Howardwick plans nativity lighting

The Howardwick Beautification Club will light up the Nativity Scene at the Howardwick City Park this Sunday, December 1.

The First United Methodist Church Youth Band will provide entertainment. Rev. Genoa Goad of the Howardwick Baptist Church will give the invocation. Refreshments will be served at Howardwick City Hall immediately following. The public is invited.

The club will also hold a Christmas Lighting Contest for the residents of Howardwick. Entry forms are available from Peggy Cockerham, and the deadline to enter is December 6. Entries will be judged on December 8.

Downtown lighting up next Thursday

Businesses on Kearney Street are urged to get their Christmas lights up and running for the kickoff of the annual Late Night Shopping next Thursday, December 5.

Local Girl Scouts will also be lighting up the yard in front of the Clarendon Lions Club next week.

Downtown merchants will be open late every Thursday between now and Christmas.

Shop Clarendon first and support hometown businesses.

Man gets 20 years in state prison

District Judge David McCoy sentenced a Donley County inmate to 20 years in the Texas Department of Criminal Justice Institutional Division last Thursday.

James Dewayne Vincent went before the court on a motion to revoke probation filed by District Attorney Stuart Messer. Vincent had been sentenced to 10 years on probation and a $2,000 fine for the October 7, 1999, felony offense of Assault on a Public Servant.

According to Messer's office, Vincent violated his probation by being charged with a misdemeanor act of indecent exposure. Vincent was represented by attorney Mal Holloway.

Enterprise closing for Thanksgiving

The ENTERPRISE office will be closed this Thursday, November 28, for the Thanksgiving holiday.

Normal hours will resume on Friday, November 29, and deadlines will remain unchanged for next week's issue: Monday at noon for news and photos; Monday at 5 p.m. for ads and classifieds.

Program seeks to boost college enrollment

Clarendon College joined other Texas colleges, universities, and state leaders this month in launching an unprecedented statewide campaign, called College for Texans, to encourage hundreds of thousands of additional people in Texas to pursue higher education over the next decade and more.

CC President Myles Shelton said the campaign has four major goals: Participation, Success, Research, and Excellence. The later two are goals for major universities, but the first two are goals for all colleges and universities in the state.

"If you look at the demographics in Texas between now and 2015, you see a growing population which will participate at the same or lower percentage in higher education," Shelton said. "Texas is already lower than California, New York, and Florida in terms of the percentage of our population enrolled in college."

The campaign to increase college enrollment statewide was authorized by the Texas Legislature last year and is directed by the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board.

"Although more people than ever are enrolled in Texas colleges and universities, the increases haven't kept pace with the state's population growth, leaving Texas on a path to becoming a less educated, less prosperous state," said Commissioner of Higher Education Don Brown. "We must close the gaps in student participation and success for all of the state's people, especially for low-income groups and people in regions of the state with low college-going rates."

As higher education participation rates and educational attainment decline, average annual household income is projected to fall by an estimated $30 billion to $40 billion statewide by 2030 - with dire effects for Texas families and the state's economy, according to demographers.

Shelton says the future of the Texas economy is linked to citizens receiving college training and job skills.

"If we don't increase participation in higher education, then we won't have a trained workforce, and there is a direct economic impact with not having a trained workforce," he said. "Those jobs will go somewhere else."

Only 23.3 percent of the population which is age 25 and older in Donley County has earned a college degree, according to the 2000 US Census. Another 28.5 percent have some college but no degree.

Shelton said surveys show that every dollar invested in a community college education returns $9 in higher future earnings for the individual. Every dollar invested by state and local governments in education returns $18 statewide.

A survey commissioned by the Texas Association of Community Colleges concluded that a better educated Texas could save $276.3 million in improved health and in reduced welfare roles, lower unemployment, and less crime.

Gov. Rick Perry says getting a higher education is also tied to having more opportunities in the future.

"An educated Texan inherits a world of unlimited opportunity, and higher education is critical to achieving higher aspirations," said Perry. "This campaign will help empower more young Texans to live their dreams by teaching them how to prepare academically and financially for college."

College for Texans will motivate primary and secondary students to prepare and aim for college and

SBA loans available for disaster victims

FORT WORTH - Businesses in some Texas, Oklahoma, and New Mexico counties can now apply for low interest Economic Injury Disaster Loans from the US Small Business Administration (SBA).

These loans are available to help businesses meet normal operating expenses that cannot be met due to the effects of a disaster. Drought and excessive temperatures that occurred from January 1, 2002, and continuing caused many farmers and ranchers to experience reduced incomes which may have had an adverse economic effect on businesses depending upon these producers. Farmers and ranchers are not eligible for this loan program but may be eligible for disaster assistance through other Federal agencies. However, nurseries that are victims of drought disasters can apply.

Businesses in all the western two thirds of Texas are eligible to apply along with the following counties in Oklahoma and New Mexico: (Oklahoma) Beaver, Cimarron, Cotton, Ellis, Jefferson, Love, Roger Mills, Texas, Tillman, (New Mexico) Curry, Dona Ana, Eddy, Lea, Otero, Quay, Roosevelt, and Union.

Due to the weather, many producers experienced crop losses and were not able to purchase goods and services at normal levels. Businesses that are dependent upon these producers may have experienced decreased sales, reduced gross profit margins, increased accounts receivable, or difficulty in moving inventories at normal levels. The loan can help a business meet installments on long-term debt, accounts payable, and overhead expenses that would have been met had the disaster not occurred. Refinancing of long-term debt is not eligible under this program. The loan is designed for those businesses with substantial disaster-related needs and is intended to supplement monies that business owners can provide from other sources.

To obtain an application or receive information, interested business owners may call toll-free at 1-800-366-6303 or TDD 817-267-4688 for the hearing impaired.

The deadline for filing an application is June 23, 2003.

Old Fashioned Christmas to be held next Saturday

The second annual Donley County Old Fashioned Christmas Celebration will be held on Saturday, December 7, 2002, in Clarendon. The event is sponsored by the Donley County Tourism Council.

The day begins at 9:00 a.m. with the Breakfast with the Star at the Community Fellowship Church. They will tell a story to the children, sing songs, and make crafts.

Downtown merchants and businesses around town will hold special sales beginning at 10:00 that morning.

The Family Treasure Hunt will also begin at 10:00 a.m. at the Burton Memorial Library. Children can pick up their map at the library and visit each merchant for a special treasure. The hunt will continue until noon. The library will also host a home-made cookie walk at 10:00 a.m., kids craft corral, and storytime.

A Charity Tree Forest display will be set up at the Downtown Ministries Building from 10:00 to 1:00 with information on the Charity Tree Forest. Businesses, organizations, and individuals are encouraged to purchase a tree, decorate it, and then donate it to an organization or individual of their choice. More information will be available at the display.

Nightwinder will be providing entertainment at the Downtown Ministries Building from 10:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.

A craft show, cake walk, face painting, and concessions will be open to the public at 10:00 a.m. at the Old Gym. KEFH will hold a live remote broadcast from the location. Hay rides will ferry shoppers from the activities downtown to the craft show all afternoon. Crafters are still needed for the show. For more information on the craft show, contact Dawn Watson at 874-2141.

The Clarendon College Nursing School in downtown Clarendon will hold a bake and craft show Saturday morning. They will do free blood pressure checks.

Kids can have their picture made with Santa at Janie's Beauty Shop. Poor Boy's Antiques will host an Art and Quilt Show from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. The Chamber of Commerce Open House will also be held during the celebration.

GGCD to discuss cloud seeding

Panhandle Groundwater Conservation District personnel will present information at the Claude Activity Barn in Armstrong County on Thursday, December 12 at noon.

PGCD personnel presented information on the 2002 Rainfall Enhancement Program, which ended on September 30, 2002, at the "Range Management Conference" in Wheeler, on October 24 and to a gathering of Roberts County landowners on October 25.

These meetings are designed to present results of the 2002 season and to receive comments and inputs from District residents.

The meeting will be in conjunction with the Armstrong County Extension Service's "Fall Producers Meeting, and those planning to partake of the meal need to RSVP to 226-3021.

Additional presentations will be given in each county throughout the District in the near future. PGCD invites everyone to attend one or more of these presentations.

The district is interested in the community's comments and would like to share their data with everyone.

Texas medalists

Twelve members of Boy Scout Troop 433 were awarded the Texas Medal - an award that promotes the heritage of the Lone Star State - during a court of honor last Tuesday at the First Christian Church. Shown here are Assistant Scoutmaster and award advisor Steve Carter, Robert Shelton, Dalton Askew, Austin Howard, Andrew Thomas, Derrick Shelton, LaDez Captain, Nathan Gribble, Jeremy Jeffers, Billy Cenicerros, Cody Scrivner, and Unit Commissioner Tommie Saye. War on Terror targets average US citizens Conservative icon Rep. Bob Barr (R-Georgia) is joining the American Civil Liberties Union. Rep. Dick Armey (R-Texas) is also considering becoming a consultant for the liberal-bent ACLU, and now I find my own self thinking about signing up, too. All of this is in response to the growing threat to our liberties precipitated by the War on Terror. Unfortunately, this threat is not from al Qaeda but from our own federal government.

Last fall, the Congress quickly rushed through a bill called the USA PATRIOT Act about a month and a half after September 11. Very few lawmakers actually read the bill, but most voted for it because, well, it's the Patriot Act. What could be wrong with that? A lot.

The law can be used by federal officials to view e-mail subject lines and the addresses of websites you have visited with near impunity and does little to limit the police powers regarding terror investigations. At the time of its passage, privacy experts warned the new law could use Internet addresses to tell prosecutors what books a person reads or topics they have researched, and all of this could be done without a wiretap order.

Now, just last week, the Pentagon admitted it is developing something called the Total Information Awareness Program. The logo for the office is an eye scanning the globe accompanied by words in Latin which read, "Knowledge is Power."

Just the logo scares the hell out of me, but it's nothing compared to what this huge database is designed to do — monitor every purchase made by every American.

That's right, sports fans. We're all suspects now. Each and every one of us might be a terrorist, and none of us can be trusted any more.

According to ABC News, the Pentagon database when completed will "link 'transactional data' — data coming from categories that include finances, travel, education, medical, communications and more — with 'corporate memory,' government agencies and biometric data — fingerprints, facial recognition programs, and other high-tech identification tools."

Civil libertarians say the new TIA program combined with the recently passed Homeland Security Act has gone too far.

"Up until now, data kept on file by the FBI has remained separate from data held by the CIA or the IRS or the Immigration Department, for example," ABC reported. "But the Homeland Security Act creates an office that would link all this data together in a concentration of information on private Americans that is without precedent."

This is like Joe McCarthy meets George Orwell.

Now, many people will say, "I don't care, I've got nothing to hide." Maybe you don't, but that's not the point. Let's consider a hypothetical situation. You're a good ol' boy in Texas. You're a member of the National Rifle Association and were known once to have purchased a Rebel flag for your Civil War collection. You read THE CLARENDON ENTERPRISE online, and it is known that while on that site you read the hunting column of Gary Dziedzic, the conservative observations of Christi Ross, and the weekly ranting of constitutional literalist Roger Estlack, a man who hates big government.

One day your beloved pickup won't start, so, thinking it's out of fuel, you get an empty container and come to town with a friend and buy several gallons of diesel. While you're in town, you pick up that fertilizer you've needed and several rounds of ammunition for that pesky pack of wild hogs that's been eating your peanut crop. All of these purchases you put on your credit card.

As soon as you get home, you find out your favorite aunt is sick and about to die in Dallas. Your truck didn't really need diesel; it actually has a bad starter. You rent a vehicle — a van because it was all they had — and book you a room in a hotel... right around the corner from the Federal Reserve Bank in Big D.

The bells go off at the Pentagon database, and bingo! You're a terrorist. You're a crazy man with guns, ammunition, and the some of the same ingredients used to bring down the federal building in Oklahoma City. But don't worry. After you've been stripped searched, your house has been turned upside down, and you've been held without bail for several months, you might be found innocent and only have to worry about an IRS audit.

That's an extreme scenario, but it shows what could happen if the Big Brother types get their way. Nothing in your life will be off limits.

According to news reports this week, the ACLU has sued the United States government to find out the number of times the Justice Department has "asked libraries or bookstores for lists of purchases or for the identities of those who have bought certain books; how many times law enforcement officials have entered people's homes without letting them know until later... and how many times they have investigated Americans for writing letters to newspapers..."

Nothing in our Constitution gives the government the power to do any of those things without due process. And not even in our Founding Fathers' worst nightmares would they have believed the government they set up would do those things.

It simply comes down to the fact that it's none of the government's damn business what toilet paper you buy, what magazine you read, what prescriptions you're on, what guns you own, or where you're going on vacation. Everyone in this country is — or ought to be — presumed innocent. We are not the enemy, but we are being treated like we are. The American people should not have to live in fear of their own government. Its purpose is to protect us, not to spy on us.

College friends now lunch room adversaries

As I write this, my research paper is due in less than 24 hours, and I am praying without ceasing that something terrible happens soon that will excuse me from having to complete it. By the time it gets to you, it will be Thanksgiving Day, and I will be giving thanks that I can finally be at home and not worry about research papers on Russian fairy tales.

I am fully in the holiday spirit. This morning I got up and put on the fuzzy scarf and mittens I was going to give my sister for Christmas. I was thankful that I hadn't given them to her yet.

On a more serious note, I am truly thankful for all the great friends I have made this first semester at college. They have become nearer and dearer to me than I could ever have imagined.

I feel like I am depriving you of some vital information by not introducing you formally to "my friend" whom I speak of at least once in every week's column.

Her name is Whitney and she is a graphic design major with an art minor. She lives three doors down the hall from me now, but I will move in with her next semester. (We are in the market for a small love seat or sofa if you are looking to get rid of one.)

She most recently appeared in my column as "my friend," the new Cowboy mascot who had too many Texan experiences in one day.

We were the best of friends until things got a little out of hand at the lunch table.

life's Lessons

By Carrie Helms

Sadly, college students are not much more mature than junior high kids. I once saw this dude putting salt in the napkin dispenser so that the next person to pull one out got his tray and his lap full of salt. I thought this was hilarious, and everyone loves a good practical joke, so I picked it up and decided to try it.

It proved to be equally hilarious when I did it, so I continued to fill the napkins with salt almost every day. Every day, Whitney would come in after me, say a little prayer for her food, get a napkin, and fling salt all over herself. This continued to be funny until she figured out that if you pull up instead of out, it flings salt all over everyone else.

Then she discovered that pouring salt in Dr Pepper causes a chemical reaction that makes it fizz over. We went through the mixing food stage, the spilling soda in your lap stage, and putting your finger in someone else's food stage.

After two or three weeks of this happening everyday at lunch, I finally had enough. I called a truce and vowed never to put salt in the napkins again. She decided this was her opportunity to turn the tables and put salt in my eye for a change.

That was the last straw. I got angry.

I know everyone thinks I never get angry, but I did. I told her not to speak to me again until she had grown up ten years and then I might think about it. Then I cracked and laughed, and everyone lost all respect for my rage.

Everything was okay until I told her that I was morbidly afraid of chewed gum and saliva. Did you know that the human mouth has millions upon billions of germs and icky things in it and a human bite is more deadly than an animal bite?

The final blow came when we were all in the car going to the movies. I asked her kindly if I could have a piece of gum. So she took the chewed gum OUT OF HER MOUTH and put it in my hand.

I nearly came unglued! I couldn't drive because there was gum on my hand. I couldn't wipe it off, because I'd have to touch it with the other hand and it would probably fall in the carpet and I would have to scrape it off later. I thought we were all going to die right then and there.

Needless to say, I have not forgiven her, nor will I ever stop putting salt in the napkins. We have moved on to putting salt and French fries in each other's wallet-keychain things.

We will be roommates next semester, and I have hatched a devious plan to exact my revenge when she is sleeping and least expects it. She should be thankful that all I did was put salt in the napkins. (Insert evil laugh here.)

Happy Thanksgiving. May God give you even more to be thankful for.

Some of life's little pleasures are so bad

Many of life's little pleasures would be considered by some as terrible. And, especially for a woman, they would be uncouth. But, I've never been one to care how others view me. So, with that in mind, and with the holiday season just around the corner, here are a few of my favorite things:

1. Sitting down-wind from someone smoking a pipe.
2. Making up words in Scrabble, and no one knowing the difference!
3. Cold beer on a hot day.
4. Eating nothing but grilled steak for dinner.
5. Sampling grapes at the grocery store before buying them.
6. Telling store managers and owners that their customer service really stinks.
7. Flashing my lights to bright when on-coming vehicles won't dim their headlights.

on the Mark

my checkbook, when I know there is a car with its blinker on, waiting for my parking place.

14. Telling telemarketers to give me their home number and then promising to call them back after I've had time to think about what they are selling.

15. Sicking the dog on vacuum cleaner salesmen, Jehovah Witnesses, and magazine salesmen.

16. Seeing Santa actually tell a little kid that he's really naughty and not getting any toys.

17. Telling everyone that I'm sick, so that I can work all day without any interruptions.

18. Asking 'So what's your point?', when people tell long-winded, irrelevant stories.

I know, I know... looks like I'll be getting some coal in my stocking!

It's the holidays - trade fear for kindness

By Mattie J.T. Stepanek

This holiday season, do a random act of kindness. Think to yourself, "You know what? I feel like doing something nice for someone," and then just do it!

Maybe you could walk up and give somebody a hug. Or you could go somewhere you've been invited, even if you don't want to go. You could take time to notice the little things that someone does and tell them how much you appreciate their effort.

You could give a dollar to a needy person or a good cause. You could bake cookies and take them to a lonely neighbor. You don't have to save the world, just commit one little act of kindness!

There's something wonderfully human that comes from giving and helping others. You've probably felt it — that full feeling that swells your heart and makes you feel warm and strong and peaceful. And you know what? That full-heart feeling doesn't go away. It lasts a long time. It's solid and real.

Americans are some of the most generous, giving people in the world. I've seen this for myself, traveling across the country in the past year. I feel proud to be a citizen of a country that cares so much for others.

But I've also seen something else — that fear can make people shut down and back away from giving. Things like corporate scandals and terrorism and talk of war and the economy make people afraid, and then they pull back to protect themselves.

Many charities are hurting now because people aren't giving as much as they used to. People who need help aren't getting it, and that's a terrible thing in a country as blessed as ours.

It's patriotic to help others. America is the country of goodwill, tolerance and peace. Let's truly live up to that image, so we all can have a better future.

This time of year, don't let fear mess up your holidays. Reach out and give to others in many acts of kindness. That full-heart feeling will be one of the best presents you'll ever receive.

ensure that colleges reach out to embrace those students. The campaign will inspire parents, teachers, and communities to support each child's aspirations to prepare and enroll in post-secondary education.

"It starts in the public schools with making the college preparatory program the standard program and recruiting and retaining qualified teachers," Shelton said.

College for Texans is designed to give all people, especially families without any higher education experience, information about the value of higher education, the preparation needed to participate and succeed in college, and ways to find financial aid or otherwise pay for college. The campaign is aimed at helping bring 300,000 additional academically prepared people – beyond the 200,000 additional students expected to enroll based on current trends – into higher education by 2015.

"I think the College for Texans plan is necessary for Texas and will benefit Clarendon College," Shelton said. "It's necessary for us to have an educated workforce. We've got to communicate to current and future students that success in the future is going to be based on further training beyond just a high school diploma."

CC uses grant funds for new computers

The Clarendon College Board of Regents met November 21 and approved spending $92,500 on new computer equipment, which is being paid for by three different grants.

One of those grants is for the Donley County Community Network which benefits several entities and organizations in the county and for which CC is the fiscal agent.

Another grant – the Discovery grant – is a cooperative three-year effort between CC and Amarillo College to upgrade networks ultimately leading to the use of streaming video and other higher Internet functions.

The board considered four proposals and accepted the proposal of Plains Builders to act as construction manager at risk to complete a softball field south of Bulldog Field. No action was taken on selecting an architect for the project.

The board voted to purchase a baseball scoreboard for $17,162. CC has received donations of about $6,000 to date for this expenditure.

The contract between CC and the Donley Appraisal District for the coming year was approved.

Clarendon students collecting box tops

Clarendon Elementary School will be collecting Box Tops for Education and Campbell's Labels for Education again this school year.

As you are doing your holiday cooking, be sure to save the Box Tops and soup labels. First graders will be collecting them on Fridays from each classroom. Functional Living Center students will be counting them. The PTA will use the money to purchase JumpStart software for the school.

If you have any Box Tops or Campbell's Soup Labels, please give them to any elementary student or drop them off at the Clarendon Elementary School office. The PTA hopes to have enough money collected to purchase the software in December.

Enterprise Santa letters deadline approaching

Everyone knows that the Jolly Ole Elf reads the Christmas Issue of THE CLARENDON ENTERPRISE to find out what all the Donley county kids want for Christmas. So kids, it's time to get busy because the deadline for Santa letters is approaching fast.

The Christmas Issue will come out on December 19, 2002. The deadline for all letters to Santa is Monday, December 9, 2002, at 5:00 p.m. Any letters received after that time will be forwarded directly to the North Pole and will not be printed in the Christmas issue.

Children can bring their letters to the ENTERPRISE office located at 105 S. Kearney and place them in our mail slot outside, or they can put them in our special box inside the office. They can also mail them to: Santa Claus, c/o THE CLARENDON ENTERPRISE, PO Box 1110, Clarendon, TX 79226.

The Lion's Tale
By Allen Estack

Clarendon Lions Club held their regular Tuesday noon meeting November 26 with Boss Lion Myles Shelton conducting the meeting. We had 15 members and no guests.

Late night shopping will start December 5. Tickets are available for the Museum Party. Public school turned out Tuesday.

Lion Judy Burlin was elected sight chairman for the club.

There being no further business, the meeting was adjourned.

Not 'sure' whodunit, but acting was great

It's Thanksgiving. I'm sure everyone has their Thanksgiving plans, with half of Clarendon planning to leave town and the other half bringing in enough relatives for the holiday to make up for the ones leaving.

I had a column all written last week, e-mailed it to the paper, only to discover that they didn't receive it. Two days later I figured out why. My e-mail program is messed up so that it refuses to send attachments with the e-mails and won't delete anything. My "Inbox" is stuffed full of spam. So you're going to get last week's column this week.

I'm feeling a little nervous about this column. I learned while attending the college play this past weekend that after a college performance, the participants apparently wait anxiously for the next issue of the ENTERPRISE to read the review in this column. Sort of like actors in New York after the opening of a new play waiting to read the review in the morning papers, only with a longer time span. Of course, since I've never given a bad review (that I can recall), I'm not sure what they're waiting for unless it's to see whose name I mention. And of course I would find out about this habit of the local actors right before this play.

Are You Sure? is a rather bizarre play, the most unusual put on by the Clarendon College Theater Department since I've been attending them. The title gives away the theme of the play, which is apparently to keep the audience guessing and trying to figure out just what the heck is going on. In the opening line of the play, David, wonderfully played by Trey Stevens, says "I love you" to his wife Caroline (Rebecca Hannon in a fabulous performance). He proceeds to tell her how much he loves her while poisoning the wine glass he brings to her. The audience is thinking "Aha, this is a murder mystery." But then, Caroline refuses to drink it. So David does, chokes and falls down dead. And after a blasé conversation between Caroline and her father, David gets up again and isn't dead after all.

Only Caroline and David remained the same characters throughout the play. The other actors, Joel Leimer as Simon, Dedra Christopher as Stephanie, Brandi Havens as Marie, and Jason Myers as Charlie took on different personas every time they showed up on stage. One time Simon would be Caroline's father; the next, he'd be her first ex-husband. Stephanie and Marie took turns as the maid, with Stephanie also turning up as David's secret lover and Caroline's daughter from a previous marriage, and sometimes both. When Marie wasn't the maid, she was Caroline's mother. And Charlie was either Caroline's beloved, despised second ex-husband, or a police detective come to investigate a murder that wasn't.

Nearly every character got stabbed to death at one time or another. They generally got up again, but sometimes they'd lie on the stage just long enough to make the audience think that this time they really were supposed to be dead. Every time I'd think I had a handle on what the play was about — that maybe David was just trying to drive Caroline insane so he could run off with Stephanie — the playwright would throw in another twist.

It was an interesting, fascinating, bizarre play, performed with utterly believable panache by the six actors. They were all so good that from one moment to the next, I was completely convinced that what I was observing at that moment was the real truth, and by the end of the play, I wasn't sure of anything at all. Which of course was the whole point: Are You Sure?

Holiday activities will be coming fast and furious after Thanksgiving this week. I hope you already have the college choir and jazz band concert, with a Christmas Carol Sing-along, marked on your calendar for the afternoon of December 8, the high school musical marked down for one performance (at least) the following weekend, and the school band concert for the afternoon of December 15, before the musical matinee. The events can't conflict because many of the same people are participating in all of them. I'll be looking to see you there.

WIC offers tips to prevent tooth decay, gum disease

CLARENDON — The Outreach Health Service (OHS) Women, Infants, and Children (WIC) program is actively promoting good dental hygiene, particularly for infants and children.

According to the National Institute for Dental and Craniofacial Research, the average 17 year old in this country has more than three decayed teeth. While many factors contribute to whether a person will experience tooth decay, a poor diet and lack of proper dental care are probably the biggest culprits.

"Cavities are caused when bacteria in the mouth mix with carbohydrates — both sugars and starches — to make acids, which then eat away tooth enamel," said Joyce Devereaux, director of the OHS WIC program. "What, how, and when we eat are major factors in tooth decay."

Every time we consume sugars and starches, acids begin to bathe our teeth. This cavity producing action continues for 20 to 30 minutes after eating something sugary or starchy.

As if decaying teeth weren't bad enough by themselves, an even worse threat is periodontal (gum) disease. Current research links gum disease to diabetes, cardiovascular disease, and pre-term, low birth weight babies, which underscores the importance of good oral health.

WIC is a well respected, federally funded program that gives children a health start by encouraging optimal nutrition during the critical stages of development. WIC participants have access to vouchers for healthy foods, ongoing nutrition education classes, meal planning assistance, immunizations, and breastfeeding instruction and support.

Hedley folks enjoy Thanksgiving dinner at school

Someone called me a few days ago and told me I'd made a mistake that I had said it was October. I didn't say it was October, I said it was October weather. To me October weather is mild, sunny days with all the trees in their autumn foliage of orange, gold, and purple. I love it. November weather is cold and dreary with all the leaves gone and the trees bare. According to the weather forecaster, it's suppose to be November weather any day now. I dread it.

Most of the businesses around have all their Christmas decorations out and their windows full of wrapped gifts and shiny balls and swags of lights. What happened to Thanksgiving? I had trouble finding a Thanksgiving card to send to a friend.

Don't misunderstand me. I love the Christmas season but would like to postpone it until after Thanksgiving.

Thanksgiving is a uniquely American holiday. The first Thanksgiving was held in Plymouth, Massachusetts, on November 24, 1621. There has been a Thanksgiving observed every year since. Now the official Thanksgiving day is celebrated on the fourth Thursday in November. At our house, we gave thanks at the beginning of every meal. Even when the meal consisted of boiled chicken and turnips.

Speaking of food. I enjoyed Thanksgiving dinner at the school Thursday. We had turkey and dressing with all the trimmings. Sherry Stone, Rosie Wright, and Ellen Stephens are to be commended for their efforts. It was the same meal they prepared for the kids at school. No wonder they all look so healthy. I believe the sweet potatoes were the best I've ever eaten. Of course they're on my list of food to avoid. Maybe that's why they tasted so good.

There were a lot of people there. I saw Jim and Jean Taylor, Buford and Jerry Holland, Harold and Mary Ruth White, J.D. and Marie Skaggs, and Bill and Juanell Carson.

Doodle and Juanita Langley were there as was Cary Don Neeley.

I saw Mike Graham from the Her-ring National Bank, and I suppose the people with him were from the bank also.

There were a lot of people I didn't get close enough to recognize.

I visited with Margaret Holland a few days ago. She moved to one of the apartments on the west side of main street. I understand her grandson, Brandon Stephens and his family are going to move into her house.

Su-San and I visited Mother Saturday. We took her to the beauty shop and had her hair fixed. It was the second time in her life she'd been to a beauty shop.

I want to wish a happy and plentiful Thanksgiving for everyone.

By the way... hello, Ruby Beekler. I think of you often.

Senior Citizens to close for holidays

By Vida O'Neal

The Donley County Senior Citizens will be closed Thursday and Friday for the Thanksgiving holiday. We will resume meals on December 2.

Our membership drive is continuing. The annual dues are $1 per member. Please let Patty, Vida, or the volunteer at the front desk know when you are ready to purchase your membership. We need everyone to purchase these so you will be able to vote in the election for the Board of Directors on November 27.

Nominees for the board are Bill Hodges, Onita Thomas, Danny Hill, Carolyn Moffett, and Wanda Nichols. The date of the absentee voting will begin on November 20. You must be a member of the Donley County Senior Citizens to vote for our Board of Directors.

The date for the Volunteer Appreciation Banquet is December 12. The invitations will go later this month with all the details.

We appreciate Bob and Pat McCombs going to the food bank in Amarillo and picking up the sweet potatoes that were distributed at the center. We hope everyone got some and enjoyed them. We are lucky to have the Amarillo Food Bank to help out in our community.

The dance club has voted to start dance practice at 6:00 p.m. beginning on December 2.

Get well wishes go to Vada Morrison and Jack Leeper.

Our condolences to the family of Elmo Fortenberry and to Paul Bivens' family (loss of Paul's brother).

BROWN

Funeral services for Myrl Cole Brown, age 90, were held at 11:00 a.m., Monday, November 25, 2002, in the Bykota Baptist Church in Amarillo with Jeff Messer of Amarillo and Ricky Dale Brown, grandson of Mrs. Brown, officiating. Burial was held at 2:30 p.m. in Silverton Cemetery in Silverton under the direction of Robertson Funeral Directors, Inc., in Clarendon.

Mrs. Brown died Wednesday, November 20, 2002, in Amarillo. She was born November 3, 1912, in Tyler, Texas, and was a former long time resident of Borger. She had lived in Amarillo for the past ten years. She was preceded in death by her first husband, Joseph Carnell English, on October 22, 1951, and by her second husband, Fred W. Brown on July 4, 1979. She was a homemaker and a member of the Bykota Baptist Church in Amarillo.

She was preceded in death by two sons, Keith English in 1984 and Robbie Joe English in 1990; one daughter, Norma Lee Brown in April 2002; a sister, Hazel Brandon; and both of her brothers, Mason Cole and T.M. Cole.

Survivors include a daughter, Freida Cooper of Lubbock; three sisters, Jimmie Lee Matheson of Amarillo, Wilma Paxton of Phoenix, Arizona, and Romaine McAllister of Houston; seven grandchildren; 18 great grandchildren; and one great great grandson.

The family requests memorials be to the Bykota Baptist Church, 2033 NE 26th, Amarillo.

Ward

Funeral services for Alma Louise Ward, age 82, were held at 2:00 p.m. on Tuesday, November 26, 2002, in the First Baptist Church in Claude with Rev. Truman Ledbetter, Pastor of the First Baptist Church in Clarendon, and Edwin Campbell of Clarendon, officiating. Burial was held at Claude Cemetery under the direction of Robertson Funeral Directors, Inc., of Clarendon.

Mrs. Ward died Saturday, November 23, 2002. She was born February 7, 1920, in Sonora, Sutton County, Texas, to Stacy Pinky Glasscock and Ronda Dolly Stokes Glasscock. She had been a resident of Claude most of her life. She had resided at the Palo Duro Nursing Home in Claude since June of 2001 and considered the residents and staff her extended family. She married Jack Ward in December 1947. He preceded her in death on July 3, 1994. During her early life, she was very involved in the activities of her children and was a long time 4-H leader. She was a homemaker and a member of the First Baptist Church in Claude.

Survivors include three daughters, Janet Cooper and husband Johnny of Clarendon, Beth Smith of Junction, Texas, and Jackie Matthews and husband David of Amarillo; one son, Stacy Ward of Amarillo; two step children, Patricia Bradbury and Jerry Ward of Kilgore, Texas; one brother, Roy B. Glasscock of Odessa; 14 grandchildren; and 14 great grandchildren.

Casket bearers were Stacy Don Ward, Roy Dale Cooper, Bryan Matthews, Doodie Tyler, Wayne Tyler, and Jack Fields.

The family requests that memorials be to the Palo Duro Nursing Home in Claude.

Elmore

Funeral services for Gene Fontayne Elmore, age 61, were held at 10:30 a.m. on Wednesday, November 27, 2002, in the Community Fellowship Church in Clarendon with Rev. Bryan Knowles, Pastor, officiating. Burial was held in Citizens Cemetery under the direction of Robertson Funeral Directors, Inc., in Clarendon.

Mr. Elmore died Sunday,

November 24, 2002, in Clarendon. He was born and raised in Clarendon with his brother and sister. After he married, he moved away to Amarillo and later to the Dallas/Fort Worth Metroplex where he received numerous outstanding sales awards both as an insurance salesman and sales manager. Upon his retirement, he returned to his roots in his hometown of Clarendon where he enjoyed being reunited with life long friends. Gene's life touched many, and he was a blessing to all those who knew him.

He was preceded in death by a brother, Don Allen Elmore; his father, Jefferson Fontayne Elmore, and his mother, Mabel Eichelberger Elmore.

Survivors include a sister, Mary Elmore Bentley of Austin; a brother, Jerry Lynn Elmore of Houston; three daughters, Regina Elmore Cunningham and husband Scot of Leander, Texas, Natalie Elmore-Morris Holland of Amarillo, and Lisha Elmore Ralston and husband Terry of Canyon; twelve grandchildren; and two great grandchildren.

The family requests that memorials be to the Community Fellowship Church in Clarendon.

Hospital District reaches settlement with Labor Dept.

Officials with the Donley County Hospital District have reached a settlement with the US Department of Labor regarding an investigation into overtime payments at the Medical Center Nursing Home.

The district this week began disbursing $61,547.95 in unpaid overtime wages to 63 current and former employees. Payments to individuals range from less than $1 to more than $4,000 for a few employees.

District Administrator Alan Graham said local officials cooperated fully with the Labor Department and conducted an internal audit of timesheets from August 2000 to August 2002, which was then reviewed by an investigator.

"The good side to this, if there is one, is that the money is going to our employees - the people who do the work," Graham said.

No penalties or fines were assessed and no interest was imposed. The district was given until December 26, 2002, to correct the error.

Graham said most of the 63 people are still employed by the nursing home, but he urged anyone who previously worked at the facility between August 2001 and August 2002 to call his office to see if they are entitled to any reimbursement.

The calculation error came after the nursing department voted in July 2001 to change to 12-hour shifts, and as a result MCNH began calculating payroll in August 2001 based on the FLSA 8/80 rule after relying on informal advice from counsel.

This past August, the Department of Labor advised the district that the previous information received by the district was erroneous, and an investigation was begun.

Fried turkeys are becoming more popular

Thanksgiving is one of my favorite holidays. Getting together with family, watching football, and eating all the food. How can you beat that? Plus if you are a hunter, it's a chance to go hunting with grandsons, uncles, nephews, etc. And if the women are not glued to the kitchen, they also can hunt and enjoy the great outdoors.

Typically, turkey is the main dish when it comes to Thanksgiving, whether it's a wild turkey or store bought. Turkeys can be cooked many ways. They can be smoked, baked, fried, stuffed, and barbecued. Everyone has their favorite ways of cooking them. My favorite turkey is smoked, but I can eat them any way they come.

Here in the past five years, fried turkey has become very popular. I am willing to bet that at least 30% of all turkeys cooked this year will be fried. Now I know this is probably not Grandma's way of cooking the turkey. It's the sons and sons-in-law that will be frying these gobblers, and some for the very first time. There will be a lot of women out there who will be glad that the men are helping with the cooking on Thanksgiving Day. But ladies beware because we have a tendency to forget we are cooking while we are watching football. And sometimes we forget to set the timer to know when the turkey is done. The point I am trying to make is, well, tell Granny it might not be a bad idea to have a backup turkey in the oven. LOL! Now I know there is a bunch of you guys reading this and saying, "Hey Gary! You're one of us. Give us a break!" Well guys, here's the bottom-line. I know how most of us are. And if we mess up the main dish, which would be the turkey in this case, we are going to hear about it until next Thanksgiving.

Frying turkeys is not the hardest thing to do, but it can be dangerous. I have seen some of the biggest messes you can imagine. Please watch out for the kids. They really should not be near the fryer. Also, be careful when putting the turkey in and pulling it out of the hot oil. I have seen

Life
By Gary Dziedzic

turkeys just fall apart right on the ground. It's hard to eat turkey that has a lot of dirt or sand all over it.

Now I know that most men will be congratulated and praised for a great turkey that they have fried. But for those few who may have had one beer too many, or just not paying attention to what they are doing, just be careful and things will work out fine. I hope I have not offended any men out there. I just want you to be the one getting the pat on the back for a good job. Who knows, it might be the ladies who fry the turkey, and I would say the same thing to them.

I would like to share a recipe for the turkey leftovers that my wife makes. I could eat it at least once a month, but usually get it once a year:

Turkey Casserole
4-6 cups leftover turkey, boned

and coarsely chopped

1 can cream of mushroom soup
1 can cream of celery soup
1 small can chopped green chilies

12 corn tortillas cut into fourths grated cheddar cheese
crushed tortilla chips

Preheat oven to 400°. Spray a casserole dish with cooking spray. Mix together both soups and the green chilies. Line the bottom of the casserole dish with half of the cut tortillas. Make the next layer with half of the turkey. Spread half of the soup mixture on the turkey. Repeat these three layers. Top with grated cheese and tortilla chips. Bake about 30 minutes or until bubbly. Let stand about 5 minutes before serving. For variations, you can add sliced mushrooms or sliced jalapenos.

If you have any information or comments, please e-mail me at gdol@nts-online.net. Happy Thanksgiving! Gobble gobble!

Head Start collects items for local PCS office

The Clarendon Head Start collected a total of 2,198 items during their annual canned food drive held recently. The items will be given to the local office of Panhandle Community Services for distribution to needy families.

Head Start held a competition between the elementary classes to see who could collect the most items. Mrs. Gribble's first grade class gathered the most items with a total of 470. Mrs. Campbell's class was second with a total of 406 cans.

Bronco Junior Varsity finishes 4th in White Deer Tourney

The Bronco JV basketball team traveled to Canadian Tuesday, November 19, to take on the Wildcats. Canadian defeated the Broncos, 44-32.

The Broncos got off to a slow start and the Wildcats took advantage of it and led the Broncos by eleven points at the break. The Broncos played tough and fought back in the fourth quarter, but the Wildcat lead was just too much to overcome.

Scoring for the Broncos were: Will Betts 13, Matt McCabe 8, Jessie Rodriguez 4, Morgan Robinson 2, Stephen Ford 2, Tim Sanchez 2, and Bret Carter 1.

The Broncos took part in the White Deer Tournament November 21-23 and opened up against Vega. The Broncos took them to overtime and defeated them, 54-48.

The Broncos trailed by eight points at the end of the third quarter but made that up before the final buzzer sending the game into OT.

Scoring for the Broncos were: Adam Leeper 13, Tim Leeper 12, Ford 7, Grady Swearingen 6, McCabe 5, Betts 3, Michael Bruce 2, Rodriguez 2, Sanchez 2, and Michael Henderson 2.

The Broncos drew Trinity Fellowship in the second round. They played hard but came up short with the final score of 34-45. According to Elam, the Lions were used to beating teams by 40 or 50 points.

Scoring for the Broncos were: T. Leeper 10, McCabe 6, Betts 5, Henderson 5, A. Leeper 4, Ford 2, and Rodriguez 2.

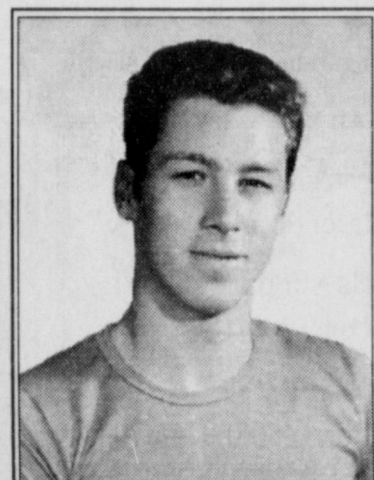

The Broncos advanced to the consolation game against the White Deer Bucks. They fought hard to the end, but came up short 52-60. The game was much closer than the score revealed as the Bucks got the advantage as time was running out.

"I was pleased with our performance," said Coach Brad Elam, "but I think we could have won the tournament. Several players played well. Matt McCabe, Tim and Adam Leeper played solid, and Tim Sanchez is getting much better."

Scoring for the Broncos were: T. Leeper 15, Bruce 10, A. Leeper 8, Betts 7, Henderson 5, Ford 3, Sanchez 2, and Ty White 2.

The Broncos will play December 3 at home against Childress beginning at 5:15 p.m. and December 5-7 in the Clarendon JV Tournament. They will play White Deer on Thursday beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Broncos defeat Canadian; go to 3-2 for the season

By Sandy Anderberg

The Broncos came out and played great ball against the Wildcats Tuesday, November 19, in Canadian. The final score was, 62-44.

The half time score was 30-13 with the Broncos gaining the early momentum.

"We came out against the Wildcats and established ourselves very well defensively," said head coach Wade Callaway. "They were not full strength because of the football playoffs going on; however, we played hard and executed decently—especially in the first half."

Senior Todd Hoeltzel topped all scorers with 19 points; Drew Sell and Jeremy Howard each added 15 points.

The Broncos participated in the Highland Park Tournament November 21-23 and finished in seventh place after losing two games.

The Broncos went head-to-head against 3A River Road in the first round. A flat start for the Broncos ended in defeat by the Wildcats.

"We opened the tournament with a much improved River Road," Callaway said. "We came out very flat defensively against them. It put us in a hole, and we couldn't recover."

River Road would then go on to become the tournament champions.

Scoring for the Broncos were Hoeltzel 16, Judge Smith 13, and Chase Thornberry 6.

The Broncos took on Vega in the second round and played them tough but lost by one point.

"We came up one point short against Vega," Callaway said. "Again, defensively we did not set the tone, and that allowed them to stay in the game."

Smith had 17 points, Hoeltzel added 16 points, and Howard helped with 7 points.

In the final round, the Broncos took on Adrian and soundly defeated them 66-29. Callaway was pleased with their play and their win.

"After two bad defensive games, we came out and played well again. It was a credit to our kids to come out and play the way they did under the disappointing circumstances."

Scoring for the Broncos were: Hoeltzel 24, Smith 15, Patrick Childs 6, Howard 6, Sell 5, and Richard Anderson 5.

The Broncos will be in action December 3 against Childress at home and will take part in the Floydada Tournament December 5-7.

CC women third in tourney

Lady Bulldog Shayla Lacey looks to get past the McClennan Community College defense during last Thursday night's tournament game. The CC women beat McClennan but fell to Midland on Friday. They beat Frank Phillips College to take third place in the tournament. Details of the games were not made available.

Lady Broncos look to improve season at Floydada Tournament

By Sandy Anderberg

The Lady Broncos were on the road last week and went up against a good Canadian team. The Lady Broncos fell short, 51-33.

Canadian took the early lead and led by 12 points at the break. The Lady Wildcats continued to control the game and defeated the Lady Broncos.

Scoring for the Lady Broncos were: Angel Williams 12, Destiny Weatherthorn 8, Brandi Betts 5, Haley Shelton 2, Claudia Thomas 2, Brittney Hall 2, Crystal Lawler 1, and Lacey Anderberg 1.

November 21-23 the Lady Broncos participated in the Highland Park Tournament. They faced off against Adrian in the 1st round and defeated them, 42-34. The Lady Broncos played sound basketball and came out victorious against the Lady Mats.

Scoring for the Lady Broncos were: Lacey Eads 15, Williams 8, Thomas 6, Betts 6, Weatherthorn 4, and Shelton 3.

Facing Canadian for the second time in three days in the second round, the Lady Broncos fought hard, but came up short 29-56. Things continued to go Canadian's way, and the Lady Broncos just couldn't get things going.

Scoring for the Lady Broncos were: Eads 8, Williams 8, Weatherthorn 6, Betts 4, and Lawler 3.

The Lady Broncos faced district foe, Claude in the final round. The Lady Mustangs defeated the Lady Broncos, 52-47.

The Lady Broncos had a slow start in the 1st half, but came barreling back after the break. They made up an eight-point deficit to tie the Lady Mustangs. Claude hit a crucial 3-pointer near the end of the game that gave them the momentum to go ahead and defeat the Lady Broncos.

The Lady Broncos will participate in the Floydada Tournament December 5-7.

Bulldogs beat Lamar College

By Sandy Anderberg

The Bulldogs defeated Lamar College at home Monday, November 18. The final score was 79-62.

The Bulldogs led by 25 points at the break, according to Coach Tony Starnes. They hung on to win by 17.

"This was a really good win for us," Starnes said. "They were extremely big and athletic, but our kids played well against them."

The Bulldogs played in Plano November 22 and 23 in the Collin County Tournament. They went up against Collin County in the first round. CC was down 11 points at the break and fought back to take the lead with just a minute left.

"We missed some free throws at the end," Starnes said. "It was a tough loss for us."

They then took on a team made up of Division I players that was called the International Sports Federation team. The Bulldogs played the exhibition-type team to overtime but were defeated.

The Bulldogs will play Wayland Baptist University Junior Varsity at home on December 2 beginning at 7:00 p.m. Their last game before the holiday break will be December 3 against Lubbock Christian JV in Lubbock beginning at 7:30 p.m.

8th grade Ladies win

The 7th grade Lady Colts traveled to Memphis Monday night to take on the Lady Cyclones. The Lady Colts played hard early on but fell short in the final half of the game. The final score was 22-36.

The Lady Colts only trailed by two points at the break, but it was all Memphis in the 2nd half as Clarendon's shooting went cold.

High scorer was Zan Burks with six points. With four points each were Erin Holland, Jill Cornell, and Sade Faas. Kati Blackburn and Carrissa Crump each added two points.

The 8th grade Lady Colts took control of their game early in the first period and never looked back. They defeated Memphis 31-19.

The Lady Colt will play at home December 2 against Claude and will travel to Wheeler December 9.

Colts defeat Cyclones

The 7th and 8th grade Colts each got the best of the Memphis Cyclones at home Monday, November 17.

The 7th grade defeated the Cyclones, 29-16.

Scoring were: Austin Howard 10, P.J. Ray 6, Dalton Askew 5, Kaleb Shadle 4, Trevor Leeper 2, and Kiefer Burton 2.

The 8th grade Colts were victorious, 37-31. The Colts quickly took the early lead in the game and held their opponent until the final buzzer.

Scoring were: Steven Ballard 20, Brad Sell 6, Andrew Thomas 3, Jon McGlaun 2, Ladez Captain 2, and Chris Tiedeman 2.

The Colts will take on Claude December 2 on the road and play at home against Wheeler December 9. The games will begin at 5:00 p.m.

These businesses proudly support the Broncos on their way to victory.

THANK YOU

The Circle of Friends would like to thank everyone who attended the fundraiser dinner for the Harrington Cancer Center on Saturday night. Special thanks to Roseanne and Ken Mayer and the staff at the Outfitter's Inn for the superb job with the food and service; Ed Montana for providing the entertainment for the evening; and to the host couples. It has been an honor to represent Clarendon on the Circle of Friends board for the last several years. Thank you again for your support.
