

Money, car returned; policemen arrested

MATAMOROS, Mexico (AP) — Three high-ranking Mexican police officers and 12 policemen have been arrested in connection with the extortion of $14,000 from a Kentucky man who said he used the money to buy his son's freedom from a Matamoros policeman.

Jesús Rodríguez, head of the four-man state police bureau in Matamoros, was in jail Sunday as Mexican authorities, angered by the treatment of an American tourist, swept through this border city across the Rio Grande from Brownsville, Tex.

Matamoros Police Chief Ignacio Escobar and Commandant Oscar Villareal were also arrested but released on bond Sunday, according to a state police spokesman.

The 15 men were arrested by state police late Saturday night and charged "with various crimes." All 15 were also suspended pending further investigation.

Perry Lee Greer, Jr., a 19-year-old Southwest Texas State University sophomore, identified Villareal as the man who arrested him for marijuana possession at a Matamoros roadblock at midnight Tuesday. Greer said he was held for 22 hours until his father paid Villareal $14,000.

Young Greer also said Villareal took him to "a very fancy house" where Greer paid a man $30 to make a collect call to his father in Lexington, Ky. The house, one of four young Greer visited Saturday night accompanied by his father and state police officers, was identified as the Rodríguez residence, police officials said.

The Mexican policemen face maximum sentences of 25 years in prison if convicted, said a spokesman for the Tamaulipas state attorney general's office.

During a brief ceremony punctuated by smiling faces and apologetic speeches, Mexican authorities officially returned Greer's $14,000 and the keys to his son's 1976 Buick Sunday morning at the Matamoros police station.

"You have a sincere apology from the people of Mexico," Tamaulipas State Atty. Gen. Raul Albertos Betancourt told the Greers. "But remember, these things occur on the other side of the border also."

Americans get an eyeful

Iranians bring in new year

By TOMMY HART

The Iranian students at Webb AFB, who earlier had gathered at the officers club to celebrate the birthday of the Shah, regrouped in the same spot Sunday night to observe the Iranian new year.

The Iranian calendar dates back 2,536 years. If previous celebrations over such an event can be compared to this one, the change of the vernal equinox has brought on some grand old times for Iranians, whether they were at home or abroad.

The Iranians invited some of their American friends and tutors to the party. The significance of some of the things arranged for the social might have mystified the Americans present but the atmosphere was relaxed and the Westerners found it easy to adapt.

There was a belly dancer brought in for the program and the messages she was conveying are international. She mingled with the crowd, some of whom felt compelled to dance along with her. It was all very proper and the Iranians seemed to appreciate the fact that an American girl, in this instance Vicky Mincey of Lubbock, can master the maneuvers of a dance routine that originated in the Middle East.

A vital part of the program, was devoted to an appearance of Haj, who, in effect, is the nearest thing to Santa Claus in Iran, and Firoz, who invariably appears in black face.

Air Cadet Ezati took the role of Haj while A-C Fatemi was Firoz.

Together they sang the songs in native dialect that have come down over the centuries. The Americans picked up the chant in a hurry and started repeating them to the delight of the Iranians present.

Maj. Mehdi Arbabi (called "Bobby" by his American friends), is the Iranian liaison officer. It was he who took the lead in arranging the party. He served as a greeter and a host. It was Arbabi who saw to it that refreshments kept coming. When the program gave the slightest hint that it might bog down, the major joined the revelers on the dance floor to add an expert touch to the Oriental version of the conga.

A table had been decorated for the occasion. Displayed were seven items, each beginning with the Persian letter "S," considered a symbol of good luck.

Why seven? According to an Iranian student, it refers back to beginning of time, when Allah, or God, created the heaven and the earth in seven days.

Included in the display was some freshly sprouted green grass, which signifies the coming of spring.

Other items displayed on the table included the Holy Koran of the Moslems, along with a photograph of the Prophet Mohammad and his Imperial Majesty, the Shah of Iran and Empress Farah.

On other tables and the walls of the party area were rugs, sandals and post cards from the mother country.

The program was emceed by 2nd Lt. Eskandar Solani who tried, as best he could, to explain to the American guests the intricacies of the Iranian ritual.

At times, the dance floor was crowded with Iranians who were recreating dances they had learned in Iran and Americans who were taking crash courses in the weave and the bob.

Following the regular program and a visitation period, dancing to discotheque music got under way and continued until 12 midnight.

Measles cases show big gain

School officials at the high school reported that close to 70 students were out of the school last week, reported to have possible cases of measles.

Several high school students are hospitalized with the outbreak. The city-county health unit has only one case of measles recorded in Big Spring last week.

CREATING NEW YEAR — Iranian student pilot Lt. Ahmad Nadi and his wife, Sosa, (at right) talk with Col. and Mrs. Harry Spannaus and Maj. Mehdi Arbabi during the Iranian New Year's party Sunday night at Webb AFB. Mrs. Nadi is the first wife of Iranian student pilot to be in Big Spring, but she may have to return to Iran by Saturday if she cannot find an apartment.

Student pilot's wife may have to go home

For the first time, the wife of an Iranian student pilot is in Big Spring, but she may not be here long.

Unless Sosa Nadi, wife of Lt. Ahmad Nadi, can find an apartment in Big Spring by Saturday, she will be returning to Iran.

The newlywed couple are searching for a clean, reasonably-priced one-bedroom apartment or house, preferably somewhere near Webb Air Force Base, so Sosa can remain with her husband for six months while he finishes T38 training.

Normally, Iranian student pilots are not allowed to marry while in the United States, but Lt. Nadi's case was special. The couple met while he was at Sheppard AFB in Wichita Falls for T37 training and she was a college student. They fell in love and received permission to marry while in the U.S.

Then Lt. Nadi was transferred to Webb for T38 training where he is leader of Class 7708, but because of the difficulty in finding rental housing in Big Spring at this moment, they may not be able to stay together.

His wife, Sosa, has reservations to return to Iran, which she will reluctantly do on Saturday, unless an apartment can be found this week.

Indira Gandhi resigns

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi decided today to resign following the loss of her seat in Parliament and reverses suffered by her Congress party in the Indian general election, her spokesman said.

Opposition leaders began talks aimed at forming a new government.

The prime minister's spokesman said Mrs. Gandhi would formally submit her resignation Tuesday, ending 11 years as leader of the world's second most populous nation. China has the largest population.

The Congress party, which has ruled India since independence from Britain 30 years ago, trailed by a wide margin in the parliamentary returns and appeared unlikely to win enough seats to stay in power.

With results declared in races for 393 of the 542 seats in the lower house of Parliament, the new Janata (People's) party and its allies had 211 seats, only 61 short of a majority with 149 still to be decided.

The Congress party, which won two-thirds of the seats in the 1971 elections, had 134 seats. The pro-Moscow Communists won seven seats, and independents and other groups split the remainder.

Most of the seats still to be decided were from constituencies in northern India, a center of Janata strength.

In Washington, State Department officials said it was too early to judge the effect of the elections on U.S.-Indian relations. They added no valid assessment is possible until a new government is formed in New Delhi.

Hours after the announcement that she had lost her own seat, the 59-year-old prime minister ordered the end of the state of emergency, under which she imprisoned thousands of her opponents, and the restoration of all civil liberties.

Proclaimed in June 1975 to keep her in office after her conviction on a charge of campaign irregularities, the emergency sparked a voter revolt that contributed to her downfall, the defeat of her son Sanjay in his first bid for office, and the eclipse of the ruling dynasty her father, the late Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, established 30 years ago.

The chief contenders to succeed her are two former leaders of the Congress party who broke with her, Morarji Desai and Jagjivan Ram.

Desai, now 81, was Mrs. Gandhi's deputy prime minister in 1969 when she split the party in a struggle for power with conservative leaders. He and other conservatives formed the Opposition Congress, and in January it merged with three other opposition parties to form the Janata.

Ram, the 68-year-old leader of India's Untouchable caste, was the agriculture minister in Mrs. Gandhi's last cabinet. He broke with her last month and formed the Congress for Democracy, which won seven seats in the early returns.

There was speculation that Mrs. Gandhi's defeat would produce more defectors from her Congress who would rally behind Desai or Ram. Although separate parties, the Janata and Ram's Congress campaigned together and pledged to work together in the new Parliament.

No major shift in foreign policy is expected since the Janata's manifesto pledged adherence to India's traditional policy of nonalignment "free from any attachment to any power bloc." The party also pledged to restore all civil liberties and repeal the legislation Mrs. Gandhi put through during the emergency restricting freedom of the press and the independence of the judiciary.

Mrs. Gandhi lost her seat in Uttar Pradesh by 55,000 votes to Socialist leader Raj Narain, whom she had defeated in 1971 by 110,000 votes. Her 30-year-old son Sanjay, running for office for the first time after taking over leadership of the youth wing of the Congress party, lost the district adjoining his mother's by 75,844 votes.

MOCK FUNERAL — Supporters of Indian opposition party candidates carry one of their number in a mock funeral procession late Sunday evening as they celebrate the electoral defeat of Sanjay Gandhi, son of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi. Sign in background announces Sanjay's electoral loss by a total of 75,000 votes.

Action/reaction: Trash charge

Q. Why is the city manager charging us 50 cents for alley service when we don't have an alley? Isn't it illegal to force us to pay for services not rendered?

A. In the first place, the city manager doesn't set the charge. It is set by ordinance by the elected city officials. In the second place, there is no charge for the alley. There is the water charge plus the sewer charge plus the garbage and trash collection charge. The latter is $3, whether the trash be picked up in the alley, out front or not at all. The local ordinance states that anybody using city water pays the trash charge whether they have trash picked up or not, but that they are eligible to have trash picked up. This is not illegal, but is common in cities throughout the state. The questioner may be referring to the additional 50 cents added to the trash fee last year to help pay for maintenance of trash trucks, which get torn up in the alleys. This is paid by all citizens who use city water, under city ordinance and the law.

No evidence

CHICAGO (AP) — There is no evidence that heavy marijuana smoking changes the structure of the brain or central nervous system, two research groups conclude, despite earlier evidence that part of the brain wasted away under prolonged smoking. The new studies, carried out independently, are reported in the March 21 issue of The Journal of the American Medical Association.

Fukuda, Carter meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter and Japan's Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda, two newcomers to the international scene, are opening two days of talks on global economic and security issues. A White House ceremony featuring military honors was scheduled today for Fukuda, here on an official visit. Commission coming home

CLARK AIR BASE, The Philippines (AP) — President Carter's special commission to Indochina is returning home with assurances from Vietnam and hopes from Laos that procedures can be set up to clarify the status of some of the Americans missing in the Vietnam War. Hanoi handed over what they said were the remains of 12 U.S. pilots shot down in Vietnam. They were flown to Honolulu, and military medical experts went to work on them to confirm the identities.

Assassination internal?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The assassination of President Marien Nguabi of the People's Republic of the Congo "appears to be a typical internal problem there," CIA director Stansfield Turner says.

Turner, said on CBS' "Face the Nation" on Sunday, that it was "something handled by some people inside the Congo" but added that "the evidence is very, very tenuous and slim at this point."

He said he has begun "a careful review" of all covert and clandestine activities being conducted by American intelligence and declared, "There's nothing illegal or improper going on at this time."

Soviet leader meets with African chiefs

MOSCOW (AP) — President Nikolai Podgorny left Moscow today on a major Soviet diplomatic mission to southern Africa where he will meet leaders of black political and guerrilla movements fighting white regimes, diplomatic sources said.

Podgorny flew first to Tanzania. Cuban President Fidel Castro had left Tanzania hours before on his way to Zambia and Mozambique, and there was no indication the two men would meet.

From Tanzania, Podgorny is also scheduled to go to Zambia and Mozambique, two more of the so-called "front-line" black states supporting black nationalist movements in Rhodesia, South-West Africa and South Africa.

The Soviet leader was expected to warn the Africans to be suspicious of U.S. and British attempts to foster a gradual transfer of power to the black majorities in southern Africa. Moscow has called for the immediate transfer of power by the most effective means, and African diplomats say there have been promises of military aid for the guerrillas.

"The fate of southern Africa will not be settled on the banks of the Thames or the Potomac," Anatoly Gromyko, head of the Soviet's Africa Institute and son of Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, wrote in an article last week. He said the Western powers are patrons of the Rhodesian and South African regimes because Western firms reap "the highest profits in the world" from investments in southern Africa.

Diplomatic sources said Podgorny planned to stay in Tanzania until March 26, to visit Zambia March 26-29, and then to go to Mozambique.

Castro said Sunday in Dar es Salaam that he would like to increase Cuba's aid to Tanzania, but "our resources are preoccupied in Angola," the former Portuguese colony where Cuban troops and Soviet arms helped Marxist forces to victory over pro-Western rivals in a civil war last year.

Prospectors find gold bearing shaft?

WHITE SANDS MISSILE RANGE, N.M. (AP) — Treasure hunters looking for a legendary cache of gold supposedly hidden inside Victorio Peak have found a shaft which they say leads to a cave in the mountain.

One of the explorers said someone has been in the shaft since he went down it 20 years ago and saw piles of gold ingots.

The opening, just large enough for one person to pass through, was found Sunday after hours of excavation.

The object of the search is a cave stacked full of gold bars and other objects of unknown total value which the late Milton "Doc" Noss claimed to have discovered in 1937.

Noss had said he and a helper accidentally dynamited the opening shut.

However, others claim to have been in the vault since. The origin of the supposed gold is unknown, but some have speculated it was left by Indians or Spanish explorers, or perhaps by thieves.

The peak is on the restricted White Sands Missile Range, long off limits to treasure seekers who have heard the legend.

But the military and the state have given a 10-day search permit to Expeditions Unlimited, Inc., a Florida firm experienced in undersea treasure hunts, which has been hired by some of those claiming the treasure.

Expeditions Unlimited president Norman Scott said the statements of the three men who entered Sunday suggested that it was a passageway that eventually ends up in caverns hundreds of feet down. The three were Leonard Fiege, Jack Hull and EUT's professional spelunker, Jerry Lee. Their preliminary exploration lasted only an hour because of the dawn-to-dusk restrictions of the permit.

Lee said they found evidence of a campsite, including five sticks of dynamite, and commented that "whoever was down there appears to have left in a hurry."

Fiege said he first saw the cavern full of gold when, as an Air Force captain, he entered a passageway on the peak's east side in 1958.

Fiege said Sunday's exploration disclosed timbers shoring up earth and ladders "where you used to have to slide down a crevice."

Hull also claimed to have entered the mountain once before, but said he saw no metal bars at that time.

Lee said the area the three explored together is connected by a tiny passageway to a large room "where the ceiling has obviously fallen in."

He said the cave-in could have been caused by drilling such as that done by Gaddis Mining Co. in 1963 during a search by the Museum of New Mexico.

Prior to Sunday's excavation, the site was gone over by a Stanford Research Institute team using ground radar. Lambert Dolphin, head of the team, said the sophisticated electronics equipment would "detect a void in the rock, or changes in a void," but not metal.

If treasure is found, there remains the question of who will share in the wealth.

Ova Noss, 80-year-old widow of Doc Noss, watched the work Sunday. She is considered one of six legitimate claimants to the treasure.

JOHN HOGAN'S BUST ADMIRER BY PEOPLE CLOSE TO HIM
Dr. P.W. Malone, daughter Peggy Powell and wife Dixie Hogan (L to R)

Malone speaks of plans for center Bust of Hogan unveiled

"Johnny loved you people. He enjoyed his work with you. I know if there was some way I could telephone him and talk to him and tell him what you've done, he'd say 'That's nice.'"

Mrs. John Hogan, almost overcome with emotion, made these statements at the unveiling of the bronze bust of the late Dr. J.E. Hogan.

The unveiling took place in front of a group of close friends and fellow employees at Malone-Hogan Hospital Sunday afternoon. The bust was commissioned by the employees at Malone-Hogan in August of last year to a Levee artist, Don Stroud. Stroud was unable to be here for the program.

Also dedicated was an oak tree which has been planted in the area between the hospital and clinic. Taking part in the ceremony was Mrs. Boone (Peggy) Powell of Abilene, one of two Hogan daughters.

Mrs. Powell, her husband and three children, Mark, Cristi and Cari were guests of honor at the event along with Mrs. Hogan. Janet Hogan Larkey and her family sent a telegram from Vancouver, Can. Other members of the family present included Dr. and Mrs. Ned Dudley from Lake City.

Participating in the dedication rites were Board Chairman K.H. McGibson; P.W. Malone, M.D., co-founder; and Dr. Kenneth Patrick, pastor of the First Baptist Church. A special guest was Mike Ezell, state representative, Austin. McGibson, on the occasion of the second anniversary of the hospital, commended the late Dr. Hogan for his far-sightedness in helping establish the facility and his service to the community.

Dr. Malone recalled the original partnership and pointed to the dream for a Cancer Diagnostic Center, which was an eventual goal of the two physicians.

Board members present, in addition to Dr. Malone and McGibson included Johnnie Walker, Clyde Angel, Jack H. Burnett Jr., M.D. and J.W. Woodall M.D. Joe Pickle was unable to attend after receiving minor injuries in a home accident.

Now...there is a 10 year warranty on Gas Air Conditioning!

Install Gas air conditioning now and forget about major cooling problems for at least ten years. And, ten years is a loooong time. Time for children to finish junior high, high school and graduate from college. That's a lot of summers for you to enjoy a cool, comfortable home without worrying about expensive maintenance to your cooling system.

How can we give a 10 year warranty on Arkla-Servel Gas air conditioning when the other kind offers only five?

The answer is in quality construction and Gas air conditioning's simple operating system. Most of the important parts in an Arkla-Servel are stainless steel and they are put together by craftsmen. And, there are fewer moving parts to wear out. Gas air conditioning lasts longer, lasts better.

Install Gas air conditioning now and be ready for next summer . . . and the next . . . and the next . . .

Call for a free cooling survey. There is NO OBLIGATION.

A manufacturer's limited warranty on the sealed unit only. Valid on ACB series residential units purchased after January 1, 1977, through August 31, 1977, only.

Credit not automatic Weather

DALLAS — Payments for child care services made to relatives by working parents may not necessarily qualify for the new child care credit. Available for 1976 income tax returns now being filed, the credit has been misunderstood by some working parents who believe it covers payments to all relatives for child care to allow the taxpayer to be gainfully employed.

Under the law, payments for child care expenses to relatives can qualify for the credit only if: (1) the relative cannot be claimed as a dependent; and (2) the relative works for the taxpayer and the service qualifies as employment subject to social security tax withholding.

Payments made to a mother or father of the taxpayer for child care may qualify for the credit only if the two conditions mentioned above are met and: (1) the taxpayer has a child in the home who is under age 15 or who is disabled and requires the personal care of an adult for at least four continuous weeks in the calendar quarter in which the service is rendered; and (2) the taxpayer is widowed, divorced, or married to someone who is disabled and incapable of taking care of the child for at least four continuous weeks in that calendar quarter. The child must be cared for in the taxpayer's home.

Man killed in shootout

NEW SUMMERFIELD, Tex. (AP) — Cherokee County Sheriff Danny Stallings says a man who died after a long shootout with authorities was a longtime friend of his family who "just went off the deep end."

Cecil Tilley, 57, of New Summerfield, a community just east of Jacksonville in East Texas, died in a hospital after a three-hour shootout with some 50 law enforcement officers, Stallings said.

Sheriff's deputies from Cherokee and Smith counties, police from Jacksonville and surrounding towns, highway patrolmen and a Texas Ranger took part in the shooting.

The shootout ended after Stallings and his chief deputy, Bill Keating, forced their way into the house filled with "enough tear gas to choke an elephant," Stallings said.

First full day of spring cooler

Gusty north winds propelled a fresh cold snap downstate from the Texas Panhandle today, threatening to whip dust into the sky along the way.

At the same time fog clamped down on parts of the Texas coast in early morning, cutting visibility to zero near Galveston at times. Lighter fog extended from the Orange vicinity down the coast to Corpus Christi and inland as far as San Antonio. Drizzle fell around Victoria and Austin.

Near dawn the forward edge of the frontal system stretched along a line linking Wichita Falls, Big Spring and Midland. It was expected to cross the coastline by evening.

Skies cleared behind the cold front. It was partly cloudy nearly everywhere else.

Early morning temperatures dipped to 27 degrees at Dalhart, 29 at Amarillo and 32 at Lubbock in the Panhandle-Plains sector. Readings elsewhere at the same hour stayed as warm as 70 at Corpus Christi and McAllen down south.

Fair and cooler weather was promised all sections tonight. It was expected to warm a bit in the west and north parts of the state Tuesday.

Weather conditions in much of the nation resembled those normally associated with winter despite the official arrival of spring Sunday. Snow fell overnight in parts of New England, Iowa, Wisconsin, Colorado, Montana and Washington.

A winter storm watch was extended through tonight in Lower Michigan.

WEATHER FORECAST

— A combination of rain and snow is forecast today for a large portion of the East Coast. Snow is anticipated from Maine south to Pennsylvania, and rain is expected as far south as North Carolina. Showers are also predicted for coastal portions of Washington and Oregon.

DEADLINE FOR ENTRIES: THURSDAY, MARCH 31, 1977

Publisher's corner Cruel treatment for a dog

Mrs. Bowden Hampton, who lives on the Sterling City Route out of Big Spring, has watched from her country home the agony of many abandoned pets.

She has taken the animals into her care, in so far as possible, and advertised for homes for others that she could not handle.

SHE HAS written a short article to me bringing the problem of pets dumped onto the countryside into perspective. I think it is well worth our readers' time:

AN OPEN LETTER TO CITY DWELLERS

By Mrs. B. Hampton

Remember that adorable puppy you adopted for your child as a pet and companion to love and care for?

Oh how cute it was. How madly it wagged its little tail in your presence. How the love shined from those eyes, the kiss on your hand, gratitude returned for the affection and care you gave it.

One day it was time to leave on vacation. Leave the dog in a kennel? Too expensive.

Or your child returns to school, putting all the care on your shoulders.

JOSEPHINE B.
HAMPTON

Or the dog reaches breeding age, and who wants the mess of a litter of puppies. The dog could be neutered, but it is too expensive.

Suddenly you just couldn't be bothered anymore. You could have put it to sleep, but you are just too tenderhearted.

So the simple solution was to dump it on a country road where some kind-hearted country folk would care for it. There it would have freedom to run, romp and play. How kind you are, giving this pet a newer, freer life.

You should live in the country to see what happens to these pets you gave new life to.

FIRST, THEY stay in the spot dumped waiting for you to come for them. Days later, they starve to death. A few weeks of hot sun and their bodies decompose, leaving only hair and bones.

Second, they join a wild dog pack, killing for food, wandering aimlessly, always searching. Eventually some are shot for killing domestic stock.

This is the life of freedom you gave them because of your being "tenderhearted."

If you could see the look of desperation in their eyes, you would know that you have bestowed upon that once-loved pet the most cruel and inhuman treatment possible.

Do you still think of yourselves as kindly?

Reflections on repeal

William F.
Buckley, Jr.

If I had been in the Senate, I'd have voted against the repeal of the Byrd Amendment, but I'd have had misgivings, which I feel obliged to divulge.

Against the repeal of the provision that permitted American importers to bring in Rhodesian chrome are formidable arguments, in my opinion marginally persuasive.

Insofar as an embargo against Rhodesian chrome is intended as a moral gesture, it is embarrassingly selective. To pick on the government of Rhodesia in a world that has us dealing routinely with the governments of the Soviet Union, the Chinese Communists, East Germany, Uganda, and the Philippines, is less a reflection on the inequities of the Rhodesian government than on the cynicism of American foreign policy. Picking on the bad-boy in the block who gets about on crutches while ignoring the jack-booted bullies is contemptible.

MORAL EXHIBITIONISM at the bayonet-point of public opinion is something less than ennobling. The reason the whole of the Carter Administration got behind the anti-Rhodesian push to rescind the Byrd Amendment is that we desired to ingratiate ourselves with the black governments of Africa. It will be objected that that was not our only motive. We desired also to ingratiate ourselves with Great Britain.

But the argument is circuitous, because the principal reason why Great Britain is offended by Rhodesia is that the black republics of Africa are offended by it. If, per impossible, Ian Smith were carried tomorrow triumphantly on the backs of African leaders who chanted his praises, the same government in Great Britain that quickly forgave treason in India, terrorism in Palestine, and insults in Africa, would find a way to join the chorus. Whitehall has accepted every kind of humiliation, in the past 30 years, from its former colonies. Rhodesia's slight is insignificant except for the black African factor.

The imposition of a fresh sanction on Rhodesia comes, as a tactical matter, exactly at the wrong time. Ian Smith, believe it or not, ought to become, now, our cause. Not the old Ian Smith who was talking about racial equality as something that would come about at approximately the same time that the Marxists-Leninists in the Soviet Union got around to fulfilling the Marxist promise of the evanescence of the state. No, the new Ian Smith who is, quite simply, the principal agent in Rhodesia of constitutional, bi-racial government.

At this point — as distinguished, say, from one year ago — Ian Smith's government is the last hope for constitutional government in Rhodesia, to be distinguished from the kind of totalitarian savagery Portuguese and western diplomacy have visited upon Angola. Of all moments in recent history when it truly mattered that the moderates should be helped and the radicals discouraged, this was it. With our flair for ineptitude, we chose that moment to strengthen the hand of the terrorists.

Mrs. Hampton writes of this problem from the point of view of a country person who cares for animals.

"Oh, dear! Perhaps I was wrong in banning saccharin! Maybe I would have been better to have banned cancer."

Elbows often affected first

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 22 and for many years have had a problem with dry and scaly elbows. I have tried almost everything, but I can't stop the scaling and bleeding. Can you give me some suggestions? Can this be what they call "psoriasis"? I've heard that people who have it also get arthritis. True? — J.F.

Psoriasis often appears first on the elbows and knees, although it can occur just about anywhere on the body and at any age. It is most severe between the ages of 15 and 50. A microscopic examination of the scale material will confirm psoriasis, a problem that afflicts about 150,000 persons each year (new cases). There are about 8 million victims in the U.S.

The important thing to remember about psoriasis is that it is not contagious. Misinformation about this has caused difficulty for many sufferers over the years.

According to the latest statistics I have from the National Psoriasis Foundation, about 10 per cent of persons with psoriasis suffer from what is called "psoriatic arthritis." This is attributed to massive internal tissue growth related to the psoriasis.

Psoriasis itself is caused by a defect in the way outer layers of the skin form. In normal skin the outer layer of cells is "shed" after about 30 days. We don't even notice this normal maturing and discarding of these cells.

In psoriasis the process is speeded up to where only 6 to 8 days is allowed. As a result the skin cells never fully mature. Instead of being removed they remain and form dead skin patches, the familiar silvery plaques of psoriasis.

It's important to keep psoriatic skin well-lubricated and the dead cells removed as best one can. Otherwise secondary infections can develop.

Although research has not brought us nearer to the ultimate answer to this distressing problem, some control is possible today. Treatments are often long and expensive, however.

They include use of tar-based ointments, ultraviolet lamps or these in combination. Cortisone has been tried as well as drugs that inhibit cell growth. Researchers are looking into what is called "photochemotherapy." A drug called 8-methoxypsoralen is administered to make the skin more sensitive to the ultra-violet light. Other acids and drugs are continually being investigated. The drug-ultraviolet light treatment mentioned above is experimental, and not in general use. The National Psoriasis Foundation is to be complimented for its support of research into a problem that affects so many Americans. Its address is Suite 110, 6415 S.W. Canyon Court, Portland, Ore. 97221.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a fungus in my toe nails. I am taking one tablet daily of Fulvicin. In addition I use Tinactin powder in the morning and use it in cream form at night.

I have been on this treatment for six months and wonder if there may be something else to help eliminate this problem. — E.H.

Griseofulvin (the generic name for Fulvicin) is an excellent antifungal, but effective only against certain types of fungi. You should find out whether the one bothering you is one of those it is effective against.

Nails grow slowly, and six months may not be enough time for such treatment to take full effect. Effectiveness is measured by the state of the new nail growth. Local applications (such as Tinactin) are frequently used along with the oral medicine.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I've heard that night blindness can be a symptom of retinitis pigmentosa. Is this true? — J.H.

It can be, but usually the causes of night blindness involve other factors — lack of vitamin A, poor vision, stress (such as night fear) and fatigue. A child exhibiting night blindness should be checked, nevertheless, to rule out retinitis pigmentosa.

If afflicted with problem fingernails or toenails, learn the practical, medically correct form of treatment. Write to Dr. Thosteson, in care of the Big Spring Herald, for a copy of his booklet, "Solving Your Nail Problems," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Reader's questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: The Bible teaches that we should love our neighbors as ourselves, but can you advise how to love people you do not even like? There is one person who has caused me a lot of trouble and has been a positive nuisance over a long period. How am I supposed to react to such a person? — S.L.

DEAR S.L.: Here is an ideal opportunity for you to demonstrate what Christian love is all about. Always remember that you are to show forth God's love, not your own. God has always loved the unlovely, the unlikable, the troublemaker, the sinner.

The first commandment Jesus gave us is that we should love God. It is not possible to obey the second commandment, love our neighbor, until we are experiencing the first. Concentrate on what it means to really love God. Express that love in your public and private worship, and by learning of God's love for you in the Bible. It is only as your love for God increases that you will be able to reflect God's love to other people.

Recognize that love is not something you work up within yourself. It is a quality that God places in your life. Love is part of the fruit of the Holy Spirit (Galatians 5:22). It is therefore unique. It is the love of God, pray for that love, asking God to give you a love for the person you dislike.

That love will lead you to act. When your neighbor begins to experience love in action he will start to appreciate what true love is really like. Nothing will change your neighbor's behavior more quickly than to see your change towards him, and to experience your love over a period of time.

Read 1 Corinthians, chapter 13, substituting the word "love" for that of "charity." Love is what that old English word really means.

One of a kind

Around the rim

Danny Reagan

This is the first installment of a three-part rim about a local man that I knew in college. He still lives in Big Spring, and the names have been changed to protect the innocent (if there were any).

I MET BOSCOE Cleavey ten years ago, at the inception of my college career. My first day at Texas Tech had arrived and I was searching for a friend of mine who was to meet me at the psychology building. After characteristic difficulty, I found the building and entered a lobby which was strewn with lying, sitting and standing people.

After waiting 20 minutes without any sign of my new room-mate, John, and with complete small-town naivete, I could think of nothing else to do but ask someone about him. My attention was attracted to one person in particular, who was sort of sitting and lying at the same time.

He was the first male person I had ever encountered who had hair that touched his pants pockets. And even though I was somewhat awed by this fact, I approached him.

"Excuse me," I squeaked, wanting very much to exorcise an obstruction that had formed in my throat, "have you seen John Seaton?"

At the sound of such rasping in the lobby, the majority of the people just looked up with typical indifference. I then began to consider the utter dumbness of my act. The probability of any of the people in that hallway knowing my friend was almost nil.

But this sitting-lying person whom I had questioned did not even answer me, he did not move, he did nothing, and I knew that if I tried to walk away from him in front of all of those people, I would move with an embarrassed gait apparently indicating sheer lack of coordination — a condition that is induced by the eyes of ten more strangers watching you walk — it's called "Fool's Trot."

But about the time I felt I would surely turn around and walk into a wall, the inert body before me blinked his eyes and readjusted himself so that he faced directly towards me. I jumped at the chance.

"Have you seen John Seaton?" I inquired. This time I had already cleared my throat.

He looked at me from behind his orange-tinted glasses, with the calm assurance of a qualified and knowledgeable philosopher, and said, "I have not seen anyone all day."

For some reason, his answer sounded logical enough to me at the time. Perhaps I accepted it so readily because it gave me an opportunity to depart posthaste. And after a mumbled, "Thank you," I put my "Fool's Trot" in gear and left.

"Thank goodness I won't have to see this guy again," I thought as I stumbled out the door. But that night at the dorm cafeteria proved otherwise.

I was familiar with the many tales of infamous dorm food, but I was looking forward to my first meal there, no matter how it might taste. And after standing in line for ten minutes, my room-mate (I had found him) and I seated ourselves at one of the long tables and prepared to have the charter meal of our college days.

The food didn't look too bad, and after a few bites, it didn't taste so bad either. But we spent the remainder of our meal discussing what the dessert really was. It looked like freshly baked bat-wings, or vertebrate chocolate cake.

OUR REVERIE UPON the dessert was interrupted by a commotion three or four tables away. To say the least, I was surprised to see my sitting-lying friend from the psychology building standing at one of the tables. With one hand he was grasping his throat in the cliché movie-manner as if he had just swallowed strychnine. In the other hand he was holding his bowl of dessert, and with horrified eyes was staring at the half-eaten bat-wings.

He made a noise which sounded similar to a strangling Tarzan, and without further delay, he fell face down into his plate of mashed potatoes, cranberry sauce, and pieces of some orange substance (they looked like carrots, but I didn't pick them out in the food line because of my doubts).

After his face splattered into the plate, he did not move. Evidently, this had all happened before, because three of the guys who were sitting at his table immediately arose and feigned surprise and worry. By this time, everyone was regarding the proceedings, some laughing and some just staring.

His three assistants were carrying the poisoned college victim out in a none too effective manner — they looked as if they would drop him at any minute. They were dragging him down the aisle by the table where I was eating my own "bat-wings," when he "regained" consciousness.

The infected body was a most convincing sight, with patches of color and "bat-wings" scattered all over his face. He was moaning and saying that he was leaving everything to charity. Just as they carried him out the door, the cafeteria director came rushing out of the kitchen with a semi-concerned look on his face.

As if his eyes had confirmed his suspicions, the look on his face turned to knowing despair. Immediately he had looked to the table where the food martyr had been sitting. No doubt, the plate with the face-print upon it told him that the artistic critic of his food had been performing again.

The mock culinary assassination gave me an opportunity to learn the name of this collegiate cafeteria jester. Of course, after someone had naturally asked, "Who was that guy?" one of the veterans of the dorm told us that the long-haired comedian went by the name of Boscoe Cleavey.

NEXT MONDAY: "Boscoe's Room."

Corrective action

Jack Anderson, Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — There has been a quiet but powerful effort to shut the lid on CIA scandals.

Three days after Admiral Stansfield Turner was sworn in as the new CIA chief, he spoke to Attorney General Griffin Bell about plugging leaks. Turner would like to impose criminal sanctions against government officials who disclose CIA secrets.

On Capitol Hill, Senate Intelligence Chairman Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, told colleagues that he had no inclination to investigate past scandals. His committee had enough to do, he said, just keeping up with current intelligence operations.

THE COMMITTEE unanimously agreed at a secret meeting not to dwell on the CIA's past. "The committee feels it is not possible with the resources available to investigate all past wrongdoings," a spokesman told us.

There is one curious exception to Inouye's disinterest in old CIA skeletons. He directed his staff to proceed cautiously with an investigation of the John F. Kennedy assassination. This was a promise, Inouye explained, that he had made to the Senate.

But competent sources claim Inouye has fallen under the influence of the CIA, which has quietly encouraged him to shut off inquiries into past scandals but to go ahead with a discreet investigation of the Kennedy murder.

The CIA's strategy, according to these sources, is to stymie the House assassination probe. Too close scrutiny of the tragedy might embarrass the CIA, which withheld crucial facts from the Warren Commission. The CIA, therefore, would prefer to shift the investigation to the Senate back burner.

This is merely one manifestation of the CIA's grim, new determination to keep out of the headlines in the future. For the CIA is largely behind the drive to tighten security in Washington.

As a result of this backstage push, both houses of Congress are preparing to take a new look at the secrecy question. There is growing sentiment on Capitol Hill, led by Rep. Charles Bennett, D-Fla., to give the federal government the power to jail news leakers. President Carter, meanwhile, is trying to limit the number of people who have access to secret documents.

We have broken our share of CIA secrets. It might be useful to review a few of them as examples of the secrets that the CIA has sought to hide from the populace.

—Back in January, 1971, we revealed that the CIA had recruited Mafia mobsters to knock off Cuba's Fidel Castro. We named the mobsters and their CIA contacts.

—We reported in March, 1972, that the CIA had plotted to block leftist leader Salvador Allende from taking power after he was elected president of Chile.

—WE BROKE THE story in November, 1972, that the CIA, together with the FBI and Secret Service, had been spying on prominent Americans. We quoted from a secret CIA report on singer Eartha Kitt as evidence that the CIA had a strange interest in her sex life.

—In April, 1973, we uncovered the fact that the CIA had attempted to obstruct the FBI investigation of the Watergate scandal. We divulged the following month that White House staff chief H.R. Haldeman had asked the CIA to hamper the investigation.

—We told in May, 1974, of the CIA payoffs to world leaders. We followed with a report that the CIA had also provided visiting leaders with women. Among the recipients of CIA favors, whom we identified, was Jordan's King Hussein.

—In February, 1975, we told of love traps which the CIA operated in New York City and San Francisco to black-mail foreign diplomats. Through hidden one-way mirrors, CIA agents filmed the sexual adventures of the diplomats.

—Not long afterward, we broke the story that the CIA had paid the Howard Hughes organization a fantastic $400 million to recover an obsolete Soviet submarine from the bottom of the Pacific.

Sports car burial not required

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A lawyer for the family of a California woman who said in her will that she wanted to be buried in her sports car says it may not be necessary to do that in order to get the bulk of her estate.

San Antonio attorney Fred Semaan says he is the major beneficiary of the estate of the late Sandra West, who left an estimated $5 million.

He said over the weekend that he plans to file what he believes is the most recent will of the late Sandra West in a court at Los Angeles this week. He indicated this will does not have the sports car burial provision.

Police found the 37-year-old Mrs. West dead in her Beverly Hills, Calif., home March 10. A ruling is pending in the death.

Semaan, described by family friends as "more like a father" to Mrs. West, has been the family's attorney for more than 20 years. He said he had the will, dated Nov. 23, 1976, in his office safe.

Saturday, Semaan vowed to wage a legal battle against an earlier will filed for probate in Los Angeles last week. It was allegedly handwritten by Mrs. West in 1972 and contains a number of unusual provisions.

The earlier will purports to leave up to $2.5 million to Mrs. West's brother-in-law, Sol West of the tiny Texas town of Comfort.

A provision of the 1972 will states that Sol West must bury the wealthy woman clothed in a lace dress and seated in her Italian sports car.

Mrs. West's body has been embalmed but burial has been delayed pending court disposition of the will.

Semaan insisted Saturday that the latest will was written in his office on Nov. 23. He said it "doesn't contain any wild provisions about burying her in a Ferrari or anything else."

He added, "The will was witnessed by four people, all San Antonians, and will be filed in Los Angeles this week. I'll either go or send a representative out there."

He said Mrs. West gave no indication during the signing of the Nov. 23 will that there was another will in existence.

Semaan said none of the West family members were included in the new will.

Sol West's attorney, Arthur Crowley of Los Angeles, said, "I've heard of Mr. Semaan and I understand there is a second will. But there is a question about it. I understand it was marked void all over it and that Mr. Semaan is supposed to be the major beneficiary."

Semaan said, "That will was marked void by me on every page but the last one containing her signature and that of the witnesses. She refused to accept the voiding and the will was returned to me on her instructions."

Violence claims 12 lives

Traffic accidents and other forms of violence claimed a relatively light toll in Texas during the weekend.

Reports gathered by The Associated Press listed 12 deaths, including nine on streets and highways and three homicides, between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Sunday.

A two-car crash at Hawkins, north of Tyler in Wood County, killed William Patterson, 73, and his wife Pearl of Waco and injured two occupants of the other vehicle seriously Sunday evening. The injured, taken to a Tyler hospital, are Samuel H. Jeffrey Jr., 60, and Samuel H. Jeffrey III, 34, of Hawkins. Officers said the Jeffrey vehicle veered across the center of the roadway and the cars collided head-on.

A three-hour shootout with 50 peace officers Sunday ended in the fatal shooting of Cecil Tilley, 57, at New Summerfield, in East Texas near Jacksonville. Authorities said they surrounded his house after Tilley wounded his wife during an argument, fired at a neighbor taking her to a hospital and shot at officers checking on the disturbance before they summoned him.

McMurry plans campus center

ABILENE — McMurry College has announced plans to build a $2 million campus center.

McMurry will also raise tuition fees to offset rising costs. Tuition goes up $2 to make it $48 an hour. Fees are also being doubled to a $6 level, which results in a total cost in tuition and fees of $54.

The new center will be located in almost the exact center of McMurry's southside campus. Part of the center will be below ground, with the idea in mind of conserving energy for heating and cooling.

Salary increases ranging up to ten per cent have also been granted McMurry faculty and staff.

Blast rips oil tanker

PORTSMOUTH, Va., (AP) — A 676-foot Panamanian tanker with a crew of 40 broke in two off the North Carolina coast following an apparent explosion, the Coast Guard reported here today.

A Coast Guard spokesman said reports from the scene have indicated there are 16 known survivors.

The stricken vessel is the Claude Conway, built 20 years ago in Japan.

The Coast Guard said there are four merchant ships on the scene, about 140 miles off of Morehead, City, N.C.

It added that efforts are being made to remove 14 men from the stern section off the Claude Conway and two survivors from the bow.

The Coast Guard said the vessel apparently broke in two following an explosion sometime Sunday.

An oil slick was reported at the scene, but the Coast Guard said it had no information on its size.

Farm Briscoe to name ag chief

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe names a successor today to John C. White, who resigned as state agriculture commissioner to become deputy U.S. secretary of agriculture.

Briscoe said he would make the announcement at a 2 p.m. news conference.

White resigned last Thursday at the same time he was sworn into federal office. He had been state agriculture commissioner for 26 years and 75 days.

At least five persons have been mentioned as possible Briscoe choices for the job that will last until voters named a commissioner in the November, 1978, general election. The appointee must be approved by the Senate.

Prominent on the list of possibilities was Bill Pieratt, 61, Giddings, who was White's deputy for 11 years. Pieratt, a former state legislator, has said he wants the job but has had no indication from Briscoe.

John Meetze

Conservationist added at Snyder

John Meetze has been employed by the Soil Conservation Service as a soil conservationist on the Snyder Field Office staff. Meetze will be assisting farmers and ranchers in the Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District to solve conservation problems.

Meetze came to Snyder from El Paso. He is a native of Columbia, S.C. and a 1970 graduate of New Mexico State University with a major in Agriculture Economics.

Meetze and his wife Jennie are the parents of three children, Thomas, Stephanie and Walter.

The Meetze family will move to Snyder at the end of the school term.

Benefits of programs are available to all

The benefits of Soil Conservation Service programs are available to all people in conservation districts without regard to race, color, religion, sex, or national origin.

This policy was the subject of an editorial in a recent issue of Soil Conservation magazine. The editorial was authored by R.M. Davis, administrator of the USDA's Soil Conservation Service.

Davis was explicit in his assertion.

"SCS employees are charged with actively encouraging minority land users to become cooperators with their local districts, to attend conservation meetings, and to participate fully in conservation programs."

One of the ways in which this policy has been carried out in Texas is the use of a public information campaign to help make minority land users aware of SCS technical assistance. Efforts have included production of Spanish-language radio and TV announcements and publications geared to minority land users.

SCS has also recruited Negro, female, and Mexican-American employees who have helped extend the benefits of soil and water conservation to more people. The conservation agency has also been successful, in cooperation with the Small Business Administration, in helping minority contractors qualify for small construction contracts awarded by SCS.

Davis said the Soil Conservation Service expects to see conservation aid extended even more to minority groups in the months and years ahead.

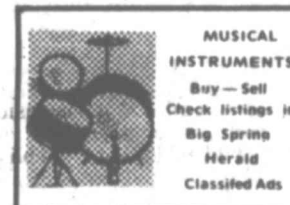

It is also the policy of the Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District that "No person in the District shall on the grounds of race, color, creed or national origin be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of or be subject to discrimination under any activity receiving assistance from the District."

Group backing legislation

The National Association of Retired and Veteran Railway Employees heard correspondence from their national president during a meeting Thursday in the Kentwood Older Adult Activity Center.

The communication advised the group that Cong. Claude Pepper intends to reintroduce a "widow's bill" in the 95th Congress. The bill is said to ask for the same consideration for widows of those in the railroad industry as that of widows who are receiving an annuity from Social Security.

Mrs. J.S. Jordan was welcomed as a new member, and guests were Mrs. Eula Clifton, Mrs. Lillian Patton, Miss Helen Ewing and Mr. and Mrs. T.E. Cantrell.

T.E. Cantrell provided entertainment with magic tricks.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. G.W. Hill, Mrs. Velma Kesterson, Mrs. G.H. Briden, Mrs. R.A. Pachall, Mrs. W.C. Bell and Mrs. J.T. Gilmore.

The next meeting will be at 7 p.m., April 21 at the Kentwood Center.

Blood pressure said controllable

HOUSTON (AP) — High blood pressure, one of the most dangerous of killers in modern society, can be controlled with proper treatment and an understanding physician, says a Baylor College of Medicine scientist.

Dr. R.E. Borreson, an associated professor of medicine, has proven in the past year that 74 per cent of the patients in his hypertension clinic have their blood pressure under control and can expect a long, long life.

On a national scale, only 10 to 20 per cent of the 23 million persons suffering from high blood pressure are in the safe level, he said in an interview.

Borreson, who conducts his clinic at the Veterans Administration hospital in Houston, said the main objective is to keep the patients returning regularly for treatment.

To do this, he said, "You must have fragment health care. These patients may have other health problems and they don't want to be looked upon as just a disease, as a study for high blood pressure. They want the physician to take them as a whole package, so when they have other health problems the same doctor will treat them."

"In modern medicine," he said, "there has been a trend toward fragmentation. The Nuptial Rites performed in Lovington

Navy women want wider opportunities for sea duty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Faced with a court suit, the Navy is moving to give women wider opportunities for sea duty.

The Navy is circulating word that it has prepared legislation to change current laws that prohibit assignment of women to vessels other than hospital ships and transports.

Navy women have been beached since 1975 when the last hospital ship, the Sanctuary, was retired.

A message from headquarters to fleet and shore stations said: "The proposed change ... will permit the Secretary of the Navy to prescribe a greater variety of shipboard duty to which women members of the naval service may be assigned."

Lions Auxiliary cancels event

The Downtown Lions Auxiliary has cancelled its meeting which was scheduled Wednesday. The next meeting will be April 20 when a salad luncheon will be held in the home of Mrs. B.M. Keese.

But Navy women still would be barred from serving in combat.

The proposal, which must be approved by Defense Secretary Harold Brown and Congress, marks a victory for Navy women who have been pushing for equality with Navy men.

Pentagon sources acknowledged the new move was spurred by a federal suit filed here by six Navy enlisted women and officers, who claim Navy restrictions infringe their constitutional rights.

The Navy message said the proposed law change would permit assignment of women "to temporary duty on any vessels not engaged in combat missions, and to permanent duty on vessels similar to hospital ships and transports which would not be expected to be assigned combat missions."

Officials refused to elaborate when asked for details on what kinds of ships would be likely to receive women for their crews. The language of the message suggested Navy women might be placed on combat type vessels, as well as various classes of support ships, in peacetime.

Until four years ago, Navy women were limited almost entirely to medical and clerical jobs.

Since then their role has gradually expanded.

Anniversary marked by International Club

The 16th anniversary of the International Women's Club was celebrated March 9 with a dinner at the KC Steak and Seafood House. Social members attended the affair, and there was no program.

The club was founded here in 1961 by Mrs. Maurice Pelletier and Mrs. Donald Eisenhart, and membership is open to all foreign-born women.

The purpose of the club is to sponsor social and cultural activities among its members and "to share our cultural heritage with our American friends." The club also gives members an opportunity to speak their native languages again.

President for the current year is Mrs. Garry Garrison of Germany. Sharing the officer slate are Mrs. Ed Sharp, Switzerland; Mrs. Jerry Gilbert, Germany; and publicity chairman, Mrs. Glen Burton, also of Germany. Countries represented on the membership roll now are Germany, Switzerland, Holland, Thailand and England.

The next meeting will be at 7:30 p.m., April 13 in the home of Mrs. Phillip Gazi, 179-B Fairchild. A macrame demonstration is planned for this meeting, and members are reminded to bring materials for this craft.

All foreign-born women are invited to attend the meeting. For more information, call Mrs. Garrison, 263-3296.

Don't Let Her Take Over Your Nose

DEAR ABBY: Last summer for my 16th birthday, my mother gave me a nose job. My nose is a lot smaller now but it's slightly lopsided. I mean one of my nostrils is higher than the other.

After I had my nose done, my mother had hers done by another doctor. Hers came out really perfect, and now she wants HER doctor to do my nose over.

I don't want to go through that whole thing again with the black and blue eyes and the swollen face, but my mother insists on it. Don't you think I should have something to say about it? After all, it's my nose.

My mother says that as a minor I have to do whatever she says.

Please help me.

HAD ENOUGH

DEAR HAD: If you're satisfied with your nose, hold your ground. Your mother can't force you into elective surgery. And knowing how you feel, no respectable plastic surgeon would take your case.

DEAR ABBY: My husband never fails to show me every item you put in your column about fat women.

Isn't it funny that a man never sees himself as he looks now? My husband had all his teeth pulled and won't wear his dentures. He's only 52, but he looks like 72. He goes around needing a shave, and I have to fight with him to get him to change his clothes.

Now for me: I was 27, slim and trim when he married me. Four years later, after I had my third baby, I was 50 pounds overweight.

My husband never wanted to go any place. He just wanted to stay home, drink beer and watch TV. I'm so fat now it's an effort for me to walk around, so of course my house is dirty. I'm in a terrible rut. If only I could lose this weight!

My husband won't lift a hand to help me, and the house is falling apart.

We have no friends and I'm so ashamed of the way we live, but I don't know how to change it. Am I hopeless?

NO FUTURE

DEAR NO: You're only hopeless if you think you are. Start with yourself. Look up OVEREATER'S ANONYMOUS and force yourself to attend one meeting. Or contact your local mental health society. The kind of help you need is available in both places. But they won't come to YOU—you must go to them. Take this advice as though your life depended upon it—because it does.

DEAR ABBY: First someone writes in and complains because it takes forever to get a check in a restaurant. In fact, one party was so burned up after waiting so long that she left without paying.

Then someone else writes in and complains because the waiter shoves the check under their noses before they even put their forks down, which is way of saying, "Goodbye, already. We need the table!"

So, Dear Abby, what do you suggest?

A WAITER CAN'T WIN

DEAR WAITER: The diner should request the check, whereupon the waiter should present it promptly.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "HURT MOTHER": Don't ask your son to make a choice between his wife and you. If you've raised him right, you'll lose.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24¢) envelope.

Program explores world's religions

Hinduism and Buddhism were among the religions of the world discussed by Mrs. Suzanne Curotto in a program given March 14 for Beta Omicron Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi.

The dinner meeting was held at La Posada, and guests included Mrs. Mary Louis Heitz, Mrs. Kathy Foster, Mrs. Judy Hagle, Mrs. Toni Shellenberger and Mrs. Jackie Taylor.

Earlier, chapter members had said farewell to Mrs. Fran Roberts, who has moved to Fort Worth, at a party and ritual in the home of Mrs. Curotto. On March 12, a party and scavenger hunt was given in honor of this season's rushees and their husbands.

Oilmen don't say 'good-bye'

By WILFRID M. CALNAN
Director, Howard Co.
Family Service Center

Recently my secretary brought my telephone habits to my attention. She observed that as soon as I finished my business with the person called or calling, I hang up the telephone. I don't say "good-bye". Until my secretary pointed this out I had been unaware of this "habit." I thought about it and realized that from my long association with oilmen, I had acquired some of their telephone style.

In my experience, the oilman begins his telephone conversation with a statement and ends with a conclusion. No prelude. No postlude. There is nothing discourteous about this. The oilman is a worker who does not waste time. His life experience has been to seek oil, drill for it, store and deliver it, and then go to the next exploration. To waste time and energy is to use wealth carelessly. Indeed, poor stewardship! Through this style the oilman has made it not only for himself, but for thousands of others, for his community, his state, and his country. Nor does he confine his efforts to production of natural resources. He cherishes human resources. I remember Sheridan. Aside from his family, gas and oil, he had a consuming interest in boys. He discussed Boys' Club activities on the telephone with the same crispness as he would a business deal.

I remember Stewart. He headed up the Mayor's Committee on the Future. After he had met me he often called me in my capacity as County Welfare Director to ask me to help a distressed family he had read about — with his money. I remember on one occasion he described a family, asked me to take care of it and advised he would send over the money. In true social work style, I told him I would report back to him. He cut me short. I was just to take care of it. It was his way of saying: "I know my job. You know yours."

Had I called Stewart "Mr." he would not have respected me. He expected me to be his equal.

There was another occasion that showed me the values of the oilman. I was short of cash. No question of why. Simply, "How much do you need?" No written contract. "I'm not in the loan business!" The quick writing

Probe continues into missing man, grain

By the Associated Press

Investigations into the activities and disappearance of North Texas grain dealer Robert Johnson were in progress on two fronts today.

A federal grand jury meeting in Abilene was scheduled to resume its probe of Johnson's affairs today and agriculture officials in Oklahoma said they are checking Johnson's grain dealings in Blackwell.

The grand jury listened to several witnesses last month at Wichita Falls before adjourning without presenting any indictments or reports.

Johnson disappeared Jan. 3 while on an outing in the Gulf of Mexico off Aransas Pass, and some of Johnson's friends reported that he fell from a cabin cruiser and drowned.

Investigations by state and federal officials have revealed that there is wheat missing from elevators Johnson operated at Wichita Falls and Iowa Park.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Ron Eddins said last month after the grand jury adjourned at Wichita Falls that an FBI investigation would continue.

Real estate course set

Three of Big Spring's experts in real estate investments, Jeff Brown, Charles Beil and Gail Jones III, will join forces in presenting a short course at Howard College in all phases of real estate investment from home ownership to rental housing, from taxation to financing.

This class will meet for two nights — March 28 and 30 from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. in room 101 of the Horace Garrett Applied Science Building at the college. Cost for the course is $6 and is being sponsored under the Continuing Education Program of the college. Those interested in this course must pre-register for the class by calling the Continuing Education Office at Howard College, 267-6311, ext. 70.

Jeff Brown will lead the course and will be assisted on the second night by Jones, tax attorney, and by Beil, chief executive officer of the First Federal Savings and Loan. Brown is a realtor, appraiser, and real estate consultant. These three will end the final night with questions and answers from the participants in the class.

and indicated the grand jury would resume its probe when it switched locations to Abilene.

The federal grand jury alternates its meetings sites between Abilene, Wichita Falls and San Angelo.

Ben Cash, a constable at Port Aransas, has said he has talked to a man who saw Johnson in South Texas after the Iowa Park man was reported missing. The witness reportedly told Cash that Johnson told him he faked the drowning and said Johnson had changed his appearance with plastic surgery. Cash has said he believes Johnson is hiding in Mexico or Central America.

Authorities in Mexico City were notified that federal charges of transporting stolen wheat from Oklahoma to Texas were filed against Johnson.

The grain dealer owned an elevator in Blackwell until its operating license was revoked in 1974 for failure to renew a $24,000 warehouse bond.

"One thing we're trying to see is if there's any shortages up there (at Blackwell)," said Don Gamino, a consultant to the Oklahoma Agriculture Department.

About 115 Oklahoma farmers, including three in the Blackwell area, have outstanding claims against Johnson for missing wheat, Gamino said.

"YOU'RE A FAILURE."

NOW AND THEN
YOU MAY FEEL THAT WAY. THE ALARM GOES OFF
IN THE MORNING AND
YOU WONDER WHY YOU SHOULD GET UP AT ALL.
YOU WORK HARD, BUT WONDER IF IT'S WORTH IT.

Perhaps by the world's standards you're a success. But even money, a career and a good home can't get rid of that vague emptiness you feel inside. You either don't have any goals, or the goals you set for yourself just don't satisfy you once you've achieved them.

Join the crowd. Countless people feel the same way you do. Some try to fill the void with drugs or by drinking. Others bury themselves in good causes. Many find a temporary peace, but few find lasting fulfillment.

THOSE who do find contentment, do so only when they stop looking for it... and simply accept the love Jesus Christ has always had for them.

People who do that are living proof that Jesus Christ is the one person who can give your life meaning and direction. That He meant what He said when He promised, "I am come that you might have life, and have it more abundantly."

They are living proof that every person is unique. And every life has a special purpose. They are living proof that Jesus Christ is real... and alive today.

If you would like to know more about people who are living proof, if you need more information, or have made a decision to accept Jesus Christ, there are people nearby ready to share that with you. Please let them know.

It's easier to keep going when you know where you're going, and why.

'I want to walk out of here'

Editors Note: After the agonizing hours waiting to tell rescuers that he was alive, trapped coal miner Ronald Adley had to wait again. It would take rescue crews 58 hours to chisel an escape tunnel through 50 feet of coal. In this last of three articles, Adley tells of his rescue from the black hole where he was imprisoned for six days.

TOWER CITY, Pa. (AP) — 'It's Ronnie Adley. It's Ronnie Adley.'

I must have yelled it about six times before I heard the voice of my foreman, Palmer Mervine.

'Ronnie, are your all right?'

'Get me out of here.'

'It's good to hear your voice, Ronnie.'

Palmer's voice was the first human being I heard since the water gushed through the mine and left me trapped in darkness. It seemed like a lifetime but it was only a little more than a day.

It took about three hours after I heard the tapping to cut the first tiny hole through the 50 feet of coal above me.

I barely saw a pinpoint of light and it was even harder to hear anything clear.

I shouted back to Palmer to tell my wife I was okay.

I knew it was going to take some time. They told me to relax, to sit still, and they'd get food and water.

Right off I told them about my buddies who were dead below me, Ralph Renninger and Donald Shoffler. They asked me if I heard anybody else, any other tapping.

'No. Nothing.'

And I had no idea where the five other missing men might be.

They punched a second hole pretty quick, angling down from the other side of the pillar of coal that separated us. A couple of plastic tubes were pushed through and some orange juice was poured through. It tasted great.

Open records

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Lists of names and scores of persons taking civil service employment and promotion examinations must be disclosed under the Open Records Act, says Atty. Gen. John Hill.

El Paso City Atty. John C. Ross Jr. requested Hill's opinion.

RELAXING — Ronald Adley, a coal miner rescued after being trapped five days in the Kocher Coal Company mine, relaxes on an oversized lounge sofa with his two children watching television in their Tower City, Pa. home. At left is Ronniz 8, and right is Gustine 11. Five miners are still trapped in mine while four others were found dead.

Then they started drilling and drilling.

Trying to get a hole big enough to pass me some food. It was the longest time. I went into the mine Tuesday morning.

It was now Thursday morning and the hole was finished.

Now I could talk better to them.

First they passed through a rope, and hooked on a miners lamp connected to batteries on the other end. It felt good to see things again.

The rope became a conveyor, carrying plastic bags of water, of coffee, of soup.

After I ate I felt even better.

I asked for a chewing tobacco, and got it. It tasted really good, made my mouth moist.

I asked for a shot of whisky.

'We can't give you that in the mine, Ronnie.'

'I know that, I'm just kidding.'

They sent me blankets. And I got long underwear, a dry shirt and pants, a cap, and gloves. I changed my clothes.

They started drilling lots of holes. The plan was to drill enough holes and then break open a tunnel, about 20 inches wide. It would be wide all night and it's not going to get you out.'

But it felt good that I could talk to somebody.

I knew it was going to take a while, then cutting just inches every hour. They couldn't fire any dynamite at all. They couldn't chance shaking anything. They didn't want to lose anything that might fall on me or them.

I was worried about another collapse as they drilled toward me.

So I just lay back on the blanket thinking of my wife and my kids, to keep my mind away from the mine. It was an experience I hope no one ever had to go through.

I wiped everything out of my mind about my two buddies, down there, dead. I didn't want to lose any sense of balance, or crack up. This could happen to anybody.

I kept exercising. I felt my knees hurting and my shoulders, and all my joints. I knew what was happening. I was getting a cold. And I also knew if I would just rest I could possibly catch pneumonia. So I would move my arms around, my legs. I would move my neck, my back, all my moving parts.

Then on Saturday night, they finally punched through the escape tunnel but it had to be widened.

'Give yourself a break and let me use that hammer for a while,' I told the guy with the air drill.

So they passed it in and I was cutting that coal.

Boy, it felt good to cut my own way out. I cut for the longest time and then they said they were going to try to pull me out.

I tried but my shoulders couldn't make it. There wasn't enough room. The hole was head high and I had to pull myself up and into it.

So I got down again and they started drilling again and I started ripping all the stuff loose at my end, pulling at the coal with my bare hands.

It took about another 8 to 10 hours to widen the hole. And when I squeezed through to the other side, to freedom, it felt so great — just like being born again.

'Do you want to be carried out on a stretcher?'

'Hell no, I want to walk out of here.'

And I did, right to the mine cars that had carried me into the mine six days earlier. Riding out took just four minutes.

The ambulance people asked me if I wanted to lay down, and I said, 'No.' We pulled alongside the highway, not far from the mine, and my wife got out of a police car and got into the ambulance.

I hugged her. I kissed her. I was making her all dirty. But she didn't care how black she was getting. She just felt good inside.

Phoebe, please come back

"Phoebe, my white poodle, isn't good for anything except to love," Mrs. W. M. Franklin said here Friday.

"She disappeared last Saturday night when I accidentally left the door open and we have hunted everywhere for her. She had grown too fat for her collar."

"Phoebe is fat and lazy and doesn't know any tricks and we love her. If anybody sees her, please call 7-2279 or bring her back to 1410 Runnels."

Cee City VFD seeking money

COLORADO CITY — The Colorado City Volunteer Fire Department will petition for additional funds when the city council meets here Tuesday.

Also on the agenda will be a presentation of the ambulance service budget for 1977. The council will consider passage of an ordinance creating a police reserve force, discuss and probably approve a rental contract with the Chamber of Commerce and weigh pluses and minuses for allowing discounts for those paying ad valorem taxes early.

Cleaning of the sewer line along Second Street from Lone Wolf Creek to Chestnut Street will also come up for discussion.

"Hello?" "Hi Marge, this is Suzie." "Suzie, Suzie, Suzie! What a pleasant surprise!" "How are ya?" "I'm doing just fine. How are things with you?" "Oh, things are terrific around here since you left." "I'll bet. You know I miss you guys." "How do you like your new house?" "Oh, Suzie, it's terrific." "Did you get what you wanted?" "That and more." "Well?" "Well what?" "Tell me about your stupid new house." "Suzie, it's fabulous." "Did you get the big back yard you wanted?" "Three acres with a pond." "Do you have a garden?" "We have a greenhouse!" "Do you have a nice kitchen?" "A huge kitchen with all new appliances!" "Do you have some aspirin?" "Aspirin?" "Yeah, you're making me sick." "You should complain. You're not exactly living in a dump." "How does Fred like his new job?" "Suzie, he's a new man." "He likes it?" "He loves it. Absolutely loves it." "That's good." "How is Jack?" "Fine. He's going through a do-it-yourself phase right now." "Oh, good." "Everytime I ask him to do something, he yells 'Do it yourself!'" "Oh, not good." "When are you coming to visit us?" "When are you going to invite us?" "You know you have a standing invitation." "Yeah, but we'd rather sit." "I'm serious. When are you coming?" "Name a date." "How about in a few weeks... say the week of the 29th?" "Wait a minute, let me get my calendar... the 29th?" "That's a Saturday." "Yeah. Sounds good." "Okay, it's a deal. We'll be expecting you." "What do you want us to bring?" "Just your sense of humor." "No." "No?" "Just joking." "Funny." "You missed a great party at the Smiths' last night." "They had a party? They never have parties." "They've been waiting for you to move away." "What happened?" "Well, for starters, Jackie's dog ate the main course before any of the guests arrived." "You're kidding." "No. Then the air conditioning went on the blink." "No wonder they never had any parties. What did everyone do?" "We starved and perspired a lot." "Sounds awful." "Speaking of starving, how's the old diet?" "I'll tell you if you tell me." "125." "Oh, Susan! You've been cheating!" "No I haven't." "Well how can you lose weight if you've been eating?" "How about you?" "I'm not telling." "Come on." "One fivie five." "What?" "One fivie five." "Marge, you're mumbling." "One fivie five." "One forty five?" "Less." "One thirty five?" "See, that's not so bad." "That's terrible." "I know." "What's your excuse?" "A perfectly understandable insecurity resulting from having to adapt to new surroundings." "New surroundings. The only new surroundings you're gonna have to adapt to is the lard surrounding your midsection!" "Hey, look. Go easy kid. I don't have you to nag me any more." "Well, it hasn't been easy for me either." "You wouldn't believe the food prices here." "Oh?" "Low." "Low?" "Low." "No wonder you're eating so much." "I'm not kidding..." "Neither am I." "...I'm saving about 15 dollars a week over what I used to pay." "You're kidding!" "I'm not kidding." "Sounds like you got a raise, too." "Right. 15 dollars to blow on anything I like... toilet paper, floor wax and soap." "Don't forget laundry detergent." "Right." "Hey, you took something of mine when you left." "Your yellow sweater?" "Did you take my sweater?" "Sorry, I wasn't going to tell you." "That's okay. You keep my sweater and I'll keep your skirt." "Skirt?" "You know, the one with all the animals on it?" "Oh, yeah. I'd forgotten about that." "Is it a deal?" "We'll trade when you come to visit." "Sour puss. I'm sorry I even brought the subject up." "What were you going to say?" "I was going to say that you took my Suzie Fu Yung recipe." "Did I?" "Yes." "I'll give you that too when you come." "Good." "See? Just think of all the nice things awaiting you when you come." "I can't wait. Hey, I have something for you." "What?" "A riddle." "Shoot." "What has four holder-uppers, four puller-downers, a pair of lookers, and a swishy-wishy?" "I don't know, what?" "I'll tell you when we come to visit." "Oh, no you don't!" "Bye." "Come on, tell me!" "Bye." "Suzie!"

Get back JoJo!

Celt scores 41 points

By the Associated Press

If practice makes perfect, you can't prove it by JoJo White of the Boston Celtics.

The stellar guard, the only Boston player allowed to miss practice Saturday so he could rest his sore ankle, scored a career-high 41 points Sunday — 18-of-25 from the floor, 5-for-5 at the foul line, eight assists — to lead the Celtics to a 118-110 National Basketball triumph over the Kansas City Kings.

"It was one of the days when things are all going well," White said. "I'm still sore, but my leg felt good and I felt like running and playing. It was just a matter of putting them in."

In other NBA games, the Denver Nuggets walloped the Detroit Pistons 133-104, the Washington Bullets trounced the San Antonio Spurs 135-116, the Cleveland Cavaliers downed the Buffalo Braves 115-108, the Los Angeles Lakers shaded the New Orleans Jazz 100-95, the Philadelphia 76ers beat the New York Nets 111-104, the Phoenix Suns topped the Portland Trail Blazers 126-106 and the Seattle SuperSonics edged the Milwaukee Bucks 110-107.

Nuggets 133, Pistons 104

David Thompson's 29 points paced six Denver players in double figures. The victory extended their lead over Detroit to four games in the Midwest Division. Dan Issel contributed 26 points to the Denver attack while M.L. Carr paced Detroit with 21.

Bullets 135, Spurs 116

Elvin Hayes missed 16 minutes with foul trouble but scored 24 points to help

Washington run up its largest total of the season, end a five-game losing streak and break a second-place tie with San Antonio in the Central Division, three games behind Houston. Phil Chenier led Washington with 25 points, Tom Henderson scored 23 while collecting nine assists and Kevin Grevey had 21.

Cavaliers 115, Braves 108
Austin Carr and Dick Snyder led a second-half surge that helped Cleveland to its third triumph in as many days. Buffalo's Adrian Dantley led all scorers with 37 points, 22 in the first half.

Lakers 100, Jazz 95

Los Angeles overcame a 46-point performance by New Orleans' Pete Maravich and increased its percentage to .628 to the Denver's .620 in the all-important race for the best percentage in the Western Conference. The team with the best percentage will receive a first-round bye in the playoffs. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 29 and Cazzie Russell 20 to lead the Lakers.

76ers 111, Nets 104
George McGinnis scored 28 points to lead Philadelphia to its fourth consecutive victory and Julius Erving added 24 points. The 76ers are now tied with Houston for the best record in the Eastern Conference at 43-27.

Suns 126, Trail Blazers 106
Rookie Ron Lee scored 13 points as Phoenix outscored Portland 39-28 in the fourth period. The Suns had six men in double figures, led by Alvan Adams' 27 points.

SuperSonics 110, Bucks 107
Slick Watts' steal and lay-up with 30 seconds left enabled Seattle to snap a 10-game home winning streak and four victories over-all for the Bucks.

Steer opener here Tuesday

Tuesday's Steer baseball opener, 4 p.m. Tuesday in Steer Park, may provide a glimpse of what is to come in first half competition.

Big Spring's rivals, the Abilene High Eagles, have been touted as one of the toughest, fastest teams to take to the diamond in the district. The Steers will have their hands full, but have the skills to pull the Eagles down. And Tuesday's game may be a crystal ball preview of the first half district winner in action.

Defensively, the Steers will be trying to put a brake on the Eagles' base stealers. The Abilene team has burglarized an average of five bases a game in the last nine contests. Frankie Rubio is the probable starter at the mound for the Steers.

Offensively, stats show the Steers to be hitting as hard as any team in the district. Their bat-handling ability may be their biggest asset in Tuesday's showdown.

The next district game is scheduled for 2 p.m. Saturday against Midland High in Steer Park.

MAKING THE SHOT — Marquette's Butch Lee (15) hangs in to make a shot despite the efforts of Wake Forest's Leroy McDonald (33) in their NCAA game in Oklahoma City Saturday. Wake Forest's Frank Johnson (14) waits to get into action. Marquette won, 82-68 to go to the finals.

Bonnies bash Houston 94-91

NEW YORK (AP) — Ever hear of a basketball player who recruits himself? Greg Sanders did.

"I sent St. Bonaventure a brochure about my high school career," says Sanders, "just to make sure they knew I was alive."

St. Bonaventure got the message — and then got Sanders. It turned out to be a happy correspondence.

Sanders became one of the school's best forwards and led the Bonnies to a dramatic 94-91 victory Sunday over Houston in the final of the 40th National Invitation Tournament.

"This is just a dream come true," said Sanders in the euphoria of the winners' locker room at Madison Square Garden. "This is just wonderful."

Sanders says that he had 150 offers for his services, but ultimately settled on St. Bonaventure "because I wanted to be a big fish in a small pond."

He has developed into the team's leading scorer — and Sunday was certainly the big shot on the court. Sanders scored 40 points, including the go-ahead shot with 40 seconds left.

When Sanders first let the ball fly, St. Bonaventure Coach Jim Satalin was not sure it was a high-percentage shot.

"I looked at it and it was one of those 'No, no, no—oh, yes!' shots," said Satalin. "Had it not gone in, that would have been a bad shot. But since he scored, we'll say it was a good one." The way Sanders was shooting, every shot was a good one. The cool, efficient junior hit 14 of 23 field goal attempts, many of them difficult, twisting shots that had the Bonnie-oriented crowd of 12,451 roaring with pleasure.

Sanders, who had the hottest hand in the Garden after Houston's Otis Birdsong cooled off, thought he had every right in the world to take the shot, even though it was on the run and from 20 feet out.

"I was open," said Sanders succinctly, "and I just took it."

Before Sanders became the game's dominator, Birdsong was the Garden's adored figure. He scored 36 of his 38 points to help the Cougars take a 73-63 midway through the second half. But then he ran out of gas, coming up with only one field goal the rest of the way.

Essie Hollis, who scored 24 points, contributed some key field goals and Tim Waterman had a couple of crucial rebounds in the homestretch to help pull out the Bonnies' first NIT title after eight fruitless appearances.

"I hate to use the cliché," said Satalin, "but it WAS a team effort. We've been behind before. I was never concerned when we were 10 points down. There was still a lot of time left. I just told my kids to get in there and keep going."

"And you know what? That's what they did!"

Lyle outpunches Britain's Bugner

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Boxing's heavyweight division took another turn Sunday when power-puncher Ron Lyle of Denver hammered out a 12-round split decision over British heavyweight champion Joe Bugner.

Bugner was the fourth-ranked contender going into the fight, coming off a one-round knockout of Richard Dunn last October, while Lyle was ranked seventh, losing a decision to Jimmy Young late last year.

Last Thursday, it was the boxer, Jimmy Young, who upset the brawler, George Foreman. But in Sunday's nationally televised bout from Caesars Palace, it was the strong man, Lyle, who prevailed.

Bugner, whose mother brought the family from Hungary to England during the Hungarian revolution, was quite talkative and confident in training for the fight. Local books had him a 2-1 choice.

At one point Bugner called himself the "real White Hope."

The victory raised Lyle's record to 34-5-1, with 23 knockouts, while Bugner is now 52-8-1, with 33 kayos.

From the beginning, Lyle, 218, went after the bigger Bugner, 229½, never backing away.

Lyle said he tried to go for a knockout early but found Bugner a "very good defensive fighter."

So the strategy was changed. Lyle moved inside, using a vicious right to relentlessly pound Bugner's mid-section, then moving with left and right upper cuts to Bugner's face.

Bugner, 27, was able to score almost at will with his left jabs, but they were flicking, almost slap-like, and did little or no damage. He scored seldom with his right.

Levelland joins ABC Relay Meet

Levelland has added its name to the cities which will compete in the ABC Relays scheduled for this Saturday.

This brings the total to 14 area cities including Big Spring which will compete in the first ABC club sponsored relays in 10 years. The event used to be a major one for Big Spring, and this year's event promises to carry on the tradition.

Both local teams look strong after coming back from a series of injuries. The local girls are feeling especially tough and will probably win their division.

Preliminaries in the track events will begin at 10:30 a.m., as does the competition in field events.

A special event has been created this year that should be of added interest to the spectator. "The Fat Men" 440-yard relay will bring together shot and discus throwers who must weigh over 190 pounds. Ribbons will be given to the first three places, and the event will not count toward points in the meet totals.

Hayes fuels fires of youth movement

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The youth movement continues.

His victory in the Tournament Players Championship came as a mild surprise to Mark Hayes. But the quiet, 27-year-old used the wind as his ally and extended for still another week the youthful revolution that has shaken the pro golf tour.

With the season 11 weeks old, only Jack Nicklaus has been able to win against the horde of youngsters who, week after week, have bettered the best efforts of golf's established stars.

This time the supporting cast included some of the game's greatest names — Nicklaus, Tom Watson, Hale Irwin and Ray Floyd. All fired and fell back in the howling winds that turned the alligator-infested Sawgrass course into an unbeatable monster.

No one in the field of the world's finest players was able to break par for four rounds over the reclaimed swamp and marshland that the touring pros were playing for the first time.

"I was just concentrating on making pars," Hayes said after his even-par 72 had given him a two-stroke victory at 289, one over par and the highest winning score in any tour event since Nicklaus won the 1972 U.S. Open at 280.

Hayes' credentials — two victories and more than $150,000 in earnings last year — are such that his triumph couldn't be classified as an upset. But even he didn't expect it.

"I really wasn't in it over the front nine," said the Oklahoma State product, who joined the tour in the fall of 1973. "But then all the leaders started to make bogey and kind of came back to me."

Forsan fifth in tournament

ROBERT LEE — Hank Adams carded an even par 72 to take the medalist title at the Robert Lee Golf Tournament Friday, while the Forsan High School Golf Team finished in a tie for fifth in the ten-team field.

Other scores were Gary Tidwell, 88; Mike Bailey, 94; Tom Posey, 95; and Martin Shappel, 105.

Next action for the Buffalo golfers will be Friday in the Big Lake Tourney. The girls golf team will also participate in that tournament.

It's not midnight yet for Cinderella team

By the Associated Press

Top-rated Michigan and third-ranked Kentucky bit the dust Saturday, No. 2 UCLA bowed out two days earlier and San Francisco, which held the top spot for much of the season, has been long gone from the National Collegiate basketball championships. But the "Men from UNCC" are still alive.

The "Men from UNCC" isn't a TV spy story. It's more a Cinderella tale in which a school whose basketball history only dates back a dozen years knocks off the No. 1 team in the nation to make the championship round-of-four in Atlanta next weekend.

If you're not aware of it by now, UNCC stands for the University of North Carolina at Charlotte, as differentiated from THE University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, which also advanced to the national semifinals and which hereafter shall be known simply as "North Carolina."

Joining them are Marquette and the University of Nevada at Las Vegas. Saturday afternoon's nationally televised semifinals sends fourth-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas against No. 5 North Carolina, followed by the "Men from UNCC" rated 17th, against seventh-ranked Marquette.

The pairings came about last Saturday when North Carolina upset Kentucky 79-72 in the East Regional, the "Men from UNCC" shocked mighty Michigan 75-68 in the Midwest. Marquette trimmed Wake Forest 82-68 in the Midwest and Nevada-Las Vegas ran away from Idaho State 107-90 in the West Regional.

If UNCC meets UNLV in the finals, it might be mistaken for a spelling bee. And North Carolina Gov. Jim Hunt has suggested that the NCAA's name be changed to North Carolina Athletic Association. Imagine if Wake Forest had made it, too.

The No. 1 Man from UNCC is a lanky 6-foot-8 center with the catchy handle of Cedric "Cornbread" Maxwell, who led the 49ers past Michigan with a 25-point, 13-rebound show. Lew Massey added 19 and Kevin King helped lead Michigan center Phil Hubbard to just 14.

"We've never played guys like that before," marveled Michigan All-American Rickey Green, who led the Wolverines with 20 points.

"Their arm reach was so long I couldn't believe it. No matter how high you'd get your shot, it seemed like they'd be waiting to tip it."

If UNCC is Cinderella, veteran Marquette Coach Al McGuire, with his past penchant for drawing costly technicals, certainly isn't Prince Charming. However, McGuire will have plenty of followers in Atlanta, having announced his retirement at the end of this season.

McGuire would have been granted early retirement but for a career-high 18-point performance against Wake Forest by 6-9 substitute Bernard Toome to go with Bo Ellis' 20 and Butch Lee's 19. Toome, a sophomore, will be back on the bench when the ball goes up against UNCC. And he'll probably be off the bench in a hurry if the Warriors fall behind again.

North Carolina was comfortable most of the way against Kentucky's physical Wildcats despite the loss of foul-plagued, sore-elbowed All-American Phil Ford for the last 19 minutes. While he was in there, Ford scored only two points. But his backcourt mate, John Kuester, took over, running the Tar Heels' four-corner offense down the stretch and hitting four crucial free throws in the final 72 seconds after Kentucky had whacked a 15-point deficit to just one.

The injury-plagued Tar Heels also played without center Tommy LaGarde, out for the season with a knee injury, while Walter Davis scored 21 points despite a broken index finger on his shooting hand. Ford, LaGarde and Davis all were members of the United States gold medal-winning Olympic basketball team.

It would have been Cinderella vs. Cinderella had Idaho State beaten run-and-gun Nevada-Las Vegas. But after trailing 52-51 at the half, UNLV's Runnin' Rebels caught fire following a pep talk from Coach Jerry Tarkanian and outscored the Bengals 20-7 in the first seven minutes of the second half.

"I gave them a scolding," Tarkanian reported. "The first half, we played like we were in a trance. We didn't play with any intensity. We're not a good basketball team unless we play with intensity."

Eddie Owens scored 13 of his 24 points and Robert Smith had 12 of his 18 in the second half.

This reunion's memories not pleasant

NEW LONDON, Tex. (AP) — Memories always abound at reunions, but at this one everybody had an interesting story to tell about one day in their lives — March 18, 1937. Unfortunately, that day was the worst they have ever had.

Saturday marked the first time in 40 years that about 400 survivors and persons involved in the New London school explosion had gotten together to relive the memory of the tragic day when 296 persons were killed.

The explosion was set off by a pocket of natural gas that was ignited by an electrical spark, destroying the old building in a blinding flash.

A memorial service was held at the school's auditorium, including a reading of the names of those who died in the blast. Later, a reunion dinner was held in

Hardaway to speak

EL PASO — Robert M. Hardaway, III, M.D., Brigadier General U.S. Army and Professor of Surgery, Texas Tech University School of Medicine will address the International Symposium on Shock to be held in Utrecht, Netherlands March 26. March 28 he will address medical officers of the Dutch Army, Navy and Air Force.

Dr. Hardaway will present results of research into the Pulmonary Pathology in Shock States and methods of treatment derived from that nearby Kilgore.

Delma Moore of Tyler was standing 150 feet away from the building with a group of research. As director, Division of Surgery, Walter Reed Army Institute of Research, Washington, D.C., General Hardaway organized the shock research unit and headed a surgical research team in Vietnam. Results of these studies were recorded in some 210 professional medical articles and two books. He also developed a method of treating wounds by local antibiotic spray and an adhesive spray which could be used for hemorrhage control.

friends when the explosion occurred.

"We usually waited around for our older brothers or sisters to get out since the younger kids got out early," Mrs. Moore said. "All of a sudden the building seemed to disappear and the concussion knocked us down."

Marguerite Martin of DeWitt, Iowa, was in the eighth grade. Her classroom was in the only wing of the building still standing after the explosion.

"It sounded like thunder. It appeared to be far away and slowly coming toward us," she said. "I remember the ceiling falling down and trapping some of us under our desks. I lost all my close friends in the blast and I only went back to school there one day after classes began again."

Mrs. Martin's mother moved her to Belton to continue school after that, while her father stayed in town to work.

Jack Strickland of Overton was in the woodworking shop in the basement where the explosion began.

"I was in an Overton hospital about a month and I can't remember what happened," Strickland said. "I remember being pulled from the debris, but that's about it."

Mrs. Walter Harris and her son, Glynn, were among the several persons who visited the Pleasant Hill Cemetery where most of the victims were buried.

Mrs. Harris of nearby Overton visited the grave of her son, James, a fifth grader killed in the explosion.

KNOW YOUR FOOD

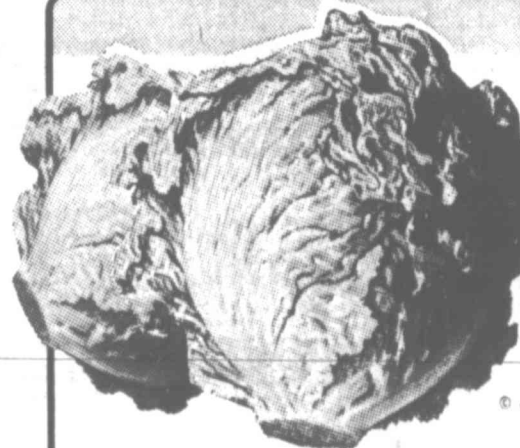

We're fortunate these days to have such an abundant potato variety available to help with menu planning.

In addition to fresh potatoes, which are baked, boiled, mashed, French fried, pan fried, roasted, riced, used in soups, stews, dumplings, pancakes, casseroles and chowders, potatoes are available in many other forms. We can buy them as chips, instant potato flakes, potato buds, processed potatoes; canned potatoes; frozen potatoes as patties, hash browns, whole, puffs, tater tots, French fried... ways too numerous to mention. Next time you're in a store, take time to browse and check for yourself what is available in potato variety. We truly live in a land of plenty. In days of yore (not that long ago at that), folks hand-harvested potato crops and stored them for winter use. No wonder we like today's variety of potato products better!

Happily, too, for us, the nation's nutrition and food writers have raised the lowly potato to its rightful place. Previously maligned as starchy and fattening, we now know it as a good source of nutrients. A medium fresh potato provides nearly one-half of the daily recommendations for vitamin C for the average adult and it also contributes other important nutrients such as iron, thiamine and niacin. Low in sodium and fat, potato is easy to digest. A medium-size fresh potato contains only about 100 calories. It's the butter, sour cream or gravy we add that heaps on calories.

Note: This column is reprinted in a two-sided leaflet available at Safeway. It includes many valuable tips on ways with potatoes. Come pick up your free copy. No purchase necessary.

French market dips after leftist wins

PARIS (AP) — The French stock market fell sharply today after the Socialist-Communist alliance won a popular vote majority and control of more than 70 per cent of the big cities in Sunday's local election runoff.

One broker blamed the slide, which averaged about four per cent, on "jittery Black Monday trading" and added, "you can't say where it will go."

Sunday's results spelled the biggest defeat ever for the conservative-centrist coalition the late President Charles de Gaulle forged after he established the Fifth republic 19 years ago.

It opened a year of hard political fighting in preparation for National Assembly elections, scheduled for March 1978.

Observers said the stock market seemed to react in particular to leftist plans to nationalize French industries if it takes power. The French franc held firm in currency trading at just under five to the U.S. dollar, but a trader said the government was intervening heavily to protect the currency.

Leftist leaders said Sunday's voting showed the French people no longer feared the prospect of leftists in power.

"There's a strong wind blowing, and the country has sensed it," said Socialist leader Francois Mitterrand, "I don't say victory in the future is a sure thing, but it's certainly a good sign for the future," said Communist party leader Georges Marchais. "They've been saying for years that the left in power means the Apocalypse, but the people don't believe that anymore. We talk about what we're going to do and nobody gets scared."

Premier Raymond Barre and the government ran a demerit campaign saying voting for the left equals collectivism. It doesn't work any more."

The left came out of the local voting on the past two Sundays controlling 156 of the 221 French cities with more than 30,000 population and 51 per cent of the total vote.

The moderates and conservatives who make up the National Assembly majority of President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing got 47 per cent of the vote and kept 66 cities, including Toulouse, Strasbourg, Nancy, Metz and Bordeaux. Eighteen other cities went to parties and candidates who usually vote with the government.

The Socialists won control of 82 cities, the Communists 71 and other leftist groups not affiliated with them got three.

Open records law prompts bill testimony

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Dallas Police Chief Don Byrd said today the open records law his him "between the rock and the hard place" concerning names of witnesses and victims of crimes.

He testified before the House State Affairs Committee in favor of a bill (HB1359) that would exempt from mandatory disclosure police records of names and addresses of victims, witnesses and informants.

The bill would not change the records released to Dallas police reporters, Byrd added. With rare exceptions, he said, Dallas reporters do not publicize names and addresses of victims and witnesses.

"I am caught in terms of open records versus the right to privacy of persons I am sworn to serve," he said.

The issue arose, Byrd said, when a burglar alarm company demanded the names of the city's last 400 burglary victims so it could solicit them to buy its products.

"The people of Dallas will blame me if somebody knocks on their door and says, 'We want to sell you burglar bars or guard dogs or karate lessons,'" Byrd said.

The bill was sent to the panel's subcommittee on law enforcement, consisting of Reps. Bill Cerverha of Dallas, Don Henderson of Houston and Bob Simpson of Amarillo.

Agriculture Day

By Bill Albright

Executive Vice President,
Big Spring Area Ch. of Commerce

You know, they refer to this country as being an Industrial Nation. The Industrial Giant of the entire world. And it's obvious that we really are.

BUT THERE'S A WHOLE LOT MORE to the story. We rightfully should be called the Agri-Industrial Giant of the World. And in view of "National Agriculture Day" on Monday, March 21, I'd like to visit with you this week on one of the most important subjects of our time — American Agriculture.

WHILE MANY OF US WEST TEXANS have a reasonable appreciation for the great part agriculture plays in our daily lives, most of us have become so used to creature comforts and the fast pace of modern day living that we often take for granted the basic reason for our great prosperity. And that basic reason is the unbelievable productivity of those who produce food and fiber for our country and for a large part of the world.

THROUGH TECH-NOLOGY, INGENUITY

AND honest hard work, the American farmer has steadily grown in production from a few acres from which he fed and clothed his family to a gigantic business operation where one man can successfully operate a 1500 acre farm and on the average provide food for himself and more than 50 other people.

HERE'S ANOTHER LOOK AT THE same great accomplishments, but from a little different angle. Spendable income is what you and I have left after taxes. In Great Britain after paying his food bill, the average worker has less than 50c of each dollar left to spend on other items.

IN ASIA MORE THAN 80c of the spendable income dollar goes for food, leaving less than 20c to be spent for discretionary items.

IN AMERICA WHERE WE SPEND only about 16c of every dollar on food we have the other 84 cents to spend as we like on TV's, autos, luxury items and all other selective purchases. The difference of course is American Agriculture.

AND ONE FINAL LOOK

AT the benefits provided by the American agriculturist. It was only a couple of years ago that our Ranchers and Farmers turned the dismal picture of world balance of payments into a smashing success for the United States — literally saving the U.S. dollar on foreign markets. While this was a tremendous accomplishment it received very little acclaim. Modestly, our farmers and ranchers continue to produce even greater quantities of food and fiber to the enrichment of our total economy.

BUT THERE THERE'S ONE THING THEY CAN'T DO — for very long — and that's produce a crop and sell it below cost of production. We need to recognize that agriculture is a business — a business that's vital to the very survival of our country and that the farmers and ranchers are entitled to make a profit on their investment.

LET'S SALUTE THESE GREAT AMERICANS and appreciate their contribution to our American Way of Life!

Hustle GUESS I STIRRED UP A HORNET'S NEST last week cause I had a few visitors and a few phone calls advising me that there are many more progress oriented activities than I listed in the column.

WELL, I KNEW THAT, but I just didn't know who they were. So let's add to the list and hope that there will be more calls advising us of new growth to our economic base. Morris Robertson Body Shop; Bill Crane Auto, Boat and RV Center, the new facility for Cor's Service Center; Connie's Ladies Wear; St. Thomas Catholic Church; and the new housing facility for Senior Citizens. I invite everyone to keep us posted on what you're doing to promote progress.

Remember it takes THREE, YOU, your CHAMBER and me... plus plenty of HUSTLE — HUSTLE — HUSTLE.

Bombs rip
FBI office

NEW YORK (AP) — Bombs went off early today in two buildings housing New York offices of the FBI and the American Bank Note Co. The Puerto Rican terrorist group FALN claimed it planted the explosives.

A man walking by the Manhattan building in which the FBI has offices was hospitalized with a minor shoulder cut suffered when the bomb went off. The device exploded in a ground floor drug store and damage was confined to merchandise and windows.

The bomb which exploded at the American Bank Note building in the Bronx was described by police as "not powerful."

A letter from the FALN found taped to a telephone booth in Manhattan said the bombings were "armed actions... against... two symbols of Yanki repression and exploitation."

The FALN (Fuerzas Armadas de Liberacion Nacional — Armed Forces of National Liberation) has been linked to some 50 bombings since early 1974 in its campaign for Puerto Rican independence.

The letter called the bank note company "one of the chief tools of capitalist exploitation" because it prints stock certificates and currency for a number of Latin American countries.

have outing

The DeMolays concluded their special week of activities with a family outing Sunday afternoon, including baseball, and a cookout, according to Dennis Burns, master counselor.

The group will elect new officers in early April. Their week of special activities included a State Meeting Tuesday night when it elected six new candidates. Five candidates were initiated Wednesday when they visited the Odessa chapter.

They included Ricky Dockter, Joe Petty, David Brown, Jeff Byrd and David Mitchem.

The club visited the local Masonic Chapter 1314 Thursday night and served refreshments. On Sunday, it attended the Coahoma Church of Christ as a group.

Ridin' fence

with Marj Carpenter

It's hard to explain what a tremendous musical project has been undertaken by Keith D. Graumann, former Big Spring youth, who is now a graduate assistant in the theory department of the University of Oklahoma. I didn't know they taught anything but Indian chants at OU, but, boy, was I wrong.

Graumann has prepared little known works of Antonio Vivaldi for chorus and orchestra. This is done from a single line of notes in very old manuscript and the orchestration would be very complicated.

In February, there was a premier performance of this work prepared from the Foa-Giordano Collection of Keith's. Of the 43 known works for chorus and orchestra by Vivaldi, "Laudate Dominum, Psalm 116," was one of the few yet to be placed into a modern performing edition.

The Apollo Concert Choir in Oklahoma participated in the first performance of the Big Spring youth's edition. It is soon to be published by the Augsburg Publishing House in Minneapolis.

I try not to comment on things in this column that the average reader cannot fully understand. And I know I have already lost some of you in the above paragraphs.

What I'm trying to say is that this young man is really working on some hard, classic stuff in music and that what he has done while working on his thesis on Vivaldi is very difficult.

It's impressive to me that

this type of musician came out of Big Spring. He is currently a candidate for the degree of Master of Music Theory.

In Big Spring High, he was active in choir and made all-state choir, and his director who was then Kenneth Sheppard is now teaching at Southwestern in Georgetown.

Keith also took piano lessons from Ann Houser while here and many of her students have turned out to be outstanding musicians in various fields.

He sings in several choirs and directs the choir at Hillcrest Christian Church in Oklahoma City.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. A.A. Graumann of Big Spring, he is a member of St. Paul's Lutheran Church here.

He attended TCU for two years and went on to Oklahoma primarily because the choir director there, Dr. B.R. Henson, went on to OU.

His mother says that Dr. Henson, Sheppard and Mrs. Houser have been his inspirations. But I just imagine that his parents contributed a little bit of that themselves.

A large number of really good musician-type people come out of Big Spring High School.

We often hear about the weaknesses of what people here refer to as "the program" because of the size of the school for athletic competition.

But it might be time to comment on one of the strengths, which appears to be in the music department.

I've said here before that I'm an old misplaced music major. Actually I was misplaced when I was majoring in music because journalism, and in particular newspapers, are my true love.

But having spent hours taking orchestration and harmony and conducting and music theory and appreciation and strings and brass and woodwind and percussion and all those other good courses, I can really appreciate it when I see a young man that has accomplished an orchestration of the magnitude included in Keith's graduate study.

I couldn't do it, but I can appreciate it. So, average reader, forgive me for going off into the field of music theory this time and only rejoice with me that a local boy has so much "couth" in the field of music.

It's not exactly the kind of tune you can hum while out ridin' fence, but it has its place. Congratulations, Keith Graumann.
