West Nile case treated at Midland Memorial

Patient is 3rd from Big Spring to contract virus; no Midlanders infected so far

By Joseph Basco

One patient with the West Nile virus is being treated at Midland Memorial Hospital, the first the hospital has treated this year.

The patient is the third person from Big Spring to contract the West Nile virus. The other two are being treated at Medical Center Hospital in Odessa, according to local news reports. There has yet to be a person from Midland known to have the virus, as of Friday.

There have been nine total cases of West Nile virus in humans in Texas as of Tuesday, according to the Texas Department of State Health Services website. Last year, six people from Midland County contracted the virus out of 1,868 across the state.

Standing water, along with the high temperatures, provide breeding conditions for mosquitoes that could carry the virus, said Val Sparks, infection preventionist at Midland Memorial Hospital.

This week, temperatures have reached triple digits for multiple days, such as Tuesday's high of 106 degrees. Tuesday was also noteworthy for the 1.15 inches of rain that fell in Midland during a thunderstorm.

People who have contracted West Nile virus experience symptoms such as headaches, high fever and disorientation. About 80 percent of those who contract the virus will not have the symptoms, but 20 percent might develop a fever, Sparks said.

Medical staff cannot determine if someone has the West Nile virus until the patient is tested, Sparks said. There is no vaccine or cure for the virus.

Young children, the elderly and those who have weakened immune systems are more vulnerable to the virus.

To reduce the risk of contraction, Sparks said wearing repellent that contains DEET will help. Wearing long sleeves and socks will also help. Other tips include ensur-

Charter school expands to include 4th grade

By Meredith Moriak
mmoriak@mrt.com

Leaders at Midland's newest charter school, Texas Leadership Charter Academy, decided Friday to add fourth grade for the next school year and are now enrolling students.

"We've had so much interest in having a fourth grade and wanted to respond to parent needs," said TLCA Principal Denise Rives.

The new school is a replication of TLCA San Angelo, which was established in 2009 and currently enrolls 1,100 students in kindergarten through 12th grade.

During the first year in Midland, leaders planned to offer kindergarten through third grade and add a grade level each year of operation until TLCA ultimately served students kindergarten through 12th grade.

However significant interest from families with multiple elementary-aged children prompted TLCA Midland leaders to add fourth grade a year earlier than expected, Rives said.

"We've had parents who wanted to send their kids here but had (a child) in fourth grade and didn't want to have their children at two different schools," Rives said.

TLCA is a free, public, state-funded charter school located in the educational activities building at Lifehouse Fellowship Church, 3300 Thomas Ave.

A special-mission charter school, TLCA uses the "Character First" character development program and "Leader in Me," developed by Stephen Covey, author of "Seven Habits of Highly Effective People," to develop students into true leaders.

Because TLCA believes in involving parents, they are required to fulfill parenting assignments each year. This includes one classroom observation, teacher conference and parent night each semester, completing character trait worksheets at home with their children and volunteering two hours each year.

The first day of school is Aug. 19 and enrollment for kindergarten through fourth

Study: Keystone XL wouldn't add to greenhouse gas emissions

By Zian Shauk
Houston Chronicle

HOUSTON — The Keystone XL pipeline would not add to greenhouse gas emissions, according to a study published Thursday by an independent research group that echoed the findings of government-backed reports.

The study found that the addition of TransCanada's proposed pipeline connecting Canadian oil sands fields with the U.S. Gulf Coast — opposed by many environmentalists — wouldn't make a substantial difference in emissions because U.S. refineries would get similar crude from Venezuela or elsewhere.

Production, processing and transportation of Venezuelan heavy crude result in about the same greenhouse gas emissions as oil sands crude, according to the study by energy-focused research firm IHS CERA, which sponsors a major annual industry conference in Houston.

Environmentalists have argued that Keystone XL would add to greenhouse gas emissions linked to climate change and therefore fail a key test that President Barack Obama has set for determining whether his administration will approve the pipeline.

Its northern leg requires State Department approval because it would cross an international border. The southern leg, running to the Gulf Coast from a hub in Cushing, Okla., is nearing completion.

Pipeline opponents argue that without Keystone XL, producers would have less interest in drawing crude from Canadian oil sands, resulting in an overall environmental benefit. An analysis from investment bank

MPD: Man arrested for swallowing meth

From staff reports

A 24-year-old Midland man is behind bars after allegedly running from police Thursday night, possessing a controlled substance in a drug-free zone and later admitting to swallowing methamphetamine valued at $200.

Avelardo Castillo Jr. is being held on a $45,000 bond for multiple felony charges, including evading arrest or detention with a previous conviction, possession of a controlled substance in a drug-free zone and tampering with or fabricating physical evidence.

Midland police originally stopped Castillo in the 2300 block of Holloway Avenue after he failed to signal properly. They told Castillo, who kept putting his hand in his pants pocket, to get out of the vehicle.

Castillo

After climbing out of the car's window because he said the door was broken, Castillo ran westbound on Holloway Avenue, according to his arrest affidavit. Police lost track of Castillo after he ran down Burleson Street and College Avenue and deployed the city's K-9 unit, which found Castillo's wallet with two plastic baggies with crystal-like substances that appeared to be meth, according to the affidavit.

Meanwhile, a police officer found a meth pipe wrapped in a red bandana under the passenger seat in Castillo's car and questioned his female passenger, who was still at the scene, the affidavit states.

Police found Castillo near a residence on College Avenue — about a quarter of a mile from where he was stopped — and booked him into Midland County Central Detention Center. After complaining of breathing issues and admitting to the jail nurse that he swallowed 2 grams — about $200 worth — of meth, he was transported to Midland Memorial Hospital, according to his affidavit.

If convicted, Castillo could face up to 10 years for the state felony charge of evading arrest, up to 20 years for the second-degree felony charge of possession and up to 10 years for the third-degree felony charge of tampering.

Reduce your risk

According to the Texas Department of State Health Services fact sheet:

■ Use an approved insect repellent every time you go outside. Approved repellents are those that contain DEET, picaridin or oil of lemon eucalyptus. Follow the instructions on the label.

■ Regularly drain standing water, including water that collects in empty cans, tires, buckets, clogged rain gutters and saucers under potted plants. Mosquitoes breed in stagnant water.

■ Wear long sleeves and pants at dawn and dusk when mosquitoes are most active.

KEYSTONE

From 1A

Goldman Sachs supports that argument, said Anthony Swift, an attorney for the Natural Resources Defense Council.

The Goldman Sachs analysis estimated that there will be 230,000 barrels per day of excess Canadian oil sands crude production next year, since that production won't be able to reach markets.

The Keystone XL pipeline, if it is approved, could be completed in 2015, unloading some of that surplus, the Goldman Sachs analysis said. But in the absence of that pipeline and other options, the price of Canadian oil sand crude could fall dramatically, to as low as $50 per barrel — less than half of today's U.S. benchmark oil price — possibly resulting in lower production, the Goldman Sachs analysis said.

"The reality is, the tar sands industry's expansion plans are facing both short- and long-term constraints," Swift said.

But IHS CERA found that even without the pipeline, production of oil sands crude in Canada would continue and would find other ways to markets.

Despite arguments from environmentalists to the contrary, IHS CERA found that rail transportation of oil sands crude is likely to be a cost-effective option for producers.

"Given sufficient investment, our view is that the economics for moving heavy oil sands crude by rail could improve further, even approaching pipeline economics," the report said. "Consequently, even without the Keystone XL pipeline, we believe that oil sands production would grow at a similar rate. Therefore emissions will be unaffected by the fate of Keystone XL."

Goldman Sachs also predicted a rise in rail as an alternative to pipelines for moving oil out of Canada, although it raised more questions about the overall feasibility of transporting Canadian oil sands crude.

Oil sands crude is made up mostly of bitumen, a solid, hydrocarbon-bearing material. To move it in pipelines, producers have to heat and dilute it, creating a substance of 70 percent bitumen and 30 percent diluents, according to IHS CERA.

But oil producers and refiners could move undiluted bitumen by rail, IHS CERA said, saving the costs of the diluting agents and reducing the volume transported by 30 percent.

"These savings offset some of the extra costs," the report said — estimating that rail would cost $6 per barrel more than pipeline transport.

Movements of pure bitumen by rail would require new infrastructure, which companies have not pursued because they have expected pipelines like Keystone XL to meet their shipping needs, the study said.

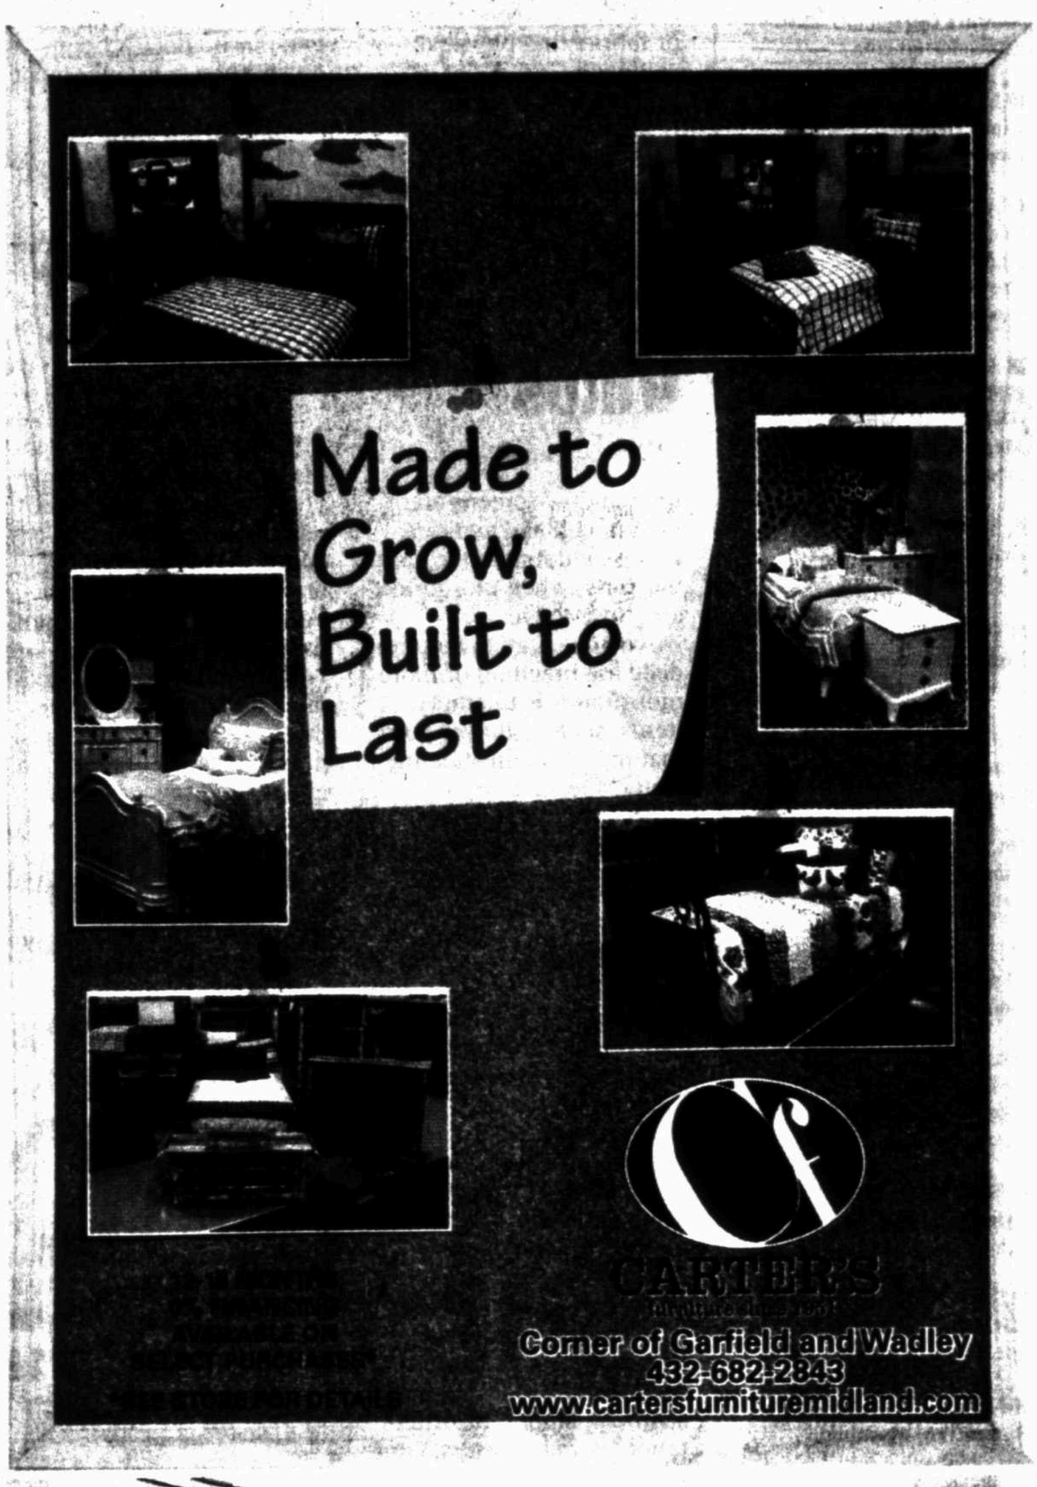

"However, if producers anticipate that new pipeline capacity will not keep pace with oil sands growth, we expect that they will make investments in more efficient rail transport, including equipment for moving pure bitumen," the study said. "These investments would narrow the gap between the economics of transporting oil sands by pipeline and by rail."

FROM STAFF & WIRE REPORTS

HOUSTON

US rig count drops 4 this week to 1,778

The number of rigs exploring for oil and natural gas in the U.S. dropped four this week to 1,778, according to Houston-based oilfield services company Baker Hughes.

There were 1,385 rigs listed as searching for oil, down 3; 386 as searching for gas, down two; and seven as miscellaneous, up one. At this time last year there were 1,432 oil rigs in the U.S., a difference of 47, and 495 searching for gas, a difference of 109.

The number of vertical drilling rigs increased by 15 for a total of 447 rigs. There were eight fewer horizontal drilling rigs, ending the week at 1,065. There were 266 directional drilling rigs, a decrease of 11.

A year ago this week there were 1,931 rigs in the U.S.

The number of rigs exploring for oil and natural gas in Texas decreased by two, ending the week at 849. There were 911 rigs in Texas at this time last year.

Rounding out the top five states by rig count were North Dakota with 177, up one; Oklahoma with 168, unchanged; Louisiana with 108, unchanged; and New Mexico with 74, down two.

Among the other major oil- and gas-producing states, Colorado added three rigs and Kansas added one. California lost four rigs. Alaska and Wyoming lost one rig apiece. Arkansas, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Utah and West Virginia were unchanged.

The Permian Basin finished the week with seven more rigs for a total of 470. There were 236 rigs in the Eagle Ford, down three; 71 in the Granite Wash, down four; and 32 in the Barnett, down one.

In the U.S. there were 1,697 rigs listed as on land, down two; 24 as in inland waters, down one; and 57 as offshore, down one. The Gulf of Mexico was unchanged at 55 rigs.

The number of rigs exploring for oil and natural gas in Canada jumped 17 to end the week at 358 rigs. There were 230 rigs listed as searching for oil, up seven; 128 as searching for gas, up 10; and zero as miscellaneous, unchanged.

The total number of rigs in North America increased by 13 for a total of 2,136 rigs.

NEW YORK

Oil rises near $106 on strong China economic data

The price of oil rose more than 2 percent Friday as positive economic news from China outweighed expectations that the U.S. Federal Reserve would soon start withdrawing its bond-buying program.

Benchmark crude for September delivery gained $2.57, or 2.5 percent, to close at $105.97 per barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange. Oil still finished with a loss of 97 cents for the week.

Meanwhile, U.S. drivers are paying a nickel less on average at the gas pump than they were a week ago. The national average for a gallon of gasoline fell a penny overnight to $3.58. That's the lowest average price since July 13.

China, the world's No. 2 economy after the United States, reported Friday that July's producer prices — the price of goods as they leave factories — fell less rapidly than a year earlier, a sign that demand may be improving. The official Xinhua News Agency said retail sales grew 13.2 percent in July from a year earlier, slightly down from June. Industrial production grew 9.7 percent, up from June's 8.9 percent and the highest year-on-year growth in five months.

Even with Friday's gain for oil, speculation still overhangs the market that the Fed will start phasing out measures that have kept long-term interest rates at record low levels.

The Fed's policies have sparked investment in riskier assets such as stocks and oil. But comments from Fed officials this week indicate the central bank may be ready to begin reducing its monthly purchases of $85 billion in bonds as early as September.

Davis promises decision by Labor Day

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Democratic Texas Sen. Wendy Davis said Friday she'll decide whether to run for governor by Labor Day, but wants to first make sure there's a "real path" for a Democrat to win a Republican stronghold state before committing to a campaign.

The Fort Worth lawmaker acknowledged that many supporters were encouraging her to make a bid to become Texas' first Democratic governor since 1994.

"When you make a decision this big, you want to make sure there's a real path. You don't want to be foolhardy, particularly when you are going to have to ask people to invest a tremendous amount of money, energy and resources into helping you," Davis said after addressing the annual luncheon of the Freedom of Information Foundation of Texas.

"I want to make sure we've laid the groundwork, done our homework and made sure there is a true path here and a true opportunity to take the governor's office," Davis said.

Speculation on Davis' plans have swirled since she gained attention for an almost 13-hour filibuster against an abortion bill in the Texas Legislature. Her delay forced Gov. Rick Perry to call a second special session to pass the ban on most abortions after 20 weeks.

The last Democrat elected governor was the late Ann Richards in 1990. Richards was defeated by George W. Bush in 1994 and Republicans have held the office ever since. The GOP has also held every statewide office in Texas since 1998 and the controlled the Legislature since 2003.

"I believe anything is possible," Davis said. "In Texas, people are looking for voices that aren't necessarily aligned blue or red but aligned with making sure the values of their families are reflected in the decisions being made at the state level. I think there's a void there right now in that regard."

In her prepared remarks, Davis didn't mention Perry or other Republicans by name, but criticized Republican "leadership" as working to limit transparency in government. She noted Perry's veto of a bill that would have forced so-called "dark money" groups — politically active nonprofits — that spend millions backing political candidates to reveal their donors.

In his veto message, Perry said the bill would have had a chilling effect on freedom of speech and association.

grade students is ongoing. Parents can pick up applications at the school, 3300 Thomas Ave., from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday or call the school at 242-7117 to arrange an appointment outside regular business hours.

TLCA Midland will host a parent meeting and meet the teacher night at 6 p.m. Thursday in the Lifehouse Fellowship sanctuary and encourages all prospective families to attend the meeting.

"We'll tell them everything we're going to do, our expectations and how we differ from public schools," Rives said. "We'd love to have them come and hear what we're all about."

Charter schools receive funding from the state based only on enrollment and do not receive local property tax funds to supplement the budget.

Trooper who conducted cavity search reinstated

Associated Press

AUSTIN — The Texas Department of Public Safety reinstated a state trooper on Friday that it fired for conducting a roadside cavity search during a traffic stop for speeding.

DPS Director Steve McCraw said he was rehiring Trooper Jennie Bui after a grand jury chose not to indict her for the incident in Brazoria County that has triggered a lawsuit by the two women involved.

"It was determined that the relatively inexperienced trooper was directed by a more senior trooper to conduct the inappropriate search," McCraw said in a statement issued late Friday afternoon.

McCraw said that she will be suspended for 60 days and undergo additional training. He added that he was requiring all state police officers to re-familiarize themselves with the department policy on strip searches and body cavity searches.

A dash-cam video showed Bui's supervisor Nathaniel Turner ordering her to internally probe two women on the side of the road in a search for contraband. Turner had stopped them for speeding and said he could smell marijuana in their car. The video shows one of the women wincing as Bui conducted the search.

Obama signs student loan deal, says job isn't done

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Barack Obama signed into law Friday a measure restoring lower interest rates for student loans, pledging the hard-fought compromise would be just the first step in a broader, concerted fight to rein in the costs of a college education.

Encircled by lawmakers from both parties in the Oval Office, Obama praised Democrats and Republicans alike for agreeing — finally — on what he called a sensible, reasonable approach to student loans even as he cautioned that "our job is not done."

"Feels good signing bills. I haven't done this in a while," Obama said, alluding to the difficulty he's faced getting Congress, particularly the Republican-controlled House, to approve his legislative priorities, such as gun control and budget deals.

"Hint, hint," he added to laughter.

But even the feel-good moment at the White House came with reminders of the bitter partisanship that still makes future deals incredibly difficult for Obama.

House Speaker John Boehner, R-Ohio, called the law part of the "Republican jobs plan," while House Democratic leader Nancy Pelosi of California said it "stands in stark contrast to the House Republicans' plan to saddle families with billions more in student debt."

The rare compromise emerged only after a frenzy of summer negotiations, with lawmakers at odds over how loan rates should be set in the future even while they agreed that a doubling of rates — it kicked in July 1 when Congress failed to act before the deadline — would be bad policy and bad news for students.

The legislation links student loan interest rates to the financial markets. It offers lower rates this fall because the government can borrow money cheaply at this time. If the economy improves in the coming years as expected, it will become more costly for the government to borrow money, and that cost would be passed on to students.

About 11 million students this year are expected to have lower interest rates, saving the average undergraduate $1,500 on interest charges on this year's loans.

Lady Mustangs making smooth transition with new coach

Ashton

Filyukova

By Len Hayward
lhayward@mrt.com

At first glance, a third coach in three years for the Midland Christian volleyball team might indicate some instability for the program.

But even with the changes, the Lady Mustangs have been able to make the playoffs, and last season, with a first-year head coach, won the program's first playoff game in nearly five years.

And it's that success that new head coach Alicia Filyukova is hoping will help in her transition to the position this year. Filyukova, who played at Texas Tech, comes to the MCS program with three years of head coaching experience in Oklahoma and Corpus Christi, but even after a week at MCS has said her transition has been smooth.

"I feel like they are enjoying it, and they come in ready to work hard," Filyukova said. "The first week is always the toughest because we've had like four sessions a day, and one of them is conditioning and that's been the hard part. But they've had a good attitude about it, and that's been really nice to see."

Filyukova moved to Midland in May when her husband, Ruslan Filyukova, was transferred here from Oklahoma City for his job working in the oil business.

Filyukova, a native of Kansas, has spent the last two years coaching at Yukon High School, a suburb of Oklahoma City and helped to start the program from scratch.

This time around at Midland Christian, Filyukova said she won't have to do much teaching of fundamentals, and can move into strategy.

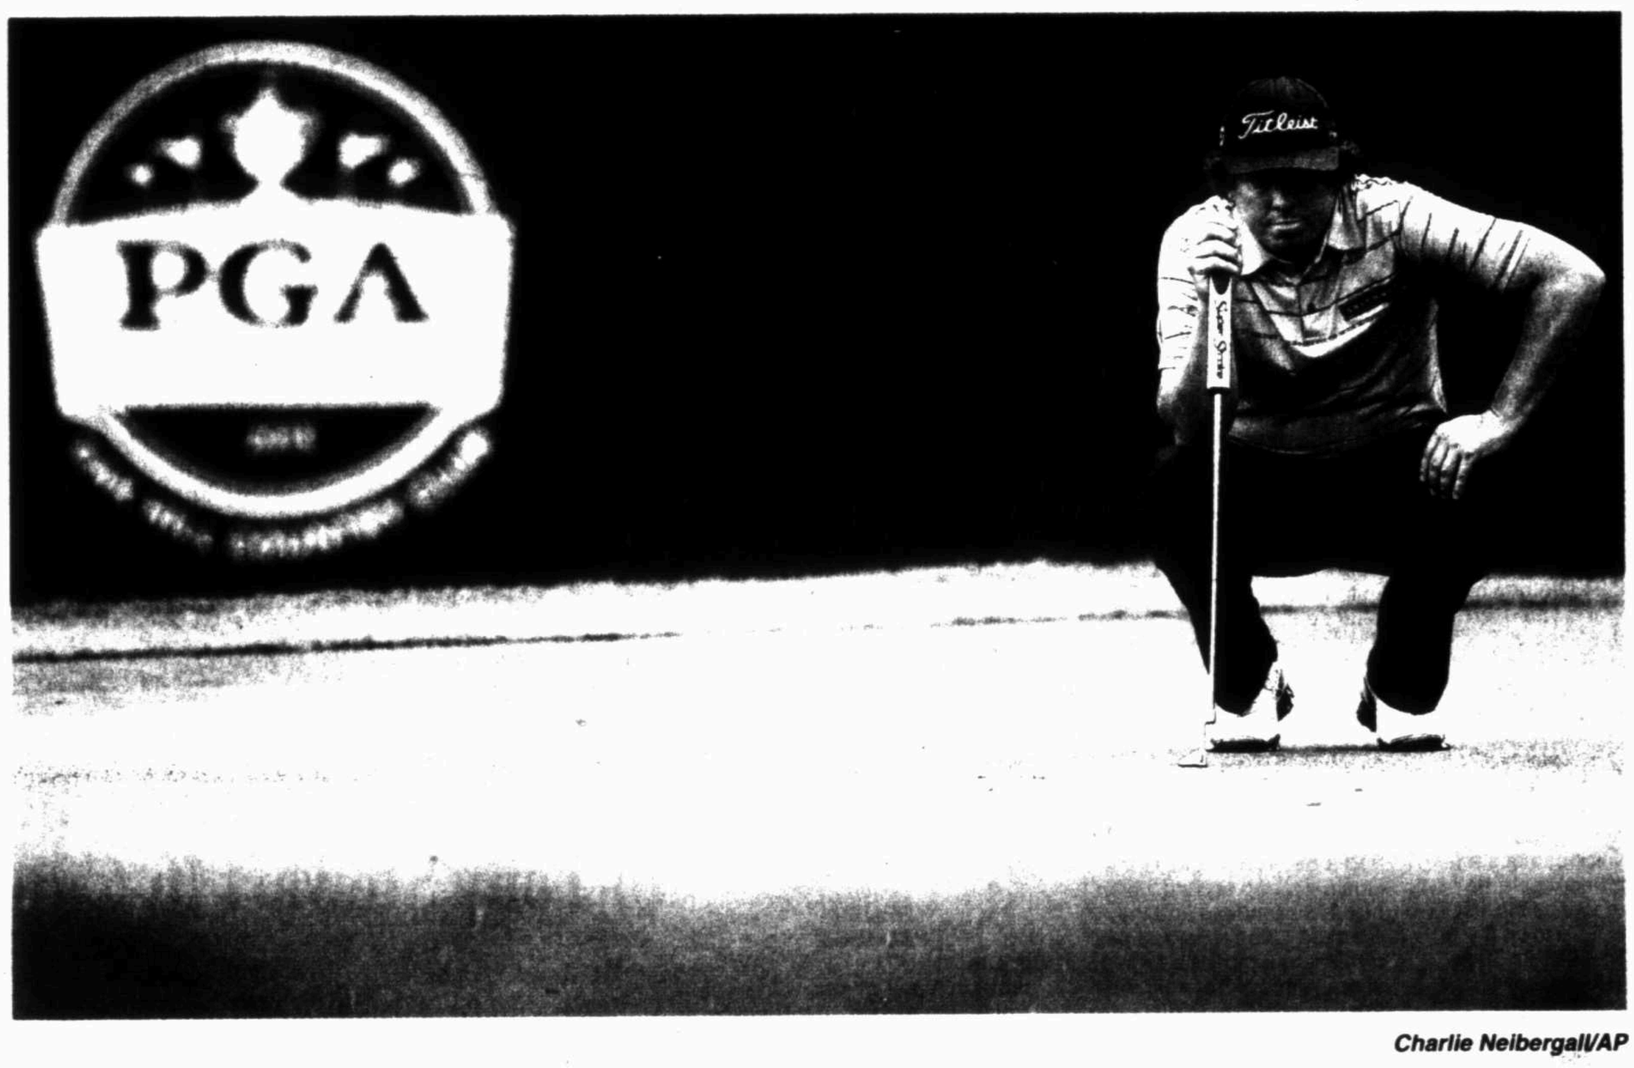

"I felt like as far as the skill level here they are more advanced," said Filyukova, who also coached at Corpus Christi Calallen. "You don't get to develop that team chemistry early (when you have to teach fundamentals), and that's really been nice."

Filyukova's experience as a head coach, and her playing experience at Tech was something that the players have noticed so far.

Morgan Ashton, the team's lone senior on the squad, said having a new head coach in girls basketball

Battling the rain at Oak Hill

Jason Dufner lines up a putt on the eighth hole during the second round of the PGA Championship at Oak Hill Country Club in Pittsford, N.Y., on Friday. Dufner tied the course record with a 63 and has a two-storke lead heading into the weekend.

Dufner turns soft day into historic one during second round of PGA Championship

By Doug Ferguson
Associated Press

"To join history, to shoot 63 in a major, pretty unbelievable. And to be leading the tournament, even better. So hopefully, it will propel me to a great weekend.
Jason Dufner, PGA Championship second-round leader

PITTSFORD, N.Y. — Jason Dufner lost his chance to make history in the PGA Championship.

And then he lost his shirt.

He still walked away from Oak Hill late Friday evening with a round he won't forget — a 63 — and a place in the record book with some of golf's greatest players. The moment was big enough that Dufner even agreed to show a little emotion.

Prompted in a television interview, Dufner flashed a smile. But only for a second.

"To join history, to shoot 63 in a major, pretty unbelievable," he said. "And to be leading the tournament, even better. So hopefully, it will propel me to a great weekend."

There was nothing dull about his golf. If anything, it was historic.

Dufner holed out from the fairway for eagle, rolled in a putt across the green for par and kept making birdies until he stood 12 feet away from a shot at the lowest score in the 153 years of championship golf. One last birdie attempt didn't even get to the hole, and Dufner had to settle for a 7-under 63.

"You couldn't have a better putt for a 62," he said. "And I left it short in the jar."

He also left behind his shirt, his cap and the glove he was wearing, which he signed with the date, the course and the score. The PGA of America shipped the items to its museum in Florida to put on permanent display.

It was the third time in the last seven years at the PGA Championship that a player had a putt at becoming the first player to shoot 62 in a major. Tiger Woods circled the hole at Southern Hills in 2007. Steve Stricker narrowly missed at Atlanta Athletic Club two years ago.

Dufner didn't feel disappointed for long.

On a rain-softened Oak Hill, where pelt-sized divots were flying and birdies were falling, Dufner surged to a two-shot lead over Masters champion Adam Scott, Jim Furyk and Matt Kuchar. At 9-under 131, Dufner tied the 36-hole record at the PGA Championship he now shares with six other players.

Dufner was alone at the top, and in the company of some big names in history.

His 63 broke the course record at Oak Hill held by Ben Hogan, Curtis Strange and Webb Simpson, who shot 64 about five hours earlier. Dufner became the 24th player to shoot 63 in a major — Greg Norman and Vijay Singh, both in the Hall of Fame, did it twice.

And through it all, he barely cracked a smile.

"He's very calm," said Stricker, who played alongside Dufner. "I'm sure he was churning on the inside. He just told me while we were signing our cards, he was like, 'This is a lot for a Friday.'"

The possibilities were endless on a day that began with three hours of a steady rain until the sun broke through and took all the bite out of Oak Hill.

Simpson also had a chance at 63 until he made a bogey on

Despite struggles, Rhind still 'had a blast' at PGA

From staff reports

PITTSFORD, N.Y. — Lee Rhind's experience at the PGA Championship on the golf course didn't go as well as he would've liked by missing the cut. But the Midland Country Club assistant professional finished his second round on Friday with four straight pars to end his first major championship on a high note.

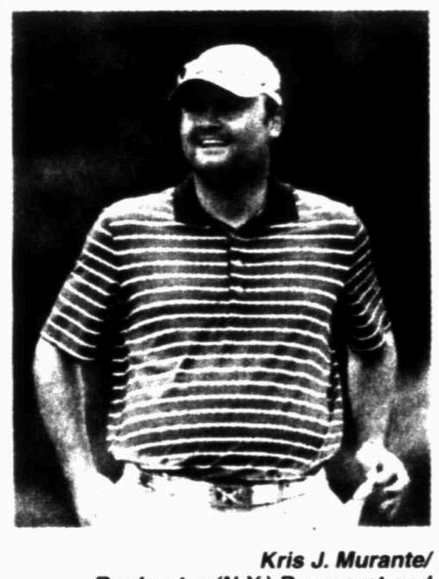

Rhind shot a 12-over par 82 on Friday at Oak Hill Country Club, and finished at 163 for the tournament.

But he will head home knowing he had a great experience competing with the best that there is in golf.

"I had a blast. It was a great experience," Rhind said after his round on Friday morning. "I learned a lot about just what goes on, and what goes into these events, and you know, have fun, but obviously the score wasn't what I wanted. Hopefully, I'll be back and hopefully do a little better next time."

Rhind, who started on No. 1 on Friday, had a rough start with a pair of bogeys and a double bogey on the first three holes. He did birdie No. 9, which was his only one of the round.

MINNEAPOLIS — DeAndre Hopkins and Cordarrelle Patterson both showed off their first-round talent.

Hopkins caught a 34-yard touchdown pass for the Houston Texans in a 27-13 preseason victory on Friday over Minnesota.

The Vikings also showcased their rookie wide receiver, too, during a flashy first half by Patterson.

Hopkins, the 27th overall pick in the draft, had four receptions for 52 yards. Patterson, taken two slots later, caught four passes for 54 yards and returned the opening kickoff 50 yards.

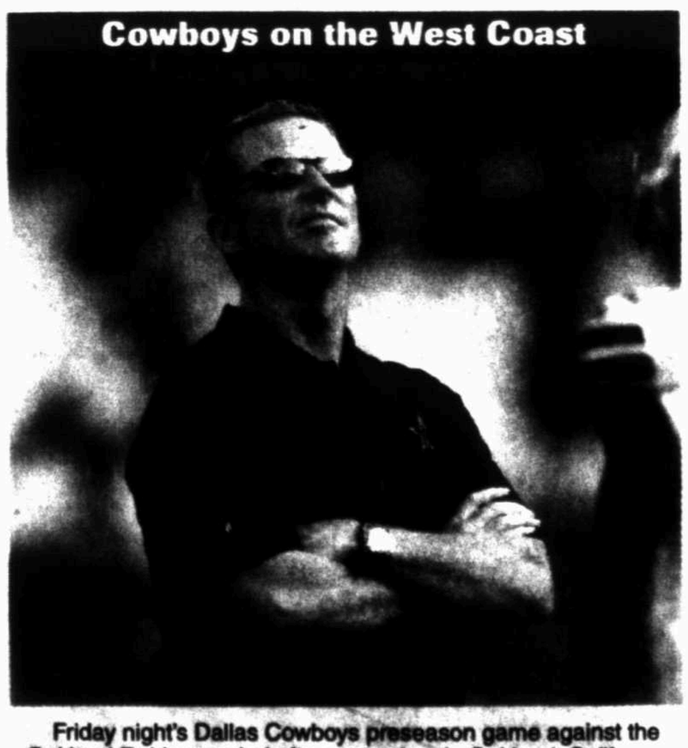

Christian Ponder connected with Jerome Simpson for 15 yards right after that, but when he went back to Simpson on the next play the throw was a bit high and bounced off Simpson's hands and into Shiloh Keo's for an interception.

Ponder, entering a critical third season for his future as Minnesota's quarterback, only took those two snaps.

Big 8th inning propels Rangers past Astros

HOUSTON — Leonys Martin hit a two-run double in a four-run eighth inning, and the Texas Rangers rallied to tie a season high with their fifth straight victory, 9-5 over the Houston Astros on Friday night.

Houston led by one entering the eighth before Adrian Beltre tied it with an RBI single off Josh Zeid (0-1). Wesley Wright's two-out, bases-loaded walk of Jurickson Profar put the Rangers on top. Martin then belted a line drive to right field to score two and make it 7-4.

Matt Garza (2-1) yielded seven hits and four runs with eight strikeouts in seven innings for the win.

The Astros used five pitchers in the eighth inning alone, but it didn't help relieve their bullpen woes. Houston's relievers have given up the lead six times in the last 13 games and have blown six saves in that span.

Things have been particularly bad in the last three games, where they've surrendered 19 runs in 10 2-3 innings for an ERA of 16.04.

Jason Castro doubled and homered, and Brandon Barnes added a home run for the Astros, who lost for the seventh time in eight games.

Houston loaded the bases in the eighth inning, but came away empty-handed when Neal Cotts struck out pinch-hitter Marc Krauss to end the inning. He earned his first save.

Joey Butler had his first career hits on a pair of doubles for Texas in his first major league start.

Butler's second double came with one out in the seventh inning. Profar's RBI single got Texas within 4-3 before Houston starter Erik Bedard ended his night by striking out Martin.

Ian Kinsler walked to start the eighth and stole second base. The Rangers tied it at 4-all with Beltre's RBI single to shallow center field which chased Zeid.

Josh Fields intentionally walked pinch-hitter David Murphy with two outs before walking Butler to load the bases and bring on Wright.

helped her transition to another new head coach in volleyball.

Ashton admitted she thought that last year's head coach, Christi Crouch, might not come back after having a child, but said the transition to a new coach has been smooth.

"With this new coach, I came in with an open mind, and she seems like she knows what she's talking about, and seems really good," said senior Morgan Ashton. "With the knowledge she has playing at Tech, she's had so much experience."

The Lady Mustangs finished 2012 with a 30-10 record, which included a victory in a non-district tournament in Seminole. Ashton said the potential is there to advance beyond the second round of the playoffs this season, and said that Filyukova's addition could help that quest.

"Coach (Filyukova) knows how to work each player in each position, and make them the best that they are," Ashton said. "I think we will be good from the beginning, and I expect us to go further than we did last year."

Racing an afterthought to Tony Stewart in Cup

By John Kekis
Associated Press

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. — Jimmie Johnson can secure a spot in the Chase for the Sprint Cup championship this week at Watkins Glen International, and he's not even thinking about it.

On a rainy Friday at the storied road course in upstate New York that delayed Cup practice until late afternoon, injured star Tony Stewart was foremost on everybody's mind. Stewart broke both the tibia and fibula in his right leg on Monday night in a sprint car race in Iowa, has since undergone two surgeries, and is out indefinitely.

Max Papis will drive Stewart's No. 14 Chevrolet on Sunday in the Cheez-It 355 at The Glen, where Stewart has a track-record five Cup wins. It will bring Stewart's streak of 521 consecutive Cup starts to an end, and it's his absence that gives Johnson the opportunity to be the first to lock into the Chase on points.

"It's not the way I want to clinch, by any means, with him not being here at the race track. It's a big loss for our sport," Johnson said. "I know that Tony is feeling bad about being injured and the effect that it has on his Cup team. It's crazy to think that he won't be a player in the Chase."

Stewart was leading with five laps remaining at Southern Iowa Speedway when a lapped car spun in front of him, causing Stewart to hit that car and flip several times. He was taken from the track by ambulance.

Like his fellow drivers, Johnson, a five-time Cup champion, said he didn't like some of the comments he's seen in the aftermath of the crash. Specifically, those who questioned Stewart for racing so much. It was his third crash in a month in the powerful open-wheel cars.

"I personally praise him for all that he does for our sport, including driving sprint cars Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday," Johnson said. "It's unfortunate that he got hurt. I hate that he's injured, but I'd be bummed if he didn't continue to race all during the week. That's the Smoke we know and love."

Cardinals outlast RockHounds in pitcher's duel

From staff reports

SPRINGFIELD, Ark. — In a true pitcher's duel that featured no extra base hits, the Springfield Cardinals picked up a narrow 2-1 victory against the Midland RockHounds at Hammons Field on Friday.

With the scored tied at 1 in the bottom of the ninth, Springfield catcher Casey Rasmus laid down a squeeze play with the bases loaded and one out. RockHounds pitcher Frank Gailey failed to get the ball back to catcher Beau Taylor before Cardinals pinch runner Adam Melker slid safely into home as the game-ending run.

Midland actually struck first, scoring in the top of the third when Josh Whitaker singled to center, bringing in Darwin Perez from third. Springfield tied it in the bottom of the sixth when Stephen Piscotty hit a two-out single, plating Luis Mateo.

Both starting pitchers delievered quality outings with Midland getting six innings out of Carlos Hernandez, allowing one run on four hits and a walk with six strikeouts.

Zack Petrick gave the Cardinals five quality innings, giving up a run on four hits and three walks with seven strikeouts. Relievers Zach Russell, Justin Wright and Heath Wyatt combined for four shutout innings, giving up three hits and two walks in that span.

Will Manziel play? A three-letter response: TBD

By Brent Zwerneman
San Antonio Express-News

COLLEGE STATION — Johnny Manziel first gained football legend on Friday nights at Kerrville Tivy High, and he's long shared his goal of playing against the best on Sunday afternoons in the NFL.

None of that matters, however, to Texas A&M fans concerning their Heisman Trophy-winning quarterback, and college football loyalists who really only want to know one thing: Will Johnny Manziel play on Saturdays this fall?

It's a difficult question bearing the same answer as many of the Aggies' game times this widely-anticipated season: TBD.

And that "To Be Determined" designation has put Aggies coach Kevin Sumlin in a tough position concerning his quarterbacks. Manziel, who's under NCAA scrutiny for allegedly receiving money for signing autographs, practiced the entire first week of preseason camp, in earning the first team snaps.

Meanwhile junior Matt Joeckel and freshmen Matt Davis and Kenny Hill have battled for the backup slot — one that potentially could turn into No. 1, depending on the outcome of the NCAA inquiry or even A&M's own investigation into the allegations. Leading back to the A&M faithful's No. 1 question about No. 2.

Manziel attorney Jim Darnell preached confidence Friday, claiming he believes Manziel will play after investigators sift through all of the facts — and fiction. A&M officials are tightlipped on the matter, but have also made it clear the university will not jeopardize the program's status — and stature — over one player. The early, quiet sentiment from A&M appears to be that if there is any question about Manziel's eligibility, he will sit out the Aug. 31 opener against Rice at Kyle Field.

Another home game vs. Sam Houston State follows on Sept. 7, and the showdown on college football fans' lips since last November, two-time defending national champion Alabama at A&M, finally plays out on Sept. 14.

One possible scenario has Manziel sitting out the Rice and SHSU games (two likely A&M victories), only to make a triumphant season debut against the Crimson Tide, with the idea the investigation has finally wrapped about a month from now. Darnell said Friday, however, "It's not going to be a short process," meaning the inquiry could carry on into the fall and even through the winter.

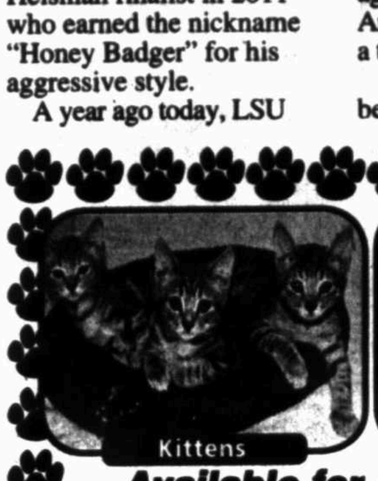

Manziel, 20, already was the most celebrated returning Heisman winner, now Johnny Football is the most scrutinized in preseason camp. Perhaps the closest comparison of late — and it's not really close — is that of former LSU defensive back and return man Tyrann Mathieu, a Heisman finalist in 2011 who earned the nickname "Honey Badger" for his aggressive style.

A year ago today, LSU coach Les Miles dismissed Mathieu from the Tigers for the dreaded "violation of team rules," and media outlets reported his untimely exit was for multiple failed drug tests. Mathieu never suited up for the Tigers again, and is now in the Arizona Cardinals' camp as a third-round draft choice.

There's a big difference between failed drug tests and allegedly taking cash for autographs, of course, but Manziel is weathering the spotlight much more than Mathieu did last summer, and this is shaping up as potentially a more drawn-out process.

One Aggies are crossing their fingers is wrapped up one way or another, if not by Aug. 31, then certainly in a month. When Alabama rolls into town, bent on revenge for the Manziel-led 29-24 upset of the Crimson Tide last November in Tuscaloosa.

In the meantime Manziel continues earning snaps in practice, and an expectant fan base — right along with the A&M coach and players — simply waits to find out what happens next.

PITTSFORD, N.Y. — Rory McIlroy already was 5 over for his round and appeared headed to another short week in a major. He finished with four birdies on the last eight holes, including a 40-foot putt from off the green, and achieved a first in his PGA Tour career.

He made his first cut at a tournament when he was the defending champion.

The sample size is small — this was only his fourth time as defending champ — but the 24-year-old from Northern Ireland was no less pleased. Considering the way his season has gone, he'll take even the most modest of victories.

"I'm obviously standing up pretty happy about the day," McIlroy said after rallying for a 71 to post two rounds at even-par 140. "Had a nice finish to the round. I was letting the round get away from me somewhat, but making four birdies on the last eight holes was nice to redeem the round a little bit and keep myself in the tournament."

McIlroy previously missed the cut when defending at Quail Hollow in 2011, the U.S. Open in 2012 and the Honda Classic this year when he withdrew in the middle of the second round. He has two more title defenses in the next month at the Deutsche Bank Championship and the BMW Championship. That's assuming he gets to the BMW Championship, which is for only the top 70 in the FedEx Cup playoffs. McIlroy is at No. 58.

Perhaps he can pick up some ground on the weekend, and it starts with playing.

the 16th hole of his round. U.S. Open champion Justin Rose shot 29 on the front nine to get back into contention. When the second round finally ended, 27 players remained under par — this on a course that is stubborn when it comes to par. In five previous majors at Oak Hill, only nine players have finished the tournament in red numbers. Jack Nicklaus did it twice.

The cut was at 143, the lowest at the PGA Championship since 2001 at Atlanta Athletic Club.

For all the low scores, Woods and Phil Mickelson were left behind.

Woods couldn't get anything going, exchanging birdies with bogeys during a poor putting round that led to an even-par 70. He was at 1-over 141 and 10 shots back going into the weekend. Woods went to the range with his swing coach, trying to find answers. He has only one score in the 60s in 14 rounds at the majors this year.

"Obviously, I'm going to have to put together a really good weekend," Woods said. "This golf course is pretty soft. It's definitely gettable. Got to hit the ball in play and keep the ball near the hole so I can be aggressive with my putts."

Mickelson's swing apparently went missing in the three weeks since he won the British Open. He was all over Oak Hill and still managed a 34 on the back nine until his wild shots caught up with him. Another 71 left him 11 shots out of the lead.

Dufner was in prime position to win the PGA Championship two years ago when he had a four-shot lead with four holes to play, only to be tracked down by Keegan Bradley and then beaten in a playoff. Dufner said that day he would only be disappointed "if I never get another chance."

And here he is, in record fashion.

Rhind

From 1B

After a par on the par-4 10th, Rhind had four straight bogeys before finishing his round with the four straight pars.

"Yeah, I'll gladly take those," said Rhind, who had his boss and MCC head professional Greg Beran caddying for him this week.

Rhind now will head back to Midland and return to his job at Midland Country Club, but he's also got his eye on returning to the PGA Championship in 2014.

"As soon as I go back home, I'm going to start upping my practice and maybe my fitness regimen just a little," Rhind said. "Yea, I definitely want to come back. I'm in the qualifier for next year, so very much already looking forward to June, so I've got a lot of stuff to do. But I'll be excited to have the opportunity to come back to one of these events again."

FROM WIRE REPORTS

DOLPHINS 27
JAGUARS 3

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Ryan Tannehill connected with Dustin Keller for a 22-yard touchdown, and the Miami Dolphins thumped the Jacksonville Jaguars 27-3 in a preseason game Friday night.

Tannehill played a little longer and a lot smoother in his second preseason game. The Jaguars can only hope Blaine Gabbert will do the same.

Tannehill completed 5 of 9 passes for 75 yards, getting things rolling late in the first quarter. He connected with Keller for a 24-yard gain and then found the former New York Jets tight end five plays later for a score. Safety Chris Prosinski looked lost on the play, the first of many mistakes for the rebuilding Jaguars.

CARDINALS 17
PACKERS 0

GREEN BAY, Wis. — Stepfan Taylor rushed for 63 yards on 21 carries in his rookie debut, and the Arizona Cardinals picked apart the Green Bay Packers on both sides of the ball on their way to a 17-0 preseason victory Friday night.

Tyrann Mathieu had a sack in his first game in two years, and also returned two punts for Arizona, which was playing its first game under new coach Bruce Arians.

PATRIOTS 31
EAGLES 22

PHILADELPHIA — Tom Brady led the New England Patriots to a pair of 80-yard TD drives in his only two series in a 31-22 win over Philadelphia on Friday.

Michael Vick threw a 47-yard touchdown pass to DeSean Jackson, but the new-look Eagles kicked off the Chip Kelly era the same way they ended Andy Reid's long tenure — with another loss.

Vick's came against New England's starters and he looked sharp, completing 4 of 5 passes for 94 yards. Foles lost a fumble on his second play and then went 5 of 6 for 43 yards. Kelly already said Foles will start next Thursday night against Carolina.

Meanwhile, the Patriots have no QB controversies. Tim Tebow made his New England debut after backup Ryan Mallett left with a head injury late in the second quarter. Tebow was 4 of 12 for 55 yards and ran for 31 on four carries.

As for Brady, the two-time NFL and Super Bowl MVP finished 7 of 8 for 65 yards and one TD.

LIONS 26
JETS 17

DETROIT — Mark Sanchez had an interception returned for a touchdown, and Geno Smith left with an apparent ankle injury in the New York Jets' 26-17 loss to the Detroit Lions in an exhibition game Friday night.

Lions rookie Ziggy Ansah made an immediate impression, intercepting Sanchez's pass and returning it 14 yards for a touchdown. The 6-foot-5 defensive end from Ghana put his hands up just in time to pick off Sanchez's screen pass in the first quarter. He had an easy return to the end zone for the game's first TD.

Sanchez played three series, going 10 of 13 for 125 yards and a touchdown. Smith was 6 of 7 for 47 yards but left shortly after halftime.

PANTHERS 24
BEARS 17

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — The Chicago Bears forced three first-half turnovers and linebacker Jonathan Bostic returned an interception 51 yards for a touchdown, but the Carolina Panthers spoiled Marc Trestman's NFL head coaching debut with a 24-17 win over Friday.

The Bears — who forced four turnovers — picked up where they left off last season when they led the NFL with 44 takeaways and finished with nine defensive touchdowns, one shy of the league record.

Chicago's offense, however, left plenty of room for improvement.

Jay Cutler was intercepted on his first play from scrimmage by Josh Norman, setting up a touchdown pass from Cam Newton to Brandon LaFell. Cutler completed 6 of 8 passes for 56 yards but the Bears had three turnovers and allowed seven sacks.

NEW ORLEANS — Preston Parker had a pair of touchdown catches in his bid to fill one of New Orleans' open receiver spots, and the Saints defeated the Kansas City Chiefs 17-13 in the preseason opener for both teams Friday.

New Chiefs coach Andy Reid saw all he needed of new starting quarterback Alex Smith in the opening drive, which went 80 yards on 14 plays, capped by Jamaal Charles' TD run. Smith was 7 of 8 for 68 yards.

With Saints coach Sean Payton on the sideline for the first time since his bounty ban ended, Drew Brees was 7 of 10 for 65 yards in two series, which produced one field goal.

TEXANS

212 yards. He was picked off by Eddie Pleasant when he tried to throw across his body while rolling to his right. Cassel later found fullback Zach Line for a 61-yard catch and run for a score.

Houston was more efficient. Matt Schaub went 5 for 5 for 34 yards to set up a field goal on his only series. T.J. Yates was 13 for 21 for 151 yards and the scoring pass to Hopkins against the second string defense for the Vikings.

Then when the third teamers took over after halftime, Case Keenum completed 13 of 18 passes for 125 yards and a touchdown. Ray Graham ran for a score, too.

The Vikings saw some highlights from another one of their three first-round picks, too, with a tackle for a loss and a pass batted down at the line by defensive tackle Sharrif Floyd.

Floyd gave them a scare when he stayed down with an injury to his left knee, but he was able to walk off on his own.

Veterans Jared Allen, Kevin Williams and Chad Greenway all sat out for the Vikings, and Desmond Bishop (groin) and Xavier Rhodes (hamstring) were held out.

The Texans held 20 players out, some because of injuries and others due to the desire to protect important players. Arian Foster, Andre Johnson and Owen Daniels were missing from the offense, and J.J. Watt, Brian Cushing and Ed Reed were held out on defense.

Foster has been on the physically unable to perform list, first for a strained calf and now with a back issue, so the chance of him carrying the ball in an exhibition game this month is slim.

After finishing seventh in the NFL in total yards last season and setting a team record by averaging 26 points per game on their way to a franchise-best 12-4 finish and second straight playoff appearance, the Texans are on track for another elite performance if they can keep their core players healthy.

Four's a crowd when daughters visit dad and his new partner

DEAR ABBY

Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069. Her column is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 16 and have a 13-year-old sister. Our parents are divorced, and we live with our mother. We used to see our dad on visitations every other weekend, but he moved away, so now we see him for two weeks in the summer and one week during Christmas. We talk to him a lot and have a good relationship. We're scheduled to visit him soon.

Dad lives in a one-bedroom apartment, and when we're there, he lets us stay in the bedroom and he sleeps on the couch. He has just told us he is "coming out of the closet" and has a partner who is living with him. They plan on getting married now that it's legal. When I asked him what the sleeping arrangements will be, he said he hasn't figured it out yet but will work it out.

We're really not surprised to find out that Dad is gay, and we can accept that. But we're really uncomfortable about spending two weeks in a one-bedroom apartment along with his partner when we don't even know what the sleeping arrangements will be. We'd like to find a way to get out of the visit, but we don't want to hurt our dad, and because of the visitation agreement, he has the right to have us for two weeks every summer. What can we do? — UNCOMFORTABLE IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR UNCOMFORTABLE: Of this I am sure, your father and his partner will welcome you with open arms and do everything in their power to show you a good time. You and your sister should go and try to be gracious guests. I agree, the space may be cramped, but it's only for two weeks. After they marry, they may move to larger quarters.

If you don't enjoy the visit, keep in mind that in two years you will be 18 and no longer "obligated" to spend three weeks with your dad. But if you give this a chance, you may be very pleasantly surprised, so think positive.

DEAR ABBY: My father-in-law is considering having my two precious little girls' names tattooed on his arm. I'm not a fan of tattoos and would prefer my daughters' names not be displayed in this manner.

Do my husband and I have a right to ask him not to do this? Our history with him hasn't been the most pleasant because he can be manipulative and hard to deal with. I'm afraid if we tell him we are opposed, it will encourage him all the more to get the tattoo. How should we approach this without causing a ruckus? — AGAINST IT IN OKLAHOMA

DEAR AGAINST IT: You can offer your opinion, but there is no way you and your husband can control what he does with his body. Because the subject has already come up for discussion, it would not be rude to raise it again and explain NICELY that if he hasn't done it yet, you would prefer the girls' names not be displayed that way.

Of course, the decision is his to make, and while it may not be to your liking, I'm sure your father-in-law considers it to be a loving gesture and a sign (literally) that he's proud of his granddaughters. If the tattoo has already been applied, then please, for the sake of family harmony, try to view it from that perspective.

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS

The stars show the kind of day you'll have: 5-dynamic; 4-positive; 3-average; 2-so-so; 1-difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Aug. 10, 2013:

This year you often find yourself brainstorming with others. You also like sharing stories and catching up on news with neighbors and relatives. You will renew your daily life in order to make it more exciting and meaningful. If you are single, you will meet a lot of people and attract many admirers. You might want to date more rather than commit. If you are attached, make sure that you spend plenty of time with your sweetie; otherwise, he or she could feel left out. LIBRA always loves visiting with you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★★ Make it your pleasure to defer to others. In many ways, you are so responsible that you need to practice letting go more often. A boss or parent could become unusually contrary. The question remains: How would you like to respond? Tonight: Finally, time to unwind at home.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★ You need some time to mellow out. Use today for just that, though you might need to get a few errands done first. You could be contacted by someone you care about, but keep in mind that he or she might be unusually controlling, especially now. Tonight: Out at a fun happening.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★ You might opt to stay close to home or somewhere you can enjoy yourself. You will see a situation evolve that could force your hand financially. Clearly you want something different from the other party. Money is one of the major issues. Tonight: You don't need to go far.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★★ You'll want to run errands right away. Plans easily could be made, as you might run into someone you would like to have coffee with. Invitations to join others seem to come in from all directions. Choose where you want to be. Tonight: Let the party happen wherever you want.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★★ Make your best effort to draw someone in. You will find that by asking the right questions, you will understand where this person is coming from. A discussion could help you both relax. The problem might revolve around a domestic matter. Tonight: Out in your neighborhood.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★ You could be taken aback by a friend's provocative style. Perhaps you have tried initiating discussions about this in the past to no avail. You might be best off letting this person revel in his or her challenging mood. Try not to get pulled in. Tonight: Just don't stress yourself out.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★★★ You'll finally feel as if you have cleared up a problem. You might be far more upbeat than you have been lately. A conversation in the morning could mark a new beginning. Be careful with a hot-tempered family member in the afternoon. Tonight: Let the good times roll!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★ Step back some. You need more private time to accomplish what you want and also to relax. Consider including a frivolous activity or two. A conversation revolving around a domestic issue could have you feeling angry or pushed to your limits. Tonight: Be willing to disappear.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★★ Conversations will help you understand others and allow you to help them resolve their differences. You might be wondering how to eliminate a barrier. Why not just decide that it doesn't exist? It will dissolve with more relaxation. Tonight: Be where people are.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★ You could feel put off by a friend's attitude. You might wonder what is necessary to make a situation work. Pull back after indicating your preferences. You'll be full of energy, but do not apply it to a control game. Let others work through their issues. Tonight: A must appearance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★★ If you are thinking about someone at a distance, pick up the phone and call him or her. Do not stand on ceremony, even if you have had a disagreement. Mend bridges. Do not get tied up in someone's power play. Tonight: Squeezing in all of your invitations might not be possible.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★ You could be taken aback by a partner or friend's feisty attitude. Have a long-overdue conversation with a loved one. You do not always need to see eye to eye with this person, but it is important to have mutual respect. Tonight: Invite a favorite person over for dinner.

Ask the Guys

Dear Classified Guys,
Some things are not fair. When the flu starts going around, I have to spend more time at work. You'd think it was because my co-workers were sick and needed to go home to rest. It's actually because their kids are sick. I don't mean to sound unsympathetic, but just because I'm the single one with no one at home, I get to stay late and pick up the slack when they need to leave. This is the second job I've had where my co-workers are all married with kids and take unexpected days off or leave early to deal with their family. Snow days are even worse. Either they are late to work or leave early to pick up their kids from school. I wouldn't mind if my paycheck reflected the difference, but there's no bonus for not having kids. I find it frustrating that my jobs have worked this way. Are there any jobs where this doesn't happen?

Cash: It would be nice if we all had two-hour delays or cancellations after a snowstorm. After all, who wouldn't like to spend the day sledding instead of going to work?

Carry: There are probably plenty of companies that have tighter restrictions on their rules than your current employer. However regardless of the job you choose, it's likely you may have to deal with similar people or situations at your next workplace.

Cash: In any work environment you will encounter all sorts of personalities or company policies that can affect your workday. Your company, however, appears to have taken a very lenient role in enforcing their attendance policy. The management may not realize that people leaving early or coming in late affects the morale of the office.

Carry: Before you go looking for another job, consider sharing your concerns with your boss. He or she may be able to help by simply enforcing the policies that are in place or finding a solution that works for everyone.

Cash: Both you and your co-workers were hired for specific jobs and each have responsibilities regardless of family situations. Rather than picking up the slack for your co-workers, focus on your responsibilities. If those are done at the end of the day, then you should be able to leave as scheduled.

Carry: That should give you more time to enjoy the snowy days!

Fast Facts

Office Flirt

Your work environment can have a large impact on your home life. A seven year Swedish study of 37,000 workers at 1,500 companies found that working with people of the opposite sex increased the divorce rate by 70%. It didn't matter if the co-workers were single, divorced or married. Sadly, this isn't the first study to support this notion. An online survey of 31,207 men and women had similar results. In this survey 62% of employees admitted to having at least one office affair.

Sick of Work

According to the annual survey of more than 5,300 employers, companies allot about 8½ sick days per year. While there are no government regulations on paid sick leave, some industries provide many more days than others. Government workers fare the best having an average of almost 12 sick days available. Utility companies and not-for-profits average around 11. The service industry has the lowest average with just over 6 days, while manufacturing and tech industries are close behind with around 6½. Maybe it just pays to stay healthy.

Coffee Saves the Day

I get to see everything as the receptionist for a law firm. Every morning it seems Mary, a paralegal, has all she can do to get to work on time. It's usually due to the line at the coffee shop where she stops on her way in.

Unfortunately, her boss, Mr. Rustmyer, is very unforgiving about tardiness. So last Tuesday, when she walked in thirty minutes late with her coffee, she tried to sneak into her office. As she was about to go upstairs, Mr. Rustmyer walked by and caught her still wearing her coat.

"Sorry I'm so late," she quickly apologized.

"That's quite alright," he replied, sternly taking the cup from her hand, "I appreciate you stopping to get me a cup of coffee."
