Carter Aboard Sub

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)-President Carter set out to sea today aboard the nation's newest nuclear-powered, hunter-killer submarine; eager to take the helm and perhaps willing to let wife Rosalynn have a turn in the "driver's seat."

Accompanied by Adm. Hyman G. Rickover, "father of the nuclear Navy," the President and Mrs. Carter boarded the attack sub Los Angeles at Port Canaveral for an eight-hour cruise in, and even under, the Atlantic.

Carter, an Annapolis graduate, joked to reporters that when he was a career submarine officer, the undersea craft were called boats. He said they've grown so large they are now known as ships.

Neto Crushes Revolt

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)-Angolan President Agosotinho Neto said today his forces had crushed an uprising by extreme leftists after a shootout in which there was heavy bloodshed.

Many men and women died, Neto said. He gave no further details.

In a speech to the nation, the Marxist president said those responsible for the revolt would be punished "with utmost severity."

Dutch Students Freed

ASSEN, The Netherlands (AP)-Four days of doubt and fear ended for 105 Dutch children and their parents early today when armed Asian extremists released all of the students, half of them ill with a stomach virus-and one teacher from a village schoolhouse.

At least 55 hostages remained the captives of a separate band of South Moluccan terrorists on a train 15 miles north of the school.

More than 50 of the children, aged 6 to 12, were suffering from a virus infection which swept through the students crowded together in a one-story elementary school, officials said.

The SDN Column

Keeping tab on our neighbors:

Mac McKinnon of the Colorado City Record got his dander up and expounded on one of his pet peeves the other day.

"In the past few weeks I've heard two school officials in the county give voice once again to that absurd complaint that only the bad kids get publicity while 99 per cent of the young people are good, upstanding citizens and don't get recognition," said McKinnon.

"Now that ruffles my feathers. I've heard that complaint all of my newspaper life, a period of a decade and a half. It wasn't valid 15 years ago and it's not valid now.

"Some 10 years ago, the Star-Telegram got tired of hearing this complaint and hired an independent firm to conduct a research on the amount of news coverage, both local and national, given so-called "bad" kids and "good" kids.

"The results of the research surprised even those of us who knew that news coverage of the good done by young people far exceeded coverage of problem youth."

It reminded us of an incident several years ago when a speaker at an event in Snyder (he was a well-known Central Texas dentist) paused during his otherwise humorous remarks to insert a pious lament that only the bad news got printed in the newspapers. We pondered that for a few days and finally made a little survey of our own by examining a couple of major metropolitan papers, along with regional dailies and our own. We discovered that less than five per cent of the space was devoted to "bad" things such as violence and crime (and that was while one of our wars was going on and the war stories went into the "bad" column).

Our conclusion: This man was only looking for the bad news when he picked up his newspaper.

James Roberts of the Andrews County News says he has never met Lamar Muse, head honcho of Southwest Airlines, but he would like to.

"For six years in this state, he (Muse) has been something akin to a mixture of Glenn McCarthy, Ralph Lowe, W. Lee O'Daniel, John Wayne and Little David fighting Goliath," said Roberts.

"And beginning yesterday (May 21) over at Midland Air Terminal, he's the real reason you can fly to Dallas for $15 or Houston for $25. And it's because he's whipped the big 'uns in both federal and state courts time and time again, he's the reason you can fly Texas International or Continental to Dallas now for $15 as well as on Southwest Airlines."

OVER BURKBURNETT

Bengals Battle Way To Regional With 5-4 Win

By BILL McCLELLAN

BURKBURNETT—The Tigers came here in style yesterday, nestled in the cool confines, tinted windows and reclining seats of a charter bus.

"We're gonna win in style, too," spouted a keyed up Alvin Ollison, Snyder centerfielder. "We're gonna win this first game and go home."

Sure enough, the junior predicted accurately... well, half way at least. Snyder won the game 5-4 sewed up a bi-district championship and earned a regional berth against either Pecos or Canyon next week.

But unlike the gracious "luxury" of the charter vehicle, they won the game in a way more attuned to their normal mode of travel, an old, straight-back-seated, bumpy, yellow school bus. In other words, they almost didn't get there. At the top of the third though, they put themselves in style to fit a king.

Ollison secured first base on an error, with two outs, as the Tiger engines began to purr. Next-up Bobby Doe singled to drive the centerfielder home for the first, momentum-boosting score. Seconds later, pitcher Ricky Beard pushed his way to the first base bag when the Bulldog short stop committed an error. Mitch Mackey then burned a double, scoring Doe and Beard, to put Snyder in front, 3-0. Scott Crenwelge bounced another base hit to drive in Mackey before the inning went dry.

In was a good period for scoring, however, and Burkburnett got a share of the goods, too. Barrera got to first on a walk, and Lindsey barrelled a single to unleash the Bulldogs. With an assist from Brett Patty, the home team tallied two runs, skimming Snyder's lead to 4-2.

In the fifth inning, Ricky Beard found himself in trouble with two 'Dogs on base and one out. A single by Moore accounted for another run before the senior right hander could gain control of the game.

Burkburnett pitcher, David Nix kept the Tigers treed until the sixth inning, when the fatal Ollison-Doe duo teamed again. Ollison slapped a single to get on, and was pushed around on a base hit by Doe. With two on, Ricky Beard made contact to score Ollison, but lost the race to first against Burk's third baseman. Ollison's score turned out to be the winning point, but for the time, Snyder held a 5-3 lead with two Burkburnett at-bats left.

Under pressure, with two men on, Beard and company made it through the sixth unscathed to hold the slim advantage.

In the seventh period, Burkburnett opened up again. Lindsey slapped a single, and moved to score as Brett Patty secured first on an error through Dray Sikes, Tiger second baseman. With no outs, the 'Dogs boasted a tying run on, and shouts of victory were calling from the Burkburnett stands and bench.

"It looked pretty bad," recalled coach Albert Lewis afterwards, "but they (the Tigers) hung in there. You know, it took a lot of character. That's what champions are made of."

Patty stole second. Moore was up. He drove a bouncing shot near the third base line. Snyder's 3-B man, Scott Crenwelge snared it, flung it to Tony Lewis on first, and the first Bulldog died in the seventh inning.

Next-up Willman, left-fielder, took to the plate. A strike, a ball, another ball, another strike, another ball. Full count. Beard kicked the mound, adjusted his cap, did all the things pitchers do before they get set. He fired. With an exclamation of "Swoosh" from the Tiger bench, Willman went down swinging. Beard had chalked up his 11th strike out of the game..21 for the week.

One more to go. Bill Patty slaps one near the mound. Beard fumbles it. He's got time. He gets it to Lewis. Snyder captures the bi-district crown.

With the win, Beard's record climbs to 13-3. He gave up five hits, and walked seven.

David Nix, who falls to a still impressive 8-2 record.

HOW SWEET IT IS—There was jubilation aplenty Thursday afternoon at Burkburnett when the Snyder Tigers edged the host Bulldogs, 5-4, to sack up the bi-district Class 3A High School Baseball Title. Expressing their glee over the situation are Catcher Tracy Witherspoon and Shortstop Bobby Doe, who batted in the first run of the game. (SDN Staff Photo)

Singlaub Reassigned

WASHINGTON (AP)-Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub today was named chief of staff of the Army's biggest command less than a week after being relieved as U.S. staff chief in South Korea for publicly challenging President Carter's decision to withdraw American ground troops from there.

Singlaub's new assignment as chief of staff of the Army Forces Command headquartered at Ft. McPherson, Atlanta, Ga., was announced a day after Carter said the general would be given a job of "equal degree of responsibility and stature" to the Korean post.

a strange austerity

All that praise heaped on the new Carter Administration for its reduction of staff frills such as limousines and color TV sets may have been premature.

The administration has delicately projected a Scrooge image and the American public has responded accordingly. However, not all is as blissful as it may appear.

Just recently the White House Staff was granted a fat pay increase with the average for the 590 employees being 20 per cent. Incidently, the Carter staff has increased from 510 in the Ford administration to the 590 which in itself is a dead giveaway about tightening the belt.

The Carter inner-circle, of course is the best paid, with Jody Powell, Hamilton Jordan, Stu Eizenstat and Robert Lipshutz getting paychecks of $56,000 per year.

But the President's liaison gal with the District of Columbia government gets a hefty $51,000 per yer in a job of much lesser responsibility. Staff secretary Richard Hutcheson, 25, who earned only $6,000 per year prior to joining the White House Staff, is now paid $42,500. Another staffer, Rex Granum who left a reporter's job at $14,000 a year, now makes $48,000 per year as assistant press secretary.

One fellow who is special projects director earns $48,500 and has no significant business record, nor does he have a college degree and it is therefore doubtful that he could earn anything comparable outside the federal job.

The President did reject the first raise proposals and cut the amount proposed by $166,000 to $400,000 per year.

We wish the President's austerity program was more than simple window dressing.

winter's deadly toll

Another side effect of the terrible winter just passed has been reported, one much more tragic than high heating bills and fuel shortages.

According to the National Safety Council, the winter-ravished month of January 1977 saw home accident deaths soar 33 per cent over the same period in 1976. Preliminary statistics show that all classifications of home deaths were far above those for an average January.

Fire deaths, for example, zoomed at least 60 per cent and poisonings by gases and vapors, mainly carbon monoxide, jumped 40 per cent because of the strain put on home heating units and the use of makeshift heating devices to combat the bitter cold.

About the only good thing that can be said about the month is that traffic deaths were down 10 per cent.

Surprisingly, the severe weather which forced people to remain at home, away from jobs and schools and off the highways, hit the younger population the hardest. Home deaths for all ages groups rose except for the elderly aged 65-74, with the largest fatality rates occurring among children and young adults.

investors cautious

NEW YORK (AP)-As one analyst explained during the sharp drop in the market this week, "people are looking for excuses not to invest."

If that's what they're looking for they don't have far to look.

They can look toward Washington, where the outwardly serene but inwardly troubled Arthur Burns is deciding how he will fight his latest battle with demon inflation. Most likely through higher interest rates.

Burns gives few signs, but that's the point. An investor in doubt is not an investor who makes big commitments. Uncertainty is a market-killer, frightening those with cash into the most conservative channels, such as bank accounts.

Investors can also look all about them, at prices that seem to resist the efforts of goverment to talk them down. This is the second of the two "I"s staring down the market. Inflation and high interest are enemies.

Yes, these and other factors you don't hear about so often, like institutional behavior.

Very often the trading of institutions, such as mutual and pension funds, will be listed under "technical factors," meaning that their behavior is a reaction to the market place itself rather than to external events.

Do they feel stocks are in-expensive? Do they have the cash on hand or are they pinched? Do they feel they should diversify more because they are too heavily invested in a certain company or industry?

All these are factors that influence other investors too, but there's a difference. Individuals are just that, but institutions are collections of individuals. They have the power, literally, of thousands of investors.

As such, they reduce the random assortment of views that might otherwise rule the marketplace. If the individuals who made up institutions made their own decisions, those decisions would be varied. When they have the institution make the decision for them, their varied voices becomes one.

There is another tendency that exaggerates this sameness. Those who run institutions, that is, sometimes run as a herd. Knowing the trading power- call it tramping power- of their institutional colleagues, they aren't inclined to go their own way. Mavericks can get lost.

At the moment, the institutional market isn't very enthusiastic about very much, a neutral state of mind that cannot be sustained long before it degenerates into bearishness, into looking for exuses not to invest.

All this is the opposite of what used to be the market. Risk was encouraged. Individual participation provided diversity and unpredictability. The market was a random walk, as they used to say, not a carefully circumscribed path from which you dare not stray.

Today it's a conservative market. For the time being, perhaps a bearish market. Maybe even a frightened, timid one looking for reason not to make commitments.

your chamber in action

JULY 4TH CELEBRATION

Under the direction of general chairman Roy Kidd, plans are being made for the biggest and best July 4th Celebration in Snyder's history after a meeting of clubs and organizations involved.

The meeting was held to address the problem of financing the extravaganza after the Board of Directors voted to charge 15 percent of gross sales for anything sold at the celebration. This new measure was put into effect because of a $2000 net loss during last year's event.

A comprise measure was reached during this week's meeting where each club involved would be allocated a specific number of tickets to sell or buy for the celebration instead of the 15 percent surcharge. The amount of tickets issued will be made at the discretion of ticket chairman Ray Engelhardt and Kidd.

"CONTROVERSIAL"

The surcharge placed on the booths by the board brought numerous complaints by sponsors. The board, however, should be commended for taking the unpopular and controversial measure during the last board meeting.

The Chamber and its budget cannot be placed in financial jeopardy by sponsoring a money-losing proposition. If the community does not feel the 4th of July Celebration is important enough to support, the Chamber is foolish to spend hundreds of man-hours in preparation, planning and promotion as well as direct financial support.

If the clubs involved which use the July 4th Celebration as their major fund-raising event of the year will get behind the sale of tickets, the event can be self-supporting for the Chamber and continue to serve the clubs' financial needs as well. If it cannot be self-supporting, the Chamber will have no choice but to drop its sponsorship of the event.

IT'S ME

During an industrial development meeting held this week by members of the Texas Industrial Commission which was attended by chamber president Henry F. Clark and executive director W.R. (Bill) Henry, a truism was presented which is worthy of passing on.

It's 10 words long, none of which have more than two letters It goes, "If it is to be, it is up to me." That little saying has tremendous impact if you stop long enough to digest it.

Not only in the realm of industrial development, but in our daily lives. If it's going to be done, you must do your part. No one individual or organization is responsible for recruiting new industry, commercial and housing developments or increasing an area's quality of life.

To grow as a city, we must have good government, reliable utilities, reasonable tax rates, productive labor, adequate housing, exciting recreational facilities, educational opportunities and esprit-de-corps. Esprit-de-corps, or attitudes may be the most important because with a positive community attitude and involvement, the rest will be provided.

If you want quality growth in our area, get involved in something—even if it's just writing a letter or telling someone how you feel about Snyder. If you have any negative feelings give that constructive criticism to someone who might remedy the situation — that's the only way it will be improved.

This is your community and if it's to be improved, you must improve it.

NO GROWTH POLICY

President Henry F. Clark sent a Mail-Gram this week to Texas Air Control Board John Blair on behalf of the Chamber vigorously opposing the Emission Offset Policy being discussed by the Board at it's monthly meeting.

The policy, if accepted, would completely halt industrial development in Texas. The policy is two-pronged. If new industry locates in an area, existing industry must reduce pollution abatement by the amount of new pollution. If there is no measurable pollution existing to reduce, a new industry cannot be constructed. Present industry could not expand under this new policy either.

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — With the possible exceptions of hot dogs and apple pie, nothing is more sacred to our fast-food society than ice cream — which explains why a proposed change in the formula for the all-American dessert could provoke a gastronomic crisis in the coming weeks.

In a public statement filled with lurid prose about the dangers of "cheap chemicals," the National Milk Producers Federation recently warned that "fabricators" are on the verge of gaining official government sanction to "destroy the integrity of ice cream."

That organization, which represents many of the nation's dairy farmers, predicted that a new ice cream formulation just authorized by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) could lead to the inclusion of the following items in ice cream after June 13:

"Chemically derived sodium caseinate and-or calcuim caseinate combined with chemically modified whey protein concentrates, less nutritive starches, cereal solids, low corn syrup solids and lactose."

In fact, the country's favorite cold dessert (an average of four gallons consumed annually by every man, woman and child in the United States) is not in much danger of being transformed into what the dairymen call "a chemical concoction."

As with virtually all other processed foods, the FDA for many years has maintained a "standard of identity" for ice cream, requiring that any product carrying that label include at least 10 per cent milkfat and 10 per cent nonfat milk solids.

But that standard is unenforceable because there is no known method of isolating and measuring nonfat milk solids. So the FDA will require in the future that ice cream contain 2.7 per cent protein, which can be measured, to be provided by any "milk derived ingredients."

The ice cream makers want to use derivatives of casein, a substance produced from skim milk through a harmless chemical process. A pound of casein provides three times as much protein as nonfat dry milk at one-third the cost.

Casein must be imported, principally from Australia and New Zealand, because none is produced in this country. The milk producers claim that sodium caseinate and calcium caseinate will be substituted for 4.5 billion pounds of their milk with a market value of $215 million annually.

But the Agriculture Department, siding with the FDA and the ice cream manufacturers, says those estimates are way out of line, and the dairy farmers' lost sales probably will be only one-third or one-fourth that much.

The dairymen argue that casein is officially classified as a chemical when imported into the United States. That's true, but nobody claims it's unsafe and the Agriculture Department says it's "one of the most complete proteins known."

More important, the country's milk producers - who already are the beneficiaries of the most elaborate and expensive structure of tax payer-financed federal price supports - are principally concerned not about consume nutrition but rather protecting their market.

Although the dairymen have resorted to unwarranted scare tactics to advance their selfish interests, they have raised one important point for the romantics among us who believe that ice cream is composed exclusively of whole milk, rich cream and gobs of butter.

In fact, most commercially produced ice cream already is loaded with artificial coloring, sweetening and flavoring agents; extenders, preservatives, emulsifiers and a host of other items which no self-respecting cow would recognize.

And the ice cream industry has started to market in the South and Southwest a vegetable oil concoction called "mellorine." It is, in the dry prose of FDA, "a food resembling ice cream but containing no milk." That's what the dairy farmers—and the ice cream aficionados—ought to be really worried about.

In that day the Lord God of hosts called to weeping and mourning, to baldness and girding with sackcloth; and behold, joy and gladness, slaying oxen and killing sheep, eating flesh and drinking wine. "Let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we die." — Isaiah 22:12, 13.

solar future is now

The future of solar energy is now.

Contrary to the popular impression that harnessing the heat of the sun is one of those "exotic" energy sources whose development is many years away, a veritable boom is taking place in the solar energy field.

• A recent estimate by the federal Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) indicates that some 5,000 homes in the United States are now heated completely or in part by solar energy units. Two years ago, there were just 183 such homes.

In addition, approximately 5,000 new solar hot water heaters are in operation, plus uncounted thousands of solar swimming pools.

The boom is barely bebeginning. According to one expert, the number of buildings heated by solar is doubling every six or eight months. "It's exploding."

In his energy message, President Carter expressed the hope that the number of solar homes would jump to 2.5 million in the near future, spurred by his proposed tax credit to homeowners and businesses converting to solar.

Last year, the Department of Housing and Urban Development spent $4 million to encourage conconstruction of nearly 1,500 solar homes. Lending institutions are also financing an increasing number of solar homes, not all of them in sunny parts of the country by any means

A typical homeowner on Long Island, for example, can reduce his hot water heating bill by 50 per cent with a solar system.

Hundreds of companies are becoming active in the field, ranging from giants like Grumman, General Motors and General Electric to small ones like Mor-Flo Industries of Cleveland and Universal Solar Energy of Miami.

A spokesman for Mor-Flo, which also makes gas and electric water heaters, predicts that solar water heaters will have sales of $893 million within five years, $2.4 billion within 10 years and $4.1 billion in 15 years.

This is only a small part of the action. Nationally, says the founder of Universal Solar Energy, solar heating and cooling will become a $50 billion industry in the foreseeable future.

With so many different solar collectors now available, costing from several hundred to a couple thousand dollars—the question is why we still think of solar energy as "sometime in the future."

One reason, suggests Joseph G. Gavin, president of Grumman Corp., may be the name. Solar energy sounds like space technology, something exotic, complicated and expensive. Actually, anyone reasonably handy with tools can build a solar collector from materials readily available from a local lumber yard.

Another reason for the misperception, he says, is that most publicity about solar energy has to do with future-oriented research projects being conducted by such agencies as ERDA and NASA. Solar energy is also wrapped up in the idea of "energy independence," which is asking more of it than it will ever be able to deliver.

But while more research is certainly needed, and while solar energy will never account for more than a small, though significant, percentage of our total energy needs, the country is overlooking the opportunity to use what we have right now, says Gavin.

Solar energy requires no invention, no new government agencies, no new installation or servicing skills, no new manufacturing or distribution methods.

All it requires is for individual homeowners who are fed up with the rising cost of fuel to realize that they can become not just energy consumers but energy producers - now.

Opening lead — Q ♣

By Oswald & James Jacoby

In case anyone isn't thoroughly confused by the principle of restricted choice, we will close with a simple hand.

East wins the club lead with the ace and returns the deuce of diamonds. South has a problem at trick two.

He can take the diamond finesse which has a theoretical 50 per cent chance to succeed or he can rise with the ace of diamonds, pull trumps and go after hearts. If hearts break 3-3 (a 36 per cent chance), he can discard his queen and 10 of diamonds and make the slam that way.

Just to make things easy for guessers both plays work this time, but there still had to be a superior play.

It all depends on what you know about your West opponent. If he is the sort of player who likes to attack against a slam contract you assume that he would have opened a diamond if he held the king. In that case the finesse is a certainty.

On the other hand if you are sure he would not lead from a king after the way you reached your slam, restricted choice comes into action. You say to yourself, "If he didn't hold the king of diamonds he might well have led that suit, therefore the odds are that he does have the king and the finesse should be refused."

A Pennsylvania reader wants to know if it is correct to use a preemptive bid of three against an adverse opening bid.

The answer is that you certainly may, provided your partner will understand that you are preempting.

Baylor Stays On Top Of South Region Play

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP)—It's that good old college try in the NCAA South Regional baseball playoffs, but one of the top players is already seeing visions of dollar signs in the upcoming major league baseball draft.

Slugging shortstop Merk Naehring of Miami of Ohio was asked shortly after his game-winning homer over Lamar university Thursday if he was going to play his senior year for the Redskins in 1978.

"Hopefully not," said Naehring, who has a career batting average of .363 and a slugging percentage of .579.

The 6-foot-2, 195-pound Naehring has the pro scouts drooling.

"I'll sign after the June draft depending on the dollars," said the Cincinnati native, taking his cue from the millions being paid players in the big leagues. "I'll sign if the money is there and I think I can play for anybody who wants to take me. I think I can beat anybody out."

Naehring certainly will get no argument from Lamar which lost 1-0 on his ninth homer and 50th RBI of the year in the ninth inning. The ball hit the top of the wall in Arlington Stadium and bounced over.

Baylor banged out 15 hits including a three-run homer by centerfielder Shane Nolan in a 10-1 victory over the Privateers.

Cowboys Sign $1-Million Man

DALLAS (AP)-Dallas Cowboy Head Coach Tom Landry says there's no need to draft the top guy if a team isn't willing to pay high salaries and newly signed Heisman Trophy winner Tony Dorsett is a millionaire because of the Cowboys' willingness.

Dorsett, who led the University of Pittsburgh to the top of the college football ladder last season, signed his name Thursday in Pittsburgh to a contract reportedly worth more than $1 million.

"I'm thrilled about the whole idea," said Dorsett.

"Like I said at the draft, I was overwhelmed to be selected by the Cowboys. To make it official makes it all the more pleasing."

Dorsett will be the first million-dollar player for the Cowboys of the National Football League.

As to Dorsett's instant wealth, Landry said, "I don't think it'll bother the other people on our club because paying the high salaries is not uncommon in this era."

Dorsett signed the contract in the office of his attorney, Harvey Eger, while his agent Mike Trope and Dallas Cowboy vice-president Gil Brandt watched.

Neither the Cowboys nor Dorsett would discuss terms of the contract. But Trope said Dorsett "got what I consider a fair market value. Tony got an excellent contract and the Cowboys got an excellent player."

Earlier, Trope had negotiated a multi-year, $1.2 million contract for Southern California star Ricky Bell with Tampa Bay.

"I am not going to say that Dorsett's contract is above or below Bell's contract," Trope said adding that the five-year figure for the duration of the contract "was in the neighborhood."

Dorsett was drafted by the Cowboys this year after a deal with the Seattle Seahawks that involved several draft choices going to Seattle.

76ers Team Up To Wash Blazers

PHILADELPHIA (AP)-They're playing defense, they're passing the ball, they're setting up the open man-the Philadelphia 76-ers are doing their best to ruin their reputations.

"People put us down all the time," said playmaker Henry Bibby. "They say we're a bunch of one-on-one players, we can't play team ball, we don't execute out plays well, we can't do the job on defense.

"They keep saying it-but we keep winning."

Bibby was the sparkplug in Philadelphia's lopsided 107-89 triumph over the Portland Trail Blazers Thursday night, a victory which gave the 76ers a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven National Basketball Association championship series. The series resumes Sunday at Portland.

Bibby scored 15 points and handed out six assists in the first half, when the 76ers took an 18-point lead with a racehorse offense and shackling defense. Portland never was really in the game after being outscored 30-17 in the second period, and came no closer than 12 points in the second half.

Bentsen Says Identity Card System Essential

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of an identity card system for all Americans would be small when compared with the cost of the millions of illegal aliens believed to be in the United States, according to Sen. Lloyd Bentsen.

At a news conference Thursday, Bentsen said he felt a counterfeit-proof national identity card was an essential part of a policy to deal with illegal aliens.

Bentsen said the arguments of civil libertarians against a national card "made no sense at all."

The Texas Democrat said the card must be coupled with any law penalizing employers who knowingly hire illegal aliens. The card would be the employer's means of determining who was a properly documented worker.

Bentsen said he saw nothing wrong with requiring all Americans to carry such a card when they apply for work. "We do it now. Every time I cash a check I have to show identification."

Civil libertarians have argued against the card idea, saying that it would allow further government intrusions on the private lives of citizens.

The Carter administration, which is now formulating its alien policy, has rejected the card idea, according to informed sources.

The sources said the civil liberties argument plus the multi-billion dollar cost of such a card were factors in the administration decision.

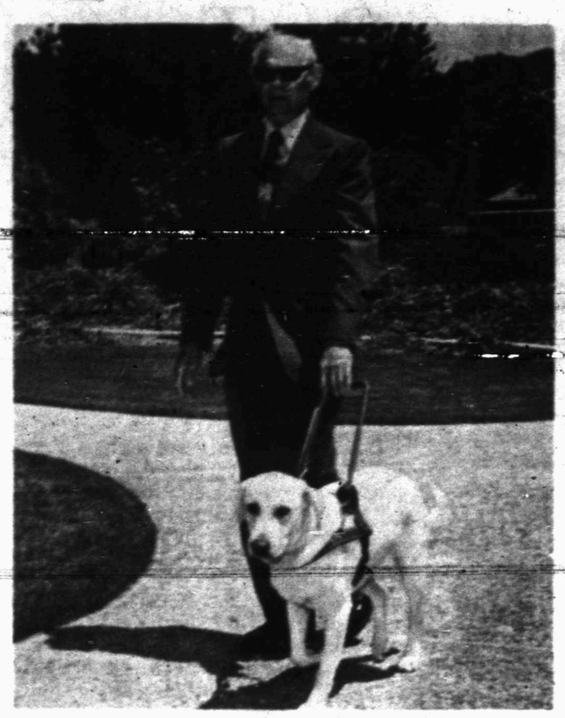
—Amnesty should be accorded to illegal aliens who have been in the country for at least five years without getting into trouble with the law.

—Civil, not criminal, penalties should be levied against employers. Bentsen said fines should be enough to deter hiring of illegals.

-Program for temporarily bringing Mexican agricultural workers into the United States might have to be expanded in areas where local labor was in short supply.

—The program would have to be accompanied by efforts to strengthen the economies and provide more jobs on both sides of the border.

Bentsen said he did not favor an increase in the number of Mexicans legally allowed to migrate into the United States each year. That quota was reduced by Congress several years ago from an effective level of 60,000 to 20,000 annually.



RETURNS HOME—Jack Greene of Snyder has returned home with a new canine partner named Winsome. Greene and the yellow Labrador retriever have spent the past four weeks learning to work together as a well-balanced team at Guide Dogs for the Blind in San Rafael, Calif. Greene, 72, has had Guide Dogs in the past and depends on their assistance to get around independently. Both the valuable animal and in-residence training are provided free of charge by non-profit Guide Dogs for the Blind, a school which receives no federal or state funds, but depends entirely on voluntary contributions.

Kiddie Pornography Probe To Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A House committee is bringing its investigation into child pornography to Los Angeles, seeking ways to control a growing trade in photographs, movies, slides and books depicting children engaged in sexual acts.

Los Anglees has become a kind of capital city of the so-called "Kiddie Porn" business. Investigator Lloyd Martin of the Los Angeles Police Department estimates that 30,000 boys and girls are sexually exploited by adults in Los Angeles every year.

Martin said much of child pornography is made in southern California. "You can tell by the suntan marks on a child's body that he or she is from a sunny climate," he said.

The scheduled leadoff witness today before the House Select Committee on Education and Labor is Robin Lloyd, a Los Angeles-based television newsman who has written a book on boy prostitution.

Lloyd says the children who most frequently wind up in the pages of such magazines as "Nudist Moppets" and "Little Girls Together" come from "a vast army of a million kids who run away each year."

Lloyd, who says he has 264 magazines, each costing about $7, dealing with child pornography, relates what he considers a typical scenario among the hundreds of children, ages 8 to 16, who become the stars of Kiddie Porn:

"A 12-year-old girl, a 13-year-old boy comes to Los Angeles. They've split from Omaha or someplace looking for a better deal. They're hungry and they're cold and they don't have a place to stay. They're a prime target for a recruiter for pornography.

"When you're 12 and you're hungry you might soon discover that you're not as broke as you thought you were. You've got a marketable commodity - your body. You've got something to hock."

What Lloyd, the police and others are seeking is a federal law prohibiting the filming of children under 16 engaged in sexual acts and the transportation of such films across state lines.

"I think we have to try to control it. Forget about the word elimination. If people didn't want to buy it, the market wouldn't exist. I think we have to face up to that," he said.

The market is huge, but there is no way of accurately estimating how many adults purchase books and films distributed by child porno producers.

Under current law, most child pornography is prosecuted under obscenity statutes, but getting a conviction is no easy matter.

Martin said his men could do more with public support. "The real sad part is that we can't show the public the material we have on hand. It is just too objectionable for public display."

House Revises Clean Air Laws

WASHINGTON (AP) — Environmentalists and the Carter administration are looking to the Senate to restore the tough automobile emission controls shot down in the House.

The House on Thursday passed a major revision of federal clean air laws, including an industry-backed amendment to delay tighter standards. Some of the rules now set to take effect on 1978 models would be delayed for two years, other indefinitely.

The House rejected an administration proposal for a one-year delay in the standards and, by a slim margin, a last-minute compromise attempt by sponsors of the clean air bill.

The House then sent the amended bill to the Senate, where similar legislation with tighter standards resembling those proposed by President Carter will be voted on next month.

If the Senate doesn't approve tighter auto-emission controls, then President Carter may consider vetoing the legislation "because of the adverse health effects" in the House version, said Rep. Paul Rogers, D-Fla., floor manager for the original bill.

He called the House decision to go along with the industry-backed measure a "cop-out to the auto industry, almost as if they'd written the bill themselves."

Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., chairman of the congressional environmental study conference, vowed to work in the Senate for adoption of even a stricter timetable than that proposed by the administration.

He said the House action amounted to "a pardon for the automobile manufacturers."

Environmental groups said the House-passed bill is a major weakening of the Clean Air Act of 1970. "The House has chosen to protect the $4 billion-a-year profits of the American automobile industry rather than the lungs of the American people," said the National Clean Air Coalition. "It is now up to the Senate to protect the breathing public."

The amendment adopted by the House had the backing of the United Auto Workers and the AFL-CIO. The unions feared that the bill's tight standards might have resulted in reduced car sales and more auto-industry unemployment.

Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., one of the amendment's sponsors, says the average sticker price of all new cars would go up $350.

Extra heart beats

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm a healthy 34-year-old wife and mother of three. I've had heart palpitations for a few years. A month ago I had a very rapid heartbeat with extra beats which lasted a few hours. My doctor kept me in the hospital for a few days and took an echocardiogram of my mitral valve. A cardiologist also checked me and told me to quit smoking, drinking coffee, cola, and tea. He told me it was all environmental.

Can these things really cause a person to have such a rapid beat with extra beats? And if I follow the doctor's orders can I really look forward to no more of these episodes?

DEAR READER — Your cardiologist was correct in telling you to quit your bad habits. Coffee contains caffeine, a stimulant, and it will increase extra beats or palpitations in people who have them. Cigarettes also increase such problems.

Anything that upsets the digestive system may also contribute to these episodes. Nervousness is also a factor.

You should know that chocolate, including cocoa, contains caffeine too. What you want to avoid is caffeine.

These measures may not prevent all such palpitations but they will certainly help a great deal. Anyone who has palpitations should do likewise. I am sending you The Health Letter number 6-12, Heart Irregularities, Skipped Beats, Tachycardia. Others who want more information on this subject can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just send your inquiry to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

People with no underlying heart disease who have palpitations often benefit from an improved level of physical fitness. Instead of coffee and cigarettes it is better to go for a walk. If you are not in top physical condition start a sensible program to provide further help for yourself.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Your column on peanut butter indicates that peanut butter in large amounts can result in an increase in fatty-cholesterol deposits in arteries.

It appears that this is due to fats added to peanut butter in its manufacture to provide a smooth spread without separation. Would natural peanut butter have this same detrimental effect?

I have a way to prepare peanut butter for personal use. I use natural peanut butter and withdraw the peanut oil. This is replaced with safflower oil. Doesn't this make it a very good food?

DEAR READER — Yes and no. Almost half the weight of raw peanuts is from fat. That means most of the calories in peanuts are from fat. Anyone just eating plain peanuts is ingesting a lot of fat. About 15 per cent of peanut oil is saturated fat.

It is true that peanut butter is made worse — from the standpoint of increasing saturated fat intake because of the type of fats added as you have stated. And it is true that you are improving it by replacing peanut oil with safflower oil. Why? Because safflower oil is very low in saturated fat and high in polyunsaturated fat.

But one of the dietary measures in prevention of fatty-cholesterol deposits is to limit the total fat intake. If you discarded all the peanut oil and didn't replace it that would be better but it might not taste very good. Perhaps you can compromise by adding less safflower oil than the amount of peanut oil you remove.

Wants Freedom For May-Dec. Affair

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 53-year-old man who is very much in love with a 22-year-old girl. I know you think I'm crazy, but this girl really loves me. She even broke up with a young, good-looking man just for me. She worked for me for a short time, but we didn't want any talk around the place, so I had her quit.

My problem is my wife. She won't give me a divorce. Our children are grown, and I offered my wife a very good settlement, which she refused.

Abby, my girlfriend is the sweetest, most unspoiled girl in the world. She is just the opposite of my wife. She appreciates every little thing I've given her, like a small, inexpensive car, some clothes and taking care of her mother's hospital bill. I would gladly give up my last dime to be free to marry this girl. How can I get my wife to give in?

LONG ISLANDER

DEAR ISLANDER: Make her a better offer. She might surprise you. But don't "give up your last dime" for your freedom because that "sweet, unspoiled girl" might also surprise you and disappear when she discovers you're broke.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a 28-year-old, college-educated man who takes a ping-pong ball to bed with him every night and keeps bouncing it off the wall and catching it until he gets tired enough to fall asleep? That's my husband.

He claims it "relieves tension." We have been married for two years, and he started this foolishness about six months ago. I have even considered leaving this nut!

PING-PONG PROBLEM

DEAR PING: Your husband is inconsiderate to relieve his tension in a manner that adds to yours. Suggest that he tell his troubles to a doctor before you tell yours to a lawyer.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and our daughter were too close to suit me. They were cutting me out, so I solved it by telling my husband a few things about her, and they are no longer close.

Then he developed a closeness with our son, and I used the same method, and our son left home.

Someone in our family who knew how I solved this problem sent me an article in which there was a similar situation. It said the wife was jealous of her own children.

Abby, because I want to be first in my husband's life, does that mean I am jealous?

I admit I'm jealous where other women are concerned because when he has had to go out of town on business, I always go with him. I trust him IN town, but not OUT of town. I think that kind of jealousy is normal, but I don't think it's possible to be jealous of my own children, do you?

JEALOUS

DEAR JEALOUS: Yes. And from where I sit, I would say that you are. I would also say that the "method" you used to break up the "closeness" between your husband and your children was underhanded and nothing to be proud of.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Phillips Won't Confirm Discovery

BARTLESVILLE Okla. (AP) — Phillips Petroleum Co. refused today to confirm what the London Financial Times has described as a significant oil discovery in the North Sea.

In a low-key statement, the company here said only that electric logs run earlier this week on the drilling operation showed the possible presence of hydrocarbons.

The well is about 165 miles northeast of Aberdeen, Scotland.

Boy Found In Mexico City

DRIPPING SPRINGS (AP)—An 11-year-old boy was back home in this South Texas town today two weeks after he was seen gettting into a car driven by a man identified by officials as the youth's former babysitter.

FBI officials in San Antonio announced Thursday that the boy, Greg Allen Fluker, had been found safe by authorities in Mexico City.

The boy arrived in San Antonio Thursday evening on a flight from Mexico City. He walked into the arms of his weeping mother, Sarah Brauer.

EXCUSES

Someone has said, "There aren't enough crutches in the world to support all the lame excuses."

I've noticed this about people who make excuses—they are never wrong! They wish to create the impression with themselves that they can explain away any deficiency, any failure to function properly or every defeat by creating an excuse.

But now and then I'll meet someone mature enough and self-confident enough to accept the blame for a mistake rather than produce some lame excuse.

The redeeming thing about the Prodigal Son was his willingness to say to his father, "I have sinned—" That may just be the single most important teaching which that parable contains. For the Scripture says, "If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive our sins and cleanse us from all unrighteousness." (I John 1:9)

God offers no excuses—for He never fails!

Snyder Chamber, BCD Fight No-Growth Plan

A meeting of the Texas Air Control Board in Houston this week produced some rapid correspondence initiated by the Snyder Chamber of Commerce.

A "Mailgram" over the signature of Henry Clark, President of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce, was dispatched, advising the TACB that the local Chamber and the Scurry County Board of Development vigorously oppose the "emission offset policy" which would result in a "no growth" situation for most of Texas, including the Snyder and Scurry County area.

The action was sparked by a recent announcement by John L. Blair, TACB Chairman, that he had concluded that a strict interpretation of the Federal Clean Air Act was expected by Congress and the Environmental Protection Agency. This would have required that no construction or operating permits be issued in non-attainment areas after the attainment deadline of May 31 this year. Originally, the target date had been May 31, 1975, but this was extended two years.

In making his announcement, Blair admitted that the policy he proposed "will mean that growth will come to a grinding halt."

Local interest, however, was focused mostly toward the "emission offset policy" affecting permits in areas where air quality standards are being exceeded. This policy would prohibit any industrial development that might add any air pollution--even if it still met EPA standards--unless a corresponding reduction in pollution could be attained from other sources in the same area.

The Chamber received a letter the very next day from State Sen. Ray Farabee, who also was contacted concerning the situation, voicing his support of regulations "which would permit a livable balance between clean air and economic freedom." Farabee said he had immediately contacted the TACB and conveyed his sympathy with the Snyder Chamber of Commerce position on the matter.

The situation eased at the Houston session of the board when the remainder of the board failed to back the chairman's interpretation of the requirements and after Gov. Dolph Briscoe intervened. Also, Atty. Gen. John Hill was granted permission to file suit against the EPA to halt enforcement of any "no growth" regulations.

FIRST BAPTIST
Ken Andress will speak on "The Modern-Day Burning Bush", Exodus 3:1-4, in the 11 a.m. worship service. At 7 p.m. he will speak on "And He Went A Little Farther," Matthew 26:39. The Lord's Supper will be observed during the evening service.

The youth will have a "Launch the Summer Fellowship" in the Young Adult Building after the evening worship service on Sunday. This is for all youth 7th grade through college.

The new mission organizations program will begin Wednesday evening at 7. There will be new workers, new activities, new programs. This is for all boys and girls 5 years through 6th grade.

BETHEL BAPTIST
"The Back To Bethel Broadcast" has entered the 11th year of broadcasting over KSNY at 8:35 a.m. each Sunday. "Saved Or Lost-Which One?" will be the sermon topic of R. Virgil Mott for the broadcast this Sunday.

For a ride to Sunday School, call 573-7267 or 573-5968. Sunday School will begin at 10 a.m.

"Being Decisive For Today" will be the sermon topic of the pastor at the 11 a.m. worship service Sunday. The childrens service is set for 11:20 a.m. Following the morning service the church will observe The Lord's Supper.

Church training service will begin at 6 p.m. The evening service will begin at 7 p.m. The pastor's subject will be "The Intervening Hand."

Wednesday evening, the service will begin at 7:30 p.m. The church invites all who are interested in hospitalized people to attend the prayer service.

Film Is Scheduled At Colonial Hill

"Shiokari Pass," a new film from the producers of "The Hiding Place," will be shown Sunday evening at Colonial Hill Baptist Church.

The one-hour color release from World Wide Pictures will be shown one time, beginning at 7 p.m.

"Shiokari Pass" is unique among World Wide Pictures productions. Although it has an English soundtrack, it was originally produced for showing to Japanese audiences. It was filmed entirely in Japan with a Japanese cast and crew. The drama of the story unfolds against a backdrop of Japan's spring blossoms, snow-capped mountains and whispering native music. It is based on the international best-seller by Miura.

Credited with creating a deeper understanding of the Christian faith among the Japanese people, the film tells of the love of Nubuo for Fujiko, and of his willingness to be guided by his personal faith, no matter how great the cost of commitment.

The Rev. Miller F. Robinson, Colonial Hill pastor, said the public is invited to see the film Sunday evening and that there will be no admission charge.

'The Thing' May Be Making Return

LOS ANGELES (AP) - "The Thing" may be making a scarifying return.

Universal Studios has acquired rights to the John Campbell Jr. short story "Who Goes There?" and the Charles Lederer-Ben Hecht screenplay on which the 1951 movie "The Thing" was based. The Turman-Foster company will produce a new version.

"The Thing" was directed by Howard Hawks and featured a young actor named James Arness as the vegetable-like giant of the title.

Texas Women Among Honored

DALLAS (AP) — Liz Carpenter, former press secretary to Lady Bird Johnson in the White House, is one of the Ladies Home Journal's Women of the Year. The magazine also named another Texan, Doctor Gloria Scott of Houston. Dr. Scott is president of the Girl Scouts of America. Mrs. Carpenter was cited for her efforts in government and public affairs.

The Old Vic Theater was built in South London in 1818. Originally named the Royal Coburg, it proved a failure as a drama theater and was turned into a music hall. The old edifice became famous after 1914 when it was converted into a classical and Shakespearean theater.

SENATE NIXES DEBATE

Property Tax Reform Dead

AUSTIN (AP)—Chances of statewide property tax reform died when the Senate refused Thursday to debate the House-approved bill.

The vote was 16-14, with 21 votes needed to bring it up for the final votes necessary to send it to the governor, who supports the idea.

"That's it," said Rep. Wayne Peveto, D-Orange, who has kept up a dogged fight to get the House-passed bill through the Senate.

In pre-legislature comments, many legislative leaders and state officials tabbed property tax reform as the No. 1 task of the session.

"We need this bill because the present way of appraising property is totally unrealistic, unreliable. As many as eight appraisals are made in some places on the same piece of property, and all may be different," said Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene.

The bill would have consolidated appraisal of real estate for tax purposes into single countywide appraisal offices. Local governments and agencies would still set tax rates but the appraisals would be uniform. Appraisers would be tested and certified by the state.

Jones said in order for the 1979 legislature to do a qualified job of allocating funds for public schools, it would be necessary to have the countywide tax appraisal system or to restrict uniform appraisals only to school districts, as proposed in negotiations over the public school financing bill.

The term "Terrier" was formerly applied to dogs who pursued small game into burrows.

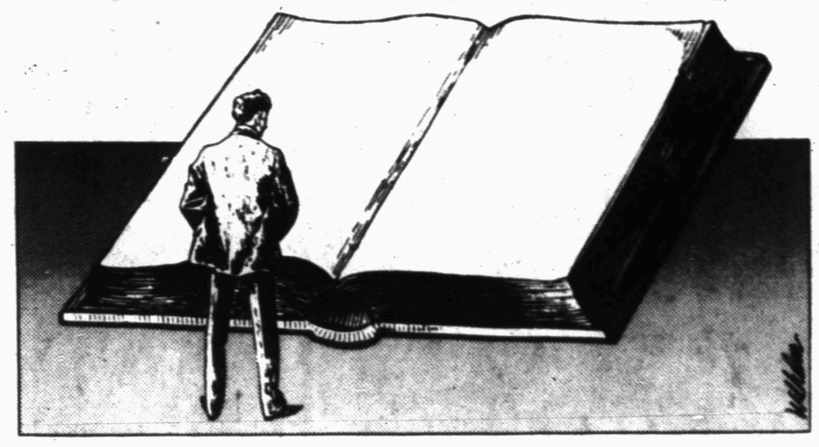
English is a growing language, but for now . . .

New dictionary has the last words

By Norman Nadel



NEW YORK — (NEA) — Americans love dictionaries. According to a Gallup poll four years ago, 87 per cent of the population have a dictionary at home, no matter how old, how small or how inadequate. Equally surprising, 40 per cent of the people had bought their reference books in the preceding five years.

That is only one of several good reasons why new dictionaries keep appearing on the market, and why publishers consider them a good investment of time, talent and money.

How come they're so popular? Nobody knows for sure, but Walter D. Glanze has an idea. A linguist fluent in a number of languages, and equally learned in science and mathematics, he is senior editor of the reference department at Bantam Books, Inc., and managing editor of "The Scribner Bantam English Dictionary," newly published (80,000 words, $8.95 plain, $9.95 thumb-indexed).

"When you start a dictionary, as we started this one 10 years ago," muses Glanze, "there are many motives: the profit motive, the scholarly challenge, and figuring out how to make a dictionary not only different but better, more useful.

"In almost every country in the Western world there is a regulative agency for language: the Academie Francaise in France, and similar bodies in Spain, Italy, Germany. But there is no such body in English. England does have an Oxford-Cambridge upper-crust orientation, as a kind of unofficial guide to what is right or wrong, in usage and pronunciation.

"In America there is no such orientation. My speculation is that the tremendous popularity of dictionaries here can be ascribed to the absence of a regulative authority. People almost stand in awe before the dictionary, which becomes the agency to determine spellings, meanings and usage."

An early and vital decision in dictionary-making is how big a book it should be. "It would have been easier, simpler and less expensive to do a dictionary 50 or 60 per cent larger," explains managing editor Glanze. "Keeping a dictionary down to 80,000 reference words takes more mental effort than doing one of 120,000 or 130,000. We thought there was little purpose in adding another longer dictionary to the several at hand."

Dr. Edwin B. Williams, general editor of this new work, who died two years ago at the age of 83, had made a number of preparatory studies. He found out that in most cases, people who have larger desk dictionaries still use no more than about 80,000 words for reference.

Glanze assumes, as did Williams, that if you don't find a word in the 80,000-word book you will go directly to the two biggest: Webster's Third (460,000 words) or Random House (260,000).

However, even 80,000 is far more than most Americans know and use. According to surveys, the average American recognizes about 20,000 words. Very few actually use more than 12,000, and the average for ordinary speech is under 2,000. In some segments of society it is under 500. Not more than 15,000 Americans know more than 100,000 words.

But great works have been written with relatively small vocabularies. The King James Version of The Bible gets by with 6,000 different words. Homer wrote his epics with 9,000. Milton used 11,000 and Shakespeare's dramatic vocabulary comes between 15,000 and 20,000.

According to Glanze, the new Scribner Bantam has a number of "firsts," for example, he claims it is the first to define "alkaline battery" correctly: "dry battery in which the positive pole is manganese dioxide, the negative pole zinc, and the electrolyte 30 to 40 per cent potassium hydroxide, and whose voltage is 1.5."

Among words included which previously had been in no other dictionary are: health food, psychosciences, tax loss, petrodollars, stagflation, videodisk, valet parking, Jimmy Carter, PLO (Palestine Liberation Organization), Benin (new name for Dahomey in West Africa), Belize (was British Honduras), Ho Chi Min (formerly the city of Saigon), and street name (Wall Street colloquial for a stockbroker who holds a customer's securities in his own name).

Its tone is conversational, with definitions given in what might be termed normal speech. For example, another dictionary defines "spade" as "A digging instrument adapted for being pushed into the ground with a foot." Glanze claims that nobody speaks like that. In the new volume it is "a flat-bladed digging tool with a long handle."

He hopes the new reference book will be in use 50 years from now, but admits that changes probably will be made about every five years, as the language continues to change. "No language I know of has the flexibility and malleability of English," he says. "English can take any word and make it its own, by changing the pronunciation, or ending, or meaning, or spelling. English has been absorbing everything for centuries."

Currently it is absorbing computer language such as "input," and slang on the order of "foxy" (pretty, sexy). Still, there will be new words or new meanings for old words, next year, next month — next week.

Bud Hawn: community activist

'Handicapped' is state of mind

By Bettie Ferguson

God, why did this happen to me?

Why is my speech spastic?

Why do strangers stare at me?

Why are my muscles peculiar and my nervous system wounded?

Byron L. (Bud) Hawn has asked himself these questions. He has also answered them.

"We are all put on this earth for a purpose. It doesn't bother me a bit!"

And then he laughs his infectious laugh and adds, "I haven't discovered what purpose yet, though."

This is Bud Hawn, farmer, community activist, past delegate to state Republican conventions, sports enthusiast and a victim of cerebral palsy.

Born in 1929 to Byron C. (now deceased) and Esther Hawn, Bud recalls he first realized he was handicapped about the age of five. "Maybe earlier I realized I couldn't walk like other kids."

Bud never walked like other kids, "at least so they could see me. I sometimes managed to walk around our house, but never outside."

Yet, confinement to a wheelchair has not kept Bud confined.

Each weekday he rises to go to his employment at Goodwill Industries of Northeast Iowa.

Always at his side as he travels is his companion, Herbert Hanson, who has been with him since 1941.

There is the commitment Bud feels toward his community and which he expresses through the convention bureau and the legislative committee of the Waterloo Chamber of Commerce.

"I have tried to be active in my town so 'normal people' will know that if a person in a wheelchair can be involved, so can they," he explains.

Another area that draws Bud's interest is community development because "I want to see buildings that have easy access for the handicapped: buildings with architectural barriers removed."

Continuing, he voices opposition to putting handicapped persons in nursing homes.

"There are too many old people in nursing homes and the handicapped should think young as long as possible.

"Too, when constructing apartments for the handicapped, they should be scattered among those for 'normal' people."

A member of the national Organization of Indoor Sports, his interest is not limited to the spectator variety.

"I drive my boat on Lake Okoboji," he exclaims, and he keeps abreast of all sports through membership in Sports of Sorts Club.

"I really like football. My favorite team is Green Bay.

"That's because of my philosophy, I guess. Green Bay, Wis., probably has a population of only about 50,000. Now, if that size community can afford a National League Football team, they deserve support.

"I think Vince Lombardi was something special. He had deep religious convictions."

Bud takes a moment to proudly show his card stating he is a member of the Farm Bureau and says, "My real occupation is a farmer, you know.

"I really am too, for I oversee the operation of an 80-acre farm I own in Grundy County."

He is also a member of the National Rehabilitation Association and serves on the Governor's Committee for the Handicapped.

Where did Bud Hawn gain his pluck and determination to keep forging ahead?

"I was very fortunate to have a mother and father who didn't care what people thought about their handicapped child," he answers.

"Back in 1930 most people kept the handicapped out of the public eye, but my parents didn't believe in that.

"They enrolled me in school in 1940. There was an Opportunity Room there I attended, and I stayed for four years until such a program opened at the old Sloane Wallace School.

"I even tried regular classes until the teachers found out I had a few more brains than some of the other kids," he says laughing.

"After ninth grade I attended West High until I graduated. In between I had special training in independent living in Oshkosh, Wis."

Now Bud Hawn becomes serious.

"I am very concerned that we handicapped are an endangered species.

"In Russia, tens of thousands of handicapped people were shipped off to remote spots. Could this be happening here — in a different way — as special schools, special transportation facilities and special housing further segregate people with disabilities?" he asks.

Without a trace of self-pity, Bud poses another question.

"I wonder . . . I have a hard time expressing myself. People will speak to me, but they don't stop and talk. This bothers me. What is it about me?"

Scarcely hesitating, he answers himself. "Perhaps they are afraid and are thinking, 'There, but for the grace of God, go I.' "

There is a blessing that is close to the heart and mind of Bud.

"Blessed are you who take time to listen to spastic speech — to walk with us in public places and ignore the stares of strangers.

"Blessed are you who never bid us hurry up — who assure us that the thing that makes us individuals is not in our peculiar muscles, not in our wounded nervous systems, but in God-given self which no infirmity can confine."

Bud Hawn is not confined.

BUD HAWN: "I have tried to be active in my town so 'normal people' will know that if a person in a wheelchair can be involved, so can they."

At a time when our seniors are hurrying and busy with graduation activities the Class of 1977 seniors of Colonial Hill Baptist Church took time to remember a class member who wasn't there, Tammie Evans.

We, her family, send our deepest appreciation for your thoughtfulness.

Our sincere thanks to Charlotte Barrett, Pam Burrus, Kelly Rose Burton, Teresa Clark, Rickey Fritz, Dale Hobbs, Russell McCain, Doug McGee, Vickie Greenfield, Luann Morgan, Ronda Nunley, Jane Salmon, Alton Sutton, Susan Walker Weems, Dean Williamson, Paul Wilson, and Steve Wiman.
