COURT HOUSE, ARDMORE, Okla., June 27.—W. E. (Bill) Guess, giant erstwhile Oklahoma peace officer, was acquitted tonight by a jury of slaying Emilio Cortes Rubio, 20-year old kinsman of President Ortiz Rubio of Mexico.

Out almost exactly 22 hours, a fagged jury of middle-aged Carter county men who had been deadlocked, 11 to 1, for hours this afternoon, returned the verdict 20 days after Emilio and his student chum, Manuel Garcia Gomez, 22, fell dead before the deputy's gunfire beside a residential street here.

Judge John B. Ogden, the 33-year old jurist who presided at Guess' trial, expects to pass on remaining matters at 10 a. m. Monday. Guy Sigler of the defense counsel, said trials would be deadlocked in both cases. No trial is expected immediately, however, the court's funds have been depleted.

Crosby has insisted on being tried. He is confident of exoneration.

Jury Is Thanked

Half dazed, Guess walked to the jury box when Judge Ogden had dismissed court and thanked each man. One, E. T. Foster, foreman, had worked much of the day in the face of news that his father was critically ill in Springfield, Mo.

"I want to say our county attorney (Marvin Shilling) has been my friend but he handled my prosecution fair and square," said Guess.

Magnolia Petroleum Company To Formally Open New Plant Located On Avenue H Monday

Investment Of $55,000 Added To Other Property, Raises Company's Investment Here To More Than $150,000

The new $55,000 district plant and transfer station of the Magnolia Petroleum company, recently erected on the 2300 block of Avenue H, will be formally opened for public inspection tomorrow, Ross A. McWhorter, agent, announced yesterday.

The latest equipment of its kind is embraced in the new Magnolia property here, Mr. McWhorter said. Located in the plant's environs are a large warehouse; 12 storage tanks for oil and gasoline; a barrel cleaning and painting plant; garage space for six trucks; a building to house equipment and a company-operated retail service station.

To Serve South Plains

Eight men will be regularly employed at the plant, Mr. McWhorter said, and their principal duties will be to give mile-a-minute service to the 28 wholesale points served out of Lubbock. The wholesale points are located in the 18 counties of the South Plains, all administered to from the Lubbock headquarters.

Erection of the plant increased the Magnolia company's investment in Lubbock county to more than $150,000, Mr. McWhorter estimated, including three company-operated retail stations in the City of Lubbock and investments made in Idalou and Slaton. There are 25 retail outlets for Magnolia products in this county alone, the agent said, with 115 outlets on the South Plains.

"I am particularly anxious that the public view this new plant of ours," Mr. McWhorter declared, "because it is the finest thing of its kind anywhere in this territory. I believe motorists will be interested in seeing what the Magnolia company is doing for its wholesale and retail outlets in this section and will be further interested to learn of our products."

Santa Fe Plans Pick-Up Service

Tariffs for the proposed store-door delivery which the Santa Fe and a score of other southwestern railroads will inaugurate some time in August, are in the hands of the printers and will be submitted to the Interstate Commerce commission for approval by July 1, J. A. Gillies, division superintendent of the Santa Fe, said in an interview here.

"It will take 44 days from the time the tariffs are filed with the commission before they can become operative," Mr. Gillies said. "The I. C. C. has 30 days after the tariffs are filed in which to approve them. It will take about 15 days then for the plans to be put into effect."

August 15 is the earliest date that it is believed service can be started on this division.

The Slaton division, including the old Orient lines in Texas, has 73 stations and competitive points at which store-door delivery will be used, the railroad official said. The division extends from Farwell and Canyon on the north to the southern ends of the old Orient at San Angelo, Sonora and Presidio and north to the Red River, south of Abso[illegible].

City Offers Plan For Watering Of Courthouse Lawn

The county commissioners' court met Friday to consider a proposal submitted by the city in regard to the upkeep of the courthouse lawn and park.

The city proposes to furnish water free to the county for the watering of the lawn provided the city is allowed to direct the upkeep of the lawn as a part of the city parks system, was the intrepretation of the proposal by some county officials.

No action on the proposal was taken, because a definite plan was not submitted by the city, County Judge E. L. Pitts said following the meeting. Another meeting was called for next Wednesday to further consider the matter, the county judge said.

The city's plan probably will call for the laying of a larger water main to the park, officials said.

Commissioner L. C. Denton presented the matter to the court. He said the city commission verbally agreed to the plan Thursday.

Bumper Wheat Crop Seen By Farmers Near Sudan

SUDAN, June 27. (Special)—With wheat in the Sudan area already coming in, farmers are beginning to look forward to bumper fall crops of grain sorghums and cotton.

The P. E. Boesen grain elevator here is anticipating a good crop of wheat. Most of the wheat comes from the north part of the county although there is some coming from Bailey county to the west.

Crop conditions are good, according to Mr. Boesen. Cotton is growing rapidly and has a good stand. Grain sorghums also are in good shape.

Child Health Conferences Are Planned Over Section

Three Counties Will Be Included This Week In Area

The district public health schedule includes a roundup of pre-school children Monday at Sudan in Lamb county, a child-health conference Tuesday at Fieldton in Lamb county, a child-health conference and adult health class Wednesday at Friona in Parmer county, a roundup Thursday at Ropesville in Hockley county, and a local committee meeting Friday at Littlefield.

Miss Evelyn Richter, public health nurse assigned to this district in a program sponsored by the United States public health service and the state and county health departments, announced the week's calendar.

To Discuss Diet

The first lesson for the health class at Friona will be on personal hygiene and health, and will deal with diet, care of the body, rest and sleep, care of the mouth and teeth, fresh air, cultivation of wholesome activities, and straight thinking. The course is outlined by the state department of health.

Littlefield's local committee on public health will meet at 4 p. m. Friday to discuss plans for a child-health conference there July 6 and 7.

Arrangements are under way for a tonsil-and-adenoid clinic in Hockley county after summer roundups of pre-school children have been completed there, Miss Richter said.

A child-health conference was conducted last Monday at Spring Lake and a roundup Tuesday at Olton. Both are Lamb county communities.

Wednesday, a child-health conference was held at Lazbuddy in Parmer county, and James R. Curtis, district sanitarian, and Miss Richter spoke there.

Roundup Conducted

A roundup was conducted Thursday morning at Sundown in Hockley county. In the afternoon, the sanitarian and nurse spoke before a home demonstration club at Fairview.

The Lubbock county central committee on public health met here Friday morning.

Doctors who examined at conferences and roundups last week were: At Spring Lake, Dr. T. B. Duke, Lamb county health officer, of Littlefield; at Olton, Dr. C. I. Holt, Lamb county health officer, of Olton; at Lazbuddy, none, and at Sundown, Dr. D. Davis Shropshire and Dr. Ray Ross, dentist, both of Levelland.

Plans are under way for permanent health records and periodic examinations of pupils in all schools of the district, excepting those in incorporated towns not asking for cooperation of the district public health staff, Miss Richter said. Several incorporated towns already have entered the program.

Is June Really Month Of Brides?

Traditional "Marrying Month" Eclipsed By May; Decline Of Licenses Blamed On Depression, Three-Day Law

June is said to be the month of brides—but is it?

Little Dan Cupid would bow his head in shame should he ever look over the marriage records in the county clerk's office and see how he is spoiling the old favorite tradition in Lubbock county.

For the last three years, May has been the banner month for the issuing of marriage licenses at the Lubbock bureau. This year, June is running May a neck-to-neck race and it looks like Dan may be able to redeem himself this year. With two business days to go, one more license must be issued to equal the number granted last month, which was 14. Only 13 permits entitling men and women to say the "I dos" have been issued thus far this month.

Business Below Par

Business for the marriage license bureau was pretty good last year during May and June, but still it was not up to par. May came out ahead in 1930 with a score of 28 to June's 26.

The score in 1929 (the last year amorous couples might marry in Texas without waiting long enough to get rid of the notion) was May, 53; June, 50.

Officials of the clerk's office pointed out that more marriages may have occurred during June than the books showed. Many of the licenses in 1930 and 1929 were issued during the last two days of May. The ceremonies may have occurred early in June they said.

Since March 30, 1929, exactly 514 licenses have been issued by the clerk's office. Of this number only 97 have been issued since January 1, this year compared with more than 200 for the same period of 1929. March was the poorest "marrying" month during the first half of 1931. Only six of the large sheets, decorated with wedding bells, rosebuds and orange blossoms, left the clerk's office during that month. Count for the other months, including May follows: January, 8; February, 9; April, 7, and May, 14.

Officials connected with the local "marrying" business, give two reasons for the staggering drop in the number of "honor, love and obey" papers issued during the past two years, namely: The depression, and Lubbock's proximity to the New Mexico line. The more important of the two is the depression, they said.

"There may be as much love in the world today as there was in 1929," one county official said "but certainly there is not as much money, as far as a majority of the prospective grooms are concerned. Funds for paying the first installments on the kitchen stove, dining table, two straight chairs, radio and twin beds now ranks along with love as a major factor to be considered when one contemplates marriage. The lack of such funds necessarily causes many proposed marriages to be postponed."

While an accurate check on the number of Lubbock couples marrying in New Mexico, to avoid the three days' delay in obtaining licenses, is not available, practically county officials say that New Mexico is getting a large share of the local marriage business.

Observing the routine of the courthouse here will convince one of the logic of the officials' reasoning.

The old Saturday afternoon justice of the peace marriages, which a few years ago furnished excitement for the courthouse loungers, have disappeared. Rarely if ever, do the professional courthouse spectators now have the pleasure of watching a blushing bride and a self-conscious groom diffidently walk into the justice of the peace's office and through signs and unintelligible mumblings, inform the justice they desire to get "hitched."

Plainview School Head To Be At Quanah Next Year

Lee Clark, superintendent of schools at Plainview and a member of the faculty of the summer session of Texas Technological college, expects to move to his new location, Quanah, some time the latter part of July, he said yesterday.

"I take charge of the Quanah schools beginning the first of July, but I will not get to begin active work until after the completion of the first term of the summer session here," Mr. Clark said. "We close here July 18.

"Late in July I expect to go to Denver to attend a meeting of the World Education association. It is composed of national education organizations of the larger nations of the world. I do not think that it will ever be held much nearer here, at least for some years."

Mr. Clark said he expected to move his family to Quanah the last of July or the first of August.

Lubbock Band To Be At Plainview

The Lubbock High school band and its director, H. A. Anderson, will accompany a Lubbock delegation to a Fourth of July celebration at Plainview, it was said at chamber of commerce offices here Saturday.

Persons willing to aid in transporting the Westerner band to the Hale county town are asked to notify the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce. A Lubbock representation was invited by the Plainview chamber.

A crowd of fifteen thousand persons is expected at the Independence day celebration at Plainview, those directing arrangements have reported.

Highlights include a parade in the morning, baseball in the afternoon, and a dance and fireworks at night. Ten tons of barbecued beef will be served, according to reports from Plainview.

Scouts And Adult Leaders Are Making Final Plans For Camp

More Than 50 Are Expected To Leave Lubbock Next Sunday For Annual Camp In Sacramento Mountains

HALF a hundred Lubbock Boy Scouts and adult leaders will leave early next Sunday morning for Camp We-hin-ah-pay, Sacramento mountain encampment of the Eastern New Mexico council. The Lubbock scouts will be at the camp ten days, or until July 15.

Forty-four scouts have registered for the camp, D. T. Jennings, Scout Plains Area executive said. Adult leaders will be W. G. McMillan, E. L. Fletcher, Charles Brock, James White, B. L. Manire, and W. O. Daniels.

Jennings In Charge

Executive Jennings will have charge of the Lubbock group. Minor Huffman, eastern New Mexico executive, is director of the camp. New Mexico scouts will be at Camp We-hin-ah-pay when the Lubbock boys are there.

R. P. Hinchey of West Texas Gas company has given scouts the use of a truck throughout the ten-day period and will send Daniels as driver. Baggage will be carried in the truck.

Trucks Offered

H. L. Allen of Texas Utilities company has offered use of a truck during the time of the camp if additional vehicles are needed.

Representing the South Plains Coaches, Joe Bowman has authorized fares for transportation of Lubbock scouts to and from the New Mexico mountain camp at a cost lower than would be necessitated otherwise, Executive Jennings said.

Busses To Leave

At a campfire program of Lubbock troops Friday night at Johnston's ranch, 12 miles southeast of here, it was decided to determine by Wednesday the number of boys who could pay the bus fare.

Buses probably will leave here early Sunday morning and leave camp early the morning of July 15, the local scout chief said.

Every boy expecting to go to camp must complete payment of his camp fee not later than Thursday at scout headquarters in City hall, he said.

Scouts paid fees of $1 each on registering, $9 to be paid before leaving for camp, he explained.

The Boy Scout reservation in the Sacramento mountains is about ten miles from Weed and about thirty miles from Cloudcroft. It has a lodge and workshop, patrol cabins, signaling and observation tower, a swimming pool and other facilities.

Chuck wagon trips, horsemanship, marksmanship, nature study archery, campfire ceremonies, and swimming are on the ten-day program. A trained nurse will be at the camp, as she has the last two summers.

Mail address is Camp We-hin-ah-pay, Weed, N. M., and telegraph address Camp We-hin-ah-pay, Cloudcroft, N. M.

AMHERST, June 27.—Date for the annual Lamb county fair, generally held in September before the South Plains fair at Lubbock, has not been decided according to D. A. Adam, county agent.

Directors of the fair are expected to meet soon to discuss plans and to fix a date. Prize winning products will be sent to the South Plains fair.

Last year during the three day celebration approximately 20,000 people attended the fair. Attractions are expected to be held again this year include a baseball series among neighboring teams.

Willis Knight To Be On Hill In Local Tilt

Resumption Of Hostilities In South Plains Baseball War Set For Merrill Park With Old Rivals As Opponents

Continuing a baseball feud that has grown to be almost a classic, the teams of Lubbock and Lamesa meet this afternoon in the sixth game of the season between them. The game will be played at Merrill Park, starting at 3:30 o'clock.

Today's contest may be the last daylight baseball game seen on the local park this season. A first class lighting system for night baseball playing has been ordered and will arrive here tomorrow. Installation will begin immediately and next Friday night the Hubbers will open the night baseball season in Lubbock. Gib Jackson's Amarilloans will be the guest club for the opening series Friday and Saturday nights under the arcs.

Knight to Pitch

Willis Knight, the sensational semi-pro righthander, will pitch against the Lamesans today. Last Sunday at the Dawson county capital he won his third game over the Loboes, though "Blue Eyes" Graham had the edge in a pitchers' duel. Knight slashed out a couple of telling hits that proved the margin of victory for the locals. Twice the Loboes have defeated Lubbock this season.

The rest of the local lineup will consist of Hershel Galey, catcher; Del Morgan, first base; Red Gaither, second base; Breedlove, shortstop; Dirty Waller, third base; and Raymond Marshall, Ed Hambright and Ray Waller in the outfield.

The NUT CRACKER

By COL. JOE O'GOOFTY
Author of "Outdoor Heating" and "How to Avoid Being Struck by Stationery Engines"

GEAUGA LAKE PARK, O Haitch, Ten, June 27.—Today I discussed the forthcoming Clash of the Cuckoos, as I have dubbed the Schmeling-Stribling fight, with Prof. Newton, whose cure for baldness has made thousands happy.

Prof. Newton

The professor, who discovered the law of gravity by falling out of hotel windows, already has the reason why Willie Stribling will lose to Max Schmeling when they meet at with Prof. Old- Cleveland July 3.

"Willie loses the fight," he told me in his calm, unruffled manner, "because his brother, Baby Stribling, fell off the motorcycle the other day and sprained his ankle. It's a perfect alibi."

Not having my air rifle handy, I allowed this quip to pass. I was whimsical that day myself.

"What do you think of the new golf ball?" I asked the man.

"My only experience with it," he replied gravely, polishing his fingernails with a half brick he took from his pocket, "was during the little breeze at Miami several years ago. If I remember correctly, it behaved perfectly in the gale, though I shot it only once, as I had found but one ball that day."

Just then Jim Eustis, one of the Madison Square Garden constabulary, came along and took the professor away. I resumed my customary lackadaisical position behind the 8-ball.

George Dunlap Of Princeton Defends National Intercollegiate Golf Title

OLYMPIA FIELDS COUNTRY CLUB, CHICAGO, June 27. (AP)—George Terry Dunlap, Jr., of Princeton, won the national inter-collegiate golf championship today for the second year in a row, adding his name to those of Dexter Cummings of Yale and Fred Lamprecht, Tulane, the only champions to repeat in 25 years of collegiate golf history.

Roberg H. Kepler of Ohio State, was Dunlap's victim, but he battled uphill all the day before the Princetonian carved out the victory, 2 up and 1 to play.

Spuds Put Crimp In Buffs' Hopes To Win First Half; Sports Take Double

Babe Ruth Moves To Slug Leadership In American League; Hendricks Still Leading Nationals With Klein Close

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, June 27.—The firm of George H. Ruth and Henry L. Gehrig, famed back in the championship days of the New York Yankees, is back in business in a big way.

According to semi-official averages which include Thursday's games, the Babe moved back into the individual batting leadership of the American League during the tenth week of the season, while Larruping Lou was in charge of three other offensive departments. Ruth added 14 points for an average of .399 to displace Eddie Morgan of Cleveland, while Gehrig improved his mark 29 points to take tenth place among the regulars and become the leader in batting runs home, home runs and total bases.

Following Ruth in the individual list were: Morgan, Cleveland, .362; Simmons, Philadelphia, .371; Webb, Boston, .366; Cochrane, Philadelphia, .366; West, Washington, .364; Averill, Cleveland, .357; Goslin, St. Louis, .356; Cronin, Washington, .347; Gehrig, New York, .340.

Gehrig Moves Up

Gehrig had batted in 66 runs, knocked out six homers to bring his total to 17, one more than the Babe had and had total bases amounting to 158. Joe Cronin, Washington's young sensation, had eight triples and had hit safely 93 times to tie with Al Simmons and Earl Combs of the Yankees for the honors in that department. Earl Webb of Boston had 28 doubles for a leadership, and Ben Chapman, another Yankee star, had stolen 26 bases to run away from the field.

Washington's team batting average fell off two points, while Cleveland added four points to leave them tied at .302. Connie Mack's Athletics fielded at .978 clip, and remained at the top, while Washington improved its average one point to take second place from the Yankees, who slipped five points. St. Louis had completed 65 double plays to lead Cleveland by two.

Bob Grove's thirteen victories and two defeats gave the Athletics' speedball artist an edge on the field, although Charlie Fischer of Washington had a higher percentage from nine triumphs and one defeat. Each was credited with two victories during the week. George Earnshawshaw, Philadelphia's right handed ace, headed the strikeout race with 85 in 19 games.

PHILS SHOULD LEAD

NEW YORK, June 27.—A glance at the current batting records of the National League indicates that if hitting alone could win ball games, Philadelphia ought to be very close to the top of the standing instead of deep in the second division. The names of Philadelphia batters appear among the leaders more than players from any other team.

Chuck Klein and Virgil Davis of the Phillies staged sensational risers during the past week and are threatening the lead held by Harvey Hendrick of Cincinnati, according to the semi-official records which include Thursday's games. Hendrick still clings to his lead with a .372 average, but Davis has climbed to second place at .367 while Klein, at .354, is tied with Bill Terry of New York for the third position.

Klein Leading Scorer

Klein holds the unthreatened post as leading scorer and long distance hitter of the league. He has totalled 60 runs, 13 more than Terry, who is second. He has clouted 19 homers, leading Rogers Hornsby of Chicago by seven and has batted in 58 counters for another first place. Hornsby also is second here with 49. Chuck has made 85 hits, only one less than the leader, Terry.

Dick Bartell, another Philadelphian, tops the list in hitting doubles, with 25 to his credit, and Davis is second with 23. Terry, Red Worthington of Boston, and George Watkins of St. Louis are tied for the lead in three-base hitting, each with eight triples.

Adam Comorosky of Pittsburgh, has gone back into the base stealing lead with nine thefts with Kiki Cuyler of Chicago just one behind.

Charley Grimm Second

Behind Klein on the list of leading batters come Grimm, Chicago, .352; Roettger, St. Louis, .351; Arlett, Philadelphia, .348; Cuyer, Chicago, .344; Whitney, Philadelphia, .335 and Stephenson, Chicago, .333.

Although they are far ahead in the number of individual leaders, the Phillies have not threatened Chicago's team batting lead. The Cubs, with three of the first ten, have increased their club average to .303, completely outdistancing the New York Giants. They also have held the fielding lead with a .977 margin.

The Cubs and the Cardinals continue to share honors in the mound department. Guy Bush of Chicago tops the list of pitchers with an .833 average agined from five victories and one defeat. Paul Derringer of St. Louis is second with seven games won and two lost for a .778 mark, while ten victories and three defeats give Burleigh Grimes of St. Louis third place with a .769 average.

Bud Hungling High In Texas League

DALLAS, June 27. (AP)—Though Bud Hungling of Wichita Falls held the titular lead over Texas League batsmen with an average of .412, his teammate, Buck Stanton, and Boroja of Beaumont were the real leaders, being tied at .368. Brilliant Display Of Brainy Golf Turns Tables On Team From England; Blazing Sun Bears Down On Players

BY ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

SCIOTO COUNTRY CLUB, COLUMBUS, O., June 27. (AP)—Walter Hagen's home-bred squad of professional golf sharpshooters, completed the rout of the British forces today and restored the Ryder Cup to American custody for the next two years.

Under a scorching sun the Americans blazed their way to victory in six of the eight singles matches and captured the series by the final score of 9 to 3.

Issue Quickly Decided

The homebreds had taken three of the four Scotch foursomes yesterday and they settled the issue quickly today with as brilliant a display of golfing fireworks as the competition has ever witnessed.

Hagen had the honor of bringing home the seventh and deciding victory when he vanquished the rival British captain, Charles Whitcombe, 4 and 3. In the feature match that attracted the interest of most of the gallery of 12,000 including Bobby Jones.

Burke Sets Pace

Burke set the pace for the Americans by walloping big Archie Compston, 7 and 6. Sarazen followed this with a similarly overwhelming triumph over Fred Robson, 7 and 6, and Densmore Shute gave his home town gallery plenty to cheer about when he disposed of young Bert Hodson, 8 and 6.

Wiffy Cox and Al Espinosa accounted for the remaining American victories. Cox defeated A. Mitchell 3 and 1. Espinosa defeated Ernest Whitcombe, 2 and 1.

Farrell's Loss Upset

Johnny Farrell's defeat by W. H. (Billy) Davies, the former Hoy Lake caddie, 4 and 3, was the biggest upset of the singles from the American viewpoint.

The remaining British triumph was registered by Arthur Havers, former British open champion, who defeated Craig Wood, 4 and 3.

The Yankee cleanup gave the United States two out of three in the competition for the Ryder cup, begun in 1927 with an American victory. The British won in 1929.

Interest Is On Official In Heavy Go

Fight Commission Hopes To Find Five Men Favorable To Principals For Referee And Judges At Battle

CLEVELAND, June 27. (AP)—The fiery struggle to pick a referee and two judges for Max Schmeling's heavyweight title defense against Bill Stribling in the municipal stadium Friday night monopolized interest today as the warriors themselves began to ease up their training.

The commissioners adjourned until Monday, without action.

The plan of the commission is to submit the names of fifteen nationally known arbiters to the managers of the fighters with the hope that five will be found acceptable both to Schmeling and Stribling. From the five the commission wants to choose one man to referee and two to act as judges, naming them publicly when the gladiators enter the stadium ring.

Schmeling Shows He Is In Shape For Bout

CONNEAUT LAKE PARK, Pa., June 27. (AP)—Max Schmeling convinced 700 sweltering spectators, including boxing experts from all sections of the country that he is in excellent condition for the defense of his title against Young Stribling in their 15-round battle in Cleveland next Friday night.

Schmeling went through a brisk seven-round workout in the heat of mid afternoon and while his performance was not impressive to the spectators, it was highly satisfactory to his handlers. Schmeling boxed four rounds and devoted the remaining three sessions to punching the light bag, the heavy bag and calisthenics. He did not extend himself at any time.

ROVING THE SPORTS WORLD

WITH COLLIER PARRIS

AVALANCHE-JOURNAL SPORTS EDITOR

IN AN article copyrighted by the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, Lawrence Perry, popular sport scribe of New York, discusses coaching schools over the country for this summer and states that the Texas Tech school is the most popular and probably the best scheduled for the United States this season.

Perry says that Wallace Wade is the most sought-after coach in the country today, and that his school here more than likely will draw the largest number of coaches. His success at Alabama and his subsequent election at Duke has made Wade one of the outstanding coaches of the generation and Lubbock and Texas Tech are indeed fortunate in procuring his services for the two-weeks school in August.

The only major coaching school carded for the southwest this summer, the Tech courses promise to be the best attended in the history of Texas coaching schools. Rockne's school at Dallas last year was attended by about 200 coaches and the general opinion over the country is that Tech's school will be considerably larger.

Pete Cawthon, head coach at Tech, is to be commended highly for his work in promoting the school. Nationally popular and friendly with the country's leading coaches himself, Cawthon has done and is doing a great piece of work for Lubbock, Tech, and Texas. Credit should go to Dutchey Smith and Del Morgan, Pete's able assistants, too, for they are working hard. They have spread publicity all over the nation. The Lubbock Chamber of Commerce comes in for a good share of the honor.

BASEBALL today at Merrill Park continues the Lubbock-Lamesa feud. The teams will be meeting for the sixth time in a game that starts at 3:30 o'clock. It probably will be the last daylight game seen in Lubbock this season, for the park is being conditioned for lights which will be installed early this week. The equipment is expected to arrive from the factory tomorrow.

THIS department is taken to task by Jerry Malin, the Amarillo sportist, because of some alleged "caustic" remarks aimed at the world's welterweight wrestling match at Amarillo last week. Jerry gently chides us for saying that Cal Farley, the Amarillo tire man-wrestler, should henceforth confine his wrestling activities to changing tires on Mack trucks, since two shots at the title have resulted as many times in his defeat. Jerry says we should not write about things that we do not see.

We fail to see why we had to be a witness at the match to discover the victor, though for a while we thought we would have to make a trip to the City of Helium (much of which finds an exit through Jerry's column) in order to find out who won the fight. Several messages asking for results failed to bring in the victor's name and we stayed on duty until half the night was over and went to bed without knowing who won. We had a pretty fair idea, however, because had Farley won the wires between Amarillo and other points would have been hot. As for Jerry's attempted reasons and alibis for Farley's loss, it makes good reading for non-fight fans or a man marooned on a lonely island. The fact remains that Reynolds won and Farley lost. How or why has nothing to do with who keeps the title. Max Schmeling is the heavyweight boxing champ, even if he did win while lying flat on his back.

But Jerry did acknowledge the fact that Lubbock was getting ahead of Amarillo and all other towns, for that matter, in installing lights for night baseball. So far as we know the park here will be the first in the country for amateur clubs. There are only one or two in the United States for semi-pro clubs. One is at Dallas. We don't know where the other is. But Jerry errs in giving his nonexistant "Mike" credit for promoting night baseball here. Mike tried to promote the Panhandle League and you see where that landed. We could think of several things Mike has promoted but which died like the Panhandle League—before it was born.

Another Texas Tech athletic star has been drafted into the coaching ranks. We speak of Floyd Wooldridge, one of the most popular Athletes ever to grab off a Tech sheepskin. He earned four letters for prowess on the football field and three for track. Besides being a first class athlete, "Wooly" was one of the high raters in social circles. He was president of the 1931 graduating class and a sound student. Pete Cawthon told him he was too smart to be a coach and for a while Floyd believed him, but after casting about for a "legitimate" job he accepted a coaching position. He will have charge of all athletics at Bartlett High school, a Class B body in Central Texas.

Barnes Loses Singles Matches But Teams To Win In Doubles

Stanford University Netter Wins Intercollegiate Title After Tough Battle With University Of Texas Star

(By Associated Press)

HAVERFORD, Pa., June 27.—Moving through the tournament as quietly as a shadow, Keith Gledhill, 20-year-old Stanford University player, today defeated Bruce Barnes, of the University of Texas in the national inter-collegiate singles tennis championship final match on the courts of the Merion Cricket club. The scores were 3-6, 6-2, 6-1, 6-4.

In winning the first set, Barnes flashed a brilliant brand of tennis. But in the second set, the Texan began to tire. While he still had control of his shots, he failed to put on pressure. Barnes appeared very tired in the third set. Often he made no effort to make returns. He had lost control.

After ten minutes rest period, Barnes refreshed and drew a big cheer from the gallery by his drives down the line which Gledhill couldn't reach and his courageous rallies to the net where he prolonged the match by brilliant angle placements. Gledhill continued in his steady, suer style and took the set 6-4 and the match.

Bruce Barnes and Karl Kamrath of the University of Texas, defeated Donald Strachan and W. F. Thomas of Princeton, in a five set match, thus again bringing the doubles championships to the West. The scores were 6-4, 6-8, 6-8, 6-2.

Bill Butts, city secretary, said that samples of the water from the two wells had been analyzed and that both had been pronounced pure.

Lamesa Golfers To Clash With Big Spring Clubmen

LAMESA, June 27. (Special)—The Class A flighters of the local golf ladder will play the Class A team of Big Spring on the latter's course Sunday afternoon for standing in the Sand Belt Golf association. This is the second engagement between these two teams, Frank Ross, captain of the local Class A team, will appear in the starting line-up, and will likely be pitched against Bristow, famous West Texas Golfer of Big Spring, in the rounds Sunday, which promise to be tough matches for the eight men representing the local team.

"B" Teams To Play

The Seminole Golf aggregation, ten men strong, will invade the local course for revenge of a former defeat on Class B. Lamesa Golf Flighters here Sunday afternoon. C. E. Rollins heads the Seminole team, while E. Powell is captain of the local squad.

Immunization In Dickens Started

SPUR, June 27. (Special)—Immunization in typhoid fever, small pox and diphtheria has been started in Dickens county under the supervision of Ruth Koolker, state health nurse, and E. R. White, sanitary officer. The first doses have been given in the Afton community and a complete schedule has been worked out for the county pending arrival of the medicines.

To aid in the work a county health association has been organized with County Judge O. C. Newberry as chairman.

The work is being carried on through appropriations made by the federal and state governments. It is hoped to complete the work before school openings in September.

Big Names Of Wade And Jim Phalen Noted

Northern Scribes Compliment Cawthon's School, Only One Scheduled For This Section During Present Summer

Nationwide publicity continues to enhance the probabilities that the Texas Tech coaching school, or the Wallace Wade-Jimmy Phelan courses of athletic instruction to be held here August 3-15 will outshine all others in the United States this summer.

The only school of its kind scheduled for Texas or the southwest, the Wade-Phelan school here is said by some of the nation's most popular sports writers to be one of the best and most extensive of all time, and probably the best in America this season.

The fact that Wade and Phelan, two of the greatest mentors of modern times, will be here to conduct the school is a big drawing card in itself and added to that is the special basketball coaching course conducted by S. D. "Sad Sam" Burton of West Texas State Teachers college and Jimmie Kitts of Athens High school. The latter will deal primarily with high school basketball, illustrating his course by actual plays and formations as shown by five of his all-American high school cagers.

Chuck Taylor To Be Here

P. W. Cawthon, Tech mentor who originated the idea of staging a coaching school here and who is largely responsible for the progress made thus far, announced yesterday that "Chuck" Taylor, one of the greatest basketball players of the country, at present affiliated with a huge rubber concern, will be here to illustrate various shots on the painted court and otherwise help out with the basketball department.

Through the efforts of Coach Cawthon and his assistants, Russell T. "Dutchey" Smith and Del Morgan, a system of spreading publicity over the states has already resulted in the response of nearly a hundred coaches who plan to be here. Cawthon has been commended for his action by well known coaches, among them the late Knute Rockne, who, a few days before his death conversed with Cawthon and congratulated him heartily on choosing Wade and Phelan to come here. "Pop" Warner of California and other popular coaches have added their "okeh" to the plan.

Two Grid Systems

Two football systems will be offered the attending coaches here. Wallace Wade will deal with the short punt formation type that has won for his teams six championships in ten years and Phelan, formerly a student of Rockne and a close follower of his system, will teach the wing back formations and modifications that have made him famous at Purdue and the University of Washington.

While at Alabama, Wade's teams won 61 games, lost 13 and tied three. In 1924, 1925 and 1926 the Crimson Tide won the Southern Conference championship, defeating the University of Washington in 1925 at Rose Bowl. The following year the Tide played Pop Warner's Cardinals to a 7-7 tie at the tournament of Roses and last year the Bamans defeated Washington State's Cougars at the classic Rose Bowl tournament. Wade goes to Duke University this year.

After serving at Missouri where he had great teams, Phelan went to Purdue and won a Big Ten championship in 1929. He served his first year with the University of Washington last year and while shortage of material prevented a sensational season, he is rated as one of the greatest coaches of the day.

'Human Comet' Fire Dive Features Water Carnival Set For Tomorrow Night; Lists Open To All Comers

With a "human comet" dive as its climax the water carnival to be staged at the City Swimming pool tomorrow night promises to be one of the feature athletic attractions of the summer season, according to K. N. Clapp, manager of the pool.

Preparations have been made to make the carnival one of the most attractive ever held here, Clapp says. Beginning at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening, a series of twelve contests will be held. These, divided into four classes, will be participated in by leading swimmers and divers of the city. Contests are open to all comers and entries will not close until time for the events.

Special Diving Act

W. B. Bristow, Wichita Falls, who is attending the Texas Tech summer session, will provide one of the features when he makes his "comet" dive. In this he leaves the platform draped in flames, apparently diving into a pool of fire.

Events in each division comprise a twenty and forty-yard race and diving. In the latter, the required dives are the front or swan, front and back jackknife, and one optional dive. In the men's class the back dive is added.

To Give Prizes

Prizes will be given for first, second and third place winners in each event with a grand prize to the winner of high points in all events. Children will have an opportunity in a twenty-yard race for boys and girls under 11 years of age.

Clapp states that the carnival is open to the public and no fee will be charged. None but bathers will be allowed within the pool enclosure. There will be general swimming between the contests.

Texas A. & M. Grad To Teach Agriculture At Ralls

RALLS, June 27. (Special)—J. H. Taylor, recent graduate of Texas A. & M. college, has been elected teacher of vocational agriculture in the Ralls schools and will assume his duties here July 1.

Taylor, whose home is near Dublin, was a member of the dairy judging team at a contest last fall at St. Louis. He was also a member of the freshman and junior dairy judging teams and of a freshman agronomy team. Other student honors won by Taylor include membership in Scholarship Honor society, president of Kream and Kow Club and Danforth Foundation summer fellowship. His studies at A. & M. included animal husbandry, horticulture, marketing, insect control, veterinary science, agricultural engineering and special work in dairying.

He takes the place left vacant by E. E. Young who has been director of vocational agriculture in the Ralls schools for the past three years. Young has accepted a similar position in the San Angleo schools.

SCHOOL VOTED GAS

RALLS, June 27. (Special)—At a meeting of the school board here this week arrangements were completed whereby the Ralls grammar school will be furnished with natural gas for heating. Although Ralls has had natural gas for a number of years, the grammar school, located on the south of town, had never been piped for gas. Work has begun and gas connections will be made before school starts this fall.

Lord Bledisoe, Governor General of New Zealand, has requested the Government to reduce his salary of $25,000 a year by 10 per cent to assist in national economies.

Seeing Double—Twice

The Gale quadruplets—count 'em—Jane, Jean, Joan and June—are shown on their arrival at Paddington Station, London, to keep theatregoers of the British capital mystified as to which is which—and perhaps why. They are the only quadruplets on the stage and appeared in various productions in the United States. Their family name is Gilmartin, but theatrically they are known as the Gale quadruplets.

Activities Of Tech's Summer Term Planned

Plans For Extra Curricular Attractions Well Under Way At College, Dean James M. Gordon Announces

Plans for the extra curricular attractions of the summer session of Texas Technological college are well under way, Dean James M. Gordon of the school of liberal arts said Saturday in a discussion of the special activities of the annual summer school.

"We have a large enrollment this year than ever before and I believe that more of the students body, as a whole, are making plans to enter into the general activities of the school," Dean Gordon declared.

"Program Excellent"

"Our men's program this year is excellent and I believe that more of the men will participate in the annual men's barbecue than did last year."

Chief attractions so far definitely arranged, include:

July 1, second annual men's barbecue at Buffalo Springs.

July 6-7, annual Carlsbad Caverns trip, with the students as guests of the National Park Service.

July 13, Stanley Deacon players, in a recital.

July 29, Gay McLaren, "reproducer" and entertainer.

"We are very fortunate this year in having our programs, such as the Stanley Deacon players and Miss McLaren, in the new high school auditorium," Dean Gordon said. "I want to take this occasion to thank the Lubbock school authorities for this courtesy."

Committees Named

Committees were named the past week for the men's chicken barbecue by president Charles M. Rogers, of Amarillo. Last year's attendance of over 100 men is expected to be passed.

The party for the caverns will leave in special busses on Monday, July 6. The party will be taken through the caverns by special guides starting early on Tuesday morning and return will be late in the day.

Graduate students are planning a big time, following the organization of the group. B. C. Schulky, superintendent of schools at Olney is the president; T. H. McDonald, principal of the Canyon schools, vice-president; Ruth Forbes Cook, of Texas Technological college, secretary-treasurer; W. H. Gordon, Amarillo High school, reporter and Dr. A. W. Evans, department of education sponsor.

There is a larger group of graduate students at Tech this year than ever before in the history of the school.

Miss McLaren is unusual as an entertainer, Dean Gordon said. "I am told that she can hear an opera or a play five times and can imitate or reproduce the stage presence of every member of the cast." Dean Gordon said. "She is not a reader, but should more properly be called a 'reproducer' in that she reproduces the work of others. Dr. Evans calls her the "human phonograph!"

Offer Special Prices

"The moving picture theatres of Lubbock, are making attractive prices to holders of students activity and recreational tickets," Dean Gordon said.

"We also find that students are using the swimming pool at the city park more than ever before."

The first term of the summer session closes on July 18. No definite plans of school activities for the second term have been announced. It is probable that the student groups of men and women will make special plans for that session.

Activities of the women for the first term have not been completed. A picnic has been discussed, it is reported.

Polo Game Is Planned As A Main Feature

Arrangements Underway For A Game Between Lubbock And Spur Teams; Milk And Ice Fund To Profit

POLO may be included on the Fourth of July program scheduled for Johnston's ranch, Jim Johnston, promoter, said late Saturday. Arrangements for a matched game between Lubbock and Spur teams are under way, he said.

Johnston, Lubbock county ranchman, has agreed to contribute ten per cent of the day's receipts to the fifth annual Avalanche-Journal Goodfellows' milk and ice fund for poor children. F. V. ("Leatherhat") Brown, also a veteran cowman, is aiding Johnston in direction of the Independence day celebration.

12 Miles East

The ranch is 12 miles east of Lubbock and five miles north of Slaton. Headline events will range from western ranch sports in an arena beneath a summer sun to dancing on hardwood floors beneath a Texas moon. Sidelights will lend color and gayety to festivities.

Entries for the rodeo, which would be preceded by the proposed polo game, are arriving daily, Johnston said. Riders and ropers in Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and Oklahoma already have entered, he said.

Program Is Full

Broncho riding, goat and calf roping, a wild horse race and trick riding and roping are on the rodeo bill. Bucking horses described as "one of the best rodeo strings in this section" will make some riders pull leather before the day is over, the promoter believes.

Fifty dollars will be awarded any person "qualifying" in riding a quarter-buffalo bull bareback with one hand on a loose rope-surcingle, the promoter said.

Stock pens and chutes will be on the grounds for use in the program of cowboy contests, he said.

Orchestra To Play

A Lubbock negro orchestra, Buffalo Rhythm Stompers, is scheduled to furnish music for dances at a pavilion at the ranch the nights of July 3 and 4. The pavilion will accommodate a large crowd and has hardwood floors throughout, Johnston said.

French West Africa and Equatorial Africa expect to benefit from France's plan to help its colonies in constructing new public works or extending the present ones.

Texas Tech Given Priceless Gifts

Considerable historical interest is attached to two articles recently presented Texas Technological college by Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Rush of Acuff community.

One is a gourd from which Stonewall Jackson probably drank while directing confederate forces in the civil war. The other is a knife made in Germany.

Belonged To Servant

The gourd originally belonged to Glover Washington, negro servant of Jackson. The negro was carrying the gourd as a water container when Jackson surrendered. Glover gave it to Mrs. Rush in 1887.

Jacob Putabaugh made the knife in Germany. It was brought to Dark county, Ohio, in 1813. The present handles were fashioned from the horns of a deer killed where Union City, Ind., now stands. The knife was given to Milton Rush, father of S. S. Rush, in about 1856.

In expressing appreciation of the gourd and knife, Paul W. Horn, president of the college, said to Mr. and Mrs. Rush:

"Both of these objects are of great interest and of much value. They will be given an honored place in the museum of the Texas Technological college."

Two Courts In City Are Over

Both 72nd And 99th District Courts Close Sessions On Saturday; November And December Next Dates

Both of Lubbock county's district courts, the 72nd and 99th, adjourned their spring terms yesterday.

The 99th district court, with Judge Clark M. Mullican presiding, will open its September term on September 7. The 72nd court, with Judge Homer L. Pharr on the will open its next session on November 7, according to court attaches.

A feature of the 99th court's spring term was the trial of the $200,000 libel suit of Fred Spikes against J. Evetts Haley and trustees of the Capitol Reservation Lands company. About seven weeks was required to hear the suit.

Judge Pharr handled criminal cases and non-jury suits principally during the May term of his court. The grand jury during the term returned a total of 26 indictments. A part of the 11 indictments found by the jury at its first sitting at the opening of the term, were disposed of by Judge Pharr.

Swedish household refrigerators operated by kerosene are being introduced into Argentina.

Granbery Gets Signal Honor

Head Of History Department Of Texas Tech Is Selected Regional Chancellor Of Pi Gamma Mu Last Week

Dr. J. C. Granbery, head of the history department of Texas Technological college, has been chosen chancellor of the southwest region of Pi Gamma Mu, national social science society.

One of the organizers of the society and the original first vice-president, Dr. Granbery has been actively connected with the organization since it was formed. He was notified of his selection as regional chancellor by Dr. Leroy Allen of Winfield, Kan., national president of Pi Gamma Mu.

The Texas Beta chapter of Pi Gamma Mu, of which a number of Texas Tech students are members, considers the selection of Dr. Granbery a signal honor for the local organization. The southwest region includes Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana.

Carroll Talks To Pi Gamma Mu On Friday

"Russia has traded one form of dictatorship for another," Professor H. B. Carroll, member of the history department of Texas Technological college, said Friday night in a talk before members of Pi Gamma Mu, national social science society at the chemistry building auditorium.

Professor Carroll spoke on "An Estimate of Bolshevism in the Light of its Accomplishments".

Leads Open Forum

Rev. Bradner Moore of the St. Paul's - on - the - Plains Episcopal church led an open forum discussion of bolshevism following the talk.

"The present dictatorship in Russia possibly is more benevolent than that of the czars'," Professor Carroll said. "Today Russia has the autocracy of the party instead of one man."

The speaker defined bolshevism as "revolutionary socialism", and traced the early history of bolshevism as related to the achievements of the doctrine of socialism. In his opinion, Russia does not enjoy the form of socialism planned by bolshevists.

Eleven new members were received into the Texas Beta chapter of Pi Gamma Mu at the meeting. They were: Murvel Rankin, Mildred A Hinds, Ruth Newton, Paul J. McCarty, B. C. Shulley, Gordon Dickinson, Mrs. Richard White, Marie Butler, Mrs. Eppie Sowder, Solon Clements and Mrs. L. F. Reeves.

Legion Party Is Now Taking Form

Following an American Legion Fourth of July picnic near here, Harley Sadler's tent show will be in Lubbock the week of July 6 under auspices of Allen Brothers post, No. 148.

O. B. Conley is chairman of a picnic committee authorized to select place of the picnic. Legionnaires and auxiliary women will leave Legion hall at about 5 p. m. Independence day.

A baseball game will be played by teams captained by Amos Howard and Dr. H. H. Bidwell.

Members of Allen Brothers post and auxiliary will attend the Sadler stock company's presentation in a body the night of July 9. The local post will receive a percentage of the receipts during the week.

Lubbock Legionnaires To Attend Picnic Near Post

Members of the Allen Brothers post of the American Legion have accepted the invitation of James C. Cole post, No. 270, of Post to attend a barbecue at Two-Draw lake, near Post, Friday night.

A large delegation from the Lubbock post is expected to attend, Glenn Hess, commander, said.

Walter Duckworth, former commander of the Post group is chairman of the general arrangements committee. Charles Qualls, postmaster, and T. L. Jones are his assistants.

The posts at Tahoka and O'Donnell will join in with the Post group.

This is the opportunity you have been wanting to prepare yourself for a better position, increased pay or to become more efficient in your present job.

Many jobs have been lost because the employee failed to study and advance because they thought they were safe. Business methods are changing rapidly—probably more so now than ever before—it is imperative if you are to continue to advance, and go forward that you be fully qualified. Our night classes are designed to help qualify you for a position; to help you hold the position you now have, and to help you advance more rapidly to a better position.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, June 27 (AP)—Cotton was decidedly active for a short week-end session here today, and prices fluctuated rapidly and nervously although finally resulting in small net changes for the day. The close was called weak prices showing no change to 5 points net advance.

Liverpool came in 7 to 11 penny points worse than due and private cables stated that there was general realizing by longs. Manchester cabled that the home cloth trade was improving. October closed at 10.60 and December at 10.80 or net 2 points up on the former month and net unchanged on the latter.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, June 27 (AP)—Recent advances were followed by very nervous and irregular fluctuations in cotton today. The market closed easy net 7 points lower to 5 points higher. July closed at 10.20.

Prospects for further rains in Texas over Sunday with the possibility that they might spread to the eastward may have accounted for some of the late selling. A readjustment of the technical position following the advances of over 2 cents a pound from the recent high level, however, was regarded as accounting for much of the selling both at the start and later in the day.

Deaths Mounting

The number of persons who died from heat prostration or who drowned while trying to get relief in lakes and rivers grew rapidly. Chicago counted 12 deaths Saturday despite the fact that a lake breeze kept the temperature below 90 most of the day. Twelve additional deaths were scattered over Illinois. Eight new heat deaths and three additional drownings were reported in Wisconsin, and a dozen more in Iowa, Minnesota and Missouri.

Serious damage was done to the oats crop in Illinois and Iowa. Oats were in the "milk" stage and were being prevented from proper development by the continued high temperatures.

The hot sun sent corn stalks shooting upward but serious fears were felt for that crop if there were no rain soon. Crops experts said the subsoil moisture reserve was short this season.

Fresh Buying Orders Offset Profit Taking On Weekend Market Trading

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, June 27 (AP)—Fresh buying orders more than offset week end profit taking in today's stock market.

Led by U. S. steel, the list closed with gains of 1 to 4 points or more, although most of the advances in the more important issues fell in a one to two range. Trading was active, especially in the last half hour. Sales totaled 1,900,000 shares, a large volume for Saturday.

Although overnight Washington advices had stated that the French cabinet's reply on the debt proposal, sustained by the deputies, did not quite fill the bill from the viewpoint of the American administration, Wall street directed its attention to Paris where Secretary Mellon and Premier Laval began their negotiations. Financial circles here expressed confidence in the outcome.

County Attorney Shilling previously had indicated no charges would be dismissed. He was to confer with other prosecutors.

An orderly crowd of 150, scarcely a handful as compared to the throngs that had packed the trial since Wednesday morning—heard the verdict.

Crosby also was the center of a congratulating crowd as soon as the verdict had been read.

The jury that acquitted him first voted 8 to 4 for acquittal. Members reported this afternoon they feared they could not agree but Judge Ogden sent them back after learning their division was 11 to 1.

MIDDLEWESTERN LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY June 27 (AP)—Another liberal run of cattle around the eleven market circuit this week coming on top of last week's liberal supply uncovered a price decline of 25-1.00 on most killing classes. Choice yearlings were about the only offering to escape with less than a 50 break while matured fed steers scaling above 1,200 lbs were off 75-1.00 at several points. Western grass steers and grass fat she stock were tendered a jolt of 50-1.00. Eastern dressed beef trade was sluggish at generally lower prices, the warm weather having a tendency to reduce consumption. Stocker and feeder classes were in limited supply but with killing cattle materially lower, late trade ruled weak to 25 or more lower. Aggregate receipts were estimated at 185,000 as compared with 167 189 last week.

Heard A Scream

Miss Tinnin was seated on the front porch of her parents' apartment, joining that of W. H. Steele, father of Mrs. Buckelew, a few minutes after 11 o'clock. She heard a shot and a woman's scream, and as she looked up she saw Mrs. Buckelew fall. A second or two later a man ran around a corner of the house, from the rear, trotted across the street, and disappeared in a dark alley.

Mrs. Buckelew, 25-year-old waitress, was killed as she stood in a doorway between the kitchen and bedroom of the Steele apartment. The shot was fired through a back screen, the slayer standing in the dark outside. He used a shotgun with No. 8 shot, which pierced the young woman's side, probably entering the heart. She staggered into bedroom, crying, "I am shot," and fell dead. She had been in town a short time before returning with a man.

The young woman was formerly Miss Lillie May Steele and came here four years ago from Hedley. Her father, W. H. Steele, returned tonight from Longview. She was divorced last February from Buckelew. He has been in Arizona for some time.

Taste Of Tropical Storms Had By Honduran Freighter

GALVESTON, June 27. (AP)—A taste of the tropical disturbance which has been centered in the gulf for the past few days was had by the Honduran fruit steamer Wanks which arrived here today from Vera Cruz.

Two days out of Vera Cruz, the ship ran into a long heavy swell and this with a falling barometer portended bad weather ahead. Captain E. J. Taylor kept his course, but in a few hours the sea rose higher and he ordered the ship hove to for several hours, during which time the barometer changes and wind directions were noted.

Native Stone Is Discovered At Littlefield

Rock Thought Valuable For Road Building Purposes And Will Be Used In Commercial Quantities

(By Staff Correspondent)

LITTLEFIELD, June 27.—Native stone, of a hardness that makes it very valuable for road building purposes, has been located in paying quantities on the old Yellowhouse ranch south and west of Littlefield and plans are now being worked out to use the rock for commercial purposes.

There are two places where the rock is found in large amounts. One is on property now owned by Dr. T. C. Terrell of Fort Worth and the other is on property of the Yellowhouse Land company.

Near Bull Lake

Rock is found on three of the labors owned by Mr. Terrell. He has labors 16, 191, 20, 22, 24 and 25 of block 676 of the old Texas Capitol Lands. This is near Bull lake nine or ten miles west of Littlefield.

On labors 3, 4 and 6 of block 676, more rock is to be found. This is located a little south of the Terrell land.

"We have a contract to work under certain conditions and to operate a quarry and mine the rock," R. T. Badger, manager of the Yellowhouse Land company, said in discussing the proposed quarry work. "Some tentative plans have been made for railroad facilities to the place.

Of Best Type

"The quarries will be about nine or ten miles from the Santa Fe or the proposed Texas and Pacific Northern. We have had reports of a chemical analysis from the University of Texas that shows the rock to be of the very best type for highway construction."

During the Littlefield street building program of 1929 and 1930 the rock was used and contractors pronounced it to be very satisfactory.

The rock is not a limestone, but is harder than that type of rock. It has been found to be an excellent building stone, also.

Five Arrested In Raids Here

Four Raids Conducted In City Friday Night And Saturday By County Officers; Beer Is Confiscated

Five persons were arrested in connection with possession, sale and transportation of beer Friday night and Saturday by members of the sheriff's department. Four raids and the arrest of a man who was carrying bottled beer in a sack marked the opening of a campaign directed against beer sales here.

About 48 bottles of beer were confiscated when the man was taken into custody early Saturday night in southeast Lubbock. The bottles of beer were in two sacks. A companion of the man arrested escaped.

Robison Held

A. L. Robison was arrested Saturday morning at his home two miles south of Lubbock near state highway No. 7 as a result of a true bill returned against him by the seventy-second district court grand jury which adjourned late last week. The indictment charged possession of whiskey. County officers said Robison hid in low weeds near his house in an attempt to escape arrest. Four raids were conducted by members of the sheriff's department iste Friday.

A charge of possession of beer was filed against Arthur Hester in Justice of the Peace, H. K. Porter's court. About 24 bottles of beer were confiscated in a raid in which Hester was arrested in the 1200-block of Avenue A, a deputy sheriff said.

Man Released

A man arrested in the 500-block of Avenue E, where raiders found about fifty bottles of beer, was released because a baby had been born to his wife while he was in city jail at 5 a. m Saturday.

A woman poured out beer before officers could confiscate it in the 1400-block of Avenue D. She was not arrested.

Although about 35 bottles of beer and a bottle-capper were found in the 1200-block of Avenue A adjacent to Hester's place, a woman arrested later was released as she was the mother of a large family, a deputy sheriff said.

Two negroes arrested Friday night for the holdup of a white man, who said $16 had been taken from him, were released Saturday. The white man refused to prosecute, the sheriff's department reported. He said several other persons were in the place when he was robbed at the point of a pistol.

Two negroes arrested at Santa Rosa, N. M., for automobile theft following reports from the Lubbock county sheriff's department will be returned here for trial, Sheriff Wade Hardy said Saturday.

Arrested Friday

Theft of an automobile belonging to Judge C. Smith, a farmer living near Posey, and of a suitcase, clothes, and a 45 calibre pistol owned by a Lubbock negro, Charles Holmes, is attributed to the two suspects by Sheriff Hardy. The car was stolen near Posey late Thursday. Washington and his young companion were taken into custody Friday.

About 1 o'clock Friday morning, a farmer living near state highway No. 24 west of Lubbock telephoned Sheriff Hardy. Two boys had caught a ride with two negroes, the latter had acted queerly, and the boys had become frightened, left the automobile and come to his house, the farmer said.

Going To Levelland

Querying the boys, who were about 13 and 16 years old, the sheriff learned they were going to Levelland when the negroes stopped to let them ride.

The older negro asked them if they had any money. He appeared angry and after saying a woman had not left him a key, he ripped open a suitcase, extracted a pistol and stuck it in his trouser-front, the youths related.

Saying he had an uncle nearby and would stay with him all night, one of the white boys left, accompanied by the other. The farmer to whose house they went subsequently notified the sheriff's department.

Investigation showed that the white boys' belief that the negroes had stopped on a knoll nearby was incorrect.

Material For Postoffice Is Expected Soon

Sought-After Change In The Materials For New Federal Building Made; Brick And Stone Will Be Used

Arrival of brick and stone, to be used in construction of the new federal building here, is expected to begin in the next week or ten days, Postmaster John L. Vaughan reported last week.

Pouring of footings is well under way, he said, with Louis Boos, superintendent for McDonald Construction company, St. Louis, holders of the general contract, in charge. Considerable of the re-enforcing steel is on the ground and has been used in the foundation laying work.

By the time the foundation is laid it is expected that most of the material for the walls will be on the ground or ready for shipment, the postmaster stated.

Connally Sends Wire

A telegram received by the Avalanche-Journal yesterday from Senator Tom Connally indicated that the sought-after change in materials had definitely been made. The Senator's wire read:

"With regard to changing material of federal building from red brick to stone, I am glad to advise that supervising architect of the treasury department is changing plans to provide for stone up to the second floor level and with light colored brick above that level.

"This will harmonize with other buildings in the vicinity."

Change Is Secured

Senator Connally and Congressman Marvin Jones loaned their influence to the change, and C. E. Maedgen, president of the Lubbock Board of City Development, and Postmaster Vaughan made a trip to Washington to secure the approval of federal authorities.

Fred B. Caylor, representative of the Reliance Brick company here, said yesterday that he had sent specifications of tht new type material into Washington. Mr. Caylor sold the brick to be used on the [illegible]

INTEGRITY

A Quality that Must Exist in both Men and Equipment if proper Service is to be Attained

Not just a mass of pipes and meters, producing an abstract entity called Service, but a definitely organized group of service men serving you at all times with a definite goal. That . . . "to please."

All is lost if man is unequal to his equipment. To this end, every man is trained to perform his task, to fulfill the obligation of public service, to remain constant in performance of duty, to possess integrity. Regardless of holidays, sunshine or rain, Gas much be supplied. This is made possible only through the integrity expressed in men and equipment.

Congratulations

To Ross McWhorter and the Magnolia Petroleum Company on the completion of their new Magnolia Distributing unit.

We firmly believe that your belief in Lubbock and the Great South Plains is well justified. Lubbock is fast becoming the most ideal wholesale distributing center in West Texas, and with coming of new railroads, paved highways and etc., we believe your success is assured.

Summer Students To Attend First Annual "Tech Day" At Carlsbad Caverns July 6, 7

Two-Day Holiday Declared For Institution Here; To End Classes At Noon Saturday For Holiday Period

Summer session students at Texas Technological college will enjoy a two-day holiday, July 6 and 7, while several hundred students and faculty members are expected to attend the first annual "Tech Day" for Carlsbad National Caverns park, Dr. Paul W. Horn, president, said in announcing that college students would be guests of Col. Thomas L. Boles, park superintendent.

"We will hold classes until noon of Saturday, July 4," Dr. Horn said. "There will be no classes Monday and Tuesday.

"That will permit students who desire to make the caverns trip plenty of time. Students will be the guests of the caverns superintendent and he has announced that the regular admission fee of $2 will not be charged."

To Leave Monday

It is planned to leave Lubbock about noon of Monday, July 6, the school president said. Only one night will be spent away from Lubbock, Monday night, the party returning Tuesday before dark.

"Start will be early Tuesday morning through the carverns," Dr. Horn said. "I think the start will be about 8 o'clock, so that the trip can be over about noon and then we will start for home."

Through arrangements with Lubbock bus men a special rate of $5 for the round trip has been secured, Dr. Horn said. The trip is being made at a minimum cost and as a result a larger number of summer session students than ever is expected to join the party.

"We have a good many students who come here for the summer session, from other parts of the state, especially to attend the Carlsbad Caverns tour," Dr. Horn said. "This is one of our especial attractions for the summer session.

"Personally, I appreciate very much the kind offer of Superintendent Boles of the Caverns to give free admission to our students."

DR. MYERS

Doctor Myers' Daily Column On Child Welfare

BY GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.
Head Division Parental Education Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

IMPUDENT CHILD

"DEAR DR. MYERS: My son often is exceptionally impudent. I don't seem to be able to overcome this. I have just received word from his principal at school. She threatens for punishment to put him back a grade and next expel him from school.

"Last year he had a teacher who was, in my opinion, too old to teach, and who this year has retired. The principal asked me if my son was mentally and physically all right. She said he annoyed his teacher continually by tapping his feet and pencil and made a noise in his throat. So I took him to my family physician. He said he was on the verge of St. Vitus dance. My little boy said he couldn't stop making the noises because she continuously reminded him of them. I finally took him out of school and sent him away for a change and rest.

"This fall he seemed better, so I sent him back to school. I went there to visit to hear how he was getting along. The teacher said he was impudent, but not to get the impression he was the worst child she had. Wish you could help me with this problem. Whipping doesn't seem to help."

Answer: I have a deal of sympathy with the boy, his teacher and you. All seem to be in need of help. I wish the teacher were more sympathetic and discreet. Of course, she has other children, too, you know.

The boy is very nervous and finds it hard to sit still and to control his tongue, and the more often he gets into trouble, the more practice he has in being impudent and in losing self-control.

You have not been very successful in managing the lad at home. He got his early training there in impudence and is merely practicing at school. Naturally you are embarrassed by the school's complaint and, being human like the rest of us, you come to the lad's defense and try to make the teacher feel the fault is mostly hers.

First have the boy examined by your physician. See that he has regular and ample hours of sleep—work for better habits in him at home.

Don't let him play too long at a time. Have him come in for quiet for about forty minutes before the evening meal. Sit down with Dad, with a pencil and paper, and write down all the specific ways you can think of to reduce commands and to remove unnecessary annoyance to the lad. Plan together one or two important habits you are going to work upon, not many. Overlook the rest for the time.

Covenant together to scold less, smile and joke more at home, and to praise more often when the boy does a few things well. When he talks back hold your tongue. Never talk back to him. Better say nothing about his talking back. Just keep calm and silent but don't budge nor change your command once it has been thoughtfully given. Never let yourself get in an argument. Speak in a very low and quiet voice. In case he is not likely to obey a specific command calmly tell him what the penalty will be, and then don't lie. But be reasonable. Better not resort to physical punishment. Isolation or sitting in a chair doing nothing for half an hour by the clock, or forfeture of some attractive privilege announced ahead, may be much better.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Two pamphlets by Dr. Myers may be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to Dr. Garry C. Myers, in care of this paper, or Central Press Association, 1441 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlets are: "Punishments and Rewards" and "Fear."

Jeweled Touch Needed For Evening

Pendants Sometimes May Be Worn In The Back

BY JEAN PATOU
Written for NEA Service

PARIS, June 27.—Jewelry styles evolve in the same way as general fashions do, with the difference that the rythm is much slower and changes are apt to be less apparent to the unobservant.

I am not going to undertake to explain in which way styles in jewelry have evolved, but the smart woman is very aware of the fact that to maintain her reputation of elegance, she must consider having her jewels reset to meet every change in the mode.

It is some years now since I realized the importance of having jewelry harmonize with fashions. In collaboration with Van Cleef & Arpels, jewelers of international repute, I endeavored to demonstrate the close liaison that had to exist between the jewel and the gown. The apparent simplicity of this season's styles has convinced everybody of the importance of such a collaboration between the jeweler and the couturier, especially where evening dresses are concerned.

Lends Touch of Color

With most of the new evening gowns combining unity of color with simple lines, and in view of the still popular vogue for all black or all white, the jeweled touch is indispensable. It supplies the note of sumptuousness as well as the necessary touch of color.

It is almost incredible in some instances how a piece of jewelry, if wisely selected, seems to lose its role of accessory and appear to form an integral part of the dress. The fichu bodice, for example, would be incomplete without a jeweled clip or brooch. It has all the appearance of holding the drapery in place, yet we know that without it the dress would certainly not fall apart.

If you study the jeweled pin or necklace apart from the gown, on the other hand, you will realize that the latter does bear a certain influence, not on the actual design of the jewel or the workmanship, but certainly on its dimension and its form and the way in which it is worn.

The decollete of this season's evening gowns being almost negligible in front, a necklace with too long a pendant effect in front would lack harmony, besides destroying much of the character of the dress which resides in this neckline. Hence the creation of necklaces worn with the pendant in the back.

Back effects in the new necklaces break the line of decolletes that might risk appearing a little too wide otherwise, besides imparting an idea of length, an all-important point in the modern silhouette. It is always successful, and I think the only answer to back decolletes, especially because for some seasons now the front of the gown has lost much of its old-time importance.

As jewel fashions go, therefore, a woman would do far better to be content with one or two pieces of jewelry harmonizing perfectly with her gowns and personality, rather than pride herself in a collection of handsome gems devoid of character or line.

These pictures illustrate Jean Patou's theory of jewel and fashion harmony. The sophisticated simplicity of the black satin dress shown at left is enhanced by the brooch of modern design. Center is a black tulle which is relieved by a diamond and emerald necklace. Another piece fashioned of the same gems is worn with the decollete back of the costume pictured at right. The jewels were especially designed by Van Cleef & Arpels.

New Officers And New Constitution Await The Opening Of Another Club Year For Federation

With new officers and a new constitution and by-laws, Lubbock's City Federation of Women's clubs has disbanded for the remainder of the summer, preparatory to beginning a new year in September.

Delegates who voted in Friday afternoon's meeting of the organization, when the new laws were adopted, will have a plea for cooperation and support to take to the clubs when federated auxiliaries meet again in the fall. For Mrs. A. T. Biggers, president, in a closing statement Friday expressed a willingness to serve the city union while she was voicing the necessity for club interest such as delegates from these societies may be able to arouse.

Friday's meeting was at the First Baptist church and was called particularly to vote upon a new constitution after it had been found that a part of the original one was missing. Five of the six clubs now having membership in the city union were represented at the meeting. These included the Twentieth Century club, Junior Twentieth Century club, Daleth and Lu Beta Delphian chapters and Sorosis club. Representatives of several other organizations who are potential federation members were present to observe the proceedings.

To Elect Auditor

With the exception of the constitutional revisions, the other business consisted of a vote to determine a mode of selecting an auditor at the September meeting. The nominating committee, through which other officers were selected this spring, is to act again in this capacity.

Mrs. Biggers presided and Mrs. George Field, president of Junior Twentieth Century club, acted as secretary in the absence of Mrs. D. K. Bondurant. Mrs. H. A. Davidson, chairman of the committee suggesting a revision of the constitution, read the new organ and sought its adoption. With some minor changes, it was selected.

Changes were not radical. More power was granted to the federation in the omission of a clause which formerly made it necessary for all of the union actions to have individual club ratification. According to the new ruling, the Federation may act as a unit unless member clubs are to be assessed dues other than the annual ones.

Dues were lowered from $10 yearly to $5 for member clubs. Individuals going into the Federation are to pay dues of $1 yearly and all dues must be paid by November.

The voting power was enlarged when presidents of member clubs and chairmen of standing committees were added to the executive board with the Federation president and other elective officers and delegates to the union.

Change The Aim

The original object of the Federation, that of erecting a club house, was omitted and a new object was stated as bringing about a closer union of city federated clubs and promoting the intellectual, civic and moral interests of the town.

A time and mode of election for officers in the Federation were set and terms of office were designated. A meeting time for the Federation was provided also, these points having been omitted from the original paper or subsequently lost.

No more meetings of the Federation will be held until the fourth Friday in September, it was announced at the Friday gathering, and it is thought that by that time

More Than 100 Artists Have Filed Intentions To Have Pictures On Exhibit At Annual Meeting Of Federation

The announced intention of more than 100 artists to have entries in the $500 Cash Purchase prize contest this November at a meeting of the Texas Federation of Women's clubs here indicates that this event will be outstanding on the club women's program, according to Mrs. C. M. Ballenger, local chairman, who is sending out a reminder that all intentions to enter must be filed by July 1.

Entries, however, do not have to be sent in before October 15 and at that time must be in the hands of Mrs. Ballenger. All pictures in the contest will be on display during the state convention, which will be in November, and the winning one will become the property of the Texas Federation of Women's clubs to hang in the art gallery of permanent headquarters at Austin.

This display of pictures and the selection of one for the federation will be an outstanding feature of the convention this fall, Mrs. R. F. Lindsey, Mt. Pleasant, state president, believes, and the interest that has been shown by artists indicates that it will meet Mrs. Lindsey's expectations, according to Mrs. Ballenger.

Mostly From Texas

The fact that leading artists of Texas and probably of other sections will be represented in the exhibit is a note expected to excite interest in the convention, those in charge believe. Artists with whom Mrs. Ballenger has had correspondence have been from Texas and she believes that most entries will be from the state. However, intentions are being filed with Mrs. Lindsey.

The committee in charge of this event is composed of Mrs. Lindsey; Mrs. Alex Adams, San Antonio, chairman of the state department of fine arts, and Mrs. C. A. Flagg, Greenville, chairman of the division of art. Mrs. Ballenger is local chairman, working in co-operation with the state committee.

All pictures must be painted in oil from nature in Texas. No portraits or imaginary scenes will be considered, although any Texas scene or painting of historic spot or building may be submitted. Other rules governing the award include the following:

The Rules

1. No artist may enter more than one painting.

2. No canvas will be accepted which has been previously exhibited

The Woman's Angle

BY BLANCHE E. BEAN
Avalanche Woman's Editor

THERE is a current advertisement about start your fall knitted suit now in which yarns for the fall costume are advertised. And with all due respect for the one-in-a-thousand who can knit the suit, I hope the habit doesn't become universal. For the costume that the average one of us would knit would be enough to make us blind.

One time during the war I practiced my knitting ability on a washrag. The thing was all length and no width after the first washing and it would never lie flat. As I remember it, parts of the yarn got so dirty from being pulled out and put in again that it never did get clean.

Knitting a suit may sound easy, but I'll take mine machine-done.

LOCATING THE PARKS

THIS is the picnic season again and we are having our troubles over parks anew.

In announcing Methodist picnics for Friday of this week, Fiske titles scheduled one for the municipal park and when he was asked for further information about location said he didn't know where the place was. That was not unusual because we frequently receive announcements of picnics at municipal park, yet there is no park officially designated as such and so far we have failed to determine just which place is being considered.

* * *

Baffled by it all, city officials were appealed to today and they do not know what is meant by the municipal park any more than the rest of us do.

Probably the City park is so designated. This plot is the park surrounding Tumble N pool and sometimes called Tumble N park. The other popular spot for picnicking is the County park, which is just north of the East Broadway road and east of the fair grounds. However, since the municipal golf course is within this park, confusion sometimes arises and this has been called municipal park.

Officially, however, there is no municipal park and there will be less confusion if the plots are designated by correct names. Of course, signs might help, but the information can be found if one tries. It only took me about two hours to get the information this afternoon.

This may indicate my ignorance, only, and may not be a general indication, but it seems to me that parks in the city need to have some sort of designation in order that citizens may know what they are. If you think that the general public knows names and what locations of these plots, just ask a few people and the chances are that not one in ten can even tell the names of these places or can locate them when names are given.

* * *

From time to time, names are given to the various city parks. In fact, a contest was conducted to make the last selection. If I am not mistaken, but still the average citizen knows very little about these spots, which are the potential beauty places in Lubbock of the future.

* * *

It isn't necessary to have large or particularly ornamental signs placed about the entrances to these various parks, but some sort of a neat-but-not-saudy sign with the name of the park painted on it might help educate Lubbock people concerning the city.

This isn't a premeditated discussion and my idea of the general knowledge concerning parks may be entirely wrong, but the conclusion is based on inquiries received from time to time in the office and from occasional discussions of the subject that have been heard. Then too, the signs might clash with landscaping schemes that are being carried out. But some education concerning the parks here might be a useful sort of thing for the citizenship.

WHERE WOMAN FAILS

NOW, it seems, they have found one field in which women can't expect to equal men. That is the field of crime.

Joseph Collomb, one of the most prominent lay crime experts in the United States, says that with rare exceptions women will hardly approach men in the art of banditry or gunplay either in numbers or ability. That is an encouraging note. In this age of competition between the sexes and in this day when woman is striving to become man's equal in everything, it is good to find that the field of crime is one in which she cannot compete with any assurance of success.

Woman has courage equal to that of man and she can be as cruel, though usually woman turn criminal only in an attempt to defend or avenge herself, Mr. Collomb says.

* * *

That women do not excel in crime is due to the fact that they are more emotional than men and lack that cold machine-like mind which makes a successful criminal. Then, too, this man points out the most compeling motive in a woman's life is the mating instinct—a lifemate, children and security for them. These things keep her from becoming expert as men are as criminals.

Woman Is Biggest Musical Show Producer In America

BY JULIA BLANSHARD
NEA Service Writer

NEW YORK, June 27.—Recently the transcontinental air line deposited here a distinguished looking dark-haired, dark-eyed woman in her early 30's, who had in her glance all the interest of a tourist on his first visit to the big city.

It was Fanchon, the biggest musical show producer that America has, Fanchon who with her brother Marco stages the most impressive brother-sister act in this country by running a theatrical college in Hollywood. Fanchon, who used to play Broadway and knew the town like a book, is here on vacation for her first visit since 1922. That's how busy life is for her out west.

Fanchon isn't Spanish. She and Marco were born "Wolf" in San Francisco. Starting about 12 years ago in a brother-and-sister dance act at Tait's, in San Francisco, they made such a hit with their unusual costumes, original dance steps and bizarre lighting effects that they took their act on the road, played all the best vaudeville houses for several years and then decided to start a training school for other acts.

They Made A Hit

They picked Hollywood as a likely spot and started training a few talented girls and boys, who already could sing and dance, for their "Ideas," as they call their various tabloid performances. The first two companies they sent to San Francisco were so overwhelmingly successful that they increased their studio space, took more pupils and originated more "Ideas."

Today they supply acts to practically every large city in the United States. Their studio occupies 50,000 square feet of floor space, seven large buildings and a staff of 250 persons. In this new home their productions can be conceived, cast, rehearsed, and made ready for their nation-wide tours without any member of the production staff leaving the buildings.

Fanchon creates many of the bosses the studio personnel of 250, the 2000 singers, dancers, acrobats, comedians and miscellaneous stage artists who are under contract to the firm. Marco is the business head, helping his sister on some of the training.

Fanchon creates many of the costumes and directs the designing of others. Under her direct supervision is the payroll of $150,000 a week. This many-sided job of hers makes any man running a single musical production look unemployed.

Her technique in producting a new "Idea" runs something like this: First, she and Marco work out the theme. Then she designs the costumes, lighting effects, stage settings and selects the music. Then they pick the cast, rehearsals are under way, and the studio buzzes with excitement.

A whole section is devoted to seamstresses who make and fit the costumes. The sky is the limit on these, and gowns of extraordinary originality are evolved — extravaganzas and funny, crazy garments —calcio cows, skeleton costumes —anything the skit calls for.

The scenery and drop department is doing its own variety of work while the acts are in rehearsal. In huge lofts, skilled workmen build and make white canvases into lands of fancy.

Then there is a staff of electrical technicians, a staff for the museum where uniforms of all kinds are kept in storage, musical instruments, costumes of every variety. And over all of this Fanchon sits in power.

Have Discovered Stars

Youngsters showing promise are entered in huge training classes, coached by Fanchon until they attain the perfection of veterans. Fanchon and Marco have a lot of celebrities to their credit. They brought out Mary Lewis, Nell Kelly, Nancy Carroll, Frances Williams, the Dodge Sisters, Paul Ash, Abe Lyman, Horace Heidt and others.

In addition Fanchon and Marco both have most interesting home lives. She is married to a chain restaurant owner, has three little daughters and makes all of their clothes, in addition to spending certain hours of each day with them.

Quite in keeping with her unusual character, Fanchon won't mind in the least if they follow their mother on the stage. For it is such a fascinating life for her that she understands how it will intrigue them.

Bible Classes Are Concluded In 2 Churches

Methodists To Expand With Sunday School Program As Vacation Bible School Is Concluded

Closng activitites of annual Daily Vacatiton Bible schools of the First Baptist and First Methodist churches here took place Friday. Picnics in the four departments of the Methodist school and a commencement program at the Baptist school marked the end of the two weeks' work.

A processional opened the program at Baptist church Friday night and this was followed by a worship periods and flag salute with the assembly taking part. Miss Hazel Kokanour was in charge of the school and 36 teachers assisted.

Each department was given a few minutes in which to demonstrate memory work, Bible drills and relate stories. Craft work exhibits were on display and following the program, the audience viewed work done by the children in the school. This included construction work and various handmade articles.

The school was open to children from 4 to 16 years and there was a daily attendance of 212 with a total enrollment of 260 during the two weeks.

Friday, June 19, the group attended a picnic.

To Expand Program

The major outcome of the Methodist school was the decision to continue in Sunday school work with the expanded program followed during the vacation school, according to Fiske Miles, director.

Each Sunday morning the worship period, teaching hour and assembly will continue for two and one half hours, although those who desire may leave at the close of the regular Sunday school hour, according to Mr. Miles.

In the additional time, there will be dramatics story telling and development of music appreciation.

This new plan will be carried out in the intermediate, junior, primary and beginners departments.

During the first week, there was a total enrollment of 246 boys and girls and an average attendance of 197. There was a faculty of 14 in the school.

Instead of making book-ends, bird-cages and other articles as has been practiced heretofore, groups in the Methodist school painted benches and chairs and made book cases for the departments. Those in the kindergarten made flower gardens and flower boxes, emphasizing a theme of "God in Nature."

Four picnics marked the close of the school Friday. Children in the beginners department met at the church at 10 o'clock and played games and enjoyed a light lunch. Those in the primary department went to the County park at 5:30 o'clock, while boys and girls in the junior department went to the same park at 11:30 o'clock, directly following the final exercises.

Members of the intermediate department enjoyed an outing at the City park at 4 o'clock. Boy Scouts gave special entertainment.

Churches Plan Special Services For Today

Revival Under Way For Local Presbyterians

Rev. Howard C. Walton Will Do Preaching; Rev. Haymes Announces Special Series Of Sermons At M. E. Church

Special services have been announced in several city churches today and members of the Cumberland Presbyterian church are continuing a revival. Rev. Howard C. Walton of Jackson, Tenn. is the evangelist in charge and Tom Scott of Fayetteville, Tenn., directs the music, assisted by Mrs. Scott.

Rev. Walton preaches daily at 10 o'clock in the morning and at 8 o'clock each evening. At the morning service at 11 o'clock today the Rev. Walton is to preach on the subject, "God Is Love" and Mr. Scott will sing as a special solo, "Because He Loves Me so." "The Abundant Life" is to be discussed at the evening hour.

Elected Moderator

Rev. Walton was pastor of the First Cumberland Presbyterian church in Birmingham, Ala., for ten years and was elected moderator of the general assembly of the Cumberland Presbyterian church in Princeton, Ky.

Rev. J. O. Haymes, pastor of the First Methodist church, has announced a series of "Home Builders" sermons for the next six weeks.

The first is to be delivered tonight and has for its theme, "O Promise Me."

Other sermons are "How to Start a Home Right," "Broken Homes," "Delinquent Parents" and "The Eternal Honeymoon."

Special music and readings illustrative of the subjects will be given during the services, according to announcements.

Plan Vesper Services

Members of the First Presbyterian congregation are to attend vesper services at 7 o'clock for the next few weeks. The congregation will meet on the lawn north of the church for a fifty minute service.

Dr. Jack M. Lewis, pastor, is discussing "The Social Teachings of Jesus" and this evening has announced for his theme, "Jesus' Attitude Toward Women."

Miss Margaret Halsell is to play a violin solo.

Rev. R. C. Campbell, pastor of the First Baptist church, is to preach at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Mount Calvary Colored Baptist church. Rev. C. J. McCarty preached there Saturday night at 9 o'clock.

7. All paintings must be shipped without glass, because of transportation regulations.

8. Only one prize will be awarded—$400 cash—but ten honorable mentions will be awarded blue ribbons.

9. The prize picture shall become the property of the Texas Federation of Women's clubs, and be hung in the Art Gallery of permanent headquarters in Austin.

10. Artists will send canvases prepaid to Mrs. O. M. Ballenger, local chairman, Lubbock, not later than October 15, 1931.

11. Notice of artists intention to enter contest must be filed with Mrs. R. F. Lindsay, president, Texas Federation of Women's clubs, Mt. Pleasant, not later than July 1, 1931.

12. The committee reserves the right to withhold any or all prizes at the discretion of judges of award.

The pictures will be exhibited and prizes awarded at the annual convention of the Texas Federation of Women's clubs at Lubbock in November, 1931. Award will not be made for less than twelve entrants.

As a part of her duties Mrs. Ballenger has been asked to select an exhibit hall for these pictures. This probably will not be done until fall, she states. All canvasses will be here several weeks before the convention opens and with these to judge by, it will be easier to select the hall she believes.

Gas Rate Cut To Be Sought

Mayors Of Four West Texas Cities Unite In Attempts To Attain Reduction; Utilities Given Ultimatum

(By Associated Press)

CHILDRESS, June 27.—Mayors of Childress, Memphis, Wellington and Quanah have united in efforts to secure lower gas rates in each of the four cities, and the Northern Texas Utilities company has been given until July 15 to make "satisfactory reductions."

The communication directed to officials of the utility company carried an implied threat that if satisfactory reductions were not made by that date the cities would seek their gas supply from some other source. Each of the city commissions has agreed not accept any rate that is not satisfactory to all.

The ultimatum sent the gas company followed a meeting here in which the mayors discussed city-owned distribution plants. It was brought out at the meeting that gas could be sold to the consumer for 38 or 40 cents under such a plan. The present rate is 67 1-2 cents.

GAS RATE HALVED

McCLEAN, June 27 (AP).—This city's gas rates were cut in half when an injunction to prevent the McLean Gas company from charging more than 30 cents for domestic use was made permanent in district court at Pampa.

The old price of 60 cents was protested by Mayor Jot Montgomery and the city council. The new price was set by the council and a temporary injunction obtained to prevent the gas company from cutting off users who refused to pay the old price.

REDUCTION ASKED

CLARENDON, June 27 (AP).—Mayor W. P. Cagle has addressed letters to the local telephone and gas companies asking for reductions in rates of both utilities in keeping with the present period of low prices.

One Unit Of 40 Acre Hog Plant At Tech Finished

First unit of what is expected to be a 40 acre hog plant for Texas Technological college, has been completed with the fencing and cross-fencing of 12 acres of land on the college farm, Ray C. Mowrey, of the school of agriculture, announced.

There are 17 pens in the 12 acres, the fencing and cross-fencing having cut up the acreage into smaller plots.

"We put the herd in the pens a few days ago," Mr. Mowrey said. "Our herd consists of 94 animals of three breeds, Duroc-Jersey, Poland China and Hampshire.

"The herd is used for both class work and exhibition purposes."

When completed, according to Dean A. H. Leidigh of the school of agriculture, the plant will consist of 40 acres. It has been located in the central part of the college farm to permit of additional growth, if necessary.

Pens for the housing of the animals will permit a still larger growth of the herd without additional acreages.

Rev and Mrs. W. P Jennings and daughters, Grace and Jean Shelley, have returned from Ladonia. Mrs. Jennings has been there for several weeks and was joined about three weeks ago by her daughter, Jean Shelley. Rev Jennings and Miss Grace Jennings went to Ladonia last week.

Anna May Wong Is Back In Hollywood To Play In Talkies This Time

BY HUBBARD KEAVY

HOLLYWOOD—I closed my eyes when I heard Anna May Wong talk and thought it was Ruth Chatterton, English accent and all.

ANNA MAY WONG

Queer combination, this, Los Angeles - born Chinese girl, daughter of a laundryman (who is retired now, thanks to his daughter's help), punctuating her conversation with frequent "Rightos," "My words" and "Fancy thats."

Anna May's back in town, with trunkaful of Paris gowns, to play in American talkies. She recently has appeared in movies in Germany, England and France, an operetta in German in Vienna and a play in London.

Has Tricky Job

WHAT probably will be one of the tricksiest jobs of makeup since "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" will be seen when the picture "Frankenstein" is released.

BELA LUGOSI

Bela Lugosi, in the starring role, will be built up, with padding, to resemble the eight foot superman Mary Goodwin Shelley, wife of poet Percy Shelley, wrote about in 1817.

When Lugosi is made up only his chin and eyes will be visible, grease paint and putty completely hiding the rest of his face. Shoes to which nearly 12 inches have been added will help complete the illusion.

Mrs Shelley's fantastic story concerns the creation by a medical student of a man monster.

You can almost imagine what happens when this ruthless giant gets out to have a little fun.

Peggy's Overworked

IF Peggy Shannon ever gets a day off, she's going to take in a lot of picture shows. She's like the sailor who got behind in his rowing, he was at sea so long.

PEGGY SHANNON

Peggy has been busy making movies since she arrived here five weeks ago. Two days after she came, Clara Bow had her second nervous breakdown. The picture had been started, so Peggy was rushed in to take Clara's featured role.

It sounds simple. But it was complicated, hectic and almost unreal.

She had to take makeup tests, have gowns made and learn dialog.

Miss Shannon was called at 4 one afternoon. She worked nearly all night getting ready. At 10 the next morning she was on the set, ready for her first scene. Often she worked from 10 one morning until 4 the next.

Before that picture was completed, a second—"Silence"—in which she is to be co-featured, was started. Peggy worked for a while on one set in the mornings, changed costumes at noon and went to another set, with a new cast and director in the afternoons.

THE name of the character Jim Thorpe, the Indian athlete, is playing in a serial is Black Crow. But he doesn't know which one!

JOAN BENNETT

Someone discovered Carl Laemmle, jr., the 22-year-old who manages his father's Universal Picture studio, writes notes to himself. It's just his way of reminding himself of things to be done.

Joan Bennett, the divorced mother who is not yet 20, and John Considine, son of the former chain theater owner, a movie executive, are enthusiastic about each other again.

And Hollywood thinks that a Constance Bennett-Joel McRea marriage daily is becoming a stronger possibility.

Anyway, He Meant Well

WILL Rogers tells this on himself:

"The last time he was in Mexico City he decided to test his knowledge of Spanish. His first victim was a priest he had just met. While in the midst of the conversation, a friend interrupted and called him aside. In English he asked:

"'Do you consider it American humor to swear at a priest?'

Will says he made up his mind then to speak English until he learns all the Spanish swear words—so he can avoid them.

And then there's the matter of coat sleeves. They're no longer severe, my no. They flare and are sometimes lined with a contrasting color and they're wide open at the wrist—yes they are.

'The Lawyer's Secret' Is Featured On Movie Menu This Week

Bevy Of Stars To Appear In Picture Here

Clara Bow In "Kick In" Will Be Presented Latter Part Of Week; Western Thriller Now Showing At Palace

INTENSELY real, human and exciting drama is found in "The Lawyer's Secret", which opens a three-day run at the Lindsey today. The cast, including such well known actors as Clive Brook, Charles Rogers, Richard Arlen, Fay Wray and Jean Arthur, brings a vivid presentation of a powerful story to the screen.

"The Lawyer's Secret" is the story of a lawyer's fight to preserve the ethics of his profession and his love for a girl, Fay Wray, by stifling his natural human duty to prevent injustice to an innocent man. Brook plays the part of the lawyer. Arlen, reckless young sailor, is on trial for his life for a crime he did not commit. He nearly pays the supreme penalty because Brook cannot reveal a secret confided to him by Rogers, his client and Fay's brother.

RICHARD ARLEN

New Charles Rogers

Moviegoers will see a new Charles Rogers in "The Lawyer's Secret". He is introduced to serious drama instead of his usual flighty, juvenile roles and for the first time has an opportunity to dispiay his dramatic ability. He appears as a weakling aristocratic playboy in the picture.

Love in Greenwich Village might well be the title of "Up Pops the Devil" comedy-romance adaption of a last year's Broadway stage hit, which will be offered at the Lindsey Wednesday and Thursday.

The story is about the marital difficulties of Norman Foster and Carole Lombard, young writer and his wife. They live in an apartment in "The Village" where young people of many professions gather for refreshment and amusement. They agree they will never succeed if they continue this dip and gin existence, so they plan a renaissance. But the scheme hits a bump when a sugary-voiced southern girl moves into the apartment upstairs. Amusing and near-tragic events result but it all ends happily at the finish.

CAROLE LOMBARD

Others in the cast include Skeets Gallaher, Stuart Erwin and Lilyan Tashman.

Clara Bow Serious

A new and different Clara Bow comes to the screen at the Lindsey Friday and Saturday in "Kick In." Fresh from showings at New York and St. Louis, "Kick In" offers the former "it" girl her first chance at a dramatic and emotional role in the talkies. It is a powerful story of love versus law. It deals with the struggles of an ex-convict, Regis Tooney, to go straight, in spite of the hounding of a vicious detective and the pleading of his underworld friends.

MARY ASTOR

Clara is the motivating force in the story and as the sweetheart of Tooney helps him in his fight against circumstances.

Idol of many American youngsters, Ken Maynard is back again—but this time in his first all-talking western picture, "Fighting Thru". It is the current attraction at the Palace and is another of those "wild and wooly" affairs with the usual run of bad men, sheriffs, gambling, shooting and fighting.

Horse In Cast

Maynard, hero of many silent thrillers, rides his noted white horse Tarzan, in the picture. Naturally the picture is crammed with action. At one time Maynard fights three bandits single handed. And does he win?

"Fighting Thru" continues through tomorrow.

"Benind Office Doors" will be the Tuesday and Wednesday feature at the Palace. The cast is headed by Mary Astor, Robert Ames and Ricardo Cortez. It is another one of those stories in which the conflict between wife and stenographer is predominant.

Ricardo Cortez and Mary Astor appear together in another picture to be shown here this week. It is "White Shoulders", which comes to the Palace Thursday and Friday. Jack Holt also appears in the picture. It is a story of money, love and crime.

LARGE CONSIGNMENT SENT

JUNCTION, June 27 (AP)—The largest single shipment ever to leave Menard, nearest railroad point, was sent by a Junction livestock concern recently. It was 33 carloads of Kimble county wool and weighed more than 750,000 pounds.

At the THEATERS

Here is Charles Rogers who appears in his first serious role in "The Lawyer's Secret", opening today at the Lindsey.

Here is Fay Wray who has a leading part in "The Lawyer's Secret" at the Lindsey.

C. E. Russell Is Expected To Be Successor To Mahoney

C. E. Russell, a member of the faculty of the school of agriculture at Texas Technological college and assistant to C. H. Mahoney, professor of horticulture and head of that department, probably will be promoted to head of the department, Dr. Paul W. Horn, president, says.

"We have not decided on Mr. Mahoney's successor but it probably will be Mr. Russell," Dr. Horn explained.

Professor Mahoney recently resigned to accept a position with another college at a substantial increase in salary. He was also chairman of the city park board of Lubbock.

Von Bulow's 'Memoirs' Gives Picture Of German Diplomacy Prior To War

Statesmen Who Led Germany Into War Are Denounced

THE "Memoirs of Prince von Bulow," covering the years 1897 to 1903, is an unusually enlightening book. Here one of the sanest of German diplomats and statesmen speaks very frankly about Germany's foreign and domestic policies at the turn of the century, and uncovers not a few threads that trace directly to the World War.

To begin with, he draws a very clear picture of Kaiser Wilhelm II. The last Hohenzollern emperor appears as a man who wavered between something approaching genius and downright irresponsibility.

Personally Very Lovable

At times he was far-seeing and mindful of his great responsibilities; at other times he was flighty, almost crack-brained, given to egotistic outbursts and interfering woefully with the work of his ministers. His private character was irreproachable, and he was personally very lovable; but he had a fatal lack of balance, and a congenital inability to keep from listening to the wrong advisors.

As foreign secretary of the empire, von Bulow worked for peace. He explains that Germany's naval building program was not meant as a challenge to England, and never would have been regarded as such if Wilhelm could have been reasonably discreet. Von Bulow's own efforts were constantly directed toward more cordial relations with the British, although he distrusted them and, at times, despised them. He worked for an enduring peace with Russia, feeling that nothing could be more calamitous for Germany than a great continental war.

War Finally Came

Yet that war finally came; and von Bulow is vehement in his denunciation of the men responsible. Bethmann-Holweg he writes down as a blunderer. Austria should never have been given the "blank check." In the summer of 1914, more than at any other time, Germany needed peace. The war was a frightful mistake, and it was not even prosecuted intelligently when it was begun.

So says von Bulow.

For Roosevelt

KAISER Wilhelm II appears as rash, tactless and indiscreet, forever uttering sabre-rattling speeches or writing impulsive notes, some of which escaped the ministerial censorship.

"Theodore Roosevelt, the President of the United States, exercised a quite particular fascination over the Kaiser," Bulow wrote.

"That's my man!" he used to say . . . . He soon began corresponding with Roosevelt very much in the way he did with the czar.

"The kaiser was everlastingly warning Roosevelt against the scheming plans of the Japanese. He was convinced that war between Japan and the United States was unavoidable and imminent," although Bulow was constantly assuring him of the contrary.

"Neurasthenic"

BULOW told Prince Hohenlohe the kaiser was perfectly sane, but neurasthenic.

He held that Germany was involved in the war by inefficient political leadership in 1914, mentioning especially Bethman-Hollweg's ultimatum to Serbia "and his clumsy diplomatic treatment of it."

References to Lord Lonsdale, over which the Englishman threatened suit, are in the American version with the publisher's note inserted in the English edition. The note reads:

"The following text printed in small type contains inaccuracies and certain serious misstatements which call for correction. It is totally untrue that Lord Lonsdale 'stirred up trouble and offense between the kaiser and his English uncle'; or that King Edward VII expressed the views attributed to him; or that Lord Lonsdale was a bankrupt."

Bulow wrote that Edward VII calls Lonsdale "the greatest liar in England."

Historians will find his book—the first of four volumes of his memoirs—extremely valuable. The general reader will also find it well worth dipping into. Its picture of German diplomacy and German court life before the war is fascinating.

The book is published by Little Brown and Co.

Of Tabloids

IN "Penny Dreadful" by Malcolm Ross, Coward McCann, you have a fast moving tale of young love and a struggle between established forces and the tabloids. Tim North, a young newspaper man, has the temerity to fall in love with Nancy Sargent, daughter of the old financier, Louis Sargent. Tim wants to marry but her father will have none of him. In the meantime, through an exciting series of events, the tabloid gets on the financier's trail and a situation alive with possibilities for tragedy and ruin is created. But everything is straightened out in the end and it is discovered that the tabloids have their Achilles' heel. The author has been a newspaper man and knows whereof he writes. Tim has real humor true gusto and joy in life and the struggle between the tabloids and the more conservative papers makes a forceful background.

Red Dictator

STALIN, Russia's man of steel becomes the man of flesh in Isaac Don Levine's biography of the soviet dictator.

Levine sees him as "a big business man," a political boss, imbued with the businesslike spirit of Americanism.

He is not a misfit, as revolutionists so often are, but an executive, whose right hand is a "mailed fist" (his left is so withered it won't open), who "lives, eats and dresses like an American railroad conductor."

Wild Maiden

TIFFANY Thayers "Thirteen Men" had a success of sorts, being a novelty, in that it traced back the life histories of a dozen jurors and the man they condemned, tying them all together.

The idea of his new novel, "Call Her Savage," is not so new, but he develops it through panting episodes of unbridled love. His heroine Nasa is a half-breed love child who gives herself to one white man after another until a redskin finally tames her.

Dyak women urge their husbands, sons and lovers to join in head-hunting expeditions to prove that they are really men of valor.

Health Surveys Over Area Reveal Importance Of Sanitation Methods

Typhoid Germs Are Reported In Watertanks

Towns Over District Making Plans To Put Sanitation Into Effect; Cleaning Up Tourist Camps

DISCOVERY of typhoid germs in drinking water at a Hockley county school and of conditions conducive to typhoid fever elsewhere in this district has accentuated the importance of analyzing water, covering watertanks, and installing sanitary toilets.

James R. Curtis, district sanitarian, reported watertanks at Center school in Hockley county were being cleaned and covered, and flyproof, pit-type toilets were being installed there, following discovery of typhoid germs in the water.

Adopt Ordinances

All Hockley county schools were inspected and samples of their water taken for analysis.

Levelland and Anton have adopted an ordinance requiring all homes not attached to a sewer to build sanitary toilets. About a hundred new ones were installed at Levelland. Changes also were made in Levelland's sewage disposal system on recommendation of the sanitarian, who represents the state health department.

Parmer, Lamb, Hockley and Lubbock counties comprise this district in a public health campaign financed and sponsored by the United States public health service through state and county health departments.

Levelland's Water O. K.

Samples of Levelland's water supply were found satisfactory, Curtis said. The waterworks was inspected there. Water analysis will be made there monthly.

Following general inspections, city-wide cleanups were conducted at Ropesville, Hockley county, and Farwell, Bovina, and Friona, Parmer county. A sanitary public toilet was erected at Ropesville. Trash was collected and hauled from each of the towns.

Tourist camps, ice plants, and ten rural schools were inspected in Parmer county. Some of the tourist camps are replacing waterbuckets with pumps and improved toilets are being built, Curtis said.

Changes Are Made

A general survey was made of sanitation at Littlefield and Amherst in Lamb county. Changes in the sewage system were made at Littlefield on recommendation of the sanitarian.

Curtis also has inspected a swimming pool and tourist camps at Muleshoe in Bailey county.

Last week he passed with Miss Evelyn Richter, district public health nurse, in work at Spring Lake and Olton, Lamb county; Lasbuddy, Parmer county, and Sundown, Hockley county.

The sanitarian expects to work in Lamb county most of this week. Olton has no municipal water-supply and no sewage system. Samples will be taken from windmills selling water there, and installation of sanitary toilets will be recommended, Curtis said.

To Vote Bonds

A $40,000 bond issue for establishment of a sewage system will be voted on at Sudan, Lamb county, about July 12, Curtis said. Sudan owns its water-system.

"An extensive campaign will begin in Lubbock county about the middle of July," the sanitarian said. Rural schools and those in Slaton, Idalou, Monroe, and possibly other communities will be inspected and recommendations made so that conditions will be satisfactory when school opens again.

Pure-milk practices and use of flytraps will be urged throughout the district, Curtis said. Before dairymen can label their milk as a grade-A product, they must be so authorized by a sanitary-officer in a city or county having a standard milk ordinance. Lubbock has such a rule and Littlefield is contemplating adoption of one.

Cattle must be tested for tuberculosis, dairy employes for typhoid, milk for bacteria content, and barns, containers, and other paraphernalia examined. Methods of milking, bottling, and labeling also must be investigated and ruled safe.

Ore Specimen Is Presented Dobie

AUSTIN, June 27 (AP).—J. Frank Dobie, English professor at the University of Texas and author of "Coronado's Children," has been presented with a specimen of ore reported to be from the Lost Nigger mine, about which one of the chapters in Dobie's book is woven.

The ore is the gift of Mrs. Florence Saffarran of San Antonio.

Dobie recently returned from Del Rio, where he reported a great revival of interest in the lost mine since the publication of his book. Many prospectors have renewed their search for the lost vein, he said.

The ore was given Mrs. Saffarran by her father, Lock Campbell, once a conductor on the Southern Pacific. Campbell received the ore from a negro from whom he purchased venison ham. The negro said he knew where plenty more of the ore could be found but could not be located after the ore had been assayed.

Sixty-three varieties of time are being used in various countries throughout the world, daylight saving time not being included in the list.

Indian Lore Of Southwest Given Exemplification In Home Being Erected By Dr. W. C. Holden

Pueblo Style House Nears Completion On Twentieth Street; Embodies Romance Of Early Peoples Of Southwest America

BY BLANCHE E. BEAN
Avalanche-Journal Staff Writer

DREAMS of several years are being crystallized for Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Holden in the erection of a Pueblo style home at 3009 Twenty street and in this building much of the couple's knowledge of Indian lore and of the history of the Southwest has an exemplification.

The house is now being completed and will be ready for occupancy in about a month, according to Mrs. Holden, who is overseeing much of the work this summer while her husband is in New Mexico and Colorado with a class of archaeology from Texas Technological college perfecting his knowlelge of the early American people. He is a member of the college history faculty.

No Straight Lines

There are no straight lines in this house, which is built of adobe bricks and plaster. Simplicity and informality, characteristic of the Indian pueblo, are observed in arrangement and in materials. Inside and out the finish is to be rough and of a dull color common to houses of the early Southwest. The entire structure is low and wide and surrounded by a wall which is in reality an integral part of the place.

The house front on Twentieth street facing north and entrance is near the center of the front through a porch that is partially covered and supported by the heavy beams that are used throughout. Across the face of the dwelling, project beams, which extend through the house and are visible in the ceiling of the living room. These same beams form a line across the back of the house.

Terrace Effect Repeated

The terrace effect which is repeated inside and out has an illustration in the walls which surround a part of the porch, sloping from the walls to the entrance in uneven curves.

Points of interest on the interior are characteristic of the pueblo. A fireplace in Mr. Holden's study is built across one corner of the room and over it is the niche so often found in houses of this type. Typically enough, this hollow is to be painted bright blue with a scalloped edge and in here will be placed the hand-carved figure of a saint. Another niche in the dining room will be similarly treated.

A window opening from the study on to the porch will be covered with a wooden grill, the columns having been carved in a conventionalized yucca design. Above these is the head of the Indian thunder bird and below the grill, carving will represent tail feathers and feet.

Has Carvings

This same type of grill will be used over a glass panel in the front door and an opposite wooden panel has been carved with native animals; a jackrabbit, buffalo, coyote, and antelope.

In building their homes during early days, it was typical of the Indian that he scooped out hollows in the side of his home and made storage space. This principle has been followed in providing a niche for the telephone in a hall of the Holden home. And over the cupboard that holds the box there is to hang a slab of wood carved with symbols of these primitive people.

Other Traits Observed

Other traits of the Indians have been observed. Floors in the house are at different levels, walls have a finish that looks as though it might have been applied by squaws with their crude instruments and hands, corners are rounded, heavy beams support the roof and an opening between living room and dining room is wider at the top than at the bottom.

This too, came from a characteristic of Pueblo houses and is founded upon necessity, Mrs. Holden explains.

Indian women did much of the work in their homes and often carried heavy loads of wood and other provisions inside. To accomodate these loads it was necessary for doors to be wide at the top, yet this extra width was not needed at the base. For this reason, the entrances were so fashioned.

Another feature that is repeated in the house is the zigzag line symbolizing clouds. Carvings about doors and built-in furniture carry this emblem.

Patio Is Beauty Spot

Openings from living room and kitchen of the house are on a deep patio which is to be the beauty spot of this home. Near the center of this space is a cistern into which rain water is to drain from the roof. The principal of balance through informality has been repeated in poles which stand above the cistern and from which a bucket is to be suspended.

Across the back of the house is a narrow porch, the ceiling of which is covered with pine slabs from which the bark has not been removed. The terrace effect will be repeated in the grass-covered floor of the patio and somewhere at the back of the house will hang an old ox yoke that Mrs. Holden has preserved because of its significance in a garden such as this house provides.

At one side, entrance to the patio is gained through a garage, which is a part of the house; at the other side there is a solid wooden door leading through the wall.

Brands Displayed

Here, again, Dr. Holden will have an illustration of his love of the West. Ranch brands of the section and other crude designs will be carved over this door, which will have a natural wood finish that is aged through a preserving process. All woodwork in the house is to have this natural finish.

Picturesque features of the Indian pueblo have been used throughout the house but modern ideas have been added to make the place more liveable for twentieth century people. Bedrooms are provided with closets which are divided and fitted with shelves and drawers. The kitchen will be like many modern kitchens and Indian designs will appear only in a few ornamental corners on cubbards and shelves. Windows, though low and deep set, are plentiful to give light and air.

Furnishings are to be typical of the Southwest and the Indian and eventually the Holdens dream of having hand-built furniture of a type to correspond to the design of their home.

Although Mrs. Holden does not now know the cost of this home, she feels sure that it will be moderate. Adobe bricks were fashioned of dirt dug from the patio and from underneath the house and these formed a bulk of construction material. The house is expected to have other characteristics found in primitive dwellings of this type for adobe houses are traditionally cool in summer and warm in winter.

Smuggle Celery

Bootleggers Have New Commodity

EL PASO, Tex., June 27 (AP).—Good American stuff! Just brought across the river! It's celery, the latest item to be set down on smugglers' lists in this vicinity.

Since a recent order of the Mexican government, banning importation of celery from the United States, price of the plant in Juarez, opposite El Paso in Mexico, has jumped 25 per cent, and the celery bootlegger has become a problem for the authorities.

Diners in Juarez who like celery have continued to demand it, and, despite the dangers attendant on smuggling, the smugglers and their representatives have undertaken to supply the cafe owners, since only a small quantity is grown in Mexico.

The plant was banned, along with beets, several flowers, straw and rhubarb, according to Manuel Alcazar, chief inspector in charge of agricultural defense in Juarez, because of the European corn borer.

Student Union Building At Texas University Is Planned

AUSTIN, June 27 (AP).—Construction of an $800,000 Student Union building at the University of Texxas probably will be started in January, according to John A. McCurdy, executive secretary of the University Ex-Students' Association. The building will be the third of a group of buildings at the university partially financed by students and alumnae.

The Student Union building will contain an auditorium, club rooms, lounging rooms and a cafeteria. The board of regents has voted an additional $250,000 to be applied to the construction of the cafeteria rather than build a separate building for the unit.

The building will be located on the site of the old women's gymnasium, which will be razed in the fall.

Other buildings in the program include the Gregory Gymnasium and the recently completed women's gymnasium.

Campaign For Testing Of Cows In Dawson Is Planned

LAMESA, June 27 (Special)—A campaign for tubercular testing of milk cows will get under way soon in Dawson county, according to those in charge. Although it is reported that there are no more tubercular cows in the county than perhaps in any other county, this measure is being taken to raise the present high standard of dairy herds here, it is said.

Dawson county has about 12,000 dairy cows, according to the last survey made. The dairy educational work done and the location of West Texas' only powdered milk factory here has given cause to the process of weeding out of all milk that are unfit and to replace them with the best cows, both from the standpoint of quality production and health.

A slogan for the campaign is "Make Dawson County Products Sought for quality Sake."

Dawson County Man Cuts Egg Production Cost To 2 Cents

LAMESA, June 27.—N. L. Dean of the Midway community 10 miles southeast of Lamesa claims to have a record poultry flock.

By feeding skim milk and plenty of green feed, he states that he has been able to produce eggs at the low cost figure of two cents per dozen. This gives Dean about nine cents profit per dozen on eggs on the Lamesa market, he states.

Dean has 108 hens in his flock.

Leading Insect Fighter Wins Capper Farm Prize

Dr. L. O. Howard Is Recipient Of High Honors For Work

(By NEA Serv
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 27.—Dr. Leland Ossian Howard, called "the St. Patrick of the United States" for his work in insect control, has been awarded the 1931 Capper award for the most outstanding benefaction to agriculture.

This award of $5000 and a gold medal, presented by Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas, could be awarded to few more deserving men than Dr. Howard. It is estimated that his research in insect control has saved American farmers more than $500,000,000 annually.

Dr. Howard, formerly chief of the U. S. Department of Agriculture Department of Entomology, was one of the first two men to realize the destruction insects were wreaking on American crops.

Victor Over Many Insects

Today, nearing the age of 74, he can look back with pride on his department.

This quiet man, who demands nothing but results, and whose appearance marks him as a scientist of the first water, has been the general of an army of fighting [illegible] for years. In that time he has scored such notable victories as those over the Hessian fly, Japanese beetle, sugar-cane moth-borer, pink bollworm, clover midge, mosquito, house fly and hundreds of other insects.

Dr. Howard's other interest, in addition to plant entomology, is medical entomology. Holding an M. D. degree, he was always interested in the spread of diseases by insects. His research in thise line caused him to investigate mosquitoes and house flies. As a result, a campaign against these two insects was started by him, which resulted in educating the public in the danger of the spread of yellow fever, malaria and other diseases by these insects.

Under his direction, too, first experiments in battling insects with airplanes were instituted. He directed the movements of planes in spreading insecticides over infested fields. This branch of entomology has enlarged considerably in the past few years and is being used in battling the cotton boll-weevil and other pests.

Dr. Howard is probably better informed on insects than any other man in the country. He has written more than 800 books and papers on them, and is a member of more than 20 scientific societies which deal with entomology.

For his work in insect control, Dr. L. O. Howard, former chief of the U. S. Department of entomology, has received the 1931 Capper award of $5000 and a gold medal, donated by Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, for the most outstanding aid to agriculture.

New Outlets For Panhandle Wheat Are Being Sought

(By The Associated Press)
AMARILLO, June 27. — Small wheat farmers of the Panhandle country are looking for new outlets for their grain, discouraged from placing it on the market at present low prices.

In Hardeman and Childress counties and other sections that are not generally considered as wheat producing areas, but where wheat was planted for winter pasture, much of the crop is being cut and baled for hay. Especially are dairy farmers, who have considerable need for roughage, adopting this plan.

It is estimated that five or six tons of hay can be cut from one acre. The objection has been made that by some that cheaper hay can be grown, but considering the winter pasture benefits, county agents generally say the undertaking is wise.

Small farmers in other sections of the Panhandle and South Plains are planning to feed their wheat to livestock and poultry.

E. R. Eudarly, special county agent in Floyd county, has expressed the belief that farmers can realize 65 cents a bushel for wheat and about 54 cents a bushel for barley by feeding it to hogs. He recommends buying feeder pigs weighing from 50 to 75 pounds. He is furnishing farmers of his county with balanced rations for feeding projects.

Scattered feeding projects throughout the Panhandle last year brought reports of prices that doubled the market for grain.

Movement Of Record Plains Wheat Crop Under Way Now

South Plains Counties Are Busy Hauling Grain To Market; Grain Inspections Are Started Here

SCORES of farmers with trucks and truck owners from all over the South Plains were engaged the past week in hauling the record breaking wheat crop of the Panhandle-Plains area to market as combines poured a golden stream of dark grain from their wide-mouth jaws into waiting machines.

The wheat harvest is now in full blast with the hum of the combine being heard on every hand as the golden grain is being mowed down.

In Hale, Crosby and Floyd counties the work is at its peak. In the other counties of the South Plains, wheat harvest is not as extensive because of the smaller acreages. However the work is well under way in Lubbock, Hockley, Lamb, Lynn, Dawson, Garza and Dickens counties. Bailey county will have a larger production this year as farmers of west Castro county send their crop to Muleshoe or Lariat for shipment to the gulf.

Elevators Stay Open

Elevators in Hale Center, Abernathy and Plainview were open day and night to receive grain. North of Plainview, at Kress, Tulia and Happy, the same condition existed later in the week. Floydada and Lockney were busy, too.

Along the Fort Worth and Denver northwest from Plainview, wheat had hardly begun to move from the farms to elevators and into railroad cars for shipment, until after the middle of the week.

Up to Tuesday Rankin Switch, 10 or 12 miles west of Plainview, was the only station on the Denver to ship a car of wheat for inspection at Plainview, J. B. Wallace, inspector, said.

The two federal grain inspection points on the South Plains, Lubbock and Plainview, were busy. At Lubbock R. R. Stuard, inspector, has a chemist, W. Fix of Dallas, testing wheat for protein content. Plainview has two chemists, the Panhandle Laboratories and the Harvest Queen mills both having laboratories. Inspector Wallace at Plainview anticipates around 4,000 cars for inspection this year.

Outlook Good For Yields In Cotton, Grains

Four Counties Said To Be Well Prepared; Farmers Have Worked Fields In Excellent Manner

By J. SAM LEWIS
Avalanche-Journal Staff Writer

COTTON and grain sorghum crops west of Lubbock are said by farmers to be in the best possible condition at this time, with very little trouble from hot winds and with rain by the first week in July, there should be no serious damage to crops.

Fields are remarkably clean of weeds. A trip over Hockley, Hale, Lamb and Bailey counties indicates for the most part farmers have worked over their ground in good shape this spring.

Corn Shows Up Good

Corn varies in height from three or four inches to nearly knee high. The leaves all have a good color and there is every indication of a healthy growth throughout the section.

Grain sorghums are in about the same condition as corn, as far as height and general condition shows. Several fields of sudan, west of Lubbock on highway 24, have headed out. Many fields of grain sorghums are six to twelve inches high.

Cotton Looks Healthy

Cotton stalks look healthy. Most fields have from five to six to eight and ten leaves or more. Stalks appear to be well formed. Farmers have sledded out the weeds.

Some farmers the past week have begun to chop cotton. Scores of women were seen in fields during a 200 mile trip, chopping out stalks.

There is a good underground moisture this season. Farmers for that reason are inclined to believe that rain coming within the next ten days will be in plenty of time before real suffering for lack of moisture begins.

So far but little replanting has been reported. North of Anton several strips were reported hailed out and had to be replanted. From over the section other small, scattered areas, especially in Hale county, have had touches of hail.

Little Damage Reported

Winds in one or two instances have been reported as having blown out crops. Drifting sands in some of the sandier soils has covered up crops in a few instances.

Native pastures are just a little dry. Lakes and low places have had some moisture right along this spring and the native grass in these places is in good condition.

Nearly all the farmers of this section have planted small blocks of certified cotton seed. In the 15 counties comprising the South Plains it is estimated between 40 and 50 cars of certified or pure bred seed was sold to cotton farmers.

Bankers of Lamb county financed farmers who purchased up to 10 or 12 bushels of seed of standard type. Most gin communities decided upon one type of seed and all blocks used that one breed.

Farm gardens are in excellent condition. Vegetables are growing and prospects for late gardens are good.

Cotton Flea Hopper Found In Southeast And East Areas

COLLEGE STATION, June 27 (AP)—That insect with the undignified name but extremely destructive tendencies—the cotton flea hopper—has been abroad in the land.

At least, it has been found in several southeast and east Texas counties, F. L. Thomas, chief of the entomology division of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, has reported.

"Both young and adult cotton flea hoppers," said Mr. Thomas' report, "have been found in all fields examined in Brazos, Burleson and Madison counties. As a result of the presence of these insects there is some shedding of very small squares, but in no case has the injury been found to be severe."

"In this section there is considerable 'crazy top' cotton, or plants with curled, malformed leaves. This condition is probably due partly to thrips and other factors. The main bud being frequently killed, a bushy type of plant results."

Who Wouldn't Cry?

Man Gets Paid For Sale 20 Years Ago

(By NEA Service)
KNOXVILLE, June 27.—Twenty years ago George Yoder sold John H. Davis, a neighbor, some land. Both men paced off the area and judged it to be 12 acres. Davis paid Yoder according to the rough survey.

Just recently Davis had the land surveyed and found it to contain fourteen acres. He walked into the office of his lawyer, gave him $100, and told him to turn it over to Yoder.

When Yoder was given the money he sat down and cried. He said, after his cry: "I have no legal claim on the money. I had forgotten all about the land trade. And I didn't know there was any man as honest as Davis."

"ONE WAY TO SAVE"

PADUCAH, June 27 (AP).—H. J. Wise, Cottle county farmer, lost a $10 bill and some valuable papers while planting a crop a year ago. He found the papers and the money a few days ago while plowing in the same field. He took the bill to a bank and exchanged it for a new one.

"That's one way to save your money," Wise observed.

Arkansas' Once Common Razorbacks Are Now Scarce And Valuable Species

(By Associated Press)
ARKADELPHIA, Ark., June 27.—The razorback hog apparently is going to rate a place in the hall of fossils in a few years.

It is no longer a common animal—even in Arkansas, where it was supposed to have been domiciled forever—but is now much sought as a rare species for zoos and collectors of odd strange and curious things.

The regular old Arkansas razorback hog actually commands a premium and is worth more in dollars and cents than the best corn fed specimens of pure-bred swine.

S. E. Simonson and Charles Taylor, of Gourdon, Ark., have located nine of the old time razorbacks on the farm of Claude Seamons, of Vaden, in Clark county. These they brought to Arkadelphia, where they attracted much attention as curiosities.

Taking their name from the once plentiful razorback, the University of Arkansas football team had to import a live animal from Texas last year when one was needed for a mascot.

This species of hog is bristly, grizzly and fierce looking. It stands high and is built for speed. It is said that pioneers in Arkansas preferred the razorback because it was able to outrun wild animals which infested the state in early days. They are hardy and survive the most severe winter without being fed by the owner.

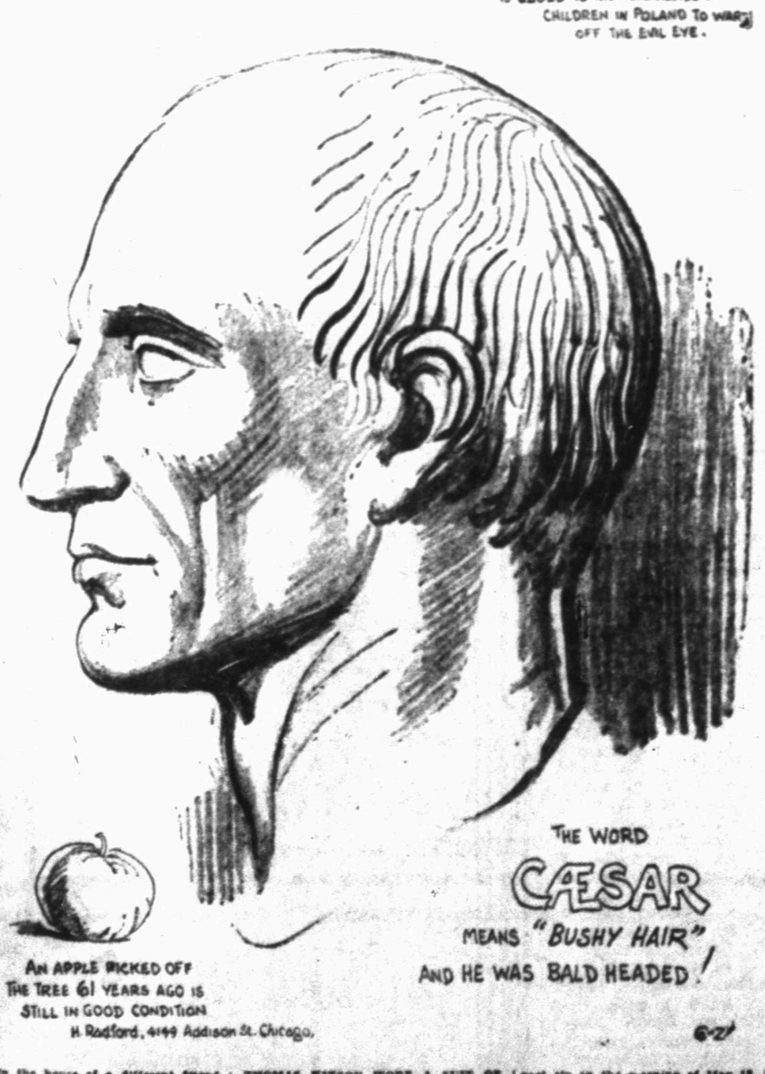

Before the species became almost extinct, razorbacks ran in droves in the lowland areas along rivers and streams, living in the canebrakes where they often became wild and ferocious. They possess great tusks which they use when pressed in close quarters and have been known to tear hunting dogs to pieces in mortal combat.

Sportsmen frequently visit Arkansas seeking a supply of the animals for use in stocking game preserves. They are hard to find however, because farmers and livestock men have long since stopped raising hogs of uncertain pedigree.

EXPLANATION OF LAST SUNDAY'S CARTOON
THE CAMPANILE OF SAN MARCO—STRUCK BY LIGHTNING 40 TIMES

My statement about the remarkable record of the famous campanile of San Marco in Venice as a target for lightning is based on information contained in Relations Stories, issued by the Commission for Preservation of Historical Monuments in Italy. Between the time of its erection on site and its reconstruction in 1329 the tower was struck by lightning and set on fire 42 times. In 1329 the architect Mortagnesi replaced the wooden summit of the tower with a marble arrow. In the century following 23 strokes of lightning were recorded in the same spot. And between 1429 and 1902 the campanile was struck by lightning 25 times.

The campanile, with the golden angel perched on its summit, is the most conspicuous landmark of the city of the doges.

THE EMPEROR HELIOGABALUS

The Emperor Heliogabalus, who assumed the purple of a Roman Emperor at the age of 14, and was assassinated after ruling less than four years. (204-222) is the holder of the record in gluttony and unparalleled revelry and debauchery of all time. I told in my sketch of his daily dinner costing 300,000 sesterces, equal to about $260,000 in purchasing value at the present time. It is dinner consisted of a minimum of 22 courses, and each course taken in the house of a different friend. The other purveyors of this imperial boy's follies indeed transcend belief. He rowed on reservoirs filled with costly wines, his fish pond was filled with attar of roses, the lions of his menagerie were fed on peacocks' and nightingales' tongues, parrot brains and pheasants. History rightly considers this mere youth the greatest whoopee maker in history.

THOMAS KITSON WORE A SUIT OF WOOL SHEARED 6 HOURS BEFORE

Thomas Kitson, founder of a woolen mill in Stroudsburg, Pa., during his lifetime gave to the world a record of speed and workmanship in the textile industry. In the amazing time of six hours and four minutes the fleece of six sheep was transformed into a finished suit of up-to-date clothing worn by Mr. Kitson. At half-past six on the morning of May 18, 1898, shearers handed the wool to the sorters, who started it through the eighteen processes of manufacture. At ten o'clock the cloth was given to the tailors, who finished the suit and delivered it to Mr. Kitson shortly after noon.

The Oil Situation And Us

ASIDE from a natural interest in an economic condition which is dealing widespread misery throughout Texas and its neighboring states, Lubbock and the South Plains have another interest in the oil situation. This city and section must—and probably do—realize that until the present puzzle is adequately solved, there cannot possibly be any appreciable effort made to develope the petroleum potenitalities of this area.

Oil men intelligent enough to form and operate great companies at a profit are frank to admit that they have no solution to the riddle.

Bankers and financiers, whose business it is to evolve plans that will pay dividends, make the same admission.

All most of us know is that the oil industry, as hard hit as in agriculture, must have a Moses to lead it back to the paths of prosperity or the financial pinch will be more widespread and greater.

Conservative estimates are that the East Texas field will produce anywhere from one to ten billion barrels of oil before the last rig is hauled down. Oil men agree that the East Texas field could produce this nation's demand in oil for over a period of from five to ten years—if all other American fields were shut down and no new ones brought in.

We may not be thinking much about the oil situation, due to the fact that the industry is not now with us.

But we have the future to think of and an interest in what this territory may some day do in the way of oil production. From that light the present deplorable condition of the petroleum industry strikes close to home.

Practical Health Problems

ACUTE SINUSITIS

Office Nurse: "Mr. A. to see you, Doctor. He complains of an awful cold and headache."

Doctor: "Send him into my office.—Good morning, Mr. A., you seem to have a cold."

Patient: "Yes, Doctor. I've had a lot of colds, but have never had one just like this one."

Doctor: "How is this cold different from the others?"

Patient: "Well, it lasts longer, and for four or five days my cheeks have been aching, and at times it seemed like a toothache. My nose is all stopped up, and when I stoop over, my head hurts something awful."

Doctor: "You probably have an infection in your sinuses from this cold. Did you ever have sinusitis before?"

Patient: "Doctor, what is sinusitis?"

Doctor: "Sinusitis is an inflamation of the lining of your sinuses."

Patient: "What do you mean by sinus?"

Doctor: "Sinuses are cavities within certain bones of the face and skull. These cavities are lined by a mucous membrane similar to that lining the nose. All the sinuses communicate with the nose by small openings."

Patient: "How does one get sinusitis from a cold?"

Doctor: "It happens this way: One has a cold. This causes a swelling of the mucous membrane of the nose. The inflamation and swelling spread through the openings into the sinuses and cause swelling of the mucous membranes in the sinuses. A swollen and inflamed mucous membrane always secretes more mucous than when normal. If the swelling continues, it closes the small openings into the sinuses and the mucous cannot drain out. It accumulates and the infection present causes it to form into pus and we have a frank sinusitis. The pain is caused by the swelling and pressure from accumulated secretions."

Patient: "You say I have sinusitis?"

Doctor: "Yes, our examination reveals that you have."

Patient: "How could I have prevented it?"

Doctor: "Well, first you should try to avoid getting colds. Be careful of unnecessary exposures. After you get the cold, it is possible in most cases to prevent the sinusitis. A simple cold is not apt to cause sinusitis. In every case of severe "cold in the head" as we say, the patient should consult his physician. He will be able to prescribe for him, both for his general condition and locally in the nose. Much pain and worry can be prevented, and much less time lost by early and proper treatment of the cold.

Patient: "Doctor, you say treatment will prevent most cases of sinusitis, why will it not prevent all cases?"

Doctor: "That is a good question. There are two or three reasons. First, there are certain types of bacteria that invade the sinuses in spite of all treatment. Influenza is a good and frequent example of this type. Again, some people have abnormal noses, which prevent proper treatment and which seem to invite infection. A crooked septum or partition in the nose may block normal breathing space, even when one doesn't have a cold."

Patient: "Is this sinusitis more frequent here in Lubbock than elsewhere?"

Doctor: "Yes, and no. If we compare with the lower warmer climates, especially along the southern sea coasts, we certainly have more sinusitis. If we compare with similar climates to ours here, with high altitude and especially with sudden and large fluctuations in temperature as we have here, we find no more sinusitis here than in such similar localities."

Patient: "How am I to get rid of sinusitis?"

Doctor: "Many cases will clear in a few days even if untreated. Many more will clear by simply keeping the nose open by proper treatment, as I have told you, so that the secretions can drain. But any case that gives severe pain, or any case that lasts over two or three weeks should be irrigated. It is a simple procedure and attended with very little pain to wash the secretions from the involved sinuses. They may require washing several times, before they are well. If the sinusitis is due to crookedness in the nose, this may have to be corrected before it gets well."

Patient: "What happens if the sinuses do not get well in two or three weeks or if they are not irrigated as you just mentioned?"

Doctor: "They are apt to become chronic. Then the simple acute sinusitis becomes a troublesome chronic sinusitis."

Patient: "I sure don't want to have to put up with this trouble very long. I have had my cold two weeks now, Doctor."

Doctor: "In most instances we should have an x-ray taken to determine the condition of all the sinuses, then we are better able to determine the proper procedure in treatment. We shall x-ray your sinuses, Mr. A., and when we view the pictures we shall decide what should be done in your case."

Patient: "Very well, Doctor."

If a man's face is his fortune some of us are in debt.

Today's One-Minute Sermon

And he said, The things which are impossible with men are possible with God.—St. Luke, xviii, 27.

Apparently Are Agreed

BY CHARLES F. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 27.—While no definite authority can be quoted for such an assumption Washington generally regards President Hoover's announcement in his recent Indianapolis speech, of an "American plan" of economic development consisting simply in "giving the American people a chance," and Matthew Woll's "warm-blooded plan of democratic idealism to meet the cold-blooded Communist five-year plan" as intentionally complementary.

Matthew Woll

Anyway, it is a coincidence that Mr. Hoover's address was delivered and the Woll suggestion "released" to the press on the same day, very much as if the labor leader had timed his publicity to synchronize with the presidential utterance.

It perhaps also is noteworthy that the Woll proposal stresses the theory, so often emphasized by Mr. Hoover, of the necessity for the nation to solve its economic problems without political government's interference.

Whatever interpretation may be placed upon the simultaneous broadcasting of the president's speech and publication of the Woll program, the two obviously do dovetail to a nicety—the speech clearly placing upon the American people the responsibility of working out their own economic salvation; the labor official, at precisely the right juncture, submitting a scheme by which he believes they can do it.

Briefly put, writing as acting president of the National Civic federation (Elihu Root, honorary president) to Chairman James W. Gerard of the federation's industrial inquiry commission, Mr. Woll advocates a conference representing the country's every class of citizenship to "ascertain and evaluate essential economic and industrial factors, estimate our probable and normal industrial growth, determine the tendency of new fields of activity, and seek coopera tion for the promotion of industrial balance."

Possibly further to the point is the fact that one of Mr. Hoover's cabinet members, Secretary of Labor William N. Doak, is the civic federation's honorary vice president, and his name appears on the stationary on which the Woll proposition was circulated—implying tacit administration approval of it, many folk think.

"Why," I asked Editor-Manager Chester M. Wright of the International Labor News service, of which Mr. Woll is president and through which his letter to Mr. Gerard was made public, "would a conference of the nature outlined be an improvement upon such a gathering of large employers as was summoned by Mr. Hoover at the beginning of the present depression, or, on the workers' side, than a convention of the A. F. of L., for example.

"It would be immensely broader," answered Editor Wright.

"An employers' conference represents only one industrial group. An A. F. of L. convention represents another. Assembling separately, they have no opportunity for an exchange of ideas.

"A joint meeting would be far more illuminating Agriculture also requires representation—and banking and large and small merchandising; every industrial and business element, in short. Many of them already have organizations, and thus could select their spokesmen quite readily. To those lacking organization an incentive would be furnished to effort it, greatly to their own advantage, especially to the advantage of our large and particularly helpless class of so-called white collar workers."

"With a deliberative body of this sort permanently established and holding regular meetings," continued the labor editor, "no group in the country would be denied a fair chance to acquaint all the others with its own class' difficulties and necessities, and a spirit of mutual understanding and helpfulness assuredly would be fostered."

Plenty of conclusions undoubtedly would be arrived at, but would there be any machinery for making them compulsorily effective?—or would the force of public opinion be relied on to make them so?

"My opinion is," replied Editor Wright, "that, were compulsion resorted to, the plan inevitably must fail."

And he pointed to a paragraph in the Woll letter:

"It * * * is the conviction of organized labor in America that political government, valuable above price in its field, lacks the competency to govern industry," which "must find and apply its own measures of guidance * * * through correlations of its own essential parts or divisions. The age of onemans control has passed. If that were not true one man control would have prevented our present disastrous experience.

Among adverse critics of the Woll plan, Executive Secretary Benjamin C. Marsh of the People's Lobby, the militant political reform organization headed by Prof. John Dewey of Columbia, sums up his objections most succinctly.

"An industrial conference," he says, "might accomplish good results if it were not for our present systems of ground rentals and of bank charges for the use of credits. These two systems operate wholly independently of industry and their levies upon the country reach a total between 12 and 14 billions annually.

"Against such a handicap no industrial readjustment can make much headway in the direction of relieving depression."

BEGIN HERE TODAY

BERYL BORDEN, secretly in love with TOMMY WILSON, delays his elopement with her half-sister, IRENE EVERETT, but fails to convince him that it is his duty to finish college.

Irene wants to be a radio singer. She secures an audition and Beryl goes to the studio with her. While waiting, Beryl croons melodies at a piano. A director hears and is charmed by her voice. He gives her a test and offers a contract which elates the girl but her joy is short-lived for Irene fails and the family blame Beryl. Irene promises to elope with Tommy but his aunt dies and the marriage is postponed.

Beryl's debut is a success. She tries to forget her hopeless love by going to gay parties with the wealthy PRENTISS GAYLORD. When Beryl becomes ill Irene tries to win Prentiss' interest. He is deceived by her pose of childish innocence.

Tommy manages his uncle's theater and while he considers this job secure he lacks confidence in his uncle because of money lost in an unwise investment. Tommy is wondering about this investment when his uncle enters the room.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXV

"Well, what do you think?" Uncle George exclaimed to Tommy as the latter stared inquiringly. It disconcerted the older man a trifle, but he wasn't going to let Tommy see that.

Uncle George sat on the bed, put his hat down beside him, and waited for Tommy to speak. Maybe, he told himself, he only imagined that Tommy's manner showed he was suspicious. Well, he couldn't suspect the truth, for that had been a dark secret, but he appeared to have guessed at something that put a question in his eyes. Better to let Tommy speak out. That way he could get a line on the lad's ideas. No use getting the boy sore after that bum investment he'd made for him.

This was a sudden decision not to throw the big news at Tommy all at once. Such had been his intention when he entered the house, so anxious to get the telling over that he'd hurried upstairs without waiting to leave his hat in the hall.

Tommy's expression said as plain as words: "I'd like to know what you're up to."

"Think of what?" Tommy countered, scowling at him.

His uncle laughed uneasily. "You'd never guess," he answered. "And before I tell you I want you to know something of what it means to me—this thing that has happened."

"What's happened?" Tommy cut in sharply.

"Don't be in a hurry," Mr. Hoffman advised. "Just listen a minute. I want you to see matters the way they appear to me."

Tommy would not be silent. "So there are two sides to what's happened, are there?"

"Well, maybe," his uncle agreed, and added with a touch of smugness: "I don't want you to think I haven't considered you in the matter."

"Yes?" Tommy's inflection was full of doubt.

"Yes, I have. I'll do something for you, but I had to think of myself. Why, this is what I've been working for, for the past 10 years! It settles everything for me. I can quit now—I'll have enough."

Tommy eyed him narrowly. With what money he'd got from his wife's estate Uncle George should have plenty, the young man was thinking.

"I'm not so young as I used to be," his uncle was saying. "I've tried for years to sell the building but the town's been overbuilt and didn't need a thing—except a postoffice. I knew that had to come and I knew I had the site for it—the only site in town—so it was only a question of getting the postoffice."

He was rambling and Tommy knew it.

"I've got a date in a few minutes," the young man said, "and you know I've got no time to lose."

"All right," Hoffman agreed, and nerved himself to come out with his news. "Here it is. I've sold the theater."

Tommy's jaw was not the kind that drops open, but he did look as blank as a stucco wall for a minute. Here was one catastrophe that he had never thought possible even though his trust in his uncle was not deep. Instinctively he looked for the dark side where George Hoffman was concerned.

A number of times since his uncle had persuaded him to put his money in bad securities Tommy had thought of what Beryl said about Mr. Hoffman that night she broke up the elopement with Irene by her crazy attempt at kidnaping. He hadn't differed with her much then, though not admitting it, and if there'd been a time since when he had forgotten to be cautious with his uncle it was because his mind was preoccupied with Irene.

"Now about the theater?" he asked hoarsely.

"It will be torn down, naturally," his uncle replied.

Tommy gulped. "And you're not moving to some other building? You're giving up the Palace . . . altogether?"

"The Palace has had its day," the older man declared. "It was the finest show house on the North Shore once upon a time. But the industry and the times have moved too fast for it. It had to go."

"Yeah?" Tommy retorted. "Yet you thought it had enough juice left in it to be worth the sacrifice of a college education. You talked a lot about keeping it abreast of the times—giving snappy shows to make up for uncomfortable seats and all that sort of thing. And all the time you had it on the market for sale. Just playing me along, were you? You knew you couldn't get a show man who was worth his salt to come out here and handle it."

Mr. Hoffman bristled. "I told you I'd take care of you," he rejoined indignantly.

Tommy jeered at him. It was rash, but honest. "You know where I am with Irene," he accused. "You know I took this job because she wanted me to. Well, what am I going to do now? No job, no money—"

"She'll wait for you," Mr. Hoffman encouraged, and Tommy felt like punching him on the jaw.

"While I do what?" he mocked.

Again Hoffman bristled. "You're damned impertinent," he declared in self-defense. "Don't forget, young fellow, that the Hoffmans have done a lot for you."

"Is that so?" Tommy retorted. "Well, just you remember that my Aunt Emma wasn't a Hoffman until she married you. And she did a lot more for you than she did for me with money that wasn't Hoffman money, either."

His uncle got to his feet, red in the face. "If that's how you feel about it," he answered hotly, "I guess you won't want the job I've got for you, but don't come whining around to me when you see what a fool you've been."

"I'll come whining around to you when I've more good money to throw after bad," Tommy told him.

His uncle strode out of the room, muttering something about ungrateful puppies.

Tommy grabbed his hat and left the house. He did not go directly to the Everetts' but walked a few blocks out of his way to cool off before seeing Irene.

He couldn't cool so he gave up that attempt and went to tell her his troubles. Irene was delighted—not delighted because Tommy had such bad luck because she'd found it out before making a decision between her two suitors.

"Oh, Tommy, that's too bad!" Irene said, and the way she said it was like a dash of cold water in Tommy's face. What came next was worse than he had feared. "Now we can't be engaged any longer!"

"Engaged!" he repeated. "Say, Irene, we're going to be married in less than a week. You can't break this off like a mere engagement!"

"Don't be silly," Irene protested. "How could we go one with it? You can't support me now."

Tommy made a tremendous effort and swallowed his pride. "Once

Don't Take Them Too Seriously!

Rodney Dutcher Says National Committees Are Only Trying To Attract Attention In Hot Weather

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, June 27.—One of the surest signs that summer is here is to be seen in the fact that the wheels of the Republican and Democratic publicity mimeographs are creaking a bit. It's a way wheels have in Washington during the summertime and those particular wheels serve as the best barometer because they are ordinarily so much busier than any others.

DUTCHER

There is no legitimate reason why anyone should have to read about politics during the heat instead of devoting attention to Cornelius Vanderbilt, Peter Arno and Starr Faithfull, so don't you go paying any mind to these outbursts of the two major party national committees unless that's your idea of warm weather entertainment.

But you can depend on those mimeographs to creak right along and sometimes even to break into a screech in the effort to keep you attracted.

Already you can hear the Republican machine in a shrill shriek, as if convinced that the best summer tactics lie in the hurling of hard names and hard words which are bound to draw at least passing notice. And the Democratic machine, in its turn, strains with a grinding crunch in the common effort to make a great deal out of not very much, even verging on illiteracy in its haste.

Shouse A Robot?

There is no very good reason why Senator L. J. Dickinson of Iowa, in one of the Republican National Committee outbursts, should call Executive Chairman Jouett Shouse "one of the talking robots of the Democratic National Committee." That's childish, even when designed to impress mere voters. Mr. Shouse isn't a robot at all. Mr. Shouse is a smart, cagey politician, with much more than ordinary urbanity, who has captained the program of organization and publicity which the Democrats regard as leading up to a presidential victory next year. It has been ever so long since anyone suggested that either of the Republican chairmen, Senator Fess and Robert H. Lucas, were nearly as capable or valuable political leaders as Mr. Shouse.

There are robots in both parties if you refer to as robots those members of Congress who have public statements written for them and issued by the national committees, but maybe that means that Senator Dickinson is a robot. Mr. Shouse, however, has charge of the Democratic mimeograph and pulls his own strings when he jumps, so it seems as if Senator Dickinson or his national committee were beginning to get hysterical. That impression is strengthened when Dickinson refers to one of Shouse's statements as "characteristically false in fact, fraudulent in implication and hypocritical in conception."

But the Democrats can do just as bad and worse. Just watch them, if you must.

The Byrns Bombshell

From them, just the other day came a statement credited to Senator Caraway of Arkansas about the big meeting of "Young Republicans" here. This one was so full of awkward sentences and paragraphs that any reporter on almost any newspaper who wrote in such style would be soon fired. Spots of poor grammar heightened the effect.

More illustrative, however, of how points have to be stretched these days by parties which want to avoid most of the important issues, is the committee-produced statement of Congressman Joe Byrns of Tennessee, one of the Democratic fiscal sharks, about increased expenses of the Department of Commerce. The Byrns bombshell was the revelation that under Mr. Hoover the expenses of the department had risen from about $20,000,000 a year to $38,500,000 a year and the number of its employes increased from 16,500 to nearly 24,000. The Bureau of Aeronautics, it was pointed out, cost about $4,400,00 last year. And of course various other new bureaus were annexed during the Hoover incumbency.

In case you remember what the Commerce Department was when Hoover took it over and what it was when he left it you may have to conclude that this is a remarkable slant from which to attack the Hoover record. But, as one was saying, it's going to be a long, hard summer.

Young German To Study Farming

DALLAS, June 27 (AP).—Ambitious to become a good farmer so he can return to his fatherland and manage his father's lands, Count Joachim Von Bernstorff of Germany is in Texas looking for a connection where he can store up worth-while experience in tilling the soil.

He was here en route to Plainview for a conference with Hickman Price, controller of one of the world's largest farms, hopeful he could get a place in Price's organization.

The count said he hoped to spend two years in this country making an intensive study of American agriculture. When he returns to Germany he plans to assum emanagement of his father's farms in North and East Germany, the plantations comprising eight separate units of 1,000 acres each.

The young German, 20 years old, is a graduate engineer, having attended technological schools at Munich and Hanover.

Building Permits Increase In Texas

AUSTIN, June 27 (AP).—Despite a seasonal tendency to decline, building permits issued in 35 Texas cities in May showed a substantial increase over the total issued for April. Permits in May totaled $5,386,000 compared to $5,073,00 in April and $6,319,000 in May of 1930.

The total for May, 1931, was 15 per cent less than that for the same month of last year if figured on a monetary basis but when adjusted to lower building costs the decrease was only 7.7 per cent, according to figures of the Bureau of Business Research.

Sweet Potatoes Rank 7th In Texas Farm Products List

AUSTIN, June 27. (AP).—Sweet potatoes rank seventh in value in the list of Texas agricultural products, according to a summary by E. T. Crozier, sweet potato inspector in the state department of agriculture, of the work done by the state toward developing this industry. Sweet potatoes gained seventh place in value although a large portion of the 1930 crop was sold below the market, Crozier said.

In 1930 the 109,000 acres planted in sweet potatoes yielded $7,248,000, more than the value of the combined cabbage and spinach crop; more than the total returns on fruit, including the citrus crop, and more than the combined cantaloupe, watermelon and cucumber crop.

As the result of recent tariff duties practically stopping the entrance of light-weight women's goods into Australia, woolen mills of that country are far behind in orders.

THE TINYMITES

STORY by HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES by KING

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

...ward o'er the sea the Tinies flew and then the next thing that they knew, the plane began to rise real fast. Cried Scouty, "This is grand! I love to watch the scenes below as on our way we gaily go. How long will this flight take us and just where are we to land?"

The Travel Man replied, "My lad, it seems to me you should be glad to sail along, regardless of how long it's going to take. This plane is safe as it can be and we won't drop into the sea. It also is a fast plane, so a lot of speed we'll make."

On, on they went. The air grew cold and Clowny then began to scold. "Oh, gee," said he, "I wish we were aboard a real warm ship. Of course we're traveling now in ease, but I just shiver in the breeze. However, I am glad to make the...of this long trip."

This made the Travel Man laugh loud. Said he, "This is a sleepy crowd. Why don't you all nap for a while? I'll wake you ere we land. There'll not be much to see below 'cause o'er the water we will go most of the way." The Tinymites soon were in slumberland.

The Travel Man sat up and kept watch o'er the bunch as they all slept. But when he sighted land he cried. "Wake up! We're almost there! Why, I can see Manila now. We'll soon land on the ground somehow." The plane then seemed to swoop down. It was landed with much care.

They left the field and started out to see what things were all about. A funny little wagon took them to a market place. Big bunches of bananas stood piled up real high. Gee, they looked good. "Let's buy a few," said Clowny, "With a smile upon his face."

(The Tinymites see some interesting sights in the next story.)

Skeleton Unearthed By Plowshare

Body Of Unidentified Man Believed Thrust Head First Into Hole More Than 25 Years Ago Near Electra

ELECTRA, June 27 (AP).—A farmer's plowshare last week uncovered the skelton of an unidentified man whose body, apparently, was thrust head first into a hole more than 25 years ago.

Jim Bryant, who lives on the Sliber farm 11 miles northeast of Electra, found the skeleton late one afternoon as he was finishing his plowing for the day. He called officers to the scene the next day and the skelton was unearthed and examined by Dr. C. W. Monroe, city health officer, and other physicians. No trace of clothing or other means of possible identification was found. The physicians said the skeleton apparently was that of a white man, about five feet and two inches tall and about 50 or 60 years old at the time of his death. They found no certain evidence that the man had met death by violence. People living in the community 30 or 40 years could remember no missing man who would fit the description given by the doctors.

The field in which Bryant found the skelton had been in cultivation 25 years. It was once a part of the late D. Waggoner's Three D Ranch.

Engine At Rear Suggested For Lines, Speed And Ease

Reasons For Drive Change Pointed Out

More Freedom In Design, Removal Of Heat, Noise And Fumes To Back And Other Phases Are Outlined

BY ISRAEL KLEIN
Science Editor, NEA Service

ONE of the more advanced ideas presented to the members of the Society of Automotive Engineers' meeting at White Sulphur Springs recently was that of mounting the engine in the rear.

Although this may be new to motorists in the United States, it has been introduced in Great Britain and Europe, where it still is somewhat of a spectacle. Sir Dennistoun Burney is designer of the rear-engine automobile in England, and the streamline designs he has conjured up around the engine in back have been quite revolutionary as compared with the prevailing styles.

Introducing such ideas into this country may be quite difficult, for England and Europe have always been more receptive to unconventional innovations than has America. However, once tried out and approved across the Atlantic, there seems to be better promise for a new plan's future in this country.

As a result, we hear first rumblings of bringing the rear-engine car design to America, having had its initiation abroad. The arguments in its favor were presented to the engineers by Herbert Chase, consulting engineer of Forest Hills, N. Y.

More Freedom In Design

Here they are:

"(1) Grouping all mechanism at the rear gives the body engineer a freer hand than with any conventional arrangement.

"(2) All odor and heat and much of the noise that normally is carried back toward the passengers is carried away from them when the engine is in the rear.

"(3) A much better streamline form of the complete vehicle becomes possible.

"(4) A more compact engine with better balance is possible.

"(5) All power-developing and power-transmitting units can be placed relatively close together and lubricated from a single pump.

"(6) All mechanical parts become more easily accessible and can be placed at a more convenient height to work upon without reaching over fenders and without disturbing the body.

Great Saving In Weight

"(7) No long propeller shaft is needed.

"(8) The ordinary heavy chassis frame can be dispensed with in favor of a lighter frame which if desired, can be built integral with the body. In either case, a material saving in weight is possible.

"(9) Besides permitting a much larger seating space, the driver's seat can be placed where vision is decidedly less obstructed and where the driver can see the road much closer to the car than at present.

"(10) Many fittings, such as tires and headlamps, which at present tend to preclude a clean external appearance and make the car harder to wash and polish, can be readily placed under cover and still be readily accessible.

"(11) Improved riding qualities are readily obtainable."

Besides all these advantages, Chase argues that the engine designer too will be more free to try out a variety of cylinder arrangements in rear which he couldn't possibly employ under a normal hood in front. Engines like the V-type could be placed fore-and-aft, or in-line motors could be mounted transversely, with transmission and differential in a single compact unit close by.

More Space And Comfort

Most decided improvement in such event, it is pointed out, would be the tremendous increase in space and comfort for the passengers.

Furthermore, such change would make better streamline forms possible and a much cleaner appearance with the lights and spare tires set into the body toward the front.

Perhaps the most effective arguments against this sort of drive concern the questions of cooling and of control arrangements. But Chase suggests that air cooling is far from being a back number, possibilities of evaporative or steam cooling should not be overlooked and even in case of water cooling the radiator and fan may be placed where the wind pressure is fairly high.

Three Graham Boys Were Literally Blown Into The Automobile Industry

Glass-Blowing Gets Trio First Job In Colorful Careers

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another of a series of articles on "The Man Behind Your Car" which appear every Sunday in the Avalanche-Journal.

BY JAMES F. DONAHUE
NEA Service Writer

DETROIT, June 27—Some men achieve greatness through "pull," but the three Graham brothers literally "blew" themselves to a pinnacle in the automotive industry. A glass blowing machine got them their start. Now they are heads of the Graham-Paige Motors corporation.

Joe is the oldest of the brother act. He was born about 49 years ago in Washington, Ind. Robert was born three years later, and Raymond made his worldly debut two years after Robert. All three youngsters were more or less mischievous little rapscallions who terrified the neighborhood with their pranks.

Joe, being the oldest, was the recognized leader. Bob and Ray unfailingly followed his guidance.

Building pigeon houses was the first business the boys entered. These they sold to nearly everyone in town.

Joe was the first to go to work. His first job was as an egg counter in the basement of one of the city's stores. He wanted to run off and become a coal miner, but his father soon discouraged him.

Two to School, One to Work

All three boys went to college, but Joe, eager to get into business, cut his course short and went to work in a glass factory which he and his father started. He was 19 at the time.

Bob and Ray continued their college courses, the former attending St. Mary's college, in Kansas, and Fordham university, and the latter the University of Illinois.

While Joe and his father were establishing their glass business, Joe bought an old automobile. It interested him so that he decided to build one of his own. In 1904 he turned out his brain child—and it ran.

But the glass business, then expanding, took his time, and he set aside his automotive efforts. The bottle business became so pressing that Robert, just out of college, was called in to handle the sales. He did his job so well that he sold the entire year's output in six months.

Invent Glass Blower

The boom at the bottle factory was caused by the Graham's invention of an automatic machine to blow glass. This machine brought them riches.

Finally, in 1916, the bottle factory was sold and the brothers entered the automobile field, making truck bodies in Evansville, Ind. In 1918 they were manufacturing a complete motor truck.

Three years later they moved to Detroit, bought out Dodge, and began the manufacture of passenger cars. In 1926 the brothers sold their entire holdings in both passenger and truck companies. But in 1927 they re-entered the automotive field, buying the Paige-Detroit company and starting production of the Graham-Paige.

The first year of their new business they made more than $1,000,000, after the company had lost $4,000,000 under the old management the year before.

Although the status of the three brothers in regard to ownership of the company is equal, as a matter of form Joe is president, Bob is executive vice president, and Ray is secretary-treasurer.

Joe is the production man, Bob the salesman, and Ray the financier of the company.

Joe is the peddler of the brothers. His hobby is work. He does a little golfing. Bob is an outdoor man, indulging in all sorts of outdoor sports.

Ray is the traveling man, moving mostly between New York and Detroit. His hobby if horses and farming, although he has little time to indulge in the latter.

Bob runs a 5000-acre dairy farm near Washington, Ind., and raises prize cattle. He also conducts a school for dairy farmers.

Brief Bits Of News About Automobile Dealers, Sales And Activities Of The Industry In Local Circles

NEW MODELS DUE

NEXT week the Hub Motor company will announce the arrival of the first free-wheeling motor vehicles offered for sale in Lubbock. A shipment of new Chrysler automobiles will include two of the free-wheeling type, Chrysler having joined the free-wheeling forces which now include Hupmobile, Hudson, Lincoln, Studebaker and Cadillac.

"HAS COME TO STAY"

Hub Jones, proprietor of the local Chrysler agency, believes that free-wheeling has come to stay. "It is more certain than four-wheel brakes," he stated. Jones will introduce the latest development in automobile science but he believes that within a year the free-wheeling system will be universal.

NO "BACK SLAP"

In addition to lengthening the life of a motor by taking much strain from the transmission and differential, the new free-wheeling system, introduced by Studebaker about a year ago, makes for easier navigation, greater gasoline mileage and possibly greater power. Gear-shifting from intermediate to high and vice versa is accomplished without the use of the foot clutch, and when the acceleration is released there is no "back-slap" or pulling down of speed or power, the action corresponding to that of a coaster brake on a bicycle. Thus the motor is saved and gasoline is saved.

SYSTEM IS OPTIONAL

The new system will be optional for Chrysler buyers, free-wheeling cars retailing for a small price over the standard type. Plymouth, a product of the Chrysler Motor company, will also be equipped with free-wheeling transmissions after July 1, it is announced.

SELL 4 NEW PONTIACS

Scoggin-Dickey Oakland and Pontiac company had an unusually good week of sales with reports of delivery of news cars to four owners. Five used cars were sold last week by the company. New Pontiacs were sold as follows: Pontiac coupe to the Hicks Rubber company; 4-door sedan to W. H. Smith of Slaton; 2-door sedan to E. H. Horton of Hale Center and a 2-door sedan to B. E. Clark of Lubbock.

TWO BUY NEW BUICKS

Ratliff-Rogers Buick Company continued to sell new cars, last week delivering two of the new 8-cylindered machines. One, a deluxe coupe, went to Guy R. Johnston, resident state highway engineer, and the other, a standard sedan, to I. D. Moore of Ralls. Three used cars were moved of the Ratliff-Rogers lot last week.

LAVENDER JOINS DAVIS FIRM

The Davis Oldsmobile company featuring Oldsmobiles and Frigidaires, announce the addition of W. E. Lavender, formerly identified with the local Buick agency, to the sales staff. While visiting the combined show rooms of Frigidaire and Oldsmobile, Auto Row was introduced to Mrs. William A. Brown of Ft. Worth, district representative for Frigidaire, who for two days last week conducted tests of the refrigerating system at Texas Tech and Lubbock high school. Mrs. Brown also illustrated the use of the system at the show room on Main street.

A meeting of all Frigidaire dealers of the Plains will be held here Tuesday, Davis stated, and an attendance of approximately 50 men and women are expected. Representatives from the Ft. Worth distributing house will be here for the meeting.

FIVE BUY CHEVROLETS

Five new Chevrolets were sold last week through the Kuykendall Chevrolet company. Joe S. McElhaney bought a roadster-delivery, Riley P. Huie a sedan delivery, L. E. White a truck and Miss Ruth Pirtle a five-windowed coupe. The company sold seven used machines.

MAEDGEN DRIVES CAR HOME

A new Chrysler sedan was purchased last week through the Hub Motor company and is being driven from the factory by C. E. Meadgen of Lubbock. The company sold four used cars last week.

Annual Tech Institute Is Being Planned

Large Attendance Of South Plains Teachers Expected In September; Leaders In Education To Talk

Plans are rapidly going forward for the seventh annual Teacher's institute held at Texas Technological college just before the opening of the fall school term, and known as the South Plains Teachers Institute, Dr. A. W. Evans, head of the department of education, under whose supervision the course is held, announces. Dates are the first week in September.

"Our plans are in better shape at this time than they have ever been this far ahead," Dr. Evans said. "We cannot give the names of members of the faculty, because not all of those we have sought, have as yet definitely accepted. However, I can say we will have the strongest faculty we have ever had, this year."

Leaders Asked To Speak

Several outstanding leaders in educational matters have been asked to speak before the teachers.

"From reports we have received here I believe the attendance this year will be the largest we have ever had," Dr. Evans added. "Littlefield has sent word the entire staff is coming this year. There are several other towns that will be represented in September that have never had a large representation here before.

"The institute opens on Monday, September 7 and lasts three days. The first day is Labor day. We believe that the teachers who attend the institute will find inspiration and help in their professional work," he said.

Journalism Supervisors Are Taking Courses At College

A score of supervisors of student publications in high schools who are attending the summer session of Texas Technological college, have enrolled in the special course of journalism covering that subject, Cecil Horne, instructor in journalism and head of the publicity department of the college says.

Instruction is along the line of conducting publications of high schools, including annuals and monthly or weekly newspapers.

No work in journalism is to be given during the second six weeks term of the summer school. The one class is the only journalism work in the first term, Professor Horne said.

Lamesa Man Has Dozen Eggs From Hen Ranging In Sizes

LAMESA, June 27 (Special)—A few days ago a daily paper carried a head line from Lamesa which read "Lamesa Has Another Freak."

Here is one we would not term a freak necessarily, but rather unusual. J. A. Womack is displaying in his home on South First street a dozen eggs which are arranged in a row ranging in size as large as a turkey egg to as small as a bird's egg—the fruit of a dozen days from a single hen.

SHIPMENTS INCREASE

AUSTIN, June 27 (AP)—Fruit and vegetable shipments from Texas increased 41 per cent in May over April despite a normal tendency to decline, according to figures released by the state department of agriculture. A total of 10,128 cars was moved during May.

Italy's increase in the use of hydro electric power has displaced an annual coal consumption of 9,000,000 tons.

Vacationists Warned On Leaving Open Invitations To Burglars And Prowlers

No invitations to burglars should be left by householders away on vacations. Chief of Police John Lemond has made the following suggestions for those planning to leave their homes vacant while vacationing:

1. Notify police of your proposed absence.
2. Make sure that deliveries of milk, ice, newspapers and other commodities are discontinued.
3. Do not draw all the shades, as it would indicate a home which a burglar might loot with little risk of being discovered.
4. Lock all doors and windows securely. Locks do not keep professional burglars, but often deter amateurs.
5. Do not place a sign on your house indicating you are absent.

you said yourself that you could get a job and take care of yourself until I was out of college," he reminded her. "It would be just the same as it is now only—"

"Only that it's quite different," Irene substituted. "You're not going to college. Everything has changed. There isn't anything to look forward to."

"There's love," Tommy maintained, though his hope was wavering.

"But no cottage," she replied.

"Give me time!" Tommy pleaded. "I'll make good."

"Of course you will," she agreed. "But we must wait for it, Tommy. And it wouldn't be fair to either of us to be engaged while we're waiting. You know it's not my fault that we aren't married. First you let Beryl step in and then your aunt died. I'm awfully sorry, Tommy. We've given you every chance. It was your suggestion that we wait the second time we postponed our wedding day. I think it would be unlucky a third time. We'd better break the engagement and start all over."

"I don't see how you can talk like that if you love me. I need you now, Irene. I need to be sure of you. I could try harder if you were my wife."

"That's selfish," Irene declared. "What would happen if you didn't—if you couldn't—make good? You've got to be honest, Tommy. You wouldn't try to sell anything you didn't know was good, would you? Of course you wouldn't," she answered herself. "Then how can you try to sell me a future that you're not sure of? Don't you see it isn't fair to me?"

Tommy had to admit the truth of her argument, forgetting that a moment before she had said she knew he would make good. Perhaps he was confused with the sudden drop of his fortune. Perhaps disappointment was licking him. Tommy had wanted with all the yearning of ardor of his whole heart to marry Irene. Life was just black despair now. He'd been unhappier than anyone knew over his aunt's death.

He said, dispiritedly: "I guess you're right."

"But you won't forget me, will you?" Irene asked him with a wistfulness that went no deeper than her words.

Tommy did not answer.

"Kiss me, will you, Tommy?" Irene coaxed.

Tommy obliged, somewhat fiercely. It was all he could do to keep from crying as he held her in his arms.

Irene was thinking: "Now I can go with Prentiss to the studio tomorrow night!"

Strengthening Of Business Morale In U. S. Encouraging

Lower Prices Offer Aid To Improvement

Accepting Conditions And Doing The Best With Them Is Outstanding; Sales Showing Up Better

(Special to The Avalanche-Journal)

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Business is passing through a period of convalescence in which the painful process of recuperation and repair is proceeding slowly in some directions and quite swiftly in others, says Frank Greene in his current monthly review published by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

One of the most encouraging developments recently, he says, has been a strengthening of the business morale, —a necessary prerequisite to general business recovery.

Suggests First Place

In the list of real changes for the better, Mr. Greene suggests that first place should be given to those lines which have accepted the present situation and gone to work to make the best of things as they are and not as they appeared to be a short two years ago.

"There still seems to be nothing basically wrong with the idea," he declares, "that the cure for low prices lies in the quotations themselves; and that, given attractive enough prices, there is business to be done. Supporting this view it may be suggested that the textile trades, cotton, silk and wool, are doing nearly as large if not, indeed, in some cases, a larger business than a year ago and some of them almost as much as two years ago.

"Two really important things have taken place so far this year, both a bit unpalatable but unavoidable if the work of upbuilding is to go forward.

Disagreement Cited

"One has been he spreading out among consumers of some of the benefits of the declines in wholesale prices. Notwithstanding the disagreement which developed among manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers in May as to whether cuts in retail prices were a full reflection of the reductions made earlier by the producing and wholesaling branches, the improvement in chain, mail-order and department-store sales seems to evidence public recognition of the progress made in this direction. Certainly the returns by some large grocery chains showing large increases in tonnage distributed, accompanying small fractional decreases in value of sales, seem proof of this. The small decreases or, in numerous cases, actual gains in sales over last year by large chains or department stores are further proof that this trend is proceeding.

"The second unpalatable but unavoidable incident of the pesent depression is instanced by the controversy as to whether wage scales in certain lines should be reduced.

"The Department of Labor has given out totals of the number of those suffering cuts and perhaps this is conclusive evidence of the facts, even if it were not already known that cuts in time or hours have accomplished the same result. These discussions of reductions are, however, not really new and have been known in previous times of stress when the pressure for lower costs could no longer be ignored.

Dry In Northwest

"The planting and growing season in this country has progressed to a point where it is beginning to take form. While not uniformly favorable—the subsoil is too dry in the spring-wheat Northwest, where that crop shows the lowest condition in years—the general situation is good, possible exceptions being California, Georgia and Virginia. From New Jersey west to the Missouri valley the situation seems about at its best, partly due to the contrast with a year ago when the Ohio Valley was entering the drouth period.

"A rough survey of May trade and industry seems to indicate that wholesale and jobbing trade marked time during the month while in retail trade the passing of the spring peak in buying and the cold, rainy weather during half of the month caused a decline of perhaps five per cent. Industry, as a whole, seems to have shown a slight gain. Collections improved in a fair degree, while crops made about the best progress of all, perhaps eight per cent.

"Two of the three great textile manufacturing industries, silk and wool, stand out as still going ahead in manufacture. The calculated approximate consumption of silk in May was 10.4 per cent ahead of that in May, 1930. For five months it was 4.6 per cent ahead of last year and only 1.7 per cent below that for the like period of 1929.

Wool Consumption Up

"Consumption of raw wool for April was 18 per cent above March and 29.6 per cent above April a year ago. For four months the gain over the like period of 1930 was 2.2 per cent.

"Cotton-mill operations in April, as measured by active cotton spindles gained 1.8 per cent over March and was five per cent below April a year ago. For the first four months of the year, spindle hours were 11.6 per cent below the like period of 1930. Estimated yardage in April was 4.9 per cent below April 1930.

How The National Business Map Looks At Present Time

Merchants Adopting Economic Plan To Rid Selves Of Dead Beats; Few Credit Losses Due To Other Reasons

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

ST. LOUIS, June 27—Merchants of Texas are voluntarily submitting their books to the microscopic eye of university economists in an effort to eradicate the deadbeat. Preliminary figures from the survey show that deadbeats do about as much damage to merchants as the boll weevil does to the cotton grower. In a single Texas town during 1930, one group of fifty-four merchants had to admit losses totaling $46,687 from bad accounts, or $865 per merchant. And this, of course, did not include the merchants' time and expense in making futil attempts to collect the bills before writing them off the books.

Such was the behind-the-scenes story of storekeeping in Texas as told here to the annual convention of the National Retail Credit Association by Arthur H. Hert, marketing specialist of the Bureau of Business Research, University of Texas at Austin. Under his direction, a detailed analysis based on confidential information supplied by Texas merchants is now in progress.

"The name of the town is not important," said Mr. Hert, "because it is no worse than almost any other town. The condition is general. Only to a small degree is it due to the business depression. We went into this town, gained the co-operation of the fifty-four merchants, and spent weeks in finding out why they had written off 1,768 separate accounts totalling $46,687 in a single year.

"Anybody who says the public is 99 per cent honest," declared Mr. Hert, "has never gone around to several hundred homes and frankly asked people why they don't pay up what they owe. We did just that. As soon as they were assured that we weren't bill collectors, scores of people calmly said that a lot of merchants were easy marks, and that they would be foolish to pay if they didn't have to."

About forty out of every hundred people whose accounts were written off the fifty-four merchants' books were out-and-out deadbeats, the university investigators discovered. An additional 20 per cent were also deadbeats of the type known to credit men as "skips", or people who charge things at a store and then move away.

Contrary to the general impression that unemployment is mainly responsible for uncollectible bills, only 9.6 per cent of the 1,768 accounts were due to joblessness.

The complete list of reasons established for non-payment of the 1,768 bills was: deadbeats 40 percent; skips 20 per cent; unemployed 9.6 per cent; temporary financial difficulties 9 per cent; failure to limit credit 4 per cent; sickness 3.6 per cent; disputed transactions 2.7 per cent; accounts opened with insufficient information 2 per cent; charges slipping through without proper authority 1.6 per cent; crop failure 1.2 per cent; domestic trouble 1.2 per cent; frauds such as charging goods to a reputable person 1.1 per cent; bankruptcy 1.1 per cent; accounts opened despite bad credit record 1 per cent; deaths 1 per cent.

Only Preliminary Part

"So far as we know this is the first time in business research that such a detailed and comprehensive study of bad debts has been made," said Mr. Hert. "Our complete report will not be ready until next September, and these facts are only the preliminary part of the story.

"But as the work progresses, it becomes increasingly evident that the merchants themselves are chiefly to blame for their own heavy losses. In their mad desire for volume they are afraid to lose a sale, even a bad sale, to a competitor. Also, they are as careless as the housewife who leaves her doors and windows open when the circus is in town. They invite raids from the hosts of conscienceless deadbeats, and their invitations are avidly accepted.

"Proof that the condition can be overcome is afforded by the records of a group of department stores in the city of Austin. These stores are typical of retail establishments which guard their credits. They charged off, for all causes, only .8 of 1 per cent of their 1930 credit sales."

Educational work, such as "Pay Promptly" campaigns, was urged upon the national assemblage of credit men by Mr. Hert as being of value in handling the nation's many billion dollars of annual retail credit business.

"It is no more than natural for every human being to put things off as long as possible," said he, "and it looks as though putting off the paying of bills is one of the things that a great many people do. This calls for educational work on the part of the merchants to get credit customers to pay their bills in 30 days or as agreed. Otherwise the merchants will not get their money at all. People have a tendency not to pay for merchandise after full value has been received. Consequently, it is up to the merchant to collect before his goods have been worn out, eaten up, or gone out of the buyer's use."

Seek To Check On Labor Laws

State Labor Commissioner Of Texas Asks Cooperation Of Judges In Enforcing Child Provisions Of Measures

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, June 27.—Cooperation of county judges in administration of the child labor laws has been requested by Robert B. Gragg, state labor commissioner, especially with respect to provisions relative to granting working permits to juveniles between 12 and 15 years old.

Commissioner Gragg requested county judges to report to his department immediately the disposition of all cases coming before them under the child labor laws and the pertinent facts concerning each case.

Held Important

"No phase of this work is more important than that which has to do with the child labor laws," Commissioner Gragg said. "The county judges have a prominent part in its proper application, for to them is delegated the authority to issue permits to juveniles between the ages of 12 and 15, inclusive, to enter employment when it becomes necessary for such a child to contribute to the support of a widowed mother, invalid father or other dependent members of the family."

Gragg urged county officials to thoroughly acquaint themselves with the provisions of the child labor law so it could be applied efficiently.

One of the features of the child labor law is that school children, regardless of age, are exempted from the permit provision during the summer vacation. They are prohibited, however, from working in a factory, mill or workshop where dangerous machinery is used. The law also does not prohibit them from working in agricultural pursuits.

several other city clubs will be received into the union. A new organization the Shapespeare club, which was formed late this spring, purposes to become a part of the Federation and several organizations originally having a membership probably will join again, according to members.

In a short concluding statement Friday Mrs. Biggers asked for cooperation from club women, saying that even though she is willing to serve as president, she cannot make the Federation a success without the help of individual members and clubs. She asked delegates from these latter organizations to strive to create Federation interests in their societies.

Lubbock Believes In City Lighting

Nearly Six Hundred Street Lights Are Burned Here Nightly; Cost Of "Juice" Is $9,841.81 Annually

Let there be light.

The City of Lubbock applies that advice literally. There are 483 whiteway standards and about a hundred bracket-lights on the streets of Lubbock, records at City hall show.

No additions to, or changes in the street lighting system are contemplated for the summer, Acting City Manager W. H. Rodgers said.

Current used by the city street lights—nearly six hundred of them—costs the city a total of $9,841.81 a year. That was actual cost for the fiscal year ending last March 31, official records show. Average daily expense thus is $26.96 plus.

The figure is smaller than those of several cities of similar size, although some of the other municipalities in Lubbock's class do not operate as extensive a street-lighting system, it was said at City Hall.
