VOLUME XVII | WELLINGTON, Collingsworth County, Texas, Thursday, March 11, 1926 | NUMBER 65

Rambles
Over the County

J. W. L. COOK
The Leader's Rambling Editor

Farm Improvements

In our rambles over the county during the past winter, we have noticed a large amount of improvement going on. The farmers seem to be waking up as to the fact that their lands need to be fed as well as their families and stock.

There have been thousands of tons of fertilizer spread over the farms the past winter. Last year, we only noticed about four farms that there was any fertilizer spread over the land. This year we have noticed farm after farm that has partly been covered with cotton burrs and barn yard manure.

Better Appearances Too

We have also noticed more attention being paid to the fences and to the general appearance of the homes. The farmers are painting and repairing at almost every home. This is a move in the right way. I have said before that Collingsworth County had some of the best and the prettiest homes of any place I have ever lived and I still think the same but there is no material thing that will last always. We may have fine, rich land but if we cultivate it year after year and put nothing back on it, we will sooner or later have a poor farm to cultivate. If when we first build a home, erect a building lay off and put in our tillable land, we would resolve in our minds to keep it just as near to the plan we first made, or had we would always have good homes and farms. Keep the land built up, so that it will keep its fertility. Keep it so that it will not wash away. Keep the buildings repaired and use plenty of paint. Keep the orchards in good condition. If a tree dies, put out another. By this means we will always have a good home, a good house that we will be proud of and our places will become better and better insead of getting poorer and poorer. Most of the farm owners of this country and especially the old settled places, have let them run down The houses look old. Some need paint and repairing generally. The outbuilding on some places are in the same shape, but as we said at first, this is being changed. We think there will be a great change in this respect in a year or so.

There are many improvements over the county. New homes are being settled. The old ranches will soon be gone and over the vast bodies of land that once made up these ranches new homes are springing up. Some fine houses and farm buildings are being built, so the old places, if they keep up with th country as to appearances will have to get busy and put on some new clothes.

W. B. Boarman

Our visit last week was to the east and south of Wellington. We visited the home of W. B. Boarman who lives about two miles northeast of Wellington. Mr. Boarman owns one of the prettiest homes in the county. We do not mean it is the prettiest for there are so many pretty homes in Collingsworth County that it would be difficult to decide which was the prettiest. this home consists of 120 acres of real good rich, sandy land, or rather a mixed land on which stands a modern built good house and good improvements generally. He has a nice orchard and fine shade trees surrounding the house The yard is full of shrubbery and fine flowers. Mr. Boarman says he made a good crop last year, but the low price for cotton left him with no profit from his crop. Me made a good cotton crop for the year and his feed was good. He is a paid up subscriber to the Leader.

C. B. Nunnelly

Our next farm to visit was that of C. B. Nunnelly who lives five miles southeast of Wellington. Mr. Nunnelly has lived in Collingsworth County about six years. He came to this county from Wichita County, Texas. Mr. Nunnelly is a native of Missouri but has lived in Texas for 20 years. Mr. Nunnelly has a good home. He owns 160 acres of good level land. He has a good house and fairly good farm buildings. He has a good home orchard. Mr. Nunnelly says he made a fair crop last year. He made about a fourth of a bale to the acre of cotton.

He says his feed made very little grain but that he harvested enough bundle stuff to run his farm for another year. Mr. Nunnelly says he will plant less cotton this year and more feed. He is a subscriber to the Leader and put his expiration date up to 1927.

Hayden Williams

Our next home to visit was that of Hayden Williams who lives on the J. A. Richardson farm, six miles south east of Wellington. Mr. Williams came here from Hunt County four years ago. He was born and raised in that county. He says he likes this county as a farming country. He says he made about a fourth of a bale to the acre on his cotton last year. His feed crop was short but he made enough to run him this year. Mr. Williams is a paid up subscriber to the Leader.

W. T. Jackson

Our last place to visit for the week was the home of W. T. Jackson who lives near the Bowen school. There are Jacksons and Jackson in this country but this one is known as Chicken Jackson. He has something over 400 White Leghorns. Mr. Jackson tells us he is getting over 250 eggs every day. This is over 20 dozen, which at the low price of 25c a dozen is a five dollar bill every day. Mr. Jackson owns a nice little home. He has a nice house and good outbuildings. He has plenty of room for his chickens, laying houses, roosting houses and brooder houses. He has a nice orchard, a fine well of water. All this stands on his one hundred acre farm. His land is a mixed sand and loam, nice and level. Mr. Jackson is here to stay. We ate dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Jackson and had an enjoyable hour with them, working over the poultry and then getting a square meal. He gave us an order for the Leader on more year.

T. R. Buntin Dies Of Heart Failure Sunday Morning

Drops Dead in Chair Sunday Morning at His Home Near Quail

Thomas Reece Buntin, 60, died of heart failure at his home near Quail last Sunday, March 7. Mr. Buntin has been suffering from heart trouble for over a year. He was sitting in the front room Sunday morning about 9 a. m., after eating breakfast. Apparently he was resting well, when he was heard to exclaim: "Oh, I'm gone!" and fell over.

Minister Ira L. Sanders conducted the funeral services at Quail last Monday afternoon. Mr. Buntin was buried in the Quail cemetery.

Mr. Buntin had lived in Collingsworth County for several years. He was born in Tennessee, but was raised in Texas. He leaves a wife and three children.

J. L. COOPER WILL PLANT MORE FEED AND LESS COTTON

J. T. Cooper, a farmer ten miles northwest of Wellington came to the Leader office Monday and placed an ad in the want ad section.

Mr. Cooper cultivated sixty acres of cotton the past year and picked 18 bales. He calculates that he made enough feed both grain and bundle to feed him teams to make this years crop. Mr. Cooper states that he considered the farmer with the largest crop of cotton this year as the worst off, and that something ought to be done to reduce the cotton acreage. He says his row crop this year will consist of about 240 acres of which he will plant only 75 acres in cotton, the remainder will be planted in feed. Mr. Cooper came to this county eight year ago, and made his application to become a subscriber to the Leader immediately after his arrival here. He has read the history of Collingsworth County and considers the book well worth the price. As to the Leader, Mr Cooper states that it is the best paper inits class he has ever read. He depends on the Leader for his reliable information, as it comes to his mail box twice a week.

Style Show Draws Big Crowd Tues.

The Baker & Hanna Brothers Style Show which was given at the Rialto Theatre last Tuesday night drew a packed house. By the time the show started, only standing room was left.

The style show was well arranged and well carried out. A comedy was shown first and then the style show was held. During the style show, Mrs. Aubrey Dobbs presented her orchestra in a recital number, and Miss Leila Giles gave a reading.

After the style show the feature picture was shown.

Cutting Some Fancy Figures

Dr. T. B. Miller Dies in Ft. Worth On March 6th

Pioneer of Collingsworth County Had Many Friends In Wellington

Dr. T. B. Miller of Goodnight, one of the pioneers of Collingsworth County died in Fort Worth last Saturday after undergoing an operation. Burial services were held at Goodnight Tuesday.

Dr. Miller was one of the first settlers of this county. He was a brother in law of F. H. Royal of Wellington. Dr. Miller came to this county about 1889. For a few years he lived in a dugout four miles south of Wellington. He and his wife were charter members of the First Baptist Church of Wellington. They took a leading part in the church work as long as they were in Wellingotn. Dr. Miller married Miss Bessie Royal in Hunt County before moving to Collingsworth.

Dr. Miller is survived by eight children. They are Gaitner Miller of Fort Worth, Amos, Mary, Mal and Joe Miller of Goodnight, Dr. O. H. Miller of Dennison and Miss Ella Dee of Louisiana.

WELLINGTON P.-T. A. HOLDS MEETING HERE

The Wellington Parent-Teachers' Association met Friday, March 5th, with Miss Pat Hargan as the principal speaker for the occasion. This meeting was held in the East ward school building. In Miss Hargan's talk to the school children she brought out many important facts as to the proper diet for the children. Miss Hargan stated that if the proper diet was given to the children they would advance faster in their studies.

She said children could load their stomachs with unbalanced foods and become sluggish and lazy, and would not comprehend the many different ideas brought in their lessons.

The next meeting of the P.-T. A. will be held Friday, March 19th at the East Ward school building. A large attendance is urged to be present.

NEED A LITTLE HELP?

Every day Leader want ads are selling things for the people of Collingsworth County and they are doing it at a very low cost. Let one of them help you.

Church of Christ To Hold Meeting

The Church of Christ will conduct an evangelistic meeting in Wellington for two weeks starting on March 18. Minister C. McClung will do the preaching for the services. Minister McClung is a very forceful speaker and will bring a world of thought and power with his messages.

B. R. Bassell, who is already well known to the people of Wellington, will be in charge of the song services. In past meetings he has worked up a very forceful and appealing music service during the meetings and he is due to repeat in the coming meeting.

Minister Ira L. Sanders extends a cordial invitation to everyone to be present at these services.

POULTRY ASS'N TO MEET SATURDAY

The Collingsworth County Poultry Association will have a special meeting Saturday, March 13 at 7:30 p. m., in the county court house. Several important problems will be discussed at this meeting.

DR. LOVING ENJOYS VACATION IN SOUTH

Otto Buerger says that there is a rumor over Wellington that Dr. J. H. Loving is dead, but that it is a mistake. Dr. Loving is in Brownsville spending his time fishing and cultivating his garden. He is eating vegetables that he raised himself, Mr. Buerger says.

The January remittance of State and County taxes for Collingsworth was more than $160,000.00 which does not include automobile tax nor school districts 1, 10 or 17. According to Jim Cook and Mrs. Laura Campbell.

Club Boys Will Judge Livestock Here Next Week

County Agent Stinson Arranges for Boys to Get Actual Experience

The Club boys of the county are going to do some actual livestock judging work next week, according to county agent C. C. Stinson. Boys acquire knowledge much quicker by actually doing the things they are studying about than in any other way. So the teachers have arranged for some practical work for the boys in the communities where the boys club work is getting started best. Out at Lutie on Monday morning, March 15, not only the 20 club boys from that school but two car loads of boys from the Lillie school expect to take part in the judging work at Lillie. Classes have been arranged for dairy cattle, hogs, sheep some advanced methods in poultry. At Lillie Tuesday, March 16 the boys of Lillie and Salt Fork expect to judge together. At Dodsonville livestock judging and terracing will be combined Wednesday, March 17. At Quail classes have been arranged for the boys of that community and also the boys of Pleasant Hill to take part in judging work March 18.

MARGUERITE CARTER IS IN PLAY AT C. I. A.

DENTON, Texas., March 10—Miss Marguerite Carter of Wellington, a sophomore in the College of Industrial Arts, took the part of Sadie Fellows a widow, in the play "Icebound" which today, given at C. I. A. by the members of the Dramatic Club. The play was a modern comedy drama in three acts.

Reading students at the state college for women are presented frequently in dramatics and recitals during the course of each college year. Many of them become finished performers by the colse of their student careers. Miss Carter has been showing unusual promise in her work.

W. M. Owens is Shot and Killed Sunday Morning

Martin Released on $5,000 Bond Soon After the Shooting

W. M. Owens was shot and killed last Sunday when he went to the home of J. W. Martin to take his daughter Mrs. Mark Anderson back to his house Martin was formally charged with murder and released on $5,000 bond.

According to the story that Martin told the officials. Mrs. Mark Anderson, Owens' daughter was adjudged of unsound mind some time ago and was sent to a sanitaiurm. She was later brought back by her father and kept in a structure near Owens house.

Her husband learned how she was kept, Mr. Martin said, and brought her to his house. He father came to Martin's house and demanded her return. This was refused and in the altercation that followed, Owens was shot.

Owens was buried at the Wellington cemetery Tuesday, March 9th.

NEEDHAM BELIEVES IN CONSERVING THE FERTILITY OF SOIL

Mr. Needham of the Salt Fork community has only been in the county one year but stated to County agent C. C. Stinson last week that he produced half enough in 1925 to pay for his farm he purchased a year ago. He produced twice as much feed as he needed for his own use, produced more dairy products than was used by his family, sold quite a lot of fresh vegetables, melons, etc, during the year. He raises some poultry for market, produces more home cured meat than the family needs. Then he says he produced and harvested his own cotton crop, which was above the average. Mr. Needham is conserving and building up his soil by terracing and using cow peas to add humus. Mr. Needham believes a farmer should own a car if he is able to pay for it, otherwise he believes he should continue to use his buggy. When more farmers get ideas regarding their farming operations that Mr. Needham has, farming is going to be more pleasant and profitable.

Nabors Speaks at Buck Creek School

On Monday evening, March 8th, J. T. Nabors spoke to a very attentive audience at the Buck Creek school on the value of education. He took up the value of an education from the standpoint of its financial advantages, increased usefulness and added satisfaction.

He also said that for education to be of the greatest value that it should also be of the right kind. "The right kind of education," he declared, "contains the following essentials: First, the thorough teaching of the subjects of the curriculum; Second, arousing the ambition of the pupil to do worth while things; Third, the development of moral characters. The preservation of the pupils' faith in God and the Bible."

Before Rev. Nabors made his speech the directors for Buck Creek school were nominated. Those nominated were: G. K. Patterson, J. C. Hartman, H. Lacy and B. B. Stafford. Two out of this number will be elected on April 3.

GOODSONS WILL HOLD OPEN HOUSE MARCH 13

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Goodson will hold open house in their new funeral parlor next Saturday. They have fixed up their place of business so that it resembles a home more than a place of business. They extend an invitation to everyone to pay them a visit Saturday.

BAND CONCERT FRIDAY

The Wellington Band will play a concert on the court house lawn Friday evening, March 12 at 7:30 if the weather permits.

Dr. and Mrs. T. A. Hudson went to Vernon Sunday, bringing Keener home with them. Keener has been real sick for several days.

Cement Brick Plant Established Here

Austin O'Neil Locates Another New Industry in Wellington

Wellington will have a brick plant with a capacity of 1,200 brick a day in operation this week if Polly O'Neil is able to get his equipment set and adjusted. He already has the building that will house his plant constructed just south of Ed Riley's Machine Shop

This plant, Mr. O'Neil said will be used to make concrete brick, tile and concrete blocks. "These cement brick" he declared, "are stronger than clay brick. They are waterproof and will stand fire better.

"A test was made last week between one of the sample bricks and a clay brick. In this test the cement brick and a clay brick were placed in an furnace and heated. When the clay brick was dropped into water after being heated it crumbled but the cement brick which was subjected to the same test is still a good brick. A water test showed that the clay brick would absorb over ten times as much water as the cement brick."

"These bricks will be manufactured and sold in Wellington in both common and face brick. The cost will range between $28 and $36 per thousand. About two hundred samples of these bricks have been made already and can be seen on display at any of the lumber yards in Wellington.

This enterprise will assist in keeping Wellington money at home.

By The Society Owl

**

MRS. S. G. HENRY, Editor
Phone 241

"Well, well, I see you are enjoying a sun bath this glorious morning," said the Society Owl, coming up the walk.

"Yes, I am enjoying the warm sunshine but I am also looking at these climbers," I answered, as the Owl seated himself beside me on the porch

"See the tiny green leaves peeping out, and there are two bunches of hollyhocks up, out there near the fence. and Oh! the trees—they're all covered with the loveliest blossoms," I cried, rapturously.

"Yes, they are beautiful," replied the Owl, "but I am afraid its too early It isn't a good sign," he continued sadly.

"You mean the fruit will be killed?" I asked.

"Its a little early for blossoms," and he shook his head sadly.

"Did you enjoy your walk into the woods last week?" I asked the Society Owl, as he sat there thinking.

"I surely did, but there isn't any woods out here," laughed the owl. "You say such funny things. Say, that is good. WOODS! in the Panhandle.!"

"Well," I said wistfully, "I miss the trees a lot, of course we weren't famed for our woods but we had an awful lot of groves and places where we could go for the day and picnic, and enjoy a sultry afternoon in the shade of the trees while a cool breeze played thru the branches and softly kissed our foreheads."

"I think you love the outdoors," he said. "There are a number of places here for outings and you will find them when its time for such things."

"Where is your note book?" I asked. "Do you have nothing to tell me?

"Well, there hasn't been quite so much this week as last, but there has been two or three lovely affairs," replied the Society Owl. "Members of the Bridge Club enjoyed a lovely luncheon on Thursday. And on Friday evening one of the Evening Bridge Clubs enoyed a cozy little party. Then on Saturday evening a crowd of the younger misses from an organization of one of the churches enjoyed a very lovely party in a neighboring town, returning home on Sunday afternoon."

"That was a lovely arrangement," I interrupted. "I think that spirit of cooperation is a big factor in club and church work alike."

"Indeed it is," resumed the Society Owl. "Then on Tuesday one of the Study Clubs enjoyed an interesting lesson and on Wednesday another one delighted its members with an unusually good program."

"You know," I said to the Society Owl, "It has gotten to the state where Study Clubs have really taken the honor place in Club life. The club movement, started some three or four years ago by Miss Mary Sherman, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs has certainly yielded greater fruit than was expected. Now every mother who wishes to keep informed on current issues, and who wants to be able to keep a step ahead of her children, who wants to be able to discuss the political issues, the national and international problems, intelligently with her husband, the woman who would be a real companion someone to share confidences and opinions with, that is our Club women of today. The monotony of home life for thousands of women who have no other social activity, who otherwise would have no systematic contact with other mothers, at the same time each meeting brings a great lesson to be learned and in time taught to the children. I am certainly strong for the Clubs movement," I ended.

"Yes, it is as you say, a great thing and nevry year more women realize this," said the Owl.

"I didn't really mean to interrupt you," I apologized.

"Well, there isn't much more to tell you," answered the Owl, returning to his notebook. "Ere these lines are in print we will have enjoyed another style show. We are promised a showing of ultra smart frocks for miladys wardrobe. Then next week is our week of parties. Always lovely affairs, and these will possibly be all the more beautiful for at this season of the year we have the ever charming St. Patrick decorations and appointments and immediately succeeding the "Irish motif" season the hostess will find herself surrounded by the Easter decorations, baby chicks, little bunnies, colored eggs, baskets, etc. On Friday, a class of mothers will enjoy a St. Patrick's party and on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Bridge and "42" will hold sway."

"That promises to be a full week," I suggested. At the same time I got a whiff of something burning from the kitchen. "Oh, my beans! I've forgotten them," I yelled, as I ran for the door, and as I ran through the door I heard a flapping of wings and as I angrily jerked the burning beans from the stove, to my ears came that unmistakeable sound—"Who-o o o o who o o and for the second time I knew the Society Owl was laughing, laughing at me any away in the distance I heard an echo—

"Who o o o o o are you o o o o ?"

M. E. MISSIONARY PARTY AT SHAMROCK

A lovely party was tendered the young girls Missionary Society of this district on Saturday, when the Society at Shamrock were hostesses. Five girls from the local society were present and report a most enjoyable time. The Shamrock girls entertained with a well planned party, games, contests, etc., featuring the evening's entertainment. After which lovely refreshments were served to a large number of girls and the district officials of the Society. The visiting girls were assigned to homes for the night, and on Sunday morning Special services were held at the church a feature of which was a very fine talk on young people's work by Mrs. C. E. Jameson, district chairman from Memphis. Girls who represented Wellington were Misses Dorette Beggs Alleene Blain, Thelma Masten, Mildred Scruggs and Faye Anderson.

Mrs. and Mrs. Jim Forbis of Shamrock were visiting relatives and other friends in Wellington Sunday.

MRS. ORR HOSTESS TO BRIDGE LUNCHEON

The Orr home was the scene of a lovely party last Thursday when Mrs. Orr was hostess to the members of the Bridge Luncheon and several guests.

The hostess chose as her decorative scheme the spring motif, using Spring flowers in lovely colors in profusion. The tallies and table appointments all carrying out the Spring motif. Each table was centered with beautiful cut flowers and fern. Mrs. Koger assisted Mrs. Orr in serving a delicious two-course luncheon. After which the tables were arranged for the games.

At the close of the games Mrs. Koger held high score among the members and Mrs. Pinkston was consoled for low, while among the guests Mrs. LeDerer held high and Mrs. Crawford low. All received dainty gifts. The guest list for this lovely party included Mesdames Hilburn, Pinkston, Horn, Small, Koger, Watkins, Cochran, Buster and Stephenson members and Mesdames Todd, Clark, LeDerer, Crawford, Sullivan and Gribble guests. The club accepted the resignation of Mrs. Hilburn, who has moved to Amarillo. Mrs. Pink Sullivan was elected into the club as a new member.

P. W. C. BRIDGE CLUB MEETS WITH MRS. WATKINS

Members of the P. W. C. Bridge Club enjoyed a lovely meeting on Friday evening when Mrs. M. P. Watkins entertained with a dinner, after which Bridge was enjoyed for several hours. At the close of the games Mrs. Koger held high score, and second high went to Mrs. Bowers and Mrs. Hudson was consoled for low. Those who enjoyed this affair were Mesdames Rollins, Benge, LeDerer, Bowers, Hudson and Miss Peggy Hill, members and Mesdames Pete Clower of Memphis, Crawford, Cochran, Koger and Alley, guests.

M. E. MISSIONARY SOCIETY MEETS MONDAY

Members of the M. E. Missionary Society met at the Church on Monday afternoon and enjoyed a program from the Missionary Voice. With Mrs. Hooser as Leader, using as her subject "The effect of the recent immigration exclusion act upon the Christian movement in Japan." Splendid topics bearing on the subject were given by Mrs. Hardy, Mrs. Clifford and Mrs. Mahan. After which a round table discussion followed. The devotional was led by Mrs. Lynn. There were fourteen members present.

CULTURE CLUB MEETS WITH MRS. SULLIVAN

The Culture Club enjoyed a delightful meeting at the home of Mrs. Pink Sullivan on Tuesday afternoon when the subject for the afternoon dealt mainly with the teaching of the Arts and Crafts to children and its results. The club paper was read by Mrs. Sullivan. Other topics were given by Mrs. Watkins and Mrs. Henry.

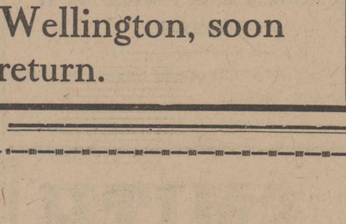

Mrs. Austin told the story, "The Land Where the Fairies Never Came" which was greatly enjoyed. Mrs. Henry delighted the members with two short readings

At the close of the program the hostess served a lovely refreshment plate carrying out the St. Patricks decorative scheme. Members present included Mesdames Cochran, O'Neil, Austin, E. Lewis, McClaskey, Small, Henry, and Watkins.

The Forelock is Here

A business man made the statement last week that Wellington offered slight opportunities for a man of ability. He bolstered up his remarks with certain facts which gave it the semblance of truth, but his reasoning, followed far enough, will lead to the conclusion that every man of ability should move to New York. It is the largest city in the country. More money is made there than in any other town or metropolis. It offers more diversions. It is the center or art, music, literature, drama, finance, etc. Yet there are great artists, great financiers, great writers who do not live in New York.

That only answers a part of his argument. This business man contended certain forces in Wellington stifled ability, and he was right about it, but it must also be remembered that more ability is stifled in the great cities than in the towns and villages. It is just as easy to get in a rut in a city as it is in a town or in the country. Staying out of a rut depends more on the individual than it does upon circumstances.

All this however, is negative. It tells nothing of the possibilities of Wellington. Wellington is located in one of the best counties in West Texas—the most prosperous section in the United States. It is a growing country. It will enjoy a much greater agricultural and industrial development in the next twenty years than it has in the past twenty, and that is considerable. What more could a man of ability want? The only trouble is that the hair on the forelock of old man opportunity is so long here that it blows in some people's eyes and blinds them.

Planting Cotton

A farmer was heard to make this remark on the streets of Wellington. "I am going to plant more cotton this year. All of the newspapers are full of the need for planting less cotton. If that advice is heeded the cotton acreage will be less. If the cotton acreage is less, the price will be good and the man with the large crop will prosper. Therefore I intend to plant more cotton."

Such reasoning would be logical if about a million other farmers were not intending the do the same thing. Estimates indicate that the cotton acreage will be ten per cent greater in 1926 than in 1925. If the crops in certain sections had not been ruined, the 1925 crop would have been twenty million bales instead of fifteen. Imagine what will happen if it is a good year and all cotton sections produce well with a ten per cent increase in acreage. Good cotton will sell for 10 cents a pound.

Every farmer in Collingsworth County should plant some cotton, but the farmer who gambles a years work and what money he has on one crop is taking a ten to once chance. But there is one thing about it, the farmer who depends too much on cotton is not lonesome for company. There will be a million other farmers in the same fix.

The Big Race

Dan Moody has announced for Governor. That makes two honest, capable men who are in the race. Lynch Davidson announced a short time ago. Davidson wants to give the people of Texas a business administration By that it is understood that he means an honest and upright administration as well as an efficient one, for that is the kind of a man he has always been.

Dan Moody will make a more colorful candidate. But that does not mean that he would make a better Governor. The race that Davidson ran last year, clean, courageous and progressive, a race on real issues, deserves the recognition of the people of Texas. The record that Dan Moody has made will gain the attention of the voters. Moody probably intends to attack the Ferguson administration with all his eloquence and depend upon the sentiment aroused by his attack to carry him to victory. Davidson probably intends to base his candidacy upon sound policies to be carried out after he is in office and upon experienced ability in public office.

The strength of each of these candidates may split the vote of a certain element in the state sufficiently to enable Ferguson to get in the run off, but it is going to be a tough race for Mrs. Ferguson when she is pitted against either of these candidates alone.

The Revivals

Two revivals will start in Wellington within the next month. Such meetings rejuvenate the spiritual strength of the town and deserve the co-operation of all right thinking people. Although revival meetings are just as worthy as they ever were, they are not the institutions they once were. In other days, a revival meeting was a social function as well as a religious festival. When a revival meeting was held, the people gathered from miles around to take part in the meeting. If they lived near at hand they only brought their dinner, but if they lived at a considerable distance, they brought enough to last them for a week or two and camped near the meeting ground. They put their business aside. Their whole hearted devotion brought them pleasure as well as comfort. Such devotion added to the strength of the meeting and as a result the revivals stirred the whole country. Such revivals are hard to develop under present conditions. That is the reason evangelists so often pray for an old fashioned revival.

From Other Newspapers

The Power of Advertising

Beyond all question the most potent creator of business demands in America is the newspaper advertisement. Millions upon millions of dollars are expended every day i the stores of the country because well written advertisements have directed public attention to convenient, attractive, becoming, useful, ornamental and suitable merchandise. The sale of all necessities, all luxuries, all indulgences, is most powerfully stimulated by the newspaper advertisement than by any other agency. Only hunger, cold and nakedness are comparable as a promotor of sales—and even then purchases of food, fuel and clothing are directed more largely by the business columns of the press than by any other influence except immediate necessity.

The greatest stores in our greatest cities have been built up by their advertising, the persistent and clever invitations to the public press to share their bargains. Imagine what would happen to the daily sales of merchandise, real estate, theatre tickets, insurance, books, and other things if newspaper advertisements were prohibited for six months, by law. It is not exaggeration to say they would drop 50 per cent.

It is not the current news of events alone that makes the press of such incalculable value to the nation, nor the free expression of opinion. Teh business news of the day, as told by business concerns in their announcement to the public, decisively influences both the volume and the direction of trade which flows to this or that store, office or bank. This is a fundamental fact no business house can afford to overlook.—The Ft. Worth Star Telegram.

He Didn't Follow the Crowd

We once knew a farmer who never followed the crowd. If cotton was high one year, he figured that everybody would plant a large acreage the next. Therefore he planted those things that his neighbors would need. A large cotton acreage always found him with a large grain and feedstuff crop. He made a lcose study of the question of supply and demand and particularly as regards the needs of his nearby markets. He had something to sell nearly every week in the year. His neighbors grew cotton almost exclusively. He got most of the cotton money by selling them feedstuff for their work animals. He also supplied many with fruits, vegetables and dairy products. That farmer prospered. He educated his children, and at his death left an estate sufficient to care for his widow.—Farm and Ranch.

Governor Ferguson

Governor Miriam A. Ferguson has announced that she will be candidate to succeed herself in the coming Democratic primaries. She makes this announcement in spite of the fact that in a statement made many, many months ago, she said that she would not be a candidate. She declares that the name of Ferguson needs more vindication and that her candidacy rests upon that purpose. The people of Texas are wearying somewhat of the personal troubles of the Fergusons and it is easy to see that they are likely to be given the "let alone" treatment that any town-bore gets when he continually pours out his personal grievances and troubles to his fellows. Furthermore, it is very apparent that the Fergusons are more than willing to continue in office, even if the stain is not specifically removed from the family escutcheon, just in order to receive the princely fees that "Jeems" draws down by reason of his proximity to the gubernatorial ear, the profitable bonding business that Mrs. Nallie holds by being in the family. Nothing unlawful, at all, but abnormally rich in profits, nevertheless. The Fergusons will be disasterously defeated this summer. —Clarendon News.

Natural Growth is Best

It is announced that one of the largest real estate firms in America is soon to open offices in the principal cities in the Panhandle-Plains seciton. This company expects to exploit this section much like California and Florida have been in the past. The Index is not pleased with this news, although it may bring a fortune to the land owners. Every country that is over advertised or boomed is sure to meet with decline. Northwest Texas has had a steady growth for many years and there have been no reactions.

It is not right to fleece the people and big real estate booms always result in this. A majority of the firms are honest but the quacks also operate.

Northwest Texas is the best part of America. It con tains more good, undeveloped land than any other section and the cheapest farm land in America. Irrigation is not necessary. Crops are raised every year but it is not a country which makes one-cropping profitable.

The Panhandle country and all of northwest Texas once was not considered as a mineral territory. It is rich in gypsum, clays, oil and gas. It has the greatest gas fields in the world. It has good railroad outlets but is seriously handicapped in that there are not sufficient railroads. The territory is as large or larger than Illinois, capable of sustaining a population of two or three million people without over-crowding. All we want is a fair chance to grow and develop in a way that will not spell disaster in years to come.—Childress Index.

An Entertaining Writer

A writer of distinctive ability is Mrs. J. W. Cheney, editor of the Southwest Plainsman.

Mrs. Cheney has the knack of writing, and the ability to write entertainingly is something hard to explain or define. There are many thorough scholars who have never been able to attract fame for the reason there is a sameness or precision about their writings that tend to dryness.

A dull writer never achieves success.

Mrs. Cheney's articles are easily and smoothly absorbed by the reader and possess a certain "punch" or snap that interests.

The News-Globe would feel privileged if it could obtain regular and frequent contributions from Mrs. Cheney, but she is so busy with her own publication she has no time for other writing.—Amarillo News.

THE PASSING DAY

WILL H. MAYES
Former Dean
Department of Journalism
University of Texas

Texas Schools in Politics.

Now that Dean L. H. Hubbard has been elected to the presidency of the College of Industrial Arts, it is hoped by all who are interested in the success of the College that he may be allowed to form plans and work them out. The College of Industrial Arts, like most other Texas schools, has been used in the past too much to serve the political purposes of the politicians. No man can really succeed at the head of a great school and feel forced to play politics to secure the funds with which to maintain it or to retain his position. No teacher can do good work unless he is measurably independent of politics. There are those who contend that any teacher with enough personality to attract attention to himself in Texas is always in danger of becoming a political target, and that tenure of position is safe only for the unknown or those who lack individuality enough to attract attention to themselves, that political automatons, and not men of real brain force are desired in the schools. Of course that statement is rather too broad, but the fact that it is repeatedly heard makes one think there may be some truth in it.

Universities Should Be Self-Governing.

There is no reason why a state university or college should be, in fact, dominated by boards of regents, boards of control, legislative committees and others with the power at any time to cripple its activities. As a rule those who compose political official families know very little about school matters and controlling boards know but little more about such things. They may be ever so competent in other things, good business men, anxious to promote the interests of the institutions they serve, but in the nature of things they can't go closely into a study of educational needs and so they become mere figure-heads as board members. School faculties are composed of persons who devote their lives to a study of school problems, whereas boards are composed of business men who devote only a few days a year for a brief number of years to such studies. Legislative committees know even less about school requirements in a great state like Texas, and governros with the power of veto can give little time to the thousands of diversified school problems. Whatever educational problems need board supervision should have the control of boards of the faculty, and the president of an institution alone should be authorized to veto the action of the faculty, to which control of a school should be given.

Seeking New Thrills.

The old sensations do not appear to satisfy the youth of today, who is constantly seeking something new and untried. It is doubtful, for that matter, if those of us who are older are any longer really thrilled by anything. Things are no longer wonderful; however unusual or novel, they are accepted as ordinary events. I listened on New Year's morning, over the radio, to the ringing of the Liberty Bell in Philadelphia as complacently as if it had been nothing unusual. Tonight I may tune in on New York or Havana, or Mexico City for the best musical concert either of those cities can furnish. Why not, and what of it? Nothing surprises any more, nothing startles. What may not tomorrow or another year bring forth?

May Yet Talk With Mars.

The papers recently brought the information that W. J. McDonald, a Paris, Texas, banker, had left nearly one and a half million dollars to the University of Texas for the erection of an astronomical observatory. Dean H. Y. Benedict of the University, who is professor of astronomy, thinks that with that amount of money the power of the observatory may be limited only by the ability of men to produce strong lenses or whatever other things are used in making observations of the heavens. Who knows but that in a few years we may be peeking over at Mars, about which we have been so curious so long, and that some one may discover the Mars air wave length and let us talk with the Martians? All things seem probable now.

Texas' Scenic Beachway.

Texas is building the greatest beach driveway to be found anywhere. I will let the Houston Chronicle tell you about it: "This beach, 400 miles long —Galveston to Point Isabell, no doubt the longest beach scenic highway—is destined to become the playground of the central states. It will be ready for traffic the latter part of the summer. Telephone service is now being installed with long distance stations every five miles. Barges connecting the islands and crossing river deltas are under construction at Corpus Christi, and plans are under way for several causeways bridging these gaps. Picture the future, 400 miles of hard, sandy beach, smooth and level as a table, shaded by palms and other Southern flora, service stations and happy homes, and you will have the idea actuating the originators of the improvements."

While this is written in February the day is bright, balmy and springlike, and the lure of spring is here. No man gets so old or so far removed from farm life that he does not suffer intense homesickness for the farm, if he was reared in the country. The farmer is often anxious at such a season to get away to the woods or to the creek banks, but the city man thinks mostly of the soil itself and wants to get out where he can enjoy its odors and breathe it all in as he did when a boy.

SCHOOL DAYS

WHEN I WAS TWENTY-ONE

BY JOSEPH KAYE

At 21—Norman Hapgood Wanted, More Than Anything Else, to Draw Big Royalty Checks.

"WHEN I was at the age of twenty-one I was a student at Harvard university. But nothing I studied at college could satisfy my ambition. My thoughts jumped beyond the campus, and settled on the busy streets of the metropolis, where mighty editors ruled mighty publications, on the pages of which I visualized my name, prefixed by the treasured word 'by.'

"The ambition that possessed me at twenty-one was to be a successful writer.—Norman Hapgood."

TODAY—Norman Hapgood is himself one of those editors he dreamed of storming in their lairs in those early days at college. As editor of a well-known magazine, he doubtless hears daily young men voicing the words that used to form his own motto, "I want to be a successful writer," and daily he and his readers have to send out batches of rejection slips that tumble down the spirits of these ambitious young men from the mounts of hope to the deep valleys of dejection.

Mr. Hapgood has had a varied career. He began as the dramatic critic of the New York Commercial, a financial newspaper that runs a dramatic section for the benefit of the tired brokers and bankers; then he worked on the Bookman for five years and was graduated to the post of editor of Collier's Weekly. In 1919 he was appointed E. E. and M. P.—which means envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary — from the United States to Denmark, and a short time ago he became a magazine editor.

WHO SAID

"No Violent Extreme Endures"?

THOMAS CARLYLE, author of this succinct axiom, was the son of a mason and farmer. He was born in Ecclefechan, Dumfriesshire, Scotland, December 4, 1795, and although his parents intended him for a ministerial career, his propensity to authorship at an early age convinced the young man at least that he was more fitted for the pursuit of literature.

Although his first literary attempts were published in the Edinburgh "Encyclopedia," his career may be said to have begun in the "London Magazine" in 1823, when portions of his "Life of Schiller" appeared. This work in later years was treated separately, and appeared in special form in 1825—Carlyle's first success of note in the literary field.

Few authors have had their works studied so minutely as Carlyle, and his ease and fluency in writing have been seized upon by many as examples of the sort of literature which always will endure.

Much time was spent on his "History of Friedrich the II of Prussia," called "Frederick the Great," and this production of his pen also was the largest the eminent author turned out. The last two volumes appeared in 1865, and although he continued to some extent in his field, this work in reality marked the end of a successful career.

While in Scotland Carlyle received word of the death in London of his wife, accounting for much of his later seclusion. In his later life he was offered a government pension and a baronetcy, both of which he declined. He died at Chelsea, February 5, 1881. —Wayne D. McMurray.

What Use Are Husbands?

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THE husband woman wants is one
Who helps her get her dishes done,
Who picks things up, not leaves them loose,
A man who's just a little use,
And not too proud to sweep a floor.
A handy man to hang a door,
Or close one that he finds ajar—
And not the way that most men are.

The husband women like to see,
I think all women will agree,
Is one who holds a baby right,
Is one, when he comes home at night,
Who takes the children off her hands,
Is one who children understands—
I guess the model husband, maybe,
Is one who likes to hold the baby.

But ordinary husbands—well,
You women know, I needn't tell.
There's not a thing that they will do
To help you get your housework through.
They're off downtown at break of dawn,
To some old office they have gone,
And there till late at night they stay—
What are they good for, anyway?

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day, lucky jewel

UNA

THOUGH not in general usage, Una is one of the most interesting of feminine names. It means "famine," according to etymologists, though the great and only Spenser who brought the name into fashion rejected this interpretation. It is typically an Irish name and since it resembles "one," Spenser gave the title of Una to his lovely personation of the one truth, the one true undivided church, the guide of the Red Cross Knight.

Una is queen of the fairies in the county of Ormond, in which she appears in one version of the story of the soldier billeted on a miser. The man was amazed at his hospitable reception and entertainment as he thought by the avaricious squire, until morning disclosed the fact that Una had raised the mansion and provided the supper.

Una is much in use today among the Irish peasantry. It is often pronounced Oonagh and has been Anglicized as Winny.

The pearl is Una's talismanic gem. It is the emblem of purity, popularity and affability. She who wears it will have many friends and admirers. Tuesday is her lucky day and 5 her lucky number.

ACHING LIMBS

And Many Other Common Ills Relieved by Black-Draught.

Mrs. John Skaggs, residing near Lanes Prairie, Mo., on the Ozark Trail, says: "I have taken Black-Draught for a number of years, about fifteen, and it is about the only purgative medicine I ever take. It is the only kind that I've found that doesn't hurt me.

"I take Black-Draught for indigestion, for colds and headaches. I take it for aching in my limbs and shoulders. It helps this trouble. I take it for sour stomach.

"We think Black-Draught is splendid and never are without it in the house.

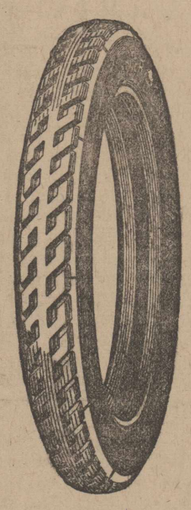

"I suffered with gas on my stomach that affected my breathing, and Black-Draught helped this trouble.

"For such common complaints, I think Black-Draught is the best medicine a person can use."

For millions of others, Black-Draught is their favorite liver and stomach medicine.

Ford

For the First Time $500 Buys a Closed Car

If you plan to spend over $500 F. O. B. Factory for an automobile, you can get the year-round comfort and convenience of a Ford closed car.

The price advantage which the public enjoys in purchasing Ford cars is the result of volume production. In 1920, when the Ford Motor Company was producing approximately only a million cars a year, the Ford Touring Car sold for $575. Today, with production on the basis of nearly two million cars a year, the Tudor Sedan, a high quality all-steel closed car, can be purchased for $520—$55 less than the Touring Car sold for six years ago. Open car prices are correspondingly low.

While this program of price reduction has been carried on, important refinements and improvements have been made in Ford cars. The latest improvements include new and attractive body lines—a lower center of gravity, closed cars in color, all-steel bodies, new brakes and new style fenders.

However, the basic features of Ford design have not been changed. Three point motor suspension, planetary transmission, dual ignition system, torque tube drive, multiple disc-in-oil clutch, splash lubrication, thermo-syphon cooling system—outstanding features of automobile design—have all been retained, regardless of cost.
