Chinese diplomat requests asylum

CHICAGO (AP) — A Chinese diplomat whose plea for asylum prompted an unscheduled landing by a jumbo jet left the plane at O'Hare International Airport on Friday after a 90-minute standoff and a "vehement" argument with his Chinese companion, officials said.

"One of the nationals has been removed from the plane and is being interviewed by government officers at the airport," said Immigration and Naturalization Service spokesman Duke Austin in Washington.

The second Chinese national aboard the plane did not get off, but flew on to New York, officials said.

The two apparently were diplomatic couriers carrying "some pouches," said Airport Police Sgt. Karl Mueller.

The government officials who boarded the plane were "trying to settle who's going to keep control of the pouches," he said.

The diplomat who continued on to New York kept them, Austin said.

The Pan American 747 was landed after the two men stood up and began arguing. "It was all in Chinese," said passenger Dr. Steve Bo of Sunnyvale, Calif. "It was a vehement argument. Then he sat off by himself, the man who defected."

Bo said airline officials told passengers they were landing in Chicago because of "an engine malfunction. They kept us on the tarmac for an hour and a half without telling us anything."

After about two hours, the pilot came on the intercom and said "it was a diplomatic, sticky situation. One wanted to defect and the other didn't want him to take the attache case," Bo said in New York.

Once the plane landed, one of the diplomats went to the bathroom with his briefcase and the other "took a tour of the plane rather quickly, looking for the other gentleman, who went to the bathroom with his bag. He wanted possession of the bag," said passenger Damien Evans of San Francisco.

Evans said the diplomats told the stewardesses their problem and the women relayed the information to the pilot.

"The stewardesses were somewhat concerned. They were concerned about a physical altercation — a gun, a knife, something they were not prepared for," Evans said.

A white-haired man he believed was from the State Department came on the plane and talked with the diplomats, Evans said. He watched the discussion through a miniature telescope, and saw "a lot of hand gestures, shaking of heads. The white-haired gentleman stood between the diplomats. The discussion lasted about an hour. It was definitely a high-level diplomatic discussion going on."

The plane, en route from San Francisco, landed at New York's John F. Kennedy International Airport about 6:20 p.m. CST, authorities said.

Airport Security Patrolman Vito Montana identified the diplomat seeking asylum as Gogiang Yang, in his 30s.

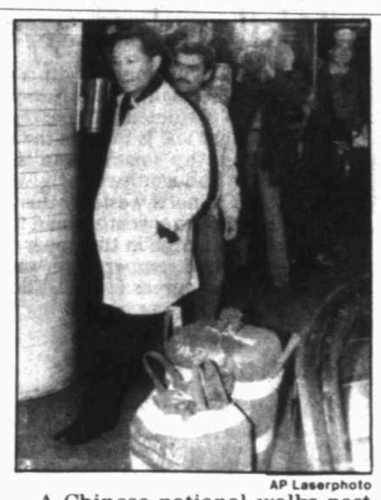

The man would be transported by the FBI to downtown Chicago federal offices, said John Drummond, deputy commissioner of the city Department of Aviation.

INS officials say it takes at least a few days to process a request for asylum.

Airport police received five minutes warning from the FAA before Flight 72 landed in Chicago at about 3 p.m. CST, said Sgt. Terry O'Donnell.

The pilot radioed the Federal Aviation Administration tower to request permission to land, saying he had "a problem" but without elaborating, O'Donnell said.

"The captain made the decision to stop himself after a disturbance" between the two Chinese broke out, said Pan Am spokeswoman Pamela Hanlon in New York.

Gasoline prices should stabilize, official believes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saudi Arabia is committed to keeping the world price of oil at $29 a barrel for at least the next three years, says U.S. Energy Secretary Donald Hodel.

Minus a disruption in supply or increased energy taxes, which some members of Congress are advocating to reduce the federal deficit, that should mean stable gasoline and heating oil prices for Americans.

Hodel said upon his return this week from a trip to four Middle East countries that Saudi Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani is determined to prevent world oil prices from rising, as some OPEC nations are demanding, or from falling in response to the current glut.

"There's clearly considerable concern in that part of the world about a short-term softening in price," Hodel said. "But Yamani, who may well be in a position to know, was emphatic that it will not happen."

The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries cut its price $5 a barrel eight months ago in an effort to revive sales that had declined to their lowest level in more than a decade.

That has helped reduce gasoline prices in the United States an average 3 cents per gallon in the past three months, despite a nickle per gallon boost in federal taxes and widespread increases in state and local taxes on the fuel.

World demand for oil, however, has yet to pick up significantly as economic recovery outside the United States lags. In response, producer nations not controlled by OPEC, such as the Soviet Union, reportedly have been allowing their prices to slip further in the past two weeks.

Meanwhile, Iran and Venezuela both indicated earlier this month they would prefer to see prices rise about $5 a barrel with a reduction in OPEC's current estimated production of 18 million barrels of oil a day.

All 13 oil ministers from the cartel nations are scheduled to meet in Geneva on Dec. 7 to map their 1984 strategy.

Hodel said Yamani made it clear that Saudi Arabia, as the "swing producer," would take whatever steps necessary to raise or reduce its current producton of 5.5 million barrels a day to keep the price at $29 for three years.

"That was more than his hope," Hodel said. "That was his projection. And of course they (Saudi Arabia) have been in a position to have considerable influence on that."

However, he acknowledged that some exporting countries want the price to rise with inflation in general, though officials admit the difficulty in measuring inflation on a worldwide basis.

"The argument there," he said, "is that if you wait three years until demand reaches a certain level, and then try to catch up in one year for three years of inflation, the jolt is too great and disruptive."

Federal agency investigates Continental Airlines pilots' arrests

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Two striking Continental Airlines pilots were arrested with a pair of pipe bombs and pictures of homes of non-striking employees, officials said.

Frances Calvin Earley, 43, of Houston and Charles Weldon Hall, 47, of Humble were charged with possession of an explosive weapon and were each released Wednesday on $10,000 bonds.

The arrests triggered an investigation by the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, said Phillip Chojnacki, acting special agent in agency's Houston office.

"We are investigating that situation referred to us by the Department of Public Safety. At this stage of the game, there's nothing I can legally refer to the news media," said Chojnacki.

Earley and Hall could not be reached for comment Friday.

The two men were arrested Tuesday afternoon in San Antonio and, at the time, said they worked in a drapery business, said DPS Trooper J.R. Holder, one of the arresting officers.

Holder said that at a bond hearing the pair listed their occupations as Continental pilots.

Continental spokesman Bruce Hicks confirmed Friday that the two were striking pilots.

"We've been totally shocked by this incident involving these striking ...pilots," Hicks said. "There has been a very well-organized campaign of harrassment, intimidation and threats since the strike began, but until now, the bulk of it has been very sophomoric.

"This is clearly well beyond the fairly mild intimidation thus far," he said.

Dennis Higgins, head of the Continental Airline Pilots' Association master executive council, told the Express the union had no knowledge of the pair's activities.

Company ships gifts with style

CHICAGO (AP) — Ninety African and Haitian masks ready to go. Top of a totem pole ready to go. Pumpkin ready to go. Marble statue ready to go. Rudolph the Red Nose Reindeer already gone.

The Christmas season is a busy one for 30-year-old Dan Kravitz, whose Pro-Pak company in suburban Northbrook packs and ships everything with style.

It's not unusual to see limousines lined up in front of his shop, unloading valuable and delicate items to be shipped anywhere by the master packer.

Kravitz started his customized service five years ago after seeing poorly wrapped packages falling apart in a Greyhound bus station where he worked.

In one month he uses enough urethane spray foam — expanding 150 times its original size — to fill nearly two semi-trailer rigs and 1,000 cardboard cartons in 42 sizes. In two months, he uses enough wood for crates to build a three-bedroom house.

"The 90 masks were very old and some were in a state of deterioration. The customer wanted them to get to a Washington (D.C.) collector in time for Christmas," said Kravitz. "We put each in contour foam in cartons and will send them in a moving van.

"The pumpkin, right out of the garden, went to a customer's granddaughter who lives where pumpkins don't grow.

"The totem pole top, about four feet high, is some kind of bird with wings jutting out. It's very old and delicate. We covered it with foam that expands around it like a cocoon and put it in a special carton to go air freight to Telluride (Colo.). The job cost $200," he said.

"We used the same system for a marble statue, a doll house three feet high painstakingly made by a man for his granddaughter in California, and customized handrails and shelving for an Acapulco (Mexico) condo."

About the strangest thing Kravitz has shipped was the original Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer, which had stood its ground for years at the home of its creator, the late Robert May, in suburban Skokie. May's 1939 story of the reindeer and its nose inspired Johnny Marks' 1949 song, now a Christmas classic.

Ex-mental health patient advocate for retarded

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A man who spent 16 years in a state home because he was wrongly diagnosed as retarded will be a guest at the White House on Monday when President Reagan proclaims the "Decade of the Disabled."

But Richard Prangley, now an active advocate for mental health patients, says he won't wear a tie — he hasn't since an attendant at the home tried to choke him.

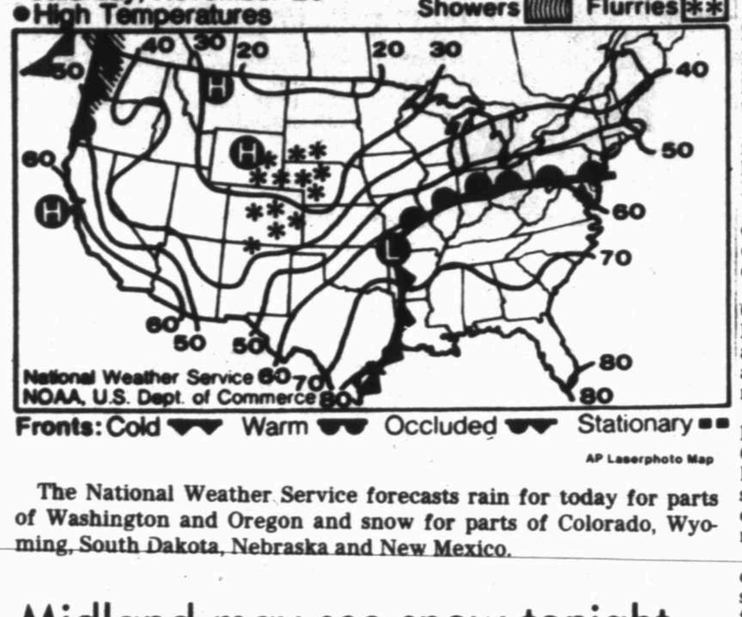

"I lost any bitterness I had a long time ago," said Prangley, 33, a bachelor who lives in a downtown Lansing hotel. "I understand what my parents were doing. They thought at the time that it was what they had to do. I'm going to have Christmas dinner with my family and I'm really looking forward to it."

Prangley's parents committed him to the Coldwater State Home at age 6, after being told by doctors his brain was permanently damaged from his premature birth during which forceps were used. He once was labeled as a low-grade imbecile.

"I was surprised when it happened," Prangley said. "I was a frightened little boy. By the time I was 10 I knew that I didn't belong there."

Shuttle crew prepares for launch

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The largest crew ever assigned to a space flight arrived here Friday, and the commander said their nine-day international science mission "will show what human beings can do in space for science and technology."

"We're really in a hurry to get on with the flight," Commander John Young told reporters as he and five fellow crewmen arrived here in NASA jets from their training base in Houston.

Young will be making a record sixth trip into orbit when Columbia blasts off on the twice-delayed Spacelab mission at 10 a.m. CST Monday.

Another of the astronauts, Ulf Merbold, a West Grman physicist, said: "I'm proud to be the first European to fly on an American space mission," adding: "I think we'll fly a great mission and I'm absolutely sure all the scientists will get good results."

The other crew members are Air Force Maj. Brewster Shaw, the pilot; mission specialists Owen K. Garriott, an electrical engineer, and Robert A. Parker, an astronomer; and payload specialist Byron K. Lichtenberg, a biomedical engineer from Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Merbold and Lichtenberg are the first non-career astronauts assigned to a U.S. space mission. Said Lichtenberg: "We're thankful to be the first of a new breed of payload specialists to fly into space."

Six is the largest number of persons named to a space crew. The last two shuttle flights each had five astronauts, while the Soviets have had as many as five aboard the Salyut space station at one time, but have never have launched more than three in a single spaceship.

While Young and Shaw take turns piloting Columbia, the others will work in round-the-clock shifts in Spacelab, a 23-foot-long, 14-foot-diameter research facility mounted in the cargo bay. It was built at a cost of $1 billion by the 10-nation European Space Agency, which contributed it to America's space transportation system.

The scientist-astronauts will conduct more than 70 experiments in five science and technology fields: life sciences; atmospheric physics and earth observations; astronomy and solar physics; space plasma physics, and materials processing.

They will work in shirt sleeves and transfer between Columbia's cabin and Spacelab through a 19-foot connecting tunnel.

The experiments have been provided by scientists from 11 European nations, Canada, Japan and the United States.

To do as much scientific work as possible, the crew has been split into two teams for the round-the-clock operation. Young, Parker and Merbold are the red shift, and Shaw, Garriott and Lichtenberg are the blue shift.

To adjust to their sleep cycles, the red shift retired to crew quarters here shortly after arrival, while the blue team scheduled a later sleep start.

Young and Shaw, and perhaps some of the others, planned to take proficiency runs in T-38 jets on Saturday. All planned to keep track of the countdown, which was to start at 3 a.m. CST today.

After 145 circuits of the globe, Columbia is to bring Spacelab back to Earth on Dec. 7, landing at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

The flight has been delayed for two months, first because ground stations for a data and voice relay satellite were not ready, and then because of a faulty rocket nozzle on one of Columbia's booster rockets.

Shaw noted the delay in his arrival remarks to reporters.

"We've been ready since September, and we'll be ready Monday," he said. "There are only six of us. But for each of us there are probably hundreds of scientists and a thousand workers from Europe to the United States who built the Spacelab, put it together, integrated it and trained us who are anxious to get this thing going."

Priests warned against entering politics

ROME (AP) — The new leader of the Jesuits said Friday he is telling the society's 26,000 members to stay out of partisan politics.

In recent years, political involvement by some Jesuits has brought controversy and papal criticism to the Roman Catholic Church's most powerful order.

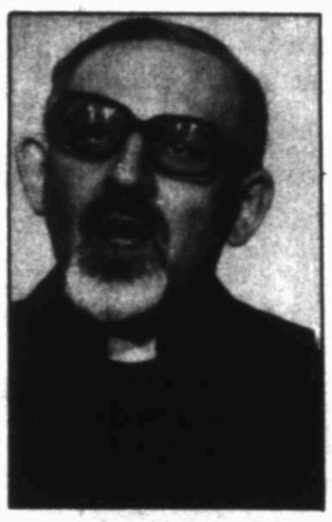

The Rev. Peter-Hans Kolvenbach, in his first news conference since election Sept. 13, said the Jesuits will continue to work for social justice, but should not align themselves with specific political movements or hold government posts.

Pope John Paul II often has criticized the Jesuits for involvement in politics. In March last year, he told 110 Jesuit leaders "there is no longer any place for deviations that have certainly been harmful to the vitality of communities and of the entire church."

The new superior general, a 54-year-old Dutch scholar, has been described as a strong supporter of the pontiff's traditional views on church doctrine and discipline.

Kolvenbach is the 29th leader of the 449-year-old Society of Jesus, founded by St. Ignatius Loyola, which runs schools, missions, prestigious universities and Vatican Radio. He succeeds the Rev. Pedro Arrupe, an ailing 76-year-old Spanish priest who retired from the post — the first superior general ever to step down from the lifetime position.

Kolvenbach's election ended nearly two years of extraordinary intervention by the pope, who had appointed his personal representatives to run the order after Arrupe fell ill.

Rev. Peter-Hans Kolvenbach

Speaking in the hall of Jesuit headquarters in Rome just over the border from Vatican City, Kolvenbach said "at the practical level it is very clear that the service of the faith is expressed in the promotion of justice and peace in the world."

Kolvenbach said that the rule against joining political movements or holding government posts applies "normally," but did not specify when such an alignment would be acceptable.

Ex-mental health patient dedicates life to retarded

State Mental Health Director Patrick Babcock said Prangley's problem was probably a learning disorder commonly treated today within public school systems.

Prangley recounted beatings, psychological abuse and punitive working conditions at Coldwater, which now houses fewer than 1,000 young people. He saw his parents and 10 brothers and sisters infrequently and began rebelling, which earned him punishment.

Released from the institution when he was 22, still unable to read or write and unfamiliar with life on the outside, Prangley held several low-paying jobs. Several years ago, he said, he decided to dedicate his life to teaching people that mental retardation is "not something to be afraid of" and to try and improve conditions at institutions.

Prangley became a common sight around the Capitol, and he met William Milliken, who was Michigan's governor from 1969-1982.

"He and the governor had developed a most unusual friendship," said House press room manager Wes Thorp, whom Prangley frequently visits. "Milliken made it clear that he wanted no publicity out of it, but he allowed Richard to stop in whenever he wanted.

"In fact, Milliken got him a job with the mailroom in the Department of Mental Health and quietly let it be known that no matter how bad things got with state finances, Richard would keep that job," Thorp said.

Now, Milliken serves as the honorary chairman of Mental Health Educational Exhibit Inc., Prangley's non-profit group which hopes to collect $200,000 to buy two vans to take state teaching people on tours of mental health programs.

Prangley has raised just $1,300 so far, but few doubt he will succeed. He also wants to write a book about growing up in a dreary mental health warehouse.

"I have been a union representative for 10 years and (have) never been involved in anything like this. I was not involved in it. As far as I know, no other union officials were involved," Higgins said.

The DPS said it pursued the pair in a car after the apparently tried to avoid a routine driver's license check on the city's north side. A variety of disguises also were found in the suspects' car, the DPS said.

DPS Trooper Hector Herrera said after the car was stopped, the two men gave the troopers their licenses. At that time, an unidentified woman drove up and gave the officer a paper sack that she said had been throw from the car by one of the men.

Herrera opened the sack and discovered two pipe bombs.

The strike against Continental began Oct. 1 after Chairman Frank Lorenzo shut down the airline and regrouped under new work rules and reduced salaries.

Continental flight operations vice president Don Breeding said the airline was concerned about the incident.

"We intend to do a thorough investigation and work with the authorities," Breeding said.

Gasoline, heating oil prices should stabilize

Hodel said an abrupt $5 price increase "would be the clincher" for many industrialized nations that are working to reduce their dependence on oil imports but which are not proceeding as rapidly as possible.

"It would strengthen their resolve in a way that little else could do," he said. "No one, by the way, disputed that."

The Reagan administration's latest national energy plan, unveiled last month, is based on projections that oil prices will be stable until 1986 but will gradually rise slightly ahead of inflation from then until 1990 as demand picks up with the recovery of the world economy.

Virtually all predictions on future oil prices include a stipulation that there is not another supply disruption similar to the 1973 Arab embargo or the 1979 revolution in Iran.

Hodel said he returned from the Middle East with "a greater sense" that the Iran-Iraq war might produce occasional hostile action aimed at oil shipments from the Persian Gulf but "less sense" that it will have much of an effect.

"They don't really believe in the end that the gulf can be closed, but they are quite clearly prepared to cooperate with nations who were working to reopen it if someone tried to close it," he said of the exporting countries.

"We talk about the impact on us," Hodel said of a disruption. "But if you're one of the gulf nations, and 90 to 95 percent of your national income is from oil going out through the gulf, the impact on them is enormous."

"All you have to do is bring in the name and address of where it's going and we'll do the rest. We thrive on challenges, and we haven't got anything yet that stumped us," he said, adding, "Nothing is ever sent that is not insured."

New trial ordered for rape suspect

AUSTIN — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals has ordered a new trial for Johnny Randolph Williams, who was convicted in Ector County March 31, 1980, on rape, robbery and burglary charges stemming from the same case.

In ordering a new trial, the court said Williams was misled in a plea-bargain arrangement as to when he would be eligible for parole.

In his appeal, Williams contended he pleaded guilty after being "induced by promises and representations" that he would be eligible for parole after serving between five and eight years on the 40-year concurrent sentences he received.

Normally, prison inmates must serve at least a third of their sentence before becoming eligible for parole.

The appeals court ruled that Williams' attorney, the late Charles Winston of Odessa, misinformed Williams about his parole eligibility date and ordered him retunred to Ector County for a new trial.

Deadline for pecans today

Deadline for pecan growers to submit their 40 whole pecans per variety in the annual Midland County Pecan Harvest Festival is 5 p.m. today.

The pecans are to be delivered to the home of Art and Marge Shaw at 40 Lavera Drive in the Ridge Heights Addition east of the Rankin Highway and just south of Midland.

Pecan food entries, from pecan-laced fudge to pecan-laden pies, are to be brought to Dellwood Mall, site of the festival, between 7:30 a.m. and 9:30 a.m. Monday.

Pecans will processed Sunday and judged Monday.

The Reporter-Telegram incorrectly said in Friday's edition that the deadline entry for whole pecans was Sunday and the deadline for entering foods featuring pecans was Tuesday.

The festival is sponsored by the 135-member Midland Pecan Growers Association. Pecan fanciers wishing additional information on the show may contact Art or Marge Shaw at 682-0315.

Bill Barrett Jr. is president of Midland Pecan Growers Association, and Mrs. Shaw is secretary-treasurer.

Santa Anna letter bought for $250,000

LAKE JACKSON (AP) — Almost 150 years after it was written, a letter of farewell from Mexican General Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna to the Texas Army has returned to Southeast Texas, where it was penned.

J.W. Terrill of Lake Jackson says he bought the letter, whose worth he estimates at $250,000, from a Florida collector.

Santa Anna was brought to Velasco, near present-day Surfside in Brazoria County, after he was captured at the Battle of San Jacinto April 21, 1836. He remained as a prisoner of war for several weeks. Believing he was on the verge of being returned home, he dashed off an elated letter to his captors.

"My friends, I consider you brave on the field of battle and generous after it," the message translates from Spanish. "You can always count on my friendship and you may never regret the consideration you have shown me. On returning to the country of my birth, through your kindness please accept this sincere farewell from your grateful Ant. Lopez de Santa Anna."

Terrill said he was pleased to have possession of the letter, written on heavy paper and dated June 1, 1836.

"This is where it was written," he said. "This is where it belongs."

Because the letter spurred protests from some members of the Texas Army, Santa Anna was removed from the ship Invincible, on which he was to depart, and taken ashore.

He remained a prisoner on Dr. James E.A. Phelps' Orozimbo Plantation near West Columbia until June 1837.

Terrill bought the letter in October from Grover Criswell of Fort McCoy, Fla. He said it had also been owned by collectors in Dallas and Amarillo, which was probably responsible for its good condition.

"It survived because it got out of here," he said, referring to the high humidity of the Texas Coast, which destroys paper rapidly.

The paper is now kept in a clear plastic case, Terrill said.

Lucas task force formed

AUSTIN (AP) — A state task force will try to coordinate the investigation of slayings that may have been committed by convicted killer Henry Lee Lucas, Department of Public Safety spokesman Larry Todd said Friday.

Todd said the DPS director, Col. Jim Adams, ordered the creation of a task force to coordinate the exchange of information and to assist local agencies in investigating Lucas, a self-proclaimed mass murderer, and Ottis Elwood Toole, a man who claims to have assisted Lucas in some killings.

Lucas, 47, a drifter who has been convicted of two killings in Texas and who is charged with eight others, has claimed to have killed about 165 people, mostly women, since he was 13.

Toole, 36, who is being held in Jacksonville, Fla., on charges of first degree murder and arson, has told authorities he helped kill between 35 and 50 people while traveling around the country with Lucas. Toole has been charged in Texas, along with Lucas, in the killing of an Odessa salesman found bludgeoned to death in Big Spring.

The task force, which will be headed by Texas Ranger Sgt. Bob Prince, will consist of Rangers, officers from the DPS Crime Analysis Service and officers fro the DPS Criminal Intelligence Service, said Adams.

"This action came at the request of Williams County sheriff Jim Boutwell in view of the ever-increasing number of inquiries from other jurisdictions interested in Lucas," said Adams.

Todd said the inquiries come from investigators and police agencies throughout Texas and in numerous other states.

Adams said the limited resources of local agencies was a consideration in his decision to expand the role of the DPS in the investigation.

He said Gov. Mark White had expressed his interest in the case and in the need to establish an expanded, coordinated effort in the investigation.

Police officers build own station

SACHSE (AP) — When city officials told the Sachse Police Department they could not afford to build a new station, the officers decided to build one themselves.

Tired of being jammed into a back room of City Hall, the officers volunteered to provide the labor if the city would pay $13,000 for building materials.

The city agreed and construction began on the one-story brick building last month.

"At first, I think, there was doubt by some that we could do it," Police Chief Johnny Holley said. "We had our ups and downs but overall we enjoyed it...It's been an experience. It will give us something to talk about for a long time."

The department's five full-time police officers and five reserve officers volunteered their weekend time and did the framing, sheetrock, walls, flooring, painting and roofing work. The slab, plumbing, brick and electrical work were hired out.

"If something falls down or breaks, I guess it will be our fault," Holley said.

Holley said he hopes the 1,600-square-foot building, which resembles a house more than a police station, will be finished Dec. 1.

Rank may have some privileges in the field, but it had none at the construction site.

"I've driven nails, I've put in labor. I've picked up trash," the police chief said. "I've hit my thumbs. We were all pretty equal on this deal."

High noon doubled in 1883

Sunday, Nov. 18, 1883, when at noon the railroads standardized time into four zones, was called the "Day of Two Noons" because in the eastern part of each zone there was a noon by the sun and another by standard time.

Telegraph lines transmitted the new noon time from the master clock in the U.S. Naval Observatory in Washington to major cities.

Frost crystals line the edges of a small leaf Friday morning, heralding colder weather to come to West Texas, which so far has enjoyed a warm autumn. This week temperatures plunged to freezing levels for the first time, though Friday the mercury rose to the 50s again. More frost is expected this weekend as a cold front is due to move in.

Plane crashes

KERRVILLE (AP) — Four people died Friday when a twin-engine airplane crashed shortly after takeoff from a private landing strip on a ranch in southeastern Kerr County, authorities said.

The plane, believed to be a Piper Cherokee, took off from Haskell Field, went into a right-hand bank and crashed a half-mile from the field and caught fire, said Department of Public Safety spokesman Frank Felts in Kerrville.

He said the cause of the crash on the Walter Newenberger Ranch was not immediately known.

The dead were identified as Dr. Charles John Thuss Jr., 47, of San Antonio; Carter Thuss, 7; Amy Browder Teplansky, 34, of Brookline, Mass.; and Steve Teplansky, age unknown, of Brookline, Mass.

Manhunt continues for missing general

NEW BEDFORD, Mass. (AP) — Police said Friday a nationwide hunt was under way for the car belonging to a National Guard general who has been missing for nine days.

"Everything is still open until we find that car," said Police Lt. Guy Oliveira, who is coordinating the search for Brig. Gen. Howard S. Tripp, 49, last seen driving away in his tan 1980 Pontiac Phoenix on Nov. 16.

Oliveira said a description of the car and its license number has been broadcast on national teletype with no response.

He said searchers aren't even sure in what direction Tripp headed when he left National Guard headquarters on Commonwealth Avenue in Boston.

"Everyone I've talked to describes him as a methodical person," Oliveira said. "When this man would go away, he would consult with everybody at work about what he wanted done while he was out of town. He was a stickler as far as getting things done."

"Howard is unique," said David Gavigan, a National Guard assistant adjutant general and the last person known to have seen Tripp. "This guy has never had a drink in his life. I've never heard him swear. He never badmouthed anybody. He is a good person."

Policemen help lost traveler have nice holiday

BOSTON (AP) — A retired teacher stopped for a drink on his way to his sister's house for Thanksgiving and wound up lost and broke, but two policemen went out of their way to help him have an unforgettable holiday anyway.

James McGinness, 75, had flown to Boston from Augusta, Maine, on Tuesday, planning to catch a bus to Troy, N.H., to visit his 90-year-old sister.

Once at Logan International Airport, he slipped into a bar "for a drink, and when I get drinking I'm an altogether different person," said McGinness, of Randolph, Maine.

By Thanksgiving Day he had spent most of his $200 on "silly things, like taxicab rides and such," and had only $8.55 left.

McGinness had spent Tuesday night at a YMCA, missed his bus to Troy on Wednesday, and stayed at the Y again Wednesday night.

Then on Thursday, "I didn't know where I was going, but I got on a bus anyway," and the driver left him off at the Dudley train station in the city's Roxbury section, where Officers Ray Mosher and Henry Berlo found him.

"I saw this old-timer by the Dudley Station, real well-dressed, very dignified and well-mannered," said Mosher. "I thought he looked out of place. When I pulled over to ask him if I could help him, he told me he was cold and hungry and out of money."

Mosher and Berlo arranged for McGinness, whose only other relative is a son living in New York, to have Thanksgiving dinner at the airport Hilton Hotel, stay overnight there, and fly back to Maine on Friday morning.

"I've never been treated so well in my life," McGinness said. "I wound up broke in this town, and I've got two bum legs. I knew I was in trouble when I couldn't find Scollay Square."

The square was the city's old burlesque and adult-entertainment area, torn down some 30 years ago.

"I was so exhausted I didn't know what to do," he said. "It was scary for this little country boy But the Boston police are great. Just great."

Mosher said he and Berlo "felt real bad" about not getting McGinness to Troy for Thanksgiving, but there wasn't another bus until Monday.

"But we had pledged that we would help him in any way we could," Mosher said, "and that meant getting him a place to sleep and a way home."

Truck driver may have been shot to death by hitchhiker

JACKSON, Mo. (AP) — Authorities said Friday a hitchhiker may have killed a truck driver whose bullet-riddled body was found Thanksgiving Day.

Kenneth M. Wood, 61, of Oconto, Wis., was shot several times and his body was spotted about 150 feet off the highway by a passing motorist early Thursday, said Cape Girardeau County Coroner Harold G. Cobb.

Authorities speculated that Wood may have picked up a hitchhiker who later shot him. The slain trucker's wallet still contained cash, credit cards and other items, Cobb said.

Flyers containing photographs of Wood and of his white rig with blue lettering on the side were being circulated at truck stops along the route Wood had driven his rig from Sheffield, Ala., said Cape Girardeau County Sheriff Bob Gribler.

Masked men hold up Wells Fargo

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Police and FBI agents Friday were seeking two men who put on Halloween masks and staged a $2 million Thanksgiving Day holdup at an armored car company.

Two men wearing the masks and what appeared to be Wells Fargo Armored Service Co. uniforms grabbed a female Wells Fargo employee Thursday in the company's parking lot and forced her to let them into the vault and sorting area.

Police said they did not know how the robbers got into the parking lot, which is surrounded by a high fence and a locked gate.

The men, both armed with pistols, tied up the woman and two male employees, then loaded cash and negotiable securities into a vehicle and fled.

Police Capt. Clyde Keenan said employees told investigators that the bandits' vehicle sounded like a diesel pickup truck or van.

Bombs explode in Santiago, Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — At least 15 bombs exploded Thursday night and early Friday throughout Santiago, and a group opposed to Chile's military regime claimed responsibility. No one was hurt and nothing was seriously damaged, police said.

The Manuel Rodriguez Patriotic Front sent journalists leaflets saying the bombs were part of a "sabotage offensive" to draw "the attention of our people and the world" to the rule of President Augusto Pinochet.

Last spring, Chileans began a series of protest days to rally in favor of democracy and against Pinochet's regime.
before the meeting ended on Wednesday.

Hungary wants Bulgarian's release

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — Hungary on Friday said Italy should release Sergei Antonov, a Bulgarian arrested a year ago in connection with the 1981 assassination attempt on Pope John Paul II.

"Antonov...is the victim of an affair created to further strain the East-West relationship," said the Communist Party daily, Nepszabadsag, in an article carried by the state-run news agency, MTI.

Antonov, a Rome-based employee of Bulgaria's state airlines, was implicated by Mehmet Ali Agca, who is serving a life sentence in Italy for the attack on the pope. Agca said the Bulgarian was also involved in an attempt on the life of Lech Walesa, the former leader of Poland's outlawed Solidarity trade union. Italian authorities charged Agca this week with slander for his allegations that Antonov plotted against Walesa.

Court orders end of postal strike

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — A Dutch court on Friday ordered a government employees union to halt a postal strike that has hobbled business activity for almost three weeks.

The Hague district court warned that if the strike continues, "many companies, especially small ones, will face ruin" because there are no mail deliveries.

The court said that the right of government employes to strike is limited. After the injunction was issued, the Socialist-Catholic Public Employees Union said it would ask its membership to comply. The union, the nation's largest with 330,000 members, had called a strike by 2,500 mail sorters as part of a protest against planned government cutbacks in pay and benefits.

People missing after tornado

PIETERMARITZBURG, South Africa (AP) — Crews searched on Friday for 13 people missing a day after a tornado roared through a farming village, killing nine and injuring more than 100 others.

The tornado flattened more than 100 huts in the black community.

A police spokesman said officers had to shoot 38 head of cattle maimed by the twister Thursday evening in Mpendle, in Natal Province.

Vehicles crash

GIESSEN, West Germany (AP) — About 250 cars and trucks slammed together in a massive autobahn pileup caused by thick fog and slippery roads, police reported Friday.

A police spokesman said more than a dozen people were slightly injured in the accident.

The crash backed up traffic on both sides of the four-lane highway for nearly 12 miles, according to the police.

Filipino sergeant testifies he shot Aquino's assassin

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — An air force sergeant testified Friday that he saw the assassination of opposition leader Benigno Aquino, then immediately shot the killer on the tarmac at Manila airport.

Sgt. Rolando de Guzman was among the troops standing by at Aquino's airport arrival. He testified before a commission investigating the Aug. 21 murder that he shot the alleged killer as soon as he saw him "suddenly materialize" and fire at the back of Aquino's head.

"I got a chance to shoot the man who shot former senator Aquino and I hit him," de Guzman said, adding that "before his body (the alleged assassin's) touched the ground, I had used up seven bullets."

De Guzman re-enacted the double killing during a seven-hour hearing. He was the first witness to testify that he saw Aquino's assassination at Manila airport, minutes after the landing of the plane bringing Aquino back from three years of self-exile in the United States.

The government has identified Aquino's alleged assassin as Rolando Galman, an alleged Communist guerrilla leader. The government first said Galman was a hired assassin.

Marco's government has repeatedly denied charges of complicity in the assassination. Aquino's family and opposition leaders claim Galman was a scapegoat.

China lodges another protest against U.S.

PEKING (AP) — China on Friday lodged its second strong protest against the United States in a week, accusing the U.S. Congress of escalating attempts to keep Taiwan separated from mainland China.

The latest protest is over an appropriations bill passed by both the House and Senate which says Taiwan should remain a member of the Asian Development Bank regardless of whether China is admitted.

The official Xinhua news agency said China's assistant foreign minister, Zhu Qichen, called Ambassador Arthur W. Hummel to hand over a "serious protest."

"The Chinese government emphatically calls upon the U.S. government to take immediate concrete measures to stop all attempts at creating 'two Chinas,'" the protest note said. It warned that "serious consequences" could arise from such attempts.

China has made plain it holds the Reagan administration responsible for what it calls "deliberate interference in China's internal affairs" by the U.S. Congress.

President Reagan is scheduled to visit China next April.

Both the Communist government on the mainland and the republic on Taiwan claim to represent all of China. The United States severed formal diplomatic ties with Taiwan in 1979 at the time it recognized the mainland government, but it maintains informal relations with the island.

Last Friday, a Chinese protest accused the Senate Foreign Relations Committee of working for Taiwan's permanent separation from China and harming U.S.-China relations when they "have just begun to turn for the better."

The committee had approved a resolution saying Taiwan's future should be settled "peacefully, free of coercion and in a manner acceptable to the people on Taiwan..."

The appropriations bill that aroused the latest protest refers to Taiwan as the "Republic of China." China says that amounts to treating Taiwan as an independent state rather than a province that belongs under Peking's sovereignty.

Referring to the bank issue, the protest note said, "in all intergovernmental international bodies, including the Asian Development Bank, only the government of the People's Republic of China can represent China."

It added, "Since last February, when the government of the People's Republic of China formally notified the Asian Development Bank of its decision to apply for membership in the bank, the U.S. side has tried hard to pursue the 'two China policy in the Asian Development Bank.'"

The United States, a major contributor of funds for the bank, has agreed to vote for China's admission, but not Taiwan's expulsion.

THE BETTER HALF

"I had it made just for you! Now you can play golf and shovel the driveway at the same time!"

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Sunday, November 27, 1983

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Israel's first President, Chaim Weizmann, and financier Cornelius Vanderbilt were born on this date. Others sharing your birthday include kung-fu specialist Bruce Lee, producer David Merrick and football's Don Strock. Your charm is a big asset in business. Trust your loved ones. They come up with the best idea you have ever heard. An inheritance could be in the spotlight in February. You discover some career alternatives that really excite you. Ask for loans only when you really need them. A romantic interlude could lead to a permanent alliance. Family opposition is temporary. A young person is on your side.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Habits can be changed if the incentive is strong enough. Level with loved one. Forget halfway measures when it comes to helping a family member or old friend.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Take advantage of an invitation and spend today with a caring friend. The number 7 is lucky for you now. Rest up so that you can return to work tomorrow raring to go.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A good day to catch up on your reading. A new trend is revealed. Plan to jump on the bandwagon early tomorrow. Listen carefully to what someone at a distance has to say.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A romantic triangle ends and you get a fresh start. Do not waste any more time. Intellectual pursuits captivate you now. The tension caused by an unsettling situation drains away.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Perform more services for yourself to save money. Others understand your desire to cut expenses. A blind date could be the start of something great. Do not reveal too much too soon.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Cash flow improves. Show discretion when questioning a visiting friend or relative. You might be better off without the answers! An imaginative approach lights the fires of romance.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Curb a tendency to be overly critical or you could spoil a happy family reunion. A friend suddenly turns romantic. Visit an older person confined to hospital or home.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Go ahead and do some traveling if you have the cash and time. After a hectic autumn, you deserve the break. Romance seems more exciting in a new setting.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Get ready for a visitor who always seems to know all the answers. You do not have to tolerate boorish behavior in your home. Keep your long-term goals in mind.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Resist a family member's appeal to enter a no-win situation. A spur-of-the-moment outing proves to be more fun than your original plans. Do not let anyone misuse your credit.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be patient with a teenager who is trying to do the right thing. Areas that were previously closed to discussion are now fair game. A loving, imaginative mate brings you special happiness.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You need not feel guilty about spending more time with one family member than with another. Try not to be so hard on yourself. Speak from your heart in romance.

ABC lifted to top of ratings

LOS ANGELES (AP) — ABC's much-discussed nuclear war movie "The Day After," in what was virtually a solo effort, propelled ABC ahead of CBS to win the Nielsen ratings for the week ended Nov. 20.

ABC won the week although the movie was its only entry in the Top 10 and eight of the others were CBS programs. The movie's rating of 46.0 and share of 62 percent gave ABC a tremendous boost over CBS and NBC.

CBS won the week before and remains ahead for the season to date. Third-place NBC also had one show in the top rank.

The movie, which attracted 100 million viewers, devastated its Sunday night opposition. The opening chapter of the NBC miniseries "Kennedy" was in 54th place. The CBS lineup of comedies also fell below their usual rankings.

ABC won the week with an average of 20.4 in the A.C. Nielsen Co. ratings. CBS was second with 19.1 and NBC was third with 13.5. The networks say this means that in an average prime-time minute 20.4 percent of the nation's TV homes were tuned to ABC.

THE second-place show, CBS' "Dallas," was 18½ ratings points behind with a rating of 27.5.

CBS' "Simon & Simon" took third place. NBC's "The A-Team" was fourth. All the rest were CBS shows: "Falcon Crest" and "Chiefs," Part III, tied for fifth; "Chiefs," Part II, seventh; "60 Minutes," eighth; "Magnum, P.I.," ninth; and "Knots Landing," tenth.

The rating of "The Day After" fell short of breaking any viewing records. It became the most watched made-for-television movie, but overall it ranks after such series programs as the final episode of "M-A-S-H" and the "Who shot J.R.?" episode of "Dallas."

Among the all-time ratings champs, "The Day After" ranks 12th according to rating and fith according to the number of households. This variance is because the audience grows each year, so a ratings point equals a larger number of homes. Therefore a 1983 program can have a lower rating than one in 1980 but still have a larger audience.

CBS HAD a rating of 18.2 for the season, which completed its eighth week. ABC was second with 17.8 and NBC third with 15.1.

The lowest-rated show of the week was NBC's "Bay City Blues," which the network has temporarily taken off the air to look for a better time period. The five bottom shows, all on NBC, in descending order were "Mr. Smith," "Jennifer Slept Here," the movie "Blow Out," "First Camera" and "Bay City Blues."

CBS kept its lead among the evening news shows. CBS had a rating of 14.1 and ABC and NBC tied with 11.5.

Here are the 20 top programs:

1. Movie "The Day After," ABC, a rating of 46.0 or 38.5 million households.
2. "Dallas," CBS, 27.5 or 23.0 million.
3. "Simon & Simon," CBS, 25.2 or 21.1 million.
4. "The A-Team," NBC, 25.1 or 21.0 million.
5. "Falcon Crest," CBS, 23.7 or 19.8 million.
5. Tie-Miniseries "Chiefs," Part III, CBS, 23.7 or 19.8 million.
7. Miniseries "Chiefs," Part II, CBS, 23.0 or 19.2 million.
8. "60 Minutes," CBS, 22.8 or 19.1 million.
9. "Magnum, P.I.," CBS, 22.2 or 18.6 million.
10. "Knots Landing," CBS, 21.0 or 17.5 million.
11. "The Fall Guy," ABC, 20.6 or 17.2 million.
11. Tie-"Dynasty," ABC, 20.6 or 17.2 million.
13. "AfterMASH," CBS, 20.5 or 17.1 million.
14. "Scarecrow & Mrs. King," CBS, 19.5 or 16.3 million.
14. Tie-"The World's Funniest Commercial Goofs," ABC, 19.5 or 16.3 million.
16. "Newhart," CBS, 19.2 or 16.0 million.
17. "Hart to Hart," ABC, 19.0 or 15.9 million.
17. Tie-"The Love Boat," ABC, 19.0 or 15.9 million.
19. "The Dukes of Hazzard," CBS, 18.3 or 15.3 million.
20. Movie "Ordinary People," NBC, 18.2 or 15.2 million.

Telescope dying of heat

WASHINGTON (AP) — NASA has announced the imminent, untimely death of an orbiting telescope that is rewriting astronomy books. Age, 10 months. Cause of death: At 448 degrees below zero, it's overheating.

The focal plane on the Infrared Astronomical Satellite telescope has to be cooled to a temperature of 2.5 degrees above absolute zero — minus 455 degrees Fahrenheit. On Monday night the superfluid helium used for cooling ran out and the focal plane is warming at the rate of four-tenths of one degree an hour.

Since its launch last January, the Infrared Astronomical Satellite has:

—Produced direct evidence that ours is not the only solar system.

—Discovered five comets and recorded more than 200,000 objects in the heavens.

—Found three giant rings of dust in the solar system, huge dust shells around the star Betelgeuse and a mysterious object — possibly an asteroid or a dead comet — that passes nearer to the sun than any planet or known asteroid.

—Successfully surveyed 95 percent of the sky, found a ring of solid material around the star Vega, bands of dust around the sun between the orbits of Mars and Jupiter, and taken a new look at our own galaxy, the Milky Way.

—Returned more than 200 billion bits of data to Earth, allowing scientists see beyond the dust veils that normally obscure stars in formation or in their death throes.

As it moved through a polar orbit, 563 miles high above Earth, with the focal plane chilled properly, the telescope's infra-red detector recorded radiation from cold masses of gas in space. From Earth, such radiation is filtered out by the atmosphere and can't be measured.

Useful scientific observations can continue until the temperature rises to minus 448 degrees, early next week.

The satellite, known as IRAS, was launched Jan. 25 carrying 165 pounds of refrigerant. Before launch, engineers estimated the helium would last only seven months, but they revised their estimate after seeing how much was being used, predicting the satellite would operate into January 1984.

However, the Rutherford-Appleton Laboratories at Didcot, England, which operates the IRAS tracking station, said IRAS depleted its supply at 8:30 p.m. EST Monday.

"Considering the uncertainties in the calibration estimates in the flow rate of helium usage, the achieved lifetime is within about 10 percent of predictions," NASA said.

IRAS is a joint venture of the United States, the Netherlands and Great Britain. The United States contributed $150 million to the $200 million total cost.

Hunger mounting in debt-ridden Brazil

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — Dinalva Rodrigues Bispo, a 55-year-old unemployed housemaid, picked through a pile of discarded fruit and vegetables at an open-air market here recently. After a few minutes she had a handful of oranges, tomatoes and bananas that seemed acceptable.

"Well, today we'll eat," she said to no one in particular.

A majority of Brazil's 131 million people aren't in the same situation as Mrs. Bispo, who survives by scavenging for food here in Brazil's center of industry and commerce.

But scenes similar to that of Mrs. Bispo picking through a pile of discarded food are increasing in a worsening economic crisis that has left the country with a $90 billion foreign debt it can't repay.

Some politicians in opposition to the military-backed government are calling for a moratorium on the debt until the country pulls itself out of recession and gets people back to work.

Otherwise, they predict, social upheaval will be the result.

Cases of hunger and unemployment were far fewer 10 years ago, especially in cities like Sao Paulo, when Brazil was in the midst of an industrial-development boom and the nation's future seemed bright.

But a quadrupling of the price of oil brought the boom to a halt, and the country steadily fell victim to inflation and world recession.

Today an estimated 40 percent of Brazil's 47-million-member work force is either unemployed or underemployed.

Mrs. Bispo and her husband are among them, trying to cope not only with joblessness but also with an inflation rate that is running at about 160 percent and a recession that has diminished job opportunities.

Mrs. Bispo said she lost her job a year ago "because the couple I worked for decided they had to save money and couldn't afford a maid."

She earned the equivalent of less than $40 a month at the time, she said, and has been unable to find another job "because wherever I go I'm told I am too old."

The majority of workers in Brazil earn less than $150 a month.

'Maverick's' brother elected town's mayor

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The actor who played James Garner's brother Bart in the old "Maverick" TV series has a new role — as mayor of this seaside resort.

Jack Kelly, 56, a member of the Huntington Beach City Council since 1980, was selected as mayor by his colleagues Monday.

Kelly worked in the Democratic presidential campaigns of John F. Kennedy and Adlai Stevenson, but asked if he will make politics a career, he replied, "Ask me that in a year."

Kelly was born to show business. His father was a New York ticket broker and his mother a model, and he began his career as a baby in soap ads.

His sister, Nancy, performed on Broadway and was nominated for an Oscar for her role in "The Bad Seed." The family left New York to join her in Hollywood, and Kelly won child roles in such films as "Young Mister Lincoln" and "Alexander Graham Bell."

His film credits include "Where Danger Lies" (1951), "Drive a Crooked Road" (1954) and "To Hell and Back."

"Maverick," which starred Garner as Bret Maverick and featured Roger Moore as cousin Beau, ran from 1957 to 1962.

WHITTINGTON, England (AP) — On a windswept parade ground in the heart of England, Prince Charles told young army recruits Friday that they were men of peace, not war.

"You will form part of this country's vital insurance policy for which we all pay a substantial premium," Charles said after reviewing 32 graduates of the British army's 20-week infantry training course.

"By electing this profession of your own free will, you have become professional peacemakers, not warmakers," the 35-year-old heir to the throne told the soldiers, who will be posted to the nine regiments of the army's Prince of Wales' Division.

For the ceremony, the 35-year-old Charles wore his uniform as the regiment's honorary colonel-in-chief.

POLAND, Maine (AP) — Bill Dunlop who is traveling around the world in a tiny sailboat, ran into a bit of trouble this week on dry land, a friend says.

Dunlop was jumped by four men as he walked along a street in Kingston, Jamaica, looking for a hotel, said Edward Heath of Poland. His watch and wallet were stolen, and he suffered bruises and a cut wrist.

Bill Dunlop

Dunlop last year sailed alone across the Atlantic in a 9-foot boat. Many Jamaicans knew of Dunlop's trip and were upset by the incident, said Heath. A detective has been assigned to Dunlop, of Mechanic Falls, and his wife, who is visiting him on his Caribbean stopover.

Heath spoke to Dunlop's wife, Pamela.

Dunlop is expected to sail for the Panama Canal in about a week as he continues a voyage that began this summer in Portland. He rebuilt his sailboat, taking a bit off the length, and hopes to circumnavigate the globe in the smallest boat ever.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — An advertising sales executive from Denmark has won $1 million and the title of Penthouse Magazine's 1983 International Pet of the Year.

Jeanette Starion, who also works as a stunt woman, emerged as the winner Thursday among 28 entrants and 10 finalists after being judged in five categories, including swimsuit, evening gown, fantasy costume, personality and photography, said Linn Tanzman, spokeswoman of the Sands Hotel and Casino where the finals were held.

"My title is the best present I could have," said the Copenhagen resident who turned 20 on Friday. "I wanted to be first or nothing."

First runner-up was Amparo Grisales of Colombia, an actress in a night-time soap opera. Brigitta Cimarolli of Austria, a model and champion chess player, placed third.

The U.S. entrant, Sheila Kennedy of New York City, placed among the 10 finalists, Ms. Tanzman said.

She added that this was the first time an International Pet of the Year had been selected. Ms. Starion will make appearances for the magazine for the next year and also be photographed for the centerfold of a future international issue, Ms. Tanzman said.

Normally, magazine issues feature different women as Pet of the Year, depending on the country in which they are printed.

Producers of the competition, which was videotaped for television syndication, have stressed that there is no nudity involved either in the preliminary contests or in the finale.

Businessman eats ketchup on anything but coffee

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Dave Gaon rejected a suggestion that he put ketchup in his coffee, but he'll eat it on almost anything else. Now he's asking, "Is There Life Without Ketchup?"

"Certainly not," he answers to the question posed by the title of his book in praise of the common condiment.

Since he was a child, Gaon has spread ketchup on bread, made soup from it and used it in other ways that gave his parents gray hair.

The inspiration for the tomatoey tome came from his former girlfriend, who choked while he was dumping ketchup on his breakfast — including his toast with jam.

"Oh, my God," she said. "That's sick."

The lightbulb clicked on, and Gaon was off to the races, or at least to the San Jose State University library, where he waded through some 500 books collecting recipes and other material for his book.

One thing he learned surprised him. Ketchup is not necessarily made just out of tomatoes.

"Take away the tomatoes and what's left is ketchup," he said. "You can put any old thing you want in it."

There was one worry, said Gaon. He's not exactly a famous author.

"I have degrees in business administration and park management," the 26-year-old sales representative said. "But I was always lousy in English."

The book went through three rewrites before it acquired the flavor he was looking for.

"The first time it came out like a college textbook," he recalled. "The second time it came out like a textbook with a little bit of sarcasm. I got all the textbook stuff squeezed out of it the third time."

Unfortunately for Gaon, the tome did not vault immediately to the top of the best-seller list. He paid to have it published and peddled it personally to 23 bookstores. He was selling three or four copies a week.

Shoppers get head start on holiday

By The Associated Press

Storekeepers reported the best sales for the day in years Friday as shoppers pulled out their lists and rushed into the traditional opening of the Christmas gift-buying season.

"They're buying everything," said Woody Hall, manager of the Cumberland Mall north of Atlanta. He said the crowds were the largest in at least five years.

"All indications are that we'll have a spectacular day," said Stuart Wagner, manager of Fairlane Town Center, a 190-store shopping mall at Dearborn, Mich.

Gary W. Ramsey, manager of a Sears, Roebuck & Co. store in Raleigh, N.C., said business was "unbelievably good," adding: "This is going to be the best year in the history of the store." Other merchants in North Carolina said they expected holiday sales to be at least 15 percent higher than last year.

IN AN ASSOCIATED Press spot check, retailers and shoppers nationwide said the season's hottest-selling items included telephones and telephone accessories, home computers, lingerie, the "Cabbage Patch Kids" dolls and the "Care Bears."

Store managers said they could not keep enough of the Cabbage Patch Kids dolls and Care Bears in stock.

"As soon as we get them in they're gone," said Gwyn Manns of Lionel-Toy Town in Randallstown, Md.

Retailers also warned of possible shortages of other fast-selling items.

Edward A. Brennan, chairman of Sears, Roebuck & Co., the nation's largest retailer, said, "For the first time in a long time, we're seeing spot shortages at Christmas." He warned that consumers should not wait long in looking for "very wanted" items such as video cassette recorders and some sweaters.

THERE WERE few signs of hesitation. Storekeepers in many cities said they opened their doors Friday as much as two hours earlier than usual in anticipation of a rush, and some said they opened to waiting lines of 200 or more people.

Harsh weather in the Rocky Mountain region and in much of the East did not appear to dampen consumer's enthusiasm for getting an early start on Christmas shopping.

"It may be lousy outside, but in here I get a nice, warm feeling," said Francine Myers as she browsed through the giant Macy's department store in New York City, where there was a light snow in the morning.

The fast start to this year's holiday shopping season was no surprise; retail sales have been increasing steadily this year in line with a stronger overall economy. In October, retail sales rose 1.1 percent from September and were 10.2 percent higher than in October 1982, when the recession was winding down.

The gift-giving spirit may also be buoyed by rising personal incomes. In the first 10 months of the year, incomes rose at an 8 percent annual rate, while consumer spending increased at a 9 percent pace, according to the government.

THE HIGHER level of earnings and spending in turn reflects improvement in the job market. The civilian unemployment rate was 8.8 percent in October compared with 10.5 percent a year earlier and a 42-year peak of 10.8 percent last December.

"People feel better about the economy," said Randy Lapidus, general manager of Burlington Mall outside Boston. "They've gone from buying basics, like electric blankets, a couple of years ago to luxury things, like fancy lingerie."

In St. Louis, Paul Cavalli, vice president of sales promotions at the Stix, Baer & Fuller department store chain, said a jump in sales earlier this week was a sign that the Christmas season would outdo last year's.

"People are more comfortable charging things this year," Cavalli said.

Jan Rice, general manager of the Glenbrook Mall in Fort Wayne, Inc., said the parking lot was full two hours after the stores opened.

"The feeling is different this year," Rice said. "There seems to be more of a confidence (in the economy) this year."

THAT MAY NOT be true in all parts of the country. Gordon Saussy, a professor of economics at the University of New Orleans, said he did not expect retailers in New Orleans to enjoy sales improvements as large as those in other areas.

Consumers don't think of 'hidden' costs

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Don't look now, but you probably don't know how much you pay for much of what you buy.

You may know the numbers on the price tag, but what about the often-hidden costs?

Take the "now-you-see-it, now-you-don't" price increase. Manufacturers of candy bars took refuge in this tactic several years ago when chocolate and sugar prices surged. They didn't raise their prices — the nickel candy bar had already given way to the dime and quarter confection, and they didn't want to seem to be contributing to inflation. They simply made the bars smaller. Some people noticed; many didn't — or simply didn't care. Some bars grew again when the prices of sugar and cocoa dropped — but that's relatively rare in the world of the shrinking product.

Paper goods shrinkage is even more subtle. Fewer tissues in a box; smaller sheets on a roll of paper towels. Here's a hypothetical example: Suppose the manufacturer trims one-eighth of an inch from a sheet that had been eight inches deep. That's a size cut of about 1.5 percent. It is also — assuming the price stays the same — a price increase of 1.5 percent.

Then there's the "I-didn't-think-about-it-at-the-time" price increase. You buy something on credit and decide, either through an installment plan or with a revolving charge card, to pay for it over a period of 10 months. You ask about all the finance charges — the monthly rate, the annual percentage rate, any one-time fees. When the bill comes in each month, you write a check, stick it in an envelope, address and stamp it and send it off. Every time you lick that stamp you've probably spent a minimum of 20 cents. You may also have to pay a fee each time you write a check; assume it's 15 cents. After 10 months, you will have spent $3.50 in postage and check fees which have to be added to the cost of your purchase — a cost which might have been saved by paying cash.

How about the "I didn't-read-the-fine-print" price increase? How complete is the item you're considering buying? Does it need batteries? How many? How long will they last? How much do they weigh? And how much do they cost to replace? Can you substitute an adapter for batteries and is one included? If not, how much does it cost and do you need a special kind or will any AC adapter do?

If you're buying something for someone else — particularly a child — make sure the present will look and act like he or she expects. If the advertisement has lots of accessories which aren't part of the basic kit, you may spend much more than you expected to get what you wanted. Don't assume the picture on the box is an exact duplication of the contents. When in doubt, ask the salesperson. If he or she doesn't seem to know or is reluctant to open the box — "It's a display model, you know" — consider another product or store.

Similar considerations often apply to things like delivery or repair charges. Add all the numbers before you compare. Include postage and handling charges on mail-order buying and find out if you can save money by getting several items at once from the same outlet.

On to the "Am-I-paying-for-something-I-won't-use-or-don't-want ?" increase. You spot two boxes of facial tisues. One appears twice as thick. It's a dime more and would seem to be a bargain. Read the label and you'll find the larger box holds 25 fewer tissues. The tissues are folded differently, and each one takes up more space. (You'll have to look pretty thoroughly, by the way. The only indication of contents is on the tab you pull off to open the box; once the tissues are in use, you'll have to rely on memory.) Why would you pay 10 cents more for 25 fewer tissues? Why would you pay 26 percent more per tissue?

Back to the label. The larger, newer box says "Lightly Scented." The original variety has no perfume. There's nothing wrong with paying for a pretty smell — if you know that's what you're buying.

How about credit you pay for but don't use? Card issuers charge retailers a fee; the retailers pass on the fee to customers — all customers. It is illegal to add a surcharge to a credit card sale. It is not illegal to give a discount to someone who pays cash. If you don't want to use credit, ask about a discount. You have nothing to lose — except another hidden price increase.

Talking hydrant teaches fire safety

FARGO, N.D. (AP) — There may be 2,641 fire hydrants in Fargo, but only one talks, sings, sounds a siren and dances.

In the process, the mobile hydrant impresses on children the importance of fire safety.

Frankie, a remote-controlled robot, is the prime teaching aid of Norman Scott, director of public fire education at the Fargo Fire Department.

The battery-powered hydrant, made up of 50 pounds of wheels, wires and a tape recorder, is valued at $2,500 and was donated to the fire department last month by Fargo's Moose Lodge.

Frankie will pay off because youngsters pay close attention to his message, Scott said.

First-graders at Longfellow Elementary were pop-eyed this week when Frankie rolled into class, proudly sporting his junior fire marshal's badge, flashing his red emergency light and blasting his siren.

Through Scott, he told them of a boy who foolishly played with matches. Scott instructed children how to drop and roll if their clothes catch fire, and many students enthusiastically tried the procedure.

They waved when Frankie bade them goodbye.

The program currently serves kindergarten, first and second grades, but eventually will be expanded to other grades, said Scott.

His job preaching fire prevention is full time, he said, pointing out that more children under 14 die from fires each year than from all childhood diseases combined.

Man killed during turkey hunt

PALATKA, Fla. (AP) — A 20-year-old man hunting turkeys on Thanksgiving Day was accidentally shot and killed by a companion, authorities say.

George M. McGrath, 20, of Green Cove Springs, and Gerald Shedd, 23, of Palatka, had separated Thursday morning and Shedd began firing at some turkeys in an area thick with foliage, said Sheriff's Capt. Cliff Miller.

"Apparently McGrath, supposed to be some distance away, had come into the area to see what Shedd had shot at. As McGrath approached the area, more turkeys came into the area and just as Shedd began to fire McGrath stood up," Miller said.

Elderly woman stabbed to death

LAS VEGAS, N.M. (AP) — A 93-year-old woman died Friday after being beaten and stabbed in her home, and two men were held in Wyoming pending extradition proceedings, authorities said.

Georgia Comstock was found Wednesday by a woman who helps care for her, said Las Vevas Police Chief Tom Gillespie. He said she had been stabbed twice, and officials said she may have been raped.

David Ortega, 26, of Las Vegas and Ramon Avalos, 30, of Atlantic City, N.J., were arrested Thursday in Cheyenne, Wyo., in a car without license plates that matched the description of her car. Las Vegas police Lt. Donato Sena said charges of aggravated battery, armed robbery, kidnapping, criminal sexual penetration in the first degree and unlawful possession of a motor vehicle were filed Thursday. The suspects refused to waive extradition.

Woman wins $115,000 for dog bite

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A jury has ordered a doctor to pay $115,000 to a woman because his dog allegedly bit her outside his office.

After hearing a magistrate testify that he had fined Dr. Sukanata Mukhopadhyay three times for harboring a vicious dog, the jury on Wednesday awarded Sylvia L. Jones $15,000 in compensatory damages and $100,000 in punitive damages.

Ms. Jones, 32, said she had taken her father to Mukhopadhyay's office in West Mifflin on May 28, 1982 and that as she walked to a nearby store while her father waited to be examined the purebred Dalmatian broke away from the doctor's wife Shefali and charged her. She said she suffered a bite above her left knee that required 17 stitches to close.

Plane crash lands in vineyard

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) — A single-engine Cessna with four people aboard crash-landed in a vinyard Friday after its engine stalled, slightly injuring the pilot and one passenger, officials said.

The plane landed about 8:20 a.m. in a field 35 miles east of Los Angeles after the pilot alerted nearby Ontario International Airport the engine had stalled.

The craft coasted down about two miles short of the airport and flipped over, but remained intact. The three men and teen-age boy "were very fortunate," said Fire Capt. Mike Cicero.

Teen-ager held on $150,000 bail

BALTIMORE (AP) — A 16-year-old boy was ordered held on $150,000 bail Friday in the slaying of a 14-year-old schoolmate in a junior high school hallway during an attempted robbery.

District Court Judge Allen Lipsom ordered two other 16-year-olds, Ranson Watkins and Andrew Stewart, held on $100,000 and $75,000 bail respectively in last week's killing of DeWitt Duckett, who had refused to surrender a $65 jacket.

Alfred Chestnut and the other two youths were charged as adults with homicide, robbery and a handgun violation. They were arrested at their homes early Thursday.

Garnett gains 191 yards as Rebs rumble

Staff Photo by Paul Gilbert

Lee Rebel coach Spike Dykes confers with quarterback Jeff Motley (15) during sideline action in Friday's playoff game against Trimble Tech. The Rebels posted a 26-3 victory against the Bulldogs at Fort Worth's Amon Carter Stadium.

Lee, Permian to meet again in quarterfinals

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

FORT WORTH—The Midland Lee Rebels finally entered the 1983 state football playoff here Friday night by facing "a real" team in Fort Worth Trimble Tech.

The results were much the same as the history making Rebels put playoff notch No. 3 in their belts with a 23-6 victory over the Bulldogs at Amon Carter Stadium before 15,357 fans.

Lee dominated this regional battle as they have their previous two playoff opponents, but you got the feeling that Lee beat a very good football team this time around.

IT WAS a waltz for the Rebels, who became the first Lee squad in 24 years to win 11 games in one season. It also moved them into the quarterfinals for the first time in the school's history.

And if you want history, Lee will face Odessa Permian for the second time this season next weekend at a date and site to be determined today. That matchup will surely be the biggest athletic event ever staged in Permian Basin football history.

Not even past state championships by Permian, Abilene High, San Angelo, and Odessa High will match up to this encounter.

LEE SET the quarterfinal table by returning to mere Rebel basics. That means fullback Isaac Garnett up the middle. The Bull carried a phenomenal 37 times for 191 yards and two touchdowns.

"I guess we are starting all over with what we used to do," said Garnett. "But I haven't complained before, because we are winning and this has been fun, even when I don't get 100 yards."

The modest Garnett may have been pleased with the 191 yard effort, but it disappointed his line, "I thought he got 200 yards for sure," said offensive tackle Tracy Sherman.

Guard Coy Stewart said, "Heck, I'm disappointed Isaac didn't make 200 yards."

Garnett had just four yards less than the entire Bulldog offense as the Lee defense played pass-hawking and fumble-gobbling turnover defense. Lee intercepted four first half passes by heralded Tech quarterback Bobby McCoy.

Interceptions by Andre Mayfield and Earl Davis set up nine Lee points in the first half.

MAYFIELD injured a knee on his first-play interception at the Tech 35, but it led to Craig Kamradt's wind-aided 48-yard field goal blast with only four minutes gone in the game.

It marked the third straight time that Lee has scored on its first possession in the playoffs.

"I was disappointed that I didn't get to play, but at the least the interception led to points," said Mayfield, who was on crutches at the end of the game.

Davis' second quarter interception set up Lee's first TD. He grabbed off a McCoy pass and returned it to the Tech 34 for a 44-yard return. Four plays later Garnett bulled over from the five for a 9-0 lead as Tech blocked the PAT.

Lee could have put the game away in the first half, but didn't. A Nicky Tomlin interception at Lee's 48 failed to produce points as Kamradt missed a 47-yard attempt, but to ask for two back-to-back field goals from that range is stretching reason.

RIGHT BEFORE the half, Eddie Kittle intercepted McCoy while trying to sack him for a loss. "I just jumped up and when I came down the ball was in my hands. That was exciting. I haven't carried the football since I was in YMCA football," said Kittle, who returned the ball to the Tech 10 where Lee quarterback Jeff Motley tossed an interception of his own to keep Lee off the scoreboard.

"The interceptions by our defense were a big reason we won this game," said Lee Coach Spike Dykes. "The kids really broke to the ball well. We worked all week on not giving up the big play and we didn't give up many. I think that's saing something when you are playing against Tech, because that McCoy is a ball player."

Lee really put the game away in the third period with a 9-play, 75-yard drive where Garnett produced runs of 17 and 34 yards to set up his own two-yard TD. If he hadn't tripped on his 34-yard run, he would have scored and busted the 200-yard barrier.

"I didn't look very nimble on that one, did I?" asked Garnett.

TECH FINALLY got on the board in the fourth period with an 80-yard drive in 14 plays. Evan Farrias had runs of 19 and 17 yards to set up McCoy's one-yard sneak.

That brought Bulldog fans alive, but Lee came back with a 76-yard march with hafback Walter Jones getting the last 30 on a sideline spring.

"We weren't getting that end all night, but Tyrone Thurman blocked the end, it was easy to score," said Jones, who had 82 yards on 10 carries.

Lee's defensive unit had so many heroes that you couldn't list them in a phone book, but Kittle, Tomlin, tackle Pat Stevens, Michael Johnson and Michael Wallace certainly draw special praise.

"We've got practice Monday and that's all that matters right now," said Stevens. "Only eight teams will be practicing Monday. It looks like us and Permian again."

Kittle said, "I'm ready for that game with Permian. How often do you get a chance like this to beat Permian twice in one year."

Tomlin noted, "I think it will be much tougher to beat Permian this time around, but this is one we will want bad. Do you ever remember a game that will be as big as this one?"

Lee, Midland win cage tilts

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

It was a double success for Midland schools Friday night as Midland High and Midland Lee opened play in the Tall City Invitational at Chaparral Center with victories over Lamesa and Big Spring.

The Bulldogs used a tremendous swarming defense that didn't give up a field goal in the third quarter to take away any chance the Lamesa Tornadoes had of rallying, setting up a 76-65 victory.

"I though we played pretty well until the last four minutes when we got a little sloppy," said Bulldog head coach Jack Stephenson. "Maybe we were a little too conservative but that's probably my fault. Lamesa is a pretty good team and those two Mason kids (Jerry and Chris) are pretty good players. I thought our pressure defense hurt them early and got things going for us in the second half."

For the Rebels, a one-two outside punch from Derek Westbrook and Alvin Henry overcame a Big Spring first quarter advantage and led the way to a 75-50 victory.

"In the first half it was the shooting of Alvin Henry and Derek Westbrook that kept us in the ball game along with some timely rebounds by Anthony Dickens," said Lee coach Paul Stueckler. "Although our press was not as aggressive as I'd like for it to be, we did force Big Spring into some turnovers."

AFTER A seesaw battle, the Tornadoes took a 20-19 lead over Midland High and, after giving up the opening bucket in the second quarter, came back with a free throw by Richard Diaz to tie the game at 21 immediately followed by two more free throws by Chris Mason to give Lamesa its final lead of the game.

The Bulldogs countered with two buckets by Chris Rooker and and a field goal and free throw by Darrell Davis for a 28-23 lead. MHS dominated the remainder of the quarter and all of the third, outscoring Lamesa 22-11 and 16-6 to build up a 57-37 lead going into the final frame. The Tors won that final quarter 28-19, but it was too little too late.

In the scoring department, the Bulldogs came up with a steady four-man attack led by Davis with 17, Kenneth Johnson, 16; Rooker with 14 and Fred Franklin with 13.

The Tors were paced by the Mason's with Chris scoring 26 and Jerry 13.

Oklahoma edges Trojans, 92-91

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Freshman guard Tim McCalister sank two free throws with three seconds left to give 20th-ranked Oklahoma a 92-91 victory over Southern Cal Friday n the opening round of the Great Alaska Shootout.

Oklahoma will play Arkansas in one semifinal Saturday while North Carolina State plays Santa Clara in the other.

McCalister's clutch shooting followed a dazzling 35-point performance by the Sooners' sophomore sensation, Wayman Tisdale.

McCalister finished with 16 points, while Ron Holmes had 18 and Wayne Carlander 19.

DEFENSE pays off for McCamey, 13-3

By BRUCE CASTLEBERRY
Sports Writer

BIG SPRING— One of the oldest adages in football is that "defense wins championships".

Friday, the McCamey Badgers and the Haskell Indians hooked up in as tough a defensive struggle as two teams can have. Defensive struggles in the high school ranks are often games in which neither team can move the ball. The class AA Regional playoff game held here was a case of two teams playing hard, physical, aggresive football, and McCamey came out a winner, 13-3.

McCamey coach Buster Leaf was elated to get away with the win, McCamey's tenth of the year against three losses and sixth in a row. "It was a physical ballgame," Leaf said, "That's the toughest defense we've faced all year. They're by far the hardest hitting."

Hard hitting was the norm, and in the second half the going was so rough that players literally had to be hepled from the field. Haskell got the worst of it, ultimately, and may have lost their only hope for a victory when quarterback Todd Harris was injured in the third quarter.

Harris sustained a direct hit on an option keeper from 6-5, 190-pound Badger defensive end Tim Welling.

Harris was knocked silly, and an ambulance later took him to the hospital. it was not known if his injury was serious.

The game was a tribute to the classical school of ground-it-out football. By the time the game's first pass was completed, less than 20 seconds remained in the game. The pass, a Haskell screen, lost a yard.

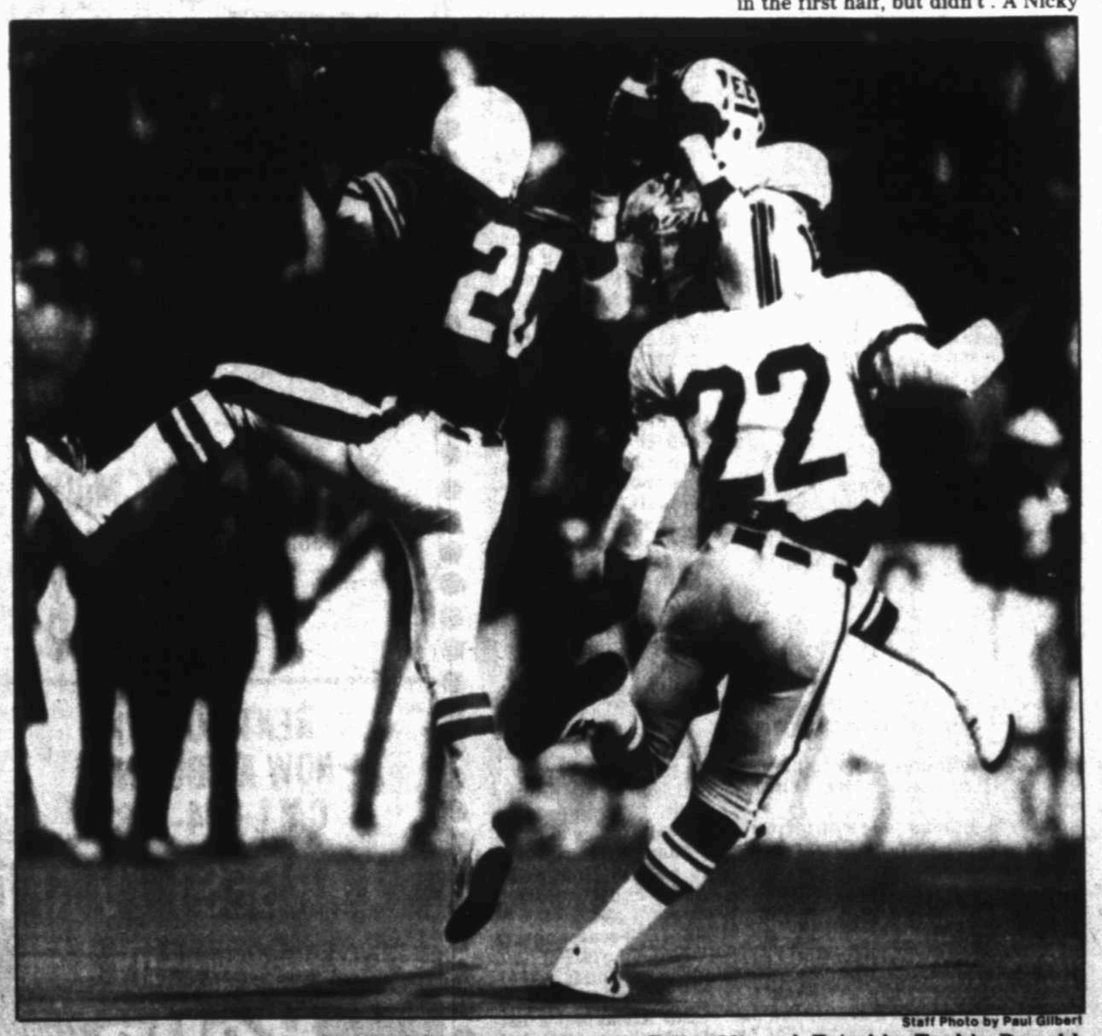

The first half was a punting duel, and when each team's punter had the 20 mile an hour wind behind them, some booming kicks resulted. In the game, McCamey's Welling had boots of 55, 47, 50, and 68. Into the wind he had efforts of 14 and 8. Haskell's Keith Reed had wind-aided punts of 65 and 79. Into the wind Reed had 20 and 25 yarders.

The first half was marred by fumbles, almost each one attributable to a ferocious hit. Both teams had three bobbles, and McCamey's Lionel Baiza intercepted Harris once.

McCamey's only first half threat came in the second quarter after Baiza'a interception. But the Badgers missed two passes from the 14 and Haskell took over.

The Indians promptly drove the ball into scoring range. Tailback Carl Dever ripped around right end for a 31-yard play, and McCamey was penalized for unnecessary roughness on the play. Haskell had a first on the Badger 35, and Dever's 17-yard gain set up a Harris field goal from 27 yards out.

BC turns Tide, 20-13

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Alabama did well running with the ball. It was their running plays without the ball that doomed the Crimson Tide.

Capitalizing on two fumble recoveries, Bob Biestek caught a 5-yard touchdown pass, then scored on a 3-yard run 83 seconds later in the fourth quarter as 15th-ranked Boston College rallied from a 13-6 deficit to a 20-13 victory over 13th-ranked Alabama Friday.

"I'm not taking anything away from Boston College, but it's tough when you turn the ball over, especially late in the game," said Alabama Coach Ray Perkins. "We felt like we could run the ball against them but it doesn't matter unless you hold onto it."

RICKY MOORE rushed for 109 yards for the Tide, cracking the 100-yard barrier for the fourth straight game. But his fumble led to the winning touchdown.

"I never really had the ball," Moore said. "It slipped out of my arms."

"Nothing gives a lift to the defense more than an offense scoring and nothing gives a lift to the offense like a defense getting a turnover," said Steve Lubischer, who fell on Moore's fumble.

"After the first touchdown tied the game, the offense came off and said, 'You get us the ball and we'll score again.'"

After that happened, Boston College Coach Jack Bicknell said the victory meant his team belongs "with the national teams.

"Going into the season we wanted to beat Clemson, Penn State and Alabama. We beat those teams," he said. "We beat some good teams."

THE FEELING of scoring the tying and winning touchdowns was "indescribable," said Biestek. "We had to change the descriptive adjective of our season from good to great with a win over Alabama. With a 9-2 record, we've had a great season."

Alabama linebacker Anthony Smiley had broken a 6-6 halftime tie by returning a blocked punt 58 yards for a touchdown with 4:20 left in the third quarter.

But Boston College, 9-2, began its comeback against Alabama, 7-3, when David Thomas recovered a fumble by Kerry Goode at the Alabama 35-yard line with 8:42 left in the game.

Ken Bell ran 20 yards on the first play, and Doug Flutie scrambled for 7 more to the 8. After three short runs moved the ball to the 5, Flutie hit Biestek for the touchdown. Brian Waldron, who had missed five of his last seven extra-point attempts, connected to tie the score, 13-13 with 6:29 to go.

On the Crimson Tide's next offensive play, Moore fumbled and Lubischer recovered at the Alabama 34. A 2-yard run by Bell, a 16-yard pass from Flutie to Brian Brennan and a 13-yard gallop by Steve Strachan moved the ball to the 3. Biestek then barged over right tackle for the winning touchdown with 5:06 remaining.

ALABAMA has one game remaining, Dec. 3 against third-ranked Auburn, before facing Southern Methodist in the Sun Bowl. Boston College, headed for a Liberty Bowl date against Notre Dame, ended its regular season.

Van Tiffin had given Alabama a 6-0 lead with field goals of 20 yards in the first quarter and 28 yards in the second quarter. But the Eagles tied the score on Strachan's 1-yard run 19 seconds before halftime to cap a 66-yard march. Kevin Snow's extra-point attempt failed.

The entire first half was played in a driving rain and most of the third quarter took place during a power outage.

The wind-whipped rain stopped during halftime and the second half, but it played havoc with both teams' offenses in the first half when Lewis threw only two passes. One was intercepted. Meanwhile, Flutie completed 7 of 14 passes for 114 yards, but the Eagles couldn't complete a sustained drive until Strachan scored.

Holmes stops Frazier

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Larry Holmes, the World Boxing Council heavyweight champion, knocked down Marvis Frazier with a tremendous right to the head, then battered the son of the former heavyweight champion into submission at 2:57 of the first round of a scheduled 12-round fight Friday night.

The fight was not sanctioned by the WBC as a title fight but if Holmes had lost, the title would have been declared vacant. The 34-year-old Holmes made sure that didn't happen.

Frazier came out at the opening bell and threw a big left hook, which had been the trademark of his father, Smokin' Joe Frazier, but it missed. Thirty seconds into the round, Frazier mugged at Holmes with his hands at his side and suddenly hit the champion with a left.

Then, Holmes got his punishing left jab working and scored with it often. He also scored with a good left hook and a right, and at one point in the round threw Frazier against the ropes.

At the 2:09 mark, Frazier hit the deck. Holmes missed with a left, then caught the 23-year-old Frazier flush in the face with a right that dropped him on the seat of his pants.

He immediately got to one knee and took an eight-count before arising.

Holmes rushed into the attack, throwing shots to the head with both hands as Frazier, on wobbly legs, backed into his own corner. Several times during the assault, Holmes motioned with his right hand to referee Mills Lane to stop the fight.

Then after a smashing right to the head by Holmes, Lane jumped in and halted the proceedings.

"I'm not going to win any popularity contest, so I'm going crazy," said Holmes before the fight. "I'm going out and take his head off."

There certainly was no play in Holmes on this evening before a crowd of about 4,000 in the 4,500-seat Caesars Palace Sports Pavilion and a national television audience.

But it was not a battle of wills. It was a battle of skills and Holmes showed that he had a big edge.

Whitley hospitalized after bank collapse

HOUSTON (AP) — Wilson Whitley, a 6-foot-3, 265-pound defensive lineman for the Houston Oilers of the National Football League, was hospitalized after he was found unconscious at a bank's cash machine, his wife said Friday.

Norma Whitley said her 28-year-old husband suffered "a severe concussion" and can't figure out how he wound up on the ground beneath an automatic teller Thursday afternoon.

"I don't really know what happened," Mrs. Whitley said. "It's still up in the air. It's cloudy to him — it's cloudy to me."

Mrs. Whitley said her husband called her shortly after noon Thursday, after the Oilers finished practicing. She said he asked if he should get some cash before coming home for Thanksgiving dinner.

"He took much longer than he should have taken," Mrs. Whitley said.

Whitley was brought home between 1:30 p.m. and 2 p.m., she said, by people she did not know. Mrs. Whitley said she was too anxious to get Whitley to a hospital to ask any questions.

A neurologist examining Whitley declined to talk with The Associated Press and refused to give his name.

Mrs. Whitley said her husband has an inch-long gash in the back of his head and that the doctor said its position indicated he did not suffer the injury in a fall.

Clovis whips Del Norte

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — Two-time defending state champion Clovis advanced to the Class AAAA high school football title game for a third straight year with a 14-3 win Friday night over Del Norte in the semifinals.

Clovis will meet the winner of the Roswell-Gallup semifinal matchup in the state championship game on Dec. 3. The Wildcats beat Hobbs for the state title in 1981 and downed Alamogordo in the 1982 finals.

Halfback Fred Baston scored on a fourth-down play from 2-yards out in the first period and quarterback Brian Ainsworth added an insurance touchdown from a yard out with 31 seconds left in the game.

Ainsworth's touchdown capped off a 74-yard drive by Clovis in the final five minutes that started after the Wildcats had killed Del Norte's final bid for an upset.

Del Norte recovered two Clovis fumbles in Wildcat territory in the fourth quarter but could come up with only three points. Tim Feit booted a 27-yard field goal with 7:19 left

Mavericks win again; 76ers maul Rockets

DALLAS (AP) — Guard Brad Davis hit a driving layup with 20 seconds left to give the Dallas Mavericks their eighth consecutive home victory with a 98-96 win over Kansas City Friday.

Substitute guard Elston Turner stole a Kings' inbounds pass with three seconds left to seal the win for Dallas. The Mavericks overcame a second-quarter drought, in which they went 7:19 without a field goal, to raise their Midwest Division leading record to 9-4.

Kansas City, 5-8, got a season-high 24 points from Johnson and 19 from Eddie Johnson as their three-game winning streak was snapped. The Kings are now 1-7 versus teams with winning records.

Dallas' Mark Aguirre led all scorers with 28, while Rolando Blackman added 21 and Cummings 18 in the Mavericks' sixth win in eight games.

NBA

Bullets 120, Pistons 111
PONTIAC, Mich. — Jeff Ruland scored a career-high 38 points as the Washington Bullets outscored Detroit 18-3 at the start of the final quarter route to a 120-111 triumph.

Detroit, with Kelly Tripucka scoring 19 in the third period, carried a 90-83 lead into the final period. However, Washington ran off a 9-1 spurt to take a 92-91 lead on a field goal by Jeff Malone.

Boston 109, Atlanta 102
BOSTON — A balanced fourth-quarter Boston offense held off a torrid Eddie Johnson's 24-point effort as the Celtics downed Atlanta 109-102.

Johnson kept Atlanta in the game, but Boston's Robert Parish, Kevin McHale, and Larry Bird, who scored 22, maintained the Boston momentum as the Celtics broke a four-game losing streak.

Philadelphia 115, Houston 101
HOUSTON (AP) — Philadelphia's Moses Malone scored 24 points and outrebounded Houston rookie Ralph Sampson 13-7 as the Sixers broke away in the third quarter for a 115-101 victory Friday.

Sampson, facing the veteran Malone for the first time, scored 20 points but lost the rebounding battle. Sampson did not get an offensive rebound in the first half.

Warriors 110, Pacers 105
INDIANAPOLIS — Lester Conner scored eight of his 12 points in the final quarter to help the Golden State Warriors hold off Indiana 110-105, who lost their sixth straight. Mickey Johnson came off the bench to lead Golden State with 22 points.

Rebels rally for win; Bulldogs face Bel Air

THE REBELS also gave up a first quarter lead, 20-16, but came back strong to win each of the final three quarters, 16-5, 19-15 and 22-10 enroute to their 75-50 victory.

Westbrook, who led all scorers in the game with 26 points, canned two buckets in the opening seconds of the second period to tie the game at 20-20 and Anthony Dickens followed by hauling down an offensive rebound, put it back up for two and gave the Rebels the 22-20 lead. Big Spring was able to tie the game twice more in the period but never regained the lead.

Along with Westbrook, the Rebels came up with 18 points from Henry and 11 from Tim Hill.

"I want to give a little credit to Raymond Morney and Alton Davis," said Stueckler. "They came in when Tim Hill got into foul trouble and did a good job."

STUECKLER ALSO summed up the feeling of all four coaches from Friday's winning teams, saying, "It's nice to be in the winner's bracket and not having to play in the morning."

Amarillo and Lamesa open today's play in the loser's bracket with a 9 a.m. game. The winner of that matchup will meet the winner of the 10:30 Big Spring-Levelland game at 5 p.m. The losers of those two games will play for seventh place at 3 p.m.

The winner's bracket teams begin play at noon with Midland High taking on defending tournament champion El Paso Bel Air, a 53-49 winner over Amarillo, followed at 1:30 by Lee against Coronado, a 69-67 winner over Lubbock Coronado. The losers of these two games will play for third place at 6:30 p.m., while the winners are scheduled to meet at 8 p.m., for the championship.

Badgers beat Indians in AA regional play

McCamey kicked off to start the second half with the wind, but on second down Dever fumbled and McCamey took over at the Indian 33. On first down, 5-6, 150-pound freshman tailback Rodney Terry took a pitch right to the short side, cut back to the left and went 33 yards for the score.

Terry got another key gain on the Badgers' opening drive in the fourth quarter. On third and 13 from the Haskell 36, Terry took a pitch and swept right end again for a 15-yard gain and the first down. Two plays later, Terry's replacement, Adam Arana, took another pitch right, somehow escaped four Indian defenders at the seven, and scored.

Ray Zarate's point after was no good, but it didn't matter, as the Badgers had by this time disposed of Harris.

His replacement, Ricky Rojas, never had a chance. Haskell had to throw, and the Badgers went after him as if they hadn't been fed in a week. Rojas was plastered twice and lost 19 yards. His one completion netted a negative yard.

McCamey takes on Morton in Andrews this weekend. Morton won their game over Hamlin 31-20.

Cardinals' quarterback Neil Lomax is hemmed in by Cowboys' Anthony Dickerson (51) and Ed "Too Tall" Jones (72).

Hanifan thinks Skins better

IRVING (AP) — The playoff-bound Dallas Cowboys put on one of their most impressive performances of the season Thanksgiving Day, but St. Louis Coach Jim Hanifan says they still aren't as good as the Washington Redskins.

The Cowboys whipped the St. Louis Cardinals 35-17 to increase their record to 11-2 record, fastest start since 1977, a Super Bowl season for Dallas.

The Cowboys are a half game ahead of Washington in the National Conference Eastern Division.

The Redskins and Cowboys have a Dec. 11 showdown in Texas Stadium. Dallas defeated Washington 31-30 at RFK Stadium in the first game of the season.

Dallas sacked St. Louis quarterback Neil Lomax seven times as the NFL's worst pass defense came alive in a blitzing, gambling manner Thursday.

"I still stand by my statement of a couple of weeks ago, that right now I think the Redskins are the best team in the game," Hanifan said. "With Dallas, I think Dallas has the necessary personnel to cause the Redskins a helluva lot of problems."

Hanifan was speaking of Tony Dorsett, who scored on touchdown runs of 5 and 55 yards and ran for 102 yards to become the eighth leading rusher on the NFL all-time list.

And quarterback Danny White, who passed 15 yards to Butch Johnson for a touchdown and ran 4 more yards for another. He completed 24 of 31 passes for 237 yards.

The Cowboys, now 12-3-1 record on Thanksgiving Day, played so well that even as demanding a taskmaster as Coach Tom Landry gave them three days off.

"I feel they need it," said Landry. "They played good and deserve it."

For Dorsett, it was his 38th, 100-yard game. Dallas has won 36 of them.

Dallas travels to Seattle Dec. 4 and the Cowboys have won 14 of 15 games in their history the game after Thanksgiving.

"We're in control of our own destiny now," said Dorsett. "The last two games we've come out and taken control and that's what we want going into the playoffs.

"It's just execution, simple blocking and tackling. When we do it right, we're as good or better than the rest. When we do it, we're awesome."

Dorsett has had back-to-back 100-yard games and the Dallas offense has perked up accordingly, scoring a total of 76 points in the last two outings.

"The best thing to come out of the game was our defense," Landry said. "We needed a game like that."

The Cowboys resume workouts Monday for what Dorsett calls "the dash for cash."

Huskers, UT make bid

College Football

By Associated Press

In five of the last six years, only one major-college football team has made it through the regular season with a perfect record.

The exception was 1979 when Alabama, Brigham Young, Florida State, McNeese State and Ohio State were unbeaten and untied, although only Alabama still was perfect after the postseason action.

Now there are two, and No. 1-ranked Nebraska (11-0) and runner-up Texas (10-0) will try to complete all-winning regular seasons Saturday with big road games against traditional rivals. Orange Bowl-bound Nebraska visits 7-3 — but unranked — Oklahoma, while Cotton Bowl host Texas plays at Texas A&M, 5-4-1 overall, but 4-1-1 since changing quarterbacks.

Meanwhile, seventh-ranked Georgia, 8-1-1 and Texas' Cotton Bowl opponent, also winds up on the road at 3-7 Georgia Tech, while No.6 SMU meets Houston in the Mirage Bowl in Tokyo.

In another key game today, Tennessee, which meets Maryland in the Florida Citrus Bowl, entertains Vanderbilt.

Nebraska-Oklahoma matches two of football's traditional powerhouses, as well as two of the winningest active coaches. Oklahoma's Barry Switzer is 105-20-3—.832, while Nebraska's Tom Osborne is 107-24-2—.812. Both are in their 11th year as head coaches and Switzer has an 8-8 edge over Osborne, although the last six meetings have produced a 3-3 standoff.

The Nebraska-Oklahoma winner has captured the Big Eight championship 36 times in the last 38 years and this time will be no exception.

Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer says that "if we beat Nebraska, it will be without question the biggest victory this program has ever had."

But the Sooners are a two-touchdown underdog, a position they have never before occupied under Switzer.

"We are practicing as well as we have all season, but we've done nothing in a game situation to indicate we can play with Nebraska," Switzer says. "We're not close to them on offense, but I've got to believe we're the best defensive team Nebraska has played this year."

Nebraska's Tom Osborne seconds that motion.

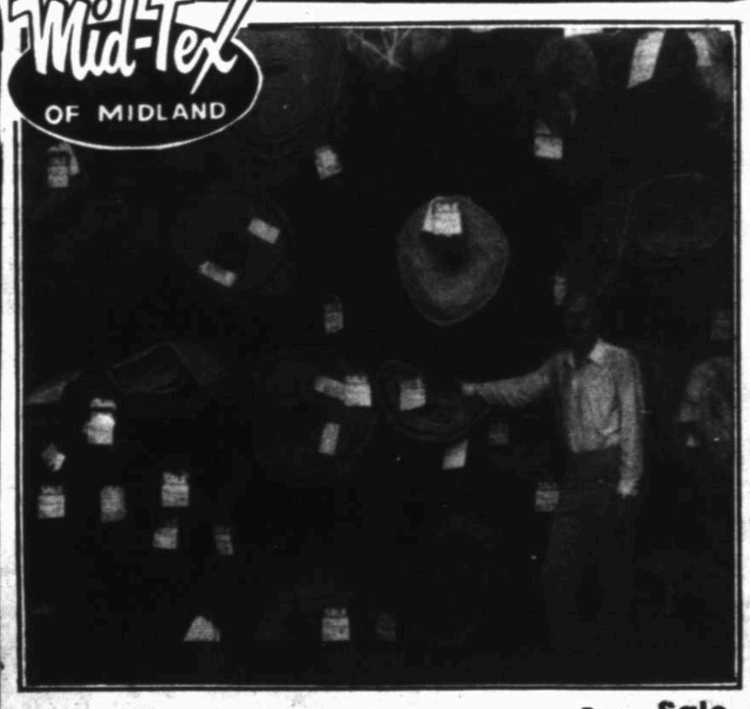

"Before the season, many people felt Oklahoma would be the favorite or the second-place team in the conference, and at one point they were even rated second in the nation," Osborne points out. "Their front seven are about as solid as anywhere in the country. They're exceptional. They have a good secondary, too. Missouri had a good defense, but personnel-wise they can't hold a candle to Oklahoma.

"We think we can move the ball against anybody, but the yards may comé tougher against Oklahoma."

Georgia's Vince Dooley is always among the coaching leaders in pessimism. This weekend is no different.

"Georgia Tech has certainly come of age in recent weeks," Dooley laments. "They've won their last two games and in those games are averaging 40 points. They are now realizing their potential. They always seem to peak when it comes time to play Georgia. We will catch Tech at a time when they are on a roll. They can knock off a bowl-bound team."

Texas loss would scramble bowl scene

By Associated Press

If the Texas Longhorns stumble against Texas A&M today, Southwest Conference fans will have to wait until early Sunday morning for the championship picture to clear.

The No. 2-ranked Longhorns, boasting a 10-0 record, lead SMU by a full game. A victory and the undisputed title belongs to Coach Fred Akers' crew.

A loss, and all eyes will turn to the Far East where Houston and SMU tee off at noon Tokyo time in the Mirage Bowl.

The kickoff will be about 9 p.m. Texas time. Because of a lengthy halftime, the game is not expected to be over until 1 or 1:30 a.m. Texas time.

If Texas loses and SMU wins, the SWC title will finish in a tie between the two schools. Of course, if the Mustangs also tumble then Texas gets its first undisputed SWC title since 1977.

Southwest Conference

An overflow, standing-room crowd of over 73,000 in Kyle Field is expected to watch the six-point favorite Longhorns, who narrowly escaped Baylor last week.

Texas has already clinched the host spot in the Cotton Bowl opposite Georgia.

The fast-improving Aggies, who are 5-4-1, joust the Longhorns in an 11:20 a.m. nationally televised (ABC-TV) kickoff.

Sixth-ranked SMU has signed for a Sun Bowl appearance Christmas Eve against Alabama. The game will be nationally televised at noon over CBS.

Las Vegas oddsmakers made SMU a 13-point pick over the Cougars, who were impressive last week in outlasting Texas Tech 43-41.

SMU shutout Arkansas 17-0 last Saturday to increase its record to 9-1 and 6-1 in SWC play.

In the only other SWC game today, Arkansas was a two-point favorite over Texas Tech in a 2 p.m. game at Jones Stadium in Lubbock.

The Texas-Texas A&M clash will feature the Longhorns' No. 1 defense in the country against the high-powered Aggie offense led by freshman quarterback Kevin Murray.

Baylor stung the 'Horns for a school-record 29 first downs as Texas barely survived 24-21 last Saturday.

Coach Jackie Sherrill's Aggies will be looking for revenge for the 53-16 pasting they received from the 'Horns last season.

"There is no question that the Texas game will be our biggest game of the year," said Sherrill. "It's our last game, we're at home and we will be playing before what will probably be a record crowd.

"These type games are what it is all about."

Kentucky not afraid to run with Louisville

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Second-ranked Kentucky, in a stiff test of its championship potential, takes on No. 6 Louisville tonight in an encore of last season's ballyhooed NCAA Mideast Regional showdown.

And Kentucky Coach Joe B. Hall said he wouldn't hesitate to treat the national television audience to a display of racehorse basketball. The game will be carried on cable via the Turner Broadcasting System and on local outlets throughout the country.

"We want to run, that's not a problem," Hall said. "I just hope we don't get into a situation of one turnover leading to another."

Hall remembered the relentless press Louisville slapped on his team in last March's Mideast title game. It forced a series of killing turnovers in overtime as the Cardinals outscored the Wildcats 14-2 en route to an 80-68 victory.

Gone from that Cardinal squad are the McCray brothers — Scooter and Rodney — and Coach Denny Crum finds his team in the unaccustomed role of underdog for Saturday's rematch.

"We're in a perfect position," Crum said. "You like to open against a good team that you can learn something from, a team you're not supposed to beat anyway."

But Hall was worried about his team's physical condition.

Much attention will be given the coming-out of Sam Bowie, the 7-foot-1 senior playing his first regular-season game since breaking a leg three seasons ago.But his performance in an exhibition game Tuesday — four points and as many turnovers — shows Bowie is only "40 percent back," Hall said.

Hall added he expects little from point guard Dicky Beal, who is recovering from knee surgery and played just four minutes in the exhibition, a 73-55 victory over the Netherlands' national team.

Holbert gains pole

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Camel GT series champion Al Holbert Friday drove a Porsche-powered March 83G prototype sports car to the pole position for Sunday's Eastern Airlines 3-Hour race.

Holbert, who easily clinched the series championship by winning six of the first 16 races on the International Motor Sports Association circuit, toured the 3.84-mile Daytona International Speedway road course at an average speed of 134.517 mph.

SMU, Houston leave Japanese bewildered

TOKYO (AP) — The Southern Methodist and Houston coaches have introduced an American custom to the Japanese media: the pregame pessimism speech.

"We're going to have to be more balanced offensively," SMU coach Bobby Collins said of Saturday's Mirage Bowl. "Our passing attack will have to be more consistent. Houston has proven what they can do offensively."

Cougars coach Bill Yeoman said he's hoping for a change in his offense.

"I would like to try for no turnovers, just one time for fun. Our turnovers this year have been so regular that for a while we cheered when we got the opportunity to punt the ball," he said.

SMU's Lance McIlhenny, who can break Bobby Layne's Southwest Conference record of 33 victories in a career as a starting quarterback, was asked if he wished he could do it back in Texas.

"No, I haven't thought of that at all," he said. "It is an honor to be put in that situation. I've been really lucky to stay healthy, and that's the whole key now. It's a record that might stand for a while, because not too many freshman (quarterbacks) are playing these days."

The answers required a translation for the Japanese press, and many of the questions had to be interpreted for the coaches and players.

Collins and the half-dozen Mustangs who attended both the workout and news conference Thursday spent at least three hours in bus and cab rides.

After the workout, SMU players and coaches conducted a clinic for local college players, who have to buy their own equipment at almost twice the price in the United States.

JIM MURRAY
Johnson one of best on defense

Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

Any good defensive back in the NFL hates it when someone comes running through his zone. I mean, it makes him nervous. So many things can happen. The runner can make you look bad. Fake you off your feet, embarrass you, pluck the ball out of your ear, stiff-arm you, taunt you, spike the ball on you, get you called for interference. He may be just a decoy. In any case, you just can't take a chance.

Johnny Johnson of the Rams is a good defensive back. One of the best. So, like all such, his warning systems were on full alert one night in Atlanta when a blip came chugging through his consciousness, telling him that his air space was being violated. That always triggers an automatic reflex in Johnny, even in the middle of the night when he has this nightmare that Cliff Branch is going by and he knocks over three table lamps and a chest of drawers before he gets fully awake.

So, this night, Johnny sized up this new intruder in his zone at Fulton County Stadium on Monday Night Football. He didn't catch the number because he leaves that to Howard Cosell. But his experienced eye told him the guy was running a fly pattern. That's the most dangerous kind, where a guy just goes straight out and straight up as fast as his legs can carry him, the pro version of the schoolyard staple, "Everybody out for a long one!" It's the play that sets every nerve ending in a defensive back's body to jangling.

JOHNNY PLAYED it by the book. First, that calls for the intruder to be given what the rules call a "chuck." Now, a "chuck" to you may be something you do with your middle finger under a baby's chin or a friendly nudge you give a guy as you tell him the one about the two traveling salesmen and the farmer's daughter.

But in the NFL, a chuck is something you might give a guy with a piano stool if you caught him coming in your window at 2 o'clock in the morning. The kind of thing a cop might give you busting up a crap game or a mugger lay on you in Central Park after dark. A chuck is something you might get two to five years for if you did it in the street.

So, Johnny Johnson fetched the interloper in his territory one of his better chucks. Around the league, it's known as one of Johnny Johnson's "lights out!" chucks. It's just better than the chuck a Mack truck might pass out if you ran in front of it, the kind of chuck Jack the Ripper passed around in Hyde Park. Dempsey used to lay chucks like this on Firpo.

The object of a chuck is to throw a guy off stride. This one was like throwing him off a cliff. The Johnson chuck threw him so far off stride, he didn't come down for two minutes. When he did he came down so cleanly he didn't part the grass. He would have gotten 9.6s on all judges' cards in the Olympic pool.

JOHNNY WAS kind of surprised. You don't usually get to lay chucks like that on Drew Pearson or Dwight Clark or Charlie Brown. They kind of slip the punches like Willie Pep or Sugar Ray. This guy had no moves at all. He was easier to defend than Yale. Johnny remembers thinking he didn't even belong in the NFL.

He sure didn't. It was then that Johnny noticed he wasn't even in uniform. He wasn't even an eligible receiver. He was a civilian.

He ran a lousy pattern. Any route that finds you in a position to take a forearm on the mouth from Johnny Johnson when you're not wearing a face mask or even a helmet is not a pattern at all unless you consider jumping off the Bay Bridge a pattern. Experienced receivers in full equipment consider going through Johnny Johnson territory to be going through lion country without a Land Rover.

It's no place for a spectator. As several have found out. Mike Curtis of the Colts once put a grandstander in bandages in Baltimore's stadium and Mike Ditka once flattened a fan in the Coliseum with what the pros call a "shiver" block (probably because you don't stop shivering for days after you get one). One KOd fan once sued after he was carried off the field but the courts ruled this was like a burglar suing a homeowner because he cut his finger on the wall safe getting the jewels out.

A DEFENSIVE back is trained in intimidation, too. His idea is to make an opponent make a promise to his mother never to go through that again, to take alternate routes. It's a proceed-at-owner's-risk stretch of road.

You don't take time to read him his rights. He doesn't have any when he crosses the line of scrimmage. Or sideline, for that matter. You don't ask for indentification.

Johnny Johnson treats his job like he was in the Secret Service. "How did I know he wasn't a terrorist?" he demanded as he sat in a locker room the other day.

As a strong safety turned cornerback, JJ is still unsure of the parameters of his new jurisdiction, anyway. So, to be safe, he hits anything that's going by. He's like the dog that bites the mailman. "How do you know the guy isn't All-Pro as a protester?"

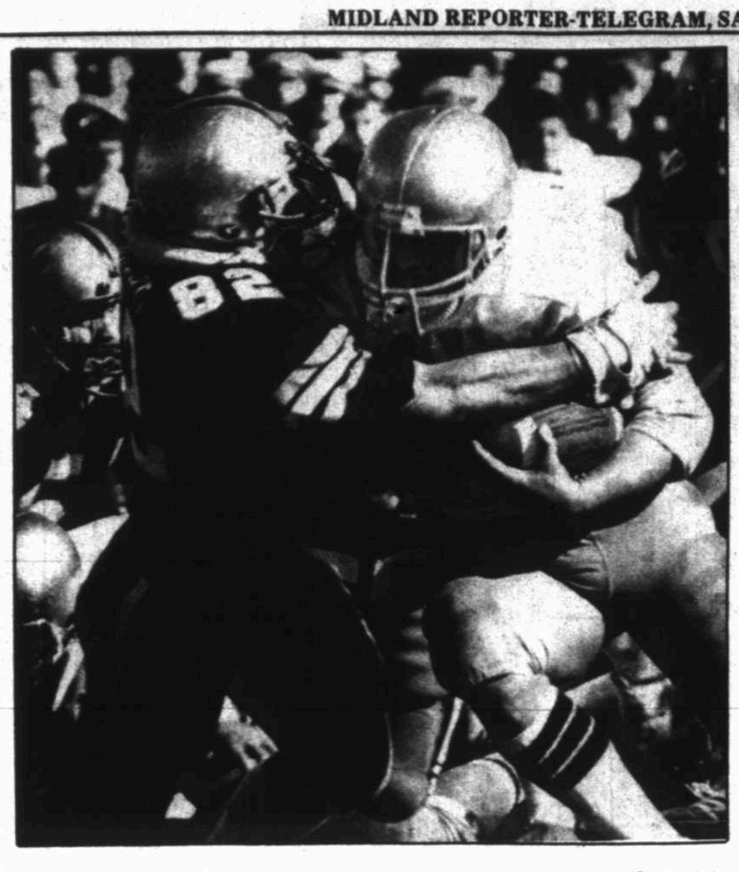

HE WAS probably just all drunk. But, that's something else a cornerback has no time for. He can't issue a breathalizer test. He can't ask the guy to touch his nose or say "Absolutely" or count backward. He just makes the bust and leaves the legalities up to the officials.

"Besides," says JJ, "it was a legal chuck. All the officials said so. It was within five yards of the line of scrimmage and the ball wasn't in the air.

"Anyway," grins Johnson, "it was a passing down and you're taught never to let anybody get between you and your goal line. I'll tell you one thing: the guy never would have caught any pass. Security had no trouble with him when I got through with him."

Did he knock him unconscious? "I never look," said Johnny Johnson. "Once the ball is dead, I lose interest in the play."

He gave me a look as though to say: "What am I, the Red Cross?"

Navy torpedoes Army

95-yard kickoff return ignites rout

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Eric Wallace scored on a 95-yard play with the opening kickoff to ignite a three-touchdown outburst, and Napoleon McCallum rushed for 182 yards Friday as Navy rolled to a 42-13 victory over Army at the Rose Bowl.

The 84th renewal of one of college football's most storied rivalries was played for the first time on the West Coast, with the entire student bodies of each academy, some 9,000 total, airlifted to Pasadena.

A crowd of 81,347 was on hand for the game, which returns to Philadelphia next year.

After Wallace's touchdown, Navy scored twice more to take a 21-0 edge with the game less than four minutes old.

Following a fumble recovery on the Army 14-yard line, McCallum, who carried 30 times on the afternoon, tallied on a 14-yard run with 2½ minutes played. Then Steve Brady intercepted Rob Healy's pass and returned it 65 yards for the third Navy touchdown with just 3:57 gone.

The opening kickoff return came after McCallum caught the ball at the Navy 5-yard line, ran it to the 11 and handed off to Wallace, who scooted down the left sideline all the way to the Army end zone.

Under NCAA rules, Wallace was credited with all 95 yards, the longest kickoff return in the Naval Academy history.

Army narrowed the difference to 21-13 on field goals of 42 and 40 yards by Craig Stopa in the second quarter and a 1-yard touchdown run by Bill Turner in the third. But Rick Williamson capped a 77-yard drive on a 1-yard touchdown run with 4:17 left in the third period to build the Midshipmen's lead to 28-13.

Two more Navy touchdowns late in the contest, a 2-yard run by Williamson and a 30-yard burst by Ron McDonald, completed the scoring.

The victory ended Navy's season at 3-8, while Army — which hasn't beaten the Midshipmen since 1977 — finished at 2-9.

Iowa 'quarters' video game title

EDITOR'S NOTE — Controversy may rage in some places over the benefits and disadvantages of video games. But not in Ottumwa. These Iowans are hog wild about the amusements — to the point of declaring themselves the "Video Capital of the World."

By CYNTHIA BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer

OTTUMWA, Iowa — Tourists don't usually spend too many dollars when they visit this small southern Iowa city but, oh, do they plunk down the quarters.

Once known nationally only as the hometown of Radar O'Reilly on television's "M-A-S-H" series, this city nestled in the cornfields is now known as the "Video Game Capital of the World."

Teen-agers from across the country have made Ottumwa a vacation priority, a place to showcase talents and perhaps capture a world record on Q-Bert, Ms. Pac-Man, Nibbler or any of the 225 video games that are now popular.

At the heart of Ottumwa's video game allure is the Twin Galaxies Arcade and its colorful 16-by-18-foot planet, asteroid, invader and star-studded international scoreboard.

Walter Day, co-owner of Twin Galaxies and keeper of the scoreboard, is also the man primarily responsible for solemn ceremonies on March 19 that saw Mayor Jerry Parker, Gov. Terry Branstad, the Amusement Game Manufacturers Association and Atari, Inc., declare Ottumwa the "Video Game Capital of the World.

The "renown" of Twin Galaxies is primarily based on the International Scoreboard. The scoreboard, and the arcade, are well-publicized in industry magazines such as RePlay, Blip, Joystik, Video Games Magazine, Video Games Players Magazine and Games People Play.

Much of the publicity centers on tournaments played at Twin Galaxies and Day says teen-agers love to come to his arcade to say they played it because it's famous.

"We found ourselves in the unbelievable position of being the world's only video game attraction. People come from everywhere to say they have been here and played here.

"It's a riot having the most famous arcade in the world," says Day, a 34-year-old Boston native. "It gives me great mirth."

Day, who owns a second Twin Galaxies in Kirksville, Mo. — but no scoreboard there — says he put the arcade in Ottumwa because "it had to be Iowa — someplace typically American."

Day says that the "non-threatening atmosphere" of Ottumwa is good for the image of video games.

"Ottumwa's not one of those places like New York City or Los Angeles. It's a typically American place.

"Having the video game capital here among the hogs has a certain charm."

But the one-time world record holder in the game Make Trax takes his business very seriously, working "every waking hour" to ensure that new records are authentic, the scoreboard is up-to-date, and that the best video game players in the nation, and Ottumwa, are getting recognition.

"This is not just fun anymore for a lot of people — it's serious business to them. We're making superstars here," Day says.

In an average day, the arcade receives 70 to 100 calls from across the nation reporting what is believed to be a new record on a game. On an average day, tourists also fill the arcade to watch nationally-ranked players banging, whizzing and blipping up points with almost uncanny certainty.

"Once you get the pattern down, you'll always be able to stay with it," explains 16-year-old Steve Harris, of Kansas City, Mo.

Harris, a high school junior with a B average, holds the records on Congo Bongo, Bubbles, Sinistar, Popeye, Motor Race, Wacko, Swimmer, Red Alert and Dragon Lair. Like many of the nationally-ranked youngsters, he credits his success to a knowledge of computers.

"Video games got me interested in computers and once you understand computers, you can figure out any video game because they all have a pre-programmed logic," Harris says.

Jay Kim, a 14-year-old from Hollywood, Fla., stuck with Q-Bert for 36 hours earlier this month in a bid for a world record. But his marathon efforts fell about six million points short because, Kim says, "I couldn't play it no more — I couldn't see the screen."

Day says the most successful players have "great athletic endurance, stamina, hand-eye coordination, and the ability to think clearly and quickly."

Day does not allow any smoking, drinking or eating in his arcade. And the closely-supervised players are not permitted to horse around or swear.

"We try to make the arcade as appealing as possible for all people. We don't want parents to have to worry about what their children are doing here," Day says.

Mayor Parker, who proudly claims that he "trounced" the governor in Pac-Man, says the video game capital title has "generated a lot of favorable publicity" for the city of 27,000 where John Deere is the biggest employer.

"We don't find any problems with the games here. Our arcades are family-oriented places, there's no drinking and no smoking and no cussing," he says.

Day says many Ottumwa residents "including grandmothers" phone the arcade or stop by to offer suggestions.

"Even grandmothers are beginning to play video games," he says.

The mayor says that while tourists and players often come through the city to visit Twin Galaxies, being the "Video Game Capital of the World" has yet to have a major impact on Ottumwa's economy. But he says that may change.

"We have interest from outside the community — from some of the video game manufacturers — in putting a video game hall of fame here. I know that some of these firms are looking at buildings here in Ottumwa for such a thing," Parker says.

And the irrepressible Day also has plans to step up video game festivities in Ottumwa.

In addition to twice-annual state team tournaments already under way, Day says he hopes to see Italy and Japan send teams to Ottumwa for world video games sometime within the next year.

Day first came to Iowa to "check out" the University of Iowa and Maharishi International University, in nearby Fairfield. But he didn't enroll in either.

"I stayed in the area because I like the quiet, peaceful pace of Iowa," he says. Also, "I'm having fun."

Day says he first got into the video game business to "make a million dollars" but that hasn't exactly worked out. While it's sometimes hard to meet the bills, especially the high computer costs associated with the scoreboard, he says other motivations keep him in the business.

To Be Thankful

It used to be that a picture like this could only mean harvest time—big orange pumpkins, shiny red apples, colorful stalks of Indian corn. And, of course, a turkey in the pantry.

But what about today? You can buy apples almost any time. Pumpkins are available in a can twelve months of the year. And you can buy a frozen turkey as easily in July as in November.

We Americans take for granted what was a real treat in our parent's time. But in the midst of this material plenty, there is danger of spiritual famine. To keep the proper perspective, to appreciate the gifts of life to the fullest we need the Church and the story it has to tell us.

Maybe you can't be a pioneer—a Pilgrim. But you can follow your forefathers' example at Plymouth that first November. You can utter genuine thanks in the church of your choice.

Pope expresses driving passion in search for Christian unity

By JOHN WINN MILLER

RELIGION

An Analysis

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II's historic overtures to Protestants, his praise for Martin Luther and his plans to join a Lutheran Church service, reflect a driving passion of his papacy — the search for Christian unity.

On the very day he was installed as pope five years ago, John Paul set that tone by holding a special meeting with 42 representatives of Protestant and Eastern Orthodox churches at the Vatican.

Calling Christian disunity "a scandal," he launched a worldwide ecumenical mission that has taken him from the heart of Eastern Orthodoxy at Istanbul to the bastion of Anglicanism at Canterbury Cathedral in England and to the "spiritual heirs" of Martin Luther in West Germany.

Recently, two more bold initiatives were announced.

First, John Paul praised Martin Luther's "profound religiousness" and called for a re-evaluation of the man who shattered the unified Catholic Church by launching the Protestant Reformation 462 years ago.

Then Lutheran officials announced that the 63-year-old pontiff accepted their invitation to preach next month at a Lutheran Church in Rome — the first time a Roman pontiff has ever preached at a Protestant church in his own diocese.

The comments on Luther, the warmest ever by a pope, and the historic visit were characterized in Vatican circles as the boldest steps yet for Christian unity.

HOWEVER, SOME Vatican analysts said all of John Paul's moves to date have been largely symbolic and that the pontiff has yet to make a significant concession on substantive issues, such as papal supremacy and infallibility.

But most agreed that John Paul's initiative would give new impetus to the unification process begun by the Second Vatican Council, 1962-65, and by Pope Paul VI.

The Council led to the formation of dozens of joint commissions between the Roman Catholic Church and other Christian churches in an effort to eliminate factors that led to division.

Paul VI took the initiative to heal the rift between the world's 790 million Roman Catholics and 125 million Eastern Orthodox Christians.

A conflict over the authority of the pope resulted in a schism in 1054 when Pope Leo IX and Patriarch Michael Cerularius of Constantinople excommunicated each other.

Rapprochement began when Paul VI kissed the feet of Patriarch Athenagoras in a historic meeting in Jerusalem in 1964, and they lifted the excommunication orders the following year.

In 1979, John Paul traveled to Istanbul for talks on reunification. A year later he announced the beginning of a "dialogue" with Orthodox Christians aimed at agreement on celebrating Mass together.

Differences on papal primacy and divorce still divide the two churches, but an agreement on celebrating Mass together would virtually seal their unity because Mass is the most important rite in both churches.

GREAT STRIDES have also been made to heal the rift between Roman Catholics and the church founded by Luther. The German priest was excommunicated in 1521 for attacking widespread views that salvation could be earned by good works, such as paying for Masses and indulgences to avert penalties in purgatory.

His theory that salvation came only through faith in God's mercy became a basic doctrine of the Protestant faiths, formed after his excommunication.

In September a U.S. team of Roman Catholic and Lutheran theologians delivered a historic declaration of convergence on basic doctrines.

The report, the result of five years of work, said much of the real fight between Luther and the Roman Catholic Church was over the power and income of much of the ecclesiastical establishment.

Another commission is set to discuss the Virgin Mary and the saints — who Protestants think are given too much weight. The two churches also still differ over purgatory and the papacy.

In addition, for the first time ever, Roman Catholics joined Lutherans on Nov. 10 in celebrating the anniversary of Luther's birth 500 years ago.

Since the Second Vatican Council, the Roman Catholic Church and Anglicans also have been moving closer together.

A report last year by an international commission of the two churches found a wide measure of agreement on doctrine. But its members agreed that unity is far off.

THE ANGLICAN Church, now with 65 million members worldwide, was established in 1534 by King Henry VIII in opposition to the pope who refused to grant him a divorce.

During his historic trip to England last year, John Paul became the first pontiff to celebrate joint services in Canterbury Cathedral. He was joined by The Most Rev. Robert Runcie, archbishop of Canterbury and spiritual head of the Church of England.

The two men announced the establishment of a new Catholic-Anglican commission to discuss mutual recognition of ministries and reconciliation of the churches. The commission held its first meeting in Venice, Italy, last September.

Religious leaders don't think humans should be redesigned

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Being human involves faults and failures, as well as accomplishments. It means sometimes being bored, afraid, tired or irritated, and sometimes glad and eager. It involves defects and pain and also strength.

In that mixed condition, should modern genetic engineering seek to eliminate presumed weaknesses from the human line of inheritance?

That fundamental question was given a definite "no" in a statement issued recently by a group of 59 religious leaders and scholars. They said it is beyond the "right or authority" of anyone to try to redesign the human pattern to suit a preference.

The group embraced the broadest religious cross-section to speak with a common voice on the matter — Protestant, Roman Catholic and Jewish, conservative evangelicals and mainline church leaders, right and left.

"EFFORTS to engineer specific genetic traits into the germline of the human species should not be attempted," they said, noting that advances now raise the possibility of altering the human species by designing specific physiological characteristics and genetic traits into it.

This would make humanity subject to the "art of technological manipulation and architectural design," irreversibly altering the "composition of the gene pool for all future generations of life," the religious leaders said.

They said no individual, group or institution could legitimately decide what genetic traits should be programmed into the human line or eliminated from it on behalf of present or future generations.

REGARDING the key theological issue, one of the noted Christian ethicists in the group, the Rev. J. Robert Nelson of Boston University, said in a telephone interview:

"Since we believe that humanity was created by God and is responsible to God, we have a responsibility to protect human life as it is."

That includes its strains and apparent infirmities, along with its joys and goodness, an interacting variety which mysteriously, in the biblical view, spur and sustain humanity toward completion.

Among those objecting to any efforts to engineer specific genetic traits into the human reproductive line were 21 Roman Catholic bishops and heads of 10 Protestant denominations, along with prominent moral theologians and popular TV evangelists, an unusual combination.

THEY included such top ecclesiastical figures as Bishop James W. Malone of Youngstown, Ohio, vice president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops; United Methodist Bishop A. James Armstrong, president of the National Council of Churches.

Lutheran named head chaplain

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Lutheran, the Rev. Herbert B. Cleveland of Fort Meade, S.D., has been named deputy director of chaplains for the U.S. Veterans Administration hospitals.

Cleveland, a pastor of the American Lutheran Church who has been serving as chaplain of the VA hospital in Fort Meade, assumes his new post this month in Washington.

Dominican praises theologian

VATICAN CITY, Italy (AP) — The newly elected master general of the Roman Catholic order of Dominicans, the Rev. Damian Byrne of Ireland, was asked at a news conference what he thought of the noted Dutch Dominican theologian, the Rev. Edward Schillebeeckx, often criticized by the Vatican. Said Byrne:

"Father Schillebeeckx is a gift of God to the order."

Lutheran membership increases

Little Rock priest familiar face at human, civil rights protests

"And, of course, I have a crucifix," says the man in the collar, a gray-haired gentleman who may be carrying anti-nuclear protest signs on Saturday and preaching to a group of nuns on Sunday.

He is the Rev. Joseph Biltz, a 53-year-old Roman Catholic priest, who's presence at protest rallies is about as faithful as his attendance at daily mass.

"Almost any issue that deals with human rights and civil rights, you'll find me taking a position," he said during a telephone interview.

His admiration for Pope John XXIII goes back to the pope's decision to call the second Vatican Council into session. The council, Biltz said, brought the church into the forefront on social issues. "The theology that poured out of that council...is very much a call to work for justice and peace," Biltz said.

The son of a Little Rock insurance salesman and a secretary, Biltz grew up as an altar boy. He became a priest in 1955 and later obtained his doctorate at The Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C. In the early 1960s, he was associate professor of theology at Mount Angel College in Oregon.

History, ironies characterize Chinese city

By the Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

HARBIN, China — From our airplane, Harbin seems a city viewed through a dirty camera lens. Now, in mid-spring, visitors alighting in this gritty frontier town on the treeless plains of northeastern China struggle for their footing against icy, gale-force winds. The air is thick with yellow dust that rasps the skin like sandpaper.

On the road from the airport our minibus bucks and brakes abruptly, jockeying for position amid dozens of horse carts whose hooded drivers, their faces turned against the storm, form a long line of Grim Reaper figures. Our Chinese guide worries, "Are you sure you want to stay here three nights? I think that's too long. There's really not much to see, you know."

His apparent concern proves unfounded. With its onion-shaped domes, quaint cobblestone streets and maze of underground air-raid shelters, Harbin is a tangled historical tapestry. It featured, in the days before World War II, Russian soldiers of fortune, marauding Chinese warlords and brutal Japanese conquerors. It is still full of the small, tantalizing ironies that confront the short-time traveler in today's China.

Remote and austere, Harbin is the center of the Northeast, the three provinces that form one of China's key industrial bases. Formerly known as Manchuria, a name the Chinese hold in contempt because of its associations with the days of foreign dominance here, the area contains some of the country's richest reserves of crude oil, coal and copper.

Enticed by a desire to exploit this natural wealth, the Russians built a railroad through Harbin in the early 1900s, linking Siberia to Vladivostok on the Sea of Japan. The czars' iron empire, with Harbin at its hub, brought droves of Russian merchants, adventurers and missionaries, transforming the somnolent fishing village into what was celebrated as "the Paris of Northeast Asia."

LAT Photo

China's industrial city of Harbin, in what was once known as Manchuria, shows some architectural signs of days under the influence of the Russian czars.

By the 1920s, the city, still nominally part of Chinese territory, had a population of 100,000, mostly Russians. Penniless White Russian generals, it is said, worked as manservants for well-heeled European families or as waiters in Harbin's boisterous bistros after having fled the 1917 Bolshevik Revolution. The glitter of European-style elegance quickly ended, however, when the Japanese invaded Manchuria in the early 1930s in a bid for empire that led, ultimately, to Pearl Harbor.

Nowadays, Harbin is a city splitting at the seams with 2.2 million Chinese. Many were lured here after the Chinese Communists came to power in 1949 and embarked on an ambitious scheme to develop industry and agriculture in the region. Launched with the help of money and advisers from the Soviet Union, those plans were later carried out singlehandedly by the Chinese as deep animosities shredded friendly ties between the two Communist superpowers.

As a reminder of better days in relations with Moscow, the esplanade here along the Songhua River is still called Stalin Park. A stone monument in the city center honors the Soviet troops who fought the Japanese at the end of World War II.

Harbin is only 200 miles from the Soviet border, however, and the city sits on top of a labyrinth of deep air-raid shelters built in the late 1960s against the possibility of nuclear attack. The region's distrust of Moscow has a new cause: the reported Soviet deployment of 108 SS-20 nuclear-tipped missiles in the Far East, and construction of sites in Siberia and elsewhere indicating the number could double.

From our hotel, a grim, Soviet-style structure built in the 1950s, the cityscape is dotted with turn-of-the-century Russian gingerbread buildings under plumes of greasy smoke from the city's coal-burning stoves. Chill winds from hundreds of miles of open prairie howl through cracks in the windows night and day, adding a magical effect to the carpet which undulates inches off the floor.

An American friend who lives in Peking accurately assesses the conditions as "just like camping, but without the proper equipment."

But there are amenities: a new color television set and an efficiency refrigerator, both made in Japan, are signs of Japanese commercial inroads here in a remote corner of China's budding consumer economy. Downstairs, the dining room is swarming with Japanese businessmen, who can be seen at lavish banquets in screened-off sections, toasting their local hosts with glasses of Chinese liquor. Approached by a Japanese-speaking visitor, they say only that they are "sightseeing," despite the fact that they have come armed with large sample cases and wear company buttons on the lapels of their three-piece suits.

What about the bitter memories of harsh Japanese military rule? Reflecting the pragmatic approach that the Chinese have adopted toward their wealthy Asian neighbors, a local guide explains: "Japanese behavior and attitudes may not be acceptable to some Chinese, but most of the people here have been re-educated and can differentiate between the Japanese militarists and today's Japanese."

Another distinction accorded the Japanese at the hotel is that they are routinely charged rates a third higher than American guests.

Old dog gets 'potful'

REDDING, Calif. (AP) — A 15-year-old mutt named Gideon might have been trying out for a job as a police dog when he proudly trotted home with a plastic bag of a suspicious substance, but all he got was lecture from his owner.

The bag contained marijuana, and Debra Gillespie wanted nothing to do with it.

"It was like, 'Look what I brought home, Mom!'" said Mrs. Gillespie, who threw the leafy contraband in the garbage and, when her husband came home, called the Shasta County sheriff's office. Deputies confirmed the Gillespies' suspicion that the bag contained three ounces of pot.

"It's funny now, but yesterday I was just a shambles," Mrs. Gillespie said Tuesday. She offered police the use of her dog and then warned the Sheltie-collie-spaniel mutt, "If you do this again, you're going to the pound."

To add insult to injury, police say they don't need Gideon's help in their war on marijuana growers in this Northern California city.

"He's too old to go into law enforcement," Sgt. Rusty Brewer explained.

Big game hunting gets new twist

By the Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — Like many huners, Rick Hacker dreamed for years of Afrika. Eland, cape buffalo, leopard, impala, lion, wart hog and wildebeest were never far from his thoughts during his hunting trips to Wyoming for Rocky Mountain elk, Texas for white-tailed deer, Arizona for mule deer and Northern California for black-tailed deer and boar.

But Hacker is a different kind of hunter. He uses these odd guns. One looks like something Kit Carson might have used. In fact, it is exactly what Carson used, a 45-70 Sharps Buffalo Gun.

Hacker, a Beverly Hills writer and public relations man who is a primitive-firearms enthusiast, recently hunted seven days in southern Zimbabwe with a .58-caliber, 1820 model Kodaiak double rifle and his 1880 model Sharps.

The United States has seen a resurgence of interest in muzzleloading rifles in recent years — 39 states now offer hunting seasons exclusively for them — but no one Hacker encountered on his safari had seen anything like his weapons.

"The customs man at the Johannesburg airport checked my guns out and couldn't believe them," Hacker said. "He laughed and said: 'You're going hunting with those? Good luck.' Everyone I met — including my guide — thought I was sort of peculiar."

Muzzleloader hunters pride themselves on the stalking skills required to hunt successfully the old-fashioned way, approaching game far closer than is necessary with a modern, scoped rifle. Hacker: "I passed on about 10 shots over 50 yards. Any range over that and I was risking a non-fatal shot. A guy with a scoped-rifle can drop a deer from 400 yards. When you're using an open-sight, single shot rifle, you've got to get very close."

Israeli Jew jailed as traitor wants to marry, have family

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — At 36, Udi Adiv wants to get married and have a child.

The trouble is, Adiv is the first Israeli Jew ever convicted of treason for ideological reasons. Even behind bars in a maximum-security prison, he remains a traumatic memory in many Israeli minds.

His jailers say he is too dangerous to be left alone with his fiancee for even a few hours. His fiancee, supported by many Israeli liberals and leftists, claims the real reason is that Adiv refuses to renounce his ultra-leftist views.

When Adiv and five other young Israeli Jews were arrested in 1972 and accused of belonging to two pro-Syrian espionage rings, Israel agonized.

Adiv was everything Israel's founding fathers could have asked for: a new breed of Israeli, handsome and healthy, a native-born member of a kibbutz (communal farm) and a paratrooper who fought with distinction in the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

For Israelis, the only consolation today is that 11 years later, there have been no more cases of ideological treason, although every so often an Israeli Jew is convicted of spying for pay.

Adiv and 31 other Israelis, 28 of them Arabs, were tried by a District Court which convicted some of them of illegally traveling to Syria, meeting with Syrian intelligence agents, passing on classified military information and plotting acts of sabotage.

Adiv came across as a full-blooded revolutionary dedicated to overthrowing the establishment.

"I am not a traitor because I admit no loyalty to the Zionist regime," he said in court, referring to the Israeli government. "My loyalty is to the struggle against class exploitation."

He was sentenced to 17 years. Dan Vered, a mathematician, drew a 10-year term. Yehezkel Cohen got 7 years and David Cooper 4 years. In a separate trial on similar charges, Rami Livneh, son of a Communist member of Israel's parliament, got 10 years, later reduced to four on appeal.

Most of the Arab defendants also were imprisoned.

But Adiv's fiancee, Leah Leshem, believes the sentences given the Jewish defendants were especially harsh.

Ms. Leshem, 33, was Adiv's girlfriend when he was arrested. After Adiv was jailed she moved to France. While in jail Adiv married another woman who was allowed to remain with him for 30 minutes and later was given the customary twice-monthly visitor's privileges. They divorced a year later.

When Ms. Leshem returned to Israel she began visiting Adiv in prison and their attachment was revived.

Israeli prison authorities are exceptionally liberal in granting furloughs and reducing sentences by one-third for model inmates. But in Adiv's case they are adamantly opposed, although they admit he is well-behaved.

Prison Commissioner Mordechai Wertheimer insists he is a security threat, but won't say why.

"All the security authorities are agreed — justifiably, I believe — that an inmate who caused damage to the security of Israel and is liable to exploit his furlough for the same goal for which he was sentenced is not entitled to a furlough," he said.

Ms. Leshem notes that other members of the Adiv group received furloughs to attend family events.

She says Adiv is sorry for what he did 11 years ago and has softened his radical views. She says his long talks with hard-line Arab cellmates have taught him "that both sides have to compromise. But he does not renounce his basic views on the need for Jews and Arabs to coexist."

In an interview, Ms. Leshem said Adiv refused to move into a cell occupied by Jewish prisoners because he preferred the more stimulating company of Arab guerrillas. "They are the only people he can have political discussions with, and who do not go in for violence and homosexuality."

She says she's convinced this is why the secret service won't approve a furlough for Adiv.

"They won't forgive him for refusing to recant," she said. "I can think of no other reason why rapists, murderers and perverts can get furloughs and Udi can't. What possible harm can he do to the state by being alone with me for a few hours?"

Ms. Leshem, a kibbutz-born university staffer, visits Adiv every two weeks and talks with him for 30 minutes through a wire mesh net. She spends much of her free time campaigning for his release, or at least the right to conceive his child while he is in prison.

She recently appeared on Israel Television, accompanied by Benny Shalita, a hawkish member of the Knesset (parliament) for the governing Likud Bloc. Shalita said that he agrees with the severe punishment imposed on Adiv but believes he is entitled to have a family of his own.

Outspokenness hallmark of military

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — In Israel's army of civilian soldiers, spit-and-polish is often scoffed at, rank does not always have its privileges, and privates tell prime ministers what they think about policy.

The army of 130,000 regulars and 310,000 reservists reflects the faults and strengths of Israeli society as a whole. It is made up of shopkeepers and farmers, clerks and plumbers whose opinions span the political rainbow and who have made individualism a hallmark of the military.

"In every tank and every armored personnel carrier, you have representatives of contradictory political philosophies. Everybody knows what everybody thinks, but there is no need for a soldier to be in agreement with his superiors on the political level," said army spokesman Brig. Gen. Yaacov Even.

Joining in public debate is against army regulations, but soldiers often express strong opinions when talking politics with reporters. Senior officers customarily explain the reasoning behind their orders to the rank-and-file, and in non-combat situations it is not uncommon for privates to debate their lieutenants about the interpretation of orders.

Individualism and initiative have, in fact, led to sensational battlefield victories for Israel's army. But in a society fretting over 160-percent-a-year inflation and torn by dissent over the Israeli occupation of Lebanon, individualism has drawbacks disturbing to army commanders.

In early November, Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir was confronted by an outspoken young soldier while on a tour of south Lebanon. The bearded young man told Shamir he hoped more Israelis would refuse to serve in the military, and said he felt as though he was in a "movie about Germans in World War II or Russians in Afghanistan."

Many young Israelis, more money-conscious than previous generations, are less willing to forsake high-paying jobs in the private sector for long-term commitments to the army.

Even, in an interview with The Associated Press, said the army is having trouble attracting the engineers, computer scientists and electronics experts who can make better money out of uniform.

Under Israeli law every man must serve three years in the army upon turning 18, and every woman two years. Annual reserve duty — for men only — keeps the army war-ready, so that in a matter of hours it can triple its size.

Almost the only exceptions are granted to ultra-religious men, mothers and some youths with criminal records.

The kibbutzim, Israel's collective farms, are a microcosm of the problem.

In the past, the kibbutzim provided the army with the cream of its officer corps, including elite combat commanders. Now the farms produce instead many of the leading anti-war activists, including draft-dodgers.

Even said kibbutzniks still volunteered for elite combat units, but the number willing to invest four years in becoming officers had declined. He gave no figures.

To many observers a more significant trend is the phenomenon called "small heads" — soldiers who accept duty in Lebanon but keep a low profile, avoid volunteering and do the minimum to get by.

port them. The recession is far from over for parents of potential black students.

And black schools have few well-to-do alumni to count on for gifts to beef up endowments. A case in point. Owens says he was "on cloud nine" recently when an alumnus now practicing law in Jackson, Miss., gave the school the biggest individual cash gift it had ever received in its 114-year history.

The check amounted to $5,000.

Some black educators also say President Reagan's policies haven't always been helpful.

Reagan since 1981 has proclaimed a strong commitment to traditionally black colleges. A program called the "White House Initiative on Historically Black Colleges and Universities" has directed all federal agencies to make special efforts to funnel grants and program funds to black schools.

And federal funds to black schools — research grants and student aid, among other things — have risen, to $629.2 million in 1983, compared with $564.4 million the year before.

But this year, the Reagan administration began a crackdown on federal student loan defaulters which cut off National Direct Student Loan funds to schools with default rates of more than 25 percent. That has meant that 34 historically black schools, including Fisk and Tougaloo, lost those funds.

The loan fund cutoff "was nearly a knockout blow," said Fisk's Leonard, who said it meant a 100-student enrollment drop this year at his school.

Some of the more prestigious black institutions have escaped these woes — schools like Hampton Institute in Virginia, Tuskegee Institute in Alabama, and Howard University in Washington.

Hampton, for instance, is that rarity among black schools with a healthy endowment — $44 million — providing a financial cushion to get it through hard times. The endowment also enables it to offer generous enough merit scholarships to enable it to compete along with the Harvards and Yales for top black students.

IN THE NEW study, students scoring in the top 3 percent on any section of any national standard test for seventh-graders were given the Scholastic Aptitude Test, a national test administered to college-bound high school juniors and seniors.

The earlier math study covered only students scoring in the top 3 percent on the mathematics section of any standard seventh-grade test, but the authors said the expanded selection criteria made no difference in the results.

The new results from 19,883 boys and 19,937 girls tested in 1980, 1981 and 1982 showed a 30-point difference in average scores favoring boys — an average of 416 for boys versus 386 for girls, a difference that could arise by chance less than one time in a thousand if the two sexes actually were equal in the abilities tested by the math section of the Scholastic Aptitude Test. This was about the same difference in averages shown by the earlier report.

The top score on the test is 800. The least possible is 200. The average score of all college-bound male high school seniors in 1981-82 was 493.

The difference in scores on the verbal section of the test between seventh-grade boys and girls was insignificant — 367 for boys, 365 for girls.

But boys scoring 420 in math or more outnumbered the girls by 1½ to 1; boys scoring 500 or better outnumbered girls by more than 2 to 1; boys with scores 600 or above outnumbered girls by better than 4 to 1 and the 113 boys in the top rank, with scores 700 or above, were almost 13 times as numerous as the nine girls.

THE AUTHORS estimated that scores of 700 or above — scores achieved by about 1 out of 20 college-bound male seniors — represent the top 1 out of 10,000 among all seventh graders.

Few of the students tested had had a chance to study algebra and since the Scholastic Aptitude Test is designed to measure numerical judgment, logical reasoning and mathematical insight, "Our rationale is that most of these students were unfamiliar with mathematics from algebra onward, and that most who scored high did so because of extraordinary reasoning ability," the authors wrote.

The researchers said they could not find substantial differences in attitude, background or previous mathematics training between boys and girls in either the old or the new study.

A footnote to the study said Stanley and Ms. Benbow now are investigating a "remarkably high incidence" of several oddities among the group scoring 700 or above. Twenty percent were left-handed or ambidextrous, 55 percent were near-sighted and 55 percent had some form of immune disorder.

It has long been known that males do better than females in mathematics in high school and after, but the 1980 report is believed the first to show that native ability, as opposed to course grades, shows up as early as the seventh grade.

Besides which, he added, the county narcotics and bomb squads already have dogs that could be used for park duties.

Iandoli foresees plenty of work for Falco, noting that the shepherd has already demonstrated his ability to scare undesirable people off park property.

Other jobs for Falco will include tracking down lost children and deterring attacks on officers on the more than 1,200 acres the force patrols, the chief said.

Iandoli said the fatal shooting of a park officer in neighboring Essex County two years ago underscored the need for additional protection for park police. "We've had police officers assaulted," he said, adding that the most recent attack was a few weeks ago.

DeFuria thinks the vests would have been a better buy.

"I just can't see giving up life-saving (bullet-proof) jackets for the purpose of a dog," he said.

But Iandoli said Falco, who is always on a leash, is more valuable than the vests because most park officers feel the vests are too uncomfortable to wear. For that reason, he is not bothered by the use of the donations — from the Moose Lodge of Clifton and a company he would not name — to buy Falco.

The shepherd has been in training with the department for about six weeks, though his purchase was not approved by the Passaic County Park Commission until Nov. 15.

Robert Kennedy wouldn't let LBJ use office, says historian

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In the days following President John F. Kennedy's assassination, his brother Robert refused to let Lyndon Johnson use the Oval Office, a historian reported Friday.

Johnson, who discussed the matter in a 1969 interview, believed it was a plan to keep him from acting as chief executive, said Francis Loewenheim, a historian and professor of history at Rice University writing in the Los Angeles Herald Examiner.

The article does not say how Robert Kennedy, then attorney general, could have kept Johnson from acting as president, or offer evidence that that was his plan. It also did not say what actions Kennedy took to keep his brother's successor out of the Oval Office.

In an oral history interview now available at the Lyndon B. Johnson Library at the University of Texas at Austin, Johnson also said Kennedy later tried to persuade him to fire Secretary of State Dean Rusk and replace him with Johnson aide Bill Moyers, now a commentator with CBS.

The newly discovered interview with Johnson was conducted at the LBJ Ranch, eight months after he left office, by former New York Times reporter and State Department official William J. Jorden.

Loewenheim wrote that to Robert Kennedy, who reportedly disliked Johnson, the Nov. 22, 1963, succession was another nightmare added to the horror of losing his brother.

Kennedy was further angered when he learned that Johnson told secretaries to have the Oval Office ready for his use by mid-morning Nov. 23, Loewenheim said.

Johnson said he thought Kennedy "seriously considered whether he would let me be president, whether he should really take the position the vice president didn't automatically move in. I thought that was on his mind every time I saw him the first few days, after I had already taken the oath."

"I think," Johnson went on, "he was seriously calculating what steps to take. For several days he really kept me out of the president's office. I operated from (the vice president's office in) the Executive Office Building because it (the president's office) was not made available to me. It was quite a problem."

In early 1964, Kennedy told an interviewer, "four or five matters...arose during the period of November 22 to November 27 which made me bitterer...with Lyndon Johnson." Kennedy did not elaborate, Loewenheim said.

In the same interview, Johnson said Kennedy suggested several times in 1963 and 1964 that Johnson dismiss Rusk, John Kennedy's appointee, and replace him with Moyers. Kennedy said his brother had planned to replace him.

Johnson rejected Kennedy's advice, and Rusk continued as secretary of state until the end of the Johnson administration in January 1969.

Johnson said Kennedy's "whole life was dedicated to removing Rusk, and electing himself president."

Robert Kennedy was assassinated in June 1968 while campaigning for the Democratic nomination for president. Johnson died in January 1973.

Estate more trouble than it's worth

WASHINGTON, Conn. (AP) — A man who claims to be the cousin of a West German traveler killed in a motorcycle accident here may have to pay more to recover the estate than it is worth.

Dieter Saar, who was killed in September 1982, left behind a sleeping bag, a radio, a clock, a diary and a battered motorcycle. He had $1,200 worth of traveler's checks in his knapsack.

Through a notice in a West German newspaper, a man who says he is Saar's closest living relative finally turned up. But town officials say the man will have to come to the United States to claim Saar's estate and may be liable for burial costs of more than $2,000 paid by this northwestern Connecticut town.

Initial efforts to locate Saar's family in his hometown of Aschaffenburg, West Germany, had proved fruitless. A police investigation revealed that the 39-year-old Saar was single, that his father had abandoned the family shortly after his birth and that his mother apparently had died after Saar came to the United States to begin his 2½-year tour.

In August, a small notice seeking any relatives of Saar was published in a newspaper that circulated in Aschaffenburg. On Oct. 3, a reply came back from a lawyer representing Dr. Jurgen Saar, who claims to be a cousin and closest living relative of the dead man.

"COMPROMISE HAS NEVER BEEN MY STYLE..."

"...So when I moved to Midland, Oakridge Apartments was the only logical choice. As far as I'm concerned, there's not a better community around. Oakridge is brand-new. It's in an ideal location. It's very well-managed. Plus, it has the extras other communities don't. I love the indoor spa and sauna, and the community clubhouse and pool. And the custom kitchens with built-in microwaves, woodburning fireplaces and great storage are features I simply don't want to be without. The quality, of course, is uncompromising. Like me!"

1- and 2- bedroom and 2-bedroom studio apartment homes are available now. Take Loop 250 to N. Holiday Hill Road and look for the giant American flag.

"The quality of the apartment is much better than any others I've seen in Midland."

Mary and Perry Nelson talk about The Clusters:

"The extras included seem like a real bonus. We're former homeowners, so it takes a really nice apartment complex to satisfy us."

"I have a lot more kitchen appliances than I ever did in my own home. Dishwasher, trash compactor, garbage disposal, side-by-side refrigerator, built-in microwave, washer and dryer."

But that's not all. You also get French doors to patios/balconies, mini-blinds, ceiling fans and your choice of wall coverings.

Plus unmatched amenities such as luxurious clubhouse, two pools with Jacuzzis, lighted tennis courts, 4-station jogging trail, aerobics classes and exercise room.

Come and visit and you'll see why the Nelsons' say, "There have been many days we've come home and said, 'They've really done it again, they've gone first class.'"

The Clusters. Midland's finest adult community. Special pricing now available.

How Safe are They When You're Gone?

You're gone. They're home alone. A problem? Who would be there to help? At a planned community like Buckingham Place secured estates this wouldn't be a problem.

A six foot six inch solid cedar and brick fence offers privacy and prohibits trespassing. The security gate and guardhouse limits unauthorized access to the estates, while ample lighting in the common areas provides safety and peace of mind.

An unsecured community is like an unlocked door. A mistake.

Open Weekdays 5pm-7pm; Saturday and Sunday 10am-7:30pm
