Democrats still fighting for alternative

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's nationally broadcast tax-cut appeal brought calls and telegrams flooding into congressional offices today, but Democratic leaders stood by their prediction of narrowly beating him in Wednesday's House showdown.

At the White House, however, presidential chief of staff James Baker said reaction to the speech made him "cautiously optimistic" that Reagan would win the tax cut fight.

And the president himself said one congressman told him calls to his office were running four-to-one in support of the president's plan.

Democratic leaders, accusing the president of waging a "political trench fight," conceded Reagan's talk may sway some crucial votes for his tax bill.

Members of Congress reported phones ringing off the hook today from constituents who saw Reagan's speech, with most of the sentiment running in favor of the president's plan.

Baker predicted the flood of calls "will give us a sense of momentum....

"I think the response to the president's speech has been substantial so we're cautiously optimistic."

But Reagan said Wednesday's vote would still be "a tough and close one."

Telegram traffic into Washington was "about four times the normal volume," said a spokeswoman for Western Union.

"The volume is extremely heavy. It started last night. It's a nationwide thing," said the company's Margaret Jasko.

The office of Rep. Beverly Byron, D-Md., one of the undecided members the administration has been wooing, reported 125 phone calls by 11 a.m. — most supporting the president.

"We've got five or six people answering phones here. We're inundated with calls," said Jack Holliday, a Byron aide.

Reagan, saying "this is not the time for political fun and games," sought Monday night to mobilize an army of Americans to lobby for his tax plan with "letters, telegrams and personal visits."

"We've gotten more call than we've gotten in our office since Watergate," said Dick Leggitt, an aide to Rep. Stan Parris, R-Va., a firm Reagan supporter who represents a Washington suburb.

Leggitt said that 70 calls came in the first hour the office was open today, 67 of them backing the president.

"The phones have been wild today," said a receptionist in the office of House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's office reported that calls were running two-to-one for the pesident's program.

And Leslie Devlin, assistant press secretary to Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., one of the Democrats who responded to Reagan on television, said Bradley's office received a dozen or so calls. "They are fairly mixed, but it is fair to say the majority favor the president," Ms. Devlin said.

In his talk, Reagan tried to blunt Democratic criticism that he was sidestepping the politically sensitive issue of Social Security financing, telling his audience: "You have no reason to be frightened," that no one now dependent on benefits will have their monthly checks reduced.

He said he would talk about Social Security at length later but the overriding factor now is taxes.

The speech came less than 48 hours before the tax battle is to reach the floor of the Democratic-controlled House. The choice will be between Reagan's plan and a Democratic alternative the president branded as "just another empty promise."

Reagan's plan is for a 33-month, 25 percent cut in tax rates, starting Oct. 1, with everyone getting the same percentage reduction regardless of income. It includes automatic cuts each year starting in 1985 to offset inflation.

The rival bill pushed by Democrats is for a two-year, 15 percent cut, also effective Oct. 1, tilted to people earning less than $50,000 a year. A third-year, 10 percent cut would be allowed only if the administration meets its goals for lowering inflation, interest rates and the federal deficit.

Discussion comes to 'draw'

Parties divided on sewage issue

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

Residents and government officials came to a "draw" on recommendations from the hydrology firm of Ed Reed & Associates on how to dispose of treated effluent during a special joint session Monday morning of Midland City Council and County Commissioners.

The meeting took place in the First National Room of The First National Bank and attracted numerous residents from an area several miles south of the city.

A presentation by Ed Reed and his son, Joe Reed, disclosed that there is an excessive amount of seepage from the holding ponds southeast of the city's sewage treatment plant. However, the State Health Department has no maximum limits on seepage.

The Reed study suggested relieving the situation by piping the effluent to a Salt Lake eight miles south of Midland. But residents in that area objected to the plan and were given four weeks to come up with other data and options.

THE REED FIRM has been studying the situation of seepage from the holding ponds southeast of the city since March when the city and county authorized the joint study. Residents along Midland Draw had complained about flowing water in the draw, and had prompted the study.

Ed Reed noted that 1,188 gallons of effluent per minute are seeping out of the 123 acres of unlined holding ponds. Total seepage per day amounts to 1.71 million gallons.

In his study, he noted that "based upon the flow net derived from the water table contour map, it is estimated that 64 percent of the seepage from the stabilization ponds reaches Midland Draw as surface water or underflow."

The summary shows that "seepage of effluent water has materially affected the quality of ground water at Well No. 9 south of the (sewage treatment) plant and south of the area where effluent water has been stored temporarily on more than one occasion in the past. The effect has been to greatly reduce the total dissolved solids as shown in Well No. 9, but to also cause a high ammonia level and a high surfactants (detergents) level. The nitrate level is low in this well."

The Reed report also pointed out that Wells 100, 75 and 78 had been affected to some extent by effluent seepage with No. 78 having a nitrate level slightly above normal ground water.

TO ELIMINATE the primary-treated effluent from seeping into the ground water, the Reeds recommended reducing the holding pond area from 123 acres to 20 acres.

"We feel the percolation is too high" from the holding ponds into the draw, explained Reed.

The remaining 8 million gallons of effluent produced daily by Midland's residents would be piped south to the Salt Lake area. There, the effluent would be applied to 388 acres of alfalfa and the rest into a disposal area. However, during freezing weather when the two methods couldn't be used, the third contingency plan calls for pumping the effluent into the salt lake.

This Salt Lake area constitutes a "closed hydrological system," said Reed, in which the water doesn't drain back into fresh underground water. It is closed off from the fresh water by an underground ridge.

"Any change in what we've recommended should be made with the consideration that at times we can expect the quality of effluent to be much worse than it is today. It has been in the past, and it will be in the future,"

If cease-fire holds, jets are sold

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration will give its go-ahead for twice-delayed shipments of F-16 jets to Israel within two weeks if the cease-fire in Lebanon lasts, officials say.

State Department spokesman Dean Fischer said Monday that a decision on ending the suspension will be made by Aug. 10, the next scheduled F-16 delivery date.

Another official, who asked not to be identified, had said earlier that if the cease-fire holds, Israel can expect a favorable decision.

Meanwhile, optimism was growing in the administration that the cease-fire would last.

Fischer indicated that the violations which have occurred are not a cause for serious concern, suggesting that neither Israel nor the Palestine Liberation Organization should see them as sufficient cause to break the accord.

"I think it's hardly surprising that there are some initial apparent violations of the cease-fire in a matter as complex as this," Fischer told reporters. "We are still hopeful and become increasingly optimistic that the cease-fire will, in fact, take hold."

President Reagan met at the White House on Monday with his special Mideast envoy, Philip C. Habib, who negotiated the cease-fire on Friday.

Habib told reporters that he probably will return to the Middle East, although he wasn't sure when. Other sources said he wanted to spend some time with his family before planning his next step.

After talking to Reagan, Habib said the cease-fire could be "a first, important step on the road to greater calm and security in the area. This will be indispensible if future progress is to be made toward a broad and lasting peace in the Middle East."

Israel's U.S. ambassador, Ephraim Evron, said after meeting with Habib at the State Department that "the cessation of hostilities seems to be holding, and we would like to hope it is the beginning of a new, more peaceful period now."

Evron also said he thought the F-16s should be delivered "as soon as possible."

Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger said Monday that a more permanent cease-fire will have to be established in the Middle East if the United States is to resume F-16 deliveries.

Speaking to reporters at Fort Benning, Ga., where he was inducted into the Officers Candidate School Hall of Fame, Weinberger said certain conditions would have to be met but that he had "no particular triggering event" in mind.

"That's a State Department concern," he said. "It's an explosive area over there, a very explosive area."

The administrati9n first suspended delivery of four F-16s because of Israel's bombing of an Iraqi nuclear reactor. Delivery of those and six additional jet fighters was delayed further after Israel attacked Palestinian strongholds in Beirut.

Unless the suspension is lifted by Aug. 10, another four F-16s would be held up as well.

"I always expected it," Evron said, referring to lifting of the suspension.

An official who asked not to be identified said the administration was encouraged that PLO leader Yasser Arafat had denounced a splinter group that declared it wouldn't be bound by the cease-fire. The official said this meant Arafat was taking it seriously.

In offering additional details about the accord, Fischer said attacks by or against the Israeli-backed Christian forces of Maj. Saad Hadad in Lebanon would be "a clear violation."

However, he said, Israeli reconnaisance fights over Lebanon are not covered.

He also said the agreement doesn't prevent the PLO from resupplying its forces in southern Lebanon.

But he added, "Clearly we're hopeful that everyone involved in this will show restraint and moderation."

Tax cut bill could help oil interests, Bush says

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas oil interests will benefit from President Reagan's tax cut bill, says Vice President George Bush, a former Texas oilman.

Bush flew to Texas Monday to enlist the aid of Gov. Bill Clements in urging Texans to put the pressure on their congressmen for the "bi-partisan" measure sponsored by Rep. Kent Hance, D-Texas, and Rep. Barber Conable, R-New York.

"This bill has provisions that are very important to energy-producing states such as Texas — provisions that will provide incentives to produce more oil and as a result lessen our nation's dependence on foreign producers," Bush told a news conference after a private talk with Clements.

The Austin visit followed visits earlier in the day to Atlanta and Baton Rouge, La., and came just before the president's Monday night address on the tax cut controversy with Democratic majority leaders in the U.S. House.

In May, Bush made a special trip to address the Texas Legislature and urged backing for Reagan's budget cuts.

Bush said Monday the Texas incentives in his tax cut plans included retention of the depletion rate at 22 percent and "a rate reduction on new oil, the same as in the enate bil. So, there are these provisions, I think, if they lessen the burden of the windfall profits tax, will indeed stimulate drilling activity and production."

Clements spoke up to say he thought "these are terribly important issues in Texas. These are close to what is going on in Texas."

Attorney says he'll sue accusers

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

STANTON — Moments after a jury had returned "not guilty" verdicts here Monday night against two Odessa men accused of swindling a refinery out of thousands of dollars, defense attorney John Green vowed to sue his clients' accusers.

"I'm filing in federal court (in Austin) a multi-million dollar lawsuit against Cosden (Oil & Chemical Co.), the Railroad Commission and the Texas Rangers," said Green. He had represented D.C. "Butch" Wheeler, the 52-year-old owner of Jaco Oil Co., and John Thedford Sims, his 68-year-old pumper, in a theft case.

Green had claimed that Wheeler and Sims were framed in a conspiracy concocted by Cosden, a subsidiary of American Petrofina; the RRC, which regulates the petroleum industry in Texas, and the Rangers, the investigative arm of the Texas Department of Public Safety. Green declined to comment on the reasons for the alleged frame-up.

"This was a set-up deal from the first, and the jury proved it," said Green, former district attorney in Odessa. And he issued this omen: "The party's not over yet."

The "party" Green referred to began in January after Wheeler and Sims were arrested and indicted for "theft" in an alleged scheme in which Wheeler's Jaco Oil Co. supposedly was paid for crude oil which Cosden says it never received.

Subsequently, Cosden filed a $1 million civil suit against Wheeler, Sims and Jaco in seeking to recover money which Cosden says it paid Jaco for oil which purportedly never left Wheeler's lease and never got into Cosden's pipeline system.

The eight-man, four-woman jury in 118th State District Court here deliberated more than five hours Monday afternoon and night before returning the verdicts.

"WE WERE NOT satisfied with the state's prosecution," explained the jury foreman, who requested anonymity.

At the onset, the jurors had cast five votes for guilty and seven votes for not guilty. But, after more deliberations and after Court Reporter Jerry Spence had read — at the jury's request — testimony on Cosden's "surveillance" pipeline meter, which apparently malfunctioned, the jury found the men innocent.

"We feel relieved," said an exhausted Wheeler. "Nobody can realize what kind of trap we got in. We knew from the start that this was a trap."

Sims was in agreement: "If it hadn't been a frame-up, it wouldn't have happened this way (the acquittal)."

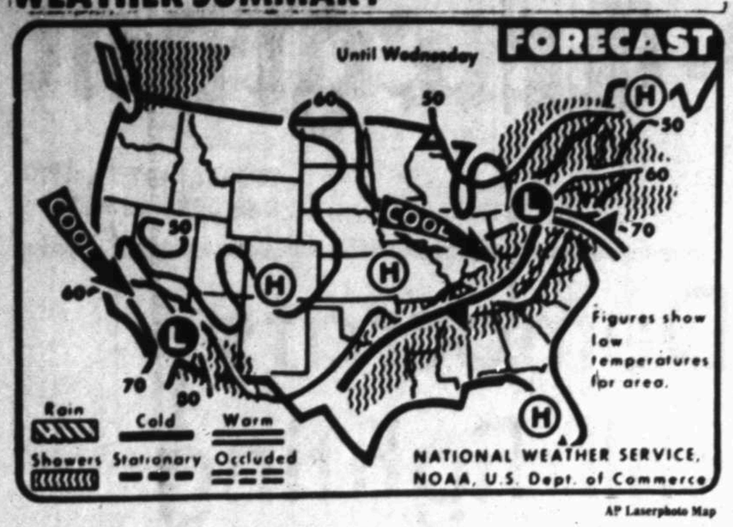

The trial had begun a week ago but was moved 20 miles west to Stanton to an air-conditioned courtroom. The cooling system in the Howard County Courthouse had broken down in 100-degree weather, and Judge Jim Gregg elected to hold the trial in neighboring Martin County.

PROSECUTION evidence and testimony had zeroed in on about 450 barrels of $37-per-barrel crude oil for which Wheeler and Sims allegedly had tried to collect $16,000 last January.

The prosecution had maintained that on Jan. 1 and Jan. 5, Cosden gauger Rayford Liles had turned on the valve to Wheeler's 250-barrel stock tank to let the oil flow to Cosden's refinery. But, claimed the prosecution, moments after Liles had left the lease, Wheeler and Sims appeared and shut off the valve and pump before the oil could get into the pipeline. Similar ploys allegedly had been used repeatedly to "resell" the same batch of oil to Cosden.

Though not explained by the prosecution, the "run tickets" which certify how much oil was pumped from Wheeler's tank and into the Cosden pipeline, were signed by Liles and had been endorsed by him earlier in 1980 when Cosden allegedly was swindled out of hundreds of thousands of dollars by Wheeler and Sims.

Liles, still in the employ of Cosden, was not called to testify by the prosecution.

IN HIS CLOSING arguments, Howard County District Attorney Rick Hamby referred to Wheeler and Sims as "thieves" and climaxed his 30-minute spiel with a mandate, despite Green's protests that the prosecutor was trying "to arouse the passion of the jury against these defendants."

"Well," Hamby caustically told the jurors, "if your dignity isn't insulted, turn them loose."

The jurors apparently heeded the district attorney's advice.

But, in a sense, Green rose to Hamby's defense: "I think he did a good job with what he had to work with." The chief prosecutor had returned to Big Spring following his closing arguments and left prosecutor Don Richard, his assistant, behind to pick up the verdicts.

Earlier in his arguments, Hamby had largely answered Green's charges that Wheeler and Sims had been victims of a conspiracy by Cosden, the Texas Rangers and the Railroad Commission of Texas.

"This is the biggest fraud I've seen since I've been practicing law," said Green, who for 12 years was the Ector County district attorney.

He noted the prosecution's case was built on "circumstantial evidence."

"They don't have any direct evidence."

GREEN HAD NOTED:

—That Archie Farr, a petroleum engineer who is district manager of the RRC in Midland, testified that Wheeler's three wells on the W.B. Currie lease south Big Spring were far from capable of producing their daily allowable of 76 barrels.

"He's not a geologist," Green said of Farr. "He doesn't know what's going on under the ground. If he knew that, he wouldn't be with the Railroad Commission; he'd be telling people where to drill (for oil)."

—That Texas Ranger Eddie Almond had surreptitiously video-taped Liles, Sims and Wheeler at the lease site and conceded that his tapes and photographs taken by Big Spring Herald photographer Bill Forshee indicated no wrong-doing.

—That a Cosden meter, installed on the pipeline Dec. 17 to record how many barrels of oil actually left Wheeler's tank from that date until Jan. 5, only registerd 0.2 of a barrel, though hundreds of barrels allegedly were moved through the line from the installation date until Jan. 5. Evidence, however, indicated that the meter was damaged, that it was never sealed and therefore was not reliable.

"If you (jurors) buy that piece of junk," Green said vociferously of the 2-inch pipeline valve and meter hauled into the courtroom as evidence, "God help us all! Katy bar the door, 'cause these 'vultures' would be after you day and night."

Richard quickly objected to Green's namecalling.

"I'm not talking about you," Green summarily told the prosecutor. "I'm talking about the Rangers and the Railroad Commission."

Just as quickly, Green apologized for his outcry.

"I get carried away sometimes," he said. "(But) I appreciate the hard work (by Ranger Almond). He didn't prove anything; he proved these men didn't do anything."

Green said the Texas Rangers and the Railroad Commission had been "a little overbearing" in their investigation into Wheeler and Sims.

"I'm saying they went a little too far. We don't send anybody to the penitentiary for suspicion, thank goodness."

The defense attorney said he felt assured that the jury would not send the men to the penitentiary "based on what Archie Farr believes." But, he said that if his two clients could be railroaded by the likes of Farr and the Rangers, it could happen to others.

"Don't think it could happen to you," he told the jurors.

HAMBY, EXUDING an air of indignation, responded to Green's contention that the state's evidence was merely circumstantial and that the two defendants were utterly shocked and chagrined by the charges.

"Mr. Sims and Mr. Wheeler never dreamed this would happen to them...never dreamed they would be caught," Hamby said.

He pooh-poohed Green's inference that "the Railroad Commission, Archie Farr and his people conspired with the Texas Rangers and the Big Spring Herald and Cosden and the district attorney's office to conspire, to trap these two poor innocent people."

"If it was conspiracy," reasoned Hamby, "we'd have a 'wham-bam-thank-you-ma'am' (clear-cut case)" which the jury wouldn't have to fret over.

Instead, Hamby admitted that the case had a few "warts," including the apparently bum monitoring meter and, supposedly, the omission of Liles' testimony.

The chief prosecutor told the jury that "I don't like thieves in Howard County" and that thievery is "an affront to the people of Howard County."

He cautioned the jurors not to be overcome by sympathy for the two men.

"Don't be misled because Sims is old (68). Don't be misled because Wheeler has a family."

Just before Hamby's argument to the jury, Green had concluded his hour-long spiel with a paradox.

"I hope I never have the ability to sway a jury," he said. "I hope I never have that power, just because justice won't be done."

Numerous residents from an area south of Midland showed up at a joint meeting of the Midland City Council and County Commissioners Monday at The First National Bank. The residents heard a report of recommendations on effluent seeping into Midland Draw and the ground water table.

Area showers bring relief from two-week heat wave

Scattered showers throughout the Permian Basin brought a sigh of relief from residents who have suffered through a two-week heat wave.

Although showers were not measureable in Midland, Wink reported an inch of rain this morning. And sprinkles were recorded throughout the area.

There is a 30 percent chance for more showers and thunderstorms through Wednesday with possible heavy showers tonight.

According to the National Weather Service at the Regional Airport most of the heavy rain occurred from southwest of Midland to Hobbs, N.M.

Monday's high of 92 was considerably lower than the 1954 record high of 106.

Low tonight will be a pleasant near 70 and near 90 Wednesday. Southeasterly winds will be 10-15 mph through Wednesday diminishing tonight 5-10 mph.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms were forecast for most of Texas today.

Forecasters warned of the possibility of a few heavy thunderstorms over the South Plains southward into Southwest Texas.

Skies were to be mostly cloudy statewide today with highs mostly in the 80s. Temperatures were expected to remain in the 80s over West Texas.

A flash flood watch for Southwest Texas was cancelled early today after some of the shower activity began to diminish.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms were reported before dawn today in the northwest corner of the Panhandle, over the South Plains from north of Plainview southwestward into New Mexico, the upper Red River Valley and the Pecos River Valley. The remainder of the state had partly cloudy to cloudy skies.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 70s and 80s. Extremes ranged from 63 at Guadalupe Pass and 65 at Dalhart to 83 at Galveston.

Showers and thunderstorms were expected later in the day from southern New England across the Great Lakes and the Ohio River valley and through the Gulf coast from Florida through Mississippi.

said the senior Reed.

The problem at Midland Draw and the holding ponds "can't wait indefinitely," said Reed. Nor is it a situation that would cause panic.

"It's a matter that needs to be approached diligently and without delay."

THE ONLY OPTION mentioned by the firm was disposing the effluent on land five miles south of the city near Monahans Draw — which now carries Odessa's effluent.

Attorney Tom Sealy, representing landowners Mrs. Ike Bradford and the Wiley family, urged, "Please, gentlemen, don't pass this sewage south to our ranch country." In addition to ruining the grazing land, he said the tracts all have producing oil and gas wells that would be eliminated.

Sealy suggested the government entities study the "possibility of giving more and better treatment of the effluent and build a bigger (sewage treatment) plant."

Joe Reed responded that secondary and tertiary treatment of effluents wasn't a viable solution. He explained that sewage has biological and chemical contaminants, and the increased treatment removes only the biological matter.

"Secondary and tertiary treatment wouldn't solve the problem so it (effluent) could be used. You're still dealing with a high amount of total dissolved solids," he said.

J.D. Crawford, who has lived south of Midland since 1932, complained about the Reed report and charged the city should bring in a waste management consultant.

"Let's get someone who knows what he's doing and not someone who's going on assumptions," he said. "Let's clean up the water so we can use it."

Clark Franklin mentioned that underground streams are in the Salt Lake area and the "sewage will go into our fresh water. This water will be polluted if you irrigate with the effluent."

AND ANOTHER Salt Lake area resident complained, "Now you're going to turn it into a real sewer farm."

Another attorney for other residents, Steve Stewart, said his clients contested the Reeds' conclusion that Salt Lake is a "closed, hyrdological system." He also contended that the Reeds' recommendations are only a short-term solution and suggested a long-term answer be found.

In response to the criticism of Reeds' report, County Commissioner C. DeWayne Davis explained the county had hired the services of an Austin hydrologist and his report backed up what the Reeds had found.

After being questioned as to what other cities use for effluent disposal, Ed Reed replied that Lubbock uses a similar system of land application and storage in playa lakes. And Lubbock has been faced with the problem of where to store the effluent when the land can't take the water for irrigating.

Mayor G. Thane Akins added that Lubbock is proposing to do "almost the same thing as we're proposing here.

"It's been our concern to get the best information we could and come to a solution that would be the best for everyone. You must realize," he told the residents, "that wherever we go, it will be on someone's land. The solution must be economically feasible for the taxpayers; it may not be satisfactory for everyone."

AFTER GRANTING the residents four weeks to come up with other data and options, the mayor added, "We're open-minded to any suggestion that can be backed up with technological data."

While no vote was taken by the commissioners or councilmen, the report didn't please everyone.

After the session, Commissioner Charlie Welch contended piping the effluent elsewhere wouldn't solve the problem and stuck by his suggestion made last winter to "clean up the water."

Midland boy nearly drowns, still in critical condition

SAN ANGELO (AP) — A 7-year-old Midland boy who was described as clinically dead after spending 20 minutes under water remained comatose and in critical condition here more than a day after being resuscitated.

Efforts to revive Ralph Torres on the banks of the South Concho river failed Sunday, but the boy responded to resuscitation in the emergency room at Shannon West Texas Memorial Hospital, said Dr. Milton Williams.

"His blood pressure returned to normal on its own — a promising sign. He's an agressive kid," Williams said Monday.

The doctor said the boy "was clinically dead" when he arrived at the hospital late Sunday afternoon.

Torres, the son of Magdalina Torres of Midland, was rushed to the hospital by two bystanders at the river, where the youth was swimming Sunday. A friend of Torres summoned Victor Crabajal and Tommy Rodriguez when he noticed the youth had slipped under the water.

Tax cut battle becoming intensive lobbying effort

By MAUREEN SANTINI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — From the Oval Office to the Deep South, on radio and television and in newspapers, the Reagan White House is trying to enlist the support of the voters for the tax-cut battle on Capitol Hill.

The intensive lobbying campaign has found President Reagan talking to the nation, Vice President George Bush and others touring Dixie and Republicans spending a half-million dollars on advertising.

The message is the same: Call your congressman and demand that he vote for Reagan's tax cut.

"They need to hear from you," Reagan said in his nationally broadcast speech Monday night, two days before the tax showdown on the floor of the Democratic-controlled House. "I know that doesn't give you much time, but a great deal is at stake."

Reagan is not ignoring the congressmen themselves. He invited 15 to lunch at his Camp David, Md., retreat on Sunday and met with 16 more at the White House on Monday. Additional sessions were planned today.

But the major effort is concentrated on taking the administration's case directly to the people.

"Everyone has been asked to go out and help," said a White House source, who asked not to be identified.

Most of the intensive lobbying campaign is targeted at a handful of Southern states where the White House hopes pressure from constituents will sway wavering congressmen. A group of conservative Southern Democras voted wth the president on the budget and he's trying to get their votes again.

As part of that drive, Bush spent Monday in Atlanta, Austin, Texas, and Baton Rouge, La., speaking out for the administration's proposal to cut taxes 25 percent over 33 months, starting Oct. 1, and asking his audiences to contact their congressmen.

Alabama Gov. Fob James, a Democrat, met with Reagan at the White House and then began a speaking tour of his own — at the expense of Alabama taxpayers — spreading the same message in North Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Tennessee and Louisiana.

In efforts officially independent of the White House but plotted by the president's political adviser, Lyn Nofziger, the Republican National Committee and other groups began a media blitz.

The Republican National Committee is spending about $250,000 to produce a 30-second radio spot for broadcast in Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Maryland, Michigan, Missouri, Nevada, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Texas and Kentucky.

"Telephone your congressman," the commercial implores. "His vote is necessary to pass the Reagan tax cut. Tell him President Reagan needs his vote."

And the National Republican Congressional Committee also is spending about $250,000 to purchase time on seven national radio networks. In one of the commercials, a Baltimore, Md., man advises: "Tell your congressman to stop playing politics and vote for the president's tax cut. That's what I told mine."

The Committee for Economic Recovery, headed by Rep. Stan Parris, R-Va., raised $30,000 from traditional Reagan contributors to finance a television ad, broadcast only in the nation's capital.

The commercial shows a little girl opening an empty Christmas package. A voice says the package represents House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr.'s "Christmas-in-July tax-cut package. But when you look inside: surprise...O'Neill's tax cut is no tax cut at all.... Empty promises are no gift. Tell your congressman that what you ordered last November was the Reagan tax cut and that's exactly what you expect to get."

Citizens for the Republic, a group Reagan once headed, has raised $150,000 to take out full-page advertisements in The Washington Post, The New York Times, The Atlanta Constitution and other newspapers. Those ads, too, ask voters to telephone their congressmen to show their support for Reagan's tax-cut bill.

Both sides determined to win

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan and Democratic leaders in Congress are dropping tax-policy principles right and left in their determined struggle for a political victory this week.

The competing tax-cut measures that will be put to the House on Wednesday bear little resemblance to the proposals first advanced in the winter and spring by the Republican president and his Democratic opponents.

And although the differences between the two bills have been narrowed significantly in the competitive search for votes, neither side is talking compromise anymore. Winning is the thing now.

Predictably, each side accuses the other of forsaking principle in favor of political victory but insists it remains true to the economic cause.

"Our opponents in the beginning didn't want a tax bill at all," Reagan said Monday night in a nationally broadcast speech promoting his plan.

"So what is the purpose behind their change of heart? They've put a tax program together for one reason only, to provide themselves with a political victory.... Never mind, that it won't solve the economic problems confronting our country."

In contrast, the president said, he and conservative Democrats put together a bill "we felt would provide incentives and stimulate productivity, thus reducing inflation and providing jobs for the unemployed."

"That was our only goal," he declared, without noting the numerous changes his bill has undergone in the quest for votes.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski of Illinois, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee and leader of the Democratic tax challenge, put on his own coat of principle in respondin to Reagan on Monday.

"It is the president who truly wants a political victory. ... The Democrats want an economic victory," said Rostenkowski, who accused Reagan of reducing a $1 trillion tax debate into "a political trench fight."

Reagan's once "clean" bill, limited to individual and business tax cuts, is now as cluttered as a dining room table at Thanksgiving with provisions the administration hopes will entice enough conservative Democrats to ensure passage. The latest revision includes some changes that the administration previously rejected as bad tax policy.

The Democratic alternative is built on the bedrock of Republican tax policy: large tax cuts for businesses and individual cuts that are of primary benefit to wealthy individuals.

By targeting more of the tax cut to those making less than $50,000 a year than Reagan's bill would, the Democrats can claim they are keeping faith with their traditional constituency of less-affluent Americans. But the administration labels this a token gesture that would save low-income families only an average $22 a year.

Administration officials say the Democrats have moved so far toward Reagan's original tax position that the president could claim a victory even if his bill loses in the Democratic-controlled House. Yet the administration seems intent on achieving victory on its own — though revised — terms.

Likewise, Democratic leaders in the House seem more interested in avenging two major defeats to Reagan on the 1982 budget than in compromising further.

One of the main ticking points involves a third-year cut in personal tax rates. Reagan wants a three-year reduction, period. The Democrats would make a third-year reduction contingent upon the economy performing in line with optimisitc administration forecasts.

Another major difference surfaced last week, when Reagan accepted a Senate proposal that would permanently and automaticalltax rates to offset inflation, beginning in 1985. The Democratic bill does not include this plan, which effectively could mean tax-rate cuts beyond three years.

It's the fans who pay

The nice thing about America is that it's a free country.

That means, among other things, that major league baseball players earning an average of $160,000 a year are free to go on strike in an effort to earn even more.

It also means that team owners have every right to sign up for $50 million in strike insurance, and then live off the proceeds while waiting for the players to surrender.

And if, as seems increasingly likely, the obstinacy of players and owners alike cancels what is left of the 1981 major league baseball schedule, that is nothing more nor less than a consequence of permitting labor and management to settle, or not to settle, their own disputes as they see fit.

The question is: Should anyone else have something to say about the scoreless tie between the owners and players.

We think so, notwithstanding our unqualified endorsement of the freedom that permits players and owners to act as sovereign judges of their own self-interest.

Professional baseball is indeed a commercial endeavor, a business whose chief economic function is to generate maximum profit for those who choose to invest their talent or money in the game.

But it is also something more: A revered national pastime whose enduring appeal has nothing whatsoever to do with lawyers and accountants.

Baseball rooted itself in our national psyche not because it made owners and players rich, but because it built legends that steelworkers, office clerks and even editorial writers could identify with during long summer afternoons at the ballpark.

Those legends — one thinks of men like Ruth, Gehrig, Mays and Clemente — flourish on the sheer romance of a game that offers glory to its participants in exact proportion to their ability. Baseball is America epitomized — utterly democratic even as it offers immense psychic and material rewards to those who excel.

But legends, like beauty, lie in the eye of the beholder. And for baseball, the indispensable beholder is the fan — the man, woman or child who makes the stadium turnstiles spin.

Take away baseball's legions of doggedly loyal fans and there would be no expanding pot of gold over which owners and players could squabble.

So why is the fan the forgotten figure in the baseball strike? The answer, it seems to us, is a combination of greed and bullheadedness.

The players are insisting on a free-agent system that would yield them top dollar for switching clubs and selling their talent to the highest bidder.

The owners are equally adamant about establishing provisions that would compensate them for the loss of blue chippers and, in the process, make free-agent status less of a bonanza for the players.

While there is something to be said for the arguments put forth by both sides, the best interests of baseball clearly demand a compromise that would protect both players and owners and preserve a measure of competitive balance between teams.

If the fans could vote, that is the kind of compromise they would opt for. And if the owners and players are smart, they'll stop bickering long enough to listen to the grumbling of fans whose loyalty is being so sorely tested.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, July 28, the 209th day of 1981. There are 156 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On July 28, 1914, World War I began when Austria declared war on Serbia.

On this date:

In 1794, French revolutionaries Maximilien Robespierre and Louis Antoine Saint-Juste were executed.

In 1821, Peru proclaimed Independence from Spain.

In 1896, the city of Miami was incorporated with a population of less than 300.

And in 1945, 13 people were killed when a U.S. Army bomber crashed into the Empire State Building in New York.

Ten years ago: China's Premier Chou En-lai said the Peking government would refuse entry into the United Nations if Nationalist China remained a member.

Five years ago: Britain severed relations with President Idi Amin's government in Uganda.

One year ago: A spokesman for Iran's President Abolhasan Bani-Sadr said the death of the deposed Shah would have no effect on the American hostages in Iran.

Today's birthdays: Singer Rudy Vallee is 80 years old. Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis is 52.

Thought for today: Beware of little expenses. A small leak will sink a great ship. — Benjamin Franklin, U.S. statesman (1706-1790).

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Crusty old admiral making waves for Navy

WASHINGTON — President Reagan doesn't know what to do about Adm. Hyman Rickover, the angry old sea dog who, at age 81, is seeking to remain on active duty.

Jack Anderson

Exasperated admirals have complained to the White House that the four-star curmudgeon has become so cantankerous in his old age that the Navy would dearly like to get rid of him. They have filled the ears of presidential aides with tales of Rickover's alleged senility and pettiness.

Indeed, these details will be chronicled in a forthcoming biography which a wrathful Rickover allegedly is trying to keep out of Navy libraries.

But there is another reason that the admirals don't like Rickover. The Navy is preparing to carve out its share of the $1.5 trillion pie that President Reagan has promised the Pentagon over the next five years, and Rickover has been a bristling foe of overspending and profiteering. He has few friends in the military-industrial complex.

In an April letter to Rep. Sam Stratton, D-N.Y., Rickover has charged anew that Pentagon rules fail to safeguard the taxpayers. He offered these examples:

— The Boston-based Cabot Corp., which supplies a cobalt alloy used in naval reactor valves, refused at first to submit cost and pricing data and offered the government only "a catalogue price." After the firm finally provided the information, Rickover charged, "review of the data by the government disclosed that the profit quoted by the contractor was 66 percent of the estimated cost."

— U.S. Steel, the company that manufactures high-pressure air flasks for the Trident submarine, "has been able to insist on a profit between 27 percent and 38 percent of estimated costs," the admiral wrote.

— The Niagara Falls-based Carborundum Co., the only supplier of materials needed to fabricate reactor cores, "has historically demanded a profit of 25 percent," according to Rickover.

— Newport News Shipbuilding negotiated a contract insuring a profit of 10 percent of the company's estimated cost of overhauling nuclear submarines. Yet the admiral's analysis of six overhauls claimed the company reaped an average of 17.6 percent profit on actual costs and "profits on individual contracts have ranged from 15 to as high as 21 percent."

The companies under fire from Rickover challenged his conclusions. They claimed his profit figures neglected to include federal and state tax assessments. A spokesman for Newport News Shipbuilding said the company "has no knowledge of how Admiral Rickover arrived at the figures ... They apparently were carefully selected samples out of a large mix to support his claim that defense contractors are making too high a profit."

Will the president at least fire the venerable Rickover? White House sources told my associate Tony Capaccio that Reagan wants to honor the old salt, perhaps with an award or an honorary position, and then ease him gracefully into retirement.

WHISTLEBLOWING WOES: Six conscientious federal workers have bitten the dust for blowing the whistle on Indian school principals in Alaska and Oklahoma. Unsurprisingly, the two principals accused of misconduct were on the public payroll of the Interior Department.

At Gambrell, Alaska, three employees of the Indian day school charged principal Thomas Matheson with a series of irregularities. Spelled out in a government "non-security confidential" communication, the allegations claim Matheson allowed a private individual to trade for ivory in the corridors during school hours, that he disposed of federal food supplies damaged in a fire without documenting the transaction, that he sold government furniture at public auction, used a school snowmobile for "personal business," and ignored fire regulations.

The three complaining whistleblowers were fired. Matheson was temporarily removed from his job but then reinstated five weeks later. Subsequently, he wound up, at least temporarily, in Nome, Alaska, with an Interior Department post dealing with Indian education.

In Hartshorne, Okla., half the 30 employees of the Jones Academy demanded the removal of Principal Doyle Presley on grounds of mismanagement and misuse of government money. Three of the leaders of the protest were dismissed. Presley was shifted to another position and put on leave with pay while the case was being investigated.

PARK PROBLEMS: U.S. Park Service officials are apprehensive over Interior Secretary James Watts' bone-cutting budget slashes. They fear that the national playgrounds will soon have inner-city crime rates if money and manpower reductions are continued.

The crime rate at some big parks has risen 100 percent; among the hardest-hit are Great Smokey Mountain Park, Yosemite and Golden Gate National Recreation Area.

Arson is also raging. Cherokee National Forest, for example, has had 300 fires during the past year, and officials termed more than 90 percent of them suspicious.

Sources add that rape and robbery are rendering national parks as unsafe in some areas as New York's infamous Central Park.

INSIDE REPORT:

Reagan changing strategy in hopes of controlling Begin

WASHINGTON — Against his will, his instinct and a lifetime of emotional support for Israel, President Reagan is reappraising the U.S.-Israel connection to preserve his "strategic consensus" in the Middle East against Soviet penetration.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

The president is deciding whether to impose serious restraints on Prime Minister Menachem Begin's use of U.S. arms. The importance and difficulty of this provoked that one high U.S. policymaker used uncharacteristically harsh language in privately describing the situation to us: "We don't know how to bring Begin to heel, but we're trying to find out."

It is not easy. Ronald Reagan is just one more president unable to tailor Israeli policies to prevent wrecking U.S. interests in the region. But Reagan's credentials as a card-carrying supporter of the Jewish state is an advantage Jimmy Carter never enjoyed.

Administration officials urging Reagan to get tough were heartened by telephone calls, telegrams and letters praising the president for holding up those F-16 aircraft slated for delivery to Israel July 21. Richard Wirthlin, Reagan's public opinion analyst, is now conducting a poll expected to give Reagan high marks for that decision.

This gives him a political basis for addressing the principal problem posed by Begin's free-wheeling use of American weapons: The administration's "strategic consensus" for a U.S.-Arab-Israeli consortium to defend against Soviet designs is being destroyed by Israel's policy.

When Secretary of State Alexander Haig made the rounds of Arab capitals last spring, he pushed that Reagan strategy hard and was offered some help. But moderate Arab leaders said they considered Israel the real threat in the short run.

After that trip, Haig believed he had made progress with the Arab skeptics. But when Israel attacked Iraq's nuclear research facility on June 7 and a month later sent its U.S.-supplied aircraft against Palestinian terrorists in a densely-populated residential district in Beirut, the Reagan-Haig "strategic consensus" was critically wounded.

Some presidential intimates have cautioned Reagan that the timing of Begin's air raid may have been deliberately planned to weaken U.S. ties with its essential Arab allies — particularly Saudi Arabia. He has listened closely. One such adviser told us Reagan now agreed "that Begin is making it very difficult to help Israel."

The real impact inside the Arab world of recent Israeli activity is still unclear. In contrast to dire warnings in government-controlled media that the U.S. is responsible for what Begin does with American-supplied aircraft, Arab leaders are sophisticated; few accept that line.

Still, there are ominous portents. King Hussein of Jordan, a country regarded by Reagan as crucial to the West Bank peace efforts Haig is about to launch, sent a secret message to Washington last week warning that U.S.-Jordanian relations are "at a watershed." The Saudis, who have played a vital backstage role in trying to defuse the Israeli-Syrian missile crisis and act as American agents with the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO), are dangered among fellow Arabs by their pro-U.S. stand.

The Saudis know that Israel has sent its warplanes on illegal flights over their military base at Tobuk on several occasions. By Begin's own definition, all Saudi military power represents a threat to Israeli security. The Saudis ask: What would the U.S. do if Israel bombed Tobuk as Baghdad and Beirut have been bombed?

The undermining of Reagan's "strategic consensus" against the Soviet Union has progressed for the past seven weeks by virtue of Israel's military might. But the administration still considers it the best hope for a Mideast policy to safeguard the Persian Gulf east to Pakistan and south to the Indian Ocean. Reagan is not about to give it up.

To revive their strategy, Reagan and Haig must find some way to control Begin's use of power in the Arab world. Refusing to ship the F-16s is the beginning — the first time the U.S. has ever blocked military shipments for Israel that actually were in the pipeline. It suggests that more steps will be taken.

Difficult though it is for any president to crack down on Israel and particularly for this old friend of Israel, Reagan has an extraordinary breadth of public support to confront Begin. There is no desire or reason to punish Israel but only to make clear that the American superpower has its own interests in the Mideast that it must pursue for its own sake and ultimately for Israel's as well.

Mid-Tran criticized

To The Editor:

It seems to me that it is time that the "silent majority" be informed of the true facts concerning Mid-Tran and its financial condition.

Mid-Tran is and has been subsidized since its inception at the rate of $1,000 per day by city and federal funds. Both sources, whether funneled through local or federal agencies, the funds are furnished by the taxpayers. According to figures furnished me there has been an average of 400 rides per day. This means that the taxpayers are paying $2.50 per passenger to keep the system operating.

How much longer must this situation continue? Why has it been allowed to exist for 18 months? The city could pick up the tab in hardship cases by furnishing a chauffered Rolls Royce limousine and wouldn't have to look at nearly as much red ink each month.

As far as the taxpayers are concerned a more appropriate name for the system would be Mid-Scam not Mid-Tran.

Reporter thanked

To The Editor:

I want to commend you and your reporter for the excellent public service article on children and dogs. You deserve an award for such a fine article.

In one recent case the "family" dog was thought to be protective of the child. It is believed the child lovingly tried to kiss the dog, and was attacked (only one bite), leaving the child bruised and with blood coming from his eyes, nose and mouth. Dr. Tubb assures the family he is a very lucky child to have survived without serious scars. The child spent one week in the hospital and after eight weeks one eye is still discolored.

Probably, a better picture for the article could have been selected. A family-type dog, with young child petting it would have been more realistic. I doubt that even an innocent child would get near the pictured dog.

Again, thank you for this fine article to make the public aware that it can and does happen.

IRS criticized

To The Editor:

We as citizens should be more concerned about our country and the "goings on" in everyday life, as to the abuses and encroachment upon our rights that are guaranteed by the United States Constitution.

On NBC News of July 15th: Parent Runaways-Child Support, I saw an alarming violation of privacy.

The program featured a divorcee seeking the aid of the IRS for help to locate her "Ex," through the Form 1040 he filed with the Internal Revenue Service. Is this a violation of one's privacy? In my opinion, it is. The exposure of confidential returns governed by the Internal Revenue's own code, see Title 26 U.S.C.A. (IRC 1954) Section 6103.

A very interesting question arises here in reference to the use of a constitutional privilege on a return. To my knowledge, there is no statute that denies you the right to claim such privileges. According to my studies on the constitution, Congress cannot enact one either, and our courts can only "interpret" what they believe it is.

I do not support parent runaways, don't get me wrong, but I do support constitutional privileges and disagree with the exposure of documents that, supposedly are required to be filed to the government.

Something else you as citizens of Texas should find out more about: House Bill 197 passed by our representatives in Austin during July. The bill deals with automobile insurance for everyone. There is something wrong with the bill. The only one I see that will profit from it will be the insurance companies. Write your congressman and get in the know.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Wednesday, July 29, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: The late great William Powell, who played the original "Thin Man" was born on this date, as was Swedish statesman/diplomat Dag Hammarskjold, who served as secretary general of the United Nations. You will be able to take much greater satisfaction in your work in the year ahead and can count on partnerships being especially productive. An increase in income is possible, but the state of the economy will determine how much money you are able to save. Do not let others take advantage of your generosity. Prudent spending is a must! Romance undergoes change, but the end result should be greater happiness for all involved.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Work conditions are apt to be sensitive now. Tread very carefully. Do not take any unnecessary risks with investments, savings plans. A romantic interlude will be especially happy!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): An indirect approach may be best right now. You receive support from unexpected quarters, but may also find that a friend is not ready to keep a financial promise.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Comparison shopping is fine so long as you do not spend too much time or gasoline money driving around. Your family responsibilities may increase as a result of today's events.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Someone else's actions can lead to embarrassment. Put the guilty party straight! Refuse to be stampeded into making a decision you will later regret.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Put your creativity, originality to work at once! Member of opposite sex enters the picture. Read any fine print very carefully. Stop making excuses for someone who knows better.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your responsibilities are likely to increase now, but so will your income! Someone proves his or her loyalty. Enjoy what you have without being envious of others.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Heed the advice of your mate or partner. New projects hold real promise for you. Spend more time perfecting skills and acquiring new knowledge.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A good day for speculation and investments. Now is the right time to negotiate labor contracts. A personal relationship is challenging. If married, watch what you say.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Be willing to do some "wheeling and dealing" today to advance your cause. The agreements you make should please you. Take calculated risks. Seek the limelight this evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A tendency to strike out at others while asserting yourself must be checked. Diplomacy, tact will bring better results. Look for an inexpensive way to relax and have fun this evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Co-workers may not be receptive to your ideas today. Keep the office atmosphere pleasant. Work on your own if possible. This is a good day to deal with people at a distance.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Listen to all sides of an argument before making up your mind. You will win new friends and respect. Contact business people who live abroad. Family affairs require careful handling.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♡.

Having command of the technical plays is all very well. The secret of winning bridge is knowing when to apply what you have learned.

Three no trump was, in every respect, an excellent contract. South was maximum for his opening bid so he had no qualms about accepting his partner's invitational raise. It was a pity that he went astray in the play.

West led the king of hearts and East followed with the deuce. Considering the heart suit in isolation, South made the correct technical play by holding up the ace. This tactic is known in the trade as the "Bath Coup." Had West continued with a heart, declarer would have made two heart tricks.

On a different layout that might have been the winning play, but here the cure was worse than the disease. West noted that his partner had played a discouraging deuce on the king, so he shifted to the ten of diamonds. East overtook with the jack, and declarer began to realize the predicament he had placed himself in.

If East had the king of clubs, the contract was safe. However, if West held the king of clubs and declarer now won the ace of diamonds, West would return a diamond when he won the king of clubs and the contract was sure to be defeated. So declarer was forced to hold up the ace of diamonds.

The defense was relentless. East reverted to hearts, West captured the jack with the queen and cleared the suit. When he won the king of clubs, he had two good hearts to cash for a two-trick set.

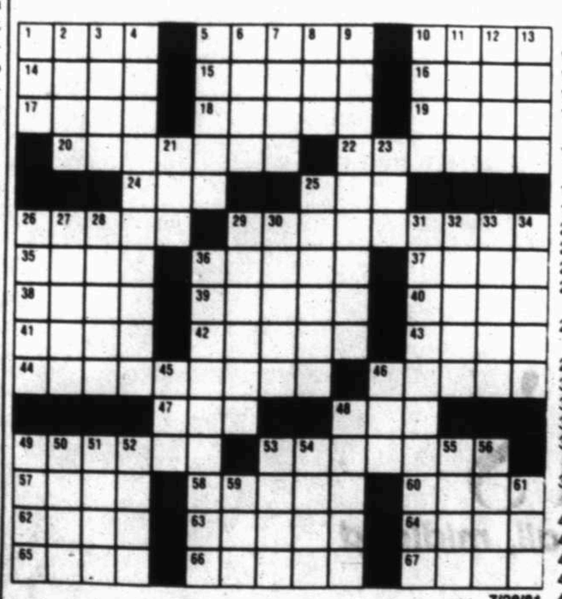

See how easy the hand would have been had declarer simply won the ace of hearts at trick one. He crosses to dummy with the jack of spades and runs the queen of clubs. If the finesse succeeds, declarer has at least nine tricks – for spades, three clubs and the two red aces, and more if the clubs break. But even if the club finesse loses, West can do declarer no harm and the contract is secure – with an overtrick.

Privately owned space vehicle ready for test

AP Laserphoto

Houston businessman David Hannah holds a model of the 55-foot long rocket named Percheron which is scheduled for launch in mid-August from Matagorda Island off the Texas Gulf coast. The project will be the first commercial launch into space.

HOUSTON (AP) — Private space entrepreneurs prepared for the first test firing today of rocket engines they hope will someday carry commercial satellites into orbit.

Today's scheduled test comes after three days of postponements due to bad weather.

When the skies cleared a bit Monday, the Houston-based firm backing the project raised the 55-foot-tall rocket on a Matagorda Island launch pad and stood back to admire it.

"I'm thrilled. It's just beautiful," Charles Chafer, vice president of Space Services Inc., said after workers used a crane to lift the nation's first privately owned space vehicle onto the stand.

The company plans engine tests this week — a three-second "burn" today and a 25-second burn Wednesday — and hopes to launch a suborbital flight Aug. 12, company spokesman Walt Pennino said.

The flight plan submitted to the Federal Aviation Administration calls for about a three-mile long flight that reaches an altitude of 14,500 feet. That plan was contained in a request for a waiver of an FAA rule prohibiting unmanned rocket flight in controlled air space.

"I think it looks favorable," Jim Santa Anna, acting public affairs officer for the Fort Worth office of the FAA, said of the waiver request. "By that I mean that I have not been advised of any major difficulties."

Santa Anna said he hopes the issue will be resolved by Friday.

Houston real estate developer David Hannah Jr., Space Services' president, has said the initial flight is chiefly intended to establish the firm's credibility with potential investors.

The firm hopes later to launch satellites into a 150-mile orbit and eventually into the 22,000-mile height used by communications satellites.

Now, though, engineers working on the project are repeating system checks to make sure raising the rocket did no damage.

Murder accomplice says killer had chat with victim

HOUSTON (AP) — The man Paul MacDonald says he hired to kill a wealthy, 61-year-old woman spent about two hours with her in her bedroom and "they had gotten to be friends" before he wrapped a stocking around her neck and strangled her, MacDonald has testified.

MacDonald, 34, testified Monday he hired condemned murderer Allen Wayne Janecka to kill Gertrude Duff-Smith Zabolio in a plot prosecutors say was hatched by the woman's adopted son.

The son, Markham Duff-Smith, also 34, is on trial accused of capital murder in the death of the woman. Prosecutors say he arranged her 1975 death and four years later set up the deaths of his sister and her family so he would be the only survivor left to inherit the family's estate.

Janecka was convicted of murdering Mrs. Zabolio's 14-month-old grandson in a later contract killing, but was never formally charged in Mrs. Zabolio's death.

Prosecutors say MacDonald was hired as a middle-man by one of Duff-Smith's former business associates, Walter A. Waldhauser Jr. MacDonald testified he then hired Janecka because he could not bear to do the killing himself.

MacDonald said on the rainy night of Oct. 15, 1975, Janecka "was waiting behind the patio and came up behind her with the gun and forced her into her house," a fashionable two-story home in the exclusive River Oaks neighborhood of Houston.

While Janecka held her at gunpoint, Mrs. Zabolio, apparently in an effort to buy some time, told him her husband was at the office and would be home soon.

Actually Dow Zabolio was in Europe, but Janecka did not know that, and since MacDonald said he and Janecka had been hired to kill both of them, he waited in hopes the other victim would arrive, MacDonald testified.

"They went upstairs and sat on her bed and talked for a couple of hours," MacDonald said Janecka told him. "He said they had gotten to be friends and were discussing all kinds of things.

"He said he told her he was there to kill her and Dow and she said she kind of suspected that," MacDonald said. "She said she was afraid of Duff and she suspected he was the one who hired him."

After about two hours, Janecka apparently figured time was up.

"He said he wrapped a stocking around her neck a couple of times and strangled her," MacDonald testified. "Then he dragged her body from the bedroom to the bathroom and left her draped out with one arm over the toilet."

MacDonald testified he and Janecka were promised $10,000 to split between them for the contract killing but had trouble collecting it.

The woman's death was first ruled suicide, but was later changed to murder after a 19-month investigation headed by Houston Police Detective Johnny Bonds.

MacDonald testified he was hired by Waldhauser, and said after the murder part of his negotiations for the payoff were with Duff-Smith.

MacDonald said he agreed to testify in exchange for a promise that prosecutors would not seek the death penalty against him. Waldhauser turned state's evidence in exchange for a 30-year prison sentence. Prosecutors say he will testify later.

Briscoe adds 5,568 acres to land holdings

LAREDO, Texas (AP) — Former Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe, a rancher-banker with extensive land holdings, has purchased another 5,568 acres in northwest Webb County.

Briscoe Ranch Inc., one of the corporations owned by Briscoe and his family, bought one of four parcels of the legendary Apache Ranch, which adjoins his Catarina Ranch on the south along the Rio Grande.

At last report, Briscoe owned and leased close to 1 million acres of ranch land in the area of the Rio Grande, making him the largest landholder in Texas.

The Briscoe purchase was part of the $8 million sale of the 14,582.40-acre Apache Ranch by Houston oilman John R. Blocker and his wife, Jeanne.

Other buyers besides Briscoe were Samuel H. Vester Jr. who lives near Houston; George E. Neel Jr. and his wife, of Laredo, and Joe L. Gilbert of Laredo, according to public records.

Process server suing anchorman Dan Rather

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS anchorman Dan Rather is being sued for $2.5 million by a process server who claims he was "unlawfully detained" at the network's studios after he handed Rather a subpoena.

Carl Kornbluth, a licensed process server, was "accosted" by at least 10 people and questioned for 35 minutes after he issued the subpoena July 14, his attorney claimed Monday.

"You don't fool around with a process server," said the lawyer, Donald Nussbaum. Nussbaum said the subpoena instructed Rather to appear at a hearing concering Writers Guild arbitration.

Rather

Also named in the suit filed in state Supreme Court were CBS Inc. and several other employees.

CBS disputed the lawyer's version of the incident. Spokeswoman Ramona Dunn said Kornbluth was questioned for 10 minutes because newsroom employees were angry he had "slipped past security."

Ms. Dunn said Rather was preparing his evening newscast when Kornbluth entered the office unannounced. She said CBS employees stopped him and asked him who he was as he abruptly left.

SAN DIEGO (AP) — U.S. Ambassador to Mexico John Gavin said he was "not feeling well" and was caught "totally off-guard" shortly before he pushed a television cameraman into a hotel lobby wall.

Gavin

Gavin, here to meet with American tuna fishermen angry over Mexico's seizure of two fishing boats, apologized for shoving Dave Smith of Channel 39 into a planter Monday at the Kona Kai Hotel.

The 50-year-old former film star — who earlier this year caused a controversy when he lashed out at U.S. journalists covering Mexico — told reporters he "was in a hurry to get to the bathroom" when the shoving incident occurred. He said he still feels ill from food poisoning he got while attending a conference between President Reagan and Mexican President Lopez-Portillo in Maryland in June.

"I had just turned on my light. At that instant, Gavin put up his briefcase and jammed it into the lens, knocking me backwards. He didn't stop there, he kept pushing. We knocked over a planter and ran into a wall," said Smith.

"He just went after me. At first I thought he was joking. He wasn't. He was really upset," Smith said.

Some Mexican officials objected when Gavin's appointment as ambassador was announced by the Reagan administration. They said Gavin, whose mother was Mexican, had no background in diplomacy. Gavin was confirmed unanimously by the U.S. Senate.

NEW YORK (AP) — A former ambassador to Great Britain says this week's royal wedding will help Britons "bring their nation together despite their recent economy problems and racial troubles."

Brewster

Kingman Brewster, 61, ambassador under former President Jimmy Carter, compared the celebration of Wednesday's marriage of Prince Charles and Lady Diana Spencer to America's Bicentennial in 1976.

"Just as the Bicentennial helped this nation get past Watergate and Vietnam, (the wedding) gives the (British) people a chance to express their affection for an absolutely wonderful couple and, through them, to express their pride in their nation as a whole," Brewster said.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Entertainer Chet Atkins, known as "Mr. Guitar," says he won't renew his contract as an executive with RCA Records' Nashville division.

Atkins, 57, associated with RCA for more than 25 years and vice president of the local division since 1966, said he would continue as a performer and producer.

"I am not totally severing ties," Atkins said Monday. "I'll still turn out a few albums annually and produce studio sessions for Perry Como, Roger Whitaker and some others. I've been thinking about this for some time."

He said he "told the bosses in New York four or five months ago that I didn't want to renew" when his contract expires this week.

Casey probe could take months

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Intelligence Committee inquiry into CIA Director William J. Casey's fitness is expected to stretch into September, and the panel might seek his resignation even if no criminal wrongdoing is found, sources close to the investigation say.

As Casey continued visiting senators to rally support and the White House issued a fresh vote of confidence from President Reagan, the Intelligence Committee put veteran Watergate investigator Fred Thompson in charge of the probe.

Thompson, joined by Republican committee chairman Barry Goldwater of Arizona and ranking Democrat Daniel P. Moynihan of New York, heard a preliminary staff report Monday on Casey's tangled past business practices and his appointment of businessman Max Hugel to head CIA clandestine services.

The full committee was to hear the briefing, based on a review of CIA and FBI files, at a closed session today.

Thompson, 38, who served as Republican counsel to the Senate Watergate Committee in 1973, is a close associate of Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee. "This gives Baker more input into the committee," according to one source, who asked not to be identified.

One source said the staff report was very preliminary and basically outlined areas to pursue. This source said that effort was expected to take two to four weeks, which would postpone the committee's final conclusions until Congress returns from its August vacation in early September.

Casey and the White House had hoped to extinguish the controversy before Congress leaves town.

Thompson promised "a thorough inquiry" but added: "I hope it will be resolved in the near future. I don't think it serves anybody's purposes to have a long drawn-out affair." He declined to commit himself in any more detail on timing.

At the White House, deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said Reagan hoped the questions about Casey would be resolved shortly "in spite of Mr. Thompson's being retained there."

"The president still has full confidence in Mr. Casey and hopes this matter will be concluded shortly," Speakes said.

Judge rules on another's involvement

AUSTIN (AP) — The presiding judge of the Texas Criminal Appeals Court says an Odessa judge's involvement in a phony narcotics arrest in 1975 shouldn't impair the judge's ability to rule on requests for wiretaps in drug investigations.

District Judge R.L. McKim, a Republican, is one of nine judges selected by Criminal Appeals Court Judge John Onion to authorize wiretaps under a new law approved by the state Legislature earlier this year.

Onion said he recalled the phony drug bust but was unaware McKim was involved. He said he didn't think the incident would interfere with McKim's duties under the wiretap bill, however.

McKim says he was "taken advantage of" by the Odessa American, a newspaper that exposed the phony bust after unwittingly publicizing it as a legitimate arrest.

The fake bust was arranged by Tom Barker — an investigator for Ector County District Attorney John Green — to protect the undercover identity of a narcotics agent working for the prosecutor's office.

Barker outlined the plan at a May 23, 1975 meeting with McKim, Justice of the Peace Jan Brooks and an Ector County deputy sheriff in the judge's chambers.

Wyoming Oil Leases To Be Awarded in August

CARSON CITY, NV — Hundreds of average citizens will acquire oil lease rights in upcoming public awards conducted by the State of Wyoming. Some may achieve overnight wealth by selling their rights to oil companies and retaining lifelong royalties on any oil or gas production.

Incredibly, most will risk no more than $25 and a minimal filing fee to enter the little-known program that offers every American the opportunity to compete on an equal basis with giant oil companies for leases of public lands.

Information and entry details are available from The H. Kirk Sanders Co., Public Lands Division, 607 E. Spear St., Carson City, Nevada 89701. Enclose $1 for postage and handling.

Official entry cards will be rushed by return mail to permit the timely filing of entries before cut-off date.

Doctor reports success treatment for herpes

By DAVID KAYE
Associated Press Writer

CLIFFSIDE PARK, N.J. (AP) — A doctor here is treating more than 1,000 patients with injections of an organic compound he claims cuts down on the severity and frequency of the stubborn herpes simplex virus, for which there has been no known cure.

Dr. Sol Harvey Sklar said the compound AMP can cure initial outbreaks of herpes simplex and control the painful virus in about two-thirds of the chronic cases.

Herpes simplex can be transmitted by sexual intercourse. Doctors say the virus can remain dormant for months or years in nerve cells until stress, intercourse or other unknown factors cause the virus to move into the skin and develop into blisters on the surface.

AMP — adenosine monophosphate — occurs naturally in human nerve cells and can be synthesized from yeast. Sklar gives his patients injections every other day for several weeks and said they dry out sores and cut the virus' ability to bounce back.

Midlanders favor handshake over curtsy

Nancy Reagan's decision to extend her hand rather than bend her knee upon meeting Queen Elizabeth Monday is receiving approval by various Midlanders, despite controversy sparked by the press concerning her refusal to curtsy to the British monarch.

Mrs. Reagan, who declared Friday she would shake hands rather than bow when the two women were introduced, is acting as the official U.S. representative to the Wednesday wedding of Prince Charles and Lady Diana Spencer.

In a brief survey, most Midlanders agree that the American First Lady is under no obligation to follow through with tradition in the presence of royalty. "I don't think it was necessary to curtsy," said Barbara Edwards, receptionist for Midland Women's Clinic, 2009 W. Wall. "In my opinion, the queen is not above our first lady."

"She probably didn't curtsy because she feels she's on an equal station with the queen, although she is a figurehead and is due some respect," said Michael Towne, program coordinator for Midland Athletic Club, 3000 N. Garfield. "They should be given equal billing. Why should she curtsy? We don't have an equivalent queen status in this country other than the first lady. There's not really a regal position here."

Phyllis Colte, office manager for Village Lincoln-Mercury, 3915 W. Wall, referred back to basic constitutionalism in her support of the first lady's actons. "We're all on the same level. No one should be expected to bend to royalty. If our country had royalty, it would be different. What is the bill of rights anyway ?"

Advocates of Mrs. Reagan's decision contend it is improper for an American to bow or curtsy to pay humble homage to the blue-blooded monarch because the United States fought off a war to free itself from British rule.

"Personally, I feel it's all a bunch of bull," said H.J. Jones, manager for S&Q Clothiers, 115 N. Colorado. "My first thought is visitors to foreign countries should do as they feel."

British newspaper reaction to the incident took the form of banner headlines which screamed "I Won't Bow, Says Nancy!" and "Nancy Won't Curtsy to Queen."

"It seems the English press is making remarks and the Queen doesn't really care," said Ronnie Low, owner of Midland Tool Supply, 512 W. Front. "I really don't know much about protocol, but I'd rather see Mrs. Reagan shake hands than curtsy."

However, at least two Midland residents questioned said adherence to tradition would have prevented overblown controversy. "I think a person should realize there are different customs," said Jimmie Bean, information secretary for the Chamber of Commerce. "Out of simple respect, there's no reason why the first lady should not have curtsied. I don't believe it would have been belittling. It would have been the courteous thing to do. She has just drawn more attention to herself."

Alan Lord, an accountant for Texaco, 406 N. Bentwood agreed. "She should have courtsied. I think it was petty that she didn't. It would have saved a lot of trouble and would not have made waves."

DEAR ABBY
All inside the family

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: For two years I have been dating a man who must be ashamed to take me home to meet his mother. Although he has never told me this in so many words, I am sure it's true.

He didn't take me to his niece's graduation ceremony erlier this year. Also, his cousin got married and he didn't invite me to the reception with him. Recently his brother's girlfriend had a big birthday party for his brother, and he went alone and told me about it afterward. These things hurt me, but I didn't say anything.

When we first started dating, I introduced him to my parents and invited him to all our family gatherings so he could meet my relatives.

I'm not a bad-looking girl. In fact, I'm considered good-looking by quite a few. I have a nice figure (34-22-35) and I'm very polite. Sometimes I think he's ashamed of me because I'm raising a son from a previous relationship and I've never been married. Please put me on the right track. — WONDER WHY

DEAR WONDER: Quit wondering and ask him. However, the reason he's ashamed of you is less important than the fact that he is. And unless he overcomes that "shame," the "track" for you is one that leads out of his life.

HINTS FROM HELOISE
Ring around the collar

DEAR HELOISE:

Please help me with a problem. Even though my husband washes his neck before he puts on a clean shirt, a dirty line appears a short time later.

These are very hard to wash out. The many products advertised for this purpose are not completely satisfactory.

Do you have any suggestions as to how this ring-around-the-collar can he prevented? — H. Cath

+ + +

A couple he might try, Luv...

Before he puts on a clean shirt, have him rub over his neck with a wad of cotton or tissue paper dampened with rubbing alcohol. He might be surprised at the results.

Also, have him apply a roll-on antiperspirant to the back of his neck after showering. But be sure he discontinues using it if irritation develops.

Hope these help. — Hugs, Heloise

WADING POOLS

Dear Heloise: As a mom of five and a babysitter for others, I've learned a trick or two...

Kids love those wading pools in the summertime and are upset if the pool springs a leak. When this happens, don't throw the old one away.

Put it inside the new one and fill 'er up! The added thickness will make the combination last longer than a new one used alone.

Our "set" is on its third summer and sees a lot of use! — Ruth Conley

CLEANING MAN-MADE MARBLE

Dear Heloise: I cannot use anything harsh, even the so-called "gentle" products, on my imitation marble bathroom sink and plastic wall covering as it would scratch.

Finding something to clean them with was a problem until one day I sprinkled bubble bath powdered granules (made for hard water) on a slightly damp cloth and rubbed the sink and wall.

Wiped them dry and couldn't believe my eyes! Beautiful!

Beautiful sink, beautiful walls, beautiful fixtures!

I now, literally, have a flower-fresh bathroom which is really clean-looking. — Shirley Edgar

+ + +

Good for you luv, don't ever use anything even slightly abrasive on your fixtures. I like your idea. — Heloise

HOT SEAT

Dear Heloise: If it's hot, lean your car's bucket seat forward.

When you return to your car, you'll love the nice, cool seat! — Beth Phillips

You are a saint! This is so smart. I love it. — Heloise

Cooling water is poured onto a burning tank car containing 55,000 gallons of ethylene oxide Monday near Newark airport. Toxic fumes from the blaze forced officials to evacuate a nearby Holiday Inn, one of the airport's terminals and other buildings in the area. Highways leading to the airport were also closed.

Officials think tanker fire may burn out today

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Firefighters stood by as a ruptured railroad tanker filled with a toxic chemical burned for a second day today, forcing part of a nearby highway to remain closed to traffic, officials said.

Conrail spokeswoman Pat Illuminhei said late Monday it still was impossible to determine how much of the estimated 27,000 gallons of liquid ethylene oxide remained in the 55,000-gallon tank. But she said officials thought the fire would burn out this afternoon.

"It wasn't as bad as we originally thought. We caught it in time," said Newark Fire Director John Caufield.

The fire erupted early Monday in a Conrail yard near Newark International Airport as rail workers were hooking cars together. "One of the (coupling) knuckles jumped and punctured the side of the car," said Fire Chief Thomas Boyle.

When officials warned the car could "take off like a rocket," thousands of people were evacuated from nearby businesses, an airport terminal and a motel. Motorists were stranded as major highways, including the nearby New Jersey Turnpike, were closed for several hours. Port Newark also was shut down for several hours, but about 4,000 workers were allowed to return by early afternoon.

Officials said the stretch of U.S. 1 and 9 that runs past the airport would remained closed until the fire was out because of the danger of explosion but the other nearby highways were reopened.

People Express and World Airways, which use the affected terminal, said they would resume full service by early evening. Airplanes continued to arrive and depart at the main terminals, but they were diverted around the burning tanker.

Although there was a small residential area nearby, no homes were evacuated. That angered some of the residents.

"They had it on the radio, but the authorities have not said anything to us," said Walter Martinez, 39, who lived nearby. "This is a small neighborhood. There is no reason why they couldn't go door-to-door and inform us."

Police Director Hubert Williams said homes were not evacuated because officials believed any explosion would have been in the opposite direction of the neighborhood.

Caufield said firefighters had not attempted to extinguish the blaze because the chemical would have exploded when it mixed with the air. Instead, explosives experts pumped nitrogen into the burning tanker to neutralize the volatile vapors and cause the chemical to burn off more quickly.

A spokesman for BASF Wyandot Corp., a company that leased the tanker, said ethylene oxide is a clear liquid used in making antifreeze, cosmetics, pharmaceuticals and detergent. He said it also is used to sterilize new surgical instruments before packaging them.

Search for flood victims temporarily called off

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Fatigue and the threat of more flash flooding forced authorities to halt a search for five people missing after a wall of water raced through a canyon recreation area. Three people were known dead.

About 40 law enforcement officers, search and rescue volunteers and military personnel planned to resume the air-and-ground search today, said Pima County Sheriff's Deputy Chuck McHugh.

Sheriff's officials said about 50 people were hiking, swimming and picnicking Sunday near Tanque Verde Falls when a flash flood, fed by rainwaters upstream, stormed over the falls. Some were plunged into a pool at the foot of the falls — a drop of 80 to 100 feet.

Helicopters rescued 26 people from the area, which is marked by canyons of slippery rocks that channel the runoff of sudden rainstorms into raging torrents.

Andrew Hoff, 16, who was on a rock above the swimmers, said he warned others when he saw the water rising rapidly. "I started yelling, 'Flash flood, get out!'" he said.

Fires contained in Utah, uncontrolled in California

By The Associated Press

Lightning-sparked fires that burned nearly 80,000 acres of sage and juniper in Utah have been contained, while a northern California blaze that consumed at least 3,400 acres and hurt three firefighters was proving harder to control.

A spokeswoman for the Utah Interagency Fire Center at Salt Lake said the 1,000 firefighters who battled the four range fires were aided by improved weather — light winds, moderate temperatures and higher humidity.

One firefighter in Utah suffered a minor injury, officials said.

A fire that started Friday and destroyed three houses Saturday near Oak City in west-central Utah was declared contained Monday evening after burning 35,000 acres. At the time, fire center spokeswoman Beth Runyan said "we expect some sort of control tomorrow."

A 26,000-acre fire about three miles away also was contained Monday evening, and was expected to be controlled by this evening, she said.

A 7,000-acre blaze 11 miles west of Nephi, started by lightning Monday morning, was contained by afternoon and was expected to be controlled early today.

An 11,800-acre fire at Promontory Point in northern Utah was controlled Monday afternoon, Ms. Runyan said.

A fire is contained when its spread has been checked. A fire is controlled when it is virtually extinguished.

During the battle against the fire near Oak City, some residents and officials of Millard County charged that the U.S. Forest Service didn't fight the blaze as quickly as it could have, and that it left protection of some property to the residents.

Forest Service officials contended they sent firefighters to the blaze as soon as possible, and that their prime concern had been protecting Oak City, a town of more than 400 residents.

Wedding coverage likely to lead world ratings

LONDON (AP) — It's a producer's dream — excitement, color, drama, romance. All the elements of a smash hit. No surprise, then, that TV executives expect the royal wedding of Prince Charles and Lady Diana Spencer to blitz world ratings.

"It will be the biggest TV audience ever," says Derek Golesworthy, head of international programming for British Telecom. "I think it's going to go above 750 million viewers."

If anybody's counting, that's one in every six human beings watching Britain's dashing heir to the throne tie the knot July 29 with the titled girl next door.

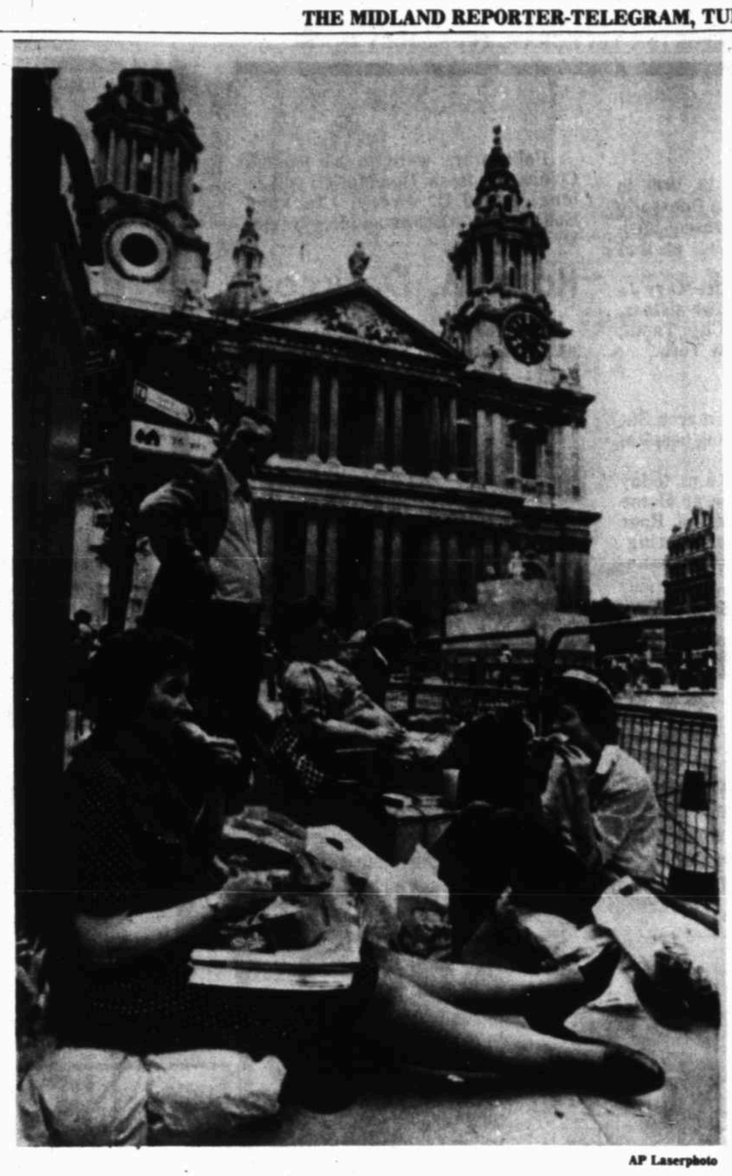

Golesworthy's crew is sending the pictures to 100 television companies in 50 countries — from Dubai on the Persian Gulf to Korea in Asia to the Dutch Antilles off the coast of South America.

His 200 engineers have spent four months crawling under London's streets to put down 750 miles of cable and climbing across rooftops to plant dozens of microwave dishes.

Wellwishers already are gathering outside St. Paul's Cathedral and along the London parade route as Wednesday's "wedding of the century" approaches.

Nancy Reagan gives preview of outfit for royal wedding

LONDON (AP) — Nancy Reagan is giving the press a preview of her outfit for the royal wedding the day before the event because "she doesn't want to compete with the bride," her press secretary Sheila Tate says.

Mrs. Tate was to release pictures today of the costume America's first lady will wear to St. Paul's Cathedral Wednesday for the marrige of Prince Charles and Lady Diana Spencer.

The Washington Post reported Sunday that Mrs. Reagan would wear a salmon satin coatdress by her favorite California designer, James Galanos, and a broad-brimmed hat. The Post said Mrs. Tate, when asked to confirm its report, replied, "How did you find out?"

Lady Diana has three spare wedding gowns in reserve in case hers is revealed before the wedding. But "Mrs. Reagan has only one dress ready for the wedding," Mrs. Tate said.

The Washington Post said she bought it some time ago and saved it "for a special occasion."

Mrs. Reagan went to Buckingham Palace Monday night for a gala dinner and reception given by Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip for their son and future daughter-in-law.

The 90 dinner guests included King Olav V of Norway, Queen Margrethe II of Denmark and other heads of state attending the wedding. The 1,500 reception guests were friends of the royal family and "friends of friends," a palace spokesman said.

The president's wife got a big cheer when the large crowd outside the palace gates spotted her limousine driving through.

London ready for revelry

By JEFF BRADLEY
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — The flash of fireworks and sound of music fill the London skies tonight, heralding the "wedding of the century," and early birds were already camping before the great dome of St. Paul's Cathedral to get a good view of the royal bride and groom Wednesday.

As dedicated royalty lovers staked out choice places beneath the bunting and balloons festooning the procession route from Buckingham Palace to St. Paul's Cathedral, Lady Diana Spencer, clasping Prince Charles' hand, made one of her last public appearances before becoming princess of Wales and the future queen of England.

In a final rehearsal Monday at Sir Christopher Wren's 300-year-old cathedral atop Ludgate Hill, the bride and groom met before Archbishop of Canterbury Robert Runcie to practice the ceremony that will be televised to an expected 750 million viewers in 55 nations.

Diana, whose pre-wedding jitters caused her to flee a weekend polo match in tears when confronted by a barrage of cameras, was whisked into the cathedral through an underground parking lot.

After the hour-long rehearsal, however, she faced an enthusiastic throng of 3,000 people. Charles took her hand as they descended the cathedral's 24 front steps to their limousine.

House to vote on plan for redistricting

AUSTIN (AP) — House members are expected to vote Wednesday on a redistricting plan that could increase the number of GOP Texas congressmen from five to as many as eight.

The House Calendars Committee planned to meet today to set the congressional redistricting bill for debate.

Rep. Tim Von Dohlen, D-Goliad, weaned away enough votes from a competing, unabashedly Democratic plan, to push his own proposal through the House redistricting committee Monday.

Von Dohlen abandoned his cherished plan to divide Corpus Christi — splitting liberal-voting Hispanics from conservative Anglos — in order to get the votes he needed.

Von Dohlen's plan is similar in most respects to the redistricting bill written by Sen. John Wilson, D-La Grange, and passed by the Senate last Tuesday.

The Wilson plan would increase Texas' GOP congressional strength from five to seven members, while Von Dohlen's holds the potential for eight Republican congressmen.

The key committee vote was 10-8 to table a substitute plan by Rep. Paul Ragsdale, D-Dallas, who didn't attempt to conceal the fact he was trying to keep Republicans from gaining more than one congressional seat.

Ragsdale thought he had 10 votes for his plan, and fellow Rep. Craig Washington, D-Houston, didn't hide his anger when two committee members changed sides.

Washington said he would offer a plan on the House floor that "the members who understand loyalty will go for, who understand loyalty more than some on this committee."

Asked what he meant by loyalty, Washington said, "Like giving your word, for instance."

Ragsdale had listed Reps. Bill Clark, D-Tyler, and Bill Coody, D-Weatherford, as promising to vote for his plan, which would have protected all incumbent Democratic congressmen but U.S. Rep. Jim Mattox of Dallas.

Mattox's district would be extended into several rural counties, which Ragsdale said would convert it from liberal to conservative Democrat — but Democrat nonetheless.

Both the Wilson and Von Dohlen plans pack Mattox' minority base of support into Congressman Martin Frost's district, converting Mattox' district from liberal Democrat to Republican. Both plans also create a Hispanic district with no incumbent in South Texas, a GOP mid-cities district in the Dallas-Fort Worth area and a Democrat district in Southeast Harris County.

Ragsdale would have given the GOP only one additional congressman, in the mid-cities area.

Coody voted against Ragsdale's plan, and Clark withheld his vote, changing a potential 10-9 victory to a defeat.

"I was for it Friday because we were trying to hold off the (original) Von Dohlen plan, which I didn't like," Coody said. He said Von Dohlen made his proposal palatable by making "some very substantial changes," such as eliminating the Corpus Christi split.

Clark said, "I had a deal cut with Von Dohlen" to change sides if the committee switched Gregg County from Congressman Ralph Hall's district to Congressman Sam Hall's. After the committee voted 13-4 to make the change, Clark dropped his support of the Ragsdale plan.

Moving Gregg County, plus adding Henderson and Cherokee counties into Ralph Hall's district, changed it "from a marginal Democratic district to a solid Democratic district," Clark said.

He added his only agreement with Ragsdale was that such changes were needed to protect Ralph Hall, and once that was accomplished he had no further obligation to Ragsdale.

One major difference between Von Dohlen's bill and the Wilson plan is that it converts U.S. Rep. Bill Patman's district from safely Democratic to a toss-up by trading some rural counties for Brazoria County.

Von Dohlen's bill also puts some Republican Harris County suburbanites in a district with rural counties — taken from Patman — which extend northwest to Milam County. U.S. Rep. Ron Paul, R-Lake Jackson, would move into the district, Von Dohlen said.

Redistricting plan makes little change in West Texas, Panhandle

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The House redistricting committee Monday approved a congressional redistricting plan that makes virtually no change in the West Texas and Panhandle districts.

The amendment, sponsored by Goliad Democrat Tim Von Dohlen, leaves the Senate proposal for the 19th, 13th, 17th and 16th district unchanged. Those districts currently are represented by Kent Hance of Lubbock, Jack Hightower of Vernon, Charles Stenholm of Stamford and Richard White of El Paso.

The only West Texas district altered in the Von Dohlen plan is the 21st district, currently represented by Congressman Tom Loeffler of Hunt. Under Von Dohlen's plan, the 21st is expanded to take in Burnet County while losing part of Comal County.

The district still will include Midland, Presidio, Brewster, Pecos, Terrell, Val Verde, Crane, Upton, Reagan, Crockett, Irion, Tom Green, Schleicher, Sutton, Edwards, Real, Kimble, Menard, McCulloch, Mason, Gillespie, Kerr, Bandera, Llano and Kendall counties an part of Bexar County.

Man speared by tool released from hospital

BOSTON (AP) — A man whose head was speared by a 7-foot crowbar during a car crash has left the hospital and, despite some paralysis and speech trouble, understands everything said to him, his doctors say.

John Thompson, 39, of Hyde Park checked out of University Hospital Monday, three months after the accident, and will continue to undergo speech, physical and occupational therapy, but doctors say he walks steadily and is fully alert.

"His comprehension is normal," Dr. Joe I. Ordia, Boston City Hospital neurosurgeon told The Boston Globe.

Players arm Miller with vote of confidence

CHICAGO (AP) — Striking major league players and club owners will be meeting on opposite coasts Wednesday as the walkout that has canceled more than 25 percent of the 1981 baseball season continues through its seventh week.

Armed with a vote of confidence from the player representatives, Marvin Miller, executive director of the union, will hold the first in a series of regional meetings in Los Angeles. Miller said no further meetings had been scheduled.

At the same time, the 26 club owners will gather in New York for an update from the Player Relations Committee and their chief negotiator, Ray Grebey.

That means there can be no negotiations to end the strike probably before the weekend.

Miller spent more than five hours Monday night briefing the executive board of the union on the negotiations, which broke down last Thursday in Washington. The two sides had bargained for four days with a news blackout and Miller said he thought the players needed an update on the status of their strike.

Some 25-30 players who are not executive board members showed up for Monday night's meeting.

"Half of them didn't have the facts," Miller said. "There was an information gap not of our doing. A news blackout is a catastrophe for an organization like ours. There was a terrible information gap for four days (in Washington). Those were important days."

Miller said that although the players have never felt they were close to a settlement, that there had been some progress made for the first time about midway through the bargaining in Washington last week.

"But there is still an awful gap between us."

The basic issue remains the source of compensation for teams losing free agent players in baseball's annual re-entry draft. Miller said that the players' last proposal, made a week ago today, offered more compensation in the form of a professional player than the clubs had asked for.

"The clubs' position throughout has been the necessity of filling the hole left by a free agent signing with another team," said Miller. "We have known for a long time that's not the problem. We proved it last week. Our offer said that after you protect 24, the club losing the free agent could pick the No. 25 player from the roster of any of eight teams."

But the union chief said management's counter-proposal was that non-signing clubs could protect 28 players, less compensation than the union was offering, while signing clubs could protect only 24.

"That's to make sure that the compensation is taken from the signing club," Miller said.

If a club lost a player through compensation, it would receive $150,000 under management's plan unless the signing club was involved. In that case, no payment would follow.

"That's another example of punishing a team for signing a free agent," Miller said.

At Monday night's meeting, each player representative as well as the other players attending, were invited to discuss the issues and give their opinions on the strike situation. Many of them said they felt uninformed because of the news blackout.

"They brought us up to date," said Bob Molinaro of the Chicago White Sox. "There's complete unity and everybody's behind Marvin."

Bill Madlock of the Pittsburgh Pirates said the blackout was the reason the players had come to Chicago.

Magcobar Lions nip Crane, 10-9

By MIKE CRUVER
Sports Writer

In a game that featured 19 runs and 21 hits, it took a sparkling defensive play by Midland Magcobar to allow the Lions to escape with a thrilling 10-9 win over the come-back-kids from Crane in the opening game of the District I Hi-Junior Baseball Tournament Monday at Cubs Stadium.

After Tim Davis drilled a Robert Cadena fastball over the leftfield wall in the bottom of the sixth inning to give Midland a 10-6 lead, it appeared the Lions were finally free of the pesky Golden Cranes.

THAT WAS not to be the case. Crane had battled back all evening and wasn't about to go into the loser's bracket without a struggle. Midland reliever Barry Blackwell opened the seventh by getting Junior Bishop to pop to shortstop. Nayo Carrasco followed with a booming triple off the base of the wall in left, Cadena grounded out for the second out, but that third out proved very difficult to get.

Eddie Vengas singled to plate Carrasco and when Blackwell threw the ball away on a pickoff attempt, Vengas scooted to third. Davis then threw Junior Sena's slow roller over the head of first baseman Rene Payan as Vengas scored and Sena wound up at third. Junior Puga drew a base on balls before Tony Aguilar lashed a long drive over the head of leftfielder Kerry Robertson. Centerfielder Jose Carrasco, who had raced over to back up on the play, grabbed the ball on one bounce, rifled a throw to Davis, who whirled and threw a strike to Bruce Sears at the plate to catch a sliding Puga for the final out of the contest.

THE GAME had opened as if it were going to be a pitching duel. Crane starter Johnny Fox and Midland's Robertson matched goose eggs through the first two innings.

Crane dented the scoreboard first. In the top of the third, Robertson struck out the first two batters before walking Puga and Tony Aguilar. With two down and two on base, Ray Zarate hit a Texas Leaguer into short left to drive in Puga with the game's first run. Robertson walked Fox to load the bases before getting Bishop to ground out to end the threat.

Magcobar bounced right back in the bottom of the third to score four runs off Fox. Robertson walked, Dennis Matta doubled down the left field line, but Robertson was thrown out at the plate for the first out. Davis singled to knock in Matta, stole second, and moved to third when the shortstop let the catcher's throw roll into centerfield. After Payan popped up, Mercurio outlegged an infield hit as Davis scored. Mercurio moved to second when a pickoff attempt went awry and came home on a solid single by Sears. Sears moved to second on a passed ball and raced home on pinch hitter Blackwell's single to left. Crane finally got out of the inning when Jose Carrasco grounded out to first.

CRANE RALLIED to tie the score in the fifth. After Sena singled and Puga reached on an error, Aguilar lined a two-RBI double into left. Magcobar manager Del Trolinder brought in Blackwell from center to pitch to Zarate. Blackwell responded by striking him out, but an error on Fox's ground ball put runners at the corners with two outs. Bishop then hit a shot that bounced over Payan's head at first as the tying run scampered home. Blackwell finally retired the side by getting the next two batters on pops.

The Lions went back on top in the bottom of the fifth when they scored five runs. Davis tripled, Payan hit an RBI—double, Mercurio struckout, Sears walked and Blackwell singled in a run.

CRANE MANAGER Sammy Rodriguez brought third baseman Cadena in to pitch after Blackwell's hit. Jose Carrasco crossed up Crane's plans by outlegging an infield roller to drive in a run and Adam Montgomery followed with a single up the middle to plate two more runs. Montgomery was out on a steal attempt before Robertson ended the threat by hitting into a fielder's choice.

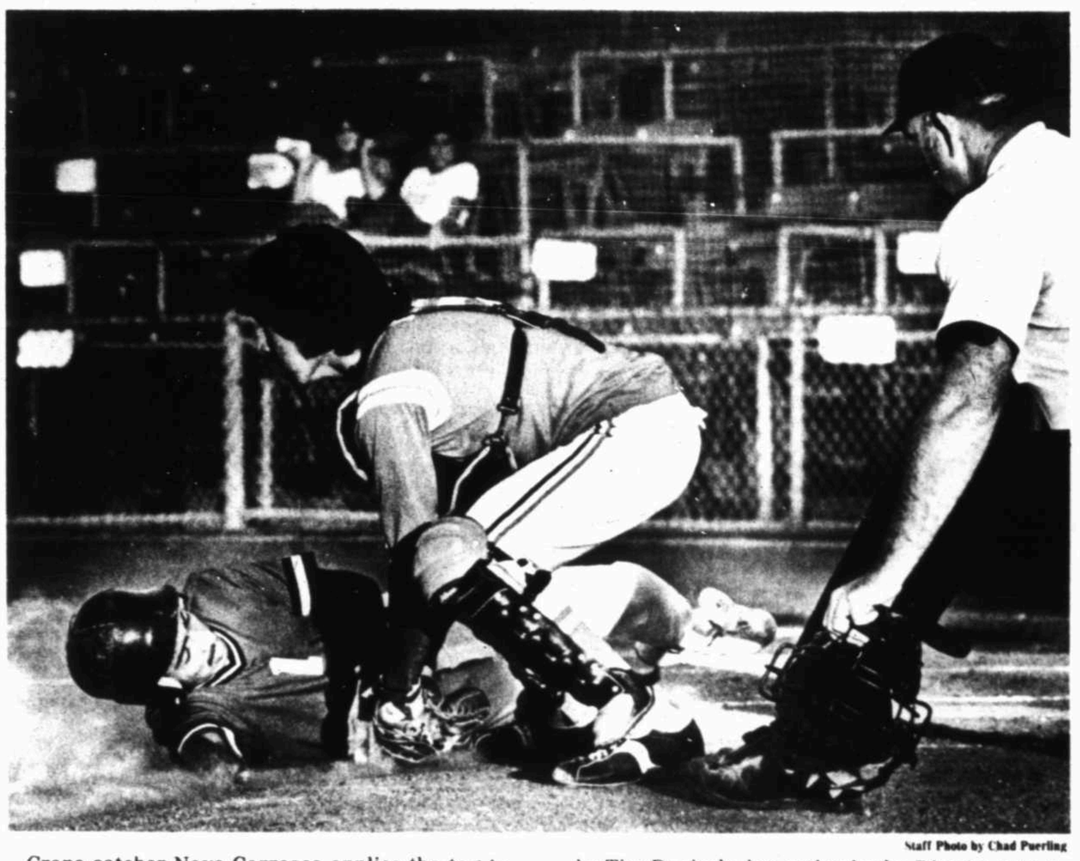

Crane cut the lead to 9-6 with two runs in the sixth. A triple by Sena, Aguilar's RBI-double and an RBI-single by Zarate off Blackwell accounted for the runs.

That set the stage for Davis' homer and the last gasp rally by Crane.

Blackwell picked up the win for the Lions while Cadena was tagged with the loss.

Trolinder said after the game, "We like to keep our games interesting."

The win advances the Lions into tonight's 6 p.m. game against El Paso Product of Odessa. The loser of the 6 p.m. game will then have to play Crane at 8:30 p.m. in a loser's bracket contest.

Optimist gain 4-3 victory over Kiwanis

ODESSA — Midland's Western Optimist got a two-run homer from Derrick Westbrook in the bottom of the seventh inning here Monday night to take a 4-3 victory over Midland's Eastern Kiwanis in the opening round of the District Sophomore double elimination tournament.

Eastern had taken a 3-1 lead in the third inning when Rodney Sims hit a two-run homer, but Westbrook's blast erased that margin and put the Optimist in the winner's bracket.

Westbrook homered and singled while Eric Ezell doubled and singled to pace the Western attack. No Eastern hitters had more than one hit. Western's Terry Baxter got the win while Frank Tello took the loss.

Western outhit the Eastern crew by a 6-5 margin.

Western will face Odessa Buggy Carwash today at 5 p.m. in a winner's bracket game and Kiwanis will face the loser of that game at 9 p.m. The loser in the 9 p.m. contest will be eliminated from the tournament.

The tournament is composed of six teams, two from Midland and four from Odessa.

The Optimist team advanced to the tournament by winning the Western Sophomore League crown and Kiwanis advanced by virtue of winning the Eastern division.

Coaches need to make some changes

An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS — Mysterious is a way to describe the handling of the Texas High School Coaches Association's annual All-Star games. Very, very mysterious.

For example:

Why would an organization which is losing money steadily on its All-Star attractions not change the format?

Why would such an outfit hold a North-South All-Star football game in Dallas and have only four Metroplex players on the squad? The game, by the way, drew just over 11,000, the lowest total since the 1950s.

Why would its selection committee not award the host city this year a single representative on the basketball squads when such classy players as Reginald Pink, Spud Webb or Billy Wright were available? The game drew only 5,000 fans

Puzzling. Very, very puzzling.

For no charge to the THSCA, here are some suggested changes that might get the games back to the glory years such as 1964, when 39,000 fans showed up in Fort Worth to watch the heralded running back Warren McVea in action.

First of all, why not let college coaches tutor the two teams with top schoolboy coaches as assistants?

Remember back in 1956 when the Abe Martin-coached North whipped the Paul (Bear) Bryant coached South 32-13 in Lubbock behind the passing of Dandy Don Meredith of Mount Vernon?

Big names can help draw big crowds.

What would be wrong with say Baylor's Grant Teaff and Houston's Bill Yeoman, for example, lending their names and talent to the game?

Also, under the current format all classes MUST be represented and a school can have only ONE player present.

This means a lot of talent is left at home.

How can the basketball and football games be a showcase when the good players aren't in the game because you have to have X numbers from Class B and Class A?

How can you justify leaving Port Arthur Jefferson receiving sensation Brent Duhon home because he happens to play on the same team with quarterback Todd Dodge?

Wouldn't it have been an attraction for the fans to see them in an All-Star game together?

Why not have the state champion, for example Odessa Permian this year, play a collection of All-Stars? At least that would make the game more interesting than the North-South matchup.

Why not have, for example, Classes 5A and B meet Classes 4A, 3A and 2A and A? Or have Odessa Permian play the Class 5A All-Stars one night and have the other two classes play each other the next?

These are just sugesstions, mind you.

The view from here is that the THSCA could use some.

Oldfield beats Carter in shot put

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Shot putter Brian Oldfield insisted he was where he belonged, competing among amateurs, as he won his specialty Monday at the National Sports Festival, an event he had to go to court to enter.

The irreverant 36-year-Oldfield, along with pole-vaulter Steve Smith — both former professionals — filed last week in New York Supreme Court for an injunction to allow them to compete in this snowcase for American amateur athletics. That was after they were told by the U.S. Olympic Committee they were not welcome because only Olympic-eligible athletes may compete in the Festival.

A judge ruled in their favor and both competed here, with Smith finishing among the also-rans in the pole vault and Oldfield winning the shot with a toss of 68 feet, 5 inches.

"I am not a professional — not even a semi-professional amateur," he said. "I am an amateur."

The 6-foot-5, 275-pounder got off his winning throw on his second attempt, then fouled on his last four tries. He beat an outstanding field that included Southern Methodist sophomore Michael Carter, winner of the NCAA indoor and outdoor shot put titles each of the past two years, and 1979 and 1981 national champion Dave Laut. Carter was second at 67-2, while Laut finished third at 66-2½.

The fourth of six days at this non-Olympic year forum for 33 winter and summer Olympic sports was a busy one, with a second track star, Craig Virgin, sharing the spotlight with Oldfield.

Virgin came from behind tough rival Alberto Salazar to win the featured 5,000-meter race. The American record-holder at 10,000 meters bolted past Salazar, the 1980 New York City marathon champion, just three laps from the end of the 13-lap race on the new track at Sunnycrest Park.

He crossed the finish line in 13:35.4, just 20 yards ahead of Salazar, who was clocked at 13:38.2.

Virgin, who recently fought off a virus that sapped his strength and threw off his training schedule, said, "I had just two weeks of training, not knowing what kind of shape I was in. I just hoped to hit the button and all the jets would fire. But I was really dying on the last lap."

Elsewhere, a bloop single to left by Dave Walker scored Ed Greene from third base in the 11th inning to give the East an upset 9-8 victory over the favored West and the gold medal in the round-robin baseball competition.

Figure skaters Scott Hamilton and Rosalynn Sumners sliced to gold medals Monday night in their respective Festival finals. The 22-year-old Hamilton, the current men's world champion from Denver, and the 17-year-old Sumners, the 1980 world junior women's champion from Edmonds, Wash., both dominated their event, winning every phase of the individual competition during the past week.

In gymnastics, Beth Pope, a 15-year-old from Little Rock, Ark., gained her second gold medal of the competition as she won the floor exercise Monday night.

Lefferts blanks Jackson's Mets

JACKSON, Miss. — Midland Cub pitcher Craig Lefferts continued his mastery of the Jackson Mets here Monday night with a four-hit, 5-0, skate job as Midland maintained its two-game lead for the second half Texas League West Division title.

Lefferts has now won his last three outings in impressive fashion. He blanked the Mets at Cubs Stadium on July 14, 7-0, on a five-hitter. In between, he went 8⅓ innings to gain a 4-3 win over Arkansas and has given up only two earned runs in his last 26⅓ innings of work to raise his season record to 10-9. The 23-year-old lefty struckout six Mets Monday, walked none and retired the last 17 batters he faced.

The Mets got only one runner as far as second base against Lefferts in the third inning when Dave Duff and Al Pedrique had back-to-back singles. Lefferts also stopped three Met hitting streaks. Marvell Wynne was stopped at 16 straight games and Rusty Tillman at 13. Rick Poe had a nine game hitting streak going.

Ted Davis (0-6) was the loser and the Cubs did all their damage off him in the sixth with a five run uprising. Mel Hall and Fritz Connally drove in two runs with singles and Carmello Martinez, who has seven hits in 16 trips to the plate in this series, added a two-run double. Another run came home on an error.

The Cubs lead the series with the Mets 3-1 and have now won 11 of their last 14 games. Henry Mack, who has two wins in a row, will go for Midland tonight while Mark Thurberg will be on the mound for Jackson to end the five-game series.

Charlie Waters goes full steam ahead

By JIM DENT
(c) 1981, The Dallas Times Herald

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. — By the time Charlie Waters got home, it was almost daylight. At that hour, though, both mind and body were still racing.

Playing a night football game in Washington and traveling 2 1-2 hours to Dallas can overload the circuits. But when Waters hit the front door, his head was rocking.

"My bad knee had held up through the whole game and I was ecstatic," he said. "And we won the game. There was no way I was going to sleep. I was going."

So Waters went behind the house and ran two miles. While the rest of the team slept, he was trying to unwind a system that rolls faster than Chuck Berry's guitar. Sometimes, the music will not stop.

Waters cannot simply play the game. He beats it with drumsticks and kicks it in the rear. If Waters cannot travel at 200 mph and defy everything that stands along the roadside, there is no reason to play.

"Cliff (Harris) is the same way," he said. "He called me the other day, right before I left for training camp. His mind was telling him it's time for another training camp. I told him to go out and run head first into a couple of trees — then run a couple of miles around the track. I tell you, it must be hard retiring from football."

In the mind's eye of the Cowboys' resident psychologist, the game is more than 60 violent minutes. You must break it down, dissecting and examining the parts. Add some theater, a few lights and this world comes to life. How many NFL players hv studied Zen? How many have even tried psychocybernetics?

In the days leading to training camp, Waters used to ride a motorcycle from Dallas to Thousand Oaks because he needed time to think. Last summer, he spent four days at a summer home with an ax and a pile of wood.

"By the time I got off that motorcycle and parked it, I knew why I had ridden halfway across the country," he said. "You need the time alone to think about football. You need that time to visualize. You must put your energies into focus. I guess you could say that my motorcycle was my own little moving think tank.

"A lot of people never understood why I rode that motorcycle. But you've got to spend time visualizing things. When I get into a football game, I want to perform every play perfectly, make every play. You can't. But I've got to try."

Before this training camp, Waters went to a Florida beach house to spend time alone. He came to California two days ahead of schedule.

With so much time, some players might want to spend hours in local pubs. Waters, however, prefers to sit in the dorm, staring at walls and thinking. Sitting in the players' lunch hall, Waters had the faraway stare of a day dreamer. Rookies moved about the room, carrying trays and eating steaks.

"Even when I'm just sitting, I can be in a kind of controlled psychocybernetics," he said. "I can even control my daydreams."

Around the dorm, he seems grouchy.

"I am irritable, sharp with people," he said. "I really don't like talking to sportswriters. I'm sharp-tongued. I am aggressive. I'm tired of talking about my knee. Why do so many people want to know about my knee?

"I don't know if this is all natural or if it's just time for me to be nasty. When you get to camp you're supposed to let it build and build and build. And then you release it all of the sudden. You start hitting people. The same kind of aggression is building in Cliff (Harris) right now. But he has no way to release it."

Waters was introduced to Zen five years ago by Dr. Bob Ward, the club's conditioning coach. Zen is a Japanese sect that teaches self-discipline through meditation.

In Waters' dreams, there will be interceptions and tackles at the line of scrimmage.

Now, if he can only get some sleep.

Huff, Lamphere take MCC's Hi-Low crown

Jack Huff and Richard Lamphere fired a final round 57 as they stormed from four strokes down in the final round to capture the team title of the Midland Country Club Hi-Low Team Championship golf tournament.

The duo of Dr. John Young and Bob Henry opened the day three strokes up on four teams — Jim Ormond and Clifford Wilderspin; Pete Montgomery and George Shettle; Karry Blair and John Philbeck; and Bob Winkler and Bryan Jones, who turned in opening rounds 59's.

Dr. Young and Henry ballooned to 65 in the second round and had to settle for seventh place with a two-round total 121 after losing a scorecard playoff to Mike Hochman and Dan Moody.

Montgomery and Shettles and Buddy Redden and Clarence Cardwell tied at 121, but runnerup honors went to Montgomery and Shettles in scorecard playoff.

Blair and Philbeck took home fourth place honors on a card playoff win over Bob Winkler and Bryan Jones.

The teams of Larry Stapp and Larry McMillian and K.M. Jastrow and Tom Welch turned in 59s for the best second-round total for teams not finishing in the top eight.

Murray Fasken, although not finishing high in the tournament, scored the first hole-in-one of his career. Fasken hit a 7-iron shot right in the cup on 156-yard, No. 3 hole. Fasken's playing partner was Alex Clarke. Also playing in the foursome was Bill Potts and Jack Nobles.

Midland's High Sky Bass Club recently held its July tournament on Lake Stamford with 46 members catching 63 pounds and 14 ounces of fish.

Jim Crownover walked away with first place in the men's division with a stringer of 7 lbs., 8 oz., and Rex Coats was second with 5 lbs., 4 oz. Third went to R.L. Spencer with 5 lbs., 3 oz.

Audrey Baker won the women's division with one pound while Anne Grissett was second with 14 ounces. Crownover bass of 4 lbs., 2 oz., was the big catch on Sunday while Coats took the Saturday big bass with a catch of 4 lbs., 2 oz.

The Top Six after the July tournament are John Nobles, 389 points; Bob Knox, 383; Jackie Wilkes, 362; Elmer Gay, 321; Bill Oglesby, 311 and Dow Scott, 228.

The August tournament will be held Aug. 15-16 at Brady Lake. Anyone interested in joining the club are welcomed to do so. Regular monthly meetings are held on the fourth Tuesday of every month on the fourth floor of the Midland National Bank Tower.

Midland's VDS racing team finally broke their string of bad luck on the Can-Am racing tour Sunday as they posted their first win of the year by winning the 160-mile Can-Am sports car race at Road American here.

Geoff Brabham, in a Lola, set a new lap record, and averaged 115.169 mph over the 40 laps to take the checked flag first. The win was worth $21,000 to the VDS racing team.

More importantly than the prize money, the victory lifted Brabham and VDS to the lead in the Budweiser-Can-Am point standings after four races.

Nipping at the heels of Brabham is Teo Fabi in a Paul Newman car. Fabi opened the Can-Am series with a bang as he won the first two races, Mosport and Mid-Ohio. Since his win at Mid-Ohio, Fabi has had his troubles. In the race Sunday he failed to finished among the top 10 as his car was beset by engine trouble.

Vickie Kerr of Midland successfully defended her Lubbock Highway 80 Championship Women's Singles tennis title Sunday. It was Kerr's third straight crown in the championshp singles divison.

Lance Armstrong, Midland, and Kerr, seeded third, teamed up to claim the title in mixed doubles. They defeated the No. 1 seed in the semifinals and coasted to the championship.

Entry deadline is drawing near for the Lone Star Bass Association tournament on Lake Amistad, Aug. 1-2. Registration is Thursday and Friday until 4 p.m. Entry fee is $160, plus a 10 percent late fee.

Tournament headquarters are at Amistad Lodge in Del Rio. Major prizes will be paid through 10 places.

Midland girls move to national tourney

The Midland United Girls Softball Association's Division IV team recently won the West Texas State Tournament held in Big Spring.

The title advances the team to the National tournament to be held in Hobbs, N.M., Aug 6-8. State champions from New Mexico and Virginia will be in the tournament along with Midland and Dennison, the East Texas champion. Big Spring also had a team to advance after a one-game playoff with Abilene North.

Midland won the championship with a 15-3 win over Big Spring as Janice Littlefield and Tonya Burton teamed to pitch a six-hitter. Rozena McCabe, with a home run and three more hits, and Leslie Parke, who turned in a 4-for-5 performance, sparked the victory offensively.

Midland took an 11-0 win over Big Spring in the opening game of the tournament. The shutout was helped by a triple play. Lori Breeding, in center, started the triple play with an outfield catch and then threw to catcher Susie Terrazos to nail a runner at the plate. Terrazos then threw to third baseman Sharon Miller to nail down the other out. Littlefield threw a four-hitter to gain the win.

In the second game, Midland defeated Snyder, 19-1, as Burton hit two homers and drove in seven runs. Burton was also the winning pitcher, hurling a four-hitter.

Midland lost to Big Spring, 12-10, in the third game of the double elimination affair to force the tournament to go the distance. McCabe hit a homer in the losing effort, but Midland came back to take the championship.

Littlefield, McCabe, Burton and Cindy Whiteley, who batted .500 with six RBI, were All-Tournament selections. Other team members are Roxi Barrett, Karen Kuykendall, Suzanne McGaha and Kari Watson.

The team is coached by Odell Littlefield and John Bob Hopkins and assisted by Roslea Littlefield, manager, and Caroline McGaha, chaperone.

New grid league being eyed

TORONTO (AP) — The Globe and Mail says Nelson Skalbania, principal owner of the Montreal Alouettes, is leading a movement to form a new league composed of the existing Canadian Football League clubs and as many as 11 United States franchises.

William Putnam, vice president and operations director of the Alouettes, confirmed Skalbania is one of the prime backers in the proposed league.

Franchise fee in the new league would be $3 million with the giant share of revenue coming from pay-television in the U.S. markets, the newspaper says.

"The thing that must be empasized is that each existing club in the CFL will end up with more money than they could dream of," says Putnam. "Clubs will double or triple their revenue."

On Friday, Skalbania submitted a bid of $8.5 million for Schaefer Stadium in Foxboro, Mass., home of the New England Patriots of the National Football League. The Patriots have bid $6.5 million.

The Newspaper BIBLE

LISTEN TO THE REST OF IT, MY FRIEND!

Arriving at the port of Ephesus, Paul left us aboard ship while he went over to the synagogue for a discussion with the Jews. They asked him to stay for a few days, but he felt that he had no time to lose. "I must by all means be at Jerusalem for the holiday," he said. But he promised to return to Ephesus later if God permitted; and so we set sail again.

The next stop was at the port of Caesarea from where he visited the church of Jerusalem and then sailed to Antioch.

After spending some time there, he left for Turkey again, going through Galatia and Phrygia visiting all the believers, encouraging them and helping them grow in the Lord.

As it happened, a Jew named Apollos, a wonderful Bible teacher and preacher, had just arrived in Ephesus from Alexandria in Egypt. While he was in Egypt, someone had told him about John the Baptist and what John had said about Jesus, but that is all he knew. He had never heard the rest of the story! So he was preaching boldy and enthusiastically in the synagogue, "The Messiah is coming! Get ready to receive Him!" Priscilla and Aquila were there and heard him -- and it was a powerful sermon. Afterwards they met with him and explained what had happened to Jesus since the time of John, and all that it meant!

Apollos had been thinking about going to Greece, and the believers encouraged him in this. They wrote to their fellow believers there, telling them to welcome him. And upon arrival in Greece, he was greatly used of God to strengthen the church, for he powerfully refuted all the Jewish arguments in public debate, showing by the Scriptures that Jesus is indeed the Messiah.

Constituents didn't show up for Commissioners' hearing

None of the public showed up Monday afternoon when the Midland County Commissioners' Court held a public hearing to consider raising the county tax by 18 percent for 1982.

The proposed increase would come in a revamped tax rate mandated by the Texas Legislature. Taxing bodies will be going to a rate based on a 100 percent of fair market values.

The Midland County Commissioners are considering assessing 36 cents per $100 valuation based on 100 percent of the fair market value.

Currently, the rate is 95 cents per $100 valuation based on 32 percent of the fair market value.

The commissioners will hold a public hearing at 10 a.m. on Aug. 10 in the Midland County Courthouse to establish the new tax rate.

The proposed rate, according to Midland County Tax Assessor Collector Frances Shuffield, would increased taxes on a houses carried on the tax rolls at $30,000 by $16.80 — from $91.20 to $108 per year.

In other action, the Commissioners' Court passed a resolution honoring former Midland civil leader-banker Harry Clark for his community service and for serving as a trustee on the board of the the Permian Basin Community Centers for Mental Health-Mental Retardation.

Clark has relocated to San Angelo to enter to another banking venture.

The resolution noted that Clark has been a "high regarded" Midland citizen for the past 14 years and "has made himself available to the city and county governments of Midland, Texas, for important assignments, which he completed successfully and ably carried out."

The resolution, which also noted that Clark and his wife, Ethel, have been "outstanding citizens of this community," was signed by County Judge Bill Ahders and Commissioners Durward Wright, Charlie Welch, C. DeWayne Davis and Win Brown.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Menthol added in name of taste

Dear Dr. Solomon: What effect does menthol have on cigarette smoking? — Mrs. I.M.

Dear Mrs. I.M.: Menthol is merely an additive that changes the taste of the smoke.

Dear Dr. Solomon: When I was younger, I would fall asleep almost as my head hit the pillow, and I wouldn't wake up until my alarm rang. Unfortunately, this is no longer true. I find it increasingly difficult to fall asleep, and I wake up long before I have to. Would you recommend some preparation that is available without a prescription that would permit me to get my much-needed rest? — Marc

Dear Marc: Your letter omits a very important part of the problem, which is why you are having difficulty sleeping. Insomnia is not a disease but a symptom, and it is important to understand the underlying disorder so that an appropriate form of treatment can be planned.

Reaching for a pill when one has difficulty falling asleep is definitely not the answer. It makes a world of difference if the problem is due to high blood pressure, for example, or to depression. Furthermore, drug therapy is not the only available form of treatment.

Insomnia may also respond to non-drug treatment such as phychotherapy. Other approaches have been suggested by a committee of the National Academy of Sciences' Institute of Medicine. They include establishing a set time for going to bed and getting up in the morning; avoiding naps during the day; avoiding stimulants such as tea and coffee in the afternoon or evening; using the bed only for sleep or for sexual activity; following a regular program of daytime exercise; and planning a period of relaxation for the evenings. Some or all of these ideas might work for you.

I am not suggesting that some form of medication is never indicated in the treatment of insomnia; it may very well be advisable in your case. But you'll never really know until the source of the problem has been identified. You do not mention your age or when you've last seen a doctor, but I strongly suggest that this should be your first order of business: Contact your doctor and arrange for a complete physical examaination. As I've written a number of times and as I tell my patients, a drug powerful enough to affect the chemistry of the body should not be taken indiscriminately, and the fact that it may be available as an over-the-counter preparation is no guarantee of its safety in a particular case.

If your physician does prescribe a drug, it should be used judiciously and for relatively brief periods of time, somewhere in the range of from two to six weeks. Obviously, the specific drug to be prescribed, and how much and how long it should be taken, must be based on the needs of the particular patient.

Over-the-counter preparations are not necessarily innocuous substances. By checking with your doctor, you'll eliminate the guesswork over which medication, if any, should be best in your case.

Mobil Corp. raises offer in corporate bidding war

NEW YORK (AP) — In the latest round of the largest corporate-bidding battle in history, Mobil Corp. has raised its offer for control of Conoco Inc. to $8.2 billion.

Mobil's new offer, announced Monday, further endangered Conoco's agreement to be acquired by chemical giant Du Pont Co. and put pressure on both Du Pont and Canadian liquor distiller Seagram Co. Ltd. to raise their bids.

While Mobil's offer was for more money than either of the other two companies, it also raised the largest antitrust questions. The Justice Department has not indicated whether it would oppose a combination of Mobil, the nation's second-largest oil company, and Conoco, the ninth-largest.

Mobil said it will pay $105 a share for 51 percent of Conoco's stock and securities worth $85 a share for the remaining shares. Its previous offer, worth $7.7 billion, was for $90 in cash for 51 percent and securities worth $90 for the remainder of the shares.

Those bidding against Mobil have emphasized Mobil would not pay for shares offered to it until antitrust questions were resolved. Mobil said Monday "if necessary to speed the closing of its offer" it would "agree to dispose of certain assets" it said would include only "inconsequential portions" of Conoco's Western U.S. marketing operations.

Conoco said it would not respond to Mobil's latest bid until after its board meets Wednesday, but it emphasized the "serious antitrust risks which make its ultimate success problematical."

Mobil's bid came after Du Pont and Seagram each disclosed how many shares had been offered them. Those results gave Du Pont a lead and indicated a higher bid would be needed to keep it from taking control of Conoco.

-Conoco has sought a merger with Du Pont and gone to court to oppose the other offers. A federal appeals court Monday refused Conoco's appeal for an injunction to block the Seagram offer.

Conoco's attractiveness stems largely from its vast reserves of coal, oil and natural gas.

Du Pont's current off3r is $95 a share in cash for 40 percent of the stock and 1.7 Du Pont shares — now worth about $77 — for the rest. Du Pont said Monday its board also will meet Wednesday to consider a proposal by Chairman Edward Jefferson to raise the cash part to 45 percent.

Du Pont announced that 41 percent, or about 35 million, of the outstanding shares had been offered to it by midnight Friday. Coupled with its option to buy another 15.9 million shares directly from Conoco, those shares would give it almost exactly half the shares that would then be outstanding. But the shares offered to Du Pont Friday can be withdrawn at any time before Aug. 4.

Seagram said it had been offered about 17 million shares, or about 20 percent of the stock, by midnight Sunday. Seagram is offering $92 a share for up to 51 percent of the shares. Those shares can be withdrawn until Friday midnight.

Mobil did not say how many shares had been tendered to it by midnight Sunday.

Atlantic Richfield Co. earnings down, others up

By FLOYD NORRIS
Associated Press Writer

The nation's oil companies are continuing to report sluggish profits, with Atlantic Richfield Co.'s second-quarter earnings down 13 percent from a year ago and several other companies reporting small gains.

Arco, the nation's seventh-largest oil company, on Monday reported a profit of $380.1 million, or $1.51 a share, compared with $436.4 million, or $1.75 a share, earned during the same April-June period a year earlier. Revenues were $6.97 billion, up from $5.67 billion.

Phillips Petroleum Co., ranked No. 10, said its profit was $229.8 million, or $1.51 a share, up 7 percent from $214.8 million, or $1.41 a share, a year earlier. Revenues rose to $4.07 billion from $3.23 billion.

Phillips said it lost money on refining and marketing oil in the United States and saw profits slip in chemicals. But it said the strong dollar produced a currency translation gain of $36 million in the first six months, compared with a loss of $4 million a year ago.

Tenneco Inc., the No. 11 oil company based on total sales, said it earned $203 million in the quarter, up 9 percent from $186 million a year earlier, but it said per-share earnings dropped to $1.50 from $1.52 because acquisitions increased the number of shares outstanding. Revenues rose to $3.78 billion from $3.20 billion.

Union Oil Co. of California, the No. 16 oil concern, said it earned $207.9 million, or $1.20 a share, up 7 percent from $194.8 million, or $1.12 a share, as revenues rose to $2.78 billion from $2.75 billion.

Arco Chairman Robert O. Anderson said that while refining and marketing operations were stronger in the second quarter than in the first, they were below a year earlier. Arco noted that sales of petroleum products were down 16 percent from a year earlier.

Arco earned $1.29 billion, or $2.90 a share, in the first six months of the year, down from $1.61 billion or $3.47 a share. Revenues were $14.10 billion, up from $11.13 billion.

Phillips said it earned $500.6 million, or $3.29 a share, in the first six months, up from $499.3 million or $3.26 a share as revenues rose to $8.30 billion from $6.61 billion.

At Tenneco, the first-half profit was $397 million, up from $364 million, as revenues rose to $7.59 billion from $6.52 billion. But the larger number of shares outstanding caused its per-share profit to drop to $3.01 from $3.14.

Union said it earned $362.4 million, or $2.09 a share in the first half, up from $347.7 million or $2.00 a share. Revenues were $5.44 billion, up from $5.13 billion.

Watt to appeal ruling barring sale of offshore oil leases

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Secretary of the Interior James Watt vowed to take his case to the U.S. Supreme Court after a federal judge blocked sale of 29 oil-drilling leases off the California coast.

"It is clear now that the question will be decided by the Supreme Court, and ... the U.S. government will appeal," Watt said in Washington after Monday's decision here by U.S. District Judge Mariana Pfaelzer.

The decision appeared to be a major setback for the administration's program to accelerate exploration for oil in almost one billion acres of coastal waters. The victors were coastal states concerned about the environmental impact of the projected five-year program.

The judge upheld a claim by the state of California that it had veto power over offshore projects that directly affect its shoreline. She issued an injunction preventing sale of leases for more than 150,000 acres of California coastal waters, on which $220.6 million in bids already have been received.

In a 35-minute oral ruling, the judge criticized Watt, saying he "clearly violated the spirit" of the Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act because he gave only "minimal" considerations to objections raised by Governor Edmund G. Brown Jr. and the state of California.

But the judge said Watt's action did satisfy the act's legal requirements, while the plaintiffs had contended it did not. The judge also rejected the state's claim that Brown had violated two other environmental laws.

The judge stayed the injunction for 45 days, giving both sides time to appeal. The stay also allows the Interior Department to hold the $220.6 million in bids.

The issue now is whether "the nation's interest or the state's interest control the issuance of leases on the federal continental shelf," Watt said.

Brown, who filed suit to stop the lease sales, and an environmental group both called the ruling a "victory."

New York's bright lights expensive

WASHINGTON (AP) — It costs nearly three times as much to keep a light burning in the window in New York City than it does in St. Louis.

A survey released Monday by a regulatory organization revealed that New York City residents pay the highest electric rates, while St. Louis residents enjoy the lowest bills among the country's 25 biggest cities.

The National Association of Regulatory Utility Commissioners said its survey found that New York City residents paid an average of 11.67 cents per kilowatt hour from December 1980 to February 1981, the survey said.

Residents in Honolulu paid the second highest electric rates in the country at 10.06 cents per kilowatt hour followed by San Diego, at 9.89 cents.

By comparison, residents in St. Louis were paying 4.36 cents per kilowatt hour for electricity. Atlanta was second lowest at 4.70 cents followed by Oklahoma City at 4.75 cents.

The fourth highest electric rates were found in Boston, 9.45 cents per kilowatt hour, followed by El Paso, Texas, 8.46 cents; Philadelphia, 7.70 cents; Pittsburgh, 7.16 cents; Phoenix, Ariz., 6.92 cents; Chicago, 6.64 cents, Baltimore, 6.46 cents.

Other cities with low rates were Cincinnati, 4.89 cents; Indianapolis, 4.93 cents; Milwaukee, 5.16 cents; Houston, 5.20 cents; Washington, 5.26 cents; San Jose, Calif., 5.27 cents; Denver, 5.44 cents.

The five cities falling in the middle were Cleveland, 6.43 cents; Kansas City, Mo., 6.33 cents; Detroit, 6.18; Columbus, Ohio, 6.15 cents.

Gas price may rise 10 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Motorists face an increase of up to 10 percent in the price of gasoline by mid-1982, the Energy Information Administration of the Energy Department predicts.

In its "Short Term Energy Outlook," the agency said Monday the average cost of a gallon of gasoline would reach $1.47 by next June, compared with $1.34 a gallon last January.

The report also said the decline in U.S. petroleum consumption since 1978 could be reversed in 1982 if the economy improves and there are no sharp boosts in the cost of crude oil.

During 1981, U.S. use of oil will drop from the 1980 level of 17 million barrels to 16.6 million barrels per day. In the first six months of 1982, oil use may rise to 17.1 million barrels daily, the report said.

Domestic production of oil is expected to continue dropping, from 8.6 million barrels per day in 1980 to 8.5 million barrels in 1981 and 1982.

Electricity generated through nuclear power will rise by 8 percent this year, the first increase since the March 1979 accident at the Three Mile Island plant in Pennsylvania, the agency said.

The report predicted the increase in output would be even more substantial in the first half of 1982, registering a 16 percent gain as new reactors begin operating.

The report said U.S. coal consumption will continue rising this year, reaching about 750 million tons, 45 million above 1980.

Gasohol bill described as motorists money saver

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A gasohol bill described as a money saver for motorists and a move toward removal of all government farm price supports has cleared a Senate committee.

The Senate Committee on Natural Resources voted Monday to give gasohol suppliers a tax break to stimulate an industry that could provide a major energy source and give farmers an additional market.

"Gasohol is not as popular now as it was two years ago," said Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown. "If we don't pass this bill this session, we might as well kiss gasohol goodbye.

"In five years, if you will give us an opportunity, we'll have another industry we can put a tax base on," said Brown.

Gasohol would consist of at least 10 percent ethyl alcohol of 192 proof, which could be manufactured from Texas crops such as corn and grain sorghum. The remainder of the mixture would be unleaded gasoline.

The committee approved the bill 9-0 even though Gov. Bill Clements has yet to include gasohol on the agenda for the 30-day special session that ends Aug. 11.
