Ireland Quieted

By COLIN FROST
Associated Press Writer

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Violence subsided in Northern Ireland today. Britain's Cabinet went into emergency session in London and defense officials there moved to dispatch even more troops to help stop religious fighting.

The death today in a hospital of a man brought to six the toll of dead from fighting between Roamn Catholics and Protestants over the weekend. More than 200 other persons have been injured.

Soldiers with orders to shoot armed civilians on sight patrolled rubble-strewn sections of Belfast.

Violence developed in the independent Irish Republic in the south when Irish raiders threw gasoline bombs into British railroad offices and a British veterans' organization building in Cork.

That republic's foreign minister Patrick Hiller, flew to London to discuss the crisis with the British foreign secretary, Sir Alec Douglas-Home.

There was considerably less violence Sunday night as the British government rushed more troops in and emergency measures were proclaimed. Another 40 persons were injured in street fights, an explosion started a fire at an oil depot, but only one shooting was reported — a shotgun blast that wounded two soldiers slightly.

Police reported all quiet by 4 a.m.

Violence began Friday night over the jailing of Bernadette Devlin, the fiery young Roman Catholic leader sentenced to six months in prison for leading anti-Protestant riots last summer. The bloodiest toll came in 12 hours of fighting Saturday night as Catholics and Protestants fought each other and the steel-helmeted troops with rocks, bottles and gasoline bombs, and troops and snipers exchanged gunfire. Five civilians were killed and 161 civilians and soldiers were injured.

Provincial Premier James Chichester-Clark declared that his government was facing an attempted revolution. He ordered emergency measures into force, including a partial curfew and early closing of bars. He also promised new laws to deal with rioters but ruled out matrial law for the time being.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Monday, June 29, the 180th day of 1970. There are 185 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1946, the British arrested more than 2,700 Jews in Palestine on grounds they were terrorists.

On this date:

In 1577, the Flemish painter Peter Paul Rubens was born.

In 1776, Patrick Henry became governor of Virginia.

In 1880, France took control of the South Pacific island of Tahiti.

In 1941, former Polish Premier Ignace Paderewski died in New York at age 80.

In 1943, in the Pacific war, American forces landed on New Georgia Island in the Solomons.

In 1966, North Vietnam's capital, Hanoi, and the principal port Haipong were hit by U.S. bombers for the first time in the Vietnam War.

Ten years ago — The Cuban government siezed an American-owned oil refinery in Santiago de Cuba.

Five years ago — American paratroopers and South Vietnamese soldiers took part in their first joint operation against the Communists.

One year ago — A Canadian plane with 260 persons aboard made a safe landing in Ireland after an engine burst and sent debris flying into the fuselage.

WITH TONS OF RELIEF GOODS

Pat Arrives In Peru

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Arriving with nine tons of relief goods, Pat Nixon promised American help Sunday night for earthquake-stricken Peru until reconstruction ends "and everything is rosy once again."

The First Lady of the United States was welcomed with a warm, affectionate Latin embrace and kisses on both cheeks by Peru's first lady, Consuela Gonzalez de Velasco.

"In this embrace and kiss which I give you," said Mrs. Velasco, "is the spirit of all my Peru and of all that which we are suffering in these moments."

The two women, whose husbands are presidents of lands 4,000 miles apart, had never met before. They were brought together by the Western Hemisphere's worst earthquake in this century and by the desire of both their countries to improve strained relations.

Together, they launched two days of good will touring designed to get more relief supplies to the 500,000 Peruvians made homeless by the quake May 31.

Mrs. Nixon and her hostess were flying into the devastated Huaylas Canyon today to deliver some of the blankets and tents Mrs. Nixon brought in her husband's personal jet plane Sunday night. A U.S. military cargo plane brought the bulk of the supplies.

Shortly after Mrs. Nixon's arrival at the U.S. Embassy residence, U.S. and Peruvian officials showed her before-and-after photos and gave her a 45-minute briefing on the disaster.

They told her of the heroism of helicopter pilots who risked their lives flying rescue missions at high altitudes amid the towering Andes peaks.

U.S. Ambassador Taylor G. Belcher described his own experience at Chaclacayo, in the foothills of the Andes, when the quake struck that Sunday afternoon. It seemed like a thousand express trains came through all at once," he said. " ... The house seemed to be on strings ... cars were jumping on their springs."

The devastation covered an area the size of Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands combined, said Augusto Zimmerman, director of Peru's information office, who estimated it would take $500 million to rebuild the devastated towns and villages.

In the past 30 years, Zimmerman told Mrs. Nixon, there have been a little less than 10,000 deaths in all of Peru's national disasters. But this single one is estimated to have taken 50,000 lives.

He said the response from other nations has showed Peru that "we have friends coming from every place in the world" and that this was "not only a Peruvian catastrophe but a human one."

"This disaster is far from over," Carson T. Crocker, the U.S. Embassy's relief coordinator, told Mrs. Nixon. Vitally needed now, he said, is protection from the cold—roofing and clothing for about 100,000 refugees who have nothing "but the clothes on their backs."

State Has Showers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thundershowers reached the Rio Grande Valley into Southwest and West Texas Sunday night with weathermen predicting rains today.

Scattered rains and ragged thundershowers pelted an area from around Del Rio as far north as Lubbock this morning. Temperatures were mostly in the 70s with a few low 80s reported across the state.

The Weather Bureau said the precipitation would move into the Panhandle today with afternoon heating causing some isolated showers and thunderstorms in South Central and along the Coastal Plains.

At dawn, temperatures were beginning to climb and the Weather Bureau said the heat would be filtering through mid and high level cloudiness, thus adding to the humidity level.

Abilene at dawn had 76 degrees while Dallas had 80 and Waco reported 77.

C5 Loss-Sharing Plan Proposed

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Air Force general has suggested to Congress that the government share up to half Lockheed Aircraft Corp.'s predicted $647 million loss on the C5 cargo jet and loan Lockheed money to cover the rest.

Lt. Gen. Otto J. Glasser, a deputy Air Force chief of staff, denied it is a bailout plan for Lockheed.

"We are in the same boat with them," Glasser told the House defense appropriations subcommittee April 20 in testimony released today. "So we are bailing us out, if that is the word to use."

He said this might be the best and even cheapest way for the Air Force to get the giant transport plane.

Suggesting Lockheed hid its cost problems in 1968 so the Air Force would buy more of the planes, Glasser said the company's management has been "less than satisfactory." His suggested solution includes an Air Force voice in Lockheed's management of the program.

The C5 loss-sharing, loan plan was included in testimony in closed-door hearings on the military's full range of aircraft, missiles, ships, tanks and other hardware procurement requests.

Other highlights:

—The Air Force plans to halt its purchases of the controversial F111 swing-wing jet fighter with the 40 requested next year, for a total force of 554 of the planes. Glasser said he is "not completely satisfied" with the F111—he said it is a little heavier and slower than originally planned—but he said it is a good plane and will carry out its mission.

—The Air Force has 10 MIRV-tipped Minuteman III missiles in silos and plans to install 500, apparently by 1975 although the censored transcript left the time schedule unclear.

The MIRVs—multiple independently, targetable re-entry vehicles—are clusters of three warheads that can be dropped off one by one on enemy targets as the missile flies over them.

Glasser said the $647 million payment-loan plan to give Lockheed the cash flow to keep C5 production going is one of three alternatives being considered by the Pentagon.

Another alternative, he said, is a government loan of all cash flow needs, which he said could backfire and bankrupt Lockheed if it could not repay the loan.

He said the third alternative, on which he gave no details, is to rewrite the C5 contract.

Tarr Meets With Draft Age Advisers

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a call for help from Draft Director Curtis W. Tarr, 107 draft-age advisers to the Selective Service System headed for closed meetings today to work out a list of gripes and recommendations.

Tarr welcomed the group Sunday night with the words, "We need your help." The young advisers, almost all of them male and none over 22, come from the 56 states and territories.

They were to meet in closed briefing sessions all day today, hear remarks by White House counsellor Patrick Moynihan Tuesday, participate in the draft lottery drawing Wednesday and present their evaluations and recommendations on the draft system Thursday.

The advisers are representatives of state advisory committees set up by presidential order in June 1969.

Nasser Is Meeting With Red Leaders

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser arrived in the Soviet Union today and was expected to discuss with Soviet leaders the new American Middle East peace proposals and his country's defense needs.

The Arab leader's visit came in the wake of statements by Palestinian guerrilla leaders that they would sabotage any effort at reaching a political settlement between Arab governments and Israel.

On the battle fronts, Israeli warplanes raided Jordan and southeast Lebanon Sunday in retaliation for Arab guerrilla attacks that killed one civilian and wounded two civilians and two policemen. The Israeli air force also kept up its day-and-night attacks on Egyptian posts along the Suez Canal.

The military command in Tel Aviv said its planes attacked Arab guerrilla strongholds on Mt. Hermon in southeast Lebanon for 35 minutes and hit guerrilla bases in Jordan three times Sunday. Large numbers of planes also bombed intermittently along the canal during the day and the strikes continued through the night.

No Israeli planes were lost, spokesmen said.

Nixon Studying Foreign Policy

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon, launching a work week emphasizing foreign policy questions, scheduled meetings today with Secretary of State William P. Rogers and the foreign minister of Communist Romania.

Nixon confers with Rogers just before the secretary of state heads for Southeast Asia.

The Romanian foreign minister, Corneliu Manescu, one of Nixon's hosts in Bucharest last August, was in California for the San Francisco observance of the 25th birthday of the United Nations. Romania is among Warsaw Pact countries proposing a mutual East-West European troop pullback.

Rogers flew to California Sunday night with Marshall Green, assistant secretary of state for East Asian and Pacific affairs, and Richard Pedersen, counselor for the State Department. Green and Pedersen were joining in the meeting with the President.

In announcing Sunday Manescu's visit, White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon certainly would discuss with him recent disastrous floods in their native land. He did not say whether the East-West troop pullback plan would be on the agenda.

Nixon spent most of Sunday preparing for a report he will issue Tuesday on U.S. ground troops in Cambodia and for an hour-long live television discussion Wednesday night on foreign policy matters with representatives of the three major TV networks.

The chief executive went to his office in the Western White House early Sunday morning after flying to El Toro Marine Air Station, north of here, to bid bon voyage to Mrs. Nixon, who went to Peru to dramatize American concern about victims of earthquakes. Mrs. Nixon will return to San Clemente Tuesday night.

Tuesday marks Nixon's self-proclaimed deadline for withdrawal of American ground forces from Cambodia. At a private briefing here for newspaper and broadcast industry editors and executives Friday, administration foreign policy and military aides said the Cambodian venture would be followed up by renewed efforts at achieving a negotiated settlement of the war.

Nixon underscored the peace quest Saturday when he expressed American support for efforts by an Asian diplomatic team which has that objective.

Day Ahead Of Schedule

By RICHARD PYLE
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — The last American combat troops in Cambodia pulled back into South Vietnam this afternoon, in effect completing the U.S. withdrawal one day ahead of President Nixon's deadline.

Still in Cambodia but scheduled to leave by midnight Tuesday were a handful of American advisors to some of the 39,000 South Vietnamese troops also still there. Although these Americans also are being pulled out, the South Vietnamese will keep forces beyond the border for an indefinite period to bolster the shaky government of premier Lon Nol.

Only very light contact was reported as the last mud-caked 1,800 men of the 1st Air Cavalry Division walked or flew across the border north of Saigon, closing out the 60-day drive into enemy munitions and supply dumps that Nixon has called the "most successful" operation of the Vietnam war.

Meanwhile, Premier Lon Nol of Cambodia said in Phnom Penh that he hoped Nixon would send U.S. troops back into his country if his government's military situation deteriorated further.

Nol made clear at a news conference that U.S. air forces have been giving tactical air support to Cambodian ground troops and said the Pentagon had assured him this would continue after June 30.

U.S. officials contend that all U.S. air attacks in Cambodia have been against enemy supply lines, and Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said last Friday that this bombing would continue after June 30. But Laird refused to say whether American planes would also provide support for Cambodian troops, commenting: "I don't believe that it's good practice ... to give flat answers on operational orders as far as the future is concerned."

The U.S. Command announced that no Americans were killed in either South Vietnam or Cambodia in the 24-hour period ending at midnight Sunday, the first time this had occurred since last Christmas Day when a cease-fire was in effect. But early today three Americans were killed and 11 wounded in a North Vietnamese attack on a night camp of the 5th Mechanized Division's 1st Brigade just south of the demilitarized zone. The command said two of the enemy were killed.

Action elsewhere was light and scattered, with U.S. forces reporting at least 14 wounded, two of them in Cambodia.

South Vietnamese forces reported several clashes with 45 North Vietnamese killed and two captured in a fight two miles south of the demilitarized zone.

Nol May Seek US Aid Again

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Cambodian Premier Lon Nol said today if his government's military situation deteriorates further he hopes President Nixon will send American ground troops back into his country.

The premier made clear during a news conference that the United States has been directly assisting Cambodian ground troops with tactical air support and that he has been assured this will continue after Tuesday, Nixon's deadline for the withdrawal of American ground forces.

He said he had been in contact with President Nixon since the U.S.-South Vietnamese intervention and the U.S. Defense Department had assured him that American air support for Cambodian troops would continue. But he would not say whether this might include B52 bomber strikes.

He said the enemy strength in Cambodia had risen to a peak of 65,000 troops but since the U.S. and South Vietnamese attacks the enemy strength had fallen to an estimated 35,000. He added that this still included between six and seven North Vietnamese and Viet Cong divisions.

Drugs Found With Bodies

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The largest cache of drugs believed to have been confiscated in Missouri was seized by police early Sunday after the bodies of a St. Louis man and woman were found in the woman's north side apartment.

Police said the cache included heroin worth an estimated $1.5 million on the black market.

Clemons Wilks, 24, and Barbara Clay, 38, were each shot four times in the head at close range between late Friday and early Sunday, police said.

The cause of the shooting was not known and there was no indication whether police had any clues as to the identity of the assailant or assailants.

The shooting was discovered, police said, by Mrs. Clay's mother and sister who went to the apartment after they were unable to reach Mrs. Clay by telephone Friday night and Saturday.

Weekend Violent Death Toll Grim

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gunfire, rending car metal, water and airplanes joined forces over the last weekend of June to kill Texans at a desperate pace.

By midnight Sunday, the count of violent deaths in Texas reached 51 with 19 killed in car wrecks, 13 in shootings and 14 persons drowned.

The Associated Press began its grim count of weekend violence at 6 p.m. Friday, ending at midnight Sunday.

A 16-year-old Garland girl, Onell Johnson, drowned late Sunday at Lake Ray Hubbard—the third person to drown there Sunday. Investigators said the young girl slipped from an automobile tire tube on which she had been floating.

Cristobal Pena, 69, of Bruni in Webb County was killed Sunday when he apparently fell asleep while driving his pickup truck. The Texas Department of Public Safety said Pena's pickup overturned on Farm Road 2050, about 48 miles east of Laredo.

Mercedesk Rejas Villanueva, 86, of San Antonio was killed Sunday when two cars collided headon on Interstate 35 near Cotulla. Her husband and two men from Edinburg were injured in the crash.

Maurice O'Neill, 31, of Houston was shot and killed Saturday night when he scuffled with two police patrolmen. One of the officers said O'Neill approached their squad car, grabbed for a gun and said he wanted to go to Pampa.

Travis Winsett, 55, a Ranger area farmer was shot to death Saturday. Officers, who found the farmer's body in a well about 5 miles from his home, said bloodstains indicated he was shot in his home.

Johnny Ray Patton, a Dallas resident, was shot to death Friday night in a Dallas lounge. Police, who said Patton was struck in the chest with a .22 caliber slug, said they wanted a 40-year-old man in connection with the shooting.

Three other Dallas residents died in Saturday violence in the city. Morris M. Acey, 20, was shot to death in what police said was an argument with a filling station attendant. James Earl Spencer, 24, died of gunshot wounds suffered in a Dallas apartment house. Mrs. Kathleen Pitts, 36, was killed when her car went out of control, slammed into a storm sewer and then struck three trees.

Gerald William Liles, 18, of Houston was shot in what was apparently a robbery attempt on him and another youth. Police said Liles' companion escaped the ski-masked bandit Friday night by rolling under an automobile.

Juan Manuel Sanchez, 25, was shot to death during an argument Friday night in a Houston apartment complex. Police said the case would be referred directly to the grand jury without charges.

Henry Zeno, 25, and Walter Dallas Jr., 25, were stabbed to death late Friday night in Houston. Police said Dallas and another man attempted to [illegible] Zeno.

Tom Kuchkinsky, 36, of Milwaukee, Wis., died Saturday when his World War II P51 Mustang crashed 4 miles northeast of Harlingen's airport. Kuchinsky was flying in formation with two other planes of the Confederate Air Force.

Freddie Lynn Land, 12, of Houston drowned Saturday in a swimming pool at Dodson Lake Park. The boy's body was found at the bottom of the pool and a lifeguard's efforts to revive him were futile.

Kenneth Pender, 37, of Beaumont drowned late Friday in Sam Rayburn Reservoir. His body was recovered Saturday.

Herm L. Hall, 44, of Odessa died Saturday in a car-truck collision, about 20 miles West of Midland. Officers spotted the site of the accident at the intersection of Farm Road 829 and Texas 176.

Glen H. Cathie, 31, of Achilles, Okla., drowned Saturday while scuba diving in the Red River near Denison. His body was found about two hours later.

Charlie Buck, 23, of Rock Springs was shot to death while sitting in a car in Real County. Rangers said they will ask three companions to take a lie detector test Monday.

Air Force Sgt. Louis D. Davis, 22, of Sheppard Air Force Base died of injuries suffered Friday night when his car overturned. The accident occurred on a county road west of Wichita Falls.

Gregory Lee Overton, 18, of Houston drowned Saturday in Sam Rayburn Reservoir near San Augustine. The body was recovered before nightfall.

Louis Thompson, 27, of Houston was shot to death Friday night at his home. Officers arrested a man in connection with the shooting.

Franklin Cox Jr., 13, of Houston was killed Friday night when he was struck by a car. Officers said the accident occurred on a city street.

Derby Ardoin, 24, of Beaumont was shot to death Friday night at his home. Police held a woman for questioning.

Jenkins Rites At Abilene

Mrs. Maude M. Jenkins, 84, of Abilene died at 11:25 p.m. Sunday in Hendrick Memorial Hospital after a lengthy illness. Funeral services will be conducted at 10 a.m. Tuesday at Elliot's Chapel of Memories in Abilene. Rev. J. Roy Haynes, pastor of Gail Baptist Church, will officiate, assisted by Rev. Sandy Sandlin, pastor of Free Will Methodist Church in Abilene. Burial will follow at noon in Snyder Cemetery.

Mrs. Jenkins was born in Hunt County on June 16, 1886, and had lived in Fannin and Coleman Counties. She married Homer Jenkins, Dec. 4, 1910, in Coleman. He preceded her in death in 1934. Mrs. Jenkins was a resident of Snyder from 1917 until she moved to Abilene in 1939. She was a member of the Methodist Church.

She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Mozelle Johnson of Ft. Worth; Mrs. Pauline Clark of Gail; Mrs. Allie Ruth Dickey of Abilene; three sons, Richard of Austin; Wilmer of Temple and Ensley of San Antonio; a sister, Mrs. Julia Jurick, of Florida, six grandchildren and 2 great-grandchildren.

Truck Damaged In Highway Blaze

Snyder firemen were called to a truck fire about 8 miles southeast of town on U. S. 84 at about midnight last night.

The cab of a 1964 International truck driven by James Graves of Memphis, Tenn., was gutted by the blaze, firemen reported.

Highway patrolmen, who also were called to the scene, said the vehicle was under lease to Morgan Drive-Away. Origin of the fire had not been determined.

Houston Patrolman Kills Hijacker

HOUSTON (AP)—A Houston man was shot to death Sunday after officers said he tried to hijack their police car.

The dead man was identified by papers found on his body as Maurice O'Neal of Houston.

Homicide detectives said patrolman B. E. Edon shot O'Neal with his partner's guns after O'Neal took Edon's gun.

Police said they had received a complaint that O'Neal had been to a Houston home early Sunday and demanded money from its occupants, saying he had to go to Pampa and kill a man.

Police said the family threatened to turn their dog on O'Neal and O'Neal then ran into the street where he met a police car responding to the call and jumped into the seat.

He put a knife to the throat of Edon's partner, L. G. Hooper, police said, and demanded he be driven to Pampa. The officers began fighting O'Neal, they said, and O'Neal was shot.

2 Mishaps Are Logged

There was substantial damage to five vehicles, but only minor personal injuries in two traffic mishaps investigated by highway patrolmen last night and this morning.

Five persons were treated for minor injuries and released following a two-car crash at 9:20 p.m. Sunday at the intersection of Huffman Avenue and U. S. 84. Involved were a 1958 Ford driven by Joe Villanueva of Snyder and a 1966 Ford driven by Felix Zuniga of Lubbock. Zuniga's car was headed north on U. S. 84 while Villanueva's car was headed east of Huffman. Both cars were heavily damaged.

At 7:30 a.m. today, a three-car crash occurred west of the airport on Thirty-seventh Street. Involved were a 1961 Mercury driven by Faustino Torres, Route 2, Snyder; a 1965 Ford driven by Donald Lee Belcher, 2701 Avenue X, and a 1959 Chevrolet driven by Delwyn Keith Davis of Ira. Damage to the Chevrolet was estimated at $550, to the Ford at $350 and to the Mercury at $40.

Firestone Rites Today

Mrs. Flossie Firestone, 93, died at 11 a.m. Saturday in Clovis, N. M.

A native of Bolivar, Mo., Mrs. Firestone had lived in the Clovis area for 63 years.

Funeral service was set for 2 p.m. today at the Central Baptist Church in Clovis, with Dr. Carl Scott officiating. He was to be assisted by the Rev. Neal Foster. Burial was to be in Mission Garden of Memorials.

Mrs. Firestone is survived by two daughters, Mrs. M. H. Roe of Snyder and Mrs. Hollis Browning of Plainview; three sons, Otis Firestone of Snyder, Glen Firestone of Clovis and Finis Firestone of Portales, N. M.; a brother, W. E. Baker of Little Rock, Ark.; 11 grandchildren, 27 great-grandchildren.

Grandsons were to be pallbearers.

Lubbock Girl Is Raped

LUBBOCK (AP)—A Lubbock girl was raped by three teenagers early today while her companion, 18, was locked in the trunk of his car.

Police said the girl, 17, was being treated at a hospital while officers searched for the three thugs and her friend's missing car.

Officers said the three attacked the couple in a city park with a gun and a knife. The girl's companion was locked in the trunk of the car while the three drove around with their victim.

Police said the boy told them he and the girl were released later and the three sped away in his car.

Neither was believed seriously injured.

Remarkable gasoline breakthrough from the laboratories of Chevron Research Company

BEFORE

"This car was placed in a clear plastic bag with its dirty engine running. The bag started to fill with dirty exhaust until the exhaust completely obscured the car. This shows how exhaust emissions from dirty engines go into the air and waste mileage."

Scott Carpenter
Astronaut/Aquanaut
personally witnesses this dramatic demonstration.

AFTER F-310

"The same car—after running on just six tanksful of Chevron with Formula F-310. Dirty exhaust emissions reduced sharply. The bag remains clear! No dirty smoke. Chevron with F-310 turns dirty smoke into good clean mileage."

New F-310 in Chevron gasolines turns dirty exhaust into good clean mileage.

Now, scientists at Chevron Research Company have achieved the most long-awaited gasoline development in history! It's a new gasoline additive—Formula F-310*—that sharply reduces dirty exhaust from dirty engines. And helps toward cleaner air.

Tests conducted by Scott Research Laboratories, an independent research group, showed that Chevron gasolines with F-310 reduced unburned hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide exhaust emissions dramatically. Clearly, this is a major step towards solving one of today's most urgent problems.

F-310 also improves mileage, because dirty exhaust is really wasted gasoline. So F-310 literally keeps good mileage from going up in smoke.

How does an engine produce dirty exhaust in the first place? As a car accumulates mileage, deposits build up. The amounts of gasoline and air fed into the engine get out of balance. This causes the engine to "run rich," wasting gasoline. As a result, excessive unburned hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide exhaust emissions go into the air. F-310 can correct this condition. Just six tanksful can do the job.

Formula F-310, a patented gasoline additive, is now available in Chevron gasolines wherever you see the F-310 sign.

Father Role That Of Leader And Companion

By JUDY SAMMON
Cleveland Plain Dealer Writer

CLEVELAND (AP) — "It is a wise father that knows his own son." —Shakespeare.

The saddest thing about modern family life is that many fathers, instead of children, are seen, but not heard.

[illegible] infrequently, if they are successful businessmen, asserts Dr. Walter S. Nosal, director of the counseling center at John Carroll University, who has handled enough cases over the past 25 years to convince him that often the most successful men are the least successful fathers.

"I talk to many successful men who claim to be fathers; I call them breadwinners," said the crew-cut, blue-eye psychologist, folding into a chair in his small, but busy campus office.

His new booklet, "For Successful Men only—Some Plain Talk on Raising Your Son," is reared to restoring father power in a paling patriarchy.

The father of six children himself, Dr. Nosal subscribes to the theory that in raising a child, love is not enough; a son, especially, needs the attention and presence of a father to teach him how to live.

"Too many successful men are too busy to spend time alone with their sons," he says, an advocate of father-son activities together. "They're too wrapped up in their business or social commitments to establish deep bonds with their sons.

"Who, after all, is there to applaud a 40-year-old man who helps his son build a tree hut? Fathers fail to see that the child can receive more of an education in those few hours spent together than any school can teach him."

In lieu of presence, fathers often offer presents and advice, Dr. Nosal asserts. In the vernacular of youth, that's copping out.

When a father is not there to provide constant and consistent direction, or a blueprint of conduct and development for his son to follow, the neglect will manifest [illegible] in some unacceptable way, Dr. Nosal believes.

The son may demonstrate this through rebellious acts, undisciplined behavior, or disrespect for his father.

The trend towards "unisex," for instance, with young men donning the accoutrements and look of females, is, in his opinion, partly the result of the neglect of strong paternal guidance.

"How can a son identify with an absent or almost-always absent father?" he asks.

Learning how to live has become subordinated to learning how to make a living, Dr. Nosal implied and this inversion of principles has alienated many young people. Since most of today's successful businessmen are products of the 20s and 30s, who experienced economic deprivation, their economic determinism has deeply affected their sons, in a negative way.

"What child is going to see the value of—let's say—declining verbs, when he knows that his XKE is parked outside ready to go, or that a trip to Europe this summer is his merely for the asking? A boy needs a father who'll say 'no,' who will serve as his brakes in situations that require discipline. A child who has never had these brakes will find it difficult to apply them when he needs them later on."

No one can dispute the importance of starting at the beginning, but in Dr. Nosal's philosophy, there is never a problem in a father-son relationship that is too late to resolve.

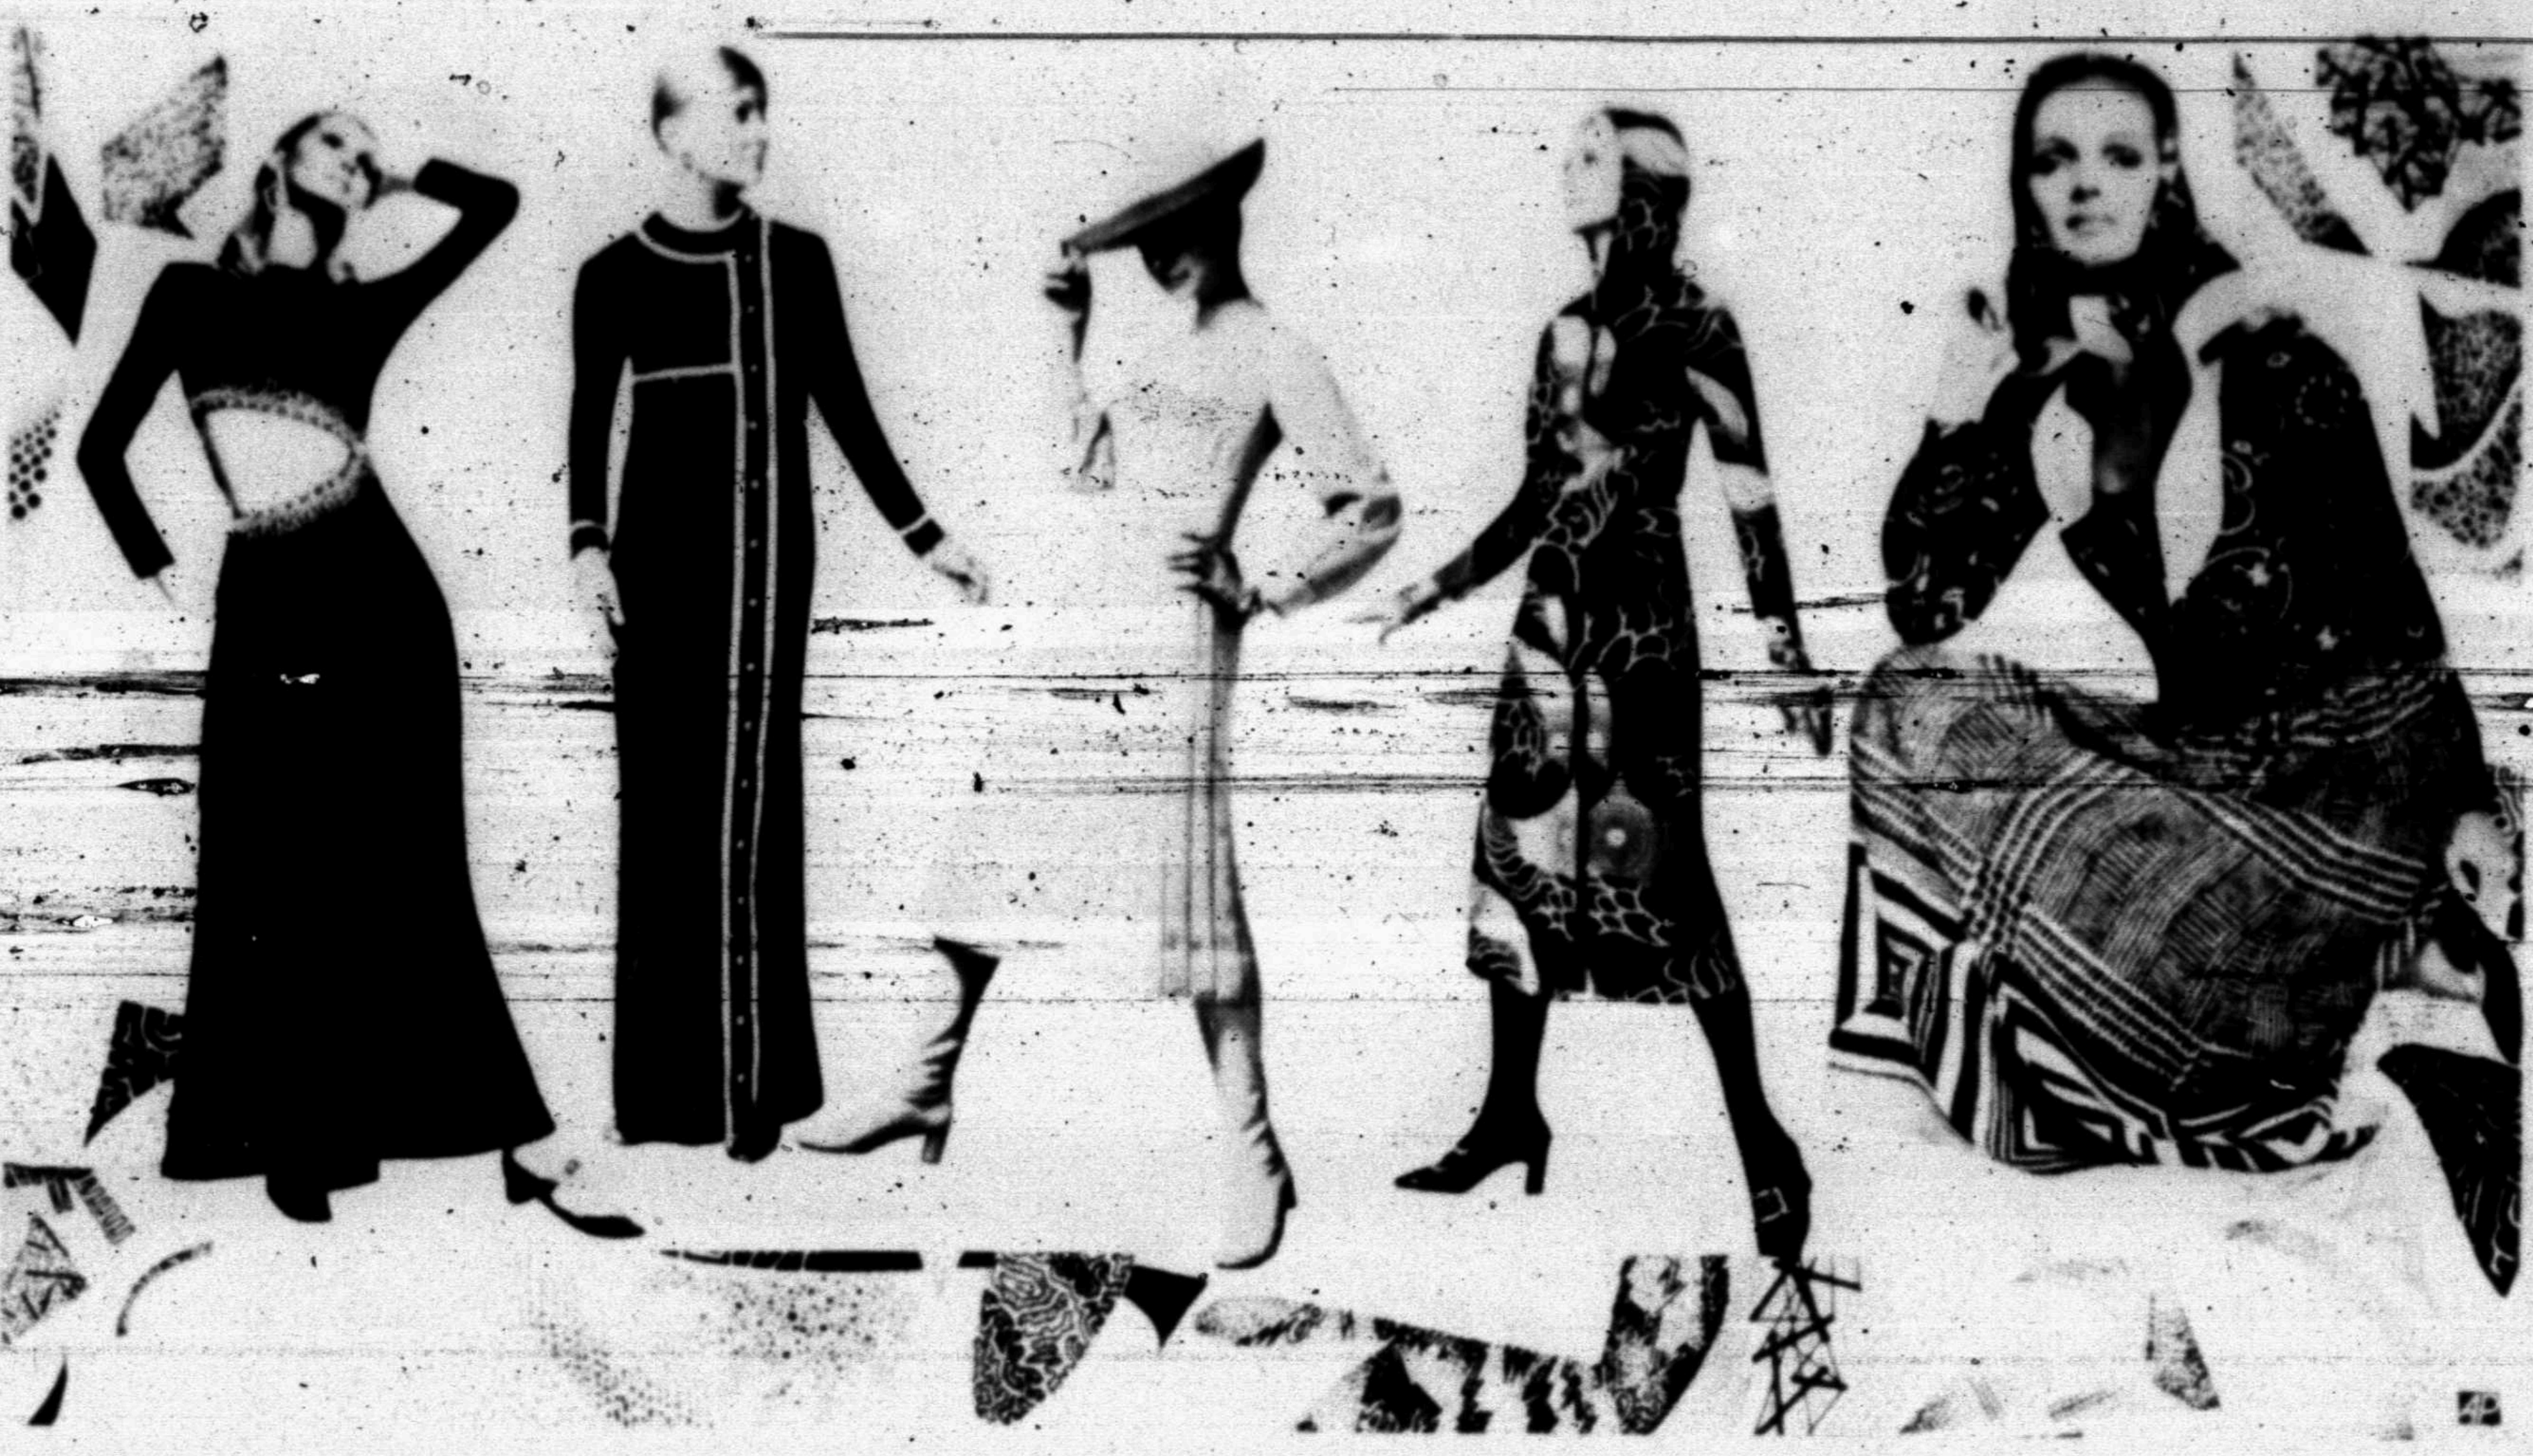
The role a father should assume in raising his son from toddler to teen-ager is that of the coach, an uncompetitive-type relationship where the father directs and releases the talents of his son, acting as his leader as well as his companion. His booklet treats the crisis of late adolescent years, including today's increasing drug usage among teen-agers.

Dr. Nosal says that he cannot overemphasize the importance of a father being present in his son's life, taking the time and pains in guiding his son to become a responsible and responsive human being.

The father whose own success blinds him to the needs of his son is a miserable failure as a parent. Time, presence and energy are the biggest contributions a father can give his son:

"The essentials, and not the externals," as Dr. Nosal defines.

"When you look back on your life," says Dr. Nosal in his booklet, "your pride will not be in the size of the estate you are going to leave, but what you have done to help those who needed you."



WOOL'S IN FASHION for the "Great Lady" look of the fall. Sheer black wool (left) destined for dramatic evenings is fitted and flared by designer Jennifer, a division of Jerry Silverman. It's highlighted by a jewel-trimmed midriff cutout, and long, skinny sleeves. Cost: about $90. From Geoffrey Beene comes this evening dress in soft, flowing navy wool, side-fastened and trimmed in silver braids and silver buttons. Cost, about $190. From Travilla comes this romantic longuette in ivory wool crepe. A midriff cross pattern is formed by an absence of umbrella pleating. A color matching wide brimmed hat of wool velour sets off the longer skirt. Chester Weinberg's midi has an oriental flavor, its soft kimono styling, perfect for the longer length. Made of sheer wool jersey patterned from a stylized lotus print, it has Oriental accents such as the obi sash and wraparound skirt. Cost: about $150. Elinor Simmons of Malcolm Starr's designed this paisley and plaid peasant look and matching scarf in sheer, red white and purple wool. Approximate cost: $80.

Unstructured Summer Projects For Children

By MERLE HARPE
Chicago Daily News Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — A good cure for a child's summer doldrums is an on-again, off-again project or new hobby. It should be something a child can do when he feels like it, or ignore for a few days when other activities have his interest.

Here are some suggestions for unstructured summer projects that a child can do without adult supervision, except for a helping hand at the start. Most will cost less than $5, and some are free if you have on hand a few simple hand tools, a little imagination, or lots of junk.

GARDENING—Children are fascinated by things that grow, and even a first-grader can have a successful garden. A few hardy vegetables and flowers that don't require a great deal of weeding and pest control are the best choices.

PETS—Children love animals, especially baby animals, and the grade-schooler probably is old enough to have a young pet. Summer is an ideal time to introduce a new pet. The child has the time now to get to know a kitten or puppy, to play with it and take an active part in training or caring for it.

PHOTOGRAPHY—Although this is not the usual project one considers for youngsters, it may be one of the best for summer. A camera that costs from $5 to $10 and is practically foolproof can give hours of pleasure, to even a first-grader.

TINKERING—A box full of odds and ends from the family workbench is a treasure trove for the boy who likes to tinker. It's a real bonanza if you can toss in a broken alarm clock, radio or other household castoffs. Spools, bits of wire and string, a few paper clips and rubberbands are other good ingredients.

Girls are not immune to tinkering, either. Scraps of cloth, odds and ends of wrapping paper and ribbon, bits of broken costume jewelry and a couple of shoe boxes are the ingredients for many happy afternoons of quiet play.

MODEL-BUILDING—There are kits for building practically anything: simple planes, cars, boats and animals; more elaborate models with working engines; radios and other electronic devices. The latter require a substantial investment, up to $50, but they might be the right reward for good grades at the end of the school year.

SCIENCE—Besides the usual chemistry kit, there are items of scientific apparatus that are especially suited to summertime use and are not expensive. A microscope and some slides (less than $10) are wonderful for close-up views of insect wings, seeds, leaves and other warm weather wonders.

Hobby shops offer an astounding variety of kits and materials for crafts and science projects. They may be the best first stop in the search for a child's summer project.

Designers Go To All Lengths

By ANN HENCKEN
AP Fashion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "They're clothes. The important thing this season is to smile. Nobody's smiling," says designer Stan Herman.

Herman, who designs for Mr. Mort, introduced his fall collection Thursday at the American Designer Showings, Fall 1970.

In spite of the fact many people find the somber-colored midis depressing, there were bright moments at Thursday's showings.

For one thing, Victor Joris for Cuddlecoat presented some of the highest side slit skirts of the season.

The leg flashes through slits in long skirts "with a bravado and appeal far surpassing the mini," read the commentary. It would definitely take bravado to wear some of the skirts, believe it or not.

Aside from the quiet colors in his midi collection, Joris showed a cheerful tomato-red pants ensemble.

"I think we're going to more color next spring," said Stan Herman. "I don't want to see the people depressed."

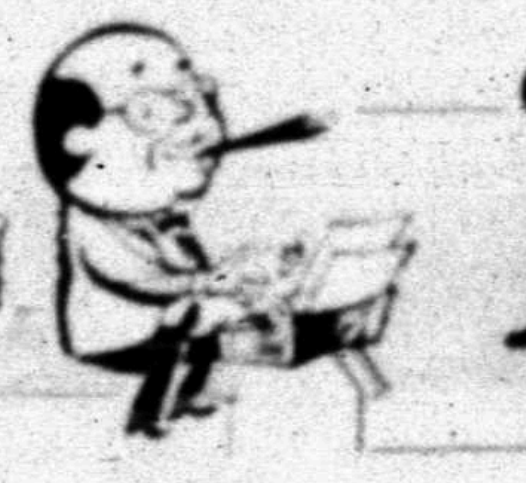
His colors were often dark reds, camels and greys.

His "knee knockers" are two inches below the knee. His coats are midcalf. His standard lengths are four inches longer than last year.

However, he says, "I don't think the short skirt is completely dead. It may come back in new shapes and sizes."

Designer Lynn Stuart of Mister Pants said her short skirts didn't sell for fall, but longer lengths sold well.

"If a woman is not ready for the midi, she'll wear pants before she'll wear a short skirt," she says.



ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG

Fir plywood is strong and inexpensive, two good reasons why it's the best selling of all plywoods.

But fir plywood requires special attention if you want to give it a first-class finish. It has a wild grain which absorbs finishing materials at different rates and sometimes reappears after seemingly being thoroughly covered. It is inclined to check in areas of high humidity and may produce uneven surfaces when sanded excessively.

All these potential problems can be avoided if you use the proper type of sealer before applying the finish coat. Specially formulated for use on fir—although it has some other uses—it tames the wild grain sufficiently so that paint, varnish or any other finish can be applied with assurance of success.

The special sealer is made by several companies. When buying it, be sure it says on the label that it is intended for use on fir plywood or fir. There are two kinds: clear and white. The clear is used when the final coat is to be varnish, lacquer, shellac or one of the other clear finishes. The white is used when the plywood is to be painted.

Fir plywood comes in both interior and exterior types. The interior is expected to retain its form and practically all of its strength when occasionally subjected to a thorough wetting and subsequent normal drying. The exterior is expected to retain its form and strength when repeatedly wet and dried and otherwise subjected to the elements.

(For Andy Lang's helpful booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743.)

Within both the interior and experior types, there are several grades established by the quality of the veneer on the two faces of a panel. Grade A is of the highest quality with no visible defects. Grade B permits sound, tight knots and must be free from visible defects except splits not wider than 1/32nd of an inch. Grade C allows more leeway for repaired areas and is generally used for underlayment. Grade D usually has larger knots, pitch pockets and repair patches.

If you see two grade marks on a panel—such as A-D, it neans that one face is of A quality, the other of D, which would make it suitable for a project where only one side of the plywood will be visible. There are some other grade marks you might occasionally see. If you do and want to know what they signify, ask your lumber dealer.

Family Dinner

FAMILY DINNER
Use a thrifty cut of meat.
Barbecued Breast of Lamb
Potatoes
Creamed Spinach Salad Bowl
Fresh Cherries Beverage

BARBECUED BREAST OF LAMB

- 2 pounds boneless breast of lamb, cut in serving-size pieces
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup (or more) barbecue sauce with minced onions (from a 1-pound, 2 oz bottle)

Remove as much fat as possible from meat. Place on a rack in a shallow roasting pan and bake in a preheated 450-degree oven for 30 minutes. Remove from oven; reduce heat to 350 degrees. Drain off fat and replace lamb in pan without rack. Sprinkle lamb with the salt. Cover with foil and bake in the 350-degree oven for 30 minutes. Spread meat with the barbecue sauce and continue baking, covered, in the 350-degree oven until tender—about 30 minutes; uncover for the last 10 minutes of baking. Makes 4 servings.

ON FOURTH OF JULY

"Honor America Day" Planned

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — It is, its sponsors say, going to be just a plain Fourth of July celebration, like in the old days, with fireworks, a speech, some prayers, some band [illegible], entertainment and a grand display of Old Glory.

Except that in 1970 America, especially in Washington, especially when it's designated "Honor America Day," there will be bigger fireworks, a most important speaker, more music and entertainment and more flags than Grandma ever saw on the town square. And more people.

Just the motive behind an Honor America Day is suspect in the quarters that have used the same [illegible] the area of Washington's proudest monuments to proclaim their dissent, and so this particular Fourth of July celebration also is more controversial than most preceding it in the 194 years since America's birth.

But the Honor America Day committee made it plain the only speech will be by evangelist Billy Graham and none of the day will be political.

"Everybody included in this program is going to be interested in building up America to make people appreciate the great joy of being an American citizen," said J. Willard Marriott, chairman of the event, a restaurant-motel magnate and good friend of President Nixon.

Honor America Day's entertainment will be headlined by Bob Hope and the big-name show people.

The day will begin at a patriotic-religious service at the Lincoln Memorial with a speech by Graham, benedictions by ministers of different faiths, and a parade of flags to the Ellipse, the grassy area south of the White House.

President Nixon is in San Clemente, Calif., and won't come back for Honor America Day. Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's plans haven't been announced, but Marriott says he will not be a speaker.

In the afternoon there will be activities on the long mall between the Lincoln Memorial and the Capitol.

Police say the crowd estimates have ranged to a half million people and they are prepared for a peaceful crowd.

The big show [illegible] the evening near the Washington Monument, climaxed by a half-hour fireworks display, traditionally a spectacular one, winding up with a blaze of floodlights over the reflecting pool, like red, white and blue arches stabbing into the sky.

Former President Lyndon B. Johnson, an honorary chairman of the day, said the celebration pays homage to the things that have made the nation great—freedom, equality, opportunity, diversity and the spirit of sacrifice.

"But we also rededicate ourselves to the responsibilities of America for the unfinished tasks ahead.

"We do not insist that we are perfect. But we must continue to strive for perfection as long as there is an American nation. For only by honoring America's promise do we honor America itself."

Republicans Favored In California

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two Republicans, both John Birch Society members, are favored to win special elections Tuesday to fill unexpired terms in two Southern California congressional districts—one of them President Nixon's home district.

One-time Congressman John Rousselot, the society's former public relations director, and State Sen. John Schmitz are running in strongly Republican districts—Rousselt in the 24th, covering parts of Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties, and Schmitz in the 35th, covering parts of Orange and San Diego counties.

Rousselot's opponent is Democrat Myrlie Evers, widow of slain black civil rights leader Medgar Evers.

Schmitz' is Democrat David Hartman.

In their campaigns, both Rousselot and Schmitz tried to play down their Birch Society membership which opponents said would affect their decisions on public affairs. Each denied it and both pledged support of Nixon's war policies.

Rousselot maintained that, if he gained the congressional seat, "I won't represent any one group. I'm my own master." On the subject of the Vietnam war, he said he disagrees with Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., a critic of the President's Vietnam policies.

Schmitz, in his campaign, said he assured the White House of his cooperation, that "moderation has come with maturity" and he has learned "a willingness to compromise." Schmitz also said he wanted to take a whack at those losers in Washington, the Fulbright types, the ones that want to end the war by surrendering."

Win or lose in the special election, Rousselot will face Mrs. Evers again in the November general election. Schmitz will face Santa Ana businessman Thomas Lenhart.

Yellowstone Park Hit By Storm

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK (AP) — Winds estimated by a park official at 80 m.p.h. roared through Yellowstone National Park Saturday evening and night, ripping up hundreds of trees and snapping power lines.

No injuries were reported.

Park spokesman Vern Hennesay said that at times, every road in the park was closed by falling trees.

Power lines were severed near Grant Park in the southern part of the park and power was not expected to be restored to that area for at least two days, Hennesay said.

The grant Park area was closed to tourists all day Sunday due to the power failure he said.

The storm moved into the park in the form of a cold front, at approximately 2 p.m. Saturday with periodic gusting wind continuing through 9 p.m.

One car was demolished by a falling tree, numerous camp stoves and tables were damage and blown about and a number of buildings were damaged by falling trees.

"There was damage throughout the park, from north to south and east to west," said Hennesay. "It was just lucky that no one was injured."

Eichstaedt Is Happy Loser

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer

CLEVELAND (AP) — He's [illegible] the year.

"I'm still in a cloud," Steve Eichstaedt said Sunday after his upset bid failed and he settled for second place in the $150,000 Cleveland Open Golf Tournament.

"I'll probably have to pinch myself tomorrow when I wake up to make sure it isn't all a dream."

The tall, rail-thin young veteran of combat duty in Vietnam had to be the biggest longshot in the field—many of the touring pros didn't know him, hadn't heard of him—when they started play.

He hadn't made a dime in three previous tournaments this year. But, at one point down the stretch of the leg-wearying 36-hole windup, he holed out a six-iron shot for an eagle and took the lead.

But the 24-year-old couldn't keep up with Bruce Devlin's scorching pace and finished second, shooting a final 68 for 272, four strokes back of Devlin.

The Australian tour regular opened with a 66, then flashed in with a six-under-par 64, matching the course record for the hilly, 6,661 yard, Aurora Country Club course.

That gave him a 72-hole total of 268, 12 under par, for the $30,000 first prize and his second championship of the year. He won the Bob Hope Desert Classic early in the season and has earned over $87,000 for his best year since joining the tour in 1962.

Bob Murphy, 68, and Larry Hinson, 66, tied for third at 273, with Lee Trevino, Dave Hill and Lou Graham locked at 274. Hill had a 69, Trevino a 67 and Graham a 66. Tom Weiskopf was alone at 275.

Eichstaedt, a Miami resident, was the darling of the gallery—once they found out who he was. He bolted into contention with a sparkling 65 in Saturday's rain-delayed second round and didn't falter in the grinding stretch drive.

Eichstaedt, whose father manages the Miami Lakes Country Club, graduated from the players school in 1967 and joined the tour in 1968. He finished 19th in the Los Angeles [illegible] his first start and won about $2,000 before he was drafted in March. Sunday's second place was worth $47,100.

His army stint included 10 months of duty in Vietnam, serving as a medic with an infantry company. He was discharged this year, but hadn't made a splash. He missed the cut in two events and failed to qualify for another in his only three starts.

Mary Mills Wins LPGA

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Mary Bentley Mills leaped out from eight strokes behind the pace to take the $20,000 Ladies PGA Open here Sunday.

Miss Mills, from Laurel, Miss., had finished in a three-way tie for eighth place at the end of the second of three days of play Saturday.

Her three-under-par 69 put her in a three-way tie with Althea Darben and Sandra Haynie at 216 strokes each at the end of third round play.

A bogey on the second hole of a sudden-death playoff cost Mrs. Darben the tournament. She lead by four strokes after the first two rounds. Miss Haynie lost at the first hole of the playoff when she hit a trap and played out in par five, one stroke over the others.

Mrs. Darben's closing 77, five over par, opened the way for the other two to gain the playoff.

Kathy Whitworth, second leading money-winner on the LPGA tour, finished with 69 for a 217 and a fourth place tie with Peggy Wilson.

Tennis Duo Plays Well

Max Falls of Snyder and Gary Gallman of Hurst have just completed play in the Odessa and Midland Tennis Tournaments.

Falls went to the finals in Boys' 18 singles in Odessa and along the way beat Miles Reynolds of Harlingen and Charles Nepier of Houston — both highly rated and invited to the Jr. Davis Cup Camp. Falls was beaten in the finals by Del Corbin of Wichita Falls. Gallman got to the semi-finals before being defeated by Del Corbin. Gallman upset the number one seed, Jim Mitchell, in mens' singles.

Falls and Gallman got to the finals in Boys' 18 Doubles in Midland and lost there to Corbin of Wichita Falls and Lavercomb of Dallas 4-6, 5-7. Falls had beaten Lavercomb in the quarter-finals of 18 singles before loosing to Cousin of El Paso in the semi-finals.

Both boys and other Snyder entries, left Midland Sunday to enter the Andrews Tournament which started today.

Netters End Singles Play

Students in the Summer Tennis Program have completed singles intermural play.

Norman Autry won the beginners championship with a 6-0, 6-1 win over Mark Leavell. Autry was beaten in the first round of intermediate play but won consolation defeating Don Stoker 6-1, 6-2.

In Beginners Consolation play Dennis Buchanan defeated David Potts 6-2 in semi-finals while Steve Periman beat Jay Wesson 6-1. In finals Buchanan defeated Periman 8-5.

Doubles play will start tomorrow.

The adult tennis program, which meets on Thursday nights, had one new entry, Mrs. James Wesson, for total of 12 adults.

The deadline for entries in the July Fourth Tennis Tournament to be held at the High School Tennis Courts is Thursday at 5 p.m.

Eddie Watt Jolted Twice By Senators

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Baltimore Orioles are rapidly learning who's who on the Washington Senators but they'd rather find out what's what with Eddie Watt.

Reliever Watt came on the late innings Saturday night and again Sunday to try to protect slim Baltimore leads and both times the Orioles went out like a light. Sunday's score was 4-3 as pinch hitter Rick Reichardt, the only batter Watt faced, belted a 3-2 pitch for a two-run homer in the bottom of the 12th inning.

Saturday night, Watt came on in the eighth inning with the bases loaded and one out and Baltimore in front by a similar 3-2 score. The first batter to face him, pinch hitter Wayne Comer, promptly doubled home the tying and go-ahead runs in the Senators' 5-3 triumph.

The Orioles' lead the American League East dropped to 2½ games when the New York Yankees trounced Boston 8-2 after losing the opener of their doubleheader 5-3. Elsewhere, Detroit downed Cleveland 5-1 after losing 8-2, Minnesota whipped the Chicago White Sox 9-1 but dropped an 11-10 nightcap slugfest, California nipped Kansas City 2-1 before the Royals romped 13-1 in the second game and Oakland took a pair from Milwaukee by identical 4-1 scores.

In the National League, Montreal edged the New York Mets 3-2, Pittsburgh swept the Chicago Cubs 3-2 and 4-1, Philadelphia beat St. Louis 8-3 in 10 innings after losing 5-4, Cincinnati shaded Houston 3-2, Los Angeles blanked San Diego 2-0 and San Francisco won a doubleheader from Atlanta 6-4 in 10 innings and 4-3.

The Orioles had gone ahead of Washington in the top of the 12th when Paul Blair reached home from second as first baseman Mike Epstein dropped a throw for what would have been the third out.

But Dick Hall walked pinch hitter Jim French to open the Senators' half. Pete Richert came on and retired Ed Stroud but Watt replaced him when the right-hand hitting Reichart was announced as the batter for Lee Maye.

"That French walk was a key," said Washington manager Ted Williams. "He gets a walk and it's the game. The base on balls is the most unaccredited thing in baseball. It's as good as a hit and you're making the pitcher throw a lot of pitches."

Baltimore's Earl Weaver, however, said the game was decided "by eight inches." Before slamming his ninth homer of the season, Reichart fouled a sharp grounder to third baseman Brooks Robinson, who started what would have been a game-ending double play.

Carl Yastrzemski's three-run homer off Mel Stottlemyre and George Scott's solo shot helped the Red Sox withstand late first-game homers by New York's Bobby Murcer, Thurman Munson and Ron Woods.

But reserve catcher Jake Gibbs walloped a three-run homer and Roy White connected with a man on as the Yankees won the nightcap behind Stan Bahnsen. Tom Satriano homered for Boston.

Sam McDowell won his 11th game with a five-hitter and Jack Heidemann rapped out five straight singles in the Indians' opening-game win over Detroit. Rookie Roy Foster slammed his ninth homer. Mike Kilkenny of the Tigers stopped the Tribe on six hits in the nightcap, with the winners scoring all five runs in the sixth inning against four Cleveland hurlers.

The White Sox, who had lost both ends of their previous seven twin bills this season, squeezed past Minnesota in their nightcap on home runs by Ken Berry, Danny Murphy, Luis Aparicio and Bill Melton. Tony Oliva and George Mitterwald homered for the Twins, while Harmon Killebrew smacked two homers and Oliva one in Minnesota first-game romp.

The Angels, who also split, remained three games behind the Twins in the AL West. Jim Fregosi doubled to set up one run and hit a tie-breaking homer in the fifth to provide the margin of victory in the opening game. But the Royals pounded out 18 hits, including a homer by Lou Piniella and two doubles and two singles by Amos Otis, in taking the nightcap.

KC outfielder Joe Keough suffered a broken right leg sliding home with a second-game run.

Bert Campaneris and Dave Duncan cracked two-run homers in Oakland's first-game win over Milwaukee and Chuck Dobson stopped the Brewers on six hits in the windup. The A's routed ex-teammate Al Downing, making his first appearance for Milwaukee, by scoring all their runs in the first inning of the nightcap.

Swim Contest Slated For July 4th Event

Swim contests have been scheduled for the afternoon of July 4 at the pool in Towle Memorial Park. The swim meet is one of the regular events held each year in connection with the community Independence Day celebration.

The pool will be open to the public for swimming between the hours of 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. on the Fourth.

Contestants in the swim meet are to report to the pool from 3 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. and the races will begin at 3:30 and continue until around 5 p.m. There will be contests in various age groups in breast stroke, back stroke, butterfly and free-style.

First place winners in each division will be awarded 9 swimming passes, while second place winners in each division will receive 6 swimming passes and third place winners will receive 3 passes.

There will be a diving contest and clown act at 5 p.m. at the pool. The swimming pool will be closed for the day following these activities.

Contestants in the swimming meet have been asked to register at the pool as soon as possible.

Junior and Senior lifesaving courses will be offered at the pool July 13-25. Class hours will be from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. each day. Those interested may register by calling the pool. Cost of the course will be the entrance fee to the pool and the textbook.

Long Career At Top Is Seen For UCLA Soph

By DAN BERGER
Associated Press Sports Writer

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — Lee Evans, long the world's premier quarter miler, lost in his final United States appearance and immediately named his conquerer as "the man who will be No. 1 for a long time after me."

UCLA sophomore John Smith a 20-year-old who ran in the shadow of teammate Wayne Collett this season, blasted to the front in the final 20 yards Saturday night to capture the 440 at the National AAU track and field championships.

In the process, Evans, Collett and world record holder Curtis Mills were beaten with his 45.7 lifetime best.

"John and I are good friends," said Evans after the race. "I couldn't accept losing to anyone but him. I'm through after this year and I pick John to be No. 1 for a long time. He's got the proper attitude and he's got a lot of talent."

The modest Smith — called by UCLA Coach Jim Bush "a novice in the 440" — said the quarter was billed as a race with a great field and "I think the pressure hurt everyone but me."

He said, however, that Evans' position in the outside lane was the thing that hurt the Olympic king. "If he had been inside, he would have won," said Smith, who came from four yards back with 20 to go to catch the fading Evans.

Another relative newcomer to stardom was the U.S. Army's Ben Vaughan, winner of the 220 and second in a controversial 100.

Vaughan, a 5-foot-11 former Georgia Tech sprinter, claims he has "a miserable start." But he needed only a burst of speed at the head of the final straighaway Saturday night to win the 220 in 20.8, edging late-striding Willie Turner of Oregon State, the NCAA king.

In Friday night's 100 finals, Vaughan appeared to hit the tape ahead of Southern Illinois' Ivory Crockett, the defending champ. But judges studied a photo of the finish and awarded first place to Crockett. "The least I thought they could give me was a dead heat," Vaughan said.

The next morning, officials received a protest about the decision from Army Coach Ralph Higgins and they again studied the photo. But Crockett retained his crown again when the judges stuck by their decision.

Others to win titles Saturday night at the Bakersfield College track were Ralph Mann, with a 49.8 meet record victory in the intermediate hurdles; Ken Swenson of Kansas State with a 1:47.4 half mile triumph; Bill Skinner, who heaved the javelin 276-7; William & Mary's Howell Michael with a 4:01.8 mile; Randy Matson with a meet record 67-10½ shot put and Milan Tiff who took only one attempt and won the triple jump at 53-0.

Also winning Saturday were Bill Reilly in the steeplechase at 8:34.6, Bob Seagren in the pole vault at 17-2 and Tom Dooley in the two-mile walk at 13:44.0.

The six-mile went to two teammates who finished in a dead heat with arms locked. Frank Shorter, winner of the three-mile the night before, and Jack Bacherlor, both of the Florida Track Club, ran 27:24.0.

Lubbock Cinch For '71 Game

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — The All-America Coaches Association football game is alive and well in Lubbock, Tex.

"We're really pleased to say it mildly," said Bill Murray, president of the AFCA. "The game [illegible] on in Lubbock for next year."

A record crowd of 41,130 jammed Jones Stadium Saturday night as the East outlasted the West 34-27 in a wild-scoring thriller that had tempers on edge.

It was a far cry from the 17,000 persons who watched the game in Atlanta in 1969.

"It was a great effort by the community to come back from that tornado the way they did and pack the stadium," Murray said.

A tornado killed 26 persons in Lubbock May 11 as it cut an eight-mile swath through the city.

"We thought the game was dead here for awhile after the tornado," Murray said. "I was really surprised the way things turned out. They even made some money on it. Just great... really great."

The nationally televised battle had everything—a nerve-jangling ending, nine touchdowns, fist fights, and a light failure in the last pulsating moments.

The East evened the series at five games apiece. Bruce Taylor of Boston intercepted a Dennis Shaw pass and zipped 42 yards for a touchdown late in the fourth period to give the East its final margin of victory.

But Shaw, a strong-armed youngster from San Diego State who is bound for the Buffalo Bills, rallied the West. He whipped them down the field where a pass to Idaho's Jerry Hendren at the final gun was ruled just out of the end zone.

Seconds earlier Shaw had hit Ron Gardin of Arizona with what appeared to be a sure touchdown pass, but Gardin stumbled after making the catch of the 33-yard pass and fell on the East 3.

Davidson's Gordon Slade, the East quarterback, rifled touchdown passes of 4 and 21 yards to Frank Foreman of Michigan State and ran five yards for a touchdown himself.

Ohio State's bruising Jim Otis was voted the most valuable player as the East star gained 145 yards in 47 carries.

The game even had a blocked punt turned into a touchdown by Texas Tech's Richard Campbell of the West. Campbell sang the national anthem before the game.

A few players exchanged kicks and punches in the waning moments of the game played in 90-degree heat on Jones Stadium's new synthetic turf.

But things cooled off after the lights on the west bank of the stadium winked off with two minutes to play.

Coach Charles McClendon of the East by way of Louisiana State said "I never saw a better offensive game. Wasn't it great? Shoot we didn't win until the last second and you can't ask for any more than that."

Coal supplies about one-fifth of the power and heat used in the United States.

McMillen Chase Over, Says Smith

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Basketball Coach Dean Smith says the recruiting of high school ALL American Tom McMillen by North Carolina is closed and, "It will stay that way until such time as we hear something from Tom that would alter the situation as it now stands."

"I wanted Tom to sign to take the pressure off himself," Smith said Friday in an interview with the Raleigh News and Observer.

"As far as I'm concerned, it doesn't matter if he never signs any agreement. I told him that his word was good enought for me ..."

The 6-foot-11 McMillen, from Mansfield, Pa., signed a letter of intent with Smith in Elmira, N.Y., Wednesday. But McMillen's parents strongly oppose his choice of UNC and said Thursday they would never sign a letter of intent for him to attend.

There are an estimated 50,000 caves in the United States.

US Economy Suffering Symptoms Of Fatigue

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — At midyear the economy of the United States is suffering from symptoms of fatigue and overindulgence, and while dutiful assurances from Washington might tranquilize fears they cannot smother facts.

Unemployment is growing more than was expected, sales are sluggish, production is off and prices are rising steeply. Figuratively speaking, the red lights are flashing and the dials on statistical indicators are pointing down.

By this time, it is generally believed, some of those dials should have been turning up. But the failure of expectations to be realized has become chronic and is turning some economists into pessimists.

The administration, however, maintains that its game plan is about as plotted, and that while the layman may not be able to detect the changing conditions, the more sophisticated analysts can see an upturn coming very soon.

It isn't only statistics that disturb the disbelievers and suggest to them that the problems of the economy may be more than temporary. Some ominous signs have appeared.

The Penn Central Railroad bankruptcy reorganization seems to be the greatest of them. Unable to meet its bills, the big railroad was forced to file for reorganization under Section 77 of the Federal Bankruptcy Act.

Other companies, some of them associated with the glamor-growth syndrome of the late 1960s, have met similar fates. And more companies, laden with debts, are trying to work without sufficient immediate cash.

Investors are so suspicious that companies may be having liquidity crises that trading in the stock of Chrysler Corp. was delayed a good part of one day by an influx of sell orders. Chrysler issued a statement saying it was liquid, that it had assets readily convertible to cash. But the need to issue such a statement was considered noteworthy.

Lockheed Aircraft has had to appeal to the federal government for payment on some contracts in which its money is tied up. And two other aerospace companies, McDonneld Douglas and North American Rockwell, have had to suspend supplemental unemployment benefits to laid-off workers.

On Wall Street, the financial condition of many brokerage houses is dismal,lending urgency to plans for a federally backed insurance program to protect investors from the insolvency of their brokers.

Internationally, the United States is still running a deficit in its payments to other nations, but this problem has been forced to the rear, temporarily, by domestic problems. It could, however, mean more pressure on the dollar later in the year.

Statistics don't tell the full story either of the decay in the physical plant of America: the local road and sewer jobs postponed for lack of funds or because of high interest rates; the rotten housing that isn't being replaced because the mortgage markets have been depleted of funds.

The problems are not new. They have developed for years and are now serious illnesses because medication wasn't used in time. There were too many other things to do, among them, fighting a war.

The Nixon administration sees a key to all these problems in attacking inflation. It is dedicated to the proposition that the ills troubling the economy have a common source in that financial malady.

At midyear the big economic question is this: Is the administration's anti-inflation program working? Will results be forthcoming from its use of fiscal and monetary policy?

Or, somehow, will the forces of inflation continue to defy the measures so far used: cutbacks in federal spending and, until recently, a tight clamp on the artery through which money flows from the Federal Reserve?

Pressure has been rising for the administration to step into the marketplace with restraints — even a freeze on wages, prices and some forms of credit.

The conflicting opinions are scheduled to be highly publicized during the next few weeks. On July 8 the Joint Economic Committee of Congress will begin hearings on just these questions.

The United States is the home of the best surviving souvenir of the storming and wrecking of the Bastille on July 14, 1789, the incident that started the French Revolution. The Marquis de Lafayette gave the key to the Bastille to his friend George Washington who hung it in Mount Vernon where it remains today.

Junior Editors Quiz on HARNESS RACING

GREAT DAYS ON MAIN STREET
THE GREAT "HAMBLETONIAN"
THEY STILL COME THUNDERING DOWN THE STRETCH
3
Coulton and Odin Waugh

QUESTION: How did harness racing begin?

* * *

ANSWER: "Has he go go in him", is he any good in a brush?" "I'll prove it — come over to Main Street — it's drivers up!"

This kind of talk means little to most of us, but in the 1800's it was the way people were talking in the Main Streets of America, in the small towns, where a great many owned horses. They were proud of the way their horses could trot and pace and they liked to try them out against each other after work, down the main street a mile or so. Light road wagons were used at first, and came more and more to look like racing machines (top picture). Finally, the one-man racing sulky evolved (bottom picture). It is said that 99 our of 100 harness horses racing today trace their ancestry back to the famous Hambletonian, among whose progeny are many of the most famous record holders. The automobile changed harness racing. People no longer owned their horses and raced them on Main Street. Harness racing, however, is still an exceedingly popular sport — becoming so especially after night racing was introduced in 1940.

Teenager's Makeup Shakes Mom

By JOY STILLEY
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — CAUTION: Buying cosmetics for a teen-age daughter may be hazardous to your mental health.

I discovered this the other day when I volunteered to pick up my college coed's favorite products at a plush local salon. Along with the makeup I got a shakeup of my ego.

Displayed in a setting befitting the crown jewels are cleansers, moisturizers, fresheners, brighteners, dullers, blushers, stabilizers, foundations, finishes, oils, creams and powders.

Somewhat overawed by the array of potions and lotions and by the elegant lady who presided over their commercial distribution, I nervously consulted my list. The dispenser of bottled beauty nodded encouragingly as she selected the called-for items.

"Have you thought of trying our camouflage cream?" she suggested. "And," she added delicately, "perhaps you should consider our special youth lotion. A stitch in time, you know."

"Oh, these are not for me," I volunteered. "They're for my daughter who's away at school. I don't use anything but lipstick and eyebrow pencil."

Her own perfectly penciled brows shot up in horror and a frown pulled down the corners of her carefully contoured lips.

"No makeup!" she exclaimed in refined accents of disbelief. "Come now, we mothers mustn't let our daughters get ahead of us. Makeup would do wonders for you."

She regarded me critically. "The features are good," she concluded, "but we must accent them. You're like a picture without a frame. Let me make you up — you'll see how we can improve you with a little of this and that."

Since even locating my mouth for coffee-drinking purposes is a major accomplishment for the first couple of hours after I got up, performing any task requiring more coordination than that is beyond hope. I firmly declined.

But she didn't give up that easily.

"At least take our little pamphlet and read how we can help you."

9 Well, I've been reading but I haven't figured out how I'd manage to get all the glamor on before it was time to take it off again.

I'm supposed to start with a foam cleaners to open the pores, followed by a freshener to close them; then a concealing base that will cover them so you can't see whether they're open or closed. A special lightener follows to hide the circles and shadows under the eyes. Atop this goes a blusher for a youthful glow, and if my fingertips are still in working order there's a liquid powder, over which goes a finisher.

I'm afraid I'll just have to remain my unadorned self until somebody comes up with a way of congealing all these layers of makeup into a mask that can be put on and taken off like a wig.

Ancient Elephant Tusk Recovered

KENNEWICK, Wash. (AP) — An elephant tusk thought to be 16,000-18,000 years old has been recovered from a stream bed near Kiona, a community 12 miles west of here.

A highway crew workman spotted it first and reported it to archaeologists at Washington State University, Pullman.

A Washington State crew then recovered the 4½-foot tusk but found no other remains of the animal, believed to have been a Columbian Mammoth which became extinct 10,000 years ago.

'Operation Cooperation' Is Proving Successful

By PEGGY SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department says it is highly pleased with initial results of "Operation Cooperation," the joint U.S.-Mexican drive to destroy opium poppies and marijuana in Mexico and catch those who trade in the illicit drugs.

Citing figures from a report to be published later this week, Bob Funesti of the [illegible] Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs listed some examples of arrests due to the two-country cooperation:

—In Mexicali, Mexican police arrested a "major trafficker as he attempted to deliver one ton of marijuana to a BNDD undercover agent."

—In Guadalajara, the Mexican army seized five tons of marijuana and arrested 15 U.S. citizens alleged to have arranged to smuggle it into this country.

—In Jalisco, BNDD agents helped when Mexican police captured a fully equipped heroin laboratory, arrested three persons and seized 225 grams of pure heroin.

Other examples involved arrests in New York City, Las Vegas, California and [illegible], Ariz., and elsewhere.

In addition, the Mexican government wiped out 5,745 acres of poppies and 44 tons of marijuana in a drive last spring, Funesti said.

Operation Cooperation started last fall after an earlier antidrug drive—"Operation Intercept"—soured U.S.-Mexican relations by creating big jam-ups at U.S. Customs points that discouraged tourism and inconvenienced Mexicans working in the United States.

Under Operation Cooperation, the United States this week is sending Mexico three light aircraft and five radio-equipped helicopters seating five persons. They are valued at a total $815,000.

In addition, the Mexican government will receive $15,000 for remote sensing experiments aimed at detecting opium poppies and marijuana in their rolling hills. Another $35,000 will go for equipment to eradicate the poppies and other drug-yielding plants.

Cooperative training programs are planned to widen the pool of people able to detect and eradicate the plants and maintain the specialized equipment. Also, the U.S. Customs Bureau as of June 1 had strengthened its Mexico and Canadian border staffs by 900 men.

5% SURTAX EXPIRES

Paychecks Fatter July 1

By STERLING F. GREEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The initial installment of a $6.5-billion boost in the public's spending power shows up in workers' paychecks starting next Wednesday when the 5 per cent income surcharge expires and personal income tax exemptions [illegible]

While acknowledging the buildup of spendable income won't help anti-inflation efforts, administration economists said privately it may be a needed boost for the economy.

"The economy is soft and personal income has begun to decline," one official said.

"Dropping the surtax may be just about the right thing to do at the right time, though it wasn't exactly planned that way."

A 10 per cent surtax on personal and corporate incomes was imposed in April [illegible], effective for all that year. It added about $8 billion to tax collections for 1969.

The rate was cut to 5 per cent last January under the new tax reform act and the surtax itself set for expiration as of midnight June 30.

On the basis of various federal fiscal moves, purchasing power worth $18.5 billion a year will have been handed consumers and businesses as of July 1—a boost in Social Security payments, a government pay raise, the phaseout of the surtax and the start of tax reductions.

In the same period, government spending has shifted from surplus to deficit. While tightening credit even more, it is not necessarily inflationary, the administration insists, because there is ample slack in the private economy to absorb the flow of federal dollars.

Besides the elimination of the surtax, July brings the firs, major benefits of the tax relief voted by Congress in December.

This includes an increase in the personal income tax exemption from $600 to $650 a person. In subsequent years it will rise to $750. The change will be built into the withholding schedules, along with a cut in the tax liabilities of lower-income families through a new low-income allowance.

These gains in immediately disposable income should offset the weakness of personal income, which turned downward in May for the first time since 1965.

Career Corner

THE JEWELRY BUSINESS

Dear Joyce: Having acquired a love of beautiful antique jewelry from my mother, I thought perhaps I might find some sort of job in a jewelry store. — MRS. K.T., CHARLOTTE, N.C.

Not a bad idea — jewelry salesmen and women, managers and craftsmen, often earn $10-30,000 within ten years after entering the business, according to the industry's national association.

"The Golden Touch," an 18-page booklet describing the jewelry business is available for 25 cents and a return mailing label from the Retail Jewelers of America, 1025 Vermont Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20005.

UT President Disagrees With Erwin

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — University of Texas President Dr. Norman Hackerman said Sunday that university regents are assuming powers once reserved for administrators and that he doesn't approve of it.

Hackerman will become president of Houston's Rice University in September. He spoke on "Capitol Eye," a television-radio news panel show, and used the occasion to take issue with UT regents chairman Frank Erwin.

He said: "Now the question is — can governing boards literally operate universities? I think not, unless they are willing to be on campus day by day. But the trend in the direction of the retraction of authority is quite clear.

"I think this is apt to appear more frequently within the next few years," he predicted. "I suspect that, in part, it's because the academic community has used as its basis of appointment, reappointment and tenure academic qualifications principally and almost wholly."

Hackerman said he prefers that the "operations of an institution be in the hands of the academic community — and that governing boards set policy and philosophic tone."

He took issue with an Erwin suggestion that potential university presidents should be men specifically trained as administrators.

"I think it's wrong," he said. "Look back to the '50s when college presidents were retired generals or important people in industry and so on. It seems to me this is not the best way to get administrators."

Nancy Kwan Marries Sunday

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Hong Kong-born actress Nancy Kwan and David Giler of Los Angeles were married in a weekend civil ceremony.

Miss Kwan, who starred in "The World of Suzie Wong" and "Flower Drum Song," was divorced in 1968 from Peter Pock, an Austrian hotel heir.

AFTER VIOLENT SPRING

ROTC Programs Facing Crises

By RICHARD E. MEYER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — "ROTC," says an officer at the Pentagon, "caught hell."

Like a lightning rod, it drew the storm of protests and demonstrations on the nation's colleges and universities during the troubled weeks of spring 1970.

It attracted the vengeance of students fed up with the war, at odds with the President and confronted by a marching symbol of the military establishment on their campuses.

Classrooms were stormed, offices were sacked and buildings were firebombed. Uniforms were destroyed, equipment was stolen and trucks were overturned. Parades were canceled. Cadets were booed. A commander took three shotgun blasts into the front of his house.

The Pentagon called it the most violent spring in ROTC history.

Less noticeably, nine prestige schools were dropping ROTC. Other schools weren't meeting their quotas of officer production and their ROTC units were being phased out. Fewer and fewer schools were compelling students to take ROTC classes. Enrollment was falling. Some schools were stripping ROTC of academic credit. Others were denying military instructors faculty rank. And several were asking the Pentagon to pay the full cost of ROTC activities on campus.

The Reserve Officers Training Corps offers two—year and four—year programs of military training in college, with an officer's commission upon graduation. The Department of Defense contracts with scores of colleges and universities to conduct the programs on their campuses, and uses ROTC to recruit students and teach them military history, management and leadership, as well as the practical pursuits of drill, tactics and the care and use of weapons.

ROTC has been the single biggest producer of Army and Air Force officers. Of the 58,000 officers called to active duty this fiscal year, ROTC produced almost 24,000—four thousand more than officer candidate programs and 21,700 more than the military academies. ROTC, says a Pentagon planner, will place about 24,000 officers on active duty again next year.

In the office of the deputy assistant secretary of defense for education, officials show concern—what one calls "caution"—about the violence against ROTC installations, and about the deeper problems besieging ROTC. But there is no panic. More than 500 ROTC units are turning out officers at 353 colleges und universities across the country. And for every college dropping military training, five have applied for ROTC programs. Over—all, officer production has increased each year since 1966. And the services say the quality of ROTC graduates is improving every year.

The caution is born of a feeling there may be more trouble ahead. Dr. George Benson, deputy assistant secretary for education and director of ROTC programs, told the Association of the United States Army last fall he thinks the peak of ROTC opposition is still to come. The question is whether it will drive enrollment down far enough to hurt production.

"I don't think at this point there's any grave concern," says Maj. Charles Hyland, assistant director for ROTC programs. "But we're being cautious. We're watching it very closely, and, while defense officials don't see any major exodus from ROTC, they are responding to provide incentives to make the program more attractive."

The incentives include moves to double the Pentagon's subsistence allowance for ROTC students, to increase the number of ROTC scholarships, and a study of ways to pay the full cost of ROTC programs on campus.

In addition, Hyland says, just in case "the pinch" arrives, the services are studying alternative methods for officer procurement: more enlisted men processed through officer candidate schools, adoption by the Army and Air Force of the Navy and Marine system of summertime officer training, and more men commissioned directly from the ranks.

Most of the exodus from ROTC has been in Eastern schools, particularly in the Ivy League. Harvard and Dartmouth are dropping Army ROTC at the end of this academic year, Air Force ROTC in 1971 and Navy ROTC in 1973. Princeton, Yale and Tufts will drop Navy ROTC in 1973. Brown will abolish its Air Force program in 1971 and its Navy program in 1972. Columbia ends its Navy program next year. Boston University discontinued Air Force ROTC last July and drops its Army program this year. Colgate commissioned its last Air Force officers this term.

In addition, Tufts, Grinnell College in Iowa and Kenyon College in Ohio are dropping Air Force ROTC because they can't meet the Pentagon's minimum production quota of 15 officers.

A survey by the Association of American Universities shows ROTC enrollment has dropped 40 per cent nationally in the past four years. Freshman enrollment, says the AAU, has fallen nearly 50 per cent.

The sharpest decline came this academic year, when Pentagon figures show enrollment in Army and Air Force ROTC fell 27 per cent. The Army's enrollment dropped by 41,000 students to a total of 109,000; Air Force enrollment fell by 13,900 to 37,300.

The biggest losses in 1969-70 came among freshmen and sophomores, due to an ever-increasing number of schools switching from compulsory to voluntary programs.

Whether students must attend military classes is up to individual colleges. Schools with 39 Army ROTC units and 10 Air Force ROTC units decided last year that attendance should be voluntary.

There are other reasons for declining enrollment. "Not surprisingly," says the AAU, "the most frequently cited cause . . . is the Vietnam war. The war has generated widespread disaffection and protest against the military establishment, and ROTC happens to be the most exposed symbol of the military on campus."

The Pentagon agrees. Roger T. Kelley, assistant secretary of defense for manpower and reserve affairs, replied with a terse "yes" when he was asked a year ago whether he sees any Vietnam war backlash in campus strikes and protests against ROTC.

Hyland says, "The decline in enrollment also reflects a wait-and-see attitude on the part of some students, engendered by increasing prospects that they may not be drafted. They looked ahead to the time when they would graduate and felt that draft quotas would be reduced."

Finally, enrollment hasn't been helped by the prospect of an all-volunteer Army. Eliminating the draft, says the President's Commission on an All-Volunteer Armed Force, "will result in a loss of draft-motivated ... (ROTC) volunteers."

In addition, says the AAU, "In view of the general financial crisis facing higher education today, the cost issue is likely to receive increasing attention. The University of Michigan estimates that unreimbursed expenses of ROTC on its campus will come to about $89,000 in the current fiscal year. At the University of Washington, these costs in fiscal year 1969 were nearly $62,000."

Some universities question whether what they're buying is worth the cost. While 22 of the schools surveyed by the AAU indicated that ROTC instruction meets their general standards, "at five private institutions, New York University, Brown University, the University of Pennsylvania, Vanderbilt and Yale, the quality of instruction in ROTC programs has been judged to be inferior. One of these, Brown, attributed the inferior quality directly to the low calibre of military instructors."

Some of this criticism is based on philosophical differences between educators and the Pentagon which the AAU says would remain even if ROTC units removed rifles, uniforms and military drills and conducted more of its practical training in summer camps instead of during the school year.

WHEEL BALANCER — Joe Valdez operates the new balancing and alignment system purchased recently by Central Tire Service. The system is one of only 33 in the United States and cuts down on time while increasing precision.

Complete Automotive Care At Central Tire

Central Tire Service, owned and operated by Stanley Noah, is the place to go for complete automotive care. They have complete equipment for tune-ups, wheel aligning, muffler installation and brake service. They also carry a complete line of US Royal tires and have been approved as an official state inspection center.

The latest piece of equipment purchased by Central Tire is a balancing and alignment system, one of only 33 in the United States. It cuts the time of wheel balancing in half and allows for a great deal more precision in the job. It is the most sensitive, accurate, stationary installation ever devised for the detection and correction of wheel unbalance. Its fast working components utilize precision electronic equipment, coupled with an integral resonant vibratory pick-up, indicates unbalance vibrations as small as ¼ of an ounce at the wheel rim.

It readily balances both front and rear wheels of virtually all cars and light trucks, with standard or limited slip differential. On front wheels it provides both "side-to-side" and "up - and - down" blanace of wheels while the vehicle is in true running position.

Central Tire Service has been serving Snyder since 1949, and will continue to do so with the best in car servicing equipment and competent workmanship.

Bride Arrested On Honeymoon

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A honeymoon ended suddenly for a Buffalo couple this weekend when police arrested the bride.

Lois Felschow, 30, of Buffalo, spent her wedding night in Erie County Jail while her husband, Norman, attempted to raise $50 bond. He put up the money Sunday.

Mrs. Felschow was arrested on theft of services charges Saturday night after a policewoman noticed her name on a list of wedding licenses and recalled that a warrant for her arrest was outstanding.

Police said the charge stemmed from back rent Mrs. Felschow allegedly owed.

Panel Seeks Help For US. Citizens

MIAMI (AP) — The Remember the Pueblo Committee is appealing to the Organization of American States to help some 700 U.S. citizens get out of Cuba.

The committee chairman, the Rev. Paul D. Lindstrom, said Sunday he prepared a report on the matter after a week of research in the Miami area. He said he will present it, with an appeal, to OAS Secretary-General Galo Plaza in Washington this week.

Lindstrom charged the Americans are virtual prisoners in Cuba while Fidel Castro drags his feet on letting them leave by airlift to Mexico border. "Some are actually behind bars," he said.

"The airlift is no longer flying regularly as Castro had promised," Lindstrom said. "And many flights are half filled. Theoretically there are flights once a month."

Lindstrom said the committee learned that 794 Americans and 2,237 Cuban members of their families are waiting to leave Cuba.

A U.S. government source said some 800 U.S. citizens have been repatriated by the airlift, distinct from the refugee air lift to Miami. The source added that some 700 Americans still in Cuba have signed up for the flights and are awaiting their turn.

The airlift for U.S. citizens terminates at Matamoros, Mexico.

From there the repatriates cross the border to Brownsville, Tex.

Lindstrom said the committee feels Castro is holding back the Americans to use them for bargaining "to gain certain benefits from the United States."

Ben Gurion Leaves Hospital

TEL AVIV (AP) — Former Prime Minister David Ben Gurion has been discharged from a hospital after five days of treatment for a fever and nausea.

The 84-year-old statesman's condition was described as good when he left for his home Sunday night.

BUT IT'S ONLY CAREER FOR HIM

Lemmon Says Acting Hectic

By PEACE STERLING
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Leaning back in a plush couch in his elegant hotel suite, Jack Lemmon—his hair a little grayer than it looks on the screen, his build a little slighter—grins his slow, captivating smile, and tells the story of his latest movie, a comedy called "The Out-of-Towners."

"Of course all the horrible things that happen in the movie aren't going to happen to one person all at once," he says, moving his hands rapidly before him. "But any one of them has happened to a number of people. And we all love to laugh at ourselves."

"The Out-of-Towners," which could almost be subtitled, "A True Story of Misadventure," is about a Midwestern couple who come to New York City where they are beset with seemingly endless trouble—lost baggage, a holdup, a kidnapping and a mugging in Central Park.

The couple's plane is supposed to land in New York, but [illegible] cause it to be rerouted to Boston.

"When we were shooting the movie," Lemmon recounts, "we actually were going to Boston, but planes got stacked up there and we almost had to go to New York. Then the hotel didn't have our rooms, and our bags weren't on the plane. All the luggage had gone to Kansas. And finally, when we came to New York I looked so awful after [illegible] that when I got back to my hotel the man on the desk wouldn't let me upstairs until he had verified who I was."

Lemmon pauses, and after a moment says thoughtfully: "It might be hectic, but I don't know what the hell I'd do if I weren't an actor. I keep wondering how many actors, even the ones who might be emotionally disturbed, would be real basket cases if they couldn't act. We all love to play games. Actors just get applauded for it.

"My father had hoped I would go into his business, but after college I wanted to go into acting. I went to him and told him I had to give this a chance. He just said, 'You really love it. You really need it—then okay.'"

Lemmon's acting career has been varied, beginning with a break into soap opera, then radio and television work, summer stock; Broadway and some 25 movies, including "Mr. Roberts," the 1955 film for which he won an Academy Award.

"Film is the greatest medium," he says, "because it's practically limitless, whereas on stage you have only one shot. But on stage you have a live audience that tells you if a line isn't funny. In film you can't time the laughs. It's more difficult to do well on film because you take a scene and have to keep stopping and starting again. There's no build and flow.

"Doing both is good for you. If you did only one it would be like an athlete not going to the gym and not working out, then running the race. You might do all right, but you're not going to win. Performing live gives you a big emotional lift. And when the audience isn't good you work hard as hell. It gets to be like a game. You try to get them. All of which is good—it pulls and stretches you."

Last spring, Lemmon won critics' praise on the West Coast with his performance in a revival of Robert E. Sherwood's play, "Idiot's Delight." And in the fall, he plans to do another play, this time in New York.

Speaking about the several movies he has made from stage plays, Lemmon admits that it's often disconcerting. "If I've seen a performance of the play with a good actor, I'm so worried about not imitating him, I have to psych myself into forgetting all about him—just pull a curtain down in my mind."

And as for watching his own performances: "I don't see films I've been in more than two or three times, because more often than not I'll say, 'Why did I do that?' I see more things I think are wrong than right. But then sometimes, I might catch an old movie on television and be really pleased with something I did."

Although he may be better known for his comic performances, Lemmon says he doesn't prefer comedy. "And even within comedy or drama," he adds, "there's no particular kind of character I prefer.

"When I read a script, if I don't know how to play a part, I'll get excited, and want to do it. Good writing is harder to play because there are more depths, and it's delicious hell to decide which depths you're going to bring out," he says.

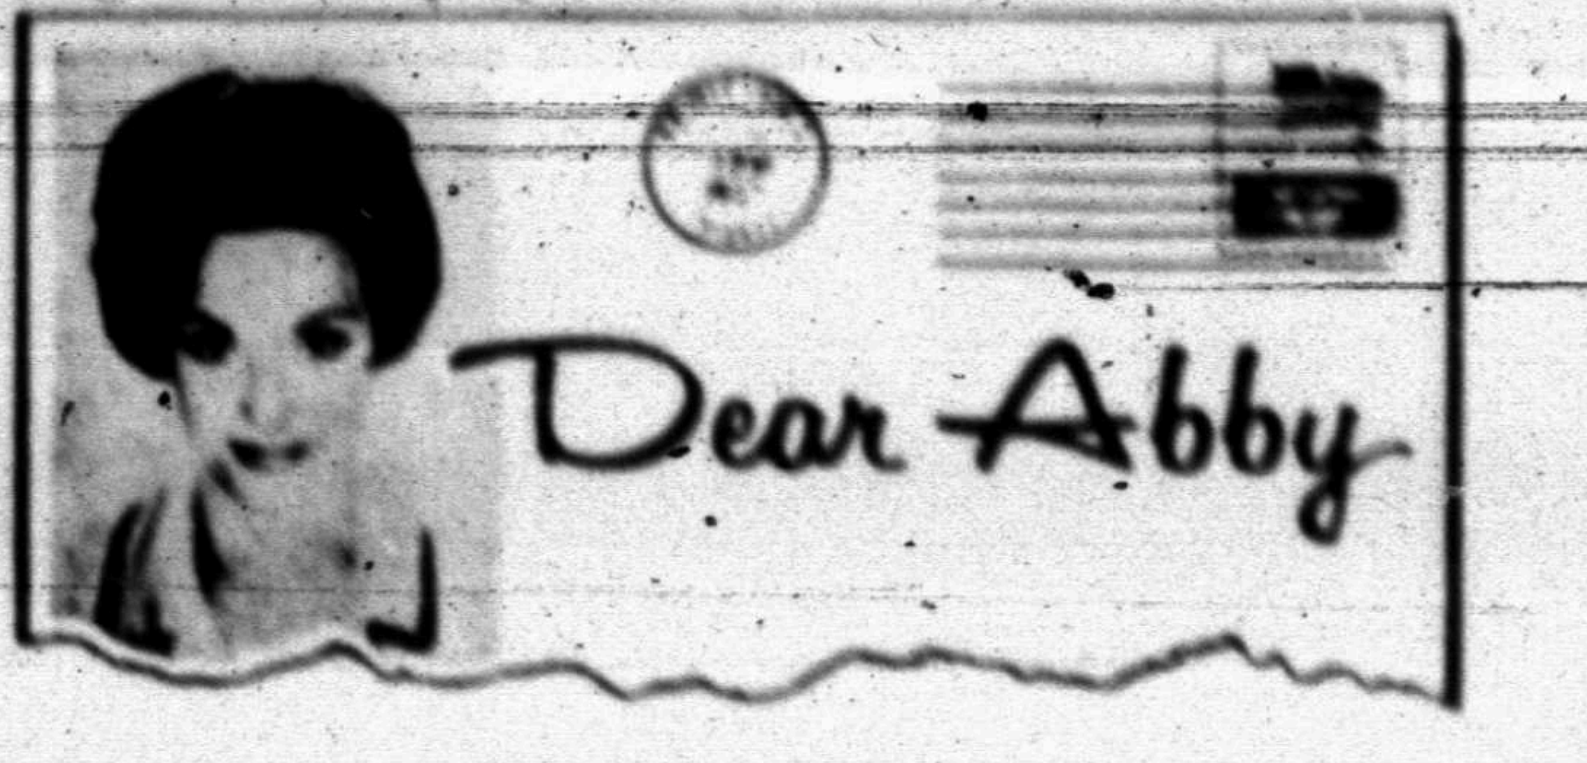
He sees changes in film—mainly a more enlightened audience.

"The audience is way ahead of the typical film," he comments. "You don't have to lay it out so much, to be so clear about what you're doing. The cinema is being realized not as escapist, but as an art form. Technically, films are much more creative and simple now. They're more mobile, more natural and realistic. More is being done with directorial techniques showing."

Recently, Lemmon announced he is going to direct his first film, "Kotch," with Walter Matthau starring in the role of a 72-year-old man. "I'm scared to death of directing," he comments. "But if I get run over by a truck or a producer, I don't want to look up and say, 'Why didn't I do it?'"

What's he like—the man not the actor? Two of his comments might be indicative: "I keep my Oscar on a bottom shelf in the living room, behind a chair, with a whole bunch of other stuff. I don't want people to think I want it to be seen."

And about television talk shows: "I'm nervous about going on as Jack Lemmon, because I have no role to hide behind. I find it hard to understand why Jack Lemmon himself should be interesting."



Can a broken marriage be repaired?

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: "ON THE FENCE" asked you if remarrying a former spouse ever worked. You invited your readers who had had the experience to write in and offer their advice. Here's mine.

Yes, it CAN work. But only if the couple KNOW why their marriage failed in the first place, and they don't make the same mistakes again.

Our problems were all due to family interference. After our divorce, we decided to try again, and we moved far, far away from both our families. We've been married for 12 years this time and we've never been happier. J. AND M.

DEAR ABBY: Tell ON THE FENCE not to marry the same man again. After I divorced my husband [he drank] he told me if I didn't marry him again he would kill himself. Well, I married him, and he almost killed ME. I divorced him again. I never should have remarried him, but I thought I could change him. I couldn't. TWO TIME LOSER

DEAR ABBY: I am well qualified to give advice on whether or not to REMARRY the person you divorced. I married the same man THREE times! And I'm now divorced from him.

My reasons for divorcing him were the same all three times. He makes a much better lover than a husband.

SINGLE AND HAPPY

DEAR SINGLE: That's not why you DIVORCED him—that's why you REMARRIED him!

DEAR ABBY: I wish I had all the money I gave to lawyers before I realized that the woman I married not once, not twice, not three times . . . but would you believe FOUR TIMES, was not marriage material.

It was a big physical thing between us—nothing else, and let me tell you, as important as that is to a good marriage, it ain't enough! ALONE AND LIKING IT

DEAR ABBY: My parents were divorced when I was two. There were four of us kids. I was the youngest. I was too young to remember at the time, but I later learned my parents got married again because of us kids. All I can remember is the fighting and yelling at our house.

After we were all grown and gone, they got divorced again. As far as I'm concerned, they should have stayed divorced the first time. They sure wasted a lot of precious time. THEIR DAUGHTER

DEAR ABBY: ON THE FENCE has a soul sister. ME! I am also "on the fence" for the same reason.

I married my husband during hard times. We worked side by side, and he made it—but BIG!

Well, he couldn't stand the prosperity, and he asked me for a divorce. [Yes, he found somebody else.] I gave him his divorce and he married her. That lasted just long enough for her to go thru his bankroll.

Now that he's broke, he wants me to marry him again. He says now he knows there could never be anybody but me, etc.

Maybe I'm a fool, but I still love him. Should I try again with him? LOVES HIM

DEAR LOVES: You'll never be happy until you try. But this time, keep him broke.

DEAR ABBY: ON THE FENCE can find the answer in The Old Testament. Deuteronomy 24:4 says, "Her former husband, which sent her away, may not take her again to be his wife, after she is defiled; for that is abomination before the Lord." G. R. S. JR.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Medical Examiners Summoned

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas County Judge Lew Sterrett and three commissioners summoned three county medical examiners to an emergency session late Sunday night and ordered them to sign death certificates releasing the bodies of two persons killed 10 hours earlier in a car-train accident.

Drs. C. S. Petty, W. I. Hoffman and W. Q. Stearner were forced to interrupt their weekend off to sign the certificates at 11 p.m.

Petty said the medical examiner's office hasn't the money or personnel to maintain a 24-hour operation.

Sterrett said the "medical examiner's office is a creature of this court. All of us and members of other county offices take calls and return to work to perform duties when called upon on holidays, weekends and all hours of the night."

The family of Charles Arnett, 30, and his son, James, 5, complained to commissioners that medical examiners had refused to release the two bodies.

The medical examiner's office has come under stiff criticism in recent weeks on other matters.

Texas Board To Discuss Pollution

DEL RIO, Tex. (AP) — The Texas Water Quality Board was to meet here Monday to discuss alleged pollution at the Amistad Reservoir, one of the state's newest and largest bodies of water, located on the Rio Grande River.

In advance of the meeting, which was called at request of Val Verde County residents, the board said the Amistad is one of the state's cleanest and clearest lakes.

Residents in the area said the lake was in danger of "damaging pollution."

Board engineers said real estate development along the shoreline is the main problem because much of the shoreline is solid rock and makes septic tank installation almost impossible.
