Federal Officers Rush To Race Riot Scene

'Freedom' Bus Group Beaten By Alabamans

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — A mob of white men and shrieking women attacked and mercilessly beat members of a mixed group of "freedom riders" Saturday and the Kennedy administration ordered more than 350 U. S. Marshals and other armed federal officers into Alabama.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy sent the federal officers in to deal with violence after the President told him to take whatever steps necessary to bring an end to the continuing disorders in Alabama.

Saturday's outburst occurred at the Montgomery bus station when the freedom riders arrived from Birmingham.

Even before the federal officers were ordered in, President Kennedy had a personal representative on the scene trying to ease the building racial tension.

The representative, John Seigenthaler, 32, was among those beaten by Saturday's mob.

Seigenthaler was not accompanying the freedom riders, but he incurred the mob's anger when he tried to save a white girl the angry whites were chasing. Before he could get her into his car he was struck from behind and left lying unconscious on the pavement.

James Zwerg, the only white youth among the freedom riders, was the most seriousy beaten.

"Kill the nigger lover," several women screamed when the Appleton, Wis., youth stepped from the bus.

Four bearded youths immediately pounced on the 21-year-old Zwerg, a tall youth neatly dressed in an olive green business suit. He was knocked to the pavement with a rain of blows to the face and shoulders and lay bleeding profusely in the street. Zwerg was the only white member of the freedom riders group on the bus.

Moments later another group of whites crowded in and pushed and stomped Zwerg's already unrecognizable face into the hot, tarry surface of the roadway.

"Get them, get them," the frenzied women hissed as the violence mounted.

(In Washington, the Justice Department announced that President Kennedy's personal representative suffered a mild concussion during the mob violence.

(Seigenthaler had been sent to Montgomery to represent the President in discussions with Alabama Gov. John Patterson about protecting the freedom riders.)

In this connection, a man who was not immediately identified at the scene, was discovered lying on the street about 40 feet from where Zwerg was attacked.

The man lay there for about 25 minutes before police officers finally put him in a car and took him to a downtown hospital.

A reporter asked Police Commissioner L. B. Sullivan why an ambulance wasn't called for Zwerg and the unidentified man.

Sullivan replied: "Every white ambulance in town reports their vehicles have broken down."

Another group of whites grabbed Norman Ritter, Atlanta manager of the Time-Life bureau, and his photographer Don Urbrock. The two were accompanying the freedom riders, who had the avowed purpose of breaking down racial barriers at bus stations and terminals and in the vehicles themselves.

Ritter was clubbed on the head and Urbrock was smashed repeatedly in the face and his 35-MM camera shattered.

Most of the Negro freedom riders escaped in the crowd, but one unidentified Negro was beaten senseless by a baseball-bat-wielding group on the unloading platform of the terminal about 45 minutes after the bus arrived.

He too lay unconscious for about 20 minutes before a Negro am

Prisoners Seek Trade With Fidel

MIAMI (UPI)—Ten prisoners of war captured in the abortive Cuban invasion April 17 flew here Saturday from Havana to try to negotiate Fidel Castro's offer to swap 1,200 of their comrades for 500 tractors or bulldozers.

They said they had promised to return to Havana if the United States did not express willingness within 72 hours to permit negotiations. They were given five days for the negotiations and then 72 more hours in which to return home.

They did not say what club Castro was holding over their heads to make them promise to return. But in Cuban prisons were the 1,200 comrades they had left behind, some of them already threatened with execution for their part in the invasion.

The State Department announced it would "give most sympathetic consideration" to exporting licenses for the tractors or bulldozers to Cuba and a group of prominent Americans headed by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, labor leader Walter Reuther and Dr. Milton Eisenhower began a campaign to raise the money.

Tractors run from $1,700 to $6,000. Bulldozers are much more expensive, some running to $40,000. The total cost of the ransom for the 1,200 men of the invasion band would run somewhere between $850,000 and $20 million. What Castro wants is either tractors or bulldozers, not a combination.

Rusk To Give JFK Geneva Meet Report

GENEVA (UPI)— Secretary of State Dean Rusk flew back to Washington Saturday, leaving special ambassador W. Averell Harriman to head the United States delegation at the 14-nation conference on the future of Laos. He is to report to the president.

Before his departure, Rusk expressed hope that the conference eventually would find a formula to "insure the independence and neutrality" of the southeast Asian kingdom plunged into chaos by the struggle for power between pro-Western and pro-Communist forces.

The search is expected to be a tough and prolonged one. Rusk wound up his four days at the conference at complete odds with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko on how to maintain the peace and neutrality of Laos.

Violence Flares As France Halts Army In Algiers

ALGIERS, Algeria (UPI)— The French army ceased the offensive military operations against the Algerian Moslem rebels at 6 p.m. Saturday—the first cease-fire in 6½ years of the Moslem war of independence.

Within minutes after the cease-fire there were outbursts of violence among both the Moslems and the angry French settlers in Algiers.

A hand grenade — A favorite weapon of Moslem terrorists—exploded in Algiers wounding five Moslems. A plastic charge — a favorite weapon of the settlers—exploded in front of the home of lawyer Jean Morinaud, injuring two persons.

The first explosion came shortly after Jacques Coup De Frejac, spokesman of the French administration in Algeria, formally announced the cease-fire ordered personally by President Charles de Gaulle.

The cease-fire order was carried out despite statements by leaders of the Algerian rebel government in Tunis they would pay no attention to the conciliatory move by the French government, and their criticism of it as a "propaganda move."

The dramatic move caught the rebel leaders off guard just as peace talks began earlier Saturday at Evian-Les-Bains, France, on the edge of Switzerland's lake Geneva.

Traffic Group Unhappy About Parking Decision

Pampa's City Traffic Commission will ask the City Commission at its meeting Tuesday whether the traffic body's recommendations carry any weight or whether its members are just wasting their time.

Traffic Commission Chairman Bob Hudson said yesterday the 15-member groups wants to know "where it stands."

Hudson said he and Jack Miller, another member of the traffic group, will appear before the city commissioners.

The move was prompted, Hudson said, by the City Commission's action last Tuesday in restoring angle parking to an area in the 400-block of S. Cuyler where the Traffic Commission had recommended parallel parking for safety purposes.

The City Commission voted 3-2 to restore the angle parking. Mayor E. C. Sidwell and Commissioner Newt Secrest voted against the motion. Commissioners Lloyd Simpson, L. P. Fort and Leon Holmes voted to over-ride the Traffic Commission.

"We are very unhappy about the city commission's action," Chairman Hudson said. "We feel that the commission should not have taken the arbitrary action without first referring it back to the traffic commission for further consideration."

"The members of the traffic commission spend a lot of time and effort in making studies of Pampa's traffic needs," Hudson said. "We work with the city traffic engineer and I feel sure we give the various traffic safety problems more study than do the members of the city commission.

"If our recommendations are to be ignored and brushed aside without even further discussion," Hudson added, "then there is not much purpose in having a traffic commission and we may as well

Kennedy-Khrushchev Talks May Be Acrid

WASHINGTON (UPI) —When President Kennedy sits down with Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev in Vienna June 4, there's a good chance the conversation will be rather blunt on both sides.

Khrushchev's capacity for blandishment quickly shifting to bombast is well known. Kennedy, after 14 years in Congress before entering the White House, is no stranger to harsh words. But he'll find himself in a vastly new arena when he meets the Soviet leader.

The President sized up Khrushchev during last year's election campaign. In a speech at Baltimore Sept. 16, he said of the Soviet Premier:

"He is shrewd, he is vigorous, he is informed and he is competent. He is not putting on an act when he talks about the inevitable triumph of the Communist system, for this is what he believes and this is what he is determined to achieve, and this is what we in this nation are equally determined to prevent."

The address was one of Kennedy's more carefully put together speeches of the campaign. It was unusual in that he stuck closely to his prepared text, a rarity for him during the political fight.

At the time of the speech, Khrushchev had just come to the United Nations in New York and Kennedy directed much of the speech at the Russian.

"You and your Chinese friends in particular talk of peace only while you work to undermine it. To rail against colonialism while holding an iron empire in your grasp, all the way from East Berlin to Viet Nam in the half circle, is to achieve new heights of hypocrisy."

Kennedy had two other thoughts for Khrushchev in the same speech:

"This country is still far from fitting your description of a senile, capitalistic system that is about to collapse into the ground ...while you may learn on occasion to bring a man back from outer space alive, you rarely bring them back from Siberia."

Parade Marks Armed Forces Day In Pampa

Pampa's Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps and National Guard units joined yesterday to mark the 12th annual observance of Armed Forces Day and bring home to the people of the area the capabilities of the armed services to discourage totalitarian aggression and for the preservation of freedom.

The day was marked with an Armed Forces Day parade yesterday forenoon in which the five units combined to move through downtown Pampa with equipment used by reserve members in their local training.

Hundreds of Pampans turned out for the forenoon parade and cheered the moving reserve units. Yesterday afternoon hundreds more passed through the First National Bank Annex and parking lot where the equipment was left on display with reserve unit members there to explain uses of the various pieces.

At noon yesterday some 50 to 60 persons attended the annual Armed Forces luncheon in Coronado Inn where key personnel and civic leaders paid tribute to the armed forces units and listened to a history of the five units which portrayed their growth in the Pampa and Panhandle areas.

The general theme of the speakers for the various components of the armed forces was that the Armed Forces Day observance is aimed to emphasize the basic concept that national security and a free way of life depend upon the power which comes from American teamwork and national unity.

The Rev. Ronald Hubbard, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, presided at the luncheon. Among those who gave brief talks were Capt. Bill Cooper, of the Army, Commander Jack Miller of the Navy, Col. Travis Lively of the Air Force, Capt. Lawrence Hurdle of the National Guard, Roque Marquez of the Marines, M. K. Brown, and E. Roy Smith, president of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce.

Entertainment was furnished by Jean Holman, vocalist, and Joyce Prock, pianist.

The luncheon was concluded with the presentation of special awards of appreciation by Chief Petty Officer D. W. Brown, of the U. S. Navy, to Mage Keyser, of Keyser's Tin Shop; Paul West, local theater manager, and Tex DeWeese, managing editor of The News.

Many Arrested By Laos Junta

SEOUL, Korea (UPI) — South Korean President Posun Yun withdrew his "embarrassing" resignation today under tremendous pressure from the military junta which seized power Tuesday. His act preserved a show of constitutional legality for the military rule.

The junta announced formation of a 15-man cabinet headed by "Chief of Cabinet" Lt. Gen. Chang Do Yung, arrested all ministers in the cabinet of deposed Premier John M. Chang and began a wholesale arrest of suspected Communists.

Estimates of those arrested under the military's harsh rules against Communism ranged as high as 3,500. The junta announced Friday it had arrested 1,500 "hooligans" and a number of "left-wing newspaper editors."

Chang's ministers were taken to an undisclosed location for imprisonment but the ex-premier himself escaped by refusing to go along unless military policy produced a warrant. They were so flustered they let him go.

Well-informed sources reported Gen. Carter B. Magruder, U.S. and United Nations commander in Korea, had ordered the junta to return to United Nations control those troops used in the seizure of power Tuesday.

Tax Measure Killed By House; Conferees Will Seek New Bill

AUSTIN (UPI)— Convinced Gov. Price Daniel would never waiver on his pledge to veto the Senate's sales tax, the Texas House Saturday rejected the levy and called for a conference committee.

They killed the Senate's tax package, 83-55. The measure, passed as a substitute for the House's 2 per cent sales tax, also contained several temporary taxes on big business.

Rep. Steve Burgess of Nacogdoches urged the House to accept the bill, saying he didn't believe Daniel "has guts enough" to veto it.

Speaker James A Turman named Rep. Charles Ballman of Borger, chairman of the House Revenue and Taxation Committee, to head the House conferees. Other members are Reps. George Hinson of Mineola, Tony Korioth of Sherman, Menton Murray of Harlingen and Charles Wilson of Trinity.

Lt. Gov. Ben Ramsey was expected to appoint Senate conferees Monday.

Daniel, in a formal statement, said "I am very pleased that the majority of the House has provided the opportunity to work on a compromise tax bill in a conference committee.

Turman said he would appoint the conferees with hopes the joint committee will have a compromise tax program available for a vote next Wednesday.

Young Pampa Boy Stabbed In Fight

Gary Wills, 20, of 1144 Huff Rd., was slashed in the abdomen with a knife late last night during an altercation at Hobart and Francis Streets.

Police said the youth was taken to Highland General Hospital where his wounds were treated and said not to be serious. Wills was released after emergency treatment.

Acording to police, Wills was stabbed in a fight between two crowds of boys.

Three youths fled from the scene in a car after the stabbing and were apprehended in McLean and returned to Pampa for questioning.

Stolen Safe Found, And It's Empty

The case of the missing safe stolen from the Pampa Clinic, 1002 N. Hobart, was solved Friday afternoon, according to a report from Sheriff Rufe Jordan.

The 500-pound safe, Jordan said, was discovered on the Schafer Ranch, 12 miles northwest of Pampa, by two Skelly Oil Company employes, T. J. Veale and J. Q. Russell, both of Pampa.

Russell, an electrician for the oil company, told officers he and Veale were working on a transformer unit overlooking a canyon and saw the safe lying in a dry creek bed.

Officers theorized the safe which contained $578 in cash and checks, several hundred dollars worth of narcotics and valuable office papers and records, was rolled through the office and loaded into a waiting car or truck early last Sunday morning. The thieves then cut off the door with a cutting torch, looted it and dumped it into the canyon.

Jordan said nothing was left in the safe and a recent rain had washed away any fingerprints or footprint clues which might have led to the safe robbers' identities.

U.S. Guerrilla Force Under 'Crash' Program

FT. BRAGG, N. C. (UPI) — From Ft. Bragg's smoke bomb hill to the forests of Bavaria and the jungles of Southeast Asia, a little known force of Army supermen is adding a new dimension to U. S. strategy for halting the advance of creeping communism.

Under President Kennedy's orders, this band of superbly trained guerrillas now is expanding with something like wartime urgency. Known formally as "U. S. Army Special Forces," the guerrillas have a key role in Kennedy's determined scheme for beating back Red-inspired subversion, insurrection and guerrilla tactics at the edges of the free world.

About 150 were sent to Laos. But they got started late, being assigned to train Laotians at battalion level only shortly before the cease-fire and long after the main Communist damage was done. Now they are helping to shore up the situation in South Viet Nam, where there is much greater appreciation of the Red thrust.

The special forces, here and at their main bases abroad on Okinawa and near Munich, now are about 2,000 strong. Kennedy has ordered their strength doubled and the first 500 are in training.

But numbers give no true indication of their potential influence. They are prepared not only to fight at the side of Allied forces. As instructors and staff advisers, they can train thousands of local troops in the target areas of Asia, Africa and Latin America that Nikita S. Khrushchev has marked off for Communist-sponsored "wars of liberation."

Supermen? They seem as near to it as people come on this planet.

An ordinary soldier on Smoke Bomb Hill, home of the special forces, is one who can handfashion his own explosives, to blow up an enemy railroad, perform surgery under harsh field conditions with limited equipment, and speak rather well in the dialects of remote areas such as Viet Nam or the Soviet Ukraine.

He is, of course, a paratrooper. He may be Navy-trained as a frogman. He is ready to arrive behind enemy lines by air, from submarines or by shank's mare. He is equally at home in jungle, desert, mountain or snow.

This reporter has seen special forces troops in Germany who thought nothing of walking 15 to 30 miles a night for days on end, carrying 60-pound backpacks. Their equipment included AM radio sets with 2,000-mile reach, skis, snow shoes, automatic rifles, rocket launchers, submachine guns, rope for descending sheer faces of mountains, knives, watches, flashlights, compasses, binoculars, sniper rifles and demolition equipment.

The mission of these supermen, in brief, has always been to be ready to go anywhere anytime; to organize and train guerrilla forces in enemy territory in wartime; to conduct psychological warfare and transmit intelligence; to do anything else they are directed to do.

Checklist Provides Knowledge As To House Floor, Room Plan

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — House-hunting?

Here's a handy checklist to help determine whether or not a house has a good floor plan and room layout.

A house that passes these basic tests, according to A. M. Watkins, author of "How To Judge A House," is likely to be of top design in other crucial areas, too.

—Is the family entrance, usually through the kitchen, properly located? It should be near the garage and driveway for speedy and easy grocery unloading and convenient in-and-out travel for the family at all times.

—Is the main entrance well planned? Guests enter here. It should be near the driveway and street, and it should have a foyer and coat closet—not open directly into living space.

—Is there good room-to-room circulation—the travel routes within the house? Can you go from any room to any other room, except dining room, without passing through a third room? Is there access from any entrance to any room without crossing a third room? The living room in particular should be free of cross-traffic.

—Is there a good indoor-outdoor relationship? Is it easy to reach the patio, terrace or outdoor play area from the house?

—Is the kitchen centrally located? From the kitchen a woman should have control over the entire house; be near the front door; be able to catch children playing outside, and be near dining and living rooms. The kitchen "should be a command post, not a foxhole," says Watkins.

In his guide, which gives tips on such things as getting sound construction and avoiding major causes of expensive upkeep, and provides a 120-point comprehensive check list for judging a house, Watkins stresses the importance of the kitchen.

A kitchen may be loaded with new appliances and equipment, he notes, but it still can be highly uncomfortable or gloomy because of the wrong exposure.

Ideal exposure for kitchen and dining area generally is on the southeast side of a house. This will give you bright morning sunshine for breakfast all year around, coupled with a minimum of hot, late afternoon and early evening sunshine when you don't want it.

A south-facing kitchen gets less morning sun, especially in summer, but more afternoon sun. A kitchen facing north gets practically no morning sun except for a little in summer, and is exposed to cold winds in winter.

Firm Expecting Gain In Prices On Stock Mart

NEW YORK (UPI) — Standard & Poor's "Outlook" says if expected improvement of the economic future proves to be reasonably accurate, it can see the basis for still higher stock prices, subject to occasional pauses while the market waits for business to catch up.

It states that new commitments should be directed largely toward issues in basic industries that have not participated actively in the advance, rather than toward glamor stocks that already are liberally discounting potentials for several years ahead.

S—P's "stock of the month" is B. F. Goodrich which it says offers attractive value at 59 and could work considerably higher over the medium term. It also thinks Gamble-Skogmo shares remain an interesting speculation at 28.

Spear & Staff says the stock of J. W. Mays has moved up in partial recognition of its potentials but the advisory firm is still recommending purchases in view of the company's "powerful growth trend." It also says Clifton Precision, at 50-53 on the over-the-counter market, should hit 100 in 12 months, but it cautions that the issue is thin and volatile.

Although there are more than 90,000 miles of roads in Japan, only about 5,700 miles are paved.

Complaints By Auto Buyers Found Varied

DETROIT (UPI) — Like the newspapers, the auto companies get thousands of letters yearly from their customers. Some are filled with praise; others are highly critical.

The Ford Motor Co. got some public reaction not too long ago when it asked purchasers of some of its luxury automobiles to defer delivery so the cars could be used in President Kennedy's inaugural parade.

One irate purchaser wrote back, "Like hell I'll give up my place in line to Kennedy. He can walk."

A Missouri man told the company, "My car is now more than two months late and I would like to have it immediately. My suggestion: Let the Democrats ride donkeys in the parade."

Even a Democratic lawmaker from a large Eastern state refused to step aside. "It is of the utmost necessity that you ship the car to me at the agreed delivery date," he wrote.

On another matter, one Chicago woman wrote that she had a problem with her automobile because it had separate bucket front seats instead of the long single seat customary in most cars.

"Do you have any suggestions on how to install a baby car seat in the 1960 Thunderbird" she asked. "We realize the T-Bird is not advertised as a family type car, but these things do happen."

A Seattle woman, however, said she liked the bucket seats "especialy since having surgery. They are a great support and no effort is used to drive."

But two ten-agers wrote in to complain about the bucket seats, which now are found in many of today's cars. "How am I going to overcome the problem of sitting at arm's length when I'm out dating my girl friend" one boy asked.

Another complained that some cars come equipped with a chaperone — the so-called "console" found between the bucket seats.

A girl from Davenport, Iowa, wrote with a resigned air that "all my boy friend talks about is his new car, so please send me some literature so at least I know what he's talking about."

The companies often get requests for "free samples." For example, one Michigan high school senior wrote asking Ford for a new Thunderbird "so I will have real status at my graduation next month."

The auto companies try to answer all the letters as tactfully as possible. The high school student, for instance, was turned down, but gracefully on the theory that he will be a car buyer some day.

Mass Death Orders Laid To Eichmann

JERUSALEM (UPI)—The Nazi murder machine killed 60,000 of the 75,000 Jews in Yugoslavia during World War II and the man who gave the orders was Adolf Eichmann, the court trying him for mass murder was told today.

Alexander Arnon, 63, former secretary of the Jewish community in Zagreb, testified that 60,000 Yugoslav Jews perished, including some 20,000 killed in one death camp near Zagreb.

Immediately after Arnon finished testifying, the Israeli prosecution submitted to the court a series of statements by former high-ranking Nazis in Yugoslavia, identifying Eichmann as the man who ordered the Yugoslav killings from his office in Berlin.

New York City is the economic capital of the free world.

'CRAZY DAY' PARTICIPANTS — Above is a group of unidentified Pampa businessmen, dressed in wacky costumes yesterday, in observance of 'Crazy Day'. They rode down the street in a Model T Ford. They didn't ask not to be identified. They were just hard to recognize in the togs they were wearing. Anyway, it might be too sensible to identify any of the leaders in the 'Crazy Day' staged by Pampa's merchants. At any rate the merchants and Chamber of Commerce officials pronounced the day a big success. (Daily News Photo)

Lie Test Passed In Shooting Case

Clarence Horton, husband of Mrs. Claudia Sue Horton, 22, who died of gunshot wounds May 11 in their home at 700 E. Scott St., passed a lie detector test in Amarillo yesterday when questioned about the shooting.

Police Chief Jim Conner said following an investigation of the shooting that there was no doubt that the woman took her own life.

"Mr. Horton volunteered to take the test to clear his name," Chief Conner said.

"He went through the test without a single indication he was not telling the truth in answers to every h question," Chief Conner said.

Horton was accompanied to Amarillo for the test by Patrolman R. E. Crouch.

Two Men Face Felony Charge

Ollie B. Johnson, 44, of Amarillo, and Dannie Swain, 23, of Borger, each was charged with felony theft yesterday and placed under $1,500 bond in connection with the theft of a $175 record player from the home of John Moseley, 318 W. Albert.

bulance finally came and picked him up.

The actual violence was carried out by only about 25 or 30 of the estimated 300 persons that had gathered at the station for the freedom riders arrival.

Additional hundreds poured into the area when the violence had erupted and the crowd swelled to an estimated 1,500 to 2,000 persons.

Part of the crowd caught up with some of the Negro freedom riders when they attempted to make their way to Negro First Baptist Church at which the Rev. Ralph Abernathy, an integration leader, officiates.

Two Arraigned On Driving Count

Two Pampa men were arraigned in County Judge William J. Craig's court yesterday on charges of driving while intoxicated.

Richard C. McBowell, 47, of 1112 S. Wilcox, pleaded not guilty and was placed under $500 bond. Police said McBowell was arrested in the 1200 block of S. Barnes Friday afternoon.

Oscar L. Jackson, 55, of 1015 S. Clark, pleaded guilty to a DWI charge. He was fined $100 and costs, given three days in jail and automatic license suspension for six months.

Police said Jackson was involved in a collision with another car driven by Mrs. Lillie Watson, 629 N. Christy. The accident happened at the intersection of Alcock and Dwight Sts. No one was injured.

CrAzY DaY Was tHAt In pAmPA

"Crazy Day" in Pampa was real crazy.

"It was one of the most successful merchandising events ever held here," said Lou Troja, chairman of the Merchants' Activities Committee of the chamber of commerce, which sponsored the event.

The day opened with a morning coffee in downtown Cuyler street, attended by store managers and their clerks, attired in their "Crazy Day" costumes.

Stores participating in the event resembled the clown department of a five-ring circus.

First prize for the craziest store in town went to the Woolworth Company, where the secret panel of judges decided things were the zaniest of any place in town.

The special award for the craziest man clerk went to Johnny Martin, assistant manager of Zale's Jewelry Store, and the judges decided Mrs. Effie Cox, a clerk in Moses' store was the craziest-looking saleslady.

Awards to the store and the clerks will be made tomorrow at the regular monthly luncheon of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce in Coronado Inn.

Speaker Flays Complacency In Kiwanis Speech

Melvin Munn, member of the Pampa Kiwanis Club, was the principal speaker Friday at the regular meeting of his own club in Fellowship Hall of Methodist Church.

Munn took the occasion to try to arouse Americans and Pampans in general and Kiwanians in particular to the inroads being made by communism.

The speaker said one of our great troubles is that we are steeped in complacency and indifference to what is going on about us. In substance, he stated that Communists work hard at having us become interested in their way of life and indoctrinating us with their ideologies wherever possible.

"But," said Munn, "we don't seem to try to get Communists interested in our way of life and our way of thinking."

"It is time to draw the line," Munn said. "It is time to tell the Communists they have gone far enough. It is time for action."

Munn said too many in this country are prone to criticize those who are really trying to stop the spread of communism throughout the world and particularly in the United States.

"It seems to be the same pationally as it is many times locally — right here in Pampa," he said.

And then Munn told of a lack of respect for things American. He said too many people are too busy to pay attention to anything that has no relation to making money.

Munn charged that he knew of instances in Pampa where men suffered financially because they took a stand on certain questions. This, he said, was especially true on local issues and in politics.

In speaking of a lack of respect, Munn said that he knew personally of a lack of interest and respect shown to speakers and high school students in a patriotic pageant at the city's annual Independence Day observance in Central Park.

"Many times people are too busy to see and to listen. I have cited a local instance," he said. "If we are too busy to see and to listen to what is going on about us locally — what can we expect but that we are too busy to see and to listen to what is happening to us nationally and internationally."

Munn urged unity of purpose and action — not only locally — but Americans as a whole — to present a united front to stop communism in its tracks.

He said there is no longer room for indecisiveness, complacency or indifference to what is happening in America.

'Instant ICBM' Flight Attempt Proves Failure

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — The second test flight of America's new "instant ICBM," the Minuteman, ended in failure yesterday when the rocket was blown up after veering off course.

The sleek, white rocket blasted into the sky at 9:19 a.m. in an attempt to plant a dummy warhead on a South Atlantic target more than 4,000 miles away.

But slightly more than a minute later, the second flight model of the Air Forces' "great white hope" missile began weaving snakelike patterns through the sky.

A range safety officer, delegated the job of keeping errant rockets from landing on populated land areas, tripped two switches that blew the 33-ton Minuteman to bits.

The wreckage plunged into the Atlantic several hundred miles southeast of this missile testing center.

The failure came three months and 19 days after another Minuteman, third of America's intercontinental ballistic missiles, acored an unprecedented success by making a near full-range flight in its first test shot.

Homes Building Near Airports Will Be Curbed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Nobody — well, hardly anybody — wants to live next to a noisy airport.

Like it or not, airports are getting noisier as traffic grows and jets replace propeller planes.

These two facts have prompted at least two government agencies to look at the problem of aircraft noise and houses.

Leaning heavily on a study by the Federal Aviation Agency, the Federal Housing Administration has told its field offices to shy away from insuring mortgages on new houses near airports. The FHA advice applied especially to airports with, or likely to get, jet traffic.

"The ever-increasing activity of jet aircraft has greatly multiplied the noise nuisance and reduced the desirability of land for residential development," FHA said in a letter to its 75 field offices.

The FHA said it was opening a drive "to discourage residential development and the erecton of public buildings and places of public assembly in areas contiguous to public airports."

The mortgage-insuring agency has two major reasons for its policy:

—It does not want to get struck with bad mortgages on property nobodywants.

—It feels it should, as a matter of principle, discourage development of communities in which there might be a hazard to "health of occupants" or simply a noise nuisance.

For existing properties, "extenuating circumstances" may justify "a less stringent interpretation" of th aviation agency report, the FHA said. However, it added, it must be remembered that introduction of jets, extension of runways, increases in air traffic and other changes may spoil previously desirable properties.

Issued last September, the 14-page aviation agency report on aircraft noise urged all government agencies to try "to prevent urban development from encroaching on the airport and particularly in those areas which lie under the takeoff and landing paths of dominant jet runways."

Transportation Monopoly Looms, Writer Declares

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Next to the H-bomb, the most powerful force in the United States probably is controlled by the teamsters' James R. Hoffa.

There are disturbing indications that Hoffa intends to create a unionized transportation monopoly in the United States.

His combination in one union of teamsters, chauffeurs, warehousemen and their helpers provides a broad base for a monopoly of U. S. transportation. Hoffa moved last week toward power to control American transportation and to paralyze it at will. This week he suffered a modest setback.

Last week's action was the signature of a mutual assistance pact by Hoffa with the chiefs of the International Longshoremen's Association and the National Maritime Union. The setback came Tuesday when the longshoremen's executive committee repudiated the agreement.

What Hoffa is believed to have in mind is an alliance of his teamsters with all other U. S. transportation unions, land, sea and air. Such a concentration of union power would have no precedent here. Hoffa is guiding the geographical division of his own union to a situaton in which teamsters contracts will expire in all parts of the country at the same time.

That situation could invite a nationwide teamsters' strike, a disastrous thing. If Hoffa's teamsters were supported by other tranport unions in such a strike it would not need to last long to measure up to some exploding H-bombs in terms of hurt to the people of the United States.

The American people probably are not aware of Hoffa's position in the community nor of his potential power for harm. One American who is fully aware of Hoffa is the U.S. attorney general, Robert Kennedy.

Are You Tired of Starving to Take Off Ugly Fat?

Are you suffering the pangs of hunger on a "fad" liquid diet? Does it cause irregularity, gas and bloating? Many people have written us that this is just what happens on a liquid diet. Then too, you cannot expect any vitamins present in a liquid diet to take the place of food. For 19 years Barcentrate has been sold in Texas and thousands of people have taken off weight, without the pangs of hunger.

Just ask at any drug counter for 4 ounces of Barcentrate. Mix with grapefruit juice as directed on label and take according to directions. If the very first bottle doesn't show you the way to reduce quickly, easily and without starvation diet, return the empty bottle for your money back.

Here is a letter from another grateful user of Barcentrate. Mrs. P. T. Yeary, Route 13, Box 520, Fort Worth, Texas, states: "My weight was 216 pounds when I began using Barcentrate. When I had taken four bottles in a period of 2 months, I had lost 20 pounds. I continued taking it and my weight is now 163, a total loss of 53 pounds. Barcentrate is a wonderful tonic and energy builder too."

Cards Source Of Fun On Bad Weather Days

By PATRICIA MacCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI)—Constructive entertainment's in the cards when inclement weather forces children to play indoors.

Just pull several old or incomplete decks of playing cards from your idea file. Set up a card table. Provide tools and additional materials: Plastic tape, scissors, paste, snapshot, sequin, bits of lace, old shoe boxes, construction paper, string and sparkle.

With these and the cards the children can produce original presents for grandmothers, aunts or cousins whose birthdays are imminent.

They also can play games or become inspired in philanthropy. They might make "treasure boxes by completely covering shoe boxes with playing cards and decorating them with sparkle dust, sequins, ribbon bows and bits of old jewelry.

Other ideas:

—Make napkin rings by cutting holes in the centers of old playing cards. Use a king for dad, a queen for mother and cards with numbers corresponding to children's ages for the small fry.

—Paste snapshots on the backs of a dozen playing card, trimming so the edges are even. Pierce at one corner. Tie the cards together to make a compact purse-size fan that doubles as a family record. Grandma would love such a gift.

—Make a pinwheel out ot a pencil, straight pin and four bent playing cards.

—Use cards to make a decorative border on a plain plastic place mat.

—Build doll house furniture from old cards, match sticks, empty thread spools. A single playing card can be used for a rug. A king or queen's face can be cut out and pasted on the wall as a picture. Or many cards can be glued on the walls as wallpaper.

—Glue playing cards onto a tray and shellac to waterproof. For a gay effect, sprinkle sparkle dust over the top while the shellac still is wet.

They also can paste cards on a soft wallboard to make a dart board. High cards should be in the center with smaller numbered cards radiating out toward the rim.

When the sun shines again, the children—if still in a card party mood—might visit neighbors to see if they have any slightly used, complete decks of cards.

This activity helps the children to get in the philanthropic mood.

The cards are needed by local hospitals, orphanages and old folks homes.

Such institutions welcome just this kind of contribution to keep in the works such games as bridge, solitaire, gin rummy, canasta and pinochle.

Tijirebon, western Java, is the cleanest town in Indonesia.

So small are atoms that two billion would fit on the point of a pin.

Soviet Space Agency Head Resigns Post

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Tass news agency announced today that Alexander N. Nesmeyanov, the man who headed the program that put Maj. Yuri Gagarin into space, has resigned as president of the all powerful Soviet Academy of Sciences.

The resignation came only a day after the Soviet Defense Ministry announced that four Soviet generals and a colonel had been killed in an aircraft accident "while carrying out their duties."

There was no indication of a connection between these two events, although Thursday's cryptic announcement was somewhat similar to one eight months ago which disclosed the death of Marshal Mitrofan Nedelin, commander of all Russia's rocket forces.

Tass said Nesmeyanov, 62, who controlled direction of at least 200 scientific facilities through his post, had asked to be relieved of his duties.

Matislav V. Keldysh, a 50-year-old mathematician and expert in mechanics and computing techniques, was elected to succeed Nesmeyanov, Tass said. He holds two Stalin prizes and the Order of Lenin.

DESTROY PARKING TICKETS

LONDON (UPI) — An article in the Solicitors' Journal, a British legal publication, said today that Londoners have torn up an estimated $84,000 worth of parking tickets since parking meters were introduced last year.

Writer Tests Products Touted By TV Despite Inconveniences

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A goodly number of the commercials we see on television are intended to stimulate what the hard-sell boys refer to as "impulse buying."

They show us a product on the screen and hope that we will be seized by an impulse to go out and buy one. This sort of thing works, too. At least it does on me.

I still remember the night years ago when I first saw advertised on television one of those ball-point pens that was suposed to write under water.

The commercial came on during the late show after I was already in bed. But I immediately got dressed and drove around the suburbs until I found an all-night drugstore that had the pens in stock.

Then I went home and filled the bathtub with water so I could try it out. Unfortunately, by that time I was so sleepy I couldn't think of anything to write.

The impulse hit me again last winter when an announcer was demonstrating one of those pens that write through butter. There was a foot of snow on the ground but that didn't stop me from mushing right out to the nearest shopping center.

It wasn't until I returned that it occurred to me that we use margarine at our house. So I had to mush out again to pick up a stick of butter.

A few weeks after that happened, this announcer came on and said he was going to show us the "richness test" for shaving cream.

"Mister," he asked, "do you wet your face before shaving? Then keep it wet. . .really wet. . . skin divers at Florida's Silver Springs know how. . ."

About this time, a skin diver with a five-o'clock shadow jumped into the water and tried to shave with a competing brand, but the cream sort of dissolved before it reached his face.

Then he tried the advertised brand which, the announcer gleefully noted, was "so rich that it holds up even under water."

Needless to say, while watching this there came upon me a strong impulse to shave under water. The only thing that kept me from giving it a try was the fact that I use an electric razor.

I couldn't figure out a way to do it without getting electrocuted, and I was beginning to feel severely frustrated. I might have developed a real trauma had I not happened to see this week a deceptive advertising complaint issued by the Federal Trade Commission.

According to the FTC, the stuff that skin diver used actually was a mixture of toothpaste and shaving cream.

After reading this, I immediately went home, filled the bathtub and brushed my teeth under water. And now I feel much better.

CHANTEUSE — Paris-born Vicki Benet added the attributes of a Yankee Doodle doll to those of her French background to become the top record seller of all French vocalists in the U.S. Currently she's heard in Jerry Lewis' new comedy, "The Ladies' Man."

America Cast Aside 'Big Stick' In Laos, UPI Writer Asserts

By DONALD MAY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States had foreseen the possibility of a military coup in Korea — although not the timing —and had decided in advance on a policy of speaking softly and putting aside the big stick.

A U.S. general and an American diplomat were following this policy in a series of secret conferences with Korean leaders as the success of the coup hung in the balance.

The policy, which until now has remained unclear because of total Washington silence, was that this country would not intervene with troops, nor use the bludgeon of threatening withdrawal of aid. It would try politically to restrain, to moderate and to coax events into constitutional channels.

In line with this, Lt. Gen. Carter B. Magruder, commader of U.S. and United Nations troops in Krea, and Marshall Green, senior officer at the U.S. Embassy in Seoul, made a futile attempt to sidetrack the revolt in a meeting with Korean President Posun Yung on the day the coup started.

The Korean president met with them for three hours after a small group of army generals and colonels seized the capital Tuesday.

At this stage the coup could have gone either way. Outside Seoul the bulk of army commanders still were neutral. They would not join the rebels. Nor would they launch bloody civil war by attacking them.

President Yun wanted to know which way the United States stood. Green and Magruder told him they were strongy opposed to settling Korea's problems by non-constitutional means, that this could set a pattern for coup after coup in the years ahead.

The President said the regime of Premier John M. Chang, one of his oldest political foes, was corrupt and needed throwing out, that the rebels had a good platform and that he might support them.

He conceded it would be better to use legislative means. When they left, the Americans thought they might have talked him out of backing the rebels, but he did.

Magruder and Green also conferred during this period with the deposed Premier Chang—by telephone. The premier went into hiding when the generals first struck. The Americans did not know where he was, but they knew how to contact him.

They tried to persuade Premier Chang to come out in the open, take a strong stand for lawful government and rally the uncommitted generals to his cause. Chang never did.

When the coup first began the rebels, hoping to gain support, spread the word that the United States backed the revolt.

This was one reason that Green and Magruder a few hours later made their now controversial statements that the United States supported the elected government and that Korean generals should reverse the coup.

These statements were not cleared at the time with Washington. But they did follow the policy decision made in Washington earlier for such a situation.

It is not true, as has been reported, that Washington was unhappy with the Magruder-Green statements.

Realty Company Finds Integrated Operation Wins

NEW YORK, May 18 (UPI)—Too many cooks may spoil the broth, but Transcontinental Investing Corp. has shown no adverse effects from such a set-up.

The company was organized last October when three young and aggressive real estate investors decided to join hands.

President Robert K. Lifton, Ira J. Hechler and Howard L. Weingrow saw many opportunities available to a company engaged primarily in the investment in and integrated ownership, operation and management of office buildings, apartment developments, hotels, motels, and other income producing real estate.

Each of the three executives is equally versed in all phases of the company's activities, giving a management depth that is particularly rare in the highly individualistic real estate investment field.

The company places emphasis on continuing operations, and will sell properties when they no longer provide tax shelter or when large capital gains can be realized.

Its present properties are located in 15 cities and include two office buildings, three apartment complexes, five hotels and 10 motels.

The company expects to focus its activities in four primary areas: the continued acquisition and ownership of sound income-producing office buildings, apartment houses and industrial properties; creation of profit through the purchase, refinancing and sale of income properties; organization and sponsorship of promising syndication situations; and expansion in the hotel field.

It's this last area that represents a particularly promising growth field for the company, Lifton told United Press International.

The firm's wholly-owned Dinkler Hotel Corp. was the result of the integration of Transcontinental's hotel and motel properties with the Dinkler hotel-motel chain. Transcontinental received the services of the Dinkler organization which has been in existence for more than 50 years and is noted for its outstanding managerial ability.

He noted that the Dinkler reputation already has permitted the company to undertake management of hotel properties owned by others on a "lucrative" basis.

Meanwhile, the company soon is expected to announce some major transactions that will make it a major hotel operator.

The very nature of the company's business and geographical locations of its present properties really keep Lifton, Hechler and Weingrow on the move. At least one of the three is traveling around the country every week.

"Just a publicity stunt. No sensible woman would ever fall for that!"

Steve McQueen Plans Switch To Film Roles

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Steve McQueen is the smartest TV cowboy of them all. He jumped off his horse opera before it was shot from under him.

Starring in "Wanted, Dead or Alive," Steve spent his spare time making three movies.

This hobby proved so remunerative he bowed out of the series saying, "no more television for me."

It's not that mumbling McQueen is ungrateful. He'd still be another starving New York actor if it hadn't been for his siege in the saddle as Josh Randall, a sort of western beatnik.

"I figure I learned as much as I could in the series," Steve said over a lunch of steak and jellied toast.

"Now I'm going to concentrate on movies. In pictures you're able to work with top people and take your time to perfect your role. They rush you to death in television.

"We had four or five writers on the series, and some of them did not always capture the character of Josh Randall. I used to rewrite my lines to suit myself. That's no way to make a TV show.

"In pictures there's just one writer who knows exactly what his characters are supposed to do and say. So I stick to the script."

McQueen, an off-beat individual, is at a loss to explain his successful graduation from the small screen to movies. Many another TV star has bombed attempting to make the transition.

Few, indeed, are those who have made the grade.

"Luck," McQueen said.

Bit parts: TV comedian Johathan Winters has signed for his first motion picture, but won't be seen on screen. He will provide the voices for the feature length cartoon, "Alakazam the Great... rumor has it Raymond Burr will quit the "Perry Mason" television series at the end of this season... Darren McGavin, whose "Riverboat" series sank without a trace last season, will appear in a guest role on "Route 66" unless a flash flood also wipes out that series.

Joe Feeney Not Fazed By Being Unknown Singer

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Joe Feeney, the tenor on Lawrence Welk's ABC-TV show, figures he's the only unknown singer in the country with an audience of 30 million people every week.

The small, dark-haired, amiable Feeney has been singing with Welk for four years — but he's never achieved the fame of "Champagne Lady" Alice Lon, who quit the band because she allegedly was upbraided for showing "too much knee."

"Sure, I've got plenty of fan mail, but after all it's Mr. Welk's show, and I think any of his musicians and singers who aren't grateful to him are nuts," said Feeney, 29, a native of Grand Island, Neb.

"After all," he added, "he's the name — and, frankly speaking, who would any of us be without him? Maybe that sounds like corny loyalty, but I believe in loyalty—and as long as the show's around, I hope to be with it. When you have an opportunity to sing for 30 million people every week, you have to be out of your mind to quit — even if you know most people think, 'Who's Joe Feeney?'"

Feeney, who has three sons and a daughter ranging in age from 7 down to 1, won his singing spot with Welk only half a year after leaving the University of Nebraska.

"I was compelled to leave the university because of economic reasons when my second child was born," he said, "and I was a salesman of children's encyclopedias when I saw Mr. Welk's talent show in a customer's home. I decided that I could make the grade."

Feeney had sung in church, at St. Mary's Cathedral High School in Grand Island and had appeared on the Horace Heidt and Arlene Francis shows — so he went to an Omaha radio station and made a tape recording.

Lyle DeMoss, manager of the station, forwarded the tape to Welk, and Feeney soon was summoned to Hollywood by the band leader. One week later, he was on the show, and he's never been off.

"I'll never be able to repay Mr. Welk," he said. "And personally, he's a good influence to be near. Of course he's quite religious and moral. The only things that get him riled are the things that would upset anybody — drinking on the job, lateness, sloppiness in dress."

Welk is known for his orders that female performers avoid low-cut dresses and excess movements that appear suggestive.

Feeney is taking great care to cultivate the break that Welk gave him. He has, for instance, a private secretary who helps him answer all fan mail personally.

Trains Subject Of 'White Paper' Show On May 23

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Trains cross the continent in a swirl of dust and thunder, the leaves fly down the tracks behind them; the great trains cleave through gulch and gully, they rumble with spoked thunder on the bridges over the brown wash of mighty rivers, they toil through hills, they skirt the rough ground stubble of shorn fields, they whip past empty stations in the little towns and their great stride pounds its even pulse across America."

Chet Huntley speaking. Speaking the words of Thomas Wolfe, that is. The same Wolfe who evoked the mighty names of the railroad lines and the names of sleeping cars—and saw the "demon hawk eyes" of the engineers on the rails. Huntley could, but probably won't, get closer to the meat of his program on railroads and their miseries with E. B. White's verse

"Commuter — One who spends his life
In riding to and from his wife;
A man who shaves and takes a train
And then rides back to shave again."

Or the Plaint of Phyllis McGinley (who has just won, at very long last, the Pulitzer poetry prize) about the plight of the commuter at parties:

"... Just when the height is at its fun
And the yodelers grow vocal,
I am the one who needs must run
To catch the Stamford local . . ."

"Everybody is a railroad buff," said producer Al Wasserman in an interview about this upcoming season-finale of the "NBC White Paper" series. "We were talking with Chet Huntley, our narrator, and found out his father was a railroad telegrapher in Cardwell, Mont. Chet spent his boyhood along the tracks and claims he was born in a depot—his family lived upstairs in the same building."

Maria Schell (center) suspects something more than a casual acquaintance between her husband, Glenn Ford, and Ane Baxter, when the latter visits him on a business errand. The scene is from "Cimarron," spectacular film version of Edna Ferber's novel of the great land rush of 1889 and the opening of the Oklahoma Territory. The picture was filmed in CinemaScope and color, partly on vast locations in Arizona, with a cast of 368 speaking roles. The attraction will open Thursday at the Capri theatre for a seven day engagement.

Top Family Attractions Soon To Show At Pampa Theaters

A steady diet of family pictures will be released this summer by the Motion Picuure Industry, it was announced yesterday by Paul West, manager of the Pampa theaters.

West said fascinating family comedies, dramas, spectaculars and historical films are coming in the next few months and many will be shown in Pampa immediately after their national release. "Hollywood is putting more emphasis on family entertainment than ever before, "West continued, "since the recent success of such hits as "Swiss Family Robinson', 'Cinderfella' and '101 Dalmations' proved that today's audience will support family attractions."

Among the coming features recommended by West for family viewing were: "Misty," 'The Ladies Man', 'Dondi', 'The Parent Trap', 'Tammy Tell Me True', Magic Boy', and 'Pepe'.

Also 'Snow White and the 3 Stooges', 'Nikki', 'Morgan The Pirate', 'Gidget Goes Hawaiian', 'Gidget', 'The Trapp Family' and 'Ole Rex'.

Coming double features are 'Friendly Persuasion' and 'Wichita', and the 'Fabulous World of Jules Verne' with 'Bimbo The Great'.

"These are pictures that I sincerely believe will measure up to all the requirements necessary for family attendance," West said. "I personally am proud and feel it is a special privilege to be able to bring this kind of entertainment to Pampa."

Robert G. LeTourneau, Longview, Tex., industrialist who was named lay churchman of the year.

Mr. and Mrs. James McCrorry Willson of Floydada, Tex., who won a special freedom leadership award from the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge, Pa., for their "contribution toward public understanding of the American way of life and preservation of our free political and economic system under the constitution and bill of rights."

Carroll Baker Buying Back Movie Contract

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Actress Carroll Baker is paying the final installment on a $250,000 purchase of her old movie contract with studio boss Jack Warner.

She bought it from the film mogul on a sort of time credit plan.

The blonde Miss Baker worked for the Burbank moviemaker until about a year ago when she quit. After a series of negotiations it was decided that the pact, which had two more years to run, would go by the boards for one quarter of a million dollars.

Ever since then, Warners has been getting a percentage of Miss Baker's salary.

"I gave them a down payment when I left the studio," said the pretty, Blonde Carroll. "In one picture, I gave them half of my salary, on another it was a round sum."

Now, Carroll is making the final payment of $50,000 which she'll earn in "How the West Was Won," a picture which will co-star some of the biggest names in Hollywood, Jimmy Stewart, John Wayne, Walter Brennan and Debbie Reynolds.

"I gave Warners most of my salary from the picture," said Miss Baker who gets paid more than $50,000 per film. "Everybody in this picture is working for less salary than usual because it's for a hospital charity."

Carroll said she wanted to leave Warners because the scripts offered her weren't satisfactory.

"They wanted me to do Rachael Cade and Claudelle Inglish," she explained. "I didn't want to do those pictures, so I decided to buy my way out.

"I had made only three films in four years at the studio and there were always battles. I got tired of fighting and think they probably did too. I guess they were glad to see me go."

Carroll has no regrets over paying the cash.

"It was an investment in the future," she explained, adding that she will now be able to choose pictures which will help her career.

If nothing else, the experience will help Miss Baker's credit rating should she decide to buy a new stove or something.

HONEYMOON HOUSE

LONDON (UPI) — The Duke of Kent will honeymoon in the same Scottish house used by his cousin, Queen Elizabeth, on her wedding trip with Prince Philip.

The duke, who will marry Katharine Worsley next month, has been given the home of Queen Mother Elizabeth, Birkhall, for the honeymoon. It is in a secluded spot on the royal estate at Balmoral.

Negro Students Not Bothered Too Much In Little Rock Now

Editors Note: Seven years ago a Supreme Court decision outlawed racial segregation in the public schools, touching off turmoil in the South. Al Kuettner of UPI's Atlanta bureau has covered the progress of desegregation since that time. He received the Distinguished Service Award of Sigma Delta Chi for a 1956 series of stories based on a 3,600 mile trip through Southern states. In the following dispatch he takes a seven-year look at the entire South.

By AL KUETTNER

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI)—At 3:30 the last bell rang: 1,650 boys and girls spilled through the doors of Central High School, down the much-photographed steps, across the broad lawns to head home in the sunshine.

Seven of them were Negroes.

"They are not bothered much any more," said Jess Matthews, the high school principal.

It is seven years since the Supreme Court of the United States ruled unanimously, on May 17, 1954, that "in the field of public education there is no place for separate but equal."

It is a little over three years and eight months since the troubles of Little Rock spread around the world the bitter story of racial violence at the schoolhouse.

In 1954, schools were segregated by law in 17 states and the District of Columbia. Today, Negro and white children sit in the same classrooms in about one out of every four school districts in the South.

That figure is heavily weighted, however, by school districts in Washington and the border states. Three states—Alabama, Mississippi and South Carolina — remain complete holdouts. In a fourth, Georgia, the law has been changed, but desegregation will not become a fact until fall.

"It will take 99 more years to achieve complete desegregation if the present pattern is followed," the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., Negro integration leader, said recently.

At Clinton, Tenn., Mrs. Margaret Anderson, who has taught for eight years in the high school to which Negroes were admitted five years ago, said: "We're getting closer than ever. But integration must come from within the individual . . . grows through the years."

The transition has been slow and painful, not only for the South but for a number of Northern cities forced suddenly to face the fact of segregated schools grown up outside their laws.

The memory of violence does not fade quickly. But it is true as well that in most Southern communities where the chips have been down, some form of desegregation has been accepted—and it has worked.

Washington, D. C., schools were entirely segregated at the time of the court decision. The move to total desegregation began within two weeks. Today, Superintendent Carl F. Hansen calls it "a miracle of social adjustment."

In Louisville, Ky., where schools began desegregation in 1956, a Negro has recently been named chairman of the board of education. A three-year study showed a significant strengthening of the academic standing of Negroes and evidence of a "slight gain" among white pupils.

Under a "freedom of choice" program in Virginia, Prince Edward County chose to close public schools. The cost of a private school system for white pupils is paid in large measure through state tuition grants, a plan which the Negro community refused. The Justice Department has recently moved in the federal courts to order re-opening of the public schools and forbid use of public funds for private schooling.

The Clinton, Tenn., high school was virtually destroyed by bombing two years after the first Negroes entered it, under National Guard protection. Ten Negroes and several hundred white children now attend classes in a new $800,000 school.

In Louisiana, violence and bitterness followed admission of a few Negro children to two elementary schools last November. One school is still entirely boycotted by white pupils; three Negro girls are its only students. The other has one Negro girl in the first grade and 15 white students in classes from kindergarten through sixth grade.

Areas of Chicago, Detroit and New York faced similar problems as thousands of Negro "immigrants" moved in from the South and it became apparent that residential patterns had created almost entirely segregated schools.

In New Rochelle, second largest city in New York's suburban Westchester County, Negroes took to Federal Court a charge that one school district had been gerrymandered to preserve an elementary school almost entirely Negro. The court has ordered it be desegregated before the fall school term.

Nowhere did the troubles approach those of Little Rock.

It would have seemed a most unlikely place for racial violence. Several other Arkansas cities already had integrated schools. Gov. Orval Faubus' son attended a non-segregated college in the state. Only a small group held extrme racial feelings and there had been no undue excitement when the school board decided to go along with court instructions to admit Negroes to Central High School.

This peaceful picture changed almost overnight in September, 1957. Faubus said he had secret information that there would be trouble when the nine selected Negro students arrived to enroll. He called out the National Guard "to main ain or restore the peace and good order of this community."

State troops prevented the Negroes from entering the school on Sept. 4. After days of legal battle, the governor was enjoined against further interference with desegregation and the guard was withdrawn.

On Sept. 23, the Negroes returned. Disorders outside the school grew so intense that school authorities sent them home under heavy guard.

That afternoon, President Eisen- however put the guardsmen on federal duty and sent paratroopers of the 101st Airborne Division to the school grounds.

The Negro pupils returned the next day.

The paratroopers remained until late in November. The federalized guard remained at the school until the close of the spring term, the day after Ernest Green, 16, received his diploma with 600 white classmates.

"I guess this was the most famous school in the world for a while, but it was the wrong kind of fame," Matthews said.

The thing people don't realize is that even at the worst time, when the troops were all over the place, we were still teaching classes.

"There was a lot of shoving and some fighting in the halls, but the teachers never once lost control of their classes."

In September, 1958, Central High School didn't open its doors. All four of Little Rock's high schools were closed by order of the governor. They didn't open again until August, 1959, by federal court order.

There has been no serious trouble since, and student morale is high, Matthews said. "When our school was closed for a year, pupils and parents realized just how much it meant to have it open," he said.

What of the man who gave the orders that kept the Negroes out of Central High in 1957?

Orval E. Faubus is in his fourth term as governor. The walls of his private office are covered with cartoons from dozens of newspapers about the racial troubles of Little Rock.

Faubus bears little semblance to those cartooned images when he closes the door of that private office, slumps into the leather swivel chair puts his feet on the desk and talks out of his heart.

"I've been built up as a person of controversy," he said rather sady. "Actually, I'm not a man who seeks controversy. I have tried to stand for princpiles and that includes the 1957 troubles.

"History hwill have to judge whether Little Rock was a symbol of bigotry or liberty."

Faubus seems a bit perplexed over the chain of events that exploded in Little Rock.

"We have been one of the most progressive Southern states in desegregation," he reflctd. "I was not personally against integration. As governor, I had approved of desegregation at several other places in the state.

"I have never desired to hold back Negroes. I would not stand in the way of a single Negro in Arkansas achieving any success—that means getting where I am or higher."

Flags And Fire Hazards Worry Capitol Worker

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Members of the House Appropriations subcomittee may be having dreams about a harried man frantically raising and lowering flags over a firetrap Capitol while congressmen race about in cut-rate limousines.

The appropriations committee is a receptacle for all manner of laments. Among the unhappiest of all it has heard is that of Capitol architect J. George Stewart.

Stewart is getting sick and tired of running flags up and down a flagpole like a maniac, thousands of them a day. It might not be so bad if he wasn't afraid the whole place might burn down around his ears while he's at it.

The business about the flag came about because of a congressional venture into capitalism. The pitch is that these flags architect Stewart is working his fingers to the bone on can be had for a price.

The price is $6.25 for a big one and $2.91 for a little one, plus a letter to your congressman saying you want one for your very own, a flag that has flown over the Capitol.

The congressman will buy the flag from the House stationery store, and then dump it on Stewart. Stewart has it sent up to the Capitol roof, where a gasping policeman is running them up and down the flagpole like crazy.

On July 4, 1960, always a big day in the flag business, Stewart reports that his men ran 5,131 flags into the breeze, and his secretarial staff got writer's cramp certifying that each flag had indeed flown over the Capitol. In all of 1960, 16,013 flags got the business.

What Stewart wanted from the committee, according to testimony published this week was $4,034 a year for another clerk to help with the flags.

That's not all he wants. He's afraid the Capitol is going to burn down.

"I don't want to be an alarmist," said Stewart in a placatory tone, "but I am very much concerned, and have been for years."

He said the 100-year-old wooden floors and doors are dried and dangerous, and every legislative office is rife with combustibles.

What Stewart wanted was $3,500 for a dust collector for the basement carpentry shop, which would help avoid the threat of explosion.

He got more than he bargained for. He got told to go work up a report on how to keep the place from being burned down.

New Sugar Law Sought By U.S. Farmers Group

WASHINGTON (UPI)— The American Farm Bureau federation today called for passage of permanent legislation this year that would guarantee U. S. farmers a greater share of the domestic sugar market.

Spokesmen for the organization said a new law should also include provisions for expanding or starting new sugar beet production in North Dakota, Minnesota, Washington, Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California.

They testified before the House Agriculture Committee as it ended two days of hearings on long-range sugar legislation to become effective June, 1962. Last March Congress extended until then the sugar law under which foreign producers supply 45 per cent of the American market.

Specifically, the Farm Bureau asked that 75 per cent of the consumption growth of sugar in the United States be reserved for domestic producers. They estimated this would amount to 518,000 tons a year and recommended beets supply 511,000 tons and cane 207,000.

Present consumption is estimated at about 10 million tons annually.

Rep. W. R. Poage, D-Tex., a ranking member of the committee, said he was hopeful a permanent sugar bill could be passed this year.

He said at the conclusion of the hearings that he favored a specific tonnage be reserved for Cuba when friendly relations with that country are restored.

Poage added that he was opposed to an unlimited reservation. He said until Cuba's quotas were fixed in a long range law no definite quotas could be assigned to any new domestic areas.

Franklin Pierce was president of the United States when the Republican party was organized on Feb 28, 1854.

Blakley, Braniff Foundation Sell Airline Interests

DALLAS (UPI)— Interim U.S. Sen. William Blakley and the Braniff Foundation have sold their interest in Braniff International Airways to four top executives of Texas Instruments for $13.2 million, it was disclosed yesterday.

The 1,006,000 shares involved were held by what was known as the Blakley-Braniff Foundation. Blakley is running for a full term as U.S. senator, but politics was said not to be involved.

The four executives in Texas Instruments who bought the stock are J. Erik Jonsson, Eugene McDermott, Cecil Green and P. E. Haggerty. Texas Instruments was not involved in the transaction.

Harlingen Democrats Turn To Republicans

HOUSTON (UPI)— State Republican chairman Tad Smith of El Paso announced today that 150 Democrats in the Harlingen area today bolted their party and moved "wholesale" into the Republican party "on a permanent basis."

Smith said the party was "elated" to learn of the action.

He said the group included "many present and former officials of the county Democratic organization and Democratic office holders."

They bolted the Democratic party to join the Republican party of Cameron County and Texas, he said. Spokesmen for the group were identified as M. W. Russell, attorney and city commissioner, and Frank N. Boggus, member of the school board in Harlingen.

In taking the action, Smith said each person present signed the following statement:

"We intend to participate actively in the Republican party because we feel that as conservative Democrats our support of the Democratic party is taken for granted and consequently our conservative philosophy is completely ignored in the formulation of party policies and the selection of candidates.

"We believe that the only way sure a choice of philosophy for the people is through active support of the Republican party. It is our plan to function as members of the Republican party, holding local Republican primaries, and locating candidates to run as Republicans for all local and state offices so that Texas and the Valley will have a two-party state."

'Greens' Bop Whites, 74-57

Culley's Cagers Finish Spring Training Grind

"If Randy Matson is sound and our defense improves. . . we should have a winning ball club this season."

So spoke Terry Culley, Pampa High School basketball coach, on his team's chances in the 1961 cage season.

Although predictions are still a wee bit premature at this stage of the game, the Harvesters roundball mentor was still visibly impressed with the way his squad responded Thursday night in the final intra-squad game of the spring basketball workouts. The "Greens", taking advantage of the "Whites" cold third quarter, won the rubber game of their Spring workouts, 74-57. "I thought both squads looked good," Culley observed, "especially on outside and foul shooting."

"Of course," he continued, "there's still some rough edges which will have to be ironed out."

Culley noted one glaring mistake: a weakness on defense. "You can pretty well contribute this to inexperience," he said, "but there's still a lot of work to be accomplished before we can have a well-rounded club."

Individually, both clubs produced some standout action with the Whites Gordon Balch probably the game's star. Balch, 6-0, canned five out of seven from the field and six of seven from the charity line. In addition, he played an outstanding game off the boards.

Wayne Dries (Greens) was the team's top scorer (21) with the other half of the Balch combo (Lloyd) chipping in 11 and Keith Swanson adding 10.

Swanson, who entered the game late in the fourth quarter, tallied all of his points on free throws.

"His stalling tactics had the Whites all over him," said Culley, highly elated with the reserves demons ration.

Gary Sikes, a 6-1 prospect up from Pampa Junior High, also came in for his share of praise.

"He should help us next year," said Culley of the youngster, who performed notably with 10 points" He needs experience but he's a comer."

Shooting wise, the game was fairly even with the "Greens" hitting 18 of 55 from the floor and 38 of 49 attempts from the foul line. The latter is where they won the game as the Whites managed to bag just 17 of 24 and committed 25 fouls as compared to 17 for the victorius "Greens." "Chalk it up to inexperience," Culley said. "We really need to tighten up our defense."

On the boards, both clubs performed notably with the "Greens" grabbing 40 rebounds and the "Whites" 42. "I need one more big man though," moaned Culley. "Man, if Matson isn't ready to go we'll be in sad shape." Matson, all six feet, five inches of him, will be the difference between a mediocre and a winning team this fall. "Without him, we'll have to change our whole offensive style." Culley reveals. He continued: "We're planning on having a double pivot with Matson as our wheel, but if he's out we'll probably change to a racehorse game. And we might not have the horses."

CARRY BACK
. . . Another driving finish

Carry Back Wins Again In Preakness Saturday

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI) — Carry Back cut loose with another tremendous stretch run at Pimlico Saturday to win the $178,700 Preakness Stakes with a breath taking charge that carried him to a three-quarter length victory in the second of the triple crown classics.

Once again the game little colt seemed to be hopelessly beaten but he got the job done in the closing yards of the mile and three-sixteenths race, just as he did at Churchill Downs two weeks ago in the Kentucky Derby.

This time it was Leonard P. Sasso's Globemaster out in front of him and straining toward the finish line with every ounce of strength he had left after setting the pace from the start.

But there was no denying Carry Back who got pinched between horses as the field of nine 3-year olds was sent on its way.

Carry Back started to move up from the pack as he left the back stretch. Jockey Johnny Sellers took him to the outside and circled around five horses in the drive through the stretch.

The crowd of 32,211 roared in disappointment for it didn't look as though Carry Back had a chance. But the Florida-bred pride and joy of Mrs. Katherine Price never is beaten until the race is over. The tenor of the fans changed as Carry Back came on and on. Almost unbelievably he reached the front with only yards to go.

Globemaster hung on gamely and was four lengths ahead of Fred W. Hooper's Crozier at the finish with Mrs. Ethel D. Jacob's Dr. Miller fourth.

This was the fourth stake race worth $100,000 or more Carry Back has won this year and he

'Crying Towel' Golf Tourney Is Scheduled

BRECKENRIDGE (UPI) — The first annual Breckenridge "Crying Towel" golf tournament for high school and college coaches is scheduled next Saturday and originator Zack Henderson says the response is mushrooming.

Henderson, head coach of the perennial schoolboy football powers, the Breckenridge Buckaroos, started the idea as a fairly small get-together for some of the coaches in the immediate area.

But, word spread and entries are now in from as far away as the University of Texas at Austin.

Henderson, who first sent invitations to coaches within a 250 mile radius of Breckenridge, now has extended a blanket invitation to all coaches in Texas.

"This tournament is not intended, however," Henderson says, "for the exceptionally good 'trophy-hunter' type golfer, but as a fun and fellowship get-together for coaches."

The tournament will be played at the Breckenridge Golf and Women's Club, 2½ miles west of the city on U.S. 180.

Davis Vaults 15-10¼ For World Mark

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — George Davies of Oklahoma State cleared 15 feet 10¼ inches Saturday to break Don Bragg's world pole vault record.

Davis barely ticked the bar with his chest as he descended from his record-smashing vault during the Big Eight Conference track championships at Folsom field at the University of Colorado. He cleared the bar on his third try to beat Bragg's mark of 15-9¼.

Earlier, Davies had taken the Big Eight crown from Oklahoma's defending champion, J. D. Martin, with a leap of 15 feet. He then had the bar set at 15-4, which he cleared with one vault to break Martin's conference record.

Davis, a 6-3, 190 pound sophomore from Phoenix, Ariz., then went for 15 feet, 10 inches, but precise measurements revealed the height was actually his record-smashing 15-10¼. On the first try, Davies, whose best effort previously was a winning 15-6 at the Drake relays this year, knocked the bar off with his knee. The second time he hit it with his chest and it tumbled to the pit.

But on the third try, the Oklahoma State vaulter did it. The pole wavered slightly as his chest brushed it. But it didn't fall.

Bragg's record, set at Stanford, Calif., last July 2 during the U.S. Olympic trials, did fall. Big Eight officials said they carefully measured the height to verify Davies' feat and expected his mark to be affirmed.

8 Tech Cagers Win Numerals

LUBBOCK — Eight Texas Tech freshman basketballers won numerals for their play during the past season, according to Gene Gibson, freshman coach and varsity assistant.

Included are Guy Davis of Levelland, Mike Farley of Lubbock, Royal Furgeson of Lubbock, Johnny Little of Rankin, Roy Gibson of Lubbock, Sammy Smith of Borger, Mike Gooden of Lubbock, and Sid Wall of Dallas.

Exes Defeat Futures, 22-14

RECEIVES INSTRUCTIONS — Corky Godfrey, (left foreground) is being given some last minute instructions by Pampa's head football coach Babe Curfman prior to his entering the game late in the fourth quarter of the Exes-Futures spring training finale Friday night at Harvester Stadium. Despite a fine game by Godfrey, senior end, the Futures bowed to the Exes 22-14 in a hard-fought struggle.

Robinson, Herbert Sparkle In Loss

By JIM EASTERWOOD
Daily News Sports Editor

Husky Duke Garren, Pampa's all-District center, last year, was tired but happy.

"Gee I'm sore," moaned Garren. Those 'Futures" really hit."

Garren, along with the rest of the Exes, had just whipped next year's Pampa football team, 22 to 14 Friday night at Harvesters stadium to conclude this year's spring training.

A sparse but exuberant throng of 500 fans sat in "coolish" temperatures to see the Exes jump off to a quick 14-0 halftime margin and then bow their backs in the last half to hold off an aroused "Futures eleven.

The Exes, who had been working out on their own since spring training started, were just too experienced and fired up for their younger mates. "We were more relaxed," Garren said, "but take it from me. — "Their backs really rocked us — especially Robbie (Robinson) and Kenny (Herbert)."

Robison, a 160 pound speedster, tallied both of the Futures touchdowns on short-yardage smashes, with Herbert, the much-heralded Junior High product, leading the "Futures in ground gaining with 47 yards in five carries. His brilliant 30 yard scamper late in the fourth quarter to the 2-yard line set up the "Futures" second and last touchdown. "Gee, he went by me on the ground like greased, lightning," said the amazed Garren, who had almost succeeded in stopping the play before it got underway.

Statistic wise, the game belonged to the Exes, as they outrushed their opponents 218 to 137 and also managed a small margin in the air, 53 to 37.

Butch Crossland, touted by Coach Babe Curfman as one of the finest quarterbacks in the district, connected on only two of five aerials as Garren, Charley Geise, and linebacker Billy Cooper kept the 160 pound signal caller bottled up most of the night.

The Exes, hardly resembling the nucleus of the team who lost 18 games last season, took command of the game from the outset as they quickly moved 57 yards in seven plays to take a 6-0 lead. Jimmy Storms blasted right guard for the final two yards. "We were using only five plays the whole night," Garren said. "No fancy stuff — just grind 'em out."

A fumble recovery by the Exes on the Futures 48 set up their second tally late in the second period. With linebusting fullback Steve Dobbins softening the middle and halfbacks Larry Taylor and Cooper probing the tackles and ends, Exes moved to the promised land in nine plays with the payoff coming on a pass from Roy Stephens to halfback Taylor.

The second half was entirely a different game and the final score might have read different had not ball-hawking Geise wrapped his big paws around a Crossland fumble on the Exes eight yard line late in the third period. After whittling the Exes margin to 14-8, the Futures were threatening to score again when the inopportune bobble occurred.

Minutes later, Exes quarterback Roy Don Stephens, who guided his team with cool deception, put the game out of reach as he swivelhipped his way 83 yards on a pass-option play.

After this, the slightly weary Exes were content to let the Futures run out the clock with their last touchdown march, which featured the running of Robison and Herbert, who made his varsity debut a spectacular one.

Game Notes:

Borger head coach Gene Mayfield and assistant Mark Clapp and Ken Hensley were spotted in the Harvesters press box. "No, we're not scouting," they chimed" . . just visiting." All declined comment on the "Futures" showing but had a word of praise for Herbert. "He's a horse," one said. 'It might have been different if he'd been in for the entire game."

CATCHING ON

Hot Springs Lead Taken By Sanders

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (UPI) — Doug Sanders, despite a barking dog and a singing spectator, fired a three-under-par 69 for a 205 Satuday to move two strokes ahead of rookies Tommy Aaron and Jerry Steelsmith in the third round of the $20,000 Hot Springs Open.

Sanders, of Cedartown, Va., was upset by a pup that barked as he began to putt on No. 6 and by a spectator he said was singing as he chipped on No. 18.

He missed an 18-inch putt on the sixth but birdied the 18th despite the songster. The chip on 18 was short, but he holed an 8-foot putt.

The 27-year-old winner of last week's Colonial National Invitation is on his hottest streak since turning pro four years ago. The third-leading money winner has carded two 68s and a 69 here.

Mason Rudoph, tied with Sanders at the halfway mark with 136, was even par 72 to fall back in a fourth-place tie at 208. He made two birdies on the front nine to keep pace with Sanders but had two bogeys coming in to drop back.

On The Links With Pampa's Fairer Sex

The Pampa Women's Golf Association will host the Panhandle Golf Association in a tournament at the Pampa Country Club, June 15, announced Mrs. Donna Frazier, secretary.

Mrs. Frazier reveals there will be a nine-hole flight available for those who are unable to go 18-holes." "However," she stressed, "only members of the WGA will be allowed to play until the Panhandle golfers have teed off. All Pampa WGA members are urged to help with the tournament, she says, because more than 100 women golfers are expected for the tourney.

Pampa's WGA membership has reached the 70 mark, announced Mrs. Mary Prichard, president, at a luncheon held May 11. Mrs. Prichard said that the WGA yearbook's are now ready for distribution and can be obtained from Margaret Neely, 1706 Furr St.

Mrs. Francis Hofsess, 1108 Charles, turned in low score in a WGA meet May 11 at the Pampa Country Club. Winning second place honors was Billye Dunham with Pauline Brown earning the consolation. Winning player received a prize of golf balls.

In a scotch foursome tourney held May 18 at the PCC, Mrs. Joyce McIntire and Dana Jones took home the winning prize of golf balls, along with Juanita Tinsly and Betty Garren.

Mgrs. Meet At Perryton

PERRYTON (Spl) — The team coaches and managers of the Girl's Softball League and the Midget and Older Boy's Baseball Leagues of the Young Men's Christian Association met Tuesday, May 16, at 7:30 p.m. in the Chamber of Commerce conference room.

At this time, Jack Maxey, General Secretary of the YMCA, discussed with those in attendance the type of equipment issued by the YMCA, rules, regulations and answered questions conerning this summers baseball program. This year all games will be played in the Jaycee's ballparks which will be operated by the YMCA.

At this time, each team has a sufficient number of players, so any boy who wishes to sign up as a late entry will be placed on a reserve team. Because of a lack of 12, 13 and 14 year old boys and a surplus of 9, 10 and 11 year old boys, the coaches and managers agreed to place the 11 year old boys in the Older boy's league.

Managers are now checking equipment out for their respective teams at the YMCA office.

Members of each team were then chosen at random from the application blanks which were passed out at school and later returned to the YMCA office.

Baseball Roundup

Jensen's Hit Nips Tigers

BOSTON (UPI)—An infield hit and a throwing error set the stage for Jackie Jensen's game winning single in the 10th inning Saturday as the Boston Red Sox defeated the league-leading Detroit Tigers, 4-3.

The win gave the Sox a two-game sweep of the weather-abbreviated series with Detroit. Reliefer Dave Hillman was credited with the vitcory while Hank Aguirre was the loser.

Rip Repulski, batting for Hillman, led off the 10th with a dribble single down the first base line. Chuck Schilling then laid down a bunt but a wild throw by Aguirre sent pinch-runner Tom Brewer to second. Brewer scored minutes later on Jackie Jensen's single to short left center.

Indians Take 2nd Straight From Yanks

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Catcher Johnny Romano doubled home Vic Power from second base in the eighth inning Saturday to give the Cleveland Indians a sweep of their two-game series with the New York Yankees, 4-3.

Romano's hit gave rookie reliever Frank Funk his fourth victory against two defeats. Funk came to the relief of starter Gary Bell when the Yankees scored two runs to tie the score at 3-3 in the top of the eighth.

The defeat was the fourth straight for the Yankees and their ninth in the last 12 games.

Cubs Blank Cards, 1-0

CHICAGO (UPI)—Ed Bouchee belted the first pitch of the ninth inning for a home run Saturday to shatter a scoreless pitching duel between Dick Ellsworth and Larry Jackson and give the Chicago Cubs a 1-0 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Dodgers Eke By Giants

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Roger Craig defeated the league-leading San Francisco Giants for the eighth straight time Saturday by pitching the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 4-3 victory and back into second place while his mates clubbed lefty Mike McCormick for three home runs.

The husky right hander limited the Giants to five hits and their margin in the National League race was cut to one game.

Bases empty homers in consecutive innings by Willie Davis, Frank Howard and Jim Gilliam paced an 11-hit attack that helped Craig achieve his third win of the year against two losses. He has not suffered a defeat at the hands of the Giants since they belonged to New York and beat him in the Polo Grounds, 5-1, on Aug. 17, 1955.

Braves Rap Reds, 9-5

CINCINNATI (UPI)—The Milwaukee Braves pounded out 12 hits, including a three-run double by Joe Adcock and a two-run homer by Eddie Mathews, to beat the Cincinnati Reds, 9-5 Saturday.

Sens Blank K-C

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) Harmon Killebrew's first inning home run and Camilo Pascual's steady five-hit pitching Saturday gave Minnesota a 2-0 victory over Kansas City.

National Bowling League To Hold Premier Match

FORT WORTH (UPI)—The National Bowling League's premier match between the Fort Worth Panthers and Dallas Broncos Monday night will be accompanied by a lot of hoopla, including Dixieland band music and cheer leaders for each team.

The match, being taped for national television by the ABC—TV network, is expected to be a sell-out standing room-only affair.

One of the highlights of the match, actually an exhibition between two of the teams which will start the inaugural season of the league in October, will be the public unveiling of a new $60,000 electronic scoreboard, which figures the somewhat complicated scoring system to be used in the league.

The match is set for 8:30 p.m. at Meadowbrook Lanes.

Snead Nears Crown

Sam Leads Own Field By Four

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (UPI)—Sam Snead moved to the threshhold of another golf championship Saturday.

The old pro from White Sulphur Springs, playing some of the best golf of his distinguished career, shot a three-under-par 67 to maintain his pace-maker role after 54 holes in the Sam Snead Festival tournament. It was his third straight par-breaking performance.

His rounds of 65-64-67 gave him a 196 total and all but wrapped up his sixth championship in this $10,000 tournament.

This put him four strokes ahead of Canada's Stan Leonard who added a 64 to his previous rounds of 73-63 for an even 200 strokes. Leonard had started the third round in third place, seven strokes behind Snead.

Masters champion Gary Player of South Africa—who started out the day in the runner-up spot six strokes back of Snead—fell another stroke behind.

He posted a 68 to go with his previous 68-67 for a 203 total, seven shots back of Snead.

Chick Harbert of Miami shot a 66 to go with his earlier 70-68 rounds for a 204 total that moved him ahead of U. S. Open champion Arnold Palmer.

Palmer, who started the round in fourth place behind Snead, Player and Leonard, had trouble with his putter and had to settle for a two-under-par 68 for a 205.

Snead had set his sights on a 65 Saturday, but he said he was not "too disappointed" with his day's work—until he heard that Leonard had outshot him for the second straight day. Playing the same course where he posted his fabulous 59 two years ago—the 6,312-yard Greenbrier —Snead fashioned four birdies and three-putted the par four 15th for his only bogey of the day.

LUBBOCK (UPI) — Texas Tech's basketball schedule for next season revealed today the Southwest Conference champion Red Raiders would make their first trip to California and would have Texas as co-host for the second annual Holiday Doubleheaders here.

Merchant Night Slated May 30 At Amarillo

AMARILLO (Spl) — Amarillo merchants will sponsor their "night" here at 7:45 p.m. Tuesday, May 30, in Potter County Stadium, announced General Manager Jon P. Ferraris.

Ferraris said the members of the downtown merchants association have on sale special Merchant Night tickets for $1 each —a saving to the fan of 25 cents for each ticket purchased.

"These special tickets will be on sale at the stores through closing time on May 29 and will not be on sale at the ballpark the night of the game," Ferraris said.

Texas Pair To Defend Indianapolis Trophy

Ken Rich and Paul Lacy, two young Dallas businessmen, will defend a unique trophy at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, scene of the Memorial Day 500 mile auto racing classic. The trophy is the Raybestos Safety in Speed owners of the winning car in the big race.

Rich and Lacy received the coveted award last year when Jim Rathmann Drove their Ken-Paul Special to victory. The Dallas sportsmen were assured of another crack at the trophy a few days ago when Rathmann, driving for them again this year, qualified their Simoniz Special for the race with a speed of 145,413 miles-per-hour.

The award was created last year by the Raybestos brake lining firm to honor racing car owners at Indianapolis for their role in developing safety and engineering features for competitive driving. These improvements are often translated into highway safety progress, a concern of Raybestos for almost six decades.

Ken Rich, 33, is a former racing driver himself who competed at tracks in California. He also owned and raced hydroplanes, but quit boat racing after a crash. Chicago-born, he is a member of the family that controls the Simoniz Company. He settled in Dallas in 1953 and is now an oilman. He lives with his wife and three children at 5500 Gaston Avenue in Dallas.

36-year-old Paul Lacy made his debut last year as a racing car owner at Indianapolis when he joined forces with Rich. A well-known figure in Dallas golfing circles, Lacy is also active in local civic affairs. He's a member of Lacy-Logan, Inc., a Dallas food brokerage firm. He and his wife and two children live at 4408 Windsor Parkway in Dallas.

SAFE AT HOME — Pittsburgh's Bill Mazeroski is safe at home on this play at the plate in the seventh inning of the Pirates' game with the San Francisco Giants in San Francisco. Batter Bill Virdon grounded one deep to shortstop Ed Bressoud who threw to catcher Tom Haller, too late to nip Mazeroski. Virdon was safe on a fielder's choice. Ump is Ken Burkhart. Giants beat the Pirates, 6-5, in a 12-inning game.

PGA Cracks Down

Leonard To Play In Memphis Open; Palmer, Player Silent

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (UPI)— Canada's Stan Leonard yielded Saturday to pressure from the Professional Golfers Association and decided to drop out of the Canada Cup international matches in San Juan.

However, two others involved in a touchy controversy over whether to buck the PGA and pass up the Memphis Open and play instead in Puerto Rico—pro golf's leading money winners Gary Player and Arnold Palmer—continued to maintain silence about their intentions.

They obviously hoped that difficulties could be resolved in order that they could represent the United States and South Africa respectively in the San Juan tournamen June 1-4 without being suspended by the PGA.

The PGA has threatened to impose a six-month suspension from playing in PGA sponsored tournament, plus a fine of $500, on Player, Palmer and Leonard if they fail to play at Memphis the same weekend.

The Memphis Open is a PGA-sponsored tournament and the contract obligates all three—principals, winners of tournaments over the past year— to play there, or nowhere.

Leonard had said earlier that he would play for Canada's two-man team in Puerto Rico but after the PGA said the penalty would be imposed, he relented.

"I cannot take the chance of being suspended. I must abide by the PGA rules and the decision of the Memphis sponsor who have refused to release me to go to San Juan. I still hope we can resolve the situation but at the moment I have no choice but to go along with the PGA," he said.

Palmer, who said he would go to San Juan before he got a terse warning from the PGA, said Saturday "I'm going to let nature take it's course" in the controversy. Player had said he would "do what Palmer does" and said he had made no decision yet.

Orioles Win

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI) —Hoyt Wilhelm came out of the bullpen Saturday for the 15th time this season to save a 4-3 victory for the Baltimore Orioles over the Washington Senators.

BATTERS VIEW — This is a closeup of how Warren Spahn looks to National League batters. The Milwaukee Braves star, winner of more games than any left-hander in National League history, recorded his second no hit, no-runs game with multiple of pitches.

Texas Tech Tracksters Rank High

LUBBOCK — Three Texas Tech track men account for four national rankings attained by the Red Raiders, according to the latest National Collegiate Athletic Bureau release.

Bob Swafford, Abilene junior, is listed twice. His clocking of 51.6 seconds in the 400-meter hurdles is the third best in the nation, and his 23.1 in the 220-yard low hurdles ties Baylor's David Bennett for tenth best.

Charlie Draper, Amarillo senior, is tied for fourth in the 880-yard run with Olympian Mal Spence of Arizona State with a 1:50.6 timing. Among the 220-yard hurdles run with an aiding wind, footballer Bake Turner, Alpine junior, is tied for eighth with Arizona's Harry Lucky, at 23.0.

Delbert Shirey of Lovington, N.M., and Midland came within one-half inch of being ranked in the pole vault. He soared 14-9 ¾ inches at the Southwest Conference Meet, and 14-10¼ is tenth.

Rice Mails Grid Forms

HOUSTON (UPI) —Initial activity for Rice University's 50th season in football began Saturday when the athletic business office mailed the first of several thousand applications for the Owls' 1961 football games.

Forms were sent to all option holders for Owl games at Rice Stadium, plus former season and individual game ticket purchasers. Season ticket applications have a deadline of July 21 to be completed and returned to the business office.

The Owls, with their usual attractive schedule next fall, will have a number of top players returning from the 1960 club that tied for second in Southwest Conference play and went on to meet Ole Miss in the Sugar Bowl.

This will be the 12th season for the Owls to play in their 70,000 seat stadium where annual home attendance has averaged consistently around a quarter of a million.

Rice opens the 1961 season with Louisiana State at Houston on Sept. 23, and closes with Baylor at Houston on Dec. 2.

Other opponents include Sept. 30, Georgia Tech at Atlanta; Oct. 14, Florida at Houston; Oct. 21, Southern Methodist at Houston; Oct. 28, Texas at Austin; Nov. 4, Texas Tech at Lubbock; Nov. 11, Arkansas at Houston; Nov. 18, Texas A&M at Houston, and Nov. 25, Texas Christian at Fort Worth.

picked up a winner's purse of $126,200. That raised his earnings to $739,068 and placed him 13th on the list of all-time money winners.

He was an even money favorite and paid $4.00, $3.20 and $2.20 across the board while Globemaster returned $8.00 and $3.40 and Crozier paid $2.40.

Carrying 126 pounds, as did all the others, Carry Back was timed in 1:57-3-5, far off the track and stake record of 1:54-3-5 set by Nashua in the 1955 running of the Preakness.

Sherluck was fifth, followed by Hitting Away, Nashua Blue, Orleans Doge and Crimson Fury.

B & B Pharmacy Nips C & M Nine

Gary McCarrell pitched and batted B&B Pharmacy to a narrow 11-10 win over the C&M Television nine Friday night in a Little League game at Optimist Park.

McCarrell, with four hits, paced a 11-hit attack by the B&B nine, and was the winning pitcher. Ikerd was the loser. Tommy McDonald contributed a booming triple to the winners cause.

Hitting stars for C&M were Mike Pursley and Wily Davis. B&B's Jim Bonkin sparkled afield.

Duncan Pounds Dixie Parts

Duncan Insurance pounded Dixie Parts, 17-7, in an Eastern League game Thursday night at Optimist Park.

The winning pitcher was Jackie Strickland, with James Davis taking the defeat.

Top Bowling Money Won By 'Darkhorse'

PARAMUS, N. J. (NEA) — The Cinderella Story has become such a cliche in sports that no game may be considered major league until it has one.

Bowling finally made it in the person of left-handed little Roy Lown, five-eight and 145.

The 31-year - old, unheralded transplanted Hoosier who now operates out of El Paso, Tex., fitted his tootsies neatly into the golden slipper by winning the Professional Bowlers' Association Invitational Tournament at the Paramus Bowl. His cash consideration for the feat was $15,000, the biggest single money prize in the history of professional bowling, television loot excluded.

What Lown, the first southpaw to bag a big - money tournament accomplished is comparable to a junk cart nag outrunning Carry Back in the Kentucky Derby.

If there were Nassau pools on bowling, as there used to be in golf, you could have bought Lown for $1.98 before the three-day tournament got under way.

Not that Lown is a bum on the lanes. He is terrific, and he proved it by taking out Don Carter and Billy Golembiewski in wading through a field of 192 of the greatest pros.

He disposed of Carter, World Invitational Champion, winner of The Masters and Bowler - of- the-Year, in the two-game first round, 421 to 406. Billy G., THE Masters Champion, was slaughtered, 410 to 397.

Lown became a center of attraction immediately he had the tournament under his belt. Unlike most of the big boys in bowling, he is not attached in an advisory capacity to either of the two major manufacturers of automatic pinspotting devices. His final ball in the Paramus tournament hadn't stopped rolling before he was beseiged with offers.

"It's a big decision," he said when offered contracts. "I'll have to go home and think."

Lown, born in Terre Haute, moved to El Paso as a youth, for his health. He started bowling in 1944 and now is married, has a 14 - month - old son and manages an establishment of 32 lanes for his brother. His only other tournament triumph was in the Maxie Kosoff Endurance Contest which he won in Ogden, Utah, in 1954. He carries an average of 212 and 209 in two leagues.

Lown believes the most important factor in bowling is the free pendulum swing, and he proved it in beating the highranking Carter, who employs what might be termed a scoop shovel delivery.

Lown's left-handed roll is wondrous to behold. The ball goes unerringly to the left gutter and hangs precariously until just the right second. Then it hooks back into respectable territory.

"I don't think my style is so different," says Lown, who is ambidextrous, eats righthanded and was a switch - hitter in high school baseball. "It's just that my hook is more obvious because it comes from the other side."

And so are you, Roy Lown.

Bowling Notes

The Tenth Framers and the Pinbusters, both with 4-0 marks for the week, continue to set the pace in the Garden Lanes Mixed Bowling League with 7-1 overall records. Standings are complete through Tuesday, May 16.

Rounding out the team standings and their records are: Team 6, 6-2; Team 3, 5-3; Team 7, 3-5; Team 10, 3-1; Team 1, 2-6; Team 5, 2-6; Team 4, 1-7; and Team 9, 1-3.

In high team game, the Tenth Framers led with 691 pins and also grabbed top honors in high team series with a 1987 mark (scratch).

Jake Jacobs, with a 214, individual game and 604 series, was the top individual bowler.

Runnersup in high individual game were Ronnie Havens (203) and Bill Smith (202).

For the women, M. Ward carted off high game honors with a 204 game, followed by Mary Kay (189). Kathy Parsley won high series with a 526 total.

Cree Drilling Clips Kist

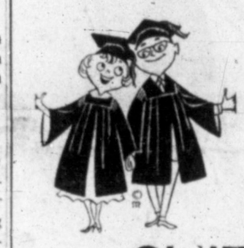

Cree Drilling Co. clipped Kist Beverage Co., 9 to 6 Friday night in a Little League game at Optimist Park.

Winning hurler was Johnnie Luedecke — Chuck Worley absorbed the defeat.

Leading hitter for Kist was Tommy Henley, who banged a single and triple. Cree is now 1-1 for the season.

PICTURED HERE is Miss Jeanne Willingham, standing left, dance instructress for the Beaux Arts Dance Studio with Mrs. Edwin Lowrance, studio pianist and Mrs. Jack D. Edwards, music director, who are arranging the music for the different dance numbers. All of the music to be presented during the actual recital will be taped, but hours of arranging and re-arranging must go into rehearsal before the final recording. The night of the recital, Mrs. Edwards will direct the recordings for the dance routines to be presented.

NOT A SIMPLE chore was the manufacturing, designing, and painting of the castle, which will be used in one of the dance scenes. ESA members have found that old, discarded card-board boxes with a bit of dexterity can be converted into a castle fit for any dancing queen. Pictured here fitting the turret to the castle roof are, Mrs. Parks Brumley, perched high above the castle roof with left to right, Mrs. Bob Miller, Mrs. Ira Bewley, and Mrs. Melvin Watkins, ESA president. Mrs. Boyd Maule and Mrs. E. W. Hogan are general chairman in charge of preparations for the dance revue.

Behind The Scenes... ...with ESA

WHEN THE CURTAIN goes on up on Jeanne Willingham's annual Spring Dance Recital at 7:30 p.m. on May 30, it will look as if a magic wand had been waved and all the scenery, sparkling dance costumes and intricate dance routines had just suddenly appeared. But the dance instructress, Miss Willingham, all of dance students, and members of Epsilon Sigma Alpha Sorority, which sponsors the annual recital will know differently. Pictured on this page are glimpses of some of the behind-the scene activities which depict the months of rehearsal, creating, designing and actually manufacturing scenery, designing original costumes, and arranging music for the choreography, which goes into the production of a dance recital.

WEEKS AND WEEKS of hectic activity go into the preparation for the dance recital. Epsilon Sigma Alpha members work on scenery during club meetings, call special work sessions day after day until everything is in order for the Big Night. They always have plenty of "little helpers" too as shown here by Marsha Bentley perched high on a set of blocks, which will be used in one of the dance sequences, while Kip Watson, who has inadvertently touched a spot of wet paint receives a clean-up swipe from Mrs. Bonnie Wheat. Overseeing the paint job being done by Mrs. Boyd Maule is Mrs. Eugene Bentley, left and Mrs. W. P. Pairsh.

ON BROADWAY, Mrs. Scott Hall, Jr. would be called the wardrobe director, for it is her job to correlate all of the costumes worn in the dance recital to see that there are no duplications, that colors do not clash; and that the best price may be secured by ordering all materials in large enough quantities to go around. She designs and makes costumes for those mothers, who do not wish to do so themselves. Costume-planning begins in the late winter months and by the first of May, when publicity pictures are scheduled, all costumes are hanging in the owners' closets ready for the Big Night. Mrs. Hall estimates that she made approximately 175 of the costumes, which will be worn by recitalists this Spring.

(Photo, Smith Studio)

Miss Marilyn Kotara repeated wedding vows with L. B. Voyles at 7:30 p.m. on May 13 in the Sacred Heart Catholic Church in White Deer with Father Jerome Hancock officiating.

Double-ring vows were said in a setting of white chrysanthemums and greenery.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Kotara Jr. of White Deer. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Voyles of Live Oak, Fla.

BRIDE

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal, floor-length gown of hand-clipped Imported Chantilly lace fashioned with a Sabrina neckline and long, tapering sleeves, which ended in bridal points over the hands. The basque bodice was enjoined to a bouffant skirt accented down the back with handmade satin roses and ended in a Cathedral train.

Her fingertip veil of Imported French Illusion was held by a dainty Princess Crown of sparkling Aurora Borealis crystals and pearls.

She carried a bouquet of red roses and stephanotis.

ATTENDANTS

Mrs. Joy Grange, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Naomi Horton of Amarillo and Miss Jan Hooker. They wore ballerina-length dresses of Burgundy silk organza fashioned with three-quarter length sleeves, square necklines and bouffant skirts. Wrist-length mitts of matching fabric, and large picture hats of Burgundy nylon straw with small roses encircling the crown complemented their costumes. They carried bouquets of Sweetheart roses and pink carnations.

Maynard Kotara, bride's brother, served the bridegroom as best man. Groomsmen were Charles Jackson and Robert Anderwald. Ushers were Melvin Kalva, cousin of the bride and Mack Grange, bride's brother-in-law.

Wedding music was provided by Mrs. Laddie Kotara at the organ, who also served as accompanist for Mrs. Jerry Kotara as she sang "Ava Maria" and "Mother, At Your Feet I'm Kneeling" as the bride placed a red rose at the altar of the Virgin Mary.

Misses Debbie Kotara and Galene Kotara, sisters of the bride, served as flower girls wearing white embroidered silk organza frocks over burgundy Crystalline fashioned with square scalloped necklines, puff sleeves and bouffant skirts. Each wore matching handbands of white roses and burgundy ruffled tulle.

Kenneth Kotara, bride's brother, carried the rings to the bridal pair on a pillow of white satin.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Kotara chose a sheath of mauve lace over pink satin topped with a matching jacket complemented with matching accessories and a corsage of pink rosebuds.

RECEPTION

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception and dance was held in the parish hall of the church. The reception table was appointed with white satin accented with tiny bouquets of red rosebuds. The centerpiece was of red roses flanked with tall, tapered pink candles. The three - tiered cake was decorated with red and white roses and topped with satin wedding bells.

Reception hostesses were Mmes. Bennie Cooper of Amarillo, Jerry Braddock of White Deer and Ronnie Cade of Pampa.

During the reception, guests danced to the music of Paul Appleton and his orchestra.

For a wedding trip to Florida, the bride traveled in a rose silk linen suit complemented with white accessories and a corsage of red roses from the center of her bridal bouquet.

Mrs. Voyles was graduated from White Deer High School and Draughon's Business College. Prior to her marriage, she was employed in the First National Bank for one year.

Mr. Voyles was graduated from Suwannee High School in Live Oak, Fla. and is employed by Henley and Beckwith, mechanical contractors, in Live Oak. After May 20, the couple will make their home in Jacksonville, Fla.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I work near a place where a lot of soldiers are stationed. I fell in love with a man about my age. He is married and has three children. Two of them are retarded. He says if it weren't for those retarded children he would marry me, but he would feel like a dog leaving his wife to care for them all their lives.

His wife found out about us and you should have seen the letter she wrote me! She said she would give me her husband on a silver platter if it weren't for the children, but she would see to it that they had a father as long as she lived.

We love each other, Abby. Why should my 'my friend' be stuck with retarded children all his life, plus a wife he doesn't love? Don't you think he deserves a little happiness, and a wife who could give him normal children?

WORKING GIRL

DEAR WORKING: Your "my friend" deserves credit for having more of a conscience than you. (If this weren't a family newspaper I would tell you what I think YOU deserve. Do one decent thing in your life and send him back to his wife and children.

DEAR ABBY: Have you any ideas on how to put the romance back into marriage? We've been married almost ten years, have two small children and my husband and I are both under 30. I've tried black nighties, soft music, candlelight at dinner and I even sleep in perfume. Don't suggest doctors or vitamin pills. He's as healthy as a horse.

BERNICE

DEAR BERNICE: Maybe you're trying too hard. Not all men respond to perfume and soft music. Try the great out - of - doors. How about a picnic in the woods or a swim in the lake? And a harvest moon can throw more heat than a candle.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married two months and during that time my mother - in - law has invited us over for dinner often. Last Sunday, while dining, I spilled a few peas on the floor. I was embarrassed, as they are a very ritzy family, and have white wall-to - wall carpeting. I didn't know whether to crawl under the table and pick up the peas so no one would step on them, or to ignore it as I didn't think anyone saw me drop them.

I ignored it and, sure enough, my sister - in-law stepped on the peas and made a terrible mess. Please tell me if it IS proper to pick up things you've dropped or spilled while eating at the dinner table. I have heard it is not.

TIDING

DEAR TIDING: If you can retrieve dropped food without diving under the table like a porpoise, do so. If the food is out of reach and likely to be stepped on by others and soil the carpet, tell your hostess.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "FAITHFUL WIFE": ALL MEN do NOT run around on their wives. But it's a pretty good bet that all men who say that all men run around on their wives, do.

Yes, Abby will answer your letter personally if you write to ABBY, Box 1565, Beverly Hills, Calif., and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Getting married? For Abby's booklet, "How To Have A Lovely Wedding," send 35 cents to ABBY, Box 1565, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Covering The Town .....with dew!

THERE WAS SOMETHING missing in the Wilson corral on Tuesday evening as the family sat around in the family stall watching the Emmy Awards on television. Not one of the cowboy shows, which nightly fill the room with sounds of horses hoofs and whizzing bullets, came up for an award. Instead, a lofty and artistic production called "Macbeth", which has been around for years, walked away with most of the Emmy honors. Can we dare hope that a new frontier is also opening up on the television front?

HAVE YOU FORGOTTEN SOMETHING?? The Women of St. Matthews Church are hoping that it is not enrollment of your youngster in next fall and winter classes of the Junior Cotillion, which they sponsor. In order to fulfill their contract with the Gene Stockwell School of Dance of Oklahoma City, Okla., whichprovides the dance and social graces instructor, the sponsors have had to set a deadline of May 26 as the final date for enrollment.

Barbara Beaman tells us that the Cotillion was so successful last year that a new class is being added this year, which will include ninth grade students. Last year the classes included only fourth grade through eighth grade students. Kathryn Reeve has all the information concerning enrollment. You can reach her by calling MO 5-4024 or you can drop by her home at 1811 Dogwood.

We hear that everyone who has attended the Cotillion sessions are most enthusiastic about the way it is conducted and instructed. So before you get lost in the procrastination of summer, which usually begins Memorial Day weekend, why not take care of the enrollment right now so you won't be disappointed next fall when the youngsters begin learning all the latest dance - steps and learning how to balance a tea-cup on their laps, while tapping the floor with their feet?

IF WE HAD A technicolor typewriter, these next few lines would be written in bright green-for-envy type as we sit here and think of the exciting summer Fidelia Yoder has in store for her. She is leaving Tuesday for a summer-length trip abroad. The first stop in her vagabond trip is in Chicago for a visit with her sister. Then following a Jet Flight to London, England, she will enplane almost immediately for Nigeria, West Africa for a five weeks' visit with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Neher, who are missionaries for the Church of the Brethren. Gerald, as we understand it, is connected with agriculture work in the mission field.

Following the visit with her daughter, Mrs. Yoder will join a Music Tour in Rome, sponsored by the Temple University of Philadelphia. Included in the tour will be points of interest in Florence, Milan, Switzerland, Germany, France and England. The entourage, composed of musicians and those interested in music, will also visit Grieg's home in Norway and their visit is also timed for the Salzburg, Austria, Music Festival and the Edinburg, Scotland Festival the latter part of August.

WE KNOW THAT Thelma Bray was proud of the presentation duty given her at the Pampa Garden Club Spring Installation Luncheon held Tuesday in Caldwell's Buffeteria. Thelma, who has named Gardener of the Year last year by the club, had the honor of presenting the award this year to her mother, Mrs. V. N. Osborn. Each year the club selects a member, who, by her outstanding service to the club and community, has done the most to promote gardening. The selection of the Gardener of the Year award this year was made before Mrs. Osborn walked away with the Sweepstakes prize and the Award of Merit at the annual flower show held last Saturday. The selection is made by secret ballot and the name is not announced until the luncheon. But it seems that the club members knew their gardener well even before the flower show!

In hearing of Mrs. Osborn's qualifications for the award, we have determined that you don't just go out and put a seed in the ground and water it to qualify for the award. Just a few more necessities are included. Like, for instance, Mrs. Osborn has worked faithfully in all the park projects, not just by pointing out where a rose-bush or bulb should be planted but by doing the actual planting herself! She has given many plants from her own yard to others just starting gardens and works devotedly growing flowers and vegetables which she shares with her friends. She has attended all flower-arranging schools in Amarillo and has studied hard to improve her own ability for arranging as well as helping her own club through these schools.

She has served as general chairman for a flower show and has provided flower arrangements with flowers from her own garden for the worship services in her church for several years. Later she would take these flower arrangements to shut-in members of the church and to the hospital for others to enjoy.

Mrs. Osborn helped to organize the African Violet Society in Pampa and served as general chairman for its first show this year. A written bouquet, then, to Mrs. Osborn for being a wonderful gardener and a nice person!

JOHN AND JOYCE McCausland, who came directly here from London, England several years ago to make their home, had a welcomed addition last Saturday morning when they added a son to their family of daughters. Jane, Joan and Jennifer are so pleased with their new brother and we can say without fear of contradiction that this is one new baby that is going to get a lot of "mothering." "His Lordship," which is what John Sr. calls his new heir, weighed 5 lbs. and 10 oz. and looks just like his blonde sisters. ..dew

Miss Martha Marsh
. . . wins an 'oscar'

Local Student Wins An 'Oscar'

Miss Martha Marsh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Marsh, 1304 Duncan and freshman student at Eastern New Mexico University, has been awarded an "oscar" by the drama and speech department of the university for the best supporting actress in 1960-61.

The honor was accorded Miss Marsh for her role as "Lizzie" in "The Rope Dancers" presented during the winter term.

Miss Marsh is the first freshman in the history of the university to receive the honor.

The "oscar" winner was active in speech and drama activities while a student in Pampa High School and had attended two workshops in the university before her enrollment last September. For talent displayed during these workshop sessions, Miss Marsh was awarded a scholarship from the university. She has also been named an outstanding speech student by the Alpha Psi Omega, honorary speech and drama sorority.

In addition to her role in "The Rope Dancers," Miss Marsh also appeared in "Romanoff and Juliet". She has a leading role in the drama department's presentation of "No Exit", directed by Caroline Cantrell and presented May 18 on the university campus.

Washington was born on the 11th of February, according to the Julian, or old-style, calendar.

INCREASE ALLOWANCES

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House has passed a bill that would give government officials more liberal travel expense allowances than recommended by the Kennedy administration.

The measure, approved by voice vote Thursday and sent to the Senate, would raise to $16 the present $12 a day allowance to employes for out-of-town lodging, meals, tips and other incidental expenses. The administration had proposed a $15 rate.

Luncheon Highlighted By Installation Service

Pampa Garden Club installed its officers for 1961-62 at a 1:30 luncheon held Tuesday in Caldwell's Buffeteria.

Luncheon tables were appointed with colorful Iris and Peonies in low arrangements created by Mrs. Maxine Dorman, who also made up rose-bud corsages for new officers and guests.

Special guests were Mrs. Martin Stubbe, member of the Pampa Rose Society, who conducted the installation service; Mrs. Jamie Deal, president of the Top o' Texas Garden Club; Mrs. Ed Parsons, daughter of the president Mrs. Waldon E. Moore, and Mrs. Doris Wilson, Pampa News women's editor.

Luncheon invocation was given by Mrs. Walter Purviance.

An impressive historian's report was given by Mrs. C. C. Matheny, in which she listed the outstanding accomplishments of the club during the past year, which included planting flowers in park projects and the City Hall; workshops; presenting programs for other clubs; judging contests; Guest Day tea; writing for the newspaper Hoe Down Column; hostessing of the Northern Zone Garden Clubs; table decorations for outside functions; acting as judges for the Christmas home decorating contest; the presentation of 600 redbud trees to fourth grade school students for Arbor Day. Mrs. Matheny said that over 2,000 trees, 209 shrubs and 445 rose bushes had been planted by garden club members. "The club has 44 active members; several inactive members and has added eight or nine new members."

Included in her report were the two state awards given the club; a first place for its Arbor Day project and an honorable mention for its publicity book; that six delegates attended the district convention and two delegates went to state convention; that the club had held its annual plant sale and annual Flower Show.

The Gardener of the Year Award for 1961 was made to Mrs. V. N. Osborn for her outstanding contributions to gardening in the community. The presentation of the award was made by her daughter, Mrs. Thelma Bray, who was given the honor last year.

Mrs. Stubbe used a "movie production" theme as she installed the following officers for the coming year: Mmes. Coy Palmer, president; Dot Francis, vice president; A. J. Mitchell, second vice president; D. A. Caldwell, secretary; Lee Harrah, treasurer; Bob Miller, corresponding secretary; Joe Weaver, parliamentarian; Fred Cary, historian.

Following installation, Mrs. Palmer announced committee appointments made to date and in accepting the office as president said that her slogan for the new year would be "To Make More Garden Clubbers Out of Gardeners."

Rose-bushes as gifts of appreciation were presented to Mrs. Stubbe and Mrs. Wilson by the club.

ALL GET THE FULL ATTENTION OF THIS BUSY BORGER HOMEMAKER...

Put yourself in the place of Mrs. Brown McMurray, 1404 Turner, Borger, Texas. Three lovely children and a business-man husband occupy the most important parts of her life. How then does she find time to be program chairman of the Coronado Elementary School PTA? Or teach a private art class of 20 children? Or belong to the Creative Arts Association and the Panhandle Arts Association? Or be active in her church? Or paint still life, landscape and game bird oils? Of course, the lady is as efficient as she is charming but she gives lots of credit to the automatic features of her electric range.

This delicious baked ham actually was being baked automatically while the pictures you see here were being taken. The ham required no attention from Mrs. McMurray.

Here you see Mrs. McMurray completing a canvass using her kitchen as a studio. Notice the ease with which she can "keep an eye on" her cooking. Her electric range is just a fingertip's distance away. She often paints and prepares meals at the same time. Other times, while out of the house, she lets Reddy do the watching by using her automatic controls — cooking complete meals.

Above, Mrs. McMurray tells her children how our ancestors used the ancient spinning wheel to spin their own thread. In addition to her other activities, Mrs. McMurray collects and refinishes antiques. Highly creative, she has won ribbons for her excellent sewing. She paints under the name Lecrecia and among her many works is an 8 foot by 8 foot mural in the First Methodist Church.

That Dubious Moon

The space voyage of Alan Shepard proves that Americans can do it.

Very well, now that this has been established beyond doubt, let's do some sober looking at all this excitement over the space program.

And let's be sure that we cast not the slightest discredit upon the astronaut, his co-workers and the scientific brains which contrived and planned this perfectly performed exploit.

We have talked to quite a number of persons who tell us just how important it is for us to be the first to get to the moon; the first to conquer space; the first to establish a military operation on old Luna.

We've had some grave questions in our mind about the priority of this program, in spite of Russian propaganda and achievement, and we have been aided enormously in our present view by information which is contained in an advance reprint put out by Reader's Digest.

The article called, "The Senseless Race to Put Man in Space," comes from the pen of Darland Manchester, and appears in the May issue of this monthly magazine.

We'll use some quotations from this article with the suggestion that our readers get the magazine and read the entire observation by Manchester.

First of all, it is noted that a number of scientists are growing more and more alarmed over our preoccupation in this direction.

First is the danger to the man, himself. And it is important to observe here that Shepard's flight, and even the Yuri Gagarin episode, taken at face value, did NOT go far enough beyond the earth's surface to encounter the real risks involved.

About 500 miles above the earth' surface, the area to be traversed is criss-crossed with radioactivity "in which no man could long survive without hundreds of pounds of shielding and plenty of luck."

"First, the moonbound astronaut would hit the Van Allen Radiation Belt, composed of two great doughnut-shaped layers of charged particles which surround the 'waist' from about 500 to 52,000 miles out . . ."

Competent men judging the intensity of these particles say that at least 1000 pounds of shielding would be required to safeguard a single man in a flight to the moon. And you can add that amount of weight for each additional man to undertake the trip.

Since, with our present knowledge of fuels, about 1000 pounds of fueled craft is required to put a one-pound payload into space, the shielding alone would add 500 tons to the weight of the moon capsule.

Nor does this begin to tell us what the price tag on that moon capsule would indicate.

But it turns out that the Van Allen Belt is only the beginning of the problem. There are radiation storms beyond the 52,000-mile side of the belt which are of such severity that it is now estimated something close to 20 TONS of metal per man might be needed as a shield.

Then, there's the dubious nature of a military base established on the moon. Brig. General Homer A. Boushey, director of Advanced Technology, U.S. Air Force, strongly favors a missile base on the moon which as he views it would "dominate the world."

But Dr. Lee A. DuBridge, president of the California Institute of Technology, says that such an idea is "nonsense." And we're inclined to agree with him. As he points out, "Why transport a hydrogen warhead 240,000 miles to the moon, just to shoot it 240,000 miles back to earth when the target is only 5000 miles away? If you launched a bomb from the moon, the warhead would take five days to reach the earth. The war might be over by then. An ICBM can reach any target on earth in 20 minutes."

But we are told of the great values of minerals and metals which MAY be found on the moon. From the standpoint of arithmetic, and the doubtful value of these deposits, assuming they are there and can be found, the finding is offset by the billions to be spent in trying to get at them.

Actually, there are enormous mineral and metal reserves on this planet right now which are not being produced simply because the cost is prohibitive. Yet the cost of moon mining would be infinitely greater by any scale of measurement. And then think of transporting these valuables back to earth!

Add all this up and we might be among the first to hope that the Russians persist in their moon efforts and that we have the wisdom to withdraw.

We've proved that if expense is no object, we can put a man into space. But we have never managed to prove that expense is no object, even tho Kennedy is trying.

It is certain that a moon trip, even if manageable, will not be manageable with our present state of knowledge and with the greatest economy on earth.

The only way to determine the right time, the right way to get to the moon, would be to leave these and kindred decisions to our economy rather than our government.

When we cannot afford gold mining, and scores of other types of mineral and metal development in this nation, it is obvious that we are not yet ready to do the same sort of thing extra territorially. Leave it to industry, rather than government, and the way will yet be found.

Ownership Of Property

The existence of property is not in question. Property will always exist or we will all be dead. Human life is dependent upon property.

The question of our times relates not to property and its existence, but to the OWNERSHIP of property.

So far as we can see, there are only three majorways for human beings to work with property.

1. No one will own any property.
2. Individual men will own property individually.
3. A collective of some sort, usually called government, will own all property and will distribute it to individuals.

Some will argue that a fourth idea is possible. They will suggest that if we permit individuals to own property privately, in the end, one man will own everything. The world would become the private asset of one man, or perhaps one corporation.

However, for the sake of admitting this argument, we will aver that point number 3 covers this final point as well. For if all property were to be owned by one man or one firm, this would eventuate in a monstrous collective and the same end would have been reached insofar as ownership is concerned, as is briefly stated in item 3.

Our argument is that property, to be useful to man, MUST be privately owned.

The early anarchists held to the view that we would all live in a better world if no one ever owned anything, either individually or collectively. In theory, all use of property would be temporary. Each of us would go to the store and help ourselves to what we wanted. We wouldn't take more than we wanted and we wouldn't take less.

When asked how the things we wanted would always be available in some store or some central warehouse for distribution, the anarchist became strangely silent. It was assumed that men would WANT to work if they were assured they would always have for USE, whatever it is they wanted. We haven't the space here to demolish this argument step by step. But that it is the height of unrealism will be quickly observed by most rational people.

To make certain that production would occur at all, some kind of force would be necessary. But everyone would hold back, producing only as much as he was compelled to produce in order to escape punishment.

Be it recognized here that this world is not a particularly friendly place for civilized man. Nature does not provide the things he wants and must have. The air and the sunlight may be "free" for the taking, but items of wealth are in scarce supply except as production occurs to bring them into existence. And with the exception of air and sunlight — including frigid air, hurricanes and sun stroke, as well as rain and snow — man must alter the raw materials nature provides or he will have nothing. Indeed, he cannot even stand unlimited amounts of friendly air and sunlight, for climate is the sum total of this and climate can be rugged, even when friendly.

Collective ownership of property is equally invalid. For the producer (the collective) invariably introduces collective goals rather than individual goals. The goal of the collective is to obtain and maintain power and not to satisfy the wants or requirements of individuals.

The individual is always the enemy of the collective and can be sacrificed if it appears to the collective that wants are excessive or contrary to collective ends. This process we call politics.

In the end, we will be compelled to see that the only kind of property which has meaning for man is property which he owns individually. There is something mighty personal about the meal we eat, the clothes we wear, the toothbrush we use, the bed we sleep in. Personal ownership is actually what every human being yearns to experience and in growing amounts.

Yet it is true that life is possible under collective ownership This is demonstrated by primitive tribes and by current efforts to return us to savagery which we call "communism" or "socialism"

Only where men are free to own the fruits of their labor, including the productive fruits of great labor we call "tools," will we have the kind of life we want as men. It is time we settled on private ownership as the single best way to proceed.

The Doctor Says:

DR. HAROLD T. HYMAN

Here are two more examples of successful application of my suggested Sherlock Holmes method of diagnosis and indicated treatment through what the detective called "inductive reasoning."

"Last fall when the nights began to get cool," writes a most gracious correspondent, "I began using two old, lightweight homespun wool blankets that had come down to me through two generations. I had kept them partially because of sentiment and had never actually used them before.

"Immediately, I began to have trouble in breathing at night, making sleep impossible. I was advised to use nasal sprays but they did me no good. My only relief came from walking the floor with the windows open, despite the cold.

"After reading your column, I decided to experiment and I purchased a blanket, 100 per cent acrylic and nonwool. I did this because I recalled that, years ago, I had shown an allergy to a detergent that produced an itching red rash on my face and arms.

"The first night under my new blanket, I slept nine hours without waking. And the second and third restful nights assured me that the wool blankets must have caused my trouble. I restored the heirlooms to the attic and have been comfortable ever since."

The second of these correspondents, a 70-year-old factory superintendent, developed headaches, fatigue and a sense of depression some five years ago. He visited a prominent diagnostic clinic where he was told he had "no organic disease but merely a nervous condition and a severe depression." Electric shock treatments were recommended and refused because of advanced age.

Reutrning to his family doctor, he decided "to try to battle out of the depression by continuing to work so as to keep my mind off myself". To assist him, tranquilizers were prescribed.

Over the course of the next years, our correspondent faithfully took at least eight different tranquilizers that he lists and others whose names he could not recall. Fearful of a further recommendation to submit to shock treatments, he took tranquilizer after tranquilizer although, he now added dizziness and a lack of muscular control of his legs.

He had just about decided that "life seemed hardly worthwhile" when his attention was attracted to my column on "detective diagnosis." He stopped taking tranquilizers and he has concluded that he believes he is "on the right track since my headaches are not so severe, my legs are getting stronger and I can see a great change in my outlook, though I suppose it will take some time to get back to normal."

Allen - Scott Report:

Reason for Kennedy-Khrushchev Surprise Meeting: Probe of Premier's Intentions on Nuclear Agreement

ROBERT S. ALLEN

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — A basic policy decision on the stalemated nuclear test ban negotiations is behind President Kennedy's surprise move to meet with Soviet Premier Khrushchev next month.

The President decided on the face-to-face meeting as a final effort to use his personal influence to break the 2½-year-old deadlock in the Geneva talks before ordering a resumption of underground nuclear testing.

The latter announcement is set for June 30 unless the Soviets make unexpected concessions in the nuclear test ban treaty negotiations that are now underway.

In his personal meeting with Khrushchev the President will attempt to get across the point that the U.S. is fed up with Soviet obstruction in the negotiations, and questions the Kremlin's sincerity, and try to lay down a deadline for ending the moratorium on testing unless the Kremlin is ready to come to terms on an acceptable agreement.

President Kennedy is going to take the position that the reaction on the other side of the table will be a guide as to how much he can hope to achieve in future man-to-man negotiations with the Soviet Premier.

"If Khrushchev isn't sincere in wanting to obtain a workable nuclear test ban, then there isn't much hope that we can negotiate honorable settlements on such issues as disarmament and Berlin," the President told Senator Hubert Humphrey (D. Minn.), chairman of the Senate disarmament subcommittee, in a White House meeting.

The President revealed to Humphrey that he decided to go ahead with the informal meeting with Khrushchev after reading the pessimistic report from Arthur Dean, chief U.S. negotiator in Geneva. Dean cabled that Soviet negotiators had hardened in their opposition to U.S. proposals since the talks were resumed ten days ago.

PERIL POINT — The decision of the President to make a first-hand inquiry of Khrushchev's intentions comes at a time when new pressure is building up in Congress against the U.S. making any new concessions in the test ban negotiations.

For instance, a poll of the Joint House-Senate Atomic Committee shows that a majority of members believe that the U.S. has gone too far in its proposals in trying to win an agreement from the Soviets.

The Committee, in an implied warning against further concessions, is now preparing for publication the long list of concessions that U.S. negotiators have made since the talks opened in 1958. The major concessions on the list are:

—"Original U.S. position on number of seismic stations in the world-wide control system, 650 to 700; present position, 180;

—"Original U.S. position on number of seismic stations in the USSR, 21; present position 19;

—"Original U.S. position on number of on-site inspections per year, 100; present position 20;

—"Original U.S. position on maximum extension of present unpoliced moratorium while conducting a research and development program to perfect techniques for detecting underground nuclear explosions, 27 months; present position, 36 months.

—"Original U.S. position on composition of the control commission, 3 free world countries, 2 communist countries, 2 neutral countries; present position 4 free world countries, 4 communist countries, 3 neutral countries."

In return for these U.S. concessions, Soviet negotiators have failed to yield on a single major issue in the negotiations.

HIS OWN G-2 — President Kennedy also is indicating to congressional callers at the White House that he has another personal reason for his first-hand inquiry into Khrushchev's intentions.

It arises from the failure of U.S. Intelligence.

The President frankly says he questions the validity of CIA Director Allen Dulles' judgment regarding Khrushchev's intentions since his agency was so misinformed about Cuba.

By doing his own probing of Khrushchev, the President hopes to determine whether the Kremlin leader will be moved by Soviet successes in Laos and Cuba to make some major miscalculations at Berlin or in Southeast Asia which would require the U.S. to use military force.

In his private briefings of the President, Dulles takes the position that Khrushchev will not make a miscalculation that could touch off a nuclear war. Kennedy isn't sure.

INTELIGENCE REPORT — U-2 photo planes are being used for high-altitude reconnaissance flights over Cuba. Their mission is to watch Cuban airfields for Communist-built MIG-17s and Cuban ports for the arrival of Iron Curtain ships with new Communist arms. Just before the abortive Cuban invasion by anti-Castro refugees, the planes made an unreported flight over all Cuban airfields. Their photo report: 12 operational plane, including two U.S. - built jet trainers. . .There are far-reaching changes taking place in the military posture and structure of the Soviet armed forces. Among artillery weapons, the Soviets have introduced into their forces recently are a 203-mm howitzer on a one-piece mount, with a maximum range of 32,000 yards; a 240 - mm mortar capable of 10,000 yards; and a twin 57-mm self - propelled antiaircraft mount. The Soviet Army also is stepping up its reliance on light and medium transport aircraft and helicopters — supporting airborne troops. For instance, there is the new transport aircraft called the "Cat" that can land on relatively rough strips and carry 125 combat-equipped troops. There is a military version, the "Cub," which includes a rear loading ramp and can carry 90 troops. Both of these transports were spotted in use in Laos before the cease-fire. Also seen operating in Laos was the new heavy transport helicopter called the "Horse." It has a carrying capacity of 8,800 pounds, or 40 combat-equipped infantrymen.

The American Way

THIS IS A REPUBLIC

By GEORGE PECK

The Post Office Department of the U.S.A. recently requested Pitney-Bowes, Inc., to consider recalling slogan plates which it had sold to lessess of its postage meters. The particuar plate to which the Post Office Dept. objects reads: "THIS IS A REPUBLIC, NOT A DEMOCRACY — Let's keep it that way".

To those not familiar with Pitney - Bowes, let us explain that this company owns and leases some 300,000 mailing meters to private firms and groups throughout the nation. The Post Office Dept. permits the use of an advertising message alongside the metered "stamp," but requires that the message be monitored by the company that owns the meters.

A spokesman for the Post Office states that the department "cannot delve into censorship of the message to be carried, but there is a regulation which includes the statement that 'slogans must not be objectionable and misleading.' "

We rise to inquire as to what is "objectionable and misleading" about stating the fact that "THIS IS A REPUBLIC, NOT A DEMOCRACY."

At any rate, Pitney-Bowes considered the request of the Post Office Dept. and in turn is requesting that all of its meter lessees return these particular slogan plates, generously offering to refund the purchase price of the plates.

Pitney-Bowes' first letter to its lessees, who use these "objectionable and misleading" slogan plates, read in part as follows: "Since delivering this to you, the slogan has become strongly identified with a controversial and political issue, and it is apparent we made a mistake in permitting this slogan to be made. Our policy is that we can permit no such postmark ad plate to be used in our meters. Under postal regulations, postal meter slogans must not be objectionable. . ."

The letter then went on to state that an employee of the company would call to pick up the "objectionable" plate.

To one manufacturer who registered his objection to this high-handed procedure, Pitney - Bowes sent a second letter delivered in person by a company representative. This letter read in part ". . .Your continued use of it (the 'objectionable' plate) constitutes a breach of meter rental contract with us. . .Our representative. . .has, therefore, been instructed to repossess our meter and remove it from your premises . . ."

This is going on in "free" America— not in Russia. We again inquire what is misleading about printing the fact that "THIS IS A REPUBLIC, NOT A DEMOCRACY"

In 1787, when our American Constitution was only a few minutes old, venerable Ben Franklin was asked when he stepped out of the hall at Philadelphia where it had just been drawn up, "What kind of a government have you given us?"

He replied: "A REPUBLIC—if we can keep it." Could wise old Ben have been looking ahead with prophetic vision to the forces which in recent years have been and are working night and day to take that REPUBLIC away from us.

The next assault will undoubtedly be on our "Pledge To The Flag." We stand at public gatherings and with right hand over the heart proudly and loyally recite in union, "I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America and to the REPUBLIC for which it stands. . ."

That word "REPUBLIC" has been in the Pledge ever since its inception despite two additions which since have been made to it.

Now this same Post Office Dept. which is so concerned about calling our country what it really is —A "REPUBLIC"— is delivering free throughout the 50 state propaganda emanating from Moscow. When Moscow decides it has some "educational literature" for American consumption, it ships it in tons lots to U.S. ports of entry, already individually addressed. Our Post Office Dept. then delivers it FREE. In one recent year 7 million pieces of this communist propaganda were cleared through New York alone and tons more through Baltimore, Philadelphia, Boston, New Orleans, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Seattle. In addition every Czech and Polish ship touching a U.S. port brings with it Red "educational literature" for domestic FREE mailing.

Linn's Weekly Stamp News (the nation's leading philatelic magazine) in its May 1, 1961, issue quotes from the March 21, 1961, issue of Christian Economics, the following: ". . .The postal authorities have testified that they are powerless under the present law and Supreme Court rulings to intefere with the free distribution of this flood of Communist literature. . ."

This being true, it's high time the laws were changed. Otherwise, we will not be hearing the REPUBLIC which Ben Franklin announced the Founding Fathers evolved and gave to us.

Write your Congressmen regarding these assaults of our REPUBLIC—tell 'em to bestir themselves.

'Causes' Still Of Much Concern To Englishmen

By HENRY McLEMORE

ROME, ITALY — Englishmen started crusading back in the days of Richard the Lion - Hearted, and seven centuries later they still are hard at it.

No nation on earth has so many people, forwarding so many causes, as does England.

Where else but England would you find a society — and a big one, too — dedicated to the enlargement of the cages in which circus lions are transported from city to city?

Or an organization, complete with president, secretary, treasurer, and a whacking membership list, which has as its aim the protection of turtles and tortoises?

These are but two of hundreds which have come to my attention by a daily reading of the London papers. The crusaders for bigger and better and more comfortable lion cages are an aggressive lot, and generously supplied with money if their newspaper appeals for support are any yardstick.

Their latest advertisement is half a page in size, in all the principal London papers, and urges a boycott of circuses until the lions are given better accommodations. The ad points out that while lions are given ample cages when on exhibit, the cages they are moved about the country in are enough to bring shame to a country whose coat of arms bears a lion rampant.

To read the ad is enough to make even a lukewarm admirer of lions want to do something about the situation. The lions (so say the ads) are transported in cages little bigger than cat baskets, and wake up in the morning cramped, ill-tempered, and feeling little like kings of the jungle.

The tortoise ad turtle crusaders have as their goal the prohibition of the sale of these hard-backed fellows until they are four or more inches in length, and able to withstand the rigors of living with human beings. In the meantime, they are distributing tens of thousands of instruction sheets on the care and feeding of tortoises and turtles.

There are some Englishmen who complain (usually in letters to the editor) that in England human beings get far less sympathy and attention than creatures who are not members of the human race. These letter writers point out that the fox — a giant society is fighting to eliminate the fox hunt — is the object of much more pity and attention than, say, a ghetto child.

I wouldn't know about this, but I do know that England is probably the only country in the world where thousands of volunteers would respond to an appeal to go to the aid of a cargo of oysters stranded by a recent dock strike.

Told over the radio that the unattended oysters were suffering from thirst, and going through the tortures of the damned, men, women, and children streamed to the dock to lend the oysters a helping hand. No details were provided as to how the volunteers slaked the oysters' thirst.

There is also a sizable society in England whose aim is to restore punishment by flogging, and one dedicated to the improvement of field mice.

My favorite Englishman at the moment, however, is not a crusader at all, but a medical doctor who is mad about chess, and advertised in the personal columns that he would swap medical attention for chess lessons. Now if he had only said checkers, I'd go and see what he could do about that persistent pain I have between my shoulder blades.

Editor:

We are faced once again with a Senatorial election, Saturday, May 27, and with any kind of luck the taxpayers should be safe for the remainder of the year from further expenditures of this nature ($1,000,000 or so). However, as apathetic as we taxpayers are inclined to be when it comes to going to the polls, we should go all out to prevent repetitions of the reason for this election in the future.

The best and only course at our disposal is to install two-party government in Texas. The people of this state should be thankful that the Republican Party of Texas is firmly dedicated to solid conservative principles, and that their candidate John G. Tower is a highly competent man who adheres strictly to these principles. He has been quoted as follows: "After the election in April, people have come to me with the idea that I should moderate my stand on many issues so that some of the liberals would shift their support to me. I would emphasize that I am 100 per cent dedicated to sound, conservative government and will not moderate my stand on any of the issues either now or if elected."

—If we wish to reverse this trend toward pure socialism, then we had better elect a true conservative, John Tower, and in so doing insure the Republican Party's selection of good candidates for local, state, and national offices in the future. If those who regard a conservative as being radical, backward, etc. will just study the history of any country they will see that none have ever risen to great heights nor prospered for any length of time under a socialistic or anti-conservative system of government.

Very sincerely,
C. Warren Fatheree

Crude Oil Producers Report Income Drop

TULSA, Okla. (Spl) — A majority of domestic crude oil producers reported declining incomes in 1960 when both production and prices were lower than four years ago, a survey published by the Independent Petroleum Association of America indicated today.

The survey of industry earnings showed domestic crude producers in an economic slump which contrasted sharply with favorable 1960 earnings reported for larger industry units, particularly international companies.

Col. Alvin C. Hope, IPAA president of San Antonio, Texas, in an accompanying statement published in IPAA's magazine, Independent Petroleum Monthly, said the survey makes clear that "the oil producer in the United States is in economic trouble."

Hope said unhealthy conditions in the domestic oil industry are "reflected in virtually every statistic on oil exploration, drilling and development — and (have been) for four years."

The survey of industry earnings included an analysis of 36 primarily domestic producing oil companies, of which 58 per cent reported declines in earnings. This group of domestic producers had a combined net drop in earnings of four per cent below 1959.

"These companies, typical of the thousands of producing organizations which represent the backbone of the domestic industry," said Hope, "reflect in their financial statements conditions which have been obvious for some time: The domestic crude oil producer is the victim of a cost-price squeeze, complicated by static production, which presents a clear challenge to industry."

Hope said publicity on industry income earlier this year had been given to larger and predominately international companies, which reflected higher and in some cases record earnings.

"Even these earnings (for larger companies), if calculated as a return on investment, would be equal to or below the average manufacturing corporation," Hope added.

"But publicity on these individual company earnings tended to leave a public impression that the entire industry enjoyed a 'good' or 'record' year in 1960," Hope said.

"The favorable reports of a few companies were treated as barometers of the condition of the industry as a whole," he said. "This was misleading, and far from true."

"Income from domestic crude oil sales in 1960 was a half-billion dollars less than in 1957, four years ago, "due to lower production and lower prices," he said. "This fact should make apparent that domestic crude oil producers did not set any 'records' in 1960."

In 1960, Hope said, the domestic petroleum industry drilled 26 per cent fewer exploratory wells than in 1956, and 19 per cent fewer total wells. It operated 33 per cent fewer rigs than five years ago, and found 20 per cent less crude oil.

"These unhealthy conditions are continuing into 1961," IPAA's president said, "with operating rigs 10 per cent below a year ago, and exploratory drilling off 6 per cent."

"These conditions point more than ever to the need for changes in the mandatory import program, to accomplish a substantial reduction in imports other than residual fuel, and to better stabilize total imports in relation to domestic production," he said.

Pointing out that U. S. Bureau of Mines almost a year ago reported replacement cost of a barrel of domestic crude oil at $3.38, Hope said the present price is $3.00 per barrel.

"An industry selling its primary product below cost, regardless of volume, is in the process of self-liquidation," he said.

The IPAA earnings survey covered 69 oil companies, including 36 primarily crude oil producing companies, 21 integrated but primarily domestic companies, and 12 large or historic importing companies.

Earnings of the 36 domestic producing firms ended the year with a combined minus $6,249,890, or a net deficit of 4.07 per cent.

Company officials traced these declines to a combination of many factors — but most frequently mentioned in reports to shareholders of the 36 companies were "depressed crude oil prices. . .rising costs. . .low producing allowables . . .excessive imports."

Of the 21 primarily domestic integrated companies in the study, nine (43 per cent) had declines in earnings traced to depressed product and crude prices. The narrow profit margin of these companies was shown by the fact that total earnings of the 21 firms advanced only $10,295,413, or less than three per cent.

Of the 12 heavy or historic importers, only one reported a decline in net income. Combined earnings of these 12 companies were up $201,177,123 or about 9 per cent.

"Earnings statements of domestic producing companies, and all other facts available, indicated that the oil producer in the U. S. is in economic trouble," said the IPAA president.

"Because of the economic and strategic importance of oil to America, and the historic position of the independent producers as the nation's primary oil finders, this is a reality to which this industry should give its sober attention," the IPAA president concluded.

Aluminum Drill Pipe Test Set For Near Future

RICHMOND, Va., — The first string of aluminum drill pipe to be tested by a drilling contractor now is being tool jointed for delivery, Reynolds Metals Company announced today.

Prime Drilling Company, Wichita, Kans., has ordered a 5250-foot string from Reynolds for use in oil fields near McCook, Nebr. The light - weight pipe will be placed in use for further field testing.

Aluminum drill pipe — not yet available commercially — has been under tests for the past six months by Shell Oil Company. To date it has drilled more than 75,000 feet without failure or serious complication. Use of aluminum in this application has been under development by Reynolds for the past six years.

"We will use this new string on a Bethlehem twister rig rated at 7,000 feet. The pipe is expected to cut cost of moves from well to well, upgrade the rig for use at greater depths, lower cost of power needed to operate the rig and allow fewer men to handle the string," C. A. Prichard, president of Prime Drilling, said.

"These savings are directly related to the aluminum pipe's lighter weight. Because it weighs about half as much as steel, it can be handled with considerably less power. Also, the smooth bore of the aluminum pipe will reduce friction loss giving better drilling hydraulic and increased pump efficiency," Prichard said.

Phil Blackburn, engineering director, American Association of Oil Well Drilling Contractors, stated that this development is being closely watched by drilling contractors everywhere. About 95 per cent of all wells drilled are drilled by contractors, of which 70 per cent are drilled by independent operators.

"The petroleum industry is making every effort to drill holes faster and at lower costs. It is interested in any development that looks like might help the industry achieve these objectives," Mr. Blackburn said.

The drill string for Prime Drilling is made from 4½-inch aluminum pipe with standard Red "super Shrink - Grip" tool joints. The string is now being tooled up at Reed Roller Bit Company, Houston, Texas.

Prime Drilling Company normally operates in Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado and Oklahoma.

Landmen Plan Meet In June

The problems confronting the nation's Petroleum Landmen will come in for a complete airing in Houston this year when the American Association of Petroleum Landmen assembles for its annual meeting June 21-24.

With the Houston Association of Petroleum Landmen as hosts, outstanding leaders from the fields of petroleum, business and education will be on hand to present their views concerning the nation's business and petroleum future.

Convention General Chairman H. Jack Naumann, Humble Oil & Refining Company, in announcing the program, reported "Our topics for consideration will run the gamut of the industry. Our theme will be "The Place of the Petoleum Landman."

Convention Headquarters will be the nationally known Shamrock-Hilton Hotel.

American Association of Petroleum Landmen is the professional society, having a membership of more than 3,000 men engaged in petroleum land management and representing more than 600 companies.

The association's headquarter office is located in Fort Worth Texas.

Mr. George R. Bixler, B.B.M. Drilling Company, is acting president of the organization. Bixler has just been elected president for the year commencing in June.

Wildcatters Run Even In Operations

AUSTIN (UPI)—Wildcatters are running about even on their oil and gas discoveries this year, the State Railroad Commission said Saturday, but are far ahead of last year's finds.

The commission said wildcatters brought in six oil and 18 gas wells the past week, and found 67 dusters. The totals brought the year's discoveries to 183 oil and 185 gas wells, compared with 155 and 39 respectively, to the same time last year.

Regular operators brought in 206 oil well completions in the week and 79 gas wells, bringing the 1961 totals to 3,535 and 1,123 respectively. Last year's oil well total to date was 3,839 and gas completions totaled 716.

During the week, total average calendar day allowable rose from 2,654,686 to 2,663,065 barrels daily.

Wildcatters made five oil finds in the Houston district, the commission said, and one in the Corpus Christi district. Wildcatters made five gas finds in each of the Abilene and Corpus Christi districts, four in the Houston district, two in the Pampa district, and one each in the San Antonio and San Angelo districts.

Two Men Honored At Lefors Dinner

VOTE AGAINST DANCING

MONTPELIER, Vt. (UPI)—By an overwhelming margin, the Vermont House voted down a bill to allow Sunday dancing, now forbidden by the ancient blue laws.

The House rejected the measure Thursday 189-36, even with an amendment to allow Sunday dancing only after 2 p.m. and only at fraternal and service clubs or hotels where there is no charge.

ROB GHANA DIPLOMAT

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A diplomat from Ghana was robbed at knife-point Thursday by three Negro men who stopped him on the street by saying they wanted to chat about African affairs.

The discussion cost Mark B. Aaku, second secretary in charge of accounts at the Gahana Embassy, $31, his wrist watch, maroon necktie, and the coat of his London-made suit.

1 Card of Thanks 1

CLAUDIA SUE (FULTON) HORTON

We wish to express our sincere appreciation and deep gratitude to our many friends, especially the Rev. Ennis Hill and the Membership of the Calvary Baptist Church and the Rebecca Lodge for their words of comfort and deeds of kindness at the loss of our beloved Claudia Sue.

Not now, but in the coming years,
It may be in the better Land,
We'll read the meaning of our tears,
And there, sometime, we'll understand.

We'll catch the broken threads again,
And finish WHAT we here began;
Heaven will the mysteries explain,
And then, ah then, we'll understand.

We'll know why clouds instead of sun
Were over many a cherished plan;
Why song has ceased, when scarce begun;
'Tis there, sometime, we'll understand.

God knows the way, He holds the key,
He guides us with unerring hand;
Sometimes with tearless eyes we'll see;
Yes, there, up there, we'll understand.

Then trust in God through all thy days;
Fear not, for He doth hold thy hand;
Though dark the way, still sing and praise;
Sometime, sometime, we'll understand.

Mrs. Fulton, Neil, and Jerry
Clarence Horton.

Kennedy's Aide In Quest Of About 8 Million Jobs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Arthur J. Goldberg is the world's most ambitious job-hunter. He's looking for 8 million jobs.

He doesn't need any of them for himself because he's already fully employed, at a salary of $25,000 a year, as President Kennedy's secretary of labor.

But there are 5,500,000 other Americans who don't have jobs, and at least 1,500,000 more who are working only part time. Next month, more than 1,000,000 high school and college graduates will enter the labor force and begin looking for jobs.

"We've got to create an economic recovery that will afford job opportunities for these people," Goldberg said in an interview in his oak-paneled office on the third floor of the Labor Department Building on Constitution Avenue. "I regard this as our priority assignment."

Goldberg was special counsel for the AFL-CIO, and one of the most powerful figures in the U. S. union movement, before his appointment to the Cabinet. But his concern for the unemployed is not merely the reflection of a "labor viewpoint." It stems from a deep personal sympathy for human beings who are getting the short end of society's stick.

Arthur Goldberg grew up in Chicago's West Side slums, and has never forgotten what it's like to be poor. His memories have recently been refreshed by personal visits to industrial areas of seven eastern and midwestern states that have been hard-hit by unemployment.

In Duluth, Minn., Goldberg met a steelworker named Roy Patterson. "Mr. Secretary," Patterson said, "I've got four children at home and I've been unemployed for six months. I need work. Are you going to do something to help me?"

The question haunts Goldberg. When he looks at a government report on unemployment, he sees not cold statistics but millions of Roy Pattersons, all waiting for him to "do something."

Goldberg has, in fact, done a good deal already. He was a principal architect of the Kennedy administration's anti-recession program, and carried the main burden of testimony on Capitol Hill for the bills which have been enacted by Congress to extend unemployment compensation and to aid depressed areas.

Some of his former colleagues in organized labor have criticized the administration's efforts as inadequate, and have demanded more drastic measures in a hurry.

But Goldberg said there is "entire agreement" between him and President Kennedy on the pace of government efforts to stimulate recovery.

"I think the President's sense of timing is excellent," he said, underscoring the last word with a sweeping gesture of his right hand. "It obviously would not be apropriate to come forward with new proposals until Congress has completed action on those we originally advanced."

He acknowledged, however, that new proposals are under "active consideration" in the administration for submission to Congress later in this session.

One plan which has Goldberg's strong support calls for an outlay for several hundred million dollars to attack "hard-core" unemployment by retraining jobless workers in new skills.

The plan also calls for helping young people — especially those who have finished or dropped out of high school without acquiring marketable skills — to train themselves for employment in today's highly technological world. This might be done through on-the-job training programs in cities, with the government paying employers to teach the young people a trade. A supplementary idea is to set up a Youth Conservation Corps — reminiscent of the New Deal's CCC — to put young people to work in national parks and forests.

Goldberg was exactly on time for the interview — a rarity in the new administration, where being late for appointments seems to be a contagious habit of high officials. After preliminary pleasantries, he relaxed with one foot perched on the corner of his desk, a posture which heightened his strong resemblance to a college professor.

At 52, Goldberg is the second oldest member of the Cabinet, yielding seniority only to Secretary of Commerce Luther Hodges, who is 62. He is a man of medium build (5 feet 10, 153 pounds), with wavy gray hair, and wears thick-lensed, horn-rimmed glasses. He graduated from Northwestern University Law School at the age of 20 with the highest academic average ever achieved in that institution, and has retained the professional outlook of a legal scholar through his long years of front-line involvement in labor-management and political struggles.

Both in his devotion to ethical principles and in his humanitarianism, Goldberg reflects a Jewish religious heritage of which he is very proud. his grandfather was a rabbi and his father was president of an Orthodox synagogue. Goldberg retains sentimental ties with Orthodox Judaism, but has become an active member of the Reform branch.

"I'm a pragmatic person, not a preacher," he said. "But I do feel strongly that our nation needs to recover a strict sense of moral principle. If truth has indeed 'fallen in the street,' let's lift her up again. A Democratic society cannot function successfully except on the foundation of honesty, integrity and responsibility."

Stock Gambling Risky Business, Counselor Says

NEW YORK (UPI)— Got the urge to gamble?

If so, take an occasional trip to the race track or make an annual visit to Las Vegas; but stay out of the stock market.

This is the advice of a Chicago investment counselor who says a little harmless legal gambling for the "I'd like to double my money in a year" boys might help to rid them of a virus that could destroy them financially.

At least at the dice table or rouette wheel you are faced with established odds, Michael Marcus observed. You don't have to know what millions of fellow investors are thinking.

Marcus, who heads the firm bearing his name, noted that the woods are full of stock touts these days who can do infinitely more damage than their race track counterparts.

For one thing, he added, they "bum steer" more effectively, being for the large part nice, sincere, honest, over - enthusiastic people who really want to help.

These people don't even know they are touts, Marcus stated. They just repeat what they have heard about a company and subconsciousy garnish the tale with a little uneducated imagination and unsophisticated insight.

He said it sometimes takes a little practical psychology to handle new clients in the "make it fast" category. However, he added, once a man's gambling insticts have been withdrawn from his investment program he really can make money in the stock market —but in a span of years rather than months.

Marcus advises his clients not to buy stocks they are fairly sure they can keep for five years.

He admits that the smart speculator can make big money for a while, but "there comes a time when even the smartest find themselves wrong-touted, off-balanced, over-extended, and eventually broke."

The "what can I lose" philosophy common to incipient speculators can lead to financial death unless it is corrected early, the investment counselor declared.
