Chinese civilians turn back troops

BEIJING (AP) — Tens of thousands of troops marched toward Tiananmen Square Saturday but fell back when confronted by throngs of people who implored the soldiers not to crush the student-led movement for democracy.

An official report said three people were killed when struck by a police car in an accident Friday night. Students linked the deaths to their demonstrations and called for a general strike in protest.

Troops Saturday moved against students whose defiance of martial law and occupation of Beijing's vast square for weeks have spurred a power struggle among China's rulers.

The military advances began about midnight and ended in disarray. More than eight hours later, soldiers still straggled away from the city center to the outskirts, where about 200,000 soldiers were reportedly camped.

Soldiers advanced down Changan Avenue, the capital's main road, but thousands of students and residents used trucks, buses and their bodies to stop them in front of the Beijing Hotel, several hundred yards east of the square.

Other troop convoys coming from other directions also were halted.

The middle of the square remained calm, with the "Ode to Joy" from Beethoven's Ninth Symphony blaring over student loudspeakers.

More than 2,000 people surrounded two unmarked buses, one carrying about 40 soldiers and the other supplies including automatic rifles, 1.2 miles west of Tiananmen.

Some of the people broke into the supply vehicle and removed several automatic rifles, one equipped with a bayonet, and displayed the weapons on a table set up on top of the bus.

A banner draped on the bus read, "These are the angels of peace sent by (Premier) Li Peng government to protect the people of the capital."

There was some pushing and shoving between the troops and students but the soldiers, mostly young men, did not appear to be armed. They wore khaki pants and white shirts and carried canteens.

The crowd alternately cheered and jeered the soldiers as they moved away from the square. Shouts of "What do you think you're doing?" and "Are you of the people?" filled the balmy night.

Said one soldier: "If I'm going to die I want to die on the battlefield, not on Changan Avenue."

Earlier, about 3,000 student bicyclists headed from the square to protest an incident in which a police vehicle ran into a crowd. The bicyclists turned back when they heard that advancing troops were seen on the other side of the square.

Cowboy poet puts own brand on bullriding

LUBBOCK (AP) — Vess Quinlan grew up on a ranch, wears a cowboy hat and boots and writes cowboy poetry. But until recently he feared his fellow poets would never take him seriously.

"I kept quiet so no one ever guessed I never written a bullriding poem," said the sheep rancher from Alamosa, Colo. "I had to do something because I knew I would never be accepted as a genuine cowboy poet without a first-class bullriding poem."

So now his collection contains a poem about an early childhood bullriding experience, a slight variation from the more common theme of the bull no one could ride, rope or brand.

The 16 cowboy poets participating in Friday's National Cowboy Symposium and Celebration write verses not only about bullriding, but about the cowboy's changing way of life and the barren land they try to tame.

But lest things get too melancholy, they toss in plenty of humor and whimsy, such as John Underwood's verse about a dream of a scientifically enhanced steer with "eyes as big a truck headlights, each horn weighed a thousand pounds."

"Cowboy poetry is looking at our flaws and foible and laughing at ourselves," said Baxter Black, who quit his work as a cattleman and veterinarian in the early 1980s to become a full-time cowboy poet.

Hail damages Dawson County cotton crop

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Hail-bearing clouds bombarded cotton-rich Dawson County and reportedly wiped out some young cotton crops and damaged houses and cars.

"We had hail that piled up to two feet deep" in the Key and Midway communities east of Lamesa, according to Chief Investigator Tommy Garcia of the Dawson County Sheriff's Department. "It's cold and foggy," he said.

The hail was driven by strong winds.

Before the hail, cotton farmland was dry, noted Garcia.

"What cotton we did have, it is damaged," he said.

The hail ranged from pea-size to baseball-size.

"All the farmers probably will replant and have a fresh start," Garcia noted, despite the lateness of the cotton-planting season.

Thursday night, a barrage of hail struck the Cotton King Gin community west of Lamesa, Garcia noted.

"We had as many as 42 high-line poles reported to be down in the county," he said.

Friday, the hail caused "structural damage — roofs and broken windows," Garcia said.

Apple chemical Alar taken off market immediately by Uniroyal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The manufacturer of Alar, the apple chemical that stirred a national furor over a possible cancer risk to children, said Friday it is taking the substance off the U.S. market immediately.

Uniroyal Chemical Co. continued to defend the chemical as safe but said continued use on apples "is causing doubt and confusion about the safety of America's food supply."

Apple growers and processors had pleaded for such action because fears about Alar had drastically cut into apple industry sales.

The company said sales of daminozide, which is marketed under the name Alar, would continue to about 70 markets outside the United States, including some that export apples and apple products to this country.

However, a spokeswoman for the International Apple Institute said most imported apples are green ones, such as Granny Smiths, which are not treated with Alar.

Supplies of the chemical held by U.S. customers may be returned for refunds, the company said.

The Environmental Protection Agency said late Friday it has reached agreement with Uniroyal on a plan to monitor the removal of Alar from the U.S. market, although there is no government ban on its use. The EPA said it also will notify foreign governments about agency concerns about Alar.

"The action taken by Uniroyal will significantly reduce risk from exposure to daminozide," said Victor Kimm, the EPA's acting assistant administrator for pesticides and toxic substances.

The EPA has said it plans to ban use of daminozide in food products because tests in laboratory animals have indicated the chemical can cause cancer.

Trooper ensures seniors don't run out of gas

MONAHANS (AP) — Some lucky graduating seniors got a real gas out of a graduation gift from a Texas Department of Public Safety trooper.

Trooper Eric White, 23, dug into his own pocket and purchased gift certificates for gasoline from a Monahans filling station.

When White saw high school seniors driving on the streets this week, he pulled them over and gave them the certificates.

WEATHER SUMMARY

HAIL

The northern side of Lamesa was struck by "a lot of hail," he said. Some damage was reported at Lamesa Municipal Airport, where aircraft were hangared, he said.

Later Friday night, weatherman Pat Tyra of the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport reported heavy storm clouds and strong winds in the Welch community northwest of Lamesa.

Tyra also reported "considerable crop damage" in the Lamesa area, where cotton is the principal agricultural commodity.

By late Friday night, the massive storm watch that had covered Southeastern New Mexico, the Texas Panhandle and much of West Texas had dwindled somewhat to 50 miles north and south of a line from 70 miles northwest of Midland to 50 miles northeast of San Angelo.

The tornado watch was called off, but the thunderstorm watch was to continue in the Midland-Odessa into early today. The tornado watch had been signaled north of a line from Abilene to Big Spring to the Guadalupe Mountains and northward to halfway between Lubbock and Amarillo.

A tornado had been sighted in the Big Spring area, but no damage was reported.

High winds rather than a tornado figured in the jack-knifing of a piggyback tractor-trailer rig on Interstate Highway 20 two to three miles east of Coahoma about 7 p.m. Friday, according to a spokesman for the Howard County Sheriff's Department. A small construction-site building was overturned in that area.

No blanket rainfalls to head off an impending drought in the West Texas cotton country were reported.

In the Rankin area, where there is far more ranchland and cotton acreage, "just enough rain" fell to wet the people attending the 40th annual Junior Rodeo in the Dub Day Rodeo Arena on Friday night, reported Upton County Sheriff's Dispatcher Grace Harris.

The Rankin-McCamey area is well known for its lack of rainfall.

While other parts of West Texas may be in for an occasional flood, "We get a sprinkle down here" in Rankin, figured Mrs. Harris.

Stanton missed out on thunderstorms and rain.

"So far, we're lucky," said Martin County Sheriff's Dispatcher Tommy Dill. "We haven't had any bad weather — no weather at all in Stanton, other than the cloudiness."

A slight sprinkle was reported in Andrews.

David and Jason Harris reported no sudden bursts of rain in the Spraberry area southeast of Midland.

For today, the weatherman is calling for partly cloudy skies, "very warm" temperatures and a 30 percent chance of mainly afternoon thunderstorms, some of which may be severe.

The peak temperature today is to be in the mid-90s, and winds are to be southerly at 10 to 20 mph and gusty.

The probability of thunderstorms tonight is to be 40 percent, and the low temperature is to be in the mid-60s. Chance thunderstorms on Sunday is to be 20 percent. The temperature is to peak in the upper 80s.

STATE

Thunderstorms rumbled across the southeast Texas Panhandle and most of the South Plains for a second day Friday, and hail pelted parts of West Texas.

A tornado watch was issued for much of northwest Texas Friday evening amid an increasingly unstable air mass.

Parts of north and southeast Texas had thunderstorms and showers while isolated showers were reported over seconds of the mid- to upper gulf coast. A few widely scattered showers dotted the mountain areas west of the Pecos.

The only parts of the state with sunny skies were in the far west and southwest sections.

Temperatures at 3 p.m. were mostly in the 70s in the rain-cooled areas and in the 80s and 90s elsewhere.

Dalhart had the state's lowest high temperature at 70, while Beeville, Cotulla and Laredo each recorded a high of 98 degrees.

The National Weather Service said partly to mostly cloudy skies were expected through Saturday, with a chance of scattered thunderstorms over most sections of the state.

Jewish settlers beat peace activists

JERUSALEM (AP) — Jewish settlers Friday attacked and beat Israeli peace activists trying to deliver food and medicine to Palestinian children in Gaza Strip refugee camps. In the West Bank, soldiers reportedly shot and killed a Palestinian teen-ager.

Also Friday, Israeli media reported the army plans to restrict the movement of settlers in the West Bank suspected of taking part in vigilante raids on Palestinian communities.

The developments followed a raid Monday by Jewish settlers on a Palestinian refugee camp. A 13-year-old girl was shot to death in the rampage.

An Israeli court in Kfar Saba, near Tel Aviv, Friday ordered five Jewish seminary students suspected in the rampage jailed pending further investigation.

The seminary's spiritual leader, Rabbi Yitzhak Ginsburg, justified the slaying and said the blood of Jews and non-Jews cannot be equated.

"We have to recognize that Jewish blood and the blood of a goy are not the same thing," he told Israel radio. "Every law that is based on equating goys and Jews is completely unacceptable."

Zevulun Hammer, the minister of religious affairs, condemned Ginsburg's statement. He said Jewish commandments forbid the spilling of innocent blood, regardless of a person's religion.

At least 70,000 Jewish settlers live in 130 enclaves in the West Bank and Gaza Strip, which Israel seized from Jordan and Egypt in 1967. About 1.7 million Palestinians live in the territories.

The peace activists, mostly from the coastal city of Haifa, were met at the army-controlled Erez Junction checkpoint entrance to the Gaza Strip by about 100 Jewish settlers carrying Israeli flags.

The settlers tried to stop the activists from unloading their gifts of powered milk and rice, and several fistfights ensued.

One activist was seen with blood running down his face. The roadside was littered with ruptured sacks of rice and broken boxes of milk after the confrontation.

Settlers began shouting "PLO get out!" and tearing apart signs that read "Food for the Children of Gaza."

The activists shouted to the settlers "Fascists go home!" before the army separated the groups.

The army refused to let the activists deliver the goods and also refused to keep the supplies until they could be picked up by Gazans, the army spokesman's office said.

They were intended for about 140,000 people confined to their refugee camp homes by army curfew.

A United Nations Relief and Works Agency official said people were being fed in the camps and there were no food shortages. He asked that his name not be used.

Sarah Doron, a member of the leftist Mapam Party who participated in the delivery attempt, told Israel radio the goal "is simply humanitarian."

Also Friday, settlers from the West Bank enclave of Ariel attacked Israeli journalists visiting the area, Israel radio reported. They accused reporters of holding leftist views and beat one on the head with a pistol, the radio said.

Iowa sailor says crewmate spoke of suicide

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sailor who survived the USS Iowa explosion said Friday that crewmate Clayton Hartwig, who died in the blast, had once talked about suicide because he was being teased about their friendship.

Gunner's Mate 3rd Class Kendall Truitt said on ABC's "Nightline" that he didn't take Hartwig seriously and that his friend never discussed blowing up a ship.

"The way he described, you know, killing himself would have been just simply (to) walk off the ship," Truitt said. "He never talked about an explosion."

NBC News reported earlier Friday that investigators of the Iowa explosion that killed 47 sailors are focusing on Hartwig because he was believed to be despondent at the time, and because he showed off a timing device and was quoted by a crewmate as saying, "If you've got to go, go in a blast."

Truitt said he remembered that Hartwig "was a little down, but it was over a year and a half ago. He had at one point (talked about suicide) but it wasn't very serious ... I think we all talk about suicide at least once in our life, and at the time the divisions were razzing him about how close friends we were."

NBC said Hartwig, 25, was the last man to touch the gunpowder that exploded in the ship's second turret on April 19.

NBC reported that a witness told investigators Hartwig showed off a $15 timer available in hobby stores and said that if it were rigged to a battery it could set off the ship's gunpowder and start a chain of explosions.

But Truitt's attorney, Ellis Rubin, said on "Nightline" that he believed the explosion may have been caused by an inexperienced crew working with gunpowder he contended was unstable because it was stored improperly.

Navy spokesman Lt. Cmdr. Chris Baumann said he could not comment on the network report, and expressed regret that leaks about the investigation were distressing relatives and ship's crew.

NBC said Hartwig was often despondent and aloof, and that he reportedly told the witness, "If you've got to go, go in a blast. You go quick. You go painless."

Hartwig could have inserted a homemade detonator between bags of gunpowder in the breech of the turret's center 16-inch gun, NBC said. Navy explosive experts have successfully tested a similar timing device in a simulation, the network added.

Investigators reportedly said that such a device could have given off smoke or made a noise that could have served as a warning to other sailors. It had been known earlier that the last words of sailor Richard Lawrence, spoken into a telephone, were, "We've got a problem in here."

A different voice was heard saying something that appeared to be "smoke smoke smoke, help help," NBC said.

Many sailors' bodies were found in defensive positions, hunched over with their arms covering their heads, the network said.

In addition, NBC said investigators found Hartwig had written letters that spoke of his death and the destruction of the second turret. The network quoted sources as saying they believed Hartwig lived in a fantasy world and told relatives of an upcoming transfer to London that the Navy said he had not been given.

NBC said Truitt was heard by two other sailors as saying immediately after the blast, "I can't believe he actually did it."

ALAR

Uniroyal has disputed the findings. And James Wylie, company vice president, said Friday, "We want to emphasize that we have not changed our opinion about the safety of daminozide."

The EPA estimates that from 5 percent to 15 percent of the U.S. apple crop is treated with Alar, a growth regulator that improves the apple's appearance and gives it a longer shelf life.

Wylie, of Uniroyal, said at a news conference, "Our voluntary action is taken to ease public confusion and, we hope, to let the proven scientific process work."

"Daminozide has become the focus of a needless controversy that is causing doubt and confusion about the safety of America's food supply — a needless controversy that is hurting the apple industry and the American public," he said.

The company indicated that it intends to resume selling Alar if a government scientific review, scheduled to be completed next year, concludes the chemical is safe.

Apple growers applauded the decision by Uniroyal, but some suggested the company should have made the move much earlier. The International Apple Institute estimates that growers have lost more than $100 million because of the apple scare over Alar in recent months.

"They are darn late in getting to this point. We've been after them for a long time and consumer confidence has been affected," said John McAlister of Tree Top Inc., the nation's largest apple juice maker.

McAlister said in Yakima, Wash., that Tree Top's sales have dropped more than 20 percent since the Alar controversy began in February, even though Tree Top and other processors have said repeatedly they do not use Alar-treated apples.

"This action is most welcomed ... since it will allay any remaining concerns consumers may have about small levels of Alar in apples and apple products," said Larry Davenport, executive director of the Processed Apples Institute.

CHINA

Government-run Beijing Radio reported Saturday that three people were killed in the accident. The official Beijing Daily newspaper said Saturday that two people were killed and two were seriously injured.

The newspaper said the police car was traveling too fast on wet pavement but gave no other details. Witnesses said the accident occurred at about 11 p.m. Friday.

They were not the first deaths linked to the demonstrations. It was reported about two weeks ago that a soldier was killed in a traffic accident involving troop movements connected to the protests.

The Beijing Independent Student Union, in an announcement on the square, called for a general strike and a demonstration later Saturday to protest the deaths.

About 300,000 people crowded into Tiananmen Square Friday evening when Ho Te-chien, a singer from Taiwan who defected to China in 1983, and three others began a hunger strike atop the martyrs' monument in support of the students' 6-week-old campaign for democratic reforms.

Premier Li Peng declared martial law on May 20 to quell the burgeoning student-led protest movement, but the declaration only triggered greater support for the students.

The numbers of student protests inside the square had declined dramatically in the past week, with about 10,000 maintaining a round-the-clock vigil. But Friday evening, huge masses again converged on the plaza, the symbolic heart of China.

POETS

A verse, called "The First Cowboy's Fall from Grace," is told by the first cowboy created by God. His idyllic and profitable lifestyle crumbled after being tempted by a coyote to taste chicken. With no money, a skinny herd and nothing to eat Black's cowboy remained optimistic.

"His spirit was undaunted in spite of his distress, as witnessed by his comment when he added this p.s.

"I'm not one to give up hope, it's not the cowboy way. If this drought would end tomorrow I think I'll be OK.

"My luck just might be changin' if I can just stay sane. Because the coyote talked to Noah and he thinks it's going to rain."

Black recites his poems, which run as long as 10 minutes, from memory almost effortlessly. However, on a recent appearance on "The Tonight Show with Johnny Carson," he was so nervous he considered using a teleprompter.

"But I decided, no, that's not the cowboy way," he said.

"I'm prolific and I love memorizing my stuff. It's like telling a story," Black said.

Other poets, such as 85-year-old state poet laureate Carlos Ashley, focus on the life of the sodbreaker and rancher.

Ashley, in what he said would likely be his final public recitation, read a piece he wrote 50 years ago about a character shunned by most literary figures — the outhouse attendant.

"He gave that extra service whether one hole or two," the poem read. "I can hear him now, a-whistling like a harbinger. To tell that soon he'd be at our house. And we'd have to wait a spell."

While some city-slickers may think real cowboys are an endangered species, the cowboy poet knows better.

"Cowboy poetry and the old Western songs will continue to be popular," Black said. "As long as there are cows and people eat hamburgers, there will be cowboys and my audience will exist," said Black.

Tenneco pays $5 million to government

HOUSTON (AP) — Tenneco Inc. Friday paid the government $5 million, one of the stiffest civil penalties ever levied by federal officials, as settlement for the deliberate destruction of some 1 billion cubic feet of natural gas at a Gulf of Mexico drilling platform.

"This is a matter of cheating the American people — first by wasting an important natural resource and second by not paying America for using it," Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan said. "We will not tolerate this kind of behavior."

Houston-based Tenneco said the incident involved about 1.17 billion cubic feet of gas over about a nine-month period ending Feb. 3, 1987.

"This was an isolated incident and occurred without authority or the knowledge of Tenneco's executive management," spokesman Lew Bullion said. "The flaring was in clear violation of the company's corporate policy, which is to comply with all rules and regulations governing its oil and gas operations. There were immediate corrective actions taken to halt the loss of gas and appropriate disciplinary measures were taken."

Bullion said he did not know how many people were involved, describing it only as "a small group."

"We are proud of our record and remain committed to a corporate policy that mandates compliance with the letter as well as the spirit of the rules and regulations governing our businesses," J.L. Ketelsen, Tenneco chairman, said.

"Our investigation shows Tenneco executive management in no way condoned this," Interior Department spokesman Steve Goldstein said Friday. "But what occurred was wrong. Tenneco management has been cooperative ... and understood they were going to have to pay a fine and it was going to be a large one."

Goldstein, however, said the $5 million fine, delivered Friday by Tenneco to federal Minerals Management Service officials in New Orleans, might not be the end of the matter.

"In our negotiations, there is ongoing dispute between the department and Tenneco as to the value of the gas," he said. "The secretary wanted to make sure we preserved the right to collect more royalties."

Tenneco estimated royalties lost because of the destruction of gas at $115,000.

Tenneco last year sold its oil and gas operations for more than $7 billion. The incident cited by the Interior Department occurred between May 1986 and February 1987.

Interior officials said the gas was destroyed by "flaring," a process that burns off unwanted gas. Tenneco said the action resulted in no health, safety or environmental damage.

According to the department's inspector general's office, Tenneco burned off the gas because prices were too low to make it profitable to bring it onshore.

The company's lease agreement with the government, however, made Tenneco responsible for paying royalties on all gas and oil.

Nuclear plant dedicated amid controversy

■ California plant's fate in voters' hands, Page 7A

BAY CITY (AP) — Houston Lighting & Power Co. executives and government officials Friday dedicated the South Texas Project, Texas' first nuclear power plant — 16 years after it was started, nine years after it was supposed to be finished at nearly $5 billion more than what it initially was to cost.

"We have built an outstanding plant, in compliance with regulatory requirements, and equally important, in accordance with our own high expectations for quality," Don Jordan, Houston Lighting & Power chairman said. "After every visit here, I leave with the feeling that Texas, and the nation, can be very proud of the South Texas Project."

U.S. Energy Secretary James Watkins, in a videotaped message played at the ceremonies Friday night, said his department and the Bush administration believed nuclear power would continue to be a crucial part of the national energy strategy.

"The environmental concerns raised by the burning of fossil fuels, coupled with an increasingly dangerous dependence on imported oil, demand further utilization of nuclear power," Watkins said. "Commercial operation of the STP nuclear power station will clearly demonstrate that nuclear power is a viable, safe and clean source of energy for the United States."

More than 200 people attended the ceremonies where they were entertained by a country-and-western band and wined and dined under two large circus-like tents that were erected directly across the road from the plant. The guests also were treated to a fireworks show.

"When brownouts and shortages make the headlines in the next few years, the new stories will not be focusing on the Texas Gulf Coast," said U.S. Rep. Greg Laughlin, whose district includes the plant. "When job layoffs and production cutbacks occur in other regions of the country our region will have the energy resources to pick up the slack."

"It's a milestone, clearly, for HL&P," said Robert Martin, regional administrator for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission in Arlington. "You have to remember this plant was in serious trouble in 1979 in their view and in our view.

"But the commission itself now has commented that they view the facility very favorably although there's never a guarantee it's going to stay perfect," he said. "But it's something they (the utility) should be proud of."

Conspicuous in their absence were officials from the three other utilities participating in the project — Austin, San Antonio and Central Power & Light. Houston utility officials said representatives from those three utilities were invited, but it was uncertain why they chose not to attend the Friday night festivities.

The twin-reactor, 2,500-megawatt was estimated in 1973 to cost under $1 billion with completion in 1980. But after contractor and engineering problems, disputes with environmentalists, years of licensing hearings and revisions in designs, it's not until now that construction crews are packing their gear for good.

During all that time, the cost of the plant ballooned to $5.8 billion.

Houston Lighting & Power, in seeking to pass along the plant costs to its customers, has made the quality of the plant a key issue in its request to the Public Utilities Commission to raise rates now by $446 million and add two more increases later.

Priest says man had reached 'breaking point'

AUSTIN (AP) — A man who killed himself and his three children in a Memorial Day fire had reached his breaking point and should be forgiven despite the horror of his act, said a priest during a memorial Mass.

The Rev. Bobby Hajovsky presided at a Mass for the children Thursday at St. Thomas More Catholic Church.

"Some of us are stronger than others, but all of us have our breaking point," said Hajovsky.

Authorities say John Donald Dunlop, 40, barricaded himself and the children in a bedroom of the family's southwest Williamson County home, knocked the children unconscious and then set the room on fire with gasoline.

Illian Dunlop, 9, Ivan Dunlop, 7, and Sacha Dunlop, 5, were mourned by about 100 relatives, friends, neighbors and classmates. Also attending were a half dozen firefighters.

Dunlop and his wife, Maria Teresa Thompson, 42, had been having financial and marital difficulties, investigators said.

Ms. Thompson, who had been asleep in another bedroom, tried to push open the children's door after hearing screams about 5:30 a.m. Monday, but she could not, investigators said. She also tried to get in through a window but the fire was too hot.

"What John did was cruel and horrible," Hajovsky said. "But he was also a human being. It's difficult for us to accept that in a society that tells children to be perfect."

The priest said it is impossible to understand why Dunlop acted as he did.

"I don't understand why he did it, and you don't. We do not know what was in his heart," Hajovsky said. "We only know the consequences. And we need to forgive in order that we might be healed."

Suspect in burglaries apologizes for torching gay group's offices

DALLAS (AP) — A man arrested on burglary charges and believed to have been involved in the setting of several fires wrote a letter of apology to a gay advocacy group whose headquarters was gutted in a February blaze.

Dallas Fire Department Capt. Randy Sanders said Dale Wesley Biddy, of suburban Carrollton, told authorities he had been involved in about two dozen Dallas-area burglaries, including five in which he set fires in attempts to cover up the burglaries.

Biddy, 26, remained jailed Friday at the Lew Sterrett Justice Center in Dallas in lieu of $30,000 bond on burglary charges filed in Farmers Branch.

Biddy surrendered to police Thursday after presenting the letter to the Dallas Voice, the gay community newspaper. The letter was published in Friday's edition of the newspaper.

The Feb. 23 blaze at the alliance headquarters came after a computer and two printers were stolen, Sanders said. The fire caused an estimated $1.5 million in damages to the headquarters and adjoining businesses.

"I am directly responsible for the fire that destroyed the Dallas Gay Alliance, AIDS Resource Center, Round-Up Saloon and Union Jack," Biddy wrote. "I make no excuses nor ask for pity. I have no justification for my actions and wish only to make a public apology to those whom I have hurt, directly or indirectly, by my acts of greed and stupidity."

The six-alarm fire also destroyed three storefronts in the strip shopping center where the alliance headquarters was located.

"He told me he thought he was setting a little office fire that would cover up the burglary," said Dennis Vercher. "He said he never meant to burn the place down."

Biddy said he felt such remorse after the fire that he pitched in and helped the Round-Up Saloon move to a new location, Vercher said.

Sanders said authorities believe Biddy "was taking the computers to the school, telling them he was a repossessor, and trying to sell the equipment."

Farmers Branch authorities arrested Biddy after officials at the school he was attending reported that he was offering to sell the school a fax machine that had the name of a local computer company.

William Waybourn, president of the Dallas Gay Alliance, said he was relieved a suspect has been arrested in connection with the arson, but he remains "bitter" about the blaze.

"People don't realize that this fire cost us more than our physical facility," Waybourn said. "For the past three months we have all been suspects. Some people thought we did this to ourselves."

Tunnel for SSC could take year to build

AUSTIN (AP) — Digging the deep, 53-mile tunnel for the super collider could take more than a year, say Dallas engineers bidding for the job.

To finish the oval tunnel in that amount of time would take simultaneous work by nine tunneling machines with 12-foot diameter drill bits, the engineers said in a report published in the Austin American-Statesman Friday.

"You wouldn't construct it with just one machine because it would take forever," said Carl Montana, a geology engineer with EBASCO Services Inc., one of 17 firms bidding for jobs constructing the giant atom smasher to be located near Waxahachie.

Montana also said the tunneling probably wouldn't provide many jobs.

"The crews would not be large, but they'd probably be working around the clock," he said. "You won't even know we're there. We'll be passing under roads and people, even rivers."

Phil Zaccheo, an engineer with the company, said the tunneling, at an average depth of 150 feet, would be started at several points along the projected path. Navigation devices would be used to keep the machines from wandering off course.

Zaccheo said the boring machines might average 130 to 150 feet per day. A total 271,900 feet needed for the tunnel, which would be shored and then lined with concrete.

STATE IN BRIEF

Amoco, Exxon top oil, gas producers

AUSTIN (AP) — Amoco and Exxon were the top oil and gas producers, respectively, in Texas for a 12-month period ending March 31, chairman Kent Hance of the state Railroad Commission announced Friday.

Amoco led all oil producers with an average daily production of 190,270 barrels, or 10.14 percent of oil produced in the state. Exxon was second with an average daily production rate of 164,312 barrels, 8.75 percent of total state production.

Exxon was the top Texas gas producer for the 12-month period, averaging 911.2 million cubic feet per day, which represented 7.75 percent of total state production, Hance said. Mobil was second, averaging 623.4 million cubic feet per day, or 5.3 percent of all gas produced in the state.

AA workers OK contract

DALLAS (AP) — American Airlines' ground support workers overwhelmingly accepted a new, four-year contract that makes the airline's mechanics the highest paid in the industry and includes an unusual "flex benefit" insurance package, the Transport Workers Union said Friday.

The pact, which also accelerates some new workers more quickly along the airline's wage scale, was approved by a vote of 13,103 to 4,157, or 76 percent in favor, according to union spokesman Jim Gannon in Washington.

An earlier American offer, valued at an increase of about $610 million, was rejected by a 12,143-to-5,140 vote.

Gannon said all locals approved the contract, ranging from a high of 91 percent at American's home base of Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport to a low of 66 percent.

American's first proposal included provisions where employees would begin contributing toward their own health insurance, a key sticking point in earlier negotiations.

The new contract solves that conflict with "flex benefits," where the company will allocate to each employee a certain amount of money to be used toward benefits and the worker will be able to select the desired coverage.

Insurance board rebuilding

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Board of Insurance, under new management and with its trip through legislative hell over, now begins the task of rebuilding internally and taking up new regulatory weapons set by the Legislature.

At the start of the 1989 regular legislative session in January, the board was in turmoil over the failure of National County Mutual Fire Insurance Co., a Dallas-based auto insurer that was more than $50 million in debt.

Through House and Senate committee investigations and three consulting reports costing nearly $500,000, lawmakers discovered the board had known for years of the company's problems, but had failed to act.

Photographer records photos, thoughts of AIDS victims

ATLANTA (AP) — Billy Howard says he expected to find anger and bitterness among AIDS sufferers when he began a book of photographs and thoughts of people with the deadly disease. But it wasn't there.

Howard, director of photography at Emory University, traveled the nation taking pictures for 18 months for his book, "Epitaphs for the Living: Words and Images In The Time Of AIDS."

The book, which is being published soon, has 68 photographs and handwritten comments by the AIDS sufferers.

"What surprised me the most was the spiritual nature of a lot of (the comments)," he said Wednesday in a telephone interview from New York, where he was to appear today for a taping on "CBS This Morning." The interview will be broadcast at a later date.

"I was surprised how few had a bitter tinge to them at all, how many said they had discovered so much about themselves while dealing with the disease," he said.

"They were really more concerned about reaching out to other people than in eliciting sympathy for what they are going through."

He said word of the project spread, usually by word of mouth, through the AIDS community, and he let people decide to participate before he contacted them.

About half of his subjects are from the Atlanta area. Others are from Washington, D.C., New York, Chicago and San Francisco.

Southern Methodist University is publishing the book, which should be on sale in mid-June. A display of some of the photos opens June 5 at the International Center of Photography in New York.

Howard said he got the idea for the book while doing photo assignments for Emory.

"I was looking for a project that was meaningful to me," he said. "My dentist had died of AIDS the year before and I was never able to do anything for him. This seemed like a positive thing I could do."

He said the subjects he photographed had the option of backing out of the project up until the time of publication, but only a couple did so.

"People who wanted to participate saw it as a venue to make a statement to other people," Howard said.

Voters to decide fate of nuclear plant

NATION

AP Laserphoto

In an election Tuesday, voters in the Sacramento (Calif.) Municipal Utility District will decide whether to keep open or shut down the Rancho Seco Nuclear Power Facility.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Voters who gave the troubled Rancho Seco nuclear plant a reprieve last year decide next week whether the utility passed its probation or should be shut down.

Critics of "the ranch," fearful of nuclear accidents and angry at a $400 million repair cost and rising utility bills, want to close the 15-year-old plant permanently. But supporters say the plant's bad days are over since it has gotten new management.

The managers of Rancho Seco acknowledge they face a difficult task in convincing the public the plant can operate safely and efficiently. "The greatest challenge we face today is perception," says Joseph Firlit, chief executive officer at Rancho Seco.

Residents of Sacramento County and parts of neighboring Placer County will vote on the proposition Tuesday. Though the vote is not binding on the municipal utility that owns Rancho Seco, a majority of the utility's elected board members have said they will follow the will of the people.

The nuclear industry, fearful that closing one of the few publicly owned plants in the nation could strengthen the hand of critics of privately owned plants elsewhere, have raised $580,000 to push for its continued operation. Opponents have raised $111,000, according to the latest campaign reports.

Critics dismiss arguments that the plant has been transformed since the 1985 overcooling accident that caused a 27-month outage. "We've spent enough on Rancho Seco, and we've given it its chance," says Peter Kent, one of the municipal utility board members who favors the shutdown.

Since its restart in April 1988, the plant has again been nagged by a series of mechanical problems that has shut it down or forced cutbacks in power production. Overall since restart, the plant has run at about 47 percent of its operating capacity.

Last June, shortly after the restart, voters narrowly granted the plant a probationary period, allowing it to operate pending another vote this year.

Continuing problems show the plant has flunked probation, say representatives of Campaign California, an environmental group formed by Assemblyman Tom Hayden and his wife, Jane Fonda, that has pushed for the plant's closing.

Plant spokesmen Kerry Shearer, however, says the plant has won praise from the Nuclear Regulatory Commission for improvements since the accident and that the restart last year was one of the smoothest in the nuclear industry.

Supporters also point to an offer from two companies involved with creating Rancho Seco. Bechtel Power Corp. and Babcock & Wilcox are seeking a contract from the municipal utility district under which they would share in management responsibilities and risk losing part of their fees if the plant runs poorly.

A poll, commissioned by The Sacramento Bee late last month, indicated that 46.2 percent favored closing the plant, 36.5 percent favored keeping it open, and 17.4 percent hadn't formed an opinion.

The overcooling accident in December 1985 was the most serious of the many problems that have plagued the 913-megawatt plant since it was built at a cost of about $375 million. It opened in 1974.

The plant's control room was rattled by a chorus of alarms as operators futilely fought to halt a rapid temperature drop in the nuclear reactor vessel.

Nuclear waste dump site examined for fault

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Energy Department said Friday it is reconsidering the possible existence of a geological fault near its bomb-testing site in Nevada. If confirmed, the fault could kill plans for building a nuclear waste dump there.

The department, which previously had concluded there was no such fault, sent a team of scientists to Nevada last month to review existing data on the question "to make sure we didn't overlook something" said Ginger King, a department spokeswoman.

The review was prompted by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, which raised questions about the department's decision to dismiss a 1982 study that reported the possible fault, said Carl Gertz, manager of the Yucca Mountain project, which is to be the nation's first permanent dump for high-level nuclear waste.

"There doesn't appear to be a fault," Gertz said in a telephone interview, bu : it's not possible to know for sure until the department begins actual digging work. That work can't start until Nevada grants certain permits, he said.

The site borders the Nevada Test Site, where underground nuclear tests are conducted.

The NRC, which must approve a license for the waste repository, also recommended more extensive study on whether the site contains significant amounts of gold, Gertz said.

Any gold mining activity could disrupt the repository, but Gertz said preliminary Energy Department studies indicated no significant amounts of any valuable minerals at the site, which is about 100 miles northwest of Las Vegas. He said additional studies were planned, but that the NRC wanted even more.

The dump is intended to entomb 70,000 tons of highly radioactive waste from commercial nuclear reactors and from the Energy Department's nuclear weapons plants. Numerous sites were under consideration early in the decade, but in 1987 Congress decreed that the search would be limited to Yucca Mountain.

The Nevada state government strongly objects to the project and has accused the Energy Department of disregarding the 1982 study that said there may be an uncharted fault parallel to the Ghost Dance Fault, which cuts through the site.

In a letter to Gertz Tuesday, the Nevada Nuclear Waste Project Office said the 1982 report contains "strong evidence" of a fault intersecting the area where two exploratory shafts would be drilled. Earthquakes could destabilize the holes.

The state contends that if the additional fault were confirmed it would disqualify Yucca Mountain as a waste dump because the Energy Department's site criteria rule out sites with underground facilities closer than 100 feet from a fault.

The NRC raised a similar point, according to Sue Gagner, a commission spokeswoman. She said the department was told in a meeting in early May that "it looks like they may be violating their own criteria." She said the NRC would publish a lengthy analysis of the Energy Department's preliminary site study in July.

Gertz said a team of researchers would spend the next two months reviewing all the existing scientific data on the possible existence of an uncharted fault, but that the key to ending the debate was getting started with exploratory drilling.

"Rather than rehash all their old data we want to get on the mountain," he said.

King said Energy Secretary James Watkins had begun reviewing the project plans and schedules in light of Nevada's objections and a series of delays in the program that have drawn the ire of the Congress and the nuclear utility industry. She said Watkins had not yet come to any conclusions about possible changes.

Pension funds at risk, says Labor official

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than $1.8 trillion in pension funds potentially are at risk because of poor regulations and inept enforcement of federal laws, the Labor Department's inspector general said Friday in warning of a possible "nightmare" dwarfing the savings and loan crisis.

"In this vital, asset-rich area, the risk of ignoring the potential consequences of inadequate enforcement is monumental," J. Brian Hyland said in urging Congress to immediately investigate potential abuses and shortfalls of federal pension laws.

"These are savings American workers have set aside for their future," Hyland said in a report to Congress. "These workers trust that the government will protect these funds by holding the managers and trustees of their pension funds accountable. They deserve no less."

The report came under attack from a group involved in pension policy and from the Labor Department itself, which criticized Hyland's comparison of pension funding and the S&L crisis and said a number of initiatives designed to improve enforcement of pension laws were under way.

"Secretary (Elizabeth) Dole is committed with the full agreement and cooperation of Inspector General Hyland, to a fundamental and comprehensive review of our law enforcement efforts," the department said in a statement.

Also, a spokeswoman for the federal agency that insures private pension funds said Hyland appeared to be overstating the government's — and taxpayer's — potential liability in the event of a major pension funding crisis, the likelihood of which she said was "remoter than remote."

'Most Wanted' credited with nabbing fugitives

NEW YORK (AP) — Critics have dismissed it as "trash TV," "TV tabloid journalism," or media-inspired vigilantism.

But because of "America's Most Wanted," a suspect in the drug-related torture-slaying of 12 persons in Mexico was nabbed in Arizona in April. Last month, an escapee from a California jail charged with jewel theft and kidnapp g was caught in Rapid City, S.D.

And this week, an 18-year search for John E. List, wanted in connection with the shooting deaths of his mother, wife and three children in Westfield, N.J., ended in Richmond, Va., after the case was featured on the Fox television program on May 21 and prompted some 300 phoned-in tips.

This ratings mainstay of the fledgling Fox network has turned 22 million Sunday viewers into bloodhounds, responding to televised mug shots and dramatized re-enactments of crimes with up to 5,000 phoned-in tips every week.

Since "America's Most Wanted" first aired 15 months ago, 79 of the 154 fugitives profiled have been captured, and 48 were the direct result of viewer tips, said Michael Linder, the program's executive producer.

TV fare like this is a long way from "The Ed Sullivan Show," the Sunday sine qua non of a generation ago. After 67 episodes, "America's Most Wanted" has attracted both strong supporters and detractors.

Citing the program's success in drawing attention to fugitives, Los Angeles County officials last February began circulating descriptions and photographs of wanted criminals among all county employees.

The FBI, despite initial skepticism, is now a firm supporter of the TV program and has cooperated with producers on a number of cases, including the List case.

"The FBI has told us that there is no way to estimate the number of Americans alive today because of 'America's Most Wanted,' " said Linder in an interview.

"There is a benefit that goes beyond simply arresting fugitives. These are among the nation's most violent criminals. Capturing them means prevention of murders and other serious crimes," he said.

But the American Civil Liberties Union has raised questions about the program's fairness.

"Our worry is that the program portrays the actual crime prior to an indictment or conviction in a way that suggests guilt," said Colleen O'Connor, national director of public education. "It has the effect of validating the accusation. That could preempt the right to a fair trial in some cases."

Suspect's wife hopes 'God will see us through' murder probe

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The wife of an accountant accused of murdering five relatives in New Jersey 18 years ago remains devoted to her husband even as she helps authorities trace his quiet life as a churchgoing fugitive.

"I hope somehow this is not true, and if it is, he was so stressed out that something snapped. I am devoted to him. I hope that somehow God will see us through this," Delores Clark said.

Through a family friend, she gave her statement to The Richmond News Leader, which published it Friday. She then secluded herself, begging for privacy, her friends and minister said.

The FBI said fingerprints showed her husband of four years, known as Robert P. Clark in the Richmond suburb of Midlothian, actually is John E. List, 63. He was arrested Thursday at his office and charged him with fleeing to avoid prosecution for the Nov. 9, 1971, murders of five family members in Westfield, N.J.

Clark was arrested on a tip resulting from the Fox Broadcasting Co. television show "America's Most Wanted" dramatizing the slayings on May 21.

List did not change his appearance or his profession after the killings, but moved to Colorado, where he met his current wife at a Lutheran church function in 1977 and married her eight years later, authorities said.

"His wife had no idea who he was," said John McGinley, head of the Newark, N.J., FBI office. "Her reaction was disbelief and shock."

Convicted sex offender vows to stay in Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Donald E. "Buz" Lukens, rebuffing calls for his resignation, announced Friday that he intends to stay in Congress while he fights to overturn his conviction of having sex with a 16-year-old girl.

"I refuse to allow the lies and deceit of one delinquent individual to ruin me. I am now fighting for my life," the Ohio Republican said in a statement released by his office.

Lukens, 58 and divorced, was convicted May 26 of contributing to the delinquency and unruliness of a minor, a misdemeanor. The Franklin County, Ohio, jury found him guilty of having sex with the girl at his Columbus apartment last November.

Lukens said in his statement that his accuser had "fantasies of 'getting even with the establishment.'"

But the court refused to allow him to bring up evidence he wanted to present to raise doubts about her reliability, the conservative lawmaker said.

"My legal counselors assure me that prospects for a reversal in my case are excellent," he said. "Only at that time will I make my final decision regarding any future political activity," he said.

Lukens' statement made no mention of a report Thursday by a Columbus television station that another teen-age girl said she also had sex with Lukens, in 1985 when she was 15. The station said Lukens paid the girl for sex on five or six occasions.

"I'm going to say everything I couldn't say for eight years," she vowed.

Carhenge not up to snuff

ALLIANCE, Neb. (AP) — The creator of a replica of England's prehistoric Stonehenge monument made of old cars must pave an entranceway and renew liability insurance or the site could be torn down, the city Planning Commission said.

A letter was sent May 31 to James Reinders, a petroleum consultant in Houston, asking him to meet the requirements of a special use permit within 30 days or the permit could be revoked by the City Council and the monument destroyed.

Reinders' son, also named James, said Friday that his father will try to comply.

Carhenge replicates the Stonehenge monument with 16 cars buried trunk down with their front ends sticking about 11 feet in the air. Six more cars sit atop some of the other cars, forming arches. The monument is about 1.5 miles north of Alliance on U.S. 385.

Nancy Reagan visits D.C.

WASHINGTON (ap) — Former First Lady Nancy Reagan was welcomed back to Washington for the first time Friday with a shower of hugs, kisses and friendly barbs about "the good old days" from friends and former staffers.

Dressed in a signature red Aldofo dress, but arriving bit late without the crack advance team that had once plotted her every move, Mrs. Reagan attended an elegant afternoon tea party, eager to catch up on the four months that have gone by since she and President Reagan bid Washington adieu.

"I've got a big scoop for you — I've gained four pounds!" the still-thin Mrs. Reagan exclaimed to one reporter as she swept through the group of well-wishers.

Mrs. Reagan was in Washington to address a Library of Congress symposium on first ladies' memoirs, and she promised that her own book — expected out in the fall — will be a page-turner.

Bush calls European mission 'triumph of hope'

Bush

KENNEBUNKPORT, MAINE (AP) — President Bush returned from his European mission Friday calling it "a triumph of hope" for a world moving beyond the Cold War.

Bush said the Western alliance is on the offensive for peace and must stay there. After months during which Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev held the initiative in arms-control proposals, Bush claimed it back.

"I am now returning from Europe with a message for the American people — a message of hope," the president said on arrival at Pease Air Force Base in nearby New Hampshire. "We have a great and historic opportunity to shape the changes that are transforming Europe."

The president said the opportunity grew from the strength and resolve of the United States and its allies, and "also because of the power of ideas — especially one idea which is sweeping the communist world: democracy."

Bush was greeted at the air base by 2,000 people, including military personnel and children let out of school for the event, after his seven-hour flight from London, final stop on his week-long journey to four nations.

He told the cheering crowd that his conventional arms cut challenge to Moscow is not an arrogant one but a bold, fair, good-faith appeal.

It was an upbeat finale to an upbeat week for Bush. Pronouncing the European trip an unqualified success, Bush lieutenants predicted its impact would carry over into domestic affairs.

"This helps," said John Sununu, the White House chief of staff. "We're going to try to take full advantage of it."

Bush was asked on Air Force One if the trip would give him greater respect. "I never thought I suffered from lack of respect," he said, then laughed. "You mean a little like Rodney Dangerfield?"

Bush began his day by planting a pin oak tree on the lawn behind Winfield House, residence of the U.S. ambassador in London, to commemorate his visit. Then he, Mrs. Bush and a six-helicopter entourage flew to Heathrow Airport to board Air Force One for the trip home.

Bush chatted with aides and reporters, watched a movie, caught a nap. Mrs. Bush showed off a gift from Queen Elizabeth, a framed, autographed photo of the queen with one of the renowned White House puppies. It was taken in May when she visited friends of the Bushes at their horse farm near Lexington, Ky.

The Bushes plan to return to Washington Sunday after relaxing over the weekend at their Kennebunkport home.

The centerpiece of the trip was the NATO summit in Brussels on Monday and Tuesday, and Bush's presentation there of a proposal for drastic reductions in East-West conventional forces in Europe, cuts he said should come by 1993.

Chicago's Craig Hodges, left, tries to hold off Detroit's Joe Dumars during NBA playoff action Friday night in Chicago.

Pistons eliminate Bulls to set up Laker battle

CHICAGO (AP) — Isiah Thomas got the Detroit Pistons into the NBA Finals for the second straight year.

Now he says it's up to teammate and close friend Mark Aguirre to win the championship against the Los Angeles Lakers.

"I told Mark it was my job to get us to the Finals and now it was his to win it for us," said Thomas, who scored 17 of his 33 points in the fourth quarter as the Pistons won the Eastern Conference finals 4-2 with a 103-94 victory over the Chicago Bulls Friday night.

The Pistons, who haven't allowed 100 points in 15 games, including 13 straight in the playoffs, won the final three games of the best-of-7 series. They fell behind 2-1 when Michael Jordan scored 46 points and led a fourth-quarter Bulls comeback in Game 3.

Jordan scored 32 in the finale after being held to 23 and 18 in the fourth and fifth games. But the Bulls had to play all but the first minute without starting forward Scottie Pippen, who was hospitalized after being knocked out when he was hit in the eye by Bill Laimbeer's elbow.

Detroit reached the NBA Finals for the second straight season after failing to make it for 30 years. The championship series starts Tuesday night at the Palace at Auburn Hills, Mich.

The Pistons once again will face the Los Angeles Lakers, who came back from a 3-2 deficit last year to win their fifth championship in the 1980s.

Chicago trailed 79-69 in the first minute of the fourth quarter before rallying with a 10-2 spurt.

Jordan started the run with two baskets in five seconds. After a jumper by Thomas, John Paxson hit a 3-pointer, a free throw and a long jumper, cutting the deficit to 81-79.

Thomas then scored 10 points in a span of four minutes as the Pistons rebuilt their margin to 94-84 with 4:40 remaining.

NBA Playoffs

The Pistons took the lead for good in the third quarter as centers Laimbeer and James Edwards combined for 15 points in the period.

Laimbeer, averaging 7.0 in the series, scored nine points in the first 5:43 of the period as the Pistons opened a 66-59 advantage. Six points in less than a minute by Edwards helped the Pistons extend the margin to 74-65 before they settled for a 77-69 lead going into the final 12 minutes.

The Lakers are 11-0 in the playoffs this season, but the Pistons' 63-19 regular-season record gives them four scheduled home games in the Finals. Los Angeles was 57-24.

Chicago found inspiration after Pippen was knocked out as his replacement, Brad Sellers, scored eight points and Jordan 12 during a 26-12 spurt that gave the Bulls a 26-14 lead with 2:36 left in the first period. Sellers went into the game averaging only 3.2 points during the playoffs.

Detroit's depth started to reassert itself late in the first quarter as the Pistons scored 12 consecutive points, all but two of them by reserves, for a 26-26 tie with 11:04 left in the half.

After going more than seven minutes without a field goal, Chicago got three 3-pointers from Hodges in a span of 2:09 for a 37-33 lead midway through the second quarter.

Starters then scored all of Detroit's points during a 16-8 streak that put the Pistons ahead 49-45 before two free throws by Jordan completed the half. The Bulls trailed by only two points despite missing 13 of 19 shots in the second quarter, including 1-for-6 by Jordan.

Shockers shock Arkansas' Hogs

Top-seeded Florida State beats North Carolina

OMAHA, Neb. — The Arkansas Razorbacks knew exactly what had beaten them in the College World Series.

"Too much Brummett," said Arkansas coach Norm DeBriyn. "He had us off-balance and, as a result we didn't score or even threaten much."

Wichita State's Greg Brummett allowed four hits in 7⅓ innings, Jim Newlin got his 16th save and Jim Audley hit a two-run homer as the fourth-ranked Shockers stopped No. 5 Arkansas 3-1 in the first round Friday night.

Wichita State coach Gene Stephenson shrugged off his pitchers' performances.

"First-game jitters affect hitters a lot more than pitchers," he said. "I don't think comments were necessary."

The victory puts Wichita State, 64-15, against top-seeded Florida State, 53-16, at 7:30 p.m. Sunday. In an elimination game at 3:40 p.m. Sunday, Arkansas, 50-15, meets eighth-seeded North Carolina, 41-17-1 after losing to Florida State 4-2 earlier Friday.

Audley put Wichita State up 2-0 in the third inning with his fifth homer of the season after Pat Meares doubled off Arkansas starter Mark Swope.

Arkansas took one run off the lead in the sixth when Greg D'Alexander hit his eighth home run of the year for only the second hit off Brummett, 16-2.

Meares doubled again in the seventh and moved to third after P.J. Forbes flied to right. A wild pitch by reliever Mike Oquist scored Meares.

Infield singles by Scott Pose and pinch hitter Grayson Liles in the eighth prompted Wichita State coach Gene Stephenson to go to bullpen ace Newlin, who is 5-0 with an earned run average of 0.82 in 33 games. Newlin got two groundouts to end the threat.

"Newlin is the best stopper in the country," Stephenson said. "We have great confidence in him."

Florida St. 4, North Carolina 2

Gar Finnvold's pitching helped get top-seeded Florida State into the College World Series. His glove helped the Seminoles past North Carolina.

Finnvold turned a bases-loaded smash into an out in the first inning, averting a big inning, and allowed four hits through 7⅓ innings as the Seminoles advanced in the opener of the NCAA Division I championship.

The win moved the Seminoles, 53-16, into the winners' bracket Sunday night. North Carolina, 41-17-1, plays an elimination-round game Sunday afternoon.

North Carolina loaded the bases in the first inning on singles by Brad Woodall and Ron Maurer and a walk to Jesse Levis. But Finnvold, 10-3, helped avoid a big inning when he knocked down Dave Arendas' liner and turned it into a forceout. Woodall scored, but the potential for a big inning was defused.

"We had an opportunity to score more in the first and eighth innings," North Carolina Coach Mike Roberts said. "Finnvold's play in the first was the key play of the game. If it goes through, we're in business."

"That ball was a rocket," Finnvold said. "I thought it was still in my glove. Once I got my feet wet, I settled down."

The Tar Heels did not get another runner to second base until the eighth inning.

"I'm just glad he was able to keep his composure and get out of the inning with only one run," Florida State coach Mike Martin said. "Actually, I thought he would finish.

"Gar Finnvold can pitch with anybody in the country."

Buddy Cribb evened the game in the bottom of the second off loser John Thoden, 12-1, when he led off with his 12th homer. The Seminoles took the lead in the third on a walk, a double by Pedro Grifol, an RBI single by Bob Reboin and Brian Gilliland's RBI grounder.

Florida State added another run in the seventh when Bob Bargas led off with a double, went to third on a groundout and scored on an errant pickoff throw by Levis, the catcher.

Thoden, losing his first game of the season, allowed six hits in 7⅓ innings.

Darren Villani led off the eighth for the Tar Heels with a single, the first hit off Finnvold since the third inning. Steve Estroff walked and Ryan Howison sacrificed, putting runners at second and third.

SkyDome opens doors tonight

TORONTO (AP) — After a turbulent week of speculation that it wouldn't be finished on time, the SkyDome officially opens its doors — and roof — tonight.

And organizers are promising a show to remember to commemorate the event.

About 55,000 people are expected to show up for the gala opening ceremonies. The proceeds, from tickets priced from $57 to $122, will go to charity.

The gala of 5,000 entertainers will be hosted by television star Alan Thicke and will feature jazz musician Oscar Peterson, impressionist Andre-Phillipe Gagnon, rock group Glass Tiger and the Toronto Symphony Orchestra.

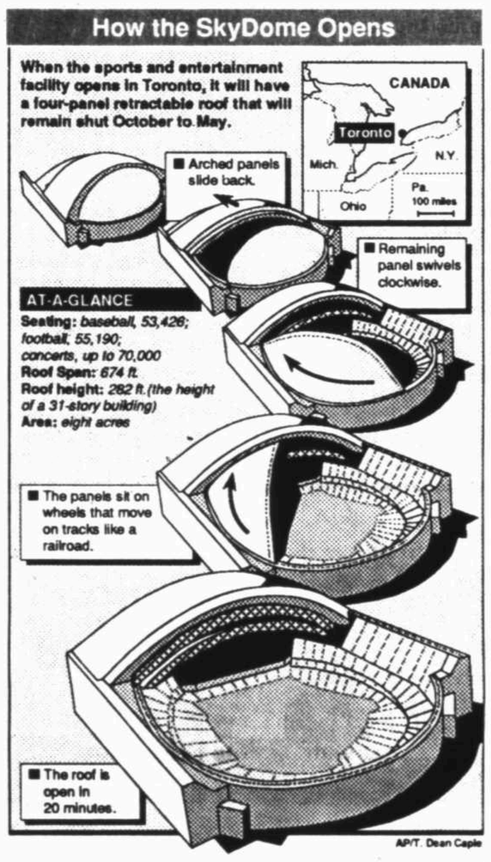

Thousands of people lined up for blocks to walk through the $500 million stadium Friday, part of an open-house "dome-warming" party attended by Premier David Peterson.

As recently as Thursday night, the official opening was in still in danger of being scuttled as workers raced to fix a litany of building- and fire-code infractions.

At a tense city council meeting Thursday, Toronto's chief building inspector refused to issue an occupancy permit for the downtown stadium, citing exposed wiring, faulty fire alarms, missing sprinklers and piles of garbage.

The development caught SkyDome president Chuck Magwood off guard. Still wearing his construction boots and hard hat, he stormed out of city hall, vowing to have the work done that night.

Phillies, Padres make major deal

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies have traded Chris James to San Diego for John Kruk and Randy Ready, Padres manager Jack McKeon confirmed Friday night.

The deal was to be announced after the Phillies' game against Montreal, which went into extra innings.

Kruk, a first baseman-outfielder, is batting .184 with three home runs and six runs batted in for 31 games. Ready, a reserve infielder, is hitting .254 with no homers and five RBI in 28 games.

James, who has played third base and the outfield, began the day batting .213 with two home runs and 19 RBI.

"It's done," McKeon said after Cincinnati beat the Padres 9-4 Friday night. "It gives us some power from the right side. Whether James will play third base or left field, I don't know."

Kruk did poorly this season and played sparingly.

"He (McKeon) called me in and said I wasn't going to get much opportunity to play. He said he would try to trade me somewhere where they felt I had an opportunity to play," Kruk said. "I'm getting a chance to play. But we had a chance to win and Philadelphia is struggling right now."

The Padres, 29-26, started the night two games behind San Francisco in the National League West. The Phillies began the day at 18-31 and in last place in the NL East, 9½ games behind Chicago.

Missions, Angels split double dip

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

By the second inning of the first game, the Midland Angels were playing for a doubleheader split. Thanks to Dan Grunhard, they got it.

San Antonio not only beat the Angels 13-3 in the opener of Friday's doubleheader at Angels Stadium, but left scars all over what had been a virutally unscratched relief corps. The Missions tagged starter Rich Morehouse for five runs in 1⅓ innings, then roughed up Vinicio Cedeno and Gary Buckels for eight more runs, before it was over, and settled matters early with a 7-0 lead after two innings.

In the nightcap, Midland jumped in front 5-0 in the second on Grunhard's wind-defying blast to right field for three runs. And then Dan came through again in the late innings.

Tim Burcham took a 6-0 lead and four-hit shutout into the sixth and had two out when he hit Luis Lopez with a pitch. With Brian Traxler and Adam Brown coming up, that was like sticking your chin out for Mike Tyson.

Traxler doubled home one run with his sixth hit of the night and then Brown unloaded his sixth homer of the season over the right field fence and it was suddenly 6-3 and anybody's game.

Luis Merejo came on and Carlos Hernandez' triple made it 6-4 before the Missions were quieted.

GRUNHARD took the danger out of being close in the home sixth, following two out singles by Gary DiSarcina and Scott Cerny off the heat-throwing Tim Scott, who started the inning in relief. That set the stage for Grunhard's two-run triple to right and when Chris Cron followed with a double, the Angels and Merejo were home free and Burcham had his fourth win in five decisions.

Grunhard had seven total bases and for five rbi in the nightcap. The shame is that his two-run homer in the fifth of the opener was wasted.

The second game wound up with pitching coaches Claude Osteen of San Antonio and Gary Ruby of Midland managing the teams.

San Antonio manager John Shoemaker was thumbed in the second after left fielder Everett Graham raced deep into foul territory to catch Manny Francois long fly. Mike White, between second and third, had to run back to first. He made it, but missed second base on the way. Shoemaker thought there must be some mistake, but his protest brought an early shower.

MIDLAND Manager Max Oliveras' exit was a bit more theatrical and again involved a catch by Graham in left.

The Midland outfielder bounced off the wall in gloving Hernandez' bid for extra bases. The way he hit the ground it looked like a severe injury, but, obviously hurting, he managed to flip the ball to centerfielder Reed Peters for the throw. It was a hard play to call for anyone not on the field and third base umpire Mike Mathison ruled the ball had been dropped.

SportsFest flies, but could improve

Grimes

SportsFest '89 has been over for about a week now. Now it's time to put our heads together and decide how we can do it better the next time — if there is a next time.

Not that Midland's first try at a multi-sport festival was bad. But there are some things that could be brushed up on, even though the athletic events were well-attended.

There were a few logistical problems. The opening ceremonies were a total washout, especially the Parade of (nine) Teams. Next year, the organizers need to induce Midland United Girls Softball and the Midland Junior Baseball Association to schedule no games on the night of opening SportsFest ceremonies.

The potential is there for a touching ceremony. But that potential wasn't realized this year.

Organizers might also want to hold the Fest on a non-holiday weekend next year. There's just too many people who have plans on holiday weekends — especially out-of-town plans.

A three-day weekend could come in handy for something like this. But the majority of events were held on Saturday, anyway.

SportsFest needs to try and avoid a scheduling conflict with established community events, such as the Ranchland Hills Stampede, the presence of which just flat ruined the SportsFest golf tournament.

Likewise, you really can't hold SportsFest when COM has its big swim tournament. The solution would be to incorporate an established event into the SportsFest fold. It probably wouldn't work with a golf tournament, but it might with COM.

Why can't the Permian Basin Road Runners Club postpone the Tall Town 10K one week to make it coincide with SportsFest? The SportsFest cross-country race was nice, but let's face it, Tall Town is the PBRRC's premier event and as such, would be a welcome addition to SportsFest.

Other possibilities to flesh out SportsFest might be soccer, softball, tennis, and karate tournaments. But the key is getting these details nailed down in the fall before people start making their competitive plans for mid-year. The problem is finding time to do the carpentry.

One factor that will always limit the available dates for SportsFest is the availability of Angels Stadium. The Angels have to be out of town, for reasons that should be as plain as the noses on your faces.

If there's no way to avoid scheduling SportsFest when the Angels are homing, you have to have the Opening Ceremonies, carnival and musical acts at Memorial Stadium, which would cause parking and public relations problems with the residents of that neighborhood.

Some say having SportsFest when the Angels are at home would be a drawing card. I don't know about that. Having the Angels in town would detract from the efforts of the individual athletes.

I hope SportsFest '89 organizers don't take too much issue with these ideas. I'm really trying to be civil about it. I just want to help with some constructive suggestions. After all, these people did a good overall job with this huge project.

There's just some things that can be done better.

1918 — Dutch Leonard of the Boston Red Sox pitched his second career no-hitter, beating the Detroit Tigers 5-0.

1932 — Lou Gehrig became the first American League player to hit four home runs in a game as the New York Yankees beat the Philadelphia Athletics 20-13. The game was overshadowed by John McGraw's resignation as manager of the New York Giants.

Graf beats French rain

PARIS (AP) — On a day when beating the rain was more of a challenge than beating her opponent, top-seeded Steffi Graf swept into the fourth round of the French Open tennis championships Friday.

But Tim Mayotte, the seventh-seed among the men, came out cold after a long delay and lost to unseeded Ronald Agenor of Haiti 3-6, 7-5, 5-7, 7-5, 6-2.

No. 2 Boris Becker, playing more aggressively after a 5½ hour rain interruption, completed a 7-5, 6-1, 6-2 victory over Jeremy Bates of Britain and moved into the round of 16.

He was joined by Jay Berger, who became the first American to reach the fourth round by downing Jaime Yzaga of Peru, 6-4, 6-2, 6-2. Berger is one of six American men still in the tournament, in either the third or fourth round, the most in five years.

In another rain-interrupted match completed Friday evening, No. 16 Guillermo Perez-Roldan of Argentina beat Italy's Francesco Cancellotti 7-6, 2-6, 7-5, 4-6, 6-2, his second straight five-setter.

In the women's field, No. 10 Helen Kelesi of Canada defeated Gretchen Magers of the United States 6-4, 2-6, 6-3; No. 9 Katerina Maleeva of Bulgaria downed Martina Pawlik of West Germany 4-6, 6-4, 6-1; and No. 8 Conchita Martinez of Spain beat Sophie Amiach of France 6-3, 6-3.

FIVE OTHER seeds had their matches suspended until Saturday. They were No. 3 Stefan Edberg, No. 6 Jakob Hlasek and No. 11 Alberto Mancini among the men; and No. 2 Gabriela Sabatini and No. 15 Mary-Joe Fernandez among the women.

As a cold drizzle fell on Roland Garros, Graf opened the day's action by blasting Nicole Jagerman of the Netherlands 6-1, 6-2 in one hour and two minutes on Center Court.

She then sprinted into the locker room as the drizzle turned into a downpour and forced suspension of play.

"It was awfully cold out there because of the rain, so I was trying to finish it as soon as possible," Graf said. "The conditions were difficult, but I was lucky to get the match over with in time."

"That match was perfect for me," she said. "I was really lucky to play first, before the rain started. Now I don't have to wait around. I can leave and do other things."

Mayotte, who has never made it past the second round of this clay-court tournament, was leading Agenor two sets to one when their match was suspended by darkness Thursday night. They were tied 3-3 in the fourth set.

The two were scheduled to resume play after Graf's match, but the rain forced them to wait in the players' lounge all afternoon. When they finally came onto Center Court shortly before 6 p.m., the temperature had dropped to 54 degrees and the red clay was even slower than usual.

Agenor, ranked No. 30 in the world, kept Mayotte at the baseline with deep, sharp groundstrokes. He also picked opportune times to rush the net, closing out the set with a stretch backhand volley.

Agenor was dazzling in the fifth set, hitting sparkling passing shots and winners all over the court. At one point when Agenor made an error, Mayotte threw up his arms in mock triumph.

"I thought he played almost picture perfect tennis," Mayotte said. "He made passing shots, lobs and serve that he didn't make yesterday."

Agenor said the delays worked in his favor.

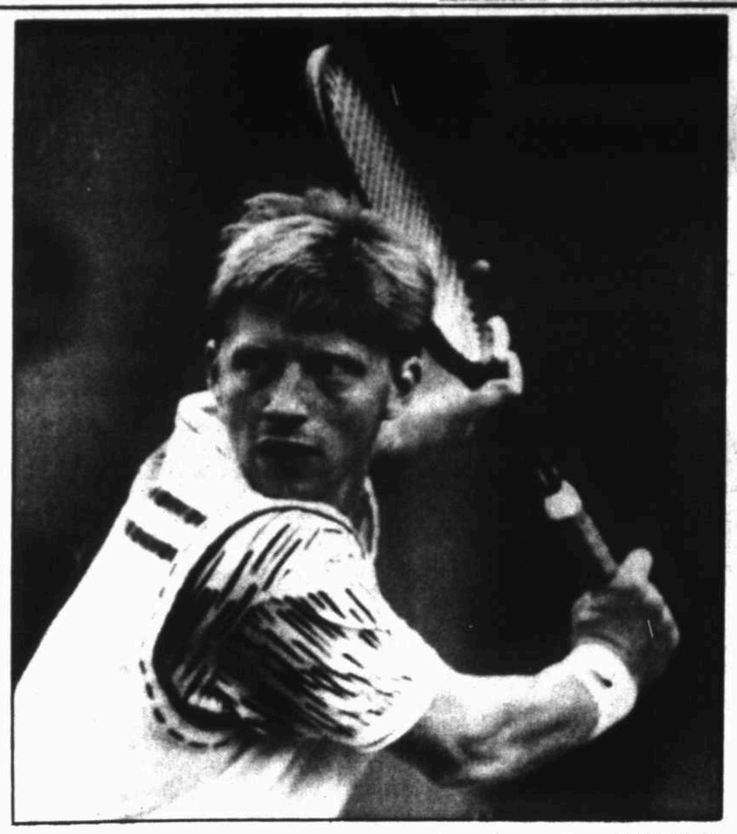

"The most important thing is I stayed very calm," he said. "I wasn't nervous or mentally stressed by the long wait. Mayotte played very well yesterday. But clay is not his favorite surface and he didn't play as well today. I played at my best."

Becker, who was leading Bates 5-4 when the rains came, dropped only three games after the break.

"It's terrible when you have to wait like that," he said. "You don't know when the rain is going to stop. But the rain turned out pretty good for me today. Before I was playing too defensively. After we came back, I decided to go more for my shots."

Berger, a 22-year-old from Plantation, Fla., who upset Jimmy Connors in the second round, said his easy victory over Yzaga is another sign of the ability of young American players to do well on clay.

"Andre Agassi, Michael Chang and I are all playing well at the same time," he said. "Put us all together, and the U.S. is going to do well here."

Second-seeded Boris Becker easily gained the round of 16 in the French Open Friday with a win over Jeremy Bates.

Sowell breaks 200 mark

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Louisiana State's Dawn Sowell smashed the collegiate record in winning the women's 200-meter dash Friday night at the NCAA Outdoor Track and Field Championships.

Sowell's time of 22.04 seconds was far superior to Florence Griffith Joyner's clocking of 23.39 when she won the NCAA title for UCLA in 1982 on the same track.

Sowell, who earlier this season set the collegiate record in the 100-meter dash of 10.93, erased the 200-meter mark of 22.17 set by Merlene Ottey of Nebraska in 1982.

Sowell's time was the fastest in the world this year, but was far short of the world record of 21.34, set by the now Griffith Joyner, now retired, in last year's Olympics.

Although Sowell's time was far superior to her previous best of 22.46 and made her the No. 7 American all-time performer, she was disappointed.

"I wish it was under 21," she said. "It was a sloppy ending, but the turn was better than usual. I never felt tired, but I never felt in sync."

In the final, Sowell was out quickly and in command throughout, beating defending champion Mary Onyali of Texas Southern by about three meters.

Onyali was timed in 22.45, while Pauline Davis of Alabama, the runner-up last year, was third in 22.65.

Meanwhile, Florida's Dennis Mitchell made amends for two previous failures by winning the men's 200 in 20.09, the fastest time in the world this year.

Mitchell, fourth in the 100 meters at last year's Olympics, was disqualified from the 100-meter heats Thursday for false-starting. Florida then was disqualified in the 1,600-meter relay heats when a runner ran out of his lane.

Mitchell, who anchored the 1,600-meter relay team, said that after those mishaps he talked to his coaches Thursday night "about what I could do to redeem myself."

"I wanted this race to be the most perfect I ever ran," he said. "I was disappointed with what happened yesterday and wanted to show the fans what I could do. I took all the days and hours of working out and put them into this race.

"It turned out very well. It was the greatest-feeling race I've ever run. I felt relaxed and strong and fast in the turn."

Drake's Kevin Little, the bronze medalist in the World Indoor Championships, was a distant second in 20.37, with Frank Fredericks of Brigham Young third in 20.42.

Player's birdie spree sets Seniors' pace

HOUSTON (AP) — Gary Player birdied the first three holes on his way to a 5-under-par-67 and one stroke lead in the first round of the $300,000 Doug Sanders Classic Friday.

"I played very well today. I actually played better than I scored," said Player, who is seeking his first win this year on the PGA Seniors tour. "I putted well. I did everything well. It helps to be 3-under-par after three holes."

Al Geiberger and Bruce Devlin were tied for second at 68.

Player, who started his round on the back nine, rolled in birdie putts of eight inches, 10 feet, and 15 feet on the first three holes.

The only bogey for Player came on a tough par-4 13th hole when he three-putted from 30 feet, but birdies of 10 feet on No. 2, two feet on No. 3 and six feet on No. 5 finished the round on a hot Texas day.

Geiberger, who finished third in last week's Southwestern Bell Classic, had five birdies and one bogey.

"I could have won last week, but shot 75 on the last day. I'm hitting the ball OK, not great," Geiberger said. "I was fortunate today because I got tired in the heat."

Devlin birdied three of the four par-5 holes on the par-72, 6,564-yard Deerwood Country Club course in a round that featured no bogeys.

"I only missed one green today. I drove the ball well and putted nicely," Devlin said.

MacLeod drops from Knick list

NEW YORK (AP) — Dallas Mavericks Coach John MacLeod announced Friday he has taken himself out of the running for the vacant New York Knicks' head coaching job.

MacLeod had been the front-runner to replace Rick Pitino, who left the Knicks Tuesday to take over as coach at the University of Kentucky.

The Knicks released a statement which said the team understands his decision "to remain in Dallas and complete his job with the Mavericks."

The Knicks had no comment on who the other candidates for the job would be, although Atlanta Hawks coach Mike Fratello, Chicago Bulls assistant Phil Jackson and Detroit Pistons assistant Brendan Malone have been mentioned.

Plainview coach joins UT staff

AUSTIN (AP) — Kathy Harston, who coached Plainview to the Class 5A state girls' basketball title in 1987, will join the University of Texas women's basketball staff as an assistant to Coach Jody Conradt.

Harston, whose appointment is effective July 1, replaces assistant coach Colleen Matsuhara, who is leaving "to pursue other opportunities," according to Conradt.

Matsuhara has been with the program since the 1985-86 season, and was head coach at Nebraska in 1980-83.

Harston, 30, will work primarily with the Lady Longhorns' backcourt, which is expected to be a team strength next season.

Blake making another bid for first PGA tourney title

Kemper Open

POTOMAC, Md. (AP) — Jay Don Blake, continuing a hot streak that began last week, matched a course record with a 7-under-par 64 Friday and took a one-shot lead over Don Pooley after two rounds of the Kemper Open.

Blake finished his second straight bogey-free round with three birdies in the final four holes on the 6,917-yard TPC at Avenel course. His 36-hole total of 132 put him 10 strokes under par at the halfway point of the $900,000 tournament.

Pooley, who also carded a 64, blew a shot at setting the course record when he missed a 7-foot birdie putt by inches on the 18th hole. On No. 17, he came up inches short on a 12-foot putt for a birdie.

Tom Byrum shot a 69 to finish three strokes back, and first-round leader D.A. Weibring, who shot a 72, was among three players at 136.

Blake, who has not won a tournament in his three years on tour, came closest to cashing a winner's check last week when he held a one-stroke lead after three rounds at Atlanta. But he had four bogeys and a double-bogey in the final round to finish tied for third.

Still, his performance gave him reason to believe he could do well at Avenel.

"I had a real good week in Atlanta, so I was looking forward to playing this week," Blake said. "I wanted to see what could happen, if I could better myself and get those birdies to drop."

Before last week, Blake's best tournament showing was a tie for ninth in the 1988 Pensacola Open. The 1980 NCAA champion had missed the cut seven times this year.

Has he finally put behind him the inconsistency that has plagued him since he turned pro in 1987?

"There comes a time in your game when something changes. I hope this is the time," he said. "I've played pretty well lately, and it's got my confidence up."

Pooley, meanwhile, had four birdies on the front nine and three more on Nos. 11-13. He parred the final five holes to move into contention for his third victory in 14 years on tour.

"This is the best I've hit the ball all year," he said. "I had only three or four bad shots all day and recovered from all of them."

Byrum shot a 69 in an up-and-down round that included five birdies and three bogies.

"I might have run out of gas," he said. "It was pretty steamy this morning."

The golfers had to endure 90-degree temperatures for a second straight day, although a late afternoon cloud-covering and a steady wind helped cool things down.

J.C. Snead had a hole-in-one on No. 17, a 201-yard par-3, but shot a 75 and missed the 1-over-par 143 cut by three strokes.

Tom Kite, who shot a 75 for a 143 total, was among 78 players who made the cut.

SWC split over CFA playoff idea

■ No playoff vote expected 8B

DALLAS (AP) — Southwest Conference athletic directors liked it. The coaches didn't.

That was the reaction to the College Football Association's 16-team playoff unveiled on Friday.

Houston athletic director Rudy Davalos said flatly, "college athletics is hurting. I think the playoff is essential to the salvation of a lot of programs."

Davalos said if each CFA team could get $500,000 for being in the playoff program, then it would be a bonanza.

"We have to face the real world," Davalos said. "There are too many programs that don't pay their way. There has got to be way for added revenue."

Davalos said colleges hurt themselves with lawsuits that broke up the network's stronghold on televising games.

"We killed the golden goose," Davalos said. "Now, we have to find a way to pay for it."

Davalos said he has sympathy for coaches who feel added pressure on them.

"I used to be a coach," he said. "But times have changed financially."

Texas A&M coach R.C. Slocum used an example of the fallout from the Aggies' baseball team not making the College World Series.

"Here was a team that won the regular conference championship and the tournament and came within one game of making the series but a lot of alumni acted like it was a disappointing season," Slocum said. "With the bowls, you have 16 winners every year. When you boil it down to just one winner, it's just too negative.

"Only one team wins the Super Bowl every year and all the other teams consider their seasons a poor one."

Slocum said the 16-team playoff would create controversy.

"There are 64 teams in basketball and still there are arguments about which should be in there," he said. "It wouldn't solve any problems."

Arkansas coach Ken Hatfield is worried the bowls would be left out in the cold.

"My first concern is the bowl situation," Hatfield said. "What happens to all the bowls? Nobody has come up with a good formula yet. We can't forget all the bowls have done for college football."

Hatfield said he was also concerned about the academic side of it with all the missed classes by teams in the playoffs.

Texas athletic director DeLoss Dodds suggested that football players miss less time than baseball and basketball players.

"Football players do miss less classes than any other sport," Dodds said.

He wouldn't predict when there would be a playoff.

"But it will happen someday," Dodds said. "It will have to happen financially."

Hanzlik seeks TL franchise

DENVER (AP) — Denver Nuggets forward Bill Hanzlik and an associate hope to purchase a Class AA Texas League baseball team and move the franchise to Pueblo's Runyon Field.

Hanzlik and Ray Baker, owner of a Denver-area asset management company, say they expect to have to pay up to $1.2 million for a Texas League franchise. No franchises currently are on the market.

"Financially, it's not too big a deal," Hanzlik said. "It's more of a matter of finding a team that somebody would want to sell and making the move to Pueblo."

Baker, a graduate of Pueblo Central High School, and Hanzlik would be co-owners if just the two are involved in any eventual purchase. Hanzlik said he also has had discussions with Denver Zephyrs co-owner John Dikeou, although Dikeou is not expected to be a principal owner.

Hanzlik, 30, who has been with the Nuggets for six seasons, said he would be actively involved in promotions and management.

"Pueblo is a great town," Hanzlik said. "They draw 5,000 people to watch minor-league football. For minor-league baseball, if you draw around 2,-000 and there is good promotion, you should be able to make a go of it."

Pueblo last fielded a minor-league team in 1957, when the Pueblo Dodgers played in the Class A Western League.

Hanzlik conceded that improvements would be necessary at 3,500-seat Runyon Field, which does not have clubhouse facilities.

Baker said the purchase of a Texas League team is the only option because of geography. The league currently has eight teams — in Little Rock, Ark.; El Paso, Texas; Jackson, Miss.; Midland, Texas; San Antonio, Texas; Shreveport, La.; Tulsa, Okla., and Wichita, Kan.

Baker said he continues to have contact with owners of those teams on a regular basis.

King, Turner fight for LPGA lead

PITTSFORD, N.Y. (AP) — Betsy King and Sherri Turner shot 3-under-par 69s Friday to share the second-round lead at the LPGA's Rochester International.

Turner birdied three of the last five holes to earn a share of the lead, while King sank eight-foot par putts on her final two holes. Both were at 5-under-par 139 after 36 holes.

First-round leader Patty Sheehan shot a 73 and dropped back into a tie for second place with Ayako Okamoto at 141.

Nancy Lopez, the tour's leading money-winner this year, shot a 69 and was at 142.

All five players are among the longest hitters on the tour, one indication that the rain-soaked 6,126-yard, par-72 Locust Hill Country Club is playing especially long.

Several downpours the past couple of days have left the course with mushy fairways, puddles in bunkers and soft greens.

"I would say the chances are that one of the longer hitters will win," Turner said. "When I know it's playing long for me, I know it's playing really long for some of the other players."

For instance, she said on the 376-yard, par-4 13th hole, ranked as the toughest on the LPGA Tour, she was hitting a seven-iron on her second shot while her playing partners were hitting woods.

The final two rounds are scheduled for Saturday and Sunday.

Whitaker gives boost to little guys

DETROIT (AP) — Lou Whitaker struck a blow for every little guy who ever aspired to play ball when he hit eight home runs in May.

Whitaker now has 13 for the season, one more than he hit in his first four years in the major leagues. He was tied with Baltimore's Terry Tettleton for the American League lead going into Friday's game between the Tigers and Orioles.

"He's a strong little guy and he's got a great body," Detroit interim manager Dick Tracewski said. "And he's getting bigger. When he first got here, Lou weighed 150 pounds soaking wet. Now he's up to about 175."

For most of his career, Whitaker has been a leadoff hitter. This year, he's hitting No. 3 and seeing pitches he can hit with authority.

"You don't have to be big to hit home runs," Whitaker said. "Joe Morgan already proved that, and Hank Aaron was little when he first started, too. You just need a quick bat.

"I've learned what I want to do when I'm at the plate. I've always been a patient hitter, my walks show that. Now, I just look for the right pitch in the right situation."

The Tigers got their first look at Whitaker on the night of Sept. 9, 1977, during the second game of an otherwise forgettable twi-night double-header in Boston's Fenway Park.

Whitaker and shortstop Alan Trammell, a couple of kids just up from Montgomery, made their major league debuts together and the two have been Detroit's double-play combination since.

"Lou's always had good bat-speed and that's a key regardless whether you're big or small," Trammell said. "He's getting the head of the bat out in the strike zone and boom, he's popping some long ones."

Whitaker won the AL Rookie of the Year award in 1978 at the age of 21 and Trammell, then 20, finished fourth in the voting. Whitaker entered the 1989 season with a .279 batting average and 121 home runs. He hit a career-best .320 in 1983.

As his power has increased, however, Whitaker's batting average has slipped, dropping for four consecutive seasons following 1983. He averaged more than 16 home runs in each of those years, slugging 21 in 1985.

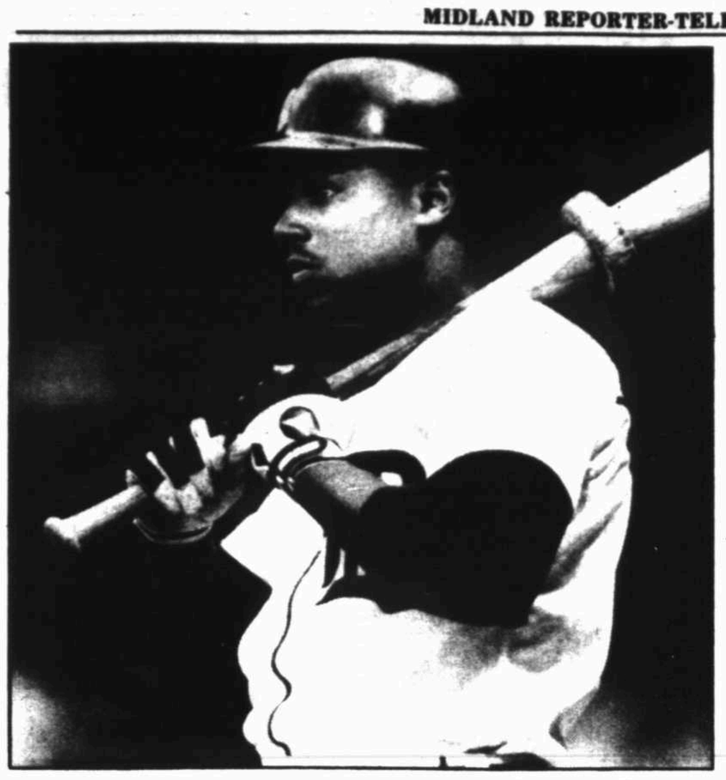

"You talk about an even keel and that's Lou, win or lose," Trammell said. "Certainly, he doesn't like losing. But hot or cold, he is able to keep it inside and not show much emotion. He's been able to do that for a long time."

He's had a lot of practice.

The story is told by folks who knew him in the small town of Martinsville, Va., where he grew up, that Whitaker — for no apparent reason — refused to sign a pro contract. His mother finally tipped off a Tiger scout that the shy youngster was ashamed of his meager wardrobe.

The scout took him on a shopping spree at a local clothing store and Whitaker signed that evening.

"He's quiet," Tracewski said. "He'll holler a lot in the dugout, but you hardly ever hear a peep in the clubhouse. He's a real team kid."

Tainted slam beats Bosox

Surging Orioles run win streak to five

Associated Press

Junior Felix hit an inside-the-park grand slam in the ninth inning Friday night and the Toronto Blue Jays beat the Boston Red Sox 7-2.

Felix's slam was the first inside-the-park homer in Boston against the Red Sox since Sept. 7, 1973, when Baltimore's Paul Blair did it. Felix hit a line drive to the base of the center-field wall and scored easily as the ball caromed away from Ellis Burks.

John Cerutti, 2-3, gave up five hits and two runs in 5⅓ innings and Duane Ward finished with two-hit relief for his fourth save. Last season, Toronto won 11 of 13 games against the Red Sox.

John Dopson, 5-4, left in the fourth inning after being hit in the right forearm by a sharp grounder from Lloyd Moseby. Dopson was taken to a hospital and X-rays were negative.

Toronto scored in the first on a walk, an infield out, a single by Kelly Gruber and George Bell's sacrifice fly.

With one out in the third, the Blue Jays made it 3-0. Nelson Liriano walked, Felix singled and Tony Fernandez hit an RBI double. Felix scored on Dopson's fifth balk of the season.

Rob Murphy, who has not allowed an earned run in his last 10 relief appearances, replaced Dopson and blanked Toronto on three hits for 3⅓ innings before Bob Stanley took over to start the eighth.

The Blue Jays loaded the bases in the ninth on a double by Fred McGriff, a walk and an error by shortstop Jody Reed. With two outs, Felix hit his third home run of the season and first career grand slam.

Boston scored its first run on consecutive singles by Nick Esasky, Randy Kutcher and Rick Cerone in the fifth.

Boggs led off the sixth with a triple to the 420-foot mark in center and scored as Mike Greenwell grounded out.

American League

Orioles 4, Tigers 1

Rookie Bob Milacki gave up two hits in 8⅓ innings and Baltimore won its fifth straight game.

The Orioles, leading the American League East at 28-22, won for the 15th time in their last 20 games. Baltimore did not win its 28th game last season until July 10.

Milacki, 3-5, allowed two hits in the fourth inning and then retired 15 straight batters. He struck out six and left after his second walk, with one out in the ninth. Kevin Hickey got the final two batters for his second save.

In Milacki's last start, he allowed just two hits in eight innings against Cleveland, but lost 1-0.

Mike Trujillo, making his fourth start since being called up from Class AAA Toledo on May 15, fell to 1-2. He lasted only 2⅔ innings and gave up three runs on eight hits and three walks.

The Orioles scored three runs in the third. Cal Ripken started it with a single, moved up on Joe Orsulak's bunt single and scored on a one-out single by Larry Sheets.

Rene Gonzales singled home Orsulak and Billy Ripken hit an RBI double, bringing on reliever Paul Gibson.

Orsulak singled in the seventh, stole second and continued to third on catcher Matt Nokes' throwing error. Jim Traber singled home Orsulak.

Fred Lynn led off the Tigers' fourth with his third home run. Lou Whitaker followed with a single but Alan Trammell grounded into a double play.

Twins 8, White Sox 0

The Chicago White Sox lost their franchise-record 10th straight home game as Allan Anderson pitched seven strong innings.

The White Sox, a charter member of the American League in 1901, had lost nine consecutive games at Comiskey Park in 1976.

Chicago has lost five in a row overall and 12 of its last 13. Minnesota won its third consecutive game.

Anderson, 6-3, gave up six hits, struck out two and walked two. Juan Berengeur pitched the eighth and Jeff Reardon worked the ninth. Anderson combined with two relievers on April 11 for the Twins' only other shutout this season.

The White Sox are 6-20 at home this season and have been outscored 154-78. Dave Gallagher had three singles for Chicago, which stranded six runners in the first four innings.

Melido Perez, 3-6, allowed five hits and walked three in 2⅔ innings.

Gary Gaetti and Randy Bush hit run-scoring singles with two outs in the first inning. The Twins made it 4-0 in the third on a sacrifice fly by Gaetti and Bush's RBI triple.

Minnesota scored three times in the eighth on an RBI single by John Moses and a two-run single by Wally Backman. Tim Laudner had a sacrifice fly in the ninth.

Chicago's Carlton Fisk, who had been disabled since April 11 with a broken hand, returned to the lineup and went for 1-for-3.

Yankees 3, Brewers 2

Pinch hitter Tom Brookens singled home the tie-breaking run in the 10th inning.

Steve Sax opened the 10th with a single, stole second and took third on Don Mattingly's single. Sax stayed at third as Jesse Barfield grounded into a forceout.

Dan Plesac replaced Chuck Crim, 4-3, and Brookens, batting for Ken Phelps, singled to left field on a 3-2 pitch. The Yankees got their first extra-inning victory of the year after two losses.

Dave Righetti, 2-1, gave the tying run in the eighth inning but held the Brewers the rest of the way. He retired Greg Brock on a popup with the bases loaded to end the game.

Rookie Clay Parker held the Brewers to four hits for seven innings before Righetti relieved to start the eighth. Righetti had not allowed a run in his previous 14 appearances, covering 17 innings.

Jim Gantner drew a leadoff walk and pinch runner Mike Felder moved to second on a groundout. Felder stole third and scored on Robin Yount's squeeze bunt.

The Brewers took a 1-0 lead in the third when Paul Molitor grounded a triple into the right- field corner and scored on Yount's groundout.

Don Slaught singled and moved to second on an infield hit by Alvaro Espinoza in the Yankees' fifth. A two-out walk to Rickey Henderson loaded the bases before Sax hit a 3-1 pitch to center for two runs.

Rangers 9, Mariners 5

Ruben Sierra and Julio Franco hit consecutive home runs in the third inning and Chad Kreuter and Cecil Espy duplicated the feat in the eighth, leading Texas over Seattle.

The Rangers got 13 hits, including three each by Espy and Rick Leach, in ending a four-game losing streak.

Rafael Palmeiro drew a one-out walk in the third and Sierra followed with his sixth home run of the season. Franco hit Bill Swift's next pitch over the center-field wall for his eighth homer and a 6-0 lead.

Kreuter and Espy hit their first home runs in the eighth off Dennis Powell. Espy earlier hit a two-run single.

Astros extend win streak

Scott hurls four-hitter at Dodgers

Associated Press

Mike Scott pitched a four-hitter, and an error by Los Angeles pitcher Fernando Valenzuela gave Houston the only run of the game as the Astros beat the Dodgers 1-0 Friday night to extend their winning streak to eight games.

Glenn Davis led off the seventh inning against Valenzuela, 0-5, with a double to right field. Davis went to third on Terry Puhl's infield grounder to the first-base side. Valenzuela booted the ball into foul territory and then threw home too late to catch Davis.

Valenzuela hasn't won a game since last June 14. It was his 18th start without a victory.

Scott, 8-3, struck out three and walked two in pitching his second shutout of the season. He retired the first six batters he faced before Jeff Hamilton led off the third with a single to center.

Scott yielded consecutive hits with one out in the fifth to Mike Scioscia and Hamilton. Alfredo Griffin then hit a shallow fly that first base umpire Fred Brocklander ruled was trapped by right fielder Terry Puhl. But Scioscia, believing the ball had been caught, was forced at third.

Valenzuela then grounded out to end the threat.

Billy Hatcher led off the game with a single to right field. But Valenzuela, who struck out five and walked two in seven innings, didn't allow another hit until Puhl's double to left in the fifth.

NL Roundup

Reds 9, Padres 4

Eric Davis became the first Cincinnati Red to hit for the cycle in 30 years when he drove in six runs.

Davis doubled home Barry Larkin in the first inning, singled him home in the third and hit a three-run homer off Walt Terrell, 4-6, in the fourth to give the Reds a seven-run cushion.

Davis' seventh-inning triple to center off reliever Dave Leiper made him the first Cincinnati player to hit for the cycle since Frank Robinson on May 2, 1959, against Los Angeles. Davis, matching his career high, also had six RBIs on May 3, 1987, against Philadelphia.

Davis has four straight multiple-hit games, going 10-for-15 over that span.

Larkin scored four times and went 2-for-3 with a walk to extend his hitting streak to 13 games, the longest current streak in the major leagues. The shortstop raised his average to .339, second-best in the National League.

Tom Browning, 5-5, gave up a sacrifice fly to Tony Gwynn and a two-run homer to Luis Salazar in six-plus innings as he raised his career record against the Padres to 9-3. Rob Dibble gave up a sacrifice fly to Garry Templeton after relieving in the seventh.

Larkin got the Reds' offense started in the first, when he walked, stole second and scored on Davis' double off the left-field wall. Ron Oester's RBI single put the Reds ahead to stay in the second, and Davis singled home Larkin in the third for a 3-1 lead.

Davis' eighth homer gave the Reds an 8-1 lead in the fourth. It was the fifth homer given up by Terrell — all on the road.

Larkin reached on an error in the seventh and scored on Davis' first triple of the season, which raised the oufielder's average to .298.

Giants 7, Braves 6

Rick Reuschel won his seventh straight decision to become baseball's first 10-game winner, and major-league leader Kevin Mitchell hit two home runs for San Francisco.

Reuschel, 10-2, gave up nine hits in 6⅓ innings while striking out three and walking two. Rich Gossage, the fifth San Francisco pitcher, got the last two outs for his third save after Craig Lefferts gave up a two-run homer to Andres Thomas, who drove four Atlanta runs.

Mitchell's homers, his 16th and 17th, came off Tom Glavine, 5-2. The first, a two-run shot in the third inning, put the Giants ahead to stay. The second was a 440-foot solo shot that chased Glavine in the fifth.

Mets 3, Pirates 2

Dave Magadan hit a two-run homer with one out in the bottom of the 11th inning to give the New York Mets a victory over Pittsburgh.

The Pirates had taken a 2-1 lead in the top of the inning on Glenn Wilson's pinch-hit RBI single off Rick Aguilera, 2-1.

Randy Kramer, 1-2, entered the game to start the bottom of the 11th and gave up a leadoff single to Mackey Sasser. After a sacrifice by Kevin Elster moved Sasser to second, Magadan hit the first pitch into the right-field bullpen.

It was his second homer of the season and his second extra-inning game-winning hit.

The victory improved the Mets' extra-inning record to 5-5, while the Pirates fell to 2-6.

Jeff King started the top of the 11th with a pinch double in his first major-league at-bat. King took third on a sacrifice by Rey Quinones.

Wilson, who did not start the game because of a strained leg muscle, then singled down the right-field line and limped to first. It was the first earned run allowed by Aguilera in his last 14 games.

Cubs 5, Cardinals 2

Rick Sutcliffe won for the third straight time in pitching Chicago to its 12th victory in 16 games, handing St. Louis its fifth straight loss.

Sutcliffe, 7-3, allowed seven hits, struck out three and walked two in 7⅓ innings. Mitch Williams, the third Chicago pitcher, struck out the side in ninth for his 14th save in 17 opportunities.

Lloyd McClendon went 3-for-3 with a double and a run batted in, and Shawon Dunston, Doug Dascenzo, Damon Berryhill and Mitch Webster drove in runs for Chicago.

Joe Magrane, 3-4, worked 6⅓ innings before leaving the game with a bruised left index finger, sustained when Dascenzo singled off his hand for a run in the third. Magrane, who gave up all three runs on five hits while striking out three and walking three, was taken out for precautionary X-rays.

The Cardinals have lost eight of nine overall and have scored three runs or fewer in 13 of their last 18 games.

Expos 2, Phillies 1

Andres Galarraga's infield single with two outs in the top of the 13th inning scored Mike Aldrete as Montreal sent Philadelphia to its ninth straight loss.

Spike Owen opened the inning by drawing a walk off Greg Harris, 1-1. Rex Hudler ran for Owen, but was forced at second by Aldrete.

Aldrete went to second on Harris' wild pitch and moved to third on Dave Martinez's groundout. After Tom Foley walked, Galarraga grounded a ball down the third base line that Chris James stopped, but was unable to make a play on.

Reliever Steve Frey, 1-0, pitched 1⅓ innings to gain his first major-league decision. Joe Hesketh, the fifth Montreal pitcher, got the final out for his second save, retiring Von Hayes on a grounder with runners on first and second.

The Phillies twice blew bases-loaded opportunities in the late innings.

Leonard, Hearns all hype

Fight lacks punch in War of Words

By Tom Cushman
Copley News Service

LOS ANGELES — To those in the business of processing information, boxing news conferences rank among the lowest forms of human communication. Much is said, but if one filters content — seeking to eliminate the inaccurate and irrelevant — he often finds himself bankrupt of material.

If there is value to these forums, it's in the area of entertainment. Discovering early in his career that reporters in the audience tended to take more naps than notes, Muhammad Ali introduced the element of hysteria. For two decades, no one slept.

Don King has used the dais to rearrange and embroider the English language. Occasionally, a star is born, as was the case when Tex Cobb stepped to a microphone at Atlantic City in 1979, and said:

"I've knocked guys out with my left hand, my right hand and my breath."

In their eagerness to exploit the entertainment potential, promoters lock what little conscience they have in the woodshed and go about business. Some years ago, I asked one if he ever had tried something that, in retrospect, left a bad taste.

"Yes," he said. "Sauerkraut."

THURSDAY AT the Los Angeles Biltmore, promoter Bob Arum served sauerkraut.

Since signing Sugar Ray Leonard and Thomas Hearns for a match that will take place at Caesars Palace on June 12, Arum has been advertising it as "The War." Although the label is more prayer than prediction — Leonard and Hearns are quite capable of giving us an evening of ballroom dancing — it seemed innocent enough until Thursday's news conference, which was beamed by satellite to media gatherings in dozens of U.S. markets and England, plus Central and South America.

To my knowledge, neither Leonard nor Hearns served one day in the armed forces of this nation. The nearest either has been to combat is a TV screen.

"Our intent isn't to demean those who fought for the country," said Arum, but a film used to promote the bout intersperses clips of earlier Leonard and Hearns efforts with scenes of American and British troops on actual battlefields.

During Thursday's ceremonies, patriotic tunes were offered by an ensemble of Marine Corps musicians. A Marine Corps color guard brought in our flag and — for the first time in my experience — the national anthem was played to open a news conference. One presumes that if Francis Scott Key had been available, he'd have been asked to sing it.

If this is why the Marines are looking for a few good men, you're tempted to suggest that what they really need are a few less.

One also wonders why Mayor Tom Bradley had nothing better to do with his morning. For reasons that aren't clear, Bradley appeared to proclaim Leonard-Hearns Day in Los Angeles (the fight is in Las Vegas). After stomaching several helpings of foolishness, the mayor — perhaps hoping to improve the menu — left for lunch.

Reporters entering the room were issued olive green helmet liners, with "The War" and attendant data stenciled on the front. What we really needed were earplugs.

The concept apparently is to present this confrontation between two splendid warriors with declining skills as a capsule apocalypse. "Everyone on planet Earth will be able to see the destruction taking place on a desert in the U.S.," said Emanuel Steward, manager of Thomas Hearns.

THIS, OF course, presumes that all of planet Earth's igloos have been wired for pay-per-view. Whatever, Arum Thursday suggested that a worldwide audience in excess of one billion is possible.

We were told that 1,600 outlets already have purchased rights in the U.S. alone (the Leonard-Hagler total was 1,020).

Arum can't wait for those Nielsens. "Overall, we should gross at least $80 million," he says.

No vote expected on CFA playoff

DALLAS (AP) — The College Football Association does not expect its controversial but potentially lucrative plan for a national championship college football playoff to come up for a vote this weekend.

Both Dave Ogrean, the CFA's assistant executive director for television, and Harvey Schiller, commissioner of the Southeastern Conference and chairman of the CFA subcommittee that developed the 16-team playoff proposal, said Friday they expected the CFA's three-day annual meeting to be a feeling-out session.

"The way our legislative process works, there is no vote scheduled on any particular issue right now," Ogrean said. "Any voting that takes place will be Sunday, and what gets voted upon Sunday is part of the process that we go through for the next 72 hours.

"But I would think that because of the varying opinions that people have on the playoff issue, that it would be highly unlikely that there would be a significant enough degree of consensus one way or the other to have any kind of final decision."

THE CFA is pushing a plan that would have the first-round games on the campuses of the eight higher ranked teams in early December. The quarterfinals would be scheduled around the New Year's holiday, with a semifinal doubleheader on the second Saturday in January and the championship game on the Saturday prior to Super Bowl week.

The CFA estimates the plan would bring in anywhere from $42 million-$87 million. Last season, 24 of the CFA's 63 member schools played in bowl games and reaped $33.5 million before expenses. Under the playoff plan, the CFA would cover all expenses.

The CFA consists of the Atlantic Coast, Big Eight, Southeastern, Southwest and Western Athletic Conferences, plus 19 major independents.

Schiller, who has predicted that a college football playoff "could surpass the Super Bowl as America's premier sporting event," also doesn't expect any direct action this weekend.

"I think that what everyone has talked about is let's come to Dallas and listen," he said.

If the CFA receives enough backing from its members, it must submit legislation by Nov. 1 for consideration at next January's NCAA convention. The earliest a playoff could be implemented is the 1991 season.

THE MAJOR opponents of a playoff are the NCAA Presidents Commission, which voted 13-0 a year ago against any kind of playoff, and the bowls, who cannot match the amount of money being projected by the CFA. All CFA schools would receive money from the playoff proposal and each could realize a minimum of $500,000-$600,000.

In addition, the plan does not include the Big Ten and Pac-10 Conferences, whose champions play in the Rose Bowl. However, the Pac-10 has not produced a national champion in the The AP poll since Southern California in 1972 and the last Big Ten team to win it was Ohio State in 1968.

Schiller said there is "no question that the success of basketball's Final Four has given a lot of impact and attention to a playoff. You see a lot of the athletic directors (at the Final Four) and they all walk away and they say, 'Gee, too bad we don't have this in college football.' "

Solidarity, Communists face perils in election

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Eastern Europe's first somewhat democratic elections in more than 40 years pit Solidarity, reborn and invigorated, against a Communist Party struggling to keep itself and the economy afloat.

About 80 percent of Poland's 27 million eligible voters are expected to enter curtained booths Sunday and choose from long lists of candidates for seats in the Sejm, the existing unicameral parliament, and a new Senate.

Campaigning went down to the wire Friday, with Solidarity leader Lech Walesa taping a television message and Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, the Polish leader, delivering a rare television address.

Walesa urged restraint on both sides and said many people in the government were worried about the election's outcome.

"We are running very aggressively and proposing clear solutions," he said. "A lot of people with other political concepts have not seen such a thing before, and they are scared. A lot of people are scared."

He said Solidarity and the Communist Party face "hard work" in finding solutions to Poland's economic and social problems.

"We are all learning, on both sides," Walesa said. "We shouldn't give way to emotions ... because emotion could destroy us."

Jaruzelski made a similar appeal.

"This is first of all a dispute about Poland, about what she will be like tomorrow, a year from now," he said.

"An intention to revile those representing different or independent views, a push for a crushing victory, this is not a good road. Playing with fire is not allowed. Choosing the road of hostility, tension and upheavals would be deadly to Poland."

In apparent acknowledgment that Solidarity would win a great many seats, he called for a "broad, post-election coalition."

Party candidates and their allies are guaranteed 299 seats in the Sejm, or 65 percent. Solidarity candidates are contesting the other 161 seats and all 100 places in the Senate, which will be the first freely chosen legislative chamber in the communist world.

Walesa, who entered negotiations with authorities in February hoping to regain Solidarity's legal status, emerged two months later with a large step toward democracy in Poland. He is not a candidate, but he is directing the opposition campaign.

Jaruzelski also is not running, but the government majority in the Sejm is expected to elect him to the new office of president.

The election is a huge gamble for both sides.

For the Communist Party, the results could reveal an embarrassing lack of popular support as it begins a four-year transition leading to democratic elections for the entire parliament.

Solidarity could be hurt by apathy, particularly among the young, and may lose support when it enters the parliament and assumes at least some responsibility for the painful economic steps ahead.

Candidates devoted little attention in the campaign to the grim economic problems, which include probable sharp rises in food prices to encourage farmers to produce in an environment of 80 percent inflation.

Whatever the risks, Solidarity spokesman Janusz Onyszkiewicz said Friday, "It is a breakthrough because these elections are an institutionalization of the opposition, and the opposition as a political force."

Poland's opposition is an authentic movement from "a completely different standpoint," he said, "not an opposition with a different understanding of Marxism-Leninism."

Josef Czyrek, No. 2 in the Politburo, was asked in an interview Friday how much the party has changed with free elections. His reply: "180 degrees."

Czyrek conceded that Solidarity had a better chance at a Senate majority and expressed concern about well-known party figures running for uncontested seats in the Sejm.

Soviet deputy seeks rights for Solzhenitsyn

MOSCOW (AP) — A deputy galvanized the new Soviet parliament Friday by proposing to restore citizenship to Alexander Solzhenitsyn and to inscribe the names of millions of Stalin's victims on the walls of KGB headquarters.

Yuri Karyakin, an outspoken writer from Moscow, also proposed removing the body of Soviet founder Vladimir I. Lenin from its hallowed mausoleum on Red Square and burying it.

Addressing President Mikhail S. Gorbachev by name and the entire Congress of People's deputies, Karyakin demanded, "Return our Russian citizenship to a person who dared to speak the truth first about Stalin's system, who was the first to call on himself and on us not to lie, to the great writer of Russia, to the great humanist Solzhenitsyn."

Some of the 2,250 deputies in the Kremlin's Palace of Congresses applauded the appeal by the 58-year-old, gray-bearded deputy from the Academy of Sciences.

Solzhenitsyn wrote extensively about the bloody terror of dictator Josef Stalin's rule from 1924-1953, but his most biting novels were never published in the Soviet Union.

He was branded a traitor and stripped of his citizenship in 1974, expelled, and now lives in Vermont.

Solzhenitsyn, who won the Nobel Prize for Literature in 1970, is best known in the West for his books "Gulag Archipelago," "One Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovich" and "Cancer Ward."

Only "One Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovich" has been published in the Soviet Union, but a literary journal plans to excerpt "Gulag Archipelago," a chronicle of Stalin's labor camps, by year's end.

No immediate reaction to the Solzhenitsyn proposal came from the Soviet leadership, but Thursday, Vadim A. Medvedev, a member of the ruling Politburo, said in an interview that Solzhenitsyn was against Soviet power and Lenin and that "Gulag Archipelago" was "anti-Soviet."

Two deputies — Moscow populist Boris N. Yeltsin and Lithuanian Communist Party chief Algirdas Brazauskas — said in interviews they supported Karyakin's call.

Karyakin also said the secret police headquarters, called the Lubyanka, should bear a reminder of those who suffered under Stalin.

Houdini's legacy boosts image of his hometown

By JOHN SOLOMON

APPLETON, Wis. (AP) — Appleton simply can't escape the magic of Harry Houdini, and local boosters hope his legacy of daring escapes from straitjackets and handcuffs will snare outsiders to his hometown.

"Houdini is our favorite son, there's no doubting that," said businessman Tom Boldt, who is leading the effort to win wider recognition for Appleton as the magician's hometown.

Boosters have named a municipal park, an elementary school and a cafe after Houdini, organized an annual Halloween seance to attempt to contact his spirit, and set up walking tours and museum exhibits to foster his memory more than 60 years after his death.

"We needed something to get people to stop in Appleton for a while," said museum curator Christopher Miller.

Previously, the Fox River city of 65,000 was best known as a stopover for tourists headed to Lake Michigan's Door Peninsula, or as the hometown of the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy, who was censured by the Senate in the 1950s.

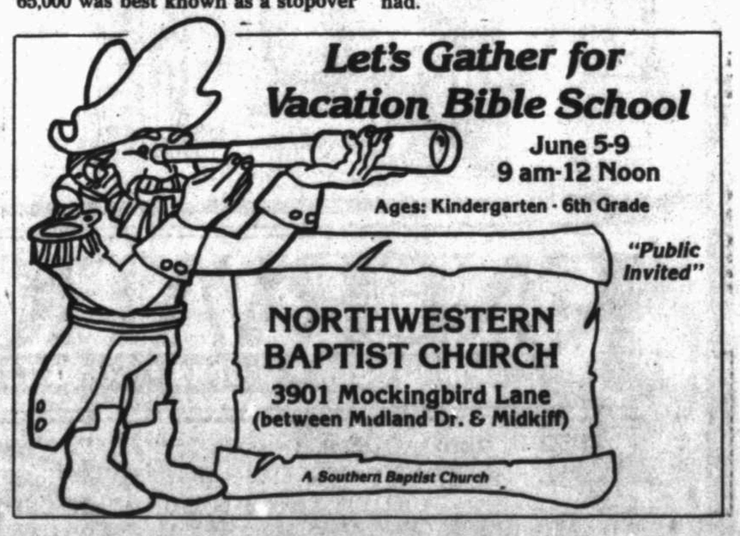

"McCarthy is really not a fun topic. But Houdini is all about fun," Miller said.

The campaign received a boost earlier this year when businessman Sydney H. Radner, 69, of Holyoke, Mass., agreed to lease his collection of Houdini handcuffs, personal letters, billboards, photographs and personal letters to Miller's Outagamie County Museum.

Radner, a magic historian and one-time performer, collected the artifacts from Houdini's brother, Theo Hardeen, in the 1930s and 1940s.

Miller selected about 10 percent of Radner's collection for a permanent two-room Houdini exhibit on the second floor of the museum. The exhibit opened April 6.

In a telephone interview from Massachusetts, Radner said Houdini boosters have shown the same flare for publicity that the late magician had.

Watering the Plants

It is one of those things we simply know. Plants must have water to survive. So, we provide regularly for their need.

Religious education is based on the same principle. The spiritual needs of a child are just as urgent and just as continual as its need for nourishment, shelter, love. As the body grows, so must the soul.

Is your family taking full advantage of the religious training the churches and synagogues of our community offer? Are you cultivating through weekly worship that spiritual vitality in your home which will encourage your children's moral and spiritual growth. . .

If not, why not begin today?

Annual Methodist conference focuses on loving one another

LUBBOCK — "Called To One Love One Another" is the theme for the 80th Session of the Northwest Texas Annual Conference of The United Methodist Church, scheduled for Monday through Thursday at First United Methodist Church here.

The annual policy-making event — during which pastoral appointments are received, deacons and elders ordained, and reports and resolutions acted upon — will draw 551 lay delegates and 397 clergy from United Methodist churches and institutions across the Panhandle-South Plains area.

Bishop Louis W. Schowengerdt of Albuquerque, pastoral leader of the Northwest Texas-New Mexico Area, will preside for the ninth year.

The conference preacher is the Rev. Riley P. Short, pastor of Coral Gables United Methodist Church in Coral Gables, Fla.

A State of the Church address by Schowengerdt will open the annual conference during a service of worship at 7 p.m. Monday.

The Rev. Jo Carr, who has been appointed the first woman district superintendent in the Northwest Texas Annual Conference, will preach Tuesday during the 9 a.m. memorial and communion service. Ms. Carr, who will serve as Pampa District superintendent beginning June 13, is currently pastor of First United Methodist Church in Crosbyton. Her other appointments have included United Methodist Churches in Wilson and Cooper, and Christ United Methodist Church in Levelland.

The giving and receiving of pastoral appointments for 1989-90 will be the highlight of the covenant worship service at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Twelve clergy will be ordained and one layperson consecrated as a diaconal minister during the service of worship at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

The conference preacher was born in a parsonage in Greenville, Ky., and is the son of United Methodist Bishop and Mrs. Roy Hunter Short. Short, who will preach four times during the conference, earned degrees from Vanderbilt University and Candler School of Theology at Emory University.

Short has served churches in Tennessee and Florida, including an appointment as associate minister of Christ United Methodist Church in St. Petersburg for six years, and senior minister of Morrison United Methodist Church in Leesburg, Fla.

He has been pastor of Coral Gables United Methodist Church since 1981.

Short is in demand as a speaker for laity retreats, youth camps and couples' retreats.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Crestview family video series begins

Crestview Baptist Church Family Ministry Summer Film and Video Series will begin Sunday at 5:45 p.m. in Adult 4 Department in the church's Education/Activity Center.

The first film will be "Loving God," a challenging message of Charles Colson as he deals with what it means to love God and how ordinary people can and have carried it out, says a release from the church.

"The Strong-Willed Child," to be shown June 11, features Dr. James Dobson who deals with the difference between childish irresponsibility vs. willful defiance.

On June 18, "Preparing for Adolescence: The Origin of Self-Doubt," Dr. Dobson discusses how to build self-esteem in pre-teenagers and youth.

A heartwarming new family film, "A Man Called Norman," scheduled June 25, tells a true story of love, acceptance and following God's will.

Crestview Baptist Church is located at Illinois and Midkiff, adjacent to Dellwood Mall.

The church's regular meetings times are Sunday morning worship at 8:30 and 10:50 a.m.; evening worship at 7 p.m. and Sunday school at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday night prayer service is held in the church's Education/Activity Center at 6 p.m. each week.

Manning guest preacher

The Rev. J.R. Manning will be guest preacher at Ranchland Heights Baptist Church for both services Sunday, along with a special presentation of the church's new Choirchimes played by guests from First Baptist Church during the evening service.

Manning moved to Midland after a 15-year pastorate at First Baptist Church in Kermit. He holds a bachelor of arts degree from Wayland Baptist University, a master of arts from West Texas State University and a master of divinity from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary. Before moving to Kermit, he served churches in Sudan and Pampa. He is presently employed by Edward D. Jones & Co., and his wife is a counselor at Lee High School.

The Choirchimes, under the direction of church organist Mrs. Jo Marie Beck, are similar to bells and will be demonstrated by members of the Bell Choir from First Baptist Church to acquaint the membership and guests with the new sound.

Lucian Rudd and members invite the public to all services, especially to the special events this Sunday.

Rev. Marshall to teach

The Rev. Peter Marshall will be teaching a seminar at Word of Life Church, 9700 W. Highway 191, Sunday through Tuesday.

A graduate of Yale University and Princeton Theological Seminary, he was ordained in 1965 and served as assistant minister in West Hartford, Conn., before becomming pastor of the East Dennis Community Church, Cape Cod, Mass., where he served for 10 years.

Since 1977, he has devoted himself to the national ministry and to writing. He is the co-author, along with David Manuel, of two completed books — "The Light and the Glory" and "From Sea to Shining Sea" — and a work in progress — "Mine Eyes Have Seen the Glory." Marshall received the 1986 Faith and Freedom Award from the Religious Heritage of America.

Marshall will speak at 10:30 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. Sunday, at 10 a.m. and 7 p.m. Monday and at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

The Swofford Family is a licensed missionary out-reach of Bethel Baptist in Springtown.

The Swofford Family, headed by Joe and including his daughters Lisa, age 17 and Joanna, age 12, has been singing gospel music together for the past six years. They write many of the songs they perform, are members of the Southern Gospel Music Association, and both girls have been honored with Female Youth Vocalist awards the past two years.

Good Book goes electric

CHICAGO (AP) — Some Bible readers soon will be putting batteries in the Good Book: an electronic version of the Scriptures delivered by a new hand-held computer.

"It is lighter and smaller than most printed Bibles, and it allows you to find a particular passage in just seconds," Lisa Goorfin, marketing director for Franklin Computer of Mount Holly, N.J., said Friday.

The company introduced its new HOLY BIBLE computer at the Consumer Electronics Show in Chicago this week.

The computer, 5.6 inches square and weighing 13 ounces, will be available around Christmas for $299 in either King James or revised standard versions, said Ms. Goorfin. It will include the Old Testament and the New Testament.

St. Paul's to honor departing pastor

St. Paul CME Church, 409 S. Lee St., invites the community to join members Sunday in a service of celebration as they say farewell to their pastor, the Rev. Clara M. Reed.

Reed

A fellowship dinner will be served after the morning service and the celebrative service will start at 2 p.m.

Mrs. Reed was appointed as pastor of St. Paul CME Church in July 1988.

"In her tenure at St. Paul she faithfully shared her time, talents and gifts in the revitalization of the church," says a release from the church.

"Worship attendance increased tremendously, the community outreach became more visible, she provided dynamic leadership in midweek studies, and served as a role model in teaching the mission and message of Jesus in the church and community. The Reed family has been a wonderful addition to the St. Paul Church family and to the community."

Since coming to Midland, Mrs. Reed has worked diligently in our community. She served as vice-president of social concerns for Midland Black Chamber of Entrepreneurs, Inc., a volunteer for AMOS (Area Methodist Outreach Services), director of Children's Ministry at Hollowell United Methodist Church, instructor in the SCOPE Children's Program, officer and first woman member of the Interdenominational Ministerial Alliance, as well as coordinator of Project Blue Print for United Way and as a substitute teacher for MISD.

Her husband, Charles Reed, has recently received a new assignment with ARCO International, and the family will making their new home in Plano.

Mrs. Reed will continue in ministry in the Dallas area while working toward a doctorate degree at Perkins School of Theology at Southern Methodist University, Dallas.

Christian group exerts pressure on TV advertisers

Associated Press

A group that organizers contend is "the largest coalition of Christians ever mobilized to deal with an urgent moral concern" is targeting television advertisers in a campaign to reduce sex and violence on the small screen.

Christian Leaders for Responsible Television, or CLEAR-TV, recently put advertisers on notice: If they are among the top 10 sponsors of sex, violence and profanity on network television during the May "sweeps" period, when ratings determine rates for advertisers, they may become boycott targets.

"We'll pick one or two corporations out of that list, and we're going to boycott them," said the Rev. Billy Melvin, chairman of CLEAR-TV. "By early June, we'll announce who's going to be boycotted."

With more than 1,600 Christian leaders backing it, CLEAR-TV is no ordinary pressure group. The coalition features top officials from 70 mainline and conservative Protestant denominations and more than 100 Roman Catholic bishops, including such heavyweights as Cardinal Joseph Bernardin of Chicago and Archbishop John L. May of St. Louis, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops.

Denison named to staff of First Baptist Church

The Rev. James C. Denison joins the staff of First Baptist Church as senior pastor. He will give his first sermon July 30.

Denison

Denison was born May 20, 1958, in Houston.

"Although he was raised in a moral home, he was not raised in the church," says a release from the church. "Through the bus ministry of College Park Baptist Church of Houston, Texas, Jim Denison accepted Christ as Lord and Savior on Sept. 9, 1973, at the age of 15."

He committed his life to vocational service in May of 1976, was licensed to preach in 1978 and was ordained by College Park Baptist Church Sept. 5, 1982.

Denison graduated magna cum laude with a bachelor of arts from Houston Baptist University in 1980 with majors in Christianity and speech. During the summer of 1978, Denison was a foreign mission volunteer for the Baptist Students Union to East Malaysia. He served as youth minister for College Park Baptist Church and Temple Oaks Baptist Church, Houston.

Denison married Janet Lynn Croswhite in 1980 and moved to Fort Worth to attend Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary. He graduated with a master of divinity in 1983 and will receive his doctor of philisoply degree later this year.

He has taught for two years at the seminary and pastored the Hew Hope Baptist Church of Mansfield from June of 1984 to October of 1988.

The Denisons have two sons — Ryan James and Craig Wayne.

Researcher: Faith still brings martyrdom

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Faith still brings martyrdom for many Christians, says a noted missions researcher.

The Rev. David Barrett, editor of the World Christian Encyclopedia, estimates an average of 325,000 Christians have been killed for the faith each year over the last quarter century.

"There's nothing unusual about this," he says. "It's gone on for 20 centuries. It's simply a part of the life of the church."

He says his estimates are based not only on news accounts, but on data that often emerge years after the incidents. Also, he counts as martyrs believers who lose their lives because of human hostility, often political.

Barrett, a British Anglican now serving the Southern Baptist Foreign Missions Board, estimates 40 million Christians have been martyred since the time of Christ.

But the church knows the names of only 15,000 martyrs, he says. As for the rest, "nobody wrote their story down. Their names are lost."

Man acted as Ferdinand Marcos' double

AP Laserphoto

In this photo taken in 1965, Marcos double Jesus Quevenco, left, posed with the real Ferdinand Marcos, center, the former Philippine president, in Manila.

SILAY, Philippines (AP) — The crowd cheered for Ferdinand Marcos as the youthful presidential candidate waved to his supporters. Trouble is, it wasn't Marcos at the campaign rally more than 20 years ago.

It was Jesus Quevenco, an affable man with such an uncanny resemblance to Marcos that the former president called him "brod," or brother.

Quevenco, 65, said he acted as a stand-in for his famous lookalike during Marcos' successful 1964-65 presidential campaign, appearing at rallies and meetings where Marcos was not expected to speak.

The best part, he said, was getting the table of his choice at the best restaurants and squiring Marcos' wife, Imelda. The worst part was getting mistaken for Marcos years later, when Marcos' popularity plummeted.

Quevenco, no relation to the former president, said a politician friend introduced him to Marcos in 1964 during a political rally on Negros island. At the time, Marcos, a senator, was campaigning for the Nationalist Party nomination for president.

Marcos went on to win the presidency on Nov. 9, 1965. He held office until he was ousted and forced into exile in Hawaii in a popular uprising in February 1986.

"The first time we met, we just looked at each other," said Quevenco. "Marcos said 'You are a dead ringer for me.'"

For several months during the campaign, Quevenco passed himself off as Marcos at social and political functions whenever the president-to-be was tired or unable to attend because of schedule conflicts.

Quevenco said he did not receive any money for his services.

At one appearance, Quevenco played his role so well that his aunt rushed to him and asked to sit beside "the president."

"Auntie, I'm not Marcos," Quevenco said he told his befuddled relative. "Who are you," she responded? "I'm your nephew," he replied.

During a visit to the Marcos family in Manila, Quevenco said Marcos' brother, Pacifico, jokingly introduced him to Marcos' mother, Josefa, as "our illegitimate brother."

According to Quevenco, Mrs. Marcos removed her glasses, stared at him and asked: "By whom?"

After Marcos was elected president, Quevenco said he stopped being a stand-in, preferring to run his insurance business in the town of Silay, 300 miles southeast of Manila.

Quevenco said his wife, Thelma, was afraid of the risks to her husband if he continued to pose as the controversial president.

TROMSOE, Norway (AP) — Pope John Paul II preached against a godless world Friday and visited his northernmost flock in the Land of the Midnight Sun.

In a city better known for nightclubs than devotion, thousands of people braved a 39 degree chill and gray skies that hid the sun as the pontiff led evening prayers.

"We are gathered this evening in the long bright twilight of the north, in the light of the unsetting sun which so clearly symbolizes Christ," John Paul said. He wore a white overcoat and spoke in English.

Tromsoe, an island in a fjord surrounded by snowcapped peaks, is at 70 degrees latitude, 217 miles inside the Arctic Circle. It is the northernmost outpost of the church, with 680 Roman Catholics.

"I'm surprised so many people came, but we don't get many famous people here," said a young woman in blue jeans and a ski jacket.

John Paul spoke from a wooden altar erected in the market square beside a bronze statue of a whaler with a harpoon. This cod-fishing center of 48,000 people has 15 nightclubs and has been dubbed "The Land of the Midnight Fun."

On the second day of his Scandinavian pilgrimage, John Paul first visited the bustling fjord-side port of Trondheim.

Small but enthusiastic crowds lined the streets as he arrived on a clear, crisp day. A band played "Down by the Riverside."

In an interview with Norwegian television, the pope said he felt at home in Norway, not like an outsider in an overwhelmingly Lutheran country with only 27,800 Catholics.

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Tough-guy principal Joe Clark has to put aside his bullhorn and bat for a while as he recovers from surgery to replace an infected heart valve.

Clark, whose patrols of East-side High School in Paterson earned him acclaim and criticism from educators, was in satisfactory condition Thursday at Beth Israel Medical Center in Newark, said hospital spokesman Tom Casey.

Jeannette Clyde named outstanding volunteer

Janice Ford/Reporter-Telegram

Marge Savage, left, director of the Midland Senior Center, congratulates Jeannette Clyde, recently named Outstanding Volunteer of the Year. Also named for the honor was Bruce Bell.

Jeannette Clyde loves to do things for others. In fact, she does so many things to benefit the Midland Senior Center that she was named co-recipient of the center's Outstanding Volunteer of the Year award.

Along with Bruce Bell, Mrs. Clyde was presented with her award during the center's annual appreciation dinner last month.

Mrs. Clyde, 81, serves on the center's advisory board as second vice-president and program chairman, schedules all Wednesday lunch programs, and organizes the monthly birthday parties.

"I'm still stunned," she commented about the honor bestowed upon her. "There's other people more deserving."

A Midland resident since moving from Kansas City in 1952, Mrs. Clyde is also active in church activities at Main Street Church of Christ. She has taught Sunday school and Bible school for 10 years, organized the church orchestra and enjoys singing in the choir.

Her family includes two sons, six grandsons and seven great grandsons.

She attended Lindsberry College in Kansas, and was queen of Atchison County, Kansas.

Mrs. Clyde cited other interests that keep her busy, including sewing, embroidery, water sports at the YMCA, knitting, crafts, crochet work, stenciling, entertaining and ballroom dancing. She has worked as a leader in 4-H clubs, Eastern Star Hyacinth #152, and as a coordinator of Red Cross Nursing Home volunteers.

"Jeannette is always willing to help," said Marge Savage, center director. "She is vibrant and vivacious."

"When I came here (to work) last fall," recalled Mrs. Savage, "it was during the holiday season, with lots of parties and events. If I hadn't had Jeannette, I couldn't have made it."

OVER 50

Plenty of seniors give round dancing a spin

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL

OK, this is a quiz: Name an activity that is great for people over 50, even though it causes them to weave, hinge, aerial swivel, chair, slip and maneuver? Or to do a natural turn, a whisk, wing, reverse turn or a closed telemark?

Skiing? No. This is round dancing.

Rosenthal

"Most people don't even get started in this activity until they are in their 40s and early 50s," says Betty Esterday, a national round dance teacher with her husband, Irvin. "We see hundreds of people in a year's time that didn't even begin to do this until they were in their late 60s."

Those of you who don't know what round dancing is are not alone.

Round dancing, explains Mrs. Esterday, is ballroom dancing done to cues provided by a leader called, naturally, a "cuer." In that, it is like square dancing, which uses callers. But in square dancing, there are four couples in a square; in round dancing, it's just the partners moving around the floor together.

"Anybody can square dance, because you walk," says Mrs. Esterday. "In round dancing, you do regular dance figures that are written into books." (If that is an insult, please don't blame the author.)

She says 400 to 500 routines are written each year and there are thousands on the books. Because it gets difficult to remember the routines, a cuer is used.

Round dancing, the child of square dancing, got its start in the 1940s as a spontaneous activity of couples who remained on the floor after band and callers finished. In the '50s, instructors began cuing the dancers.

"Everybody does the same thing at the same time, no matter where in the world you are," says Mrs. Esterday, who lives in Hagerstown, Md., when she and her husband aren't on the road. "If you are a round dancer and they out a particular record on, you know how to do it."

The dances are the traditional ballroom dances: waltz, fox trot, cha-cha, rhumba, jive, samba, pasobolle, tango, quickstep and polka. Mrs. Esterday says the average club has 30 couples, and there are 700 clubs across the country.

"As a rule, most of the people who round dance are over 50," she says. "There are also a lot of retirement areas where round dancing is the big thing you do." It is, as most ballroom is, an activity for couples. "Sometimes we do have singles, but it's difficult to go there and think, 'I'm going to find someone to dance with,'" she says.

Because round dancing often takes place in schools, church centers and recreation centers to music provided by a phonograph, the cost is nominal, averaging about $5 a couple for two to three hours of dancing.

Irvin Esterday was director of athletics at a community college in Hagerstown, and his wife as a home economics instructor in high school. The school teachers' hobby of dancing turned into a sideline 20 years ago and into a profession when they retired six years ago.

"We instruct as a team," she says. "Very seldom is there just one person instructing in round dancing." Their teaching takes them out of town 30 weekends a year. They are hired by various dance groups around the country, and they attend national conventions, one that's held in conjunction with square dancers.

"The oldest dancers are in their 80s," says Mrs. Esterday. "They do get around all right. They just do it, that's what they came for." One national dance instructor recently retired at 78.

"The nice thing about this activity is that nobody forces them to participate. They come because they want to. They are very open to new ideas in the dance world."

Round dancing, she adds, "gives you a super sense of accomplishment. People who never thought they could dance or had confidence in their dance ability can round dance because they are part of a group."

FINANCIAL FOCUS

Certificates of deposit: Understand what you buy

Once considered short-term parking places for long-term money, certificates of deposit have come into their own as serious investments.

According to the Federal Reserve, funds in jumbo CDs, those totaling more than $100,000, increased $50.4 billion in 1988. Small deposits gained $116.5 billion. Much of this money is going into longer-term CDs that promise high interest and guaranteed principal for up to five years. The high rates and extended maturities are attractive enough that the sophisticated investor now sees the investment value of long-term CDs.

However, the question beginning to nag investors is, "How safe are the organizations that guarantee this investment, the FDIC and FSLIC?" Even with the FSLIC's recent crisis, it appears that the federal government will not let anyone lose money. A restructuring of the insurance program is being considered, but for the time being, investors must be satisfied with the assurance that their money is safe.

A little homework, however, can add peace of mind to your CD investing. FDIC and FSLIC insurance play no part in your investments unless an insured institution holding your funds becomes insolvent. A quick check of the assets, liabilities and quality of loans your institution makes can give you a good idea of financial stability or instability.

CDs were once purchased primarily through local banks and thrift institutions, but that traditional relationship has since been invaded by interest-aware investors searching for the best rates.

This renewed interest in CDs has prompted many major brokerage firms to shop the nation for the high-yielding CDs, buy them in bulk and offer them to their customers in denominations as small as $1,000. Because these firms buy CDs in bulk, they can generally negotiate a higher yield.

Higher yields, however, can also mean more risk. If you're unfamiliar with the financial institution issuing your CD, it's your responsibility to question the safety criteria your broker uses when underwriting CDs.

The chairman of the product-review committee of one major firm explained that before any CDs are bulk-purchased by his firm for resale to individual investors, the FDIC-insured issuing institution must have minimum assets of $1 billion and a net worth of at least 5.5 percent of assets.

In addition, the firm's product-review committee annually reviews the financial data of these institutions. Exceptions are made, but they can result in no compromise of safety.

Each brokerage firm has its own safety standards, and it's to your advantage to question your representative. Ask questions and get answers before you invest.

In periods of investor uncertainty, CDs and other guaranteed investments are traditionally popular, but don't be blinded by guarantees. Understand what you are buying, and make sure you're satisfied that it's as safe as your salesperson promises.
