Endurance Fliers Enjoy Earned Rest

CLEVELAND, July 6. (AP)—Nerves frayed and bodies exhausted, Pilots Roy L. Mitchell and Byron K. Newcomb rested tonight while congratulatory messages poured in to the newest conquerors of the air.

Mitchell and Newcomb brought their monoplane City of Cleveland down amid the acclaim of 75,000 spectators at Cleveland airport at 12:39:58 a. m. today after remaining in the air 174 hours and 59 seconds—a new world's sustained endurance record for planes refueled in flight.

As they rested today, plans were under way for the city's official recognition of their record making flight.

A deluge of vaudeville and exhibition offers and a stack of telegrams and cablegrams mounted while the fliers, with their hotel suites guarded from disturbances, were recovering from the strain of more than seven days battling against time, fog and storms.

Legislature Gives Up Ghost For Week

Attempt To Meet For Third Called Session Is Futile As Only Seven Senators Attend Saturday Session

(By Associated Press)

AUSTIN, July 6.—Both houses of the legislature, attempting to meet for the third called session, gave up the ghost for the week today. There were seven senators present and only 22 members of the house.

The senate had a bare quorum in attendance when it met Wednesday, under the governor's call, but the house did not have more than a corporal's guard. The senate adjourned from day to day.

Hope for Quorum.

The legislators who have been sticking on the job, quorum or no quorum, are hopeful that sufficient members will be here Monday to start putting the appropriation bills in condition to meet the approval of Governor Moody.

There had been some apprehension unless the house be forced by the rules to meet Sunday. Representative B. J. Forbes of Weatherford, who lives in horror of something transpiring to force a Sabbath session, was relieved, however, when Representative Sanders took the situation into his own hands and adjourned the house until Monday. The rules stipulate that when there

Mother Jumps From Twenty-fifth Floor After "Prophet" Is Murdered

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

DETROIT, July 6.—While about 3,000 curious persons packed the streets before San Francisco church here today, funeral services were held for Bennie Evangelista, self-styled prophet, and his wife and four children, slain Wednesday by a murderer who used either a heavy knife or cleaver.

Mrs. Florence Morris, 36, mother of five children, brooding over accounts of the crime and fearing for the safety of her own children, today threw herself from a window of the twenty-fifth floor of the Barlum tower.

Patrolmen and detectives mingled with the throng at the Evangelista funeral and arrested a man who excited suspicion. Police admitted it was doubtful that he could have committed the murder.

Still believing the secret of the crime lies in the strange religion and secret rites Evangelista and his followers espoused, police sought members of the cult. None could be found who would admit membership.

The cult which Evangelista led had its source, officers believe, in the "Hex" country in the neighborhood of York, Pa., former home of Evangelista and his family. They came here in 1921.

Divorcee Is Awarded $25,000 As Heart Balm From Millionaire In Chicago Breach Of Promise Suit

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, July 6. — Miss Anne Livingston, Tulsa divorce, tonight was awarded $25,000 damages from Franklin Hardinge, wealthy oil burner manufacturer, whom she sued for $250,000 alleging breach promise. The jury reached a verdict at 7:45 o'clock tonight. The case was given it at 3:32 p. m.

Miss Livingston was in the court room with her attorney when the verdict was read, but Hardinge was not present. He was, however, represented by counsel.

"I've been vindicated," was the only statement Miss Livingston would make and Hardinge could not be reached for comment. Franklin Hardinge Jr., son of the aged defendant, declined to talk.

Hardinge Appeals.

Counsel for Hardinge made a motion for an appeal which will be heard in its regular turn on the calendar. As there are no court terms during the summer, the motion can not come up for hearing until fall, Attorney Bussian stated.

"We've just begun to fight," Bussian asserted. "And that isn't the last of the perjury matter, either."

Miss Livingston sued the wealthy Chicagoan for $250,000, alleging she came to Chicago from Tulsa to marry him, but that he left her a few days before the wedding without even an explanation.

Hardinge accused her of relations with Charles Nax, St. Louis advertising man, during the time she was engaged. Of hiding facts concerning her divorce from her former husband, Robert Puderbaughn, and refusing to sign a prenuptial agreement under which she would have received $100,000 at the time of Hardinge's death in lieu of dower rights.

His telegram, to the commission secretary, follows:

"In Oklahoma and Kansas I find a most critical and distressing wheat situation at the present moment. Great quantities of wheat already are threshed. The elevators are filled and much is piled on the ground.

"The market is inadequate and the railroads are not furnishing the cars demanded. This has created an emergency that demands the most speedy and drastic action of the Interstate Commerce Commission and I urge that you consider these questions at once.

Poignant Pictures Of Poverty Stricken Families Are Revealed By Local Milk And Ice Fund Workers

Murkishly curtained with poignant expressions of ineffectualities and pungently odored with stenched garments and tang of accumulated filth, drab shacks in Lubbock's needy quarters shelter ill-stricken and undernourished families.

Thirty-six bottles of milk are being delivered daily to the needy families through provision of the Avalanche-Journal and Federated Aid Societies Milk and Ice Fund campaign. The number of deliveries will be increased as the fund grows.

Groceries Given

In some cases families have been furnished with groceries because the dire need was so obvious, according to Mrs. W. T. Milam, chairman of the campaign.

In one case a haggard and worn mother, deserted by her husband, was grieved almost to prostration, while three of her six small children were ill in bed. The oldest of the children, a 12-year-old boy, is seeking work to offer that much support to the family. Any one who can furnish employment to the lad is requested to communicate with Mrs. Milam.

Aged Woman In Need

In another scantily furnished house lived an aged woman whose efforts at livelihood through sewing and crocheting fell far short of supplying the necessities of life. Her small child is crippled to the extent that he must look to her for everything in life.

Three families of Mexicans are ill and their strength is slowly waning through lack of food.

The father and mother of a two-year-old child are suffering with tuberculosis at a local campground. They are bed-ridden and helplessly dependent upon charity.

Fliers Are Still Aloft Despite Threats Of Heavy Fog

(By Associated Press)

CULVER CITY, Cal., July 6. — L. W. Mendell and R. B. Reinhart, endurance fliers, piloting the biplane "Angeleno," had been aloft 110 hours at 9:29:30 p. m. A big fog was rolling in from the Pacific but field observers estimated the ceiling at 1,500 feet, which they said was more than sufficient to allow the plane to maneuver without retreating inland.

Land Fraud Blame Placed On Fogarty

CHICAGO, July 6. (AP) — Blamed for an alleged $60,000 land fraud has been placed on Edward J. Forgarty, national known prison authority who shot himself to death a month ago while warden of the Cook county jail here.

A 65-year-old widow, Mrs. Lydia Norman of Chicago, field suit in federal court at Waycross, Ga., a week ago demanding an accounting of the Warden's executor and his associates, the action being made public here today with serving of notices on defense attorneys.

It was Mrs. Norman's threat to expose her dealings with Fogarty, for years warden of the Indiana state prison at Michigan City, declares the widow in her bill, that led to his suicide at the home of a relative in South Bend, Ind., where he had gone for a rest after a nervous breakdown.

Seventeen hundred acres of fertile Georgia land valued at approximately $60,000 was the property involved. Mrs. Norman said she met Fogarty at the Indiana prison while she was doing charity work. She said he told her of his political power in northern Indiana and of his ability to get a good price for the land, should she permit him to handle it for her.

Untin Bowler Is At Great Whale

CHICAGO, July 6. (AP)—Apparently held back by unfavorable weather, the Chicago Tribune's amphian monoplane "Untin" Bowler, en route from Chicago to Berlin, tonight was believed to be at Great Whale, the Hudson's Bay Company trading post at the mouth of the Great Whale river, from which the last radio messages were received yesterday.

Canadian government radio marine stations, scattered throughout Northeastern Canada, had received no messages from the plane today. Since the ship's radio can operate only when it is in the air, this was interpreted as meaning that the fliers had remained at the trading post to await better flying conditions.

Pilots Robert H. Gast and Parker D. Cramer and Radio Editor Robert Wood are under instructions to make the elements work with them rather than against them an to attempt no undue haste.

Strikers Threaten Brick Bat Reception For Non Union Men Parked Outside City

NEW ORLEANS, July 6.—A federal injunction against further riot by street car strikers and their sympathizers was sought today by counsel for New Orleans Public Service, Inc.

Claiming the interest of bondholders was in jeopardy because of the recent mob sabotage, the petitioner urged the injunction to restrain officials and employes of the street carmen's union from additional acts of violence against the company's property. Judge Wayne G. Borah of federal district court ordered the union officials to file an answer July 9.

South Plains Is Again Being Known As 'Cow Country'

Longhorn Steer Being Replaced By Dairy Cattle

Establishment Of Milk Plants Over Section Is Proof Of Development; More Plants Ordered

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

SLATON, July 6.—The South Plains section of West Texas, long famous as a "cow country" and for many years considered practically worthless except as such, has not only become one of the finest agricultural sections of Texas, but is rapidly developing into a "cow country" again—the home of the dairy cow instead of the longhorn of the pioneer days.

As a result of the rapid growth of the dairy industry on the South Plains during the past five or six years, three creameries and one cheese factory have been established in strategic centers this year, and another is under construction. Additional plants are proposed at various other points.

Creamery Doing Well

On April 27, a new creamery was placed in operation at Slaton. Its annual capacity is 1,000,000 pounds of butter. It also furnishes an egg market for this section. And, although sophisticated New Yorkers and Chicagoans may look with disdain upon Texas and Texans in many respects, yet they consumed six carloads of Slaton butter during the first sixty days the plant was in operation.

The Slaton creamery was made possible by business men and farmers of the territory purchasing stock in the creamery company. The plant uses the most modern machinery, has its own cold storage vaults with capacity of one and one-half carloads of butter and turns out a product that has scored high under government test.

Plainview Has One

A new creamery was opened at Plainview in March, owned and operated by a Hale county co-operative association. At Abernathy, a cheese factory, owned by F. W. and B. F. Struve, Abernathy merchants, began operating in May. Floydada opened a new creamery just a few weeks ago, which is principally financed by private interests.

Another creamery is under construction at Lubbock, to be completed this month. Lamesa is out for a milk plant and has subscribed stock for such an industry, having cooperation of nearby towns in securing the plant, it is said.

Development of these new industries is bringing about better business conditions, greater farm prosperity and larger bank deposits over the South Plains area. Farmers are realizing the advantage of combining a dairy program with other agricultural pursuits.

Leaders in dairying on the South Plains predict that this region is to be recognized soon as the dairy center of the Southwest, all conditions being ideally favorable for dairy development here.

Dairy Survey For Lubbock Co., To Be Conducted Soon

Immediate Census Of Cows In Radius Of City Will Be Made By C. Of C.; To Aid Milk Plant Work

Designed for the purpose of ascertaining the number of producing dairy cows in Lubbock county and to gain a closer relationship between the business man and the farmer, the dairy committee of the chamber of commerce is making plans for an immediate dairy survey, F. A. Norman, chairman of the committee, announced Saturday.

"Aside from the importance of revealing the number of dairy stock in the county, the survey will be of inestimable value in obtaining the desires of the farmers," said Mr. Norman. "We want to determine whether or not the farmer wants more cows; whether he wants a market for whole milk or for sour cream."

May Finance More Cows

Members of the committee indicated that an organization would be formed possibly to finance purchase of additional dairy cows if the survey should reveal the need.

Plans for the investigation have followed a recent announcement from F. H. Douthitt, president of the Douthitt Engineering company of Chicago, to the effect that there is not sufficient number of dairy cows within a 15-mile radius of Lubbock to justify establishment of a proposed milk products plant. Mr. Douthitt said that 3,500 dairy cows whose production said that cows whose production could be converted into the new channel would be necessary for organization of the plant in this city.

"The dairy committee has positively made no statement as to the number of dairy cows in Lubbock county," said Mr. Norman. "We realize now and have realized all the time that a survey would be necessary to obtain this information."

Similar to methods employed by chambers of commerce at Tyler, Marshal and Sherman, the dairy committee will enlist the services of business men of this city and attempt to make the survey in a manner that will gain the desired information and at the same time establish contact between the business men and the farmers.

Other members of the dairy committee are K. M. Reener, head of the dairy products department of Texas Technological college; Dr. W. E. Barr, W. L. Stangel, head of the deparement of animal husbandry at Texas Technological college; W. A. Myrick, jr., A. D. Leidigh, deap of the school of agriculture of Texas Technological college, and R. C. Smith.

Why You Should Vote The Bonds

A Statement On The Needs Of A Larger And Better School Building For The City Of Lubbock

The Lubbock Independent School District School Board is submitting to the voters of the city for ap- proval or disapproval a bond issue of $650,000 to provide funds for a new building for a senior high school. This is a larger amount than they at first thought would be necessary for the erection of the kind of a high school building that is needed and they can build a building for less money than this amount, but it would not be a build- ing that the people of Lubbock would want or one that would pro- vide the facilities for the kind of a high school Lubbock must main- tain. Too many cheap buildings have already been built.

Present Building 7 Years Old

The present high school building was constructed seven years ago for a student body of about five hundred. Two years ago two study halls with a capacity of about two hundred and fifty were added, mak- ing a total capacity of the building about seven hundred and fifty, or two hundred less than the present enrollment of the high school, which is nine hundred and sixty- three. The senior high school during last year had to use nine rooms in the junior high school building and, as a result, pushed out and back some of the grades that belong in the junior high school to the ward schools and caused a serious con- gestion there. The student body in the senior high school has outgrown the present senior high school building in every way. That building is altogether inadequate in size and equipment to take care of the pres- ent high school student body.

Department Criticized

The home economics department has been under the criticism of the State Department of Education at Austin for three or four years be- cause we have not the facilities in it to take care of the home econom- ics needs of our students. This de- partment was made for an enroll- ment of about one hundred and fifty students. Last year more than three hundred girls enrolled in home economics work.

The department of the business branches is also altogether inade- quate. No more than half of the boys and girls who want these sub- jects can get them because of a lack of room and equipment.

No provision is made for the phy- sical training of our girls, and the boys have no more physical training than they can get from their ath- letics.

Space Too Inadequate

Every department of the building has been outgrown. The halls are too narraw, the toilet space is in- adequate, and there is locker room for less than half of the students enrolled in the school.

The State Department of Educa- tion has been threatening for the past three years to take away our affiliation if we did not provide additional room and equipment. No one would want to see the school's standing with the colleges and universities last and thus make it impossible for Lubbock boys and girls to be admitted to college.

The school population of the city is five thousand, three hundred and eighty-four. There was an increase last year of nine hundred and nine- ty-nine students. This means that provision must be made for about thirty additional rooms to take care of the increase of last year over the year before. If a similar increase comes next year, the building that the Board is asking for will be none too large. The fact is, they are planning in this building to take care of the normal growth of the high school for only three years ahead.

The present enrollment of the high school is nine hundred and sixty-three. The normal increase each year has been a little more than one hundred, which means that in three years more the build- ing of twelve hundred capacity they are now planning to provide, will be full.

It will be understood, however that they are planning the propos- ed building subject to expansion, first to fifteen hundred capacity, then to eighteen hundred, and two thousand.

Sum Arrived at

The sum of $650,000 has been ar- rived at by careful study by com- petent architects and by members of the school board. They first de- termined the size of the building must be built in order to take care of the high school, as indicated above. Members of the school board and architects visited Abilene, Cle- burne, Fort Worth, and Dallas, making a careful study of the bet- ter buildings in these cities and by comparing their costs they arrived at a pretty accurate estimate of the cost of the building they propose to construct, including grounds, building and equipment, and a small amount for repairs on the buildings and grounds already owned.

It may be asked why not build grade buildings, and the answer is that the congestion in the school system is caused by the congestion in the high school. That has been the opinion of the school board all the time and is also the opinion of the committee of citizens the board appointed some time ago to make a study of the school needs of the city. The committee of citizens spent more than a month's time studying the schools from every an- gle and after such study they were unanimously of the opinion that a new high school building is our greatest need and that such a build- ing would relieve the congestion ev- erywhere in the system.

To Relieve Congestion

A new high school building will relieve congestion in grade schools by releasing the present high school and junior high school buildings for the use of the sixth, seventh, and eighth grades all over the city. It will release Central Ward, so that it may take care of the overflow in George M. Hunt and a part of the overflow in K. Carter. After taking care of the sixth, seventh, and eighth grades all over the city, there will be enough room left in the high school and junior high school build- ings to accomodate a number of elementary grades from the north- west part of the city, thus relieving entirely the congestion at K. Car- ter.

The Board is providing in the new senior high school building proposed for an enrollment of about three hundred more than the pres- ent senior high school enrollment. This space may be used at present to relieve the congestion at Dupre. Soon, however, it will be necessary to provide a ward building for the Ellwood addition and one for the southeast part of town. The Board has already purchased a building site in each of these sections and will erect the grade buildings there just as soon as they are needed.

After having studied the situa- tion and after having gotten the benefit of the opinion of the com- mittee of citizens referred to above, the school board is of the opinion that the congestion in the school system is in the heart of the city and not in the outlying district. This is why they are proposing a new high school building and why they believe it will relieve the situa- tion all over the city.

Lea County's Oil Territory Reveals Possibility Of Potential Production Field; Two New Towns Show Growth

By AL HILL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

In spite of the lack of storage and pipe line facilities, which has been and is now holding back development of the Lea county oil field, during the past year both Hobbs and New Hobbs, N. M., have been building with continued strides. The two towns, located within half a mile or so of each other, have all the earmarks of being oil field towns, yet in both there is an atmosphere of faith and permanency that is noticeable.

Only one producing well exists in the immediate vicinity of Hobbs and New Hobbs. This is the discovery well, known as Midwest Number 1. When the drill punctured an oil sand, about a year or so ago, on this location, the Hobbs field came into existence.

Production Is High

Production of this well has been figured at anywhere from 1,000 barrels to 5,000 barrels a day. Recently, when it was permitted to run for 30 minutes, the well filled a 250-barrel tank. Not having yet been "shot," and being now practically shut down because of the lack of storage or pipeline facilities, observers in the field believe that when it is "shot" the daily production might be anywhere from 1,000 to 5,000 barrels.

The oil in this well is of 38 gravity. The location is about one mile south of Hobbs and the Midwest is drilling an offset which is said to be about ready to bring in with greater production expected. This company has another location, on which it is drilling, some three miles south of Hobbs.

Eight Tests Under Way

In all, there are eight drilling operations going on, not counting the discovery well. Six companies are occupied in exploring the area. In addition to the Midwest, with its three, the Humble is drilling one about three miles northwest of Hobbs. The Dutch Shell is going down towards oil-bearing sand some four miles south. The Ohio has two locations, two miles southwest and four and a half miles southeast. The other well is that of the Bodcaws, six miles south.

The last named well is said to be on production, with 600 feet of oil in the well and spewing oil and gas. They are waiting only for arrival of the pipeline. This may be completed to Hobbs within the next few weeks. It is being built from the Winkler county field now extending some six or seven miles north of Jal, N. M. and about 15 or 20 miles south of Hobbs.

Activity Looming

There is talk of other big companies preparing to make locations and drill in the vicinity, and the area is expected to witness fevered activity upon arrival of the pipeline.

From a census, taken in April, Hobbs is credited with a population of between 250 to 300, in its corporate limits. The little city was incorporated following this census. A year ago there were only one or two buildings in the town. Since January of this year 20 buildings have been constructed, both residence and business. Today there are 30 or more business firms in the town and calls for buildings for other businesses can not be met.

At New Hobbs, on January 1, this year, there were in existence only such buildings as the hotel, postoffice and townsite office. This town was originally laid off in July, 1928. Now there are 38 business firms in the town, with about 40 homes, and a population of about 250. Two modern brick store buildings are nearing completion here.

Highway Being Built

This does not tell the story of all activity in the Hobbs field area. Only last week, John I. Chesley, of Lubbock, started construction on about six miles of highway building from the Texas and New Mexico line east of Hobbs to the city. This is to be part of the Del-Paso Cavern highway, which runs almost a line-line west from Dallas to intersect the Carlsbad Cavern highway south of Lovington and about 15 miles west of Hobbs.

The state of New Mexico has designated this highway as No. 16, and by popular subscription, raised at Hobbs, Seminole, Seagraves, Lamesa, Carlsbad and other interested points, the money was made available for grading and improving the New Mexico part of the route. Texas State Highway No. 83, from Seminole west to the state line, is well improved and much travelled. With completion of the section from the state line to the highway south of Lovington, the route will have secured a 75-mile cut off.

Motorcade To Visit Area

Later this month, a motorcade will start from Shreveport, La., to Carlsbad and it is hoped the new cut-off will be completed by that time.

Another highway project is being achieved in the area, with the building of a state highway from Monument to Jal, about 35 miles in length.

There are said to be some 150 ranches located within a 15 mile radius of the Hobbs field. White-face Herefords predominate as the cattle raised and, while the cattle industry has not produced a very great amount of revenue for ranchmen in that section during the past few years, they have been aided materially with lease money and royalties paid by the oil companies and their economic condition is better than it has been in many years.

The optimistic believe that when this field has been developed there will be a city of many thousand in population where these two small towns now are located. The high grade of oil found in the discovery well and the formations encountered in the field, it is claimed, give promise of production that will last for 20 or 25 years, and big production in most instances.

Malaya produced nearly 65,000 tons of tin last year, breaking all records.

Rural Routes Out Of Floydada Will Be Extended Soon

Excellent Service Is Given To People Of Territory Within 50-Mile Radius Of Floyd County City

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

FLOYDADA, July 6.—Extending in five directions and resembling the shape of a star, the rural routes out of Floydada extend to more than fifty miles in each direction and serve every patron in the most thickly settled section of Floyd county. This service is recognized as the best rural mail service in West Texas and patrons on the Floydada routes receive mail from Lubbock and other Texas cities within twelve hours after it leaves these places. Farmers within a radius of thirty miles of Floydada receive their morning papers before the noon hour and within a short time after they come off the press.

Beginning the first day of July several extensions on the rural routes out of Floydada became effective and a large number of patrons who heretofore had not been receiving service out of Floydada have been placed on the routes. Recognizing the benefits to be derived from good rural routes the Floydada chamber of commerce has been instrumental in securing a number of extensions and has helped to bring the service up to its present standard.

Routes Extended

Three years ago the average rural route out of Floydada reached a distance of thirty-five miles. Today there is not a rural carrier that travels a distance of less than fifty miles and the average has been brought to fifty-eight miles. This change is due largely to the increased population of the territory served and the splendid service offered.

In April, 1926, the carrier on route number one out of Floydada traveled a distance of thirty-four and six-tenths miles, beginning this month this carrier must travel a distance of fifty-eight and six-tenths miles in order to serve his patrons. J. W. Clonts has been the carrier on this route for a number of years. L. J. Welborn, carrier on route two, had a mileage of forty-eight and six-tenths miles in 1926 and today this route covers a territory of more than sixty-two miles.

Veteran Still Serving

Wm. Salisbury, for a long time serving the patrons of route three, has a mileage today of fifty-five and six-tenths miles compared to thirty-five and six-tenths in 1926. Oliver Allen, on route four, covers a distance of fifty-one and two-tenths miles now which is an increase of seventeen miles over that of 1926. Route number five had been more than doubled in the past three years, carrier G. N. Shirely now serving a distance of fifty-five and nine-tenths miles compared to twenty-five and six-tenths in 1929.

With the possible exception of two routes the chamber of commerce has assisted in securing the extensions.

Sinking Spell In Stock Market Is Feature Saturday

Bull Forces Are Satisfied As Mart Holds Ground; Week-End Profit-Taking Absorbed After Drops

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, July 6. (AP)—The stock market held its ground in a manner satisfying to bull forces today, although the huge increase of $227,000,000 in brokers' loans reported last night caused a momentary sinking spell at the opening.

Considerable week-end profit-taking had to be absorbed, and a number of issues closed few points lower, but the Associated Press price indices indicated that gains slightly more than offset the losses. Trading was in moderate volume, the turnover for the two-hour session barely exceeding 1,500,000 shares.

Little Influence In News

There was little in the day's news to influence the trend of the market, although another reduction of 1-8 of one per cent in bid and asked rates on bankers' acceptances gave further evidence of the slackening of the credit strain.

The week-end trade and business reviews were generally gratifying, with the building and brick manufacturing industries about the only soft spots reported.

Farm implement shares were a conspicuously strong group, reflecting the sharp rally in grain prices this week.

Good Weather In Belt Results In Opening Decline

NEW ORLEANS, July 6. (AP) — Cotton today was influenced mainly by the desire to even commitments in advance of Monday's official crop and acreage report. As a result prices fluctuated without developing any special trend. Unfavorable cables and good weather in the belt caused an opening decline which soon extended to levels 9 to 10 points net down. Covering entered the market and values recovered 10 to 11 points only to ease off again in final trading on realizing and the market closed steady net unchanged to 3 points down.

Liverpool cables were 6 to 7 points lower than due and the market here opened easy at a decline of 6 points in sympathy.

Realizing developed in late trading and final prices showed recession of 4 points from the highs and little net change for the day.

Receipts 2,945; for year, 9,341,537; last year, 8,468,007. Exports, 7,459, for year, 7,756,538; last year, 7,340,264. Stocks, 731,305; last year, 812,601. Stock on shipboard, 54,664; last year, 77,244. Spot sales, 3,906; last year, 3,453.

Early Decline Is Followed By Rise In Cotton Market

NEW YORK, July 6. (AP)—Business in cotton today was attributed largely to evening-up of accounts for over the week-end and the government acreage report on Monday. This resulted in irregular fluctuations with an early decline followed by rallies promoted by reports of showers in the western and central belts. After selling up from 18.19 to 18.36 for October, however, the market eased off under liquidation, with that delivery closing at 18.27. The general market closed barely steady net unchanged to 7 points lower.

The market opened steady at a decline of 8 to 13 points with July selling off the 17.92 and December to 18.42.

One private report was issued pointing to an increase of 3.3 per cent in the acreage and estimating the area under cultivation at 48,496,000 acres.

Liquidation Reported.

Private cables reported liquidation together with Continental and Bombay selling in Liverpool and said that cloth and yarn sales were below production.

The amount of cotton on shipboard at the end of the week was estimated at 65,000 against 63,000 last year.

Wheat Being Piled On Ground In Area

DALLAS, July 6. (AP)—Wheat awaiting shipment has been piled on the ground at a number of places in the Panhandle of Texas, according to R.C. Andrews, district manager of the American Railway association, car service division.

He said this would not injure the grain but probably would aid in conditioning it.

When landslides recently closed the highway between San Miguel and Ibague, Colombia, to automobiles, the primitive custom of mule back transportation was revived.

Daily Markets

KANSAS CITY LIVESTOCK

KANAS CITY, July 6 (AP)—Livestock trade around the 11 market circuit this week marked by unevenly higher prices on practically all classes of cattle, hogs and sheep. Bullish factors in the cattle market were curtailed receipts and an improved demand for dressed beef. Killing classes of cattle were unevenly 25 to 75c higher, with grain fed steers and yearlings up mostly 50 to 75c. Comparatively few feeders were available and quality of the stockers was generally medium to good.

Hogs are unevenly 25 a 75c higher than last Saturday, the minimum gain at St. Louis, where prices were relatively higher a week ago.

The sheep supply approximated 166,000, a decrease of 14,500 from last week. Fat lambs scored a general advance of 50 a 75c with maximum upturns of $1.00. Aged stock and yearlings firm to 25c higher.

FORT WORTH LIVESTOCK

FORT WORTH, July 6. (AP)—Not enough livestock in some classes to test values. Trading about in line with prices paid yesterday.

Good heavy fed steers sold steady. About four loads of steers 1,212 pounds to 1,424 pounds in carlots 13.25.

No good cows offered. Values steady. Canners and cutters at 4.75 to 5.75; butcher and beef cows 6.00 and 7.50.

Bulls unchanged values with a price spread of $6.00 to 8.00.

Calves 6.50 and 11.50. A few common heifers 6.25 and 7.00.

Sheep considered steady and not enough on hand to test market.

Setbacks Feature Of Wheat Market

CHICAGO, July 6. (AP)—Hurry to grab profits while the grabbing was good resulted in sharp setbacks for wheat today.

Reactions, however, came only after the market had outdone the season's high price record. Some moisture relief in the spring wheat drought region was noted, and big receipts of domestic winter wheat also were an incentive to sell, but crop advices from both north and scuth of the Canadian line continued pessimistic, reported impairment in Canada reaching as high as 17 1-2 per cent since June 15. Closing quotations on wheat here were unsettled, 1 1-8c to 1 3-4c under yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1 1-4c to 1 3-4c down, oats 5-8c off, and provisions varying from 5c decline to an equal advance.

Notice Taken

A good deal of notice was taken of renewed indications of a glut of domestic wheat in the harvest district southwest, primary arrivals this week totaling 11,666,000 bushel against 7,793,000 bushel the week previous, bringing about complaints of car shortage and of the shuting down of elevators notably in the district around Wichita, Kansas.

Corn and oats swayed in line with the action of wheat. Besides, excellent weather for corn growth tended to promote selling in the corn market.

Provisions were steadier by upturns in the value of hogs.

SLED COMES TO TOWN

We have with us today none other than the Tactless Texans of Amarillo, led by the baseball skipper recently bitten by the golf bug, Sled Allen, himself. The Texans come to town today, determined to wipe out the defeat handed them by the Hubbers when the local crew paid them a visit a few weeks ago.

A record crowd is expected at Merrill Park this afternoon to see the veteran pilot battle the boys that were formerally his pupils. Sled will be behind the bat for the Texans and the customers are assured of plenty of action. The game starts at 2:30.

The Hubbers are likely to enter the baseball tournament which is to be held in Amarillo from August 1 to 11th and another victory over the Tactless crew today will put them in the class with the favorites to cop the championship.

DONE GONE BUSTED

Club managers and league officials will meet Monday night to decide the fate of the local City Baseball League. The recent withdrawal of the Santa Fe club has put the twilight loop in an uproar, so to speak. Since it will be impossible for three teams to continue the race for the city championship, there is a chance for some worthy fan or group of fans to come to the rescue of the Railroaders and be a hometown hero. An idea of how the team can be retained in the race without a financial income will be welcomed. Since not more than one home club can use Merrill Park at one time, and since the Railroaders don't have a park of their own to use for Sunday games, the outlook is not so bright. The only solution seems to be the institution of a small charge at all city league games to meet the incidental expenses of clubs. Any fan who cares enough about baseball to drive to the park is willing to pay one thin dime at the gate.

Unless something is done at the meeting tomorrow night, the City League will fall through, and here's hoping this doesn't happen. It is a source of recreation for dozens of players who would otherwise do without. During the first half, the race was close enough to keep interest high and the second half promises to be even hotter.

The turmoil in the National League which started when Hack Wilson charged Ray Klop at Chicago on the Fourth of July may result in serious trouble and it may not. One thing is certain: the threat made by Manager Jack Hendricks of the Cincinnati Reds that things will be popping when the Cubs go to Cincinnati is certain to swell the gate receipts. Baseball fans are always ready to see excitement of this kind and it is not unlikely that the whole affair is a ballyhoo scheme.

Hendricks is not overburdened with love for the Chicago team, in the first place, and his crack about McCarthy's crew isn't likely to help matters. On more than one occasion this season, he has levelled his cross-fire on Rogers Hornsby. If the rumpus in Cincinnati flares up as per scheduled, the Rajah will probably take one of the leading parts.

Billy Southworth's St. Louis Cardinals broke a 11-game losing streak yesterday when they broke loose in the second game of a double header with the Philadelphia Nationals. The Redbirds set a new major league record when they crossed the plate 28 times. Sunny Jim Bottomley slammed out three home runs in the course of the two games. The poor showing of the Cardinals lately can be traced back to ineffective pitching, but the youthful St. Louis pilot is shouldering a large share of the blame.

Flying Fists At Chicago July 4th Started Big Row

Hack Wilson's Attack On Ray Kolp May Result In Open Warfare Between Cubs And Reds

NEW YORK, July 6. (AP)—Possibility of a baseball civil war, a feature lacking since the days when the hands and spikes of the old Baltimore Orioles were against every man and every team, has loomed on the National League western front as an aftermath of hot words and flying fists.

When Lewis (Hack) Wilson, slugger of the Cubs, attempted to slug Ray Kolp of the Reds, he started something. Kolp, called "Windy" by his teammates on account of his peculiar technic as a baseball jockey, one who rides fellow players, so irritated Wilson that Hack left first base to offer a rebuttal with his fists.

Wilson Fined

President John A. Heydler today imposed a fine of $100 and a suspension of three days on Wilson, reprimanding the player by letter, "whatever your provocation may have been, you were not justified in leaving your base during the game to take the law into your own hands. Your actions might easily have started a riot."

Wilson later in a railway station had found a player he could hit in the person of Pete Donohue, Cincinnati pitcher. This incident had no influence on the presidential fine, however. News of the punishment ordered for Wilson met with disapproval by the Cincinnati players, some of whom declared he "should have had a year."

War Clouds Gather

Manager Jack Hendricks issued a statement containing what amounted to a threat when he said: "When the Cubs come here (Cincinnati) for a doubleheader August 25 there will be something doing for a certainty." The Red manager discounted the Cubs' chances for the championship, suggesting "they will wilt under strong opposition," strong words in baseball, where reflection on a team's courage is the most deadly of insults.

The evidence of strong feeling between the Cubs and Reds suggests excitement in plenty August 25.

Battling on and off the field between pennant contenders has been known in baseball but this may be the first time a tail-ender has declared war on a one-two team.

Spur Men Attend Creamery Opening

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

SPUR, July 6.—W. B. Lee, vice president, Spur National Bank, E. L. Tanner, county agent, Dickens county; Roy Stovall, owner and manager, Spur Cream and Bottle Works, and Wilburn S. Patrick, secretary Spur Chamber of Commerce, attended the formal opening of the Rule Creamery, Inc. W. B. Lee was on the program and reviewed very thoroughly the development of the dairy industry of the Spur country and brought many startling facts to the minds of his hearers relative to the possibilities of West Texas under a carefully planned program using the dairy cow as a basis in balancing the program. The Spur country has gone forward in a great way, and the banks of Spur have seen the vision of a new day in farming for the farmer who is willing to devote a little time to the proper care of feeding the right kind of dairy animals.

Four Champions Crowned And Ring Favorite Beaten In Late June

Dull Days Ahead After Hectic June Events; Calendar Bare Of Excitement Except For Prospect Of Heavy Fight And World Series In Fall

By GLENN ALLAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, July 6.—(AP)—The summer solstice is here promising a rest for the sports followers after a hectic month of June.

The calendar is bare of excitement except for the prospect of a heavyweight championship fight in September and the perennial thriller of the world series a month later. A brace of minor fights fills the interstices.

The last week of June set a new record for crowded arenas and swollen sports pages. No less than four champions were dethroned and a ring favorite beaten.

Columbia rowed splendidly to an almost unexpected victory in the Poughkeepsie regatta, an event which set an all time record for freak occurrences. The race was rowed after dark and in water so rough that four of the nine boats sank.

Tommy Aycock, Florida golfer, won the intercollegiate for Yale, defeating a strong field which included Maurice McCarthy, defending champion. Berkeley Bell of Texas university, took over the tennis crown from Julius Seligson, for whom the semi-final round was too much. And from California came Marjorie Gladman, another rising girl star, to win the first intercollegiate women's title.

Bob Jones split the field wide at Mamaroneck when the national open got under way, skidded a little in his third round and slumped to a 79 in the final day to go into a tie with Al Espinosa. The play-off saw the professional swamped by 23 strokes in 36 holes and the Atlanta amateur succeeded Johnny Farrell as open champion.

Max Schmeling trounced Paulino Uzcudun when the odds favored the Spaniard and likely will fight Jack Sharkey for the championship in September. Tommy Loughran and Jim Braddock meet in July as do Jackie Fields and Joe Dundee, both for titles.

The sudden rise of the Athletics continued through June, the final days of the month widening the distance between the Mackmen and the Yankees. The Giants are bringing no particular joy to New Yorkers and Pittsburgh and Chicago seem to have the National league well in hand.

Ahead looms a dreary August unless something happens in baseball. Helen Wills undoubtedly controls the tennis courts insofar as concerns the women. The Frenchmen may not appear for the masculine championships which gives the Americans a break in their own bailiwick. Bob Jones' impressive play in the open would seem to make the amateur an open and shut affair, unless the Young Marster is bumped off in one of the quick-and-dirty 18-hole rounds.

But when things are dullest something always happens to upset the world of sports.

Lamesa Expecting Good Cotton Crop

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

LAMESA, July 6.—Dawson county has a cotton acreage of better than 200,000 acres which is about ten per cent increase over last year. Feed acreage has been cut considerable this year according to recent surveys made here. At this time crop prospects were never better according to old timers here.

Cotton is up to a good stand in most parts of the area and feed is looking well. All the fields are clean and cultivation is going forward as fast as the farmers can cover the lands. It is predicted that feeds and cotton are practically made in this county with a little more rain. Grazing in this area is excellent and stock men with the farmers are jubilent over the coming outlooks.

Hendricks May Be Owner Of Indians

INDIANAPOLIS, July 6. (AP)—Gossip has been busy disposing of the Indianapolis American association team since the tragic death of James A. Perry, the owner, killed in an airplane crash.

The old dame has had Jack Hendricks, manager of the Cincinnati Reds, organizing a syndicate to buy the club. Other tales mentioned Charles C. Carr and Ownie Bush, manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, as possible owners. Hendricks, Carr and Bush all managed the team. The three are natives of Indianapolis. Carr now operates a sporting goods store.

James A. Perry and his brother, Norman A., the vice-president, virtually owned the club. They paid $165,000 for the Indians.

The Indians were "Jim" Perry's pets. He loved a winner, and as soon as he acquired the team in 1927 he started out to build a winner. In 1928 his team won the association pennant and then trounced Rochester of the International league for the "little world's championship." Despite that, the club lost $100,000 during the year.

Star Went To Giants From Hi School At Sixteen

BY WM. M. BRAUCHER
NEA Service Writer

NEW YORK, June 6. — Headmaster John J. McGraw must have rubbed his eyes four years ago when a little boy with a downy chin walked in on him at the Polo Grounds and said "Here I am, Mr. McGraw, my name's Melvin Ott and I'm from Louisiana."

The other day the same youth of tender years but rough ways with a baseball bat, planted his 22nd home run of the season, and lo! his name stood out in the chronicles of clout as leader of all the rest. That takes in both leagues, too.

Another Babe Ruth? In one way, yes, but in many ways, no. For in Melvin Ott, at 20, we have the quiet and unassuming person with affable ways you've read about in books but seldom see.

Keeps Eyes Down

Polo Grounds fans go wild when he belts one into the bleachers, but he only touches his cap on his way from the plate to the bench, and keeps his eyes on the ground.

"Do you think you will beat Ruth in homers this year?" one of the kids to whom he is an idol asked him the other day.

"Tell him yes," chirped up Fred Lindstrom, Melvin's roommate.

And Ott replied, as seriously as a banker about to turn down a loan on that 80-acre piece:

"I don't know. What I'm hoping is that we don't get into any more slumps like that one we had early this summer."

Ott wore short pants when he got his first call for league baseball. He was catching on the Gretna, La., high school team when President Heinemann of the New Orleans club of the Southern league sent word he would be glad to try out Ott along with the high school pitcher, Lester Rouprich.

Gets Long Pants

Melvin's dad took this cue and bought his boy some long trousers. But that didn't fool Prexy Heinemann. He took a sharp look at Ott and asked him his age. Melvin was then just a little shy of 16. Heinemann told both kids to put on uniforms, however, and watched them.

After a few days, Prexy Heinemann decided Ott was too young to break in at once. He sent him to Patterson, La., where the millionaire lumberman, Harry Williams, had a semi-pro team and needed a catcher. Rouprich was older so he got a job with the Pelicans.

In the summer of 1925 Williams went to Europe and on the way dropped off to see McGraw, telling him what a sweet ball player he had for him, and McGraw told Williams to send him on.

Thought It a Joke

Ott says he thought somebody was playing a joke on him when he received a telegram asking him to report to McGraw September 1 and he tore up the message and thought no more about it. When Williams returned from Europe, there was young Mr. Ott in Patterson, as big as life.

"Why didn't you go to New York?" he asked.

"I thought you were kidding me," was Ott's reply.

Get that incident straight, because that's Melvin Ott all over. Mr. Williams promptly packed the kid off to New York and Melvin makes no secret of the fact that he was scared rigid, as any 16-year-old kid might be, when he went to meet the old mastermind.

McGraw told him to work out with the rookies. Ott did, and worked hard. McGraw told him to send his catcher's mitt home and buy an outfielder's glove. Ott did and kept right on working. McGraw liked him and instead of trusting him to one of the farm managers kept him right on the bench where the kid could see what it was all about. Ott worked and learned rapidly.

Whiffs First Time Up

Finally, in 1926, in a game with the Phillies at the Polo Grounds, Mac sent his boy out to play. There were 40,000 people there, and the first time Melvin batted he whiffed.

The second time, too he whiffed, and the customers began to wonder what kind of business Headmaster McGraw was up to now. The third time Ott bated, the patrons no longer had to ask questions about it—Ott smacked one and as they say in dear old Broadway, smacked it good.

Ott weighs only 165 pounds and is 5 feet 8 inches in height but he leans on a baseball with terrific force. From the instant he steps into the box until the ball comes down the alley, Ott never takes his eyes off the pitcher.

Down in Boston there's a chalk mark two rows from the top of the right field bleachers. The good Boston bourgeoisie point to it wonderingly as the longest smack ever recorded in that enclosure.

Mr. McGraw's boy friend did that.

One of the most interested spectators at the drubbing given Paulino by Max Schmeling was Jack Sharkey, who will fight the German in September. But the usually loquacious sailer had little to say except that Der Maxie "would do."

Bunion Derbyist Drinks Kerosene

SAN FRANCISCO, July 6. (AP) This anecdote always brings a laugh from his listeners but George Rehayn can't see anything funny in it.

The San Francisco athlete was an entrant in the Pyle bunion derby and in thirteenth place, a prize money position, when the brigade was jogging through the Mojave desert.

One day, as was his habit, he ran up to an automobile service station, picked up the sprinkling can which is used to fill radiators, and drank deeply therefrom. After quaffing several mouthfuls, he discovered it was kerosene. He was ill for a few days and finished out of the money.

Wilmer Allison And Johnny Van Ryn Capture Men's Doubles Crown For Third Triumph

WIMBLEDON, England, July 6.—(AP)—Two dashing American youngsters on their first trip to Europe furnishing the biggest thrill, the United States forces outdid themselves and carried off three of Britain's five coveted tennis titles in the Wimbledon tournament, which ended today.

In a terrific battle on courts made slippery by intermittent rain, Johnny Van Ryn, of Orange, N. J., former Princeton tennis captain, and his blond partner from Texas, Wilmer Allison, triumphed over the powerful British Davis Cup pair J. C. Gregory and I. G. Collins to win the final for the men's doubles championship 6-4, 5-7, 6-3, 10-12, 6-4.

Win Mixed Doubles

It remained for Miss Helen Wills, serene in the possession of her third Wimbledon singles crown gained in easy fashion yesterday, to sally forth paired with the veteran Francis T. Hunter and add the mixed doubles championship to America's list of laurels. Miss Wills and Hunter won from Collins and Miss Joan Fry of Britain, 6-1, 6-4.

France and England divided the other two titles, Henri Cochet overwhelming his French countryman, Jean Borotra, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4, to ascend the men's singles throne, and England's team of Mrs. Phoebe Watson and Mrs. Peggy Saunders Michell retaining its women's doubles supremacy by drowning Mrs. Phyllis Covell and Mrs. Dorothy Shepherd-Barron, 6-4, 8-6, in the final round.

Men's Doubles Thrilling

Most of the tennis fireworks on this rainy and wintry day came in the memorable five-set fight in which Van Ryn and Allison carried away on their youthful shoulders in their first invasion of Europe, one of the most cherished titles known to the game. The issue was in doubt until the very last ball crashed into the net from a British racquet and sent Van Ryn and Allison exhausted but elated, leaping over the net to receive congratulations from the pair of rugged Britons.

Three Sluggers Tied For First In Texas League

Langford And Starr Of Shreveport And Blackerby Of Waco Smash Ball At .374 Pace

DALLAS, July 6. (AP)—The beginning of the second half and July 4 double headers found Langford and Starr of Shreveport and Blackerby of Waco in a triple tie for Texas League batting honors.

Each had smashed the ball at a .374 pace. Sullivan, Fort Worth hurler, however, held the titular lead with a .383 lead, but he had batted only 47 times against an average of more than 200 for the other three.

Bennett, Wichita Falls, trailed the trio by 7 points.

Moore Leads In Hits

In the total hit department, Randy Moore, Dallas, threatened a league record with 128. Barely past the half way mark his 17 triples fell but six short of the total by Ike Boone in 1923. Eddie Moore, of Fort Worth crept to within seven of the Dallas Moore's total hits with 121 while Bennett was in third place with 116.

Randy Moore, Dallas, and Whelan, Shreveport, with 61, led in run scoring, followed by Benton, Wichita Falls, 60; Urban of Fort Worth, Bennett of Wichita Falls and Ballew of San Antonio, 73 each. L. Cox, of Fort Worth, had slammed out 30 doubles. Fitzgerald, Wichita Falls, with 27, and Turgeon, Wichita Falls, 26, pressed Cox.

Sanguinet,, the Waco poler, retained his home run lead with 21. Blackerby, Waco, had 18 and Bennett, Wichita Falls, 15. Flaskamper, Dallas, who for several seasons held stolen base honors unchallenged found his total of 19 one behind Stewart, Shreveport. Likewise Flaskamper was the only one ahead of Whelan, Shreveport, and Martin, Houston.

Five clubs were hitting better than .300 with Wichita Falls and Shreveport tied at .310. Fort Worth led in runs, hits and triples, Dallas in doubles, Waco in home runs and Shreveport in stolen bases.

Barnabe of Dallas, Owens of Shreveport, Caldwell of Waco and Lindsey of Houston shared pitching honors for games won with 12 each, while Messenger of San Antonio led the league with 65 strike-outs.

The ten leading hitters (50 or more times at bat): Langford, Starr, Blackerby, .374; Bennett, .367; R. Moore, Dallas, .360; Lapan, Wichita Falls, .359; Benton, Wichita Falls, .354; Wiltse, Wichita Falls, .352; Sullivan, Wichita Falls, .351; Grimes, San Antonio-Fort Worth, 351.

The H. P. Whitney stables are leading on the eastern tracks so far with a total of 31 victories.

Leland, Back From Denver, Plans To Hold To Football

T. C. U. Sprint Star Denies Report That He Won't Play Football Next Season; Visits Here

Denying reports from Fort Worth that he will not be in uniform when the 1929 grid season rolls around, Cy Leland, former Lubbock high school athlete and at present Texas Christian university sprint star said here yesterday that he would play football with the Horned Frogs next year and that it would not interfere with his track career.

"Before spring football training started, I had given up hopes of playing any more college football, but after the National Meet at Chicago, I decided to do both. Of course I won't take part in scrimmage or play full games, but I hope to get in there at least part of the time."

Returns From Denver.

Leland returned yesterday from Denver where he competed in the National A. A. U. meet with the cream of the nation's cinder stars. Placing fifth in the 100-yard dash and third in the 220, Cy gave way only to the veterans of the cinder path, whose reputations are already established. In the "century of the century" won by Eddie Tolan, the Michigan university colored flash, Leland finished but two yards behind the winner with four runners ahead of him. An 18-mile gale held the speed merchants back with the result that no record was approached. The time was 10 flat.

It was only on the spur of the moment that Leland decided to enter the 100-yard dash in the Junior A. A. U. class. This he won over a fast field in 9 4-5 seconds. Only those who have not held national championships are eligible for the junior division, Cy explained.

"He's Alright."

Asked concerning the negro sprinter from Michigan, Leland said that neither he nor Bracey, the Rice Institute flyer, had very much to do with the colored speedster.

"If it were not for the fact that he is a negro, I think I would like him fine," Leland explained. "The seems to be a nice sort of a fellow. Built something like Charlie Paddock, but not quite so stocky. By the way, Paddock is beginning to look like an old man. He has developed a pouch and is far from the perfect specimen that he once was."

Leland will serve in the capacity of Sports Editor of The Skiff, T. C. U. school paper, next year. He expects Baylor and Texas university to furnish the strongest opposition for the Horned Frogs in the conference football race.

Showing that his interest centered in track, Cy turned the subject to T. C. U.'s track prospects for next year. A strong group of athletes from this year's freshman squad is going to give the Frog varsity a formidable team when the 1930 track season opens. "And they'd better watch our sprint relay team," he emphasized.

Leland is spending a short visit here with his sister, Mrs. Marlin R. Smith, 2104 16th street.

Where's My Darling Wife?

This probably comes under the head of gossip. There is a young ball player in the American League who was a sensation last year and who has been considerable of a bust this season. An official of the club that hires him was asked to explain the transformation.

"Well," the official explained, "he was married to a most beautiful girl during the winter and he is a very jealous fellow. We do not allow our players to take their wives on the road with them. But his wife follows the team on her own and we can't prevent it.

"In the home park the wives all sit in certain boxes and their husbands know where they are, but on the road the wives have to pick any spot they can find.

"This fellow never knew where to look for his darling when we were on the road. They had an arrangement that she would whistle a certain way and wave her handkerchief to let him know where she was.

"The signal didn't always work and he was looking up into the stands all the time trying to find her. And when you're looking all over the stands you can't get signals from the manager of the ball club and you can't field a hard hit ball about five yards on either side."

He Was a Large Spender

In the letters of administration on the estate of Harry Frazee, theatrical magnate and former owner of the Boston Red Sox, it appeared that the deceased left an estate of only $50,000.

When he owned the Red Sox he sold all of the valuable players on the club and he got $125,000 for Babe Ruth.

After the club had been almost depleted of ball players he sold the franchise for a reported sum of a million dollars.

Out of baseball he confined himself to the theatrical business and made a glorious strike with "No, No, Nanette" which was reported to have made two million dollars for him.

Teddy Hays Spouts Again

With thanks again to Charley Murray of the Buffalo Times, we borrow the following from his column quoting Teddy Hays, secretary to Jack Kearns, who once had the Dempsey fellow:

"Hey, here's one for you," Hayes said. "Have you checked up on Frank Moran lately?

"Would you believe it, Moran is the 'works' on the California boxing commission. Yes, sirree, old Frank is the big 'commish' out there.

"You can't wiggle a finger in the boxing racket all through California without first getting an okay from Moran.

"Practical man, Moran. The rest of the commissioners kinda take their tips from Frank on technical points.

"Moran went to California a few years ago with the intention of turning his famous 'Mary Ann' loose on a few of the young and inexperienced heavyweights. They told him he was too old and to forget about fighting.

"Frank began dabbling in politics. First thing we knew he was the boxing boss. He isn't the chairman, but anything Frank okays is hunkadory.

"He hasn't changed much. Little stouter, that's all. How he does 'beef' when a couple of heavies get messy. Those old-timers live every punch when they're peering at a fight. It's as good as a circus to watch Frank at the ringside dodging imaginary punches.

Hubbers Clash With Amarillo Tactless Texans Today

Bobby Jones May Tie Record, With Two Titles In Season

CHAMPION JONES TO BE "TWINS"?
BY WILLIAM RITT
Sport Editor of Central Press

NEW YORK, July 6.—Severely chastised pros staggering home from Winged Foot and the national open to their home courses may heave a sigh of relief that not until next summer need they face again the Georgia Juggernaut, Mr. Robert Tyre Jones, jr.

Not so the hapless amateurs. At Del Monte, Calif., come Sept. 2 the simon pures must once more pit their timid clubs against the Atlanta wizard in the 1929 edition of the national amateur.

And, indications are that a very ferocious Bobby Jones will play in that tourney. There is a lot at stake in the meet for Jones. He has a chance to reach a mark which has been denied him since he began winning national titles. It is again possible for him to win both the open and the amateur titles in the same season.

Only one golfer in American tourney history has ever achieved that mark. He is Chick Evans and he turned the trick back in 1916. Francis Ouimet almost did it, but his national amateur title came a year too late to be paired with his national open championship which was won in 1913.

However, Bobby Jones has a real reason for being anxious to win the amateur title this year and match it with his open championship also, his first win over the pros since 1926. You see, Bobby has had six chances to win the twin title and each time the vagaries of fate or something intervened.

Bobby's first title came in 1923, when he won the open. Max Marston took the amateur laurels that year. The next two years Bobby grabbed off the amateur championship, but Cyril Walker in 1924 and Willie McFarlane in 1925 were national open champs during Jones' first amateur reign.

Once more the purple robes of the open fell upon the Georgian's shoulders. This was in 1926, when George Von Elm walked away with the amateur crown.

An irate Bobby hustled back to tend his amateur fences in 1927 and 1928. He ruled the amateur throne but failed to oop the open those two seasons; Tommy Armour and Johnny Farrell saw to that.

Comes now 1929 with another Jones victory in the open. Technically, he is also amateur champion, since his title does not expire until September, when the 1929 tournament takes place.

If history repeats itself Jones won't win, but his showing in the national open, especially in the play-off, proves he is at the very peak of his game, and when he is that way who is there to stand up against The Jones and survive?

It begins to look as though this business of chasing Bobby from one golf throne to the other every year is about over.

Paddy Driscoll's Athletic Star Stands The Rigid Test Of Time

By PAUL MICKELSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO, July 6.—(AP)—Stars of the athletic firmament sparkle and fade with the years, but Paddy Driscoll beams on and on.

For 15 years this stout-hearted Irishman has been starring on gridiron, diamond and basketball floor around Chicago. When he will retire is something he doesn't know himself, even at the age of 33. The lure is too irresistible. If there is such a thing as a perennial star it is Paddy.

"I suppose I'll keep on playing until Father Time gets out his scythe and mows me down," said Paddy. "Every year I think I'll quit, but when the football season opens and I hear the thud of leather, I can't resist the urge and I don moleskins again. After that I keep right on, playing basketball and baseball. I guess it's just in my blood."

It was way back in 1913 that Driscoll started his athletic career by starring on the Evanston, Ill., high school football, basketball and baseball teams. His fame increased while at Northwestern university and has been spreading since then on fast professional teams.

In football he has been the main engine of attack for several seasons on the Chicago Cardinals and Chicago Bears teams. He is one of the original triple threat men of the gridiron. He is a great open field runner and passer, while probably no football star has ever equalled his record in booting drop kicks or extra points. In 200 games Paddy's average for drop kicks or extra points is about 8 out of 10 tries.

In baseball Driscoll is the "Big Bertha" of the Mills, a fast, semi-pro outfit of Chicago. His batting average for several seasons has been .350.

On the basketball court he is a sharpshooter de luxe, and when extra points are necessary from the foul line, Paddy rarely misses.

Herman Holds Top Rung In National League Slugging

Rogers Hornsby Adds 30 Points During Week To Climb To Fourth; Ott Leads 3 Departments

NEW YORK, July 6. (AP) — Babe Herman of Brooklyn continues to set the pace for the National League batsmen, this time with an average of .836, according to figures released today and including games of last Wednesday. Frank O'Doul of Philadelphia, however, no longer crowds Herman for first place, Bill Terry of New York standing second with .373, with O'Doul standing in a tie for third with Frank Frisch of St. Louis. Each of the two has .363.

Rogers Hornsby of Chicago added thirty points to his average in the week ending Wednesday, running his mark to .362, his highest of the season to date. Other leading regular batsmen are: Stephenson, Chicago, .356; Roush, New York, .352; Hendrick, Brooklyn, .345; L. Waner, Pittsburg, .344 and Cuyler, Chicago, .343.

Melvin Ott of New York holds the triple honor of leading in home runs with 23, in runs scored with 72 and in runs batted in with 83.

His team-mate, Bill Terry, has the greatest total of hits, 112, while Frank Frisch leads with 23 doubles. Lloyd Waner of Pittsburg leads in triples with 11, while Kiki Cuyler of Chicago has stolen 23 bases, the best mark in base running to date.

Burleigh Grimes remains in the vanguard of the pitchers, this time with thirteen victories against one defeat for a mark of .929. He also leads in total innings pitched with 147. Guy Bush, the Chicago Ace, has won ten out of eleven for .909. John Morrison has won four decisions in his salvage work for the Brooklyn team and has taken one other game as a starting pitcher, with no defeats charged against him but of course cannot yet be regarded as a regular.

Fothergill Picks Up Five Points To Stay In 2nd Place In American; Heilmann In First Ten

CHICAGO, July 6. (AP)—The busiest bat in the American League, operated by Jimmy Foxx, Philadelphia first baseman, was increasingly active and Connie Mack's versatile workmen led the junior major circuit for the sixth consecutive week with an average of .410, unofficial figures including games of Wednesday reveal.

Foxx tacked five points onto his mark to remain at the top while Bob Fothergill of Detroit, picked up four points, and stayed in second position with a mark of .397. Harry Heilmann, another Tiger, who figures on leading American League during odd years, climbed into the first ten for the first time of the season with .351. Other leaders besides Foxx and Fothergill were: Manush, St. Louis, .389; Lazzeri, New York, .372; Simmons, Philadelphia, .367; Cochrane, Philadelphia, .361; Fonseca, Cleveland, .358; Gehringer, Detroit, .532; Heilmann, Detroit, .351; Combs, New York, .351.

As a team the Athletics did not hit quite so hard during the week but remained in the lead with an average of .312, a four point drop. The Tigers improved by two points to .308, and remained in second position. The Athletics had scored a season total of 457 runs, while holding opponents to 273. The Yankees, due largely to the revival of Babe Ruth's activity, had collected 68 home runs, to 62 for the Athletics.

Although Bob Grove lost his only start of the week he continued to set the pace for pitchers working in turn. The Athletics' southpaw had 12 victories and two defeats. His left-handed team-mate, Rube Walberg, ranked second with 12 wins and three defeats by winning two games. Eddie Rommel worked in two games but failed to alter his season mark which stood at six victories and no defeats.

The Yankees and Washington were tied for the leadership in team fielding with an average of .975. The Athletics, who led last week, dropped to a tie for second with the St. Louis Browns at .974.

Other leaders: Runs batted in, Simmons, Philadelphia, 81; home runs, Gehrig, New York, 21; runs scored, Gehringer, Detroit, 72; triples, Miller, Philadelphia, 9; doubles, Heilmann, Detroit, 28; stolen bases, Gehringer, Detroit, 13; triple plays, Chicago and New York, one each; double plays, Cleveland, 85; strike-outs, Grove, Philadelphia 88.

Alex McColl Starting On Mound For Hubbers Today; Lubbock Lineup Slightly Changed For Tilt

Sled Allen and his Amarillo Texans invade Merrill Park today, set to gain revenge for the beating handed them by the Lubbock Hubbers when the local aggregation turned them back in a recent engagement at the Potter county metropolis. The game is called for 3:30.

With a week's rest behind him, Ted Nicholas, the Amarillo hurling ace will be sent against the Hubbers today. Lefty Maxwell, who lost a close decision to Pampa a week ago, will be held in reserve. Fire Loss Shows Decrease In City

Damage For First Half Of Year Is About Half Of Same Period Of Last Year According To Simpson

Loss from fire in Lubbock, for the first six months of the year, is only about half the amount lost during the same period of 1928, according to City Fire Marshal L. H. Simpson, with a total of only $11,730 recorded this year.

In 1928, out of 119 alarms answered by the Lubbock fire department, total loss amounted to $57,000, approximately, of which about half happened the first half year. There have been 105 alarms so far in 1929. During June there were 15 alarms answered, but only one resulting in a disastrous fire. The loss is estimated at not more than $500, the exact amount not having yet been determined as there has not yet been an adjustment reported to the fire marshal.

The city fire marshal made 520 inspections in June, with 220 second inspections recorded.

Forging Document Trial Under Way

Hearing Purporting To Show Bribery Of U. S. Senators By Soviet Russia Starts In Berlin

BERLIN, July 6. (AP) — Today's hearing in the trial of Vladimir Orloff, Peter Pavlonwosky and others on charges of forging documents that purported to show bribery of United States senators by Soviet Russia, ended suddenly today when a witness mentioned "Nuntia." That word is the popular name of a semi-official military intelligence service not supposed to be discussed publicly. The trial was adjourned until Wednesday.

The famous Zinovieff letter, which caused the defeat of the Ramsay MacDonald government in the 1924 British elections, was the medium of the sudden suspension of the trial. Hugo Juehleisen, head of a recently dissolved government intelligence service, testified that he had heard that Orloff had boasted of having had a part in the publication of that letter. He was pressed for the source of this information and when he answered "Nuntia" the court dismissed him and adjourned.

Earlier, Herbert Fuchs, a defense attorney, had charged that the Soviet embassy here was trying to influence the trial. He said that M. Stern, representative of the soviet had threatened an expert who was to testify respecting forged Russian documents by saying that such testimony "would be regarded by the Soviet embassy as a hostile act."

M. Stern denied this.

Poison Bullets Are Still Used

CHICAGO, July 6. (AP)—Police believe poisoned bullets still are a part of gangster warfare. Their belief was based on their investigation of Chicago's latest racket shooting, that of Geo. Maloney, south side gangster and convicted killer, wounded last night.

"Clean it out, the rats probably poisoned the bullets," Maloney pleaded as he lay in a hospital early today.

Maloney, recently convicted of manslaughter for slaying Hugh "Stubby" McGovern and William "Gunner" McPadden during last New Year's eve celebration in the crowded Granada Cafe, was fired on by two men across the street while he was walking with a woman. Crowds leaving a nearby theater hurried for cover.

Maloney maintained gangland's characteristic silence as to his assailants, remarking only:

"What do you think of a friend who'll shoot you from behind?"

Legislature

is no quorum the house shall adjourn "from day to day." Some interpreted this to mean that whenever a Sunday intervened during a trying situation of this kind it could only be considered as "another day."

By R. W. BARRY
Associated Press Staff Writer

AUSTIN, July 6. (AP)—It begins to look like the figures of the business-man-chairman of the house appropriations committee first proposed to the 41st legislature as the maximum amount the state could set aside for its support during the next biennium will be about right after all.

John F. Wallace of Teague, a merchant, assisted by other members of his committee, spent days and nights calculating the state's probable income and wrote the five major appropriation bills accordingly.

When the task was completed the total added up $47,780,559. On the other side of the capitol building sat the senate finance committee headed by Senator Tom Pollard of Tyler. The senators thought the house was too miserly and ran their appropriations to $57,711,013.

The Fight Was On

The fight was on. Wallace and his committee stood pat. Pollard and his financiers would not budge. Pollard quoted figures to show that the state's income would be in the neighborhood of $54,000,000. Wallace contended that figure any way you would, the revenue could not be made to exceed $49,000,000.

The controversy wound up by both houses accepting free conference bills calling for expenditure of $50,174,071. These were the major money bills: Educational, departmental, eleemosynary, judiciary and rural aid. There were others, including a claims and accounts measure of $937,543 to say nothing of the Alamo land purchase proposal carrying an appropriation of $250,000 for an underground water survey; $460,000 supplemental rural aid and $1,500 for a Parker county monument.

The governor ascertained that if he approved all appropriations he would have to expend some $54,000,000 with only about $49,000,000 coming in.

In a desperate effort to keep the wolf from the door of the state treasury, he put his foot down on the entire money program of legislature and sent the house and senate a midnight note, just as they adjourned sine die, calling them back to do a little whittling.

"Against such a rising tide in state expense, someone must stand," he told them.

fireproof throughout. It will be three stories in height and will measure 265 by 170 feet. The auditorium of the structure will seat 1,500 and the gymnasium, with balcony for spectators, will seat about 1,000. The building will be thoroughly equipped for all departments of the school.

South Plains Postal Workers Aid In Bringing 1930 Convention To Lubbock

The wholehearted cooperation of 11 South Plains delegates to the postal workers convention at Dallas, July 1, 2, 3 and 4, was responsible for the selection of Lubbock for the 1930 meeting place, Garnet Reeves, publicity manager of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, who attended the convention, stated upon his return.

Two delegates from Lubbock, two from Slaton and O'Donnell and one from Floydada, Petersburg, Silverton, Post and Tahoka were present at the convention and all worked to bring it to this section next fall.

Temple Competition.

Temple was Lubbock's strongest competitor in the race for the convention. Due to the fact that East Texas and Central Texas are more thickly populated, more rural carriers are employed in those sections. The carriers from this section outnumbered the West Texas group many, many times and it was difficult to get a majority to line up to come to Lubbock in 1930 when Temple, right in the heart of the two sections, was contending for the meeting.

Many of the delegates from the South Plains section have previously lived in other sections of Texas and had many friends that were influenced to support this section, while the others were busy making friends.

Take Determined Attitude.

The South Plains delegates took a determined attitude when the convention opened and refused to consider anything but bringing the convention here next year.

Among the South Plains delegates were: John R. Green, Lubbock, superintendent of mails; J. R. Potts, Lubbock; William Klattenhoff, and Foster Carroll, Slaton; W. C. Foots, Petersburg; J. H. Williamson, Silverton; W. L. Underwood, Post; L. N. Nichols, O'Donnell; W. E. Suddarth, Tahoka; G. N. Shirey, Floydada, and Paul Welch, O'Donnell, all rural carriers.

From 1,000 to 1,500 are expected to attend the joint convention next year. The largest group is the Texas Rural Letter Carriers' association. In addition to the carriers organization, the Ladies Auxiliary to that association, the Texas State Association United National Association of Postoffice Clerks, and the Texas Branch, National Association of Postal Supervisors will meet here and it is entirely likely that the Texas League of District Postmasters will also pick Lubbock as the place for their meeting. The latter association has not yet selected a place for their next convention, however it has always been customary to meet at the same place that the carriers meet.

Parachute Jumper Searches for Plane

SAN ANTONIO, July 6. (AP)—Unless he is able to secure a privately owned plane, plans of C. D. (Rowdy) McCown of McKinney, professional balloonist and parachute jumper, under a liquor sentence, to "drop in" at the penitentiary headquarters in Huntsville will not be carried out.

McCown arrived in San Antonio from McKinney today and went to Winburn Field, where he talked with representatives of the municipal field and of the Texas Air Transport company about making such a parachute jump. He was told at both offices that he cannot make a jump from a licensed plane without special permission from the department of commerce.

McCown announced that he would try to get a privately owned plane.

Brown died about an hour after he was struck by a charge from a shotgun in front of a Fort Worth residence about midnight Friday. Watson claimed that the shooting was accidental and that the gun went off as he was handing it to his mother. He was sitting in an automobile at the time.

The shooting climaxed a birthday party given for Mrs. Lloyd McFalls. Watson and his wife argued over her dancing with other men, according to statements given the district attorney.

Watson said he had several highballs at the party.

Children Rescued By Navy Seaplane

ANNAPOLIS, Md., July 6. (AP) — A navy seaplane in service here for the training of naval academy midshipmen today rescued five children, whom its pilot, Lieutenant Edward S. Mulheron, sighted clinging to an overturned boat in Chesapeake bay.

Mulheron brought his plane down beside the boat and took the children on board. The plane already carried its full load of eight men and the lieutenant was unable to fly with the added load. He taxied over the waters into the Miles river and to St. Michaels, Md., where he turned the children over to the father of one of them.

The children were Louis Burns, Sarah Allen, Dorothy Taylor, and Warthman Dodson, all of St. Michaels, and Hillard Owens, of Washington. They told their rescuers they had been clinging to the boat for some time.

Croquet Balls On Way In Marathon

GALVESTON, July 6. (AP)—Mayor Jack E. Pearce started a couple of croquet balls rolling this afternoon which two marathoners hope to push down Fifth Avenue some time this fall with a message of greeting from Pearce to Mayor Jimmie Walker. Some 1,900 miles of dirt and concrete road lie ahead of the men, G. C. Hart, tailor, and Luther Rose, barber, both of Rule, Texas, in their strange hike to Gotham.

A crowd gave the pair a big send off. They hope to reach Houston in about three days, but beyond that point have not definitely mapped their itinerary. Frank Walton, another Rule tailor, is carrying supplies in an automobile for the racers.

market, were reported today in the winter wheat area of Kansas, Northern Oklahoma and the Texas Panhandle.

The closed elevators reported to Gov. Clyde M. Reed, chairman of the trans-Missouri-Kansas shippers board, included 17 listed by the Rock Island and 37 by the Santa Fe. The 37 reported by the Santa Fe were in its western division between Newton and Dodge City, Kan. All elevators were reported closed at 15 Santa Fe stations.

Grain Dumped.

The two railroads, now transporting a large share of the crop, reported much grain being dumped on the ground, partially due to a shortage of freight cars and inability of elevators to handle the fast flowing tide to market.

Santa Fe traffic officials reported large supplies of empties being moved into the wheat belt in an effort to keep elevators open.

Rock Island loadings on the El Paso division yesterday were placed at 353 cars. A total of 626 cars were ordered for loading today in the division. Empties were reported en route from El Paso, and officials of the railroad in a report to the shippers board said they expected to relieve the congested situation within the next few days.

FORT WORTH, July 6. (AP)—The Star-Telegram tomorrow will say that the first week of the real flood of 1929 Texas wheat made grain history by putting more than $12,000,000 in cash into the pockets of the growers; by hanging up new records for daily receipts at Fort Worth; and by putting railroads to the hardest test of the year.

The week also has been noteworthy by reason of the fact that crop damage further north has sharply boosted the price farmers are receiving for their grain, around $1 per bushel being the prevailing at country shipping points now as compared with 85 to 87 cents when shipments were first started, the paper says, adding:

Peak Likely.

It is believed next week, July 8 to 15, will see the peak of the Texas wheat movement with 15,000,000 to 18,000,000 bushel during the week and with Texas farmers receiving that many millions of dollars for their crop.

West Texas banks are reflecting the income from wheat in a vast increase in their deposits and cash-on-hand items threatening in many towns to break all past records.

Grain men now estimate the Texas crop at 33,000,000 to 37,000,000 bushels, with the unknown quantity the area from Amarillo north to the Texas state line—a section which may this year produce nearly half of the Texas crop and where harvesting is just now getting well started.

TO ATTACK BETTING

Court Decisions Will Be Asked In Illinois

Attorneys for loop department store will ask a court decision holding such forms of betting to be gambling despite the state law legalizing the machines at horse race tracks, attorneys for the stores said today. The stores are said to be behind the movement in order to discourage gambling with funds advanced to employes.

week ago resulted in West getting a 99-year sentence, and Hernandez 20 years. The state contended they choked Williams to death in the Commercial hotel here and threw his body into the river after an argument.

The former officers were sentenced formally tonight.

A delineation of the appeal grounds covered 20 pages, the longest ever presented in Webb county. The testimony was reviewed and one juror was claimed to have talked to his wife while serving.

Other alleged errors cited were: Failure of the court to give special charges requested; refusal of the court to permit defense counsel to ask impeaching questions of a witness; failure of the court to give requested instructions of not guilty. The defense also claimed that Dr. W. E. Lowry's testimony that Williams had been choked could not stand because no body bruises were shown.

The state made no answer.

Closing Of Banks Is Investigated

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 6. (AP) The affairs of two banks which closed today, bringing the total of banking institutions which have failed to open in the Birmingham district within the past 10 days to four were under investigation of state officials tonight.

Meanwhile, searching parties sought the body of Dr. A. W. Bell, president of the Woodlawn Saving bank, one of the institutions which closed today. Dr. Bell drowned in the Coosa river near Vincent, Ala. He was reported to have gone in swimming with a party of friends shortly after he arrived at his country place for the week-end.

The report of the closing of the Woodlawn bank caused a run on the Southside bank which prompted officials to order it closed. Officials of the Southside bank said the closing was temporary and that the bank would re-open Monday. Mild runs started at other banks. They were halted in most instances when official announced that all depositors wishing to withdraw their funds would be paid promptly.

Quickness Saves Life Of Fliers

Dangling Rope From Plane Becomes Entangled In Propellor Of Another Endangering Four Men

ATLANTA, July 6.—(AP)—Four Atlanta fliers tonight owed their lives to one of their number who was quick with his knife when a dangling rope from a plane in flight became entangled in the propellor of a ship plying below it.

Taking the air today to conduct an experiment in repairing the landing gear of aircraft in flight, Beeler Blevins and Bonnie Rowe climbed to an altitude of 2,500 feet and maneuvered for position below a second plane flown by Mackay Solenberger and W. G. Stiplin.

Rowe climbed out on the lower wing of the under ship and removed a wheel, while Triplin, in the ship above, began lowering away another wheel from the end of the rope.

Just as Rowe reached out to grasp the dangling wheel, the force of the wind whipped the rope into the propeller of the lower ship. Both blades were torn off, and the rope, caught in the propeller shaft began to wind up much in the fashion of a windlass, threatening to draw the two ships into a fatal collision.

Striplin drew his knife, reached out and cut the rope free. The two ships careened away and Blevins put his crippled ship into a powerless glide. Rowe recovered the original wheel and, hanging from a wing strut, worked desperately to replace it. He put the wheel in place just a few feet above the ground and lacking time to climb back into his cockpit, clung to the landing gear as Blevins brought the plane down to a perfect landing in a cotton field.

Solenberger and Striplin landed safely in a field a short distance away.

The lull today was in sharp contrast to yesterday when Canal Street, famous business thoroughfare, bowed before mob rule, while policemen stood by helpless. Five charred street cars, a partly burned bridge, blocked car tracks, bandaged heads, and two funerals of slain strikers gave testimony of the wrath of the strike supporters.

Brick Bat Barrage

As an offshoot of the car strike, a small crowd of men visited the foundry of Dibert, Bancroft and Ross, where a strike has been on for two months, and laid down a barrage of brick bats. They were dispersed by a police riot squad before any damage was done beyond broken window panes.

Strike leaders assert there will be no more serious outbreaks unless another attempt is made to operate street cars by strike breakers or unless more cargoes of outside workers are brought in. A trainload of non-union carmen were parked outside of New Orleans today after strikers and followers prevented their detraining here last night. Others were reported on the way from the east and strikers admitted they were prepared to welcome them with brickbats.

Company officials declined to disclose their plans but their hands were tied today by the order of the city commission council to postpone further operations of street cars.

Disorders which broke out at the Canal street and the Arabella barns were dealt with promptly by policemen. One strike breaker was severely beaten while bricks shattered windows in the Canal barn and in a street car at the Arabella barn.

Firemen were called to the latter location to extinguish a small fire at the rear of the building.

Strike sympathizers armed with bricks and pieces of iron lined the street along Nashville avenue in anticipation of a rumored arrival of strike breakers.

Police at the canal barn let go a tear bomb in a crowd, which replied with a bomb that fall on premises next to the car company property.

The commission council late today transmitted the Superintendent of Police Ray a formal statement instructing him to use whatever force or means necessary to quell violence and protect life and property.

THE VACANT LOT MARKET
Seems to be looking up, and lots all over town are worth a little more money than they were 60 or 90 days ago. But our client still advises us to sell those two we have listed for him on 26th, just west of Ave U., at $325 each, cash. These lots are well worth $450, and they sold for $400 two years ago, so this price makes what is the very best small opportunity in Lubbock to buy open lots low down and either to build on or to hold for the advance.

SECTION I

All property owned and controlled by the City of Lubbock, including its plant, water supply, mains and system and the organization used by said city in furnishing an adequate supply of water to the inhabitants of said city and vicinity, shall hereafter constitute and be known as the City Water Works.

SECTION II

All water furnished by the City Water Works to its consumers shall be measured by meters. The size, type and right to own and control all meters installed or used by consumers of its water shall be determined by said City Water Works, which shall keep all meters owned by it in repair without expense to consumers. When it is impractical to meter water for special occasions, water may be sold and charged for at estimated consumption upon a written permit issued under the same conditions as prescribed in the following paragraph.

All water furnished to the various departments of the City of Lubbock shall be measured by meter and paid for on the same basis as any other consumer except that where it is impossible to meter the consumption, as in the case of fire hydrants, a flat rate may be designated by the Commission, and payment based upon such rate shall be made in the usual way. Under no conditions shall fire hydrants be used for furnishing water except for Fire Department or Sewer Department, provided, however that the Water Superintendent by and with the consent and approval of the City Manager may grant a special permit in writing to contractors or others engaged in street improvement or other construction work under such regulations as may be prescribed by the City Manager to use water from not more than one opening on Fire Hydrants.

Said bill shall carry a discount of 10 percent for a period of ten days from its due date, after which date the gross bill must be paid. If, within fifteen days after the date of the bill, the amount due is not paid, it will be sufficient notice from the consumer to discontinue service, and service shall be discontinued and not re-established until the full amount due has been paid, plus $1.00 additional for turning water back on. Humble Old-Time Darkey Knows Office Of Governor Of Texas, Signatures Too

AUSTIN, July 6. (AP)—A Texas newspaper man a while back wrote an interesting story entitled "Governors I Have Known." Which reminds veteran capitol employees that an old-time darkey working in the governor's office could put out an absorbing story on "Governors Whose Names I Have Signed."

L. Green, not so old but a humble negro, has been attached to the governor's office for 22 years and has served through the administrations of seven chief executives. He can sit down and flourish off the signatures of each and if his versions are compared to the real thing you cannot detect a flaw.

Green is in charge of the records having to do with the clemencies and the papers involving land patents. He has the files so well in hand that he can put his fingers on papers many years old when it is necessary to refer to them. He has been an invaluable employee. Incidentally when it is necessary to put the governor's signature on papers, and he is authorized to do so, he does it so well that the governor cannot detect it from his own handwriting.

Green came to the governor's office in 1907 with the administration of the late T. M. Campbell, and has been there continuously through the terms of O. B. Colquitt, James E. Ferguson, William P. Hobby, Pat M. Neff, Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, and Dan Moody.

He is often consulted with reference to custom of the office.

He has never "gossiped" to a governor about his predecessor, and does not talk of things that transpired in the past.

Hat Travels
Dallas Man Sends It Around Globe

GLASGOW, July 6.—Bearing the following message and 65 labels, a hat traveling around the world arrived at Aberdeen recently. "I am on my way, I don't know where, and I don't care where I roam, so give me a lift and send me along, and some day I'll roam home." It was being sent around the world by a man in Dallas, Texas. It has been all over the United States and Canada.

Summer Schools In City Showing Excellent Work

Tech To Open Second Term On July 15; Four To Be Added To Faculty; High School Session Closes

The second term of the Texas Technological college summer session will begin Monday, July 15, according to an announcement made yesterday by Dean J. M. Gordon, head of the summer school.

Monday will be taken up with the registration of new students and Tuesday morning, July 16, at 7 o'clock, classes will be started. According to Dean Gordon an increased enrollment of from 150 to 200 students is expected for the second term. The enrollment now stands at 1118 and indications point to the fact that there will be between 1300 and 1500 students by the time the last term gets well underway.

Four Join Faculty

Four additional members to the faculty will be added. Dr. T. D. Brooks, dean of education at Baylor University, will be here and give special courses; Prof. W. A. Stigler, assistant superintendent and director of research in the El Paso city schools, also will be included. A new course to be offered second term students will be the cotton classing school, under the direction of Prof. E. W. Camp, head of the textile engineering department at Tech, and Harry E. Blocker, president of the H. E. Blocker Cotton company, of this city. The cotton classing school will only run for four weeks, ending the course, August 10, two weeks earlier than the regular session. The regular course will end on August 23, at which time degrees will be given and graduating exercises held.

Many School Men Here

According to a statement made some time ago by Dean Gordon, practically every section of the South Plains is represented in the enrollment of the school while eight states are included. "Some of the most prominent school men and women of this section of the state are now enrolled," said Dean Gordon. "Many superintendents of South Plains high schools are here doing work toward their masters degrees.

"This is indeed exceptional. It means that the people of our own part of the state have gained confidence in us and with this confidence there will come an expansion on the part of the institution which will be heralded all over the country. The enrollment of the summer session as a whole is very gratifying."

City To Close July 11

Reports from the city schools state that the summer session there will end on July 11, there being no second term. The enrollment this summer has reached to approximately 120 students, more than ever before. In past years three faculty members have handled the courses but this summer two extras were added. The school, under the direction of R. W. Matthews, has had as instructors H. E. Frnka, G. N. Atkinson, E. J. Lowery and Carroll Thompson.

On July 11, forty school days will have been held. Classes were scheduled six days a week with three classes, of 90 minutes duration, in order that the work might be finished in the shortest time possible. Regular courses have been offered with the exception of domestic subjects and work meets all of the requirements of the state department of education.

Mr. Matthews is highly pleased with the character of the work being done and stated that 75 per cent of those enrolled are seeking to make their way through high school in three years while the remaining quarter are made up of delinquents in regular session work. Together with those enrolled from this city there also are a number of boarding students from other cities. Three are here from Smyer, two from Hurlwood, one from Anton, one from Crosbyton and one from Idalou.

"The summer school is growing," said Mr. Matthews, "and the time is coming when we will use the school house the year round instead of the customary nine months."

City Swimming Pool Enjoying Good Patronage

Receipts Slightly Lower Than This Time Last Year; Indebtedness Is Clearing On Pool

Although showing a slight decrease in gross receipts from the same period last year, the Tumble-N swimming pool, owned and operated by the city of Lubbock, is showing increasing patronage as summer's heat becomes more intense, and city officials are expecting to liquidate all or a great part of the indebtedness on the pool with this season's receipts.

Receipts at the pool this season have aggregated $2,422.75, as compared with $2,637.10 for the same period last year.

The receipts have been itemized as follows: Admission fees for children $650.20; admission fees for adults, $1,187; bathing suit rentals, $438.30; towels, $147.25.

One of the most modern on the South Plains, the pool, located in northwest Lubbock, was recently approved as being strictly sanitary by H. E. Hargiss, state sanitary engineer.

The indebtedness on the pool at present is $8,000, but city officials expect this season's income to largely clear the debt.

Dr. Rollo Warns Against Typhoid In Lubbock; Declares Immunization Is Only Safe Way To Combat Malady

City Health Officer Says Lubbock Offers Little Inducement To Disease; Must Watch Garbage

The eyes of the medical world once more are turned to the task of barricading the health of the nation against the deadly enemy of typhoid. The slogan for the state of Texas is "Less Typhoid in Texas in 1929." Every means is being utilized to educate the people to the danger which confronts them in the spread of this disease and precautionary measures are being taken by health departments all over the state.

"The one big factor in combatting the disease," says Dr. J. W. Rollo, city health officer, "is immunization. If possible every individual between the ages of 12 and 45 years should be immunized through the injection of typhoid vaccine. This is the only safe way to offset the spread of a disease that terrorizes communities, cities, states and even the nation when once it gets a firm hold." Dr. Rollo stated that while Lubbock last year had very little typhoid, and no cases reported this year, while the state of Texas reported 461 deaths last year from this preventable disease.

Water Supply Pure.

"The water supply in this city is absolutely pure and free from any danger of contamination," he stated. "The wells, pumps and storage tanks are bug-proof and there are no openings through which they might get into the water. The gravest danger facing this city is the vast number of open toilets and sewers. These must be stamped out. Every occupied dwelling within 150 feet of the sewer system should be connected therewith. This is one of the most important steps in the elimination of typhoid. In those areas that cannot be conveniently served at the time by the sewer system, the installation of pit toilets should be made obligatory if at all possible."

By destroying the breeding places of flies and keeping careful watch over garbage disposal throughout the summer season much annoyance and danger of infections may be avoided. It should be remembered that the surface toilet is the handmaiden of typhoid fever and its use should be abated in every instance possible. Incineration or burial of all refuse that is subject to putrefaction seems to be one of the safest policies to adopt, according to Dr. Rollo.

Milk Causes Epidemics.

Infected milk supplies have often been the source of typhoid epidemics. During the summer of 1928 a milk-borne epidemic of typhoid occurred in a North Texas town involving 30 cases and six deaths. About four months prior to the outbreak, the city council had passed the Standard Milk Ordinance in the absence of the mayor. Upon his return to the city he promptly vetoed the measure giving as his reason that he did not believe "in the germ theory of disease." A practical milk ordinance in that town would have set in motion machinery which would have eliminated the typhoid carrier and the family wherein the first case occurred would have been excluded from milk handling.

"Immunization should be begun now," says Dr. Rollo. "Effective immunization should protect the individual for a period of about 2 years and is recommended for every person between the ages of 12 and 45 years."

One Exhibit For Section Planned

Ed Bishop, secretary of the Floydada Chamber of Commerce, and Faye Guthrie, secretary of the Lockney Chamber of Commerce, were in Lubbock Saturday conferring with officials of the local Chamber of Commerce in view of working out plans for a composite and cooperative exhibit of all South Plains counties at the State fair next fall.

Discussion is now under way for all counties to join in one exhibit for the South Plains, rather than for each county to exhibit individually.

The Lubbock Chamber of Commerce is writing all counties of the area seeking suggestions and opinions with reference to the plan discussed.

This will likely be determined at the regular semi-annual meeting of South Plains Commercial Executives association in Lubbock next month.

Local Courts Have Heavy Dockets Set For Next Sessions

Three hundred and forty-three civil and criminal cases are pending in Seventy-second and Ninety-ninth district courts in this city, according to a report of the current docket filed by Mrs. Olive Fluke, deputy district clerk, with the Ninth Administrative District court in session today at Amarillo.

A total of 243 cases are on the current docket of the 99th district court, while 103 are pending in 72nd district court.

Of those in 99th district court, 63 are criminal cases, 67 are divorce petitions, and the remaining are civil cases.

There are 48 civil, including 6 divorce petitions and one suit charging alienation of affections, and 55 criminal cases in 72nd district court.

Lubbock Men File Petitions On Wives Saturday

Two petitions for divorce were filed by Lubbock men against their wives in 99th district court Saturday.

Banks Are Sound In Floyd County

Deposits Of Four Institutions Total More Than Two Million Dollars; Loans Are Over Million

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

FLOYDADA, July 6.—Condensed statements of conditions of the four banks of Floyd county issued on call of the comptroller for June 29, reflect a generally sound state of financial affairs over the county, with total deposits above the two million dollars, loans a million and a quarter and cash on hand slightly under a million dollars.

Wheat money is evident in the various statements to some extent, the cash and exchange being especially good in the two Lockney banks, where the movement of a fine wheat crop has put many thousands of dollars in circulation.

Total loans of the four banks are $1,282,000, deposits $2,109,000, total cash and exchange $959,000.

Crop Outlook For County Is Good

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

SLATON, July 6.—County Agent D. F. Eaton said here Friday that a two weeks' tour of Lubbock county had revealed fine crop prospects for the county as a whole. Insects are absent, stands are good and fields are clean, he stated.

A slight cotton acreage increase and a feed acreage as large as that of last year were reported by Eaton. He stated it is significant that farmers of this county have more hogs, more cows and more chickens this year than they have ever had before.

LOS ANGELES, July 6. (AP)—The Los Angeles baseball club announced today that Jack Lelivelt, former manager of Milwaukee of the American Association, had signed a one-year contract to manage the Angels. Lelivelt will arrive here Wednesday to replace Marty Krug, who has managed the team since 1923.

Floyd County Fair Livestock Exhibit To Be Outstanding

Dairy Cattle To Be Feature Of Exposition With Premiums Also Te Be Given In Swine Division

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

FLOYDADA, July 6. — That the livestock exhibit of the Floyd county fair to be held in this city September 18 to 21 will be one of outstanding attractions of the exposition was assured when fair directors selected O. L. Stansell, president of the Texas-Panhandle Plains Dairy Show, as chairman of the livestock committee. Mr. Stansell immediately accepted the assignment and asked that C. H. Davis, O. T. Williams, J. V. Daniel and E. L. Angus be named as his co-workers.

Livestock exhibitors in Floyd county have watched with interest the showing of the Stansell herd at the Panhandle-Plains show and it is believed that they will be quick to accept the invitation extended them by Mr. Stansell to exhibit their stock at the annual county event. A premium list that will be very generous is being worked out by the committee and copies will be sent prospective exhibitors within a few days.

No Method Decided.

The exact method of housing the livestock has not been decided but it is understood that every possible convention will be arranged for the benefit of those who bring in their stock. The exhibit will be chiefly cows although prizes will be paid on swine. Horses and mules will not be entered in the fair for premiums.

Briton expect cheaper bread as the result of the low wheat prices in the United States and Canada.

PROPOSES STANDARD

Schwenker Wants Printing On Standard Plan

BRADY, July 6—Standardization of the publishing and printing business will occupy the center of a number of projects to be recommended to the Texas Press association by Harry P. Schwenker of Brady, newly elected president of this association.

"It is my hope that the newspaper business will be developed to reach the same dignified plane of standardization as the banking, hardware, and other commercial enterprises," President Schwenker said. "The newspaper owner will never realize the maximum returns for his labor, until the newspaper fraternity establishes, and—what is more important—abides by a uniform set of regulations governing the financial and business practices of each newspaper owner."

There's Beauty In A Smile

NANCY CARROLL

EDITOR'S NOTE: Here's the third "Close-Up" in the sparkling new series of interviews with Hollywood's film stars. Today Nancy Carroll tells how she develops the beauty of her smile.

By MABEL DUKE
For NEA Service

A lovely smile may be a woman's most potent charm.

The wise woman, realizing that a pleasing smile is a beauty asset as great as the fairest skin or loveliest hair, does all in her power to keep her teeth pearly white.

Nancy Carroll counts her even, white little teeth as one of her most prized beauty possessions and cares for them religiously.

"The girl who has prettily formed teeth may count herself fortunate," Miss Carroll says, "but the girl whose teeth are not all they should be in shape and formation should take extra care to keep them white and lovely. They should be brushed at least twice daily—upon arising and retiring. Use cold water as a hardening effect upon the gums. After brushing the teeth, brush the tongue and the gums, stimulating the circulation. Salt is excellent to use three or four times a week to make the teeth glistening white and, of course, at least an annual visit to the dentist should not be neglected.

"Include in the health diet raw vegetables and fruits, giving the teeth some real work to do. It is noticeable among the savage tribes that live almost entirely on raw foods that they suffer little from tooth decay."

NEW YORK, July 6.—Social life most certainly has come out into the open these scorching days.

Besides the old time favorites of tennis, golf, swimming, yachting, riding and driving, three new forms of excitement loom on the horizon; water sledding for the nautical, airplaning for the intrepid, and croquet for the quiet land lubbers.

At the Huntington horse show, for instance, William B. Leeds flew his aquaplane home for lunch and back again as nonchalantly as folks drove their cars last season. Both he and his wife, the former Princes Xenia, took the opportunity to change togs. Mrs. Leeds was one of the few women who sponsored printed frocks. Most original in tone and pattern were hers, one a chartreuse with a very fine intricate design in white, green and soft brown; another white with faint red traceries. Incidentally, little Nancy exhibited fine form when in the saddle a charming little figure in her riding togs.

Linen Prints Vie With Silks

Printed linens, especially the fine hand blocked ones, vie with silk prints for chic. The Gimbel girls, Hope and Carol, wore very smart "sister costumes" of blue and white linen. They were made with circular skirts, a cut all smart women are taking note of.

Shoes are by no means only footnotes of style these days. Matching one's frock with shoes made of the same material is smart and popular. Sometimes it is especially pleasing, as when Nadejda de Braganza wears gaudy striped sandals matching a candy stick silk sports suit.

Large hats show a preference for trimming. At the Huntington horse show Mrs. Frank Fox wore one quite wide on the sides, of rougish straw, with more of a soft crepe de chine trim than I've seen before this year. It looked tremendously smart, atop her well set-up head.

Her costume was chic, too, a red silk suit with tuck-in blouse of white. The skirt had a yoke buttoned with big white buttons and the coat had a scarf collar.

Whenever I see a woman done as nicely in grey and white as Elinor Graham wore to the show I appreciate all over again how smart a thing it is to choose. Her frock was a whole book of style notes, flounce pleats posed in panels, irregular fringe jabot of white crepe de chine flaring from a one sided Etoh jacket effect that buttoned with white buttons, cuffs with frills and a tailored belt fastened with an odd white buckle. Her shoes were very mod-

Freshmen Will Be Required To Stay In 2 Dormitories

Two Halls Are Designated For Freshmen Girls Who Will Enroll At College Next Fall

Beginning with the fall term of 1929 freshman women students at Texas Technological college will be required to live in two privately owned dormitories, College Inn and Annex A. These two buildings with a capacity of 120 have been designated by the regents as dormitories for freshman women and they will be operated under the direct supervision of the dean of women, Mrs. Mary W. Doak. The buildings are stucco and tile and are located on College Avenue opposite the campus.

Mrs. Ellen Doak from the University of Oklahoma will be in charge of College Inn, and Mrs. C. W. Conley who has had dormitory experience at the University of Texas will be in charge of Annex A. The cost of room and board will be $35 per month.

Some Exempt

Housekeeping accomodations for a limited number are available in Annex A. Women who live in Lubbock and those who find it necessary to earn part of their expenses will be exempt from residing in these two dormitories.

If the enrollment makes it necessary, other buildings near the campus will be designated as dormitories for freshman women and will be operated upon the same plan. The purpose of the plan is to make possible closer supervision over first year students pending the erection of dormitories on the campus which was recently authorized in a bill passed by the legislature.

Out-Of-Town Folk Are Spending Few Weeks In Lubbock

Creed, Colorado Is Mecca Of Families For Fishing During The Summer; Other Places Visited

The long summer days are filled with activities for Lubbock people and their guests even though there is little formal society now. There are many visitors in the city and many local people are away on their annual vacations.

Others who are remaining here are devoting their time principally to resting during the heat of the day with swimming, picnics, a few hands of bridge or other diversions in the evening.

Many families have gone to Colorado and New Mexico for fishing or to enjoy the cool of the higher altitudes. Creed, Colo. probably is drawing the largest colony of men and their families as this is a favorite place for fishing.

Others to Creed

While several families have already gone to Colorado, others are planning to leave within a few days. Mr. and Mrs. Maple Wilson are planning to leave today for Creed, the J. E. Hamiltons expect to leave the first of this week for the same place and these two families probably will be joined within a few days by the M. C. Butler family.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam C. Arnett and Mrs. W. A. Bacon have gone to Creed and will be joined later in the summer by W. A. Bacon. The E. R. Allen family left the first of last week for Creed and a number of other families are planning to go there for a vacation.

Mrs. Alice T. Reader, of Houston, has returned to Lubbock to visit with her sister, Mrs. W. W. Rix, 2402 21st street. Mrs. Reader visited here last summer and was extended a number of social courtesies by the local women.

Return From Florida

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Garrison and daughters, Misses Laverne and Louise Garrison, have returned from Florida where they have been since the public schools closed. They visited their daughter, Mrs. F. H. Sawyer, in Sanford and were accompanied on a tour of Florida and to Lubbock by Mrs. Sawyer and her small daughter, Joyce Louise. Mrs. Sawyer and her baby will visit in Lubbock for several weeks before returning to their home. The Sawyers lived in Lubbock until about a year ago.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Parsons and family have gone to Flagstaff, Ariz., and to points in Colorado and New Mexico for a visit.

Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Porter, 1707 17th street, have as their guest Mrs. Porter's niece, Miss Pauline Swepton, of Tulia, who has recently returned from the University of California where she has been a student.

Moving to Santa Fe

J. J. Richards, who has been in Santa Fe, N. M., for a month, has returned here and will be accompanied back to New Mexico by his family. Mr. Richards is now in business there.

Miss Evelyn Helm, who has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. R. R. Eakin, 1514 15th street, for several weeks, has returned to her home in Dundee and was accompanied home by Mrs. Eakin and her son, who will visit, also, in Sherman and other points before returning to Lubbock.

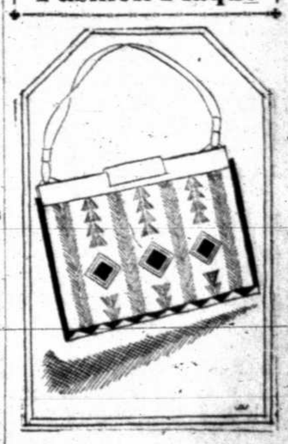

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Lockhart and daughter, Ernestine, have returned from Amarillo where Mr. Lockhart attended sessions of the bar association meeting there and Mrs. Lockhart and daughter visited friends.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Travis expect to leave today for a vacation in the Ozark mountains of Arkansas.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Trice, 1621 16th street, are expecting as their

Frivolity of Americans Preplexes Japanese On First Visit to States

The prosperity of America seems equal to the expectations of Kinji Tashiro, native of Japan, who is here for the first time, but the frivolity of Americans, who have been pictured as Christians, seems rather perplexing to Kinji, who is planning to be a missionary among his people.

Kinji is visiting in Lubbock with with Miss Hettie Lee Ewing who has served for two and one-half years as missionary among the Japanese people, in the home of Miss Ewing's brother, G. E. Ewing, 2422 22nd street.

Miss Ewing, with the assistance of Kinji is to lecture on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings at the Church of Christ, illustrating the talks with lantern slides and articles brought in from Japan.

Kinji to Study

Kinji and another Japanese who came over at the same time and who is doing missionary work among Japanese in northern California this summer, are to attend a Bible training school of the Church of Christ next year in Los Angeles. Miss Ewing is in the United States on furlough.

Although Miss Ewing lives among the Japanese and is frequently the only American in a town, she lives largely in the style to which she is accustomed here and eats foods prepared to a great extent as they are prepared here.

Japanese houses are not warm enough for the Americans to live in comfort and they have practically no furniture in them.

It is almost impossible to buy cornmeal in Japan because it must be imported and is usually full of worms by the time it reaches that place. Wheat flour is more easily obtained, although it is not plentiful, and some vegetables and fruits which are common here are rarely seen on the islands, according to Miss Ewing.

Mellons Come High

Cantaloupes which sell here for a dime, may be bought occasionally in Japan for two dollars or more. One time this missionary bought a mellon for a dollar because it had been bruised on one end and would have spoiled.

"I hated to see the melon spoil and then I felt that I might squander the dollar to give the Japanese family with whom I was staying a taste of this fruit as they had never seen one," she explained.

Some of the Japanese fruits and

Announcement was made last week in Snyder of the marriage of Miss Zone Evans, of Sweetwater, to Frank G. Coleman, jr., of Colorado, on June 20 in Clovis, N. M. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ace Evans, of Brownwood, and the groom is a son of Rev. and Mrs. Frank G. Coleman, of Flora, Ind. Mr. and Mrs. Coleman will be at home in Colorado after August 1.

Several Colorado friends of Mrs. A. L. Geer, of Sweetwater, honored her Monday evening with a party in the home of Miss Laudry Smith. Hostesses were Miss Smith and Miss Jewel Collier. Mrs. Geer was until recently Miss Dale Hall.

Among the delightful affairs in Snyder last week was a breakfast served Wednesday morning by Mrs. L. T. Stinson and Mrs. H. M. Blackard in Mrs. Stinson's home.

Long Guest List

The meal was served in two courses by Misses Mary Lynn Nations, Frances Stinson, La Frances Hamilton and Evelyn Ladwig. The guest list included about seventy-five women from Snyder and their out-of-town guests.

On Thursday evening Mrs. J. C. Stinson and Mrs. H. G. Towle entertained with a lawn and swimming party for their daughters, Misses Frances Stinson and Mary Margaret Towle. There were a number of guests.

Miss Bertie Vaughn of Tulia, was hostess to several of her college friends Wednesday evening with a dinner and theatre party. Guests included Misses Charlcie Ramsey, Pauline Swepston, Estalene and Elberta Vaughn, Gladys Speer, Gwen Sprawles and Bertha Zimmerman.

Mrs. E. B. Massie, of Floydada, who is leaving soon to live in Corpus Christi, entertained a number of her friends Tuesday morning with a breakfast in her home. Games of forty-two followed the breakfast.

vegetables are unknown here.

Miss Ewing had little difficulty in liking the Japanese dishes and she soon learned to eat with a chop stick as is customary there.

Names Have Meaning

She does private teaching and has been stationed at Shizuoka, a city of 85,000 inhabitants on Honshu or Hondor, the largest island in the Japanese kingdom of approximately 3,000 islands. It is on this island that Tokyo is located.

All Japanese names have a meaning and Shizuoka means quiet hill while Honshu or Hondor, the island goes by either name, means large island.

While Kinji's surname, Tashiro, is interpreted as "pass the rice fields on from father to son" his given name denotes a search first for character and later for riches.

The town of Shizuoka is surprisingly quiet in spite of the size of the place, Miss Ewing explains. One reason for this is that it is a place inhabited largely by wealthy Japanese who have retired and are living rather secluded and dignified lives. These people have beautiful homes which are enclosed by high walls and are erected a block from the streets so that little of the noise of traffic may reach them.

Two main streets of Shizuoka are gay and the poorer quarters are filled with the bustle of crowded places, but most of the town is very quiet.

Sons Must Marry

Japan has an elaborate system of pensions and it is customary for a man to retire as soon as his oldest son is able to assume the responsibilities of the family, whether or not he is married and "of course they all marry as this, too, is decreed by custom", the missionary continued.

Missionaries in Japan who are not teaching in schools have a contact with the natives there through the eagerness of the latter to learn the English language.

In the higher primary grades of the schools English is taught by Japanese and foreigners because of a feeling that this language is becoming more universal and, partly, because of the strong feeling of friendliness which exists between Japan and England.

"A missionary may go into a town and hang a sign on her gate indicating that English Bible lessons will be taught on specified nights of the week and the young people of the city will attend in large numbers.

"They come at first to practice speaking English as they realize that this is an opportunity," Miss Ewing explained, "but later they become interested in the Bible stories and ask for them to be explained in Japanese.

"It is then that they go back to their Bibles which are printed in the Japanese language to learn of Christianity.

"There is little opposition to Christian teachings there because missionaries have been in Japan so long that the people have seen the exemplary lives they live. Japanese are anxious, also, for their children to learn to speak English," she continued.

Kinji Tells Story

Kinji told his own story of conversion and education but in such brokan English that it was hard to understand. He is the only son in a family and has two older sisters. As a child—this was a poor family—the future looked very bleak. The family responsibilities would fall upon his shoulders and he wanted to prolong a family that was worthwhile through being honest and worthy himself.

His interest in English led him to hear a missionary and become converted to Christianity and it was after that that he decided that he might find satisfaction through Christian living even though wealth seemed an impossibility.

Opportunities Are Few

Educational opportunities are few in Japan, Miss Ewing explained, and thousands of young people, facing a future that seems to hold nothing for them, commit suicide yearly. They are thought to be brave, also, to be willing to face another life and this consolation makes it easier for them to kill themselves, she believes.

One out of 19 who take high school entrance examinations in that country may enter the schools and one out of every twenty-four who take college entrance examinations may enroll.

Miss Ewing is a native of Cleburne and a former student of Abilene Christian College. At one time she lived near Lubbock for a year.

Old-Time Furniture Suits Modern Apartment

By HILDA HUNT

In spite of the trend toward things modernistic, the traditionally old-fashioned furniture of our ancestors still holds a charm for many of us—that quiet charm of refined elegance so much of our early American art still possesses. The early American we must remember, borrowed the best points from both the English and the French, leaning a little more toward the quiet dignity of the English than the elaborateness of the French. Many of the pieces of furniutre were massive- for the modern small apartment. But there were also the pieces of less bulk, with practically plane surfaces - and less elaboration of ornamentation, that fit into the picture of modern life.

Such are the pieces shown in the sketch. This dining room has a comfortable, inviting appearance, and it is not too crowded. The landscape wall paper dates back to the eighteenth century when these papers were at their height, and lends charm and breadth to the room. Some of these papers, which portrayed scenes from classic mythology, were designed as panels to be hung in a sequence, and are now worth their weight in gold. Color spots were not so important then, as the paper afforded the color relief. Later in the nineteenth century, these beautiful wall papers had either passed out of fashion or were no longer obtainable.

Walls Were Plain

Then appeared wall coverings designed to represent molded panels, marbled, mottled and veined effects, and later the small flowered papers. Walls at this time were plain, unrelieved expanses, extending from baseboard to cornice, painted or tinted some pale, cool color, or they were covered with wall paper of a beauty and quality designed to last. Where the walls were plain, ancestral portraits or dignified oil paintings decorated the otherwise unrelieved spaces.

In the room shown the furniture is mahogany. A square drop-leaf is used with carved back chairs upholstered in tapestry. The sideboard is long and narrow, probably of Adams inspiration, and is topped by a shelf on which repose pieces of old pewter.

As there is naturally considerable green and wood tones in the scenic wall paper, and the furniture is mahogany, with the woodwork of the room in white and mahogany, the floor is of maple or pine, such as one would find in the inlaid floor of the modern apartment. The tan of the floor, the green and wood tones of the paper, the red of the mahogany, and the relief afforded by the white and mahogany woodwork, make a quiet, dignified and restful color scheme. Sheer glass curtains of an ecru fabric are all that is necessary for the windows.

Minister Here

Rev. and Mrs. S. H. Erwin, 1308 Avenue Q, have as their guests Mrs. Erwin's brother, Rev. P. H. Bugh, Mrs. Bugh and their family, Leon, Mabie and Lucile, of Oklahoma City. Rev. Bugh is pastor of the First Nazarene church in Oklahoma City and is to preach at the Nazarene church here this evening.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Hankins, 2307 Broadway, have as their guests Mrs. J. R. Dean, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Manard and Miss Mildred Dean, of Pinebluff, Ark. Mrs. Dean is Mr. Hankin's sister. The J. F. Hankins family is expecting to go to the mountains for a vacation some time later this summer.

Visiting Daughters

Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Jones, of Pearl, are visiting with their daughters, Mesdames R. I. Tubbs, Joe Baldridge and C. A. Burrus, and Miss Lulu Jones, here for a few days.

Miss Donna Vaughn, 2507 26th street, has as her guest Miss Doris Williams, of Paris.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Myrick jr., and Mr. and Mrs. W. E. LaFon are in Chicago.

Longer Skirts Appear

Longer skirts are not only in the offing but in the paddock at shows. Mrs. Paul Abbott's graceful white crepe frock with its rounding neckline and bound armholes was longest sports frock of spring.

Agnes' turban appears in all manner of fabrics and colors. Mary Blake of Fairfield, Conn., showed originality in the way she wore a white knitted one step a sleeveless frock, perched back on her head with her nice wavy hair framing her youthful face. She was one of the many stockingless lassies.

Coin dots continue to win prizes this year. Beatrix Blackwell has a jacket suit of twin dotted linan, the skirt and coat blue with white dots and the tuck-in blouse vice versa.

Riding in informal comfort has its followers. None looked more nonchalantly chic, however, than Mary Elizabeth Altemus with her shirt sleeves rolled above her elbows and the smartest of original looking custom made boots in soft suede that tied in a single eyelet, like quaint comfort shoes.

The black and white outfit has a firm advocate in Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt. One little Frenchy outfit she wears has its white georgette join its black in fine little points and all the edges of the coat are finished in the same points. She is another woman who appreciates how graceful a brimmed hat can be.

Beaumont Uses Surinams To Combat Insects In City

BEAPUMONT, July 6 (AP).—Two hundred more giant surinam toads are to be brought her from Porto Rico at once, as a result of tests made with 33 brought here aboard the S. S. Shawnee recently, for use in fighting insect life, particularly the mole cricket.

John D., Sr., Ninety Monday Is Pictured As A Machine In Four-Generation Biography

John K. Winkler Pens "Portrait In Oils"

WELL TIMED, so that it just precedes Rockefeller's ninetieth birthday, July 8, comes John K. Winkler's "John D.—A Portrait in Oils." Not, however, a single portrait, but a four generation group, beginning at the left with John D's father, "Doc" Rockefeller, crack patent medicine salesman, John D., the family go-getter, John D., Jr., devoting his life to wise and thoroughly investigated charities, and John D. III at the extreme right, Princeton student, but destined to be the future chieftain of the clan.

What a group they make! Not one could believe them in fiction—they would have to be photographed from life. And what a great distance from the left to the right of the picture!—how the direction of the family has changed from the shrewd, swaggering, loose-tongued, Dr. William Rockefeller, celebrated cancer specialist, to the economical righteous, upstanding John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

And yet, one has something of a tenderness for the old "Doc," whose methods of bringing up his sons, though they would never be condoned by modern educators, did get results. Said he:

"I cheat my boys every chance I get. I want to make 'em sharp. I trade with my boys and skin 'em, and I just beat 'em every time I can. I want to make 'em sharp."

And what sharp sons he did produce! For all of them made money, though the fortunes of the other two sons were completely out-distanced by the millions of John D., who turned out to be the sharpest man in his generation, and has passed on his Midas touch. At one time a newspaper estibated that, at 60, John D. III ought to be worth something around $90,000,000,000,000.

Winkler makes no attempt to do more than a life-like portrait of the Oil King. He does not attempt to reveal his soul, nor employ any psycho-analytical methods in explaining the man. He does not attempt to whitewash any of his dealings with railroads, or his methods of harrassing independent producers and refiners, or his neat methods of getting anyone out of his road who was impeding the progres sof his steam roller.

But he does make you feel that the man back of all this machinery is a machine himself, and when he isn't a machine, he is just a pious, church-going, dime-giving, penny-saving soul who never had a really hilarious time in his whole life.

At 90, and for several years back, Rockefeller's great ambition has been to keep on living. Winkler says that at 19 Rockefeller was old, and at 90 he is young, and that he has systematically and astonishingly "Steinached" his spirit. He leads a balanced life, sleeps eight hours, and for his heaviest meal has two or three spoonfuls of soup, dips into several vegetables, nibbles a leaf of lettuce. But he takes an hour for this ceremony.

Here is not only the picture of a great financier, but of a great section of American industrial life. It is a picture that time must caption.

Pheobe Gaye Writes Historical Novel Of War-Reared Girl; Rivaling Howell

Phoebe Gay . . . outjoans Joan Lowell

"Vivandiere" Is Emotionally Strong Book

An historical novel, "Vivandiere" (Horace Liveright) by Phoebe Fenwick Gaye, brings a heroine that outjoans Joan Howell—but she is introduced as a purely fictional character, a wine seller with the French army when it marched into Russia. Listen to this:

"She was born to the song of a salvo of guns; weaned at three months and put on the bottle, but it wasn't milk in the bottle, it was brandy! . . . She could walk at nine months, talk at a year, and had a remarkable vocabulary of bad language before she was 3 . . . her cradle was a shell box, hung from a tripod of guns, her christening robes were two standards, taken from the Italians at Lodi. Her first sabots were looted from a Swiss shop. She was a born vivandiere, and she'll die in her shoes."

It is an emotional, atmospheric story, told with considerable verve and spirit, and recalls a fascinating chapter in the history of the Napoleonic wars.

Turns Of A Bookworm

Book News Notes For This Week

NORMAN Foerster's "American Criticism" (Houghton Mifflin company) was one of the few outstanding books of 1928 to be recommended by the American Library Association on the list made up for the League of Nations. The volume has been warmly praised by American scholars and critics and in England has attracted the attention of G. K. Chesterton, T. S. Eliot and J. F. Muirhead.

The British Royal Flying Corps enlisted the services of Laurie York Erskine during the war and it is o fthe experiences and men he knew while serving in the Corps that Mr. Erskine has written in his new novel "Fine Fellows." Although he has lived most of his life in America, Mr. Erskine was born in England (he is a son of the actor William Wallace) and when the war broke, his English sympathies caused him to join up with the Royal Flying Corps. Mr. Erskine boasts that among his varied activities he can say he has been an actor (in a "Peg O' My Heart" company,) a lawyer, a banker, served with the Mounted Police in the Canadian northwest and worked on the docks of New York harbor. Recently Mr. Erskine has mainly devoted his time to writing, being the author of the ppoular "Renfrew" series in addition to his latest "Fine Fellows."

SEAL FAN

Rupert Hughes was in New York when his new novel, "Mermaid and Centaur," was published, but only because he broke his ankle several weeks ago when he was about to go back to his home in Los Angeles.

In order to get atmosphere for his novel of a divine venus and a farmer, Hughes, accompanied by his wife, chased street carnivals from town to town in California. He is a great admirer of seals.

"There is nothing as sweet and beautiful as a baby seal," he said. "I never enjoyed anything so much as writing about them."

IN DEFENSE OF FATHERS

A common sociological problem is the inability of fathers to make chums of their children. But Donald Ogden Stewart thinks there's entirely too much chumming between fathers and children, with the former suffering as a result. He announces the start of a Movement.

"Father is not to be made worthwhile nor righteous by his children," said Stewart, defiantly, at a recent party.

His own son, Ames Ogden Stewart has a great future. Stewart is going to put his boy in a mill when he's 11 years old—he's now 14 months old—and then quit working himself.

"But," warned Stewart ominously, "if he doesn't leave me alone I'll send him to college, instead."

Stewart's "Father William" is the story of a middle-aged parent who distressed his serious-minded son and daughter by his fondness for a girl named Pussy, an infatuation in which the son shared, and his aversion to symphony concerts, art and other worthwhile things.

Mental Plea In Matrimony Made

Fictitious Miss Tanner Writes Philosophy

"The Intelligent Man's Guide to Marriage and Celibacy," is a suggestion for more mental and less sex appeal in matrimony.

Its title is, of course, an adaptation of George Bernard Shaw's "Intelligent Woman's Guide to Socialism," and the book is offered as the work of "Juanita Tanner," daughter of John Tanner of Shaw's "Man and Superman."

"On the occasion of my parents' marriage," writes the fictitious Miss Tanner, "my grandfather (G. B. S.) warned the world of the dangers of a vitality which placed nourishment and children first, heaven and a hell a rather remote second, and the welfare of society as a whole nowhere. At that time his was a voice crying in the wilderness. Now, however, we have a Wagerian chorus to declare that the evils which he mentioned are at hand."

Companionate marriage, she says is not new, but merely the publication of a hitherto private practice. Furthermore, there is really little difference between men and women, in business, in morals and manners, even physically. The anonymous writer, therefore, thinks that martial happiness depends upon mental companionship and that sexual differences, being merely physical, should be minimized in the love affair.

'The Desert Song' Headlines This Week's Theatre Program

Wide Variety of Entertainment Is Offered in City

First Operetta On Screen Has All Week Run

THEATER goers of Lubbock will be offered something entirely new and different this week in the form of movie-house entertainment. For the first time in the history of filmland an operatto—a spectacular singing success—has been brought to the millions of amusement seekers of the nation through the medium of the vitaphone.

Warner Brothers supreme achievement "The Desert Song," the first musical production to be attempted on the talking screen, will be offered at the Lindsey all this week, starting today. In this extravaganza of beautiful melodies, wended together by an entrancing love story, will be seen such outstanding stars as John Boles, Carlotta King, Louise Fazenda, Johnny Arthur, Edward Martindel, Jack Pratt, Otto Hoffman, Robert E. Guzman, Marie Wells, John Miljan, Del Elliott, and Myrna Loy.

Chorus Is Feature

One of the chief features of the picture will be the chorus, containing many voices of prominence in the stage and radio world.

The story of "The Desert Song" is full of heart throbs with a sufficient amount of humor mixed to produce a well rounded entertainment. The theme is based on the love of "The Red Shadow," played by John Boles, for Margot, the French girl who is strangely attracted by the masked bandit chieftain.

Starting today at the Palace will be seen "Craig's Wife," the overwhelming Broadway stage success. Irene Rich carries the title role, playing the part of a super-censorious wife. Warner Baxter is cast as the loving husband who was blind to the glaring faults of his wife until—well, it will be well worth your time to see it. The picture promises to achieve even as great success as the stage production. "Craig's Wife" will continue through Tuesday.

As an added attraction the Palace will present "Joyland Revue", a bevy of beautiful talented Lubbock girls in a series of variety numbers. Sam Reed will be at the organ and the vaudeville will include "pep, spice, variety, and entertainment."

Starting Wednesday at the Palace for a two-day run will be "Dreams of Love," starring the seductive Crawford. Miss Crawford, who in private life is Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks, jr., is at her best in "Dreams of Love," which promises to be one of the highlights of the week's offerings.

A picture which has been heralded as the greatest movie production of all times is being brought back to Lubbock by popular request. It is "King of Kings," the masterpiece of Cecil B. DeMille, Filmland's greatest producer who directed to success such productions as "The Birth of a Nation," "Way Down East," "The Ten Commandments," "The Covered Wagon," "Ben Hur," and "The Big Parade," reached his greatest achievement in the 'King of Kings,' a picture version of the life of Christ.

"King of Kings" will be shown at the Palace for two days starting Friday.

Today and tomorrow at the Lyric Lon Chaney will appear in a story of the New York underworld. In this picture the famous "Man of a Thousand Faces" is cast in a different type of role. Chaney is a hard-boiled plainclothesman who stalks through a melodrama of gals, gangs and gun-play, with thrills aplenty chucked in throughout.

"The Shakedown," a clever rollicking, light picture-drama, will be offered at the Lyric Tuesday. James Murray and Barbara Kent carry the leading roles in the production. A number of prize fighting sequences furnish the excitement.

"King of Kings" Comes to Palace

Cecil B. De Mille's Masterpiece Back By Request

Cecil B. De Mille's motion picture Life of Christ under the title of "King of Kings"—a work of tremendous magnitude and rare beauty, which ran for many months at enhanced prices in New York, Chicago, Boston and other cities, returns by popular demand to the Palace theater on Friday next.

Mr. De Mille begins the story with the greater Galilean ministry of Jesus, makes the counter motive the opposition of Scribe and Pharisee and high Priest, and develops the first grand climax in the Cleansing of the Temple. Here arises the second opposition: the resentfulness of Judas when Jesus refuses the temporal kingdom.

Many Wonderful Scenes

From scenes of great beauty in and around Bethany—the children in the Olive Grove and the raising of Lazarus—the action goes to the Upper Room of the Lord's Supper and thence to the Garden of Gethsemane. This wonderful sequence is preceded by the scene when Judas bargains with Caiaphas to betray Jesus for thirty pieces of silver, and it is followed by Peter's denial of his Lord.

The scene before the Sanhedrin is brief. But a second and grander climax is reach in the trial before Pilate, the opposing factors of good and evil being so stoutly matched and the apparent triumph of the evil so heart breaking.

Crucifixion Awe-Inspiring

The third and highest dramatic climax is the crucifixion of Jesus. In it the art of De Mille has been touched with something of the same divine fire that animated the pencils of the "Old Masters."

Filming Begun with Prayer

Begun with prayer, the filming of the picture was most reverent. Incidental to it were building of vast architectural reconstructions, notably the second temple, the streets of the Via Dolorosa, the jagged ravines and Hill of Calvary, the Hall of Pilate, the towers and turrets of Jerusalem. Per use in the structures or in the outdoor scenes, ten thousand archatelogically correct properties were devised, bought or used.

Director Edwin Carewe and his newed ex-actress wife, Mary Akin Carewe, honeymoon in Europe?

Lubbockites Know John Boles, Star Of "Desert Song"

Operetta Leader Is From Texas Local Men State

When John Boles, star of "The Desert Song," beginning an extended run at the Lindsey Theatre today and the first big musical show ever to be offered in the combination of moving pictures, sound and music, sings his appealing songs and offers his superb acting, there are several Lubbockites who will take more delight in his achievement than mere enjoyment of the entertainment.

"Boles is a Texas lad. Greenville is his home town.

"I remember him well," Joe S. Collins, linotype operator of the Avalanche-Journal, whose home town is the same as that of Boles. "He was quite an athlete and a fine singer, when just a boy. I have played ball with him and have seen him perform in much faster company than I could hope to travel with."

Could Have Been Star

Collins is of the opinion that Boles would have made a big league baseball star, had not his parents objected to him entering that profession.

Another linotype operator at the Avalanche-Journal plant, Alex Robertson, although not acquainted with Boles, was in Yuma, Arizona, when "The Desert Song" was being filmed.

"Buttercup Valley, about 20 miles from Yuma, is the location used by practically all of the great desert pictures," Robertson relates. "It is two miles from Mexico, in the extreme southern edge of California. This same desert is the actual setting for the Harold Bell Wright's story, "The Winning of Barbara Worth."

Temperature High

"Here during the middle of the day the thermometer goes to 120 and 130 degrees. Sets for Beau Geste, The Sheik and others, were put up on these sand dunes. Supplies for The Desert Song were hauled from the Ocean-to-Ocean highway by means of sleds, behind caterpillar tractors.

"The streets of Yuma, while "The Desert Song" was being made, had the appearance of the capital of the universe, with strange peoples from many nations, apparently, everywhere to be seen."

Robertson tells of a large electric light pole being located immediately behind one of the sheik's tents, on location for The Desert Song, and expresses a desire to see the picture and find out whether or not the camera accidentally caught this evidence of civilization.

Painted on Glass

The big scenes of palaces and other large buildings to be used in this wonder picture, Robertson says, were made with the painting of these structures on glass, held in front of the cameras while scenes were being "shot," to give the correct perspective of the genuine thing.

Yuma and Cocopah Indians were used in this picture for the big mob scenes, where dark-skinned peoples are needed for locale atmosphere.

All performers dressed for their work at Yuma, going to the desert for their work and returning to give the city an appearance of some Egyptian metropolis.

Scene Taken From "Craig's Wife"

Lon Chaney Will Appear At Lyric

"Man of A Thousand Faces" To Appear In New Role

Lon Chaney, whose roles usually are those of menace, has a new angle on sinister portrayals in his latest and one of his most sensational screen plays, "While the City Sleeps," which starts today at the Lyric Theatre. Never was he as deadly menacing as in some of its scenes, still in these more than any other his audience is with him. For he is menacing this time to those who lurk in sinister shadows and themselves menace others.

Chaney plays a plainclothes detective in a vivid story of the "inside" of the New York police, and a deadly gang war is the background of the stirring story. A pretty love tale is woven through it.

It is a marvelous detective story, set as a background to love in the underworld, and is enacting by a notable cast.

Anita Page plays the leading feminine role, and Mae Busch, who last played with Chaney in "The Unholy Three," is with him again.

"The Shakedown" Coming To Lyric

Patrons of the Lyric theater have a treat in store for them. "The Shakedown," an unusual screen play of widely heralded excellence, will be shown on the Lyric screen Tuesday.

It was made by Universal with James Murray and Barbara Kent in the featured roles.

The story, written by the veteran newspaper and screen wirter Charles A. Logue, is built around the crooked fight racket. It discloses how unscrupulous boxing managers stage fake fights with "set-ups" in order to milk the unsuspecting public with "sure" bets. There is a delightful love story and a succession of human interest touches which give the picture great appeal.

"The Desert Song" Is 1st Musical On Screen

In no other picture has there been so convincing a demonstration of the possibilities of the Vitaphone as in "The Desert Song," which comes to the Lindsey theater today, and which will go down in screen history as the first musical play to be transferred in its entirety to the motion picture screen.

Other all-talking pictures had already been made by Warner Brothers, and also many of which included singing, but when they undertook the production of "The Desert Song" they were confronted with a new problem—the inclusion of a large chorus for the ensemble numbers, with its members grouped all over the settings, which constituted the scenes of the play.

How well they met this situation is indicated by the fact that the chorus consists of one hundred men and women, and that they bring to the screen's first operetta the most glorious ensemble work ever heard in America.

Many of the singers were soloists who had never before worked in chorus, or who had graduated from the estate into principal parts, and so great was the number of these that the ensemble of "The Desert Song" might almost be described as a chorus of principals.

The all-star cast includes John Boles, Carlotta King, Louise Fazenda, Johnny Arthur, John Miljan, Myrna Loy, Jack Pratt, Marie Wells, Edward Martindel, Robert E. Guzman and many others, and was produced under the direction of Roy Del Ruth. Harvey Gates adapted the book of the operetta to the screen.

Yessah, massa, 'tis the spirit of old south that Virginia Beauchamp, Alabama addition to the screen, is portraying here. Virgie plays opposite Buddy Rogers in his next.

People In Filmland Aren't Very Good Movie Fans; Actors Never See Picture As General Public Does

BY DAN THOMAS
NEA Service Writer

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., July 6—Nobody in our film village ever sees a motion picture as it is seen through the eyes of the general public.

Strange as that statement may be, it is the belief of June Collyer gained after two years of observation as a member of the movie colony.

"Everybody out here is interested in one particular phase of film production," June declares. "Whenever we go in to see a picture the actors see only their own work, cameramen notice only the photography, sound technicians are interested only in the sound, electricians are interested primarily in the lighting effects, directors notice only the acting, producers look at it in terms of dollars and writers care only for story developments.

"I don't believe anyone out here ever looks at a picture in a general manner as the public does. Perhaps it would be better for us if we would view films in a broader way but I guess it is just human nature for us to be interested in the work we ourselves are doing.

"The thing which first brought this to my attention was when I heard a cameraman remark about the good photography on day after we had been looking at our 'rushes' in the projection room. The sound expert to whom the cameraman was speaking replied, 'Yes, it sounded great'."

The beautiful Miss Collyer—and she is beautiful—claims to be the luckiest girl in make-believe hamlet. Just when the talkies were beginning to kill silent films and June was wondering what would happen to her, Paramount borrowed her from the Fox studios, where she is under contract, for one of the two feminine leads opposite Buddy Rogers in "Magnolia." Her acting and voice were so good in that film that Paramount immediately borrowed her for an immortant role opposite Rogers in "Illusion."

"Those are kind of breaks I have been getting ever since I started in pictures," June said. "Every time I begin to wonder what is going to happen to me, I get a lucky break and the sun shines again."

The success which has greeted the young actress in the talkies might easily be atiributed to her ancestral blood. Her grandfather, Dan Collyer was a big figure on the legitimate stage for 54 years and June seems to have inherited his talent. Even as a youngster she showed remarkable pesibilities in amateur theatricals. But she never acted professionally until she entered pictures three years ago.

Sally O'Neill will play opposite Eddie Bunnell, drafted from the stage, in "Little Johnny Jones?"

While many stage stars are rushing Hollywood, Irene Rich has deserted the cinema for a try at the stage?

Colleen Moore will soon start work on her second talkie, "Footlights and Fools?"

NAN CARROLL, secretary to JOHN CURTIS MORGAN, successful lawyer, is in love with Morgan. His wife, IRIS, elopes with a family friend, BERT CRAWFORD, for whom Morgan has recently won an acquittal. Morgan does not suspect Crawford and is cast in utter despair.

Though he does not realize it, Nan is indispensable to Morgan both in his practice and in his home. For six months she acts as long distance housekeeper for him, bringing comfort and health to him, and his child, little six year old CURTIS. Morgan breaks the news to Nan that he is divorcing Iris and stressing his child Curtis' need for her, asks her to marry him. She consents.

Their farcical marriage has continued three months when Iris, jolted by Crawford, returns. Feigning illness, she tries to bring Morgan to his knees. Nan, heart broken, determines to fight and asks DR. BLACK to remove Iris to a hospital. Curtis goes to see his mother daily. She feeds him forbidden sweets. He awakens Christmas morning with an attack of appendicitis. The doctor says his diet must be watched closely, though Nan knows she is powerless to prevent Iris' interference. Morgan brings WILLIS TODD to dinner. He is a former suitor of Nan's. When they are alone, she tells him of Iris. He seeks to comfort her, placing his arm about her shoulders. Morgan finds them thus.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

If Nan Carroll Morgan had not been so completely in love with her husband, she would have fallen in love with Willis Todd, out of sheer gratitude for the way he met what might have been a very embarrassing situation. Rather, it was not what Willis did, but what he did not do which Nan, even in her confusion, recognized as the height of tact.

Willis did not remove his arm from about her shoulder; he did not apologize; he did not try to explain to the husband who had halted uncertainly on the threshold of the drawing room. He did not feel guilty. He had done no wrong; Nan had done no wrong. He simply refused to put himself in the wrong by acting like a guilty lover caught by a betrayed husband.

"How's the boy, Mr. Morgan?" he called out, with just the right amount of sympathetic interest. "I'd like to run up and speak to him, if he's awake. You know I used to see him at the office when I called for Nan."

"He's still slightly feverish, and had very little appetite for his milk toast, though maybe that was because he was mourning for the turkey he couldn't have," Morgan answered, exactly as if nothing had happened. "I'm sure he'd be glad to see you, Willis. I told him you were here and he said he had a Christmas present for you. Probably some little trifle he made in his manual training class at school."

"Then I'll run up," Willis said. He rose and not till then did he withdraw his arm from across Nan's shoulders.

"Don't be gone too long. We're going to open Christmas gifts and —there is a Santa Claus!" Nan promised him gaily.

When the young man had left the room, Nan rose from the couch and strolled to the tree. She wondered if Morgan had noticed the still undried tears on her cheeks and what she would say if he questioned her.

"Shall we light the tree now?" she called over her shoulder. "Press the left hand button for the Christmas tree lights and snap off the others. Now! Doesn't it look lovely?"

"I hope you like your presents, dear," Morgan said, in a voice that sounded a little constrained, for all his effort to make it cheerful. "It was hard to know what to get you. Want to open the box now, while we're alone? I'd rather be the sole witness of your disappointment, if you don't like them."

"Them?" Nan repeated, laughing. "This box is pretty small to hold more than one gift. Oh, John! I never had anything so gorgeous in all my life!"

She lifted from their satin bed an antique necklace and pair of bracelets of square cut topazes, set in exquisitely wrought gold filigree.

"I got them because they're just the color of the high lights in your hair and eyes," Morgan told her, his voice rich with satisfaction. "They're 150 years old, by the way—first presented to a very famous French actress by a royal prince. Full pedigree furnished on request. But there's something else in the box lift up the satin pad, dear."

Nan obeyed and drew out a credit memorandum upon the city's most fashionable furrier. The sum staggered her for a moment.

"Why, John, darling, we can't afford—"

"How many times must I remind you that you're only the junior partner in this firm?" Morgan scolded her. "I want you to have a decent fur coat, young woman. I was tempted to choose it myself, but didn't dare assume the responsibility."

"Thank you, John," she said simply, for her voice was too husky with tears to permit more. Then, as simply, she lifted her face for his kiss.

The memory of the hard, hungry pressure of his lips was still with her as she watched him fumble awkwardly with the wrappings of her gift to him. She had bought him a wafer-thin, platinum cased watch. Very plain, very expensive looking. With it, a thin platinum chain.

Morgan's eyes lighted up with boyish pleasure. "And to think I never teased you about your woman's intuition! I wonder if anyone else today has said, 'Just what I wanted!' and meant it as whole heartedly as I do. Thank you, dear Nan! It makes this old watch of mine look like a turnip. And I thought there couldn't be a finer watch made when my father gave it to me, George! What a beauty it is!" he added, with such naive enthusiasm that Nan laughed aloud, joyously.

That meant another kiss, of course. And this time it was Willis Todd who halted uncertainly on the threshold, unwilling to interrupt an imbrace which he knew was giving the most exquisite happiness to the girl he loved.

"We couldn't wait for you, Willis!" Nan cried. "Forgive us, won't you? And come look for what Santa Claus left for you."

She made a great ado of turning her back while he opened the package containing the cravat she had given him, "to allow him time to recover from the shock," as she laughingly warned him.

"The tie I've always longed for! Exactly what I wanted!" Willis announced emphatically and pretended to be very much hurt when his host and hostess exchanged amused, significant glances, then burst into uncontrollable laughter.

"These husband-and-wife secrets," he grumbled. "Anyway, the tie isn't funny! It's a beauty!"

And they laughed at him again. Morgan explained: "The male vocabulary, under certain circumstances, seems to be curiously limited. You've said exactly the same thing about that tie that I've just been saying to Nan about this watch she gave me. What is it, Estelle?" he broke off, as he caught sight of the maid beckoning to him from the doorway.

"Telephone, sir," she answered, with an odd note of resentment or sulkiness in her voice.

It required no unusual amount of intuition for Nan to guess that the call was from Iris Morgan.

"Don't look like that, honey," Willis whispered, as Morgan strode across the room toward the library to answer the call. "I'm glad I came tonight. I see now why you feel about him as you do. He's a prince. Fight for him, Nan. He's worth it."

"That's big of you, Willis," Nan murmured huskily. "I'll fight all right, but—so will she. And she has the biggest advantage over me that one woman can have over another."

"And that is?"

"John was mad about her for the whole eight years they were married, and he never really possessed her. Now she pretends she's just as much in love with him as he ever was with her. Can't you see how the thought of possessing her completely, after all those years of frustrated adoration, must affect him?"

"But he loves you," Willis Todd protested. "Not in that insane, slavish way, perhaps, but truly, deeply. You've got to believe that, Nan."

"I do," Nan said simply. "I wouldn't fight for a minute if I didn't believe that. Now, I'm going to tune in on some choir music. I love the Christmas hymns. Don't you?"

Nan was at the radio cabinet and Willis Todd was relaxed in a big wing chair before the fireplace when Morgan re-entered the room. With a deep sigh, whether of worry or contentment Nan could not know, he dropped to the couch and stretched his long legs toward the crackling flames of the wood fire.

"Music, John? Or would you rather just talk?" Nan called.

"A sandwich—music, talk, more music. Some carols, if you can find any in the air," her husband answered.

Four days later Nan Morgan looked back upon that Christmas evening and tried, desperate with need of its happiness and peace, if only in memory, to recapture every moment of it.

"And I sat there, snug as a pussy-cat, listening to carols and telling myself that I'd been making a mountain out of a molehill; that there was nothing to be afraid of," Nan reflected bitterly, on the day that she knew that Dr. Black's warning had not been the idle meddling of a he-gossip.

She was in her own office, reading a long, telegraphic report from her husband, filed at the state capital, where he was conducting the Bradley defense on its appeal to the supreme court.

Her telephone rang. Absently, she reached for the receiver, her eyes still fastened upon the telegram.

"Hello. Yes, Estelle. What's the matter? Quit panting and try to talk plainly. Is it—Curtis?"

"No'm, it's her!" Estelle's urgent gusty whisper came over the wire. "Mr. Morgan's other wife, I mean."

Nan's heart lunged, was caught in the grip of a pain so intense that for a moment there was nothing else in the world but that terrible pain. After a bit, when that dreadful contraction of the heart muscles had relented somewhat, she became aware that Estelle's gusty whisper was vibrating against her eardrum. "Mr. Morgan's other wife." So that was how even the servants thought of John Curtis Morgan—a man with two wives. But she must listen, must answer intelligently.

"I don't quite understand, Estelle," she said, and was aware that her voice sounded cold and reproving.

"I said she's here—right here in this house," Estelle repeated, with urgent impatience. "I tried to keep her out till you come home, but I couldn't do nothing with her, ma'am. Honest, I couldn't!"

"What does she want?" But why ask? She wanted her home, her husband, her child. Hadn't Dr. Black warned her that Iris Morgan would stop at nothing?

"She says she wants her things."

ONE MINUTE PULPIT

Enter into His gates with thanksgiving and into His courts with praise: be thankful unto Him, and bless His name.

For the Lord is good; His mercy is everlasting; and His truth endureth to all generations.—Psalm, C. 4, 5.

STILL A CATTLE COUNTRY

It is entirely probable that we of the South Plains have not come to complete realization of the greatness of this area as a natural feeding ground for cattle.

Since our large ranches have begun to be subdivided into farming lands, during the past few years we have been thinking more in terms of agriculture than of livestock and cattle raising. Agriculture, in truth, offers the cattle industry on the South Plains the greatest boon it has ever had.

Instead of feeding cattle the old method—grazing from here to there, then shipping by rail to greener pastures,—our success in raising feed stuffs teaches that much lost motion obtained in the early days. This teaching has been accepted by those sturdy cattlemen who have gone in for feeding cattle scientifically, instead of letting nature and the cattle do the work unaided.

In the city of Lubbock there have been many thousands of cattle fed out in the pens of the McDonald Packing company, the Lubbock Cotton Oil Mill, and other concerns and private pens. More of this is needed for the betterment of the cattle industry.

A phase of the cattle business is touched upon in the current issue of "The American Hereford Journal". Whether or not this journal's prediction of a beef cattle shortage is true, does not matter. It may be. Anyhow, the following is well worth reproducing:

"The Hereford Journal dares to make the prediction for the Hereford industry that its greatest development and greatest progress since it gained its first foothold in the United States will be recorded within the next 10 years. Great as its record has been in the last 20 years, it will suffer in comparison with what is to come in the next decade. We base this prediction on the country-wide popularity of the breed as it stands today, its exclusive adaptability to all climates and all conditions that obtain anywhere in North America, and the splendid impetus that it has been accumulating during these last few years. In addition to these exclusive native deserts of the breed itself, the United States is surely facing a beef shortage that cannot be overcome in any less time. We have fewer beef cattle in the country today than at any previous time in more than 50 years—and there are more people to be fed, people who can afford to eat beef, than we ever had before. No other beef breed can be used so profitably to mee this situation—and we predict at least a decade of Hereford prosperity that will eclipse all records of the past."

AMERICA'S FUTURE

It is becoming more and more easily demonstrable that here in the God-given isolation of this blessed continent we, the people of the United States, are showing to the people of the whole world the road to the highest hope of human happiness.

In no other spot and among no other people could such an opportunity such as our arise. For nowhere else do we find the same fruitful and favorable conditions.

Go where ever else you will and you find civilization has developed drones as wel las workers. Here we all work. And that is the secret of the entirely wonderful progress we have made in leading all mankind toward that consummation where each will enjoy that to which he in himself is entitled. It is not to say that we have arrived at that consummation or even that we are approaching it. But we alone have made very perceptible progress, and hence we are the leaders.

A cursory analysis of the activities of civilized human beings shows in every instance the inevitable presence of the same three fundamentals, namely, Men, Management and Money. In our faulty human blundering along the way to better things we observe sometimes one of these fundamentals and sometimes another of them attempting to dominate the other two. The history of industry and of peoples s full of examples of this. Yet, whether the attempt has been made by Man, Management or Money, it has led to some form of disaster and trouble and not at all toward that end which America is bound to attain.

These collisions probably have been and still are unavoidable, but in this country they are growing less in number and thus we can perceive that as a nation we are on our way. For here is the underlying truth. Nowhere, nohow, can it be demonstrated that the interests of Men, Management and Money, in any single enterprise or combination of enterprises, are justifiably hostile to each other. When that truth is recognized by all of us we shall be far along the path of our destiny. That it is recognized by some is rlaeady apparent.

Money is the one fluid exponent by which the efforts of men may be measured and the fruits of their labor marketed. Every human activity, including those of labor unions, would be dissipated without management. Every human experience through all the thousands of years recorded history proves that only when Men and Management and Money are in harmony and working to a common end does the world realy move forward.

Sometimes Men in war with Money have gone to destructive lengths. Sometimes Money in its arrogance has thought to insure its own safety by virtually holding Men in bondage. Either process resulted only in disaster to humanity and always in the end it remained for calm and ordered sanity of Management to set the world again upon the forward road, by bringing Men and Money into step.

It is the happy fortune of this Western World to demonstrate that the perpetuation of warefare between Men and Money is insanity. For here no man may truthfully point to one citizen and say, "He represents Labor because he works, while that other citizen does not represent Labor because he does not work." Here we all work. And any who attempt to set up the proposition that in this country there must be a definite and permanent line of demarcation between one group and another of these workers is merely trying to take us back to the caste system of the old world.

Kansas farmers now wear wrist watches. Maybe that's what's the matter with Kansas.

NERVE AS WELL AS BRAINS NEEDED TO MAKE A SUCCESSFUL PRESIDENT SENATOR FROM MONTANA DECLARES

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, July 6—"Besides brains, it takes nerve to make a successful president," said Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana.

The Butte lawmaker was philosophizing relative to the narrow squeaks and actual defeats President Hoover has experienced in a senate which every politician had supposed certain to give him safe majorities on all questions he might express a preference in.

"As a member of the committee on agriculture, having no farm relief plan of my own, I was ready", continued the senator, "to accept the president's. I took it for granted that he had one. I though he made it plain enough during the campaign that he had.

"However, we were doubtful of his position on the debenture suggestion.

"We sent a sub-committee to him to inquire. Returning, it reported that he had no especial program—did not consider it his function, as chief executive, to initiate legislation—we must put our debenture query up to the agriculture department's experts."

"We did. They indorsed the plan. We put it into the bill.

"Not until then did the president declare his opposition to it, and give his reasons—which seemed to me inconclusive.

"By that time more than half the senators were committed to the proposition, on which they evidently felt that the president had dodged responsibility too long to justify them in changing; so they voted for it.

"He could readily have prevented them from doing so—and avoided a senate defeat for himself—by answering, 'No', when we asked our question."

"The White House did recommend repeal of the national origins law, but with no vigor.

"Repeal would have been assured if the president had made it an issue.

"He allowed opposition to his weakly-worded request to take its course—and was beaten again."

"It is impossible not to believe that he favored the Borah resolution, intended to limit tariff increases to farm products. As it was, it was defeated by only one vote. The president could have had several more, and passed it, that easily"—the senator snapped his fingers, not energetically, either.

"Everything in his attitude," proceeded the Montana solon, "indicates perfect realisation of the unwisdom of a general tariff boost at a juncture when the development of our export trade obviously is so vital to us.

"Nevertheless our high tariff element continues to insist that, in reality, the president is wholeheartedly for its program of a stiff, wide-spread awvance in our industrial, as well as agricultural rates—and he says nothing to discount these arguments."

"Possibly the senate will scale down some of the representatives' highest industrial tariff figures. It may do its best to help the president in spite of his reticence.

"But even so, there will have to be a conference over the bill then, between the senate and the representatives; and the conference committee will write into the measure whatever rates it chooses.

"Some folk predict that the president will veto it, if its final form is too extravagant. I venture the guess that, rather than risk a fight inside his party, he will sign whatever bill is put up to him."

GROWING BEARDS WRECK COUNTLESS MARRIAGES, OPINES DOCTOR PETERS

BY LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

Of Interest to Men

"DEAR DOCTOR: I am a young man of 30, who has a very heavy growth of dark beard on his face. Shaving every morning does not seem to be of sufficient use, because my face becomes covered with a growth of dark stubble hair in about six hours. Do you think the continued use of peroxide of hydrogen on my face, to make the hair lighter, will be of any use in my case?" "R"

A short time ago I had a letter from a man who accused me of never writing anything of interest to men. When I answered him, I called his attention to the fact that overweight and underweight weren't particularly prerogatives of women, and many other things that I wrote on—heart and kidney disease, etc. —were not sex conscious.

Now, while Mr. R's problem is of specific interest to men, I hold it of specific interest to women, also, especially married women. I believe more marriages are wrecked by growing beards than anything else! Certainly there is nothing that irritates a woman more than an unshaved man. The inventor of the safety-razor deserves a niche in the Hall of Fame.

Every man should shave at least once a day, as regularly as he washes his teeth and takes his morning bath. It helps the morale, and has more than a little to do with success in all walks of life. You may have to shave twice a day, R., especially if you are going out in the evening. Lots of men do.

Those who claim that their skins are irritated by frequent shaving will get over this irritation if they keep it up. Not shaving frequently enough is the cause of the irritation, anyway. The beard grows so long and tough that a shave is a shock.

Peroxide might help you, R., and there will be no harm from its use if your skin is not sensitive to it. Peroxide is a good antiseptic.

Now, back to my knittin'.

"Dear Doctor: A little less than four months ago I weighed 265 pounds. I am 5 feet 9 inches tall, and have been around 265 for 15 years. I certainly was a sight. Am only 36 years old. I got your pamphlet and bought a doctor scale and started right in to Peter-size and, dear Doctor, in the four months I have lost 80 pounds. I now weigh 185, almost back to normal! I feel wonderful, for I never could walk before and now I can walk five or six miles a day. I have lost 14 inches in the bust, 14 around the waist and 14 from the hips. No one knows me. My face is firm, and I look and feel great. Used to wear a 54 dress, now a 40 fits, and it's a pleasure to shop. The thinks all belong to you. All the time I dieted, I never felt faint or a real hunger for food. I cannot express how happy I am. If someone would offer me millions, as poor as I am, I would not exchange or go back to where I was. MRS. S."

Fine, Mrs. S., fine.

You reduced rather rapidly, but the combination of your reducing diet and the daily five-mile walk account for it. Ordinarily we do not advise more than two pounds' loss a week (except for the first three or four days when, if you go on the liquid diet, you may lose 5 to 10 pounds.) But as you have felt nothing but good effects from so rapid a loss, it apparently was all right for you.

I can well imagine your joy at being able to get into a size 40 dress instead of 54.

Thank you for letting us know your good results. I'm running your letter as an inspiration for other fat sisters (and brothers!) to get busy.

Those who need instructions on how to reduce and gain may have our pamphlet on the subject by following coupon.

Today's Poem

DIVINA COMMEDIA

Oft hae I seen at some cathedral door
A laborer, pausing in the dust and heat,
Lay down his burden, and with reverent feet
Enter, and cross himself, and on the floor
Kneel to repeat his paternoster o'er;
Far off the noises of the world retreat;
The loud vociferations of the street
Become an indistinguishable roar.
So, as I enter here from day to day,
And leave my burden at this minister gate,
Kneeling in prayer, and not ashemed to pray,
The tumult of the time disconsolate
To inarticulate murmurs dies away,
—Henry W. Longfellow (1807-1882)

On the Fence with The Seer

Since the beginning of time progress has wrought many changes upon the earth and its peoples, carrying with it in its undaunted stride many things of traditional and sentimental value to the races, but always onward for progress grows and expands with time.

The South Plains has been touched by the magic wand of the Fairy of Progress about as strong as any—The spacious empire that once rumbled with the thunder of countless hoofs has yielded to a finer and more profitable purpose. Our great ranches and vast herds have vanished as the Indian and buffalo before them. The great Staked Plains of Texas that once abounded with greasewood and mesquite have yielded to the will of men of vision, men of faith.

Today the observer will see a land of fine farms and a progressive people. He will see busy bustling cities where smoke stacks are not rusting from idleness. In the midst of this mirage of Progress stands Lubbock, the hub of this vast agricultural empire—a city of fine schools and churches—the home of the Texas Technological college, an institution of learning that has drawn students from practically every state in the union and from several foreign countries—a city of fine hotels and a wholesale center of commendable merit—all realized through the tireless efforts of its builders—it stands today in its making the marvel city of the Llano Estacade.

BUT DON'T TELL THEM

HAMILTON, N. Y.—The next time one of them bawls you out, you can take satisfaction that the traffic cop or policeman has the brain of a 13-year-old child. Dr. Arnold A. Laird, professor of psychology at Colgate university in researches in co-ordination of mental scores, found that policemen possess more mentality than their superiors, sergeants and lieutenants, but are classed with bricklayers and vaudeville actors with the brain of a child of 13 years.

SIDE GLANCES By George Clark

GOING PLACES AND SEEING THINGS

Aboard the packet boat Betsy Ann on the Ohio River—Here, 20 miles from nowhere on the Ohio River, I'm learning for the first time this season what the Yanks and the Giants are doing.

There's something disturbingly modern about sitting in the archaic pilot house of an old packet boat listening to the baseball results coming in over the radio. Now and then, a crew member drifts up to inquire about the score. And pulling in at Pt. Pleasant, a key spot on the river in the Civil War, I find the home town boys, garbed in overalls, standing in front of the Farmers' hardware store listening to the big league results.

After a while the latest jazz numbers come across the air from a Broadway cabaret or hotel. I find the young men of the sleepy riverside whistling song hits quite unknown to my Broadway-broke ears.

And at New Martinsville, W. Va., three snappy girlies board the boat for a brief ride. They Charleston into the cabin, light cigarets and demand the latest Rudy Vallee records. And do they know their vo-do-de-o-do? And how! Furthermore, they talk about a midnight showing of a movie in some more metropolitan point down the river. Will Broadway never cease?

Doubtless they were talking of Huntington. For here is a river city with a metropolitan air that even Cleveland or Cincinnati cannot beat. That is, the city is laid out like a real city and the shops look smart. The girls and women are more smartly dressed than you'll see in places many times the size. They tell me there that in the entire middle west, including Chicago, you'll find no more Fifth Avenuesque femmes.

Somehow the South seems to move in at Pt. Pleasant. Old mammies stand at the corners wearing colorful sunbonnets. On a bench in the court-house square sit two old fellows of the "southern Colonel suh," variety. Their long white mustaches droop toward their chins and they wear picturesque wide-brimmed "old colonel" hats.

At the waterfront are a gang of youngsters lifted from the pages of Huck Finn and Tom Sawyer. They have taken over as a cave the dark recess made by hoisting a barge up on jacks. There in loose, huge straw hats and overalls they sit smoking cigarets and being as bad as their young imaginations can conceive. They even play cards and one has an old corncob pipe.

All along the river front throngs of youngsters have hung their clothes on a hickory limb and splash in the ol' swimming hole. Other kids sit on wharf boats fishing with willow sticks. At East Liverpool, shortly before midnight, a handsome lad, wearing a battered hat of flaring blue, tries to stow away.

On the lower deck the negro crew lie asleep in the shadow of the landing plank. Thy fall asleep where they may, like tired children, with anchors, crates, and bags for pillows. Now and then they sing . . . but softly. "Whiskey" and "Lame Foot," suddenly break into the strangest 'blues' I have ever heard. Broadway would eat it up.

Estelle panted. "She brought two men with her and she's going all through the house, gathering up things she says belong to her—"

"Mrs. Morgan may have anything that belongs to her," Nan heard her own voice answering. "Naturally she will want her clothes and other personal belongings. Please give her all the help she needs."

"I ain't going to help her, after the way she talked to me! Treating me like I was dirt under her feet," the maid sobbed. "And if you knew what she's done, you wouldn't ask me to!"

"Estelle!" Nan reproved her sharply. "You must realize I can't let you talk this way—"

"Well, I guess somebody's got to tell you!" Estelle retored. "She's rented that furnished cottage right across the street, and she's going to live there. She told Curtis so, right in front of me. She said she wanted to be near, so he could spend all his afternoons with her. And she said—"

"Please, Estelle!" Nan interrupted sharply, but automatically.

She was not conscious of the act of hanging up the receiver, nor of rising from her chair and walking toward the window of her office. But she might have done these things, for after a while she heard herself whimpering. Somehow, during those first black moments, she had fallen and struck her head against the sharp corner of the radiator cover.

"I must have fainted," she marveled dully. Dizzily, with terrific effort, she pulled her body into a sitting position, then dropped her head into her icy, violently trembling hands.

It was thus that Kathleen O'Connor, bringing in a freshly typed brief which Nan had dictated that morning, found her employer.

"Oh, my goodness!" Miss O'Connor cried shrilly, dropping the brief and sinking to her knees beside the bowed little figure on the floor. "What is the matter, Mrs. Morgan? Has anything happened? Are you sick?"

"I'm—all right," Nan answered, lifting dazed, blind eyes. "Just—a little dizzy. If you'll give me your hand. Thank you. No, I don't want any water. I'm all right. Please go away, Miss O'Connor."

When the frightened secretary had closed the door reluctantly behind her, Nan, at her desk again, lifted the receiver of her telephone and called a number.

"Estelle? Mrs. Morgan speaking. If Mrs. Iris Morgan has not left the house yet, will you please take down her portrait from above the fireplace and give it to her?"

"She said she wasn't going to take it. She said she wanted it to stay where it "is, Estelle babbled. "She's gone now, anyway—"

"Then," Nan said, "please tell Big Pat to take it to—her house across the street—and leave it."

Agricultural Independence Needed On South Plains

Prosperity Of This Section Dependent On The Farmers

Lubbock County Agricultural Agent Urges A Plains-wide Effort At Bettering Conditions

BY DAVID F. EATON
Lubbock County Agricultural Agent

An act of independence results from being suppressed and comes from determined effort to force liberation through years of cumulative growth.

Agriculture has been fettered to some extent, not purposely by forces without, but because of lack of coordinated effort within its own ranks. Well-aimed props from the outside have been stood against her walls, in the form of suggestions, sound perhaps and honestly made, but failed to penetrate the wall.

Texas Settled By It

It was the pursuit of agricultural independence that has been responsible for our Texas of today. Those early Texans who followed Stephen F. Austin and other colonizers, came from older states in search of more freedom—economic freedom on the farm. They are the ones who settled East Texas and builded that section.

Today, the Plains country is the only great section of the United States that offers agricultural independence. East Texas lands have become worn. Their cost makes profits difficult. The farmer, who is seeking a start and dreaming of a home of his own, faces a wall too mighty to scale easily. So he comes to this area, where land is new and price per acre as within reach.

Home Owning Is the Aim

It is the aim of all free men to become home owners. With the farmer, home means a farm. With sufficient money to make his down payment, he comes here, bringing perhaps sufficient tools and implements and horses and a few head of livestock, in addition to a few household goods. And he toes in debt for the greater price of the land he chooses to work.

Until this farmer has made enough from his land by his and his family's labor to pay off the mortgage, there can be no real agricultural independence with him.

And, it is this type of farmer that is settling the South Plains. This is a new country. It is being settled by pioneer stock, same as East Texas was some 60 or more years ago.

Needs Are Mentioned

2.—Independence from Haphazard Methods of Business.

4.—Independence from Community Estrangement.

The first problem, Individualism, is one not often recognized by those who desire to give aid to agriculture. The farmer, because he must live to himself is more or less pitted against, not only the elements of weather and other conditions in growing his crops, but this very condition gives him the viewpoint of combating everything and everybody else in his continual struggle.

Does Not Have Service Clubs

The farmer does not have the benefit of the city service clubs where he may rub elbows with others in similar endeavor. He can not obtain the help of kindred ideas in kindred problems. And because of this, it is necessary that rural life must make its impress on the government. Industry, Labor and Agriculture, must balance.

The only cooperation possible with the agriculturist is with fellow farmers. To betters his road to independence, he must begin at the starting point—the farm. For business men to be of any assistance they must realize this. They should get acquainted with the farmer's viewpoint. If they help any at all, it can be only through the farmer himself.

There is a big way in which business men can aid, an ethat is bettering the Faulty Business Methods. By rubbing elbows in true fellowship, the business man can explain to the farmer how before he begins his agricultural year, he can check up on details. A big need is accurate and definite information on each project, on soil, seed, crops, livestock, equipment. This is in a practice of thrift.

Suggestions from Other Experience

Here it is that the business man can offer help. He can tell how he invoices everything at the beginning or ending of a year and of how he makes an accounting of everything. The planning of a year's program, wisely, on a balanced system, to make a completely finished job of farming. The methods of the merchant can be adapted to the farm.

Debt and Mortgage

These two words are big. They are both powerful and awful. To make the tenant free of debt is to bring independence to him. It is to make him unhampered, cheerful, a good citizen, zealous church member, an earnest supporter of public schools. It is to make him a home owner—the ideal situation.

Misunderstanding on the part of both the rural and the urban citizen is the only thing that is responsible for Community Estrangement.

Poverty Is Enemy of All

As poverty breeds discontent, suspicion, jealousy and anarchy, it is the one thing that both the resident of the farm and of the city needs must combat.

What is needed is more cooperation of these two classes in combating such a condition. It is an old truism: As prospers the farmer, so prospers the nation.

To bring the truth nearer home, we might reverse the statement and say: "When farmers of the South Plains are experiencing hard times, business is poor." So, to bring agriculture to the standard of continual economic independence, we are stabilizing business. And it all begins and ends with the individual on the farm.

True Cooperation Needed

As in every other line of human endeavor, the farmer can be depended upon to do the best he can do, under the circumstances confronting him. Where business men, and all those interested sincerely in bettering these circumstances, can be of telling service, is where true cooperation exists.

No one can understand another's problem until the other fellow's individual viewpoint is understood. This can only come through personal contact, without any semblance of patronization and with tactful approach.

Concrete examples are seen in localities where livestock improvement is being accomplished. This is done through bull circles, cow finance companies and similar methods of increasing both the character and quantity. Also, the governments' extension service is a sample. It is the result of agriculture making its impress upon the government.

Business Men Aid Projects

The urban citizenship aids when movements for better roads, more schools and better churches, are promulgated throughout a region.

As I see it, there is an economic necessity for the business men of the South Plains to get closer in touch with the farmers, before agricultural independence can be approached. We have every phase of farm problems, from the tenant who is saving toward making his start, to the man who has paid for his farm and is established.

Not until the South Plains is filled with farm owners, at least with the large percentage of farmers listed as owners, can agricultural independence becom a rality. If our chain of progress is to be a mighty one, every link must be welded together. Our problem is to inspect every link and work out means of strengthening the weak ones.

Stowaway Back Home With Dad

Arthur Schreiber, stowaway in French fliers' plane Yellow Bird on transatlantic flight, comes back home to Portland, Me., via New York, his father, Morris, a tailor, greeting him and saying his son would not indorse cigarettes, go into the movies or vaudeville "or make a fool of himself."

Hints For The Farm

(By U. S. Department of Agriculture)

Ants are killed more effectively by a weakly-poisoned syrup than by strong poisons. A good mixture is made from 9 pints of water and 9 pounds of granulated sugar to which is added 6 grams of crystalized tartaric acid and 8.4 grams of benzoate of soda. Boil slowly for 30 minutes and cool. Meanwhile, dissolve 15 grams of sodium arsenate in a half pint of hot water and when cool mix with the syrup. Add 1 1-4 pounds of honey and mix thoroughly.

Ewes that have lambed should be kept in the lambing pens for two or three days and then put in a pen by themselves where they can be given special feed and care. After lambing they should be fed lightly at first and put on full feed the third or fourth day. They should be fed heavily enough to produce a large flow of milk for the lambs. Heavy-milking ewes can make good use of from one to two pounds of grain a day.

Where weevils and grain moths are prevalent, one pound of moth balls, or napthalene, put in each bushel of seed corn will prevent injury from the insects without harming the corn. Tight, mouseproof receptacles should be used, or the fumes will escape and do no good. Napthalene should not be used on grain intended for human or animal consumption.

A union of farm groups is necessary to successful farming, according to Chris L. Christensen, economist of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. "The American farm of today," he says, "is no longer a self-sufficing unit. Group action is required in both the purchase of supplies and the marketing of products. Co-operative organization enables farmers to apply modern business methods to marketing their products."

Livestock diseases often get onto the farm because of poor fences. Woven wire makes the most practical hog-lot fence. Stock must be protected from intrusion of infected animals by fences. The durability of a wire fence depends more on the corner posts than anything else. They must be securely set if the wire is to be kept taut.

One of the big problems in "backyard" poultry keeping is to make sure the limited quarters are clean and free of contamination. If only mature stock is kept and no chicks raised the hens may be confined to the laying house throughout the year. They should not be overcrowded, the houses should be well lighted and ventilated, cool in summer and open to direct sunlight.

Alfalfa for market should be cut when one-tenth to one-fourth in bloom, or when new growth starts from the crown irrespective of bloom. At this stage of maturity the leaves constitute from 45 to 55 per cent of the total weight of the plants and the tems have not become too hard or woody. Little, if any, increase of tonnage is gained by letting the crop stand longer.

Musty, spoiled or dirty feed may cause the horse to get "off feed" and become unfitted for work. Trash or dirt should be removed from the grain box before each meal and chaff and refuse cleaned from the manger before the night feeding of hay. At no time should spoiled feed be offered.

Time and labor in cultivating corn can be saved by using 2, 3 and 4-row cultivators now on the market for use with general purpose tractors. Nearly all such tractors now available are designed to facilitate short and quick turning at the ends of the rows without injury to the crop.

If the screw-worm fly makes wounds on livestock an application of benzene, known commercially as benzol, is effective in killing the larvae and also has a septic action on the wound which makes it less attractive to the adult flies. Pinetar oil of the commercial grade or one slightly heavier is the best and cheapest substance for repelling the flies and preventing reinfestation.

New Poultry From Cross-Breedings

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (AP)—Cross breeding of Leghorns and Brahmas to produce a line of poultry with the best qualities of each is progressing favorably under the direction of Dr. John C. Weldin, professor of bacteriology, animal breeding and pathology at the Rhode Island State College experimental station.

The Leghorn is light in weight and is a high producer of eggs. The Brahma is very heavyy and a comparatively low egg producer. The experiment of cross-breeding was begun five years ago and since then, Dr. Weldin reports, a strain possessing the desired qualities of both has been obtained.

Dr. Weldin points out, however, that it will take some time to fix the strain.

BOLL WEEVIL WAR ON

JASPER, Texas, July 6 (AP)—An intensive war on the cotton boll weevil here has decreased infection from 6 per cent to 2 per cent within a period of two weeks, according to S. W. Monroe, county agent.

Plainview After A Milk Plant, Also

Cow Census Of Hale County Scheduled Soon, Reports From Plainview Declare; 30 Mile Radius

Following the visit of F. H. Douthitt, president of the Douthitt Engineering company, of Chicago, to Plainview recently, announcement comes from the Plainview chamber of commerce that a sow survey will be made of the territory within a 30-mile radius of that city. This census will be done soon, it is announced.

Commenting on Douthitt's visit, the Plainview chamber of commerce publication, "Plainview", says, in part:

Confers With Business Men

F. H. Douthitt, president of the Douthitt Engineering company, of Chicago, who built the first whole milk plant in Texas, that at Marshall, was in Plainview June 17, in conference with the Board of City Development members, the chamber of commerce and agriculture directors. Douthitt has exclusive privilege for the Gray-Jensen process of powdering milk, and besides Marshall he has recently completed a plant at Tyler, and is to build one at Mount Pleasant.

"Douthitt outlined his plan of building the plants. He takes half of the stock and expects the communities to put up the other half. The plants cost $200,000. He told local business men that he would not talk trade at Plainview until a survey of the number of cows in the vicinity of Plainview was made. Such a survey would take in a territory of 30-mile radius from Plainview.

"While in Plainview he was shown over the country and went away enthusiastic over the dairying possibilities here, especially the immense production of dairy feeds."

California Dairymen Gain Millions By Better Methods of Improvement

—CALIFORNIA DAIRYMEN—9A.

Owners of dairy cows in California have added $64,297,051 to their income over a period of seven years by raising the average butterfat production per cow for the entire State from 183 pounds in 1920 to 230.2 pounds in 1927, says B. H. Crocheron, director of cooperative extension work in California, in a statement submitted to the United States Department of Agriculture.

At the beginning of the effort in 1920 the California extension service set up as a goal to be reached in 10 years, a State average production of 265 pounds of butterfat per cow. Seven years' concentration on a dairy improvement program, including proper feeding, breeding, and culling, has brought them well on their way to accomplishment of the goal within the time set.

Cows Tested Increase 40,000

During the seven years the number of cows under test in the regularly organized cow-testing of dairy-herd-improvement associations increased from 30,000 to over 70,000. The work of these associations is the basis for the improvement program. From the testing records is derived the information necessary for proper feeding, breeding, and the detection of unprofitable animals in the herd.

Other factors in bringing up the average in butterfat production have been competitions both in individual production and community records, efficiency studies of individual herds, use of better breeding stock, improvement of health of herds, provision of better facilities for care and management of herds and the introduction of better management methods and better stock through the dairy work of boys and girls who are members of 4-H clubs. Only the sustained effort of the extension staff and dairy cattle owners on a long-time program, however, Director Cocheron believes has made it possible to thus move forward the entire production of a State and collectively influence the average of over half a million animals.

Large Sales By New York Producers of Milk Bring Millions In Profits Yearly

With gross sales of $85,648,162 for the year ending March 31, 1929, the Dairymen's League Co-operative association, Inc., New York city, established a new record for the second largest farmers' co-operative in the United States.

First place is held by the California Fruit Growers' exchange, Los Angeles, which had sales of more than $93,000,000 during its last business year.

Members Paid Big

Of the gross amount received by the Dairymen's league $65,678, 800, or 76.7 per cent yas paid to member milk producers.

A total of 2,484,941,739 pounds of milk was handled by the association. Thirty eight plants were taken over or opened during the year, ten of which were newly built plants constructed by the association's engineering department. An average net pool prive of $2.59 per 100 pounds of 3.5 milk was paid to participating member producers at the base zone, 201-210 miles from New York city.

During the year 6,464 membership contracts were accepted, making the total participating membership 43,067.

What Would You Do With Million?

Local People Have Different Ideas About What To Do With Cool Million, Reporter Discovers

BY LUCILLE BARR SMITH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

"If I had a hundred million dollars I'd give you a million," is the remark some generous person made to me the other day.

Of course my reply was that I sincerely wished that he had the hundred million dollars, for if he would be so generous as to give me one million I would be very well satisfied.

Do With a Million?

"Well if you had a million dollars what would you do with it? If I had it to give to you I'd like to know how you would spend it," this generous person asked me.

"Well I'd spend it all right! I wouldn't let it lie idle to collect taxes. I'd prepare to enjoy life in the way you read about. But I wouldn't be selfish, a million dollars would be enough for more than one person, so first I'd hunt up about a half a dozen or so destitute families and educate the children so they could amount to something more than their parents had. I would invest some of it so if a rainy day came I would have it, and then I'd start in to spend what was left. I'd buy a big car, a pile of good looking clothes, a nice house and then I'd see all the world I could," was my answer to him.

"What would you do with your ninety-nine million?" I next asked him.

Never Thought of It

"I don't know. I never had thought about it. Why don't you ask some of these folks around town what they would do with it?"

And so I started out. Here is what a few of those I saw said they would do with a million dollars.

Miss Floy Pryor, bookkeeper and stenographer, said, "I'd buy me a car and a lot of pretty clothes and start in to see the country. But the first thing I would do would be to quit work. I wouldn't spend all of it on myself. I would like to help out some one whom I thought really needed it and who would appreciate what I did for him."

Wouldn't Try for Two

Spencer A. Wells declared, "I wouldn't try to make it two million if I had a million dollars, like so many people do. I would travel and enjoy it. But if I had it I wouldn't start out right away. I would get my business straightened out and in the hands of someone I thought could handle it for me. When anyone has been in business for several years as I have, he can't just pick up and leave all at once.

"I have no desire to see the Orient," Mr. Wells stated. I would like to see some of the gay centers of the world and I would like to see some of the quiet corners as well. I don't believe I would spend it just because I had it but would really enjoy it."

R. W. Walker, local contractor, said, "I would give most of it away. I get more pleasure out of watching other people spend money than I do in spending it. I like to give a group of little boys a dime a piece and then watch them enjoy it. Of course I'd like to buy several things I have always wanted but could never afford, but I believe I would get more pleasure out of my million just watching other people enjoying it."

Would Take Pictures

Miss Mary Carter, bookkeeper, declared, "If I had a million dollars I would like to be a newspaper photographer. Just travel all around over the world and take pictures of interesting things and interesting people. I should like to buy an airplane and go to Africa on a big game hunt, too. Oh, there are just lots of things I could do and would like to do if I had a million dollars but if I really had it I think I would be a newspaper photographer."

Most of the people I talked to didn't know what they would do if they had a million dollars all their own. "I'd probably faint and never come to if I suddenly acquired a million dollars," said one.

"Oh, we say we could do this and that but if any of us ever really got the million I am sure few would do just what we think we would do," declared another.

"I'd pay my debts as far as it would go," was the answer of one.

England has started a campaign against petting parties in autos on side streets in cities, and are fining car owners for parking their machines without lights.

Crop Conditions Are Better Than In 1928, Experiment Farm Head States

More Moisture In Subsoil, Better Stands Of Crops, Cleaner Fields Are Seen Everywhere, Jones Says

All conditions considered, crops of the South Plains are in much better shape now than they were at the same time last year, according to Don L. Jones, superintendent of the State Agricultural Experiment station, located three miles east of Lubbock.

The heavy rains in May, at the time of planting, and the fair weather obtaining since crops have been growing, added to a good fall and winter seasoning of moisture in the sub-soil, have been responsible for the present outlook, Mr. Jones declares.

Crops Are Ahead of Last Year

"As a whole, all our crops are ahead of last year," Jones says, "in the matter of growth, stand and cleanliness of fields. With more subsoil moisture than last year, we have not had the bad effects of hot winds like we experienced last year. With a good rain everything promises to do fine."

There are a few lice showing up in cotton fields, Jones announces, but their damage depends on the weather. So far no appreciable damage has been reported from any section because of these.

Fields Are Kept Cleaner

"Farmers seem to have been more attentive at keeping their fields clean of grass and weeds," he says, "than heretofore. It is true that they have had much more favorable weather in which to work, but they have accomplished more than before."

It is a long time until harvest and many things may or may not happen, Jones warns, declaring there can, of course, not be any sort of a prediction as to what crops will be. A rain of from one-half to three-quarters of an inch would do wonders on all crops now, as it is needed to soften the soil around roots of the plants. With this a very rapid growth would immediately result.

Feeding Baby Beeves

Chicken Farm Is Started On $4.20

BROOKHAVEN, Miss. (AP)—Starting in 1927 with a total capital of six acres and $4.20, J. D. Merritt has developed a poultry farm of 31 acres, 1,200 White Leghorn hens and 6,000 baby chicks. He values his investment at $15,000. One day alone his sale of eggs totaled $90. He also owns 14 dairy cows.

When he started, Merritt invested his $4.20 in baby chicks, raising 21 hens from the lot. He got 4,196 eggs from the 21 hens in 11 months. He turned most of his income back into his farm. The business has grown until Merritt predicts that it will be the largest in Mississippi within three years.

Need For Organized Charities In Lubbock Stressed

Various Organization Heads, County And City Officials Point Out Great Problem Here; City Has Many Cases

Annual Budget For United Charities Work Advocated By Men; Milk-Ice Fund Doing Much

BY MRS. W. A. McGEE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

PLAYING the role of the "Good Samaritan," to the fellow who needs a friend and who is down in the world, financially,—is the aim and purpose of the organized charities working throughout the length and breadth of the earth,—and a resume of the work accomplished this year by the various organizations in Lubbock, reveals that much lasting good has been done by these organizations including the Salvation Army, Federated Missionary Society, American Legion, and the Red Cross and others together with the charity work done through both the city and county, according to local workers here.

"The lack of organization of the charity work done here is keenly felt in Lubbock," said former County Judge Charles Nordyke and vice president of the Salvation Army, recently. "What we need" continued Mr. Nordyke, "is an annual budget—covering the work of the United Charities here,—this fund to be known as a community chest fund. Such organization would eliminate a lot of overhead expense now necessary to carrying on the work through the many separate organizations.

Salvation Army Works

Thus far the Salvation Army, however, has depended on its street collections and a few individual pledges to carry on its work here, the which is by no means sufficient to finance the work it finds to do. However, there are many unscrupulous people who make calls for aid and it takes a keen eye to watch them, and almost a heart of stone to turn away many of them—as, they are professionals and know how to play up a subtle "hard luck" story, explained Mr. Nordyke.

According to the Federated Missionary Societies' social service committees, Mrs. Tom Foster in talking on the plans of the hospital committee, said, "It is our hope to establish through the social service department of the Federation, a bed in each hospital for those who are unable to pay for such accomodations." The Federation's charity work to be carried on among the local Mexicans who are in need of a school building and equipment is under the direction of a committee headed by Mrs. J. C. Granberry. While its milk and ice committee is headed by Mrs. W. T. Milam who is working jointly with the Avalanche-Journal. Many sick children and needy families are being supplied the summer necessities of milk and ice through the milk and ice fund, and collection bottles placed in local stores and offices are helping to swell the fund which also is being subscribed to liberally by local people and business firms, it was brought out.

Legion Aids Men

Charles Whitacre, commander of the Allen Brothers' American Legion Post in Lubbock said, "We have had numerous cases this year where we have helped ex-service men and their families who were in distress. We have helped something like 400 ex-service men this year in getting loans on their government policies. Also we have helped several families where the father had died and helped several such families to collect their insurance carried by deceased," according to Mr. Whitacre, "the local Post which has 124 members, has as its motto, 'Service.'"

Mayor Harley D. Woods, in speaking of the charity work done by the city, explained that the city government does not provide for a general charity fund, however, it does provide for a city health officer, Dr. J. W. Rollo being the present city physician. Mr. Wood declared that frequently people appeal to the city for help and are given individual and private donations, with the chief of police and others making up a little fund, simply responding to the call of suffering humanity.

City Furnishes Work

He further explained, that occasionally the city furnished work for people who are able to work,—but, in no case is the city's tax money used for charity. Such cases are pointed to the Salvation Army, the American Legion or the Red Cross or other organization for help. "My observation regarding the charity work here, is that Lubbock does not have so many calls for aid, considering everything," declared the mayor. "Yet, we do find that a lot of people here, as elsewhere, throw themselves on the public for help—people in other words who have no right to expect such aid. I really think that our local charity work should be consentrated, as in that way we could cut down a lot of the overhead expense incurred by the many organizations functioning separately," said Mr. Woods.

Poor House Needed

Regarding the charity work done by the county, Robert Bean, county judge, explained, "The county commissioners court makes provision for the support of paupers and indigents who have been residents of the county six months and the state one year. Lubbock county has no improved poor farm because thus far it has found it easier and less expensive to care for its charity cases, by placing them in individual homes. In the near future, however, they will require a permanent place and a caretaker to keep it. Plans are being drawn now for such building." Mr. Bean further stated that 12 or 15 persons were cared for by the county during each of the winter months, and added that most of these were elderly people who were unable to work and therefore, wholly dependent on charity—having no relatives to care for them. He declared that the county is often called upon to feed local residents, who are under quarantine, and in addition to these we are called on by people who are out of both, work and money—who have no means of support. For such cases the statute makes no provision, said Mr. Bean, "and $10,000 to $15,000 could be spent every year instead of the approximate $5,000 which the county expends on local charity. The county buries an average of 2 persons per month, at a cost totaling from $25 to $35 each,—with the burial plat of course provided in the potters' field. The county has no adequate means of taking care of emergency cases that arise from time to time, and Lubbock has no organized charities to avoid duplication of much of its work," concluded Mr. Bean.

"One of the main things the Red Cross finds to do, is to aid in a quiet building way those needing help, so that they themselves will hardly realize that they are rebuilding their lives," so said Miss Vera Murfee, in charge of the local Red Cross work here. This year, as in other years, the Red Cross has aided a great many orphan children and children who were not orphans. In numerous cases throughout the year, milk and foods have been supplied other families in direst need, and in other instances where the parents were taken through death or other misfortune, the Red Cross has found desirable homes for the children thus orphaned. While in still other instances wayward girls have been counseled with and quietly returned to the home of their parents.

Fossil Beds Found In Ceta Canyon

Canyon Professor Discovers Bed Of Plants And An Ancient Jawbone Of Ancestral Horse In Search

(Special to Avalanche-Journal)

CANYON, July 6.—W. D. Mateer, a member of the faculty of the West Texas State Teachers college, who has been studying the Ceta Canyons near here, has recently discovered a bed of fossil plants and an ancient jaw bone in his search.

The fossil bed is located in the South Ceta Canyons. The plants were round in shape, somewhat like a baseball, but they had fluted sides with grooves running the length of the plant. They also resemble some of the cactus plants, but they grew in swamps instead of on dry land. It is apparent that they grew in an ancient swamp, although they are found five hundred feet above the level of the plain in a slit pocket, and in soft clay fifty feet in idameter in sandstone. Although sand deposits have covered the plants they have been preserved in almost perfect shape. Of the plants collected Mr. Mateer has identified five different varieties, but there are many others left to be identified.

Another speciment of interest is the 10-inch jawbone of an ancestral horse found near the bed of fossil plants. The formation where this bone was found is known as the equus bed; this bed contains large quantities of fossil remains.

In this same place there are numerous other varieties of bones and plants that Mr. Mateer expects to identify soon.

ON TIME 11 YEARS

WINCHESTER, Va., (AP).—Emma Charlene Grim, who was graduated from high school here this year, never received a mark lower than "B" in any of her subjects during 12 years attendance. The records show that for 11 consecutive years she neither missed a day nor was tardy. She was given a prize by the school board.

Believed to be the largest in the world, a motor lifeboat just built at Cowes, England, is 61 feet long and has cabin accommodations for nearly 50, with room for 200 people on deck in calm weather.

ON AUTO ROW

Despite the fact that the month of June is considered one of the slowest months in the automobile business, several Lubbock dealers disproved this jinx with an unusually good sales record. While in most cases, the month saw the sale of new cars fall off, some few agents raised their standards up to normal by way of concentration on used cars.

Kuykendall Chevrolet and Lubbock Auto company showed the way in sales during the month just past. The Ford dealers delivered 51 new cars and the Chevrolet house 47. This number bettered the sales for the same month in 1928. Thirty-two used cars were sold by the Ford agent during the month of brides. There might have been some significance to this since old shoes and old cars are more likley to be in harmony.

Our point is carried further by the announcement from C. E. Gough that the Gough Motor company delivered 29 used cars during the month of June. Delivery of new cars was also maintained up to standard by the Studebaker-Erskine dealer. Outstanding among the sales of the past week was the delivery of two new machines in one day to the same family. O. W. Sumner, 2221 16th street, took delivery of a Commander "8" Brougham for Mrs. Sumner and a Commander "6" Coupe for himself.

H. G. Decker, state manager of the Interstate Fidelity Building and Loan Association, who has recently taken up his headquarters in Lubbock, purchased a new Dictator "8" Sport Sedan.

J. E. Dickey, associate manager of the Scoggin-Dickey company, local Oakland-Pontiac distributors, returned last week from Amarillo where he attended a district meeting of Oakland and Pontiac dealers. Oklahoma City is the center of the district of which Lubbock is a branch member. Several associate dealers in this immediate territory accompanied the local agent to the confab. Dealers from all sections of the Southwest were in Amarillo July 2 for the meeting.

Two new cars were delivered by the Scoggin-Dickey company during the past week. E. C. London took delivery of a Pontiac Sedan with wire wheels and H. E. Smith a 2-door Pontiac Sedan. Both are Lubbock m—

Public Utility Services Indicate The Kind of Community you Live In

It must either lead in the development of the community or be a burden on its growth and progress.

In providing for further growth of a community a utility expresses its faith by the investment it makes.

We point with pride to the plants of this company on the Plains. We believe each one represents the very latest and most modern electrical plants of the age. The efficiency of the plant operation makes for lower rates.

For dependability we doubt if any section has a more dependable source of electricity than the Plains.

The investments of many millions of dollars in the facilities of our plants indicates more than words the faith this company has in the future of this section.

The great expenditures made by us in the recent months are only the beginning of our plan and determination to maintain such a character of public utility leadership that will encourage growth and development of every community we serve.

Oldsmobile Has Record Business

LANSING, Mich., July 6.—By far the greatest business in its history is reported by Oldsmobile for the first six months of this year, factory officials here announced today. Production and shipments of Oldsmobiles during this period were 34.6 per cent larger than during the same six months in 1928 when all previous high records were surpassed.

From January 1 to June 30 inclusive ther have been 67,389 Oldsmobiles shipped from the factories here as compared to 50,070 shipped during the first half of last year. This increase is confined to Oldsmobiles, factory officials point out, and does not include the thousands of Vikings which have been shipped since this new V-type, eight cylinder companion to the Oldsmobile Six was announced several months ago.

The increase registered by Oldsmobile so far this year is particularly noteworthy inasmuch as it has been made over records established during several years of exceptional progress. This is particularly true of the record made in 1928 when an increase of approximately 60 per cent in the sale of Oldsmobiles was recorded.

Factory officials report that the increased public approval accorded the Oldsmobile Six, as indicated by the sales gains, has been nation-wide with increases noted in every section. This, they say, is attributable to the exceptional performance records established by Oldsmobile last year, the several improvements incorporated in the 1929 Oldsmobile and the new lower prices announced last January made possible by the sales increases.

Hupp Sets Speed Records In Spain

DETROIT, Mich., July 6.—Several hundred Spanish spectators were crowded about the famous Terramar race track, cheering wildly. A white car flashed past, its staccato exhausts muffled as it flew over the finishing tape. The last of three new speed records for stock cars had been established in Spain—by a Hupmobile New Century Eight.

She was the picture transmitted by export officials of the Hupp Motor Car Corporation to the home office last week. Their story told of the certification by the Royal Automobile Club of Spain of three new speed records for the Hupmobile Eight. These were for the 50 and 100 kilometer distance, and for one hour of continuous driving.

All of the specifications contained in the international speed test regulations as set up by the Royal Automobile Club in Spain were followed to the letter. These required that the stock car be equipped with fenders, light, and windscreen or windshield, spare tire and wheels and standard equipment. Sixto Campo, official time keeper of the club, was in personal charge of the racing tests which were made on the Terramar Autodrome near Barcelona. Following the new marks, the car and its motor were completely checked, even the cylinder head being removed so that the pistons and valve dimensions might be checked after the three gruelling drives.

Says Orgatone Restored His Health When Everything Else Had Failed

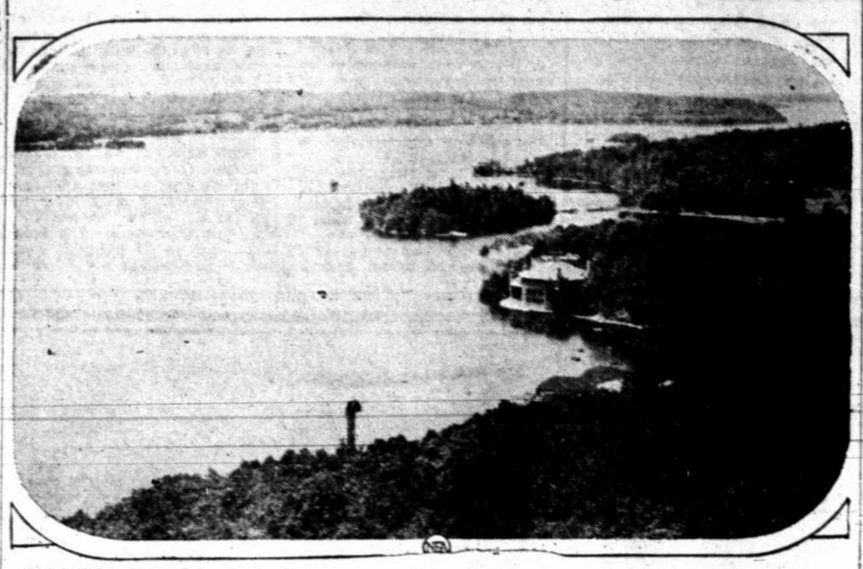

J. H. Martin who owns and operates a shoe shop at 809 Broadway, Lubbock, Texas, and who resides on Ave. H., 1934, talks interestingly of the benefits he has derived from Orgatone. In a conversation with the Orgatone representative he said:

"I was in a general run-down condition and have had a severe chronic case of stomach trouble and indigestion for a long time. I was in such a low spirit, run-down condition my life was miserable. I had no appetite and could hardly eat anything unless I was troubled afterward with severe bloating spells and gas that formed on my stomach. I was constipated and was forced to take strong laxatives most all the time.

"I am getting wonderful results since taking Orgatone. Doctors told me I would have to be operated on for gall trouble, but Orgatone has saved me from this. It, to my notion, has saved me hundreds of dollars and a lot of suffering. I eat anything I want now and it does not bother me at all. Gas does not form on my stomach any more and I have improved with every dose till I feel now like nothing ever was the matter with me. I sleep and rest fine and am not nervous any more. I will praise Orgatone for what it has done for me and I am telling all my friends about it. I am more than glad to give this statement for it has certainly made me feel like a new person."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called patent or secret remedy but a new scientific bile treatment containing no alcohol or other false stimulating drugs and is sold in Lubbock exclusively by the Bowen's Drug Store who are direct laboratory agents. Adv.

Ontario Offers Its Many Myriad Lakes; Tourists May Revel In Nature Haunts

TORONTO, Ont., July 6—Ontario offers a touring trip this summer that claims few rivals in climate, roads, scenery and summer sports.

Particularly appealing is a tour through this Canadian province to ardent Waltons, whose passion it is to wage a furious battle with trout, bass or "muskies." In every section of this territory small streams or quiet little lakes are filled with fish to such an extent that tedious waiting for strikes is almost unknown.

Windsor and Niagara Falls provide the two chief points of entry for motorists coming from Detroit and Buffalo respectively. One can also motor direct from Buffalo over the new Peace bridge to Bridgeburg, Ont. Other points of entry include Sault Ste. Marie, Port Huron and Ogdensburg, N. Y. Then there are the steamer routes from the principal American points to Toronto, Kingston, Cobourg, Port Dover and St. Thomas. Automobiles can be shipped on most of the lake steamers and driven right off the boat at the destination.

License Card Needed

Motorists going to tour any part of Canada are warned to bring their state license cards. This is required to get into Canada. For a one-day tour this card is given to the customs official and returned to its owner when he returns. A stay of two to 60 days requires the filling in of a duplicate customs form on which particulars of the car are recorded, one copy going to the customs authorities and the other to the motorist, who surrenders it on leaving Canada.

Again the state license card is required for identification of the car. Where the tour is extended beyond 60 days, a 30-day extension can be procured without bond or deposit by presenting the original customs permit to any customs official.

Once in Ontario, there are a great many places of interest to visit. Toronto as the provincial capital has the Ontario Parliament buildings. This city also has the tallest buildings in the British empire and is one of the leading cities on the continent. Ottawa is the federal capital, has the Dominion Parliament buildings and the residence of Canada's governor-general.

For scenery Ontario is hard to excel. There are the Thousand Islands at the juncture of Lake Ontario with St. Lawrence river. Coming west are the Rideau lakes, a vast chain of small, beautiful and easily reached lakes, with good summer resort hotels on the main motor highways. Still farther west the Kawartha lakes with good fishing can be quickly reached from the main Windsor-Toronto-Kingston-Montreal highway. Then comes Lake Simcoe and forther north the famous Muskoka lakes and the Georgian bay district.

Good Spots Farther North

There are other beauty spots in Ontario in more remote districts. Algonquin park, North Bay, Sudbury, Manitoulin Island and Sault Ste. Marie offer good roads and beautiful scenery for the motorist. Algonquin park can be reached by motor car but is mainly a cannocist's paradise.

Twenty-nine marked and numbered provincial roads run through the province in addition to numerous county roads not on the main highways. All these main highways pass through big cities and are practically all paved.

Ther are numerous tourist camps with every facility along the principal roads. Most of these are municipally owned with no charge for camping privilege, while others charge 50 cents to $1.

There is open season from May to middle September on most game fish in the province, and with the proximity of good motor roads to the main fishing grounds in the northern part of the province, within easy reach of good hotel accommodation, this is an added attraction. Pickerel, salmon, trout, rainbow and speckled trout, maskinonge and bass are among the game fish available in Ontario's numerous lakes, while later on in the year the shooting season is open.

Ford Demonstrates Endurance, Speed

Winning first and second place in the recent Copenhagen-Paris-Copenhagen, 1440-mile race, the Model A Ford car has again demonstrated to Europe its endurance, speed and durability.

Details of the performance of the two cars have just reached here. From those accounts it was learned that the car winning first place—a Tudor sedan not in any way outfitted for racing—already had been driven 23,000 miles by the owner before the race.

Good As Ever

"My car is now as good as ever," said the owner, Paul Tholstrup, of Roskilde, Denmark, at the conclusion of the race. "I am ready to drive to Paris again without even giving it a once-over."

Eleven cars started the race. Six finished. The most formidable difficulties were encountered. Great stretches of road were deeply rutted and for many miles impassable. For hours the cars had to be driven through fields. Dense fogs made the night driving extremely hazardous. Many detours added to the difficulties.

Nash Shipping Is Elaborate System

KENOSHA, Wis., July 6.—When the greatest of all transportation mediums—the automobile—itself requires transportation, the process used in protecting cars for shipment is one of the most interesting and elaborate systems developed by the motor industry.

More than one and one-half million feet of lumber are used each month in the huge overseas shipping building in Kenosha where the Nash Motors Company has evolved one of the most efficient and painstaking systems of protecting cars for export known in modern shipping. Some sixty trained men send the cars along the progressive assembly which boxes them so perfectly that neither rough handling at seaboard, open roadstead unloading, nor extraordinary conditions sometimes encountered overseas can injure them in any way.

The export cars, bound for points on all the seven seas, are so well housed that their packing cases are often used for garages and house in lands where good lumber is scarce, and travelers in far countries are apt to see the famous Nash nameplate emblazoned on desert huts and seaside cabins in some of the world's most out-of-the-way places.

"Motionless" Fan Turning Rapidly

DETROIT, July 6.—What would you think, if you stepped up to a seemingly motionless electric fan to inspect a printed slip pasted to one of its blades only to have your hat blown off while you read: "This fan is making 2750 revolutions per minute?"

This is one of the surprises arranged for a few guests invited to inspect the new engineering laboratory building of the Graham-Paige Motors corporation. The illusion of motionlessness in the rapidly whirling fan is produced by the stroborama, a marvelous device that enables the engineers to analyze high speed mechanical motion, and to learn exactly how various units and parts behave at different speeds.

Testing Facilities Now Complete

The new Graham-Paige laboratory is one of the most completely equipped research buildings in the automotive industry. In conjunction with the company's new final test building and concrete track for road tests, the new laboratory completes the Graham-Paige facilities for research work in the designing and developing of motor cars, and for the thorough trial of every car before it is shipped from the factory.

The building housing the laboratory is of brick and reinforced concrete, two stories high, 300 feet long, extending along Warren avenue next to the administration building, to which it is connected by a bridge.

Boom Afternoon Tea In Business

PHILADELPHIA, July 6.—Afternoon tea in business circles may become as much of an institution in this country as it now is in England where the busy executive and his employees of both sexes would view its omission in the light of a major calamity. In any event, this is one of the possibilities suggested by the research investigation now being conducted at Temple University, Philadelphia, to determine the effect upon feminine working capacity of a light meal served in mid-afternoon.

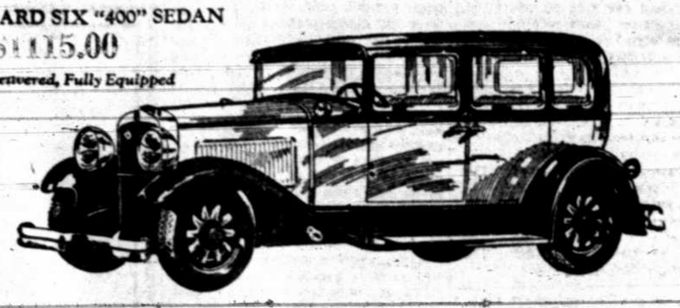

The investigation is being conducted under the direction of Dr. Thaddeus L. Bolton, head of the University's Department of Phychology. "Our studies thus far," Dr. Bolton says, "show that working capacity is comparatively low at the beginning of the office day. The human machine is never, right from the start, ready to deliver it greatest output. Like the race horse, it must go through a warming up process. Then capacity appears to increase until it reaches its maximum at about two-thirty in the afternoon. From that time on, except for a spurt at the end, the curve seems to fall with a fair degree of steadiness until he offices closes in the evening.

Chile bought nine American airplanes in the first quarter of this year.

Chevrolet Gives Best of Service

What Chevrolet Motor company has been doing since the introduction last January of the new six cylinder line to insure ample parts and efficient service to the millions of owners of Chevrolet four cylinder cars, is revealed in a factory statement released today.

Among the adjustments effected to safeguard the continued usefulness of former models have been the establishment of service machine shops at Detroit and Flint, specializing in the exclusive manufacture of past model parts; additional service training schools where dealers' mechanics are taught the latest methods for servicing the old and new models; additional zone warehouses which expedite the delivery of parts to dealers; and revisions in the system by which the dealer is stocked with past model parts.

Independent manufacture of past model parts became necessary just as soon as intensive production began on the new sixes. When the company was specializing in four cylinder manufacture the turning out of past mode parts was relatively easy. Temporary suspension of production in the Flint motor plant and the Detroit gear and axle plant permitted the building of past model parts without serious inconvenience.

New Experiment Reveals Water Can Be Used As Fuel In Automobile Engines

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN, July 6.—The possibility of using water for automobile fuel, an old expedient, has come to the front in Germany in a new way.

The hydrogen in water, when separated, long has been known as a good automobile fuel. The trouble has been that so much power was required to separate the hydrogen from the water that the process was not economic.

Now a young German engineer, Paul Hausmeister of Goeppingen, Wuerttemberg, has developed a new method for the extraction and applied for patents.

He claims to produce oxygen and hydrogen from water by electrolysis and pressure, getting a highly compressed liquid. It is claimed further that a far smaller expenditure of power is necessary to get this compressed product than to extract these gases in free state and that it can be had at much less than the cost of coal or gasoline.

Prof. Alfred Coehn of Gottingen university announces that he has experimented with the process and confirmed the results.

It is said that if the young man's process stands up against the final tests it is likely to compel a modification of the law for conversation of energy, a fundamental of physics, that results are equal only to the energy expended.

The point in the new process is said to be a demonstration that breaking down the molecules of water requires a much smaller expenditure of energy than would be expected under the classic interpretation of the physical law.

The compressed gases that Hausmeister obtains are stored in steel drums with a resistance of 1,865 atmospheres.

New Factory For Oakland Opened

PONTIAC, Mich., July 6.—Completion and operation of a new grey iron foundry considered the last word in modern foundry practice, equipment and facilities, is announced by Gordon Lefebvre, vice president in charge of operations for the Oakland Motor Car Co.

This newest manufacturing unit, another development of the huge expansion program not only increases the number of parts manufactured in Oakland-Pontiac plants to fully 90 per cent, but like all other units of this large industrial group, is the most modern foundry of its kind in operation.

Seven distinct buildings make up this foundry group all connected by an extensive conveyor system with service yards between, the one remarkable feature most evident being the innumerable time and labor saving machines so arranged and coordinated that few parts or materials are handled by hand.

This several million dollar enterprise adds 250,000 square feet of floor space to the modern Oakland-Pontiac plant. Designed and superintended by J. E. Linabury, who constructed foundries for various other General Motors divisions, the new Oakland-Pontiac addition possesses equipment and processes developed by Mr. Linabury and said to be entirely new in foundry practice.

New Marquette Is Proving Popular

One of the outstanding features of the New Marquette, companion car to Buick, which has caused no little favorable comment throughout the country since the introduction of the car on June 1, is the non-glare, sloping windshield which is offered the motoring public for the first time.

Engineers who have studied the advantages of the Marquette sloping windshield declare it to be one of the foremost safety factors introduced on automobiles in several years.

This type of windshield was put through exhaustive tests at the General Motors Proving Grounds over a period of several weeks. Windshields were sloped at various angles and the cars driven hour after hour at night in order that a windshield for closed cars might be developed which would divert all glare from the lights of other cars, either approaching, from the rear, or sides, below the driver's line of vision.

How Is She Hittin'?

Pertinent Facts About Automobiles By Israel Klein, Science Editor For NEA Service

BY ISRAEL KLEIN
Science Editor, NEA Service

In automobiles, as in other things, we must expect to put up with the bad when we get the good. The "bad" in this case comes with the use of anti-knock gasoline for the high compression motors now in use. It is the discovery of gummy deposits in the inlet manifold and on the inlet valves of the motor.

Oil engineers and chemists are devoting considerable study to this new difficulty that has arisen in motordom. It isn't very obnoxious, but if the motorist isn't particular about the type of anti-knock gasoline he uses, he may some day find himself unable to proceed despite a full tank of fuel. The motor will just stop drawing the fuel because of sticky inlet valves, or gummed up float valves in the carburetor or sticky flapper valve in the vacuum tank.

The subject of gum in gasoline is practically new. It arose with the necessity of improving the cracking of gasoline in order to make it available for the high compression motors that came into use a couple of years ago.

According to the oil men, the change from what they call the "liquid-phase" to the "vapor-phase" cracking process has brought up the matter of gum in the fuel. In the old liquid-phase process, the gasoline could easily be refined free of the gum ar resinous substance that was found in it. But there has been considerable difficulty in refining vapor-phase fuels free of gum, and so some of the oil producers have even returned to the old liquid-phase process for automotive fuels in order to avoid the presence of gum.

The gum difficulty, however, persists. The presence of this sticky substance can be discerned by the peculiar varnish-like odor of the fuel. But the color or lack of color of the gasoline is no criterion of its presence. A gasoline may be yellow and not contain gum to any harmful extent, while another gasoline may be colorless and contain large quantities of gum.

Gum usually does not go beyond the inlet valves of the motor. Deposited on the seat of the valve, the sticky substance may cause it to stick to such an extent that a crowbar would have to be used to remove the valve. Sometimes, in cases of hot motors, the material is baked on causing the inlet valve to leak fuel when it should be shut tight and so resulting in many other difficulties that might never be attributed to the gum in gasoline.

Engineers have discovered that there is less chance of gum trouble in engines with overhead valves than in those of the L-head type. The reason is that the overhead-valve construction allows the gum to run down the valve stem and collect on the underside of the valve head, sometimes even running down into the combustion chamber.

In the case of the L-head construction, where the valves do not hang down, the gum would stick quicker than in the overhead type. The overhead engine, however, is not immune to gum sticking valves. Sometimes the inlet valve in the latter type engine may be held open by the gum running over the valve seat.

The difference only is that gum difficulties manifest themselves sooner in L-head engines than in those with overhead valves.

Waste Campaign Aid To Oakland

PONTIAC, Mich., July 6.—Evidence of the inventive genius of the modern factory worker is contained in an announcement by Gordon Lefebvre, vice-president in charge of operations of the Oakland Motor Car company, stating that as a result of the campaign against waste waged among Oakland workers the company will effect projected savings of approximately $1,000,000 annually.

While known forms of wastes were wel lunder control, the campaign, according to Mr. Lefebvre, was to discover new methods of processes for cutting down time or material costs. More than $1,300 in prizes was offered plant workers who could devise the most practical means for effecting this end.

"War On Waste."

The campaign, of two weeks' duration, was conducted under the slogan, "War on Waste," and was instrumental in bringing in 3358 waste elimination plans from the 11,000 plant workers.

Of the suggestions turned in, 35 per cent already evaluated will effect a projected saving of $542,000, Mr. Lefebvre said, while those still to be investigated to determine their worth are expected to effect a similar saving.

The grand prize plan recommended a substitute fuel for gasoline for operating Oakland and Pontiac Six motors, while they are being tested before assembly on the finished car. This plan alone will result in a saving of approximately $53,000 in fuel costs over a period of twelve months.

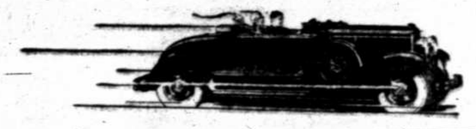

The centenary of the patenting of the concertina by Sir Charles Wheatstone was recently observed in England.

TRUE FIVE YEARS AGO AND STILL TRUE

Daring to go back five years when the first Chrysler appeared, Chrysler can read without apology every promise made then, for every promise has been fulfilled.

In 1924 Chrysler was new. Its claims for performance, economy and stamina had not been proved valid by the hundreds of thousands of cars and millions of miles of driving that support today's leadership.

True, the automotive industry was startled by Chrysler innovations. The public trend was to Chrysler if only because Chrysler instantly out-moded other cars. Comprehensive tests had convinced Chrysler engineers that they had built a superior product. Chrysler owners before long discovered that the car upheld every promise made for it, and their eagerness to testify to its speed, its power and its strength resulted in the prevailing world-wide acceptance of Chrysler.

Now, in 1929, the public's confidence in Chrysler is still unwavering. You, too, will discover the reasons for this increasing acceptance of Chrysler leadership in quality and value if you will test the car yourself.

Tech Officials Explain Dormitory Measure; Declare There Is No Need For Conflict With Boarding Houses

Three Boys And Two Girls Dorms Allowed In Bill Passed By Solons; Aid Is Sought Now

Channels for investments that have heretofore been impossible were opened when the state legislature recently passed a bill authorizing the erection of dormitories on the campus of Texas Technological college.

Although the state does not propose to erect the buildings from funds out of the state treasury, the act does make possible the actual donation of sums of money for this purpose or the erection of the dormitories by private enterprises with promise of ample return on the money invested.

The Bill Follows:

The Bill is entitled as follows:

"An Act authorizing the Board of Directors of the Texas Technological to acquire, operate and manage three boys dormitories and two girls dormitories at the school and to furnish aednuqpik.gg()lfb and to furnish and equip the same, and dining hall and kitchen building in connection therewith; authorizing said Board to prescribe plans and specifications not inconsistent herewith, and to accept said building when complete without cost to the State of Texas; authorizing said Board to make contacts with reference to the acquisition, management, and control of said building; authorizing the use of land owned by the State for said purposes under certain restrictions; and declaring an emergency."

No Steps Taken

No definite steps have been taken by college officials as yet. Dr. Paul Horn, president of the institution said, but plans are under way whereby the buildings can be financed and built and a substantial part of the revenue from the buildings to be used to redeem the indebtedness against them upon their acquisition by the college.

"There has been a general misunderstanding of the measure recently adopted by the legislature," Dr. Horn explained. "No appropriations have been voted for the erection of the dormitories. The bill authorizes the erection of the buildings on the state property and gives Texas Tech the right to borrow money, if necessary, and pledge revenue for that purpose. It will be necessary to get our appropriations settled before going into the matter.

Hope To Find Donors

Just as other state institutions are taking advantage of the new law, Tech officials hope to find donors who are willing to make investments capable of erecting these buildings for the revenue that can be gained through their operation. Several investment companies as well as private citizens have indicated an interest in the opportunity offered by the college.

In case the buildings are erected, the State Board of Control is authorized to purchase and pay for the furnishinggs and equipment after the buildings are accepted and acquired by the school, according to section 3 of the bill.

Kimbro Praises

H. T. Kimbro, member of the board of directors of Texas Tech, spoke high praises of the new measure and the possibilities embodied within its bounds. Men of means are certain to take advantage of the new ruling and help the institution along with sizable donations in the form of dormitories.

There should be no reason for conflict between the program of dormitory expansion and rooming house proprietors, college officials here pointed out. The steady growth of the school will insure both of ample patronage and at the same time the erection of dormitories will add greatly to the real school life of the students.

Tech Business Manager Is Not To Be Selected Until Texas Legislature's Session Closes; 50 Applications Up

Dr. Paul W. Horn, president of Texas Technological college, recently revealed that a business manager for Tech would not be selected until the Texas legislature concludes this session. He said that some fifty applications for the position had been received since the resignation of E. W. Provence, who recently accepted the presidency of Montezuma college, Montezuma, N. M. Of the fifty all are experienced to varying degrees and it will be up to the authorities to select the man who is best qualified to take care of the business of the college.

"The business managership of the college is a position of great importance to the administration of the school and the utmost care will be exercised in selecting a man in whom the college may entrust its business," said Dr. Horn. "First of all, the future business manager must be a reputable business man and have a record to prove his ability. The authorities of college must know that he is morally upright and have the true integrity of the true business man."

Must Know Values

"Besides being capable of handling the finances of the college he must necessarily know the relative educational value of each dollar so that he may give the college dollar for dollar value for all money expended. Because of the great educational value of each dollar invested in the business of running a college it is necessary that the business manager should know just where to get the greatest educational value for each dollar of the state's money that is expended and it must be accounted for so that the authorities of the college and of the state may see that Texas Technological college is making each dollar appropriated by the state do its biggest job. Another important job is keeping the buildings and equipment in the very best of repair."

"Besides these things the man whom Tech selects for the business managership must be influential with public men of the state, and he must know how to handle people and to be able to adjust claims for the college. It is not necessary for the man to be a politician bbut he must be able to represent the best interests of Tech in the capacity of administrator of the business of the college."

AND NOW THE TIRE TEST

There have been cigarette tests, blindfold tests, and many other kinds of tests.

And Now We Have The Tire Strength Test!

And you get this proof BEFORE YOU BUY:

Why wait to see how a glittering guarantee works out in the wear and tear of travel?
A guarantee, in most cases, is a BLINDFOLD test, anyway!

Ours is a sample, convincing test of tire cords. We prove that it takes more weight, more wear and tear, to break a Star Tire cord than it does to break the cord of any other Tire.

THIS DEMONSTRATION WILL MAKE YOU "SEE STARS"

No intricate mechanism to befuddle you. No trick operations to keep the test from being absolutely fair. We simply apply weight to the cords until they break. To see how far they stretch is insufficient. THIS test TUGS at the cords until they BREAK. ASK TO SEE THE TIRE TEST.
