FIGHT OVER GAS — Service station owner Hyeoun Han, left, points angrily toward a customer dumping gasoline out of a can during rush-hour business in Los Angeles Thursday. The customer ignored instructions not to put more than a dollar's worth of gas in the can and, when Han shut off the pump, dumped the fuel on the pavement. (AP Laserphoto)

House Approves Local Court Bill

A-J News Services

AUSTIN — A controversial bill allowing municipal courts of record in Lubbock passed the Texas House this morning without incident, seven weeks after the legislation was approved by the Senate.

An amendment on the bill to allow two current Municipal Court judges to remain in office until next spring's city elections must now be approved by the Senate, then the legislation will be sent to the governor.

Lubbock Mayor Dirk West said he was "delighted" by the news of the bill's passage, adding, "I look forward to being able to having a court of record to put teeth into our traffic laws."

West added the city council, which tagged the court of record bill its "number one legislative priority," is "very appreciative of the work on the bill" by Sen. E.L. Short of Tahoka, and Reps. Froy Salinas and Nolan "Buzz" Robnett of Lubbock.

Caught in the midst of a parliamentary struggle between Salinas and Dallas Rep. Ray Keller, it appeared last week that the bill might never survive the legislative process.

However, with the passage of a Dallas police and fire pension bill on Thursday, which Salinas had blocked because of Dallas lobbying efforts on car tax exemptions, the way was clear for the court of record legislation.

When the bill finally was voted on this morning, it took the House about five seconds and no discussion to approve the measure.

The House also gave final approval to a bill sponsored by Short changing the name of Texas Tech University School of Medicine to the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center.

Legislation sponsored by Rep. Jim Rudd of Brownfield making it a Class A misdemeanor to drive while under the influence of drugs also was passed.

Tempers flared in the Senate today as conservative lawmakers, riled at absences of liberals trying to block Senate action, voted 14-2 to order the arrest of 14 missing senators in the first so-called "call on the Senate" in a decade.

Lt. Gov. William P. Hobby ordered Sergeant-at-arms Kelly Arnold to hunt down and bring back senators who failed to appear at the Capitol for the scheduled 9:30 a.m. session of the Senate.

Texas Rangers, Department of Public Safety patrolmen and Capitol security guards were dispatched across the capital city and state to find the missing senators — most of them part of a group Hobby has termed "killer bees" for their persistent efforts to slow down and block votes on bills such as Hobby's proposal for a separate presidential primary.

"You and any other officers appointed by you are directed to arrest and bring to the Senate chamber any senators shown to be absent on the last roll call," Hobby told Arnold.

Hobby had put senators on notice Thursday that he planned to lay out for debate at the start of today's session a bill dealing with primary elections that liberals fear will be used as a vehicle for the separate presidential proposal.

With 14 senators absent, however, the Senate lacked a quorum and was unable to act.

"Mr. President, I move to put a call on the Senate," Sen. Peyton McKnight, D-Tyler, said at 9:59 a.m.

Eight other senators seconded the Profit Surge Slows Down

WASHINGTON (AP) — Business profits continued at record levels in the first three months of this year, but much of the gain is attributed to inflation, the government said today.

At the same time, the Commerce Department reduced its estimate of the nation's first-quarter economic growth from 0.7 percent to 0.4 percent. "The slowdown was attributable to sales," said a department statement.

Before-tax profits for the first quarter were at an annual rate of $226.9 billion, up 0.9 percent from the fourth quarter of 1978, the statement said.

The new total eclipsed the record $224.9 billion in profits at an annual rate in the last three months of 1978. Profits were $54.8 billion, or 32 percent, ahead of those of the first quarter last year.

The department attributed much of the increase to a higher valuation of inventories because of inflation.

When adjusted for taxes and inflation, profits from current production actually showed a 6 percent drop in the first quarter to an annual $166 billion total, the statement said.

"That's the first decline since the first quarter of last year, when weather was awful and there was a coal strike," said department spokesman Kenneth A. Petrick.

Fourth-quarter profits last year, adjusted for taxes and inventory inflation, had been $176.6 billion on an annual basis.

The Commerce Department also reported that the nation's gross national product, the total value of output of goods and services in the economy, grew at an 0.4 percent annual rate, down from an 0.7 percent rate estimated previously.

The lower figure showed the economy dipping close to the recession level, although economists expect a rebound in the second quarter. A recession is said to occur when the economy shows negative growth for two consecutive quarters.

The figure the government uses to adjust for inflation was boosted in the first quarter from 8.7 percent to 8.8 percent, compared with 8.2 percent in the final three months of 1978.

Israel Raids Terrorists In Lebanon

SARAFAND, Lebanon (AP) — More than 150 Israeli commandos stormed ashore behind a barrage from missile boats and helicopter gunships and fought a savage, two-hour battle with guerrilla defenders at a Palestinian coastal base in southern Lebanon before pulling out, guerrilla commanders and local authorities reported today.

The attack, involving machine guns, grenades and armor-piercing rockets, came as Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin offered to meet with Jordan's King Hussein for peace talks and an Israeli Cabinet committee endorsed Begin's plan for Palestinian autonomy despite Defense Minister Ezer Weizman's opposition.

Guerrilla commanders in this Palestinian-controlled town said the fighting occurred Thursday night in guerrilla-held areas between the towns of Insariyeh and Adloun overlooking southern Lebanon's Mediterranean highway 21 miles north of the Israeli frontier. The scene was two miles south of Sarafand and 40 miles south of Beirut.

The Israeli command in Tel Aviv said the commandos blew up a Palestinian training camp near Adloun, destroyed buildings and ammunition stockpiles, killed an undisclosed number of guerrillas, and that all of the attackers returned safely.

The guerrillas reported a Palestinian and a Lebanese were wounded and said "many" Israelis were killed or wounded and evacuated by helicopter.

The raid was made two days after a Palestinian terrorist bomb killed two teen-age boys and injured 32 other persons in the northern Israeli town of Tiberias, on the shore of the Sea of Galilee.

The Palestine Liberation Organization claimed responsibility for the Tiberias bombing, but the Israeli army statement made no mention of the raid being retaliatory. Instead, military sources said the base was used by the Syrian-backed Saiqa guerrilla organization. Saiqa is one of the eight guerrilla armies under the PLO umbrella.

Israel has blamed the Syrian band for a spate of attacks on Jews and Israelis in Europe this spring, including two bombings in Paris March 20 that wounded 20 Jewish students, the bombing of an Israeli Embassy on Cyprus April 15 and an attack on a Jewish community building in Vienna April 22.

The commando strike appeared to be part of the government's newly-declared "war of attrition" against guerrillas based in Lebanon.

Gas Rationing Plan Picks Up Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — A high Energy Department official today endorsed a proposal that Americans leave their cars home one day each week as a way of overcoming gasoline shortages.

David Bardin, head of the department's Economic Regulatory Administration, also told a congressional hearing the California gasoline squeeze is caused by a worldwide shortage of crude oil and is not contrived by big oil companies.

"The gasoline shortage is real," Bardin said, "because the planet Earth has been producing less crude oil than people want."

He said that the best way to cope with the shortage is for people to drive less.

"Leave your car home one day a week and we can get through it," Bardin said.

He testified before two House panels conducting simultaneous investigations of West Coast gas shortages.

Panel members expressed skepticism over the Carter administration's handling of the shortages.

"There is complete and total confusion everywhere I go about gas shortages. People don't even believe there is an energy crisis," said Rep. Mathew J. Rinaldo, R-N.J.

Bardin said many gasoline stations are overcharging customers, but the true extent of overcharges is hard to determine because the government only audits a fraction of the nation's 187,000 service stations.

Some alleged overcharges have been as high as 24 cents a gallon over the maximum price allowed under federal regulations, Bardin said.

Nationally, 7,000 service stations are being asked to explain "unusually high" prices, another 2,000 are targeted for formal investigations and 847 stations already have been cited for overcharging, he said.

In advance of the hearings, Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Texas, chairman of the House subcommittee on oversight and investigations, said public suspicions about the reality of fuel shortages "are at their highest level since the Arab oil embargo of 1973."

The other hearing was held by a House Commerce energy and power subcommittee.

Eckhardt said the Carter administration — which now is predicting a 5 percent gasoline shortage this summer — has done little to effectively persuade Americans that oil shortages aren't contrived by big oil companies.

"We intend to get beyond the rumors and fiction to put the facts on the public record for once and for all," Eckhardt said.

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the second panel conducting the inquiry, claimed that "gasoline pricing violations appear to be at a record high equaled only by public suspicions of the oil industry's responsibility for current shortages."

Meanwhile, Dingell said he sees considerable congressional support for a proposal by Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., that would require motorists to leave their cars home one day a week to conserve fuel.

The new plan, being drafted with the encouragement of the White House and House leadership, also would tentatively limit gasoline sales nationally to at least $5 per car to keep motorists from "topping off" their tanks with small purchases.

Under the proposal, car windshields would have to bear stickers displaying a number from one to seven indicating the day of the week the vehicle couldn't be driven. Motorists would pick the day and states would distribute the stickers.

It would be illegal to drive a car on the day indicated by the sticker and motorists doing so could be arrested or ticketed.

COUPONS SAVE $22,000

Family Spends Day On Shopping Spree

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — A cattle farmer spent 12 hours shopping with a $22,000 check and coupons clipped from 100 newspapers. But then, it takes time to spend $44,000 — even when you do it all in one store.

"I think he made the rounds of all the departments," said Joe Yedinak, manager of the Montgomery Wards store at an Ithaca shopping center.

"Everybody was waiting for the big joke at the end of the day when he said 'I don't want it.' But he bought it."

Walter and Shirley Byrd and their three teen-age sons, new residents of nearby Locke, furnished an eight-room house, from towels to a complete set of appliances, except a dishwasher.

Byrd also bought a full wardrobe for each of his three children — including 20 pairs of underwear apiece. And while he was at it, he bought garden tools and some auto supplies.

"They started at 9:30 a.m., and when they finished at 9 p.m., it took us until 11 to ring it all up," said Yedinak. Byrd paid for the merchandise with his coupons and a $22,000 check.

"Well, they wouldn't give me no credit," he said. "My revolving account only goes up as far as $1,700, I think. So I paid for it."

Byrd owns two veal calf operations, each involving 1,000 head of stock. They had recently bought a house in Locke and had saved several years for the move.

When the store advertised a sale and put coupons good for 15 percent to 50 percent off in local newspapers, the family bought 100 newspapers and got some 50-percent-off coupons in the bargain, not realizing, according to Byrd, that one would have been enough.

"Well, they were going to give it to me for half price, so I figured I might as well spend a little money," he said.

Byrd said he had a bit of trouble at first getting his sons to buy.

"I said, 'Go spend money,' and I'm always telling them, 'Don't spend money,'" he said.

The store estimated it would take six trucks two days to deliver all the goods.

Rain Chances Fade Over South Plains

A-J News Services

Although thunderstorms boomed over portions of the area Thursday night, the South Plains' chances for significant rainfall appeared to be diminishing today.

Forecasters this morning listed the probability of rainfall for the Lubbock area as 20 percent today and Saturday and 30 percent tonight.

Best chance for appreciable moisture appeared to be in northeastern portions of the region, where forecasters said rain amounts could range up to 1½ inches. Elsewhere, amounts were expected to be about a quarter of an inch.

Severe thunderstorm warnings were posted for Cottle County and for Dawson and Ector counties about 9:30 p.m. Thursday, but scant rainfall resulted.

Paducah reported only .01 from the activity this morning and Lamesa reported none at all.

Other totals on the South Plains were insignificant. Abernathy and Silverton both gauged .13 for the heaviest area totals. Matador reported .12. Dimmitt had .06, Hereford .02 and Tulia .01.

Strongest activity during the night was in the Panhandle, where Perryton got 1.97 inches in a downpour.

Possible heavy thunderstorms were predicted for the Panhandle again tonight.

Temperatures in the Lubbock area were expected to continue in the lower 80s this afternoon and Saturday, followed by early morning lows in the mid-60s.

Karen Silkwood's Heirs Get Huge Award

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A federal court jury today awarded the Karen Silkwood estate $10.5 million after finding the Kerr-McGee Corp. guilty of negligence in the plutonium contamination of the woman at its nuclear processing plant.

The jury awarded $505,000 in actual damages and $10 million in punitive damages to Miss Silkwood's three children.

Loud applause broke out in the courtroom following announcement of the verdict. Silkwood attorney Jerry Spence blew kisses to the jury.

The jury found that Kerr-McGee was negligent in the contamination of Miss Silkwood and her apartment in 1974. It also rejected the self-contamination defense of Kerr-McGee.

It awarded $5,000 for property both sides agreed was taken from Miss Silkwood's apartment when it was decontaminated and $500,000 for actual injuries, pain and suffering.

Bill Silkwood, Karen Silkwood's father, said, "I'm glad it's over. I think it vindicated Karen. I never really cared about the money."

District Court Judge Frank Theis agreed with a Kerr-McGee motion that he withhold making a formal ruling, and urged the company lawyers to get their motions in to the court as quickly as possible. Under terms of the suit, any money awarded would go into a trust fund for Miss Silkwood's three children, to be administered by her former husband.

Miss Silkwood's survivors sued Kerr-McGee, alleging negligence in connection with her contamination with plutonium. The company's defense was that she stole plutonium from its nuclear fuel plant and contaminated herself.

Kerr-McGee lawyers claimed Miss Silkwood probably spilled the stolen plutonium while attempting to spike her urine samples to embarrass the company.

When she died in a 1974 car crash, she was a lab technician at Kerr-McGee's nuclear reactor fuel rod manufacturing plant near Crescent, Okla.

The three-man, three-woman jury had resumed deliberations this morning. It had given some indication it would find for the Silkwood estate when the jurors sent a note to the judge Thursday. The note said: "In instruction number 18, what does physical injury mean?"

Several witnesses during the 10-week trial testified Miss Silkwood told them she felt she was dying.

The jury had been deliberating since Tuesday, when it asked its question about the judge's instructions, and his first response was to summon lawyers from both sides to his chambers to discuss how he should answer it.

Bill Paul, Kerr-McGee's chief counsel, told Theis he should refuse to answer, since physical injury is "a common knowledge term." Gerry Spence, a Silkwood lawyer, argued for a detailed explanation.

Theis interpreted that difference of opinion as "the defendants want the darkness of the delta and the plaintiffs want the bright light of day," — and added: "I'll take the responsibility the U.S. is paying me for. I'm going to answer this one way or another."

He told the jury that "physical injury" can include "non-visible or non-detectable injury...to bone, tissue, or cells."

Ruling Overturned

CHICAGO (AP) — Nobel Prize-winning author Saul Bellow got a break from the Illinois Appellate Court, which reversed a contempt finding and struck down a 10-day jail sentence for the writer.

BELLOW

Bellow, who received a Nobel Prize in 1976, had appealed a 1977 Circuit Court ruling that he was in contempt of court for refusing to pay temporary alimony and child support to his former wife, Susan.

Bellow, 65, was divorced in 1968, but the original settlement was vacated after Mrs. Bellow later claimed the author had inaccurately estimated royalties he expected to receive from his books.

Lady Bird Honored

NEW YORK (AP) — What does Lady Bird Johnson have in common with Lillian Gish and Helen Hayes?

The widow of President Lyndon Johnson has joined them as a winner of the USO's Woman of the Year award.

Mrs. Johnson was honored Thursday for "her work on numerous environmental projects, and her many other civic and business achievements."

At a luncheon at the Plaza Hotel, the former first lady was greeted by past award recipients, including Miss Gish and Miss Hayes.

At a pre-luncheon reception, Mrs. Johnson said she was "very greatly honored" to receive the award, traditionally given to first ladies for "their contributions to the well-being and morale of the nation's armed forces."

Reversal Sought

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Wendy Yoshimura, who was with Patricia Hearst when the newspaper heiress was arrested, has asked the state Supreme Court to overturn her 1977 conviction on weapons charges.

MISS YOSHIMURA

The 35-year-old artist, free on bail pending appeal, fled in 1972 after Berkeley police found a cache of illegal weapons and explosives in a garage she rented under another name.

She and Miss Hearst were arrested in September 1975 at their San Francisco apartment.

A petition filed Thursday by the state public defender's office lists six grounds for reversal of Miss Yoshimura's conviction in Alameda County Superior Court. The verdict subsequently was reaffirmed by an appeals court.

The petition contends the appeals court erred in ruling certain prosecution evidence was admissible.

Such evidence included Miss Hearst's participation in a San Francisco bank robbery and a shooting incident at a Los Angeles sporting goods store.

Newton Retrial Set

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Black Panther Party leader Huey Newton has lost his latest attempt to have murder charges against him dismissed, and a new trial has been scheduled for July 30.

Judge John Cooper gave no reason as he denied the dismissal request Wednesday at a hearing in Alameda County Superior Court.

Newton's first trial on charges of murdering a teen-age prostitute on an Oakland street four years ago ended with a hung jury earlier this year.

Wyeth Has Surgery

BOSTON (AP) — Andrew Wyeth, one of America's most celebrated representational artists, is reported "doing very well" after corrective hip surgery at New England Baptist Hospital.

Dr. Benjamin E. Bierbaum, a Brookline, Mass., orthopedist, performed the operation Wednesday. A hospital spokesman said Thursday that the 61-year-old Wyeth, who lives in Chadds Ford, Pa., was out of intensive care and probably would remain at the hospital for several weeks.

Chickens Away!

RIO GRANDE, Ohio (AP) — About 150 contestants — some fat, some skinny and all unwilling — will be coaxed to try for a world record in Saturday's 8th Annual International Chicken Flying Meet.

The Lighter Side Of Today's News

Contestants are placed in an open-ended box atop a 10-foot platform and given 30 seconds to wing it on their own. If they refuse, they get a poke in the tailfeathers with a toilet plunger.

In previous meets, some chickens have flown backwards, refused to fly at all or flopped to the ground directly below the launching platform.

At stake in the contest is a $500 prize for a record-breaking flight and prizes of $25, $10 and $5 for the swiftest birds in each of four weight classes. The record flight of 297 feet, 2 inches was set in 1977 by the late Japanese Blacktail Bantam "Kung Flewk."

Latest Judge Nominees All Male, Two Black

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's latest nominees for federal judgeships are all male and two are black.

The president has said he wants to boost the ratios of women, blacks and Hispanics on the federal bench with his appointments to more than 150 new seats created by Congress.

As Carter was announcing his five new nominations Thursday, the Judicial Selection Project, which is devoted to increasing the representation of women and minorities on the bench, said six of his previous nominees belong to clubs that have no black members.

Carter told a White House reception honoring the 25th anniversary of the Supreme Court ruling outlawing racial segregation in public schools that he would appoint Nat Jones, a black who is general counsel of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, to a judgeship in the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, covering Kentucky, Michigan, Ohio and Tennessee.

Meanwhile, the White House press office issued printed announcements of four other nominations:

Former Rep. William L. Hungate, 56, of Town and Country, Mo., was named a district judge in his home state. Hungate gained some national notice as a member of the House judiciary committee when it held televised impeachment procedings against Richard Nixon.

Howard F. Sachs, 53, a Kansas City lawyer, also was named to a district court judgeship in Missouri.

Thomas M. Reavley, 57, a former member of the Texas Supreme Court who is now in private law practice in Austin, was nominated to an appellate judgeship in the 5th Circuit.

Also named to the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals was Florida Supreme Court Justice Joseph W. Hatchett, 46, who is black.

Ann McCrory, the judicial project's director, said the information about club membership of the nominees was based on their responses to questionnaires from the Senate Judiciary Committee.

One nominee, David Belew of Fort Worth has already been confirmed by the Senate and taken office as a U.S. District judge.

Shortly before taking office this month, Belew was quoted by the Fort Worth Star-Telegram as making a racial slur in a statement about his membership in an all-white country club.

Belew later apologized for the remark, but the black caucus of the Texas Legislature asked Carter to demand that Belew resign.

Commenting Thursday, Belew said, "I just happen to belong to a club that has no blacks, but I didn't join it because there were no blacks. That had nothing to do with it."

The other five nominees singled out by the Judicial Selection Project are awaiting confirmation. Three said they assumed or understood that blacks were excluded or at any rate did not think they would be admitted if they applied.

They were Bailey Brown, a U.S. district judge in Memphis, Tenn., who has been nominated for a seat on the 6th Circuit Court of Appeals; Edward Reed of Reno, Nev., a nominee for district judge; and Albert Henderson of Atlanta, a district judge who has been nominated for a seat on the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals.

The other nominees who said they belonged to clubs with no black members were William Overton of Little Rock, Ark., and R. Lanier Anderson, a nominee for a seat on the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals.

There was no immediate comment from them.

Miss McCrory's statements were contained in a letter to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

A spokesman for Kennedy said he would have no immediate comment.

Crane Ignoring New Charges

MANCHESTER, N.H. (UPI) — Republican presidential hopeful Phil Crane went ahead with plans to open his New Hamphshire headquarters today, "choosing to ignore" new charges of heavy drinking and womanizing.

The Illinois congressman scheduled a ribbon-cutting ceremony for 3 p.m. EDT at his new Elm Street offices after a morning tour of Manchester's McGraw Edison power plant.

In its second attack against Crane, the Manchester Union Leader Thursday quoted an ex-volunteer worker as saying the congressman was a heavy drinker with a roving eye.

The newspaper's copyright story quoted Juanita Bartnett, who lorked in the congressman's 1970 and 1972 House campaigns, as saying Crane used "sex appeal in order to get people" in his office.

Crane's press secretary, Laura Broderick, said the candidate isn't paying any attention to the latest allegations.

The newspaper's first attack against Crane was denounced by the congressman as a "complete fabrication" and condemned by a resolution of the New Hampshire legislature.

Union Leader Managing Editor Joseph W. McQuaid said the newspaper has "great confidence" in the credibility of the Schaumburg, Ill., woman quoted in the latest story.

Contractor Sentenced For Paying Kickbacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Another Washington contractor has been sentenced by a federal judge to three years' probation and a $5,000 fine for paying kickbacks to General Services Administration employees.

U.S. District Judge Oliver Gasch imposed the same penalty Thursday on Carmen O'Connor as he handed down last week to contractor David Harold Smith of Adelphi, Md. Gasch also told the contractors to perform 200 hours of community service as part of their sentences.

Miss O'Connor and Smith had each pleaded guilty to one count of conspiracy to defraud the government. Both cooperated in the continuing investigation of contractor kickbacks to GSA officials, prosecutor William S. Block said.

They were the first of nine persons — six contractors and three GSA employees — to be sentenced in Washington for roles in the scandals. Both faced a maximum sentence of five years in jail and a $10,000 fine.

Block said the six contractors have admitted receiving $9 million in GSA contracts and obtaining $2.5 million of that money in fraudulent schemes. The three GSA employees have admitted receiving at least $115,000 in kickbacks and gifts from contractors.

The penalties imposed by Gasch contrast with Baltimore federal court proceedings where 25 of the 26 persons sentenced in connection with GSA kickback schemes went to jail.

Miss O'Connor, 39, vice president of Levcon Construction Co. Inc., admitted obtaining $1 million illegally through her contracts with the GSA to paint government buildings. Most of the $1 million was kicked back to at least a dozen GSA employees in the form of cash and gifts from Jan. 1, 1974, to Dec. 31, 1977, Block said.

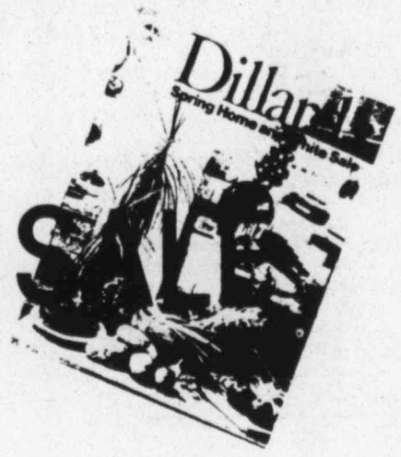

The prosecutor said some contracts were inflated and others existed only on paper so that the GSA officials could be paid off. Levcon also performed $4 million in legitimate work for the GSA.

Block and prosecutors in Baltimore have said further indictments are expected in the scandals.

Nine additional persons were indicted last week in Baltimore, where the kickback scheme centered around payments to managers of GSA supply stores that provide equipment to government offices.

In Baltimore, one manager, Albert A. Matera Sr., 66, of Alexandria, Va., pleaded guilty to accepting a gift from a company. Matera pleaded guilty to accepting $1,300 in carpeting from the Atlantic Office Supply Co. of Bladensburg, Md., and Thomas Willingham, who was president of Atlantic.

Air Travelers Paid To Wait On Later Flights

By PHILIP GREER
And MYRON KANDEL

Last month, Don Sigman, a Long Island, N.Y., engineer and his family were at John F. Kennedy airport ready to board a plane for a California vacation when the American Airlines ticket agent offered them $150 apiece — $750 in all — if they would wait an hour for another flight.

Since they had to make a connection to San Diego, they turned the offer down, but they got another chance.

Coming home from San Francisco, they were offered — and accepted — $300 each to give up their seats on a noon flight and wait for the "red-eye" leaving at 9:30 that night. When they arrived for the later flight they were offered another $300 to wait until the next day. That would have made for a profit of $1,385 on their air fare, but they turned it down and went home.

Sigman, who doesn't know how many others were offered the payments, says "they were writing checks like crazy." He recalls thinking "you could make a living that way."

American Airlines wasn't being generous. In fact, the ticket agent was making a good deal.

A Civil Aeronautics Board rule that went into effect last September requires that passengers bumped from overbooked flights be paid at least $37.50 and up to $200 (but no more than the cost of their tickets) if they're put on another flight within two hours. If the wait is more than two hours, the payments are doubled (with the same ticket-cost limit).

The rule was instituted by the CAB to reduce the amount of over-booking done by the airlines, which claim they have to sell more seats than they have in order to make up for no-shows (passengers who reserve space but don't show up for flights).

For the first few months, the plan showed some progress. Reports to the CAB showed a slow but steady decline in the number of people bumped off flights on which they had confirmed reservations. Then came the strike at United Air Lines, the country's biggest air carrier, which shut down operations on March 31 and still doesn't know when it will get back into action. Since then, as a spokesman for one United competitor conceded, "it's a zoo out there."

Trans World Airlines, for instance, had a normal no-show rate of about 10 to 15 percent before the strike and, a spokesman for the line says, "we were cutting back on over-booking." Since the strike, the no-show rate has gone up nearly 25 percent and, he says, "if we didn't do a judicious amount of overbooking it would be closer to 30 percent."

The increase in dead-beat reservations, the airlines claim, prompted them to book even more passengers. And if too many show up for a flight, the airline has to try to talk some of them out of their tickets. (Passengers who are bumped against their will get the maximum payment.)

The CAB keeps figures on bumping, but the latest are for February, before United shut down. They show a decline of about 10 percent. The airlines concede that more people are being disappointed now, but they argue it's largely because travelers, afraid of being unable to get on a flight, are making even more reservations, then they did before the United strike — lining up three or four alternate routes and then letting all but one go unclaimed.

Eastern Air Lines, for example, which doesn't fly from New York to Los Angeles, but does go to the West Coast from Atlanta, says it has large numbers of people booking the long way around. Some make the trip; others just don't show up.

The frantic search for seats is really part of a vicious circle. With United out of the picture, other airlines that fly the same routes are carrying many more passengers. American Airlines had a load factor — the portion of seats sold — in April of 81 percent, 20 percentage points higher than in the same month last year. TWA's load factor was 78 percent — 19 percentage points higher than in April, 1978.

Those figures are system-wide, with load factors on the more popular routes much higher. That means more trouble in reserving space, multiple reservations, more no-shows and more overbookings.

One things that has improved as a result of the United strike is the fuel situation. Jet kerosene that would go to United is being spread out among the other lines, so there aren't any severe shortages as there were a few months ago in certain areas.

United has to give its suppliers two week's notice to get deliveries back on stream and many industry observes think that's when the shortages will begin hitting again.

Alligator Meat Could Provide Alternative

WASHINGTON (AP) — With beef prices at record levels, grocery shoppers in some parts of the country may see a little relief in the form of alligator meat.

No one is predicting a new breed of alligator ranchers will be contending for water holes with cattle growers.

But the idea of a "gatorburger" may tantalize some consumers as traditional ground beef edges above $2 a pound in some supermarkets.

"They may be sitting on a gold mine," said a Commerce Department official this week. "We shouldn't laugh."

The possibility of alligator meat is being raised in connection with a Fish and Wildlife Service proposal that would make it easier for alligators in parts of Louisiana to be sold for their skins and, for the first time in years, permit their meat to be used as human food.

Harold J. O'Connor of the Fish and Wildlife Service said alligators no longer are a threatened species in nine Louisiana parishes where they have proliferated greatly in recent years.

The tails, he said, are the basic food portion of alligators and are considered "sort of a delicacy" in some parts of the country.

Alligator meat was sold legally until a few years ago when the government cracked down on slaughter of the reptiles in an effort to preserve the species, he said.

"It's not a big food item on the table, obviously, but it is enjoyed by many folks," O'Connor said. Those who have sampled it say alligator meat has a distinctly fishy taste, but with a chewy texture closer to poultry or beef.

Gene Cope of the National Marine Fisheries Service initially thought he was being put on when a reporter asked about alligator meat regulation.

"I've never heard of anyone eating them," he said. "Are you thinking of eating one?"

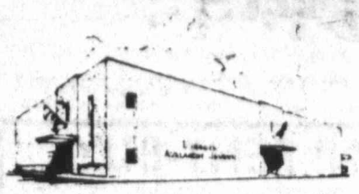

After the Fish and Wildlife proposal was explained, Cope said his agency handles regulations for seafood, fish and shellfish.

"They're reptiles and reptiles are not in the same classification as fish and shellfish," he said. "We're a voluntary inspection program, but I suppose if somebody wanted us to, we could develop standards for them."

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Ohio Greases Tightrope

THERE'S GOOD NEWS and terrible news out of Ohio these days.

The good news is that 62 percent of that state's Jimmy Carter delegates in 1976 now either are opposed to him, are leaning to some other candidate or are undecided whether they'd support him for nomination to a second term.

The terrible news is that they see Massachusetts Sen. Ted Kennedy as the most likely Democratic alternative.

That's about like trying to get out of a mudhole by filling it with quicksand.

SINCE THE DELEGATES were candidate Carter's staunchest supporters in his first bid for national office, their disenchantment with their man as revealed in a survey by United Press International shows how deep is the President's political trouble.

Only 38 percent said they'd support the President for nomination to a second term. Nineteen percent said they now are opposed to, or are leaning away from, his renomination. Another 43 percent are either undecided or will back the President only if no one else is available.

The poll results were based on the return of mailed questionnaires by only 56 of Ohio's 125 Carter delegates to the national Democratic convention, but that is a large sampling for polling purposes and the findings are significant even allowing for a wide margin of error.

What the findings connote is that the very circumstance which made Carter appealing to both conservative and liberal voters in 1976—his ability to make both believe he was one of them—now is working against him.

After more than two years in office, Carter has succeeded in making the liberals think he is "too conservative" on domestic issues and the conservatives think he is "too liberal."

THE DISTURBING part of the UPI survey was that almost half of the respondents mentioned, without prompting, that Sen. Kennedy is the candidate they are awaiting.

This shows that the prevailing attitude among Democratic opinion leaders in Ohio is that the nation's big government, big spending, big deficit, big inflation, big trouble internationally, big give-away policies are still too conservative.

That attitude, if translated into a liberal-radical victory at the polls in 1980, would speed the U.S. down the road that Britons turned away from the other day in installing Conservative Margaret Thatcher as Prime Minister.

South O, Rise Again

"WHY IS IT," asks The Wall Street Journal editorially, "that only the United States has a gasoline shortage? The answer seems to be that only the United States has the Department of Energy."

Right on. Abolish it, with its $11 billion budget and the federal controls it administers, and the oil companies will solve the energy crisis in the American "can do" tradition.

★

News reports say that when California Gov. Jerry Brown went to the White House to complain to President Carter about the gasoline shortage, his entourage was so large and in so many cars that it "caused a temporary traffic jam in the White House driveway..."

★

PRESERVATION of the Overton South neighborhood as a Design-Historic District could become one of the most significant steps in the future of Lubbock.

America's inner cities today are cesspools of crime and decay because it has been our practice to build, abuse and abandon whole neighborhoods in the name of "upward mobility."

This abysmal practice, though, is a waste of resources and a blot on American heritage.

It does not have to be so. Rather than exclusively encourage outward "growth" that merely replaces existing housing that is left to deteriorate into slums and near-slums, cities need to encourage preservation of property values.

Even so-called "progress" marked by the evolution of a once-stable single-family residential area into an apartment house district is too-often a misnomer.

Homes are abandoned to become rental properties, then become undesirable and economically unsound as more intensive land uses gradually encroach.

Overton South, a 200-acre area bounded by Broadway and 19th Streets between Avenue Q and University Avenue, once was earmarked for this horrible fate.

The justification was that the proximity of Texas Tech creates a need for multi-family facilities. Apartment complexes thus become the "highest and best use" for the land, to use a much-abused term.

Neighborhood residents, with a concerned few taking the leadership roles, objected. They know that the highest and best use for a neighborhood is to preserve its character and maintain its charm and liveability.

WITH GOOD PLANNING, there can be accommodation of true progress along with preservation of what exists, instead of letting it go before its time.

A combination of neighborhood pride, availability of loans for remodeling and repairs, zoning protections and public improvements can build on Overton's strengths and preserve it as a fashionable neighborhood between downtown Lubbock and Texas Tech.

It's an opportunity which, once it has been lost, could never be recaptured. But, once the idea has been accepted and implemented, Overton South can become the model for inner Lubbock's total resurgence.

There still will be a need for new subdivisions to handle real growth, but—especially with a gasoline crunch becoming chronic—older neighborhoods need to be preserved, not abandoned.

CRANK CALLS are sending Emergency Medical Services ambulances on expensive false runs, Lubbock County Hospital District officials complain.

They threaten prosecution of those making the calls, which they say they can trace through a line-lock device installed on all EMS telephones.

A prosecution or two, resulting in a conviction and a stiff penalty, is just what's needed.

An even bigger problem for EMS, though, is the enormous cost of maintaining the service. With patients already going into terminal shock when they see their ambulance bills, LCHD is searching for ways to increase the subsidy through taxes.

An agonizing reappraisal of EMS costs is needed, too. Maybe we can't afford as elaborate and all-inclusive protection as EMS now provides? Maybe we have too many high-paid technicians sitting around between calls?

Or maybe the protection is worth whatever it costs? It's up to the citizenry to let the LCHD Board know.

Another Combatant In Bullring

WASHINGTON—About the only evidence of an "open society" in Russia is the admission that Comrade Brezhnev is in rotten health. This candor says a good deal when we make some contrasts.

Remember, there were inside stories of a doctors' plot to keep Stalin alive, or to put him under, in synchronizing the timetable of succession. Would the new Soviet leader be Berea or Khrushchev?

But Brezhnev has genuine health reasons for cancelling visits from foreign statesmen and for dickering to meet President Carter on SALT II signings in Europe and thus avoid the long trans-Atlantic journey.

Aside from being our turn to play host, the anticipated arrangement shows the Red Empire no longer can be thought of as revolutionary.

AS A THIRD contrast to keep in mind, we might lay this Kremlin blueprint beside the chaotic scenario of the Nazi regime in the 1940s. Who would have been Fuehrer if one or more of the assassination bombs had removed Hitler?

It would have been a different war against a different enemy if we had known that the Nazis' personalized command was headed by a sick man who was merely serving out his term.

If the White House and Whitehall could have foreseen a Hitler dynasty, as we are now allowed to look at the one which crowds upon the heels of Brezhnev, military deals might have been made.

It is tempting to believe that the Red superpowers, which have hemmed us, East and West, as the World War II allies once squeezed the Reich, will oblige us by going to war in Asia.

BUT WE KNOW now since Chairman Frank Church of the Foreign Relations committee got the tongue-lashing from Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping that Red China intends to win one from us before tangling with the Eurasian giant—if that idea was no more than a conspiratorial flea slipped into Republican ears which very much wanted to hear it that way.

Teng has thus far now taken a backward step from what are probably the most arrogant demands ever made to the U.S. We are to chuck Taiwan to the wolves, or be eaten by them as they surge over our sleigh.

Those of us who have watched Sen. Church wax big by helping his country lose the Vietnam war, and become a hit-man against the CIA have little faith that he will lead his influential committee to strong positions against either Peking or Moscow.

For several years now, the signals have waved another Oriental combatant into the blood and sand of the world's largest bullring.

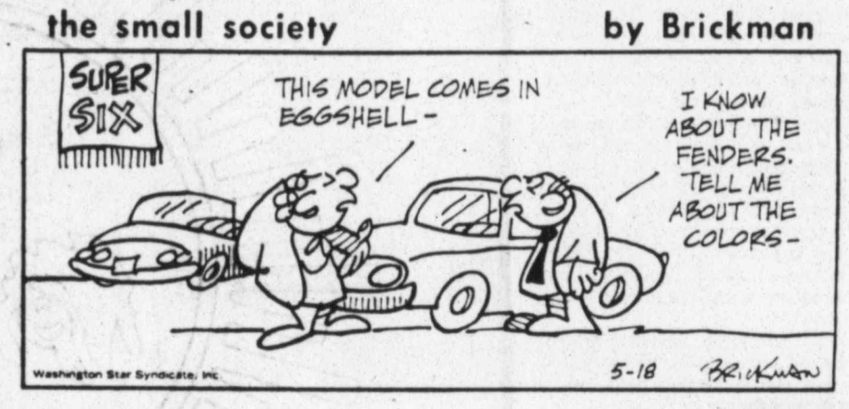

I have previously suggested that Japan, using American know-how to corner the export market, is soon going to need American weapons in large numbers to protect their profits.

Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira is expected to confirm this in talks with Carter at the end of the month, and his country will have to change either the name or nature, or both, of its 250,000 Self-Defense Force, which is constitutionally banned from fighting a war.

Only the United States among the great powers of today lacks a set of plans to hold its own.

The Soviet Union, the Peoples Republic, the Viets and the Nips know what they want by the nearing end of the century. But we only hope to be left alone.

Sylvia Porter:

Steer Steady Course In Boat Policy Ocean

AS SUMMER NEARS, record numbers of you will be hitting the waterways to sail, fish or water-ski.

Waterways as well as roadways are becoming more and more crowded, and when you use them for vacations, you are running the risk not only of ruining your holiday but also of destroying your financial security. Even if you are nowhere near a millionaire, today you could be sued like one.

On the waterways, there are now more than 8 million registered power boats and an additional 3 million canoes, rowboats, small sailers and miscellaneous craft not registered, estimates the U.S. Coast Guard.

Boating accidents are now nearing 7,000 a year, causing close to $12 million in property damage, 18,000 injuries and claiming the lives of more than 1,300 individuals who left home just anticipating a happy day on the water.

"SOME WATERWAYS are like a highway full of Sunday drivers, and theft of pleasure boats has soared into what could almost be termed an all-American pastime," says Lee Meyer, president of the Independent Insurance Agents of America.

Thefts of boats, motors and equipment approached $92 million in 1978 alone. There is no central agency to track boat thefts.

A modern-day pirate could steal a boat in New York, sail it across Long Island Sound to Connecticut, and only the owner and the thief would know the difference.

Thus, if you own or are planning to buy a boat, you will have special needs. You may need a separate boat policy, or you may be able to add it to your home insurance policy.

SMALLER BOATS, usually under 25 feet overall, can be covered by a special endorsement to your homeowner's policy without a formal survey. Your boat trailer might be covered under your auto insurance policy, or if declared: by your hull insurance.

The specific rules vary from company to company, so you must check this out.

Larger boats, more than 25 feet long, require a formal survey to determine their value and seaworthiness before they can be insured—and a separate boat policy is required. A survey generally will cost about $2.50 per foot, and some yacht surveyors will charge $1.50 per foot for smaller boats.

Factors in the charges are the age of the boat, how clean it is, the time it takes to inspect it. You, the boat owner, benefit because you get an expert's report on the boat's condition.

SAFETY HAZARDS, which could foretell a tragic accident, will be uncovered. A pre-purchase boat survey, which also can be used for insurance purposes, will tell you whether the vessel is a good buy. Its cost runs about $5 per foot.

If you decide to take a chance and buy a boat without a survey, you may be in trouble. You might buy a boat that is uninsurable or you might buy a stolen craft.

The boat insurance you buy basically breaks down into: (1) on the boat itself, or hull insurance; (2) liability insurance to protect you from claims resulting for injuries to people including crew or visitors to your craft or damages to property of others by your boat. A full marine policy can protect you against a vast array of perils.

Again, your best protection is to check with an independent insurance agent who works for you and who can place your insurance with any one of several insurance companies.

The highest risk area for boat thefts is New York City and its environs (as it is with auto theft).

As a fascinating illustration of the complexities: John Peck, a professional yacht surveyor on Huntington, Long Island, tells of trying to trace a boat he had surveyed.

In checking serial numbers, he discovered that the stolen boat had been bought by law enforcement authorities from a nearby community, for official use in patrolling waterways!

IN DETERMINING your insurance premiums, the vital factors wil be: your skill and training (a completion of a U.S. Coast Guard-approved boating course, for instance); the overall condition of your boat; type of safety equipment. To hold down your insurance, you also might consider a higher deductible on your coverage.

Your yacht policy probably will protect you against damage to your marina because you docked too fast, injury to a swimmer or skier, if you are towing a skier, similar perils.

But be on guard: because of the infinite variety of craft and hazards, there is virtually no such thing as a standard yacht policy. This is the basic argument for professional counseling.

James J. Kilpatrick:

Good Justice Makes Bad Law

WASHINGTON—Twenty-five years have passed since the May morning that Chief Justice Earl Warren settled into his chair and began to read an opinion he had written for the Court.

"Brown vs. Board of Education of Topeka," he began. "These cases come to us from the states of Kansas, South Carolina, Virginia and Delaware..."

The reading did not take long. Unlike other landmark decisions from the Warren Court that ran on for 50 or 60 pages, the opinion in Brown was amazingly brief. It was amazing in another respect: The decision was unanimous.

Time enough has elapsed to examine Brown and its progeny without jubilation on the one hand or rancor on the other. What emerges, in my own view, is a series of anomalies.

THE COURT created a dramatic new constitutional right, and then postponed its enjoyment. The Court was dealing with the highest levels of law, but based its decision primarily upon psychological knowledge.

The overriding theme of Brown (and of Brown II a year later) was that racial discrimination in public education is unconstitutional, but subsequent busing cases have traveled 180 degrees around the circle: Racial discrimination in public education is constitutional after all.

After 25 years, Brown still fits the description that some scholars gave it at the time: Good justice, bad law.

SEGREGATION AFFECTED every aspect of social and economic life. For white and black alike, there was no escaping the prison of law and custom.

The Brown case smashed the doors. With bewildering speed (or so it seemed to much of the South), the last vestiges of state-supported discrimination were swept from the statute books.

The Civil Rights Act dismantled segregation in the private sector. The moral force put in motion by Brown swept everything in its path.

That was the theory. In practice it was rather a different story. As a matter of law, Brown was shockingly bad. The very pole star of constitutional construction is the intention of the framers and the understanding of the ratifiers.

Warren ignored the pole star altogether. History, he said, was "inconclusive." Legal opinions ought to be supported by legal reasoning, but in Brown there was none.

THE NEGRO petitioners won their right to attend desegregated schools. Any other petitioners, winning any other right, would have had its exercise the next day. Ten years elapsed before desegregation was even well on its way.

In a newly published book from Oxford Press, "From Brown to Bakke," J. Harvie Wilkinson III provides this measured appraisal: "Brown may be the most important political, social, and legal event in America's twentieth-century history.

"Its greatness lay in the enormity of injustice it condemned, in the entrenched sentiment it challenged, in the immensity of law it both created and overthrew...The story of Brown is the story of revolution."

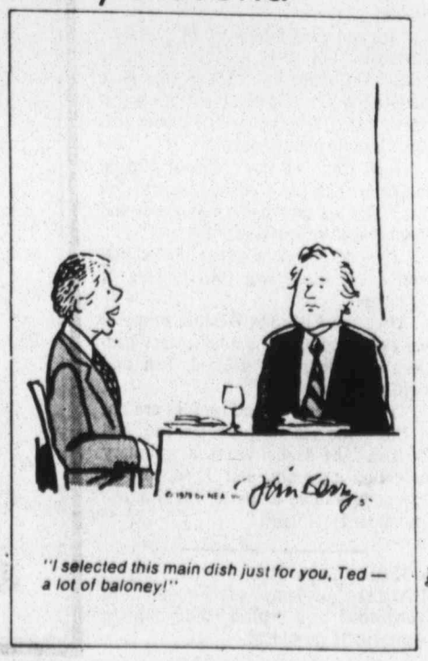

BROWN BECAME the supreme law of the land, and sooner than other regions the South learned to live with it.

Momentous as the decision was, it has produced no millennial brotherhood. Owing in part to the lunacies of racial-balance busing, racial consciousness is more than ever a factor in American life.

Brown has led us to quotas, to minorities in decimal-point fractions, to affirmative action and to "benign" racism.

Whatever damage may have been done to the rule of law, the blindfolded goddess who carries the scales of justice has been well served.

Fascism Flourishing Among Young Spaniards

MADRID, Spain (AP) — At 9:15 on a mild April night, four teen-agers chased 18-year-old Andres Garcia into a side street as he left a movie and stabbed him to death. They did it, they told police, because they didn't like the way he looked at one of their Nazi arm bands.

A few days earlier, gangs of black-jacketed youths attacked shops owned by Jews, waded into an anti-nuclear demonstration with clubs and chains, stormed the Madrid University law school and celebrated the memory of Adolf Hitler in the Spanish capital's main square.

Although Garcia was a communist sympathizer, his pursuers did not know that when they left him bleeding to death. To many Spaniards, the killing was another sign that law and order was falling apart in post-Franco Spain. To others, it was new and disturbing evidence that the fascism of Generalissimo Francisco Franco, who died in 1975, is flourishing among some of Spain's youth.

To Madrid's Jewish community of 3,000, Nazi flags, arm bands and attacks on them — something that did ot happen in Franco's time — are not just a reminder of Hitler's Third Reich. They bring back memories also of another historic force of anti-Semitism, the Spanish Inquisition, which drove the Jews from Spain in 1492.

Not until the 1960s were Jews able to worship openly in Spain.

"Why do you think they attacked my stores? Because I am Chinese?" asks Marcos Emergui, a Spanish Jew who has been in business in Madrid for 22 years. He says his stores are now under police protection, "but if these gangs start to give us a hard time we will pack our suitcases and go."

"What has me worried is the way they march with impunity in the streets," says another Jewish leader. "Police certainly are cooperating with the extreme right. There has been no interest in going after these guys."

The police arrested the four teen-agers who killed young Garcia and brought indictments against three of them who were 16. The fourth, being 15, will be handled as a juvenile.

The police also raided the headquarters of the illegal Nationalist Revolutionary Youth, or JNR, and arrested 10 members, including the leader of the movement, Juan Rubio Gomez, 18.

The government said it would crack down on "such elements" and ordered 3,000 extra police assigned to Madrid. The capital's only synagogue and Jewish school were given police protection.

The JNR is believed to have 200 to 300 members in Madrid. About the same number are members of a similar group in Barcelona, the Spanish Club of Friends of Europe. Throughout Spain, members of neo-Nazi groups are estimated to total about 1,000.

Blas Pinar, political leader of Spain's ultra-right, says his New Force Party which won one seat in the 350-member lower house of Parliament "has never had anything to do with those Nazis or any other group that uses violence." Its militant organizations are the Guerrillas of Christ the King, the Young Vikings and the Triple A, the Anti-Communist Apostolic Alliance.

But the JNR appears to enjoy support and money from influential sources. Before the midtown celebration of Hitler, it plastered the area with 5,000 illegal posters and put them up in broad daylight.

Newspapers say one of the youths held for the stabbing of Garcia was seen frequently at Pinar's party headquarters and was a known disciple of Pinar.

Rubio Gomez, the JNR leader, told interviewers before his arrest that Pinar's party offered his group "protection," but the JNR refused.

Rubio Gomez said his group's charter is a copy of that of the Communist Party, which is now legal, and therefore "the government will have to recognize us" as a legitimate political party.

Government officials say there is no chance of that, but they will not explain why Pinar and his followers are allowed to violate the government ban on demonstrating in uniforms.

With the blue-shirted Young Guard of Franco and other right-wing organizations patrolling, Pinar led tens of thousands in a march through Madrid a week ago to celebrate "The Day of the Fatherland."

Japanese Shipbuilders Plan To Form Cartel

TOKYO (AP) — Japanese shipbuilders are planning to form a cartel to cope with the present prolonged decline in the business, officials of an industry group said today.

A spokesman for the Shipbuilders Association of Japan said a group of 40 major shipbuilding companies will ask the government's fair trade commission for permission in early July to organize a production-cutting cartel.

Each of the shipbuilders is scheduled to notify the association of its official decision to participate in the cartel by the middle of June, according to the spokesman.

Under the plan the association reportedly wants to continue until March 1981, the shipbuilders will jointly regulate production in terms of bottoms launched instead of hours of work.

Last year, the government commission warned the shipbuilders that their joint practice of shorterning employee working hours, which started in April 1977 to cope with the business decline, could violate Japan's antitrust laws.

The 40 companies planning to participate in the plan account for an estiated 90 percent or more of the industry's total shipbuilding capacity.

Meanwhile, the Japan Ship Exporters Association today reported that in April they received orders from overseas for only two ships, the lowest in more than 7½ years.

A spokesman for the industry group said the orders for the ships, totaling 100,200 gross tons, were valued at 1.18 billion yen, about $5.9 million.

The previous monthly low — one 2,000-gross-ton ship — occurred in August 1971, he said.

The spokesman said Japanese shipbuilders have been receiving a growing number of inquiries from overseas but that they couldn't agree on prices.

Chinese, Steel OfficialsConfer

TOKYO (AP) — Nippon Steel Corp., the largest steel maker in Japan, today said it will send a delegation of five officials to Peking Friday to reopen negotiations on construction near Shanghai of what will be one of the world's largest steel mills.

A Nippon Steel spokesman said the company officials will confer with Chinese authorities on part of the contract worth about $1 billion that has remained suspended.

Chinese authorities have frozen some 30 agreements reached with Japanese companies between the middle of last Deceber and the end of February, pending what the Chinese said will be a re-examination of their policy on plant and technology imports.

Earlier this month, China was reported to have notified Japnese companies that it is now willing to re-open discussions on those contracts.

The Nippon Steel spokesman said both sides have reached a basic agreement that China pay for the unsettled part of the contract half in yen and half in dollars on a deferred payment basis but that they are still apart on the interest rate to be charged.

Public Not Sure Shortage Real

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — It all sounds very familiar: a campaign for energy conservation, an effort to promote car pooling and lower driving speeds, a call for Sunday gasoline station shutdowns.

None of it worked, in part because people did not believe there really was a gas shortage.

That was the summer of 1941.

But not even World War II was enough to convince Americans to cut their gasoline consumption voluntarily, and the efforts at persuasion yielded to the compulsion of rationing.

The pattern hasn't changed much in 38 years. But with no demonstrable nationwide crisis to force action, the administration does not appear likely to get rationing authority.

Congress long ago instructed the White House to submit a standby rationing program. When President Carter finally got around to it, he had to overhaul his program in order to get it through the Senate, and the House wouldn't buy it at all.

The president called that "a remarkable display of political timidity" and told Congress to figure out its own plan. But House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. says there aren't enough votes to approve any rationing plan.

Gasoline always has been a topic to inspire political timidity, since most motorists also are voters. When a majority of them believe the oil shortage is a hoax, it becomes far more difficult for a politician to tell his constituents they may have to get by on less fuel.

"We do not have an energy crisis, we have an energy production crisis," said Rep. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, as the House argued the standby rationing plan. Symms said it is the government's fault.

Rep. John B. Anderson of Illinois, one of only seven Republicans to support the Carter plan, took the politically risky route. "We should not kid anyone that if we just jigger the rationing formula one way or another people can continue with their present driving habits," he said. "That is just not possible and we had better impress that fact on the American people."

Since the whole idea of any rationing plan is to reduce consumption and spread a shortage equitably, Anderson's observation made sense, if not good politics.

Carter's plan was to distribute rationing coupons on the basis of automobile registrations, and a good many of the critics said that wasn't fair. Former President Ford had proposed to distribute coupons to licensed drivers, but his critics said that wasn't fair, either. In the argument over equity, a good many of the opponents seemed determined to make sure that their constituents were more equal than the rest.

It was a standby plan, and Carter said it would not be implemented unless gasoline supplies fell at least 20 percent short for at least a month. Should that happen, there will be another kind of rationing, based on patience in the service station lines instead of on coupons.

Analysis

Then, in all likelihood, the whole issue would come around again, this time with a crisis atmosphere to prod the government into action.

That's what happened before, after the government tried to fashion an equitable system without rationing.

"The lesson of the U.S. experience during World War II was that — for that emergency at least — it could not be done," according to a Library of Congress study. "Voluntary and indirect controls ... were tried. Even the most ardent partisans of voluntary means agreed they failed."

As a result, on Dec. 1, 1942, the government turned to rationing. That wasn't just to save oil, although there were shortages. The big problem was rubber, and the only way to conserve it was to cut down sharply on driving.

There were protests and problems, not the least of which was credibility. But it worked. Looking back at that experience during the Arab oil embargo of 1973, the Library of Congress study observed that in order to promote compliance "the public must be persuaded that gasoline and oil shortages are not contrived, but really do exist."

Neither the public nor Congress seems to be persuaded of that now.

Drapes, Blinds Can Help Homeowners Conserve Energy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Drapes and blinds can be much more than just a source of privacy, they can help you save energy this summer, according to the National Bureau of Standards.

The government research agency has studied summer energy use and is offering suggestions on how to cut back to reduce your bill.

And one of the most effective ways to reduce the heat buildup in your home is shade, according to the bureau.

Awnings and overhangs are best at reducing the solar heat coming in through windows, but these must be properly designed and constructed to prevent hot air from becoming trapped in the window area.

Blinds and draperies can reduce heat gain through windows by 50 percent, but their effectiveness depends on how well they reflect light back through the window.

Blinds and draperies should be light in color and opaque. Open-weave draperies are less effective, although they do allow better ventilation.

Fast growing trees and shrubs around your home can also provide some shade.

GSA Tackles Big Decision

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Should Richard Nixon get a sauna or just a plain old shower for his San Clemente, Calif., office?

That's the kind of decision the General Services Administration, the government purchasing agency, is empowered to make under the Former President's Act of 1958.

Pointing out that the GSA's office equipment catalog features both shower and sauna, a Senate government affairs subcommittee asked agency officials Wednesday which would be chosen.

The consensus was a shower.

Nevertheless, the Senate panel indicated it might set up a commission to oversee GSA Expenditures for ex-presidents — expenditures said to run nearly $800,000 this year for Nixon and Gerald Ford.

Town's Art Dream Comes True

By RICK VAN SANT

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (UPI) — "Get me into a prison," said classical pianist Lorin Hollander to Sondra Ross, who arranged his unusual five-day "residency" in this city of 50,000.

Mrs. Ross arranged for Hollander to perform in a prison — and in a paraplegic center, a day care center, a senior citizens center, a shopping center, an elementary school, a middle school and a high school, not to mention a number of scheduled concerts, a teaching session for piano teachers and a speech to officials from surrounding cities.

For Middletown, in southwestern Ohio, the five-day "Lorin Hollander Residency" is an arts dream come true.

Mrs. Ross, 40, a mother of three, was the prime mover in bringing Hollander — an artist sought after by symphony orchestras around the world — to Middletown.

"We negotiated with Lorin's agent, but we're not getting a cut rate," said Mrs. Ross during Hollander's stay here in April.

Mrs. Ross and a crew of fund-raisers finally convinced area businesses, groups and individuals that bringing an artist such as Hollander into the city for five days was worth the price.

"We had to educate people that the arts are not free," she said. "Lorin is making a good amount from this, but he's earning every penny. Quality artists don't come cheap. We hope to make an artists' residency in Middletown an annual event."

Hollander, a child prodigy at age 3 who has been playing and teaching classical music for more than 20 of his 35 years, considered it another opportunity to pursue his dream — take classical music and his "classical" philosophy to people who have not yet found it.

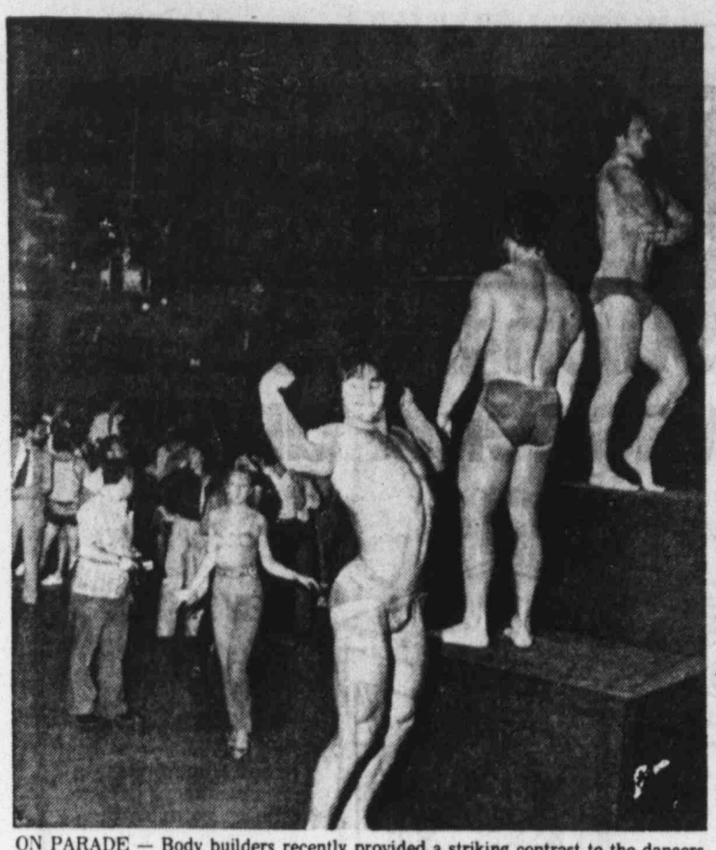

Hollander has previously played concerts in the streets of Harlem and for Philadelphia youth gangs. He said he was overjoyed to play classical music for the inmates in the gymnasium of nearby Lebanon Correctional Institute, a medium-security state prison.

"I believe I have a responsibility to share my gift with more than just people who are looking for it — those who come to the concert halls," he said. "I find it an interesting possibility to bring music to those who have not yet found it, maybe weren't looking for it, perhaps didn't even know it was there."

"Often," Hollander said, "there are gifted people who did not have an outlet for their creativeness and started to use these forces in destructive ways. And we find vandalism, cruelty and greed as the victors.

"I find that classical music can deal with the struggle of good and evil in every person. And if prisoners can see one human being balancing these forces at a piano, then it's a shared experience of emotional value."

Hollander said prison officials have told him that his prison performances have sometimes prompted inmate "loners" to start reading, drawing and participating in school programs.

Soil Fungus Responsible For Several Deaths

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Histoplasmosis, generally a mild, flu-like infection carried by a fungus in the soil, has killed at least 15 persons, hospitalized nearly 300 and infected about 200,000 area residents since last fall.

State health officials, concerned about the epidemic, this week began sampling the blood of Ben Davis High School juniors and seniors in the first of series of tests on more than 12,000 students in an attempt to trace the epidemic to its source.

Dr. Richard B. Kohler, an infectious disease specialist at the Indiana University Medical Center, explained the strategy.

He said the fungus lives in soil or old bird droppings until construction, demolition or other disturbances sends the spores into the air.

So far, he said, the disease has not shown up in laboratory rats exposed to soil samples gathered.

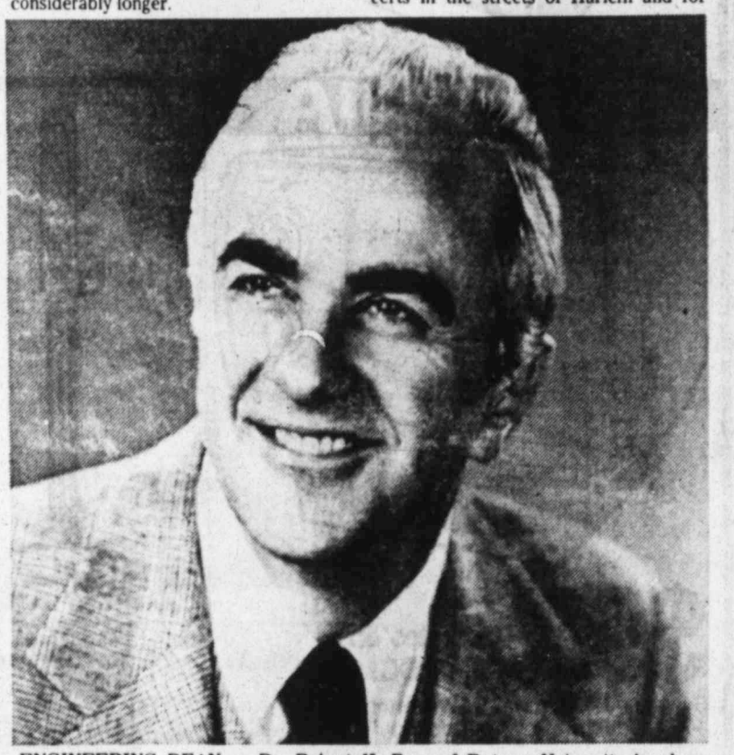

IU medical teams will conduct the blood draws before the end of the school year at 15 high schools.

Kohler said the more than 10 percent voluntarism by students at Ben Davis, on the city's west side, was better than authorities had expected. He said he was told as many as 500 at the school were willing to be sampled, but the medical team was unable to process that many.

Blood sampled will not be tested for anything except histoplasmosis antibodies, he said.

Although the disease is common in Indiana, with an estimated 80 percent of adults having been exposed sometime in their lives, this winter's outbreak was the largest ever recorded.

Results of the blood sampling should be available in about two weeks, Kohler said, but analysis of all data could take considerably longer.

ENGINEERING DEAN — Dr. Robert H. Page of Rutgers University has been named dean of Engineering at Texas A&M University, effective August 1. Texas A&M has the nation's largest college of engineering, a total of 8,070 students ranging from the freshman to doctoral level. Page has held teaching and administrative responsibilities at Rutgers for 17 years. (AP Laserphoto)

Unemployment In State Drops

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas' unemployment rate in March plunged to 3.8 percent of the labor force, compared with 6.1 percent nationwide, the Texas Employment Commission reported today.

The March figure represented a sharp drop from February's unemployment level of 4.5 percent, the TEC said. In March 1978, unemployment was 4.7 percent.

Meanwhile, the number of Texans holding jobs continued to grow, marking six consecutive months in which records have been set. The TEC said 5,888,600 Texans were working, a gain of 10,700 over February and 227,300 above the March 1978 level.

All 25 major labor market areas for which monthly statistics are kept reported drops in unemployment, the TEC said.

DR. LAMB

Don't Jog Too Fast

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Would you please tell me somthing about triglycerides? My husband has it. The first time it was 390 and now it's 230 and the doctor put him on Clofibrate. What kind of diet can we used so he can get away from the pills?

DEAR READER — Triglyceride is just a chemical name for the common forms of fats. The blood examination in your husband must have shown that the amount of fat in his blood was too high.

With the initial enthusiasm about triglycerides as related to heart disease, many doctors thought that the proper diet was to cut down on carbohydrates. That has a lot to do with some of the really wild things that are said about sugar these days, particularly as related to heart disease. A more discriminating look at the problem and some careful studies showed that the big problem was obesity from too many calories of almost anything.

Of course sugars and starches and concentrated carbohydrates are excellent sources of large numbers of calories, so eliminating these substances in the diet tended to decrease the calorie intake. When the calorie intake is decreased enough to eliminate obesity, many patients have a significant decrease in triglycerides. Your husband's diet should eliminate any of the obesity that he has.

He should increase his exercise gradually until his body composition is changed. It doesn't matter so much what a person weighs as long as it's all muscle. But even if you don't appear to weigh very much and have a lot of fat under the skin, that's not so desirable.

If a person is in top-notch physical condition so that he can exercise rather extensively at least every other day, the exercise is a good way to lower the triglyceride level. If your husband has not been doing any exercise, he should start gradually with a simple daily walk and slowly build up his exercise capacity. He should be able to walk an hour at a fairly good rate without getting excessively tired before he tries to do anything more strenuous.

At that point he could start jogging a few steps at a time in the middle of his walk and then gradually build up the number of steps he jogs at a rate of 10 jogging steps a day. This gradual build-up will slowly develop his capacity to exercise.

Because men are so competitive, I find it necessary to continually remind them that when you talk about jogging, you're not talking about speed. Most of the people who get into trouble jogging are the ones who are trying to jog or run too fast. A slow, gentle jog that covers a lot of distance is worth a lot more to your body than an all-out effort to beat your previous time or to beat your buddy. Speed and kill.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-3, Diet Preventing Atherosclerosis, as a guide to dietary management for your husband. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Specialist Helps Women Rescript Dream Endings

By ED LION

CHICAGO (UPI) — Happy-ending dreams with the husband returning can be emotionally devastating for newly divorced women, psychologist Rosalind D. Cartwright says.

So she is trying to help them change their dreams while they sleep and thus speed emotional adjustment to their new lifestyle.

The dream specialist at Chicago's Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital isworking with 60 divorced women at the hospital's sleep disorder laboratory in a study funded by the National Institute of Mental Health.

"They will dream they are in bed alone," she said in an interview. "Then they hear the husband coming up the stairs toward their room. They think 'Oh, good he's back.' They dream he sits on the side of the bed, gets under the covers and then they feel that everything's okay again.

"Of course, when they wake up and he's not beside them it hurts them. It can send them deeper and deeper into depression."

Miss Cartwright is attacking this cycle of depression, partially perpetuated by repetitive dreams of the husband returning, by trying to help divorced women "rescript" their dream endings beforehand and then change them on cue in mid-sleep.

"If it works it could be an effective therapy," she said. "It might be used for other problems too, like nightmares."

Miss Cartwright said she believes one of the functions served by dreaming is to reconcile events of the day with the sleeper's own self-image.

But with certain jarring problems, including divorce, she said, people may spend months — even years — with repetitive dreams that only perpetuate depression and hamper emotionl adjustment. People in depression generally dream 10 percent more than others, she said.

"Women who are traditional and always thought of themselves as Mrs. So and So and the wife of So and So can be hit really hard. After the divorce, they are asking "Who the heck am I?"

Thus, she said, their dreams can be caught in repetitive cycles because their "sense of self" is severely disoriented.

"It's sort of like a record caught on a phonograph needle. What we hope to do is help these women by picking up the phonograph needle to the next groove. It could help them adjust quicker and ease depression."

In the hospital's sleep lab, brain waves, chin muscles and eye movement are monitored all night.

During dreaming, eyes move rapidly under the lids and the brain is more active. Technicians then know when the women are having heavy dreaming periods.

Miss Cartwright plans to instruct the women to press a microswitch put on their hand when they are aware of their repetitive dream.

"It's simple to learn," she said. "You just have to tell people before they go to sleep to be vigilant about the dream and most can do it."

Next, she hopes to rescript bad dreams with the women while they are awake.

"It could be that they then meet another man or get a new job, something that will leave them hopeful when they wake up," she said.

When the women press the microswitch, a technician will activate a tone which, she said, will serve as a cue for the women to replace the dream ending with the rescripted version, making them less depressed when they wake up.

If her method of rescripting dreams works, she said, it might lead to development of a bedside microswitch-activated buzzer to help women turn off harmful dreams at home.

Doctors Treat Insomnia By Resetting 'Clock'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tinkering with "biological clocks" — a new sleep disorder therapy — is an effective non-drug treatment for one form of insomnia, a doctor from Montefior Hospital and Medical Center, disclosed today.

Dr. Elliot D. Weitzman, head of a scientific team, said in an interview the successful treatment, "chronotherapy," involves resetting biological clocks — biological or cicadian rhythms — in patients.

"You can push the clock ahead but you can't turn it back," he said.

In describing how it's done, Weitzman made these points:

Say a person can't get to sleep until 4 a.m. For each of six days he is kept up three hours longer than the previous day.

Day one he goes to bed at 7 a.m.; day two, at 10 a.m.; day three, at 1 p.m.; day four, at 4 p.m.; day five, at 7 p.m.; day six at 10 p.m.

If the patient then says he wants midnight for a bedtime instead of 10 p.m., on the seventh night he is kept up two hours past the 10 p.m. And, more or less, presto, he will be able to go to sleep at midnight for weeks, months and, hopefully years.

Weitzman said of about 400 persons at the Sleep-Wake Disorders Center he heads probably 10 percent have the kind of insomnia that yields to resetting of the biological clock.

Sleep scientists say such patients have "sleep onset insomnia."

Weitzman said the finding is important on two counts:

— "We can now treat one form of insomnia without drugs."

— "It recognizes that certain sleep disorders are a result of alteration in biological rhythm."

Three patients successfully treated by resetting the "clocks" underwent therapy in the laboratory; three were treated at home under supervision.

"Patients were instructed to closely adhere to their new daily schedule, both weekdays and weekends," Weitzman said.

"All patients reported a significant and lasting resolution of their symptoms."

The average follow-up was one year; the longest, 2.5 years.

Other scientists named in the report as participants in the investigation are with the Sleep Disorders Program at Stanford University, Stanford, Calif.; and the Harvard Medical School Department of Physiology.

AFRICAN TRIP PLANNED

LONDON (AP) — Prince Andrew will accompany his parents, Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip, when they visit Africa in July, Buckingham Palace announced Wednesday. The 19-year-old prince leaves his Scottish school July 16 and three days later he will leave with his parents for Tanzania, Malawi, Botswana and Zambia. They will return to Britain Aug.4, the announcement said.

Smithsonian Intrigues Tourists

WASHINGTON, D.C. (UPI) — One puzzler for visitors to Washington, D.C., is that there is so much to see and do that even the most dedicated sightseers must pick and choose.

Most visitors to our nation's capital include the White House, Lincoln Memorial, Washington Monument and the Capitol building high on their list of must-see.

But odds are that many of them will end up spending most of their time at the Smithsonian Institution, the vast complex of buildings along The Mall housing priceless historical, cultural and other treasures — some 70 million items, according to some estimates.

They include such diverse articles as Francis Scott Key's Star Spangled Banner, gowns worn by every First Lady since Martha Washington, George Washington's false teeth, the Wright brothers 1903 Kitty Hawk "Flyer," the Apollo 11 moonmen's command module, the 44½-carat Hope Diamond, a lunar rock, the world's oldest fossil (estimated at 3.1 billion years) and a stuffed 13-foot, 2-inch high African elephant which is the largest on record.

Probably the most popular of the Smithsonians — with adults as well as children — is the National Air and Space Museum, on Independence Avenue which hosted some 12 million visitors alone last year.

In this spacious modern showcase for the evolution of aviation and space technology, there are 24 galleries featuring such historic milestones as Kitty Hawk, Lindbergh's Spirit of St. Louis, John Glenn's Friendship 7 and the spacecraft in which Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin, Jr. landed on the moon.

There also are rockets, satellites, spacemen's suits, an F-1 engine from the Saturn 5 that launched astronauts to the moon, and the moon rock that can be touched in the walk-through Skylab Orbital Workshop.

I made my first visit to the museum — which was opened in 1976 — for the premiere showing of the film "Living Planet" sponsored by the Johnson Wax Co. and produced by Francis Thompson, who won an Oscar for his documentary "To Be Alive" which was the highlight of the same company's exhibit at the New York 1964-65 World Fair.

The film, which opens with a spine-shivering shot of the earth from outer space, takes viewers on a thrilling 30-minute aerial odyssey over five continents on an Imax screen about 60 feet high and 75 feet wide. There is an admission charge of 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children to the semicircular theater with rows of sharply-banked seats. The best seats are high up in the rear.

After the showing, I chatted briefly with Samuel F. Johnson, the company chairman, who said, when asked why:

"Space has given us a new perspective on earth. As far as we know ours is the only planet with life on it. We sponsored the film as a celebration of the miracle — life — that we share with our fellow passengers on the spaceship Earth."

Children — and adults — can learn more about space, the stars and planets in "Worlds of Tomorrow," a 30-minute light and sound presentation on the 70-foot domed ceiling of the Albert Einstein Spacearium in the museum. Admission to the showing is 50 cents for adults, 25 cents for children.

If you do have the kids with you, a stop at the General Aviation Gallery is a must. Any child who can reach the controls can practice flying in flight simulators, identical to those used by student pilots. Aides will help them push in the throttle for takeoff on a two-minute "flight." There is no charge.

Another favorite Smithsonian is the National Museum of History and Technology, a short walk away on Constitution Avenue, with an exciting spectrum of exhibits including Washington's teeth, the First Lady Gowns, the tattered flag that flew over Fort McHenry in 1812, antique musical instruments, Eli Whitney's cotton gin, modern tools and the 75,000-item National Postage Stamp Collection.

A special exhibit — from June 1 through Labor Day — will honor the television program Sesame Street which marks its 10th anniversary this year. The display will include Big Bird and his nest, Oscar the Grouch and his trash can, a 60-foot section of the street and video highlights of the program.

The Hope diamond and the giant elephant are in the National Museum of Natural History on Constitution Avenue.

The Smithsonian Institution also includes the National Gallery of Art, the Hirshhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden, the Freer Gallery of Art, the National Portrait Gallery, the National Collection of Fine Arts, the Arts and Industries Building and the National Zoo.

Admission to the museums are free. Hours differ, with art museums open from 10 a.m.

Itel Corp. May Show Second-Quarter Loss

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Itel Corp., the computer and equipment leasing firm which reported $688 million in sales last year, may show a second-quarter loss because of recent product and pricing annoucements by International Business Machines, the firm announced.

In addition, the firm, which leases boxcars, containers, aircraft and ships, said profits for the first half of the year ending June 30 "will be substantially below" 1978's first-half profit.

The firm showed operating profits of $73 million last year.

Itel's disclosures came in an amended registration statement filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission. Itel wants to issue 2 million shares of cumulative preferred stock to expand its equity base and increase its debt capacity.

The issue will be priced on Monday.

The firm said announcements by International Business Machines contributed to the expected drop in profits. Earlier this year, IBM announced two new small-sized computers which it said offer five times the performance for the same cost as earlier comparable models.

IBM also lowered prices on some existing small computers.

Industry sources also said the San Francisco-based firm has been laying off substantial numbers of employees lately. Itel official John H. Chase declined comment, saying the reductions were announced in the marketing force and won't affect the transportation business.

Itel's stock, which sold as high as $37.50 in September, plunged $2.75 a share to $13.75 on volume of 207,600 Wednesday on the New York Stock Exchange.

James Madison (1751-1836), fourth president of the United States, and Zachary Taylor (1784-1850), 12th president, were second cousins; they had the same grandfather, James Taylor.

Defense Spending Exceeds Budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon has more bad news for taxpayers: America's weapons program ran nearly a billion dollars over its budget for the first three months of 1979.

A Defense Department report Wednesday attributed the $937 million increase to the rising cost of the armored troop carrier program and the cost of buying back weapons ordered by Iran's ousted Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi.

Older Cities Seek Answers To Sewage Problems

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Beneath the streets of Chicago, drilling machines three stories tall are carving a sewer that could cost twice as much as a new Panama Canal. Federal investigators question whether the effort is worth the money.

The Chicago project's problems and potential failure could have a major impact on 1,143 cities and towns across the country.

Their streets hide the same financial time bomb Chicago is trying to defuse: sewers crumbling in neglect and choked to overflowing during heavy rains.

Long ignored as financially strapped cities concentrated on problems above ground, these systems, many a century old, send raw sewage into the nation'swaterways and turn manholes and basement drains into fountains of untreated waste.

Many of these cities look to Chicago's "tunnel and reservoir plan" — known as TARP — as their own deliverance.

But Thursday, Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., released the findings of a year-long probe by the General Accounting Office, the investigating agency of Congress. Its 400-page report recommended that the Environmental Protection Agency halt further federal funding of TARP until it can be restudied.

The GAO questions whether money is available to finish the project, whether it meets pollution control standards, and whether it can reduce urban flooding before the 1990s.

The agency projects that the cost, estimated seven years ago at $1.2 billion, will swell to more than $11 billion by 1983 and certainly will go higher. By contrast, a sea-level canal across Panama would cost $5.2 billion, and the Alaska oil pipeline cost $9.2 billion.

The GAO recommends cheaper measures for cities and homeowners to achieve much quicker, although partial, relief. Some are as simple as more street sweeping — or a $15 basement drain plug for some homes.

One Senate investigator, who declined to be identified, said, "Clearly TARP is not the solution for this type of problem. TARP could be the final solution that bankrupts us all."

The problem is concentrated in older cities, most east of the Mississippi. Congressional investigators see it in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, Baltimore, Milwaukee and San Francisco.

Most western cities escape the problem because they have separate sanitary and storm sewers.

The Environmental Protection Agency estimates it will cost $25.7 billion nationally to solve the pollution problem alone. And last year, Fortune magazine estimated it would cost $600 billion to upgrade the nation's failing sewers.

Some cities don't even know the extent of their problems. GAO investigators asked one city for a current sewer map. Three hours later, city officials came up with one. It was dated 1927.

Most combined sewers were designed to handle storms so big they occur only once every 5 or 10 years. Since they were built, suburban sprawl has paved over areas where rain once soaked harmlessly through the soil. Now, as more water pours into the sewers, lack of maintenance has left some barely able to handle storms which occur every year.

As a result, sewer lines collapse: Boston's main interceptor has caved in four times since 1961. Sludge clogs the pipes: in Buffalo, one line was 80 percent closed by sewage caked on pipe walls. Systems overflow: in Chicago, 100 times a year sewage spills into waterways. Basements flood: in Cicero, Ill., 43.8 percent of single-family homes had basement flooding at least once in five years.

The GAO found damage to carpets, walls, furniture, clothing, washers and dryers and water heaters reached $71 million to $102 million over the last five years in the Chicago area.

Chicago's answer would be to literally bottle a rainstorm — in 131 miles of rock tunnels and four, 300-foot-deep, open-air reservoirs. The tunnels, big enough to hold three railroad locomotives, would be built 150 to 290 feet below ground.

The system would hold 44 billion gallons, enough water to fill 4.4 million railroad tank cars — enough cars to circle the earth 1½ times.

When a storm hits, overflow would be sent down drop shafts to the tunnels. Afterward, the water would be pumped up to the sewer system, about 30 feet below ground, and be treated. The pumps would require enough electricity to serve a city of 27,000 people for a year.

The federal government is paying 75 percent of the $2 billion first phase of construction. Targeted for completion in 1987, that phase includes just tunnels and pumps and deals only with pollution.

But the GAO noted there is no federal money for Phase 2, which includes more tunnels and pumps and reservoirs to handle flooding.

Even if Phase 2 is built, the GAO said, 35 percent of the flooding will remain unless $1.6 billion is found to upgrade sewers in 54 communities around Chicago. There is no federal or state money for this. In suburban Evanston, the GAO found that upgrading would add $16 a month for 40 years to the property taxes on a $100,000 home.

At the same time, the GAO found disagreement over the pollution benefit of the project. "Do we really want to pay the cost of making the Chicago Sanitary and Ship Canal, which is full of barge traffic anyway, safe for swimming and boating?" asks one investigator.

The GAO notes that tunnel leaks might pollute drinking water for Chicago suburbs. "EPA is requiring monitors for this," said one investigator. "But what will they do if they find a leak?"

Another investigator notes that large fans in the reservoirs are intended to cut the odor, but "no one knows if they will succeed."

The GAO suggests partial alternatives:

—Clean sewers annually.

—Require factories and shopping centers to create temporary ponds on roofs and parking lots until storms pass.

—Adopt Seattle's computerized system for pumping excess water to sewer lines in areas the storm has missed.

—Install check valves closing basements from the sewer system during heavy rains. Cost: $300 to $3,000 per home.

—Disconnect downspouts from the sewer system and let water run from roofs directly into the ground. Cost: $15 per downspout.

Grand Jury Indicts Man For Murders

PAXTON, Ill. (AP) — A Michigan man has been indicted on three counts of murder in connection with an April 7 shootout along Interstate 57 that left five persons dead.

The Fore County grand jury Wednesday handed down indictments charging Monroe Lampkin, 43, of Union Pier, with the shooting deaths of State Trooper Michael McCarter, 32, of rural Paxton; Paxton Patrolman William Caisse, 32, and McCarter's brother-in-law, Donald Vice, 43, of Dwight, a passenger in McCarter's car.

Also killed in the shootout were two of Lampkin's brothers: Cleveland, 46, of Sturgis, Miss., and David, 32, also of Union Pier.

COSTLY TUNNEL — Workmen on a Chicago public works project known as TARP, for tunnel and reservoir plan, guide a mining machine through the earth beneath the streets of Chicago. Government officials fear the tunnel, designed to carry highly polluted sewage and storm runoff, could cost more than the Alaska oil pipeline and might not work. (AP Laserphoto)

Play-Only Puppets Easy To Make

By SHARI LEWIS

Puppets for play are different from puppets for plays. A play-only puppet is not meant to make you sit up and listen. Whether it's a 'push-me puppet, a bounce-me puppet or a pop-up one, it's only supposed to catch your eye and give you a laugh. You can make a Mop Up-Pop Up out of a stringy dish mop:

Just sew buttons as eyes (or glue on moving eyes from a discarded doll). The shaggy face will really need no other features. Push the bottom circle out of a big paper cup, stick your Mop Up-Pop Up in the bottom of the cup and let it pop out the top!

If, on the other hand, you want to act out a play with a puppet, you'll probably need one that looks like a more believable character. The simplest way to make such a puppet is to start with an old stuffed toy:

Make a slit in the back of the doll (where the tail would be) and pull out lots and lots of the stuffing.

Now stick your hand into the hole, and you're ready to start the play!

Retrofitting Theme Of Book

By ANDY LANG
Associated Press Writer

Improving the energy efficiency of a building is known loosely as retrofitting, a word most of us had never heard of until a few years ago.

Retrofitting is the central theme of a new book, "From The Walls In," by Charles Wing. He is a scientist-teacher who, with the help of his wife, some students and $8,200, took a 14-room, two-story house and transformed it into a residence that, without the benefit of solar orientation, got through a Maine winter on four cords of wood.

Wing is a man who leaves nothing to the imagination. There is no aspect of retrofitting that escapes his attention. Included among the subjects given detailed treatment are such things as forces and units, stresses in the house frame and building loads, as well as the more familiar matters of heat losses and gains, insulation, vapor barriers and weatherstripping. This, then, is a book by a person with a scientific mind who provides calculations that are likely to cause some readers to skip pages of tables and computations.

Wing's mathematical sorties presumably are of inestimable value to the serious student of construction. In fact, he founded a place called "Cornerstones: The Wing School of Shelter Technology," located in Brunswick, Maine. There, he and his wife, Susan, educate people on how to design and build their own homes and how to retrofit. Previously, Wing received a doctorate in physical oceanography from MIT, where he built a gravity meter that attracted the attention of government space officials and got him a job as a principal investigator on the Apollo 19 experiment.

This paragraph of advice from the Wing book demonstrates his gift for words, as well as providing a clue to what retroffitting often entails:

"When shopping for a house to retrofit or even when considering extensive renovating to your present house, fantasy is an ever-present danger. Retrofitting is a creative art, and fantasy is a necessary ingredient in architectural activity. But fantasy knows no limits; unbridled fantasy magnifies results while reducing cost and labor estimates. My personal fantasy factor is 2X — everything costs twice as much, takes twice as long, is twice as hard — as I have learned from hard experience ... So listen hard to what may be the best advice I have to offer. The key to success is fantasy bounded by reality."

("From The Walls In" is published by Little, Brown & Co. $9.95, a paperback original.)

FISHY STORY

Swimming motions, by fish or people, create low-frequency vibrations that are picked up by sharks' acute hearing. If the sound is regular and rhythmic, a shark may ignore it, National Geographic says. But if it is irregular, indicating thrashing or struggling, the shark may sense easy prey and attack.

Repairing Screen With Patch Prevents Unwelcome Visitors

By The Associated Press

Even a small hole in a screen can be troublesome, especially during certain times of the year in certain areas.

Mosquitoes and other insects have an uncanny way of finding even the tiniest opening and communicating that information to others of their kind.

While it is possible to take an old piece of screening and attach it so that it covers the hole, it is much easier-and usually neater-to buy a ready-made patch in a hardware store. The patch won't be entirely invisible, but it won't be an eyesore and it definitely will prevent the entrance of unwelcome visitors.

If the hole is very small and you don't have a patch on hand, it can be covered effectively with a little adhesive, especially the household cement type. Merely spread it across the opening and allow it to dry without too much fussing around. If it's anywhere near eye level, it will be noticeable, but it's a quick solution in an emergency.

Should the repaired area be in some inconspicuous corner of the screen and you wish to let it remain, the cement will stay in place for a long time.

When a screen is in such bad shape that it needs replacement, the procedure is not as difficult as some persons imagine. The work can be done by anyone who merely observes how the screening was put in place originally. There are two things that should be known, however, to get a good result. One is that, when the mesh is held in place with a flexible spline material, usually rope-like plastic but sometimes rubber, the job becomes easier with the use of a small tool that has one or two wheels on it. Just tell the hardware dealer from whom you buy the mesh that you want the tool that sets splining material in place.

The other thing you should know is a little trick for getting the new screening to fit tightly when slining is not used. Lay the frame on a sturdy flat surface. Place a board about one-inch think under each end of the frame. Fasten clamps on the frame at the center.

You will know it is correct when both ends of the frame are slightly higher than the center. Now attach the mesh, using either staples or nails, preferably staples. There is no need to stretch the mesh, since it will become taut as soon as you remove the clamps. Trim the ragged edges and replace the moulding.

In buying screening, allow an extra inch or two on each side. Also, you probably will want to use the same kind of mesh that was there in the first place so that it will match the other windows and doors. If you aren't sure whether it is aluminum or fiberglass or whatever, take a piece of it with you to the hardware store.

Army Honored By Proxmire

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who has handed out dozens of Golden Fleece awards for bureacratic bungling, had a surprise for the Army — an Award of Merit.

"Coming from me, this award may surprise the Army, but it is well deserved," the Senate's self-proclaimed fiscal watchdog said Thursday.

Proxmire said the Army earned one of his rare Awards of Merit for submitting to Congress "the most readable and honest presentation in my memory."

He named Percy Pierre, the Army's assistant secretary for research, development and acquisition, as co-winner.

The Army report, he said, was a novelty in comparison to others submitted by the Pentagon because "one can read it and understand what is being discussed."

Missing Pilots Declared Dead

ALAMOGORDO (AP) — The Air Force has officially declared dead two fighter pilots who vanished last month during a training exercise over southern New Mexico.

A Pentagon spokesman in Washington, D.C., confirmed Thursday that the families of the pilots, missing since April 12, were told the men are "presumed dead."

The pilots were identified as Capt. Thomas Pollock, 36, of Caldwell, Idaho, and Capt. Michael Humphries, 29, of Dallas.

The two and their F-5 jets disappeared while taking part in a routine exercise at Holloman Air Force Base near Alamogordo. Both were members of the 57th Tactical Training Wing, based at Nellis Air Force Base near Las Vegas, Nev.

A Holloman spokesman said intensive air and ground search operations were suspended indefinitely three weeks ago with no trace of the missing men.

"We're just hoping someone comes up with some leads, either campers, hunters, fishermen, or something like that," said Maj. Vern Spohn. "Or someone may spot something from the air that we missed although that's highly unlikely."

Newspaper Says First Rule Of Politics To Win

By United Press International

Following is a sample of what the nation's newspapers are saying this week:

Dallas Times Herald:

The first rule of politics is to win, a truism that places Senate Republican leader Howard Baker in a position both uncomfortable for him and the world at large over the issue of the strategic arms limitation treaty.

Baker is crucial to Senate approval of SALT II, a proposal designed in theory to halt the proliferation of the arms race between America and the Soviet Union.

The Tennessee legislator has told Mr. Carter that he believes in arms control and would like to vote for the treaty, although he does have some reservations about its terms. Thus, he told the President, "My inclination is to vote against it."

...Howard Baker wants to be the next president of the United States...But the Senate Republican leader's political chances of achieving that goal are virtually nil if he votes for SALT II, for he will have piggy-backed his vote in support of the hotly contested Panama Canal treaty with another unpopular ballot. Both are issues the Republican Party is hoping to capitalize on in its effort to defeat Jimmy Carter in 1980.

If Howard Baker votes in favor of both of them, he will not only be without the support of party members but in the position of going off to battle minus ammunition.

What that rightly implies about the method our leaders employ in establishing national or international policy and the trade-offs they routinely engage in to insure political survival is taken for granted, although incredibly appalling...

If the debate over the terms of the SALT II treaty were simply one of provisional substance, Americans could rest assured that the Washington discussions at least had their welfare in mind.

It isn't, and therefore we can't.

Recession Question

The Atlanta Constitution:

Don't push the panic button. Yet.

Economists have been predicting a recession for some time now. The question is not whether, but when and how big? The latest word is, well, not too big.

The Business Council, a 10-member organization of major corporation executives, hired some economic brains to look at the current situation. The forecast by 20 economists: "a mild recession" probably beginning in the third quarter of this year and lasting six to nine months.

Recession is a word everybody has learned to live with. We expect ups and downs as long as this world remains something less than the best of all possible worlds. Recessions mean problems — a rise in unemployment being one. But they can also act as a safety valve, cooling off an overheated economy. The last sizeable one was in 1974-75, and the one now predicted is not expected to be that rough. The economists predict the Gross National Product will decline about 1 percent and that unemployment is likely to climb back up to around 6.7 percent (it was 5.7 percent the first quarter of this year).

In short, squally weather ahead. But no reason to take to the lifeboats. And by the end of 1980 the ship of state is expected to be on course and under full steam again.

Prediction Not Fact

The Dallas Morning News:

The administration has at last owned up to what everyone else already knew — that inflation this year will exceed the 7.4 percent officially projected.

The new estimate from Treasury Secretary Blumenthal is 8.5 percent, which, at that, sounds low, given that the rate to date is around 13 percent.

It would be better surely if the White House dropped this pose of facile optimism and faced facts, the foremost of which is that, as of December, 1979, its economic policies had already doubled the inflation rate left us by Gerald Ford. Nor is the rate going anywhere but up just now.

Sooner or later the White House must admit that predicting a lowish inflation rate doesn't produce one. Budgetary and monetary restraint does that. The rest is sound and fury.

Soul-Searching

The Longview Daily News:

The president's proposed excess profits tax on oil when decontrol comes has generally turned out to be much milder than his initial rhetoric had indicated, but the prospect now looms that the House itself may toughen it to produce more revenue at the oil companies' expense than had been indicated earlier.

...The House is fearing that any price increases which may come — as they certainly will — in gasoline prices will be blamed on decontrol. So the members of the House are thinking seriously of jacking up the tax on excess profits even above what Carter has proposed. And "old oil" which is that produced from wells which have been flowing...for years, looms as the House's prime target. They are talking about applying the windfall tax to wells which produce as little as 10 barrels per day, wells which under Carter's plan would be exempt...

One large roadblock looms for the House members who want to slap this tax onto the producers. He is Sen. Russell Long of Louisiana and he is chairman of the Senate Finance Committee which will consider the bill...He is not expected to hold still for any attempt to gut the producers of these low-yield wells — and the House members know it.

So what now looms is a little soul-searching among the House Ways and Means Committee members to try to figure out what the traffic will bear. Long

Energy Crisis Real

New Haven (Conn.) Register:

The time has come for Americans to recognize that the energy crisis is for real, that conservation is essential to reduce demand, that the 55 mile per hour speed limit must be obeyed, that all unnecessary driving must be curtailed and that panic buying must be avoided at all costs.

Those steps alone should be sufficient to alleviate the present shortages resulting from 10 percent to 20 percent reductions in allotments being supplied to gasoline stations by major oil companies. The reductions in allotments are not drastic, they certainly are not sufficient to touch off panic buying by the public...

On the national level, it is essential that Congress and the administration approve a standby gasoline rationing plan. It has been reliably estimated that even if a rationing plan were approved today, it would take between six and eight months to develop the administrative apparatus necessary to make the program work. In the event of a severe crisis, perhaps another Mideast war or embargo, there won't be six or eight months to devise and implement a suitable rationing program...

Congratulations

Burlington (Vt.) Free Press:

The United States and the Soviet Union are prepared to sign a strategic arms limitation treaty that has emerged after seven long years of negotiation.

...there is powerful opposition in the Senate that President Carter is now trying to head off. The chief opponent is Sen. Howard Baker, the Republican leader, who says it is his "strong feeling" that the SALT agreement will be amended on the Senate floor or returned for renegotiation.

Carter feels the...treaty is the best one that can be achieved and he's begun lobbying in the Senate for its passage...

The Carter administration and the Soviets should be congratulated on emerging from their long negotiations with a treaty that hopefully will enhance our national security and reduce the risk of nuclear war.

Delacroix Painting Lent To Gallery

WASHINGTON (AP) — The painting "Dante and Virgil in Hell" by Eugene Delacroix has been lent to the National Gallery of Art by the Musee du Louvre of Paris for showing in a gallery of paintings of the French Romantic period.

Also on loan from the Louvre are Delacroix's "Portrait of Chopin" and Gustave Courbet's "Portrait of Berlioz," as well as Delacroix's "Paganini," lent by the Phillips Collection in Washington.

The paintings will be on view with other works of the period through Sept. 3.

might go part of the way with them, but he is not likely to go all the way. Just how far is what the guessing all will be about for the next few weeks.

Gutless Route

Lawrence (Mass.) Eagle Tribune:

...Congress...has chosen the energy crunch as an issue on which it will follow a leaderless public.

The latest chapter in this continuing saga was acted out...this week. The Senate, to its credit, voted to give President Carter authority to ration motor fuel should supplies take more than a 20 percent drop. The House took the gutless route and turned it down.

That means if the fuel supply situation gets worse (or is made worse), we can all line up at the pumps and fight with each other. The alternative is to have a fair way to distribute what fuel is available. The law of the jungle serves only animals.

The House vote was not a surprise. Few congressmen, after all, want any part of a vote that could in a pinch, keep John Public's gas-guzzler in the garage more often.

It isn't as if there's no protection from an overzealous president. If ever imposed, the House or the Senate could have stopped the whole thing with a veto within 15 days. Further, any rationing plan put into operation would have to win new approval from Congress every nine months.

What we have now is no emergency plan at all, no weapon with which to fight back...and a Congress whose marshmallow approach to a serious problem is confined to support for unenforceable measures like regulating the temperatures inside non-residential buildings.

Failure Seen

Pawtucket (R.I.) Evening Times:

The Carter Presidency.

The polls indicate a lack of public confidence in it.

Congress seems unwilling to move to its direction.

Many of our neighbors around the world seem confused by it.

Is the Carter Presidency destined to be the third in little more than a decade to end in failure?...

Is the man unfit for the job or is the job simply unfit for this man? Or any man?

We think the former may be true. And the latter, also. The troubled American Presidency in a century of relentless stress may well be predestined to fail if the nation is willing to allow it.

Frequently, we seem frighteningly willing.

Thorpe's Alleged Lover Takes Witness Stand

LONDON (AP) — Norman Scott, the man former Liberal party leader Jeremy Thorpe is accused of plotting to kill after they had an alleged homosexual affair, took the stand at thorpe's trial here today.

Looking and sounding nervous, the 39-year-old former male model told the jury at the Old Bailey Central Criminal Court he first met Thorpe in the early 1960s while he was working for a man called Norman Vater as a horse riding teacher.

Scott said Thorpe came to stay at Vater's house at Chipping Norton in Oxfordshire county and that when he first saw Thorpe it was "only very vaguely. He was a visitor and I kept more or less to myself." Thorpe had met him briefly in the stable yard one morning and chatted to him about his work with horses.

Scott said he later had a nervous breakdown and after being discharged from psychotherapy treatment went to see Thorpet the House of Commons. He had no money and his only possession was his terrier, "Mrs. Tish." Thorpe promised "he would look after me and help me," Scott said.

Thorpe, 50, leader of the small Liberal party from 1967 to 1976, is charged with three co-defendants with conspiring to murder Scott between 1973 and 1977. The other accused are David Holmes, 48, former deputy treasurer of the Liberal party and a close friend of Thorpe; John Le Mesurier, 46, a businessman; and George Deakin, 35, a club owner. Thorpe alone is also charged with inciting Holmes to kill Scott during the early part of 1969.

Each pleaded innocent when the trial started 10 days ago. If convicted, each could be jailed for 10 years on each charge. At present each is free on bail of 5,000 pounds — $10,000.

The courtroom was crowded and hushed as Scott walked in wearing a brown blazer, dark brown pants, blue check shirt and dark blue tie. He coughed nervously as he took the oath and several times was asked to speak louder because the jury could not hear.

He said his original name was Norman Valentine Nicholas Josiffe. After a row with Vater he had a nervous breakdown followed by a succession of nervous troubles. For several months he received psychotherapy treatment at a clinic but did not remember much about it because he had been "quite drugged."

He said that on the day he left the clinic for the last time he went immediately to see Thorpe at the House of Commons in London.

"I had no money and my only possession was my Jack Russell terrier 'Mrs. Tish'. I was not sure quite what to do about her. I didn't think I could take 'Mrs. Tish' into the House of Commons so I left her in Whitehall (nearby) at the anti-vivisection center. The lady there was very kind. I had no luggage."

Scott said he went to see Thorpe and told him what had happened between himself and Vater and how he had been ill.

"Mr. Thorpe said he would look after me and help me and told me to go and get my dog," Scott said. "He said he would think about it while I was away collecting her. He told me to come back to the House (of Commons), which I did."

The prosecution alleges Thorpe and Scott later had homosexual relations. It claims Thorpe then plotted to have Scott killed because he feared the highly-strung Scott would reveal the alleged affair in public and ruin Thorpe's political career.

The prosecution claims abortive murder plans included luring Scott to the United States, shooting him and dumping his body in the wilds of Florida and hiring airline pilot Andrew Newton to shoot him on bleak Exmoor in southwest England.

Senate Probers Unable To Trace Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate investigators say they have been unable to trace about $21,000 in campaign contributions and Senate expense money which passed through a secret bank account linked to Sen. Herman E. Talmadge.

Lawrence Sullivan, a lawyer and accountant for the Senate Ethics Committee, testified Thursday that he believes Daniel Minchew, Talmadge's chief accuser, took about $13,000 from the account for his personal use.

But Sullivan said he believes $13,000 is the maximum Minchew got personally from the account in the Riggs National Bank of Washington.

Minchew, Talmadge's former administrative assistant, is expected to tell the committee Monday that he gave the senator large amounts of cash from the secret account, which he says was opened at Talmadge's direction.

The committee says it has "substantial credible evidence" that the Georgia Democrat converted campaign contributions and expense funds to his personal use.

Meanwhile, Talmadge's lawyers opened an effort to discredit Minchew, who worked for Talmadge in 1973 and 1974.

Robert Wertheim, one of Talmadge's lawyers, said shortly after Minchew left Talmadge's staff in October 1974, he began borrowing heavily, a pattern Wertheim said continued through 1975 and 1976.

The lawyer cited that as evidence that once Minchew no longer had access to campaign contributions, he ran short of cash.

Wertheim also produced records showing that each time Minchew made withdrawals from the secret account, it followed a period when Minchew's own personal checking account had been overdrawn.

Talmadge has labeled Minchew "a proven liar, thief and embezzler."

In his testimony, Sullivan said he had made a detailed examination of all of Minchew's financial transactions, including bank records, from 1973 through 1977.

He said Minchew owned at least three rental properties in Washington, a farm in Oregon, property in Georgia and maintained various bank accounts in three separate states.

But Sullivan said he was able to separate the transactions involving those holdings from withdrawals and deposits Minchew made with money from the secret account.

Sullivan testified that $6,600 went directly from the account into Minchew's personal checking account. An additional $6,335 went indirectly to Minchew's personal use, he said.

Sullivan, a senior accountant on loan from the General Accounting Office, acknowledged it is possible Minchew took all $21,000 of the unaccounted money and hid the cash.

Buhe cited Minchew's regular habit of writing checks to obtain cash and said, "This is inconsistent with someone who has a cash horde."

He also noted that Minchew regularly borrowed "a lot of money" and maintained a line of credit with his bank to cover times when his checking account ran low.

"It would seem to me that if he had cash available, he would not be borrowing money on that basis," Sullivan said.

Minchew has acknowledged funnelling $12,000 in Senate expense funds and $27,000 in campaign contributions through the account.

Lawyer Says White 'Guilt-Ridden'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The defense says former city official Dan White is "guilt-ridden and remorseful" and is prepared to accept his punishment for shooting to death Mayor George Moscone and Supervisor Harvey Milk.

Defense lawyer Douglas Schmidt said White, 32, a former policeman and fireman, has "surrendered to the idea he's going to be punished" for last November's City Hall killings and that he deserves whatever verdict the jury decides on.

The panel of seven women and five men began deliberations in the case on Wednesday and appeared to spend much of their time concentrating on the differences among the possible murder and manslaughter verdicts available.

White, who had sat nearly emotionless in the court during the trial, was allowed to visit briefly Thursday with his wife and infant son.

Schmidt had asked the jurors to find White guilty of voluntary manslaughter, arguing that the defendant was mentally unstable and acted in the "heat of passion."

The panel on Thursday asked Superior Court Judge Walter Calcagno to define "malice," indicating they were still considering the voluntary manslaughter verdict — with a resulting sentence of two to eight years.

In his instructions, the judge had defined voluntary manslaughter as a killing committed in the "heat of passion which would prevent him from deliberating, premeditating and harboring malice."

Officials Still Probing Death At County Jail

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Authorities this morning still were trying to piece together a 52-year-old man's activities prior to his arrest outside a nightclub and subsequent incarceration in the county jail, where he was found dead about 5 a.m. Thursday.

Lubbock County sheriff's deputies and city police were questioning numerous persons who had come into contact with Jose A. Villarreal, 52, before he was found dead in his bunk in the jail's second-floor "drunk tank."

While the investigation continued, Criminal District Attorney John Montford said he would present the case to a grand jury scheduled to meet the last week in May or the first week in June.

Police and the sheriff's department have been given three different addresses for the victim, the most recent reported one being an apartment in the 1600-block of Broadway.

Deputy Don Gass this morning talked to a man who said he had known Villarreal, and that the man had lived in the apartment complex, Chief Deputy Albert Smith said. The acquaintance reportedly said Villarreal had been robbed recently by a female at his apartment.

However, police Det. Jose Nevarez said he checked records, and could not find a report of the dead man's recently being a robbery victim.

Villarreal was found unconscious about 1:15 a.m. Thursday outside the Monte Carlo Lounge at 355 Ave. H. Police reportedly could not revive the man, who had to be carried to the patrol car and transported to the jail.

A jailer discovered the man dead about four hours later. Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy said early today he was withholding a ruling pending further investigation.

LeCroy said a preliminary autopsy report revealed Villarreal died from a blow near the right temple. Authorities first speculated the man was just drunk and died of natural causes in his cell, shared by several other prisoners.

Det. Ted Daniels said Sgt. James Little received a call early Thursday morning of a disturbance at the Monte Carlo Lounge that resulted in a patron being thrown out. The initial report, called in by bartender Aurora Flores Gonzales, resulted in the arrest of Villarreal on suspicion of public intoxication.

However, the bartender later told police that Villarreal did not cause a disturbance and walked out of the club on his own, Daniels said.

"The heavy-set man (Villarreal) that came in and I refused to serve didn't seem to have any trouble with anybody while he was there," Mrs. Gonzales said after it was learned that the man died. "When he left, he left on his own; nobody asked him to leave."

Bar owner Juan Flores Benites told police that a married couple had seen Villarreal leave the club, and that he tripped as he walked out.

Benites said he found Villarreal unconscious outside of the club, and after he failed to revive him, decided to call police, because "we were afraid he would lay out there and die or something."

The original report showed the man living at 1610 Ave. E. After the man's death, a 1217 Ave. F address was given. Daniels said that police went to the Avenue E location this morning, and the house was padlocked.

Early today, authorities still did not know how Villarreal got to the club, or what he had done before arriving there alone.

Services for Villarreal were pending with Henderson Funeral Directors.

'Unofficial' Militia Attacks Iranian Oil Town

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Gunmen of an "unofficial" militia attacked a southern Iranian oil town today killing one person and wounding four others and a firing squad executed a gendarmerie officer in a former royal palace of the shah, Tehran radio reported.

Militiamen and revolutionary guards in the police headquarters of Masjid-e Solaiman in oil-rich Khuzestan province battled each other when the militamen were ordered out of town.

Disturbances apparently continued following the early morning attack in Masjid-e Solaiman, 620 miles southwest of Tehran, which had been wracked by unrest since Sunday. Iranian radio issued a warning to the gunmen to stop shooting or face "harsh measures."

It said the town was in the hands of government forces.

Tehran radio said government forces retaliated against the attack by "counterrevolutionary" gunmen. It did not mention casualties or arrests.

The attack on Masjid-e Solaiman appeared to be the latest challenge to government from armed men stalking Iranian cities despite attempts by authorities to control them.

In the royal resort of Babol, 2nd Lt. Dariush Javid, sentenced to death by an Islamic court on a charge of killing two men, was executed early today.

Tehran radio said Javid was executed in the royal palace of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi in Babol, 130 miles northeast of Tehran.

A policeman, Ahmad Aghari, also found guilty of murder, had his sentence commuted to two years imprisonment following a pardon by the family of the man he was alleged to have killed.

Tehran radio said the attack on Masjid-e Solaiman was launched early today but did not say how men gunmen were involved.

Revolutionary guards and government troops stationed in the city, 435 miles southwest of Tehran, returned the gunfire but did not appear to have caused any casualties or to have made any arrests in the counterattack, according to the radio report.

The broadcast said some assailants attacked a car carrying four people, including "a patient was being taken to a hospital." In the shooting that followed, all four passengers of the car were wounded, the radio said.

The shooting coincided with attempts by authorities to dissolve and disarm militia groups in Khuzestan and several other provinces.

Ayatollah al Shubair Khaqani, Khuzestan's most prominent religious leader, announced today that all militia groups in the troubled city of Khorramshahr, 620 miles southwest of Tehran, were being dissolved. Anyone carrying arms will be arrested, he warned.

The dissolution of similar militias in Kashan, 160 miles south of Tehran, was announced Thursday. The radio did not say today if the militiamen had actually been disbanded and made to turn in their weapons.

The spreading power of the unofficial militia komitehs — committees — created after the overthrow of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi in February is seen as a major threat to the law enforcement agencies.

ZBA Approves New Location For Pump Station, Reservoir

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Construction of a Southwest Lubbock pump station and reservoir cleared another hurdle Thursday when the Zoning Board of Adjustment approved its location north of 82nd Street and west of Memphis Avenue.

In September, the board approved construction of the pump station at approximately 78th Street and Quaker Avenue. But when that land changed ownership the location of the site also had to be changed.

City officials plan an Aug. 21 sale of $8.82 million in bonds to finance, among other things, construction of the reservoir. If the facility is not completed by June 1980, water use may have to be curtailed next summer.

Board members also approved a request by Harold Burkhalter, representing O'Donnell Enterprises Inc., for a variance in the parking requirements for a restaurant at 1702, 1704, 1706 and 1708 19th St.

However, the board suggested Burkhalter attempt to find a new roof design for the Whataburger restaurant that would be more compatible with other downtown structures.

In other action the board:

— Denied the request of Al Komarek for a variance in the setback requirements for a carport at 2826 62nd St.

— Approved the request of O.V. Scott, representing First National Bank, for a variance in the requirements for a sign at a drive-in bank at 10th Street and Avenue Q.

— Approved the request of Larry Elliott, representing Farrar Del Norte, for a variance in the setback requirements at 5713 64th St., but denied the same request for property at 5702 62nd St. and 5701 and 5717 64th St.

— Denied the request of M.L. Collins, representing Double C Inc., for a special exception to allow gas pumps in a general retail (C-2) zone and vary the setback requirements on property at 8210 Hudson Ave.

— Denied the request of Aubrey J. Fouts, representing JHJ & G Inc., for a special exception to allow self-service gasoline pumps in a C-2 zone at 5719 66th St.

— Continued the request of Burl D. Bourns, representing Luther T. Bourns, for a special exception to allow a mobile home to be used for a dwelling at 3508 Ave. J.

— Approved the request of Shirley A. Cleveland for a special exception to allow a business in a residence at 2625 E. Auburn St.

— Tabled the request of Doak Enabnit for the Lubbock County Hospital District for a special exception to allow an emergency ambulance station in a mobile home at 5012 50th St.

Cuba-U.S. Relations Described As 'Awful'

COZUMEL, Mexico (AP) — Fidel Castro said Cuba's relations with the Carter administration were "perfectly awful," despite some improvement, and that the U.S. blockade of his Communist-ruled island was "one of the most miserable acts that I know."

" ... We cannot even buy one aspirin from the United States for a toothache. But this is nothing compared to trying to save the life of a child, when we also cannot buy medicine," the Cuban president told a news conferenceThursday night.

Castro, visiting Mexico for the first time since he launched his revolution 23 years ago, said the "fundamental obstacles" to better relations with the United States were the blockade and the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo, which the United States has refused to vacate.

Castro also predicted that the governments of Nicaragua and El Salvador would fall soon because of civilian and guerrilla uprisings. He said the people of Nicaragua will "soon throw garbage at Somoza. Somoza is the son of North American intervention."

President Anastasio Somoza's father took power in Nicaragua in the 1930s with the help of invading U.S. Marines.

Castro said the only country that has intervened in Central America is the United States and denied charges that Cuba has sent aid to revolutionaries throughout Latin America.

Castro, visiting Mexico to "tighten the bonds of friendship," also blasted the United States for its treatment of illegal Mexican immigrants and praised his host, President Jose Lopez Portillo, for refusing to tailor his oil policy to suit Washington.

The Cuban president said the unemployment that send Mexicans across the U.S.-Mexican border in search of work is the result of 'the bitter and inevitable mutilation of the national territory and the underdevelopment imposed by the force, the arrogance and the domination of the United States in the past."

Top Students Given Honors At Dunbar

The outstanding juniors and seniors at Dunbar-Struggs High School have been given the school's top four awards in recognition of their achievements.

Senior Trina Foster received the Dunbar-Struggs Brotherhood Award for promoting "brotherhood and sisterhood among the races," said activities director Virgil Johnson.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars Speaking Award went to senior Linda Ferguson and junior Tony Hudson. Runnersup were senior Thomas Braxton and junior Chartress Kelly.

Miss Foster also received the National School Choral Award and Braxton was given the John Phillip Sousa Award for his achievement in music.

The Friends of Dunbar-Struggs Award was given to L.A. Caraway, salesman for Modern Chevrolet, which furnishes cars for the homecoming games at the school.

Recognition was also given to other sophomores, juniors and seniors for achievement in various departments and clubs at the school.

Youth Charged With Assault

A Lubbock youth has been charged with aggravated assault as a result of a Wednesday knife attack on a 62-year-old woman.

Edward Earl Johnson, 17, of 2422-B Redbud St., is accused of cutting the woman with a knife at her home in the 2400 block of East 28th Street.

Lynn Mathis, 22, of Amarillo was charged with criminal mischief. He is accused of causing $3,900 of damage to a 1512 28th St. rental house belonging to a Lubbock man.

Raul Gutierrez, 34, of 6011 Orlando St. was charged with indecency with a child in a reported Monday incident involving a 12-year-old girl.

Other charges filed by the Criminal District Attorney's office include:

Jeffrey D. Shelton, 18, of Reese Air Force Base was charged with burglary of a vehicle in the reported May 9 theft of $400 in meat from a meat truck parked off the Tahoka Highway; Felix Lucero, 55, of 1322 28th St., with theft in the reported April 20 theft of $6,800 in watches and rings from a Lubbock man in the 7800 block of Memphis Drive; and Johnny Burton Parrott, 22, of 1905 49th St,. with unauthorized use of a vehicle in the reported theft of a car Tuesday in the 2000 block of 49th Street.

Ninth Graders At Atkins Get Awards

The highest award given an Atkins Junior High student was presented to four ninth graders Thursday at the school's recognition assembly.

The Teen of the Year award was given to Terri Hewett and Lonny Garrett and runners-up Kelli Reinhardt and Kent Womack. The students were chosen from among the year's teens of the month by the ninth grade student body.

Each winner received a copy of W.H. Danforth's "I Dare You Book" which encourages leadership and and achievement by students.

Another top award was given to four ninth graders in recognition of good citizenship. Mandy Stavlo and David Alderson and runners-up Gay Davis and Mark Hastings received Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) citizenship medals.

Other awards were given to 14 seventh graders, 15 eighth graders and 16 ninth graders for academic achievement.

Waste Company Offers Reward

A $1,000 reward is being offered by J & G Waste Systems Inc. of 405 30th St. to any person providing information leading to the conviction of a man who tried to run two J & G trucks off the road Thursday.

A spokesman for the company said a Mexican-American man driving a 1977 or 1978 blue Ford Thunderbird with dealer tags ran a J&G truck into a pole on Texas Avenue about 4 a.m. Thursday. The driver was not injured, but in swerving to miss the car the truck received about $3,500 in damage.

Another driver said he barely avoided being run off South Quirt Avenue about 2:30 p.m. Thursday by a car matching the description of the previous auto.

City police and Lubbock county sheriff's deputies are investigating the incidents, but the spokesman said the reward was being offered because, "We just don't want any of our people to get hurt or killed by this guy. We don't know what he's trying to do."

Latin Not Yet Dead In Lansing Suburb

By CHRIS PARKS

GRAND LEDGE, Mich. (UPI) — Toga! Toga! Toga!

The kids in what is billed as America's largest high school Latin club have been doing it for years — long before actor John Belushi and the movie "Animal House" made toga parties a national campus craze.

They also hold slave auctions, construct model catapults, feast on Roman-style dinners, giggle over a comedy record spoofing classical history and even sing happy birthday to Rome — all in Latin, of course.

"It's fun," said Sarah Andres, a 16-year-old sophomore.

Maybe that's why more than 10 percent of Grand Ledge High School's 1,900 students take Latin and most of them are in the Latin club.

Although its popularity has waned in many schools, Latin is far from dead in the small Lansing suburb of Grand Ledge.

"We make it live," said Kay DePue, who has taught the language for 28 years and seen her department grow from two small classes to 10.

Mrs. DePue's Room 52 in the one-story, modern building looks more like a cluttered little museum than a classroom.

A copy of the famous "Winged Victory" statue stands in one corner.

The room is festooned with colorful banners bearing Latin slogans and crammed with other class projects such as Roman armor, model buildings, replicas of seige machinery, depictions of murals from Pompeii and dolls in Roman dress.

Every year, the Roman Saturnalia — a forerunner of Christmas —is celebrated by the Latin club with a full-dress (togas, naturally) feast featuring Roman-style food and entertainment.

First-year students are slaves, while their more advanced classmates are patricians.

The club has its own blue-and-yellow T-shirts bearing a little cartoon roman soldier and the inscription "Latin lives."

Mrs. DePue said high school students are attracted by the exotic mystique of Roman culture. "It's so different from modern," she said.

"I'd love to take a trip to Rome to see the ruins ... because of what it was ... the power ... what it symbolizes," said David Laird, a 15-year-old sophomore.

At the same time, the veteran teacher makes a point of relating Latin and Roman culture to modern life.

She stresses how much of the English language is derived from Latin. Customs like the use of evergreens and candles at Christmas have their roots in the Roman Saturnalia.

Despite all the fun, Mrs. DePue gets results.

All Grand Ledge students scored at or above the national average on recent Latin tests. Four won the honor magnum cum laude.

Report Says Commercial Banks Will Have Higher Profits In 1979

By STEPHEN M. BROWN

NEW YORK (AP) — American commercial banks will have higher profits in 1979 but will face stiffer competition from foreign banks at home and in Europe, say banking industry experts at Salomon Brothers.

The major Wall Street investment house recently issued a report on the top 35 American banks, describing their performance in 1978 and offering a forecast for 1979.

The 1978 news was exceptionally good for the group of 35 banks — losses on bad loans fell although loan volume was up markedly. And earnings before securities transactions rose a record 27 percent.

The report predicted earnings would rise by 14 to 16 percent in 1979, down from the 25.9 percent increase in the first quarter but nevertheless "an outstanding performance by normal banking standards, and especially impressive on top of last year's record expansion."

The analysts said that 1979 earnings gains will be held back by higher costs for funds banks acquire and by a probable decline in demand for loans during a general economic downturn late in the year.

Foreign banks also will be an impediment to a larger increase in earnings.

The report predicted that foreign banks will continue opening branch offices in the United States, capturing a healthy share of commercial loan activity and merging with domestic banks.

According to the report, assets of 305 foreign institutions operating in the United States rose by $36 billion or 38 percent to $129.5 billion in 1978.

Even more impressive, the study said, was the fact that foreign banks in 1978 had a 44.5 percent increase in commercial and industrial loans in the United States. Because of this jump, U.S. offices of foreign institutions accounted for 25.6 percent of all domestic busiess loans by major banks in 1978, up sharply from the 20 percent market share the foreign banks held at the end of 1977.

In New York, the foreign banks showed even stronger advances in business loans, increasing its share of big-bank lending to 54.9 percent by the end of 1978 from 40.7 percent a year earlier.

In Europe, U.S. banks found lots of competition to extend credit, made evident by weaker earnings from interest rates and fees. The strong demand for all kinds of loans in the United States also drew American banks' attention away from Europe to the domestic market.

International earnings of the top 10 U.S. banks grew by 14.2 percent in 1978, a growth rate that won't be matched this year, the report said.

The authors, Warren R. Marcus, general partner; Thomas H. Hanley, vice president, and Jeffrey L. Cohn, analyst, noted that for the past three years American banks have shown more earnings growth in domestic operations than international business. The report said, "Overseas profits for the 10 largest multinational banks have compounded at a rate of only 8.5 percent since 1975," compared with a 35 percent annual rate from 1970 through 1975.

The top 10 multinational banks had overseas earnings growth of 14.2 percent last year, while domestic earnings leaped by 40.2 percent. Foreign earnings for this group of banks accounted for 45.9 percent of total 1978 earnings, down from 50.9 percent in 1977.

While the authors expect a general economic downturn late in the year, they said the 35 banks seem well prepared to weather such an event, having built reserves for loan losses in 1978 to accompany the higher volume of loans. The group of 35 banks also have strong current earnings, which "constitute the first and most substantial defense against cedit losses."

Legislator Distracted By Trivia

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — They've already got a state bird, a state flower, a state rock, and they came within a gnat's wing of getting a state bug. But are the people of Iowa ready for a state fiber?

It's right there in the May 10 edition of the official Journal of the Iowa House of Representatives — page 2,334, right after four "whereases" and a "be it resolved."

Polyester.

The nomination for state fiber was the cheeky offering of State Rep. Doug Ritsema, a Republican legislator driven to official distraction by the love of his colleagues for state symbols.

The final straw was a move by the House in the closing days of its session this year to name the ladybug the official state insect. The Senate didn't go along.

If it had, the bug would have been the latest entry on a list that includes state flag, seal, flower (wild rose), bird (eastern goldfinch), tree (oak) and a rock (geode) that geologists say isn't even a rock but a humble mineral formation.

Ritsema of Orange City took to the legislative drafting board and waited until the next-to-last day of the 1979 session to introduce his little-noticed resolution on the glut of symbols.

"The 1979 Iowa House of Representatives has determined that these are not enough pieces of insignificant trivia for this great state ... The Iowa House of Representatives has therefore decided to add to this list by naming the ladybug as the state insect.

"Now therefore, be it resolved by the House of Representatives, the Senate concurring, that the following items also be added to this important list: state nickname, state sport, state food, state animal, state color, state number, state fiber."

The nickname for the only state with official polyester would be the "Hawkeye State." Ritsema's state sport is six-girl basketball; his state food the Iowa pork chop. The state animal would be the cow, the number would 1846 (year of statehood) and the color brown.

To study and make recommendations on future state symbols, the resolution calls for creation of a bipartisan "Commission on Worthless and Stupid Trivia, Etc."

In bureaucratic talk, that's the Commission on W.A.S.T.E.

German air-ace Baron Manfred von Richthofen, known as the Red Baron, was shot down and killed over the Western Front in 1918 by, according to some reports, Capt. Roy Brown of Canada. Brown was a flight leader in the 209th Squadron of the Royal Flying Corps.

Pesticide Found In Wells

By SUSAN SWARD

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The state has found traces of the pesticide DBCP in 36 groundwater wells. Officials say that will make it more difficult for growers to get the chemical re-approved for use in the state, and may increase pressure for a nationwide ban.

The finding as announced this week by the state Food and Agriculture Department, which said it would continue testing to see how widespread the problem is.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency is considering a nationwide ban of DBCP, which has been linked by tests to cancer and infertility. California already has such a ban, dating to 1977.

The 36 wells in which DBCP was found are among 139 tested in two weeks. All 36 are in the San Joaquin Valley, except for four in Riverside County.

The findings aroused reaction from both defenders and detractors of the pesticide, which is used to combat nematodes, microscopic worms that attack tree and vine crops and is one of the most popular pesticides in the nation.

EPA's next hearing on the proposed ban is June 25. Larry O'Neill, an EPA spokesman, said the finding could have a "significant" effect on the federal agency's attitude. And Jake MacKenzie, a state agriculture department associate director, said the finding means the state won't be "proceeding at full speed" toward lifting the ban.

Assemblyman Richard Lehman, D-Fresno, sponsor of a resolution urging an end to the state ban, said he would "hold off," awaiting more information. "The major point is this: Do the levels they found constitute any type of danger at all?" he asked. If the ban is extended, he said, scientists should seek alternative pesticides.

Ralph Lightstone, lobbyist for California Rural Legal Assistance, which represents farm workers, said: "Based on studies linking DBCP to cancer and sterility, this is a grave matter, to have it in drinking water. This puts a lot of pressure on EPA to ban it nationwide."

State officials stopped short of calling for a closure of the 36 wells, but said any well containing more than one part per billion of DBCP should not be used for drinking. They said there is no legal limit for DBCP, but agreed on one part per billion in the absence of any standard.

The DBCP levels ranged from less than one part per billion to 15 parts per billion, and most were less than 10 parts per billion. Eighteen had levels above one part per billion.

Among the 36 wells were 18 rural domestic water supplies and four municipal domestic supplies in rural towns in the San Joaquin Valley — Livingston, Delhi, Dinuba and Parlier. All four had concentrations of less than one part per billion.

Before the state ban was imposed in August 1977, state agriculture officials estimated that about 1.5 million pounds of the chemical were being applied on California crops annually.

The ban was imposed after some workers at a DBCP plant in the San Joaquin Valley were found to be infertile. DBCP, a chlorinated hydrocarbon, has a relatively long life — 10 years in some soils, state offials said.

FDA Not Ready To Re-Propose Saccharin Ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Next week the law which halted the proposed ban on saccharin will have expired.

But the Food and Drug Administration says consumers won't know the difference. Diet soda and other processed foods containing the artificial sweetener still will be freely available, and probably will remain that way for the immediate future.

The law, passed in the fall of 1977, told the FDA it could not move against saccharin for at least 18 months. That period expires Wednesday.

Technically, the FDA will be free after that day to repropose its partial ban on saccharin, outlawing the sweetener in diet pop and other processed foods but allowing its continued use as a tabletop sweetener to be added to such drinks and foods as coffee, tea or cereal.

The FDA says it has not even prepared a paper to publish on reproposing the ban. If it does repropose the restrictions, it says, it would take at least another 18 months "and probably longer" for a ban to take effect because of the time periods required by law for public comment.

It also appears Congress is in no hurry to extend the law. Legislation has been introduced in both the House and Senate to either extend the ban or tackle the larger issue of whether the nation's food safety laws should be revised.

But it appears likely Congress will enact some form of extension of the anti-ban moratorium this summer.

Another thing that will not be affected by expiration of the moratorium next week is the saccharin warning labels — both the red and white signs which have been posted in stores selling saccharin products, and printed warnings on soft drinks and other foods containing the sweetener.

The FDA says those warnings — which tell users the sweetener has been found to cause cancer in laboratory animals — were established by separate regulation and will remain in place even after the moratorium expires.

The same law which imposed the moratorium directed the FDA to require the warnings, and also ordered government health researchers to conduct a survey, now under way.

China Launches New Drive

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — China broke off peace talks with Vietnam today and opened what appeared to be a third front against Hanoi's fores in Laos.

Vietnam charged Peking was making "frenzied preparations for new military adventures" and a Vietnamese envoy in Tokyo said China had massed 500,000 troops along their common frontier.

A radio broadcast from China announced what appeared to be a third front. It said a pro-Chinese Lao Socialist Party has been created to overthrow Vietnamese control of Laos, where Hanoi has 30,000 troops. An oil and weapons storage dump already have been destroyed.

The developments indicated that relations between the Communist neighbors had deteriorated again following their month-long border war earlier this year and raised the prospect of a widening military confrontation.

Chinese and Vietnamese envoys met for the fifth time in Hanoi today and afterward Chinese delegation leader Han Nianlong said the "present round of negotiations in Hanoi is to be concluded with this session and the next round is to be held in Peking."

The official New China News Agency, which broadcast his comments, said the Chinese delegates would leave the Vietnamese capital soon.

But Vietnam said the Chinese had "deliberately and unilaterally" ended the first round of talks and no mention was made of sending Vietnamese envoys to Peking.

"The Chinese side only wants to come here to speak out, impose its will and leave the negotiating table whenevr it wishes," Vietnamese delegate Phan Hien said.

"It must bear full responsibility for the deadlock."

The Chinese, who accused the Vietnamese of using "clumsy tricks" to evade the real issues at the bargaining table, have tied up Hanoi's troops along their common border and in Cambodia by supplying Khmer Rouge rebels.

The official news agencies of China and Vietnam poured out thousands of words accusing the other side of attempting to "distort" and "slander" it's noble intentions. They were the lengthiest and most bitter exchanges in months.

China expressed anger that Vietnam had allowed the Soviet Union to build an electronic monitoring station in Cam Ranh Bay and to build naval and air bases.

It said Vietnam had staged 400 armd provocations and incursions since March 17, the end of the month-long border war, resulting in dozens of casualties.

Hanoi in turn said China had, since the beginning of the peace talks, committed 159 provocations, including firing on and shelling Vietnamese territory, killing 49 Vietnamese, destroying homes and livestock and massing troops, planes and ships near Vietnam.

In Tokyo, Vietnamese ambassador to Japan, Nguyen Giap, said China had massed half a million troops near the border and that the Vietnamese border towns of Cao Bang and Lang Son had been evcauted.

In Laos, both Vietnam and the pro-Hanoi government in Vientiane have accused Peking of preparing to invade the country.

The emergence of a pro-Chinese Lao Socialist Party may indicate the Chinese have decided to support a guerrilla war against Vietnam's forces in Laos to bring new pressure on Vietnam's vulnerable western flank, diplomatic observers said.

This would mean that Vietnam's army would be bogged down along the Chinese border, in Cambodia and in Laos, stretching it perilously thin and committing Hanoi to even larger military expenditures.

Hotel Fire Kills Two, Injures 26

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Flames swept through a downtown residential hotel early today, killing at least two persons and injuring 26 others. The blaze sent several residents leaping from second-floor windows in their nightclothes.

Police Sgt. Roger Birdseye said two young men were taken into custody near the hotel, but authorities would not disclose whether the men were being questioned in connection with the fire.

A fire department spokesman, Martin Garza, said the charred body of an unidentified woman in her 80s and the body of a second, unidentified person were found by firefighters on the third floor of the old hotel, situated in a rundown area of the city.

Four of the injured were in critical conditions. Three of those hurt were firemen, said Garza.

Tony Tripi, spokesman for the county Department of Health Services, said 26 injured persons were taken to eight area hospitals "and at least seven of them had burn injuries and most of the others were fractures and injuries other than burns."

Edward Lyons, 46, a resident of the hotel, said he was lying awake when he "noticed the lights were blinking off and on."

"I opened the door and I was engulfed," Lyons said. "It was a big ball of flame everywhere."

Another resident, Robert Hayes, 52, said he watched as his next-door neighbor jumped from the second floor amid billowing black smoke and searing flames.

It was something," he said. "He's all right though — he's a young one in his 20s."

Fire officials said 115 firefighters and 26 companies worked for nearly 1½ hours to control the blaze, which began about 1:30 a.m. in the first floor of the three-story brick structure.

Fire Inspector Ed Reed said it was not known if all the occupants of the gutted 63-unit hotel escaped, but added, "with the fire as extensive as it is, there is no way we can tell that now."

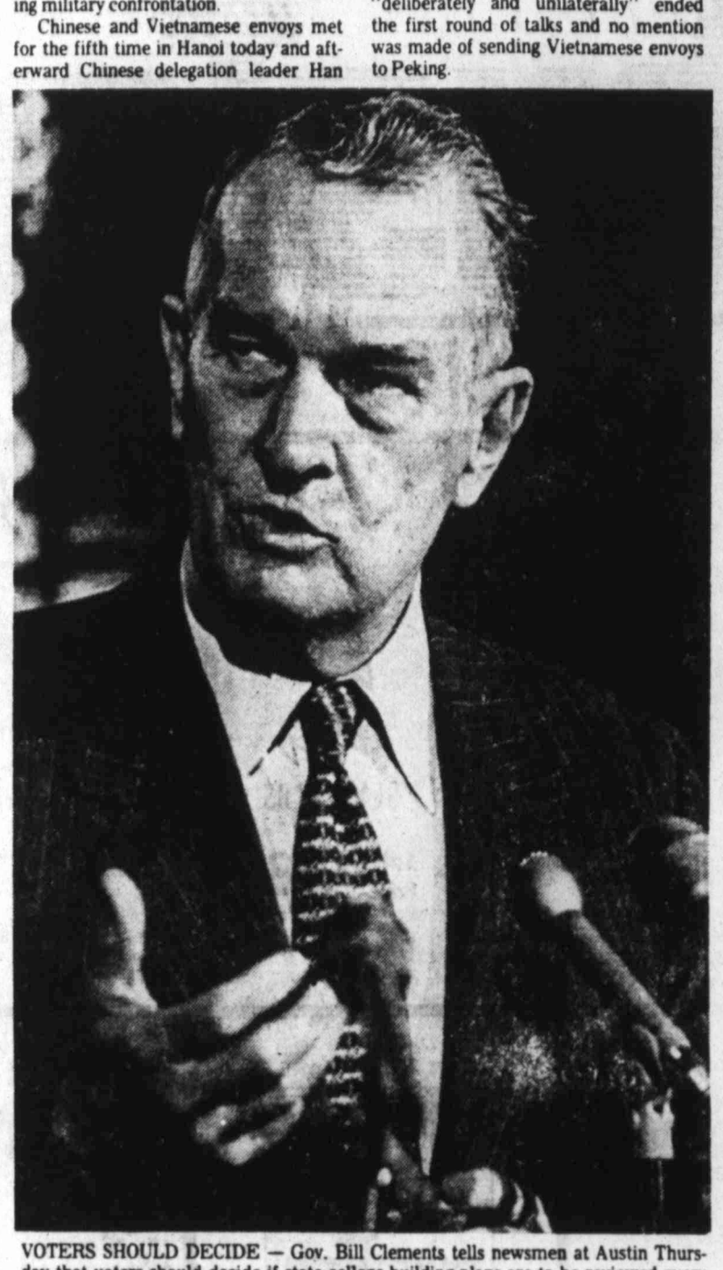

Hayes said he was talked out of jumping from his second-floor apartment by firefighters, who rescued him with a mechanical platform.

"I could feel that heat behind me," Hayes said. "I broke the window to get out and I was out on the window ledge, but they told me not to jump."

Lyons, whose hair and eyelashes were singed by the terrific heat before he was rescued by firefighters, said he saw a man jump from the second floor "because it was his only choice."

"I was close to that myself," Lyons said, shaking his head.

Witnesses reported at least three persons leaped from the building to escape the flames.

VOTERS SHOULD DECIDE — Gov. Bill Clements tells newsmen at Austin Thursday that voters should decide if state college building plans are to be reviewed every two years or tied to an automatic program financed by taxes. (AP Laserphoto)

House Approves Local Court Bill

motion — three more than required under the Constitution.

Absentees included Sens. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena; Ron Clower, D-Garland; Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin; O. H. Harris, R-Dallas; Gene Jones, D-Houston; Glenn Kothmann, D-San Antonio; Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas; Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur; Bill Patman, D-Ganado; H. Tati Santiesteban, D-El Paso; A. R. Schwartz, D-Galveston; Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, and R. L. Vale, D-San Antonio.

Senate Secretary Betty King said Longoria was in Edinburg where he was scheduled to give a commencement address.

The last time a call was placed on the Senate to compel the attendance of absent members was in 1969.

Hobby said none of the senators present in the chamber today can leave without his written permission.

Despite the threat of a veto by Gov. Bill Clements, House members have overwhelmingly given tentative approval to legislation extending the life of the State Bar and allowing the agency to handle its own funds without the supervision of the Legislature.

CLements had cautioned the lawmakers he would seriously consider vetoing the Bar bill unless it was revised to channel the agency's funds through the state treasury and to allow the governor to appoint citizen members to serve on its board of directors.

The House rejected amendments that would have accomplished both those goals.

"They probably made a bad mistake," Clements said of the House action. But he said he has not made an irreversible decision to veto the bill if it remains in its present form.

"I kept saying from the beginning of the session that I support the Sunset Commission. I want the Bar to come under the appropriations process. Why should it be any different?" he said.

Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, who filibustered against the bill when it passed the Senate earlier in the session, said Thursday he may try again to talk it to death when it is returned to the Senate.

Doggett stopped his filibister against the proposal when Bar officials agreed to include a provision allowing the governor to appoint six citizen members to the board of directors. That provision was deleted in the House, and replaced by a provision permitting the Supreme Court to appoint six citizen members to the Bar's board of directors.

"If they're going to go back on their deal, I might go back on mine," Doggett said.

The House also defeated an attempt by Rep. Fred Head, D-Athens, to make membership in the Bar voluntary.

Two Facing Execution In Florida

TALLAASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Gov. Bob Graham signed the death warrants of two Florida death row inmates today and ordered their executions to take place within one week.

Authorities immediately scheduled inmates John A. Spenkelink and Willie Jasper Darden to die in the electric chair Wednesday morning.

The executions would be the first in the nation since Gary Mark Gilmore was executed by a Utah firing squad in January 1977 and the first in Florida since 1964.

Graham had not been expected to sign any warrants other than that of Spenkelink, convicted of murdering a traveling companion, Ohio parole violator Joseph Szymankiewicz, in a Tallahassee motel in 1973.

Spenkelink's attorneys have conceded that he has attempted virtually every available legal remedy, although Spenkelink has an appeal of his sentencing pending before the Florida Supreme Court.

Darden was convicted of the 1974 slaying of a Lakeland, Fla., furniture store owner, James Turman. His conviction was upheld by the Florida Supreme Court in 1976. The U.S. Supreme Court refused to hear the case in 1977.

EPA Orders Recall Of More Chevettes

WASHINGTON (AP) — General Motors is recalling an additional 67,000 Chevettes under orders from the Environmental Protection Agency.

The EPA said Thursday the cars violated federal clean air standards by emitting 29 percent more carbon monoxide than allowed by the law. The affected cars are equipped with an automatc transmission and a standard 1.6 liter engine.

Solons Disclose Vast Fortunes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The richest man in the Senate has so much money that even he isn't sure how much he is worth.

H. John Heinz, heir to a pickle and ketchup fortune, knows he has assets worth between $11.7 million and $20.9 million, according to financial disclosure statements filed with the Senate.

But those figures do not include his shares in two trust funds, both of which contain stock in the H.J. Heinz Co. and both of which are valued at more than $5 million. The Pennsylvania Republican told the Senate his share of those two trusts was unknown.

Heinz is probably the richest man in the Senate, which has more than a few millionaires among its members.

His apparent close rival last year, Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., lost money during the past year and now has assets valued somewhere between $6.9 million and $17.2 million. Danforth's upper range last year was $17.7 million, but almost all of his holdings are in the family business known as Ralston-Purina.

Danforth's office explained that Ralston-Purina, which makes everything from dog food to breakfast cereals, did not make as much profit last year as it did the previous year.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., listed assets between $1.3 million and $3 million in 1978. However, the bulk of Kennedy's holdings are in a blind trust and he does not know what they are worth. It is possible that his fortune exceeds that of Heinz or Danforth.

Other millionaires in the Senate include Sen. Rudolph Boschwitz, R-Minn., who listed assets between $5.5 million and $6.2 million; Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, who listed assets over $5.1 million and Russell Long, D-La., who listed assets between $2.4 million and $5.1 million.

Most of the millionaires appeared to have inherited much of their money. But one New Jersey Democrat made his fortune by dribbling a basketball.

Bill Bradley, who once starred for the New York Knicks of the National Basketball Association, reported assets ranging between $1.1 million and $3.1 million.

Last year's financial disclosure forms showed at least 15 of the 100 senators were millionaires and possibly as many as 38 had fortunes that could reach that level.

In another financial report, Transportation Secretary Brock Adams said he has a net worth of between $175,000 and $495,000 and made between $2,100 and $3,600 in income in addition to his Cabinet salary of $66,000. Adams' report was filed under a provision requirng federal officials making $44,700 or more to make financial disclosures.

An analysis of financial forms by House members, meanwhile, showed at least 27 members of the House reported outside earnings from stocks, law partnerships and other sources last year of more than $100,000.

One new member, Rep. Ron Paul, R-Texas, listed $105,900 in professional fees from his mdical practice in 1978, according to financial disclosure statements released this week.

"It's not the easiest part of going into politics," Paul said Thursday about his drop in salary to the $57,500 level that members of Congress receive.

Rep. Frank J. Guarini, D-N.J., another member of the freshman class, listed $624,129 in gross fees from his law practice in 1978 as well as dividends from diversified stock holdings.

Officials Join Local Hospital

Four new department heads have joined the staff at Health Sciences Center Hospital this week.

Assuming the duties of controller of patient accounting is Charles Hamilton Smith, 41.

Prior to coming to HSCH, Smith served as director of patient financial services at High Plains Baptist Hospital in Amarillo. Smith holds an accounting certificate from LaSalle Extension University and a Health Services Administration Development Program certificate from the University of Alabama in Birmingham. He is married and has two children.

Oscar Will, 31, has been named chief accountant at HSCH. He formerly served as director of finance for Rockingham Memorial Hospital in Harrisonburg, Va. Will graduated from the University of North Dakota with a BSBA degree in accounting.

Serving as chief medical technologist at HSCH is Bruce D. Palmer, 29. Palmer was formerly the chief medical technologist at the Midland County Hospital District. A graduate of Baylor University, Palmer holds a BA degree in medical technology. He is married and has one son.

The new director of community relations at HSCH is Mary Alice Robbins, 34. Mrs. Robbins was previously employed as a news reporter at KLBK-TV and holds a BA degree in journalism from Texas Tech University.

Pig Theft Ruling Upheld By Court

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The Indiana Court of Appeals has upheld the conviction of Ronald Mann Sr. for stealing 65 of Forrest Owens' pigs.

Mann appealed his conviction on grounds that Owen, who spotted the missing swine from an aircraft, lacked an adequate basis for a search warrant.

HB225, continuing the Texas Motor Vehicle Commission, passed to Senate, voice vote.

SB681, continuing the Battleship Texas Commission, tentatively approved, voice vote.

Weather

chances to continue through Sunday, along with slightly cooler temperatures.

Gusty southerly winds of 15 to 25 mph were forecast again today, with only a slight decrease expected tonight.

Elsewhere in the state, forecasters predicted scattered showers and thunderstorms to range over most of Texas. Temperatures were due to be seasonable, ranging from the 70s in the Panhandle to the 90s in South Texas.

The six-to-10 day outlook for West Texas, beginning Wednesday, predicts below normal temperatures and normal precipitation for the period.

Russian Ships Reported Near Saudi Peninsula

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Soviet aircraft carrier and new kind on amphibious warfare ship are off the oil-rich Saudi Arabian peninsula in one of several developments the U.S. Navy feels could lead to a new era of naval power politics.

The new carrier Minsk and the amphibious ship Ivan Rogov are anchored at the South Yemeni island of Socotra, 200 miles off the Arabian coast, on their first visit to strategic waters near the entrances of the Red Sea and Persian Gulf.

They have been watched by planes from the aircraft carrier Midway, which is heading a U.S. task force that passed within a few hundred miles of the island in the past two days.

"The Minsk and a couple of cruisers in the Indian Ocean gives them a capability to intercept our commerce and oil flow out of the Persian Gulf," a senior Navy source said. "That concerns me."

The Minsk, the Soviets' second flattop, carries Yak-36 vertical takeoff and landing jets. Earlier this year it staged what U.S. Navy sources described as an impressive combined sea-air exercise in the Mediterranean with its sister ship, the Kiev.

The Rogov carries the Soviet equivalent of Marines and has air-cushion landing craft that can hit the beach at 45 mph — far faster than anything in the U.S. amphibious arsenal.

Senior Navy sources see these and other types of ships now being built as signs Soviet ambitions of an all-ocean navy are coming of age at a time when the U.S. Navy has shrunk in size and is having difficulty building new ships.

Sources said the Minsk's limited-capability Yaks are no match for the F-4 and F-14 jet fighters that are catapulted from the decks of U.S. carriers with heavy weapons loads, but they note the Soviet planes would have a lot of punch if no U.S. aircraft carrier were near.

Middle East trouble, starting last fall with the riots that ousted the shah of Iran and continuing with Soviet-backed fighting in North and South Yemen, caused the United States to beef up its Indian Ocean forces.

The Midway's cruise — reducing the aircraft carrier force of the Pacific fleet to one from the usual two — has now carried continuous U.S. naval presence there past the six-month mark, the longest ever.

Navy sources noted other indications of increasing Soviet naval muscle:

— At a time of U.S. debate whether larger numbers of smaller ships is a way to beat budget constraints, a huge new nuclear-powered cruiser "fills the skyline" at a shipyard in Leningrad, nearly complete. A second has been started. At 26,000 tons, they are twice as big as U.S. cruisers and can carry more weapons.

— The recent Mediterranean sea-air exercise assembled enough other surface warships that the Soviets had more than 50 ship-to-ship cruise missile launchers and the same number of ship-to-air launchers. All the warships were less than 5 years old.

— Recent Soviet use of ports and airfields in Vietnam shows they could have a major naval impact in Southeast Asia if they got large bases there.

— A new type of Soviet supply ship, the Berezina, for the first time did high-speed refuelling of up to three ships at a time during the exercise. "It was none of this dead-in-the-water stuff, but done at 14 or 15 knots," said a Navy source.

Brezhnev Wants Busy Agenda At Summit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev's health problems, he wants at least two daily sessions with President Carter when the two meet at a summit next month, U.S. officials say.

Besides morning and afternoon sessions, the Soviets have suggested that Brezhnev and Carter might also have dinner together when they are in Vienna June 15-18, according to administration officials who asked not to be named.

The main purpose of the summit is for the two leaders to sign a new treaty limiting strategic nuclear weapons through 1985.

But if Brezhnev is up to it, the agenda could be a long one.

Carter plans an extensive review with the Soviet leader of the Middle East, Asia and Africa and also intends to ask for Soviet approval of a U.N. peacekeeping force to help carry out the peace treaty between Egypt and Israel.

The mandate for the force expires June 24. The United States wants an extension, but the Soviets can use their veto in the Security Council to block it.

So far, U.S. diplomats in New York have not been able to get the Russians to agree to an extension.

The treaty is highly unpopular among Moscow's friends in the Arab world. As a result, the Soviets are reluctant to give ground on the peacekeeping force.

If the UN peacekeeping force is withdrawn, and several other major alternatives fail, the administration is considering the possibility of using U.S. troops in the area, it was reported today. But one State Department official, who asked not to be named, said such a plan "is not under active consideration."

The Carter-Brezhnev summit also might produce an agreement against testing weapons designed to destroy each other's surveillance satellites.

In planning the summit, Carter's advisers are carefully considering Brezhnev's health.

They received new reports last month that the 72-year-old Soviet leader was frail and tired easily. He was described as mentally alert in his talks in Moscow with French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing, but Brezhnev's many ailments were evident.

The U.S. assessment was that he could not manage more than an hour's detailed discussion before tiring visibly.

Brezhnev suffers some deafness and apparent jaw and breathing troubles.

After he concludes current talks with President Tito of Yugoslavia, the U.S. analysis of the Soviet leader's health will be updated.

Carter and his top advisers view the summit and the Salt II treaty as an opportunity to improve superpower relations and they want to cover a lot of ground.

Carter plans to propose annual summit meetings with Brezhnev. If poor health keeps him away, Premier Alexei Kosygin or some other official close to Brezhnev could be deputized to attend in his place.

To improve U.S.-Soviet consulation, Carter also may propose regular meetings between top officials of the two countries. They could discuss questions arising from the Salt II treaty as well as global issues.

Jones Eyes Stronger Military

FORT WORTH (UPI) — Joint Chiefs of Staff Chairman Gen. David Jones contends nuclear arms control treaties can help maintain a balance worldwide, but it still is imperative to improve military strength in the United States' "strategic triad."

Jones Thursday refused comment on a report in the Baltimore Sun that Lt. Gen. Edward Rowney, the Chiefs of Staff representative on the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks negotiating team was resigning because of "grave reservations" about the agreement.

Jones also Thursday would not comment on what is contained in the proposed SALT II treaties nor offer an opinion of them, although he warned Americans against becoming too "enamored with the process of SALT."

About the Sun's report, Jones said, "There's a lot of speculation but I don't want to comment on it, however."

Jones, who addressed an Armed Forces Day luncheon in Fort Worth, said he would wait to form an opinion on SALT II.

"We will reserve judgment until it is in hand," he said. "There is still language to be interpreted and decisions to be made."

The Air Force general said although nuclear arms control treaties can help maintain an arms balance, it still is imperative to improve military strength.

"We in the Joint Chiefs of Staff have long supported arms control negotiations and have advocated reductions even greater than those likely to be achieved in SALT II," he said.

"Regardless of what happens on SALT, I see no alternative to increasing our investments in strategic weapon systems. But in any event, we will have to spend more on the strategic triad — our land-based and seabased ballistic missiles and our bomber force."

Jones said the Soviet Union is struggling economically and socially and faces the threat of China but has maintained its military power.

Coast Guard Chases Soviet Sealing Ship

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — A U.S. Coast Guard cutter and a helicopter attempted to overtake a Russian sealing ship in a dramatic air and sea chase, but the cutter's captain gave up the pursuit when he decided it would be too dangerous to board the trawler, the Coast Guard says.

No shots were fired, it said.

Coast Guard Lt. Pete Wolfe said Thursday that the service has asked for "diplomatic steps" to determine whether the Russian ship had been sealing in U.S. waters or had simply been anchored inside the 200-mile limit.

"The State Department is fully aware of the situation," Wolfe said.

He said the Russian ship was first spotted Wednesday by a U.S. C-130 patrol plane based at Kodiak, Alaska. According to reports from the aircraft crew, the ship appeared to be the sealing stern trawler Zereche and was anchored 5½ miles inside U.S. waters, he said.

The aircraft crew apparently spotted "seal carcasses, guts and hides of seals on the ship's deck," Wolfe said, adding that sealing by the Russian ship in U.S. waters would violate the Marine Mammal Protection Act.

The Coast Guard cutter Midgett went to the scene, but the Russian vessel started to leave when the cutter attempted to place a boarding party aboard. Protected by what appeared to be an ice-protecting hull, the Russian ship powered through the ice, Wolfe said.

At one point, the 378-foot Midgett got within 400 yards of the Russian ship, but the vessel avoided repeated boarding requests, Wolfe said.

When he realized the Russian vessel wouldn't stop, the Midgett's commanding officer placed a boarding party in the cutter's helicopter.

The Russian ship ignored the helicopter, and the captain called off the chase as the ship headed out of U.S. waters, Wolfe said.

Wolfe said the Coast Guard plans to analyze photographs of the Russian vessel taken from the Midgett. The photographs won't be available until the cutter docks at Kodiak next Thursday, officials said.

USSR Tests Nuclear Sub

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Soviet Union has tested a nuclear attack submarine that is faster and can dive deeper than any U.S. Navy submarine, it was reported today.

The Washington Post reported government sources said the hull of the Soviet submarine is made with titanium and the nuclear power reactor appears to produce more horsepower for each pound of weight than any American submarine.

"It's embarassing that they've been able to do something we haven't been able to do," an official told the Post. "And there's a big flap over it."

The Soviet sub apparently can hit 40 knots while submerged and dive to a depth greater than 2,000 feet. The speed of the Navy's latest attack submarine is believed to be less than 35 knots and its diving capability apparently is hundreds of feet short of 2,000, the newspaper said.

The Navy once was the world's leader in development of nuclear submarines and the blame for the apparent technological loss to the Soviets is being disputed, the newspaper said.

Defense Lawyer Expects Commandant To Testify

YORKTOWN, Va. (AP) — The defense attorney in the court-martial of the skipper of the Coast Guard cutter Cuyahoga says he expects the commandant of the Coast Guard will testify next week, even though the judge has refused to order his appearance at this point.

Thursday, the court martial of CWO Donald K. Robinson was recessed until May 24 so the defense could interview Adm. John B. Hayes, commandant, in hopes of proving his testimony would be relevant and should be allowed.

Robinson is charged with manslaughter and negligence in the loss of the Cuyahoga, a 125-foot, 52-year-old cutter used as a training vessel. When it sank last Oct. 20 after a collision with an Argentine freighter in Chesapeake Bay, 11 of its 29 crewmen died.

The continuance was ordered by Cmdr. R.A. Appelbaum, presiding judge, after he had denied a motion to order Hayes to appear, but allowed time for the defense to show that he should.

Defense attorney J.V. Flanagan said: "I expect that Adm. Hayes ... will testify when we reconvene in Washington next Thursday."

In a series of motions, the defense has accused the Coast Guard of denying Robinson his rights, conducting a poor investigation, and trying to "make an example" of the skipper.

Five of the 10 motions filed by Flanagan, a civilian attorney from Boston, accuse Capt. Edward Daniels, who conducted the investigation, of denying Robinson his right to effective counsel, not considering all of the evidence, and having his mind made up before beginning.

Two other motions attack the legality of the court martial, one claiming the charges were filed only because of pressure from U.S. Rep. Mario Biaggi, D-N.Y., and the other claiming that Hayes could not both file the charges and convene the court marital.

The first motion quotes Biaggi, who is chairman of the House Coast Guard and Navigation Subcommittee, as telling Hayes that "an example should be made, a proper example" of Robinson.

Flanagan wanted testimony from Hayes and Rear Adm. Clifford DeWolf, the commandant's chief legal counsel, on those motions. But Appelbaum refused, saying the defense had not proven the testimony would be relevant to his other motions. Flanagan hopes his interviews with the admirals will turn up evidence to change the judge's decision.

Final House Treaty Vote Postponed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A strong show of force by House members opposed to Carter administration plans for turning the Panama Canal over to Panama has forced postponement of a final vote on legislation to carry out those plans.

House leaders quickly called off a vote on the bill, scheduled for next week, after a motion to send the measure back to a committee for reconsideration failed Thursday by a mere two votes — 200-198.

That test vote showed opponents were only 20 votes short of the 218 they would need to defeat the bill outright. Moreover, not all the bill's opponents voted Thursday, some of them preferring to take up the bill as scheduled next week and rewrite it then.

Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., floor manager of the bill, told reporters he will go ahead with debate Monday but will delay a final vote until he believes he has enough votes to win.

Most opponents have co-sponsored a proposal by Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, to make Panama instead of the United States bear all costs connected with the treaties which turn control of the canal over to Panama by the year 2000.

Hansen estimates those costs will total $4 billion over the 20-year transition period. The State Department estimates it will be only $870 million, mostly to move U.S. facilities from the Canal Zone.

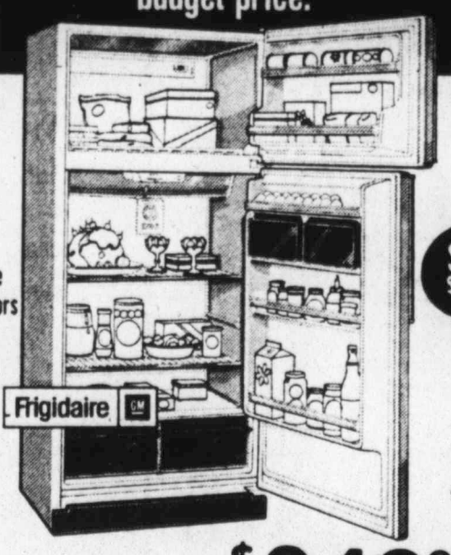

In opposing the move to recommit his bill, Murphy argued it was too late for the House to try to rewrite the treaties because the Senate approved them more than a year ago. "That is a fait accompli," he said.

All Congress can do now, he said, is act on legislation to carry out the treaties and assure U.S. operation of the canal until Dec. 31, 1999.

Murphy's bill would create a U.S.-controlled Panama Canal Commission to operate the canal until the end of the century, and would rewrite U.S. laws to legalize hundreds of details necessary to transfer control of the canal to Panama.

Spanish Village Says Goodbye To Submarines

By FENTON WHEELER

ROTA, Spain (AP) — Sometime in June the last of 10 U.S. nuclear-armed Poseidon missile submarines will move quietly across Cadiz Bay, leaving Spain without the worry of nuclear weapons for the first time in 25 years.

"Our business will go down 30 to 35 percent when the Americans go," says Rafael Aguilar, a car dealer who has been selling Volkswagens, Volvos, Audis and Fiats to U.S. Navy personnel for 22 years.

So will the business at Benny's, The Missouri, The Top Ten, The California and The Old Hong Kong, or any of nearly two dozen bars that stretch from Rota's downtown plaza to the sprawling Navy base just outside the town.

"We will miss the submariners," says an English-speaking barmaid. "They gave the place some class."

Over two decades, the presence of the Americans has turned the once-sleepy fishing village into a kind of pizza-paella port.

Old men with black berets still manage their share of the street but they are likely to arrive home to find an American sailor, one of hundreds who live off the base, sipping a beer on the patio next door, or dating his granddaughter. Yankee accents somehow mix with the slow Spanish of Andalucia, the sherry, the sunshine and the olives.

Squadron 16, one-fourth of the U.S. Navy's strategic missile submarine force, is expected to leave without fanfare.

Its long-range impact, however, could be more telling. By taking away the Poseidon missiles the Navy is unintentionally blunting a favorite argument of the Spanish left — that U.S. nuclear strike capacity compromises and endangers Spain. The result could help Premier Adolfo Suarez open the door wider to Spain's eventual entry into the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, some military men say.

The submarines are leaving under a 1976 U.S.-Spanish military bases treaty that calls for "phased withdrawal" by June 30, 1979.

Squadron 16's commander, Capt. James D. Williams, says the pullout, including the missile-storing submarine tender USS Canopus, the floating dry-dock USS Oak Ridge and three support ships, will come about two weeks before deadline. The exact departure time is classified.

Williams says the squadron has been slipping away quietly since December.

Under a pre-treaty agreement in 1971, the United States agreed to turn over the 6,600-acre base to the Spanish navy. Spain now gives facilities to the Americans, whose primary function is to service and supply the U.S. 6th Fleet.

Navy officials estimate that 30 percent of the base's population of 13,000 American military and civilian personnel and dependents will be affected by the submarine squadron's departure to a new home at Kings' Bay, Ga.

"Day-to-day activities are bound to be affected, as will business in the local economy," says Capt. Edwin E. Hanson, commander of the American part of the base and the head of all U.S. Navy activity in Spain. He says the base will continue as a major supply and support facility for the 6th Fleet but he is concerned that some recreational activities might have to be reduced.

"This generally has been a very friendly and cooperative arrangement," he adds.

Not everyone agrees. The news magazine Cambio 16 calls Rota a "Little America," corrupted by dollars, language and American soft drinks.

Few Spaniards have forgotten their worst nuclear scare — the 1966 air collision of a B-52 bomber and a KC-135 tanker that dumped four unarmed H-bombs on southern Spain. Neither have they forgotten the original assurances from American military men that there were no nuclear weapons involved.

The submarine squadron arrived in 1964, two years before the H-bomb accident, and therefore always has been a little suspect in Spanish eyes.

The submarine pullout will leave the U.S. Navy with other squadrons at Guam, Holy Lock in Scotland and Charleston, S.C. Navy officials say the change in bases for Squadron 16 will not affect Poseidon strategic submarine capacity, especially when Trident submarines with the capacity to throw a nuclear warhead halfway around the world become operational next year.

FOR HEALTH AND FUN — John Yee and daughters Reagan, left, and Jennifer show that running can be fun as well as healthy as they practice for National Run for Life Day on Saturday. Runners will meet at 9:30 a.m. at Maxey Park to collect pledge money for the American Heart Association to help fight heart disease. (Staff Photo)

Runners To Collect Pledges

National Run for Life Day, sponsored by the American Heart Association and Connecticut Mutual Life, will be observed in Lubbock along with about 60 other cities in the nation Saturday.

Runners and walkers will travel up to 10 miles beginning at 9:30 a.m. Saturday at Maxey Park to collect pledges for funds to fight heart disease.

Each runner will be paid at least 50 cents per mile by sponsors.

The runner collecting the most pledges will be awarded a 10-speed bicycle.

Registration forms are available at The Swift Foot, The American Heart Association, YMCA, YWCA, and Connecticut Mutual Life.

LCHD Committee Approves Indigency Guideline Revision

A Lubbock County Hospital District committee Thursday approved a proposal that would loosen up the district's medical indigency guidelines.

The revision, brought before the community programs and relations committee, will go to the board of managers Monday.

The revision, proposed by Louis Martinez, medical indigency supervisor for the district, would eliminate a homestead in determining the worth of an applicant's real property and one car and the tools of a trade in determining the value of an applicant's personal property.

The present guidelines, which went into effect on Feb. 1 of this year, state that anyone with real property valued at more than $500 is ineligible for indigent care and anyone with personal property valued at more than $500 is ineligible.

Real and personal property under the existing guidelines includes homesteads, automobiles and trade tools as factors in determining an applicant's ability to pay for medical service.

"We were not able to assist many people because of these guidelines," Martinez told the Avalanche-Journal, Thursday.

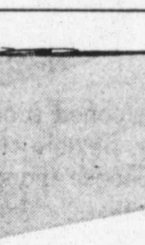

He noted that someone who owned a home valued at $3,000 could not now qualify for the indigency program.

Martinez said the homesteads, automobiles and trade tools were originally exempted from the guidelines.

The exemptions were eliminated, however, in the newest regulations, issued in February, and said Martinez, "Partially, it was an oversight on my part to let it (the changes) get through. I should have kept on top of it more."

He said the guidelines were adjusted to try to conform with those found in cities equal in size to Lubbock.

Urban Panel Sides With Neighborhood

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

It was Overton South Neighborhood Association 2, First Baptist Church 0, in two decisions Thursday to determine whether the church should use three 13th Street lots for additional parking and whether two houses on those lots deserved protective zoning.

Following a three-hour hearing Thursday night, the Urban Design Commission voted 6-1 to recommend that the two houses, located at 2219 and 2223 13th St.,be designated historic or architectural landmarks.

Thursday morning, the Zoning Board of Adjustment voted unanimously against allowing the church to use the lots for parking and church spokesman indicated that decision may be appealed.

Crucial to the Urban Design Commission's decision in favor of the Overton South Neighborhood Association (OSNA) was the decision by two commission members to vote on the issue, in spite of what some would view as a conflict of interest.

Elois Elliott, chairman of the OSNA advisory board, asked to abstain from the discussions and the vote because of her membership in the association and her residence in the affected neighborhood.

However, after commission member Homer Hunt, a member of the First Baptist Church, said he could make an unbiased decision and refused to abstain from the deliberations, Mrs. Elliott decided not to abstain.

Commission member Ron Beard made a motion that any vote be tabled until just before a moratorium on further dismantling of the homes expires.

Beard said he hoped that would allow the church officials and the neighborhood association to attempt a compromise.

But, that motion failed on a 4-3 vote, with Mrs. Elliott casting the deciding vote. On the final motion to recommend landmark status for the structures, Hunt cast the only dissenting vote.

Commission member Jim Mertes, also a ZBA member, expressed concern that if the houses were designated landmarks, "they could sit there as empty shells and be so vandalized there wouldn't be much to deal with."

That situation could develop because the church owns the land on which the houses sit, although the church has sold one house and is attempting to sell the other.

The house not owned by the church is under contract to be moved off the property within three months, but if the landmark designation is upheld by the Planning and Zoning Commission in July and by the City Council, removal of the house will require Urban Design Commission Approval.

Approximately 50 persons, most of them from Overton South, jammed the city hall EOC, where the meeting was held, to tell commission members the houses should receive protective zoning because of their significance to the rest of the Overton South neighborhood.

The two structures are the "northernmost structures of our neighborhood with the exception of one bungalow," OSNA member Ted Hogan said.

They present the "northern face of the neighborhood to Broadway," Hogan said, and that "face gives Overton South its public image."

"That would be severely damaged if the houses were removed," he said.

Although the houses may not be significant architecturally, Hogan said Overton South's diversity of architecture "establishes the architectural character of the neighborhood."

Architects Show Library Plans

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Two community meeting rooms, a shallow reading pit in the children's section and substantial natural lighting are highlights of the new southwest branch library plans shown to library board members Thursday.

Project architect Joe McKay of BGR Architects-Engineers presented preliminary plans as well as several revisions for the building to be constructed at Leroy Elmore Park, Quaker Avenue and Loop 289.

According to board chairman Charles Burford, the plans reflect many of the suggestions of the board building committee, which acted as a liaison with McKay. "We've really had a great effect on the ultimate design of the building," he said.

Features of the building include a large community meeting room which could be operated separately from other library areas and used for other than library functions.

The building will also include a smaller community room which would probably be used in conjunction with activities planned for the children's section of the library, said McKay.

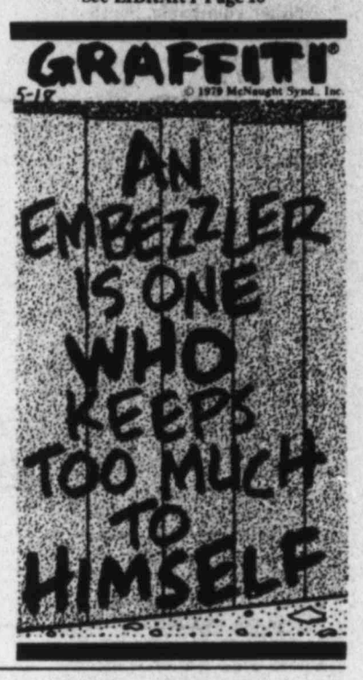

A shallow reading pit in the children's section would enable youngsters to read in the sunken area or on the two tiers encircling the shallow area.

McKay said he considered the possiblity of energy conservation when he designed the building so that a enough sunlight would be admitted to illuminate the interior.

He said that several libraries that he and the building committee had toured in Dallas in March had removed about half of the light bulbs in the building to conserve energy, resulting in several dark areas.

McKay's plans call for part of the interior portions of the libray to be constructed in three rows of different heights with windows all along one side of each row. The design "takes advan-

The bidding:

3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Five of ♣.

Some players are bewitched by a tenace holding. Give them one and they cannot wait to lead toward it and finesse. They would do a lot better if they regarded a finesse not as a technique to capture an adverse honor, but as a device for winning needed tricks.

South's intermediates and the fact that his aces and kings far outnumbered his lesser honors makes his hand a whit heavy for a two no trump opening—we would not have chosen three no trump. North showed his five-card major suit and, while four hearts would have been a much easier contract to fulfill, we cannot fault South for rebidding three no trump.

West opened the five of spades and declarer won the king. He cashed the ace of hearts, overtook the queen in dummy and then played the jack. When the suit did not break, the diamond finesse was tried. West won the queen and continued spades. Declarer won the third round, but West eventually got in with the ace of diamonds and had enough tricks to set the contract.

South was right in winning the king of spades at trick one, for he could not afford a club shift. However, his proper play at trick two was the king of diamonds!

From the lead of the five of spades, it appears that West has led from a four-card suit. If that is the case, declarer can establish two tricks in diamonds by brute force, and the best the defense can do is take two spade tricks and two diamonds.

Assume West wins the ace of diamonds and continues with a spade. South should refuse this trick to cater to the possibility that West had made a clever lead from a five-card suit, in which case he should try for an even heart distribution before reverting to diamonds. However, when East turns up with a third spade, declarer wins and knocks out the remaining diamond stopper.

Note that the correct play at trick two is the king of diamonds, and not a lower honor. This enables declarer to score three diamond tricks if either defender holds a singleton queen. Declarer must lose two diamonds if a defender has any other singleton, no matter which cards he plays.

League Members Hear Economist

By FRANCES LOWE
Family News Editor

Social legislation has not kept pace with the changing scene in regard to family financial matters, Dr. Robert Rouse, professor of economics at Texas Tech University, told the League of Women Voters yesteday.

Standing in for Tech President Cecil Mackey, who had been called to Austin, Dr. Rouse spoke to the League at its last meeting of the year on "Women and Economics."

He cited the increase of women in the labor force from 20% in 1900, mostly young, single females, to nearly 50% today, including a large number of older married women returning to work. Part of the unemployment rate during times of recession is due to large numbers of women registering for jobs, he said.

These changes have had their impact on family life by causing couples to limit the number of children, to postpone having their families, and to have their children closer together, Dr. Rouse said.

All these factors cause attention to be drawn to differentiation in income and accessibility of jobs. Differentiation in income applies both to differences in pay between the sexes and to differences between families: higher-income males tend to marry higher-income females, causing greater differences between family incomes.

Social legislation has not kept pace with this changing employment picture, he said, citing especially social security and income tax laws.

He also discussed the area of household production. Gross National Product figures, which do not take into account household activity, since a business transaction does not take place, do not give a true picture of economic activity. GNP might be increased one-quarter to one-third if household activity were included, he said.

He cited also the increased importance of financial decision making on the part of women, noting especially that some 14 percent of households or eight million families, now are headed by females.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I am a 17-year-old high school junior. A year ago I was raped on my way to school. I believe I have dealt with the situation very well, but my problem is this: Am I still considered a virgin?

I realize that technically and physically I probably am not, but since this was done without my consent and cooperation, in another way of looking at it, I'm still a virgin. (I never "gave" myself to anyone. My virginity was taken from me.)

This question has bothered me a lot and I hope you can give me an answer since I respect your opinion very much.

I am signing my real name, but if you print this, please sign it ...

Wondering

Dear Wondering: Putting the physical and technical aspects aside, you are as virtuous as a virgin. And you certainly may consider yourself virginal.

DEAR ABBY: I am a married woman, expecting my first child in three months.

Last month my husband's grandfather died. He was loved and respected by all who knew him. The entire family felt a tremendous loss.

My husband's family has let me know that our child is to be named after Grandpa Albert. If the baby is a girl, she will be named Alberta, I am told.

I, too, loved Grandpa Albert, but I hate that name. If offered a compromise, saying I will use Albert or Alberta for the child's middle name, but not for the first name.

My husband and his family insist that it has to be Albert or Alberta.

Can you help me? Expecting

Dear Expecting. It appears to be you against your husband and his family. I think they are unfair to demand that you give your child a name that you dislike. Your compromise seems fair enough to me. Stick to your guns. If you lose, your child will bear the name of one of the world's most brilliant scientists.

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday our four-year-old daughter disappeared suddenly. One minute she was beside me in the kitchen, and the next minute she was gone. I nearly went crazy looking for her in the yard, in and out of the neighbors' houses, searching frantically with tears in my eyes and a lump in my throat.

Finally, just before sundown, when I was nearly exhausted and hysterical, a neighbor spotted an old refrigerator stored in the corner of our garage! He opened the door and out tumbled my daughter, blue and practically lifeless. With the help of a quick-thinking neighbor and the fire department, the child was revived, and thank God, now she is all right.

Abby, please urge parents to position discarded refrigerators with the doors turned toward the wall so kids can't open them. If anything had happened to my child, I'd never have forgiven myself.

Thanking God

Dear Thanking: I appreciate the timely reminder. Parents, please REMOVE the doors from stored refrigerators, cabinets or other potential "coffins" for curious and adventuresome children.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

I think I've finally figured out why an increasing number of graduates do not want to show up for graduation ceremonies.

It has nothing to do with apathy, rebellion against tradition, or an insensitivity to what parents want.

What it does have to do with is that many graduates are ashamed to have their real names revealed. As the wife of an educator, I've seen my share of graduations. It is always the same. At some point, the principal will pick up a diploma and announce into the microphone, "VERNON VALENTINE TURK." A hush will fall over the auditorium as the graduates look at one another, not daring to believe they're sitting next to a Vernon Valentine.

Finally, a macho senior with thighs the size of pier pilings, a tattoo on his tongue, who wears his letter sweater to bed, will lumber across the stage to claim his distinction. No matter what he has accomplished as "Stud Turk," it has all gone down the drain in that one Vernon-Valentine moment.

After the laughter has subsided, some of the more compassionate graduates will actually walk up to him (or her) and say something awkward like "I didn't know. I really admire you."

Parents get carried away with names at birth. Most of them never think they're going to hear them over a loud speaker in an auditorium. Some of them say, "If you don't like your name, go with a nickname." This sometimes puts a child in a real decision-making position. Does she want to be called her real name, "Beulah," or go with "Fats?" Does he want to be called by his given name, "Edsel," or ride with "His Accidency?" No matter what, the jig is up at graduation.

At my graduation, I sat next to my good friend, Mary Van Dyke Jones. Thinking her name was too long for a diploma, she substituted initials for Van Dyke. She shouldn't have done that.

A few people manage to survive their names. Imagine if you will a graduation exercise where the principal calls out Marion Michael Morrison and John Wayne ambles across the stage, or Vincent Damon Furnier is called and rock star Alice Cooper stands up.

If you still dread graduation this year, imagine what it will be like when Cher's daughter, Chastity Bono, or David Bowie's son, Zowie Bowie, walks across the stage.

And be strong!

Expert Offers Tips For Fish Selection

COLLEGE STATION — Fresh, top-quality fish offers the alert shopper several characteristics for making wise selections, says Annette Reddell, seafood consumer education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

One of these characteristics is lack of odor. Fresh seafood has only a mild, pleasant odor. If it passes the sniff test, check to be sure that the flesh is firm and springs back when gently pressed with the finger, she recommends.

Look the fish in the eye. The eyes should be clean and bright and the fish should have that "just caught" look to it.

Fillets or steaks should appear shiny and moist with no tears in the meat. These cuts of fish are the most popular market forms since they are 100 percent edible. Boneless fillets take the worry out of serving seafood to children, she points out.

Going fishing at a local supermarket or fish market is the easy way to shop for seafood dividends.

The eating will be top quality — when the alert shopper can spot freshness and quality, the specialist adds.

Camera Steadiness Must For Sharp Pictures

By IRVING DESFOR
Associated Press Writer

(I've moved to Florida. To help during the transition period, my guest columnist this week is Alex Siodmak. Here's Siodmak:)

As any photo enthusiast knows, camera steadiness is a must to get sharp pictures. Sure, today's higher-speed films allow for faster shutter speeds, but there are many situations where a camera support is essential. This is especially the case indoors (museums, churches, homes, etc) where the lighting is not good at all. Flash would destroy the mood of the room — and is frequently prohibited. That leaves the available light, and often it is inadequate. Any exposure slower than 1-30 second requires some kind of a support for the camera.

While tripods have their place, most photographers don't care to carry them along, due to their bulk. But there are very convenient alternatives, easy to stash in a gadget bag. Luckily, there are any number of devices that will do the work of a tripod, but are merely a fraction of that size.

One of the simplest — and least costly — solutions to keeping the camera from shaking is a C-clamp device which has a screw that fits the camera's tripod socket. This screw is part of a ball-swivel that can be tightened at any angle to level the camera. The C-clamp can be atached to a door, chair, railing or anything that can fit into the 1-inch opening of the clamp. An improved version of this type of clamp is the 2001 clamp-tripod. It has a 1½"-inch opening and three small legs hidden in its handle. By unscrewing a cap on the bottom, the legs come out and turn the clamp into a miniature tripod that will support cameras up to 2½-inch-square format. Weighing under six ounces, and measuring 4½ inches, it is a most convenient accessory to have around. And it may easily spell the difference between having a sharp picture or one that will have to be discarded.

Suppose you'd like to photograph the interior of a cathedral, which may be 200 feet long. That requires a great depth of field which, in turn, necessitates a long exposure. Hand holding the camera is out. But the clamp-pod will come to the rescue nicely, and permit an exposure of one full second or even more. Most clamp-pods are equipped with felt or rubber cushions to protect the finish of whatever it is attached to at the moment.

There are other supports for use under various conditions where camera steadiness counts. One such is Spiratone's Handipod; a 6-inch column with the conventional ball-swivel on top, and tripod legs concealed inside. The Handipod is great for supporting the camera when using the delayed-action release so that you can get into the picture yourself. And what if there are no chairs, railings or other bases onto which to place a clamp-pod? This column-like pod may be held tightly against a wall to assure camera steadiness. Exposures up to one full second may be made in this fashion.

A somewhat larger clamp is Bogen's Super Clamp. Its jaw will open up to two inches and is designed to grip columns (such as the ones that hold up parking meters, playground swings, ets.) as well as chairs, tables or anything else less than two inches wide.

A handle tightens or loosens the jaw with one easy turn. The Super Clamp is of heavier construction. It will support larger camers, such as a 4x5, or movie camers. Super Clamp consists of two parts. A choice of camera platforms is available, depending on need.

Even though a clamp is employed, it is strongly advisable to use a cable release. That will eliminate the possibility of any camera shake.

If none of the devices described above are available, there is still one (or rather two) that everybody carries along at all times: one's own arms. Seated in a chair, elbows placed on the armrests, hold the camera firmly against the chin, take a deep breath, hold it in and squeeze the shutter gently.

Should the chair have no armrests, reverse it and rest the camera on the chair back while sqeezing the shutter. When standing, try to lean on a wall, elbows pressed tightly against the body. Take a deep breath, squeeze the shutter. Exposures as slow as ½-second can be accomplished with a little practice.

Number Of Glazier's Points Not Specific

By ANDY LANG
Associated Press Writer

Q. — We have an old vacation house which has been empty for several months. During that period the panes in many of the windows were broken by rock throwers. I now have the enormous task of replacing them. I did a couple of windows a few years ago and know pretty much what to do, but I am a little fuzzy about the glazier's points that hold the glass in place. How many of them should be used? And am I right in assuming they are put into place before the putty is applied to the window channel?

A. — There is no prescribed number of glazier's points that should be used. Even if there were, the number would have to be changed for windows of different sizes. Place the points into the frame about 3 or 4 inches apart. There is no need to measure, since it makes no difference if they are not precisely the same distance apart. Of course, the points go into the frame before the glazing compound or putty is applied. If done the other way around, it would be difficult to place them properly. Incidentally, some glazier's points come with a special small tool that makes it easy to insert them.

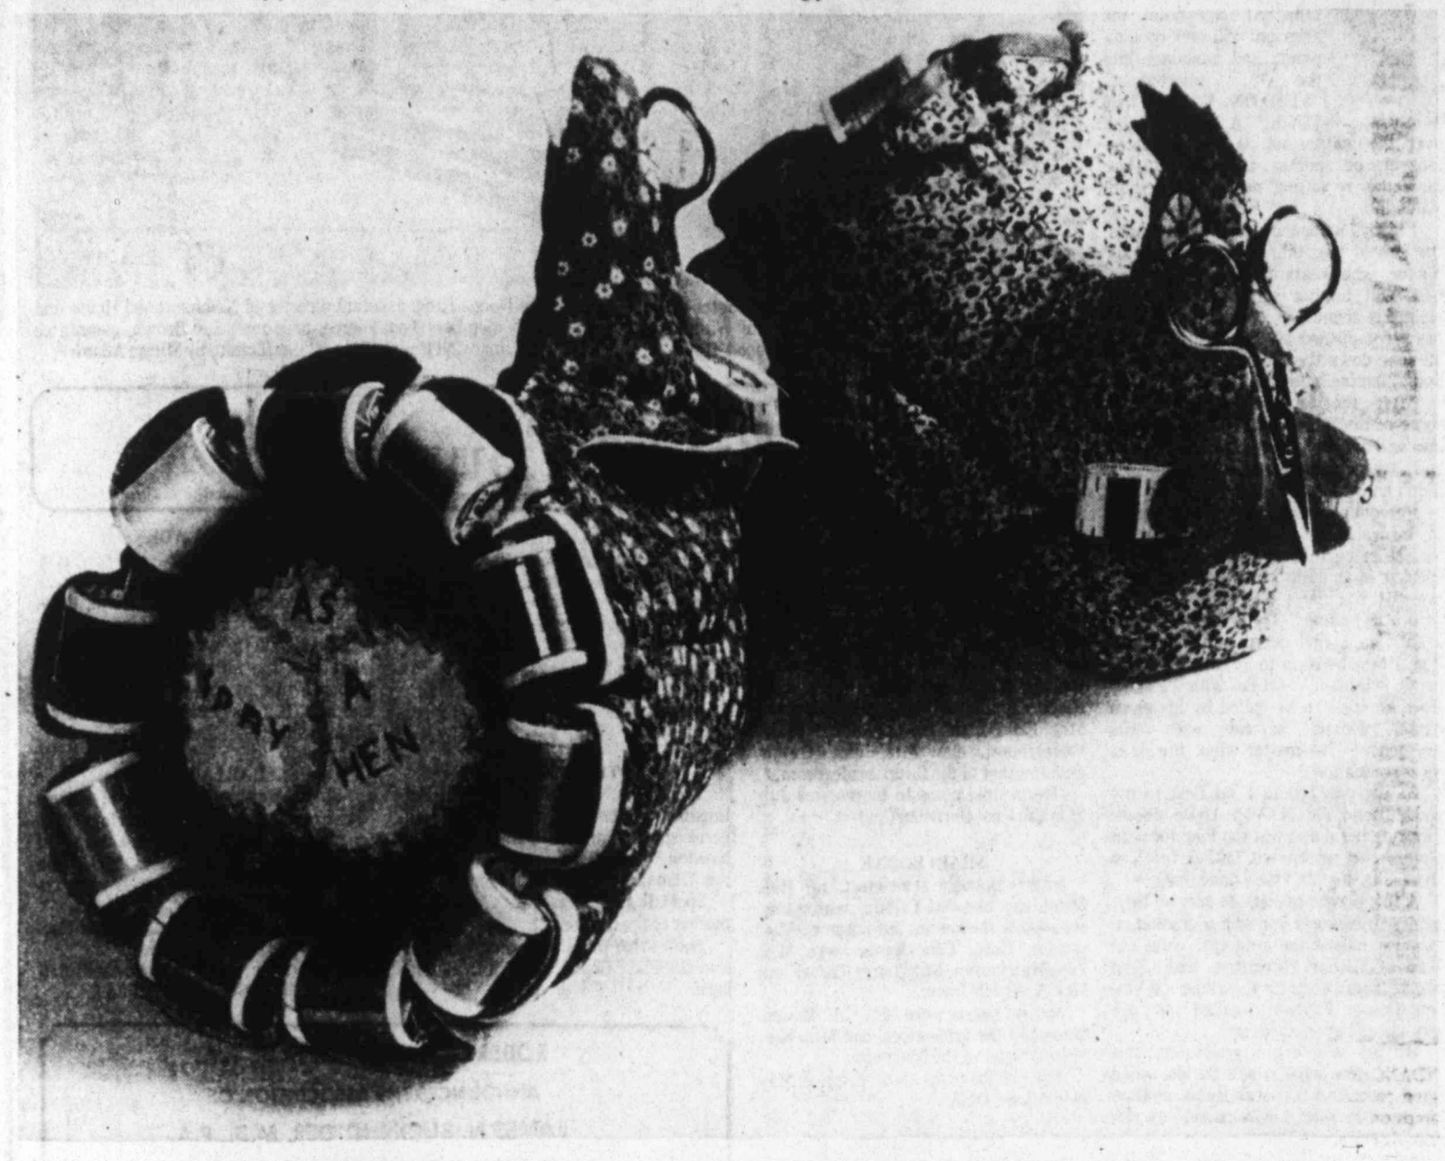

Q. — We recently bought a large piece of property and intend to move into the house soon. There are a lot of trees on the land and I expect to need a chain saw. I used one many years ago, but it was nothing like the ones they sell these days. I would like your advice on whether it is better to get one powered by gasoline or one that runs by electricity.

A. — Neither is better for all jobs. Each has a different purpose. You'll have to decide on the one that best fits your needs. Or, if you can afford it, you can buy two. More gasoline-powered chain saws are sold because you can carry them anywhere you choose and do your cutting. With an electric saw, you can use it only as far as the extension cord will take you. Generally, the saws powered by gasoline handle heavier work. They are more expensive and are noisier. Since chain saws have improved considerably in recent years and you haven't handled one for a long time, be sure you read the instructions very carefully so that you can get the full benefit of the improvements, especially the extra safety features.

Q. — I often see denatured alcohol recommended to get dirt and grime from an old piece of furniture, but just as often I see turpentine or mineral spirits recommended. Is there any difference?

A. — They are both solvents. Denatured alcohol will clean furniture on which varnish, lacquer or paint has been used, with little danger of softening or otherwise disturbing the finish, although it should be used sparingly. But turpentine is recommended for cleaning a shellac finish because denatured alcohol might soften it.

(The techniques of using varnish, shellac, lacquer, stain, bleach, etc., are detailed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," available by sending 35 cents and a long, STAMPED, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column, but individual correspondence cannot be undertaken.)

Stuffed Animal Carries Sewing Notions

Take any scrap of material around the house — perhaps cut a scrap from a pair of old jeans or any worn out piece of clothing. On a separate piece of paper, draw the pattern of whatever you'd like a beast of burden to be — this beast is going to carry the burden of your scissors, tape measure, threads, buttons and safety pins and serve as a pin cushion, as well.

Trace the pattern on the material (be sure to make two sides because you're going to stuff this animal) and stitch it together — leaving a small opening for the stuffing. Cut several different widths of strips of materials to serve as pockets for the various paraphernalia, stitch the pockets on, stuff the object, stitch it shut and you've got a handy holder for your sewing notions. Give it an extra added touch by embroidering a bit here and there — whatever your imagination dictates.

Easier said than done? Then order the Spry As A Hen Pincushion Sewing Kit. The kit comes complete with everything needed to complete the project — even the polyester fiberfil is included. The kit includes calico print fabric, felt, edging, trim, elastic, embroidery floss, polyester fiberfil stuffing, full size pattern, and easy-to-follow instructions. The finished hen measures an approximate 9 inches.

Order Red Hen kit no. 1591 for $9.99 plus $1.45 postage and handling. Creative Home Crafts is required to collect and pay state and local sales tax in Texas.

Compound Patches Gypsum Board

By The Associated Press

For many years now, gypsum board has been used widely, although not exclusively, in place of plaster walls in new and remodeled homes. Sometimes loosely called wallboard or plasterboard, gypsum board actually is made like a sandwich, with layers of heavy-duty paper on both sides of a gypsum filling.

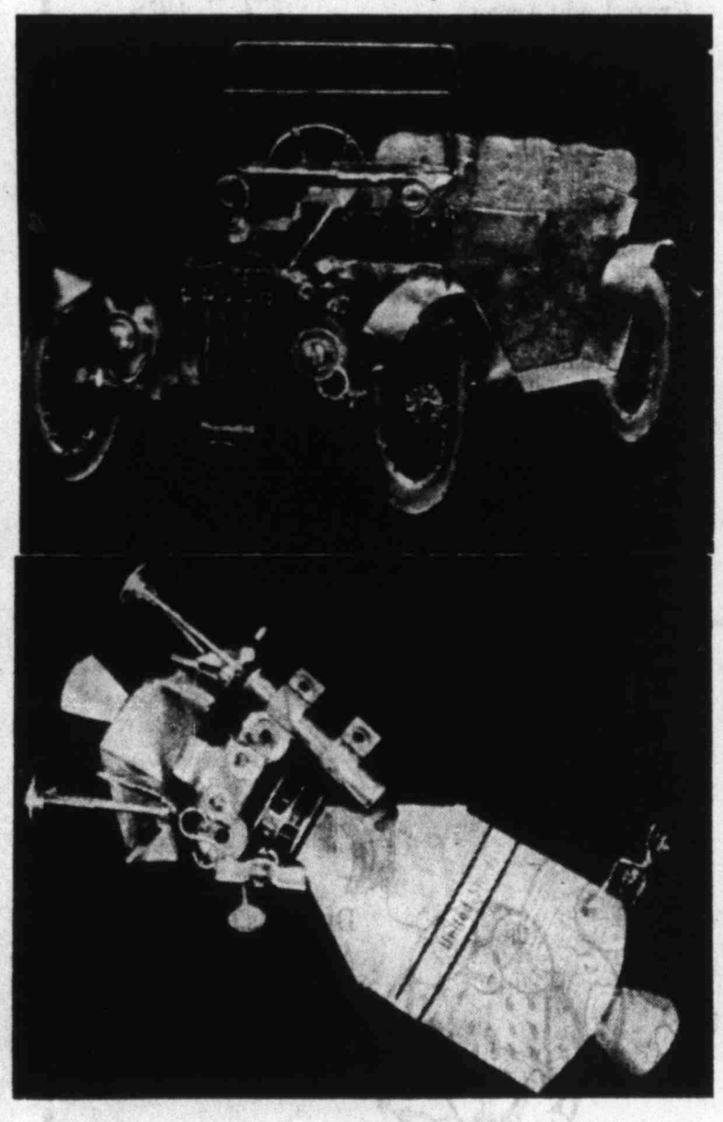

Like plaster, gypsum board requires patching from time to time — and mostly for the same reason: Because it has been damaged by house settlement, stud and joint contraction and expansion, water leaks and abuse.

Ordinary patching plaster may be used for a tiny hole in gypsum board, but what is called joint compound does a better job for all other repairs. This applies to other holes of varying sizes, separated seams, dents, bumps and imperfections caused by popping nails.

The repair that perhaps causes the most trouble is one which calls for the use of a piece of scrap gypsum board as the patch. When this patch is necessary — which it is for all damaged areas other than the aforementioned tiny openings — the old gypsum board should be cut with a keyhole saw. Cut out a piece larger and more regularly shaped than the damaged spot. It might be, for instance, a piece 6 inches square. Then cut from the scrap board an identical piece that fits snugly into the opening. Try it first for a good fit, but don't leave it there yet.

Apply joint compound generously to the edges of the opening in the wall. Place a screw partly into the center of the patch, leaving enough of the screw protruding so that you can hold it with your fingers. Set the patch in place and carefully withdraw the screw. When the joint compound has dried completely, sand lightly until everything is smooth. If necessary, apply a bit more compound to fill any gaps.

When the damaged area is very large, a piece of backup material may be required. It can be another piece of gypsum board, plywood or almost anything else that can be cut larger than the section to be replaced. The simplest way to handle this backup material is to drill a hole in the center of it so that you can insert a finger in it. Apply compound around the borders of the backup board, which is then inserted into the opening at an angle so that it will go in easily. With a finger in the drilled hole, pull the board towards you and hold it there while you drive in a couple of screws around the borders. The combination of the screws and the compound will hold the backup board securely.

Layering Technique Creates Art

Love art, but can't draw or paint? Here's your chance to shine. With a handful of easy-to-find hardware items (screws, washers, cotter pins, etc.) and some pieces of copper, brass or aluminum sheeting, you can create elegant 3-dimensional wall art. The secret is a layering technique...hardware items are glued to a felt backing and successive layers are glued on top.

Full-size placemrnt patterns and full-color pictures make construction of these five projects easy. An antique plane is captured in mid-flight; the pair of "horseless carraiges" or the antique train can be the conversation piece of any decor. And to please the modern adventurer, a space module is suspended in orbit. Such pictures would run up quite a price in any specialty shop, but with these step-by-step instructions you'll easily create yor own inexpensive hardware sculpture.

Israeli Stamp Honors Treaty

By SYD KRONISH
Associated Press Writer

To honor the signing of the peace treaty between Israel and Egypt, the Israel postal department has released a new stamp and a souvenir sheet. The actual date of issuance was March 26 — to coincide with the day of the signing at the White House in Washington.

In anticipation of this historical occasion, a ministerial committee was picked to select the final design. Eighty-six designs, prepared by 20 artists, were submitted to the committee. A panel of experts in the art of graphic design acted as advisers.

The winning design featured a part of the Western Wall in Jerusalem, with a piece of paper between two of its ancient stones.

The Western Wall — formerly called "The Wailing Wall" — has for 19 centuries been the Jews' holiest site as the only remaining part of the ancient Temple. Jews pray in front of it and write down their fondest wish on a piece of paper which they stuff into one of the crevices in the wall.

The fondest wish of the entire Israeli people, as indicated on the new stamp, is for peace. The word "peace" appears on the stamp in three languages — Hebrew, Arabic and English.

The post office sheet contains 15 stamps. Both the multi-colored stamp and the souvenir sheet were designed by R&A Hecht of Tel Aviv.

The new stamp is available at your local dealer or stamp department.

Collectors who specialize in stamps of the British Commonwealth will be interested in the 1979 "Commonwealth Catalog" published by Stanley Gibbons. The catalog features the stamps of the Commonwealth plus the post-independence issues of Pakistan, Rhodesia, Ireland and South Africa. It provides complete and detailed lists on stamps from 1840 to the present and is available for $16 at your local dealer.

Reptiles are more appreciated as subjects for stamps than to be met in the jungle. Lesotho, located in Southern Africa, is the home ground for many varieties of such reptiles and four are depicted on the latest set of stamps from that country. Two stamps show local lizards, and two victure well known snakes. Illustrated on the set are the agama lizard, rock lizard, berg adder and the ringhal snake.

Stamp prices are soaring, as indicated in a recent major sale by Scott Auction Galleries in New York. Featuring mainly U.S. material, the total sale amounted to some $760,000. Scott originally expected the items to fell for about $500,000.

One item consisting of a complete Roosevelt Album of small die proofs sold for $55,000.

To commemorate Holy Week, the West African Republic of Togo issued six stamps and a souvenir sheet. The stamps reproduce original art works of Maxim Shamir depicting views of the life of Christ. Included are: Christ on a mule saluting people holding palm branches, the Last Supper, Christ being taken from the cross, Christ destroying the warriors, Christ ascending to heaven, and the Resurrection.

ENDANGERED FLORA STAMPS — The U.S. Postal Service announced in Washington recently its plan to release four different endangered flora commemorative stamps on June 7, in Milwaukee, Wis. The stamps depict four of the more than 1,700 seriously threatened plant species in the United States. (AP Laserphoto)

Edwards Wants Force Of 50 'Supercops'

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Gov. Edwin Edwards says he wants to create a force of about 50 state "supercops" to help New Orleans police deal with a rising rate of violent crime.

Edwards said this week he was responding to a plea from New Orleans legislators for help fighting a crime spree that included 10 killings in three days. Police statistics show there were 70 homicides in the first three months of 1979, up from 45 for the same period in 1978.

"It's OK by me," said Police Superintendent James Parsons. "Some may say we can handle the problem ourselves, but I think it's mainly a perception problem."

INCREASING STAFF

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Immigration and Naturalization Srvice is increasing it staff of inspectors at U.S. ports of entry this summer. Eighty-one inspectors are being added to the ports, beginning July 1, in an effort to detect illegal immigrants and counterfeit immigration documents, the Justice Department said Wednesday. Sixty-six of the new inspectors will be stationed in Texas, California and Arizona.

Controversial Art Galley Sells Works By Children, Teens

By VIVIAN ALUKO

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The paintings or prints on the walls of a children's art gallery in Philadelphia may not belong to the next Van Gogh or Picasso — but gallery owner Marcene Goodman doesn't care.

Better the works of art go on a wall, nicely framed, than in the trash can, she says.

In an interview, Mrs. Goodman said she opened the gallery called "First Impressions" because "I have two girls and I would just be going to their (art) classes and seeing shows and thought it was really nice."

The gallery's artists are children and young adults between the ages of 4 and 19. Their works — ranging from crude crayon sketches and drawings to fine paintings and ceramics — usually bring $6 to $100 each. One exception was a two-foot ceramic of Bernie Parent, goalie of the National Hockey League's Philadelphia Flyers, by a 16-year-old youth. It sold for $300.

Mrs. Goodman said most of the children do not take art lessons. She added that the works of some 4-year-olds are hard to sell because they are "too primitive."

She said she makes most of her money on framing.

The Philadelphia School District's art education department opposes the gallery on the grounds that it seems to smack of exploitation.

"We don't want to commercialize on art of a child at an early age," said Leon Cohen, assistant director of the department. Cohen said the gallery might orient students toward profit to the detriment of creativity.

As a result, teachers are forbidden to encourage students to let the gallery sell their work.

"This work is being sold at a pittance," said Mrs. Goodman, pointing to a drawing priced at $6 that would net its young artist $1.

"A lot of these kids are getting a token," she said, adding that one of them uses her earnings to buy more art supplies — "Heaven forbid she should use it for college."

"You should hear how happy they are when I call to tell them their work has been sold."

Mrs. Goodman thinks parents also benefit because they gain an appreciation of art, knowing someone thinks enough of their child to buy his work.

"I think kids' art work should be framed and enjoyed just like adults' art work," said Nancy Bockbrader, the gallery's co-owner.

Data Indicates VD Cases Increased

CHICAGO (AP) — Diagnosed cases of the venereal disease trichomoniasis increased by more than 20 percent last year, according to marketing data released by a major drug company.

G.D. Searle & Co. said its drug sales indicate that more than 2.8 million cases of trichomoniasis were treated in 1978, compared with more than 2.3 million cases in 1977.

There were fewer than 1 million cases of gonorrhea and 21,000 reported cases of syphilis reported in 1978 — slight increases in both diseases compared with 1977 figures.

Unlike gonorrhea and syphilis, trichomoniasis has no long-term dangers, according to the federal Center for Disease Control in Atlanta.

"But we do consider it a public health concern since it is very common," said Dr. Paul Wiesner, head of the venereal disease unit of the disease center. "It causes a great deal of discomfort in women and consumes health treatment resources."

Wiesner said he had no independent statistics to confirm the drug company's figures, but said analysis of marketing data is a valid means of determining the incidence of a disease. "If the number of prescriptions to treat a disease is up significantly, it's a good indication that the incidence of the disease has increased," he said.

Caused by a microscopic parasite, trichomoniasis produces an irritating vaginal infection in women. It usually causes no symptoms in men, although they can transmit the disease.

General Named Plans Director

OFFUTT AIR FORCE BASE, Neb. (A) — Maj. Gen. George D. Miller, deputy chief of staff for operations at the Strategic Air Command, has been named to an Air Force staff position in Washington, it was announced Wednesday.

Miller will leave SAC by June 4 to become director of plans under the Air Force deputy chief of staff for operations and requirements.

Miller also is a deputy director of the Joint Strategic Target Planning Staff and will be succeeded in both SAC posts by Brig. Gen. Christopher S. Adams Jr. Adams has been SAC's assistant deputy chief of staff for operations and he has been selected for promotion to major general.

Hard Times Hit Iran's Big Business Symbol

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Iran's one-time symbol of big business has fallen on hard times following the economic disruption of the Islamic revolution. But the Tehran stock exchange still opens doggedly for business every day at 10 o'clock sharp, hoping that its traders and investors will eventually come trickling back.

On a recent morning, the plush, green-carpeted trading floor was empty as supervisor Gholam Ali Shivafar rang his small brass bell to announce the start of business. A few brokers lounged at their desks, sipping coffee and barely glancing at the glossy brown-and-white boards with the prices of the market's 105 stocks.

The prices of some stocks have stood still for six months during the Iranian revolutionary period. Stock worth less than 10 million rials — $143,000 in dollars — has changed hands since March 22. That is five percent of what used to be traded in a single day in better times.

"Some brokers now come here just out of duty, to answer phones and see about their accounts," said Exchange Secretary-General Mansur Zabetian. "The number of people willing to invest in stocks is very small because nothing is clear as far as the future policies of the country are concerned."

For investors who have faith that the Islamic government will vigorously restore private enterprise, now is the time to buy on the Tehran exchange.

Stock in the blue-chip Pars Electric is selling for 1,400 rials or $20 a share, down from $40.35 last year. Iran National, a automobile assembler, has plummeted from $49.28 last year to $25 at present.

Many businessmen have fled the country and the economy is paralyzed by transport disruptions, cash shortages and managemet disputes. The low stock prices reflect these problems and uncertainty over the future of big business in Iran.

Zabetian said stock prices might have declined even more if trading had been more active. He said only a few customers are actively trading now, and 15 of the exchange's 28 brokers are working.

In an interview, Zabetian argued that the Islamic revolution could be good for the stock market. Quoting the Koran, the Moslem holy book, he said Islam has no objection to shareholding in commercial ventures. He said a leveling out of incomes in the country — promised by the revolutionary regime — could bring more people into the market.

"People are waiting to see how companies performed last year," he said. "After people see the balance sheets and the future ownership problem is solved, they will start investing again."

The stock exchange now has photographs of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, leader of the Iranian revolution, taped to its glass front doors. Zabetian said the exchange was untouched during the revolution and that he has been discussing the market's future with revolutionary authorities.

Doctor Says Griping Way To Help Stress

MOSCOW (UPI) — Why the constant reference to weather, tension and depression among U.S. diplomats and their families stationed here?

"Bitching and griping are common ways to deal with stress," said Dr. Samuel Karson, clinical psychologist under contract with the State Department's medical section.

"Chekhov had a story about a man whose friend had died. He wanted to talk but couldn't find anyone to listen. So he told his horse all about it and felt a lot better. I think we all know that a good ear is a good thing."

The State Department apparently agrees. After years of pressure from various employee organizations, the department officially added mental health to its list of services two years ago.

There is a full-time psychiatrist in Kabul, Afghanistann, and clinics at a number of other embassies. Karson has visited Vienna, Jakarta, Tehran, Kabul and Bangkok, where U.S. Embassies also have programs.

He spent a month here at the request of Dr. Carl Nydell, the embassy's medical officer, who brushes up against the difficulties of life in Moscow as he treats the embassy community's medical ailments.

He now finds there is a need for more activities for diplomats and their families, particularly the children.

"They want more of the things they were used to stateside," he said. "More Big Macs, more sports, more plays and more artivities."

"Most people take their problems with them," said Karson. "I tend to put much less emphasis on the environment as it relates to problems than on what is going on between a person's own ears."

"You see the same old problems here as everywhere else. Marital problems. Problems with coping. Problems with anxiety and depression."

The difference, according to Karson, is that in most other places a person could take his problems to a mental health clinic. In Moscow that's impossible.

"Any place where you have families, there will be need for mental health services," he said. "The point is not that special problems exist in Moscow, but that a normal problem exists that is not being treated."

During his visit Karson ran a string of special seminars on family relations, children, anxiety and depression.

"It's a service we offer to find out how people are programmed. Some are programmed in more fortunate ways than others, consequently there are individual differences in things like toughness, guilt proneness and the ability to handle anxiety and depression."

West German Production Of Cars Down

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — West German production of passenger cars and station wagons totaled 342,300 units in April, down 12.5 percent from 391,331 units in March but up 9.1 percent from 313,530 units in April, 1978, the automoble industry associatio (VDA) reported.

According to the VDA, total production of motor vehicles in April was 367,000 units, down 13.2 percent from 422,823 units in March, but up 9.9 percent from 333,880 units in April, 1978.

The VDA remarked that the rise in production over the year-earlier month was partially affected by labor disputes which disrupted production in April 1978.

April motor vehicle exports totaled 173,100 units, according to the VDA, down 16.5 percent from 207,342 units in March, but up 9.6 percent from 157,872 units in April 1978.

Total production in the year through April amounted to 1,562,700 motor vehicles, up 7 percent from the comparable period last year.

Exports through April totaled 748,700 units, up 6 percent from the same period a year early, the VDA reported.

The West German auto manufacturer's group said that orders coming from the domestic market indicate a slackening demand for autos, but this has been offset by rising export demand. VDA didn't give any precise figures to illustrate its assessment.

Less Choice Beef To Be Available

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers will have fewer choice beef cuts to choose from when they go to the supermarket, new Agriculture Department figures indicate.

The figures show that the number of cattle being fed for the slaughter market continues to lag behind the numbers of a year ago. Inventories of feedlot cattle — the main source of steaks, roasts and other retail cuts of beef — were 7,668,000 head on May 1 in seven key producing states. That was off 2 percent from a year ago, the department said Monday. Cattle numbers are generally down because producers, facing depressed prices for several years, trimmed their herds.

Studies Indicate 'High' Drivers New Menace

By PEGGY MANN

Recent studies sound the warning whistle on a little-publicized but frightening new menace to motorists: the pot smoker driving "high" on the highways. Persuasive evidence is mounting that such drivers often have a distorted sense of space and time, altered peripheral and central vision, and impaired manipulative and coordination skills.

Surveys reported by the National Institute on Drug Abuse (NIDA) reveal that 60 to 80 percent of the marijuana users questioned sometimes drive while "intoxicated" on pot. Every day, increasing numbers of stoned drivers are endangering lives — as pot use escalates into what NIDA calls "a national epidemic among young people." (The latest countrywide survey shows that one out of every nine high school seniors smokes pot daily, almost twice the 1975 figure.)

Our nation is both unaware of the marijuana highway crisis and unprepared for it. Many states have inexpensive and legally recognized tests for establishing alcoholic intoxication. However, we have no workable roadside test for marijuana intoxication. (NIDA is funding research on such a test, but it is probably three or four years away from being ready.)

In 39 states, possession of marijuana is still a crime, but enforcement is generally lax — and pot smokers know it. Of the 11 states that have decriminalized marijuana, only Alaska and Minnesota have thus far enacted a special increased penalty for possession of pot in a vehicle. In all 11 states, many pot-smoking drivers mistakenly believe that decriminalization implies government sanction to smoke marijuana — anywhere.

The politicization of pot has helped to obscure the picture. But when emotions and polemics are cleared away, both pro and anti-decriminalization forces agree that it is dangerous to drive stoned. Even the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws (NORML), which supports removal of all legal penalties for possession of pot for personal use, "strongly discourages driving while under the influence of marijuana or any other drug, and recognizes the legitimate public interest in prohibiting such conduct."

The "legitmate public interest," however, is not being protected. Highway officials nationwide express profound concern. Richard L. Burton, former commissioner of Alaska's Department of Public Safety, is among the most apprehensive, saying, "The alcohol problem on the highways will soon be only half as serious as marijuana — and that's not because the alcohol problem is going to get any better!" And Lee Dogoloff, White House advisor on federal drug policy, states: "It is essential that Americans understand the very real hazards of driving while marijuana-intoxicated."

How much does marijuana contribute to traffic accidents and fatalities? Research findings have been remarkably consistent. In 1975, the Boston University traffic accident research team surveyed 267 drivers deemed "most responsible for a fatal accident. Sixteen percent of the 267 drivers had been smoking marijuana prior to the fatal accident. Statistically, "marijuana smokers were over-represented in fatal highway accidents," the study concluded. Other traffic-fatality studies in Albuquerque, N.M., Baltimore, and in Oklahoma City yielded a similar incidence of marijuana involvement.

California's Department of Justice has made the first large-scale study directly relating marijuana to traffic arrests. The study, completed last year, covered 46 of the state's 58 counties and examined 1,792 blood samples (randomly selected from 19,000 turned in by the California Highway Patrol) from drivers arrested for traffic accidents or for driving under the influence of drugs. The tests were made with an expensive radioimmunoassay laboratory technique that can analyze blood samples for molecules of THC (tetraphydrocannabinol), the chief mind-altering ingredient of marijuana. Sixteen prcent of the 1,792 arrested drivers had sufficient THC in their blood to constitute marijuana intoxication.

Victor Reeve, supervisor of the California study, points out: "This must be regarded as a conservative figure because, of the drivers arrested, fewer than half agreed to give a blood sample. How many of the remaining drivers were under the influence of marijuana we will never know."

How does pot affect driving abilities?

More than 50 studies have been made in the United States since 1970, when standarized grades of so-called "NIDA marijuana" were made available to researchers. Says Herbert Moskowitz, a University of California research psychologist who has probably done the most work on marijuana with simulated driving studies: "The preponderance of evidence indicates that marijuana impairs skills performance and perceptual processes, including vision, attention, and tracking behavior — all important components of driving performance."

Such impairments as tracking performance are significant after two "street joints." Drivers may imagine they are doing a fine job of keeping the car in the correct lane, when in fact they are weaving.

In addition, marijuana can cause impaired night-driving abilities, impaired short-term memory function, impaired concentration, impaired ocular motor control and impaired vigilance.

These results are generally obtained in driving-simulator tests — and most people drive better under simulated conditions than they drive normally.

However, one test was carried out in actual driving conditions by Dr. Harry Klonoff, professor of psychiatry at the University of British Columbia. He chose 64 psychologically stable subjects who had used marijuana before. One third were given a low dosage of one street joint, one third received a high dosage of two joints, the other third received placebos. With dual controls and an observer in each car, all 64 volunteers drove through a closed course with no other traffic. Low-dose subjects showed a 33 percent significant decline in driving skills, while high-dose subjects showed a 55 percent significant decline.

Thirty-eight drivers also covered a 16-mile route from the university campus to the traffic-heavy downtown area and back again. These 38 were rated by the system used to examine drivers for licensing. Final figures for the road test showed that those on the low dose had a 42 percent decline in driving skills, while the high-dosage subjects had a 63 percent decline. Unusual driving behavior, Klonoff reported, included missing traffic lights or stop signs, poor handling of the vehicle in traffic, unawareness of pedestrians and stationary vehicles.

Of 11 behaviorial components tested, the three of greatest vulnerability were judgement, caution and concentration — despite the fact that some of the subjects paid special attention to their driving to prove that pot had no impairing effects.

How long does marijuana continue to affect driving skill?

Studies in 1972 showed a definite decrease in skills performance 5 to 6 hours after intake of a strong social dose of marijuanan. Another worrisome factor, reported in 1976 by NIDA, is that a person may attempt to drive without realizing that his functioning is still impaired — even though he or she no longer feels "high."

A 1972 study of driving behavior in a safety-controlled area showed a "marked" decline in driving abilities was still present 5 to 6 hourse after intake, a "definite" effect 8 to 10 hours after intake, and a lingering effect as long as 24 hours later. Another factor: Many chronic pot smokers reported that only a few puffs of "good pot" (with a high THC content) can result in a sudden intense high (if this happens on the highway it can be frightening and dangerous).

Do pot users recognize the danger of driving while stoned? Chronic pot smokers tend to view their driving impairments through rose-colored glasses. Among more than 1,000 people arrested for marijuana possession in Minnesota, 25 percent thought pot had no effect on their driving. More than 25 percent thought pot actually improved their coordination. Some enthusiasts prefer driving stoned, saying that it becomes less boring. "I get more into my driving" goes the refrain.

Dr. Joseph Davis, the medical examiner in Dade County, Fla., with Arnold W. Klein and Dr. Brian D. Blackbourne surveyed 571 local college and post-graduate students on pot and driving. In every driving category, former and infrequent users sharply downgraded their ability to perform while stoned, while chronic pot smokers gave themselves quite good grades. Despite their cheery assessments, 53 percent of the chronic users had been stopped by police for driving under the influence of drugs; 22 percent had three or more violations, compared with 2.3 percent of non-users. Eight percent had had their license revoked, compared to one percent of the non-users.

The alcohol-drunk driver usually finds it hard to hide his condition, if stopped by the police. But the pot-high driver ofter believes he can "come down" and carry on a seemingly normal conversation with a police officer. This apparent ability to "hide their high" gives many pot smokers confidence that they can drive stoned.

One such self-assured driver, a 30-year-old medical sociologist — a heavy drug user and daily pot smoker for about five years before he swore off drugs — reported smoking a few joints at a friend's house. Then he borrowed his friend's car, certain that he could handle whatever might turn up on the road — including the police. "But," he recalls, "as I drove down one of the busiest streets in the city, the dream-like pleasure I usually felt when driving stoned suddenly burst into a total psychedelic experience. All I could see was a myriad of tiny dancing lights. I was so totally spaced out that I had no awareness of even being in a car, much less driving one."

When a traffic light turned red, he didn't notice it, and crashed into a small car. He got out, danced a little jig, walked away and wandered around the city for hours. "I knew something had happened. But I didn't know what."

Around 4 a.m. he remembered, and turned himself in to the police. He learned that he had wrecked his friend's car, and had totally demolished the small car in front of him — which had, in turn, crashed into the sedan in front of it. Remarkably, no one had been seriously injured.

What can be done — now?

We need not wait helplessly until scientists come up with a roadside kit for testing THC levels, and states enact laws to deal with marijuana-intoxicated drivers. There are two avenues we can take right away.

First, state legislatures should immediately pass laws imposing a high fine and/or other stiff penalty for possession of marijuana in a vehicle-including taxis, buses, trucks, trains and planes.

President, Automakers To Discuss Future Car

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter summoned the nation's big four automakers to the White House today to discuss a program aimed at developing a safe, fuel-thrifty and non-polluting "car of the future."

Transportation Secretary Brock Adams, who set up the meeting, has called for domestic automakers to "re-invent the automobile."

Now the Carter administration seems on the verge of offering federal help in doing that.

Proposals for a joint industry-government research and development program already have been cleared by the Justice Department, which has ruled that antitrust laws won't bar the automakers from sharing research information developed by such a program.

Administration officials envision grants to universities and private researchers with fruits of the research available to any manufacturer who wishes to use it.

"All this will be in the public domain," said one administration official, asking not to be named.

"This is Brock's 'car of the future' effort," said a Transportation Department official, likewise asking to remain anonymous.

"The aim of it is to kind of get a program going," said the official, who said an announcement was likely today but who also cautioned, "There's many a slip twixt the cup and the lip."

General Motors spokesman John Hartnett said only that the auto executives were coming at the bidding of the White House. "They invited us," he said.

Also invited were chief executives from Ford, Chrysler and American Motors.

Not officially on the agenda but sure to be discussed was the automakers' complaint that the government's timetable for improving gasoline mileage in new cars is unreasonable and too costly to consumers.

The companies no longer contest the congressionally mandated goal of an average of 27.5 miles to the gallon for 1985 models.

But the manufacturers, principally General Motors and Ford, have complained that Transportation Department regulations would hurry them along toward that goal too quickly.

By law, 1980 models will have to get an average of 20 mpg, rising to 27.5 mpg for 1985.

DOT has decreed by regulation that automakers must advance — not in equal increments of 1.5 mpg per year as the automakers would prefer — but under a "front-loaded" timetable with bigger jumps in the early years and lesser ones later on.

The timetable requires 22 mpg for 1981 models, 24 for 1982, 26 for 1983, 27 for 1984 and, finally, 27.5 for 1985.

The Department of Energy, concerned with fuel conservation, supports DOT's front-loaded schedule, which is estimated to save about 7 billion gallons of gasoline over the "straight-line" schedule the manufacturers prefer.

But the Commerce Department, supporting the automakers, has estimated in a recent study that the front-loaded schedule would force price increases that would cost consumers $2 billion more than would be saved through fuel conservation.

The Commerce Department study is, in turn, disputed by Joan Claybrook, director of DOT's National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, who called the study simplistic and who said her own, more detailed analyses yield different numbers.

Company Will Cut Gas Prices To Make Up For Overcharges

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Vickers Energy Corp. will cut prices at its gas pumps from 1 to 3 cents a gallon over the next two years as part of an agreement with the Department of Energy to make up for more than $23 million in alleged customer overcharges, a newspaper reports.

In a copyright story Thursday, the Kansas City Star reported the reduced gas prices were specified in an agreement that will have the Wichita, Kan.-based company refund $23.15 million to its customers over the next two years.

The agreement was reached, the newspaper said, to return what the DOE claimed the company charged for petroleum products that exceeded federal regulations. As part of the agreement, the company said that although it was consenting to the refunds it did not believe it had violated any federal regulations.

Under the agreement, which the newspaper said would be formally announced at a later date, Vickers agreed to directly refund $6.3 million in the form of reduced gas prices; agreed to place $2.85 million in an escrow account that will be distributed to certain large customers at the DOE's discretion; and agreed to drop an anticipated $14 million in increased prices during the next two years.

The agreement was the largest settlement handled by the Kansas City regional office of the DOE and was reportedly the largest ever settled entirely at a regional level.

The settlement followed an audit of Vickers' gasoline prices from mid-1973 until last March. The DOE said in its report that the company had complied fully with the agency's requests and that no written allegations had been delivered against the company.

The agreement was signed by Harold R. Grueskin, president of Vickers Petroleum Corp., and Robert Gerring, the director of the Energy Department's Central Enforcement District office in Kansas City.

Vickers operates 350 service stations throughout the midwest.

Expert Says Wiretap Illegal

HOUSTON (UPI) — It appears an illegal wiretap was placed on the private line of an oil company official who was later indicted on criminal oil pricing fraud charges, un electronics expert says.

Uni Oil Co. of Houston filed a petition Thursday asking a federal judge to dismiss the 84-count indictment.

The oil company, accused of $3.8 million worth of pricing fraud, contended prosecutors used an illegal wiretap and discrimiated against its officials by filing criminal, rather than civil, charges.

The petition was one of several pretrial motions on which U.S. District Judge Ross Sterling was expected to rule May 29.

Uni, several officers — including president Thomas Hajecate — Ball Marketing Enterprise of Lafayette, La., and a Ball officer, face trial June 4 on charges they misrepresented oil sales to obtain higher prices.

Uni lawyer Thano Dameris said Wednesday an electronics expert believed at least one telephone at Uni headquarters in Houston was tapped.

The expert, Ken Taylor, filed an affidavit saying he checked Uni Oct. 18 and concluded "it is more probable than not that an unlawful interception or 'tap' has occurred on Thomas "Mick" Hajecate's private telephone line."

The 84-count indictment charges Unit and Ball took advantage of multi-tiered federal oil pricing regulations, which allow higher prices for oil wells brought into production after 1973. Illegal profits allegedly total $3.8 million.

Federal investigators charge Uni misrepresented oil bought from Ball as "new " oi obtaining more than $10 per barrel rather than the $5.50 per barrel allowed for oil from wells in operation before 1973.

Dameris also charged the Justice Department and Department of Energy discriminated against Uni by filing criminal charges when other oil companies' pricing discrepancies had been resolved through civil cases.

Winnebago Forced To Close Plants

FOREST CITY, Iowa (UPI) — With its No. 1 employer forced to shut down for six weeks and its economy directly tied to the nation's uncertain energy outlook, Forest City would appear to be a town on the threshold of economic insecurity.

Yet, the majority of its 4,500 residents share a sense of cautious optimism.

Winnebago Industries, the largest employer in northern Iowa, announced Wednesday it would suspend production of motor homes at plants in Forest City and California for six weeks, beginning May 31.

Attack On Rhodesia Could Be Warning To U.S.

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Gunners positioned inside Zambia mounted an hour-long rocket and mortar attack on the lakeside resort town of Kariba apparently as a warning to the United States and Britain not to recognize Rhodesia's first black-majority government.

A military spokesman said it was uncertain whether black nationalist guerrillas based in Zambia, or whether Zambian troops launched Thursday's attack, in which three black Rhodesians were injured.

The Patriotic Front guerrilla alliance and the African so-called "front-line states" supporting the guerrillas opposed Rhodesia's first black majority elections. Zambia is a front-line state.

Lake Kariba, formed by a huge dam on the Zambezi River, is 180 miles northwest of Salisbury.

Most of the shelling was concentrated on the resort's lakeside harbor where scores of pleasure boats were moored, he said.

"The fire was returned and a number of the firing positions within Zambia were neutralized," a military communique said.

The attack came within hours of a meeting between Prime Minister-elect Bishop Abel Muzorewa and Sir Anthony Duff, a senior British envoy.

"The talks were highly constructive," Muzorewa said after his talks with Duff. "It was a warm and friendly meeting," Duff said.

Kariba residents made light of the shelling.

Mike Wood, manager of Kariba's Cutty Sark hotel, said guests sipped drinks as they watched rockets and mortar shells crash into the harbor area.

"It was drinks on the house and beers for everyone as soon as the attack started," Wood said. Guests went indoors when the barrage looked threatening and come out again when the attack lessened.

"This was really indiscriminate fire," said Tony Betts, manager of the Caribbean Bay hotel. "A lot of it overshot the village and hit the boats by the lake. The guests could hear the 'thump, thump' of the mortars, but there was no panic," he said.

"I was having a bath at the time. I thought it was practice fire or blasting at the quarry," said Elsy Eltheniades, a Kariba resident.

But the attack dampened the euphoria among government officials over a recent U.S. Senate resolution urging President Carter to lift trade sanctions against Rhodesia and by improved relations with Britain.

Government officials said the talks opened a new era in relations between Britain and the former colony that Prime Minister Ian Smith declared independent in 1965.

They noted the way both Duff and Muzorewa described their encounter differed starkly from the bitter mutual criticism which followed previous meetings between British envoys and officials before Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's Conservative party gained power in Britain earlier this month.

El Salvador Leader Calls For Discussions

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — President Gen. Carlos Humberto Romero has called for a dialogue between the government and its critics and hinted at electoral reforms to stave off the country's deepening political crisis.

Speaking on national television and radio for 15 minutes Thursday, Romero urged all legal opposition groups to open "a process of authentic citizen participation within the national political forum."

He warned that "all extremes bring the seeds of destruction" and added, "I am the first to lament the tragic consequences of the moments our country has lived in the last few days."

The Salvadoran government is faced with militant opposition from the Marxist-led Popular Revolutionary Bloc who are holding French Ambassador Michel Georges Dondenne, Venezualan Ambassador Santiago Ochoa and several diplomatic employees in the two embassies.

The Bloc is demanding the government free all of its leaders they claim have been jailed over the last month. The group also occupies nine churches and five schools.

Romero said the government and the armed forces have taken "prudent" steps to protect democracy from "the treachery of international subversion, whose agents have infiltrated labor groups."

In a reference to the 1980 congressional and local elections, he said, "I will guarantee in all aspects the purity of the electoral process. Moreover, if it is necessary, I am disposed to sponsor legal reforms that would be pertinent to strengthen the process of our representative democracy."

Opponents have charged that the elections that brought Romero to power in 1977 were fraudulent.

The upheaval peaked May 8 with a Bloc demonstration in front of the Metropolitan Cathedral that culminated with police firing on the crowd, killing 19 Bloc members and four bystanders.

On Thursday, Popular Liberation Front guerrillas killed three marines in an attack on a navy outpost on Lake Suchitlan, 50 miles north of San Salvador. The leftists also killed two policemen in front of a television station in downtown San Salvador.

Russians Launch Cosmos Satellite

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union has launched the Cosmos 1099 satellite to explore the Earth's natural resources from space, the Tass news agency reported.

The satellite was launched Thursday and placed in an orbit with a maximum distance of 169 miles from the earth and a minimum distance of 138 miles at an inclination of 31.4 degrees.

Government Decision Allows Chrysler To Buy Technology

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Although a 1969 court settlement bars the nation's automakers from sharing anti-pollution technology, the government decided to let Chrysler Corp. get help from General Motors in meeting emissions control and airbag deadlines.

The Justice Department announced Wednesday it will not oppose an agreement under which the No. 3 automaker would buy techincal assistance from GM through Sept.1, 1980.

In reaching the decision, the department's antitrust division was faced with a difficult conflict:

Chrysler, whose sales run behind both GM and Ford, lost $205 million last year and $58.3 million in the first quarter of 1979.

Chrysler officials said that without help from GM, they might not be able to meet 1980 and 1981 emission control standards on some engines in time for the start of those model years. Chrysler also said it is trailing GM in developing airbags, due to be phased in on new cars from 1981-84.

Therefore, approving the technical assistance agreement might increase competition in the concentrated auto market.

But that might fly in the face of environmental concerns.

As a result of a federal lawsuit, a Los Angeles judge in 1969 approved a settlement known as the "smog decree" that strictly forbids automakers from discussing or sharing information on anti-pollution devices. Environmentalists hoped the settlement would spur competition in emissions control development.

In a letter to the Justice Department last month, Clarence Ditlow, executive director of the Washington-based Center for Auto Safety, contended Chrysler and GM violated the 1969 settlement by even discussing the technology agreement.

"Apparently, General Motors and Chrysler would keep the public in the dark while they cozily decide the lowest common denominator for future (emissions) performance," Ditlow charged.

Weighing the two factors, Ky Ewing, deputy assistant attorney general, decided in favor of the agreement on grounds it could save Chrysler substantial amounts of money and enable it to compete more effectively.

In a letter to Chrysler chairman John Riccardo, Ewing said "nothing in the agreement ... limits Chrysler's right to use competitively information furnished it by General Motors," or restricts Chrysler's own research efforts.

Week's Car Production To Set Record

DETROIT (AP) — U.S. carmakers are geared up for the year's top production this week, a trade publication reported today.

Total motor vehicle output in U.S. and Canadian plants should top 6 million by Saturday, said Ward's Automotive Reports.

Nineteen U.S. car plants and 16 truck plants scheduled overtime for Saturday, while two large-car plants were shut this week to reduce unsold inventory.

Car assemblies in U.S. plants were scheduled at 220,466, up 1.2 percent from last week's 217,753 and off 0.2 percent from 220,918 assembled in the same week last year.

Last week's production had been the year's record.

Truck production was put at 79,234, down 1.3 percent from last week's 80,275 but .1 percent above the 77,605 produced in the same week last year.

For every 100 Americans working in the private sector, there are 23 people with government jobs, The Conference Board observes. This is up from 17 in 1957.

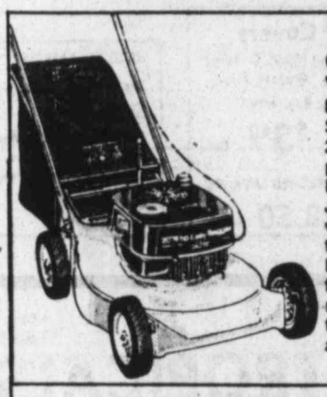

For the year through Saturday, auto output was set at 3,776,968, down 0.6 percent from the comparable 1978 figure of 3,800,281. Truck output was slated at 1,497,074, 6.6 percent head of the 1,404,336 turned out in the 1978 period.

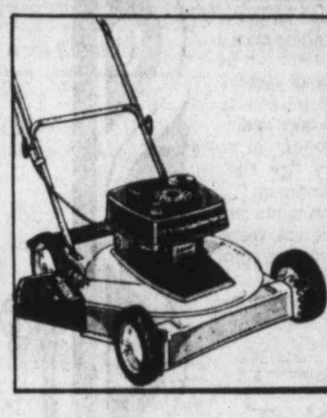

Canadian auto production this week should total 19,035, 9.7 percent under last week's 21,073 as GM scheduled plant closings Friday for the Victoria Day holiday weekend. The week's total would be 20 percent less than the 23,673 cars produced in the same 1978 week. For the year through Saturday, assemblies of 449,490 would be 3.9 percent under last year's 467,963.

Truck production in Canada was put at 15,447 this week, down 8.3 percent from last week's 16,850 but 21 percent ahead of the 12,717 of the same week last year. For 1979 through Saturday, output of 309,491 would be 9.5 percent better than the 282,673 turned out to the same point in 1978.

U.S. Metal Supply Threatened

By LeROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — A strategic arms limitation treaty is nice to have but the real Soviet threat to the United States is not military — it is their campaign to cut off U.S. supplies of strategic metals, says a New Jersey industrialist.

By shutting the United States off from sources of chromium, cobalt, manganese and tin, or even by running up the global prices of these metals, the Communists can hurt the U.S. economy so badly unemployment will rise rapidly and Americans will lose faith in their capacity to resist communist aggression, said Dr. C.P. Covino, head of General Magnaplate Corp. of Linden, N.J.

Covino has spoken on this subject for several years. His company is doing something about it.

Magnaplate coats baser metals with layers of high-chrome or high-cobalt steel to help stretch the dwindling supplies of these strategic metals.

But Covino says Americans should not comfort themselves that either conservation methods or stockpiling the strategic metals will suffice.

Covino sees no indication that either the federal government or the responsible heads of industry in the United States are willing to face up to the seriousness of the critical strategic metals situation.

On the contrary, he said Washington has aggravated the shortage of chromium by putting the racial and human rights issue in Rhodesia ahead of the legitimate national interests of the United States.

"People just refuse to face up to the fact that we live in a world where even a big power like the United States can be brought to its knees without chromium," Covino said. "It is a mistake to think that chrome is needed only to decorate automobiles and furniture or to make stainless steel. Every fine alloy steel known requires some chromium."

The main sources of chromium are Rhodesia and Russia. In recent years, the price of chromium has shot up from $50 to $60 a ton to more than $300.

Cobalt, he said, is the next most important strategic metal. It comes from Zaire in Africa, Russia and Turkey and a little comes from Canada.

The main sources of supply are in those parts of Africa which the Communists are busily trying to take over. The price of cobalt has gone from $6 to $45 a pound in two years, Covino added.

Tin, produced in Malaysia, Bolivia and Cornwall in England, and manganese, mainly from Russia, are other vital strategic metals.

"We sell the Russians our greatest strategic commodities — grain and foodstuffs — in enormous quantities, and don't exact guaranties on supplies of strategic metals in return," Covino complained to United Press International.

He said he expects the raw materials shortage in strategic metals to spread to "shortages in everything," and that he said could create such vast unemployment in the United States that living standards will suffer and faith in free enterprise economics and government fade.

Covino criticized business leaders harshly for maintaining a "supermarket" mentality about raw materials.

"Like the government officials, industrial leaders seem unable to change their concept that raw material sources are unlimited and it's all just a matter of price and will continue to be so because it has been in the past," he said.

That's not true, Covino said. The struggle for control of strategic raw materials is a life and death matter and the winner will control the whole planet.

Doctor Says Care Disastrous

CHICAGO (AP) — Taking mental patients out of hospitals and placing them in city neighborhood facilities can often prove disastrous, says a Cornell University pyschiatrist.

Such programs seek to reduce overcrowded public mental hospitals by routing patients to settings where they are more in touch with society and where living conditions are better.

But they have not always worked, Dr. John A. Talbott of Cornell University Medical College said this week.

Talbott is chairman of an American Pyschiatric Association committee on chronic mental patients which issued its reports during the association's annual meeting this week.

He said programs designed to de-institutionalize sometimes result in moving the patients "from one wretched facility to multiple, awful facilities."

Patients often are housed in run-down hotels or rooming houses in "fringe areas" of New York, Chicago or the cities of California, where they can become prey for former prisoners and drug addicts.

Talbot said such programs also perpetuate and intensify the stigma against the mentally ill in places where they are concentrated.

And programs in which de-institutionalization has succeeded often go unnoticed and the stigma remains.

The number of Americans who become mentally ill remains fairly constant at 10 to 15 percent of the population, excluding alcoholism and drug addiction, he said. Since 1955, the number of patients in American mental hospitals has dropped from 560,000 to 170,000.

However, said Talbott, the reduction in the number of hospital beds in the past two decades will create problems in the 1980s as those born during the last baby boom mature and the number of elderly increases.

Talbott said the mental health system is a disaster, a national hodgepodge of federal and state agencies overlapping in their planning and services.

He said chronic mental illness is as much a catastrophic illness as kidney disease, yet public money favors the acutely ill and patients sometimes are not eligible for reimbursement under private insurance plans.

Japanese May Renew Efforts To Find Ships

TOKYO (AP) — The reported discovery of the Japanese cargo-passenger ship Awa Maru, torpedoed by an American submarine on April 1, 1945, may bring renewed Japanese efforts to find some 3,260 ships sunk in World War II in an attempt to recover thousands of missing war dead.

The multimillion-circulation newspaper Yomiuri said a survey showed that 246 ships, ranging from a 31,720-ton battleship and two aircraft carriers to tankers an cargo shis, were sunk by American submarines and aircraft in the Yellow Sea, the East and Souh China eas and the Taiwanstraits from 1942 to 1945.

The 11,249-ton Awa Maru, torpedoed by the U.S. submarine Queenfish, carried 2,008 persons and was recently discovered by Chinese salvage workers, Peking's official Xinhua (Hsinhua) news agency reported.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Select wisely those whom you would like to socialize with tomorrow. Getting mixed up with the wrong group could turn out to be a negative experience.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your image is a trifle fragile. Be doubly careful how you conduct yourself. Do nothing for which others could put you down.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Negative thinking could be your worst enemy. Turn your head around with positive thoughts should this occur.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you have an old debt, try to clear it up before the person comes to you. It could spare you future embarrassment.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Independence is an admirable quality, but try not to carry it to extremes. Try to be a team player rather than a lone eagle.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Putting off responsibilities which you already have postponed is not the answer. They won't go away on their own.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Accept your friends for what they are, faults and all. Displaying intolerance will cause them to think less of you in return.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Lead by example if you hope to get a message across to your family or children. Doing otherwise will bring results you won't appreciate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Have all your facts ready if espousing ideas you want others to buy. Unless they're certain you know what you're talking about, they won't believe you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Keep your budget in balance. Before taking on any new financial obligations, be sure to clean up the old ones first.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Tomorrow you could be easily influenced by the company that you keep. Share your time with persons who are positive and hopeful, rather than negative or petty.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Normally you're not averse to helping others. Today, you may not feel as compassionate as usual and miss the opportunity to assist someone who truly needs your aid.

X-Rays Most Effective In Detecting Cancer

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — X-rays so far have proven to be the most superior method of detecting early signs of breast cancer, a five-year study by Thomas Jefferson University concludes.

Dr. Gary S. Shaber, associate professor of radiology and director of Jefferson's Breast Diagnostic Center said the study was undertaken to evaluate the effectiveness of thermography in detecting breast cancer.

Thermography is an inexpensive method of detecting cancer by measuring the temperature of surface blood vessels.

Shaber said the study, funded by the National Cancer Institute, found thermography is not as effective as X-ray mammogrpahy, and actually is not much better than choosing women at random and flipping a coin to see who has cancer.

The technique, however, is completely safe and about 75 percent cheaper than X-rays.

Shaber noted many women shy away from X-rays because they fear radiation, but he said the risk is less than the consequences of undetected cancer.

Society Collects Donations For Construction Of Herb Garden

By EARL ARONSON
Associated Press Writer

A national herb garden is being constructed on the grounds of the National Arboretum in Washington, D.C. The necessary $400,000 is in hand, one half presented by the Herb Society of America and the other half by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The society's check, recently presented by its president, Mrs. A. Sumner Gambee, to Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland, represents private donations the society collected under provisions of the 1977 National Arboretum Gift Act. Congress approved the matching $200,000.

The garden is the climax of eight years of planning for what will be the largest designed herb garden in the world, covering two acres. Completion is expected in nine months.

The garden will contain an intricate arrangement of specialty plants. One area will have plants used for medicinals, flavorings, essential oils, dyes and teas. Another section will display plants of historical value, ranging from collections used in Roman and medieval times to herbs of American Indians and those brought to America by colonial settlers.

A fragrance garden will feature species roses of non-hybrid types, and fragile "sweet" plants such as rosemarys, lemon verbena and heliotrope.

In a special 25 x 50 foot herb-knot garden, plant masses will be arranged to resemble interwoven chains, with all the traditional elegance of formal herb gardens.

There will be many areas where visitors may stop for observationn study or rest in the shade. The entire garden, which will have changes in elevation and trellises, will be accessible by wheelchair. Plantings will be loosely arranged to provide a transition from the manmade to the natural, a meadow. Surrounding the herb garden will be large shrubs commonly associated with herb gardens, including witch hazels, spice bush, bayberry and dyer's greenwood, and small herbal trees such as linden and sassafras.

The Arboretum, occupying 444 acres, conducts research on trees, shrubs and other plant life and makes available to the public a wide range of educational programs.

Arboretum Director John Creech says the new garden "will help people understand the long history of herbs in the world. Persons from every ethnic group will be able to learn something of their heritage by observing and reading about plants that helped create and sustain their cultures."

The Herb Society awarded a scholarship grant to help with the complex task of coordinating proper arrangements of plant categories.

A guide for native American plants is "Wildflower Perennials for Your Garden," by Bebe Miles (Hawthorne Books). This detailed book, which will help provide years of bloom, is well illustrated. It gives advice on where and how to obtain some native plants, on preparation of the gardenn and on pests and diseases.

Tips May Help Homeowners Solve Many Lawn Problems

Here are several ideas that may prove helpful around your lawn and garden:

• If you wish to do your own landscaping, start by drawing a fairly accurate map of your yard. Show your house, driveway, sidewalk and any permanent trees or fixtures. Plan out activity areas, rest areas and traffic patterns. Determine where you want to use plants for shade, to screen off areas or define borders. Then take your map to the local nursery for advice on shrubs, ground covers, plants, etc.

• One cure for moles — they hate castor oil more than kids. Just drop a few castor beans into their holes. They'll clear out fast.

• For a free tree, check your local state conservation bureau. Often it has seedlings available at no cost.

• A simple root cellar is a barrel buried in the ground. It can keep carrots, beets, radishes and other garden produce fresh all winter long — in cold climates.

• Birds can be an asset to your garden. A song sparrow, for instance, has a ravenous appetite for weed seeds. Swallows consume a huge number of mosquitoes each day. The simplest bird house is a gourd with a hole drilled in it. Robins and phoebes are content wth nothing more than a covered platform to build their nest on. For most other birds, any sort of boxlike container with a 1½- to 2-inch diameter hole will do. (For migrating birds, you should hinge one side for spring cleaning, since many birds won't return to the same house if it hasn't been cleaned out.)

• After a storm, the yard is usually littered with twigs. If you have a fireplace, gather them and put them in the garage or shed to dry. They made excellent kindling.

• Compost is simply decayed organic matter. Leaves make good compost. So do coffee grounds, grass clippings and kitchen scraps. (Avoid meat and fat; they smell.) Turn your pile with a pitchfork once a week and keep it damp. When you add finished composts to your garden, it adds nutrients to the soil and creates rich organic humus.

• If your landscape is going to include steps, you might want to pick a material that's readily available in your area — to economize. On a gentle slope, a riser of four inches and a tread of 17 or 18 inches is usually comfortable. For extreme slopes, try to follow the formula 2H + W 25". (Twice the height of the riser plus the width of the tread should equal 25 inches.) Above all, according to outdoor experts, make sure your steps are safe.

Budget-Cutters Complain About Costs Of Plants

By IRA R. ALLEN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It's tough to be a federal bureaucrat these days.

First, the budget-cutters take away your limousine. Then they want to charge you for parking your own car. And now — horror of horrors — they're complaining about your ficus elastica.

The General Accounting Office says the government spent $816,700 over a four-year period to buy and water that ficus elastica (rubber plant to non-gardeners) and other greenery decorating 26 federal agencies.

In a report to Sen. James Sasser, D-Tenn., the investigative arm of Congress said the top federal spender for plant life was the Treasury Department, which shelled out $222,700 from 1974 through 1977.

The Interior Department wasn't far behind, spending $108,400. Other plant-conscious agencies were the U.S. Postal Service, $73,400; Energy Department, $72,800; and Transportation Department, $53,600.

"Why not use homegrown plants?" Sasser asked Thursday in a speech prepared for the Senate. "I water my own plants."

He said the practice of the government's Botanical Garden giving members of Congress free plants has stopped, although members can get "loans" of up to $30 worth of plant life a year for their offices.

"With all the emphasis on cutting federal spending to balance the budget, this certainly is one area where we could make progress," Sasser said.

The GAO report said the Copyright Royalty Tribunal, a new copyright-monitoring agency with only 11 employees, wants to spend $1,100 next year for plants and watering.

It said the entire Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corp., which oversees the beautification of the "avenue of presidents" in the capital city, spent only $100 on plants, and that was in 1975.

Wet Weather Delays Crop Harvest

COLLEGE STATION (UPI) — Wet fields have halted harvesting of most vegetables in the Rio Grande Valley where "disease damage to cantaloupe and honeydew melon crops is increasing." The Texas Agricultural Extension Service's weekly report said Thursday.

It said, however, "Harvesting of cantaloupes and peppers should start within the next 7 to 10 days, and the onion harvest is winding up."

Cotton and sorghum farmers in north, west central and much of the Texas Blacklands were concerned about continued delays in planting due to wet weather, the report said.

But it added that "ranchers and home gardeners have founds the rains to be of great benefit to their ranges and vegetable crops."

"Excessive moisture is causing some serious problems in Coastal Bend fields, where weedy growth also is a concern," the Extension Service said. "Cotton is squaring in the Valley and Coastal Bend, with fleshopper and boll weevil activity heavy in some Valley areas."

Sorghum was heading and corn was beginning to tassel in southern counties, the report said, and "Rice planting is nearing completion, with more than half of the crop emerged in Coastal Counties."

The report continued: "With the return of bright, sunny days, hay cutting is moving ahead rapidly in South, Central and Eastern counties. Fertilizing of hay crops is active elsewhere, and many farmers are sprigging new fields and meadows to Coastal bermuda grass to increase hay and grazing potentials."

In 10 to 14 days, depending on the weather, the first peaches were expected to be picked in Gillespie County, the report said. Elsewhere, it continued, "peaches are making good growth, although some webworms and early scab problems are being noted.

Firms Agree To Share

TOKYO (AP) — Hakuhodo Inc., Japan's second-largest public relations firm, and Campbell-Ewald International, a leading U.S. public relations company, have agreed to share their service network overseas, officials said this week.

A Hakuhodo spokesman said an agreement signed in Tokyo will enable the two companies to maintain a combined network covering 20 countries.

Hakuhodo has branches in six countries including Thailand, Malaysia, Singapore and West Germany, while the New York-based company has 16 overseas offices in Europe and South America.

Using the new service network, the spokesman said, the two companies will be able to exchange product and market information and find customers for each other, as well as to pool their resources in a variety of public relations projects.

Southcrest Hosting Leader Lab

Southcrest Baptist Church will host a West Texas Youth Leader Lab for Baptist churches May 25-26, a first for the area.

The event begins at noon May 25 and concludes at noon May 26.

The lab is designed for all youth leadership, church staff members, volunteer youth ministries, Sunday School teachers and church training leaders. The event is sponsored by the Lubbock Baptist Association; the Special Services Division of the Baptist General Convention of Texas; and Church Recreation Department of the Baptist Sunday School Board.

Topic and conference leaders include: "The Use of Recreation in Youth Ministry," Don Mattingly, special services coordinator of Baptist Sunday School Board Recreation; "Improving Youth Sunday School," Barbara Kent, youth curriculum writer and teacher from Plainview; "Understanding and Counseling Today's Youth," Dan Kent, associate professor of religion at Wayland Baptist College in Plainview; "Creative Bible Study Experiences," Phil Hall, director of Our Home Retreat Ministry in Austin; and "Youth and Family," Mike Horton, minister of family life at Lubbock's First Baptist Church.

Other topics and conference leaders are the following: "Discipleship—Developing Leaders Among Youth," John Glover, minister of music and youth at First Baptist Church in Pampa; "Social Events—Fellowships, Banquets, and Parties," Charlie Elliot, minister of activities and recreation at First Baptist Church in Midland; "Creative Youth-Led Worship," David Hairel, associate minister of music at Lubbock's First Baptist Church; "The Whys and Whats of Youth Ministry," Bailey Stone, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Odessa; and "Youth Publicity—Keeping Them Informed and Involved," Jerry Morris, youth minister of Paramount Baptist Church in Amarillo.

Participants may register for the lab by writing Youth Leader Lab, 3601 50th St., Lubbock, Texas, 79413.

SINGING GROUP APPEARS — The Singing Packs from Austin will participate in the 10:30 a.m. and 7 p.m. worship services Sunday at Calvary Temple Assembly of God, 802 Frankford Ave. The family singing group has traveled several years, singing on weekends and in special services in their ministry.

Seminary President Visiting City's First Baptist Church

Dr. William M. Pinson Jr., president of the Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary in Mill Valley, Calif., will be the pulpit guest for the 8:15 a.m. and 10:45 a.m. worship services Sunday in the First Baptist Church, Broadway and Avenue V.

Prior to assuming his present position in August, 1977, he was pastor of the First Baptist Church in Wichita Falls, the ninth largest church in the Southern Baptist Convention. During his pastorate there, baptisms averaged 150 per year and average Sunday School attendance was 1,788.

A native of Fort Worth, Pinson received a bachelor of arts degree from North Texas State University in 1956, a bachelor of divinity, a doctor of theology and a master of divinity degree from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in 1959, 1963 and 1973.

He studied at the University of Edinburgh, Scotland, Texas Christian University, Columbia University, Princeton Theological Seminary, Yale Divinity School and the San Francisco Theological Seminary as a visiting scholar.

From 1963 to 1975 he held a professorship at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary. He has served as associate secretary of the Christian Life Commission of the Baptist General Convention of Texas.

He has authored and had published approximately 30 religious books, including "Families With A Purpose," and "Applying The Gospel," and has contributed to many other books and publications.

Preaching missions have taken him to Scotland, England, Spain, Denmark, Mexico and Canada.

He is the recipient of the Distinguished Service Award of Christian Ethics, Christian Life Commission of the Southern Baptist Convention; was named "Outstanding Young Man in America" by the Junior Chamber of Commerce in 1965; and has participated in White House conferences.

He chaired the National Commission for the Study of Urban Problems and Church State Relations.

Rev. Bob Miser, pastor of First Baptist Church South in Lubbock, will preach the church's evening service at 7 p.m. Sunday.

Church News

Johnson Named To Staff Of Lutheran Church

Chris Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Johnson of 1933 69th St., has received a vicarage assignment from Concordia Seminary in St. Louis, Mo.

Johnson will be a part of the summer staff of Christ Lutheran Church, 7800 Indiana Ave., beginning Sunday. He is a member of Christ Lutheran Church and was also employed on its staff last summer. He will work in the areas of assistant in the pastoral ministry, youth and calling and visitation programs at the local church this summer.

He has completed six years of training for the ministry this month in the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod and is eligible to accept his appointment for a year of theological internship at St. John's Lutheran Church in Mt. Prospect, Ill.

Johnson holds a bachelor of arts degree and is presently working on his master of divinity degree at the St. Louis seminary.

He also received pre-seminary training at Concordia Junior College in Austin and Concordia Senior College in Fort Wayne, Ind. He enrolled at the St. Louis seminary in 1977.

Concordia Seminary is one of two seminaries owned and operated by the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod. It has graduated more than 9,000 pastors in its 140-year history.

Crestview Plans Special Events

Crestview Assembly of God, now located at W. 34th Street and Loop 289, has planned a series of special events and services this Sunday and next week, in conjunction with the dedication service for its new facility.

Shirley Jean Fletcher will be the special speaker for the 10:45 a.m. worship service Sunday at the new church facility.

A dedication service for the new facility is slated at 2 p.m. Sunday and a buffet at the church is scheduled at noon Sunday.

Evangelist John Wesley Fletcher will hold worship services at 6 p.m. Sunday and 7:30 p.m. daily Monday through Wednesday. The services with Fletcher are entitled "Celebration of Pentecost."

Fletcher is a former North Carolina businessman.

Former Pastor To Speak

Hallmark Baptist Church, 2233 34th St., is holding a three-day meeting today through Sunday with Rev. Bert J. Homer as speaker.

Services are being held at 7:30 p.m. Friday through Sunday.

Rev. Homer is a former pastor of the 25th Street Baptist Church in Lubbock and has been in the ministry for 27 years. He is presently in fulltime evangelism and has preached throughout the nation. He is affiliated with the Baptist Bible Fellowship of Springfield, Mo.

Pastor of Hallmark Baptist Church is Rev. Jay Bowen, a graduate of Baptist Bible College in Springfield..

Dee Anna Davis is featured as a singer at the new church.

Field Day Set For Saturday

Girls in grades one through six from churches in the Lubbock Baptist Association will be participating in a field day at the Plains Baptist Assembly Saturday near Floydada.

Girls will compete in seven different events during the day and winners will receive trophies at a closing inspirational service.

Registration for the event begins at 9 a.m. Saturday. Mrs. Pat Stringer from Post, is directing the activities.

Baptist Association Sponsoring Banquet

The Lubbock Baptist Association R.A. Sports Award Banquet will be held at 7 p.m. today in Oakwood Baptist Church.

R.A. Boys will receive awards earned in the football, basketball, track, and field day competition through the year.

A special award will be made to the Boy of the Year during the banquet.

First Christian Plans Special Summer School

First Christian Church, 2323 Broadway, is sponsoring a special eight-week summer school for under-achievers.

Parent information sessions will be held May 26 and June 2, from 9 a.m. to noon both days.

Designed for students ages nine to 15 years old, the "School of Successful Learning (S.O.S.)" will begin classes June 11 and will be conducted at the church from 8:30 a.m. until noon, five days a week.

The parent information sessions May 26 and June 2 also will have testing for prospective students.

The school will be under the direction of Mrs. Georgia Barham and Mrs. Marlene Moore and will provide basic studies in reading, creative writing and math, modeled after the University of California at Los Angeles Learning Lab.

It will be a program of accelerated learning, conducted with a pleasant, positive approach with no criticism, according to a church spokesman. It is planned to help discouraged under-achievers find that they can learn and achieve, he added.

Testing will be employed both at the beginning and end of school to prove results, the spokesman said. Weekly achievement certificates, as well as end-term report cards, will be given.

A fee schedule based on the family's ability to pay has been designed with fees ranging from 50 cents to $6 per pupil per day.

Additional information on the school may be obtained by calling the church office at 763-1995 or Mrs. Barham at 792-9527 after 5 p.m.

Mrs. Anderson Wins Usher's Contest

A Queen of the Usher Board at St. Matthew Baptist Church was held recently and Mrs. Freddie Anderson was the winner.

J.C. Anders won a portable television set in the contest.

Mrs. Emma Avery was first runnerup in the queen contest.

The contest raised a total of $1,203, which will be used for the church's building fund.

The contest, the first ever held at the local church, was sponsored by the Usher Board of St. Matthew Baptist Church.

CHURCH BRIEFS

World Evangelism will sponsor a West Texas Area barbecue tonight in the main banquet hall of the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center. Fellowship hour begins at 6 p.m. and dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m.

• • •

St. Christopher's Episcopal Church, 42nd Street and Elgin Avenue, will hold its 19th annual barbeque from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday. Food will be served continuously from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday at the church.

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM

The Newspaper Bible

Luke 16:29-31; 17:1-6

29 But Abraham said, 'The Scriptures have warned them again and again. Your brothers can read them any time they want to.'

30 The rich man replied, 'No, Father Abraham, they won't bother to read them. But if someone is sent to them from the dead, then they will turn from their sins.'

31 Then Abraham said, 'If they won't listen to Moses and the prophets, they won't listen even if someone rises from the dead.' "

CHAPTER 17

There will always be temptations to sin," Jesus said one day to His disciples, "but woe to the man who does the tempting.

2, 3 If he were thrown into the sea with a huge rock tied to his neck, he would be far better off than facing the punishment in store for those who harm these little children's souls. I am warning you!

Rebuke your brother if he sins, and forgive him if he is sorry.

4 Even if he wrongs you seven times every day and each time turns again and asks forgiveness, forgive him."

* * * * *

5 One day the apostles said to the Lord, "We need more faith; tell us how to get it."

6 "If your faith were only the size of a mustard seed," Jesus answered, "it would be large enough to uproot that mulberry tree over there and send it hurtling into the sea! Your command would bring immediate results!

Joggers Found Striving For Secular Salvation

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press Writer

Puffing, sweating, their faces flushed and strained, the joggers pound along the sidewalks and paths in swelling profusion. But the footfalls of time keep gaining on them.

Subconsciously, they're trying to get away from that overtaking crunch of age and years, says a Michigan State University professor, the Rev. Dr. Fred Graham, a long-time jogger himself.

They're "running scared," he adds. "It's an irrational response to a subconscious anxiety."

He says that the underlying, subconscious motive is to stave off the debilities of old age and terminal helplessness — a striving for a sort of "secular salvation."

"It's hopeless, of course," he said in an interview. "It won't work. The running can't make much final difference. But fancying that it will is the subconscious motivation, the hidden anxiety."

There's a bit of self-deception in it, he said. "We tend to hide the real motive from consciousness and pretend it's something else — such as to keep in shape or to be strong."

Graham, professor of religious studies who has researched the psychology of the jogging phenomenon, questioned about 100 runners over a five-year period, analyzing their fantasies while running and reasons for doing it.

To the question, "How long do you plan to run?" he said he became disturbed by the common theme of the replies, such as:

"I plan to run until I drop." "They'll have to carry me out feet first."

Graham concluded that the deeper, subconscious drive was fear of what he calls "thanatech," coined from a combination of the Greek word for death, "thanatos," and "tech" for modern medical technology which can extend life in terminal, incapacitated states.

Noting that the running craze began to get popular about eight years ago at the same time "thanatech" began to have real impact, he said, "Running makes it seem, at least, that it will be a long time before senility and decay sets in."

He said the determination to "run until I drop" displays a quest for a kind of "instrumented salvation" in a modern atmosphere which tends to see human life as mechanically self-determined.

Graham, 48, a pioneer jogger who started the habit 16 years ago, long before it became popular, and who runs three to five miles each noontime, says the sport takes on various rituals, such as doing warm-up calisthenics, wearing the prescribed clothing and shoes and reading magazines and manuals on running.

He singled out three categories of runners, namely:

—The "competitor" runners. These develop a compulsion about it, who keep straining to increase their time and distance and who enter races in which "people really hurt themselves."

—The "pure health freaks" category. These are people dedicated to extensive discussions with other runners of such things as longevity, heartbeat rates, weight loss and other bodily effects of running.

—The "quiet-time runners," for whom the pain of running and the shower afterward constitute a kind of "daily baptism and newness of life."

Of the competitive style runners, Graham said:

"It's not healthy to go out and agonize about it that way. It's demonic to be so driven, always trying for a little farther, a little longer. That approach nearly always ends up being harmful, bringing on asthma, foot injuries and back problems."

He said anxiety about terminal helplessness is what actually keeps all three types of runners on the move.

"Modern medical technology has put this anxiety right up there with basic human anxieties about death, guilt, meaninglessness and loneliness," he said.

He said the anxiety-driven "irrational" aspects of running to ward off terminal incapacity show up in various ways, such as runners who become highly irritable if unable to keep a regular date with road or track.

Others prolong respiratory ailments by refusing to rest a few days from running, he said, or become fanatics about keeping it up and develop crippling leg or foot problems.

"It can be harmful," he said. "But it also can be beneficial if it's regarded simply as a healthy appreciation of one's body, counterbalancing our sedentary living, and a time for private reflection.

"If you go into it freely with your eyes and mind open, without compulsions about it and don't allow it to take you over and deceive you as a conquest of old age and death, it can be healthy both for body and spirit."

Thompson Hall Evacuated

Texas Tech's Thompson Hall was evacuated for nearly an hour Thursday afternoon after a steam pipe in the building's basement ruptured.

Although one man was in the basement when the six-inch pipe burst, no one was injured in the accident.

The pipe that broke carried 90 pounds of steam pressure , said M.S. Buckberry, director of building maintenance and utilities.

"When steam from the fractured line hit the ceiling, it sounded like an explosion," said Buckberry.

Elmer Teal, an employee of the college's maintenance department was working in the tunnel of the basement near the steam pipes.

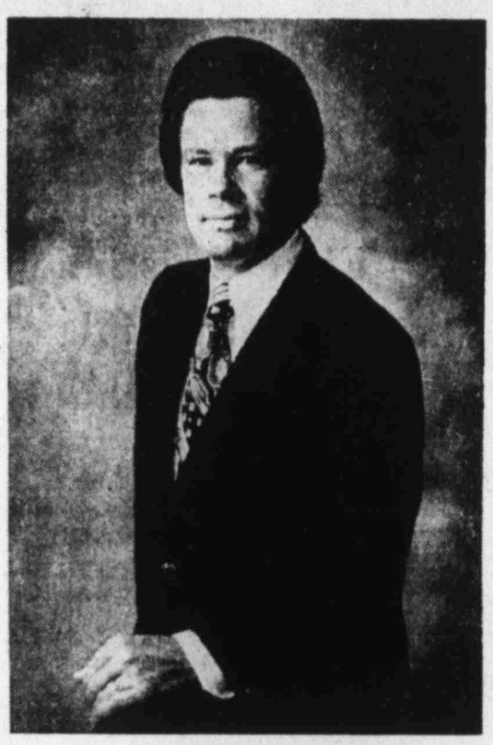

Buckberry said water and electricity services to the building have been restored and the building will be open today.

Thompson Hall houses the medical school's teaching clinic and the student hospital.

A man alone in a field . . . making the field ready for spring planting . . . perhaps is closer to God than he realizes.

The field didn't "just happen." The earth didn't "just happen." Those fruit trees, laden with blossoms, didn't choose to bloom just because they wanted to look pretty.

Stop and think about it. In the natural order of life, little is left to chance. There is a precision about the very rotation of the earth itself. There is a miracle embedded in each blade of grass.

All about us is the unmistakable evidence of Creation, by a Master Hand. The man in the field is, in some ways, closer to this creation than many of us, yet he too may very well be unaware of it. We can all capture or recapture this awareness by going to church regularly.

GUARDED SITUATION — Roy McLemore from Houston sits on a bench in Riohacha, Columbia Thursday with the Columbian soldiers guarding him. McLemore was held for ransom by Indians for 17 days, escaped and was arrested by Columbian troops. McLemore, a pilot, and his companion William Spradley, a member of the Houston fire department, are being held on charges of illegal entry into the country. Spradley has been under arrest in a Riohacha hospital with a bullet in his back since the pair had engine trouble and were forced to land in Columbia. (AP Laserphoto)

Pilot Ready For Church After Surviving Ordeal

RIOHACHA, Colombia (AP) — Texas pilot Roy McLemore says he was certain his kidnappers were going to kill him, but God saved him and he's ready for church after being robbed, shot at and held nine days in the broiling desert and seven more in a house full of screaming kids.

McLemore wept after he escaped from the house in the northern Colombian town of Maicao and jumped into an army jeep.

"I've never been a religious man," he said, "but I think I'm going to start going to church."

McLemore's escape Tuesday didn't mean the end of his problems. He was put in a steaming, fly-infested jail in this waterfront hangout for Colombian dope smugglers and charged with illegally entering the country's airspace. His co-pilot, Houston fireman William Spradley, is hospitalized with a bullet in the back and faces the same charge.

McLemore was interviewed Thursday by The Associated Press in the back of a pickup truck while being taken from an army base to the jail. This was his story:

He and Spradley, who flies in his spare time to make extra money, were en route from Miami to Venezuela April 29 to pick up some oil-drilling bits when engine trouble forced them to land on Colombia's Guajira Peninsula.

Tons of marijuana are flown out daily to the United States from desert airstrips on the peninsula, and rival gangs there frequently shoot American pilots if they land at the wrong airstrip and rob them of the thousands of dollars in cash they carry to pay for the drug.

"People came from every direction, grabbing our billfolds, watches, and things out of the plane, too, even the spare oil. They were like starving people who find some meat.

"Bill and I jumped into one of the trucks these people had and took off. I was driving and two other trucks were chasing us. Ours got bogged down and one of the men ran up to Bill's side and fired four shots -bam, bam, bam, bam. Bill got hit. There was blood all over the place. Then they pulled us out and threw us down on the sand. Bill's blood was all over me so I guess they thought they had shot me, too, but I wasn't hit. Anyway they drove off and left us there to die, they thought."

They lay in the desert for 30 or 45 minutes when they saw vehicle lights approaching.

"I thought it was them coming back to finish the job. I thought we were goners for sure. These people got out and stood around us jabbering for maybe half an hour and it finally dawned on me that they weren't the same people."

The people were Indians, and McLemore used the few words of Spanish he knew trying to get Spradley to a hospital. The Indians loaded the wounded man into the back of a pickup truck and took him to a clinic in a village about two hours way. Then they took McLemore to "a hut, a little shack made out of sticks. They gave me water and put up a hammock for me that night.

"The next day three tough-looking characters showed up and in some broken English told me they wanted to know who in the United States they could call to demand a ransom. Then they took me to another shack about an hour and a half away and stuck me in a goat-killing pen with nothing but cactus around as far as you could see."

McLemore said he was there nine days. Whenever his two guards heard one of the army helicopters that make regular trips over the desert "they would whip out their guns and make me run into cactus and hide as long as half an hour. I got cactus spines into me all over, and God, it was hot."

But McLemore said in general he was treated and fed well. His captors brought him ice water from a nearby shack, cold soft drinks, cans of meat, crackers, bread and cigarettes.

"Then some men came and gave me back everything from my billfold except the money," he went on. "There was a blank check of mine and they made me sign it for $100,000."

After nine days he was taken to a house about two hours away in the small town of Maicao, another haven for smugglers close to the Venezuelan border.

"It was three rooms and there were 10 people living there. I guess six of them were kids and there was one old woman. They were very nice to me and I think the kidnappers, at least from the way they seemed to be threatening the family, had threatened to kill all of them if they didn't keep me there.

"Two of the people would sleep in the kitchen and the other eight slept on pieces of cardboard in my room. There was a sheet they draped from the ceiling to separate my part of the room from theirs. I never saw any guns among the people who were living there. It was only the other men who came almost every day and threatened to kill me if something wasn't done to ransom me who had guns."

Overton South Wins Second Panel Vote

the "only Victorian residence in the neighborhood," he said, and the so-called Cox House at 2223 13th St., is important because of its unique stonework.

Residents told commission members the houses are historically significant because of events which occurred. Others added that because Lubbock is a young city, it must preserve what remnants of a heritage remain for future generations, even though structures may not compare to older, more significant monuments in other cities.

Masonry contractor Cecil Schluder, who worked with the stone mason responsible for the Cox House, said he knew of no one who could duplicate the work on the stone house and the craftsmanship would be forever lost if the structure were moved.

Bob Moody, an attorney for the church, said that First Baptist has "more at stake as far as an investment of dollars" in Overton South than anyone else and wants "something that's pretty."

Moody said the houses would be moved and restored on other lots in Lubbock, but Overton South residents told him that was like "moving George Washington's house from Mount Vernon."

To that, Moody countered with the example of restoration of ranch and farm homes at the Texas Tech University Ranching Heritage Center.

He also contended that neither of the houses under consideration are particularly significant, architecturally or historically, noting that both structures rated at medium significance in a survey of Lubbock architecture and historic structures.

Moody noted that the church is faced with perpetually maintaining both houses for the public at its own expense.

Hunt urged the commission to "proceed slowly" and likened the dispute between the neighbors and the church to early day Lubbock "cowmen who said it wouldn't do to bring in farmers."

He said both owners who sold their houses to the church "knew when they sold to the church what it would be used for."

The Zoning Board of Adjustment, however, apparently felt the church had adequate parking and had alternatives to tearing down residences for additional space.

Church representatives based their need for the additional parking space on proposed construction of a Family Life Building east of the church sanctuary — plans never revealed until Thursday's meeting.

Following the unanimous decision, Moody said it violates constitutional guarantees of freedom of religion and intimated the church may appeal the decision to district court.

Lubbock Jury Gives Robber Probation

A 19-year-old Lubbock man Thursday was convicted of the Feb. 15 aggravated robbery of a Lubbock meat market and given a 10-year probated sentence.

The 140th District Court jury took two hours to find Ralph Eugene Evans Jr. of 3314 E. Cornell St. guilty and 20 minutes to set his punishment.

Defense attorney Bob Jones of Lubbock had asked probation for Evans who had not been been previously convicted of a felony.

Assistant Criminal District Attorney Mark McBride asked a 35-year sentence.

Robert Woodard, a minister at Sunset Church of Christ, testified that Evans had been taking part in Bible classes and would, in his opinion, be a good risk for probation.

McBride asked a stiff sentence as a deterrent to possible future armed robberies in Lubbock County, saying, "We have order in society because of fear of the law."

Evans claimed in testimony Thursday morning that he was not one of the two men who held up Newburn's Meat Market at 215 Quirt Ave. at shotgun-point.

The second man charged in the case, Ricky Don Thornton, 20, of 2207 Cornell St., is scheduled for trial Monday.

William F. Russell, a Lubbock attorney, was foreman of the Evans jury.

Library Board Sees Plans

tage of the northeast and north sun," he said.

Other features of the library include a drive-in book drop and a 50-car capacity parking area.

The building will be equipped with furniture from the Godeke branch library, which will be turned into a senior citizens center. McKay said new furniture was not in the budget for the new library, but said the Godeke furniture was "substantial" furniture and made of "good, solid wood."

The project architect noted that the new branch library "sits well with the other buildings, architecturally. The materials are in keeping with that of the surrounding residential houses and other buildings."

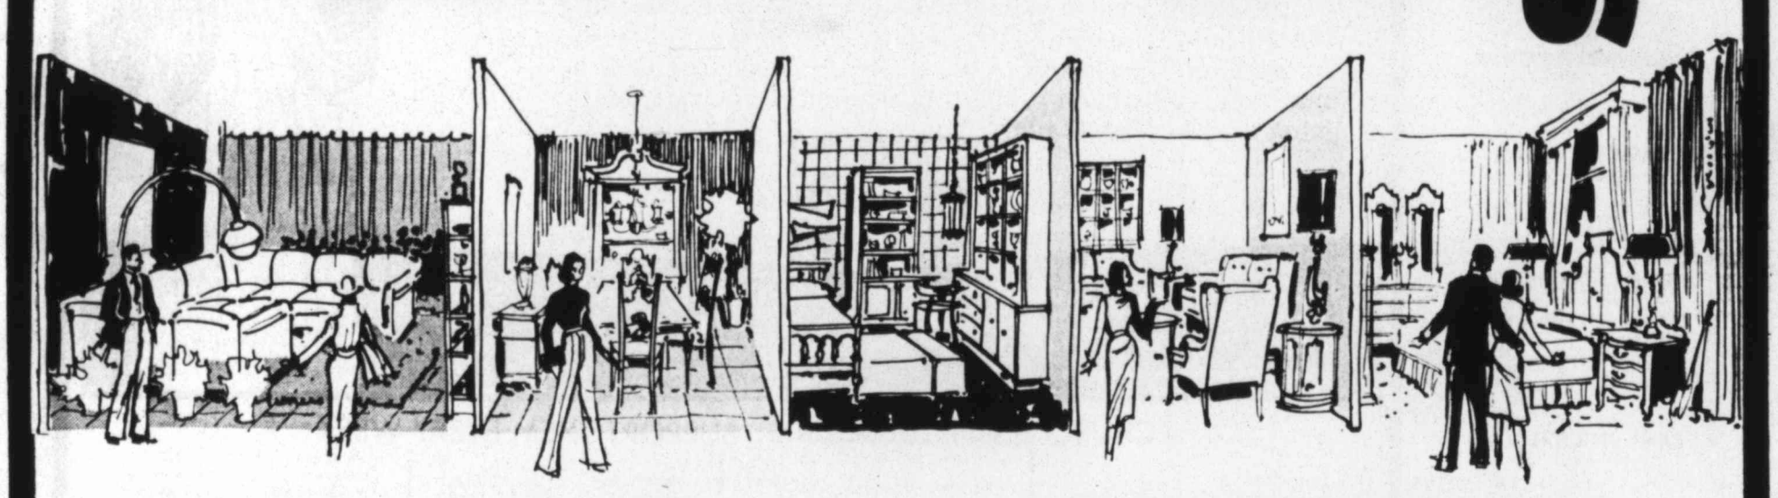

The project will be ready for groundbreaking in late summer or early fall, said McKay.

In other library business, Nan Davidson, director of children's services for the library, announced that the library will utilize a state children's summer reading program titled "In Search of Texas Treasures" for six weeks beginning June 4.

Participants will read materials concerning 10 different areas in the state that have been designated as having historical value and record the materials they've read in a reading log.

Also Louise Cummins was reappointed by the board to represent the Lubbock library system on the West Texas Library Systems council.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC
NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that under the provisions of Article 51.127 of the Water Code of the State of Texas, the Board of Directors of the LUBBOCK COUNTY WATER CONTROL AND IMPROVEMENT DISTRICT NO. 1, of Lubbock County, Texas, on May 7, 1979, adopted ORDINANCE XIII and that a substantive statement of the provisions thereof, is hereby published to comply with Article 51.129 of the Water Code of the State of Texas and the same shall be in full force and effect from and after May 25, 1979.

ORDINANCE NO. XIII

AN ORDINANCE REPEALING ORDINANCE NO. VI, ADOPTED ON AUGUST 4, 1961, AND ORDINANCE NO. XI, ADOPTED ON APRIL 16, 1970, AND ENACTING A NEW ORDINANCE TO BE KNOWN AS ORDINANCE NO. XIII WHICH RELATES TO THE FORM AND BASIC PROVISIONS OF THE GROUND LEASE AGREEMENT TO BE USED HEREAFTER IN LEASING LOTS OWNED BY THE LUBBOCK COUNTY WATER CONTROL AND IMPROVEMENT DISTRICT NO. 1, LUBBOCK COUNTY, TEXAS, SITUATED ON THE BUFFALO SPRINGS LAKE AREA OF SAID DISTRICT IN LUBBOCK COUNTY, TEXAS, DESIGNATING THE MAINTENANCE OF AN APPROVED PLAT OF SAID LOTS, WHICH SHALL BE AMENDED FROM TIME TO TIME TO ADJUST FOR CHANGES IN THE SIZE AND AREA OF SAID LOTS AND THE BUILDING RESTRICTIONS WHICH SHALL BE PLACED THEREON, PROVIDING FOR THE DESIGN, MATERIALS AND CONSTRUCTION STANDARDS APPLICABLE TO ALL IMPROVEMENTS TO BE CONSTRUCTED THEREON; DECLARING IT TO BE UNLAWFUL FOR ANY PERSON, FIRM OR CORPORATION OR ASSOCIATION OF PERSONS TO CONSTRUCT ANY RESIDENTIAL BUILDING OR ADDITION OR ALTERATION THERETO, WITHOUT SECURING WRITTEN APPROVAL OF THE PLANS AND SPECIFICATIONS BY THE OFFICIAL DESIGNATED BY THE DISTRICT TO EXAMINE AND APPROVE ALL SUCH PLANS PRIOR TO THE COMMENCEMENT OF SUCH CONSTRUCTION OR TO USE OR OCCUPY SUCH BUILDING OR ADDITION OR ALTERATION THERETO, AFTER COMPLETION OF CONSTRUCTION WITHOUT WRITTEN APPROVAL, BY THE OFFICIAL DESIGNATED FOR SUCH PURPOSES; REQUIRING WRITTEN PERMIT PRIOR TO REMOVAL OF ANY FURNITURE, FIXTURES, LUMBER OR OTHER BUILDING MATERIALS FROM ANY BUILDING OR PREMISES WITHIN THE BUFFALO SPRINGS LAKE AREA; PROVIDING THAT ALL LEASES OF SUCH LOTS ARE FOR THE EXCLUSIVE USE BY THE TENANT FOR HIS IMMEDIATE FAMILY AS A PRIVATE RESIDENCE AND PROHIBITING THE CARRYING ON OF ANY BUSINESS OR COMMERCIAL ENTERPRISE THEREON AND PROHIBITING THE SUBLEASING OF ANY LOTS OR ANY IMPROVEMENTS THEREON AND PROHIBITING THE USE OF ANY SUCH LOT BY THE TENANT FOR PROFIT; ESTABLISHING THE METHOD OF RECORDING ASSIGNMENTS OR TRANSFERS OF SAID LOT LEASE AGREEMENTS AND RECORDING A SECURITY INTEREST IN SAID LEASE CONTRACT TO SECURE DEBTS OF THE TENANT; STIPULATING THAT UNDER THE GROUND LEASE CONTRACT THE TENANT SHALL MAINTAIN THE PREMISES IN A CLEAN AND ORDERLY CONDITION; PRESCRIBING A PENALTY FOR A VIOLATION OF THE AFFIRMATIVE PROVISIONS OF THIS ORDINANCE; PROVIDING A REPEALING CLAUSE; PROVIDING A SAVINGS CLAUSE; AND PROVIDING FOR PUBLICATION AND EFFECTIVENESS OF THIS ORDINANCE:

BE IT ENACTED AND ORDAINED BY THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF LUBBOCK COUNTY WATER CONTROL AND IMPROVEMENT DISTRICT NO. 1 OF LUBBOCK COUNTY, TEXAS.

Section 1: Existing Ordinances VI and XI are repealed completely. Ordinances XIII is enacted in substitution and in lieu of said Ordinances VI and XI and is in substance as follows:

ORDINANCE XIII

Section 1: Relates to the basic form and provisions of lease contracts which may be entered into by the District to lease building site lots situated within the Buffalo Springs Lake Area and the adoption and future amendments to the official plat of building site lots within said area by Parkhill, Smith and Cooper, Inc.

Section 2: Sets out conditions and limitations to be placed upon the leasing of said lots, designates and provides for the maintenance of a permanent record of the Tenants who lease said lots, the transfer of said lease contracts and the establishment of lien instruments covering the improvements and lease contract for security of debts of the Tenant; provides for the specific uses to be made of said lots by the Tenant under any such lease contract.

Section 3: Imposes conditions for the maintenance of the premises of each Tenant in a clean and orderly manner.

Section 4: Prohibits transfer of such leases and fixing of liens on the premises without properly recording the same with the District.

Section 5: Requires prior approval by the District as to the design, materials and construction standards for all improvements erected upon lots in the area and provides for injunctive process and/or suit for damages for violation of such standards.

Section 6: Requires prior approval of plans and specifications for residential buildings erected upon said lots.

Section 7: Requires approval by the District of completed structures erected upon such lots prior to use or occupancy.

Section 8: Requires a permit to be secured prior to removal of any building or furniture, fixtures, lumber or other materials from any residence or other building in the Buffalo Springs Lake area.

Section 9: Provides that the doing of any act forbidden to be done by the ordinance or the failure to do any act required to be done by the ordinance shall be deemed a Class C misdemeanor, which, in case of lawful conviction thereof, shall be punishable by the infliction of a fine, the amount of which combined with the cost of court, shall not exceed Two Hundred Dollars ($200.00) and each day during which any such violation shall continue shall constitute a separate offense.

Section 10: Repeals any ordinance or part thereof which may conflict with the provisions of this ordinance.

Section 11: Provides for a savings clause.

Section 12: Provides for method of publication and the effective date.

Such ordinance was adopted May 7, 1979, and the substance thereof as set out in this notice will be published on May 11th and May 18th in The Avalanche-Journal and shall become effective five days after the last publication thereof which will be May 25, 1979.

ISSUED this the 7th day of May, 1979.

Man's Body Found By Girlfriend

The body of a man who had been dead three days was discovered in his apartment by his girlfriend Thursday, police said.

The dead man, Herman G. Baca, 26, of 2305 5th St. No. 114, had been shot once in the head with a .22-caliber rifle, according to reports.

When police arrived at the apartment, they found Baca lying on his back on the bed. The rifle lay between his arms, facing his head, reports said.

The body was taken to Sanders Funeral Home. Justice of the Peace L.J. Blalack has not made a ruling in Baca's death.

A 26-year-old woman told police that she woke up naked in a trash dumpster Thursday morning after she was sexually assaulted by another woman about 1:30 a.m.

According to police, the victim had left her apartment early Thursday morning to take out the trash. As she left the trash dumpster and started back to her apartment, she was grabbed by two Mexican-American males, police said.

The woman told police that the two males, both in their early 20s, removed her clothes and held her down as a Mexican-American female, also in her early 20s, sexually assaulted her with an "artificial device," according to reports.

The victim told police she believed she was knocked unconscious and thrown in the trash dumpster, where she woke up about 9:30 a.m. Thursday.

The McCloud family appeared shaken, according to reports, when officers arrived at their 1721 E. First Place residence and were told a man shot at their front door about 11:30 p.m. Thursday.

Martha McCloud, 49, said the man, armed with a pistol, fired the weapon several times at the front entrance. No one was hit by the bullets, according to reports.

The suspect was described as a black man, "very tall," between 26 and 35 years old, and clad in a white shirt and maroon pants.

Police this morning were investigating a report of vandalism at the Beta Theta Pi Fraternity house at 2409 Broadway.

Reports show $1,000 worth of windows were broken at the house between 2 a.m. and 2:40 a.m. today. A nearby resident told police he heard the glass shattering and went outside to see a young white man run from the house and jump into a car before it sped off.

The neighbor said he got into his car and chased the vehicle, which was occupied by two men, described as tall, thin and between 18 and 25 years old.

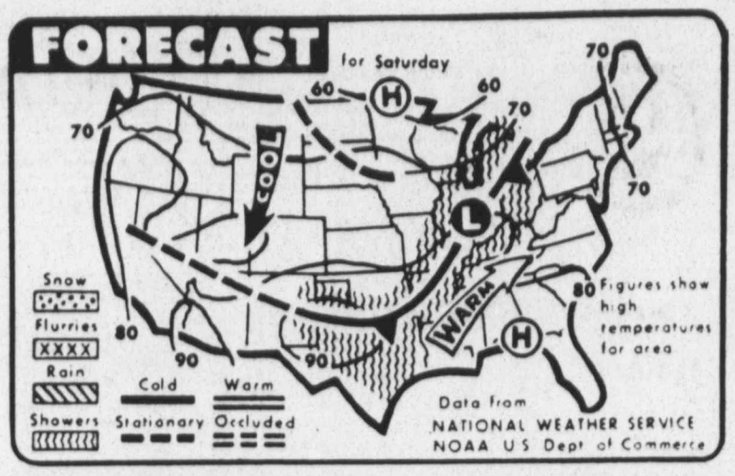

The witness lost the other car, but got the license plate number, which was traced back to a Texas Tech University student belonging to another fraternity.

In burglaries reported recently by Lubbock residents, Doug Jarvis of 2202 Main St., Apt. 131, said he came home about 3:45 a.m. today to find his place broken into and a television and stereo, totaling more than $700, stolen.

Kerry Rubin Gandy of 1503 24th Place told police his residence was burglarized shortly before 11 p.m. Thursday, resulting in the loss of his TV set, camera and rifle.

Ledia Brinoes of 3107 Jarvis St. told police she arrived home shortly after 11 p.m. Thursday and scared off three burglars in her home. However, before fleeing, the suspects were able to rip off more than a $1,000 in property, including stereo equipment, a .22-caliber pistol, jewelry and groceries.

Police followed footprints from the victim's home to a nearby residence. No arrests had been made by early today.

Driller Says Platform Extensively Repaired

HOUSTON (AP) — The ill-fated Ranger I oil drilling platform underwent extensive repair before it was towed into the Gulf of Mexico, where it collapsed May 10, apparently taking the lives of eight of the 34 workmen aboard, a driller has testified.

James W. Sasser, 27, of Bogue Chitto, Miss., told a Coast Guard board of inquiry Thursday the rig was in a Mobile, Ala., drydock from Feb. 15 to April 24, and underwent more repair later at Fouchon, La.

He said all three legs were cut off and worked on at Mobile, and the stern leg of the three-legged platform was cut off twice.

Witnesses testified earlier it was the collapse of the stern leg that sent the rig sprawling into the sea 12 miles south of Galveston. Five of the 34 men on board still are missing. Three bodies have been found, the latest on Thursday when the body of Walter K. Fontenot, 30, of Patterson, La., was discovered washed up on a beach near Matagorda, about 70 miles southwest of the collapsed rig.

Sasser told the board he was sitting on his bunk several hours before the rig's collapse when it "dropped down about a foot all at once."

He said he was told that a wedge on one of the legs had shifted, causing the jar, and that everything was all right.

When the rig collapsed, Sasser said he was in the galley and "the floor just went away from me...

"I tried to grab a table, a chair, the milk machine and couldn't touch anything as the water rose up over my waist. Nobody said anything. I guess everybody was stunned."

Sasser said he squirmed through a window that had been knocked out over the mess table, grabbed a staircase and climbed to the heliport, "where people were running crazily around everywhere looking for life jackets and anything that would float.

"They were scared and I was scared. I thought I was fixing to die."

Sasser grabbed a life jacket moments before he was washed off the rig by a wave. A tugboat picked him up.

Oil Rig Worker Recalls Fateful First Day On Job

GALVESTON (AP) — Lance Densing won't soon forget his first day on the job as a roustabout aboard an Atlantic Pacific Marine Corp. offshore oil rig in the Gulf of Mexico.

About three hours after Densing, a University of Mississippi sophomore, started his summer job on the rig last Thursday, it shuddered and seemed to settle in the water.

A few hours later, while Densing was aboard a suppy boat moored to the rig, a leg on the rig collapsed, sending the rig and 34 workmen plunging into the ocean. Six workmen still are missing and two bodies have been recovered.

"All I could think was 'Oh God what is happening?'" Densing said Thursday after testifying before a Coast Guard board of inquiry trying to determine the cause of the accident.

"I'll just say I was lucky," the youth said. "We were supposed to go back to the rig in about five minutes to eat," Densing said.

But before Densing and two other rig workmen could be transported back to the rig, Densing said he heard a loud pop, and looked up to see one end of the rig falling into the water.

As Densing watched in horror, the portion of the rig supported by the rear leg started falling toward the water. When the platform reached about a 45 degree angle, it broke off from the other two rig legs and fell, Densing said.

Densing said the crew living quarters, the area of the platform supported by the rear leg, hit the water first.

"It buoyed up out of the water and then started to sink," he said.

Densing said his first reaction was to cut the mooring lines loosing that held the supply boat to the sinking rig.

"At first we were just thinking of ourselves because we thought we were going down with the rig," Densing said. "But when we got the rope cut, we started doing everything possible to help those in the water."

The 19-year-old part-time worker said he would return to another offshore rig to work.

"I realize something like this doesn't happen every day," Densing said. "I'll go out on another rig if they let me. I may have a hard time sleeping though."

Sniper's Will Discovered In Bank

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Ira Attebery wrote a will April 22, five days before he sprayed thousands of Fiesta parade spectators with deadly gunfire. In the first line of the handwritten document, he wrote, "I am of sound mind."

Steve Gross, an attorney acting as temporary administrator for Attebery's estate, said Thursday that the document was discovered Tuesday in a safety deposit box at a local bank. It was written in ink on ordinary lined paper and dated April 22.

Attebery, 64, was under the influence of the powerful drug PCP — "angel dust" — when he killed two and wounded 30 from his parked motor home, the Bexar County medical examiner said after conducting toxicology tests on Attebery's body.

Relatives and acquaintances said Attebery had suffered paranoid delusions about police officers for several years.

Attebery had received psychiatric treatment from the Veterans Administration Hospital in Poplar Bluff, Mo., but was never admitted to a mental hospital, records show. From 1974 until 1977, he was regularly prescribed a "maintenance dose" of Thorazine, a powerful tranquilizer.

Twenty other spectators suffered injuries in the melee April 27. Six police officers were among the first wounded. Attebery, armed with 15 guns and hundreds of rounds of ammunition, killed himself after a furious exchange of gunfire with police.

Gross turned over the will to the Bexar County clerk's office as required by law, but no application for probate was filed. The will, therefore, isn't public record.

"I'm not going to probate it," said Gross. "First, I don't think any of the assets would go to the heirs because of all the damage suits. Second, it wouldn't be worth the trouble and expense to get someone down here from Missouri to prove up the handwriting."

Wrongful death suits have been filed by the families of Amalia Castillo, 49, and Ida Dollard, 27, the sniper's two victims. Three of the six wounded officers have also filed suit for damages.

Another probable reason for not probating the will is that it would be difficult to prove Attebery's claim to be of sound mind, said another attorney who asked not to be identified.

Gross said he will report in a court hearing next week the value of Attebery's car, motor home and guns. The attorney said he expects Attebery's possessions to be auctioned off in four or five weeks, with the proceeds going to the sniper's victims.

Gross said there was nothing unusual about Attebery's will. "He misspelled a few words, but that's all," he said.

He left his estate — his car, motor home, guns, an undetermined amount of money in a certificate of deposit and savings account and partial interest in 340 acres of land in his native Missouri— to his brothers, Ralph, Herman and Darrell.

The will is the only to be discovered thusfar, said Gross. Attebery had written another several years ago, but it is believed to have been destroyed, he said.

Organization Opens State Convention

EL PASO (UPI) — Despite the youngest median age — 20 — of any ethnic group, and the highest birth rate, the political clout of Hispanics in Texas has waned recently, says the state director of the League of United Latin American Citizens.

Ruben Bonilla Jr., completing his second year as leader of the nation's oldest Hispanic organization, made the observation Thursday as LULAC's 50th annual state convention opened.

The Corpus Christi attorney cited examples in El Paso, San Antonio and in his own hometown in which Hispanics saw their incumbent candidates lose political races recently.

With the need to make political inroads greater than ever, Bonilla said, LULAC Leaders instead have been forced to turn their attention to the administration of justice because of the deaths of "17 or 18" Mexican Americans while in the custody of law enforcement officers.

Although Hispanics now comprise nearly 20 percent of the Texas population and 6-7 percent nationwide, Bonilla said a recent Louis Harris poll showed most Americans find Hispanics "largely invisible" as a group. The poll also revealed that 62 percent of Americans believe Hispanics suffer no discrimination, Bonilla said.

He promised future efforts by Hispanic leaders would be directed toward getting Mexican-Americans to the polls to vote. In recent state and national elections, he observed, Hispanic votes were fragmented between Republican and Democrat candidates.

In the future, he said, Hispanics must join blacks and white liberals in "coalition politics" to combat "one of the most conservative eras in our nation's history."

Bonilla was critical of most bills before the current legislature and called them detrimental to Hispanics and the poor. Legislation that would raise home mortgage rates in the next years will hit poor Hispanics harder than most groups, Bonilla said, observing that Hispanics already are on "the periphery of home buying."

Delegates to the convention were expected to focus much of their attention during the final three days of the meeting on the Hispanic role in improving American-Mexican relations.

Accordigly, LULAC's deputy director, Ray Ramirez of San Antonio, announced Thursday that Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo apparently would accept an invitation to visit Texas in early June to discuss topics of "mutual interest" with Hispanic leaders.

Mysterious Virus Fatal To Dogs

By AJ News Services

Veterinarians say the virus is so new it doesn't have a name and it's as mysterious as Legionnaires disease. But they're sure of one thing. It's fatal to dogs and spreads quickly.

"It's an exquisitely new virus and in all my years as a veterinarian I have never heard or seen of anything like this," said Dr. T.E. Fritz of the Argonne National Laboratory near Chicago.

Last fall, the virus infected more than half of the 800 beagles used at the Argonne lab for experimentation. Ten dogs died, Fritz said.

Two local veterinarians contacted say they haven't seen a major breakout of the virus in the Lubbock area, adding no one has a definite diagnosis of the disease, which seems to affect mostly young puppies.

"I don't know if we have seen any such cases," said Dr. Tom Neal. "If so, they have been isolated cases."

He said there are two viruses that have been connected with the disease, the corona virus and the parvo virus.

"If we're talking about the same disease, we've seen only one case so far in Lubbock," said Dr. Jeffrey Cordell. "It's similar to a disease that affects cats.

"I don't want everyone to bring their dogs in for a vaccination because there is none."

Although the virus, identified only as one of many gastrointestinal viruses, is not believed to affect humans, several technicians in daily contact with the beagle colony experienced nausea, vomiting, diarrhea and related symptoms, which lasted for about three days, Fritz said.

The earliest symptom of the virus in dogs is vomiting, he said, followed by diarrhea that lasts for as long as a week. "There was a wide rang in severity of signs, and death occurred within 48 to 72 hours of the first vomiting in all but one case," Fritz said.

At the peak of the Argonne epidemic, Fritz said, more than 50 dogs were being treated daily with fluids and medication. Vterinarians agree, he said, that the best treatment consists of large doses of fluids and antibiotics.

Dr. Leon Carmichael of the Baker Institute for Animal Health at Cornell University, who first isolated the virus in Australia in November 1978, said a dog that contracts the virus will not necessarily die. But he warned that if treatment failed to reduce vomiting and diarrhea within a day or two, it was unlikely the dog would survive.

He said there was no certainty of the existence of the virus in the worldwide dog population before 1978. Since last summer, however, there have been outbreaks in the United States, Europe, South America and Canada, he said.

The virus, Carmichael said, is a variant or a mutant of cat distemper with similar symptoms. The virus was detected in minks in Canada 30 years ago, he said.

"It appears that the dog population in the U.S. is fairly susceptible to it right now," he added.

Although Carmichael said he was uncertain of the virus' origins, he speculated dogs that are boarded or hospitalized with large numbers of other dogs are more likely to contract the virus.

The virus also has shown up in dogs that haven't been kenneled or hospitalized, said Dr. Steve Pearl, a veterinarian in Schaumburg, northwest of Chicago. In September, he diagnosed the virus in a litter of newborn puppies, who then passed it on to their mother.

Although Carmichael said he has experimented with various vaccines including feline distemper vaccine, he cautioned that no existing drug has been approved by the federal government for use in dogs and that veterinarians who use cat distemper vaccines should be warned of possible adverse reactions.

Veterinarians say they are uncertain how widespread the mysterious virus is. Fritz speculated it may peak once the dog population builds up a significant resistance to the virus.

Gasohol Legislation Sent To Governor

By JOHNNY HOLMES
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The first of two crucial pieces of legislation legalizing the production of gasohol in Texas unanimously passed the Senate Thursday and was sent to Gov. Bill Clements' office.

"We're almost there," declared Rep. Dan Kubiak of Rockdale, the bill's sponsor, after witnessing its uncontested passage in the Senate. "It looks like our legislators agree that we have to help ourselves in this fuel crunch, and I'm very glad to see we're willing to do what we can. But we're not through yet."

Kubiak's bill, HB 1803, provides for $15 million in state funds for loans to persons, cooperatives or companies wishing to develop gasohol production facilities. Those loans, to be administered through the Texas Industrial Commission, would be limited to $25,000 per individual and $500,000 per group.

At a recent "Gasohol Day" rally in Austin, Clements proclaimed his strong support for the gasohol legislation, but issued no formal comment Thursday after the bill was delivered to his office.

The second gasohol bill considered crucial to the future of gasohol in the state also made progress Thursday, successfully emerging from the Senate State Affairs Committee.

HB 1986, co-sponsored by Kubiak and Rep. Bill Keese of Somerville, is expected to be voted on by the full Senate sometime next week, according to Chuck Dean, Kubiak's legislative assistant.

In its basic form, HB 1986 provides for the manufacture of alcohol for use as a motor fuel, but because it has been altered and amended several times, it must be re-approved by the House even if the Senate passes it.

The bill passed the House 126 to 1 its first time through and though the changes have been numerous, observers say none appear particularly troublesome in either house.

As it stands, the bill now allows anyone to apply for alcohol manufacture permits but forbids the production of beverage-quality alcohol.

The bill was passed from the committee Wednesday following an impromptu meeting between representatives of the Amstar Corn Sweetening Plant near Dimmitt, the Midwest Solvents Corp., which has proposed to build a major gasohol plant near Santa Rosa, the Licensed Liquor Distributors, a dozen senators and representatives and House Speaker Bill Clayton.

Staff Checking Aquifer Water

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Edwards Underground Water district officials will help city officials determine if arsenic from a weed-killing chemical used on subdivision roadbeds is endangering the Edwards Aquifer, San Antonio's only source of water.

Thomas P. Fox, general manager of the district, said Thursday that his staff members would be checking water quality data collected by the U.S. Geological Survey to determine if arsenic levels are higher than acceptable.

He added that no evidence has yet been found to show arensic levels are too high.

San Antonio officials became concerned about the possibility of pollution after rancher Arthur Garnand in nearby Lytle said several of his cattle had died from sodium arsenite blown across his pasture from a nearby subdivision.

Garnand said he has not been able to use the land since 1977. The cattle began dying in July 1974, he said.

An Environmental Protection Agency report on the cattle deaths quoted conversations with Garnand and others without reaching a conclusion about whether arsenic killed the cattle. An EPA official said Wednesday there is no evidence the chemical was used improperly.

Commissioners Approve Youth Center Plans

Lubbock County Commissioners approved final plans for the newly named Lubbock County Youth Center after an architect's presentation Thursday.

Commissioners also voted to open construction bids on the center July 3. Projected costs on the facility, which will be located on North University Avenue near Loop 289 and will have a capacity of 36 persons, run to $1,127,463.

Architectural plans and related documents were drawn up at a cost to the county of $40,000. It is estimated the facility will require one year to build.

In other business during their second meeting this week, commissioners approved a request by the state to use state funds for building improvements to the county-owned building located at 800 E. Broadway Ave.

The improvements would allow handicapped persons greater access to the building, commissioners said. The building presently is used by the Texas Department of Human Resources. Commissioners also approved an extension of their use of the building until 1982.

The commission's next meeting will be May 29, when they will give final consideration to a new telephone system for all Lubbock County facilities.

TODAY'S STOCK PRICES

Mart Pauses Following Sharp Rally

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, pausing after Thursday's sharp rally.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which jumped 14.47 Thursday for its biggest gain in seven weeks, slipped back .09 to 842.86 by noontime today.

Gainers held a 5-3 lead over losers in the broad tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Thursday's upsurge was attributed to strength in the dollar and hopes that tentative signs of slowing economic activity might eventually lead to lower interest rates.

But a less favorable portent on the interest-rate outlook came at Thursday's close when the Federal Reserve reported a rise in the money supply.

Brokers noted that an expanding money supply tends to lessen the chance of any early move by the Federal Reserve to encourage interest rates to decline.

Squibb Corp. led the active list, down ⅛ at 28¾. A 250,000-share block traded at 28½.

American Credit 1½ to 49⅜ following Federal Reserve approval of the company's acquisition by Barclay's Bank.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index rose .09 to 56.32. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .91 at 179.75.

Volume on the Big Board came to 13.30 million shares at noontime, up from 12.67 million at the same point Thursday.

GROWING OLDER

Seniors Deserve Library Services

By LOU COTTIN

We seniors have a right to expect — and demand — more imaginative services from our public libraries. If we can't get to the books, the books must come to us.

That means outreach. It means closer contact between libraries and senior clubs and centers.

That calls for efforts to locate shut-ins and taking them the pleasures of reading. It requires that books be placed into the hands of the elderly in nursing homes and health-care facilities. It may even require reading to them.

It may involve providing books written in Spanish, French, German or Yiddish as well as large-type books and "talking books" for the blind. And it may include mailing books to the home-bound.

Everybody can help in programs of this kind. Churches, synagogues, offices of the aging and senior volunteers (40 million of them across the country) will lend a hand.

Library services for the aging began back in 1941 at the Cleveland Public Library.

By 1946, the library had pioneered a program know as the "Live Long and Like It Library Club." Its success proved that public libraries can be helpful to seniors.

In many areas, library outreach workers — sometimes with the help of trained volunteers — already locate lonely and isolated older citizens and bring them back into the mainstream of life.

They assess the reading, educational and social needs of the people and prescribe accordingly. They may refer them to welfare and social services for the aged. Or they may introduce them to senior clubs and centers.

In the process, they spread more than culture. They spread love and kindness.

In Milwaukee, outreach workers go door to door to find older people and explain library services to them.

Detroit's Operation Main-stream uses bookmobiles to visit areas with large concentrations of older people. Services are provided to homebound and institutionalized elders.

Library service to the homebound was deemed so valuable in Los Angeles that older people offered to continue the program under the guidance of a volunteer librarian when the program lost government funding.

In Rhode Island, older adults review books for their peers.

Volunteers in New Hampshire record local newspapers, church services and school and civic events on cassette tapes for shut-ins.

In Tacoma, Wash., a phone call connects library patrons to a computer that explains a variety of information and recreation programs, including the Senior Humanities Program.

But many libraries believe that when they have set up a revolving book collection at a senior center they have done their job. Not so!

As these reports show, the library can make a large contribution to our lives. Such a revolving library should be a beginning — not an end — of library services to seniors.

Library personnel should meet regularly with seniors to find out general and personal preferences in books.

We seniors should also meet among ourselves. That way we can clarify the range of our interests for the librarians and guide them accordingly.

For example, every senior club or center should have an active, thoughtful book or library committee. Such a committee would visit regularly with library personnel to outline the kinds of books and services seniors want.

From this process would follow a better understanding between our public libraries and us.

Too many young and middle-aged people — librarians among them — fail to understand the changes that have come about among seniors.

They may accept the stereotype of us as Whistler's mother, sitting uncomfortably in rocking chairs. They may not realize that we in no way resemble that stupid old couple from Carol Burnett's offensive sketches.

Senior leadership and programming have improved dramatically over the years. In most good senior centers and clubs, crafts, games and recreation are no longer the be-all and end-all. Nor are we sitting around showing one another pictures of our grandchildren.

We are aware of the facts and conditions of our lives. We talk about the issues of the day. We are thoughtful people.

Our centers are not places to hide from life. They are places for cultural as well as social activities.

We have surprises fr the librarians. Once they start working with us instead of for us, they will learn how alert we are, how exciting we can be.

'New King James Bible' Fundamentalist In View

DALLAS (AP) — An updated King James New Testament, with a decidedly fundamentalist-view, has been introduced amid predictions it will replace the "Revised Standard Version" a the predominant text in protestant pews.

"The New King James Bible," edited by the Rev. Arthur Farstad of Dallas and published by Thomas Nelson Inc. of Nashville, Tenn., was introduced in New York this week.

The work is expected to appeal primarily to ultra-conservative protestants who have clung to the King James Version published in 1611.

"We have applied the best of both Greek and English scholarship to preserving and enhancing the King James Version for 20th Century readers," Farstad said in New York.

Farstad, a former faculty member at Dallas Theological Seminary, headed a group of more than 100 conservative scholars and pastors who worked on the New King James Bible during the past four years.

He said the version follows a traditional — "even fundamentalist" — interpretation of scripture, and counters the more moderate Revised Standard Version that was published by Thomas Nelson in 1946.

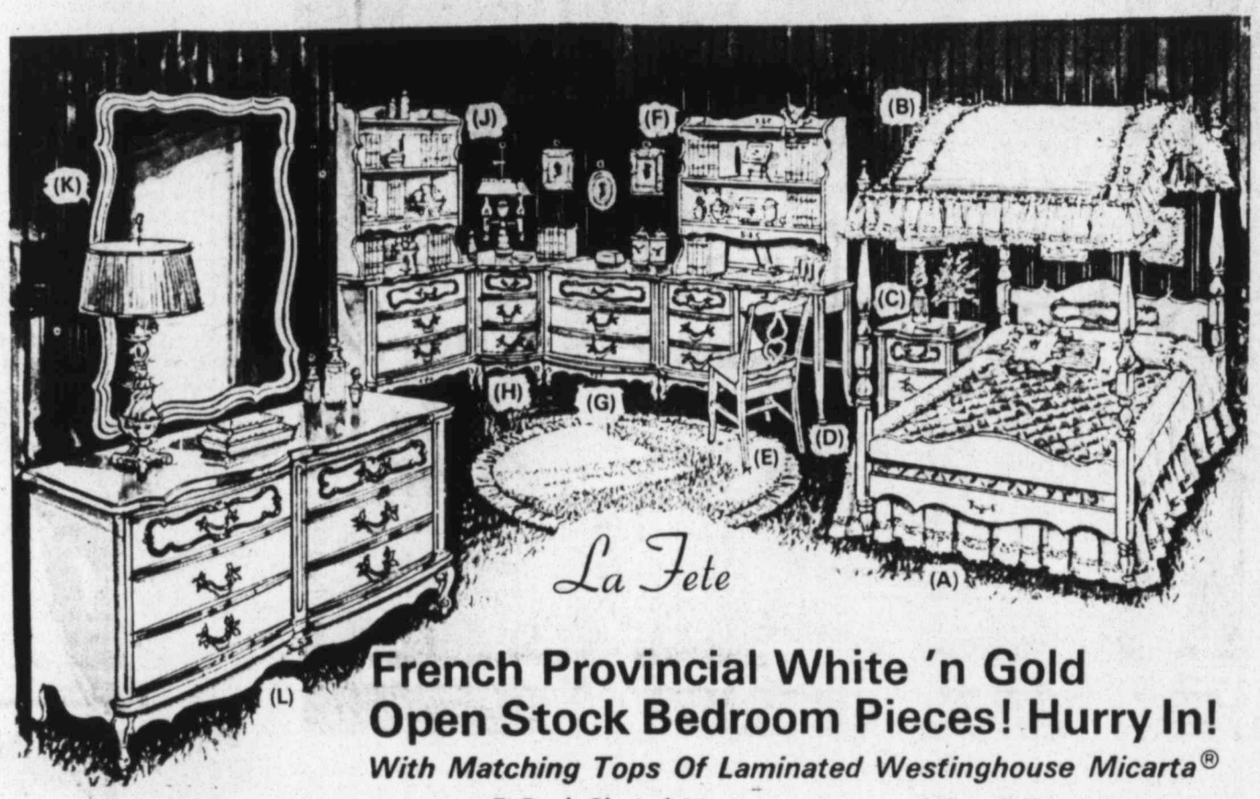

The new work describes homosexuals as effeminate and ignores recent campaigns to eliminate "sexist" language from scriptures. It also portrays Jesus Christ in terms most familar to fundamentalist groups.

The publisher predicts sales of the new work, which will be available in book stores by late June, will reach 5 million the first year.

About 25 million copies of the the Revised Standard Version have been sold and more than 500 million copies of the King James Version have been sold in its 368-year history.

Work has begun on a New King James Old Testament, and Farstad said the project should be completed within three years.

Sonics Sink Suns For Western Crown

SEATTLE (AP) — Power, poise, balance, a good bench and luck.

The Phoenix Suns agree that Seattle has all those ingredients and that's why the SuperSonics are in the National Basketball Association finals — and not the Suns.

"It just shows you it takes more than one or two men to make a basketball team. If you have 11 men playing in harmony, you can be successful," said a happy Seattle forward John Johnson after the Sonics edged the Suns 114-110 Thursday night to win their second straight Western Conference title.

The triumph gave the Sonics a 4-3 edge in the best-of-seven series and sends them into the NBA final series against the winner of tonight's Eastern Conference championship game between the defending champion Washington Bullets and the San Antonio Spurs.

If the Bullets win tonight, they will become only the third team in NBA history to overcome a 3-1 deficit and win a seven-game playoff series. Only the 1968 Boston Celtics and the 1970 Los Angeles Lakers have done it.

'The Spurs had two chances to put us away and they didn't do it," Hayes said. "Now it's our chance and we're going to take advantage of it. You can look for 1,000 percent effort."

In their first appearance in the championship finals last season, the Sonics lost to the Bullets in seven games.

It took a pair of Jack Sikma free throws with two seconds remaining Thursday night to preserve Seattle's win in the rugged and emotional series finale before a Kingdome crowd of 37,562 — the second biggest in NBA playoff history.

"Wow, what a nightmare that would have been if we lost it," said Sikma, the Sonics's 6-foot-11 second-year center who finished with a game and career-high 33 points and 11 rebounds.

Sikma was referring to a seemingly insurmountable 100-85 Sonic lead with 6:04 left in the game that dwindled to just two points before it was over.

An 8-0 Suns run cut Seattle's lead to 105-101 with 2:07 to play. Dennis Johnson followed with seven straight free throws for a 112-104 Sonic cushion with just 20 seconds left.

Walter Davis hit a basket for Phoenix and then stole the ball from Sonic reserve Joe Hassett and fed Pal Westphal for a jumper with eight seconds left. Another Seattle eserve, Wally Walker, lost the next possession, again to Davis. Westphal scored again to cut the lead to two points and was fouled by Walker.

Westphal had two chances to make one shot. He intentionally banged his first shot off the backboard, hoping a Sun player would grab the rebound. But Sikma came up with the carom and was fouled by Don Buse.

Sikma, with three chances to make two shots, missed the first but sank the other two.

"You're still in the ball game until the game is over," said Phoenix Coach John MacLeod. "The free throw situation was to hit the backboard, then hit the rim on the second one and hope we could get it back and make a shot."

One of the tell-tale signs in the series, rebounding, again went to the Sonics, this time 48-33.

"I think power has prevailed," said Phoenix center Alvan Adams, who returned to the lineup for the first time since suffering a badly sprained ankle in Game 3.

"Watching Washington and Seattle play last year, there was a lot of power and strength. It has been proved power prevails. They killed us on the boards again."

"Maybe we were pounding the boards so hard they thought we had six or seven players out there," said guard Dennis Johnson, who had 26 points. "We have a team that isn't the best shooting team. We can shoot, but when we miss we pound the boards because that's our next chance."

"Tonight was a big game . . . ," admitted Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkens. "We played a great team, one of the best in the league. But I'm happy to say we're going for the title and not them."

Sikma, who broke out of a terrible shooting slump with 21 points in Seattle's victory last Sunday in Phoenix that forced a seventh game, said he likes the Sonics' chances in the championship round.

"I think we can win the NBA championship," he said. "I thought we could win it last year. I think these last two games may spur us on and carry us over the hump in the finals."

Monterey Hosts Pampa In Bidistrict Playoffs

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

At the Monterey fieldhouse Thursday afternoon, booking passage on a flight to El Paso proved to be as easy as the Plainsmen winning the first bidistrict game with the Pampa Harvesters.

Today, the Plainsmen and the Harvesters will conclude their best two-of-three game series at Lowrey field. If two games are necessary, the deciding game will follow.

Monterey will bring a 1-0 lead into the today's action after winning the opener in Pampa 10-3. The winner of today's series will move on to regional competition against the winner of the El Paso Austin-El Paso Ysleta contest.

Monterey will bring a 25-7 record into the competition, while Pampa sports a 19-6 mark.

"We're not overconfident at all," said Monterey coach Bobby Moegle. "We're just going down to El Paso to scout the series. I'll say this, it's going to be hard for them (Pampa) to win two games here."

But Pampa coach Steve Scott believes the Harvesters are still alive for the bidistrict crown and will pitch Rick Dougherty (8-1) to try and even the series.

"I have a lot of confidence in him," said Scott. " We're going to have to give him more offensive support than we produced in the first game against though."

In 63 innings of work, Dougherty has good control. The Pampa righthander has struckout 67 batters and only walked 27.

"Dougherty has been clocked with a harder fastball than Steve Stout (the pitcher Pampa threw in the first contest)," said Scott. "Rick has been clocked at 88 miles per hour."

The Plainsmen will counter with Steve Coleman (6-1). The Monterey righthander hasn't dominated the hitters as well as Dougherty giving up 41 walks in 51 innings of pitching, but has only allowed 35 hits.

"I really don't know how hard Coleman can throw," said Moegle. "We don't have a pitcher on our staff that throws hard enough to get a reading on the radar gun."

But what Moegle does recall is how hard first baseman-designated hitter Tom Bevins slugged a home run to left center field to blow open the first contest in the third inning.

Bevins, who carried a .438 average to plate, put the game out of reach 6-0 when he sent a fastball out of the park for a two-run homer.

"I thought it might have a chance to get out of the park when I hit it," recalled Bevins. "I really wasn't going for a home run. I was down on the count and moved back a little in the box and chocked up on the bat just a bit trying only to make contact."

Bevins is confident that the Plainsmen won't have any trouble hitting Dougherty.

"Watching him taking infield the other day, I was impressed with his arm," said Bevins.

What A Day!

By United Press International

When the wind stirs up in Wrigley Field, every batter suddenly becomes as dangerous as Babe Ruth and final scores often resemble football results.

That's exactly what happened Thursday when the Philadelphia Phillies and Chicago Cubs took turns beating the tar out of each other's pitching staffs. The Phillies were outhit by the Cubs, 26-24, but Philadelphia emerged victorious, 23-22, when Mike Schmidt hit his second home run of the game in the 10th inning.

There were a record-tying 11 home runs hit in the game, including three by Chicago's Dave Kingman, and the two clubs missed by two runs of setting a record for an extrainning game.

"I think I was involved in a game like this before, but it had to be in the Little League," said Cubs' catcher, Barry Foote.

Joining Kingman and Schmidt in the home-run derby were Chicago's Bill Buckner, Steve Ontiveros and Jerry Martin, and Philadelphia's Randy Lerch,

Montreal Shatters New York In Key Stanley Cup Contest

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Rangers, wandering a championship desert for 39 years, hoped Madison Square Garden would be their oasis. They would feast on the cheers of the home fans and quench their thirst with a tie-breaking victory in Game Three of the National Hockey League's playoff final.

Instead, the Montreal Canadiens allowed them one tasteless bite of dried bread. They chopped down the Rangers' shade; they shot four bullets into New York's canteen, winning a 4-1 game that wasn't that close and taking a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven series which continues here Saturday.

"I mentioned after the first game that we've got to turn the momentum around," said Montreal defenseman Serge Savard, noting the Rangers won the series opener on the Canadiens' home ice. "I think we have now. We're the guys who do the skating now, and I don't care how good a team is, if you block them all over the ice, and you block the center of the ice, it's very hard to get anything done."

That's what Montreal did Thursday night. The scoresheet said New York got 20 shots on goalie Ken Dryden, but none required more than routine deflection and the third-period goal by the Rangers' Ron Duguay glanced in off a Montreal defender.

It was a total, thorough job, as had been the Canadiens' 6-2 triumph in Game Two. Now Montreal is two triumphs away from a fourth consecutive Stanley Cup and the Rangers still are up to their knees in sand.

"In the last couple of games we lost the momentum we had," said center Walt Tkaczuk of the Rangers, who charged into the finals after series victories over Los Angeles, Philadelphia and the New York Islanders. "We are handling the puck like a hot potato. We are being outworked and outhustled. The whole thing has changed around."

Why? Forechecking. Any Ranger who touched the puck found himself in unpleasant company almost immediately — especially the defensemen, who were chasing the puck when they weren't busy chasing Canadiens.

"We have never been taken out of our game like this before," said New York defenseman Dave Maloney. "No one has bottled us up in our end like this before."

At 7:27 of first period, Maloney was in front of his net watching Jacques Lemaire with the puck behind it. Maloney turned around to find Steve Shutt 15 feet in front of the cage for the lightning shot — Montreal's first of the game — which gave the Canadiens the lead.

Doug Risebrough, one of the many tireless checkers, made it 2-0 with a 25-footer past the left leg of John Davidson. That was the winner, though Mario Tremblay and Lemaire added third-period goals after Duguay scored for the Rangers to make it 2-1 at 6:06 of that session.

Duguay won a faceoff from Doug Jarvis and snapped a shot that was headed wide until it nicked Savard's skate and skittered past Dryden's right leg for New York's first tally in 99 minutes, 45 seconds.

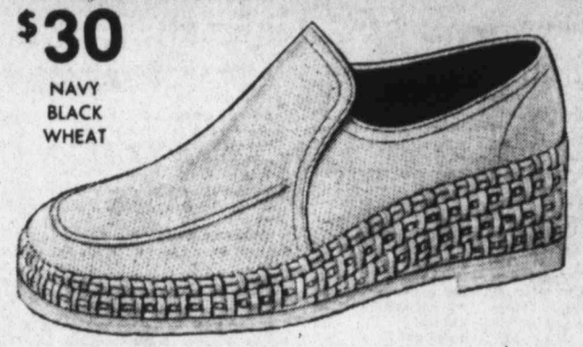

"We seemed to be doing fine until that very strange goal," said Dryden, banished to the bench for the third period of the Rangers' series-opening 4-1 triumph. "No matter how well you're doing, when it's a strange goal in the third period and it brings the home team within one goal, then all of a sudden, the game's up for grabs.

"But it seemed to me that from that point on they didn't press very much at all," said Dryden, whose observations are almost always accurate.

Second Jewel Ready

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI) — Unlike the outrageous and highly quotable Bud Delp, trainer Gordon Campbell Campbell is a reserved man, not given to wild statements regarding the ability of his horse or the impending downfall of his opponents.

After his highly touted Flying Paster failed to fire in the Kentucky Derby and finished a disappointing fifth, those who had been involved with the Canadian-born trainer were content to dismiss his colt as another California fluke.

Even Delp, trainer of 1-2 Preakness favorite Spectacular Bid, seems to think he overestimated the West Coast star. Looking towards Saturday's 104th Preakness, Delp instead is concentrating on the performance of General Assembly, the flashy son of Secretariat who finished a surprising second in the Derby and is now the 9-2 second choice in the $235,300 second leg of the Triple Crown.

Yet Campbell, as quiet and good-natured as he appears, comes as close to bristling as he can when questioned for the umpteenth time whether his unorthodox training schedule had more to do with Flying Paster's poor showing than the fact the colt simply did not like the track.

"If a horse doesn't like the track there's nothing you can do in training to compensate for it," said Campbell, who has given the bay colt just one slow workout this week. "Our estimation of him hasn't changed a bit. He's a longstriding horse and they tend to have difficulty handling a cuppy (loose) racetrack. But I know my colt can run a lot better than he did at Churchill Downs."

Bid's performance in the Derby — he won by an easy 2 3/4 lengths — weeded out the field considerably for the Preakness and in all, just five horses were entered for the 1 3-16th mile race, all Derby starters who are hoping for just one more shot at the steel-gray colt.

As expected, Bid and 19-yearold jockey Ronnie Franklin are the heavy favorites after drawing post No. 2 on their home track while General Assembly, who will be ridden by Laffit Pincay Jr., will leave from the outside.

The other starters include Golden Act, third in the Derby under Sandy Hawley and a 6-1 choice in breaking from the No. 3 post; Screen King, the longshot in the field at 12-1 from the No. 4 post, and Flying Paster, ridden by veteran Don Pierce from the rail.

All will carry 126 pounds in the race.

The National Weather Service has forecast sunny and warm weather through Saturday, conditions that will not only insure a hard and fast track — much to Campbell's delight — but also may draw a record crowd.

Koosman Wins Seventh Straight

By United Press International

Jerry Koosman, a 12-year veteran has never had a start like the first six weeks of the 1979 season, after being acquired by Minnesota this past winter from the National League Mets.

After posting a 3-15 record last year with the New York Mets, Koosman posted his seventh straight win without a loss Thursday night, a 7-6 victory over the Kansas City Royals. 3

Koosman needed ninth-inning relief help from Mike Marshall to preserve the victory and snap his team's four-game losing streak. It was Marshall's league-high 10th save of the season.

The Twins, who were not supposed to be a powerhouse this year, staked Koosman to a 4-0 lead in the first, upped it to 5-0 in the fourth and 7-1 by the eighth. He eventually carried a 7-3 lead into the ninth.

"I'm not any different," Koosman said. "I'm throwing the same way I've thrown for the last few years. The guys behind me are just hitting incredibly and making the plays in the field. All the credit should go to them."

His seven wins are four more than Koosman accumulated all last season, and they also gave him the club record for consecutive wins at the start of a season, breaking Luis Tiant's mark of six at the start of the 1970 season.

Cleveland 8, Toronto 3

Toby Harrah crashed a pair of two-run homers and Mike Paxton scattered nine hits to lead the Indians to victory.

Chicago 5, Oakland 1

Claudell Washington and Alan Bannister drove in two runs each and Ken Kravec and Mike Proly combined on a two-hitter, leading the White Sox to its triumph.

Boston 6, Baltimore 2

Jim Rice belted a two-run homer and Butch Hobson added a solo shot, powering the Red Sox to victory and putting them back into first place in the American League East.

California 8, Milwaukee 5

Bert Campaneris drove in three runs with a sacrifice fly and a single, helping the Angels to a triumph and a sweep of their three-game series.

Race Standings Tight At Top

Only four points separate the top four drivers in the late model/modified stock car division as racing moves into a midseason pace at Lubbock Speedway.

Competition resumes at the quarter-mile dirt oval with motorcycle races tonight, then shifts to cars Saturday night, when five different divisions will see action.

After four weeks of racing, Danny Everette headed up the late model/modified division with 27 1/2 points, trailed by Charley Whorton with 26, Larry Johnson with 24 and Herschel Cook at 23 1/2. Here are the standings in the various divisions:

Tech Fems Improve

By TONY BATT
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

From zip to six.

That's been the story for Texas Tech's women's track and field team this year. After being shut out in attempting to qualify for nationals last year, Tech is sending six women (four of them freshmen) to compete in five events of the National AIAW (Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women) track and field meet on the campus of Michigan State University in East Lansing, Mich. May 24-26.

Despite the vast improvement, coach Beta Little says she isn't surprised.

"I was disappointed that we didn't send anyone to nationals last year," she said. "I guess the difference is mental toughness. The girls are beginning to realize they compete for a large college and they can win. They're beginning to think big."

One of the biggest thinkers has to be freshman Sharon Moultrie, a walk-on from Pampa. After being neglected by college recruiters coming out of high school, Miss Moultrie went on to qualify for nationals by winning the state championship in the long jump last month in Kingsville. Miss Moultrie's leap of 19-8½ surpassed the national qualifying standard of 19-2.

The national standards are set by the AIAW before each season, and the women have to qualify before next Saturday.

Miss Moultrie will also run the third leg of the 440-yard relay team, which qualified with a time of 46.85 at the Tech Invitational Track Meet on April 14. The national standard is 48.0.

Also competing on the sprint relay team is Pam Montgomery, another two-event qualifier. Miss Montgomery, a freshman from Ore City, qualified for the nationals in the 100-meter dash with a time of 11.59 at the Tech Invitational. The national standard is 11.8.

The other 440-yard relay team members are Felicia Freeman, an Amarillo sophomore who anchors the team, and Tanya Jones, a freshman from Breckenridge.

Tech will also be represented in the javelin and the discus. Barbara Bell, a freshman from Albuquerque, N.M. who attends Tech on a basketball scholarship, qualified in the javelin with a toss of 148-5.

In the discus, Jennifer Perdue, a junior from Fritch who transferred from Tarleton State, qualified in the same meet with a throw of 147-10. The national standard for both events is 144 feet.

Miss Little, who is in her second year as Tech's coach after serving seven years in the high school ranks, says the team's improvement this year is making recruiting an easier task.

Longshot Wins Race

RUIDOSO (Special)—Seco Mighty Talk, a 12-1 shot owned by David Cryan and Charles Eik of San Antonio, posted the top qualifying time in Thursday's first round elimination trials for the $525,000 Kansas Quarterhorse Futurity.

The filly sped to a half length win in the fourth of fifteen eliminations trials at 350 yards.

Seco Mighty Talk clocked the distance in 18.29 seconds and automatically advanced in the grand finale scheduled for Sunday June 3. Steve Fuller is the jockey.

Seco Mighty Talks previous racing record covered only two starts both at Val Verde. She won the first, then ran fourth in the encore.

Fans who backed her in Thursday's spin collected mutual returns of 27.60, 9.00 and 4.00.

Umps Meet To Decide On Pact

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball's 52 umpires gathered in Philadelphia today with the expectation that all but four of them would be out of the city before nightfall.

Richie Phillips, the umpires' lawyer and negotiator, was hopeful of presenting his out-of-work clients with a settlement of their contract dispute with the National and American leagues that would send 48 of them off to other major league cities to officiate tomorrow's games. Four National Leaguers would stay in Philadelphia, where Philips has his office, to work the series between the Montreal Expos and the Phillies.

"I am optimistic that we can reach an agreement on the issues that still divide us and have the major league umpires back in the stadiums on Saturday," Phillips said Thursday during a break in another marathon bargaining session at American League offices.

The key issues in the dispute that has kept the regular umpires on the sidelines since spring training were settled Tuesday, the Associated Press learned earlier in the week.

Agent Sues Top Pick After Early Signing

MIAMI (AP) — Star running back Ottis "O.J." Anderson is named in a $52,000 breach of contract suit filed in Los Angeles by sports agent Michael L. Trope, according to a published report here.

Trope signed to represent Anderson in pro contract negotiations even before Anderson's senior season at the University of Miami, in which he became the school's all-time leading rusher, The Miami News said Thursday.

St. Louis made Anderson its first choice in the National Football League draft.

The News said Gene Burrough, representing Trope, approached Anderson at the ballplayer's home in West Palm Beach, Fla., last July.

Trope has negotiated pro contracts for more than 100 players including Heisman Trophy winners Earl Campbell, Tony Dorsett and Earl Campbell.

"I thought he'd be pretty decent," Anderson said. He said Burrough assured him he would not lose his college elegibility by signing because Trope would not sign the contract until the following January.

The newspaper said Anderson agreed not to sign with another agent and to pay Trope a fee for negotiating a deal with a pro team. The News said it obtained a copy of the contract from Superior Court at Los Angeles.

In December, Anderson decided he didn't want to be represented by Trope and signed with another agent, Clifford Paul of Houston, the newspaper said. It said Anderson then switched from Paul to Washington attorney Rick Bennett.

The paper said Trope still insists that the original signing did not jeopardize Anderson's college status. But David Berst, enforcement chief for the National Collegiate Athletic Association, said an athlete becomes a professional the moment he signs such a contract.

Netters Sign With Texas Tech

From A-J Wire Services

Texas Tech has lined up seven athletes for its women's program, school officials announced, and five have come in tennis where the school is without a coach.

Tech officials reported the signing to letters-of-intent of Regina Revello of Manhasset, N.Y., Leslie Romley from England, Joanie Waltko of Wichita Falls Rider, Katherine Lawson of El Paso Eastwood, and Cathy Stringer of Collinsville, Ill.

For the swimming team, Tech announced the signing of Janie James of San Angelo and Amy Thorpe of Kelso, Wash.

The tennis players came despite the recent resignation of coach Donna Stockton Roup. (Tech officials are now looking for a successor.)

Tag-Team Match Featured Tonight

Dory Funk Jr. and Brute Bernard will take on James Dillon and Black Jack Mulligan in a tag-team match which headlines the weekly wrestling card at Fair Park Coliseum tonight.

First action gets under way at 8:30 p.m.

Kiyo Moto will face Ricky Romero and Manny Fernandez will go against Rip Hawk.

In preliminary matches, Akio Sato will wrestle Dennis Stamp, and Ted Heath will meet Alex Perez.

Slow-Pitch Softball Events Slated

Entries are now being accepted for a pair of softball tournaments in the near future.

At Wolfforth, the Volunteer Fire Department is sponsoring a tournament to be held June 22-24.

Sixteen teams will be accepted, and entry fee is $55 and one new softball per game.

Additional information can be obtained from Johnny Rosales, 866-4612.

Texan Tries Out Of U.S. Team

SNYDER (Special) — Paul Pressey, a 6-4 freshman at Western Texas College, has been selected to try out for the World Games basketball team, WTC coach Nolan Richardson reported.

The camp will be held at Colorado Spring, Colo., beginning Aug. 15.

Pressey, from Richmond, Va., was voted the Region V tournament's most valuable player. He will be tried at guard at the Worl Games camp.

"This is quite an honor for Pressey," said Richardson. "Just to be chosen for the tryouts is something. Only about 20 or so kids from across the country are asked to try out for the team."

William Carey Eliminated

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)— William Carey College, which handed Lubbock Christian College its first loss in the NAIA's Area II baseball tournament, lost first to Grand Canyon and then to Sam Houston State in Thursday's tourney action.

WCC lost to Grand Canyon 8-5 in a battle of the No. 1 and No. 2-ranked teams in the nation. The Crusaders then fell to Sam Houston State 6-5 to drop out of the tourney. SHSU beat the Chaparrals 12-8.

Grand Canyon and Sam Houston will now play in the area championship today. The winner will advance to the NAIA World Series in Nashville, Tenn. beginning May 28.

ACC Jumper Captures NAIA Title

ABILENE (AP) — Long jumper Carl Williams of Abilene Christian and hammer thrower Harold Willers of Canada defended their titles Thursday night in the 28th NAIA track and field championships.

Williams, the nation's leading long jumper, leaped 26 feet 6¼ inches with the wind behind him on his first effort in the finals and seventh jump of the evening to capture his third consecutive NAIA title.

Willers won his event with a toss of 196 feet 8 inches. In the other final events held on the first of a three-day run on the Abilene Christian University campus, Gary Sechrist of Fort Hayes, Kan., won the javelin with a throw of 231-9 and Sammy Maritim of Azusa Pacific (Calif.) won the 10,000-meter run in 30:01.09.

A strong West Texas wind altered Williams' jumping style in the trials and semifinals. He was third going into the final three jumps.

"I just decided to go back to my old mark and go for broke," said Williams, who has lost outdoors only once in the past two years. Williams, a senior from Colorado Springs, Colo., has a legal 26-5 this year.

Penn State Exits Cage Conference

SHAWNEE ON THE DELAWARE, Pa. (AP) — Penn State, hoping to take the independent route to bigtime college basketball, has withdrawn from the young Eastern Athletic Association.

The move, which came at the league meeting Thursday in this Pocono Mountain resort, was apparently engineered by new Penn State Coach Dick Harter.

It leaves Harter with the flexibility he wants in scheduling — and it leaves the previously nicknamed "Eastern Eight" looking for a new member.

Homers Abound In Wrigley Field

Garry Maddox and Bob Boone. Buckner, who hit a grand slam, drove in seven runs for Chicago while Kingman knocked in six. Boone drove in five runs and Larry Bowa had five hits for Philadelphia.

Philadelphia's Rawly Eastwick was the only pitcher among 11 used in the game who did not get belted. Eastwick retired all six batters he faced over the final two innings to pick up the victory.

"Eastwick got six outs without a man reaching base. He deserves to be in the Hall of Fame for that," quipped Phillies' Manager Danny Ozark.

Pirates 6, Mets 5

Willie Stargell drove in three runs with two homers, including a two-run, two-out blast in the eighth inning, to give the Pirates their victory.

Braves 6, Dodgers 3

Barry Bonnell hit a two-run homer to highlight a three-run sixth inning and Phil Niekro tossed a seven-hitter in sparking the Braves to triumph.

Giants 3, Astros 0

Larry Herndon snapped a scoreless tie with a run-scoring triple in the seventh inning to lead the Giants to victory over the Astros.

Cardinals 2, Expos 2

Tony Solaita's solo homer with one out in the ninth inning enabled the Expos to salvage a 2-2 tie with the Cardinals. The game was suspended after 10 innings due to curfew and will be resumed June 25.

Readers Have Say In Writing Column

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

RIDGEFIELD, CONN. (AP) — "Turn about's fair play," my college landlady up in Boston always said, as she flipped off the Red Sox game on the TV set in the dining room and tuned in Cardinal Cushing saying the rosary.

I suspect she thought the diocesan communications center was equipped with two-way vision and His Eminence would know she was among the missing if she failed to catch the program. Or maybe she figured the Red Sox needed all the help they could get.

Mulligan's Stew

Anyhow Mrs. Neary, a skilled moderator at our boarding house dinner table, was a great one for giving equal time to the alternate side of any subject or "the other handle on the teacup," as she always called it. I had never heard the expression before or since, nor have I ever encountered a double-handled teacup, but in deference to her memory it is time once again to let the readers have a say in writing this column.

Turn about, indeed, is fair play, and a recent little essay I wrote on Irish curses evoked in one reader some vengeful visions of foul play entertained by her Irish relatives against Protestant King William of Orange.

"It reminded me," wrote E. Irene Holland of New London, Conn., "of a curse my great aunt taught me over 70 years ago: 'Here's to King William across the Boyne waters, with a knife in his heart and a fork in his liver. May he never die and nobody kill him, till he goes to hell and the devil do mill him!' — Bet he is sorry he picked on the Irish. He must still be burning."

A St. Patrick's Day piece I wrote on the tiny troubled Ulster town where I was married three decades ago turned up one of the Wild Geese who emigrated from that very spot to the wheat fields of North Dakota.

"I'm sure you didn't expect your story on Mullaghbawn to pull some heart strings out here in the Great Plains but it certainly did," wrote Mrs. Elish Deyap of Jamestownn N.D. "I knew the place well. My mother is buried there, my daughter was baptized there and my niece still lives there. Canon O'Neill spent many hours in our home drinking strong tea and telling stories about his holidays on the West Coast of Ireland. Thank you for bringing the old place back to life for me: I miss the mountains out here."

A column on the golden age of semi-pro baseball raised the dust of a hundred vanished diamonds across the land. A number of readers wrote in their reminiscences of the House of David, the Lancaster Red Roses and other great touring teams of that by-gone era. Jim Russell of Boulder Creek, Calif., recalled a team called "the Pittsburgh Hoboes — they played the game in ragged tramp costumes and arrived at the field by climbing over the fence."

Russell, who watched and played semi-pro ball in New Bedford, Mass., wrote that his favorite team was "the Philadelphia Colored Giants, because they were the most gifted and most welcome of all visiting teams. Their visit always drew a packed house (5,000 I would guess) and it was the piece de resistance of the season. I never saw them lose a game.

"The main attractions were Willa Jackman, Submarineball pitcher, and Burlin White, the catcher and manager. It was a real fun day when the Giants came to town.

"Their premier act was 'shadow ball,' in which they took infield practice without a ball and acted out all occurrences, such as a throw to second going into centerfield or the third baseman booting a grounder and getting into difficulty recovering it while White stood at home plate, arms skimbo and scolding him in a loud voice.

"Then a ball would be thrown in for real practice and a first baseman named Cappy Ricks would catch most throws by wrapping his gloved left hand around his back and catching off his right hip.

"In left field was a gangling fellow known only as Cephus. He wore a glove but actually played barehanded, since the glove had a large hole cut from the pocket exposing the palm ...

"My Dad had the advantage over me. He was able to go out and see local baseball, and good baseball too, all his life. A sunny Saturday afternoon at the ball park was a joy forever, especially after a hard week's work. It's sad but it is no longer part of the scene. Was TV, or the automobile the death of hometown ball? Or was it Little League?

"My compliments on a great piece: tender and low-key."

And my compliments and my thanks to all the readers who write in and get me off the hook one more time. For days when the ship of immagination is foundering on the shoals of procrastination, one — Tina Mooney of Atlanta — even suggested "an Armada cocktail: Spanish sherry on the rocks with a liberal infusion of Irish Mist."

Chairman Calls Suit Publicity Stunt

CHICAGO (AP) — The chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission has branded Sears, Roebuck and Co.'s unsuccessful challenge to federal anti-discrimination laws a "publicity stunt."

Eleanor Holmes Norton said Wednesday that the suit, dismissed Tuesday by a federal judge in Washington, was an effort to "galvanize people against affirmative action." She said it was erroneous for Sears to contend that conflicting federal regulations had stifled progress in hiring.

Sears filed suit Jan. 24 against 10 federal agencies, contending conflicting government regulations made it impossible for the company to meet federal employment standards.

CITY HALL DUE SOLAR POWER

RAHWAY, N.J. (AP) — Officials of this Union County industrial city have broken ground for what is believed to be the first solar heated and cooled city hall in the nation. The 50,000-square-foot, $4.5 million brick Colonial complex is expected to be completed in 1½ years. Engineer Robert Brook claims the solar system, which he is installing for $200,000, will cut energy costs by as much as 30 percent. Electricity will be the conventional source of energy due to erratic weather conditions.

"Oh, good! I knew I could count on you...and just when the fire was getting low!"

FINGERTIP FOUND

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A meatpacking firm and Sears, Roebuck and Co. are being sued for $1 million by a couple who claim to have found the tip of a human finger in a hamburger patty. The suit, filed in San Francisco Superior Court on Monday by Barbara and Joe Barnes, alleges they suffered "severe emotional trauma" after eating the prepackaged hamburger several days after buying it from Sears. The hamburger was packaged by Luchetti Meat Co. of San Francisco, according to the suit.

The Almanac
TODAY IN HISTORY

By United Press International

Today is Friday, May 18, the 138th day of 1979 with 227 to follow.

The moon is moving from its last quarter to its new phase.

The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Mars.

The evening stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Taurus.

American missionary Sheldon Jackson was born May 18, 1834.

On this day in history:

In 1860, Abraham Lincoln was nominated for president by the Republican party at its Chicago convention.

In 1941, the first nationwide "I Am An American Day" was held, honoring 300,000 aliens who had become U.S. citizens the past year.

In 1969, Apollo 10, with three American astronauts aboard, blasted off for the moon in rehearsal for a lunar landing.

In 1975, the Pentagon said five U.S. servicemen were killed in the rescue of the cargo ship Mayaguez from the Cambodians, that 70 to 80 were wounded in the action in the Gulf of Siam, and 16 men were missing.

A thought for the day:

Spanish novelist Miguel De Cervantes said, "That's the nature of women — not to love when we love them and to love when we love them not."

The first apricots were grown in China more than 2,000 years ago; they were brought to Greece about the time of Alexander the Great (356 to 323 B.C.).

Dissatisfaction Runs Rampant Within President's Own Party

By HELEN THOMAS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With cannons to the right of him and cannons to the left of him, President Carter apprently believes a march down the middle will serve him in good stead in his coming battle for re-election.

But it will be an uphill struggle, and different from his earlier triumph in 1976 when he was "Jimmy Who," an upstart invading the presidential race as virtually an unknown.

He is a different kind of politician than Democratic Party bigwigs have known in the past, and they apparently are still unreconciled. Party loyalty is a thing of the past. Each segment is seeking its own enhancement and none is prepared to rally around the president.

The name of the game is the White House. But even with their own man in the Oval Office, dissatisfaction is rampant. Clearly, California's Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. is ready to go for the prize. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy is waiting in the wings.

Brown makes no bones about the fact that he is running. He also believes he has more answers, and more "vision" than Carter.

Kennedy has repeatedly said that he expects the president "to be renominated and re-elected." But he has always sidestepped chances to take a Sherman-like irrevocable position on the subject.

And Kennedy was left no opportunity to publicly lash Carter on his domestic policies.

Carter has alienated many elements of his own party because they have wanted to hold his feet to the fire on his unredeemed campaign promises. No other president in recent times has been held more accountable for his campaign statements.

But it is a different world, and there remains a great lack of trust in public leaders. Instant communications and long memories are what all politicians face today. The president, who ran on an anti-Washington platform, also is being faulted by the old pros for his lack of Washington experience, which they choose to call leadership.

He is also stymied by a lack of effective leaders — that is party lieutenants on Capitol Hill — who will go to the well for him. From time to time, they do him a favor, but that is about all. They are not rubber stamps. But they are also not as adept in rounding up votes as some on their more eminent predecessors.

Carter has a few cards up his sleeve.

Washington Window

His has, at least for now, the party machinery works for the incumbent. Then there is the incumbency itself and all of the offerings that emanate from it.

The technique of playing Santa Claus on the campaign trail on the part of a president was blatant in President Ford's election campaign, and Carter has torn a few pages out of the book.

On the other side of the fence, Carter is being pounded by several Republican presidential aspirants. And as Carter knows only too well, it's easier to be on the attack than to have to defend the crown.

While presidential politics saturate the air waves and fill the newspapers, there is time for all the candidates to make their individual impressions on a more questioning society.

In June, Carter has foreign travels — to Vienna to meet Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev and then to Tokyo for the economic summit. These trips may enhance his stature as a world leader.

But at home, the gasoline shortage and the prices at the grocery store will be besetting the consumer, who is also the voter.

HEW Says Facilities To Spend $1 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — It may cost schools, hospitals, libraries and other facilities that receive money fro the Department of Health, Education and Welfare as much as $1 billion to meet federal guidelines for the handicapped, HEW says.

The regulations require that the facilities be renovated so they are accessible to the handicapped. In a report to Congress, HEW said colleges and universities will have to spend up to $561 million for renovations to meet a June 1980 deadline. The estimates are double previous ones, which placed the one-time costs at $300 million to $500 million. The report was released Wednesday.

STILL BUILDING HOUSES — Bob Stein works on the latest of his houses in the basement of his Middleton, Wis., home. When he was a boy he built houses instead of model planes, but he hid them until his mohter found one and entered it in a contest. The house won a prize and Stein has continued to build his houses. Man Constructs Model Houses

By JULES LOH

MIDDLETON, Wis. (AP) — In the generation before TV antennas forested the land, the popular pastime for boys was making model airplanes. Few kitchen tables survived the stains of airplane glue.

The rage, however, never caught the fancy of Bob Stein. Instead, he built model houses — and hid them away. They might, he considered ruefully, be thought of as, egad, doll houses.

One day his mother embarrassed him by entering a model he had built in a crafts contest at school. It was a model of his own home and it won first prize. His mother still has it.

Now past 40, Bob Stein still builds model houses as a hobby but they are a far cry from the rude efforts of his youth.

Indeed, they are in such demand by people who have gotten word of his skills that he is battling the urge to let go his career as a landscape architect and pursue his hobby full time.

"I had no idea of the popularity of doll houses," he said.

"People are spending fortunes on them,decorating them, furnishing them. My wife, Beth, bowls with a lady who just laid out $250 for a couch. A couch for a doll house. When they put that kind of money in them they want a good house to start with."

Bob Stein no longer has boyish misgivings about making doll houses, but the term is inadequate to describe what he makes.

Just now, for example, he is working on a scale model of an actual mansion, room for room, fireplace for fireplace, staircase for staircase; an exact replica built from the blueprints of the mansion on a scale of an inch to a foot. Slide away a section of wall, or lift a hinged roof, and every interior room opens to view.

"I have a hunch the lady I'm building it for is going to sell her house," he said.

"It's a beautiful place and must hold many memories for her. Her children are grown and gone. I think she wants a replica so she can at least keep the memories."

Bob Stein's workbench is a miniature itself: tiny table saws, knives, clamps. He cuts and shapes with the precision of a jeweler.

The workbench is in the basement of a house which, not surprisingly, he built himself — full scale, of course. The house snuggles into the side of a steep, wooded hill on a lot commercial builders rejected because of the difficulty of building on it.

"I hauled 106 station-wagon loads of stones, by actual count, from a road construction site. First I terraced the hill, then designed the house to fit the hill.

"I should have made a miniature of the house before I built it, though. I would have avoided a few minor mistakes."

Besides doing landscaping, Bob Stein put his hobby to use at one architectural firm he worked for and made miniatures of proposed buildings. That's how he got started making doll houses. An associate, whose wife worked in a toy store, suggested he make some for sale.

"Beth and I drove around looking at houses, looking for ones that were interesting but simple enough to become doll houses. We found three. I measured them and duplicated them.

"I build about 30 of those a year, not counting the custom made jobs for people with their own plans. Beth makes the titles, the deeds. She prints them up."

Titles? Deeds?

"Sure. A person buys a little house, he ought to have a little deed."

Committee Opposes Education Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republican leaders say President Carter's plan to create a separate federal education department is a bad idea that would inhibit local control of schools.

The Republican Policy Committee voted 12-1 Tuesday to oppose the bill. "Anybody who thinks you can create a new department and not have it exert more power over the American people is smoking opium," said Rep. Bud Shuster, R-Pa., chairman of the policy committee. Rep. John Erlenborn, R-Ill., a main opponent of the proposal, said opposition among Democrats also is "quite strong." A similar bill failed to pass Congress last year.

Air Force Moves Back Skylab Re-Entry Date

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Skylab space station is expected to fall back to Earth sometime between June 26 and July 9 with a 50-50 chance of returning July 2, the space agency reported.

The predicted atmospheric re-entry period for the orbiting hulk is two weeks later than forecast a month ago by the Air Force which keeps track of space debris circling the globe.

Spokesman William O'Donnell of the National Aeronautics and Space Agency said a recent study calculated that there is one chance in 150 that one person somewhere in the world would be hit by a piece of Skylab debris.

O'Donnell said one reason for the extension to Skylab's predicted life in space is a reduction in solar radiation activity which heats up the outer portions of Earth's atmosphere, causing it to expand.

The 77.5-ton assembly, last manned in 1974, is now orbiting about 180 miles above Earth. The very thin fringes of atmosphere at that altitude cause a slight drag on the ship, causing it to gradually slow and move closer to Earth.

When the drag slows Skylab below the speed needed to stay in orbit, the ship will re-enter the atmosphere. The 118-foot long assembly will break apart and much of its aluminum structure will burn up from the heat of air friction, but NASA expects several hundred pieces to survive and hit Earth.

Counseling Bill Near Approval

By TERENCE HUNT

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five years after the last American troops were pulled out of Vietnam, Congress appears ready to authorize a counseling program for an estimated 2.5 million veterans having trouble adjusting to civilian life.

The program, stalled on Capitol Hill for seven years, was approved by the Senate this week as part of a bill authorizing $204.1 million for veterans' health programs through 1984.

Counseling services for Vietnam-era veterans have been approved by the Senate in previous years, but have always died in the House. Senate supporters say this year's bill is a compromise package that has a good chance of being acceptable to House leaders.

The Veterans Administration estimates that more than 30 percent of the 8.7 million Vietnam-era veterans are having "serious problems related to readjustment to civilian life."

Such problems include guilt, alienation, pessimism and tension — which in turn frequently lead to family discord, unemployment and drug or alcohol abuse, according to a Senate Veterans Affairs Committee report that accompanied the bill.

The report said congressional budget planners estimate that only 170,000 of the more than 2.5 million veterans who would be eligible for counseling services actually would seek help in the firs two years of the program.

In addition, it said, some 15,000 Vietnam-era veterans discharged from active duty each year could be expected to apply for counseling.

Under the program, the Veterans Administration would set up counseling and mental health services in its hospitals. The program would be available to any Vietnam-era veteran who requested help within two years of his discharge or two years of the bill's enactment — whichever is later.

The VA estimates that each veteran seeking help would require an average of six hours of counseling, the report said.

The Senate rejected, 53-42, an amendment by Sens. John Heinz, R-Penn., and Larry Pressler, R-S.D., to have the government pay for counseling at facilities other than VA hospitals. Pressler said Vietnam-era veterans "have not responded well to treatment at those (VA) institutions."

Instead, the Senate voted to let the VA contract for outside counseling when a VA hospital is inaccessible to a veteran and it would be uneconomical to pay his transportation costs, or if the type of help he needs is not available.

Another part of the bill would authorize payments for alcohol and drug treatment for veterans in halfway houses and other types of community-ased centers.

The VA estimates it could place an average of 5,700 patients in halfway houses each year under the alcohol and drug abuse program.

It estimates that 200,000 of the veterans covered by the proposed program are suffering from drug dependence, the committee report said.

Tile Problems Delay Space Shuttle Launch

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The unexpectedly slow pace of installing heat protection tiles has become the major factor in delaying the first launch of the space shuttle Columbia.

Trouble over the tiles has replaced difficulty with the rocket plane's complex engines as the key factor slowing work on the shuttle at the Kennedy Space Center.

The tile work is so far behind schedule that shuttle program director Myron Malkin refused Wednesday to argue with a prediction the launch could be delayed until next March.

The flight is still officially scheduled to take place Nov. 9, but space agency officials say a delay is certain. The only question is the length of the postponement.

The shuttle was the topic of a meeting Wednesday of the Aerospace Medical Association.

Jerry Grey, public policy chief of the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics, said it appeared the initial launch of the Columbia would be next March.

Malkin, the next speaker, said he could not disagree with the assessment. He later said NASA won't know the full extent of the delay until after an evaluation June 15.

The shuttle's three advanced hydrogen-oxygen engines had been the main stumbling block for several years, but Malkin said the developmental difficulties appear to be resolved.

Engine testing is generally going well, he said, despite a problem Monday during a test firing at Santa Susana, Calif.

He said the big problem now is installation of the tiles. The shuttle was delivered to Cape Canaveral two months ago with more than 9,000 tiles to be bonded to its skin.

Fewer than 600 tiles have been installed so far and Malkin said the 6-inch squares are being put in place at the rate of only about 20 a day despite round-the-clock operations. Officials had hoped to install 650 a week by July.

The tiles are designed to protect the Columbia from expected temperatures of up to 3,000 degrees Fahrenheit when the winged spaceship begins its return to Earth after orbiting the globe for three days.

IRRIGATION CHECKUP — Leon New of Lubbock, right, area irrigation specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Lubbock, measures the flow of an irrigation well in Bailey County. Observing the test are Royce Turner, grower, and Clarence Christian, irrigation equipment dealer.

Benefit To Farmer Seen Via Water Management

Saving In Irrigation Fuel Major Item

Increasing the efficiency of pumps and careful management of water from the state's 90,000 irrigation wells could save Texas irrigation farmers $100 million annually, says an irrigation specialist here with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

By improving pumping efficiency to attainable levels, farmers could reduce their annual fuel bills by $1,200-$1,500 per well, the specialist said. But he noted that the repairs needed to improve pumping efficiency that amount would cost farmers across the state approximately $350 million.

Ways to combat the skyrocketing costs of pumping irrigation water and at the same time conserve precious fuel and water are being stressed in educational programs being conducted by the Extension Service in 20 West Texas counties. Pump efficiency and water management are the key factors, the extension specialist says.

"Irrigation fuel is the highest single cost in producing crops in highly irrigated West Texas," said Leon New, extension area agricultural engineer-irrigation. He is stationed at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center here.

In recent years, the cost of energy to pump irrigation water has increased 400 to 700 percent in most areas of the state, he noted.

"This increase in energy prices has added substantially to annual crop production costs of the irrigation farmer," New said.

In 1973, natural gas to operate a typical irrigation well on the High Plains cost about $835 annually, the extension specialist said. In 1978, the same amount of energy averaged approximately $5,000 annually.

"An average West Texas grower who uses 20 irrigation wells paid about $17,000 annually for natural gas in 1973," New said. "In 1978, his annual fuel cost totaled approximately $92,000."

To offset these increasing fuel costs, New said, irrigation pumps and power units must perform at maximum efficiency and water distribution must be carefully managed to reduce the amount required.

To determine pump efficiency, four measurements are needed. These are water delivery, depth from which water must be lifted,. discharge pressure, and fuel use.

"Growers can make these measurements, but often need help to learn the measurement technique and evaluation procedure," New said.

To help them, Extension Service personnel have demonstrated measurement techniques in 20 counties and have conducted training sessions to assist county extension agents. The Extension Service also has developed step-by-step guidelines to help growers make efficiency calculations and identify hourly fuel cost and fuel cost for an acre-inch of water. The guidelines include attainable standards to which a grower can compare his system's overall efficiency and fuel cost.

Demonstrations conducted by the Extension Service and cooperating growers indicate opportunity for significant reductions in energy consumption and pumping costs, New said.

Measurements have been made, New said, on some 100 irrigation pumping installations powered by natural gas, diesel and electricity. In overall efficiency, the systems ranged from a low of 4 percent to a high of 19 percent, with the average efficiency being 11 percent.

ROOF COLLAPSE KILLS BOY

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — A 12-year-old boy was buried in debris and killed when the roof of an abandoned garage where he was playing collapsed, officials said. Julio Losado was playing with three friends Wednesday night in two four-bay brick garage buildings in Hartford's North End when the youngster kicked one of the support beams, causing the roof to collapse, police said. Police said the boy was buried under heavy concrete and brick debris for more than 30 minutes.

Panel Chief To Move Carefully

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — The new chairman of the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, James M. Stone, intends to move cautiously in the next few months, with the bulk of his time devoted to learning about the internal operations of the agency and the concerns of the commodities industry.

"I don't know how to live up to expectations that I will be a controversial regulator," he said at his first press conference since taking office May 4.

"I am not in a tremendous hurry to change everything. Nothing will happen lightly, without a great deal of staff work and preparation," during his chairmanship, he said.

Stone noted that he took the same cautious approach at the beginning of his term as Massachusetts state insurance commissioner.

But his cautious approach did not mean conservative regulation. He pointed out that he made many controversial decisions. All of which were upheld in the courts.

Although he is reserving judgment on major issues before the agency, Stone indicated he has developed clear ideas about his priorities.

"The CFTC, in general, has been on the right track, making certain that markets do reflect supply and demand," he said.

Considering the tremendous growth of futures trading in the past five years, there would probably have been many more problems without the CFTC, he said.

The agency must also make certain there are not predatory practices aimed toward commodities customers, Stone said.

And, to some extent, the agency must involve itself in structural issues, such as the issue of exchange mergers, he said.

Stone said some economists might say that many exchanges increase competition in the industry and others might believe that a few exchanges would provide greater liquidity for the markets, he said.

"The commission is clearly going to get itself involved in this area," he said.

Stone said he is concerned about the CFTC'S budget, which is about $15.8 million this fiscal year, compared with $69.0 million allocated to the Securities and Exchange Commission.

While he has no plans for immediate major changes in the CFTC, Stone, an economist, would clearly like to beef up the economics department and increase the number of professional staff.

"Our economics staff is simply not big enough nor powerful enough" to produce the same kind of economic analysis as the Federal Reserve Board/Treasury Department study of financial futures," he said.

The agency should avoid taking on the sort of ministerial tasks that might be better performed by a national futures organization, he said. These might include administration of qualifying exams and auditing, he said.

But Stone cautioned, "I would share the worries of the Justice Department if we were to establish a monopolistic industry organization and invest it with public policy powers."

Stone said the national futures organization issue is one he plans to pay attention to quickly.

"It is the nature of regulation, and not where it is done, that is the central question," he said. Government and industry can both function as regulators, but they are designed to do different types, Stone said.

Stone will make his first visit to the floor of the Chicago and New York exchanges in the next two weeks.

Stone said he was "less than pleasantly surprised" about how little hard statistical information is available about the commodity futures industry.

A large data base is expensive to design and build, but he said he hopes to have industry help on this. He emphasized that he likes to have as many facts at hand as possible before making decisions.

Stone said he is concerned about the gap between the official position toward regulation of foreign traders-equal treatment with domestic traders-and the actual treatment.

In some cases foreign traders have been able to withhold information from the government that domestic traders are required to provide, he said.

By DUANE HOWELL

ATTORNEYS FOR THE GINNING INDUSTRY have requested the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans to delay enforcement of the Occupational Safety and Health Administration's cotton dust standard pending action on a petition for review.

The motion to stay pending the appeal was made because there was growing doubt the court would render a decision before the Sept. 4 effective date of medical surveillance and respirator requirements in the standard covering cotton gins.

Tony Price, executive vice president of the Texas Cotton Ginners Association, says the brief filed by gin attorneys emphasized the impracticality of medical surveillance and contended the burden placed on gins was not justified since OSHA still had not furnished sufficient proof of a health hazard in the gin work place.

BASED ON INFORMATION SUPPLIED BY OSHA attorneys in April, the TCGA contends it is "highly unlikely" that gins could comply with the medical surveillance requirements. Price says OSHA's estimate on the cost also is "extremely understated."

In an April reply filed with the Circuit Court, OSHA attorneys said the standard would require medical opinions on all employes and added that "flying squads" of medical technicians would be needed to administer questionnaire and pulmonary function measurements and collect a medical history on each individual.

"This probably is the most expensive approach to compliance and would require the aquisition of dozens of instrument equipped vans and training of hundreds of bilingual medical personnel for work two to three months of the year," Price says.

THE TCGA HAS CONFERRED WITH MANY medical and para-medical authorities during the past six months in exploring alternatives which might assist gins in complying with the standard, Price says.

"The key is the medical opinion to be obtained on each employee," Price says. "One physician told me that while a doctor might write an opinion based on the pulmonary function measurements and medical history, such information would 'not be worth much' unless he could actually see the individual."

In order to furnish a "meaningful medical surveillance program" for gin employees, Price says, it appears that a physician would have to examine each worker before the employee was assigned to the gin.

"Obviously," Price says, "that cannot be accomplished with present medical facilities in the rural areas of Texas where gins are located."

ALTHOUGH THE COURT HAS BEEN ASKED for expedited hearings in the case, Price says, there is no indication when action will be taken on the motion to stay or when the case finally will be determined.

In summary, the stay motion on behalf of the cotton industry asserts that:

— The industry is likely to prevail on the merits of its case.

— Implementation of medical surveillance and respirator provisions of the standard — due by Sept. 4 — would cause irreparable harm to the industry.

— A stay of the standard will not harm, and in fact will protect, the public interest.

A BILL TO RAISE THE TARGET PRICES on the 1979 crops of wheat and feed grains was approved Thursday by the House Agriculture Committee, the office of Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock reported.

An amendment offered by Hance was defeated on a vote of 10-5. It would have pegged the loan rate at 70 percent of parity and put the target prices at 80 percent of parity.

The bill as approved would hike the wheat target price to $3.63 per bushel from $3.40 and would up the target to $2.35 per bushel from the current $2.20.

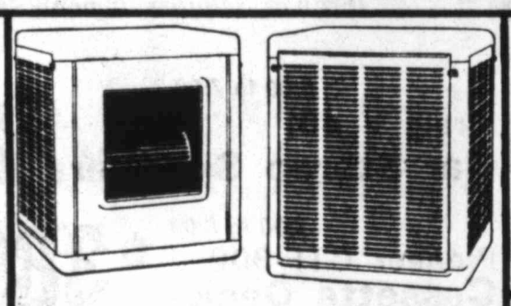

Target prices for grain sorghum and other feed grains would be set in relation to the corn target.

An aide to Hance said the bill is expected to reach the House floor late in June. Cotton would not be affected by this bill.

A measure which would raise the minimum loan floor on cotton to the 1979-crop base rate of 50.23 cents per pound will be considered by the committee next Wednesday. Without a new floor, it is possible the 1980-crop base loan would drop to the present minimum of 48 cents.

Livestock Futures Close Mixed In Wake Of Sharp Downturn

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 65 higher to 22 points lower on 36,736 cars Thursday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. June was up the most with October and December sharing the loss. The market was up 102 to off 32 in erratic trade earlier.

Some selling spilled over from Wednesday's limit declines. However, support was attracted on improved tone to beef at noon as retailers bought actively in preparation for holiday business. There was also technical support in futures after Wednesday's break to the lowest since March.

Wholesale beef was up 1 to off ¾ at 102¾ to 104½ cents a pound, f.o.b. river points, which is a six-week low. Cash cattle were steady to off $1 with the best top $73 per hundredweight, which is the lowest since March at Illinois Direct.

Slaughter was 115,000 head. About 3,350 head are expected today at the major markets.

Feeder cattle futures closed 90 higher in May to 82 lower in later months led by August. The latter lost 107 early, while May was up 95 for a time. March fell to a new season's low. Volume was 5,939 lots.

Selling was an extension of limit losses two days in a row and stemmed from weakness in cash feeders this week. The nearby contract rallied with live cattle futures and there was also buying after prices fell to the lowest since February. Some support was also derived from the rebound in carcass beef after sharp declines this week.

There have been 406 deliveries thus far. Cash feeder cattle were steady with the best top $96 per hundredweight. The major terminals are expecting about 1,725 head today.

Hog futures closed 20 to 150 lower on 6,902 contracts. June led the decline at the limit loss after July was also down a like amount. The market reacted after April briefly gained 90.

New season's lows were set in October through July to the lowest levels since last July. Heavy hog runs and weakness in cash hogs and most pork products at noon exerted pressure on futures. Slaughter was moderating, but still well above year ago levels.

Wholesale hams were off ½ to up 1 at 69 to 71½ cents a pound, f.o.b. riv er, which is the lowest since April 1978. Cash hogs were off 25 cents to $1.50 with the best top $47 per hundredweight at Peoria. Kill was 318,000 head. Receipts at the major markets today are expected to total 24,000 head.

Pork belly (bacon) futures closed 37 to 192 lower led by July on 7,063 lots. May and July were down 195 and new season's lows were set in 1979 contracts on aggressive local and commission house selling.

Prices tumbled to the lowest since March, 1979 with May off almost 24½ cents from the season's high. Continued weakness in cash hogs and bellies brought pressure with substantial hog kills leading to persistent storings.

Deliveries total 204 thus far. Wholesale bacon was unchanged to off 1 at 40½ to 43 cents a pound, f.o.b. river, which is a 1½ year low.

Small Grains Field Day Slated

VERNON (Special) — Rolling plains farmers and other interested persons are invited to a small grains field day Tuesday at the Texas A&M University Research Station five miles south of Chillicothe, according to Dr. Wayne G. McCully, resident research director.

The field day will begin with registration at 8:30 a.m. and will end by noon, according to Dr. Earl Gilmore, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station small grains breeder at the Chillicothe-Vernon Research and Extension Center

Visitors will see research conducted with wheat, barley and oats, Gilmore says. One of the highlights will be the chance to see and learn more about TAM W-105 and 106, two wheat varieties newly released by Texas A&M.

Other features will be a triticale test, a forage test and cropping systems involving small grains, Gilmore says.

The field day is co-sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The public also is invited to a tour of a wild oat control demonstration four miles southwest of the research station at the Marteen Wall farm. The wild oat demonstration will begin at 1:30 p.m.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat futures fell Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade after the government authorized the sale of more than 400 million bushels of wheat from farmers' storage.

Declines in wheat were cushioned somewhat by buying by commercial users.

The government late Wednesday said farmers could without penalty sell the 405 million bushels of wheat stored under a government loan program. The sales would be voluntary, however. Release of the grain was triggered by an increase in average cash wheat prices at the farm to more than the $3.29-a-bushel trigger price.

Soybean and corn futures rose. The slow rate of farmer sales of corn in the country helped buoy corn futures. Reports of a pickup in soybean oil sales encouraged some buying.

At the close, soybeans were 4½ to 10 cents higher, May $7.23½; wheat was 5 to 6 cents lower, May $3.61; corn was 1¾ to 3 cents higher, May $2.60¼; and oats were 1¾ to 2½ cents higher, May $1.49¼.

West Germans Protest Newsmen's Expulsion

BONN, West Germany (AP) — The West German government protested to the Soviet Embassy Thursday over the expulsion of a television correspondent and a cameraman from the Soviet Union, the foreign ministry said.

State Secretary Guenther Van Well told Soviet Ambassador Vladimir Semyonov the West German government was surprised by the Soviet action and asked that it be rescinded.

Robert Stengl, Moscow-based correspondent of West Germany's ZDF network, and cameraman Herbert Altmann were ordered Wednesday to leave the Soviet Union by the middle of next week. The Soviets accused both Germans of "doing everything to vilify the country" in their film reports. ZDF denied the accusations.

WORKER DIES IN VAT

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) — An employee at the Owens-Corning Fiberglas plant died when he fell into a chemical mixing vat during cleaning, the Santa Clara County coroner said. A coroner's deputy said Manuel Bello, 35, of San Jose died Wednesday of chest injuries. A company spokesman said Bello was steam-cleaning the tank while standing on a stairwell and fell into the vat, striking his head on a huge mixing blade. However, Deputy Fire Marshal Dick McGlashan said the workman was mistakenly turned on.

Avant-Garde Sound Play Opens

By MARY CAMPBELL

NEW YORK (AP) — "But you gotta know the territory" is more than a slogan for "The Music Man." It would be a good one for theater in general, as two plays, which opened off-Broadway Wednesday night show.

"Festival," which is sophomoric, might be relished in a setting where sophomores roam naturally, like a fraternity-sorority campus show or a summer resort staff putting on an evening for the guests. Instead it opened at Downstairs at City Center, where its air of amateurism, young energy and humor based on such devices as Elizabethan sentences alternated with slang don't add up to charm.

"Wake Up, It's Time To Go to Bed," an avant-garde "experiment in sound theater," opened at Joseph Papp's Public Theater complex. Keith Carradine, best known as a movie actor although he won an Academy Award for a song he wrote, "I'm Easy," was in the second half of the play.

Carradine is not a performer who can be accused of spending all his time being "commercial." At the preview we saw, 19 people left during the first half and of 37 who went out at intermission, 12 didn't come back.

The first half was two avant-garde classical music pieces, the first featuring jangling piano placed on a high, swaying platform. The second was a 25-minute percussion work, with four percussionists playing a variety of drums in a circle and turning to play glasses and crockery on a round table inside the circle. Their timing was terrific. Four string players on side platforms played and moaned.

The percussionists ended by donning masks as European, Arab, Chinese and Russian and dueling with drum sticks — in time — while handling money as a comment on the world. Like the hour and 45-minute "Festival," this seemed longer than it was.

Carradine was Orpheus, and Michael Pearlman wonderfully spouted long speeches full of big words as Boy Orpheus in a 45-minute avant-garde play. If we understood it, Orpheus, who starts as a briefcase-toting businessman, has hangups because his mother didn't do right and he can't get over losing Eurydice. He cries out to be able to love again. If others decipher something else, we wouldn't say they're wrong. We think it's fun to tackle the atonal and the obscure.

Carson Kievman "conceived, wrote and directed" the evening, which was commissioned by the Boston Symphony and Fromm Foundation for a concert at Tanglewood last summer.

Robin Taylor was the standout performer in the uneven cast of "Festival." Wayne Bryan directed; inventive scenery was by George Gizienski; merely acceptable songs were by Stephen Downs and Randal Martin. They also wrote the book, based on a picaresque French fable. Producers are Roger Berlind, Franklin R. Levy and Mike Wise.

SELDOM SEEN — Actress Loretta Young attended socialite hostess Diane Abramson's party in Beverly Hills, Calif., this week to welcome French clothes designer Ted Lapidus to the area. Miss Young is seldom seen attending "star" parties. She played in almost 100 films and won an academy award for best performance for "Farmers Daughter" in 1947. She is also known for her television series "Loretta Young Show" which ran from 1953-1961. (AP Laserphoto)

HY GARDNER HAS THE ANSWER:

Glad You Asked That!

Q: Was Rod Carew an abused child? And how does he feel about his parents today? — Pat Lynch, Long Beach, Calif.

A: Beatings from his father still sting in Carew's memory — and they've been estranged for many years. He has a deep love for his mother, however, and he affectionately dedicates his new autobiography to her. Though the newest California Angel earns $900,000 a year, his chief frustration is that he can't get his mother to retire. She now works at St. Luke's Hospital in New York — and used to work for $1 a day in Panama. At a "literary breakfast" stage for Rod at Manhattan's Nirvana restaurant, he hit a homer in humor. Explaining why he jogs indoors during the off-season, he smiled: "If someone sees a black guy running, they immediately think he's just stolen something!"

Q: Is that highly publicized Los Angeles divorce lawyer, Marvin Mitchelson, a married man? — Sam B., Philadelphia.

A: Yes. 'He's been married to Marcella for 18 years. She's a talented portrait painter who recently gave a one-woman show in Seattle.

Q: Isn't Rona Barett, the pint-sized gossiper and TV personality, a high school dropout? — M.D.R., Denver.

A: No. She says she won her high school diploma, then graduated from New York University at the age of 18 with a degree in communications. Always a movie buff, one of her early elbow-rubbing activities with a big celebrity was organizing Eddie's fan clubs. Her ambition was to become "the new Louella Parsons."

Q: Watching Humphrey Bogart on the later shows — how did he manage to make himself so believable in his roles? I don't remember reading anything about his ever going to acting school. — Sally Nuggent, Atlantic City, N.J.

A: Bogie felt that the audience was always a little ahead of the actor. "If a guy points a gun at you," he explained, "the audience knows you're afraid. You don't have to make faces. You just have to believe that you are the person you're playing and what is happening is happening to you.

"And, if a face like Ingrid Bergman's looks at you as though you're adorable," he once said, "everybody does. You don't have to act very much."

Q: Who did Groucho Marx say was the wittiest man he ever knew? — Bart B., Laramie, Wyo.

A: "George S. Kaufman," he once told us. Groucho once went to Philadelphia to see the tryout of a play the department store Bloomingdales was financing. After he saw the show, Groucho advised George to "close the play and keep the store open nights!" (Groucho, if still alive, would make Lee Marvin feel less chagrined about his landmark court sessions with Michelle Triola Marvin. Groucho groused about one of his three wives giving him a bad review when she sued after 22 years of marriage, complaining that the comedian was unfunny, cruel and inhumane with his practical jokes!)

Citizens Of First Nuclear City Remain Optimistic, Confident

By RICHARD H. GROWALD

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (UPI) — The first civic works seen on entering the world's oldest nuclear city is a graveyard.

In Oak Ridge the cemetery is admired for its greenery and not as a doomsday omen. Here Jane Fonda is more highly regarded as an actress than an activist.

There is concern in Oak Ridge; "Land for home building is becoming scarce," said realtor Parker Smallen.

"The only trouble with the city that gave birth to nuclear power is that it's sometimes boring," said Mrs. Helen Stelson, a mother of four.

"We've lived with nuclear reactors burping away for 35 years and we're still optimistic. The Three Mile Island accident in Pennsylvania caused no panic in the streets of Oak Ridge," said housewife Mrs. Jean Winslow.

"It's a matter of confidence," said City Manager Lyle Lacy. "The people of Oak Ridge deal with nuclear material and are confident of their ability to remain safe. I, myself, fret far more about the possibility of a gasoline or acid truck crashing on the highway here."

In World War II's most secret operation, the U.S. government bought up the land below Black Oak Ridge northwest of Knoxville, moved out the tobacco farmers and other occupants of 1,100 houses and fenced in and built a city that made the first nuclear bomb. The name Oak Ridge was chosen because it seemed innocent.

The barbed wire fence around the 3-by-7 mile bedroom city for the nuclear works came down 27 years ago. The look of innocence remains.

On the concrete walk of the American Museum of Science and Energy, where the city likes to stress it delves into solar and other new power sources as well as nuclear, a family of caterpillars creep. A sign points to the bird sanctuary.

The Girl Scouts are busy in the prepoured concrete civic center. Women in slacks nurse flower plants, the better to hide the Army barracks-like construction of the homes built for the physicists and troops in 1943. The Lions, the Rotarians, the Kiwanis, the Sertoma and even Women's Lib are alive and well in Oak Ridge.

"There's no sense of living beside a monster," Mrs. Winslow said. "We feel safe with K-25, X-10 and Y-12."

Oak Ridgers come to use the bureaucrats' designations of K-25, the plant that makes uranium so powerfully rich, X-10, the research center with the reactors finding new forms of coal and sun power, and Y-12, the factory making nuclear warheads and other doomsday devices.

In fact, it is to K-25, X-10 and Y-12, nestled like mountain moonshiners in hollows under four-story-high trees, that Oak Ridge folk would flee if things go boom. For they hold the shelters for humans in this first atomic age boom town.

It is a happenstance that has not happened in 36 years. "It's not simply a feeling that it can't happen here. It's a confidence in people," said city manager Lacy. "Note the beauty of Three Mile Island — a crisis solved by people. And here in Oak Ridge we are special people."

"We even sent Herman Robot, who can go into radiation where no human dare, to Three Mile Island as well as our doctors and physicists," said Lacy. "We radiate safety."

POT SHOTS

Teapots tend to be low and wide because tea leaves rise and expand in hot water. Coffee grounds, on the other hand, tend to sink to the bottom of the pot, leaving the pure clean brew at the top; thus coffee pots are generally tall and narrow.

Dean Finds Movie Unflattering

By PETER J. BOYER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Blind Ambition," CBS' Watergate miniseries based on books by John and Mo Dean, has its little afflictions — some awkward acting and irritating sidetrips to the private life and loves of John Dean.

But America's Watergate junkies — and I'm one of them — won't fuss. Call it Blind Addiction. You don't like it or dislike it. You just watch it, glued.

The first episode of the four-night, eight-hour miniseries airs Sunday. Martin Sheen as Dean sets the scene by telling his story to lawyer Charles Shaffer. Through flashbacks, we're reintroduced to that old Watergate gang — Nixon, Haldeman, Ehrlichman, Mitchell, Magruder,Liddy, Colson and the rest.

It may not be artful but it is fascinating, an inside, critical look at the paranoia that polluted the Nixon White House. And Dean's story is the best of the insiders' Watergate yarns because he turned rat and got booted out of the gang, thereby removing the need to hide any blemishes when painting portraits.

Haldeman is portrayed as being ruthless, Nixon as being a bit unsure, Liddy as being just plain crazy (holding his hand over a flame to prove his macho to his men). It's scary, and real. The Oval Office confrontations that occurred when the walls started crumbling down are taken verbatim from the White House tapes, every grunt, moan and stumble (except for some blasphemy excised by censors).

Dean's account, of course, suggests that Dean was the cool head, the one who easily recognized the absurdity in such projects as the Huston plan (buggings, opening personal mail, etc.) and the planned bombing of the Brookings Institute.

But Dean is no hero, even in this movie.

"It was unflattering," he said in an interview after screening the movie. Seeing his meetings with Nixon on film "was a very strange feeling," he says.

"I was doing what a lot of people do with their bosses, being a subtle sycophant. And it turned my stomach, just as it did when I heard the tape."

Unfortunately, Watergate intrigue is not all we get here. There is much — too much — John and Mo Dean. John and Mo meeting, John and Mo moving in together, John womanizing, Mo complaining, John and Mo splitting up. They should have saved Mo's book for a two-hour movie of its own (and then shelved the movie).

And Torn is a little bothersome as Nixon. Exaggerating Nixon's self-conscious mannerisms to the point of caricature, Torn is like the jokester at parties who always wants to do his Nixon imitation.

Get past those problems, though, and you've got a Watergate feast.

Network Selective In Choosing Material From Spy Novel

By JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — It was an old Hollywood trick to buy a best-selling book for the title and make minimum use of the property.

NBC hasn't gone quite that far with "A Man Called Intrepid," but it certainly has been "select" in picking material from author Sir William Stephenson's slice of wartime espionage life.

There's also something added — romance, well spiced with scenes of Gestapo torture of a woman spy that ought to appeal to the worst in the audience.

David Niven, marvelously wry and charming as always, stars in the mini-series, which will be broadcast May 20, 7-9 p.m., Central time, and May 21-22, 8-10 p.m.

Stephenson was a wealthy Canadian contacted by Winston Churchill in 1938 while Neville Chamberlain was still prime minister. Stephenson was nicknamed "Intrepid" by Churchill, who asked him to serve without pay as the head of an unofficial secret British Intelligence office in New York. William "Wild Bill" Donovan acted as liaison between Stephenson and President Franklin Roosevelt.

There are constant references to FDR's likely impeachment if the "Intrepid" connection were discovered — an unlikely event as brought out by Stephenson in the book, and more unlikely with its constant repetition in the movie for television.

Also, sometimes it's hard to tell who the real enemy is — A. Hitler and the Nazis or J. Edgar Hoover and the FBI. Oddly, much of the show is based on European operations although Stephenson's central theme was the New York setup.

Ignoring the dissimilarities between book and mini-series, the television version presents a fast-moving espionage thriller.

There's heavy emphasis on the spy activities of "Madelaine" (Barbara Hershey), a spy who in real life was captured by the Gestapo, and her fictional romance with Michael York, who starts out a spy instructor and eventually tries to blow up Hitler's atom bomb experiment in Norway.

True drama comes when Enigma, the cipher machine stolen from the Germans, helps the British crack a Nazi code only to learn of the planned bombing raid on Coventry and its strictly civilian population. To warn Coventry would be to alert the Germans that their code was broken.

Pope Celebrates Abbey's Liberation From Germans

MONTE CASSINO, Italy (UPI) — Pope John Paul II flew by helicopter today to the mountaintop abbey of Monte Cassino to celebrate the 35th anniversary of the fortress' capture by the Allies from the Germans in one of World War II's epic battles.

After landing in his helicopter in front of the imposing abbey, built 1,414 years ago south of Rome, the pope drove by car to the nearby Polish cemetery and said Mass for 1,049 of his countrymen who died in the fighting for the Benedictine abbey that the Germans turned into a fortress.

With the pope was Cardinal Stefan Wyszynski, 78, primate of Poland. The occasion also marked the Pope's 59th birthday.

Greeting the former Cardinal Karol Wojtyla of Krakow at the helicopter pad were about 5,000 Poles, among them veterans of the two Polish divisions that finally captured the fortress abbey from the Germans May 14, 1944, in hand-to-hand fighting.

Many of the veterans of the 3rd Carpathian and 5th Krasowa Polish divisions that made the final assault along with British and French troops under the command of U.S. Gen. Mark Clark turned out in the same uniforms they wore for the bloody battle 35 years ago.

The pope said Mass from a simple unadorned altar overlooking the cemetery and the grave of Gen. Wladyslaw Anders who commanded the Polish troops.

ABC Redeems TV Prostitute

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Prostitution, generally credited with being the world's oldest profession, may be around eons in the future if the producers of "Battle Star Galactica" are on the right star track.

The pilot show of the television series, which bombed in the ratings, is currently in theatrical release. The producers of the spage age show are optimistically in search of paying customers who refused to watch the show for free on the tube.

Universal Studios is taking the flyer based on the tremendous business the movie version has done in Europe and Canada where the series was never shown on TV.

If nothing else, the Universal production did provide television with a new character, a hooker of the future ingeniously identified as a "socialator."

Laurett Spang, a fetching and willowy blonde, portrays Cassiopea, a shady lady in intergalactic trade. Cassiopea is, presumably, an example of social stability in the upper echelons of the ancient craft of prostitution.

When all else on earth as we know it has disappeared, attractive call girls have undeniably survived, in the minds of TV producers at least.

ABC-TV, however, got cold feet when viewers telephoned and mailed in objections to a hooker being featured in primetime, fearing the younger generation would be corrupted by Cassiopea's means of livelihood.

Miss Spang takes a different view.

"In the three-hour pilot it was made crystal clear that Cassiopea was a high class hooker," she said. "They had taken the world's oldest profession and projected it several centuries into the future.

"After the pilot the producers were prevailed upon to make Cassiopea more respectable. So they bleeped out any further reference to her as a 'socialator.' They made her a 'medteck,' sort of a glorified space nurse.

"I went immediately from an intergalactic hooker to a medical technician, which I think was a terrible mistake. The minute they put a white uniform on me I became just another nurse.

"They left in the dialogue where I describe a socialator as an honorable profession. But they cut out the scene where Dirk Benedict comes to me and says he has a tension headache and I tell him to make an appointment.

"They deleted a scene with Dirk, shirtless, lying down beside me. They made him put on a shirt and we played the scene sitting up.

"I was made to dub the term 'medteck' for 'socialator.' The word really didn't synchronize with my lip movements. It's not half as much fun playing a nurse as a hooker. But that's the way it goes.

"The funny part of it is, I got letters from college coeds around the country who were delighted that Cassiopea was an accepted part of society in the space future.

"We gave a certain amount of respectability to prostitutes. Cassiopea was no sleazy street walker. She was an innocent girl brought into the profession through generations of her family. We assumed that in the future the trade is passed on from mother to daughter for generations."

Laurette, a native of Ann Arbor, Mich., is no newcomer to playing ladies of the night. She portrayed hookers in espisodes of "The Streets of San Francisco" and "Charlie's Angels."

Her knowledge of fallen women otherwise is sketchy.

"When I first went to New York, I lived in a hotel on Lexington Avenue," she said. "I'd saw the hookers in th elevators and called my mother and told her I wanted to come home. But I stuck it out.

"A few years ago I attended a Hollywood party where there were some high class call girls. The host hired them for the night for his friends. I kept staring at them to see what might set prostitutes apart from other women. There just weren't any outward signs.

"I suppose there's a general acceptance of high class call girls among the jet set. But I don't think they'll ever be widely accepted socially in most American communities.

"Maybe there will be such women as acceptable socialators a few centuries from now."

Critic Says Co-Stars Sparkle

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — Until April 29, Tom and Dick Smothers played the male leads in a musical comedy about mate-swapping, "I Love My Wife." All the mates were white then. Now, they're all blacks.

The new version, which bowed Tuesday on Broadway, hasn't really changed much otherwise. It's still set in Trenton, N.J., and still gives failed orgies a bad name.

One co-star, Lawrence-Hilton Jacobs, gets top billing, no doubt because he was a regular in ABC's since-axed "Welcome Back, Kotter," and someone felt a TV name might lure Broadway patrons.

(Someone should realize TV is why patrons go to Broadway.)

He shares the show with three fine stage regulars — Hattie Winston, Larry Riley and Marjorie Barnes, the last a particularly good singer and comic actress, even in this leer festival.

In case you missed it on the first go, it involves two married couples, Alvin and Cleo (Jacobs and Miss Winston) and Larry and Monica (Riley and Miss Barne).

Alvin is considered 30 years behind the sexual times by his pal, Larry, simply because he never has engaged in a menage a trois, which is French for crowded bed.

Larry, a sophisticate, has been abed with two women before meeting and marrying Monica. He says "people are having multiple love experiences all over the place...two is out."

Alvin is shocked. But he is urged to persuade Cleo to share their bed with another woman. When he suggests this trois business to her, she is shocked. Then she thinks it might be fun.

That she is thinking in terms of two men is a big surprise, to Alvin if not the audience.

But in time, both couples wind up in bed on Christmas Eve at the home of Larry and Monica — but not before Monica first has been properly shocked by the proposal they all change partners and, um, well, not dance, I'll tell you.

The Yuletide exchange of sexual gifts fails to occur, of course. Alvin and Cleo go home, arm in arm. The end. It takes forever.

Jacobs, who replaced another TV name, Jimmie "Good Times" Walker, when the latter said he was ill and bowed out, handles his Broadway debut passably, though his dancing is a tad weak.

The actor, once with the Negro Ensemble Company before decamping to Hollywood, gets by without embarrassing himself, but seems torn between mugging a lot or not at all and tends to muffle song lyrics.

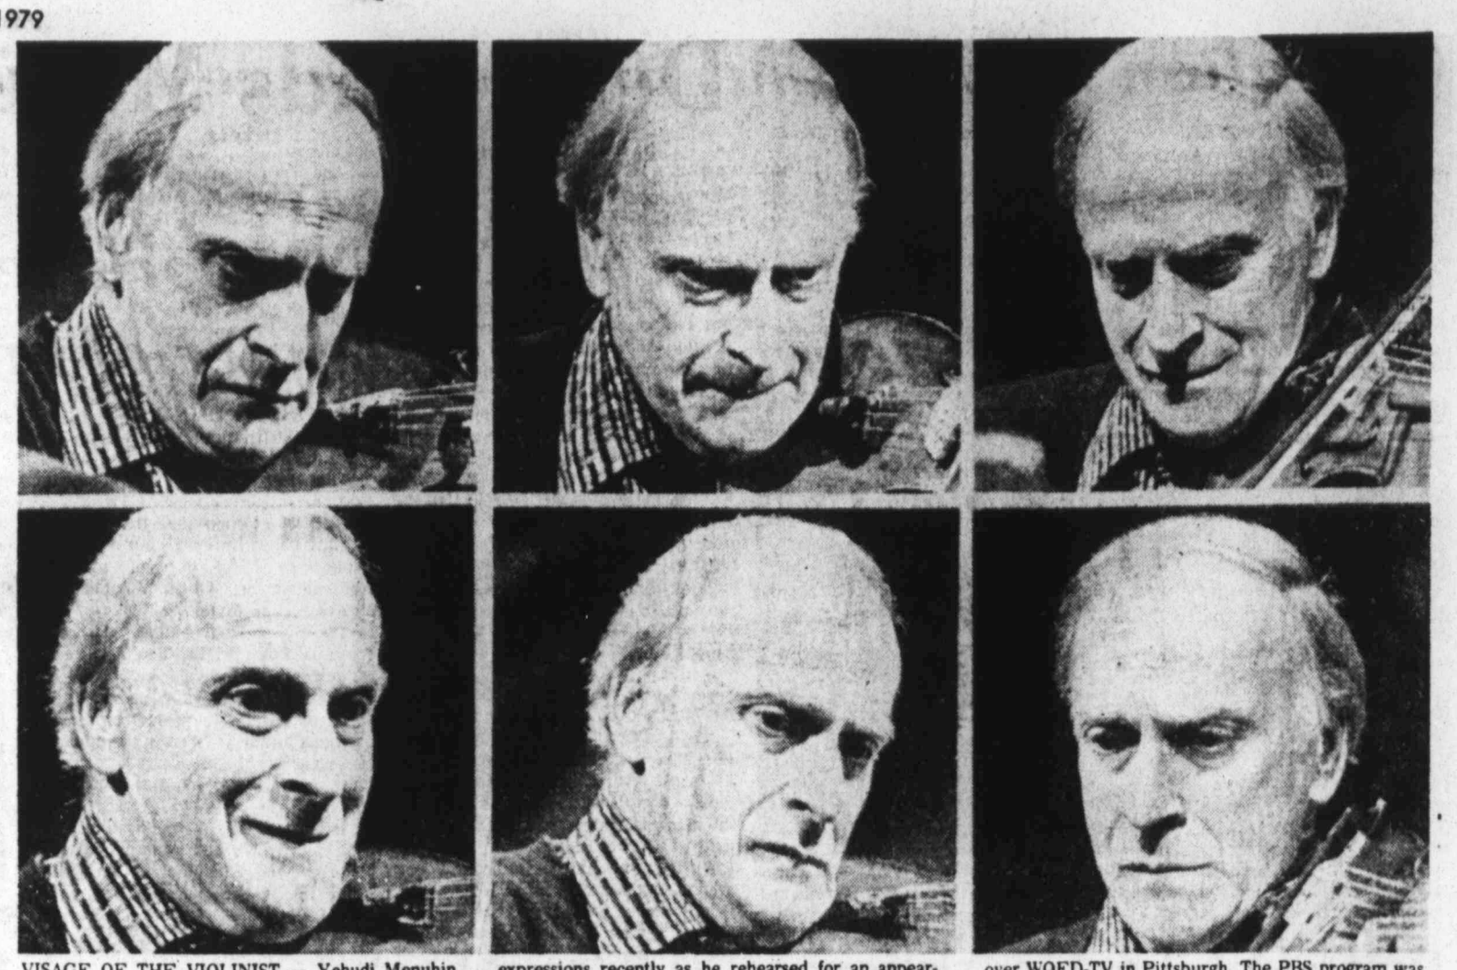

The show's major sparkle comes from his co-stars. All are backed by a sprightly four-piece band that pops in and out of various scenes in various costumes, from Santa Claus suits to pajamas.

The effort as a whole seems too heavy-handed. It lacks the pixie spirit of the Smothers Brothers. It's almost as if tubas were sent in to play the usual piccolo parts.

For the record, this new version of "I Love My Wife" again is directed by Gene Saks. The book and lyrics are still by Michael Stewart and the 13 songs are still by Cy Coleman.

And it's still a show that takes a one-gag idea to bed, flails around a while and then falls asleep.

Low birthweight and infant death rates are higher among mothers who have no prenatal care.

Operation Prime Time Bringing Newest Romance Novel To TV

By PETER J. BOYER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Another of those lusty romance-adventure TV movies is upon us — John Jakes' "The Rebels," the continuing saga of Phillip Charboneaux, whom we originally met as "The Bastard."

As was the case with "The Bastard," "The Rebels" is a product of Operation Prime Time, a consortium of independent TV stations banded together to produce large-scale, prime-time programming that can compete with the networks.

So far, the thing has worked. The first four Operation Prime Time efforts — "Testimony of Two Men," "The Immigrants," "Evening in Byzantium" and "The Bastard" — showed quite well, actually topping the networks in ratings in some markets.

"The Rebels," by the way, may have already been shown in your city. Many stations are beginning the miniseries tonight, some next week.

"The Rebels" is the stuff Operation Prime Time specializes in — the supermarket book-rack comes to TV. Slick, straightforward drama, light, fluffy dialogue, simple plots. Like "The Bastard," the newest offering is loaded with cleavage, costumes and manners.

This time around, Phillip Charboneaux is known as Philip Kent. He's the illegitimate son of a French nobleman, who's fled to America to escape a troubled past. Lucky for the story, the American Revolution just happens to be brewing, and Philip jumps in with both boots.

All romance novels have to have a lovable rascal, and this has three. Philip is joined by another aristocrat with a past, Virginian Judson Fletcher. He brings along his backwoods pal, Eph Tait, who adds some earth to the stew.

Judson, says Eph, "has the kinds of style that gets him shot at by husbands and fathers." In fact, much of this movie is Jud shooting and getting shot at. The rest is largely Jud doing the things that prompted the shootings.

One thing about this type of entertainment — the folks die well. In the beginning, Jud is challenged by a wronged husband. They duel, but Jud lets the cuckold shoot first. When he misses, he goes for another gun and fires again, killing Jud's nice-guy second.

Jud blasts the guy, then runs to his dying friend just in time to hear him say with his last breath: "They weren't very honorable, were they?"

This isn't the only trouble Jud's romantic nature has wrought. His philandering cost him Peggy McLean, the love of his life, who married another man because she couldn't take the scandal caused when Jud was caught with his pants down, so to speak.

So, loveless, and being a black sheep and all, Jud joins the Virginia brigade and heads north to fight the bloody British. He and Eph meet Philip, and the three made the War for Independance an excuse for some merry adventures.

They save each other's lives a lot, get drunk and meet pretty women.

Not a lot of substance here, but substance isn't the objective. Operation Prime Time knows that John Jakes is the only writer in history to have three books on the New York Times best-seller list in a year. And when the network competition is the likes of "Supertrain" or "Laverne and Shirley," you don't moan about substance.

FURRY SINGS THE BLUES — Venerable bluesman Furry Lewis, at age 86, still plays the clubs, showing off his unusual bottleneck playing style. Despite failing eyesight, Furry says he is having a good time. "The older I get, the bigger fool I get about music," he says. (AP Laserphoto)

Alda Offers Advice To New Doctors

NEW YORK (AP) — Alan Alda is an actor. Hawkeye Pierce is an Army surgeon. The two of them have some advice for new doctors.

"The head bone is connected to the heart bone — and don't let them come apart," Alda told the graduating class of Columbia University's College of Physicians and Surgeons this week.

Alda — who plays Dr. Pierce on television's popular "M-A-S-H" — was chosen to speak at commencement by the students. He was received warmly and made an honorary member of the 139-member class.

Alda noted he had few qualifications to speak at a prestigious medical school.

"In the first place, I'm not a great fan of blood. I don't mind people's having it, I just don't enjoy seeing them wear it," he said.

But, he said, he does share some characteristics with physicians. "We both study the human being. And we both try to offer relief — you through medicine and I through laughter. ... And we both charge a lot."

More seriously, he said he believed he was asked to speak because the students identified with the "very human kind of doctoring" practiced by Pierce — the character he portrays in CBS's series of an Army medical unit during the Korean war.

"He has a sense of humor and yet he's serious ... he's impertinent and yet he has feeling ... he's human enough to make mistakes, and yet he hates death enough to push himself past his own limits to save lives," Alda said.

The 33-year-old actor challenged the new doctors to "put people first. And I include in that not just people, but what exists between people."

"Where does money come on your list? ... How much will it guide you in relating to your patients? Do patients in a clinic need less of your attention than private patients?" he asked.

This, Alda said, was his "prescription" for the doctors.

"I've given you kind of a big pill to swallow, but I think it'll make you feel better," he said. "And if not — well, look, I'm only human."

Drama Critics Cast Ballots

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Drama Critics have voted "The Elephant Man" as the best play of the 1978-79 season and "Sweeney Todd" as the best musical.

Nineteen of the 21 members participated in voting this week at the Algonquin Hotel.

"The Elephant Man," by Bernard Pomerance, opened here as an off-Broadway play in January and then opened April 19 on Broadway. It is the story of a deformed man in 19th century London who is rescued from the streets and brought to a hospital where he becomes a celebrity.

Based on the true story of John Merrick, it stars Philip Anglim in the title role.

"Sweeney Todd," with a score by Stephen Sondheim, received 14 votes on the first ballot. A bloody tale of revenge, the musical stars Angela Lansbury and Len Cariou.

Toxic Fumes Cause Omaha Evacuation

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — A fire at an Omaha chemical company sent a least a dozen persons to the hospital for treatment of eye irritation, smoke inhalation and minor injuries and caused evacuation of 15 downtown blocks as a brisk wind pushed toxic fumes over the area.

The fire broke out about 2 p.m. Wednesday at the Midlands Chemical Co. and burned out of control for several hours. The cause of the blaze was not immediately determined, but firemen said it was concentrated on the second and third stories of the building where sulphur was stored.
