Upholds Abscam Convictions

NEW YORK (AP) — Declaring that "corruption and rot" in government is more dangerous to the nation than any foreign enemy, a federal judge has upheld the Abscam convictions of four former congressmen and three others.

"If legislative action by members of Congress can be purchased with funds supplied by unseen foreigners, in jeopardy is the very core of our democratic government, faithful representation of citizens by their elected representatives," U.S. District Judge George Pratt wrote in a scathing 135-page opinion Friday.

The ruling upheld the convictions of former Reps. Michael Myers, D-Pa.; Raymond Lederer, D-Pa.; John Murphy, D-N.Y.; and Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.J. Also upheld were the convictions of Angelo Errichetti, a state senator and former mayor of Camden, N.J.; Philadelphia City Councilman Louis Johanson; and Philadelphia lawyer Howard Criden.

'March Of The Hungry'

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Angered by skyrocketing food prices and empty grocery shelves, Polish workers stage a "March of the Hungry" today to protest conditions similar to ones that triggered bloody riots in the past.

The independent labor union Solidarity postponed the march in the central city of Kutno last week after a food shipment arrived during the first days of the Polish Communist Party's emergency congress.

The Kutno march was rescheduled for today after talks between union and government representatives broke down, union spokesman said.

Object To CIA Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of the House Select Committee on Intelligence have reportedly written President Reagan objecting to a CIA plan for a covert operation in Africa.

The Washington Post said in its editions today that an unspecified number of committee members from both parties were bothered by the plan because they felt it was not thought through. The nature and a more precise location of the operation were not disclosed by the unidentified sources quoted by the newspaper.

The Post said the letter is believed to be the first instance in the committee's four-year history that its members' concerns had been sent to the president in writing.

Snyder Christian School To Open August 31

By Shirley A. Gorman
Parents concerned about providing their children with a more Bible-oriented education have banded together under the auspices of the Agape Christian Fellowship, 111 E. 37th, to create Snyder Christian School.

The Bible-centered and nterdenominational church plans to open the doors of its new school August 31. This is no easy ep for a church which s been in existence for ly four years. Jay wsom, pastor, who will serve as superinten- of the school for the year, has been with ongregation for two ne-half years.

in spite of regular church services and Sunday School sessions.

However, Newsom is quick to emphasize that neither he nor any member of his congregation or for that matter anyone interested in the project have an axe to grind with the public school system either here in Snyder or across the nation. They are simply determined to try and educate their children "to live for eternity and not just for this life." Or as Newsom put it, "We want to train our children to live and not just to get a job."

The school actually consists of two parts. The learning to read category is for first grade students. They will be taught separately from the other students. Also five year olds who qualify will also be included in the program.

The second phase, reading to learn, is designed for older students in grades 2-9.

As much as possible Newsom said they would follow the public school schedule regarding holidays and other days off. Classes on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays will be conducted from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Classes on Wednesdays will dismiss at 2:30 p.m.

but will begin at the regular time.

The reading program schedule is tentatively set from 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Newsom said they have

PLO Guerrillas Fire Rockets...

Salvos Threaten Truce

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The newborn Mideast truce was threatened today when Palestinian guerrillas fired several dozen rockets into the enclave in southern Lebanon controlled by Israeli-backed Lebanese Christian militiamen. The Israeli military command announced the barrage and said one resident of the town of Marjayoun, Lebanon, was wounded. The command said Israeli gunners, who have responded to previous attacks on their Christian allies, did not return the fire today.

In Beirut, the Palestine Liberation Organization said two earlier infractions of the truce announced Friday were "misunderstandings." There was no immediate comment on today's attack, and no indication whether the PLO intends to halt only the attacks on Israeli villages, not the shelling of its Christian foes inside Lebanon.

A PLO spokesman refused comment on a report by the Iraqi News Agency that PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat would visit Moscow soon to ask for additional Soviet military and political support against Israel.

The cease-fire, mediated between combatants that refuse to recognize each other, followed 15 days of artillery exchanges, Palestinian guerrilla rocket and artillery attacks and Israeli air, sea and land raids that killed hundreds in Lebanon and left six dead in Israel's northern settlements.

Israeli officials said they would watch warily to see whether the guerrillas take advantage of the respite to move more arms into southern Lebanon. Israel claims a buildup would violate the truce.

The Israeli military command twice reported Palestinian rocket attacks Friday afternoon after all hostilities were supposed to have ceased. Each time the rockets landed on the northernmost Israeli town, Metulla, and on Lebanese Christian villages in southern Lebanon. Three Lebanese Christians were reported wounded.

The SDN Column

The new issue of Texas Monthly magazine has an article about the success of "country boys" in Texas, generally conveying the idea that those who achieve most in this state work hard trying to create and then perpetuate a country image.

Most Texans of middle age and above grew up in rural areas and in smaller cities and towns. The younger generation will be "citified," but if the trend continues, according to Texas Monthly, many of them will try to make the most of a country heritage.

There is something about small town life that still attracts many Texans. That is one reason suburban areas have developed so rapidly around major cities that they have defeated their original purpose. Consequently, a lot of those who live in the suburbs of the metropolitan areas are not really small town folks.

If you have trouble distinguishing between the would-be and the real, honest-to-goodness small towners, perhaps the following will help:

You can tell it is a small town if Third Street is on the edge of town; every sport is played on dirt; people don't use their turn signals because everyone knows where they're headed anyway; parents of a child born on June 13 receive gifts from merchants, because their child is the first baby of the year; a resident can dial a wrong number and talk for 15 minutes anyway; it is difficult to walk for exercise, because every car that passes offers you a ride; you drive into a ditch five miles out and word gets back to town before you do; someone asks how you feel and then actually listens to what you say.

It is a small town if you can drive only with one hand because the other is waving at every passerby; you can remember what every woman in town wore to the homecoming football game last year; your neighbor brings back the power saw he borrowed from you yesterday; when you switch brands of coffee and the checkout clerk notices; when you are out of the office and everyone knows you're on the golf course.

But a friend of ours topped it off with this story about some of his in-laws who had just arrived from a neighboring state for a visit. As they watched television, they saw Nancy Reagan preparing to leave for England to attend the wedding of Prince Charles and Lady Diana.

"Why is she going?" one asked.
"She will represent her husband, President Reagan, and the country," someone explained.
"You mean Carter is not president any more?"

National Guard Exercise...

Snyder Co. Completes Training

During the period of May 30th through June 13, Detachment Two E. Company 111th Engineering Battalion participated in annual training for the National Guard. Detachment Two is stationed in Snyder and is commanded by Lt. Ramiro Perez.

During summer camp, Detachment Two distinguished themselves as one of the hardest working units at North Fort Hood, even though they had only 16 men performing regular platoon tasks, which at full strength would consist of 49 men.

Favorable comments were given by visitors to the training sight, which included Maj. Gen. John B. Garrett, who is the 49th Armored Division Commander.

During the first week of camp, E. Company supervised the building of two M46 bridges. These bridges were used to support a major operation that was conducted by the 1st Brigade 49th Armored Division. The performance by E. Company, commanded by Capt. Henry Pope, was outstanding.

Other training in which E. Company participated in were Clamore Mine Demolition performed by Specialist 4th Class Ray Llanes and Sgt. Robert Graves, Building and Anchorage Systems by Sgt. Ivory Grear, and Commo Training by SP4 Class John Nobles. Several members of the unit also participated in live fire of the M60 machine gun.

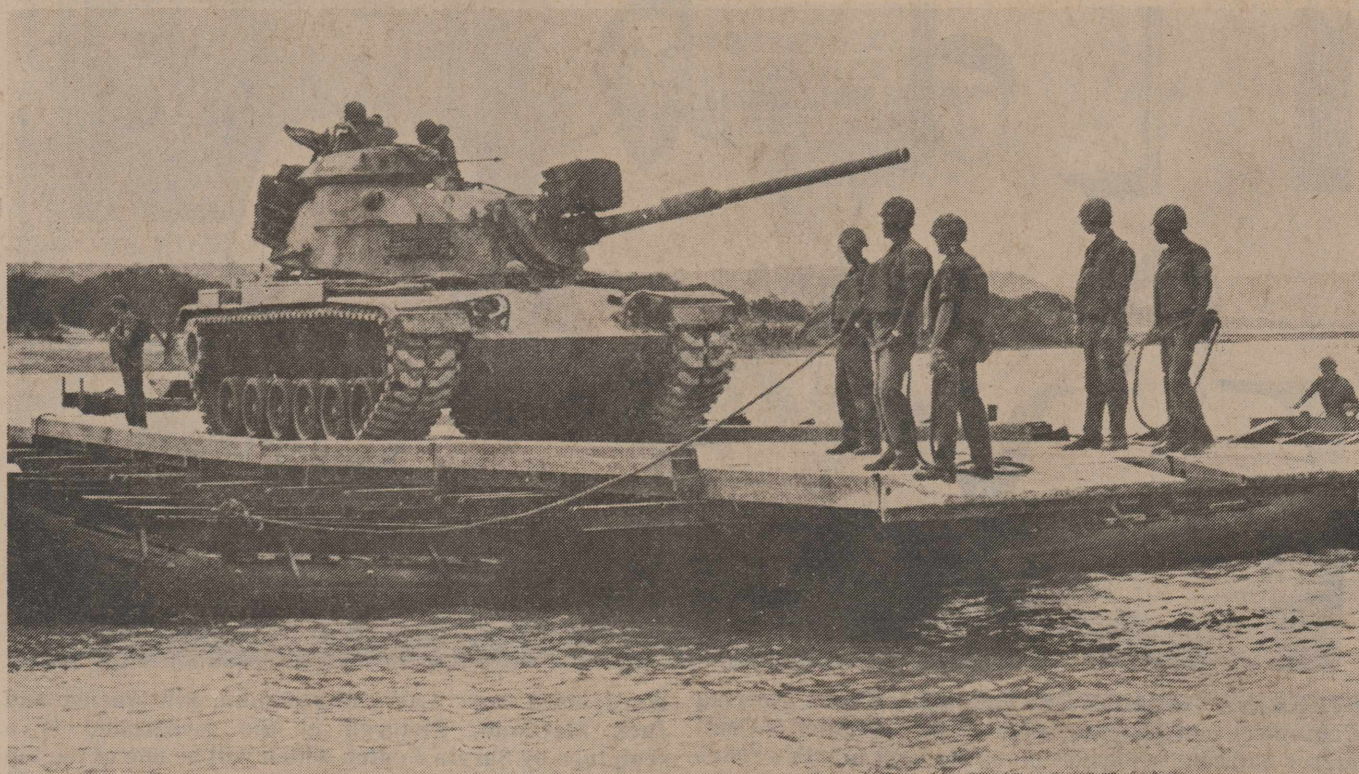

The four mile run, which is an annual event at summer camp for all National Guard units, was won this year by Pvt. First Class Danny Courtney of Snyder.

Each year after summer camp, E. Company holds its annual party and awards presentation. Members of the Snyder unit receiving outstanding achievement awards were: Platoon Sgt. Sam Smelser, Sgt. Adam Rios, SP4 Class John Nobles, SP4 Class Bernie Gutierrez, and SP4 Class Jerry Horsley.

SP4 Class Nobles also received a plaque as outstanding soldier of the year, and Pvt. Courtney received a trophy for his victory in the four mile run.

Anyone interested in the National Guard should contact SSG Cecil Trammel at the Armory or 573-0411.

The Armory is open from 7:30 a.m. until 4 p.m. Monday through Friday and on Wednesdays until 8 p.m. Also for the next three months the Armory will be open on Saturdays from 8 a.m. to noon.

House Overrides Objections...

Money Put Up To Build Reactor

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House, overriding objections that the project is the white elephant of the nuclear age, is putting up the money to begin construction of the $3.2 billion Clinch River breeder reactor.

An amendment endorsed by conservatives and environmentalists to delete $228 million for the project from the $13.2 billion energy and water development appropriations was defeated 206-186 Friday.

The bill was later passed, 244-104, and sent to the Senate, where Clinch River carries the strong support of Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn. The project also is supported by the Reagan administration.

The money is intended to break ground on the Oak Ridge, Tenn. project, which has been in the planning stages since 1972 and already has cost more $1 billion. When originally approved, the entire project was to have cost $669 million.

Rep. Marilyn Bouquard, D-Tenn., blamed the escalating costs on the government's failure to make a commitment. Former President Jimmy Carter tried unsuccessfully for four years to kill it.

Clinch River was envisioned as the United States' first commercial-size demonstration of a new nuclear technology that would generate electricity while producing or "breeding" more fuel that it burns. France already has such a plant.

But critics say time has passed. Clinch River, by Rep. John Edward Porter, R-Ill., said demand for electricity is less than expected, uranium for conventional reactors has proved to be abundant and technology has leaped ahead of the project.

The battle over taxes should come to a head Wednesday. The House will choose between President Reagan's proposed three-year cut of 25 percent and the Democrats' two-year, 15 percent cut with a third-year decrease depending on inflation and the budget.

Museum Sets Contest For Shutterbugs

Vacation time brings out the best in amateur photographers, and the Scurry County Museum would like for local amateur shutterbugs to share some of the best of their pictures.

The museum will be sponsoring an amateur Photographer-of-the-Month contest starting in October and the person chosen for the honor must be able to exhibit from 10 to 15 photographs for the period of one month. Either black and white or color photographs may be used, with all photographs matted and-or framed for display.

To enter, the photographer must submit at least four different photographs and these must be originals.

Persons wishing further information are invited to contact the museum office at 573-6107 on weekdays.

Financial & tax planning

Required Interest Rates

If you are a party to a contract which states an interest rate which is unrealistically low or zero, the Internal Revenue Service may treat the transaction as though it had a high rate of interest provided for in the income tax regulations.

This adjusting of interest rates is referred to as "imputed" interest. For example: If you state a zero rate of interest on a contract and the IRS imputes an interest rate, some portion of each payment will be treated as interest and the balance as principal. Such adjustments will affect the tax return of both the payor and the payee.

New imputed interest rates become effective July 1, 1981. On transactions between related parties, if at least 11% is not stated in the agreement, the IRS may impute 12%. On transactions between unrelated parties, if a rate of at least 9% is not stated, the IRS may impute 10% compounded semi-annually.

The regulation does not require you to use higher interest rates for legal purposes. It simply states that if your contract is not drawn for certain state rates, the IRS may impute the higher rate for federal income tax purposes only. In states where these rates may conflict with usury laws, you may draw your contract to reflect a lesser rate, but for federal tax purposes, the IRS can require you to impute the higher rate.

These new interest rate levels are effective respect to loans or advances made on or after 1, 1981. For transactions prior to that date, the stated rate was required to be 6% to avoid imputed rate of 7%. The old rate is still available for certain sales or exchanges made after July pursuant to a binding written contract entered into before September 29, 1980.

Nanty Glo, Pa. Seems To Have High Cancer Rate

NANTY GLO, Pa. (AP) — John Martin's mother-in-law had traveled 20 miles to another town for medical treatment. At the clinic, she mentioned she lived in Nanty Glo.

A woman seated next to her quickly rose and walked to the far side of the waiting room.

Henry McHugh's neighbor was working in the coal mines that honeycomb southwestern Pennsylvania when another miner asked to drink from his bucket.

The miner lost his thirst after he found out the neighbor hailed from Nanty Glo.

Nanty Glo, population 3,900. A quaint Welsh name that means "valley of coal."

It is a valley of worried folks today. There's hardly a resident here, it seems, who doesn't know of a neighbor, friend or relative who hasn't had cancer in Nanty Glo.

"It's been a major topic of conversation for years, but nobody ever seemed to care enough to look at what might be causing it,"

Registration

To Close Wed.

Pre-registration for the 1981 fall semester at Western Texas College will close Wednesday, Dr. Duane Hood, Dean of Student Services, said.

Students new to WTC are especially invited to take advantage of pre-registration since they will have more time to talk with counselors in working out a class schedule.

Students are to go to the counseling offices in the Student Center. The office is open from 8 a.m. to 12 noon and 1-5 p.m.

Bills for fees will be sent out at the close of pre-registration and fees must be paid before registration begins on Aug. 24.

says Catherine Gabriel, a clerk in a furniture store.

That all changed this past winter, after 12-year-old Ricky McDonald became the sixth child in town who was stricken by cancer.

Some 30 volunteers went door-to-door to 1,200 families to ask questions about cancer victims. Their answers were translated into colored pins on a detailed street map, pins that smothered some of the street lines.

Seniors Enjoy Center Activities

Participation in activities at the Senior Citizens Center continues to be good despite summer heat and vacations, Gloria Shaw, Center director, said.

The Center averages serving 120 meals per day in its dining room and also has a take-out meal program for Senior Citizens who are homebound and unable to prepare their own meals.

"We certainly want to thank the community for supporting Senior Citizens during the recent Scurry County rodeo," Mrs. Shaw said. "We are grateful to the Rodeo Association for giving us the opportunity to earn some extra money for our operating fund, and

Bond Set For Two Men

Two men arrested by sheriff's deputies in connection with a series of burglaries, thefts and vandalism in the Hermleigh area had bonds set Friday by County Judge Preston Wilson.

Street.

All told, the ski-slope steep streets of Nanty Glo bore 175 cancer pins, covering the years between 1970 and 1980.

That's only slightly higher than the rate for cancer cases and deaths in all of Pennsylvania but residents still regard the town as a cancer hotspot.

Equipped with their map, Nanty Glo residents persuaded skeptical state officials to investigate further, and a state task force has been planned to interview the town's cancer victims.

to those who purchased ads in the program and those who bought programs, and to those who patronized the concession stands. We had about 100 Senior Citizens involved in these projects. We would also like to thank Dr. Don Newbury, WTC president, and Gay Hickman, WTC business manager, who gave us a hand in the concession stands."

The Senior Center realized a profit of $5,211.44 from its rodeo projects.

The Center is open each weekday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. with a variety of activities for county residents 60 years of age and older. The Center is located at 2603 Avenue M.

each set in two cases.

They were arrested following burglary of the Cardinal Cafe, and May's Fina station the past week and have been accused in earlier offenses including damage to county road machinery, theft of gasoline from the Hermleigh Schools and breaking into the Hermleigh Community Center. They also are suspects in burglaries at Roscoe.

A preliminary state review of the Nanty Glo survey showed that the cancer figures for most of the decade "are relatively high, but unfortunately not too different from the rates for many other Pennsylvania communities."

But a single year — 1978 — had a cancer death rate almost double that of the rest of the state, and that prompted the Health Department to create the task force.

"There is no cause for alarm, but there are pieces (of the survey) we have questions about," says Deputy Health Secretary Donald Reid.

One thing the medical investigators are looking at carefully is the "cluster" of cancer cases in several areas.

Training Set

For Nurses'

Aides at WTC

Training for persons interested in employment as nurses' aides will be offered in a 120-hour course starting August 10 at Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

Students will pay fees of $160 each, which includes books and materials. Fees are payable on the first night of class.

Lou Cochran, in-service educational director for Cogdell, will be instructor for the course.

Persons planning to attend the course are to pre-register by calling the Continuing Education office at Western Texas College, 573-8511, extension 240.

Gerry Cooney knocked out a Russian opponent in one round in a heavyweight boxing bout in a United States-Soviet meet in 1975.

Regardless of what the state team uncovers, "I still think this area is high," says Nanty Glo undertaker Harry Ondrejek Sr. "The number of deaths concerns me."

Rev. Kenneth Bischko, a Franciscan priest and son of a Nanty Glo coal miner, lives in the midst of the cancer cluster on Roberts Street.

He wonders "how the people would feel if they had three typhoid cases on a street."

The economy and jobs are still big issues here. A mound of coal waste that towers over the southern entrance of town is a bleak reminder of the now-closed mine that burrows beneath the streets.

But front page stories in the Nanty Glo Journal and television news reports from Pittsburgh and Johnstown have townspeople asking a lot of questions about the source of the cancer.

Are there carcinogens floating in Blacklick Creek or the town reservoir? Or is it air particles that funnel into the valley from the Johnstown steel plants and the Homer City generating plant? And why is Roberts Street so riddled with victims?

No one has any answers, and that, perhaps, is more agonizing than actually finding a cause.

"We want them to prove there isn't anything here," says Joyce Ray, who fled to Nanty Glo from a New Jersey neighborhood and its chemical plants and then lost her son to leukemia a year later.

Her zeal isn't totally shared by many of the people who live in the frame and shingle homes cut into the sharply angled hill that is Roberts Street.

Pauline Hawthorne had a radical mastectomy and lost her lower right arm to cancer. Her husband, John, 61, had cancer of the colon.

Ever since her operation in 1975, she refuses to travel the couple of blocks downtown. "I just can't face the people I know, I don't know what it is," the tiny, frail woman says.

She's lived here all of her 62 years, and she doesn't associate her illness with Nanty Glo. "It could be nothing here."

Police Book Two Men

A 29-year-old man and a 21-year-old man were booked by city police early Saturday morning as suspects for possession of a dangerous drug.

A short time earlier, a 20-year-old man who was being booked on a public intoxication charge was found to have in his possession what was believed to be a controlled substance, and he was booked on for that also.

Two bicycle thefts and two minor traffic mishaps were reported.

At 6:27 p. m. Friday, Brenda George reported that a bicycle valued at $100 was stolen from 2605

Ave. O. Parts of the bicycle were found near the 27th St. bridge, it was reported.

At 10:10 p. m., Sammy Garcia reported a bicycle stolen at 1406 30th St. It also was valued at $100.

A minor traffic mishap was reported at 5:35 p. m. at 1900 College Ave. Involved were a 1981 Chevrolet pickup driven by Terry W. Hembree and a 1980 Ford pickup driven by Irvin E. Martin.

Another minor mishap reported at 12:35 a. m. Friday involved a 1970 Chevrolet driven by Bobby Hataway. It hit a dumpster and a telephone pole.

A. KELLY PRUITT
...coming to Diamond M

Noted Cowboy Artist Coming To Diamond M

A retrospective exhibition of the painting of noted cowboy artist A. Kelly Pruitt will be on display Aug. 2-16 at the Diamond M Museum of Fine Arts.

Artist, writer, and lecturer, A. Kelly Pruitt is acclaimed for his colorful and bold paintings depicting life on the range country and in the Indian reservations of the Southwestern United States. He has written two books of poetry, "The North Wind" and "Travelers from the Long Night," and a novel based on his childhood, "Wild Red from Presidio." He is included in Who's Who in American Art, Ed Ainsworth's The Cowboy in Art, and Patricia Janis Broder's Bronzes of the American West.

Pruitt was born in Waxahachie in 1924. Later his family moved to Presidio, where at the age of 12, Kelly started working cattle along the Mexican border. Following service overseas during World War II, he remained in India studying art and philosophy under the Buddhist Monk Singh Yea. Kelly returned to the U. S., working as a cowboy again on the Randel Ranch in Arizona. He then turned to painting full time and spent the next three years painting with the Navajo Indians in Arizona. He learned their customs and their language and was given the Indian name Yamo Hoto (the Lonely One).

Many of the experiences from which Pruitt draws are of life and death and man's ability to survive. Hiring on as a working cowboy, he places himself in a unique and historical setting representing the cowboy's day to day encounters with danger and hardship.

Pruitt paints, not from photographs, but from an emotional level of personal awareness. What he paints are remembrances of what it was like and what it should be like were it actually occurring.

The years Kelly did not travel to Europe found him on a ranch in Texas, New Mexico or Arizona. He would just find a job as a hand, helping some rancher with his roundup, or taking care of a line camp around Marfa for the winter. Many times the cowboys he worked with wouldn't know there was a renowned artist in their midst, this being just fine for Kelly. Spending time out there always seems somehow to renew something inside him.

Kelly began signing some of his work (Thunder Bow) in 1978. Having lived with the Navajo and sought for himself the wisdom of their ways and personality of Thunder Bow is one of a teacher. Thunder Bow's paintings show perceptions which are both metaphysical and representative of Indian thought.

The Diamond M Museum has invited the public to attend the opening reception of Kelly Pruitt's paintings on Sunday, Aug. 2 from 1 p. m. to 4 p. m. Pruitt will be the honored guest of the museum and will demonstrate his painting techniques during the showing. There is no admission charge and the museum is located at 909 25th St.

Mother-Of-The-Year...

VFW Honors Ex-Snyderite

Ada Lomax, formerly of Snyder and mother of two Scurry County residents, has been named "Mother-of-the-Year" by the Texas Department, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Now living in Abilene, Mrs. Lomax was accorded similar honors by the local VFW post there, which nominated her for the state honor.

Mrs. Lomax is the mother of eight, including four sons who served in the armed forces during World War II, and all four of them returned.

"It was frightening to see them off to war," Mrs. Lomax recalls. "But I was fortunate. They all came back."

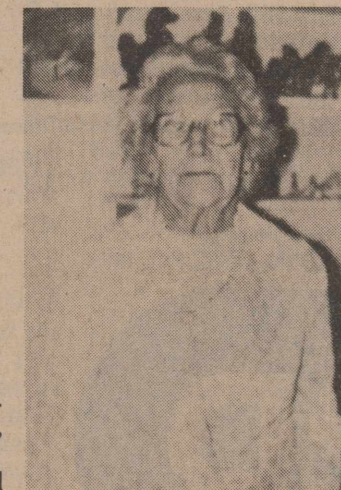

The four who served in the war are Kenneth of Buffalo Gap, Robert of Ira, H. M. of Hermleigh and Howard of Abilene.

Other children of Mrs. Lomax are Pete of Rotan, Wanda Rhea and Betty Davis of Abilene and Georgia Chevalier of Canadian. There also are 25 grandchildren and 30 great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Lomax was born in Nebraska and moved with her parents to Colorado.

They moved to Texas when she was 13. She was married to Bela Lomax at the age of 20. They lived near Hereford, where he farmed and ranched, before moving to this area.

They lived in Snyder from 1952 to 1956. Mr. Lomax operated a service station here near the old Weber Trailer Courts and for a time drove a taxi for the H. M. and Opal Lomax Cab Co. in Snyder.

ADA LOMAX

They moved to the Abilene area and celebrated their 50th anniversary there in 1965. When he retired in 1970, they moved to Clyde. He died in 1978 and Mrs. Lomax then moved back to Abilene where she now lives with a daughter.

Mrs. Lomax keeps busy with her hobbies now. These include crocheting and watching television. She also helps with the housework "when Wanda is not around to stop me." She collects miniature animals and now has a substantial collection of ceramic, metal, plastic and glass horses.

"I don't think I could raise eight kids now, but I guess I would if I had to," Mrs. Lomax said.

MOTION SICKNESS

Motion sickness is caused by overstimulation of the inner ear's balance, leaving one dizzy and nauseous. Several precautions can ease your journey if you are susceptible to such discomfort. In a car, sit in the front seat and watch the road. When flying, request a seat in the center of the plane, over the wing where motion is less noticeable. If the view confirms the vehicle's dips and rolls, don't look out. Keep your mind occupied with conversation or games, but avoid reading.

House Approves New Medical Act

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A compromise Medical Practices Act that extends state regulation of physicians for another 12 years and gives non-doctors a voice on the Texas Board of Medical Examiners has won final House approval. House members passed the bill, 142-0, and sent it back to the Senate for action on amendments.

Senate approval of House changes, which is expected, would send the bill to Gov. Bill Clements, who had put it on the agenda of the special legislative session.

Failure of the Legislature to pass the bill would end licensing and all other regulation of doctors on Sept. 1 under the Sunset Act.

The biggest change on which senators must act allows optometrists to use drugs to dilate the eyes of their patients. An optometrist would need a standing order from a physician authorizing the use of eyedrops.

Speaker Bill Clayton's eleventh-hour insistence that optometrists, such as his campaign fund-raiser, Dr. Bill Armistead of Littlefield, be allowed to administer eye drops killed the Medical Practices Act during the regular session.

Physicians and optometrists agreed to the provision added to the bill by the House.

The bill makes a several major changes in the Medical Practices Act, including some designed to benefit consumers.

Three of the 15 seats on the Board of Medical Examiners will go to non-doctors, who may vote on such decisions as whether to suspend or revoke physicians' licenses.

Patients will be legally entitled to summaries or copies of their medical records unless a doctor determines the information might harm a patient.

Doctors may advertise if their ads aren't misleading and do not assert their superiority to other physicians.

For the first time, a doctor's license may be suspended for "persistently and flagrantly overcharging or overtreating patients."

A doctor convicted of a felony involving drugs would have his license suspended, and when the conviction is upheld on appeal, the license would be canceled.

Local Painting To Be Exhibited

"Mark of the West," a pastel by Snyder artist Donna Holt, has been accepted for the Texas Fine Arts Association "Texas Only" exhibition through the Laguna Gloria Art Museum in Austin.

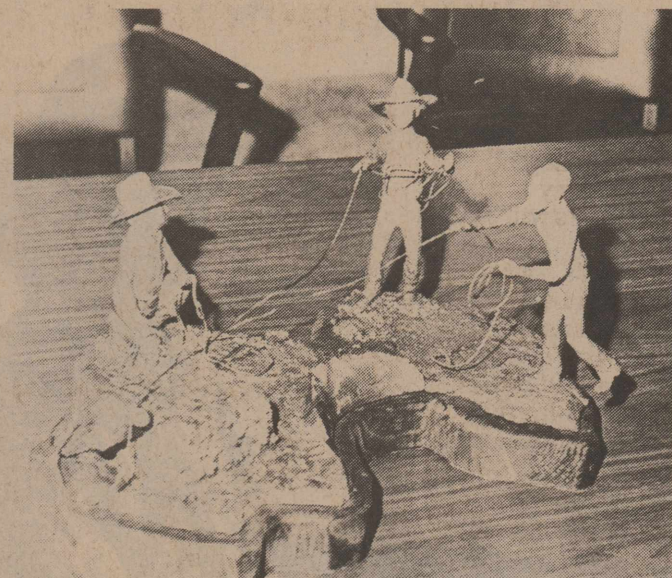

Five hundred entries were received by the Fine Arts Association for the exhibit, with 23 selected to be included. The exhibit is currently hung in the First Federal Bank Building in Austin and is to remain in place through Aug. 6.

Mrs. Holt's entry was first prize winner in Western Texas College competition last spring.

Mrs. Holt has also received word that two of her paintings have been chosen for reproduction on a new series of Christmas cards to be printed by Evergreen Press of California. Their new collection will also include two of Mrs. Holt's paintings first used for the 1980 collection.

The international committee of chief prosecutors indicted 24 top German leaders as major war criminals in 1945.

RODEO PRIZE—This sculpture by Sareta Fenton will be one of the top prizes given away during the national finals of the AJRA to be held in Snyder next month. Dr. Robert Taylor has also donated a sculpture to be given to the high point bull rider. Other prizes include several thousand dollars in cash, the PRCA Award, the Alvin Davis Founders Award, plus 36 trophy saddles, 60 trophy buckles, the Roy Cooper Roping Award, and the George Paul Bull Riding Award. (SDN Staff Photo)

RETIREMENT TEA—Ethel Wadleigh, Nursing Supervisor at Cogdell Memorial Hospital, was honored with a retirement tea on July 20 in the Doctor's Lounge of the hospital by members of the staff. She officially retired on July 5 but will still be working at the hospital on a part-time basis. She joined the staff on June 1, 1960 after receiving her nursing training at St. Anthony's in Amarillo. Ms. Wadleigh says she has "had lots of fun and enjoyment" in her job and has "met many lasting friends, in both co-workers and patients and have a lot of memories." (SDN Staff Photo)

Contest Seen On Districts

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Rep. Paul Ragsdale says 11 of the 19 House redistricting committee members are ready to vote Monday for his congressional remap that denies Republicans major gains and protects incumbent Democrats.

"I don't see a weak one on the list," Ragsdale, D-Dallas, said Friday after disclosing the names of each committee member who he says has promised him a vote.

Ragsdale's plan, however, runs counter to the wishes of Rep. Tim Von Dohlen, D-Goliad, the committee chairman, who is chasing votes for a plan that would be friendlier to Republicans.

Von Dohlen wants more conservatives to go to Congress from Texas, and insists it's only fair to help Republicans because major population gains have occurred in GOP suburbs.

Ragsdale accused Von Dohlen of stalling a committee decision.

The committee's vice-chairman, Rep. Robert Valles of El Paso, planned to convene the committee without Von Dohlen on Friday but gave up after several who favor the Ragsdale plan said they were in a hurry to leave Austin for the weekend.

Von Dohlen cancelled a committee meeting Friday after it became clear he still lacked the 10 votes he needed for a revised version of his own bill, which would add Republican seats.

Ragsdale's plan would give two of Texas three new congressional seats to Democrats.

Ragsdale said Democratic Reps. Bob Bush of Sherman, Robert Valles of El Paso, Bill Clark of Tyler, Doyle Willis of Fort Worth, Chris Semos of Dallas, Craig Washington, of Houston, Hugo Berlanga of Corpus Christi, Gerald Hill of Austin, Bill Coody of Weatherford and Reby Cary of Fort Worth had agreed to vote with him for his bill.

Ragsdale's plan gives U.S. Rep. Bill Patman, D-Ganado, essentially the same district he has now.

It splits the black and Hispanic concentration in Dallas, so that Congressman Martin Frost's district becomes 57 percent minority. Most politicians believe Frost, though white, could win in such a district.

U.S. Rep. Jim Mattox of Dallas would have a Democratic district that would reach into Ellis, Navarro, Henderson and Kaufman counties, although he might be seen there as too liberal.

"I'd rather have a conservative Democrat in the 5th District than a Republican," Ragsdale said.

Harris County's new congressional seat would go to a heavily Democratic area in the eastern part of the county, rather than to the Republican suburbs as envisioned by Von Dohlen, Clayton and the governor.

Another new district without an incumbent would be in South Texas, with a 53 percent Hispanic population.

Von Dohlen modified his plan to make it more like the one drafted by Sen. John Wilson, D-I Grange, and passed by the Senate. But he was quite ready to back from one of its more controversial features — cutting Corpus Christi between two districts.

"I think we are close to having a plan that is acceptable to the majority," Von Dohlen Clayton predicted.

House would something akin to Wilson plan, which say increases the of Texas Congressmen from eight.

"I think Monday have some action committee," he said.

Christian School

consists of 12 PACEs in each subject. Every nine weeks parents will be given a progress report of their child's work. Before entering the school students will be tested and at the end of each year they will be tested again to determine their progress.

Students will work in individual "offices" and with the help of a teacher will set realistic, bite-size goals. The "offices" will be constructed in the church's chapel and will consist of a three-sided structure which will fold back into the wall when not in use.

Rewards will be offered to students who behave and complete a certain number of PACEs each week and punishments in the form of demerits will also be handed out.

In some instances corporal punishment may be used, Newsom said. Parents will be notified and given the opportunity to administer the spanking, but if they decline the school will follow through. But first Newsom said they will talk with the child to determine if he understood the rule or rules he broke and if so then why did he do it. After the spanking generous helpings of love will be administered.

Snyder Christian School will employ only a Christian staff; but Newsom said they would also prefer teachers to have a bachelors degree.

Newsom emphasized that the school is an integral part of the church, but he said doctrine will "not be crammed down anyone's throat."

Students will be screened since Newsom said they are not equipped to handle "problem" students. The school will have the philosophy that success is "finding God's will for our life." The students will be trained in Christian leadership. Newsom observed that the "lack of character in our society is the reason for so many controls (laws passed by legislators)."

Parents will provide lunch for their children and field trips will be planned every Friday. Athletics and other electives will be sparingly offered in the beginning, but in the future Newsom said that SCS and other christian schools in the area might compete against each other in some sports.

The ACE curriculum offers a wide range of electives and statistics provided by the company show that graduates of schools using the ACE curriculum are attending 70 colleges and universities.

Prospective students will be tested August 24-27.

A meeting for interested parents is slated for 7 p.m. July 30 at the Shack. Keith Johnson, ACE representative who has headed a Christian school in Plainview for years, will be the guest speaker. The cost is $5 per person.

In 1878, Thomas Edison was granted a patent on the phonograph.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a sophomore in high school and very active athletically. One of the sports I participate in is going to require me to bulk up in the next five months before the season begins. I weigh approximately 170 pounds and would like to put on 20 pounds of muscle. I'm 6 feet 2. I realize I must weight train. Please send a diet or some foods and vitamins I should use to bulk up as quickly as possible.

DEAR READER — I admire your enthusiasm and hope you can match it with some sound knowledge about weight gain.

You said you want to gain muscle. That means you do not want to gain fat and you should not. Evidently, you want to gain about four pounds of muscle a month to meet your goal or about one pound of muscle a week. That is reasonable.

Remember that one pound of actual muscle (not fat) contains only 600 calories and that includes its 100 grams of protein. Most of the weight of lean muscle is water. So your body needs an additional 100 grams of protein a week that is available for muscle growth. Since your daily requirement is only 56 grams, it is clear that if you get 100 grams of good quality protein a day that will be far more than adequate. You will need enough calories from whatever source — carbohydrates, fat or protein — to meet your calorie requirements so the protein will be available for muscle building.

The only role of vitamins in maintaining or building body tissues, including muscles, is to serve as catalysts in enzyme systems so your cells can use the energy in your food. If you eat a well-balanced diet you will have sufficient vitamins and minerals.

You need to understand the principles of weight training and weight gain which are included in The Health Letter number 5-4, Weight Training for Energy and Weight Control, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

As The Health Letter I am sending you explains, the most important aspect of weight training is how you train. You need a good program that uses the maximum strength of your muscles enough to promote growth. Excessive exercise often defeats the purpose and slows the optimal muscle development.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I was wondering if there is any danger in taking 250 mg of tetracycline twice a day for a long period of time. I started taking tetracycline eight years ago for my complexion and am still taking it. Can you advise me as to whether I should stop or is it OK for me to keep taking it?

DEAR READER — If you have gotten along with it for eight years it sounds like you are not likely to have any of the rare complications from taking tetracyclines. You should know that it increases your sensitivity to the sun so you may be more susceptible to getting a sunburn.

You should also be careful not to take tetracyclines during a pregnancy. The tetracycline will cross through the placenta and can affect the developing baby. And it may stain the baby's teeth a yellow color. Also, if possible, children under 8 years of age should not be given tetracyclines, because it can stain the developing permanent teeth. It will not stain the teeth of adults after the teeth have developed.

Two Found Guilty In Insurance Scam; Faked Restaurant Mishap

DALLAS (AP) — Two of five men accused in a scheme to collect $122,000 of insurance money after faking a restaurant accident have been convicted on charges of mail fraud and conspiracy.

U.S. District Judge Patrick Higginbotham set sentencing for Aug. 28 after a jury returned the verdict Thursday against Dr. Rhea Lucky Nichols and Michael Ford, also known as L.D. Hauser.

The pair, convicted on 14 counts of mail fraud and one count of conspiracy, face maximum sentences of 75 years in prison and $24,000 in fines.

Carl Allen Keenan, former bartender at the now-defunct Bananas restaurant, and Ford were accused of helping stage the apparent fall of a ceiling fan onto a table occupied by Michael Frank Merritt and Thomas Eugene Davis.

Davis and Keenan pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of one count of mail fraud and agreed to cooperate with the federal government's investigation of the other four defendants. They face a maximum sentence of five years in prison and a $1,000 fine. Nichols was accused of providing false records documenting medical treatment for Davis. Attorney John Fisher, who has not yet been tried, is accused of handling the paperwork to file a claim for $122,000 with the Aetna Insurance Co. for back injuries faked by Davis.

Ford, who has prior convictions for assault with intent to rape and illegal possession of a firearm by a felon, is serving the last year of a two-year prison sentence on the firearm conviction in Oklahoma. Merritt has remained at large since January 1980.

PERFORM IN BIG D—These students of West Texas Theatrics Art Centre the past year performed in The Sheraton Hilton Hotel in Dallas. From left are Jennifer Cole, Susan Brim and Laurie Donelson. The studio is preparing to begin its 9th season here.

Dance Studio To Begin 9th Season

West Texas Theatrics Art Centre is preparing for its 9th year in Snyder, with registration to begin Aug. 3.

Debbie Row, director, said she named her studio by request by a former teacher and founder of the West Texas Theatrics Arts Centre in Sweetwater "who wanted me to carry on the studio's traditions and techniques."

She has studied under well-known artists throughout the U. S., including Roni Mahler, head of dance at Kansas State U., who teaches ballet not only in his country but also in Europe. She also has just returned from workshop in Dallas conducted by Luigi, whose jazz technique is the best known in America. She also has studied in California under teachers of Cher, Joey Heatherton and Ann Margaret, and in Las Vegas and Hawaii.

Gradually over the years, the studio has added new classes. The two most popular are aerobics and country and western. Aerobics is an exercise program designed for the housewife or the working woman. Country and western dancing has become very popular the past year. Couples come once a week for five weeks.

Other classes include tap, ballet, jazz, pointe for more advanced ballet students, and gymnastics. Ms. Row is currently researching ladies craft classes to be incorporated into the studio, such as sewing, needlepoint and painting.

A new pre-school program is being added this year in the mornings at Lou's Kiddie Cottage. It is designed to prepare the child for school, with time devoted to developing motor skills which affect the student physically and emotionally. Participation in a classroom atmosphere is learned through participation in rhythmic games which teach children how to lead, how to follow and how to wait their turn. They also learned nursery rhymes, how to use numbers, colors and letters.

Royal Wedding To Break Several Traditions

LONDON (AP) — The wedding service chosen by Prince Charles and Lady Diana Spencer retains much of the classical but also breaks several precedents.

Lady Diana will, for example, be the first royal bride not to promise obedience to her husband. And Charles is "sharing" his worldly goods with his bride rather than endowing her with them.

The modern touches were chosen personally by the heir to the throne and his future queen for their July 29 wedding at St. Paul's Cathedral.

In many respects the service is like that for young couples throughout the land — there will be no mention of Charles being a prince or Diana an earl's daughter. He will be referred to as "Charles Philip Arthur George" and she as "Diana Frances."

The difference is that regal processions will start and end the 80-minute ceremony; the congregation of 3,000 will include kings and queens; and there will be music by three choirs, three orchestras, trumpets and organ.

After the wedding party arrives by horse and carriage, the service begins at 11 a.m. (6 a.m. EDT) when state trumpeters sound the arrival of Lady Diana and her father for the long walk down the aisle for her place beside Charles beneath the dome of St. Paul's.

Near the bridegroom will be two "supporters" in lieu of a best man — younger brothers Prince Andrew and Prince Edward. Andrew will hold the ring. Charles will also have two page boys, while Diana is to have five bridesmaids.

Jeremiah Clarke's College Team

Recruits

Women Riders

Western Texas College rodeo coach Bob Doty has announced the signing of two outstanding recruits for the WTC rodeo team.

They are Gayla Newton of Gail and Deborah Lewis of Dell City, Tex.

Miss Lewis has won various honors in the American Junior Rodeo Association, including the Champion All-Around Cowgirl of the 1978 AJRA Finals Rodeo. She was selected Outstanding High School Senior at Dell City High School. She was second in the 400 meter sprint in the Texas State Girls' Track Meet and was named Most Valuable Player and All District in basketball.

Miss Newton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Newton, was graduated from Borden County High School with a 92.4 grade average. She was an All district basketball player as well as a top rodeo performer, having won the AJRA All-Around Girls' Championship in 1979. She has won All-Around titles at Horn, Sonora and Andrews as well.

Doty said he feels both girls will be great assets to WTC both as students and athletes. He said they will be able to help right in and contribute with the best of the competitors.

Swider of the St. Louis Cardinals was named MVP in number of 1980, kicking the average, an average of six per game.

"Trumpet Voluntary," written about 1700, will accompany the bride's procession, after which the congregation will sing the hymn "Christ is Made the Sure Foundation."

Archbishop of Canterbury Robert Runcie will unite the couple in his first royal wedding since becoming head of the Anglican Church. The Dean of St. Paul's, the Very Rev. Alan Webster, will start the service with the traditional, "Dearly beloved, we are gathered here..."

House of Commons Speaker George Thomas will read a passage on love from St. Paul's first epistle to the Corinthians, and Runcie will deliver the wedding address.

Hymns will include "I Vow to Thee, My Country," a favorite of the late Earl Mountbatten of Burma, Charles' beloved great-uncle, and the ceremony will end with the signing of the marriage register to the strains of soprano Kiri te Kanawa singing Handel's "Let the Bright Seraphim."

The newlyweds will begin their march down the aisle to Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstances March No. 4" and Walton's "Crown Imperial." They will depart by carriage.

The event sets several precedents:

—It's the first royal wedding at St. Paul's, breaking the tradition of staging such pageants at Westminster Abbey.

—It's the first time a Roman Catholic leader, Cardinal Basil Hume, head of the Catholic Church in England and Wales, will take part in a royal wedding. He'll lead a prayer.

—Charles is the first heir to the throne to choose his own bride, rather than accept an arranged marriage.

The service chosen by Charles and Diana retains much of the classical language of the old Book of Common Prayer — thee and thou, giveth and taketh, and "thereto I plight thee my troth" instead of the recently revised "and this is my solemn vow."

This stately form of English was also used in past royal weddings, and the service resembles that used by Charles' sister Princess Anne when she married commoner Mark Phillips in 1973. But she promised "to obey" and he promised uncompromisingly to endow her with all his worldly goods.

Those key passages will sound like this on July 29:

"I, Diana Frances, take thee Charles Philip Arthur George to my wedded husband, to have and to hold from this day forward, for better for worse, for richer for poorer, in sickness and in health, to love and to cherish, till death us do part, according to God's holy ordinance and thereto I plight thee my troth."

After Charles has put the gold wedding ring on Diana's finger, he will say: "With this ring I thee wed, with my body I thee honor and all my worldly goods with thee I share: in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost."

Attorney Alleges Police Brutality In Corpus

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Police

brutality in this coastal city is worse than nationally publicized beatings in McAllen, says an attorney who has filed a $2.8 million suit alleging that six residents' civil rights were violated.

"I think it's more serious here than it is in McAllen," said James C. Harrington, regional director of the South Texas project of the American Civil Liberties Union.

"The injuries here are much more severe and the arrests are much more without cause," he added.

The six plaintiffs' civil rights were violated due to "an ongoing practice of police misconduct," the suit claims.

The lawsuit alleges plaintiffs were beaten, assaulted and jailed without cause and that Nueces County Attorney Mike Westergren "knowingly" prosecuted charges arising from false arrests to cover up police misconduct.

"Just because there are allegations of police brutality or even injuries, that does not mean that the officer involved does not have a valid complaint," Westergren said, denying that his office was involved in a cover-up.

Named with Westergren as defendants in the suit were city manager Marvin Townsend, police chief Bill Banner and officers Jorge L. Gonzalez, Eric Wramp, C.R. Wimberly, Dennis J. Alvarez, Jesus Quiroz, Richard Pena and four listed by their last names as Garritt, Roquette, McDonald and Campbell were also named as defendants.

Banner said his reaction when he learned of the suit after Friday's press conference was one of "chagrin, shock and outrage."

"I think the statement that the situation here is worse than the situation as we have had it described in McAllen is not only irresponsible, it is false," he said.

Townsend criticized ACLU attorneys for not bringing their complaints to city hall. ACLU representatives did not discuss the allegations with city officials before calling a news conference to announce the suit had been filed, he said.

Harrington said people began bringing him complaints about police brutality in Corpus Christi after publicity surrounding the McAllen case became widespread.

A similar suit was filed in McAllen earlier this year and several videotapes showing officers beating prisoners at the city jail were televised on national newscasts.

Named as plaintiffs in the suit were: Cathy Salinas, 48, and her son Aaron Salinas, 10; Francisco G. Salazar, 36; Viola Garcia Duque, 30; William Pfirmann, 30, and Gilbert Cerda, 31.

The suit says Mrs. Salinas was "maliciously and without cause" beaten by officer Jorge Gonzalez when she exchanged words with police when her son was stopped for questioning. She accused officer Campbell of harassing her at her place of business after the incident.

Officers Alvarez and Pena beat Salazar, the suit claimed, "causing him serious physical injury for which he sought and received medical attention." The suit said Westergren later accepted a misdemeanor complaint against Salazar knowing that Salazar was "not guilty" of the charge.

Husband Picks Up Paper; Neighbors Put Down Theirs

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I recently moved to the suburbs. Our home is set back away from the road, but our neighbors can see our property from both sides and across the road.

My husband has always slept in the nude, but now he's started to get the morning paper in the same state! He says nobody will see him, but I'm afraid somebody might and he'll be arrested for indecent exposure. It's as though he is playing some sort of game of chance and gets a kick out of the risk he's taking, although he insists that the thought has never entered his mind. I have trouble looking out our neighbors in the face, wondering if they have seen my husband picking up our morning paper.

I might add that he is not all that gorgeous. He's 53 years old and 40 pounds overweight. I think you owe me a solution, Abby, because he says he can't wait to see what Abby has to say.

NUDIE'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Next time Old Nudie goes out to fetch the morning paper, lock the door behind him. The result could be funnier than an old Laurel and Hardy flick. It could also cure him.

DEAR ABBY: My husband had a disagreement with his mother a year ago when we were building our first home. Even though we had saved up a large amount of money on our own, he came up short and asked his well-to-do mother if we could use her money as collateral on a low-interest loan. She refused, and my husband and his mother haven't spoken since.

In the meantime, I became pregnant soon after we moved into our home. I had the baby recently and she died shortly after birth. My husband is extremely upset because his mother never acknowledged our baby's death.

I think my husband should call his mother and get his feelings off his chest. By the way, my husband's sister sided with his mother, and we have not heard from her either.

USE NO NAMES

DEAR USE: If your husband stopped speaking to his mother because she refused him a financial favor, shame on him. However, his mother should have broken the silence to express her sympathy and offer support and comfort when she learned of your tragic loss. I agree with you. Your husband should call his mother and clear the air.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 75-year-old widow. I live with a bachelor who is also in his 70s. This is not a romantic arrangement. It's an economic one. We both live on Social Security and this arrangement is good for both of us.

Now for the problem: We would like to take a conducted bus tour together. Since we must consider the economics of such a trip, and double occupancy in hotels is so much cheaper than two singles, is there any way we can do this? We do not want to break any laws or be embarrassed in any way.

How would we register at the hotel? As most hotels have two beds in each room, I can't see where this would be any problem. What should we ask for? How much should we tell? Or do we have to explain our relationship?

PERPLEXED

DEAR PERPLEXED: Register under your own names and request accommodations for two — with separate beds. You need not explain the relationship at most hotels today. You could easily be brother and sister.

DEAR ABBY: In response to ASHAMED IN SAN ANTONIO: I have a wonderful mother, alive and well thank God. She is 72.

Mama gave me and my three brothers so much love over the years that I have plenty to go around!

Abby, please send me the name and address of the lady who was so ashamed of being forgotten on Mother's Day that she sent herself flowers, and I promise you she never have to send herself flowers on her day again.

A LOVING SON IN LONG BEACH

MERKEL -- Snyder Black will open Texas Senior Teenage League District Tournament action here Monday, meeting Brownwood at 6 p.m.

Oilers Host Playoffs

The District Junior Teenage League Tournament will be hosted by Snyder and held at Moffett Field this year. Snyder Oilers are the defending Junior Teenage League state champions.

The Oilers, sponsored by Pool Well Service and winners of the local Junior Teenage League again in 1981, will open the four-day tournament by taking on Sweetwater at 6.

Monday's other game in the six-team tourney will pit Colorado City and Clyde at 9.

Winner of the Snyder-Sweetwater contest will meet Tri-Cities at 6 Tuesday. The loser plays at 3.

Winner of the Colorado City and Clyde game contests Merkel at 10 a.m. Tuesday. The loser will vie at 9 p.m. Tuesday.

The double-elimination tournament has its finals scheduled for 6 p.m. Thursday. An extra game, if needed, will be held immediately following.

Golfers Sign With Western

New Western Texas College Westerner golf coach Dave Foster has announced the signing of two recruits for the 1981-82 season.

Rick Woodson of Lamesa and Ronnie Fletcher of San Angelo have inked pacts with the Westerners for the coming season.

Woodson was District 2-4A regional medalist and an all-district team member his senior year at Lamesa High School, the state runner-up team. He was also district runner-up medalist in 1980 and was all-district as a sophomore.

Fletcher was a three-year letterman for San Angelo Central High School and was second place district medalist.

"We are very pleased to have these young men coming to play for WTC," said Foster, who replaces Bob O'Day as coach this year. "They will be a big asset to the Westerner golf team."

Snyder Hosts Playoff Tilt

Snyder will host a best-of-three Little League playoff series beginning 8 p.m. Monday at the local Little League Field.

Vying will be the Lubbock district winner, either Midwestern or Dixie, and the Abilene district winner, either Western or Ballinger.

The winner will advance to the state tournament in Waco.

Defensive back Ray Griffin of the Cincinnati Bengals made two touchdowns on intercepted passes in 1980 to lead the NFL in that category.

Cowboy Receiver

Pearson Holding Out

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) -- Veteran wide receiver Drew Pearson, hero of many last-gasp Dallas Cowboy victories during his nine National Football League seasons, wants to renegotiate his contract.

Dallas personnel director Gil Brandt, an admirer of Pearson's play for many years, said he's willing.

But the two sides are about $60,000 apart in talks that have bogged down and, to hear Brandt and Pearson talk, the problem is James Lofton.

"I just wanted to wait and see ... what he (Lofton) got, and go from there," said Pearson. Lofton, a four-year veteran from Rice, signed Wednesday with the Green Bay Packers after protracted negotiations.

"There's no question in my mind I should be making as much as him," said Pearson, whose credits include three Super Bowl appearances, three Pro Bowls and 37 touchdown catches in his nine years.

"He's done some great things in Green Bay and he's a great receiver, but he hasn't done the things I've done."

The renegotiating was Brandt's idea initially, a suggestion he made after Pearson caught a touchdown pass with 42 seconds remaining to seal last year's 30-27 NFL playoff win over Atlanta. However, he said he will not play Keeping Up With the Packers, as Pearson suggests.

"Drew has been a fine football player for us and he's a fine person," Brandt said. "If we can settle something, that's fine. We're going to do what we can."

But? "I don't think we should have to compete with Green Bay money-wise in any way, shape or form. We don't care what Green Bay pays. We don't care what the New York Giants pay."

Pearson said he will not play if satisfactory terms cannot be worked out.

Judge's Ruling Aids Davis In 'NFL Case'

LOS ANGELES (AP) -- U.S. District Judge Harry Pregerson ruled Friday that the National Football League is not a single entity, handing the league a major setback in its court battle with the Oakland Raiders and Los Angeles Coliseum Commission.

The 10 jurors in the antitrust trial will thus not have to include in their deliberations the question of whether the league acted as a partnership -- one of the NFL's frequently stated contentions -- when it blocked the Raiders' proposed move to Los Angeles.

Final testimony in the trial concluded Thursday, with closing arguments scheduled to begin next Monday. The jury is expected to get the case later in the week.

Locals Claim Doubles Title

DALLAS -- Snyder bowlers Sherry Holt and Davey Brown won the state doubles title at the Texas Youth State Bowling Tournament held here last weekend.

The team rolled a 1357 to win the championship by approximately 50 pins.

Earlier, they had won doubles at the Texas Youth Regional Bowling Tournament in Lubbock, with a 1307. Miss Holt also won all-events, and teamed with Brown, Ronny Lindsey, Mitch Stone and a substitute from Amarillo, to place second in team competition at the regional meet.

The team, the Snyder Sandbaggers, had placed second in regionals last year, and Brown copped first place all-events. He was one of two Snyder bowlers to receive scholarships presented by the Snyder Men's Bowling Association this year.

Both Brown and Miss Holt have won numerous awards at local and area bowling tournaments.

As a region representative, Miss Holt will captain a team to the Junior Pro-Am, which will be held Aug. 5 in Austin.

Consider the types of medical costs that would be most burdensome to you and be certain to obtain coverage for them. For example, any hospital stay can be expensive. Be sure to have an adequate hospitalization plan. Continuous dental problems may dictate a real need for dental coverage. Outpatient physical therapy is also recommended where the possibility of need exists. Investigate your needs and provide for them through company and or supplementary personal plans.

After you've made a decision on your needs come in and talk to our knowledgeable people at THE DEFFEBACH AGENCY, 1810 27th, 573-5611. Courtney, Taylor Wed In Evening Ceremony Constance Louise Courtney and Robert L. Taylor were joined in marriage on June 27 at eight in the evening in the First United Methodist Church. Rev. David Robertson officiated the single ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Courtney of 2312 31st Street in Snyder and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Taylor, Jr. of Houston.

The altar was decorated with a nine branch brass candelabrum with pink carnations and purple and lavender asters. There were four topiary trees of lemonleaf and leatherleaf fern in shades of purple, lavender and pink asters with satin ribbons flanking the altar.

The musical program as presented by Mrs. Lyn Bethel, organist, and Jane Womack, soloist. Mrs. Bethel performed the traditional processional, "Bridal Chorus" by Wagner, and recessional, "Wedding March" by Mendelssohn, and various other musical selections throughout the ceremony. Ms. Womack sang "O Perfect Love," "Entreat Me Not To Leave Thee" from the oratorio "Ruth" and "Praise The Lord." "Aria" was played by Mrs. Bethel on the chimes immediately following the recessional.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown designed by Ron Lo Vece, fashioned in white organza, silk-faced satin and organdy. It featured an exquisitely draped satin bodice adorned with lace appliques.

The bride carried a cascade of white roses, cymbidium orchids, baby's breath and leatherleaf fern with streamers of bridal picot ribbon.

In keeping with tradition, something for the bride was her ring and wedding gown. Something old, borrowed and blue was Mrs. Charles William Harrell's garter.

Ms. Cindy Spires of Lubbock served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Kathy and Becky Harrell of Snyder, Mrs. Bill Moore and Cindy Taylor, both of Houston.

Each wore a white chiffon dress with a solitary neckline accented in Venice lace inserted with white satin ribbon. The long chiffon sleeves were cuffed in the lace and ribbon. The skirt fell from an Empire waistline adorned with the ribbon lace trim. They carried side cascade bouquets of pink carnations, lavender asters, pink sweetheart roses, baby's breath and touches of needlepoint ivy. They wore halos of pink carnations and pink sweetheart roses and seafoam statice.

The flower girl was Lisa Ward and she wore a long white chiffon dress with long sleeves. Her halo was made of pink carnations, pink sweetheart roses and seafoam statice. Her basket of petals had lavender and pink streamers of satin flowing down it.

Best man was Scott Mitchell of Houston. Groomsmen were James Varner of Shreveport, TX, Randy Courtney of Snyder, Michael Pierce and David Wilma, both of Houston. Ty Springer was an usher.

The best man and groomsmen all wore black tuxedos with white pleated shirts and had white roses as boutonnieres.

The reception was held at Randal's Corner on the Lamesa Highway, hosted by Mrs. Elizabeth Connell, the bride's grandmother.

The bride's table was centered with a silver and crystal epergne decorated with pink roses and lavender alstrameria lilies on a circle of lemonleaf greenery. A three-separation cake in shades of pastels and dark pinks were decorated with cascades of roses and stephanotis. The flowers on the cake were azalias. The top tier held azalias, stephanotis and tiny daisies. Presiding over the table were Mrs. Terry Arnold and Mrs. Gary Brooks.

The groom's table was centered with a bountiful bouquet of yellow gladiolas, western yarrow and orange enchantment lilies. The groom's cake was a carrot cake decorated with marzipan fruit in natural colors. Shana Smith and Mrs. Kelly Burton presided over the table.

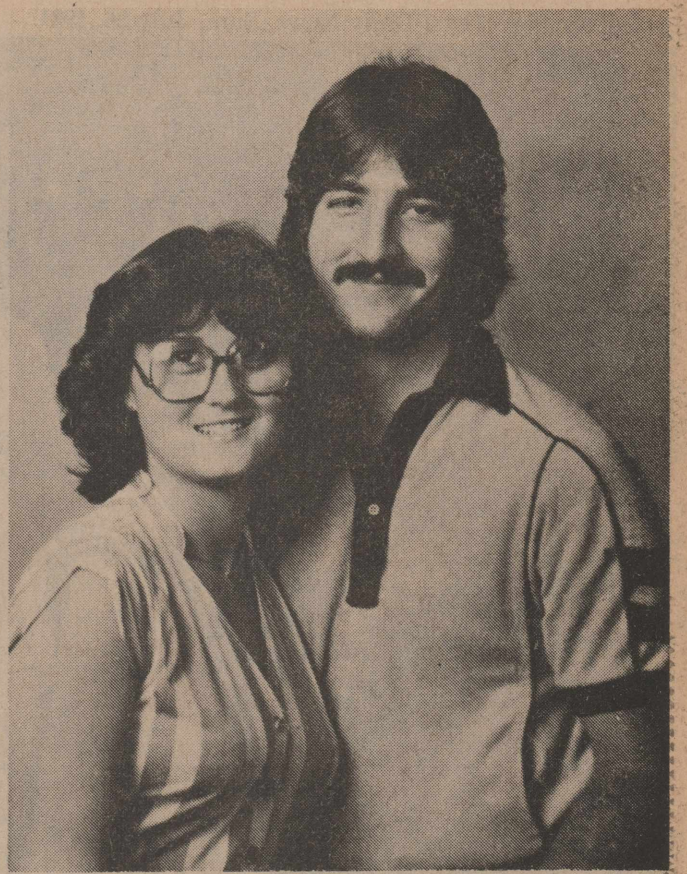

Mrs. Steve Grimmert registered guests in the bride's book. Many friends of the bride's parents and grandmother were in the houseparty.

Following a wedding trip to Colorado and Nevada, the couple is at home in Houston.

The groom is a graduate of St. Joseph's High School in Houston and received his Bio-Med degree from the University of Texas at Austin. He has completed three years of medical school at Baylor Medical School in Houston.

The bride is a graduate of Snyder High School and received her fashion merchandising degree from Texas Tech. She is employed as an assistant buyer at Sakowitz Department Store in Houston.

Many parties were given for the bride by Mrs. Billy Wayne Williams, Mrs. Charles William Harrell, Mrs. J.W. Headstream, Mrs. John Ward, Mrs. Gene Dulaney, Mrs. Dave Harlin, Mrs. Bill Line, Mrs. Dean Floyd, Mrs. Jerry Smith, Mrs. Key Davis and Mrs. Holman Odom. There was also a shower given by thirty-one hostesses.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED— Mr. and Mrs. Nolan Ball announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Michale Louise, to John Edes Greer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jene Greer of Pampa. The wedding will take place on August 8 at 7 p.m. in the Trinity United Methodist Church. (Ted Bigham Photography)

This safety play is an old favorite with bridge writers. Reese and Dormer do not provide bidding, but it is quite likely that North and South would get to seven diamonds at the table. After all, seven diamonds makes easily if clubs break 4-2 or 3-3, which is a trifle better than an 85 percent chance.

However, South finds himself in just six diamonds and it is up to him to take the best chance to make it.

He takes his ace of hearts and enters dummy with the ace of spades in order to lead the first club from dummy. Both opponents follow and now South is ready for the safety play.

He leads a low club from his hand. East wins the trick and can return a trump, but it does him no good. South can still ruff his last two small clubs in dummy, draw trumps and make the slam. Had South banded down the ace and king of clubs, West would have ruffed and led his last trump. South would have been left with three losing clubs and only two trumps in dummy.

Reese and Dormer overlooked the fact that if West opens a trump there is no way for South to make the slam. Because when East got in with his club he would get to lead a second trump. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Banishing bags

If you wake up with pouches under your eyes, opt for one of these easy, 10-minute treatments. Place an ice cube in a small cup of milk. Dip two large cotton pads into the cup of milk and apply to your eyes, in a reclining position, protect from dripping, prop up your head with a pillow. Another alternative is to steep two tea bags, then put in the fridge overnight. The next morning, place over your eyes.

Better balance

To develop feminine grace and improve your balance, take time out for this exercise daily. Standing erect with hands on top of your head, very slowly bend your knees, moving downward until you are sitting on your heels. Pause a split second, then rise upward until you're standing on your toes. Relax with feet flat before repeating. Do 10 times. Tip: Do this on a carpeted area until you've established your balance, in case you topple over.

Stephens, Still Marry In First Baptist Church

The chapel of First Baptist Church was the setting on July 3 at seven o'clock in the evening when Debra Gaye Stephens and Joseph Randal Still were joined in marriage. Rev. Ken Branam officiated the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald D. Stephens of 4016 Irving Avenue and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W.S. Still of Longview, TX.

A heart-shaped candelabrum covered the altar with seventeen clear cups of white candles outlining the heart. Greenery, baby blue ribbon and white starburst mums were in the center of the heart. A basket of white gladiolas were on either side of the altar. The white memory candle with an arrangement of blue and white flowers and greenery was on the left side of the altar and candelabra were placed on the organ and piano with six white candles, blue ribbon and fresh English ivy. Large blue satin ribbon with wedding bells attached to the streamers marked the pews for the parents and grandmothers.

The musical program was presented by Mrs. Wayne Bethel, organist, and Mrs. Chuck Jones, soloist from Shamrock, TX. Mrs. Bethel played traditional marches for the processional and recessional. Mrs. Jones sang "You Light Up My Life," "The Wedding Song" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in an A-line silhouette gown of silk organza and venise lace.

The fitted empire bodice featured a V-shaped sheer brussels embroidery yoke traced with venise lace and a trio of ruffles forming tiny sleeves. Lace traced the waist and contour high neckline. The skirt was highlighted with appliques and a deep circular hemline flounce bordered with lace which extended the full length of the chapel train. Her face was framed with lace which edged her double tiered fingertip length veil of silk french illusion gathered to a matching lace and pearl bandeau.

In keeping with tradition, something old for the bride was a blue broach belonging to her great-grandmother which was worked into her bridal bouquet; something new was her wedding dress; something borrowed was a pair of diamond earrings belonging to her mother and something blue was her garter.

The bride carried a cascade of white carnations, white starburst mums and blue baby's breath highlighted by blue silk roses atop a white Bible which the bride had attained at a young age in Baptist Girl's Auxiliary. The streamers were of baby blue and white picot.

The bride's mother wore a street length dress of ivory chiffon with a permanent pleated skirt with deep splashing flowers. Accessories were bone. Her corsage was of gardenias.

The groom's mother wore a street length dress of deep rose chiffon with lace attached to the sleeves and a full skirt. Her accessories were white and she also wore a gardenia corsage.

Grandmothers of the bride are Mrs. Opal Crow of Abilene and Mrs. Linnie Bains of Cross Plains. They wore street length dresses of shades of pink with matching corsages.

The groom's grandmother, Mrs. Eva Glass of Gentry, AR, wore a street length dress of pink with a corsage of pink silk roses.

Stephanie Stephens, sister of the bride from Midland, was maid of honor and Mrs. Thomas McDorman was bridesmaid. Each wore a formal gown of baby blue eyelet embroidery with a camisole bodice and spaghetti straps trimmed in white with a flowing six gore skirt. They wore combs of blue silk flowers in their hair and carried a long stemmed blue carnation with greenery and baby's breath with blue and white streamers. The bride's mother fashioned the attendants' dresses and hair pieces.

The flower girl was Mallianna Galloway. She was attired identically to the honor attendants and carried a small basket of baby blue silk rose petals. The groom wore a white tuxedo with a white tuxedo shirt and white tie. Best man for the groom was Jeff Stallings of Houston. Groomsman was Ben Southerland, uncle of the groom from Gentry, AR. They wore identical blue tuxedos of baby blue with blue tuxedo shirts and blue ties. Ushers were Roger Gibbs, cousin of the bride from Abilene and Thomas McDorman.

The reception was held in the Garden Room of the First Baptist Church, hosted by the bride's parents. The bride's table was laid with a baby blue double knit tablecloth, attached to a white eyelet embroidery skirt. A wide white stain ribbon was placed down the center of the table. Baby blue ribbon was draped around the ruffle and three baby blue bows accented the table with wedding bells hanging from the streamers. A spiral candle arrangement of fresh blue carnations, white starburst mums, greenery and white baby's breath centered the table. Crystal bells, belonging to the aunt of the bride, Mrs. Dale Gibbs of Abilene, accented the table. The three tiered wedding cake was decorated with tiny baby blue rosebuds, baby blue silk carnations and wedding bells accented the center of two layers of the cake. Appointments were of crystal and silver. Presiding over the table were Miss Michele Graves of Dallas and Mrs. Kyle Rosson of Abilene.

Mallianna and Duffie Galloway handed out baby blue rice bags which were made of rose buds placed in small baskets and used as decorations for the garden area.

Miss Michele Graves registered guests in the bride's book. The register table was covered with a white eyelet embroidered cloth with white doves accented the round table and a baby blue bow attached to the ruffle.

Members of the house party were Mr. and Mrs. Pat Mayo and Jay, Mr. and Mrs. D.W. McCommas and Mrs. Barney Tate.

Out of town guests were from Abilene, Baird, Cross Plains, Dallas, Houston, Longview, San Antonio, Shamrock, Spur and Gentry, AR.

Following a wedding trip to San Antonio, the couple is at home in Odessa in the Viva Apartments.

The bride is a 1974 graduate of Snyder High School and attended Western Texas College. She graduated from Texas Tech University with a BBA degree in General Business and is employed with Getty Oil Company as an engineering assistant in Odessa.

The groom graduated from Refugio High School in 1974 and graduated from Southwest Texas State University with a BS degree in Physics. He is employed with Gulf Oil Company as an engineering technician in Midland.

The groom's parents hosted the rehearsal dinner the evening before the wedding at the Shack.

The bride was honored with a gift tea by some friends in Snyder and an office gift party in Odessa a few days before the wedding. The bride and groom were honored with a gift luncheon at the Gulf Building in Midland before the wedding.

Out of town guests were from Abilene, Baird, Cross Plains, Dallas, Houston, Longview, San Antonio, Shamrock, Spur and Gentry, AR.

For going away, the bride wore a sundress with a matching jacket of taupe trimmed in white, with white accessories. She also wore diamond earrings, a gift of the groom, and her corsage was of blue carnations and white starburst mums taken from her bridal bouquet.

Too Much Sun Damages Skin

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP)—Sun-bronzed skin might be the ideal fostered by Madison Avenue and Hollywood, but an Austin dermatologist says tanned skin is damaged skin.

In a handful of cases, says Dr. Eugene P. Schoch Jr., melanomas—an often fatal form of skin cancer—can result from repeated exposure to the sun.

He warned against suntanning booths and offered guidance to people who insist on going out in the sun.

Schoch said most of the rays emitted by suntanning bulbs are Ultraviolet B (UVB), the rays that burn. A tan obtained from UVB bulbs in a tanning salon is more damaging to the skin than one obtained outdoors, he said, and the damage to skin cells "could be twice as great as the noonday sun."

"There is no standardization, and you don't know what you are going to get when you go into a suntan booth," Schoch said.

Schoch published his views in Texas Medicine, the journal of the Texas Medical Association, and elaborated on them in an interview.

"Many sunbathers—mostly youths but also many athletically-minded adults—equate dark-bronze tanned skin with health. As far as cutaneous (skin) health is concerned, nothing could be more incorrect. Suntanned skin is damaged skin," Schoch wrote.

He said that besides sunburn, there are other other damaging effects of the sun's ultraviolet rays on the skin.

"Chronic long-term sun exposure produces aging of the skin. Dryness, thin-ing and variegated pigmentation eventually lead to development of precancerous actinic keratoses and cutaneous (skin) malignancies," Schoch said.

"Excessive sun exposure increases the incidence of malignant melanomas of the skin."

While the melanoma connection is difficult to document, Schoch said dermatologists are convinced it is there, with the highest risk among people with lots of freckles or moles.

"Certain types of mole can be pushed over the brink and become malignant," he said.

Schoch said he has observed an increase in skin cancers, including melanomas, over the life of his 30-year practice, which coincides with the growth of what he calls the "fetish for sunbathing."

Schoch explained in an interview that not all sun worshippers or persons forced by their occupations to work in the sun will get skin cancers, but many will.

Virtually everybody with "Type I" skin, which always burns and never tans, will develop precancerous conditions and skin cancer if exposed continually to the sun, he said.

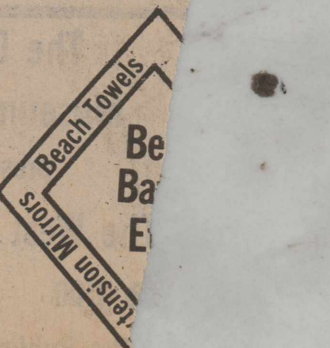

Schoch suggested that risks of sun damage can be reduced by sunscreens and by engaging in outdoor recreation before 10 a.m. and after 4 p.m.

Sunscreens are rated to 15, based on their skin protection factors (SPF). "You get the greatest protection from a lotion rate SPF15, which Schoch said substantially excludes the sun's ultraviolet tanning and burning rays.

"Some manufacturer claim factors above 15, 15 is the highest off rating of the FDA (Food and Drug Administration)," he said.

Drug stores routinely stock sunscreen that can be purchased without a prescription must be labeled with skin protection numbers.

Marie Antoinette, the French queen, is said to have used a mixture of rice and milk to protect her skin.

Orrin Johnson Quietly Built Legal Reputation

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — Orrin Johnson quietly built a reputation in Texas legal circles as a prominent civil trial lawyer long before two events catapulted him into state and national headlines this year.

Common Cause, a national public interest lobby group, selected him for one of six public service achievement awards in recognition of his work with a local "citizens watchdog" group.

Then his fellow lawyers voted him president-elect of the 36,000-member State Bar of Texas.

As a private attorney for several school districts, he also jumped into the controversy now before the U.S. Supreme Court over whether the Texas must educate illegal aliens.

Those activities, along with a highly successful law practice, keep Johnson busy, shuttling between Austin, his home in Harlingen and the state and federal courthouses in Brownsville.

Johnson, 61, was born in Minneapolis, Minn., of Swedish descent. His family moved to Texas when he was 4. He received his undergraduate and law degrees from the University of Texas.

His entire 34 years in private practice have been in Harlingen, where he is a partner in a firm of seven lawyers.

In an interview in his modest office, Johnson talked about illegal alien education, possible cutbacks in legal services for the poor and other issues.

"This is going to be one of the major cases in the United States," he said of Texas' fight against being forced to provide free education to illegal aliens, most of whom are Mexican nationals.

U.S. District Judge Woodrow Seals of Houston last year struck down a state law prohibiting free schooling to undocumented children.

The U.S. Justice Department has sided with lawyers representing illegal alien children as a class. Attorneys for the children argued the state law was discriminatory and would mean a greater burden to society in the future if a class of people grew up without an education.

Johnson filed intervening papers for the several Rio Grande Valley school districts in support of Texas Attorney General Mark White.

State and local officials blame the federal government's inability to enforce immigration laws with creating the school problem. They say Uncle Sam should pay to educate the aliens.

"There's certainly great reasons for compassion and sympathy for the children," Johnson said, "but there are very practical reasons why we should not accelerate the inflow of illegal aliens into the United States."

"We are across the river from a nation with a 3.6 percent annual population growth. Mexico has got unemployment at 40 percent," he added. "The pressures to move over here are great."

But admitting children who speak no English forces schools to divert teachers and resources from other students. The poor Valley districts, with low tax bases, cannot afford a steady influx of aliens who value a free education in this country, he said.

"We're looking at a world in which the United States is a very small part. We've already learned in Vietnam that we can't do all things," said Johnson.

On a matter facing lawyers nationwide, Johnson said the country's poor would suffer immediately if the Reagan Administration succeeds in plans to abolish the Legal Services Corp. The corporation provides grants to local legal aid offices, which handle civil work for little or no fee to low-income people.

"The State Bar has taken a position that it should not be abolished but it doesn't look good," he said. "Who's going to serve those poor people. Somebody's got to do it."

Johnson said he has asked local bar associations to revive programs of volunteer free legal work in civil cases. Unlike criminal matters, a person is not entitled to a court-appointed lawyer in a civil proceeding.

"I believe in pro bono (free) legal work. A lawyer owes that to society, if you can afford it. I know some lawyers can't," he said.

Reagan picked a well-qualified person in nominating Sandra O'Connor to the U.S. Supreme Court, he said.

"It's interesting that they didn't consult the bar," he said of traditional practice — also ignored by Richard Nixon — to submit potential nominees to the American Bar Association for review.

If confirmed by the U.S. Senate, she possibly could hear arguments in a court case that led to his award from Common Cause, Johnson said.

In 1979, he said founded the Cameron County Good Government League to keep an eye on county officials. As the GGL's general counsel, Johnson filed suit over what he called illegal budget and public bidding practices.

A state appeals court recently reversed a lower court judge, who had dismissed the case. The appeals court ordered a full trial of the suit. Johnson said the case could end up in the U.S. Supreme Court in an interesting test of what kind of governmental actions can be challenged by citizen groups.

The GGL accused County Judge Ray Ramon of trying to wield a one-man rule in the state's southernmost district.

Its detractors charge the GGL with being a racist and political — not the claim-spirited group it claims to be.

"I believe that the GGL is a political organization that was organized for one single purpose and that is to discredit the county administration generally and specifically and primarily yours truly," Ramon said.

Theo Brown of Common Cause's Washington office said the national organization investigated those charges and was satisfied of Johnson's integrity before selecting him for the award.

Despite his heavy schedule of State Bar activities, Johnson said he plans to continue donating free legal work to the GGL. He will become bar president July 1982, after a year's "internship."

"It was obvious that the object and purpose of what was going on in early 1979 was to put together a political machine in Cameron County of the old 'patron' system, like the Parris of Duval County or the Martins of Webb," he said of why the GGL was founded.

State School Superintendent. . .

People Protest Firing

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A former legislator said Friday that state officials fired the Richmond State School superintendent after interviewing employees who disliked him because he made them "go to work."

"They used to go to the beauty parlor and do their damn shopping during the day," said former Rep. Joe Hubenak.

A sobbing mother, a television executive and a current legislator also asked the State Board of Mental Health and Mental Retardation to reconsider the firing of James Law, who was not at the meeting.

Parents of children at the school came here by bus for the meeting. The board fired Law on July 13 upon the recommendation of MHMR Commissioner John Kavanagh, who previously had said Law should be kept in the job.

"He cleans up and he gets the shaft," said Hubenak.

The board listened to the complaints, but Chairman L. Gray Beck of San Angelo said no action could be taken because the matter was not on the agenda. He said he would "consider" whether to schedule it for the next meeting.

Law worked for the department for 19 years. Kavanagh said Law was fired because of a "difference of opinions ... concerning the style of management" at the state school for the retarded.

Beck and Kavanagh would not be more specific about the allegations. On May 18, Kavanagh had recommended that Law be retained as superintendent. He said that recommendation was changed when department officials "learned of some problems" at the school.

Several present and former employees were interviewed, and the decision was made to fire Law, Kavanagh said.

After the meeting, Hubenak, who used to represent the Richmond area, said some employees did not like Law because, "He made people go to work."

Linda Hutcheson of Conroe, who has a 21-year-old son at the state school, said Law did a good job at the facility. Mrs. Hutcheson wept as she spoke about her son and the school.

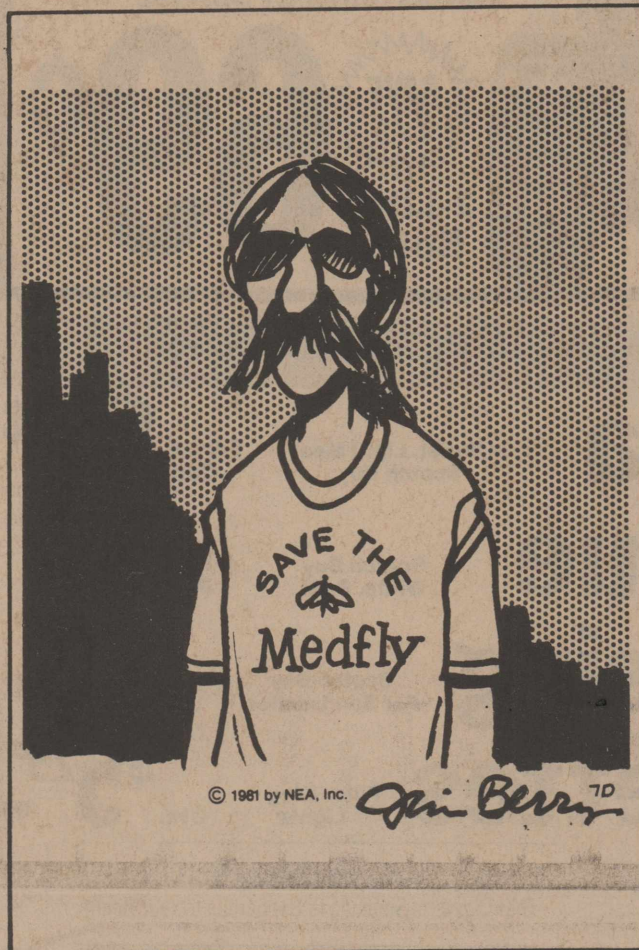

She brought a resolution from the parents association at the school urging that Law be rehired.

The group also asked for an investigation of the mental retardation division of the agency.

Frank Melton of Tyler, executive vice president of Buford Television, said the board has created a "management monster."

The altar held two fifteen point candelabra intertwined with fern branches and centered with yellow bows. A unity candle sat to the side of the altar.

The musical program was presented by Marilyn Arland, pianist. She played various melodies including "Lady", "Evergreen", "With you I'm Born Again" and "Whither Thou Goest."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal ivory gown. It featured an empire waist and was sleeveless. The dress had a Queen Anne neckline and the train was connected to the dress at the shoulders. She wore baby's breath in her hair. The bride carried a bouquet of ivory and yellow roses, daisies and baby's breath. All the flowers were handmade by Bettina Bouton, a bridesmaid from Brownfield.

The maid of honor was Miss Nancy Sumner of Lubbock. Bridesmaids were Miss Bettina Bouton and Miss Susan Rinker of Snyder. Each wore a yellow gown of polyester knit with double spaghetti straps, a gathered bodice and empire waistline. The dress also featured a pleated skirt and a capelet of nylon chiffon knit. They carried silk bouquets with ivory and yellow roses, daisies and baby's breath.

Travelers Urged To Visit Europe

NEW YORK (AP) — Harry Haralambopoulos tends to speak of Europe as a single nation — and yet he isn't stepping on any national toes when he does it. In fact, he's speaking for 23 countries as diverse as Cyprus and Finland, Britain and Turkey, Malta and Yugoslavia.

Utopia? A United States of Europe? No, it's Western Europe as seen by the European Travel Commission headed by Haralambopoulos — and granted you have to stretch things to include all those countries under "Western." The commission helps member countries lure Americans to Europe. About 4 million are lured each year.

"We think of Europe as one destination," he said in a recent New York interview, "because if an American goes to, say, Britain, France and Switzerland in one year I'm sure he'll go back to discover the rest of the countries."

Haralambopoulos says it's the diversity contained in this one destination that is what people like about it. "First of all you have a tremendous concentration of distinct civilizations. You have a variety of scenes and customs and habits, the wealth of artistic experiences, museums, gastronomic experiences."

His advice to Americans is to take advantage of all this — and leave some of their American habits at home. Take the transportation the locals do, he urges, which means buses, subways — and railroads.

"Look," he says, "fly to Paris, but if you want to tour Europe, jump on a railway. They're always on time, clean and enjoyable."

Also, he urges, eat and drink what the locals do — where they do it. Why should an American, he asks, drink French and Italian wines at home and then, in France or Italy, insist on vodka or whiskey? Haralambopoulos took his own first trip abroad at the age of 4, with his family, from Greece to Vienna and Budapest. By train. He loved it.

Like many Greeks he went into shipping — but moving people, not freight. He worked for the Chandris and Costa lines.

"I remember opening the cruising business to Israel as early as the late '50s. Actually, I was the recipient of an award by the American Jewish Committee last year. It was an award for the humanities. I'm very proud of it."

Concerning the travel business: "It's a nice, creative business. You're dealing with human beings, you don't deal with things. It's a pleasure."

From shipping, Haralambopoulos went to the Greek National Tourist Organization. He's the head of its operations for the Western Hemisphere, with headquarters in New York. The European Travel Commission is made up of the national tourist organizations of the member countries, and they elect the chairman — an unpaid honor. Haralambopoulos is serving his second two-year term.

While Haralambopoulos sells Europe to Americans, and returns to Greece for business and pleasure about a dozen times a year, he's a relatively permanent resident of New York. It's a "fantasy" city, he says, "very alive. You have the theater — the best in the world — opera, two opera houses, superb opera houses. There's a special air in New York."

Opera buff Haralambopoulos loves breathing that air.

5 decades of madness

"A shameful charade of a legislative process gone mad."

That tag was hung on President Ronald Reagan's victory of a 232-193 House vote approving federal reductions of $43 billion for fiscal 1982. It was hung on the victory by combative Democrats who fought the cuts to the bitter end.

They said the budget cut package was drawn so hastily that they didn't have time to read it. This is a reasonable complaint. But beneath the complaint is an unreasonable mode of behavior that has gone on for almost a half-century in Washington.

For nearly five decades, Capitol Hill has been dominated by fiscal irresponsibility and spending mania in the budget department. In 1933, when there sped the first tiny thunderhead of the trouble to come, federal spending was below $4.6 billion. In 1940 it reached about $9.5 billion. In 1944 and in 1945, at the height of World War II, it was below $93 billion. In 1946, the first post-war year, it fell to $55 billion and in 1948 to less than $30 billion.

Slowly then it began to take off reaching $42.6 billion in 1950, $92.2 billion in 1960, $196.6 billion in 1970 and a staggering $311.1 billion in 1980. During those years the national debt climbed from $22.55 billion to $898.9 billion, reflecting incredible deficits that spendthrift politicians piled up year after year.

And during these decades the splurgers, no matter how well intended, each year packed bigger, fatter grab-bags of goodies like food stamps for college students and strikers and sloppy benefits that spilled billions of dollars into the pockets of persons who abused the programs.

During the same time Americans were increasingly hard hit not only by spiraling taxes but by the cruel "invisible tax" of inflation. The dollar that was worth 100 cents in 1938 was worth only 41 cents by 1968. As it sank in value to 20 cents, then toward a dime, economists began calculating the decline from a new base year.

The dollar that was worth 100 cents in 1957 was worth only 44 cents by 1978. So-called "benefits" for the poor and helpless and aged were being paid out in this constantly cheaper funny money. They were the most pitiful victims of all.

So fast did the dollar fall that a new base year was picked. The dollar that was worth 100 cents in 1967 was worth less than 50 cents by 1979 and still falling fast.

And the same pickpocket mentality that gave us the 10-cent dollar, the close to trillion-dollar national debt and the $662.7 billion deficit had the effrontery to try and saddle America with a fiscal 1982 budget of $793.3 billion.

Lots of people saw it coming. That's why so many voted for Ronald Reagan last November. And now many of them believe that President Reagan is all the more courageous and supportable for not playing the demagogue when the occasion demands sterner stuff.

Americans who know how close the economy is to disaster will back him and those members of Congress who are trying to help put an end to the long nightmare of "a shameful charade of legislative process gone mad."

The feller on Deep Creek says, "A wife that uses common horse sense seldom ends up being a nag."

July was declared Clean-up, Paint-up, Fix-up Month by the Snyder city council.

With the exception of city crews cutting weeds, mowing vacant lots and painting curbs, there has been little done here in the way of shining up the city.

Recently the Amities Study Club in Snyder declared war on litter in Snyder, and there has been a host of work done. Litter bags are available for every automobile in Snyder.

But much more needs to be done. Snyder can no longer rest on the awards of the past. More than 10 years have past since Snyder was chosen for the Sparkle City award and later for the All-American City honor.

There is now need for fresh paint and a resurgence of the pride that existed during that era. Unless we get serious about the town's appearance, much of the work of the past will have been in vain.

Entrances to the city need to be evaluated. Old cars need to be removed and dilapidated buildings need to be torn down. Everybody favors such measures, but most of us are waiting for the other guy to get the job done.

Snyder has never been an average city. The parks, the public buildings are indication that its citizens never intended it to be an average place to rear a family.

One area that needs immediate attention is the litter left in public parks and parking lots each evening. Frankly, we think young people need a place to congregate and visit, but a continuation of the litter problem will eventually jeopardize that right to those parking lots. The young people themselves can police and solve this problem.

Another related area is vandalism, one of the most senseless and costly crimes in any community. Vandalism is on the increase in Snyder, and that does not reflect the typical pride exhibited by all Snyder residents—both young and old.

Public parks and restrooms are targets of vandalism, shrubs and trees are being hit as are windows, tires and other private property.

For someone to drive a car across someone's new lawn is inexcusable. It is a basic disregard for the rights and property of others.

Repair is costly whether it is private property or public. It's an unnecessary expense that fuels the problems associated with inflation.

What can be done about it? Start where you are and influence your family and friends. Pride can be contagious.

I don't know how people who have no children have a time frame for anything.

How do they remember the year they bought the freezer? Made the last payment on the storm windows? Visited their cousins in Richmond?

I don't remember the names of my kids, but I remember how big they were when we bought the camper and how old they were when I joined a book club.

Maybe it's because kids have a way of making an indelible impression on you with everything they do. All I know is, my sister-in-law (who has five children) and I carry on some interesting conversations.

S-I-L: Do you remember the year you came to Florida and we fed the alligators frozen bread?

Me: Of course I remember.

S-I-L: What year was that?

Me: Let's see, the baby must have been a couple of months old because we left him with a sitter.

S-I-L: Are you sure it was the baby? Because my baby was two and there's a two-and-a-half-years' difference.

Me: There's not two and a half years because you sent me the maternity clothes after you gave birth and I was just two months.

S-I-L: You went into maternity clothes at two months?

Me: I went into maternity clothes at two weeks!

S-I-L: The Florida room wasn't finished then because that's the year Patty went into braces.

Me: Wait a minute. We had just bought the Plymouth wagon because one of the kids threw up in it and we threatened to leave him in that store where they sell pralines.

S-I-L: You couldn't have, because Bill chipped his front tooth on the dashboard of that Plymouth and they were his second ones so he had to have been eight or nine.

Me: Wait a minute. My daughter was old enough to dial a phone because she called the dentist, remember?

S-I-L: She couldn't have. That was the year she went to camp and got stung by bees and you had to drive all the way home to New York.

Me: We never lived in New York.

S-I-L: Are you sure? Then why are you pretending you fed the alligators frozen bread? That was my other sister-in-law. Her baby is the same age as yours.

Me: So she's the one who got the neat maternity clothes!

Don't believe everything you read-not even what may on occasion appear in this space.

The subject a few weeks back was the memorial to be constructed honoring those who served in Vietnam. Strikingly different for monumental Washington in a number of respects, it will be of black granite, not white marble. And it will consist not of the usual neo-classic pillars but of two low walls, intersecting in a shallow V, upon which will be engraved the names of 57,692 war dead. But not, it was noted, that of the war in which they died.

Incorrectly noted. The suggestion that there will be no direct reference to Vietnam is an error that has popped up here and, previously, elsewhere—possibly resulting from a misinterpretation of the project's stated purpose to create "a memorial not to honor the war but rather to honor the sacrifices of Vietnam veterans."

Whatever the origin, it is a misconception that the memorial's sponsors are anxious to dispel. The finished structure, they assure, will make it perfectly clear that it is those who fought and died in Vietnam who are being honored.

Those sponsors are another difference about this memorial. Although some hold or have held public office—Gen. William C. Westmoreland, Ret., former President Gerald R. Ford and former Sen. George McGovern, incumbent Sen. Barry Goldwater—they are acting as private citizens. The Vietnam Veterans Memorial Fund is a private, nonprofit organization established in 1979 to promote public interest in the project and to raise money for construction.

It was a slow start. By July 4 of the first year, a grand total of $144.50 had come in. But interest has picked up since, including in Congress which has donated a site on national park land, Washington's Mall.

A national competition for a design was won earlier this year by a Yale University architecture student, Maya Ying Lin, 21, who defeated more than 1,400 other entrants, including her professor.

In her own description, "the memorial appears as a rift in the earth—a long, polished black stone wall, emerging from and receding into the earth." On it will be carved in chronological order, with dates of death the names, "seemingly infinite in number," of all the service men and women known to have died in Vietnam. The walls will point respectively toward the Washington and Lincoln memorials unifying the nation's recent experience with its past.

The two-acre, tree-bordered mall site is the government's only direct contribution to the memorial project. Construction money—an estimated $7 million—is being raised through donations from corporations, foundations and individuals.

It is being called "the people's memorial," the one the government did not build. Wisely, it might be argued. The American government's role in the development and conduct of the Vietnam conflict is still the stuff of dispute. But there can be no argument about the American people's responsibilities toward those who served in it.

"The memorial will make no political statement about the war," the fund's founder, veteran Jan Craig Scruggs, has explained. "As is proper, because in coming to grips with the history of Vietnam, our nation must separate the war itself from the issue of how the veterans served their country."

To those people who want to be included in, contributions may be sent to the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Fund, Washington, D.C., 20098. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

letter to the editor

To The Daily News:

We would like to take this means of expressing a complaint against the manner in which the barn in Towle Park is managed.

One year ago our family (which consists of 13 children—five generations) called and reserved the barn for our family reunion. We were assured it would be available for this past weekend and we then made our plans for all of our families to attend.

Three days before our reunion, we were informed that there had been a "mistake in reservations" and that we would have to cancel our plans. We were unable to find any other accommodations on such short notice and were forced to cancel our reunion and hold a small gathering out in the open park in 103-degree heat. Our parents were unable to attend, although they had been planning on it for over a year, due to the fact that my father is 90 years old.

The night of the reunion, we were informed by the people who manage the barn that we could have the barn for the next Sunday. So, we made more arrangements with our families.

The very next night we were called again and told that there had been another "mistake" and that we would have to cancel again.

We have been out extra expenses and have been disappointed twice in one week just because of someone who cannot manage their jobs properly.

We realize that the barn is there for everyone's use, but why should we be made to cancel two times in one short week?

Your Birthday

July 26, 1981

You could establish in the year ahead some new and important relationships with people who can cut pesky red tape for you. These contacts may be found in the ranks of clubs or social groups to which you belong.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your bright, cheery presence will have a pleasant effect on your friends today. Even one who is glum won't be able to stay so. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph that begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your companions and associates aren't apt to be as strongly motivated and ambitious as you are today. That's why you'll be an achiever and they won't. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Because you are so cognizant of treating others fairly today, arrangements you work out with your peers will have an excellent chance for success.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Changes may throw others a bit off-kilter today, but they tend to work to your advantage. When compelled to switch directions, you'll find a luckier course.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll be happiest today if you can find a cheerful chum to pal around with or, better yet, participate in an activity with a group you enjoy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're lucky today taking care of matters relating to your business or career as early as possible. After that's accomplished, you'll have ample time to lounge in the hammock.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Put as much space as possible today between yourself and material matters. Spend all the time you can doing that which you thoroughly enjoy.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A wise man once said, "Everything comes to him who waits." Be patient today if you're involved in something important. Happy endings are in sight.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're likely to be a trifle restless today, so you'd better plan an active agenda. Spacing your time to visit several friends will soothe your antsy spirit.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Even though this isn't considered a normal business day, you could be quite lucky in your commercial dealings. A good time to bargain-hunt.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Select fun activities today where you can exercise your talents as a social director. You'll know how to plan things so that everyone has a good time.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Something out of the ordinary might develop today that could prove advantageous for you and family members as well. Money may be involved.

July 27, 1981

Friendships with two persons with whom you are reasonably "tight" now will greatly strengthen over the coming months. You could even have difficulty deciding which one is your best friend.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be very careful today about repeating hearsay information or gossip. You could unintentionally give credence to something completely false. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Set worthy goals today, but don't demand of yourself things which exceed your capabilities and talents. Operate within your proven abilities.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Do things today in accord with your high standards, even if others operate on different wavelengths. Make them come up to your level.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In material ways you tend to be more fortunate for others today than you are for yourself. Don't despair. They'll later balance-out accounts.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) In partnership arrangements or situations requiring team effort, don't let your pride get in your way if your cohort does things better than you do.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Fulfilling your ambitious aims is admirable, but try to consider others today as well as yourself. Help them where you can. Their "not just me."

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Whatever you undertake today, you're likely to do it well and efficiently. Someone lacking your talents, however, could be a trifle jealous and fail to give you credit.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 21) Don't be overly concerned about your image with outsiders today. The important thing is to operate so as to those who count the right of ion of you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Unfortunately, not even you'll deal with today is as be as frank and open with as you are with them. What is told to you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't rely too heavily on verbal commitments to commercial or money. For safety's sake, have terms spelled out on paper.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) could be even more than usual with the sex today, but take don't, thoughtlessly feelings of a sensitive.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You have what it takes to successfully toe doubts could sever your optimism. Dv tives, not negative.

Watercolors To Go On Exhibit

Prize-winning paintings from the 32nd annual exhibition of the Texas Watercolor Society will be featured in the Scurry County Museum at Western Texas College from Aug. 2-23.

"The paintings in this current exhibition report on the high quality of work of the Texas Watercolor Society," Ethel Magfan, juror, said. "The best paintings in this exhibition would hold up in any national water media exhibition. The work is strong, diverse and vital."

"I gave my best effort and careful judgment to get a well-balanced exhibition, with a cross section of various styles drawn from the work brought before me. There was a wide variety of techniques and concepts..." she concluded.

The museum will close its display of antique and new quilts Tuesday. Paintings by July Artist-of-the-Month Viola (Peg) Gracey, will continue on display through mid-August. The museum is open each weekday and from 1 p. m. to 5 p. m. on Sundays without admission charge.

The first American steam locomotive, the Tom Thumb, was constructed by Peter Cooper in 1830.

Working On

Space Shuttle

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Technicians working to prepare the space shuttle Columbia for its second launch, now set for Sept. 30, say an ignition problem may delay the takeoff.

George Page, director of shuttle operations at Kennedy Space Center, said the ignition of Columbia's two solid rocket boosters during liftoff puts the rear end of the orbiter under too much pressure.
