

U.S. bans Libya trips

NEWS ANALYSIS
BY LOYE MILLER JR.
Newhouse News Service

WASHINGTON — In light of the recent rash of tough rhetoric from U.S. officials — including the libidinal himself — directed at Libyan strongman Moammar Khadafy, the government's Thursday announcement of a ban on travel to Libya appears to be only a slap on the wrist.

Deputy Secretary of State William Clark announced the ban and requested that the estimated 1,500 Americans living in Libya come home because their lives are considered to be in "imminent danger."

The announcement came after reports that Khadafy has dispatched an assassination squad to try to kill Reagan and other high U.S. officials.

Given the extreme gravity of the charges, the reprisal action announced by Clark seemed minimal.

For one thing, it isn't clear it can be enforced.

The 30 or so oil companies and other corporations that employ most of the Americans left in Libya already have been asked repeatedly by the State Department to bring their people home. So far, they have refused.

If the U.S. firms defy President Reagan's new "call," there are laws under which they could be punished by sharply restricting their international operations. But that might seriously crimp U.S. oil supplies.

There is the possibility that the action is just the first step in a planned series of moves against Libya. If Reagan does plan to take stronger measures — one obvious option is to halt U.S. imports of Libyan oil — he would be prudent to try to get Americans out first to prevent their ultimately being held hostage.

One problem with this, though, is that a U.S. oil boycott almost certainly would lead to a takeover of U.S. oil facilities in Libya. And that would require the U.S. government to compensate oil companies for their losses at a cost of millions of dollars to taxpayers.

Clark, and other senior administration officials from both the State Department and the White House, stone-walled all efforts to draw some hint that the seemingly weak move was actually the beginning of a stiffer effort.

It is equally plausible that Reagan and his advisers felt they were obliged to back up their recent verbal blasts at Khadafy by "doing something" about Libya, and the travel ban emerged as the only acceptable thing "to do."

Except for those few who actually took part in the secret National Security Council deliberations which led to the Thursday order, even most usually well-informed Washingtonians are puzzled about what the directive really means.

Budget cut by $4 billion

By DAVID ESPO
Associate Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The Senate, on a vote of 60-35, sent President Reagan on Friday a catch-all budget bill that hands him $4 billion in new cuts from domestic programs as the final installment in a tumultuous year of rollbacks in federal spending and taxes.

The Republican-controlled Senate adopted the same compromise package approved by the House 218-197 a day earlier. At the White House, President Reagan was "pleased" and ready to sign the measure as soon as it reaches his desk, perhaps on Monday.

The bill was needed to keep the federal government from running out of money at midnight Tuesday. Reagan's veto of an earlier attempt prompted a one-day shutdown of many agencies last month.

The measure originally passed the Senate by voice vote, but the roll call was ordered later so Democrats could register their objections.

"This is not the bill the American people want," said Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., a year-long opponent of Reagan's economic policies.

Stephen Morse, 19, listens Friday morning as District Judge Pat Baskin outlines the charges against him and explains his right to a Jury Trial in the Feb. 18 slaying of Midland High School student Karen Rickey. Morse waived his right to a Jury Trial and pleaded guilty in a Plea-Bargaining arrangement that left him with a 25-Year Sentence.

Morse gets 25 years

BY RICHARD ORR

A young vacaville, Calif., man accused in last winter's murder of 17-Year-Old Karen Rickey has been sentenced to 25 Years in the State Penitentiary by District Judge Pat Baskin.

Baskin imposed the plea-bargained sentence on 19-Year-Old Stephen Andrew Morse Friday morning after Morse admitted bludgeoning the Midland High School Junior to death in field seven miles East to Midland FEB. 18.

She had been run over by her own car and beaten to death with a large, blood-soaked rock found near the body. Her 1970 Dodge Coronet was discovered parked at a lounge not far from the murder scene. It's Radio Antenna and right wind shield wiper were broken, and its exterior was stained with blood.

Evidence led Sheriff's department investigators and Texas Rangers to Midland Park Mall, where Morse was arrested without incident some four hours after her body was discovered about 8 A.M. that morning.

Pale and Trembling in white jail coveralls, Morse sat and stared out the third-floor courthouse windows as court-appointed attorney David Lashford conferred briefly with district attorney Vern Martin, Assistant District Attorney David Joers and Baskin before the Judge called him to the bench and pronounced sentence.

The 10th-Grade dropout earlier told the court he had been counseled for drug abuse at one time, but didn't have a History of Mental Illness and did know right from wrong. He waived his right to a Jury Trial.

His eyes welled with tears as he was led from the Courtroom and back to jail, where hew's been held under $100,000 bond since his arrest. None of his friends or relatives was present during the hearing, which lasted about an hour.

He had been working with a Geophysical survey team in the Midland area for about six weeks at the time of the murder. Witnesses told investigators that Miss Rickey dated Morse occasionally and that she was seen in his company the night of her death.

No definite motive was ever established in the case, according to Martin. During a post-hearing press conference he said that a confession suppressed as evidence by Baskin at a previous hearing took away an important part of the State's Case" and led to the plea-bargain arrangement.

Martin said the fact the confession didn't come until Morse had been in jail about a week caused questions to be raised about the voluntary nature of the confession. However these was no impropriety in the way the Sheriff's Department handled the case, he said, adding that the Physical evidence was consistent with a (Charge) of manslaughter," which carries a maximum sentence of 20 years.

Morse had been charged with murder, but pleaded guilty to the second count in a two-count indictment: Engaging in a act clearly dangerous to human life."

The Penalty Range on a murder conviction is five years to life imprisonment.

There are a hundred factors in plea-bargaining a serious case like this," said Martin. We wouldn't have done it if we didn't think it was the appropriate thing to do.

The (RICKEY) family was aware of the sentence. They're not made at us. And his family knew it was all him all along. It's a double tragedy. Both families suffer."

Morse will have to serve a third of his sentence before becoming eligible for parole, according to Martin who added: Historically, I wouldn't expect him to make (PAROLE) the first time."

The Rickey family could not be reached for comment.

Committee to consider four-year UTPB

ODESSA-The University of Texas System Board of Regents, meeting in Odessa Friday, charged its academic affairs committee with developing an up-to-date academic plan for the University of Texas of the Permian Basin to be accompanied by a Capital Development fund.

James L. Powell, Chairman of the Board, said the action is part of an ongoing plan to develop academic plans for all UT System Universities.

He said the Committee will look at the feasibility of four-year status of UTPB as part of its study. UTPB, an upper-level University which opened its doors to students in 1973, offers course work at the Junior, Senior and Graduate Levels only.

The action by the board of Regents followed a presentation by UTPB President V.R. Cardozier outlining a need for addition of freshman and sophomore offerings at UTPB.

While it is doubtful that enrollment growth at UTPB as an upper-level University would reach the critical mass required for adequate State Funding within the foreseeable future, the need for this University and for the addition of freshman and sophomore offerings is compelling. In short, the need for a University that offers complete undergraduate and graduate programs is clear," Cardozier said.

"I am gratified that the board of regents has decided to undertake a study at UTPB as a basis for an ACA Demic plan. While I understand that a study of this kind is to be made of all seven academic Universities in the system, it is clear that the question of whether to add freshmen and sophomore classes is involved in this undertaking.

It is also logical that such a study would be made before Regents would make a decision that they would support four-year status for UTPB," Cardozier added.

In other business, Regents accepted an endowed professorship in music and expanded the use of UTPB Student Housing Area.

The endowed professorship was made possible by a gift of $100,000 from an anonymous donor. The expansion of the student housing area would allow students, faculty and staff who own mobile homes to park these in the student housing area where University-owned Mobile Housing units already are located.

Among the grants and contracts approved at the meeting was a contract between Ector County and UTPB which provides mobile class rooms for use at the Ector County Youth Center. A similar agreement allows two of UTPB's mobile class rooms for use at the University of Texas Health Science Center at Tyler.

A Grant from the U.S. department of Education to UTPB provides funds in the amount of $1,200 to support the Library resources program. The grant allows for acquisition of supplemental books, films and special library materials.

Peru chief named secretary general

Compiled from wire reports

UNITED NATIONS — The Security Council on Friday nominated Javier Perez de Cuellar, a Peruvian diplomat who skillfully avoided angering the Kremlin on a delicate U.N. mission to Afghanistan, to be the fifth U.N. secretary general.

Once confirmed by the 157-member General Assembly, he will succeed Kurt Waldheim, the 62-year-old Austrian incumbent, on Jan. 1 and become the first Latin American to hold the post of chief U.N. administrative officer.

The nomination of the Peruvian diplomat to become secretary general of the United Nations drew enthusiastic reactions Friday from other Latin American countries and expressions of backing from China and America.

China and the United States are among the five permanent members in the 15-member Security Council with veto powers, and they had deadlocked the nomination of a secretary general through 16 rounds of votes that began in October.

China, backing the Third World nations, vetoed Waldheim, who was seeking a third five-year term, and the United States vetoed Tanzanian Foreign Minister Salim Ahmed Salim, apparently because of some of Tanzania's political positions. Perez de Cuellar's selection came after Waldheim and Salim withdrew.

Jeanne Kirkpatrick, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, was asked about the Peruvian's nomination and replied, "Obviously, we think he's going to do well or we wouldn't have supported him."

China's official Xinhua news agency, in a dispatch filed from the United Nations and released in Peking, said, "Many people regarded the selection of Mr. Perez de Cuellar as the next secretary general as a major victory for the Third World." It acknowledged that China had supported Salim by repeatedly vetoing Waldheim's nomination.

Perez de Cuellar, 61, said he had received telephoned congratulations from Waldheim and Celso Pastor, the Peruvian ambassador to the United Nations.

'Far out' measures may save nuke plants

By STAN BENJAMIN

WASHINGTON — Costly, "far out" safety ideas, now resisted by the U.S. nuclear power industry, might just be its salvation some day.

Even anti-nuclear leaders admit that atomic plants might be accepted as "safe enough" by all but the most die-hard opponents if, for example, they were:

- Buried underground.
- Clustered, far from population centers.
- Equipped with vent filters and "core-catchers" to trap radioactivity in the worst of accidents.
- And built according to standardized designs.

Nobody has yet united all these ideas in a single nuclear plant.

"So far, they're just topics and not things which have been proven to be helpful," says Carl Walske, president of the Atomic Industrial Forum.

In fact, most of those ideas already have been tried somewhere in the world, though not in the United States.

France is building dozens of standard-design plants; land-short Japan is clustering reactors on approved sites; Canada has installed vent filters on Ontario's four Pickering nuclear units; Sweden studied underground construction and even built a reactor in a cave before voters rejected further nuclear power development in a public referendum.

Only the "core-catcher," a structure designed to capture an entire melted reactor core, remains a mere theory, untested anywhere.

The U.S. nuclear industry, maintaining that its power plants are already safe enough, says such precautions would cost too much, would add little to plant safety, and might raise unsuspected problems of their own.

But a few nuclear engineers think it's time to give the "far-out" safety ideas serious consideration.

Their industry is now in deep trouble, stagnating under high construction costs and low demand for power, shaken by the Three Mile Island accident and the Diablo Canyon construction blunders, and facing a raft of unresolved questions — worker health and safety; open-air dumping of radioactive mill tailings; security against sabotage; nuclear weapon proliferation; radioactive waste disposal; and the dismantling of worn-out power plants.

If continued public opposition, licensing delays, design problems, insurance costs and nervous bankers prod the industry's condition from "critical" toward "terminal," a radical cure may start looking like the main chance.

Robert Pollard, safety specialist for the anti-nuclear Union of Concerned Scientists, thinks nuclear power is too risky under any conditions.

But a super-safe reactor with a demonstrated waste-disposal system might persuade the public, if not Pollard, to accept nuclear power, he conceded in an interview.

Pollard and Anna Gyorgy, director of another anti-nuclear group, Critical Mass, both say safety means making it impossible to release large amounts of radioactivity in even the worst accident — a melt-down, in which reactor fuel either burns through the concrete floor of the plant or cracks the building open with a steam explosion.

Commonwealth Edison, an Illinois utility, studied both scenarios and concluded that neither could really happen.

It says a melting core would not drop to the floor in one searing mass, but would drip bit by bit, releasing heat too slowly to burn or blast its way out.

Still, if it would make people feel safer, a "core-catcher" might be built of heat-resistant materials to hold melted fuel until it cools off.

The vent filters and sealed pressure-relief chamber on Canada's Pickering units, designed to trap accidental "puffs" of radioactive gas, might be adopted on other plants as well.

In California, which has banned further nuclear construction until its safety concerns are satisfied, the state Energy Commission studied in 1978 the idea of building plants underground.

It concluded, like the nuclear industry, that "undergrounding" would be costly and might not improve safety very much.

But Commonwealth Edison spokesman Jim Toscas, a nuclear engineer, points out that the costs of "undergrounding" might be partly offset, at the right location, by a long-term advantage — easy disposal of a worn-out, radioactive nuclear plant at the end of its useful life.

"It could be cheaper to decommission an underground plant," Toscas suggested. "You could just fill it with concrete and leave it there."

Walske notes that some engineers suggest the expense of making a reactor building invulnerable may be offset by the savings it permits, on simpler reactor controls and safety features inside.

"They've said, if we can make the containment perfect — that is, remove the heat from a melted core and prevent escape — the public safety problem goes away," Walske says.

"Then, inside, you can design whatever you want, to protect your equipment and your investment."

"I kind of like it as a theory," Walske admits.

And if radioactive escape were made virtually impossible, the cost of liability insurance for nuclear plants could be reduced, offering still another cost saving.

He's not blue over 'Rhapsody'

By HILL OUTLAW
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — When Larry Adler plays "Rhapsody in Blue" on his harmonica, it brings back a lot of memories for himself as well as for his audience.

For the self-described "granddaddy" of harmonica players, it brings to mind the story of a boy who had struck out on his own at 14 in a career that would see him become the first "mouth-organ" soloist in the world.

It's a story Adler likes to tell about himself, especially when he plays the famous George Gershwin tune.

Adler, then 16, was talking with well-known "Big Band" musicians Paul Whiteman and Frank Trumbauer and another person whom he didn't know.

He and Whiteman were discussing Adler's performance, which Whiteman had praised, when Whiteman asked him if he could play "Rhapsody in Blue." Adler didn't know how to play the song, but he didn't want Whiteman to know it.

Rather than admit it, Adler told Whiteman he didn't like the song.

Whiteman, as Adler tells it, then turned to the other party and said, "How do you like that, Gershwin?"

But Adler certainly knows how to play "Rhapsody in Blue" now, as well as other great Gershwin compositions, such as "Summertime."

The 67-year-old musician's career has spanned 53 years and has taken him all over the world, including performances at such places as Carnegie Hall. He's had works written especially for him by composers such as Vaughan Williams.

Adler also teamed with dancer Paul Draper, with Adler providing the music and Draper the choreography during the early 1940s when Adler and Draper toured the world.

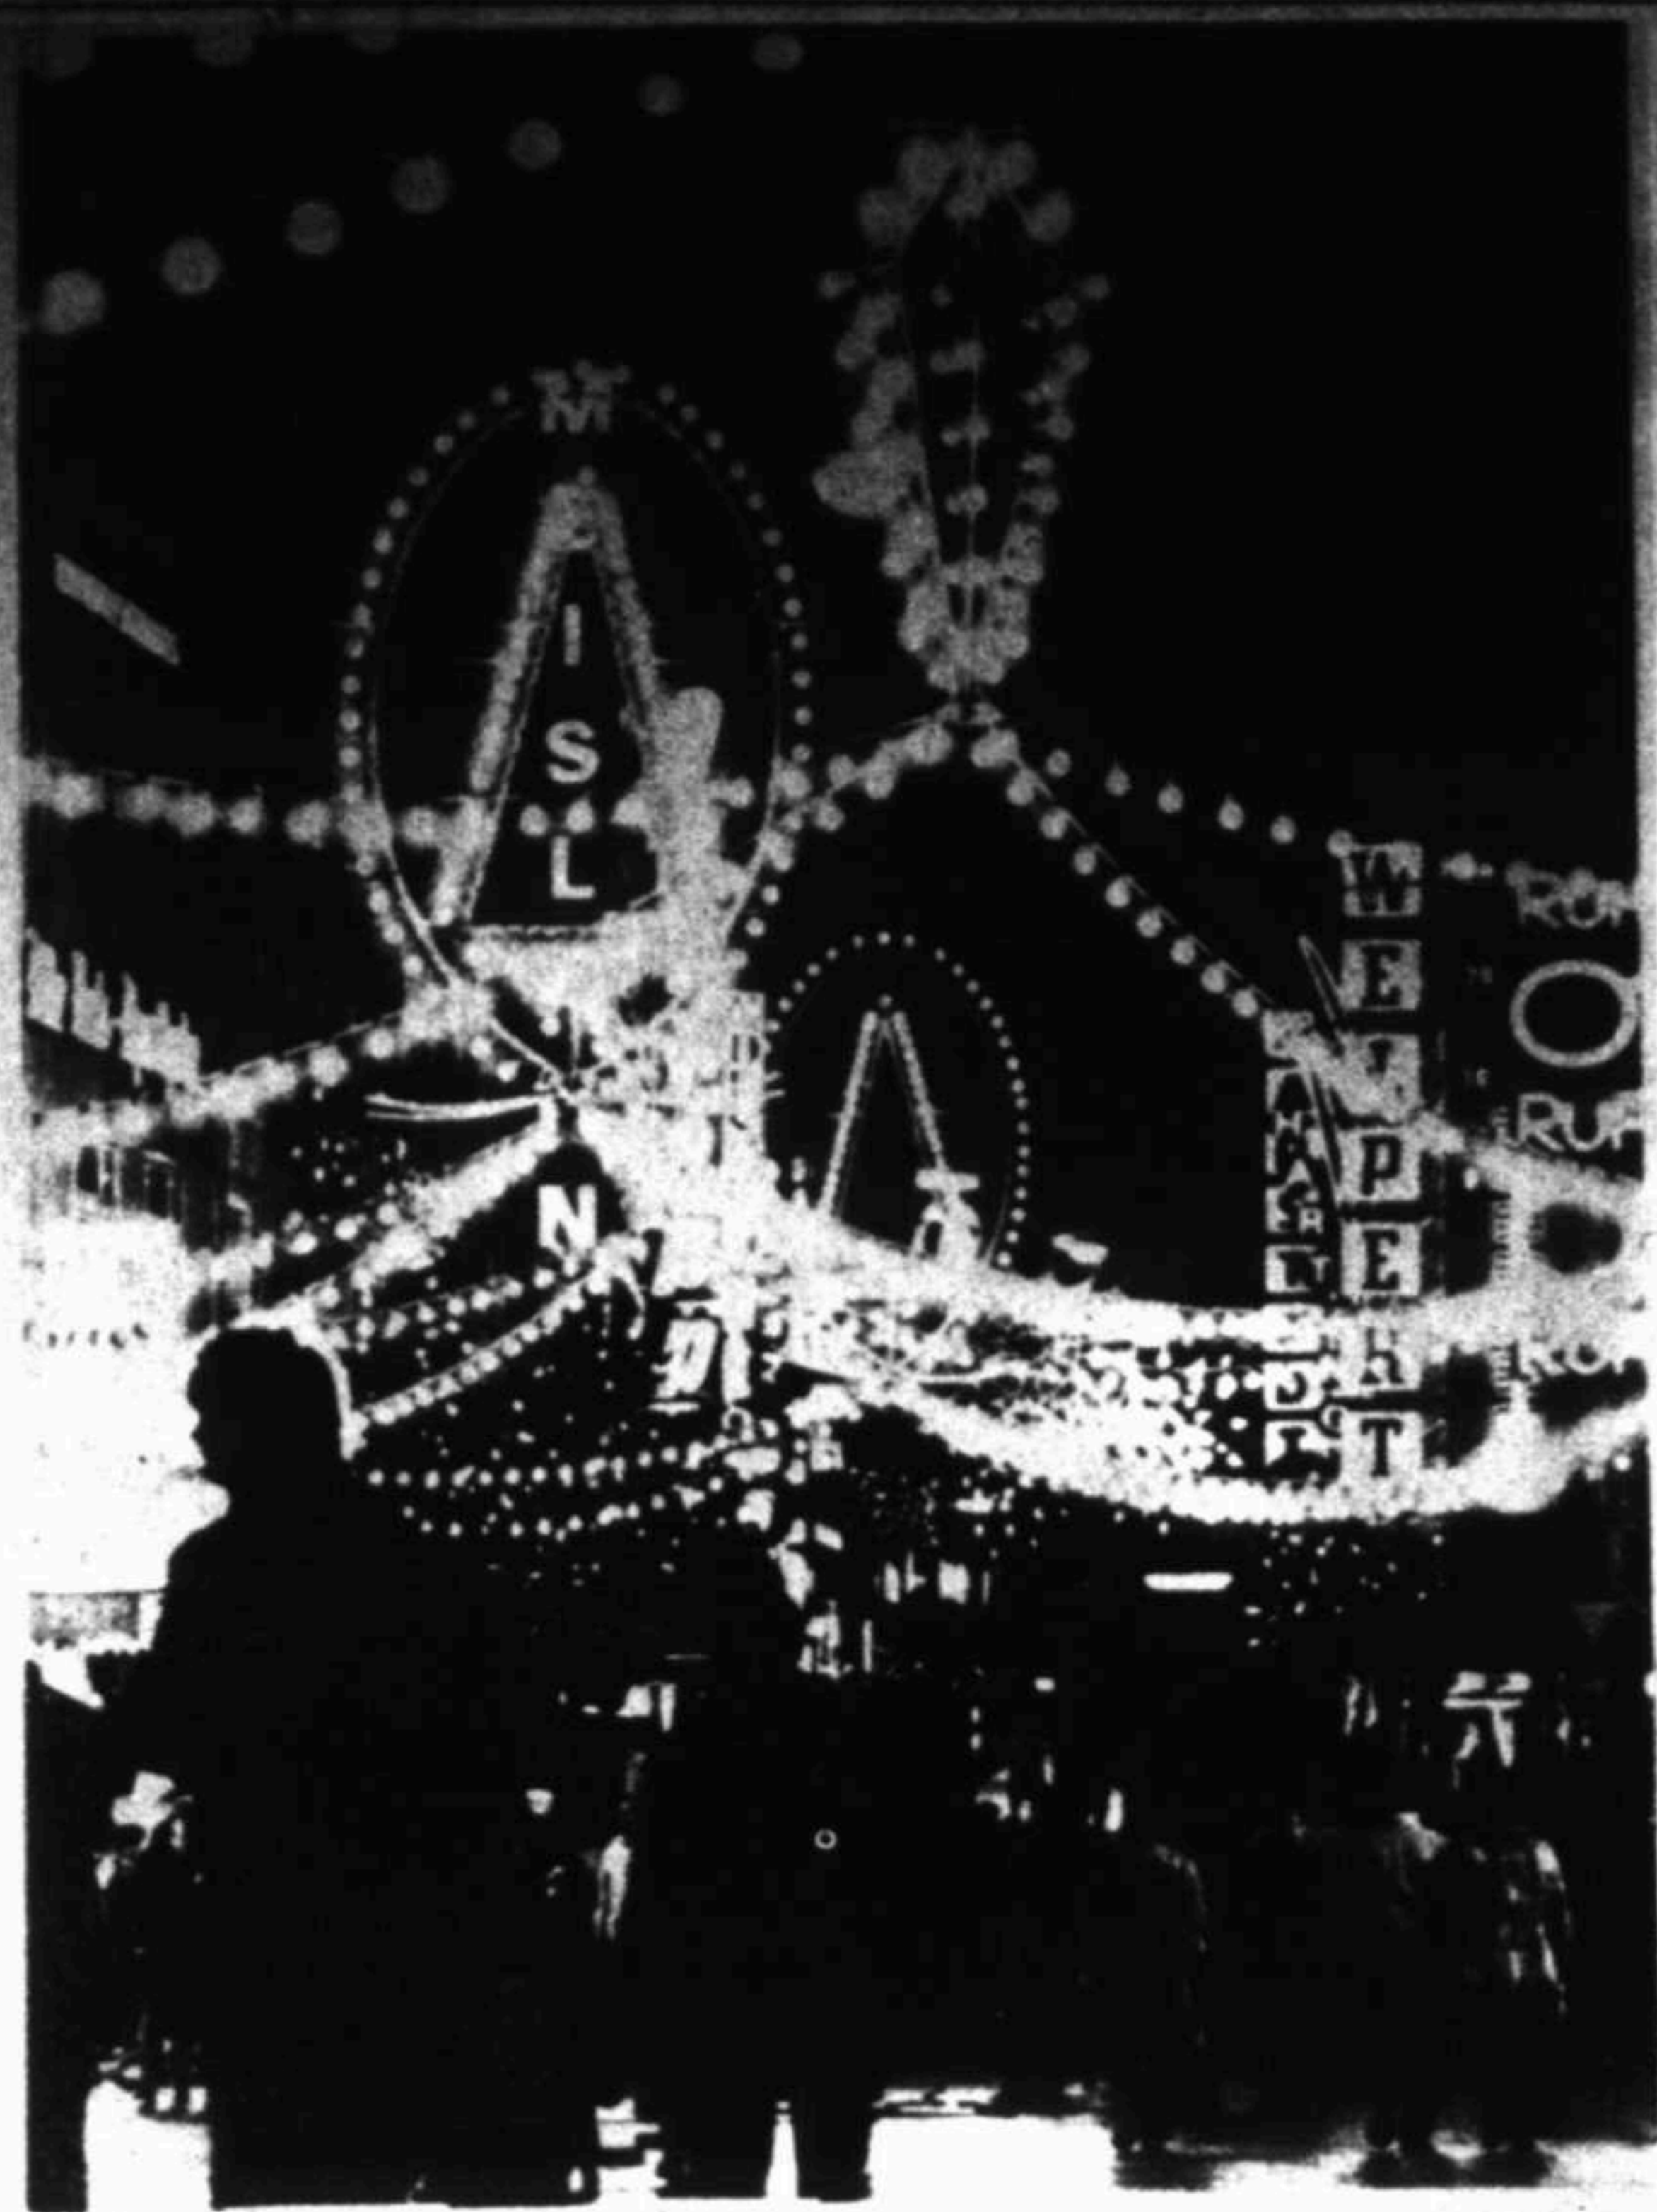

He says he was the first mouth-organ player in the world to play solo, and he was also the first to play classical music in concert.

Rare white tiger cub dies

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — One of two rare white tiger cubs born here last month has died, apparently of a viral infection, zoo officials say.

Lee Simmons, director of the Henry Dooley Zoo, said Thursday the male cub had "all the appearances of a very acute viral disease," with symptoms similar to those shown by animals suffering from feline distemper.

The second cub, a female, showed no signs of the symptoms, he said.

Simmons said tissue from the male cub will be sent to Cornell University for analysis because of the work done there on feline viral diseases.

The exact cause of death won't be known until the tests are completed, he said.

Simmons said pure white cats have a tendency to be deficient in immunity, so the cub may not have been protected against distemper through its mother's vaccination.

African jungle may contain creatures similar to dinosaurs

CHICAGO (AP) — University of Chicago biologist Roy Mackal believes he may have found evidence of a dinosaur-like creature in the jungles of the African Congo.

Mackal recently returned from four weeks in the Congo with photographs of footprints he believes could belong to the creature natives call mokele-mbembe.

He said Thursday that although he didn't see the beast, it was described as being reddish-brown with a huge neck, snake-like head and tail and a body about the size of an elephant.

Mackal said the footprints he photographed could not have been formed by any known animal.

Near the Congolese village of Dzeke, he said, a native hunter named Emmanuel Moungoumbela showed Mackal the large footprints leading into the Likouala River.

Mackal said the footprints first were found by Moungoumbela about 16 months ago, just a few days after they were made. When they were discovered they lay in the middle of a two-meter wide swath of flattened grass. Because such a swath could be produced only by a large heavy tail, Mackal says the tracks could not have been an elephant's.

Also, Moungoumbela could not find another set of tracks leaving the water, Mackal said. An elephant would eventually have had to come out of the river, he said.

"I thought they (the creatures) lived in the rivers before this trip," Mackal said. "But we found no trace of the creatures with our sonar equipment ... I now think they must live in the uninhabited swamps and that they use the river only to move from place to place. All of the sightings occur near the rivers simply because that is where the natives live."

Mackal said the Congolese government has promised "to hire spotters to keep a constant watch along the Likouala for any signs of the creature."

Also hunting for the "mokele-mbembe" are Herman and Kia Regusters of South Pasadena, Calif. They left in early September, and in October, they said in a letter to a friend in Los Angeles that their party had left a pygmy village and was planning to hike 50 miles through swampy jungle to the Lake Tele area where pygmies and others have reported sighting dinosaur-like creatures. The friend recently received a cable that they had reached their destination.

Existing near the Miami riot area isn't easy these days

WASHINGTON — The Knickerbocker Meat Co. is one of the few thriving businesses in Miami's blighted Liberty City area, but its owner says he's fed up with crime and harassment and may move to a safer part of the city, taking 135 much-needed jobs with him.

But a new Urban Enterprise Zone bill which passed the Florida legislature may give Gotthelf financial incentives to keep the valuable jobs where they are.

Harold Gotthelf, president of the wholesale meat processing firm, says his business has grown and "either we have to move and expand or stay and expand."

'Midnight sun' land lures thousands

By HARALD MOLLERSTROM
Associated Press Writer

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Tourist pamphleteers call it "The Top of Europe," "The Land of the Midnight Sun," "The Land of a Thousand Lakes."

Less romantically, the remote polar circle of Sweden, Norway and Finland represents money in the till to the Scandinavian neighbors' tourism officials, a real growth industry.

"Tourism is now one of the most important staple industries in the region," said Lars Florin, press spokesman of the Swedish Tourist Council. "In less than 15 years it has manifolded."

Tourism in the polar circle area, worth an estimated $150 million, counted some 350,000 tourists in 1980, the lion's share foreigners. In 1980 its worth quadrupled to $600 million, while the number of visitors increased to 1.5 million.

Covering 300,000 square kilometers, roughly one third the combined three-nation area, the region is home to only 800,000 people — 5 percent of the population. That leaves plenty of room for tourists.

THE SCANDINAVIAN programs began in the 1950s when the Swedes decided to exploit the polar region as a drawing card for luxurious cruise ships filled with rich Americans.

The never-ending summer nights were the major attraction back then, when Sweden launched its 10-day "Sunlit night land cruises" — trains which offered cabins with full board. The luxurious excursions were finally abandoned in the early '60s as the number of ship-borne American millionaires dwindled to a trickle.

Since that beginning, all three nations have advertised the sun as a national asset, and Finland has done a flip-flop in its campaign to lure tourists even during the interminable, deathly black winter nights. Its latest campaign advertises "the midnight darkness."

All three have launched big projects to make their polar areas attractive, not only to bring in foreigners but to entice their own people to spend money at home in the summer and winter holidays.

Norway, at the top of the Scandinavian peninsula, has as its prime attraction the 973-foot-high North Cape cliff at the northernmost tip of Europe. A classic spot for watching the midnight sun and its beautiful fjords, it also offers rich deep-sea fishing opportunities at the Lofoten islands.

In addition, the northern rivers offer some of the best trout and salmon waters in Europe, which once made the kingdom almost a second home for a generation of British nobility.

The Finns, lagging behind their neighbors at the outset, lost to Sweden the race to exploit the midnight sun, but they have begun advertising the "Ruska" — Finnish for autumn's splash of color — as a Finnish specialty in September.

THE FINNS ALSO have laid claim to Santa Claus, and a Finnish Father Christmas answers an estimated 50,000 letters a year from children around the world.

Finland has billed itself the "Land of the Thousand Lakes," again getting the jump on its Nordic neighbors who could just as easily qualify for the title. It features annual midnight-sun sailing regattas on its northern lakes and world gold-digging championships for professionals and amateurs in the village of Tankavaara.

Sweden, tennis crazy since the Bjorn Borg era of professional tennis began in the mid-1970s, has tennis courts as far north as the 68th parallel. There, a tennis enthusiast can play for 24 hours a day in summer.

And for those who'd like to take in a post-midnight round of golf, the Swedes have built a nine-hole course at the 67th parallel.

More think professional help OK

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — The percentage of Americans seeking professional help for personal problems has nearly doubled in the past two decades, according to University of Michigan researchers.

A report from the university's Institute for Social Research attributes the increase to greater availability and reduced cost of such help, as well as wider public acceptance of professional mental health treatment.

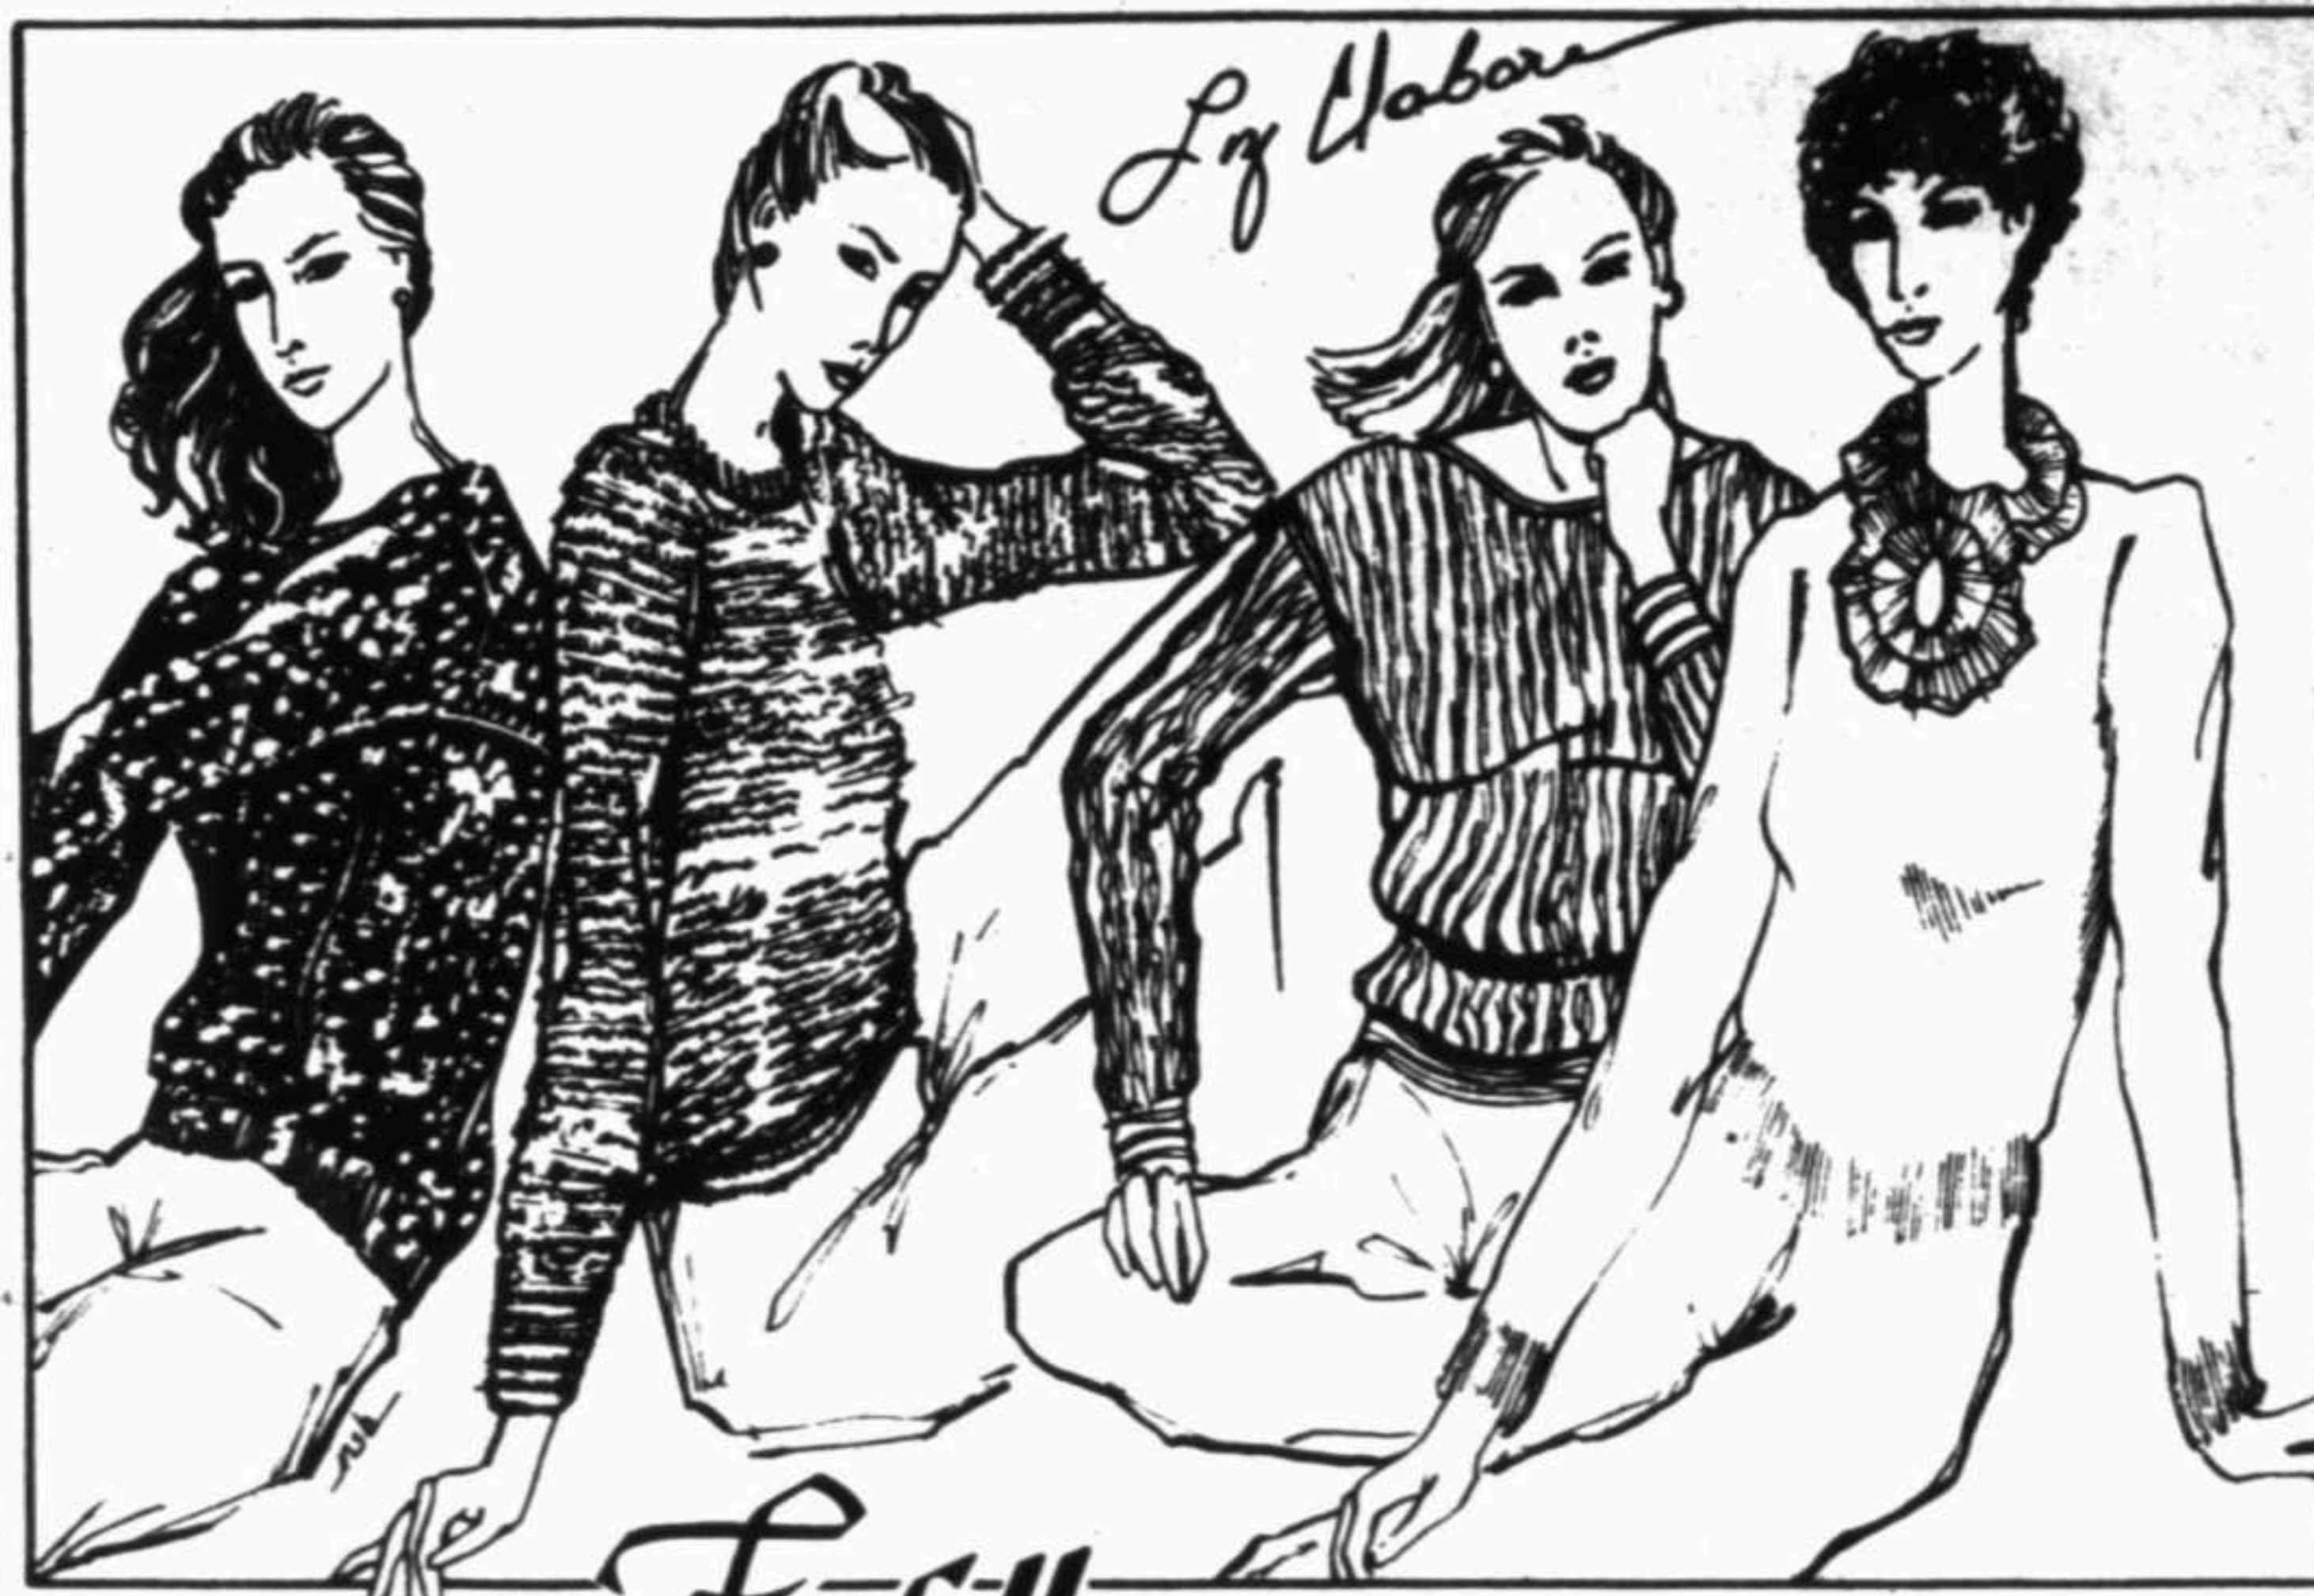

"The stigma has decreased," the researchers said in a recently published book. "Even people who do not personally expect to consult a mental health professional themselves see it as a reasonable alternative for persons facing an unmanageable crisis."

The analysis was made by comparing a 1978 national study of 2,000 adults with a similar 1957 survey of attitudes toward dealing with personal problems. The conclusions were published in a book by Institute staff members Joseph Veroff, Richard A. Kalka and Elizabeth Douvan.

"In 1957, some 14 percent of the population said they had sought professional help at some point in the lives. By 1978, that proportion had nearly doubled to 26 percent," the researchers said.

Just in time for Christmas, Farfalla has the line you've been waiting for — Liz Claiborne's fabulous sweaters in metallic, linen, lambswool and silk fibres. Great style, great quality and a great selection!

New York City preserved on microfiche

NEW YORK (AP) — The photographic collection of the New York Public Library that portrays America's past is being preserved for its future.

The crumbling photographs — a street-by-street, year-by-year chronicle of New York City dating from the 1880s — have been indexed and put on microfilm for use by scholars around the world.

Caught in the pictures are events such as a Fifth Avenue suffragette parade in 1913, a coach and buggy view of Times Square in 1890, immigrants at outdoor markets on Hester Street in 1910, and bathers at Coney Island in 1925.

The 54,000 photographs make up a graphic history of the city's architectural monuments, transportation systems, social and demographic patterns and major events of the past 100 years.

But Gunther Pohle, history and genealogy division chief of the library, had been concerned for several years about the collection's rapid deterioration.

"Heavy handling — 40,000 uses last year alone — was damaging the collection, but we didn't want to deny scholars access to it," Pohle says. "I began looking for ways to solve the problem, and microfilm turned out to be the perfect answer."

Pohle arranged for University Microfilms International (UMI) in Ann Arbor, Mich., to microfilm the photographs. UMI, a Xerox Corp. subsidiary, works with scholars and librarians to microfilm everything from ancient religious documents to 95 percent of all Ph.D. dissertations in the United States.

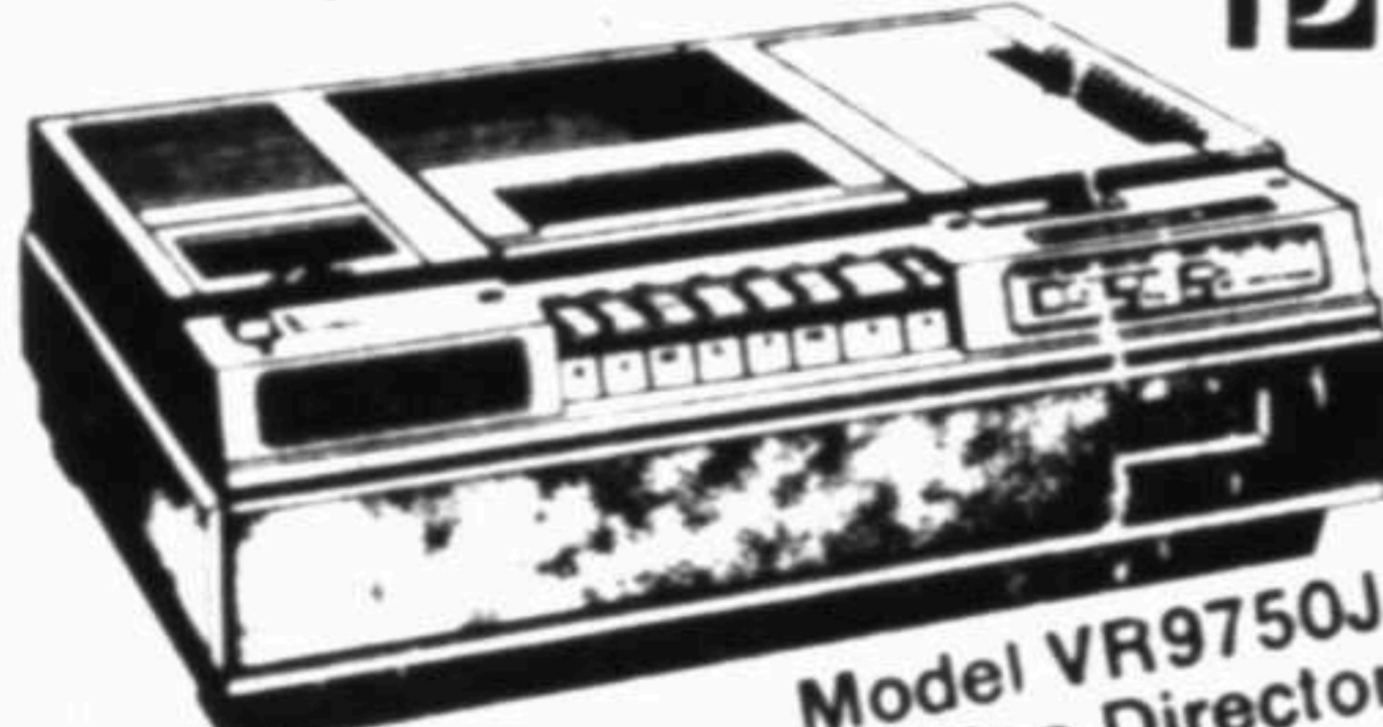

The company's experts first studied the condition of the prints and then developed techniques to faithfully capture the images. Six months of filming was completed in 1981.

Today the 54,000 photographs are contained on 1,481 microfiches. The contents of 40 file drawers fit in one small desk drawer.

The microfilms can be used by scholars at the New York Public Library, Fifth Avenue at 42nd Street, and also are for sale to public, university and research libraries and private business.

MOSCOW (AP) — The daughter-in-law of Andrei Sakharov, the Nobel laureate whose hunger strike apparently won her the right to emigrate to the United States, prepared Friday for a week-end reunion in Gorky that would also be a farewell.

"I'm taking them 10 grapefruits," the booty of an afternoon of shopping, a beaming Liza Alexeyeva told Western reporters as she outlined the day's developments and her plans to take an early morning train out of Moscow Saturday.

Sakharov and his wife, Yelena Bonner, were banished to Gorky 23 months ago because of his activities in behalf of human rights that won him the Nobel Peace Prize in 1975. The couple launched a hunger strike Nov. 23 to pressure Soviet authorities into allowing Miss Alexeyeva to join Mrs. Bonner's son in the United States.

THE HUNGER strike ended Tuesday and the 60-year-old nuclear physicist and his 58-year-old wife were in good health, according to two telegrams Miss Alexeyeva received Friday.

"On the evening of the eighth (Tuesday) we finished drinking Borzhomi (mineral water). We are waiting for you," said one telegram from Sakharov. Miss Alexeyeva said the couple planned to take only mineral water on their fast, and the telegram's wording indicated the hunger strike was over. The other telegram, dated Thursday, proclaimed: "We are happy beyond words. We are well. We are getting better together." Miss Alexeyeva said she had been informed by sources she would not reveal that the couple had been separated when Soviet agents took them from their exile home to hospitals in an effort to halt the hunger strike.

The head of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, Anatoly Alexandrov, told Miss Alexeyeva on Thursday that the Sakharovs had broken their fast with fruit juice. It was not known when they would resume regular meals, Miss Alexeyeva said.

MISS ALEXEYEVA was married last June, in a proxy ceremony in Montana, to Alexei Semyonov, Mrs. Bonner's 25-year-old son by a previous marriage.

Permission for her to join him apparently was orchestrated by the KGB. Agent Alexander Baranov first told her she would be allowed to leave when he summoned her to KGB headquarters in the downtown Lubyanka Prison on Wednesday.

WEEKLY COMMODITY MARKET REVIEW

Commodity futures prices strength declined as recessionary psychology gripped the markets. The precious metals Review is compiled by market declined as traders focused on the bearish economic outlook.

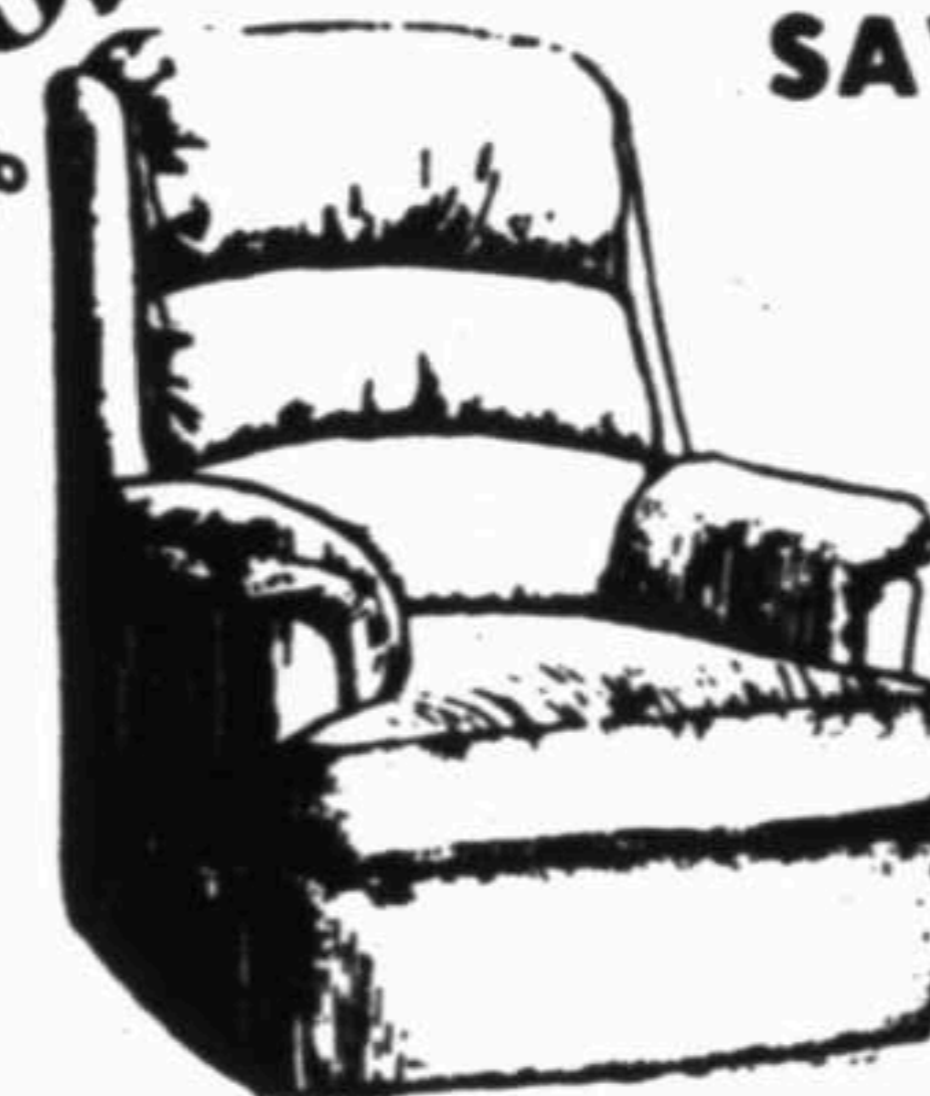

Copper prices fell to new lows as it became apparent that production cutbacks by the industry did not alter poor demand prospects resulting from economic recession.

Disappointment over less than robust demand for beef following the Thanksgiving holiday weighed heavy on the cattle complex this week. Combined larger than expected slaughter and pressure in the cattle complex brought increased selling to hog and belly futures.

Heavy long liquidation was evident in corn and wheat markets with recessionary concerns the catalyst. The weakness in livestock futures was another negative factor for the feed grains. Soybeans and products continued easier as poor demand but did receive some support late in the week as European buyers attempted to cover nearby needs.

Cotton crop production report was awaited this week but turned out about unchanged with no market force. Exports tend to pick up, furnishing late week

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A fine time for setting a wedding date. New ideas are likely to find acceptance with family members, close friends. Look for the best in people! A Sunday sermon could be inspiring.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You need to cut down on your entertaining and come to grips with personal chores. Answer letters or address Christmas cards. Postpone getting in touch with influential people to discuss business.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Stir those around you into action! Complete Christmas shopping or gift-making. Romance could feature arguments if you are not prepared to compromise. A change of scenery gives your spirits a lift.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): News that comes to you in a roundabout way could prove misleading. Do not patronize expensive restaurants or clubs if it means dipping into savings.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Mate will show a great deal of understanding as long as you lay all of your cards on the table. All matters connected with love and romance look promising now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Complete your Christmas shopping before the last-minute rush. Cooperation is the key to domestic harmony. Give voice to your feelings when it comes to romance.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A good day for you and your loved ones. Make the most of it! You gain special pleasure from the antics of young people. Music plays a key role in today's events.

Illinois veterinarian doesn't horse around

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
Associated Press Writer

NAPERVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Dr. Tom Phillips placed a 9-pound stone, almost as big as a bowling ball, on his desk. "I got this out of a horse, and he lived," he said. "It was formed in the intestines by calcium deposits."

The lame, the colicky, and the diseased are brought to Phillips' Illinois Equine Hospital and Clinic, located amid cornfields 35 miles southwest of Chicago.

About 2,000 horses a year from throughout the Midwest pass through the 21-stall facility with its hydraulic-tilt operating table, padded recovery stalls, X-ray examining room and isolation rooms.

Seventy percent of the equine patients come from the racing industry. Others are hunters, jumpers and show horses.

Most of the work is with lameness, either for evaluation or surgery to repair knee chips and fractures with new orthopedic techniques of using metal plates and screws.

It used to be that race horses with broken legs were simply "put down." But Phillips, who opened his hospital in 1965, is saving many of them to race again.

Colic (abdominal problems) takes a high toll of horses. Of the 14 operations for such trouble yearly at the hospital, 63 percent are saved, said Phillips, whose facility is on call 24 hours a day.

"Dewan Keyes was a thoroughbred who won a quarter-million dollars as a 2-year-old and then was stricken by twisted intestines," recalled Phillips, who was a graduate and a professor of veterinary medicine at the University of Illinois. "When we got him he was in severe pain. A horse has 35 feet of intestines. After surgery, Dewan Keyes returned to racing."

Phillips' in-clinic staff includes Joe Foerner, who in 1971 was elected a Fellow of the American College of Veterinary Surgeons, and Bill Barclay, who had a three-year teaching residency at Cornell in surgery and medicine.

An offshoot of the clinic is an equine field service where a separate staff makes "barn calls." Foerner is also consultant at Brookfield Zoo near Chicago.

"I've amputated a toe of a kangaroo, bone-plated a fractured femur of a tiger, removed the tumor from the nose of a rhino and filled two cracks of another, fixed a knock-kneed giraffe, delivered a set of twins to an antelope and retrieved an eye cup of a performing dolphin that had swallowed it. It's very interesting work," said Foerner.

Hospital services, including surgery and an average stay of eight to 10 days, usually cost about $1,000, said Phillips.

Trees are in the way of progress

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Money doesn't grow on trees, but a couple of trees here are growing on a lot of money.

The pair of 60-year-old trees stand on a downtown corner where a savings and loan association wants to put a $25 million office building.

The trees — a tamarind and a southern red cedar — are among five trees in the city that enjoy protected status because of their age.

"We literally cannot construct the project at all, unless we can work something out with the city about the trees," said James Hartley, chairman of Hollywood Federal Savings & Loan.

In 1978, the city commission passed a special resolution to safeguard the trees by declaring them "practically irreplaceable and therefore deserving of protection."

Hartley said his company agreed to the 1978 tree resolution. But that was before he wanted to build the tower there.

"I like trees, too," said City Zoning Inspector Dick Van Wyk. "I can remember delivering papers near there 50 years ago. They are nice trees, but we're talking about a $25 million building."

City commissioners could pass a new resolution to bring on the chainsaws and Commissioner Robert Cox said he and his colleagues will study whether the trees can be moved.

King wins eviction suit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tennis star Billie Jean King won her court bid Friday to evict her former lesbian lover from a Malibu beach house, but she said the dispute has cost her more than $1 million.

Marilyn Barnett, Mrs. King's former secretary, agreed to obey a judge's order to move within 30 days from the house she claimed Mrs. King bought her when they were lovers.

"I'm hostile toward Billie, but I'll always love her," she told reporters later. She said she will keep her love letters.

Mrs. King said she had received no offers for commercial endorsements since she held a news conference May 1 to admit the love affair. Her husband, Larry, estimated the losses at "well over a million dollars."

Tennis star Billie Jean King, left, smiles as she sits at the counsel's table in Los Angeles County Superior Court Friday shortly before Judge Julius Title ruled in favor of Mrs. King in the eviction lawsuit of Mrs. King's former lover, Marilyn Barnett, right, from a Malibu, Calif., beach house.

"I'M NOW 38 YEARS old," Mrs. King said. "I don't have that many years left to play tennis. I depend mostly on endorsements."

But she said the ordeal had brought her and her husband closer together.

"I think a crisis always brings people closer together if they really love each other," she said. "We've known each other for 20 years, and that's a long time."

Neither Mrs. King nor Ms. Barnett showed any visible emotion when Superior Court Judge Julius Title announced he was ruling in favor of the tennis star and against Ms. Barnett.

Title condemned Ms. Barnett for trying to get money in exchange for Mrs. King's love letters.

"For Ms. Barnett to claim the letters were of sentimental value, only, is just not credible," Title said. "The hostility and bitter feelings and money demanded by Ms. Barnett cannot make that an acceptable explanation."

He said he believed Ms. Barnett refused earlier offers for the letters because "she thought she could do better."

"If that isn't an attempt at extortion, it certainly comes close enough to it," the judge said.

Ms. Barnett's attorney, Joel Ladin, said he hasn't decided whether to press a "palimony" suit filed earlier by Ms. Barnett, seeking lifetime support from Mrs. King or half the assets the tennis star earned during the love affair, from 1974-78.

MRS. KING'S ATTORNEY, Dennis Wasser, said, "In our judgment, both cases are over. The palimony case is over."

Ms. Barnett, 33, a former hairdresser, limped out of the courtroom leaning on a cane and told reporters she doesn't know when she will live after leaving the house.

Ms. Barnett, injured in a fall off a balcony at the house last year, refused to discuss testimony that the fall had actually been a suicide attempt. She wears leg braces as a result of her injuries.

It was the medical cost of those injuries which she claimed drove her to ask Mrs. King for money.

But Mrs. King's business manager, James Jorgensen, testified Friday that Ms. Barnett had warned him she could hurt Mrs. King "a lot" by revealing their love affair. He said her comment came after she was told the Kings wanted to sell the house.

Jorgensen said he concluded Ms. Barnett was "unstable" and advised Mrs. King to pay what he considered blackmail money.

"IN THE SUMMER OF 1978, did Ms. Barnett express a threat to Mrs. King through you?" Wasser asked him.

"Yes," said Jorgensen. "Marilyn said, 'Why would Billie Jean want to hurt me this way? I've never hurt Billie Jean, but I could hurt her and hurt her a lot.'"

Hearst family paid settlement

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The husband of a woman killed in a Symbionese Liberation Army bank robbery says Patricia Hearst's family paid part of a $300,000 settlement of his wrongful death suit.

The newspaper heiress, now married to former policeman Bernard Shaw, was convicted of a different SLA bank robbery. But she was never charged in the April 21, 1975, Sacramento-area bank holdup in which bank customer Myrna Opsahl, the pregnant 42-year-old mother of four small children, was killed.

But in a recently published book, "Every Secret Thing," Mrs. Shaw, the granddaughter of newspaper publisher William Randolph Hearst, wrote that SLA member Emily Harris fired the shot that killed Mrs. Opsahl. Mrs. Shaw wrote that she herself drove the getaway car. Mrs. Harris is still in prison on kidnap charges.

In a brief telephone interview Thursday, Mrs. Opsahl's husband, Dr. Trygve Opsahl, told the Sacramento Bee that "some" of the $300,000 settlement of his suit against Crocker National Bank was paid by the Hearst family, but he declined to give details.

Opsahl's second wife said Friday that the surgeon was in seclusion and would grant no further interviews.

"Months and years of tragedy cannot be condensed into two minutes of comment, so my husband is not commenting on any of this," she said.

Court records say Opsahl filed a $1 million wrongful death suit against the bank and several unnamed defendants a year after the robbery.

That suit was settled out of court without publicity for more than $300,000 on July 3, 1978, two years after Mrs. Shaw had been convicted of an April 1974 San Francisco bank robbery in which two passers-by were wounded by fleeing bandits.

Mrs. Shaw, who originally was kidnapped for ransom by the SLA terrorists but later joined them, was sentenced to seven years in federal prison for the San Francisco robbery. That sentence was commuted by then-President Carter in 1979, and she was released after serving less than two years.

A spokeswoman for Crocker National Bank, Betty Lattie, said the settlement of the suit "is confidential, so we cannot talk about it. I cannot confirm or deny any account of the terms."

Not even religious buildings immune to natural events

By Laurinda Keys
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Church buildings aren't immune from the so-called "acts of God" that plague Southern California — earthquakes, landslides and brushfires.

A cathedral, a historic mission church and a tourist attraction are among the religious buildings that have been destroyed or heavily damaged by natural disasters in the last few years.

One of California's most famous landmarks, the glass and stone Wayfarer's Chapel, overlooks the Pacific Ocean from a perch atop an ancient landslide area that reactivated in the late 1970s.

"The landslide area runs from the beach up the hillside close to the chapel," says the Rev. Ernest Martin. "For two or three winters we had very heavy rain, and down under a certain level there is mixed clay which started cracking and sliding. The cracks in the ground got deeper and wider, and our big stone visitor's center gradually moved. The restrooms couldn't be used and the plantings were ruined. We had to close the visitor's center two years ago."

The slide area missed the chapel, designed by Frank Lloyd Wright Jr., by a few feet. The chapel and visiting center were built by the Swedenborgian Church of America as a memorial to 18th century mystic Emanuel Swedenborg.

The visitor's center, with its massive stone fireplace reading room and big bay windows overlooking the ocean, was a travelers' retreat along the coast.

The chapel is a popular spot for weddings and Martin says that many couples who have been married there and had their receptions in the visitor's center have formed an association to restore it. A new foundation and new floors will have to be laid and the heavy stone pillars that held up the roof will have to be reset, Martin says.

There isn't a happy ending for St. Paul's Episcopal Cathedral. The downtown cathedral had been declared a historic landmark for its reflection of California architectural style — red tile roof, sand-colored walls, a huge redwood cross in the sanctuary and gold-leaf covered mosaic tiles on the walls.

The cathedral was built in 1923 before earthquake standards were the law and many repairs had to be made to conform to the code. But the 1971 San Fernando Valley earthquake was the cathedral's death blow. "There were cracks in the walls and the ceiling and there was a possibility of breaks in the huge timbers at the top," says Charles E. Brown, secretary to the cathedral corporation.

The cathedral deteriorated while voices were raised to save it. "But there was no one coming forward with the millions of dollars necessary to do it," says Brown.

New land dedicated

Members of Northwestern Baptist Church dedicated their newly acquired church property Dec. 8.

The Rev. James Aldridge, Northwestern's pastor, and the Rev. Kenneth Hall, pastor at Crestview Baptist Church, officiated at the dedication service. The 15.49 acres are located north of the city on Mockingbird Lane between Midland Drive and Midkiff Road. Construction is set to begin in the next few months.

Northwestern Baptist was originally established as a mission work of Crestview Baptist Church. Sunday services at 9:45 and 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. are currently held at Goddard Junior High.

The construction of Northwestern marks the building of the first Southern Baptist church in Midland in 20 years, Aldridge said.

The Newspaper BIBLE

MY, WHAT A DIFFERENCE

When Adam sinned, sin entered the entire human race. His sin spread death throughout all the world, so everything began to grow old and die, for all sinned. We know that it was Adam's sin that caused this because although, of course, people were sinning from the time of Adam until Moses, God did not in those days judge them guilty of death for breaking His laws—because He had not yet given His laws to them, nor told them what He wanted them to do.

So when their bodies died it was not for their own sins since they themselves had never disobeyed God's special law against eating the forbidden fruit, as Adam had.

What a contrast between Adam and Christ who was yet to come! And what a difference between man's sin and God's forgiveness! For this one man, Adam, brought death to many through his sin. But this one man, Jesus Christ, brought forgiveness to many through God's mercy. Adam's one sin brought the penalty of death to many, while Christ freely takes away many sins and gives glorious life instead. The sin of this one man, Adam, caused death to be king over all, but all who will take God's gift of forgiveness and acquittal are kings of life because of this one man, Jesus Christ.

Yes, Adam's sin brought punishment to all, but Christ's righteousness makes men right with God, so that they can live. Adam caused many to be sinners because he disobeyed God, and Christ caused many to be made acceptable to God because He obeyed.

The Ten Commandments were given so that all could see the extent of their failure to obey God's laws. But the more we see our sinfulness, the more we see God's abounding grace forgiving us. Before, sin ruled over all men and brought them to death, but now God's kindness rules instead, giving us right standing with God and resulting in eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Christianity keeps growing in China

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — As one of the first class of seminary students training for the Christian ministry in communist China in 15 years, the young woman, Bao Juan, said, "We feel we are the most blessed of people, given this glorious opportunity. God is working everywhere."

The scene, at the recently opened Theological Seminary and College in Nanking, was described by a visiting delegation of American church leaders who returned this week from two weeks in China.

They report a growing, vigorous resurgence of church life there after past years of suppression, with more than 200 churches reopened in major cities since 1979 and the printing and distribution in 1980-1981 of about 400,000 Chinese Bibles.

The 18-member delegation of U.S. church leaders, the first to visit China at the official invitation of the recently formed China Christian Council, worshipped in numerous Chinese churches, met with pastors, professors, government officials and participants in once underground "house churches."

Wenzels are Liechtenstein national heroes

By BILL SHIRLEY
Los Angeles Times

There are two famous families in Liechtenstein, the ruling Vor Lichtensteins and the even better known Wenzels, Andreas and Petra (above) and Hanni (left), who are world and Olympic ski champions.

LAT Photo

VADUZ, Liechtenstein — There are two famous families living in this tiny, incredibly beautiful principality tucked away snugly in the mountains between Switzerland and Austria.

Franz Joseph von Liechtenstein, his wife Georgina and their five children — Hans Adams, Philipp Erasmus, Nikolaus, Nora Elisabeth and Franz Joseph Wenzel — live in a big house clinging to a hill about 300 feet above the main street of Vaduz, the capital city.

Hubert Wenzel, his wife Lore and their four children — Hanni, Andreas, Petra and Monika — live in a more modest home in the village of Planken only a few miles from the Von Liechtensteins and 2,000 feet higher up a mountain.

They shop in the same stores and are listed in the same phone book. Franz Joseph is listed as Furst, which means prince. The Von Liechtensteins, whose house is really a rather large castle, rule the country. But the Wenzels rule the mountains and consequently are probably better known in most of the world, especially in such famous places as Davos, St. Moritz, Lake Placid, Lake Tahoe, Vail, Aspen, Sarajevo and Grenoble.

The Wenzels are skiers and two of them, Hanni and Andreas, are world and Olympic champions.

On a warm, humid afternoon recently in the village of Planken, three of the Wenzel skiers — Hanni, Andreas and Petra — were home at the same time. It was a rare occasion; they don't see each other often anymore. Mostly they travel, seeing only airports and ski runs in some of the world's better neighborhoods.

But they gathered in the small dining room of the comfortable house that has been their home for more than 20 years to greet a reporter from Los Angeles. The house has five levels, five bedrooms, three baths and a view that should hang in a museum.

From the street the Wenzels live on, one can see two-thirds of Liechtenstein, or about 40 square miles. To the right is the Austrian border. Below is the Rhine and its lush, farm-dotted valley and across the river the magnificent Swiss Alps.

Trains parallel the river, some on the Paris-to-Vienna run. In the middle of the swift Rhine, which curves gracefully as it reaches Vaduz, is the friendly Swiss border. No passport is required to cross in either direction. Above the Wenzel home soar the Alps of Liechtenstein, where the children of Hubert and Lore learned to ski.

Planken is the smallest of 11 villages in Liechtenstein, a country of only 26,000 that could almost fit into an average American shopping mall. Planken has one hotel, one restaurant and had 285 citizens — until Hanni Wenzel moved down the mountain to her own apartment in the village of Schaan.

Incredibly, from one house in this tiny village in a country so small it gets lost on some maps, came a young man and woman who won four medals between them at the Winter Olympic Games in Lake Placid and then, in the same year, each won a World Cup championship.

Andreas, better known as Andy, greeted the reporter in front of the house wearing a blue warmup jacket and shorts. His feet were bare. Hanni and Petra were waiting at the dining room table. Petra wore a blue warmup suit and was surrounded by schoolbooks. She travels so much that she is allowed to do her schoolwork at home and she would study during the interview.

Hanni wore blue jeans, a blouse with wide horizontal stripes of yellow, blue and red, and white sandals with medium high heels. Her medium-length hair is light enough to have been bleached by the sun on some ski slope or beach.

Lore Wenzel arrived with two bottles of beer.

set them on the table, shook hands with the guest and left. She does not speak English; the reporter does not speak German, the language of Liechtenstein.

Hanni understands English better than she speaks it and had requested an interpreter. Andy needed none. He had rejoined the group in more formal dress, a green warmup suit, but his feet were still bare.

Hanni, 24, is the star of the family, a celebrity whose automobile is as recognizable on the streets here as Furst Franz Joseph's. His license plate is No. 1, and Hanni's blue-gray Mercedes has her name printed in large white letters on the front left fender.

Hanni won two gold medals, in the slalom and giant slalom, and a silver in the downhill at Lake Placid, thereby beating the total medal production of the entire continent of North America. Canada and the United States each won one medal. She also won a bronze medal in the slalom at Innsbruck in the 1976 Olympic Games.

Describing his sister's achievement at Lake Placid, Andy said "It's not normal what my sister has done."

Andy, who was also the World Cup champion in 1978, won a silver medal in the giant slalom at Lake Placid. Only Austria won as many skiing medals as the Wenzel family — four. Petra skied out of the money at the 1980 Olympics but she has had some success on European slopes. Monika, 17, has yet to be heard from.

Hanni and Andy were born in Straubing, Germany, a small town near Munich. Petra, 20, and Monika were born in the house in Planken.

Hanni has been on skis since she was 3 and her brother and sisters started almost as early. When she was 6 she entered her first race and finished fifth. She made the national team when she was 13.

What sets her apart, makes her so good? Andy: "She has very good technique. She doesn't have a lot of power but she gets good results with power in reserve."

As a junior, Andy said, Hanni was always better than he was. "She always had the best times, including the boys, and she was a good motivator for us."

Once, he recalled, when Hanni was 10 or 12, she took a bad spill while wearing No. 13. She drew the same number for the next day's race and cried all night. "My father was very angry," he said, "but she won the next day and there was no problem after that."

Today, of course, Andy can beat his sister. "She has no chance," he said. "I am stronger."

Rudolf Schädler, secretary of the Liechtenstein Olympic Committee and president of the National Ski Association, who has observed Hanni since she was 10: "She was an exceptional skier even then. She could let her skis go. She has a fine feeling of flowing, like a bird flying over the snow."

What is Hanni Wenzel's life like now that she is a celebrity?

"My life has changed," she replied. "A lot more people are interested in me; I spend too much time with reporters." And then she grinned, the smile complementing the fresh, wholesome good looks of a young woman who spends most of her time outdoors.

It's hard for her to have a private life now, she said, "but I'm happy with myself. At the same time I must decide what I am going to do in the future."

Is marriage in her plans? She grinned again and said, "No time, no man."

The Wenzels were national heroes when they returned from Lake Placid with their medals, a journey that took 40 hours. During the Olympics, Princess Gina herself called Lake Placid to tell the team that all the roads in Liechtenstein were empty because everyone was watching the games on television.

Kansas City has school for shoplifters

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — This city has established a school for shoplifters.

Instead of going to jail, a first-time offender has the option of paying $35 to attend a six- to eight-hour deprogramming class that counsels him or her on how to stop shoplifting. The charge is dropped if the class is completed, saving the shoplifter from a conviction record and a minimum of a $50 fine and probation.

City prosecutor Jack Schrimsher says the program is supported by retailers and is being financed entirely from the shoplifters' fees. The classes are useful to city officials because they provide information on the type of people who shoplift and what they steal. About 2,500 first-time shoplifting arrests are made each year in the city.

The program started last May and the one-day classes are usually scheduled for Saturday so that those attending will not have to take time off work. In a four-class study, 25 of the shoplifters stole articles of apparel, while only 11 took food or medicine.

The typical shoplifter doesn't fit the stereotype of a criminal, says Schrimsher. Most shoplifters are not people with bad records, or poor people. Many of them don't know why they stole, and finding out why is a big relief. Among the reasons are having a poor self-image, seeking attention or getting even with someone, he explains.

India is making neighborly calls to improve ties

By STUART AUERBACH
The Washington Post

NEW DELHI, India — India has embarked on a major diplomatic campaign to improve ties with its South Asia neighbors in the wake of its worsening relations with Pakistan, the largest and most powerful of them. At the same time, it is about to begin talks with China, another neighbor, in an effort to solve an old border dispute that erupted into war almost 20 years ago.

High Indian officials have gone to Bangladesh and Nepal, while a Sri Lankan Cabinet minister held talks here and President N. Sanjiva Reddy is planning to visit that island republic early next year. Even Bhutan has not been left out; the Foreign Ministry official dealing with that vest-pocket kingdom is scheduled to pay a call there soon.

This round of neighborly calls was prompted by the realization among some members of the government of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi that the increasingly strained relations between India and Pakistan means New Delhi must mend its fences with the other nations of South Asia if it is to remain the dominant power in the region.

India has found itself increasingly isolated in the region during the past two years, taking opposite positions from its neighbors in the United Nations and the non-aligned movement on issues such as the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan and the recognition of the Vietnamese-installed government in Cambodia.

IN ONE of the most significant instances of India's efforts to improve its regional relationships, Eric Gonsalves, one of the top civil servants in the Ministry of External Affairs, reported substantial progress in talks last week on leasing Dacca a strip of Indian territory leading to two Bangladesh enclaves.

This positive development came after months of often-bitter wrangling over the division of waters from the Ganges River and the ownership of a tiny, newly formed island in the mud flats of the Bay of Bengal that both nations claim. India occupied the island during the summer and then removed its forces reportedly to lessen the impact of anti-Indian feeling in the campaign.

Similarly, Foreign Minister P.V. Narasimha Rao's visit to Nepal late last month was also viewed here as a success even though the obvious differences between India and the small Himalayan kingdom could not be glossed over.

India, for instance, reported that Nepal had agreed to talks between the two nations alone on harnessing water resources that flow from Nepal's mountains to India. Katmandu, however, quickly issued a correction and said it has not abandoned its desire to include Bangladesh in these talks to make a truly regional water compact — an approach favored by such international agencies as the World Bank.

Katmandu also pushed for New Delhi to join in declaring Nepal — a landlocked country that shares borders with India and China — as a zone of peace that could remain isolated from superpower and regional rivalries. India has been cool to the idea, proposed by Harvard-educated King Birendra, because it already has a friendship treaty with Nepal. But Pakistan, Bangladesh and China have endorsed it.

RAO MADE IT clear during his Katmandu visit that any effort to weaken India would be "counter-productive" for the other nations in the region — an apparent reference to the U.S. decision to sell arms to Pakistan, which New Delhi views as a threat.

"None of the countries of the region stand to gain anything by India being weakened or embarrassed in any way," Rao said.

India is extremely jealous of its status as the dominant force in the region — the country that is most powerful militarily and has the strongest industrial base — and resists any effort by its neighbors or outside powers such as the United States that it feels could undercut it.

This view was reflected in a statement by Gandhi during her election campaign complaining how low

India's position in the region had dropped while she was out of office.

"Even little Bhutan is making eyes at us," she said in a reference harking back to the Hindu view that lessers should not dare even to cast a glance upward at a better.

AS A RESULT of the new American relationship with Pakistan, which the Reagan administration sees as the eastern anchor of a strategic grouping to protect the Persian Gulf from Soviet expansionism, it appears that New Delhi is trying to reach a new accommodation with its South Asian neighbors to preserve its position.

Indian officials privately agree they are not as worried about the infusion of new American arms to Pakistan, which has drawn strong opposition from the Gandhi government, as they are of the political implications of the new relationship, which could allow Islamabad to pose a political threat to India's primacy on the subcontinent.

It is unclear whether this view led to the long-stalled Indo-Chinese talks starting Thursday in Peking, although China and Pakistan are firm friends and some Indians have expressed the fear that this country will be squeezed by what is sometimes referred to as the "Washington-Islamabad-Peking axis."

The border talks with China over a disputed 14,500 square miles of Himalayan mountain territory are seen here as the beginning of a start of a normalization process between the two most populated nations in the world that once were best of friends until the 1962 war.

At that time, Chinese troops crossed the mountainous border and seized large areas that had been controlled by India.

Second family will spend Christmas in the Capital

By MARGUERITE SULLIVAN
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — The country's second family will spend Christmas in Washington and not in their home state of Texas so they won't have to disrupt the holidays for the scores of Secret Service agents assigned to them.

"Probably 70 Secret Service agents would have to leave their families if we went to Houston for Christmas," said Barbara Bush, wife of Vice President George Bush.

The Bushes would have to stay in a Houston hotel, she explained. With the added security placed on top government officials because of the threat of the Libyan assassination squad, it would mean three shifts of scores of agents "just for two people."

The publicity of the Libyan terrorists irritates the second lady.

"I'm asked about it everywhere," she bristled. "The administration did not release the information. Someone leaked it, and I am opposed to leaks," she said emphatically.

When Barbara Bush went shopping at Bloomingdale's and Toys R Us the other day, she felt, she explained, that she was shopping with a "swat team."

One result of that shopping excursion was a racing set for her 5-year-old grandson, George, child of her son Jeb.

The racing set was in its package at the vice president's house when she went to the White House to watch the President and Mrs. Reagan's private viewing of "Reds," the hit movie by Warren Beatty.

When she got home upstairs in the Bushes' private living room, she found "George Bush, Pete Teeley and Joe Hagin (two top Bush aides) sitting on the floor playing with the racing set."

Of the movie, "Reds," about American journalist John Reeds who was so enamored of the Russian Revolution, Barbara Bush called it "fantastic."

As second lady, Barbara Bush says she has "tried to keep a low profile. George was not elected president," she emphasized.

But being second lady, she states, has "allowed me to go on and do my own thing."

Even though she says she loves her role, she hates the title and bristles at being called "second lady."

"Am I second out of 228," she quips? "And the woman who campaigned all over the country for her husband to be president, says she 'thinks it would be hard to be first lady.' The wife of the president, she explained, is always watched, always scrutinized. Being second lady has meant a lot of work, too. Approximately 1,000 people a week tour the vice president's house. One of her projects has been its redecoration.

Through donations given by friends, Bush has purchased and recovered chairs and sofas and brought a big rug for the living room.

Each second lady has left her touch on the house, Bush explained. Although her husband became president too soon for them to live there, Betty Ford picked out the china, silver and crystal. Happy Rockefeller also didn't live there, preferring instead the Rockefeller's Washington mansion, but still used the house for entertaining. She left many Rockefeller antiques. It is easy to pick them out. Most bear small brass plaques.

Joan Mondale, the first second lady to actually live in the house, said Bush, "used it as a beautiful showcase for art exhibits from all over the country."

Mondale turned a little-used sitting room into a library and started the house's collection of books about and by vice presidents.

"I hope to leave the house totally furnished, so the next vice president's family can move right in and stick their things on top of the tables."

Other Bush projects are boosting volunteerism and promoting reading programs, "wiping out illiteracy, something small like that," she quipped.

Bush has gone on the board of national reading programs, such as Reading is Fundamental, a non-profit group which distributes books "I come youths, and has boosted other reading programs."

"I consider myself a giant cheerleader," she said, adding that she has talked about volunteerism everywhere from men's clubs to schools and churches.

An immediate project has been calling the families of the 17 Peace Corps volunteers she met in Ghana while there to celebrate the 20th anniversary of the Peace Corps.

Because of poor communications in Ghana, some parents hadn't heard from their children in months. Bush has made nine of a planned 17 calls.

Although she usually places her own calls, in this case she has had the White House switchboard do it.

"The operators say, 'This is the White House calling,'" she explained.

Then the second lady who doesn't mind making fun of herself, added: "And then you aren't going to have the person on the other end say, 'Who?'"

Businesses can use computers to send electronic letters

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Banks, credit card companies and stock brokers are among the businesses expected to send electronic letters to consumers when the Postal Service's new mail service begins Jan. 4.

The mail agency unveiled equipment Thursday that will enable it to send an estimated 20 million to 35 million electronic messages per year from businesses.

The service, called Electronic Computer Originated Mail, will allow businesses to send messages from their computers to arrive with the regular mail. Delivery is promised anywhere in the nation within two business days.

The messages will be transmitted by common carriers to any of 25 post offices with the receiving equipment, then printed, put into envelopes and delivered with the mail.

So far 37 businesses have signed up for the service, including Merrill Lynch Pierce Fenner & Smith, Inc.; General Tire and Rubber Co. and Shell Oil Co. Four common carriers have agreed to provide links between the companies' computers and the Postal Service computers.

Karen Uemoto, director of E-COM operations, said the service will be most efficient in sending one message to numerous addresses. "That way you only send a message and the addresses," Ms. Uemoto said.

Examples of mail that may be sent by E-COM are financial statements, fund-raising letters and recall announcements, she said. The service also will allow different messages to be sent to each address or individual inserts to go into messages.

The charges will be 26 cents for the first page and five cents for the second. Mailers also will have to pay the common carrier for transmission to a post office, which may add from one cent to a dime to the cost. However, businesses will not have the costs of printing letters, putting them in envelopes or taking them to post offices.

Ms. Uemoto said the estimated initial volume of between 20 million and 35 million pieces annually is almost all now being sent by regular first-class mail.

Mailers are required to pay a $50 annual fee and establish an advance deposit account for paying the E-COM charges. Another requirement is that at least 200 messages must be sent per transmission.

Kusevich is unorthodox Orthodox chaplain

FORT HOOD, Tex. (AP) — Not only does Army chaplain and captain the Rev. Nicholas J. Kusevich conduct Sunday services in unusual settings, but his garb is also out of the ordinary.

Using the hood of a jeep as an altar, he holds services in the field wearing an olive-drab vestment his mother made from an Army parachute, protected from mud and rain that would ruin a cloth garment.

Though his clothing may be unorthodox, the chaplain of the 17th Engineer Battalion, 2nd Armored Division, in Fort Hood, is really about as "orthodox" as they come. He is one of only 10 Eastern Orthodox chaplains in the Army.

"It baffles me that some people don't even know what an Eastern Orthodox is," says Kusevich, 40. "Until recently, even the Army regulations referred to us as Protestant, rather than Orthodox."

"I hold an Eastern Orthodox Divine Liturgy every Sunday," he adds. "There are so few Eastern Orthodox priests in the service that a lot of people don't even realize I'm here. That really distresses me because the next closest Eastern Orthodox church is 50 miles away."

"I'm also concerned because I found a lot of people don't really know what the religion is about or who we are," says Kusevich, whose parents were Romanian and Yugoslavian. "But I have no desire to live in either of those countries. I am an American, and I feel I have a great contribution to make to America and to an understanding."

"I wear a lot of hats at my job here," he says. "I'm responsible for the spiritual needs of 700 soldiers of all religious backgrounds. Regardless of their faith, I still try to relate to them as a chaplain."

Kusevich was graduated from St. Vladimir's Seminary in Crestwood, N.Y., in 1969 and was ordained in July of that year.

"I tried to enlist in the Army then," he recalls. "It was during Vietnam and I thought if I went I could have a greater understanding for the members of the congregation who would also go. I felt they would be able to relate to me better."

But Kusevich had a hard time persuading his bishop, who had to release him in order for him to join. In the meantime, he was given a church in Akron, Ohio. He continued applying for active duty and after five years was granted permission to become a chaplain. He joined the Army in January.

Kusevich spent his first year in the service at Fort Campbell, Ky., then went overseas for a one-year tour in Korea. He returned to the United States for a 2½-year tour at Fort Bragg, N.C., and it was there he decided he wanted to try the civilian world again.

"I'm a working priest," he says. "I felt like I was being bogged down with Army paperwork, so I asked to be released from active duty. It took six months for the bishop to get me released."

"I was made deacon of a church in Bridgeport, Conn. The building was falling apart, and it seemed like I spent most of my time fixing it up, rather than being with my congregation. Six months later I began wondering if the Army would take me back. It wasn't easy, but I got back in," he adds.

Kusevich attended the Chaplain School at Fort Monmouth, N.J., went on tactical exercises in Germany and then was assigned to Fort Hood.

"The Army has been very good to me and I have great respect for it," he says. "I'm glad to be back."

CONTRACTORS

There are over 90,000 Homeowners and Businesses who place three or more calls a year needing a contractor's services.

The consumer has three main sources to locate a contractor besides direct advertising: the yellow pages, classifieds, and word of mouth.

Starting January 1, 1982; there will be another way. The Contractors Bureau — through extensive advertising — expects to have at least 25% of these calls channeled through its office. This means Contractors Bureau will refer 3,900 contractors each week.

Contractors Bureau is now compiling files on contractors that offer services in the Midland & Odessa area. If you, the contractor, are not already listed in our files, call 686-7623.

Court reverses Silkwood ruling

DENVER (AP) — A federal appeals court reversed on Friday a $10.5 million award to the estate of Karen Silkwood, an Oklahoma plutonium plant worker who died in a 1974 automobile accident.

The 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled the U.S. District Court in Oklahoma erred in awarding $10 million in punitive damages and $500,000 in personal damages.

It said the issue of personal damages should have been handled through Oklahoma's workers' compensation system.

In reversing the punitive damages, the court said that with respect to "extraordinary nuclear occurrences," the federal law permits only compensatory damages.

The court upheld a judgment of $5,000 in property damages from Miss Silkwood's employer, the Kerr-McGee Corp.

The case was returned to a lower court to resolve the damage issues.

Miss Silkwood had contended that the plant where she worked was unsafe and that she had been contaminated with highly radioactive plutonium. She was killed while en route to a meeting with a reporter to discuss her charges.

Lawyers for Kerr-McGee had argued before the court in November 1980 that attorneys representing the Silkwood estate had taken advantage of anti-nuclear "hysteria" to win excessive punitive damages from the jury, which found the corporation negligent in allowing her to be contaminated with plutonium.

They also contended that the entire $10.5 million judgment against the Oklahoma City energy conglomerate should be dismissed because the trial was held in the wrong court.

Finally, they said publicity following the Three Mile Island accident on March 28, 1979, in which a nuclear power reactor was damaged in the nation's most serious commercial nuclear power accident, created an atmosphere making a fair trial impossible.

But Silkwood attorney Arthur Angel said anything less would have amounted to "a slap on the wrist."

Miss Silkwood, who died in a car accident on Nov. 13, 1974, had worked in Kerr-McGee's quality control laboratory.

Group wants share

WASHINGTON (AP) — Military personnel should be required to share their pensions and medical benefits with their former spouses, says the president of a women's rights group.

Carol B. Grossman, of the Women's Equity Action League, told a House hearing Tuesday that a former spouse should be entitled to a pro-rata share of a military pension in a marriage lasting 10 years or more.

But officials of the Retired Officers Association, Fleet Reserve Association, Air Force Sergeants Association, Veterans of Foreign Wars and National Association of Uniformed Services said Congress should stay out of divorce courts.

TV has been great for Detroit Lions

By The Associated Press

There's something about the unblinking eye that brings out the best in Detroit. Coach Monte Clark wishes it'd do the job again today — and wishes the Lions would do their job whether or not the rest of the country was watching.

"Playing at home and on national television, we've always played great," he said as the Lions prepared for their nationally televised game against the visiting Minnesota Vikings in the Silverdome, the site of the Super Bowl next Jan. 24. "That's what I'm disturbed about. We've got to start playing that way all the time."

THE LIONS and Vikings are 7-7. So are the Green Bay Packers. And all three are one game behind the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, the leaders in the National Conference's Central Division. The Packers play the Saints in New Orleans Sunday and the Bucs take on the visiting San Diego Chargers.

Malone to drop Steeler clipboard

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Steelers reserve quarterback Mark Malone, who has handled a clipboard more than a football so far this season, will start against division-leading Cincinnati Sunday.

Nothing less than the Steelers' chances of winning the division title and getting into the National Football League playoffs rest with his performance.

Does that make him nervous?

"Maybe there's a certain amount of anxiety," admitted Malone, a 6-foot-4, 225-pounder from Arizona State.

"The big thing to do is not to get real excited and add self-imposed pressure. I played last week without a lot of the preparation the starter gets. I did well in some areas. Hopefully, there will be improvement."

The Bengals have a chance to clinch a playoff spot for the first time in eight years with a victory at Three Rivers Stadium Sunday. Pittsburgh could win the American Football Conference Central Division, however, if it can beat Cincinnati and Houston and if Atlanta can beat Cincinnati the following week.

Malone suddenly was thrust onto center stage when Terry Bradshaw broke his hand in Pittsburgh's 30-27 loss to Oakland last Monday night.

Cliff Stoudt had been Pittsburgh's second-string quarterback until he broke his throwing arm trying to hit a punting bag in Seattle after the Steelers' loss to the Seahawks Nov. 8.

Malone made some mistakes against the Raiders, including an end zone interception that if completed would have narrowed Oakland's lead with about six minutes remaining.

But Malone also threw 17 completions in 27 attempts for 224 yards. He connected twice on touchdown passes to Jim Smith and Malone scrambled for another Steeler touchdown.

Prior to Bradshaw's injury, Malone only had thrown one pass this season, an incompleteness in the Atlanta game. His most noteworthy performance did not take place as a quarterback, but as a substitute receiver in the Seattle game. He scored on a 90-yard touchdown pass play that set a club record.

Of his performance against Oakland, Malone was coolly analytical.

"I made some critical mistakes in a game we lost by three points. A lot of it had to do with nerves and not having a good feel for what was going on."

Jim Hess takes job at SFA

NACOGDOCHES, Texas (AP) — San Angelo State University head football coach Jim Hess has been appointed athletic director and head football coach at Stephen F. Austin State University, it was announced Friday.

Hess, who compiled a 65-23-3 record in eight seasons as head coach at Angelo State, will be succeeded at the San Angelo school by his offensive coordinator, Jerry Vandergriff.

Hess, 44, guided Angelo State teams to four Lone Star Conference championships and one NAIA national championship, in 1978. In the last five years, his teams were 47-10-1.

Hess, a Farmersville native, succeeds Charles Simmons, 56, who lost his job after a 1-10 season this year and a 19-44-1 record in his six years as head coach at Stephen F. Austin.

Vandergriff, who was quarterback during Angelo State's junior college days before going on to play at Corpus Christi University, has been offensive coordinator at Angelo State for 11 years. The 39-year-old Tulla native previously coached at Lubbock Coronado High School and Columbia High School.

Angelo State also announced Friday that defensive coordinator Mike Martin has been named assistant head coach. Martin has been with Angelo State for eight seasons.

Today's other NFL game is the New York Jets at Cleveland. Also on Sunday it's the New York Giants at St. Louis, Baltimore at Washington, Buffalo at New England, Cincinnati at Pittsburgh, Miami at Kansas City, Chicago at Oakland, Houston at San Francisco, Philadelphia at Dallas and Seattle at Denver. Monday night's game is Atlanta at Los Angeles.

"We've won in Pontiac before," Bud Grant, the Minnesota coach, said as he considered the Lions' perfect home record this year. "If you're going to win at all, you have to win somewhere besides at home; if you're going to win the Super Bowl, you've got to win in Pontiac."

Minnesota, which finishes the season at home against Kansas City, or Detroit, which hosts Tampa Bay on the season's final Sunday, can clinch the division title by winning its two remaining games while the Bucs are losing twice.

THE VIKINGS can also win the crown by beating Detroit, even if they lose Kansas City, if the Lions lose to the Chargers and beat Tampa Bay. If that happens, Minnesota, Tampa Bay and Detroit will end up at 8-8 and the Vikings will get it based on the best percentage in games among the three teams.

All of those hopes will go down the drain, however, if Tampa Bay wins one more game since the Bucs would take any conference-record tie-breaker from the Vikings, Lions or th any division contender would be broken in the Buccaneers' favor.

Green Bay has won five of the past six games and has knocked off New Orleans in the league's most recent four meetings — but that was before the Saints had George Rogers. The NFL's No.1 draft choice has rushed for 1,497 yards, second only to Tony Dorsett's 1,504, and is just one 100-yard game away from tying the season rookie record of nine set two years ago by Ottis Anderson of St. Louis. The Packers have a potential record breaker of their own, James Lofton. He has caught 1,215 yards worth of passes, just 17 shy of breaking the club record by Bill Howton in 1962.

The Chargers still are in the thick of the American Conference playoff scramble. They're 8-4 and tied with Kansas City in the Western Division, one game behind Denver, and they have to win their two games (they finish at home against Oakland) and hope that the Broncos take a tumble in order to get the title.

CHUCK MUNCIE, who became the first San Diego runner to roll up 1,000 yards in a season (he has 1,033) since Don Woods' team record of 1,162 established in 1974, is tied with Jim Taylor and Earl Campbell in rushing TDs with 19. The next one will set an NFL record.

The Jets, one game behind Miami and one-half back of Buffalo in the AFC East, are looking for their first victory ever against the Browns, who fell out of the playoff picture nine nights ago by losing to the Oilers in Houston.

Here's how it works: to equal an assumed tax-exempt yield of 12 1/4%, a taxable investment would have to earn 17.86% if your family income is $25,000 and your tax bracket is 30%.

★ Just check the chart.

IF YOUR FAMILY INCOME IS	YOUR TAX BRACKET PROBABLY IS	THE INTEREST RATE YOU'D HAVE TO RECEIVE TO NET 12 1/4% AFTER FEDERAL INCOME TAX IS
$50,000	50%	25%
$35,000	40%	20.83%
$25,000	30%	17.86%
$20,000	25%	16.67%

Figures above are approximate and based on 1981 tax tables. Interest rate on 12 1/4% is an assumed average investment yield on the All Saver's Certificate. Actual rate is 70% of the average investment yield on one-year treasury bills at date of purchase.

★ You can see why the All Saver's Certificate is a savings breakthrough. But you may not see it for long. The program begins October 1, 1981 and ends December 31, 1982. So hurry to First Savings and Loan Association of Midland and purchase your All Saver's Certificates.

Moves like this from Midland High's Don Sharnowski Friday night at Chaparral Center against Lubbock Dunbar helped the Bulldogs race their 10th straight basketball victory.

Lee advances in tourney

Midland Lee Maroon and Odessa Permian will square off at 6 P.M. today in the Sophomore finals of the third annual Midland High School Sophomore Basketball Tournament while Odessa Ector and San Angelo will battle for the Junior Varsity Championship at 7:30 P.M. today.

Ector advanced to the JV Championship game by dumping Big Spring 60-47 while San Angelo squeaked Odessa High 51-44 to gain a finals berth.

In the Sophomore Division, Mike Lake tossed in 10 points and Mario Marquez chipped in what eight as Lee Eeked out a 54-53 Semifinal win over Midland High. The Bulldogs were led in scoring by Kyle Kitto's 16 points and Kenneth White's 12.

Lee grabbed a 15-11 lead after the first quarter and held a 25-22 advantage at intermission. In the third quarter, MHS tallied 12 points to Lee's 11 to trail by three, 36-33, heading into the final eight minutes of action. Action was fast and furious in the final 15 minutes, but Lee held off the Bulldogs, 19 to 18, to pull out the win.

In the other Sophomore semifinal contest, Odessa Permian outscored Odessa High 56-48 to earn a spot in the finals.

Midland High and Odessa High will tangle at 3 P.M. today to settle third place in the Sophomore division while Big Spring and Odessa High lock horns at 4:30 P.M. to determine the third place finisher in the Junior Varsity Division.

In the losers' bracket Friday, Fort Stockton edged Odessa Ector, 48-41, for a spot in the Sophomore consolation finals at noon today against Big Spring, a 65-51 victory over San Angelo. Ector and San Angelo will battle at 9 A.M. today for seventh place.

In the Junior Varsity Division Consolation finals at 1:30 P.M. today, it will be a Tall City shootout. Lee, led by Tod Brown's 16 points and dramane Bunton's 14 whalloped Midland High purple 61-36 for the right to play in the consolation finals.

MHS purple was led by Weldon Carter with seven points.

In the other contest for a consolation finals berth, Midland Gold raced to a 23-7 lead after the first quarter and never looked back enroute to a 61-4 win over Odessa Permian.

MHS was led in scoring by Jerry Johnson with 13 points. Joining Johnson in double digits were Fred Franklin with 12 and Terry McGowan with 10. Lance McDonald's 13 points and John Hamilton's 12 topped the Permian cause.

Dogs' string hits 10

Robertson's 27 points paced win over Dunbar

BY ROBERT BRUNDAGE
SPORTS WRITER

And the streak goes on. Lubbock Dunbar became victims no. 11 Friday at Chaparral Center as Midland High Powered its way to a 75-55 victory to up its record to 11-1 with a winning streak that spans the past 10 games while the 4-A Panthers fell to 4-4 on the season.

Both the Bulldogs and the Panthers came out a little slow in the opening minutes of the ball game. The action, as usual with the running attack of Jack Stephenson's Cagers, was fast paced, but the points were slow in coming. MHS managed to chalk up 13 in that first period while its tough full-court press defense kept Dunbar's attack off balance to the tune of a mere four points.

With a nine point lead going into the second quarter and a feel for the action on the court, the Bulldogs began to take off. They outscored the Panthers in each of the final three periods, 20-16, 23-16 and 20-18 enroute to the victory.

It was like two boxers feeling each other out in the Early Stages of a Fight," said Coach Stephenson, what some, what offense, what to use in, you have to make adjustments on the floor and when we found out what we need to do, I think we adjusted well."

And adjust well they did. The Bull Dog defense kept up the pressure the entire game, making Dunbar work for everything it could get. An example of that pressure can be seen in the play of two MHS Starters, postman Jim Gunnels and guard Barr Bolger who were credited with three steals each. On the Boards, MHS and Raymond Parker and Preston Robertson leading the way with five rebound each.

While the defense was busy giving the Panthers fits, the MHS offensive attack came from five different players. Robertson, who held a 19.5 scoring average going into the game, broke back into the magical 20-Plus column with his 27-point effort on the night for a 20.4 average. Though he was the only double-digit scorer for the Bulldogs, four other players were high in single-fives: Parker with nine, Bolger and Gunnels with eight each and Don Sharnowski with seven.

For Dunbar, Roland Comacho was the Big Gun with 14 points followed by Michael Thompson with eight.

One of the areas where Midland High is strongest is in the team concept. Not only did all 16 Bulldogs listed on the varsity Roster see action, but they also played an unselfish brand of Basketball. Sharnowski, Gunnels and Bolger Led the Team in assists with seven, five and four respectively.

Coach Stephenson was pleased with his teams performance saying, when we execute, we're as good as anybody. Preston (who had a sub-par game against Lubbock Monterey) got it back tonight. We had 16 players come out and they all played well."

With a 10-Game winning streak under their belts, the Bulldogs are heading into what Coach Stephenson referred to as one of the toughest tournaments of the year, the Optimist classic in San Antonio next Thursday.

The tournament features 32 5-A schools with several of the notable powers around the State competing for top honors. Among the Teams entered are 1985-86 State Champion San Antonio John Marshall High and 1981-82 No. 1 Rated Houston Yates. Other Schools that Coach Stephenson mentioned as top-Caliber Competition were Houston's Cashmere and Wheatley and Dallas' South Oakcliff and Roosevelt.

We won the tournament a year before last," said Coach Stephenson. We're going down there to try and play well. We have the opportunity to play as many as five games and at least three."

In Junior Varsity action Friday night, the Bulldogs posted a 55-30 Victory over Dunbar. R. J. Thomas, Tony Carrasco and Blake Liberty Led the way with 10 points each.

Lubbock Dunbar (55): J.Roland Comacho, 5-4-14; Javier Zaragoza, 6-3-3-3; Doug Wilson, 1-0-3-2; Vance Harris, 3-3-2-7; Tyrone Young, 2-3-4-7; Ezekiel Jones, 3-0-3-4; Anthony Brown, 1-2-3-4; Kirk Coats, 0-2-5-2; Michael Thompson, 3-5-5-8. Totals: 17-19-26-35

Midland High (75): Raymond Parker, 9-5-2-9; Mark Nolan, 0-1-0-1; Barr Bolger, 3-2-4-8; John Pannell, 1-0-1-2; David McFarland, 0-2-0-2; Don Sharnowski, 3-1-3-7; Scott Louderback, 1-0-3-2; Preston Robertson, 11-5-2-7; Rob Franklin, 2-0-3-4; Doug Hixon, 0-0-3-0; James Johnson, 0-0-1-2; Jim Gunnels, 2-4-4-8; Tony Carrasco, 6-3-0-3; R. Clerc rips Tanner

CINCINNATI (AP) — Jose Luis Clerc fought off hard-serving Roscoe Tanner 7-5, 6-3, 6-6 Friday and knotted the best-of-five Davis Cup finals between the United States and Argentina at one match each.

John McEnroe had given the United States the early lead by crushing Guillermo Vilas 6-3, 6-2, 6-2 in the day's first match.

McEnroe and Peter Fleming, who combined to win the men's doubles at Wimbledon and the U.S. Open, will team up Saturday against Clerc and Vilas in the pivotal doubles match. Sunday's final two singles matches will pit McEnroe against Clerc and Tanner against Vilas.

Vols gear for Wisconsin

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — John Majors remembers the bad times.

"My freshman year at Lynchburg High School in 1949 I was the quarterback on one of the worst teams in the history of Tennessee football. We lost 58-0 to Manchester, 75-6 to Tullahoma, 33-0 to Centerville. It was one of those unusually horrid situations."

He remembers the good times, like the University of Tennessee's 10-1 record in 1956, the year Majors finished a close second in the Heisman Trophy voting, and the Vols' 40-18 rout of Notre Dame in 1979, his third year as head coach.

The in-between times are harder to recall. That takes in most of the five seasons since Majors, one of the greatest players in Tennessee's glamorous past, left the University of Pittsburgh to return to his alma mater. In four years, Majors lifted Pitt from a laughing-stock to a national championship.

"For some reason, when a team struggles, you forget those unexciting events and scores," Majors said Friday, two days before Tennessee meets Wisconsin in the fourth annual Garden State Bowl. "You remember the great ones and the good ones and the disasters. But when you're just mediocre ..."

This is not a great Tennessee team, nor it is a bad one. The Vols finished the regular season with a 7-4 record, giving Majors two winning seasons, two losers and one break-even campaign. It hasn't been the milk and honey or the miracles Tennessee fans expected.

What they may have overlooked is that before Majors arrived, the Vols slipped from 11 victories in 1970 to 10 in 1971 and 1972 to eight in 1973 to seven in 1974 and 1975 to six in 1975. The trend continued — 4-7 in 1977. Since then, Tennessee is over .500 at 24-20-1, with two bowl trips. Things finally may be picking up, despite the fact that Tennessee produces fewer Southeastern Conference players than any state save Kentucky.

Abernathy tosses MHS, but Greenwood wins

Big Spring Midland High's girls' basketball team managed only six points in the third quarter and dropped a 48-45 decision to Abernathy in an I.A.M. game Friday in the second round of the Howard County classic being played at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum on the campus of Howard College here.

Virgie Cocks kicked the Cards for 12 points and Janice Littlefield pitched in eight to lead the Bulldogs. Tina Covy and Vickie McKenzie each netted 13 points to lead Abernathy and Regina Powell added 12.

MHS broke to a 14-13 lead after the first eight minutes only to faller in the second stanza and go into the locker room at halftime down 28-22.

In a dreadful third period, MHS was held to six points while Abernathy tossed in 10 to stretch their lead to 36-28 going into the final eight minutes of action.

MHS Coach Jane Young said, "We played well. We got a lot of steals off our press and rebounded real well. The only thing hurting us now is our shooting. We just can't seem to get our shots to fall."

The Bulldogs' next action in the tournament is at 3 P.M. today when they face Big Spring.

In the Junior Varsity Division, MHS defeated Odessa High 47-36 behind Becky Caton's 10 points. The Bulldogs play the winner of the Midland Lee-Odessa Permal contest today at 12:30 P.M.

In a later game, Greenwood's girls' Basketball Team scored a 53-40 victory over Abernathy, defending class AAA State Champions, Friday to advanced into the classic finals.

Renvy Evans Gunned in a Game-High 19 points and Nancy Ortiz added 14 and Lisa Mobley canned 12 as the Rangers won their fifth game in six outings. Margaret Cooper tossed in 14 points to lead Abernathy while Stacey Kelly added 13 and Vickie McKenzie collected 12.

Greenwood will face forsan, A 31-29 victory over Slaton in the other semifinal game, tonight at 7:30 for the Championship.

The Rangers reached the semifinals with a 50-48 win over San Angelo central Thursday.

Akers hires McWilliams

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas head football coach Fred Akers announced Friday that David McWilliams has been named defensive coordinator for the Longhorns, succeeding Leon Fuller, who left to become head football coach at Colorado State University.

McWilliams, a former tri-captain for the Longhorns, has been on the coaching staff at Texas for 12 years.

The Cleburne native started coaching as an assistant at Abilene (Texas) High School. As head coach there from 1966-1969, his teams were 21-17-2.

McWilliams, 39, joined the Texas coaching staff as freshman coach in 1970 and moved to varsity the next year.

Berbick stops Ali in 10

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — Muhammad Ali, who will be 40 years old Jan. 17, tried to recapture the past again Friday night, but he couldn't, losing a unanimous 10-round decision to 28-year-old Trevor Berbick.

It was the second straight defeat for the man who held the heavyweight championship of the world three times and who was one of the most exciting fighters ever to climb into a ring.

Ali had hoped to use this fight to earn a title bid against Mike Weaver, the World Boxing Association champ.

"The stage is set for me," Ali said before the fight. "I love this sort of situation."

But the man who rose to the occasion in Africa when he upset George Foreman, when he rallied to beat Joe Frazier in Manila, and on numerous other occasions, could not do it this time. He was just a tired, old fighter, his belly bouncing, his punches lacking any authority.

Berbick's greatest assets were the strength and stamina of the younger man.

Judges Clyde Gray of Toronto and Jay Edson of Naples, Fla., each scored it 99-94, and judge Alonzo Butler of Freeport, Bahamas, saw it 97-94 for Berbick.

The AP scored it 96-94 for Berbick. For many, it was a sad end to a chaotic and often comic evening, an evening that almost didn't happen.

Berbick, a native of Jamaica who lives in Nova Scotia, had threatened not to fight unless he got a guarantee that he would receive the money due him. It wasn't until 4:15 p.m. CST that Berbick announced that he had received a letter of credit fulfilling the conditions of his purse, which was estimated to be anywhere from $250,000 to $500,000.

Then, the night called the "Drama in Bahama" got off to a bad start. The show was supposed to open at 6 p.m., but it didn't begin until about 8:15. Fans were slow getting into the 11,000-seat stadium at the Queen Elizabeth Sports Centre because the main gate couldn't be unlocked. By fight time, the arena appeared to be filled.

Officials discovered there were no boxing gloves at the arena, and a rush delivery was made.

Then, Ali, the people's champion, the self-proclaimed greatest, had to begin each round and end each round at the sound of a cow bell because there was no regular ring bell.

"Father time caught up with me," Ali said. "In my younger days I wouldn't have had any trouble. But I just couldn't do what I wanted to do. This is it, this is it. And I don't think I'll change my mind." muscular Berbick away from him, and he often looked awkward in trying to tie Berbick up, while Berbick pounded away at his body.

Berbick's most effective weapon was body punching. Ali, at 236 1/4 pounds, was the heaviest of his career, which began in 1960 when Berbick was 7 years old.

Ali did no clowning on this night. He was a man with a mission.

Teen marijuana use said to be decreasing

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Daily marijuana use by teenagers — and peer acceptance of daily pot smoking — is decreasing, according to the University of Michigan's annual survey of high-school seniors.

"Peer norms are shifting away from acceptance," says Lloyd Johnston of Michigan's Institute for Social Research, which has surveyed a nationally representative sample of 130 high schools (17,000 seniors) each year since 1975.

"The proportions of high-school seniors who say they smoke marijuana on a daily or near-daily basis has begun to decline. And we have observed a gradual increase in the proportion of seniors who themselves disapprove of regular marijuana use (75 percent disapproved in 1980 vs. 66 percent in 1977).

The 1975 survey indicated that 6 percent of all seniors were smoking pot daily or near-daily (20 more times per month). By 1978, daily use almost doubled to 11 percent — about one in every nine seniors. Over the next two surveys, that figure dropped somewhat from 10.7 percent to 9.1 percent.

Preliminary analyses of the 1981 study, Johnston said, "show these downward trends continuing."

Concern about health appears to be responsible for the decline. "From 1978 to 1980 the proportion of seniors attributing great risk of harm — physically and in other ways — to regular marijuana use rose from 35 percent to 50 percent," he said. "The numbers continue to climb in 1981."

ON A LIST OF REASONS why students decided not to use marijuana, more students mentioned possible physical and psychological than cited moral, legal or social constraints. Also ranked high: "concern about loss of energy."

"There also appears to be decreased acceptance of occasional and even experimental marijuana use," he said, "although these lesser degrees of involvement with the drug are far more widely accepted than regular use."

There still is "a substantial generation gap" between students and their parents, he said, on the issues of experimental or occasional use.

"While the general situation with marijuana seems to be improving," he said, "I do not want to leave the impression that the problem is near to disappearing." In the class of 1980:

- Sixty percent of seniors reported some experience with marijuana.
- Nearly half of all seniors had smoked it in the last year.
- One out of three had smoked it in the preceding month.
- Nine percent were smoking it daily.

4309 CRENSHAW

This beautiful home is one of the most popular Ramcon models. When you see it you'll know why. One of the largest living areas you'll find in a home this size is accented with stained ash paneling and an all-brick, wood-burning fireplace. The master suite is sequestered and has it's own bath and dressing area along with a walk-in closet. Come see the rest for yourself this weekend.
