Bank Bill Passes Senate On Friday

Measure To Unleash Vast Federal Reserve Resources Will Become A Law Next Week

By FRANCIS M. STEPHENSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19. (AP)—The senate today passed the Glass-Steagall bill puting to work the nation's idle gold and opening the vast resources of the federal reserve for an expansion of credit.

The measure bearing the promise of leaders of both parties to speed America on an upward economic swing already has passed the house. It will become a law next week.

The senate went a step farther than the house and voted to make the life of the bill two years instead of one. This is one of the few differences between the house and senate which must be composed before the legislation goes to President Hoover.

A shout of "aye" met the call for passage in the senate late today. No demand was made for a record vote. Senator Frazier (R. N. D.), briefly assailed the bill as a banker's bill," offering no hope for agriculture. Senator Glass (D., Va.) sponsor of the measure, had the support, however, of almost the entire senate and the chorus of "ayes" came as Frazier concluded.

The legislation completes the urgent phases of the non-partisan emergency program urged by President Hoover. It provides for rediscounting in emergencies, of paper held by federal reserve member banks which is not now eligible.

Through this it is hoped to melt the stores of "frozen" paper in the nation's banks and instill a new confidence in the bankers, who were accused by Senator Glass of failing to function in the economic crisis.

"Wet And Dry" Favor Is Claimed For John Garner

Abilene Man Takes Floor To Boost Texas Leader

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The endorsement of both "wets and drys" was claimed in the house today for Speaker Garner, a Democratic presidential possibility.

During a discussion of law suits involving Bishop James Cannon, Jr., Representative Blanton, an ardent prohibitionist, predicted Garner would sweep the country because "the people believe there is something here beside the liquor question."

Speaks In Reply

The Texas Democrat spoke in reply to remarks made Thursday by Representative Tinkham (R., Mass.), challenging Bishop Cannon to an open court trial of the $500,000 libel suit the churchman has filed against him.

Garner was brought into the discussion by Representative Schaner (R., Wis.), an anti-prohibitionist. He said that though Garner voted against the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act, he voted for "the notorious five-and-ten" law.

"We can realize why the father of the eighteenth amendment, Senator Sheppard, and the stepfather, William G. McAdoo, came out for him," Schafer said.

Mystery Fires Burn Property At Two Farms

Threats Of Destruction Seen With Finding Of Notes Left At Both Places; Are Signed With "K.K.K."

Heavy Damage Is Sustained At Farms; Constable Says That Notes May Have Been Written By A Woman

(Special To The Avalanche)

LITTLEFIELD, Feb. 19.—Mysterious hands twice struck stealthily and under cover of darkness in Lamb county early Thursday and officers today were probing the incendiary burning of stacked feed on two farms.

Threats of further destruction and even death were left behind on pasteboard signs at both farms. The sign lettering was neat, possibly from the hand of a woman, said Constable Fred Hoover.

Are Signed "K. K. K."

Hoover said the notes contained threats to "get the house and you in it," and were signed "K. K. K."

Two men, each wearing socks over their shoes, are believed by Hoover to have set both fires. Blaze at the first farm, northeast of Littlefield, was discovered at about 1 a. m. Thursday. Two stacks of head maize, valued at about $400, were burned.

Three hours later, flames were seen leaping from stacked feed at the second farm. A ten-pound compound bucket, bearing traces of kerosene, was found near the stacklot, the constable reported. The second man lost 200 bushels of corn and other feed.

Tied To Fences

The signs were tied to wire fences near the burned feed. The lettering was made in blue ink, the "K's" being about one-inch high and the other letters about 3-6 of an inch high. "It was the job of an expert or one used to making letters," said Hoover. The top of a large shoe box was used for one sign and the bottom for the other, Hoover believes.

The signs and the bucket were sent to Lubbock late Thursday for police inspection for fingerprints, Hoover said. Fingerprints were taken from the bucket it was learned, but no effort has been completed to compare the prints with others.

Governor And Associates Plan To Appeal From Decision Of Federal Body; Martial Law Being Threatened

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Feb. 19.—The East Texas oil field still was under martial law tonight pending compliance with legal formalities that will make effective an opinion of a United States district court that Governor R. S. Sterling exceeded his authority to enforce proration there.

As commander in chief of the Texas national guard, the governor had drawn on his military power to curb production of the big pool. He planned to resist the finding of the court through legal channels. The case was considered and determined by three federal judges who sat at Houston.

Plaintiffs in the suit brought to test the right of martial law rule have under the law a maximum of fifteen days in which to draft a formal order reciting the court's holding.

Former Governor Dan Moody and other attorneys who represented Governor Sterling at trial of the case, were studying a copy of the court opinion. Gov. Sterling's only comment was that the case would be appealed.

Club Richer, City Spends $200 And Cork Is Problem—Minstrel Is Held

THE "T" club of Texas Tech is richer by about $200, some 100 Lubbock persons are poorer by 50 cents each and more than 100 students and former students of the college are faced with the problem of removing burned cork and grease paint as a result of the second annual "T" club minstrel.

The minstrel was presented last night at the Lubbock High school auditorium. The profits will be used to decorate the club's trophy room in the college gymnasium.

Although some of the wisecracks were of an ancient vintage, provoking laughter from members of the cast only, most of the numbers pleased a receptive audience. Almost every one from the college president to mere students was the target for funny and not-so-funny cracks.

Co-eds who might have been comely minus the daubs of burnt cork presented a number of pleasing dance numbers including "Bend Down Sister," "Concentratin'" and a buck dance.

Greatest Military Action Of Entire Campaign Promised As Troops Advance; City Shaken

Infantry Assault Lines Go Forward Behind Cover Of Huge Barrage; Planes Bomb Chinese Lines But Defenders Are Stubborn; Defy Japs With Rain Of Lead From Trenches

SHANGHAI, Feb. 20. (Saturday)—The big Japanese push, aimed at overwhelming the stubborn nineteenth Chinese route army that has been defending Shanghai, got under way with the roar of guns this morning, and there was every promise it would develop into the greatest military action since the World war.

At 8:50 a. m. deep-throated Japanese guns roared forth from their positions in Hongkew park.

A few minutes later the Chinese artillery accepted the gauge of battle. The bombardments by both sides was of terrific proportions.

Japan's ultimatum that the nineteenth army—heroes of all Chinese for the way they have performed in the field during the last few weeks—withdraw 12 miles from Shanghai had expired at 7 a. m. A few minutes after 7 o'clock five Japanese scout planes sped into the air and reconnoitered over the Chinese positions in Chapei.

Lines Are Intact

It was a thick, foggy day, but the airmen could see enough to indicate the Chinese front lines were intact—that the Chinese army was defying the ultimatum.

That word was brought back to Japanese headquarters, and soon the big push was underway.

The Japanese command rushed men, tanks, machine guns and field pieces toward the front in vast quantities.

The troop preparation had been going on all night long, but until the big guns spoke at 8:50 o'clock the battle zone had been comparatively quiet. Only a burst of machine gun fire now and again told of warfare.

Bombers Are Ordered

After the big Japanese guns had started their streams of projectiles toward Chapei, headquarters ordered up 10 huge bombing planes. Each of them carrying a full load of explosives.

It was evident the Chinese trenches in Chapei and Klangwan was in for the terrific battering.

Across from the Japanese headquarters 50 airplanes were lined up in a newly built landing field. Their motors were running and the pilots were ready to take a hand in the battle as soon as the word was spoken.

A detachment of tanks, followed by 18 motor trucks loaded with ammunition, was dispatched from Japanese headquarters toward Woosung.

Reach Patience End

Lieutenant General Kenkichi Uyeda, commanding officer of the Japanese army forces, told an Associated Press correspondent in his headquarters at 8 a. m. that "the end of our patience has been reached."

"We received no answer from the national government to our ultimatum and at 7 a. m. the Chinese military remained in their front lines," the general said.

"We gave them thirty minutes' grace this morning in which the national government might reply to our ultimatum and the Chinese troops might leave their positions, but they remained and the national government remains silent," the general continued.

"Now we must take offensive action."

Ten Planes Are Off

INFANTRY ADVANCES

SHANGHAI, Feb. 20. (Saturday.) (AP)—Infantry assault lines were advancing this morning behind the cover of a Japanese barrage laid down on Chinese positions on the Klangwan front, Japanese naval headquarters announced. While the barrage was going on aviators bombed the Chinese lines. A spokesman at the Japanese headquarters aboard the flagship Idzumo said the Japanese were encountering the stiffest opposition.

The Chinese artillery, this spokesman declared, was raining sheils into the assault lines and machine gunners kept up continuous fire from behind barricades. The spokesman said the attackers had succeeded in capturing the Creation club outside Kiangwan but had not gained the town, which was their objective.

FRONT IS WIDENED

SHANGHAI, Feb. 20. (AP) Saturday)—The Japanese attacked westwards this morning along a wide front outside the Chapei area and in Hongkew they drove northwards toward Klangwan, two miles from Hongkew park. Their object was to occupy the Shanghai-Woosung railway line and to protect their flank. It was expecting that when the movement had been completed—if it proved successfully—they would launch an assault on the Chinese positions in Chapei.

CHIANG CLOSE BY

SHANGHAI, Feb. 20 (Saturday). (AP) The eighty-sevenand eighty-eight divisions of the crack troops of General Chiang Kai-Shek, China's chief military commander, were reliably reported today to have taken up positions in Kiangwan, north of Shanghia. This was regarded as a highly important development as the Japanese have drawn a careful line of distinction between Chiang's troops and the nineteenth Chinese route army, the unit hitherto serving on the Shanghai front.

Japanese planes were bombing the Kiangwan positions supposedly held by the eighty-seventh and eighty-eighth.

FEAR FOR AMERICANS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19. (AP)—Data on the intense Shanghai situation was again laid before President Hoover today by Secretary Stimson at a prolonged conference, but officials were silent publicly as they awaited the roar of the Japanese offensive. Plainly anxious about the safety of Americans in the international settlement of the war torn Chinese fort, officials still have not forsaken hope that a settlement between the Chinese and Japanese might be reached without great sacrifice of life.

The Woman's Angle

BY BLANCHE E. BEAN
Avalanche Woman's Editor

OVER in France, the country to which we look for a lot of dictation on styles, the gourmets—those are the connoisseurs—are waging a campaign against "Plagues of the Table." And, even though we are not such connoisseurs and do not spend a great deal of time developing the art of eating and table conversation, some good advice has been dispensed.

Perhaps you are a would-be sophisticate and believe that smoking between courses is going to mark you as such. That might work according to some standards but not with the gourmets. "Women who smoke between courses lack courtesy, taste and brains," they tell us, adding that the most beautiful and adorable woman in the world can contrive to spoil the most excellent meal if she insists on powdering her nose, arranging her hair and painting her lips at the table. And the worst thing of all is the powder puff that scatters powder all around.

Of course, this angler comes in the class that does some discreet powdering, but she wants to join in the chorus against powder puffs that scatter powder. Even under the table, they will play havoc with dark clothes, and, anyway, they just don't go with a meal.

* * *

To be correct, one makes up before entering the dining room and after leaving. One forgets all about looks while eating and makes the meal a pleasure for the companion. Good advice, isn't it?

And, oh yes, perfumes come in for some scolding, also. The epicureans think that the aromas of the food are spoiled by the tenacious perfumes worn by many women.

Again, there is agreement here. Tenacious perfumes—perfumes that are obvious at all—spoil almost anything from a bridge game to a picture show or a day's work. It is all right to be elusive about perfumes, but the obvious sort should be banished unless one is living on a deserted island.

And this smoking question! Paul Reboux, who seems to be somewhat of an epicure, writer and authority on what the well dressed woman should do in public, has a few things to say on smoking at the table. Smoking before the meal is a matter of personal preference, he says, but he points out that those who do simply saturate the palate with acrid nicotine and that everything they eat will be turned by the tobacco. And he objects to those who insist on smoking between courses.

Of course, smoking is just like the beautifying, a matter for individuals. But this was inserted as some more of Paris' advice to us.

ANOTHER CAKE

HERE is another recipe. This time for an Upside Down cake:

One and one-fourth cups sifted flour; one-fourth teaspoon salt; one and one-fourth teaspoons double-acting baking powder; four tablespoons butter or other shortening; three-fourths cup sugar; one egg, well beaten; one-half cup milk; one teaspoon vanilla; four tablespoons butter; one-half cup brokn sugar, firmly packed; one cup crushed pineapple, apricots or peaches.

Sift flour once, measure, all baking powder and salt, and sift again. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg; then flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla.

Melt 4 tablespoons butter in iron skillet; add brown sugar and stir until melted. All pineapple and pour batter over mixture. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 30 minutes.

a wonderful feat any housewife can do . .

If a garment will last twice as long when washed with White King Granulated Soap—then you have gained a garment!

Since White King Granulated Soap does wash clothes without rubbing and without boiling, everything washed with it does last much longer—

Rubbing and boiling destroy fabrics, ruin colors and take the life out of the best of materials—

White King Granulated Soap washes better in luke-warm water—it rinses out freely—it leaves the clothes whiter, cleaner and without that soapy smell—

If your clothes have been coming out of the rinse grey or yellow—blame it on tallow—most soaps that require boiling have a tallow base. White King Granulated does not—it is made of pure, sweet, clean vegetable and nut oils—the kind you eat—

White King Granulated is more economical—it contains no water and no silicate of soda*—both factors of weight but no help at all in getting clothes clean—

Try White King Granulated today—double the life of your washables—cut your work in half—save on your soap bill.

* (Silicate of soda serves only as a weight maker in soap—it has no cleaning value)

Dawson Planting Program Praised

(Special To The Avalanche)

LAMESA, Feb. 19. (AP)—National recognition has been made of Dawson county's tree planting campaign. A letter to J. D. Dyer, chairman of the Dawson county bicentennial tree planting campaign committee, from the American Tree Planting association states, "We fully appreciate the program you have outlined; and the set up for tree-planting in your county is quite unequalled in the country, and should result in the planting of thousands of trees there. We expect to hold this county out as an example to others to emulate. Please keep us advised as to the progress of this campaign."

More than 200 people are busy in Dawson county getting trees set during this campaign, so states Mr. Dyer, chairman. In further commenting upon this drive, Mr. Dyer states, "Every street and block, and each highway for two miles out from the city, and every school district is covered with committees and workers to secure as many tree plantings as possible during this campaign. It is expected that a George Washington and tree-planting program will be conducted in each rural school in the county on February 22nd."

Dawson county is ambitious to secure the national banner for tree planting, it is reported. A certificate of honor, signed by the American Tree Planting Association will be given to each person in Dawson county who plants a tree during this campaign, according to the central committee. This campaign is set under the civic department of the local chamber of commerce, of which Mayor J. R. Lowrie is chairman.

Nick Has Never Cut A Woman's Hair And Won't

FORT DAVIS, Feb. 18. (AP)—Nick Mersfelder, 80 years a barber, has never cut a woman's hair.

And, "by gum," Nick adds, "I never will."

Nick, the barber, was born in Bavaria in 1856, came to the United States when a boy and barbered in Austin several years in his early youth. He played the fiddle for country dances as a side line.

He moved to Fort Davis in 1881, spent two years in the Texas Rangers, and then took to his hair cutting permanently. He has become a stockholder in the Fort Davis State Bank, the largest hotel, and lends money to cattlemen on the side.

He owned two of the first automobiles in West Texas, but rides a bicycle most of the time. He has been justice of the peace at Fort Davis almost as long as he has been the town's barber.

Postal Receipts Show Gain For Quarter At Littlefield

By Staff Correspondent

LITTLEFIELD, Feb. 19. — Postal receipts for the fourth quarter in 1931 gained $400 over the same period in 1930 and reduced the loss of receipts by that amount, J. E. Brannen, postmaster, says.

Total receipts for the year were considerably less than the year before, amounting to about six or seven per cent. The last quarter gain was steady, throughout the three months.

"I believe we will get back during 1932 all that we lost and perhaps more," he said. "The first four days of the year I averaged $100 a day. Of course, we will not do that good all year but I believe that our business will continue to show a gain over 1930 and 1931."

"B. C." Relieves Headaches and Quiets Nerves

Realizing that no one drug can conquer even ordinary headaches, as they come from so many causes, a North Carolina pharmacist has developed a combination of several ingredients, used by many physicians, so blended and proportioned as to accomplish in a few minutes what we believe no one drug formula can do in so short a time.

You can get this formula wherever drugs are sold under the name "B.C." 10c and 25c packages, and when you have one of those violent, nerve-racking headaches, from inorganic causes, "B.C." will give you soothing relief in three minutes.

"B.C." should also be used for the relief of muscular aches and pains, common colds and neuralgia, reducing fever, and for quieting a distressed nervous system without opiates, narcotics or such habit forming drugs. (Adv.)

Girl's Clubs In Hockley Started

By Staff Correspondent

LEVELLAND, Feb. 19. — Seven girls' clubs have been organized in Hockley county since the first of the year, including one at Pettit and at least two more are to be organized, making a total of nine clubs with a probable membership of around 250, according to Miss Nannie Hill, home demonstration agent, who recently succeeded Miss Marie Tarwater.

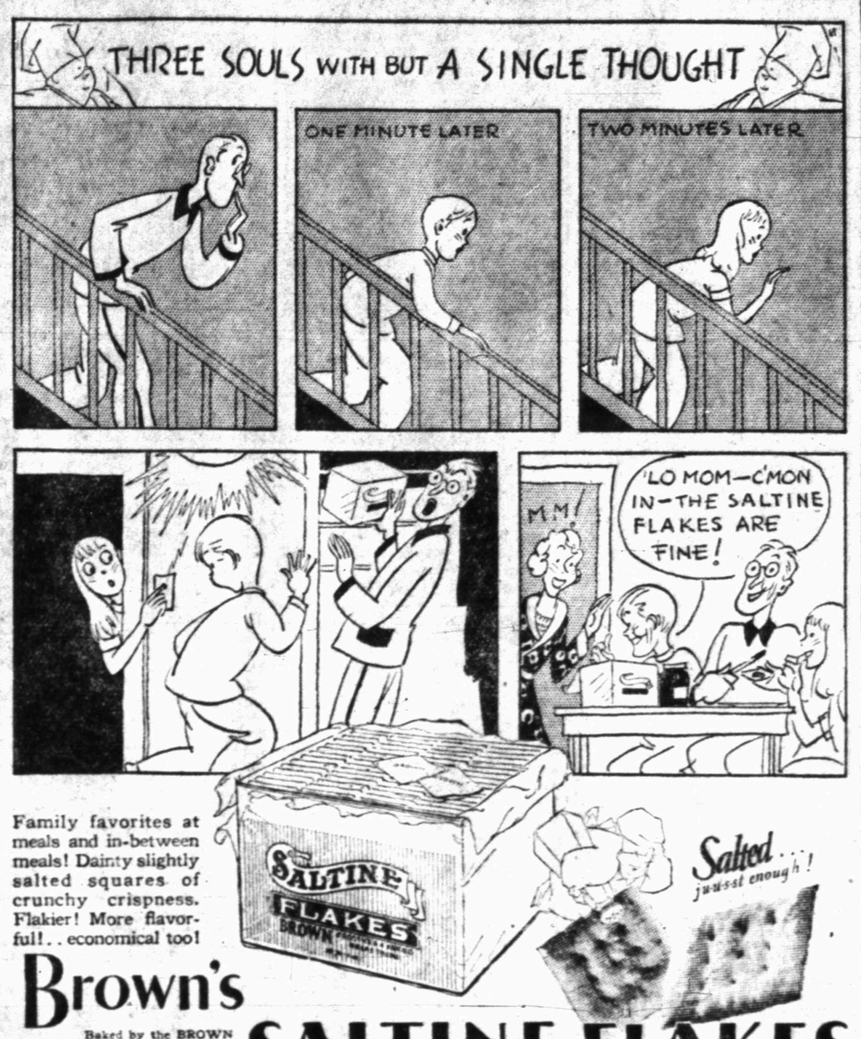

Clubs already functioning are at Anton, Hodges, Ropes, Smyer, Sundown and Whitharral. These clubs have from 20 to 30 girls and all of them are enthusiastic over their work.

At Pep the club has not been organized because the school building was destroyed by fire during the Christmas holidays and a temporary meeting place has not been secured. "As soon as we get a meeting place at Pep we will go ahead and organize," Miss Hill said.

Cobleland also, is to be oragnized. The girls are meeting regularly. Miss Hill will meet with them. This year's work is on a different basis than in other years, the girls now doing the same work as the women of the county in demonstration work.

There are 12 women's clubs and beginning February 1 Miss Hill expects to meet with them.

Plainview Eliminated Early By Tourney Dark Horse

Ropes Upsets Dope To Beat Big Favorites

Lubbock Westerners Advance To Semi-Finals With Early Win Over Wilson; Shallowater Remains Favorite

Unheralded and unsung but not unversed in the ways of basketball, a fighting, slashing, goal-tossing band of green-clad cagers from Ropes, a tiny spot in the very southeastern part of Hockley county, threw a monkey wrench into the District 2 high school basketball tournament, yea, verily into the Texas Interscholastic league race, by rising in its might to smash the Plainview High school Bulldogs, pre-tournament favorites, in a quarter-final game yesterday, the opening day of the joust.

The first day of the annual tournament, the winner of which will represent the district in the state tournament, was anything but peaceful and according to Hoyle, or whoever it is who inspires and directs basketball tournaments. Four teams failed to show up for first round games, leaving a bunch of forfeits which in turn left some teams on a keen edge for what was to follow. The rest of the business was featured by upsets and close, hard games.

It's A Close Battle

Ropes, champion of Hockley county, created quite a stir in Lubbock several weeks ago at the Lubbock High school invitation tournament, but since the team failed to gain the finals of the previous joust it was temporarily forgotten. Yesterday the Ropes basketeers sprang a surprise by finally coming out the winner of a closely contested 24 to 22 game with the tournament favorites. Coach Froggie Lovvorn's team had been resting in a local hotel preparatory to the game and were not altogether unaware of the potency of the Hockley county cagers. As long as Williams, star forward, stayed in the game the Bulldogs were ahead, or at least in a tie, but Williams went out with four personal fouls and Hitt, Headstream, Moore and Payne had their way in gaining a tie then a two-point advantage which they held. The Bulldogs died hard, but they seemed to lack the offensive punch they have shown in previous games. Williams, who tallied 16 points, was the only effective scorer for Plainview. R. Wester and Mabry, forward and center, scored two and 1 field goal each.

Semi-Finals Today

Ropes meets Meadow this morning at 11 o'clock at the Texas Tech gymnasium in one of the semi-final games. Lubbock and Shallowater meet in the opener of today's program at 10 o'clock. The final game between the winners is slated for 7:30 tonight at the Tech floor.

The Lubbock Westerners, who won their first game by forfeit over Muleshoe, Bailey county representative, played one of their best games of the year to beat Wilson, Lynn county champion, in the quarter-final game. The score was 29 to 22, and was a see-saw affair all the way, full of interest, action and industry. Gene Brown was doing some of the shooting of which it is capable and Robert Stone was hitting the basket with regularity. The defensive work of Quinlan and Wilkins, Blackwell and Payne, was outstanding. Leroy Crews, high point man in the invitation tournament here, was expelled from the melee with four personals early in the game. The Westerners had his number and kept him well covered while he stayed in, curtailing his activities to one field goal and two free goals. The Westerners almost reckoned without the ability of Olin Crews, who waxed warm enough to lead his side with 11 points, one point more than Brown, who led Lubbock, could make.

Wilson had also won a first round game by forfeit, Seagraves failing to show up in time for the early game.

Shallowater came through two hard games and remained the tournament favorites after Plainview had gone out. Littlefield showed up in time for the first round game with Shallowater, Lubbock county championship team, and gave the champions more than they had anticipated. The final result was 34 to 26, but most of the way the score was tied or very close.

Shallowater Shines

Shallowater came through the quarter-final game with Ralls in fine fettle, Copeland and Beason continuing a scoring rampage to tally 18 and 16 points each while Vaught and Henderson rang up six each to win over the Jackrabbits by a 46 to 21 count. Ben Arthur, Ware and McElroy were outstanding in Coach Hendricks' lineup. The Jackrabbits defeated Lamesa, 24 to 22, in their first round game, one of the thrillers of the day.

Floydada, Floyd county champion, came through its first round game as expected, defeating Abernathy, 32 to 17 after getting off to a ragged start. Anderson, Lightfoot and Nelson were outstanding in the Floydada lineup. But the Whirlwinds met their nemesis in a quarter-final game with Meadow, Terry county champion. After gaining a good lead and holding it to the last, the Whirlwinds finally gave down before a surprise attack and lost a 26 to 20 decision to Meadow. The Terry county youths scored eight points in the last three minutes to overtake a lead and surpass it. It was the final game of the day, played shortly after Shallowater's victory over Ralls.

In the only consolation game played yesterday, Dickens, who showed up too late for a game with Ropes, deefated Muleshoe, 35 to 9. Consolation games will begin at 9 o'clock this morning and continue through the day. A third place winner will be determined this way.

Yesterday's games were well attended, and the gymnasium last night was practically half filled. Big crowds are expected at the semi-final games this morning between Lubbock and Shallowater and Ropes and Meadow.

Norway's Speed Skaters Win First Two Speed Contests

LAKE PLACID N. Y., Feb. 19. (AP)—Partially atoning for their dismal failure in the Olympics, Norway's speed skaters swept through to victory in the first two races of the world's championships here today.

After Haakon Pedersen had captured the opening event, the 500 meters, in 44 4-10 seconds, Ivar Ballangrud, the defending champion, won the 5,000 meters in 8:37 6-10. Norwegians took four of the first six places in the 500 and three of the first five positions in the longer race.

Tomorrow the program will wind up with the 1,500 and 10,000 meter races.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, NEW YORK, Feb. 19. Dempsey Declares He Can Still Come Back

Mauler Says He Can Whip The Kingfish

Record Smashing Crowd Sees Exhibition In Chicago On Thursday Night; Receipts Total $74,616.25

By CHARLES DUNKLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO, Feb. 19. (AP)—There was one big man in the boxing world tonight who was certain Jack Dempsey today carefully digested all the accounts of his whirlwind four-round exhibition against King Levinsky at the Chicago stadium last night, read the almost unanimous opinion of the experts that Levinsky had won, and then scowled.

"So they think I'm through again, eh?" Dempsey blurted out.

"Well, I'm not. I'm going right on. I'll be back. I'll fight Levinsky ten rounds with six ounce gloves, instead of the ten ounce gloves we wore last night. I still can sock with the regulation fighting gloves on."

Dempsey may not get a chance to fight Max Schmeling, the titleholder, but he is determined to carry on in the hope of proving he can do better than he did last night.

Dempsey isn't the kind to make excuses or offer alibis, but he did make the emphatic statement that he wasn't right against the Kingfish, declaring he had suffered from colds that forced him to bed nine times during the last 30 days.

"You know that I never give alibis," Dempsey said, "but I think my showing last night—an off night for me—was largely due to my cold. My head wasn't clear and I was bothered throughout the match by inability to breathe. I don't want to take any glory away from Levinsky. He is better than you think he is, he has courage, can punch and has the makings of a good fighter."

There is a possibility that Dempsey may fight Levinsky in a ten-round bout under the auspices of the Chicago stadium, in Soldier field this summer.

The record smashing crowd that jammed the Chicago stadium last night gave Dempsey, most magnetic personality in boxing, the distinction of drawing the largest crowds in the history of the sport, both indoors and outdoors.

Dempsey and Tunney drew the outdoor record crowd with some 147,000 spectators at Soldier field, Sept. 22, 1927, last night's official figures were 23,322 paid admissions, eclipsing the former record by almost a thousand. The gross receipts were $74,616.25.

Net receipts, of which Dempsey received 45 per cent and Levinsky 15 per cent were not revealed, but estimates placed their shares at $24,000 and $9,500.

BALM BEACH, Fla., Feb 19 — (AP) — Maureen Orcutt, former metropolitan golf champion, today won the Florida women's tournament here defeating Helen Hicks, national champion, one up, on the 19th hole.

Back In Wichita

WICHITA, Kan., considered by Frank (Izzy) Isbell the best baseball town in the Western League, will see the return of the former White Sox player to that city with his baseball club. Isbell formerly owned the Wichita club but sold out five years ago to Art Griggs. Now Griggs has moved his Wichita club to Tulsa, Okla. Rather than see Wichita "hold the bag," Isbell has decided to move his Topeka team to that city. He will install lights at the Wichita park and play league games at night.

Cotton States League Admits Bogalusa, Alabama Into Loop

VICKSBURG, Miss., Feb. 19. (AP)—The Cotton States baseball league continued efforts today to perfect a 1932 season after directors yesterday admitted Bogalusa, La., to fill the gap left by the transfer of Jackson to the new Southeastern league.

The directors, meeting with President Frank A. Scott, set May 3 as the tentative date for opening the season of 120 games. The directors are considering meeting with major and Texas league officials soon in hope of obtaining major league assistance in getting players.

Such a meeting was suggested by J. Alvin Gardner of Dallas, president of the Texas league, who attended the meeting here.

The directors were told there was a possibility of Hot Springs, Ark., coming into the league. The application of Port Arthur, Tex. was turned down because of the city's distance from other members.

Bill Terry Comes Around And Signs With N. Y. Jints

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 19. (AP) — Bill Terry's lengthy argument with the New York Giants over his pay envelope for 1932 ended amicably today when the big first baseman emerged from a 15-minute conference with Manager John McGraw and admitted he had signed on the dotted line.

The Memphis holdout, who was reported to have received $22,000 last year and who said recently he would rather quit the game than take a suggested 40 per cent salary cut, smiled as he admitted coming to undivulged terms.

Big Money Pros To See Final Rounds Of Florida Joust As Fans; Texans In

Burke, Sarazen, Joe Turnesa Fall By Golf Wayside

TAMPA, Fla., Feb. 19. (AP) — Big money campaigners of American golfdom, headed by Billy Burke, National Open champion, were brushed aside today as match play of the $4,000 Gasparilla open tournament here moved through the second round.

Burke, in trouble with his approach game, was eliminated in the first round by Ray Mangrum, of Los Angeles, one up. Mangrum beat Tony Butler, Corpus Christi, Texas, 2 and 1, in the second round.

Into the ranks of the spectators with Burke went former national open champions also—Johnny Farrell, of St. Augustine; Joe Turnesa of Elmsford, N. Y., and Gene Sarazen of Great Neck, L. I.

The co-medalists, Dick Metz, San Angelo, Texas, youth, and the veteran Willie MacFarlane, of Tuckahoe, N. Y., himself a former National Open champion, went into the quarter finals.

Others who advanced were Walter Hagen of Detroit, Paul Runyan of Westchester, N. C., Tony Manero of Elmhurst, N. Y., Bill Mehlhorn of New York and Eddie Schultz of Troy, N. Y.

Metz in the second round defeated Ted Smith of Lacrosse, Wis., 4 and 3.

DICK METZ
BY ART KRENZ
NEA Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 19. Tom Creavy started the ball rolling for the golf unknowns when he won the P. G. A. championship of 1931. Now the winter season is producing a sensational crop of young professionals.

Among the possibilities are Dick Metz and Ralph Guldahl. Ralph eliminated a number of big leaguers in the motion picture match play tournament in Hollywood last year and his score of 285 was at the top in the Arizona open.

Metz of San Angelo, Texas., is a real comer. He finished second to Mac Smith in the Los Angeles open and is using the $933 prize money to round out the winter tour. His rounds of 72-71-72-70—285 showed consistency. In 72-hole competition often an unknown will harass a leader for three rounds but when the last putt is canned favorites generally dominate.

Pirate Manager And Bunch Of Players Enroute West Pause At Amarillo To Rest

AMARILLO, Feb. 19. (AP) — "How can we win the pennant next year? Three clubs, Chicago, New York and St. Louis, already have it won — just ask any of them." Charles "Mooney" Gibson, manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, told baseball fans here last night.

Gibson, with 13 members of the National League baseball club that finished fifth in the pennant chase last year, stopped here for 30 minutes, enroute to their spring training camp at Paso Robles, Calif.

The squad, composed mostly of pitchers and catchers, was joined here by Harris, a holdover hurler.

Those in the squad were pitchers Bivins, Kennedy, Neggling, Spencer, Wood, Taylor and Bishop; Catchers Finney and McEwen; Outfielder Jenson, Coach Hartley, Dr. Jorgenson, trainer, and Mr. and Mrs. Gibson.

ACC Wildcats Trounce Hill Billies, 48-21, In TIAA Go

ABILENE, Feb. 19. (AP) — "Polly" Wise, regular center for Daniel Baker college, went out in the first two minutes of play tonight with a sprained ankle, and with him went whatever chances the Hill Billies had of making the ball game interesting for Abilene Christian college.

The Christians ran up eleven points before Daniel Baker started, had a lead of 29 to 9 at the half, and wound up with a majority of 48 to 21.

John M. Biggerstaff of Sulphur Springs, Texas, has only one leg, but plans to play in major golf tournaments in 1932.

The Folly of Overloading—Anything

The fable of the straw that broke the camel's back is merely a simple lesson in the folly of overloading—anything. In good banks there cannot be an overloading of any loan account—for any purpose or person. There must be proper distribution of loans among sound businesses and reliable people. Such distribution alone guarantees the safety of a depositor's money.

No depositors of these banks have been endangered by as much as a straw of "overloaded" loaning. Your account is invited.

A COLLEGE COLUMN

By LOIS JACQUES, TECH CORRESPONDENT

JURY ACQUITS DRYDEN

"Not guilty" was the verdict returned by a jury of twelve of the classmates of Mary Elizabeth Dryden, after her trial Thursday night for the murder of Garland Smith. The case was the feature program for the Pre-Law club.

Court was held in the engineering auditorium, which was filled to capacity for the trial, with many people standing in the doorway. Solon Clements presided as judge and H. C. Garrard was the sheriff who made witnesses swear to tell everything but the truth while on the stand.

Counsel for the pretty defendant consisted of G. R. Coker and Clyde James. State's attorneys were Christine and Helen Settle, Charles O'Neall and Doyle Settle. Evidence presented by the state was largely circumstantial, with a similar murder at another college being put into the records.

Witnesses included Dorothy Vandagriff, Frank Herral, John Chamberlin, Christine Settle, who read a diary of the murdered man, Canon Clements, coroner at the inquest, Mrs. J. H. James, Bill Leslie, Lorene Childers and Miss Dryden. Following the defendant's testimony the state presented its case.

As attorney for the state, the blonde girl lawyer, Helen Settle, kept the courtroom breathless as she delivered her plea for a verdict of guilty, and brought a smile from the audience when she referred to the defendant as "that brazen brunette." Coker and James plead for the freedom of their client by attempting to show how the state had failed to prove her guilty. O'Neall closed the case for the state and it went to the jury, which returned a verdict within 15 minutes.

HAS OPERATION

Mrs. Paul Hardy, senior home economics student, underwent an operation for appendicitis this week. Her husband, a senior agriculture student, is president of the Aggie club.

STUDY PLANT PEST

Snapdragons, prevented from blossoming by a small worm which lived within the center of the growing tip, have been the subject of study for several weeks by Dr. E. L. Reed, biology department head, and members of the horticulture department. The insect has been identified by the Texas A. and M. experiment station as a plume moth, which entomologists say has never before been known to bother snapdragons.

Since the worms live within the stem, Dr. Reed explains, there is no effective means of control. However, the horticulture department plans to make the growing season a little later in the hope that the posts will not be active at that time.

FIRE RIFLE MATCHES

Good scores have been fired on a postal match with the University of North Carolina rifle team, according to members of the Tech club, and they expect to win the match, which is to be completed this week. Next week several more contests are scheduled, and four or five will be fired each week through the spring term.

At a meeting of the club this week members voted to buy more ammunition. They plan to start on the 30 range during the spring term.

TAG DAY TO END TODAY

Sale of the small scarlet and black "Howdy" tags by A. W. S. ended Friday afternoon, but students will wear them through today on the campus, association officials said yesterday.

All girls' organizations have been selling the tickets, but A. W. S. council sponsored the movement, which will be an annual affair. Results of the sale were quite satisfactory, in the opinion of those in charge.

METHODISTS DINE TONIGHT

Dr. King Vivion, president of Southwestern university at Georgetown, is to be the principal speaker at the banquet to be given tonight for all Methodist students in Lubbock. The affair will be held in the basement of the First Methodist church.

"Highroads" will be the program theme. Maetta Mounts, president of the Wesley Foundation group, has been chairman of arrangements.

ELIMINATE JUDGE TODAY

The 19 members of the junior animal husbandry class today will have an elimination contest to select two teams, out of which later one team will be chosen.

Workouts will begin this morning and continue through the day. Winners will have further practice next week and a second elimination will be held to determine members of the junior livestock and cattle judging teams.

ELECTION CLOSES

One of the largest votes ever registered by the freshman class in an election for queen closed Friday afternoon, but results will not be known until the coronation of that girl March 5. Toreador officials, who sponsored the contest, said that a good representation of the class voted.

ANNOUNCE CONVOCATION

Attention of students and faculty members has been called to the college convocation to be held at 10 o'clock Monday morning in celebration of Washington's two hundredth birthday. President Horn has announced that all students of government, public speaking and history will be held responsible for attendance. George W. Dupree, Lubbock attorney, is to be the principal speaker.

All classes and labs will be dismissed for the program but will be resumed at 11 o'clock. No holiday will be given.

London's population has just been estimated at 4,430,000.

The University of Michigan is rated among the "joiners" of educational institutions, holding membership in 34 different organizations.

Deputies Deny Frame Charges

Two Dallas County Officials Declare They Had No Enmity With Marshall At Trial Of H. W. McBride

WAXAHACHIE, Feb. 19. (AP) — Two Dallas county deputy sheriffs denied vigorously today that they had tried to "frame" former Sheriff Schuyler Marshall, jr., on robbery and burglary charges.

Their denials were made at the trial of H. W. McBride, accused of robbery with firearms in connection with the disarming of night watchman Bob Cunningham of Ferris the night of Nov. 17, 1931. Marshall, J. Robert Kelly and Herbert Scales of Dallas, had been indicted on similar charges.

Denver Seale, Dallas county deputy sheriff whose father, the late Allen Seale, once engaged in a bitter political campaign with Marshall, testified today that "Marshall wasn't bothering us politically and I didn't want to convict him unless he was guilty."

He denied promising McBride immunity for prosecution if he would make a statement involving Marshall.

"Are you afraid of Marshall politically and are you trying to get rid of him?" Prosecutor Arch Gray asked.

"No," Seale replied.

Deputy Ed Caster of Dallas likewise denied "trying to get Marshall." He said he knew nothing of Marshall's connection with the case when he began investigating burglary jobs at a Dallas boiler works and the Ferris bank.

McBride's purported confession to his part in the disarming of Cunningham was on record as the trial was resumed today. The statement made to officers was admitted as evidence late yesterday over the protest of defense counsel.

Man Is Charged With Murder In Slaying Of City Officer

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 19. (AP) — John Dugan, 24, was charged with first degree murder today in the slaying of Oliver P. Carpenter, city detective shot by bandits he surprised attempting to rob the Mercantile Trust company, February 8.

The arrest of Dugan followed assertion by police that he had attempted to dispose of a revolver after the slaying of Carpenter and the slugging of Carpenter's companion, Ed Young. Bullets fired by this pistol, police said, showed similar markings to those fired in the attack on the two officers.

John Mingori is charged with the murder of Carpenter. Police said Mingori confessed participation. A warrant was also issued charging Victor Maddi with participation in the machine gun slaying of the officer. Efforts to obtain extradition of Maddi from Houston were unsuccessful in the face of an alibi presented by the accused man.

Making A Hole-In-One

The determined-looking young lady above would probably be more familiar to you if she had a golf club in her hand instead of the instrument usually associated with Cupid and Robin Hood. She is Helen Hicks, national women's golf champion, and is shown at Pinehurst, N. C., as she received a few pointers on how to make a hole-in-one from Russ Hoogerhyde, who happens to be the national archery champion. He found Helen quite an apt pupil.

Annual Livestock Show Being Planned By Abernathy C.-C.

(By Staff Correspondent)

ABERNATHY, Feb. 19.—Plans for the second annual Abernathy livestock show, April 8 and 9, the Saturday before the fifth annual Panhandle-Plains dairy show at Plainview, are taking shape, J. P. Nystel, secretary of the chamber of commerce, reports.

At the last meeting of the organization, which is sponsoring the show, a committee composed of A. H. Reid, A. M. Medlin and Vic Lamb was named to prepare a program of entertainment.

J. J. Riley and V. S. Payne were named as a committee to secure judges. Mr. Payne is vocational agriculture teacher. Students of the classes will be in charge of the show.

Weather permitting, the show will be held in the open air on the city's lot in the center of town.

Newspaper Says Bryan Will Be In Vice-President Race

DENVER, Feb. 19. (AP)—The Rocky Mountain News says William Jennings Bryan, jr., who promoted the western states silver conference held here this week, will be put forth as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for vice-president.

Bryan, son of the great commoner who for a generation dominated the Democratic party, was a leading spirit in the silver conference which brought 200 delegates from 12 western states. They adopted plans for a nationwide campaign for remonization of silver.

The conference here was nonpartisan and the sponsors of the national movement planned to keep it on that basis. Bryan left here yesterday for his home in Los Angeles.

Instructor Held In Bank Robbery

SEGUIN, Feb. 19. (AP)—Lieutenant Herbert C. Lichtenberger, flying instructor at Randolph field charged with the robbery of the Schertz State bank Monday, was remanded to jail without bond after a preliminary hearing here today.

After hearing five witnesses, Justice of the Peace George Dix ordered the accused officer held without bond pending a grand jury investigation. The next grand jury convenes April 4.

Defense attorneys announced they would file habeas corpus proceedings immediately in Bexar county (San Antonio). There is no district court in session here now. Defense attorneys interpreted the law to allow them to seek habeas corpus release in the nearest district court in session.

The first witness of the hearing was H. P. Thulemeyer, cashier, who was in the Schert bank with his wife at the time of the holdup.

Thulemeyer said a man entered the place with a gun in one hand and a muffler tied over his face. The bandit threatened Mr. and Mrs. Thulemeyer with a pistol and said, according to testimony: "This is a stickup. Throw up your hands."

Nearly All Of The Drouth Production Loans Are Paid

(By Staff Correspondent)

ABERNATHY, Feb. 19. — Just a fraction more than one per cent of the drouth production loans made to farmers in Abernathy's trade territory by the federal government remain unpaid, N. G. Hix, who had charge of the loans for the chamber of commerce, reported.

Loans amounted to $6,236.50, Mr. Hix said. Of this amount, $3,622.50 was to Hale county farmers and $2,614 to Lubbock county farmers.

Unpaid loans amount to $72.84, or 1.15 per cent of the total.

Report of the situation was made to the chamber of commerce. Business men expressed their appreciation of the work. W. A. Richter aided Mr. Hix in handling the loans and in making the survey of collections.

Tenants of apartments in Malmo, Sweden, are forming building societies to erect their own apartment buildings.

Manchester, England, will spend $40,000,000 on its projected underground railway system.

THEY'LL SAY "HOORAY FOR THIS WASHINGTON PIE"

You'll say "Hooray for Calumet's double-action"

START a celebration in your home to-night—make this Calumet Washington Pie! Use the easy recipe given—use Calumet, the Double-Acting Baking Powder—and see what happens. Good? . . . it'll be the grandest cake you ever baked. Smooth! Delicate! So wonderfully delicious—it will cover you with glory.

The secret, of course, is simple—Calumet's Double-Action! You'd never get that lightness—that extra fineness—if it weren't for Calumet's Double-Action. Here's how it works. In the mixing bowl, Calumet's first action begins. This starts the leavening. Then, in the oven, the second action begins. A new, fresh, steady rising that continues the leavening. Up! . . . up! . . . it keeps raising the batter and holds it high and light. Your baking is protected at every step. It's bound to turn out beautifully!

An extra saving too!—The simple, tested recipe given here is a Calumet recipe—specially designed for the Calumet proportion—only one level teaspoon to a cup of sifted flour. That's the usual Calumet proportion and should be followed for best results. A splendid economy for you—thanks to the perfect efficiency of Calumet's Double-Action.

Yes, Calumet is the real baking powder bargain! A bargain—because it avoids costly failures—because it always brings top-notch success. Try it to-day! Calumet is a product of General Foods Corporation.

2 teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder

Beat after each addition until smooth. Add flavoring. Bake in two greased 9-inch layer pans in moderate oven (350° F.) 25 minutes. Put raspberry jelly or jam between layers and sprinkle top with powdered sugar. All measurements are level.

Behind The Cheering

IF you're ultra-sophisticated you probably enjoy some good chuckles in connection with the "homecoming" celebration staged for "Alfalfa Bill" Murray in Collinsville Thursday, but if you've been carefully peering into the signs of the times you probably didn't chuckle.

Of course, it is stretching the imagination to refer to Governor Murray as "the next President of the United States," because there is little to indicate truth of the statement at this time. Further, it is disconcerting to picture an avowed Presidential candidate as placing the Democratic nomination upon the same plane as a contest for a constabulary post. But when thousands of people brave a rain storm to cheer a man who to them symbolizes a representative of the rank and file of our everyday citizenship, then the matter takes a more important aspect.

The Murray party in a rural Texas community shows that the people are awakening to the problems of the day. It indicates that the present administration does not suit them; it proves that a change is going to come if the people have their way. The Morning Avalanche does not mean it indicates that "Alfalfa Bill" Murray will be the next President, or will even secure the Democratic nomination—because we don't believe the Oklahoman has much of a chance to secure either exalted position. But to us it produces the return of an old sort of handwriting on the walls of national politics.

There was something vitally human in the Murray home-coming at Collinsville. There was an indication of the pulsating power of the electorate as the mud-splashing auto caravan carried the bewhiskered governer along his cheering route.

Sophisticates may have enjoyed what to them was pure comedy. But thinkers glimpsed a picture of a cross-section of aroused citizenship.

HOTHOUSE EDUCATION

It is a bold experiment in education which will be conducted at Northwestern university, where a special course is to be arranged for youthful prodigies, provided enough of them can be found to take it. The announced intention is to see what can be done with boys of extraordinary ability under the stimulus of mutual competition and a favorable environment.

It is hoped to find six members of the class in time for the opening of the next scholastic year. Six seems a modest number, but the requirements for enrollment are formidable. A letter addressed to high school principals mentions as examples of precocity such men as Jeremy Benthan, Lord Byron, Benjamin Franklin, Alexander Hamilton, Napoleon Bonaparte, John Stuart Mill and Mozart. Northwestern University is looking for lads of similar ability to develop from a prodigious youth to a successful maturity.

History proves that it can be done. But history has little or nothing to say of the effects which may follow from assembling half a dozen prodigies in one educational hothouse. Byron, Bonaparte and Benjamin Franklin were similar only in the fact that they had a brilliant boyhood. They might have got along very badly as classmates, even under the auspices of a modern university.

WEALTH AND INCOME

Estimates of the National Industrial Conference board profess to show what happened to the wealth of the United States in the first year of the depression. It is calculated that the total of tangible and physical assets were $32,100,000,000 less in 1930 than in 1929, a decrease of 8.9 per cent. The drop in income was more serious, amounting to $14,000,000,000 or 16.4 per cent.

It is the latter figure which is most significant of the economic disorders of the last few years. A decline in income means a decrease in purchasing power, a stagnation of productive industry, a scarcity of money in circulation. The national wealth may be relatively unimpaired, while dire results are following from the decrease in incomes. It is estimated, indeed, that the present worth of this country is still far ahead of the figures of 1914 and much greater in proportion to population than the wealth of any principal nation in the world. But it is money in circulation which provides employment and spells prosperity.

Governmental measures of economic relief are being directed principally to breaking the spell which has so seriously slowed down the circulation of money. It is true, as was said at the time of the market collapse, that not a nickel of net worth has been destroyed by the depression. But until the income totals return more nearly to normal, the depression will continue to be a present and painful fact.

Everybody remembers what Coolidge was paid for his literary endeavors, but who remembers one of the bromides?

Practical Health Problems

BACK AILMENTS

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, And of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

DR. BROWN describes the case of a man who had suffered for some 10 years with frequent attacks of pain in the back. Finally he could not ride in an automobile, lift anything, or even lean over to put on his shoes without getting a catch in his back.

It was found that the habitual position of his body was in the extra range of motion of his spine, particularly low down on the back, and that as a result it took but slight effort to produce a strain. Associated with the backache there was a long standing record of indigestion, difficulty in action of the bowel, headaches, and nervousness. The man realized that he had been overworking and that he was in general fatigued.

At first it was difficult for the man to lie in bed because the back was more uncomfortable in bed than when he was on his feet. However, he was able to get good rest by placing one or two pillows under his knees, taking the strain off the lower part of his spine. Sitting in bed in an erect position put more strain on the spine than when he was on his feet.

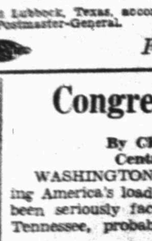

If the spine can be rested by having the patient lie face downward with pillows under his hips, the opportunity may be used to apply hot packs to the back to relieve the pain and the inflammation. The patient was taught to breathe properly and efforts were made to strengthen his abdominal muscles so as to help distribute his weight properly. A brace was planned which helped him to hold himself in the proper position, and when the patient got back on his feet he was taught how to use his body more correctly in the sitting, standing and bending positions. When he finally learned how to sit and stand correctly, his backache and indigestion cleared up, and he was asked to change his routine of life so as to overcome his constant fatigue.

This record is an indication of an immense amount of study and the care necessary in order to take care properly of a patient with backache. The diet, the amount of fluids taken and the amount of rest are all important. It is not possible merely to treat the painful point and to take it for granted that that will relieve the condition.

Congress Gets Worried

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—"The problem of meeting America's load of public indebtedness has not yet been seriously faced," says Senator Cordell Hull of Tennessee, probably the foremost fiscal expert in congress.

Cordell Hull

There has, indeed, been much talk in Washington of the necessity for governmental economies.

The fact, is, however, that mere economies do not go far toward solving the real difficulty. Expenses can be cut down, but debts must be paid, and debts, rather than current expenses, are what threaten to break the national back in the not distant future.

FOR EXAMPLE, the federal budget, which totaled approximately only an annual billion before the war, is now about five and a half billions, and it may seem as if it should be possible to retrench back to the pre-war figure.

Yet Senator Kenneth McKellar of the appropriations committee of the upper congressional chamber, who has made an especially thorough study of the subject, is authority for the statement that reduction much in excess of a billion is impracticable, because about three and a half billions of the margin above the pre-war period represent payments on war obligations and the cost of veterans' activities.

Not only is there no prospect of any early shrinkage in either of those items, but both inevitably will increase—the war obligations very soon, with Europe's certain default in interest on wartime borrowings from Uncle Sam; the cost of veterans' activities gradually for years to come, with the usual mounting of ex-service men's claims upon the government.

BUT THE WORST of the story remains to be told.

More and more urgent demands are being made upon the United States treasury for the relief of unemployment—demands varying from hundreds of millions per appropriation, for direct aid, up into the billions, for public improvements, to create work for the idle.

The answer to those who argue that such relief should be provided by the states, counties and municipalities, and not by the federal government, is that the states, counties and municipalities already have largely exhausted their resources and credit.

It is perfectly true that they have; Senator Hull submits statistics showing more than $700,000,000 in local public obligations actually in default now.

IT LIKEWISE is true that, federal obligations being technically in a different watertight compartment from the respective watertight compartments of the country's many states, counties and municipalities, the federal government's credit still is good, regardless of conditions among the states, counties and municipalities.

Nevertheless, it is not to be forgotten that the country, as a whole, is made up of states, counties and cities; they and the federal government alike all get their funds from the same reservoir.

If the states, counties and cities have taken out all that it will yield to their methods of pumping from it, the thought is unescapable that there must be a limit to the volume of its contents and that it is not unimaginable that the federal government, too, can get to the bottom of it.

TO BE SPECIFIC, Senator Hull places the total of federal, state and local indebtednesses at 30 billions, as of 1929—all waiting to be paid; subject to reduction by not a single cent, by any conceivable legerdemain of economy.

And this year the total is higher, due to treasury deficits, accumulating at a rate approaching a billion per annum.

And it will be still higher, when American taxpayers are compelled formally to take over the load of repaying loans secured by European nations in the United States during the world conflict.

And higher yet, by whatever obligations are incurred in the relief of unemployment.

IT IS DIFFICULT to find a statesman in Washington who will answer, explicitly, how he expects this enormous burden to be dealt with when, finally it is recognized that it MUST be dealt with, as it will have to be recognized sooner or later.

No public man likes to say outright that he looks for a certain amount of repudiation and, in part for a modified capital levy.

Still, nearly every public man does say it in some fashion.

They do not use the term "repudiation"; they speak of "mild inflation."

Instead of a "capital levy" they suggest an airtight, unescapable and very heavy "inheritance tax."

INFLATION, carried to the last extreme, as in Germany soon after the war, would consist in the issuance of such a flood of paper money that it no longer would possess a value, whereupon debts could be paid off in worthless currency and then the country would restabilize.

Inheritance taxation in England reached a post-war level which practically has wiped out the old fortunes; as soon as a multimillionaire dies his hoard passes into the public treasury.

Nothing so drastic as either is in prospect in America.

For all that, shivers have been going up and down the backs of all except the most reckless radicals on Capitol Hill lately at the merest hint of American participation in a war in the Orient, with the enormous additional debts it would involve—and abruptly, at an already ticklish juncture.

"It wouldn't take much more to threaten the very existence of our present system," timorous lawmakers whisper uneasily.

Which is a pretty good peace guaranty.

What Other People Think

I congratulate labor on its new champion in this country, Senator Bingham of Connecticut.—Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska.

All I want to say at this time is that the plan we are working on will be 100 per cent perfect before we spring it.—Colonel Frank Knox, head of the anti-hoarding campaign.

MAD MARRIAGE

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN Author of "HEART-HUNGRY," etc.

©1931 BY NEA SERVICE INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

GYPSY McBRIDE, 19-year-old New York typist, marries JIM WALLACE the day after she meets him at the home of her wealthy cousin, ANN TROWBRIDGE. Gypsy has been jilted by ALLAN CROSBY, just returned from a year and a half in Paris studying art, Wallace's fiance has broken their engagement to marry a richer man.

Jim and Gypsy go to Forest City where Jim has has a thriving law practice. His relatives snub Gypsy. Alan Crosby writes to her but she returns the letter unopened. MARCIA LORING, Jim's former fiancee, marries BROCK PHILLIPS, millionaire's son.

Months pass and Brock Phillips is killed in a fall from a horse, Marcia returns to Forest City. She consults Jim about financial affairs and later tells him her marriage to Phillips was a mistake. Jim tries to remain loyal to Gypsy but sees Marcia frequently. Hurt because she believes Jim has taken Marcia Phillips to lunch, Gypsy accepts FRANK GIBSON'S invitation to drive her home from a shopping trip. There is a collision and Gypsy's foot is injured. Another motorist takes her home and when they arrive there Gypsy faints.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLII

THERE was a light burning beside the bed. Gypsy became aware of it and was slightly annoyed. The light was a nuisance. All she wanted was to go asleep again. The covers felt soft and warm. She could drift back into slumber if it were not for the light. Sleep! What a blessing it would be to sleep forever —!"

She stirred and a twinge of pain shot through her body. The light remained there. She could reach out and turn it off but the exertion was unthinkable. Gypsy lay quiet for several moments. Vague thoughts began to trouble her. There was something she could not remember quite clearly. Something that had happened.

The girl opened her eyes. Why had she imagined anything was wrong? She was here in her own room. Everything was the same. Then she saw Matilda sitting in the shadow across the room.

"Matilda," she asked, "what time is it?"

The woman came to the bedside. "Don't you worry about the time," she said. "Do you feel better, ma'am?"

"My shoulder hurts," the girl said, "and my ankle. What's the matter, Matilda? What happened?"

"It was an accident. The doctor came and he said you were to lay still and try to rest. You'll feel better in the morning."

"Oh—I'm beginning to remember."

Gypsy lay silent for a time. An accident. She remembered that very clearly now. The crash in Frank Gibson's car. Yes, she remembered everything.

"You didn't tell me what time it was," she reminded the woman.

"It's nearly eight o'clock. Ten minutes until eight. Don't you think you might sleep some more."

Gypsy closed her eyes but she did not sleep. She was fully awake now. Presently she asked: "Where's Mr. Wallace? Did he have dinner on time?"

"It was ready but he waited until after the doctor came. He's been awful worried about you, Mrs. Wallace."

"Is he here now?"

"Down stairs in the library."

"Will you ask him to come up, please?"

Matilda cast a troubled look at her mistress, then went quietly from the room. Gypsy looked about her. Except for the orange-shaded lamp at the side of the bed the room was in darkness. She glanced down and saw that she was wearing one of her fragile, lace-trimmed night gowns. It was a yellow one. She moved and felt the pain in her ankle once more.

THERE were footsteps in the hall. Jim Wallace's tall figure appeared in the doorway.

"Feeling better?"

"I think so."

"The ankle's sprained. Doc says if you're careful it will be all right in a week or 10 days. Have to stay off your feet for a while. The other bruises will make you feel stiff for a few days but they're nothing to worr yabout."

"Sit down, Jim," Gypsy said. "Bring the chair over here where I can see you."

He drew a low rocking chair nearer to the bed and sat down. Gypsy eyed him seriously. "Do you know how it happened?" she asked.

"You were with Gibson," Jim answered promptly. He was not looking at her. "The man who brought you home—Mason—told me."

The girl nodded. "I was down town," she said, "when it began to rain. "I didn't even remember who he was when he spoke to me. Then I knew. He offered to bring me home in his car and it seemed silly to say 'no.' After we started he said it would be cool to drive out on the Somerset road. I wouldn't have gone except for a special reason—"

Her words broke off. Wallace was looking at her curiously.

"What was the special reason?" he asked.

Gypsy did not speak for several moments. "It's—a little hard to tell you," she went on finally. "I made up my mind this afternoon to go away."

"To go away where?"

"I don't know. Anywhere. I decided to go away so that you and Marcia Phillips—I mean so that I wouldn't be an obstacle to your happiness. I was going to tell you about it tonight. The sprained ankle doesn't need to make any difference. I can leave in a few days just the same."

"But where are you going? I haven't the faintest idea what you're driving at, Gypsy. You're not an obstacle to happiness! You're—you must be delirious! Maybe it's the stuff Doc gave you to make you sleep."

The girl shook her head. "I know

International Sunday School Lesson

BY DR. J. E. NUNN

General Topic: JESUS AND THE GOOD SHEPHERD

Scripture Lesson: John 10:1-16

1. Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that entereth not by the door into the fold of the sheep, but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber.

2. But he that entereth in by the door is the shepherd of the sheep.

3. To him the porter openeth; and the sheep hear his voice: and he calleth his own sheep by name, and leadeth them out.

4. When he hath put forth all his own, he goeth before them, and the sheep follow him: for they know his voice.

5. And a stranger will they not follow, but will flee from him: for they know not the voice of strangers.

6. This parable spake Jesus unto them: but they understood not what things they were which he spake unto them.

7. Jesus therefore said unto them again, Verily, verily, I say unto you, I am the door of the sheep.

8. All that came before me are thieves and robbers: but the sheep did not hear them.

9. I am the door; by me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, and shall go in and go out, and shall find pasture.

10. The thief cometh not, but that he may steal, and kill, and destroy; I came that they may have life, and may have it abundantly.

11. I am the good shepherd: the good shepherd layeth down his life for the sheep.

12. He that is a hireling, and not a shepherd, whose own the sheep are not, beholdeth the wolf coming, and leaveth the sheep, and fleeth, and the wolf snatcheth them, and scattereth them:

13. He fleeth because he is a hireling, and careth not for the sheep.

14. I am the good shepherd; and I know mine own, and mine own know me,

15. Even as the Father knoweth me, and I know the Father; and I lay down my life for the sheep.

16. And other sheep I have, which are not of this fold: them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice, and they shall become one flock, one shepherd.

Golden Text: — Jehovah is my shepherd: I shall not want.—Ps. 23: 1.

Time:— October 11-18, A. D. 29, the third year of Christ's ministry (the feast of tabernacles). December 20-27 of the same year (the feast of dedication). Place:—Jerusalem.

Introduction

"Christian homily, hymnology and art have made large use of this figure of Christ the Shepherd; have carried it out of the pastures of Judea into the universal Christian heart. Likewise it has transformed the Twenty-third Psalm into the most Christian of all the chapters in the Bible. The poetry of pastoral life, especially as we find it in the Bible, and the unfamiliarity of most of us with sheep and shepherds, have doubtless heightened the fascination of the symbolism.

In "Pilgrim's Progress" Christian says to Formalist and Hypocrisy, who come tumbling over the wall on the left hand of the narrow way: "Why came you not in at the gate, which standeth at the beginning of the Way? Know you not that it is written that 'he that cometh not in the door, but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber?'"

When Pilgrim met the shepherds feeding their flocks on the Delectable Mountains, he asked, "Whose Delectable Mountains are these? and whose be the sheep that feed upon them?" The shepherd replied, "These mountains are Immanuel's Land, and they are within sight of his city; and the sheep also are his, and he laid down his life for them."

"Other sheep I have, which are not of this fold," are one of the inscriptions on Livingstone's tombstone in Westminister Abbey.

The Jehovah Shepherd

In his early manhood our Lord was a carpenter, but he took time to walk in the fields and visit the sheepfolds about Nazareth. And the life of the shepherd with his flock fascinated him. It was the human counterpart of the Shepherd God portrayed in beautiful figure by prophet and psalmist in the Old Testament, as in Psalm 23, the Shepherd Psalm—"The Lord is my Shepherd, I shall not want." Moreover, it expressed his own feeling for the lost sheep of the house of Israel and the other sheep not of that fold. It became in his ministry the frequent vehicle of his own thought, as in this lesson. One recalls the parable of the Lost Sheep, the reference to the multitudes as sheep distressed and scattered and having no shepherd, and the picture of judgment in terms of the shepherd dividing the sheep from the goats.

Jesus The Door, v. 7

"I am the door of the sheep." The door of access to the sheep, as in vs. 1, 2, and the door of entrance for the sheep, as in v. 9. "At Hebron a few years ago a traveler, noticing that the sheep-folds were mere C-shaped walls, asked a shepherd why they had no doors. He answered, 'I am the door'; meaning that at night he lay wrapped in his cloak in the open entrance. At once one understands in that saying what Christ meant when he used it. In the fold of faith he has placed himself between those that are his and all the world. No sheep can wander without passing him, nor can any ravenous beast enter to devour but over his body. Outside are the trying things, the tempting things and dangerous; within, all is peace and safety."

"Thieves And Robbers," v. 8

"All that came before me are thieves and robbers." Of course Christ did not refer to Moses and the prophets and John the Baptist, the great religious leaders of the Jews of whom he often spoke in praise and whose teachings he himself followed loyally. He meant the false religious leaders of his race whom he so bitterly denounced as "scribes, Pharisees, hypocrites." They were oppressors of the widows and the poor, they were blind leaders of the blind, and when our Lord saw the crowds that massed themselves about him, hungry for spiritual food, he had compassion on them as sheep that had no shepherds.

In Jesus, Protection and Freedom, v. 9

"I am the door." The vital necessity of Christ to the sheep, as expressed by this metaphor, is so important that it is repeated, "The door is the crucial point; past the door and you are all right; but turned back at the door and you are all wrong." "By me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, and shall go in and go out, and shall find pasture." "A door through which you can pass in only one direction is not a door; it is a trap. Inward and outward—both ways the true door invites us. Protection and freedom; safety and struggle; worship and work; life enfolded in peace, and enlarged in power—this is the two-fold significance of the door." —Rev. Henry van Dyke, D. D. "He must be safe whom God shuts in. The moment that a poor sinner trusts in Christ, God shuts the door. There he is, and there he shall be, till time shall be no more. He is secure."—C. H. Spurgeon.

Jesus The Good Shepherd, v. 11

"I am the good shepherd." The true shepherd as distinguished from the hireling shepherd of the next verse. "The good shepherd layeth down h's life for the sheep." "To the mind of Christ this shepherd-life is the very shadow of the cross." "In the catacombs of Rome one may still see the rude figures of the Good Shepherd, by which disciples in days of persecution expressed their faith, and love and trust." "Christ was both the victim that was offered, 'the Lamb of God who taketh away the sins of the world,' and also the Priest who made the offering." "Is it not wonderful enough that God should care for men; should lead them, guide them, feed them, condescend to call himself their shepherd? But what a more blessed wonder, that the shepherd should give his life for his sheep, that the master should give his life for the servant, the good for the bad, the king for those who had rebelled against him, the Creator for his creatures." "Often, in braving dangers for his sheep, he loses his own life. So the Good Shepherd yielded up himself, that we might be saved from our sins and live."

"A Hireling, and Not a Shepherd," v. 12

"He that is a hireling, and not a shepherd, whose own the sheep are not." Our Lord pictures in these tense phrases the religious leaders whose interests in their occupation are entirely selfish, who carry on religious work not because they love man but because they seek their own advancement, or merely for the money they get.

"He fleeth because he is a hireling, and careth not for the sheep." "A man does what he does because he is what he is. A hireling is one who works for pay, and for no other reason. The hireling's heart is wrong, therefore his act is wrong. The Christian acts Christianly because he is a Christian."

"I Know Mine Own," v. 14

"I am the good shepherd." This is the gracious refrain of this passage, which is an anthem of heavenly love. "And I know mine own, and mine own know me." "The Orientals tell of one brave boy who stood his ground against a whole band of robbers and slew every one of them. He himself, however, fell exhausted from his wounds. They found him dead in the midst of his flock, literally cut in pieces. The sheep mourned for him as if they were human. They refused to be folded anywhere except at the spot where he fell. There a fold was built at the dictation of the saved flock, and there it stood for centuries as the monument to the brave shepherd boy."President David Gregg.

"Other Sheep I Have," v. 16

"And other sheep I have, which are not of this fold." The Gentiles, who were children of God "scattered abroad" (John 11: 52), outside the fold of the Jewish nation. As Christ said in a vision to Paul (Acts 18:10), "I have much people in this city," referring to that most heathenish city, Corinth. "Them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice." "Must" implies the Father's loving compulsion: "This commandment received I from my Father," (v. 18). "And they shall become one flock, one shepherd." Christ is to break down all barriers —those of jealous classes, and quarrelsome sects, and warring nations. All of Christ's people are to be brought together in one great flock, led by him to the green pastures and still waters of his love.

OLTON, (Special.)—Approximately 6,000 bundles of feed were destroyed by fire on the J. N. Dudley farm near here. Origin of the fire is unknown. Mr. Dudley was away from home. Men from Olton went out to fight the blaze, which was confined to three stacks.

CATARRH OF STOMACH

Oklahoma City, Okla. — "I take pleasure in testifying to the merits of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Some time ago I suffered for three years and came very near dying with catarrh of stomach and intestines," said G. T. Butler, 1632 W. 9th St. "I was carried to one of the best sanitariums of the country and failed to get relief. I came home and decided to try the 'Discovery.' I took it according to directions, secured permanent relief and have enjoyed perfect health since." All druggists.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 19. (AP)—The cotton market was very active today and prices after advancing 9 to 10 points with an opening bulge in stocks during the first hour of trading and ruling steady most of the period before noon, turned easier in the afternoon and lost all of the earlier gain, but rallied 2 to 3 points at the end. The afternoon decline was due to stocks, hedge selling and week-end realising. The market closed steady and last prices showed 3 points net up for the day to 1 point net down.

Prices made new lows for the day in the afternoon at 6.90 for March, 7.08 for May and 7.24 for July, or 9 to 10 points under the highs of the morning. Near the end prices rallied 2 to 4 points on a little covering. May closing at 7.11, up 2 points net for the day, and July closing at 7.27 up 3 points net.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Feb. 19. (AP) — A further advance which carried May contracts to 7.15 or 85 points above the low level of last week, featured today's cotton market.

The opening was very steady at an advance of 7 to 11 points on a continuation of the recent buying movement, which again included a considerable demand through houses with foreign connections, during the middle of the day prices worked down to 6.90 for March and 7.48 for October or to yesterday's closing quotations but stiffened up with the demand becoming more active in the late trading.

Stocks Jump At Start And Spend All Rest Of Day Trying To Hold To Gain

BY JOHN I. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 19. (AP) — After jumping 1 to 7 points in the first fifteen minutes today, stocks spent the rest of the session trying to hold their gains. They succeeded reasonably well until the last half hour when profit-taking was not so readily absorbed, and the close, considering the brave start, was rather inglorious.

Net gains in many instances were reduced to fractions. Some stocks finished lower, some a point or two higher, but the average change for 90 issues used in the Associated Press-Standard Statistics composite was a rise of only one-tenth of a point. Transfer of 706,000 shares in the first half hour contributed substantially to the total dealings of 2,431,712 shares.

A motive for so strong an opening was readily found in overnight news of the stock exchange's decision to require, beginning April 1, written and separate authorization by members' customers for the lending of their stocks to shorts. At first glance this appeared to spell serious embarrassment, if not disaster, to the bear faction and covering orders for immediate execution piled up in enormous volume. Blocks of 1,000 to 5,000 shares changed hands during that initial quarter hour.

measure theoretically would allow for a $10,000,000,000 expansion in credit.

The legislation also would make it possible for direct government obligations to be put up as collateral for federal reserve note issues.

The law requires a 40 per cent gold reserve on notes with the remaining 60 per cent secured by paper. With the new paper available for note issues, "free gold" can be put to work. Mr. Mills estimated the total expansion of currency which could be made as a result of the legislation is $3,500,000,000. It is not expected this amount will be put into circulation, however.

"that William Randolph Hearst, a notorious wet, endorses the man I nominated this morning. One of the great drys in the United States, William G. McAdoo, endorsed him. So you see he has the endorsement of the wets and the drys. Its an economic question."

The Texan said the Republicans should give Bishop Cannon "a fair and square deal," because his efforts had put their candidate in the White House.

"Will Cannon give the wet cause a square deal?" Asked Representative Igoe (D., Ill.).

"If he gives it what I am going to give it, he'll give it hell," Blanton shouted. "I have only seen Bishop Cannon twice in my whole born days. Cannon is a mere incident. I'm for the dry cause."

Bettors In Maryland Sent 47 Million Through Machines

BALTIMORE, Feb. 19. (AP)—Bettors at the four major horse racing tracks in Maryland sent more than $47,000,000 through the parimutuel machines during the 1931 meetings, according to the annual report of the Maryland racing commission just issued.

The figure showed a decline over the amount bet during other recent years.

Big Drive On

planes, heavily laden with bombs, took off from the airfield across from his headquarters.

Numerous additional planes were warming up, and mechanics and pilots dashed about.

As the big bombers roared into the air they turned to the north, apparently bound for the district about Kiangwan, between Shanghai and the Chinese forts at Woosung.

It was a heavy, foggy day, and the planes soon disappeared from sight. It took them only a few minutes to get over the Chinese lines, but no sounds of bombing were immediately audible.

General Uyeda's statement to the Associated Press correspondent was oral and had not been prepared. A member of his staff followed it up by remarking:

"We hope you will cable this to America, emphasizing that we gave them (meaning the Chinese) thirty minutes' grace."

The greatest activity was going on at the general's headquarters. It was apparent that something big was underway.

Nearby six tanks were lined up, their crews standing by and warming themselves about little fires.

Tardieu Steps Out Leaving Hopes For Cabinet Gloomy

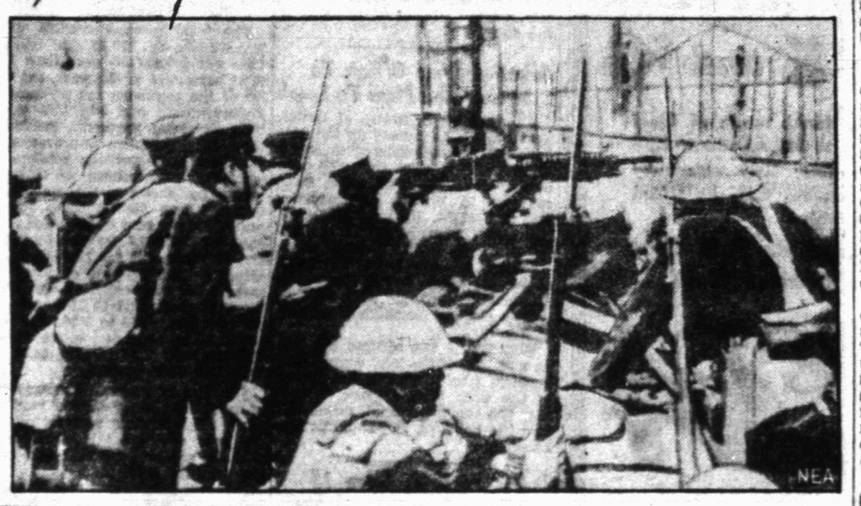

PARIS, Feb. 19. (AP)—Paul Painleve's hopes to form a "cabinet of conciliation" went aglimmering today when Andre Tardieu definitely stepped out of the picture, but the optimistic M. Painleve insisted he expected to have a ministry ready to present to the president some time tonight.

Just what complexion his combination would have appeared problematical but it was certain that he had radical support in his efforts.

Shanghai At War! Photos Bare Story

First to fall during fierce fighting for control of the northern Shanghai area, these wounded Japanese marines are shown in a temporary field hospital just back of the fighting lines. This exclusive telephoto, first of the actual battle scenes to reach the United States, illustrates the orderly precision with which the invaders pierced the dazed and panic-stricken Chinese defenses. The hospital is situated on the fringe of battle lines drawn by Japanese around the vital Shanghai North Station, at the edge of the International Settlement.

With machine guns trained on approaches to the Shanghai North Station, Japanese marines are here shown directing their fire on shattered Chinese defense lines in the first fierce fighting of the invasion of Shanghai. Bayonets poised, sturdy Japanese devil dogs are shown ready to leap over their sandbag barricade for a charge into the Chinese lines. Three desperate battles were fought for control of the station, vital railroad gateway to interior China. Rallying Celestials finally drove out the Japanese and held the station. Note alert poise of efficient Jap soldiers as they await the signal to advance.

Trapped when fast-moving Japanese marines swept out into their panic-stricken defense lines, these Chinese prisoners are shown being marched into Japanese entrenchments during the first fierce fighting for control of Shanghai. Hundreds of Chinese were captured, many were executed and thousands fled during the exciting hours when this photograph was taken.

Ladies' Night Observed Here

George Dupree Is Speaker At Affair Staged Friday Night By American Business Club At Hilton Hotel

George Washington as an ordinary citizen was portrayed by George Dupree, local attorney, in addressing the American Business club and their guests Friday night at a ladies' night program at Hotel Hilton. Mr. Dupree was the principal speaker.

R. J. Keller was toastmaster and the program was arranged by W. D. Carnett and F. E. Carter. Several selections were played by Harry LeMaire, Texas Technological college band director, and members of the band.

The attorney declared that he felt Washington as an ordinary citizen was a more interesting man to the average citizen than as ordinarily described. The first president was presented as a farmer, a man intensely interested in education and in educating those who were unable to provide education for themselves, and a man of ordinary human desires and wants.

The story of the cherry tree was written by Parson Weems, rector of the church at Mount Vernon several years after Washington's death, Dupree pointed out.

Financial Statistics For Texas Are Revealed In Statement Released By United States Commerce Department

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 19. (Special)—The Bureau of the Census announces a summary of the financial statistics of the state of Texas for the fiscal year ending Aug. 21, 1930. The per capita figures for 1930 are based on an estimated population of 5,815,000.

Expenditures

The payments for operation and maintenance of the general departments of Texas amounted to $70,505,710, or $12.12 per capita. This includes $29,778,460, apportionments for education to the minor civil divisions of the state. In 1929 the per capita for operation and maintenance of general departments was $12.00 and in 1917, $4.59. The interest on debt in 1930 amounted to $213,601 and outlays for permanent improvements, $38,057,085. The total payments, therefore, for operation and maintenance of general departments, interest, and outlays were $108,776,396. The totals include all payments for the year, whether made from current revenues or from the proceeds of bond issues.

Of the governmental costs reported above, $46,769,996 was for highways, $12,562,865 being for maintenance and $34,207,131 for construction.

Revenues

The total revenue receipts were $111,408,561, or $19.16 per capita. This was $40,689,250 more than the total payments of the year, exclusive of the payments for permanent improvements, and $2,632,165 more than the total payments including those for permanent improvements. This excess of revenue receipts is reflected in purchase of investments, not shown in this summary. Property and special taxes represented 269 per cent of the total revenue for 1930, 29.7 per cent for 1929, and 56.6 per cent for 1917. The increase in the amount of property and special taxes collected was 117.9 per cent from 1917 to 1930 and 6.8 per cent from 1929 to 1930. The per capita of property and special taxes collected was $5.16 in 1930, $4.92 in 1929, and $3.10 in 1917.

Earnings of general departments, or compensation for services rendered by state officials, represented 3.6 per cent of the total revenue for 1930, 4.4 per cent for 1929, and 16.7 per cent for 1917.

Business and nonbusiness licenses constituted 42.5 per cent of the total revenue for 1930, 44.6 per cent for 1929, and 12.5 per cent for 1917.

Receipts from business licenses consist chiefly of taxes exacted from insurance and other incorporated companies, of occupation taxes, and of sales tax on gasoline, while those from nonbusiness licenses comprise chiefly taxes on motor vehicles and amounts paid for hunting and fishing privileges. The sales tax on gasoline amounted to $30,514,976 in 1930 and $16,006,660 in 1929, an increase of 90.6 per cent.

Indebtedness

The total funded or fixed debt outstanding Aug. 31, 1930, was $4,397,200.

The net indebtedness (funded or fixed debt less sinking fund assets) was $4,372,27, or $0.75 per capita. In 1929 the per capita net debt was $0.77 and in 1917, $1.07.

Assessed Valuations, Tax Levies

The assessed valuation of property in Texas subject to ad valorem taxation was $4,328,212,712; the amount of state taxes levied was $29,864,668; and the per capita levy, $5.14. In 1929 the per capita levy was $5.03 and in 1917, $3.86.

Call For Help Was Answered

HAMMOND, Ind., Feb. 19. (AP) —"Help!" yelled Policeman Roy McCutcheon.

Hammond residents living near the poor relief commissary, where McCutcheon was on duty couldn't turn down a cry like that so they too shouted for aid.

The reserves came.

They laid McCutcheon on his back and sat on him. Then they turned him over and sat on the other side.

Having done that they pulled out a dead mouse which, during its happier moments, had chosen to run up the inside of McCutcheon's trouser leg in preference to any nearby clocks.

Former Employe To Repay Funds

FORT WORTH, Feb. 19. (AP)—A former bookkeeper for the Texas Electric Service Company, charged in nine counts with the theft of $4,200 from that concern, set about today to pay it back.

Gallant Floyd, 23, pleadedguilty to one count of theft over $50, theft by bailee and embezzlement, and on recommendation of the electric company and the district attorney, was given a two-year suspended sentence.

The complaint on which Floyd was tried charged theft of $844 from the electric company April 16, 1931. The remaining eight complaints will be held up, it was stated.

Walter Scott, defense attorney, said Floyd had signed a note with a surety company to cover the loss and declared the young man had obtained a job and would pay back the money as rapidly as possible.

Final Check Of Poll Taxes In City Will Be Completed

Final check of poll tax payments is expected to be completed by Saturday or Monday, W. Hurley Carpenter, deputy tax collector, said yesterday. An increase of about 1,500 poll taxes over receipts of other years is expected to send the total to above the 7,000 mark.

Renditions of property valuations for the 1932 rolls are being received by A. B. Ellis, county assessor. Church organizations and school districts, with non-taxable properties, are to render their items the same as if for taxation, under a new law, Ellis pointed out.

Wichita (Kas.) university has opened a downtown branch offering 30 courses of study.

Canal boats, at their peak in 1803 when there were 1,184 vessels, have declined to 203 vessels.

MAD MARRIAGE

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN Author of HEART HUNGRY, etc.

what I'm saying," she assured him. "You see, something happened this afternoon. I mean before I met Mr. Gibson. I was talking to Abbie Manley and she told me about seeing you at the Pine Grove Inn last Monday with Marcia Phillips."

"At the Pine Grove Inn? Gypsy, I tell you you're out of your head! I haven't been any place with Marcia Phillips. Did Abbie Manley tell you a yarn like that—!"

Gypsy sighed. "I told you it was going to be hard to explain," she said. "Abbie didn't mean to make trouble. She saw you and thought I was with you. I didn't even let her know it wasn't I. She said something about me having on a blue dress and that's how I knew it must be Marcia."

"But, good God!—I tell you I didn't have lunch with Marcia. I haven't even seen her all week! I'll let Abbie Manley know what I think of spreading stories like this!"

"Don't, Jim! Abbie didn't mean any harm. I tell you she thought we were together. She still thinks so. Only you must have been there. She said you were facing her and the girl had on a blue dress."

WALLACE paused. "Monday," he repeated musingly. "Let's see where did I have lunch on Monday?" He frowned slightly. Suddenly a light seemed to dawn. "I know!" he exclaimed. "Of course, I was with Bill Breckenridge and we went to the Pine Grove Inn. Breckenridge always eats there. After we had ordered his wife came in and joined us. She must have had on a blue dress. I don't remember that. But it's odd Abbie couldn't have noticed there was another man at the table."

"Maybe she did. She didn't say anything about that though. Oh, Jim, then it wasn't Marcia!"

The girl's voice died almost to a whisper. She was very pale and her dark eyes seemed to grow larger.

They looked at each other and in that steady gaze many things seemed to be said.

"It wasn't Marcia," Jim repeated after her. "So that's why you decided to go away?"

A bit shame-facedly Gypsy nodded. "I thought you wanted me to," she admitted.

"Is that why you went for a drive with Gibson?"

Another nod. And like sunshine after a quick storm her face lighted with a mischievous smile. "I did that because I thought you didn't want me to."

Both of them laughed. "You won't try to run away again, will you?" Jim asked.

"Not with a sprained ankle," the girl told him. She was smiling but there were tears in her eyes.

Jim sprang to his feet. "I've no right to keep you talking like this!" he declared. "Doc said you were to get all the rest possible. Gave you something to make you sleep and here I am babbling like a monkey!"

"I don't think you're a monkey."

He reached down and took one of her hands, squeezing it. "I'll send Matilda back," he promised. "She's going to bring you something hot to drink and then you must try to sleep. I'll see you in the morning if you're awake. Good night."

"Good night, Jim."

He gave her a quick smile from the doorway before he disappeared. It was several minutes before Matilda returned, carrying a tray. She propped up pillows behind Gypsy and then set the tray before her.

"Um! Smells good!" the girl said smiling.

"Not much of a meal," Matilda commented, "but the doctor said it was all you were to have. There's another cup of hot tea in the pot if you want it. If you say so," the woman hinted darkly, "I'll bring up a little mite of the roast. I could heat it."

"This will be all I want, Matilda," Gypsy assured her. "It looks delicious."

THERE was cream toast. There was a pot of tea and a dish of jellied fruit. Gypsy ate most of the toast and drank two cups of tea.

"I believe I can sleep now," she announced as Matilda took away the tray. A delicious sense of languor crept over the girl. She smiled as the older woman rearranged the pillows. Matilda touched a switch, which turned the light lower. Gypsy's eyes were closed as the servant tip-toed from the room. Within 10 minutes Gypsy was sound asleep.

It was late next morning when she awoke. She started to sit up and aching shoulder muscles quickly reminded her of yesterday's adventures. It was 20 minutes of 10. Jim must have gone long ago.

She lay still until presently Matilda knocked on the door.

"Good morning, ma'am. I hope you slept well?"

"Indeed I did."

"Mr. Wallace said you weren't to be disturbed. I looked in a while ago but you were sound asleep. Will you have your breakfast now?"

Gypsy considered. "I don't know how we're to manage it," she said, "but I'd love to get into the tub for a good scrubbing first."

"If you'll put your arm around me I can help you walk," Matilda suggested. "We'll go easy like."

With Matilda's assistance Gypsy moved about the room "easy-like." She bathed, brushed her hair and changed the gown for a soft negligee. Then she lay back on the chaise lounge, backed by pillows and cushions, and breakfasted.

Dr. Hollingsworth came early in the afternoon and reported that his patient showed improvement. There were ugly purplish bruises on Gypsy's shoulders and on her hip. The cut on her forearm was bandaged with tape. It would be 10 days, the doctor said, at the earliest, before Gypsy could put any weight on her foot. She must stay in her room, eat nourishing food and let nature do the healing.

Jim telephoned a little later and Matilda gave him this report. He left word that he would be home early.

Every afternoon for the rest of that week Jim Wallace arrived home at four-thirty. Gypsy looked forward to that hour all through the days that passed so slowly. She had never been ill. She had never spent so much time helplessly.

Nothing about Gibson's car being wrecked appeared in the Forest City newspapers. The third afternoon Gibson telephoned and Matilda informed him that Mrs. Wallace was not receiving guests. Later a note arrived. Gypsy gave it to Jim to answer. She had cautioned Jim not to tell anyone she was ill. There would be sure to be unpleasant complications.

For seven days she remained practically a prisoner. She read, sewed—and watched the clock for four-thirty to arrive.

Gypsy was sitting before the window Thursday evening when she saw a green roadster turn into the drive. Five minutes later when Jim entered the room she looked up smiling.

"I've been watching for you," she announced. "You're five minutes early!"

Jim's face was serious. Without replying he crossed to where she was sitting. "Here," he said, "is something I think you should read."

He handed Gypsy a letter.
