EDUCATION AND TEXAS' HISTORY DEPICTED IN TECH PAGEANT

STATE PICTURED FROM BEGINNING TO PRESENT DAY

000 PEOPLE WATCH ENDITION OF SECOND ANNUAL SHOW

UEEN CROWNED

ODUCTION SAID MOST EXTENSIVE OF KIND EVER ATTEMPTED

Higher education, coupled with a glorious history of Texas, held the spotlight here last night when approximately 8,000 persons watched Texas Tech's second annual pageant, "The Light in the Lone Star," presented at the rear of the administration building on the college campus. Six hundred ten students of the college and of the Lubbock public school system, supervised by Miss Ruth Pirtle, Tech director of dramatics, had parts in the pantomine, which was culminated in the coronation of Miss Edith Slaton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar L. Slaton, of Lubbock, as college queen. Dr. Paul W. Horn, president of the institution, personally presented the crown to Miss Slaton, after which he read the pledge of the college to the 28 members of Tech's first graduating class.

The pageant, probably the most extensive production of its kind in the history of Texas educational institutions, was divided into two parts, the first depicting the early history of Texas, the struggle to secure education and the final triumph. The second part, showing the benefits of education in Texas today and the prospects for the future, was made up of demonstrations and ceremonials by students of the Lubbock public school system and of the college, including the graduating classes of the senior high school and the Tech. The first part of the pageant was composed of three episodes and the second part of four.

History Is Enacted

Accompanied by the college band and orchestra, under the direction of Professor Harry LeMaire, the first three episodes of the pageant dealt with Texas, from the time of the revolution against Mexico up through its taking its place as a prominent state of the Union. Here battles between Texas patriots and Mexican so'diers with both infantry and cavalry, brought freedom to Texas, which in turn brought higher education. Miss Verna Wilson, Lubbock, took the part of "Freedom"; Miss Thelma Wilson, Olton, enacted "Education," while Horace G. Moore, Floydada, portrayed "Texas."

The regarding of education from 1836 to 1875 and Texas' annexation to the Union was next enacted, including a pantomine of immigration to the Lone Star state. Covered wagons, horses, mules, cows and even the hardy pioneers themselves passed in review before the interested throngs, lending a most realistic touch to the proceedings.

"Sam Houston" There

Texas' annexation to the Confederacy, the civil war and its return to the Union were next pleasingly followed by the Texas Constitutional convention of 1875, led by Kennith Hemphill as "Sam Houston" and including all of the other statesmen of early days. The convention scene was closed as the ayes present voted unanimously to incorporate into the laws a bill providing education at public expense.

Conditions Much Better Report Says

(By the Associated Press)

DALLAS, May 28.—An increased volume of merchandise distribution in the larger cities and a general improvement in the wholesale trade situation were important developments in the eleventh federal reserve district during April, the monthly survey of federal reserve bank of Dallas states. The report notes that department sales showed a gain of four percent over the previous month and were six percent larger than the corresponding month last year.

"While wholesale distribution declined seasonally as compared with the previous month, the April volume was larger than in the previous year," said the survey.

"Business generally has been well sustained under existing circumstances and optimism is becoming more general. A further indication of the large volume of public spending is shown by the fact that charges to depositors' accounts at banks in 17 principal centers were five percent larger than a year ago.

"Financial conditions generally remain sound and the demand for bank credit continues light. Federal reserve bank loans to member banks amounted to $4,367,629 on May 16, which reflects a net gain of only $523,045 over those of March 21. Futhermore, they were $4,787,389 less than on the corresponding date of the previous year. Both the demand for bank credit and the seasonal decline in bank deposit have been unusually light.

The case has been on trial before Judge Clark M. Mullican here nearly all the week. The plaintiff in his petition asked for $10,000, setting out that he received injuries from which he will never fully recover. It was not announced Saturday by counsel for either the plaintiff or defendant whether an appeal will be taken to the judgment as rendered.

WOMAN INJURED WHEN HOME BURNS

GASOLINE FIRE ENVELOPS HOUSE AND SEVERAL BARELY ESCAPE

Mrs. W. S. Hughes sustained severe burns on the arms and face yesterday shortly before one o'clock when gasoline with which she was washing some clothes was ignited in an unknown manner, the flames destroying her home, 915 Avenue L.

Immediately following the explosion which sent flames in every direction in the house, Mrs. Hughes, already burned on the arms, made her way through the house to warn other occupants. She aided in rescuing a small child belonging to the Nowlin family who lived in an adjoining apartment, and a woman up stairs.

Fire Spreads Rapidly

Hardly fifteen minutes after the explosion the house was a mass of seething flames and members of the fire department did quick work in saving the frame and keeping adjoining structures from catching. Five lines of high pressure hose were played on the residence for fully twenty minutes, before the blaze was under control.

A number of families lived in the house which had apartments both up and down stairs. They lost all of their belongings. Families living in the apartments were: Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Bettis, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Schlagg, Mr. and Mrs. Nowlin, Mr. and Mrs Kane, Mr. and Mrs. Aurbo and a number of men who had rooms upstairs.

The loss is estimated at more than $20,000, the building itself being valued at $18,000. It was covered partially by insurance.

Dr. Hughes, husband of the injured woman, is a dentist in Idalou and they have lived here since November of last year.

TWO BURNED IN OIL WELL BLAZE

McILROY CAMP NEAR BORGER TOTALLY DESTROYED BY EXPLOSION AND FIRE

(By The Associated Press)

BORGER, May 28—Two men were burned severely tonight when Cochrill-McIlroy well number two, located about eight miles east of Borger, set fire following an explosion. Flames are sweeping McIlroy camp and have already totally destroyed a grocery store and half a dozen camp buildings. The fire is similar to that of the blaze at Sanford, which was extinguished Friday night after it had caused eight deaths. Sanford is fifteen miles west of Borger and twenty-five miles from the well which is burning tonight.

Driller Burned

Lee Taylor, driller, was burned probably fatally about the face and shoulders, and C. Jackson, superintendent, is burned severely.

Six storage tanks of 55,000 barrels each and another heavy producing oil well are directly in the path of the roaring gas well and are in danger. The burning well, with the oil saver head still on, is doing seventeen million fet of gas and the flame is spouting a hundred feet in the air. Workmen are fearing the blowing off of the saver head which will result in an uncontrollable fire.

"Shoot To Kill" Orders Given In Water Argument

(By the Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES, May 28.—Prospects of fighting in Owens Valley, cockpit of the 20 years' struggle over water between the ranchers and Los Angeles city, cast its shadow over the situation there tonight.

As a result of two dynamite explosions, each of which severely damaged the Los Angeles aqueduct, main artery of the city's water supply, within the past two days, expert riflemen were ordered into the valley with instructions to "shoot to kill' any suspicious persons loitering near the water course.

Say Dynamiters Known

Hardly had the echoes from the first blast near Little Lake, at the south portal of the valley, died away against the cliffs of Mount Whitney, tallest peak in the country, than the word was flashed back from a city water official in the valley at the time, that "the dynamiters are known to us."

"Every measure within the bounds of the city's authority will be employed," an official of the bureau of water and power said, "to repulse with deadly force any attempt to continue the present campaign of outlawry."

The city will not call upon Governor C. C. Young for state troopers to invade the valley as at first decided.

Gang of Ten Sought

Officials of Inyo county reported little progress late today in efforts to apprehend the gang of ten armed, but unmasked men who set the first charge of dynamite in No-Name canyon yesterday morning. Officials of the water bureau here believed that the same band of men was responsible for the second blast, about midnight last night, 75 miles north of No-Name canyon.

A section of 420 feet of steel siphon which raises the water over a range of mountains was blown out in the first explosion. The armed men over powered two Los Angeles city guards, held them off with rifles and touched off the blast.

TEXAS GRIPPED BY HEAT WAVE OVER SATURDAY

SOME ILLNESS SAID DUE TO HOTTEST MAY IN WEATHER HISTORY

107 SAID HIGHEST

HEAT OVERCOMES DALLAS PEOPLE AND ONE CRITICALLY ILL

(By the Associated Press)

DALLAS, May 28.—A heat blanket covered Texas today from the Panhandle to below San Antonio, bringing the hottest May in the recorded weather history of the state.

A number of cases of illness were attributed to the heat, three falling victim to the torridity in Dallas.

107 At Wichita Falls

Wichita Falls apparently held the state record with 107 degrees. Abilene had 106 degrees and Ft. Worth ran the oil town a close third, reporting 105 at 3 p. m. It was 101 at 2 p. m., at Dallas, and this was the highest for May ever registered at the United States weather bureau here.

Even in far north Amarillo, the thermometer went to 94. In San Antonio it was 103, the highest for May in history, and a hot wind was blowing. Dallas also had breezes but they were like the air from a desert.

Austin reported 96 with "brassy sky and possible rain."

Cooler On Coast

The towns on and near the gulf seemed to have escaped the worst elements of the heat. Port Arthur and Beaumont reported 88, and the latter reported mild southwest breeze was blowing. Both cities reported their weather as "pleasant."

Galveston reported that a cool south breeze "kept Galvestonians comfortable, the mercury staying around 82 to 84, and indications for Sunday were that there would be no material change."

C. A. Tucker, who drove to Dallas from Longview today, Mrs. Susie Favors, 64, and an aged negro were overcome by the heat. The negro is critically ill in a hospital. Tucker was overcome at a filling station, but revived, and Mrs. Favors was overcome in her home and taken to an emergency hospital.

106 AT ABILENE

ABILENE, May 28 (AP)—West Texas sweltered today as the mercury climbed to a new high record for May over a period of 42 years.

The weather bureau thermometer registered 106 degrees, one degree highr than it has ever gone in May, and within four degrees of a record for all time.

Other points in West Texas reported record breaking temperatures. At Ranger the thermometer climbed to 103 and at Brady it registered 106.

LINER TOWED IN

New 'Pride o Pacfic" Taken To Hoboken For Repairs

NEW YORK, May 28 (AP)—The new $7,000,000 Matson liner Malolo, battered "pride of the Pacific" was towed slowly up the harbor to a Hoboken pier today, to undergo repairs necessitated by a collision on her maiden voyage.

The Malolo, carrying officials of the Cramp Shipbuilding company, of Philadelphia, the builders; Gibbs Brothers, the architects; the Matson line and its subsidiary, the American-Haiwaiian line, left Tuesday for a trial run before being turned over to the owners. On Wednesday it was rammed amidships by the Norwegian freighter Jakok Christensen off Nantucketts.

The engines were stopped by the water which flooded two compartments, but the undamaged bulk heads held and there was at no time any danger of sinking. The steamer was towed to New York with all on board.

U. S.-French Draft Treaty Made Public

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, May 28 — A draft treaty to provide the machinery under which could be carried out the suggestion made last month to the American people by Aristide Briand, French foreign minister, that "France would be willing to enter into an agreement with America mutually outlawing war" was made public today by the American foundation. The foundation maintains the American peace award, founded by Edward Bok.

The treaty form, which is offered as a practical application of M. Briand's suggestion which was made through the Associated Press on April 6, the tenth anniversary of the entrance of the United States into the world war, seeks to outlaw war, not by fiat, but by substituting binding methods of solving all disputes.

Main Points Given

Its main point is that it binds its signatories, in any dispute of whatever character, to use one or another of possible methods of peaceful settlement. Aside from the normal processes of diplomacy and mediation, the draft treaty offer (1) conciliation; (2) arbitration, by special tribunals for The Hague court of arbitration, and (3) judicial settlement, by the permanent court of international justice more generally known as the world court.

If conciliation should fail, the treaty binds the signatories to submit their dispute either to arbitration or judicial settlement.

FINAL NOTE FOR RUSSIANS READY

CONTAINS RUSSIAN NAMES WHO ARE PERMITTED TO STAY IN LONDON

LONDON, May 28 (AP)—What will probably be the final official British communication to the Soviet mission in London will be delivered at Chesham house early next week. It will be a list of the names of those Russians who will be permitted to remain in London.

Meanwhile hasty packing and preparations for departure were the order of the day at Chesham house and Soviet house, a sign being posted at the former place reading: "The consulate general of the U. S. S. R. is closed."

The work of leaving, however, has proved so heavy, that it was found necessary to postpone the sailing of the Russian ship Youshar until Tuesday. This ship will carry 35 Russian officials and the bulk of their baggage. Customs officers are inspecting carefully every case taken aboard.

Tech Seniors Plan Chitwood Memorial

The archway to the Tech campus is to be built as a memorial to the memory of Richard M. Chitwood, late business manager of the college, the members of the first graduating class have decided. The class originally planned to erect the arch as a gift from the class alone.

The fund for the archway has already been started and the seniors have a goodly sum now on hand. It will be added to from time to time through subscriptions and various other methods, officials have announced.

W. C. Hedrick, of Fort Worth, has designed an arch which meets with the approval of the class and the cost is being estimated by a local contractor.

It is likely that friends of Mr. Chitwood will contribute to the fund also. Amon G. Carter, former chairman of the board with Mr. Chitwood, has stated that he wishes to contribute to the fund. Sweetwater men have asked for a part in the arch also.

COMMUNISTS ACTIVE

Would Blow Up Ammunition Dump on Philippines

MANILA, May 28.—The Manila Times says that Shanghai communists, in a communication to the Philippine labor union "legionaire del trabajo," urged the legionaires to blow up the naval ammunition dump at the Cavite navy yard, six miles across the bay from Manila, and that the Cavite lodge of the union, discussing the matter a few days ago, favored such action in the erroneous belief that it would block the supply of ammunition to American warships in Chinese waters. Naval authorities refused to comment on the information.

TWO OF ACCUSED HELD IN BORGER FOR OKMULGEE

BLACKIE WILSON AND OWEN EDWARDS HELD BY TEXAS RANGERS

SAID IDENTIFIED

SOONER OFFICERS COMB OSAGE HILLS FOR LEADERS

(By The Associated Press)

OKMULGEE, Okla., May 28—Six persons, five men and a woman, are under arrest charged with murder in connection with operations of the Kimes-Terrell robber gang, Sheriff John Russell revealed here today.

Three of the six are alleged to have participated in the holdup of two Beggs, Okla., banks, May 18, when Chief of Police W. J. McAnally was shot to death and $18,000 was taken.

Two Held in Borger

Two of the three, Blackie Wilson and Owen Edwards, were arrested yesterday in Borger, Texas, by Texas rangers. Deputy sheriffs have been despatched to Borger to return them to Okmulgee.

The third, Roy Branden, 32, who was apprehended last Monday, was brought to Okmulgee Wednesday, together with the remainder of the sextet. The others are John Brangon, 65, Roy's father; Hugh Hess, 23, Roy's brother-in-law, and Ruth Browning, 26, who officers said was the sweetheart of a man thought to be a member of the gang.

Russell said Wilson and Edwards had been identified positively as two of the men who took part in the robbery.

Arrested At Bristow

Roy Brandon's father and brother-in-law and the woman were arrested last Monday, when Roy was taken at his farm, five miles east of Bristow. The sheriff said the woman drove up to the farm in an automobile similar to that used by the Beggs robbers.

A large force of Okmulgee county officers spent all of today in the hills of Osage county looking for Kimes and Ray Terrell, sometimes known as "the most escaped convicts in Oklahoma." The officers said they had received positive information that the two gangsters were hidden there.

Seek to Identify Pair

BORGER, May 28 (AP)—Blackie Wilson and a man who gives his name as "Hawk" Whitehead were arrested at Oil City, near here, several days ago, by Ranger Captain Tom Hickman and Wm. Sterling and several other officers.

"Whitehead" is evidently Owen Edwards, Captain Sterling said tonight. The men made no resistance, throwing away their guns and ammunition. They were captured in

STANFORD WINS IN INTERCOLLEGIATE MEET

ATHLETICS SNATCH BARGAIN BILL FROM BOSTON'S RED SOX

CARR OF YALE SMASHES HOFF'S POLE VAULT RECORD CLEARING BAR AT 14 FEET FOR NEW MARK

THREE OTHER INTERCOLLEGIATE MARKS FALL IN JAVELIN, BROAD JUMP AND 220 YARD DASH; 21 COLLEGES IN SCORING COLUMN

FRANKLINFIELD, Pa., May 28, (AP)—A small but powerful band of twelve stalwart athletes swept Leland Stanford university to its first intercollegiate AAAA track and field championship today, but it remained for an agile young man from Dubuque, Iowa, to supply the chief thrills.

Sabin Carr of Yale, as well as Dubuque, lifted himself to international fame by clearing fourteen feet in the pole vault and smashing the world's record held by the slim Norwegian, Charley Hoff, now a professional. It was only by a scant margin that Carr eclipsed Hoff's figure of 13 feet 11 13-16 inches set in Finland two years ago.

Barnes Extends Carr

Carr was extended all the way by Lee Barnes of Southern California, the olympic champion. Leaving Carr's former ICAAAA record of 13 feet two inches far behind, Barnes kept pace with the Yale ace up to 13 feet 9 1-2 inches.

Four records fell altogether as Stanford's squad went about the task of piling up their winning total of 36 1-2 points, enough to decisively outstrip all rivals and distance Southern California as the holder of the team trophy.

Three Marks Fall

Carr's was the only world's record but intercollegiate marks were shattered in the javelin by Creth Hines of Georgetown with a heave of 205 feet 7 5-8 inches, by Aldred Bates of Penn state in the broad jump with a leap of 24 feet 8 1-2 inches and by Charley Borah, Southern California flash, who ran the 220 yards dash in 20 9-10 seconds to complete a sweep of the sprints, the only double triumph of the finals.

Stanford withstood all upsets and beat off all challenges. The Cardinals captured only one first place, that by "Biff" Hoffman in the discus throw, but they scored heavily in seven other events—mile run, high hurdles, pole vault, javelin, broad jump, high jump and shot put—to reach their total of 36 1-2 points, the highest winning mark since 1923.

Penn Gets Three Firsts

Penn state's squad leading the eastern defense captured three first places and was runner up to Stanford with 27 points. Yale scoring in seven events, amassed 23 1-2 points, just enough to nose out the two-time champions, Southern California, which finished fourth with 22.

These four stood out well above the rest of the field of 21 colleges that got into the point scoring column. Dartmouth finished fifth with 16 points and Georgetown sixth with 14 points, leading such other aggregations as California with 10 1-2, Syracuse with 10, Cornell and Pennsylvania with 8 each.

Four Lambs Will Take Up Coaching

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., May 28.—When thinking of athletic brothers, don't leave out the Lamb boys of Coe college here.

The four Lamb brothers—Clyde, Ray, Harris and Willis—have made athletic history at Coe in the past few years.

Their college days over, the four Lambs will spend the coming year coaching high school teams in this state.

Each brother was a high school star. Each made his own fame at college. Success is predicted for each as a coach.

Clyde is the older. Ray follows him and then trail the twins, Willis and Harris.

Clyde earned his fame at Coe in basketball and track. Ray's fame came on the gridiron and baseball field. The twins got their glory in football, basketball and baseball.

Quite a family of athletes, and it will be a family of athletes for many years to come, as each brother intends to devote his entire time to coaching prep school athletes for the next few years.

DOG TAX SCARCE

Only One Canine Registered For New Ordinance

Fido doesn't have many friends in Lubbock. At least R. A. Holland, city tax collector, says so.

Only one dog tax was paid into the city office yesterday, the last day before the enforcement of the dog ordinance recently passed by the city commission.

Monday, Police Chief John Lemond is to start out rounding up all the stray dogs in Lubbock. They must have a license tag or they are to be killed, the ordinance orders, and Chief Lemond states the he is to carry out the order.

Mr. and Mrs. Jewel Davis are moving to Canyon.

Robinson Claims Dodgers Improve

BROOKLYN, May 28.— Uncle Wilbert Robinson expects his young Brooklyn team to breeze along merrily in the National League pennant chase from now.

"These youngsters of mine have been improving right along lately," Uncle Robby assures the world, "and they'll get better as the season goes on.

"Herman, Partridge, Butler and Flowers should make a good infield combination. Flowers has certainly helped my club, and Partridge's play has been extremely satisfactory.

"The hitting of the outfielders has been disappointingly weak with Statz and Hendricks far below their normal strength. But they can hit and when they start we'll see lots of runs coming in.

"It is not all over with Brooklyn yet. The Robins should look better within a few weeks when the outfielders get to hitting and the infield strengthens up a bit."

CORNELL WILL BE TOUGH EGG

Ithacans Have Inside Track On Competition To Be Run Off In Philadelphia

By NEA Service

ITHACA, N. Y., May 28—Cornell's track team looms as the strongest team in the east for the I. C. 4-A track meet at Philadelphia late this month.

The Ithacans can hardly expect to lend either Stanford or Southern California in the big meet, but they have a good chance to top all eastern entries.

Cornell's strength rests on the showing of Johnny Anderson, Horace Benson and Norwood Wright. Others expected to grab a point or two are Worden, Caruthers, Spelman, Bradley and Reed.

This group of track athletes, grabbed off several points at the Penn Relays, especially in the field events, and Coach Jack Moakley is confident that they will grab off several points in the Philadelphia meet.

As it stands now, with no team in the east outstanding like Stanford and Southern California in the west, the Ithacans look the best of the lot.

I HAVE a funny putting grip, I know. I cock my right thumb at right angles to the shaft and sight down it with my eyes to the blade. I can get the "feel" much better this way. So far as I know it is the only grip of its kind in the game.

A few months ago just before I won the Los Angeles open I changed to this peculiar style and the success I had was sensational.

To save strokes on the green: (1) Grip loosely with the left hand. (2) Hit with the right. (3) Don't line up the blade between the ball and the cup. (4) Relax. (5) Be rhythmical.

Strolling Down Sports Lane

JAMES R. DOW

Well its today—Lubbock Hubbers vs. Pampa Oilers—at the Merrill Park, 2:30 o'clock. It is the opening game for the Hubbers and the first game of the season for the fans to witness an out-of-town aggregation.

This Pampa bunch has a strong club. They have been hitting through a winning streak for the entire season and already have had about a month's experience.

Pampa is managed by a former resident of this city, none other that "Emmer" Gober. Gober, as the Lubbock and South Plains fans will remember was a member of the Hubbers during the season of '22 in the West Texas League.

Shaw, outfielder for the Oilers, is another West Texas Leaguer. Shaw can hit 'em a "far" piece. He was on the receiving line for the Amarillo nine in the West Texas loop.

There is another one of those West Texas Leaguers in the Pampa line-up. Clayton, Oiler catcher, was formerly with the Clovis crew.

But come to think about it the Hubbers have a few old heads themselves. Ex-leaguers of the West Texas and Panhandle-Pecos Valley Leagues. Gib Jackson, Chester Sheppard, and "Woman" Sanders have all been members of the loops Lubbock participated in several years ago.

Earl Jones old timer of baseball who has been calling games in Lubbock for several years, will officiate at the game this afternoon.

"Terrible" Terry, veteran hurler of the Hubber ranks, will take the mound this afternoon against "Emmer" Gober's nine of Pampa. Gober knows what Terry can do—he knows him well enough to consider him a shade tough.

That infield—the Hubbers are one bit weak—come out and see for yourself. There is "Red" Gaither Raymond Ater, Chester Sheppard, "Woman" Sanders—all plenty good with a bunch of good reserves.

Then the outfield—Gib Jackson, "Chubby" DeWitt, Alex Hensley, Hawkeye Hardwick—hit and field are these lads' middle name.

J. B. "Red" Hamilton, the sensation of the Amarillo tourney of last fall, will be behind the platter this afternoon looking after the offerings of Terry. Hamilton has been rather busy this week and has but little work-out but he is in fair shape—nothing wrong with his arm and he is hitting with a crash. So that department is O. K.

Here is your chance Mr. Fans of Lubbock and the South Plains—stay with the Hubbers—they will stay with you. Attend their games and let them know that you are for them from the first and stick to the last. A team is made up solely of the support and consideration given them by the fans of the city. Good attendance and loyal fans make the ball club.

Te Hubbers won't be out in their new togs today but will have them next Sunday. The uniforms are nifty and will be the thing for the lads when they arrive.

Five Records Fall In Army-Navy Meet

WEST POINT, N. Y., May 28. (AP)—Five service records tumbled today as army swamped navy in their annual track and field meet 103 1-2 to 31 1-2. Bennett, in breaking the high jump mark, scored the only first place for the midshipmen. The cadets were out in front in thirteen of the fifteen events and got a tie in the pole vault.

Sprague of the army set a new mark for the shot put with a heave of 44 feet, 10 1-2 inches. Hutchinson, of army and Jeanes of navy tied in establishing the new service record for the pole vault—12 feet, 3 7-8 inches. "Tiny" Hewitt, let the hammer fly 164 feet, 6 inches for another new mark, and Simon of the cadets tossed the javelin 174 feet, 7 5-8 inches to better the old record. Bennett's new mark for the high jump is 6 feet, 1-2 inch.

A freight train in Nebraska was stalled for more than an hour by tumbleweeds that had become matted and filled with drifting dirt until it was impossible for the engine to pass.

His Homer Puts Athletics Over

MICKEY COCHRANE

After the Philadelphia Athletics had taken the first game of a twin bill from the Boston Red Sox yesterday it looked like the Beaneaters would even things up in the nightcap. That is, it looked that way until Mickey Cochrane, hard-hitting Mack, came to the bat and hit a homer off Slim Harriss with a team-mate on the cushions, to cinch a clean sweep.

PAGEANT

School House" were next pictured, showing barefoot boys and girls, with their slates and tin dinner buckets, being taught by the lone schoolmaster in the single room. Following swiftly upon the heels of this portion of the pageant came the modern school teacher, with her neatly dressed pupils, giving all of her attention to one grade.

Present Conditions Shown

Following this point the theme of the pageant shifted to school conditions as they are in Texas and in Lubbock today. "Torch-bearers of Tomorrow's Light," including students from the tiniest kindergarten tots to the graduating class of the Tech, brought home to the audience the educational methods of the present time. Primary, grammar school, junior high, senior high graduates and students, carrying banners representing all of the state's institution of higher learning, with each school's present enrollment, entered into this part of the picturization. Of the 51 colleges and universities represented Texas university, with slightly more than 5,100 students, was the largest while Texas Tech, in its second year, was in fourth place with an enrollment of 1,537.

The coronation of Queen Ruth, second maiden to reign over a pageant of Texas Tech, was performed by President Horn amid a blaze of glory in a court, which to spectators seemed to surpass storybook pictures, those of medlaeval and ancient times. Miss D'Aun Sammons, who was queen last year, was one of the duchesses along with Misses Afton Gilkerson, Annabelle Collins, Elizabeth Shannon, Katherine Bryarly, Mary Lou Bayless, Edna Yonge and Almeda Murray. Sylvester Slagle escorted Miss Slaton and Dukes Bruce Reed, Douglas Smythe, Willis Lemmons, Charles Woolridge, James B. Hamilton, Ted Sams, Jefferson Davis, Christian and Clayton Barfoot accompanied the duchesses.

Other Attendants, Too

Other attendants at the court of Queen Ruth were "Education," (Miss Thelma Wiles), "Texas" (Horace G. Moore).

Marshalls: Jess Lockhart, Ogden Horne, Orval Burroughs, Dennis Vanzant.

Trumpeters: Elton Mims, Leslie Easley, Dan Yarberry, Brock Brandon.

Heralds: Ann Dohoney, Katherine Weaver.

Flower girls: Betty Ann Jordon, Mary Sparks, Louise George, Betty Jean Jones.

Trainbearers: Edgar Shelton, Walter Studhalter.

Pillow Bearer: Margaret Studhalter.

Crown Bearer: John Gerald Thompson.

Staff Bearer: Ed Leidigh.

Pages: Hugh Horne, William Camp.

Warren P. Clements, professor of education, opened the pageant with a solo, "The Lone Star State," which was particularly clear and pleasing in spite of the fact that a stiff breeze was blowing and the soloist was singing in the out-of-doors.

Miss Pirtle Well Aided

Aiding Miss Pirtle in the direction of the pageant was Miss Johnnye Gilkerson, director of physical education for Tech women. The band and orchestra, led by Director Harry LeMaire, lent musical color to the myriad scenes in a highly creditable manner. Marvin T. Warlick, superintendent of grounds and buildings, was in charge of properties and stage arrangements.

Hundreds of costumes, many of them made here and scores of others procured through costume houses from over the country, made the pageant a glittering spectacle throughout. The large crowd overflowed the temporary bleachers erected for the occasion and hundreds of people sat on the ground or stood around the arena in which the pageant was held. Special lighting effects added their touch of realism to make the event even more spectacular.

Praise Well Rewarded

While it is not correct journalism in a news account to publish the story of the pageant without directing public attention and praise to Misses Ruth Pirtle and Johnnye Gilkerson, Professor LeMaire and Marvin Warlick would leave it without a most necessary touch. As they watched the pageant enacted by Lubbock citizens, swelled by scores of out-of-town visitors attracted by advance notices, learned through accurate picturization many facts of Texas history, of higher education and of the local school system which they had never before realized. The entire production was not only a credit to the Tech but to Lubbock and the entire state of Texas.

The following is the pledge read by President Horn and taken by each of the 28 graduates:

"We will never bring disgrace to our college, by any act of dishonesty or cowardice, nor ever desert our comrades; we will fight for the ideals, sacred things of our Alma Mater; we will revere and obey her commands, and do our best to incite a like respect and reverence in others; we will strive unceasingly to quicken the public's sense of duty toward her; that thus in all these ways, we may transmit to the people of this Commonwealth a greater, better, and more beautiful college than was transmitted to us."

TOMMY MILTON TO DRIVE OWN RACER MONDAY

CLIFF DURANT'S SUDDEN ILLNESS FORCES VET BACK TO TRACK

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 28.—The return of Tommy Milton to automobile racing was made certain late tonight when he qualified an eight cylinder car of his own design for the annual 500 mile race to be held next Monday at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Milton, the thirty first driver to qualify his car, negotiated ten miles of the dangerous brick course at an average of 108.1 miles an hour. His return to the sport after 18 months retirement followed the sudden illness of Cliff Durant, millionaire sportsman who had been nominated to pilot the car.

Drove To Qualify

The veteran, who is the only living driver ever to win the local race twice, hurled his speedster around the track only fast enough to make certain of a place in the starting line. Thirty three machines will be permitted to start. A total of thirty nine are trying for those places. Milton's time was several miles an hour faster than a half dozen others making certain his position.

Ten drivers qualified their cars today, the other twenty one having taken their turns Thursday when Frank Lockhart established a record of 120 miles an hour. Jules Ellingboe, Memphis, Tenn., drove the fastest ten miles today, his average being 113.2 miles an hour.

Fred Lecklider, Dave Evans, Al Coley, Tony Gulotta, Wade Morton and Louis Schneider, a former Indianapolis motorcycle policeman, were among those who bettered the minimum qualifying average of ninety miles an hour today. Eight others will be given a final opportunity to make the grade tomorrow.

We sent some "good will" fliers on a trip around South America recently. Maybe the warships are just a follow-up.

RUTH BANGS OUT TWELFTH HOMER WITH TWO ON TO INSURE FIRST VICTORY; RAIN AND HAIL HALTS ST. LOUIS AND CLEVELANDERS

(By Associated Press)

BOSTON, May 28.—Philadelphia won a double victory over the Red Sox today, taking both games of the double header, 8 to 6, and 4 to 3. Bob Grove, lefthander, finished both contests for the Athletics. In the first game Lundgren was driven out of the box in the first inning when Philadelphia made six runs. In the fifth Ehmke also was driven out, the Red Sox piling up six runs. In this large inning Hartley made two doubles.

In the second game the deciding factor was a home run into the right field bleachers by Cochrane, off Harriss, with a man on base.

Tigers Halt Chi-Sox

DETROIT, May 28 (AP)—Although outhit by an advantage of three, the Detroit Tigers took the third game of the series from the Chicago White Sox today 7 to 1, thereby breaking a winning streak of the visitors. Stoner out pitched Blankenship for the White Sox by keeping the hits scattered and received better support in the field. A bunching of hits with Chicago errors and bases on balls, accounted for the Detroit runs. Score:

LOS ANGELES, May 28 (AP)—Edwin Wide, Swedish runner, failed here today in an attempt to beat the world's record held by Paavo Nurmi, of Finland, in the one mile run and himself was beaten by Nick Carter of the Los Angeles Athletic club by 15 yards. Carter's time was 4 minutes 16 2-5 seconds, compared with Nurmi's mark of 4 minutes 10 2-5 seconds.

MEMPHIS—Memphis, Clarendon and other points in Hall, Donley and Childress counties are crowded with farmers securing planting seed and making other preparations for a general rush in plowing.

CROWELL—C. L. Adkins, who lives near Crowell, owns a pony that has been accustomed to eating chickens. The carcass of a chicken stuffed with red pepper is said to have stopped the chicken eating animal from the habit.

"The overcoat is in there just the Same!"

by LOGAN BROS.

They used to tell a story about a new salesman turning in his first expense account. One item set down was an overcoat, at $40.

"Here!" cried the sales manager, "this won't do. We're not buying overcoats for salesmen. Take this statement back and make it out right."

Presently the salesman returned with the revised statement. His chief glanced at it. "Fine! That's the stuff," he said.

"It is, eh?" replied the other, with evident satisfaction. "Well, the overcoat is in there just the same!"

If you had been in the tire business as long as we have, you would realize that in some ways a tire dealer's list prices and a liberal expense account are much alike. Both can be padded as much as necessary. So all this talk about "discounts" and "long trades" doesn't mean a thing.

A different selling Policy

We could hand you that come-hither stuff, too, if we liked. All we'd have to do would be to stock a long-profit line of tires and play the old army game.

But we operate on a different policy. We've had the idea for a long time that the majority of sensible people would like to buy tires as they buy anything else—on a legitimate, above-board basis.

We think they prefer to purchase nationally known tires of established quality, at fair and frank prices, from a concern that has some standing in the community.

A popular Policy, too

Maybe we're wrong. But our sales records say different.

If you're tired of being kidded about low-cost mileage, and really want to get it, let me fix you up now with a set of new Goodyears.

Quality considered, they're the lowest-cost equipment you can buy, and you'll have the satisfaction of knowing that no one gets a better tire or better price than you do.

You know how it's done. Simply push up the retail prices to suit the occasion and then "discount" and "long trade" you to your heart's content.

Sure, We'll Trade

We'll take your old tires in trade on new Goodyears, yes. But two things we won't do. We won't allow you more than they're worth, and then try to make it up by jumping the retail price on the new tires. No; if we trade you'll get just what you're entitled to for the old tires. In turn you'll be charged just what everyone else is for the new ones. That seems fair. How about it?

As for all that "special deal and "discount" and "long trade" line of taffy, don't be stampeded.

You know—"the overcoat is in there just the same!"

CORPUS CHRISTI, May 28 (AP)—Contract with the Texas Farm Bureau cotton association has been signed by the Aransas compress company of Corpus Christi to handle cotton from 38 south Texas counties. The contract included provisions for grading, stapling, storing and shipping of association members' cotton through the new port here.

Harry Williams, secretary-treasurer of the association, has said that the change has been made in order to save substantial sums for the membership in concentration charges by freight shipment, as compared to shipping the cotton to Houston for export. Cotton handled by the association from other sections of the state will continue to move through Houston. About 50,000 bales will be concentrated here, it is expected.

The counties included in the arrangement are Atascosa, Bee, Bexar, Brooks, Calhoun, Cameron, Comal, Dewitt, Dimmit, Duval, Frio, Gillespie, Goliad, Gonzales, Guadalupe, Hidalgo, Jackson, Jim Hogg, Jim Wells, Karnes, Kleberg, Kendall, Kerr, Lasalle, Live Oak, Medina, McMullin, Nueces, Refugio, San Patriocio, Starr, Victoria, Webb, Willacy, Wilson, Uvalde, Zapata, and Zavalla.

SUICIDE NOTE LEADS COPS TO BODY OF WOMAN

TALE OF ILLICIT LOVE TOLD IN NOTE LEFT IN MARTIN DEATH

MYSTERY CLEARS

WOMAN DESCRIBED AS "DEVIL WITH BABY FACE" IN NOTE

(By The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, May 28. — Two bullets, fired at close range ended the life of Sarah Rapp, described by Wesner C. Martin, in a suicide note as "a devil with a baby face." The body of the woman Martin declared lured him from his wife and then flaunted his affections was found today as he said it would be found.

Beside it was a note, written by Martin, detailing the faithlessness he had charged against her.

Martin's body was found in a Milwaukee hotel two days ago.

Another Note.

There also was a note, in which he said he had killed a girl in Chicago because she had been untrue to him. He did not mention a name or address, and until today's discovery, police had regarded his actions as the result of hallucinations. The girl, the note found today said, was Sarah Rapp. It outlined that he had married her "because she had gotten in trouble" and wanted a certificate to show her mother and sister. It related of marriage to her on March 21, at the Holy Name Cathedral and records in the county building substantiated the claim. A license had been issued to W. C. Martin, 25, and Sarah Rapp, 19.

He said he had met the girl in a downtown hotel last January. In February, employes of the hotel said a man and the girl had taken quarters there. He signed the register as W. W. Milton and wife.

Wife in Iowa

The wife, whom he confessed having been unfaithful to, now is in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, where she went three months ago to be with her mother when her baby was born. The child, a son, was born several weeks ago. The mother has said her husband was attentive and faithful and she did not know of another woman in his life. They had been married a year.

A picture of Martin in newspapers, recognized by the hotel clerk as resembling that of the man who had lived there, led to the discovery of the body. A sign on the door, "silence, do not disturb" had prevented maids from entering since last Wednesday when Martin and the girl were last seen by hotel attendants and guests.

Illicit Love Revealed

In tense short sentences today's note revealed the tale of illicit love and disappointment which the Milwaukee note had only scantly alluded to, but nowhere was there a hint of regret for desertion of the wife in Cedar Rapids.

"Four days after we were married she stayed out all night with a fellow", the note said, referring to the slain woman. "I loved her in spite of everything. Today she told me another fellow with lots of money wanted to take her away.

"I killed her and now I am killing myself. I loved her in spite of the fact that she was a bad woman. I could not give her up. May God forgive me." The note was not signed.

PLAINVIEW—D. M. Wiggins of the department of education at Simmons University delivered the commencement address to 34 graduates of Wayland college here Thursday.

MANY BIG BILLS AWAITING ACTION

LEGISLATURE IS ENTERING LAST WEEK SPECIAL SESSION MONDAY

(By the Associated Press)

AUSTIN, May 28.—The complexion of Governor Dan Moody's administration, by common agreement of those supposed to know what they are talking about, will be ruled largely by what the legislature has done in the last full week, beginning Monday, of the special session.

Now that the main appropriations bill of the coming biennium await only free conference adjustments of senate and house differences before final passage, administration projects, including a system of state civil service, legislation enabling more efficient highway supervision, and plenary power for a reorganized prison board, await the legislature's plensure.

Want To Finish On Time

Most legislators seem determined to get through by June 7, last day of the special session, by law. If a second special session is held, it probably will not come until September, after the people have voted on eight proposed constitutional amendments set up by the regular session.

Next week will see acsion on two proposals to renovate highway administration. The Tillotson measure favored by the house highway and motor traffic committee would confer broad powers upon the highway commission to develop state highways by state funds to be augmented if possible and made directly available, leaving to counties the use of their credit in construction of local roads. The senate bill, by Stuart, reported favorably from a symposium of three, calls for conversion of the commission into an appointive body of nine men, representative of as many sections of the state to be designated. The theory is that more direct local cooperation in road building can be secured.

In connection with the highway program is the Tillotson-Teer-Fly bill to perpetuate the three cent gasoline tax beyond September 1, 1928, when, by the regular session law, it would revert to two cents.

Senate and house committees are agreed upon a compromise civil service bill giving the state board of control supervision of examinations to determine appointments of subordinate state employes, subject heretofore to whims of the changing political regimes. The main question will be therefore, not upon the manner of civil service administration, but whether the legislature will adopt any at all.

PIPE LINE CAMP IS OPENED AT BIG SPRING

BIG SPRING, May 23.—A huge camp for pipe line workers is being constructed five miles south of Big Spring on the Gallagher ranch and will be occupied by workmen for the Gulf Pipe Line Construction company. Accommodations are being arranged for 260 men. The small camp built near Stanton is being torn down and moved to the Big Spring location.

This pipe line is being constructed from Midland to Ranger, a distance of 105 miles, and is to be completed by June 15. Five construction crews are on the job. Modern trench digging machines are being used in order that the work be rushed. A 10 inch pipe will be laid 30 inches below the surface. With the coming of the pipe line wildcat operators will resume their work with more certainty of selling their production. The distance across Howard county will be approximately 31 miles.

BRUSSELS PAYS HIGH TRIBUTE TO LINDBERGH

DECORATED BY ALBERT AS KNIGHT OF ORDER OF LEOPOLD

GETS GOLD MEDAL

ESCORTED FROM PARIS BY BIG FLOTILLA OF FENCH PLANES

By The Associated Press

BRUSSELS, May 28.—A royal welcome awaited Captain Charles Lindbergh, who flew from Paris to Brussels today. Within two hours after he brought the "Spirit of St. Louis" down upon Belgian soil, King Albert had received him at the palace, showered congratulations upon him for his conquest of the Atlantic and pinned on his coat the insignia of Knight of the Order of Leopold.

Presented Gold Medal

Then in the afternoon he was presented with the highly-coveted gold medal of the Royal Aero club, an honor that only five other airmen, all Belgian citizens, have received. These are Willy Coppens, Lieutenant Thierry, Maurice Medaets, Jan Olieslagers and Ernest de Murter. The Belgians say that Lindbergh has "become a sixth member of this little family and thus is a sort of adopted son of Belgium."

Today the Belgians showed they love heroic prowess, and as the best proof of this they emphasized the fact that Captain Lindbergh is the only foreigner thus far admitted to the family of Belgian heroes of the air.

The American airman was escorted all the way from Paris by a flotilla of French airplanes and was met at the border by two squadrons of Belgian army planes.

Lands Through Escort

Lindbergh through the center of the wide circle of escorting planes, coming to the earth as gently as a bird alighting. Thousands on thousands of Belgians and others had watched his silver plane circling the city, and he was cheered by the vast throng as he came down. James C. Dunn, the American charge d'affairs and Henri Jaspar, the Belgian premier, met him. Within the next two hours he had not only been received by the king and the royal family, but had shaken hands with the most of the cabinet members and several ambassadors.

Wherever he went through the streets the populace of Brussels hailed him heartily. He met the members of the American colony at his country's embassy and visited the tomb of the Unknown Soldier and the monument to the Belgian airmen who had died in battle. At both places he deposited a wreath.

Tonight he was the guest of honor at a dinner given by the American club. In the course of the afternoon the flier made his first speech from a balcony, although he had been called out upon many of them by the European crowds.

"A week ago this very moment," he said, "I was over the Atlantic. There were two desires in my mind—first, to reach Le Bourget, the second, to visit Brussels. I landed at Le Bourget and now I am in Brussels. Both of my wishes have come true.

"Unfortunately, I cannot remain long with you, but I shall never forget Belgium and France and some day I shall return."

LUBBOCK COUNTY CITIZENS URGE ROAD BOND ELECTION

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS ASKED TO APPOINT COMMITTEE TO CANVASS POSSIBILITY OF $1,000,000 ISSUE

Lubbock county has joined other Panhandle-Plains counties in the west of West Texas for high type highways, and under present indications the program will meet with success.

At an enthusiastic meeting of a few interested citizens of Lubbock and other towns in the county with the Commissioners court Saturday, it was decided that the commissioners will appoint a committee, including citizens from every town in the county to investigate the possibility of the success of an election whereby it is hoped to vote a bond issue of not less than $1,000,000 for highway improvement throughout the county, including a good lateral system of roads to connect with the main arteries of travel that it is planned will be under hard surface.

Much Interest Shown

In view of the great interest being manifested throughout this part of the state for high type roads, it is the opinion of leaders in the proposal in this county that other counties necessary to make of the program a connected project will join heartily in the program to the end that state and federal aid both may be secured under the policy of the State Highway Commission for connected systems.

It was the unanimous opinion of those present in the Saturday session that the State Highway Commission is now disposed to offer aid for highway improvement in West Texas, and that now is the time to enter the plea for West Texas or possibly jeopardize possibilities of aid in the near future.

Three Programs Planned

Hale, joined by a tier of counties east and west on the Lee highway, has a program under way for permanent improvement of state highway No. 23, and this project already has been granted two for one state and federal aid.

Dawson, joined by counties to the east and west, now has a program under way in preliminary stages for the permanent improvement of an east and west highway through this tier of counties, with an extension east from Lamesa through Gaines county into New Mexico. A contest is now on by which a name is to be selected for the highway and extension.

Efforts are also under way for permanent improvement of the east and west highway through Post, Patton, and Brownfield from Aspermont and Clairemont and into New Mexico by Plains in Yoakum county.

Preliminary Work Here

Lubbock county has had under discussion for some time the permanent improvement of all highways through the county, of which there are three across the county now under state designation, but to date no definite steps have been taken except for construction of roads and drainage structures. In this, however, the county has been balked except for one end of highway No. 7 south from here to the county line, although plans and specifications have been prepared on all five other projects leading in the many directions out of this city.

It is the plan in the campaign to revive interest in this work, to foster a $1,000,000 bond issue, and to encourage all surrounding counties to do likewise, then the proposition is to be submitted to the State Highway commission for definite action. Pending completion of all these details, however, it is agreed that nothing will be accomplished in a plea for state aid, due to the fact that the state commission is committed to a policy of connected systems.

It was explained that No. 7 north west through Lubbock from Sweetwater is under partial hard surface through Scurry county, and that federal aid has been committed in the short strip across the northeast corner of Hockley county, but that now Garza, Lubbock, Lamb and Bailey counties must be interested to connect the system.

Highway No. 9

On No. 9 due north and south through here from Lamesa to Amarillo, Lynn and Dawson counties are committed to county wide bond issues affecting this highway. Hale is to vote in June on a county wide issue affecting No. 9, with Lubbock, Swisher and Randall counties holding the key to the situation so far as concerted action is concerned.

On No. 53, Dickens county has partial hard surface, with Crosby greatly interested. Now, Lubbock, Terry and Gaines must be interested in the project for a connected system.

Sentiment throughout the twelve counties directly affected by the proposed program apparently is crystalized in favor of permanent roads, but it was explained that in several instances, counties are holding back for Lubbock county, the most thickly populated, to take the lead.

The Commissioners' Court of this county has announced that it is ready at any time to call a bond election under terms of the law governing such, and that the body is very anxious to have the improvement work begin at the earliest moment possible.

Cut In Malt Sale Noted In Lubbock

Lubbock merchants are co-operating with county officers concerning the sale of malt, a check-up on the various grocery stores of the city yesterday revealed. With the exception of a few cases, the stores which sold the product before the warning sent out by county attorney L. A. Howard, have all stopped placing the malt on their shelves. Those who sell it state that due caution is being taken to see that it is not sold for brewing purposes.

In speaking of the warning sent out recently, Mr. Howard said yesterday that the law would be enforced to the limit. Proof that the malt was sold for the sole purpose of making home brew is all that is needed for conviction, Mr. Howard said.

WEST TEXAS NEWSPAPERMEN SESSION TALKS PLANS FOR FUTURE OF SECTION

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

SWEETWATER, Texas, May 28.—A conference of the executive committee of the West Texas Press Association headed by president J. L. Martin of Snyder was held in the city today and it was decided that midterm meeting of the association which was to be held in this city on June 4 would be postponed to July 23 on account of the fact that it would conflict with the Texas State Press Association which would meet in El Paso the following week.

At this meeting which will be the main business meeting of the association for the year, plans will be perfected for a general membership drive to make this one of the largest regional organizations in the state. The association was born this past November when the newspaper editors and owners met in Colorado and started the association.

Interest has been manifested throughout the entire section by the newspaper fraternity and quoting President Martin, "This association will have no leg pulling, no graft, and no dues; only object is the get together meeting of the newspaper men of West Texas to work out the problems of mutual benefit and better understanding for the upbuilding of the business."

New Movie Draws Cinema Directors

Fourteen motion picture directors, more than have ever before worked upon a single production, recently gathered to direct Mildred Davis in her first appearance before the camera in four years.

Arriving on the set at Paramount's west coast studio to begin production upon "Too Many Crooks" Miss Davis was greeted by a contingent of film makers, each with a megaphone, who offered to assist Director Fred Newmeyer in shooting his first scene with Miss Davis.

The directors who assembled on the set were James Cruze, Monte [illegible], Clarence Badger, Dorothy Arzner, Frank Lloyd, Luther Reed, Arthur Rossom, Richard Rosson, Larry Semon, Mauritz Stiller, John Waters, Lothar Mendes and H. D'Abbadie D'Arrast.

"Too Many Crooks" taken from E. J. Rath's novel, deals with the adventures of a society girl who decides to create the world's greatest crook drama. In order to gain the necessary atmosphere she invades the underworld, coming into contact with blackjack artists, second story men, confidence workers and pickpockets.

The photoplay which arrives at the Palace theater Monday was adapted for the screen by Rex Taylor. Lloyd Hughes, George Bancroft and El Brendel are co-featured with Miss Davis.

WISCONSIN DRAWS

Last year saw the entrance of 2,600,000 auto tourists from other states into Wisconsin, reports J. T. Dohaney, state highway engineer. These tourists, he adds, spent $99,000,000. A greater year is expected in 1927.

Establishment Of System Marketing Products Co-operatively In Lubbock Theme Of County Federation Meeting

With the discussion of cooperative marketing in Lubbock county as a recurrent theme and the phase of discourse in which there was most interest, the County Federation of Women's clubs met in semi-annual session yesterday at the First Presbyterian church. Mrs. R. A. Baldwin, of Slaton, president, presided.

Lubbock club women were hostesses and served a delicious luncheon to visitors at the noon hour in the basement of the church. Mrs. W. B. Price, of this city, president of the seventh district in the state federation, was present at the meeting, helped receive the visitors and brought greetings from the district. About one hundred attended.

Marvin Jones Speaks

The principal address during the morning was made by Congressman Marvin Jones, of Amarillo, who talked on the constitution of the United States, its infallibility and what it should mean to citizens of the nation. He pointed out that amendments that were added to the constitution years ago by far-sighted leaders are yet good in meaning and that the constitution of this country has stood firmer in the face of changing history than those of other countries.

Following a discussion of ways in which the urban and rural women may cooperate in establishing and operating a market for county products, led by Mrs. W. H. Meador, a committee was appointed by Mrs. Baldwin to investigate the possibilities of establishing a co-operative market in this county. Mrs. Meador was made chairman, with Mrs. J. L. Benton, Posey and Mrs. Piney, of Carlisle, as other members of the committee.

Farm Bureau Represented

N. S. Hudson, of Hale county, a state director in the Farm Bureau taking as examples the Wheat Growers association in Canada, the Tobacco Growers association in Kentucky, and the Fruit Growers association in California. Several women at the meeting told of the success of these markets as they have witnessed them. In discussing the establishment of such a system here, it was agreed that it shall be known as the curb marketing system.

The Farm Bureau association is to send a delegate to California to observe the system there and is advising that the County Federation, with other clubs in the county, send another representative to gather information that will be of especial help to the women of the county. Mrs. S. S. Revier, of Carlisle, stated.

Talks On Federation

Other talks that were made during the day dealt with the place of the federated clubs in the activities of rural and urban women in local political activities and general talks on the club work. In her greeting, Mrs. Baldwin enumerated the aims of the federation, saying that it is to help in some degree the new and the weak club, to promote friendly cooperation between urban and rural clubs and to help carry out the state program of work.

"Many women with fine ideas are lonesome for companionship and crave the association of other women in club life. Our aim is to help reach and interest these women. We need and want them with us," she said.

"Women of town and county should be bonded together in fellowship and our hope is to promote this spirit of cooperation and to be of service to each other."

Others Make Talks

In keeping with these ideas, Mrs. C. Z. Fine, of Poesy, spoke of "The Value of the County Federation to Rural Women" and Mrs. A. W. Evans, Lubbock, told of the value of the organization to urban women.

Dr. W. A. Jackson, of the Technological college faculty, spoke on the place of the federated club in local political activities, saying that the women should be in touch with political tendencies and thought and that the club women should be leaders in promoting political activities.

Miss Mae Murfee made a short talk in which she told of the value that the County Federation might be to young folk, pleading that the interests of young folk might be promoted by the club women as leaders in the various communities.

Librarian Speaks

Another such talk was made by Miss France Hoyt Ford, county librarian, in which she urged cooperation of club women in the county, suggesting ways in which the women might help improve the library and increase the circulation of books.

A comprehensive outline of home demonstration work in the county and in the state was given by Miss Hazel Hammer, agent.

The program opened in the morning at 10 o'clock with the assembly singing "America the Beautiful," after which Miss Mae Murfee gave the invocation and a welcome talk was made by Mrs. G. C. Wolffarth. Mrs. T. B. Walker, of Idalou, responded.

Have Musical Program

A music program was given during the day with Mrs. R. A. Trussell, playing a piano solo; Miss Ruth Dunn playing a violin solo and four women from the Lubbock Music club singing a quartet, "Juanita." They were Mesdames L. A. Williams, A. W. McKee, C. J. Wagner and H. E. Blocker. Mrs. Elmer Stotts gave a reading and the entire assembly sang "America" and, in closing, "Till We Meet Again."

Mrs. Phebe K. Warner, who was scheduled to speak, is in East Texas and found late in the week that she could not arrive in Lubbock in time to speak at this meeting.

During the luncheon hour, a delightful program was given with Mrs. O. B. Trimble singing. Miss Daisy Baskin playing and Misses Haven Sawyer and Ruth Coleman giving readings. The latter girl is from Woodrow and the poem was written by her aunt, Mrs. Joe L. Coleman, one of the most prominent club women of the county.

The Woman's Day

By Allene Summer

After they were married and the wedding cake had been eaten down to the last currant, Mrs. B. P. Bronson, told the bridegroom, B. P. Bronson, that he had 11 children. He had not known it before. B. P. complained and got a divorce. It means, of course, that B. P. did not literally take her "for better or worse," and it means that he was napping when he got fooled. But the very trickery means, also, that he is probably as well off without as with the late Mrs. B. P. Bronson.

FATHER BUYS BREAD

Father is still the breadwinner. Put that in your pipe and smoke it, you feminist, pro and anti, who contend that the sex roles are being reversed and that woman is becoming the family bread-winner whilst father becomes the home fire tender. The National Home Study Council has just completed a survey of 400 families in two industrial cities. The survey proved that 95 per cent of these families relied on the earnings of papa rather than mama. Deprived of father's earnings, only 10 of these families were able to struggle along at all without charity. There is no news in these facts. The feminists, the women bread-winners, do not dwell to much extent in the industrial classes. Women who work outside the home are generally those who need to do it least. And those whose families need their economic help are the very women who could never dream of earning money "outside the home."

* * *

HUBBY'S SUPPER

"What will my husband do if he comes home and finds no supper?"

Thus did a lady about to be arrested face her arrester. She wasn't fooling either. For generations the average wife's job has been to have meals ready on the table when he got home. And for generations wives have been so intimidated about "earning their keep" that they resist even the law, preferring to anger the court than a husband. And some husbands wonder why women want "to get out of the home."

RATS AND MONKEYS

The life story of Mary Lewis, opera star, proves again that greatness springs from poverty so awful as to be almost unbearable. Schumann-Heink's autobiography, now appearing in a woman's magazine, tells how the little Ernestine fed the zoo monkeys in exchange for her own dinner, some of the monkey food. Mary Lewis tells of herself "bound" out when almost a baby, put to sleep in a dark basement where rats crawled over her crib.

THOSE FINE DRESSES

A woman needs only five dresses—2 sports dresses, one afternoon dress, 2 evening dresses—in order to be well-dressed, even beautifully-dressed. This from Elsie De Wolfe, famous society woman and decorator.

Pocketed

The quaint charm of this new chemise of flowered white glove silk is in its two little pockets. It is trimmed with bands of apricot silk.

Every Day Is Just Like Saint Patrick's Anniversary

AMONG THE SMART DRESSERS OF BLASE BROADWAY IT'S A BAD DAY FOR THE BLUES CAUSE EVERWHERE IT'S THE WEARING OF THE GREEN

GERALDINE SHEPARD ELIZABETH BASSETT DOROTHY ROOT

BY BETSY SCHUYLER
NEA Service Writer

NEW YORK, May 28.—The blues rage, that threatened to crowd all other colors off the fashion map early in the spring, seems about to succumb to the smart New Yorker's preference for green.

Everywhere I turned this past week I saw green! Not only in the budding trees and blossoming window boxes, but in pretty frocks, graceful evening gowns, suits and coats.

Perhaps the happiest use of green for costumes this season was the choice the former Jennet Remsen Lloyd made for her bridesmaid's frocks for her wedding to Halstead Hawley Myers.

Green Background for Bride

Of apple-green chiffon and filmy lace of matching color were they fashioned. Little boleros and the deep borders of the skirt were of the lace, worn with green horsehair braid picture hats with smashing bows of soft velvet ribbon. They made a most delightful background for the classic white of the bride's costume.

Dancing at the Ritz Carlton the other evening was another charming green creation—enhancing the beauty of Nancy Glave. It was a short, little frock, with its tiers shading from a bright green through three tones to a soft green.

Shopping Sweater

I noticed Miss Gertrude Sanford shopping on Park Avenue in a smart Nile green sweater suit with fox fur neckpiece.

Soft, pastel stripes on the green background ran around the jumper portion of the costume and up and down the skirt.

Green has its advocates the smart debs, too. Meeting at the home of Mrs. Hulbert Bassett to plan for another of those benefit dinners that keep society on the wing, was one whole davenport of young beauty garbed in springlike green.

Dorothy Root preferred a deep tone of green flat crepe for her two-piece costume with its front skirt width accordian pleated. Rose beige faced the open-neck and the cutest little metal buttons gave a note of black and color to the front.

Lighter Than Nile

Her black felt had an unusually high crown, quite becoming to her interesting face.

A green that was lighter than Nile, but not quite mint, was Geraldine Shepard's choice. Her one-piece frock with its kick pleats in front and plain back had an unusual trimming—inserts fashioned of narrow bits of the goods making an openwork design. The collar of this insertion was laced through with a wide black satin ribbon that formed the tie. Black faced her cuffs and fashioned her hat.

Elizabeth Bassett wore a leaf green crepe-backed satin frock which had a tiered skirt of knife pleats and a Vionnet neckline with a half dozen or so pearl bullet buttons running down left side. She wore pearls and her corded silk turban of a lighter green had a little pearl ornament.

Umbrella, Coat, Purse Combination

Green accessories often accompany a beige or gray costume. I noticed several smartly dressed women with a green umbrella, rain coat and purse combination. Mrs. Hunter Marsden was decidedly chic on the links in a white costume with green shoes and matching hosiery.

So popular, in fact, has green become that there are now said to be 25 different and entirely new green dyes in the color card for summer. Practically every cosume will have it green touch—even if it is only in the leaves of the inevitable flower that adorns practically every shoulder.

Ten New Books Are Added to County Library Stacks

Ten new books, fiction and non-fiction, have been added to the County Library during the past week, in addition to reprints of many other books, Miss Frances Hoyt Ford, librarian, has announced, submitting short reviews of the non-fiction.

"Friendly Four", Conner: "Girl from Scotland Yard," Wallace: "Back of Beyond", S. E. White: "Job's Niece", Hill, are the books of fiction. The others follow:

Wilson, Woodrow—"History of American People", (10 volumes).

Brady, Cyrus Townsend—"American Fights and Fighters", (5 volumes).

Bilby, Julian W.—"Nanook." The present volume gives the life story of the typical Eskimo, Nanook the Bear. The author has lived fourteen years among the Eskimos, and his pictures of their manners and customs are the result of sympathetic and careful observation.

Bourjaily, B. W.—"The Mothers Cook Book." A cook book for mother, worked out with the help of child specialists, dieticians and mothers, and contains chapters on child feeding, and health. Children's parties and the care of children away from home.

Branch, Zelda — "How to Decorate Textiles." This book tells exactly how to decorate textiles by painting, applique, embroidery, stencil and block printing and includes instruction in batiks and hooked and braided rugs.

Harte, G. B.—"Letters of Bret Harte." These breezy, vivid and hitherto unpublished letters tell in Bret Harte's own words the full story of his picturesque and romantic career and give the first complete revelation of one of the world's greatest writers of short stories.

Refreshments were served to the theater party guests at Bowen's before the group went to the show and tables prettily decorated for this occasion. Guests were Misses Bennett, Voncile Gilkerson, Frances Ford, Virginia Bacon, Dorothy Rushing, Sarah Michie and Haven Sawyer.

Dietetics Students Serve Dinner On Friday Eve

Eight students of the dietetics class of the Lubbock sanitarium were hostesses to an equal number of guests in a dinner given Friday evening at 7 o'clock.

The purpose of the dinner, as supervised by Miss Leah Moore, dietitian, was to demonstrate the amount of caloric foods given persons, porportionate to their weight, age, and exercise. The food requirements of each person were taken into consideration, and a small card with each dish indicated the amount of calories therein. In this manner each student could have the practical as well as the theoretical instruction.

Hostesses for the evening were Misses Virginia Exley, Christine Shelby, Della King, Winnie Hymen, Anna Barton, Beaulah Parker, Angelina Emfinger, and Letha Mae Banks.

The following were guests: Misses Opal Roberts, Virginia Mae Driver, Inez Alvy, Winnie King, Georgia Hymen, Fern Davis, Oma Farley, and Eula Tweedle.

WEAR MORE CLOTHES

BERLIN—A German archbishop has threatened to deny Holy communion to women of his diocese who refuse to comply with his dictates of fashion. Women and girls must wear high necked dresses, sleeves to the elbow, skirts below the knees when they appear in church, he says. Mixed bathing has also been forbidden.

The British Medical Association, which has been trying to establish a standard by which drunkenness can be judged, has given up the task as impossible.

The jail in Londonderry, Nova Scotia, remained vacant for 25 years, so it finally has been sold to a cobbler for $25.

Pastel Prints Capture Gay Paris

FLOWERS AND FROCKS MERGE APPEALS, SAYS GERMAINE IN LETTER FROM STYLE CITY

Polka dot ribbon in three tiers flared across the crown of a horse-hair beret.

PARIS, May 28.

Dear Cousin:

Aunt Louise and I have just returned from Marseilles where we saw our President make a triumphal voyage to inaugurate a splendid new tunnel which brings the city into direct communication with the Rhone.

Such an enthusiastic crowd of citizens who gathered to welcome and cheer him!

I am sending you the photo of one sweet-faced girl who was on the Marseilles reception committee. She was chic itself in her French blue coat with its triple side pleatings standing out in bouffant fashion with a blue belt pulled tightly around a regular waistline. Her hat, my dear, was unique, both in its Turkish fez style and its wicker weave of soft straw. Two tiny feather side ornaments were its only decoration—a slight change from the tassel a fez usually takes.

First Garden Party

We were invited to a garden party next week—the first of the season. We have already taken the necessary precaution that our own gardens should flourish as a proper setting for our own entertainments later. Uncle is specializing in roses this season. Aunt Louise insists he expects to take prizes in the floral exhibitions.

Feeling that everyone should have some outdoor interest, I have begun to raise rabbits. Such beautiful ones, with very long white hairs, grey ones shaded blue and the very common ones which are amusing though not so handsome.

Youngish Prints

For work with my rabbits and helping Uncle in the garden I have had sweet little dresses made of cotton prints. Short sleeved, round necks and with enough fullness so I can bend and run and kneel without effort. Sweet colors, too, pink, blue lavender and yellow. Somehow, cotton print frocks do make one look young. So of course I like them.

Aunt Louise already has indulged in an afternoon frock for the garden party which will come next week. It is truly style personified—fashioned mostly of exquisite open work lace and pleated georgette, Black and white, of course.

The black lace and georgette dress has an entire foundation of white chiffon which forms the front panel. Her gloves will be exquisite white glace kids with black fancy stitching and a flaring black and white cuff. A soft, draped satin hat of black and white silkes and stockings.

Difficult Decision

She really had a hard time deciding between that and another—one of bois de rose silk muslin with rose shaded lace. The bodice is trimmed with the lace and a velvet belt making a splashing bow in the front trims the dress.

Hats, ever exquisite in summer, are taking all kinds of dress ideas and applying them. I saw a novel model with a three-tiered effect of polka-dotted ribbon making a flared are across the crown of a trim horse hair beret.

Garden frocks, to revert to interesting topics near to my heart, tend to be either of lace entirely or at least 50-50 lace and chiffon or georgette.

Lace Treatments

Prints are excellent but they take tiered flounces, Eton jackets and a variety of other treatments in lace I saw the loveliest two-piece costume in all lace—a soft, silvery blue. The frock was simply fashioned with just a frilly jabot for decortion—being of such dressy material. The coat had long, tight sleeves and was collarless, to allow room for the jabot to be seen.

Au revoir for this moment, I hope you can find time to dash off a line to me soon. I do love to hear from you.

All my love and kisses,
GERMAINE.

News And Views Of WOMEN

(By Associated Press)

MAINE CLUBWOMAN IN HER 102ND YEAR

BELFAST, Me.—The distinction of being the oldest clubwoman in America may well be accorded to Mrs. Sarah Ellen Stewart of this city, now in her 102nd year. Mrs. Stewart is a member of the Business and Professional Woman's Club and the Camp Fire Girls. The Three-Quarter-Century Club of Maine has presented her with a gold medal.

BLIND STENOGRAPHER SEES WITH HER HANDS

HOUSTON, Tex.—A blind stenographer for a Houston real estate operator "sees" her dictation with her hands. Miss Winnie Nelson has a metal device eight inches long, pierced with tiny holes underneath which she places her paper. As her employer talks—and she has a reputation for taking fast dictation—she punches indentations on the paper through the holes with a stylus, a small awl-like instrument. After the dictation she runs her fingers over the indentations and transcribes the notes on a typewriter.

LONDONERS NAME HOME AFTER STABLE

LONDON.—Because the building in which she lives was once part of a stable, Mrs. Robin D'Erlanger, an intimate friend of Princess Mary, calls her flat in Piccadilly, "The Hayloft."

Mrs. D'Erlanger was Miss Myrtle Farquharson before her marriage to Robin, son of Baron D'Erlanger, a British banker. She and her husband live behind the mansion of her father-in-law, which was once the residence of the poet Byron.

She is the daughter of Col. Farquharson, a near neighbor of the King at Braemar and head of the ancient clan of the Farquharsons.

PRINCESS JULIANA'S STANDARD IS FLOWN

THE HAGUE—Although fixed by decree when she was six months old, Princess Juliana's own flag was flown for the first time at the birthday feast to mark her recent coming of age.

Princess Juliana's standard is a pointed banner divided into four parts by a cross of Nassau blue. In the middle of the cross is an orange medallion bearing the arms of the Queen of the Netherlands surmounted by the royal crown. The upper quarter bears the emblem of the house of Orange—and the lower, the bulls head of the house of Mecklenburg.

Fans were mentioned in the Bible as being used for separating chaff from wheat after the grain had been ground. The Egyptians and Romans later used fans for decoration and cooling purposes.

Cleveland faced a new murder mystery with the finding of the body of Elizabeth Eegan, pretty 25-year-old divorcee, in her luxurious apartment. She had been stabbed 19 times. Letters led to detention of several former sweethearts of the girl, who was a wellknown figure in Cleveland's night life.

THE TEXAS TECH

Just at this time of the year the attention of the people is drawn to the Texas Technological College, the South's youngest educational institution. It is just now completing the second year's work, and a class of students are to receive their diplomas Monday evening. Today we are privileged to hear the first Baccalaureate sermon of the institution which will be at the College Gymnasium, by Rev. O. F. Powers, pastor of the First Baptist Church at Wichita Falls. This event marks the page in history as the first sermon of this kind ever delivered in the Texas Tech. It means that this institution has made rapid advancement, and is fast taking its place in line with the very highest institutions of learning in the Southwest.

The Avalanche-Journal is proud, with the citizenship of the South Plains, and West Texas joined by the population of Texas as a whole and many other Southern States, of this institution. We see down in the future, and not so far away, the greatest school in the Southwest in this institution.

It has out stripped the progress that the most hopeful of educators thought it could. It has made advancements far beyond what any of them had hoped. The enrollment has been double what it was expected it would be in twice the length of time, and the program of building is going forward in possibly a more complete manner than at first was thought would be possible.

The legislature has been kind to the baby institution of the state. They have been exceedingly liberal with the funds, with which to "carry on" out at the Tech, and it looks like the present legislature is trying to do everything possible for the college and there is no trouble anticipated in going ahead with other buildings that shall be so badly needed next term.

It's that old co-operation that is found in the West that has taken good care of the school. Lubbock has had a great part in the building of the school, and the people have provided generously, and well for the comfort of the student body, and the faculty. Everything has been done at all times to take care of the situation, and the people of this community have a right to feel proud of the achievements of the school.

We are indeed proud today to know that the college is turning out its first graduates, and we know that it is merely the beginning of a bigger class each year. The Tech is making rapid progress in every way, and we are glad to honor the first class by every church in the city giving the eleven o'clock hour to this occasion.

MOODY WANTS MORE SPEED

Governor Moody is not much on wasting time. Two or three days ago he appeared before a joint session of the legislative bodies, and urged that they speed up a bit, and get through with the list of stuff that was named for their attention at the beginning of the session, and have some time to devote to other things that needs attention. The Governor's desire to avoid a second called session is likely to strike a sympathetic chord; but such a step may prove unavoidable if some really important features of the Administration program are not to go by default. To conserve time and encourage concentrated effort, Mr. Moody explained, he is submitting comparatively few measures "until some progress has been made." The wisdom of that course is evident, yet an overcrowded calendar hardly can be prevented. Governor Moody properly emphasized the civil service bill. The Democratic platform consistently has advocated this reform for many years; it is, indeed—as the Executive pointed out—a well-established party principle, dating nationally from Grover Cleveland's time. It is clear how, applied to State concerns, such a system would promote both efficiency and economy. Appointment based on merit alone and tenure coincident with faithful performance of duty, would elevate the standard of the State service and do away with the demoralization now attending every change in administration. Much waste and lost motion would be eliminated and the taxpayers would get more for their money. No question before the Legislature is more important than this. The lawmakers have the opportunity to put the people in their debt by enacting such a reform. Discussing the roads question, Mr. Moody stated the crux of Texas' problem in these words: "Some adequate provision should be made to insure assistance of the counties in the furtherance of a program to build a related system of public highways." The immediate concern is to close numerous gaps in the present permanent road system. Lack of county co-operation—and back of that, county funds—is an obstacle to such a program. So far as practicable, that situation should be remedied. Doubtless means can be found to enable the counties to assume larger responsibilities, as Governor Moody suggests, without impairing the unity of the State system.

FUNCTIONS OF A NEWSPAPER

A mistaken idea with some people is that the newspaper is an individual proposition. If they don't like the editor, they feel they must knock the paper and stand in the way of its success whenever possible. They do not realize that the local paper is just as much a part of the community as the schools, churches or anything else. The newspaper is different from any other business, it is a community affair. It is for service to the people and not for any individual. You may not like the editor and the editor may not love you any too well—but the paper he is responsible for does just as much for you as the service rendered others. There is nothing personal with it, it is here for a purpose and that purpose is to do what good it can in every way it can and the greater the support of those it undertakes to serve the better service it can render. It takes the people to make a good newspaper and without the help of the people no one can run a successful newspaper. It requires money to operate any kind of business—even the churches and the papers are no exception and for this reason they must have the financial support of the business interest as well as the good will. Few newspaper publishers make more than a comfortable living and scarcely one is reported wealthy from money made in the newspaper business. They deserve to be trusted and to be understood by the people—it is the editor and not the plant that makes a newspaper useful in a community, though a liberal patronage is necessary if the paper is to be a credit to the town.

MEMORIAL DAY

The Memorial Day duty of paying tribute to the nation's heroic dead has been transferred from the aged veterans of the Civil war to the youthful participants in the World war. Properly this sacred duty devolves upon the youth of the land rather than the older people, for it was the valiant young men of the country who saved the Union and the equally glorious young men of a later generation that saved civilization from the threat of Prussian despotism. Before 1917 it was difficult for the younger people to visualize the "Boys of '61" when viewing the remnants of the once mighty armies of Grant and Sherman, come to be enfeebled old men. But those armies were composed of the flower of the nation's youth, just as the armies which crossed the sea to France over half a century later comprised the nation's best young men. It is honor to the valor and sacrifices of youth that we pay today and it is fitting that men and women of like ages in all the years to come carry on the beautiful custom originated by the survivors of the Civil war and discharged as a duty with inspiring faithfulness by the Grand Army of the Republic. A duty of Memorial Day, then, should be to inculcate in the minds of the young the spirit of gratitude and loyalty that shall insure the durability of the customs characteristic of this day.

Little Avalanches

Consolidated school buildings erected in Laurens County, S. C., during the past year were of brick construction. The grounds were laid out by landscape gardners, and projects are planned which will be carried out over a period of years in co-operation with rural school improvement associations until the work of beautification is complete.

An astronomical station, with a 26-inch photographic telescope, has been established this year by Yale University at Johannesburg, South Africa, on the grounds of the University of Witwatersrand. A large part of the equipment was made in the shops of the university at New Haven, Conn.

SO THINK WE

We think if you want to cause the average man to tell a bunch of fibs, just ask them how many fish they caught and how much they weighed.

—o—

We think that Lubbock can have some very beautiful places on the canyon for recreation parks, and this will be a reality in years to come. Let us speed the time.

—o—

We think that subways under the Santa Fe would be a great thing, and it would give us an opportunity of completing the paving on those streets.

—o—

We think that paving is one of the essentials of city building, and Lubbock is making very fine progress in this way.

—o—

We think if the Tech college can get the new buildings that it needs there will be a very great increase in the number of students who will attend school here next year.

—o—

We think that Lubbock has the largest graduation class of any high school in West Texas. We guess there is more than one reason for this.

—o—

We think one way of keeping a good digestion is to always remember that you can not get a quart into a pint measure.

—o—

We think an automobile with one horn has been known to throw a man farther than a cow with two.

—o—

We think Braggadocio, Miss., hasn't so much to brag about after all. Recently a bunch of citizens of that place got all riled up about something and lynched a negro. There is one thing about it the geography of Mississippi will probably be better known this year than ever before, by people outside of the state.

—o—

We think one of the greatest thrills that a husband gets is to walk into the house at night, and without turning the light on sit down on the bed where it was the day before, to find nothing there but the floor.

—o—

We think that most of we husbands have heard of those rich fellows, who were at one time our wife's sweetheart.

—o—

We think it is much better to think without speaking than it is to speak without thinking.

—o—

We think there is one way to get rid of your dreaded duties, and that is to discharge them.

—o—

We think it is very discouraging to continue to listen to some one talk when we cannot have any assurance of our time coming to speak some time in the future.

—o—

We think Lubbock will chirp something today that she never has before in her history and never will any more, and that is to have held within her bounds the commencement services of the first class of graduates from the Texas Technological college.

—o—

We think all the people of this land should stop for a minute and silently reverence the day in appreciation for the service the old confederates of the long ago war, and also for the sacrifices of the men who saved our homes from destruction in the late world war. It is decoration day, and the memory of the past should have the attention of the nation on Monday.

—o—

We think there has been a great unnecessary delay in the execution of George Hassell, the confessed murderer of thirteen women, men and children. It seems something awful to take a person's life, but when it comes to knocking 'em in the head in bunches, it would seem that there should be something done that will protect humanity at least.

—o—

We think that soft music like soft words turn many harsh words and deeds into omething far more pleasant.

—o—

We think that from the way the medical profession resents the title of "doc" it might be that they would not object to the chiropractics being called that since the courts in Canada have ruled that osteopaths and chiros must not use the title doctor.

—o—

We think all things are for the best, and especially in the case of the Dallas woman, who stole a dress to be married in, and when the groom failed to appear, returned the garments.

—o—

We think the guilty flees when no one pursueth. Recently we had a squib in this column, in which we intimated that there were some folks in a certain town that were knocking our city, who left here without having settled up all of their accounts. We have heard from a number of those birds already, some of which we had no idea owed a dime in Lubbock.

—o—

We think it a great thing to have wells of everlasting water in a city. Lubbock has an abundance of pure, clear, good water, while some of the towns in West Texas off the cap rock are having to be very sparing with the water they use. In one or two cities where surface water supply is all they have, orders have been issued for the people not to use water on the lawns or for washing their cars.

—o—

We think there is one thing that must be very gratifying to the small boys of the town where water is scarce and that is that they will not have to take so many baths when the water is so scarce.

Human life has been lengthened from 22 years in the Middle Ages to 58 years today.

IT IS REPORTED

It is reported that the cemetery association is in need of some improvements, and we believe that on memorial day—Monday—would be a very appropriate time to contribute something to this cause. We might do something for the beautifying of the cemetery grounds.

—o—

It is reported that a newly wedded couple were buying their opening bill of groceries a few days ago, and neither one knew what the other one liked. In this day and time with so many cafe dinners before the knot is tied, it would seem that each would have some idea about the taste of the other.

—o—

It is reported that there is one man in Lubbock who is so mean that when we ask his honest opinion about something we have done, he will out with the truth.

—o—

It is reported that the reason there are so many good recommendations sent out that the firm is in such a good humor over getting rid of the one recommended that they will write most anything.

—o—

It is reported that France is getting ready to clip the tourists wings. We presume however, that they will not clip the wings that took Lindbergh over there.

TEST OF CHRISTIANITY

The healing of the lame man who lay at the Beautiful Gate was a marvelous incident, well calculated to attract the attention of the multitudes and to focus upon Peter and John the organized persecution of those who opposed the doctrines they were teaching. There had been one in Jerusalem and in Galilee and elsewhere in that country who had performed such wonderful miracles, healing the lame and halt, opening the eyes of the blind, even raising up the dead; but he had been crucified and buried, and although there were persistent rumors of his resurrection, the ecclesiastical rulers felt secure in their belief that they had succeeded in wiping out the revolutionary spirit that had followed the lowly Nazarene, and had removed the menace to their power as religious leaders of the people. Now that humble unlettered disciples of Jesus Christ were following in his footsteps and performing miracles of such marvelous power, the religious leaders of the people were aroused to renewed activity, featured by increased bitterness and harshness.

As marvelous as was the miracle of healing, it seems to us that the practical lesson of the story is to be found in the courage and consecration of Peter and John, who dared take advantage of the situation to proclaim their faith in the Lord who had been so bitterly persecuted and so brutally crucified. They well knew the antagonism of the Jewish leaders, and could foresee no escape from the foul prison dungeons that were certain to be their lot, and yet their love for Jesus and their eager desire to tell others of his love caused them to go on fearlessly, proclaiming the truth as they understood it and witnessing that the power of the Lord was without limit, even to the healing of the lame man who stood us a living testimony to the life-giving power of the Holy Spirit.

Modern Christians suffer none of the hardships that beset the early followers of Jesus. Not only are they free from persecution by bigoted ecclesiastical leaders, but they are guaranteed freedom in the worship of God by the laws of their country. It has become so easy to be a Christian, in fact, that far too many are failing to grasp the deeper significance of Christianity. It is the respectable thing to be a Christian, and Christianity too often is put on like a cloak, covering up rather than changing the inner life, and having no meaning whatsoever except as a pledge of nominal decency and respectability. If the Christianity of Peter and John had been this type, they would have been content to pass by the lame beggar without extending Christ's healing power to him. They would have been content to enter the temple and pray as did the others about them. They would have been content to avoid conflict with the Sanhedrin and its power and would have taken the easier course in whatever situation they might have found themselves. They would have been content to be church members without being Christians.

The challenge to modern Christianity is one of sincerity and truth. Men and women should care less about what their neighbors think of them, and more of what they think of Christ the savior. They should not seek mere respectability in the church, but should seek a forgiving Savior there. They should witness for Christ not merely as a routine exercise, pleasing to others because of its lack of sincerity and genuineness, but as the major task in life, counting not the cost, but relying upon the Lord to sustain and strengthen them in every emergency, and yielding to him their whole lives in humility and gratitude for his infinite love and mercy.—Brownwood Bulletin.

COTTON HOSE

BY MINOT SAUNDERS
NEA Service Correspondent

PARIS, May 28—Money is becoming tighter and tighter here. The pinch of "stabilization" is being felt in all walks of life. Americans who know the city and who wisely come early to avoid the tourist rush soon discover that the past few months have brought an astonishing change.

Paris today is almost as expensive as London or New York. It is still gay underneath the surface, but the price of fun is higher.

On the boulevards it is a common sight to see the girls wearing cotton stockings. This is an accurate barometer of how times have changed since the franc "improved." Apparently there is something amiss with the old saying that a French girl would buy silk stockings rather than a dinner because she knew that with the stockings she could get the dinner. Possibly the old order no longer prevails.

* * *

Dinners are costly and the fashionable restaurants are not doing so well. A few years ago it was the practice for such restaurants to close for two or three months during the summer to wait for the customers to return from Deauville, Biarritz and Switzerland. This gave an excellent opportunity for house-cleaning and renovations. This year many of them have closed during the early spring months "for renovations," but it is significant that they are timing their openings for the first flood of the tourist trade.

Montmartre is marking time. "The Hill" is almost as dismal at night as it is dreary by day. The familiar resorts which have not been forced to close by the loss of patronage are courageously struggling against time, like a pneumonia patient awaiting the strengthening injection of oxygen. These victims of sterner times are also looking to the tourist trade to set the lights ablaze and put the champagne corks a-popping.

1639 GOATS UNLOADED BY CHITWOOD

Sixteen hundred and thirty nine head of high grade Angora goats were unloaded here the first of the week and driven to the old Rogers ranch, which is now controlled by W. T. Chitwood. The ranch was formerly known as the Six Shooter ranch, and a number of good cattle were shipped in a few weeks ago to stock the place.

The goat industry has never been given much consideration in this territory, although to the south and west of Bledsoe, it has proven very profitable. Mr. Chitwood's venture will probably be duplicated over a large section of this territory, if it proves successful.—Bledsoe Cochran County News.

Times do change. In the days of the old cow ranch the sheep and the goat was one of the sources of much grief between the owners of the different animals and there was much contention as to the rights of the range relative to each of these industries. This however, has all been brushed away, the goat and the sheep and the cow all lie down together now.

The range is too big and the land too valuable for the cow to unite it, hence the necessity of bringing in the sheep and the goats and the hogs to utilize all of the products of the range.

Is Hiring Chaplains For Army and Navy Unconstitutional?

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, May 28—If the American Association for the Advancement of Atheism achieves its purpose, which it probably won't, a considerable number of hale and hearty uniformed clergymen will be separated from their jobs as chaplains in the army and navy.

The A. A. A. A., which is the most militant of a half dozen atheistic societies in the United States, brought a taxpayer-citizen suit to restrain the treasury from paying out money for the employment of chaplains in the army, the navy and the congress.

The District of Columbia supreme court had first opportunity to sock the atheists and on request of the government, dismissed the case on the ground that the plaintiff hadn't sufficient interest in the money paid out for salaries to the chaplains. The A. A. A. A. then appealed to the district court of appeals. Both sides have filed briefs and the matter may eventually get up to the United States supreme court.

It is to be suspected that the atheists have no strong hope of getting all the chaplains fired and it is probable that their case will never even be tried on its merits, as the matter before the courts now is only one of jurisdiction.

Marx Lewis, ocunsel for the A. A. A. A., says that the chaplains should be turned back into the pulpits principally because:

1. Their employment is an abuse of the powers of congress.

2. The constitution expressly forbids it.

The constitution gives congress no power to hire chaplains, says Marx, and congress isn't supposed to do anything except what the constitution says it may do.

"The constitution," he points out, "says that no religious test can ever be required as a qualification for any office or public trust under the federal government.

"But the qualifications for the office of chaplain, taken from the National Defense Act of 1920, are that 'appointment of chaplains shall be made from persons duly accredited by some religious denomination or organization, and of good standing therein, between the ages of 23 and 45 years.' Under army regulations made in accordance with the provision to standardize the endorsement of chaplains by their religious denominations, a candidate must obtain the official denomination approval before he may be considered for an appointment.'

Lewis says the opposition to chaplains has existed since they were first invented and that when the army got along once for a stretch of 17 years without any it was proved that they weren't necessary.

He quotes a letter from James Madison to Edward Livingston in 1832 as follows:

"I observe with particular pleasure the view you have taken of the immunity of religion from civil jurisdiction, in every case where it does not trespass on private rights or the public peace. This has always been a favorite principle with me; and it was not with my approbation that the deviation from it took place in congress, when they appointed chaplains, to be paid from the national treasury. It would have been much better proof to their constituents of their pious feelings if the members had contributed for the purpose of pittance from their own pockets."

Lewis says this was also the view of Jefferson, who refused to issue Thanksgiving proclamations on account of their religious flavor.

"Employment of chaplains," he says, "means diversion of federal funds for religious purposes. Eight or nine thousand tax-paying and organized atheists object to it."

Today's Poem

MEMORIAL ROSES

By Florence Harrell

O that I could take a rose
And plant upon each grave
Of those who sleep in sweet repose,
Who died our cause to save!
I'd love a solemn prayer to breathe
O'er every lonely mound,
Because each mound some heart did grieve
And there no joys abound.

Each mother's brow I'd love to kiss
Who gave a noble son,
And in her ear I'd whisper this:
"'Twas you who victory won."
To sister, brother, wife and child
Who nobly sacrificed
I'd give this message meek and mild:
"You suffered, so did Christ."

This I know I cannot do,
For they are far away,
But I can live a life that's true
And plant a rose each day.
Their beauty and their fragrance rare
Will speak of love and peace;
And if we all plant roses fair,
Cruel wars will cease.

Major-Hoople Bemoans Of Hen-Pecking

It's A Terrible Thing, He Has Found

By MAJOR AMOS HOOPLE
Avalanche-Journal Philosopher

Occasionally we write about things we understand—very often we do not, but since it has fallen our lot to make the Avalanche-Journal a "go" we are paying more attention to what our readers want and not so much to things that interest us. For instance we listen to our readers, whereas they formerly listened to us if there was any listening done. A year ago no mother's son could have suggested a topic for this column—today we welcome them.

This week we were asked to write on the subject of hen-pecked husbands, and while we know that we will be treading on thin ice, we have decided to comply with the wishes of our reader, even though he is a single man who should not care anything about the life of unfortunate American husbands.

Have Had Many Wives

For the benefit of those who do not know our past record we will state right here that while we have had several kinds of wives—most of them good ones, too, there are still a few varieties with which we are not familiar. If we live long enough we will probably sample all kinds, for a man has all to gain and nothing to lose regardless of what kind of a woman he may call wife.

In many ways women are alike—especially after they marry, for they all want to "boss." The fellow who thinks he wears the "pants" just isn't very well acquainted with his wife—she knows she wears them. If you doubt this statement, just ask her. She may reply with a rolling pin, but her answer will make a lasting impression upon your mind and maybe your cranium. No woman has a desire to "hen-peck" her husband and she won't as long as he lets her be boss. But just as certain as he asserts himself—tells her where to head in, he is in trouble.

Some Are Wise

Some women are wiser than others—they can boss their husbands without letting him be conscious of the fact. This kind of a woman is a success, and the world looks up to her just as her husband does. She is a superior animal and admits it herself, but her better-half is merely a "hen-pecked husband," and everybody in the community knows it.

A great many women are "naggers" and a nagging wife to hold a husband must either have a drunkard or the lowest type of the hen-pecked variety. If he is a drunkard he can drown his troubles in alcohol—nothing weaker will suffice, and if he is hen-pecked it will be only a matter of time until his manhood will die and nagging won't worry him.

Just why women get any pleasure from "hen-pecking" we have never been able to determine. Some of them nag because they have nothing else to do, while others nag because they don't know how to do any thing else. But "hen-pecking" is a disease in a class to itself.

Here's One Variety

Right now we are thinking of a man who has one of these baroon "hen-peckers" for a wife. He is a good man from the ears down, but his wife furnishes everything from the ears up. He hasn't had a theuzht in five years—he is afraid to think. He looks upon his wife as a hypnotized bird would look upon a snake. He is under her power. If he speaks she calls him down. If he is silent she wants to know why. If he is working she wants him to rest, and if he is resting she calls him a lazy louse and insists that he must work. If he has a dollar in his pocket she wants to know why he hasn't bought her a new bonnet, and if he is broke she makes him plead guilty to playing poker when he doesn't know the ace of spades from the jack of diamonds.

She tells him what to eat and how much to eat, what to drink and when to drink. She even selects his clothes, tells him when to bathe and thinks it awful that he can not acquaint himself with her program even though she changes it every few minutes.

If he says anything about going to church she insists that he is too vile to enter the House of God, and if he slips off his collar so he can stay at home in comfort she "bawls" him out for never giving thought to religious worship.

No "Weaker Sex"

We know another man that has a wife that wears the "breeches." The man won't admit it, but his wife will. She is a weakly little thing—couldn't whip a cat, but she can make a 175 pound husband jump through a hoop. Her tongue is her weapon, and she certainly knows how to use it. She can say more and harder things and say them quicker than any woman we have ever met. Her husband does not love her—who could?—but he doesn't hate her sufficiently to justify a divorce. They are just existing, and both of them are in misery. He is miserable because his wife has evolved into a nagging, spit-fire, and she is miserable because she can't find other things to grumble about.

Show me a woman that holds the family whip in hand, or even a woman who thinks she does, and I will show you a woman that is miserable and her husband is even more so. "Hen-pecked" husbands do not make good companions or kind fathers, and the woman who "hen-pecks" her husband is blighting both their lives.

Some Natural Born

Some women are natural borned hen-peckers—it was born in them. Their mothers were hen-peckers, and their grandmothers before them. Young men who are in the market for a bride will do well to learn something about their prospective bride's parents. If her mother is one of the nagging, hen-pecking, sharp tongued females, and her father one of these quiet, easy going fellows, better take a second thought, for nine times out of ten the beautiful little butterfly of a daughter you now call sweetheart will change to a sharp-tongued "bosser" just like her mother.

If some women were to speak a kind word to their husbands they would be widows in ten minutes—the husbands would die from the shock. But if you are a woman and have fooled away ten minutes reading this column we suggest that you make a change if you are guilty of hen-pecking. However, this must be done gradually if best results are to be obtained. Just "cuss" John Henry for one-half of the things you usually cuss him for, and he will be so happy you won't recognize him. In time he will begin to think that you are human and with proper care you may bring him back to life. Later on he will begin thinking pretty well of you—he will want to do things to make you happy. He will find less pleasure at his monkey business and more pleasure at home. Just try it and you will be convinced. You will feel better and he will think a lot more of you. You will also have more friends for nobody really cares for a "hen-pecking" wife. People sympathize with the husband every time. For after all the world likes "he men" and "she women."

Next Sunday we are going to tell a few things we know about husbands, so brace yourself. Just because we have told of the shortcomings of the wives is no sign husbands are perfect. Most of them are not.

Oil activities on the South Plains have been rather quiet during the past few weeks and at present there are only a few wells being drilled on. Most of the wells have been shut down for further orders or for putting down casing or making repairs.

A report of the wells on the South Plains reveals the following:

Millionaire Hired To Drive!

It's the Only Way Cliff Durant, Wealthy Sportsman, May Make Good on the Indianapolis Track

By NEA Service

INDIANAPOLIS, May 28.—Cliff Durant, wealthy and youthful Napoleon of Wall street with a bent for sensational out-of-doors sports, will be a hired chauffeur in the 500 mile race to be held at the Indianapolis motor speedway, Monday, May 30.

His Boss will be Tommy Milton, often his competitor on the track and twice winner of an Indianapolis "five century."

This year Milton will yell at the young millionaire from the pit, while Durant pilots the new Detroit Special, a front drive concoction which Milton spent a year in building.

It makes a queer combination. Milton has been a tremendously successful pilot. He made a neat sized fortune before retiring into the real estate business.

Durant, on the other hand, has made a tremendous success of a big business, but has been none too successful in winning auto races at Indianapolis. Son of the noted W. C. Durant of General Motors and Wall Street fame, he has almost at times competed with his father in their favorite pastime of standing Wall street on its ears.

This is His Chance

On the track, however,—

"Cliff never had a chance," is the way Milton puts it. "He used to foster a lot of cars and then give the best of them to the fellows who were making their living by driving. He would take what was left.

"Then he never had a boss. He was his own advisor. He was slip shop and just took a chance.

"This year it will be difficult. He has nothing to say about getting the car ready for the race. All he has to do is drive it.

"He can get just as tired as he wants, but he has to keep right on going—and going fast, or I'll be out on the pit wall throwing monkey wrenches at him.

"I know he can drive if he has a car under him. In 1923 he chased me out of the lead at Indianapolis and went on gathering lap prizes when the two of us were a lap ahead of the rest of the field. Then his car went dead on the back stretch and I regained the lead and victory. Durant can drive all right."

Backwoodsman in Winter

Durant, whose most recent coup in the stock market involved eleven million dollars, occupies during the winter a cabin in the north Michigan woods, ten miles from a railroad station. Much of his travel during the winter is on snow shoes. He walks to the grocery for his own provisions and is cook of his shack.

The living room of his hut in the woods is equipped as a rustic stock broker's office. In it are the tickers, special telephone and telegraph wires which place him as close to the stock exchange as though he were in an office in Wall street.

Cliff Durant in his three roles as a racer, at left, business man and backwoodsman, at right.

And it is from here he trades.

During his off hours he has been chopping down trees, going on long walks and on hunting expeditions. He is in excellent physical condition for the race.

"It's nice to have Milton chose for me to drive," said Durant. "The greatest compliment I could be paid, for to my mind he is the greatest student of automobile racing of all time."

Besides driving racing automobiles, Durant is an airplane pilot, [illegible] Roscommon, Mich., and flies frequently. He also plays [illegible] cornet and French horn. He also is a licensed sea pilot.

But these are all hobbies. Business is his business.

AUTO RACING FERRETS OUT DEFECTS IN MOTORS; SPEED CONTESTS PROVE BIG AID TO AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY

By CAPT. E. V. RICKENBACKER
Chairman, Contest Board, A.A.A.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Whether the racing game has helped to popularize the motor car to any appreciable extent may be doubted.

The motor car has never needed anything to popularize it except its own progress toward perfection year after year. Up to the time of its introduction no mechanical device of any kind had ever caught the fancy of the human race so thoroughly, nor had any thing ever created such a universal desire of ownership as the motor car. Its drawbacks have only been measured by its imperfections. As the manufacturer has succeeded in eliminating one weakness after another, the desire to own a motor car has grown until now I question whether any man, woman or child who has ever seen or ridden in an automobile has escaped the desire deep down in his heart to own one.

Has Aided Efficiency

But even though the racing game has not promoted this universal desire of ownership, certainly it has helped the industry enormously in bringing the motor car to its present state of efficiency and dependability. I know of no other one thing has been so valuable in the development of the present design, standard of materials, accessibility and dependability as racing.

The test of a motor on the block helps tremendously. And the test of an assembled machine on the road helps more. Long tours under exacting conditions have had their educational value in the development of the automobile. But the supreme test of all is the long endurance race, whether it be upon the broad speedways or the brick course at Indianapolis. The most tremendous strains are put upon every part of a motor car when the machine is put to the limit of its speed.

Facts Are Realized

Every man who has ridden in a car knows that he might pass over a rut in the road at five miles an hour without feeling it, whereas striking a depression at one hundred miles an hour or more would mean a terrific concussion that would throw the car in the air and give everything, the driver included, a tremendous jolt. The same principle operates from every angle. A slight weakness in the threading of a screw that might never appear in ten years of ordinary use, will

GERMAN COMES TO LOOK AT CHRYSLER

CHRYSLER FAN TRAVELS FROM EUROPE TO U. S. TO SEE MANUFACTURING

Among all the throngs who have visited the Chrysler plants during the spring of 1927 none has been more interested in the marvels of mechanical and engineering achievements to be seen there than Dr. Otto Kauffman, manufacturing chemist of Neidersedlitz, Dresden, Germany. Dr. Kauffmann came 4700 miles to Detroit to make this visit. He is an original European Chrysler fan and owns a Chrysler "70" that was one of the first ten Chryslers imported into Germany. He bought it in December, 1924.

"My Chrysler has given me more than 25,000 miles of satisfaction already," he told J. W. Frazier, Chrysler sales manager while making a tour of the factory in Detroit.

Is Unusual Mileage

"That is an unusual mileage for Europe," he went on to explain. "The price of gasoline on our side of the Atlantic does not encourage the use of automobiles much, you know, and only cars with exceptionally low operating cost find many buyers. That is why one sees so many Chryslers on the continent. I have naturally been interested in watching for them on our roads and I am convinced there are more Chryslers driven in Europe than cars of any other American make.

"My Chrysler '70' has been such a constant source of pleasure to me that I have been eager to see the factory where it was made ever since I bought it. We hear very much in Germany about the efficiency and the wonderful methods of your American automobile plants, and I came here with high expectations. I must admit that the reality has far surpassed anything I expected to see. The marvelous speed and precision combined in Chrysler manufacturing processes have been a revelation. We pride ourselves in Germany upon our industries but we have a great deal to learn from the United States and especially from automobile plants over here."

Honors Are Given To Canyon's Grads

CANYON, May 28.—Winners of high school honors in the high school department of the West Texas State Teachers College are, for the girls: first, Aileen Swafford, Canyon; second, Olivia Fincher, Tulia. For the boys: first, Owen Jennings Stagner of Hereford.

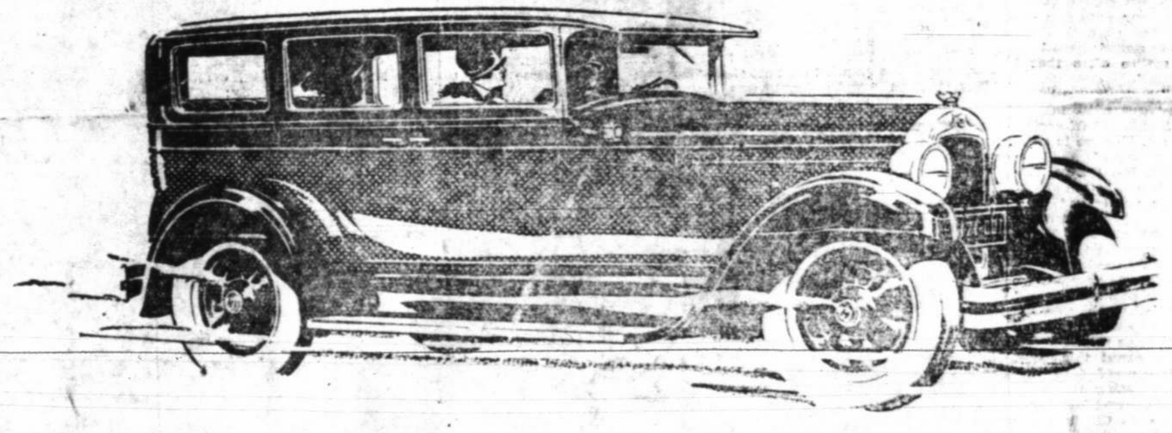

The winners were announced at the graduation exercises last night when 34 boys and girls received their high school diplomas. The class had voted not to have its honor members known until the graduation exercises.

Professor T. M. Clark of the modern language department of the West Texas State Teachers College was the speaker for this commencement occasion. The young people of the class would consider no one else, as they wished to show their affection for Mr. Clark who has given fifty-two years of his life to the service of schools.

WHAT AN INSULT!

George T. McDermott of Topeka, Kan., got an offer of only $319 for his old bus. That was so outrageous that he bought a new car outright, built a $400 special garage and installed the old car in it, to remain there for the rest of its days.

Leading Public Preference In a Wave of Eight Buying

As predicted months ago, the Hupmobile Eight has not only precipitated a sweeping swing toward eights, but is making its influence felt in the matters of motor car prices and public preference.

Hupmobile proves that the finest eight performance has come down from the higher price ranges—that utmost motoring distinction and quality can be bought for $2500.

By its constantly refined engineering, by new beauties of line and color and by unusually complete equipment—added to its unsurpassed smoothness and ease—Hupmobile Eight continues today to increase its leadership among the eights.

It is supplanting both costlier eights and high-priced sixes, because it provides for the first time the embodiment of eight-cylinder superiorities with sound simplicity and exceptional economy.

A half-hour's ride in the latest series Hupmobile Eight will reveal new qualities of brilliant performance—will convince you that higher expenditure can bring no greater return in luxury motoring.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

T. Q. CURTIS, millionaire department store owner, selects three girls from his establishment to come into his home as his wards for one year, because he believes they have worthy ambitions which he wants to further. Billy Wells is the only one of the three that is sincere. She wants to become a concert violinist. NYDA LOMAX and WINNIE SHELTON lie to enjoy his generosity.

Billy is infatuated with DAL ROMAINE, nephew of MRS. MEADOWS, the hostess, but she fears he is "playing" both her and Winnie Shelton. In spite of this infatuation, Billy tenderly remembers CLAY CURTIS, son of her benefactor, who has disinherited himself and is living in the Wells home in the poor part of town, working in the Truman factory by day and writing music at night.

The girls, unknown to T. Q. learn that he intends to adopt one of them when the year is over and to gain his affections, a series of intrigues follow which strangely involve not only the girls, but Mrs. Meadows, EDDIE BANNING (Nyda's sweetheart of former days), and Dal Romaine. Billy loses interest in her music and has a breakdown, and goes away for a month.

She believes she has routed Romaine from her heart but on her return finds his spell as poignant as ever. Billy lunches with Dal and begs him to assure her that he cares nothing for Winnie. In his disarming frank way, he sets her fears at rest. When she asks him to explain why Eddie Banning should have attacked him while he (Romaine) was walking with Nyda, Romaine startles her with the remark: "You haven't a thing in the world to fear from Nyda Lomax."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLIII

"CAN you spare me a few moments in the library, Mr. Curtis?" Mrs. Meadows rose from the luncheon table one day in late May, with an air of purpose dominating her majestic wrinkled old face.

Nyda Lomax, Billy Wells and Winnie Shelton exchanged questioning glances.

"I guess the old hell cat's been spying on one of us—or all of us—and is running to the boss with her knitting bag full of scandal," Nyda shrugged, but her eyes were full of fear.

In the library, T. Q. seated himself at his desk and waited with grave courtesy for Mrs. Meadows to speak.

"It's about Nyda, Mr. Curtis," Mrs. Meadows began deprecatingly. "You dislike to hear anything derogatory about the girls, but the cook and the housekeeper have both complained to me so often that I feel I must speak."

T. Q.'s shaggy brows gathered in a quick frown. "Just what is this all about, Mrs. Meadows? Of course you should tell me, if there is anything seriously wrong—"

"It's simply this, Mr. Curtis. Nyda, poor dear, is really not to be blamed, for she's young and loves to have a good time, but the truth is that Delia, the cook, and Mrs. Moore both are unwilling to let their children continue their—er—kindergarten lessons with Nyda any longer. She neglects them shamefully, Mrs. Moore says, and when they do little things they shouldn't, Nyda scolds them and slaps them—"

"Are you sure about this, Mrs. Meadows?" T. Q. demanded. "I hope you are not overstating the case, or that you have allowed Delia and Mrs. Moore to do so. Children are not angels, and Nyda must not be blamed if she disciplines them." The knuckles of his clenched hand beat a sharp tattoo on the polished surface of his desk.

"I—I have observed her myself. And since the Holden twins have been here, Nyda has created a good deal of dissatisfaction with the mothers of the other two children by discriminating in favor of the twins—"

"I think"—T. Q. rose abruptly—"that I'd prefer not to discuss the matter any more right now. Nyda has the children this afternoon, hasn't she?"

"Yes, Mr. Curtis." Mrs. Meadows' voice was chill with dignified displeasure. "I am sorry I spoke about it, but I thought you should know, especially since Mrs. Moore and Delia say that Tommy and Beatrice cannot come any more after today."

When Mrs. Meadows had rustled indignantly out of the room, T. Q. Curtis sat for a long time, his head between his big, fleshless hands, his whole body sagging in its chair with an infinite weariness.

At half past two Nyda invaded Billy's room, her handsome black eyes cloudy with sulky anger.

"Well, I guess I was right," she began disgustedly, as he flung herself across Billy's bed. "Meadows has been putting some kind of bug in T. Q.'s ear. He's still in the library, and no one knows whether he's going back to the office or not. I guess I'll take care of the brats myself this afternoon, Billy. Thanks just the same for being willing to help me out. But if T. Q.'s going to hang around here I'd better be on the job."

"They're really darling youngsters, all of them, Nyda," Billy remarked. "Don't you have any fun with them at all? I really enjoy playing with them."

"Then I wish you'd picked out my life's ambition!" Nyda flung at her bitterly.

At four o'clock T. Q. Curtis climbed the stairs slowly to the second floor. At the door of the bedroom which had belonged to his son, T. Q. paused, loathed to enter the room which held so many memories of the boy he loved. He was loath not only to revive painful memories, but to carry out the program of spying which he had set for himself. But at last he turned the key softly in the lock, and let himself noiselessly into the room.

The kindergarten which he had fixed up for Nyda adjoined Clay's bedroom, was, in fact, the sitting room of the suite, and had been used by Clay as a combination library and music room. The partition between the two rooms was thin, the door quite flimsy.

He noiselessly turned the key and then the knob, so that the door swung open a trifle, sufficiently for him to see whatever went on in the little room.

Nyda was stretched out indolently in a big arm chair. Deaf to the clamor of the children, who paid no more attention to her than if she had been non-existent, she was reading a cheap novel, "Desert Passion," her black eyes glittering with vicarious thrills as they raced over the pages of lurid romance.

The Holden twins, a beautiful, fair-haired little boy and a plain, freckled little girl of four, were solemnly carrying small buckets of sand from the sand table in the corner of the room and pouring them over the other two children—Mrs. Moore's small grandson, Tommy, and the cook's chubby little girl, Beatrice. Tommy and Beatrice were shrieking with laughter, and rubbing the gleaming, sugarlike crystals in their tousled hair. Suddenly, as T. Q. watched, the boy twin, his face still as grave as a judge's, bent over Beatrice and whacked her head sharply with the emptied tin bucket.

The injured child's howl was deafening, ear-splitting. Nyda sprang to her feet in a frenzy of rage, seized the screaming child and pulled her ears and her convulsed little face with a vicious, open-palmed hand. Beatrice retaliated by seizing the flaying hand and sinking her baby teeth into it with all her strength.

"You brat!" Nyda screamed. "I'll fix you for this! Come here to me—"

T. Q. Curtis did not wait to see or hear any more. Walking like a man who is sick or drunk, he staggered out of the room, and was almost past the door of the kindergarten when Nyda flung it open and ran out, Beatrice dragging howlingly at her hand.

With a mighty effort Nyda smoothed the anger from her face and smiled at him, with a little downward, pitying glance at Beatrice.

"The poor kiddie hurt herself, Daddy Curtis. I'm taking her to the bathroom to get some iodine for her poor little cut heedie. Come with Nyda, daring. Won't you go in, Daddy Curtis? I'll be right back, and you can watch us work and play." Her eyes and lips smiled invitingly.

T. Q. without a word, turned into the kindergarten, and stood awkwardly in the center of the room. The three children looked at him warily, without speaking.

"Do you like to come here to play?" T. Q. Curtis asked, frowning down upon them, without realizing that he was frowning.

"No!" little Chris Holden answered sturdily. And "No!" echoed the other two, but they turned from him and ignored him, as if he, too, were of the enemy class of grown-ups.

When Nyda returned, she was carrying the red-faced, red-eyed little Beatrice in her arms, but T. Q. noted that the child strained away from her.

"Now, kidlets, we're going to have a real treat!" Nyda declared brightly, seating herself with Beatrice still in her arms and struggling to get away. "Nyda's going to read to you. They just love fairy stories, Daddy Curtis," she explained to the silent, frowning man. "And I adore reading to them. Won't you sit down?"

"Thanks, I'll stand, but I'd like to hear you read to the children," T. Q. answered curtly.

Nyda selected a book from a low stand near her chair, and opening it at random called the children coaxingly to her side and began to read in that peculiar voice with which many grown people attempt to intrigue the interest of children.

When she announced the title—"Midas and the Golden Touch"—little Chris Holden jerked away from Nyda's restraining, caressing hand and exclaimed disgustedly:

"Aw, gee, that's old stuff! I'd rather you'd read us 'Matt and Jeff.'"

Nyda laughed indulgently, but went on with her reading, reaching out occasionally to pat the head or hand of one of the children whom she had commanded to stay beside her.

As the story was unfolded, a far-away look came into T. Q. Curtis' eyes. Hadn't the papers called him "Midas"? The old man began to visualize himself as the avaricious old king in the fairy story. It was he—T. Q. Curtis—who had wished that everything he touched might turn to gold. It was his daughter, a girl who first wore the face of the lovely Nyda, who came and stood beside him, who received his good morning kiss and—turned to gold. Startled at his vision he groaned aloud.

His groan startled Nyda so sharply that she dropped the book and sprang to his side.

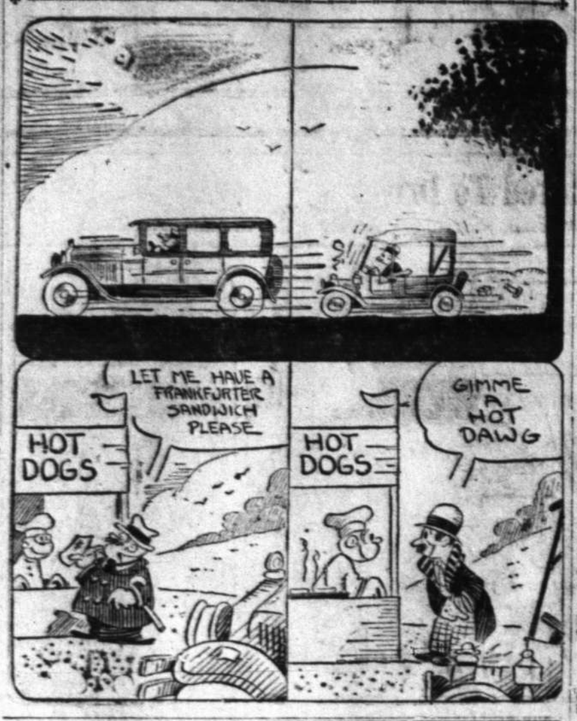

"What is it, Mr. Curtis?" She put her hands on his shoulders. "You look deathly sick! Tommy, run for Mrs. Meadows, quick!"

"I'm all right," T. Q. told her. "I'll go to my room for a while, though. And—" he made a great effort to speak naturally, but his face was grave with pain—"I wish you'd tell the other girls that I'd like to see them just before dinner in the library." He paused, laid a trembling hand on the door, looked for a long minute at the four frightened children huddling together like sheep in a storm, then said very gently:

"Goodby, children. Some day we'll read 'Matt and Jeff' together, Chris."

A Thousand Mile Course Around Historic West Virginia

Map shows route followed in a trip covering the historic and picturesque spots of West Virginia and bordering states.

By NEA Service

CHARLESTON, W. Va. May 28—Millions of people in the middle east are joining with West Virginians this year in making plans for a week's vacation over the hills of the Mountain State.

West Virginia heretofore has only had hard roads directly across the state, but now connections through corners of Pennsylvania, Maryland and the Shenandoah valley of Virginia complete a circuit of approximately a thousand miles over improved roads that at least equals in scenic beauty and historic interest any similar area in the world. The trip promises a busy week.

West Virginia's situation commands attention as the gateway between the north and south, and between the east and west. The center of a great region stretching from Chicago to Rochester, the Lincoln highway, National pike, northeastern turnpike and the Midland trail, or U. S. 30, 40, 50 and 60, respectively, and the Lee highway, U. S. 11, and U. S. 19 and 21, make it accessible to the entire eastern half of the United States.

Bluefield, White Sulphur Springs, Parkersburg, Wheeling or other points make good starting places for either visitors or native West Virginians. From Huntington, for instance, beautiful city of broad streets, numerous parks and humming industrial plants, go to Charleston, the state capital, with its many points of interest, and on to White Sulphur Springs, the heart of the mineral springs region, viewing the New river gorges and Kanawha falls on the way.

Many Natural Wonders

Bluefield, Welch, Beckley and great coal fields are south of Kanawha falls. Grandview, near Beckley, and Pinnacle rocks, between Bluefield and Welch, are awe inspiring natural curiosities.

Besides the wonderful resort attractions about White Sulphur here are many natural wonders and rare and beautiful wild plants, shrubs and flowers.

Turn north through the Valley of Virginia by Covington, Hot Springs, Warm Springs, Goshen and Harrisonburg to Winchester. Take a side trip to Shepherdstown, where Rumsey invented the steamboat, to Harpers Ferry, made famous by John Brown and his abolitionists, to Berkeley Springs, noted as a mineral spring since George Washington's day, and Martinsburg, center of the fruit industry of the eastern Panhandle.

The great battle fields of Gettysburg and Antietam are within easy reach.

Turn west at Winchester, over the old Northwestern turnpike, one of the oldest and most historic highways in the United States, and re-enter West Virginia at Capon bridge. From Romney a splendid side trip is down the valley through Moorefield, Petersburg and Franklin.

Ice mountain, Hanging rocks, Seneca rocks, Greenland gap and many remarkable rock formations add their interest to that of fine fishing in the South Branch. Here are more mineral springs and the Monongahela and Shenandoah national forests.

Past Nancy Hank's Home

If you want to stick to hard road turn north at New Creek to Keyser, thence by Piedmont to the National pike at Frostburgh. Near Keyser is the birth place of Nancy Hanks, mother of Abraham Lincoln, to which a road is being built by dollar contributions from all over the United States.

Over the National pike to Frostburg, and south to Oakland, with a pause to visit Deer Park and Mt. Lake Park. Then by Terra Alta to Morgantown through the Cheat river region, where savage red men hunted game and white men alike in bygone days.

From Morgantown, where the state university is located, go to Wheeling by Uniontown and Washington, Pa. Wheeling links up the whole northern Panhandle. From Wheeling, where the state capitol spent several years, south to Moundsville. Here is the largest Indian mound in North America.

On to Fairmont by Mannington, thence to Clarksburg, where lies the great Monongahela valley coal field. A busy day can be spent up the Tigarts valley from Clarksburg, in Grafton, Philippi and Elkins. At Philippi was the first battle of the civil war. Near Clarksburg is Jackson's Mill, boyhood home of Gen. "Stonewall" Jackson, now a rural training school for country boys and girls.

From Clarksburg to Parkersburg over the Northwestern turnpike. Here is Blennerhassett Island, where Aaron Burr laid the ambitious plans at the home of his friend, which ruined both Burr and Blennerhassett. Then complete the trip to Charleston by Parkersburg and Spencer through a thriving farm region.

WILLYS REDUCES GREAT SIX COST

CUTS RUN AS HIGH AS $300 ON FINE ENCLOSED AUTOMOBILES

TOLEDO, Ohio, May 28.—Following a statement made today by John T. Willys, president, that production of the Willys-Knight great six, since its introduction a little over two years ago, had put it in third place among all cars selling at above $2,000, price reductions on this model were announced here today by Willys-Overland, inc. The 5-passenger enclosed cars were cut $300 and the special roadster was reduced $200. All the new prices all but the 7-passenger types and the new foursome are below $2,000, the first time this mark has been reached in the enclosed types.

New Foursome Reduced

At the new figures the 5-passenger enclosed models, including a sedan and the cabriolet roadster, are priced at $1,995 f. o. b. factory. The new foursome, a close coupled four passenger, four door closed cars was reduced $200 to $2,095 while the roadster has been cut to $1,850.

The new prices become effective at once. Commenting on this move Mr. Willys said, "Heavy production in this model has resulted in notable savings in production costs. As we have done in the past we are passing these savings along to the car buyer in the form of reduced prices.

"Present sales of all models produced at the Willys-Overland factory are at a highly satisfactory rate and the 1200-car a day mark has passed this week. April of this year exceeded the same month of last year in combined sales of Whippet and Willys-Knight cars in the United States and Canada by 49 per cent."

Lindbergh Tells How He Defeated Fate

Daring Flier Has Had Many Accidents

EDITOR'S NOTE: Flying the Atlantic Ocean alone was not the first sensational exploit of Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh. Time after time this boy-wonder of the air has cheated death Twice, while flying the night air mail, he had to make parachute jumps when his plane, lost in a dense fog, ran out of gasoline. Lindbergh made detailed reports of these amazing episodes. Below is his own narrative of what happened to him in the night skies over Illinois on September 16 of last year. Tomorrow will be printed an equally vivid story told by Lindbergh of a second hair-raising escape.

BY CHARLES A. LINDBERGH
In An Official Air Mail Service Report

I took off from Lambert-St. Louis Field at 4:25 p. m., September 16, and after an uneventful trip arrived at Springfield, Ill., at 5:10 p. m., and Peoria, Ill., at 5:55 p. m.

Off the Peoria Field at 6:10 p. m. There was a light ground haze, but the sky was practically clear with but scattered cumulous clouds. Darkness was encountered about 25 miles northeast of Peoria, and I took up a compass course, checking on the lights of the towns below until a low fog rolled in under me a few miles northeast of Marseilles and the Illinois river.

Flare Fails Him

The fog extended from the ground up to about 500 feet, and, as I was unable to fly under it, I turned back and attempted to drop a flare and land. The flare did not function and I again headed for Maywood (Chicago's air mail port) hoping to find a break in the fog over the field. Examination disclosed that the cause of the flare failure was the short length of the release lever and that the flare might still be used by pulling out the release cable.

Glare of Towns

I continued on a compass course of 50 degrees until 7:15 p. m., when I saw a dull glow on the top of the fog, indicating a town below. There were several of these light patches on the fog, visible only when looking away from the moon, and I knew them to be towns bordering Maywood.

At no time, however, was I able to locate the exact position of the field, although I understood that the searchlights were directed upward and two barrels of gasoline burned in an endeavor to attract my attention. Several times I descended to the top of the fog, which was 800 to 900 feet high, according to my altimeter. The sky above was clear with the exception of scattered clouds, and the moon and stars were shining bright. After circling around for 35 minutes I headed west to be sure of clearing Lake Michigan, and in an attempt to pick up one of the lights on the Transcontinental.

Engine Quits

After flying west for fifteen minutes and seeing no break I turned southwest hoping to strike the edge of the fog south of the Illinois river. My engine quit at 8:20 p. m., and I cut in the reserve. I was at that time only 1500 feet high, and as the engine did not pick up as soon as I expected I shoved the flashlight in my belt and was about to release the parachute flare and jump when the engine finally took hold again. A second trial showed the main tank to be dry, and accordingly a maximum of twenty minutes' flying time left.

There were no openings in the fog and I decided to leave the ship as soon as the reserve tank was exhausted. I tried to get the mail pit open with the idea of throwing out the mail sacks, and then jumping, but was unable to open the front buckle. I knew that the risk of fire with no gasoline in the tanks was very slight, and began to climb for altitude, when I saw a light on the ground for several seconds.

First Lights

This was the first light I had seen for nearly two hours, and as almost enough gasoline for fifteen minutes flying remained in the reserve, I glided down to 1200 feet and pulled out the flare release cable as nearly as I could judge over the spot where the light had appeared. This time the flare functioned but only to illuminate the top of a solid bank of fog, into which it soon disappeared without showing any trace of the ground.

Seven minutes' gasoline remained in the gravity tank. Seeing the glow of a town through the fog I turned towards the open country and nosed the plane up. At 5000 feet the engine sputtered and died. I stepped up on the cowling and out over the right side of the cockpit, pulling the rip cord after about a 100-foot fall. The parachute, an Irving seat service type, functioned perfectly; I was falling head downward when the risers jerked me into an upright position and the 'chute opened. This time I saved the rip cord.

Plane Hovers Near

I pulled the flashlight from my belt and was playing it down towards the top of the fog when I heard the plane's engine pick up. When I jumped it had practically stopped dead and I had neglected to cut the switches. Apparently when the ship nosed down an additional supply of gasoline drained to the carburetor. Soon she came into sight, about a quarter mile away, headed in the general direction of my parachute.

I put the flashlight in a pocket of my flying suit preparatory to slipping the parachute out of the way, if necessary. The plane was making a left spiral of about a mile diameter, and passed approximately 300 yards away from my 'chute, leaving me on the outside of the circle. I was undecided as to whether the plane or I was descending the more rapidly and glided my 'chute away from the spiral path of the ship as rapidly as I could. The ship passed completely out of sight, but reappeared again in a few seconds, its rate of descent being about the same as that of the parachute. I counted five spirals, each one a little further away than the last, before reaching the top of the fog bank.

Loses Flashlight

When I settled into the fog, I knew that the ground was within 1000 feet and reached for the flashlight, but found it to be missing. I could see neither earth nor stars and had no idea what kind of territory was below. I crossed my legs to keep from straddling a branch or wire, guarded my face with my hands and waited.

Presently I saw the outline of the ground and a moment later was down in a cornfield. The corn was over my head and the 'chute was lying on top of the cornstalks. I hurriedly packed it and started down a corn row. The ground visibility was about 100 yards. In a few minutes I came to a stubble field and some wagon tracks which I followed to a farmyard a quarter mile away.

Wouldn't Believe Him

After reaching the farm yard I noticed auto headlights playing over the roadside. Thinking that someone might have located the wreck of the plane I walked over to the car. The occupants asked whether I had heard an airplane crash and it required some time to explain to them that I had been piloting the plane, and yet was searching for it myself. I had to display the parachute as evidence before they were thoroughly convinced. The farmer was sure, as were most others in a 5-mile radius, that the ship had just missed his house and crashed nearby. In fact, he could locate within a few rods the spot where he heard it hit the ground, and we spent an unsuccessful quarter hour hunting for the wreck in that vicinity before going to the farmhouse to arrange for a searching party and telephone St. Louis and Chicago.

I had just put in the long distance calls when the phone rang and we were notified that the plane had been found in a cornfield over two miles away. It took several minutes to reach the site of the crash, due to the necessity of slow driving through the fog, and a small crowd had already assembled when we arrived.

The plane was wound up in a ball-shaped mass. It had narrowly missed one farmhouse and had hooked its left wing in a grain shock a quarter mile beyond. The ship had landed on the left wing and wheel and skidded along the ground for 80 yards, going through one fence before coming to rest in the edge of a cornfield about 100 yards short of a barn. The mail pit was laid open and one sack of mail was on the ground. The mail, however, was uninjured.

The sheriff from Ottawa arrived and we took the mail to the Ottawa Post Office to be continued at 3:20 a. m. for Chicago.

Simms Oil Company's Good Will Car Visits In Lubbock On State-wide Tour Of Gas Stations Selling Products

THE SIMMS GOOD WILL TOUR CAR

The Simms Good Will Tour car has been in Lubbock this week, on its way calling on all the service stations in Texas which handle Simms gasoline and motor oils. The tour is an unique good will plan inaugurated by the company to better instill in the station men who serve their products the true Simms service spirit. The car is a specially designed Dodge business car painted in the fiery white, red and blue Simms colors. The car is under the command of George E. Webb, a man who has long been handling retail sales work of the Simms company, who is assisted by W. C. Whitten. These service experts are conjoining to every attendant at stations handling Simms products the Simms service pledge. In order to maintain a uniform good service all over the country, the following general principles are being followed by Simms' service men: 1. Meet my customers with a smile. 2. Gladly fill their radiators. 3. Properly inflate their tires. 4. Willingly wipe off wind shields. 5. Always give full measure. 6. Keep my station spic and span. 7. My uniform neat and clean. 8. Never substitute inferior products. 9. Answer questions cheerfully. 10. Be courteous.

After signing a pledge to render such service, the station men of this section are being issued Simms service uniforms—white shirt, white trousers, white sailor cap and blue tie, the red triangle is embroidered on the uniforms, which are the badge of Simms service. The idea is for every station handling Simms gas and oils to render the same high class service and all attendants wear the uniform badge of this unique service.

R. W. Crowder is the local agent for the company.

"Well, judge," said Johnston, "I did make the left hand turn, but you see it was like this—"

"That's an old one," interrupted Judge Johnston. "I'm afraid it won't get you anywhere. The usual fine for this offense is $1, but it will be $5 in your case because you ought to know better."

After fining himself, he complimented the policeman who cited him to appear in court.

KILLED WHEN HE AMUSES THRONGS

LYNN, Mass.—A motorist on the North Shore motor road the other day noticed a seal swimming and diving in a little pond by the roadside. He stopped and watched it. Other motorists stopped and watched it. Dozens deserted their cars and stood around the bank applauding the antics of the seal.

There was a hopeless traffic jam. Irate patrolmen threatened, pleaded, but the throng of nature lovers took no heed. Meanwhile the road became more thoroughly blocked.

A riot call brought an extra detail and Sergeant Lyons, crack rifle shot, and his rifle. Bang! A few bubbles appeared where the seal had been. Nature lovers returned to their cars; traffic went on.

SAINT AND SINNER

COPYRIGHT 1926 NEA BY ANNE AUSTIN

COURT was adjourned for the day immediately after Cherry's sensational reference to the first of the four anonymous letters which Lola Gonzales had written, at the dictation of Alexander Cluny, son of the murdered man. When Cherry took her seat for the short interval between the court's order for adjournment and the customary warning of the jury not to discuss the case, she leaned her head wearily against Faith's shoulder. The golden eyes closed as if they were weighted with lead, and the pallor of death spread over the small, white face.

Faith put her arms about her sister, holding the quivering little body tight, as she whispered: "You were wonderful, darling. I—I was never so proud of you."

"I told the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth," Cherry's ashen lips moved faintly. "I'd made up my mind not to tell even a tiny white fib, so that they would have to believe me when I tell them tomorrow that I had nothing to do with the murder."

After Cherry had been led away by the guards, Faith and Bob and Mr. Lane sat on at the counsel table, until the courtroom was cleared of all except lawyers gathering up their papers, and a few reporters who hung about in the hope of getting interviews with the family on their opinion of Cherry's testimony.

"Well, Faith," Churchill turned to the girl and spoke in a low, confidential voice. "She made a perfect witness for herself, didn't she? If she can hold up as well tomorrow, when she gets to the story of her visit to Cluny and her marriage, we'll stand an excellent chance of getting her off scot-free. Did you notice the jury? Every man Jack of 'em looked as if he'd like to dandle her on his knees."

When the reporters fell upon them, the four of them—Churchill, Faith, Bob and her father—expressed complete confidence in the outcome of the trial, declared their pride in Cherry's performance as a witness in her own behalf, and consented to pose, smilingly, for their pictures. It wrung Faith's heart to see Jim Lane straightening his bowed shoulders and jerking his trembling lips into a grimace of pleasure, for she knew that his heart had never before been so full of grief and pain.

Junior and Fay were waiting outside to take Jim Lane home and Faith and Bob left Courthouse Square in Bob's car.

"We'll drive past Lincoln Park on the off-chance that old Phil is shaking his tin cup today," Bob said with forced cheerfulness, in an effort to distract Faith's overwrought mind from the useless contemplation of Cherry's plight.

"He's there!" Faith cried exultingly when the car turned the corner of the park. "Don't drive any nearer. He may see us and recognize us from our pictures in the papers. If he really has any connection with the murder you can be sure he's keeping up with the trial."

Bob did not kill his engine, but kept his hand on the gear shift, ready for instant action if the crippled beggar summoned his taxi. It was a long, tense wait, but finally at five minutes past five a yellow and brown taxicab, bearing the license plate for which their eyes had been straining, swerved around the corner past their own parked machine and drew up to the curb, as the cripple's right forefinger beckoned.

(TOMORROW: The pursuit and its amazing conclusion.)

Man Travels Far In Motor Cabin

In the days before the haunts of the American Indian had been invaded by white settlers, the customary American home was the tepee, constructed of skins and poles. The log cabins of the early settlers offered many advantages over the Indian's tent in the matter of comfort, but they lacked the feature so desired by the Indian, easy portability.

It remained for E. A. Wade of Olympia, Washington, to construct a really portable log cabin. This unique home on wheels affords unusually complete and comfortable living accommodations. There are folding twin beds in the combination bed and living room and two clothes closets. In the kitchen and dining room are a built-in china cabinet and an excellent equipment of electrical cooking appliances.

The Douglas fir tree from which the section was cut was felled last August near Olympia, Washington. It measured 311 feet high and the count of the growth rings indicated that the life of this giant patriarch of the forests started the year Columbus discovered America. Besides this section, eight feet in diameter and sixteen feet long, nine other pieces, each 22 feet long, were cut from the trunk.

This novel display, drawn by a Graham Brothers truck, travels in a few hours distances which would have required weeks in a covered wagon in the days of '49.

In the many cities in which Mr. Wade has displayed his motorized log cabin the unusual exhibit has attracted a large amount of interest.

FIVE YEAR CAR LOW

The average car that has run five years has a market value of only 9 per cent its original price, says Col. Leonard P. Ayres, Cleveland. 18 cars he tabulated was 5 per cent, and the highest 17 per cent.

MILLIONS IN DAMAGE

The Mississippi flood will cost the highway departments of the various states affected millions of dollars to replace the roads and bridges damaged. Missouri alone reports a loss of a million from only the first two weeks of the flood.

How's The Hitting? Hints On Car Care

By ISRAEL KLEIN
Science Editor, NEA Service

In winter the battery ran down because of an over demand on its services.

In summer the battery runs down because of too little demand on its power. So attention, almost similar to that given this device in cold weather, must be paid it especially when it's warm.

There are various important reasons.

The days are much longer and riding is more constant. The result is that the battery is put to little use, except in starting. Even in this occupation the battery finds things much easier than in winter, for there isn't the frozen oil in the transmission or the cold engine to combat.

The nights are short, giving little time for the batteries to exhaust their oversupply of electric fluid in the lighting system.

The result is that the generator is liable to overcharge the battery. An overcharged battery is a worse affair than one lacking juice. The latter type need only be recharged at a service station.

The former type needs repair in many cases. Its positive plates may be ruined by loosening the active material in them. The negative plates may become granular and useless. And the separators may be carbonized and disintegrated.

The increased charging rate of the generator in summer causes rapid evaporation of the battery solution, increased resistance due to its higher specific gravity, and a higher temperature to the battery.

The whole device, therefore, breaks down.

Even closer attention to the battery is needed in summer than in winter to prevent overcharging.

Water should be added more frequently, especially during a tour. It should be kept above the top of the plates.

The terminals should be kept clean and their corrosion should be prevented by application of grease.

The summer charging rate should be followed as specified by the manufacturer, and when the needle in the ammeter goes beyond the point of safety, the light should be turned on to keep down the charge.

HOW AMERICAN CARS RANGE IN PRICE

NEW YORK, May 28.—"There are now 620 models of American motor cars at from $360 to $9,000, offered to the American public by 43 makers," reports Alfred Reeves, general manager of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. "Of these," he continues, "four sell for less than $500, 80 between $500 and $1,000, 246 between $1,000 and $2,000 and 137 between $2,000 and $3,000."

Radium is formed by the slow disintegration of another mineral.

New Towns Located Along Denver Line

PLAINVIEW, May 28. — New towns are springing up around Plainview on the lines of the Fort Worth and Denver South Plains Railroad now under construction. Hart in Castro County, twenty miles northwest of Plainview is one of the new towns that will be built with the actual construction of the Denver line from Plainview to Dimmitt.

Another new town is being built at Sunset school house near the caprock between Plainview and Quitaque where the new line ascends the caprock. Already the Lockney Gin Company of Lockney is planning the erection of a modern gin in time to take care of this year's cotton crop. Two hundred acres were purchased for the townsite and the town will be located on two sides of the Floydada-Silverton highway about twenty two miles northeast of Plainview.

EXTENDED MOTORCADE TO COVER WEST TEXAS AND EASTERN NEW MEXICO PLANNED THROUGH W.T.C.C.

(Special to Avalanche-Journal)

STAMFORD, May 28.—An extended caravan of motor cars filled with summer vacationists, cars that wend their way through the picturesque resort of the Davis mountains, and that thread through eastern New Mexico's scenic wonderland, is the vision of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce toward which all staff members are now directing their attention.

Plans Being Formulated

The proposed motorcade idea was introduced previous to the ninth annual convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce held at Wichita Falls May 16 and 17, but due to press of details in connection with that big event plans for the summer trip were not worked out. Since the return of the official force to the headquarters office, definite procedure is being outlined for determining details of the motorcade.

As tentatively planned those making the trip will assemble at some convenient point and will proceed via Fort Stockton to Alpine for the West Texas Chamber of Commerce district convention there on July 4. In connection with the district meet, which is always a gala event in the section an old settlers' reunion and cowboy round-up will be held, promising varied diversion and entertainment. Thence by easy stages the motorcade will proceed to Marfa and Fort Davis, at which points the route will be a mile high and the climate will be delightfully cool.

Stop At El Paso

Passing down Limpia canyon via Balmorhea, the vacation party will motor into El Paso where a day and two nights will be spent. Thence, via Alamogordo, the caravan will go to Cloudcroft for the West Texas Chamber of Commerce New Mexico district convention. There the spirit of western hospitality will be felt amidst the towering pines and at an elevation of near ten thousand feet.

From Cloudcroft the prospective motorcade will go to the Mescalero Indian reservation, through the Lincoln national forest, down the valley of the Ruidoso river in the White mountains, to Roswell. From Roswell the motorcade will go to Carlsbad where the famed Carlsbad caverns will be visited. This promises to be one of the outstanding features of the trip as the Carlsbad caves rank with the scenic attractions of the nation. They have been termed the "eighth wonder of the world."

Personally Supervised

Special arrangements are planned for unaccompanied ladies and girls. The trip will be personally supervised by the president and by two past presidents of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, with their wives. Various cities will stage entertainments and social functions at which the motorcade travelers will be honor guests, and advance arrangements will be made for these. Expenses will be held to a minimum so the trip will be economical as well as education and delightful. The motorcade will be made the first ten days of July, according to plans formulated.

Individuals and towns interested in being represented in the West Texas Chamber of Commerce vacation land motorcade have been requested to write the headquarters office at Stamford of their desires.

DON'T ORDER HOT CAKES

LONDON—A homesick and pancake hungry American wandered into an old London inn recently and found just what he wanted on the menu. "Half a dozen pancakes," he ordered nonchalantly. The waiter gasped, but brought them and a check for $1.50. To the protesting guest he explained that the hotcake is eaten singly in England, and serves for dessert.

Cross Continent Bus Line Ready

By NEA Service

NEW YORK, May 28.—A transcontinental bus route linking New York with San Francisco has been inaugurated.

The route extends from New York city through Pittsburgh and Dayton to St. Louis, joining the bus system already in use between St. Louis and the Pacific coast.

Nine days, with no night travel are required to complete the trip, according to present plans. The stops are made each night at selected hotels along the route.

Bus sleepers, similar to those now in use between St. Louis and St. Francisco, may be introduced later for night driving. The buses now in use are equipped with kitchenettes, where lunch is served for the convenience of the travelers.

As innovation, according to the promoters, is the serving of bouillon free of charge every afternoon to passengers.

There are Japanese attendants on all cars.

The fare for the transcontinental trip is $75, which does not include expenses for meals or overnight stops.

Take A Few Civic Ideas From Coleta Little Miss Baker Wins Essay Prize

If all the grown-ups in Lubbock who think that there is little left to be done in improving the city would look at the matter carefully, as Coleta Baker, age 13, must have done, and would then put their discoveries into actual practice the Hub of the Plains would be a better place in which to live.

Coleta, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norton Baker, 13th and Avenue N, recently wrote an article in competition with all of the other little boys and girls of the 7th and 8th grades of Lubbock, in the Junior Twentieth Century club's contest on civic improvement. After all the papers were graded, it was the decision of the judges that Coleta's stood out in every regard. To read it will also convince you.

Following is the paper containing facts as Coleta sees them. She won a $250 gold piece as a prize for writing it:

The Paper Just As Submitted

"There are many civic improvements that could be made to make Lubbock an ideal place in which to live. Every one should take interest in making these improvements. Only a few of the many improvements needed are named. They are, namely, the streets, post office, playgrounds of public schools, amusements, business buildings, and homes.

"The first topic that should be discussed concerns the streets of Lubbock. She has many paved streets but many more are needed since she is growing so rapidly. The sand blows freely in spring in our city. Many stores that are not on the pavement become dirty even if the people owning the stores work to keep them clean. They are considered unsanitary and do not receive much trade. Lubbock needs to have better lighted streets. Well lighted streets prevent crime. The streets need to be made cleaner. The street sweeper takes care of most of the pavement but something still better is needeed. The streets that are not paved need to be worked on because they are very rough. Lubbock needs more water sewers on the pavement. After a heavy rain the water stands on the streets. No one cares to ride through a "mud puddle."

"Another great necessity of Lubbock is a better post office. A town this size should have a larger and better located post office. It needs to be in the central part of town. A new office building separate from the business buildings is the greatest requirement. Then the postmen should be more careful about the delivery of the mail.

"The third improvement has to do with the playgrounds of the public schools. All of the public schools of Lubbock have large playgrounds but only a few are well equipped. Some of the equipment most necessary includes swings, seesaws, slides, and drinking fountains. All children had rather enter a school with well equipped playgrounds than one with poorly equipped playgrounds.

"The fourth is with regard to the amusements of Lubbock. More recreational parks here necessary. Especially is a park needed that has green grass, large shade trees, swings, seesaws, sand-beds, slides, swimming pool, a zoo, and a beautiful building. Children would enjoy going there. They would probably not get into mischief or be hurt so readily. Lubbock needs a larger public library. She needs a beautiful building for the library separate from other buildings. It would be nice to have a park around the library. Children when they come to the park might be influenced to read good books.

"The fifth improvement is about the business buildings. Many of the old wooden buildings that are here should be torn down and brick ones put in their places. Old, unpainted, smoked, and ugly buildings detract from the appearance of the city. The buildings should be kept clean and sanitary. Signs should be put up inside allowing no spitting on the floor. Clean drinking fountains should be maintained. Lubbock business stores need more electric signs to help light up the streets as well as to make the appearance of the city more attractive.

"The sixth and last improvement concerns the homes. More interest should be taken in beautifying the homes. More trees need to be planted and more grass set out. Contests should be held and a prize should be given to the most beautiful home. The back yards should be kept as clean as the front. The garbage should be kept in a garbage can and carried away regularly from each home. Lovely homes add to the attractiveness of the city.

"If all or part of these improvements are carried out, Lubbock will become an excellent place in which to live."

SERVICE CONGESTION

While there was one station to every 875 automobiles five years ago, the number of this type of service station has increased so far that there is one for every 80 cars at present. The field is overcrowded, says C. B. White, Chicago oil man.

AUTO RACING

be sounded on, in one hour of high speed. The car that will hang together for two hundred and fifty miles of more at speeds in excess of one hundred miles an hour must know no weakness whatever in any one of its thousand or more parts at any point in its mechanic design or in any detail of its workmanship.

Losers Serve Best

And there is an old story to the fact that the losers often more than the winners best serve this laboratory purpose of racing. Each entry goes into the race thinking he has his car as nearly perfect as human brain and human hand can make it. But as frequently as the winner proves correctness of design, material and assembling the loser develops some little weakness that had not appeared before and which, of course, is corrected prior to the next contest. The result is that the preparation for each race is just a little bit more perfect than for its predecessor. Thus every race is productive of some improvement in the losing cars and it is the operation of this law of "trial and rejection" that has kept the eyes of the engineering departments of the industry upon racing contests for more than twenty years.

So, whether racing is or is not responsible for the universal interest in the automobile, it has served a definite purpose in advancing the safety and comfort of the car, and your family and my family enjoy the result of these improvements every mile that we ride.

NEW MOTOR LACKS ESSENTIAL PARTS

SYDNEY, Australia, May 28.—An inventor here has designed an internal combustion engine that can run with crank shaft, connecting rods, cam shaft, valves or timing gears.

It's a circular affair of six cylinders with pistons but a moving cylinder head. It is said to be much smaller than any present type of engine with the same power, and to save much fuel and oil consumption.

Before 1848 there was no leprosy in the Hawaiian Islands. It came in with Chinese labor imported to work in the fields.
