown drive. Adam Vinatieri also missed a 39-yard field-goal attempt and had another blocked by Trevor Pryce.

And they were disorganized on the sidelines, using up all their second-half timeouts with over six minutes left in the third quarter.

Still, even with all those mistakes, this wasn't easy for Denver, which had a 17-0 lead early in the second quarter on a 12-yard pass from Elway to Shannon Sharpe, a 9-yard run by Davis, and Jason Elam's 53-yard field goal.

New England cut it to 17-7 at halftime when Drew Bledsoe's 55-yard pass to Shawn Jefferson set up Robert Edwards' 1-yard TD run. Then, on the first series of the second half, the Patriots drove 73 yards in seven plays for a score — Bledsoe's 24-yard pass to Troy Brown that made it 20-14

But Elam countered with a 42-yard field goal and the Broncos clinched it on Davis' 1-yard score, which came one after a vintage Elway play — a scrambling third-down pass to Ed McCaffrey at the 1 as he was pursued by three Patriots. That drive was aided by another New England mistake, a late hit on Elway by Willie McGinest.

DALLAS (AP) — This week's Associated Press high school football poll, with first-place votes in parentheses. Total points are based on 10 points for a first-place vote through one point for a 10th-place vote. The previous column indicates the team's ranking in last week's poll. Voting is by a panel of 20 sports writers and broadcasters.

Helling hurls shutout against Twins

ARLINGTON (AP) — Rick Helling pitched a three-hit shutout and Juan Gonzalez highlighted a six-run seventh with a solo homer as the Texas Rangers beat the Minnesota Twins 6-0 on Monday.

Juan Gonzalez's 41st homer increased his major league-leading RBI total to 149. Gonzalez has the most RBIs in the American League since 1949 when Ted Williams and Vern Stephens of the Boston Red Sox each drove in 159.

Mark McLemore also hit a two-run homer in the seventh for Texas, which had blown two-run leads in the eighth inning in each of its last two games. With the win, the Rangers reduced Anaheim's lead in the AL West to three games.

Helling (18-7) outdueled Minnesota starter LaTroy Hawkins (7-14) after both pitchers took shutouts into the seventh. Helling, struck out eight and walked three, collected his second shutout of the season and third complete game on an afternoon when field temperatures approached 100 degrees.

Texas broke through in the seventh with the help of two Minnesota errors. Lee Stevens led off with a double, and went to third when Bill Haselman reached on shortstop Pat Meares' throwing error. Stevens scored when third baseman Brent Gates dropped catcher Javier Valentin's attempted pickoff throw for an error.

Luis Alicea followed with an RBI single, was bunted to second, and scored on Tom Goodwin's single. McLemore hit a two-run blast, his fifth homer, for a 5-0 lead and Gonzalez followed with his solo shot.

Hawkins allowed five runs and eight hits over 6 1-3 innings. He struck out four and walked one.

Texas prison officials will not let death row inmate donate organs

AUSTIN (AP) — A Texas death row inmate facing execution next month has been blocked by prison officials from donating his organs.

Convicted killer Jonathan Nobles is scheduled to die Oct. 7 for stabbing and killing two Austin women, Kelly Joan Farquhar, 24, and Mitzi Johnson Nalley, 21, after breaking into their North Austin home in 1986.

Nobles told the Austin American-Statesman he is prepared to die for what he did but also wants to do something positive after "bringing so much darkness into this world." He insisted the donation attempt is not a ploy to have his death sentence commuted.

"People out there who need organs are more than willing to accept inmate organs," Nobles said. "There are sins of commission as well as sins of omission, and for me not to attempt to do whatever I can that's good is wrong of me."

The Texas Department of Criminal Justice has an organ donation policy for inmates that says the state will pay for transportation to a Galveston hospital for the surgery and cover the costs of guarding a prisoner.

But Larry Todd, a spokesman for the Texas Department of Criminal Justice, said the policy doesn't apply to death row inmates.

"Death row inmates are not allowed to donate organs," Todd told the Austin American-Statesman. "We don't let death row inmates out — end of story."

Larry Fitzgerald, another spokesman for the prison system, said prison officials are concerned about the unpredictable nature of both surgery and the justice system.

What if there are complications during or after surgery? What if a death row inmate donates a kidney and has the other fail, then receives a stay of execution?

Outside the prison walls, no one in the "organ-harvesting" world wants to touch organs from a death row inmate because of fear of passing on disease, ethical concerns about taking organs from condemned inmates and the fear of public backlash.

The Centers for Disease Control consider inmates a high risk for hepatitis, the AIDS virus and other communicable diseases.

Jack Kevorkian, the Michigan doctor who has helped people commit suicide, tried to arrange the donation of one of Nobles' kidneys, and found a surgeon to perform the transplant. But Nobles and the woman were not a blood-type match, and she died without getting a transplant.

Beyond programs, policies, companies try to adopt more family-friendly environment

By MAGGIE JACKSON
AP Business Writer

Managers at Dallas-based Texas Instruments will soon begin taking a class on making decisions based not only on business needs — but on workers' needs.

The effort is part of a growing realization by Corporate America that to be family-friendly, a company can't just set up programs on paper and wait for employees to sign up.

Reflecting this growing shift, Working Mother magazine has changed the way it compiles its annual list — published Tuesday in its October issue — of the best 100 companies for working moms.

For the first time, the magazine has considered whether companies give work-life training to managers and whether managers' pay is linked to their effectiveness in dealing with such issues. The magazine also gave closer scrutiny to whether work-family programs are well-used, in addition to considering usual criteria such as pay, child-care benefits and flexibility.

"We're digging a little more deeply to try and get at the culture, and how they're addressing these issues," said the magazine's deputy editor, Deborah Wilburn. "You have to look hard at whether this is a Band-Aid approach or a public relations effort."

Computer-chip maker Texas Instruments, which is also revising a seminar on flexible work arrangements to emphasize how to make them succeed, won a spot on the prestigious list.

The magazine does not rank the Top 100, but lists 10 companies as exceptionally progressive. They were Citicorp/Citibank; Glaxo Wellcome Inc.; IBM; Johnson & Johnson; Eli Lilly; MBNA America; Merck & Co.; NationsBank; SAS Institute and Xerox.

Other Texas companies making the list were Irving-based GTE Corp., Union Pacific Resources Group of Fort Worth and USAA (United Services Automobile Association) of San Antonio.

The changes in the magazine's annual list come as growing attention is being paid to the gaps between the widespread corporate rhetoric given to work-family concerns and the actual help offered to workers.

"A lot of companies are instituting programs," said Betty Purkey, work-life manager at Texas Instruments. "Just doing that doesn't make a whole lot of difference."

A landmark study published this summer by the non-profit Families and Work Institute found that nearly 40 percent of human resource representatives said their company didn't make a "real and ongoing" effort to tell employees of available work-family programs.

Further, only 44 percent of companies hold supervisors accountable for sensitivity to employees' work-family needs, the Institute found.

Four booked into custody Labor Day

Monday's Labor Day holiday saw four subjects sent to jail.

At 9:24 a.m., Department of Public Safety troopers arrested a 30-year-old male five miles west on U.S. 84 on outstanding DPS warrants out of Abilene for speeding and failure to appear.

DPS troopers took two subjects into custody at 12:08 p.m. on U.S. 84. Arrested were a 19-year-old female for Class B possession of marijuana and driving while license suspended and a 30-year-old female for Class B possession of marijuana.

A 25-year-old male was taken into custody by DPS troopers at 2:26 p.m. near Rip Griffin's on a warrant for issuance of bad check.

In other activity Monday, an offense report for Class B criminal mischief was filed at 5:12 p.m. in reference to the vandalism of a mailbox belonging to Herbert Grover.

Sponsors seek moratorium on Internet taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Watching Internet commerce expand by an estimated 700 percent over the past five years, it's easy to see why some of America's 30,000 taxing jurisdictions might salivate over a potential new revenue gold mine.

Although only a handful of states and cities so far have sought to impose taxes on cyberspace activities. Internet companies such as America Online, Yahoo! Inc. and Microsoft Corp. want Congress to call a temporary halt before things get out of hand.

"We're not looking to make this an exempt service," said Ellen Fishbein, assistant general counsel at America Online. "We just need guidance on how to apply the laws. We need a timeout from this confusion."

A dozen states already have imposed some form of access tax on Internet services, such as a fee for the telephone connection or one added to the subscription charge. Sixteen states tax the transfer of data downloaded by users.

This has created some apparent unfairness, such as a newspaper customer in some places who pays no tax if the paper is physically tossed onto the doorstep but must pay when downloading the electronic version.

"Some of these taxes are downright contradictory," said Peter Arnold, spokesman for the industry's Internet Tax Fairness Coalition.

After overcoming initial resistance from many state and local officials, the House in June passed legislation sponsored by Rep. Christopher Cox, R-Calif., imposing a three-year moratorium on any new state, local or federal taxes on Internet access or data transfers. Sales taxes on Internet purchases would not be affected, but they apply only to transactions within the same state, computerized, mail order or whatever.

"What I don't want to see is new taxes invented that, by definition, are multiple and discriminatory," Cox said. "If you're already taxing income, assets and property, coming up with an Internet tax is truly piling on."

The House measure would create a commission made up of government and private officials to decide whether and how states, counties and cities should be permitted to tax online commerce. The panel would recommend within two years whether Congress should enact new laws regulating what state and local governments can do.

The action this fall will be in the Senate. A bill by Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., chairman of the Commerce Committee, would have imposed a six-year tax moratorium, but the Finance Committee changed that to two years. The House bill and both Senate versions, setting bans of two, three and six years, may be debated on the Senate floor.

"I am confident we can work out something that most people will accept," McCain said. "We are agreeing in principle that we have a moratorium so we don't slow down growth in the Internet."

The Clinton administration and the National Governors Association have endorsed the Cox bill, which would not disturb existing taxes if they were in place March 1. The governors had opposed the original Cox measure, which had no time limit on the moratorium. They felt it thus made extremely unlikely that new state or local taxes ever would be permitted.

"While the Internet is a wonderful, invigorating new medium, it should not be singled out for a tax break at the expense of shopping malls, Main Street and other taxpayers," Republican Gov. Terry Branstad of Iowa and Democratic Gov. Bob Miller of Nevada said in a joint letter.

The governors said Connecticut, Florida, Georgia, Massachusetts and Washington have passed laws removing taxes from the Internet.

The House bill is H.R. 4105. The Senate bill is S. 442.

Loyalty to Clinton sometimes snags old friend

WASHINGTON (AP) — A friend of Bill Clinton since they were teen-agers, Marsha Scott is a fierce defender of the president — and that loyalty has placed her at the center of the scandals surrounding his presidency.

Scott, 50, deputy personnel director at the White House, is rarely seen with the president. She doesn't lurk in the background as he strides onto his helicopter or Air Force One, nor is she known to stand along the wall with other aides, listening dutifully as Clinton briefs the media or delivers speeches.

But her role is significant.

Scott was at Clinton's side during his 30th high school reunion in Arkansas, while he scribbled away on a legal pad to document his conversation with a classmate, Dolly Kyle Browning, who was said to be claiming she had an affair with him.

She huddled with Monica Lewinsky twice last year. In one of those sessions, Scott has said, the former White House intern denied a sexual relationship with Clinton. Last week, it was disclosed that the president asked Scott to find a new job at the White House for Ms. Lewinsky — if it was appropriate — after she had been transferred to the Pentagon.

And she was a telephonic link between the White House and longtime Clinton pal Webster Hubbell, who was threatened with a lawsuit by the Rose Law Firm in Little Rock, Ark., seeking to recover money he got from overbilling the firm and its clients. Hubbell, a former Justice Department official who pleaded guilty and was imprisoned for bilking Rose, where he had practiced law with Hillary Rodham Clinton, also agreed to cooperate with investigators looking into the Clintons' Whitewater real estate dealings.

Scott's role in these situations has gotten her questioned a couple of times by the FBI as well as prosecutor Kenneth Starr's Whitewater grand jury, which was looking into possible obstruction of justice involving consulting fees that Clinton friends arranged for Hubbell.

Scott grew up privileged in Little Rock, the daughter of a beauty queen and a former Philadelphia Eagles halfback. She was a cheerleader and close friend of Hubbell. She has known Clinton since both were in their late teens. They are said to have dated briefly back then, and remained friends.

After finishing school Scott migrated to California, working as a Head Start teacher and an advertising saleswoman for a newspaper before coming back into contact with Clinton as a volunteer for his 1992 presidential campaign.

Through a White House spokesman, Scott declined to comment for this story. And several of her colleagues at the White House agreed to speak about her only on condition that their names not be used.

Privately, one colleague said Scott's current role in the White House personnel office is to ensure that friends of the president who are being considered for appointments are "qualified, and the best qualified," for those jobs. The colleague described Scott as "one of the few people in this town who still believes politics is about loyalty."

Scott also has been known to operate outside the White House gates to ensure that loyalties to Clinton remain intact. In fact, it was to Scott that Clinton turned when his support waned among gays and lesbians because of his about-face on their status in the military.

Scott became liaison to the gay community in June 1995.

Summer season ends on surprising record note

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The sleeper hit "There's Something About Mary" became the No. 1 film over Labor Day weekend, wrapping up a summer movie season that set domestic box office records.

Eight weeks after its release, the modestly budgeted gross-out comedy starring Cameron Diaz and Ben Stiller collected an estimated $11.6 million over the four-day holiday weekend that ended Monday, bringing its total to $130.9 million.

It is believed to be the first film to rise to the top of the box office so long after its release, according to Paul Dergarabedian, president of Exhibitor Relations Co. Inc., which tracks the box office.

"Blade" was second with $10.4 million, followed by "Saving Private Ryan" with $8.6 million, and "Knock Off" at $5.6 million.

This summer set marks for ticket sales with $2.5 billion — beating last year's $2.2 billion — and for attendance. The 560 million tickets sold topped the 526 million sold in the summer of 1994, Exhibitor Relations reported. Figures are not adjusted for inflation.

Audiences turned out in large numbers in often-unpredictable ways:

— They listened to their friends as much as — or more than — publicity campaigns or critics.

"There's Something About Mary" cost $25 million to make and was released with relatively little fanfare, yet it grossed nearly as much as "Godzilla," the big-budget, heavily hyped film that brought in about $135.7 million domestically.

— They wanted to see movies about large space rocks. "Deep Impact" launched the summer season and surprised even its own studio with a $140.3 million gross, while "Armageddon" was the biggest movie of the season with $192.1 million, including another $2.7 million over Labor Day weekend for seventh place.

"The lessons that we learned this summer were the same lessons we all should have learned a long time ago: Make a good movie and they will come," said Phil Barlow, distribution head at Disney, which released the critically panned "Armageddon" and the praised "Mulan."

— They had taste for more than snack movies, flocking to such Oscar-level offerings as the gritty battle movie "Saving Private Ryan" (at No. 2 for the summer with $166.6 million) and the cerebral comedy "The Truman Show," the summer's No. 8 movie with $124.2 million.

— They had to make some tough choices from a crowded field with a well-reviewed movie such as "The Mask of Zorro" barely cracking the summer Top 10 with $87.8 million and an even-better reviewed film, "Out of Sight," ending up a disappointment.

"The biggest challenge was to get beyond the audience that would be most likely to see your picture and get to an audience that would enjoy it if you could get to them," said Jeff Blake, distribution head of Sony. "The high volume of pictures and the constant competition made that a tough thing to do."

The season ended with the debut of "Knock Off," with Jean-Claude Van Damme kicking his stuff during the Hong Kong handover to China. Its modest take was well below that of previous Labor Day openings such as "The Crow: City of Angels" ($9.8 million premiere in 1996), "First Kid" ($8.4 million, also in 1996) and last year's "Hoodlum" ($8.1 million).

Here are estimated grosses for the top movies at North American theaters for Friday through Monday as compiled by Exhibitor Relations. Final figures were to be released today:

1. "There's Something About Mary," $11.6 million.
2. "Blade," $10.4 million.
3. "Saving Private Ryan," $8.6 million.
4. "Knock Off," $5.6 million.
5. "Ever After," $4.4 million.
6. "54," $4 million.
7. "Why Do Fools Fall in Love," $3.6 million.
8. "Snake Eyes," $3.4 million.
9. "How Stella Got Her Groove Back," $3.1 million.
10. "The Parent Trap," $2.9 million.

Are perspiration stains abnormal?

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My friends call me "Old Yellowstain" because of the marks on the armpits of my T-shirts. Each new shirt becomes stained after one or two uses. I bathe frequently. Why does this happen?

DEAR READER: Perspiration contains skin oils as well as moisture. The oils can become trapped in fabric after the moisture evaporates. When sweat has a high oil content, the oil oxidizes to a yellow color. Often this material is difficult to wash out and causes permanent staining.

The yellow stains on your T-shirts may be a source of ribbing from your friends; however, they do not reflect ill health or disease. The use of antiperspirants may reduce the excretion of oily perspiration from your underarms.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My fiance was in a car accident 1-1/2 years ago and developed seizures. Medication is not controlling them. He's 100 pounds overweight, but when he tries to exercise, he has a seizure. He also exhibits bizarre behavior during seizures: He searches for a cap he doesn't have, pulls nonexistent strings off his sweater, walks like a gorilla and refuses to have anyone touch him. He's only 37 and I hate the idea of him living the rest of his life like this. Can you help?

DEAR READER: Your fiance appears to have suffered brain damage at the time of the accident. This damage is associated with episodes of seizure activity and bizarre behavior that probably are caused by abnormal electrical discharges within brain tissue.

If medication is not controlling his problem, he needs evaluation by neurologists who are experts in dealing with post-traumatic epilepsy. I recommend that you ask his doctors for a referral to the neurology clinic at a teaching hospital. In such a setting, the superspecialists will have resources for diagnosis and treatment that are not available to average physicians.

To give you related information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Medical Specialists." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Is a constant navel discharge serious in a 74-year-old person?

DEAR READER: In an adult, a navel discharge usually signifies chronic skin infection. The skin of the navel is dark and warm and may remain moist, providing an ideal environment for yeasts and bacteria to grow.

Although a navel infection is usually not serious, it can be extremely annoying and unpleasant because of itching, odor or pain. A culture of the area will enable a doctor to pinpoint the cause and suggest appropriate treatment.

Yeltsin meeting with Chernomyrdin

MOSCOW (AP) — Boris Yeltsin conferred with top aides at his country residence today, discussing whether to stick with his first choice for prime minister or offer a compromise candidate to the hostile Russian parliament.

The president has said Viktor Chernomyrdin is his only choice to lead a new government that must deal with the country's worst economic crisis since the 1991 breakup of the Soviet Union.

Parliament's lower house, the State Duma, overwhelmingly rejected Chernomyrdin on Monday for a second time. Yeltsin was considering whether to name him again for the third and final round of voting.

After meetings today with senior aides at his country home outside Moscow, Yeltsin had not named anyone by afternoon and was unlikely to do so before Wednesday, spokesman Sergei Yastrzhembsky said.

The delay suggested that Yeltsin was mulling over the possibility of a compromise candidate. Yeltsin has compromised in the past when government policies have run into major political opposition.

"Today the countdown has begun for the position of compromise ... with another candidate," Konstantin Titov, a member of parliament's upper house, told the ITAR-Tass news agency.

Chernomyrdin, who was prime minister for five years before the president fired him in March, was among those who met with Yeltsin today. No details of their talks were announced.

Yeltsin's office has not named any other potential candidates for the prime minister's job. But the two alternatives presented by lawmakers that generated the most speculation were Moscow Mayor Yuri Luzhkov and Foreign Minister Yevgeny Primakov.

Clinton's lawyers request advance peek

WASHINGTON (AP) — For his first week back at the White House since admitting he had lied about a relationship with Monica Lewinsky, President Clinton's public schedule would appear as ordinary as any in his five-plus years in office.

What makes it extraordinary are the questions the president is attracting, from Democrats as well as Republicans, about whether he still can rally the public to his policy agenda.

Education, health care and Social Security are still top policy priorities for Clinton, but will he weather the Lewinsky crisis and quiet the talk of resignation or impeachment?

Starting with a visit today to an elementary school in Silver Spring, Md., just outside Washington, Clinton was plunging into a busy week that will include a day trip to Florida on Wednesday, a speech on auto safety Thursday and a prayer breakfast with religious leaders Friday.

At Pine Crest Elementary in Silver Spring, Clinton was announcing that Department of Education figures say enrollment at public and private elementary and secondary schools has risen to 52.7 million, the highest in American history. He also will urge Congress to pass his proposals for spending more to repair and modernize older school buildings and hire 100,000 more teachers so that class sizes in early grades can be reduced to an average of 18 students, press secretary Mike McCurry said today.

The political landscape in Washington has shifted since Aug. 17 when Clinton admitted his affair with Ms. Lewinsky, a former White House intern, and then headed to Martha's Vineyard in Massachusetts for two weeks of vacation. He could tell as much even while spending last week in Russia and Ireland.

On Saturday, as Clinton was completing his visit to Ireland, Maryland's Democratic governor, Parris Glendening, confirmed he had canceled a fund-raiser with the president and sharply criticized him for deceiving the nation about Ms. Lewinsky, 25. Will other Democrats distance themselves from Clinton as the Nov. 3 state and congressional elections near?

Even as the White House braces for Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr's report to Congress on his Lewinsky investigation, aides say Clinton is intent on highlighting his policy goals and drawing distinctions with the Republican-led Congress.

On Wednesday, he goes to Florida for a public event in Orlando promoting school safety and to speak at fund-raisers for the state Democratic Party in Orlando and Miami. Later in the week he is to make an announcement at the White House on auto safety, hold a regularly scheduled prayer breakfast with religious leaders and attend a memorial service for U.S. victims of the embassy bombings in Africa.

"If you look at the schedule, it's business as usual," White House spokeswoman Amy Weiss said Monday. "He is doing the people's business, which is what he was elected to do."

Clinton spent a quiet Labor Day at the White House. He had no public schedule and ventured out only for an afternoon round of golf.

First week back at White House after admitting he lied routine for Clinton

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton's lawyers are asking prosecutor Kenneth Starr for a one-week advance peek at his report to Congress on Monica Lewinsky, so the president's defenders can file their own reply. The report is expected in the next two weeks, Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott says.

"We expect it this week or next," Lott told reporters this morning during a briefing on the Senate floor, after discussing the matter with House Speaker Newt Gingrich.

He added that Starr and his staff have not given lawmakers a date for the report. "We don't know for sure," Lott said.

A Senate Democrat today criticized Clinton's behavior as immoral.

The president "should have taken responsiblity much earlier," said Sen. Barbara Boxer of California.

Clinton's behavior with Ms. Lewinsky was "wrong," "indefensible" and "immoral," said Boxer, whose daughter married Hillary Rodham Clinton's younger brother in the White House in 1994.

Clinton's attorneys, meanwhile, are concerned the report will be one-sided and include extensive conclusions and legal analysis instead of simply a listing of facts gathered in the seven-month investigation into the president's affair with the former White House intern.

"Elemental fairness dictates that we be allowed to respond to any 'report' you send to the House simultaneously with its transmission," Clinton lawyer David Kendall wrote Starr on Monday.

"I request that you ... allow the President's personal and White House counsel to review any draft 'report' prepared by your Office ... affording us one week to submit a written reply," Kendall added.

Lott suggested Clinton's lawyers have made the request to stall any inquiry on Capitol Hill.

"I wouldn't be surprised if they go to court to try to block it," Lott said.

The president's lawyers want to produce their own point-by-point response to any Starr document, including their own analysis of the facts. They also want to include more favorable evidence gathered by Clinton's legal team.

Kendall also argued that Starr's submission to Congress should be limited to a presentation of the evidence without reaching conclusions.

"Nothing" in the law "authorizes your office to prepare a 'report' to the House that purports to summarize and analyze evidence," Kendall added.

Kendall stated that "you have had unlimited resources at your command and no practical restriction on your power to investigate every aspect of the president's life for the past four and one half years."

Officials in Starr's office did not immediately return calls for comment.

Several Democratic congressmen said Starr should accommodate the president's request.

"It's not only the fairest way, but the best way to find the truth," Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., said on CNN's "Larry King Live" program when asked Monday night whether Clinton should be allowed to review Starr's report in advance and respond.

Rep. Jim Moran, D-Va., who during the weekend said he fully expects impeachment proceedings to grow out of the Lewinsky investigation, said allowing Clinton's lawyers to review and comment on any Starr report was "an appropriate, professional courtesy" that should be afforded the president.

In each advertisement on this page you will find the contestants in a prominent football game being played around the country this weekend. On the entry blank at the bottom of the page, fill in your selection of the WINNING TEAM only...opposite the name of the business firm on the entry blank. Then clip out the entry blank and send it to FOOTBALL CONTEST EDITOR, Snyder Daily News, Box 949, Snyder, TX 79550, or bring it by the news office at 3600 College Ave. Entries must be in the hands of the editor by 5:00 p.m. Friday. Games ending in a tie must be specified as a tie or else it will be considered a miss.

To avoid splitting the prize money a TIE-BREAKER slot will be provided on each entry blank. Pick the total points of the score for that game and in case of a tie the one who picks the winner and the nearest number of total points will receive the prize money. The same formula will apply to second and third place winners. In the case of a perfect score, the formula would apply for the $250 cash prize. To win the $1,000 cash prize, all twenty games must be picked correctly, plus the exact score must be predicted on the tie-breaker.

There will be fun for the entire family. Only one entry blank will be permitted for any one person. More than one will disqualify all that person's entries. Entries must be on the official entry blank (No Copies Please). Scores listed on the entry blank will have no bearing except in the case of the tie-breaker. Sign your entry blank and list your address and phone number and watch for the winner's story in next Tuesday's SDN. Employees of the SDN and their families are not eligible to enter.
