In Brief

Flood relief

ST. LOUIS (AP) — President Clinton signed a $5.7 billion flood relief bill today and honored 18 good Samaritans of the Midwest disaster, including a lifesaving maid and a jet skiing hero.

"These people are ordinary people, but what they did was most extraordinary," the president said of the heroes and heroines.

The bill earmarks $2.3 billion for disaster payments to farmers through the Commodity Credit Corp. and $2 billion to the Federal Emergency Management Agency to repair public facilities and housing.

Clinton also signed a bill allowing federal regulators to waive some legal requirements for financial institutions serving flood-ravaged areas.

Flanked by the White House "heroes," Clinton commended FEMA, the relief agency criticized for moving too slowly in past disasters.

Economic development forum tonight

At least two proposals will be presented this evening in a meeting called to develop a master plan for economic development.

Interested persons are invited to a community meeting set for 6:30 p.m. today in the Fine Arts Theatre on the Western Texas College campus.

The session was called by Scurry County's board of development following a lengthy BCD session held July 21 at which a need for a master plan was discussed with representatives of the chamber of commerce.

Most groups have agreed on the need for an economic development director, often referred to as a "point man" for the community.

Focus of tonight's meeting is expected to be which group or groups should hire, set policy and supervise the director's activity.

At one point, the chamber of commerce board had sought $33,000 in funding from the city motel fund to hire another individual for tourism so that the chamber manager could spend more time in economic development. In July, however, the chamber withdrew its request.

However, a letter sent to chamber members dated Monday indicates that the chamber has returned to its original plan which calls for chamber manager Ricky Fritz to spend full-time on economic development. The letter indicates the chamber would still want city funds to help finance tourism efforts.

One organization with sufficient funds for hiring an economic development director would be the city's Development Corporation of Snyder. Mayor Paul Zeck's proposal calls for a joint effort between the DCOS and the BCD.

BCD Chairman Max von Roeder said the purpose of today's meeting would be for anyone to put forth a proposal, or an amendment to an existing proposal.

County begins balancing expenditures to revenues

After more than two weeks of wading through budget requests, Scurry County commissioners court this morning began the difficult task of finding sufficient revenues to balance expenditures.

The budget shortfall could be as high as $340,000 or as little as $166,000 depending on the tax rate used and based on current data.

Still pending are several unknowns — including the joint services agreement with the county, needed space for adult probation, the senior center and the jail.

Commissioner Roy Idom pressed for keeping the 1994 budget within the effective tax rate of 48.43 cents. Last year's tax rate was 44.31. The effective rate is the rate required to raise the same revenue based on declining values of some $60 million.

The effective tax rate would generate revenues of $3.47 million while keeping the 1994 rate at an increase of three percent, 49.88 cents, would generate tax revenues of $3.59 million.

Commissioners also discussed additional revenue sources to include a tax on telephones and a $5 increase in license tags. Even though the $5 fee would generate $75,000, commissioners generally rejected that idea as a revenue source.

The two largest budget increase items are a 25 percent jump in employee health insurance, with the county planning to earmark approximately $50,000 for the self-insurance fund.

Another major item in the budget is $65,000 for a new computer system. Commissioner Idom, even though the court has voted to install the system, said he still believed it was a bad time to buy the computer.

County Judge Bob Doolittle countered "a computer is just as important as a road grader" in doing work efficiently. In answer to Idom, the judge agreed the computer system would not eliminate employees, but the judge insisted it would prevent the necessity of hiring more people.

Noting that many of the budget items are "out of our control," Judge Doolittle said that part of the budget shortfall could be made up by taking funds out of reserves.

Billy Bob McMullan, representing the Scurry County Historical Commission, requested $1,440 — the same amount as granted in 1993.

Still pending is the possible utilization of the sheriff's living quarters as space for the city police department. Commissioners have said that part of the former PD building could be used for adult probation, saving the county approximately $70,000 to find and renovate a building near the courthouse.

Sheriff Keith Collier told commissioners that he would lose approximately $7,000 in benefits, but told the Snyder Daily News Wednesday afternoon that he had never made a housing allowance request. He did however, ask the court for a travel allowace rather than buying a new vehicle which is in the budget at $14,500.

Snyder resident Jeanne Bullard appeared before commissioners to voice opposition to a housing allowance for the sheriff, saying it would set a precedent. She noted that no other county officials get a housing allowance and concluded by saying "he should be glad he's had it all these years."

Commissioners spent Wednesday afternoon discussing whether the county should compensate Sheriff Collier in exchange for him vacating living quarters at the county jail.

Feelings were mixed among the court. The opinion was voiced that compensation may be justified because sheriffs in Scurry County have lived in the jail for years and consider that part of their salary. It was also noted, however, that the sheriff's quarters were located at the jail because the sheriff was also the jailer. Since the sheriff is no longer a jailer, compensation should not be expected.

The city and county have reached a tentative agreement to move dispatching from the police department to the jail and reclassify the dispatchers as jailers. This is necessary because the county is otherwise faced with having to Garcia pre-trial...

Motion to suppress statement is denied

Five pre-trial motions filed by lawyers representing a teacher charged with indecency with a child were denied Wednesday in 132nd District Court.

Among the motions filed by attorneys representing Floyd Garcia Jr., was an effort to supress the defendant's statement to a police investigator. Judge Gene Dulaney denied the motion as well as a motion to quash a Scurry County grand jury's indictment of the 44-year-old former Stanfield Elementary teacher.

Judge Dulaney also denied requests by the defendant to take video depositions of two juvenile witnesses, and to have a psychiatrist hired by the defendant to examine the alleged victim.

The only witness Wednesday was Snyder Police Sgt. Kevin Fritz, the investigating officer who took Garcia's statement.

Garcia is charged with fondling a 7-year-old student in his classroom at Stanfield Elementary. The second grade teacher was placed on paid administrative leave by the school district on the evening of Feb. 16. Last month, school board trustees accepted his resignation.

Wednesday's action in district court wrapped up pre-trial rulings in the case. Judge Dulaney had ruled on a number of other motions in a previous hearing. One motion filed by the defendant — a request to move the trial out of Scurry County — was eventually withdrawn.

Garcia's trial has been set for Sept. 13, pending rulings on the remaining motions.

Garcia is being represented by Mary Alice McLarty of Lubbock.

Council to mull shared services

Snyder city council, meeting at 5:30 p.m. today, is expected to give its approval to the proposed shared services contract with Scurry County.

Scurry County commissioners unanimously approved the agreement on Monday. When both groups okay the proposal, it will be sent to attorneys for drafting into a legal document.

Services included in the contract are fire protection, ambulance service, 911 dispatching and jail.

The contract is the only item on today's agenda.

Tobacco-free policy on trustees' agenda

Snyder public schools trustees will consider a policy establishing a tobacco-free district and seek approval of lunch eligibility guidelines, interlocal agreements and personnel recommendations during their August meeting this evening.

Trustees will tour Stanfield Elementary and Snyder Junior High School campuses at 6 p.m. The board meeting is set for 7 o'clock in the administration board room.

A budget workshop will follow the board meeting.

The tobacco-free policy is a recommendation by the District Educational Improvement Committee, based on a district-wide employee survey taken during 1992-93. The survey indicates that 203 employees favor some sort of tobacco-free policy while 53 disapprove changing the present policy which allows smoking in designated areas at the individual campuses.

Trustees will consider implementing one of several policy changes. The basic recommendation is to prohibit the use of tobacco on all district-owned or leased property, including playgrounds, parking lots, gyms and stadiums. A key choice for the board is whether to approve a policy which would prohibit employees only from using tobacco products, or whether to include the general public as well.

The improvement committee also requests that the district make available for employees a tobacco cessation intervention program, including full or partial reimbursement for participation in a medical program.

The board will consider approval of appraisers and the appraisal calendar; free and reduced price lunch eligibility guidelines; a HOBBS Accelerated Education Cooperative interlocal agreement; a health insurance company; and Region XIV Education Service Center contracts.

Personnel recommendations include one resignation and a recommendation to hire two instructors at the junior high.

Also on the agenda is a request from a parent to address the board concerning high school cheerleading.

Presentation of certificates to school nurses who received the Excellence in Texas School Health Award and to SJHS Principal Wendell Sollis for outstanding effort in TAAS testing is also on the agenda.

The SDN Column — By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "The problem with adversity is that some people pray for a bushel, but carry a cup."

Bill Looney, retired from full-time work with the 37th St. Church of Christ, has since been spending almost full-time working with inmates at the Price Daniel unit and in the local jail.

Many have been impressed with his work and the rapport he has developed with many of the men. We've observed first-hand the respect some of the folks who attend his classes have for him.

In addition to Bible study, Bill and his coworkers also counsel inmates about characteristics that will make one successful when they re-enter the free world.

Like all of us, Bill also likes to receive a compliment, and he thinks the following was meant to be one. He had given a vigorous and thoughtful presentation.

On conclusion one young man rushed up to express his appreciation and said, "Every time you teach is better than the next one."

Some preachers are long-winded, and others try to get their sermons done before the audience gets done listening.

Miller Robinson, long-time Colonial Hill Baptist minister, is one of those who believes that you shouldn't be too windy. When Miller is absent, he admits to arranging for more verbose speakers so that the flock will appropriately appreciate Miller when he returns.

He told us about a preacher who was well-known for long and tiring sermons. The wordy preacher must have been accurately reading the audience when he said:

"My sermon may be long, but I've got something important to say. I don't mind you looking at your watches, but I want you to know I'm a little sensitive when you shake 'em to see if they're still running."

Movie classification board disbanded

DALLAS (AP) — After nearly three decades of controversy, the last local movie review board in the country has been scrapped by the Dallas City Council.

The council did away with the board by a 9-6 vote on Wednesday, after more than two hours of speeches and debate.

The council approved an amendment allowing the city to consider re-establishing the board should a movie industry hotline be discontinued or changed. The free hotline was approved last month by the Motion Picture Association of America Inc.

But even supporters of the Dallas Motion Picture Classification Board said they doubted the city will ever reinstitute a local ratings system.

"This is a closed issue," said Fred E. Aurbach, a dentist who was chairman of the Dallas board. "They have signaled to the world that Dallas no longer cares and is a partner with Hollywood in the war on America."

Mayor Steve Bartlett, who voted to kill the board, said that like many board supporters, he believes that the country lacks a moral compass and that "society is influenced by the mass media." But Bartlett said the private sector can do the same job at no cost to taxpayers.

Supporters of the Dallas movie review board said they fear the film industry will abandon the voluntary phone line once the city board is scrapped.

"I'm confident if the board goes away, these efforts of the motion picture industry will go away, and I think anyone who thinks differently is naive," said council member Glenn Box.

Board opponents, meanwhile, said the money could be better spent on other things, especially in light of the city's financial plight.

"There's enough urgently needed items like filling potholes in the streets and helping people who need a hand without spending money on things like this," District 5 resident Burnie Glenn told the council.

"Sixty thousand dollars is two police officers on the street," said council member Domingo Garcia. "The crime rate in Dallas is higher than several cities that don't have movie review boards."

Board supporters on the City Council, meanwhile, complained that their opponents inflated cost estimates.

The movie board members serve without pay, but city staff provides administrative assistance and legal representation for challenges from theaters and movie distributors.

Supporters were particularly miffed when opponents estimated that staff time and legal work done for the board could cost taxpayers up to $60,000 a year.

Others said, cost aside, they simply objected to city involvement in movie business.

"In my heart, I don't believe that government should be in the business of rating films," said council member Bob Stimson.

At the Inwood Theater, which had been fined for failing to submit four films to the board for screening, patrons agreed.

Sam Betts of Flower Mound had just left the film version of Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing," when he was told of the movie board's demise.

"Any bunch of bozos who would get upset because Shakespeare wasn't submitted needs to be disbanded," Betts said. "They did some really stupid things."

But Duane Landry, 60, was one of few people at the Inwood who regretted seeing the movie board go.

"There are some people who want to know how the movies rate," said Landry of North Dallas. "It's mostly for parents more than anything else, and I think they would want to have the board around."

Turnout was stronger among board supporters than detractors, but opponents said about 10,000 postcards were mailed to council members from people who wanted the board abolished.

Two SHS grads get scholarships

AUSTIN — Two Snyder High School graduates have been awarded scholarships through the Texas Interscholastic League Foundation.

Joellen Kay King received a one year $500 Really Useful Group, P.L.C. scholarship. The Really Useful Group, P.L.C. scholarship is awarded to the best actor in the Conference 4A University of Interscholastic League Academic State Meet One-Act Play contest.

Samuel David Grimes received a one year $500 Texas Coca-Cola Bottlers scholarship. This year the Texas Coca-Cola Bottlers awarded seven grants to students who have participated in the University Interscholastic League academic state meet contests and who have compiled an outstanding record of academic and extracurricular achievement.

King, a 1993 graduate of SHS, placed first in the UIL Academic State Meet in 1993 in One-Act Play. She placed second in 1990 and 1992 in the same event. King ranked sixth in her graduating class and was a member of the National Honor Society, Student Council, Fellowship of Christian Athletes, school choir and the varsity volleyball and track teams. She was named Female Athlete of the Year and was co-founder and co-president of Students Uniting with Nature Environmental Club.

King plans to attend Abilene Christian University in the fall.

Grimes, also a 1993 graduate of SHS, placed first in the UIL Academic State Meet in 1993 in one-act play and second in 1992 in the same event. He was a member of the National Honor Society, drama club and the school choir. Grimes was named best actor at the state one-act play contest and received the award for Outstanding Choir Student in 1992 and 1993.

Grimes plans to attend the University of Texas at Austin and major in liberal arts.

This year the TILF awarded 354 new awards and renewed 250 awards for a total of 604 scholarships for 1993-1994 with a value of $775,000. Recipients may attend any approved college or university in Texas.

Pay as much as is necessary

I would like to start by Americanizing a poem, the author of which is unknown.

In Boston she was Brenda,
She was Wendy down in Worth,
In Cambridge she was Candida,
The sweetest girl on earth.
In Seattle she was Stella,
The pick of all the bunch,
But down on his expenses,
She was Gas and Oil and Lunch.

It is all right if you can get away with it. But sometimes winning a cheap victory early leads to an expensive defeat later — an IRS audit. This can happen in a bridge deal too — as in today's.

West led his fourth-highest heart. Declarer called for dummy's jack, which won the trick. A diamond to South's king was followed by three rounds of clubs. West won with the 10 and cashed the club queen before exiting with a spade. Declarer won, took his club winner and continued with two more rounds of spades, but East won, cashed the spade queen and pushed a heart through. South could take only eight tricks: two spades, two hearts, one diamond and three clubs.

"Sorry, partner," said South. "I was worried that the diamond blockage would kill the contract."

"I hope you won't mind my saying, but it was your penny-pinching that defeated the contract, not the blockage. Play low from dummy at trick one and win in hand with your ace. Then overtake the diamond king with dummy's ace, and continue diamonds from the top until you have driven out the queen. Win any return and play a heart, forcing an entry to the dummy. You win 11 tricks instead of eight."

Good potluck veggie casserole

By NANCY BYAL, Food Editor
For AP Special Features

Satisfy a horde of hungry picnickers with a colorful side dish. This one is brimming with good-for-you pasta, garden-fresh vegetables and herbs. Some Swiss cheese gives it a creamy taste of Grandma's vegetable casseroles, yet the sauce is made with skim milk and a dab of margarine. To tote the hot casserole to your potluck, wrap it in a heavy bath towel and stow it in a plastic-foam container. It will stay hot for up to 2 hours.

SUMMER VEGETABLE CASSEROLE

3 cups green beans, bias-sliced into 2-inch pieces
21/2 cups medium bow tie pasta (about 6 ounces)
2 medium yellow summer squash, cut into thin strips (3 cups)
2 cups sliced fresh mushrooms
1 cup chopped onion
3 tablespoons snipped fresh basil or 11/2 teaspoons dried basil, crushed
2 tablespoons snipped fresh oregano or 1 teaspoon dried oregano, crushed
2 tablespoons margarine or butter
2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
21/4 cups skim milk
1/2 cup shredded process Swiss cheese (2 ounces)
1 to 2 tablespoons Dijon-style mustard
Few drops bottled hot pepper sauce
4 to 6 plum tomatoes, diagonally sliced (about 2 cups)
1 cup soft bread crumbs (about 11/2 slices)
1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese

In a 4-quart saucepan or Dutch oven cook green beans, loosely covered, in 8 cups lightly salted boiling water for 5 minutes. Add the bow tie pasta. Return to boiling and cook for 5 minutes more. Add squash; return to boiling and cook gently for 5 minutes more or until vegetables and pasta are tender. Drain. Set aside.

Meanwhile, in a large skillet, cook mushrooms, onion, basil and oregano in hot margarine or butter until tender. Stir in flour, salt and pepper. Add milk all at once. Cook and stir over medium heat until slightly thickened and bubbly. Stir in Swiss cheese, mustard and hot pepper sauce; cook over low heat for 1 minute more.

Gently toss cheese sauce with pasta-vegetable mixture. Add tomatoes; toss gently. Spoon mixture into a 3-quart casserole or 13- by 9- by 2-inch baking dish. For topping, stir together bread crumbs and Parmesan cheese. (You may cover and chill casserole and crumb mixture separately at this point for up to two days.) Sprinkle topping over casserole. Bake casserole, uncovered, in a 400-degree F oven for 20 to 25 minutes or until heated through (35 minutes, if chilled). Makes 10 to 12 side-dish servings.

Note: If desired, halve the ingredient amounts for recipe; bake in an 8-inch square pan.

NFL roundup...

Injuries down NFL starters

by The Associated Press

Bring on the reserves.

With the usual war of attrition in NFL training camps, such teams as the Minnesota Vikings, San Diego Chargers and Dallas Cowboys are trying to fill holes in their lineups left by injuries.

The Vikings will find out next week if top running back Terry Allen will be lost for the season because of a knee injury. The Vikings said Wednesday that Allen will undergo arthroscopic surgery on his right knee Aug. 20.

If Allen's anterior cruciate ligament is found only to be stretched, it will be repaired by the arthroscopic procedure and he could return in a matter of weeks. But if a tear is found, major reconstructive surgery will be needed and Allen will miss the season.

Last season, Allen rushed for a club-record 1,201 yards, caught 49 passes for 478 more yards and scored 15 touchdowns.

"All I do is play with the guys that are there," coach Dennis Green said. "Injuries occur. You can lose your best player the next day. All you can do is develop a mindset that says whoever is there, you're going to do the best job you can on that given day coaching them. You want the players to respond the same way."

If Allen is done for the year, the Vikings also can continue to cash in the insurance policy they bought before last season — former San Francisco All-Pro Roger Craig. The Vikings also have Chuck Evans. He missed his rookie year with a knee injury, but has played well in training camp this year.

Meanwhile, the Chargers learned Wednesday that defensive tackle Shawn Lee, expected to start this season, will be out four to six weeks with a broken right leg.

Lee, who was injured in practice Tuesday, was initially thought to have a bruised calf. However, X-rays showed that Lee had suffered a broken fibula, one of the two bones in the lower leg.

Because of the injury to Lee and others, the Chargers signed tackle John Thornton, a second-year pro released by the Cleveland Browns.

In the Cowboys camp, starting fullback Daryl Johnston will probably miss the rest of the exhibition schedule with a fractured finger on his right hand suffered during a training camp practice drill Wednesday.

Johnston, a five-year veteran, will be outfitted with a cast and protective splint and will be available for the team's regular season-opener Sept. 6 against the Washington Redskins, coach Jimmy Johnson said.

Backup Tommie Agee will replace Johnston for the final three pre-season games.

Bengals

Bengals quarterback David Klingler returned to practice Wednesday after doctors set the broken nose he suffered in an accident during workouts last week.

Patriots

Patriots cornerback Maurice Hurst ended his 27-day holdout, saying he wanted to concentrate on football the rest of the year. After that, his future in New England is up in the air.

Hurst signed a one-year contract Tuesday night for a reported $495,000, nearly $200,000 below the initial offer and far below the team's second offer of $3.5 million over three years.

Cardinals

Quarterback Chris Chandler, recovering from a sprained ankle, returned to practice Wednesday and will be part of the three-man rotation in Saturday's exhibition game at Chicago.

Rams

The Rams loosened a logjam at strong safety Wednesday when they traded Chris Crooms to the Green Bay Packers for an undisclosed 1994 draft choice.

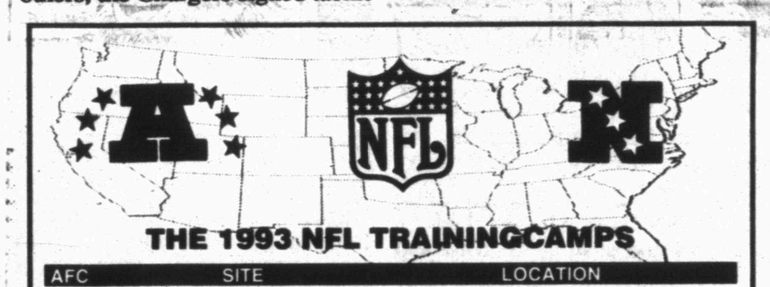

The 6-foot, 215-pound Crooms, a second-year player out of Texas A&M, was taken in the fifth round in 1992. He was used primarily on special teams as a rookie, but did see some action in nickel situations.

Dolphins

Unsigned running back Bobby Humphrey ignored the Dolphins' ultimatum to report or risk a cut in the team's standing offer and remained a holdout.

Saints

Offensive lineman Jim Dombrowski, a transition player and one of only two New Orleans holdouts, agreed Wednesday night to a five-year contract with the Saints, team officials said.

MLB owners hammering out new revenue sharing scheme

KOHLER, Wis. (AP) — Baseball owners divided into large- and small-market factions as they struggled to see if they can agree to increased revenue sharing.

In the longest major league meeting in more than a decade, owners debated revenue sharing for about 121/2 hours Wednesday at a retreat about 40 miles north of Milwaukee. The meeting was to resume this morning.

"The discussions have been constructive and enlightening," said Milwaukee Brewers president Bud Selig, chairman of the ruling executive council. "Obviously, there is a difference of opinion."

Large-market teams, who don't want to give up a greater share of their local broadcasting money, have the power to block change because 21 votes are needed. Selig and management labor negotiator Richard Ravitch, the chief proponents of increased sharing, weren't smiling after they met with the large-market caucus for about 30 minutes late Wednesday night. Owners, subject to $100,000 fines for prematurely revealing details, made unsubstantive remarks in public.

Baltimore, Boston, California, the Chicago White Sox, Colorado, Florida, Los Angeles, the New York Yankees, the New York Mets, Texas and Toronto were among the clubs at the large-market caucus. All except Texas have been mentioned as possible votes against Ravitch's plan.

Small-market owners, claiming they lose money despite record industry attendance, say revenue sharing is tied to acceptance of a salary cap by the Major League Baseball Players Association. However, that's unlikely to occur prior to a strike or a lockout.

Ravitch's plan would link the percentage of local revenue shared by teams and the amount of a salary cap to the total of local revenue, establishing a sliding scale.

Currently, clubs split all national broadcasting and licensing revenue, but each team keeps most of home gate receipts and local broadcasting money.

National League home teams give 72 cents from each turnstile ticket over $1 to the visiting team and the league. American League home teams give 20 percent of each ticket to the visiting team and 3 percent to the league.

In addition, AL teams equally divide 20 percent of their cable money. For NL games on cable, home teams pay opponents 25 percent of the cable revenue from that game.

Five teams on superstations — Atlanta, the Mets, Yankees, Chicago Cubs and White Sox — make payments to the central fund, and that money is split equally with the rest of the national revenue.

Jackson is acquitted of menacing charges

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Members of a jury that acquitted Dallas Mavericks guard Jim Jackson of charges that he threatened four teen-agers said there was not enough evidence for a conviction.

The Franklin County Municipal Court jury deliberated less than two hours Wednesday before acquitting Jackson of one count of aggravated menacing and three counts of disorderly conduct.

Judge Steven Hayes earlier dismissed one charge of improper handling of a firearm in a motor vehicle and one count of disorderly conduct.

Darren Hawkins, 22, a juror, said acquittal was decided upon soon after deliberations began.

"The witnesses for the prosecution weren't agreeing," Hawkins said. "There were too many holes in their stories."

Another juror, Linda Cherry, agreed.

"There was absolutely no proof of any of the charges," she said.

Jackson, a former Ohio State standout, was accused of waving a gun at the four and shouting racial slurs as they were driving down a Columbus street Dec. 30.

He admitted he shouted at four occupants of a car but denied threatening the group or having a gun in the car.

Hathaway's luck holds as California notches 4-1 win over Rangers

ARLINGTON (AP) — California Angels rookie pitcher Hilly Hathaway is the first to admit he was lucky when he threw a fastball down the middle to Texas Rangers slugger Juan Gonzalez.

Gonzalez, who has 33 homers this season, represented the tying run in the sixth inning when he hit Hathaway's fat pitch straight up and into the glove of catcher Greg Myers to preserve a 4-1 victory Thursday night for the Angels.

The Rangers had runners on first and second with one out when Hathaway fell behind and worked the count to 3-1 on Gonzalez.

Hathaway's bread-and-butter pitch is a curve, usually lethal to a free swinger like Gonzalez. Hathaway's choice? A fastball.

It was that kind of night for Hathaway, who improved to 4-1 on the year with the three-run victory.

"That was the key pitch in the game," Hathaway said after two relievers worked the final three innings. "It was a fastball right down the middle. He should have killed it, but I got lucky."

Hathaway, a winner in his last three starts, allowed five hits over six innings. A 13-hit attack by the Angels didn't hurt his chances, either. Twelve of those hits went to the opposite field, as California denied Kevin Brown a shot at his 10th victory.

Angels manager Buck Rodgers said his team's hitting surge was dictated by a lack of power.

"We have to settle for 12 opposite field hits because we can't hit the ball over the fence," he said. "We won because Hathaway pitched well and the bullpen did the job."

Hathaway retired seven of the first eight batters he faced before Donald Harris slapped out a single in the third inning. Hathaway then again turned his game up a notch, as he retired seven of eight, the exception a fourth-inning double to left field by Gonzalez.

Texas broke up the shutout bid in the sixth, as Rafael Palmeiro's single to right scored Harris.

Rodgers said Hathaway gets his outs because he keeps the batters guessing, even when he makes a mistake like the pitch to Gonzalez.

"If you stand beside him you'd say he didn't throw as hard as the average pitcher in the league," Rodgers said, "But he has a lot of poise and a funky delivery and the ball moves real well.

"Tonight, Hath went right after the hitters. He made them hit the ball."

The Angels roughed up Rangers starter Kevin Brown early, scoring three first-inning runs on four hits. The first three California batters collected hits, with Tim Salmon's ground-rule double to the wall in right field scoring Luis Polonia with the first run.

The Angels added another run in the third, as Salmon again doubled to right and two batters later Perez again ripped a grounder back up the middle for his second RBI of the contest.

Brown (9-8) was going for his third consecutive victory and bidding to become the Rangers' first 10-game winner of the season.

LAPD focuses on Heidi

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ah, yes. We've been here before. Hollywood, sex, hookers and the Los Angeles Police Department.

But the case of Heidi Fleiss, reputed madam to the stars, is different.

There's a new police chief in town, and according to the LAPD, the old days of vice cops looking the other way in exchange for a little on-the-job spying by prostitutes are long gone.

And that has spelled trouble for this privileged daughter of a noted pediatrician.

"We've had our problems in the past, with compromises made and other things. That's not what we're doing now," said Capt. Glenn Ackerman of the LAPD vice squad. "Heidi never did anything for us. It's 100 percent above board."

Fleiss became one of Ackerman's top priorities when he took over the vice unit in December, six months after Philadelphia Police Commissioner Willie Williams replaced an embattled Daryl Gates as chief of the Los Angeles force.

The squad went after her with a task force culled from the LAPD, the Beverly Hills Police Department, the state Attorney General's office and the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Agency.

On Monday, after reports of her arrest in June turned Hollywood on its gossip-filled ear, the 27-year-old Fleiss pleaded innocent to pandering and cocaine possession. She could get up to 12 years.

The LAPD's approach in this case is a far cry from tactics used previously against call-girl rings catering to the elite.

Elizabeth "Alex" Adams, the Beverly Hills Madam, reigned for two decades in Hollywood. She also was a longtime LAPD informant.

Placed on probation in 1991 for pandering, she is now retired and the author of "Madam 90210," which is being rushed into print to take advantage of the Heidi scandal.

Before her sentencing, detectives in the department's Organized Crime and Intelligence division testified in her defense, saying she was an important informant who had passed on "pillow talk" about murder suspects, terrorists and fugitive financier Robert L. Vesco.

"What was done back then, I would never do," said Ackerman, a 26-year veteran. "I came (to vice) in 1970. I remember Madam Alex perfectly. There were some things done along the way that muddied the waters."

Unlike Adams, Fleiss was brazen about her business, police said. She hung out with rock stars like Billy Idol. Her competitors and former employees began to complain.

In April, a Beverly Hills officer and a state agent pulled up to the hip Rangoon Racquet Club in a Ferrari. The undercover officers were introduced to Fleiss as businessmen who wanted to hire entertainment for Japanese clients.

The following night, Fleiss dispatched four women to the Beverly Hilton Hotel, Ackerman said. They carried cocaine, he said, "just to add a little excitement."

The Fleiss probe has widened, with investigators looking into at least two deaths, including the fatal drug overdose of a woman earlier this year.

The woman, 22-year-old Laurie Dolan, was taken to the hospital by an associate of Fleiss and of Fleiss' former boyfriend, alleged panderer Ivan Nagy. Fleiss' lawyer, Anthony Brooklier, said she never met Dolan.

Clinton chooses joint chief of staff

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton chose Gen. John Shalikashvili to become the nation's top uniformed officer, saying the Polish-born Army officer's life is "a great American story" that personifies the best of the U.S. military.

Shalikashvili (pronounced sholly-kosh-VEE-lee) is a man with an imposing last name and an even more remarkable career record. He served throughout the world and has served as supreme allied commander Europe and head of all U.S. forces in Europe since June 1992.

Assuming he is confirmed by the Senate next month as expected, Shalikashvili, 57, would become the 13th chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff on Oct. 1.

He would replace the retiring Gen. Colin L. Powell in a position that serves as chief military adviser to the president, the president's National Security Council and the secretary of defense. The chairman is recognized as the top military officer but by law he has no direct control over U.S. forces in the field.

The choice was an important one for Clinton, who faces an array of foreign policy challenges that may require the use of U.S. military power — including most prominently the issue of how and when to use force in the Balkans.

In a White House Rose Garden ceremony Wednesday, Clinton said of Shalikashvili: "There is much more to his life than most Americans now know. It is a great American story."

As an 8-year-old, Shalikashvili fled Poland in a cattle car to Germany in 1944. He settled in Peoria, Ill., in 1952 and "learned English from John Wayne movies," Clinton said.

He is the grandson of a Russian czarist general and the son of a Georgian army officer.

"I intend to nominate this first generation American to the highest military office in this land on the strength of his integrity, his character and his enormous potential to lead our armed forces," Clinton said.

"He also is a shining symbol of what is best about the United States and our armed services."

Rep. Ike Skelton, D-Mo., praised Clinton's choice, saying that Shalikashvili "is in the Eisenhower tradition of being able to get along well with others."

"He's an excellent choice. He's well-considered by our allies, and I think his biggest star is that he is so well-considered by other American military leaders," said Skelton, chairman of the House Armed Services' military personnel subcommittee.

Asked about the situation in Bosnia, Shalikashvili said: "I hope that we all can approach that from the standpoint that we will be most successful if we never have to use force. But that is up to those factions engaged in that senseless struggle."

Marines' new policy quashed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Marine Corps' decision to stop recruiting married people in 1995 caught civilian military leaders by surprise, from an "astounded" President Clinton on down. And it didn't take Defense Secretary Les Aspin long to order an about-face.

The Marine Corps commandant, Gen. Carl Mundy, ordered the no-married recruits policy last week. It became public Wednesday afternoon when Marine Corps headquarters released a copy of Mundy's Aug. 5 message to all Marines in which he spelled out the policy changes.

By evening senior Aspin aides, including Ed Dorn, the assistant secretary of defense in charge of personnel policy, were meeting to consider how to announce that Aspin had killed the move and disclose that the defense secretary never had approved it.

A three-sentence statement released Wednesday night simply said Aspin had ordered the policy withdrawn, the Marines had done so, and Aspin had demanded that any new policies on the matter of marriage "be subject to a full departmental review" beforehand.

White House press secretary Dee Dee Myers said Clinton "was astounded when he heard about the general's order" Wednesday. She said Clinton asked presidential counselor David Gergen to call Aspin to find out what was going on. By the time Gergen reached Aspin by phone, however, the order already had been withdrawn, she said.

A senior Pentagon official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Aspin did not necessarily disagree with the policy but strongly objected to it being decreed by the Marines without first gaining approval from the civilian leadership.

"It's a sensitive policy arena," the official said, "and he (Aspin) hasn't had an opportunity to consider this policy."

Mundy's policy changes had three main elements:

—No married recruits would be allowed to join the service after September 1995. Starting in October 1993 the number of married recruits would be limited, leading by the end of the 1995 budget year to a complete cutoff of marrieds.

—All Marines already in uniform would be required to go through an "educational awareness program on the advantages of delaying marriage."

—Those new enlisted Marines who are serving their first tours of duty and who decide to marry would be required first to consult with their commanding officers. Mundy said this did not mean they needed their superiors' permission, but that they would have the advantage of advice from more experienced Marines.

The Army, Navy and Air Force have no such policies on marriage. The policy would not have affected the Marine Corps Reserve.

At Camp Pendleton, Calif., Cpl. Thomas Kent told a reporter he and his wife, who is blind, would be uncomfortable with Mundy's order.

"For them to tell me no I couldn't get married — I think I would have had more problems," he said while shopping at a base exchange. He married just a few months after joining the Marines in 1990.

Staff Sgt. Kelley Ramsay disagreed. Ramsay, 28, who got married last year, is four months pregnant.

"I think marriage is a really big step to take, and not all young Marines realize the responsibility that goes with it," the seven-year veteran said. "This (proposal) gives Marines a chance to focus on their jobs. It doesn't mean they can't have a personal life."

Discovery...

Launch is stopped at the last second

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Discovery's countdown ended at three seconds before launch today after a harrowing engine shutdown at the pad.

NASA rushed to make the shuttle safe and bring out the five astronauts inside.

It was the third launch attempt for the mission and second time in five months that a engines on a shuttle fired and then shut down by computer command at the three-second mark.

NASA spokesman George Diller said early indications were that there was a fuel problem on one of the three main engines.

NASA has had engine shutdowns on the pad only four times in the 12-year history of the shuttle program. NASA did not say when the next launch attempt might be but the delay was expected to last at least a few weeks.

All three main engines main engines appeared to fire as schuduled 6.6 seconds before liftoff. Almost immediately after the countdown halted three seconds later, thousands of gallons of water were sprayed on the bottom of the shuttle.

Discovery's first countdown was stopped with less than an hour to go July 17 because of a failed switch in the electronic system that releases the shuttle from the launch pad.

The second countdown, one week later, was halted with just 19 seconds remaining because of a faulty steering mechanism in one of the solid rocket boosters.

Discovery could have lifted off last week after major repairs if not for an annual meteor shower that astronomers expected to be the most intense in years.

Afraid debris might damage or even destroy the shuttle, NASA put off the launch until after the Perseid meteor shower peaked Wednesday night. It was the first time the space agency postponed a flight because of shooting stars.

The flight would have been NASA's 57th shuttle mission and the fifth this year. It was to be the first space trip for Daniel Bursch, James Newman and Carl Walz. Commander Frank Culbertson Jr. and pilot William Readdy have flown once before. Minutes after the shutdown, NASA said the crew was safe.

Among the tasks on the agenda for the flight were the placing of an experimental communications satellite in orbit, the release and retrieval of an ultraviolet telescope, and a six-hour spacewalk to test tools needed for the crucial Hubble repair mission, set for December.

Body found in lake may be that of former Snyder man

TYLER — The body of a man discovered in a submerged vehicle in East Texas may be that of a former Snyder resident who has been missing since January.

Family members have been notified that the body, which was found in Lake Palestine late Tuesday, is believed to be 34-year-old Joe Michael Laurens.

He is the son of Wanda Houston and the brother of Jeff Laurens, both of Snyder.

Capt. Bobby Gorman of the Smith County sheriff's office said recreational divers found a 1980 Datsun 280 ZX in the lake at about 9:30 p.m. Tuesday. The vehicle is registered to Joe Michael Laurens.

Laurens had been reported missing by his wife, Brenda, in January after he failed to return home from a club on Texas Highway 155 South in Smith County.

Deputies said the vehicle and body were recovered in five to six feet of water, in a location eight to 10 miles from the club. The Laurens live in the Omen Community near Arp.

Capt. Gorman said it has not been determined whether foul play was involved.

The body has been taken to Dallas for an autopsy and, upon confirmation that it is that of Joe Laurens, will be transported to Bell-Cypert-Seale Funeral Home here.

Clouds mar meteor show

by The Associated Press

A meteor shower that astronomers predicted would dazzle stargazers was a celestial bust in most places because of cloudy skies.

People pulled up lawn chairs and gathered on porches, blankets, hilltops and mountains from western Asia, across the United States to Europe, trying to catch a glimpse of the Perseid meteor shower Wednesday night. Some saw it, some didn't.

"All meteor showers are like blind dates. You never really know what you're getting unless you're face to face," said Jack Horkheimer, director of the Miami Space Transit Planetarium.

The shower appears every August as Earth passes through a trail of debris left by Comet Swift-Tuttle. It usually produces about 60 streaks across the sky every hour.

Astronomers had said this year's shower would be particularly intense, partly because the comet passed closer to Earth last November on its 130-year orbit than it had in more than 2,000 years.

"I'm really disappointed," said Norma Adkins of Charleston, W.Va., who was sprawled out on a lounge chair at Sunrise Museum's planetarium. "I expected the sky to light up, but I've only seen one. It looked like a ball of fire with a tail that zooped across the sky."

The crowd of 100 "oohed" each time something crossed the sky, but frequently the bright light was a passing airplane. Once it was a firefly.

"It was much less exciting than expected. ... You can see that many on any night," said Yuichi Osawa, an amateur astronomer in Chiba, outside Tokyo. He saw only three shooting stars from 1 a.m. to dawn today, but planned to try again early Friday.

"You see an occasional shooting star through the thin clouds if you really strain your eyes," said meteorologist Roy Moffitt of Conway, N.H., from the weather observatory atop 6,288-foot peak Mount Washington.

Others were happy with the quality, if not the quantity, of the display.

"They're far brighter and larger than what they have been in the past — Wow! There's a good one right there — and that's making up for there not being so many of them," said Joe Roam, vice president of the Arkansas-Oklahoma Astronomical Society, which held a watch party in Fort Smith, Ark.

Those shut out by clouds could have another shot tonight.

hire four female jailers.

If the sheriff's quarters are vacated, the proposal would be to move the entire police department to the sheriff's office, using the extra available space. The county could then use a portion of the present police department to expand its adult probation department.

The court was to return at 2 p.m. today to continue their budget workshop.

Police note three arrests

Snyder police made three arrests and worked a burglary during a 24-hour period which ended early today.

Officers responded to a disturbance in the 2900 block of Avenue J at 7:51 p.m. Wednesday where they arrested a 21-year-old man for Class C assault/family violence.

At 1:08 a.m. today, officers arrested a 34-year-old man for misdemeanor driving while intoxicated and a 24-year-old man for public intoxication in the 4100 block of College Avenue.

At 10:19 a.m. Wednesday, officers investigated a two-vehicle accident in the 2700 block of College Avenue. Involved were a 1991 Chevrolet Suburban driven by Mary Ramirez Lucio of 1214 Ave. L and a 1988 Dodge pickup driven by Foy Dwaine Williams of 9170 East Highway in Hermleigh.

Officers received a call at 6:54 p.m. from a man reporting a harassing note. A report for harassment was filed.

FD responds to two fires

Snyder Fire Department responded to two fires Wednesday, including one which damaged a residence.

Firemen were called to 1611 College Avenue at 11 a.m. where they extinguished a fire on the back porch. The fire caused considerable damage to the porch area and minor to moderate smoke damage to the house.

Firemen said the fire started when someone was cooking on a portable grill which was too close to a shelf.

The residence is occupied by Joe Romero and owned by Myron Fenton.

At 10:05 p.m., firefighters were called to Fisher Construction at 704 College Ave. Upon arrival, they discovered a 1981 GMC pickup on fire inside the building.

The fire caused considerable damage to the pickup. There was minor fire damage and moderate smoke damage to the building.

No lotto winners on Wednesday

AUSTIN (AP) — No tickets matched all six numbers drawn Wednesday night in Lotto Texas for $3 million.

The jackpot rolls over to Saturday's drawing, when the top prize will be $10 million, lottery officials said.

Death row inmate recounts allegations against guards

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Department of Criminal Justice officials are challenging the claims of a former death row inmate that prison guards taunt inmates awaiting execution and hold informal beer parties to celebrate the punishments.

Andrew Lee Mitchell, 48, made his allegations Wednesday at a news conference, where he appeared with several civil rights groups seeking to abolish the state's death penalty.

"They have beer busts on state property at a recreation facility," he said. "That's sort of sick if you ask me."

Charles Brown, a spokesman for the Texas Department of Criminal Justice, said he had never heard of such practices.

"I don't know anything about prison guards having a beer celebration after the executions. I can't comment on that," Brown said.

"But once a prisoner is here, he gets the most humane treatment possible. Those who are about to be executed have a chaplain there with them all the time. We bring the family in and make the person as comfortable as possible."

In February, Mitchell won reprieve after 13 years on death row when his conviction for killing a Tyler man during a robbery in 1979 was overturned by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

He is free while the trial court considers whether to throw out his case or give him a new trial.

He provided no names in his allegations about taunts from guards and the beer parties following executions, but said he would reveal their identities if "I were testifying before some kind of a committee or something."

Mitchell said prison officials waited until 48 hours before he was scheduled to die in 1984 to tell him he had received a stay of execution five days earlier.

Mitchell says that after he received his stay, prison officials had him make out a will, checked his veins to see if he was capable of receiving a lethal injection and asked him what he wanted for his last meal.

Couple Who Have Everything Ask Relatives for Nothing More

DEAR ABBY: I have been reading your column for many years, and now am in need of tapping in on some of your advice.

My husband and I are senior citizens in the fortunate position of having everything we need and want. We have no children, but we do have several nieces and nephews. We no longer shop for gifts for them — we send them checks and let them buy what they want.

In the past, they have sent us beautiful (and some very expensive) gifts, so this year, we asked them to please cross us off their shopping list because we do not need anything and do not wish to accumulate any more "things." I explained that we would continue to send them checks because they are young enough to enjoy spending or saving.

One sister-in-law said that our request for no gifts offended and upset her son and daughter — and we were wrong to deprive them of the pleasure of sending us gifts.

Your thoughts on this would be appreciated.

OGRE AUNT IN MICHIGAN

DEAR AUNT: I'm with you on this issue. People who have more than they need or want are lucky to be able to tell the givers of useless gifts to cease and desist. How much better to direct a contribution instead to some of the truly needy people who would have little or nothing at holiday time. Churches, temples, the Salvation Army or the local United Way can provide names and addresses of local families who can use gifts.

How about a contribution to the American Red Cross — earmarked for those who lost their worldly goods in Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and Illinois in the recent devastating floods?

DEAR ABBY: Last May, my father died from the toxic fumes he inhaled while gluing carpet to the deck of his boat. Dad was an intelligent man (an attorney) who carefully read the instructions and warnings before he tackled any project.

To him, "adequate ventilation" meant open both big garage doors, the side door, and the window in the garage while he was working. He probably tried to work in spite of the nausea and dizziness he was warned about on the label of the glue.

He should also have been warned that if he didn't get some fresh air when he felt dizzy, he could fall unconscious and die, which is exactly what happened. Something as simple as a fan pushing the fumes out of the area would have saved his life, but the fumes smelled so sweet and pleasant no one would suspect that they could be deadly.

Since this happened to my father, we have been told about several other people who have died from glue fumes.

My mother lost a wonderful husband, and Dad's four granddaughters lost a very important person in their lives. He was a very kind and caring man. Our community misses him as well as his family. He was only 56 — healthy and active.

Abby, please warn your readers that if they use glue that contains chlorofluorocarbon in the adhesive to do their gluing outdoors. You may use my name.

TERESA BREADING, WARSAW, IND.

DEAR TERESA: My condolences on the loss of your beloved father. Thank you for allowing me to use your name.

District judge reverses license revocation

DALLAS (AP) — A judge has reversed a state board's license revocation of a Dallas cancer specialist accused of overbilling patients.

The unanimous order in February by the Texas State Board of Medical Examiners against Dr. Dennis Birenbaum "is not supported by substantial evidence," State District Judge Jerry Dellana of Austin said in a one-sentence ruling on Monday.

In an interview Wednesday with The Dallas Morning News, Dellana said the state failed to present "even a scintilla of evidence that would support the decision made in that case."

The state board had declared Birenbaum guilty of "persistent and flagrant overcharging."

Birenbaum, the oncology director at RHD Memorial Medical Center in the north Dallas suburb of Farmers Branch, had been allowed to continue treating patients during his appeal.

In their revocation order, board members wrote that Birenbaum improperly charged hospitalized patients hundreds of dollars a day to order routine procedures and to diagnose and treat expected complications of chemotherapy.

Special medicine needs of blacks cited by groups

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The black doctor-founded National Medical Association says it's trying to emphasize that patients of differing racial and ethnic groups may respond differently to medicines.

"This is a relatively new area. Within the last 10 to 15 years this area of research has evolved," NMA president Dr. Leonard E. Lawrence said Wednesday during the group's annual convention.

Association leaders made their pronouncement in a news conference with the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association, which released a survey on 120 drugs being developed for diseases that disproportionately affect blacks or are among the leading causes of death for blacks.

The medicines are in clinical trials or under Food and Drug Administration review.

Among the medicines cited are drugs designed for treating cardiovascular disease, which fatally strikes black males at a 39 percent higher rate than white males and black females at a 68 percent higher rate than white females.

Also of particular interest to blacks are sickle cell disease and diabetes, according to the survey. Of those who die from sickle cell disease, 99 percent are black. The prevalence of diabetes is about 30 percent higher in blacks than whites.

Robert E. Allnutt, executive vice president of the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association, said his organization worked with the NMA and other black-interest groups to develop the survey.

Holland executed in Texas

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Convicted killer David Holland was executed early today for a 1985 Port Arthur savings and loan robbery in which two women were herded into the bank vault and fatally shot.

Holland's lethal injection was carried out hours after he refused Wednesday to allow his attorneys to file appeals with the U.S. Supreme Court in hopes of blocking the punishment.

Holland, 58, had no final statement.

The drugs began flowing into his arms at 12:10 a.m. CDT. He stared at the ceiling of the death chamber, his eyes darting from side to side, then licked his lips, coughed and gasped once.

He was pronounced dead six minutes later.

Holland became the third killer to be put to death in Texas in three weeks, the 10th this year and the 65th since the state resumed carrying out capital punishment in 1982. The totals by far are the highest in the nation.

Holland was convicted of fatally shooting Helen Barnard, 29, of Groves, the branch manager of a Port Arthur thrift during the $8,000 robbery. A teller, Dianna Jackson, 23, of Port Neches, also was killed.

Testimony showed Holland entered the bank July 16, 1985 armed with a .45-caliber semiautomatic handgun and demanded money. He took cash and then escorted the women to a vault where he took more money, shot Ms. Barnard in the head and Ms. Jackson in the chest.

"I feel like I owed it to my daughter to see justice is rendered," said John Plunkett, Ms. Barnard's father, who drove some 100 miles from his home in Orange with six members of his family to be in Huntsville for the execution. "It won't bring her back, but I owed it to her.

Breathing exercises help the lungs

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been diagnosed with advanced chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD) and dyspnea. I've done my homework, yet I am having problems finding information on diaphragmatic muscle fatigue, which is, of course, connected with emphysema. I'd appreciate your input.

DEAR READER: The diaphragm, a flat muscle that separates the chest cavity from the abdomen, is the major muscle of respiration. Ordinarily slightly convex, when the diaphragm contracts, air is drawn into the lungs.

In patients with COPD, the lungs are overexpanded, which flattens the diaphragm. Therefore, such patients have to exert more effort to breathe. Consequently, diaphragmatic muscle fatigue is a real problem.

In addition, because of poor breathing mechanics, patients with COPD don't breathe as efficiently as do healthy people. The end result of this unfortunate situation is breathlessness, intolerance to exercise and dyspnea (difficulty breathing).

This is why special breathing exercises are so important for emphysema patients. By learning to use "accessory" muscles of respiration (those between the ribs and the abdominal muscles), such patients can often improve their respiration, as well as minimize diaphragm fatigue.

If you're not under the care of a pulmonologist, you should be. Such a specialist can instruct you in ways to improve your breathing mechanics and reduce diaphragm fatigue. These exercises, in conjunction with medicine (such as bronchodilators) and the judicious use of oxygen, may help you to remain more independent for years to come.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Living With Chronic Lung Disease." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 19-year-old son has very large varicose veins on the back of one leg only. He's very active, eats well, works out regularly at a gym and is rarely ill. Should we be concerned?

DEAR READER: No, you can relax. A single large varicose vein that causes no symptoms in a healthy teen-ager can be ignored.

However, the vein will probably enlarge as he grows older, unless he uses elastic support stockings. These hose, when worn during times of sitting or standing, will help counteract the pressure inside the vein, thereby preventing further dilation. Although this simple (but inconvenient) treatment is not vital, it might save him from needing surgery down the road.

Foe of super collider wants explanation from O'Leary

WASHINGTON (AP) — A powerful congressional critic of the super collider is calling on Energy Secretary Hazel O'Leary to reconcile widely conflicting statements about the massive project.

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., complained that O'Leary claimed on Wednesday of last week that the Texas-based project was on budget. The very next day, he said, high-ranking DOE officials were telling his investigators the giant atom smasher could incur $2 billion in cost overruns.

In a letter obtained Wednesday by The Associated Press, Dingell asked O'Leary for a "full explanation" of the discrepancies by Aug. 27.

Dingell, who as chairman of the House Energy and Commerce Committee is a key overseer of O'Leary's agency, said he wants an answer before next month's Senate vote on the super collider.

At issue are O'Leary's comments last week before the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee hearing, when she told lawmakers: "Everything I know at this moment says on budget, on time."

One day later, Dingell noted, aides of O'Leary were telling his oversight subcommittee staff they had identified a potential $2 billion cost increase.

"When the subcommittee staff tried to reconcile these facts with your testimony of the previous day, we were told that you were unaware of these facts," he said in the letter sent Tuesday to O'Leary.

"I am curious as to why no one would tell you that your own management team has confirmed that the program is behind schedule, over budget and facing a potential $2 billion overrun, thereby causing you to testify erroneously to just the opposite before the Senate."

DOE spokesman Rick Oborn said the department would respond.

"As the letter requests, Secretary O'Leary certainly does intend to address Mr. Dingell's concerns expeditiously and a meeting is being addressed," Oborn said.
