Hermleigh, Hobbs ISD plan discussion slated

The consolidation of the two rural school districts which serve youngsters in Hermleigh and Hobbs in Fisher County is now being eyed by school officials for both.

In line with this, taxpayers, parents and school children living within the boundaries of the two districts are asked to attend a meeting Tuesday at the school auditorium in Hobbs.

The meeting is to begin at 7 p.m. Hobbs is located some 20 miles from Hermleigh.

The meeting is designed "for information and to show them the (school) plant," said Hermleigh Superintendent Jerry Church.

Church stressed the "information" aspect of the meeting. "We just want to get representatives from both communities to consider the possibility," he said.

He noted that any final decision regarding consolidation requires a referendum vote involving residents of both school districts. In addition, this vote would have to be passed by both communities.

The Hobbs ISD currently offers classes for students grades K-6. An estimated 30 students attend these classes, Church said. Hobbs students attend grades 7-12 at Roby.

He noted the Hobbs district has a healthy tax base due to oil production, but has experienced declining student numbers the past few years.

The possibility of consolidation there is considered also "to maintain a small school environment" for students at both, Church noted.

Both Church and M.B. Maxwell, superintendent for the Hobbs ISD, will attend Tuesday's meeting. Members of both school boards are expected also.

"Hopefully, we'll see if there is enough interest to pursue consolidation," Church said Monday.

Kidnappers agree to free 2 captives

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — The kidnappers of an American couple reportedly agreed today to free the newlyweds, officials said, hours after extending a deadline to kill the pair unless $2 million in gold was delivered.

"It appears they would be released, but we don't know the time or place," said Roy L. Whitaker, U.S. vice consul in Madras, capital of India's Tamil Nadu state.

At first, the Tamil separatist kidnappers had set a deadline for noon today (2:30 a.m. EDT) to kill Stanley Allen, and vowed to kill his wife, Mary Elizabeth, six hours later if the Sri Lankan government did not meet the demands. The kidnappers claim the couple spied for the CIA.

Tamil Nadu state officials said they persuaded Tamil separatists, arrested in a roundup Sunday, to telephone Jaffna, Sri Lanka, where the Americans were kidnapped Thursday night, and order fellow secessionists to release the pair.

"It was an order, and they obeyed," said K. Mohandas, Inspector-General of Crime and Intelligence. Earlier, he said an informant reported the kidnappers were looking for a face-saving way out.

State Chief Secretary K. Chockalingam said: "There are indications they would be released in a matter of hours."

Tamil Nadu authorities said 16 Sri Lankan separatists were rounded up for questioning. Two of the detained rebels called Jaffna, Mohandas said.

The kidnappers' notes demanded that the ransom be paid through the government of Tamil Nadu, where Tamil terrorists reportedly train recruits in their drive to win independence for the Tamils of Sri Lanka, a minority ethnic group there.

Claiming to belong to the People's Liberation Army, the kidnappers accused their victims of working for the CIA. The newlyweds, from Columbus, Ohio, had recently moved to Jaffna, where he worked on water projects funded by the U.S.

Party offers 'planks'

Scurry County Republicans approved a mixed bag of resolutions Saturday — ranging from opposition to a nuclear freeze to calling for the resignation of Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox.

The action was part of county convention proceedings, which included the election of delegates to attend the state Republican Convention slated in Fort Worth June 15-16.

The seven delegates chosen were Roy Baze, Gene and Mary Dulaney, Mary Strelecki, Gene Bullard, John Thomas and Bill Jones.

In addition, seven alternates were chosen also. They are Jean Geleska Baze, Shirley Jones, Mike Reed, R.D. McKenzie, Henry and Virginia Clark and Donald Burke.

The local party also okayed a 14-item resolution list which will be taken to the state convention and proposed as planks for the statewide platform.

Resolutions approved were:

—To support President Reagan.

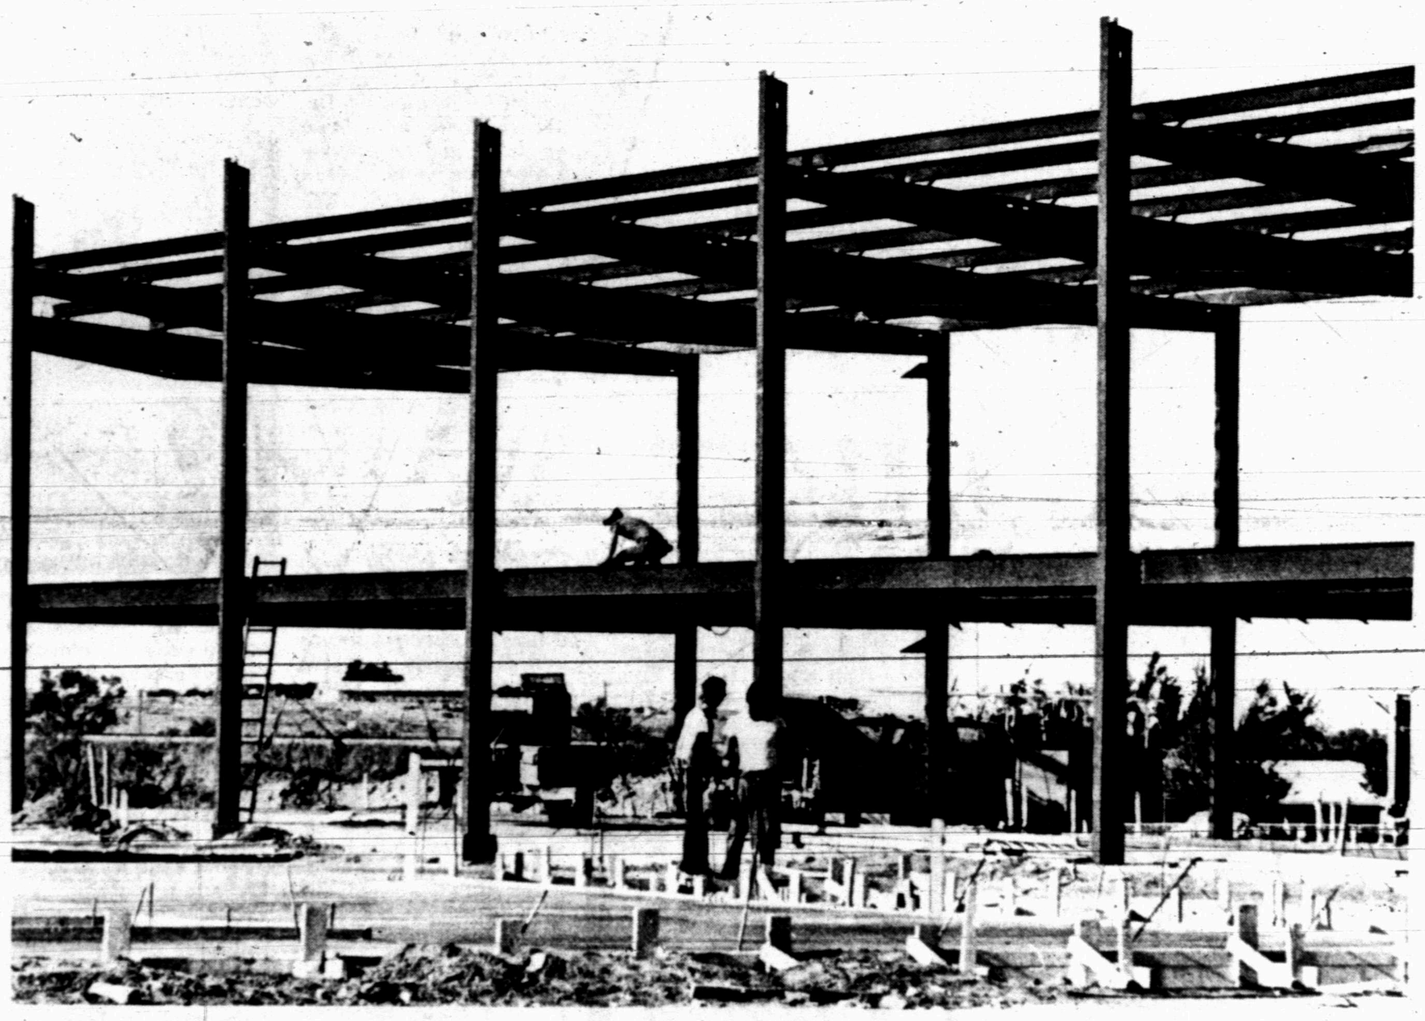

—To support a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced Federal budget by reducing government spending.

—To support a continued effort to upgrade America's defense posture "at least to the point of parity" with the Soviet Union.

—To support the policies of Reagan, particularly his policies in Central America.

—To support efforts to

In Philippine vote...

Marcos' prestige said at stake

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Despite a boycott and two bloody shootouts, Filipinos crowded polling places today to elect a National Assembly in the first major test of President Ferdinand E. Marcos' strength since the Benigno Aquino assassination.

The latest violence came in a communist rebel ambush that killed 17 soldiers north of Manila and a shootout that killed nine people on the central Philippines island of Panay, both on election eve.

Twenty-five million citizens were eligible to choose from among some 1,000 candidates to fill 183 seats in the assembly.

Marcos' party now holds all but a dozen seats, and he said he would be surprised if his opponents won more than 30. His wife, Imelda, predicted a "clean sweep" for the Marcoses' New Society Movement in metropolitan Manila, where she has campaigned for 21 government candidates.

The government's nearly 300,000 soldiers and police were placed on special alert after officials said there were rebel plans to disrupt the voting in this 7,100-island nation of 51 million people.

Rebels ambushed and killed two officers and 15 soldiers late Sunday in Ifugao province, 150 miles north of Manila. A military report said the soldiers were operating a checkpoint to arrest people with firearms.

The military said the nine people were killed on Panay, 270 miles south of Manila, when men from two jeeps began shooting at each other on a bridge. The leader of one group was identified as reelection candidate Arturo Pacificado, who escaped injury.

Two other candidates were killed during the campaign, which started March 27, and more than 30 other deaths were blamed directly on the election.

More than 300 other killings were blamed on communist rebels, who the military said had stepped up activity and threatened to disrupt the polls.

Opponents were counting on discontent with Marcos' rule to give them long-denied power, but they were divided.

Leader group training officially ends Tuesday

The initial class for Century II: Leadership Scurry County will complete its training program Tuesday.

The 13 class members will be given certificates of completion in informal ceremonies planned at 5 p.m. at the chamber of commerce office.

The classes began last November. At the first meeting, the class received a background history of the county.

In subsequent monthly meetings, they toured facilities and talked with local officials related to the city, Scurry County, Cogdell Memorial Hospital, the public schools and college, SACROC and the Sun gas plant.

On May 3, the class toured agricultural facilities here to include the Von Roeder Seed Farm; the W.C. Hart farm; Collier's Dairy; the James Beaver cotton farm; the Bill Eiland horse ranch; and the Diamond M Ranch cattle operation.

Thirteen of the original 15 class members will receive certificates of completion. Two members of the class, Kami Greif and Bruce Erratt, have since moved from the city.

LULAC nixes Hance stance

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Meeting in U.S. Senate candidate Kent Hance's home town, the League of United Latin American Citizens state convention chastised Hance for his claims that illegal aliens take jobs from U.S. citizens and abuse the welfare system.

Hance's late blitz of television commercials saying he opposed amnesty for undocumented workers was credited with propelling the Lubbock congressman into a surprising first-place finish in a close three-man race for the Democratic nomination.

HOUSTON (AP) — Police in Houston and Dallas have fingerprinted more than 80,000 children during the past year in a program designed to help identify children in the event they are missing or kidnapped.

About 30,000 Houston area children and infants were fingerprinted during the past eight months in shopping malls, churches and schools, police said.

"The purpose of it is to identify the child," said Houston Police Sgt. S.R. Gregg, who works in the missing persons section of the juvenile division. "If the child isn't speaking to you, that's the problem."

Officers — or others who have been trained — record children's prints on cards that are given to their parents.

Lubbock woman hurt after county accident

A Lubbock woman was taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital by Aid Ambulance-Snyder following a one-vehicle traffic accident Friday about one mile north of Hermleigh.

The accident occurred around 4 p.m.

According to investigating Department of Public Safety troopers, Juanita Williams was driving her 1982 Oldsmobile north bound on U.S. Highway 84 when she apparently lost control and ran off the road and into a plowed field.

Her vehicle went over a culvert before stopping and troopers report she was suffering neck pain when taken to the local hospital.

She was transferred to West Texas Hospital in Lubbock later Friday evening and was listed in good condition there Saturday morning.

May Day offers something for all

May is traditionally the month is which Texas pays special tribute to its older citizens, and county judge Preston Wilson has officially proclaimed May as senior citizens month locally.

"We need the invaluable leadership these older Texans can contribute. We must encourage them to remain active so that our state and county can continue to benefit from their wisdom, acquired through many years of experience..."

A highlight of Senior Citizens Month will be the Senior Center's May Day, set May 19 in the Scurry County coliseum. May Day is the center's principal fund raising project and community residents of all ages are invited to attend.

Crime less widespread in 1983 report says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robbery, aggravated assault and burglary were dramatically less widespread in 1983 as 7 percent fewer U.S. households were touched by crime than the year before, the Justice Department says.

The department's Bureau of Justice Statistics reported Sunday that 27 percent of U.S. households, or 23.6 million of the total 86.1 million households, suffered one or more crimes during the year.

In 1982, nearly 25 million households out of a total of 85.2 million, or 29 percent, were touched by crime.

Oswald: "Sam Stayman, for whom the Stayman convention is named, has the strongest desire to win of anyone I have known. He also plays well enough that his wins are many. He is responsible for the word 'Staymanesque'. A Staymanesque bid or play is one that would not occur to most experts but that usually works for Sam."

Jim: "I know one 81-year-old man whose desire to win far exceeds Sam's and who acts like a man still under 30 when he plays in a major tournament."

Oswald: "Thanks. Here is an example of Staymanesque. The bidding was Staymanesque and a trifle too much, but Stayman never underbids. He won the spade lead with dummy's ace and cashed his K-Q of spades to discard one of dummy's clubs. East pitched a diamond on the third spade. Then South went after hearts. When East showed out on the third round, South knew that West had started with length in both majors and could not stop a minor suit."

Jim: "There is a simple way to play the hand now. Squeezed by the third heart lead, East had to unguard one minor suit jack. South can simply try one of the minors and if the jack doesn't drop, the other jack will have to drop."

Oswald: "Sam found a Staymanesque play. He cashed his ace and king of diamonds. When West followed twice, Sam knew that West held no more than one club. So he led a club to dummy's queen and returned the 10 for a sure-thing finesse. Then he cashed his king of clubs and made the last two tricks with dummy's queen of diamonds and ace of clubs."

Altrurian Daughters Club met May 9 for the Spring Luncheon that traditionally closes the club year. As a special added treat the members were guests of the Scurry County Historical Committee for a tour of the Cornelius-Dodson House.

Greeting the tour at the door were Lois Bartels and June McGlaun while Jean Everett served refreshments.

The party then assembled in the home of Beth Teal. She was assisted by hostesses, Lee Falls, Nina Nesbitt and Mrs. McGlaun. Twenty members and three guests, Mmes. Everett and Bartels and Sue Mize were present.

Betty Youngkin, president, conducted the business meeting. She was presented an appreciation gift for her leadership throughout the past two years.

The new club year will begin in September with Doris Beaver as president.

Patient released after alleged rape incident

AUSTIN (AP) — Austin State Hospital officials who repeatedly discharged a mental patient after he allegedly raped female patients have released him to a halfway house where he lives unrestricted, the Austin American-Statesman reported.

The family of one of the four alleged victims said she was so distressed by the assault that she killed herself several months later.

The man was discharged after each alleged rape, hospital workers said. Hospital officials left the decision whether to file criminal charges up to the mentally ill women, the Austin American-Statesman said Sunday.

Hospital employees and family members said no charges were filed, however, because the patients were mentally incompetent and sometimes afraid of the necessary physical examinations.

Austin police were informed of only one of the four rapes, according to police records.

The man's mother said he is free to come and go from the Houston halfway house as he pleases, even though, she said, he is so dangerous that he should be sent to the Rusk State Hospital where there is a maximum-security unit for mentally ill patients.

She said hospital officials told her that "he had not committed a crime or anything bad enough to go to Rusk. ..." She said she was not aware of the rapes, but hospital officials told her that "he was harassing some of the females."

ASTRO-GRAPH

Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

May 15, 1984

This coming year you will weed out of your life several unproductive relationships. These persons who caused you heartaches or headaches be replaced by more understanding friends.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Thoughtless comments could provoke problems today in the valued relationship. Weigh your words carefully so you won't have to defend them. The areas in which you'll be the luckiest in the year ahead are revealed in your Astro-Graph predictions for the coming year. To get yours, mail $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You'll run the risk of making errors where your work is concerned today if your mind is not on your tasks. Concentration is a must.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't let a crafty acquaintance manipulate your thinking today by telling you half-truths about someone you're fond of. Check the facts yourself.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be sure you're right and can back up everything when dealing with the boss today. He or she won't buy alibis or excuses.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your mental processes may be operating on low voltage today. If there is something important that you have to learn, make notes rather than rely on your memory.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If shopping today, carefully examine merchandise before making a purchase. Also, double-check the sales slip for possible errors.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be selective of the companions with whom you choose to pal around. If you associate with one who doesn't share your likes, today could be a "bummer."

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Co-workers must be handled with kid gloves today. If you have to contend with one who is disagreeable, it's best to walk away rather than to start a ruckus.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If your peers are gossiping today about a pal who isn't present, it's best not to participate. When the victim learns what's been said, you'd be blamed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Normally you're not intimidated by challenge, but today you may do more talking about what you intend to do rather than actually accomplishing it.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be attentive when knowledgeable persons speak today. Valuable information could go over your head if you do more talking than listening.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Continue to be cautious where your finances are concerned. Also, don't do business today with anyone who has taken advantage of you previously.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Osteoporosis, arthritis

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm a 73-year-old with osteoporosis. I had two fractured vertebrae that have immobilized me. I also have arthritis all over my body and a sciatic problem.

How is osteoporosis different from osteoarthritis?

DEAR READER — "Osteo" means bone and "porosis" means porous; you have "porous bones." You lose calcium from the bones, which lose their strength and size. As a result, they break easily. A high percentage of hip and other fractures in people older than 50 occur because the person has osteoporosis.

A young person may fall from a considerable height and it may not hurt, but an older person may miss his footing, stumble and fall, and end up with a broken hip. The difference is in brittle bones.

As the bones soften and decrease in size the involved vertebrae begin to topple like a stack of dominoes. This results in the hump in the back called the dowager's or buffalo hump.

Osteoarthritis is a different process. It's not associated with loss of calcium. Rather, the weight bearing joints begin to wear, resulting in the term "wear-and-tear" arthritis. As new bone forms in areas of wear it may form spurs. Some people think osteoarthritis is associated with too much calcium, but that's not true. Taking calcium is important to control or prevent osteoporosis and it doesn't cause osteoarthritis.

Since both problems occur in people as they get older, it's not unusual for a person to have both wear-and-tear osteoarthritis and porous bones or osteoporosis.

To give you more information on osteoporosis and how to prevent and treat it, I'm sending you the Health Letter 6-10, Osteoporosis: Bone Softening. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Please tell me what causes boils. I get them often, in my groin or underneath my breasts or even under my arms. Is there anthing I can do to help prevent them? They're very painful.

DEAR READER — They're caused by bacteria called staphylococci. Usually they gain entrance to the skin through a hair follicle.

If you have frequent abscesses (boils) you should see your doctor. Sometimes people who are diabetics are more prone to these problems. And if you have staphylococci on your skin that are causing this problem, your doctor may want you to use an antiseptic on your skin.

Hexachlorophene is an effective antiseptic that is particularly useful in killing staphylococci. As an adult you could use it safely, although some questions have been raised about its use in infants. If you used it regularly for a period of time, it should do a lot to remove the problem.

U.S. President Roosevelt, British Prime Minister Churchill and Russia's Premier Stalin concluded a meeting in Tehran Dec. 1, 1943. The Allied leaders reached agreement on the scope and the timing of operations to smash the German armies in World War II. They also planned a peace era in which all nations would be invited to join a world family of democratic nations.

Paul Harvey

When the democrats convene in San Francisco, Jesse Jackson and his entourage will be assigned to convenient hotels; they will get all the credentials they need.

"We must not be seen as pandering to him," says one party official, "but neither dare we risk offending him. He is an ally and we need him."

Should neither Mondale nor Hart win on the first ballot, Jesse Jackson with his potentially decisive 300-plus delegates could demand and get just about anything.

He could be the kingmaker.

If Mondale is able to win the nomination on the first ballot, as now appears likely, Jackson would still have enough clout to influence the party platform and rules.

He has now promised that he will not run separately from his party but that promise could be rescinded should he feel ignored. Obviously, the party without his constituency would be gelded.

If he goes too far — if he goes to the mat with fellow Democrats over tougher enforcement of the Voting Rights Act--he could jeoparadize Democrats' chances in nine southern states.

Traditional labels do not fit Jesse Jackson's candidacy. To whites he sounds "radical" yet his greatest strength is in the most conservative institutions in black America — the black churches.

Including the Black Muslims.

I've tried to tell you about the Black Muslims.

This is an organization unlike any other race-related organization in the United States.

Ii is all black and closed-shop.

You are white — you need not worry about a Muslim moving in next door to you. HE would not want to!

He preaches and teaches black supremacy. He favors separation of blacks and whites.

Indeed, if the democrats are not nice to Jesse Jackson at their convention, Black Muslim leader Louis Farrakhan threatens to demand a separate territory within the United States for his "Nation of Islam," a territory in which the Muslims would rule themselves.

His support is enabling Jesse Jackson to drive some hard bargains. Already he has secured from Democratic National Chairman Charles Manatt a promise of "more delegates for Jackson." Manatt, after a hard-nosed exchange, pledged to persuade some of the uncommitted delegates to commit themselves to Jackson.

One national official of the Democratic Party said, "Unless we proceed very carefully in our negotiations with Jackson, we could be destroyed.

Jackson has energized blacks as never before. "Now," he says, "is the time to seize power."

Dear Abby

Wife's Sunbathing Provokes Couple's Heated Discussion

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am a 45-year-old professional man. My wife, who is 42, recently had breast implants because after bearing children her breasts were not as full and firm as they once were.

We recently attended a convention in a city where the daytime temperature was in the low 50s with brisk winds. I wore a light topcoat. After attending meetings alone one day, I returned to my hotel early in the afternoon and stopped at the bar to have a drink with a colleague. I was surprised to see my wife in a bikini—"sunbathing," with occasional walks around the outdoor pool, which was in clear view of the bar. She and a well-endowed teenage girl were the only two people at the pool during the 30 to 45 minutes I was in the bar. The two of them attracted a large crowd of spectators from the bar.

Later I asked her if it wasn't a bit chilly to be sunbathing. She became very defensive and accused me of going through a "midlife crisis"!

Abby, after reflecting on the incident, I honestly believe I would have had the same feeling had I been 25. I haven't mentioned it to her again, but do you think it's possible that she is the one going through the midlife crisis?

MIDLIFE CRISIS

DEAR CRISIS: There may be a "crisis," but it has nothing to do with her age or yours. Your wife was proud of her new body and couldn't wait for more appropriate weather to show it off. (She should have.) Her feelings are understandable, but her timing was bad.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter, "Ella," a single parent, has a 3 1/2-year-old daughter. Ella and our granddaughter had been living with us until a few months ago when they moved in with Ella's boyfriend.

Last weekend my husband and I went to pick up our granddaughter for the weekend. As we were leaving, Ella said to the child, "Kiss Daddy goodbye" (referring to her live-in lover).

Our mouths fell open. Needless to say, since they aren't married, we don't think it's right for Ella to tell her child to call this man "Daddy."

I believe Ella has told her neighbors that she and this man are married, and in order to make it appear so, she wants the child to call him "Daddy."

I haven't said anything to Ella yet, and I won't until I hear from you.

UNEASY

DEAR UNEASY: Apparently your daughter is trying to provide her child with at least the trappings of a normal family life, which is to her credit.

Don't judge her. Perhaps it was the child's idea to call him "Daddy." Be kind. And be quiet.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Spring is here and children are already out flying their kites, which scares me very much. I am a lineman for a New York electric company, and every year I see dozens of kites dangling from high-voltage lines. Abby, if people only knew the danger that their children are exposed to when flying kites, they would take the time to find a safer place for them to play.

Last year when I saw a kite entangled in a 115,000-volt transmission line, my heart leaped into my throat. These high-voltage lines are extremely unpredictable where an untested substance such as kite string is concerned. If this string is contaminated with any conductive material (such as metal tracer, dirt or even dampness), a child could easily be electrocuted. I have seen these voltages change ordinary dirt into a molten glasslike substance, so I know the danger is real.

I hope you will print this. It may save some young lives.

KEITH HULETT,
HORSEHEADS, N.Y.

Roadside JP stirring up BBQ, justice

MILLICAN, Texas (AP) — Tommy Lyons, justice of the peace for Brazos County Precinct 1, says he has a hard time getting the county attorney to prosecute offenders in his court.

What prosecutors find objectionable about Lyons' court is its location -- outside the wooden trailer that houses the magistrate's barbecue stand on a busy state thoroughfare.

Lyons spends his days serving barbecue and justice simultaneously at the Boxcar B-B-Q, located at the intersection of state highways 6 and 159 about 12 miles southeast of College Station.

At about 10 a.m. each day he tows the wooden trailer-restaurant to its three-acre business site, where some of the 15,000 motorists using the thoroughfare each day between Navasota and College Station pull over and order from the Boxcar B-B-Q's menu of links, brisket and "pork butt."

The 40-year-old magistrate does much of his court business on the phone, occasionally stopping to stir the sauce or serve a customer.

"Plead guilty to that?" he asks a caller who's worried about his traffic ticket. "All right. The fine is $56. Money order or cashier's check."

Lyons said he's had to dismiss some cases in which motorists demanded a jury trial for their citations and the county attorney refused to show up to prosecute them outdoors.

But his problems with prosecutors may soon end.

Voters nominated Democrat Jim Kuboviak for the county attorney's post in elections earlier this month. Kuboviak, who has no Republican opponent, will automatically become county attorney Jan. 1.

Kuboviak says he won't mind driving to the Boxcar B-B-Q to prosecute offenders.

"If that's where his honorship wants to hold court, I guess we'll do it," Kuboviak says. "If he'll give me a barbecue sandwich, that is."

Lyons was a bit of a pariah to county commissioners last year when he complained that rural peace justices received lower salaries than their "city" counterparts in Bryan and College Station. He told commissioners his $1,680-a-year salary was unfair compared to the $12,600 a year paid to justices in the county's larger communities.

But the commissioners refused to consider a raise.

"And it wasn't right," Lyons said. "The real reason we've had problems out here has been because of the salary.

"I think it's unfair for the rural JP to make so little when we handle most of the traffic cases," he said. "The people in Millican are just as good as the people in Bryan. Hell, we're better."

El Salvador said heavily divided

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — The presidential election, touted by the Reagan administration as the road to democracy and peace for El Salvador, has ended up alienating some of the most powerful elements in the country.

A moderate, Jose Napoleon Duarte of the Christian Democratic Party, will be inaugurated June 1 to be president of this war-torn country for the next five years. He won a a narrow victory May 6 over Roberto d'Aubuisson of the far-right Republican Nationalist Alliance, or ARENA.

Because Duarte is a moderate, the Reagan administration believes Congress will be more willing to provide aid to El Salvador. D'Aubuisson has been linked to right-wing death squad activity, although the charges have not been proved.

The Reagan administration also believes Duarte is the best hope for bringing about a true democracy that will lead leftist rebels to lay down their arms and rejoin mainstream society.

However, when Duarte's victory was made official Friday by the Central Election Council, his authority was immediately rejected by the powerful political right, led by d'Aubuisson. The victory was also rejected by the guerrilla movement, which called the election itself a farce.

Duarte's main base of support comes from the United States, which apparently supported his victory with as much as $2 million in secret funds, and peasant and worker groups who backed Duarte's campaign in exchange for a promised share in his government.

Business, through a communique of the Productive Alliance, which represents most of the private enterprise organizations here, praised the Salvadoran people for turning out to vote, but said the "clear intervention" of the United States made a "grotesque joke" of the electoral process.

The army, the most powerful force in the country, promised to respect the Duarte victory, but large numbers of officers are not happy with the election, according to interviews with 10 commanders.

Many are predicting a new outbreak of violence.

"More than 45 percent of the people in this country voted against Duarte, and they are not going to sit by and watch him govern," a U.S. official here said. "I got a feeling that pretty soon San Salvador is not going to be a healthy town to live in."

Official election results gave Duarte 752,625 votes, or 53.6 percent, to 651,741 votes, or 46.4 percent, for d'Aubuisson.

Election officials nullified 120,000 votes — larger than Duarte's margin of victory — because the ballots were turned in blank, marked wrong or otherwise incorrectly completed.

Grass fire arrest made

A car and grass fire Friday evening has led to the arrest of a 45-year-old Scurry County woman on arson charges.

Taken into custody during the weekend was Dolores Allen. She is currently being held in Scurry County Jail in lieu of $2,000 bond.

She is alleged to have set fire to a 1975 Chevrolet, a vehicle she is listed as the owner of. The vehicle blaze also caused a grass fire on property owned by Bob Head about two miles west of the city.

More mudslides are predicted

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Rising temperatures today threatened to accelerate mountain runoff that sent a mudslide smashing through three homes in central Utah, burying a 70-year-old man and washing another man out of one building and into another.

The mudslide in the Carbon County town of Clear Creek came as temperatures soared Sunday into the mid 80s, melting mountain snow in northern, western and central Utah.

Temperatures in the state were expected to climb into the upper 80s and 90s today, "further aggravating the situation," said National Weather Service forecaster Ed Carle.

Hundreds of volunteers piled sandbags in Salt Lake's Liberty Park on Sunday to contain the runoff, and more workers were being sought today.

A sandbag channel has been built through the park to divert some of the runoff that normally flows under South Street to storm drains.

In Colorado, authorities in Routt County warned residents in downtown Oak Creek that a temporary dam strained by spring runoff was "seeping and about to break" and that the situation was "potentially dangerous."

Sheriff Tim Walsh said no evacuation was ordered as of Sunday night. The dam, believed to hold about 5,000 acre-feet of water, is on Oak Creek just north of the town.

Police in Hazard, Ky., meanwhile were keeping a watchful eye on a 250,000-gallon water tank that could be forced over a mountaintop by a mud slide. "The foundation under the water tank isn't very good," Hazard Mayor Bill Gorman said Sunday, adding that the tank rests on the back of a "massive" slide about 150 feet wide.

In Clear Creek, Utah, Iver. Joel Koski, 70, was killed and his brother-in-law, Richard Sutton, 53, was in good condition with broken ribs after they were caught by a slide in the town of about 50 people 100 miles southwest of Salt Lake City.

Slides had occurred last week, but "they never notified us they had a problem" said Sheriff A. Ross Horsley.

Koski and Frank Helsten were talking outside a home and Sutton was inside. They had been removing belongings from that and other homes.

They heard a loud noise, looked up and saw a tree shaking, Helsten said.

"I've never seen anything like. I ran and when I looked back it was all over with," Helsten said. "I've worked in the mines 35 years and I've seen lots of cave-ins, but this has got them all beat."

Helsten said he ran perpendicular to the slide and got away, while Koski ran in the same direction the slide was moving.

It caught up to him, then smashed into the house, tearing it from its foundation and washing it across the street into a 1940s miners' dormitory.

Sutton was washed out of the home into the dormitory, where Glen Nelson found him buried up to his neck and pulled him out.

Koski's body, under three to four feet of mud, was found in the rubble after about two hours searching, the sheriff said.

Cactus poachers threaten plants

BIG BEND NATIONAL PARK, Texas (AP) — Texas is a paradise for cactus poachers who are lured to the deolate stretches of West Texas by the state's lenient cactus protection laws and the lucrative landscaping market for the desert plants, authorities say.

However, the problem pops up wherever the plants thrive across the southwest, the Dallas Times Herald reported.

In Arizona, giant 100-year-old saguaro cactuses, some of which can be sold for as much as $500, are uprooted and loaded into pickups despite strict protection laws and a special squad of law officers.

In the Franklin Mountains near El Paso, five people recently were arrested and accused of stealing cactuses and other desert plants from state park land. Three 12-ton dump trucks were seized.

The barren stretches of the Mesa De Anguila in Big Bend National Park are a popular ground for poachers, officials said. Conservationists say poachers often haul out hundreds of the plants at a time in burlap bags carried out by burro trains.

Poachers faced up to $1,000 fines and a year in jail, but officials say they're rarely apprehended.

"There are areas of the park where there are hardly any cactuses, and you know they must have been removed," said Robert A. Huggins, chief naturalist at Big Bend National Park.

In 1979, 21 endangered or threatened varieties of cactus were brought under federal protective statutes, and more recently several southwestern states have intensified efforts to stop the illegal flow of cactuses, which are sold to homeowners and collectors throughout the United States, Western Europe and Japan.

The Texas Legislature approved a law in 1983 protecting some cactuses, but critics say it is too weak because it applies only to public land. Since federal law does not apply to transactions within a state, poachers are lured to Texas, officials say.

Texas wins SWC crown

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas, winners once again of the Southwest Conference Baseball Tournament, will advance to the NCAA regional playoffs, but the No. 2-ranked Longhorns may have as many as two SWC teams to keep them company.

Texas defeated a tired Texas A&M team 9-5 for the championship of the SWC tournament Sunday night, after A&M had struggled for 14 innings to eliminate Rice 6-5.

The Rice-A&M game lasted four hours and nine minutes and finished only a little over an hour before the Texas game started.

"Playing a 14-inning game in the afternoon takes a little out of the kids, but they battled them," said A&M Coach Tom Chandler.

Chandler is retiring at the end of the season after 26 years of coaching but Sunday may not have been his last game, because A&M could get an at-large bid to the playoffs. There also was talk of Rice getting an at-large invitation in the field of 34 teams.

"I think our chances of getting an NCAA bid should be pretty good," said A&M pitcher Tom Arrington, who pitched 15-2-3 innings in three days and defeated Rice as a starter 6-2 on Friday and in relief in the extra-inning game. He was the named the tournament's most valuable player.

A&M catcher Steve Johnigan's single knocked in the winning run Sunday off Rice relief pitcher Tim Englund, who had pitched nine innings in beating Arkansas on Saturday.

Coach David Hall of Rice said the NCAA "ought to give us consideration. ... We will have a better record - more wins and fewer losses than A&M - and they took three teams from other conferences last year."

Rice finished with a 41-14 record, the best in the school's history. A&M is 40-18 and Texas, the defending national champion, is 54-12.

Texas won all three of its SWC tournament games, pounding out 35 hits, and getting complete games from all three starters - freshman Greg Swindell and sophomores Wade Phillips and Eric Boudreaux.

Against A&M on Sunday, Boudreaux threw a seven-hitter, walking five and striking out eight.

Texas used home runs by Steve Labay and Dennis Cook and doubles by Rusty Richards and Darren Loy to build a 9-2 lead, which was enough of a cushion to survive a three-run homer by A&M's Rob Swain in the seventh.

Swain had a two-run home run in the ninth against Texas on Saturday, but Texas won easily 15-4. The Longhorns beat Arkansas in their Friday opener 8-1.

Boudreaux shut out A&M in the final two innings with the help of a running catch by Labay in centerfield and a great stop by David Denny at third. With one runner on and the crowd of over 5,000 roaring, Boudreaux struck out Swain for the final out.

Texas got nine hits off starter and loser Phillip Taylor and Jimmy Flowers. A&M's third pitcher, Beje Mahoe, held the Longhorns hitless for two and two-thirds innings.

Baylor, which won the first two years, is the only other team ever to win the tournament in its eight-year history.

Shirley provides drama as Yankees stop Seattle

By The Associated Press

He pitched five innings Sunday against Seattle.

He allowed five hits ...

But when Manager Yogi Berra decided to change pitchers at the start of the sixth inning - "That's enough, Bob," he said. "You're giving me a heart attack," - the left-hander left a winner as Jose Rijo and Dave Righetti preserved the 7-0 shutout of the visiting Mariners.

Elsewhere in the American League it was Kansas City 5, Boston 1; Baltimore 5, Oakland 1; Milwaukee 4, Minnesota 1; and Chicago 8, Texas 1.

Rain washed out California's game at Detroit and the Toronto-Cleveland doubleheader with the Blue Jays and Indians tied 4-4 in the eighth inning of the first game.

Shirley, usually a middle-inning reliever, was pressed into service as an emergency starter because the Yanks had played 16- and 17-inning games Thursday and Friday nights.

Lou Piniella and Roy Smalley had run-scoring singles off Mark Langston in the first inning and the Yanks chased him when they scored three runs in the fourth on RBI singles by Mike O'Berry, Willie Randolph and Don Baylor. Andre Robertson drove in a fifth-inning run with a suicide squeeze bunt and, one inning later, Smalley produced his second run-scoring single.

Royals 5, Red Sox 1

Unlike Shirley, Bud Black of Kansas City had no trouble finding the plate. He struck out eight Boston batters and didn't allow a walk until giving up two in the eighth.

When Black faltered, Dan Quisenberry took over and racked up his ninth save, tops in the league.

Pat Sheridan hit a two-run homer in Kansas City's five-run fifth against Mike Brown.

Orioles 5, A's 1

Wayne Gross and Steve McCatty were long-time teammates with the A's - and before. They're still close friends. But in Gross' first appearance against McCatty, he drilled a single and a homer, driving in all of Baltimore's runs to back Storm Davis' six-hit pitching.

Gross had a a two-run single in the bottom of the second inning and a three-run homer in the fourth.

White Sox 8, Rangers 1

Rookie outfielder Daryl Boston, in his major-league debut, had three hits, drove in two runs and scored twice as the White Sox snapped a two-game losing streak. Jerry Hairston had three RBI for Chicago, and Greg Walker homered.

Britt Burns worked five innings in his first start of the season, allowing five hits and getting relief help from Salome Barojas, Juan Agosto and Al Jones.

Braves nip Pittsburgh in extra innings, 9-8

by The Associated Press

The Atlanta Braves have won eight of their last nine games, and part-time catcher Alex Trevino feels like he's been given a second life.

Trevino, traded from Cincinnati on April 24, hit a two-run double in the bottom of the 10th inning, capping a two-out, three-run rally that gave the Braves a 9-8 victory over Pittsburgh Sunday.

"I feel like I'm just reborn again," Trevino said.

Before the trade, Trevino had not appeared in a game as a catcher, going to bat only six times as a pinch-hitter for the Reds. Since coming to Atlanta, he has caught in seven games and has a .400 batting average with 12 hits in 30 at-bats.

Trevino called the game-winning hit, his first of the season, the biggest hit of his career "because I'm with a winner now, potential World Series champs."

In the rest of the National League, Houston shut out Chicago 1-0, Los Angeles beat New York 5-3, St. Louis downed Cincinnati 6-2, San Francisco edged Montreal 4-3 and Philadelphia clobbered San Diego 8-3.

Trevino's hit came off John Candelaria, making a rare relief appearance for Pittsburgh, and enabled the Braves to come from behind for the second time in the game.

Atlanta tied the score 6-6 with a pair of runs in the ninth against three Pittsburgh relievers, including Rod Scurry, who was making his first appearance since April 5 after coming off drug rehabilitation. Trevino had a single in that rally, but Pittsburgh scored two runs in the top of the 10th to take an 8-6 lead.

Singles by Lee Lacy and Bill Madlock started the inning, and Tony Pena followed with an RBI single. Madlock also scored on the play when Pena was caught in a run-down.

But after two were out in the Braves 10th, Pirates right-hander Don Robinson walked Jerry Royster and Gerald Perry. Candelaria, who started in Friday's 4-2 loss to the Braves, then relieved and gave up an RBI double to Claudell Washington, setting the stage for Trevino.

"That was the toughest loss I ever had as a manager," Pirates skipper Chuck Tanner said. "I never saw anything like it."

Astros 1, Cubs 0

Mike Madden and Vern Ruhle combined to check Chicago on nine hits, and Houston scored its only run off Rick Reuschel in the fourth on a triple by Jerry Mumphrey and Enos Cabell's sacrific fly. Reuschel went the distance, allowing only three hits.

Madden scattered six hits in five innings, aided by two double plays, and Ruhle went the rest of the way for his second save.

Ryne Sandberg of the Cubs singled in the fifth inning to extend his hitting streak to 16 games, longest in the NL this season.

Celtics defeat Knicks; test Milwaukee Tuesday

BOSTON (AP) - If at first you don't succeed, you can try, try again. The New York Knicks, however, won't get another chance to beat the Celtics in Boston.

The Celtics jumped on top quickly and, like the early leader in the other six games of the National Basketball Association playoff series, went on to win Sunday for the fourth straight time at home.

By routing the Knicks 121-104 in the seventh and decisive game, the Celtics earned the right to play host to Milwaukee Tuesday night in the opener of the best-of-seven Eastern Conference final.

Offensively, the Celtics wanted to give the ball to Larry Bird, who ended up with a career playoff-high of 39 points.

"The game plan was to go to Larry and get him started quick," Jones said. "He was going well and we kept going there."

"I was concerned about getting off to a good start because the team that led early had won each game," said Bird. In five of the seven games, including Sunday's, the winning team never trailed.

Bird had 15 points in the first quarter, which ended with Boston ahead 36-26. In the first six games, the team leading after the opening period went on to win.

The Knicks were led by King with 24 points and Bill Cartwright with 19. Robert Parish had 22 for Boston and Dennis Johnson, rebounding from a sore right shoulder that kept him out of the sixth game loss to New York, added 21. But Bird was the key to stopping New York from becoming only the fifth team to win a seven-game series after trailing 2-0.

Boston connected on more than 50 percent of its shots in each of its four victories and less than 50 percent in each of its three losses.

Boston's aggressive defense kept New York's marksmanship at 45.6 percent Sunday.

With the Knicks out of the way after putting up an unexpectedly stiff fight, the Celtics, whose NBA-best 62-20 record was 15 games better than New York, have a score to settle.

In last season's conference semifinal, in which they also played the first two games at home, the Celtics lost all four games to Milwaukee.

Citizens want cops reviewed

HOUSTON (AP) — Officials in the Houston Police Department, which have been contending with a shoot-first reputation since the 1970s, attacked an advisory board's proposals for reducing the number of police-involved shootings.

Two of the Police Advisory Committee's most controversial proposals called for a shooting review board and a standardized weapon for the city's officers, who had the highest rate of shooting civilians in the nation's five largest cities last year.

A final version of the citizens committee report, which is the result of public hearings held in February, will be released next month, The Houston Post reported Sunday.

Among the eight procedural changes proposed in the committee's preliminary report is that a shooting review board with at least one civilian member being named to review incidents in which officers shot civilians.

Police Chief Lee Brown said he opposes the proposed board because he doesn't think review boards resolve a problem. Brown said such a group would weaken his management power and create morale problems in the police department.

Similar boards have been appointed in other cities and subsequently abolished, Brown said.

Shootings involving police are investigated by the department's homicide and internal affairs divisions, the civil rights division of the district attorney's office and a grand jury.

Harris County District Attorney John Holmes said "some segments of the society will never be satisfied" unless an officer is convicted and imprisoned for a shooting in which he was involved.

The initial report also recommended a policy that requires all police officers to carry the same type of weapon. The report suggests that the department issue a .38-caliber handgun as a standard weapon, a proposal that has drawn vehement criticism from officers.
