MANNING THE HOSES — Kansas City police and firefighters hose down a building Thursday night to prevent the spread of flames from an unoccupied apartment complex to a nearby nursing home. About 100 persons were evacuated from the nursing home. It was the city's first major blaze since firefighters launched a work slowdown and sick-out. (AP Laserphoto)

Fighting Sweeps Northwest Iran

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Fighting erupted in Tabriz, capital of the northwest Azerbaijan region, and members of the dissident Azari Turks' political party wounded one Revolutionary Guardsman and took 10 other Khomeini men hostage, the official Pars news agency said today.

Meanwhile, the foreign minister angrily demanded spy trials for the U.S. hostages Iran is holding if America pushes for U.N. sanctions against his country.

(Other Iranian Stories On Page 16, Sec. A)

At least 10 of the captives were reported rebelling against their captors, and there was no sign their jailers would free any of them.

Pars, quoting the Revolutionary Guard office in Tabriz, said the attack began Thursday night when an unidentified group set fire to a pavilion set up for Friday prayers.

The guardsmen, chief security force for revolutionary leader Aaytollah Ruhollah Khomeini, pursued the unidentified attackers past the headquarters of the Moslem Peoples Republican Party. Groups identified only as "counter-revolutionaries" also attacked and tried to set fire to banks and newspaper offices in Tabriz, Iran's fourth largest city, Pars said.

Pars reported the revolutionary guardsmen said they had so far been unable to negotiate release of the hostage guards.

The party is loyal to Ayatollah Mohammed Kazem Shariat-Madari, Iran's second-ranking religious leader. His followers clashed with guardsmen in Tabriz earlier this month. Tension had developed around Shariat-Madari after he criticized the nation's new Islamic constitution. The Azaris, ethnic Turks, seek more self-rule.

In Tehran, the embassy militants denied reports that seven hostages had been transferred from the compound to a maximum security jail. The official Pars news agency also denied distributing the report.

First word that Pars was carrying the report came from the NBC-TV correspondent in Tehran, who said Pars got its information from the French news agency, Agence France Presse.

A French newspaper quoted a French legislator just returned from Tehran as saying the hostages had been transferred to Tehran's Evin Prison, probably for health reasons.

Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh told reporters Thursday night that the United States has interpreted every Iranian "good gesture as a sign of weakness." He referred to Khomeini's decision last Friday to allow three American clergymen to have Christmas visits with the hostages and President Carter's announcement that America would seek U.N. sanctions against Iran in a bid to pressure the release of the captives.

Ghotbzadeh remained silent on the Carter announcement until after the three visiting clergymen left Iran Thursday morning, but he was clearly angry when he gave his country's official reaction to the plan.

"All of a sudden we realize their (America's) whole propaganda is absolutely ridiculous," Ghotbzadeh said. "Now they are going to the Security Council just because they know in January the composi-

Russia Bares Military Role

MOSCOW (AP) — The Kremlin acknowledged publicly for the first time today its military role in the upheaval in neighboring Afghanistan. The confirmation bore striking similarities to Moscow's justification for its 1968 invasion of Czechoslovakia.

The disclosure came a day after Afghan President Hafizullah Amin was reported ousted and executed in a Soviet-led coup in Kabul that brought to power former Deputy Premier Babrak Karmal, described by Western diplomats as a Soviet stooge.

The official Tass news agency quoted Kabul Radio as saying the Afghan government "made a pressing appeal to the U.S.S.R. for urgent political, moral and economic assistance, including military aid," and that the Soviets "satisfied the request of the Afghan side."

Tass said the Afghan regime made the request "taking into account prolonged and expanding interference and provocations of external enemies of Afghanistan, and with the goal of defending the gains of the April Revolution, territorial integrity, national independence and the maintenance of peace and security," based on a year-old Soviet-Afghan treaty.

The Kabul statement had the earmarks of the official justification issued by Moscow more than 11 years ago for the entry into Czechoslovakia by Soviet and other Warsaw Pact troops.

In a statement issued on Aug. 21, 1968, Tass said the party and government leaders of Czechoslovakia had "asked the Soviet Union and other allied states to render the fraternal Czechoslovak people urgent assistance, including assistance with armed forces."

The statement said the Czech request resulted from threats to the Czechoslovak state from "counter-revolutionary forces which have entered into a collusion with foreign forces hostile to socialism."

This justification led to the so-called "Brezhnev Doctrine," under which socialist states are entitled to assist each other if their systems are threatened.

The treaty referred to in the Kabul radio statement was signed by Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev and Afghan Premier Nur Mohammad Taraki, who was overthrown by Amin in September.

Guardsmen Bolster Kansas City Force

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Hundreds of National Guardsmen manned fire trucks and stations today as arson investigators probed the rubble of a $5.5 million building gutted by the first major fire since city firefighters began a work slowdown eight days ago.

The fire Thursday night destroyed an unoccupied apartment project and retirement home and forced the temporary evacuation of a nearby nursing home that houses about 100 people. No one was hurt.

Seven fire investigators were trying to determine the cause of the fire, but it could not be learned immediately whether officials suspected foul play.

Meanwhile, firefighters continued to call in sick today in a contract dispute with the city. Officials said they had no count of the number of firemen on duty.

Among the 75 persons who fought the fire Thursday night were police, some regular firefighters and Guardsmen mobilized under an emergency order by Gov. Joseph Teasdale.

Teasdale declared a state of emergency earlier Thursday as firefighter ranks were thinned by dismissals, suspensions and sick-outs in an escalation of a contract dispute over salaries.

He called on firefighters to stop "this illegal strike," and said city officials could no longer guarantee public safety.

By noon Thursday, 33 of the city's 900 firefighters had been dismissed, more than 200 were given three-day suspensions to be served after the emergency is over and 232 firefighters had joined the sick-out, which began Wednesday. City officials said the dismissals and suspensions were for refusal to work overtime.

Abnormally high sick calls continued late Thursday, but city officials said confusion and personnel shortages hindered tabulation.

Shortly after midnight, 500 Guardsmen were assigned to 15 fire stations being manned by city police. Guard officials said some troops would provide security and others would bolster police firefighting squads.

The city's 18 other fire stations were

Chance Of Snow Fading In Area

A-J News Services

A record-breaking winter storm buried the central and southern Rockies in deep snow today, but long-predicted snowfall continued to evade the Lubbock area.

Forecasters said this morning that chances of any significant snow were almost non-existent over most of the South Plains.

"We could get a little light rain or drizzle, possibly mixed with snow tonight," a National Weather Service spokesman said, "but it looks like we're just going to be on the southern periphery of the storm."

However, travelers advisories remained in effect for the northwest Panhandle and a winter storm watch was posted for that area tonight. Forecasters said 1 to 3 inches of snow are possible in that corner of the region. But at midmorning, no heavy snow was reported anywhere in the state.

The forecast calls for colder weather with a chance of rain today, possibly changing to snow tonight. The messy conditions should end early Saturday.

Highs should be in the low 40s today and near 40 on Saturday. The low Saturday morning is expected to be in the upper 20s.

Probability of precipitation was listed at 20 percent today, 30 percent tonight and 20 percent on Saturday.

There was light precipitation over much of the South Plains last night, ranging from .32 at Snyder to a trace at Lubbock and several other area points.

Temperatures were generally mild in the area. Friona's 31 was the low reading. Lubbock's low was 39.

Elsewhere in the state, skies were cloudy except for the region west of the Guadalupe Mountains.

The extended forecast predicts a warming trend Sunday through Tuesday, with temperatures reaching the 70s in

Gas Threat Easing In Panhandle

BRISCOE (AP) — The flow of poisonous gas from a blown-out well dropped substantially early today from a level that sent firemen and deputies scrambling to evacuate more than 30 families from their homes and ranches near this tiny Texas Panhandle town.

"It has choked back down to where the flow is almost nothing," said Hemphill County sheriff's dispatcher Kay Holland. "They're gonna go in and try to cap it today."

There was no report of injuries and no immediate word on when the evacuees would be allowed to return home.

Hemphill sheriff's deputy Joe Reyna said officials began the evacuation about 10 p.m. Thursday, about two hours after the natural gas well began spewing poisonous hydrogen sulfide gas.

Deputies tried to evacuate any residents who could smell gas, Reyna said.

One evacuee estimated 100 residents of the sparsely populated area took refuge at the Briscoe school Thursday night.

A check with local hospitals revealed no victims from the toxic fumes.

Reyna said there was no immediate estimate of how many persons had been evacuated in Hemphill County.

Wheeler County officials said they evacuated about 30 to 40 families from ranches along a strip about 15 miles long and seven miles wide.

"Everybody in this country was told to get out," said a man at the school who declined to give his name.

Early Votes Cast Here

Absentee voting for the Jan. 19 special election on a 15 percent pay raise for Lubbock firefighters brought seven voters to City Hall in 3½ hours this morning.

City Secretary Evelyn Gaffga said that number is more than she expected, but added that documentation from other elections was not available to tell whether the total indicated heavy or light voting to come.

Mrs. Gaffga said, however, she expects absentee voting to be light. She said she had not received any absentee votes in the mail by noon today.

Of those voting this morning, all indicated that they would be out-of-town as their reason for voting absentee, Mrs. Gaffga said.

New Afghanistan Ruler Hinting Purge Of Foes

By The Associated Press

Die-hard supporters of executed Afghan President Hafizullah Amin were reported still trading rifle fire in Kabul today, after Soviet forces installed their own man in power to end a 19-month-old insurrection on Russia's southern border. The border guerrillas, scorning a "change in pawns," vowed to fight on.

There were signs the new leader, Babrak Karmal, will conduct large-scale purges.

The Soviet Union acknowledged for the first time today its military role in Afghanistan. The official Tass news agency quoted Kabul Radio as saying the Afghan government "made a pressing appeal to the U.S.S.R. for urgent political, moral and economic assistance, including military aid," and that the Soviets "satisfied the request of the Afghan side."

Britain and West Germany condemned the Soviet involvement. A U.S. official has called it "the grossest form of international behavior."

A report from the Japanese embassy in Kabul said sporadic shots were heard near the road running from the Soviet embassy to the old royal palace, which appeared to be still in the hands of Amin's followers. Several Mig-21 warplanes circled over the city, the report said.

Islamic rebels, who fought Amin, denounced Soviet influence in Afghanistan and vowed to continue their war aimed at establishing a non-Marxist government in Kabul.

"The Moslem nation of Afghanistan will not be deceived by the change in pawns," a spokesman for the Afghan Islamic Movement said in Tehran. "The Babrak Karmal coup in Afghanistan is the direct result of Soviet interference in Afghan internal affairs."

There are believed to be few ideological differences between Amin and Karmal, but the rebels view any Marxist government as a threat to the Moslem beliefs held by most Afghanis.

The airport in Kabul, the Afghan capital where thousands of Soviet troops were flown in over the past few days, was believed closed, so there was no immediate way for correspondents to confirm reports of active Russian fighting to take over the presidential palace and radio station Thursday night.

But witnesses said in telephone calls

Carter Aides Accused Of Misusing Funds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Liberal Democrats backing Sen. Edward Kennedy filed suit today charging top White House aides and Cabinet members with using federal funds to buy the Democratic nomination in 1980 for President Carter.

The U.S. District Court suit charged the administration is passing out patronage and federal funds based on political considerations.

And it charged that campaign workers, federal officials and First Lady Rosalynn Carter are getting political training and making political appearances at government expense.

The action had no direct link to the Kennedy campaign, but was conducted by some of the leaders of the defunct draft-Kennedy organization, including Machinists Union President William Wimpisinger, Patsy Mink, president of Americans for Democratic Action and Georgia State Sen. Julian Bond.

They sought an order in U.S. District Court to end "misuse of federal power and federal funds to purchase the presidential renomination of Jimmy Carter."

Among those named as defendants were White House Chief of Staff Hamilton Jordan, Press Secretary, Jody Powell, Transportation Secretary Neil Goldschmidt, Housing Secretary Moon Landrueu, Health and Welfare Secretary Patricia Harris and Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus.

"Defendants are presidential subordinates engaged in a concerted course of conduct designed to use the public treasury for salaries, travel expenses, cost of meetings and other political outlays," the suit charged. Such actions are unconstitutional and illegal, the suit claimed.

Among the specific acts cited were Carter's instructions last November requiring top White House staff and cabinet members to campaign for his re-election.

It noted that in advance of the Florida caucuses in November, Vice President Walter Mondale went to Miami to announce a Department of Energy project off the Florida coast and Landrieu went to Miami to announce a $1.2 million housing grant.

The cost of Mrs. Carter's fundraising trip to Florida was only partly reimbursed by the campaign committee, the suit claimed.

The suit said the administration has stepped up the flow of federal funds to Detroit where Mayor Coleman Young has supported Carter, but cut funding to Chicago where Mayor Jane Byrne has endorsed Kennedy.

The group asked the courts to prohibit political use of federal grants and to order administration employees to stop campaigning for Carter.

Incumbent presidents long have enjoyed advantages over their challengers, with nationwide publicity and "official business" trips that resemble campaign junkets. Use of government aircraft also gives the incumbent and his aides a distinct edge over rivals.

Congressional Bill Would Limit Powers Of OSHA

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nine of 10 American workplaces would be exempt from routine federal safety inspections under a Senate bill sponsored by a powerful coalition of defenders and critics of the Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

The bill to rein in the enforcement powers of OSHA, which Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., called "the most despised federal agency," is the latest sign of an anti-regulatory mood sweeping Congress.

Schweiker, chief sponsor of the OSHA "reform" bill, has put together an unlikely bipartisan group of cosponsors that includes Sen. Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J., the agency's foremost defender, and Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, OSHA's most strident critic.

Williams, rarely on the same side of an issue as Hatch, was the Senate's chief sponsor of the 1970 law that created the job safety agency. Williams also is chairman of the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee, which controls OSHA legislation, and his support for the bill increases its chances.

Senate sources said Williams is backing the bill to undercut OSHA opponents who want to weaken the agency even further. The sources, declining to be named, said that without some curbs being placed on OSHA, opponents might try to repeal the safety and health act itself.

Senate Majority Whip Alan Cranston, D-Calif.; Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., also are sponsoring the legislation, introduced in the Senate last week.

OSHA is not alone as a target of congressional criticism. Recent attacks have been launched against the Food and Drug Administration, the Federal Trade Commission, the Consumer Product Safety Commission and the Environmental Protection Agency.

The attackers would curtail the agencies' powers to tell a variety of industries — from automobiles to breakfast cereals — how to conduct their business.

OSHA's critics in Congress and the business community have complained that the agency harasses employers with surprise inspections and fines for minor violations.

FTC Chairman May Take Part In Inquiry

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Federal Trade Commission thinks television commercials aimed at children cause children's teeth to rot and drive a wedge between youngsters and their parents.

But the U.S. Court of Appeals says that doesn't prove he has "an unalterably closed mind" about the ads.

The court ruled 2-1 Thursday that a lower court made a mistake in banishing FTC Chairman Michael Pertschuk from a commission inquiry into whether commercials aimed at children should be banned or restricted.

The lower court said Pertschuk should not participate in the proceeding because he had spoken out on the issue in advance.

The Kellogg Co. and the Association of National Advertisers, the American Association of Advertising Agencies, the Toy Manufacturers of America and the American Advertising Federation tried to have him removed from the inquiry.

A lawyer for the losing side in the court case said no decision has been made on whether to appeal.

Pertschuk had argued that young children don't distinguish between commercials and programs on TV and are overly susceptible to pitches for sugared cereals.

When parents say "no" to what children learn from television to want, Pertschuk suggested, the youngsters and their parents wind up scraping.

So, he said, the harm caused by commercials "ranges from increasing tooth decay and malnutrition to injecting unconscionable stress into the parent-child relationship."

In a speech in 1977, he said, "Advertisers seize on the child's trust and exploit it as a weakness for their gain."

The appeals court said commissioners, in making policy decisions, are free to have opinions in advance, just as congressmen do.

Judge George E. MacKinnon, dissenting from his colleagues' opinion, said Pertschuk "has proved that he is not an impartial decisionmaker on this matter."

He said a notice from the commission, if it truthfully reflected Pertschuk's views, would have to read: "The commission has decided to make a fundamental assault upon children's advertising on TV because we are convinced that it is evil, unfair and allowed solely because of the moral myopia of the public and the industry. We solicit comments as to whether it should be prohibited entirely or to some lesser degree."

The commission has conducted six weeks of hearings into whether children are severely affected by commercials. The average child aged 2 to 11 sees 20,000 commercials a year, on which the industry spends $600 million, the FTC says.

The commission's power to restrict television advertising aimed at the young is under attack in Congress, too.

The Senate Commerce Committee has voted to deny the FTC authority to act on commercials aimed at children if the action is taken on the grounds the commercials are unfair to children.

American Student Flying Home After Stay In Turkish Prison

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — Loretta J. Dooley left Istanbul today on the first leg of a flight to her Tracy, Calif., home, three days after a Turkish court ordered her freed on $1,500 bail on a drug smuggling charge. She refused to say whether she would return for trial.

During a stopover in Rome to change planes, the 18-year-old Miss Dooley, who spent nearly five months in a Turkish prison, said only: "I just feel fantastic, that's all."

Carrying a guitar and wearing sneakers and a red windbreaker, she appeared on the verge of tears amid a crush of reporters and photographers at Rome's Leonardo da Vinci Airport, where she boarded a flight for New York.

"I just want to be with my family at home," Miss Dooley said when asked about her plans for the future.

She was accompanied by Wesley Hogle, 58, and Carole Flores, 26, family friends from her hometown in Tracy who had flown to Istanbul for the Tuesday bail hearing.

Airport sources in Turkey said a U.S. Consulate car drove Miss Dooley to the tarmac of the Istanbul airport, skipping regular exit procedures.

Miss Dooley was released from prison Wednesday after a court approved a defense motion for bail at a hearing Tuesday. She got bail after the prosecutor, who originally demanded a 10-year sentence, admitted there was "a lack of concrete evidence indicating the defendant actually tried to export" cigarettes spiked with seven grams of the drug hashish.

The court set a Feb. 5 trial date, but her lawyers quoted Miss Dooley as saying she did not wish to return to Turkey. The lawyers said they had power of attorney to represent her at the trial, and one said, "Chances of any heavy punishment were dashed by the prosecutor's admission."

Her departure was stalled when the police passport office demanded a separate court clearance allowing her to travel aboard while on bail. The clearance came Thursday and Miss Dooley remained with U.S. consular officials until her departure.

Firm Polls Doctors, Lawyers, Presidents

NEW YORK (UPI) — Finding out how many doctors and corporate presidents own yachts or how many dentists and lawyers swim in their own pools, drive Cadillcs or own hand-held calculators has become a big business.

This kind of information is gathered by hundreds of firms and associations but Marketplace Publications, Inc., of New Canaan, Conn., is doing it on a big scale.

The firm puts out a number of surveys entitled "Physicians Marketplace," "Lawyers Marketplace," "CPAs Marketplace," "Presidents Marketplace," and so forth.

The studies provide such tidbits as: the average corporate president's household income is $83,071, followed by physicians with $73,500, dentists with $56,408 and lawyers with $56,408.

Company presidents play more golf than professional men and drive more Cadillac, Lincoln and Mercedes-Benz cars. More of them belong to yacht and tennis clubs than the professionals but the businesmen don't actually get out on the courts or on the water nearly as much as doctors, dentists and lawyers.

Businessmen also jog less and listen to fine music less than professionals. Dentists are the most enthusiastic joggers and doctors dote on fine music.

For what it's worth to marketing people, dentists are the best upper-income customers for hand-held calculators, not business executives or accountants.

Bachelorhood is most common among lawyers and they also have the highest divorce rate.

The surveys go into many items — the travel habits and hopes of the groups, how much TV they watch and how much they spend on color TV receivers.

This information is of obvious value to advertising and marketing people if it is reliable and that proviso makes the way the surveys are taken extremely important.

The Marketplace Publication questionnaires go to about 1,000 individuals in each group. That seems a tiny fraction of, for example, the nation's 275,000 physicians.

Mid-Sized Companies Go Public

NEW YORK (UPI) — The number of companies going the public route for the first time grew tremendously in 1979 and the success of their stock offerings helped draw investors back to the marketplace — and contributed to the economy.

The number of first-time public stock offerings was up 75 to 80 percent in 1979 over the initial offerings of the previous year, according to statistics compiled by two industry publications, the Investment Dealers' Digest and Going Public.

"Small to medium-sized companies who are making public offerings for the first time this year proved for the most part to be conservatively and realistically priced and this has been instrumental in attracting new investors," said Jay Cooke, who is in charge of the public financing department at Laidlaw Adams & Peck Inc., a New York firm that specializes in offerings for mid-range growth companies.

The ability of these small-to-mid-range growth companies to raise money for expansion, Cooke said, also "has contributed significantly to the nation's economy.

"The country's increased private employment has come principally from the development and growth of emerging and medium-sized companies, in contrast to major corporations where employment has remained stagnant," Cooke said.

For the most part these stock offerings have been profitable for investors. Two-thirds of all initial offerings since the end of 1977 currently are trading at more than their offering prices, Cooke said.

While many of these offerings in 1979 were energy-related, Cooke said there "was a good cross-section of industries." There were a substantial number of high-technology and "concept" companies and medical and health-related firms were very active.

"There are two factors that are important in this resurgence of IPOs," Cooke said. "First, the individual investor and institutions have made money on them."

But more importantly, he said, "major shareholders or founders of the companies are provided liquidity."

Companies that might have had to sell their business or merge with a larger firm for lack of capital are provided with a means to expand without taking these steps, Cooke said.

The resurgence of IPOs also has contributed to growth for regional brokerage and investment banking firms who generally underwrite initial offerings of the mid-range companies. In addition to Laidlaw, firms such as Baker, Watts of Baltimore, Bateman Eichler, Los Angeles, Butcher & Singer, Philadelphia, Rotan Mosley, Houston, and Underwood Neuhaus, St. Louis, handled a significant number of initial offerings.

The total number of transactions in 1979 for medium-sized companies in the country amounted to 175, according to Laidlaw's statistics. The dollar value should total roughly $1.5 billion, with the average individual offering of mid-range companies coming to $6.4 million.

This contrasts with 135 transactions valued at $1 billion in 1978 and with a total of six initial public offerings valued at $20 million in the recession year of 1974.

Cooke doesn't think the boom in IPOs is a "one-shot, one-year development.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Progress Price Painful

THE PRACTICAL cessation of productivity growth in recent years is a demonstration of the inefficiencies inherent in an inflationary economy.

We have to reckon with the fact that inflation, untreated, tends to get progressively worse.

"As in the case of an alcoholic binge, the worst effects of inflation are felt, not while you're indulging, but after you've stopped," writes George Hagedorn, chief economist and vice president of the National Association of Manufacturers in its monthly journal, Enterprise.

The drastic monetary measures taken by the Federal Reserve System this autumn may have pulled us back from the brink at the last possible moment. But this is strong medicine and it has distressing side effects, as we have already seen.

FURTHERMORE, one dose won't cure us of inflation and we will have to be taking this medicine for a long time in the future.

Whether Fed Chairman Volcker and or his program of monetary stringency can survive in the highly politicized atmosphere of the next 12 months remains to be seen.

"Even if we make the optimistic assumption that the U.S. is finally ready to get a grip on its inflation problem, and will carry through until inflation is ended," writes Hagedorn, "we should not conclude that a new golden age of economic stability and prosperity will dawn immediately."

On the contrary, many economists believe we may have to get used to the idea that curbing inflation is going to hurt—a lot, and over an extended time period.

INFLATION GIVES false economic signals and thus leads to serious mistakes, governmental and private, in the allocation of resources.

These mistakes are not revealed as such until the inflation is over and then correcting them is a painful process.

"Clearly the fact that we have avoided a downturn through the first three quarters of 1979 cannot be taken as evidence that the economy is strongly based and can continue in the same pattern indefinitely," writes Hagedorn.

"What we have been seeing is an economy sustained, temporarily, by the anticipation of further inflation."

The universal rule of "buy now, it will cost more later" is at best a shaky pillar. An economy maintained for too long at that galactic level, warns Hagedorn, "is clearly due for a fall." A fall neither employer nor employe can afford.

Fire 'n Sick Calls

REP. REE HENSIBLE, Dem-Agog, says that the windfall tax will enable the Guv'ment to solve all our energy problems in timely fashion.

That's the same Guv'ment which, this month, issued a five-volume "Index to the Papers of the Continental Congress, 1774-89."

★

Congress has appropriated $19 billion for a synthetic fuels program. That'll be the energy program's only tangible result—and even it won't be authentic.

★

COMMON CAUSE, the self-interested "citizens lobby," delivered itself of what it evidently considered to be a fascinating bit of information the other day.

Congressmen who voted against the so-called hospital cost containment bill, Common Cause cluck-clucked, had received campaign contributions averaging $8,157 from the American Medical Association.

Those who voted for the bill, on the other hand, had received AMA-connected contributions averaging only $2,287.

In both cases, the amount may be a little rich—but.

COMMON CAUSE may find it surprising that doctors give more campaign help to their friends than to their enemies, but others may find it even more surprising that they contribute at all to those who vote against their position.

There is nothing at all wrong with people publicly supporting candidates of their choice with their time and money. In fact, that's what makes the political system work.

Nor is it an indication that a politician has been "bought" just because he votes a certain way. When a man or woman looks around for a candidate to back, he just naturally looks for somebody who thinks the way he does.

Unless, of course, he really is out to bribe someone. In which case, the payment would be under the table—not out front and reported, where Common Cause could see it and gripe about it.

★

This is the most glorious week of the year for taxpayers. Congress is in recess and the bureaucrats are going to the office for only three days.

Everybody's drawing full pay, of course, but at least they're not passing new laws or writing new regulations.

KANSAS CITY firemen may yet prove to be the undoing of their brothers in Lubbock.

Members of Lubbock's Local 972 of the International Association of Firefighters (AFL-CIO) are working hard for voter approval Jan. 19 of their request for collective bargaining rights.

Members of Kansas City's Local 42 of the firefighters' union meanwhile were calling in "sick" because of an impasse at the bargaining table.

"There never has been a firefighters' strike in Texas. Our charter forbids a strike," Luther Dean, president of the union here, says.

I assume they are sick of the whole situation and not able to come to work," John Germann, leader of the local in Kansas City, said in explaining why 40 firemen didn't report for work in defiance of a court order.

He demanded amnesty for firemen fired for violating the court order, saying the union won't settle its dispute with the City Council over wages until those who have been suspended or dismissed are reinstated.

That's the way a public employe union normally gets around complying with state laws which, like the one in Texas, outlaw strikes.

All of the Lubbock firemen I know are good old boys and insofar as I know those in Kansas City are, too.

THOSE HERE DO a good job and they are well paid for it. They're on duty 56 hours a week, but sleep 16 to 20 hours of that time, and draw median pay of $15,891.

The top base pay in Kansas City, according to news reports, is $17,928 and the union is demanding a 20 percent hike next year when the workweek there goes to 48 hours instead of 40.

Lubbock's firefighters union is demanding a 15 percent pay raise (8 percent more than the Council gave) and believes that collective bargaining rights like those "enjoyed" in Kansas City would help them get future raises.

With no organized opposition having surfaced to date to the pay and union issues to be voted on here Jan. 19, Lubbock firefighters couldn't be blamed if they wished their brothers in Kansas City would quit getting sick just when those here are trying to get well.

Divided, The U.S. Is Falling

WASHINGTON—"Is it true?" asked the Returning Traveler who'd been away for a while. "Has the United States of America become the ward of the UN Security Council?"

But that's nonsense, he was told. An absurd rumor.

"Not the way it sounds to me," the Traveler rejoined. "The one-time mighty America has got to run to the UN and the World Court for protection from the back-alley urchins of the world.

"When it gets so bad that Puerto Rico terrorists can shoot up a U.S. Navy bus and kill two inmates, it's like Dead End Kids tying a tin can to the tail of a stray dog and running it to death. The UN Security Council looks like a very welcome animal refuge center."

THE TRAVELER WAS reminded of the way President Carter dared to say some harsh words about the powerful Ayatollah Khomeini.

The Traveler interrupted. "But Carter's thrown nothing but words."

And there was Candidate Ted Kennedy who stood right up and insulted the dying Shah, it was added.

"That took more nerve than Ted had in front of Roger Mudd," the Traveler agreed. "But the list of insolent, shanty-nations—Cuba, Iran, Libya, Pakistan, India—goes endlessly on and the newspapers have to hold their pages open for the next garbage-dump rat that makes Uncle Sammy run. But as I was saying, the UN Security Council—"

If the Council doesn't save us, he was told, the World Court might.

A WARD OF the Council, a ward of the Court," resumed the Traveler, "any port in a storm for a country that's lost the will to defend its integrity and its citizens.

Carter used to brag that he had governed without any war casualties, but there are four or five already killed by enemy actions, and the President will be spending a lot of time at Arlington National Cemetery if he keeps using Public Relations as a dodge from military action."

UN Secretary Gen. Kurt Waldheim says we'll have World War III unless we can settle these matters by arbitration. It makes you wonder how SALT II dropped out of the news so completely.

"SALT II and World War III had a relationship," remarked the Traveler, "but what Herr Waldheim had in mind was a Religious War. The American street talk used to be 'God Is Dead,' and look what's happened to us for that blasphemy.

"Practically every religion on earth is lifting its clenched fist against us. Oh, let us fly to the open arms of the United Nations where there are so many other nations that are incapable of self-government."

Perhaps the Returning Traveler would see some hope in the current presidential race.

"It would be wishful thinking," said the Traveler. "I have talked with congressmen who kid themselves into believing that the many sneak attacks on America are equivalent to a new Pearl Harbor that will bring us together.

But where's the credibility for such daydreams? I can see but one ray of light."

"And that?"

"Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher is a better man than any of our prospective Presidents.

"It's almost forgotten but George Bernard Shaw once wrote a so-so comedy where the U.S. Ambassador begged England to take back its lost American colonies. I don't know why Mrs. Thatcher would want us back in the British Commonwealth, but she might do it in an act of charity."

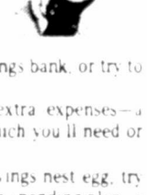
Sylvia Porter:

It's Possible To Pass College Budget 'Test'



WASHINGTON—Now let's assume you're a college student living—or trying to live—on an allowance. How can a money management plan help you?

Some of you are at home during school years and are on weekly allowances; many others of you live away and receive your checks every month. But for all of you the problem is identical. College years are a constant—and usually losing—battle to make financial ends meet.

Halfway through the week or month, most of you are either broke or on the brink.

Some of you have only far-apart intervals when you are out of debt. The vast majority of you are either flush or frantic.

BUT YOUR ALLOWANCE is a pay check. It deserves the respect and care you will give a pay check after graduation.

Just as your parents get the most for their dollars by living by certain financial rules, so you in college can get the greatest satisfaction out of your allowance if you live by certain financial rules.

Whether you live at home or away from home, whether you're at the fanciest of schools or on a scholarship or working your way through, the fundamental principles of money management apply equally.

Here are your "Allowance ABCs."

(1) Plan the spending of your allowance with your parents before you leave for college, and then keep planning on your own from the day you arrive at school.

It's nonsense to say the $40 a week will be when $40 a week won't do at all for what you're to cover.

THEN, WHEN YOU arrive at school, work out your day-to-day budget to cover your necessities and luxuries. Be honest with yourself. (If Cokes and coffee are going to cost X cents a day, plan for X cents a day.)

If your allowance is supposed to cover such items as new panty hose, dry cleaning, shoe repair, oil, gas, auto maintenance and so forth, budget these costs—don't ignore them. This is "your" budget, it should fit "you."

(2) Deposit your money in a bank account and draw on it only as you need the money. If you carry a wad of cash with you, you'll risk being mugged and the temptation to spend it recklessly may become irresistible.

Discipline yourself via your bank account; the lessons you learn now will be valuable throughout your life.

If your school has banking facilities, use them.

WHILE YOU MAY be slapped with service charges, the bank's advantages could far outweigh the disadvantages; check it out. And while you are learning how to make deposits, to draw checks, to balance a checkbook, etc., you are getting excellent training in personal financial management.

(3) If you and your parents can manage it, also start an account in a nearby savings bank, or try to build one through the term.

There always will be large extra expenses—a special event or a crisis—for which you'll need or want to spend money.

If you can't start with this savings nest egg, try to juggle your seven-days-a-week spending plan so you can save a bit and build one yourself.

(4) Don't figure down to pennies. No money plan ever should be that precise. For your protection and pleasure, give yourself a margin of safety.

(5) Keep some simple records to show you where your allowance is going and why. A record for one week alone would be enough to reveal your errors of omission and commission.

For one week, list on a sheet of paper what you spend and where and when you spend it.

If need be, push your spending around to make it fit. When you've found the right pattern, stick with it. Keep your list in a convenient spot where you will see it from day to day.

(6) STRETCH YOUR DOLLARS by learning how to buy items you must have (toiletries, for instance) during special sales or in economy sizes, etc.

If you're buying your own wardrobe, stretch your dollars further by buying simple basic styles which will last longer and cost least in upkeep. Also investigate ways you can save by pooling purchases with your friends so you can buy in bulk at bargain prices.

(7) If your evidence is clear after a trial that your funds are too limited, renegotiate your allowance. Your records will be your evidence.

James J. Kilpatrick:

Dial 800 For U.S. Diplomacy

WASHINGTON—Karl Hess, the gentlest anarchist of them all, came down from the West Virginia mountains the other day.

He was dressed, as usual, as if he were hunting for bear, but he joined some old friends in a posh K Street restaurant with the serenity of a man who has his values and his humor intact. He had been struck with a Great Idea.

Hess is well up in the running for the title of Most Unforgettable Character I have encountered on the campaign trail. We first met in 1964, when he was chief speechwriter for Barry Goldwater.

He was then a conservative's conservative, somewhere to the right of old Bill McKinley, a gray-flanneled, clean-shaven, fire-eating apostle of free enterprise, balanced budgets and a 25 percent annual return on investment.

THEN, AS YOU may recall, he went through a convulsive repudiation of his suburban life-style.

He separated from his wife, went to live on a houseboat, grew a fine black beard, made his living as a welder, tried the communal life in a run-down section of Washington, and finally moved to a cave house near Kearneysville, W. Va. He built the house with his own hands.

On this particular Wednesday morning he had caught a 6:50 train to Washington, walked a mile to the Jean-Pierre, and was early for a board meeting of the Fund for Investigative Journalism.

He ordered a no-vodka Bloody Mary and exuded good cheer. During the two-hour train ride he had perceived how the Iranian crisis might have been prevented; he saw how similar crises might be averted in the future. His Great Idea: Diplomacy by 800 numbers.

The details would have to be worked out, but the impressive cost savings are at once apparent. Instead of embassies, in the Hess proposal, we would have telephone booths.

IN EVERY CAPITAL city, the State Department would arrange a bank of attractive sidewalk kiosks. The aggrieved Iranian, or Libyan, or Panamanian would insert a refundable coin, dial 800-632-9606, or whatever, and behold!

"State Department here."

"I am an aggrieved Iranian."

"Yes, of course, and what aggrieves you today?"

"Send us the shah, or I'll pull out this telephone by its roots!"

"By all means, sir, feel free to do so, and the best of the season to you."

Such colloquies, said my friend, waxing eloquent as the possibilities expanded, would save us all the expense of ambassadors, striped pants, tea parties and smashed windows.

HOSTAGES COULD NOT be seized, only phone booths. Deprived of embassies to arrange their nightclub visits, congressmen would tend to stay home instead of junketing abroad.

As for the gathering of the intelligence, at modest expense we could subscribe to the Tehran Daily Bugle and the Tripoli Times. A corps of sweet-talking Kelly Girls could man a special State Department switchboard. Diplomacy would never be the same again.

If Hess runs for President, a prospect he is seriously non-considering, this would be but one plank in a platform devoted not to expansion, but to contraction.

His whole purpose would be to disband the federal government, but to disband it "gracefully." One by one, beginning with the regulatory agencies, executive departments would simply vanish.

After six months, he believes, "no one would miss them but the bureaucrats who used to work there."

THE CONSTITUTION, ALAS, would continue to require a Congress, but with the Kelly Girls in charge of foreign affairs and no executive agencies to bother about, the Congress would have little to do. The liberties of the people, in sum, might be secure.

In his second month in the White House, Hess would wipe out federal aid to the states, the cities and the public schools. This would effectively wipe out public education, a prospect he finds enchanting.

He would end highway maintenance, which in time would end driving, which in time would solve the gasoline problem and also revitalize the legs of the American people.

This would help the horse industry also. Down with government and up with anarchy! The platform, I am bound to say, has a certain splendid appeal.

Joan Kennedy says she'll live at the White House if Teddy is elected. Politics make strange bedfellows.

Nixon Accused Of Interference

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon tried unsuccessfully to get the Justice Department to scuttle the milk-fund prosecution of former Texas Gov. John B. Connally, The Washington Post said today.

Connally, now a candidate for the 1980 Republican presidential nomination, was acquitted by a federal jury of charges stemming from the milk-fund investigation. In an interview with the Post, Connally, a former treasury secretary in the Nixon administration, said he knew nothing about Nixon's reported effort. "It's news to me if it happened," he said.

According to the newspaper, Nixon on April 30, 1974, tried to get the Justice Department to quash its plea-bargain agreement with Jake Jacobsen, the crucial witness in the Connally investigation.

Nixon, according to the Post, said if the agreement was not overturned, the government lawyer responsible for the plea bargain should be fired.

Efforts to interview Nixon failed, the newspaper said.

Connally was under investigation at the time for allegedly accepting illegally $10,000 from an association of milk producers in return for his efforts as treasury secretary to boost federal price supports for milk. Those were the charges of which he was cleared by a jury here.

The Post, which said it based its report on interviews with eight sources familiar with the events, gave the following account:

On April 30, 1974, Nixon telephoned Deputy Attorney General Laurence Silberman and ordered him to revive a series of fraud charges against Jacobsen.

If carried out, that would have scuttled the plea bargain since the government had agreed to drop the fraud charges in return for Jacobsen's testimony against Connally.

Nixon said the government's agreement with Jacobsen was an abuse of the plea-bargain process.

After talking to Nixon, Silberman called Assistant Attorney General Henry Petersen, who had approved the plea bargain. Petersen told Silberman there was nothing unusual or improper about the agreement.

Silberman relayed the information to Nixon and told the president Petersen would not reinstate the charges against Jacobsen.

Silberman consulted with then-Attorney General William Saxbe and then told presidential aide Alexander Haig that the Justice Department would not comply with Nixon's instructions.

Haig, who said he knew nothing of Nixon's earlier call, told Silberman several hours later, "Just forget the whole matter."

Ex-President Unaware Of Early Financial Woes Of Cargo Plane

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon says he first learned of C-5A cost overruns in December 1969, more than a year after news stories began detailing the military aircraft's financial problems.

Nixon said in court papers the giant cargo plane's troubles came to his attention as a summary item in a briefing book he read in preparation for a Dec. 8, 1969, news conference.

For more than a year before that news conference, though, publications such as The Washington Post, The New York Times, The Wall Street Journal and Newsweek magazine ran stories about the overruns. Congressional hearings also were held.

But Nixon said he was preoccupied at the time with issues that he considered of higher priority: the Vietnam war, his upcoming State of the Union message and a message on the environment.

The briefing book contained the C-5A summary in case Nixon received questions about A. Ernest Fitzgerald, a Pentagon whistleblower who disclosed $2 billion in cost overruns on the C-5A.

Nixon's statements about the plane are part of a 371-page deposition filed Thursday in U.S. District Court here. Nixon was questioned at his San Clemente, Calif., home Oct. 2 and Oct. 3 by lawyers for Fitzgerald, who is suing the former president and two former Nixon White House aides for $3.5 million.

Fitzgerald was fired in 1969 from his job as a Pentagon cost analyst after his disclosures but was later reinstated to what he calls a lesser job. He contends Nixon and his aides, Alexander P. Butterfield and Bryce N. Harlow, ruined his career. Butterfield and Harlow are also defendants in the case.

Fitzgerald's lawyers say tape transcripts of White House conversations show that Nixon was referring to Fitzgerald when he told an aide Jan. 31, 1973: "This guy that was fired. I'd marked it in the news summary. That's how that happened. I said get rid of that son of a bitch."

Nixon said in the deposition that after reviewing the tapes and studying documents that he's certain he was confusing Fitzgerald with Gordon Rule, a Navy procurement official who criticized Nixon's appointment of Roy L. Ash as budget director. Rule was demoted and later reinstated.

Nixon said that until he saw the December 1969 briefing book he was unaware of the C-5A overrun charges and had never heard of Fitzgerald.

"But this was the first you knew of the fact that charges had been made revealing cost overruns on the C-5A?" a Fitzgerald lawyer asked Nixon.

A. This is the first time that I recall specifically having the matter brought to my — up to my attention.

Wages To Climb By 20 Cents In January

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's minimum wage climbs to $3.10 an hour on Jan. 1, giving some 5 million workers a 20-cent-an-hour boost, the Labor Department says.

The Labor Department said Thursday all workers paid the minimum wage, currently $2.90 an hour, will be entitled to a raise as a result of 1977 congressional action.

Based on a 40-hour work week, the raise means a worker's weekly pay will rise from $116 to $124. Workers must be paid at time-and-a-half rates for hours in excess of 40 a week, according to the law.

Congress amended the Fair Labor Standards Act so that the minimum wage floor would rise gradually to $3.35 an hour by Jan. 1, 1981. Prior to the congressional action, the minimum wage was $2.30 an hour.

Business groups had asked Congress and President Carter to hold off implementing the 1980 increase, arguing it would worsen inflation.

Carter declined to ask Congress for a delay.

Businesses with annual gross sales of less than $275,000 do not have to pay their workers the minimum wage. Next July 1, however, the gross sales exemption figure rises to $325,000.

Meanwhile, the Labor Department predicted Thursday that nearly 16 million new jobs would be created in the American economy over the next decade.

That represents a drop from the 1970s when more than 19 million new jobs were created.

Michael Pilot, an analyst for the department's Bureau of Labor Statistics, attributed the projected drop to the declining birth rate, which has meant a labor force with a slower growth rate.

The department's new employment analysis predicted the sharpest growth in the next decade will be for office, sales and service workers and computer operators.

Employment of farm and railroad workers, household domestics and self-employed managers should decline, said the study.

Slow growth rates are expected for many blue-collar occupations, including printers and laborers.

According to the forecast, 114 million people will be employed by 1990, compared with nearly 98 million now.

Actress Turns Director

CARLTON, Wash. (AP) — Actress and Washington rancher Stella Stevens has wanted to direct a movie for 20 years and now she's getting her chance.

MISS STEVENS

Filming is under way in South America on a documentary "The American Heroine." The movie will feature women of all ages, said Miss Stevens, including those who have led inspirational or heroic lives. Others in the film will talk about the role of women as "they embark upon the era of the 1980s."

Miss Stevens is reportedly financing the film with her own money. The former Playboy centerfold hopes to offset some of the cost by selling "American Heroine" T-shirts next spring featuring a neck-to-waist shot of Miss Stevens in a wet T-shirt.

Cora Loses Job

NEW YORK (AP) — Cora, the time-wise old storekeeper who doled out Maxwell House coffee and free advice to television viewers for five years, has lost out to the young whippersnappers after all.

MISS HAMILTON

Cora, played by actress Margaret Hamilton, 77, who is best known as the Wicked Witch in the film version of "The Wizard of Oz," is being shelved, according to the New York Daily News, in favor of a new look featuring young people who drink coffee in the evening as well as the morning.

But her agent, Mike Thomas, said she won't give up the brew.

"She drinks loads of coffee. This won't change her. First thing she asks when she comes in is 'Where's the coffee, dear,' and then goes to work. She never stops. You just can't catch up with her. She's always on her broom," he said.

Allen Gets New Tie

HOBOKEN, N.J. (AP) — Woody Allen now has a New Jersey tie to go with his New York tie.

Allen finished a day of filming his latest movie in the train station here Thursday and then traded quips with Gov. Brendan Byrne who presented him with the New Jersey tie.

"Thanks very much," Allen said as he took the navy blue tie embroidered with a tiny blob shaped like New Jersey. "Now I have a New York tie and a New Jersey tie."

Byrne replied, "The New Jersey tie is on the right side of the Hudson."

"The New York tie is stained already," Allen said.

"It was when you got it, probably," quipped the governor.

Byrne said he appreciated Allen shooting scenes in New Jersey and called him "a great artist and a great entertainer."

Allen — the movie's director, writer and star — is continuing his tradition of not revealing the content or title of his films, so the one he's completing is known only as "Woody Allen's Untitled No. 4."

Clinkers Draw Laughter

PEKING (AP) — It may have been 20 years between performances, but when a nervous soloist hit a few clinkers during Beethoven's Ninth Symphony the crowd of 1,800 knew it and broke into laughter.

"Frightening," French horn player Richard Mackey said after Thursday's performance.

Mackey was one of four Boston Symphony Orchestra conductors who accompanied their conductor Seiji Ozawa to China. Ozawa is to conduct the Peking Central Philharmonic in three concerts. Thursday night's performance before a knowledgeable audience of mostly music students served as a dress rehearsal.

Gorilla Turns 49

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Massa, the world's oldest captive gorilla, celebrated his 49th birthday at the Philadelphia Zoo's Ape and Monkey House with a five-tier birthday cake.

Lighter Side Of Today's News

The 300-pound lowland gorilla ignored his usual staple of "zoo cake," a high protein mix made into layers for the occasion Thursday. He carefully separated the layers, discarding the protein mix for the sweets in between as 150 spectators applauded and the Merion Elementary School choir sang "Happy Birthday."

Massa came to the zoo in 1935 when he was 5 years old, and his birthday celebration is a favorite annual event.

Massa's longevity is credited to a careful diet. Although on his birthday he is allowed a few sweets, generally he eats six oranges, two carrots, a half-bushel of kale, shoots, twigs and leaves and two pounds of zoo cake daily.

The average life span of a captive gorilla is approximately 35 years, and wild gorillas usually don't live that long, according to zoo spokeswoman Jeanne Segal.

The zoo's previous record holder was Bamboo, who died of a heart attack at age 34, Miss Segal said. The zoo's dieticians said Bamboo probably overate, she added.

County Officials Defend Right To Try Garbage Truck Driver

CHERAW, S.C. (AP) — Clayton Caldwell says people may get the wrong idea about the publicity and money garbage truck driver Raymond Sansbury Jr. received after his arrest for trespassing while "Christmas shopping" at a dump.

"We will probably have them lined up fighting to get arrested next Christmas. I'm not kidding," Caldwell, the Chesterfield County administrator, said Thursday.

Sansbury, 33, who earns $112 a week, and his family have received clothes, toys and an estimated $5,000 from well-wishers upset about his Dec. 19 arrest for trespassing.

Cheraw police arrested Sansbury after a landfill operator said he had taken discarded clothes and shoes from a dump in violation of state law.

Sansbury of Darlington, S.C., said he took the items, left by a department store, to give to his wife and seven children for Christmas. And he said he had no idea he was breaking a law.

He continues to receive gifts and money from across the country, but all county officials are getting is hate mail.

Sansbury will go before Magistrate T. Belk Ingram Jan. 24 on the misdemeanor charge, which carries a maximum penalty of a $100 fine or 30 days in jail. He said he had hoped the charges would be dropped, but Caldwell says no.

"The whole thing was to paint me and Chesterfield County as a bunch of Scrooges," Caldwell said of nationwide news accounts of the incident. "I'm amazed that the whole country would believe a twisted, blown-up story like that."

Sheriff's dispatcher B.J. Allman said, "We have been swamped by literally hundreds of calls, most of them belligerent.

"They would say, 'Who's this?' ... (and) just right off they would start cursing," Allman said.

Caldwell said many news accounts failed to mention that Sansbury was asked to leave the landfill and was arrested when he refused.

Sansbury said earlier that he asked the landfill operator if he could have the items. "He shrugged his shoulders and sort of shook his head. I thought that meant 'yes.' He didn't tell me I had to put them back."

Chesterfield County Council Chairman Charles Ingram said Wednesday the council supports the county administrator.

State laws prohibit taking materials out of landfills for good reason, Ingram said. "We can't have that. Somebody could get killed down there (or) eat poisoned food," he added.

Some area officials who aren't even involved are getting mail.

"I've got 27 letters lying here on my desk ... from all over the United States," Cheraw Police Chief O.G. Campbell said Wednesday, even though county authorities are handling Sansbury's case.

Some letters contained money, about $30 in all, for the Sansburys.

"Several of them say I won the Scrooge of the Year award," he said. One, from Boston, contained a poem that began, "You Southern rednecks are all the same ..." Another read, "I am originally from the South, and I hope I never have to come back."

TOO LOW

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — A Turkish Airlines jet that crashed into a hill, killing 39 persons on board, was "flying too low," according to Transportation Minister Huseyin Ozalp. A preliminary investigation revealed the state-owned airline craft was fluing "below allowable limits" as it approached Ankara airport and hit the hill, Ozalp said Tuesday. Only three passengers and a stewardess survived the Sunday crash. The Fokker-28 aircraft was on a domestic flight from the Black Sea coastal city of Samsun to Ankara.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't base your plans or actions on hearsay information. Before making any moves, be absolutely certain you have all the facts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Family matters should be given top priority tomorrow. Once they have been satisfactorily attended to, move on to your other interests.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Decisions made impulsively tomorrow are likely to be counter-productive. Judgments that you carefully study will be the ones that hit the mark.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Financial conditions are likely to be mixed for you tomorow. In proven areas you'll do quite well, but new ventures are a question mark.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Should you find yourself in a position tomorrow where you have to choose between backing an old friend or supporting a new acquaintance, side with your proven pal.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Before taking on new responsibilities tomorrow, finish the tasks at hand. If you try to do both, you'll fail at both.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It's very important tomorrow to treat all of your friends equally. Steer clear of intrigues. Above all, don't play politics.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Ambitions focused on material gains can be fulfilled tomorrow provided you don't go off on tangents. Zero in on what you hope to gain.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Tomorrow it behooves you to be more of a listener than a talker. There's a possibility you could blurt out something you shouldn't if you're not careful.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Commercial involvements tend to work out to your advantage tomorrow if you don't behave impulsively. Let others make the initial proposals.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In partnership situations tomorrow, subdue your assertiveness. It's possible that your counterpart can handle things better than you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Tomorrow can be a very productive day as long as you work with tested methods and procedures. Experimenting could throw things out of kilter.

Former Political Prisoners Maintain Vigil

By JOHN VIRTUE

HAVANA, Cuba (UPI) — Every night a handful of men sleep on the grass outside what once was the U.S. Embassy on Havana's Ocean Front Drive.

They are the most desperate of some 10,000 to 50,000 former political prisoners — no one knows the exact number — who have one thing in common: They had the misfortune to be released from prison before Aug. 1, 1978.

Had they been released afterwards, they would have been covered by an order issued by former U.S. Attorney General Griffin Bell giving Cuban political prisoners visas to the United States.

Aug. 1, 1978, marked the cutoff date for political prisoners released by President Fidel Castro as part of the so-called "dialogue" he held last year with representatives of the Cuban exile community, mainly that in the United States. He released 3,800 prisoners.

What gripes some of the prisoners released before Aug. 1, 1978, is that they served longer sentences than many of those already given U.S. visas.

Those who spend the night outside the old embassy — now officially part of the Swiss Embassy's U.S. Interests Section — already have exit permits to leave Cuba — but not visas to the United States.

The special interests section is processing the last of the prisoners released after Aug. 1, 1978, but so far only 2,800 of the 3,800 have applied since some want to go to other countries.

Leftover visas will be given to the old prisoners, with priority going to those who served the longest sentences. More than 3,000 old prisoners already have applied for the 700 visas that probably will be available.

Organization To End Parading Of Bobcat

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Under pressure from the National Humane Society and student government, a service organization at Kansas State University has decided to end the long-standing tradition of parading a bobcat at basketball and football games.

Ann Gonnerman, Kansas City regional director for the Humane Society, called the K-State tradition, "one of those god-awful traditions, like slavery." She added that parading the bobcat in front of cheering home crowds was "cruel and meaningless."

The service organization, Alpha Phi Omega, says the bobcat will continue to be K-State's mascot.

Forklift, Blowtorch Used In Church Heist

STERLING, Va. (UPI) — Using a forklift and a blowtorch from a nearby construction site, thieves robbed a Loudoun County church of $5,000 to $10,000 Christmas night, officials said.

A Loudoun County Sheriff's Department official said the cash and checks were stolen from the safe of the Calvary Temple Church.

Authorities said the thieves used a fork lift from a nearby construction site to steal the safe and then used a torch on the site to open it.

Picnic In Snow Adds To Wintertime Fun

By SHARIS LEWIS

Snow fun is no fun when you have to stop sleighing and playing and make that long trek home from the hills — just for lunch. Next time, try a snow picnic.

I do lots of shows on Canadian television and have lots of winter fun out in the gorgeous Canadian countryside. Last winter, my friends and I took sleds and drove to snow-covered hills near town.

At noon, out came a picnic basket and a red checked tablecloth.

One sled became the table. We sat on the other sled.

For this snow snack, they served a big thermos full of hot seafood chowder, delicatessen sandwiches, carrot sticks and hot cocoa.

My friends had an extra sweater or blanket for each of us because the body heat we had worked up sleighing could have easily turned into a chill as we sat still.

They picked a lovely spot for the picnic — sunny but protected from the wind by a bank of rocks.

As the snow flies once again, and as I fly to Canada again and again, it occurred to me that you might like to have a snow picnic in the park where you sleigh or even in your own snowy back yard.

And don't forget to save a carrot for the snowmen!

Galloway Named Manager Of UPI Bureau In LA

NEW YORK (UPI) — Joseph L. Galloway has been appointed manager of the United Press International bureau in Los Angeles, it was announced today.

Galloway, 38, who has just completed an assignment as UPI bureau manager in Moscow, succeeds John D. Lowry, who is retiring after a 42-year career with the news service.

In making the announcement, UPI Editor-in-chief H.L. Stevenson said Galloway will report to California Editor Max B. Vanzi.

Galloway, a native of Refugio, Texas, joined UPI in Kansas City in 1961 and moved to Topeka, Kan., the next year. In 1965 he was sent to Tokyo and shortly thereafter was transferred to Vietnam as a war correspondent.

He returned to Tokyo in late 1966 as an editor on UPI's Asia desk. In 1968 Galloway was appointed bureau manager in Jakarta, Indonesia, and from that base during 1971 he covered the Vietnam invasion of Laos, the rebellion in Sri Lanka and the Indo-Pakistan War.

Galloway returned to Saigon in 1973 to cover the release of U.S. prisoners of war, and later that year was named manager of the 11-nation South Asia region with headquarters in New Delhi.

In 1974 Galloway moved to Singapore as manager for Southeast Asia and covered the Indonesian invasion of Portuguese Timor. He returned to Saigon to cover the fall of Vietnam and Cambodia.

Galloway was named Moscow bureau manager in 1976. He and his wife, Theresa, have a son, Lee Tyler, 2.

Lowry joined UPI in Los Angeles in 1937 as an office assistant. He was promoted to newsman the next year, then became a teletype maintenance man in 1939 and a teletype operator in 1950.

In 1955 he returned to a newsman's job and became Los Angeles bureau manager in 1960.

Lowry has served as president of the Los Angeles Press Club and the Los Angeles chapter of Sigma Delta Chi. He and his wife, Marjorie, have two daughters and a son.

Iraq, Indonesia Reveal Crude Oil Price Hikes

By The Associated Press

Iraq and Indonesia, which together produce nearly one-fifth of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' oil, today announced price increases of up to 10 percent.

The increases were expected to spread, with Venezuela, another major OPEC producer and the supplier of 3.5 percent of U.S. petroleum needs, saying it planned to announce its 1980 price list today.

Venezuela was expected to raise its base price by $2 to $26 per 42-gallon barrel.

The latest hikes could prompt influential Saudi Arabia to announce a further price increase over the 33 percent boost imposed along with Venezuela and two other OPEC members earlier this month.

Saudi Arabia produces nearly one-third of OPEC's 30 million barrels-a-day oil output, and Indonesian Energy Minister Subroto had said earlier this week that Indonesia would not raise its prices unless Saudi Arabia moved first.

The decision by Iraq, the second-largest producer in the 13-nation cartel, to go from $24 to about $26 per 42-gallon barrel was reported by industry sources in Rome, who said the boost was retroactive to Dec. 1. The increase had been expected by many industry observers.

The move put Iraq between the moderate Saudis, who are charging $24 for their oil, and the hard-line Iranians, who charge $28.50 for oil of a similar grade.

The pricing split developed before last week's OPEC oil ministers' conference, which adjourned without reaching any agreement on a single price structure for 1980.

Iraq produces 3.7 million 42-gallon barrels a day — 12 percent of OPEC's output — but exports relatively little oil to the United States. It has raised production substantially over the past year.

The price of Basrah light, Iraq's leading grade of crude oil, was boosted by $4 to $25.96 a barrel, while the price of the nation's Kirkuk grade, which is of slightly lower quality, rose $4 to $22.18.

Indonesia, which had gone up by $2 during the OPEC meeting, announced increases of $1.45 to $2.85 a barrel effective Jan. 1. The boosts lift Indonesia's top price to $30.75, 75 cents above the price charged by OPEC militants Nigeria, Algeria and Libya for their high-grade oil.

Indonesia accounts for about 5 percent of OPEC's production and about 2 percent of U.S. oil needs.

The price increases announced before and during the oil ministers' session may add up to a dime to the price of a gallon of gasoline or heating oil in the United States.

Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani denied in Paris Thursday his country has decided to raise its price by $2 in February.

"No decision has been taken," Sheikh Yamani said.

Although Yamani had pledged at the OPEC session in Caracas, Venezuela, to keep his country's $24-a-barrel price "at least through January," he said Thursday that "oil price increases are determined by the market, and Saudi oil prices are currently below those prevailing on the international market."

Police Stage Sickout In Contract Dispute

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Nearly all city police officers scheduled to work called in sick today in a dispute over a proposed work contract, leaving a skeleton crew on duty in this casino resort.

About 90 percent of the officers on the first shift failed to report for work this morning, said Pierre Hollingsworth, the Public Works commissioner.

He said state police were providing assistance, but he refused to say how many officers from either the city or the state actually were on duty today.

The job action came after a judge ordered an end to picketing by off-duty policemen that had snarled traffic into the island city Thursday.

The officers are protesting the city's offer of a 10 percent increase in wages and benefits.

Patrolman Daniel Varley, president of the local Policemen's Benevolent Association, said only five officers reported for the midnight to 8 a.m. shift and that only two remained on the job.

Hollingsworth, temporarily in charge of the police department while the regular police chief is vacationing, said security in the city of 43,000 people was in jeopardy. "It's gotten out of hand," he said.

He said the city would got to court today to seek an end to the sickout.

The latest protest began Thursday night when 98 percent of the 55 officers scheduled to work failed to report, Varley said.

He said the union would not order the officers to halt the job action unless a court order were issued. "We're adamant in our position. We have to stand up for our rights," he said.

On Thursday, more than 100 off-duty policemen carrying placards had set up "informational picket lines" on six major access roads, slowing traffic into the island city for several hours. They also picketed City Hall.

On two of the highways, witnesses said, policemen in civilian clothes stopped traffic by parking their private cars and vans on the roadway and pretending their vehicles had broken down. The officers denied they stopped traffic.

Atlantic City's two operating casinos, the only legal casinos on the East Coast, reported that they had not been affected by the police protest.

The picketing ended Thursday after after Superior Court Judge Gerald Weinstein issued an injunction limiting the number of picketing officers and banning further interference with traffic.

Varley said the job actions would continue until at least Jan. 2, when negotiations are scheduled between city officials and the union.

He said officers were angry at the city's 10 percent across-the-board wage offer, made Wednesday, which would give four-year policemen $16,291 a year in 1980.

He said veteran firemen, who recently signed a new contract, will earn $17,750 next year and $19,500 a year by mid-1981.

Man Waives Arraignment

A 41-year-old Chicago man waived arraignment today while his wife continued to fight extradition on charges they attempted to pay for the murder of a Lubbock man.

Lubbock attorney Travis Shelton appeared for Vaso V. Mraovic before 137th District Court Judge Robert Wright and said his client waived arraignment on the charge of solicitation of capital murder.

Ann R. Mraovic, 69, also of Chicago, continues to fight extradition, Judge Wright noted.

The Mraovics are accused of offering a 35-year-old Jordanian living in Chicago $150,000 to kill Mrs. Mraovic's son-in-law, Arthur Boldt of Lubbock, in a dispute over the late Lillian Boldt's will.

Mraovic was freed on $250,000 bond after his Dec. 1 arrest, when he allegedly paid the Jordanian $3,500 for the purchase of a gun and silencer.

He was arrested at the Holiday Inn at 66th Street and Avenue H by Texas Rangers and officials of the criminal district attorney's office.

HuntContinues For Suspect

Police today were still searching for a 19-year-old Lubbock man wanted for allegedly using the birth records of a dead man to obtain a driver's license, an ID card and to open a checking account at a local bank.

Michael Alan Moore of 5520 58th St., Apt. 219, has been charged with tampering with government records for allegedly using the name of 24-year-old Carroll Landon Peters to get a license, identification card and open the account, according to police detective Tommy Wilbanks.

Peters was killed in a truck accident near Fort Stockton Oct. 28.

Wilbanks said Moore so far has written more than $600 worth of bogus checks on the account in the name of Peters at Southwest Lubbock National Bank. Officials said the only deposit made on the account was an initial $50.

Guilty Plea Entered In City Drug Case

A Lubbock man indicted last June by a federal grand jury on a drug ring conspiracy charge has pleaded guilty in state court to possession of cocaine and was given a 10-year probated sentence.

Bobbie Ledbetter of 5524 Grinnell St. pleaded guilty to possession of a controlled substance, penalty group No. 1, a first-degree felony, in a transfer of his case from federal to state court, Criminal District Attorney John T. Montford said.

Ledbetter was sentenced Thursday by 140th District Court Judge William R. Shaver.

Commission Issues Hearing Subpoenas

DALLAS (AP) — The U.S. Consumer Products Commission, which was blocked by the courts from inspecting a cable car ride that fell at the State Fair of Texas, has issued more than 20 subpoenas for a Jan. 7 hearing on the fatal accident.

One person was killed and 17 others were injured when two gondolas on the Swiss Sky Ride fell about 65 feet into the midway crowd at the fair Oct. 21.

Commission attorney Eric Stone said in Washington Wednesday that the subpoenas were issued to persons "involved in the manufacture, control, distribution and retailing of the ride."

The hearing is designed to gain information about the accident and to determine if the commission has jurisdiction to inspect the ride.

Fair officials refused to allow commission officials to inspect the ride.

Asian Neighbors Feel Impact Of China's Economy

By WILLIAM J. HOLSTEIN

HONG KONG (UPI) — China's neighbors are beginning to feel the stirring of an economic giant.

One year after Peking opened diplomatic relations with Washington and nearly two years after it launched its modernization drive, the impact of China's emergence from three decades of isolation is being felt throughout Asia, a UPI survey shows.

"It is having a very deep impact," one Hong Kong-based China analyst said. "It is nothing sudden, but China is here to stay."

China's decision to develop its textile, electronics and similar labor-intensive industries threatens those same industries in Hong Kong, Taiwan, Singapore, South Korea and India.

At the same time, China's outward look offers new opportunities to Asian nations that can provide desperately needed technology and expertise. Japan, Hong Kong and Singapore are the leaders in this field.

A third impact of China's emergence is on raw materials. China is both buying and selling large quantities of sugar, rubber, palm oil and other unprocessed materials and this is beginning to alter some of Asia's traditional trade patterns.

Experts specializing in China's foreign trade say it's impossible to say whether all of this is good or bad. They point out that it is still very early in China's drive to transform itself into a modern industrial power and it is unclear just how long Peking's current policies will prevail.

"Another problem in predicting how this will work out is that whenever China has been strong in the past there haven't been any other real major economies in the region," one foreign trade specialist said.

"Now you have a whole series of economic powers in the region: the Japanese, ASEAN (Association of Southeast Asian Nations) and even the lingering U.S. presence. This has never really happened before and it's hard to tell how it will turn out."

Singapore, South Korea, Taiwan and Hong Kong, which China refers to as the "four tigers" of Asia, all are taking steps to upgrade their economies because of the competitive threat posed by China.

Each of the four began their post-war economic success stories by dominating labor-intensive industries such as textiles, toys, shoes, TV sets, radios and similar fields.

But now China is moving into precisely the same industries, undercutting the prices of its four Asian neighbors because China's labor costs are only a fraction of what they are in those other nations.

To upgrade Singapore's industrial base, Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew's government in August kicked off a new industrial policy requiring 20 percent pay increases for unskilled workers to attract more sophisticated industries.

South Korea has increased the minimum for any foreign investment from $200,000 to $500,000 in an attempt to draw in more high technology industries.

Taipei officials say Taiwan's export of textiles and plastic shoes already have been hurt by cheaper Chinese products. To counter the challenge, Taiwan has built a science park in Hsinchu, south of Taipei, and is pushing a three-stage plan to develop its automobile industry.

Hong Kong, perched on the southern underbelly of China, has been famous for its "sweat shop" factories churning out cheap products. Now the British colony is turning to semiconductors, computers and silicon chips to meet the Chinese competition. Whereas it used to make sweatshirts, Hong Kong now produces designer dresses and haute couture.

Even India is feeling the sharp edge of Chinese competition, although there are no signs New Delhi is taking action to compensate.

Although China poses a trade threat to some of its neighbors, at the same time it provides a vast market for machinery, processed goods and other kinds of more advanced products it cannot yet make in large enough quantities.

Singapore and Hong Kong, which traditionally have looked to the West for their major trading partners, find themselves increasingly drawn into the China trade.

Singaporean companies have sold video tubes and tape recorder parts for China's fledgling electronics industry, taken orders for more than 200,000 television sets and sold pre-fabricated steelwork and drilling rigs for China's oil industry.

Similarly, Hong Kong Chinese are building factories, tourist resorts, roads, fast food stands and luxury apartments on the mainland while at the same time providing crucial shipping, financial and communication links with the world.

Singapore and Hong Kong also are competing to serve as bases for Western assaults on the China market, attracting dozens of new bank, oil company, textile and other executives. Taiwan and South Korea have been largely left out because of politics.

Of all Asian countries, however, Japan has by far the most advanced — and complex — relationship with China.

Japan, almost entirely dependent on imports for its energy, is rushing into the China trade far ahead of its Western partners, in large part to guarantee itself coal and oil.

Japan has just agreed to extend a $1.5 billion loan to China for six major projects, four of which are for rail and port facilities to move coal to Japan, and to help prospect for oil in the relatively shallow waters of Bohai Gulf.

Japan also has pledged to lower the tariffs on Chinese goods being sold in Japan, which has sparked fears among other Asian nations that their own products will be pushed out of the lucrative Japanese market.

Members of ASEAN also have voiced concern that Japan's ties with China will divert loans and investments away from them, but this has yet to happen.

While some ASEAN countries could be hurt by Japan's domination of the China trade, they also enjoy increased demand for their products as a result of China's emergence.

The Chinese are buying large quantities of sugar, copper and coconut oil from the Philippines, palm oil, rubber and timber from Malaysia; rice, maize and rubber from Thailand; and wheat, sugar and iron ore from Australia.

To earn money to pay for its imports, China in turn has expanded its oil diplomacy, sending crude to Japan, the Philippines, Singapore, Hong Kong and Thailand.

But the oil is not likely to be enough to pay for all the goods China needs for its modernization and Peking is expected to find itself battling trade deficits with most of its Asian trading partners. The U.S. Commerce Department estimates that China's imports will grow 20 percent a year through 1985, compared with a 12.5 percent increase in its exports.

Although the impact of China's emergence still is difficult to assess, analysts are agreed that it will leave a lasting impression on the Asian economy.

"The whole thing is going to be a lot more multi-sided than ever before," the Hong Kong expert said. "It will be a lot more difficult for any one country to dominate it. The Chinese are going to have a lot more trade with Asia and we'll never be the same as a result."

Woman Must Pay Cost Of Filing Suit

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A federal judge has ruled that a woman who has no job, no car and supports herself and two children on a $151-a-month welfare check is not a pauper because she spends more than a third of her monthly income to rent a color television.

Donna Dodson had sued the rental company claiming it failed to adequately inform her of the terms of the rental contract and asked that the $60 filing fee be waived.

U.S. District Judge Richard B. Kellam ruled that "a person who can afford to pay $1,242 for rental of a color TV set for 23 months is able to pay the cost of filing a suit."

New Radio Telescope Aiding Astronomers

By JOHN A. WEBSTER

MAGDALENA, N.M. (UPI) — The world's largest radio telescope system, sprouting like a field of giant mushrooms on a high remote plain, is still a year away from dedication, but already is giving astronomers hints about the nature of the universe.

The "Very Large Array" is radio astronomy's solution to the problem of improving the resolution and sensitivity of detectors of faint cosmic radio signals without building an impractically huge single antenna.

Optical telescopes can achieve a resolution comparable to seeing a nickel 20 miles away with a lens 200 inches in diameter. A radio antenna would have to be thousands of times that big to obtain the same clarity because of differences in the frequency and wavelength of light and radio signals.

The effect of an immense single receiver is simulated by the VLA arrangement, in which 27 antennas are placed in a Y-shaped pattern along three equiangular arms 11.8-13 miles long.

While an object is being tracked, the VLA computer compares the signal received by one antenna with that detected by other antennas. A total of 351 checks are made for each signal. The rotation of the Earth allows an object to be fully "mapped" during an eight-hour period.

"If we track for eight hours, we have the same resolution as we would with a single telescope 26 miles in diameter," said VLA spokesman Jonathan Spargo. "It is at least as accurate as the best optical telescope."

Although the VLA will not be dedicated officially until late 1980 or early 1981, its antennas have been used to gather information since the first one was turned on in mid-1976.

Earlier this year, scientists from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology using VLA data announced the possible discovery of the first double quasar — mysterious celestial objects that seem to be emitting more energy than possible for their apparent size and distance.

The MIT group said studies of the interactions between the two apparent objects could provide more information about quasars, which in turn could be helpful in understanding the formation of the universe.

Besides tuning in on quasars, considered among the most remote objects in space, the VLA has been used to investigate much closer objects in the solar system and the galaxy in which it is located, the Milky Way.

The array has been used to study the galactic nucleus, supernovae, dust and gas clouds and black holes — objects with such powerful gravity that nothing escapes.

The "Y" of the array is defined by railroad tracks, along which the 212-ton, 94-foot-tall antennas, each topped with a receiving "dish" 82 feet in diameter, are moved to various positions. Each arm of the "Y" contains nine antennas and 24 positions where they can be anchored.

The VLA, operated by the National Radio Astronomy Observatory and funded by the government, is laid out across the 7,000-foot Plains of San Agustin in southwestern New Mexico.

The location was chosen for several reasons — the relatively low latitude permits observation of most of the sky, the terrain is flat, the soil is stable enough to support the huge antennas, the remoteness diminishes man-made interference with radio reception and the high altitude eliminates about 25 percent of the atmospheric water vapor, which causes such effects as the "twinkling" of stars.

NY Farmers See Signs Of Cold Winter

POTSDAM, N.Y. (AP) — It's going to be a hard winter, according to St. Lawrence County farmers who read the behavior of Canada geese, beavers, squirrels and corn husks.

Mildred Jenkins, who runs a farm near here with her husband, Harold, says farmers also expect deep snow during the season, which officially began at 6:10 a.m. Saturday.

Corn husks in her fields were heavy this harvest, a sure sign of a hard winter, said Mrs. Jenkins.

Th husks were also high up on the stalks, nature's way of seeing to it that birds find food above the snow level, she said.

In addition, unusually large flocks of Canada geese winged their way south a bit earlier than normal, Mrs. Jenkins said. That means an early arrival of bitter cold.

Farmers also told Mrs. Jenkins that they had observed squirrels putting up a lot of nuts, "getting ready for a long, winter. The farmers said squirrels worked hard all fall doing that."

Beavers build their lodges high if the winter is going to be harsh, Mrs. Jenkins said. They do that, farmers say, because in the spring the melting snow would flood their homes.

"The hunters said the beavers have built them high this year," Mrs. Jenkins said.

Once winter's cold sets in to stay, there are several signs farmers use to tell just how cold a given day will be, she said. One is to keep an eye on what pigs do.

"It will be a very cold night if the pigs bury deep into their bed after supper."

Of course, farmers also want to know when to expect a thaw, Mrs. Jenkins said. One way to do that is to keep an eye on a horse. "If your horse is yawning, they say it means a thaw is coming."

County Faces Delay In Use Of New Jail

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Although the construction of Lubbock County's new jail is scheduled to be completed by late February, it probably will be several weeks after that before any inmates are moved into the facility.

County architect Arnold Maeker advised commissioners today that before prisoners are placed in the jail, all jailers must be adequately trained to use the new electronic equipment that controls the movements of inmates within the jail. Maeker also said the equipment must be thoroughly checked out to be sure it is functioning properly.

"We've got to be sure we're ready when we move the inmates over," Maeker stressed.

According to the architect, jailers will face a totally new concept in the soon-to-be-completed jail. In the old jail, guards have had to manually open doors whenever they move prisoners from their cells.

Moving prisoners will be much safer in the new jail facility, Maeker observed. Electronic equipment will enable a jailer to move prisoners from one place to another simply by punching buttons on a console. When prisoners are moved from their cells, they will be monitored over closed circuit televisions located at the console.

However, it may take some time to train jailers to operate the electronic consoles. "It will almost be like stepping into the cockpit of a 747," Maeker commented.

So far, two training sessions have been conducted to familiarize jailers with the concept and layout of the new facility. Maeker said additional training sessions are planned on the local level.

Also, he has tentatively set a special training program for Feb. 22 to be conducted by Guy Van Cleve of the Colorado Criminal Justice Department. Van Cleve formerly was the executive officer for the Texas Jail Standards Commission.

In other business this morning, commissioners approved a $5 increase in the hourly rate paid to jail architects Maeker and Ed Stephens. The hourly rate will go from $30 to $35 beginning Jan. 1.

Maeker said this rate increase probably will amount to an additional $5,000 on the cost of the jail during 1980.

Also today, commissioners reappointed two members of the Lubbock County Hospital District board, but failed to come up with any new members for that board.

Wayne Smith and Gwen Stafford were reappointed to two-year terms beginning Jan. 14. Commissioners are still searching for persons to fill vacancies created by the October resignation of former board Chairman Jack Strong and the planned January retirement by current Chairman Joe Stanley.

Police Obstruct Traffic, Court

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — On Atlantic Avenue, in the city that gave the Monopoly board its street names, striking policemen put a stuffed dummy under the hood of a stalled car to foul up traffic. All over town, there were traffic jams "as far as the eye could see."

Police officers in the East Coast casino city began a massive sick-out Thursday despite a judge's order barring them from striking over a wage dispute in their new contract.

Members of the Policeman's Benevolent Association Local 24, who were scheduled to report for late afternoon shifts Thursday, began calling in sick after Atlantic County Superior Court Judge Gerald Weinstein imposed a temporary injunction against a strike.

"It's a sick-out and it has affected the entire department," said Sgt. Nolan Murray. Telephone calls to the department's public number went unanswered Thursday evening.

Murray said officers who had been on the job prior to the sick-out were kept for further duty, but could only be required to man their posts for up to 16 hours.

Compounding matters Thursday were promises made by two other major city unions — The Teamsters and the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees — that should their present contracts be allowed to expire on Dec. 31 without a new settlement, the city would be hit with a general strike on Jan. 3.

PBA President Daniel Varley said the patrolmen were "disgusted with the city" but had decided to stage the sick-out independently of the union.

The department has about 271 officers, but it was not known how many of them participated in the sick-out.

The city won the temporary injunction from Weinstein after police officers testified that "informational picket lines" set up at all six major entrances to the gaming town at 6 a.m. Thursday created traffic jams lasting up to one hour "for as far as the eye could see."

Local 24's decision to hold the job action and set up the picket lines came after union members rejected a 10 percent across-the-board pay hike offered by the city late Wednesday.

The officers, who earn base pay just under $15,000, said they want increases comparable to raises awarded to the city firefighters earlier this month. Firefighters were given raises of over 20 percent.

The city claimed it could not grant higher raises or benefits because of the state-mandated limits or "caps" on municipal budgets.

Wearing signs and walking in the roadways, up to 150 off-duty and vacationing policemen took part in the Thursday morning job action. The pickets used cars or trucks driven by supporting Teamsters to narrow traffic to one lane on thoroughfares leading into the city.

Under Weinstein's order, the policemen will be allowed to put only two pickets at each city entrance and will be forbidden from causing any traffic disruption.

Weinstein also ordered a special negotiating session be scheduled for Jan. 2 to resolve the issue.

Guardsmen On Duty In Kansas City staffed by firefighters still working, city officials said.

"How long do you expect the city to take this?" Teasdale challenged firefighters as he urged them to resume bargaining.

Local 42 of the International Association of Firefighters has continued the slowdown despite a judge's temporary restraining order issued Monday.

Police have been on 12-hour shifts since Friday, when the firefighters' contract expired and the work slowdown began. The firefighters initially refused to work non-emergency overtime, but Wednesday they also began refusing to conduct inspections or attend training classes.

Mayor Richard Berkley acknowledged that police efforts cannot measure up to experienced firefighters.

"It is certainly suffering," Berkley said of fire protection in this Midwest city of 500,000. "We'd be less than candid if we didn't acknowledge that."

The union remained silent Thursday, despite an ultimatum from City Manager Robert Kipp that it accept the city's final offer by 5 p.m.

Firefighters are seeking an immediate 20 percent pay raise to go with a city plan for a 48-hour work week. The city has offered a 19.3 percent raise over two years. Base pay for firefighters now ranges from $12,132 to $17,982 for a 40-hour week.

Cost of the fire dispute has been estimated at about $100,000 a day. An ordinance to pay about $70,000 a day in police overtime has been introduced in the City Council and state officials estimated Guard expenses will exceed $26,000 a day.

Fuel Crisis Labeled Threat To Nation

WASHINGTON (AP) — A panel of energy experts says the energy situation in the United States is at a crisis level and poses a major threat to national security.

Charles Ebinger, director of the Energy and National Security Program at Georgetown University, called this week for the United States to promptly cut petroleum consumption. One step he urged to reduce consumption was raising gasoline prices to $2 to $3 a gallon. The U.S. energy situation "is a major national security threat," Ebinger said, "and it is time to stop playing politics with it."

Students Set New Appeal

WASHINGTON (AP) — An appeals court has cleared the way for the deportation of some Iranian students as part of America's retaliation for the seizure of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

But a lawyer for three students who challenged President Carter's order singling out Iranians for immigration checks says he will carry the fight to the Supreme Court unless he gets a rehearing.

A three-member panel of the U.S. Court of Appeals on Thursday ruled Carter's Nov. 10 order was constitutional and that it was "a fundamental element of the president's efforts to resolve the Iranian crisis."

Attorney Eric M. Lieberman said he will ask the full, nine-member court to hear the case because of "this very important issue."

The appeals judges overturned an order by U.S. District Judge Joyce Hens Green, who had found the order an understandable effort to retaliate against Iran but "one that does not support a legitimate national interest."

The judges chastised Mrs. Green for going "beyond an acceptable judicial role" in attempting to evaluate policy reasons for the order.

"Certainly in a case such as the one presented here, it is not the business of courts to pass judgment on the decisions of the president in the field of foreign policy," the appeals court ruled.

"Judges are not expert in that field and they lack the information necessary for the formation of an opinion," the ruling said.

Britain, West Germany Condemn Soviet Move

to diplomats in New Delhi, India, the Russians fought Afghan troops guarding Radio Kabul, knocked out two Afghan tanks, captured the complex and took soldiers prisoner in 3½ hours of battles that ended at 11 p.m. with MiG-21 warplanes criss-crossing the skies.

"It was the largest Soviet troop movement outside Eastern Europe since World War II," one source said of the influx of Russian troops. "You can see it almost as a Soviet invasion of Afghanistan — taking Kabul and then putting their man in power."

The British government condemned the Soviet intervention and said "the people of Afghanistan have the right to choose their own government without outside interference." Opposition Labor Party lawmaker Neville Sanderson called the coup "naked Soviet aggression."

The West German government condemned Soviet involvement as "an extremely serious matter which raises basic questions of international relations."

Karmal was immediately declared Afghanistan's president and general secretary of the central committee of the ruling Khalq Party and named his cronies to important positions.

The coup was the third in 20 months in the landlocked, mountainous Central Asian nation that borders Moslem fundamentalist Iran on the west, and for the moment it entrenched Karmal, a former deputy premier variously described by Western diplomats as a Soviet "puppet" or "stooge."

Diplomatic sources in Prague, Czechoslovakia, said Karmal had apparently been in Czechoslovakia last Saturday, had recently been in Moscow and returned to Afghanistan in secret.

Amin, the man he replaced, also was a pro-Soviet communist who grabbed power in a palace shootout in September that killed his pro-Soviet predecessor, Nur Mohammed Taraki. But Radio Kabul said Amin was executed almost immediately after Thursday's coup on orders of a revolutionary tribunal for "crimes against the people of Afghanistan."

The broadcast also said members of Amin's family were killed and that those "responsible for crimes committed against the people by members of Amin's fascist regime will be brought to justice," indicating bloody mass purges will take place in the next few days in the Afghan capital.

Although Soviet troops were already in Afghanistan in force, Radio Kabul said after the coup that the Kremlin swiftly agreed to meet an urgent appeal from Karmal's new government for "political, moral, economic and military assistance ... to restore normalcy and to repel an external threat."

Western diplomatic sources said the "external threat" probably reflected Kabul and Moscow's claim that the Moslem rebels in Afghanistan's 20-month-old civil war are backed by Pakistan, China and the United States, and that Amin and his men were "agents of U.S. imperialism."

U.S. officials in Washington estimated that the Soviet Union airlifted 200 planeloads of soldiers into Kabul this week and that Soviet military strength in Afghanistan had reached 10,000 troops, about double the number previously believed in the Central Asian nation.

A recent U.S. intelligence appraisal said although Amin welcomed Soviet help in putting down Afghanistan's Moslem rebels, he wanted his nation to remain a truly independent state, and that this led to strained relations between Moscow and Kabul in recent months.

The Soviets are widely believed to have fostered the April 1978 coup that ousted Afghanistan's non-aligned government and brought Taraki to power, and they are reported determined to prevent the Moslem rebels from ousting an atheist Marxist regime on Russia's doorstep.

Moslems are expected to make up a majority of the Soviet population within the next 25 years, and the Russians apparently fear if the Moslems in Afghanistan and Iran have their way there will be a "ripple effect" of unrest among restive Soviet Moslems.

Diplomatic sources describe the man the Russians handpicked to run the new Kabul regime as soft-spoken and a firm friend of the Kremlin. They said Karmal is in his 50s and is the son of an Afghan army general.

An Asian diplomat familiar with Afghanistan's politics, said Karmal is closer to Soviet leaders than Amin was but probably would be more willing to modify the Marxist economics Amin was forcing on the country.

Karmal was known to diplomats as a Marxist in 1966, when as a member of the Afghanistan parliament he was involved in a fight that landed him in the hospital.

His Parch Party was the only Marxist group that supported the 1973 overthrow of King Zahir Shah by non-aligned President Mohammed Daoud, but his followers joined forces with Taraki when Daoud banned political parties in 1977.

Taraki and Karmal formed the underground Democratic Khalq Party, a pro-Moscow Marxist-Leninist group whose military commissar, Amin, successfully recruited key elements of the armed forces.

Spy Trial Threats Renewed By Iran

tion of the council will be different, and this is not acceptable to us.

"If the United States continues to put pressure on us ... I don't see any usefulness in having this grand jury. It is better to have the normal trial of the hostages," he said.

Ghotbzadeh has been pushing a proposal to convene an international "grand jury" to hear Iranian grievances against the United States, with the hostages appearing before it as witnesses, but "not as the accused."

He put forward the plan after the Shah of Iran left the United States for sanctuary in Panama, a move he saw as a victory for Iranian determination. The Iranian militants who seized the U.S. Embassy in Tehran Nov. 4 have demanded the shah be returned for trial or all the captives would be tried as spies.

Before they left Iran, the clergymen, who met with 43 of the hostages, urged conciliation on both sides to end the 55-day-old U.S.-Iranian standoff.

The clergymen arrived in the United States Thursday night and said they would relay messages from the hostages to their families today. They also planned to discuss the situation with American and Iranian officials in Washington.

"We must find subtle enough overtures of good will to be signs of some movement, without suggesting a giveaway," the Rev. William Howard, a Baptist from Princeton University, told reporters in Tehran.

Howard was joined on the three-day mission by the Revs. William Sloane Coffin and Thomas Gumbleton. But it was Howard who saw the largest number of hostages — 21 — at the occupied embassy compound on Christmas Day.

He told reporters 10 of the captives were "clearly rebellious spirits," who "said sort of snappy things to their guards (and) let it be known their will had not been broken.

"They said things like 'What do these guys (the militants) know?'" Howard said after his rare glimpse behind the guarded embassy walls.

For example, he noted that the militants barred their captives from any political discussion with the visitors, but "one guy said (to the guards) 'Can I ask a question about the Rose Bowl, or is it too political for you?'"

Howard, who did not name any of the hostages he saw, said five or six of them "might have had teary eyes, some signs of worry."

Gumbleton, the auxiliary Roman Catholic bishop of Detroit, said the two woman hostages, Katherine Koob and Elizabeth Ann Swift, apparently were being held in solitary confinement, but were very strong.

When our meeting was over, the women walked back to their detention areas singing carols, he recalled.

The militants at the embassy refused to confirm or deny a report that the Khomeini regime had "suggested" three hostages of Mexican, Indian and Portugese descent be released. Told of the report, a spokesman for the militants reacted angrily and said any such information would have to come from them.

There was no explanation for the ethnic breakdown. Judging from the names on a list of hostages compiled unofficially, those fitting the description include Marines William Gallegos of Pueblo, Colo., Michael Lopez of Globe, Ariz., and Frederick Lee Kupke of Meers, Okla., who is part Kiowa Indian.

President Carter cut short his Christmas holiday in Camp David, Md., today and returned to Washington for White House meetings with top advisers on Iran and other foreign policy matters.

Lawyers To Aid Arthur Christy

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two New York City lawyers will assist special prosecutor Arthur Christy in his investigation of allegations that White House Chief of Staff Hamilton Jordan used cocaine at the Studio 54 discotheque.

Christy said Thursday he has named to his staff Stephen Greiner, 35, a partner in th Willkie, Farr and Gallagher law firm, and Arthur Nealon, 33, a member of the Barthold and McGuire law firm.

Christy has already appointed James Lavin as the chief attorney in the probe.

The special prosecutor's post was created by a three-judge court to investigate allegations that Jordan sniffed cocaine during a June 1978 visit to the chic Studio 54 discotheque.

Jordan has denied the charges.

Iranian Students Report Financial Hardships

By PETER ARNETT
Associated Press Writer

With its oil millions and grand westernization schemes, Iran has been a fertile ground for United States university recruiters. But the new revolutionary regime is turning the clock back, and some of the more than 50,000 Iranian students in America are starting to feel the squeeze.

"I'm beginning to sell off my stuff because the checks are not arriving so regularly from home," declared Said Bjabbari, 22, a third-year student in international relations at the University of Southern California. A total of 900 Iranians are studying at USC.

"The financial squeeze is hurting us more than local reaction to the hostage crisis," Bjabbari said, echoing comments from students and officials at campuses around the country.

The crisis over Americans being held at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran has prompted President Carter to order deportation proceedings against Iranian students in this country illegally. The U.S. Court of Appeals on Thursday upheld Carter's Nov. 10 order.

The large majority of Iranian students in the United States came from the well-heeled middle class who could afford the $10,000 and up annual costs.

California colleges are estimated to have about 10,000 Iranians. Texas also has many. Iranians are by far the largest group among the 240,000 foreign students in the United States, and are here because under the shah, a western education was considered important.

Few have Iranian government scholarships, "less than five," according to Hussein Ava, press officer at the Iranian Embassy in Washington, D.C.

However, the regime of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini continues to pay for the training of its air force and navy pilots and technicians at American military bases, with the monthly $827 second lieutenant's pay for navy trainees coming directly from the embassy in Washington. Pentagon sources said it takes two years to train a pilot and costs about $250,000.

Interviews with students and officials at several campuses indicated a small but discernible pattern of financial hardship.

Berthe Vonallmen, director of international student services at USC, said that some of her 900 Iranian students don't have money.

"We have allowed five of them to borrow money for rent from our emergency loan fund, and we have a deferred tuition plan to help them continue their education," she said.

The Bee County College at Beeville, has 32 Iranian students, "but only two so far have indicated they have financial troubles," said George Elam, the dean of student services.

"In some student bank accounts they have from three to four thousand dollars," Elam said, adding that checks have recently been arriving from Iran "in the few hundreds of dollars, and all are paying their bills."

Some students said they have friends who have already returned to Tehran because of the financial squeeze. One factor was President Carter's decision to freeze all Iranian assets in the United States, leading to check-cashing difficulties for the students until the Treasury Department freed funds for their use.

The Immigration Department has been allowing some students to work 20 days a month to relieve hardship situations.

But another factor is the decreasing flow of cash from home.

"After the shah left Iran a lot of property was confiscated by the new authorities," said Ira M. Margolis, a New York immigration lawyer whose firm has more than 100 Iranian clients.

"Consequently money for some of my student clients has become tight, even though they had plenty when they arrived here," Margolis said. "Many students' parents are not pro-government, and their lives have been made more difficult by the present regime."

The new authorities in Tehran have already asked some graduate students to return home to assist in governing the country. The Iranian Embassy press spokesman Hussein Ava said some students in America were planning to relocate to India "where education is just as good but much cheaper."

Some students are immune from outside financial pressures because their families have already moved themselves and their money to the United States. They are among the estimated one million Iranians living in America today.

TIE A YELLOW RIBBON — Mrs. Wynona McKeel ties a yellow ribbon around her old oak tree at her home in Balch Springs in anticipation of her son, Johnny McKeel Jr., a hostage in the American embassy in Tehran, coming home again. Mrs. McKeel said a relative of another hostage in Washington, D.C., came up with the idea of the ribbons recently, and when Mrs. McKeel heard about it, she immediately went to her tree, ribbon in hand. American Believes 'Missing' Hostages Fled U.S. Embassy

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — An American who claims he fled the U.S. Embassy at the time of the Iranian student takeover says the "missing" hostages escaped with him and are probably hiding in Tehran.

Kim King, 26, of Clatskanie, Ore., said Thursday night this was why three ministers saw only 43 people when they conducted Christmas services at the embassy despite earlier reports listing 50 Americans held in Tehran.

"It was the only logical thing I could come up with," King told UPI.

In Washington, a spokesman for the State Department Iran working group said it could not confirm or deny King's claim.

"It is quite possible. We cannot confirm it or deny it because we just don't know," said Merton L. Bland. "To the best of our knowledge and belief there are 50 people in that embassy or who should be in that embassy.

"We can't shoot down any flight of fancy," he said. "Some suggest some (hostages) were mad at their captors and did not want to come out that night (of the Christmas services). We have no way of knowing. We are not in that embassy."

King, who spent six months living in Iran before the takeover and made friends with a number of Iranian officials, said he was in the embassy on Nov. 4 when the students attacked. He said he saw eight other Americans, including two Marines and a woman, leave the building as he fled through a back door during the three-hour siege leading to the takeover.

"I snuck out the back door and left through an alleyway," he said.

King said he finally managed to get permission to leave Tehran five days after the takeover through the intervention of some friends in the police department and by paying an $800 fine.

He said the woman he saw flee was not among those released by the Iranians when they let women and blacks at the embassy leave the country. He said he had not seen or heard of the other seven who fled with him in any of the news reports or pictures about those still held in the embassy.

King said the seven men who fled with him could be the difference between the 43 seen by the ministers and the 50 listed as held.

King declined to give any names, saying the eight apparently were still in hiding in Tehran.

He said he thinks it is tougher for those who escaped and are still in Iran than those held in the embassy.

"They could be more emotionally depressed than those held," he said.

King said he became aware during his time in Iran talking to people who spoke English that there was a hostile feeling toward the Americans and that embassy officials should have been aware of this and prepared for an attack.

"Anybody who had a lick of sense should know what was going to happen," he said.

KEEP ON TRIKIN' — Only a few days before Christmas, it looked like 9-year-old Mark wouldn't get the tricycle he wanted. Instead, he got 13 three-wheelers and will share them with some of Dallas County's 500 other foster children. Mark is one of eight foster children living with Charles and Birdie Jackson in their Dallas home. The couple didn't have enough money for a present like a trike for Mark. When their story appeared in a newspaper, readers responded with 13 new tricycles, a wagon, groceries and other items and the family is sharing some of their Yule blessings. (AP Laserphoto)

Judge Orders Trial For Hobbs Official

By KIMBERLY PALMER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

After a preliminary hearing Thursday in Hobbs, N.M., a Lea County magistrate ruled the former director of Mental Health and Mental Retardation centers in Lubbock and Corpus Christi should be brought to trial on a fraud charge.

Magistrate Drayton Wasson found probable cause for Ronald V. Whittington, 36, of Hobbs, to be tried on the charge of fraud in excess of $2,500. Whittington, a special education counselor for the Hobbs municipal school system, probably will be arraigned in two to three weeks, according to Ernie Carroll, senior assistant district attorney in Lovington.

Whittington, who remained in Lea County Jail Thursday evening in lieu of $25,000 bond, was arrested Nov. 26 by Lea County officials on the fraud charge after being arrested earlier in the day by Curry County officials on the charge of possession of stolen property in excess of $2,500. Curry County officials had released Whittington on $5,000 bond.

The Lea County district attorney's office filed the fraud charge against Whittington afer a search of his Hobbs residence uncovered items the psychologist had reported stolen in an Aug. 8 burglary, Carroll said. Reports indicate Whittington had filed insurance claims in Hobbs totaling between $4,000 and $5,000 to recover his alleged loss.

Clovis District Attorney Bill Bonham said Thursday that any action his office takes depends on what Waco authorities decide to do.

"According to New Mexico law, we cannot prosecute a person for possession of stolen property," Bonham said. "We would have to prosecute them for the actual theft of the property, which in this case, reportedly happened in Waco."

"I would have no problem in letting Waco authorities prosecute Whittington," Bonham said.

But Randall Rogers of the Waco District Attorney's office said any action his office would take against Whittington would depend on the outcome of Lea County proceedings. Whittington was director of Corpus Christi's MHMR center from 1975 to 1977, and headed Lubbock's center from August 1977 to 1978.

New Mexico law enforcement officials have recovered more than $250,000 worth of property in connection with the incident. Several of the items, which include a first printing of the United States Constitution valued at more than $150,000, two copies of the 1787 "Federalist Papers," a hand-written joke reportedly written by Abraham Lincoln, as well as a silver tea service and several guns, match the description of items reported as stolen from Waco and Austin.

Two oil paintings, valued at $15,000 a piece, also were among the items police have recovered.

One of the paintings, a Porfirio Salinas materpiece entitled, "Texas Cactus," was reported stolen from the Student Union at Baylor University in Waco in 1976. The other landscape, a Robert Wood original of the Guadalupe River was reported stolen sometime in the early 70s from Southwestern University in Gerogetown, Bonham said.

Don Svet, assistant U.S. Attorney in Albuquerque, said his office currently was reviewing the case and would decide sometime in the next two weeks whether federal officials would join the investigation.

Officers Begin Serving Terms

HOUSTON (UPI) — Three policemen, convicted of civil rights violations in the 1977 beating and drowning of a Mexican-American man, are on their way to a minimum security federal prison in Alabama to begin serving sentences of one year and one day each.

Terry Wayne Denson, 29, Stephen Orlando, 24, and Joseph James Janish, 25, who were allowed to make the trip unescorted, were to report this afternoon to the Federal Prison Camp at Maxwell Air Force Base in Montgomery, Ala.

They were convicted Feb. 8, 1978, of felony and misdemeanor civil rights violations in the May 5, 1977 death of Joe Campos Torres, 23, in downtown Houston.

The three men, who were fired after the incident, had remained free on bond pending a prosecution appeal of their original sentences for the felony convictions, which the federal government said was too lenient.

Acting on orders from the 5th U.S. Court of Appeals in New Orleans, U.S. District Judge Ross Sterling canceled probation he had given the three on the felony count and resentenced them to one year and one day in prison.

Defense lawyer Michael Ramsey said the three spent the last few days before reporting to prison "trying to celebrate Christmas."

"It was considerably easier (to celebrate) in other years, although I'm sure all of them are happy that it's over with," Ramsey said.

"I'm looking forward to getting in and getting it over with," Denson said in a telephone interview in Palestine. "Of course, the hardest part is being separated from my family.

A prison spokesman has said the three will not be eligible for parole before serving their full sentences. But Ramsey said he expects to argue that the extension on the policemen's prison terms by one day made them eligible for early release.

Under the originl sentences — five years probation for the felony, coupled with one year actual prison time for the misdemeanor — the three could not have been released early because, Ramsey said, federal law does not allow paroles for sentences of one year or less in federal prison.

The one-year misdemeanor and year-and-a-day felony sentences will run concurrently.

Acting prison superintendent John T Stidham said they would probably be assigned to trimming shrubs, raking leaves and mowing grass at Maxwell Air Force Base.

They will live in dormitories and have ccess to educational courses, television rooms, tennis and handball courts, a weight room and a jogging path.

They also may receive weekend and holiday visits and, if judged worthy after 90 days, they will be allowed 14-hour psses for trips with their immediate families up to 50 miles from the prison.

Torres was found floating in Buffalo Bayou in downtown Houston. Under immunity from prosecution, a policeman testified Torres was arrested on a barroom complaint, beaten and then either was pushed or fell into the bayou, where he drowned.

School Lawyers Ask Denial Of Damages

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Lubbock Civil Liberties Union should be denied money damages requested in its suit against Lubbock public schools because all LCLU members have not been injured by alleged school officials' actions, school attorneys state in a document filed in federal court.

The document, which includes a statement by school district superintendent Ed Irons, supports the school district's earlier motion to deny the LCLU approximately $115,000 in compensatory and exemplary damages.

After that motion was filed, LCLU attorneys submitted a brief reasserting its right to the damages requested.

The LCLU civil rights lawsuit, brought against the schools in September, seeks a ban on all forms of religious exercises in the schools.

The plaintiffs also ask for $35,000 in damages from the superintendent and board of trustees as a body and $10,001 from each defendant.

School attorneys contend the plaintiffs lack the standing in court to receive money damages because "an action for damages requires individualized proof."

The schools' document contends that all members of the LCLU have not been injured and that injuries are not shared by each of the members equally as claimed by the plaintiff in its suit.

In support of their contention, school attorneys also submitted a statement by Irons saying that prayers and Bible readings are not conducted in all schools in the district.

Irons states that in interviews with school principals and teachers at all grade levels, he was told that some schools have never conducted such exercises and that "there are many classes where no prayer or Bible reading occur in schools where prayer and Bible reading have taken place in the past."

Attorneys contend, "Since it is almost certain that some children of the individual members of the plaintiff association have attended schools where no religious activities have been carried out, the claim that all of its members share injury in equal degree cannot be substantiated.

"In fact, it is very possible that many members of the plaintiff association have no children attending any schools within the defendant school district," the document adds.

School attorneys acknowledge that the LCLU could have the standing to sue for monetary damages for injuries suffered by the association itself "as an entity."

But they state that "the complaint of the plaintiff does not set forth any pleadings alleging that the association itself has been injured by the activities of the defendants."

The document adds that the individual participation of each injured party is "indispensable to the proper resolution of this cause" and that the school district "cannot be expected to defend against damage claims when it does not even know who the injured parties are."

Meadow Student Wins Design Contest

By RAYNIE HARDESTY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A young man attending Meadow High School has won $500 worth of home furnishings from Montgomery Ward as a regional winner of the annual Design-Your-Room contest co-sponsored by Co-Ed magazine and the department store.

Danny Gilliam, 16, is one of four regional winners selected from among 2,000 entrants across the nation for a design that incorporated "original ideas, and accommodations for present and future needs, interests and tastes."

Although the Meadow sophomore says he doesn't know exactly how he came up with the idea for his entry, "Arizona Desert," he said it took him about a month and a half to come up with a final draft.

"I just did it the way I wanted it done and the way I thought it should be," he said. "I named it after I designed it."

The young man added that many of his ideas came "from pictures of furniture I'd seen and always wanted."

Gilliam's room features a rustic look for a casual lifestyle. It uses adaptable furnishings, such as a combination bench storage chest. The item can provide extra seating and storage as well as an in-the-closet dressing and shelf area, combined with a hanging lamp and wicker stool.

After drawing his room to scale, designing it and adding versatile furniture, Gilliam felt confident he would win. "I felt like I would win," he said, adding that his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil R. Gilliam, remained skeptical until it was announced that their son had won.

Kathy Dyer, a Meadow home economics teacher who encouraged Gilliam to enter the contest, will receive $300 worth of home furnishings for her classroom.

The youth, who said he likes to be creative with his hands, also participates in high school plays and is manager of the high school's basketball team.

The other three regional winners selected from across the nation in the contest are Jennifer Lynn Merriman of Okanogan, Wash., Mary Kay Fazzino of Houston, Cindy Moling of Madison, Wis., and Patti McCarthy of Stratford, Conn.

The first place winner of the contest is 14-year-old Debbie Davenport.

Attacking Dogs Kill 5-Year-Old Child

WILLS POINT (UPI) — A 5-year-old boy, riding his Christmas bicycle near his grandfather's farm, was mauled and killed by two Great Danes.

Michael Wayne Nichols of Mesquite, the son of a Dallas policeman, was to be buried today.

The boy suffered numerous lacerations and broken bones in the attack Wednesday. Michael's grandfather, Billy Nichols, heard the boy's screams and managed to free the boy from the dogs and take him to a hospital, where he died.

The Great Danes' owner, Frank Daughtery, arrived during the attack and shot the dogs after the boy was freed.

Drinking-Driving Test Made Available

WASHINGTON (AP) — A true-false test on the risks of drinking and driving, designed primarily for new drivers, has been prepared by the U.S. Brewers Association as part of its new Alcohol Awareness Program.

The test is included in the association's leaflet on drinking and driving, being distributed by motor vehicle bureaus, law enforcement officials, state highway departments and driver education classes.

"Even though the test is aimed generally at young persons, many adults cannot give all the right answers," says George Minshew, senior vice president of the association. He suggests that parents check and discuss with family teenagers the following test statements:

TRUE OR FALSE?

— 1. All states prohibit driving under the influence of alcohol.

— 2. A 16-or 17-year-old person who commits a moving traffic violation would be treated differently than an adult offender.

— 3. By law, it is never possible for a person under 18 to be sentenced to prison.

— 4. If, while driving, you are at fault injuring someone and drive away without stopping, you may have committed a criminal offense.

— 5. If you are arrested as DWI (Driving While Intoxicated), you can lose your license and be subjected to a fine, but you cannot be imprisoned.

— 6. The highest proportion of alcohol-related accidents occur in the 21-24 age group.

— 7. If you cause an accident while driving, your car-insurance rates will not be affected.

— 8. Under certain circumstances, one drink may affect a driver's judgment, resulting in such actions as running through a red light, passing on a curve, speeding.

— 9. Consumption of alcohol by persons riding with you constitutes a public offense in many states.

— 10. If you have been drinking at a party, coffee will sober you up quickly before you drive.

ANSWERS

— 1. True.

— 2. False. Some states provide that a minor shall be treated as an adult for motor vehicle offenses.

— 3. False. A state juvenile court can determine that a minor shall be treated as an adult.

— 4. True.

— 5. False. You might be fined or imprisoned or both.

— 6. True.

— 7. False. Most insurance rates are directly and upwardly affected by an accident.

— 8. True.

— 9. True.

— 10. False. Coffee can help keep you awake, but it won't improve your judgment or sharpen your reactions.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

Women! You say you hate crowds?

You say you yearn to have time for yourself to get in touch with your feelings?

You say there are always kids underfoot and demanding husbands and you never have the house to yourself?

Have I got a solution for you.

Take down the Christmas tree.

You'll never know what isolation is until you stand in the middle of wall-to-wall pine needles and announce, "This tree has to go."

Your husband will return to work two days early. The children will return library books, visit a shut-in, get a paper route, or sign up for a meat-packing plant tour. The dog will go outside and shiver for four hours.

It's the same every year. I stand it as long as I can. Then one day I walk across the floor and realize that a careless spark from my knees rubbing together could send the entire living room up in flames.

It's amazing how, in just one short week, a Christmas tree can go from a "religious experience" to the "pits."

Those soft green branches that you buried your face in for the pine scent are now Acupuncture City. The needles that turned brown and fell to the carpet went to that big forest in the sky, taking the smoking vacuum cleaner with them.

The bird that chirped when you plugged it in, giving a light-hearted sound to Christmas, was choked to death by a mob during the first eight hours. What is left of it hangs limply from the branches, strangled by its own plug.

The cranberries and the popcorn have dropped collectively into the carpet where they take root and will continue to reproduce themselves into the shag long into summer.

The string of lights that your husband carefully placed on each bough now has no beginning or end. It has simply lost its plug and fused itself into one long strand.

Nothing comes off as easy as it went on. Even the little hooks on the bulbs cling to the branches while you are left with a hookless bulb in your hand.

Suddenly, there is a crunch under your foot. It's a pulverized candy cane. From out of the woodwork come five people all wanting a share of it.

They don't have to know it's five years old.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	1 ♠	2 ♡	Pass
5 ♣	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠.

Despite their many differences, bridge and chess do have some things in common. One is the ability to visualize your opponents' moves in advance so that you can plan countermeasures. This hand is an excellent example.

The final contract was reached without much ado. Note that South's hand, despite its abundance of tricks, is not strong enough for a demand bid of two clubs. There is seldom any danger of opening these freak hands with a one-bid. With so many high cards outstanding, it's inconceivable that one of the other three players won't enter the auction, which will give opener another opportunity. South could not afford to check on aces via Blackwood, for if partner held only the one, his five diamond response would be disastrous. South compromised by settling for what seemed to be a "sure" game.

West led the king of spades and East followed with the three. Against routine defense (a spade continuation), the contract would be made. Declarer would ruff, cash the ace of clubs to discover the 4-0 break, then enter dummy with a heart. After discarding a diamond on a high heart, he would take the marked trump finesse for his contract.

Fortunately for the defenders, West looked ahead a trick or two. Since he was void in clubs, he realized that his partner's trump holding might have to be protected from a finesse. The fact that East had played his lowest spade at trick one marked him with three cards in the suit, so it was futile to try to crash a second spade trick.

There was only one way to prevent declarer from taking a trump finesse, and that was to remove his entries to dummy as soon as possible. Therefore, West shifted to a heart, which couldn't do the defense any harm, but which might deny South a valuable option in the play.

Declarer won in dummy and took a diamond discard. When he led a trump to his queen, the bad news was out and there was nothing he could do about it. He had to concede a trump trick for down one.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Dear Abby,

DEAR ABBY: We need advice desperate. We have a dear young relative (married a year) whose house looks like a disaster area.

Would it be wrong to ask if we could go in and clean it up for her?

You never saw such a mess in all your life!

ABSOLUTELY ANONYMOUS

DEAR ANONYMOUS: There's a wise old truism, "Give a man a fish and he can eat for a day; teach him how to fish, and he can eat for a lifetime."

Subtly offer your young relative a few tips from an "old veteran" on how to make housekeeping easier. If she reacts with appreciation, dig in and teach her. If she reacts with indignation — back off.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column a woman complained that her husband was not allowed to play tennis on a certain tennis court because he wasn't "properly attired." (He was wearing regular street trousers and shirt. He was told he had to wear white tennis shorts and white shirt.)

The wife asked if you knew the reason for this rule, and you said you didn't know for sure, but it was probably because white looks better and is cooler.

Well, I know the reason. White clothing does not show perspiration the way colored clothing does, and tennis players sweat a lot.

MARTHA POST: LAKELAND, FLA.

DEAR MARTHA: Your explanation sounds reasonable. But read on for a few others:

Tennis players are required to wear white on the courts because if the players were permitted to wear colored clothes, you'd have stripes, wild patterns in clashing colors, and a mess of distracting designs. It might distract other players, and would certainly look like the dickens to spectators.

REASONED IT OUT IN YPSILANTI

Why do tennis players have to dress in white? Simple. Because white is cooler. Don't ask me why, but it is a known and proven fact. You'll notice that people who live in the desert are always dressed in white for that reason.

COMMON SENSE
FROM ORANGE, TEX.

Tennis players must dress uniformly because it's the democratic way. When they all wear the same, nobody looks any richer or better dressed than his team players or opponents. And the color is white because most people look better in white.

PETERSBURG, VA.

The official tennis outfit originated in England over 150 years ago. It was all white. Since that time, all tennis clothes are uniformly white to carry on the tradition.

C.W. IN PALM BEACH, FLA.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a minister who stands outside a porno movie theater to see how many people he knows go in?

JUST ASKING

DEAR JUST: He's not very bright. Some of the people he knows might see him standing there and think he just came out.

• • •

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. Please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Shrinking Jawbone Ceases With More Calcium Intake

EMMAUS, Penn. (Special) — If you wear dentures, they'll fit better and give you less trouble if you use more calcium instead of highly-touted adhesives and pastes, reports PREVENTION.

Writing in a recent issue, managing editor John Feltman points out that of the 22.6 million denture wearers in the U.S. (identified by a national health interview survey in 1971) almost 30 percent thought their dentures need refitting or that they needed new dentures. Yet says Feltman, the problem may have been due more to a shrinking jawbone than a bad fit.

In his article, the editor cites research by Kenneth E. Wical, D.D.S., chairman of the removable prosthondontics department at Loma Linda University's School of Dentistry in Loma Linda, California.

"In a great percentage of denture wearers, the jawbone keeps shrinking away," Dr. Wical told PREVENTION. "As the jawbone grows smaller it becomes more difficult for them to wear their dentures. Some, gradually lose half of their original jawbone or even more. Eventually they reach the point where they can no longer wear their dentures. There's nothing left for the dentures to fit around. Denture adhesive makers capitalize on this."

Extra calcium seems to slow down this whole process, says Wical.

"Back in 1974 we did a study among patients with dentures," he told Feltman, "and found that those with a good underlying bone had a daily dietary intake of about 900 milligrams of calcium. Those with jawbone problems were only getting about 500 milligrams of calcium."

In a new year-long study, Wical confirmed his earlier findings. Forty-six denture patients were divided into two equal groups; half received supplements that provided a total of 750 milligrams of calcium and 375 units of vitamin D daily. At the end of the year those taking supplemental calcium had lost 34 percent less of their upper jaws and 39 percent less of their lower jaws than the unsupplemented group.

"I presently feel very strongly that peridontal patients should be taking calcium supplements also," Wical told PREVENTION. "It's the same disease, the same problem. There's no question in my mind that the bone loss is the same — whether you have your teeth or not."

Betty Friedan Backs Pro-Family Policy

By MARY LEONARD

WASHINGTON (WNS) — After a decade of fighting for equality in the workplace, the women's movement, says its matriarch, Betty Friedan, is entering the 1980s devoted to a pro-family policy of putting the house and home in a new order.

"Potentially, there would be a lot of tired, unhappy, disillusioned women out there if we didn't take this step to show real concern for the family," the gravel-voiced Friedan said recently at the National Assembly on the Future of the Family. "To make the equality livable, feminists have to restructure the institutions of work and home. That's our agenda for the Eighties."

The daylong assembly was organized by the National Organization for Women's Legal Defense and Education Fund and co-chaired by Thomas Murphy of General Motors, Douglas Fraser of the United Auto Workers and others from private industry. Panels of experts explored ways to cope with such family-oriented problems as soaring inflation, which puts both parents into the workforce; of high divorce rates, which sends them seeking new living arrangements; and of "superwoman" expectations, which give women no option but to postpone or forgo childbearing.

The first reality is that the Father Knows Best stereotype of a working dad and stay-at-home mom with a band of kids is an endangered species. Right now, government statistics show that only 17 percent of all Americans live in traditional breadwinner-homemaker families.

The second reality is that not only do well over half of all women work outside the home, but at least 43 percent of all women with children under age 6 work. By 1990, an estimated 64 percent of women with preschoolers will work.

"How are parents managing?" asked Sheila Kamerman of the Columbia University School of Social Work. "With great difficulty. They are working different shifts, or part-time, or coming up with multiple childcare arrangements to get by."

Kamerman described a "child care crisis" in which an estimated 27 million U.S. children have inadequate day care. "We have no national policy at all when it comes to child care," she said.

Panelists described how business, labor and community groups have taken small, but innovative steps to fill the government void and meet child care demands. In Boston, the Stride Rite Corp. set up a low-cost day care center for employee and neighborhood children six years ago. In Austin, a nonprofit citizens group runs an infant care program for teen mothers in the high schools. In Baltimore, the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union bargained for day care centers at the sites of seven local employers.

However, Stanford sociologist William J. Goode said that is not enough. Industries of the 1980s will have to pay more attention to the two-paycheck family, he said.

"If increased productivity is what they're after, corporations will not want to waste half of the brains of every generation or lose valuable employees because of problems in the home. They will have to consider on-site child care; paternity leaves; flexible working hours; fewer job transfers; or at least finding jobs for both spouses in a new location," Goode added.

American Can Co. has experimented with a variety of family-oriented policies. For example, its employees are permitted to pick and choose their fringe benefits, allowing women to take certain child-care options and less health insurance. Employees can mold their working schedules to permit long weekends off, or a whole summer off, to conform to family vacations. A parent also can work an early shift and be home at the end of a school day.

The company further has instituted a permanent part-time employment plan and an employee assistance program to help families with alcohol, drug or financial problems.

Changes in industry may be resisted, but changes in the working habits of women are irreversible. For one, more than 13 million U.S. women are heading households and need jobs to survive. For another, the high cost of living, combined with longevity and vitality, is bringing older women with grown children into the labor force. Finally, dollars and cents aside, the women's liberation movement — combined with effective birth control — has given women the option of fulfilling themselves through careers outside the home.

However, without adequate child care facilities, without flexibility in the labor market, Betty Friedan wonders whether women really have an option.

"I've traveled extensively and talked to young women who are facing, agonizing and finally denying the choice to have children," she said. "They are up against a biological clock to have a baby, but simply feel they cannot afford to give up jobs that wouldn't give them the flexibility to be mothers.

"When women like me said to our daughters, 'You can have it all,' we didn't expect them to have to be superwomen, stretched at both fulltime careers and motherhood."

Photoflood Bulbs Boost Level Of Light In Room

By SANDY COTTON
Associated Press Writer

So you've taken a picture by the light of a match. Big deal! Also ... big grain, high contrast, fuzziness caused by camera movement or subject movement, or your inability to focus in the dim light.

Oh, maybe you were lucky and did get a sharp picture. And, maybe, it was interesting, different, unusual. But why is it that so many people today are taking pictures in very dim light, settling for just geting an image on film when they could, with very little effort, get well exposed pictures?

Why rely on lenses that are less sharp when wide open, or forced development of high-speed films that result in grainy pictures? Are we getting lazier or have we forgotten a few of the tricks of yesteryear?

Not so many years ago press photographers carried a large case containing a Speed Graphic camera, film packs or cut film holders, a battery-powered flash unit with plenty of flash bulbs, extra extension flash units, an extra lens or two and a focusing cloth. A few smart ones also carried with them two or three 250-watt photoflood bulbs. The case, when loaded, could weigh as much as 35 to 40 pounds.

Today's photographer carries two or three 35mm cameras, lenses, a small strobe unit or two and, if he's smart, a few photoflood bulbs. His bag weighs in at around 10 to 15 pounds, a fraction of what his brother-in-arms carried only a couple of decades ago.

Consider that the average amateur photographer carries even less! Then why should another pound of equipment be such a big headache? Or is it that everyone has become so brainwashed with the idea of taking pictures in natural light, no matter how bad, that quality has been kicked out the window?

Why not boost the light level in a room with photofloods?

Try screwing two or three of these into the sockets of table lamps or overhead lights. It can boost the light level by two or three stops.

If you need more light than that there are adapters on the market that screw into a regular lamp socket into which you can plug a small 650-watt quartzlite. That will boost the light level another stop or two.

Porter's Camera store, P.O. Box 628, Cedar Falls, Iowa, 50613, lists such an adapter in its latest catalog for $12.50, if you are unable to get one through your local electrical store.

Just in case there are no lamps available in a room, make your own. Make up a light socket attached to a spring clamp that can be attached to something high, such as the top of a door. I don't use reflectors. I like the light to scatter evenly around the room.

Any photoflood or quartzlite will do when shooting black and white film. If you want to shoot color, make sure you're using the right lamp and the right film. Each lamp has a color temperature rating, called kelvin. Type B tungsten color film needs a lamp with a 3200K rating.

Now, if you're one of those people with an expensive camera and big lenses, try going the photoflood or quartzlite route, switch to a slower film and see how much sharper your pictures are. Stop playing with matches. You might start a fire.

Victoria Doll Reminiscent Of Days Gone By

The Victorian era seems especially popular with the designers of today. In the time of Victoria, America changed from a rough agricultural country to one of great industrial powers with many families experiencing, for the first time, new affluence and leisure time. The women of the household took advantage of this new-found leisure and crafted all manner of elegant hand-made items for their homes and families.

In the Victorian era, a proper household contained a suitable supply of embroidered, knitted, and crocheted doilies, tablecloths, bedcovers and such. Homes were decorated to the inch with delecate handwork of all types, crafted in many different techniques.

Although the key to today's contemporary decor is a bold, clean look with large, open spaces, you can still capture a bit of the past with a few strategically placed accessories. Display a favorite family photograph in an elegantly embroidered or needlepoint frame. Hang a vintage quilt as an innovative wall hanging. Group a collection of antique toys, trinkets, or photographs on an occasional table for a nostalgic display.

Reminiscent of those days gone by, the Victoria doll shown here is a unique decorating accessory. Or you can make this 22-inch doll as a treasured gift for a special child.

This old-fashioned doll is a snap to make. Simply cut out the basic body and dress pieces from cotton fabrics and stitch them together with easy straight seams. Facial features are created with basic embroidery stitches.

Victoria doll kit comes complete with body and dress pieces stamped on cotton, trims, cotton floss, nylon lace, acrylic yarn for hair and directions. Supply stuffing of your choice.

To order Victoria doll, ask for kit No. 14976 for $8.99 plus $1.45 for postage and handling. Creative Home Crafts is required to pay and collect sales tax in Texas.

New Polish Stamp Pays Tribute To Astronaut Neil Armstrong

By SYD KRONISH
Associated Press Writer

It isn't often that countries behind the Iron Curtain issue stamps to honor the United States or its citizens. However, this rare occasion has been revealed on a set of five new stamps from Poland dedicated to "Space Research 1979." The highest value in the set is a tribute to Neil Armstrong, the first "Man on the Moon."

The one-zloty marks the first anniversary of the space flight of the first Polish cosmonaut Miroslaw Hermaszewski. It shows the space craft, Hermaszewski and Soviet spaceman Piotr Klimuk. The 1.50-zloty depicts the Soviet research craft of the Intercosmos, Kopernik 500 Series, and the U.S. orbiting astronomical observatory Copernicus, which have been sent off to commemorate the 500th anniversary of the birth of Nicolaus Copernicus.

The 200-zloty illustrates the Soviet unmanned moon space craft "Lunnik 2" and the American unmanned space craft "Ranger 7." The 4.50-zloty features Juri Gagarin, the first man in space. The 6.90-zloty pictures Armstrong and the lunar module with space craft Apollo 11.

Poland has also issued a single stamp which features the monument to Kosciuszko in Philadelphia. The statue was a gift of the Polish people to the United States in honor of the 200th anniversary of American independence. Kosciuszko fought for the American colonists in the Revolutionary War.

Austria has announced an ambitious stamp program for 1980. According to the Austrian Postal and Telegraph Administration, the following postage stamps are scheduled for the first half of the year: a special stamp marking the 500th anniversary of the town of Baden, a stamp promoting Austrian exports, a stamp for the centenary of the Austrian Red Cross, a special stamp for the 750th anniversary of Hallein, a series of stamps commemorating the bicentennial of the death of Empress Maria Theresa, and a stamp honoring the 1,000th anniversary of the town of Steyr. Also, a stamp marking 50 years of oil production in Austria, the 800th anniversary of the city of Innsbruck, a special adhesive for the 10th International Congress of the International Organization for the Study of the Old Testament, and another in the Austrian landscapes series of definitive stamps.

The first North American edition of "Collect British Stamps," a mini-catalog checklist of British postal items, is now on the market. The listings are in U.S. dollars and cents. It is published by Stanley Gibbons Ltd., in conjunction with the British Post Office, and covers all issues from the "penny black" up to Aug. 22, 1979, including the Rowland Hill stamps. Also listed are first-day covers, presentation and souvenir packs and Post Office picture cards.

The booklet is available for $3 at your local dealer or you may order from Stanley Gibbons Ltd., Publications Dept., 601 Franklin Ave., Garden City, N.Y. 11530.

Landscaping Of Lake Placid For Olympics Began Early

By EARL ARONSON
Associated Press Writer

Almost three years before the 1980 Olympics will open in February at Lake Placid in New York's Adirondack Mountains, preparation of the grounds began.

Since then, a 70-acre area of reforested, second-growth trees was cleared and graded for the Athletes' Village. It will be landscaped. More than 100 acres have been seeded with grass. Some areas had to be sodded, especially around the tall ski jumps where steep slopes wouldn't hold seed during heavy rain pressure. Seeding had to be repeated and in some instances sod was put down.

Also taken into consideration in the type of grass, shrubs and trees planted was the cold weather which Philip G. Wolff, chief of staff of the XIII Olympic Winter Games Committee, says "routinely goes to the 20s below zero Fahrenheit and last winter hit 44 below."

The major effort, however, according to Wolff, has been to discourage erosion that would sully rivers and other waters of the region.

The 70-acre cleared tract now contains the buildings to house athletes from many nations during the two weeks of competition. Grass and landscaping also beautify other new structures, the 90 and 45 meter ski jumps, the bobsled and luge runs. And the new $16.5 million federally-funded field house-indoor skating center.

Slopes have been terraced. Several ponds were established as sediment basins for run-off water from hillsides. These ponds mean, Wolff said, that only clean water will reach brooks in runoff. In dry weather the pool water will evaporate. The sediment will be at the bottom.

Ground for Olympic construction was broken in May 1977, hampered right off by heavy rain.

"Thousands of trees were taken down, fed to machines that made them chips, and used as mulch to control slopes," Wolff says. "Most of the area involved is hilly and getting good grass to grow on steep pitches was a problem.

"Except for a few buildings designated for temporary use, every one of the facilities will be permanent. The Olympic Village will become a federal minimum correctional facility for young adults and youthful offenders. After-use is the secret of the whole thing. The facilities of the 1932 Lake Placid Olympics were all used until they were worn out."

The new skating center, attached to the 1932 one, will remain for big competitions. The cinder track at the high school has been refrigerated and resurfaced for the outdoor skating events. It will be used later for public skating and possible national and international competition. Both areas have been landscaped.

The tree plantings, Wolff said, include sugar and Norway maples, some ash, white and red pine, white and Norway spruce. Not many were needed because few were felled outside the Athletes' Village area and the hills abound with trees. Shrubs planted for landscaping mostly were red stem dogwood, high bush cranberry, mugo pines, low bush juniper and ewes.

Wolff, who studied landscape architecture at Cornell and who is a town judge, said grass seed sown was chewing and creeping fescue and Canadian blue grass, anticipating heavy "athletic field usage."

Car Care Stresses Rust Prevention

WASHINGTON (AP) — An automobile is a major investment for most Americans, and protecting that investment from the ravages of rust should be a major consideration.

Once you have that new, undercoated, car on the road one of your early stops should be a car wash, say the experts at the National Highway Safety Administration.

That trip will help you find any body leaks or leaks around windows. Have these fixed promptly.

When you get the car home, spray the underside forcefully with a hose to make sure there are no openings allowing water inside, under the floor mat or carpet. Caulk any openings you find.

If you are considering buying a used car, examine the vehicle carefully for rust.

NEW STAMP — The U.S. Postal Service has announced it will issue the W.C. Fields commemorative stamp in Beverly Hills, Calif., on Jan. 29, 1980. The date is the 100th anniversary of the comedian's birthday. (AP Laserphoto)

Socket Extensions Lift Lamp Shades

By ANDY LANG
Associated Press Writer

Q — We recently bought two old lamps at an antique show and like them very much. They came without shades. We bought shades, but when we got them home we discovered that they fit down too low. We have figured out several ways in which the shades can be lifted a bit, but all of them look kind of homemade. Is there some professional way these shades can be made to sit up a little higher so that they seem to be part of the lamps?

A — The solution to such a problem is easy. Merely buy what is called a socket extension. This extension fits right into the bulb socket. The bulb then is screwed into the extension. When the bulb sits up higher, the shade then will seem to be made for that particular lamp.

Q — To settle an argument, does a single 200-watt electric bulb produce as much or less light than two 100-watt bulbs?

A — Everything else being equal, the single larger bulb will give more light than two other bulbs with the same total wattage.

Q — I sometimes see advertisements for facing brick. I can't find the term in my dictionary. Just what is facing brick?

A — As the name implies, it is brick used primarily where the face of it will be highly visible. Facing brick may be used either inside or outside, but there are variations in grade and types, so don't judge them solely by price. When making price comparisons, be sure the bricks are of the same grade and type and are suitable for your intended purpose.

Q — We intend soon to refinish our attic, doing most of the work ourselves, but getting professional help for the electricity and the plumbing. We plan on having a small bathroom upstairs, one that will serve the two bedrooms we will be making. My husband and I agree on everything except the location of the bathroom. He thinks it should be directly over the kitchen, because he says it will be less expensive that way. I think the extra cost will be worth it if the bathroom is placed where it will be an equal distance from both bedrooms rather than near one and some distance from the other. What is your opinion?

A — Nobody can give you an opinion on that, since your financial condition seemingly will be the deciding factor. Generally, your husband is correct, as his plan will require less piping and less labor, consequently less cost. But the initial additional outlay may be worth it if the bathroom's location later proves to be a nuisance and, even more important, a bone of contention. Before you make a decision, why not call in a plumber and have him make estimates for two different locations? You then will be able to decide on the basis of actual figures. As it is, you may be disagreeing on erroneous personal estimates of what the costs will be.

Rough Seas Hamper Rescue Try

KETCHIKAN, Alaska (AP) — Stormy seas hampered efforts by Navy divers to explore an overturned ore freighter that is leaking diesel fuel in the Pacific, and authorities said there was little hope for the Taiwanese crew.

A second body from the 741-foot Lee Wang Zin was recovered Thursday, but diving plans were thwarted by 45-knot winds and 15-foot seas. A small storm was approaching the area, with winds expected to remain at 40-50 knots and seas at 10 to 15 feet today, the National Weather Service said.

Coast Guard Cmdr. Ray Spoltman, federal on-scene coordinator, said the grounding of the freighter Thursday might make it easier for the 25-member diving team to approach from calmer water on the vessel's lee side to check for bodies or survivors from the 30-member crew.

Diesel oil from the ship spread over 100 square miles of ocean, and major oil-spill equipment was being brought to the scene from Seattle by the cutter Munro, which also has a large sick bay, Spoltman said.

Officials say they have no estimates of how much of the estimated 370,000 gallons of oil already had leaked, but Spoltman said the amount of oil believed to be on board posed a major threat to the marine environment. As of Thursday night, the oil slick appeared to be moving out to sea and was breaking up in heavy weather.

Search and rescue officials had said some crew members might have been trapped in air pockets when the ship overturned suddenly on Christmas Day.

"The chance of surviving in this water is 10 minutes to an hour and a half," Spoltman said. "If there are air pockets, they (the crew) will be suffering from exposure.

"It's doubtful anyone can be alive. As time increases, it's becoming more remote we'll find anyone alive."

The crew of the Coast Guard cutter Clover recovered a body about five miles east of McLean Point and within two miles of the floating wreck. The Clover brought the body to Ketchikan.

A body recovered earlier remained aboard the tugboat Cindy Mozel of Prince Rupert, British Columbia, which was joined by the Canadian Coast Guard cutter Alexander Mackenzie in keeping watch over the Lee Wang Zin through the night.

Neither body was identified. Both were described as wearing life jackets but lightly clad, indicating the crew was forced to abandon ship rapidly.

The ship, owned and registered in Panama and leased to Japanese interests, became grounded Thursday at Kendrick Bay, about 50 miles south of Ketchikan, after drifting about 25 miles. Spoltman said it was not likely to break apart.

Rhodesian Troops Clear Roads, Prepare Camps For Cease-Fire

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Rhodesian troops cleared roads of land mines today and escorted some 1,300 Commonwealth soldiers and 80 guerrilla leaders to assembly camps throughout Rhodesia in preparation for a midnight cease-fire.

British peacekeepers, meanwhile, set Feb. 27 through Feb 29 as election days for blacks, who will pick 80 members of the 100-seat legislature to be established under terms of the British-sponsored settlement. Whites will vote for the 20 other seats on Feb. 14, the British said.

Under a brief interim government disbanded by the new settlement, whites held 28 seats and veto power over major legislation. In the proposed assembly they will have no such power.

Truce preparations were marred by the deaths Thursday of a guerrilla general and three members of the peacekeeping force.

At 12:01 a.m. Saturday, Rhodesia's white-led armed forces are to let some 16,000 guerrillas come out of the bush and gather at 16 assembly points.

Troops from Britain, Australia, New Zealand, Kenya and Fiji will watch over the guerrillas and the government troops, who will be confined in some 40 bases, until Rhodesia's new government is elected in February and Britain grants its colony independence.

"The success of the cease-fire now depends on the forces themselves and on the cooperation of the people as a whole," Lord Soames, the British governor guiding Rhodesia through the transition, said in a national broadcast.

British officials said the cease-fire would be implemented on time despite the deaths Thursday of Josiah Tongogara, military commander of Robert Mugabe's wing of the Patriotic Front guerrilla alliance, and the three soldiers.

Tongogara was killed in a car crash in Mozambique and the soldiers died in a helicopter that crashed in Rhodesia.

There were charges that none of the deaths were accidental, and Mugabe ordered his men to hold "very fast" to their weapons and be "extremely vigilant towards the enemy and not allow yourselves to be disarmed."

A Rhodesian official said Tongogara, who was said to have disagreed with Mugabe on policy, had voiced fears for his life.

And farmers in the area of the helicopter crash said the craft — clearly marked with white crosses indicating it belonged to the peacekeeping force — had been fired on. British authorities officially labeled the crash an accident.

Despite the general's death, Mugabe continued to urge his fighters to go to the assembly points, saying in hourly broadcasts from his Mozambique headquarters: "It is ... an advantage to us that there is peace and quiet so that as many people as possible can vote for us" in the national elections.

Mugabe, president of the Zimbabwe African National Union, and Nkomo, head of the Zimbabwe African Peoples' Union, are expected to return to Rhodesia soon to organize their election campaigns.

They boycotted last year's bi-racial election, charging the government it produced was an extension of the white-dominated regime headed by former Prime Minister Ian Smith. Smith's government unilaterally declared independence from Britain in 1965 in an effort to head off black rule in this country.

The guerrilla leaders signed a British-sponsored peace treaty Nov. 21 as part of a constitutional settlement with Britain and former Rhodesian Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa, signalling the end to the seven-year civil war that cost more than 21,000 lives.

Leftists Bomb Two American Offices

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Two bombs planted by unidentified leftists blasted the Citibank and International Telegraph and Telephone offices in downtown San Salvador early today, authorities said.

About 18 leftist gunmen — some on foot and others in two separate vehicles — converged on the Citibank office in San Salvador's commercial district shortly after midnight and shot to death the nightwatchman, a witness said.

The witness, a guard at a nearby office building, said the leftists laid the bomb near the wall of the building and fled before it exploded.

The glass walls of the Citibank office, located on the first floor of an 11-story building, were shattered by the blast, officials said. The interior of the office was heavily damaged but official estimates on the damages were not immediately available.

At about the same time, another explosion ripped through the ITT office, less than two miles from the Citibank office, officials said.

The ITT office, in a one-story building also in a commercial district, suffered heavy damage from the bomb planted next to its concrete walls, but no deaths or injuries were reported in that incident.

None of the leftist organizations active in this tiny Central American nation of 4.5 million claimed responsibility for the bombings immediately.

On Thursday, at least 20,000 supporters of El Salvador's ruling civilian-military junta staged a pro-government march in a show of numbers against leftist detractors of the regime.

In Washington, the United States said Thursday it is cutting back its official presence in the Central American nation because of continuing leftist violence. No exact numbers were revealed.

"Our action reflects only our concern for the welfare of U.S. government employees," State Department spokesman Tom Reston said.

The violence directed against Americans included the Oct. 30 leftist attack on the American Embassy and last month's seizure of a Peace Corps worker, Deborah Loff of Succasunna, N.J., who was held hostage for 10 days.

Chanting "We are more who want peace," and "Country yes, Communism no," 20,000 demonstrators marched three miles from the Cuzcatlan Park in downtown San Salvador Thursday to the government buildings in the western part of the capital.

The demonstrators were organized by the Crusade for Peace ad Work, a pro-government organization composed mostly of businessmen and professional people who support the junta that took power after an Oct. 15 coup ousted President Carlos Humberto Romero.

They marched under the cover of five helicopters and 10 small airplanes apparently provided by the march organizers, witnesses said.

Witnesses said men carrying automatic weapons walked alongside the pro-government procession.

USSR Warns Vietnam About Fighting

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — The Soviet Union has ordered Vietnam to "watch it" during its military operations along the Thai-Cambodian border to avoid alarming other southeast Asian nations, Western diplomats said today.

The diplomats said the Russians acted after most of the members of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) vetoed Moscow's recent requests for overflight and port privileges.

The Soviets need such facilities to sustain the flow of supplies they are currently pouring into Cambodia to support the 200,000 Vietnamese troops there battling Khmer Rouge guerrillas.

Western diplomats estimate the war in Cambodia is currently costing the Soviet Union about $3.3 million a day in military supplies alone.

"That's a great deal of money and when you are spending that kind of money, you have a great deal of clout," said one diplomat. "The Russians do not want Vietnamese military operations in Cambodia to sour their relations with other countries in the region and they've told Hanoi as much."

The diplomats said ASEAN members told the Russians their requests for overflight and docking privileges were being rejected because of concern about the presence of Vietnamese troops in Cambodia and fear the conflict there would spread to Thailand and the rest of the region.

"This has made Moscow very unhappy about any increased tensions on the Thai-Cambodian border," said another diplomat. "The Russians have told the Vietnamese to watch it."

Political analysts said the Soviets were also worried that stories about a possible Vietnamese invasion of Thailand would anger the U.S. Congress and hurt prospects for the ratification of the SALT II treaty.

On the military front, Thai officers reported that it was quiet for the past week in the border region, but they said heavy fighting between Vietnamese and Khmer Rouge forces was raging about 12 miles inland.

The officers said Khmer Rouge guerrillas had attacked Vietnamese outposts in the southern border area but few details of the fighting were available.

Vietnam has repeatedly tried to calm Thai fears that any offensive action it may take against the Khmer Rouge will spill over into Thailand.

Thai officers on the frontier say the Vietnamese carefully respect "smoke signals" sent up whenever they stray too close to Thai territory and immediately withdraw into the interior.

Seven Korean Civilians Appeal Death Sentences

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — Seven civilians convicted of involvement in the assassination of President Park Chung-hee, including the nation's former spy chief, have appealed their sentences to a higher military court, military officials said today.

The appeal and review request followed confirmation of their sentences last week by the martial law commander, Army Gen. Lee Hui-sung.

Six of the convicted civilians received death sentences. They included Kim Jae-kyu, former director of the Korean Central Intelligence Agency, and former chief presidential secretary Kim Kae-won.

The other four are KCIA agents who shot to death presidential bodyguards at the scene of Park's assassination Oct. 26.

Appeal by defendants given the death penalty is automatic under Korean law since they are not allowed to waive their right to appeal.

The eighth and last defendant in the case, Army Col. Park Hung-joo, the KCIA director's bodyguard, also received the death sentence but may not appeal to a higher court because of his military status. He asked military authorities to review his case in an apparent move to delay his execution.

A higher military court to be formed with five judges now needs a maximum of 26 days to try the seven civilians.

Kim Jae-kyu testified before a lower court that he had killed President Park to end his one-man dictatorial rule and restore full democracy in South Korea.

CHRISTMAS SPEECH

LONDON (AP) — In her annual broadcast speech to the countries of Britain's Commonwealth, Queen Elizabeth II called 1979 "an exceptionally difficult and tragic year" for many families and children, particularly in Southeast Asia where so many refugees are homeless. In her Christmas Day speech the queen said, "I'm glad to know that so many people in the Commonwealth have responded with wonderful generosity and kindness," to the childrens' plight during the International Year of the Child. "It seems the greater the needs of children, the more people rise to the occasion," she said.

Dozen Candidates Enter Presidential Primary

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — As the 5 o'clock whistle signaled the end of the work day, the Secretary of State closed his office door and announced that the nation's first state presidential primary will feature only 12 candidates.

"I'm amazed there were so few candidates fighting to get on the ballot this time," William Gardner said Thursday. "Early indications were that we would have a record turnout this year. I guess the fact we increased the filing fee diminished the interest."

In 1976, a record was set when 16 candidates crowded the ballot.

The traditional flock of fringe candidates, perhaps discouraged by the $500 filing fee, didn't show up this time.

"We didn't have the ministers dragging crosses, the Indian chiefs, or the men handing out white shoelaces that we've had in the past," Gardner said.

When the whistle blew, President Jimmy Carter, Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts, California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., Cleveland lawyer Richard Kay and former U.S. Labor Party chairman Lyndon LaRouche had filed as Democrats.

On the GOP side, former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, Rep. Philip Crane of Illinois, former CIA director George Bush, former Texas Gov. John Connally, Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas and Rep. John Anderson of Illinois were on the ballot.

The only exception to the staid ritual of entering the Feb. 26 primary was Princess Runningwaters, whose petitions were not accepted by Gardner. The princess, who says she is a "full-blooded Cherokee" from Covington, Ky., didn't qualify because she did not have the $500 filing fee, he said.

Network television crews, photographers and reporters crowded the small office to watch the final hour of the countdown.

Shortly after 4 p.m., Republican Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina became the only person to file for the vice presidential primary when his executive campaign director, David Stover of Raleigh, N.C., presented 1,200 signatures and $500 in cash.

At 4:38 p.m., Robin Dole, daughter of the Kansas senator, rushed in with 1,500 signatures and her check for $500.

Dole, one of the first candidates to campaign in the state, had to hire temporary help at the last minute to get his 1,000 signatures.

Mississippi Gov. Cliff Finch, who had frantically worked collecting signatures since he announced Monday that he was going to run, didn't make the deadline. But he said earlier that he would launch a write-in campaign in the state "if I have to."

Benjamin Fernandez, a former executive of the Republican National Committee, had sent in his $500, but without the signatures he didn't qualify. Gardner said he'd sent the check back.

DR. LAMB

Wants To Stop Laxatives

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I must have what is called spastic colon as I have been trying for the past two years to get away from laxatives with little results.

I'm 71 years old, in excellent health, swim a half a mile every day, walk and bicycle and occasionally jog.

I drink at least 10 to 12 glasses of water a day and eat about a half a cup of raw bran from the health food store each morning. I practically live on fruits and vegetables, eating all of the skins of not only my own but also my husband's.

In spite of this, I will go for four or five days and then I begin to feel uncomfortable and get headaches and then resort to a laxative. Oh yes, I forgot to tell you that in addition to bran, I drink water with a heaping teaspoon of Metamucil three times a day.

Several years ago I had a barrium enema which showed no difficulty except diverticula. We do a lot of traveling and in spite of carrying bran and Metamucil on trips, I have even more difficulty with elimination. I would appreciate any suggestions.

DEAR READER — You're doing most of the things that we usually suggest for people with irritable spastic colon problems. I can't see that adding any additional bulk to your diet, other than what you're already getting, will really help a great deal.

You might benefit by attempting to train yourself to have a regular habit. I'm sending you The Health Letter number 2-1, Irritable Or Spastic Colon And Constipation. There is a natural reflex that occurs after eating. It's called the gastrocolic reflex. When the stomach is filled, there is a reflex for contractions of the colon. By training and developing this reflex, it helps to promote regular elimination.

The natural reflex is discussed in The Health Letter I'm sending you. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

I'm also sending you The Health Letter number 12-8, Laxatives, Enemas And Suppositories. You're very wise to avoid taking chemical laxatives. The bulk laxative that you're taking doesn't present the same problems. People do get hooked on the laxative habit.

While you're training your natural gastrocolic reflex, rather than using a chemical laxative, you might resort to using a small tap water enema every three days if needed. It won't have the same chemical effects you might get from a laxative.

Following this routine and in the course of time you may develop a regular reflex pattern and be able to avoid being hooked on laxatives. Your doctor may wish to give you an antispasmodic if your condition indicates any degree of spasm as part of your problem. Also some people benefit from stool softeners.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My 17-year-old blonde daughter has a dark mustache. I don't want her to start plucking it. What should she do? It detracts from her lovely smile.

DEAR READER — She could bleach it. Very blond facial hair is far less obvious than dark hair. She might also see a dermatologist for some recomendations about local facilities for removal of unwanted hair.

Molybdenum Mine, Mill Plans Aired

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Anaconda Copper Co. says a $200 million molybdenum mine and mill, one of the largest in the nation, will be operating by 1981 with an annual payroll of 400 employees.

Preliminary work already has started at the site about 25 miles north of the famed old central Nevada boomtown of Tonopah, the company said Thursday.

Ranks Of Textbook Activists Growing Across U.S.

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — It's Thursday morning, and the back room of the restaurant is filled with dapperly dressed men talking earnestly over eggs and pancakes.

Mimeographed pamphlets are handed out. A comic book on sex education is passed around, and heads shake back and forth. A rousing prayer goes up.

The "Decency in Education" committee of Lee County is holding its weekly meeting.

"We're not book burners. We're not censors," says the Rev. Jack Gambill, committee chairman. "This is a national thing. It's springing up more and more all over the country."

The "national thing" is citizen activism against certain texts and other books being used in schools.

The "Decency" committee was formed in September after Mary Caserta, a mother and homemaker, demanded the Lee County school board ban a sixth-grade history book. She complained that an illustration in "History of Western Civilization" depicted Jesus Christ and the Last Supper in a ridiculous way.

Within minutes, 20 spectators were angrily warning board members they would have to answer at election time if they didn't remove the text from county schools.

"It hit us like a cold shower," says board chairwoman Rayma Page.

Mrs. Caserta "got my curiosity up," Gambill recalls. "We decided to look into what was in our children's books."

Today the committee is taking petitions door-to-door calling for the removal from school libraries of "Catcher in the Rye," "Soul on Ice," "Catch-22," "The Naked Ape," "Down These Mean Streets" and "Manchild in the Promised Land," as well as the history book.

Gambill says "Decency" has 4,200 signatures and hopes to give the board 8,000.

The group has also run newspaper ads linking declining test scores with what it says is the teaching of "secular humanism."

"Humanism is a religion that says man doesn't need a god, let man make up his own rules," says Gambill. "They have told us you can't pray in the school, you can't read Bibles .... If it offends them to teach moral values, why can't they see it offends me when they teach that there is nothing wrong with using four-letter words and premarital sex?"

"Something has been ignited with this issue," Mrs. Page says. "It has all the earmarks of what's happened in other areas of the country." Some examples from the past two years:

—In Anaheim, Calif., the school board — under pressure — approved an exclusive list of books for city schools. Among those excluded are most of the works of William Shakespeare, Charles Dickens and Mark Twain.

—In Warsaw, Ind., books such as "The Bell Jar," and "Growing Up Female in America" were removed from school shelves. Citizens burned books in a school parking lot. Four teachers opposed to textbook removals were fired. The superintendent of schools resigned.

—In North Bergen, N.J., some parents sought to have the book "Go Ask Alice" banned, but Superintendent Herman Klein refused, arguing that the book, which deals with a teen-ager's drug addiction, actually deters youngsters from drug abuse.

—In Issaquah, Wash., the board voted to remove "Catcher in the Rye" from reading lists. Board members in favor were recalled in a special election, and the new board put the book back into classrooms, but only for students who have written parental permission.

—In Middleville, Mich., the board dropped "Catcher" from the required reading list at Thornapple Kellogg High School after parents complained it "violates the word of God." The book, which concerns a boy's experiences growing up, had been used at the school 11 years.

The National Council of Teachers of English and the American Library Association say the number of textbook controversies has taken an alarming upswing.

Judith Krug says the ALA received 300 reports of book-banning or censorship during the past school year. "That number was greater than at any other time in at least the last 25 years," she said.

Edward Jenkinson of the NCTE says he believes "the problem wouldn't exist if we weren't living in hard times. People are dissatisfied with a lot of things .... They feel powerless to fight big government, so they start sniping at our schools."

Mrs. Page also notes that school boards are easily accessible: They can reach us. They see me in the grocery store, in the beauty parlor. They can get my telephone number from the directory."

The Lee County school board believes it can defuse the situation by heeding the complaints and reviewing every controversial book. So far no books have been banned.

"We're not afraid to change our minds about a book," Mrs. Page said. "We have a review board procedure for book questions. We have read everything there is on the subject. We're just going to take this step by step."

Man's Assault Conviction Overturned

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — A man who admitted attacking a woman at prayer to rob her has successfully appealed his conviction on one of two counts by contending there was no proof beyond his confession.

William Udchitz confessed he hit Miss Leona Toczek on the head three times with a vase as she knelt in the back pew of a church in Griffith on March 4, 1977.

"Indiana law has consistently held the defendant's confession or out-of-court statement is not admissible unless there is independent proof," said the unanimous opinion of the Indiana Court of Appeals.

The state court upheld Udchitz's conviction for aggravated assault and battery and ordered sentencing on that charge, but overturned the conviction and sentencing on a second count of assault and battery with intent to commit a felony.

Gunman To Receive Psychiatric Tests

SALEM, Mass. (AP) — A man accused of taking over a Masonic hall at gunpoint on Christmas Day has been ordered held for 20 days of psychiatric observation.

District Court Judge David Doyle on Wednesday ordered Ernest J. Lassen Jr. of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., a 33-year-old unemployed physiotherapist, sent to Bridgewater State Hospital.

Police say Lassen held the Masonic hall in Manchester, Mass., for more than three hours. Lassen pleaded innocent to a variety of charges in connection with the incident, including assault with intent to murder.

John Paul, Khomeini Among Year's Newsmakers

By CONNIE CHAPMAN
A-J Religion Writer

Two major newsmakers splashed religion-oriented stories on the front pages of every newspaper during the past year. The two, of course, were Pope John Paul II of the Roman Catholic Church and the Ayatollah Khomeini, a Shiite Moslem.

The pope, by his travels to Mexico, Poland, the U.S. and Turkey, demonstrated that the papacy was moving out of the Vatican fortress and into the world among the people. It is significant, some have commented, that his first visit was to Mexico, considered a "third world" or developing nation. By his visit to his Polish homeland, the first non-Italian pope in recent history created, in a peaceful yet forceful way, a confrontation between Christianity and Communism. The millions who turned out to see him were witnesses to the powerful force which is Catholic Christianity in that Iron Curtain country. Many observers saw the magnitude and warmth of his reception, evidence of his tremendous popularity, as meaning that he may never again be permitted by that government to return "home."

The visit of His Holiness to the United States this fall received mixed reports in the press. Again, as in Poland and Mexico, his personable, earthy, of-the-people characteristics won him many friends. However, the "hard line" he enunciated on such issues as abortion, birth control and ordination of women disappointed many who had expected him to continue the liberalizing stance of the papacy during recent years. (The recent removal of the title of "theologian" from the eminent scholar Hans Kung also indicates that a firm line is to be drawn in doctrinal and theological issues. Some commentators said that the disappointment with his action shows that many Catholics fail to understand the conservative nature of the church from which the pope came.) The great appeal of the man and his tentative outreach to ecumenical relations during this visit were plusses, many felt.

The impact of the actions of the Iranian Moslem leader cannot be assessed here, bearing as it does on the political and economic life of both countries. It is significant, however, that Khomeini, a religious leader, is now the apparent ruler of this troubled oil-rich nation. Some have ventured to describe the conflict as a Christian-Moslem confrontation. While that may have some validity, experts generally state also that the Iranian situation, whatever else it might be, is also an example of a struggle within the factions of Islam. Some scholars have predicted the "resurgence of Islam" for as much as 20 years. To them this latest crisis is no surprise, but for most American Christians it has been a lesson in how little we know about Islam and what motivates its religious leaders and followers.

If there is one "plus" to the situation, then, from a religious point of view, it is that American Christians have been alerted to the existence of this powerful religion with which it must, somehow, co-exist. In many ways, it was a poignant reminder that all the world is not Christian, and that understanding is necessary.

In the Arab-Israeli conflict which continues into the new year, it is difficult to separate the religious differences from the political ones. At times during this past year, it seemed that agreement was nearer. But just as a breakthrough seemed possible, hard-liners came along to criticize the leaders for the reconciliation symbolized by these tentative accords.

On other fronts, religious groups throughout the world were moved to compassionate action in response to the needs of refugees in the countries of Thailand, Cambodia and Vietnam. Many American denominations joined in the massive relief effort which is just now beginning to make inroads on the human misery which dominates that part of the world scene. Likewise the spectre of world hunger brought many American denominations to assess the avenues their mission in the world should take.

Late summer hurricanes brought devastation to the Caribbean, and again churches responded generously with relief.

For yet another year, the work of the National Council of Churches and the World Council of Churches drew criticism for responding to the needs of people in countries where motivation and sponsorship were not always clearly humanitarian. A major campaign of the WCC was the continued investigation into the use and promotion of infant formula, especially in developing nations. Particular target for this investigation was the Nestle company.

Various churches and groups within the U.S. faced knotty internal and external issues. The Episcopalians, at their Denver meeting, took a hard look at the question of the ordination of homosexuals and referred the solution to the dioceses for individual ruling. They also approved the use of a new prayer book.

Southern Baptists at their June meeting in Houston wrestled once again with the issue of inerrancy of Scripture and wound up affirming the 1963 Baptist Faith and Message Statement which states the belief in that tenet.

Presbyterians made advances toward union of the two major denominations separated since the Civil War. Reunion possibilities were enhanced by the simultaneous meetings of the two General Assemblies in Kansas City while more union presbyteries, including one in the Dallas area, were formed this past year. Likewise, the Disciples of Christ and the United Church of Christ continue their tentative steps toward union.

The Consultation on Church Union (COCU) continues to work through some of the stumblingblock issues raised by the ten participating denominations. A major breakthrough in this body is expected for early in 1980.

Many decisions of the U.S. Supreme Court dealt with issues of separation of church and state. One landmark case still remains in litigation, concerning the problems of a group of Methodist retirement homes in California.

Denomination-sponsored schools wrestled with questions of state support and state control of their institutions.

The so-called "charismatic" movement, an outgrowth, perhaps, of the individualism of the 60's, with its emphasis on personal religion and experience, gave respectability to such phenomenon as "faith healing" and caused even the national press to consider to research and print articles on the nature and significance of the movement. Some of the mainline churches responded by raising the spectre of personal pietism undercutting social action and concern. Perhaps related to it was the steady growth of the evangelical and fundamentalist denominations while the mainline churches were forced to cut back on national budgets.

The "dark horse" among religious leaders of the decade may have been Mother Theresa of Calcutta, the "saint of the slums" who was awarded the 1979 Nobel Peace Prize for her work among the poverty-stricken people of India.

Catholic Lay Group Supports Vatican's Censure Of Kung

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (Special) — A Catholic lay group headquartered here declared that the Vatican censure of Swiss-born theologian Hans Kung was "sadly but truly necessary." According to Catholics United for the Faith (CUF), a post-Vatican II lay association with members and chapters throughout the United States, Canada and Australia, Professor Kung had placed himself outside of authentic Catholicism by his own words and actions.

The Vatican Declaration that Kung "can no longer be considered a Catholic theologian nor function as such in a teaching role" is thus only a statement of accomplished fact, according to CUF.

"One of the basic requirements for being a Catholic theologian," CUF President H. Lyman Stebbins said, "is that one theologize in conformity with the Magisterium (teaching authority) of the Catholic Church. Even those who have only a nodding acquaintance with the work of Kung know that he has defied the authority of the Church in his books and public statements for years: he is defying it now when he states, as he did in response to the Vatican Declaration, that he plans 'to continue as a Catholic theologian' when the authority of the Church has formally declared that he is no longer one.

"According to Catholic teaching, this is not a matter which Kung, or any individual is competent to decide."

Stebbins cited the authority of the Second Vatican Council for his assertion that teaching in conformity with the authority of the Church is a fixed and firm requirement for being a Catholic theologian. The Second Vatican Council taught on this subject that "theological subjects should be taught in the light of faith, under the guidance of the Magisterium of the Church" (Decree on the Training of Priests, Optatum Totius, No. 16).

"The Sacred Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith in Rome, in censuring Professor Hans Kung, is merely taking formal cognizance of the situation in which this theologian put himself long ago," the CUF president said. "Considering that he has had since 1975 to reconsider his errors and his attitude towards Church authority," Stebbins added, "We have to give the Roman Congregation high marks for great patience..."

CUF denied that the case involves any question of Kung's "rights" or that the Church is in any way harsh in insisting that he ought to follow Church authority if he wanted to be recognized as a Catholic theologian. "No one has a 'right' to pretend to speak for an organization which he admits he doesn't agree with," Stebbins said. "All organizations require agreement with their principles and organizational decisions by those who would presume to speak for them. That is what is at issue here."

As the Vatican Declaration says: "...no one may rightly act as a theologian except in close union with the mission of teaching truth which is incumbent upon the Church itself. When such fidelity is absent, harm is done to all the faithful who have a sacred right to receive the word of God uncontaminated..."

"Kung says he is 'ashamed' of the Church for this action," the CUF president said. "For our part we are ashamed of those Catholics and especially those theologians...who forget the sacred rights of the faithful to the authentic doctrine of the Church and rush to the defense of a theologian who has placed himself outside the boundaries of Catholicism by his own words and actions. We say this more in sorrow than in anger as far as dissident theologians, including Kung, are concerned," Stebbins concluded.

"But what the holy see here is only defending the rights of the faithful to true doctrine -which the Church was commissioned by Christ to do. All Catholics should rejoice that the Church does not abandon her flock. 'He shall neither slumber nor sleep, that keepeth Israel.'"

Baylor Committee Considers Request

WACO (Special) — The Academic Affairs Committee of the Baylor University board of trustees will consider a request for "counsel" from the university's department of religion when it convenes in Waco Jan. 17.

Milton E. Cunningham, pastor of Westbury Baptist Church, Houston, is the new chairman of the 13-member committee.

At the October meeting of the trustees, the department of religion asked the trustees, through the academic affairs committee, to "give us your counsel. We need your direction in our present dilemma over the choice of textbooks for our freshman courses in particular.

"Further, we need your counsel about the direction our department should take in the future. We invite you to take a full look at our entire program of teaching, both undergraduate and graduate, and make necessary suggestions that would help us to more nearly meet guidelines of the board of trustees as representatives of Texas Baptists. We have every confidence in your concern for our teaching program and pledge to you our full cooperation."

The faculty's request was prompted by criticism of the textbook, "People of the Covenant." Euless pastor James T. Draper Jr., whom Cunningham succeeded as chairman of the academic affairs committee, has charged the book, used for 16 years in some Baylor religion classes and many other Southern Baptist and other denominational schools, is "liberal — built on the premise that the Bible is man's attempt to explain God and does not even suggest that it is God's revelation of Himself."

The book was written by H. Jack Flanders and two other professors at Furman University in 1963 and has been used extensively since that time. Flanders, former pastor of First Baptist Church, Waco, has been on the Baylor religion faculty since 1969. In August he was named chairman-elect of the department to succeed Ray Summers who retires in 1980.

The annual meeting of the state convention in Lubbock noted the controversy and passed a motion reaffirming its "expectation of the elected trustees and administration of their institutions to fulfill their responsibilities in directing the affairs of our institutions in line with historic Baptist beliefs."

Magazine Criticizes FCC In Editorial

NEW YORK (Special) -The Christian Century, the nation's leading interdenominational weekly, published a scathing attack recently on the Federal Communications Commission for violating ethnical principles in its drive to deregulate radio.

The magazine's lead editorial, entitled "Can the Air be Kept Free?" gravely warned that the FCC was on the verge of removing the public from control over its airwaves and "turning them over to the marketplace."

The editorial quoted an FCC press release which stated that the Commission intends to remove itself from detailed consideration of the precise amounts of non-entertainment programming such as news and public affairs furnished by radio broadcast licensees and to eliminate all FCC policies dealing with limitations on amounts of commercial time, thus leaving it to competitive marketplace forces to hold down levels of radio commercialization.

"In effect," the editorial declared, "the FCC is all but surrendering interest in what goes on the air. It is proposing that the government show no interest in anything not immediately and commercially profitable."

The critical issue, according to the Christian Century, is the exclusion from commercial stations of even little blocks of non-commercial time.

"Commercial monopoly of deregulated radio may look diverse," the editorial added, "but it would yield less diversity than that now provided by mandated public service programming. The public is entitled to receive over radio airwaves some material that is not filtered through hucksters and persuaders.

"Public service broadcasting is at times dull and uninspiring, but it still speaks to the nonconsumer dimension of society. It is basic to our religious perspective that radio should function in part with a concern for those aspects of the human spirit that do more than lead us to purchase products."

The Christian Century is published in Chicago by the Christian Century Foundation. Its editor is James M. Wall.

Commission Encourages Comments On Study

ST. LOUIS (Special) — A new Bible study on fellowship, prepared by the Commission on Theology and Church Relations of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, is being sent to all LCMS congregations with the "strong plea that people engage in the study immediately."

The Rev. Samuel H. Nafzger, executive secretary of the commission, made that plea as copies of the five-lesson study were being mailed this week.

"I would encourage congregations to even consider interrupting their regular educational programs and conduct the study in January and early February, then forward their reactions to the CTCR by the end of February so that the commission can get the broadest possible input as it begins to prepare its major report on fellowship," Nafzger said. That report called for by the 1977 Synod convention will be issued next fall.

The need for an intensive study of the Scriptures throughout the Synod on the topic of fellowship came out of 56 "Formula for Concord" conferences involving 4,000 professional LCMS church workers in 1978. The CTCR reported that, based on discussion at the conferences, "considerable confusion exists within the Synod on the question of fellowship."

The introduction to the Bible study states that its purpose goes beyond simply providing input to the CTCR. "It is hoped that a wide-spread study of the Scriptures on this subject will lead to greater concord in the Synod and to practices of church fellowship that remain consistent with the principles God has given in His word."

The Bible studies themselves are preceeded by background information, purpose and rationale sections, guidelines for leaders and brief summaries of the lessons. The lessons are titled "Fellowship — A Living Reality," "Fellowship with Christ," "Fellowship with the Saints," "Fellowship in the Bond of Peace," and "Fellowship — A Gift to Preserve."

"We in the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod seek to relate to other Christian churches on the basis of God's Holy Word," Nafzger said. "Therefore, this Bible study has great relevance for coming to grips with the fundamental principles which should guide us in matters such as participation in ecumenical marriage ceremonies, rallies and congresses, and crusades of various sorts."

Program Planned For Youngsters

Bill Lacy, pastor of Redbud Baptist Mission, 8th and Slide, has announced a program of special interest to youngsters for Sunday evening.

Mike Fulfer of Dallas will present a special worship service directed at elementary-age children. Fulfer, who has a puppet ministry, has a special interest in children and young people.

A salad supper and fellowship hour will follow the 7 p.m. worship service at the church.

Special Events Scheduled

Two special events are scheduled for Sunday at Lubbock's first Nazarene Church, 46th Street and Avenue Q.

A film, "What Wives Wish Their Husbands Knew About Women," will be shown at 9:30 a.m. in the sanctuary. The film is one of the "Focus on the Family" series by Dr. James C. Dobson, author of the best seller of the same name.

Dr. Dobson is associate clinical professor of Pediatrics at the University of Southern California School of Medicine and a staff member of Children's Hospital of Los Angeles.

At 6 p.m. Sunday, a slide presentation, "Night of Nostalgia" will be presented. More than 200 slides taken of church groups and individuals in activities during 1979 will be shown.

The Rev. Eugene Sanders, pastor, says the public is invited to both events.

Quinn To Be Guest At Faith Christian

Wayne Quinn will be the guest speaker at both services Sunday at Faith Christian Fellowship, South Brownfield Highway, pastor Buddy Cantwell announced recently.

Quinn, a graduate of Sunset Church of Christ School of Preaching and an evangelist for the Churches of Christ for five years, will speak at the 10:30 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. services.

The public is invited to attend one or both of the services.

DICK VAN DYKE Is Coming Back Strong

Dick Van Dyke makes us as comfortable and relaxed before our television screens as any entertainer ever has. His walk, his laugh, his whole physical self seem made for comedy. But behind the professional comic is alcoholism, and within, a serious need for life fulfillment. Now he is playing a troubled middle-aged priest in The Runner Stumbles, in which he all but obliterates the comic for the tragic. Learn more of the touching experiences of Van Dyke's now happy, now bleak life in this week's FAMILY WEEKLY.

Singing in the New Year...

. . . is what Gramps called it! Every year at five to twelve he and Grandma would strike up a rousing chorus of Auld Lang Syne. Somehow we knew it would be a wonderful year because the family sang it in.

Facing the future as a family is a wonderful idea . . . not just on New Year's Eve, but every day in every season. Joys mean all the more when we share them with those we love. Disappointments are easier to accept when we stand together.

Every member of the family needs a shared spiritual foundation. The trust of each in God fortifies the faith of all the rest.

That is why our family worships together. And why, as we go forward into this exciting New Year, the song in our hearts is really a Hymn.

Scientist Predicts Larger Oil Patches To Hit Texas Shores

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Texas beaches could be hit with an oily onslaught worse than last summer's spill if a runaway Mexican oil well is not capped soon, according to a government scientist.

"We would expect the situation next summer to be more serious that last summer if the well continues to flow," said Dr. John Robinson of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

"Oil leaving the well at this moment has some probability of making it to the Texas coast. The chances of that increase each day the well is not capped," said Robinson, who directed the federal agency's efforts to monitor last summer's spill.

Robinson told the Corpus Christi Caller-Times Thursday that if the runaway Ixtoc I well is not capped soon there is a 30 percent chance oil will wash up in large concentrations between Port Aransas and Brownsville by late spring.

He said there is a 5 percent or 10 percent chance the oil could reach Brownsville by February.

Equipment used last summer to keep crude oil out of the ecologically sensitive intercoastal waterways will be returned to the South Texas coast in February or March, said Coast Guard Lt. Harry Baughan.

He said the equipment would be located at Port Aransas, Port O'Connor, Port Mansfield and Port Isabel.

"We'll be staging from there," if oil heads north again. "We already made plans for where it needs to be sent out," said Baughan.

Crude oil fouled about 140 miles of Texas' glistening resort beaches last summer. The spill dealt a damaging blow to the South Texas tourist industry and threatened coastal breeding grounds essential to the state's already beleaguered shrimpers.

"We can anticipate a more serious threat to the Texas coast than we had last summer," said Robinson.

He said the two major currents that have kept the oil away from Texas during the fall will shift by summer. And he said oil leaving the well after Christmas still could pose a threat to Texas beaches.

The Ixtoc I well has been spewing crude oil into the Bay of Campeche since it blew out June 3.

Workers have reduced the flow by forcing tennis-ball sized lead balls into the well.

Baughan said the Coast Guard still makes surveillance flights over the well site and monitors the drift of the spill. But he declined to comment on the reduction of flow from the well.

Coal Plant Under Consideration

DALLAS (AP) — Dwindling Texas energy supplies have prompted Texas Utilities Co. to consider constructing a West Texas power plant fired with Rocky Mountain coal.

Company officials say transportation costs make energy generated from Rocky Mountain coal more expensive than electricity from Texas lignite or nuclear power, but the situation likely will change by the late 1980s.

The company has a huge reserve of low-grade East Texas lignite coal, but the officials say that supply may not match consumer demand in another decade.

"We already have a considerable amount of lignite committed to other plants," said Ray Ward of Dallas Power & Light, a Texas Utilities subsidiary. "In the long range, you just have to be prepared."

Other Texas electric companies already have begun to import coal from strip mines in Rocky Mountain states, but the ever-increasing cost of rail transportation has caused legal and regulatory disputes.

Texas Utilities hopes to reduce transportation costs by building a plant as close to the supply as possible.

The company is looking at several locations in Ward County, just west of Midland-Odessa in the heart of West Texas' oilfields.

One advantage Texas Utilities may have is subsidiary Chaco Energy Co. of Albuquerque. Chaco plans to start mining at one site in 1983, and is obtaining permits for another location.

Eventually, Chaco expects to mine 12 million tons of coal a year — enough for three or four large power plants.

But both Chaco and Texas Utilities officials say they would not necessarily do business with each other.

The plant's size, and whether it would be built at all, will depend on the amount of water in Ward County, Ward said.

Two companies will begin feasibility studies on the water supply and other environmental factors in January, he said.

A problem Texas Utilities apparently won't have is opposition from Ward County residents.

Officials in the county seat Monahans, a town of 8,000, say they want the plant.

Mayor Richard Hoyer said the energy crisis is very real and he sees coal as the answer.

"As their mayor, I'm very definitely for it in every way," he said. "The only chance I see is for us to convert to coal in this country. This town is surrounded by 10,000 producing oil wells and the product is going down. It is not going up.

"I think it is ridiculous that the electric customers of this state have to pay a higher electric bill because of the pollution requirements that are put on the coal-fired plants," he added.

"I'd like to see it," said Sheriff John T. Ashcroft. "There'll be jobs ... and a lot of electricity."

Troubled Ship Enters Canal For Repairs

GALVESTON (UPI) — A listing, leaking Panamanian freighter moved up the Houston Ship Channel for repairs today, after Coast Guard divers determined it probably would not sink during the trip.

"She'll be escorted by a commercial tug as a precaution," said Petty Officer Larry Clark. "Her own pumps are capable of taking care of water already in the vessel."

The Eaglescliffe, owned by Cayman Shipping Corp. of Great Britain, was leaking fuel and taking on water when it arrived off Galveston early Wednesday morning.

Eaglescliffe crewmen broadcast an emergency call for help Christmas Day when water accumulating in the cargo holds caused it to list dangerously to one side. It was on a run from Mexico to Houston.

Originally, the captain of the Port of Houston refused to let the freighter enter the ship channel, demanding temporary repairs be made first.

"The last thing anyone wants to happen is for a ship to sink in the Houston Ship Channel and block all the traffic," Coast Guard ensign David Paxton said Wednesday. "It's a fairly old ship ... it has quite a few problems."

However, marine safety inspectors, representatives of the Panamanian Bureau of Shipping and Coast Guard divers Thursday determined the ship probably could navigate the ship channel without sinking, and the port captain gave permission for the trip.

"The divers found no apparent cause for the flooding but that's not conclusive," said Clark. "You can't do as good an inspection in open water as you can in a repair facility."

Divers reported finding water in two cargo holds, Clark said, but thought the ship's pumps could handle the seepage.

Clark said he did not know if the 268-foot freighter would put in for repairs immediately, or would be temporarily docked elsewhere waiting for a repair facility to become available.

The ship was listing 20-degrees Tuesday when the Coast Guard dropped five pumps to the stricken vessel. Crewmen worked for almost five hours to reduce the list to 5-degrees by the time the Eaglescliffe reached anchorage near Galveston.

Tech's Dean Bennett Gets High Ag Honor

Named Thompson Professor Of Finance

Dr. J. Wayland Bennett, associate dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences, has been named the first Charles C. Thompson Professor of Agricultural Finance at Texas Tech. Texas Tech Vice President for Academic Affairs Charles S. Hardwick made the announcement.

The chair honors Charles C. Thompson, president of the City National Bank of Colorado City since 1938 and chairman of the board of that institution. Because of his long interest in farm credit, stemming from the Depression era, Thompson is known as "Mr. Farm Credit." He also is an attorney, a rancher and a farmer.

Bennett is a director of the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas. He has taught in the Department of Agricultural Economics at Texas Tech since 1948. He has served on numerous agriculture and university committees and is a past president of the National Association of Colleges and Teachers of Agriculture. For several years he has coordinated Texas Tech's annual Banker's Agricultural Credit Conference.

Bennett earned his bachelor's degree from Texas Tech and served on the faculty for two years before going to Louisiana State University for his advanced degrees. He rejoined the Tech faculty in 1953 and has served the university as an assistant vice president for academic affairs, as head of the Department of Agricultural Economics and as acting dean and interim dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences. He also has been acting chairman of the Department of Agricultural Engineering. As associate dean of the college he is in charge of industry relations.

His primary professional interests involve problems dealing with agricultural credit and credit systems, agricultural cooperatives, agricultural policy related to the development of agriculture, the market structure for agricultural products, market development and efficiency, consumer problems and agricultural prices.

He is cited in American Men and Women of Science, Who's Who in Texas Today, Dictionary of International Biography and Who's Who in the South and Southwest.

At Texas Tech he has served as chairman of the Administrative Deans' Council and as member and chairman of numerous committees. He has been chairman of the Agricultural Economics Section, Southwestern Social Science Association, member of a four-man team appointed by Gov. John Connally to study the European Common Market and Texas Agriculture, and he has been a consultant to the U.S. Feed Grains Council for Grain Sorghum Market Potential in Egypt, to the Federal Land Bank of Houston, the Tennessee Higher Education Commission and resource consultant to the Natural Fibers Committee of the Texas House of Representatives.

The National Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges has cited him for his work on the Agricultural Business Committee. Resident cited him for his work on the Agricultural Business Committee, Resident Instruction Committee on Policy.

Bennett has served on the Board of Directors of the Texas Professional Agricultural Workers, the West Texas Water Institute, and the Southwest Lubbock Rotary International and the Workshop for the Blind.

Thompson, member of the Texas Tech Board of Directors from 1937 to 1957 and chairman from 1977 to 1956, is remembered on the Texas Tech campus by the residence hall named in his honor. He lives now on a 6,000-acre farm and ranch near Colorado City and practices law as a partner of the firm of Thompson and Rees. He has served on the board of the Texas Electric Service Company for the past 20 years and is a former Mitchell County judge.

He has a leading role in passage of the Farm Credit Act of 1971, and he honorary doctorate awarded by Texas Tech.

Big Year Looms For Hard Winter Wheat

Red Variety Tops List Of U.S. Bread Grains

By RODERICK TURNBULL
Kansas City Board of Trade

KANSAS CITY — This is a big year for hard red winter wheat — the biggest ever.

Of course, it is a big year for most other crops, too, with a record corn harvest and record soybean yields and so on.

Hard red winter wheat is the kind that is grown over what is generally described as the Great Plains, from Kansas City west. It is an area of from moderate to low rainfall. To the east of Kansas City mostly soft red winter wheat is grown. The rainfall is better and this area is known as the Corn Belt.

The world over, it is hard to grow a good hard wheat that makes quality bread where there is ample rainfall. The lack of moisture causes the wheat plant to struggle and the end result is a kernel higher in protein quality.

Many visitors to the Kansas City Board of Trade say they always supposed what was wheat; they didn't know there are five kinds of wheat produced in the U.S. and each has its own uses.

The biggest crop always is hard red winter. Next in total yield comes hard spring, raised in the northern states, followed by soft red winter, produced mostly in the Corn Belt.

Fourth in total yield is white wheat which is grown mainly in Washington, Oregon and Idaho with a relatively small quantity in Michigan. Fifth in total yield is durum and the big production state is North Dakota.

Ordinarily, about half or almost half of the nation's wheat crop is hard red winter. Also, ordinarily, about half of the total exports are hard red winter.

In 1979, the total wheat crop in the United States at 2.11 billion bushels was the third largest ever, but the average yield per acre at 34 bushels was a record. In other words, the reason we didn't have the largest crop in history was that not so many acres were harvested as in some previous years.

But the hard red winter crop at 1.1 billion bushels was a new record and it reflected record harvests in three big wheat states, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas. Not too many years ago a total wheat crop of a billion bushels was considered pretty good.

The quality on the 1979 hard red winter crop was good with protein averaging about 12 percent.

Demand for this kind of wheat appears to be exceptional this year.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture is projecting total wheat exports in this marketing year, which ends next June 1, at 1,400 million bushels, which would be a new record by far. Significant is the fact that hard red winter wheat exports are projected at 785 million bushels, considerably more than half the total.

It is interesting how the export demand has been rising. Hard winter wheat exports in the 1976-77 year amounted to 418 million bushels; in 1977-78 the total was 535 million bushels; in 1978-79 it ws 610 million bushels and, as mentioned, the projection for this marketing year, 1979-80, is 785 million bushels.

Domestic use of hard red winter, which includes uses for seed and food, is projected at 372 million bushels. Exports and domestic use, therefore, come to 1,157 million bushels as compared to the record harvest of 1,091 bushels. Obviously, if total use comes out as projected, there will be a drawn-down in the carry-over and that is exactly what the USDA is predicting. The carry-over on June 1, 1979 was 420 million bushels on hard red winter.

The carry-over estimated for next June 1 is 354 million bushels.

Smaller carry-overs also are estimated on hard spring and durum with the carry-over on all wheat estimated at 851 million bushels as of next June 1 compared with the carry-over of 925 million on last June 1.

The export demand for all U.S. wheats is good this year, but the major share of the increase over last year will be in hard red winter.

Hard red winter is recognized as a standard bred wheat around the world. Great Plains Wheat, a national growers' organization, in a chart on the various wheats produced in the USDA describes hard red winter as "high in protein, strong in gluten. Use for quality wheat breads and hard rolls."

The description on hard red spring is "highest in protein for use in quality yeast breads and hard rolls."

Durum: "Used for macaroni and spaghetti."

White: "Used for quick breads, pastries, crackers and noodles."

Soft Red Winter: "Used for quick breads, cookies, cakes and crackers."

Each wheat has certain characteristics which appeal to bakers with their individual specific requirements.

Hard spring with its high protein can be blended with lower protein wheat for many uses. While it has been explained that both hard red winter and hard spring are bread wheats, the hard red winter is a little more versatile and used also for "all-purpose" flour.

An illustration of the special for certain kinds of wheat is seen in the wheat grown in Michigan and that produced in the Northwest. A Kansas City miller says the Northwest white wheat is preferred for making ice cream cones over the Michigan variety.

The point is, all the wheats produced in the U.S. have their good uses, providing a variety to meet the specifications of almost any processor. But is does appear that over the last few years the export demand has been growing most on the hard red winter kind.

Research Group Reports Doubling Of Production

WASHINGTON (AP) — A research group says the United States has more than doubled its food production in the past 25 years, but will not be able to continue expanding crop production indefinitely.

Lester Brown, president of the nonprofit Worldwatch Institute, said there is a diminishing crop return from the use of chemical fertilizers. In addition, he said, land used for grain every year is eroding instead of being rotated into hay crops or grass.

Brown, in a copyrighted interview with U.S. News & World Report magazine, said world grain reserves are expected to drop from 226 million tons to 195 million tons because of poor harvests this year in the Soviet Union, China and India.

Farm Number Across U.S. Still Falling

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The number of American farms declined 1.6 percent to 2.33 million this year, continuing a 44-year trend toward fewer and larger farms, the Agriculture Department said recently.

In an annual estimate, the government said the average American farm was 450 acres, six acres larger than in 1978. Farmland totaled 1.049 billion acres, down 0.3 percent from last year.

The number of American farms peaked at 6.81 million in 1935.

A steadily declining number of farms since then was one of the factors that prompted Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland to call for a national dialogue on the future of agriculture.

Earlier this year, he warned that a handful of giant operators would control future American food production "if we don't act now."

He recently completed 10 public hearings throughout the nation to listen to the public's ideas about the future of the family farm.

Bergland said he is convinced that the family-owned and operated farm has proven economic and social worth, but that much of the support for family farm is "lip service."

Bergland noted that a decline in the number of farms has endangered the economic health of rural communities.

By 1950, the number of farms fell to 5.65 million and the average farm was 213 acres. A Decade later, farm numbers fell to 3.96 million and the average farm was 297 acres.

The estimated number of farms in Texas dipped from 161,000 on Jan. 1, 1979, to 159,000 on Jan. 1, 1980.

Researchers Focusing On Miracle

By ROBERT L. HANEY
Texas Agricultural Experiment Station

Imagine the possibilities of a high efficiency crop that would furnish us with food for humans, feed for livestock, fuel for vehicles, and fiber for pressed wood or paper.

Plant breeders at Texas A&M University say such a miraculous crop is perfectly feasible, and they're working on it right now.

The project, being conducted by scientists with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at College Station and Welslaco, will have five statewide testing sites in the spring of 1980.

The Department of Energy through Batelle, Columbus Division, is funding the research being done by Drs. Richard Creelman and Fred Miller.

The appeal of a source of renewable energy, along with production of food, feed and fiber, is irresistible to a nation having to import more than half of the energy it uses.

Though a number of present crops can be used to manufacture industrial alcohol, the yield over and above the energy used to produce the crop, is too low. Such plants have been developed primarily to produce grain, sugar, wood, or some other special product.

All plants capture solar energy, and through a process called photosynthesis, convert it and the nutrients it has absorbed from the soil solution into sugar of forms of starch.

But plants vary widely in their efficiency as solar factories. Sugarcane and sorghum are among the most efficient at the conversion of solar energy and are being studied as sources of renewable energy.

Sorghum has several attractive characteristics that make it an obvious choice for development as our multi-purpose crop.

Sorghum hybrids, first developed by Experiment Station scientists in Texas, have already demonstrated the ability to produce grain that can be used for food or feed.

Their present short stature was deliberately developed by Station scientists for convenience in mechanical harvesting. But they can readily change the plant so it will grow as much as 10 or 12 feet tall if needed, and greatly increase the total amount of plant material produced per acre. But present plans envision a 6.5-to 7-foot plant in order to utilize present harvesting equipment.

And from the sweet sorghums developed in recent years, the scientists can add the ability to prouduce a large yields of sugar and starch that can serve as a source of industrial alcohol.

In addition, sorghums have a much wider area of adaptability than sugarcane so they can be grown in most areas of the state.

The potential exists to develop a sorghum that has both high stalk sugar content and yields of 6,000 to 7,000 pounds of grain per acre.

Whole-plant utilization would result in high energy yield. Stalks could be crushed and the extract used for production of crystaltalline sugar and molasses for animal feed or for fermentation for energy.

The grain could be used for human consumption (presently world's fifth leading food grain), livestock feed, or, through enzymatic breakdown of starches and fermentation to alcohol, for energy.

The residue of stalks could be used for production of fiberboard and paper.

"Because of the long growing season in South Texas, high energy sorghum will be rotated with soybeans and other suitable crops," Creelman says.

"The second crop is expected to contribute nitrogen it removes from the air and increase the organic buildup in the soil, in addition to serving as a cash grain crop," Miller concluded.

Soil Conservation Plan Fundamental For Farmer

Just as a person can not build a good house without a plan, a farmer cannot maintain or improve his basic asset of soil without a conservation plan, according to John Tate of Lubbock, soil conservationist.

"Besides managing and conserving soil and water for future use and future generations, conservation practices can also help cut down on farm expenses and increase yields," Tate said.

Soils and slopes not only vary from farm to farm, Tate pointed out, but many vary in different fields on the same farm. Also, the way farmers manage individual farms and the equipment and tools used varies greatly.

But one thing almost all farmers do alike is plan how to produce crops in a more efficient manner, Tate said.

"The main role of a soil conservation district is to encourage and assist landowners and operators to make and carry out conservation plans," he said. "Each conservation plan is made especially to fit a particular farm or field on that farm."

Included in the plan, Tate said, is a conservation map, a soil classification map, an engineering plan map and a plan of operations.

The plan of operations includes such things as cropping systems, crop residue use, designed irrigation systems and irrigation water management plans when needed, he noted.

"The farm owner or operator and the soil conservationist can disucss the problems on a particular farm and discuss alternatives and improvement opportunities," the soil conservationist said.

Tate urged any farmer in need of conservation plan to contact one of the soil conservationists at Soil Conservation Service offices located in each county.

"A local farmer said it all when he said 'I have to take care of my land so it will take care of me,'" Tate said.

Livestock Futures Close Lower As Mart Turns Down

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 15 to 17 points lower with January under the most pressure after slipping 112. Sales totaled 21,370 cars Thursday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. The market turned downward following an early gain of 32 in August.

Much of the selling appeared to be profit taking after one month highs Wednesday. The market reacted even though beef held steady and Panhandle prices rose to $71. Some early buying was motivated by an industry outlook for light beef supplies and high prices next year.

Deliveries total 1,225 thus far. Wholesale beef was unchanged at 108½ cents a pound, f.o.b. river points. Cash cattle were off 50 cents to firm with the best top $70.25 per hundredweight at Indianapolis. Slaughter was 120,000 head. About 2,600 head are expected today at the major terminals.

Feeder cattle futures closed 70 to 125 lower led by November after March fell 127. Volume was 2,373 lots. Prices faltered after gaining 25 early.

Early support carried over from Wednesday and followed light feeder runs and mostly higher prices along with steady beef. Some of the reaction came from slippage in live cattle futures and offset projections for continued light beef production and high prices in 1980.

Cash feeder cattle were up $6 to off $2 with the best top $101. The major markets are expecting about 900 head today.

Hog futures closed 52 higher to 47 lower on 6,524 lots. June was up the most after gaining 62 with December at the most loss after slipping 67.

The market moved erratically after Wednesday's advances and posted one-week highs and lows in mostly local trade. Support continued on the pig crop report with selling influenced by the prospect of heavy pork supplies and weakness in cash hogs.

There have been 40 deliveries thus far. Wholesale hams were unchanged to off 2 at 65 to 66 cents a pound, f.o.b. river. Cash hogs were steady to off $2 with the best top $40.25 per hundredweight at Indianapolis. Kill was 357,000 head. Receipts at the major markets today are expected to total 24,000 head.

Pork belly (bacon) futures closed 32 lower to 7 higher on 5,577 lots. February led the delcine with March the only gainer. The market was off 132 to up 72 in erratic trade.

February slumped to the lowest in two monhts on continued selling from Wednesday. Pressure came from heavy hog runs and lower prices coupled with the outlook for heavy pork supplies next year. Late support spilled over from hog futurues with steady cash bellies at noon also a factor.

Wholesale bacon was unchanged at 30 to 41½ cents a pound, f.o.b. river.

Beef Supplies Reduction In 1980 Forecast

WASHINGTON (AP) — Shoppers will see a further reduction in beef supplies in 1980, the American Meat Institute said Thursday.

But the industry group said the beef crunch will not be as severe as in 1979 and that because of increased supplies of pork and poultry, "prices for meat will be reasonable" next year.

After severely reducing herds for more than three years, cattle producers have begun to rebuild their breeding inventories. That will mean more beef in the long run, but it will take at least several more years.

The institute said beef output by slaughter plants is expected to decline by about 4 percent, only one-third of the 12 percent reduction in 1979.

Meanwhile, hog and poultry producers continue to boost output. Thus, the institute said, total red meat production in 1980 will be "close to" 38.1 billion pounds, up by 1 percent from 1979 but still shy of the record 39.7 billion pounds produced in 1977.

C. Manly Molpus, president of the institute, said overall meat consumption in 1980 — as measured by weights of carcasses before they are cut up for retail sales — is expected to average about 181 pounds per capita, compared to 181.2 pounds in 1979.

The Agriculture Department has forecast a further decline in beef output next year by around 3 percent. But it also predicted that larger supplies of pork and poultry will take some steam out of beef price increases.

WANTED: FIRE CHIEF

FORT WORTH (AP) — The City of Fort Worth is advertising nationally for applicants to replace Fire Chief R.L. "Bob" Himes, who will retire March 31. For the first time in its 106-year history, the city is not restricting its search to its fire department for the $42,000-a-year post. This week, Fort Worth sent brochures to fire departments throughout the Southwest.

'Tinkerers' Acclaimed In Battle For Energy

GRIMES, Iowa (UPI) — They brave cold, mud, rain and snow to visit Dennis Day these days, literally beating a path over dirt roads to his central Iowa farm.

Jane Fonda and her activist husband, Tom Hayden, stopped by one week. Ten days later, Energy Secretary Charles Duncan paid Day a visit, accompanied by a documentary film crew.

On the advice of Miss Fonda and Hayden, California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. brought his presidential campaign to the farm. Then came engineers from John Deere, scientists from Iowa State University.

All came for the same thing. Their pilgrimages to what is known only part in jest as the Mecca of the alternate fuels movement are for insight into Day's technique for efficiently producing alcohol from corn.

Three specially designed tanks hold corn mash, the "fuel" for fermentation, which when treated with enzymes and heated can produce alcohol ranging in purity from 140 proof to 190 proof.

"I've got to be honest with you. It's really premature for you to be here," Day said as he showed the contraption to Brown, his aides and reporters. "Sometimes it works and sometimes it doesn't. It's still premature, but it seems like everyone wants to see it."

The fascination with Day's work is that it is geared toward efficiency. If successful, it could radically alter the age-old chemical process for making alcohol.

Although his still is experimental, it is regarded a bright star on the country's energy horizon.

"This is the kind of pioneering spirit we like to see," Duncan said after inspecting the unit Day hopes to use to make his farm self-reliant for fuel for its vehicles.

As energy prices have soared and the search for alternate fuels has intensified, alcohol has caught the attention of entrepeneurs and policymakers. The potential role of alcohol — used either alone or in combination with unleaded gasoline to make gasohol — has been widely debated.

For one thing, alcohol production is energy-intensive, requiring more energy than it produces.

Also, its present cost makes alcohol uneconomical without government subsidies. As the use of gasohol has increased, those government subsidies have risen, leading critics to suggest the money could be more wisely spent elsewhere.

Despite this, alcohol won greater acceptance from the Energy Department during Duncan's first two months in office than it did under his predecessor, James Schlesinger.

One high-level DOE official attributed the change to Duncan's commitment to public input to policy-making and a redirected emphasis toward smaller scale energy projects.

Schlesinger was a devotee of so-called "hard technologies."

"Schlesinger was brilliant, but his people only wanted to deal with billion-dollar fusion research projects and huge undertakings like coal gasification or other esoteric things," the source said.

Day is in the forefront of the alternative fuels movement. But he is not alone.

Enterprising farmers throughout the Midwest are producing their own alcohol, building windmills to turn generators, burning methane gas from animal waste and integrating their far-flung endeavors into on-the-farm energy units.

Near LeMars, Westmar College physics professor Robert Franklin built a windmill with a 24-foot blade that powers a refrigeration system. It ultimately could be used to generate electricity.

Not far from the Dennis Day farm, 70-year-old John Lorenzen uses a system of 85-year-old batteries juiced by windpowered generators to store a week's worth of electricity.

Lorenzen, an amateur inventor, has never had his farm hooked up to outside power supplies.

In his solar-heated machine shop, Lorenzen is building a system using hydrogen gas produced from water to power a six-cylinder engine and a 500-amp generator.

"If this energy war is going to be won, it's going to be won by the people — the small inventors and tinkerers — on battlefields like these farms," said a DOE official.

"We ignored these people for too long. But we realize that and are committed to doing whatever he can to encourage this kind of inventiveness."

Duncan listened intently during a private meeting in which Day launched into a passionate sermon on energy self-sufficiency and the benefits that could be reaped from a proliferation of self-contained farm energy systems in the years to come.

Like other inventive farmers, Day is critical of the way the DOE snubbed alcohol fuels until recently. He also is miffed at the lack of technical assistance the government has provided.

DOE Regional Administrator Mary O'Halloran said a series of grants establishing training programs at community colleges should help forge a partnership between the government and small-scale inventors.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain and soybean futures fell Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade, depressed by an increase in cash corn sales and forecasts of better weather for winter wheat.

A spate of late-session liquidation by local traders and brokerage houses, triggered in part by lower corn and wheat futures, carried soybean futures lower. "It was mostly internal, and it overwhelmed some outside buying" by commercial interests, said a soybean trader.

Brisk cash corn sales by farmers in the wake of a price rally Wednesday led to commercial hedge-type selling of futures, depressing corn prices.

Forecasts of rain for parts of the winter wheat belt pushed traders' concerns about development of the crop into the background. Profit-taking and technical factors, plus some increase in cash sales in the country, erased the gains scored in Wednesday's rally.

At the close, soybeans were 7 to 11 cents lower, January $6.53½; wheat was 4 to 9½ cents lower, March $4.59; corn was 3 to 4¾ cents lower, March $2.89¼; oats were 2½ cents lower to 1 cent higher, March $1.60¼.

Plaintiffs
V.
LUBBOCK COUNTY BEVERAGE ASSOCIATION; CECIL'S, INC.; CROSSED KEYS PACKAGE STORE, INC.; PINKIE'S INC.; THE ALL STAR COMPANY; BOB J. GRIMES; HUBERT ODOM; AND KENNETH F. ODOM, Defendants.

CIVIL ACTION NO. CA5-76-130
CLASS ACTION

NOTICE OF PENDENCY OF CLASS ACTION AND OF RIGHTS OF CLASS MEMBERS

TO: all persons who purchased retail alcoholic beverages, including beer and wine, during the period from March 1967 through December 1974 from retail stores located in Lubbock County, Texas, owned, operated or controlled by Pinkie's, Inc., Cecil's, Inc., Crossed Keys Package Store, Inc., The All Star Company, Bob Grimes, Hubert Odom, or Kenneth Odom. A person is a retail purchaser if such a purchase was not for resale or solely for profit. Retail purchases of alcoholic beverages include purchases by private clubs for its members and case lot purchases.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN to you that the plaintiff above named has filed a suit in the above entitled United States District Court in behalf of himself and all members of the class herein adressed. By order dated September 18, 1978, the Court determined that this action should be maintained as a class action under the provisions of Rule 23(b)(3) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and directed the giving of notice to class members.

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN as follows:

1. Plaintiff's Complaint alleges a comspiracy among the defendants to raise, fix, stabilize and maintain the prices at which retail alcoholic beverages, including beer and wine, were sold in retail stores located in Lubbock County, Texas, owned and operated by the defendants named above. The time period of the allleged conspiracy extended from as early as March 1967 until at least December 1974. As a result of the alleged unlawful conspiracy plaintiff and other members of the class were compelled to pay substantially higher prices for retail alcoholic beverages purchased at these retail stores than they would have paid in the absence of such a conspiracy to the injury of the plaintiff and the members of the class. Recovery of money damages is sought for three times the amount of the alleged overcharge on the purchases made from the defendants by plaintiff and the members of the class. Recovery is also sought for attorneys' fees and costs of this suit. The overcharge is the difference between the higher price for alcoholic beverages resulting from the alleged conspiracy and the pirce at which such alcoholic beverages would have been sold in the absence of such conspiracy. In response to the plaintiff's claims, all defendants have denied any wrong doing and have denied any liability to plaintiff or any member of the class. This Notice is not to be construed as an expression of any opinion by the Court with respect to the merits of the claims or defenses of any of the parties. This Notice is sent merely to advise you of the pendency of the action and the rights which you have respect to it.

2. The Court will exclude any member of the class to whom this Notice is addressed on written request for such exclusion on the attached "Request for Exclusion" form, postmarked on or before February 1, 1980. Persons who request such exclusion will not be entitled to share in the benefits of the judgment if it is favorable to the plaintiff, and will not be bound by the judgment if it is adverse to the plaintiff. All requests for exclusion should be mailed by First Class Mail to the Clerk of the United States District Court for the Northern District of Texas, Lubbock Division, at P.O. Box 10412, Lubbock, Texas 79408. All class members who do not elect to return the Request for Exclusion form above referred to in the manner and within the time specified above will automatically be included in the class in this action as members of the class represented by the plaintiff.

3. All members of the class who do not request exclusion as prescribed in the preceding paragraph, and who are therefore deemed to have elected to participate in this action, will be entitled to share prorata in the benefits of any judgment favorable to the class or in any settlement of their claims, after deduction of attorneys' fees and disbursements, but they will also be bound by any judgment unfavorable to the class. Included class members will also be subject to the orders and notices hereafter given in this action with reference to the furnishing of statments and other matters of that nature.

4. If any class member does not desire to be excluded, but does wish to appear in his own behalf, such class member may enter an appearance through counsel of his own choosing. All members who do not request exclusion or who do not enter an appearance through counsel of their own choosing will be represented by plaintiff throughout his counsel hereinafter named.

5. Counsel for plaintiff and for members of the class included in this action is the law firm of Locke, Purnell, Boren, Laney & Neely (A Professional Corporation), whose address is 3600 Republic National Bank Tower, Dallas, Texas 75201, and whose telephone number is (214) 746-7400. All communications and questions concerning this notice should be sent to such attorneys, c/o Stanley E. Neely, Orrin Harrison III, or Nathan L. Hecht at that firm and should not be addressed to the Clerk of this Court.

6. If you have not recieved this notice in the mail and you are a member of the class, you may request that your name be included on the list of persons who receive individual notice by mail by completing the "Request for Individual Notice" form which is attached to this Notice and mailing such Request for Individual Notice to the Clerk of Northern District of Texas, Lubbock Division, at P.O. Box 10412, Lubbock, Texas 79408. Persons who request individual notice will receive any further notices which may occur in this lawsuit by mail.

7. This Court has retained jurisdiction in this action to correct, modify, annul, vacate, or supplement its order determining that this cause shall be maintained as a class action, at any time before the trial of this action.

8. The pleadings and other papers filed in this action are available for inspection in the offices of the Clerk of this Court at the United States Courthouse in Lubbock.

Other speakers will discuss control of sand shinnary oak, creosotebush, tarbrush, West Texas weeds and broom snakeweed. The effects of control on wildfield habitat and watershed will also be covered.

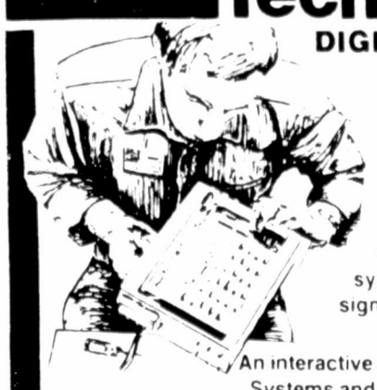
Q.A. Electronic Technicians



DIGITAL & ANALOG
The introduction of new electronic systems has created openings in our Quality Assurance Department for Electronics graduates or job experienced pros interested in modern analog and digital systems including newly designed microprocessor based instrumentation.
An interactive approach between Analog Systems and Digital Logic, this work involves fabrication and testing with state-of-the-art digital and/or analog equipment at component and systems level. End product is a minicomputer based D/A hybrid system used for oil well logging in real time.
If you've had 2+ years of related experience or are a recent graduate in electronics, please send your resume in confidence to the Employment Supervisor. This just may be the opportunity you've been waiting for.

10 Prisoners Killed In Second Jail Blaze

LANCASTER, S.C. (AP) — While inmates yelled for help behind locked doors, a fire sent smoke billowing through a 156-year-old county jail, killing 10 prisoners two weeks before the building was scheduled to be closed.

Only three prisoners survived the fire Thursday night on the second floor of the Lancaster County Jail, a white, two-story masonry structure designed by the architect who planned the Washington Monument, authorities said.

The county was scheduled to move the jail and offices of the sheriff's department in two weeks to a new building on the outskirts of Lancaster, officials added.

Two inmates and a firefighter were hospitalized with smoke inhalation. Inmate Roy Dunlap was in critical condition, and inmate Ralph Cole and firefighter Joe Murphy were in satisfactory condition, said Alice Haddox, spokeswoman at Elliott White Springs Memorial Hospital.

Capt. J. Leon Gasque, assistant director of the State Law Enforcement Division, said investigators had not determined how the fire started. "We have some suspicions but I'd rather not say more at this point."

Hugh Munn, a division spokesman, said the jailer, L.C. McAteer, and a highway patrolman, L.N. Alexander, were on the second floor with the 13 inmates when the fire broke out about 6:15 p.m.

The two officers and Cole, a trusty who was downstairs, smelled smoke and ran to open the jail doors. Munn said Cole opened one of two doors to the cellblock, but was unable to open the other door, which may have been blocked by the body of an unconscious inmate.

While Cole was trying to unlock the second door, he heard the men inside calling for help, Munn said. The heavy smoke filled the jail and forced Cole and the officers to retreat.

During a fire at the same jail in October, Cole was credited with rescuing prisoners by going into smoke-filled corridors and opening cells. That fire was started by a youth who ignited a mattress.

The cause of death for the 10 who did not escape Thursday night's fire was undetermined, "but it looks like smoke inhalation," Gasque said. Autopsies were scheduled at the University of South Carolina in Charleston.

Sheriff Nae E. Parks told reporters the jail has never been condemned but that the county had received a letter several months ago from the state Corrections Department saying that "certain deficiencies had to be corrected, and they were corrected." He declined to say what the deficiencies were.

"This building was fixing to be done away with," Gasque said. He said it was "one of the old Mills-designed jails, and it's like a fortress."

The jail was one of a number of South Carolina buildings designed by Robert Mills, a Charleston, S.C., architect who was later named architect of public buildings in Washington, D.C., by President Andrew Jackson.

The sheriff said the jail is heated by an oil furnace on the first floor and the prisoners sleep on cotton mattresses.

The 10 victims were identified by Coroner Richard Chandler as Praylor Haggins Jr., 22, and Larry Cauthen, 22, both of Heath Springs; Oswald Poage, 32, of Charlotte, N.C.; Dennis Rollings, 23, Curtis Frazier, 47, William Sims, 54, and Sammie Stinson, 51, all of Lancaster; John C. Lynn Jr., 23, and Gary D. Melton, 19, both of Jefferson; and Keith H. Jones, 24, Huntsville, Ala.

Frazier was charged with assault and battery with intent to kill. The rest were jailed for lesser charges, such as breaking and entering and public drunkenness, authorities said.

The blaze was not the South's worst jail fire in recent years. On June 26, 1977, 42 persons — including 33 inmates and nine visitors — died in a fire at the Maury County Jail in Columbia, Tenn.

Test Missile Falls Miles From Target

LOMPOC, Calif. (AP) — Investigators were searching Santa Barbara County ranchland today for charred pieces of the second experimental cruise missile in less than a month to fall short of its target in Utah and crash near a populated area of California.

The Air Force said Thursday an unarmed General Dynamics AGM-109 missile slammed into ranchland southwest of this town of 26,500 people, some 800 miles off-target.

The missile was launched from a B-52 bomber over the Pacific Ocean and flew 45 minutes on its way to the Utah Test and Training Range before crashing in gently sloping grasslands near the coast 125 miles northwest of Los Angeles.

"We got a call from a rancher's wife who said it's just off Jalama Road," said Air Force Capt. Leonard Brady at Vandenberg Air Force Base, 15 miles from the crash site.

The missile went down about a mile from the picturesque coast route, state Highway 1, Brady said, and also near heavily traveled U.S. 101.

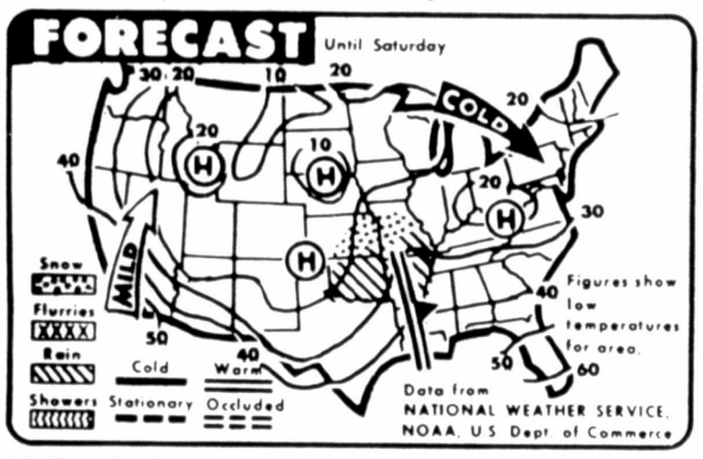
It took four hours to find the missile buried in the heavy brush.

"Part of the problem in finding the missile is that there was no fire and no smoke," said Air Force Lt. Col. Guy Brown, who works with the cruise missile program at Edwards Air Force Base, 100 miles east of the crash site, where the B-52 launch planes are based.

No injuries or damage to buildings were reported, and aside from the rancher's wife, local authorities said nobody called about the crash.

Brown said the missile was destroyed in the crash and that the area was cordoned off by Air Force security officers.

It was the third crash in three attempts by General Dynamics over the Pacific flight path to Utah. Cruise missiles, which hug the contours of the earth to undercut radar defenses, have a 1,400-mile range.



WEATHER FORECAST — Cold weather is expected in the forecast period until Saturday morning from the northern Rockies to New England. Mild weather is forecast for the Southwest. Other areas will be seasonably cool. Rain is forecast for Oklahoma and Arkansas. Snow is expected for eastern Kansas and Missouri. (AP Laserphoto)

Deadline Set For Teachers

CLEVELAND (AP) — Following overwhelming rejection of the school board's latest pay proposals, a judge told both sides to resolve a 72-day-old teacher strike by today or he would step into the walkout that has kept 92,000 students out of classes since October.

Judge Frederick M. Coleman declined to say what action he might take if the issue were not settled today, but he agreed that one alternative was to issue a back-to-work order to the Cleveland Teachers Union.

Coleman called the two sides into his Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Court chambers after the teachers rejected by a nearly 4-1 margin the board's latest pay proposals.

A school board request for an injunction to end the strike is pending with Coleman, who took it under advisement three weeks ago and asked for intensive negotiations to try to settle the dispute.

School Board President John E. Gallagher said the pay offer was the best the board could do. "We simply don't have the money to improve the package," he said.

Officials of the debt-ridden school system have said their expenditures have been cut as deeply as they can be. The state Department of Education says inspectors found conditions so bad last year that none of the 150 Cleveland schools met minimum standards.

Coleman ordered the board's final offers put to a vote despite opposition of CTU leaders. The union said the latest proposals were little different from the original offer the teachers voted down before striking on Oct. 18.

The ballots sent to 5,200 teachers offered the choice of accepting one of two alternative pay offers or rejecting both. One offer would have given the teachers 7 percent salary increases retroactive to Sept. 1, plus 9 percent next Sept. 1; the second included a 10 percent increase Dec. 31 and another 10 percent on Dec. 31, 1980.

Chicago Union Seeks Lien

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Teachers Union, seeking back pay for its members, has filed for a $250 million lien on board of education property.

Union President Robert M. Healey said Thursday that the suit asked that an appraiser be appointed to determine the value of the board's real estate and that an administrator be directed to sell some of it, including land at Midway Airport and downtown.

Healey said the board, like any other organization with financial problems, should sell assets to pay its bills.

However, Gov. James R. Thompson said later Thursday that selling school property would be a mistake. He said the land probably is "of more value as collateral for a loan than it is in outright sale."

Thompson met with Republican state legislators Thursday to discuss the schools' financial crisis and said the lawmakers agreed with his refusal to loan state money to the schools unless the city and banks share the risks in a school rescue plan.

John S. Leavitt Cargo Schooner Foundering On Maiden Voyage

WESTHAMPTON BEACH, N.Y. (UPI) — The John S. Leavitt, the nation's first sailing cargo vessel in 40 years, began taking on water on its maiden voyage in choppy seas 280 miles southeast of Long Island Thursday. All nine persons aboard were rescued by the Air National Guard.

Today the Coast Guard cutter Chase was en route from Boston to the foundering vessel. "Assuming that the ship is still there, if they can control the flooding, they will try to take her in tow," a spokesman said.

Ned Ackerman, 37, the skipper and owner of the 97-foot, twin-masted schooner, said the Leavitt was on its maiden commercial voyage to Haiti from Quincy, Mass., with a load of lumber when it began taking on water in 20-foot seas.

Although it was not immediately clear exactly what caused the vessel to begin sinking, it was reported that the ship's pumps broke so it could not bail out water it had taken on, the Coast Guard spokesman said.

The Air National Guard safely rescued a crew of five and four passengers, members of a film crew, soon after the distress signal went out. The film crew reportedly was preparing documentary on the revival of sailing schooners. A Coast Guard cutter sailed out of Boston late Thursday to assess whether the ship, which had not sunk, could be saved. Ackerman said that because of the 75 to 80 tons of lumber cargo aboard he believes that it might not sink.

The trouble-plagued ship, named after a Connecticut writer and artist, was launched with extensive media coverage Aug. 8 in Thomaston, Maine.

Shortly after it was launched, the ship — the first of its type built in the United States in 40 years — ran aground on a muddy mussel shoal in the St. George River in Thomaston.

Ackerman said the ship had been making good headway in a 20-to 30-knot northeast wind Wednesday night, when the wind shifted to the northwest and increased to 45 to 50 knots.

"We were getting the water from both sides and the vessel was rolling," he said. "The motion was violent. First we were listing 35 degrees to port and then 25 degrees to starboard."

Ackerman said the winds started to increase again and at about 1:30 p.m. Thursday, he sent a mayday call on the ship's radio.

The 106th Aerospace Rescue and Recovery Group, alerted by the Coast Guard, sent out two helicopters and a Hercules 130 air tanker, which accompanied the helicopters and refueled them on the way to the scene, about 190 miles east of Nantucket Island, Mass.

Ackerman's wife, Frances Yates, said in a telephone interview from her New Jersey home that she didn't know "if an engine would have helped one bit."

She called the sinking "the perfect example of the most modern jet crashing on its maiden voyage, but here it was the classic cargo ship without an engine."

Court Rules Number Name Not Acceptable

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The number 1069 is not acceptable, but One Zero Six Nine might be OK, the Minnesota Supreme Court ruled today in denying a Minneapolis man's legal bid to be named a number.

Michael Herbert Dengler, a former social studies teacher, has been calling himself 1069 for five years, saying the numerals have "personal significance" and relate to his philosophy of life.

He got his bank, the Social Security Administration and several state agencies to recognize him as 1069, which he pronounces as One Zero Six Nine.

But a utility company and the Minnesota Drivers' License Division wouldn't go along unless the numeral had court approval, and two years ago Dengler filed suit seeking a legal name change. Two years before that, he was rebuffed by the North Dakota Supreme Court.

In its unanimous ruling, the Minnesota Supreme Court said Dengler is free to call himself 1069 as a common-law right, but noted the American social and economic system is geared to identifying individuals by letters rather than numbers.

"If he chooses to adopt a name which simply subjects himself to contempt, ridicule and inconvenience, he has a common law and statutory right to do so," said Justice James Otis for the Supreme Court.

In suggesting a spelled-out number, such as One Zero Six Nine, the court said in a footnote that the first and last words would be phonetically the same as a name such as "Juan Nyen."

The court upheld a February 1978 decision by District Court Judge Donald Barbeau, who said it would be "dehumanizing" for any person to be known only by number. The judge likened it to the numbers tattooed on prisoners in World War II concentration camps.

To allow a legal name change to a number "would hasten the day in which we all become lost in a faceless number," Barbeau said, also quoting from Shakespeare: "Who steals my purse steals trash ... He that filches from me my good name robs me of that which ... makes me poor indeed."

Dengler, divorced with two children living with their mother, is described in court records as a naturalized citizen, born in Germany. He was not available for comment on today's ruling.

In arguments before Barbeau in October 1977, Dengler's attorney, Stefan Tolin, said his client lost his teaching job in Fargo, N.D., because of the name issue.

Federal Team Probing Fatal Airplane Crash

DENVER (UPI) — Federal investigators want to know why the nose-cone cargo door of a light plane flew open in midflight, spilling luggage into a propeller and sending the aircraft plunging to the ground, killing all five people aboard.

An investigative team, led by Verlin Tranter of the National Transportation Safety Board, looked over the snow-covered wreckage of the twin-engine Cessna 421 Golden Eagle Thursday in an effort to find out the circumstances that led to the crash Wednesday minutes after takeoff. Killed were five California residents who were headed for Sun Valley, Idaho, after a skiing holiday in the mountains.

The plane slammed into the ground in the Colorado Rockies about 20 feet north of Interstate 70 two miles northeast of the Eagle County Airport, a general aviation facility serving the Vail, Colo., ski area.

Officials said a nose-cone cargo hatch sprang open causing luggage to fall and jam a propeller. Several witnesses said they saw the baggage fly from the plane as the pilot turned the aircraft and tried to return to the airport.

Snow fell in the area throughout the day Thursday, but officials said it did not hamper their investigation into why the malfunction occurred.

John Coffey, chief of the Eagle Flight Service, said that just after takeoff, the pilot reported he had a problem and planned to return to the airport. That was the last radio contact.

Eagle County Sheriff's Investigator Jim Cummins was parked in the westbound lane of Interstate 70 near the airport and witnessed the crash. He said the propeller on the right engine was not moving and the plane "looked like it was going to fall on my car."

"There was a small fire and the plane was still burning when I got there," Cummins said.

The dead were identified as the pilot, Allen Raffee, 50, president of Design for Living Inc. of San Diego, Calif., a carpet and drapery subcontracting firm; his son, Mark, 25; daughter-in-law Kathleen, 25; daughter Karen, 20; and Robin Rodgers, 23, a secretary for the firm.

TODAY'S STOCK PRICES

Stock Mart Standoff Continues

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was little changed today as the standoff that has prevailed all week continued.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials edged up .26 to 840.36 by noontime.

Advances slightly outnumbered declines among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The price of gold, which has dominated the attention of traders for the past several days, showed some signs of leveling off around record levels today.

In London, gold was fixed at $515 an ounce in the morning and $512 in the afternoon.

Also contributing to the mood of caution were reports of oil price increases by Iraq and Indonesia.

Central & South West led the active list, up ⅛ at 13⅞. A 200,000-share block traded at 14.

Among precious metals issues, Dome Mines rose ⅞ to 50⅜, but ASA was down ⅝ at 38 and Homestake Mining lost ⅝ to 47⅞. Hecla Mining was unchanged at 35¾.

The NYSE's composite index rose .05 to 61.96. The American Stock Exchange market value index, which closed Thursday at an all-time high, climbed another 1.89 to 246.77.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 15.30 million shares at noontime, against 13.67 million at the same point Thursday.

Critics Claim Education Declined During 1970s

By PATRICIA McCORMICK
United Press International Writer

American education, in a nosedive during the 1970s, needs magic touches to pull itself together in the 1980s.

Magic, in this case, is also spelled d-i-s-c-i-p-l-i-n-e. It is also spelled: v-a-l-u-e-s. And: co-m-p-e-t-e-n-c-e.

Such magic, many studies claimed at decade's end, has been missing in larger and larger quantitites in grade and high school and colleges.

The critics are especially concerned about the decline of competence as a goal — both in learning and teaching.

By every yardstick, during the 1970s, the going was rough along the academic trail — from grade and high school to higher education. The decade, said informed critics in ivory towers and among taxpyer groups, was not the finest on the American school scene.

And the 1980s, with inflation, higher energy costs, a recession and taxpayer resistance to frills, promises the new decade will be a lot tougher for teachers and administrators. "Do better," is the mandate from consumers and taxpayers.

Proof of the education's nosedive of the '70s:

—A decade dip in college entrance examinations, one mark of how the schools are doing. Panels of experts probing skids in the Scholastic Aptitude Test — SAT — blamed everything from television to violence in society and Watergate. The tests, which measure verbal and math skills, are used to predict ability to succeed in college. But the tests themselves are under pressure. Congress is being asked to consider for the nation a law simular to one passed in New York state and effective Jan. 1. This law says the testing agencies must make available to consumers all the answers on request. And show how an individual's test was scored. This is to catch mistakes in scoring, among other things. The multi-million dollar testing industry is fighting the proposal.

—The decline in achievement among high school youths has a very simple explanation, according to Dr. Gabriel G. Nahas of Columbia University. Marijuana. Like coupling, the use of the narcotic has dropped into the mainstream among many adolescents. Marijuana, says he, causes a lack on concentration, among other things.

—Birth of the competency movement to force schools to teach students survival skills for contemporary society. The '70s brought proof many graduate from high school and lack skills. Such things as knowing how to read a job application, file an income tax return, understand the terms of a credit agreement, or comprehend the instruction in training given by the armed services. In some states legislatures voted in competency rules for the schools. Tests are given at certain gates — say fourth, sixth, eighth, 10th grades — to see if students mastered what the lesson plan called for. Such laws, say backers of the competency movement, end social promotion — passing student from grade to grade based on time spent in class and paving little attention to his grasp of what was taught.

—Violence in the classroom as discipline crumbles. Teachers, says the National Education Association (the 1.8 million-member teachers' union), feel powerless unless a school's board and administration put down and stick to firm discipline rules.

—Pressure for a return to the basics so students at least know how to read, write, spell, do simple survival mathematical calculations. The Council on Basic Education, leading the crusade to a return to the basics, also has found a lack of teaching of values in the schools a source of problems.

—An epidemic of pregnancies — 1 million a year — among school students from the age of 12 up shows schools, homes and churches flunking in the sex education arena. It also is, say the critics, a price schoolchildren are paying for the decline of values in this era of the sex revolution and the "me first" cult.

—In higher education, many reports focused on the decline of values and discipline, too. The American Assembly, a Columbia University think tank, reported devaluation of ethical behavior by students, faculty and even administrations along the college trail is something to worry about. Not only do students cheat, but some faculty double-dip on research — getting grant or foundation money from two sources for the same work. There also was criticism of the way graduate students are "used" by some faculty members requiring them to do far more work than they should.

—The cry for more real-world relevance in higher education continued to escalate. This happened as more and more liberal arts graduates, full of all they ever wanted to know about medieval history or Victorian poetry or fine art, graduated from college and couldn't get a job. The cry was for relevance to the job market, as tens of thousands of liberal arts graduates, clutching the most expensive diplomas in history, had to seek a second degree or training in a skill to get a job. The pain was double for those faced with years of making payments on college tuition loans.

—Despite these realities, many in higher education continued to argue for the pure liberal arts degree — even when it cost $32,000, the price of four years of schooling in a top private school these days. But some mavericks among college presidents at decade's end were leaning to a double major for the liberal arts student. One of the specialty fields would be in a vocational line such as computers.

—Evidence that college campuses more and more were being treated as free ports where morals and manners are concerned. On many campuses, police looked the other way rather than attempt to enforce state laws against the use of narcotics. Coupling became socially acceptable on a large scale.

—The decade gave birth to VD balls on some campuses as school health officials tried to get more and more students to have venereal disease checkups. To stop the spread of same. A VD ball? Students get in free to the disco or what-not by showing proof of a recent VD check-up.

Father Accused Of Poisoning Two Children

OXFORD, Pa. (UPI) — A Chester County man accused of trying to kill his two young children by cooking rat poison into their food has been charged with two counts each of attempted murder and assault.

Darrell Barnett, 21, of Oxford, was returned to Chester County Farms prison this week in lieu of $50,000 bail after a preliminary hearing before District Justice Donald Brown.

Barnett allegedly tried to poison Darryl, 11 months, and Sunshine, 2, Friday night. The children were treated for a day at Southern Chester County Medical Center, then released into the custody of their mother, whom police would not identify.

Letter Shows Adams Wrote Famous Policy

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) — A letter from John Quincy Adams provides new evidence that the sixth U.S. president authored the Monroe Doctrine, says a professor at the College of William and Mary.

History professor Dr. Edward P. Crapol said the letter suggests Adams, President James Monroe's secretary of state and successor, actually wrote the famous doctrine.

The Monroe Doctrine said the U.S. would regard as an unfriendly act any attempt by European powers to interfere in South American affairs.

Crapol said the letter, found in the college archieves, was dated Sept. 17, 1831, and was from Adams to Richard Rush, the former U.S. representative to England.

Crapol said the letter also supports the view of many historians that the doctrine was designed to play Russia and Great Britain against each other "to Washington's advantage."

The chief reason why the Constitution provided for a census of the population every 10 years was to give a basis for apportionment of members of the House of Representatives among the states.

NC-Michigan Duel Starts Long Bowl Weekend

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — North Carolina coach Dick Crum says his Tar Heels will do everything in their power to keep Michigan's kicking game in limbo when the two teams clash in the Gator Bowl tonight (8 p.m. CST).

Michigan, 8-3, lost to Notre Dame by two points, Purdue by three and Ohio State by three. Blocked punts or field goals figured in all three defeats.

(Other bowl stories, Page 4, Sec. D)

Crum feels the Tar Heels, 7-3-1, have an adequate kicking game. North Carolina place kicker Jeff Hayes kicked a 47-yard field goal with just 13 seconds remaining to tie East Carolina and made good on six of 12 attempts for the season.

Michigan's two kickers, Bryan Virgil and Ali Haji-Sheikh, have hit on only three of 12 attempts this year.

"We spent a lot of time, right down through the season, working on punt blocking," Crum said at a news conference Thursday. Michigan coach Bo Schembechler, sitting at the Tar Heel coach's elbow, rolled his eyes and smiled.

"Certainly blocking punts is a part of our defensive plan," Crum continued. "We also have a field goal kicker with great range, but because of the rule about bringing the ball back to the point where it was snapped, you have to take those sitauations as they come up."

Schembechler said the Wolverines have been concentrating on defense during drills both in Ann Arbor and in this north Florida city.

"Our whole defensive plan for this game is to get back our defensive intensity," the Michigan coach said. "That, I think, is going to be the key. Our defense has got to be as intense as it was early in the season."

Schembechler said he felt the fact that the Wolverines lost their last two regular season games, coupled with the fact that Michigan never has won a bowl game in five tries with Schembechler as coach, also would be a factor.

"We weren't happy with our intensity the last two games, so we did some things differently this time," Schembechler said. "We were a little rougher in our three practices in Ann Arbor and our first two here."

Schembechler still would not say who he would start at quarterback in thegame which will be televised nationally by ABC, but Crum said he didn't care.

"No matter who starts, you've got to play against them," Crum said.

Both Crum and Schembechler got their coaching starts at Miami of Ohio. Not surprisingly, their squads bear striking similarities.

Both teams run from the multiple-I and both play a basic 5-2 defense. And each team, of course, is hoping to go home with no more than three defeats on its record.

The Gator Bowl triggers the last big week of the college football season, which will be highlighted by the traditional New Year's Day bowl games.

Following tonight's North Carolina-Michigan game, South Carolina will face Missouri in the Hall of Fame Game in Birmingham, Ala., Saturday night.

South Carolina is led by George Rogers, who rushed for 1,548 yards this season, second only to Heisman Trophy winner Charles White of Southern Cal. Rogers takes a string of nine straight 100-yard games into the Hall of Fame Game, including 217 against North Carolina State's Atlantic Coast Conference champions.

The independent Gamecocks posted an 8-3 record this season while Missouri of the Big Eight was 6-5.

The Peach Bowl and Bluebonnet Bowl will both be played Monday. Baylor meets Clemson in the Peach in the afternoon while Purdue will take on Tennessee in the Bluebonnet at night.

On New Year's Day, it's Arkansas vs. Alabama in the Sugar Bowl, Nebraska against Houston in the Cotton Bowl and Ohio State vs. Southern Cal in the Rose Bowl. The Orange Bowl will be played that night, matching Oklahoma against Florida State.

Raiders Face Oregon, Drop Classic Opener

PORTLAND, Ore. (Special) — Regaining a sharp mental edge may be the toughest thing facing the Texas Tech basketball team in the Far West Classic here this afternoon and Saturday.

The Red Raiders dropped a 79-68 decision to muscular Clemson in their first-round contest Thursday night and now must try to rebound at 5 p.m. CST against co-host Oregon.

"We couldn't contain Clemson's inside people," said Tech coach Gerald Myers afer the Raiders dropped only their second game in eight tries this season. "They had a mismatch inside on their transition game early in the second half, and we just couldn't adjust to it."

Although the Raiders continued their hot field goal shooting (with a 50.9 shooting effort), 16 turnovers and 28 personal fouls proved to be decisive.

"We never ran our offense with any kind of rhythm," Mmyers said. "We weren't aggressive, and as a result, their zone traps were effective. We weren't sharp mentally."

Clemson upped its undefeated record to 7-0, but the 11-point margin was the Tigers' closest of the season.

"Our game plan was to get their inside people in foul trouble, and that's what happened," said Clemson coach Bill Foster. "Texas Tech is a good club. That's about as well as we've played this year. Everybody gave us good effort."

Guard Kent Williams sparked the Raiders with 19 points, hitting his top total this season. Ralph Brewster came on strong in the second half and finished with 17 points.

However, one big department was personal fouls, where the Raiders lost Jeff Taylor via five infractions and had six other players with three or more fouls.

Clemson's front line of three 6-10ers controlled the inside game early and forced Myers to switch from his usual man-to-man defense to a zone. The Raiders led 6-3 but quickly fell behind for good as the Tigers reeled off 8 unanswered points.

Myers switched to the zone, and the Raiders stayed close, trailing 33-28 at intermission.

Consecutive back-door layups by David Little narrowed the gap to 41-38 with 15 minutes left to play before the Tigers broke the game open with a 13-3 spree.

The Raiders wound up sinking one more field goal than Clemson but hit just 12 of 16 free throws to the Tigers' 25 of 35. The "Towers of Power" — as Clemson's 6-10 trio is known — finally controlled the boards 32-28.

The Raiders trailed by as much as 15 points late in the game but still kept trying to whittle down the deficit.

"That was one thing I was proud of," Myers said. "We really could have folded when we got so far behind, but we didn't. It's now important for us to come back and win these next two games so we will have some momentum going into conference play."

Tech opens Southwest Conference play next Thursday against Texas at Austin.

Today's Far West Classic slate matched Idaho, 5-3, vs. Penn State, 4-4, at 3 p.m. CST, and Tech, 6-2, vs. Oregon, 4-4 in the loser's brakcet. Semifinals tonight have Oregon State, 9-1, against Brigham Houng, 8-2, and North Carolina-Charlotte, 5-3, facing Clemson, 7-0, in the late game.

Depending on today's outcome, the Raiders will play either Penn State or Idaho Saturday afternoon.

The Raiders had been trying to return to the finals, a position they achieved the last time they were here, in 1975. That year, they lost to Washington for the championship.

MHS Triumphs Twice In Caprock Tournament

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

By now the word has to be out. The only way to put the Estacado Matadors out of a basketball game is to take a big stick to their heads.

The Mats trailed by as many as 14 points in the third period of Thursday night's Caprock Holiday Tournament game with Wichita Falls, but somehow managed to come back and take a 61-58 victory.

That win earned them a berth in today's semifinals at 9 p.m. against District 1-AAA foe Canyon, a 76-63 winner over Coronado. In other large school division games, Lubbock High edged Odessa High 59-58 and Monterey blew Dunbar out 74-52. These two winners will meet at 7:30 p.m.

The catalyst for Estacado in its comeback was John Jones. The 6-2 Matador teamed with a couple of his buddies, notably Tim Williams and Bruce Williams, to spark the rally.

Trailing 42-28 with 4:04 remaining in the third period, Estacado outscored Wichita Falls 15-3 the rest of the quarter, Jones netting 6 points, Tim Williams 4 and Bruce Williams 3.

That made the score 45-43 going into the final quarter, but Jones stole the ball and raced the length of the court for a slam dunk to tie.

He was called for a technical foul for hanging on the rim, and the Coyotes' Ricky Cobb, who scored 20 points in the first half but finished with only 24, made the free shot.

But that was about all Wichita Falls got for a while as the Matadors outscored the opposition 13-2 for the next three minutes to take a 58-48 lead at 4:06.

The Coyotes made a final run, netting eight straight and sneaking within 60-58 with 34 seconds showing, but James Barnett controlled a jump ball to Tim Williams and Preston Davis made a free throw to put the contest on ice.

In big-school consolation action, San Angelo played Odessa and and Wichita Falls faced Coronado earlier today. Later this afternoon, Dunbar will face the winner of the Central-Odessa game at 4:30 p.m.

Monterey staked a 45-36 lead through the first three quarters, then held off a furious San Angelo Central rally to earn a 60-56 win and advance to the late contest with Dunbar.

The Plainsmen were led by Trav Clardy and Steve Wooten, who scored 14 points each in the early-morning clash. Gary Hodges added 11.

Charles Bishop led all scorers with 24 points in a losing Central cause. Two other players, Hercules Miller and Paul Hayes, chipped in 12 point each.

In the small school division, Tulia romped past Spur 85-22 to earn a berth against Dimmitt, a 51-45 victor over Tahoka, in today's 6 p.m. game.

Five players scored in double figures for Tulia with Kirk Thompson taking high-point honors with 14.

Kevin Cleveland and Gary Naylor scored 13 each to lead victorious Dimmitt while Kenny Scott notched 13 and Charles Bryson 12 for Tahoka.

Today's other winners bracket game pits Lubbock Christian High, a 93-52 winner over Crosbyton, and Morton, which edged Abernathy 64-63. That game was played this afternoon.

Tim Perrin scored 20 points and Shawn Bowe added 19 to pace the Eagles, who led Crosbyton 46-20 at halftime. Lupe Naceanceno, a 5-7 junior, led the Chiefs with 18 points.

In the consolation bracket, Tahoka played Spur and Crosbyton battled Abernathy this morning.

Oilers' Injury Situation Worsens;CarpenterHurt

By The Associated Press

The Houston Oilers are still knocking them down left and right. . .only it's their own team that's being knocked down.

Already hurt by three key injuries, the Oilers suffered another blow Thursday when running back Rob Carpenter, a possible replacement for the injured NFL player of the year Earl Campbell, tripped over a blocking dummy, sprained his ankle and was reported as "questionable" for Saturday's National Football League playoff game against San Diego.

Carpenter's mishap came on top of injuries to running star Campbell, quarterback Dan Pastorini and receiver Ken Burrrough in last week's 13-7 victory over Denver. All three players are doubtful starters with groin strains.

Carpenter's injury left only three healthy running backs on the Oilers' depth chart. Starting fullback Tim Wilson and little-used Ronnie Coleman and Boobie Clark.

By comparison, the Chargers are relatively healthy for the second-round AFC test at San Diego, one of four NFL playoff games scheduled for this weekend. In a National Conference game Saturday, it's Philadelphia at Tampa Bay.

Two more games will be played on Sunday — Miami at Pittsburgh in the AFC and Los Angeles at Dallas in the NFC.

Both Houston and Philadelphia won wild-card games last week. The winners this weekend advance to the conference championship games scheduled for Sunday, Jan. 6. The Super Bowl, matching the conference winners, will be played in Pasadena, Calif., on Sunday, Jan. 20.

Owing to their recent streak of injuries, the Oilers are seven-point underdogs to the high-powered Chargers, the AFC West champions led by quarterback Dan Fouts.

The Chargers' receiving corps is a bit under the weather, with John Jefferson and Charley Joiner both nursing minor injuries. Both are listed as probable starters, though running back Mike Thomas may miss the game because of the flu.

Philadelphia has been installed as a four-point favorite over Tampa Bay. Bucs quarterback Doug Williams sees the game as a tossup.

"We have Ricky Bell, they have Wilbert Montgomery," he said. "They have a good tight end, like we do. They have a good defense, a good three-man front and linebackers who are strong and quick, like ours, plus a strong secondary."

The Philadelphia-Tampa Bay game renews a coaching rivalry between the Eagles' Dick Vermeil and the Bucs' John McKay. They previously met when Vermeil was coaching at UCLA and McKay at Southern Cal.

Pittsburgh is a 9½-point choice over Miami and Dallas is favored by eight over Los Angeles in Sunday's games.

Dallas beat Los Angeles 28-0 in the NFC title game last year. The Cowboys also routed the Rams 37-7 in 1975 and bumped them out of the playoffs with a 27-16 victory in 1973.

WHY ME? — Ted Marchibroda, right, talks with his son, Ted Jr., outside their suburban Baltimore home after the coach was fired by the Baltimore Colts Thursday. Marchibroda's teams won three straight division titles before hitting the cellar the past two seasons. (AP Laserphoto)

Bengals Silent On New Boss

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals aren't saying officially that Forrest Gregg will be the new coach after Gregg was released from the final two years of his three-year contract with Toronto of the Canadian Football League.

"If I could tell you that this guy is our new coach, I would," said Paul Brown, vice president and general manager of the Bengals. "But nothing's done until it's done. There hasn't been anything done. There has been nothing consummated with us."

However, sources within the Bengals organization indicated an announcement would be made soon.

"Paul wants to work as quickly as possible. I wouldn't be surprised if this whole thing is settled by 2 o'clock (today)," The Cincinnati Enquirer quoted an unnamed source.

Gregg, 46, sought, and won, release from the Argonauts to pursue coaching possiblities in the National Football League.

"I tired everything possible to keep him," said Lew Hayman, Argonauts' president. "I must confess I'm disappointed and that's final. I went as far as I could but he had what he and his family called a 'chance of a lifetime.'"

Brown, after firing coach Homer Rice on Dec. 17 after back-to-back 4-12 seasons, said he was seeking a coach who would be demanding.

"I think the thing people think about me is that because I played for Vince Lombardi, I coach like he does," Gregg said.

ROSENBLOOM CHANGE

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The New Orleans Saints have named Steve Rosenbloom, formerly of the Los Angeles Rams, as the team's first general manager in eight years. Saints vice president Eddie Jones said Thursday that Rosenbloom will have full control of trades and the drafting of college talent. Rosenbloom, son of the late Carroll Rosenbloom, was fired from his executive position with the Rams by his step-mother when she inherited the team.

Colts May Want Coach With Offensive Flair

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Colts, criticized for being too conservative on offense under Ted Marchibroda, may be looking for someone who favors a more wide-open attack to succeed him as coach.

The Colts' front office was expected to begin screening candidates for the job today.

Among those reportedly under consideration were Dan Reeves, the offensive coordinator of the Dallas Cowboys, Jerry Rhome, a record-setting college quarterback and offensive coordinator of the Seattle Seahawks, and Jim Hanifan, assistant head coach of the San Diego Chargers.

Also among the reported candidates were George Perles, assistant coach with the Pittsburgh Steelers. Tom Bass, assistant coach with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers; college coaches Joe Paterno of Penn State, George Welsh of Navy and Wayne Hardin of Temple, fired Arizona State coach Frank Kush, and former Philadelphia Eagles coach Mike McCormick.

The Washington Post said today that Paterno, long sought by various pro teams, was the Colts' No. 1 choice.

A longshot possibility was John Unitas, the Colts' one-time great quarterback and a recent Hall of Fame inductee who is lives in the area. Unitas is listed by the Colts as a consultant, but he said at a recent public gathering: "They never consult me."

Marchibroda, a former pro quarterback who spent 14 years as an NFL assistant coach before taking the top job here in 1975, was fired Thursday.

The Colts won AFC East titles in each of Marchibroda's first three seasons. But without injured quarterback Bert Jones the last two years, Baltimore slumped to the division cellar and the fans sang for Marchibroda's dismissal.

The spectators contended Marchibroda was too conservative, with an unimaginative, dull and predictable offense. He was also blamed for recent poor draft picks, and the trading of running back Lydell Mitchell and tight end Raymond Chester.

Home attendance during the past season was the worst in the NFL, an average of fewer than 37,000 that was about 60 percent of the capacity for Memorial Stadium. The turnout for the season finale on Dec. 9 was 25,684, the worst in 25 years.

Under Marchibroda, the Colts posted a 36-16 record with Jones as the starting quarterback but were 5-20 without him.

Stats Prove Pearson Produces In Clutch

DALLAS (AP) — When it's third down Sunday and the Dallas Cowboys are in the shotgun offense against the Los Angeles Rams, try to pick out No. 26 on your television screen, oldtimer Preston Pearson.

In fact, anytime the Cowboys are in the spread offense attempting to beat the clock or in an obvious passing situation, quarterback Roger Staubach usually looks to his 34-year-old halfback in the clutch.

Pearson has caught only 26 passes this year, but 23 of them have gone for first downs, 16 times in third-down situations.

"Preston Pearson has more moves than a wide receiver," said Washington's Mark Murphy after a 35-34 loss Dallas which propelled the Cowboys into the National Conference first round playoff meeting with the Rams in Texas Stadium.

Redskin coach Jack Pardee said "the critical thing for us at the end of the game was the way Staubach keyed to Pearson. They know each other so well that it's a hard combination to stop."

The 13-year veteran Pearson hadn't caught a touchdown pass in two years until he caught a 26-yarder against the Redskins.

Los Angeles remembers Pearson. In the 1975 NFC championship game in Memorial Coliseum, he caught seven passes for 123 yards and three touchdowns.

"I pride myself on being able to come up with the big play whenever it is needed," said Pearson. "I only get to play on certain downs so I don't have that long or that many chances to prove anything.

"I am still trying to prove to the coaches that I can play. A game like the Washington game gives me a chance to say it big and loud."

Pearson has yet to sign a 1980 contract with the Cowboys.

Typically, when asked why he is such an oustanding player when the playoff money is on the line, Pearson said "I need the money for one thing. But I think I am a money. The more pressure, the better I play."

Aroused Alabamans Picked For Sugar Victory

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

LOS ANGELES (AP) — They say the customers always write, but the betting fraternity is more impatient. They use the more expeditious means.

Ring, ring, ring, goes the telephone.

"Where is that operative IX fellow who picks those college football games during the season?" a resonant Dixie drawl comes through the wires. "Haven't seen anything on the bowl games."

Well, we weren't exactly enthused about a postseason encore.

Ring, ring, ring, goes the telephone.

"Las Vegas calling," comes a cryptic voice. "How about those bowl picks? We're waiting to put out the latest line."

"Oh, we don't pick the games for gambling purposes," the caller was informed. "Didn't you know? Gambling is a vice. The picks are made purely for fun and shouldn't be taken too seriously."

Bang, goes the receiver.

Ring, ring, ring, goes the telephone.

"Las Vegas calling again," says the irritated party at the other end. "We don't give a hoot about your personal morals. Put on the guy who picked .813 during the regular season."

Okay, bud, you asked for it. But don't come around later asking that we help save the mortgage.

Jan. 1

ROSE BOWL: Southern California 28, Ohio State 7.

This is the grandpappy of the bowl games, they say. It's got enough moss on it to carpet the Rain Forest. It matches the nation's No. 1 team, Ohio State, against the No. 3, Southern Cal, and the national championship could be hanging on the outcome — barring a ressurection in Tuscaloosa, Ala.

From the beginning of the season, the Trojans have flaunted the best talent in the country, headed by the nation's leading ball carrier, Heisman Trophy winner Charles White and ace quarterback Paul McDonald and backed up by monstrous lines that could do credit to the NFL.

Ohio State's Art Schlichter has the size (6-2 and 200 pounds), the nerve and the talent but, as a sophomore, will find Trojans in his lap all day.

SUGAR BOWL: Alabama 33, Arkansas 12.

Chagrined over being bumped out of No. 1 place because of close squeaks against LSU and Auburn, the Crimson Tide will be loaded for bear (Bear Bryant, that is, the grandfatherly man in the checkered hat who is bearing down on Amos Alonzo Stagg's victory record).

ORANGE BOWL: Oklahoma 27, Florida State 7.

Remember it was Seminole coach Bobby Bowden himself who said, "The fans expect us to win every game, but nobody goes undefeated — and I mean nobody."

Bobby had to be thinking of that churning, hip-swinging thunderbolt named Billy Sims, the 1979 scoring champion and probably the No. 1 nugget in the pro draft. Florida State finished the season with great credentials but it didn't face an opponent as awesome as the Sooners.

COTTON BOWL: Houston 19, Nebraksa 14.

Quick as a snake's tongue and tough as nails, the Cougars pull the day's major surprise, halting the Cornhuskers' I.M. Hipp & Co. A predominantly Texas crowd will get delirious.

Today

GATOR BOWL: Michigan 25, North Carolina 10.

The Wolverines thought they would be headed for the Rose Bowl. The Tar Heels must bear the brunt of Michigan frustrations.

Saturday

HALL OF FAME BOWL: South Carolina 20, Missouri 17.

The oddsmakers have it reversed. Don't believe 'em. The Gamecocks are an underrated, opportunist team.

Monday

PEACH BOWL: Clemson 23, Baylor 17.

Don't discount the fact that Clemson coach Danny Ford learned his football at Bear Bryant's knee.

BLUEBONNET BOWL: Purdue 17, Tennessee 10.

The Vols see double when they look at Maarrkk Herrmann.

LCC Drops Overtime Tilt To East Texas

DALLAS (Special) — Lubbock Christian College lost 72-69 in overtime to East Texas State University in the first round of the fourth annual Dallas Baptist Classic Thursday afternoon.

East Texas, 5-2, built 10-point leads in each half and had a 5-point margin in overtime only to see the Chaparrals come back each time.

ETSU led 60-50 with 5:14 remaining in regulation but Kevin Wharton and Bill McGee got key buckets down the stretch as the Chaparrals caught up with 28 seconds to go.

Wharton missed the front end of a two-shot foul with 28 seconds left and the Chaps trailing 63-62. He missed the second, but former Morton standout Mike Williams was called for goaltending and the score was tied.

Marshall Smith got a steal but was called for charging with 14 seconds left and then senior Tom Goski, who scored 22 points for East Texas, missed a shot at the buzzer.

In overtime, ETSU's Leartis Simmons hit the first of a two-shot foul, Bruce Anderson added two free tosses and Goski one to for a 70-65 lead with with 26 seconds left.

Keith Gardner's 3-point play with 10 seconds remaining brought the Chaps to within a point, at 70-69, and they had possession and a chance to tie in the game's closing moments. McGee turned the ball over, however, to end LCC's opportunity.

The Chaps, now 7-10 for the year, played this afternoon at 4:30.

War Halted Bear's Move To Arkansas

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — But for a terrible war between nations and, some years later, a much less frightful dispute between a couple of state universities, Bear Bryant might be coaching Arkansas instead of Alabama in the Sugar Bowl next Tuesday.

"At one time, I wanted more than anything to be the coach at Arkansas," says Bryant, a native of Moro Bottom, Ark., which he calls "a little piece of bottom land on the Moro Creek, about seven miles south of Fordyce."

World War II may have changed the course of coaching, as well as world, history.

"When I was an assistant at Vanderbilt, I went over and tried to get the Arkansas job," Bryant recalls. "I wasn't ready, but I thought I might get it.

"I called Bill Dickey, the New York Yankees catcher, and was riding with him to Little Rock to see the governor, who was a good friend of Bill's. When we heard the news about Pearl Harbor on the radio, Bill just threw on the brakes and turned around. I went back to Nashville and went into the Navy."

Bryant got out in time to become head coach at Maryland in 1945. He began an eight-year stint at Kentucky in 1946 and went to Texas A&M in 1954 for four years before Alabama, his alma mater, beckoned. But not before Arkansas was in — and out of — the picture again.

"In 1952, I actually accepted the Arkansas job and made a lot of people mad at both Kentucky and Arkansas," Bryant remembers. "I wanted the job and went over and met with the governor and the president and a lot of people. We talked everything over and the job was mine.

"I didn't know I'd have any trouble getting out of my contract, but when I went back to Kentucky they made it so difficult that I didn't take it. We talked for three days and I begged them to let me go, but they wouldn't. I even had to stop John Barnhill (the Arkansas athletic director) from coming up there.

"Some of my friends in Arkansas got mad at me because they thought I was using them to get more money, but I wasn't. I didn't get a penny, and I wouldn't have under the circumstances. I really wanted the job. I wanted it bad, but I just couldn't take it."

It would have been quite a homecoming but instead Bryant went to Alabama and became one of the winningest coaches in college football history. His overall record in 35 seasons is 295-77-16, including 204-38-8 in 22 years at Bama.

But the Bear still has relatives in Arkansas, a cousin in Little Rock — "Probably the best friend I ever had in my life, his family owned a hotel in Fordyce and I lived with them and worked with them for several years" — and cousins and nephews in Fordyce.

Nebraska's Osborne Sees Rewards In Numbers

DALLAS (AP) — Nebraska coach Tom Osborne is one who believes that football players, whether first-string or fifth, should be rewarded for an honest effort.

So at a time when athletic budgets are tight and travel costs high, even the lowliest Cornhusker sub is in Dallas doing his part to help get the team ready to face Houston in the Cotton Bowl.

More than 100 players, the largest Nebraska bowl squad in recent history, were on the team plane that arrived here Wednesday. Several more players were to arrive with an alumni group today and all will dress for the New Year's Day game.

Osborne views the large squad not as money being spent, but as a reward for those who stick it out — from the murderous heat of twice-a-day sessions in August to the bone-chilling workouts of November.

"A lot of the guys, particularly those on the scout team, don't letter and they don't get to play much," Osborne said. "This is about all we're able to provide. It's a reward and they've earned it with their dedication.

"We took a large group to the Orange Bowl last year, but I think we may have five or 10 more this time."

In contrast to the 100-plus players who will suit up Tuesday, NCAA regulations limit traveling squads during the regular season to 54, a rule instituted as a money-saving measure.

Osborne said money is always a consideration and he consulted athletic director Bob Devaney, the former Cornhusker coach, about taking as many players as possible to the Cotton Bowl.

"Bob was really good about this," Osborne said. "A lot of people won't let you take that many to a bowl game. But he's been in the same situation, so he knows what it's like.

"If you want to have players come back, this is a good way to do it. It gives them something to work for."

Osborne said it's necessary to have at least 90 players at a bowl site in order to establish an adequate scout team setup. The scout teams help the top units prepare for the game by running the opposing team's offenses and defenses.

The scout teams were in evidence during Nebraska's workout in the Cotton Bowl Thursday. One group was running the option plays used by the Houston offense against Nebraska's top two defensive units.

Osborne said Houston quarterbacks Delrick Brown and Terry Elston are skilled in the option attack and that could present problems.

JAMES CAMPBELL HONORED

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — James Campbell, a Marshall University sophomore who scored 40 points in a pair of Southern Conference victories for the Thundering Herd last week, has been selected as the league's player of the week.

Herrmann's Passes Key To Bowl Hopes

HOUSTON (AP) — Quarterback Mark Herrmann wanted to attend a school where he could step in and play right away so he went to Purdue, but coach Jim Young made the eager youngster wait his turn.

Herrmann didn't get into a game until late in the second quarter of his first game as a freshman.

Herrmann passed for two touchdowns against Michigan State in that game, the first touchdown passes by Purdue in 15 games, and despite the late start in his career went on to become the all-time Big 10 yardage leader.

Now a junior, Herrmann, with 6,431 pass yards behind him, will be the man to stop in the Astrodome New Year's Eve when the Boilermakers play Tennessee in the 21st annual Bluebonnet Bowl.

It will be the second straight bowl appearance for Purdue, but Herrmann doesn't expect to get off to the same start the Boilermakers did last year when they took a 28-7 halftime lead and went on the blast Georgia Tech 41-21 in the Peach Bowl.

"If we could start off like that again it would be great, but I'm not counting on it," Herrmann said following Purdue's first workout here Thursday. "Tennessee has a better defense than Georgia Tech did last year.

"They (Tennessee) are underrated because of their record but we'll have to play an outstanding game against them."

Tennessee, 7-4, and Purdue, continued workouts today in the Astrodome in preparation for Monday's 7 p.m. CST kickoff.

Herrmann went into the season with a big publicity campaign because he was approaching the all-time Big 10 passing lead. He was tabbed as a Heisman Trophy candidate and asked constantly about the record.

"I really was glad to get it out of the way so I could concentrate on what I was supposed to be doing on the field," said Herrmann, who passed up a pair former Purdue quarterbacks Bob Griese and Mike Phipps.

Purdue had some disappointments during the regular season, including not earning a trip to the Rose Bowl, but losing out on the Heisman Trophy was not important to Herrmann.

"I wouldn't call that a disappointment because I don't think I was a serious candidate anyway," Herrmann said. "Look at what all (Charles) White and (Billy) Sims have done and they are senior. I'm just a junior."

Purdue's loss to Minnesota in the fifth game of the season ended the Boilermakers' Rose Bowl aspirations.

Stuckey Sees Job As Aiding Linebackers

ATLANTA (AP) — Clemson's all-America defensive tackle Jim Stuckey knows what he has to do in the Peach Bowl New Year's Eve.

He must make it possible for the Tiger linebackers to stop Baylor's running game.

"I've been double and triple-teamed most of the season — especially in the last four or five games," the 6-foot-5, 253-pounder said Thursday. "It's been frustrating, but it's also been a compliment to me and my ability.

"A lot of our fans haven't been able to understand why I'm not in on a lot of tackles, but I know I'm doing my job and the coaches and my teammates know I'm doing my job," he said.

Clemson, 8-3 and ranked 18th, uses a defense designed so the linebackers will make most of the tackles. Bubba Brown leads in that department with 140 and Jeff Davis has 109. Stuckey has 92.

What they will be trying to stop is a host of Bear runners and a passing attack that is just barely there.

Baylor, ranked 19th, completed just 53 passes in 11 games as the Bears ground out a 7-4 season that saw them lose only to top teams, Alabama, Arkansas, Houston and Texas.

Tailback Walter Abercrombie gained 886 yards in 171 attempts to lead the Bears. Fullback Dennis Gentry gained 528 yards in 106 tries and quarterback Mike Brannan ran 108 times for 436 yards.

The Bears, who use the option offense, averaged 4.2 yards per carry.

"Having been a four-year starter, I've matured to the point where nothing is new to me," Stuckey said. "I've been in almost every blocking situation a defensive lineman can be put in, so unlike a young, inexperienced guy, I react instinctively."

UNM Prexy Gets Athletic Council's Approval

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — The University of New Mexico Athletic Council, echoing the school's regents, says the UNM administration proceeded properly in investigating troubles plaguing the university's athletic program.

The action Thursday by the Athletic Council, an independent committee of faculty and student representatives, came less than a day after the panel heard four hours of testimony concerning possible grade buying and eligibility problems raised by journalism Prof. Charles Coates.

The UNM Board of Regents gave university president William E. Davis a vote of confidence Monday, saying he had acted ethically and responsibly in dealing with the situation.

Coates told the council Wednesday that he had presented a documentary filmed by students to Davis in 1978 in which persons identified as football players said grades were purchased on a routine basis for athletes.

Coates also said he had requested an investigation Oct. 18 of the eligibility of star basketball player Larry Belin, who had failed a summer course taught by Coates but was still playing for the team.

Coates said he was told that without the summer credits, Belin would be ineligible to play.

Davis testified that Dean of Admissions Robert Weaver already was investigating the eligibility of Lobo basketball players at the time of Coates' memo.

The practice referred to by Coates in 1978 had been discontinued at least a year before, Davis said.

The Athletic Council concluded "that in each of these questioned situations the university administration acted ethically and responsibly. . .and in a timely manner given the complexities involved in checking transcripts from other institutions."

The university has been rocked by problems involving the athletic program since the FBI disclosed in November it was investigating possible mail fraud and bribery.

Former Lobo head basketball coach Norm Ellenberger and assistant Manny Goldstein were suspended after the FBI released a transcript of a wiretapped telephone conversation in which Ellenberger and Goldstein apparently discussed a method to falsify a player's academic transcript so he would be eligible to play at UNM.

Ellenberger was later fired and Goldstein resigned as a result of the problems.

Belin and five other Lobo basketball players were declared ineligible in early December when the players said they had not enrolled in or attended a course given by Ottawa University of Kansas for which they had been given credit.

Without the credits, the players were not eligible to play basketball.

It later was learned that three UNM football players also received Ottawa University credits without attending class. They also were declared ineligible.

The school forfeited six 1979 football victories and a basketball triumph over West Texas State this season after it was discovered that ineligible players had participated in the games.

Law professor Albert Utton, speaking for the council, said the university:

• On its own initiative pursued the question of eligibility of student athletes;

• Where appropriate declared athletes ineligible;

• Forfeited games won in which ineligible athletes took part;

• Began reorganizing the athletic department.

The council said it found that Davis initiated an investigation into academic credits for student athletes in late September or early October, prior to Coates' memo on Belin.

The panel also concluded that Davis acted properly in allowing the six ineligible players to participate in the season opener against Colorado and the next game against West Texas State, because he was acting on the advice of NCAA and Western Athletic Conference officials.

Utton said the Athletic Council is an organization independent of the administration.

"We are appointed by the faculty senate and do not consider ourselves toadies of the administration," he said.

The scandal might lead to good things despite negative national publicity, he said.

"The whole thing is a mess for UNM and it makes me sick" he said. "But now New Mexico is a forefront and it may be a model for others who want to clean up intercollegiate athletics. It is fair to say UNM is leading the way in cleaning up questionable practices."

Pat McNamara, another faculty member on the council, said he disapproved of the open hostility Wednesday by some members of the council toward Coates.

"I found some of the questions to Professor Coates rather sharp," he said. "I think he was regarded by some as an annoying troublemaker. But I view his efforts as highly commendable."

McNamara said Coates probably would not have pursued the situation had he been told what the university was doing.

"I don't think he received an adequate response," McNamara said. "He was proceeding sincerely."

Slaton Goes To Semifinals In Own Meet

SLATON (Special) — Plainview, Lockney, Dimmitt and hostess Slaton teams advanced to tonight's semifinals of the West Texas Girls Basketball Tournament by winning Thursday games.

Meanwhile, Monterey and Coronado girls won consolation contests.

Kami Ethridge scored 15 points in leading the Monterey girls to a 60-56 victory over Tulia in the consolation bracket.

An 18-point third period boosted the Plainswomen back into the lead after their 15-7, first-period lead evaporated. Tulia, scoring 25 points in the second period, led 32-19 at halftime.

Tori Thompson scored 19 points to pace Tulia.

MHS will play today at 4 p.m. against Amarillo Caprock.

Coronado's girls polished off Morton 58-30 in their consolation-bracket game.

The Mustangs dominated the contest from the early moments and led 33-18 at halftime.

CHS' LeeAnn Wade had 17 points to pace the victory, which sent Coronado into the consolation semifinals at noon Saturday against an opponent yet to be determined.

Plainview's Gay Hemphill pumped in 25 points to lead the Bulldog girls to a 43-36 victory over Canyon in the winner's bracket of the tournament.

Penny Christopher had 11 points for Canyon.

Slaton's Esolita Whaley had 18 points to lead the hostesses over Idalou 70-33 in another winner's bracket battle.

Janet Williams had 18 for the losers.

In today's action, Cooper met Pampa at 2 p.m. and Monterey faced Amarillo Caprock at 4 p.m. in consolation action.

In the winners' semifinals, Dimmitt plays Lockney at 6 p.m. and Slaton tangles with Plainview two hours later.

Final contests are on tap for Saturday.

Jacksonville Stays Unbeaten

By The Associated Press

So far this season, the Jacksonville Dolphins are a school of flying fish.

Off to their best start since the great Artis Gilmore team of 1970, the undefeated Dolphins won their ninth game of the year with a 61-55 victory Thursday night over Florida in the finals of the Gator Bowl basketball tournament.

"That's a darn good basketball team," said Florida coach John Lotz of Jacksonville.

The Dolphins were led by a familiar figure, James Ray, who scored 18 points and grabbed 12 rebounds. Maurice Rouhlac helped the Jacksonville cause with eight second-half points.

"Maurice played his best game tonight," Locke said. "I had a feeling he would come through tonight and he did."

In an earlier consolation game, Ron Falenschek hit two free throws with one second left to give Iowa State a 56-55 victory over William & Mary.

Elsewhere in college basketball, Chad Kinch and Donnie Koonce ignited a second-half rally and lifted North Carolina-Charlotte to a 69-64 victory over Oregon in the Far West Classic in Portland, Ore. John Campbll scored 17 points, including four slam dunks, as Clemson defeated Texas Tech 79-68 in another first-round game.

Oregon State and Brigham Young won opening-round games in the tournament Wednesday night.

Jerry Shoecraft sank two free throws with three seconds to go in overtime to give Nebraska an 83-82 victory over Wisconsin in the opening of the 16th Rainbow Classic in Honolulu.

Bo Overton scored 16 points to lead Oklahoma past Western Michigan 72-60 in a first-round game of the All-College tourney in Oklahoma City. Anthony Johnson's 12 points led Wyoming past St. Francis, N.Y., 59-52 in the other half of Thursday night's doubleheader.

George Turner scored 16 points, including four in the final minute, as Texas defeated San Francisco 65-61 and handed the Dons their first loss after nine victories this year in an intersectional game, one of the few not played as part of a tournament.

Byron Scott scored 27 points, including four free throws in the final 30 seconds, to lead Arizona State past Arizona 85-78; Carl Nicks' 32 points powered Indiana State past Baltimore 72-50 and Ricardo Brown scored 27 points and Tony Fuller added 26 to give Pepperdine an upset 96-89 triumph over Kansas.

Also, Michael Wiley had 23 points to lead Long Beach State over Colorado 89-72; Ed Odom's 30 points paced Oklahoma State past Arkansas Tech 92-73; Vanderbilt beat Georgia State 65-53 as Mike Rhodes collected 23 points; Seton Hall whipped Florida Southern 84-70 as Dan Callandrillo had 23 points and five assists and Pacific turned back Portland 87-75 behind a 25-point, 11-rebound performance by Ron Cornelius.

Coach Says Penalties To Unify Kentuckians?

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky basketball coach Joe Hall says his suspension of two star freshmen and the departure of sophomore starting guard Dwight Anderson could unify his young team.

"Normally, an action like this will bring a team together and they will feel like any existing problems that they have had have been aired and dealt with," Hall said in a news conference called Thursday to announce the suspensions.

"In occasions like this, we just call on the remaining players to give a little extra effort. If that's not enough, we just can't be helped," he said.

Suspended were Sam Bowie, a 7-foot-1 starting center, and guard Dirk Minniefield, the team's leading assist man. Hall said both will be on the bench Saturday when No. 2 Kentucky takes on No. 3 Notre Dame in Freedom Hall at Louisville.

Hall said the suspensions were "for violation of well-established training rules" but would not elaborate further. He also denied Anderson's leaving was related to the suspensions.

"I have heard everything possible that could be mentioned and I will not address myself to any rumors," Hall said. "I will not deny or support any rumors. I will not be more specific."

Hall said he learned of Anderson's decision in a private meeting.

"I listened to him," Hall said. "He had made his decision and I accepted it, for his reasons."

Asked why he would not confirm or deny reports of the suspensions Wednesday, Hall said he had not made his decision at that time.

"With the upcoming game and in the interest of my players, I wanted to give it full consideration and I wanted to investigate all the angles," he said.

"I wanted to talk to the squad about the discipline because it affects them as well as the players being suspended. We have a program in which discipline plays a major role. . . and I am of the opinion that the actions that I have taken today will assist the program in the future."

Three years ago, Hall cited training violations in suspending starters Mike Phillips, Truman Claytor and Jay Shidler from UK's annual invitational tournament. The Wildcats, unbeaten and third-ranked at the time, were upset by Utah in the title game.

Kentucky eventually lost to North Carolina in the NCAA East Regional finals and Hall said later his team never regained its tenacity after the suspensions.

The Wildcats this year are off to a 10-1 start, thanks in part to bench strength. The losses of Anderson, Bowie and Minniefield greatly deplete that strength for Saturday's game, but Hall said his action was irreversible.

Oilers' End, Pet Lion Both Gaining Strength

HOUSTON (AP) — Sundown, Houston Oiler defensive end Andy Dorris' pet lion, is going through the same crisis that his owner faced a year ago.

He's not big enough to take care of himself — yet.

Sundown, who comes to practice daily with Dorris, is only six weeks old and little more than a furry bundle of fun, tripping over his own feet and groping at passersby who jab him unexpectedly.

Dorris plans to bring Sundown to practice again next season when his pet will weigh almost 100 pounds and have firm control of his feet. Dorris suspects Sundown will command more respect next season.

Dorris went through the same transformation during the off-season. He tired of getting his nose tweaked by offensive tackles last year and spent a gruelling off season gaining 20 pounds of muscle.

"Andy always had the agility and quickness but he lacked in strength," Oiler defensive line coach Wade Phillips said. "He asked us after last year what to do and we told him to get stronger. He did and you can really see the difference."

The well-traveled, seven-year veteran made his off-season work pay off Sunday when he sacked quarterback Craig Morton three times en route to a 13-7 victory that advanced the Oilers to Saturday's American Football Conference semifinal game against San Diego.

"I had been around the league seven years and I had to make a decision about my future in pro football," Dorris said. "I decided I owed it to myself to give it one more all out effort."

It wasn't fun.

"I worked out with Terry Stieve (St. Louis Cardinals offensive guard) and if it hadn't been for him I never would have made it. We kept each other going. It was a real drag."

Dorris can now see the dividends paying off.

"Before, I had good movement into the hole, but I'd get pushed back because I wasn't strong enough," Dorris said. "Now I am able to stay in there longer and fill up the hole."

Consequently, when Dorris goes up against some of the players who pushed him around a year ago, he finds more respect.

"I've tried to do better against each of the guys I played against last year and to get mutual respect," Dorris said. "Several guys have given me compliments after the games and that's what made it worth while."

Dorris says Sundown's diet eventually will include about three chickens per day and occasionally "an old soap horse." As for Dorris, he hopes to dine on quarterback Saturday.

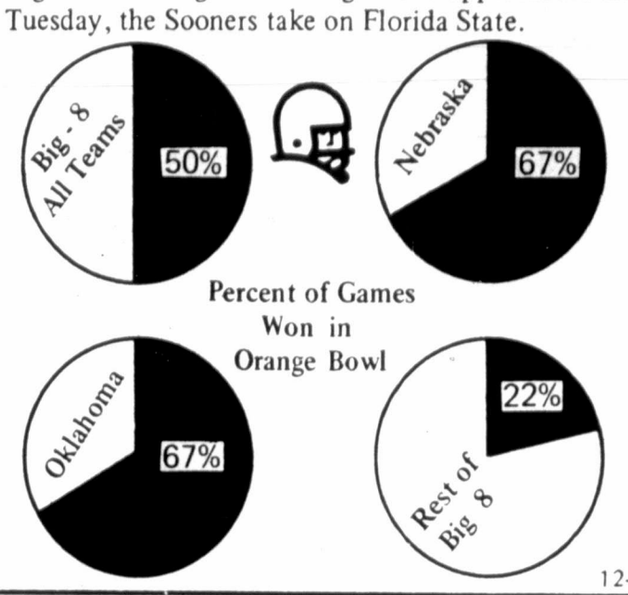
Big 8 Has the Right Team in Orange Classic

Oklahoma and Nebraska have provided the winning edge for the Big 8 in Orange Bowl appearances and Tuesday, the Sooners take on Florida State.



12-26

Ex-Sooner Kicker Sees Miami From New View

MIAMI (AP) — When Uwe von Schamann kicked for the Oklahoma Sooners in three Orange Bowls, he considered the trip to Miami a vacation.

But now that von Schamann is a Miami Dolphin, he's found preparing for the Orange Bowl was a lot different than getting ready for the defending champion Pittsburgh Steelers.

The Sooners are having a lot better time than the rookie placekicker. Oklahoma players, who are preparing for their New Year's night battle with Florida State, are soaking up the South Florida sun and enjoying themselves. For them, the FSU game isn't the biggest of the season.

But Sunday's Dolphins-Steelers NFL playoff at Three Rivers Stadium in Pittsburgh could well be the biggest game Miami has played this season.

"Coming to Miami for the Orange Bowl was like a vacation," von Schamann said. This was what we had worked hard for all year. The coaches let you have about as much time off as you wanted...

"The first time, we had to beat Michigan for the number one ranking, and it was different. Practices were a little more intense, there wasn't much kidding around."

There's not much joking at the Dolphins' practices this week. The Steelers are nine-point favorites. If a poll ranked the eight playoff teams in order of chances of making the Super Bowl, the Dolphins wouldn't get many first-place votes.

"Most everybody in the rest of the country doesn't think we have much of a chance," von Schamann said. "But if anybody watched closely in the last few weeks, they've noticed we've played with more hustle, more as a team. I think we will surprise people."

The Dolphins' best hope may be a low-scoring kicking duel between von Schamann and fellow rookie Matt Bahr.

"The kicking game is always important in the big games. Von Schamann has got long-range ability," said coach Don Shula.

Von Schamann, who began the season under heavy pressure after unseating veteran Garo Yepremian, hit five straight field goals, including kicks of 53, 43 and 40 yards, in Miami's showdowns with New England, and boots of 51 and 32 yards in a 9-6 loss to Houston.

"I think the special teams might make a difference this week," von Schamann said. "I think who covers kicks well, or punts, or just kicks the field goals, might be the deciding factor."

Although Pittsburgh's 35-degree temperatures are 40 degrees colder than Miami, von Schamann, who has kicked in warm weather all season, isn't worried.

"I kicked in cold weather at Oklahoma. Whenever we played Colorado up there, or at Nebraska at the end of the year, it was really cold and windy. I remember we played in Nebraska up there and it was 20-below with the wind chill factor, so I'm used to it."

ASU Coaching Quest Continues

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Arizona State University would like to name a new head football coach by Jan. 10, although it has yet to receive any formal applications for the job, the chairman of the six-member search committee said Thursday.

"We have dreams," said Dr. Sue Cummings. "But we're keeping an open mind until we find the right person. It's important we find a person as soon as possible, because of recruiting."

ASU began a formal search for a new head football coach last week after reaching a $200,000 out-of-court settlement with former coach Frank Kush.

Kush was suspended in mid-October after being accused of attempting to cover up his alleged punching of a player in 1978. He later filed suit, claiming he was denied due process and that he was the victim of a conspiracy.

Bob Owens, who was named head coach following Kush's suspenion, has said he would apply for the job. But the only other person to publically announce his intentions to apply is Jerry Thompson, a former ASU assistant who is presently an assistant coach with the NFL's St. Louis Cardinals.

Dr. Cummings said she knows quite a bit about football but would stop short at describing herself as a fan. She approaches the selection of a new coach in a businesslike manner.

Atlanta's Subs Rattle Rockets

By The Associated Press

The Atlanta Hawks hit you with everything, including the bench.

"They're the type of team that can get a good night out of anybody," said Houston's Rick Barry, "and this is what happened for them tonight."

They called in the reserves Thursday night, and they helped the Hawks to a 112-110 NBA victory over the Rockets.

"I thought that the unit we had on the floor for the last six minutes of the game did an outstanding job for us," said Atlanta coach Hubie Brown.

That included Eddie Johnson, who scored 20 points, including the winning jump shot with three seconds left.

"Not only did they bring it back," said Brown, "but they brought it back with execution, good passing, good defense and moved the ball on the break and made some key steals."

In other NBA action, Washington defeated Milwaukee 117-108; Cleveland whipped New York 125-110; Philadelphia beat San Antonio 118-114; Boston routed San Diego 118-97 and Los Angeles turned back Utah 124-116.

Before hitting his game-winning shot, Johnson was an instrumental figure for the Hawks earlier. He hit a 10-foot jumper with two minutes remaining to give them a 106-105 lead. On the next play, he forced Moses Malone to fumble the ball out of bounds, returning the ball to Atlanta.

"They played well down the stretch," said Barry, "and we made some mistakes. It was guys coming off the bench who did a real fine job for them."

Bullets 117, Bucks 108

Greg Ballard scored a career-high 27 points to pace Washington over Milwaukee. Ballard, starting his fourth consecutive NBA game in place of the injured Bobby Dandridge, sank 10 of 17 shots and grabbed 13 rebounds.

"The more I play, the more comfortable I feel," said the third-year forward from Oregon. "I know now that I'm going to be in there for a while and I'm playing more relaxed."

Cavaliers 125, Knicks 110

Mike Mitchell poured in 34 points, 12 in a pivotal third-quarter rally, to spark Cleveland over New York. Campy Russell added 24 points and Randy Smith 23 for the Cavaliers, who have won 13 of their last 14 home games. The Knicks were led by Toby Knight with 30 and rookie Bill Cartwright with 26.

76ers 118, Spurs 114

Julius Erving scored 12 of his 32 points in the fourth quarter as Philadelphia beat San Antonio with a late rally. The 76er victory overshadowed a great performance by San Antonio's George Gervin, who scored 46 points.

Darryl Dawkins added 28 points and Maurice Cheeks 22 as the 76ers won their fourth straight game.

Celtics 118, Clippers 97

Dave Cowens scored 27 points, Cedric Maxwell had 19 and Larry Bird added 18 in just three quarters as Boston routed San Diego for its eighth victory in nine games.

The victory gave the Celtics, first in the Atlantic Division East with a 28-8 record, a 12-7 mark on the road. Lloyd Free, who like Bird sat out the final quarter, led the Clippers scoring with 28 points.

Lakers 124, Jazz 116

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Norm Nixon combined for 58 points as Los Angeles defeated Utah. Abdul-Jabbar scored 12 of his game-total 31 points in the first quarter.

Utah's Adrian Dantley led all scorers with 37 points.

Woodson Sidelined By Back Surgery

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Mike Woodson, the Indiana University basketball team's 6-fot-5 senior standout, was operated on Thursday to repair a ruptured disc in his back and probably will be out of action the rest of the season.

Woodson, leading scorer and co-captain of the 10th-ranked Hoosiers, was reported in fair condition at Methodist Hospital here after the operation.

Team officials were unavailable for comment, but the Indianapolis News quoted an unidentified doctor as saying Woodson would be "out at least four months."

Coach Bobby Knight said Wednesday night, "I don't think in any game this season we have seen Mike at his full effectiveness. I've never felt worse for any player for any reason because I think, more than any person, I know how much he looked forward to his senior season and how much he put into preparing for it."

CBS Discovers Little To Cheer About In Review Of Decade

By JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — CBS looked back on the decade of the 1970s and found its best moment rooted in the founding of the country.

As for the rest of the decade, it wasn't much to cheer about.

In a two-part CBS News Special, to be shown tonight and Saturday, 9-10 p.m. CST, Harry Reasoner narrates a show called "American Dream, American Nightmare — The Seventies."

As Reasoner points out, it isn't a review of the decade, but what he called "a reconnaisance into the national character."

While inflation and oil and Woody Allen and "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" not to mention Mary Tyler Moore, all find their way into the script, the three main targets are Watergate, the war in Southeast Asia and the Bicentennial.

If one man's personality dominates, it is Richrd Nixon's. Not only was he the central character in the continuing story of Watergate, but by the 1970s the war in Southeast Asia had become his war.

If the CBS show is a harbinger of how history books will be written, Nixon can be sure they'll spell his name right. He has earned a place in history, but hardly the one he desired.

Enough of the American nightmare. CBS also pointed to the American Bicentennial — and particularly "Operation Sail" as tall ships sailed into New York Harbor past the Statue of Liberty on July 4, 1976. That was the American dream.

There are two ways of looking at the CBS choice of event. It is disconcerting that CBS had to look to the far past for the most memorable plus of the decade. Does our future lie behind us? That's the pessimist's view.

Those who haven't lost faith can agree with Harry Reasoner's cautious optimism when he sums up:

"We may be quarrelsome, divided and in financial and spiritual trouble, but you have to agree that while the system may have gone to the brink, the system worked."

There are those for whom the system does not work, however — the half million children in foster care whose plight is studied in the ABC News Closeup: "Nobody's Children," to be aired tonight, 7-8 p.m. CST.

Few of the children the documentary discusses are orphans — instead they are children whose parents can't take care of them because of poverty, emotional or physical illness, and other problems. Some are with foster families, some in institutions, others in group homes. Their care costs $1.5 billion a year.

The villain of the ABC piece is the system itself, which permits profiteering on children. The solution suggested is aid to help parents keep their own children. Surely that's part of the solution, but a reporter who has covered stories on child abuse and neglect can't help but feel that there is faddism in championing a particular solution.

Having children remain with their parents sounds so good, but with the current state of the arts of sociology and psychology, it's not that simple.

Gary Owens Offers 1980 Resolutions

By PETER J. BOYER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gary Owens, writer, Emmy-winning star of NBC's old "Laugh-In" show, local radio host and depraved fellow, was preparing his New Year's resolutions when he came across this gem from the Carthaginian theologian, Tertullian:

"Credo quia absurdum." Translation: "I believe, because it is absurd."

In the spirit of Tertullian, then, I present the Gary Owens 1980 Resolutions:

"I have resolved never to let Jack Klugman be a guest on my show and perform a surprise autopsy.

"I have resolved not to sneak into hospital recovery rooms and pull sheets over everybody's head.

"I have resolved never to book a hotel room directly below Jose Greco and his flamenco dance troupe.

("These are just a lot of old jokes I've gathered through the years," Owens says, apparently grateful for the opportunity to be shed of them.)

"On Valentine's Day 1980, I resolve not to allow Western Union PruneGrams to be sent to my elderly relatives (I've found that offends them).

"During the summer of 1980, when it really gets hot, I resolve to help get people cooler by tattooing a picture of Admiral Byrd on my sternum. I plan to keep myself cool by packing a friend's nose with ice until he sneezes on me.

"On Thanksgiving 1980, I have resolved not to try to fool my family by filling our canary with helium and telling them that they're having turkey (it never works).

"At Christmas 1980, I resolve not to run down the Hollywood Freeway with reindeer antlers in my mouth (it created a lot of problems this year).

"I resolve not to reserve seats on a bus for anyone smuggling in a whoopie cushion, or anyone taking an alligator of the wrong gender across state lines.

"I resolve that when I take I.Q. tests, I will not misspell I.Q.

"I resolve to figure out a way to convert wire coathangers into gasoline.

"I resolve not to attend any more erotic Tupperware parties.

"And, finally, I resolve to find a TV set so perfect it will interfere with my neighbor's electric tools."

May your new year be merry and bright. Or, at least absurd.

NO NEWCOMER

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — At 18, Leif Garrett would seem a relative newcomer to the ranks of show biz. Not so, says he — "I had a long dry spell when I was 11 years old." Adds Garrett, who made his film debut at the age of 5, "I couldn't get any work because everyone said I was too cute. I used to go home from auditions and cry."

Borrowing, Speculating Dominate Decade Of '70s

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — It was just before the beginning of the 1970s when a college professor and an investment adviser were asked separately to adviseAmerica's young families on handling their finances.

What they said gives an insight into the moods that later flourished in the decade to which we are about to bid goodbye. In effect, the advise was this: loosen up, live a little, borrow, spend, speculate.

"Every intelligent ambitous young man with a desire for money ought to try speculating in the stock market," said Gerald Loeb, the "dean of Wall Street," who had moved to San Francisco's Montgomery Street.

"I am biased, but I think you have to give the market an advantage," he said. "It gives you liquidity, wide choice, lets you buy in small amounts and permits you to change your mind in a hurry."

The professor, at a California university, urged young men and women not to lock themselves into tradition. Borrow on insurance, he said. Practice deficit spending. Quit your job if it thwarts self-expression.

"Anybody who retires a mortgage in advance today is foolish if he's paying a lower rate than currently exists," he said. For debt-free homeowners, he advised: "It might be worth taking out a mortgage."

Americans in the 1970s lived it up. They borrowed, spent, speculated. They soured on stocks, but not before a speculative binge. Then they invested heavily in real estate and finally in money market funds.

They tripled the dollar amount of mortgages. They compelled insurers to allocate 8 percent of assets to policy loans. Their home mortgage and installment debt rose from 27 percent to 47 percent of net worth.

And everything else went up too: rents, heating oil, gasoline, beef, medicine. It was a trap: Americans loosening up and getting into a buying mood increased demand at a time when they were losing controls over some of the basics, such as fuel and health costs and supplies.

Americans consumed in the 1970s as they never have before. But they forgot something: the necessity of producing efficiently. Productivity increases, which once averaged more than 3 percent a year, dwindled to 2 percent or less in recent years, and almost ceased in manufacturing.

Now there is broad disenchantment with life styles, and as the decade ends there seems to be a plea for relief from the burdens of inflation and high interest, and maybe a return to less acquisitive values.

The new mood is being restated every day: Button up, because there's cold weather coming. We've overdone it; we overheated the boiler, we're running out of fuel, and we can't borrow any more to repair the boiler.

Stability seems to be the greatest desire of the greatest number — in food costs, interest rates, energy supplies, taxes, jobs. It was redeemed for change a decade ago, but now it is sought and treasured.

To the worker it means a paycheck that doesn't shrink each month. For the businessman it's the ability to forecast sales and budget for them six months ahead of time. For the investor, a real rather than imagined return. For government, a budget that pays all and leaves some.

But longing and achieving are far apart as the 1980s begin, and the reason why is productivity or, more correctly, the absence of growth in productivity. Without it, those longings are idle wishes.

The need for greater productivity isn't based on opinions. It's a fact that if Americans cannot deliver products and services more efficiently then inflation and instability aren't likely to be overcome.

It's the legacy of the 1970s, when for many reasons — including U.S. government financing policies — people spent more and saved less, and thus reduced the country's ability to invest in productive facilities.

It's the legacy of the 70s, the challenge of the 80s. It is, say the scholars from a dozen different camps — labor, management, consumer included — the bedrock on which the hopes for stability must be built.

PERSIAN PAINTINGS

WASHINGTON (AP) — An exhibition of 16th-century Persian paintings has opened at the National Gallery of Art. Described as "perhaps the greatest assemblage of 16th-century Persian painting seen in the past 400 years," the exhibit will remain through March 2.

HY GARDNER HAS THE ANSWER:

Glad You Asked That!

SIDE-GLANCES: The article blasting Jimmy Carter in the November issue of Penthouse headlined, "The Panama Canal Sellout," was inserted into the Congressional Record by Rep. George Hansen (R-Idaho). You'll recall Hansen became a household word when he appointed himself a one-man mission to Iran just as the hostage heat was hottest. Hansen has long been a major opponent of the Panama Canal treaty.

Q: Why was Jim Nabors once fired by NBC?

A: "This goes way back to when I was working at the network as a film editor," the talented star recalls. "I was fired when I made a slight mistake. I mixed up reels of a feature movie which drove viewers stark raving mad. The first half-hour was a Western, and the second half warfare on an Arabian desert. To compound the confusion, the credits were taken from an Army educational film — on the subject of VD!"

Q: Settle a bet. I've got a pal, an old-timer, who claims a candidate for election as president once went over a hundred ballots before he was nominated. Is this possible? — Bernard R., Miami.

A: Not only possible, but it happened in 1924 when the Democratic convention was staged in New York City. Nominee John W. Davis sweated through 103 roll calls but eventually lost the election to Calvin Coolidge, who won the GOP nomination on the very first ballot. Coolidge then declined possible re-election by saying, "I do not choose to run again!"

Closing Column Fillers: Our nomination for the Unluckiest Inventor of the Year: The fellow who chose this time to announce he's found a new use for oil! ...And a gas station operator who put in a new pump top revive customers who pass out when they see how much a fill-er up costs... And Robert Owens' comment: Have you ever considered that colleges, universities and Dolly Parton all take pride and comfort in the same thing — large endowments!

Send your questions to Hy Gardner, "Glad You Asked That," care of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, P.O. Box 19620, Irvine, Calif. 92714. Marilyn and Hy Gardner will answer as many questions as they can in their column, but the volume of mail makes personal replies impossible.

MARMADUKE by Brad Anderson

"I'll bet you'd close the door if YOU were paying 86 cents a gallon for heating oil!"

West Virginian Reproduces Toys From America's Past

GLENVILLE, W.Va. (AP) — With a flick of a knife, Dick Schnacke can turn a bit of wood, some thread and a pin or two into a toy that will soar through the air and leave a smile on a child's face.

For almost 20 years, Schnacke has been searching for and reproducing the toys of America's past, simple yet ingenious creations summoned out of the odds and ends of life on a farm or in a small town.

His toys — corncob dolls and animals, flutes and whistles, wooden animals, and contraptions that send marbles whirring around and around — have become the delight of countless children.

In a soft, lilting voice, Schnacke recalled his early childhood in Kansas and the toys he and other children fashioned from bits of wood and scraps of cloth, often following patterns and designs brought to America by the first settlers and handed down through generations.

Those early playthings were put aside as Schnacke turned his curiosity and inventiveness to other things and became, in time, an engineer. But the memories of working with his hands never left and Schnacke says he threw everything over in the early '60s to become an artist.

"It was kind of a dream that maybe I could be an artist," he says. "My paintings got good reviews and there were several shows, but they just never sold."

One day at a West Virginia art fair, as people paused only for brief looks at his paintings, Schnacke walked off into the surrounding woods and began to make dolls, spinning tops and other toys from twigs and pebbles.

On impulse, he put some of the toys in his booth and suddenly the idle passersby were replaced by interested groups who eagerly played with the toys and paid to take them home.

Fascinated by the toys and delighted with the response, Schnacke began to delve into the art of toymaking and found himself working to preserve a vein of American life that had almost disappeared.

"In earlier days, living was not so complicated, but it was harder. There was little money available, and certainly not much of it could be spent on toys," he explains. "But the demand for toys existed, so the children and their parents used the only means available — they made their own."

As the demand for his toys grew, Schnacke looked for others with the skill and patience to help him make the toys their grandparents once played with on the poor, rocky farms of Appalachia.

Schnacke says he insisted from the very first that the toys be authentic in every detail. Before a toy is produced he will spend weeks or months making sure it's an original folk toy passed down over generations.

"My best sources are old people who remember how these things were handed down," he says. "I also haunt museums. When I see a sign to toy collections, I'm off."

Ace Dropping Miss Somers From TV Ads

CHICAGO (AP) — Ace Hardware Corp. plans to stop using Suzanne Somers in advertising because Playboy magazine is publishing 9-year-old photographs of the actress in the nude, the Chicago Tribune reported Thursday.

Nude photographs of Miss Somers, who stars in the ABC television show "Three's Company," will appear in Playboy's February issue, the magazine has announced. Playboy says the photographs were taken in 1970 by a photographer who submitted them to determine her suitability as a Playmate.

In a letter to Ace dealers, the Tribune reported, Ace president Arthur H. Krausman said, "This article includes photos that could be potentially embarrassing" to Ace dealers and the company.

"We have therefore decided to cease using any advertising featuring Miss Somers and to review all our advertising options for 1980," the paper quoted Krausman as saying.

A spokesman for the suburban Oak Brook-based company, who was not identified, was quoted as saying the company would honor its contract with the actress. The Tribune said the contract expires in March 1981 and reportedly pays Miss Somers $700,000 to $750,000.

The paper also quoted the spokesman as saying Ace was pleased with the response to Miss Somers and that "it's possible we will use her in the future."

BLUEMNER LANDSCAPES

WASHINGTON (AP) — An exhibition of 58 landscapes by an early 20th-century German-American artist, "Oscar Bluemner: The Hirshhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden Collection," will continue at the museum through March 2. Included in the exhibition are color sketches, drawings, watercolors and oil paintings. The display marks the first public showing of the museum's entire collection of works by Bluemner (1867-1938).
