Las Posadas

Parishioners from San Jose Catholic Church practice for the nine nights of Las Posadas scheduled to begin on Saturday, Dec. 16. As is traditional with Las Posadas, a symbolic Joseph and Mary stand outside the door, asking for shelter for the night. For eight nights, they will be told "no." On the ninth night, they will be welcomed into the "stable" at San Jose Church.

Local church to celebrate nine days of Las Posadas

For eight days Joseph and Mary will be turned away. On the ninth day, the young boy and girl playing the parts of Joseph and Mary will be welcomed with open arms.

It is the annual celebration of "Las Posadas" (the lodging) representing the nine-day journey of Joseph and Mary from Nazareth to Bethlehem. Parishioners of San Jose Catholic Church will be commemorating the annual tradition starting Saturday, Dec. 16, in the rural home of Janie and Ramon Corona.

For eight nights the little Joseph and Mary will be symbolically turned away at eight different locations, most of them the homes of different parishioners.

On the ninth night, Christmas Eve, they will be welcomed into the "stable" at San Jose Catholic Church, 735 Brevard.

The schedule for this year's Las Posadas is:

Saturday, Dec. 16--7 p.m., home of Janie and Ramon Corona.

Sunday, Dec. 17--7 p.m., home of Yolanda Valdez and Veronica Chavez, 143 Greenwood.

Monday, Dec. 18--6:30 p.m., home of Ramon Gonzalez, 222 Ave. H, followed by a penance service at 8 p.m. in San Jose Catholic Church.

Tuesday, Dec. 19--7 p.m., gymnasium of the San Jose Hall.

Wednesday, Dec. 20--7 p.m., home of Jim and Ester Moreno, 211 Blevins.

Thursday, Dec. 21--7 p.m., home of Hope and Israel Herrera, 118 Ave. E.

Friday, Dec. 22--7 p.m., home of Maria Marquez, 606 W. Second Ave.

Saturday, Dec. 23--7 p.m., home of Petra Nanez, 229 Ave. D.

Sunday, Christmas Eve--8 p.m., San Jose Catholic Church, 735 Brevard.

The history of the Mexican celebration of Las Posadas goes back to the 1550s. Catholic priests were concerned about their Indian converts celebrating the birthday of an Aztec war god during the Christmas season. Instead of attempting to ban the celebration, the priests converted the holiday to a commemoration of the journey of Joseph and Mary.

Each day of the nine day celebration is known as a "posada," and people inside the house are called "posaderos." Those asking for shelter are the "peregrinos."

House walks out, session in limbo

AUSTIN (AP) - Lawmakers failed again to reform workers' compensation insurance Friday. Angry House members walked out on the Senate, leaving the special legislative session in limbo.

The Senate rejected a business-backed House plan, 17-14. But some senators said they wanted to keep hunting for a compromise and that chamber recessed until Monday.

The House, accusing senators of stalling as a Dec. 13 session deadline neared, voted to adjourn for good earlier in the day.

Under legislative rules, it appeared that neither chamber could end a session without the other's approval. But several senators said they couldn't force House members to return to the Capitol to continue their second special session on workers' comp.

Even Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, who presides over the Senate, wasn't clear on what the Legislature's status was Friday night. "Yes, sort of," he said when asked if lawmakers were in session.

After meeting in a private caucus, the Senate passed a resolution to send the legislation back to a House-Senate conference committee.

Sen. Ted Lyon, D-Rockwall, said the House's move to adjourn was like "throwing a glass of ice water in the face of the Senate."

Gov. Bill Clements, who has threatened to keep lawmakers in session for as long as it takes to produce a bill, was in Georgia Friday. His office issued a terse statement blasting trial lawyers who opposed the House bill.

"I am deeply disappointed by the Senate's rejection ... True reform is within our reach and it is unfortunate that a group of plaintiff

'Toys for Tots' project here features parade, festivities

Hereford will be the site this Sunday of the annual Toys for Tots parade and festivities, with the local project spearheaded by the U.S. Marines and the employees of Hereford Bi-Products.

The parade, to celebrate the collection of toys for less-fortunate children, is scheduled to start at 2 p.m. from Winn's parking lot. It will go east on Park Avenue, across Hwy. 60 and to the Bull Barn.

The program at the Bull Barn, starting about 3:30 p.m., will include charity concession booths and the presentation of the toys to the Marines. Garth Merrick of Hereford Bi-Products, Mayor Wes Fisher, State Rep. John Smith and Marine representatives will be on the brief program.

Toys to fill requests from Hereford will be left by the Marines at the local Red Cross offices for distribution to underprivileged children.

The charity concessions at the Bull Barn is scheduled to include barbecue sandwiches, hot dogs, chili dogs, candied apples, pop corn, cotton candy and soft drinks. Program sponsors announced that proceeds from the concessions will go to the Christmas Stocking Fund of Hereford.

Local residents are invited to donate toys at the Bull Barn Sunday afternoon, or take them to the Red Cross offices on South Main.

Red Cross workers will fill the toy bags on Dec. 19 and deliver them Dec. 22. Volunteers are needed to help each of these days.

Christmas warmth, cheer being shared

The Christmas holidays are a time to feel the special warmth and peace of the season, yet they are also a time of contrast.

At the inn, the guests were warm and comfortable, yet two weary sojourners had only a humble stable for shelter on that most holy of nights long years ago.

While the Yule season is a time of feasting and revelry, there are also those who have no share of the cheer and warmth of the season. Their feast is whatever they can scrounge from an alley dumpster, because they are without means to buy food. Warmth is the tattered coat they gather about them against the cold in a room that has no heat.

Hereford's holiday charity, the Christmas Stocking Fund, is a means to reach out to people like these at a time when caring and sharing is particularly appropriate. Through donations to CSF, neighbors can share with the community's less fortunate in the form of assistance such as food baskets, clothing, help with utility, pharmacy and doctor bills, and attention to special needs.

CSF can make a difference in lives filled with despair and need, and you can help to make that difference. Donations to CSF may be made in person at the offices of the Hereford Brand, 313 Lee, or they may be mailed to CSF in care of the Brand at Box 673, Hereford.

CSF is administered by a volunteer committee which screens applications and coordinates assistance with local churches, civic groups and individuals.

Applications for assistance from CSF continue through Dec. 13 at the county Red Cross office from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day. Deliveries of food baskets and other assistance from CSF will be made Dec. 22. Crews from the City of Hereford and Energas Company will be assisting with the deliveries.

Friends honor Spike Zepeda

Over 60 friends and mallwalkers honored Epifano "Spike" Zepeda at Sugarland Mall in Hereford.

Spike has been a maintenance employee at the mall for over 23 years.

He was surprised with a showering of Christmas cash donated by friends and enjoyed cake and coffee at the mall's Candy Cane.

Spike then donned a Santa hat, heard poems from his friends and joined in the singing of Christmas carols.

"His friendliness and helpfulness to the persons who regularly take to the mall for their health and well-being were reasons for giving the surprise party," said one of his many friends.

About 80 people, from young mothers pushing their babies in strollers to a 93-year-old, regularly walk in the mall, and use it heavily during the colder winter months.

'Mr. Clean' of courthouse takes real pride in longtime duties

By KAY PECK
City Editor

The shine on the floors at the courthouse would be enough to put a Joy commercial to shame.

"Look, Marge! I can see myself," someone might say.

He'd be right. George Tijerina knows how to do his job.

Everybody in town has, at some time or another, noticed the cleanliness of the Deaf Smith County Courthouse. The floors shine, and anyone can feel comfortable about using the rest rooms.

Everybody notices, but few people know who is responsible. It's George Tijerina, a man who has been responsible for cleaning the courthouse for the past 10 years.

"I'm proud of what I do. I like my job," George said.

For many people, cleaning is something to be done when it can't be avoided any longer. Not for George. He takes real pride in what he does, so much that he occasionally brings family members to the courthouse just to view one of his recently completed tasks.

"When I'm in an office or something, I hit it top to bottom," George said.

The quality of work done by this "Mr. Clean of the courthouse" is obvious. It is also well appreciated.

Perez seeks county post

Margaret Perez has announced her intention to seek a full term as Deaf Smith County's tax assessor-collector.

Perez was appointed to fill the unexpired term of the late Nell Miller in September 1988, and assumed her duties on Oct. 1, 1988.

She has worked in the tax assessor-collector's office since May 1976, and became chief deputy in October 1986.

"The tax assessor-collector's office has served the citizens of Deaf Smith County well," Perez said. "I feel that I am qualified to continue that tradition and would like the opportunity to do so."

Perez, who has lived in Hereford for 15 years, will run for election subject to the Democratic primary.

JUDGE WESLEY GULLEY

Judge seeks re-election

District Judge Wesley Gulley announced Saturday that he will seek re-election as district judge of the 222nd Judicial District, serving Deaf Smith and Oldham counties.

"It is a privilege, an honor, and a serious responsibility to serve as your district judge," said Gulley. "You have my solemn pledge and promise to continue to faithfully and impartially perform the duties of this office."

District clerk announces

Lola Faye Veazey has announced her intention to seek reelection as district clerk for Deaf Smith County. Veazey has served as district clerk for the past 18 years.

"I have seen many changes in this office in that time," Veazey said. "The work load has increased dramatically since I took office."

Several steps have been taken to help deal with this increased work load. The district clerk's office moved into a larger work space on the third floor of the Deaf Smith County Courthouse in October 1987. Much of the material handled by that office is now processed through computers in order to increase efficiency.

Veazey regularly attends continuing education seminars conducted by the state in order to stay informed on current changes concerning the requirements of her office.

The incumbent district clerk is a native of Deaf Smith County and has raised three children here. For the past ten years, she has served as treasurer for the local branch of the Salvation Army and is a member of the Chamber of Commerce.

Veazey will be running on the Democratic ticket.

Contributions still being taken for 'living tribute' to Gene Brock Contributions are still being accepted for a scholarship fund honoring Gene Brock of Hereford.

Brock, who has been with the Hereford schools for 29 years, has been suffering from cancer.

The scholarship will benefit a student or student who has accumulated the most hours of service over four years in a school-sponsored service organization.

Contributions can be submitted to Hereford State Bank, Hereford High School or Hereford Junior High School. The scholarship fund will be administered by Opportunity Plan, Inc., of Canyon.

"This is a living tribute to Gene for all he has done for so many people," said Kyle Mines, who shares offices with Brock and is one of the board members overseeing the scholarship fund. Brock has assisted setting up the fund, working with other board members Marilyn Leasure, Bobby Owen, Waldo Baxter and Terry Russell.

"Gene has given his time, energy, talent, love and hopes in making other lives better and meaningful," Mines said. "Now is the time to let Gene know that we care and love him."

"I can look at literally thousands of lives he has touched all over Texas and Oklahoma, through his work in so many areas, not just in Hereford."

Brock is the current president of the Hereford Kiwanis Club, and has been a class sponsor, active in the Texas State Teachers Association, worked many hours with the Hereford Satellite Center, served as pastor at Bippus Community Church, and worked with handicapped youngsters at Camp Wigwam and Texas Special Olympics.

Brock has been sponsor of the trial lawyers has been allowed to sabotage the process," the governor's statement said.

House Speaker Gib Lewis was en route to his hometown, Fort Worth.

His press secretary, Tim Conger, said Lewis would call the House back to Austin if he receives Senate-passed workers' comp bill that House members would support.

"It appears to me the Senate is attempting to blame the House, and if they're wanting to produce reform this session we're ready and we're available," Conger said.

Before the Senate vote, Lewis said he didn't want to send the bill back to a conference committee.

"We've done our job ... We've done everything we can do," Lewis said. "We acted on the bill, went to conference, brought the bill back and we concluded our job. And that's all you can ask."

Lewis said returning the bill for further negotiations was a delaying tactic to allow opponents to filibuster in the final days of the session, essentially talking the bill to death without a final vote.

Since January, the legislative battle has pitted business groups that complain of high employer-paid premiums against lawyers, who represent injured workers, and allied labor leaders, who say benefits are too low and state job safety laws are too lax.

Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, urged the Senate to adopt the conference committee bill "to secure relief for our employers and secure relief for our employees."

He said the bill was "as close as we'll ever come" to a compromise between the House and Senate.

But opponents, led by Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, said the House-passed bill reduced benefits for many workers and cut their rights when disputing a comp claim in court.

"It's evil. It's wicked and it's mean-spirited and it needs to be fixed," said Sen. Kent Caperton, D-Bryan.

Last rebel stronghold in Philippines 'opts to die'

MANILA, Philippines (AP) - A general commanding the last rebel stronghold after the collapse of the coup against President Corazon Aquino refused to surrender Saturday, declaring, "We have opted to die."

Mrs. Aquino, addressing a rally of more than 100,000 people Friday, appealed to Filipinos to unite against those who would "destroy our democracy."

The rebels, who began the coup bid Dec. 1 with attacks in Manila, were taking their last stand at Cebu City, 350 miles south of Manila. About 400 rebels led by Brig. Gen. Jose Commendador controlled the Mactan air base.

Commendador told reporters

Saturday, "Surrender is out of the question." An aide said Commendador was "waiting word from Manila," but he did not elaborate.

Rebel and loyal troops faced each other at a bridge linking Mactan island to Cebu, the Philippines second major commercial center. A 600-member marine battalion was flown to Cebu on Friday to reinforce loyal units.

The military announced Saturday that three brigadier generals and at least 12 middle-grade officers would be relieved of their duties for participating in the uprising.

leaves it to me," Tijerina said.

It is obvious from the quality of his work that Tijerina is a man who would require little supervision. That is a desirable quality in any employee. The custodian has yet another basic trait which is very important in someone responsible for cleaning a courthouse. He's discreet.

"I just mind my own business and do my work," Tijerina said.

That discretion can be very important when cleaning a building where criminal charges are debated and divorces decided. Tijerina makes it clear that his concern is with the cleanliness of the judges' benches, not the decisions which are made there.

Just as justice itself is a never ending job, so is cleaning the building where local residents go to seek that justice.

"When I finish cleaning one thing top to bottom, there's always something else," Tijerina said.

It's just as well that Tijerina enjoys the responsibility of cleaning a public building. For at least 20 years that has been the work which has fed and clothed him and his family. Prior to being employed by the county, Tijerina worked for 10 years as a custodian for the Hereford Independent School District.

Tijerina and his wife, Rosie, have five children ranging in age from 19 to six. The Tijerinas also have two grandsons, the children of their eldest son, George Jr., and his wife, Sarah.

Pride in family is readily apparent in the quiet custodian. He is shyly uncomfortable when speaking of his own accomplishments, but smiles with ease when asked about his children.

Despite this love of family, the custodian sometimes finds himself in the courthouse at times when other men are comfortably home in bed.

"Sometimes I stay until 1 or 3 o'clock in the morning," Tijerina said.

Although he's a level-headed man, 3 a.m. is an excellent hour to remember the whispered legends of the ghost of the third floor. Sometimes, the creaks and settlements of the building can sound like footsteps, a frightening sound in an empty room.

Tijerina isn't as fanciful as a few of the other courthouse employees. Someone even gave the alleged ghost a name: Al Pizar. The name came from signs posted by the elevator entrances. The sign says "Watch your step" in English and "Precaucion al pisar" in Spanish.

Maybe there's a ghost, maybe there isn't. There is one thing for certain. If old Al Pizar is really there, it's a sure bet that he, too, appreciates the cleanliness of the courthouse.

Tornado taming

George Tijerina uses the Tornado Auto-Mite 16E to assist in scrubbing floors at the Deaf Smith County Courthouse.

Singing separates great callers from good

NEDERLAND, Texas (AP) - James Powell was born with rhythm and timing. And that's just for starters.

He also was blessed with a smooth set of pipes that mesh the pitter of square-dance calling with the easy vocals of western swing.

"The singing is what separates the great callers from good ones," he says. "And either you got it or you ain't."

Powell talks about the art of square-dance calling during a break from leading the Groves Promenaders in a senior center show. Usually the Promenaders pay Powell for his services, but the only pay he receives from entertaining senior citizens is the joy on their faces.

Back on the dance floor, Powell, 68, spins a record, flirts with the audience and beckons his dancers back. The Promenaders are retirees, not much younger than their audience, but in Powell's hands they are spry. Spinning, swirling and sashaying, the ladies reveal amazingly lissome legs under yards of lace.

"I love the music and the way the ladies' skirts move," says Janet Kares, watching from a front-row seat. "And they look like they are having so much fun."

Powell gets a twinkle in his eye as he tests his hoofers' listening skills. "Go right, go left, shoot that star, then promenade."

The dancers don't miss a move, producing the smooth, sandy sound of sliding feet.

"I didn't think we had so many young people," W.R. Turbeville says, joking from the sidelines.

Grover Austin, 74, smiles at the notion he and fellow Promenaders are fast on their feet. "Well, we're not dead yet," he says.

Powell eases up a bit on the next dance, doing Hank Williams proud with a gentle rendition of "Your Cheatin' Heart." The idea is to lure some of the audience into dancing a waltz. But these folks prefer watching the pros.

Erect and graceful, promenador Ray Goutierrez, 80, waltzes his wife Gert, 76, lightly across the floor. Married for 57 years, the Goutierzes began square dancing 12 years ago. "We've been dancing all our lives," Gert says.

Her husband says the secret to square dancing lies with the ears. "You have to listen to the caller and not follow the other guy," Ray says.

Powell says great dancers are like great callers: they are born. "And some of them just never get the hang of it."

Powell has about 4,000 different calls he can mix and match as he pleases. "You can call for a week and not use all of them," he says.

Gambling boats wager on growth in tourism

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) - Two casino ships are gambling on the Texas economy to bring hordes of tourists to vessels designed for offshore dining, dancing and other entertainment.

"We like to think of it as an adult Disneyland," said John Noah, general manager of the Europa Jet, a German-built, luxury craft operated by Europa Cruise Lines Ltd. of Pensacola, Fla.

"We feature complete family entertainment," Noah said. "We have a casino, but that only takes up 18 percent of our total place."

For children, the vessel offers a video games arcade.

The Europa Jet joins the Pride of Mississippi, operated by Pride Cruise Lines Inc. of Gulfport, Miss., in making day and evening cruises to international waters for legalized casino gambling beginning Friday.

The Pride of Mississippi, a 500-foot, Swedish-built vessel, will begin cruises with casino gambling and Las Vegas-style entertainment at 7 p.m. Friday. The Europa Jet, which arrived Sunday in Galveston, kicks off its operations with a maiden voyage for dignitaries Dec. 14 and opens to the public Dec. 15.

"It will be a boon to the Island and provides jobs there in Galveston," said Chuck Rice, legislative assistant to Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, who sponsored the bill permitting the vessels in the last regular session.

The bill, signed into law in June and taking effect Sept. 1, permits gambling outside the U.S. territorial waters - about 12 miles offshore of Galveston.

"We can't even open the doors of the casino to show you unless we're in international waters," said Noah, as he paraded reporters through the three-deck, 235-foot vessel, pointing out dance floor, nightclub, restaurant and bar.

The Pride of Mississippi, with room for 900 passengers, will feature "buffet dining, five bars, two indoor pools, six decks for lounging and relaxing, Las Vegas-style entertainment, which seats 300, and gambling," said Annette White, a Pride spokeswoman.

Both vessels offer a variety of gambling, including slot machines, blackjack, crap, roulette, baccarat, poker and bingo.

"We think competition is good for the industry," Noah said.

On the Europa Jet, which will carry 560 passengers, the fare for six and a half hours of musical entertainment, casino gambling and meals is $59 on weekends and $49 on weekdays. On the Pride, the fee will be $59.95 weekdays and $69.50 on weekends.

In addition, there will be a $5 port charge and a 7 percent sales tax for tickets on each ship, with $1 going to the city for every paying passenger.

"We've been waiting a long time for this," said Noah. "We think the hotels are going to reap the benefits of people coming in from Dallas, Austin and San Antonio."

The ships are expected to create about 340 jobs. Charles Liberis, president of Europa, said their vessel would represent a $5 million annual boon to Galveston, while the Pride is expected to make a similar impact.

"We're here for the long term," Noah said. "It's a very economical ship to run. Our break even point is around 125 people. We don't think we'll have any problem attracting them."

Already, Europa boasts bookings of 22 groups between Dec. 15 and Jan. 1.

Ann Richards autobiography is released

AUSTIN (AP) - In her new autobiography, state Treasurer Ann Richards suggests that her likely gubernatorial opponent sought to scuttle her keynote address to the Democratic National Convention, the speech that made her one of the party's rising stars.

The charge, which drew a "no comment" from Attorney General Jim Mattox's office, comes in the first chapter of "Straight from the Heart: My Life in Politics & Other Places."

The book tells her life story, from growing up near Waco to treatment for alcoholism to victory as the first woman elected statewide in half a century. But in the opening chapter, Ms. Richards tells about the speech that gave her a national political profile.

"It's a speaker's dream," she says of the address to the 1988 Atlanta convention.

"Everybody who cares even the slightest bit about politics can be counted on to watch, or at least will hear about what you have to say. I had never even considered giving it."

HEARTS ARE HARD TO GET

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - Fifty years ago, the only way the Tin Man could get a heart was to see the Wizard of Oz. Few then could imagine that one day thousands would seek, and get, new hearts.

Today, heart transplantation is a routine operation performed in 109 centers throughout the country, covered by 85 percent of medical insurers.

Yet there is a critical shortage of organ donors, says Dr. William Frist, author of "Transplant" (Atlantic Monthly Press) and director of the heart transplant program at Vanderbilt University Medical Center.

Despite a potential supply of 25,000 hearts each year, only 1,700 of them become available for transplantation. At any given moment over 1,200 people are waiting for a heart to save their lives, Frist says.

YOUR EYES

WHAT IS A LENS?

A lens is something that is transparent and capable of refracting (bending) light rays in a predetermined way. When a lens is used to alter light rays entering the eye in order to make you see better, it must be made of a durable material like glass or plastic that is free of air bubbles, lines and other distortions.

The power of lens that can bend light rays is measured in diopters. As the power of the lens increases, the lens thickens. A CONVEX lens which is thicker in the center than at its edges gathers the rays of light to a point on the retina to correct farsightedness. The CONCAVE lens is thicker at the edges than at its center and spreads the rays of light to a point on the retina to correct nearsightedness. The CONCAVE lens is thicker at the edges than at its center and spreads light rays apart. When used to correct nearsightedness, the lens directs the image to the retina. A CYLINDRICAL lens is curved more in one direction than another and is used to correct astigmatism.

Your lenses are specifically prescribed to provide you with the best possible vision.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says some people always seem to have enough gas for an ego trip.

"People are always asking unnecessary questions," mused the philosopher. "You know what I mean?"

Little Bobby's mother ran into the bedroom when she heard him scream and found his 2-year-old sister pulling his hair. She gently released the little girl's grip and said comfortingly to her son, "There, there, she didn't mean it. She doesn't know that hurts." She was barely out of the room when the little girl screamed. Rushing back in, she said, "What happened?" "She knows now," little Bobby explained.

A showdown on the reform bill failed to materialize Friday when the Texas Senate's "Gang of 17" rejected, for the third time in this special session, a workers' compensation plan. The 17-14 vote came one day after the House overwhelmingly approved the measure.

We agree with Sen. Teel Bivins, who termed it "outrageous that we haven't been able to resolve this issue in the 11 months we've been working on it."

Because of the many lawyers in the Senate, it should have been clear from the start that the legislature would never get around to a fair and equitable reform bill. The issue could have been solved if placed in the hands of employers and employees. They are the ones affected by workers' comp; the other parties—lawyers, doctors and insurance companies—have conflicts of interest.

The people of Texas should not be sabotaged by the selfishness of their elected officials. The system is broke; it needs to be fixed, and Texans are tired of watching the self-serving interests at work in our state government.

The Hereford business community is made up of all types of businesses, and a good cross-section of retail, wholesale, professional and industrial representatives were present this week for a "After-Hours Business Mixer" hosted by Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce.

A large number of managers and employees turned out for the mixer at Hereford Country Club, providing a place to meet, exchange business cards and ideas and learn more about the other business operations in the city and county.

The chamber serves as host for the mixers, and this one was sponsored by support industries of the cattle feeding industry. Sponsors included Allied Millwrights, Farr Better Feeds, Dr. Dale Furr, Hereford Bi-Products, Oswalt Livestock Products, Newton Trucking, Shur-Gro Liquid Feeds, Northwest Grain & Fertilizer, Hi-Plains Industries, Frito-Lay, BJM Sales & Service, Bradford Trucking, Nutrition Service Associates, and Pacific Molasses.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

The Christmas Toys Program of our local Red Cross Chapter is underway. Toys have been donated to our chapter all year long for this program and have been cleaned, repaired and taken care of by volunteers working throughout the year. This is a low cost program to help families living in Deaf Smith County to have a special Christmas. We have been working with the Christmas Stocking Committee to take applications for both the toys program and the assistance given by the committee. Our chapter can use donations of money to help repair bicycles and purchase plastic bags used for deliveries. I would like to thank Jack Weaver for his donation to help with this project. The $40 he donated will cover most of the chapter's expenses. The volunteers from many other organizations will use their time and money to clean toys, repair those toys and deliver them.

One of the goals of our toy program and the Christmas Stocking Committee is to give every resident of our county a chance to help someone less fortunate by giving a toy or a can of food or a dollar. Those cans of food, clothing purchased with those dollars, and toys will go to our local residents to help them feel that someone cares and to help them have a special holiday.

Please support the Christmas Stocking Fund Drive because clothing and food and warm shelter are more important than new toys.

The Penultimate Word

WONDERFULLY NON-PERFECT

I had the pleasure of speaking to a Quaker church in Iowa. I fell in love with these people. I had never been around them and had a great deal to learn. Matter of fact I had a great deal to unlearn. I thought they were some kind of an ethnic clan. I thought they met in silent worship and no one said anything.

The Quakers have a reputation for pacifism carried to the extreme. One of the old jokes they tell is about a Quaker whose cow kept kicking him.

Even Quakers get tired of being kicked so he said to his cow, "Now bossy, thou knowest I can not strike thee, and thou knowest I can not curse thee, but what thou doest not know is I can trade thee to a Baptist and he will beat the tar out of thee."

Since they will not hurt man nor beast, I told them I would like to join them but I could not do so until my cat died. I reserve the right to kick the cat.

I had been with these delightful and deeply spiritual folks for a couple of days and, frankly, was feeling quite inferior. Somehow they have found the secret to accepting one another. Somehow they let each person find the light inside of themselves and in unique expressions. I was in awe.

Late one afternoon, a group of us were talking and they began to tell me that this particular Quaker church was the result of two churches joining into one. They had kept the two names to make everyone feel at home.

One of the ladies began to laugh and told me that the joining had not been as smooth as it seemed. She said, "If you go to the kitchen you will find that each dish is marked so everyone will know which dish came from which church."

I was relieved. I said, "You folks can be just a picky as the Baptist."

I guess all that means there are no super folks in the world. We may look a little cleaner on the outside; we may sound a little better than we talk; we may hide our fusses a little better than others, but underneath it all we are just humans.

If a church has humans in it, then somewhere there will be those areas of pickyness. I still my join the Quakers when the cat dies.

Babbling Brooks

By JOHN BROOKS

Since Congress has given up a few of its "perks" with the recent pay raise that passed over the weekend, it's time to give up some more of those perks.

Do you know how much money a representative gets each year to pay for a staff? $431,760. For travel and other district expenses? $250,000. The ante for senators is based upon the size of the state. Texas' two senators, Phil Gramm and Lloyd Bentsen, get about $1.5 million a year for staff, travel and other expenses.

On top of this, members of Congress will get to use $68.4 million of our taxpayer money to send out all kinds of mail under their "franking privilege." The franking privilege can be translated to mean "free mail," but nothing is free.

I don't mind the news releases and other goodies from our representative, Larry Combest. Sen. Phil Gramm sends us something about once a week.

We get at least five things a week from Sen. Lloyd Bentsen. None of them are addressed to anyone currently employed by the Brand. In fact, we get two things a week that are addressed to Bobby Templeton. Bobby was here in 1977 (and we wonder how things can get screwed up in Washington).

Anyway, we could probably cut the franking privilege by, say, 90 percent. Limit congressmen to sending out one or two goodies a year, and don't let congressmen from, say, Dallas or Mission or California send out releases to every newspaper in the country, especially when it is a thinly-disguised method of obtaining more publicity while running for re-election or for some other office.

The world will come to an end because the paper clips will have taken over.

There are probably more paper clips made each day than there are babies born in the People's Republic of China in a year.

I have never, ever, ever personally purchased a single paper clip in my life. There were enough paper clips made for everyone about 50 years ago. There are so many around that I would swear they reproduce.

There are paper clips all over the place here at the Brand. I have a 50th anniversary coffee cup from Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative in which I keep my pens, a couple of pencils, a Magic Marker, a screwdriver and "It's A BOY!" cigar. There are also about 10,000 paper clips at the bottom of the cup.

Look in my top middle desk drawer, if you can get the sucker open. In the little area at the front where you can store things like pens, pencils and paper clips, there are another 10,000 paper clips.

Go back in the page composition area. There are little clusters of hundreds of paper clips all over the place.

Back a few years ago, a paper clip was a paper clip. It was a little piece of twisted metal that securely held up to about 10 sheets of paper together.

You can still get those, but you can also get these huge paper clips that make three triangles instead of two ovals. These are huge paper clips. A regular paper clip weighs about one gram. These probably weigh at least five grams, or about as much as a half-teaspoon of salt. You get a few thousand of these in a desk drawer and the desk starts buckling.

Also there are colored paper clips.

No longer can you get by with just a plain old paper clip, or a plain three-triangle job. Now you can have your own paper clip identity. I haven't been to a psychologist lately, but it wouldn't surprise me if they didn't want to know whether you preferred yellow or green or blue or purple paper clips.

From the persons who brought you the Panty-of-the-Month Club is the new video "Undressed To Kill."

The video "promises to herald a new trend in the marketing of high quality intimate apparel."

The tape is designed for men. "Not a lurid production, the live model Undressed to Kill video relieves the anxiety experienced by men across the country who would like to give a gift of exquisite lingerie but dare not enter a store," says a news release. "There is also a special section featuring classy, yet reasonably priced, gifts any woman would be delighted to find under the Christmas tree, and that most men would not think to look for while doing their holiday shopping."

If the video looks anything like the picture that accompanied the release, I'll take two tapes.

Editorial opinion around Texas

By The Associated Press

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from around Texas:

Negative Television Ads Likely To Flood Screens

A few months ago, not too many people outside of West Texas had heard of Clayton Williams, and almost nobody outside of Dallas knew Tom Luce.

But after spending more than $1 million on television commercials, Williams now has one of the more familiar faces in the state. And Luce began what he hopes is a similar climb from obscurity last week by launching an expensive TV campaign of his own. ...

With no incumbent running in 1990, the governor's race is wide open for both Democrats and Republicans, which means Texas TV viewers are going to be saturated with an unprecedented number of political messages between now and the March primaries. ...

We hope that sweetness and light prevail, but we fear our hope may be a touch naive. It seems far more likely that campaign pressures and the ever-increasing reliance on television commercials in Texas politics will unleash an avalanche of abusive ads, with the viewing public caught in the crossfire.

It will not be pretty. Perhaps those of a delicate nature should unplug their sets now and get out of the way before somebody casts the first stone. —San Antonio Light, Dec. 4.

Congress Should Block Cuts in Medicare Spending

The White House budget office has proposed an $8 billion reduction in Medicare spending with the health insurance program for the elderly and the disabled sustaining the largest cuts. Congress should prevent this proposal from gaining any momentum.

The proposed reductions are particularly troubling in view of a recently released three-year study in which a House committee has concluded that elderly patients are being discharged "quicker and sicker" from hospitals as a result of cost-cutting measures imposed by Congress in 1983.

As health-care costs increase, and the life expectancy increases at a faster rate than elderly income, the federal health-care dollars are stretched even further. Medicare now provides health insurance for 33 million elderly or disabled people.

There is a health-care crisis in this country. Although every effort should be made to make federal health programs cost-effective, this is certainly not an appropriate time to consider a reduction in spending given the massive health-care needs of the youngest, the oldest, the weakest and the poorest in our society. —Austin American-Statesman, Dec. 4.

Pay Legislators More

You know that Texas legislators are underpaid when a member will give up a seat in the Texas House to run for justice of the peace.

That's exactly what Rep. Tony Polombo of Houston plans to do. The representative, who has been in the Legislature 15 years and is chairman of the Harris County delegation, said he will give up his seat and run for a Harris County justice of the peace slot. ...

As a legislator, Polombo makes $7,200 a year, plus expenses. As a justice of the peace, he would make $72,000 a year, 10 times as much. He would actually make even more by performing weddings.

That's just one more bit of evidence to support the argument in favor of paying Texas legislators a reasonable salary, if and when they get serious about lobbying, ethics and campaign-finance reforms. Otherwise, the state will have to make do with either independently wealthy legislators, or those who are in hock to special interests. ... —Corpus Christi Caller-Times, Nov. 29.

Privatize Mail

In a ballyhooed attempt to modernize, the U.S. Postal Service has lately spent some $500 million on high-tech mail processors and other equipment. The results?

- Costs are rising 50 percent faster than inflation;
- Productivity is down;
- Complaints of late delivery are up one-third;
- The number of mail-processing workers has increased by 5,131;
- A price hike (probably to 30 cents for a first-class stamp) in 1991 looms.

These facts tell us nothing about new technology. They speak volumes about the efficiency and productivity of government-run businesses. ...

At one time, the Postal Service delivered almost all packages in the United States. With the introduction of competition - from United Parcel Service, Federal Express and others - the post office's share is down to 3 percent.

But that's not all. Efficiency and consumer choice have vastly increased. That may trouble the Postal Service, but not people who send packages. We should do the same for people who send letters.

Q. What will soften brown sugar that has become very hard?

M.S.W. Los Angeles, Calif.

Q. How does bromated flour differ from other flour?

Mrs. T.S., Clifton, N.J.

A. Heat sugar in 250 to 300 degree oven or in microwave, tightly covered, on high (100 percent) for 30-second intervals. When sugar is softened, use it immediately as it will harden again upon cooling. You can also place a piece of soft, fresh bread on top of sugar in a tightly sealed container. This method may take one or two days and bread may need to be replaced.

A. Bromated flour contains potassium bromate which improves the quality of bread dough, making it less sticky to handle. When bread is baked it is larger in volume with a medium grain. High protein wheat, rye and whole wheat are most commonly bromated.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This for "Southern Dilemma," who described herself as a washout when it came to being a mother. She is not alone. Many of us feel trapped and resentful because we can't stand our kids. "Maternal instinct" is a lot of bull. It's just another way to make women feel guilty. (You'll notice nobody ever talks about "paternal instinct.")

FROM VAN NUYS, CALIF.: "Southern Dilemma" is a soul sister for sure. At age 36 I finally became joyously pregnant. Everything was great until the baby came. I had planned to stay at home for three months, but after eight weeks I couldn't stand it. I went back to work, where I was a respected executive. (At home, the kid was in charge.) I felt inadequate and resentful. My husband was disgusted with me.

Eighteen months later I was treated for postpartum depression. It helped to know there was a medical reason for my negative feelings about motherhood. Now the guilt is gone and I truly love my child.

Offense sparked Herd

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN
Hereford's Whitefaces were an offensive-dominated team in 1989, moving into the playoffs on a record-setting attack that averaged 364.4 yards per game in total offense.

Running back Matt Bromlow was the surprise of the year in District 1-4A, galloping for a regular-season HHS record of 1,550 yards while playing just nine games. Quarterback Jason Walterscheid and receiver Russell Backus also put their names on the school's top 10 list.

And, making those statistics possible was an offensive line that included All-District selections Chris Solomon, Benny Gonzales, Anthony Tijerina and Freddie Martinez. The defense did not make the HHS top 10, but it was a bend-but-not-break group led by the district's most valuable defensive player, Aaron Savage and all-district defensive back George Madrigal, among others.

Bromlow is the only all-district pick who will return next year, but Coach Don Cumpton will have some other key players back. These include running backs Greg Urban-czyk and Chris Steward, and end Ben Weatherly on offense, and defensive men Oscar Garcia (this season's leading tackler), Mark and Mike Daniel, Chris Tardy, Cody Page and Chad Brummett.

In offensive line statistics kept by HHS coaches this season, points are given on pancakes (putting opposing linemen on back), great plays, and putting linebackers on the grass. Tijerina led the way in pancakes with 60, followed by Gonzales with 52, Solomon 50 and Richard Perez 32. Tijerina also led the big-play list with 46, followed by Gonzales 38, Solomon 36, Perez 28 and Martinez 27. Solomon had 42 "linebackers in the grass" while Gonzales followed with 30, Perez 24 and Martinez and Castillo had 21 and 20, respectively.

Oscar Garcia led the defense with 105 tackles at linebacker. He was followed by Brian Wagner with 85, Aaron Savage 80, Jerome Goudy 79, Mike Daniel 69. Wagner had 18 tackles for losses; Savage and Mike Daniel 13 and Garcia 11. Bert Noland was the sack leader with 7, followed by Wagner with 5 and Savage and Mike Daniel with 3 each. "Hurrying the passer" also got 18 points for Savage, 15 for Noland, 12 for Mike Daniel and 10 for Wagner. Savage and Wagner led the "big hit" list with 10 and 7. Goudy and Garcia led in pass interceptions with 3 each.

Team and individual statistics for the season are listed below, as well as HHS records compiled by The Brand.

The 1989 team is the leader in total offense per game and is now third in offensive scoring (since 1950). Matt Bromlow set the record for rushing in a season and is fourth in career rushing yards with his senior year remaining. Bromlow also set single game marks for most carries, 34, and most yards, 267.

Backus is second in pass receiving for a season and third in number of catches. Walterscheid became the second most accurate passer for a season, completing 57.1 percent of his throws, and he ranks seventh in passing yardage for a season.

Mike Wartes (1970) still has the most passing yards for a season, while Keith Kitchens has the most career passing yardage. Jason Scott ('86-'87) is the percentage passing leader and has the most touchdown passes for a career. Paul Bell ('77-'78) is the career rushing leading with 2,188 yards.

Borger thrashes Lady Whitefaces

The Hereford Lady Whitefaces met the Borger Lady Bulldogs for the second time in a week Friday, and the result was a second 21-point loss as Borger took a 46-25 decision at Whitefaces Gymnasium.

In the junior varsity contest, Hereford squeezed out a 33-31 win.

Hereford, which fell to 4-8 overall and 1-2 in District 1-4A with the loss, was plagued all night by a combination of missed shots and a lack of offensive rebounds. Borger, now 6-3 and 1-1, allowed the Herd on six second-chance shots in the game.

The Herd stayed close through the first quarter, trailing 14-11 at the end of the opening period. But Borger held the Lady Whitefaces to only one basket in the second period and 12 points in the second half.

For the game, Shantel Cornelius led the Herd with nine points while Chandra Brown added five. Stacy White, Brianna Townsend, Candice Robbins and Jennifer Bullard scored two points each and D'Ann Hill added a free throw.

Borger was led by Muriel Brown's

15 points with Marcy Gallaspy getting into double figures with 11.

Lady Whiteface JV 33, Borger 31
Hereford spent most of the game trying to hold onto a slim lead as Borger came back to tie the score five times including three in the fourth quarter.

The Herd led, 8-6, after the first period, but Borger managed to tie the score at 18-18 going into halftime.

Hereford appeared to have the game well in hand after holding the Lady Bulldogs to one free throw in the third, but a field goal and a three-pointer by Borger in the first minute of the final period wiped out a five-point Hereford lead.

Hereford's Brek Binder led all scorers with 13 points while Melinda Holmes had six and Lindsey Radford four for the Herd. Cassie Brooks, Jayme Moore, Lori Sanders, Jennifer Hicks and Kiann Lindley all scored two points for Hereford.

Borger was led by Tiffany Smith with 12 points and Angela Belcher with eight.

Breaking away

Brianna Townsend of the Hereford Lady Whitefaces puts the finishing touches on a fast break during Hereford's 46-25 loss Friday to the Borger Lady Bulldogs.

HERD HOOPS

with a 10-4 third period.

Pampa JV 67, Herd JV 53

Richard Sanderson led the Herd with 18 points while Blake Buckley added nine and Ben Weatherly seven. Chris Blair, Chris Tardy and Brady Wilson scored six points each for the Herd and Miguel Casas added a free throw.

Pampa was led by Michael Williams with 24 points and Donald Williams with 13.

World's beef trade going through rapid changes

WASHINGTON (AP) - The world's beef trade is undergoing rapid changes as production declines in 1989 and production falters in some major countries.

One result, the Agriculture Department said Wednesday, is that the United States is edging ahead of New Zealand as a world-class beef exporter.

U.S. exports are estimated at 450,000 metric tons, up from 313,000 tons in 1988, the department's Foreign Agricultural Service reported. Exports are expected to rise to about 508,000 tons in 1990.

Most of the increase is the result of larger sales to Japan under last year's trade liberalization by Tokyo to open the door to more beef and citrus.

New Zealand's total beef and veal exports, meanwhile, are estimated at 439,000 tons in 1989 and 368,000 tons in 1990. Production rose this year as drought forced more cattle to slaughter.

U.S. imports of beef, which reached 1.1 million tons in 1988, are expected to decline this year to around 990,000 tons, the report said. The decrease is the result of smaller shipments from Australia, where production is down and more meat was diverted to the lucrative Japanese market.

The report said U.S. beef imports in 1990 are likely to decline slightly, to around 970,000 tons, as Australia continues exporting to Japan.

"U.S. beef exports grew at a faster rate than those of the other five countries during the 1980s, rising from sixth to fourth position by 1988," the report said. "In 1989, it is expected that the United States will surpass New Zealand to become the third largest beef exporter in the world."

The top six beef exporters in 1989 are: Australia, 823,000 tons; the 12-nation European Economic Community, 759,000; United States, 450,000; New Zealand, 439,000; Brazil, 370,000; and Argentina, 350,000.

Overall, global beef and veal production is expected to decline this year to about 45.2 million metric tons from 45.3 million tons in 1988, the report said. Much of the decrease occurred in the EEC, Argentina, Brazil and Australia.

The situation in the major beef producing countries is watched closely by USDA trade analysts and livestock producers, particularly conditions in Australia and New Zealand.

Cattle herds are expected to increase in Australia to about 25.3 million head by 1991 from 24.3 million at the beginning of 1989, the report said.

"Dampening a more rapid increase in the herd size is an attractive wool market and expansion in the sheep industry," the report said. "Without this competition for resources, total cattle numbers could increase more rapidly."

In New Zealand, drought forced cattle slaughter to about 3.3 million head this year from 3.1 million in 1988. But slaughter may decline to around 2.8 million head in 1990, the report said.

Tulia session topic will be pinto beans

TULIA -- The potentially profitable production of pinto beans, gaining increasing interest among area farmers, will be examined here Dec. 14 in a conference sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The conference will be from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m. at the Swisher Memorial Building, 127 SW Second St. It is a block west of the Swisher County Courthouse on State Hwy. 86. Lunch will be provided, but persons planning to attend need to telephone Swisher County Extension Agent David Gibson, (806)-995-3726, by Dec. 12.

"Pinto bean processors have been writing attractive contracts with growers in the Texas Panhandle and High Plains for the past two years," said Dr. Roland Roberts, vegetable specialist with the Extension Service at Lubbock. Some 5000 acres of pintos are now being produced in this area, he estimated.

Speakers will include Bill Rogers, TDA; Charlie Rogers, Texas Water Commission; Dr. Wayne Keeling, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station; and Extension Service specialist Dr. Jack Price, agricultural chemist; Dr. James Leser, entomologist; Morrison; and Dr. Harold Kaufman, plant pathologist.

Farmers will be in market for new machinery, report analysts

WASHINGTON (AP) - A relatively high level of cash income is expected to put more farmers in the 1990 market for new machinery and other capital improvements, Agriculture Department analysts say.

Net cash income is expected to be in the range of $52 billion to $54 billion this year, down from a record $59.9 billion in 1988 because of higher production expenses and lower government payments.

In 1990, according to projections announced at the department's recent outlook conference, net cash income - the difference between cash gross income and cash expenses - may be in the range of $52 billion to $57 billion.

Stan G. Daberkow of the department's Economic Research Service said that with 1990 net cash income looking brighter and interest rates to remain near current levels, capital spending next year could rise 4 percent to 5 percent.

"Prospects for increased planted acreage and an aging farm machinery stock may also positively influence capital spending by farmers," he said.

A seven-year slump for the farm machinery industry ended in 1986.

"Unit sales of new farm tractors and other large pieces of farm equipment increased in 1987 and 1988 and are likely to show further gains in 1989 and 1990," Daberkow said. "Sales of new over-40-horsepower tractors may reach 64,000 units, up from an estimated 62,000 in 1989."

Daberkow said combines did not substantially rebound until this year because some farmers had to postpone capital spending because of the 1988 drought. Even so, self-propelled combine sales, which are closely related to harvest prospects, "began to rise significantly" from 1988 levels by April of this year.

The retooling of U.S. agriculture is long overdue. Between 1980 and 1986, he said, capital expenditures dropped by nearly 60 percent.

"Rising real interest rates, declining commodity prices, curtailed agricultural exports, reluctance to take on additional debt, falling land values, reduced planted cropland and a binge of capital spending in the 1970s led to very conservative levels of capital spending in the 1980s," Daberkow said.

Tractors and other farm machinery usually make up about 60 percent of all capital expenditures, with buildings and land improvements accounting for 25 percent to 30 percent, and cars and trucks the remainder.

Sales of large new tractors were one of the hardest hit categories during the early and mid-1980s, with the number of units sold plummeting 75 percent.

Daberkow said farmers may spend between $118 billion and $121 billion next year on total agricultural supplies, or inputs, which would be down 1 percent to 2 percent from this year. That would be due in part to lower feed costs.

Farm coalition offers plan for '90 farm bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - The National Family Farm Coalition has a proposal for the 1990 farm bill it says would strengthen family farms while eliminating the need for deficiency payment subsidies.

At a news conference Monday, members of the coalition presented a plan that also would encourage sustainable agriculture, or what is commonly called organic farming.

"For grain handlers and shippers, and for food processors, the 1985 farm bill has ensured record profits," said the coalition's statement. "For over 400,000 farm and ranch families who left the land between 1985 and 1988 and their rural communities, that farm program has been a disaster."

The coalition says their model farm bill would:

- Allow farmers to earn their income from the marketplace by raising price support levels to cover the cost of production.

- Establish a farmer commodity reserve that would ensure against natural disaster and cushion the economic risk of changing from chemical to sustainable methods.

- Ensure through production

Memories jog writer's view: country life is the good life

By KAY PECK
City Editor

The Indians speak of water spirits. Maybe that's what it was.

All I know is that the little playa lake—empty most of the time—just over the fence and down the draw from our house felt "right." Maybe you know what I mean. It was the kind of place where just being there felt like you were three years old and warmly wrapped in your mother's arms.

I miss that little lake bed with the rusted pieces of a 1930s vintage Ford half-buried on the southeast edge. I miss a lot of the life we had during seven years of living 25 miles from the nearest grocery store.

As far as I'm concerned, the country life is the good life.

It gives my heart a little twist of envy when I park beside a beat-up old pickup with a month's worth of groceries loaded in the back. Time or two, I've been tempted to stow away.

There's nothing like living in the boondocks. Plenty of people in Deaf Smith County should know what I'm talking about, especially in the ranching country of the western portion of the county.

Nothing compares with knowing you can step out on your front porch in your night gown (or birthday suit if you please) to sing the "Star Spangled Banner" at 4 a.m., and nobody's going to give a rip. Not that I ever did (never could remember all the words to "Star Spangled Banner"), but I could have if I wanted.

There are those who do not share this taste for rural living. I have seen people give me the same look they would give a cockroach in their dinner salad when I said that I lived 25 miles from town. There are many who look on life without a garbage truck as uncivilized. Some begin to hyperventilate if they're out of smelling range of a fast food restaurant.

Not me.

Awhile back I was killing time while waiting for an interview at Dawn. I went for a drive in the area north of town. Guess what I found... a playa lake.

I wasn't really dressed for it. My ears nearly froze after I parked the car and walked the quarter of a mile or so from the road to the edge of the lake. It was a slow trip. I walked carefully, trying to take cover in the tall grass as I got closer. A flock of Canadian geese honked and swam and generally went about their business in the shallow water of the lake. I managed to inch close enough to get a series of pictures, and then I turned for the walk back to the car.

That's when the memories hit. I glanced up through grass a color of gold which can be found only on the Great Plains. A road, if you want to call it that, fingered its two ruts down a path through the pasture.

I've walked roads like that a hundred times looking for arrowheads or just plain walking... and listening. The wind has whispered great wisdom to me on those rare occasions when I remembered to listen.

Sometimes, when I search for an inner definition of happiness, my mind recreates a moment of time... a memory of utter contentment. I stood in an old barn, sheltering from a rainstorm along with a group of cowboys with whom I'd been working.

The rain pattered gently, occasional drips finding their way through the none-too-adequate roof. We stood inside, telling tall tales and discussing the meaning of life.

Maybe one day I'll be rich. Maybe one day I'll even manage to be a tad wiser.

I'll never be happier than I was that day, the smell of rain and wet horses all around me. Life can be sweet.

Between the Covers

BY REBECCA WALLS

Derek Franklin, injured in a steeplechase competition, answered the phone for about the tenth time that morning. After identifying the person speaking the voice said, "We have you listed as your brother Grevill's next-of-kin..." "I'm speaking from St. Catherine's Hospital, Ipswich. Your brother is here in the intensive care unit...and the Doctors think you should be told..." "He was involved in an accident" she said. "He has multiple injuries and is on life support." He would be all right Derek told himself. He would recover, intensive care just meant that he was being carefully looked after. Derek fought the anxiety trying to build as he prepared to go to Ipswich, about a 150 miles away. The crunched ankle was at its peak of discomfort, even with painkillers and icepacks it was hot, swollen and throbbing. With the assistance of Brad, an unemployed welder, Derek make it to Ipswich and received the latest report on his brother, it is only a matter of time. It seems that Greville had been walking down the street when some scaffolding that was being dismantled had fallen on him from a considerable height. A construction worker had been killed and another had been taken to the hospital with a broken hip. The only thing found on his brother indicating his identity was a diary with the next-of-kin neatly filled in and the monogrammed shirt, no wallet. In a short time Derek inherits his brother's desk, business, gadgets, horses, and his life. Derek also inherits his brother's enemies and that is what is trying to kill him. Derek Franklin must call on all his stamina and endurance just to complete the final furlong. Don't miss Straight by Dick Francis.

Fury, a tale by John Coyne, is about Jennifer Winters, an attractive, single professional New York woman. The sudden inexplicable events begin with strange memories of a past she could never have lived invading her consciousness. Then a primal lust for blood and sensual gratification surges within her. But the primitive rage that finds expression in a savage strength wreaking devastation and murder with astonishing ease is most terrifying of all. Knowing that something has claimed her, body and spirit, Jennifer channels the new awesome energies through a revealing odyssey into her own unlimited soul. There an endless cycle of love, betrayal, and vengeance plays itself out from the very dawn of time to the present.

Among the new books going out this week are several biographies such as: The Hustons by Lawrence Brobel which centers around the remarkable portrait of one of the greatest directors, John Huston. From Walter to John to Anjelica, there are three generations of Oscar winners. Their stories crossed continents and dealt with the greatest personalities of their times.

More than 200 interviews are incorporated into this brilliantly researched work.

Honorable Justice: the Life of Olive Wendell Holmes by Sheldon M. Novick portrays the life of perhaps the best known name in the history of American law. Holmes was born in the mid-19th century Boston, the son of a brilliant physician and bestselling author Oliver Wendell Holmes, Sr. and his strong-willed abolitionist wife Amelia. As a young man, Holmes fought in the Civil War and was seriously wounded three times. His letters home revealed the emotional and physical anguish he suffered and provide a vivid personal record of some of the major battles. At the age of 32, Holmes married Fanny Dixwell, who was to remain childless and semi-invalided throughout their long affectionate marriage.

Pete Rose: My Story by Pete Rose and Roger Kahn is about the man with more hits in major leagues than anyone in history. Like him or not, Pete Rose is a major part of baseball history, always making headlines with his brash head-first style. The future Hall-of-Famer, has played in more winning games than any player in the history of baseball.

The family film scheduled for Dec. 21, at 7 p.m. is "Babes in Toyland". You will want to make a special effort to attend this Christmas classic.

Hairstyles to have, to hold

Anyone adept at using styling gel, mousse, hairspray and spritz, realizes there's no limit to the variety of exciting hairstyles that can be created this holiday season and throughout the year. But, like most great ideas, even versatile styling aids can become too much of a good thing.

If styling product build-up is getting you down...if your hair feels tacky or stiff and looks dull and lifeless...you will be delighted to discover that manufacturers are responding with shampoo and conditioner formulas developed especially for heavy users of styling products.

The average shampoo may not be up to the task of thoroughly removing styling product build-up. But special deep cleansing shampoos lather away every last bit of residue, without stripping the hair of precious natural oils.

And, while instant conditions all too often over-condition and leave behind a film that can weigh hair down, clean rinsing conditioners offer just the right amount of light conditioning. The result is sparkling clean hair with unbelievable body...the perfect way to set the stage for creating those fabulous holiday looks.

If you're a little confused about whether to mousse, gel, spray or spritz, you're not alone. According to the haircare experts, it's necessary to consider your hair type, the style you're trying to achieve and the level of hold desired.

Styling mousse adds extra volume and soft hold. The damper the hair on which mousse is applied, the softer the hold; the drier the hair, the firmer the hold. Mousse is great for all hair types, but is especially effective on fine hair. For blow dry styles, concentrate mousse on root areas and finger-comb hair away from the direction you'd like it to fall as you dry. Finish with a round styling brush, again concentrating on root areas for maximum lift. Or, finger style damp hair and allow to air dry.

An early meeting

Shyla Sossaman, daughter of Bruce and Lana Sossaman, gets an early conference with Santa Claus at the Hereford Kiwanis Club's annual kids' Christmas party this past week. Children were given tokens of appreciation for having been models of good behaviour throughout the year.

Play it safe this holiday

While a record number of shoppers observe the holiday season by spending money and spreading holiday cheer, this season also marks the country's highest incidence of crime.

"During the busiest shopping season of the year, holiday shoppers and retailers are easy targets for robbers and thieves," warns James Covert, president of SecurityLink Midwest Corp.

According to the National Retail Merchants Association, consumers spend "big bucks" during November and December—a time when retailers expect to earn half of their annual profits. With the cash flow high, however, holiday spendthrifts need to be on the lookout for clever pickpockets lurking in malls and large department stores.

"The holiday season usually means crowded stores and overworked employees, all of which makes the criminal's job much easier," says Bob Scanlan, community relations director for SecurityLink.

"Additional inventory, larger cash resources and longer store hours all mean greater security risks."

To guard against loss, SecurityLink advises holiday shoppers to observe the following guidelines to keep safe and avoid crime:

Carry as few packages as possible at one time. Having an armful of packages leaves you open to attack. Plan to rent a locker for the day or park the car near the store to make frequent "package runs."

Always keep packages locked (and hidden) in your car trunk. Never leave packages or other valuables on the car seat in open view. If a thief doesn't see anything to steal, he won't bother breaking into your car.

Make sure purses and wallets are closed and out of sight. It's easy for a thief to snatch a wallet out of an open purse without the victim realizing what happened. And, when crowds are heavy with shoppers, would-be thieves look for opportunities.

Carry small sums of cash. The best protection against professional pickpockets is to carry only small sums of cash. If you rent a locker, keep extra cash safely locked away.

Two of Mankind's Greatest Inventions.

We've relied on this fastenating little device since we were in diapers. But nobody's been sharp enough to invent anything better to keep us from falling apart at the wrong time.

Nobody's invented anything better than a gas furnace, either. Like all the great inventions, it's simple, reliable, and has stood the test of time.

A gas furnace quietly and efficiently does the job it was designed to do ... year after comfortable year.

The point is, no new gadget can do a better job of heating your home. For comfort and efficiency, the most effective invention ever made is a natural gas furnace. Period.

Extension News

BY BEVERLY HARDER
County Extension Agent

Catalog shopping for clothing is not risk-free. Use some common sense to reduce risks.

Remember that an established, well-known company is apt to satisfy most of its customers. If you're unfamiliar with the company, check on its reputation by contacting the office of the Better Business Bureau closest to the company's headquarters.

Take advantage of the fact that some companies selling clothing or other textiles will send swatches on request to aid in your decision-making.

Before you order, find out the company's return policy. It should be stated in the catalog or on the order form.

Be aware that companies which specialize in seasonal merchandise sometimes have deadlines for receiving orders. Except for phone orders, companies are required to ship an order within 30 days of receiving payment or charging on a credit card account.

Consider the added shipping cost. Most companies charge according to the weight or dollar value of the merchandise. Sometimes these add considerably to the cost.

Remember, too, the one big drawback of catalog shopping. It's impossible to determine fit since you can't try on the item. Without seeing and touching the clothing, it's also difficult to determine the fabric weight or texture and its overall quality.

Reducing risk result in better consumer satisfaction with purchases.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

BRANDED Women

By Sandy Stagner

Isn't going Christmas shopping with your husband a real joy, ladies? It rates right up there with having labor pains.

This is the third yuletide holiday that John and I have spent together as an old married couple. In the past, I have done most of the shopping and I thought it had always worked out nicely.

However, this year John decided he just couldn't trust me alone with the credit cards. What a spoiled sport! Perhaps in the past I had purchased a few unneeded items but I tried to explain to this man that they were on sale. His reply, "So, what if you saved a few pennies. We couldn't use any of your 'great buys of the century'."

I decided to play innocent and keep my mouth shut while he went on and on... "Remember that baby blanket you bought? We didn't have a baby, none of our friends had babies and that thing is still in a box on the top shelf of the closet." (So, he's right on one count, I thought to myself. Big deal.)

I kept staring at him while he continued to babble. "And what about the four pair of men's pajamas you bought for me? Are they still in a box under the bed? You knew when you purchased those that I didn't wear pajamas," he snootily remarked. "Were you expecting me to be hospitalized in the near future so that I would have an occasion to wear them?" (If he kept this conversation up, he was going to be put in the hospital.)

After what seemed like hours of this pointless speech, I said, "Okay, you don't trust me, then you can darn well be drug all over town with me to help me Christmas shop. I bet you $100 that you can't last for 30 minutes before you begin complaining. Is it a deal?"

With the credit cards tucked safely away from me in his billfold and armed with his checkbook, we were off to the "war zones."

The first stop we made was to buy for our 17-year-old son. After only five minutes of looking around, I heard muttering behind me. It sounded like "Tim's not going to like that. He doesn't wear that size. Why can't you just buy the red shirt instead of looking at every shirt in this store?"

"Did you say something to me, John?" I asked. (No reply.)

Another 15 minutes of apparently pure torture for him passed when he said, "Good grief, we haven't bought one item. At this rate, it's going to take two weeks to get this shopping done. Can't you speed it up? I have worked hard all day and I'm tired, hungry and I want to go home." (Poor baby.)

At this point, I wanted to yell,

To make a one-pound honeycomb, bees must draw nectar from about two million flowers.

LEARN WHAT CHRISTMAS SAFETY'S ABOUT!

A CHRISTMAS SAFETY CHECK

☐ Before hanging strings of lights, spread them on the floor and check for frayed or bare wires, cracked insulation, loose connections, and damaged plugs or light sockets.

☐ Check extension cords for wear or damage and don't run them across walking areas.

☐ Test lights before putting them on the tree. Unplug them before making repairs or replacing bulbs.

☐ Overloading circuits with too many lights can cause fire. Follow manufacturer's instructions about the number of lights allowed on one circuit.

☐ Never string lights on a metallic tree.

☐ Choose a fresh, green tree, trim its base and keep it in plenty of water. If the needles are brown and break off easily, it could be a fire risk.

☐ If you buy an artificial tree, make sure it has been tested for flammability by Underwriters Laboratories (UL).

☐ Always turn off lights before leaving home or going to bed. You'll save money and be safer, too.

☐ Do not use inside lights on the outside. All outside lighting equipment, including lights, cords and plugs, should be waterproof and made for outdoor use. Also, hang sockets downward and don't leave a socket empty.

☐ When hanging lights on the rooftop or in tall trees outdoors, stay clear of electrical lines.

Party dress codes change if co-workers are present

NEW YORK (AP) - The most common engagement today's working women are obligated to attend, whether during the rush of the holiday season or at other more socially sane times, is the cocktail party or business dinner.

And rare is the woman who can leave the office to go home and freshen up first.

"I consider myself to be typical of today's executive who plays a variety of roles, both professionally and personally," says fashion designer Ann Lawrence. "The after-work obligations co-mingle these roles. It's not unusual for me to have to attend either an opening or industry cocktail party."

Lawrence says a black suit may be the safest bet for a cocktail party, but "it surely isn't the most innovative or exciting way to dress. I tend to wear a dress which I had on during the day, or one that I brought to the office."

"Accessories and shoes are a great way to transform your office attire to evening attire. If it is a dressier affair, perhaps a jewel tone paisley cocktail dress that's covered up on top but with a peplum or tiered flounce for a little pizzazz."

Suits seem to work best for dinner meetings, but not your boardroom blue or basic black. Rather, try a pattern such as a check that is softly tailored with velvet epaulets. Change from a workday silk shirt into a chiffon tee or camisole.

"One of my favorite styles to do business in after work," says Lawrence, "is the suited dress. It allows you diversity and flexibility."

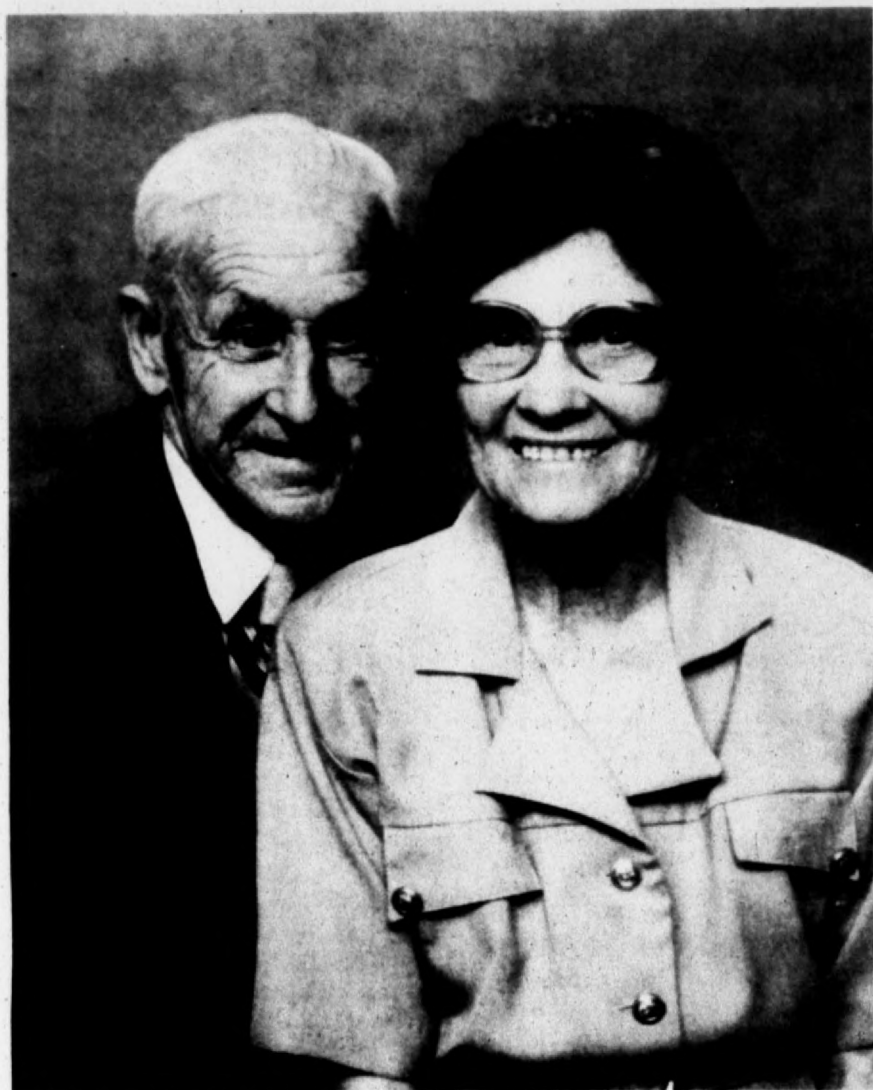

The optimum situation is one in which you have time to go home before going out. Black-tie and formal functions tend to fit into this category because they usually don't begin until after eight.

"If it is an affair during the week, I tend to wear a short, flirty party dress because it lifts the spirits and gives me a lot of energy," says Lawrence.

"For a black-tie dance, I might opt for a velvet skirt and beaded evening jacket, or a formal dinner suit, or a long strapless gown with short dinner jacket."

She says the rules are somewhat different for a black-tie function if co-workers are attending. "A ball gown works best when there is dancing. Another option is a dress with lots of back interest because it's not too revealing, but it allows you to show off a little."

Her formula for eveningwear, whether it's for a strictly fun event or for business, is to feel confident in what you are wearing.

Delta Xi Chapter members meet Dec. 4

Scholarship opportunities for society members were the topic of the regular monthly meeting of Delta Xi Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma Society held at the Community Center Monday evening, Dec. 4.

Patsy Giles, scholarship chairman, and Murlene Streun, World Fellowship chairman, were program leaders. They were assisted by Martha Layman, chapter treasurer. Each member of Delta Xi contributes to the chapter scholarship fund from which local, state and international scholarships are endowed.

Delta Kappa Gamma members are eligible to receive scholarship assistance in pursuing degrees beyond the level of a masters, and the World Fellowship Fund assists women from countries all over the world to come to the United States for advanced study in their chosen fields of teaching expertise.

The chapter collect was led by Louise Witkowski, and Carol McGilvary shared visions which have led her through her life as a public school teacher. She is now a media specialist at Hereford High School.

Karen White, achievement awards chairman, recognized Eloise McDougal for her direction of the chapter's initiatives as well as for her being chosen as president of the Church Women United of Texas organization.

Bera Boyd led the group in the singing of Christmas songs with Joan Latham playing the piano.

Chapter members brought a large collection of staple foods to be given to some needy group for Christmas, and the chapter voted to buy meat, milk, and other perishables to add to the food supplied.

A Christmas motif was displayed on the refreshment table from which a wide variety of holiday finger foods was served, along with coffee and almond tea.

Hostesses for the social hour were Betty Volkmann, chairman; and Billie Birdwell, Alta Mae Higgins, Pat Montgomery, Deloris Phipps and Wanda Stanley.

Members present for the meeting were: Alice Christman, Leta Kaul, Margaret Bell, Birdwell, Boyd, Wana Brewer, Nina Brown, Dorothy Brownlow, Doris Bryant, Betty Jo Carlson, Ann Cummings, Mary Dziuk, Dolores Foster, Giles, Higgins, Sidney Kerr, Layman, Marilyn Leasure, DeeAnn Matthews, McDougal, McGilvary, Julia McNaney, Betty Mercer, Lois Miller, Montgomery, Ruby Mulkey, Phipps, Judy Phipps, Audrey Powell, Fay Reeve, Rose Mary Shook, Pat Sinnacher, Streun, Marie Stringer, Dorothy Szydoski, Volkmann, White, Witkowski and Betty Sue Worthan.

New members who were initiated at the chapter's November meeting and present were: Brenda Campbell, Virginia Jackson, Virginia McWhorter, Janie Rendon, Sarah Lawson, Margot Sims, Latham and Nanette Ashby.

Delta Kappa Gamma is an international honor society for women educators.

MUSCLE DISORDERS

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) - Scientists at the University of Rochester are studying whether ultrasound can help detect muscle disorders.

While "fresh" muscle is consistent in the way it reflects high-frequency sound that is above the range of human hearing, fatigued muscle displays differences. Relaxed muscle that is fatigued reflects ultrasound differently from contracted muscle that is fatigued.

Video makes nice gift for kids

The war on drugs has reached the preschool battleground.

A videotape called "Just Say No," designed for 3-to-6-year-olds, is being offered by Connor Toy to go along with its Video Smarts interactive computer.

The 30-minute video warns children against the dangers of drugs, alcohol and cigarettes, fire, water and strangers, says Connor Toy president Dennis Perry.

"Parents shouldn't wait until the child has received negative exposure before beginning preventative education," says Dr. Harry Haroutunian, family practitioner and clinical instructor for Boston University and Albany Medical College. "Few parents wait until their child is burned by fire to warn that it is dangerous."

Christmas tea planned

The Loyal Baptist Women W.M.U. group of the First Baptist Church meet in Fellowship Hall Wednesday with Frances Crume announcing the Christmas Tea. The event will be held at the home of Helen Eades Sunday at 2:30-4 p.m.

Eunice Boyer played Christmas carols as the group gathered for a luncheon and meeting with Bonnie Sublett, president, presiding.

Grace Covington read the minutes and prayer concerns were voiced. Costaline Lee, mission action chairman, took the Seamon's offering and reminded everyone of gifts for the gift carts for Golden Plains Care Center and King's Manor Methodist Home.

Marie Stringer had charge of the mission study program, a mission journey of a woman played by Clovis Seago. She carried on an imaginary telephone conversation with two missionary ladies in Africa played by Marie Stringer and Lillie Stagner.

The prayer calendar was given by Thelma Auten.

Hostesses, Jenny Terrell and Eades, served refreshments to the following members: Boyer, Margaret Young, Stringer, Seago, Sublett, Donnie Owen, Ella Caudel, Ella Oglesby, Stagner, Leatrus Clark, Grace Covington, Lee, Gladys Miller, Vernise Parsons, Frances Crume, Auten, Jewel Hargrave, Louise Kinsey, and guests, Kay Cooper, Brian Cooper and Rev. Ron Cook.

The Efe, descendants of the ancient Africans known to outsiders as Pygmies, firmly believe that white people eat black people and find children especially appetizing.

HAVE FUN at the Movies

EXCELLENT GOOD FAIR POOR DON'T WASTE MONEY

STEEL MAGNOLIAS: Starring Sally Field, Dolly Parton, Shirley MacLaine, Daryl Hannah, Olympia Dukakis, Julia Roberts, and directed by Herbert Ross, will be a big hit with audiences and a resounding commercial success.

The film has an excellent cast of talented actors, loaded with charisma, who seem to understand and respect each others place in the scheme of things.

The story is liberally peppered with Neil Simon-like one-liners guaranteed to produce belly laughs and more than enough heart-tugging scenes to have you pulling out the Kleenex. Given a better director the film could have produced great ensemble acting.

The bittersweet comedy is based on Natchitoches, Louisiana native Robert Harling's successful play about small-town southern women whose friendship and loyalty buoy them through the cycles of life, marriage, birth and death.

However, Herbert Ross misses the core of the story. He fails to understand the women in Steel Magnolias. Ross has the women use toughness and crudity to show strength, and clever quips to show support, stripping them of their southernness and femininity.

The stage play had an all-female cast and only one set, the town beauty parlor. The movie "opens up" and moves around town to include the men only talked about in the play. The citizens of Natchitoches, Louisiana (where it was filmed) are used in background and crowd scenes.

Almost none of the historic town's beauty and charm is captured on film. Worse still, the townspeople are treated as clowns and buffoons in a way that borders on the grotesque. There are just too many ridiculous, amateurish and badly played local crowd and color scenes.

Left alone, the cast, one-to-one and without exception, turn in peerless performances. The scenes between Sally Field and Julie Roberts, who play mother and daughter, are especially poignant. Shirley MacLaine creates a truly believable "steel magnolia", then expertly weaves her character into play.

The true-life story, based on Robert Harling's sister's life and then death from diabetes, will touch your heart. Too bad the "steel magnolias" didn't have a director who knew how to touch their hearts. Rated PG.

PLACES IN THE HEART: (1984) With John Malkovich. This great film is based on writer-director Robert Benton's childhood memories in Waxahachie, Texas. Sally Field plays Edna Spalding, a mother of two who is suddenly widowed and immediately pressured by the bank to sell her home. But Edna vows, despite all supposed logic, to make it on her own. The result is a movie celebrating the human spirit and Sally Field's finest film performance. Rated PG for suggested sex, violence profanity.

Roseanne Barr gets revenge

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

"She-Devil" is a revenge movie without Sly, Clint, Arnold or Chuck. This time it's Roseanne Barr who shows those vengeful gents the kind of hell that a scorned woman can administer.

Barr is the dull, slovenly, accident-prone wife of Ed Begley Jr., an ambitious New York accountant with amazing tolerance for her many failings. They include running their suburban home like a city slum and mismanaging their two overbearing children.

When the couple attends a gallery opening in Manhattan, he falls into the clutches of a man-hungry, self-adoring writer of romance novels, Meryl Streep.

Barr slowly realizes that her husband has been led astray. She boils with Mephistophelean wrath, vowing to rob him of everything he holds dear: his family life, his career, his new love, his freedom. Her methods are as far-fetched as they are hilarious.

Full-out farce such as "She-Devil" requires a feathery directorial touch. Susan Seidelman's direction is on target most of the way, maintaining a whirlwind pace that forestalls suspension of belief. The script by Mark R. Burns and Barry Strugatz is cleverly constructed, though some of the comedy is misdirected (for example, spoofing senility in a retirement sanitarium).

The movie is based on the novel "The Life and Loves of a She-Devil," by Fay Weldon. Set in Britain, the novel was made into a critically acclaimed TV-miniseries telecast by PBS.

The big news in "She-Devil" is Streep's emergence as a world-class comedy actress. She attacks the role of the vain, foolish novelist with a gusto that invites comparison to the great Lucille Ball. Streep is delicious in her cunning calculation and convulsively funny when her champagne world loses its fizz.

Another revelation is Ed Begley Jr., heretofore known for expert character roles in films ("The Accidental Tourist") and as the self-centered doctor of television's "St. Elsewhere." Tall and clunky with unruly straw-colored hair, he is the ideal foil for the marvelous Streep.

"She-Devil" marks Barr's film debut following her rapid rise as a standup comedian and television star. Alas, she seems uneasy and tentative in her role as the vindictive wife, as if wondering where the jokes are. With more expert handling, she can undoubtedly register on the big screen.

The Orion release is rated PG-13, for mild swearing and suggestive situations. Running time: 99 minutes.

Motion Picture Association of America rating definition:

PG-13 - Special parental guidance strongly suggested for children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for young children.

No big-buck movie, 'True Love' rates high

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

While big-buck movies crowd into the nation's theaters during the holiday season, a number of smaller, worthy films face the danger of being pushed out of the marketplace.

Among them: "Henry V," a daring new version by Kenneth Branagh; "Staying Together," Lee Grant's warm study of a small town family in trouble; "My Left Foot," an inspiring tale of human survival with an electrifying performance by Daniel Day-Lewis; "Drugstore Cowboy," grownup Matt Dillon in a highly original film about druggies in 1970 Portland, Ore.

Add to the list "True Love." Amazingly, it was filmed for less than $1 million. But "True Love" has far more heart and humanity than today's bloated sequels and star ego trips - notably the noxious "Harlem Nights."

The movie contains no recognizable names or faces. Nor does it boast a high concept plot. Its fascination lies in its high-spirited acting and verisimilitude to Italian-American life in the Bronx.

Director Nancy Savoca and her husband and co-producer, Richard Guay, have written a script centering on the rituals of a traditional wedding. The bride (Annabella Sciorra) frets over why she is marrying Michael (Ron Eldard). He is unreliable, immature and selfish.

His qualms are just as severe. He enjoys his life of freedom, of being able to hang out with the boys whenever he wants. Why take on the hassle and responsibility of marriage?

"True Love" is getting a desultory release by MGM-UA and deserves time to find its audience.

Rated R for language. Running time: 1 hour, 4 minutes.

Sunday's Home of the Week features full sun deck

Perfect Rectangular Design
Affords Economical Construction

BY W.D. FARMER, A.I.B.D.

A central great room extends from the full width front porch to the full width sun deck, forming a hub for the convenience of this economy plan. Two bedrooms are isolated to the right, serviced by a central full bath and the master bedroom is private to the left, serviced by a full bath. The bath for daytime use is from a central hall included in the two bedroom wing.

The plan features a compact corridor style kitchen with an unusual amount of cabinet space and the washer and dryer will both fit the space provided in the corner of the kitchen.

An optional breakfast area is shown for those that wish to expand the plan slightly. In that instance, the original laundry area becomes a full pantry and the laundry space is provided from the breakfast area.

The typical country rustic exterior is highlighted by a full front porch, horizontal wood siding, three dormer windows and a shed and gable roof design.

The plan is Number 189. It includes either 1,190 or 1,309 square feet of heated area. All W.D.

Farmer plans include special construction details for energy efficiency and are drawn to meet FHA and VA requirements. For further information write to W.D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

Here's the answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. - There is a considerable amount of mildew on the siding at the bottom of one side of our house. The mildew is only on the bottom pieces of wood. What could be causing this, especially that it is only in this one spot?

A. - Mildew sometimes occurs only at the bottom of a house or where the siding meets the concrete foundation or masonry. Usually it is because part of the house is shaded by shrubbery. When rain takes place, the shrubbery keeps the wood wet, which fosters mildew. The shrubbery also blocks out the sun. Do something about eliminating the shrubbery or, at the very least, trimming it so the sun's rays can get through. When mildew occurs, it is because of dampness, warmth, lack of ventilation, dirt and a lack of light.

You can solve your storage problems by using shelves

By READER'S DIGEST
For AP Newsfeatures
Most homeowners and apartment dwellers have an ever-increasing need to store away clutter—a need that can often be met with shelves.

Fortunately, almost every dwelling has overlooked space where shelves can be installed—under stairs, along walls in the garage, in attic window wells and behind attic knee walls, above and below kitchen wall cabinets and on the backs of doors.

Here are tips for choosing the shelving material best for your needs.

The type of material you choose—wood, plywood, particle board—will depend on the load the shelf will hold as well as on esthetic considerations. Remember that shelf loads most likely will continue to increase—shelves built to hold a few magazines may have to bear the load of growing stacks.

When buying softwood board lumber, the size you ask for isn't the size you'll get. For example, a 1-by-8 really measures 3/4-inch-thick by 7 1/4 inches. A board's length, however, is always exact.

Most boards come in 8-foot lengths. You can get longer pieces in even-numbered feet. For an additional charge, dealers will usually cut boards to any length and width you order.

Most dealers carry one or two grades of "select" or "clear" lumber—boards with few or no knots or other defects. Use such wood for highly visible shelves that will receive a natural finish. Consider a less expensive and knottier "common" grade when you're planning to paint or put the boards in the back of a closet.

Buy from a dealer who'll let you inspect the lumber. Sight along a board's edges to make sure it's straight.

Nominal 1-inch lumber is the strongest commonly available material for shelving, and it's excellent for shelves less than a foot deep. When making shelves from lumber, keep in mind that a wide board tends to "cup"—curl up at the sides. Check its growth rings and install it so that its heart side, the side that was closest to the center of the tree, faces upward. The weight of materials on the shelf will then work against warping.

Plywood is an excellent and very economical shelving material. Plywood is usually sold in sheets measuring 4 feet by 8 feet. A 3/4-inch thickness is best for shelving. Plywood sheets are graded from A to D, depending mainly on how well patches (used to fix knots and other blemishes on front and back surfaces) match the original grain.

For most uses, a good choice is A-B (good front, fairly good back). For rough storage, you'll save by using a sheet with a C-plugged face (moderate quality with knotholes filled or plugged). At the other extreme, a top-quality project may deserve plywood faced with a special flawless N grade (no knots) softwood surface—or with a hardwood veneer such as birch.

If the shelves will be exposed to water—in a kitchen, for example—buy exterior plywood made with waterproof glues.

Most lumber dealers will cut plywood to size. For economy, use shelf widths that divide easily into a sheet's 48-by-96-inch dimensions: 8, 12, 16, 24 and 32 inches. Supply exact measurements and indicate the direction of each piece's surface grain.

For strength and looks, you'll usually want the surface grain to run along a shelf's length.

For utility shelving, an inexpensive substitute is 3/4-inch particleboard, which comes in sheets like plywood. Reserve this somewhat weaker and less rigid material for light loads, or else support it at close intervals.

For quick shelving, prefinished shelves are a great convenience. Most have cores of particleboard, so use them for light loads or support them at close intervals.

One play could run you clear of home buying interference.

Financing, Down Payments, Price negotiations. Inspections. All obstacles that could block you from buying a home.

But one move could get you right through that red tape. A call to an experienced real estate agent.

An expert agent can coach you smoothly through the entire home buying process. From using the sophisticated multiple listing service to find the home that fits your needs and your budget. To tackling financing options. Setting up and monitoring inspections. Negotiating price. And even maneuvering you through closing.

So when you need a skilled teammate, get someone who really knows the housing field—a real estate agent.

Read The Hereford Brand for more information about qualified agents. Every day, the real estate classifieds list many properties and agents. And on Sundays the housing section examines the latest market trends and home buying opportunities.

Getting the right coaching now could mean the difference between confusion and closing.
