Repetition of reactor bombing threatened

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin warned that the Israeli attack on Iraq's nuclear reactor will be repeated if the Jewish nation is threatened again by an enemy Arab nation's plans to develop nuclear weapons.

"Israel will not tolerate any enemy to develop weapons of mass destruction against the people of Israel," the 67-year-old prime minister told a questioner at a news conference Tuesday.

He added this was not a new policy.

Israeli experts said the destruction of the French-built reactor outside Baghdad Sunday did not put an end to the Arab nuclear potential.

"This is a blow to Iraq but not the end of the plan to build an Arab nuclear bomb," wrote the military commentator of the newspaper Haaretz, Ze'ev Schiff. "Israel cannot prevent this development by military means. It can only delay it by various methods."

Yehoshafat Harkavi, a former military intelligence chief, said the Arabs were not likely to accept Israeli "veto rights over Arab nuclear development."

An Iraqi government official was quoted today as saying Iraq is determined "to buy new and better nuclear reactors."

Foreign Minister Latif Nassim Jassem said in an interview with Al Thawra, the official newspaper of Iraq's ruling Baath Party, that the Israeli raid "will not prevent Iraq from continuing with its nuclear program and development plans," the Gulf News Agency reported.

A French technician who worked at the destroyed plant told a reporter on arriving back in Paris today that it was impossible to go near the facility because one of the bombs dropped had not yet exploded. The technician, Jacques Rimbaud, said the plant would have to be rebuilt from scratch.

In an attempt to answer criticism of the raid in the United States and prevent suspension of American arms sales to Israel, Begin said the American planes used in the 600-mile strike "were given to us for purposes of self-defense," and the destruction of the reactor "was an act of supreme legitimate self-defense."

He charged that the Iraqis were planning to develop three to five Hiroshima-type, 20-kiloton bombs. Three such bombs, he said, "could have destroyed completely, utterly, the Dan district, the basis of our industrial, commercial, agricultural and cultural life."

Begin said such an attack would cause 600,000 casualties, the equivalent of 44 million in the United States or more than 8 million in Egypt.

"Where is the country that would tolerate such a danger knocking at its door?" he asked.

Lt. Gen. Raphael Eytan, the Israeli chief of staff, said Israel was on guard against Iraqi retaliation. He said Iraq "theoretically" has the capacity to strike back, "and Israel will consider how to prepare itself when we learn what option they might choose."

In Washington, the Reagan administration said it was still investigating to determine whether Israel had violated the conditions under which it obtained the planes used in the raid.

"No decision has been made on a moratorium on sales or deliveries to Israel," said Pentagon spokesman Henry Catto.

But a State Department spokesman said the "longstanding moral, political and military ties" between Israel and the United States are not threatened.

West Texas is having a hot time

The good news is there is no severe weather predicted for the area. The bad news is the Petroplex is in for some more scorching temperatures, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

The afternoons will be sunny and hot through Thursday with high temperatures pushing the mercury near 100 degrees, although there may be some relief on the way.

A slight cold front pushed through Amarillo and Lubbock earlier today, and the Weather Service predicted, "if the front does come to us, I don't think it will reach 100."

The front dropped Amarillo's temperatures from a 106-degree high Tuesday to 69 degrees at 11 a.m. today. Lubbock's 107-degree high Tuesday also dropped with the passage front, the weatherman said.

But the front is expected to dissipate somewhat before reaching Mid-

A hot time...

A lone hitchhiker awaits his next ride as the late afternoon sun takes a seemingly interminable time to settle over the Texas Panhandle. Perched on a railing along Interstate 10 just west of Amarillo, the man waited a sizzling two hours in an area where temperatures reached a record 106 degrees. Cooler weather — forecasters say "in the 90s" — were predicted today.

Citizens succeed; Council endorses MidTran plans

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

They came from all walks of life — the handicapped, the mentally retarded, the low income, the middle class citizens, the businessman. And they waited patiently for their turn to speak before the Midland City Council on Tuesday.

They all had one thing in common: the hope to save MidTran, the city's public transportation system. For them, they said, MidTran is their only lifeline.

These people sweated through hours of public hearings on other matters in a Council Chambers which felt the effects of a broken air conditioning system. Their appearance was prompted by the last session in which the City Council considered, but backed away from, killing MidTran. The reasoning then was that MidTran was operating in a deficit and the council didn't feel the taxpayers wanted to pay for it.

But after Tuesday's meeting, the council endorsed a revised plan by Doris Carter, acting director, that should boost ridership and revenues.

John Ingram with the MidTran Advisory Board attacked the council for failing to get behind MidTran wholeheartedly. "It's a matter of concern to me that in a progressively growing community we have almost consistently given mixed determinations as to the committment to this program," Ingram said.

HE SPECIFICALLY criticized Councilman Carroll Thomas for his consistent negative vote on all matters concerning MidTran.

Handicapped and on crutches, Wanda Fairchild told the council she is living on her own, but she needs MidTran to get to work. "I had been in a carpool but it was disbanded. This is the best transportation for the handicapped. MidTran is a vital part of Midland and I don't want to see it abolished."

Marian Fisher, executive director of Midland Association for Retarded Citizens, described MidTran as "the lifeline" for the retarded citizens who have received training and are working as taxpaying citizens.

"Let's make it something we can point to with pride and not worry about it being pushed down the drain. Let's take a stand on it and quit fiddling around."

Reiterating her point was Richard Jones, who manages the training program for retarded citizens. "MidTran is one of the best training tools we have to get clients out on their own. It gives each individual every opportunity to develop and become part of the community."

Jones added that he brought the training program to Midland rather than Odessa simply because the Tall City had a public transportation system while the other city doesn't.

June Melton, a partner in the water amusement park known as Wild River Canyon, explained he has developed a discount program for children who ride MidTran to the park.

"I'm a strong believer in a public transportation system here. I remember the other little bus system we had," he said, recalling that as a youngster he used to ride it with Carroll Thomas's brother to the movie.

"I also wonder why businesses haven't supported MidTran," Melton added. "Why downtown companies can't provide some incentive for their employees to ride MidTran, I don't know."

Mayor G. Thane Akins interjected that MidTran has a long waiting list of persons wanting to take it for the morning-afternoon subscription service, but there aren't enough buses to meet the demand.

THEN CAME TESTIMONY from Jean Peterson, 3107 W. Storey Ave., who is transported by MidTran to her

Zoning change meets opposition

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

Residents on the south side of Midland said they want to see their area developed and become a vital part of the city. But some didn't like what the City Council was considering, and that was changing the zoning from residential to commercial to allow for building some mini-warehouses.

The request came from Margaret Wade who, along with her lawyer husband, Burgess Wade, hoped to turn some property they own on the south side into a profitable investment.

While proponents and opponents to the change testified, the council on Tuesday afternoon sweated it out in a Council Chambers that was hot enough to test even the strongest deodorant. Maintenance personnel worked throughout the afternoon to get the defunct air conditioning system into operation on a day when the temperature outside soared to 105 degrees. Meanwhile, the councilmen removed their suit coats, and by 6:30 p.m. Mayor G. Thane Akins had gone so far as to take off his tie and unbutton the shirt collar.

AFTER TWO HOURS of pros and cons, the council decided to investigate the possibility of establishing a mobile home area for the open area of land under question with the ability to also put in some mini-warehouses. This, they felt, would do more to revitalize the area and also ease the housing shortage.

The land in question is located between the north side of Pennsylvania Avenue and the south side of California Avenue, and between the alley west of Mineola Street and east along South Lamesa Road.

Several persons, including residents and persons who own property in the area, favored the change. They pointed out that no development had taken place there for many years and they believed the warehouses would be one way to initiate building in the area.

Wade, who had prepared a map to show the various blocks, said that he had to go back to 1898 records to find a map of the area. In almost 100 years, he added, very little had changed in that area.

But Dr. Viola Coleman, 500 S. Carver, said that such a change wouldn't be good for the community. Commercial zoning would bring in businesses that wouldn't fall within the code, but would be allowed. "Code enforcement in our area of town is very lax," she said, pointing to a business that sells oilfield equipment in a residential area.

Frankie Suggs of 1109 E. California was afraid of the type of commercial businesses the zoning would attract. "Those are our roots and it's all we have. We don't want all this around it."

THE REASON FOR a lack of housing development there is not because people don't want to build, several residents noted. It's because the lending institutions in Midland refuse to give loans for building in that part of the city.

And that, said Akins, is the dilemma. If there is no money for housing, why not go with something commer-

Haig's trip underscores stand on normalization

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr.'s trip to China signals the Reagan administration's desire to continue normalized relations with the communist country, a policy followed by the past three U.S. presidents.

Haig was leaving for China tonight, a decade after Henry Kissinger's secretive 1971 visit that started the normalization of U.S.-Chinese relations.

Just as Kissinger's visit paved the way for a trip by then-President Nixon in 1972, Haig is expected to discuss with Chinese leaders the possibility of a visit to China by President Reagan in 1982.

He is also expected to invite China's prime minister, Zhao Ziyang, or another leader to the United States later this year or early in 1982.

Haig planned to stop first in Hong Kong and then travel to Peking Sunday for a three-day visit. Other stops during his two-week Asian trip included the Philippines and New Zealand.

Haig's visit to China signals the administration's decision to push ahead with normalization, despite Reagan's own personal expressions of support for Taiwan.

"The president has made it clear his intentions are to continue on with the normalization process," Haig said in a recent interview with The Associated Press. "It is our view that our relationship with the People's Republic of China is a strategic reality."

Leader of Polish Politburo urged to resign

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Communist Party chief Stanislaw Kania, under Soviet pressure to curb labor and political unrest in Poland, was sharply criticized and urged to resign today by a hardline member of the 11-man Politburo.

"The Politburo for some months has not been a consolidated, cohesive leading team," Tadeusz Grabski told a Central Committee meeting. Grabski declared the Politburo "in its present composition and under the leadership of Kania is unable to lead the country out of the crisis."

Grabski said that speakers at the current Central Committee meeting repeatedly offered motions for a vote of no-confidence for the Politburo and expressed doubts whether it could continue preparations for an emergency party congress called for mid-July.

Kania promised in a speech to the Committee Tuesday to rein in the independent labor movement Solidarity and reformers within his party.

Kania said Poland's socialist allies were "indignant at the filthy wave of anti-Sovietism and anti-communism in Poland."

Kania said the Soviets' concern was "fully justified."

"There cannot be any more tolerance for activities directed against socialism, against our alliances, against the friendly relations with the Soviet Union," he declared. "About such a practice one must give evidence starting tomorrow."

Kania's speech was his toughest since taking office after the nationwide strike wave last summer that resulted in legalization of the Soviet Bloc's first independent strike movement and a growing grass-roots reform movement in the Polish Communist Party.

The party chief was responding to a letter from the Soviet Communist Party's Central Committee accusing the leaders of the Polish party of succumbing to "counter-revolutionary activities" spearheaded by the "extremist wing" of the independent Solidarity labor federation.

A copy of the letter published by the Paris newspaper Le Monde cited Kania and Premier Wojciech Jaruzelski by name, indicating the Soviets might be trying to get them replaced.

The Soviet party warned that "the serious danger hovering over socialism constitutes a danger for the very existence of an independent Polish state." It said "the offensive by the anti-socialist forces in Poland threatens the interests of all our community, its cohesion, its integrity and the security of its borders. Yes, our common security."

Congressional committees begin work on tax-cut bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican-controlled Senate Finance Committee is beginning work on President Reagan's tax-cut plan, trying to pressure the Democratic-run House into acting quickly so workers can receive a tax break Oct. 1.

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., chairman of the committee, called a public session today to discuss what kind of a tax cut the panel wants. There was even a chance — though a slim one — that the committee could take some votes today, aides said.

The House Ways and Means Committee, which, under the Constitution must originate tax legislation, planned to begin its own discussions later in the day. No votes are expected until next week, said Rep. Barber Conable of New York, senior Republican on the panel.

The Ways and Means chairman, Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., while denying he is trying to stall action, predicted the process of writing a bill will be a lengthy one. His statement, and similar assessments by Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd, raised doubts that Congress can complete action on the complex bill before the end of summer.

Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan said Tuesday that workers can begin feeling the tax reduction on Oct. 1 if Congress completes action on the bill by Aug. 1. Byrd said last week that only an extreme optimist could expect Congress to meet such a schedule.

Regan did not say when the reductions in withholding rates would take effect if Congress delays action beyond Aug. 1. The Internal Revenue Service needs six weeks after a bill is passed to change withholding rates.

Unless the bill is passed by Aug. 1, final action probably would be delayed until mid-September at the earliest. Congress is scheduled to recess for the full month of August.

Most members of the Finance Committee apparently are willing to vote for President Reagan's bill, which includes a 25 percent across-the-board reduction in personal taxes over three years.

Most members of the Ways and Means Committee, however, opposed the three-year nature of the president's plan, and they want a larger share of the tax relief targeted on persons with incomes under $50,000 a year. The telling battle will be on the floor of the House, when conservatives decide whether to support the president's approach or the two-year plan favored by Democratic leaders.

The latest verson of Reagan's plan, including some last-minute concessions to business, was introduced in the House on Tuesday by Conable and Rep. Kent Hance, D-Texas, one of several conservative Democrats who have cast their lot with president on the tax fight.

Treasury Secretary Regan said "all elements of the business community we have contacted ... say they will be very supportive" of the tax package as a result of the latest changes.

In an effort to reduce the federal deficit and attract conservative support for his plan, Reagan agreed last week to scale down the business tax reduction he originally proposed. That brought heavy outcries from many business leaders, whose backing is considered essential to the president's economic program.

The president backed down partially and agreed to restore about 30 percent of the business tax relief that he had "taken away" last week.

The changes are in depreciation formulas by which businesses are allowed tax deductions to recover money spent for plants, machinery and equipment.

The amendment designed to win back business support allows a first-year write-off of 150 percent of normal depreciation when machinery is purchased. In 1985, the write-off would rise to 175 percent; in 1986 and afterward, 200 percent of first-year depreciation could be claimed in the year after such equipment is bought.

Some of business tax breaks restored

WASHINGTON (AP) — Stung by corporate protests to its compromise tax package, the Reagan administration is restoring some of the business tax breaks pared from the president's original plan.

The latest changes, announced Tuesday, would let businessmen depreciate new plants and equipment more their first years of their use and thus allow them to claim larger deductions.

As expected, the White House move drew immediate support from business spokesmen.

"We believe the total package is very supportable," Alexander Trowbridge, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, said after meeting Tuesday with Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan.

"I think the administration has now offered a compromise which will be in large part accepted by the business community," said Richard Rahn, vice president and chief economist of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

The administration had surprised — and angered — several officials in the business community late last week when it announced it was revising some of the planned tax breaks as part of a compromise with conservative Democrats. The compromise was reached in an effort to reduce the projected budget deficit.

Not long afterward, however, the administration began discussions with business officials and restored some of the tax breaks dropped in the compromise.

The key change from the revised plan would increase, in 1985 and 1986, the amount a company could deduct in the early years for depreciation of its machinery and equipment. It also would increase the amount that can be deducted in the early years for depreciation of real estate.

It was not immediately clear how much the changes would cost.

Reagan's original proposal called for permitting first-year depreciation of double what the figure would be through "straight-line" calculations, a method that allocates equal shares of the original cost to each year of the life of an asset.

Under last week's revision, the first-year recovery limit would be 150 percent of the straight-line figure for all assets, except for low-income residential housing, which was increased to 200 percent.

The latest changes, announced Tuesday, would move the first-year recovery up to 175 percent in 1985 and 200 percent in 1986 for assets excluding real estate. The first-year recovery rate for real estate would be 200 percent retroactive to Jan. 1.

Structures still would have a 15-year write-off life. Certain utility properties would have a 10-year write-off and machinery and equipment could be written off in three to five years.

Victim gets settlement

CHICAGO (AP) — A 19-year-old woman who was left a quadriplegic after a 1979 auto accident has been awarded $5.5 million, the largest settlement in a personal injury-traffic accident case ever in Illinois, a Circuit Court judge said.

Judge Alan E. Merrill on Tuesday approved the award to Mari Rose Johnson of South Holland, a Chicago suburb.

"It is hard to grasp that amount of money," said the girl's father, Robert Johnson. He said his daughter told him she would "gladly give all the money back" if she could regain the use of her legs and arms.

Census figures force district changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans hoping to wrest control of the House of Representatives from Democrats next year may find their quest aided by the latest population figures released by the Census Bureau.

The congressional district statistics announced Tuesday show that population movement in the 1970s will cause the shift of 17 House seats, mostly from the heavily Democratic Frost Belt to the Republican-leaning Sun Belt.

The change in population was illustrated most dramatically by Florida's 5th District, represented by Republican Bill McCollum, and New York's 21st, represented by Democrat Robert Garcia.

McCollum's district is the nation's largest in population with 880,078 residents, almost double the number in 1970. Garcia's is in the ravaged South Bronx. It had 233,787 residents in 1980, down from 467,582 a decade earlier.

The 1980 figures also show shifts within states which will have to be reflected in new boundaries to satisfy the "one-man, one-vote" principle requiring districts in a state to be approximately equal in population.

During the 1970s, some districts grew larger than the average for their states and others became smaller. Georgia, which will continue to have 10 House seats, offers the most dramatic illustration.

Its average district size after the last census was 546,427 people, but its 5th District has only 420,474 while its 9th has 660,892.

About three-fourths of 435 congressional districts gained population between 1970 and 1980 while 102, mostly in northern metropolitan areas, suffered losses.

Illustrating the pattern of population movement, the nation's 15 most populous districts are all in southern or western states. All but three of the 15 districts with the fewest people are in cities or suburbs in the East and Midwest.

Following is the Census Bureau breakdown of districts with the most and the least people:

—Most populous: 1. Florida 5th (north central Florida), 880,078; 2. Florida 10th (south central Florida), 878,067; 3. Texas 7th (Houston), 867,726; 4. California 43rd (San Diego), 866,687; 5. Florida 11th (West Palm Beach), 843,299;

6. Nevada (at large), 799,184; 7. California 40th (Orange County), 774,539; 8. Arizona 3rd (Phoenix), 745,635; 9. Utah 1st (Provo-Ogden), 742,709; 10. Utah 2nd (Salt Lake City), 718,328;

11. Florida 4th (northeast Florida), 715,027; 12. Texas 22nd (Houston), 711,212; 13. Oregon 2nd (suburban Portland-Salem), 706,899; 14. Oregon 1st (Portland), 699,073; 15. Texas 3rd (Dallas), 696,081.

—Least Populous: 1. New York 21st (Bronx), 233,787; 2. Michigan 13th (Detroit), 291,394; 3. New York 12th (Brooklyn), 320,886; 4. South Dakota 2nd (western S.D.), 343,548; 5. South Dakota 1st (eastern S.D.), 346,630;

6. Missouri 1st (St. Louis), 347,192; 7. Ohio 21st (Cleveland), 351,997; 8. New York 37th (Buffalo), 360,405; 9. New York 14th (Brooklyn), 364,356; 10. Illinois 1st (Chicago), 369,901;

11. New York 19th (Manhattan), 371,614; 12. Illinois 7th (Chicago), 372,353; 13. Ohio 20th (Cleveland), 374,942; 14. Montana 2nd (eastern Montana), 376,619; 15. Pennsylvania 14th (Pittsburgh), 388,195.

Allen Ludden, longtime host of the popular television game show "Password," died Tuesday in Los Angeles after a long battle with cancer. Ludden, pictured above with wife Betty and Morris, had been in and out of the hospital in recent months. The exact cause of death was not immediately known. He was 63.

Taylor denies being handpicked for ICC job

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reese H. Taylor Jr.'s nomination as chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission appears headed for easy appoval in a Senate committee that heard him dismiss allegations that he was handpicked for the job by the Teamsters union.

Taylor, a friend and law partner of Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., appeared for 33 minutes Tuesday before the Senate Commerce Committee and immediately disavowed the accusation made by Common Cause that he was the choice of the Teamsters.

"It is absolutely a false accusation," he said. "I'm not in anyone's pocket. I am beholden to no one.

"I was recommended by Senator Laxalt and nominted by the president," said Taylor, former chairman of the Nevada Public Service Commission. "I have no commitments to anyone. I am not a political payoff. I was not chosen by the Teamsters."

The White House also has denied any influence on the nomination by the Teamsters, the only major union to support Ronald Reagan for the presidency last year.

The Teamsters union has criticized the ICC's aggressive implementation of the trucking deregulation law.

The committee chairman, Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., said he expects the panel to act on the nomination by the end of this week or early next week, paving the way for full Senate action.

UAW plans to reaffiliate

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers union will rejoin the AFL-CIO as early as next month, ending a 13-year separation that began partly as a personality clash between union leaders.

The executive board of the 1.3 million-member UAW voted unanimously Tuesday for reaffiliation, said UAW President Douglas Fraser.

He said the merger, which will swell the ranks of the AFL-CIO to 15 million, will strengthen the labor movement "in one of the most difficult periods working people have ever faced."

Fraser said the UAW will rejoin the federation at the national level as early as July 1 but will allow state and local units to decide whether to affiliate.

With the announcement of the merger came a pledge to maintain a joint front against economic policies of the Reagan administration.

"We'll continue our efforts with the AFL-CIO to save important governmental programs that are being callously slashed in Washington without a sense of the havoc those cuts will mean," Fraser said.

Joint initiatives planned by the labor groups include a continuing effort to persuade the Reagan administration and the Federal Reserve Board to lower interest rates and abandon what Fraser termed recessionary economic policies.

DEATHS

Richard Matlock

Services for Richard "Ric" Matlock, 42, of 2111 W. Carter Ave. will be at 11 a.m. Thursday in the Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home chapel with the Rev. Ross Payne, pastor of Cottonflat Baptist Church, officiating. Burial will be at Resthaven Memorial Park.

Matlock died Tuesday morning in an Odessa hospital following a lengthy illness.

Born Oct. 19, 1938 in Midland, he lived in Midland and graduated from Midland High School. He worked for Matlock Furniture and at the time of his death he had worked for American Music Company in Midland for a year. He was a member of the Baptist church.

Survivors include a son, Darrin Matlock of Midland; a daughter, Misty Matlock of Austin; his parents, Alma Matlock of Midland and Troy A. Matlock of Dallas; and a sister, Sue Allen of Huntsville.

Pallbearers will be James Tompkins, Jerry Shankel, Jay Norwood, Frankie Garramone, Paul Cox and Perry Bolger.

Marie Franklin

Services for Marie Franklin, 72, of Austin and formerly of Midland, were Tuesday in the Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home chapel. Burial was in Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Mrs. Franklin died Sunday in Austin.

She was the widow of the late William B. Franklin, a former Midland accountant who died in 1969. She moved to Midland in 1942 and was a member of St. Ann's Catholic Church.

Survivors include two sons, John Franklin of Lockhart and Ben Franklin of Midland; two daughters, Billie Marie Kasson of Austin and Jean Mason of Dallas; a brother, Joe Sartori of Pineville, La.; three sisters, Mrs. W.B. Makison of Albuquerque, N.M., Mrs. Clyde Jerred Sr. of Midland and Laura Pettaway of Alexandria, La.; 16 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

Emma N. Boley

Services were to be at 4 p.m. today in McCoy Funeral Home Chapel of Memories in Sweetwater with Lawrence Nenefee officiating. Burial was to be in Sweetwater Cemetery.

Mrs. Boley was born March 29, 1911, in Tackerville, Okla., where she was married to George Boley Sept. 19, 1929. A retired nurse, she had lived in Sweetwater 39 years.

Other survivors include her husband, three brothers, two daughters, three sons, three sisters, 13 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

SUDAN — Services for Maude Vincent, 79, of Sudan, mother of Mrs. George Harley of Midland, will be at 2:30 p.m. Thursday in the First United Methodist Church in Sudan with the Rev. Kerry Hurst, pastor, officiating, assisted by layman Joe Salem. Burial will be at Sudan Cemetery, directed by Hammons Funeral Home in Littlefield.

She was a native of Ira and a resident of Sudan for 41 years. She was a member of the Methodist Church.

Other survivors include her husband, two sons, two daughters, a sister, three brothers, 11 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

'Mike' Wilhite

Services for Michael "Mike" Wayne Wilhite, 19, of 5114 Daventry St., were to be at 11 a.m. today in the Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home chapel with Owen Cosgrove, Church of Christ minister, officiating. Burial was to be in Resthaven Memorial Park.

Wilhite died Sunday afternoon in a Midland hospital following a motorcycle accident.

Pallbearers were to be Randy Young, Jeff Turner, Scott Compton, Mike Guinn, Scott Wells and Danny Marchant.

China approves U.S. ambassabor

PEKING (AP) — The Chinese Foreign Ministry said today it has given its approval to the proposed nomination of Arthur W. Hummel Jr., a China-born career diplomat and currently ambassador to Pakistan, as the next U.S. ambassador to China.

In response to a question, a Foreign Ministry spokesman said, "We have agreed to the nomination of Mr. Hummel as the new U.S. ambassador."

He had no further comment. There has been no official announcement of Hummel's appointment and the U.S. Embassy in Peking would not comment.

By RICHARD LOWE
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — In 1974, a Democratic soybean farmer and one-time school teacher struck out on his quest for Tennessee's governorship, promising "a Ray of sunshine" to disperse the gloom of the Republicans' Watergate scandal.

But Ray Blanton's sun set seven years later as he sat in stony silence Tuesday while a U.S. District Court jury foreman announced the verdict count by count — guilty of extortion, conspiracy and mail fraud for the issuance of liquor licenses to friends who helped boost him to the state's highest office.

Blanton's political fortunes were rosy in 1974 as he hammered away at the tainted administration for which his gubernatorial opponent had worked in the pre-Watergate White House of Richard Nixon.

But when he took the oath of office Jan. 18, 1975, at Nashville's War Memorial Building, Blanton brought his friends and relatives to state government. With them came four years of scandal.

Politically, it ended on a rainy night in January 1979 when leaders of Blanton's own party ushered him out of office three days early and handed the helm to Lamar Alexander, the 1974 Republican gubernatorial nominee whom Blanton criticized for projecting a "choirboy image."

The ouster came two nights after the governor granted three pardons and reduced the sentences of 49 prisoners, including the double-murderer son of a patronage chief, with an 11th-hour stroke of his pen at his Capitol Hill office on Jan. 15.

The legal problems for Blanton and some of his friends and relatives were just beginning.

Blanton went on trial this year on federal charges that he and two aides divided liquor licenses among friends for a cut of the profits. Blanton said the trial was a result of an FBI campaign to "get Ray Blanton."

After six weeks of testimony and nearly 45 hours of jury deliberations, Tennessee's first former governor to be convicted of criminal charges faces up to 70 years in prison and fines of $29,000. His 1974 campaign manager, James Allen, and former special assistant, Clyde Edd Hood Jr., each face up to 35 years in prison and $16,000 in fines.

Along the way, Blanton's uncle, Jake, pleaded guilty to income tax evasion, mail fraud and rigging bids on state roads, and the former governor's brother, Gene, was convicted of understating his income. Gene Blanton has pleaded innocent to charges of bid rigging and mail fraud as have two Blanton family-owned enterprises, Adamsville Construction Co. and B&B Construction Co.

Blanton's ex-counsel, T. Edward Sisk, and Charles Frederick Taylor, a former Tennessee Highway patrolman assigned to Blanton's security staff at the executive residence, pleaded guilty to selling paroles and clemencies to inmates. William Aubrey Thompson, a Democratic committeeman, also pleaded guilty.

Gladys Crain, Blanton's West Tennessee patronage chief from Ripley, pleaded guilty to mail fraud in connection with bid rigging on state road contracts.

Former ABC chairman and one-time Blanton patronage chief S.J. King pleaded guilty to covering up a felony in liquor license irregularities, and the ex-governor's Nashville patronage chief, Robert Townes, pleaded guilty in the same case. They agreed to cooperate with prosecutors.

Former ABC Director Lee Hyden testified on Blanton's behalf during a furlough from an Alabama prison where he is serving a 3½-year sentence for an unrelated extortion conviction.

Blanton could get 70 years in kickback scheme conviction

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Former Gov. Ray Blanton, convicted of extortion, conspiracy and mail fraud in a liquor license kickback scheme, faces a sentence of up to 70 years in prison.

Two aides of the soybean farmer, who was booted from office in 1979 in a coup engineered by fellow Democrats, also were convicted Tuesday as the eight-week trial ended after nearly a week of deliberations.

The conviction "should serve as a lesson to anyone in public office who might be tempted to abuse their authority," said Republican state Sen. Victor Ashe of Knoxville, one of Blanton's harshest critics.

Blanton, 51, embraced his teary-eyed wife and widowed mother and left the federal courthouse without comment after a U.S. District Court jury convicted Blanton of extortion conspiracy and nine counts of mail fraud.

The verdict came 4½ hours after jurors convicted Blanton's 1974 campaign manager, James Allen, 52, and his former special assistant, Clyde Edd Hood Jr., 28, of conspiracy and six mail fraud charges. Hood was acquitted of extortion and three mail fraud counts.

Defense lawyers have 30 days to ask for new trials and to have the verdicts set aside.

Blanton, Allen and Hood were convicted of fixing the state Alcoholic Beverage Commission to award 12 suburban Nashville liquor licenses in 1976 to Blanton friends.

Allen received a license, as did the government's chief witness, Jack Ham, who testified he retired $23,000 of a $38,000 bank loan to the governor as a payoff. Blanton acknowledged Ham retired the loan but denied it was a payoff.

In addition to the prison sentence, Blanton faces fines of up to $29,000. Allen and Hood each face up to 35 years in prison and $16,000 in fines.

Judge Bailey Brown dismissed the extortion charge and three mail fraud charges against Allen before the jury began deliberations that lasted a total of 44 hours and 45 minutes.

When foreman H.G. Murrell read the verdicts finding Allen and Hood guilty, he said the jurors could not agree on Blanton's case. Brown urged them to keep trying.

"There's no reason to believe that the case could ever be sbmitted t jurors more fair, more competent, more impartial or that the case could be presented with better evidence," said Brown, an appellate judge assigned the case after all federal trial judges in Tennessee disqualified themselves.

Blanton and Hood refused to comment to reporters. Allen said, "The fight's not over."

Hood tried to comfort his wife, Betsy. His parents burst into tears outside the courtroom. Allen, who is divorced, had no relatives present.

The former governor appeared stoic as he heard his verdict.

Researchers find unexpected link between weight, IQ

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Obese children tend to have higher IQs than skinny or average-weight kids, according to a nationwide study of 20,000 children. But researchers say there's no evidence that overfeeding will make kids smarter.

The obesity-intelligence link was an unexpected result of tests given to 20,137 children in a study aimed at uncovering the causes of cerebral palsy.

Researchers discovered the heaviest 10 percent of the children did better on IQ tests and measures of speech, language and hearing than did average-weight children or lean children, at least through age 8.

For the purposes of research, children were classified as lean, average or obese based on the ratio of weight to height. The skinniest 10 percent were listed as lean, the heaviest 10 percent as obese and the 80 percent in between as average.

From 1959 through 1969, more than 20,000 pregnant women were enrolled in the federally funded project after promising to bring their children back to participating institutions for regular examinations. The University of Minnesota was among the institutions taking part in the study, which ended in the 1970s.

Researchers analyzing the results began finding that obese youngsters had IQs averaging 10 points higher than lean children at age 4 and 5 points higher at age 7.

So far, researchers have no explanation for the findings.

Dr. Robert A. Ulstrom and Dr. Robert O. Fisch, University of Minnesota pediatrics' professors who took part in the project, subdivided the youngsters by sex, race and socioeconomic status. It turned out the those factors had no effect on the obesity findings.

"We had thought that perhaps huskier and fatter children were from higher economic level homes, but that didn't pan out and neither did anything else," Ulstrom said.

Researchers also ruled out the possibility that the heavier youngsters are forced to develop intellectual abilities because they are not included in group physical activities.

"There isn't that type of ostracism at that age," Ulstrom said.

Ulstrom said there is no evidence from the study or any other that overfeeding a child might help with intellectual development.

The studies, funded by the National Institute of Neurological and Communicative Disorders and Stroke, did not uncover a cause for cerebral palsy. The cerebral palsy findings were published in 1975 in Pediatrics Journal. The IQ-obesity finding was reported last month in Modern Medicine.

Young transplant patient at home

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Nine-year-old Cindy Spicer, her new heart "pumping beautifully," has returned home from the hospital, and doctors say she could be riding a bicycle within a month.

Forsaking a wheelchair, the St. Paul, Minn., girl trotted out of the University of Minnesota Hospitals Tuesday. She was met by her parents, Robert and Betty Spicer, and three of her four sisters.

Cindy received her new heart May 5, becoming the world's youngest heart transplant recipient. If she hadn't received the transplant when she did, doctors said, Cindy would have died in a month or two.

"When I woke her in bed this morning and told her she could go home, she lit up like a little Christmas tree," said Dr. John Najarian, the university's chief of surgery. "The first thing she did was call her mother to come get her."

She was in "good shape and good spirits," Najarian added. "Her new heart is pumping beautifully. She's doing absolutely superb — better than she looks. And she looks great."

He said the child will be able to take up the normal activities of a 9-year-old by the time she starts the fourth grade this fall.

"She'll have to limit herself but she's very good about that," Najarian added. "Within a month, she'll be riding a bike and doing all the things a 9-year-old likes to do."

The critical period in the youngster's recovery, Najarian said, will be the next two months. He said the main concerns are infection and the body's tendency to reject a transplant.

Waterbeds: Better than a lullaby

EDITOR'S NOTE: Critically ill newborns have a new tool for survival — waterbeds. The beds are part of special incubators. A hospital in San Antonio is the first to make use of this medical technology.

By MARJORIE CLAPP
San Antonio News

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Waterbeds are taking the place of cradles at Bexar County Hospital, sending infants off to dreamland quicker than a lullaby.

Ten specially designed waterbeds for premature infants have been installed in the hospital's Nursery Intensive Care Unit.

Consider one-month-old Johnny Garcia, a three-pound, 15-ounce tyke who has lived on a waterbed all his life.

The infant is one of 10 who has lived in the environment of the special incubator because it's helping to keep him alive.

The special incubators, made in Ohio, are a decided improvement over the older type incubators and have several advantages, medical experts say.

A spokesman said the hospital's perinatal center was the first in the world to obtain these particular incubators, with their controlled environment, quick access in case of emergency, easy positioning and, of course, the waterbeds.

As is the case with the other infants, young Garcia's stay on the waterbed isn't just for easy sleep or fun.

According to Thelma Bowen, nursery supervisor, clinical studies have shown that premature infants on the waterbeds normally breathe better.

Respiratory problems are common among premature infants, she said. But on the waterbeds, infants seem to stop breathing less often because of the slight movement of the water.

Ms. Bowen also noted that skin breakdown and malformation of the head occurred less often in infants who have to be immobilized for long periods of time.

"The babies on the waterbeds seem to be less irritable than other badies," she said, "perhaps because the waterbed, combined with the environment of the incubator, simulates the womb of the mother."

The environment of the incubator is regulated by probes taped to the infant so that his or her skin temperature remains constant between 97.7 and 98.8 degrees, Ms. Bowen said. Even when the dome of the incubator is raised, an air vacuum keeps the heated air from escaping.

In an emergency situation, Bowen said the dome over the baby can be pushed directly under the bed.

'Wrongful life' suit decided

U.S. District Judge Jack Roberts Tuesday awarded $625,000 to the retarded boy who was born with multiple birth defects after Air Force doctors failed to advise his mother of the dangers of having a baby after she had contracted German measles during her pregnancy.

Mrs. Scales, a former Air Force recruit, filed a $1.25 million "wrongful life" suit against the government on behalf her son, claiming he was damaged by the measles.

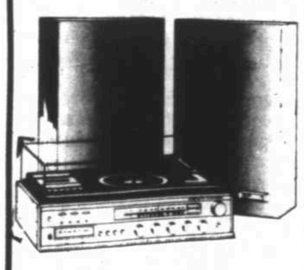

Testimony during the trial, held in April, showed that most of the boy's major organs were damaged at birth and that he has since had open heart surgery and faces more surgery.

A health care expert also testifed the boy may be seriously retarded and could need full-time or residential care for the rest of his life.

Briefs at the trial showed only one other "wrongful life" has been filed and was upheld in the California courts.

Attorney Bob Gibbins, representing Mrs. Scales, argued she would have had an abortion if she had known her son would suffer birth defects.

cial to begin building in that area.

"But you're not putting anything over there to better the community," objected one woman. "Why don't you put apartments? I know a lot of people are sleeping in their cars" because there is no housing.

"But there's no financing to do that," Akins said of the apartment idea.

James McAfee, 602 S. Mineola, said he has some lots in the designated area and would like to build rental units. But there has been no money for such projects, he added. "Our hands are tied. If we don't have nothing, we can't do anything."

"Where can the loans come from?" Akins questioned him.

LATER, AKINS REMARKED to the group, "I agree with a lot of what you're saying. We'd all agree that housing is the most serious problem in Midland. But nothing is happening in this area. To say that 'hopefully later' something will happen isn't doing anything. I don't know where the hope comes from at this point."

Councilman Carroll Thomas, however, remembered a mobile home development the council had seen recently in Odessa. "I was favorably impressed with it. You need an open area not in conflict with other residents and not deteriorated by businesses. This area looks ideally suited for a good, mobile home district."

Richard Hennessy, director of planning and zoning, agreed with Thomas that the area is "excellent" for mobile homes and it might possibly "help stabilize the Washington area neighborhood."

Councilman Tom Sloan suggested that the mobile homes and miniwarehouses might be allowed in the same area.

The city staff will report at 3:30 p.m. July 14 to the council on its findings for a mobile home district. At that time the council will decide whether to go with commercial zoning as originally asked, or the mobile home zoning.

IN AN EFFORT to compromise on another zone change request between the developer and residents, the council asked Thomas King to design a plan for two townhouses rather than three. The homes would be located on a triangular piece of land on the north side of Scharbauer Drive bewteen I and L streets.

Robert Fitting of No. 1 Warwick Place said that his legal counsel advised him it was useless to attend the council meeting because the decision had already been made. But when asked who his lawyers were, Fitting wouldn't answer.

"Well, you have very poor legal counsel," Sloan remarked.

Robert Thigpin of 1609 Shell claimed that townhouses "are no more than glorified apartments. It will lower our property values." And Janet Fitting said that townhouses "are like moving urban renewal into our backyard."

King objected to the comments from the residents and said the townhouses "are not apartments. They are single family dwellings. We are not going to build trash."

Although the residents said they wanted to see one house built on that land and not two, the council asked King to return with a plan for two townhouses.

THIRD TIME proved the charm for Emory Isenberg who was granted a specific use permit to sell alcoholic beverages at Dellwood Mall Bowling Lanes. He has appeared twice before the council to request the permit. The first time Isenberg was turned down and the second time he was told he had to wait a few more months before the council could reconsider it.

Taxicab rates from Midland Regional Airport to Odessa and Midland were approved by the council. The same rates also were to be passed by the Odessa council, giving the cities better regulation over the rates charged by taxis taking people to and from Midland Regional Airport.

The council ratified the city manager's emergency purchase of pipe for the sewage treatment ponds.

Midland council passes ordinance on future site of fireworks stands

By DORIAN MARTIN
Staff Writer

The future location of fireworks stands was decided Tuesday by the Midland City Council.

Current law does not allow the sale of fireworks within 5,000 feet of the city limits. The ordinance passed Tuesday gives anyone who owns a fireworks booth and is moved within the restricted area by a new annexation until July 4 following the annexation to liquidate their stock or relocate.

The ordinance also outlaws the sale of fireworks along Highway 80 to Midland Regional Airport, which is included in the official city limits. This part of the ordinance will not be effective until July 4, 1982.

Raymond Lewis, Midland fire chief, opposed the sale of fireworks with 5,000 feet of the city line. Urging total prohibition of fireworks, Lewis said if the line where sales are allowed is moved once, a precedent would be set where the line would keep moving toward the city limits.

Jack Usery, owner of a fireworks stand, said, "You're not going to eliminate them at all." Usery's stand was outside of the restricted area until last year's annexation moved him within the boundaries. The council at that time allowed him one year to continue business and find another area for his stand.

However, Usery said he was unable to do so and stated that he could lose up to $15,000 on stock that was not sold last year. The council allowed him another year to liquidate his stock.

The lake now under construction at Wadley-Barron Park was the focus of three ordinances passed by the City Council Tuesday. The regulations will be posted at the park when it is finished.

The first ordinance will allow fishing in the lake. Fishermen must have a fishing license and meet Texas sport fishing regulations. Pole and line, spinning and fly rods may be used. The ordinance outlaws throw lines, trot lines, nets, and explosive or electrical devices. The ordinance allow anyone to fish in the park.

The second ordinance outlaws wading, scuba diving and swimming in the lake as well as any other undesignated city areas. However, boating will be allowed in Wadley-Barron Park. Boaters cannot use motorized boats, wooden or rubber rafts or inner-tubes. Furthermore, no minor under 15 years of age will be allowed to launch a boat without an adult present. Lifejackets will be required.

The lake can be used for model boating, according to the third ordinance. However, swimming or wading to retrieve a boat will not be allowed.

In another action, the council moved to pave the east half of Upland Avenue and to condemn a water well, pending appraisal. The well, located on West Golf Course Road, is a visual obstruction for motorists entering Golf Course Road from Upland Avenue.

The council also accepted a bid by Industrial Weed Control, Inc. for weed and grass control at Midland Air Park and Midland Regional Airport.

The chemical, which will be effective for two years, will be used to clear the runways and taxi area at Air Park and one runway and the lights at Midland Regional. The total cost announced in the bid was $13,679.

The council also passed a request by Las Manos of the Southwest for several items for its Septemberfest.

land, and the high temperatures may drop only to the low 90s today and Thursday. However, the official forecast is still calling for a high near 100 Thursday.

Tuesday's hot afternoon tied the old 1964 record high for the date, 105 degrees. The 105-degree reading is now attributed to 1981 in the record books.

During the next 10 days, temperatures will continue to run "a little above normal," which usually averages a high around 92 during June. However, according to the weatherman, the hot temperatures do not seem to be setting a trend for the entire summer.

"Last summer, there were stationary lows off Mexico and Midland had no upper air patterns," the weatherman said. In addition, he said, there has been "not much of a low-pressure trough" coming down through Nebraska and Colorado. That lack of upper air currents could cause stagnant air and high, hot temperatures.

Although the temperatures may not be indicators of a hot summer, it's going to start out dry. The weekend forecast shows partly cloudy skies for Friday and Saturday, but it looks like there will be no rain through the 20th. "It doesn't look good for the precipitation," he said.

The low temperature tonight is forecast slightly lower than the past few evenings, expected to dip to the upper 60s. The normal low for this time of year averages around 66 degrees. This morning's low was a warm 70 degrees. The record low for June 10 was set in 1975 at a chilling 51 degrees.

The wind offers almost no respite from the heat, coming from the southeast at 15-20 mph through Thursday.

The weatherman suggested no matter how hot the temperatures get, Midlanders should know their limitations when confronting the heat. Even if temperatures hover between 90 and 95 degrees, he said, excessive exposure or exercise could bring on heatstroke conditions.

job at Texas Instruments; and Steve Orr, 5115 Sunnyside Drive, who can't afford a second car to get to work; Charlie White, 3421 W. Storey, who claimed that insurance for a second car paid his monthly subscription rides; and Manuela Acosta, whose husband is ill and MidTran is the only way for her to get to her job at Trinity Towers.

Ione Priest with the Texas Rehabilitation Commission pointed out the need for MidTran to help handicapped persons get to work. She spoke of one woman in a wheelchair who is starting to look for a job, and will need MidTran for transportation.

And then there is Emigdia Arrenivas, also confined to a wheelchair but able to work and support her four children because of MidTran, Ms. Priest added.

Gayle Harmon, representing the Midland YMCAs, said the group is planning to coordinate more with MidTran in the future. Their fleet of vehicles is becoming inadequate to meet the growth of Midland, and it would cost "tens of thousands of dollars" to add to the fleet.

In explaining changes to the system, Doris Carter said the brown and green flex-routes should be retained. Those serve south and east Midland and the low-income residents here are utilizing the bus system more each month, she said.

"We have changed our system so many times that it's been confusing to these people. If we're going to make a change, now is the time to do it and stick with it," Ms. Carter said.

Ingram added that with 10 new vehicles, for which the federal government has approved the money, the system could operate better.

After the council voted to approve the changes, Councilman Thomas noted, "The best thing I have seen come out of MidTran is Doris Carter." For that, he got a round of applause from the riders and workers in the audience.

Shooting incident may be linked to double homicide

Police this morning were investigating a shooting incident Tuesday night that's thought to be linked to a double homicide last week on Spraberry Drive.

Shortly after 7 p.m. Tuesday, shots were fired at a house at 1603 N. Edwards St. The house is owned by Zeller Keith, father of 22-year-old Milton Claude Keith who was indicted Monday on capital murder charges in the deaths of 26-year-old Charles Cole and Tracy Endres, 18.

Also indicted was Ollie Glen Kemp of 1306 E. Walnut Lane. The Cole man and the Endres woman were found shot in the head with a large caliber weapon June 1. Their bodies were discovered in a house at 507 Spraberry Drive. Police believe the murders were the result of a robbery attempt and that the case is drug-related.

According to witnesses Tuesday night, a 1976 or 1977 white-over-green Chevrolet Monte Carlo containing two white men in their early 20s drove by the Keith residence, then stopped. One man emerged from the vehicle carrying a can of beer and asked some questions of a bystander. Several shots from a small caliber weapon were fired at the house as the pair drove away.

Police have a description of the men and the license number of the vehicle.

Ring, beer reported stolen

In theft and burglary complaints lodged with police during the past 24 hours, Norma Pine of 804 Palamino told officers someone took an $1,850 diamond dinner ring from her residence sometime in the past four days.

Three cases of beer, two six-packs of beer and $400 in cash were reported stolen in a burglary of the Club Moderno Monday night or early Tuesday morning. Entry was gained by prying open a front door of the club. The money was removed from a coin-operated machine.

Pamela Kenyon, 407 South C St., said a TV set valued at $600 was taken from her home. Entry was gained through an open window.

Miners flee

BURKE, Idaho (AP) — About 200 silver miners, alerted to danger by a foul-smelling warning gas, safely fled the Star Morning Mine when a fire broke out at the 6,700-foot level, officials said.

The fire was discovered by day-shift miners at about 8 a.m. Tuesday.

Victim of shooting stable

ODESSA — A 57-year-old Odessa man was listed in stable condition at Medical Center Hospital this morning after being wounded in a shootout here early Tuesday morning.

Domingo Gonzales underwent surgery Tuesday for a wound to the left side following the three-way gunfight in west Ector County. Another man, 42-year-old Cipriano Gonzales, not related, was listed in good condition with a wound to the abdomen. His sister, Toney Gonzales, was released following treatment for a superficial wound to the back of the head.

According to Ector County deputies, the shooting began as Cipriano Gonzales left his home for work about 7 a.m. Tuesday. As he drove south on Knox Road, someone fired a shotgun at his pickup truck. He returned the fire with a shotgun he carried in the truck. Toney Gonzales then appeared on the scene with a 30-30 caliber rifle and fired several shots in the air before leveling the gun at Domingo Gonzales and hitting him in the side.

Domingo Gonzales then fired at Toney Gonzales, hitting her in the head. Deputies believe the incident was part of an ongoing feud.

Deputies were still investigating the shooting today.

San Angelo woman, son killed

GARDEN CITY — A San Angelo woman and her 5-year-old son were killed in a traffic accident near here early Tuesday night.

Pronounced dead at the scene by Glasscock County Justice of the Peace J.E. Wooten were 22-year-old Deborah Worbington and her son, Richard Worbington Jr.

According to the Department of Public Safety, Ms. Worbington was westbound on Texas 158 when her 1972 Buick went out of control on a curve and overturned after striking the rear wheels of an eastbound 18-wheel truck driven by Armando Merino of San Antonio. Merino was not injured.

The mishap occurred 11 miles east of Garden City about 7:45 p.m. Tuesday. The victims' bodies were taken to the Johnson Funeral Home in San Angelo, where services are pending. The accident was investigated by Trooper David Jones of Midland.

Failure to file tax return nets man probated sentence

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

A former Midlander who admitted his failure to file a timely income tax return was meted out a five-year probated sentence and was fined $10,000 by U.S. District Judge Lucius D. Bunton in federal court in Midland on Tuesday.

The man, Roger Dale Cormier of Conroe and formerly of Midland, had pleaded guilty last April to failure to file his 1977 income tax return on time.

"Your Honor," Cormier apologetically told the judge, "I'm not a tax protester. It was not my intention not to pay my taxes. I was having considerable problems at home. I've re-married. I've got a little business going. I'm as happy now as I've ever been."

Cormier, about 30 or in his late 20s, was pleading for a reduced sentence. He was indicted on two counts of failure to file income reports for 1976 and 1977 to the U.S. Internal Revenue Service, but, according to court records, in 1979, he did file the reports and paid $3,200 in taxes. Penalty for failure to file is a one-year prison sentence and a $10,000 fine.

Cormier assured the judge that he would not be a repeat offender.

"I don't think it'll happen again," he told Judge Bunton in open court. "In fact, I'll guarantee it."

His wife, who seemed far less composed than Cormier, pleaded in a broken voice and in a tearful tone for compassion for her husband.

"We have accomplished a lot," she said. "We've got a lot of things straightened out...and we have a real nice family."

The judge didn't question that. But he did reprimand the defendant.

"You used exceedingly poor judgment (by not filing timely income-tax returns)," the judge told Cormier, "and knew you were violating the law. You may have over-extended yourself financially."

In setting punishment, Bunton told Cormier that he was "going to hold you to your guarantee" that he will file timely income-tax returns. The judge handed Cormier a one-year suspended sentence, placed him on probation for five years, fined him $10,000 but deferred the payment for a year, and ordered him to participate in a weekly community counseling service in Conroe and to file timely tax returns.

Cormier's lawyer, Houston tax attorney Andrew Miller, earlier in the sentencing had told Bunton that his client would take responsibility for his actions.

"He (Cormier) did commit the offense. He does accept the responsibility for it," Miller said.

But the attorney also assured the judge that Cormier was "not a tax rebel or a tax protester."

ATLANTA (AP) — Laboratory tests indicate that fibers found on the bodies of some of the 28 young blacks slain here over the last 23 months appear to match fibers found in the northwest Atlanta home of a black man questioned in the killings, a newspaper reported today.

However, Fulton County District Attorney Lewis Slaton is reluctant to build a case around the fiber comparisons without other evidence, according to the article in today's editions of the Atlanta Constitution.

The Constitution quoted unidentified investigators as saying that the fibers matched closely. However, the newspaper also quoted state crime lab director Dr. Larry Howard as saying he did not know if the fibers tied any of the slaying victims to the man who was questioned.

The test results have been turned over to a special police task force investigating the string of killings.

Authorities made no move to arrest the man or to issue a statement clearing him of any involvement in the slayings.

The a 23-year-old man has not been identified by police, but his northwest Atlanta home has been staked out by police and reporters since last week when he was questioned for 12 hours at FBI headquarters.

FBI agents have been working some of the victims' neighborhoods this week, showing photographs, including one of the free-lance photographer, to residents and businessmen.

Richard Harp, manager of a fast food restaurant frequented by at least one of the victims, 15-year-old Joseph Bell, said FBI agents showed him 10 photographs, and he picked out two as customers.

When reporters showed him a picture of the man under surveillance, Harp said the man was one of the two customers he picked out of the FBI photographs.

"They asked me did I know his name or had I seen him," Harp said. "I told them he had been in here several times."

While police and reporters continued to watch the man's house, authorities made their first arrest there since the around-the-clock surveillance began Thursday.

Amin Sudan, 32, of Atlanta, was arrested Tuesday night when he approached the house with a camera and refused to leave when ordered to do so, police said. He was charged with creating a turmoil.

Slaton has said the police surveillance is intended more for the man's protection than to prevent him from fleeing.

Meanwhile, the director of the Georgia Bureau of Investigation warned that misinformation is likely to surface in connection with the probe because of attention focused on the man who was questioned.

Smith re-elected Southern Baptist president

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Re-elected in the face of the strongest opposition to a Southern Baptist president in more than 20 years, the Rev. Bailey Smith says the 40 percent vote against him "wasn't a protest of anything."

Smith, 42, was re-elected Tuesday by a vote of 6,934 to 4,524 over challenger Abner McCall, chancellor of Baylor University. The contest was an unusual break with custom that normally gives the president of the 13.6 million member denomination an unopposed second term.

McCall said his reluctant candidacy was to "carry the standard" for those who were protesting pressure for a strictly literal interpretation of the Bible.

Some of Smith's backers had been demanding that professors and officials at Southern Baptist seminaries and other agencies of the denomination meet stricter standards on the issue of Biblical inerrancy — the belief that the Bible is a completely accurate rendering of God's word.

At a news conference following his victory on the first day of the Southern Baptist Convention, Smith said. "I wish everybody believed every word of the Bible, because it's the truth, but I have no plans or agenda to attack anyone. ...I think what we don't need is to be rude or use it (Biblical inerrancy) as an ax."

Smith, speaking to 13,009 "messengers," refused twice during the news conference to answer questions on whether he still believes that "God Almighty does not hear the prayer of a Jew."

Smith made that statement last August when he spoke to the National Affairs Briefing in Dallas sponsored by The Roundtable, a right-wing political-religious group.

Smith explained that a subsequent remark in a sermon that Jews "have funny-looking noses," was a private joke with a Jewish friend who was in his audience. He has never retracted his statement about Jewish prayers.

He said the major thrust of the Southern Baptists will be "to win people to Christ."

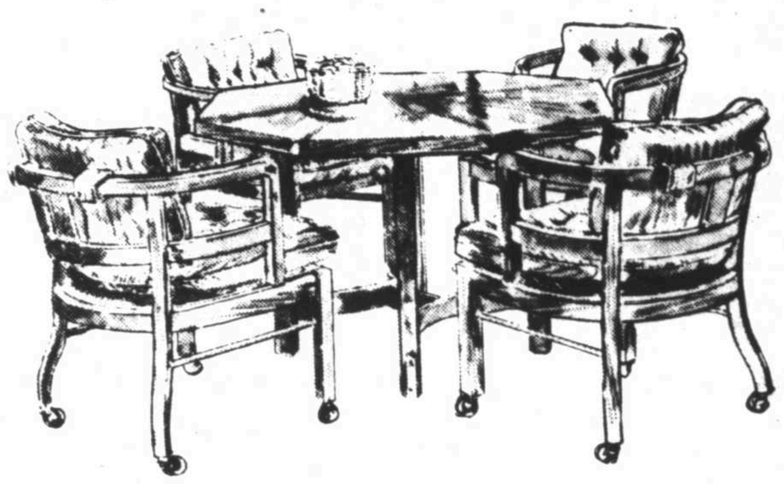

He also said, "All of us need to be concerned about world hunger and Baptists have to be more agressive in helping blacks. Southern Baptists must say to the world, 'There is only one kind of person in the world, a person for whom Jesus Christ has died.'"

Regarding the election, Smith said, "The only reason Dr. McCall got so many votes, is because he deserves them."

But McCall said he was surprised at the size of the vote for him and commented that those who come to a Southern Baptist Convention aren't delegates: "They're messengers, and I think they sent a message.

"Our program depends on the complete voluntary cooperation of every Baptist and each individual autonomous church," said McCall. "When 40 percent of the people in a cooperative program register a protest and say we don't like the way things are going, this is a significant number of disaffected people."

Doctors say new X-ray machine could reduce radiation doses

M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute say a new type of X-ray machine they have developed could reduce radiation doses to patients, eliminate the need for film and revolutionize the way X-rays now are handled.

A huge experimental model has been built at the Anderson cancer research center here, and research scientists say a much smaller prototype is expected to be available for testing in about a year.

The new machine would not use photographic film as most present-day X-rays do. Instead, it would utilize a thin, reusable plate that is exposed to X-rays and then, by use of a laser beam and a computer, rendered into an image on a television screen.

If the operator desires, he could also produce a printed picture or a photographic negative, the researchers say.

Dr. Alfonso Zermeno, who helped develop the new device, said it will save hospitals money on film, allow more versatile analyses of X-ray images, and be quicker than today's X-ray machines.

"Not only should the system reduce the X-ray dose, but in some cases, only one X-ray will need to be taken instead of a series," he said Monday. "An X-ray taken with the system can be manipulated with the computer to produce much more information than a doctor can get from an X-ray film."

Another M.D. Anderson scientist, Dr. Gerald D. Dodd, said the new machine will be theoretically capable of reducing a patient's X-ray dose by 250 to 300 times because of the increased sensitivity of the plates and the use of computer enhancement.

Lisa Johnston of the hospital's information office said the new machine is expected to take less than 30 seconds to read the pattern of one X-ray into the computer and be ready for the next X-ray.

Zermeno said the prototype should be about the size of small refrigerator. He said it will adapt to most X-ray facilities.

"A doctor will not need to buy new X-ray equipment," he said. "The system's plates will simply slide into a camera where he now puts the film cassettes."

Budget OK'd

HOUSTON (AP) — After bowing to pressure by anti-abortion groups and deleting funds set aside for an abortion clinic, Harris County commissioners approved a $129.4 million hospital district budget.

The Commissioners Court had rejected the budget twice because $127,000 had been earmarked for abortions at the Jefferson Davis Hospital.

Eight Brooklyn stores burned in 'tough grocery war'

By JERRY SCHWARTZ
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — When a "grocery war" in Brooklyn got tough, and triple-coupon days and ground beef specials no longer brought in the customers, some of the stores started going up in flames.

It was, said Brooklyn District Attorney Eugene Gold, the "boldest and most unique arson-for-profit scheme yet uncovered."

Ten supermarket owners, all Latin Americans, were indicted last week on charges they hired arsonists to torch the stores of eight competitors in 1980. Two men were accused of actually starting a grocery store blaze.

Gold said the store owners and their associates are connected with as many as 150 grocery stores in Brooklyn, Manhattan, Queens and The Bronx.

"It's basically an anti-trust case — they were trying to get rid of their competition," said Rhonda Nager, a spokeswoman for Gold.

Supermarket arson is not uncommon in the inner cities of America, but law enforcement officials say it usually involves a store owner in financial straits who burns his own store, as depicted in a recent film by the National Fire Prevention Association.

No specific statistics on such fires are available, but there is evidence that it is not a rare occurrence. Prior to last week's indictments, some insurance companies had held up payments to owners of the Brooklyn stores that were torched, believing it may have been the work of the owners themselves.

"When someone does do that, he's usually in dire straits," said Jack Cergol, a spokesman for the Food Marketing Institute, an industry group. "Traditionally, the ones that go under are the ones that are not providing a service to the community."

In the Brooklyn case, the supermarket owners were accused of paying the arsonists between $150 and $400 per man, per fire, plus bonuses and spending money between jobs.

In addition, expenses were paid — usually $60 for axes and gasoline — as was the cost of lookouts hired to stand guard as the arsonists hammered holes in the roofs and set the fires, authorities alleged.

Nine of the owners are Dominicans and the other is a Colombian. That ethnic tie apparently played a major part in the conspiracy.

"They're a very close-knit group, like a lot of groups that come to this country," Ms. Nager said. "They were in constant touch, constantly talking. They didn't have to 'meet.'"

Sy Lewenthal, executive general manager of Pioneer Supermarkets, said, "The industry itself is ultra-competitive, but I never thought I'd see anything like this." Two Pioneer stores were hit by fires that caused $5.9 million in damages. One still has not reopened.

Arnold Katz, owner of Speedway Met Supermarket, said he, too, found it hard to believe. But he said he "rather suspected" that a competitor was behind the string of fires.

Katz explained that there are three supermarkets in his neighborhood, including his own, a Key Food Supermarket and an Elite Supermarket.

The Key Food mart was torched on May 23. The fire caused $3 million in damages and the store still has not re-opened. Then, after an botched arson attempt on June 24, Katz' store was gutted by a $490,000 fire on Aug. 7.

True to its name, the Elite Supermarket alone was unscathed. It is one of the markets owned by the men charged with the conspiracy, according to Ms. Nager.

Katz's market, like most of the others that were torched, is in a poor neighborhood that is growing poorer, with public housing nearby.

"The area really can't support more than a couple of markets," said Katz, "and there were three. They just decided to burn down the others."

Half of the supermarkets that were burned have not opened their doors since. Pioneer's Lewenthal said many have been waiting for their insurance companies to pay off.

"I think that it's been a shame that insurance companies have held back payments," he said.

Not just semantics

Even the staunchest supporter of Israel probably will agree that there's more than semantics at play in Israel's destructive attack on the Iraqi nuclear plant east of Baghdad.

Responding to questions about the forbidden use of American-made F-15s and F-16s in the strike, Uri Porath, spokesman for Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, said, "The planes were given to us for use in self-defense. And this was clearly self-defense.

That assessment can be accurate only if one believes that the construction of the nuclear plant itself constituted a threat to the continued existence of the Jewish state, since most knowledgeable sources say the Iraqis, even with the plant completed, would not have had the capability to produce atomic bombs.

Even if that capability were acquired who's to say bombs produced in Iraq would be used for offensive purposes?

The Israelis may have been merely buying themselves some insurance by way of the strike against the nuclear reactor, but in reality there's little doubt that their actions violated the trust of Americans and the conditions of the military and this government has extended. The Reagan administration may determine that future aid to the Israelis should be cut in some manner.

But even that step doesn't approach the basic problem in the Middle East which is how to find a peaceful co-existence despite the centuries-old hatred and distrust boiling there. All of a sudden the always hot Middle East has been thrust much closer to the fire of all-out warfare.

That's the question the nations of the Middle East must be willing to address if the hope of peace is to survive there.

But peace isn't a one-way street. Israel and all the other nations of the Middle East must be willing to approach peace honestly if it's to work. And military strikes like the one Israel launched against Iraq, semantics aside, must be stopped.

The 'light' in Africa

The lighter a country's color on the map, the smaller the rate of growth in that country's wealth per person. The lightest shade of all means that in the 1970s growth went backwards — that by 1978 the production of goods and services was worth less per person than nine years before.

On this map, Africa is the lightest continent by far, and about half of Africa is the faintest shade the bank's color code provides. In a word, the poorest continent is getting poorer. Poorer than what? Poorer than a poverty already beyond imagining by most Americans.

Excluding Libya, the wealthiest African nation to lose ground in the 1970s ended 1978 with a per-capita national product of $510. That was Zambia. In Chad, the comparable figure was $150, with preliminary estimates even lower for 1979, and for most of the losers the statistics are closer to Chad's than to Zambia's. By contrast, America's figure for 1978 was $9,770 and rising.

Besides the human misery they hint at, these bleak numbers reflect the impact of devastating drought, wars and revolutions, and corrupt or unstable political regimes. Often the disastrous conditions combined. Across the southern Sahara an encroaching desert sent refugees searching for food in countries ill able to receive them. In Uganda and Ethiopia warfare had the same effect. From Angola east to Mozambique a decade of intermittent fighting blocked progress toward prosperity.

"Prosperity," indeed, seems a cruel hope to hold for nations so deprived as those shaded lightly on the World Bank map. But though some African countries need emergency help just to keep people fed, most of them do not lack for basic resources, arable land and long-range potential to become self-supporting. Their deepest needs are for years of peace and sound, steady economic development.

Development and peace alike depend most immediately on African leadership. But peace in Africa should be assisted by Western diplomacy, and development should be strengthened by investment from Western wealth. Only with the help of such non-African efforts are future maps of Africa apt to show a better color.

Art Buchwald

The White House has proposed a serious relaxation in the 1977 Foreign Corrupt Practices Act, which was intended to prevent American companies from bribing foreign officials.

The administration maintains that the United States is losing too much business to competitors because we can't grease the palms of some of our best customers.

If Congress goes along with it, American executives are going to have to do a complete switch, as most of them had given strict orders not to offer bribes for contracts abroad. The truth of the matter is, U.S. company sales reps are out of practice.

A friend of mine from a multinational confessed this to me the other day. "I was pretty good at bribing politicians abroad in my time," he told me, "But I think I've lost my touch."

"It will come back," I assured him. "It's like a foreign language. All you need is a little practice."

"That's why I came over tonight," he said. "I was hoping you would help me brush up."

"Sure," I told him. "Why don't you play yourself and I'll play the brother-in-law of the president of a country where you're trying to get a big order."

"That would be great. Let's pretend that we're having dinner at the brother-in-law's palace."

"You're on."

"Your Excellency, thank you for your wonderful hospitality. I have never had such a sumptuous banquet in my life."

"It is my pleasure, Mr. Doppel. Tell me, what brings you to Enchilada?"

"My company is interested in arranging a contract for the sale of puppy formula. We believe this could make a great health contribution to Enchilada, as it would save your dogs from breast-feeding their young."

"Everyone has been offering us puppy formula. What are your terms?"

"A five-year, low-interest, financed contract in which you would guarantee to buy $10 million of formula at world market prices."

"That's very interesting. My brother-in-law would like that. But what about his wife's foundation for the widows and orphans of Enchilada?"

"We would be happy to make a contribution."

"Why Switzerland?"

"That is where the foundation has its headquarters."

"No problem. Then it's a deal?"

"Not yet. I'm sure your country is interested in the welfare of our people. I am the president of Enchilada United Way, and we are in the middle of our fund drive."

"Of course. Our company always gives to the United Way."

"Here is the numbered bank account of the Enchilada United Way in Liechtenstein. Just have your bank wire my cousin's bank in Miami. He is treasurer of the fund."

"Our bank will attend to it. Can we sign a letter of agreement now?"

"I'm not in the position to sign such a letter. That has to be done by my uncle, who is minister of commerce. I will write a note to him, but I warn you he's a tough man to deal with. He only accepts diamonds."

"We'll find diamonds. Anyone else on the list I should know about?"

"If you could find it in your heart to spare a few dollars for Army Chief General Valdez's Veterans Hospital, he would be eternally grateful."

"Of course. Where is the hospital?"

"It hasn't been built yet. But he'll be happy to show you the plans."

"If my company has anything to say about it, he shall have his hospital."

"You've done great," I told Doppel. "You're going to make a great comeback in the international bribery business."

"Whew," he said, relieved, "for a while I thought I had lost my fast ball."

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

'Shady' Carter evidence swept under rug

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department has swept under the rug circumstantial evidence that appears to implicate Jimmy Carter in a major scandal. The former president, questioned first by FBI agents and then by federal prosecutors, denied any memory or knowledge of the incriminating events.

The explosive evidence is locked in Justice Department files, which are supposed to be closed to the public. But my associate Indy Badhwar has examined the suppressed documents, which tell a story of connivance and cover-up.

It's an enormously complex story that can best be understood by reporting it in chronological order:

Jan. 14-16, 1977 — A delegation of Georgians, headed by Spencer Lee IV, a small-town attorney with close ties to the Carter crowd, flew to Costa Rica for a secret rendezvous with fugitive financier Robert Vesco.

The incorrigible Vesco, described by a biographer as "the biggest international swindler of our time," offered them a $10 million cut of his stolen fortune. In return, they were supposed to use their White House connections to get the federal government off his back.

According to a Justice Department memo, Vesco boasted that he had "substantial influence over several Latin American Heads of State," and could help the Carter administration negotiate a favorable Panama Canal treaty.

As the memo describes the strategy that was adopted, Vesco's intercession "could be sold to the American public as the rationale for dropping efforts to bring Vesco to justice in the United States." It should be noted that Costa Rican President Daniel Oduber was supposed to play the key role in this diplomatic maneuver.

Vesco, meanwhile, agreed to transfer $10 million worth of his stolen securities to the Georgians. But first, he wanted the U.S. government to drop extradition proceedings against him as a "signal" that the Georgians could pull the right strings in Washington.

Jan. 27, 1977 — Lee flew to the Bahamas to set up a dummy corporation to launder the $10 million that the Georgians expected to collect. The company was registered under the name of Southern Ventures, Ltd. — the code name that the Georgians used in their memos to refer to the Vesco caper.

Feb. 8, 1977 — Lee flew to Washington, where he presented the Vesco deal to White House aide Richard Harden. Both men later swore to a federal grand jury that Harden persuaded Lee to drop out of the conspiracy.

But Lee was bluffed into taking lie detector tests, which indicated he had lied about cutting his ties with Vesco. Although Harden refused to take a lie detector test, the files show that Justice Department officials believed he had also committed perjury.

What this means is that, in the opinion of those investigating the case, Lee and Harden continued to promote the $10 million political fix.

Feb. 9, 1977 — Carter placed an unusual telephone call to President Daniel Oduber in Costa Rica. Not only was Oduber a key figure in the Vesco plot, but Vesco had boasted he had Oduber in his "hip pocket."

The timing of the call helped to convince Vesco that he could do business with the Georgians, he said later. Explained a Justice Department memo: "Interviews of Carter and Oduber establish that Oduber received a conservation award and that Carter placed the call to congratulate him." The Justice Department declined to investigate whether there was any other purpose for the call.

Feb. 15, 1977 — Harden dropped by the oval office for a meeting with President Carter that lasted five minutes. Declares the memo: "The President then proceeded to write a note to the Attorney General stating: 'Please see Spencer Lee from Albany when he requests an appointment.'"

Of course, the Georgians hoped the Justice Department would halt extradition proceedings against Vesco, so he would keep his promise to transfer the $10 million in securities to them. There is no record, however, that Lee kept the appointment with the attorney general.

June 1977 — The extradition proceedings against Vesco were halted. This strange coincidence was described succinctly by Philip Heymann, then the assistant attorney general in charge of the criminal division, in a confidential 35-page report on the case:

"The Department of Justice, over the objection of the State Department, ultimately decided not to seek Vesco's extradition. Future investigation will have to focus on allegations that this decision by Justice was improperly motivated."

Having received the "signal" that the fix was in, Vesco transferred the $10 million through a complex stock deal. Harden testified, meanwhile, that he had informed Carter of Lee's illegal proposition. The president responded by appointing Lee to a judicial nominating committee to help select federal judges.

UNDER THE DOME: An anonymous poke at the Moral Majority is circulating on Capitol Hill in the form of a fake draft of legislation designed to punish promiscuity. Drawn up in the typical jargon of proposed legislation, it purports to be the "Shotgun Wedding Act of 1981." The point of the phony bill is that various categories of sexual misbehavior are forgiven if the offenders get married before they come to trial.

— Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., is quietly talking with out-of-state moneymen about the possibility of running for president in 1984. So far, the response has been encouraging — if cautious. As an unabashed liberal who managed to survive last year's Democratic debacle, Hart appeals to those who feel former Vice President Walter Mondale's liberal credentials were tarnished by his service under Jimmy Carter, and those who figure Ted Kennedy is great but unelectable.

NICK THIMMESCH

Results of high school class illustrate promise of tomorrow

Nick Thimmesch

WASHINGTON — A peace treaty was signed here recently which provided for:

Establishment of a Palestinian state; recognition of Israel by Arab nations, and Israeli control of a unified Jerusalem; removal of Syrian forces from Lebanon and a cessation of Israeli aid to Christian Phalangists; Israeli payment of re-settlement costs for Palestinians; and an end to anti-Zionist and anti-PLO propaganda.

This marvelous, idealized document was hammered out and signed by students in a class in Current Middle East problems at Bethesda-Chevy Chase high school. But this was no run-of-the-mill do-gooder exercise. Students chose the nations they would represent in the peace talks, and defended them with a skill and ferocity that might make some dullards at the United Nations envious.

The fact this one-semester enterprise was executed by bright students from affluent backgrounds who are now soaking up summer delights and getting ready for college should not be dismissed. If this specimen of the future leadership class can struggle through the barbed-wire thickets of Middle East antagonisms, perhaps all is not lost in the Republic.

The course opens with several weeks study of the region's great religions — Judaism, Christianity and Islam. Then students pick a nation they want to represent from a list of Middle East countries plus the U.S., U.S.S.R., France or Great Britain.

A sizable percentage of students at Bethesda-Chevy Chase are of the Jewish faith. It is interesting that many of them ask to represent the Palestinians or Libya — pariahs to Israel — and wind up as vigorous advocates of the Arab cause in the classroom peace conference.

Anyway, once "delegates" are chosen (Israel gets four, other nations one or two), they must each write position papers and give opening speeches (usually propagandistic) on behalf of their nations.

Delegates are required to keep current on what goes on in their nation, achieving this by reading newspapers, magazines, books, and U.N. chronicles, interviewing embassy staffers, and listening to talks by officials of embassies here and the Palestinian Information Office.

The culmination of four months of such intensive study is the peace conference chaired by a student in the role of U.N. Coordinator. His is a miserable job. This year the lad tried to be humorous by offering to accept bribes and demanding to be addressed as "His Holiness."

Much of the deliberation is serious, however. Agenda items concerning the Arab-Israeli dispute took up virtually all the time. For two weeks, in official and private meetings, delegates argued, postured and made secret deals.

The Libyan delegate's rhetorical skill nearly divided the Arab world, some of whose members were strongly anti-Israel. The Israeli delegates, faced with endless loud debate from the majority Arab bloc, found it more effective to deal in private.

In debate, delegates sometimes came close to losing control by referring to opponents as "dogs." The Libyan delegate ranted, and the American delegate shouted "You are out of your mind." Order was restored.

Finally, with Libya abstaining though promising not to endanger the treaty, the peace treaty was signed. The aforementioned general provisions in more detailed form can be obtained from James Biedron, who teaches this lively class and gets his students excited about the Middle East.

Students evaluating the course write about the insights they gained about nations they knew little or nothing about. There is student consensus that the Palestinian question must be resolved.

The course has caused a few ruckuses. A few years ago, the son of the Israeli ambassador told his mother, Mrs. Vivian Dinitz, that a Palestinian had spoken to the class. She immediately complained to the principal.

But the principal told Mrs. Dinitz that spokesmen for all Middle East embassies, including Israel, also addressed the class and that the course was run fairly. There have been no squawks since. Hooray for Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Wednesday, June 10, the 161st day of 1981. There are 204 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On June 10, 1610, the first Dutch settlers in America landed on Manhattan Island.

On this date:

In 1967, Israel agreed to a United Nations ceasefire with Egypt, with Israel holding conquered territory four times its own size.

In 1970, at least 100 persons were killed in fighting between government forces and guerrillas in Jordan.

In 1972, a flash flood hit Rapid City, South Dakota, resulting in 236 deaths.

And in 1979, Pope John Paul II ended a nine-day visit to his native Poland, urging his countrymen to — quote — "be strong with the strength that comes from faith."

Five years ago: Lebanon's civil war simmered down as the Arab League peacekeeping force arrived.

One year ago: Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin pledged that his country would stop building controversial settlements on the West Bank after 10 more were completed.

Congressional reaction to Israelis shifts

By BARTON REPPERT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a round of sharp criticism, congressional reaction to Israel's bombing of an Iraqi nuclear reactor is shifting to more cautious concern or support of the raid.

"Let's not rush to judgment," Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., said Tuesday, describing that as the consensus among GOP senators to whom he had spoken. Baker described the initial response in Congress as "one of shock and alarm," but said that by Tuesday, senators were reacting "a little more cautiously."

Members speaking in defense of the action included Sen. Alfonse M. D'Amato, R-N.Y., who called the surprise air strike "courageous."

D'AMATO CONTENDED that Israel is "surrounded by enemies and if she feels that her national security is jeopardized, then a pre-emptive strike can be a very effective defense weapon to prevent a wider conflict. We might even term this a rather effective method of anti-nuclear proliferation."

The Reagan administration sent Nicholas A. Veliotis, assistant secretary of state for Near Eastern and South Asian affairs, to Capitol Hill to present closed-door briefings Tuesday on the Israeli raid and its implications for Mideast peace efforts.

ADMINISTRATION OFFICIALS said they will submit to Congress shortly a report on whether Israel violated a legal ban on use of American-supplied equipment against another country without U.S. approval.

Rep. Jonathan Bingham, D-N.Y., a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, commented after one of the Veliotis briefings that he saw "no indication that they (the administration) have any intention of finding a violation."

A long-time supporter of the Jewish state, Bingham declared on the House floor that "the world may be a safer place because of Israel's acions." "It has been clear for some time that the Iraqis have been seeking to build a nuclear capability," he said. "Iraq's president has publicly stated that it is his intention to destroy Tel Aviv with (atomic) bombs. Under the circumstances, it was clearly self-defense."

Another member of the Foreign Affairs Committee, Rep. Edward J. Derwinski, R-Ill., said he does not believe American negotiating efforts in the Mideast will suffer a long-term setback because "it's clear that the U.S. did not have any advance knowledge or play any role" in the Israeli raid.

AS FOR THE LEGISLATIVE provision aimed at preventing offensive use of U.S.-supplied weapons by other countries, Derwinski said it has repeatedly proven impractical and unenforceable. "We ought to forget the facade and drop it," the Illinois Republican said.

Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., said he didn't "support" the Israeli action, but said he "understood" it.

"When Iraq has declared the intent to destroy a country, and is developing the wherewithal, she should not be surprised if that country gets aggressive in return," he said.

Moynihan said he believes the use of American-supplied aicraft ma have violated the agreements under which they were provided. At the same time, he condemned as "absolutely irresponsible" the aid the French government had given Iraq in building the reactor.

Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, said a cutoff of U.S. aid to Israel appears unlikely but "it's something we have to consider most seriously." He contended that "this is the first time any nation has used our arms to go 600 miles across two countries to hit another nation."

MISD school trustees meet, announce several promotions

By RICHARD ORR
Staff Writer

School trustees emerged from a closed-door session of their regular meeting Tuesday and announced the promotions of several school district employees.

Assistant Superintendent Dr. Joe Baressi was named deputy superintendent; Leonard Monroe moved from assistant principal at Midland Senior High to principal of Midland Freshman School; Jimmie Kelly went from assistant principal at Lee High School to principal of San Jacinto Junior High; and David Adams graduated from assistant principal at Goddard Junior High to principal of Alamo Junior High.

In addition to being promoted, the men — along with other administrative personnel at the principal level and above — will receive a 12 percent salary hike. Salaries for other employees were discussed at the session, according to a spokeswoman, but no formal action was taken.

In other business Tuesday, trustees received the results of state-mandated basic skills tests recently administered to third, fifth, ninth and tenth graders in the school system.

The tests, according to Superintendent Dr. James Malley, are designed to measure proficiency in skills already taught the youngsters. The tests included reading, writing and mathematical ability.

Summarizing the overall results, Malley said: "Math was up, but reading was a bit off."

Although students who fail to meet minimum requirements are allowed to retake the tests as often as they are given, nothing has been decided about what to do with children who consistently fail them. Asked about that situation by Trustee Ann Page, Malley said a committee had been formed to study the matter and its findings would be reported to the board this fall.

A proposal to award a $26,670 contract to South Texas Construction Co. for demoliton of the Cowden House to make way for increased parking space at Midland High was tabled after trustees couldn't decide what to do about two 50-year-old pecan trees on the property.

The board seemed evenly divided on keeping the trees intact and erecting a metal guard around them. Trustees ultimately agreed to have the cost factor studied and will resolve the issue at a later meeting.

In commenting on the matter, Trustee Bill Jackson said: "Anybody who'd tear down a tree in West Texas is committing a sin."

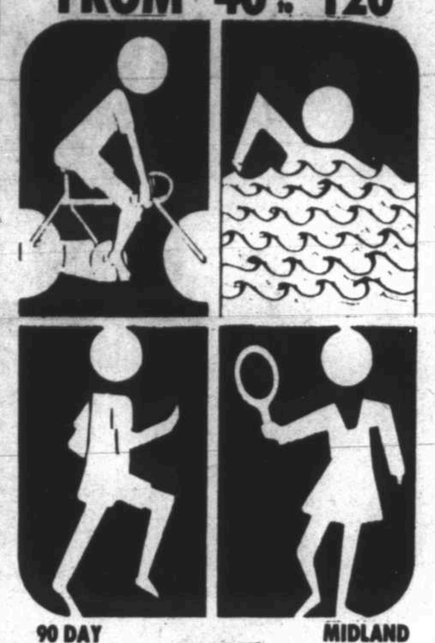

In a 4-2 vote, trustees accepted a committee recommendation to purchase 32 Radio Shack computers and six Apple computers for the school district's new computer math program.

Trustees Page and Ron Britton favored rejecting the Radio Shack equipment — which is cheaper — and replacing it with additional Apple computers or computers from other companies. Their reasoning, in Britton's words, was that: "Radio Shack (computers) are a little too basic. They'll be outdated the day they're put in. There's no market for used computers. It's like buying manual typewriters when electric typewriters are available."

Page agreed, arguing that a friend of hers who is familiar with computers said he would, as a taxpayer, be opposed to the school district purchasing Radio Shack equipment.

Their objections failed to pursuade Trustees Jackson, Gary Hopper, Joyce Sherrod, and Parker Humes, however. Their vote was based on the committee's findings that other school districts in the state use Radio Shack equipment and reported little or no trouble with it. "It's a way to get started," said Jackson in commenting on the computer math program.

Hance feels stronger anti-busing action due

WASHINGTON — U.S. Rep. Kent Hance said the House approval of an anti-busing amendment Tuesday "is a step in the right direction, but stronger action is needed still."

The House Tuesday approved anti-busing language on the Justice Department authorization bill that forbids the department from bringing "any sort of action to require directly or indirectly" the busing of students to any school but the one closest to their home, except when special education is needed. This would virtually take the government out of the desegregation business, since Congress has already stopped the Justice Department practice of cutting off federal funds to schools in order to force them to implement busing.

"The effect of the language we approved Tuesday afternoon would be to prevent the Justice Department practice of cutting off federal funds to schools in order to force them to implement busing.

"The effect of the language we approved Tuesday afternoon would be to prevent the Justice Department from filing or intervening in court suits which seek to desegregate school systems by busing students beyond the neighborhood school," said Hance.

"School districts presently under court order will not immediately change, but the Justice Department cannot now reinstitute most of those same suits which have a time expiration date. We should begin to see relief over the next two to three years at most of the affected school districts."

Although the Justice Department could not intervene in legal battles, the bill would not prevent federal courts from ruling on busing suits brought by individuals.

"The House and Senate both passed this bill last year and it was vetoed by the President," said Hance. "I expect the Senate to again approve it and feel confident it will not be vetoed this time. Busing has not worked and should be totally eliminated."

Police end probe in motorcycle death

Police today said they have closed their investigation into the death of a Midland man who apparently lost control of a borrowed motorcycle and struck a curb in the 3500 block of Andrews Highway about 2:15 p.m. Sunday.

The accident claimed the life of 19-year-old Michael Wayne Wilhite, 5144 Daventry Place. An initial investigation indicated Wilhite was alone at the time of the wreck, but some confusion resulted when the person calling police about the accident indicated he was riding with Wilhite at the time.

A police spokesman this morning, however, said a witness told officers there may have been another motorcyclist riding ahead of Wilhite but it could not be confirmed they were riding together.

Wilhite was pronunced dead by a doctor at Midland Memorial Hospital about 3 p.m. Sunday. He suffered head injuries and abrasions in the crash.

MMH parking lot to be resurfaced

Midland Memorial Hospital will close its north parking lot — the visitor's lot — at midnight tonight for resurfacing. The lot should be closed about five days.

Visitors are asked to use the lots directly north and east of the Allison Permian Basin Cancer Therapy Center.

Jaycee-Ettes win state competition

Ten local members in attendance watched as the chapter's president, Barbara Barnett, was named outstanding local president in her population division, and as Midland was named outstanding chapter in its division.

Midlanders Cathy Murphy and Linda Jones were named state officers, with Mrs. Murphy elected president and Mrs. Jones as secretary.

The Midland chapter was awarded six chapters of special recognition for its participation in state projects. Twenty certificates were awarded to local chapter members for participation in individual development projects.

Local winners in competition were Leah Lambert, first in impromptu written essay and prepared written essay; Karran Martin, first in oral interviews covering knowledge, situation and experience questions; second in a prepared 4-6 minute speech; and third in a prepared resume and oral interview with questions on knowledge, situations and experience.

Midland chapter also placed in first through third places in project books and programming books. One book which won the Sweepstakes Award in its category was the Yellow Ribbon Day project. All of the programming books won first place awards.

Texas chef prepares meal for two presidents

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Texas chef was flown to Camp David to specially prepare a meal for President Reagan and Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo.

On the two-tiered flagstone terrace, the two presidents dined on a menu of charcoal roast sirloin, tomato pie, corn on the cob, tossed salad and deep dish apple pie with homemade ice cream.

Both presidents returned to the buffet-style table for second helpings of the meal prepared by chef Cliff Teinert of New Albany, Texas.

Teinert paid his own way to Camp David, said Larry Speakes, deputy press secretary to the president.

Bridge tournament set

The Tall City Sectional Duplicate Bridge Tournament will get underway Friday in the Midland Hilton.

Hundreds of outstanding players from throughout Texas and other states will be in Midland for three days of competition.

A special warm-up game for the tournament is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Midland Hilton.

The tournament play will begin at 1:30 p.m. Friday with the Unmixed Pairs game. The Masters Pairs game and the Non-Masters Pairs competition will be played at 7:30 p.m. Friday. Persons with 20 or more American Contract Bridge League master points will be eligible to play in the Masters Pairs game. The Non-Masters game will be open to any bridge player.

The Saturday schedule will be devoted to the Open Pairs competition. Any bridge player is eligible to compete in this event, which will be played in two sessions, the first beginning at 1:30 p.m.

Finals will start at 7:30 p.m. Persons who do not qualify for the finals will play in the consolation round at 7:30 p.m. The consolation also will be open to players who did not compete in the initial round of the Open Pairs.

The tournament's closing event will be the two-session Swiss Team of Four to be held on Sunday. The first session will begin at 11 a.m., with the final round starting time to be announced.

The tournament is hosted by the Permian Bridge Club and sanctioned by the American Contract Bridge League. Persons who want to play in the tournament do not have to be members of either organizaion. Tournament director is Becky Schmieder of Houston.

Dinner will be served to players between rounds of the Swiss Team Sunday, and refreshments will be served following each night's competition. Trophies will be awarded to first place winners and master points will be awarded on the basis of the ACBL's tourney formula.

Gloria Crites, president of the Permian Bridge Club, urges all Midland bridge players, even if they have never competed in duplicate bridge, to take part in the tournament as players or spectators. For help in finding a partner, call Al and Peg Buehler at 683-2537.

AT WIT'S END

A favorite child

By ERMA BOMBECK

Every mother has a favorite child. She cannot help it. She is only human.

I have mine.

That child for whom I feel a special closeness. The one I reach out to in a rare moment. To share a love that no one else could possibly understand.

My favorite child is the one who was too sick to eat the ice cream at his birthday party, had measles at Christmas, and wore leg braces to bed because he toed in.

She was the fever in the middle of the night, the asthma attack, the child in my arms at the emergency ward.

My favorite child spent Christmas alone away from the family, was stranded after the game with a gas tank on E, lost the money for his class ring.

My favorite child is the one who screwed up the piano recital, misspelled "committee" in a spelling bee, ran the wrong way with the football and had his bike stolen because he was careless.

My favorite child is the one who fell asleep over an assignment on China that the teacher never bothered to grade, flunked her driver's test five times, and told us she could hardly wait to get out of the house.

My favorite child always needed a haircut, had hair that wouldn't curl, had no date for Saturday night and a car that cost $600 to fix.

The one I've loved the most is the one whom I have watched struggle . . . and because the struggle was his . . . done nothing.

All mothers have their favorite child. It is always the same one. The one who needs you at the moment for whatever reason . . . to cling to, to shout at, to hurt, to hug, to flatter, to reverse charges to, to unload on, to use -- but mostly, to be there.

Garden center discussed

COUNCIL OF GARDEN CLUBS

Mrs. Keith Somerville, president of the Midland Council of Garden Clubs, gave a progress report on locating a site for the council's Garden Club Center and the institution of a building fund.

Scene was a board meeting of the council at Mrs. Somerville's home, 1713 Douglas.

She said that all contributions to the fund are tax-deductible and should be mailed to Mrs. T. L. Bond, treasurer, at 1600 Gulf St.

Hagelstein told of the two-story building for the Center to be built on the 47 acres. The area will include a pond, wildflowers, flying birds and running creatures. He said that the building and surrounding area will be utilized by the schools, and also invited Mrs. Somerville and her committee to meet with the district board of the Midland Soil and Water Conservation Service June 15 at the Midland Hilton.

In business session, Mrs. Somerville noted that the spring convention of District I, Texas Garden CLubs, will be in Odessa April 6-7, 1982. Bob Thomas of Florida, a nationally-known flower arranger, will present a proram on flower arranging.

Flower Show Awards Chairman Mrs. R. D. Hardman urged the Garden Clubs in the council to notify her of their dates for flower show so she may order cards and ribbons for awards.

Midland Garden Club will supply the flower arrangement for Trinity Towers birthday party on the third Tuesday in June. Other clubs include Sand and Seed Club in July; Newcomer's Garden Club in August; and Tejas Garden Club in September.

AARON ESTES CHAPTER, DAUGHTERS OF REPUBLIC OF TEXAS

New officers were elected at a meeting of the Aaron Estes Chapter, Daughters of the Republic of Texas.

They included Mrs. F. H. McGuigan, president; Mrs. Bruce Pearson, vice president; Mrs. Robert Knott, treasurer; Stella Maye Lanham, secretary; Mrs. Solon P. Crain, registrar; Mrs. Max Perry, historian; and Mrs. John Cross, chaplain.

Mrs. John P. McKinley, historian general, reported on the 90th convention held in San Antonio. At the convention, she presided over historic evening and introduced Truett Latimer of Austin, executive director of the Texas Historial Commission. She presented the annual Mamie Wynn Cox award to Mrs. Rex Arnold of Lubbock, and a certificate for the Summer G. Roberts award to Mrs. M. M. O'Dowd, past president-general.

Mrs. McKinley also introduced Mrs. Eliabeth B. Nisbet, who presented the Kate Broocks Bates Award for historical reseach for "Journey to Mexico During the Years 1826 to 1834" by Jean Louis Berlandier. The book is in two volumes translated from the French by Sheila M. Ohlendorf, Josette M. Bigelow and Mary M. Standifer. The translators presented one of the boxed sets to Mrs McKinley as a gift.

Others reporting were Mrs. McGuigan, Mrs. Stanley Erskine, Mrs. Robert Turner and Miss Lanham.

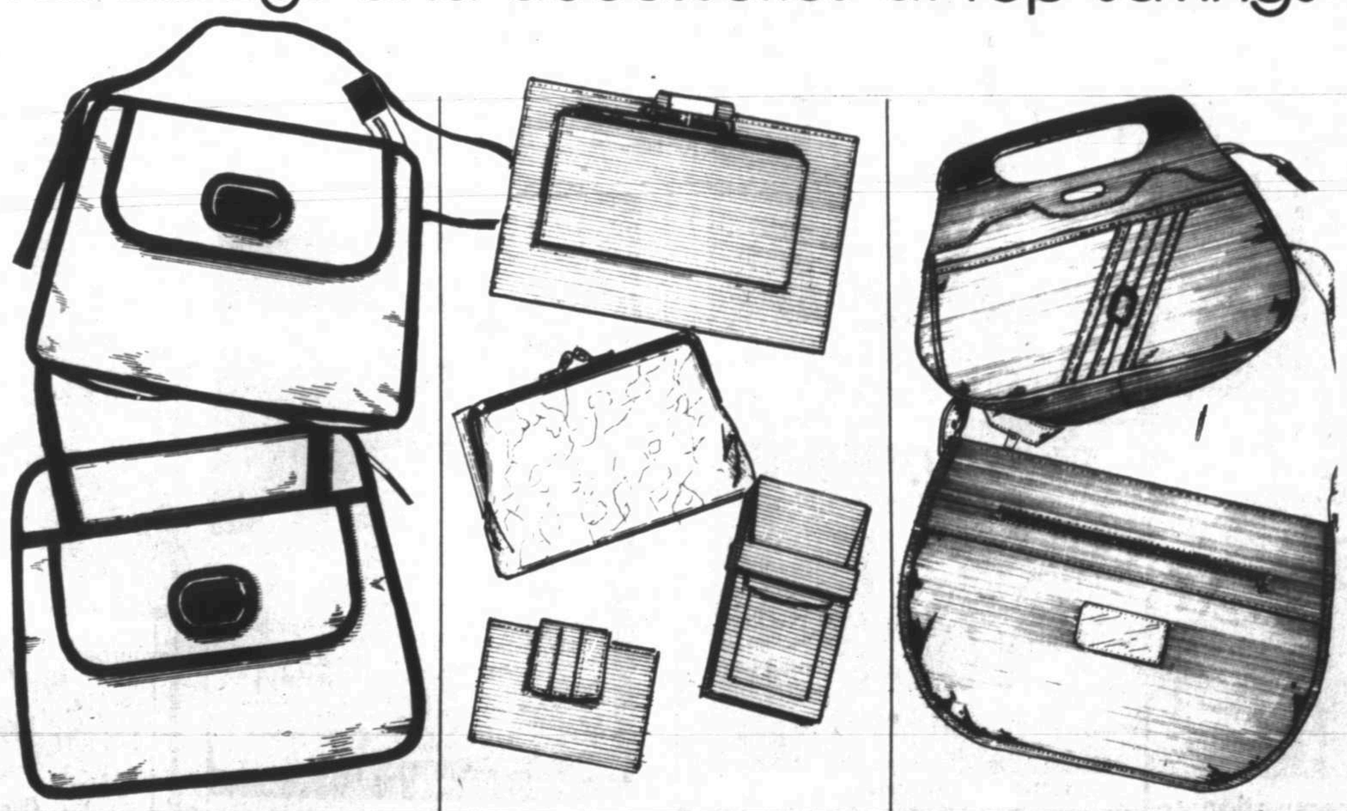

The three-day convention also included a reception honoring Mrs. G. F. Hollis, president general; a moonlight tour of the Alamo; a memorial service in the Alamo Chapel; and a patio Parranda around the Menger Hotel pool.

NEWTIMERS BRIDGE CLUB

Newtimers Bridge Club met at Ranchland Hills Country Club for bridge and lunch. High scorers were Helen Owen, first; Doris Neujahr, second; and Phyllis Stine, third.

Grand slam was bid and made by Phyllis Stine and Doris Neujahr.

Brick look

DALTON, Ga. (AP) — A newly developed artificial turf that resembles bricks is being introduced for home use.

"For pools, patios or walkways, the brick look is going to be very popular," said Arthur Lauman, president of Instant Turf. "Turf makes a pool or patio area safer and more comfortable because it only looks like brick."

Compensation varying

NEW YORK (AP) — Compensation for outside company directors varies widely in form and amount, according to "The Corporate Directorship," a study recently issued by American Management Associations.

The regular meeting fees for outside directors of the 1,057 companies surveyed range from $25 to $20,000 per meeting. However, amounts of $200, $300 and $500 are most common.

Also, outside directors are paid either a yearly retainer or a fee per meeting. In some cases they receive both.

Retainers for outside directors range from $50 to $55,000 per year, with the majority between $2,-000 and $11,000.

Preference for dirty tables more than coziness of clutter

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: A waitress in Milwaukee asked why people always seem to want tables that have not been cleared. You said it was because of the coziness of clutter. Well, there are other reasons:

Waiters and waitresses know which tables are the least desirable, and they try to get those tables filled up first. For instance, if a table is under an air-conditioning vent, or near the radiator, or right next to the restroom, or in the line of traffic, or facing the wall, or too near the kitchen, or too close to the music, it's not the best table in the house.

On the other hand, some people prefer a table near a window so they can watch their car or enjoy the view. Some people choose a table so they can be in a certain station to get a preferred waiter or waitress. Some like to watch the door so they can see who comes in (especially if they're with someone they don't want to be seen with). And some people sit at a table that hasn't been cleared to ensure instant service. They know that the waitress will be there in two seconds to be sure the newcomers don't pick up her tip! — EX-WAITRESS IN SARASOTA, FLA.

DEAR ABBY: I work in a small three-woman office and one of the women talks constantly. Every morning she gives us a play-by-play account of everything she, her husband, her son, her neighbors, etc., have done since the accounting given the day before.

According to her, her son is the best-looking, smartest, best-behaved, most accomplished kid in the world. Frankly, I could not care less. I also have children who are pretty special, but I don't talk about them all the time.

This is a small town and jobs are hard to come by, so I can't quit. Neither can I tell her to knock off the constant bragging without causing hard feelings. Please print this. Mabye she'll see it, and let up a little. — FED UP

DEAR FED UP: All right, here's your letter. And if she doesn't let up, send me her initials.

(If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send $1 plus a long, stamped (35 cents) self-addressed envelope to ABBY, Letters Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.)

Preservation tips for fresh foods

By SHARON HILLIS
COUNTY EXTENSION AGENT

Canning, drying and freezing are all suitable methods of food preservation that utilize different pieces of equipment to accomplish the storage of food successfully.

CANNING

In the canning of foods, two different types of canners are used to process food and insure its safety for family consumption. First, the pressure canner. It is the type of canner necessary to process all low-acid foods which include all meats and vegetables. Second, the water bath canner is used to process all acid foods which include all fruits and foods that have had acid (vinegar or fruit acid) added to them such as pickles, relishes, jams, jellies, etc.

Other types of equipment such as conventional or microwave ovens, pressure sauce pans, etc., are not recommended and cannot insure you a safe home canned product. Regardless of the good condition of the food or its method of preparation, food will spoil if it is not processed in the appropriate equipment for the required length of time and at the correct temperature. As you set out to can food, three items must be determined before you begin:

1. Select the proper type of canner.
2. Process for the required length of time.
3. Process at the correct temperature.

DRYING FOODS

More and more people are opting for this method of food preservation for variety, ease in storage, convenience and to save on food dollars. Dried fruits are favorite snack foods in many families, as well as necessary for many favorite family recipes. Since they are expensive to purchase in this form, this is one way to continue to enjoy dried fruits and save on the budget as well. Vegetables are suitable for drying also.

Methods of drying foods include: Sun drying, oven drying, sun (solar) heaters and dehydrators. The latter two methods may be construted fairly easily at various costs or purchased in the market place. Successful drying depends upon:

1. Heat — enough to draw out moisture, but not enough to cook the food material
2. Dry air — to absorb the released moisture
3. Air circulation — to carry the moisture off

For those interested in learning the proper food preservation techniques, a workshop is being offered from 9 - 11:30 a.m., June 15 — 18 in the Home Economics Lab (Room 318) at Lee High School under the direction of Betty Ambrose, Lee High School home economics teacher and Sharon Hillis, County Extension agent.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Banishing musty odor

DEAR HELOISE:

During the rainy season our basement develops a damp, musty smell.

When I asked the public utility company service man what I could do about the unpleasant odor, he said to put several dishes of vinegar around the basement floor and even sprinkle some vinegar around.

Believe it or not, it worked! No more smeliy cellar! With all the rain we usually have in our area, I'm sure many others have the same problem.

I've used commercial deodorizers but vinegar is cheaper and has proved to be more effective in my opinion. — Mrs. R.

\+ + +

Let's hear it again for vinegar! And that service man for passing along an inexpensive tip about a problem we all face at one time or another, even if we don't have a basement. — Heloise

HINTS FROM HIM

Dear Heloise: I have a good wife, but she does occasionally display a tendency to con me into cutting up onions.

In such situations, a husband, such as myself, may find it helpful to put the onion under the range hood and turn on the exhaust fan in order to avoid the usual tears and discomfort.

It's best to do this when your wife isn't home; otherwise, she'll jump on you for getting onion peels all over the range.

I suppose a person could clean it up. — Gerald Reese

\+ + +

Or one could spread a paper towel or piece of paper (being careful not to get it anywhere close to those pilot lights) on the stove top to catch those peelings.

Sure makes for a quick and neat cleanup. — Heloise

PERFECT TWOSOME

They make great polishing cloths and fit right over the can of furniture spray.

Every time you reach for your polish, you need not hunt for an old dusting cloth, as the cloth and polish are all together.

And, since you're polishing with an old sock, you can just slip your hand into it for a polishing "mitt."

Great! Hope it makes your daily dusting easier. — L.W.W.

PRETTY SHEETS

Dear Heloise: When contour sheets became available, I wish someone had told me to purchase two bottom sheets and two sets of pillowcases so they would all wear out about the same time.

I now have several printed top sheets and can't match them. — Bernadine Mix

\+ + +

INSTANT PUDDING

Dear Heloise: In these inflationary times, inexpensive food ideas that are timesavers are double-digit winners.

Take one package of instant chocolate pudding mix and prepare according to package directions. Then whip in four or five heaping tablespoons of whipped topping and you have instant, fluffy dessert.

\+ + +

Send your favorite quick, easy, and inexpensive dessert idea to Heloise care of this newspaper. She can't answer your letter personally but will use the best sweet treat suggestions received in her column.

Women alone: Their number is growing

By MARK MONDAY
Copley News Service

Alone.

Like "love," it's a word the songwriters trade on.

It's a word that has more meaning for women than men -- and is going to be even more important for women in the future. "It's a fact of life," says Dr. Patricia Feulner, "the life expectancy gap between men and women is growing wider."

Women are living more and more years without spouses.

"We can expect that women are going to have even more time alone," says Feulner, associate professor of sociology at the University of San Diego.

"The average age of widowhood is 56. That's very young," she says.

The problems of widowhood are going to face more women, for a longer period of time, in the future, she says.

The problems are both social and financial — and involve society's image of the later years of life.

A woman's social life changes when her husband dies, Feulner says. Couples who were once friends may begin to push the new widow out of the social circle. The widow is no longer part of a couple, she's a single and doesn't quite fit in. And some may think of the new widow as a potential threat to their own marriage. When people turn green with jealousy it puts a red light on friendship.

The new widow is forced to rethink plans she and her husband made jointly. And it means the loss of a life role: the role of "wife."

Women can often weather the change relatively well, Feulner says. "Although we appear to be more vulnerable (than men), women can cope better. Women may depend on men for financial support and, to a certain extent, for other types of support, but women have developed other social supports."

That circle of women friends — the coffee klatch or the bridge group — provides a number of emotional and intellectual supports that women need. They do not rely exclusively on their husbands for their image or their conversation, and, as a result, can weather the loss better, according to the sociologist. (On the other hand, a man's major confidant tends to be his wife, she says, and if a man loses her, virtually all of his supports are wiped out in one blow.)

The widening of the life-expectancy gap — with women tending to live years longer than their husbands — has implications in the fields of long-term care and in survivor and pension benefits.

Nursing homes are already predominantly female and predominantly single ... and that trend will continue.It suggests, Feulner says, that society will have to provide long-term care with greater frequency and there will be no husband to assist financially or otherwise.

Financial burdens already fall heavily on widows, according to Feulner. Not only the burial expenses, but the problems of day-to-day financing.

In many cases the retired husband may have opted for a large retirement income during his lifetime, but the plan may reduce or even terminate benefits on his death. And if the widow gets any Social Security, it may be meager. A widow's wages during her working years — on which the benefits are calculated — are often small and were earned long before.

"Older women are disproportionately represented in the ranks of poverty," Feulner says. Studies show that 51 percent of elderly women living alone are below the poverty level.

Author of book on female sexuality has new book on male sexuality

By DOLORES BARCLAY
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Shere Hite doesn't need a passport to controversy. She's a permanent citizen.

Her first encounter was five years ago when critics lampooned her research methods in the best-selling book "The Hite Report on Female Sexuality," which examined the sexual practices of women through their anonymous responses to a questionnaire.

Now she's back, this time with "The Hite Report on Male Sexuality," which explores every corner of the physiology, psychology and practice of sex, using testimony from the men who wrote in. Some responses are humorous, while others are poignant. Some border on erotica.

But the method for both books is the same: unscientific. And the results are expected to be the same: best-selling but controversial.

"I was very shocked last time when people used the word 'unscientific' with my work," Ms. Hite said. "They meant unrepresentative. I did social sciences methodology. You can't take physical sciences methodology and apply it to social sciences."

The current Hite report, like the other Hite report, represents an exhaustive effort: more than 100,000 questionnaires asking for anonymous replies to 168 essay questions were sent to senior citizen centers, churches, colleges and universities around the country. Responses came from 7,239 men, ages 13 to 97, whose occupations include cartoonist, butcher, dentist, chemical engineer, chairman of the board, police officer, lawyer, mechanic, postal clerk, one vagabond and one "wage slave," resulting in a 1,129-page book.

It all took five years to complete.

And her findings, though not earth-shattering, should provide good grist for cocktail parties:

—Most men think women don't want sex often enough.

—Ninety percent of those who responded enjoy masturbation and most of those who said they have sex with a partner four or more times a week masturbate about three times a week.

"Society has told men that intercourse is necessary for orgasm and I found most men saying they had better orgasms without penetration," Ms. Hite said.

Her most surprising discovery, she said, was that 76 percent of men married between two and five years had had extramarital affairs, suggesting that fidelity is fast becoming an endangered value in American marriages. The figure is about 20 percent higher than that found by noted behaviorist Alfred Charles Kinsey.

"I was surprised that so many married men who had affairs weren't guilty," Ms. Hite said. "The main reason they had affairs was to buttress the marriage.

"I think men and women are very alienated today because men have very torn feelings about the role of women in today's society," she said. "If they have a wife who doesn't work, then they wonder if they are exploiting her. If she does work, a husband might not feel comfortable about that either."

Ms. Hite, who holds a master's degree in history from the University of Florida, said she tried to match her sample to population satistics of the U.S. in terms of race, religion, education, age, income, and where one lives.

But because the responses were anonymously done in writing, there is the possibility that some may be fantasies, jokes, untruths, or that one person could have filled out several different forms.

Make your own flowers from trims

By ELLEN APPEL
Copley News Service

Some of the prettiest flowers around are the ones you can make from ribbons, laces, and trims from the notions counter. They may not be as realistic-looking as pure silk roses, (or geniune roses, for that matter), but they are beautiful nonetheless.

Flowers are also simple to make from trims. In fact, you can construct an entire bouquet in minutes.

Chrysanthemums are one example of flowers that can be made from trims. Carnations are another. Mums are especially lovely in bright colors of grosgrain ribbon. Directions below show how to make them.

Note: Stem wire and floral tape are available at special floral supply stores, craft shops, and some variety stores.

PREPARATION: 1. Cut stem wire into 24-inch lengths. 2. Straighten wires as much as possible. 3. Fold wires in half.

MUM: 1. Cut ribbon into 15-inch lengths. 2. Fold ribbon in half lengthwise. Do not crease the folded edge. 3. Baste long edges together. 4. Make slits in ribbon, about one-eighth inch apart. Cut each slit from the folded edge to about one-fourth inch from basted edge. 5. Slip folded wire over one end of ribbon. 6. Roll ribbon around wire. 7. Pull threads tight around base of mum. 8. Tie threads together.

STEM: 1. Wrap mum base and stem wire with floral tape. First, stretch one end of floral tape and then wind onto wire. 2. Keep stretching tape and winding onto the wire until stem is completely covered. Add more tape if needed to strengthen wire.

Food stamp supporters try to head off further cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate supporters of the food stamp program are working to head off any further cuts in benefits beyond those proposed by the Senate Agriculture Committee.

"We've tightened every single place where there is the possibility of waste or fraud," said Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt. "To reduce food stamp benefits any more would make (the poor) bear a disproportionate share of the burden to reduce federal spending."

Debate began Tuesday on the food stamp bill, which would cut 1 million of the 23 million recipients from the food stamp rolls and slash benefits for millions more.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., chairman of the Agriculture Committee, immediately began pushing for even deeper cuts. "We need to go further and I hope we will," he said. "The administration has assured me they will be delighted if further savings can be achieved in this bill."

Senate votes on the additional cuts, many of them formally rejected by the committee last month, were put off until later today. But Leahy, the ranking Democrat on the nutrition subcommittee, and Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., the subcommittee's chairman, seemed optimistic they would be rejected again.

The bill, generally following President Reagan's recommendations for food stamp reductions, tightens eligibility requirements, delays benefit increases, cuts deductions used in calculating benefits, prohibits food stamps for striking workers and gives states the option of putting able-bodied recipients to work in public service jobs in return for benefits. It more than meets the strict 1982 spending targets Congress approved with Reagan's endorsement.

The additional cuts being sought by Helms and other conservative senators call for reinstitution of the requirement that recipients other than the elderly and handicapped pay one-third of their income for food stamps and a complete freeze on any benefit increases reflecting yearly rises in the cost of living.

Helms also said he wants to propose even tighter eligibility standards that would cut as many as 2.5 million more recipients from the program and a reduction in benefits for families with children receiving free school lunches.

All in all, those extra cuts could nearly double the $1.8 billion in savings outlined in the committee version of the bill.

"The food stamp program has been the object of citizen outrage because of waste, abuse and mismanagement," Helms argued. "If there ever was a federal program that cried out for reform, it is this program."

But Dole argued that in many cases, the cuts proposed by Helms and others would most severely affect "the truly needed."

"These are the people the president indicated he wants to protect in his so-called safety net," Dole said. "The Agriculture Committee did comply with the president's requirements. We made sufficient cuts in the food stamp program to meet the president's requirements. We made cuts that exceed the president's requirements."

Dole acknowledged that there have been problems and abuse in the program, which will cost more than $11 billion this year. But he said the Senate "must focus on those who do not abuse the program, those who need the program, and they are in the great majority."

Senate confirms Crocker

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chester A. Crocker has been confirmed by the Senate as President Reagan's choice as assistant secretary of state for African affairs following a five-week delay caused by Sen. Jesse Helms, D-N.C.

The action came on an 84-7 vote Tuesday, the day after Helms tried unsuccessfully to extend his "hold" on the vote until it is determined whether Crocker or his aides leaked secret documents about administration policy for Africa.

That left one major Reagan State Department nominee — Myer Rashish as undersecretary for economic affairs — still blocked by Helms, who says he doesn't think either man reflects the president's views.

Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., granted Helms' request to delay action on Rashish until after a further hearing today by the Foreign Relations Committee. Baker said he hopes the Senate can vote on the nomination Thursday.

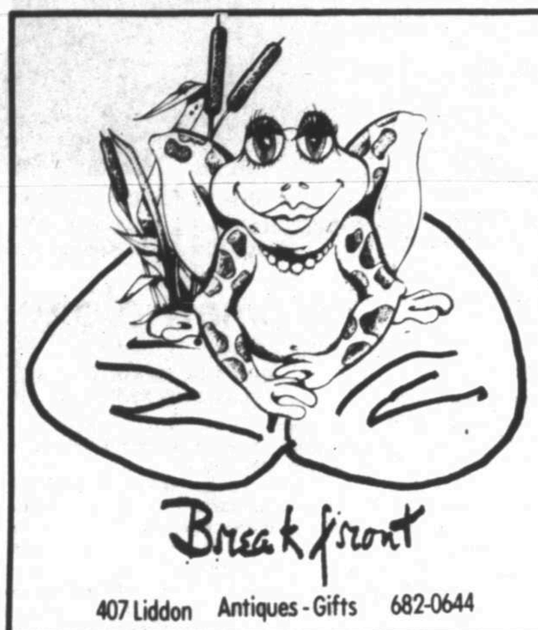

Helms asked for the hearing so he could question Rashish on his recommendation that 100 pipelayers be sold to the Soviet Union for construction of a natural gas pipeline to Europe.

Helms said the machines "might have a military application" because they could be used to lay a pipeline to Afghanistan.

He said they could also be used by the Soviet to lay a huge antenna underground for military communications.

The votes against Crocker were cast by Sens. Helms, Jeremiah Denton, R-Ala.; John P. East, R-N.C.; Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah; Gordon J. Humphrey, R-N.H.; James A. McClure, R-Idaho, and Steven D. Symms, R-Idaho.

Clements praises discussions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements glared at a reporter who asked him outside the White House Tuesday about the Texas Legislature.

"I thought we were here to talk about the visit here by Mexican President Lopez Portillo. I don't think that has anything to do with him, and I don't believe I'll have any comment on it," Clements said.

But he spoke optimistically about talks between President Reagan and Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo about the illegal alien problem in Texas and other border states.

"I don't think there's any question but that some progress has been made in this regard," Clements said Tuesday afternoon as he was leaving a luncheon held at the White House in Lopez Portillo's honor.

"You can never solve a problem unless you discuss it, and the two presidents have met and have put it on the table for discussion. It's never happened before, so that alone is progress and a great step forward, in my opinion," the Texas Republican said.

"But you must recognize that this is only a beginning, and that they are talking at this point only in concepts. But it's a great beginning, and I would anticipate further progress will evolve," said Clements.

Clements and Texas Secretary of State George Strake and their wives were among about 100 guests at the luncheon.

"The guest worker program was certainly discussed. It was not a new issue, I'll remind you, because it has been discussed for at least a year among governors of the border states."

Several Hispanic groups had a press conference in Washington earlier Tuesday at which they blasted the idea of a guest worker program, saying it would open the door to more illegal aliens than ever before and create massive problems.

"That's nonsense," Clements said.

"That one word describes my feeling about that. Absolutely nonsense. Anyone who thinks we are going to allow unfettered, undisciplined immigration into the United States with no system behind it, is mistaken," he added.

"Those who make the loudest noise about it are just seeking publicity," he said.

The issue is not a simple one, said Clements, who described it as highly complex and sensitive.

Clements said the concept of twin plants, such as those in the border cities of El Paso and Juarez, came during meetings with Lopez Portillo.

Twin plants "will not only continue, but will be enhanced as time goes on and will be greatly encouraged," Clements said.

Also at Tuesday's White House luncheon were Texas professional golfer Lee Trevino, and his wife; Sen. and Mrs. John Tower; Rep. Tom Loeffler, R-Hunt, and his wife; and Rep. Kika de la Garza, D-Mission, and his wife.

U.S., Mexico may work together for development

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Mexico, despite deep differences over the turmoil in Central America, are taking tentative steps toward cooperating in a multilateral development program for that region.

Mexican Secretary of Foreign Relations Jorge Castaneda said Tuesday that the proposal was suggested by President Reagan during his meetings with Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo and that the Mexican leader gave his conditional acceptance.

Lopez Portillo insisted that the plan not have a military aid component, that it not be used as an instrument to "fight the Soviet Union or communism in the region" and that no country be automatically excluded from it, Castaneda said.

Without these conditions, "the plan might do more harm than good," he said, adding that the American side accepted the conditions.

The Reagan administration has been developing a plan for the entire Caribbean-Central American area, but Castaneda said the proposals discussed related only to Central America. He said Venezuela and Canada also may cooperate in the program.

Castaneda spoke hours after the conclusion of the Reagan-Lopez Portillo summit, which was characterized by unusually warm expressions of friendship by the two leaders.

"Mi casa es su casa," Reagan said in a toast to his guest after a state luncheon, repeating the age-old Spanish offer of friendship: "My house is your house.

"If problems arise between us, we must always remember: we are the solution. There is nothing that with mutual respect and honest communication we cannot work out," Reagan said.

Lopez Portillo's response contrasted sharply with the chilly remarks he offered during a visit to Mexico City by then-President Carter two years ago.

"I must confess that I am moved," he said. "I have spoken before an auditorium in this same place three times before, and I have never been so moved as I feel today. It is true that I had always been sincere but also cautious ... The relationship for some reason or another had always been a tense one ... For the first time now I have felt totally relaxed."

During his remarks, Reagan also announced his acceptance of an invitation from Lopez Portillo to attend a North-South summit conference of industrialized and developing nations in Mexico in October.

Three months ago, U.S. officials made it known that Reagan would attend only if Cuban President Fidel Castro did not. According to the officials, the administration felt Castro's presence might have a disruptive effect and distract attention from the issues at hand.

The 11-nation organizing committee, which included Mexico, did not invite the Cuban leader but it was not clear whether Reagan's opposition influenced the committee's decision. Castaneda said the issue did not arise during Reagan's talks with Lopez Portillo.

Texas chef cooks for presidents

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Texas chef was flown to Camp David to specially prepare a meal for President Reagan and Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo.

On the two-tiered flagstone terrace, the two presidents dined on a menu of charcoal roast sirloin, tomato pie, corn on the cob, tossed salad and deep dish apple pie with homemade ice cream.

Both presidents returned to the buffet-style table for second helpings of the meal prepared by chef Cliff Teinert of Albany, Texas.

Teinert paid his own way to Camp David, said Larry Speakes, deputy press secretary to the president.

In a toast, Reagan paid special tribute to three recent American heroes of Mexican descent — Army Sgt. Roy Benavidez of Texas, to whom Reagan earlier in the year awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor; Marine Sgt. James Lopez, who was honored for his action in defending U.S. personnel during the takeover of the U.S. embassy in Iran; and rookie pitcher Fernando Valenzuela of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

One of those participating in the three-week hunger strike by Vietnam veterans at the Wadsworth VA Hospital in Los Angeles is carried from the building by federal officers Tuesday, after his arrest. The Veterans Administration evicted the protesters from the grounds and arrested seven persons in the lobby.

Veterans looking for new protest site

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Vietnam veterans fasting to dramatize their demands for improved medical care set up temporary headquarters at a church but were looking for a new protest site following their eviction from a veterans' hospital.

About 25 veterans, including at least 12 hunger strikers who said they had gone without solid food for 17 days, moved into St. John's Episcopal Church in downtown Los Angeles Tuesday.

The veterans at the church were among about 50 ordered off the grounds of the Wadsworth Veterans Administration Medical Center in Brentwood at dawn Tuesday by a 48-officer VA police force.

Seven members of a smaller contingent occupying a corner of the hospital lobby refused to leave voluntarily and were arrested and carried into vans.

Those arrested were identified by the VA as Sam Davillier, Andre Hall, Thomas James, Virgil Neigel, Thom Parish and James Phillips, and a woman supporter, Sheryl Abbeduto. All were released after being cited for refusing to leave when ordered and for unauthorized loitering on VA property, offenses that carry a fine of $5 each.

The protesters said they are contacting veterans groups all over the country to organize a march on Washington, D.C., possibly to begin July 4.

The eviction had been expected by the veterans after their negotiations with VA officials foundered over their demands for a personal meeting with President Reagan, medical screening of all 4.2 million Vietnam veterans for current service-related disabilities and improved research and diagnosis procedures for ailments stemming from Agent Orange and other toxic herbicides used in Vietnam.

In Washington, a White House offical who asked not to be identified said the eviction was ordered by the Veteran's Administration, but the White House had been notified in advance.

The sit-in at Wadsworth began May 20 after the death of a veteran who had protested his treatment at the hospital by driving a Jeep into the lobby and firing shots at the wall. The death was not related to the March protest.

Restoration of federal death penalty gets committee backing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Judiciary Committee is recommending restoration of the federal death penalty amid charges that the legislation is unconstitutional.

The committee voted 13-5 on Tuesday to re-establish the death penalty for a number of federal crimes, including aircraft hijacking, the attempted or actual assassination of a president, kidnapping, treason and espionage.

The vote makes it almost certain that capital punishment will be the first major social issue the Republican-controlled Senate will consider this year.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., the committee chairman, has made the death penalty a major priority. After President Reagan was shot in an assassination attempt March 30, he pushed for an amendment to make an attempt on a president's life a capital offense.

The death penalty was approved by the judiciary panel last year but did not reach the full Senate. With a new conservative, Republican majority, however, passage seems likely in 1981.

Groups such as the American Civil Liberties Union say the proposal approved Tuesday is unconstitutional and will face court challenges if it becomes law.

Four Democrats, Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts, Joseph Biden of Delaware, Howard Metzenbaum of Ohio and Patrick Leahy of Vermont, were joined by Republican Charles McC. Mathias of Maryland in voting against the bill, which was approved after only perfunctory debate.

On the Senate floor, Leahy is expected to urge that the crimes specified in the bill be made punishable by a mandatory life sentence.

Thurmond's amendment to include attempted assassination of the president says such an attack could bring the death penalty if it "results in bodily injury to the president or otherwise comes dangerously close to causing the death of the president."

In recent rulings, the Supreme Court has excluded rape and other crimes from death sentences, and many scholars believe that only if a crime results in death should it be punishable by execution.

Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala., like Thurmond a former judge, voted against Thurmond's amendment, saying he believed it contradicted existing Supreme Court rulings.

Capital punishment critics, pointing to the high proportion of black criminals executed over the years, cite the death penalty as an example of racial prejudice in law enforcement.

The committee approved an amendment saying that neither race, color or creed shall be used in determining whether to impose capital punishment.

The Supreme Court struck down death penalty statutes in all 50 states and the federal criminal code in 1972.

In 1976, the high court said that if certain specific procedures designed to protect the rights of defendants were followed, capital punishment could resume.

Since then, there have been four executions — all for murder — under various state statutes. Thirty-six states have approved death penalty statutes which seek to meet the Supreme Court guidelines.

Among the guidelines is a requirement that a jury first decide on the guilt or innocence of a defendant, then vote separately on whether to impose the death penalty.

Thurmond said the legislation meets the guidelines.

There was no immediate indication how soon the Senate might consider the bill.

Efforts to deal with rent control laws dealt setback

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional efforts to crack down on local rent control laws have been dealt a major setback in the House Banking Committee.

The committee rejected a measure Tuesday that would have forced New York, Washington, D.C., Los Angeles, and some 200 other cities to choose between rent control and certain federal aid for low-income housing. Parliamentary maneuvering could make the issue difficult to revive in the House this year.

The sponsor of the proposal, Rep. Chalmers Wylie, R-Ohio, said rent controls discouraged investment in rental housing and that lifting them would make more apartments available.

But opponents of his plan argued that housing abandonment and construction statistics were as bad or worse in many cities without rent control as in those which had it.

Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., said other economic factors were more important than rent controls in the decline of rental housing.

"Nobody in their right mind is going to put their money into building rental housing when Treasury bills are paying 17.5 percent interest," he said.

He also noted the federal tax deductions given to homeowners, and said, "If we gave those same tax breaks to renters we would see more rental housing springing up than we're going to get by monkeying with rent controls."

Wylie recalled that a similar proposal was approved on the House floor last year by a wide margin after being rejected by the banking committee, and he said he thought that could happen again. But he acknowledged that the House leadership was unlikely to give it a chance.

The House has attached its housing legislation for the year to a general budget bill which is subject to strict limits on amendments. The chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, condemned this Tuesday as "games-playing" and "deliberate subversion."

However, a provision identical to Wylie's, put forward by Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., was approved by the Senate last week. Garn could press for that amendment as well as other changes when members of the House and Senate meet to resolve their differences on housing and budget issues.

The D'Amato-Wylie provision would prohibit any additional federally subsidized housing from being built in any "state or unit of local government" which applies rent controls to newly constructed or newly vacated apartments.

It would not apply to existing housing built with federal subsidies, nor would it change conditions for persons already living in rent-controlled housing, as long as they remained in their present apartments.

Schumer and other New York congressmen said the D'Amato -Wylie proposal was "punitive" and a "federal intrusion" into local matters that would not succeed in changing local rent control laws.

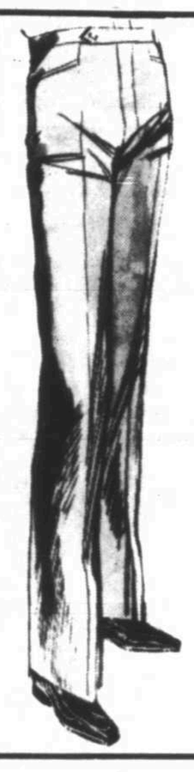

Rep. Robert Garcia, D-Bronx, also said it was incongruous that the restrictions were proposed by D'Amato, a fellow New Yorker, despite the popularity of rent controls in their home state.

"I just don't know what has gotten into him," Garcia said.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Fat chicken still more lean than beef

Dear Dr. Solomon: At various times you have suggested that people who want to reduce their intake of fat might try substituting chicken for beef. However, the poultry I buy lately seems to contain more fat than the beef I use. Under these circumstances, it hardly seems advisable to make the switch. It seems to me that fat is fat, and it doesn't make any difference where it comes from. Wouldn't you agree? — Mrs. N.F.

Dear Mrs. F.: Even though poultry may contain a great deal of fat, it still makes sense for people interested in reducing their intake of fat and cholesterol to substitute it for beef. The fat in chicken can be cut away and discarded; however, beef often is marbled with saturated fat that cannot be removed short of major surgery.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My doctor has recommended that I cut down on my use of salt because I have a tendency to high blood pressure. Yet, when I'm out with friends, I notice that many of them have a heavy hand with the saltshaker, and they do not seem to be harmed by it. If I thought that reducing my salt intake was necessary, I wouldn't mind the restriction. But I don't see that any of my friends has been hurt by it. What's the story? — Kurt

Dear Kurt: Your question really has several parts. First, as I've written on a number of occasions, moderation is they key. This applies not only to the foods we eat, but to all our activities. I caution my own patients against the use of too much salt and, in specific cases, must sometimes recommend that it be eliminated from the diet entirely.

Secondly, there is no concrete evidene — no "smoking gun" — that salt hurts most people. As I've mentioned, however, discretion suggests that it be used in moderation even by people with no specific health problems.

Two accept grants to attend MC

Two Midland area students have accepted academic scholarship grants to attend Midland College this fall. They are Deann Womack, valedictorian at Greenwood High School, and Linda Brown, an honor graduate from Lee High School. The scholarships provide tuition, fees and books, and may be renewed for a total of four semesters.

Miss Womack, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Womack, had a 94.54 grade average in high school. She was named to the Society of Distinguished American High School Students, was president of Quill and Scroll, secretary/treasurer of her senior class, and vice president of the National Honor Society. She took first place in the regional UIL typing contest and also participated in number sense and calculator contests.

Miss Brown is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cyde Brown of 3323 Windsor Drive. She had a 4.069 grade point average, was president of the National Honor Society, Miss Academic, won two academic letters and received two PTA academic awards. She also was captain of the Lee Band's Flag Corps, a member of JETS and a member of the French Club.

"These are two of the finest students from Midland County's graduation classes this year," said Bill Burns, Midland College's financial aids officer. "They should do well in Midland College's strong academic programs. We feel they also should be good members of our student body, with their excellent background in outside activities. We are pleased they chose to accept these scholarship offers."

The Newspaper BIBLE

"GET UP: YOU'RE HEALED!"

Peter traveled from place to place, and in his travels came to the believers in the town of Lydda. There he met a man named Aeneas, paralyzed and bedridden for eight years. Peter said to him, "Aeneas! Jesus Christ has healed you! Get up and make you bed!" And he was healed instantly. the the whole population of Lydda and Sharon turned to the Lord when they saw Aeneas walking around.

In the city of Joppa there was a woman named Dorcas ("Gazelle"), a believer who was always doing kind things for others, especially for the poor. About this time she became ill and died. Her friends prepared her for burial and laid her in an upstairs room.

But when they learned that Peter was nearby at Lydda, they sent two men to beg him to return with them to Joppa. This he did; as soon as he arrived, they took him upstairs where Dorcas lay. The room was filled with weeping widows who were showing one another the coats and other garments Dorcas had made for them.

But Peter asked them all to leave the room; then he knelt and prayed. Turning to the body he said, "Get up, Dorcas," and she opened her eyes! And when she saw Peter, she sat up! He gave her his hand and helped her up and called in the believers and widows, presenting her to them!

The news raced through the town, and many believed in the Lord. And Peter stayed a long time in Joppa, living with Simon, the tanner. Acts 9:32-43

MENTAL HEALTH UPDATE

Widowhood is one of most stressful changes

By KENNETH H. WOLF, MSSW, SP

QUESTION: The husband of a friend of mine recently died suddenly in an accident. Her friends are wanting to be as helpful to her as possible during this period of her grief and mourning. Are there any things we should know about in order to be most helpful to her?

ANSWER: Widowhood is becoming increasingly common, as wmen outlive men by several years. It is estimated that three out of four married women will outlive their husbands. One of four widows is younger than 45, and many of these still have young children to rear.

Widowhood is one of the most stressful of all life changes. There is emotional turmoil, grief and a variety of practical adjustments which must be dealt with. The friends of a widow should understand that grief for the lost spouse is a very natural process and must be worked through, rather than suppressed or denied. The process of working through one's grief may take from months to years.

During the stage of adjustment immediately after the death of a spouse, many women appear to be numb and practically emotionless from the shock of the experience. They may be unable to cry and many women will attempt to keep so busy that they avoid their feelings of grief. On the other hand, the woman's initial reaction may be shock and disbelief, especially if the death was sudden; or relief if there was a long period of illness and suffering. Memories of the spouse may pre-occupy her mind. She may experience symptoms of depression or may begin to abuse alcohol or tranquilizers in order to attempt to numb the pain.

During the next stage of adjustment, the woman becomes aware of the reality of her husband's death. She may continue to feel lonely, depressed, angry, isolated, abandoned or panicky. Anger is often expressed at the husband or at God for allowing the death. She may feel that friends are avoiding her or abandoning her, especially married friends. The demands of the responsibilities which the widow suddenly has may seem overwhelming.

During the final stage, the widow comes to accept the reality of her husband's death and her new role as a woman who is no longer part of a marital couple. This may be a long and painful process. When crises or unexpected events occur, she may again doubt her ability to keep going. When she decides to let go of the past and look forward to her new life, she is generally well on the road to recovery. She may be shocked that people's attitudes towards her are different and thus may be forced to seek new friends.

Friends and relatives can provide emotional support by listening, comforting and concentrating on her wants and needs. She needs to be included in family and social activities.

This kind of assistance is especially important to widows whose husbands handled all responsibilities, leaving little for the woman to do. Friends and relatives may often feel obliged to answer unanswerable questions being posed by the widow. When they are unable to give her answers, they often feel inadequate and powerless to help the widow and begin to withdraw from her. Such unanswerable questions should be recognized as expressions of shock and grief rather than attempt to provide answers to these impossible questions.

Teachers to be trained for special program

In preparation for the new Gifted and Talented program which the Midland Independent School District will launch in the fall, teachers will receive training from the Institute for Creative Education June 15-16.

The Institute, which is based in New Jersey, will operate the two-day workshop for teachers at Sam Houston Elementary School.

Selected teachers will receive training that will enable them to help students solve problems in a more creative manner than is usually employed in classroom situations.

The more than 30 teachers will be introduced to relaxation techniques that are designed to clear the mind prior to creative problem-solving activities and they will engage in productive thinking activities and the use of reinforcements methods which are structured to give students confidence as they generate ideas or solutions to problems that are posed.

Problems will be linked to such subjects as language arts, social studies, science and mathematics.

Students receive medals in solo, ensemble contest

The Midland Independent School District held its Junior High School Choir Solo and Ensemble Contest recently at the Midland College Fine Arts Building.

Students in the three junior high schools sang prepared solos and ensembles for a panel of judges and received ratings on the material. Those students who received a rating of I were awarded medals.

Ensembles from Alamo receiving a rating of I were the Eighth Grade Madrigal and the Seventh Grade Madrigal. Students in those ensembles included Robert Bernhart, Anna Diaz, Mike Elliott, Genny Garner, Marcelles Holloway, Penny Hood, Jill Miller, Lori Thompson, Lori Garner, Teresa Glover, Karla Howie, Carrie Powell, Cheryl Smith and Te Lisa Wilson.

The Eighth Grade Girls Sextet and the Seventh Grade Girls Sextet also earned ratings of I.

San Jacinto Junior High students, directed by Diann Berry, who rated I on solos included Carol Adamson, Andrew Garza, Calina Haynie, Tracy Logan, Jeannie Keeling and Steve Pruitt.

The Boys Trio, composed of Carlos Zachery, Andrew Garza and Steve Pruitt received a rating of I along with the Girls Ensemble composed of Tracy Logan, Julie Preuit, Shelly Coots, Carol Adamson and Jeannie Keeling.

At the conclusion of the contest, each judge selected one performance which was designated as Judge's Choice for Outstanding Performer. Those students were presented with a trophy in recognition of their superior work.

Judge's Choice for Outstanding Performer included Steve Pruitt and Andrew Garza of San Jacinto; Mike Elliott of Alamo; and Rickey Pertile of Goddard, who was also selected for this honor last year as a 7th grader.

Private group to enter space

HOUSTON (AP) — NASA mapped the trail America blazed in space and found a way to make it profitable with a reusable craft that climbs to orbit on tongues of fire and then glides to earth — but now a Houston company plans to compete with the government agency by selling the cosmos at a discount.

Space Services Inc. can't match the cut-rate fee for the Space Shuttle, but the shuttle already is booked through 1985 and company officials say they can beat the price NASA charges for launching satellites with the more conventional Delta rockets.

"Private space launch is the wave of the future," said Gary Hudson, whose GCH Inc. is building the Percheron rocket that Space Services officials hope will make space a paying venture.

"It's a seller's market," said Space Services Vice President Charles Chafer. "There appear to be many more people who want to put things in orbit than there are people who can do so."

Space Services has not put anything into space, but Chafer said preliminary testing has been completed on the first Percheron — a rocket named for a work horse and modeled on those NASA used in early manned flights.

Chafer said the company will conduct three 30-second test burns in early July.

"We're not counting on more than a 50-50 chance that those will be successful, but if they are, we'll try to have a (sub-orbital) flight up in July," Chafer said.

Space Services President David Hannah Jr. said that first flight, which the company intends to launch from a leased site on Matagorda Island on the Texas Gulf coast, is intended chiefly to demonstrate that the company has the right stuff.

He said the 53-foot-long rocket is expected to reach an altitude of about 50 miles and splash down in the Gulf of Mexico.

"If this is successful, I think we will have established our credibility," said Hannah.

However, a successful flight still hinges on government approval, and the government has yet to say if it will allow private companies to launch rockets, or to what extent it will regulate whatever space flights are made.

"I'm just not ready to make a formal judgment," said David Small, space specialist for the State Department's legal office. But he noted the so-called Outer Space Treaty of 1967 calls for government supervision.

And Peter Eaton, NASA program director for Delta Launch Vehicles, said he believes private groups have no place in the space business.

"If they launch their rocket and it comes down in the middle of downtown wherever, who's going to pay the damages?" Eaton asks.

Soviets warn Poland

EDITOR'S NOTE — The writer is Associated Press news editor for Germany and Eastern Europe and has frequently reported from Poland on the social upheaval there.

By ROBERT H. REID

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Moscow's new warning to the Polish leadership to curb the reform movement set the stage for the fifth major showdown between Poland and the Soviet Union since the strike wave last summer.

The four previous crises — in August, November, December and March — were marked by reports in the West that the Kremlin was preparing to intervene militarily as it did to crush liberal regimes in Hungary in 1956 and Czechoslovakia in 1968.

EACH previous crisis ended with the Poles standing firm on their commitment to reform and with public assurances from the Kremlin that Poland could work out its own problems.

Governments throughout the world will now be asking whether the series of confrontations has sapped the last reserves of Moscow's patience with what it sees as a "counter-revolutionary threat" posed by the independent union Solidarity.

As a sign of growing concern, Polish Deputy Premier Mieczyslaw Rakowski told his countrymen Saturday the Warsaw government and its allies were losing patience with "unreasonable demands" by the independent labor movement.

COMMUNIST Party leader Stanislaw Kania said Tuesday that Poland's allies were "indignant at the filthy wave of anti-Sovietism and anti-communism" in Poland and that the Soviet Union's mounting concern was "fully justified."

Fears that the Soviets would intervene militarily in Poland surfaced last August when the Warsaw government decided to allow workers to form Solidarity, the first trade union independent of government and party control.

Western diplomatic sources in Moscow reported that the Soviets called up reservists in military districts near the Polish border and increased unit readiness.

But the Kremlin appeared ready to allow Kania, who had just taken over as party leader, time to regain control of events.

BY NOVEMBER there were signs the party was failing to regain command. Solidarity was refusing to accept an addition to its charter affirming party primacy and planned a national strike to reinforce its position.

Meanwhile, railway workers were staging warning strikes and threatening to shut down Poland's entire rail system over wage and union representation demands. A rail shutdown would have endangered the vital links between the Soviet Union and Moscow's 400,000-man garrison in East Germany.

Amid heightened tension, the government announced joint military maneuvers with Soviet troops. Warsaw television aired lengthy reports showing Soviet tanks rolling across muddy Polish fields.

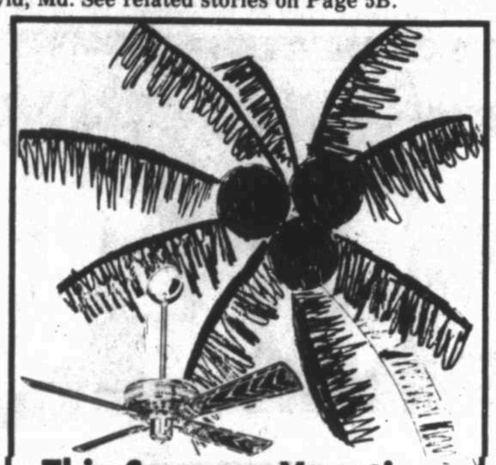

A compromise over wording of the union charter reduced tensions for a few weeks. But by the end of November, a new crisis had erupted over the arrest of a young printer accused of stealing a classified government document.

SOLIDARITY'S Warsaw chapter threatened a general strike unless the printer was released. The young man, Jan Narozniak, was set free hours before the strike was to have begun.

The situation was so volatile that union leader Lech Walesa flew to Warsaw and told followers that their protests "might be answered with guns and tanks."

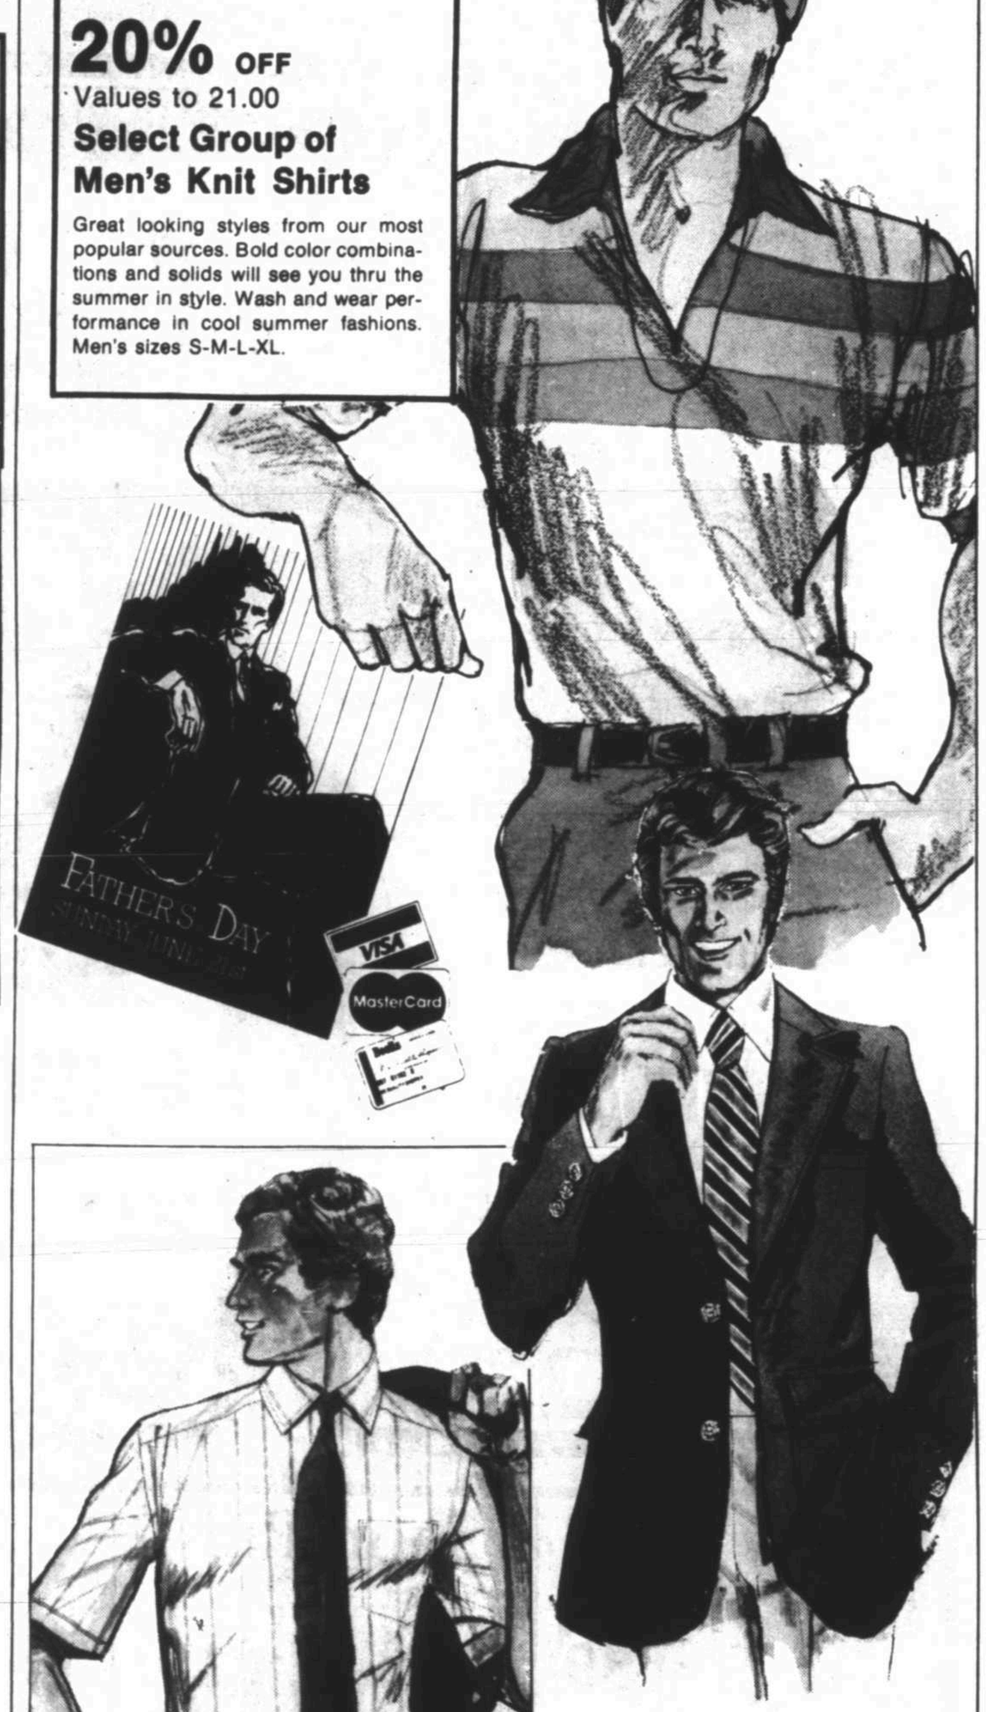

Within a week, there were new signs the Kremlin was preparing to move. Diplomats confirmed that East Germany had closed its Polish border area to Western military attaches, presumably to hide troop movements.

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — While parts of the world's major grain-producing areas are soggy from too much rain, others are parched and showing signs of drought stress, according to the government's Joint Agricultural Weather Facility.

In the United States, for example, rain has helped relieve deficits of soil moisture in the northern Great Plains, the Southeast and Northeast, but has flooded fields in other parts of the country.

The facility, operated by the departments of Commerce and Agriculture, said in its weekly report Tuesday that rainfall during the first week of June "was excessive from Texas eastward through the Tennessee Valley to the central East Coast states."

Besides delaying the wheat harvest in the southern plains, rain has bogged down farmers in parts of the Corn Belt, where corn planting lagged sharply.

In Indiana, for example, only 25 percent of the intended corn acreage was planted, the least for this time of year in three decades, the report said. Normally, 80 percent of the corn planting is done by now.

Meanwhile, in the Soviet Union many areas in the European sector received only light rain during the week, the report said.

"Limited soil moisture, combined with drier than normal atmospheric conditions, may be stressing spring-sown crops," it said. "Winter grains have adequate moisture because of their well-developed root systems."

U.S. observers, including farmers, will be watching Soviet crop developments closely in the coming weeks for signs that might point to large purchases of American grain in the year ahead.

An agreement was reached in London on Tuesday in which the United States would sell the Soviets an additional 6 million metric tons of wheat and corn — if they choose to buy it — during the final year of a grain agreement that will expire on Sept. 30.

Including 8 million tons already shipped, that would raise Soviet purchases of U.S. grain to 14 million tons in 1980-81. Officials meeting in London also indicated further sessions will be held this summer to work on a new long-term agreement to replace the five-year pact due to expire this fall.

The Agriculture Department today was scheduled to issue a new estimate of 1981 total grain production by the Soviet Union as well as an updated estimate of 1981 U.S. production of winter wheat.

A month ago, the department's initially forecast the Soviet harvest at 210 million metric tons this year, up sharply from the poor yields of 189.2 million in 1980 and 179.2 million in 1979.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 36.7 bushels of wheat or 39.4 bushels of corn.

The department's May estimate of 1981 U.S. winter wheat production — which accounts for about three-fourths of the total U.S. wheat output — was for a record harvest of 2.08 billion bushels.

Mexico committed to buying U.S. agricultural commodities

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although scaled back from its current commitment, Mexico has agreed to continue buying large quantities of U.S. agricultural commodities through 1982.

The Agriculture Department said Tuesday that the new agreement "is basically a continuation of supply agreements maintained with Mexico during 1980 and 1981."

The new pact was signed by Agriculture Secretary John R. Block and Mexico's Minister of Commerce Jorge de la Vega. It calls for Mexico to buy at least 4.57 million metric tons of U.S. commodities next year, mainly corn, sorghum, wheat and oilseeds.

But that represents a reduction from the agreement Mexico signed for 1981. Officials said the current pact calls for purchases to total 6.15 million to 8.18 million metric tons.

U.S. farm exports to Mexico have soared dramatically, rising to a value of $2.5 billion in 1980 from $1 billion in 1979. As a result, Mexico last year became the third largest foreign buyer of U.S. farm commodities, exceeded by the Netherlands, $3.48 billion, and Japan, $6.33 billion.

Although the agreement is on a country-to-country basis, actual sales, as in the past, will be handled by private U.S. exporting companies through normal commercial channels, Block said.

No estimates of the dollar value of 1982 or 1981 exports to Mexico were available, the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said.

The 1982 agreement calls for Mexico to buy a minumum quantity of eight commodities, while the 1981 agreement provides flexibility in ranges for each item. Further, the 1981 agreement included several commodites which are not in the 1982 pact: edible beans, sunflower seed, soybean meal and oil from sunflowers or soybeans.

Haig blocks sale of butter to Soviet Union, Post reports

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration has decided that the Soviet Union should not get any surplus U.S. butter for the bread baked with wheat purchased from the United States, the Washington Post reported today.

The newspaper quoted unidentified White House officials as saying that Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig convinced President Reagan to restrict sales of surplus butter to nations agreeing not to resell it to the Soviets.

Haig reportedly said unrestricted sales of the butter would be "sending the wrong signal" because some of it would end up in the Soviet Union and Eastern Bloc nations.

The secretary of state unsuccessfully argued against Reagan's decision earlier this year to lift the partial grain sale embargo imposed by former President Carter after the Soviets intervened in Afghanistan.

The Post said Haig succeeded on the butter issue because Reagan did not make any campaign statements on the subject like he did about resuming wheat sales. The newspaper also said that dairy farmers, who last year received larger federal benefits than any other farm group, enjoy no special sympathy at the White House.

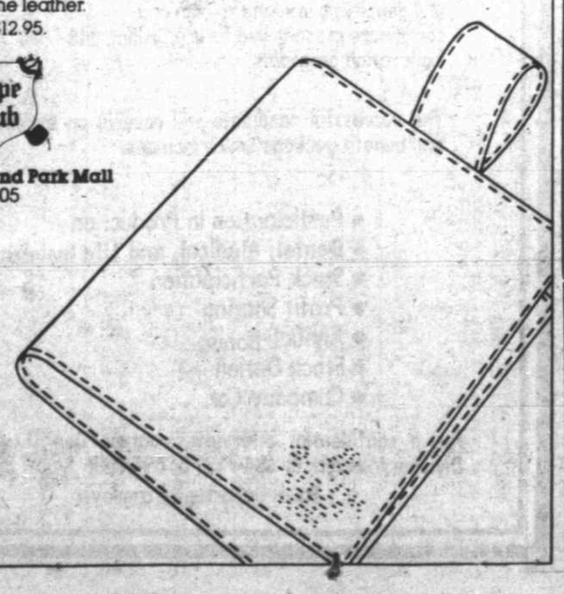

Haig's intervention in the butter matter through a telephone call and an appeal at last week's Cabinet meeting at least temporarily blocked Secretary of Agriculture John Block's plans to sell the surplus on the world market, the newspaper said.

Final, five wildcats filed for District 8

One completion and five wildcats have been filed for the counties of Ward, Brewster, Loving and Reeves in District 8 of the Texas Railroad Commission.

WARD COUNTY

Mobil Producing Texas & New Mexico of Houston has completed the No. 1 U-Tex Sec. 29 in the War-Wink, South (Wolfcamp) field of Ward County eight miles northwest of Pyote.

Potentialed for a calculated absolute open flow of 235 barrels of 47.8 gravity oil per day plus five barrels of water through a 20/64 inch choke, production was gained from natural perforations at 12,995 to 13,003 feet. Gas-oil ratio is 2723 to 1.

Drilled to a total depth of 13,060 feet with 7 5/8 inch casing set at 11,302 feet, the well is plugged back to 13,050 feet. Ground elevation is 2732 feet.

Location is 1,500 feet from the south line and 990 feet from the west line of section 29, block 17 of the University Lands survey.

****

Davis Oil Co. of Houston will drill the No. 1 University "4", a 7,000-foot wildcat in Ward County, four miles northwest of Pyote.

Location is 1,980 feet from the south line and 660 feet from the west line of section 4, block 17 of the University Lands survey.

BREWSTER COUNTY

H.L. Brown of Midland has scheduled two 6,500 foot wildcats in Brewster County.

The No. 1 Holland "4" is located 1,980 feet from the north line and 1,980 feet from the east line of section 4, block 22 of the GH&SA RR survey and 13 miles southeast of Marathon.

The project is located 6 1/4 miles east-southeast of the 1,613-foot King & Franklin Gage Estate abandoned Dec. 12, 1935 and 9 1/2 miles east-souteast of the 9,500-foot Gulf Combs abandoned June 29, 1956.

The No. 2 Brewster "11" is located 1,915 feet from the south line and 1,980 feet from the west line of section 11, block A-2 of the H&TC survey and 15 miles southeast of Marathon.

LOVING COUNTY

Amoco Production Co. of Andrews will drill the No. 1 A.G. Hill-Haley, a 22,500-foot wildcat in Loving County, 12 miles northeast of Mentone.

Location is 1,320 feet from the south line and 1,320 feet from the east line of section 35, block 29 of the Public School Lands survey.

REEVES COUNTY

Perry Oil & Gas of Corpus Christi has scheduled a 7,000-foot wildcat in Reeves County, 14 miles east of Pecos.

Designated the No. 1 J.A. Worsham, the project is located 467 feet from the south line and 2,620 feet from the west line of section 22, block 6 of the H&GN survey.

EPA plans new monitoring

BOSTON (AP) — Federal officials say there is no evidence offshore drilling operations would harm the abundant fishlife in the Georges Bank. But to make sure, they plan to establish an unprecedented monitoring system in the waters off New England.

The plan was outlined Tuesday by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency at a hearing on a proposed permit that would allow Exxon Corp. and six other oil companies to dump thousands of barrels of debris from drilling operations in the rich fishing grounds.

One aspect of the permit — a crucial step toward drilling operations long sought by the oil industry — would create 41 monitoring stations in the waters 100 miles southeast of Nantucket.

Lovelady announces significant extension

Ike Lovelady, Inc., has reported the completion of a significant gas-condensate extension well, the Ike Lovelady, Inc. No. 1 Hendrick Estate well from the Wilcox formation in Live Oak County of District 2 of the Texas Railroad Commission.

I.W. Lovelady, president, said the Hendrick Estate No. 1 was completed for a calculated absolute open flow potential of 34,000,000 cubic feet of gas per day with a gas condensate ratio of 23.60 barrels per million. Preliminary tests inticate that the well will have a deliverability of approximately 7,500,000 cubic feet of gas per day. The completion was natural (without stimulation) from the Clegg (Wilcox 8,900-foot) zone. Perforations were from 8,986 to 8,992 feet. An offset well is scheduled to be drilled.

Ike Lovelady, Inc. and its partners own 1,193.71 acres of oil and gas leases which are contiguous to the Hendrick Estate No. 1 wellsite.

Ike Lovelady, Inc. as an 8.33 percent working interest in the 320 acre drillsite on which the Hendrick Estate No. 1 is located and a 16.67 percent working interest in the balance of the acreage. Other working interest owners are Aminoil USA, Inc. with 50 percent interest, Phelps Dodge Fuel Development Corporation with a 12.5 percent interest and the balance is held by individuals.

Ike Lovelady, Inc. headqaurtered in Midland, Texas is engaged in domestic oil and gas exploration, development and production primarily in the Permian Basin in West Texas and Eastern New Mexico and in South Texas. The company's activities are carried out through private drilling programs organized as limited partnerships and through sharing arrangements with various participants. The company is also engaged in exploration activities in North Dakota, Wyoming, Montana, Louisiana and Nevada. The common stock of Ike Lovelady, Inc. is traded in the Over-The-Counter Market with the NASDAQ symbol — IKEL.

Three wildcats planned in Hockley, Gaines, Lynn

Three wildcat projects have been scheduled for the District 8-A counties of Hockley, Gaines and Lynn.

HOCKLEY COUNTY

Texland-Rector & Schumacker of Fort Worth has scheduled a 6,000-foot Hockley County wildcat six miles northeast of Smyre.

The location is 467 feet from the south line and 2,169 feet from the east line of section 36, block A of the R.M. Thompson survey and 800 feet southeast of the Hemia Johnson, abandoned Feb. 7, 1961.

GAINES COUNTY

R.K. Petroleum Corp. of Midland will drill the No. 1 Cooper, a 13,100-foot wildcat in Gaines County, 18 miles southeast of Loop.

The location is 1,713 feet from the north line and 177 feet from the west line of labor 5, league 280 of the Hutchinson CSL survey.

LYNN COUNTY

Southland Royalty Corp. of Midland will drill a 10,500-foot wildcat in Lynn County, two miles southwest of Tahoka.

Designated the No. 1-223 Edwards, the location is 2,100 feet from the north line and 990 feet in section 223, block 2 of the GB & CNO survey.

New Mexico activities filed

A discovery was finaled in Lea County, N.M. Also, a wildcat was slated in Lea, a wildcat re-entry and two confirmers in Chaves and a confirmer in Roosevelt.

LEA COUNTY

Getty Oil Co. has completed its No. 1 Getty Riggs Federal, a Lea County Penrose oil discovery, on the south edge of the Leonard, South (Queen) field and three miles west of Jal.

Potentialed to pump 38 barrels of 35 gravity oil plus 11 barrels of water with a gas-oil ratio of 395 to 1, production was gained through perforations at 3,290-3,328 feet which had been acidized with 1,500 gallons and fractured with 10,000 gallons and 21,500 pounds of sand.

Drilled to 10,666 feet, it is plugged back to 3,500 feet.

Location is 1,650 feet from the north line and 2,290 feet frm the west lines of section 1, township 26 south, range 37 east.

Harvey E. Yates Co. of Roswell, N.M. will drill the No. 1 McDonald Unit, a 14,700-foot wildcat, one location east of the two-well McDonald (Pennsylvanian oil) field and one mile north of McDonald.

Location is 660 feet from the south and 990 feet from the east lines of section 33, township 13 south, range 36 east.

CHAVES COUNTY

Marbob Energy Corp. of Artesia will re-enter and clean out to 1,578 feet, the old total depth, at the former McClellan Oil Corp. of Roswell No. 1 J.M. Federal, a wildcat failure, 1 5/8 miles west of the Round Tank (Queen oil and gas) field and 15 miles southeast of Hagerman.

The well was abandoned Jan. 24, 1980.

Location is 660 feet from the south and west lines of section 23, township 15 south, range 28 east.

Mesa Petroleum Co. of Midland will drill two outposts to a five-well undesignated Abo gas field of Chaves County, 35 miles southwest of Elkins.

The No. 3 Salt-Federal, one mile north-northeast, is 795 feet from the south and 1,835 feet from the east lines of section 5, township 8 south, range 23 east. Contract depth is 3,550 feet.

The No. 4 Salt-Federal, one mile northeast, is 1,980 feet from the south and 660 feet from the west lines of section 5, township 8 south, range 23 east. Contract depth is 3,600 feet.

ROOSEVELT COUNTY

Energy Reserves Group Inc. of Midland will drill the no. 1 Crume, a Cisco test, 5/8 mile east of the Cisco oil opener and lone producer from that pay and 1 1/4 miles northeast of the three-well Cisco gas area of the Tanneyhill multipay field and 1 miles southeat of Elida.

Location is 660 feet from the north and 1,980 feet from the west lines of section 12, township 6 south, range 33 east.

Job security, money keys to walkout

By The Associated Press

Striking mine construction workers picketed in five states today and thousands of coal miners, just back from their own 10-week walkout, stayed off the job in what one union official described as "brother fighting brother."

Meanwhile in Washington, talks between the strikers and the Association of Bituminous Contractors recessed after contractors asked for time to "research" issues in the walkout by 11,000 mine-construction workers, according to Tom Toler, chief negotiator for the United Mine Workers' construction workers.

Pickets appeared at coal mines in West Virginia, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Alabama and Illinois early today at the start of the midnight "hoot-owl" shift, union officials said. On Tuesda, picketlines by construction workers in six states idled some 8,000 miners.

"Right now what you have is brother fighting brother. That's what it amounts to," said James Kelly, president of UMW District 4 in Pennsylvania. He said the miners, who adopted a new contract last weekend, are anxious to get back to work.

Job security and wages are the key issues in the construction talks, said Toler, president of UMW Construction Local 1582 in southern West Virginia. He returned to Charleston from Washington, D.C., Tuesday.

"We're still far apart on seven or eight issues, including job security and the monetary issue," he said, refusing to elaborate.

Toler predicted, however, the construction workers could be back on the jobs in two or three days if contractors "get down to some serious bargaining."

ABC headquarters in Washington referred questions Tuesday to spokesman William Howe but said he was not available for comment.

The UMW construction workers' contract expired April 6, but they quit working March 27 when the 160,000 UMW miners went on strike. Miners returned to work Monday after a 72-day strike under a new contract with the Bituminous Coal Operators Association.

UMW construction workers, who build the mines and coal preparation plants that miners work in, negotiate separately with contractors.

"I think the feeling of all the miners and all the construction workers is that the contracts should be negotiated and expired at the same time," said Kelly.

Toler said he didn't know anything about the picketing, but the local's recording secretary, Clarence George, vowed the picketing would continue until the construction locals get a contract.

"We're going to picket everything in sight from now on," George said.

George and Stan Skaggs, financial secretary for Local 1582, said they had thrown away telegrams from UMW President Sam Church urging them to go back to work.

"We feel Church has let us down," said George. "We have to do this every time, and yet (former UMW President) Arnold Miller and Sam Church both promised that if we would go out with the miners, we would come back to work wth them."

Edwards proposes easing oil and gas burning restrictions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Energy Secretary James B. Edwards says he expects no "significant" increase in oil and natural gas use by utilities and industries because of his proposal to make it easier for them to skirt a federal law requiring conversion to other fuels by 1990.

"The market dictates that coal is more economical," Edwards said Tuesday, adding that his department had not "done any deep analysis" of the proposal's effect.

ENERGY

The proposed regulation, scheduled for a hearing July 14, seeks to simplify the process under which large fuel consumers can get exemptions from the 1978 Fuel Use Act.

"Firms seeking exemption to burn oil or gas may qualify simply by certifying that they meet the statutory criteria for exemptions and submitting very limited supporting information," Edwards said.

He characterized the move as part of the Reagan adminisration's effort to "get government out of the way so we can handle our energy problems."

The secretary said the proposed regulatory changes will reduce from 11 to two the number of forms used under the Fuel Use Act regulations.

Edwards was asked at a news conference whether the proposal wouldn't administratively cancel the intent of the 1978 law. He said he had been assured the move was legal.

The secretary pointed out that the law was enacted when a natural gas shortage was feared. Later studies said U.S. natural gas reserves are larger than believed, and Edwards said he expects a new study to show even greater reserves.

"There's going to be more gas than anybody believed was out there," he said.

Turk reportedly trained at PLO base in Syria

WASHINGTON (AP) — The young Turk accused of trying to kill Pope John Paul II was trained in terrorist tactics at a Palestinian base in Syria, U.S. and foreign diplomatic sources say.

The disclosure is the first linking of Mehmet Ali Agca with Palestinians, although it was known he had told his Italian captors he was sympathetic to "Palestinian commandos."

The sources said Agca was trained near Damacsus at the Hamuriyya camp operated by Al-Saiqa, a faction of the Palestine Liberation Organization controlled by Syria. According to the foreign sources, who declined to be identified, Agca also received training in the past at the PLO base al-Hilal in Libya.

"WHETHER THEY told him to go out and shoot the pope, we don't know," said a State Department official. "But this type of person is trained in those camps. That kind of training would be normal."

Both Syria and Libya have been identified by the United States as countries that support terrorism and consequently are ineligible to receive U.S. weapons. President Reagan has publicly condemned the PLO as a terrorist organization.

Agca, who escaped in 1979 from a Turkish military prison where he was held on murder charges, is accused of trying to assassinate the pope last month in the Vatican's vast piazza. The pontiff is recovering from gunshot wounds.

IN A HANDWRITTEN letter to a newspaper, Agca declared he escaped from prison to slay the pope, who he labelled "a Crusader commander" trying to suppress Moslem power on behalf of "Western imperialists."

According to the foreign sources, before leaving for Rome, Agca was provided by the PLO with a forged passport but apparently did not use it.

U.S. and Italian officials are still trying to establish the exact trail taken by the young Turk. He is believed to have crossed into Iran from Turkey in February 1980, to have reached Tunisia in late November or early December, moved on to Sicily in mid-December and then taken a hectic and haphazard route to Rome.

ANTITERRORIST experts at the State Department have known for some time that Turkish extremists are trained at PLO camps in Lebanon. They claim the Soviet Union, which Reagan and Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. have charged with promoting terrorism, provides training and arms for Palestinian terrorists.

Soviet leaders have denied they are responsible for acts of terrorism and accused the Reagan administration of "deliberate political subversion."

According to the foreign sources, since 1978 about 200 Turks a year have been trained at Baalbec and other PLO camps in Lebanon and then smuggled into Turkey through Syria.

Many of the trainees are said to be members of an underground movement known as ASALA, or Secret Army for the Liberation of Armenia.

ALTHOUGH AT ONE point Agca told Italian police he was Armenian, U.S. analysts are skeptical. They say he has given a number of contradictory statements under questioning and probably is not of Armenian background.

A number of Turks on trial in Ankara on charges of attempting to establish a communist Kurdish state have been shown on state television claiming they were trained and equipped by the Palestine Liberation Organization in Syria.

Syria and Turkey share a 384-mile border. Both are Moslem countries but with decidedly different foreign policy views. Syria, for instance, is one of the most hostile Arab opponents of Israel, while Turkey has diplomatic relations with the Jewish state and is a key member of the NATO alliance.

Relations between Turkey and Syria have been poor for some time. The strains are traced primarily to the belief that the secession-minded Kurdish minority is getting help from Syria.

Second U.S. soldier charged with murder

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The Army has charged a second American soldier with murder and is looking into a possible racial motive for the shootings of five members of his unit during rifle practice, a spokesman said today.

It was the first indication a second soldier might have taken part in the shooting spree Friday at a firing range near Camp Casey, 24 miles north of Seoul.

Both soldiers charged are black. The four soldiers slain by the spray of M-16 bullets and a fifth soldier who was wounded were all white. The Army spokesman said investigators were trying to determine whether there was a racial motive for the shootings.

Spec. 4 Archie R. Bell III, 21, of Long Branch, N.J., was charged Friday with four counts of murder and one count of attempted murder.

The Army spokesman said today the investigation led to a murder charge against Pvt. Lacy M. Harrington, 19, of Baltimore, Md., in the death of Sgt. James M. Elliot, 24, of Columbia, S.C.

Harrington was not charged in the other cases, the spokesman said. Bell remains charged in Elliot's death, as well as the other counts.

The spokesman said that investigators had yet to determine whether there had been any collusion between Bell and Harrington.

Earlier Army reports said Bell, a generator mechanic, "went berserk" with an M-16 rifle during target practice, shooting five men before he fainted and dropped his gun.

Waldheim in China

Waldheim told reporters he would discuss the Vietnamese military presence in Cambodia with Chinese leaders during his five-day visit and plans for the U.N. Conference on Cambodia scheduled for July.

Soviet-backed Vietnamese troops invaded Cambodia in December 1978. A U.N. resolution introduced by China calls for the withdrawal of the troops followed by internationally supervised elections.

When Waldheim arrived from Tokyo today, he told reporters at Peking airport he was not using the visit to seek China's support for his effort to win re-election as head of the world body.

The Security Council must recommend Waldheim for a third term this year before the General Assembly can vote on his appointment.

China, one of the five permanent members of the Security Council, has said it prefers Tanzanian Foreign Minister Salim Salim, a former U.N. ambassador and ambassador to Peking, as a candidate for secretary-general.

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE TO BIDDERS
Sealed proposals, addressed to the Mayor and City Council of the City of Midland, Texas, for the renovation and remodeling of Edwards Street Fire Station per all attached drawings and specifications will be received at the office of the City Secretary, City Hall, Midland, Texas, until 2:30 p.m. on the 16th day of June, 1981, and publicly opened and read aloud at 3:00 p.m. on the same day.
Complete copies of plans, specifications, and contract documents may be examined and/or obtained at the office of the City Engineer, City Hall, Midland, Texas.
A bid bond or proposal guaranty is to accompany the bid, thereby guaranteeing the good faith of the bidder and that the bidder will enter into the written contract. The guaranty is to amount to five percent (5%) of the total bid and must be in the form of cash or certified check issued by a bank satisfactory to the City of Midland, or a bid bond. If in the form of cash or certified check, it is expressly agreed and understood that the City of Midland is given the right to retain such as liquidated damages if such bidder withdraws its bid anytime after securing the award thereof, such bidder fails to enter into the contract and furnish satisfactory performance and payment bonds. If a bid bond is submitted, it shall be executed on forms contained in the contract documents by a corporate surety authorized to do business in the State of Texas, and acceptable to the City of Midland.
The City of Midland, Texas, reserves the right to accept or reject any or all proposals or bids, to waive technicalities, to make any investigation deemed necessary concerning the bidder's ability to perform the work covered by the plans and specifications, and to accept what in the judgment of the Mayor and City Council is the most advantageous bid.

You Know It's Worth $2,500 To Become One.

The only thing stopping a lot of good truckers from becoming owner/operators is the tractor cost. That's why Aero-Mayflower developed a new tractor lease program. It's a way for owner/operators to get started. All it takes to begin is $2,500. As an owner/operator with Mayflower you'll get:
1. 56% of the line haul ($560 out of every $1,000.)
2. If the fuel goes up, so does your fuel surcharge.
3. Training (if you need it) at our expense.
4. Your own business with a very successful company behind you.

We'd like to tell you more. Call 1-800-428-1220 (in INDIANA call 1-800-382-1212) between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Eastern Standard Time.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Will Pete Rose make pitcher Nolan Ryan the answer to baseball's next trivia question?

Rose, the Philadelphhia Phillies first baseman, needs just two hits against the Houston Astros pitcher to erase Stan Musial's all-time career National League hit record of 3,630.

"As long as I win, I don't care," said Ryan. "I don't care if he gets three hits as long as I get the W."

Rose got two singles Tuesday night as the Phillies beat the Astros 10-3. Rose walked once and grounded out twice.

Ryan said he wouldn't change his pitching plans for tonight's game and wouldn't think about Rose until the first baseman steps into the batter's box.

Rose admitted Tuesday night he finally was getting psyched over all the excitement. He said he didn't expect Ryan to pitch him any differently tonight.

"He won't walk me to keep me from getting the record, because he doesn't want to lose, and Gary Matthews, Mike Schmidt, Dick Davis and Garry Maddox come up behind me," Rose explained. "He doesn't want to get himself in a hole."

Rose is sure to have the support of a big crowd, including his mother, Mrs. Robert Noeth of Thonotosassa, Fla., and Musial.

The Phillies wrapped up their fourth straight victory Tuesday night with a five-run fifth, highlighted by Schmidt's two-run triple. A couple of Houston errors also aided the Phillies' cause.

The Phillies scored one in the first on two singles and a wild pitch. They added one in the fifth on Schmidt's double and an RBI single by Maddox.

It became 8-2 in the sixth on Bob Boone's third home run of the season. The Phils added two in the eighth on an RBI double by Keith Moreland and pitcher Ron Reed's run-scoring single.

The Astros' runs came on Jose Cruz' third-inning RBI single, and Cesar Cedeno drove in one in the sixth and another in the eighth.

"It should be real exciting," said Rose of tonight's game. "Just think, there will be two (potential) Hall of Fame pitchers working, Ryan and Steve Carlton, and me going for something like that," said Rose, who has a 13-game hitting streak.

Houston manager Bill Virdon said he was more concerned with his team getting back on the track than he was about Rose's record.

He said, however, "you know he's going to get some hits. If you make a mistake he hits. That's the way he's always been."

"It's a special night for him, but my worry is Carlton," said Virdon.

Detroit's Lopez cools off Rangers

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Tiger right-hander Aurelio Lopez has made only one starting appearance this season. In fact, Lopez has but seven starts in his three major league seasons.

But after he shut down the Texas Rangers in a 5-0 Detroit win Tuesday, Lopez is a relief pitcher no longer.

"No question about it," said Detroit manager Sparky Anderson, "he's in the (starting) rotation until he pitches himself out of it."

IS LOPEZ happy at the promotion?

"No," he said. "Well, wait a minute. I like to pitch, I want to pitch anytime, anywhere. But for my whole career, I've been a relief pitcher. That's what I'm used to, and that's what I'd rather do."

But the choice is not his. Lopez, 3-1, gave up only four hits through six innings before giving way to reliever Kevin Saucier, who surrendered one hit the rest of the way and posted his seventh save.

"The guy (Lopez) just pitched too good against us," said Texas manager Don Zimmer. "We didn't even score a run — how could we win against that?"

While Lopez was muffling the Texas bats and snapping a four-game Ranger win streak, Detroit's first and second hitters provided the offensive spark. Lynn Jones and Alan Trammell worked a hit-run-bunt combination as though they were reading from a textbook.

Three times Jones opened an inning by reaching first base, twice with singles and once on a walk. Each time, Trammell dropped a perfect sacrifice bunt that moved Jones to second, and each time Jones came on to score.

"Trammell has to feel good," Jones said. "He made three great bunts and that made the difference. He changed the ball game."

TRAMMELL shrugged off the compliment.

"That's my job," he said. "As the number two hitter, I have to do that. Lynn has to get on, and my job is to move him over. There is no worse feeling than to put yourself on the line and then not perform.

In the sixth, the Jones-Trammell team worked again. Kemp drew a walk, then Jones scored when Texas shortstop Mario Medoza flubbed a potential double-play ball.

And in the eighth, Jones walked to set up the third Trammell sacrifice, Kemp walked again and Brookens drove both runners home with a single to center.

Arbour may quit

MONTREAL (AP) — Al Arbour, after leading the New York Islanders to consecutive Stanley Cup championships, is considering stepping down as coach of the National Hockey League team.

The 48-year-old Arbour, attending league meetings in Montreal, said Tuesday he would make his decision during a trip with his wife next week to "either Bermuda or Florida without the kids.

"I've been going for 10 straight years," Arbour said in an interview. "Maybe it's time to recharge the batteries. This is a very trying business. I started thinking of this before the Stanley Cup."

Arbour said he may decide to take a year's vacation and return to the Islanders in another capacity. But he conceded that if he stepped down "it would be tough to come back to the Islanders as a coach."

Mavs, Nets eye respectability

NEW YORK (AP) — The Dallas Mavericks, Detroit Pistons and New Jersey Nets, teams needing help at nearly all positions, took solid strides toward respectability in the National Basketball Association's college draft Tuesday.

The other clubs picked players to fill specific needs.

The Mavericks opened the proceedings by selecting Mark Aguirre of DePaul, who reportedly has agreed to a five-year, $2.5 million contract. Then, with the ninth pick on the first round, the Mavs landed 6-6 Rolando Blackman of Kansas State. That gave them the players regarded as the best small forward and the best big guard in the draft.

WHILE IT'S questionable whether their impact will be that pronounced, there seems little question that with two prize rookies joining holdovers like Tom LaGarde and Brad Davis, the Mavericks should improve on last season's 15-67 record. "We'll be a much more accomplished team, I don't think there's any question about that," said Mavericks Coach Dick Motta.

Detroit, which lost a coin flip with Dallas to determine which team would open the draft, got the player it wanted anyway with the No.2 pick — point guard Isiah Thomas of Indiana. The Pistons used their second first-round pick, No.12 overall, to take scrappy 6-6 forward Kelly Tripucka of Notre Dame.

Pistons General Manager Jack McCloskey said Thomas, who led Indiana to the NCAA title, "has that charisma, that magic touch. He is loaded with talent. This is what we've been waiting for, a player with the ability to finish a play, whether it's scoring or getting the ball to the right man."

Detroit Coach Scotty Robertson, meanwhile, said he liked Tripucka's attitude. "His knees and arms stay skinned up through the whole season," said Robertson. "He wants the ball in the last five seconds."

NEW JERSEY had three first-round picks and landed 6-8 Buck Williams of Maryland No.3, 6-6 Al King of Maryland No.10 and 6-9 Ray Tolbert of Indiana No.18. Those three will join guard Otis Birdsong and swingman Mike Woodson, two trade acquisitions within the last 48 hours, to give the Nets a very new look.

"I don't think we're ready to challenge Boston, Milwaukee or Chicago yet," said Larry Brown, the Nets' new coach, "but with the draft picks and the veterans, we are a heckuva lot closer than I ever imagined at this time. We have a chance to move up quickly."

Several other teams used the draft to plug holes.

Atlanta, needing a big guard, drafted 6-6 Al Wood of North Carolina, a blue-chipper who is expected to make the transition from college forward to NBA backcourtman. Kansas City, looking for a center to replace aging Sam Lacey and a small forward to succeed free agent Scott Wedman, landed 6-10½ Steve Johnson of Oregon State and 6-5 Kevin Loder of Alabama State, considered the sleeper of the first-round selections.

Milwaukee, Utah and Indiana also needed centers and took Alton Lister of Arizona State, Dan Schayes of Syracuse and Herb Williams of Ohio State, all of whom should get significant playing time. Three other college centers were drafted in the first round and will be tried as power forwards: Orlando Woolridge of Notre Dame by Chicago, Tom Chambers of Utah by San Diego and Larry Nance of Clemson by Phoenix.

Boston, which won the NBA title last season, drafted for insurance behind 32-year-old Chris Ford. Its first four choices were all big guards: Charles Bradley of Wyoming on the first round, Tracy Jackson of Notre Dame and Danny Ainge of Brigham Young on the second and John Johnson of Michigan on the third.

Ainge is an intriguing pick. An All-American who averaged 24.4 points per game last season at BYU, he is now an infielder with the Toronto Blue Jays and his baseball contract prohibits him from playing competitive basketball. But he took a .181 batting average into Tuesday night's game at Chicago, and the Celtics are gambling he'll decide to switch sports within the next year, while they own his draft rights.

Other teams' choices raised questions.

Los Angeles picked 6-5 swingman Mike McGee of Michgan, even though the Lakers already have two solid guards in Earvin "Magic" Johnson and Norm Nixon and a fine small forward in Jamaal Wilkes. That raised speculation about a deal involving Nixon.

Philadelphia, which already has an outstanding point guard in Maurice Cheeks, used its No.1 pick on 6-1 guard Franklin Edwards of Cleveland State. And Portland, which already has Kelvin Ransey, Jimmy Paxson and Billy Ray Bates to play guard, used one of its two first-round picks on playmaker Darnell Valentine of Kansas. Portland's other No.1 pick was 6-6 swingman Jeff Lamp of Virginia, who may become the Blazers' starting small forward.

Will Reggie join growing list of Yankee immortals?

Los Angeles Times

The New York Yankees are one of the few teams that don't wear their names on their uniforms. They don't feel they need to. The Yankees are the aristocrats of baseball. If you don't know who they are, that's your problem. I mean, do the Rockefellers need calling cards? Did J.P. Morgan have to show his I.D.? The Yanks are the Plutocrats of the grand old game. Their insignia, fittingly, is the top hat. Their numerals should be Roman. They should be numbered like popes, Caesars, and World Wars. The Yankees were the first team in baseball to wear uniform numbers and the last team to need them. Like, who needed a number to find Babe Ruth in a crowd of mortals?

LIKE ALL nobility, they have a decent respect for ancestor-worship. Yankee Stadium is the only ballpark in the world with status of its honored dead in outfield. Westminster Abbey has less deference for the past. The Yankees have retired more uniform numbers -- eight -- than any team in sports history. They want no clown batting .243 wearing Babe Ruth's old number, or sullying the memory of Lou Gehrig. They are the dukes and earls of this realm. And they practice their art with the kind of bored disdain of the uppercrust everywhere. They come into town like socialites slumming.

It's like the Tudors of England, the Junkers of Prussia, or the Samurai of Japan. Not everyone can belong. Just because you make the Baseball Hall of Fame doesn't mean you make the centerfield at Yankee Stadium. Roger Maris, who hit more home runs in a season than any man who ever lived and did it wearing a Yankee number, can't make it.

WILL REGINALD Martinez Jackson ever make a statue in the park? Will No. 44 ever go to join Nos. 3 (Ruth), 4 (Gehrig), 5 (DiMaggio), 7 (Mickey Mantle), 8 (Yogi Berra and Bill Dickey), 15 (Thurman Munson), 16 (Whitey Ford) and 37 (Casey Stengel)?

He hasn't always been a Yankee, ala Lou Gehrig and Joe DiMaggio. But, neither was Babe Ruth, or Casey Stengel.

He never batted over .300 for a full season. Neither, really, did Stengel. He's not the world's greatest outfielder. Neither was Ruth.

He's just a hired gun. Well, so was Ruth. And, if the Yankees had him first, they would have never let him go sashaying around the league like marked money.

What has he done? Well, he's 18th on the all-time homer list with 412. Since he's only 34, he has a good chance to be fifth or fourth when he quits.

He's the most devastating World Series slugger since Ruth. He has the top slugging percentage (.767) in World Series history (Ruth is second; Gehrig, third). He hit more home runs in a single Series (5) than any player who ever lived, and has the sixth-highest number of Series homers (9). His nine for four World Series games compares mind-bogglingly to Mickey Mantle's 18 for 12 World Series. Earl Weaver budded him "Mr. October." He is a very great baseball player in June, July, August and September. But, when the leaves turn gold, so does Reggie.

HE'S A candy bar, a car commercial, a bubblegum supercard. But, is he a Yankee? Does he belong to Broadway and in The-House-That-Ruth-Built -- or is he just double-parked?

Reggie's five-year contract is up this year. His battle royals with Billy Martin are long gone. He is an elder statesman on and maybe the last vestige of the empire of the Yankees. They stand up when he comes to bat now. "Jax Homers" is in standing type at all the tabloids. He is slaughter on Tenth Avenue.

But, there was Lou Gehrig sniffing back tears with a year to live saying he was "lucky to be a Yankee." There was Ruth's farewell to an era that made a harsh life in a harsh city seem a little more bearable.

Does Reggie belong to all this? Will they rise for him on Oldtimers' Day with tears in their eyes? Or, will he wind up a St. Louis Cardinal like Roger Maris? Is Reggie's suitcase packed and a note on the table and an airline ticket to more romantic places in his future? Is he just another traveling salesman, or should the outfield sculptor get ready? Should the resident Michelangelo start studying a pinstripe with 44 on it for casting? Or should they just give him a watch? Will the headline just be "Jax Pax"?

Reggie wants to be a New York monument like Babe Ruth, or Grant's Tomb, or the Brooklyn Bridge. "Mr. October" wants to be "Mr. Forever."

"I FEEL like a Yankee, I think like a Yankee, it's finally sunk through to me, this mystique," he said recently.

Some people thought he considered himself in a league all his own and not part of any corner of baseball, he was reminded. "I have to be Reggie," shot back Reggie. "I'm not Lou Gehrig. I wear my emotions on my face. When I came here, I was not yet 30 years old, and never lived in a big city in my life. I went from Wincot, Pa., to Tempe, Ariz., and, when I played in Oakland, I lived in Berkeley. I didn't know how to take New York. And New York didn't know how to take me. We've each found out the other isn't so bad.

"When I was young, I didn't want to be a Yankee. A young, black kid wanted to be a Dodger. He hated the Yankees. When I came here, I said I'll take the money and run. But the pinstripes grow on you. You come to realize the Yankees aren't Purdue or the Padres or the Minnesota Twins, or the team that's playing Notre Dame this week. They're the most visible sports franchise in history. It's a privilege to be a Yankee. You know the great thing about New York? It CARES."

You have the feeling Lou Gehrig would understand perfectly. But, have the Yankees changed Reggie -- or has Reggie changed the Yankees? Only the sculptor will know.

Gold Sox edge Cubs, 7-6

AMARILLO—Amarillo's Gold Sox pushed over an unearned run in the ninth inning to defeat the Midland Cubs, 7-6, snapping the Bruins' winning streak at three games.

Joe Lansford walked off relief pitcher Norm Churchill to open the ninth and moved to third on a sacrifice as Churchill made a wild throw. Phil Nastu relieved Churchill and made a wild throw to third on another bunt as the winning run scored.

J.W. Mitchell had tied it in the top of the ninth with his first homer of the season.

Midland scored two in the first on rbis by Javier Fierro on a ground out and Fritz Connally on a single. Midland then took a 5-1 lead in the sixth when Fierro singled home two runs and Connally singled home another.

Fowlkes hurls, bats Caps over Mets, 10-1

By The Associated Press

Shreveport Captains pitcher Allen Fowlkes helped his own cause Tuesday night by hitting a home run as the Captains took a crucial 10-1 Texas League baseball victory over the Jackson Mets.

Other Texas League scores were Tulsa 13, Arkansas 2; El Paso 3, San Antonio 0, and Amarillo 7, Midland 6.

The Shreveport victory moved the Captains to within 2½ games of the Eastern Division leading Mets and came in the first game of a six-game series with less than two weeks remaining in the first half of the season. The first half division winners advance to the league playoffs at the end of regular season play.

Fowlkes had a solo homer and limited the Mets to only seven hits. Jim Rothford had two homers for Shreveport, a two-run homer in the eighth and a solo homer in the seventh inning.

Marty Scott had a grand slam homer, a solo homer and a triple as the Tulsa Drillers snapped a seven-game losing streak with a 13-2 victory over the Arkansas Travelers.

Yanks' bullpen comes through again

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

The Yankees bullpen has made a habit of performing heroics all season. So has Chicago's Rich Dotson. But Minnesota's Ron Jackson has discovered the touch just this week.

Jackson, the Twins' versatile infielder-outfielder, has been almost the entire Minnesota offense the past two nights. On Monday, his run-scoring single knocked in the only run as the Twins edged Milwaukee 1-0. Tuesday night, Jackson's two-run double put the Twins on top to stay in a 3-1 triumph.

The Yankees, meanwhile, continued to get first-rate relief pitching as Dave LaRoche, Mike Griffin and Rich Gossage hurled 7 2-3 innings of scoreless ball in New York's 8-5 win over Kansas City, the Yankees' ninth straight victory.

Twins 3, Brewers 1

Jackson, who slumped early this season but has raised his average to .275, credits visits to a psychiatrist with his improvement.

"We just talk," said Jackson. "He helps me relax. He also suggested that I use a heavier bat with a skinnier handle."

Jackson, who has been used at four positions and as designated hitter this season, followed fourth-inning singles by Butch Wynegar and Mickey Hatcher with a double off the left field fence.

"Sometimes you need a guy to carry a club," said Jackson. "Right now it's me but next week it could be somebody else."

Yankees 8, Royals 5

Corbett now has 10 fewer saves than Gossage, who leads the majors. Rookie Gene Nelson was bombed for five runs in 11-3 innings, but LaRoche came in to check the Royals — who have lost five straight to New York this season — on two hits for 3 2-3 innings. Griffin took over for 2 1-3 innings of three-hit pitching, followed by "The Goose" for 1 2-3 innings of hitless relief.

"Everyone is doing such a great job," said LaRoche, 3-0, who joined the Yankees this season as their left-handed bullpen stopper. "If you have a bad outing, you may be gone."

The Yankees bullpen has given up one run in the last 332-3 innings.

The Royals were ahead 5-1 in the third but the Yanks struck for four runs, three on Dave Winfield's homer. Graig Nettles followed that drive with a blast of his own to tie it.

White Sox 3, Blue Jays 0

Dotson, 7-3, retired 14 of the last 15 batters in pitching his fifth complete game this season.

"I had good control and a curve ball," said Dotson. "I got a lot of outs with that pitch.

"We also had some good defensive plays."

And the Sox got their first inside-the-park homer in exactly seven years when Wayne Nordhagen lined a shot down the right-field line and circled the bases as the Toronto outfield had trouble retrieving the ball. Ron Santo had the last White Sox' inside-the-park homer on June 9, 1974.

Angels 4, Indians 2

Don Baylor's two-run homer in the fifth was decisive for the Angels. California trailed Len Barker and Cleveland 2-0 entering the inning but Fred Lynn doubled home two runs, his first RBI since May 23. Then Baylor slammed his ninth homer.

Red Sox 10, Mariners 1

Mike Torrez' five-hitter, three RBI by Jim Rice and two by Dave Stapleton paced Boston. The Red Sox jumped to a 5-0 lead after two innings and coasted.

"I threw 80 percent fastballs," said Torrez. "It's a change from the last two years. I used to throw nothing but slider, slider."t

Rice's RBI single capped a three-run first inning and he singled home two Boston runs in the fourth.

A's 4-3, Orioles 2-2

Former Midland Cub Keith Drumright knocked in the winning runs in both games as Oakland moved back into first place in the West.

Drumright's two-out single in the bottom of the ninth won the nightcap. In the opener, Drumright got the game-winning RBI as Jim Palmer walked him with the bases loaded in the seventh.

John Lowenstein, who drove in both of Baltimore's runs in the opener, provided some excitement in the second inning of the nightcap. After singling with one out, he stole second and third and tried to steal home but was tagged out a few inches from the plate.

NHL considers rules changes

MONTREAL (AP) — The National Hockey League rules committee made several recommendations Tuesday, dealing with such matters as goaltenders and fighting. They will be discussed at the Board of Governors meeting June 22-24 in Chicago,

The committee, sitting at the league's annual meetings, suggested making permanent a regulation adopted during the 1980-81 season that if both goalies are injured during a game, a club be permitted todress and play a third.

It was agreed to eliminate the bench minor penalty assessed against players who fail to leave the area of a fight. Referees would exercise their discretion in handing out 10-minute misconduct penalties to players staying near a fight, compared with the current automatic penalty.

BOWLING BEAT

Denton rolls 970 city high

By RANDY ISENBERG

John Denton is spending more time now teaching bowling than actually rolling the ball, but on May 31 the former pro bowler, who holds the record for the most consecutive 200 games ever in a pro tournament, ran up numbers that looked more like Trans-Atlantic long distance telephone numbers than bowling scores enroute to 970 four-game set on 258-238-217 and 257 in the Dellwood Scratch Trio League.

Dave Braswell, the same league, rolled 742 for his first three games highlighted by games of 269-258 and 215. Braswell's final game was a 204 to give him a 942 four-game set. Tommy Gammage, 266-915, and Duane Robertson, 267-900, were right behind Denton and Braswell.

Mary Day had the best spring of her life bowling-wise as she rolled back-to-back 600s in the Mop and Broom league on April 15 and 22.

Ruben Garza began the City Mixed 5 league with a 255— 622, while Rich Howard finished up the Petroleum National Men's league with his first 600 series (617). Leonard Rodriguez began the Thursday Night Mixed league with a 670 on 234, 225 and 211. Ken Moore was the standard bearer of the Oil Star league with a 267—697.

Upcoming Events: Every weekend in July, Air Park Lanes will host a Mixed Team Tournament, a five person team, doubles and singles. Air Park Lanes will host a Scratch Doubles double elimination tournament on June 27 and July 4. Entry fees are $50 per team.

Highlights from April and May: April 30 in the Ladies Night Out Bowling league, Kit Lingo rolled a 210, Jan Wooten rolled a 209, Vicky Gill a 516 series and Mary Jo White rolled a 510 series.

In the Monday Night Church league April 27, Bonnie Saunders 187-182—516.

In the Tuesday Twosome on May 12, Bonnie Saunders rolled games of 193-193-181 for a 567 series and Anna Vee Wilcox rolled games of 206-201 for a 556 series.

City Summer Mixed: Ruben Garza, 255-622; Steve Masoner, 228; Mark Land, 216. Wednesday Afternoon Ladies Scratch: Vicky Gill, 207; Melinda Conaway, 196-506; Karen Jordan, 181-505; Carole Gibson, 191-502.

Niekro boys take lumps in National League action

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

It was a bad night all around for the Niekro Family. While Joe was getting jolted in Philadelphia, Phil was being mauled in Montreal, 12-1.

The Expos, after holding a team meeting to mull over their five-game tailspin (all on the road), poked across a first-inning run against the Braves, then erupted for seven more in the second, two scoring on Tim Raines' triple.

"You can put it on the meeting if you want, but the real test will come on our next road trip," said Warren Cromartie. The Expos, with a 19-7 Olympic Stadium record, are 9-18 away from home.

Scott Sanderson, in his first start since May 29 when he sprained an ankle, struck out eight batters, walked two and scattered five hits. "Any pitcher can look good when he gets eight or 10 runs behind him," Sanderson said.

Cardinals 6, Dodgers 1

Dane Iorg knew he was in the clover in the third inning. "The bases were loaded, so I was going to get a pitch to hit," said Iorg — who hit one far enough to left-center field to get a two-run double. He later scored on Sixto Lezcano's single.

Reds 8, Mets 4

George Foster had two singles, a double and a triple and Dan Driessen drove in three runs, two of them in the ninth inning when the Reds broke a 4-4 tie on New York catcher John Stearns' error.

Ken Griffey, who scored three of Cincinnati's runs, walked to open the ninth and Foster singled. Stearns then flung Dave Concepcion's bunt into left trying for the force at third. Griffey scored on the play and, after Ray Knight walked to load the bases, Dan Driessen singled Foster and Concepcion home. Knight scored the final run on Joe Nolan's sacrifice fly.

Padres 7, Pirates 4

Luis Salazar drilled a two-run single and pitcher Steve Mura followed with a two-run double in the third inning to start San Diego on the way to its victory over the Pirates.

Mura needed some relief help from Gary Lucas after Pittsburgh's Kurt Bevacqua opened the eighth inning with his first homer since he was a member of the Padres in 1979.

"He came over and laughed at me between games," Mura said. "He's got a good sense of humor."

The second game of the scheduled twinight doubleheader didn't go very far. After 2½ scoreless innings, rain halted play, and the game was called off after a 91-minute wait.

NLRB injunction request was not unanimous

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Labor Relations Board did not unanimously seek an injunction to prevent major league baseball owners from implementing their compensation proposal, the Daily News reported in its Wednesday editions.

The News, which made the disclosure as federal judge Henry Werker is preparing a ruling on the NLRB's injunction request, also said that one NLRB member who reportedly voted for the injunction request has now changed his mind.

The News said the NLRB voted 2-1 to seek the injunction with chairman John Fanning and Don Zimmerman voting to authorize general counsel William Lubbers' request to seek the injunction. Howard Jenkins Jr., the third member of the three-man board, dissented, the newspaper said.

The News said it obtained a letter from John Truesdale, executive secretary to the board in Washington, to Betty Southard Murphy, whose law firm represents the American League. The News reported that in that letter, Truesdale said that Jenkins voted against the injunction "on the grounds that it is not an appropriate case," for such relief.

Sources close to the NLRB said Zimmerman met privately with Fanning last week, where he, "agonized that he had made the wrong decision" by agreeing to terms for relief sought by the injunction, The News said.

The News said Zimmerman was unavailable for comment.

Mahovlich, Bucyk, Stanley named to Hall

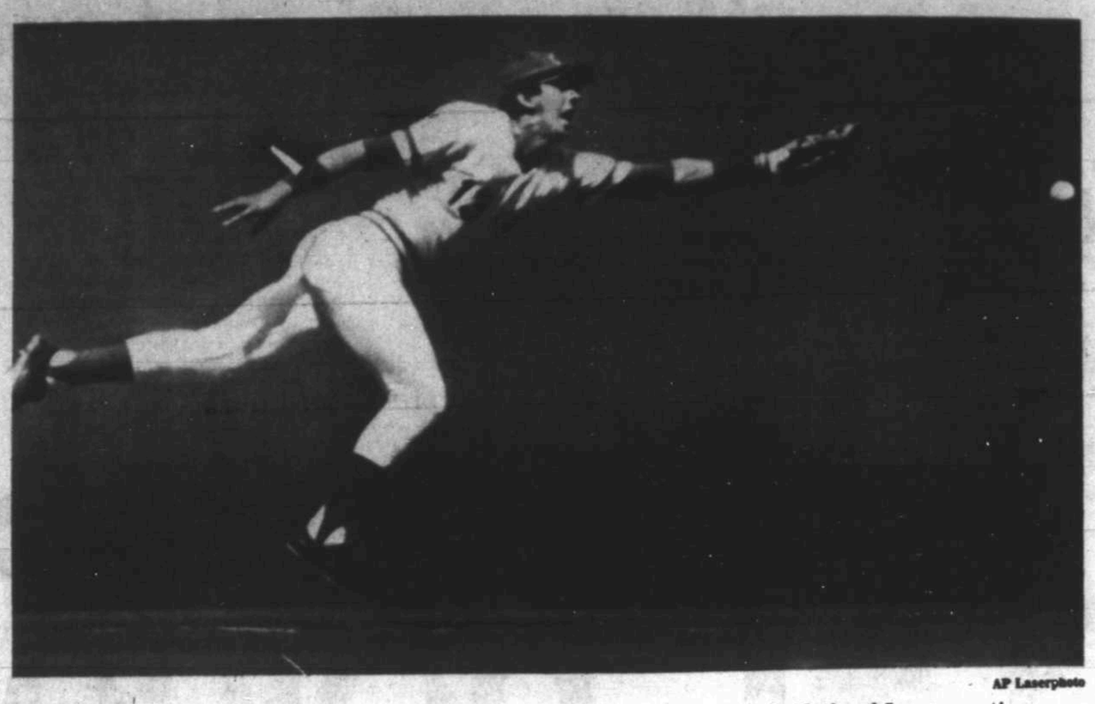

MONTREAL (AP) — Left wings Johnny Bucyk and Frank Mahovlich and defenseman Allan Stanley were elected to the Hockey Hall of Fame.

The three will be inducted on Sept.9 in Toronto with former referee John Ashley, whose selection to the builders category was announced in April.

Bucyk played his first two seasons with the Detroit Red Wings and his last 21 with the Boston Bruins, scoring 556 goals and earning 813 assists for 1,369 points in 1,540 games.

Mahovlich, the Calder Memorial Trophy winner as rookie of the year with the Toronto Maple Leafs in 1957-58, played on four Stanley Cup championship teams in an NHL career that spanned 17 seasons, ending after the 1973-74 campaign.

Stanley played 21 NHL seasons with the Rangers, Chicago, Boston, Toronto and the Philadelphia Flyers before retiring after the 1968-69 season.

USAC stewards hear Bobby Unser protest

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Keith Ward voted to uphold Mario Andretti's victory in the Indianapolis 500 because he wasn't convinced Andretti had violated a no-passing rule; Bob Cassaday wanted to return the victory to Bobby Unser because he wasn't convinced Andretti hadn't committed a violation.

Ward and Cassaday were two of the five U.S. Auto Club stewards who heard a pair of protests filed by Unser following the official posting of race results Monday morning, May 25. All five voted to penalize Unser one lap, thereby dropping him to second place, but the stewards split 3-2 against Unser's protest that Andretti should have been penalized for illegally passing a car during a yellow caution period.

"My view of the situation was that they (Unser and car owner Roger Penske) were protesting that Andretti passed under the yellow light," said Ward, one of four witnesses called by USAC during Tuesday's hearing of an appeal by Unser.

"It was their obligation to prove Andretti had passed illegally," Ward said. "Based on everything brought forth at that time, I could not in my own mind believe they could prove their case."

Also voting to deny Unser's protest and thus uphold Andretti's victory were Chief Steward Tom Binford and steward Art Meyers. Cassaday and steward John Vance, who was expected to be called as a witness when the hearing resumed today, voted to penalize Andretti also.

Cassaday said he based his vote the day after the race on the fact that Andretti rejoined the pack just behind A.J. Foyt following a pit stop at the end of the 149th lap — under the yellow caution flag. Yet, he said, Andretti was ahead of Foyt a lap later — still under the yellow.

"I couldn't justify why he (Andretti) was ahead of Foyt going into turn one (after the 150th lap had been completed)," said Cassaday.

All-Boor Final Four proposed

By SCOTT OSTLER
(c) 1981, The Los Angeles Times

We've seen enough of the preliminaries.

It's time that baseball got this thing organized and set up a tournament to determine once and for all the game's wildest man. Eliminations would be held in the four divisions, and the survivors would meet in the All-Boor Final Four. On national TV of course.

The various events, like those at major track meets, would be named after foremost specialists in the event. We would see, for instance:

—The Gene Mauch Spareribb Fling. Throwers will toss uniformly weighted ribs, which, as any ABSCAM victim will tell you, is bad form.

—The Jimmy Piersall Finger-Shadow Showdown. "This is a seagull ... This is another bird."

—The Dave Kingman Icewater Toss. Unsuspecting sportswriters will be playfully attacked with the contestant's choice of materials — water, shaving cream, strawberries, spittle or bare hands.

—The Leo Durocher Dirt Kick. The dirt may not be teed up.

THE FINAL Four would be a weekend festival of anti-social behavior, a carnival of things all of us would like to do but can't get away with because we have grownup jobs and no immunity from criminal prosecution.

Heavily favored to meet in the finals would be broadcaster Piersall and manager Martin. Instead of the traditional pregame meeting at home plate, they would discuss ground rules over cocktails during Happy Hour at a San Pedro bar, along with master of ceremonies Bobby Knight, an umpire and a marshmallow salesman.

Martin, as you've probably read, is riding out a week's suspension after colliding with an umpire and tossing handfuls of dirt or the ump's back. Billy made the mistake of committing these misdeeds while the TV cameras were rolling, which, as any ABSCAM victim will tell you, is bad form.

Luckily for Martin, the incident took place on a natural-soil field. Had it been on artificial turf, he might have injured himself trying to pull out handfuls of polyester dirt.

Piersall may get off easier than Martin, because Piersall's alleged act — giving the finger to an umpire — was not captured on film. Like Babe Ruth's immortal called-shot homer, this gesture will become a legend surrounded by controversy.

YEARS FROM now, various eyewitnesses will swear they saw Piersall test the wind, signal the number of outs to the Sox defense, or gesture for a hot dog.

If Piersall really did flip the offending digit, it wouldn't be his first on-the-job exploration of the outer boundaries of good taste.

Lorn Brown, now the play-by-play announcer for the Brewers, spent three years in the White Sox broadcast booth with Piersall and Harry Caray, and lived to tell about it.

He remembers the time Piersall decided that the Sox manager should bring in a new pitcher, and muttered twice into his live mike, "Get a ... left-hander in there!"

"The third time he said it," said Brown, "I grabbed his mouth."

Brown added: "When people ask me what kind of person Piersall is, I tell them it depends on what day it is and what particular time. His moods are very changeable ... I think Jimmy has a tremendous amount of baseball knowledge. He has great insight into the game, probably as good as any ex-athlete I've heard on the air. But I've told him to use it in good judgment, in the proper way. He'll go off on tangents."

PIERSALL has, on the air, referred to umpire Ken Kaiser and outfielder Dave Parker as fat whales, and more than once called a certain ballplayer of some Oriental ancestry a Jap.

Chicago fans love him, managers don't. When Don Kessinger was fired, he was asked what had been the toughest aspect of managing the team. He said: "The toughest thing was explaining to the fans I met why I didn't do the things Piersall said I should do."

Another possible event for our All-Boor Final Hour would be the Tom Lasorda Press Conference.

Lasorda is normally accommodating and composed — even charming — in postgame press conferences, but his occasional blowups are classics. The "Dave Kingman Tape" from 1978 is still a collector's item and a big hit at parties. It was recorded after Kingman beat the Dodgers in extra innings with his third home run of the day. Answering a reporter's question, Lasorda said, in part:

"What was my opinion of Kingman's performance? What the ... do you think my opinion of his performance is? I think it was...." And so on, and on. It's almost as good as "Who's on First."

Dark sees some promise in Cubs

TED BATTLES
BATTLE SCENE

Despite the Midland Cubs' lowly status in the Texas League West, last place some 12 games out of first, Alvin Dark isn't ready to recommend junking the club and starting over from scratch.

After a week of watching Midland at Cubs Stadium, Dark, who eventually will report his findings on all of the Chicago Cub farm clubs back to Herman Franks, an old New York Giants teammate and new Chicago GM, came away with some favorable impressions of the talent here and does not feel the Bruins are as destitute as the standings suggest.

DARK'S OFF the cuff remarks after a week of observing the club against league-leading San Antonio provide an insight as to what he looks for in a prospect and it is noteworthy that his comments were from a positive standpoint.

Dark was especially impressed with Carmello Martinez, Mel Hall and Mike Diaz. "All have a lot of learning to do, but all are only 20 years-old."

Hall has made some sensational plays that no centerfielder at Chicago could make and he has also looked hesitant and tentative at times. "You've got to realize that he is just learning to play center fielder. He has been a right fielder." Dark noted that so many times lefthanded outfielders lack the good arm, but he likes Mel's.

"I like the way Martinez swings the bat. He is undisciplined at this stage, but will learn. He still has to find a defensive position. It could be first base."

Dark feels Diaz is another with mucho potential. "Right now folks are stealing on him, but that's because he hasn't learned to make the throw in one fluid motion. He's thinking his way through three steps, but I like what I see."

FRITZ CONNALLY, the former Baylor University third sacker, has made an impression on Dark with his glove and Dark feels lefthander Craig Lefferts' is a pitcher of promise who must keep the ball around the hitter's knees to be most effective.

He describes Mike Thompson, the little lefty who almost shutout San Antonio Sunday night in his first start for the Cubs, "sneaky fast. He has that nice easy motion. When he was warming up, I was watching from up here in the stands and I kept saying to myself, 'Come on, son, you've got to throw a couple of hard ones to be ready'. He never did. And when he got out on the mound, that easy delivery deceived the batter the same way it had me."

Randy Clark made such an impression that Alvin traveled to Amarillo for another look. "He may need another pitch, but what I liked was that he was throwing the ball just as hard in the ninth as he was in the first. As long as he stays away from those walks, which I noticed hurt him according to his 1980 statistics, he doesn't need to strike anyone out."

RANDY LAVIGNE, after a good freshman year in the Texas League, has spent most of this spring trying to get untracked and in the last couple of weeks has shown signs of doing just that. "He's big and strong and the key for him is to make contact. He reminds me of Gorman Thomas. Gorman couldn't hit the curve ball when he first came up to the majors. It looked like he'd never make it. And it wasn't until he was 27 or 28 that he put it together. LaVigne is the same type. He's the kind you can't give up on. If he starts making contact, he's strong enough so that he could be a 29-30 a year home run hitter."

Advised that LaVigne led the Cubs in outfield assists last season, Dark wasn't surprised. "He's a left fielder with a right fielder's arm."

From Amarillo, Dark will go to Des Moines to evaluate a club that is even more of a mystery than Midland. This is the team composed primarily of players who compiled the best overall record in the Texas League three years ago. The Cubs, although losing to San Antonio in the playoffs, finished five games better than the Dodgers for the entire season.

Vito extends party invitation

BOSTON (AP) — Former world middleweight champion Vito Antuofermo was set to take bows as the guest of honor at City Hall Plaza ceremonies today, but his thoughts were on another type of party.

Antuofermo recalls that when he retained the title by battling Marvin Hagler to a 15-round draw on Nov. 30, 1979, the challenger dropped into the champ's post-fight party in Las Vegas.

Now, he says, he wants to invite Hagler to a victory party Saturday night after dethroning Marvelous Marvin in their scheduled 15-round championship bout at Boston Garden.

Antuofermo won the title by beating Hugo Corro two years ago. Then, after the draw with Hagler, he lost it on a controversial 15-round decision to England's Alan Minter on March, 16, 1980, in Las Vegas.

Three months later, in London, he was stopped on cuts by Minter, giving Hagler another shot at the championship. Hagler won it easily, knocking out Minter in three rounds.

An embarrassing subject

Kiner recalls that long ago date with Liz

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

When Ralph Kiner, Pittsburgh's former home run king who is baseball's official traveling salesman for the midsummer All-Star game, conducts a press conference, somebody inevitably brings up the subject of his embarrassing date with beateous Liz Taylor.

Sure, they ask about all those balls he hit out of the park, his own personal role in the All-Star game and stuff about the alleged superiority of the National League, but there's always some guy in the audience who barks out:

"That's fine, Ralph, but tell us about you and Liz in the Hollywood parking lot."

"Aw, you don't want to hear that story again," Ralph says, blushing. "Everybody's heard it. Now about that 1950 game ..."

"Come on, Ralph, let's hear about Liz."

"Okay," Kiner accedes. "The year was 1949, I think. I was getting some attention over my home run production (51 in 1947, 54 in 1949) and Liz was a budding star in the movies. So some mutual friend fixes me up with a date to take Liz to the movie premiere of 'Twelve O'clock High.'"

Kiner had to pause to relish thoughts of the occasion.

"I drove over to pick her up at her home in the hills. She was still getting ready. I talked to her father, a nice guy, and her mother, a domineering woman. Then Liz entered the room. She was breath-taking.

"We drove to the Grumman Theater — you know the place where the footprints and handprints of the stars are in concrete. Searchlights blinded you. Thousands of people lined the sidewalks just to get a glimpse of the celebrities.

"I got to meet Cary Grant and other movie stars. After the movie, everybody came out to get their cars. I gave the doorman my name. Limousines kept coming up and leaving. Liz and I just stood there fidgeting. I gave my name again. No car. Finally, I became impatient and yelled, 'Where in the hell is my car?'"

"I'm sorry, sir," the doorman said. "What is your chauffeur's name?"

"'I don't have a chauffeur,' I snapped. I'm driving.'"

"'Oh, in that case,' the uniformed doorman replied hautily. 'Your car must be in the lot down the street.' So we trudged a couple of blocks. We drove to one of those fancy restaurants but I couldn't enjoy the food or the company. It was humiliating.

The 6-foot-2, 195-pound slugger out of the University of California smashed 23 homers in his rookie season with the Pirates in 1946, then for the next six years led or tied the league in that department, finishing his abbreviated career with 369. He is the only player to hit four consecutive home runs in two games twice and five homers twice in successive games.

He had a niche named for him in the old Pittsburgh park — "Kiner's Corner." Back trouble cut short his career at age 33 in 1955.

Valenzuela visits both his presidents

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the U.S. ambassador to Mexico serving as translator, Los Angeles Dodgers' star pitcher Fernando Valenzuela came to the White House to visit his country's president.

He also came to see Ronald Reagan.

"I'm very proud, and I'm very honored to be invited by the president of the United States," Valenzuela, a Mexican citizen, told reporters Tuesday through Ambassador John Gavin. "Of course, it's doubly important for me because we have my president here also, and I'm looking forward to seeing both of them today."

The 20-year-old rookie pitcher, whose screwball helped him win his first eight starts this season, tying the record for a first-year major-league pitcher, was a guest at President Reagan's luncheon for Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo.

Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. arrived and threw his arm over the pitcher's shoulder.

"Are you a baseball fan?" Haig was asked.

"You betcha," he said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — When graduates of the prestigious St. Albans school voted this year for the student most likely to succeed, they didn't leave much to chance.

This year's student voted Most Likely to Succeed was Prince Faisal, son of King Hussein, the king of Jordan.

NEW YORK (AP) — Vet Boswell, last of the three singing Boswell Sisters who helped introduce swing, is making a career comeback 45 years after she and her siblings made their last record.

Miss Boswell is technical adviser to "The Heebie Jeebies," a new musical based on the Boswells' career. Sisters Martha and Connee are dead.

"We auditioned over 500 girls before we found the right ones" to portray the singing trio, Miss Boswell said recently of the production, now in previews at the West Side Arts Theater.

"So many girls have nice voices when they're singing alone," she observes, but harmony takes that something extra. "When you sing harmony, you have to hang in there with your own note."

NEW YORK (AP) — Convicted mass murderer Charles Manson is interviewed by television host Tom Snyder in a segment of "Tomorrow Coast to Coast" that will be broadcast this week on NBC.

Manson and five followers were sentenced to death in 1971 for the 1969 murders of actress Sharon Tate and six others. The sentences were reduced to life imprisonment in 1972 with the abolition of the death penalty in California.

Jodie Foster finally back in movies

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jodie Foster is once more working in a movie, after a year at Yale University in which she was thrust unwillingly into the nation's headlines.

Last March, the actress changed suddenly from Yale undergraduate to news figure with the revelation that the would-be assassin of President Reagan, John W. Hinckley, Jr., had written her love letters as the result of her role as the girl hooker in the movie "Taxi Driver."

"I'm not allowed to talk about it because the court case is still pending," said Miss Foster. "The pressure on me lasted only for three days, during which I withdrew from the campus. Then I held a press conference and told everything I could, and that was all. I went back to school and people stopped bothering me." She said she does not know whether she will be required to testify when and if Hinckley comes to trial.

Jodie Foster seems to have returned to her natural cool, which she has displayed no matter what her age (now 18). While not aloof, she approaches her work and the fuss that surrounds a well-known actress with rare equanimity. Also an intelligence that permitted her choice of one of the country's leading universities. She chose Yale and isn't sorry.

"Going to Yale has been the best experience of my life," she said.

A literature major, she lives in a dormitory with a roommate and shares a suite with two other girls. She is the only westerner; the others are from Skokie, Pa., Ithaca, N.Y., and Connecticut. "It's no big thing for me to share a communal life," Jodie said. "I've done it with my sisters and brother, and at summer camp."

During most of her freshman year she did no acting. In the second semester she joined with other Yale students in an off-campus play. "That was an exciting experience — and very hard work," she said. "I had never done stage work before, and I found it much different from films. On a movie I'm very interested in the lights, the camera, the sound, all the technical aspects of film making. On the stage you don't have all that. You do the play straight-through, and you have the audience in front of you."

Miss Foster returned to Hollywood for the Davis-Panzer production of "O'Hara's Wife," costarring with Edward Asner and Mariette Hartley. It's comedy in the "Topper" vein, with Miss Hartley as Asner's late wife; she returns to help straighten out the lives of her husband and their two children, Jodie and Perry Lang.

Having turned 18, Miss Foster is no longer subject to the laws governing child performers. No more three hours' work, three hours' school, no more watchful welfare workers on the set. While freedom is exhilarating, it can also be exhausting. On the first day of "O'Hara's Wife," she had the new experience of working a 12-hour day.

Former band director to serve as conductor

Dan Green, a former public school band director, will serve as conductor of the summer community band now being organized here.

Membership is open to any interested person with the only requirement being that band members have their own instruments.

The Midland Community College Summer Band will hold its first rehearsal from 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday in the Allison Fine Arts Building band room at Midland College. Rehearsals are planned for once a week, with an overall goal set of playing for the public once or twice during the summer at free outdoor concerts.

The band will play marches and popular music arranged for small bands. Green would like to have as many as 60 players.

Dr. Don Grant, director of instrumental music at MC, said that MC, as a service to the community, would be providing rehearsal space for the musical organization.

For more information call Green at his office, 682-5387, or his home, 697-2393.

SPOTLIGHT LISTENS!

In May, we launched a new pay-cable service, SPOTLIGHT. This month, in response to suggestions from many of our subscribers, we are making major changes in the scheduling and programming of the service. They are as follows:

*In July, the addition of a major movie presentation every weekday between 3:00 p.m. and 5:00 p.m.

*Also in July, the addition of a late-night movie presentation every day of the week

*In August, the offering of only G and PG-rated films before 7:00 p.m.

*The introduction of SPOTLIGHT "Sneak Previews" in July with the Academy Award-winning "Coal Miner's Daughter."

We will continue to listen to all of our subscribers. We will also continue to make many of the changes, as FEASIBLE, THAT YOU HAVE SUGGESTED. It is our goal to be the finest pay-cable service in America.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Thursday, June 11, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: TV's Chad Everett—shares this birthday with you. Also born on this date: the late Jeannette Rankin, the first woman ever elected to the U.S. Congress. Those celebrating birthdays today are patient and tactful and make very good listeners. In the year ahead, your skills as a mediator will be in great demand. Be sure to protect your reputation for impartiality when acting as a go-between in work disputes. Otherwise, employment difficulties could affect your income. There is a great deal of love in your life, and romance is apt to be happy.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): If you are not too demanding of others, you will receive the kind of teamwork that can advance your cause. Complete one project before proposing another.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You learn where a romance is leading. Use spare time to sharpen your creative, artistic skills. They could pay off handsomely in the future.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): That independent streak in your nature may cause you difficulties today. Keep your emotions under better control. Grin and bear temporary setbacks. Eventually you will come out on top!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): The ability to compromise can help you avoid unhappy confrontations at both home and work. Be willing to overlook an associate's erratic behavior.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Tackle jobs that require teamwork. Travel poses no problems. Seek professional's advice regarding career matters or financial problems. Avoid speculative ventures.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Keep all business dealings strictly open and aboveboard. Display goodwill towards higher-ups and subordinates alike. Romance may be a bit rocky.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Business will prove more profitable if you streamline your methods and procedures. Be a bit more aggressive about solving your own problems. Others will show you new respect.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Devote more time and attention to securities program. Experts' advice could prove valuable. Your colleagues may act impulsively. Do not be shy about taking the lead.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Refrain from announcing or making any major changes today. Others will resent your taking undiscussed action. The evening will be romantic if you play your cards right.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): An unusual request will leave you wondering about a loved one's motives. Forget it! You will find out everything you need to know in good time. Curtail spending.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A fine day for accounting and bookkeeping. Sibling may confide in you. Pursue romance. Show mate or spouse more affection and consideration.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Cram as much activity into the day as you can manage. Others will admire your efficiency and dedication. An important change in personnel can have a profound effect upon your future.

After landing his difficult slam on yesterday's deal, Trump Coup Tommy immediately showed the other side of his personality. He struggled to scrape together nine tricks at a four spade contract where he was a strong favorite to collect eleven tricks. The opponents then made a part-score on his misdefense, and he overbid terribly to get to an impossible game—off two. Then along came this hand.

For once, Tommy bid rather well—he left his side the chance to play in either three no trump, or a club game or slam. West took one look at his holding in trumps and knew that this was not the time to double Tommy!

East won the opening heart lead with the ace and returned the suit. Tommy ruffed and cashed the king of clubs, and was in seventh heaven when East sluffed a heart.

Most declarers would be prepared to concede down one, but not Tommy. He crossed to the queen of spades and ruffed dummy's last heart. He cashed the ace of spades and the ace-queen-king of diamonds. When East showed out on the third diamond, the contract was home. Declarer ruffed dummy's last diamond to reduce his trump holding to two, one fewer than East's. Now Tommy simply exited with the king of spades.

West was forced to ruff this trick, but he did not enjoy the consequences of being saddled with the lead. He was forced to lead a trump away from his queen into declarer's king-jack tenace, and one of his trump tricks had disappeared.

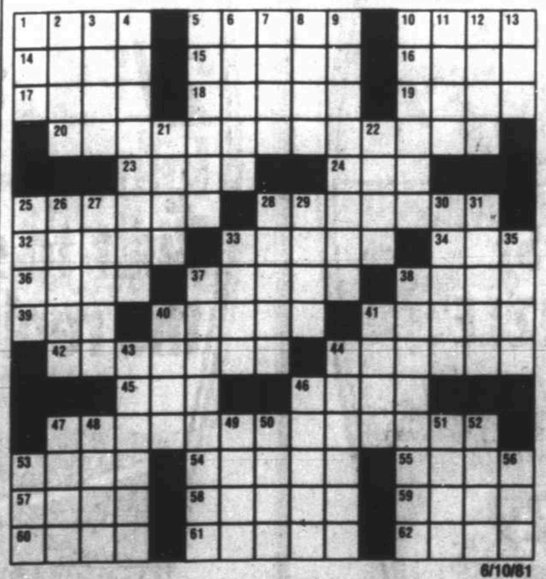

The bridge club is convinced that, if ever they could arrange a bridge match where trumps broke badly on all the hands, they could conquer the world with Tommy at the helm. Unfortunately, on the majority of hands trumps break normally, and on all those hands Tommy would be nothing but a handicap. Perhaps it is time for bridge to follow the example of football and allow substitutions at opportune moments. That way, you could keep Tommy on the bench until a hand cropped up where trumps broke badly, then send him in for the crucial play and bench him again as soon as he had accomplished his specialty.

How do you choose the best opening lead? Charles Goren has the answer. For a copy of "Winning Opening Leads," send $1.85 to "Goren-Leads," care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07648. Make checks payable to Newspaperbooks.

People have same human rights inside hospital as out

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

A hospital stay can be hazardous to your health if you don't know your rights and responsibilities, says a registered nurse who advises patients to shop around for health care and bring a friend or relative to act as an advocate.

"We have the same human rights inside the hospital as outside, but we've never exercised them," says Barbara Huttmann, who received her bachelor of science degree in nursing from California State University and has spent almost five years as a nurse in California hospitals.

Ms. Huttmann has written a book, "The Patient's Advocate: The Complete Handbook of Patient's Rights," to help guide people through the mysteries of hospital treatment.

"Hospitalization is a game of sorts, with its own set of rules and high stakes," writes Ms. Huttmann. "If you don't know the rules by which the game is played, you stand a good chance of losing."

In a recent telephone interview, Ms. Huttmann said that her book was "born out of righteous indignation" over some of the things she saw happening. Things like patients receiving treatments they didn't need or, conversely, not getting the care they did need. She refused to name the hospitals where she has worked, saying she did not want to single out any institutions. The problems, she said, are not unique.

Ms. Huttmann said the public can help improve the level of care — and cut costs — by comparison shopping. Unless the hospital visit is an emergency, she said, the patient should check things like room rates and prices for extra services. Find out, for example, the latest possible check-in time; you may be able to trim an entire day's stay from your bill.

Ms. Huttmann pointed out that hospitals are busy places. Nurses, for example, do not have "the time to do all they need to do. So they set up a priority list." The patient who has an advocate, someone watching out for his or her rights, gets higher priority, she said.

An advocate should be someone who can check on all the details the patient is too sick, too worried or too confused to do for himself or herself. An advocate can, for example, double-check on just which drugs or treatments have been ordered. An advocate can warn medical personnel about a patient's allergies. In emergency cases, an advocate can bring the patient the things he or she needs in the hospital — basics like a toothbrush — and take away the non-essentials — all valuables.

The most important thing an advocate can do, Ms. Huttmann said, is "ask why until the answer is logical." The general public traditionally has been too reluctant to question doctors or ask about alternatives to surgery, she said. "We're intimidated by them (medical personnel)," Ms. Huttmann said, because "we let ourselves be intimidated by them."

Another "must" for advocates, Ms. Huttmann said, is to "be sure that all consents that are signed are accurate." If the form mentions a treatment or procedure that has not been discussed, ask about it. Make sure that the patient understands what he or she is signing.

"All of those," said Ms. Huttmann. "And the patient."

Mobile flood victims still drying out

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — If the federal government agrees to purchase the hundreds of homes repeatedly flooded by spring downpours in this Sunbelt port city, L.W. Brown, for one, will be packing.

Time and again, floodwaters have raced over his yard and into his brick house. Last year, 9 inches of water seeped in. So far this year, 3 feet have roared in. And after 25 years in his home, he's tired of the ever-present threat from Three Mile Creek, which meanders through the northern end of Mobile.

Brown, 69, his wife and sister-in-law were among the hundreds of victims of Mobile's perennial springtime disaster. Others cannot afford to leave, even with help from the government, and some hardy souls intend to stay on no matter what.

In a six-hour period during the downpours May 5 and 6, up to 1½ feet of rain fell in some parts of town, swelling creeks and sending floodwaters cascading into homes and businesses.

No one was hurt seriously, but about 1,500 buildings, including three hospitals, were damaged. It will cost about $35 million to repair them.

Some 126 businesses had up to 3 feet of water inside, and several dams, bridges and roads were damaged.

Soaked carpeting and waterlogged furniture lined driveways and curbsides for days and weeks. In some neighborhoods, the force of the rushing waters ripped bricks off building facades.

President Reagan declared the area a disaster, making low-interest small business loans available, along with emergency aid and temporary housing.

The oganization administering that aid, the Federal Emergency Management Agency, has urged city officials to declare a 90-day moratorium on construction and study methods to prevent continued flooding.

And the agency also said Mobile "should be encouraged to apply for funds to acquire and demolish or relocate, if possible, structures that have a history of being flooded over and over again."

There has been no commitment by the government to purchase the homes, but some money is available, Brown thinks $50 million would be enough to buy 350 to 400 houses.

But some homeowners, like Catherine O'Keefe, say they cannot afford to give up their homes, even though "all the repairs we did last year, we have to do again."

"We feel like the local government has to solve this problem," she said. "We're in a crisis. We're here to stay."

Other flood victims, like 85-year-old David Logan with only a Social Security income, will hang on, using insurance money to repair his home and praying it doesn't flood again.

"I'm not going to leave unless a flood washes me clean away," he said.
