Farm Safety Emphasized

The theme for the 19th annual National Farm Safety Week, July 22-28, is "Family Safety at Work and Play," and major emphasis is being placed upon highway and farm machinery safety.

According to a report received by the Upper Colorado Soil Conservation District board chairman J. N. Eicke, motor-vehicle accidents account for almost half of the fatal, but only a fifth of the non-fatal injuries to farm people in the United States each year. In 1960, 11,300 farm residents died from accidents, and 950,000 suffered disabling injuries.

Eicke pointed out that farm people travel mostly on rural highways where the survey shows that three-fourths of all motor-vehicle deaths occur. The report also shows that 50 percent of all accidents involve some human failure—improper attitudes, carelessness, lack of attention to rules and regulations and many others.

Eicke said that safety is not an accident and accomplishments of rural leaders and cooperating farm families and organizations like ours can help reduce accidents. During the past decade according to the Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council, an 11 percent decrease in the farm resident death rate has resulted from this cooperative effort. But, warns the Council, we still have a long way to go to give farming and ranching a safety record equal to other national industries.

"Until every rural resident makes safety his business, our cooperative efforts must be continued," Eicke said.

France OKs Naval Base Evacuation

PARIS (AP)—A high Tunisian official said today France has agreed to evacuate its big Mediterranean naval base at Bizerte "as rapidly as possible."

Bahji Ladgham, president Habib Bourguiba's principal minister, said he had received this assurance from French President Charles de Gaulle during talks two days ago.

France has continued to keep the naval base long after Tunisia ceased to be a French protectorate in 1956.

Connally In Weatherford

AUSTIN (AP)—Democratic gubernatorial nominee John Connally will make speeches in five cities this week and appear at the opening of the Weatherford homecoming celebration.

Connally's schedule includes: Speech Tuesday at noon luncheon of Houston Junior Chamber of Commerce; Wednesday address at Arlington to North Texas Producers Association, then to Weatherford; Friday noon speech to joint meeting of San Angelo civic clubs and then to Hondo for area Lions Club installation banquet; speech Saturday afternoon to annual American Legion Convention in Austin.

Insect Increase Noted Over Area

"Cotton insects continued to increase over the entire West Texas Area," according to John G. Thomas, Area Extension Entomologist of Lubbock. Mr. Thomas' statement came after receiving reports from county agents, and other reporters over the area.

Fleahoppers, boll worms, and boll weevils are the main insects causing damage at this time.

Boll worm infestations have increased in several fields in Scurry County. These insects can be expected to increase in most areas.

Cotton fields should be inspected regularly to determine whether infestations are large enough to need poisoning, and when the insects are at the proper age to be controlled. Control measures should be started when boll worm eggs and young worms are found per terminal (top 45 inches of cotton plant). Dusts or sprays should be applied at 3 day intervals until the infestation is under control.

A few boll weevils have been observed in Scurry County according to Billy Roach, County Agricultural Agent. The weevils' damage may be found by pulling 100 squares at random across a cotton field. If 15-25 percent of the squares have weevil punctures, control measures should be started.

Boll weevils are in sufficient numbers to justify control, in the fields that have been checked, but should be watched carefully.

Several insecticides are recommended for control of both boll worm and boll weevil. "Guide for Controlling Cotton Insects" are available at the County Extension Office.

Blackout Anticipated After Monday Blast

HONOLULU (AP)—The Federal Aviation Agency expects a high frequency radio communications blackout in and out of Honolulu to last from 5 to 10 minutes after Monday night's scheduled high-altitude nuclear blast over Johnston Island.

A spokesman said Friday that communications probably will be disrupted up to four hours between Honolulu and Japan; Honolulu and Australia, and Honolulu and the mid-Pacific islands.

The agency said there would be no further disruption between Honolulu and the West Coast, Los Angeles and Tahiti; Anchorage, Tokyo and Guam; Guam and Manila and Guam and Kwajalein.

No disruption is expected in very high and ultra high frequency radio communications or navigational aids.

Sen. Tower Reports On Medicare, Berlin

By JOHN G. TOWER
Editor's Note: Senator John Tower (R-Texas) today, in his weekly report to Texas constituents, commented on the Senate vote which tabled and, in effect, killed the Administration's proposal for medical care for the elderly under social security. The text of his report:

"As I record this broadcast for you today, I have just come from the Senate floor, where we had a momentous vote. All one hundred Senators voted, for the second time in history. They were all there today, and they voted 52-45 to table an amendment to the Public Assistance Bill which would have, in effect given us a medical care program through social security. As I have told you, I believe the passage of such legislation would be very unsound and very unwise."

Today, Medicare through social security was defeated by a very narrow vote of 52-48. Some thirty-one Republicans and twenty-one Democrats teamed together to beat Medicare. Some five Republicans and forty-three Democrats voted on the losing side. I am, of course, very glad that the Senate performed a very statesman-like act today in defeating this unwise proposal. It is my feeling now that there will not be a Medicare bill put out of the Congress in this session.

Departing from the Medicare issue, I should like to tell you about a trip I took last week. Under the auspices of the Evangelical Academy, in Tutzing, Germany, near Munich, I made a tour of Germany. I first went to Tutzing to make a speech to a political seminar at the Evangelical Academy, giving my views on the influence of American politics on foreign affairs.

They kept me on my feet for a total of five hours, asking a variety of questions. I have returned with the impression that these people are good friends and allies of the United States. They are determined to take a firm stand in the face of the Communist threat, and, of course, they hope that the United States will continue to support them.

I had the opportunity to visit Berlin, and make a complete tour of the Communist wall that is thrown up in Berlin, sealing off the eastern portion of the city from the free, western portion. I saw the so-called "vopos" or Communist guards along the wall, with their rifles trained on people who approached the wall, with their guns in readiness. I peeped through a hole in the wall, and watched the Communist police reinforcing the wall. Of course, the amazing thing to me was the fact that the workers were all guarded by armed men.

My first reaction to this terrible and odious wall, and Berlin, was one of anger, and one of frustration. Then, it occurred to me that this is a monument to Soviet weakness. It shows that the Communists can sway over captive peoples only by force of arms, by suppressing the truth, by isolation, literally by imprisonment. I am very impressed with the determination of the Germans to resist, and their desire to re-unify.

Rig Count Up In Permian

West Texas and Southeast New Mexico drilling increased slightly last week, with Friday's Reed Roller Bit Company survey totaling 218 rigs making holes.

This tops the 215 counted the previous week, but is under the 229 in operation this time last year. Lea County, New Mexico, with 35 active units, continues to pace Permian Basin Empire activity.

Other more active counties include Ector 17, Andrews 14, and Pecos 12.

Scurry County showed a drop for the week from five to four working rigs, while Borden County showed an increase from one to two.

AND THEY'RE STILL SIFTING OUT EVIDENCE

Several Ifs, Ands, Buts Posed In Marshall Case

By W. B. RAGSDALE JR.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The puzzling story of the late Henry H. Marshall, mystery man in Billie Sol Estes' cotton deals, unfolded last week in colorful, often ungrammatical language.

The color came not only from witnesses, but also from members of the Senate Investigations subcommittee, headed by Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark—possibly best known for his clashes with Teamsters President James R. Hoffa.

The other senators blended probing questions, partisan politics and touches of humor along with their share of folksy expressions.

A stream of farmers and farm-aid officials painted a mixed picture of Marshall, key Texas farm-aid official when Estes was swinging his cotton allotment transfers.

Generally, they portrayed Marshall as a conscientious Agriculture Department official trying to keep the 37-year-old Pecos, Tex., financier from getting away with his get-rich-quick scheme.

But there were some conflicts, and more are expected this week from officials in Pecos and Reeves counties—which received the more than 3,000 acres of cotton allotments Estes snared from Texas and Oklahoma farmers forced off their lands by public projects.

On Thursday, Texas officials dramatically announced that Marshall's gunshot death June 3, 1961, now is considered murder, not suicide.

At the time of his death, he was investigating Estes' cotton scheme. Marshall was found dead on his ranch near Franklin, Tex., shot five times. His death first was ruled suicide.

At about the time the announcement was made in Texas, McClellan was cautioning a witness to be very sure of his testimony about Marshall "because he won't be here to testify for himself."

McClellan remained the prosecutor, stern and impartial. But other senators on the subcommittee played a variety of roles.

Republicans Karl E. Mundt of South Dakota and Carl Curtis of Nebraska—in their Midwestern accents—seldom missed an opportunity to needle the Kennedy administration, especially Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman.

Freeman's chief defenders were Democrats Sam Ervin Jr. of North Carolina and Edmund S. Muskie of Maine.

At one point, an ousted Reeves County farm-aid official said it was just a coincidence that he went to Washington at Estes' expense at the same time the Texas was having cotton-allotment trouble.

Ervin consoled him with the story about the small boy who raided his mother's jam jar, then smeared jam over the cat's face. When the father took the cat out and shot him, Ervin said, the boy commented, "There goes another victim of circumstantial evidence."

Muskie took a more serious approach and became furious Friday when William P. Mattox, the ousted Reeves County farm-aid official, persisted in answering questions with speeches.

Shouting with anger, Muskie objected until McClellan insisted that Mattox stick to answering the questions.

Mattox had the chamber rocking with laughter as he told of his trip to Washington last January with Estes, during which he just happened to come in contact with every official who has been ousted because of his dealings with Estes.

S'water—Nationals—Nudge Locals, 2-0

Frustration, futility and heart-break each reared its head here Friday night for Snyder's Little League National All-Stars, who were blanked 2-0 by Sweetwater National in the semi-finals of the Area 3 playoff.

Losing hurler Bill Greif suffered a jittery start on the hill, but quickly recovered to hurl perfect ball the remainder of the game after the visitors chased over their two runs before the first out of the home half of the first had been accomplished.

Greif walked the first batter to face him—Jerry Parker—then was battered for three consecutive singles off the bats of Noah Alcala, Pat Cook and Garry Stevens for the two runs before settling down to strike out the next three men. A throwing error from the outfield also helped the visitors driving that opening rally.

For the rest of the contest, the right-handed throwing Greif set his focus down in one-two-three order. Of the 15 put-outs registered against the Sweetwater nine, 14 were strikeouts. Noah Alcala led off the third by grounding out unassisted to Mickey Almond at first for the only out which was not a strikeout.

Snyder, on the other hand, had ample scoring opportunities, but was unable to cash in on them. They left three runners stranded on base in the first, and two in each of the other five innings for a grand total of 13 for the game.

The locals got to winner Dale Criz, a right-handed sidearm specialist—four—twice. He walked six, also, and hit one batsman, but had the goods when he needed them to preserve his shut-out.

The victory placed the Sweetwater nine in the finals of Saturday night against Snyder American, a 4-0 winner over Colorado City Thursday.

The consolation game which preceded that duel was also a little on the weird side, and involved Colorado City and Sweetwater American.

Due to a reversal in ruling centering around a Colorado City runner who left the base too soon in the fifth inning and eventually scored, what looked like a regulation 7-6 Colorado City victory tumbled out to be a 7-6 triumph in one extra inning when the run was

R. E. Smith 10-3 Victor.

R. E. Smith tightened his grip on second-place in the City Softball League standings Friday with a 10-3 triumph over the Ray Taylor Well Service nine.

A revision in the schedule for the coming week will see Greenhill Baptist and West Texas Machine clashing Monday in the only game of the night, and Ray Taylor Well Service and West Texas Machine meeting in the one scheduled Tuesday battle.

Also on Monday, the Snyder Merchants and Abilene's will vie in Abilene at 9 p.m. in the first round of the Abilene District Tourney.

Cards Hand Loss To Colts, 7-0

HOUSTON (AP)—Larry Jackson pitched a four-hitter Saturday as the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Houston Colts 7-0 in the first game of a day-night doubleheader.

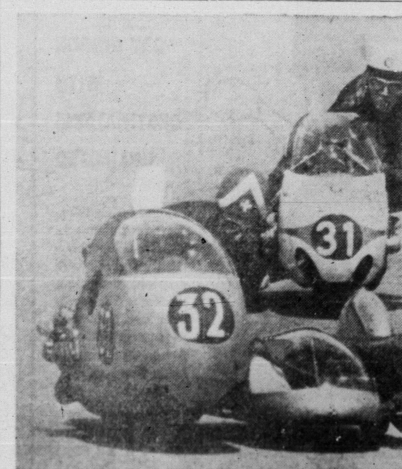

Jackman, gaining his ninth victory in 17 decisions, also scored one run and drove in one. He allowed only one runner to reach second.

The Cardinals right-hander issued his lone walk to the first man to face him but retired 14 consecutive batters after Jim Campbell singled in the second and Al Spangler singled in the third.

The Cardinals jumped on three Houston pitchers for 16 hits.

Home runs by Ken Boyer and Carl Sawatski in the second were sufficient to hand the defeat to Russ Kemmerer, the Colt starter. The game was a replay of a 17-inning 5-5 April 25 tie that was the longest in major league history in time—5 hours and 13 minutes.

Maris Homers To Pace 4-3 Yankee Win

NEW YORK (AP)—Roger Maris drove in three runs with a home run and Mickey Mantle knocked in the other with a single as the New York Yankees defeated the Washington Senators 4-3 Saturday for their ninth straight victory.

Maris-Terry registered his 13th triumph of the season with help from reliever Bud Daley. The left-hander struck out pinch hitter Don Lock with two out and the potential tying run on base in the eighth and snuffed out another Washington threat in the ninth after Bob Schmidt had singled and advanced to second on Jimmy Piersall's sacrifice.

Don Rudolph, the Senators' starter and loser, gave up all the Yankees' runs and eight of their nine hits in the six innings he worked. The Yankees took a 1-0 lead in the first on Tommy Tresh's single, a sacrifice and Mantle's one-base blow.

The Senators tied the score on second-inning doubles by Chuck Hinton and Jim King, but the Yankees went ahead to stay in the fifth.

Allen, Rollins Pitch Win For Twins

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP)—Lasty hitting by Rich Rollins and Bernie Allen and a clutch throw by center fielder Bill Tuttle carried the surging Minnesota Twins to a 7-6 victory over Baltimore Saturday.

Rollins and Allen each banded three hits in leading the Twins to their sixth straight victory, but the big play came in the eighth inning when Baltimore scored twice.

With one run in and the bases loaded, Lee Stange came on to pitch for the Twins. Jerry Adair led his first pitch to center field to score one run, but Tuttle's perfect peg to catcher Earl Battey cut down pinch runner Chuck Estrada. A force-out ended the rally.

Bill Ples, second of three Twins pitchers, got credit for his second victory without a loss, while the loss went to starter Jack Fisher (2-4).

Chisox Shut Out Bosox

BOSTON (AP)—Chicago's Juan Pizarro continued his sensational July pitching by blanking Boston 5-0 on two hits Saturday.

The trigger-quick southpaw struck out 12 and walked only three while recording his fifth triumph in six decisions this month. His season record is 9-8.

Charlie Maxwell provided the biggest boost for Pizarro as he singled twice, hit a sacrifice fly, drove in two runs and extended his hitting streak to eight games.

Joe Cunningham belted a two-run homer off reliever Chet Nichols in the ninth.

The victory snapped a four-game losing string for the White Sox.

Raider Coaches Due In Snyder Tuesday

The entire Texas Tech coaching staff will converge on Snyder for a visit Tuesday, and will be the featured guests of a combined noon meeting of the Optimist and Lions Clubs that day.

The staff will be feted with a luncheon in Fellowship Hall of First Methodist Church, reports Tech booster Carl Herod, who announced the forthcoming appearance.

Any townspeople desiring to attend the luncheon are invited to do so. Those planning to have been asked to call the First Methodist Church business office Monday morning, though, so that a plate will be reserved them. Price of the meal will be $1.50.

In addition to the coaching staff, the school's sports publicity director—Bill Holmes—and Red Raider Club executive secretary, Lee Jackson will also be present.

Emphasis has been placed on the fact that the luncheon is not restricted to alumni of the school. Instead, everyone having an interest in Texas Tech athletics is extended an invitation to attend.

The group plans to arrive in Snyder at 11:30 Tuesday morning. Following the luncheon, they will participate in a golfing afternoon at the Country Club here before returning to Lubbock.

J. T. King is head coach of the Raiders. Among his assistants is former Snyder High head coach John Conley, who is now offensive line coach at Tech.

Unique Golf Tourney Set In Lubbock

LUBBOCK (AP)—A golf tournament is being planned in conjunction with the Texas High School Coaches Association meeting here Aug. 6-7.

The two-day, 36-hole tournament for coaches, sportswriters and sporting goods representatives will be held at the Westlake Golf course.

Coaches to the school are eligible. The entry fee is $5.

Merchandise prizes will be presented to the top three golfers in each flight with the overall champion getting a trophy.

Coaches wishing to enter should advise pro Gordon Graves before Aug. 2.

Graves does not want a qualifying score or the entry fee, but wishes to know how many will be in the tournament.

The first day's round will serve as qualifying and will also count toward the 36-hole medal play. The size of the flights and the prizes will be determined by entry fees.

Sports writers will play in a flight to themselves as will sporting goods representatives.

The tournament will not interfere with the first day of activities of the coaching school since that is set aside for registration—actual lectures begin Aug. 8 and continue through Aug. 11.

Reds Sink Mets, 5-3

CINCINNATI (AP)—Vada Pinson hit his 15th homer with a mate aboard Saturday to boost the Cincinnati Reds to a 5-3 come-from-behind victory over the New York Mets.

The Mets have yet to beat Cincinnati.

Mets starter Craig Anderson (2-4) put both the Reds' first inning on base on walks. They scored on a sacrifice fly and the first of Jerry Lynch's three singles.

The Mets tied the score on Frank Thomas' 17th homer in the second and Marv Throneberry's fifth four-bagger in the fourth. Then they went ahead by a run in the fifth on three singles and a sacrifice fly.

After Throneberry muffed Don Blasingame's grounder that same inning, Pinson hit his home run. Cincinnati got an insurance run in the eighth on a single, a wild pitch and a sacrifice fly.

Bob Purkey gave up 11 hits as he won his 15th game in 18 decisions.

Johannesburg Golfer Leads PGA Tourney

By WILL GRIMSLEY
NEWTOWN SQUARE, Pa. (AP) Gary Player, the little golfing gold prospector from Johannesburg, slammed into the third round lead of the PGA championship with a lunderpar 69 for 206 Saturday but the comeback spark never caught fire for the amazing Arnold Palmer.

While his thousands of loyal followers who have become known as "Arnold's army" groaned and moaned, Palmer bailed around the Aronimink Golf Club course in 3 shots for a score of 216.

He was eight big strokes back of the South African rival going into Sunday's climactic 18-hole windup, but if the powerful pro from Latrobe, Pa., was discouraged he wouldn't admit it.

"A score of 220 can win it," he told a small knot of friends afterward. "Sunday I'm going out and shoot that son-of-a-gun in 69."

The famed comeback specialist never has rallied from this far back to win a major championship, although he overcame a nine-shot deficit in his spectacular U.S. Open triumph at Denver in 1960.

Player, whipping a nightmarish putting slump with an old blade he bought a couple of years ago in Japan, took a 2-stroke lead over the massive George Bayer and the young "dark horse" from Claremont, Calif., Bob McCallister, who were tied for second at 210.

Bayer fired a third round 71 while McCallister had an even par 70 despite a double bogey on his last hole.

Bayer and McCallister were even par for the tournament, one stroke ahead of Doug Ford, the 39-year-old war horse from Yonkers, N. Y., who lost his halfway lead by shooting a 74 for 211.

In fourth place was the long-hitting Bob Goaly, 71-212, followed by a quartet tied at 213. These included comebacker Gary Middlecoff, with a 74, Bobby Nichols, Dow Finsterwald, the reigning ex-champion, 47-year-old Chick Harbert, Jack Fleck and Jack Burke.

Jack Nicklaus, U.S. Open champion who made a bad showing last week in the British Open at Troon, leaped back into the picture with a 69 for 214, which tied him with Frank Stranahan.

Player climaxed his superb round with what he described as "the greatest iron shot of my career" on the 423-yard, par 4 final hole.

His drive landed in the right rough alongside a tree, which blocked the pin from his vision. He laced a 2-iron that took off like a bullet and sliced onto the green, rolling 40 feet past the pin. He two-putted for his par four.

The 5-foot-7 Johannesburg star, a midge in a threesome which included the giant Bayer and the 63 John Barnum, made few mistakes on his round which included only four missed fairways and 31 putts.

His approach putting was excellent. He rimmed the cup with a 50-footer on the first hole, sank a 20-footer for a demerol on the fifth and holed out a 30-footer on the 11th.

He bogeyed only one hole—the tenth. There his second shot flew over the green. He chipped back five feet past the cup and missed.

The third and deciding game of the series will be played in Snyder Monday night at 8 o'clock. In addition to chunking the win, Cadena also landed the big hit of the game, a two-run triple in the third to deep left.

Possum Mann went down to the defeat. He tolled for four frames before stepping down in favor of southpaw Elmer McMahon.

Frankie Grimmert and Terry Holt each slammed homers over the leftfield fence here Saturday night, and Johnny Gaona chipped in with a five-hit pitching effort as Snyder's Little League American All-Stars nailed down the lid on the Area 3 championship with a 4-1 triumph over Sweetwater National.

By virtue of the victory, the local Stars advance a notch further in the playoff setup, and will take on the winner of the Hamlin Tournament (Area 4) Thursday in Snyder at 7:30 p.m.

Grimmert's bases-empty blast in the third broke a 1-1 tie that had existed since the initial inning. He also had a pair of singles to be three-for-three for the night, and was on base when Holt lofted his circuit smash out of the park to put the icing on the cake in the fifth.

Gaona whiffed 11 and walked two during his route-going tour.

Santana, Lundquist In Tennis Tournament Finals

BAASTAD, Sweden (AP)—Maelen Santana of Spain and Jan Erik Lundquist of Sweden gained the final round of the Swedish Tennis Championships Saturday.

Santana, a 22-year-old Ramanathan Krishnan of India 5-7, 6-2, 8-6, 6-4, and Lundquist mastered Eduardo Soriano of Argentina 6-2, 6-4, 6-4.

Maria Bueno of Brazil took the women's singles crown, romping to a 6-2, 6-0 verdict over Ila Sandulf of Sweden.

FOR HOUSTON COLTS

HOUSTON (AP) — The Harris County Commissioners Court and Judge Roy Hofheinz clashed Saturday over the proposed county sports stadium to house the Houston Colts baseball team.

The domed, air-conditioned structure was originally scheduled for completion by baseball season this year, but the time table has been pushed up considerably to some time in 1964.

Hofheinz, former legislator-judge-mayor and now vice chairman of the Houston Sports Association board, accused the county of defaulting on its contract to acquire and build the stadium.

The majority of the commissioners felt the HSA, owner of the Colts, has not been playing ball, not co-operating with the county. Commissioners Kyle Chapman threatened to ask some work on the stadium be stopped until the HSA antes up this year's stadium lease payment of $209,670.

The contract stipulates it may be broken if all land for the stadium is not purchased by Aug. 16, 1961, and it also provides that all engineering and architectural plans were to have been completed by Aug. 15, 1961.

As of now, the architects hope to have final plans ready by mid-September, and the county has not bought the 60 acres on which the temporary Colt stadium stands.

Drysdale Wins No. 17; Nips Chicago, 3-1

CHICAGO (AP)—The Los Angeles Dodgers put together four singles and a walk to score all their runs in the fourth inning and defeated the Chicago Cubs 3-1 Saturday.

Don Drysdale, working with only two days rest, recorded his 17th victory against four defeats but needed help in the eighth inning.

Chicago's only run came in the first inning when Lou Brock led off with his ninth home run of the season.

With two out in the eighth, Ken Hubbs doubled and Manager Walter Alston yanked Drysdale in favor of Ron Perranoski who got Billy Williams to fly out and end the inning. Larry Sherry worked the ninth, retiring the Cubs in order.

Jim Gilliam opened the Dodgers' fourth with an infield hit. Willie Davis forced Gilliam but Tommy Davis walked and Frank Howard singled home Los Angeles' first run. Singles by Ron Fairly and Larry Burright chased home the other two runs.

IN USA-RUSSIAN MEET

USA Trackster Tops Own Record

By TED SMITH
Associated Press Sports Editor
STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Hal Connolly broke his own world record in the hammer throw Saturday as the United States took a decisive lead over Russia in the men's events of the first day of their dual track and field meet.

As a crowd of 72,500 roared approval, Connolly, on his next to last throw, let loose a toss of 231 feet-10 to better his own mark of 229-9 set in 1960.

Connolly's mighty toss topped another spectacular performance by Wilma Rudolph Ward, the Tennessee State ace who won two gold medals in the women's competition.

Ward, a triple winner at the last Olympic Games, took the 100 meters in 11.5 seconds and then overhauled Galina Popova of Russia in the stretch to give America a victory in the women's 400-meter relay.

In the men's events the United States led 61-45 with eight firsts to two for Russia. The Russian women, however, took a 30-22 lead despite Wilma's efforts.

In all, five meet records were set by the men including Connolly's great world record toss, one was tied, and two were set by the women.

Meet record set by the men in addition to Connolly's mark: 110 meter hurdles—Jerry Tarr, USA, 13.4.
10,000 meter run—Pyotr Bolotnikov, USSR, 29:17.7.
Shot—Dallas Long, USA, 64-1.
Pole vault—Ron Morris, USA, 16-4.

Bob Hayes, USA, tied the record of 102 in the 100 meters. Roger Sayers, USA, was second, also in record equalling time.

Women's meet records were: Javelin—Elyvira Ozolina, USSR, 182-41.
Discus—Tamara Press, USSR, 189-5.

Connolly, who failed to make the finals in the Rome Olympics, led all the way through, starting off with 227-10. His pretty wife, Olga, who won the discus for Czechoslovakia in the 1956 Olympics, also regained her old-time form to take second to Miss Press with a creditable toss of 167-14.

Other world records in addition to the hammer were in danger. Ron Morris won the pole vault for the United States at 16-4 and tried valiantly to set a new mark of 16-34. Ralph Boston continued

A DAILY VIEW
Rev. R. Charles Spivey
"And Jesus said, 'Is a lamp brought in to be put under a bushel or under a bed, and not on a stand?'"
It would certainly be silly to light a candle in the dark, and then put it under a cover so that its light could not be seen. How many of us have an electric bulb in our home that we have covered over so that we don't know whether the light is on or not? That would be perfectly ridiculous.
Yet we think nothing of hiding the Light-of-the-World from view. We have been given wonderful tidings of great joy for all peoples. Yet we hold it to ourselves. Are we afraid that it might give peace and joy to someone else? No, for we are glad when we find that someone has come to Jesus. What we are afraid of is ridicule—that someone will call us a fanatic, or "pious." Or maybe we are afraid of being shown to be hypocrites, for we know that we do not live as we profess. But what ever the reason, the fact is still there. We have been given the only thing that makes sense in this crazy world, but we have hidden it deep in the closet of our hearts.

Cloud-Cover Pic A-OK

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Australian Weather Bureau has received a picture of its cloud cover by way of the United States. It reported the reception was good. The picture was taken by Times V, the orbiting weather satellite, and showed cloudy cover to the west of Australia. The picture, taken Friday, was received in this country from the satellite and transmitted by radio to Australia. The Weather Bureau said it was the first time a current weather satellite photograph had been transmitted abroad in that manner, although coded messages based on satellite observations had been sent.

Faulkner Dealt With Movies, Too

By BOB THOMAS better and asked if he wanted a drink before he went. He said yes, for William Faulkner said he'd like a drink.

Yet the Nobel Prize winner spent a lot of time in the Hollywood studios, largely because of director Howard Hawks. They worked well together, perhaps because both were free-wheeling mavericks with scant regard for the system. Hawks reminisced in his Paramount office this week about his long association with Faulkner. "We first got together in 1932 or 1933, when I read some of his work. I was much impressed and I showed his work to Ben Hecht and Charlie MacArthur. They and Alexander Woodford and others around New York started talking about him, so I think I had a part in his discovery as a writer."

"I bought a book of his and asked him to come out to the coast to write it as a movie. He came into my office, very quiet, and I told him my name. Yes, I've read it on a check," he replied. "He didn't say anything, so I started talking. I must have talked for 40 minutes, outlining the way I saw the story play. Still he didn't say anything and I finally asked him what he thought. He said it was okay, and he would be back in five days. "By this time I was getting mad and I said, 'Do you need five days to think about it?' He said, 'On one such occasion he told off five days to write it. Then I felt

Border Cities 'Booming'

By CLARENCE J. LAROCHE

San Antonio Express State Editor
Written For The Associated Press
From Ciudad Acuna, across from Del Rio, to Matamoros, opposite Brownsville, the word is "No depression on the border."

Despite reports from Nuevo Laredo last week and a story from Mexico City about a border depression, an on-the-spot survey shows business is good. At Matamoros—with 100,000 people the largest Mexican border city in this area—94 cotton gins are operating. The cotton crop in the Matamoros area is expected to be more than 300,000 bales.

"We find quite the contrary to the Nuevo Laredo report," said Bill Rudd, managing editor of the Brownsville Herald. "In Matamoros, instead of business closing, the contrary holds—new ones opening and old ones expanding."

"I believe there has been a little bit of misunderstanding on the border depression reports," said Jack Drake, executive director of the Valley Chamber of Commerce at Weslaco.

Drake said there is a critical situation in northern Mexico where a drought has hurt the cattle industry.

GARY GRANT and Doris Day star in "A Touch of Mink," coming to the Palace Theatre for a week's run Thursday, July 26.

The report of 150 closures came from a Nuevo Laredo Chamber of Commerce official who said they had closed during the past 30 days because of an acute economic crisis.

He blamed high operating expenses, rising transportation rates, high taxes and high rates for public services.

At Piedras Negras, opposite Eagle Pass, the tourist volume continues high. Two new private clubs will be opened or expanded soon.

A new rock and concrete building, seating 6,000 people, is under construction.

VOL. 13, NO. 71

SNYDER, TEXAS, SUNDAY, JULY 22, 1962

SECTION B

'Candy Strippers' Reorganize

The acute shortage of young women interested in making nursing or other technical professions a career is no new problem, but it is still a very real and serious one.

Considerable study has been given for a solution to the problem. Many young women think strongly that they would like to become a nurse and lack the courage to test out the idea. Many others are afraid to invest the money necessary to prepare themselves for the career without first being sure it is what they want to do and the career for which they are best fitted.

The young women of Scurry County who are 15 years of age or a sophomore in high school have the opportunity to observe hospital life behind the scenes and be a great help to their fellowman by joining the "Candy Strippers". This group is sponsored by a parent group, The Ladies Hospital Auxiliary.

The "Candy Strippers" program is a new approach to the shortage of student nurses and other hospital staff positions, and many young women are encouraged to pursue these careers who, otherwise, would probably have turned their eyes in a different direction.

Due to graduation from high school, moving out-of-town and various other reasons, the local volunteer service group dwindled rather low in Snyder. But, the past week a new and heartening light has been cast on the picture.

The Junior Auxiliary of Cogdell Memorial Hospital met in the home of Mrs. Betty Harman, president of the Ladies' Auxiliary, for the purpose of reorganizing and electing officers. Once known as the "Pink Angels" the group voted to change the name to the "Candy Strippers".

Mrs. Johnnie Pitner, who volunteered her services as sponsor, assisted by Mrs. Robert Cribb, made out the working schedules for the 25 girls.

New officers are: Lyn Holt, president; Sue Howard, vice president; PenNie Chapman, secretary; Jane Boren, treasurer; Cathy Black, volunteer service chairman; Margaret Zeck, assistant volunteer service chairman; Sheila Dupree, scrapbook chairman and Phyllis Sealy, reporter.

The next meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, August 7, in the home of Lyn Holt, 2901 Thirty-eighth Street.

There is never too many helping hands and any parent or young lady interested in this organization may call Mrs. Betty Harman or Mrs. Johnnie Pitner for further information. Uniforms are available and an honor to wear.

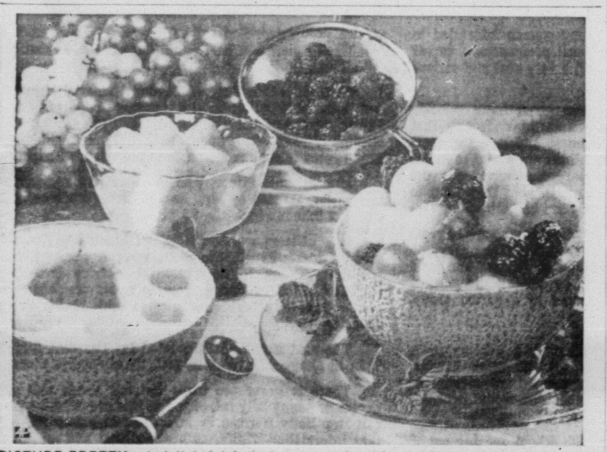

NEW MEMBERS—These five young ladies are new members of the "Candy Strippers" and are pictured as they were looking over the orientation and training program of the organization. From left, Sheila Dupree, Phyllis Sealy, Jane Boren, Connie Zimmerman and Milljon Smyth.

"YOUNG ELEGANCE"—The sweeping elegance of lightly polished hair draped softly across the forehead portends a note of things to come in this "Young Elegance" coiffure, designed in the new "Dancing Waves" hair fashion trend for fall and winter. Soft shadow waves add play to the silken sheen of the hair, emphasizing the small head look and oval silhouette of the coiffure, while "Dancing Waves" turn up at the nape and ears. Superb hair shaping and professional permanent waving are vital for the smooth elegance of the design.

PICTURE PRETTY—A delightful fruit dessert made with cantaloupe, pineapple, grapes and raspberries or blueberries.

Cantaloupe Coup Makes Company Dessert

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

YOU CAN prepare one of the most delightful cantaloupe desserts with a simple kitchen accessory—a set of graduated measuring spoons.

These spoons cut balls from melon as efficiently as does a French ball cutter.

But one warning: Graduated measuring spoons may not be had two ways: one set comes with round bowls, the other with a squarish shape. It's the round bowl spoons (in the 1/4 and 1/2 teaspoon size) that substitute for the cutter.

For the following dessert, we tried something new to us. After cutting out the balls from the rim of the cantaloupe, we marinated them—along with a luscious fruit mixture—in a syrup made with honey and orange rind. The syrup benefits the fruit, imparting a haunting flavor. At serving time, the cantaloupe balls were put back where they came from. Then the cantaloupe cavities were filled with the fruit mixture.

Do try this suggestion when you want a particularly attractive fruit dessert for a company luncheon or supper. If you wrap the cut-out melon halves tightly in saran or close them tightly in transparent plastic bags, and if you put the melon balls and fruit mixture in a tightly covered container, you can even refrigerate them overnight. We tried this and found the dessert tasted as fresh as can be and the refrigerator stay gave the honey-and-orange syrup plenty of time to "take." But we emphasize the need to wrap and cover the fruit tightly, if you don't the cantaloupe will flavor other foods in your refrigerator.

CANTALOUPE COUP
2 medium-size cantaloupes

1 can (1 pound and 4 ounces) pineapple tidbits (drained)
1 cup seedless grapes
1 cup raspberries or blueberries
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
Juice of 1 large orange

2 teaspoons lemon juice
1/4 cup pale-colored clover honey
Dash of salt
Fresh mint sprigs (if desired)

Halve cantaloupes crosswise; cut a thin slice from bottoms, if necessary, to stand straight. With a half-teaspoon round-bowl measure or French-ball cutter, cut out cantaloupe halves and chill. Place cantaloupe balls on one side of a shallow container; mix pineapple, grapes and raspberries and place on other side. Mix orange rind and juice, lemon juice, honey and salt; pour over cantaloupe balls and mixed fruit. Cover and chill, turning over fruit once in marinade. At serving time, place cantaloupe halves back where they came from. Spoon the fruit mixture into the cavities. Garnish with mint if used. Makes four luscious servings.

Selecting Meat For Outdoors

Fresh air and the pleasant aroma of outdoor cookery sharpen appetites and call for generous servings of meat. A guide in selection is to allow 1/4 to 1/2 pound per serving for bone-cuts, one-third to 1/2 pound per serving for boneless cuts.

Barbecued Beef For Picnics

Wherever the picnic, barbecued beef sandwiches will make a hit. An easy way to prepare them is to brown ground beef in a frying-pan. Then add the ingredients for your favorite barbecue sauce, cover and simmer 30 minutes. If you're traveling to your picnic, put the barbecued beef in a covered container. Place in an insulated bag or wrap in several thicknesses of heavy paper.

Spicy Kraut

1 can (1 pound and 11 ounces) sauerkraut
1 can (15 1/2 ounces) marinara sauce (without meat)
Drain kraut; wash well in cold water; squeeze out water. Turn into a large skillet with the marinara sauce. Stir together over moderate heat until well mixed and hot; cover and reduce heat. Simmer about 15 minutes or until very hot. Serve hot with frankfurters and ribs. Makes 12 servings.

EVERYBODY LOVES A PARADE—Sometimes the spectators are as interesting as the marchers. This ladder brigade brought its own balcony seats to the Music Man Marching Band competition in Mason City, Iowa.

Camera Angles

By IRVING DESFOR

AT EVERY PUBLIC EVENT, with primary interest focused on the center stage spotlight, there may be pictorial drama or human interest on the sidelines or behind the scenes. Amateur photographers are often in a better position to record these off-scene sidelights than the press photographers who may be required to remain in a strategic spot.

It was almost by accident that I discovered that roaming with a camera may reap rewards. I was shooting the Music Man Marching Band parade in Mason City, Iowa, when I finished a roll of film. Breaking through the crowd that lined the street, I found a quiet, shady spot to reload.

Before I could regain my place, I saw some interesting sights in the rear ranks. Two boys had climbed a police station and hung on precariously while they had an elevated view of the proceedings. Near them, a row of ladders stretched across a street in intersection providing individual balcony seats for a group. In addition, a plank was stretched between two of the ladders making private seats for a couple more.

This prompted the thought, "What a way to see a parade!" I started scouting for other angles from the rear.

In back of the grandstand, boys were climbing the timbers like a jungle gym. A cute four-year-old girl roosted in some cross-beams. Her view was in the opposite direction from the parade. A tiny tyke straddled the iron construction bars and all he could see were the feet of people sitting in the grandstand. But he was happy.

Further on I focused on a lad perched in a tree fork, high over the grandstand. Then I came across four teens atop a telephone booth. At another intersection, there was an auto with a wooden platform on top and it held two comfortable easy chairs. One of the most elaborate prepared parade perches was in a "cherry picker" bucket, swung out over the middle of the marching route by a truck parked at a side street.

Even when I got back in front of the grandstand I found offbeat spectators. Two youngsters crawled beneath the stand, pulled the hunting aside and made themselves front row center seats.

So the next time you're in the bleachers at a ball game or on the sidelines of a parade or public event, look around you at the spectators. They make pictures that can be just as interesting as the main event.

ANY CAMERA capable of capturing people when they are happy or sad, thoughtful or animated, angry or peaceful. But it is up to the person behind the camera to make the picture meaningful. He must select the subject and type of lighting, study the background or surroundings, choose the best camera angle and, above all, must decide on the precise instant of shooting to record the emotion at its very peak.

When all the factors fall into position perfectly and when the emotion pictured is genuine, the photographic result can prove to be gripping beyond words—a visual blockbuster.

Such a picture was recently reproduced in the nation's newspapers.

It showed a weeping Chinese girl holding a ragged cloth over her mouth to stifle almost audible sobs. Her anguish, we learned from the picture caption, was caused by the decision of British authorities in overcrowded Hong Kong to return the girl and other refugees from Communist China back to the mainland.

The emotional impact of the photograph was immediately evident. Throughout the country, telephone calls and telegrams were received by newspapers and The Associated Press, distributor of the photo. They came from sympathetic readers with offers of help for the girl. The picture evoked editorials, follow-up news stories, human interest articles by columnists and TV mention.

I talked with several persons who called the AP office in New York after seeing the photo. One woman's reaction was typical. "My family was greatly disturbed last night at dinner thinking of this girl's plight. We would like to offer her a home in our home. Can you help me find her?"

Others throughout the country offered to assume responsibility or adopt her, assure her of a job or contribute to any fund set up in her behalf.

Prompt as the sympathetic reaction was, it was already too late. The picture had been taken by P. C. Lee, a Chinese photographer for the Hong Kong Tiger Standard before worldwide distribution by the Associated Press. The girl was with a small group of refugees fleeing Communist China. They had managed to evade the border guards and had slipped through a barbed wire frontier fence at dawn. Two short miles later, however, they were stopped by British soldiers for illegal entry.

She sobbed out her name, Lee Ying, her age, 19, but her home village lost it being trouble to her family.

Lee Ying's group was sent to an overnight British detention camp. Next day she was lost in a mob of 1,000 similar refugees who were trucked back to the border in army trucks and returned to red soil.

Lee Ying had vanished by the time the cables of inquiry and offers of assistance from a symphony of officials and the U. S. Consulate in Hong Kong.

But Lee Ying's picture remains, a symbol of all the Chinese refugees and their plight. The power of the picture in stirring the world's compassion might yet help save other Lee Yings from a similar fate.

Tongue In Menus

Let tongue be a summer menu helper. You can prepare it ahead of time and store it in your refrigerator for many uses. A tongue should be cooked slowly, covered with water, in a covered utensil. It should simmer about 1 hour per pound. For serving cold, let it cool in the water in which it was cooked. Then remove from the liquid and store in the coldest part of the refrigerator.

Party Lamb Patties

To give lamb patties a party-time look, wrap them with a bacon strip and fasten with wooden picks. Broil 2 inches from the heat for 5 or 6 minutes. Season, turn and finish cooking on the second side 5 or 6 minutes or until done. Serve on lightly browned pineapple rings and top with sprigs of parsley.

Meat Buying

To buy wisely, learn a new meat cut every time you go to your market. The average homemaker can name only a few popular cuts, leaving many she never prepares. If you don't know a cut, ask your meat man. He'll be glad to help you. You'll be repaid in more interesting, thrifter meals to please your family.

Making white sauce?

When you stir the flour into the melted butter or margarine, heat the mixture until it froths before adding the milk. Whether this action occurs at once—or seconds or minutes later—depends on the amount of heat used in melting the butter.

Paintings Are 'In'—Even In The Bathroom

With art reproductions and originals so popular today as home decorations many questions arise as to how to use pictures to the best advantage.

Violet Hackim, home adviser, has compiled suggestions that will help make a home restful, gracious and an expression of your personality.

Pictures can be placed in every room; even the bathroom can be more cheerful with a colorful painting. Violet Hackim notes that homes today are no longer "one tone" and can have as many decorative themes as there are rooms. "Don't be afraid to do the unexpected. For example, hang pictures on doors, around windows and doors or up stairways."

In selecting paintings, use warm colors to accent cool tones, and to lighten dark halls and rooms, use light-colored frames or white backgrounds or both. Use colors from a painting as an accessory to add new sparkle to old furnishings or to complete a color scheme, Miss Hackim points out.

When hanging pictures the accepted rule today is to hang them at eye level when seated as compared with the older custom of placing them at the standing eye level. A rule of thumb to use is to hang pictures eight or 10 inches above a piece of furniture.

If you really want to be right in fashion hang paintings together in a large group. They can be a mixture of different styles, sizes and framing. Or, they can be groups of pictures all the same style subject and a same style frames, or Miss Hackim suggests, they can be paintings combined with other wall accessories.

Pictures can help shape a room. For example, to make a low ceiling seem higher hang tall narrow paintings vertically, and to make

Lucie's Shish Kebab

6 pound leg of lamb
2 medium onions (finely grated)
2 to 4 cloves garlic (crushed)
3 teaspoons crumbled oregano
1/2 teaspoon freshly-ground pepper
Green pepper and small onions

Have meatman bone lamb and trim away fat. Then cut it in about 2-inch cubes. Mix together the grated onion (including pulp and juice), garlic, oregano, allspice and pepper. Toss meat in mixture to coat with seasonings. Cover tightly and allow to stand at room temperature for 5 to 6 hours. Skewer lamb alternating with wide strips of green pepper and quartered onion. Broil, turning as necessary, until browned and just cooked through. Makes 8 generous servings. Salt is added as eaten.

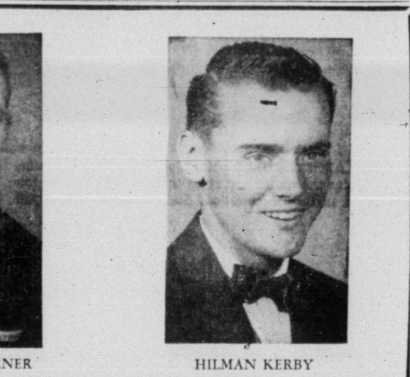

When a stick of butter or margarine to be used in a cake or cookies is refrigerator-hard, cut it into the mixing bowl to thin crosswise slices before trying to cream it.

The Day Silver Regained His Integrity

THE SOUND OF BOW BELLS. By Jerome Weidman. Weidman has created an engrossing story about a writer who lost his own faith and integrity during the scramble for success in the Big Time. The framework of the story is a crowded day and evening in the life of Sam Silver. By liberal use of the flashback technique the author depicts nearly all of Sam's life.

Baseball's Barnum Strikes Back

VEECK—AS IN WRECK. By Bill Vecek as told to Ed Linn. Baseball's "Bad Boy" probably would have had a colorful career in politics, finance or the circus if he hadn't been overwhelmed early in life by the lure of the diamond.

Vecek is our latter day Barnum. He might have made a good stock market plunger. Or it might have been fun to watch this guy get himself elected to Congress and give innumerable hot-foots to the politicians. There is in him a mixture of the showman, the playboy and the stump speaker. Not to mention the practical joker and the loyal old buddy.

Baseball's moguls grew to hate him, and sometimes you have to agree with them that his circus stunts could be of bad taste. But you have admitted that he gave some old fogeys a well deserved hard time.

This is the story of what one zealous, persistent man did to baseball in operating clubs at Milwaukee, Cleveland, St. Louis and Chicago.

For sports fans it is must reading. It is full of inside stories, about management manipulations and screwball athletes. It is so bluntly frank and revealing, so full of sharp prejudices, enmities and wretched contempt that it will be a wonder if someone doesn't sue him or punch him in the snoot. Or both.

Even for those readers with only a mild interest in baseball this book can be an entertaining project. Financial wizards might get a few pointers on how a man with a small bankroll can control a property worth millions and turn it into something that sells at a profit.

As a handler of athletes and crowds, Vecek could give lessons to practicing psychologists. As a hater of stuffed shirts he can stir us all.

In short, this is a book in which a forceful and controversial personality tells all. It never is dull and often is hilarious.

Salad garnish: mold soft cheddar cheese around pitted olives and roll in finely chopped nuts.

It is obvious that there are autobiographical themes in this novel. Weidman came from the Lower East Side and has had a long career as a writer of novels, short stories and musical plays. Referring to the "truth of the imagination," he says only that "this is the way it might have happened."

At any rate, he knows what he is writing about. And in the story of Sam Silver he gives the reader a fascinating novel.

Betty Louise Tatom, Morris Allen Browning, Exchange Doubling Vows

Betty Louise Tatom became the bride of Morris Allen Browning in a double ring candlelight ceremony read by Richard Williams Saturday, July 7, at 6:30 p.m. in the Thirty-seventh Street Church of Christ.

Mr. Williams is pastor of the East Side Church of Christ. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gib Tatom, 2304 Avenue J, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl G. Browning, Fluvanna.

Branched candelabra with white burning tapers, lilac gladioli and white feathered mums were used in the church decor.

Nuptial music was presented by a group of vocalists singing the processional and Recessional, "Because" and "I Pledge My Love."

Mr. Tatom gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a floor-length gown of imported Chantilly lace. The fitted bodice was fashioned with long, tapering sleeves that closed with tiny pearl buttons and a V neckline. Lace and tulle tiers enhanced the front of the bouffant skirt, the back of the skirt gathered to a focal point held in place by three iridescent stones and then fell into a full train.

The bride carried a bouquet of gardenias surrounded by feathered mums. A crown of rose medallions held her elbow-length veil of silk illusion.

Miss Lynda Beasley was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Charlene Greene of Dallas, sister of the bride, Charlene Browning of Tohoka, sister-in-law of the groom, and Mary Tatom of Arlington, sister-in-law of the bride.

Attendants wore lilac satin dresses with white net overskirts. They carried white and orchid carnations.

Betty Snider and Reta Rodman were candlelighters. Ricky, Don and Greene of Dallas, nephew of the bride was ring bearer.

Don Browning of Tohoka served as best man. Ushers and groomsmen were Billy Don Kingston, Hurston Lemons, Troy Evans and Milton Dunnam of Fluvanna, and John Tatom of Dallas.

Mothers of the bridal couple wore beige lace dresses with white accessories and orchid corsages.

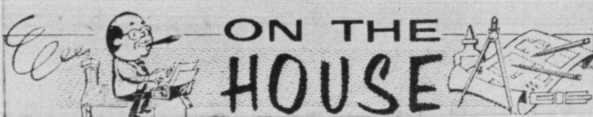

The couple are at home at 3605 Hill Avenue.

Out-of-town guests were from Dallas, Lubbock, Fluvanna, Tohoka, Arlington and Sweetwater.

The reception was held at the Snyder Country Club.

THERE HAS BEEN AN increasing demand recently for what is called hand print wallpaper of very high quality. The demand has been fostered by leading decorators and architects, who are utilizing it for home use, hotels, offices and other places where a luxury look is desired.

The average home owner, however, has to pass up this type of wallcovering for reasons of economy, much as he may admire its high styling in design and coloring. His admiration is accentuated when he reads and hears about the silk textures and other wallcoverings recently installed in various rooms of the White House.

Some wallpaper manufacturers are certain that the trend, aided by the renewed interest in traditional decorating, soon will be apparent in homes of all types. They are endeavoring to assist the movement by turning out wallcoverings which are modest in price, yet have the appearance of luxury. At least one wallpaper company has developed new printing techniques which enable it to simulate stylings. Durability has been made an important part of the product by the use of vinyl and acrylic coatings. These coatings enable fabric wallcovering to be cleansed of stains by using soap, water and a sponge.

Any readers who have tackled the job of removing ordinary wallpaper will be interested in the claim of those who make fabric wallcovering. It is said that the material can be removed from the wall merely by loosening a bottom corner and pulling an entire strip away. Curious about this, having struggled through several wallpaper-removing tasks, we discussed it with an authority, manufacturer Jerome Blonder. Yes, he confirmed, this type of material can be removed quite easily. Suppose, we asked, the fabric wall covering becomes old and you want to change the decorative scheme, can a new covering of the same type be applied right over it? Blonder replied that this could be done if you have reason to believe that the plaster underneath is soft or badly cracked. In that case, the fabric must be scored with coarse sandpaper and sized before arranging the new wallcovering. But when the wall underneath is in good condition, the old fabric may be removed by the stripping method mentioned above.

While we're on the subject, here are some tips regarding the use of wallpaper and allied products. Use small over-all patterned papers for small rooms with architectural defects. Use larger patterns for big rooms and lighter, brighter colors for rooms that tend to be dark. Use provincial paper if your furniture is early American, a broad or similar type if your furniture is more formal.

QUESTION: We have a small dining alcove that adjoins our kitchen. I have decided to cover one wall of the alcove with the same kind of plastic laminate that is on our sink counter and our kitchen table. Since I put the sink counter on, I have a good idea of how to apply the plastic laminate. But one thing stumps me. How can I be certain that the opening cutout for the light switch is accurately positioned?

ANSWER: There are a number of ways in which this can be done. This is the method used by most professionals. Using a dark crayon, preferably black, make a heavy line around the light switch location after the outer plate has been removed. Take the sheet of plastic laminate and put it in the exact position in which it ultimately will be bonded to the wall. Press down hard on the plastic laminate at the point where the cutout will be made. In fact, make a fist and pound it lightly against that area. Remove the laminate and you will find that the crayon outline has been transferred to the back of it. Now make the cutout from the backside of the laminate. Since there is a possibility of getting rough edges on the face of plywood, make the cut just inside the crayon outline. This allows a little extra room for filing down the rough edges.

New Orleans: The City Of Unaccountable Fascinations

By KEN DAVIS

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Some leagues from the mouth of the Mississippi River, where the bayous almost meet Bourbon Street, there is a state of mind known as New Orleans. Technically, it is a city. Actually, it is a passion shared by hundreds of thousands of persons who aren't certain exactly why they like this humid metropolis but are extremely certain they do.

Here the Mississippi River flows north. Here is the nation's third seaport 100 miles from the sea. Here what appears to be the same street suddenly has another name because the early Creoles and Americans didn't get along. Maybe it's because history—the sweep of the American saga—remains more than in most places a daily companion.

Here is old St. Louis Cathedral, perhaps the most ancient in the country; the oldest hotel; some of the oldest street cars, none of which now is named Desire.

Here is the birthplace of jazz, although faded Storyville has disappeared in the face of a different morality and Basin Street looks like any commercial district you might walk through. On the flip side of a bit of musical history, this city first introduced permanent opera to America. Of a somewhat different culture, the chancy game of craps was introduced to America here. It is said the name came because boatman from up north, called French of New Orleans "Johnny craps" or "Johnny frog."

Some of the vestigial remains of history still exist: Place d'Armes or Jackson Square with its artists, beloved of the tourist; the Cabildo, seat of Spanish government; ancient buildings of a hundred past uses.

A city of contrasts, New Orleans: churches and Storyville; culture and winos; history and jet planes. The city's built-in Bradford, long a denizen of the French quarter, to quip: "New Orleans is like a prostitute who awakens on Sunday morning undecided whether to go to church or to take another drink."

She would have no trouble either way. New Orleans has about 800 churches and 2,500 bars. As one citizen observed defensively, "Well, it costs less to start a bar."

To millions of Americans, New Orleans is the old square known as the French Quarter. This is unfortunate, because in these days that conjures up visions of strip-tease, tourist jazz, B-drinkers, barkers and huge hurricane drinks. It's not the wine, women and song that make the Vieux Carre, as the natives call the French Quarter. It's your state of mind.

In a certain state of mind, perhaps, gay old New Orleans may offend. It has too many winos, too many panhandlers, too many crowded and empty buildings, still some scabrous housing, open storm drains and roller-coaster streets. It has or has had the civic cancers of graft, narcotics and syndicate gambling.

The French Quarter has one, and one only, French structure—the Ursuline convent, circa 1751, oldest building in the Mississippi Valley. The rest of the quarter is Spanish or American.

Rapport with New Orleans is not always achieved at once. The shotgun houses and above-ground burial vaults can be a shock to a newcomer.

How well I remember the time Harnett Kane, the author, and Pie Dufour, the author-columnist, cornered my wife, a newly arrived and unreconstructed Northerner.

"How do you like New Orleans?" they asked, smiling in anticipation of praise for the city both love.

"I think it stinks," said my diplomatic spouse blithely.

"Where do you live, Mrs. Davis?" She told them.

"Oh, that's the reason," said Harnett. "Now you ought to live in the French Quarter."

Neither Harnett nor Pie frequent the bistros of Bourbon Street, being of a somewhat more intellectual persuasion, but the French Quarter is their spiritual home, the epitome of freedom of choice—to sin or not to sin.

That attitude is not uncommon among devotees of the Crescent City. Artistic hardening of native morality may dictate they never partake from the fleshpots but the citizens of New Orleans resent anyone trying to impose rigid controls on individual action.

Along the north side of the city is Lake Pontchartrain, the front yard of the city's most expensive residential real estate. This is an other orbit, the lake, where Mr. and Mrs. New Orleans crab, fish, boat and swim. The lake helps keep the city temperatures up in the winter, down in summer—and humid all the time.

On the west side of New Orleans is the old garden district and much antebellum history. Here the Americans who stacked up enough greenbacks built their show homes.

Unlike the French who built walled homes with courtyards in the middle, the Americans built enormous homes in the midst of broad gardens.

From this broad area decades ago, the belles sped by carriage to their soirees and gay gamecocks rode horseback to the dueling oaks in what is now city park. This is the orbit of the city's old families.

There is another thing that has no geography—Mardi Gras. More properly it is Carnival, which is the period from 12th night, Jan. 6, to Shrove Tuesday—the entire season of make-believe madness. Mardi Gras or Fat Tuesday is the final day of merriment before the atonement of Lent.

New Orleanians spend $5 million and uncounted thousands of man-hours on Carnival each year. They do not spend on pageantry for tourist pleasure but for the unlikely illusion of the never-was, the chance for every man to be a courtier, a king for a day.

And, by the way, the food! bless the man who invented the elastic belt.

William Makepeace Thackeray once sighed: "New Orleans is the city in the world where you can eat and drink the most and suffer the least."

Oysters Rockefeller, Potatoes soufflé, hot french bread, crawfish bisque, pompano Pontchartrain, holeless donuts and café au lait. These are among the tasty things that make New Orleans restaurants world famous.

But, perhaps the future of New Orleans rests not so much with the past or its individuality or its sensual pleasures, but in the Mississippi River.

More and more, industry is becoming water-starved, but no one starves in New Orleans, particularly for water.

Among the many legends that have flourished in this historic hot-house is one which may be true. It is said that once you drink from the Mississippi River at New Orleans you are forever in thrall to the city.

Whoops! This One Backfired

KINGSVILLE (AP) — As a stunt, Jake Trussell, managing editor of the Kingsville Record, went into the street and tried to swap a $5 bill for a $1.

People, even his acquaintances, shied away warily and then Trussell would tell them they had just lost $4.

That evening Jake went home and told his wife:

"Honey, how about trading me a $1 bill for a $5 bill?"

"Sure," she said, producing a $1 bill and grabbing the $5.

As she stuffed the bill into her purse, Mrs. Trussell said: "A few minutes ago I bumped into someone who told me that my husband was trying to trade $5 for $1. I've been looking for you ever since."

Junior Editors Quiz on BIRDS

QUESTION: Do birds ever have four sets of claws?

ANSWER: Most scientists believe that birds developed from certain ancient reptiles, one of which well illustrate in the upper left. Apparently some of these creatures learned to climb trees and then began to glide from branch to branch. To help in gliding, feathers began to sprout along the front legs and from both sides of the long tail. Several claws belonging to the front foot stood out from the feathers and were used to help the animal climb. These claws are shown in the drawing of Archaeopteryx, a reptile-like bird which we know about because of its fossil prints in the rocks of long ago. After the birds had developed real wings, they no longer needed climbing claws on the front leg and so modern birds don't have them. But in the young of an unusual South American bird, the Hoaczin, we find something remarkable, which reminds us of Archaeopteryx. The young Hoaczin, before learning to fly, climb around the trees, and they have claws on the ends of their wings to help them. Later these claws become lost as true wings develop, but while young, the Hoaczin might be called a four-footed bird.

FOR YOU TO DO: Birds fly either by flapping their wings, by gliding downwards, by soaring, or by combining these in various ways. Study the birds around you to find out which method of flying they use.

Wants to Be Counselor
A senior at Hunter High School, she would like to become a Girl Scout camp counselor and wants to be a school teacher. Her Scout plus include the curved bar, the highest rank in Intermediate scouting; the five-point pin, Senior Scout pin; program-A bar and the trail-blazer badge which signifies U. S. membership in the world organization.

Robin will miss attending the big Roundup July 18-31. This is in celebration of the Girl Scouts 50th Anniversary, and 8,500 Senior Girl Scouts from over the country, 200 girls from foreign countries and 1,500 adults will pitch 6,000 tents at Button Bay State Park in Vermont, making the area the 6th largest city in Vermont for two weeks.

Robin won't have that camping experience because she will be at work at a local Girl Scout camp as a kitchen aid. "It's a wonderful way to learn to cook," she explains, and it will help prepare her for the camp counseling she wants to do later.

"You can't get a fire started by rubbing two sticks together," says Girl Scout Robin Hill. "It's better to use two matches."

That myth was built up around the Boy Scouts, she says. When you go camping it's better to observe the Girl Scouts motto and "Be Prepared," with the essentials—knife, matches, compass.

"Then if you were stranded in the woods you could be warm and cozy, even though it was windy, cold and snowing," Robin says.

Making a Lean-to
"Suppose you want to build a shelter while your teeth are chattering?"

"Simple," says 16-year-old Robin with the aplomb of a seasoned Scout. "Look for two trees, fairly close together, near the beaten trail, if possible. Pine are good, hemlocks, preferably. Collected wood and attach two pieces between the two trees with some cord you hope you have with you."

"Fill in the area within the trees with some boughs, and you have a lean-to which should be built against the wind. Three big hemlock branches make a fine bed. Put them on the ground after drying. If damp dry them over a fire you can make with thin tinder taken from underneath a tree where it is dry."

She Prefers Camping
Girl Scouts usually have a couple of chocolate bars on tap in their knapsacks, she advises. These are brought along for the trip but they come in handy for awhile.

Robin's favorite Girl Scout activity is camping. She has been hiking since 2 when her father, a Yugoslavian who loves to hike, and "knows all the trails," took her on a two-hour hike to the top of a Massachusetts mountain.

"I earned a knapsack on that trip, and I've been walking ever since," says blonde Robin.

She joined the Girl Scouts at 9, and hiked with the Brownies mainly to local parks in New York. As an Intermediate, she hiked upstate. As a Senior Scout she specializes in camping.

Good for Complexion
"I've hiked about 350 miles," she guesses. There are many wonderful trails such as the Appalachian which runs from Maine to Georgia, more than 2,000 miles. Some like to specialize in that kind of hike, marking off sections between shelters. But one can hike anywhere even in a teeny city for great satisfaction," she says.

Hiking and camping are good for the complexion and for physical fitness, she points out.

Sybil's Salad
1 package (3 ounces) raspberry-flavored gelatin
1 container (8 ounces) cream-style cottage cheese
Watermelon balls
Watermelon balls
Mayonnaise or French dressing

Make up the gelatin according to package directions substituting, if you like, 1/2 cup dry red wine for 1/2 cup of the cold water. Turn into six individual molds; chill until set. At serving time unmold the gelatin and arrange on one large or individual salad plates with mounds of the cottage cheese and watermelon balls; garnish with watermelon; pass the salad dressing. Makes 6 servings.

Rediscovering America

TRAVELS WITH CHARLEY. By John Steinbeck.

In the autumn of 1960 a poodle named Charley made a tour around America in a pickup truck that had been fitted with a camper top.

This redoubtable beast was accompanied by Steinbeck, who as an observer and reporter has the fine advantage of virtually total recall of everything he has seen and heard.

Charley's purpose was to have a good time. Steinbeck's was to "try to rediscover this monster land," because after 25 years of wandering around the world he had lost touch with America's scenes and people.

This is no study in depth of the country's geography or the beliefs and opinions of its citizens. The author doesn't claim that it is. He just took to the road and soaked up impressions and conversations. His account makes interesting reading, flavored by the writer's own personality.

Steinbeck sampled the taciturn reactions of the people in down-east Maine, traveled at the pace of turnpike travel and the lives of long distance truckers, and fell in love with "the calm of the mountains and rolling grasslands" of Montana. He paid a nostalgic visit to his old stamping grounds in California and ruefully concluded "you can't go home again."

He ate chili and turkey with millionaires in Texas and had a shuddering look at the school integration battle in New Orleans. He met some "hikable characters," not the least of which was an old actor on the loose. He also met a vitriolic, almost psychotic southerner who screamed "nigger-lover" at him. Occasionally he interrupted his camping to stop at a motel or hotel, and one of the most interesting chapters is about his detective work in a hotel room that had just been vacated.

Charley is an important and delightful part of the story. With Steinbeck's salty observations and very humor, this becomes a pleasant volume to read.

Wrong Voice Hurts Disc

RAYMOND MASSEY has spoiled it for a lot of Abraham Lincoln fans.

The Canadian-born actor has played Honest Abe so many times in movies, television and radio that his voice has come to be accepted as that of Lincoln, who died before the first recordings were made.

That's probably what happened to one of Decca's latest efforts, "A Lincoln Treasury," which features Ray Orton Welles reading "The Gettysburg Address" and the "Second Inaugural Address."

Welles' reading and interpretation of the speeches that came close to being prayers is undoubtedly fine. But there's some-

Extra Drinks For City Trees A Summer Must

If you suspect that city trees drink more than their country cousins, you're right. They lead a harder life.

With critical hot dry spells ahead, you may wonder why your trees develop that "How dry I am!" look when the same kind of trees—in field or wood—seem to thrive cheerfully, rain or not.

L. I. Cobb points out that city trees seldom get full benefit of the rain that does fall. Hard-topped streets and sidewalks sweep water away before it can soak in; compacted soils cut off moisture and manicured lawns blot up still more rain which—in the wild—would go to tree roots.

But you need not cancel that vacation to stake your trees' thirst. Generally, trees during Summer "dog days" need a good watering about every ten days. Soak thoroughly before you depart—and if the skies stay dry—arrange for one of your neighbors or a professional gardener to man the faucets while you're gone.

Don't slight your arboreal pets, when you do water, by turning off the hose once the lawn gets wet. All too many homeowners operate on the theory that watering the lawn means watering the trees. Unfortunately, there is no quick way to adequately water large shade or ornamental trees. They need long, deep drinks, penetrating at least 2 feet into the soil and over the entire ground area covered by the branch spread. No simple job, to be sure. Special sprayers and soakers are available. Holes in the ground also get water down.

July, August and September generally are the critical months. If thirst is unslaked, your woody pets can get into real trouble. Tree foliage gives off moisture faster than the roots can replenish it; result is that foliage withers, dries out and the tree is severely weakened.

meat juices that ought to be saved for basting.

In other words, she adds, a new range equipped for top-of-the-stove control and for "programmed" oven cooking "could conceivably pay for itself in food and health savings."

The adviser points out that heat control is a factor not only in terms of cooking results but also in achieving important economies. Meat, one of the costliest items on the food budget, can be "victimized" by careless cooking techniques and antiquated stoves, she says. The wrong temperatures in the oven can have the effect of cooking fats into a roast instead of draining them off, and improper heat control, virtually impossible in an automatically controlled oven, will dry out the natural fat.

As to how a cook can tell when she's working with the right temperatures, Miss Spader says:

"It takes a sort of sixth sense when you're using an obsolete stove. But today's ranges take these temperature requirements into account. They're equipped with top burner heat controls that can be preset to specific temperatures. Even when cold ingredients are added to food cooking over one of these burners, the sensing element if the control reacts immediately and the flame rises automatically to compensate for the heat loss and keep the food from soaking up fat."

The Sun's Her Pet

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Newsfeatures Writer

WASHINGTON—Without climbing into a space capsule, indeed without even leaving her desk, tiny, gray-haired Dr. Charlotte Moore Sitterly is blazing a path to the fiery sun.

Moreover, from her earthly post in the Bureau of Standards building here the world's most honored woman astrophysicist has discovered a new element called technetium in the sun's atmosphere.

Without even a glance out her sun-flooded window, Dr. Sitterly has analyzed wave lengths and checked atomic energy levels of spectra until she has come up with this new problem:

Since technetium is an artificially produced element, practically non-existent on earth, and since it has a very short lifetime, how did it find its way up there around the sun?

Sky Invasion
This answer as well as millions more may soon be found through the data being collected by spectrograph rockets now penetrating a hand of ozone. Until now this ozone hand made it impossible to observe from the earth in what Dr. Sitterly calls the vacuum ultra violet region.

Thus, despite her 64 years, indefatigable Dr. Sitterly is eagerly trying to make up for lost time in filling the literally astronomical blanks that have blocked the sky scientists' paths for so long.

Lining her office walls are volumes listing individual characteristics which identify known atomic spectra as unmistakably as the fingerprints of a human being. Dr. Sitterly compiled her unique and invaluable encyclopedia with knowledge obtained by scientists in every part of the world.

"Astronomy knows no politics and it recognizes no barriers," emphasizes the spare, bespectacled lady with probing gray eyes. "How can you draw boundaries in the sky?"

The Royal Astronomical Society of London in 1949 honored her as its first woman foreign associate. And the U. S. government recognized her contributions by presenting her a rare Federal Women's Award, to name just a few of her formidable list of honors.

Working Mother's Pal
Although Dr. Sitterly is childless herself, she believes that a working mother's family should come first. Thus, the women in her employ study their spectra at home, when they find the time between household and baby care chores.

Their understanding boss sorely wishes more women would take up mathematics, so that still more could raise babies with one hand and study the stars with another.

If we are to survive as a nation," she says, "secondary schools must limit their duties to teaching how to write concisely, clearly, and to provide the basic training in thinking, such as is developed in the study of mathematics."

Dr. Sitterly was born in a family of six in Chester County, Pa. Her father was a school superintendent and her mother a teacher. Imbued with the love of learning, the tiny brown-haired girl earned her way through Swarthmore College with a Phi Beta Kappa key as a bonus.

But at Princeton University observatory where she obtained her Ph. D., she met astronomer physicist Dr. Bancroft Sitterly who, after some extra-curricular stargazing, talked her into an MRS as well.

In the 25 years since, the couple has lived in a tiny bungalow near American University where her husband is chairman of the physics department.

There Dr. Sitterly performs the mundane tasks of house-wifery, gardens, and listens to good music. But even at home she devotes some time to her pet project, finding the path to the sun. She is in a tearing hurry, she says, for there is so very much to be done.

ROAD MAP TO THE SUN . . . Dr. Charlotte Moore Sitterly, astrophysicist, describes "fingerprints" of atomic spectra.

BIRTHDAY HOUSE... Party youngsters play outside eight-sided aluminum structure in stockade-like area of children's zoo, where wooden fence shields it from rest of Swope Park Zoo.

They Have Birthdays To Remember

By HARRY ROSENTHAL
KANSAS CITY—Birthdays parties, as every mother knows, are such a thing that they must be restricted to a yearly maximum of one per child.

As the tiny guests storm into the kitchen like a herd of elephants, trumpeting "when do we get cake, I want ice cream, let's open the presents now," what mother hasn't muttered "never again?"

A 23-year-old man, with two children too young to have parties, expects to give 900 such parties this year and looks forward to them with pleasure. His experience handling elephants, gorillas and giraffes is a help.

He is Gary Clarke, a zoo keeper in the winter months. Comes summer, he dons a clown's costume and presides over the Swope Park Zoo's birthday house—a mother's best friend, at least once a year.

Fairlyland Atmosphere
The birthday house, put into operation last year as part of the Children's Zoo of the zoological park, proved to be an enormous success from the start.

For $10, the outdoor birthday house will cater to a party of 12 for one hour, providing a fancy-decorated cake, punch, ice cream, invitations, eating utensils and paper plates. And best of all, there is no mess to clean up afterward.

The birthday house is a gold-colored octagonal aluminum structure, open on four sides, set in a fairlyland atmosphere among murals depicting Mother Goose stories.

Grandmothers Celebrate
Noise is no problem. Even a dozen 7-year-olds up to 36 can be accommodated at one time. It would be hard put to outmatch the surrounding noises of the zoo and the carousel cranking out music outside the gate.

"We think the birthday house is one of the nicest additions to our children's zoo," says Zoo Director William Cully. "It's proved enormously popular, even with the grownups."

Speaking of grownups, the birthday house by no means is only for children. Many a grandmother has been surprised to find, on the plaque outside the birthday house, "The next party is for Grandmother Jones."

Kids Fun to Hear
Clarke, who majored in zoology at the University of Missouri expects to become a director of a zoological garden soon. He views children and animals this way.

"They're just alike. If you tell a child not to do something and he does it you've got to crack down. It's the same with elephants. They both have to learn to respect a 'no.'"

They differ though in one respect, he says. "Kids are more fun to listen to."

"One little boy studies my clown costume for about five minutes, pointed a finger at me and said, 'You're not a real clown. I see your T shirt.'"

"Another asked if my wife was a clown too. And another exclaimed 'Jeepers, a man baked this cake.'"

Adults Limited
Mrs. Robert Rogers of Overland Park brought in a dozen kids for son Ricky's 6th birthday.

"I figure this will be his last party—he's getting too old now—and I wanted to make it an especially nice one," she said.

"Where else could I hold it this cheaply and with this little trouble?"

Clarke usually asks that the children travel to the zoo in one or two cars and that there be only one adult for every six children.

"Otherwise they come straggling in at all times and, after all, they have only one hour. Besides the fever, women around, the less trouble with the kids."

Library Notes

How many times have you heard the old saying, "Life is a university." There is a lot of truth to it, you know. But an awful lot of people are flunking the course. If you shut your mind to new thoughts, to new facts and ideas, then you're not getting the most out of the university of life.

Learning should be a life-long process. It keeps us young in spirit and thought. For instance, something relatively new is so-called "Hydroponics Bengali System" by Sholto Douglas. Cultivation conducted according to this system can not only give extra food but, introduced on a commercial basis, it could provide employment to thousands.

Learning helps you master life's problems as they come along. If you find that you've been going stale lately—"stuck" in the same old rut of thinking or drifting aimlessly—maybe you need to take hold of yourself and start off in the right direction. At your nearby Swope County Library, you'll find new interests and rediscover old talents. One book which provides learning can be fun and profitable too, is "The Romance of the postage stamp" by Gustav Schenk. This is especially nice if you're learning at your own speed with nobody pushing you.

Never before in the history of the world has mankind had the opportunities he now enjoys to satisfy his curiosity. But many of us neglect these opportunities. We read something in a newspaper or magazine, listen to something on radio or watch something on television—and our curiosity is momentarily aroused. For a few moments we are intrigued by an idea—about skin divers, African native dances, space flight, or whatever. Then we close our minds, stifle our curiosities, and turn to something else.

Something of interest to all of us is brought out in "A History of Astronomy" by Pannekoek. Astronomy is distinguished from that of the other natural sciences by its age. This book is itself distinguished from other histories by its constant, realistic endeavor to relate the development of astronomy to the social and cultural background on which it is nurtured. Life can be more satisfying for you if you follow up on the ideas that "spark" your curiosity by reading.

When the Earth Shook by David Niddie describes the great earthquake scares that terrified Britain in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries and the violent tremors that transformed Alaska's coastline. With illustrations and startling photographs, this is an exciting account of the phenomena that our confident yet anxious age cannot control.

At your local library you'll find fascinating aspects of almost every bit of human knowledge. "Winston Churchill: The Valiant Years" by Jack LeVine is a dramatic narrative of World War II. This is the story of how Sir Winston Churchill achieved immortality in his own lifetime. Get in the satisfying habit of fulfilling your curiosity by checking further, in books and magazines at your library.

When you are preparing any open-faced sandwiches that are to go under the broiler, be sure to cover the edges of the bread with the filling so they won't scorch.

The Gardeners Corner

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newfeatures

YOU DON'T MARVEL anymore at the gadget that permits you to put your roast beef in the oven, leave for an afternoon of bridge or movies, and return to find the meat roasted and the oven shut off automatically.

You can tend your lawn sprinkling in much the same fashion. There are lawn sprinklers on the market with spray controls that dial light to heavy watering at set distances, right or leftside coverage, and shut off at specific times. (One is called H2O Water Timer, by Melnor.)

While we were investigating hose innovations, we turned up a new kind of hose sprinkler that travels in any direction over lawns (and hills), completely powered by water pressure. This device can be wound up to 200 feet of hose as it climbs and turns corners.

This gadget fascinated us. You lay out the garden hose in almost any pattern. Water pressure powers the device back along this path without snarling.

Then there is the one-hand control, pistol-type hose nozzle designed especially for hedges that are not easily accessible, and insecticide spraying. A flick of the thumb varies the flow from mist to jet spray.

There is no need to throw away plastic hose that springs a leak. Non-corroding couplings that will fit and mend virtually any size plastic hose are available. All you have to do is cut the hose, insert a coupling and twist.

Who tends America's lawns? One survey turned up 54 per cent female lawn keepers. The survey covered about 4.9 million acres of home lawns, which would put women in charge of 4,133 square miles—a bit more than twice the area of Delaware.

Don't think for a minute that the manufacturers of garden equipment don't know about this.

They make light-weight, easy-to-operate devices with this in mind. This, of course, gives husbands more time to play golf or snooze in the sunbather.

The male gardeners benefit also from labor-saving devices. New ones we've heard about include a cordless electric rotary-blade grass trimmer powered by five flashlight batteries. And a vacuum-action grass catch attachment to a power mower picks up clippings and spins them through a chute into a bag for easy disposal.

When you come right down to lawn care, the advice of one expert will never be outdated. He said the best nutrient for lawns was a few drops of sweat applied liberally.

You can get an argument by suggesting one time of day as best for watering your lawn. Morning? Evening?

It doesn't make much difference any more, considering the advances in sprinkling equipment. With adequate sprinklers, you may water at high noon on a hot day.

Generally, it is best to water when there is little wind. But some experts advise late-morning watering on a sunny or breezy day to protect bent grasses subject to fungus diseases. Rapid drying of the surface is a safeguard.

Water when the water pressure is best in your area. Water slowly, especially on slopes where fast water will run off and do little good. The water must soak in to be of value. It must reach the roots. The roots shouldn't have to climb in search of moisture.

It's more convenient to melt chocolate in the oven when you're baking. While your oven is preheating, place chocolate squares on a small sheet of quilted cooking foil, and pinch up the foil edges a little. Set the foil and an oven rack to melt. It won't burn, melts quickly, and you can flatten the foil and scrape off every last bit of chocolate with a rubber spatula. All the chocolate goes into a batter and you have no pan to wash.

Goss Car Lot Can Furnish Any Auto

The T. C. Goss Used Car Lot has been one of the Big Spring Highway's leading business for several years.

T. C. Goss, owner of the firm, is a pioneer merchant on this busy highway, having been a partner in the construction of the Highlander Restaurant when it was considered "way out in the country."

His faith in the future development of the Big Spring Highway was justified as it has continued to grow since that time.

The T. C. Goss Used Car lot does "custom buying." That is, if a customer is looking for a certain car, the firm will locate just the right car. Further, they will take the trade-in and handle the financing.

They welcome inquiries about any type of new or used car that a person might want. If it is not on the lot, they will try to locate one which will completely satisfy the customer.

The Goss Used Car lot is located on Fortieth Street and the Big Spring Highway.

Insult To Injury

NICE, France (AP)—Marcel Gruat, 70, strolling across an intersection in this Riviera resort, was knocked down by a sports car driven by a pretty brunette.

She didn't slow down, Gruat staggered to his feet and shouted uncomplimentary things about un-lady-like lady drivers.

Still in ecstacy, the brunette stopped her car, roared back in reverse, climbed out, took off a high-heeled shoe and slugged Gruat on the head.

Gruat was taken unconscious to a hospital. Attendants described his head injury as serious.

'Plop' Goes Her Highness

LONDON (AP)—Princess Anne, only daughter of Queen Elizabeth II, jumped the gun by mistake in a girl scouts swimming meet Friday night.

Anne, competing in the 30-yard free-style event, for the Abbey troop, leaped forward for a racing dive when the starter said "on your mark"—and fell in.

The princess climbed back up on the edge of the pool. Then they started the race and she finished third.

'E' In West Berlin

Rocked By Explosion

BERLIN (AP)—West Berlin police today reported an explosion on the elevated railway operation by the East German Communist regime. The line serves both East and West Berlin.

The explosion, apparently from a bottle filled with carbide, broke 15 windows on the train and one in a nearby house. One car was damaged. No one was reported hurt.

Councilman Robert Albright, who earlier this week criticized another new program about Galveston, carried by KHOU-TV in Houston, wrote NBC President Robert Kintner.

"The program, the DuPont Show of the Month, was unfair to the City of Galveston and I feel the network should show equally the recovery of the city by its citizens."

He said the show did not tell all the truth about Galveston and it damaged this island resort city's image in the eyes of the nation.

Albright charged NBC had filmed the hurricane program in Galveston and then used it "as a commercial enterprise months after the actual event occurred and after the majority of the damage in Galveston had been repaired or rebuilt."

"This council has undertaken many ambitious projects since taking office, but it should never attempt to tell the press, TV or radio how to cover the news or how to present it," Ed Harris, who voted no, said.

The second Morrill Act, in 1890, authorized $25,000 annual endowment for each land-grant college.

Crowder and his wife, Mayme Lee, have operated the drug store on Thirty-seventh, just off the Big Spring Highway, since 1950.

Specialties for the drug store are fountain service, complete with sandwiches, gift items, packaged drugs, household needs, and sundries.

School times will be coming up before we realize it, and Crowder's Thirty-seventh St. Drug is well-equipped to fill school needs.

Cook comfort, if not provided by nature, can be had by viewing from the air-conditioned auditorium at the Canyon Drive-in. And the movies shown at the Canyon "Movies are better than ever."

Decision On Tax Reduction Still Pending

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has put off until about mid-August his decision on whether to ask Congress for immediate tax reduction as a business stimulant, informed sources said Friday.

The decision to defer judgment for a month was made, it was learned, at a White House meeting a week ago when Kennedy conferred with his top-ranking advisers on whether a recession is brewing.

The group studied the full array of statistics, available on June's economic performance. That was the first full month after the "Black Monday" collapse of stock prices on May 28. The White House group found the figures disappointing but inconclusive.

It will be about Aug. 15 before the next meaningful batch of indexes is at hand to show whether June's hesitation was just a lull in the recovery or the plateau that precedes a recession.

Cardinal Mindszenty Leads Solitary Life

By RICHARD O'REGAN

BUDAPEST (AP)—Twenty-four American children, faces smeared with warpaint and cake crumbs, streamed out of the American legation in Budapest after a costume party.

They were surrounded immediately by Hungarian secret police. Could one of the boys be Josef Cardinal Mindszenty in disguise? The police weren't taking any chances. Hysterically summoned as the party began, the police scrutinized every small, jabbering face, and one by one let the children pass into Budapest's Liberty Square.

The Roman Catholic primate of Hungary was not among them. He still was inside the legation, where he sought refuge 3½ years ago, after the Hungarian revolution.

Ever since, Mindszenty has lived in two rooms on the third floor of the five-story corner building in the center of Budapest. The cardinal is likely to remain there until Hungary's Communist regime gives assurances for his safety and resumption of his post as head of the church in Hungary—which it may never do.

Hungarian Premier Frenck-Muennich says he is satisfied to leave Mindszenty in the legation "until he dies."

For the regime, Mindszenty's voluntary confinement is a blessing in disguise. It means Mindszenty does not have to be publicly tried and imprisoned in a country which still is ardently Catholic.

This may be one of the reasons for the day and night details of police guarding the gray, steel-shuttered legation. The Communists seem more anxious to keep him inside than to arrest him.

Meanwhile, Mindszenty's life—he is 70—is bound up inextricably with the lives of the 18 U.S. State Department and military personnel and their families who live in Budapest and are headed by Charge d'Affaires Horace G. Torbert of Washington, D.C.

Legation personnel are subjected to spot surveillance by police. They cannot move more than 25 miles around Budapest without filing their exact movements two days in advance. They are limited in their contacts with Hungarians and, except in small ways, cannot put across the American story to a nation still highly pro-American.

Similar restrictions exist on other American embassies and legations in eastern Europe. But Mindszenty might escape or be smuggled out puts additional burden on the Americans here.

Mindszenty is in excellent health and mentally alert. But he can have no Hungarian visitors. If the legation let them in, it could be accused of allowing Mindszenty to organize political or religious resistance to the regime.

Mindszenty keeps himself busy, therefore, learning English, studying world affairs and keeping a schedule of religious devotions.

He celebrates mass on Sundays and holy days for the Catholic members of the American community. From time to time, other Western diplomats of the Catholic faith attend the services.

He takes a daily exercise walk around an inside courtyard, eats his meals at a basement snack bar. At night he retreats to his third-floor room where a steel door is closed gently behind him, and locked.

It Started Out As A Compromise

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP)—When you write down the name of former President Harry Truman you can do what you want to about the period after his middle name "S."

You can put it in or you can leave it out, as far as Truman is concerned. The question whether to make it "S" without the period, or "S," with the period has come up frequently among newsmen since June 7 when Truman told reporters in New York that there should be no period after the S.

Asked for his preference about its use today, Truman said, "It makes no difference to me." He explained that technically the "S" was a name and not an initial. His parents wanted him to share the names of his two grandfathers. One was Anderson Shippe, the other Solomon Young. So they compromised on the letter "S" for his middle name.

Gonna Sue? Start At The Top

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A judge turned down an attempt to delay a $450,000 personal injury suit by four Mississippi politicians against President Kennedy.

A defense attorney asked the delay until Kennedy leaves office on grounds the President—as commander in chief of the national military forces—is actually in the service and protected by federal legislation.

The suit against Kennedy and others was filed by four Mississippi delegates to the 1960 Democratic National Convention, which nominated Kennedy.

The plaintiffs contend they were injured in a traffic accident while riding in a car rented by Kennedy, then a senator from Massachusetts.

Superior Court Judge Emil Gumpert ruled Thursday that he does not believe the President, as commander in chief, is covered by the Soldiers' and Sailors Civil Relief Act, aimed at protecting servicemen who are needed elsewhere and cannot be present to defend themselves in court.

The judge said there is no reason why Kennedy's deposition cannot be taken if his testimony is required.

The plaintiffs sued Oct. 27, 1960, claiming they were injured in the accident July 12, 1960, during the convention. They are State Sen. Hugh Dailey, Circuit Court Judge Walter O'Barr Jr., William H. Austin, a farmer, and Mrs. Jimmie Lee Hills, wife of a political columnist.

They contend Kennedy found it politically expedient to court their favor and had the transportation provided for them.

A pretrial hearing is set for July 30.

The court session did not bring out whether the four voted for Kennedy at the convention.

Nuclear Test Blast Slated For Tuesday

WASHINGTON (AP)—A high-altitude nuclear test over Johnston Island in the Pacific has been scheduled for the early morning of next Tuesday, July 24, the Atomic Energy Commission announced Thursday.

It said the device would be in the submergence range, indicating an explosive force of less than a million tons of TNT, and would be exploded at an altitude of tens of kilometers. A kilometer is about five-eighths of a mile.

The blast would be smaller than the July 8 test, when an explosion exceeding a million tons of TNT was visible over a wide area of the Pacific from New Zealand to Hawaii.

The announcement said the shot next week was a rescheduling of one originally set for June 3. That first high-altitude test attempt ended abruptly when the rocket launcher was purposely destroyed before the blast was detonated. A malfunction of the tracking system was blamed.

The test is scheduled for sometime between 10 p.m. July 23 and 3 a.m. July 24, Hawaiian Standard Time—3 a.m. to 8 a.m. Eastern Daylight Time—subject to weather conditions.

Monumental Mission Planned For Telstar

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP) — Europe and the United States will try on Monday to "bounce" the world's first formal exchange of live television shows off the orbiting satellite Telstar.

British television officials estimate 200 million persons on both sides of the Atlantic would watch the swap.

The European Broadcasting Union said in Geneva each of the east-west programs would last 15 minutes.

The transmission from the United States to Europe is scheduled between 2 and 2:30 p.m., EST. The second part of the program — from Europe, to the United States — will follow at about 3 p.m. EST. All three U.S. networks are planning to carry both broadcasts.

America will aim its program at Telstar on the satellite's 123rd orbit. Europe will beam its contribution at the Telstar on its 124th orbit.

Europeans are expected to see part of President Kennedy's news conference and a concert by the 350-voice Mormon Tabernacle Choir on South Dakota's Mt. Rushmore.

Here's a preview of the country-by-country offering:

Britain — The famous Beefeaters of the Tower of London in medieval uniforms, Magna Carta at the British Museum, Big Ben clock atop the houses of Parliament, a lifeboat putting out to sea at Land's End and Britain's Hovercraft gliding on a cushion of air across the waters of the Solent, between the Isle of Wight and the mainland.

Austria — The white Lipizzaner stallions of Vienna's famed Spanish Riding School. This was a spectacle that Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy especially asked to see when she visited Vienna with a President last summer. School chief Col. Alois Podhajsky will lead the snow-white horses and their riders in their split-second drill.

Italy — Closeup views of Michelangelo's paintings in the Vatican's Sistine Chapel, a view of Rome's beautiful Colosseum at night, fishing off the Sicilian coast and a glimpse of Richard Wagner's opera "Lohengrin" from an open air theater amid the ruins of the Roman baths of Caracalla.

France — Gay scenes of Paris' spectacular Champs Elysees, one of the most beautiful thoroughfares in the world, the Arch of Triumph, a visit to the Louvre museum, home of the Mona Lisa, and a sequence on the French News agency, Agence France Presse.

West Germany — Scenes at a big steel mill at Duisburg in the industrial Ruhr, with the feature a close-up shot of a huge blast furnace in operation.

Sweden — Scenes from Gaellivare above the Arctic Circle. These will feature the Lapp people and reindeer.

Switzerland — Shots of the European Center for Nuclear Research.

The European show also may include an offering from Belgrade, capital of Yugoslavia.

Alabama-born Eddy Gilmore is author of the book "The World's Most Beautiful Places."

He has been assigned to London since 1954.

A Pulitzer-prize winning veteran of the Washington and Moscow bureaus.

His successful experience in operating this type of business is based on giving the customer what he wants. And Hammit feels that at his present location on the busy Big Spring Highway, and with the quality Shamrock products which he handles, he can do just that.

Also in keeping with his policy of giving the customer what he wants, Hammit keeps in stock all major brands of oil, and when a certain brand and grade of oil is specified, that's exactly what the customer gets.

Customers want low prices too, so those are to be found at Hammit's Shamrock Service. For example, flats are fixed for just $1, and a complete wash, vacuum, and lubrication job is just $3.

Goodyear tires and batteries are featured by the station, but probably the thing most appreciated by the customers is the friendly service at O. L. Hammit's Shamrock Service.

Typical of the new protests was an editorial in the English-language Johannesburg Rand Daily Mail, which said:

"There is no doubt that the television beamed across the Atlantic by Telstar marks a new era in communications. It may be said that international television has arrived. How does South Africa stand in relation to such an achievement? Dr. Hartog has stubbornly turned his back on the introduction of any form of television in this country. Perhaps that did not matter so much while it remained a domestic affair. But can South Africa afford to keep aloof when television becomes international? Can it afford further to emphasize its isolation by cutting itself off from what must become a world-form of communication and culture? Or will the Dr. Hartogs of South Africa stick their heads in the sand and pretend there ain't no such thing?"

"There is no doubt that the television beamed across the Atlantic by Telstar marks a new era in communications. It may be said that international television has arrived. How does South Africa stand in relation to such an achievement? Dr. Hartog has stubbornly turned his back on the introduction of any form of television in this country. Perhaps that did not matter so much while it remained a domestic affair. But can South Africa afford to keep aloof when television becomes international? Can it afford further to emphasize its isolation by cutting itself off from what must become a world-form of communication and culture? Or will the Dr. Hartogs of South Africa stick their heads in the sand and pretend there ain't no such thing?"

Chance Of Surprise Attack Is Lessened

By J. M. ROBERTS

Associated-Press News Analyst
Some thoughts on the week's news:

Every success such as the Nike-Zeus test adds a little more to the nation's security against surprise attack. Not because a weapon or weapons system can be decisive, but because it diminishes the other fellow's confidence that he can do enough damage with a first strike to eliminate retaliation.

Hesitancy in Washington about placing too much reliance on the new antimissile weapon stems largely from the knowledge that it would be very difficult to put enough of them up to take out both the hummers and the "live" missiles of an enemy. But forcing the enemy to send up large numbers of rockets adds to his difficulties, too. And after all, what the United States wants is to deter war, not win a bloody and possibly empty victory.

It is hard for an American to envision a circumstance in which he would have to take to the streets in defense of his democratic institutions. He knows that when he votes no military junta will overturn his decision. Peru has been going through a painful transition, or revolution, for years, like so many other Latin American countries. Democracy was advancing, and then comes a military counterrevolution. Next on the boards will be a counter counterrevolution. People who have snipped at democracy will not give up.

Without TV,
The Natives
Are Restless

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The Telstar satellite achievement has provoked new grumblings from press and public here that South Africa still has no television of any kind while far less developed African countries do.

The latest word from Communications Minister Dr. Albert Hartog is that television is "too expensive" to be inaugurated here. Dr. Hartog told Parliament, not long ago that he had a low opinion of the "blood and thunder" entertainment that comes through that piece of glass, and that he feared the effects of such entertainment on South Africa's white youth—not to speak of the majority nonwhite population.

Wall Street Stocks Gone

NEW YORK (AP)—A block of stocks has been reported missing and presumed stolen from a second Wall Street brokerage house. The district attorney's office indicated it may have been an inside job, but that a nationwide ring may be operating to dispose of the securities.

The latest loss of $122,828 in stocks—of which $32,612 worth has since been recovered—was confirmed Thursday by Carl M. Loeb, Rhodes & Co. The firm's offices are in the same Wall Street building as Rache & Co., which reported last week the loss of $1,370,475 in stocks.

Two men have been arrested—here and in Denver—in connection with the Rache theft, and $88,512 worth of securities has been recovered, authorities said.

Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan said police were notified last Friday of the stock disappearance at Loeb, Rhodes, which reportedly discovered at least part of the loss during an inventory May 24. The time lapse was not explained.

The missing securities were insured, according to a firm spokesman.

Recovered were 2,300 shares of General Dynamics worth $32,612. According to Hogan, this was the chain of events that touched off the official investigation.

About two weeks ago, a man calling himself Sam Harris, "a retired millionaire" from Miami Beach, Fla., went to W. Reich & Co., a broker, to sell the 2,300 shares of missing General Dynamics stock. He was asked to produce proof of ownership. He returned last week with what was purported to be such a document.

Reich sent the securities to its bank, Meadow Brook National, which in turn sent them to the Bankers Trust Co., agent for the transfer. Bankers Trust, however, knew this stock had been reported missing.

Detectives accompanied Reich employees to the Statler Hilton Hotel, where "Sam Harris" had asked that his check for the stock be sent. But "Harris" failed to appear. He was being sought by police today.

INFLATION'S THERE, TOO

Caracas A City Of Wealth, Filth

By PAUL FINCH
CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—A belt of squalor and misery mocks the modern glitter of this fantastically wealthy city, the capital of the world's biggest oil exporting nation.

More than 300,000 illiterates of mostly Indian blood—many half-starved and half-clothed—exist in battered shacks called ranchos.

Ranchos fester on surrounding hills like rubbish piles, in ravines which cross through the city, or in the most plush residential areas.

Some of the younger rancho children run naked in the dusty settlements. Older ones shine shoes or simply beg on the busy downtown boulevards.

Rancho-dwellers make up a quarter of the Caracas population but most came from the interior region near the Andes mountains.

City officials say thousands more come each year, seeking jobs or an easier way of life in the big city, despite admonitions of the government to stay where they are.

"But it's easy to build a rancho," said one official. "You can pick a scrap pile and get discarded corrugated metal sheets for the roof, blocks for furniture and box wood for walls. They sometimes improve their place as they find more material."

Heating is no problem in tropical Caracas and rancho people keep the tin roofs intact, despite torrential rains, by piling rocks on the top.

More ingenious rancho veterans tap power lines to have free electric lighting.

A rancho mother of seven showed a reporter her one-room dirt-floor shack. She made coffee on an ancient but clean kerosene stove. Where was her husband?

"He left before Jean Jose there was born," she answered.

A priest who works in the barrios told a reporter that families, as they are known elsewhere, scarcely exist.

"The men can't support a family or accept responsibility from month to month they drift from one woman to another, leaving each one with more children," he said.

Fe y Alegria, charity sponsored by Venezuelan Roman Catholics, estimates there are at least 40,000 abandoned children in the Caracas ranchos. The organization whose name means "faith and happiness," has 21 primary level schools, including 12 in Caracas, in care for Venezuela's 173,000 orphans and half-orphans.

Recently an Alliance for Progress program was announced with the goal of eliminating the ranchos by 1975. More than $210 million will be spent through the Caracas city government to build 65,000 living quarters. More than 2,000 are scheduled to be built during the first year along with sewage and other facilities.

Antonio Cruz Fernandez, director of the Municipal Office of Urban Planning, says it is not a complete solution, however.

"We are conscious of the errors committed in the past with emergency programs. The people must have jobs and pay for their homes if they are to mean anything. Paternalism will not work," he said.

Fernandez said national unemployment must be cured and that agrarian reform and industrialization programs must be the final answer.

A sugar cane plantation owner, Gaston Vivas-Berthier of Maracay, told a reporter he considered agrarian reform the proper solution.

As the agrarian reform is now administered, there is little technical assistance offered; no encouragement to keep the young campesinos (peasants) on the farms. The oldest campesinos have the priority in receiving land," said the plantation owner.

"Caracas will have a belt of misery as long as the rural youth has no hope and no place else to go."

Seattle-born Paul Finch, 33, has been an AP man since 1956, correspondent in Caracas since last March.

Finch said he had seen the Caracas rancho problem first-hand when he was a reporter for the Associated Press.

State Farm Ins. Office On BS Hwy.

Steadily increasing business over a six-year period made a move necessary for State Farm Insurance agent Roy J. McCloskey.

The move was made from the old location on the East Highway to the Big Spring Highway in March of this year. The new offices are located on the Big Spring Highway directly across from where Fortieth Street dead ends.

And now that he has more office space, and more parking space, McCloskey is determined to outgrow the present location in another six years. If business increases in the next few years as much as it has in the past, he probably will do it too.

McCloskey handles not only the State Farm auto insurance, but all of the other types of coverage offered by the firm such as life insurance and fire insurance.

Many Snyderites have found that in addition to saving money on their insurance by using State Farm policies, they can save money too on the purchase of new cars by using the bank plan financing offered by State Farm.

McCloskey is always glad to explain the details of just how these savings can be made. Customers may call him at HI 3-7266 or go by the office at 4006 Big Spring Highway.
