KANSAS OIL MEN VOTE SHUT DOWN

German Cabinet Seeks Way to Avoid Financial Collapse

By CARL H. VON WIEGAND
Universal Service Special Cable
(Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service, Inc.)

BERLIN, July 12. (Sunday)—Worn and haggard after an eight-hour consideration of the political concessions demanded by France as her price for participation in an international loan to the reich, the German cabinet adojurned at 2 a. m. today to meet again in plenary session tomorrow.

Meeting with the reparations committee of the reichstag and economic, financial, and industrial leaders, the cabinet devoted its last two hours to a discussion of measures to be taken Monday to prevent further gold losses through foreign exchange, should the negotiations for the loan needed to save the nation from financial chaos still hang fire.

No decision on France's demands was anonunced as the cabinet dispersed.

There was a report, however, that during a recess at midnight the cabinet informed the Berlin ambassadors of creditor nations that it found itself "practically unable to yield to the French demands."

This report lacked all official confirmation. Even confirmed it would not indicate that the deliberations had reached an impasse, since the word "practically" left the cabinet an opening for a reversal of decision.

At the same time the announcement made no reference to the compromise suggestion cabled to LONDON, July 11. (UP)—The Sunday Express will say tomorrow that it understands the federal reserve bank of New York has cabled to the reichsbank, expressing readiness to grant a $200,000,000 to $300,000,000 six months credit in conjunction with an international syndicate.

SALES PRESSURE SENDS WHEAT TO NEW LOW LEVELS

Market Lacks Speculative Demand to Absorb Offerings

NEW LOW FOR SEASON CHICAGO CORN MARKET

Oats and Rye Reflect Reactions in Principal Grains

CHICAGO, July 11. (US)—All deliveries of wheat again sold at new lows as hedging pressure continued to pour into the local pit today. Lack of speculative demand to absorb the merchandising offerings remained the leading cause of the weakness.

As on several occasions recently, the corn market displayed early firmness, only to succumb to the depressing influence of the leading grain, selling off at the close. September sold at a new low for the season. Oats and rye again reflected reactions in the principal grains.

At the colose, wheat prices were ⅛@⅝c lower. Corn was ⅜@⅝c off, oats ¾@1¼c lower and rye ⅛@⅜c down. Winnipeg wheat futures closed 1⅛@1⅝c lower, and Liverpool ⅛@⅝c off.

Little Short Covering

Pit observers claimed there was little short covering today and that the president's statement had no effect marketwise. Buying by shorts, it was said, was of less volume than in recent sessions when it had been credited with cushioning the decline.

Traders were of the opinion that a leading local had covered an extensive short line in previous sessions of the week.

The government report had an indirect bearish effect. Weakness at Liverpool was ascribed to the esti-

NEW ROCK-BOTTOM CRUDE OIL PRICES IN MID-CONTINENT

TULSA, Okla., July 11. (AP)—New rock-bottom prices for mid-continent crude oil had been adopted tonight by all except one major purchaser.

The Gypsy Oil company, subsidiary of the Gulf Oil corporation, was the only major buyer still holding to the old schedule under which the average price was 33 cents a barrel.

The new average price, the lowest in the history of the mid-continent area, is 18 cents a barrel, with the schedule ranging from 10 cents a barrel for the lowest gravity oil to 22 cents a barrel for the highest.

The Texas company, Empire Oil and Refining company, Carter Oil company, Shell Petroleum corporation and Barnsdall Oil company posted the new low prices at 7 a. m. today in Oklahoma, Kansas and northern Texas. The new price schedule was initiated in Texas by the Humble Oil and Refining company, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, and in Oklahoma by the Sinclair Refining company.

While the Magnolia Petroleum company, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil company of New York, has not accepted the price schedule, its low flat prices, posted June 20 remained in effect.

MAN BURNED TO DEATH TWO OTHERS INJURED IN CRASH NEAR CANADIAN

CANADIAN, Texas, July 11. (AP)—One man was burned to death and two others burned seriously late today when the car in which they were riding caught fire after it overturned on a highway 2½ miles northeast of here.

The dead man was identified as J. F. Strader of Adrian, Texas.

Leslie Strader, his son, and Joe, Griffin, were burned badly.

Highway workers near the scene said they thought the car struck a highway truck, skidded and overturned into the grade ditch.

It was not known whether fire caught from the gasoline tank or from a large can which was carried in the car, and which was thought to have contained gasoline.

The younger Strader and Griffin were dragged from the burning car by the highway workers. But the elder Strader's body was not recovered until after the flames had subsided.

RAIN DELAYS RETURN TRIP OF TEXAS FLIERS

NOME, Alaska, July 11. (AP)—Overcast skies with rain today again caused Reg L. Robbins and H. S. Jones, Fort Worth fliers, to postpone their flight to Fairbanks with the monoplane Fort Worth, in which they were forced to abandon a non-stop flight from Seattle to Tokio near here Thursday.

The fliers plan to make another attempt to reach Tokyo after returning to the United States to install a more powerful motor in their plane.

LEGISLATORS GATHERING AT STATE CAPITAL

Many Will Attend Meeting Of Oil Operators On Monday

LEGISLATURE TO MEET ON TUESDAY MORNING

Will Seek to Find Panacea For Ills of the Oil Industry

AUSTIN, July 11. (AP)—Members of the legislature, called to meet in extraordinary session Tuesday to consider enactment of laws aimed at consideration of the state's natural resources, particularly oil, were gathering here tonight with the main body scheduled to arrive tomorrow and Monday.

Many will attend a meeting of independent oil operators Monday at which various phases of the oil situation will be discussed. Several other pre-session caucauses of oil men and legislators were set, with an effort in the offing to get all opposing factions to agree on the course of procedure.

The legislature will seek to find a panacea for the ills of the oil industry, whose extremely low condition has been aggravated by the unregulated flow of the flush field in East Texas. The call was issued by Gov. R. S. Sterling after efforts of the railroad commission to en-

Furthermore, they were ordered to pay $20 for damage to the apartment and a $5 doctor bill for a policeman's injuries as he arrested them.

SIX HOUR DAY ORDERED ON STATE FARMS AFTER TWO DEATHS FROM HEAT

HOUSTON, July 11. (AP)—With the death from sunstroke of two convicts during the past week, Prison Manager Lee Simmons tonight reiterated his order to prison captains not to work the convicts more that six hours a day.

M. Donovan Jacks, convicted bank robber from Leon county, died at Retrieve prison farm last night following sunstroke suffered at noon. The other death, that of Louis Heron, convict on the Eastham farm, occurred Thursday night. Both prisoners died several hours after suffering strokes, Simmons said.

According to Capt. I. K. Kelley of Retrieve prison farm Jacks was seated in a chair in the camp building when he fell to the floor unconscious shortly after he had returned from the field for lunch. He was placed in the prison hospital and a physician called. After an examination the doctor said the prisoner had suffered a sunstroke in the field.

WICHITANS TO CAPITAL FOR OIL CONFABS

Although the special session of the legislature will not convene until Tuesday a number of Wichita Falls oil men will leave for Austin Sunday to meet with committees of oil men and confer with Governor Sterling and members of the legislature Monday before the legislature convenes.

Among the Wichitans expected to be in Austin Monday are Barney Flynn, J. S. Bridwell, John Kilgore, E. H. Eddleman and John O'Donohoe. Mr. Bridwell attended a meeting of the emergency committee in Dallas Saturday, at which the draft of a conservation bill was considered.

Senator Ben G. Oneal is a member of the state affairs committee in the senate, which is expected to have an important part in the senate's consideration of the bill.

FARMERS ORGANIZE TO GET LION THAT ESCAPES CIRCUS AT POPLAR BLUFF

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo., July 11. (INS)—A female lion which escaped from a small traveling circus a week ago near East Prairie continues to leave its trace through the territory in the way of dead calves and wild beasts which it has killed for food.

The country has organized in the search of this beast, and the farmers now declare that no attempts will be made to capture the lion alive. It has been seen on several occasions, but has never been within rifle shot of one of the hunters.

The last report of the lion was by Lonnie Roark, of Hornersville, a deaf mute, who said he saw it yesterday near Hornersville. It is believed the lion has worked its way south from East Prairie about 20 miles toward the "nigger wool" swamps near Hornersville. These swamps cover thousands of acres, and are filled with dense wood growth and cane brakes. The lion could probably stay in this vicinity for years and never be seen.

POST AND GATTY WILL DEDICATE NEW AIRPORT AT CLAREMORE, OKLA.

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 11. (AP)—The two young men who hurried around the world in nine days may take their time when next they try it.

F. C. Hall, Oklahoma City oil man, who sponsored the record flight of Wiley Post and Harold Gatty in the speedplane "Winnie Mae" said today the fliers would recross the Atlantic—by steamer—to visit whatever European cities invite them.

Sunday will be a day of rest for the fliers. Monday a reception at Tulsa is scheduled. The following day, they are to participate in the dedication of Claremore's new airport, which Will Rogers' home town hastily provided after a gibe from the humorist.

LAY SOCIETY OFFICES TO BE TRANSFERRED WITHIN BORDERS VATICAN CITY

ROME, July 11. (US)—Reportedly in anticipation of a government move to close the headquarters of Catholic action, Pope Pius XI today instructed officials of the Catholic Lay society to transfer their offices within the borders of the Vatican City.

It is the government suppression of the youth clubs affiliated with Catholic action that has precipitated the present vatican-state quarrel.

By moving Catholic action's headquarters out of Italian territory, the pope made it impossible for the government to take any further supressive measures against the society without infringing the Lateran concordat, activating measure of the Lateran treaty.

The state accuses Catholic action of fostering an anti-Fascist spirit. Thursday Mussolini forbade Fascists to belong to the church society. The Pontiff, vigorously defending the society, has challegened the state to show cause for its restrictive actions.

UNIVERSITY REGENTS WANT OIL COMPANIES TO SHUT DOWN WELLS

AUSTIN, July 11. (AP)—University regents today adopted resolutions calling on oil companies to shut down five oil wells in Reagan county now producing 20,000 barrels daily and wasting 110,000,000 cubic feet of gas until a market can be found for the gas and asked Attorney James V. Allred to act to enforce the stopping of waste.

The resolutions asked the legislature to pass conservation measures to prevent waste of university gas.

They recited that regents and attorney general already have "prevailed on" the operators to shut down four Reagan county wells producing 20,000 barrels and wasting 200,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily.

Horse Drawn Hearse Not Found to Carry Out Pioneer's Wish

ESTELLINE, Texas, July 11.—Because of the rapid march of civilization, the last wish of James D. Vardy—that his body be carried to the cemetery in a horse-drawn vehicle—will not be granted.

Mr. Vardy, resident of Hall county for more than 50 years and a real son of the Old West, died at his home here Friday of bullet wound through his chest. Funeral services are to be held Sunday afternoon and local undertakers said it would be impossible to obtain a horse-drawn hearse by that time.

Burial will be in the Estelline cemetery Sunday afternoon, following the funeral services at the Methodist Church at 3 o'clock. Dr Stover, presiding elder of the Stamford district, will conduct the funeral. A telegram from a sister of Mr. Vardy in California, stated that it would be impossible for her to come to the funeral and arrangements which had been held up pending her message were made immediately.

Uncle Jim Vardy was a true Westerner, big hearted and generous to a fault with his friends. In a letter found on his body he stated that the depression was more than he could bear and he thought it best that he end it all. He has been despondent for several weeks over financial burdens but his death came as a distinct shock to his many friends here. He had lived in Hall county for 50 years and one of his requests was that his cowboy friends act as pallbearers.

Mr. Vardy is survived by his widow and brother, Dr. P. L. Vardy of this city, C. F. Vardy, a brother of Newcastle; a sister in California and other brothers and sisters in distant cities.

Members Congress Join In Condemnation Of Short Selling

PRODUCTION FORECAST SENDS PRICES LOWER

Congressional Investigation Demanded by Democrats Of Senate

WASHINGTON, July 11. (AP)—President Hoover's denunciation of wheat speculators was followed today by demands for legislation to restrict their activities.

Two senate Democrats and department officials joined in his condemnation of speculative short selling—a transaction which Mr. Hoover said was intended only to depress prices and served to deprive farmers of their rightful income.

Meanwhile, Chicago prices closed a half cent lower than yesterday, influenced partly by forecasts of a 1931 production of 869,013,000 bushels.

Denies He Gave Troupers Herring Offered Salmon

CHICAGO, July 11. (UP)—Thaddeus Kantor denied today that he gave members of his theatrical troop herring to eat six days a week and then offered them meat on Friday, when they couldn't eat it.

"It isn't so, he said. "Why, several times I offered them a choice of salmon or sardines instead."

Kantor's denial was in answer to a suit by Bernice Macielewski, 17, and Bronislawa Berkowitz, 19, two chorus girls in his show. They charged that the producer took $50 "good faith money" from them, discouraged them for two weeks with salt herring three times a day, didn't pay salaries and left them stranded in Meriden, Conn.

FOREST FIRES RAGING IN MONTANA AND IDAHO NEAR 2,500 ACRES ABLAZE

SPOKANE, Wash., July 11. (AP)—Forest fires roared over a score of fronts in Montana and Idaho today, defying the efforts of about 800 men to control them.

Reports here indicated nearly 2,500 acres were ablaze, with heavy winds and dry timber making control work difficult. Some merchantable timber was destroyed.

Meager reports to the forest service at Missoula, Mont., told of a 1,000-acre blaze west of Lolo pass in the Clearwater national forest in Idaho, another fire menaced a valuable white pine stand.

A lumber camp west of Elk River, Idaho, was abandoned and loggers dropped axes to fight a fire which covered 100 acres.

LAURA INGALLS PLANS TAKEOFF EARLY SUNDAY ON TRIP TO NEW YORK

BURBANK, Calif., July 11. (US)—Laura Ingalls, diminutive aviatrix, was scheduled to hop off between 3 and 4 o'clock tomorrow morning from United airport on her one-stop flight to New York.

Miss Ingalls will stop at Wichita, where she will refuel her ship, and then speed on to New York. There she will begin preparations for her proposed flight across the Atlantic.

DREAM OF FIRE CURES PARALYSIS

SAN ANGELO, Texas, July 11. (AP)—If the doctor can't cure you, take the night off and dream a good dream. That is the cure that B. H. Aycock of Sterling City, prescribes for paralysis.

Injured when a mule kicked him in the stomach, Aycock had been in bed for several weeks with a paralyzed leg.

Last night he dreamed that the hospital here was afire and that he was a fireman. He leaped and when he awakened found that he was standing on the floor and had been walking about on the leg that had been inert so long.

MORE THAN 300 INDEPENDENTS WITH 22,000 KANSAS OIL WELLS VOTE SHUT DOWN IMMEDIATELY

WICHITA, Kan., July 11. (AP)—Without a dissenting vote, more than 300 independent oil operators meeting here today agreed to shut down immediately their 22,000 Kansas oil wells. Leaders of the industry estimated approximately 30,000 men will be thrown out of employment as a result of the action.

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 11. (US)—With 350 of the 800 producers in the Oklahoma City oil field ceased producing oil, and others being importuned or practically ready to quit, efforts to a favorable solution of oil troubles were on the way tonight. The shutdown is a last minute step to force the price of oil to where the expense of operation may be met.

Three thousand men are employed in the Oklahoma City fields and while operators say they will not lay them off, actual conditions soon may force another attitude.

The present price of 22 cents a barrel in the Oklahoma City field is the lowest on record. Oil men recall, however, back 15 to 20 years ago in the Healdton field when "distress sales" of oil brought as low as 15 cents a barrel.

No petitions of any kind had been presented Governor Murray nor the corporation commission late today. The governor indicated that the matter might be halted by his cousin, Cicero Murray, chairman of the all-states advisory committee.

FALL AGREEABLE TO SUGGESTED CHANGE TIME OF SENTENCE

EL PASO, Texas, July 11. (INS)—Albert B. Fall today instructed his attorneys at Washington to take whatever steps necessary to allow him to serve his one-year jail sentence at Santa Fe, N. M., rather than at Washington.

Fall was advised by his attorney that if the sentence were amended to a year and a day the District of Columbia supreme court would have authority to order him confined at some other place than Washington. The one-year term, however, left the court no alternative but to order Fall to serve his term in Washington, the attorney told the former official.

Mrs. Fall, speaking for her husband, said the former secretary of the interior felt that a high, dry climate was absolutely essential to his health and that he had told his attorney he was willing to serve the longer term if he could be confined in Santa Fe.

Open and Shut Case But Jurors Said Not Guilty

ALHAMBRA, Calif., July 11. (UP)—"It was an open and shut case," began Deputy District Attorney Russell Broker, in reporting the result of the trial of W. Poarche, accused of possession of real beer.

"Investigator Ned Keeler testified he found the beer in Poarche's home and Poarche admitted owning it. The defendant Poarche put up no defense and I summed up briefly.

"The jury stayed out only 10 minutes. They returned and the foreman said:

"'Not guilty'."

"You could have knocked me over with a feather. Not only that, but the courtroom spectators rose and cheered, and as Keeler and I left, they gave us what is vulgarly known as the razzberry. And one of them shouted: 'Any guy who's got beer in this weather is too lucky to be prosecuted'."

MARVIN JONES URGES RAILROADS TO PUT NEW RATES IN EFFECT NOW

AMARILLO, Texas, July 11. (AP)—Congressman Marvin Jones today sent telegrams to officials of the Santa Fe, Rock Island and Denver railways, urging them to put into immediate effect reduced freight rates scheduled for Aug. 1.

The lower rates will mean a saving of from one-half cent to two cents a bushel on wheat, and thousands of dollars to the Panhandle if put into effect now, Jones said.

Kansas Wheat Crop

TOPEKA, Kan., July 11. (UP)—The Kansas board of agriculture and the government bureau of crop economies today estimated the 1931 state wheat crop at more than 200,000,000 bushels, exceeding by 20,000,000 bushels the previous record for one season.

BANQUET HERE PAYS TRIBUTE TO FAIRTRACE

CHANGES PREDICTED IN GOVERNMENT OF STATE

Francis Assails Present Political Methods As Ridiculous

Voicing the appreciation of Wichita Falls for the services of George Fairtrace as city manager, Charles I. Francis predicted at a dinner given in Mr. Fairtrace's honor Saturday night that within 10 years the people of Texas will accomplish sweeping reforms in the organization of their state government which they would see administered by men of ability such as Mr. Fairtrace.

The dinner was given at the Wichita Falls Golf and Country club and was attended by more than 100 citizens. V. R. Smitham of Big Spring, appointed as city manager to succeed Mr. Fairtrace who became city manager of Fort Worth on July 1, was a guest of honor with Mr. Fairtrace.

Mr. Francis described the organization of our state government and its administration as "archaic, ridiculous and absurb and a farce and a travesty," and predicted that the people of Texas would bring about a change.

He paid high tribute to the work done by Mr. Fairtrace during his

NEW FREIGHT RATES EXPECTED TO RAISE PLAINS GRAIN PRICE

AMARILLO, Texas, July 11. (AP)—A more competittive market for Panhandle wheat is seen after August when reduced freight rates will allow Kansas City millers to compete on an equal basis with gulf coast buyers.

With the new rates in effect, Kansas City will have an advantage of almost two cents a bushel in freight from Panhandle points. Rates also will be lower to Chicago and other milling points.

The price of wheat has been from two to six cents a bushel higher on the North Plains this season where the rates already are in effect.

Lindsay had moved to Charlottesville, Va., several years ago and McElroy had forgotten about the letter until it came back.

MISSOURI WANTS PROBE GAS PRICE OF CITIES SERVICE

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., July 11. (INS)—Investigation of the price charged for natural gas in Missouri by the Cities Service Gas company has been requested in a brief filed before the Missouri public service commission by the city of Kansas City. The brief charges the company is operating in violation of Missouri law and asked the commission to issue an order directing the company to file a schedule of rates for sale of gas lines from its pipe lines in this state to all its users.

Naming seven subsidiary companies to which Cities Service supplies gas the brief charges that "all of these companies are dealing with each other with the end in view to fix the price for the sale of gas at such a figure to insure to the sole benefit of the Cities Service company, a stock selling concern."

The Cities Service company is resisting efforts by the public service commission to enquire into its gas charges upon the ground that it is engaged in interstate commerce and therefore is not subject to state regulatory bodies.

LEGISLATORS MEET AT STATE CAPITAL

force its proration orders and an attempt by operators in the East Texas oil field to curb the flow of oil by a "gentlemen's agreement" had failed.

Failure of the railroad commission to enforce the proration orders has been attributed to a lack of proper legal machinery. The hands of the commission have been tied by applications for injunction to enjoin enforcement of the orders. With the filing of an injunction suit, penalties against operators for violation of the orders automatically is stopped.

Each of the numerous anticipated bills was expected to embody several general provisions including speeding up the trial of suits filed to enjoin enforcement of proration orders; collection of penalties to be held in escrow during pendency of the suits; a more definite interpretation of wasteful production; a method for adjustment of production to the market demand; easier access to the higher courts in appeals and a further provision that would bar granting of temporary injunctions without a hearing.

Await Some Action

Oil operators and business leaders throughout the country were anxiously waiting for the legislature to take some action that would definitely restrict the East Texas production and thereby stabilize the oil industry. Oil operators in Oklahoma and in West Texas were planning further voluntary reductions in production with the operators in the Oklahoma field reported considering a plan whereby all the wells in the field would be shut in until oil reached at least $1 per barrel.

One of the lines cleavage among the lawmakers was expected to be the creation of a separate commission to handle conservation matters. This action is favored by Governor Sterling, who contends the railroad commission, present administrators of the conservation laws, has "its hands full" regulating railroads and common and contract carrier trucks.

Many members have expressed a preference for strengthening conservation laws rather than establish another state bureau to deal primarily with conservation. It was contended by one faction that proration could be enforced by the railroad commission through a few changes in the law.

Need Special Commission

Governor Sterling, however, has held to the contention that conservation of the state's natural resources, including not only the minerals but also the water supply and soil fertility, is a large enough job to demand the attention of a special commission.

A group of the independents was expected to hold out for revision of the common purchaser pipe line law to throw additional safeguards around producers seeking market outlets and connections. Rumors were current that an effort would be made to divorce the producers and refiners from the pipe line end of the business.

Claude Wild, executive vice president of the Independent Petroleum association, said he would call a meeting of independent operators Monday in an effort to patch up old differences between independents so they could present a united front and take a decisive stand for or against any bill.

Jealousies between the majors and independents and the bitter enmity that has marked their appearances before the legislature in previous sessions probably will be somewhat lessened at this session by the critical condition of both independents and majors and the generally acknowledged necessity by both factions for more adequate conservation laws aimed at stabilization of the industry. The method to be pursued in accomplishing this end probably will bring forth scores of divergent views with the usual attendant argument and bickering.

Governor Sterling had prepared his message to the legislature which probably will be delivered late Tuesday or Wednesday morning.

Several, including J. E. McDonald, commissioner of agriculture, have construed the call to mean that conservation of natural resources will permit introduction of the cotton acreage reduction bill that died on the calendar in the regular session. The bill has been hailed by McDonald as the only salvation of the cotton industry. It would set up a state commission to determine the acreage of each farm that could be devoted to cotton production.

Walter Cline To Make Trip by Air As Seven Members of Maskat Plan To Attend Imperial Council Meet

Seven representatives of Maskat temple plan to be present Tuesday when the three-day meeting of the Imperial Shrine council convenes in Cleveland, according to information given at the temple here.

In addition to being present at the imperial council meeting Mr. Ellis, who is recorder of Maskat temple, will attend the annual convention of the Shrine Recorders association of North America, of which he is secretary-treasurer.

The imperial council meeting was postponed a month later than originally planned to await the completion of the new Cleveland municipal stadium, which has a capacity of more than 100,000.

Judge Rogers, an imperial representative of Maskat temple, left by train for Cleveland Friday, while Mr. Cline, the other imperial representative from the temple here, planned to leave Sunday, traveling from Dallas in an especially chartered 14-passenger airplane of the National Air Transport division of the United Air lines. Mr. Cline is imperial outer guard of the Shrine.

Mr. Hamilton, potentate of Maskat temple, also planned to go to Cleveland, but he was out of the city Saturday and uncertainty was expressed at his office as to whether he would accompany the airplane party. Mr. Peterson also will attend as an imperial representative.

The plane trip will be the first time, it was said, that any group of Shrine members has made the journey to the imperial council meeting by air. Included among those who will be aboard the plane will be the Hella temple quartet from Dallas, a widely known musical group.

for the independent oil men, providing other oil producing states and President Hoover will take steps to bolster the market.

This was the statement of Thurman Hill, state public service commisisoner when he arrived in Wichita today to confer with oil men holding a mass protest meeting here.

Calling of the extra session would depend largely upon the attitude of President Hoover toward limiting the flood of foreign crude oil and refined products, Hill said.

Hill asserted that under the present Kansas proration law the commission could shut in 99 per cent of Kansas production.

Agrees With Governor Sterling

LAS VEGAS, N. M., July 11. (AP)—Gov. Arthur Seligman of New Mexico joined Gov. Ross Sterling of Texas in an expression that he does not believe the governors have constitutional authority to shut down oil production pending a recovery in the price of crude.

"The only effect apparent on the surface," Governor Seligman said, would be that the operators with storage oil would benefit through sales, the action would be detrimental to the operators with flowing and pumping wells and we could not stop the flood of foreign oil pouring into the country."

Louisiana Governor Comments

BATON ROUGE, La., July 11. (AP)—Gov. Huey P. Long said today he did not believe stoppage of oil well production in Louisiana would affect the general high production that Oklahoma City operators desire stemmed.

The governor said it was outside his powers to order such a stoppage, and that even if it were carried out, it would not affect the situation because the state's oil production is small and "no flushed" condition exists in Louisiana.

SEEK LAW TO HALT WHEAT SPECULATION

tion leaders to amend farm board policies.

A congressional investigation preliminary to forming legislative proposals for curbing short sales was demanded by Democrats of the senate. They could see no hope in Mr. Hoover's appeal to speculators' patriotism and urged new legislation to stop this type of trading in times of stress.

Fletcher Proposes Publicity

Senator Fletcher, Democrat, of Florida, proposed the grain futures act be amended to make it possible to publish the names of speculators.

Senator George, Democrat, of Georgia, also said, "The way to get at it is by legislation rather than by appeal." He recalled the bill by Senator Caraway, Democrat, of Arkansas, to this end which has been pending for some time.

Agreement with the president's denunciation was expressed by Dr. J. W. T. Duvel, head of the grain futures administration, who also reiterated his advocacy of legal restrictions.

Presidents of grain exchanges denied knowledge of excessive short selling.

Assistant Secretary Dunlap of the agriculture department endorsed Mr. Hoover's statement and said it was what was needed to bring the question of speculation to the attention of the people.

The president has conferred with farm leaders on the situation and has been collecting information on grain trading over the last two weeks.

SALES PRESSURE IN WHEAT MARKET

mate of a bumper winter wheat harvest. With a yield of 713,000,000 bushels promising a total crop larger than a year ago, the extremely bullish spring crop estimate had no influence.

Showers in the domestic and Canadian spring areas affected sentiment. The forecast for cooler weather and further rains also had its influence.

Winnipeg Market Weak

Winnipeg was realtively weak, but this was not a greatly depressing feature here. Spreading and hedging because of the premium of Canadian prices continued and is expected to draw them back more in line with local quotations. It is not unusual at his time of year for Winnipeg to gain a slight premium and then meet with hedging pressure from the southwest, "short term hedges" in particular being naturally placed in the market of best advantage.

Latest Russian advices place the spring wheat area at 63,000,000 acres, or 7.3 per cent above a year ago. Traders feel that no confidence can be placed in figures on Russia, however, and that if comparisons are to be made the "freak" crop of a year ago must be taken into consideration.

Forecasts for showers over the belt during the next week and weakness in wheat depressed corn after that market had displayed independent firmness. The technical situation in the July and scattered complaints of lack of moisture are the strengthening features. The July crop report as usual received little attention except as a basis for comparisons over the forth coming critical period.

Childless marriages are nearly twice as numerous in American cities as in rural districts.

Record Crop of Cantaloupes Soon To Be Harvested by Growers of Wichita Valley and Sold in Mid-West Market

A bumper crop of cantaloupes is expected from the approximately 150 acres planted by the Wichita Valley Cantaloupe Growers association, according to J. N. Sherrill, chairman of the agricultural committee of the chamber of commerce.

Acreage is confined to the district in and around Wichita Falls and Iowa Park under irrigation. The crop will be ready for market in about 10 days to two weeks' time, it was reported. The melons produced from the fields thus far have been of a superior quality and flavor, and the yield per acre is expected to be between a minimum of 50 crates and a maximum of 100.

In some sections the vines have become infested with what is commonly known as "honey dew," which has necessitated the use of black leaf forty as a spray to prevent the spread of the disease. Good progress has been made in fighting the malady and the melons are forming rapidly on the vines. The yield here is reported as being larger than in other sections of the state.

The irrigated vines produce an increased number of melons per vine, reports show, in comparison with crops which have not been under the ditch. The importance of the heavy yield here is recognized as it will prove that the valley is ideally situated for this truck product.

A market for the cantaloupes has been established with a Kansas firm, and due to the proximity of this district to the Kansas and Mid-West markets, the melons here can be picked in the final stage and be shipped northward, since only two days' time is required for the produce to reach the northern destination.

From five to seven carloads daily have been shipped from the market around Decatur and Chico and the yield here is being handled through the same marketing firm.

Non-members are being given the opportunity to have the growers' association ship their cantaloupes if they are of the same brand and quality. Several farmers already have been granted this favor and more are expected to take advantage of the offer.

FLY SPRAY KILLS PESTS AND BARBER

INDEPENDENCE, Iowa, July 11. (UP)—Harold Diggins, 19, was tremendously pleased when he successfully passed his examination for a barber's license.

With reckless abandon he picked up a bottle of fly spray and drank several swallows.

"This stuff will kill flies," he said, "let's see what it will do to humans."

He died.

MICE GET BLAME FOR FLAMES IN PANHANDLE CAFE

Mice gnawing upon matches were assigned by J. L. McClure, fire chief, as the probable cause of a fire late Saturday which heavily damaged the S. J. Campbell cafe in the Panhandle building. No estimate of the loss was made.

The cafe, according to Mr. Campbell, had been closed for the last several days. The alarm was turned in by occupants of the building who saw smoke pouring through door cracks.

The alarm was one of six answered by the department during a 12-hour period. Four were due to grass fires, none of which did damage. The fifth was caused when an automobile being driven by a negro became ignited in the 1100 block on Harrison street. The loss was estimated by the fire chief at $15.

Cuticura Healed Terrible Disfigurement of Face.

"My trouble began with an itching and burning, and pimples broke out on my face. They gradually kept getting worse, and the irritation was so severe that I scratched and caused eruptions. The pimples lasted about a year without any relief, and the disfigurement of my face was terrible.

"I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample of each. They helped me so I purchased more, and after using three cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." (Signed) Robert Anderson, Dudley, N. C., Jan. 28, 1931.

NOW!—GET RID OF FAT A POUND A DAY ON A FULL STOMACH

Do Just These Two Simple Things

Fat Melts Away

NO tiring exercise, no starvation. Instead, a full stomach and never a hungry moment! Yet fat melts away. You can easily lose from four to seven pounds weekly, see the coarse lines of fat replaced by the refined lines of slenderness—and feel better than you ever felt before in your life.

WHAT YOU DO

There are just two simple things you do: Clear your system and keep it clear of waste matter, toxins and depleting poisons with ordinary JAD SALTS obtainable at any drug store. Start with a teaspoonful in a full glass of water tomorrow morning—a sparkling and pleasant drink.

Then EAT YOUR FILL—as much as your appetitie can stand—of meals consisting of the following foods:

At breakfast eat two oranges, or the juice of two oranges. Eat also two slices of toasted whole wheat or bran bread. Eat rolled oats (with milk, not cream).

At luncheon eat a good size piece of lean meat, then see how much spinach, lettuce, sauerkraut, boiled cabbage, green peas, broccoli or fresh turnips you can eat. EAT ALL YOU CAN COMFORTABLY HOLD of these foods. For dessert eat any fresh fruit; cantaloupe, berries, apples, sliced oranges, pears. Substitute turnips for potatoes. Substitute lean meats—beef, chicken, veal, white fish, trout, bass, etc.—for pork or any fat meats.

At night, have another FILL-UP-FULL meal as above. Cut down on butter and sweets—eat half of what you now eat. That's easy. For with your stomach full of other foods, you'll never notice it. Drink water or not as you like.

4 TO 7 POUNDS GONE IN WEEK

At the end of a week, you'll see the scale down four to seven pounds—according to how much overweight you are—from what you weighed the day you started. Your health, too, will be better. You'll be more active, more vigorous than perhaps for years. Your friends will soon begin to notice your increasing slenderness. You'll soon avoid the embarrassment of being called fat or bulky. And you'll do it with NEVER A HUNGRY MOMENT!

If in doubt about this safe and simple way, ASK ANY DOCTOR. Show him this article. Ask him whether or not it is safe and sure. It marks the latest findings of scientific men in the field of weight reduction. For it performs two necessary and important functions.

The JAD SALTS clear the bowels and system of the excessive toxins most overweight people have. *The change in diet—the FILLING OF THE STOMACH TO ITS LIMIT—with foods that turn to energy instead of fat, decreases the weight day by day. The salts build up your health. The change in food eases off the fat.

*Note particularly—the salts are urged purely as a poison-banishing agent—not as a reducing. The change in food does the work.—Adv.

Eight Hundred Jobless Men Turned Out as Detroit Closes Lodgings for Single Men as Relief Funds Run Low

DETROIT, July 11. (UP)—More than 800 homeless, hungry men carrying their worldly goods in paper bags or knotted handkerchiefs, roamed the streets of Detroit today, turned out of the city's free lodging houses because the city is out of funds.

At the order of the city council—nearly bankrupt by relief expenditures—the last of the free lodges for unemployed single men was closed last night. Out of its shabby doors filed 850 jobless men who have the alternative of seeking their living on the streets or becoming inmates of the county poor farm.

By virtue of the drastic cut in relief expenditures—from $14,000,000 last year to a $7,000,000 limit for the fiscal year just begun—the city probably will be able to stave off financial disaster through a $59,500,000 loan.

City Funds Low

The Chrysler Motor corporation, the Packard Motor company and the Fisher Finance corporation and possibly the Ford Motor company will underwrite loans to be made by local banks, City Controller G. Hall Roosevelt said. Unless this money is obtained the city soon will find itself unable to meet short term obligations of $60,000,000.

Consummation of the $60,000,000 loan plan, Roosevelt said, is "conditional upon the city's holding its relief expenses within its resources." Closing of the lodging houses for single men was the first act in the retrenchment program.

The council reasoned that the first blow should fall on unmarried men rather than on the 30,000 families now receiving help from the public welfare department.

A pathetic appeal by a delegation of homeless men failed to move the council. The delegation asked only that food be provided, and offered that the men themselves would clean the bedding, cook the food, and maintain the lodging house.

"This is the worst mistake the council could have made," said Mayor Frank Murphy, whose veto of the closing order was overruled.

Then, two and three at a time, and finally in large groups, they moved toward Cadillac square, where Communist orators stood on the city hall steps and counseled revolution.

WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS DENIED DAISY DE BOE

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11. (AP)—The state supreme court today denied the petition of Daisy de Boe, convicted of grand theft on complaint of Clara Bow, the motion picture actress, for a rehearing on her application for a writ of habeas corpus.

Miss De Boe sought release from jail in Los Angeles by filing a petition for a writ of habeas corpus with the state district court of appeals there. The court denied the writ after hearing arguments. The supreme court sustained the ruling of the appeal court.

HEAR ARGUMENTS STATE TRUCK LAW IN FEDERAL COURT

HOUSTON, July 11. (AP)—Arguments in the state cotton truck law injunction suit were concluded today before a three-judge federal court and attorneys for both sides were allowed until Tuesday to file briefs.

The suit, brought by J. H. McLeaish & Co., a trucking concern, against the state highway commission, the state highway patrol and peace officers of certain counties, attacked the constitutionality of the recent law enacted by the legislature in which the loads of cotton that might be legally hauled by trucks over the highways were regulated.

The court was composed of U. S. Circuit Judge J. C. Hutcheson and federal district Judges T. M. Kennerly and Randolph Bryant, the latter of the eastern district of Texas.

Judge Hutcheson at the conclusion of the arguments, briefly outlined the facts of the case and then asked the lawyers if they wanted the court to deliberate at considerable length or to return an immediate decision that an appeal to the supreme court might be taken.

John H. Crooker, one of the attorneys for the McLeaish company and a number of intervenors, answered that if the court decided in favor of his clients, he wanted a decision from the bench.

Twins Separated By Operation Gain Few Ounces Lost

BALTIMORE, July 11. (INS)—Mrs. Albert Foster's twin daughters, born four days ago with a thick, fleshy ligament connecting the front of their stomachs, regained the few ounces in weight they lost following the emergency operation that separated them at birth. Their weight today was a fraction above the four and one-half pounds they registered Tuesday.

Although Dr. Kyle W. Golley said "they were acting like any normal babies," he admitted they can not live for any length of time unless they undergo another major operation for the adjustment of their intestines. These organs were rearranged hurriedly in the emergency operation performed upon them at birth in an effort to save their lives.

The twins, children of their 36-year-old mother, are being given food through eyedroppers every three hours. Dr. Golley and his associates said they must gain considerable strength before the next operation will be attempted.

If they do not thrive on their present feeding they will be placed in incubators.

Dirigible 'Akron' Several Thousands Pounds Too Heavy

WASHINGTON, July 11. (AP)—The navy's giant new Akron was said at the department today to be several thousand pounds heavier than the specifications call for.

The dirigible was said, however, to be satisfactory in other respects and the navy expects to accept it.

Bureau of aeronautics officials said the ship now being constructed by the Goodyear Zeppelin corporation at Akron, Ohio, was 14,000 pounds heavier than the penalty limit fixed in the contract as a result the contractor faces a possible penalty of $25,000.

The ship is believed about 19,000 pounds over the actual specifications, although this will not be determined definitely until the Akron is air-borne on Aug. 8. Mrs. Herbert Hoover will christen her.

The specifications provide for a total weight of 221,000 pounds. If accepted, the ship will cost the government $5,375,000.

Will Make No Statement

AKRON, Ohio, July 11. (AP)—Goodyear-Zeppelin corporation will have no statement concerning reports that the Zeppelin Akron is over contract weight, until fully official details of the announcement by the navy department have been received, Hugh Allen, public relations, director, said today.

DENMARK AND NORWAY CLASH

Dispute Sovereignty Part Of Eastern Greenland

LONDON, July 11. (AP)—Norway and Denmark, once united and long friendly, were embroiled in a dispute today over the sovereignty of the central part of eastern Greenland's icy wastes.

King Haakon VII of Norway, at Oslo, has signed a formal declaration giving notice that Norway occupies the territory lying between 75.40 and 71.30 north latitude on the eastern coast. An expedition of Norwegian hunters recently planted their flag in this region, claiming the land for Norway.

The Danish cabinet is considering the situation. Foreign Minister Nunch issued a statement saying that Denmark would carry her case to the world court at The Hague and was hopeful that the matter would be cleared up without straining the ties between the two nations.

It would have been more courteous if both nations had submitted the dispute to arbitration, he said, and Norway and had not strengthened her claims by such summary action, sure to create bitterness among the Danish people.

The land was discovered by Eric the Red, a Norwegian, in 982 and he called it Greenland in order to entice colonists to its shores. With the dissolution of the union between Norway and Denmark in 1814, Denmark retained Greenland along with Iceland and the Faroe islands. She restricted her sovereignty to the west coast until 1917, when she claimed the entire island, thereby causing a disagreement with Norway over hunting and sealing rights which has lingered to this day.

ONE OF THREE MEN WHO ESCAPED MISSOURI JAIL CAPTURED IN OKLAHOMA

LEBANON, Mo., July 11. (UP)—Clarence Williams, who with David Hart, alias Jones, and Buell Webb, escaped jail here recently, has been captured in Creek county, Okla., Sheriff John W. Jones has been informed.

The three kidnaped Jones and drove him in his car several miles before releasing him. The car has been recovered in Oklahoma where the men abandoned it.

Sheriff Jones said Creek county officials said they believe Webb and Hart are hiding near or in the county.

RULE, Texas, July 11.—Fire which originated from a cook stove completely destroyed the home of Mrs. E. Sonnamaker, who lives in the new Cook community about four miles west of Rule Thursday afternoon. The house caught on fire that morning and farmers who were working in fields nearby succeeded in extinguishing the flames after most of the household goods had been removed from the building. The fire broke out again in the afternoon from the roof and the house was completely destroyed. Some insurance was carried on both the building and household goods.

FRENCH FLIERS PLAN TO TAKE OFF EARLY SUNDAY PARIS TO TOKYO FLIGHT

PARIS, July 11. (AP)—Joseph Lebrix, noted French flier, told The Associated Press today that he and Marcel Doret expected to take off on a straight line flight to Tokyo from LeBourget at 4 o'clock tomorrow morning, (10 p. m. Saturday, eastern standard time).

The weather forecast indicated favorable flying conditions and Lebrix said that barring unforeseen contingencies they would hop off at dawn.

Lebrix said an effort would be made to break the world's straight line distance record and that it was not an initial hop of a globe circling tour. However, in aviation circles it was believed that Lebrix was unwilling to make public his hopes and that he was considering world flight.

Young Grid Star To Run for Mayor Of Santa Monica

SANTA MONICA, Calif., July 11. (UP)—This country needs honest, educated politicians, in the opinion of young Marshall Duffield, great quarterback of the University of Southern California, and he hopes to be able to help fill this need.

Not yet of voting age, Duffield already has offered himself as a candidate for mayor of Santa Monica. If he is successful in winning the post, he intends to try to establish a third national party. After that, well, he'll write his own ticket.

If the people won't vote for him and make him mayor, it will be the hint that people really don't want honest, educated politicians, young Duffield said, and in such a case he'll just wash his hands of the whole affair and leave it for someone else to solve the nation's problems.

CANDLERS DELAYED BY BAD WEATHER STOP IN DALLAS TO SPEND NIGHT

DALLAS, Texas, July 11. (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Asa Candler Jr., en route to Savannah, Ga., from Burbank, Calif., by plane will spend the night here instead of continuing the trip tonight. Decision to remain here was prompted by delay in the flight due to bad weather around El Paso, it was announced.

They expect to resume their flight at 6 o'clock tomorrow morning. They arrived at 4:17 p. m.

BELLE LIVINGSTONE ROLLS INTO RENO WITH IDEAS TO ESTABLISH HERSELF AS EMPRESS OF DESERT

By EARL H. LIEF
United Press Staff Correspondent

RENO, Nev., July 1.—Belle Livingstone rolled into town with a staff of underlings and a $1,000 bill today and establish herself as "empress of the desert" and let it be known that her New York night club is going to be transferred to Reno.

Despite an attack of her well known diffidence, Big Town Belle intimated she was bubbling over with plans that include "a new whoopie palace," finish a novel on Gotham graft, importing gambling games to Reno, and, of all things, establishing a divorce bureau.

"My night club is going to be a pretty swell place, but not highbrow if you get what I mean," said Belle. "Our car rolled into a ditch on the way out here and I said 'Boys, we're in the gutter now and we'll have to quit being highbrow.'"

Belle did not say just when it was she had been "highbrow."

"But when it comes to chemin de fer, baccarat and some of those other European folderols, won't we have fun," she observed.

There also will be European touches in the way of refreshments, Belle promised, but these will be served by somebody else. Belle had one brush with the law because of a similar European touch in a New York establishment operated by herself.

"I hear you got a very nice prison in Nevada, but I wouldn't care for it," she said.

"About that $1,000 bill. It seems nobody could change it and Belle and her friends almost starved to death between Kansas City and Reno.

"I catch on pretty quick, and I don't think New York wanted me to leave," she explained. "Anyway, they slapped an indictment and some court action on me to keep me there. When we got to Cleveland I found my son had gone Rotarian and wanted to show me the town's smokestacks, and to round out the trip we lost a trunk and had two flat tires."

HUMBLE REDUCES PRICE OF GASOLINE ONE CENT

HOUSTON, July 11. (AP)—A one-cent reduction in the retail price of gasoline was made effective today by the Humble Oil and Refining company. The cut is state-wide. The retail price in Houston now is 18 cents for commercial gas and 15 cents for ethyl-treated gas. Recent reductions in crude oil prices based the gasoline cuts, Humble officials said.

The Gulf Refining company immediately met the cut. Other major marketers indicated that they too would follow.

HIGHWAY LEADING THROUGH TOWN OF RULE REDESIGNATED

RULE, Texas, July 11.—Highway No. 51 has been redesignated, and will connect with highway No. 120 on Main street in Rule over Union avenue, which runs between the Westbrook drug store and the First National bank and will continue on Union avenue south through Rule, when the highway work to Sagerton is begun. This will give pavement through one of the residential streets and the street on which four of the churches are built. Much red tape has been attached to obtaining this new route through town, as a new survey had to be made and this survey approved by the state engineer. The new route requires the moving of the Harrison gin in this city and the Richards Feed store.

Grading work is progressing rapidly on this highway No. 51 and will probably be completed from the Knox county line to Rule in about 10 days. Rapid progress is being made on laying the concrete topping on highway No. 30 south of Haskell, and over eight miles of the road has been finished. Rapid progress is expected on the remainder of the stretch between Haskell and Stamford, as additional machinery received recently has been put into operation. It is stated that the road between Haskell and Stamford will be finished and opened to traffic by the middle of August or the first of September, if construction work continues at the present rate.

Didn't Get His Point

DALY CITY, Calif.—Clyde Wortman told Judge D. S. O'Brien that he learned his wife had packed her clothes and was going to elope in the family automobile, so he tossed a cigaret into the car and watched it burn up. The judge didn't quite get the point. He held Wortman on an arson charge.

Modern Kitchen Science

CRESCENT, Okla. — Modern kitchen science is responsible for honors that have been heaped upon Lydia, winner of the annual Crescent terrapin derby. When her drug store owner found Lydia on the prairies, she was a slow moving 10-year-old. He placed her in an electric refrigerator for six weeks. When the cool-headed Lydia came in contact with the hot sand on the public square, the shock of the sudden change in temperature caused her to sprint to victory far ahead of the sluggish competition.

LITTLE HOPE HELD FOR RECOVERY OF STAMFORD YOUTH HURT IN DIVING

STAMFORD, Texas, July 11.—Coystle Alexander, 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Alexander of this city, who broke his neck the second time, while swimming late Friday afternoon; was still alive Saturday but physicians held little hope for his recovery. He is paralyzed from the neck down.

He was swimming in the Clear Fork of the Brazos river 16 miles southeast of here at the time of the accident. He made a dive from a rope attached to a tree into a pool where the water was about five feet deep and struck his head on the bottom. To add to the danger his head struck a rock.

About two years ago the youth broke his neck while playing football and it was several months before he recovered from the injury. He had apparently recovered but his neck was still stiffened from the previous accident.

OBSERVE GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. James Kent, 408 Travis, who were married in Alpine, Ark., July 9, 1881.

A 50th anniversary in which for the first time all the members of the family had been together was celebrated Thursday, July 9, when Mr. and Mrs. James Kent had seated at the table with them their 26 children and grandchildren in the home where they have lived for the last 20 years at 408 Travis.

The center decoration of the great table was a beautiful three-tiered wedding cake with a bride and groom decorating it and a number of twinkling lights. The chairs for the honor couple were tied with great bows of tulle ribbon and baskets of flowers alternated round the beautiful cake.

Their children, beside many small presents, gave their parents a $50 gold piece and Mrs. Kent was given a pair of gold earrings exactly like the ones she wore at the time of her marriage. Mrs. E. Lee Smith presented her mother with a handsome leather bound scrap book to keep records of the 50th reunion. A photographer made a picture of the 28 members of the party.

James Kent was born June 24, 1861, in Alpine, Ark., and Juliette E. Pannell, who became his bride July 9, 1881, was born Jan. 27, 1865. After their marriage at Alpine they moved to the Indian territory and lived there until they moved to Wichita Falls in 1911.

Radical Reduction in Budgets Of Local Welfare Agencies Balance Fiscal Year Declared Necessary

Wichita Falls welfare agencies will be forced to operate on greatly reduced budgets during the remaining months of the fiscal year. At a meeting of the finance committee of the Welfare board last week it was reported by the secretary, Mrs. J. O. Bentley, that the board's bank balance July 6 was only 80 cents, and a survey indicated that the total collections would be far short of the amount upon which the budgets were based at the beginning of the fiscal year.

To meet the situation confronting the board the finance committee recommended a reduction in appropriations to all the 11 agencies comprising the welfare budget of 10 per cent of their year's budgets. This will force heavy reduction in expenditures during the remaining two months of the welfare year.

The net pledges for the 12 months were $73,381.23. Of the total $54,345.17 has been collected.

The Family Relief association has already expended the full amount of its budget for the 12 months. It is planned to adjust this, if approval is given, by contributing a balance left over several years ago from the Civic Opera fund to meet this deficit. Even if this is done the work of the Family Relief association must be greatly curtailed.

Those who have not yet paid their pledges to the fund are asked by the board to do so as quickly as possible in order that the welfare work may be continued, even if greatly reduced, during the remaining two months of the fiscal year.

The agencies affected are: Salvation Army, Day Nursery, Boy Scouts, Campfire Girls, Y. W. C. A., Children's Aid, Family Relief, Travelers' Aid, Red Cross and Colored Day Nursery. The executive office of the association is also included in the 10 per cent budget cut.

CONTROVERSY OVER FREE BRIDGE GOES TO FEDERAL COURT

Not Expect State Highway Commission Will Fulfill Contract

GRANT INJUNCTION TO HALT BRIDGE OPENING

Contract Provides for Payment $150,000 to Toll Bridge Company

AUSTIN, July 11. (AP)—Indications here today were that the state highway commission would not fulfill its contract with the Red River Bridge company in order to bring about the immediate opening of a free bridge between Denison, Texas, and Durant, Okla.

James V. Allred, attorney general, said he did not believe such action would be taken unless and until the injunction preventing the opening of the bridge was upheld by the federal circuit court of appeals at New Orleans.

T. M. Kennerly, federal judge at Houston, granted the injunction yesterday on application of the Red River Bridge company, operator of a toll bridge paralleling the free structure.

Allred pointed out that one of the state's contentions was that the highway commission had exceeded its authority in making the contract. Another contention, on which the state hopes to get a reversal in the higher courts, is that a state cannot be sued except with its consent.

Under the contract, the commission would be forced to pay the bridge company $150,000, Allred said. Two of the present commissioners were on the commission at the time the contract was signed.

Allred said W. C. Lewis, assistant attorney general of Oklahoma, intimated over long distance telephone today that Oklahoma expected to take immediate action against Texas in an effort to force the opening of the interstate bridge. There is a precedent for such action, Allred said and in that case, the defendant state was forced by the United States supreme court to open the bridge notwithstanding that an injunction had been granted.

Lindberghs Make Necessary Grades For Radio Permit

WASHINGTON, July 11. (US)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh showed remarkable proficiency when they passed their examinations for third-class radio operators' permits at New York on Thursday, the commerce department revealed today.

The colonel was credited with a mark of 96.7, while the former Anne Morrow was almost as good with 94.6. Both passed the code test in international Morse with 15.15 words per minute, the requirement being 15 words. The entire examination consumed 3 hours and 45 minutes. The colonel's license number is 210 and Mrs. Lindbergh's, 211.

Family of Nine Asks Aid Milk-Ice Fund

"Do you have any bread? I want some bread and milk and ice tickets!"

This was the brief statement of a small 7-year-old boy who came to the offices of the Family Relief society and approached Mrs. Effie McHam with a grim look on his face. Investigating further, Mrs. McHam found on file a record of this child's family.

The record showed that the father is a cripple, the worried mother is very industrious and works in a laundry when she can, a 17-year-old girl also works in the laundry sometimes, and the rest of the family consists of six children ranging from the ages of 15 to 2 years.

The Family Relief must give this group milk and ice tickets because the children cannot be allowed to starve. Though the mother tries hard and is a persistent parent, the social workers believe that if any one needs help, this family does.

The milk and ice fund so far totals $394.67.

HEART TOUCHED AND POCKETBOOK

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa, July 11. (UP)—When a stranger, hungry, jobless, and without money, came to William Kline's home a few days ago Kline's heart was touched.

"Come in," he said, "and share my bed."

The wayfarer acceped the charitable offer and lived with Kline in brotherly friendliness until last night. Then, while the benefactor slept, the beggar slugged him and fled with $27.

NEW VALUATION FOR RAILROADS

Basis for Calculating Income Needs

WASHINGTON, July 11. (AP)—Fixing a new basis on which to calculate the income needs of the railroads, the Interstate Commerce commission today announced a tentative valuation of $21,691,000,000.

This figure, based on previous tentative values adjusted to Dec. 31 last, includes all class 1 railroads, their non-operating subsidiaries and switching to terminal companies. It was issued together with figures showing income, expenses and other statistical items that may be of use to persons and organizations expected to participate in the forthcoming hearings on the railroad plea for a 16 per cent freight rate increase.

The net book value of the roads as compiled from annual reports was fixed at $23,518,000,000 without working capital and $24,078,000,000 with working capital included. It also was explained that the net book value contained property in Canada operated by United States railways.

The commission's tentative valuation as of Dec. 31 last, showed the Eastern carriers to be worth $9,318,000,00; Southern $3,798,000,000 and Western $8,615,000,000. The net book valuation without working capital was fixed at $9,565,000,000 for Eastern lines; $3,955,000,000 for Southern roads and $9,998,000,000 for Western roads, with working capital figured in the values were: Eastern $10,370,000,000; Southern $4,158,000,000 and Western $9,550,000,000.

LONDON, July 11. (US)—Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald's bitter irritation at France's blocking the Hoover moratorium by every diplomatic subterfuge and her armament program burst its bonds at the monster "peace rally" today in Albert hall.

Without mentioning names, the prime minister launched into a philippic against the French by saying:

"One great nation, seeking its own security by arms, may not only thwart all others from doing this, but may be able to drag them down and down and down against their own will through the inevitable destruction of another war."

Hardly had the audience of 10,000, plus the overflow in Hyde park, listening in by loud speakers, caught its breath when Mr. MacDonald left no doubt of the object of his wrath by declaring:

"There are still some people who say that disarmament is bad, and those people pose as people of special honor. They seem to arrogate to themselves a greater sense or a greater sensibility as nationalists than those common people like ourselves who are in favor of peace."

Lloyd George Adds Bit

Not to be outdone by the premier's taking a kick at France, David Lloyd George, Liberal leader and war prime minister, followed after Stanley Baldwin, conservative chief, and Premier MacDonald with an even plainer speech, pillorying "countries which kept Germany to her promise but (who) have broken their own."

Mr. MacDonald's outburst was all the more significant because it is now apparent that Foreign Secretary Henderson grievously blundered when, doubtless promoted by a desire to swing France into line concerning the Hoover moratorium, he approached German Ambassador Von Neurath here and suggested that Germany might assist if she suspended her cruiser program and temporarily shelve the Austo-German customs union plan.

This, leaking to three newspapers, produced joy in Paris as indicative of British support for the French demands. Mr. MacDonald's speech may be read as correcting Henderson's blunder and disabusing France regarding Britain's attitude.

Stench Bombs Hurled

The meeting in Albert hall, where almost every time the words "peace" and "disarmament" were mentioned applause stopped the speakers for minutes, was marred by the throwing of objectionable chemical "bombs" by a woman radical who posed as a reporter.

The meeting was attended by Britons of all political shades, and most of the audience marched through the streets of London to the royal auditorium.

The procession, including 34 women in white representing the nations participating in the 1932 disarmament parley at Geneva, started from the Thames embankment at 1 p. m. and wound its way to the hall. Banners proclaimed another war unless the world disarmed.

The United States was represented by Dr. Sherwood Eddy, Y. M. C. A. worker, who was accompanied by a party of 24. The speeches were rebroadcast to the United States.

Field Marshal Sir William Robertson, chairman of the rally, introduced the speakers and also saw his resolution urging the government to do all in its power to bring about real disarmament reduction passed unanimously.

U. S. GOVERNMENT TO BE REPRESENTED AT LEAGUE MEETING

WASHINGTON, July 11. (AP)—The American government has accepted wholeheartedly the formal invitation to attend the League of Nations general disarmament conference at Geneva next February.

The acceptance was dispatched last night to the secretary general of the league by acting Secretary of State Castle upon instructions from President Hoover.

"The American government," the acceptance said, "is happy to accept this invitation and welcomes the opportunity for cooperating with the other nations in a common effort to reduce the menace and to lighten the burden of armaments under which the world is suffering."

President Hoover's attitude toward the disarmament question was reflected in the note. In sponsoring his one-year moratorium on war debt payments, the chief executive noted the importance armament costs played on the world-wide economic situation.

While the problem of the American representation at the Geneva conference has not been settled, former Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg, now justice of the world court, has been mentioned along with Hugh S. Gibson, American Ambassador to Belgium, as members of the delegation.

Cadillac Sales Reveal Big Gain Over Last Year

Cadillac-LaSalle shipments in June totaled 1,409 units, an increase of 39 per cent over the number of cars shipped in the same month last year.

Total shipments for the first half of 1931 amount to 10,981 Cadillacs and LaSalles, which is nine per cent more than the total number of cars shipped in the first half of 1930.

June's figures bring the second quarter of this year to 5,793 which is slightly ahead of the 5,762 cars shipped in the second quarter of 1930, and which is 11 per cent greater than the first quarter of this year, when 5,188 units were shipped.

April was the biggest month, with 2,607 shipments. March was second, with 2,332. Each month this year, with the exception of May, has shown an increase over the corresponding month of last year.

"Our first six months of this year have been eminently successful," said Lawrence P. Fisher, president. "Considering general business conditions, I feel we have set a record in exceeding by nine per cent our business in the first half of 1930.

"We are deeply grateful to the public for making this record possible. When we introduced our new models last fall we felt that, even with the lower prices, we were offering greater quality than ever in our history. The public's acceptance has convinced us that this is true, and that our policy of building four lines of cars—the LaSalle V-8, Cadillac V-8, Cadillac V-12 and Cadillac V-16—should be continued.

"The Cadillac Motor Car company and its dealer organization are in splendid shape to face the next six months. New car stocks are satisfactorily low, production having been keyed absolutely to retail deliveries. Used car stocks are lower than at any time in the last ten years. And our market, covered by four cars, is wider than ever before."

The STORY of SUE by Margery Hale

© 1931 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

"You mean that Jack agrees with you that a woman can't stay interesting after marriage?" Sue asked, as Jean Brady's car sped down the purple road that slipped through the cool, sweet night. "Since when?"

"Oh, always. We got into an argument at the club one night. He emphatically said that no man had a right to marry a girl until he could afford to give her enough money to preserve her charm, or whatever you call the magic quality that captures the male of the species."

"Oh, is that all? That a struggling young man shouldn't ask a girl to sacrifice with him, for if he sees her in gingham maybe he won't love her any more?" Sue laughed, suddenly relieved. "But the girl can get him over that, if she wants to."

"Glamor does help," Jean talked on, slowing down the car now. "If I marry I don't want to see my wife until evening."

"You don't? You havent any vision of pink gingham behind the percolator?"

"Absolutely none! A woman is at her worst in the morning . . ."

"Oh no. Not if she's using her own beauty and not getting by on the stuff the magazines advertise!"

"Anyway, I don't want to see her until dinner when the candles are lighted and the flowers are shining in a bowl on the table, and she's dressed for a party. Parties do things to me. I'm fond of glitter. There was a party the night I asked Barbara to consider me on a marriage basis. The next morning I woke up stunned. But I intended to go through with it. Fortunately I don't have to."

"Why not?" the two words slipped but very lightly. "Did you tell her your views?"

"No. If I had she would have tried to convert me. She's marrying someone else."

"Barbara?" This time the dancing vibrancy of Sue's low voice was very unbelieving.

"Yes, Barbara. She's a good kid, Sue. Better than you realize. Oh, I know she is spoiled. And she has a pretty good impression of herself. But it isn't her fault. Every one had always told her that she was the prettiest doll in the show case. It isn't any wonder that she believes it. But when a boy she used to like, when they were each about 18, suddenly appeared the other day, with a mining contract in his pocket and asked her to go to the Andes with him, she said yes. Sporting of her wasn't it?"

"Very." Sue was thinking while her dark blue eyes swept the night. Barbara had loved wealth. She wanted to sit on a cushion and have the men bowing around her. She couldn't be happy, so it had seemed, without the stag line making a black boundary for her dusky pinks and shining blues.

But she was marrying a man who had nothing but love to give, and going away. She was sacrificing wealth. When love came it did that to a girl. Even a catty girl like Barbara. Yet cynical people argued against it. Women had the harder row to hoe. Maybe women fought one another, but after all they worked together.

"I suppose you are glad that the word obey has disappeared from the marriage ceremony," she said merely to say something.

"It should be left in," Jean answered, but his eyes were laughing. "Shouldn't a man be the head of his own family?"

"Of course." Sue's dark curls fluttered as she nodded her head. "I wouldn't look twice at a man who wasn't. If I wanted my own way I hope I would be clever enough to get it without letting him know I was getting it."

"Smart woman." Jean nodded. "That's the spirit. But you didn't put it across, did you?"

NORMAL CROP OF COTTON NUECES COUNTY PROSPECT

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas, July 11. (AP)—Despite an infestation of flea hoppers, which damaged 25 per cent of the cotton crop in Nueces county, growers anticipate a normal crop.

Expectations of a banner crop vanished with discovery that the cotton pest was inflicting heavy damage in the county. Weevil damage was also prominent in fields adjacent to brush lands.

Estimates point to a crop of about 120,000 bales. Growers claim Nueces county is the most productive cotton county in the world.

Consider Seriously The Refineries of Wichita Falls

The gasoline and other petroleum products manufactured by them are generally accepted as equal or superior to those manufactured by other concerns and are available at convenient stations for the same price.

They are one of our largest sources of labor provision, employing hundreds of Wichita Falls citizens, most of them property owners and tax payers. The refineries pay thousands upon thousands of dollars into our city, county and state tax funds each year. They employ transportation from our railroads, trucking interests and pipe lines.

They have always contributed their time and money, whole heartedly to every civic interest and building project.

In other words, the refineries of Wichita Falls...your refineries...are a great part of Wichita Falls' business and commercial foundation.

You should consider seriously: If the refineries of Wichita Falls should be forced to discontinue operation from lack of local support...your support ...just how would your job or business be affected? Who would buy the local producers' oil? What would become of the jobs of scores of pipe line employees?

Several hundred employees would be jobless by the discontinued operation of these refineries, and these several hundred employees constitute a large portion of our local buying power.

Common-Sense and Sixteen-Year-Old Daughters

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

MRS. NORRIS

Their daughter, Julie, is 16 and pretty.

They live in a suburban town whose nicest girls are sent away to school, and consequently Julie has to run with the "other crowd," or stay at home.

Julie is a junior in "high," and the boys are beginning to like her. Her father and mother, who have always felt themselves quite equal to the problem of raising Julie, suddenly find themselves completely at sea.

The other night there was a baseball game in a city 60 miles away, and a dance after the game, at a hotel. Julie and two boys proposed to go to this city, take rooms at the hotel, pick up another girl en route, and return the next day. There would be others they knew on the trip, there would be chapperons at the dance, and she and Harriet could perfectly well take care of themselves.

She went; they couldn't refuse her. She had a marvelous time, and got home hours earlier than she was expected; got home at 7 o'clock in the morning on the day after the dance, because the other girl had to come back; exhausted, white, but radiant. Julie got home safe; but not two miles away that same night two boys and two girls went over the edge of the Skyline highway, in a roadster, and one boy was burned to death, and one girl got a sliver of glass in her beautiful right eye. She will wear a leather pad there, for life.

Julie's parents are quite right to worry. Even when all the youngsters are cold sober, it is dangerous. Sleepy boys are not good drivers, and the roads are full of other drivers who are not sober. The judgment of youngsters, in any crisis, is not usually wise judgment.

But it takes super-human courage, when a lovely young thing of 16, tasting her first ecstasy of popularity and of life, flutters rapturously up to mother and dad, begging hard for her fun — it takes more courage than most of us possess to say "no."

"You can't always say 'no'," said a father sadly, a year ago, standing in the morgue, looking down at the tumbled, dusty, crushed body that had been his laughing, loving daughter a few hours before. The rouge was still thick on her little mouth, the scent of gin lingered where the breath was gone, and in the crushed hand was the cigaret she had been smoking when the crash came.

We don't want to hold our girls down to the fireside until 18 and its confidence and beauty are crushed into decorous, spectacled 35, interested in hospital work and wool embroidery. We know that the girls are only speaking the truth when they plead that if they once lose touch with the crowd they never will get in again; that if they are afraid of cigarets and cocktails and petting they won't be invited to the really good times—

In the late teens and the early twenties all women are sick with fear that somehow they won't get into life. It affects all classes. I have read this fear between the lines in the autobiographies of royal princesses, I have heard it from the daughters of the world's richest men, from little movie stars, from hard-working little clerks in the five-and-ten, from all kinds and types. At 16 all girls are afraid that they are going, in the eloquent phrase of the day, "to miss something." They want it all, men taking them to football games and movies, men kissing them, dancing, motoring, invitations, flowers. If it comes their way they seize it feverishly; it seems to promise them a wider choice of happiness, wider experiences and friendships.

Now, as a matter of fact, if a girl has a home, frocks, hospitable parents who like her to bring her friends in for Sunday suppers, and if she may go to nearby parties, and nearby dances, she ought to be satisfied, at least until her twentieth year. That ought to be enough. These are years when both girls and boys are still busy with lessons, and when neither sex can spare all the wasted energy, time and sleep that the modern idea of a really good time involves.

It is really weak of us, as parents who are perfectly willing to permit, finance and encourage the normal good times, to be carried away by the children's own excitement into permitting the dangerous ones. A dance three miles away, or four miles away, is just that much safer physically than a dance that means 40 miles at night on public highways.

A dance in some other girl's home is just that much safer, in every way — for protection, for quietness, for general niceness— than a dance at a road house or night club.

A party with girls and boys that she knows well, with one of the older boys frankly asked to see that she gets safely home, not later than 1 o'clock, is a safer party than these modern affairs at which the groups all split up at midnight to go different places, buy more bootleg liquor, dance for several hours after the original event has ended.

But granted that we are weak because we love them, and that under ordinary circumstances a girl of 16 may go safely to a dance many miles away, when many of the dancers and the chaperons are her friends—even then, aren't there simpler, wiser, cheaper, nicer ways of amusing our children?

After all, not one young person at the particular college dance I mention was spending his own money. In every case it was our own shocked and loudly-lamenting generation that was supplying the gowns, the evening suits, the cars and the gas, the bootleg liquor, the tips, the rent and the cover charges.

To Julie's mother and father, and to all the other thousands of troubled mothers and fathers my advice would be: Use common sense, and tell your daughter that you intend to use it.

Whether I am going to have character and courage enough to do it myself, in a few years, I don't know. But I am going to try. I hope to say something like this, and to keep repeating it until it impresses the girls, or they get married.

"When you were 2 years old, we guided you wisely toward health and happiness," I hope to say. "When you were 5 we began to think of schools, dentists, friends, teachers, parties, picnics, for your benefit. And as the years went on we not only didn't spare money, tears, prayers, advice, love, for your good, but we tried to make you want what was best, yourself.

"Now you may dance, you may drive, you may go to ball games, to club dinners, you may have your friends here. But when it comes to some party that we think simple madness, some frantic trip of 60 or 70 miles in the dead of night, to a place we don't know, with boys we don't know, and with boys that we either know or suspect are sometimes influenced by having had something to drink —then you may not go.

"And you must make up your mind, now, that you will want to, and that those special disappointments are ahead of you. You are not going to rush down to Los Angeles in some boy's roadster, in all the crowding and recklessness of big game week, you are not going to go off with persons we don't know, no matter how adorable you are, coaxing, or how pouty when you are refused.

"And if you cannot draw a desirable crowd about you, here in your own home, and in a few years select a husband from the young men we know, then you can be a nice old maid, raising dahlias and adopting a dear little orphan. Or you can elope with the ice man.

"Either way, you won't he as unhappy, as aimless, as spoiled and vague and generally demoralized as are the girls who were flapping and jazzing madly a few years ago, and who are dissatisfied young wives now, wondering why the taste has gone out of everything, and life is so flat."

And if Julie's father and mother nod their heads over this, and say, "Ah, we'll read this to her!" let me remind them that to make a happy background for a young girl involves mother and dad, too. It means less bridge, less golf, less beauty parlor, perhaps, it means a little time spent in cultivating Julie's friends, attracting them to the house, making them feel that there are other things than night clubs and the back seats of motor cars.

Coventry Patmore preached a little sermon to all us mothers and fathers who he wrote:

"Ah, lonely woman, you who may
On your sweet self set such a price,
Knowing man cannot choose but pay,
How have you cheapened Paradise!"

In every case it was our own shocked and loudly-lamenting generation that was supplying the gowns, the evening suits, the cars and the gas, the bootleg liquor, the tips and the cover charge.

Mrs. Norris Says:

It takes super-human courage, when a lovely young thing of 16, tasting her first ecstasy of popularity and of life, flutters rapturously up to mother and dad, begging hard for her fun — it takes more courage than most of us possess to say "no."

We don't want to hold our girls down to the fireside until 18 and its confidence and beauty are crushed into decorous, spectacled 35, interested in hospital work and wool embroidery. We know that the girls are only speaking the truth when they plead that if they once lose touch with the crowd they never will get in again; that if they are afraid of cigarets and cocktails and petting they won't be invited to the really good times—

In the late teens and the early twenties all women are sick with fear that somehow they won't get into life. At 16 all girls are afraid that they are going, in the eloquent phrase of the day, "to miss something." They want it all, men taking them to football games and movies, men kissing them, dancing, motoring, invitations, flowers. If it comes their way they seize it feverishly; it seems to promise them a wider choice of happiness, wider experiences and friendships.

As a matter of fact, if a girl has a home, frocks, hospitable parents who like her to bring her friends in for Sunday suppers, and if she may go to nearby parties, and nearby dances, she ought to be satisfied, at least until her twentieth year. These are years when both girls and boys are still busy with lessons, and when neither sex can spare all the wasted energy, time and sleep that the modern idea of a really good time involves.

It is really weak of us, as parents who are perfectly willing to permit, finance and encourage the normal good times, to be carried away to the children's own excitement into permitting the dangerous ones. A dance three miles away, or four miles away, is just that much safer physically than a dance that means 40 miles at night on public highways.

Granted that we are weak, because we love them, and that under ordinary circumstances a girl of 16 may go safely to a dance many miles away, when many of the dancers and the chaperons are her friends—even then, aren't there simpler, wiser, cheaper, nicer ways of amusing our children?

To the thousands of troubled mothers and fathers my advice would be: Use common sense, and tell your daughter that you intend to use it.

Boswell Papers To Be Discussed Across Atlantic

Columbia's international broadcast on Sunday, July 12, will be devoted to "The Romance of the Boswell Papers," Col. Ralph Isham speaking from London at 10:30 a. m., central standard time, over WABC and a nationwide network.

Colonel Isham was born in New York, son of the financier, Henry Heyward Isham, and has spent most of his life big game hunting and book collecting. The former activity has taken him to Mexico, the Malay peninsula and other parts of the Far East, while as a bibliophile he is well known in the book centers of New York, London and Paris.

In 1927 he purchased the James Boswell collection of manuscripts, which formed the basis of his immortal biography of Samuel Johnson, from Lord Talbot de Malahide, and has since published a book on the subject under the title of "Private Papers of James Boswell."

'COUNTESS MARITZA' TO BE REVIVED ON RADIO

Musical gems from the operetta, "Countess Maritza," will comprise the dramatic and melodic presentation to be broadcast as a feature of Star Reveries over the Columbia network, Sunday, July 12, at 8:45 p. m., central standard time, with Helen Gilligan, soprano, and Milton Watson, tenor, in the leading roles. An orchestra and vocal ensemble under direction of Mark Warnow will assist the soloists.

Another highlight of this program will be the singing of "To Know You Is to Love You" from the musical comedy, "Hold Everything," by the duo. This is the show in which Miss Gilligan sang the prima donna part during its run on Broadway several years ago.

Saxophone Quartet

For perhaps the first time in the history of modern music, the overture to Mozart's "Mariage de Figaro" will be played by a saxophone quartet, with no concert accompaniment, during the program offered by Tony Parenti and his singing saxophones to be broadcast over the WABC-Columbia network on Sunday, July 12, from 6:30 to 6:45 p. m., central standard time.

LONDON PROGRAM FEATURES WELLS ON WORLD TOPICS

An impression of "Russia in the Melting Pot" will be given from 2:20 to 2:50 p. m., central standard time, Monday, July 13, over the WABC-Columbia network, in a broadcast from London by H. G. Wells, foremost living writer on the past, present and future history of the world.

Conspicuous in all Wells' writings is his speculation as to the nature of the world in which coming generations will live, and he has studied various sociological systems known to history as well as those suggested by present-day reformers, with a view to forecasting, what lines progress will take. One aspect of his findings was presented to American listeners last November, when he talked over Columbia on "The World of Our Grandchildren," and his political opinions are likely to be equally challenging. Some years ago he was a candidate for parliament, standing as a Socialist for the University of London constituency.

In 1920, after a personal tour of the Soviet Union, Wells published "Russia in the Shadows," and he has kept in close touch with developments in that country ever since.

Hambletonian Stake

The running of the Hambletonian stake for $60,000, the richest stake of any horse-and-sulky race in the world, will be broadcast by Ted Husing over WABC and the Columbia network on Wednesday, Aug. 12, at three distinct periods, from 11:45 to 12:15, from 12:45 to 1:00 and from 1:45 to 2:00 p. m., central standard time. The first two broadcasts will follow the preliminary heats while the last will cover the final race.

Camp Concert

A program for nature lovers, built around "The Hours of the Day" and forming the third of the series of Columbia camp concerts, a summer extension of The American School of the Air, will be presented Wednesday, July 15, at 2:30 p. m., central standard time, over the Columbia system.

'PATHETIC' SYMPHONY WILL BE RENDERED BY COLUMBIA ORCHESTRA

The last of Tschaikovsky's six symphonies, known the world over as the "Pathetic," will be the featured item in the symphonic hour, scheduled for 1 to 2 p. m., central standard time, over the WABC-Columbia network, Sunday, July 12.

Deriving its name from the circumstances surrounding its composition and performance, as well as from the somber character of its last movement, the symphony was Tschaikovsky's last completed work, being given its premiere under his own baton only six weeks before his death in 1893. Like most of his orchestral writings, it contains striking contrasts in mood, passing from hilarity to despair and from wildness to suavity, though with an almost continuous thread of melancholy running through it. The last movement, adagio lamentoso, sums up much of the composer's philosophy of life, particularly after the disappointments of his last few years.

In sharply contrasting style are the two remaining numbers on the program, the "Merry Wives of Windsor" overture by Nicolai, and Debussy's "Petite Suite."

Cooperative Market Workers and First District Club Women Look Toward Conference at Lubbock

At a meeting of 16 representatives from the Woman's Forum and from the Wichita County Federation representatives Friday morning in the basement of the courthouse, it was planned that until other arrangements have been announced, the cooperative market that has heretofore been held at Bailey-Moline hardware store each Saturday will be held on Wednesday at the same place. Fresh corn, melons, poultry, jellies, marmalades and preserves with vegetables in season will be on the counters regularly and women may give orders Wednesday for goods that will be delivered Saturday.

The first district, Texas Federation of Women's clubs, through the marvelous work done by rural women in the district and the splendid reports gathered by Mrs. Frank Patton, chairman of home extension in the first district, won the silver cup given at Houston to the district with the best report. Mrs. Patton reports at this time that strong efforts must be made if the cup is kept in the district. Rural women are either not canning and doing so much extension work or are late in reporting it and she urges that all reports be sent in. Benjamin won in the county demonstration living room contest in that demonstration district. The state federation will meet the second Tuesday in November and Mrs. Patton expects many reports before that time. The cup won for a third time becomes a permanent trophy.

State Federation

The year 1931 will be an interesting one in state federation circles. The election of a president always makes an exciting conference and women well known in club work have been announced as candidates for the office.

Mrs. R. Q. Lee of Cisco, who has been state federation treasurer, state parliamentarian and on the general federation board is one candidate. Mrs. J. W. Fincher of Houston, president at this time of the fourth district, T. F. W. C. and who has served in several state offices, is the other. Both are splendid women, typical of the best in club life and their candidacy for presidency at Lubbock will bring a large attendance to that meeting.

Eligible Yearbooks

Clubs of the first district are endeavoring this year to be better represented among the prize winners at the state federation. There are specific rules to be followed in covers and programs. Each yearbook must be five and one-quarter inches wide and seven and one-quarter inches long. The cover page must contain first the name of the club; second the name of the town; third the name of the district; fourth the club study, and fifth, the date.

To be eligible, each club must observe a program on Texas day, Federation day and one parliamentary program. Books must be sent to Mrs. Morgan Jones, Abilene, Texas before the first of November.

Camp Fire Girls Will Combine Rally With Swimming Meet

Camp Fire Girls will combine camp rally with a swimming meet at Westmoreland on Tuesday evening. The swimming events will begin at 6:30 o'clock and will include distance swims using different strokes as well as stunt contests.

A picnic lunch for all parents and friends will be spread after the swim. An outdoor program of songs, stunts concerning camp life, and introduction of the camp staff will close the evening's program.

The annual summer camp will be held July 19 to 25 at Craterville, Okla., at the Boy Scout camp where it has been held almost every year in the history of Wichita Falls Camp Fire. A report from the Oklahoma state board of health has just been received by the local executive, giving a satisfactory report of the water from the swimming pool and drinking water for the camp. The committee made a thorough inspection of the entire camp and declared it in fine condition. Showers have been installed at the camp this year for the first time.

The camp staff will include Mary McIlheran, local executive, as director; Mrs. Frank W. Michaux, nature lore; Thelma Bridges, camp craft; Charlotte Kennedy, hand craft, and Louise Taylor of Sherman, for swimming. All of the counselors are torch bearers in Camp Fire and seasoned campers. The director, Mrs. Michaux, and Miss Taylor have had one or more seasons at the national training courses, and all have taught their respective crafts in summer camps before. Miss Taylor is a Red Cross examiner, and will give daily instruction to all the campers. A number of guardians and older girls will be in camp to help serve as tent counselors.

A regular schedule will include a variety of activities in hiking, camp cooking, overnights, hand craft, swimming and a deeper appreciation of nature. Vesper service at 7:30 and the evening program around the camp fire will be varied each day. Plenty of fresh milk, good food, well cooked, and plenty of hours for rest and sleep will insure happy, healthful campers. A camp nurse will be on duty during the week.

Health cards will be issued to each girl when she registers at the local headquarters this week, between hours of 10 and 12 and 3 to 5. The cards are to be taken to Dr. Wallace Masters who will give each girl a free medical examination. These cards are used for reference while girls are in camp.

Edwin A. Bebb, chairman of the camp committee, is arranging for transportation to take the girls to camp, leaving the auditorium at 2 o'clock on Sunday, July 19. Other members of the camp committee are Dr. Masters and J. W. Culbertson.

"From all indications, it looks as if we shall have a good registration for camp," Miss McIlheran said.

Summer Sports and Interesting Wedding Announcements Intrigue Attention of Capital Society

By GEORGINA WASHINGTON
Universal Service

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Informal days of summer after the strenuous official season of formal entertaining hold a distinct charm of their own.

Those of the capital's social set who have chosen to remain in Washington during the summer months drift leisurely to nearby country clubs there to enjoy golf, swimming and the informality of summer dinner dances. With the Chesapeake bay so accessible, yachting parties are favored over the weekends.

There have been innumerable weddings this summer. Of particular interest and a complete surprise to capital society was the marriage of Mrs. Karl Danzer Klemm to Charles Mason Demey, architect, author and lecturer, which took place in Paris yesterday.

Mrs. Klemm went abroad last Easter, entering into a round of social activities in Paris which were climaxed with her becoming hostess of the United States exhibit at the French Colonial exposition now taking place in the French capital. Mrs. Klemm is the widow of Brigadier General Klemm, U. S. A., and the daughter of the late Joseph J. Heim of Kansas City, Mo.

The news of the engagement of Grace Moore, Metropolitan opera soprano and movie star, to Valentine Parara has been received by the capital's social set with marked interest although Miss Moore is not a resident of Washington she frequently visits the capital and has many friends here. Miss Moore is now in France and, according to dispatches, is to be married at Cannes, July 15.

Summer is the time of many departures particularly among the diplomatic set. The staff of the British embassy has been decreased one-half of its usual size.

Lady Lindsay has established herself at Bar Harbor and Sir Ronald, the ambassador, is making plans for a trip to England. He had expected to sail this week but affairs of state have compelled him to postpone the trip until the end of the month.

The retiring counselor of the embassy, Ronald Campbell, has sailed for England and will proceed to his new post in Cairo.

The secretary of the Rumanian legation, Madame Popovici, will sail July 23, for a vacation in her home country. She will spend some time in France before she returns to the capital in October.

With the advent of summer one sees a veritable riot of color in feminine attire. When members of the younger set step into their high powered boats and speed down the Potomac they are truly dressed for the occasion. Bright colored suede jackets with matching berets worn with white flannel skirts are favored.

THE ANTI-LYNCHING MEASURE

The death of Congressman George Scott Graham of New York may result, indirectly, in bringing to a head the move for a federal anti-lynching law. Congressman Dyer of St. Louis, author of the anti-lynching bill, is now the ranking Republican member of the house judiciary committee, so that if the Republicans control the next house, he will be in position to urge action on his bill. Southern members of congress are viewing the possibility with some concern.

Meanwhile, figures compiled by Tuskegee institute show that there were relatively few lynchings in the first six months of 1931. Only five were reported. In the same period, peace officers gave effective protection to 30 persons threatened by mob violence, and in some instances had to offer physical resistance to would-be lynchers.

We may be very sure that if 1930's ugly record of mob violence is repeated, the demand for federal anti-lynching legislation will become so strong that it will be difficult for congress to resist it. The South's duty is to show its ability to curb mob violence, to demonstrate to the country that there is no need of federal legislation on the subject.

SHORTENING

The question of what to use to shorten biscuits and what to spread on the biscuits when they are baked is rapidly developing aspects other than the culinary and gastronomic ones.

We used to use lard for shortening and butter for the baked product. A good many things have happened to the lard and butter business since then. It was discovered that shortening made principally of cottonseed oil made an admirable substitute for lard, in cooking. It was also found that an imitation butter, made of beef fat, cocoanut oil or some other substance other than cream, could be sold cheaper than genuine butter.

Lard substitutes provided a new outlet for the South's cottonseed, but they curtailed the demand for hogs, and thus hurt the state that raise pork but not cotton. Butter substitutes hurt the dairying industry, but they have been of benefit to the raisers of beef cattle and to the producers of the various vegetable oils that can be used.

An effort was made at the last session of the Texas legislature to impose a tax on oleomargarine and other butter substitutes. It was supported by the dairymen, but was defeated. Other dairying states impose this form of protective tariff, and still others are agitating the question. The fact that some butter substitutes are made of imported oils has helped to develop sentiment for such taxes.

South Dakota, a state in which many hogs are raised, voted a stiff tax on vegetable substitutes for lard. Makers of such substitutes are now attacking this tax in the courts. If it is upheld, the south's cottonseed oil will be of less value, but South Dakota will have a potentially larger market for its hogs. Not only that, but other states with large production of hogs are likely to follow suit. Hog raising states and cotton raising states alike want a tariff on cocoanut and other foreign oils that will keep them from competing with native products.

General Hancock was more accurate than anyone would admit at the time, when he said the tariff was a local issue.

A KILLING EACH WEEK-DAY

There were 164 homicides in Texas during the first six months of 1931, according to recently compiled figures. That figures six per week, with a few left over for Sundays; an average of 27 per month.

The number is probably greater, in proportion to population, than Texas knew in frontier days when, at times, there was no law save that of the six-shooter. A state that records one homicide each week-day has far too low a conception of the value of human life.

If we were to card-index the 164 homicide cases that were recorded in the 6-month period, and keep track of the disposition of each, we would find the reason why human life is held so cheaply in Texas. Such a record would probably reveal, a year hence, that one or two of the slayers face the death penalty, or life terms in prison; a number will be under sentence for lesser terms. Some—too many—will have been tried and acquitted. Of those convicted, many will be out on bond, awaiting higher court action on the technicalities raised by their lawyers. Quite a few will not even have been tried, the law's delays being successfully invoked in their behalf.

The record of the disposition of these 164 cases, a year hence, will contain convincing explanation of why this state has one killing each week-day.

$10, GROSS, PER ACRE

The federal census report on Texas cotton production by counties, for the year 1929, shows a total of 3,739,392 bales from 16,813,568 acres. That is, one bale to four and a half acres, on an average. The figures are those for an average year. For 1930, the number of acres required to produce one 500-pound bale was probably greater.

It required no very profound knowledge of arithmetic to see that, even with cotton bringing a normal price, there is no profit to the farmer when his field yields less than a fourth of a bale per acre. This year, with the price of cotton abnormally low, the unprofitableness of cotton will be emphasized in a painful way.

At current prices, a bale of cotton and the seed will bring about $45. That means a gross return at one bale to 4.5 acres, of $10 per acre. Out of the $10 come the cost of land preparation, seed, cultivation, chopping, picking and ginning—with the landlord to be paid. The processes of arithmetic must be revised before a profit can be shown. It would be easier to revise the agricultural program and the agricultural methods.

HE LIVED ABUNDANTLY

John Brisben Walker, who died recently in New York City, crowded many and diverse activities into his 84 years. A graduate of West Point, his principal military service was in the Chinese army. Later he was an iron manufacturer, newspaper man, editor of the Cosmopolitan magazine, farmer and land developer, automobile manufacturer, originator of a new system of grading highways, and peace advocate. Although none of his activities brought him much fame, his must have been an abundant life in the happiest sense.

This section came to know him by reason of the road-building plan which he advocated. This plan involved a special method of grading by which he claimed that the native materials could be constructed into smooth and durable roads at little cost. The flaw in his method, so far as West Texas was concerned, was that it didn't take into account the high winds. These stripped his specimen roads of their surfacing and prevented the general adoption of his plan.

His 84 years were crowded with action and if there is happiness in keeping busy, his was a happy career.

The Cry for Security

By GLENN FRANK
President of University of Wisconsin and Former Editor of the Century Magazine
(Copyright McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

Over the generations, much has been made of the social discontent that is created by striking contrasts of income.

Beginning with the parade of Dives and Lazarus down to the cartoons of the radical press in revolutionary Europe, we have been treated to vivid representations of extreme poverty existing side by side with extreme wealth.

These vivid contrasts between riches and poverty, between the plutocrat and the proletarian, between the robed and the ragged, have given rise, in turn, to two moods upon the part of the less fortunate.

The mood of resignation.

The mood of revolt.

It may be that these vivid contrasts will always exist and will, to the end of time, produce these two moods.

But I suggest that we are now in a period in the economic evolution of the modern world when the thing that is likely to produce the greatest social discontent is not the vivid contrast of economic income but the vivid contrasts of economic security.

It may not be the highest compliment to man, but the fact would seem to be that men hunger for security even more than they hunger for freedom.

Freedom is a challenging thing.

Security is a comforting thing.

When man has complete security he hungers for risks, and if his normal life does not provide risks he will look for them in jungle hunting or in north pole exploration.

But when man has haunting insecurity his greatest hunger is for security, and this hunger will color and control his political and social reactions at every turn.

This is why the biggest problem today confronting political and economic leadership is the finding of ways and means to establish economic security for the millions.

The American system of free capitalism and political liberty need not, as I have said so many times, have any fear of communism making any inroads on American life if this American system can but bring to the working millions a decent security.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites!—St. Luke 11:44.

July Duststorms

For my native land I have profound affection,
My love for it I would not e'er restrain,
But when said land is blowing in every direction,
My affection begins to wane.

In other words, when we love a country, we want it to remain fairly stationary.

Now that the terrapin racing season is on, we want some racing enthusiast to label one specimen "Farm Relief" and another one, "New Postoffice Building," and let them compete.

Proud

Through the valley we took a ride,
We saw it from start to finish;
And the thing that caused us greatest pride
Was—not a bit of spinach.

Ambition

The other day we encountered an old acquaintance who told us about a certain youthful ambition of his. He had aspired to be a magician. He studied and practiced the magic arts at considerable length and acquired no mean skill, which has not yet departed from him. But he long since abandoned the ambition that he entertained in youth. Life has a way of thwarting us like that. Perhaps, as a professional performer of magic stunts, this man would have been happy and respected. Instead, he is a member of congress.

We know how he must feel. For we can recall ambitions that we had, earlier in life, and it is disheartening to think of them and realize how far short we have fallen of attaining them.

One of the first ambitions that seized us was to be able to spit through our teeth. The story of that desire is the story of many other ambitions that youth cherishes, but lacks the industry and resolution to achieve. We know that if we had applied ourself, if we had approached the task with energy and earnestness, we would, in time, have been able to expectorate in the talented manner aforementioned. Our trouble was, we lacked stability of purpose. We never really buckled down in the determined, persistent way the undertaking demanded. And so, today, many years after we first held that ambition, it still is unfulfilled. We have not entirely abandoned it; we may yet take it up, in a serious way.

Prestige

Another youthful ambition is still unrealized. When we first began patronizing barber shops, we noticed a cabinet full of shaving mugs, each inscribed with the name of some prominent citizen. In theory, each of these special mugs was used to mix the lather for its owner's face, and his alone. In practice, the barber usually lathered everybody out of the common cup. But there was dignity, prestige and the hint of eminence, in having one's own mug with one's own name emblazoned thereon. It somehow set a man apart from the herd.

Fate tricked us ere that ambition could be attained. The individual shaving mug vanished into oblivion, along with the tabbed dress shirt, steak for breakfast, the what-not, the hitching post, the Populist party, the Congress gaiter, personal liberty and the gold toothpick. We might have attained the distinction that the individual mug connoted. Who knows?

We had an ambition to own a coaster brake bicycle and that was supplanted by a heart-searing ambition to own a sidebar buckboard and a horse of the proper speed and style to go with it. Neither of these was ever realized. But the disappointment they involved was as nothing compared with that of never acquiring a pair of dog's head cuff links.

There are those among our readers who understand the audacity and the sublimity of that desire. Time was when gold cuff buttons, shaped like a dog's head with tiny rubies for the eyes, placed the stamp of success upon a man as nothing else could. It was presumptuous of us, as a lad, to even think of such things. There is nothing, now-a-days, that is analagous to it, as a mark of One Who Has Arrived. It was somewhat comparable to having a liveried chauffeur in these times.

We look back upon that ambition of ours with a poignancy that is akin to pain.

When Fate Intervened

For some reason that we cannot now recall—and perhaps it is just as well that we can't—we harbored for many years an ambition to play the ukulele. Just why a normal, healthy and fairly intelligent youth should have entertained a desire so base and unworthy is a question we make no attempt to answer. But the shameful truth is that we did have that ambition, and even took some steps toward achieving it. But again it was Fate that intervened. She caused us to fall and break an arm, which, of course, interrupted our practice. By the time the arm had healed, our better nature had triumphed, and we put ukulele-playing definitely and forever out of our life.

Today, whenever we encounter a confirmed ukulele player and are enabled to realize the depths to which the practice drags its unfortunate addicts, we breathe a grateful sigh for the accident that saved us.

We still have some ambitions, though some of them are showing signs of becoming shelf-worn. One of them is to own a heavy truck loaded with casing and to have somebody double-park right behind it so we could back out with happy results. Another is to to retain the too-few teeth of ours that have survived the forceps. Another is to raise, from among our four sons, at least one triple-threat halfback.

One of our long-cherished ambitions that seems to be getting no nearer realization is to be so affluent that we can afford to put on a brand new pair of socks every day. Somehow, that is our notion of true self-indulgent luxury.

One thing about ambitions is that you don't have to cling blindly to them. They are subject to discard. For example, we have known lots of men who once thought they would like to have some oil production.

What this country needs just now is more profits and fewer prophets.

A Successful Life

One who wishes to obtain the keenest enjoyment of life must be well read and thoroughly conversant with all of the affairs of the day. The mind must be constantly alert, but if we wish to obtain the fullest and best expression of our mental faculties, we must possess strong, healthy bodies, for the mind, no matter how well developed, can only express itself through this physical organism.

Most people do not develop their most splendid capabilities. They just "grow up" like Topsy did. They become short or tall, fat or thin, and develop billiousness, anemia, high blood pressure, gout and, in fact, everything from falling hair to fallen arches. One who is in perfect health develops health faculties.

You would not think of driving your automobile with a dirty windshield through which you could hardly see. Then do not be satisfied with traveling about through life with your senses dulled and clouded by toxins in your body.

When one is in health the palate senses the delicate flavors of delicious foods, while one who is sick will probably be nauseated. All who are healthy are therefore rich because they are able to bring the problems of life to a successful conclusion. They lead happier lives, and in this way they benefit the world because happiness is contagious as well as disease.

In order to explain to you in a very definite way just what I consider a good regimen for a successful life, I am going to give you some instructions which if carefully observed and followed will undoubtedly be helpful.

Upon arising in the morning, it is a good plan to take about ten minutes' time to perform some vigorous calisthenics. Do these exercises before an open window, and then take a cold shower bath after you have become thoroughly warmed with the exercises.

Your breakfast should consist of one or two eggs prepared in any manner except by frying, two or three pieces of Melba toast which is prepared by cutting white bread one-fourth of an inch thick and toasting in the oven until it is a golden brown all the way through. This toast should not be buttered until it is eaten. In addition, you may choose one of the following stewed fruits: Prunes, pears, apricots, figs, raisins, peaches or ripe figs. Use only the pure sun-dried, unsulphured fruits. An average of five prunes or an equal quantity of the other foods is sufficient to obtain the greatest value. These fruits must be prepared and served without cream or sugar, except the ripe figs on which you may have a little cream but no sugar.

After eating, it is better to spend a few minutes in relaxation or reading some light literature such as the morning paper. If possible, it is better to have regular hours of work, and one should not be afraid to overwork within definite limited hours.

For luncheon, one may use one or more of the succulent non-starchy vegetables that are so prevalent on the market at the present season. The best of these are celery, asparagus, spinach, small carrots, small turnips, pumpkin, lettuce, okra, chayotes, oyster plant, kale or zucchini. These vegetables should be cooked in plain water and seasoned only with butter and a little salt after being cooked and when ready to serve. One may also have a choice of any of these vegetables as a raw salad. Ripe olives and alligator pears, or avocados, make good additions. I do not advise the use of sour salad dressings, since they cause gas with most people. One may, however, use a small amount of olive oil if desired.

It is better to do your exercises before eating and relax after eating. Work as hard as you wish during the afternoon, but make it a rule to stop at a definite hour if it is possible.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Snake Bite

Question—S. R. H. asks: "Will you kindly give the proper emergency treatment for cotton-mouth, copperhead and rattlesnake bites?"

Answer—The first important thing to do after one has been bitten is to apply a tourniquet above the wound and make the wound bleed as much as possible by sucking the blood out, or by cutting it with a sharp knife in order to make the blood flow more freely. After this has been done, loosen the tourniquet slightly and place the patient in a tub of hot water for an hour or two. The water should be kept at a temperature of about 110 degrees Fahrenheit. This will produce elimination through the pores and also keep the blood flowing more rapidly and thus counteract the effect of the depressing venom. If these precautions are taken there is very little danger of the patient dying.

Home Canning

Question—Mrs. K. L. M. writes—"We have a large vegetable garden in which we are 'growing our own' this summer, and as there will be quite a surplus of the non-starches, as recommended in all your weekly menus, I would like to know which method of canning you advocate."

Answer—The best method of home canning is the "cold pack." After proper preparation the vegetables are packed cold in the containers (some are only slightly cooked beforehand), covered with boiling water, semi-sealed and processed or cooked for a sufficient period to insure sterilization. I would suggest that you write to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., and ask for Farmer's Bulletin No. 1471, entitled "Canning Fruits and Vegetables at Home." This book gives very complete instructions, including time tables.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

EMPLOYMENT OF OUTSIDE MAN NOT NECESSARY

Editor The Times: Your editorial of July 8, wherein you say that the city-manager form of government contemplates the employment of an "outside" man as city manager, prompts this letter.

Did it ever occur to you that the "outside man idea" was started by the city managers themselves as propaganda to serve their own interests. This idea has been drilled into the minds of city officials; city councilmen who know little of municipal government actually believe it is essential to success. Would you say that the head of your successful institution, with trained men at the head of each city department, could not successfully manage this city? Would you say that he is so narrow-minded that he would be influenced by petty politics and political factions to the extent that he would sacrifice his chance of success and dare face a critical city council and be condemned by public opinion? I don't think so. It is a reflection on the ability and honesty of our citizenship to even suggest it.

The responsibility of hiring a city manager was entirely upon the city council. It is to be assumed that it acted in accordance with its best interest of the city that an outside man be secured. There is every reason to believe that he is capable and will make this city a good city manager. There is no reason that he should not, neither is there any reason, with trained and tried men in each department, why Mr. McBroom, or many other local men, could not do the same thing. Let us hope that the "outside" man will be as much interested in reducing our public utility rates as a local man, who lives here, pays taxes, and is interested in the continual growth of the city long after the office is vacated. We might remind the council, however, of its pledges and that of its friends who acted as shock absorbers during the last campaign, that the gas rates are unchanged and that winter is not far off.

I compliment the council on its early decision, but regret that it did not show the local men the courtesy of informing them that they would not be considered. A few might have been saved the "embarrassment by the publicity given their applications."

The new city manager is my city manager and I wish for him success in his managerial duties and pledge him my cooperation. Yours very truly.

BANQUET HERE FOR FAIRTRACE

three years as city manager of Wichita Falls; how under his management and overdraft in the city finances had been turned into a cash balance, how the city departments had been organized, budgets balanced and the affairs of the city economically and efficiently administered.

Problems Remain

He said, however, that Mr. Fairtrace was leaving many problems yet to be solved. He told how only during the day he had seen a little home foreclosed for a mortgage of $1,700 upon which there were unpaid taxes for three years in excess of $500. He said that the equitable distribution of the tax burden was yet to be solved and that it would not be solved so long as real estate and the utilities paid 80 per cent of the taxes while many kinds of personal property escaped taxes altogether. He cited the water problem and utility rates, declaring they could not be dodged and that the people were demanding and would receive some adjustment.

Mr. Fairtrace responded briefly, saying that it was with regret that he was leaving Wichita Falls. He thanked the citizens for their support, saying that they had always rallied to the support of the administration. He said he asked indulgence in one hope: "I want those Cats to whip your Spudders once in a while."

C. C. McDonald, in introducing Mr. Smitham, who spoke a few words, also paid tribute to Mr. Fairtrace, saying the highest mark of honor he could pay him was to state the fact that his most violent critic could have nothing to say in criticism of his probity of character and integrity in business.

Mayor Walter Nelson Jr. presided as toastmaster and members of the city council sat at the speakers table with the guests of honor.

Preceding the speakers, vocal numbers were given by Miss Mary Virginia Barron, accompanied on the piano by Miss Elizabeth Powers, a violin solo by Miss Viola Grace Dorn, accompanied by Mrs. Wayne Barker and a dance by Miss Mary Mendenhall.

A skit of the city council in session with Don Haynes impersonating Mayor Nelson, Tom Vague as Councilman Eddleman, Wilburn Page as Councilman Prothro, O. R. Jeffers as Councilman McCutchen, Dudley Foy as Councilman Spoonts, T. J. Waggoner Jr. as Councilman Harvey and Ralph Pond as City Clerk McBroom added a touch of humor.

working the men very hard due to the heat and that Jacks nor any of the other members of the squad had complained of feeling ill.

Convicts in the plow squad corroborated the guard's statement, Captain Kelley said, declaring that Jacks was apparently in good physical condition when he left the field. Captain Kelley said that he was satisfied with the report and that no further investigation into the death would be made, unless evidence warranting it developed.

Heron died after suffering sunstroke at 4 p. m. the same day. He had been employed in the brush squad on the Eastham farm and when he returned to the barracks in the afternoon drank a quantity of water, Capt. B. B. Monzingo, in charge of the farm, reported. He fainted a few minutes later and died without regaining consciousness.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—Mr. Ben Marsh, the tall, gray veteran radical who displays more activity and gets more newspaper space than any one else among the numerous persons in Washington who devote themselves to furthering social "causes," dashed into this office with eyes agleam.

At last, Mr. Marsh averred, he had found himself affiliated with a mass movement and this remarkable discovery had given him the keenest pleasure. Mr. Marsh is sometimes thought to hold a world's record for being in the minority.

Occasionally, in fact, Mr. Marsh has been a minority all by himself. One of the things that has kept him busiest for years has been his attempts to persuade progressive senators to sponsor measures and programs which have frequently been regarded by senators as two or three thousand years ahead of the times.

"Panacea" Promoter

It is also believed that Mr. Marsh for many years has held the championship for organizing petitions presented to and completely ignored by officials in high authority, especially presidents. Very often he has been supported by the signatures of widely known and respected persons, but the ideas and the proposals above the signatures have been enough to horrify such conservatives as Republicans, Democrats and sometimes even most progressives. Mr. Marsh, in short, is our most persistent and perhaps most advanced promoter of what are contemptuously referred to by President Hoover as "panaceas."

Nevertheless, everybody knows Ben Marsh and most people like him. Even the progressives, with whom he is generally disgusted because of their conservatism and who keep complaining that Ben spoils the appearance of their parade by dashing out 20 or 30 paces in front.

Ben is 54 years old now and, as Mother Jones used to say of herself, the longer he lives the more radical he gets. His background includes lengthy public service as an expert on distribution of population and its congestion in New York state and as a charity worker with special reference to children.

For several years he has been secretary and almost the entire works of an organization here known as the people's lobby, the president of which is Professor John Dewey.

Seeks Jobless Relief

Getting back to that gleam in Mr. Marsh's eyes and his boast of really being in on a mass movement at last—he says that majority of the American people want a special session of congress to enact a program of unemployment relief. Othewise, he explains, he would not now be able to produce a memorial to the president and members of congress signed by "1,200 mayors, economists, labor leaders, educators, preachers, priests, rabbis, Salvation Army officers, sociologists, publicists, community chest directors, Red Cross workers and other social workers."

The petition is an impressive record of sentiment, but on behalf of 6,000,000 unemployed whose savings are virtually exhausted and who face acute distress, it urges federal appropriations of $3,000,000,000 for public works, $250,000,000 for subvention of state unemployment insurance systems. No one really expects President Hoover to comply.

Prominent Signers

Nevertheless the signers of the petition include such folks as Dewey, Mayors Curley of Boston, Murphy of Detroit and Hoan of Milwaukee, Professor Jerome Davis of Yale, Presidents McMahon of the United Textile Workers and Hillman of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, Rev. John A. Ryan of the National Catholic Welfare council, President Keeney of the West Virginia Mine Workers' Union, Professor E. A. Ross of Wisconsin University, President Frank D. Adams of the general convention of Universalist churches, President Marion Park of Bryn Mawr, Dr. Alexander Meiklejohn, Carl Vrooman, Sherwood Eddy and many other well known folks who obviously agree with Ben Marsh that the unemployment situation is more than ever in need of drastic action.

Mr. Marsh now steps out after a record for the number of signers on a single public petition.

Twenty Years Ago Today

From Files Wichita Times

July 12, 1911

Judge C. B. Felder and County Engineer Snoddy yesterday made a tour over a large section of the county looking over the roads and searching for gravel beds.

They report finding several gravel beds in different localities which they believe will supply an abundance of material for road construction.

If this gravel proves as good as they think, practically every cent of the proposed bond issue could and would be spent right here at home.

Surveyor Snoddy, in connection with the investigation made, noted the roads over which they passed particularly with a view to making a report to the mass meeting to be held here tomorrow afternoon. Both parties are more enthusiastic over the matter than they have been heretofore. Judge Felder added that he noted the need of work on some of the old roads over which they passed, there being need of repairs in several places.

Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Trevathan are visiting with friends at Vernon.

Frank Kell returned this afternoon from Colorado Springs where he had gone with his family who are to spend the summer at that pleasant resort.

Mrs. J. B. Walker and children left this afternoon for Quanah, at which place they will visit relatives. They will also visit relatives at Tabion, N. M.

'Skippy' at Gem Sunday for Stay Of Three Days

Although "Skippy," Percy Crosby cartoon character who comes to life with all his adult and kid friends on the Gem screen Sunday, in the Paramount talking picture of that title, like Peter Pan, never grows up, his cinema bow is in the nature of an 18th birthday party.

The rapidity with which the beloved boy rogue of Crosby's creation has attained nation-wide favor during the past few years, tends toward the illusion that "Skippy" is one of those sudden inspirations.

In reality, he was conceived in the mind of Crosby when the cartoonist was a youth of 19 trying to crash his way into permanent work as a newspaper artist. For years, editors passed up a chance at Skippy until he finally won editorial favor and became an over-night public hero.

Crosby, 37 years old, reviewed the past career of his boy hero as Paramount began the filmization of "Skippy," with Jackie Cooper as the lad; Robert Coogan, 5-year-old brother of Jackie Coogan, as the well-known Sooky, and Mitzie Green and Jackie Searl in the juvenile cast.

FARMS NEAR GRANDFIELD PRODUCE RECORD YIELDS

GRANDFIELD, Okla., July 10.—Two record breaking crops have been turned in by the Emerson and the Mounts farms near Grandfield. The Emerson field, northeast of the city in the Deep Red area, produced a yield of more than 104 bushels of oats to the acre. Earl Maxey, who cultivated the Mounts farm the past season, has threshed 12,000 bushels of wheat from several crops, and reports a field producing as high as 45 bushels to the acre.

A 40-acre tract on the Mounts farm produced a yield of 2,000 bushels—45 bushels to the acre, testing 63 pounds. Slight damage was done by army worms. It was estimated that 10 to 15 bushels to the acre were lost on the oat yield of the Emerson place, due to the fact that the grain had falled over. The loss of grain, figured with the yield which was forthcoming, would have made a real record-breaker, it was said.

'Confessions of a Co-Ed' Majestic 'White Shoulders' Next Wednesday; 'Arizona' Feature at State Theater

This modern age of ours and the young people, whose heedless pursuit of happiness has won both favor and stern approval from the older generations, come under intelligent scrutiny in the new and absorbing Paramount drama, "Confessions of a Co-Ed" which opened a limited engagement at the Majestic Saturday. It is an honest, believable story, compelling in its dramatic sequence and endowed with a keen and enjoyable sense of humor. It is the story of a young girl of ideals, brains and beauty who learns more about life and human nature at college than is listed in the university curriculum. And following her college days, the story proceeds with steady emphasis to her first years of married life, the result of a campus romance. In the leading roles are three young people of assured ability, namely Sylvia Sidney, heroine of "City Streets," Phillips Holmes, Norman Foster, talented actor of the New York stage.

Other units of entertainment are a screen song that every one knows "That Old Gang of Mine," and Majestic talking news.

"White Shoulders"

From the pages of a Rex Beach novel comes a story packed with power, jammed with drama and driven through with a motivation that is as fast moving as life itself.

Such a story has been transferred to the talking screen and it is said to be better than the novel in its scope and in its strong human appeal.

"White Shoulders" opens at the Majestic next Wednesday with Mary Astor, Jack Holt, Ricardo Cortez and Sidney Toler heading a distinguished cast of featured players.

On the program there will be interesting subjects selected by Paramount and shown in a pictorial. There will also be a Mack Sennett comedy and the latest events of the world in the Paramount news.

"The Night Angel"

Nancy Carroll creates an impressive dramatic role in her new Paramount picture, "The Night Angel," and sharing honors with her is that sterling actor of many screen successes, Frederic March.

"The Night Angel" is a powerful story of love and regeneration, emerging as arresting entertainment that's dramatically alive and convincing.

In addition to Miss Carroll and Frederic March, there is a good cast featuring Allison Skipworth, Phoebe Foster and Alan Hale.

"ARIZONA" STATE THEATER "UP FOR MURDER" FOLLOWS

The State theater is showing "Arizona" for four days starting Sunday. This was the celebrated stage play that ran several years ago in New York and was featured on the road and in all the leading theaters. Many will remember Forrest Stanley, a young leading man of few years ago in silent pictures, who returns to the screen just as handsome as ever, and his splendid voice and excellent acting will prove entertaining to all who witness the picture. John Wayne handles the part of Lieutenant Denton in an excellent manner, while Laura La Plante and June Clyde furnish the female element of the picture in a satisfactory manner. There is a happy ending to this interesting play which is most satisfactory. It is an army story, even the football game at the opening is between the army and navy with the army victorious.

In addition you will see the "Crystal Glazers," a comedy with Eddie Buzzell, and Paramount sound news.

"Up for Murder"

"Up for Murder" opens at the State Thursday, with Lew Ayres, Genevieve Tobin, and a strong supporting cast. In the story Lew Ayres is convicted of murder that he committed in self-defense, but rather than divulge the name of the woman in the case he keeps his mouth shut. The power of the press is behind the whole affair. Genevieve Tobin is the woman. She is in love and sacrifices everything for the man she loves, and there is a happy ending which might have turned out to be a tragedy. Other attractions include an Educational comedy, "Happy Little Honeymoon," a Paramount pictorial; Mickey Mouse cartoon, "Jungle Rhythm" and Universal talking news.

FREE SWIMMING CLASSES FOR WOMEN ANNOUNCED

A women's free swimming class, which is sponsored by the city park department, will hold its first meeting at 9 o'clock Monday morning at Westmoreland park swimming pool. This class is started by the request of a number of women who desired to take swimming lessons at the same time as their children.

The women will be under the direction of different instructors and in different parts of the pool from the children's swimming classes. The two classes will not in any way interfere with each other.

The women's free swimming class will meet every Monday and Thursday morning at 9 o'clock.

IT ISN'T THE HEAT; IT'S THE REPARATIONS

By WILL ROGERS

Well all I know is just what I read in the papers. The heat has just about knocked the news right out of everybody. California papers have had nothing in the world on every page in every column, but the amount of people that were killed in other parts of the Country by the heat. All our deaths out here died from natural causes, but the ones anywhere else it was the heat. But I guess it has been pretty hot back where you folks live.

But Mr. Hoover pulled his debt cancelling right in the midst of it. It wasent too hot for him to be thinking of something besides a cold drink. Now that may just be a mighty fine idea. It has already jumped the market up, and everybody got pretty excited over it. We are in such shape anyhow the last year and a half that we will jump at almost anything that is offered in the way of a scheme. We know that nothing can do us any worse and we figure it might help, so we are liable to jump at things that after more quiet meditation we wouldent even monkey with. I don't see how it could hardly effect anyone so greatly but Germany, for they are the only one that is saving anything. Germany owes France, England, Belgium and I reckon Italy (I don't know what for, but I guess just on general principles).

Well then, in turn each one takes what Germany pays them and pays it to us, so when the debt is cancelled for a year that dont mean anything to England, France, Belgium and mayby Italy, for if Germany pays them nothing they pay us nothing. If Germany does pay them, they in turn turn around and pay us, so the money only passes through their hands anyhow. If it does pass they pay it out, and if it don't they don't, so what's the answer? Why nobody is the loser or the winner, but Germany, who gets the year off. Of course, it enables Germany to be in a better position to buy from the other nations. But Germany makes or raises about everything they want anyhow, so they are not going to turn right around and spend all that they have saved. I imagine that the psychology of the thing is what makes it really acceptable than the actual figures in dollars and cents.

We lose 245 million that the Allies owe us, and 15 million that Germany pays us direct for the charge of the army of occupation. They were to pay any one that wanted to send in an army to occupy their country after the war to remind them what an Allied Soldier looked like. Well that makes us lose 260 million. These are the real figures (I just got them from "Time"). Thats where all the autnentic news comes from. But we can afford to lose that much, for it takes more than that to do us any good, we are so far in the red that 260 million wouldent even stabilise our Liquor market.

But Mr. Hoover is dealing now in International problems, something that he knows something about, much more than the ordinary run of our Public men. He has fed these Nations before. This is not the first time he has fed 'em. Thats his business, and he must know that the way things are going that Germany just cant keep on paying. So it must have been to save a very delicate situation that he saw fit to do this. Of course it was not a new idea, it has been proposed a hundred times, in this and other ways, but it never was proposed by the man that had the authority to do it, even if it was a good idea.

Now what about the old Boys here on the home grounds? Well, maby this thing will eventually reach him in some beneficial way. Lord knows what way but it may trickle down to him some day. Well the whole thing is beyond the understanding of us Dumb Birds anyhow, so just get back in your bread line and let it go.

A week or so ago we had it in our papers that Capone was broke. Well, it was just like saying Mellon and Ford had taken two adjoining cots in the county poor farm. Capone broke!!! We knew that depression had hit his Industry, but we had no idea that it had had such far reaching effect. The government is sending him to jail for illegally selling Liquor, and collecting a legal income tax on an illegal act. If they can do that why cant they make Robbers pay an income tax on what they received in loot. If you rob a Bank of 200 thousand, and they nab you, why can't they in addition to sending you to jail make you pay an income tax on what you got away with?

They got records of Capone for all these years. But they dident get any of the Liquor, that is paying for it. I think that "Broke" gag is another Racket. He always did handle his money in cash all the time, so that Old Boy has got dough piled in a lot of his different Distilliers and Brewery's. You know that they tell you in Chicago? The men that know they say that when you get Capone Liquor from some supernumary of his, that if you find any kick with it, that is too poor quality, he is more than glad to take it back and make it good. They say that he is more reliable in his methods than even the great Marshall Field store. He prides himself on a high class organization. Well it would be too bad if it stopped while he was in Jail, for a thing like that ought to be perpetuated.

PIONEER ASSOCIATION TO HAVE MEETING

NEWCASTLE, Texas, July 11.—The Kutch-Manning Pioneer association, an organization of early settlers, old-time cowboys and Indian fighters, will hold its annual reunion and picnic here in Newcastle on July 16, 17 and 18.

The members of this association reside not only in Young, but in Stephens, Throckmorton, Jack, Archer and Baylor counties.

Many stirrring tales are told about early day Indian raids and battles when these "boys of other days" meet at these annual reunions. One of the main events of this year's affair will be the presence of Millie Durgan, who was captured when only a small child 66 years ago in an Indian raid and fight on Elm creek west of Newcastle and whose identity was only proved last year. She and her family will be present the entire three days.

The various committees have almost completed preparations for a successful reunion. There will be concerts by the Graham High School band, an old fiddlers contest, on the evening of the 16th; cattle calling contest, base ball games, a terrapin race, Indian dances and speeches by men prominent in the affairs of West Texas.

A carnival with shows and rides of all kinds is moving in. There will be a basket picnic dinner served at noon on the 18th.

H. C. Williams Sr., is president of the association; R. J. Johnson Sr., is vice president, and G. R. Whiteley is secretary and treasurer.

Missionary Speaks

MANGUM, Okla., July 11.—At a meeting of the south zone of Methodist missionary societies in this district which was held Thursday at Vinson, one of the main speakers was Miss Berta Simmons of Carter. Miss Simmons will leave in two weeks for Brazil where she will enter the missionary field as a teacher of home economics.

Studebaker Type Of Free Wheeling Makes for Safety

Many types of free wheeling devices have sprung up during the year since Studebaker perfected this automotive advancement.

Studebaker free wheeling is, of course, under positive gear control—by the simple movement of the usual single gear shift lever. The driver can utilize engine compression as a brake at any time he desires if he has Studebaker free wheeling.

Some forms of free wheeling, however, do not permit the driver to utilize his engine compression for braking purposes. He must free wheel all the time, even when descending steep hills. This form of free wheeling has been called "100 per cent free wheeling," as contrasted with free wheeling "under positive gear control."

As a result the Eastern Conference of Motor Vehicle Administrators has passed a resolution against any "free wheeling device unless it is of a design which gives the operator full control of all gears in all ratios as he desires."

This resolution is directed at free wheeling devices which are added to cars already built. It does not apply to those cars which, like Studebaker, have free wheeling under positive gear control engineered as an integral part of the chassis.

Studebaker free wheeling has been adopted by a number of other makes of cars, including Pierce-Arrow and Lincoln.

SUMMER CAMPS IMPORTANT ELEMENT IN AMERICAN LIFE

By ALFRED E. SMITH

Al E. Smith

NEW YORK, July 11.—When I was a boy, country life, so far as city people were concerned, was confined to people of sufficient wealth to be able either to rent or own their own home in the country or stop at an expensive hotel. Even the old-time boarding houses were prohibitive in price to the average man with a small income. The best that a boy or girl living in a large city could hope for was Sunday when the father was home from work and would take the family out for a day in the country. During the rest of the week they lived in the heat and dust of a busy city, contantly exposed to danger from vehicles of all kinds and with no relief from the glaring sun except to stay indoors.

At least in the old days there were a few trees here and there in the city streets and vacant lots that the children used for play areas. As the cities grew, the play areas became smaller and, with the growing realization of what outdoor living meant for children, camps were established here and there under public or private management.

Thirty years ago there were only 22 organized camps known to have been in existence. Today, reliable figures show that there are 9,000 organized children's camps in the country attended annually by more than a million and a half children. Health experts, educators, athletic supervisors and social workers became interested in summer camping and now, while about 2,000 of the summer camps are private ones, commercially operated, the rest are divided among Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, national organizations, welfare, church, institutional and fraternal camps. The private camps accommodate only about 100,000 of these children. In addition, there are the Four-H camps, controlled by the United States department of agriculture.

Perhaps half a century ago there was little need for camps. With small cities, grass and trees were within easy striking distance of every home. Today, trees and grass are largely confined to public parks. When I was a boy my idea of a camp was a place where somebody went to stay overnight to shoot some animal the next day or possibly to fish in some stream or lake far removed from civilization and he had to camp overnight on the theory that he couldn't get out there in a single day. As a boy, I knew nothing about camp life or any of the benefits of organized camping. As a matter of fact, I can date the development of camping from the interest of my youngest son. He was the first of the children to go to a summer camp.

My own first visits to camps for boys and girls were made to Bear Mountain on the Hudson river, where Boy and Girl Scouts and other groups spend their two weeks of holiday. They hunt and fish and look after the camp needs; take care of their tents, conduct athletic contests and enjoy an active social life. They have their own zoological garden of animals which they themselves have captured in the wilds of Bear mountain. As a matter of fact, I left one of my visits to the Boy Scout camp the proud possessor of a small elk captured by one of the Boy Scouts for my own zoo at the executive mansion in Albany.

Even 15 years ago it was the unusual boy who had the opportunity to go camping in the summer and among girls it was scarcely known at all. For the various social service organizations, such as settlements and churches, a camp provided a solution for a very difficult summer problem. It gave the children opportunity for outdoor life and mothers a much needed rest. Among most of the social organizations it has been the custom in the past to make a nominal charge to the family of the children in order to provide part of the funds for maintenance and operation. The budgets of such camps are dependent upon the few dollars which are raised in this way. The largest part of the budget has usually been contributed by men and women who realize the importance of the few weeks of outdoor living.

Needed Most Now

This summer there is some fear that the business depression may have had a double effect on the children of the families usually benefited by the camps of welfare organizations. There is no extra dollar available nor could it be saved toward the family's own contribution to the camp outing. There is also a fear that the depression may to some extent deter those who by their generosity in the past have supported these camps. But if we stop to think, this summer probably is the one when funds will be needed the most. The loss of employment and absolutely necessary retrenchment on the part of the whole family may have deprived the children of some of the wholesome food and nourishment which their growing bodies require. Those who are in a position to do it, even through curtailment in other lines, should realize that this important work ought especially not to be neglected at this time.

Wholly aside from the benefit of outdoor exercise are the training in character that comes from camp life, the regard for the rights of others, the sense of discipline and self-reliance and the development of mind and body. I am interested, too, in the way these boys and girls learn the conservation of our great natural resources. They come away from camp year after year with a better developed sense of their obligation to the state.

I remember the time when people had the idea that all you had to do was turn young people loose in the country and they found their own way about. Commercial camps and philanthropic ones now all have the same high standards of sanitation, education and health protection. Simple living is the rule. When boys and girls have outgrown the camps they set up little summer camping places of their own and spend their week-ends out of doors either in groups among themselves or with their families.

It is my opinion that in time the great growth of camping among children will open up to the states the possibility of camps with part time study as part of our general educational system. As a matter of fact, many states which have had military training projects for schools have had camp life suggested as the best posible substitute. Camp life offers the discipline which military training is supposed to afford but in addition there is the discipline of self-regulated freedom, health and self-reliance.

It is significant that states and the nation itself recognize the need for camping sites, because no state or national park is without such provision now. To encourage it, fireplaces, camping sites and provision for lighting and sewage disposal have been made from public funds. On Long Island, alone, in the state of New York last summer, 10,841 permits were issued for camps in our public state parks, occupied by adults and children. The park commissioners estimate that the average family is four or five persons. Consequently, in a small area on Long Island, during 1930, the number of campers during the season probably reached the total of 44,000.

Camping has been found to be such an inexpensive, simple method of getting the whole family out into the country that every state should make camp sites available close to centers of population so that city people may have the benefit of these short visits to the country under new conditions of living. Unquestionably, the automobile has been a great factor in developing camp life. In fact some automobiles are so equipped as to hang curtains from the sides lashed to a pin driven in the earth so that the automobile becomes the backgorund of the living and dining room combined.

It is not at all an uncommon sight on a long automobile ride to find groups of boys or girls, young men and women with packs on their backs hiking across country and camping in the open. It is inspiring to drive through the great state and national parks and see the whole family, father and mother, big boys and girls and the little ones, camp out for the week-end, everybody participating in the camp activities. Where in the old days mother and father stayed home, today they go along and go camping too. Camping, I am willing to assert, keeps the family together gives them a better understanding and promotes strong ties of affection.

If what I have said about camping is true, that it promotes health, strengthens character and develops family ties, then it is an important element in the life of the nation. I have often said that a great nation is not its factories, its farms, its public developments. After all, it is its people and following the theory that the chain is no stronger than its weakest link, a nation can only rise in strength to the level of the health and strength of the people who make it up.

Terrero Finds Parallel With Rome In Sudden Growth of Riches in America Resulting From War

Recently Dr. Ferrero, distinguished European historian, revisited the United States for the first time in 22 years. He traversed it from coast to coast studying, dissecting, analyzing its people, its institutions, its trends of life and thought. In a series of articles, of which the accompanying is the second, Dr. Ferrero records frankly his impressions of America, especially as compared with those he gathered here in 1909.

By GUGLIELMO FERRERO,
The Foremost Historian of Europe

GENEVA, July 11.—The United States was already very rich 22 years ago; at least as rich as the richest state in Europe, which at that time was England. After the lapse of 22 years I found its riches had increased enormously.

The little towns had become big ones, the big ones had grown out of all proportion, all enterprises such as banks, industrial and agricultural undertakings, mines and commerce had multiplied and developed in all directions.

The standard of life of the masses had reached a pitch which, a generation ago, would have seemed chimerical. The system of communications had doubled.

The United States had at that time only its immense systems of railway lines as a means of communication; it has added to it an immense network of roads for automobiles and is developing its airways.

Finally, in 1909, the United States was still in debt to Europe, although for small sums compared with its total riches. When I came back to America I found it the creditor of the world and for enormous sums.

But its riches have not only increased; it also has changed character. It has become, if I may thus express it, overflowing. Riches abound on every side, even in this time of depression, like a river in flood. The riches of 1909 were more modest and more regular. Why?

The riches of 1909 were the result of a gradual and relatively slow increase, which was bound up with the economical development of the whole world, after 1870. The years which passed between 1870 and 1914 were the happiest, if not for the whole world, at least for America and Europe.

During the peace, population increased with the production of gold, manual labor and capital abounded, means of communication, industry, agriculture and commerce developed rapidly but without leaps and bounds, with a steady and simultaneous movement in all countries of the two continents. The United States, for reasons which it is easy to understand, profited more than any of the other countries of the western world by this general prosperity.

The enrichment of America during the years which followed 1914 is no longer a special case, though the most brilliant one, of the universal enrichment which took place. It is the paradoxical consequence of an appalling catastrophe which devastated a part of the western world—the world war.

Those riches flowed into the United States by three channels:

1—The enormous and very advantageous orders given to the United States by the belligerent powers.

2—The rise in price of almost all primary materials—oil, coal, cotton, wheat, wood, iron, copper, etc., etc., which was produced by the extraordinary consumption of the war.

3—The German blockade of Russia up to 1917, and the revolution after 1917, which suppressed the competition of the Russian empire with America for nearly 15 years.

Sudden Enrichment

This is why that enrichment was so different from the first. The first was gradual and of a reasonable slowness. The enrichment after 1914 was sudden, violent, exceptional, too rapid. Taken in its entirety it was abnormal, almost diseased.

The abnormal and diseased character of that enrichment is shown in the enormous accumulation of gold which was made in the vaults of the Federal Reserve bank. Up to 1914 the United States had been able to enrich itself without attracting to itself such prodigious quantities of gold, because its enrichment had been gradual and was a part of the universal increase of riches.

At that time each people only asked from other peoples the merchandise or the services for which they could pay by other merchandise or other services. At that time, a time of order and happiness, only minimum differences were liquidated every year in gold, which did not disturb the monetary balance of the world.

During the war all the belligerent powers were forced to buy from the United States large quantities of merchandise which exceeded in value what they could repay, either in merchandise or services. They were forced to discharge their debt, to divest themselves in increasing quantities of their precious metals, which flowed to America.

The historian easily recognizes in that transatlantic emigration of gold the eternal drain of precious metals which war has made in every epoch.

It was that same process of draining which, during the last two centuries of the Roman republic caused the greater part of the gold and silver of the Mediterranean countries to be drained into Italy and Rome.

It was the same process of draining which, between 1789 and 1815, transported a great part of the gold and silver of Europe into France. Formerly it was the strongest belligerent who took possession by force of the gold and silver of the vanquished or weaker side.

We have now become an industrial civilization; war is an enormous consumer; the gold of the conquerors and the conquered passes to the neutrals who can provide the belligerents with all that they require.

The United States, during the three years its neutrality lasted, profited by this condition of things more than all the other neutral powers, because it had more to sell.

But if the process by which war heaps up gold in certain countries is different, the result is the same. In the main after 1914 the same process occurred in the United States under more complicated and refined forms, that had occurred more grossly and simply in Rome during the last two centuries of the republic. Then the frequent wars transported there the precious metals of all the Mediterranean basin.

Balance Upset

In the United States, as in Rome, a sudden and violent enrichment took place which upset the moral and social balance of an old puritanical society.

The struggle between increasing riches and traditional Puritanism is not a new fact in America. It struck me 22 years ago.

Twenty-two years ago I was already conscious of the existence in America of a Puritan society in which, as in Roman society, at the end of the republic, the growth of riches developed a spirit which in history is the opposite of Puritanism. We might call it Sybaritism—the passion for enjoyment and luxury under all forms, refined and gross, moral and vicious. The contrast had struck me; and it then already seemed to me to be the essence of American life.

But if Rome and the United States already at that time resembled each other, there was then still this difference. Twenty-two years ago the riches of the United States were due to peace and industry and not to war, like the riches of Rome. They were, consequently, of a more normal and less violent origin, which softened the shock between Puritanism and Sybaritism.

Today the parallel between the United States and Rome is much closer. The riches of the United States also are partly an effect of the war, which has caused a part of the old riches of Europe and Asia to cross the Atlantic. Those riches also have increased suddenly and violently. They have accentuated, by carrying it to extreme, consequences that struggle between Puritanism and Sybaritism which had already struck me in a less accentuated form 22 years ago.

That accentuation of the struggle between Sybaritism and Puritanism, which was produced in the United States by the world war, is, to my mind, after the crumbling of European influence, the second great novelty which I found in 1931. The two events combined seem to me to give the clue to many American problems.

EXPLANATION OF LAST SUNDAY'S CARTOON — The Declaration of Independence Was Not Signed on July 4: The resolution "that these united colonies . . . be free and independent" was carried in congress on July 2, 1776, so that the 2nd of July is the anniversary of the fact of our independence. The Declaration of Independence was not signed on July 4. Not until Aug. 2 did the 53 members of congress affix their signatures to the document, while Gerry of Massachusetts, McKean of Delaware and Thornton of New Hampshire, were empowered by their respective legislatures to sign on a subsequent date. July 4 is not a national holiday, because there are no national holidays within the United States. Neither the legislative nor the executive branch of the federal government has authority to decree a national holiday. It is optional with the individual states to provide by law for a holiday within their own jurisdiction. The congressional act of Labor day and the president's proclamation of Thanksgiving are effective only within the District of Columbia and U. S. territories. See: "Harper's Encyclopedia of U. S. History," Vol. 4. The Flag With 15 Stars and 15 Stripes: Following the admission of Vermont and Kentucky into the union, congress ordered "that from and after May 1, 1795, the flag be 15 stripes and that the union be 15 stars." This enactment was in force until July 4, 1818, so that the flag with 15 stripes and 15 stars was the official "flag of the United States" for a longer period than any other period (23 years). The act of 1818 provided once for all that an admission of a new state a star may be added to the union of the flag. As a result the number of stars in the flag was increasing at a rapid pace. Our present flag has been used since 1912 and is on the executive order of President Taft, Oct. 26, of that year. Shakespeare Used the Expression "Beat It": This expression is found in "Comedy of Errors," act 2, scene 1, line 74.

Denied That President Seeks To Establish White House Censorship Wants News From Official Source

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
United Press Staff Corerspondent

WASHINGTON, July 11. (UP)—Suggestions that President Hoover is attempting to establish censorship over White House news are refuted in an authoritative explanation to the United Press.

President Hoover has issued word that it is his desire that all news from the White House come from an official source. This would be either himself or one of his secretaries, usually Theodore G. Joslin, who has charge of press relations.

Mr. Hoover's purpose is explained to be that of any executive in such matters. He does not desire employes on his staff to give out unauthorized information which he does not choose to make public.

There is no restriction upon newspaper correspondents. They are free to ask questions wherever they wish and to use such information as they can obtain, the United Press is assured.

Check on Employes

The White House will try to prevent its own employes from talking about the president's affairs, but there will be no attempt to control the newspaper correspondents, to censor what they write, or to require that copy be submitted for approval.

The situation is one easily misunderstood and easily subjected to interpretations, intentionally or otherwise. It has been an American tradition from the time of Jefferson that nothing is more important in a democracy than a free press. Any action which might run counter to this tradition in peace time would be expected to provoke much distrust and criticism.

Friendly to Press

Few presidents have attached more importance to the press than President Hoover. His war-time food administration was successful in part because of the cooperation of the press. His administration of the department of commerce was marked by more publicity than had ever before come out of the department. When he became president one of Mr. Hoover's first acts was to meet with a committee of leading correspondents and formulate a set of rules which included direct quotation on occasion. This was a White House innovation.

Mr. Hoover is a persistent reader of newspapers. Often he clips out dispatches or editorials which either appeal to him or which he regards as incorrect or unfair.

Some times these are taken up with the editors concerned. This has happened several times lately.

Committee State Clerks

CORPUS CHRISTI, July 11. (AP)—Roy D. Clift, Nueces county clerk and chairman of the legislative committee of the county and district clerks association, today named Jack Burke, Bexar county; Albert Townsend, Harris county, and Fred Malone, Travis county, as members of the committee.

GERMANY FAILS TO ACCEDE TO FRANCE

Washington in an effort to secure President Hoover's personal intervention on behalf of Germany. This indicated that the cabinet is still pinning its last hope of saving Germany from unpredictable consequences on the man whose moratorium proposal brought the nation its first vision of escape from ruin.

A second report no more confirmable than the first stated that Washington's reply to the German plea was already in the hands of the cabinet members when they recessed at midnight.

This report stated that President Hoover had found it impossible for him to intervene in the crisis.

The fear that utter ruin is now but hours away yesterday impelled the German government to sink on its knees, ready, within limits that do not go too near national humiliation, to make political compromises with France before the count of 10 signalizes her financial and economic collapse.

Germany has warned the French that rejection will mean the overthrow of the government of Chancellor Heinrich Bruening and the rise to power of the Nationalists, Dr. Albert Hugenberg and Adolf Hitler.

Hindenburg May Resign

The report that President Paul Von Hindenburg might resign if France persisted in her political demands were denied by a government spokesman today, who pointed out that the popularity of the reich's president is one of Germany's most stabilizing forces.

Nevertheless, the newspaper Germania in an editorial declares that both President Von Hindenburg and Chancellor Bruening will resign if France grinds Germany further into the dust of political oblivion. Germania states:

"Paris should realize that any imaginable German government, by accepting the French conditions, would sign its own death verdict."

After sparring with America for two weeks over the Hoover moratorium plan until Germany was tottering in her weakness, France turned on Britain and hammered John Bull into submissiveness by such large withdrawals of money from London that the British were forced to withdraw credits from Germany, thereby helping still further to weaken the reich and make the Germans more yielding toward the French political demands.

The British have given Germany to understand that they are no longer free to act toward France as they wish, and that when Foreign Secretary Henderson comes to Berlin next week, he will back up the French attitude.

Ministers Collapse

These are the sensational, though publicly unknown, developments of the last 24 hours in one of the most dramatic battles diplomats and financiers have staged behind the dark curtains of Europe, where France is ruthlessly determined to consolidate and perpetuate a supremacy that for years will not again be disputed.

So terrific is the strain and suspense in Berlin that Foreign Minister Julius Curtius collapsed today and was compelled, regardless of the gravity of the situation, to leave town and rest for several days lest he suffer a complete breakdown.

Secretary of State Von Buelow is carrying on for him, although this has not been officially announced. Chancellor Bruening, too, is haggard, pale and worn, and shows signs of an imminent nervous collapse.

Coming in a giant tri-motored Junkers plane, Dr. Hans Luther, president of the Reichsbank, arrived at 4:40 p. m. today at Templehof airdrome from Paris, with no money in the hat which he passed around in London and Paris.

This was another spectacular touch to the great international drama which easily can be turned into a gigantic German tragedy in the coming week.

Deposits Withdrawn

In an atmosphere so tense that it is cracking men's nerves, and accentuated by the depressive psychological effect of tottering institutions, the beginning of withdrawal of bank deposits by Germans who fear a bank moratorium, and a record day of withdrawals of foreign credits—$23,720,000 were withdrawn today—events are rapidly nearing a climax.

No one hazards a guess as to what that climax may be. A cablegram to Washington last night advised President Hoover that Germany, in view of the desperate situation and pressure from London, is willing to make the following concessions to France:

1—The German government is ready to discontinue work on the second "vestpocket battleship" and abandon its construction, providing that this concession will play some role in the coming disarmament conference at Geneva.

2—Germany is willing to put the Austro-German customs union plan "on ice," in that the German government is ready to extend its invitation for a customs union to all states in Europe and pledge itself that until such negotiations are taken up, there will be no further steps taken with Austria.

The first concession would mean heavy financial loss, deterioration of steel and iron materials already cast, and would throw hundreds of workmen into unemployment, and might throw the shipbuilding yard which has the contract into bankruptcy.

The second concession, in view of the state of the public mind, is as far as the government can go. If it is rejected by France, it means that a government of Hungenberg's Nationalists and Hitler's National Socialists could not be prevented from taking control in Germany.

The impression is growing here that by helping to force Germany to kneel to France, Foreign Secretary Henderson of Britain believes he may influence the French to be more yielding at the disarmament conference, and that Prime Minister MacDonald and even President Hoover are willing to urge Germany to any sacrifice that might insure the success of the disarmament parley at Geneva.

Germany today needs $500,000,000 to avert a crash and carry on for the next few months. According to reliable information, one of the biggest German banks is in a most critical condition and has now approached the Swedish Kreuger Match monopoly for help.

SURVIVE or PERISH

(An appeal to the people of Northwest Texas)

The condition of the oil industry has come to the survival or perish stage. Oil can no longer be produced at the posted prices in the Wichita Falls territory. Governor Sterling has acceded to the united plea of oil and business and has called a special session of the Texas legislature next Tuesday, July 14th.

Every business in this section is affected directly or indirectly and unless remedial legislation is passed there will be more suffering not only on the part of the producers but right down the rank to the men who are operating the pumps and pipe lines and working at the refineries.

Scientists may think of oil conservation as it affects the future, but as citizens of Texas and this community our concern is for ourselves and our fellowman in the immediate present—right now!

As stated in the recent resolution, unless action is taken at once a vast amount of oil properties will be destroyed and the shrinkage and destruction of values will bankrupt many counties, cities and school districts. Schools will have to be closed, bond obligations can not be met. Only quick and determined action on the part of our state legislature can prevent this calamity.

This frank statement is being made—"To be forewarned is to be forearmed." This appeal is going to all citizens to urge them to ask their representatives to enact a safe, sane and sensible conservation and proration law that will stabilize a fast declining industry.

CAMP FIRE SPARKS

Camp Rally

Everybody out for camp rally! Tuesday evening at 6:30 we all go in for the swim at Westmoreland park. Events will be simple enough to include the beginners as well as difficult to interest those who have advanced to intermediate and advanced classes. Every one is invited to see the fun! After the swimming meet and picnic lunch a program similar to the ones staged each evening around the camp fire at camp will be enjoyed.

See special article on details of camp. Bulletins have been mailed to all members. Any one failing to receive one, please call the headquarters, 2-2183, if you want one.

Council Meeting

The entire local council is invited to attend the luncheon on Wednesday of this week since it will be Mrs. T. H. Lawson's last meeting with us. The luncheon will be served at 12:15 o'clock.

Swimming

No class was held at Westmoreland last week due to the cleaning out of the pool on Friday morning. The class will be held as usual this week.

First Aid

The fire makers first aid class completed the work outlined on Monday afternoon, taking up points under requirements 10, 11 and 12. Mary Elizabeth Largin helped with the instruction on Monday afternoon.

Guardian Association

The Camp Fire guardians met at the home of the executive, 2015 Wilson street, on Tuesday morning, as she was not well enough to be in the office, due to an attack of "summer flu."

It was decided to postpone the picnic for the day nursery children until after camp, due to extremely hot and dusty weather. Service week was to be obsevred by the various groups instead of the city-wide project. The camp rally in the form of a swimming meet at Westmoreland on Tuesday evening was planned. The only other city-wide project planned for August was the "camp echoes" to be held the week following camp. The program will be put on by the campers who attend the outing at Craterville.

Oawakiya Group

The Oawakiya group met at the home of Dorthea Whitehead, 2012 Pearl, on Thursday morning. Garments for the day nursery were turned in and some sewed on the garments while at the meeting. Mrs. Schram, guardian, discussed camp rally and the stunt to be put on by the group.

Ice cream and cake were served by the hostess and her mother, Mrs. J. W. Lyle, to Ina Jo Ogle, Mary Arwood, Evelyn Howard, Margaret Hutchinson, Ruth Van Wormer, Bernice Cyr, Leonida James, Ethel Ranbarger, Lois and Mrs. Frank Schram.

After the swim at Cedar park on Friday the members took a number of articles of clothing, toys and books to the day nursery.

Nowetompatimmin

The Nowetompatimmin group carried out an interesting service project by visiting the colored day nursery on Friday morning. The girls gathered up a nice assortment of toys, clothing and other useful articles, and took them over to the nursery. They told the children about Camp Fire, giving their "desires" and the law, and sang some of the Camp Fire songs. The girls then taught the children to play some of their favorite nature games, after which the colored children sang some songs and expressed their sincere appreciation for the courtesy shown them. Mrs. W. E. Polk, guardian of the group, said it would be hard to tell which group enjoyed the visit the most, as her girls were more than happy over the trip. To complete their morning, they visited the jail where they were shown through. In the afternoon, the group went for a swim at Cedar park.

Adi-Iwah Group

Members of the Adi-Iwah group made puzzles for the children's ward at the general hospital this week. From all reports the girls had as good time making the puzzles, as the children will have who receive them.

Ahsonzong Group

The Ahsonzong group held a pretty early morning council fire at Cedar park on Wednesday. Mrs. W. J. Willis, guardian, conducted the council fire, opening with the Wohelo call, answered by the members gave the handsign of the fire, and sang "The Call of the Fire." Gladys Young, Irene West and Lucile Murchison lighted the light of work, health and love. Dorothy Gothard gave a resume of the group since its organization at the Reagan school in 1928. After the awarding of honor beads, Irene West gave a poem on nature, and Loucille Willis gave the credo of rededication for Camp Fire Girls. Lora Crowder, Mrs. Wayland Keith, former guardian of the group, Mrs. Earl Young and Opal West were others attending the program. Breakfast was cooked over the camp fire.

On Friday afternoon the members met at the home of the guardian, when they planned their stunt for the camp rally on Tuesday. The next meeting will be at the home of Lucile Murchison, 1630 McGregor.

Tanokiwin Group

The Tanokiwin group will meet at local headquarters on Monday afternoon at 2:30 with Mary Elizabeth Largin, who is helping with the group for the summer.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S COUNCIL

The Wichita-Archer Young People's council will meet at the Highland Heights Baptist church Friday evening for a picnic and inspirational service. Each person is requested to bring a basket lunch.

Following the inspirational service, a business session will be held. All members are urged to attend.

CONFIDENCE

EIGHTY-SEVEN PER CENT of the world's business is done on confidence. Destroy confidence and you destroy business. It has taken seventeen years of square dealing to build up this vast business. This city is proud of this store. So are we. Since its beginning Saul's store has steadfastly adhered to its policy of "Never Misrepresenting Anything Either in Our Advertising or by Our Salespeople."

For seventeen years our slogan has been, "You must be satisfied. Our merchandise must be satisfactory or we cheerfully refund your money." Confidence built this store and confidence will maintain it.

When we advertise an article at a cut price we do not mark it up in order to mark it down. When we advertise an article at half price we mean exactly that. The old price tag remains where you can see it. We can't afford to mislead the public whose confidence we enjoy, and thereby tear down the work of seventeen years in building this great mercantile institution.

We are here to stay, to help build a still bigger and better city. We want to continue to take an important part in the welfare of Wichita Falls. We have every faith in Wichita Falls, the city that faith built. The city's problems are our problems. The farmer's problems are our problems. The laboring man's problems are our problems. We cannot escape them if we wanted to. We would not do so if we could.

Like ourselves, many Wichita Falls stores have been here since Wichita Falls was not more than a village. They grew up with you. They built magnificent buildings that would do credit to a much larger city. They helped build your school houses, your churches, your parks. They helped educate your children. In fact, these institutions are the very life blood of Wichita Falls.

EAST TEXAS 'MADNESS' PARALYZES OPERATIONS LOCAL AREA

Relief by Special Session Offers Hope as Unrestricted Drilling of Wells Forces Prices to Low Levels

By JIMMIE MAXWELL

The full force of the East Texas madness, with its unrestricted and wasteful development of its rich oil resources, was turned loose throughout the midcontinent field last week when the eagerness of these operators to sell their oil at any price forced the Humble and other major companies to reduce their schedules to meet the lower competition. As a result, the district's crude which a few years ago demanded $3.50 per barrel is now selling at from 22 to 10 cents, the lowest price ever offered for a high grade oil in the history of the petroleum industry.

Not only has East Texas, by its frenzied operations, created an unheard of market, but it will be responsible, if not halted by adequate laws enacted immediately, for the shutting down of literally hundreds of small wells both in this district and in all sections of the state. With the encroachment of water whole areas will be lost to the state oil production forever.

At present, the Wichita Falls district has several hundred wells known as "strippers" pumping on an average of from five to eight barrels per day. With a fair price for the output, these have been operating at a small profit to the owners, but with the drastic slash administered during the week, no choice has been left but an absolute shutdown.

The special session of the legislature called Tuesday at Austin by Governor Sterling, at which the situation in East Texas will be dealt with in an effort to pass legislation that will put a curb on operations and production from that field, will be awaited with anxiety by the entire Texas fraternity.

Hope to Settle Issue

At this meeting, it is hoped that the question will be settled finally and for all time, whether or not a small group of disgruntled operators in East Texas or the state of Texas is to control the state's oil resources.

Prior to the announcement of the reduction, operations in the various pools went ahead in the usual routine. Several locations were staked out, a few completions were reported and a number of wells spudded in. These were in the shallow area of Orth-Newcastle in Young county and the Cooke county area.

Archer county activities for the week failed to slow up to any extent. A review of work in the fields shows eight deep tests going down in all stages of completion. With few exceptions, all are in wildcat territory.

Wichita county interest was centered on the outcome of the Jack Martin and associates' No. 1 in block 35, Kemp City townsite. This test, lying between the Shappell No. 1 Ferguson in North Archer, and the Deep Oil Development No. 1 Munger, one mile north is drilling in a hard lime at 3434 feet after missing the upper saturated limes which were encountered in the Munger and Shappell tests. Hope of making a well still continues, as two of the best strata in the Munger well are yet to be picked up, and one or both of these should be found in the next 50 to 75 feet.

Northeast of the Munger well one and a half miles, the Midcontinent Holding No. 10 A. Burnside in the Sharpe survey, a 4000-foot test, had the misfortune to pick up a fishing job below 2400 feet.

Shut Off Water

Two miles southeast of Kemp City, the Shappell Oil No. 1 E. Ferguson in the E. Patterson survey succeeded in shutting off the water coming through a split joint at a depth of 2430 feet, but is delayed in bailing the lower saturated lime at 3815-17 feet while experiencing additional pipe trouble. This test picked up the lime at 3815 feet, which showed a heavy saturation of oil and some gas, or about the same depth as it was found in the Munger well three miles to the northwest. Pipe was set and cemented preparatory to bailing and testing, but this operation was halted on account of the water from above.

In the Wilbarger, Jack, Young and other pools, a few wells are drilling but as soon as contract depths are reached, a general stacking up of tools will begin, not to start up again until the market shows some sort of improvement.

Pipe line runs from the Wichita Falls district for the week ended Saturday, July 11, 1931, averaged 61,878 barrels per day. This is a drop of approximately 617 barrels daily for the nine pools under the supervision of L. V. Hull, umpire. Proration and lack of new production from new wells to offset natural decline are held responsible for the slump.

OIL OPERATORS TO MEET HERE MONDAY

T. F. Hunter, president of the North Texas Oil and Gas association, has called a meeting of the operators of the district to be held Monday afternoon, July 13, at the Wichita club in this city.

The meeting, which is expected to be attended by practically the entire oil fraternity in this section of the state, is called for the purpose of discussing proposed legislation affecting the oil industry, and the advisability of closing down many of the producing properties in the district until a better price for the output is available.

GOVERNOR ORDERS PROBE REPORTS OF IMMORALITY HEAD OF STATE HOSPITAL

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 11. (UP)—Gov. W. H. Murray today directed Mabel Bassett, commissioner of charities and corrections, to make a thorough investigation of alleged immorality reports concerning Ed Andruss, superintendent of the state hospital for feeble minded at Enid.

"The investigation so far leads me to believe that this is a conspiracy against Andruss," Murray said. "My belief is based on the fact that he dismissed a physician, also in part, because he stopped certain grafts. However, if Andruss is guilty it will be my duty to dismiss him and I would unhesitatingly do so."

HEARING ON JULIAN RECEIVERSHIP MOVED TO COURT AT DEL RIO

DEL RIO, Texas, July 11. (UP)—A court hearing on the receivership of the $6,000,000 C. C. Julian Oil and Royalties company of Texas was transferred today to the October term of federal court here. An injunction restraining business transactions in the varied Julian holdings will also be disposed of at that time, court attaches said.

C. B. "Dutch" Wardlaw has been appointed receiver for the company, and bond of $25,000 made to cover his appointment.

A 34-page petition filed in the case alleges that glowing and high powered sales letters were circulated by Julian in his quest for investors. The petition also asserts Julian is an alien, and not a citizen of Oklahoma, and that he is subject to deportation by immigration authorities because he is a native of Canada.

PIPE LINE STOCKS OF PENNSYLVANIA GRADE CRUDE SHOW DECREASE

OIL CITY, Pa., July 11. (AP)—Stocks of Pennsylvania grade crude oil held by major pipe line companies of the east at the end of June totaled 3,682,738 barrels, as compared to 3,895,594 barrels at the end of May.

Daily average runs from wells in June totaled 54,110 barrels against 53,344 in May. June's daily average shipments were 221,155 barrels as compared with 199,247 barrels in May.

START WORK ON ONE NEW WELL TATUMS FIELD

K. D. Company Drills at Southeast Edge of Production

MACHINERY REPAIRS DELAY OPERATIONS

Well in Carter County Shut Down for Proration

ARDMORE, Okla., July 11.—K. D. Oil company and Frank Gouin, Duncan operators, started drilling in No. 1 M. E. Burton in the center of the south half of the southwest of 30-1s-2w, the only drilling operation now in the Tatums district of northwestern Carter county. It will be drilled with rotary tools and is located on the southeast edge of production.

The only other test due to start in the field was still a location. It is Cox-Hamon's No. 1 Ratliff-Spears in the northwest corner of the southwest of 19-1s-2w, a south offset to the Carter Oil company No. 2 Paul Robb which was completed last month for an initial flow of 1,210 barrels during first 24-hour gauge.

K. D. Oil company and Frank Gouin's No. 1 J. W. Burton in the center of the southwest of the northwest of 30-1s-2w, new producer at the extreme south part of the field, was still shut down for proration time. Operators did not complete initial 24-hour gauge. However, it is estimated good for 500 barrels daily. Production was found in this test at 2178-91 feet and 2191-2214 feet. Total depth is 2214 feet.

Magnolia Petroleum company has completed plugging and abandoning as dry No. 1 Wirt Franklin in the southwest of the northwest of the northeast of 30-1s-2w, three-fourths of a mile northwest of production. It logged broken oil sand at 2505-2541 feet and was drilled to total depth at 2600 feet after the sand was tested and failed to make a commercial producer.

Ross-Conover's No. 1 W. N. and D. B. Taliaferro estate in the southwest of the northeast of the northwest of 34-5s-5e, just south of Madill in Marshall county, was shut down waiting on casing with total depth at 553 feet. It logged several shallow sands which will probably be tested. The test is a rank wildcat being located five or six miles southwest of production in the Madill shallow area.

Will Shut Down

McCrory, McCrory and Fame's No. 1 Whitworth in the southeast of the southwest of the southeast of 24-7s-5e, three-fourths of a mile northwest of production in the Kingston shallow area of Marshall county, was shut down waiting on machinery repairs with total depth at 100 feet.

Mid-Kansas Oil and Gas company and Ramsey Petroleum corporation's No. 6 Preston-Culp in the northwest of the northeast of the northeast of 6-5n-9w, deep test in the Cement field of Caddo county, was drilling at 8470 feet in sandy shale.

Batson, Starritt and Autry's No. 2 Dr. Autry in the southeast of the northeast of 27-6s-2e, seven miles northeast of Marietta in Love county, was drilling at 1000 feet in black shale. Hard, sandy lime showing some gas and a slight trace of oil was drilled through in this test at 932-997 feet.

The Monarch Petroleum corporation's No. 1 Gregg in the southwest corner of 36-3s-4w, a mile west of production in the old Healdton field of Carter county and just across the line in Jefferson county, was shut down at 3930 feet in lime awaiting orders from headquarters of the company at St. Louis in order to drill deeper.

Wait on Water

D. B. Mallernee's No. 1 Wacker in the northeast corner of the southwest of 24-2n-2w, two miles east of Elmore in Garvin county, was shut down with total depth at 4800 feet in brown shale waiting on water.

Edwin B. Cox and Jake L. Hamon, both of Ardmore, who have been active in the East Texas trading for some months, have staked location for their first test in that area. It is their No. 1 Rodden, 248 feet east of the west line and 419 feet north of the south line of a 105-acre tract in the Rigsby and Crosby surveys. This acreage is about a mile east of Gladewater and extends north and south of the railroad. Measurements given are that portion of the lease which is north of the railroad.

There is production on all sides of the lease. Only recently an offset to the location came in producing at the rate of 41,000 barrels daily with the crude testing 40 degrees in gravity.

A number of other Ardmore operators are active in East Texas operations, including the Merrick interests, Westheimer-Daube, Walter Gant, Pete Lively, M. A. Bryan and others.

PENNSYLVANIA GRADE OIL REDUCED 5 TO 15 CENTS

PITTSBURGH, July 11. (AP)—Leading purchasers of Pennsylvania grade crude oil today announced that prices had been cut from five to 15 cents a barrel, bringing them to levels that have not prevailed since 1915.

Pennsylvania grade in national transit lines was reduced 15 cents to $1.85; in Southwest Pennsylvania lines to $1.20; in Eureka lines to $1.10. Corning grade in Buckeye lines was similarly reduced to 50 cents. Pennsylvania grade in Buckeye lines was reduced five cents to 95 cents. Other grades were unchanged.

It is said that only one out of every four Americans ever visit a dentist.

By RAY LYMAN WILBUR

Secretary of the Interior in President Hoover's Cabinet and Chairman of the Federal Oil Conservation Board

On April 9, representatives of the 10 states presented to the federal oil conservation board a prescription for a sick industry. The industry is the oil business, with billions in assets, and a purchasing power whose impairment hits almost every industrial activity in this country.

The disease is hyperactivity causing overproduction. The symptoms are depression in prices of oil; the shutting down and possible loss of small operators; and the driving of oil into low-grade uses, competing with coal, instead of preserving the oil for its gasoline content.

The causes lie in a five-year spree of overdrilling. The cure lies in the elimination of this chronic habit. The doctors presenting the new prescription are the governments of the 10 oil states.

The prescription itself, for what it is worth, is simple. It was suggested in the first report of the federal oil conservation board in 1926 and repeated by the government representatives at the Colorado Springs oil conference in 1929. It calls for making principles which, unfortunately, are not now enforced in all states; second, enable cooperation between the state enforcement bodies and the federal government to insure uniform application of these uniform laws.

The control of new drilling, conservation of gas, enforcement of methods to secure the maximum possible recovery of oil, prevention of wasteful over-production, protection of producing formations, authorization of unit operation, and so on, will be the key provisions in these laws.

To make sure that savings in one state would not be offset by extravagant production in another, the conservation and production in the various states would be agreed upon by all of them at periodical meetings of their representatives, every three or four months. Interstate agreements are not new. They are authorized by the constitution of the United States.

What is the background for the present condition of the patient that has brought him to seek this medicine? Principally, it has been a badly balanced diet of excellent engineering, obsolete laws, and bad economics, coupled with a singular lack of self-denial.

When an oil tanker comes into a harbor, the prospective purchasers are not allowed to line up on the dock each with a hammer and cold chisel, waiting to puncture the sides of the ship and drain off what oil they can in competition with each other. If they were, presumably the captain, whether he owned the oil or not, could take a hand in the matter.

In these respects man's laws have treated a tankerfull of 50,000 barrels of oil with more respect than they have an irreplaceable oil and gas pool of a billion barrels. The oil or gas pool is an underground trap, which collected oil and gas only because it was pressure proof.

This being so, it seems obvious that man's attempt to capture its contents would recognize the same principle which had gathered them there.

Number of Punctures

A minimum number of punctures should be made in this reservoir; the gas pressure which forces the oil to the well and thence to the surface should be conserved so far as possible; the wells should be drilled and cased so as to prevent excessive production of gas and to make most effective use of gas energy in the production of oil, and the oil and gas should be kept in this time-tested reservoir until needed, rather than placed in man-made reservoirs on the surface where evaporation and fire can take their toll.

Ordinarily, none of these obviously sensible things have been done. A forest of derricks has grown on a tract of land where one would have sufficed. Where $100,000 could have drilled the single necessary well, $2,000,000 have been spent to aid 19 others to help dissipate the gas and lessen the ultimate recovery.

The loss of gas is a triple loss; first, the heating value of the gas, itself, is wasted into the air; second, and more important, the pressure of the gas underground, which might have forced the oil to the surface, is lost; third, and possibly more important than either of these two, the gas has been released from solution in the oil where originally it rendered the oil volatile and fluid. The thick oil, minus its gas, clings more firmly to the fine spaces in the oil sand, and there is less gas pressure to force it to the well.

Over-drilling and over-production have meant that in most fields only from 10 to 25 per cent of the oil has been recovered and the rest lies underground, probably lost forever through escape of its gas content, unless new methods are found to bring it to the surface. Some beginnings have been made in these new methods, such as re-pressuring, flooding, and so on, but they are poor substitutes for nature's method.

Why has all this happened? Principally because our system of land laws became crystallized before man knew very much about oil and gas. An oil pool has no vertical partitions to correspond with property lines. The first man to drill a well could drain the adjoining lands for as great a distance as the oil would percolate through the sand under its gas pressure.

Why No Captain?

Similarly the first customer to drive a hole in the side of an oil tanker might drain the tank down to the level of the hole and lose the oil below it, if the captain did not have better sense.

Why has there been no captain to correct our stupidity in bringing oil and gas to the surface? Principally because in earlier days men who had access to such a pool preferred a horse race to team work, and in later days, the mounting wave of public opinion that requires conservation of these irreplaceable resources has been met by the rules of property which grew up in those earlier days.

Now that our people have learned something about the physical character of their oil and gas reserves, and the limited nature of them, and their vital need for national defense, who is going to be the captain, to substitute a valve for a cold-chisel, and what will his powers be?

Three methods of approach have been suggested:

The problem, simply stated, is how can any of these three agencies or all of them best operate to restore nature's conditions to man's development of an oil pool; that is, how can the surface patch-work of boundaries in two dimensions be harmonized with the complex three-dimensional problem of the underground oil pool? This oil and gas pool is a unit under nature's law; how can it be made one under our own laws?

The industry itself has made progress along two lines. First, in some fields voluntary unit operating agreements have been entered into by the owners and operators of a single oil pool, with the result that their common interests are pooled in a common operating organization, wells are drilled where engineering considerations require them, and thinking is done in terms of productive area instead of town lots.

Laws Lag Behind

Our laws have lagged behind engineering knowledge in this respect. Unit development and operating agreements are specifically authorized in only three jurisdictions; on public lands of the United States under an act of congress, and in California and New Mexico.

In other states, operators are free to unitize their holdings unless the antitrust laws, whose framers never had such a necessity in mind, prevent. In some states there may be a real obstacle presented by such laws, and in others the pretended obstacle is magnified by those who still prefer horse race methods.

The outstanding example of unit operation in the country is the great Kettleman Hills oil field in California. There some 20,000 acres of foothills cover the richest oil deposit which has yet been discovered. Estimates of its contents range from one billion to four billion barrels. It produces oil not far below the gravity of gasoline. The best of it has been put directly into a gasoline tank and made to operate an automobile engine.

One barrel of this high grade oil is equivalent in gasoline content to between three and one-half and four barrels of ordinary California crude. The oil lies at great depths, ranging around 7,000 feet, and preservation of a high gas pressure is essential if the oil is to be lifted from this great depth.

Two years ago the discovery well blew in out of control, and has never been shut in, although it was successfully hooked up to pipe lines. The surface was about equally divided between government holdings and former railroad grant sections now in private ownership.

Immediately after discovery the usual history of a new oil field was re-enacted. Over a score of wells started racing down. Another well came into production, then a third, and then a fourth. It was apparent that Kettleman Hills alone could throw more gasoline on the already depressed oil market than the rest of California combined.

Gas from these few wells has been wasted into the air at a rate in excess of three hundred million cubic feet a day. At times the daily waste of gas energy from these few wells has been greater than the daily planned output of electric energy from Hoover dam.

Resources Limited

Yet, as in the case of all such extravagant production, the underlying fact remains unchanged; our oil and gas resources are limited, they are being depleted faster than those of the rest of the world combined, and the present glut of oil will be looked back upon by our descendants with incredulity and with a just resentment.

Unit operation was the immediate objective of thoughtful operators in this field. The government was instrumental in inducing a two-year shutdown on government lands of all except the two producing wells, and delayed development of most private lands, to give operators time to try to work out such a unit plan.

Meanwhile, an act of congress was secured to authorize such an arrangement.

On Jan. 31 of this year the plan was consummated by the signature of nearly all of the interested operators, and on the first of April the new unit operating corporation went into action. All the private titles remained intact but the operation on all of the government lands is concentrated in a corporation in which all operators are represented, and operations on government and private lands are to proceed under a harmonious plan of national development.

Kettleman Hills is not the only unit-operated field. There are others but, so far, they are in a pitiful minority.

So much for one line of attack by the industry itself on this problem. The industry has made a second endeavor to correct its diet. One by one in each of the great oil states—California, Texas and Oklahoma—operators have been forced by economic necessity to voluntarily limit their production. This has been done through proration, that is, the apportionment of outlets among the various fields and various producers in proportion to the capacity of their wells to produce.

In California, it has been done through voluntary agreement of the operators, put into force where necessary by injunction authorized by state law and obtained at the instance of a state officer. In Oklahoma and Texas, and also Louisiana, Arkansas and Kansas, the state takes a more direct part in fixing the production schedules.

This brings us to the second part of our problem: What can the state do which the oil industry itself can not?

New Casinghead Shipping Rates To Bring Saving

AUSTIN, July 11. (AP)—The railroad commission today prescribed new rates on casinghead gasoline which will result in an estimated $100,000 annual saving to shippers.

Charges were reduced up to 400 miles and there was a slight increase above that figure. Rates will range from eight cents for 10 miles and less to 27½ cents for more than 600 miles. They will become effective July 20.

The commission pointed out that the new rates would be higher than those proposed by the shippers and lower than those proposed by the railroads.

REDUCTIONS MADE IN CHILLICOTHE WATER RATE

CHILLICOTHE, Texas, July 11.—Another reduction in water rates has been allowed by the city whereby the consumer now pays 75 cents for the first 2,000 gallons of water instead of the former price of $1.00. The new rate, however, does not affect commercial consumers.

All water used over the 2,000 gallons up to 5,000 gallons will carry a charge of 10 cents instead of the former price of 25 cents for the same amount of water. This reduction has been made in accordance with conditions prevailing here at the present time. However, after September the old rates shall be in force again, giving the consumers approximately three months of reduced rates.

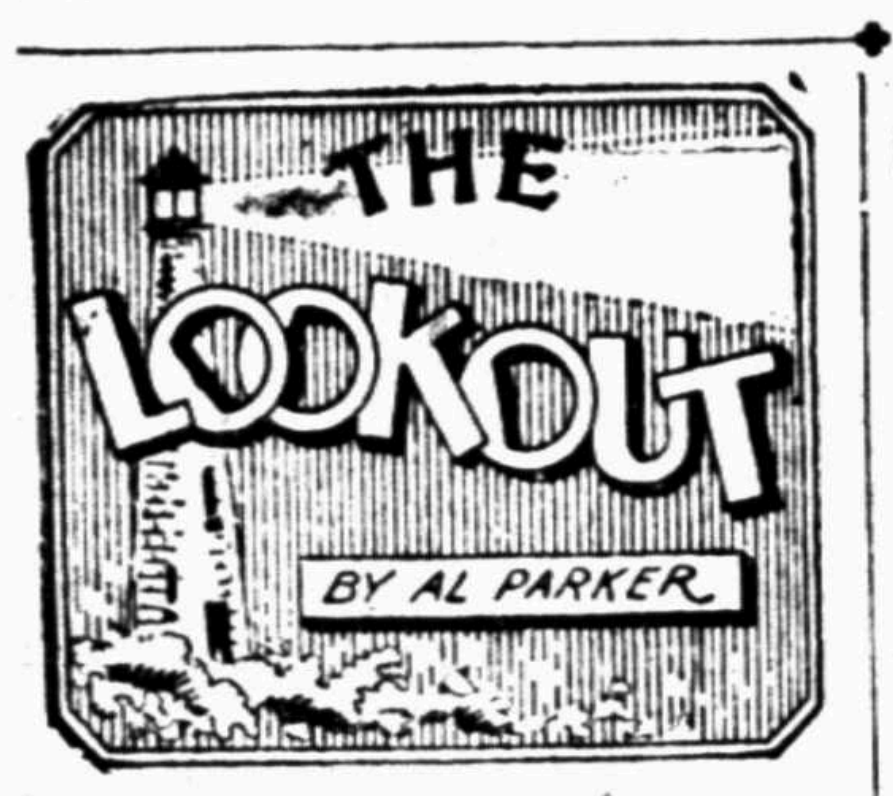
SPUDDERS BATTLE INTO EXTRA INNING TO DEFEAT SPORTS



The ideal hitter is the fellow who socks the ball to all fields; the one who defies the outfielders to "play him." That description fits Buck Stanton perfectly. The Spudder first baseman is no great wow around the bag, but at the plate he has proved beyond all doubt that he is the league's most efficient hitter. Only the most radical of upsets can prevent his leading the league this season, adding one more Spudder name to the long list of league leaders the club has produced the last 11 years. The beauty of Stanton's hitting is its consistency. He doesn't keep his average around .370 by spurts and slumps, but by steady day-in and day-out clouting, with seldom a game passing that he doesn't get his one or two or three blows.

The Buster is a straightaway hitter, with little choice of fields. He probably gets a few more hits to left than to right or center, but only because the pitchers happen to pitch outside most of the time. The outside ball is far from a weakness, but it is the lesser of the evils—he is least likely to hit that one out of the park or against the board. The other day against Fort Worth, with Bednar pitching, Buck slashed one down the right field line that went foul by several yards. That was an inside pitch. The next was outside and the result was a foul just outside third base. Bednar got the next one too close to the middle and Stanton lined a double into exact center. That's the way he hits. An outfield stands no chance whatever to play him.

Before Stanton can hope to play major league ball, however, he must make lots of hay in a fielding way. Buck started his professional baseball career in the Piedmont league as an outfielder in 1925 or 1926. In 1927 he was converted into a first baseman and at the end of the season was drafted by the Spudders. He went out late that year with a broken leg, remained idle in 1929 and was in and out of the Milwaukee lineup last season. He has had comparatively little experience as a first baseman, and he might yet bring his fielding to major league standard. The Browns, to whom Stanton surely will return at the end of the season, are likely to have a three-cornered battle raging next spring for the first base job. Besides Burns and Stanton, Art Shires now looms as a real prospect. For Milwaukee he is hitting far better than he ever did before. Since the start of the Amercan Association season the talkative one has batted around the .400 mark. The Brewers, however, have announced that Shires has been placed on the market and will go to the highest bidder, so he may not land with the Browns.

No Texas league um-pirate runs his games quite as smoothly as Harry Kane, the dean of the staff. But like all um-pirates, Harry is not immune to error. In the Dallas series here he pulled the prize boner of the um-pirating season. As it happened it made no difference in the result of the game, but it did present the Steers a run they were not entitled to, and might have brought up a nasty situation if it had happened in a close game. The bases were packed to capacity when George Loepp singled to center, scoring two legitimate runs that were enough to win the game. But Gullic's throw to third evaded Euller and rolled in the general direction of the home club's dugout. Loepp pulled up at third and Euller made no effort to retrieve the ball, both taking it for granted that it had rolled into the dugout. Loepp was standing flat-footed on third base when Kane took in a long breath and announced to the world at large that the ball was in play. Loepp then tore out for home and there was no chance at all for a play on him. If the players were not alive enough to know that the ball was in play, it certainly was not the duty of the umpire to tell them about it, particularly in a situation where such information gave one team a run. Had the run scored by Loepp won the game, the Spudders would have had the best of grounds for protest.

Next Wednesday Red Badgro becomes eligible to forsake the ranks of the unemployed. The red-head will have served his 30 days' time as a member of the injured brigade and again will be available for use in the outfield. The addition of Badgro will mean that one of the remaining 18 players will have to go. Botchey Koch being the junior member of the squad and probably the least active of all the last few weeks, attenton naturally settles on him when the subject of cutting down is the topic. But, to our way of thinking, the Spudder powers that be will be wise to retain Koch rather than one of the eight pitchers now being carried. The presence of Garms on the roster gives the club double utility insurance in that he can do a pretty durn good job of infield or outfield playing, but, nevertheless, we'd like to see Koch retained rather than a topheavy pitching staff. We can see little advantage in carrying eight pitchers and Koch can play the outfield.

The Spudders are fortunate in that including Koch the team has seven non-class men, so it will not be necessary to cut loose a class man to make room for Badgro. If a non-class man is released, the team still will have the minimum of six. If it happens to be a class man who is disposed of the team still will have seven rookies and will have a leeway of one if it should become necessary to fill in later on with a veteran player.

Another angle to the Badgro situation is just where the change will be made to let him into the lineup. Williams undoubtedly would welcome the addition of his batting punch to the lineup. But it is not going to be easy to remove Garms from the lineup, at least if the speedy youngster keeps up his brilliant play of the last few days. We doubt seriously if Badgro is a more valuable offensive or defensive player than Garms. Debs is the ideal leadoff man and not another man on the club fits the job half so well. There's not enough difference in the batting averages of the two to indicate that Badgro is the better hitter. The latter is the more experienced fielder and is more likely to do the right thing at the right time than the youngster, but we believe that Garms covers more ground than Badgro, can throw as well, if not as wisely, and is a better hand on ground balls. If Williams sees fit to sacrfice a bit of defensive steadiness for hitting power, he will send Garms back to third and Badgro to left field, but such a move would be a risky one. If the club is winning steadily it is likely that the skipper will leave it just as it stands.

Cooney Hangs Up Twelfth Victory As Result Rally

Four Hits and Two Errors Give Hopefuls Four In Tenth Round

SHREVEPORT, La., July 11.—Bunching four hits with two errors in the 10th inning, the Spudders defeated the Sports here Saturday night in the series opener, 7 to 4. Wichita Falls had fought an uphill battle after Cooney's wildness and a couple of timely hits had given the Sports an early 3 to 1 advantage. Four successive singles by the first four in the Spudder line-up in the seventh accounted for the tying runs and Bob Cooney held the Sports safely for the rest of the way to score his 12th victory of the campaign.

Oscar Tuero had matched Cooney's pitching going into the 10th, but a single by Bradbury started his downfall in the first extra inning. When Fuss dropped a sacrifice bunt down the third base line, Winegarner chunked high over first, Bradbury scoring and Fuss galloping to third. Scharein tripled to center, scoring Fuss. Euller went out with no advance, but Cooney singled to center, counting Scharein. Garms' single to right sent Cooney to third, and the latter scored as Geygan threw wild to first in an effort to complete a double play on Allday.

Errors Aid Spudders

The two teams are scheduled in a double-header here Sunday.

Two errors allowed the Spudders to score in the opening inning. After Garms rolled to Tuero and was out at first Allday was safe when Radcliff missed his skier. Stanton fanned, but on Gullic's roller to third Winegarner threw wild to first and Allday scored. Bradbury took first on Catcher Laveque's interfence. Fuss flied to left.

The Spudders were in scoring distance again in the second when Scharein opened the session with a single. Euller went safe on Winegarner's boot and both men advanced on Cooney's sacrifice. Garms rolled to Geygan and Scharein was out at the plate. Euller advanced to third. Garms stole second and Tuero tossed out Allday.

The Sports made up for a scoreless first inning by taking the lead in the second with three runs. Radcliff was walked and Solters was hit. Winegarner cleared the sacks with a triple to right center. Laveque doubled to left and Winegarner tallied. Mueller singled to center and Laveque stopped at third. Laveque remained at third when Tuero rolled into a double play, Cooney to Scharein to Stanton and Whelan ended the inning by rolling out to Euller.

Each team made a base hit in the third. Gullic beating out a bunt down the third base line and Perry singled to right field. In the fourth each team again wasted a hit, Cooney getting a single past short and Mueller a single to center for his second hit of the game.

Four Hits In Row

It was three up and three down for the next two innings and after two were out in the seventh, Garms reached base by beating out a bunt down the first base line. Allday dropped a short skier back of first base and Garms went to third. Stanton singled to center and Garms scored. Gullic singled to center and Allday scored from second without a play being made for him. Bradbury rolled out to Winegarner. Laveque fanned to start the last half of the seventh. Mueller made his third hit when he singled to center. He was forced at second on Tuero's roller to Cooney. Whelan flied to right.

Both passed up scoring chances in the eighth. Fuss started for Wichita Falls with a double, but was left at second. Perry and Radcliff singled for the home club with one out, but Cooney pitched his way out of that hole by fanning both Solters and Winegarner.

The ninth was uneventful and the Spudders polished off a good night's work with their big tenth inning. A Shreveport run in the 10th came too late.

SPUDDERS DROP KOCH SECOND TIME; BADGRO ELIGIBLE WEDNESDAY

Barton "Botchey" Koch, former Baylor university all-round athlete who has served as a utility player with the Spudders for the last few weeks, has been given his outright release, it was announced Saturday by President William E. Huff. It is the second release handed the all-American football player. He was signed by the Spudders after he had finished at Baylor this spring, was carried for about 10 days, released and then signed again when Outfielders Ted Gullic and Morris Badgro were out of the game at the same time.

Badgro, who has been on the injured list since the middle of June, is eligible Wednesday to return to the lineup. He departed with the team for Shreveport after Friday's game here.

M'Cabe and Dean Lead Chunkers First Half

Though Jerome "Dizzy" Dean, Houston's mound ace, was the biggest winner of all Texas league pitchers through the first half, Dick McCabe, Fort Worth veteran, proved the most effective of all, official statistics for the first half of the season reveal. Through games of June 30, McCabe allowed an earned runs average of 1.89 per game, while Dean's 14 victories led in that respect.

The hardest working pitcher through the first half was Bill Harris, Galveston right-hander, who tossed 153 innings and also led in complete games, 15. Dean led in strikeouts, 120, and in shutouts, five.

Bob Cooney proved not only the Spudder's most consistent winner, but the leader of the staff in effectiveness. He ranked 12th among the league's pitchers, with an average of 3.06.

Following are the first half records of all pitchers in five or more games remaining in the league:

TILDEN AND RICHARDS RIVALS OF OLD, CLASH FOR U. S. PRO HONORS

FOREST HILLS, N. J., July 11. (AP)—William Tatem Tilden, II, and Vincent Richards, tennis rivals of long standing, will meet Sunday on the center court of Forest Hills stadium for the professional tennis championship of of the United States.

They won their final brackets Saturday in decisive fashion, neither losing a set in the semi-finals. Richard defeated Karel Kozeluh, European champion, 6-2, 6-4, 6-3 and Tilden romped to victory over Howard Kinsey of San Francisco, 6-4, 6-0, 6-3.

On the record of the years and more particularly 1931, Tilden should win without trouble but Richards played impressively Saturday.

FORTY-FOUR TEAMS TO START SECOND HALF IN PLAYGROUND LEAGUES

More than 200 players in the junior playground leagues, sponsored by the city park department under the direction of Marvin Robertson, met in the park department offices Saturday and completed plans for the start this week of the second half races.

Forty-two playground teams have competed in the league play since the start of the season and two more were added Saturday for last half participation.

As an added inducement to the youngsters to continue through the season, Robertson announced plans for a swim at Westmoreland park near the end of the season and a picnic after the final games are played.

All boys participating in the playground leagues will be guests at Athletic park when the Spudders return home on July 25.

The two new teams are the Dog Town Sluggers and the Yellow Jackets. Both will compete in the Southern league.

WALKER TO BE REPLACED AS TEXAS BASKET COACH

AUSTIN, July 11. (AP)—The board of regents of the University of Texas announced Saturday night it had accepted the recommendation of the university council that Fred Walker, basket ball coach, be not employed again. Walker had filed a letter with the regents presenting his side of the case.

The regents also directed the athletic council to report whether the post Walker vacated could be filled without hiring more coaches or employes.

Marty Karow, Ohio State graduate and basket ball star, who has handled freshmen teams at the university, is among the present employes of the university council.

McDonald's Two-Hit Tossing More Than Matched By Ruffing's Work

NEW YORK, July 11. (AP)—A pair of home runs by Lou Gehrig and Jimmy Reese, the former's coming with Joe Sewell on base in the fourth inning, gave the Yankees a 3 to 1 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics in the third and deciding game of the series Saturday. The two big blows were all the hits the winners could muster off young Hank McDonald and Jim Peterson, Athletic rookies, but they proved sufficient as Charlie Ruffing set the champs down with four hits and held them scoreless the last eight innings. ALLISS FINISHES STRONG TO TIE HAGEN FOR TOP HONORS

British Pro Bags Great 32 on Last Nine to Earn Tie

Playoff at 36 Holes Slated Tuesday to Determine Canadian Champion

MISSISSAUGA COUNTRY Club, Toronto, Ont., July 11. (AP)—Clipping four strokes from par on the last nine holes, Percy Alliss, British pro at the exclusive Wannsee club in Berlin, posted a 71 in the fourth round of the Canadian open golf championship Saturday to tie the old master, Walter Hagen, at 282 and forced a play-off for the title.

The play-off, at 36 holes, will be held Tuesday.

Hagen, whose pair of 68's had given him the lead after 36 holes and who still was in front after 54 holes, faltered on his final round when he needed 74 for a total of 282.

Alliss, three strokes behind the leader at the start of the final 18-hole round, apparently shot himself out of the championship picture on the first nine when he used up 39 strokes, trailing Hagen by six strokes. But the Briton pulled himself together after the turn and negotiated the final nine in 32 for a 71 that beat par by one stroke and, more to the point, put him in a tie for the championship.

With Alliss and Hagen in, Johnny Farrell, smiling Irishman from Mamaroneck, N. Y., still was out on the fairways and in a position to overhaul both leaders. Johnny had taken 37 for his first nine of the final round, a 35 on the incoming nine would give him a tie with Alliss and Hagen and 34 would beat them both. But the birdies wouldn't click for Farrell and he wound up with 86-78 and 283, good for third place.

Mortie Dutra of Los Angeles, who gained fourth place with 284, played the best golf of the day, clipping two strokes off par with a 70 in the third round and winding up with a spectacular 68 in the final 18 holes. Two strokes back of Dutra in fifth place was the defending champion, Tommy Armour of Detroit, British open champion. A pair of 73's Saturday boosted Armour's total to 286.

INVITATION POLO EVENT PLANNED AT SAN ANGELO

SAN ANGELO, Texas, July 11.—Plans for an invitation polo tournament to be held here, starting probably between July 27 and Aug. 1, are being made by Lee Aldwell, captain, and Len Mertz, a member of the Rainbows, one of three teams here. The Concho Kids, piloted by Dick Nasworthy, will compete and Taylor Rowe may place a West Texas Utilities company squad in the field.

The Rainbows may participate in the annual Broadmoor tournament at Colorado Springs, Colo., and it is probable that other Texas clubs will stop for the tournament here en route to Colorado Springs. The El Ranchito club of Fort Worth and teams from Mason, Menard, Texon and Abilene are expected to come here. Midland and Houston clubs are tentative entries.

Sharkey Expects To Knock Walker For Easy Victory

Sailor Man Plans to Play Cat and Mouse Game With Smaller Foe

NEW YORK, July 11.—Jack Sharkey envisions his 15-round bout with Mickey Walker in Brooklyn next week as a repitition of the fabled encounter between the cat and the mouse, with Sharkey playing the role of the cat.

The writer interviewed Sharkey while the terrible sailor man was arguing with the proprietor of a haberdashery store over the price of a pair of suspenders—a circumstance that may have accounted for the Boston heavyweight's belligerent attitude.

"You can bet your last margin call that I could knock out Walker any time I please," confided Sharkey complacently. "But I won't try to put him away until after the 10th round, because I need the work."

With another championship match with Max Schmeling as his main objective, Sharkey is determined to leave no stone unturned in his campaign to secure a return bout with the German, to whom he lost on a foul 13 months ago.

"The only way I can get another shot at the title is to get everything out of the way as quickly as possible," he declared. "While I'm not taking Mickey lightly, I'd be a so-and-so if I said I couldn't lick a middleweight.

"Walker's only chance is to get in close, but he'll never do it. I'll hold him off with my left and make a nice whittling job of it—slow but sure. I'll outbox him the same way I outboxed Schmeling, only there will be no unfortunate foul this time."

"No matter how small they are, all these little guys can hit," he said. "If they get fooling around with you they are likely to bust you right on the chin. Harry Greb, in his day, could take any heavyweight and wind him around his finger, and Walker gave Greb his hardest fights. But when Mickey meets me, he'll realize he's got somebody he can't fool around with."

ST. LOUIS PUTS IN BID FOR SCHMELING AND CARNERA MATCH

ST. LOUIS, July 11. (INS)—St. Louis may be the site of a world championship fight in September between Max Schmeling and Primo Carnera, according to a telegram received here Saturday from Jack Hurley, manager of Billy Petrolle and formerly associated in boxing promotion activities here.

Hurley stated that St. Louis stood a good chance of getting the bout because Missouri recently legalized 15-round boxing contests to a decision. Schmeling is known to favor the longer contests.

Hurley wiring from New York declared that he had talked to Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's manager who seemed to regard the St. Louis site for the match favorably. Hurley declared that Jacobs stated however that he would have to wait until after the Sharkey-Walker match in New York before making a definite decision.

Important Warfare Slated This Week on Amateur Battle Fronts

CITY LEAGUE

With a decidedly close finish promised in the last half of the City league race, both games carded for Sunday afternoon bear much importance. Bailey-Moline Hardware company and Sullivan Grocery company clash at Katy park, while the Modern Woodmen play Star Transfer company on Jalonic street.

Red Nichols is carded to take the hill at Katy park against the fast stepping Sullivan crew. Manager Steve Franklin or Flip Hoskins will do the pitching for the Sullivan grocery nine. Lefty Marvin Robertson is scheduled to go against the Woodmen, but the identity of the Woodmen's tosser is unknown, with Big Bell the most likely starter.

The I. O. Boosters will journey to Crowell Sunday for an out-of-town game.

A letter was received last week at the office of League President Bill Ward from J. T. Riley, state chairman of the baseball division of the Texas Amateur Athletic federation, stating that the state playoff will start on Aug. 29-30. In order to get the Wichita Falls schedule over by that time, the last two weeks' games have been moved up to July 19 and July 26 with both games carded as double-headers.

The double-header games moved up to July 19 will find Woodmen playing Bailey-Moline and Sullivan playing the I. O. Boosters. On July 26, Sullivan and Star Transfer play double-headers while Bailey-Moline and I. O. Boosters do the same.

Dates for the first half playoff between Bailey-Moline and Star Transfer have been set for Aug. 1-2 with a double-header on Sunday. The first game of the Sunday double-header in the playoff will also count as a scheduled second half game. The series will be for the best two out of three with the double-header played Sunday regardless of the winners of the first two games. Efforts are being made by the managers of the Woodmen and I. O. Boosters, who are also scheduled for this day, to play their game in the morning so the players of these two teams can see the playoff double-header in the afternoon.

COMMERCIAL LEAGUE

The Commercial league starts its fifth week of the second half schedule Monday afternoon with four teams tied up for the middle positions in the standing and each of just two games behind the league leading First Presbyterian church club. With the second half four weeks old, the Commercial league again looks like it is going to produce another tight race. A league so well balanced as the Commercial has proven to be is one which will always draw much interest from fandom. With the race as tight as it is at present every game on this week's card can be counted as important to the final league standing.

Monday will find the Presbyterians defending their place on the peak with the Dixon Sign company team. Willard Hillin, a Dixon cast-off, is slated to do the pitching in an effort to keep the Presbyterians safely in the lead. Hillin won his last start against Dixon Sign, and at the same time started the sign painters on their drop from the league leadership. Texas Electric Service company and Noble-Little Hardware company, two clubs tied for second place, battle on Harrison field Monday afternoon.

With its ace pitcher, Gib Lowery, back into his early season stride, the Empire Paper company announces it is ready to deal trouble to the rest of the league, and Tuesday will attempt to win its third in a row with Malone's Beauty shop as the foe on Harrison field.

Presbyterians draw the hard hitting Noble-Little club Thursday on Harrison field while Malone's and Dixon battle on Debus on the same afternoon.

TWILIGHT LEAGUE

The Wichita Falls Twilight league opens its fourth week of play Sunday afternoon with five games scheduled. The league has met with unusual success in its first three weeks of play and a big year is expected for all the entries in the loop. A staff of 10 umpires will be selected to handle the games for the rest of the way and six of these already have been signed. The six umpires placed in line for active duty thus far have been Fred Brearley, Guy McNeely, John Franklin, Lois Anderson, Malcolm Mauldin and John "Babe" Horsley. The remaining four are expected to be ready by the middle of this week.

The most important battle of Sunday afternoon will be the clash between the league leading Northsiders and Wichita Poster Advertising company on Uncle Jo diamond. The Northsiders have been setting a dizzy pace in the league thus far in the race with seven victories in eight starts. The second place Veterans meet the Loafers Sunday afternoon on Jalonic. Katy and Northwest Motors meet on the Katy diamond. Denver and Tarry Transfer company play on Third and Broad with Taxman scheduled to play Smoots store on Scott.

Unless the league can find a team for the place left vacant by the Smoots store, the three Smoots games will be put on the books as forfeits. Every effort is being made by the league to find a team to fill in this vacancy.

BUSINESS INFLUENCED BY INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENTS

Few Indices of General Trade Show Conditions Improving in Some Lines While Others Indicate Further Loss

NEW YORK, July 11. (UP)—General business conditions in most sections of the country continued under the influence of international developments during the past week.

Activity in many lines showed further signs of slackening. Improved sentiment resulting from the war debt moratorium proposal was dampened considerably by possibilities that the favorable aspects of the plan might be lost through serious financial difficulties in Germany, the principal beneficiary of the move.

A few indices of general trade show that conditions are improving in some lines, while others indicate further losses. Steel production continued its decline, reaching the lowest levels since the year-end shutdown. Distribution of goods, as represented by car loadings, however, continued its improvement, reaching their best levels with one exception since the week ended May 2.

Weakness has persisted in commodity markets and most of the gains scored on the first burst of enthusiasm following the war debt proposal have been lost.

Stock prices have held relatively beter, opinion prevailing in Wall street that some means will be forthcoming to tide over Germany in its financial difficulties and that the recent declines had discounted most of the unfavorable factors now coming to light. At least the epidemic of dividend reductions has ceased and many banking difficulties have been eliminated.

Dullness in this line has had its influence on the steel industry where few companies are earning any profits. Indicative of the trend, the United States Steel corporation's June unfilled order report showed a loss of 141,129 tons to the lowest level since September, 1930.

Southwest Review

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 11. (UP)—Lower wheat and corn prices, higher prices in almost all lines of livestock, and a steady tone in dairy, egg and poultry receipts, were predicted by economists of the Kansas State Agricultural college for the trend of markets in this district for the next 30 days.

A sharp recession occurred in the oil industry this week with announcement of a new all-time low price for the mid-continent product. The new schedule, which demoralized the entire market, brought the average price around 15 cents a barrel, while the range ran from 10 to 22 cents a barrel.

Crops, favored by heavy rains, were in good condition. Wheat harvesting was rapidly progressing in all sections of the belt. Fruits, too, were making good showings.

Trading Slackens

Livestock tradings slackened a little during the first week of July. Preliminary reports showed that July receipts will be under those of June.

Retail trade, as reported in department stores, showed a three per cent decrease over the district, compared to a same decrease for the entire nation. Trade in May dropped 11½ per cent as against the same time of last year.

Flour production in the Southwest in the crop year just ended was smaller than in the preceding year, according to the Northwestern Miller. Total output in Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Nebraska totaled 24½ million barrels, compared to over 26 million barrels, in the preceding season.

After a spurt in prices several weeks ago, metals rebounded this week to make several small declines. Zinc and lead showed no change over last week.

'Baering' Down On Daily News By 'Bugs' Baer

Getting so you can only sneak in a word about the farmers on Sundays.

Remember how the old-time cabbage mechanics wouldn't sell a calf or a lamb because it had become a pet?

Well, the same thing has happened to their wheat?

It's laying around in barns, grain elevators and government warehouses. It's cheaper for a farmer to plow his crop under than it is to harvest it.

Nobody chases a cow out of a cornfield these days. The more stalks old Bossy tramples down the more the farmer likes it.

For the first time in history 1931 brought no complaints about the crop being blighted by the frost. The politicians, te middle-men and the loan sharks had attended to the blighting the winter before.

Just imagine yourself spanking a borrowed hoss with a mortgaged whip while riding an installment plow through stubble on a confiscated field and multiply that by six.

If you can project your astral body into that delightful zone then you can understand for you have reached the stratosphere of agriculture.

Little Indication Post and Gatty To Be State Guests

AUSTIN, July 11.—Post and Gatty, who flew around the globe for the thrill of it on another fellow's money, have apparently been put on a cash basis since their return, according to the experience of the Austin Chamber of Commerce.

To Gov. Ross S. Sterling's telegram inviting them to visit Austin for a state welcome, and the supporting telegram of the chamber of commerce, Aviation Vice Chairman Max Bickler received this reply from a New York agency handling the flyers:

"What is your proposition?"

Austin doesn't propose to pay the flyers anything for coming here, Mr. Bickler said. It offered them only the welcome by the state of Texas officially through Governor Sterling, the welcome of the capital city, and the acclaim of the 6,000,000 people of Post's home state.

However, he has written back to the commercial managing firm in New York asking:

"What sort of proposition do you want us to make."

Little prospect remained that the flyers will visit Austin, unless Governor Sterling's invitation, which will be backed up by one from the legislature, if there is any prospect of success, seem to hold out sufficient inducement without a cash bonus.

CRUSADER COMPLETES FLIGHT LOS ANGELES TO NEW YORK ON SATURDAY

NEW YORK, July 11. (INS)—James Goodwin Hall, who left Los Angeles at 8:18 o'clock yesterday morning, eastern daylight time, in his low-wing plane, The Crusader, landed at Roosevelt field at 1:20 o'clock eastern daylight time, this afternoon. He had stopped overnight at Wichita, Kan., and his actual flying time across the continent was 15 hours, 55 minutes.

Hall said he had not been trying to break a record. He did say that he hopes to make a non-stop flight from Montreal to Havana, some time in the next 10 days, and to break the record George Haldeman now holds for this hop. Hall, while on the Pacific coast this time broke the Vancouver to Agua Caliente record, making the 1,248 miles in 7 hours and 48 minutes.

The Crusader, a yellow plane with black striping, is equipped with retractable landing gear and powered by a 425 horsepower wasp engine souped up to 550 horsepower. Hall plans to have a variable pitch propellor installed. He would not say whether he will try to break Captain Frank Hawks' transcontinental record when this propeller has been installed.

CREDIT SECRETARIES OF PANHANDLE-PLAINS TO MEET IN AMARILLO

QUANAH, Texas, July 11.—The regular quarterly meeting of the Panhandle-Plains Credit Bureau secretaries will be held in Amarillo July 13, according to announcement from the office of the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Daisy E. Burton, of the Quanah Retail Merchants association.

About 60 counties in the Panhandle and West Texas are included in the district covered by this association, which was organized in Shamrock in February, 1930.

PRISONERS DEPRIVED OF COMPARATIVE FREEDOM RESULT OF CONSPIRACY

NEW YORK, July 11. (UP)—Five prisoners who had been transferred to the comparative freedom of the detention camp at Fort Wadsworth, Staten Island, were to be returned to Atlanta penitentiary today as a result of a federal investigation of a conspiracy by which they bought their transfers.

Meanwhile department of justice agents were informed an individual in Atlanta who either was an official or posed as one, banked $35,000 last year.

Among the prisoners to be returned was Paul Rabkin, convicted watch smuggler, said to have admitted paying $1,000 to be removed to a more northern point than the over-crowded prison at Atlanta.

Others were Harry Goldhurst, stock market adviser of Bishop James C. Cannon; John T. Locke, convicted of fraud in stock sales, and Solomon Rubman and Joseph Y. Pearlman, watch smugglers.

UNMASKED BANDITS ROB WEATHERFORD MAN ON HIGHWAY NEAR LAWTON

LAWTON, Okla., July 11.—Officers of Cotton and Comanche county are searching today for two unmasked bandits who held up J. W. Herrington of Weatherford, Texas, at 5 o'clock Saturday morning, 20 miles southeast of Lawton, in Cotton county, robbed him of $50, two suitcases of clothes and his car, setting him afoot. The car was a 1927 Model T Ford. Thinking he was in Comanche county, Mr. Herrington reported the hi-jacking to officers here. No trace has been found of the two men.

PRICES GO LOWER IN STOCK MARKET WITH TRADE SLOW

NEW YORK, July 11. (AP)—Although trading on the stock exchange was so light that fluctuations carried little weight, prices were on the way down during today's two-hour session and quotations of many leading issues were reduced one to four points net in a turnover of only 600,000 shares.

Introduction of political considerations into the German financial picture gave rise to a belief in some Wall street quarters that negotiations over Germany's requested loan might be protracted. Meanwhile, the foreign dispatches told of large withdrawals at the Reichsbank and also of the calling of French balances at London. The franc here continued strong, which brings up the possibility of gold shipments from New York to Paris. Strength of French currency against sterling, if maintained, forecasts the renewal of the gold flow from England to her cross-channel neighbor just as the British Central bank had succeeded in building up its reserve after the severe drain of several months ago.

With so small a turnover, it was obvious that the New York stock market was not unduly disturbed by the gloomy tidings from Berlin, but the existence of some nervousness was none the less apparent. However, trading in the last few days has been almost entirely professional, so that too much importance is not placed on day to day fluctuations.

Stocks found their low levels of the day in the early trading and hovered near them during the remainder of the session. U. S. Steel got as low as 95¾ and as high as 94¼, closing at 96½, off 1½. General Electric was heavy and Bethlehem, General Motors, National Biscuit, Woolworth, American Telephone, North American and American Can joined it in net losses of a point or more. Chemicals met profit-taking, while Coppers were adversely affected by the June increase in refined stocks, the third consecutive monthly gain despite the heavy recent sales. Rails were dull and mixed, but mostly lower.

Oil shares showed narrow declines, notwithstanding the feeling here that the current campaign to halt overproduction will prove effective. One of the possible solutions, it is believed, lies in consolidations and Wall street rather looks for a revival of merger talk in the next few months.

Boston Wool Market

BOSTON, July 11. (AP)—Trading in wool slackened a bit during the past week. This was an expected development after a period in which buying was as heavy as that observed during the previous two weeks. Wool prices, however, continued to strengthen gradually in spite of a slower trade. An advancing tendency was particularly noticeable on 56's and 48, 50's quality, but increasing firmness was shown on finer grades.

SLUMP IN PRICES IN COTTON MARKET HEAVY LIQUIDATION

October contracts sold off to 9.39 or 14 points net lower, but rallied a few points toward the close on covering and were finally quoted at 9.45. The general market closed steady at net declines of 8 to 11 points.

The opening was steady 2 to 7 points lower in response to the easier showing the Liverpool and the favorable weather news. Offerings were not heavy and were sufficiently well taken to cause slight rallies during the early trading. The demand was limited to some trade buying and covering, however the market eased again during the middle of the morning on a continuation of selling movement which sent prices off to 9.05 for July and 9.62 for December, or 14 to 16 points net lower. This dip attracted some covering and closing prices showed rallies of 4 to 5 points from the lowest.

Liverpool cables said there had been local covering and foreign buying in that market, supplied by liquidation and selling on the weather news from the South. According to these advices, business in cotton cloths and yarns in Manchester was unimportant and the Shanghai auction results disappointing. The amount of cotton awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 62,000 bales against 41,000 last year.

New Orleans Cotton

NEW ORLEANS, July 11. (AP)—With moderate trading in today's short week-end session, cotton prices worked moderately lower. At the lowest levels the market was three-quarters of a dollar a bale below the previous close. Depressing influences included poor cables, unfavorable foreign financial news and easier stocks. There was a slight rally on covering at the end and the close showed a net loss for the day of close to half a dollar a bale.

With Liverpool cables lower than due the market here opened 2 to 3 points easier and continued to ease off with insignificant and short-lived rallies until active months were 15 points below the previous close.

The market rallied in the final trading on covering for the over the week-end recovering 6 points from the lows, October closing at 9.46 and December at 9.68, down 9 points net for the day for both months.

Port Receipts, 1,179; for the season, 8,882,277; last season, 8,748,872. Exports, 8,300; for season, 6,553,737; last season, 6,553,732. Port stocks, 2,932,309; last year, 1,620,833. Combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston, 58,934; last year, 43,963. Spot sales at southern markets, 888; last year, 1,200.

Liverpool Cotton

LIVERPOOL, July 11. (INS)—Spots cotton was quiet at the opening today with price steady. Sales amounted to 3,000 bales and receipts totaled 5,300 bales.

CURB PRICES DRIFT LOWER IN LISTLESS WEEK-END SESSION

NEW YORK, July 11. (AP)—The curb market drifted lower in a listless week-end session today.

The turnover was only 120,000 shares, compared to 350,000 shares a fortnight ago. Last Saturday was a holiday.

Utilities were notably heavy. Rumors that the annual statements soon to be published by American and Foreign Power would show a scant margin earned over preferred dividend requirements for the year ended March 31 were reflected by a drop of nearly 2 points in American and Foreign Power warrants, and a net loss of 1½ in Electric Bond and Share, which controls American and Foreign.

The cut of ½ cent in the export copper price, bringing it down to a basis of 8 cents a pound domestic, was mirrored in a drop of 2 points in United Verde extension to a price of 9½. This issue has recently been bid up briskly to the accompaniment of reports of a new ore discovery. Newmont mining was all but inactive, and held steady.

Oils were mixed. Vacuum lost a point, and Plymouth fell back ¼ in profit-taking. Humble, however, pushed up 2 points, and Indiana was steady. Cities Service closed off ¼.

In the industrials, Aluminum Co. and A. O. Smith lost about 5 points each in a few odd lot deals. Deere was fairly active, and closed off 2 points. Dow Chemical lost nearly 3. Draper Corp., a rarely traded issue, appeared at 40, up 5, and Davenport Hosiery gained 2.

Minister in Funeral Sermon Tells 600 Friends He Is Convinced Cole Did Not Take Ernest Irby's Life

DUNCAN, Okla., July 11. (UP)—The stigma of dying in the electric chair a murderer was wiped out at dusk last night when Paul D. Cole, former Duncan banker, was lowered to his grave as 600 Oklahoma business men, bankers, doctors, friends and relatives stood with bared heads.

Following simple services at the farm home of Cole's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Cole, four miles east of here, a procession of cars over a mile long followed the hearse to the cemetery.

The services were attended by more persons than any other funeral ever held in this section of the state.

The Rev. Fred Tucker, of Oklahoma City, told of spending the last hour with Cole in the death chamber at the McAlester state penitentiary. He told of standing in the chamber and watching Cole die in the chair. And he repeated to the family and the throng of friends Cole's last statement: "I did not shot Ernest Irby."

"And friends, all of us, of Paul Cole, I stand here and tell you as one who knew him and watched him die, I do not believe Paul Cole shot Ernest Irby.'"

Banks of flowers lined the coffin, so many that a special truck was required to carry them to the cemetery.

WORLD WAR AIR HERO MARRIED ACTRESS YEAR AGO FRIENDS LEARN

CINCINNATI, Ohio, July 11. (INS)—Sir Gerald Saint Leger, viscount of Glengary and world war hero, was married a year ago to Phyllis Churchill Leighton, 24, former Cincinnati stock company actress, friends of the girl learned here today.

The bride of the viscount is the divorced wife of M. Karl Topie, Cincinnati musician, and has two sons. Sir Gerald, who received the distinguished service cross during the war, holds a government post in India, but is now at a Long Island estate with his wife and his sister, Lady Warwick, according to information received here.

LEGISLATORS WILL GET 'HOT CHECKS' FROM STATE

AUSTIN, July 11.—The Confederate pensioners of Texas are now having their warrants discounted, just like the governor, and just as the legislature will have when it meets and its members begin getting the state's hot checks.

The law permits the pension fund to borrow from the general fund; but the general fund also is in the red now, and the Confederate veterans must stand the 2 per cent discount like others.

The legislature has just simplified the pension law to save veterans from having to make out an affidavit every month, as in the past. Comptroller George H. Terrell reported this is causing some confusion among the veterans, the county officials and the banks. Warrants were mailed out without requiring the affidavit to be signed on their delivery.

The trouble for the aged veterans of executing a new sworn statement every month was abolished by the new law.

Four other crimes besides murder are punishable by death in some of our states. They are arson, rape, first-degree burglary and perjury in a capital case.

MARKETING OF NEW CROP DRIVES GRAIN TO NEW LOW LEVEL

CHICAGO, July 11. (AP)—Big receipts of newly harvested wheat put more selling pressure on the market today than buyers could readily absorb, and new low price records followed. President Hoover's statement condemning speculative sellers attracted wide attention, but exerted no apparent influence on values. Lowest quotations of the day were reached in the final dealings, with all Chicago deliveries of wheat down to below any level heretofore since 1894, and the Liverpool market at a fresh bottom outdoing every previous minimum for 277 years.

Wheat closed unsteady, 3@¾ cents lower, corn ⅝@1⅝c down, oats ⅝@1⅛c off, and provisions at 2c to 20c decline.

Wheat established a new low price record, 52½c a bushel for July contracts, at the opening. Slight rallies ensued, and the market fluctuated within narrow limits, but sagged even further near the close. Aside from the effect of enlarged receipts, especially at Kansas City, the purchase side of the market was handicapped by a bearish construction placed on the government crop report, the 1931 production of wheat in the United States being officially figured 6,000,000 bushels larger than last year.

Arrivals of domestic wheat at primary centers totaled 3,804,000 bushels, compared with 3,145,000 a year ago.

Stop loss selling of corn developed in the late trade. Weather favorable for corn growth was largely responsible, together with the bearish production forecast in the government crop report. Oats followed corn.

Provisions were affected by weakness of cereals.

BOND TRADE DULL WITH LOWEST SALE PAST FIVE MONTHS

NEW YORK, July 11. (AP)—Foreign issues provided most of the little action that developed in the bond market today, most of them in common with domestic obligations were dull.

Sales on the stock exchange totaled $4,229,000, the lowest total for a short session since Feb. 28, when the turnover was $3,400,000.

German loans reflected renewed apprehension over the financial outlook for that nation. Selling in the 5½s of 1965 and the 7s of 1949 was steady and both of them closed at the day's low levels with net losses of 3¾ and 1¼ points respectively. Other German obligations were less active but several of them scored larger net losses. Reichsmark exchange was weak, too. Lower prices appeared also in Argentine, Chilean and Brazilian loans.

United States government bonds were unusually dull and without a definite trend. Trading in them was so restricted that the total sales for the group were smaller than the turnover of a number of individual corporate and foreign bonds.

There was a firm undercurrent among the better grade issues. Consolidated Gas of New York 5½s, Atchison General 4s, American Smelting & Refining 5s, Duquesne 4½s, Pennsylvania Debenture 4½s, Pennsylvania Power & Light 4½s and Philadelphia Company Gold 5s provided larger sales than most corporate loans and were inclined to rise.

TWO DEAD AND SCORE INJURED

Birmingham's Pure Milk Plant Bombed

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 11. (INS)—Two dead and a score or more injured was the toll today of the bombing of the Pure Milk company plant here late yesterday.

The refrigeration system of the plant was destroyed, causing the escape of ammonia, which forced firemen and policemen to don gas masks.

W. H. Murphy, an employe of the milk company, said he saw the bomb hurled from an automobile speeding by the establishment.

FORD AIR TOUR DROPS WICHITA FROM ROUTING

Wichita Falls has been eliminated definitely from the itinerary of the Ford reliability air tour, according to information received at the chamber of commerce Saturday. No information was received as to what the itinerary through Texas and Oklahoma would be.

The decision of the chamber neither to appropriate the approximately $1,000 which would be necessary to bring the tour here, nor to sponsor an attempt by any other organization to do so, according to officials of the organization, undoubtedly is the reason for the elimination of Wichita Falls from the route.

The chamber, it was explained, reduced its budget to a minimum at the beginning of the year, and officials of the organization did not feel justified in taking funds already set aside for other purposes which, they believe, will be of more lasting benefit to the community.

GRANDFIELD BAND WILL PLAY FOR VAUDEVILLE BILL THURSDAY NIGHT

The Grandfield band will come to Wichita Falls Thursday night, July 16, to give a band concert at the City Auditorium park, according to a statement made by C. C. Bunnenberg, city park superintendent, who affirmed a report that Barton Dunning, director, has made arrangements for that date.

Director Dunning put his band through rehearsal Thursday night and will have another practice Tuesday night in order that the band may be at its best for the occasion. The band is composed of 20 pieces, and Mr. Dunning states that it is one of the best bands in Southwest Oklahoma and Northwest Texas, and that it compares favorably with larger bands.

A large number of Granfield people will accompany the band.

MODEST DONOR GIVES BREAD TO LOCAL POOR

"Hello. Do you have a bread line down there? No? Well, can you use some bread?"

Thus an unknown voice spoke over the phone to Mrs. Effie McHam, family relief secretary in her office Friday. But before she could say anything but "yes!" the mysterious speaker hung up.

A short while afterward, a delivery boy bringing a big load of bread of all kinds appeared at the office. He unloaded the bread, refusing to tell who the donor was. So Mrs. McHam, who appreciates the donation to her family relief services more than she can express in thanks, is yet wondering without a clue who the new Mr. X is.

NORTH BATTLEFORD, Sask., July 11. (INS)—A score of buildings were wrecked and many houses unroofed today as the result of a tornado which hit this town and rocked it like an earthquake for half an hour last night, causing heavy property damage.

INVESTIGATE ROBBERY OF POSTOFFICE IN ILLINOIS

PANA, Ill., July 11. (INS)—Postal inspectors today were investigating the robbery of the Pana postoffice last night. About $15,000 was believed to have been stolen.

The exact amount of the robbery was not known since Postmaster Charles E. Gaffner closed the outer vault doors while investigating the burglary.

New Equipment Installed Local Confection Shop

New refrigeration equipment has been installed throughout the Martha Washington Candies shop in the Hamilton building in order to provide sufficiently low temperatures for the hot summer months.

The shop is also adding new novelty lines which include non-fattening candies, children's chocolate toys and cigarets, hospital fruit candy baskets and crates and cartons with special cards for various anniversaries and other occasions.

Facilities in the flower shop have been improved and an expert is now prepared to prepare sprays and other made-up bouquets. Center pieces, corsages and funeral forms are all furnished on short notice.

Party favors and colored mints are made locally only a few hours before delivery time. The dipped strawberries, which in past years have made the local shop well known, are now supplemented by sweet Thompson grapes dipped in mint fondant, tinted to match any color scheme.

TRUST BUSINESS EXPLAINED HERE BY LOCAL BANKER

W. U. McCutchen, assistant cashier and trust officer of the First National bank, delivered an address on life insurance trusts at the regular bi-weekly meeting of the Wichita Falls Life Underwriters association in Ansley's cafe at noon Saturday.

The speaker explained that he first became interested in the trust idea through seeing beneficiaries with no business ability quickly dissipate the proceeds of life insurance.

"The primary purpose of life insurance companies is to produce cash at the death of the insured, while the primary purpose of trust companies is to administer this cash," he said.

"A life insurance trust agreement is no more than the insured's will for the distribution of his life insurance proceeds. Doubtless all of you know instances where it proved unsafe for life insurance to be paid the beneficiaries in a lump sum.

"Under many of these trust agreements the beneficiary receives a stipulated monthly allowance and the trustee can also be authorized to pay out, at his discretion, a part of the principal in case of emergencies."

San Francisco and the cities of Berkeley, Alameda and Oakland are to be joined by a bridge across San Francisco bay. The bridge will tower 500 feet above the water and will cost $72,000,000.

Reserves and Surplus

From January 1, 1931, to July 1, 1931

Increased $36,521.30

Reserves are essential in any financial institution, and the association that maintains adequate reserves to take care of anticipated losses, can have no fear of the future and will be the stronger at the return of normal conditions.

When considered from the viewpoint of actual purchasing power and safety of investment, the dividends now being paid by this association are equal to those paid two or more years ago, and the above increase in our reserves, only tends to add to the safety of the stockholders investment in this association.
