WILCY MOORE MERGES VICTORIOUS AFTER HECTIC BATTLE

BY ALLAN J. GOULD

(Associated Press Sports Editor)

YANKEE STADIUM, NEW YORK, Oct. 8. (AP)—The last game of a dazed and battered crew of Pittsburgh Pirates came to an ignominious end today when a wild pitch by Lou Gehrig, the Yankees' first baseman, gave the New York Yankees the winning run and the world championship with a record-breaking streak of four consecutive triumphs.

Miljus made a gift of the fourth and final game to the American League champions, spelling a courageous comeback by the Buccaneers and wrecking an otherwise sensational relief pitching performance. The score was 4 to 3.

Believing the expected comeback had cracked to bits the Pirates' defense, the Yankees' manager, John McGraw, had the team go out to win the game with a wild pitch.

It was an anti-climactic but otherwise thrilling scene for McGraw, seeing the bases filled with runners, had risen to brilliant heights to fan two of the Yankees' sluggers, Lou Gehrig and Bob Meusel.

The crowd of 60,000 wildly cheering fans, knowing that the outcome of a world series hinged on every pitch, was nervously excited as Tony Lazzari strode to the plate.

There was a feeling that Miljus, two-thirds of the danger past, would get out of the hole he had dug for himself by passing Combs, permitting a Duke hit by Koenig, advancing both with a wild strike and then purposely walking Ruth.

With Lazzari at bat, there arose in the minds of onlookers a peculiar situation in the final game of the series a year ago when Tony was fanned by Alexander with the bases full.

Then the Climax.

This time as a year ago, Lazzari cut a wild drive that went foul in the left field stands. Then a ball, but the next pitch, getting out of control, flew wide of the plate. Gooch made a lunge for it but it only flicked his glove and bounced to the stands as Combs.

Russell Scott, Wealthy Slayer, Cheats Justice With Suicide In Prison

Hospitable

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—Russell Scott, former wealthy Canadian bridge promoter, who has narrowly escaped gaol sentences following his conviction on a charge of murder, hanged himself in the Cook county jail tonight.

His lifeless body was found in his cell at 11:45 p. m. and that he was all right, but when he passed an hour later, he noticed the body.

The jailer said that he had passed Scott's cell at 9:45 p. m. and that he was all right, but when he passed an hour later, he noticed the body.

Seven times convicted, Scott, convicted of the murder of Joseph Maurer, drug clerk, in a hold up, had been in the cell since his return several months ago from an insane asylum where he had been discharged after a sanity hearing to again face the penalty of death. He had a hearing in September and it was postponed to some time this month.

By his suicide, Scott finally won his sensational fight to defeat the courts of Illinois which time and again turned down his pleas of not guilty and decreed that he must die on the gallows.

BOTH BULGARIA AND JUGO SLAVIA TRY TO SMOOTH RECENT TROUBLES

SOVIA, Bulgaria, Oct. 8.—Deep regrets and stern disapproval are felt by the Bulgarian government for the assassination of General Kovachevitch and recent frontier incidents which have caused protests from Jugo Slavia. It was learned today in official circles.

The Bulgarian government is desirous to maintain and improve its relations with Jugo Slavia and to dispel any distrust of the outside world concerning Bulgaria's earnest and sincere efforts toward peace.

The hope also was expressed that the government's attitude would be appreciated at Belgrade and that the incidents will be settled to everyone's satisfaction.

FEDERALS RULING

REBELS HURRYING TO REACH SEACOAST AT VERA CRUZ

(By Associated Press)

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 8.—Federal airplanes, says the newspaper El Sol, bombed the main body of the Gomez-Alameda rebels after scout planes had located them southeast of Perote, Vera Cruz.

The insurgents are believed to have suffered some casualties and are reported to have scattered, panic-stricken.

Airplanes attached to General Escobar's pursuing troops report that the rebels are apparently attempting to move toward the seacoast.

El Sol adds that the rebels are "plaguing" the country and robbing the ranches and villages.

Gomez explains cause of the revolt.

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 8 (AP)—Representatives of General Aguirre Gomez, Mexican presidential candidate at present in the field at the head of an army, made public a telegram signed "Alfredo Gomez" tonight which asserts that Gomez is in a position to carry out a decisive and effective campaign.

The telegram was received by Benito Gerzain Ugarte, representative of Gomez in this country.

The telegram, which came from New York, relays a message said to have been received by Gomez headquarters there via radio and cable. The text as translated from the Spanish follows:

Disclaims Responsibility. "Please inform the American people that my present position has been created by the intrigues and insidious proceedings of Alvaro Obregon using Calles' weakness of character, which I had always considered heretofore as sincere."

It is well understood that if I had plotted a revolution in Mexico the present happenings would have developed in a different manner because of my military capacity and my experience and knowledge of the subject.

"My conduct since I have accepted the nomination as candidate for president of the republic has been strictly within the law and in accordance with democracy."

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 8 (AP)—Hughes, Hoover, Lowden or Dawes will be able to carry Texas in 1928 if Al Smith is nominated as the democratic presidential candidate, R. B. Creager, republican national committeeman for Texas predicted here today.

Creager said that religion should have no place in a presidential race, but that religious persuasion ruled men nevertheless. In addition to the fact that Texas is strongly Protestant, he said the state is a dry stronghold and would be likely to vote against a wet.

POLICE BELIEVE BOMB MAY HAVE CAUSED EXPLOSION

MORE THAN DOZEN ARE HURT; SEEK OTHERS IN SMOKING RUINS

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—Four persons were killed and more than a dozen injured today in an explosion that wrecked a four-story tenement building in West 35th street.

Police and building inspectors after a preliminary examination expressed the opinion that the explosion had been caused by a bomb or dynamite, adding that the demolition had been so complete that it was impossible to state definitely what had caused the blast.

The densely congested west side tenement district in which the explosion happened was thrown into a panic by the blast, requiring the efforts of a large force of police reserves to restore order.

The building collapsed into a mass of ruins, splintered wood, brick, masonry and twisted metal, burying the victims under the debris.

Priests Aid Rescue.

Four priests from a church across the street were the first on the scene. They rescued two children who were caught in the wreckage while playing with others in a yard adjoining the ruined building.

A general call brought ambulances from several hospitals as well as police officers and the fire department, who began digging in the ruins to free those pinned under the wreckage.

The wrecked structure was of brick construction and was tenanted by three families, one on each floor. The demolition was so complete that it was impossible to learn in what part of the building the explosion occurred.

Calls were sent to the fire department for large search lights, as police said it probably would be many hours before it could be definitely established that all who might have been trapped in the ruins had been found.

PLANE IN FATAL DIVE

Thomas Mangum of Kansas City Is Killed As Plane He Was Testing Smashed.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 8 (AP)—Thomas Mangum, 27, of Kansas City, Kansas, was instantly killed early today at Fairfax Field here when a plane which he was testing went into a spin 300 feet above a cornfield near the field and crashed.

The plane belonged to Murray R. Dilley. It was a new Swallow 150 Hissco motor ship.

The ship had been built for Murray R. Dilley, Jr., 18, who is an entrant for the $1,000 prize offered by the American Society for the promotion of aviation for a cross-country flight by a youth.

The plane went into a spin 300 feet from the ground after a bad take-off.

Believe Favorable Consideration to Refunding Proposal on Debt Would Help Muddle

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 (AP)—Coincident with the completion of the American reply to the last French tariff note, the Washington administration is giving renewed consideration to France's desire to refund at an early date the $100,000,000 private loan it has outstanding in this country.

While the tariff issue and the refunding project are wholly unrelated, there is a feeling among some high government officers that definite assurance to France of a favorable attitude toward the financial transactions could not help but improve materially existing Franco-American relations.

STAGG'S ELEVEN HAS AN EASY DAY

CHICAGO, Oct. 8 (AP)—A. A. Stagg, dean of big ten football coaches, proved still able to teach Pat Page, his brilliant pupil of nearly 20 years ago, a few things about football today, and Chicago triumphed over Indiana 13 to 9, for the first conference victory of Chicago since the middle of the 1925 season.

Matadors Battle Grimly But Lose Contest, 16 To 6

BY JAMES R. DOW (Avalanche-Journal Sports Editor)

FORT WORTH, Oct. 8.—(Special)—The Texas Tech Matadors swept out of the West today—a swash-buckling crew of doughty gridsters—and, enveloped in a water-soaked field of mud, came and saw, yet failed to conquer when they ran avast of a brilliant defense and dashing offense of a veteran Texas Christian university eleven. The score was 16 to 6.

Upon the rainy shoulders of "Rags" Matthews, Horned Frog left end, fell the burden of turning back the Matador offense, and he responded nobly, a stone wall on the defense and a raking lion on the offense. It was Matthews, whose educated toe turned in the first counters for the defending Horned Frogs with a field goal from the 32 yard line and again it was Matthews who booted an extra marker after touchdown, making possible his team's victory over the crimson clad lads from the state's youngest educational institution.

Locking horns with a veteran aggregation of Southwestern conference gridsters was a young collection of football stars—young in years of collegiate endeavor yet seemingly old in the fight, which has oftentimes led inexperienced machines to victory against men much older on the field of battle.

Tech Fights Valiantly. For two long quarters the Scarle and Black clad warriors, coached by Ewing F. Freeland, who earned his spurs on swifter fields, held their opponents to an even break but in the third session the tide of battle turned to favor the more experienced gladiators and Texas Tech went down in defeat, not ingloriously but as the shaft before the storm of a more seasoned enemy.

Yet although the margin of battle went against them the youngsters from the wide open spaces of West Texas were not without their moments. With the count standing 16 to 6 against his team, Freshman Pickett, from down Lampasas way, exhibited the "never-say-die" spirit of his team-mates when he gobbled up a fumble made by a C. U. back and, copying the 1926 example of his running mate, Walker, crashed his way 70 yards for a touchdown. As fate would have it, the scarlet-clad Walker, instead of carrying the ball, followed Pickett on his dash to success, ready to jump any enemy gridster who chanced to appear in the way of progress. Walker's run, however, was in vain for Pickett out-distanced his every rival.

Texas Christian veteran grid man scored 16 points against the Matador defense yet the young Texas Tech covered itself with glory, halting further points by the veteran machine with a dogged defense at least three times within the shadow of the goal posts. The invincible huskies who make up "Freeland" line upheld tradition and turned back the sizzling offense of the Frogs with the same monotonous precision which they have been wont to employ against teams of lesser valor.

Reynolds Scores for T. C. U. After Matthews had booted the goal from the field Lady Luck seemingly turned her face from the Frogs with the third quarter.

Six Believed Yet Imprisoned in Ruins of Wisconsin Paper Plant, Wrecked in Blast

APPLETON, Wis., Oct. 8 (AP)—With a steam crane in place, lifting out the twisted steel girders and heavy wooden beams from the basement of the beaten mill of the Kimberly-Clark paper company, which collapsed, burying and crushing those still imprisoned was hurried tonight with the prospect they might be reached soon.

The cause of the disaster was still undetermined but Coroner H. E. Ellsworth, of Appleton, at the request of officials of the paper company, will hold an inquest next week to attempt to place responsibility for the crash.

Three men were taken from the ruins today, while six men still reported to be in the wreckage.

TEXAS UNIVERSITY LONGHORNS DEFEAT TRINITY, SCORE 20-6

RICE OWLS AND SAINT EDWARDS TIE, SCORELESS

LITTLEFIELD'S ENTRY YEARS HOLES IN THE TRINITY LINE

(By Associated Press)
AUSTIN, Oct. 8.—Blazing the way for the first time in 19 years, the Trinity University football team, led by Barry Littlefield, an Austin football player, managed to score on the Longhorns for the first time since they began playing in 1914.

The Longhorns won easily 20 to 6, however, displaying a ferocious driving attack hitherto not shown in this season. Littlefield's men seemed to turn loose every ounce of energy, tearing gaping holes in the Trinity line and scoring in every quarter.

Trinity's line held up in the fourth quarter when Rogers tried to punt from the Texas one-yard line after the Longhorns had been penalized 15 yards for holding. Rogers' kick was blocked by the punt and punt fell on the ball behind the line for a touchdown. It was the first score against Texas this season.

Later touchdowns and a safety accounted for the Texas score.

T. C. U. PROVES TO BE TOO STRONG FOR TECH
FORT WORTH, Oct. 8.—The Texas Christian university eleven proved too strong for Texas Tech at the local stadium Saturday afternoon, winning out 15 to 6.

The visitor from West Texas put up a game battle and for the first half the game was scoreless.

SAINT EDWARDS HOLDS RICE TO SCORELESS TIE

HOUSTON, Oct. 8.—The Rice Institute Owls were held to a scoreless tie at Rice field Saturday afternoon by the St. Edwards University eleven when the Owls were unable to punch over touchdowns from ideal scoring positions. Changes presented themselves to Rice no less than three times in the last half, but the Institute could not seem to buck over the stalwart Saints forward wall.

The game was played in the mud. The first half was an even battle with much punting, but the second half veered in Rice's favor. In the final half the Saints were content to play a purely defensive game, punning almost without fail on their first down.

Lamesa Defeats Tahoka 33 To 0

(Special To The Avance-Journal)
LAMESA, Oct. 8.—Before a cheering crowd of home-folks, who quit their businesses to back their team, the Lamesa Golden Tornadoes defeated the Tahoka eleven here yesterday. The score was 33 to 0.

The Tornadoes completely outclassed the invaders and reserves were called in to finish the tilt. Tahoka was badly crippled in the final session. Business houses in Lamesa closed for the game.

Wisconsin Romps Over Jayhawkers

LAWRENCE, KANSAS, Oct. 8.—(P)—Outplaying their Missouri Valley rivals, the University of Wisconsin eleven defeated the University of Kansas team on Memorial field here today 26 to 0.

Taking the aggressive in the second quarter, Coach Glenn Thistlewaite's charges forced the Jayhawkers to defensive tactics.

Pennsylvania Is Brown's Nemesis

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 8.—(P)—Brown University's football team, which had gone unbeaten for fifth consecutive games, was defeated by Pennsylvania 14 to 6. The first half was scoreless, but there was little doubt about the final outcome of the game in the second half, although Brown took their opponents by surprise at the outset of the fourth period by scoring a touchdown on a long forward pass.

WET POINT, NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—(P)—The Army football defeated Marquette university 21 to 12 today, but only after a gubborn battle.

Marquette scored first in the opening quarter after a march from mid-field. Army rallied and tied it when Cagle, who started today broken loose, ran 60 yards for a touchdown.

Buccaneers Wilt Before Superior Play of Hug Men

sped in standing up, with the winning run.

That single pitch broke up the last, lingering hopes of the Pirates, badly outclassed at nearly every turn of the series and sending them down to the most decisive defeat any National League team has ever sustained in world's series competition.

This was the first time a world's series had been literally tossed away, but it recalled, and took its place alongside the famous wild pitch of Jack Chesbro, in 1904, that saw the Yankees the deciding game of a pennant race and enable the Red Sox to top the American league. It was therefore a bit of poetic justice, too, that today for the New Yorkers, 23 years later, to win baseball's premier title by the same method they came just a pennant.

Equalled Braves' Triumph.

In dashing through four straight victories to clinch the greatest and most spectacular season of their history, the Yankees equalled the record of the Boston Braves, who scored their only series sweep in "four games" when they trounced the Athletics in 1914.

Wilcy Moore, the big Oklahoma farmer, received credit for the deciding Yankee victory, but the master of the "sinker ball" trickling his first world's series, was lucky to win the duel he had with the combined curves of Hill and Miljus.

Wilcy was his hard from the start. He steadied usually when it came to the pinches but only the sensational support of his infield saved him from heavy damage through the first half of the game and when that defense sagged in the seventh inning, the Pirates surged through to win the score.

Both Score Early

Each team scored a run in the opening inning and Ruth caught one of Hill's slow curves in the fifth and sent it high and far into the right field bleachers, scoring Earl Combs ahead of him with a brace of runs that looked big enough to settle the game.

It was a towering drive, not as much of the rifting sort as the Babe first into the same stands yesterday, but still a typical Ruthian smash and one that aroused the wildest sort of demonstration.

The Pirates meanwhile were being Moore's sinker ball consistently. He also consistently getting runways, because of the sensational defense put up by Dugan, Koenig, Lazzeri and Gehrig. Twice double plays checked Pirate threats in the third and fifth innings, but for no apparent reason whatever, the Yankees kept their sure-fire fielding skill in the seventh.

Moore Kicks One

Moore himself paved the way for the Pirate rally in this inning, when, on Smith's roller to Gehrig, he muffed the first baseman's throw as he stepped on the bag. Instantly there was commotion on the Pirate bench and reinforcements were rushed in. The fans, like those in Pittsburgh, yelled vociferously for Kiki Cuyler, exiled outfielder as Emil Yde, reserve pitcher, was sent in to run for Smith and Fredrick Brickett substituted for Hill at bat.

It was not because of this strategy that Brickett got on base, however, for Lazzeri, with a double play in sight, made his first error of the series, being Brickett's grounder. Lloyd Waner sacrificed both runners along and there was a mighty cheer for the Pirates as Barnhart drove a long single to center. Yde scored but Brickett, in doubt about the ball, started back to second and then, retraced his ter, Fain Reynolds, fragile tackle of the Matty Bell eleven, fell on a free ball over the Tech goal line after Jennings' punt had been blocked by a zealous Horner Frog line. This play by Reynolds, who is the smallest lineman in the Southwest conference, made the count 10 to 0, after Matthews had scored a goal for the extra point.

Evidently fearing that defeat might overtake their seemingly safe lead, the T. C. U. underdogs continued their onward drive and counted a third marker when Clark, the unassuming field general, intercepted a toss from the mighty Walker and raced across the final chalkline. Matthews failed at goal.

It was then, with the score standing 16 to 0, against his school that Pickett, who had substituted for Nicholas in the last quarter, snatched up Clark's fumble and dashed 75 yards for a touchdown, giving Tech its only score. The run was more than meritorious—it was perfect from the viewpoint of the Tech fans who thronged the park many of whom had travelled hundreds of miles to be on hand when their favorites lined up against a worthy foe.

DALLAS, Oct. 8.—Without uncovering anything but a speedy backfield and sturdy line, Coach Dana S. Baker's Texas Aggies won from the stubbornly defensive Southern Tigers here today, 19 to 0. The Southerners were unable to cope with both the slow and rain-drenched gridiron at Fair Park and the lightning long and runs of Captain Jack Hunt, Conover and Burgess.

From the beginning it was the Aggies' game. Captain Hunt, behind the great interference of Conover ripped off right-hand runs and then went through tight tackles for a touchdown in the first three minutes of play.

DANIEL BAKER HAS AN EASY WIN OVER ST. MARY'S

BROWNWOOD, Texas, Oct. 8.—(P)—Daniel Baker easily defeated St. Mary's university here today by a score of 19 to 0. The game was played on a rain-soaked field which resulted in erratic playing. The Aggies scored touchdowns in the first, third and fourth quarters. Head added the extra point after the touchdown, but missed the other tries.

Arkansas Defeats Baylor's Bears

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Oct. 8.—(P)—In a fast aerial attack combined with a series of heavy line smashes the University of Arkansas Razorbacks defeated Baylor Bears here today by a score of 13 to 0. The sensational play of the game came at the end of the second quarter when Washburn, Baylor quarterback, intercepted a forward pass on his own 20-yard line and raced 80 yards for a touchdown.

HUSTLING TECH GRIDSTERS AWARDED PLAUDITS OF CROWD AS THEY FIGHT FOR VICTORY AGAINST FROG ELEVEN

By JAMES R. DOW

Avance-Journal Sports Editor
FORT WORTH, Oct. 8.—(Special)—A colorful display of gridiron tactics was exhibited by Al Jennings all the way through the game with the exception of one play, and it was mostly the blocked punt. Jennings was slow in getting off the punt and was swarmed by Frog lineemen who sprung for opportunity like real horned frogs would. But Jennings muddled many a line and off-tackle play of the Belman and frequently tore through to throw the Christians for a loss. Woodriddle, too, was invaluable and carried through much of the punting.

Walker, free halfback and the man Higginbotham and Payne depend on for long gains on around end plays, failed to get off on the drive and was downed by the Frogs for no gain most of the time he carried the ball. The Matador lateral pass failed to function in any of his attempts, due to the wet play which ball which was easily fumbled. Captain "Ox" Reed and

MEXICAN REVOLT

But having knowledge that I was to be assassinated in the same manner that the unfortunate General Serrano was assassinated I found myself in a position where I had to escape from Mexico City going to a place where I could find refuge amidst friends who offered me their protection and assume my present attitude of defense to repel the attacks of my enemies.

Promises a Manifesto.
"After my arrival at this place numerous bodies from the army and numerous groups of civilians came to me to place themselves under my orders so that I can carry out a decisive and effective campaign for the principle 'no re-election.' It is well known that I have never avoided responsibility and I am well disposed to follow public opinion to judge me when they know the truth of what has happened. Following a manifesto (declaration of principles) to the Mexican people and thereby to the world at large explaining the methods that Obregon used in order to precipitate the happenings that made General Serrano and myself responsible for what is occurring in Mexico now."

GOVERNMENT AGAIN ASSERTS MASTERY.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 8 (AP)—General Gomez and Alameda with their revolutionary forces are in the mountainous Perote region of the state of Vera Cruz. Thus far they have avoided combat with the pursuing federal troops under General Escobar and Aguirre. This is the official information in Mexico City.

There is speculation also as to whether Gomez may attempt to reach the Vera Cruz sea coast, and thus be enabled to escape to a foreign country, which other revolutionary leaders have done in the past.

Refer to Failure

The government continues to assert its complete control of the situation. Reference is made in the brief government communications to the unsuccessful de la Huerta movement in Sonora. The fact that General Obregon, the last remaining presidential candidate and strong supporter of the Calles government is leaving for his home in Sonora state immediately is taken as evidence of the government's confidence that the latest revolt is completely in hand.

Observers think that General Obregon, who has stood shoulder to shoulder with General Calles himself in the supreme war council would not be returning to Sonora if any feeling of apprehension lingered in the mind of the president and the members of the government.

Dispatches from San Luis, say that eighteen prominent civilians of that place and several nearby towns have been arrested and are held for trial charged with complicity in the Gomez-Serrano uprising.

VIENNA QUAKE

For the city had been visited by an earthquake. The first shock was so violent that it threw both the horizontal and vertical hands of the seismological observatory out of the groove, making it impossible to determine even the approximate point of origin of the earthquake. The director of the observatory believed that the epicenter of the quake was not far from Vienna.

Austria of late has been visited by a series of floods and earth shocks, and in July, 1928, a serious earthquake shook Styria, lower Austria, causing heavy damage to numerous towns, about the same time as the flood in the Danube. The entire principality of Liechtenstein, bordering on Austria and Switzerland, one of the smallest principalities in the world, was almost obliterated on September 26 by what was described as the mightiest inundation the country had known.

BALKAN NATIONS

foreign affairs, M. Bourdoff, was carried on in the friendly terms, the Associated Press was informed, and is stated to have been a semblance to the formal presentation of a stern note.

M. Nechitch called attention to renewed activities of Macedonian such incidents was given to the Comitadjis and stressed the necessity of the Bulgarian government to enforce energetic measures to put an end to these activities as impeding the future relations between Yugoslavia and Bulgaria.

Labor Leaders Get Together

Peace is Desired.
The assurance of Bulgaria's desire to prevent the re-occurrence of which Sofia entirely disapproves. It is declared here that the skeleton of the Bulgarian army left by the disarmament clause of the treaty of Versailles makes it extremely difficult for the Bulgarians to patrol the frontiers and preserve order.

RUSSELL SCOTT

A battery of lawyers and high priced alienists were enlisted in the fight to keep Scott from the gallows. He finally was declared insane and sent to an asylum at Chester, Ill.

It was not long before officials at the institution concluded Scott was in full possession of his faculties and should be returned to jail. After he had been placed again under the jurisdiction of Cook county and a jury had found him sane, a date was set for his execution.

Fate intervened again, however, and the supreme court remanded the case for a new trial. It was while in the jail waiting the new trial that he ended his life.

TEXAS WOMAN WHIPPED

Pair Seeking Refuge General In San Antonio Vent Temper On Keeper Of Rooming House.

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 8 (AP)—Two Mexicans, seeking to locate former General Francisco Cos, a refugee severely beat Mrs. Rodriguez Valon for the rekindling of the smoldering fire of the Comitadjis hands today, when Mrs. Valero was unable to tell the men where Cos could be found.

Cos, who has lived in San Antonio since the beginning of Obregon's administration in Mexico, reported the affair to the sheriff's office in person. He told deputies that he was now in hiding, fearing violence, and gave them two addresses where he might be found. Investigation showed that Mrs. Valero had been badly bruised by the fists of the men, both of whom

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 8 (AP)—Although the crop production report was about as expected the census bureau's ginnings total of 5,945,187 bales was larger than looked for and as result the cotton market soared approximately $5.00 a bale above the previous close. December, which had traded up from 21.62 to 21.85 just before the report was issued jumped to 22.45. Raising and week-end liquidation caused that option to decline and closed at 21.59, compared with net 20.98 at yesterday's close. The general market closed steady at a net advance of $9. to 62 points.

The opening was steady. First trades showed gains of 10 to 15 points, due to relatively heavy liquidation, however, caused a recession of 10 to 13 points. When the offering was absorbed prices rallied on considerable covering and when trading was suspended to receive the report the market had craved levels 45 to 55 points above the lows.

After reacting 55 to 71 points on realizing the market rallied in the final trading and recovered 25 to 26 points of the loss, closing at a net gain for the day of approximately $3 a bale.

Exports for this day totaled 11,187 bales.

MOTION TO MOVE COLLEGE FAILS

PRESBYTERIANS DECIDE TO LEAVE TRINITY IN CITY OF WAXAHACHIE

(By Associated Press)
WAXAHACHIE, Texas, Oct. 8.—A motion to remove Trinity university at Waxahachie to Dallas, was voted down by the Texas synod of the Presbyterian church U. S. A. at its meeting here today. The question, however, was left open for future consideration.

Monday will see the close of what leaders declare was one of the largest attended meetings in its history.

Mrs. B. A. Hodges, was re-elected president of the women's synod at its meeting this afternoon. Other officers elected are Mrs. H. C. Cate, Dallas, recording secretary; Mrs. J. D. Deloach, Pahrview, secretary of literature, missionary education; Mrs. J. A. Moore, Depert, secretary of Stewardship and associate membership; Mrs. A. B. Haynes, Houston, secretary young peoples work; Mrs. E. B. Surface, Abilene, secretary intermediate work; Mrs. Guy Paul, Temple, secretary Children's work; Mrs. R. E. Joiner, Gainesville, treasurer of State funds.

Frosh Pass Beauty Exams

Freshmen at the University of Oklahoma have passed at least one examination this year—their taste for beauty seems to grade about 100 per cent. They chose Miss Margaret Croy (above) of Drumright, Okla., as class queen.

Monday Ushers In Busy Week On Tech Campus, Now Settling Back To Normal Following Usual Rush of Fall Opening

Recovering from the usual fall opening rush, activities on the Tech campus will be under normal conditions during the coming week as various organizations begin work on the year's program.

Aside from studies, football, pep rallies, dances, class meetings, parties, and club meetings, not much time will be left for anything else on the schedules of the students. Every moment is a busy one on the campus from now on, a glance at the calendar of activities will reveal. The coming week is no exception and seven days and nights are to be utilized to supply the demand of the Tech activities.

Regular band rehearsal comes at 7:30 on Monday night and this will occupy at least an hour of the time of 80 students. In the afternoon Prof. W. R. Waggoner is calling the Choral club together at 3:30 for rehearsal. All students residing in New Mexico are to meet Monday night to organize a New Mexico club. The engineers are also scheduled for a meeting in which they will elect their officers for a year.

Tuesday will find a pep rally for the game with Simmons, on Saturday, as the leading attraction with meetings of the sophomore and senior classes scheduled to follow soon after in the gymnasium. The students interested in the military work will also meet after the pep rally.

The Press club will renew their activities with a meeting at 7:30 in room 211, Wednesday night. The students interested in debates will meet in room 217 for a short meeting at 7:30 on Wednesday also. A general student convocation will be held at 9 o'clock on Wednesday morning.

Thursday, the Choral club will meet for rehearsal at 3:30 in room 202 while the band will hold their rehearsal at 7:30. All men students interested in tennis will meet in room 209 for the purpose of organizing a New Mexico club. The initial meeting of Pi Gamma Mu, national honorary social science fraternity, is scheduled for Friday night while the final pep rally before the Simmons game will attract the bulk of the students. The weekly campus movie is scheduled soon after the rally and the showing of the news reel of the Tech-T. C. U. game will likely comprise the major portion of the program.

On Saturday, the Matadors will face the Simmons University Cowboys in their fourth game of the season.

DRY HOTELS TO BE NEXT FOR THE FRENCH
PARIS, Oct. 8. (AP)—Temperance hotels and restaurants in which neither liquor, beer nor wine is sold, are soon to be established throughout France. Organizers of the movement declare they have received approval from tourists, commercial travelers and others, and are sure of success.

"Frenchmen are using less and less alcohol," Alexander Duvilliers, founder of the company, said. "People who a few years ago always took wine with their meals now drink mineral water. The greatest consumers of spirits are foreigners, and it is they who keep up the liquor consumption figures in France. Our hotels and restaurants, run on strictly temperance principles, will be welcome to a great percentage of the French people."

COTTONSEED OIL
NEW YORK, Oct. 8. (AP)—The cottonseed oil market was moderately active and firm today, closing 10 to 18 points, higher. The advance was brought about on commission house buying and covering in sympathy with cotton and a moderately bullish interpretation of the government cotton crop report. Sales 20,500 barrels. Prime cottonseed oil, 11.25; October closed 11.25; December 11.26; January 11.26; March 11.55; May 11.72.

FOR SALE—Oil land in fee, $5.00 per acre cash, balance of .97¢ per acre at 5 per cent due state in about 39 years. This is in sections 14, 34, 36 and 38, block D11, Eastern Brewster county, one to three miles of California Syndicate test and in oil play. State reserves 1-16th of mineral. Lease or royalty should be worth price asked.

JEALOUSY HINTED MOTIVE OF SLAYER

POLICE INVESTIGATING CASE IN WHICH AUTHOR KILLED SECRETARY AND SELF

BERLIN, Oct. 8.—Jealousy, motivated by a state of nervous collapse, is now believed by police to have been the motive which prompted Herman George Scheffauer, American author, to stab his secretary, Kitty Von Meyer, to death and then leap three stories to his own death yesterday.

Scheffauer's friends declare that for the past few weeks he reflected an increasing state of irritability and as a result of their persuasions made an appointment with a widely known neurologist—a visit that never took place.

Kitty Von Meyer, the slain woman, belonged to a Russian refugee family which settled in Berlin after the Russian revolution. She is described as having been tall, good looking and blonde. Scheffauer is said to have become infatuated with her since his estrangement from his wife about a year ago, although the woman's friends say that she never received his attentions and formed a dislike for him.

INVENT RUBBER SAVER

Oxidation of Tires and Other Products Will Be Kept Down By New Device

WILMINGTON, Del., Oct. 8. (AP)—A new product designed to prevent deterioration of rubber by air is announced by the E. I. DuPont de Nemours and company. "Neozene," the new anti-oxidant is a product of the program of organic chemical development instituted by the company several years ago.

Dupont rubber chemists explained today that it has long been known that the deterioration in rubber is due chiefly to the oxygen of the air but that it was not possible to scientifically study this phenomenon until within the last few years, when tests were developed which enabled the chemist to duplicate by artificial means within a few days, the deterioration which is normally produced over a period of several years.

PUSH TEXAS PRO PARTY

Organization to Oppose Al Smith And Jim Reed Is Sought By McCullough of Dallas

DALLAS, Oct. 8. (AP)—Suggestions that leading Texas democrats who are "friends of constitutional government" meet in Dallas on October 13 or 14 to organize "the forces of temperance" against Al Smith and "Jim" Reed are contained in letters which Tom J. McCullough, Dallas political leader, has sent out to party chiefs of the state.

He also suggests two Texas as possible candidates for president, Governor Dan Moody and former Governor Pat Neff.

Take The Trail With Norfleet

Starting today in the Avalanche-Journal Frank Norfleet, intrepid little West Texas rancher, takes the trail of the most desperate gang of swindlers that ever preyed on the American public. Daily, for eight weeks he will reveal the secrets of the underworld, match wits with its leaders, tell how death dogged his trail; how he was first laughed at, then double-crossed, then marked for death; and finally feared by all crookdom.

Never has such a story been told by such a man. Truth blazes from every line dimming the brightest light of any lurid fiction.

You will marvel at the man. Insignificant looking, innocent of the world, trusting all men, he starts out on the greatest detective adventure of all time. First you'll laugh at him. What chance has the little country "hick" to catch the smooth city crooks? Then your admiration will grow as he sticks to the trail with grim determination. You'll fear for him as he walks into the traps of death. You'll grow cold with indignation when police officers double-cross him and help the crooks get away. And finally, you'll cheer for him as he begins to overtake the swindlers, outwit them, destroy them one by one.

Never have you read such a story of such gripping, stirring adventure. In today's Avalanche-Journal comes the first installment of—

T.C.C. DENIES SUMMER SPLIT IN WATER FUSS

MUCH ENCOURAGEMENT
IN FIGHT RECEIVED
OFFICIALS SAY

(By Associated Press)
STAMFORD, Oct. 8.—Despite reports that five hundred farmers at Hallinger, and other groups in other West Texas cities had signed letters protesting the West Texas Chamber of Commerce stand for its division of storm waters in Texas, no such letters have been received by the general officers of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, nor by either President R. Haynie or Manager Homer D. Wade of the organization, it stated in its headquarters here.

On the contrary the organization received scores of letters endorsing the stand of the organization and has received notice of official endorsements by numerous chambers of commerce and a communication from the Hallinger Chamber of Commerce disclaiming any knowledge of alleged protesting letter supposed to have originated there, of here say.

Reports Are Denied.
Homer D. Wade, manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, said that reports which have appeared in some newspapers to the effect that several towns have withdrawn membership in the regional body, and that others have refused to do so were entirely untrue.

In town, Burnet, he said, which was the West Texas Chamber for the first time, six months ago notified the manager that they had withdrawn their membership. A check was immediately sent them the balance of their dues for the year, he said. The week following the town of Rowena, located the water shed of the Colorado river, voluntarily increased their membership, stating that their action was due to a desire to offset the loss of the Burnet member. Several other towns located the Colorado water shed re-iterated that they were allowed to retain their membership to the extent Mr. Wade said.

Only one large city of the West

Texas Chamber of Commerce chain has had occasion to renew membership since the water question arose. This city, El Paso, increased their membership from less than one hundred members to more than five hundred members.

Sensational Increase.
The question of the West Texas Chambers' stand on protecting West Texas water rights was one of the factors accounting for the sensational increase, West Texas chamber officials say. Lampasas another city located on the Colorado water shed has renewed its membership with fifteen per cent increase over that of 1926.

West Texas is united on the question of protecting its water rights, and any reports to the contrary are branded as pure propaganda by officials of the West Texas regional body. Mr. Wade also challenged the accuracy of recent newspaper reports intimating that the regional chamber of commerce was attempting to "force" irrigation districts upon land owners of West Texas, declaring that the organization had never attempted to put over any irrigation districts in its territory, taking the stand that the individual districts should be left to decide such questions. The organization has always taken the stand and still maintains it that these districts should be left free to form such districts if they so desired, and that no private company should be given prior rights to water to the extent that these districts might be deprived of water sufficient for their needs if they want to use it, he explained.

SUIT LASTS 35 YEARS

MASON, Texas.—The high cost of living is only a slight aggravation to F. H. Lehmann of Mason. He has a suit of clothes he has been wearing for 35 years. The suit is made of buckskin and was given to him while a captive of an Indian tribe during the frontier days. Lehmann was captured by Indians in 1870 and lived with them nine years. The suit was made for him by an Indian and he says it is still as good as new.

ATTORNEY GENERAL

(By Associated Press)
LEAVENWORTH, Oct. 8.—Nathan Goldstein, St. Louis politician, will be released from federal prison here at 12:30 o'clock Sunday morning. A telegram to Warden T. B. White from Attorney General Sargent in Washington tonight authorized the release of Goldstein, whose recommendation for parole was approved by the attorney general yesterday.

Americans Gain Control Of Rail Line In Mexico

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 8.—Control of the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient railroad falls definitely into American hands as a result of the decision in federal court in Topeka today awarding the American note-holders committee 39.345 of the 55,000 shares of the company's stock offered note-holders.

Control of the road, however, according to W. T. Kemper, of Kansas City, President will be widely scattered, no small group holding a majority of the stock. The largest individual holders of stock, Kemper said, are Herbert F. Hall of Kansas City, and H. F. Hodgkins of Los Angeles. The apportionment of the federal court gives the American commission control of about 58 1-2 percent of the stock if the decision ends the fight of British note-holders, who had about one third of the notes of the road, Kemper said.

BAN LABOR FOR SOLDIERS
TOKYO.—Manual labor for soldiers, such as the making of shoes, clothing and rifles, is to be stopped by the ministry of war. Special men will be employed at regular wages for this work. The new arrangement will enable reduction of the term of military service from 29 to 18 months.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—With high grade wheat in Winnipeg reported as commanding a premium of 3 1-2 cents for immediate delivery, the wheat market developed an advancing tendency today. Further advice of rain and snow likely to impede Canadian threshing and to spoil the quality of wheat were at hand. Closing quotations here on wheat were firm 1-2 cent to 3-4 cent net higher, corn was unchanged to a rise of 5 cents.

Corn bears were aggregated out found, buying resistance was steadily brisk. Provisions showed weakness as a result of scattered buying.

COTTON GOODS

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—Cotton goods markets showed little change. Raw silk was 2 1-2 cents a pound lower. Wool goods were in moderate demand for filling-in needs.

BUY BETTER FURNITURE

from Rix's

Almost every day, someone whom we have been privileged to serve years ago, tells us that the furniture they purchased here at that time, still retains its appearance of distinction and beauty, and that it is still giving the maximum of comfort and satisfaction. It is demonstrated to us every day, that the shrewd judge of values invests his furniture money with the thought of eliminating frequent replacements, by paying a little more in the beginning. For instance, $300 invested in a living room suite today, secures practically the same upholstery, construction and workmanship, that $500 did a few years ago. Volume production and higher manufacturing efficiency is responsible for this condition, and is enabling furniture buyers of today to get more for their money.

However, our display floors offer complete assortments that include furniture in every price range—each offering the maximum amount of value for the amount you wish to invest. The specimen values represented elsewhere in this ad demonstrate Rix's superiority in giving you more for your furniture dollars.

TWO COLLECTIONS GIVEN TO SOCIETY

LYNN'S HISTORICAL CHART AND LYNN PAPERS ARE RECENT DONATIONS

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)
CASSIDY, Oct. 8.—Two very valuable donations have been recently made to the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society. Miss M. Moss Richardson of Canyon presented a copy of Lynn's Historical Chart, which purports to contain the prominent events of the civil, religious and literary history of the world. It was published in 1875—it is interesting because of the array of this information which it contains and because it is typical of a large number of books through which people sought culture during the early period of the United States expansion after the depression which followed the Civil War.

History In Newspaper Files.
Frank P. Hill of the Tahoka News was the donor of two volumes of the Lynn County News, published during the period from June 2, 1895 to July 12, 1907.

It chronicles events from the entire Panhandle-Plains area and gives the impression that filling its four short columns each week was often a difficult task during the early period of the United States expansion after the depression which followed the Civil War.

Occasionally a blank sheet appears in the publication with the frank explanation that the editor's wife was sick and he could not get the type set by himself. When there was a great deal of news, as on April 2, 1907, a two column blue supplement appeared in the paper to give all the latest news.

Clovis Existed Only On Paper.
On June 21, 1907, an item appears telling that Clovis, "situated on the cut-off of the Santa Fe is attracting considerable attention." Further on it is found that Clovis was then owned by the Santa Fe and that a lively fight was in progress between it and Texico which at that time still hoped to retain much Santa Fe business and be the division point. At that date the first citizens were establishing homes in Clovis, which now has a population of 7500.

Much Ranching, But Little Farming.
In 1907 there was little farming and less gardening done on the Plains. When someone managed to grow a few tomatoes or turnips it was front-page material and the occasion for an editorial as well. Those were the years when the foundations for the present prosperity of the Plains country were being laid. Weather, in relation to the cattle industry, and all phases of ranch life were the greatest interests of the people at this time.

There was much interest in railroads and much rivalry between towns in their efforts to attract railroads. In the issue of the Lynn County News for June 14, 1907, there is a statement that the people of Dimmitt have a contract with the promoters of the Panhandle-Shoreline railroad which requires them to have the road into Dimmitt by January 1, 1908. This railroad was never built and Dimmitt is still an inland town.

Historical Society Has Old Papers.
The Panhandle-Plains Historical Society has many old newspapers which tell in characteristic fashion the history of the development of this region and are invaluable to the student of the region and of much interest to present-day citizens who wish to acquaint themselves with the background of a rapidly changing section of the last frontier.

TEST LABORATORY SUBJECT IN MEET

STANDARD APPLIANCES ARE GIVEN APPROVAL BY MEETING TESTS

(By Associated Press)

HOUSTON, Oct. 8.—The new testing laboratory of the American Gas Association, which shows a seal of approval on gas appliances which come up to proper standards, will be discussed at the annual convention of the Southwest Division, Natural Gas section of the American Gas Association, here October 21 and November 1.

The laboratory tests gas stoves and other appliances to determine whether they are efficient and it was established to give the public better gas service.

A report of the work received by the Texas Public Information Bureau, R. M. Conner, director of the laboratory states:

"The results of the work has been to bring up to accepted standards the proper grades of appliances. It has also caused further improvements to be made on the better types."

"Our present plan insures safe and efficient gas appliances operating anywhere in the United States. The requirements are minimum ones, referring largely to the quality of performance and particularly to its bearing on efficiency and safety, rather than how the appliance is built."

LUBBOCK LISTENS TO GAME REPORT

HUGE GALLERY EVERYWHERE AS RADIO STATION PUTS OUT GRID REPORTS

Lubbock "listened in" yesterday afternoon and last night. Every radio in the city had a large gallery as the reports of the Tech-T. C. U. football game in from WRAP at Fort Worth. Various stores in the business section with sets were packed with interested fans.

At the city hall, the Lubbock fire boys held a concert "all their own" as Barney Milsap with ear phones clamped over his head acted as announcer for an interested group. Again last night from 8:30 until 7:00, Lubbock was on the air again as the Tech 50-piece band and saxophone quartet sent strains of melodious music over the ether waves of the southwest. The band received a grand reception in the lobby of the Texas hotel where they played and requests for selections and telegrams fairly poured in.

Rev. Zoro B. Pirtle, pastor of the First Methodist church, of Levelland, was a visitor in Lubbock yesterday.

BROWNFIELD PLEASSED WITH RAPID ADVANCEMENT

DEVELOPMENT OF BROWNFIELD AND
TERRY COUNTY SINCE 1920 CENSUS
MARVELOUS; COTTON NOW BIG CROP

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)
BROWNFIELD, Oct. 8.—Since the census of 1920, the development of Brownfield and Terry county has been marvelous as viewed from both agricultural and industrial standpoints, which has been accomplished by the expenditure of much time and money upon the part of the citizenship.

Prior to the year 1918, there was a gin in the county and very little cotton had heretofore been grown. In fact the soil was not regarded by residents as being suited to its successful culture. In that year, however, a few adventurous farmers decided to set aside a few hundred acres for experimental purposes and a company was organized to erect a gin.

The efforts of the growers were rewarded by the production of about 600 bales, but the acre average was so great that other farmers who had played the part of spectators, decided to enter the list and more than three times the bales of the previous year was produced and this has been so increased that the year 1926 showed the number of bales as 22,446 and this figure would have been much greater had it not been for the disastrous storm which occurred in November. Cotton however is only one of the main crops of the territory, as the corn produced last year amounted to more than 800,000 bushels with grain sorghums estimated at 50,000 tons.

Diversification as it especially applies to the cow, sow and hen has witnessed a rapid development and it is estimated that more than $500,000.00 will have been realized from products marketed from these three sources by the close of the year, with range cattle not included. This showing is more remarkable when it is known that in 1925, more than $100,000.00 of packing house products was shipped from the county and consumed by the population.

Lack of Rain Hurts.
The production of cotton, corn and other grain crops growing the present year, will not equal that of the last as rains were very spotted and the total precipitation very much less than at any time within the past ten years. However one third of the county will produce as good crops as it has at any time since agriculture became the principal activity, but the remaining two-thirds will be much shorter, but sufficient production in all sections will be harvested in amounts adequate for all needs and sufficient to carry over until the next crop is matured.

Practically all farmers have adopted the cash plan and both merchants and banks report loans and credits smaller than in any previous year. Special reports received from each of the banks in Brownfield, show that loans are nearly $200,000.00 less than they were at the same period last year and each of them report that farmers are depositing cream and eggs checks which represent amounts not needed to supply their immediate needs.

Oil Development.
Oil development of the county has reached an interesting stage, with one well more than 3,000 feet in depth with favorable formations showing. Two other contracts have been signed calling for deep wells, one of which will begin drilling within the next few days and the other within sixty days unless extensions are granted.

Growth of the town and county has continued at a sane rate and mushroom development has not been in evidence. Numerous industrial enterprises are operating and the list has been recently augmented by the addition of a cotton compress and a franchise has been granted to the West Texas Gas Company, to furnish the territory with natural gas.

During 1926, several hundred acres was sown in wheat, being the first attempt to plant in any quantity and the production was so satisfactory, considering the dry spring; that it attracted the attention of other farmers and it is estimated that several thousand acres will be drilled in this fall.

DAIRYING HELD AS BIG BOON TO
SOUTH PLAINSU. S. OFFICIAL URGES
INDUSTRY BE GIVEN
CLOSE ATTENTION

Development of dairying as the backbone industry of the South Plains country is advocated by J. A. Evans, assistant chief of the federal extension farm service, who is in Lubbock for a few days while on a tour of study of cotton conditions.

He is of the opinion that it would be a great mistake to make of this section a cotton country solely. Diversified farming, with cotton as only one money crop, is the only intelligent plan for farmers, according to Mr. Evans, but the future of the South Plains will depend upon the dairy herd, in his opinion.

City Is Fortunate.
Yesterday he made a tour of the agricultural experiment station here after which he declared that Lubbock was especially fortunate in having both an experiment station and an agricultural and technological college. He pointed out that every new section has its problems, and for this reason the work of the station is especially vital to the future of this part of Texas.

Commenting on the leading of cotton, Mr. Evans, who is a cotton specialist, said that this plan of harvesting is as yet in the experimental stage, but that at present it seems to be the only practicable solution for the South Plains, because of the shortness and the lateness of the seasons here. Cotton spinners are now opposed to cotton that has been sheared, but this is largely because it is an innovation, and time, with education, may overcome this prejudice, Mr. Evans said.

Sledding No Handicap.
While it is true that sledding gives a slightly inferior grade, so long as the staple length is above seven-eighths of an inch, the question is not the grade, but whether the quantity per acre will overcome the difference in price for the better grade, he declared.

Through this is the first time Mr. Evans has been in the Lubbock territory, he is not entirely strange to the South Plains country, as he lived near Midland about 23 years ago. In point of service, he is the oldest of the county agents.

SLATON PAIR ARE BACK FROM FRANCE

MR. AND MRS. V. P. WILLIAMS ATTENDED AMERICAN LEGION MEETING

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)
SLATON, Oct. 8.—After an absence of 46 days, Mr. and Mrs. V. P. Williams, of this city, returned home Friday night from the American legion convention in Paris, France. They report an excellent trip which they thoroughly enjoyed.

The couple sailed from Galveston, September 1 on the steamship Chicago, landing in France 15 days later. They returned on the steamship Savoy, landing at New York eight days after embarking on the voyage. The return here from New York was made by rail.

Williams saw extensive service overseas during the World War. He is now a Santa Fe engineer on the Slaton division. His wife is chief operator for the Southwestern Bell Telephone company here.

To see the effects of French liquor as he says it while on our trip, Williams observed upon returning here, "makes a fellow appreciate the fact that he lives in a country that's trying to be dry."

REED DEFERS TO RACES

MUTCHINSON, Kas.—Kansas farmers like automobile racing and even refuse to let a speech by a possible presidential candidate interfere. A crowd at the Kansas state fair, impatient at the length of Senator James A. Reed's speech which was holding up the races, began to heckle him. He cut his address short, remarking he did not care to detain "those whose intellectual capacity can better be satisfied by the merry-go-round."

Activity is the keynote of modern style

NEVER before has woman appeared so smart, so lovely because never before has she been so active. She has learned that her appearance is most satisfying only when she wears pretty things that permit absolute freedom of action.

As a fitting compliment to her modern gowns she is turning to the Arch Preserver Shoe because it gives her not only the smartest looking footwear but also the energy, health and comfort for any pastime or occupation.

She has found that this shoe, with its concealed, built-in arch bridge to prevent straining of the longitudinal arch, its support of the metatarsal arch, and its flat sole to prevent pinching of nerves, muscles and blood-vessels, is indispensable to activity.

Arch Preserver Shoes come in a wide range of distinctive styles for all occasions, being designed by the Selby New York studio.

CHARGE FILED ON STATE'S COUNSELCOUNT CITES FAILURE TO PROSECUTE WRIGHT ON STATUTORY CHARGE

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 8.—The legal ramifications of the quarrel between Miriam Noel Wright and her divorced husband, Frank Lloyd Wright, the architect, were extended Friday when Mrs. Wright filed a formal complaint against District Attorney C. H. Knudson, charging him with refusal to "do his duty" and prosecute Wright on a statutory charge.

Mrs. Wright, who alleges that her former husband had violated terms of her recent divorce and the statutory law by living with Olga, a woman, the Montenegro dancer, former housekeeper in the Wright home, and third member in the Wright divorce case, charges that Knudson refused to take action against the architect "because he wants to protect him."

Governor Fred Zimmerman promised Mrs. Wright after her complaint that he would take action against the county district attorney if she would post a bond of $500.

Efforts of Mrs. Wright, who for 14 months lived with the architect before their romantic marriage, as a bridge over the Wisconsin river, to bring her former husband prosecuted for his alleged illegal relations with his former housekeeper, came to the eye of her scheduled appearance in federal court here for a preliminary hearing on a charge of sending obscene letters through the mails.

CHINA WILL NOT SETTLE DOWN UNTIL OWN PEOPLE GOVERN NATION, IN THE OPINION OF E. W. PROVENCE, HERE

Of interest to those who have been attentive to the changing situation in China is the sidelight thrown upon the subject by E. W. Provence, business manager of Texas Technological college here, who spent six years in China and Japan engaged in mission and school work.

The antagonistic attitude recently taken by the southern Chinese against the foreign powers who held concessions scattered along the Chinese coast, especially the British, is a prejudice which has been long fomenting, but which will not be ended until China is made a national entity governed by the Chinese and for the Chinese, in the opinion of Mr. Provence.

Conceding that conditions have changed greatly in economic and living standards since he was there, Mr. Provence accredits the political conditions which caused the recent uprising and internecine

Mrs. Robnett Is Guest At Meador Party Yesterday

Mrs. F. Y. Robnett, who has recently moved to Lubbock with her husband, who is a member of the technological college faculty, was guest of Mrs. W. H. Meador and Miss Mary Meador when the two entertained at bridge yesterday afternoon at their home, 1623 Main street.

Orange shades predominated in the decorative theme. Dahlias in glass shades were interspersed with Chinese lanterns and the candles carried orange candles. Table appointments in many colors had a prevalence of the orange hues in them.

Women sharing the hospitality of the afternoon were Mesdames Robnett, Nell H. Wright, R. C. Smith, Sam Deanna, John E. Crisler, Russell Myrick, Walter Myrick, J. Herbert Lowery, Elmer Conley, J. T. Krueger, Claude Hurlbut, Owen McWhorter, Ross A. McWhorter, Guy L. McAfee, Kenneth Kimbro, D. K. Bondurant, R. D. McKinney, Charles Reed, R. McGriff, R. L. Douglas, J. A. Deceptive Bag

A rich, black suede bag has what appears to be a charming crystal fastener. In reality, it is an intriguing compact, with perfume in one end and lipstick and powder in the other.

Here's Some Clothes Counsel For The Titan Blonde! She Has Wonderful Chance To Be Really Distinctive

BY HENRI BENDEL

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—Today we take up the subject of gowning the Titan blonde. For, in any series on the costume of different types, this beauty logically follows the exotic brunet of whom I wrote in my last article.

For the Titan type of women comes, naturally, between the brunet and the blonde. She may rival the brunet in vividness and at the same time take the delicate skin and eye hue of the blonde.

But, of all types of beauty that have a chance to be "different," the Titan-haired girl is beloved by the gods. Hers is the possibility, not only of being pretty, even stunner—she has more of a chance than other types of being absolutely distinctive.

More or Less Immortal.

For while gentlemen may prefer blondes and marry brunets, the Titan-haired women are the ones they remember and artists paint.

Laying down rules for gowning the Titan-haired woman is a bit like defining genius, or any other thing that differs with each individual who possesses it. But certain basic observations will help place in the philosophy of clothes of any delicately colored Titan blonde.

First of all, a Titan-haired girl must subordinate her clothes to her hair. Distinction should be her motto.

One thing the Titan girl should also do is slenderize. If she can maintain a supple liteness, her chances of being distinctive are doubled. For she should stick to simple lines, not sophisticated ones. Color, most important, perhaps, to the Titan girl than any other. Her best tones are browns, blues, greens, whites and tans. Certain colors kill her. She can never wear gray. Gold kills her but bronzes, sometimes, set her off. To best rule is to match the tone of her eyes in colors.

For the girl who has brown eyes as does Miss Rita Wilg, the Titan-haired New York model illustrating my talk today, I choose browns in rich tone for daytime wear, or tans with warmth in them, no hint of drabness.

The daytime frock shown today is of sandalwood brown imported wool, with self-trimming. It has intricate pointed yoke effect both back and front and the collar can be worn tied in a bow in the back with ends hanging, or can be left open, as in the picture.

Four folds of the cloth, with inverted hand notches, give the unusual waistline shown and the same trimming adds a puff cuff to the long sleeve. Planted panels on both sides add fullness. The hat I design, of tan felt, stitched in dark but lively brown, banded in the same tone.

With this costume, the coat should be a richer brown, or the same tone. The Titan-haired girl looks magnificent in the right fur—mink, sable, badger, summer ermine and other luxurious furs. Her brown fur coat should be conservatively, not startlingly, rich.

On the side is a huge bow of self material that adds its drooping grace to the general fluid beauty of the gown. The bodice is simplicity itself. The material color and line make this gown and the greatest of these is the color.

The other evening gown is blue, soft, yet a decided blue chiffon which Lelong fashioned elegantly to the figure with no suggestion of tightness but gently suggesting the form. It has a lovely trimming, a bow knot of self color in satin, outlined in brilliant.

Four New Members In Music Club; First Fall Meeting

Four new members were recruited into the Lubbock Music club yesterday afternoon in the first meeting for this fall. Miss Stella Thompson was leader of the session, hostesses were Mrs. Ed O'Sullivan and Mrs. F. Holland and the meeting was at the First Methodist church.

Miss Mary Duren, co-sponsor for the Junior Music club reported that this organization has a large membership in the schools of the city and that meetings will be held monthly on the Saturdays preceding the meetings of the senior organization.

The four new members were Miss Margaret Stone, Miss Fay Blinn, Mrs. Guy Shaw and Mrs. J. E. Edwards.

With a lesson on "Primitive Music," Mrs. E. L. Robertson gave an interesting discussion of the topic after which six small boys sang a negro song. A. Those boys were Bobbie and Randolph Robertson, Buster McCoy, Harry and Lorraine Blocker and Billy Lynn. Mrs. R. A. Towell accompanied the song and played the attention.

Miss Zimer, Mrs. E. L. Robertson, Mrs. R. L. McKnight, Mrs. Indian Love Song and Mrs. Lucine Hawkins sang "The Ole Abolitionist." Mrs. Towell played "Indian Love Song."

All women in the church are being invited to this affair, which is for the general purpose of giving the Baptist women an opportunity to know each other better.

Annual Courtesy-Affair Extended School Faculties

An annual courtesy that is extended teachers in the public schools was repeated Friday evening when the Parent-Teacher council of the city entertained with a reception in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hamilton, 1701 Avenue Q. About 100 faculty members and trustees appeared in the receiving line and several hundred patrons and friends of the schools called.

Mr. Hamilton met the guests at the door and introduced them to the receiving line. Each teacher wore a small tag bearing his name. Musical numbers during the evening consisted of violin solos by Miss Blanche Funn and Miss Frances Larmer and piano music by Miss Betty Hamilton.

The guests were served punch by Mrs. Lois Morrison and Virginia Steward and offered in the Parent-Teacher association were in the house party.

Many Flowers.

Rooms of the Hamilton home were softly lighted and full flowers were used in abundance in bouquets for the entertaining suite.

Among those in the house party were Mrs. E. W. Camp, president of the council; Mrs. C. Y. Patain, president of the junior high school club; Mrs. J. C. Davies, president of the Sanders school P. T. A.; Mrs. R. T. Campbell, president of the association at Central Ward; Mrs. T. A. White, president of the George M. Hunt school association; Mrs. G. T. Scales, head of the K. Carter school P. T. A.; and Mrs. F. O. Bennett, president of Dwyer P. T. A. Those who were accompanied by Mrs. H. Duncan, Mrs. W. W. Royalty, Mrs. Hamilton, Mrs. E. M. Smith and Mrs. Carroll Thompson.

The Woman's Day By Allene Sumner

Rooms figure in both stories and life. Tragedies and joy are made by rooms. G. B. Stern once wrote a book called "The Room," about a woman who, in the vernacular, "went wrong," because that was the only way she could get a room of her own. Conventional, decent, family living had always been too thick, she had to "double up" in any room she ever had.

GRANDMA'S ROOM

Thyrs. Sanate Winslow in her collection of the best short stories written by anyone, has none, in years and years, called "People Round the Corner," tells the story of Grandma, Martin's room, Grandma lived with her son, David, his wife, Mary, and their two children, Isabel and Ralph. Isabel got married. In fact, grandma sort of engineered the match because of the room. Grandma had slept in the dining room for twelve years.

A DINING ROOM BED

"In the dining room was a day-entertainer, especially for Grandma, and covered with shining black leatherette, and it opened into a bed at night. Of course it had to be made up when you opened it, and the pillows and covers had to be brought in from the hall closet and that is not easy when one is 78. And when one sleeps in the dining room one has to wait until all of the other members of the family have gone to bed before one can go, especially in an apartment all on one floor."

THE FIRST DAY

"She woke up with a start the next morning, and then remembered: it was the day she was going into her own room. It was still early; she didn't hear anyone stirring. She was glad of that. She liked to be all dressed before anyone had to pass through the dining room. It was rather awkward being caught still in bed or not completely clothed. Grandma hurried and made the bed.

ROCKS IN ROOM

"All afternoon Grandma sat and rocked; Mary had come to her card club. It was fun just sitting still. At 8 o'clock, almost as soon as dinner was over and before she felt even sleepy, Grandma said, 'Believe I'll go to bed if you please excuse me.'"

END OF A PERFECT DAY

"Grandma woke up the next morning at her usual time. Then, when she realized where she was, in her own bed, she lay there luxuriously. It was nice to dress with all of one's things spread around ready for one, instead of having to hunt for them in little secret places, and to be sure that no one would walk or pass through her room or would see one through an open doorway."

Past Week Busiest Of Early Fall Season; Two Distinguished Women Of Texas Federation Are Visitors

An honor that seldom comes to Lubbock club women was accorded them during the last week when two of the state's distinguished club women visited in the city simultaneously.

These two were Mrs. J. U. Fields, president of the Texas Federation of Women's clubs, and Mrs. M. H. Hagaman, candidate for the presidency, and new second vice-president of the state organization and a representative from that body to the Texas educational commission. Mrs. Fields' home is in Haskell and Mrs. Hagaman lives in Ranger.

Mrs. Fields accompanied by Mrs. W. B. Price, president of the seventh district of federated clubs, went from Lubbock to Plainview, Floydada and Amarillo, after which she continued on her tour of the district. Before coming here she visited in Snyder, Post and other towns of the section.

Many Large Events.

Social affairs filled the week past, making it outstanding in such activities for the fall season.

A reception on Tuesday afternoon was in honor of Mrs. Hagaman and was given by her hostess, Mrs. J. H. Hanks, at her home, 2701 Broadway. The City Federation entertained with a seated musical tea, Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. E. Maedgen, 1823 Broadway, introducing Mrs. Fields and approximately one hundred and thirty club women attended this affair. Mrs. Hagaman was also an honored guest upon this occasion and the two women were given opportunities to make short talks.

Other large affairs of the week included an annual reception for teachers in the public schools given Friday evening by the City P. T. A. council in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hamilton, 1701 Avenue Q, that was attended by several hundred patrons of the schools. Faculty members of the city schools and trustees appeared in the receiving line at this affair and parent-teacher officers were in the house party.

Two Dances.

Fall pledges of the Gamma Pi Alpha club of the Technological college were formally introduced Tuesday evening at a dance at the Country club. Another brilliant feature of the week was given in the Hotel Lubbock ball room on Thursday evening for members of the Dancing club. This was a Spanish dance and guests came in brilliant costumes. Hostesses for this latter affair were Mesdames Herbert Lowery, Velton Spikes, Carl Patton, Guy L. McAfee and G. E. McShelley, Jr.

The Gamma Pi Alpha pledges are Miss Anna Belle Collins, Dahlhart; Miss Rachel Cole, Ralls; Miss Mary Frank Nichols, Georgetown; Miss Ulla Houston, Paint Rock; Miss Abney Felmet, Abernathy; Miss Ann Hansen, Dallas.

On Wednesday, Mrs. Kenneth I. Kimber entertained with two bridge parties, one in the morning and the other in the afternoon. There were five tables of players at each one. A color scheme of pink and green was used for the two affairs and chrysanthemums and autumnal decorations were placed about the tables.

Tells of Biennial.

Before coming to Lubbock, Mrs. Fields visited in Snyder and Post. At the first place she was honored guest at a beautifully appointed luncheon in the home of Mrs. O. P. Thorne and, in addition to the Snyder group, she attended there were several from Post and Lamesa. At the close of the luncheon and a delightful program, Mrs. Fields addressed the group. The study clubs of Snyder extended her this courtesy. She was a guest of the Post clubs on Wednesday before coming on to Lubbock.

On her tour over the district, the state president is talking particularly of the biennial convention of the general federation of women's clubs which is to be in San Antonio next spring. This is Texas' first time to be hostess to the national organization and approximately 10,000 women will be in attendance. It is thought now.

Mrs. Fields' personal charm was largely instrumental in bringing this convention to Texas and she is now working to make it the most successful in the history of the organization. Retained plans for this meeting will occupy much of the attention of club women at the annual state meeting in El Paso in November, she said upon the occasion of her visit here Thursday, in urging that Lubbock send a large representation.

As she goes through this district, she is talking the annual Texas meeting and the biennial, adjuring

Ko-Jo-Kai Club Is Entertained By Miss-Conner

Miss Margaret Conner, assisted by her mother, Mrs. John Conner, and sister, Miss Elizabeth Conner, was hostess to the Ko-Jo-Kai club Saturday afternoon at her home, 2001 Broadway. The City Federation entertained with a seated musical tea, Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. E. Maedgen, 1823 Broadway, introducing Mrs. Fields and approximately one hundred and thirty club women attended this affair. Mrs. Hagaman was also an honored guest upon this occasion and the two women were given opportunities to make short talks.

FOR THE OLD TRAIL DRIVERS' MONUMENT FUND

In all the annals of the Southwest there is no more interesting chapter than the making of the great cattle trails between Texas and the railroads which, in the '60s and '70s, were extended into Kansas. Those trails traversed Indian Territory, where dwelt many red men then waging the final struggle to retain their hunting-grounds and rapidly diminishing buffalo and antelope. The trail drivers and the Indians often clashed, but in the end the latter were forced to yield. The Comanches—renowned as the best horsemen among the many tribes on the Great Plains—were the champions of their race. Before the line of white settlements extended beyond the Missouri, the Lower Red River Valley and San Antonio, Comanche warriors often roamed from their camps in Western Oklahoma, as far northward as the Platte River and southward to Durango (Mexico). Fifty years ago the Comanches turned from the warpath and settled on a reservation between Red River and the Canadian; and there they have prospered as a rule. Many are now farmers and cattle-raisers. To assist their one-time foes—now friends—the old trail drives of Texas, a band of Comanches has journeyed to San Antonio and will take part in the pageant given at Garrett Field nightly the rest of this week. That spectacle should attract every person hereabouts who is interested in the history of this State and the Nation. Many who will help put these scenes of early days vividly before the younger generation, are veterans of either the cattle trail or the warpath. With the proceeds of the pageant, the Old Trail Drivers Association hopes to add considerably to the fund for its monument to departed comrades. That memorial should be erected in San Antonio—long a starting-point for the great herds which every year were driven northward to railroad stations in Kansas. The men who followed the trail did much to rebuild Texas economically after the Civil War. They brought their money back to the State and most of them invested the profits wisely. The Indians have taken up new way of life, far different from their ancient customs; and they have succeeded remarkably well, considering the obstacles in their path. The Comanches ever have been admired for their valor, which many of the tribe evinced anew in the Great War. Their presence in Old Trail Drivers' pageant is an historic event and lends it striking color. In the days when San Antonio was a Spanish outpost, Comanches often visited the place. At times they were hostile, but the conflict was inevitable, for the Indians strove to maintain their independence and to preserve the buffalo herds which provided food, and their adversaries sought ranches and farms. The red men accepted defeat with dignity, and today they are fellow-citizens and a valuable element in the Nation.

THE FARMER AND PROSPERITY

The Star Telegram in a recent issue says that the Southern Farmer cannot stand prosperity, especially when it is cotton prosperity. Cotton at 20c or more inevitably means cotton in succeeding years at a price below the cost of production. Balanced farming, or diversification, is a medicine which the farmer will take only when he is so sick that he has to be reasonable. These are observations for which renewed occasion is supplied every few years. And it is the fear of many that another such occasion is to arise next year. A high-priced short crop one year always has produced a low-priced bumper crop in the two or three years following, until at last the cotton grower's economic condition is so bad that he just has to quit raising the staple and produce something else to feed his family. There are indications abroad that the rush to plant an excess acreage of cotton will begin next Spring. Just so far as this rush materializes will cotton farmers have failed again to take to heart the lesson which has been put so vividly before them. There are two factors in the prosperity of Southern farmers this year. One is the shortage of the cotton crop, which produced a high price for the staple. The other is the increase in diversification, the larger number of farmers who produced on their own land all the feed they needed and much of the family's food. To increase cotton planting next year and cut down on other lines of production is to destroy at one swoop both of the factors which produced good times on the farms this year.

Cotton farmers should analyze this year's situation. It is through no merit of the growers that cotton is at a fair price. They planted less than they did the year before, to be sure, but they planted enough to keep the price down. The weather and the insects stepped in and saved the cotton farmer in spite of himself. There is no guarantee that the weather and the insects will operate in the same manner next year. Overproduction next year will bring cotton prices down below production cost, and it will be a loss all the more severe because it will be at the expense of production of other things which the farmer can use or sell more profitably.

Every agency of the farming community should be employed to help in holding the gains which, through bitter experience, have been made for diversification. Banks and merchants, school teachers and preachers, and most of all those few farmers who have learned the lesson of diversification, should unite to prevent a disastrous rush to an all-cotton program next Spring. The present cotton crop is the most profitable that has ever been raised in Texas, and this principally because of diversification which left a farm overhead to be charged to the cotton crop. If we are not to lose all the ground we have gained in this respect, farmers must be aided and encouraged to resist the temptation to go wild over cotton next spring.

The farmer however is not the only class of people that lose their head when prosperity smiles upon the nation. The same trouble seizes the investor and the business man, and when things begin to brighten up there is an inclination on the part of everyone to grab a surplus of that commodity that they are interested in with a hope of making a pot of money. There will probably be that inclination on the part of the farmers to increase the acreage, but this should be discouraged by all interests interested in the welfare of the community. There is danger of overproduction, which always means a lower price and demoralized market.

AMERICA IN EUROPE

Many people have wondered just what Europe thinks about America anyway and in order to find out one of the big news gathering syndicates of the world delegated a prominent writer to go into that country and in a quiet unpretentious way find out just how the people of that country feel toward America and he has written an article regarding it in which he says that new foreign newspapers is about the best index that one can get, but the trouble is there are very few European newspapers that come to America and the editorial opinions of the nation are not well known.

Just at present the European press is deeply engaged in the study of our own American affairs to an extent that would not seem possible a few years ago. We have many friends in Europe that we do not know, and many enemies, whose influence over large masses of people we minimize, instead of neutralize. People on this side of the ocean have not the slightest inkling of what has appeared in the press of Europe about America, and against America in connection with the Sacco and Vanzetti affair—all of which cannot, by any stretch of the imagination, be ascribed to humanitarian or political motives. In the same way stories have appeared in the European papers in connection with the failure of the disarmament conference in Geneva, putting all the burden of responsibility for that fiasco on the shoulders of the only country in the world that went to Geneva sincerely and openly devoted to the principle of genuine disarmament. One might think that amongst those who read the foreign papers are the editors of our American press, or at least those of our great metropolitan dailies; but even this happens on a very limited scale. Our editors as a rule depend on the material sent to them by their correspondents who are stationed abroad, and justice compels us to realize that some of them do very well indeed in that line. Certain metropolitan dailies quite often are giving their readers long cable extracts and summaries of European and generally foreign editorial comment, which is timely and valuable. Yet the idea seems to persist among many of our thinking people, that because America is great, independent and prosperous she can well afford to ignore what the rest of the world thinks of, says or writes about her. Such a fallacy seems to be deep-rooted in our public, and an effort should be made to substitute for it a clearer perception of things and situations as they are; and not as we wish them to be. No matter how many and how sufficient diplomats we may have abroad, the fact remains that the only real foreign opinion about America and about the affairs of the world in which we are interested, appears in the editorial columns of the foreign press. It does not appear in the postprandial speeches of European officialdom, welcoming or Godspeeding some equally official or semi-official representatives of America, who happen to travel in Europe. To keep the peoples of the world better informed about our aims and purposes, and about what we call our American world policy, should be part of the job, not only of our governmental agencies, but also of the American press. However, this opens the chapter of American propaganda abroad, and that, as Kipling said, is another story.

SO THINK WE

We think that Lubbock will get a federal building after a while. It may be several years, but we should never grow discouraged in trying to get the things that are needed for the town and be believe that this is one thing that we sure should have.

We think that down in Mexico the national army does not apparently have privates, captains, or lower rank officers—but they are all generals.

We think that every effort should be made to keep Lubbock a healthy city. The way to do that is for every citizen to be on the job and keep the city clean.

We think the paving of more streets in Lubbock will add much to the beauty of the city. It makes property worth more money, and more desirable.

We think that there should be a letter box at the Santa Fe station. This is contrary to the belief of the postal department in Washington, but we believe we know more about it than they do even if we have lived here most of our life.

We think that every person who tries to save should have a definite goal for their savings. No one will ever get anywhere if they merely start out with no special place to reach.

We think the folks who went to the ball game at Fort Worth may have had a better time watching the game, but there were none of them that were more anxious to see the score than the bunch that stayed at home, and may be you think we did not play ball here, too.

We think some evils are popular because people do not understand the real extent of it.

We think that Mexico should be happy. She has a revolution on.

We think that fire prevention week is a mighty good thing, and it has no doubt prevented many fires.

We think the U. S. C. U. Frogs were at least scared of the bull fighters to say the least of it.

We think the Texas Technological college is getting a large amount of publicity this year. We are also glad to know that it is all favorable.

We think that we cannot all be big business men, because we just cannot all learn to be prize fighters or home run hitters.

We think the new definition for a pessimist is not bad. It says that a pessimist is one who will never see the world on fire because he would be afraid of being charged with arson.

We think Lubbock might be made a prettier city by keeping it a little cleaner.

We think that the streets of Lubbock should be made lighter.

We think there are more nice homes being built in Lubbock today than in any other south plains city. There is a reason.

We think the Fair Association should lose no time in buying additional grounds for the fair. It is badly needed and there is going to be a constant demand for it. Land is cheaper now than it ever will be again.

We think the Technological college is making a fine record for attendance. It is beating all previous records and that is a mighty good indication that there is real merit behind the efforts.

We think that Lubbock people will see the largest crowd present at the Tech-A. & M. game that they have ever seen in Lubbock. People are coming from a far distance to see the battle that will be fought between the two mighty teams.

We think that Lubbock county should decide on 'er roads and about the only way to decide is by a vote of the people.

We think it fine to equalize the value of the property in Lubbock county, provided the valuations are not too high to begin with.

We think it a strange way of valuing property when a lot is at $250 for one tax; $750 for another, and $900 for another but that is about the way it runs in Lubbock.

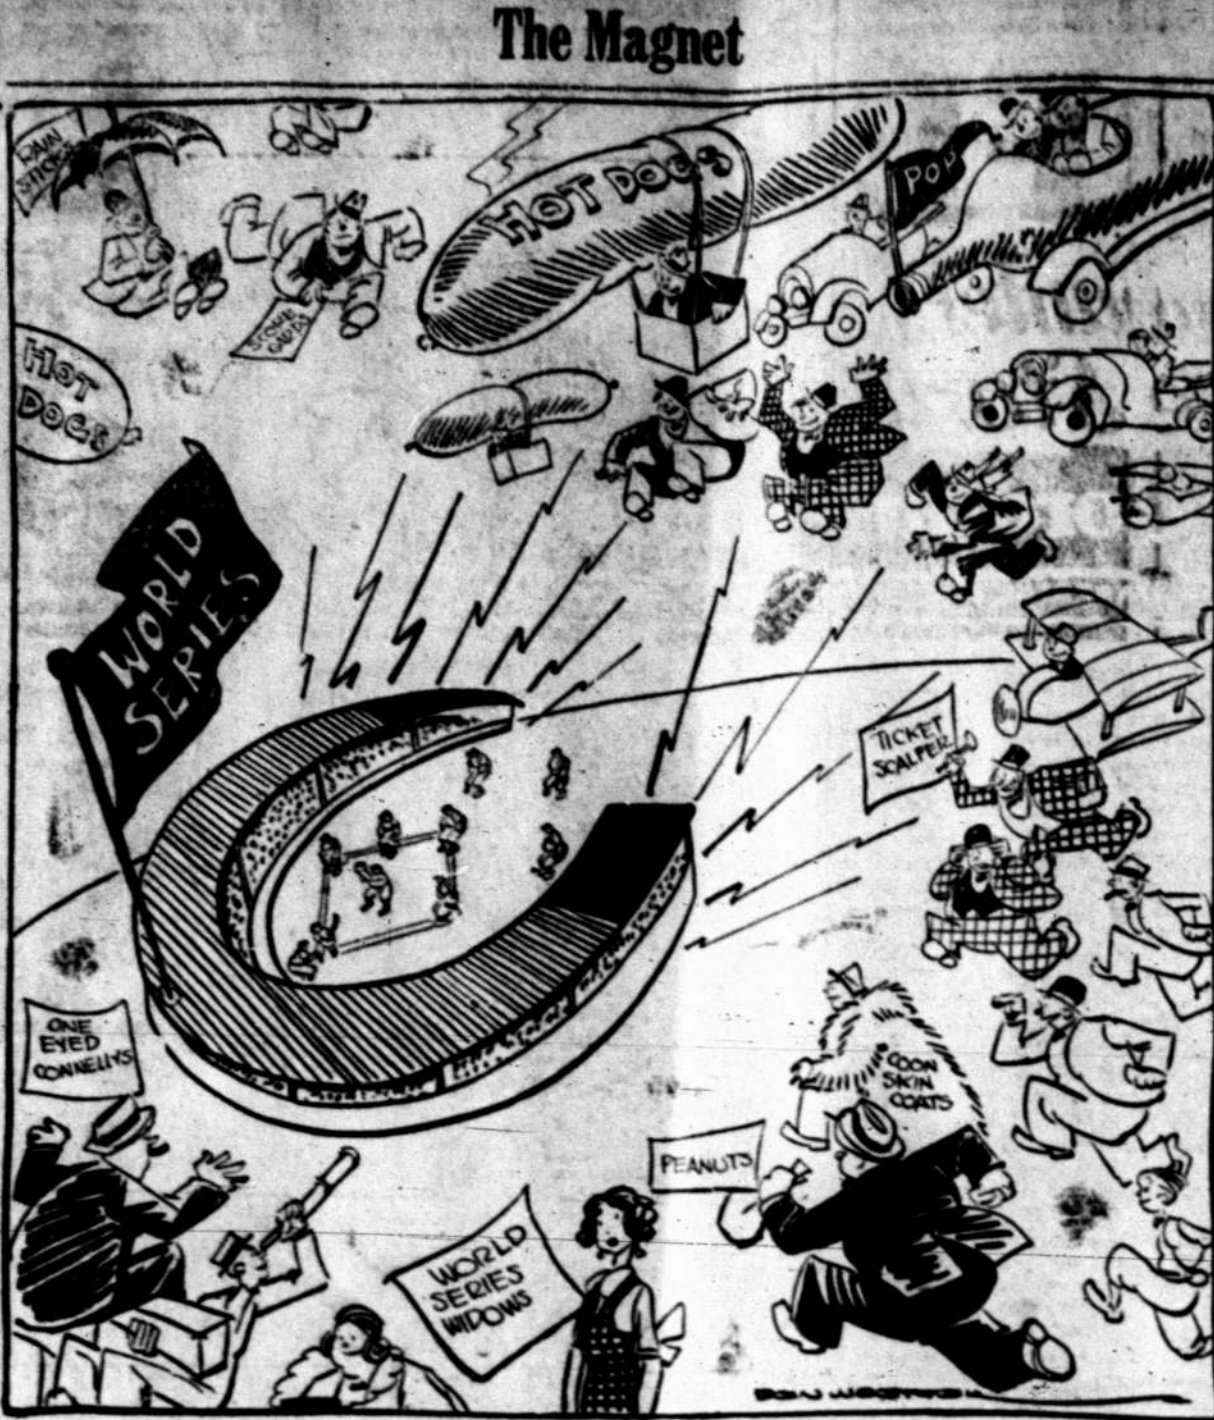

We think the school grounds in Lubbock should be beautified but the trouble with Lubbock schools is that they grow so fast that it takes all of the money and then speed ahead without spending much on the grounds.

"Jack," she cooed as they sat on the beach in the moonlight, "have you ever been engaged before?" "Why, he answered, "you don't think that this is my first vacation, do you?"

"Have you any cheese?" "Yes, we've got some nice cottage cheese."

"Oh, but we don't live in a cottage any more. We live in a nice apartment house now. Have you any cheese fit for that sort of place?"

Bride—Oh, dear, I'm afraid our first meal won't be a success. Her Husband—Why not? Bride—The only thing I know how to cook is hash, and we won't have any scraps to make it with.

IT IS REPORTED

It is reported that Big Spring is checking up this week to find if they really have a high school football team. Since they got up against the Westerners there seems to be some doubt in their minds about it. We think they have a mighty good aggregation of ball players ourselves, but the Westerners just simply have a good team.

It is reported that Lubbock has a very well-satisfied citizenship now. Most of them have had a vacation, and they are fully convinced that Lubbock is the best place on earth, and that is the reason they are so happy.

It is reported that many people's apprehensions much greater if the general public does not know so much about it.

It is reported that a great many people pour out a gallon of words to express a thimbleful of thought.

It is reported that some men court in haste and repent in court.

It is reported that the unexpected happens only when we bring it on ourselves.

It is reported that the man who squanders time, would also squander his money if he had any, but it is very seldom that he has any.

It is reported that most people who know it all are not satisfied with that but want you to know it all too.

It is reported that the postal department handles twenty billion pieces of mail a year, but we would like to know just what percent of it goes in the waste basket.

It is reported that most people do not seem to understand a thing unless they understand it just like we do.

It is reported that some people still think that school girls complexion is the result of the use of soap.

It is reported that farmers are coming more and more to the idea of letting the modern machinery rather than muscle do farm work.

TODAY'S POEM

"TURNING-OUT TIME"
Turning-out time was at sundown
When my father's walking-plow
Used to lay its perfect furrow—
(Comes a little sooner now.)
I would race, barefoot, to meet him;
He'd come whistling o'er the hill.
Turning-out time was a blessing—
And it is a blessing still.

When, with meadow lark a-singing
And the grass blades bent with dew,
I have started in the morning
And have plowed the whole day through,
When the new-turned swath is wider
Than I thought that it would be,
Then I'm more than merely quitting
Turning-out time means to me,
Turning-out time, rich with fragrance
Of the fresh soil roundabout,
Finds me hungry, tired and happy;
And I'm thinking, turning out,
Of the smiling plow to greet me
Where he's tempting supper waits,
Of the boy who'll run to meet me
And to open up the gates!

What's Going On In Russia Today

EDITOR'S NOTE. This is the first of a series of 12 articles, written especially for the Avalanche and NEA service by Jerome Davis, a member of the faculty of the Yale University Divinity School, who has spent the summer investigating conditions in Russia. Mr. Davis' articles, which will appear daily, tell just what is happening in the social, political and economic phases of Russian life.

By JEROME DAVIS
Member of the Faculty of the Yale University Divinity School
Writer Especially for the Avalanche and NEA Service

Russia is a great laboratory of religious experimentation today. Hundreds of religious sects are competing for the allegiance of the people and all have to go up against the Lenin cult and the worst of communism as a religion. A type of religious evangelist and preacher is coming forward not unlike those developed in the days of Paul when the Apostles had to face the Roman emperor worship.

Never since Christianity was first struggling with the pagan patrios faith of Rome has it been so challenged as by bolshevism. Never before in the history of the world has a great government controlling one-sixth of the land surface of the earth proudly proclaimed itself atheistic.

Today Russia is attempting to displace religion by science. It is not only a negative but a positive attack. They would not only banish the gods from the skies but usher in communism on the earth.

Churches Stay Open
The Bolsheviks are too wise to close down the churches. Everywhere they are open. The metropolitan bishop of Leningrad told me that no just criticism could be made against the bolsheviks for interfering with the worship of God. Indeed, he admitted that the bolsheviks encouraged the church to do welfare work, sometimes even giving it financial aid. The various Protestant missionaries recorded high praise to much of the bolshevik policy. Under the last they did not have the right to organization. At present they are enjoying full freedom. National religious conventions are regularly held and converts are being numbered by the thousands.

There are also religious groups such as Dukhobors, the Evangelical Malokams, and the New Israelites, who accept communism while retaining their faith in God. The soviet government aided these people to return from exile in Canada, the United States, and South America. A statement of the Russian department of justice reads: "These sects adapt themselves quite readily to our soviet laws, in spite of the religious form of their communistic tendencies they unite as agricultural nuclei into our soviet structure. The task of the soviet organs in relation to these communistic believers is to develop and fortify them with the aid of science and a superior technique. Let them continue in their old habits and modes of communistic organizations as industrial agricultural groups. With our aid they will serve as practical examples of the possibility of advantage of communism for the toiling peasants."

The Soviet's Enemy
Such friendship for the soviet for religion seems strange. What have they done which might be considered hostile?

They have passed new laws. The church is completely separated from the state and the school from the church. It is forbidden to teach religious doctrine in any educational institution, public or private. The Greek orthodox faith, the universal Russian church, has been badly hit. Some say it is dying.

In order to find out the government's attitude toward religion I interviewed Yaroslavsky, who is editor of the Atheist. He has had a long record of revolutionary activity and now stands very close to the powerful communist leader, Stalin. He told me that the communists oppose religion on three counts.

"In the first place," he said, "all ideas of God are pure superstitions, myths without a scintilla of evidence behind them. In the second place, religion has been a kind of political agitator, sitting on the head of every oppressed man with promises of future happiness. For this reason religion is the opium of the people. In the third place, religion is always used as a tool by autocratic power, whether papal or capitalist. The priesthood and the ministers always support the dominant crowd. The church thus becomes the agitating apparatus of the ruling group, whether it is some king or landlord, money lender, slave holder, merchants, factory owners, speculators, bankers, or others."

"The church in reality is a mist to hide selfish desires. Priests and ministers are social conciliators who postpone the day of social justice, or they are fascists, supporters of the Ku Klux Klan, and the like, who use terror in the name of religion."

The communist party in article thirteen of its program requires of all its members anti-religious work. Yaroslavsky went on to tell me of the concrete steps the communists are taking in their anti-religious drive. He was very proud of the fact that nowhere else in the world is this work so widespread.

Magazines Are Effective
Most effective in spreading "the gospel of a Godless world" is the weekly magazine, "Without God," which in 1926 had a circulation of 300,000. Another periodical, "The Atheist in the Factory," circulates largely among the laboring masses. In many of the local magazines there is a "without God" corner which carried on "this good" work.

Said Yaroslavsky, "In April, 1925, we found our 'Union of Atheists,' a missionary organization, which has for its purpose the conversion of the Christians. In 1925 its membership exceeded 114,000. The most effective work is carried on in the

LAUGHS

"Darling, I will love you perpetually, eternally, ceaselessly, everlastingly."

"Yes, but how long will you love me?"

The candidate dropped into town in the old driver he teamed about in the country districts in order to show that he did not feel above the common herd.

"You don't expect to get any votes here, do you?" questioned one of the party managers.

"Yes. Why not?" replied the surprised pol.

"Well, the fellow that's runnin' ag'n yer dropped down on us yesterday in an airplane an explained that he had staid on his way to Paris and our folks give him a dinner."—Portland Evening Express.

He had dined in a restaurant far to the north of New Orleans and felt that the excellence of the meal merited some praise.

"The finest steak I've ever tasted," he told the proprietors.

"It ought to be," was the somewhat disconcerting reply, "for it came from one of the finest two-year-old Jerseys in this section; you'd never have had steak from her if she hadn't collided with an automobile yesterday morning."

Virginia's mother was preparing the menu for dinner, and her face had been twisted in a puzzled frown.

"Mother," exclaimed the child suddenly "what are you worrying about?"

"Whatever made you think I was worrying?" the mother asked her.

"Well, your forehead is cracked."

RELIGION PLUS EVOLUTION

villages where we have 'economical' approach. We contrast co-operatives, electrification, and raising wheat with the productive results of the church. We ask, 'Is religion useful for the peasant economy?'

"We raise such questions as the derivation of the world, animals, plants, man, whether there is a 'soul,' the origin of religion and of the Bible, the contradictions of the Bible, whether Christ ever really existed or not, and many other problems. When we approach these questions we try to consider the conservatism, the dogmatism, and the fanaticism of the masses, and avoid insulting religion."

"Anyone can go to church who will. We do not stop the masses from being Christians if that is their desire. We hope they will grow to the state of maturity of such a faith. We use lectures, informal talks in meetings, theatrical performances, moving pictures, exhibits, posters, educational literature, newspapers, excursions, individual work, and so forth."

Highly Confident
In this great clash between what the bolsheviks believe is scientific truth versus "blind" belief, they are so confident of the victory as to affirm, "There is no living God, religion is self-delusion; the truth will finally emerge in the fires of communism."

Christians will share this optimism about the eventual triumph of truth, but to them God is truth.

It is quite possible that the bolsheviks in fighting religion have done the Russian church greater service in a decade than the tsar's outposts did in subsidizing it for centuries. Under persecution hypocrisy is laid bare and sincere, devoted followers of the Christ are born.

TOMORROW: What Americans are doing in Russia.

DR. M. L. SPENCER

(By NEA Service)

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 8.—Seventy-five hundred students and instructors at the University of Washington are "going back to God and the Bible," under the leadership of Dr. Matthew B. Spencer, president of the institution.

Dr. Spencer has taken a pew in the University temple and has announced his intention to lead pupils and teachers into religion.

But, for churchmen, his announcement carries the disappointing news that he sees no conflict between science and Christianity; he will encourage the teaching of evolution and other sciences.

Fundamentalists and modernists here are divided in opinion concerning the movement.

The fundamentalists assert that if Dr. Spencer is sincere he will abandon certain scientific courses at the university.

The modernists rather incline to the president's view and defend his action. They commend him, too, for defending several professors accused by churches of agnostic tendencies.

Some ministers say they find Dr. Spencer's announced Christianity at a variance with his retention of professors with "advanced" theories concerning life.

Dr. Spencer, however, says that the scientific courses in the university will remain unchanged; students can learn evolution all week and attend church on Sunday, quite harmoniously.

The university is the largest in the northwest. Dr. Spencer is a former newspaper man and was once head of the school of journalism. His predecessor was not a church member.

Judge: "Do you mean to say that you stood by and allowed this man to brutally beat his wife and not render assistance?"

Witness: "He did not seem to need any help."

KUYKENDALL CHEVROLET BUILDING IS COMPLETE

NEW STRUCTURE, ADDED TO NEW PART OF RETAIL SECTION, ERECTED TO BE MODEL AUTOMOBILE BUSINESS PLANT

Another addition of considerable magnitude to the ever-growing and ever-widening business district of Lubbock was marked with the recent completion of the Kuykendall Chevrolet building at the corner of Thirtieth and Avenue J, of which Jerry Clements was the contractor.

The edifice fronts 75 feet on Thirtieth street by 122 feet on Avenue J. Large plate glass windows on the Thirtieth street side reveal beautiful show room, where the latest models of Chevrolets are exhibited, extending the full 75 feet on Thirtieth, and 20 feet deep on Avenue J.

Show Room is Beautiful
The show room presents a splendid sight especially at night, when eight colored flood lights placed at intervals on the inner walls and six white flood lights suspended from the ceiling create a dazzling effect, and lend a brilliant splendor to the new models on exhibit.

In the front of the building, immediately behind the show room, are located the offices of the company, where the business force transacts all its dealings.

Just behind the business offices, but decked half a story higher than these offices, is located the parts department, which is complete in every detail. Places for each type of part are labeled to avoid any possible confusion. The upper deck is used for the heavier parts, which are not so frequently needed, and which would take up too much room in the lower part.

The rear part of the building, shaped in a sort of V angle, with the southwest corner acting as the point of the V, is used by the service department, and also as storage place for the used cars.

Arrangement is Splendid
This arrangement is a typical proof of the outstanding fact of the structure, that it is a model building, especially designed for the "32" of business which it houses.

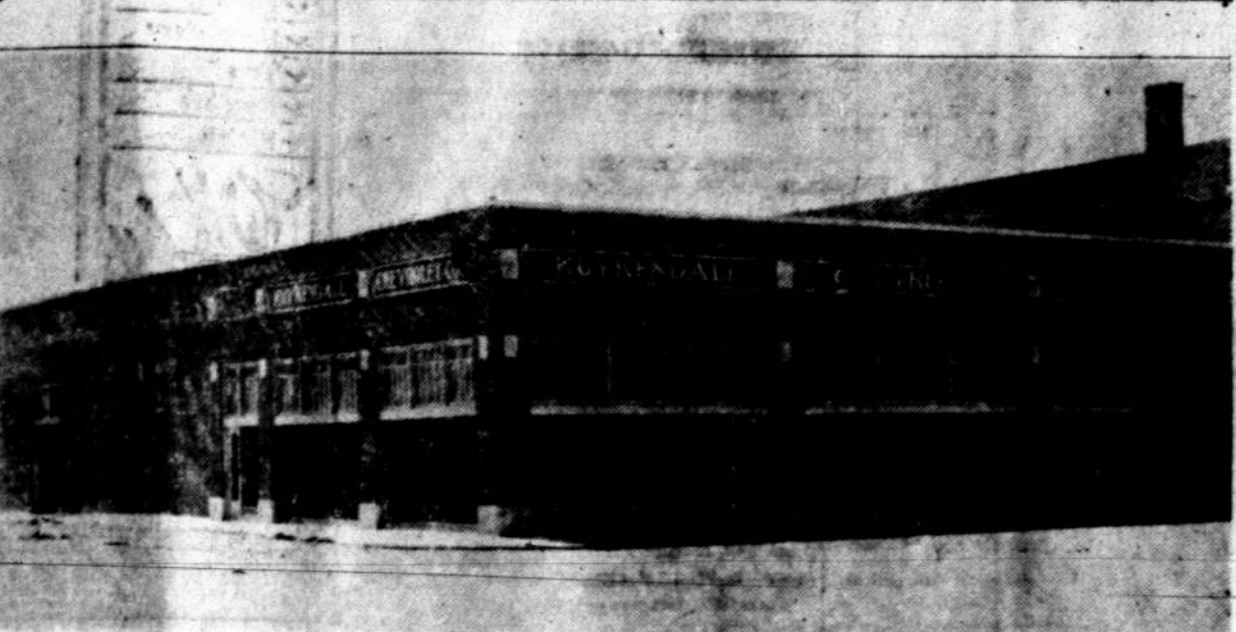

The office of the manager of the service department is placed at the entrance from the Avenue J side. The service department itself is a model of its kind. Modern equipment installed there insures a service which cannot be surpassed in quality in any agency house. One of the latest additions to it is the installation of washing machines, the principle of which gives a pressure of 325 pounds enough to clean any motor to the degree that it is as spotless as when it first left the factory.

Cleanliness, meaningly a motto throughout the building, is especially noticeable in the service department, where, in most establishments, uncleanness is accepted as a necessary evil.

Place is kept Clean
In this building, however, waste baskets are placed at intervals to care for the waste which would otherwise accumulate on the floor. Six stool chests are placed on the south walls wherein the nine skilled mechanics keep their equipment.

As evidence of the high quality of repair equipment which has been installed at a cost of several thousand dollars, one piece, a valve test, was bought at an expenditure of $185, whereas in many shops a

Kuykendall Hard Worker For City And Advancement

Showing interest in the welfare of his town the progress of which assures greater achievements for his business, G. P. Kuykendall has been an untiring worker in the various civic organizations of Lubbock since coming here three and one-half years ago.

As a member of the various organizations, he has been on practically every working committee. He is a worker on the railroad committee of the Chamber of Commerce and also a worker on one of the teams for the sale of the stock of the Lubbock hotel.

In May of this year he was one of the local delegates to the meeting of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce at Washington. He has also had charge of numerous committees and trade delegations.

He is a member of the board of directors of the chamber of commerce and also of the Board of City Development, supported by the City commission.

Is A Kiwanian
He is an active member of the Lubbock Kiwanis club, and served as one of the directors of the organization in 1925.

He is a member of the Christian church and on the board of deacons. In 1925 he served as superintendent of the Sunday school. A 22nd degree Mason and a Shriner, he has always taken part in the activities of the Masonic lodge.

Mr. Kuykendall is a director of the South Plains Automobile Dealers association and also a member of the South Plains Auto Club of the American Automobile Association.

The court of honor of the South Plains Scout Council has his name on its list and his interest is great in scout work.

Mr. Kuykendall is married and has two children, Roger, 6 and Martha, 4.

LARGE AND EFFICIENT ORGANIZATION BUSILY ADVANCES CHEVROLET SALES IN LUBBOCK; GROWTH IS MOST RAPID

In 1924, when G. P. Kuykendall organized the Kuykendall Chevrolet company in Lubbock, there were five men in his employ and very little system or departments. At present there are four departments of the business with twenty men furnishing the demands of public for low cost transportation service.

Mr. Kuykendall is president and general manager and J. O. Kuykendall is secretary-treasurer. J. V. Spikes is special salesman and assistant manager. He has been in Lubbock practically all of his life and with the company since its establishment. For a number of years he served as credit man for local concerns. Mr. Spikes is at present one of the five leading salesmen in a sales contest conducted by the Oklahoma City zone.

A. H. McGonagill is collector for the company and has been in his present position for the past two years. He is well acquainted with the South Plains public.

Heading the sales department is A. L. Page, former auditor for the Whaley Lumber yards over the South Plains. He has had several years of business experience with the public of this section and has been with the company since April of this year.

N. H. McFarland holds the position of manager of the used car department. He has had 7 years experience as mechanic and salesman and more than a year with the company.

Glenn Burson, member of the sales crew, is a native of the South Plains, his father being sheriff of Gaines county. Burson is one of the leading salesmen of the company and has a high standing in the contest conducted by the Oklahoma City office.

Other members of the sales department are: J. B. Roundtree, six months with the company and several years of sales experience, and N. G. Kelley, former manager of the Chevrolet company at Haskell. Thompson Parts Man

Neil S. Thompson, considered as one of the best versed Chevrolet parts men in this district, is manager of the parts department and enjoys a host of friends over this section. He has been with the company for 3 years, coming to Lubbock from Bonham where he was connected with the Chevrolet agency.

W. K. Moreland is service manager for the service and repair department, having nine years of experience with Chevrolet. He was connected with the factory branch in Los Angeles for three years and with the Spencer-Kelley Chevrolet company in the same city for 3 years. He has been with the local company for the past three years. Mr. Moreland holds a Chevrolet service diploma, which designates him as an approved Chevrolet mechanic and service man.

His department containing the following men: J. C. Sherrod, 3 1/2 years experience in Lubbock, 6 years with Chevrolet, one year in the California factory branch and holder of a service diploma; G. E. Manning, 11 years of Chevrolet service experience, 3 in Lubbock, one and one-half years with assembly plant at Fort Worth and holder of a service diploma; Vernon Abbott, former Tech student, two years with the company and six years of Chevrolet mechanical experience and holder of a Chevrolet service diploma; C. W. Peeler, 3 years as Chevrolet mechanic and one year with Kuykendall; M. E. Winter, 8 years experience with Chevrolet and two months with the company, holder of Chevrolet service diploma; C. P. Kennedy, 12 years mechanical experience at Central Chevrolet company of Houston and other places, and two months with Kuykendall; Bill Whitley, mechanic helper, several years mechanical experience, one with Buick garage here and six months with the company, and Frank Whitley, mechanic helper, considerable experience.

COTTON OPENING FAST AND HARVEST STARTS IN ALL PARTS OF COUNTRY

FLOYDADA, Oct. 8.—Although Floydada and Lockney gins are turning out only an occasional bale as yet, the gathering of the crop has started in a few fields over the central and northern parts of the country and in the southeast corner gathering has started with considerable momentum.

Joe Bailey turned out six bales Tuesday and by the end of the week will likely be handling ten or twelve bales. Fred W. Nickles, one of the owners of the gin said Wednesday morning. At McAdoo Mr. Nickles said, ginning is under full head.

The McAdoo territory is expected this year to furnish one of the biggest crops in its history, probably as good as better than the crop of last year, which was a record breaker throughout this section. The crop is also good around Joe Bailey, being considerably earlier in general than in other portions of the county.

Autos And Trucks Here Total 8,193

Registration of automobile and truck licenses for 1927 reached a total of 8,193 yesterday, according to figures from the office of County Tax Collector I. P. Holland. This includes 2,224 for automobiles and 569 for trucks.

This brings the motor population to a larger total than was had last year, when only 6,200 motor vehicles were registered.

HICKS OFFICIALS HERE

Fred Hicks, manager of the Hicks Rubber company at Waco, and John R. Hill, district manager of the concern at Abilene, were Lubbock visitors yesterday.

You Need Never Change Your Oil if You Own a Buick

Last year Buick said: "Change your oil only four times a year." Buick tests at the great Proving Ground of General Motors at that time had shown that oil changes would never be necessary, with the Oil Filter to remove impurities, and with the Crankcase Ventilator, Thermostatic Circulation Control and Automatic Heat Control to prevent oil dilution.

Now, more than a year has passed, and Buick owners in every section of the world—under every climatic condition—have also proved that you never need change your oil if you own a Buick—replenishment and inspection of the Buick Oil Filter only are required.

The BENSON MURDER CASE

By S. S. VAN DINE • CHAIRMAN, NEW YORK COUNTY JURY

Character of the Story
JOHN F. VAN DINE, chairman of the jury in the Benson murder case, has been called to the witness stand in the trial of the man who was charged with the murder of a woman in New York City. The case is one of the most sensational in the history of the city, and the trial is being watched by thousands of people. The man, who is now in prison, is charged with the murder of a woman who was found dead in a rooming house. The case is being tried in the New York County Court, and the jury is expected to return a verdict in a few days.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
 A woman's gloves and handbag were found at the scene of Benson's murder. Upstairs are found the gloves and handbag of the murdered woman. Benson, who had been shot, had kept a revolver in a table drawer. Now begin the story. Chapter VII. "Fut," Heath announced. "An expression of tremendous relief spread over the woman's features, and she sighed audibly. Markham had risen and was looking at the revolver over Heath's shoulder. "You'd better take charge of it, Sergeant," he said, "though I don't see exactly how it fits in with the case." He resumed his seat, and glancing at the notation Vance had given him, turned again to the housekeeper. "One more question, Mrs. Platz. You said Mr. Benson came home early and spent his time before dinner in this room. Did he have any callers during that time?" "I was watching the woman closely, and it seemed to me that she quickly comprehended her situation. At any rate, she sat quite still, straight in her chair before answering. "There wasn't no one, so far as I know." "But surely you would have known if the bell rang," insisted Markham. "You would have answered the door, wouldn't you?" "There wasn't no one," she repeated, with a trace of sullenness. "And last night, did the doorbell ring at all after you had retired?" "No sir." "You would have heard it, even if you'd been asleep?" "Yes, sir. There's a bell just outside my door, the same as in the kitchen. It rings in both places. Mr. Benson had it fixed that way." Markham looked her over and dismissed her. When she had gone, he looked at Vance questioning. "What idea did you have in your mind when you handed me those questions?" "I might have been a bit presumptuous, I know," said Vance, "but when the lady was extolling the deceased's popularity, I rather felt she was overdoing it a bit."

"And what put the notion of firearms into your mind?" "That query," explained Vance, "was a corollary of your own questions about barred windows and Benson's fear of burglars. If he was in a funk about house-breakers or enemies, he'd be likely to have weapons at hand—eh, what?" "Well, anyway, Mr. Vance," put in Heath, "your curiosity unearthed a nice little revolver that's probably never been used."

"The holy sergeant," returned Vance, "knowing the other's good-humored sarcasm, 'just what do you make of that little revolver?'" "Well, now," Heath replied, with a somewhat facetiousness, "I deduce that Mr. Benson kept a pearl-handled Smith and Wesson in a secret drawer of his underwear."

"You don't say—really?" exclaimed Vance in mock admiration. "Positively, blundering!" Markham broke up this railway about visions. "Vance," he said, "you've been a while here."

"Oh, just a while of mine. I was puzzled by an impulsive yearning to hear what La Platz would say." Heath was studying Vance curiously. His first impressions of the man were being dispelled, and he had begun to suspect that beneath the other's casual and debonair exterior there was something of a more solid nature than he had at first imagined.

He was not altogether satisfied with Vance's explanations to Markham, and seemed to be endeavoring to penetrate to his real reasons for supplementing the district attorney's interrogation of the housekeeper. Heath was astute, and he had the world's shan's ability to read people; but Vance, being different from the men with whom he usually came in contact, was an enigma to him.

At length he relinquished his scrutiny, and drew up his chair to the table with a spirited air. "And now, Mr. Markham," he said crisply, "we'd better outline our activities so as not to duplicate our efforts. The sooner I get my men started, the better."

Markham assented readily. "The investigation is entirely up to you, Sergeant. I'm here to help wherever I'm needed."

"That's very kind of you, sir," Heath returned. "But it looks to me as though there'd be enough work for all parties."

"Suppose I get to work on running down the owner of the hand-bag, and send some one out scouring among Benson's night-life cronies—I can pick up some names from the housekeeper, and they'll be a good starting point. And I'll get after that Cadillac, too."

"Then we ought to look into his lady friends—I guess he had enough of 'em."

Heath rejoined, "We ought to run into something pretty quick that'll give us a line to go on. And I've got an idea that when we locate the lady's car, we'll find out a lot more than we do now."

"You'd be positively dumfounded," Sergeant, at all I did learn," Vance answered carelessly. "Again I noted the look of shrewd scrutiny in Heath's eyes; but in a second it was gone."

"Well, I'm glad of that," was his perfunctory reply. "Markham, Vance and I went out, and the patrolman on duty hailed a taxicab for us."

"So that's the way our lefty commander approaches the mysterious whereabouts of criminal enterprises—eh?" mused Vance, as we started on our way across town. "Markham, old dear, how do those robust lads ever succeed in running down a culprit?"

"You have witnessed only the barest preliminaries," Markham explained. "There are certain things that must be done as a matter of routine."

DODGE ACCORDED GOOD RECEPTION

DETROIT, Oct. 8.—Dodge Brothers' official report continued enthusiastic reception of the new Four and the Senior line of Sixes. Total passenger commercial car and truck deliveries to customers by dealers, including export shipments, for the four weeks ended July 30 were 13,857; for the four weeks ended August 27 were 17,173 and for the four weeks ended September 24, 17,890. Current export shipments have been showing rapid increases, such shipments for July being 1,411, for August 2,701 and for September in excess of 3,500. Company officials reported that for the six months ended June 30, 1927, net income available for dividends amounted to $5,620,571.00 with preference stock dividend requirements for the period of $2,231,250.00. For the two months ended August 31, 1927, such net earnings available for dividends were reported in excess of $1,000,000.00 to cover dividend requirements on the preference stock for such two months period of $397,682.00. As at August 31, 1927, current assets were reported to be in excess of $47,000,000.00, of which over $12,000,000.00 was cash and over $2,500,000.00 marketable securities with current liabilities of about $18,000,000.00. The truck division is doing the greatest business in its history, with shipments for July amounting to 2,555 vehicles, for August 4,124 and for September in excess of 5,000 and with orders on hand in excess of 2,200. USED CARS

"with an OK that counts"

Look For The Red "O. K." Tag

After we have thoroughly reconditioned a used car, we attach a red "O. K." tag to the radiator cap.

This tag certifies that the vital units of the car have been gone over completely by expert mechanics and put in condition to give thousands of miles of additional service. It takes all the "guess-work" out of used car buying.

Look for this tag when you buy a used car—for it is your guarantee of quality and value!

Leads the World in Motor Car Value

7 seven bearing crankshaft MOTOR

NEW PRICE

Advanced Six 4-Door Sedan

$1545

It's the Smoothest

motor a car ever had

Here's the most startling development in the whole history of 6-cylinder engineering—the Nash 7-BEARING motor.

Take the wheel of this Advanced Six 4-Door Sedan for thirty minutes and then you'll realize how much a 4-bearing CAN'T do that a 7-bearing one DOES.

It's the SMOOTHEST motor that ever powered an automobile—full pressure lubricated to prevent noise and wear.

There's not a hint of vibration all through the full range of power and speed.

Nash balances clutch, flywheel, and crankshaft as a single unit to make that absolutely certain.

Note the rich interior of this model. The luxurious genuine tufted mohair upholstery. The attractive vanity case and smoking set, leather mounted.

Observe that Nash uses genuine walnut for the steering wheel. And the instrument board, as well as the crown panel above, the window moldings and door panels, are done in walnut finish.

Bring your car in when you come to see this Advanced Six Sedan. You'll get the greatest LIBERALITY in terms. DRIVE around today,

CHRYSLER ENGINE SHOWS FORESIGHT

ARRIVAL OF HIGH COMPRESSION ERA ANTICIPATED YEARS AGO IN PLANS

The new Chrysler "Red-Head" high compression engine, which has been making a phenomenal appeal to the motoring public since its introduction this summer, is the latest illustration of the foresight with which Walter P. Chrysler and his engineers have planned the development of their cars ever since they first designed it," said J. O. Wilson, local Chrysler distributor.

One of Chrysler's chief concerns has always been to minimize losses in value of cars in use due to engineering improvements on new models. From the beginning Chrysler design and construction have rested on engineering fundamentals so sound an permanent that older Chrysler models could benefit to the greatest possible extent by new developments. Because of this principle any Chrysler owner who so desires may take advantage of the most recent evolution in automobile construction, for any Chrysler built since July, 1925, can be equipped with a "Red-Head" engine at slight cost, thanks to the engineering foresightedness which saw the coming of the high compression era long ago and prepared for its advance.

Chrysler engineers have again given a notable example of their ability in anticipating future developments in motoring. Among the features built into the Chrysler car at the very start was an unusually strong bridge-like crankcase webbing.

The first Chrysler also had a staunch, firmly supported seven-bearing crankshaft. Both of these details are the original equipment of the Chrysler car are today important aids to the type of engine which the widespread distribution of high compression fuels has not made feasible.

Chrysler led the industry into a new motoring era by announcing the "Red-Head" the first engine taking full advantage of high compression fuels to be put on the market, and led Chrysler owners with them by making the new feature available for cars in use.

To such far-sighted methods is due the advanced rank which Chrysler has won in the automobile industry and in the public's favor. The first Chrysler was admittedly years ahead of cars in its price class in speed, power, symmetry and long life. The leadership it established has been continued consistently and this year has been emphasized anew by the increased superiorities of engineering, craftsmanship and performance which characterize the "52", Great New "62", and the illustrious New "72" and the Imperial "80".

How's She Hitting? Linsens Care

By ISRAEL KLEIN

Science Editor, NEA Service

While proper valve action and full compression are essential to full power in an engine, as pointed out last week, their good can almost be nullified by a faulty ignition system or improper carburetion.

These are the other two essentials to maintaining the best of power.

Compression may be perfect and valve action just right, but if the spark doesn't occur at the proper time power is lost. The spark must ignite the mixture at the peak of compression, when the piston has reached the top of its compression stroke and poses for the fraction of a moment before its downward sweep.

If the spark occurs before it affects the piston reaches this point there is loss of compression and of power. Therefore the spark must be perfectly timed to occur at just the right moment in each cylinder.

The breaker points of the timer must hit accurately and the spark gap must be the width of the thickness of a thin dime.

In the case of pre-ignition the gas ignites and explodes before the piston has reached the top of its stroke, thus forcing the piston against its natural movement and causing a metallic knock in the engine.

Overheating of the engine in this way may break down the film of oil on the cylinder walls. Thus not only is power wasted, but the efficiency of the engine is impaired.

Proper carburetion for highest power means feeding of the proper proportion of fuel and air into the engine.

When the mixture is too lean—that is, when there is not enough fuel in proportion to air—the engine will misfire at high speeds and at low idling speed.

If the mixture is too rich, on the other hand, the engine will choke up on low speeds, and at regular intervals will in the end lose a great deal of power.

A rich mixture burns slowly, and therefore leaves carbon behind in the cylinders. An accumulation of carbon there reduces the volume in the combustion chamber, causes overheating of the engine and produces a knock especially on a hard pull.

Besides these hindrances to full power there may be a muffler clogged with soot and oil to prevent free exhaust and create a back pressure on the pistons.

Then there is inferior lubrication, or neglect of lubrication, in movable parts away from the engine that creates a hard pull and use up more power than they should. The brakes may drag, the clutch may slip, or the tires may be under-inflated.

All these, or any one, may be enough of a drag on the engine to keep it from giving its best. Usually two or more of these causes are at fault.

Major Hoople Gives Out Good Advice Philosopher Gives Views On Howling

By MAJOR HOOPLE McCORKLE
Avalanche-Journal Philosopher

Just at this season of the year people are talking hard times and wondering what cotton is going to do. Experience has been an expensive lesson, but people on the South Plains know that a heavy frost or an early freeze will play havoc, therefore, the anxiety. Everybody is concerned and most people are willing to admit as much. What we need is sunshine and lots of it, and if the weather man has any respect for our feelings, to say nothing about our pocket books, he is going to keep a frost parked somewhere north of Amarillo for at least another month.

But the "hard times" talk is all the bunk. If people worked more and talked less we would not notice the alleged "hard times." There is plenty of money in the country; banks are in good shape, and loans are considered low for this season of the year. Most people could pay their debts if they could collect money due them, but every month the second day of the month is a dollar for fear he won't be able to get it back. There are good years right here in Lubbock where have not paid their grocery bills for 30 days and they have the money to do so. Just afraid to let it go. This, of course, scares the next fellow, and the result is far from pleasing. Instead of going on with the fight, we are hedging and as long as this hedging continues the community will suffer.

Remember Last Year
Last year we were told that the bottom had fallen out. People were so nervous they couldn't work. Merchants were afraid to sell, and the worth on time and bankers felt like they were making a donation every time they accepted a note. Building ceased and many people gave up and went into their shells. But this proved to be bunk. Fall came and the biggest cotton crop in the history of the South Plains was gathered. Many farmers would still be picking 1933 cotton if they hadn't plowed it under.

The same story is now going the rounds and many people are joining in on the chorus. They may be right, but very likely they are not. They seldom are. It is just as natural for some people to "talk hard times" as it is for a blind dog to howl with the hounds. If cotton was making a hole in the nerve and getting for 40 cents a pound they would find something to howl about—wonder why it didn't bring 50 and try to prove that the cotton is in a losing position. When we see a fellow of this kind we wish President Calles would send up a firing squad. Of course the Calles method is very drastic—it is permanent, but once he got

It Looks Good Now

Right now it appears that the South Plains will produce not less than 250,000 bales of cotton, and the price is so much better than it was last year that, in dollars and cents, the average farmer will make more clear money. The feed crop is above normal and the price this year is more than twice that of last season. So why the "hard times" howl?

People who have a little money should put it into circulation. By so doing they would help themselves and their friends as well. If we ever go "nutty" and decide to run for a seat in the legislature, and the voters have no more sense than to elect us, we are going to submit a bill that makes it unlawful for a man to keep money out of circulation for more than six months at a time. If he does the money will automatically revert to the state and will be used to exterminate "hard time howlers." Of course we will never see inside of the legislative halls only as a visitor, but maybe some fellow who reads this will.

Some Can't Help It
Some people are afraid to buy their winter coal supply until they see what the cotton is going to do, as if the precaution will continue warm weather. They could freeze and we wouldn't shed a tear. If they would buy a ton of coal the coal man could give the dry man a job and the dry man could pay the grocer, and the grocer could have the roof of his store repaired and the carpenter's kid could have new shoes and go to school. Further, if the carpenter and dry man could read their grocery bills, it would make it harder for the grocer to carry us. As it is we are adding him to death.

Fifteen dollars turned loose would mean added prosperity to hundred individuals, and the fellow who has a bad cold, to spend it until after frost is just retarding progress. It is a cinch he will have to spend it sooner or later, so why not now?

Wish for Authority
Queer as it may seem, we would like to be county attorney for about one week. We would spot these "howlers" and fine them every morning until they left the country. Of course you can't fine a man for "howling," but he is guilty of scores of offenses that will make fines possible, and when he pays about five in one week he will look for a new location or stay so close about him his howling won't be noticed.

Mr. Rows and Sawback may think it is "hard times," but they never talk about it, and their sales continue to pile up. Lubbock merchants who insist that "times are hard" need not be surprised when their customers go to sending their money away from home. People don't like to hear the howler even though he may be singing a true song. If you want your sales to pick up stop howling and preach prosperity—you will be surprised.

Get Scared Too Quick

The trouble with most of us is we get scared too quick. About the first of March we begin predicting disaster and we continue to preach it until rain reports prove we have had. We then scratch our heads for a few days and get ready for the next year's howl.

If we would all put in as much time talking prosperity as we do howling and preaching early frost and disaster, Lubbock would have more big buildings than she really has. People would be more contented and our lives would be lengthened. We actually worry ourselves to death hunting for trouble. How can a farmer hope to make a good crop when he is so scared that his knees rattle and pop together from January until December? He is unable to give his crops justice. If it goes two weeks without raining we predict drought and calamity. If it rains three days in succession we begin looking for boll worms and rust. If we have a hail we fall back and close our eyes in despair, and if it does not hail we worry ourselves to death wondering why.

Actually it looks as though our back bones have melted. We are afraid of everything and everybody including ourselves.

If there was any reasonable excuse for this it would be different, but there is none. People who have lived here for any length of time admit that this is the "easiest" section in America to make a living, and that a fortune can be accumulated with very little effort. Our crops average up better than those in other sections, and we work less. So why the worry? So far as we know there has never been a person who starved here, and most of us wear good clothes. We have everything we need and lots of luxuries, yet we howl and wail.

Actually it would be comical if it were not so pitiful. There is no excuse for it—no not one. Let's cut out howling and go to work. We have the best country on earth, the best people to be found, and only for our imaginary fears we would be most happy and contented. If you have lost your nerve, try a bottle of pepo; if your back bone has dwindled away, get a new one; if you must talk say something pleasant.
