Proffer's Body Is Recovered

The body of Luther "Red" Proffer, shrimp boat crewman which had been missing since Sunday night when the boat Scorpio overturned in Aransas Bay, was recovered Wednesday afternoon in the Intracoastal Canal.

Ironically Ray James, Jr., one of the men who discovered the body, was the same man who was with Proffer when the fatal accident happened. James and Roy Courts, on Jimmy Ankele's shrimp boat Camco 4, were dragging for shrimp when they came across the body.

Justice of the Peace J. Paul Rogers ruled that Proffer's death was due to accidental drowning.

James, who was rescued shortly after the accident said the boat—the Scorpio—overturned after lines from another boat became entangled in the Scorpio's out-rigger.

"We were running side by side," he said, "and when we untied, his cables wrapped around my outrigger. It was dark and we couldn't tell anything was wrong until he hit the end of the cables and flipped us."

The accident occurred as the Scorpio and the Camco 4 were coming in from a shrimping trip to Port O'Connor, James said. They were empty and had made the run in tied together. They untied just out of landlock in Aransas Bay near Beacon 13.

"I was standing in the wheelhouse," James said. "And I got out all right. He (Proffer) was standing in the back doorway. We didn't have five seconds warning. I know he tried to get out but the boat flipped so fast I know the mast or the rigging hit him and that's the reason he didn't come up."

James said Proffer had been working on the boat about a month.

Proffer had been a resident of Rockport for seven years. He had previously lived in Houston. A native of Grafton, Ill., he was a Korean War veteran.

The body will lie in state at the Cagle-Marshall chapel from 1 p.m. Thursday (today) till 9 a.m. Friday.

Funeral services will be at 9:30 a.m. Friday in the Cagle-Marshall Funeral Chapel in Rockport. Burial with full military honors will be in the Houston National Cemetery in Houston.

Marine Technology Training May Be Set at Bee College

With the cooperation of the Rockport Chamber of Commerce, Bee County College of Beeville, Tex., is exploring the possibility of establishing a two-year vocational course in marine technology.

One conference arranged by the Chamber of Commerce already has been held, involving Scott Russell, Dean of Technical and Vocational Training at Bee County College; Roy Spears, chemist and Administrator of the local marine laboratory of Texas Parks and Wildlife Department; L. E. Casterline of Casterline Fish Company; Jim Jackson of Jackson Sea Food Company; Charles LeBlanc of Caspary-Wendell, Inc., which services the offshore oil industry; and John R. Kinsey, manager of the Chamber of Commerce.

Russell, among other things, is seeking to find out if there would be enough potential students in the Coastal Bend area to justify a two-year vocational course in marine technology for high school graduates. Such training would be aided by federal funds.

Representatives of the shrimp industry attending the conference told Russell they would welcome the opportunity to employ young men who had received formal training in the various phases of the shrimp business.

Pointing out that deckhands earn as much as $12,000 a year or more, the shrimp men cited the need for employees who had been trained to cull shrimp, mend nets, use winches to set the rigs, and have knowledge regarding the operation of boats (possibly leading to the job of captain), in navigation and engine maintenance.

LeBlanc said the advantage to his firm would be the ability to hire men already trained to be engineers and captains "so we wouldn't have to spend so much time on training." The advance formal training would help the men move up faster in the company, he said.

—And raised $2,037,872 in the Crusade.

"We are all proud of these accomplishments," the Rev. Erdelt stated. "One entire session was devoted to a discussion of how to influence more people through 'action oriented' community cancer control programs."

He added, "I am confident the decisions made will be reflected in an increased emphasis on cancer control here and throughout Texas this year."

Later in the meeting, the practical medical applications now being used to fight cancer were demonstrated when nine prominent Texas physicians, all past Presidents of the Texas Division of the Society, discussed four different cancer cases. The cases represented the various successful cancer treatment techniques now being used in the management and cure of cancer.

The final keynote address was made by Arch Avery, Jr. Mr. Avery, an Atlanta, Georgia banking executive, and (continued on page 8)

PUBLIC SAFETY IN WASHINGTON

Just recently the transit company operating buses in Washington, perplexed as to what to do about protecting its drivers and buses from an epidemic of robberies at night, said it would no longer accept cash as payment of fares at night.

Passengers will have to buy script, or tickets, during the day—if they are going to ride at night.

The crime wave in Washington continues. The city is no longer safe after dark. Visitors checking into hotels are advised by bellhops to "make sure your door is locked upon retiring and don't walk around the streets alone after dark."

It's a sad state of affairs for if there is one city where safety should be paramount it is the capital city of the country. A reflection is being noticed in the number of tourists this summer, too. Hotels are one-third empty, according to reports.

But now comes word that the government is going to send girls who work at night home in taxi cabs—at the taxpayers' expense. Many offices have had trouble getting women to work overtime because they were afraid to venture out on the streets at night.

For some time the Pentagon has had an escort service for workers exiting from the building and headed for parking lots and bus stops. Security men escort the workers to their cars and buses.

The government in some instances is not limiting the free taxi service to women. If men see a need for such a benefit they can have it, too.

What a mess! Washington is under the administration of the federal government and perhaps Congress should devote some attention to law and order in the District of Columbia before meddling in the affairs of states. It seems a lot of people around Washington are having their civil rights violated—the right to walk streets at night in safety.

THE POOR PEOPLE'S CONTRIBUTION

The famous old Willard Hotel in Washington is now closed and out of business and soon may be torn down.

The hostelry has been a landmark for more than a century and has played host to many a notable through the years. Presidents Taylor, Fillmore, Pierce, Coolidge, Wilson and others have walked the lobby of the old place and Lincoln watched his own inaugural parade from it. Charles Dickens once stayed there.

But no more will tourists and others visit the old hotel to stroll through "Peacock Alley" and to live again the days of the historic past. It's gone, the victim of the times. Newer hotels have drawn business away from the Willard but it still was a must for many out-of-towners, especially tourists, because of its location, only a couple of blocks from the White House.

One of the reasons why the Willard is being closed is that Washington is not attracting the thousands of tourists it has been accustomed to getting. This year hundreds of tours by school children were called off. Tourism is way down—estimates are that Washington business houses, including hotels, have lost about $5 million in revenues because sight-seers are afraid to come to Washington. The recent riots, the muggings that take place on the streets at night and in broad daylight, too, plus the poor people's march and Resurrection City, all served to drive away tourists.

This is the contribution the so-called underprivileged—the minorities they call them—has made toward the destruction of the Willard and the city in general. How much better, how much more would have been the contribution to the betterment of the poor, the Negroes, had everyone in the city worked for law and order. Then more waiters would have been employed in restaurants, hotels could have used more bellhops, cooks, bookkeepers; transportation companies could have employed more people to handle the crowds; the airlines, buses and railroads would prosper and employ more people.

Another argument for law and order.

Uncle Sam's Selective Service

Editor's Note: Below are questions now being asked at draft boards. The answers are by Colonel Morris Schwartz, State Selective Service Director, 20 W. 9th Street, Austin, Texas 78701. He will welcome your questions.

Q—I wish to apply for a conscientious objector classification? What does the law provide on this?

A—A conscientious objector, according to the law, is a person "who by reason of religious training and belief" is conscientiously opposed to participation in war in any form. The term "religious training and belief" does not include essentially political, sociological, or philosophical views, or a merely personal moral code. So, to obtain recognition, a man must have a position recognized as "religious." The local board has the responsibility of deciding. This is subject to appeal, provided the objector claimant files his appeal, timely within the period allotted him to do so.

Q—I'm now in college with a II-S classification; however, I am planning to apply for a I-O classification as a conscientious objector. Should I apply now or wait until I've graduated from college?

A—You should apply now.

Q—A friend of mine has told me he heard the President had abolished all occupational deferments in February, 1968. Is this true?

A—No. Occupational deferments are still being granted. The lists of currently essential activities and critical occupations issued by the Departments of Commerce and Labor were suspended. Draft boards still consider requests for these deferments on the merits of each individual case.

Senior Citizens Club will meet at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 19 at the Methodist Church. There will be games and refreshments.

Immunization Shots For Influenza Are Recommended

Medical authorities recommend immunization shots for influenza, especially for people older than 65 years.

People with chronic illnesses and those in nursing homes or comparable environments should make a special effort to be immunized, says Minnie Bell, Extension family life specialist for aging at Texas A&M University.

Ideally, the shots should be completed by early December, she says. Two types of influenza vaccines are available. Each fights a type of flu which usually occurs every several years.

Some localities have free flu shots. For details, Miss Bell suggests contacting Senior Centers, local hospitals, county health offices and clinics.

BOY SCOUTS

Den Three News

Yesterday our boys really let their hair down and had a ball. We went to Lawson's Roller Rink for a very enjoyable skating party.

Our meeting was opened at 4:05 p.m. with Morgan Ray Brundrett leading us in the flag salute. We welcomed our new boy, Sammy Solis.

After our old business, new business and announcements were taken care of, the boys skated. There were lots of falls and dirty blue jeans, but we did manage to escape any broken bones.

Mrs. Lawson skated and played games with the boys. Each boy brought a guest.

At 5:15, we had delicious punch and cookies, furnished by Morgan Ray Brundrett. Then more skating. At 5:30 we reluctantly put up our skates and had our Living Circle. The boys and guests were dismissed at 6 p.m.

Those present were Jesse Marshall, Dennis Stephens, Brett Ashley, Morgan Ray Brundrett, Sammy Solis, Stephen Sanders, Mark Boddie and Mrs. Sanders.

Guests were Mrs. Carl Lawson and Sue, Mrs. Almon Brundrett, Tammy Boddie, Debbie Jo Sanders, Lynn Sharp, Charles Edler, Bobby and Hope Wickliffe, Barbara, Gary and Anna Marshall.

Mrs. Brundrett and Mrs. Lawson: Thanks a million for your help. Remember pack meeting, Nov. 25 at 7 p.m. at Live Oak School Cafeteria. — Reporter

Pirates Defeat Calallen 30 to 7

By Dan T. Oliver

The Rockport-Fulton High School Fighting Pirates beat Calallen last Friday night by a score of 30 to 7.

As the game opened, the Calallen Wildcats kicked off to Rockport. Ruford Huff returned the ball to the Pirates' 25-yard line. Rockport failed to make first down and were forced to punt.

Calallen, unable to move down field, had to punt. The Pirates then found some success with their running game and got to the Calallen 26-yard line where they fumbled and the Wildcats recovered.

Calallen then fumbled on the first play and Rockport recovered on the Wildcats' 39-yard line. The quarter then ended with the score 0 to 0.

Early in the second quarter Pirate quarterback Royce Itschner passed for 37 yards to end Ted Deason who went across the goal line for the first tally of the game. The conversion failed.

Deason then made a 50-yard kickoff and Calallen wound up with the ball on their 16-yard line. Calallen moved to the 37-yard line where the strong Rockport defense held and forced their opponents to kick.

Robert Brooks caught the ball and returned it all the way to Calallen's one-yard line. On the first play, Brooks smashed over for a touchdown. The conversion attempt failed.

Huff's kickoff went 55 yards and the Wildcats returned to their 27-yard line. The Pirate defense held, and the half ended with Rockport leading 12 to 0.

At the start of the third quarter Deason kicked off for the Pirates, a Wildcat lineman fumbled the ball and Al Leisenheimer of the Rockport team recovered. With the ball on the Calallen 44-yard line, Rockport attempted a pass which was intercepted by the Wildcats.

The Wildcats, now on Rockport's 39-yard line, completed a pass for a touchdown and made a successful point-after-kick, making the score: Rockport 12, Calallen 7.

Calallen kicked off to Rockport and the ball was put in play at the 20-yard line. The Pirates moved down the field, making one first down after another. Early in the fourth quarter Rockport was on the Calallen two-yard line, and Huff went over for another touchdown. Again, the conversion attempt failed.

Huff kicked off and Calallen returned the ball to their 45-yard line. The Wildcats were unable to get their offense going and were forced to punt. Brooks received it on his 45-yard line and scooted 75 yards for a touchdown.

On the next Pirate kickoff, Calallen returned the ball to their 35-yard line. The Wildcats later punted and recovered a Rockport fumble. The Wildcats attempted a pass which was intercepted by Glenn Davis.

Rockport failed to gain ground and punted. A few plays later, Calallen attempted a pass which was intercepted by Huff and returned for the final Rockport touchdown. The conversion attempt failed, and the final score was Rockport 30, Calallen 7.

The field report given by Coach Stephenson showed: R. Brooks carried the ball nine times for an average of 12.8 yards.

R. Huff carried 11 times for an average of 4.8 yards.

J. Johnson carried five times for an average of 3.9 yards.

G. Daves carried 35 times for an average of 3.0 yards per carry.

The Pirates led in first downs being 15 to Calallen's 5.

Pirates made 302 yards gain rushing to Calallen's 78 yards.

Fishing Hints By Danny Adams

Since hunting season is upon us in full force more and more heads are turning towards those rolling hills, game trails and that 12 point trophy. However, here in Rockport, we have our own rolling hills, the bays, our own game trails, the flyways, and our own trophies, those Canadian honkers.

If you have never heard a Canadian honker calling at day-break, then I would say you are missing one of the natural wonders of the world.

There must be something to the sound of a wild goose because if a fellow from Boston can get interested in hunting then anybody can. Of course the fellow I'm speaking of is Joe Joy who most of you probably know. Every Monday finds Joe Joy and Jerry Iles, both barbers at Iles' Barber Shop, and myself running across the bay in what seems the middle of the night.

I have been hunting since I was old enough to carry a gun and Jerry has been hunting just as long as I have. With this much experience between us, we feel compelled to try to help Joe out as much as we can.

For example, the other morning we were out hunting. A group of geese were bearing down on Jerry and me. Apparently they were going to miss Joe as he was hunting about 100 yards off to our left. Being good sportsmen, we jumped up early so the birds would flare over Joe and give him a good chance at them. Well folks he got one and I don't suppose we'll ever hear the end of it. But anyway, you now have the straight scoop.

Fishing on the causeway was good this week. Some of the catches reported were:

Lenke and Darrell of Victoria caught 85 trout, V. A. Morena of Carrizo Springs got a 35-pound drum. Weldon Wiseman snagged a 7½-pound red and Linda Vauhn from Duncan, Okla., got six trout and a 5-pound flounder.

TAYLOR OAK BIRTHDAY PARTY

The guests at Taylor Oak Trailer Park opened the winter season with an October birthday party in their recreation hall with 23 attending.

The honorees were Mrs. Harry Overturf, Mrs. John Bennett, Mrs. Jean Chaney and Mrs. Sally Smith.

The tables were decorated in a Halloween motif. Coffee and cake were served, then games were played. Mrs. Charles Towne won at Bridge, Mrs. Minnie Randle was high in canasta, Mrs. Frank Ricker won the Wahoo prize, and two game prizes were awarded. One went to Mrs. Hazel Bennett and the other to Jim Stansell.

The Story Of Connie Hagar

"The incomparable Connie Hagar" was the subject of a talk given by Dr. Leonard Goldman, local dentist, at the regular luncheon meeting of the Rockport Lions Club at the Sandollar Colony Room.

Dr. Goldman, a fellow enthusiast and close friend of the 82-year-old ornithologist, said that one of Connie's closest "friends" is her dog, Suzie, "who is so smart and understands everything we say that frequently I will spell out words, especially when I mention the word 'chicken' as this is her favorite food."

"What a sense of humor Connie possesses," Dr. Goldman said. "For five generations, all male members of her family were lawyers and jurists."

She formerly lived in Corsicana, and 35 years ago decided to move to Rockport. "As the saying goes," Dr. Goldman remarked, "Corsicana's loss was Rockport's gain."

"She was tired of pouring coffee and tea at society functions. Connie, as she is known to thousands of people here and all over the world is as charming and vivacious a person as you or I will ever meet."

"She was selected 'Rockport's Outstanding Citizen of the Year' in 1966. Also the Little Bay area was named the 'Connie Hagar Wildlife Sanctuary.' All the publicity that she has received throughout the years has been greatly appreciated by her, but to Connie publicity is one thing that she neither craves or wants."

"It is her love for the outdoors and nature that she enjoys. The various birds, wildflowers, trees, shrubs and shells mean beauty and happiness to her. As Connie once told me, God is everywhere around us—in nature and the beauty of things, and not as an old man sitting on a throne I often wonder how many other people have such a wonderful philosophy of life."

"Connie told me that when she was a small child her father said, 'You owe rent for living in the community, and the only way to pay for this space is to help the community in whatever manner you can."

"Well, Connie has certainly done more than her share. She recently received from a friend a scrapbook containing at least 1,000 newspaper articles from practically every state in the country about Connie. However, Mrs. Hagar has shown this book only to a few of her closest friends. I believe her proudest possession is the plaque that the Chamber of Commerce presented her for being the 'Outstanding Citizen of the Year.'

She plays the piano at the Christian Science Church in Aransas Pass. She visits the sick at Bayview Nursing Home in Rockport. She is very helpful with the Chamber of Commerce when tourists want to meet her and gain extra knowledge of various birds.

"Besides this she frequently pulls out a dictionary on me when I mispronounce a word and put the accent in the wrong place. I've threatened to spank her and she says go ahead, but this little bundle of 85 pounds of dynamite would be too much to handle. As the saying goes, 'She has a tiger in her tank.'

"Most people think of Mrs. Hagar only as an authority on birds (ornithologist) but she also is an authority on shells, flowers, insects and antiques. People from all over the United States come to Rockport to meet Connie and gain information pertaining to birds."

Week after next is our investiture. This is when the girls who just came into Girl Scouts wear their uniforms for the first time and are pinned and taken into the troop.

OUTDOORS
IN TEXAS
BY VERN SANFORD

Accidental mixing of cartridges is the most common cause of gun blowups.

Usually this happens when a gunner grabs a handful of hulls and crams them in his pocket without looking. If he is shooting a 12 or 16-gauge shotgun and slips in a 20-gauge shell, he's headed for trouble.

Some hunters who are affluent enough to own two guns of different gauges long have recognized this. They have been buying different brands or at least checking over their supply of cartridges before going afield.

If you load your gun slowly, you can tell by the feel whether it is a 12 or 20-gauge. But if you are on a pass, shooting doves or ducks, lots of times you'll reload without ever giving a thought to fingering the shell for size.

Although ammunition makers long have recognized this hazard and printed notices on their boxes, it remained for Federal to really pioneer in the field of coloring.

You can immediately distinguish the gauge of the shell by its color. For instance, the 12 gauge in all loads now is a deep purple. There is no mistaking it.

The 16 gauge is loaded in a bright yellow case; the 20 is in a deep red.

Thus a shooter can tell at a glance whether his shells are mixed. Perhaps others in the industry will follow a similar plan.

Many reloaders have been doing this for a long time. Some of them swap among themselves, getting all empties in the same color for each of the three gauges.

Reloading also has picked up immeasurably since the major manufacturers have started selling components.

For a long time reloading was practiced only by a few who did a lot of shooting. Now there are reloading clubs. Three or four men will get together and buy first class automatic equipment. None of the individuals may have the necessary cash to buy the more expensive equipment. But jointly they can.

With the automatic equipment they are assured of both speed and safety. When the reload is set up, it will decap, size, insert the new primer and add the uniform powder and shot charges according to the measuring bar and every shell then will be crimped with a uniform load.

Shooters feel, even with amortizing the equipment, they have save upward of 50 percent on the price of a box of shells. This, of course, is provided they are able to get their empties without cost, or at a minimum of one cent each. Getting empties today, however, isn't as easy as it used to be. So many shooters are saving them. This is especially true around the ranges.

Where shooters congregate in certain places, like the white wing hunt in the Lower Valley, there is competition for the empties. If a shooter doesn't want them himself, the man standing next to him probably will pick them up. And if not, small boys follow close behind the shooters, gather up the empties and sell them for $1 per hundred.

It also is possible to buy empties from the manufacturers. However, this increases the price somewhat, and lowers the saving on reloading.

But at the same time, the major manufacturers are assisting in holding down the prices of other components.

For many years shot, powder and primers were not readily available in many places. They were produced by a few smaller companies, or perhaps bought wholesale from the majors and resold.

Now you not only can get components produced by the two big companies—Winchester and Remington—but from many others.

And there is a wide choice of reloading equipment available at prices ranging from $9 up.

Good Gumbo
By Golly

Austin—Henrietta Gossett got a taste of her own medicine—and found it delicious.

Miss Gossett is a home economist for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's seafood marketing division, and she frequently requires human guinea pigs to taste and give opinions on new recipes.

That's how Jack Trahan, a Department accounting clerk who hails from Cajun Country, found out that Miss Gossett had no real authentic, genuine recipe for Cajun Shrimp Gumbo.

Trahan decided his recipe had been a secret long enough, so he drove Miss Gossett from her test kitchen and set to work. Even without the customary background music of hound dogs yapping and alligator roars, Miss Gossett and the rest of the testers, who magically found their way by following their noses because someone left the window open a crack, judged the Gumbo as "terrific."

Trahan says the rest of the world is welcome to his recipe, so here it is:

4 pods of garlic; 2 lbs. shrimp, 1 large onion, finely chopped, 1 bunch of green onions, 1 lb. cut okra (or celery), 2 teaspoons filet' gumbo, 5 tablespoons flour, 3 tablespoons cooking oil, 1 large green (bell) pepper, ½ bunch fresh parsley.

Heat oil on low flame and add flour; continue to stir until flour turns to light chocolate brown color. Remove from burner and add onions, parsley, garlic, and bell pepper. Cook for about 15 minutes, then all one quart water, and turn heat to medium. Add okra, shrimp and stir well, then add one quart water, and turn heat to medium. Continue cooking on medium heat until gumbo turns a greenish color. Add filet' gumbo and about 15-30 minutes before gumbo is done. Should gumbo get too thick, add plain water to thin, no more than two cups of water each time. Use salt, red and black pepper to suit taste. Serve over rice.

Lions Helping Crippled Children

Members of Lions Clubs in Rockport, Fulton and throughout Texas this month are pausing to pay recognition to their camp for crippled children which has given over 10,000 handicapped youngsters a new dimension of freedom since it was opened in 1953.

The camp, located at Kerrville in the Hill Country of Central Texas, is free to crippled, blind, deaf or mute children of Texas from the ages of seven through sixteen. The 17 permanent buildings and other improvements dotting the 504 hill-side acres represent an investment of more than $700,000.

At the camp, these youngsters who have been denied a normal childhood through no fault of their own learn to shed their shyness imposed by their handicaps. By mutual association with other handicapped children and by skillful and gentle counseling, these youngsters have found the freedom to grow, mentally and spiritually, into useful citizens of tomorrow.

While the Lions are paying tribute to their camp, we would like to pay tribute to the Lions and their friends who have supported this great venture of the heart. We know a man never stands so straight as when he stoops to help a crippled child.

Wonderful Letter From Jerry Hill

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Rockport Fire Department recently sent a Christmas box to SP/4 Jerry Hill, US 54720894, 5th Bn. 22nd Arty., C. Btry., APO San Francisco, 96317, who is now serving in Vietnam and at the present is in the heavy fighting between An Khe and Phan Thiet, northeast of Saigon.

The box contained cookies, Koolaid, gum, candies, peanuts, foot powder, a Texas flag and many more items.

This week the ladies received this heart-warming letter from Jerry:

Dear Ladies: Friends, is more in my line. May I at this moment give you a big hug and a kiss. Along with that go my sweetest thank you.

The package came at a good moment. Our unit had been cut off from supply between us and Phan Thiet by a typhoon. The torrential rain and winds made it impossible for any choppers to make it out and all roads were flooded because of the nearby rice paddies.

It's been seven days since we've had a decent meal. Well, the eighth day came and the storm was over. I also received your gift—and let me tell you—just knowing it came from everyone there made it taste a hundred fold better.

Peanuts, Kool-aid, everything was great. Those are some of the little things we do without here at LZ Sandy. I've shared it with the men in my section and I know you won't mind because you cared enough to share with me.

Things are pretty confusing much of the time and we are constantly busy, but the whole world needs to stop and take a look at itself. Why can't everyone be as a few are: giving business comes much easier that hate and killing.

Believe me I know. But there seems to be too much of the latter while the first takes a back seat. Really a shame that it continues day after day. Not only here but also at home. Where will it end. It certainly won't end here easily. We took on a job here in Vietnam to aid the people both financially and physically at a great risk to our own nation. America has come to mean little in the eyes of the world but I feel we can't pull out until we have finished where we began.

We must stay until the people can hold their own in a government for themselves, until they can learn that betterment of the individual will improve the whole nation, until the communist threat is stopped.

If you only knew the means the V.C. use to dissuade villages from accepting U. S. aid, or how, when a man does take initiative to lead, his family and friends are terrorized. Who would blame the people for coming along so slowly.

They are generally uneducated and have little initiative. The only government they have known has been corrupt and abusive. So they've grown to distrust any and every form of government. They are a small group, people whose main thoughts are of his immediate family.

Yet the communists insist he become active in politics by following in their path. If he can't decide or chooses another way, force prevails. No, if we leave now, look what we will leave them to. They would fall to the communists soon after our departure.

Ask yourselves, would it stop there? You know as well as I the communist theory: after Vietnam, they would seek out another place, where the people are generally uneducated and discontent. A place where little happens and that little is mostly bad. These are living conditions that communism searches for and with promises of a better life they spread like a germ, until it is too late.

It may be closer to home next time and after that where next?

But why let it go that far when we have it by the throat now, choking it to the end, not at a standstill like Korea but to end it. That's the only way to end the communist. Yes, it is difficult but as long as there are men such as the men I live with, work, sleep, and breathe with now, there is hope.

That brings me back to you—hope, the little word—it carries many meanings. A combat soldier needs many but among them hope reigns supreme. You hope also means home, just change one letter and you have it.

We need you as well as all the other people behind us. If not to go all out, then to continue as we have on a so-so basis. Do what you can, when you can.

I must run. All of a sudden seems we have a fire mission. The mail chopper comes soon so I best close.

These aren't the best words I know but they are my feelings and hopes for a better world and peace.

I love you all,
Jerry.

JOHN KINSEY

I am indebted to L. D. Nuckles of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department for the following story.

On Friday, Nov. 8, Wilson D. McBride and Domingo Perez, Coastal Fisheries biological assistants of the Parks and Wildlife Department, were doing routine work at the Cedar Bayou research station when a north wind blew in that was gusting at well over 40 miles per hour.

Since McBride was scheduled to be married at 8 p.m. that evening, they headed for home shortly after noon. When they reached the Mesquite Bay end of the bayou, they encountered waves that threatened to swamp the boat. So they made their way back to the research station.

Just before 5 p.m. they contacted the Marine Laboratory by radio and asked that someone contact the minister in Victoria, the bride-to-be and her parents and McBride's parents to postpone the wedding.

The high gusting winds made it too dangerous for an airplane to land on the beach at Cedar Bayou, and any department boat that could not navigate the shallow waters of Mesquite Bay. McBride and Perez made it back to Rockport Saturday morning and the wedding was held at 2 p.m.

McBride said he didn't sleep a wink Friday night, and his bride, the former Charlotte Miller, could not be contacted for her reaction to the developments. We suspect she was a bit put out.
