Solons Study Protests Of Cotton Quotas

By GORDON BROWN
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12. — A congressional committee proposed tonight to limit cotton acreage cuts to individual farmers while a group of Texas growers tossed the problem into district court.

A House Cotton subcommittee, headed by Rep. Pace (D-Ga), took note of protests from the cotton belt that acreage allotments for 1950 are too drastic and pose a threat to some farmers.

Meanwhile, a U. S. district judge here scheduled for next Monday a hearing on a motion through which 10 Texas farmers want an immediate order to restrain agriculture department officials from enforcing a proposed quota program.

Coastal Farmers Push Move

Counsel for cotton producers in 11 Texas gulf coastal bend counties filed the action.

After a day-long session with Agriculture department officials, the House committee came up with these recommendations for a solution to the problem:

1. That the Secretary of Agriculture request farmers who will not plant all or any of their allotment to release the same to their local county PMA committees and that the secretary authorize such committees to reallocate such acreage within the county.

2. That Congress early next year amend the 1949 acreage allotment act to provide that no 1950 crop allotment shall be less than the larger of 70 per cent of the average actually planted to cotton on the farm in 1946, 1947, or 50 per cent of the highest acreage planted to cotton or regarded as planted to cotton in any one of the three years.

Congressional Action Sought

In connection with the second recommendation, Chairman Cooley (D-NC) of the full house Agriculture committee, said he has prepared a resolution which he will introduce on the opening day of the session. It would amend the cotton acreage law in line with the sub-committee recommendation.

Cooley said he thought there would be no trouble in rushing the resolution through the House and to the Senate for action.

Cooley and Pace said they believed that if its recommendation for utilization of unused allotments were followed, the acreage available would satisfy all complaining farmers.

They told reporters they did not have any estimate as to the acreage which would be unused but said that 900,000 acres would satisfy the needs of the various counties.

The committee acted as some members expressed fear that unless dissatisfied cotton growers are

Texans Pushing Allotment Fight

By SARA McCLENDON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Texas Congressmen and farmers sought relief from what many branded harsh administrative cutbacks in cotton acreage allotments today in legislative halls, in the courts and through Agricultural department directives.

Rep. Ed Gossett of Wichita Falls, who succeeded in getting approved by a Congressional committee here Monday, virtually the same resolution adopted by farmers in 10 counties in his district, regarding Cotton Allotment Act amendments said: "I believe we are now getting somewhere."

The same opinion was voiced by Rep. Olin Teague of Bryan, who likewise attended the meeting along with Rep. John Lyle of Corpus Christi, Rep. Frank Wilson of Dallas and Lacey Sharp, secretary to Rep. W. R. Poage of Waco.

Rep. Ken Regan of Midland sent to that meeting a request that unused cotton acreage allotments in some sections of the state be turned over to those wanting these in other sections, particularly 119

City Improvements At Stake In Election

Good Turnout Sought For Bond Vote Today

A CONSIDERABLE undercurrent of interest was indicated late Monday in the election today on the proposals to issue $550,000 in city bonds to enlarge the sewage disposal plant and $525,000 to buy rights-of-way to complete the highway dispersal system.

The prospects still were, however, that the total vote will be small in comparison with the number eligible t cast ballots.

Confidence prevailed that both proposals will be approved by decisive majorities, although scattered opposition was reported to the dispersal system bonds.

Approval Is Sought

Civic leaders, therefore, redoubled efforts to get out the largest possible vote. Their belief is that, the larger the vote, the more certain will be the approval of both propositions.

They continued to emphasize that the community health will be in danger until the present inadequate sewage disposal plant is enlarged and that failure to make provision for the completion of the highway dispersal system will retard the city's progress and aggravate further the increasingly serious Lubbock traffic problems.

BOND ELECTION FACTS

Bond Issues Proposed — $550,000 to enlarge the sewage disposal plant and $525,000 to complete the city highway dispersal system.

Polling place—Central Fire station, Tenth street and Avenue J.

Voting hours—8 a. m. until 7 p. m.

Presiding judge—R. Bush Smith.

Eligible to vote — Persons who have resided in Texas one year and Lubbock six months; who have a 1948 poll tax receipt or exemption certificate and whose names appear on the city tax roll.

Small Vote Seen

The total qualified vote eligible to participate in the election is estimated at 5,500 to 6,000, but observers will be surprised if the poll exceeds 2,000, and most of them expect it to be under 1,500.

Even 1,500 would be a record-breaker for a Lubbock bond election. The present record was set at 1,284 when 14 issues totaling $5,894,000 were approved by majorities ranging up to 46 to 1.

A $500,000 library bond issue was approved, 635 to 185, in May, 1947. The last city bond election was held in December, 1947, when a $4,924,000 issue carried by majorities ranging up to 14 to 1.

Hopes for a larger than average poll in the present election

Littlefield Man Among 14 Saved From Monoxide Fumes

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Dec. 12. (AP)—A dog saved 14 persons today from carbon monozide in a rooming house near Sandia base where atomic bombs are put together.

Fire Chief Art Westerfeld said the fumes came from a leak in a floor furnace.

Five persons were hospitalized.

At 3:30 a. m. H. E. Bolster, owner of the rooming house, was awakened by the dog, Chris. The little two-year-old cocker spaniel barked and scratched at the mattress of the bed where Bolster slept.

After that alarm, roomers sleeping on the top floor of the two-story house roused those in the basement, where police said the fumes were strongest. Police said those sickened by the fumes included Jim Hodges, Littlefield, Tex.

COST SET AT NEARLY $2 BILLION

More Than Five Million Receive Public Aid In U. S., Solons Told

By ROGER D. GREENE
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12. — A government official said today that more than 5 million needy Americans are now receiving public assistance at a cost of nearly $2 billion a year.

John L. Thurston, acting Federal Security administrator, cited the figures in testimony at the opening of a 10-day congressional inquiry into problems of the nation's low-income families.

Thurston said the federal government provides about half of the outlay, while the other half comes from state and local funds.

"Public assistance" grants to the needy are distinct from the old age insurance system of social security. Persons in the latter system contribute through taxes and draw the benefits without regard to need.

Referring to the size of the expenditure on public assistance, Thurston told the lawmakers:

"This is to some people an astonishing phenomenon, considering the fact that we have had full or practically full employment for the past seven or eight years.

"It is not at all astonishing, however, in relation to the large number of families with no earner or with a low-income earner, and in

Attacks Upon Envoy Scored

By GEORGE DURNO

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—The U. S. today bluntly warned the Communist Bulgarian government that its treatment of American Minister Donald R. Heath and his staff is endangering "normal relations between the two countries."

The Bulgarian envoy promised to communicate the American protest to his government for immediate action.

Charges Claimed False

Undersecretary of State Webb summoned Bulgarian Charge D'Affaires Peter Voutov to the department and reiterated that the charges against Heath in connection with the treason trial of former Deputy Premier Traicho Kostov are false.

Webb then told the Bulgarian envoy that the U. S. "cannot ignore and takes a most serious view of such deliberate actions which must inevitably affect relations between the two countries."

During the Kostov trial it was charged that Heath had been in improper communication with the ousted Communists. The state department declared:

Public Record Cited

"It is a matter of public record that the alleged conversations between Minister Heath and Kostov never took place."

The warning to the Bulgarian envoy was delivered as informed diplomatic sources in Vienna reported that the Sofia government soon might demand the recall of Heath.

In denouncing the Bulgarian attitude, the State department said that "this deliberate attempt to involve the U. S. minister has compelled the U. S. government to question the Bulgarian government's intentions with respect to the maintenance of normal relations between the two countries."

Denial Publication Sought

The department pointed out that Heath on Dec. 3 was instructed to ask the Sofia foreign office to use its influence to have his personal denial of various charges published by the Bulgarian press.

Heath left a memorandum with the foreign office reminding the Bulgarian government of "the seriousness with which the U. S. government viewed this unwarranted and unfriendly action."

Showdown Seen In Atomic Probe

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12. — The House un-American Activities committee today set Dec. 19 for a showdown hearing on Republican charges that an attempt was made to "whitewash" administration delings with Russia on atomic secrets.

Rep. Wood (D.-Ga.), chairman of the House spy-hunting unit, announced that Lt. Gen. Leslie R. Groves and ex-Major G. Racey Jordan will be called as key witnesses.

Prior to the opening of the public hearing, the committee will meet in executive session to decide when to hear former Vice President Henry Wallace, who was accused by radio commentator Fulton Lewis, jr. of chief responsibility for wartime uranium shipments to Russia.

Groves, wartime head of the Manhattan atomic project, and Jordan, ex-lend-lease liaison officer who charged that the late Harry Hopkins personally expedited shipment of atomic materials t. the Soviet Union, testified last week.

Hoover Calls For Reforms

By FELIX COTTEN
INS Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12—Former President Hoover tonight urged citizens to rally behind an eight-point reorganization program to slash $2 billion from government costs and halt a rising deficit.

He submitted a "what to do next" plan in an address before the Washington conference of the Citizens' Committee on the Hoover Reports on government reorganization.

The only living ex-president recalled that a deficit of more than $5 billion is forecast by the administration for the current fiscal year. He said:

"Frankensteins" Feared

"I believe it may be much greater for the next fiscal year. We may be turning two Frankensteins loose in the land. Their terrifying names are 'higher taxes' and "inflation'."

Labor Secretary Tobin also endorsed the Hoover commission recommendations and expressed hope Congress approves all of them.

Hoover, in rare good humar, declared that "the ghost of Alexander Hamilton still wanders in our fiscal machinery" and that some government operations are so scattered "you would need a sort of Geiger counter" to wind out what they cost.

Warns Of Rising Costs

He warned that the cost of federal, state and local government is now "considerably" more than 30 per cent of the national income, and said:

"Someone has remarked that about the time we think we can make ends meet, somebody moves

Repeal Of Oleo Tax To Face Solons Again

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12. (INS)—Senate Majority Leader Lucas (D-Ill.), today marked a bill to repeal the federal oleomargarine tax as the first order of business when Congress reconvenes three weeks from now.

Lucas said he "rather thought" that it would be brought to the floor Jan. 4.—The second day of the session.

Since dairy state senators bitterly oppose the bill, the announcement means that the Senate probably will start the second session of the 81st Congress with an all-out filibuster.

Lucas also told newsmen that the Senate leadership will head full into a Southern Democrat-Republican coalition early in the session by calling up the fair employment practices bill—one of the keystones of the administration's civil rights program.

Temperatures Drop Over Most Of State

Bitter Cold Again To Blanket Plains

BITTER cold, with temperatures skidding into the middle teens, was expected to grip Lubbock and the South Plains again early today as the season's first major winter storm swept all the way from Canada to the Gulf and headed from the midwest toward the East coast.

The norther, which brought a reading of 23 degrees to Lubbock early Monday morning, had moved into South Texas last night but low clouds were taking some of the sting out of it in that section. Readings of from between 15 and 20 degrees were expected here early today. The mercury had skidded to 27 degrees.

Partly cloudy weather was expected to cover the South Plains today with the mercury staying in the forties throughout the day. Monday's maximum was 48, and it was not expected to go higher today.

Warmup Seen Wednesday

No precipitation was indicated for the South Plains area today the Weather Bureau said late last night. A warming up trend was seen by Wednesday.

In other sections of the nation, the heavy winds and blizzard conditions of the weekend abated somewhat, but the death toll continued to mount in Arkansas where a tornado struck the area. Several others also were killed in Missouri.

Meanwhile, the Associated Press reported that as the cold front advanced from the Panhandle Monday morning, it spread snow in flurries from El Paso to the Guadalupe mountains in far West Texas. Snow also fell around Wichita Falls. Light sleet sprinkled Dallas as temperatures tumbled at dawn.

One Above At Dalhart

The U. S. field station at Dalhart reported the thermometer dipped to one above zero under a clear sky. But as the front— the edge of a Canadian storm that played havoc in the midwest over the weekend—moved southward through Texas, it ran into a low, muggy ceiling that soaked up some

Dallas Oilman May Set Up Plainview Nativity Tableau

DALLAS, Dec. 12 (AP)—Dallas Oilman Homer W. Snowden is considering requests that he set up a life size nativity scene at Plainview like the one he has in his front yard each year.

Snowden said today the Christmas tableau in his yard will be ready for visitors by Wednesday night. He is erecting it again despite neighbors' complaints to the city council that the flood-lighted scene creates a traffic problem and destroys their peace and quiet.

Each year, thousands of Dallas residents in traffic lines blocks long drive slowly past Snowden's yard. The procession sometimes continues late at night.

College Head Wires

Dr. J. W. Marshall, president of Wayland college at Plainview, wired Snowden this year, saying in part:

"We would welcome on the campus of Wayland a nativity tableau like the one you and Mrs. Snowden prepared in Dallas, which has blessed so many people.

Several Plainview businessmen sent Snowden similar messages today.

Snowden said he has not decided whether he can accept the invitation. He said he had some extra exhibit pieces but would have to get a lot more if he set up a second display.

REFORMS FOR FORMOSA PLANNED

Chinese Nationalists Hopeful Of Receiving U. S. Assistance

BY SPENCER MOOSA
Associated Press Staff Writer

TAIPEH, Formosa, Dec. 12. — The Chinese Nationalist government was authoritatively portrayed tonight as ready to make immediate drastic reforms of Formosa to earn American economic and diplomatic assistance in holding this island fortress against the Communists.

This word came from a high source which may not be named but is close to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek.

The renewed and joyful Nationalist talk of aid grew from unofficial Washington reports that the United States was prepared to give economic and diplomatic support for the retention of Formosa.

(While the Washington reports were unofficial and did not deal with military aid, various Nationalist leaders intimated strong optimism concerning possible American help.)

Chiang was said here not to have asked that Formosa be put under an American protectorate. The authoritative source, however, expressed firm belief in Chiang's full co-operation if the United States would help him keep this island

Many Aboard Seriously Hurt

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON Dec. 13. Tuesday))—A Capital airliner trying to land at National airport in a pea soup fog plunged into the Potomac river last night, carrying at least four persons to their death.

At least 19 others, many of them seriously hurt, were rescued from mid-river by Navy and Air Force crash boats speeding through the water in the murk.

Capital airlines officials announced that the following pessengers were known to be dead:

Mrs. William Chertow, who listed her sister as living at Brooklyn, N.Y. and Neville Lassiter of Arlington, Va.

Pilots Presumed Dead

Lister as "presumed dead" were the pilot, W. J. Davis and the co-pilot Lloyd L. Porter, both of Alexandria, Va. Their bodies had not been recovered more than four hours after the accident and were believed to be wedged in the cockpti of the partly submerged plane.

The wrecked craft had been bound from Memphis, Tenn., to Washington via Norfolk, carrying mostly Navy and Army men on Christmas leave.

The only surviving member of the crew was John W. Buell, 23, flight attendant, of Alexandria.

Two Bodies Are Seen

Photographers who joined the rescue parties reported that two bodies, presumably those of the pilots, could be seen in the front end of the smashed plane, under the glare of floodlights.

Although it was announced at one time that salvage operations were being discontinued until daylight, later it was made plain that they would continue. Workers were cutting through the side of the plane in an effort to bring out the bodies.

No torches were being used on the possibility that someone might still be alive in the wreckage of the craft, which was partly above water.

The tide was beginning to rise and water was rising higher on the plane's wreckage.

At first reports circulated in the confusion of one of Washington's most rainy, foggy nights that seven persons were trapped in the plane but later this appeared to be incorrect. So far as could be learned early today the total death toll was four, although the possibility remained that some other bodies

Of 14 venieremen questioned before noon in 47th District court, none was accepted for service.

Hoskins, 24-year-old former Amarillo Sandie football star, is charged in the Oct. 6 robbery-slaying of Charles Lee Freeman. Also charged in the shooting is Donald Gene Young, 21, an Amarillo serviceman.

Dist. Atty. Lloyd King was qualifying prospective jurors on the death penalty and circumstantial evidence. George McCarthy, defense attorney, asked the presiding judge, Henry S. Bishop, to rule for a change of venue. Judge Bishop declined.

Theft Of Tools Reported Here

Police were asked Monday to investigate theft of a box of tools from a pickup truck parked in the 900-block Broadway.

Woman Reports Shot

Officers were dispatched to the residence of C. S. Williams at 2403 Thirty-first about 6 p.m. after Mrs. Williams had reported that a bullet had been fired into the house.

Officials believed the shot had been fired by some children in the neighborhood. Several instances of guns being fired in the area have been reported recently, they said.

The bullet, apparently spent, broke through a screen door and fell to the floor of the house. Williams, it was reported, had just entered the door.

Trial Of Alice Man On Charge Of Slaying Radio Man Delayed

By MARTHA COLE
Associated Press Staff Writer

BELTON, Dec. 12. — Trial of Sam Smithwick for the murder of radio broadcaster W. H. (Bill) Mason in Alice last summer was postponed today until next Jan. 16.

Judge Wesley Dice granted the continuance because of the absence of one witness, Juan F. Saenz of Duval county. The defense said this witness would testify he saw a scuffle between Smithwick and Mason when Mason, 51, was shot to death on an Alice street last July 29.

Prisoner Well Dressed

Smithwick, 61, a portly former deputy sheriff, sat in the courtroom today with a solemn manner. He had on a clean, starched white shirt, a navy blue wool coat sweater, blue trousers, cowboy boots and a blue and yellow tie. He held a western hat carefully on his knees.

By his side was his wife, a matronly woman in a black hat and black cloth fur coat. She, too, sat silent and solemn.

Among the spectators were Smithwick's four sons. About 25 friends and relatives of Smithwick came up from Alice.

Mrs. Mason, wife of the slain man was not here. She was in the court room Oct. 24 when Judge Dice granted delay of the trial until today because of absence of witnesses then. She stayed in Alice this time.

Smithwick arose and almost whispered "not guilty" when he was arraigned at the end of today's session.

Dist. Atty. James K. Evetts explained this was to be sure the arraignment was in the record in a death penalty case.

Henry Taylor, sr., of Temple, one of Smithwick's three attorneys, asked continuance of the trial on three motions:

1. Because the defense will file a motion for a rehearing before the Court of Criminal Appeals in Austin to release Smithwick on bond.

2. Because of the absence of several witnesses whom the state had called and whom the defense wanted also.

3. Because of the absence of one particular witness, Juan Saenz.

Records showed that a subpoena for Saenz was issued Nov. 14 in Duval county.

Ten state witnesses were present this morning but 22 failed to answer when the names were called. Only three defense witnesses answered; ten were absent.

Three of the witnesses here were girls who said they worked at Rancho Allegro, a tavern at the edge of Alice. In his last broadcasts Mason charged that Smithwick owned the property on which the tavern was located and from where, he said, prostitutes plied their trade.

Meet Glenn Graber— Another "Do-it-yourself" American

He's made his own way!

Glenn J. Graber, of Hartville, Ohio, didn't believe there was only one way to run a farm. And was willing to strike out on his own to make his new ideas pay off. He applied his Army-learned knowledge of modern machinery to farming. Even had a radiotelephone in his truck to contact city markets! At 26, Glenn now has two partners, 600 acres in Hartville, rents 560 more in Florida, raises a million radishes a day. From a start with 120 acres in 1941 he's won the best kind of security—the kind you make for yourself.

☆ It's the American Spirit!

YOU'LL find Glenn Grabers on every Main Street in America! Folks who know from their own experience that there are still "new frontiers" of opportunity for people with ideas. They know you can still do more for yourself than anyone will do for you.

To have impressive proof of this modern "do-it-yourself spirit," just look at the fact that 78 million people are voluntary owners of life insurance. They use it for retirement, to educate their children, for help in sudden financial emergencies. Many, of their own free will, pass up some of the things they want today for the satisfaction of knowing that their families are provided for.

Because this is a basic desire of so many Americans, the need for life insurance has grown big. The life insurance business has grown to match this need. Through their more than 150,000 trained agents across the country, 584 separate life insurance companies aggressively compete to help Americans help themselves!

It's a Fact...

It's a fact that the assets of each of the 584 life insurance companies, separately invested, add up to more jobs and better living for all . . . because:

- While 78,000,000 people are using their money to provide family protection through life insurance, they also are helping America itself "go places."
- For these funds, needed to guarantee the payment of policies, are loaned out and are actively at work. They help do such things as extend gas and electric lines, pay for new railroad cars, improve farms, build homes, and provide money for business of many kinds.
- This means that each of these 78,000,000 policyholders, through his life insurance, has a financial stake in the growth of America and its enterprises.

To make sure you are getting the most out of your present life insurance, see your agent. Life insurance is a service! Your agent is trained to help you use it most effectively. The Institute of Life Insurance—central source of information—60 E. 42nd St., New York 17, N. Y.

ORDER DESCRIBED AS 'ROUTINE'

Shipment Of Uranium Made With Federal Okay, Firm Head Claims

By JACK LOTTO
INS Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Dec. 12. — Industrialist-Engineer Boris Pregel, whose company sold 1,000 pounds of uranium compounds to the Russians in 1943, said today the shipment was made "with the proper authority" of the American and Canadian governments.

Pregel, president of the Canadian Radium and Uranium company, in an exclusive interview with International News Service, called the transaction "entirely legal."

He said the United States and Canadian export licenses covered the order, which he described as a "routine" one for materials which were "chemically impure and unusable for purposes of nuclear fission."

Company Files Opened

The tall, distinguished looking White Russian who has been in exile from his country since the revolution in 1917, opened his files to INS to "show I have nothing to hide."

The 56-year-old engineer explained the uranium order this way:

"There was nothing about the order or the way they went about buying it to arouse anyone's suspicions.

"It was not for me to ask questions why both governments gave the okay for the shipments. It was none of my business why the Russians wanted the material. The government may have had a reason for approving the order which I didn't know about."

Agents Give Order

Pregel said the order from Chematar, Inc., the export and purchasing agents for the Soviet government, was given to his company on May 1, 1943.

Checking through his files, Pregel pointed to a letter written by his firm to Chematar asking for an export license and the reasons why the material was needed, in accordance with wartime directives covering the uranium.

On May 5, 1943, Hermann Rosenberg of Chematar replied that export license number 1643-180 had been granted Chematar and gave these as the purposes to which the material would be put:

"The 500 pounds of uranium oxide to be used for making ferro-uranium compounds for the production of armaments.

"The 500 pounds of uranium nitrate to be used for medical purposes directly connected with the present war."

License Not Seen

The uranium company head said he never saw the license because he was not the exporter and the material was to be shipped to Great Falls, Mont., from Canada, where another license was required before it could be sent out of the country.

He added that he was merely a "sales agent" for the Eldorado Mining & Refining Co. of Canada, which shipped the order on May 21, 1943.

Pregel described the order as "a small one," compared to the "tremendous business" his concern was doing with "pottery concerns and others."

He said he met former Vice-President Henry Wallace for the first time in December of 1943 when they were brought together by their "common interest in radioactive fertilizer."

'Dirty Dealings' Denied

Pregel, who served as an expert consultant to the Army chief of staff during World War II, said he wondered why "some people are trying to mix me up in supposed dirty dealings."

"I hate the Communists," he declared, "and the Russians would probably shoot me if they got their hands on me."

He stated that the 1,000 pound order was the only dealing he ever had for the Russians and Chematar "came to us, because we never solicited business."

The engineer, a colonel in the czar's army, declared that he "would be the last man to help the Russians in anything." To back up the statement he handed the newsman a report of a Senate hearing of the special Atomic Energy committee in November, 1945, which took testimony from Dr. Alexander Sachs on the development of the atom bomb.

Scientist Delivered Letter

Dr. Sachs, the man who brought a letter to President Roosevelt in 1939 from Prof. Albert Einstein which urged Roosevelt to go ahead with experiments on the development of a possible atomic bomb, testified:

". . . It was difficult getting supplies. Industrialist-Engineer Boris Pregel made available his very valuable supplies and experience to Columbia university for the use of experiments of Dr. Szilard and Prof. Fermi, for which he was thanked . . ."

Pregel further explained his position by pointing out that the Smyth report on the A-bomb's development relates that in 1944 "staggering theoretical problems were still to be solved with fission."

Pregel questioned:

"Why then, should I a business man in 1943 question the order?"

U. S. Diplomats Fear Reds May Put Curbs On American Bulletin

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12. (U.P.)—Diplomats feared today that protests against distribution of Russia's propaganda magazine, the U.S.S.R. information bulletin, may backfire.

They said a swelling demand to bar the magazine from American schools could result in new curbs on distribution in Russia of the State department's magazine Amerika.

The protests developed with disclosure that the Soviet embassy here has put a number of schools on its free mailing list of the slick-paper magazine.

Officials Seize Copies

School officials here and in a dozen other cities have seized copies addressed to school libraries. In some cases the magazines have been destroyed.

The bulletin was banned in schools of Columbus, Dayton, and Cincinnati, O.; Syracuse, N.Y.; Newark, N.J.; Raleigh, N.C.; Springfield, Ill.; Omaha, Neb.; Pierre, S.D.; San Francisco; Boston; Lubbock, Tex., and Oklahoma City among others.

Mahon Files Protest

Rep. George H. Mahon, (D.-Tex.), has complained to the U.S. commissioner of education, Dr. Earl J. McGrath, that the embassy is trying to propagate Communism among American students. McGrath said there was nothing he could do about it.

The State department's position is that this country cannot object to circulation of the official Soviet magazine as long as we distribute a comparable American publication in Russia.

The magazine Amerika, an even fancier job than the U.S.S.R. information bulletin, is one of this country's few direct contacts with the Russian people. Though publication is restricted to 50,000 copies, the magazine is considered a valuable asset.

Archbishop Says Communism Will Not Succeed In Mexico

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 12 (U.P.)—Archbishop Luis Maria Martinez said today that Communism will never succeed in Mexico.

Archbishop Martinez, the Catholic church's top-ranking prelate in Mexico, said that he is convinced the "deeply rooted (Catholic) faith" of the Mexican people, coupled with the nation's advanced labor legislation are enough to guard Mexico against Communism.

He termed Communism "inadequate" for the Mexican people.

The archbishop, speaking on Mexico's most fervently celebrated holy day, the day of the Virgin of Guadalupe, said that the country's labor laws "constitute full guarantee for the interests of the workers."

The laws to which the archbishop referred are regarded widely as among the most progressive in the world. They were set down more than 30 years ago in the constitution of 1917 and established the workers' right to strike, organize unions, bargain collectively and share in the profits.

The three Pacific coast states—Oregon, Washington and California—produce 34 per cent of the nation's lumber supply.

The Woman's Angle
By Margaret Turner

CHRISTMAS, the merriest time of the year, frequently is the time of unexpected disaster.

In our effort to have a bright and gay household, we burn more lights than usual, taxing our electric light circuits, we use lighted candles and lots of paper decorations; all fire hazards.

There are very few Christmas trees that really are flameproof, safety experts tell us, and the ordinary Yule tree is one of the most inflammable objects known.

IF you want to have a safe Christmas, look to these safeguards:

1. Keep the Christmas tree outdoors until ready to install it. Place it in the coolest part of the house. Be sure the tree lights do not burn if no one is at home. If needles near lights start to turn brown, change the location of the lights. When needles start falling it is time to discard the tree.

Avoid decorations near chairs where people may smoke. If lights are desired in the windows, do not use candles. Keep curtains and other inflammable material pulled back at least six inches from electric light. Use non-flamable decorations of glass or metal and "fireproof" snow in decorating. Dispose of all gift wrappings and packing materials after gifts have been opened.

YOU AND YOUR MIRROR

WHAT can a woman do to look as attractive as possible? Mrs. Luli Kollsman, author of "Come, Take My Hand," and who is described as "America's most beautiful novelist," says once she leaves her mirror she never thinks about her looks. "I tell my mirror and myself that no matter what I look like, I am going to have a glorious day," she says. "And if by evening, after work and all little adversities, the day has tried to etch its lines on my face, I still try to make up for it by my expression. A smile will cover all troubles more efficiently than any makeup."

There are many rich creams on the market which help to keep the skin beautiful. Mrs. Kollsman uses a lot of almond oil night and day. She uses liquid lipstick after applying her favorite shade and that usually takes care of the question of how long the color will stay on.

And listen to this. She smears ice cream on her face, because the cream and the coldness freshens up the muscles. She also uses pure lard because it makes the skin as smooth as a child's.

As to your figure, the author says be kind to yourself. Strenuous exercises seem superflous if there is any chance of a walk in the fresh air. And counting your calories will help keep you in good health and shape, even if you do not lose weigh!

FUSSY clothes and fussy hats only detract, the writer advises. The courage to be just plain you will go farther than fashion in itself will carry you. And if you want to do more than rely on your clothes, have a short rest before you go on a date. Lie flat on the floor or on your bed without a pillow and try to sleep, even if it is only for a few minutes. You will find it more pleasing than the most expensive dress or makeup.

They say the best material for a new dress is a husband's story when he comes home late at night.

CHRISTMAS RECIPE

THIS recipe for pralines with an orange flavor is from Mrs. J. O. Morgan's files and we like to print it each year, it is so good.

Boil one and one-half cups sugar with one half cup orange juice until soft ball stage is reached. Remove from fire and add two cups nuts (pecans, walnuts or unsalted peanuts) and one teaspoon grated orange rind. Beat until cloudy and drop on waxed paper as you would pralines or fudge.

IF the reader who sought sova flour and recipes for he daughter who is allergic to wheat, will telephone 2-1660, she may talk to a woman who has solved the problem.

Wedding Is In Palestine

PALESTINE, Dec. 12. (Special) Mr. and Mrs. James D. Rondeaux, former Lubbock residents, announce the marriage of their only daughter, Miss Martha Rondeaux, to Sam B. Ray, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam B. Ray of this city, which took place Friday, Nov. 25, at the First Presbyterian church.

Rev. John E. McLean performed the ceremony before a background of smilax and fern, enhanced by cathedral tapers and baskets of white chrysanthemums.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an afternoon dress of aquamarine with a full ballerina-length skirt. She carried a white Bible topped with bronze orchids and streamers.

Miss Jackie Welborn of Houston was maid of honor and Ernest Swift served as best man. Ushers were Ralph Irvine, jr., and Don Hodges, jr.

The couple was graduated from Palestine High school. The bride is a former student at Texas Technological college and the University of Texas, where she majored in music. She is a member of Zeta Tau Alpha sorority. Mr. Ray is a geology student at the University of Houston. He served 18 months with the airborne division of the U. S. Army in Japan.

Trial In Compensation Suit Will Be Resumed Here Today

Trial of a compensation suit filed by Minnie Lee Welch and her husband against Texas Employer's Insurance association will be resumed at 9 o'clock this morning in the 99th district court of Judge G. V. Pardue.

Selection of a jury and pleadings were concluded before court was recessed at 5 p.m. Monday.

Mrs. Welch asks judgment for total and permanent injuries allegedly suffered Nov. 12, 1943, when in course of employment by West Texas Warehouse and Compress company.

Her counsel, the law firm of Allred and Boedeker, said a bale of cotton that slipped off a hand truck fell and pinned her against another bale. Tom Milam, an associate of the law firm of Crenshaw, Dupree and Milam, represents the insurance association.

The jury is composed of Neal L. Purdy, R. S. Hall, George Blackmon, J. I. Speer, E. G. Peek, Willard Pollock, Jim Noland, Jube Cooley, Albert C. Smyes, L. A. Hancock, A. A. Russell, and W. E. Hickerson.

Tech Student Named To Group Studying Cultural Problems

Curtis Sterling, president of the Texas Tech student council, was appointed on a committee to work out problems of obtaining more cultural artists for Texas colleges at a meeting of the Texas Intercollegiate Student association executive council last Saturday in Austin, it was announced Monday.

The committee, appointed by President Dick Barnebey of North Texas State, will present its findings to an annual meeting of the association at Baylor university next spring.

Required Number Sign

Organized last spring, the TISA became an official association Saturday as Rice university announced ratification of its constitution, giving the required two-thirds majority of those schools participating in the constitutional writing. Other schools have until Jan. 1, 1950, to become charter members of the organization, Sterling said. There are 14 at present.

The cultural entertainment committee to which Sterling was appointed will seek a means of cooperation among member schools of the TISA for obtaining more and better performers for programs such as those presented by the Tech Artists course, the Tech student president asserted. The committee is headed by Don Yarbrough of the University of Texas.

Tech Delegates Given

Sterling, Bill McCasland, and Margaret Clark were Tech's representatives to the executive council meeting Saturday.

Other questions raised included whether the TISA should admit negro schools to membership and possibility of a moot legislature for the organization next year.

It was indicated the question of negro membership to the association will be taken up at the spring meeting, which will probably be held in April, according to Sterling. The moot legislature was proposed by O. L. Davis, jr. of NT and was referred to a committee for recommendations at the spring meeting. If approved, the mock session would probably be held in Austin, with members of the TISA participating in discussions.

Other Questions Raised

Other questions proposed for action at the annual meeting included faculty-student relations, honor systems as affecting student councils, final examination exemptions, and registration problems.

The first meeting of the TISA was held in Denton last April, at which time the constitution was framed and the first officers elected. Member schools include Tech, North Texas, Baylor, the University of Texas, Rice, Texas A and M, Texas Christian, Texas State college for Women, Stephen F. Austin, Texas A and I, Texas Wesleyan, West Texas, Trinity university, and Southwest Texas State Teachers college.

Southern Methodist university has indicated it will join.

Man Is Charged In Levelland Shooting

LEVELLAND, Dec. 12. (Special)—Albert Herrera, 28, was formally charged with murder and his bond set at $2,500 today in the Sunday morning shooting of Henardo Gonzales, also 28, a transcient farm laborer from Brady.

Herrera was charged at a preliminary heaing this afternoon in Justice of the Peace A. F. Odell's court. He was still in Hockley county jail late today, but it is expected he will post bond some time Tuesday.

Gonzales died in a Levelland street shortly before 11 a. m. Sunday after a single .22 caliber bullet had pierced his chest. In a statement to police shortly afterwards, Herrera admitted firing the shot and said a fist fight between he and the dead man had precipitated the shooting.

The body of Gonzales was still in the George C. Price Funeral home here today, but plans have been made to carry it overland to Brady Tuesday for burial.

Herrera, a farm laborer, has lived in the Levelland area for the past 10 years. In his statement he said he shot Gonzales as the two stood in a dirt street in front of the Apolco cafe in Levelland. Although he declared several persons saw him fire the shot, police could find no one who would say they witnessed the killing.

Damages Action As Result Of Wreck Recessed Until Today

The 72nd district court damages action of J. P. Bowling and his wife against Will Stacey was recessed shortly after 5 p. m. Monday. Judge Dan Blair ordered court reconvened at 9 a m today.

The plaintiffs, who completed testimony Monday seek damages for personal injuries to Mrs. Bowling as a result of a collision on the Shallowater highway in April of 1948. The defendant, in a cross action, asks judgment against the plaintiffs for damage to his car allegedly resulting from the collision.

The jury is composed of B. A. Darby, H. R. Johnson, Jimmie McDonald, Carl Hodd, Elmer Griffith, L. A. Jones, Gus J. Beevers, Guy Young, D. L. Caffee, W. D. Killian, J. A. Williams, and D. I. Hawn.

Gordon Tredaaway represents the plaintiffs, W. D. Wilson, the defendants.

Cripps Makes Official Bid For American Investments In Britain

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.
Associated Press Staff Writer

Almost simultaneously with the news that a second British commonwealth has rejected Socialism comes word from Sir Stafford Cripps, virtual dictator of Britain's economy, that Americans can invest in British private enterprise without fear of nationalization.

Sir Stafford, in an interview with the U. S. News and World Report, a news magazine published in Washington, says the Socialists in Britain have no intention of taking over anything except the basic industries like coal, transportation and steel.

The chancellor of the exchequer was making an outright bid for American investment in British industry.

If American investors should happen to run into nationalization, which Cripps insisted would be unlikely, they would be fairly paid. Britain is definitely depending on private enterprise, he said, to do the export job on which Britain's livelihood depends.

In these words Sir Stafford attempts to answer the big question about contemporary Britain —how far does socialization go and where does it stop short of totalitarianism?

The voters of New Zealand and Australia, after years of Socialism, have just answered the question for themselves. They have said: "We have gone far enough. We have saddled ourselves with too much government, too expensive government, too much red tape and regulation. We will keep the social benefits we have attained through governmental administration of certain health and security programs, but from here on out the green light is up for private enterprise."

The returns from these elections were not in when Sir Stafford gave his interview. He saw for himself that Britain must set some limit to socialization if she was to obtain the help she needs from American business.

Cripps statement, however, coupled with the New Zealand and Australian elections, suggests strongly that in both industrial and agricultural economies the experimenters are beginning to find that socialization is not the unmitigated panacea they once believed it.

Lubbock Store Adds Camera Department

Announcement of the opening of a complete downtown photographic and camera store was made Monday by Bob Walker, owner of Sound Photo Equipment Co., 1012 Main.

Glen Garner is manager of the new department recently added to the store.

Cameras, both motion and still, films and photographic service will be offered by the new department. One of the largest supplies of motion picture film in Lubbock will be available at the store in both 8 and 16 milimeter sizes.

Revere motion picture cameras and Argus and Ansco still cameras are featured lines but any type of camera may be purchased through the store.

RCA motion picture and sound equipment is also available for the camera equipment and projectors. This line is featured by the company in all electronic work.

One feature of the camera store is the film rental service, whereby any sound motion picture or animated cartoon may be rented for home use at desired intervals. Equipment to show the films may also be rented.

In another service, a complete commercial motion picture photographic service is available. Marion F. Peters, veteran motion picture photographer in this area, directs this service. The past fall alone more than 90 football games were filmed by the department for various West Texas and New Mexico schools.

Garner, manager of the camera store, came to Lubbock from Norman, Okla., where he served as a criminal investigator for the Norman police department, specializing in photography. Prior to that time he served in the Navy three years as a photographer's mate and saw considerable experience in the Pacific. He has been interested in photography since 1923 and has had several pictures selected as winners in photo contests.

THREE-IN-ONE X-RAY — Introduced to members of the Radiological Society of North America in convention in Cleveland, O., was this new X-ray machine which provides the widest range of radiation ever produced by a single unit. Developed by General Electric and called the Maxitron 250, the unit actually is three machines in one, producing X-rays at voltages ranging from 100,000 to 250,000. It can be used for a wide variety of X-ray treatments, ranging from "soft" rays for skin diseases to most penetrating rays for treating deep-seated malignancy.

Mowery Takes Over New Duties At Tech

Prof. Ray C. Mowery took over the reins as head of the department of animal husbandry at Texas Tech Monday, succeeding Dean of Agriculture W. L. Stangel.

Mowery was placed at the head of the department Saturday by action of the Board of Directors in a meeting on the campus. Dean Stangel had requested that he be relieved of the AH duties and that Mowery succeed him.

The new department head has been a member of the Tech faculty continuously since 1926. He is a graduate of Texas A and M and received his master of science degree at Iowa State. For the past several months he has worked closely with Dean Stangel on matters pertaining to the AH department.

Mowery announced no immediate changes in the department and college officials expect that the department will be run along the same lines as before.

Dean Stangel has been a member of the Tech faculty since the college was founded and was appointed dean of agriculture in 1945.

Shipment Of 1949 Poll Tax Receipts Now On Sale Here

A shipment of 1949 poll tax receipts has been received and approximately 500 taxes have been paid already, H. B. Bryan, county tax assessor-collector, said Monday.

Normally 16,000 to 20,000 poll taxes will be paid in the county, Bryan said.

Shipment of the receipts, which will qualify voters for 1950 elections, was delayed this year by the proposed amendment abolishing the poll tax, which failed to carry.

Arizona Pioneers Recall Long Fight To Reclaim Waste Lands

BY BOB CONSIDINE
INS Staff Correspondent

PHOENIX, Ariz., Dec. 12 — In these days of complicated foreign entanglements, where our economy is tied bewilderingly to that of, say, Iran, it is an adventure to meet and talk with pioneers who sat in on the basic and undestandable building of the western section of this breadbasket of the modern world.

There are gaffers sitting in the sun of Phoenix, for instance, who remember the very beginnings of the reclamation program — first attempted by the United States — which transformed the worthless deserts of Arizona, Nevada and California into soil which in a single year, 1946, produced a crop income of more than $2,200,000,000.

Word Sent To Paper

They tell of the day the word came to the Arizona region in the form of a telegram to a country newspaper editor. Those who remember him say he threw off his green eyeshade, stood up and cried:

"They've done it! Thank God, it's done!"

He was thanking God for the Fifty Seventh Congress of the United States, and Sen. Henry Clay Hansbrough of North Dakota and Rep. Francis Griffith Newlands of Nevada. And for Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States on that fabled June 17th, 1902. T.R. had just signed the Hansbrough-Newlands Reclamation act.

From the way the old timers talk it must have been something like the start of the Oklahoma run, or the announcement that gold was to be found in California, silver in Nevada, oil in Pennsylvania and later Texas.

The crude stores along center street in Phoenix closed for the day. Farmers in their big wheeled wagons emerged from the dust of the outland to join the singing, weeping, backslapping phoenicians.

Miraculously, stupendously, the scratch of T.R.'s pen would be the moist tool that would transform the sun-baked barren earth of a great portion of the Southwest and bring forth luscious produce. For countless centuries before this men had come to this part of the earth, some from Asia across the frozen Bering, only to wither and die when the river beds went dry — or wander on to new lands.

But now, by God, the white-faced people would stay and conquer this land, tame it, make it pay its way. Their own little efforts to conserve water for their limited acres; their own back-breaking efforts to shore up the melting snows and to wring the last drops out of such capricious streams as the Salt river, would be buttressed by the might of a growing young republic which had just emerged from a half century of isolation and had whipped Spain in the Atlantic and Pacific.

We do things differently today, and are impatient or intolerant of obstacles that stand in the way of the job. But nearly half a century ago, when men struggled to unlock an agricultural wealth which was to be greater than all the gold of California, all the silver of Colorado and all the copper of Arizona, men moved cautiously.

Agreements Finally Reached

Private claims to small irrigation ditches had to be resolved to the satisfaction of the owners. Deeply devout people who believed that reclamation was tampering with the will of God had to be presuaded to support the program. Landowners had to sacrifice hard-won acreage for the general good. Men met and argued through the nights, and sometimes they fought. But in the end there were handshakes, and in those days they meant more than a contract — in triplicate — could mean today.

It meant work, too, such as this country had never dreamed.

The Tonto basin dam, for instance, 185 feet thick at the base and stretching more than 1,000 feet across the mouth of the Salt river canyon — with 1,400,000 acre feet of flood water held behind its 284 foot heights — was built when the site was 65 miles from the nearest railroad. Men had to hack a road to it, drag along it every bit of gear — on high-wheel wagons drawn by 20 mules.

It was completed on March 18, 1911, before an assembly which had reached the plac in carriages, on bicycles and in uncertain early automobiles. T.R., out of the White House by now, was there, to hear the dam named for him.

That was the beginning of a new life for the west. Smaller and bigger dams were to follow, and the earth where even whiskers were hard to grow bloomed and blossomed and brought forth fruit ten million fold.

In the lifetime of many who lived through those days, they have seen the fantastic miracles water can achieve. And as one said:

"What was begun so long ago in this valley will never end so long as men with courage and strength shall dream."

SAN ANTONIO, Dec. 12 (AP)—Television for San Antonio became a reality today following the inauguration by WOAI-TV of its regular schedule following dedication ceremonies at 5 p. m. yesterday.

Hugh A. L. Halff, president and general manager of the station, was presented a scroll by Mayor Jack White of San Antonio proclaiming Dec. 12 as TV day and the week of Dec. 11 as television week in San Antonio.

The station will be on the air daily, except Saturday's, from 5 p. m. until 8:30 or 9 p. m.

Demo Group Plans Educational Drive

DALLAS, Dec. 12 (AP)—The Texas Association of Democratic County chairmen will start an 'educational campaign" soon.

"There apparently are some individuals who believe that the association is seeking to usurp the functions of other party groups," W. E. Biggs of Greenville, president, said today.

"The educational program will be designed to show that we have no such desire, and that we wish only to work with other groups for the good of the party as a whole."

The association's executive committee met Saturday at Waco to plan the campaign, Biggs said.

Alabama Jury Deadlocks In Trial Of Accused Klan Member

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 12 (AP)—A mis-trial was declared today in the case of a Ku Klux Klan leader accused of masked flogging.

The jury reported after deliberating over the week end that it could not reach a verdict. It received the case at 12:42 p. m. Saturday.

A. B. Carradine, 40-year-old West Jefferson mechanic, was tried on a charge he flogged Jack Alexander and two others the night of May 19.

He admitted being an officer of the Stonewall Jackson Klavern at nearby Adamsville. But he denied that he ever went on Klan raids or wielded the lash over any flogging victims.

Assistant Solicitor Cecil Deason announced that Carradine would be re-tried.

Rumor Of Birth Provides Hotel With Preview Of Coming Event

LAUSANNE, Dec. 12 (INS)—Lausanne in general and the Palace hotel in particular got a preview today of what will happen after Rita Hayworth's baby is born.

A false report spread like wildfire that the screen star had given birth and the Palace hotel immediately took on the appearance of a combination Grand Central station and international communications center.

"Well-wishers" and the curious jammed into the lobby seeking information and details. Telephone calls poured in from capitals around the world.

The hotel bar continued to be crowded even after the rumor was proved false.

GOP Solon Urges Mental Tests For 'Everyone In Government'

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP)—Rep. Rich (R-Pa.) said today everyone in government should be given a mental test "starting at the White House and going all the way down."

His proposal was made during a committee investigation of low income families.

"We've got a lot of people in government who don't know what it is all about," Rich said later in explaining.

District 3-AA Votes To Decrease Grid Admission Prices

Committee Announces 1950 Conference Football Slate

(Special To The Avalanche)

LAMESA, Dec. 12—A decrease in District 3-AA football admission prices in 1950 was voted today at a meeting of the district executive committee.

The committee also drew up next year's conference grid schedule, and acted on other matters relating to the district's athletic program.

Home Games Listed

Reserved seats, priced at $1.50 this year, will sell for $1.20 next season. The general admission price was reduced from $1.20 to 90 cents. The price of student tickets, 74 and 30 cents, remained unchanged. This schedule was approved by a 4-1 vote.

Lubbock's home football games in 1950 will be with Midland, on either Nov. 17 or 18 (depending on Texas Tech's grid schedule), and with Odessa, on Nov. 23, Thanksgiving day.

The Westerners' conference road games will be at Big Spring, Oct. 7, and at Lamesa, Nov. 3.

Coach C. R. Pattison said his team's complete 1950 schedule will probably be announced later this week, as soon as contracts for several non-conference games are received.

The complete District 3-AA slate for 1950:

Oct. 7—Lubbock at Big Spring.

Nov. 3—Big Spring at Midland; Lubbock at Lamesa.

Nov. 11—Lamesa at Big Spring; Odessa at Midland.

Nov. 17-18—Midland at Lubbock; Big Spring at Odessa.

Nov. 23—Midland at Lamesa; Odessa at Lubbock.

Nov. 30—Lamesa at Odessa.

Baseball competition in the district will be between April 10 and May 13, although schedules will not be arranged until schedules of the Longhorn and West Texas-New Mexico leagues are released.

The committee also decided to award trophies to district champions in football, basketball and baseball. Lubbock will be the first to receive a trophy as 1949 football champion.

The committee took action to eliminate drinking of intoxicants at district atheletic contests, making each school responsible to the committee.

According to a plan adopted last year to rotate the district chairmanship according to the alphabet, G. B. Wadzeck, superintendent of Lamesa schools, became district chairman. R. W. Matthews, who by the rule will be chairman next year, will be vice-chairman this year. Floyd Honey, Lubbock principal was re-elected secretary.

All schools in the district were represented with the exception of Brownfield, which has been dropped to Class A. Brownfield is eligible for competition in 3-AA basketball, track and baseball this year, however.

Superintendent W. C. Blankenship, Coach Carl A. Coleman and Principal W. L. Reed represented Big Spring, which will be a member of 3-AA next year.

Others at the meeting were Supt. Frank Monroe and Coach Thurman Jones, Midland; Co-ordinator Louis V. Spain and Coach Joe Coleman, Odessa; Matthews, Honey and Coaches D. A. Cook, Fred Taylor and Pattison of Lubbock, and Wadzeck and Coach Bob Harrell of Lamesa.

Westerners Meet Borger Cagers

Westerner cagers went back to work Monday following a weekend respite to prepare for Wednesday's game with Borger's Bulldogs in Borger.

That "crucial" game of the early season schedule seems at hand, for the Bulldogs have a fine record at this stage of the season with 11 straight victories without defeat.

Five of Borger's wins came in their own tournament last week, which they won by defeating Stratford in the finals.

Lubbock has played but five games, winning them all, the last being a 56-31 decision over the Steers from Big Spring.

Monday in practice the Westerner squadmen went through a heavy workout, with basic shooting drills occupying the first part of the drill and offensive play patterns being used as the varsity and reserve teams alternated on the offense.

Jim Wilson and Walter Norton were seen at the center position in the single post attack being used by Coach David Cook. Forwards Jimmy Sexton and Tom Cheatham looked sharp on the court and in their shooting, as did Richard Allen and Carl Ince.

The white-shirted reserves were being paced by Bobby Day, Dean White and Norton.

Another workout is on the schedule for today, but it will be lighter than Monday's drill.

Eight-Day Trip Is Planned By Raiders

An eight-day trip is planned for Texas Tech's football players when they go to California to meet San Jose State's Spartans in the Raisin Bowl Dec. 31 at Fresno.

The Raiders will leave Lubbock Dec. 28 by train, arriving in Fresno the next afternoon. Various types of entertainment will be offered by the Fresno Junior Chamber of Commerce, sponsor of the bowl.

After the Saturday game, the Raiders will go to Los Angeles, for a tour of that city and Hollywood. The Hollywood junket will include a visit at a motion picture studio.

Raisin Bowl officials also have arranged for the 36-man Tech squad to attend the Jan. 2 Rose Bowl.

The Raiders are expected to be accompanied by about 50 fans. Raisin Bowl tickets, priced at $4.80 each, went on sale Monday at the Tech athletic office. All seats allotted to the local college are situated in the midfield zone.

The return trip to Lubbock will begin Jan. 3, with arrival on the Tech campus scheduled the following afternoon.

Fort Worth TAF Boxing Meet Postponed Until Next Year

FORT WORTH, Dec. 2. (AP)—Postponement of the Texas Athletic Federation's state boxing tournament, originally scheduled here for Friday and Saturday, until next spring was announced here today by R. D. Evans, state director of boxing for the TAF.

Lack of a field large enough to warrant the expense of holding the meet was cited by Evans. This is the first time that TAF had scheduled a winter meet.

"We had team entries from Dallas, Austin and Hardin-Simmons, in addition to the Fort Worth fighters, but had no others so far," Evans said.

ASSOCIATION MEETS

FOR WORTH, Dec. 12. (AP).—The Texas Junior College Athletic Association postponed the election of officers today at its annual business session until the May convention to be held in Fort Worth. Chief business transacted was a revamping of the organization's constitution, B. W. Musgraves, president of Panola Junior college, said.

Huffman Out As Lobos' Coach

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Dec. 12 (Special)—Berl Huffman today was relieved as head football coach at the University of New Mexico and appointed to a new position—director of intercollegiate athletics at the university.

In making the move, the university board of regents also reorganized the school's athletic department, making its director responsible only to NMU President Tom Popejoy.

Huffman, who came to New Mexico after a tenure as assistant coach at Texas Tech, had been under fire for several weeks as a result of his team's poor showing during the last season, when the Lobos won only two games. New Mexico won only eight games during Huffman's three years as head mentor.

Walker Nichols, Huffman's line coach at NMU, had resigned earlier this month to join a Lubbock farm implement concern.

Popejoy said today that the regents probably will name Huffman's successors in 60 to 90 days. Two new grid coaching assistants also will be hired. College officials said no particular coach is being considered for the head mentor's post.

Six City Recreation Games Are Unreeled

Plains Ice Cream topped Rigney Auto, 65-42, in the Commercial loop, with Richard Holly leading the way with 22 points, J. M. Smith garnered 13 for the Automen.

Also at O. L. Slaton gym, in a Femme game, Reese Air Force Base trimmed Citizens National, 44-23. With scoring honors was L. Wenzlick, and she made 18 markers, compared to Betty Giles' 10 for the losers.

Anton American Legion defeated Hawkins Service, 57-41. Tied for scoring honors were Bill Woods of the Legion and Joe Wheatley of Hawkins', each with 21.

Heath and Self shared scoring as 3501 Maintenance Squadron dropped Westerner Drive-In, 39-26. Self plays with the Westerners.

Tech Freshmen outscored McAdoo Chevrolet, 69-50. Doing most of the damage for the winners was Paul Nolen, 19 points, and Dewey Carr had 18 for the losers.

Mason Ramblers turned the trick on Reese Air Force Base, 65-50. Owens and Pearcy each made 15 for the Ramblers, and Englebertsor scored 13 for Reese AFB.

Aggie Cagers Down Abilene Christian

COLLEGE STATION, Dec. 12. (AP)—The Texas Aggies hit better than 36 per cent of their shots from the floor tonight to trim Abilene Christian college, 66-45, for their first basketball victory of the season.

Wally Moon and Bill Turnbow connected quickly as the Aggies took an 8-3 lead. The Wildcats couldn't shake their men free from the close-guarding Cadets, and A & M zoomed on ahead, 31-16, at half-time.

Against mixed combinations, the Wildcats were more accurate with their shooting in the last half, but the closest they ever came was when goals by Dee Nutt and Harold Hartman reduced the Aggie margin to 55-42.

Then Jewell McDowell, Aggie star and high-point man with 15, made five points in 33 seconds and the Cadets rolled up their biggest score in their last 17 games.

Luther Scarborough Lost To Texas Cagers Due To Injury

Tech Will Meet Wayland Tonight

Texas Tech goes after its third basketball victory tonight against Wayland college's Pioneers in a game to be played in Plainview. The two freshmen teams play at 6:30 p.m.

Wayland has an even three-and-three won-loss record for the season and can be counted on to give Coach Polk Robison's Raiders five a tough battle.

Victories by the Pioneers have been over McMurry, NNMI and Sterling (Kas.). Two defeats came at the hands of East Central, while the other was a double overtime loss to New Mexico Western.

Tech has won but two games in six played, defeating McMurry and Howard Payne, and losing to West Texas in an exhibition, Rice, Trinity and Baylor.

Forward Verdell Turner injured a foot in practice Monday and is a doubtful starter for the Tech Raiders. Other probable starters are Charlie Pinnell, forward; Jiggs Jackson and Jim Eddins or Jack Alderson, guards; and Gene Gibson, center.

Pacing the Pioneer attack will be Leon (Runt) Burch, six-foot, five-inch center who has scored 75 points in six games this season. At one guard post is Billy McClellan, five-foot, eight-inch mighty mite who has 54 points in five games, and at the other guard position will be George Goodson. Probable starting forwards are Ed Billings and Bill Kinghton. Likely to see action also are Don Dalley, a regular who has been out with injuries, and Leroy Green.

A full house of 700 persons is expected for the games, and 150 tickets are on sale to the public at 90 cents each.

Manuel Ortiz Plans Defense Of Bantamweight Championship

Major Loops Vote To Finish Day Tussles Under Lights

NEW YORK, Dec. 12. (AP)—Night baseball gained new ground in the majors today as both the National and American leagues decided to finish "day" games under the lights when darkness intervenes.

The National restored the twilight-night doubleheaders they have ruled out since wartime. The American has condoned such doubles in the past.

No longer will National night games be halted by a certew at 12:50 a.m. (local time). The certew was voted out at today's meeting.

The suspended game, a headache in wartime days, was restored by the National League. Under that rule, games called on account of Sunday certew or to catch a train will be resumed at the point of interruption at a later date.

American Differs

This rule caused considerable confusion during the war years when often a game started in May would not be officially won or lost until July or August.

American league executives did not go all the way with the National in turning on lights to finish day games. They will allow this only in the last series between two clubs at the close of the season.

It looks like a showdown battle on setting up a uniform playoff system in case of a tie at the end of the regular season. The American votes to stick with its own one-game "sudden death" ending and the National still wants to play a best-of-three series as in the past. A final decision will be up to Commissioner A. B. Chandler at Wednesday's joint session.

All-Star Date Set

Tuesday, July 11 was set as he date for the 1950 All-Star game to be played at Comiskey Park, home of the Chicago White Sox.

With trade talk still largely in the negotiating stage, the majors took advantage of the lull to announce official 1949 attendance figures, showing a three per cent decrease.

Official National League figures were 9,484,718 last season as compared to 9,770,743 in 1948. St. Louis set an all-time club record by drawing 1,430,676 and the Brooklyn Dodgers and Philadelphia Phile also turned in increases. Brooklyn's 1,633,747 was high.

Yank Attendance Tops

The New York Yankees regained the major league turnstile lead from Cleveland with 2,283,676 to the Indians' 2,233,771 although both suffered a decline. Detroit and Boston were the only teams in the American that drew more in '49 than they did in '48. The Tigers set a Detroit high at 1,821,204 and the Red Sox a Fenway park mark at 1,596,650.

American League attendance last season was 10,730,647 as compared to 11,150,099, an all time high in 1948. Approximately 40 per cent of the 1949 total came through 193 night games that attracted 4,124,754.

Gilstrap, King Get Steer Appointments

AUSTIN, Dec. 12 (AP)—New "liaison" duties for a member of the University of Texas coaching staff and an addition to the staff were announced by Athletic Director Dana X. Bible.

H. C. "Bully" Gilstrap was made coordinator of liaison work between the athletic department and alumni.

J. T. King, assistant coach at Texas A. and M. college, was appointed to football Coach Blair Cherry's varsity staff to fill the vacancy left by Gilstrap's appointment.

Bible said Gilstrap would continue as a member of the coaching staff on a part-time basis.

King is a former Longhorn footballer and has coached also at Kenedy, Texi., and Enid, Okla., high schools and at Tulane university. He is to report Jan. 1.

Gilstrap's new job, Bible said, calls for him to "help us maintain cordial relations with our alumni and stimulate additional interest among our supporters."

Two of Michigan State's top hurdlers, Horace Smith and Jesse Thomas, were left halfbacks on the Spartan football team.

Highland Park's Ace Back Injured

AUSTIN, Dec. 12. (AP).— A few charley horses showed up among the Austin Maroons today as they hit the practice field for Friday's state Class AA Schoolboy football semi-final game with Port Arthur.

No one was seriously hurt. The Maroons likely will be in top shape for the game.

The Austin squad will go to Port Arthur Thursday.

SELLOUT SEEN FOR GAME BETWEEN HI-PARK, WITCHITA

WICHITA FALLS, Dec. 12. (AP). Standing room only signs went out today for the Wichita Falls-Highland Park (Dallas) Class AA schoolboy football semi-final game here Saturday.

All of the 12,000 seats were sold early today.

HIGHLAND PARK'S ACE BACK SUFFERS KNEE INJURY

DALLAS, Dec. 12. (AP)— The Highland Park Scots worked indoors today preparing for Wichita Falls Saturday. Rain kept the Scots off the field.

Coach Herman Morgan said his ace blocking back, Dick Burnet, who suffered a knee injury last week definitely was out of the Wichita Fallas game. Burnet was on crutches.

The Scott mentor, however, said he thought his team had an even chance to beat the Coyotes, who defeated Highland Park 14-7 in a mid-season practice game.

"This is the game the boys have been hoping for," He declared. "They've been wanting to meet Wichita Falls again. They're going all out this time."

UVALDE COYOTES HAVE TWO INJURED REGULAR PLAYERS

UVALDE, Dec. 12. (AP)— The Uvalde Coyotes, who meet mighty Mexia at Austin Friday in semi-finals of the Class A schoolboys football race; had two regulars on the injury list today.

Hickman White, a guard, has an injured shoulder and Johnnie Gibbens, starting tackle, got painful cuts on his fingers in a saw Friday. Gibbens definitely will start, however.

The squad will go to Austin Thursday morning. The game is set for 2 p.m.

LITTLEFIELD PREPS FOR GAME WITH GARLAND

LITTLEFIELD, Dec. 12. (AP) — All players were in top condition as Littlefield started preparation for its state Class A schoolboy football semi-final game with Garland at Vernon Friday.

The squad will go to Vernon Friday morning.

SPORTS Slants

BY CHOC HUTCHESON

About this time every year, the nation's sports writers get around to the task of voting on the "best-this-and-biggest-that" of the last 12 months.

One dubious distinction listed in most of the polls is the year's "biggest disappointment." I know for sure who will get my ballot in this division—Stan Heath.

Remember Heath? Certainly you do. He was the sensational passer for the equally-sensational University of Nevada football team in 1948. Professional grid scouts camped on his doorstep, pleading with him to sign contracts calling for annual salaries estimated at $15,000 and up. After a financial tug-o'-war with teams from the rival All-American conference, the Green Bay Packers finally collared the Nevada star.

Heath went into pro ball, all right, but I'll wager my GI insurance rebate that you haven't heard much of him since. He floped like a hooked trout, and the Packers (who had counted strongly on him to fill the gap at quarterback) flopped with him. If sportsdom ever had a complete washout, Stan probably was it.

The ironic part of the story is this: On the same Nevada team of which Heath was the highly-publicized star, there was a negro back named Sherman Howard about whom the public heard—and read—practically nothing. Howard was the team's leading scorer, but Heath was the headline-grabber. Well, Howard now is rated as the fastest-improving back in the All-America pro conference, and was such a standout with the New York Yankees that by the close of the campaign Coach Red Strader referred to him as "my No. 1 back"—over such stars as Buddy Young, Bob Kennedy, Lou Kusserow and Lowell Tew.

An anonymous Littlefield football fan has written to this desk a note praising the sportsmanship of the Ballinger High team, its backers and — particularly — its pep squad. The note pointed out that after Littlefield's resounding win over Ballinger last week, the losers' pep squad rode through downtown Odessa (site of the game) chanting a yell boosting Littlefield for the state Class A championship. It is, I readily agree, heartening to see examples of such wholesome and admirable sportsmanship. And it's just as heartening to have a fan of an opposing team take the time to write such a letter of commendation . . . Possibly I'm prejudiced, but I think Texas Tech deserved greater consideration in the all-Border conference football selections, listed elsewhere in today's Morning Avalanche sports section. It seems that the league champion should be entitled to more than three first-team, one second-team and no honorable mention places . . . Phyllis Tipton, star forward of the Levelland High girls cage team, is the daughter of that sextet's coach, Bill Tipton . . . Gordon Wood, the Seminole coach, made a pre-season prediction that Wink and Andrews would finish 1-2 in the District 5-A grid race. That's exactly how they finished in the tough ten-team loop . . . Garland, Littlefield's semifinal opponent Friday at Vernon, has scored 245 points while giving up 66 in 13 games this season. The Owls will field one of the heaviest lines Littlefield has faced this year, with a weight average of 181 pounds per man up front . . . Bill Barnett has resigned, effective Jan. 10, as assistant football coach and boys basketball coach at Slaton High. Bill has accepted a position with the W. A. Holt sporting goods company of Waco, and will be their sales representative in the Lubbock area. He has been at Slaton High since Aug. 1, 1948, and helped Clarence Tillery coach the grid team which this year won the District 4-A South championship.

Hubbers Announce Purchase Of Two Veteran Baseball Players

Faulkner Outlines Exhibition Slate

Lubbock's Hubbers bought two players at last week's meeting of the National Association of Minor Baseball leagues in Baltimore, it was announced Monday.

Hubber General Manager Harry Faulkner, who arrived in Lubbock Monday from Baltimore, said Lubbock purchased Infielder Carl McNabb and Outfielder Ben Hale, from Tyler, of the Lone Star league. Both are classed as veterans.

Faulkner said both purchases were straight cash deals, but did not disclose the purchase prices.

McNabb, who plays either second base or shortstop, was playing manager at Tyler last year. A slender six-footer, he bats and throws right, and is a pull hitter. Available records show that he hit .274 for Buffalo in the Class AAA International league in 1945, .308 for Tyler in 1947, and .299 for Tyler in 1948.

Hale, a stocky right-handed hitter, hit .293 for Tyler in 1948, with nine home runs in 107 games.

Faulkner also outlined Lubbock's spring training schedule for 1950. The Hubs will train at Donna, starting March 12. They will return to Lubbock April 7 for a series of six exhibition games which includes tilts with two Texas league clubs—Fort Worth and Oklahoma City.

Lubbock's home exhibition slate lists Oklahoma City, Albuquerque, April 11; Wichita Falls, April 14-15; [illegible] to be announced.

Before returning to Lubbock, the Hubbers will play a series of exhibitions in the Donna area and en route home. In all, they will meet two Class AA teams, three Class B nines, and five Class C clubs before the official West Texas-New Mexico league campaign begins.

M. L. Wilkison, Hubber owner, and Jackie Sullivan, manager, attended the Baltimore meeting with Faulkner.

Freddie Haas Defeats Bob Hamilton For Title In Playoff Of Miami Open Tourney

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 12. (AP)—Freddie Haas, jr., captured the second major tournament of his professional golfing career today by defeating Bob Hamilton by two strokes in an 18-hole playoff for the championship of Miami's 26th annual $10,000 golf tournament.

The former National Intercollegiate champion from New Orleans carded a one under par 35-34—69 against Hamilton's one over par 35-36—71.

Haas received $2,000 first money and Hamilton, eighth ranking money winner from Landover, Md. received $1,400 as runner-up. They also split half of the gate receipts from today's playoff.

In the final round yesterday, they both blazed a five-under-par 65 to deadlock at a record-shattering 264—three strokes under the tournment record set in 1937 by Sam Snead.

Haas shot a hole in one of the 150-yard par three fourth hole during the second round.

Hamilton suffered a bad case of putting jitters and lost all of his holes on short putts.

After turning all even at the end of the first nine holes—each carding par 35s—Hamilton missed a four-foot putt on the part three 11th while Haas holed out in par and took a one-stroke lead.

The match was evened on the next hole when Hamilton dropped a 12-footer for a birdie three.

On the long par five 13th Haas again moved into the lead when he canned a two-footer for a birdie four and Hamilton missed a short putt for even par five.

They carded even par fours on the 14th and both birdied the par five 15th.

Baylor Athletic Committee Meets

WACO, Dec. 12. (AP).— Baylor university's athletic committee met for three hours today on the school's confused athletic situation. It came out with "no comment."

Woodruff quit Friday night, saying there was an intolerable situation in the athletic department. He said he could not accept any compromise settlement between himself and Wolf.

Wolf resigned Saturday.

Solons Studying Quota Protests

placated the producers might reject cotton marketing quotas in next Thursday's referendum.

If more than a third of the farmers voting Thursday turn down the quotas then the government automatically will drop its price support program from 90 per cent of parity to 50 per cent.

Cooley said this probably would mean a $50 drop in the price of a bale of cotton, a loss of $400,000,000 to the government on cotton it owns, losses of many millions to growers to dealers, and a blow to the country's economy.

The Texas farmers who went to court complained of unfair distribution of the quota among the counties in their state, not of the Texas quota which is set at 7,632,029 acres.

The new cotton law sets a 21,000,000-acre limit on cotton acreage for 1950, a 20 per cent cut from the 1949 acreage of around 27,000,000 acres This acreage is allotted among the states and the state totals are broken down among the counties. Each grower is given his share of the county total.

But as the complicated formula worked out in many counties, some producers would take cuts up to 70 and 80 per cent. These growers are protesting.

In Chicago the directors of the American Farm Bureau federation urged cotton growers to vote to retain marketing quotas for the 1950 crop. The referendum is scheduled for next Thursday.

They recommended that the problem arising from the present acreage allotment program be separated from the cotton referendum.

"The question of correcting inequities in acreage allotments, however, should not be confused with the main issue farmers must decide on marketing quotas," a board statement said.

It added that approval of marketing quotas will mean the 1950 crop will enjoy a support price of about 28 cents a pound.

Public Aid Given

view of the inadequacies of our social insurance program."

Truman Program Urged

Thurston urged enactment of the Truman administration's "fair deal" program for compulsory national health insurance, federal aid to education, broadened social security, aid grants to states and expansion of public health services.

All these, he said, would help provide better living for low-income families.

Thurston drew expressions of surprise from some members of the joint Senate-House Economic subcommittee when he told them that perhaps three children in every average classroom of 30 pupils in the United States are "destined to spend part of their lives in a mental hospital."

"It is estimated the three million of the 30 million children now in school suffer from serious emotional and behavior problems," he said.

After the hearing, Rep. Rich (R-Pa) issued a statement denouncing Thurston's testimony as "terrorism" propaganda to bolster the Truman administration's campaign for compulsory health insurance.

"The Truman administration, determined to socialize the United States, has used every trick of propaganda and duress to put over the main plan of its socialistic program — socialized medicine," Rich said..

A reporter asked Dr. Winfred Overholser, superintendent of St. Elizabeth's hospital, huge government mental institution, for comment on Thurston's figures about mental ailments.

Dr. Overholster said Thurston's estimate that 10 per cent of American children are destined to spend part of their lives in a mental hospital is "not far off."

"My impression is that it's substantially accurate," he told a reporter. "As for his statement that 3,000,000 out of 30,000,000 school children suffer from serious emotional problems, I wouldn't question that, at all."

Dr. Overholser said statistics show that one out of every 19 adults in this country will enter a mental hospital for treatment "during his or her lifetime."

In his statement, Thurston did not directly link mental illnesses in children to low income of families.

However, he later told a reporter:

"The incidence of mental or emotional maladjustment may be as high in rich children as in poor. But if the child needs mental help it costs money, and the poor family is less able to afford treatment."

Thurston also told a reporter that five per cent of the U. S. population is now in mental hospitals and he said:

"Perhaps another five per cent should be in, if they could afford it or the facilities were available."

Thurston gave the joint committee the following breakdown on his figure of $2 billion a year in public assistance payments for the fiscal year 1949:

Federal and state payments of $1,700,000,000 — covering 2,700,000 old- age beneficiaries, 1,400,000 dependent children and 91,000 blind persons.

State and local payments of $232 million—covering one million persons who do not qualify under other categories.

Counting federal old-age and survivors insurance, payments to railroad workers and government employes who have their own social security programs, the payments to disabled veterans or their survivors, Thurston said:

"Allowing for some duplication, there are perhaps somewhere between 6,500,000 and 6,750,000 persons in the country currently in receipt of benefits from these programs.

"Many of them, perhaps most, are to be found in families with incomes under $2,000."

The federal official said that in April this year there were 5,500,000 American families headed by a non-wage earner and almost three million other individuals who are not wage earners.

Rites Set For Fire Victims In Pasadena

SPUR, Dec. 12. (Special)—The bodies of Mrs. John D. Phillips, 24, and two children Barbara Ann, six months, and Ronald Eugene, 2 who were burned to death Sunday at 7:30 a.m. when fire destroyed a two-room house seven miles northwest of here, were taken to Pasadena today.

Funeral services had not been set for the three, awaiting further recovery of the husband and father, who made the trip, an attendant at the Chandler Funeral home said. Phillips received treatment for third degree burns on his face, neck and fore arms at the Nichols General hospital here. He was taken to Pasadena Monday at 2 p.m.

A third child, Janice Marie, 3, was not burned in the fire that started when a kerosene cook stove exploded while Mrs. Phillips was cooking breakfast for the family.

Texans Push Protests

veterans in Reeves county. This request was virtually incorporated into an administrative change which will be sought by the committee.

Next Monday morning is the time set for hearing on the preliminary injunction which Coastal Bend farmers in 11 South Texas counties are seeking in the District Court of the District of Columbia to prevent the Agriculture department from puting into effect the final apportionment to counties in Texas of the state acreage allotment.

Delay Is Seen

Bill Shireman, Corpus Christi attorney, who filed the injunction application here Monday, said: "We hope for permanent injunction relief before planting time, next March. However," Shireman added, dejectedly, "we understand the courts here are 12 months behind, so we may encounter some delays before final arguments are heard. However, we may get relief from Congress before then."

Shireman confirmed that offers of help to join the Coastal Bend farmers had come from farmers in other sections of Texas including the First, Third and Thirteenth districts.

Meanwhile, Texas congressmen busied themselves sending copies of a resolution, passed here by 10 members of the House Agriculture sub-committee on cotton and by other congressmen from Texas, Georgia, California, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Mississippi, and North Carolina to constituants.

Shireman, Corpus Christi attorney, said the suit does not challenge constitutionality of the law but only the department's application of it.

The plaintiffs are Richard C. Miller, Orange Grove; G. W. Raugh, Robston; Cecil Vickers, Sinton; N. B. Tanner, Kingsville; Grover Impson, Beeville; Sam B. Ricks, Karnes City; A. E. Adolph, Three Rivers; W. F. Abney, Woodsboro; J. H. Ewing, Floresville, and Ernest W. Wehman, Pleasanton. They operate farms in Jim Wells, Nueces, San Patricio, Aransas, Kleberg, Bee, Karnes, Liveoak, Refugio, Wilson and Atacosa counties.

War Crops Ignored

The principal complaint is that the quota program for Texas does not give the Texas growers credit for the so-called war crops they planted in the years 1945 to 1948, in cooperation with the government's program to increase production of feeds and oil. They planted grain sorghums and flax.

The brief filed for the coastal bend farmers argues that the defendants "arbitrarily and capriciously" reduced the Texas quota by 119,747 acres in the process of breaking down the national allotment to the states.

This arbitrary action, they contend, thus provided Texas with a figure of 2,632,029 acres, and assignment of quotas under a plan disregarding the acreage a farmer had devoted to war crops.

The suit makes it clear that the complaintants do not ask for restoration of the 119,747 acres, but only what the law administered so that war crop acreage will be used in the 1950 quotas. It is noted that the 1950 quotas will have a bearing in determination of quotas in subsequent years.

Asking for an immediate court order which would prevent Brannan from enforcing the 1950 crop control as announced, the complainants then plead that the court compel the government to give them acreage quotas as provided under the laws relating to war crops.

Rep. Teague said amendments to be offered would try to see to it that no farmer would have his crop reduced less than 25 per cent of last year, based on a three-year program.

He said what is hurting is where a farmer does not intend to plant his alloted acres and does not release these. The department claims he must do so voluntarily.

Ralph Trigg, head of the Production and Marketing administration, and Solicitor Hunter who recently have been criticized so much by Texas farmers were at the meeting.

Four Persons Escape Injury In Car Collision Near City

Three persons in a 1940 Ford coupe and one person in a 1948 GMC panel truck escaped injury late last night in a collision at the intersection of North College Ave. and Shallowater road.

A State Highway patrolman said that the truck, driven by Fred Parker Summers, was going northwest on highway 84 while the Ford, driven by Homer Joe Philips, of Shallowater, was headed toward Lubbock from Shallowater. The accident occurred when the truck made a left had turn toward College Ave.

Two passengers in the car with Phillips were unhurt. Damage to the vehicles was minor.

Showdown Slated

committee insisted they were not given adequate notice of the previous hearing and asserted that the Democratic majority attempted a deliberate "whitewash."

Groves denied in his testimony that either Wallace or Hopkins "pressured" him in Russia's behalf. The retired general declared later, however, that the line of interrogation prevented him from giving a full picture of the Russian threat to U. S. atomic security.

Committee Counsel Frank S. Tavenner said there will be no restrictions on questions to be asked at next week's hearing Tavenner added:

"If the line of questioning takes a trend that could result in disclosure of information vital to the national security, the committee will go into executive session. But no 'gag rule' will be imposed on committee members."

Wallace Denies Charges

Wallace, vehemently denying Lewis' charges, has formally demanded an opportunity to be heard. Tavenner said that Wood has promised the ex-vice president a hearing but that no date has been set.

Meanwhile, committee investigators are trying to determine whether the White House has a secret list of U. S. officials allegedly involved in the Canadian atomic spy ring case.

Persistent Washington reports have indicated that such a list was given to President Truman by a former Canadian Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King.

The reports assert that the list contains the name of at least one former State department official.

Committee sleuths also are scrutinizing loyalty files in an effort to bring to light names of any Communist sympathizers in government who might have been involved in wartime attempts to let Russia in on the secret of the atomic bomb.

Bulgaria Warned

ly discussing the Heath incident, said that instead of complying with Heath's request in Sofia, the Bulgarian government permitted the publication of "scurrilous articles in the press."

State Department Scored

It said that these articles attacked the State department and Heath, and indicated to the Bulgar public that the department had lied deliberately in stating that Heath never had seen Kostov nor exchanged words with him.

One article in particular was cited. It appeared in "Otechestven Front," under the signature of Todor Guenov, director of political department of the Bulgarian foreign office. This article accused the American government of engaging in espionage and subversive activity through official representatives. The department said:

"These most recent actions of the Bulgarian government directed against the American minister are not an isolated development.

"For some time the United States legation in Sofia has been subjected to a series of indignities and restrictions including false charges against American officials, intimidation and persecution of local Bulgarian employes, refusal to issue visas to personnel assigned to the legation, and various restrictions on travel and housing."

Hoover Urges

the ends."

Hoover said the four main objectives in the "crusade' for government reforms are: Help national fiscal and economic "survival" by cutting costs; promote education in good government; preserve the American experiment, and help in winning the cold war.

The way to win the cold war, he declared, "is to reduce our wastes, give competence a chance, and defer some government ventures." He said:

"By these reforms and these self-denials, we can help disappoint Mr. Stalin."

Program Is Outlined

His "what to do next" program, which he estimated would save $2 billion a year, would:

1. Reorganize the civil service where he said "red tape himself dwells," by decentralizing employment and control of personnel among the different agencies, subject to rules fixed by the civil service commission.

2. Reorganize budgeting and accounting by rebuilding the budget on a "performance" basis so that costs of operations can be determined. Hesaid the government has an estibated $27 billion of personal property, and that it might "live off this fat for quite a while."

Postal Setup Scored

3. Reorganize the postal system, "a relic of Ben Franklin plus 160 years of oft-conflicting laws," and take it out of politics.

4. Unify federal hospital services, cut out waste and give the armed forces and veterans better medical service.

5. Unify the federal water conservation services, mainly the Army engineers and Bureau of Reclamation, and end competition and overlapping functions. He said "a pork barrel floats in those rivers."

6. Unify the competing land management services of the Agriculture and Interior departments. Speaking of federal lands, he said "millions are being wasted 'in them thar hills'."

7. Unify transportation services and aim at a "balanced national transport system."

Relief for President Urged

8 Give the President "relief" by cutting in half the 65 agencies that report to him directly. He declared if the President gave one hour a week to these agencies he would never have tome to pass on major policies "or attend an occasional game."

The high cost of government, he declared, "is a combustion of your savings and your possible standards of living." He declared economists "seem to agree that taxation beyond 25 per cent of our national income will bring disaster."

Hoover pointed out that the last session of Congress adopted several of the recommendations of his commission on government reorganization.

He predicted savings in the Defense establishment alone of a billion dollars a year and said Defense Secretary Johnson believes $2 billion can be saved "without impairing national defense." Hoover declared:

"We are already clearing the tracks for competence in government."

Hoover said "there are still people who hold to the theory of reduced government expenses but not to its practice." He added:

"Your job is to minister to their mental disorders . . .

"We must conserve our strength and stop wasting our heritage if we are to survive as a free people."

Airman, Stationed Here, Pleads For Life Of Condemned Brother

DENVER, Dec. 12 (INS)—Sgt. Harold Schneider, brother of a 23-year-old man scheduled to die this week in Colorado's lethal gas chamber, today asked Gov. Knous of Colorado to intervene.

The Army sergeant, stationed at Lubbock, was granted an interview with the governor to discuss the case of Paul J. Schneider, convicted slayer of a Denver filling station operator.

The soldier had no comment upon leaving the governor's office, but appeared somewhat downcast. The convicted man has won seven reprieves, but there has been no indication that an eighth will be forthcoming.

CANON CITY, Colo., Dec. 12 (INS) — A 23-year-old convicted slayer, scheduled to walk the 'last mile" Friday night to Colorado's lethal gas chamber, is using his last hours to write down his religious beliefs.

Paul J. Schneider, confessed slayer of three persons, is spending the last days of his life in the "death row" at Canon City.

The state has officially set his execution for the week of Dec. 11. Customarily, prisoners who are sentenced to death walk to the gas chamber on Friday evening of the week set.

He was convicted on Jan. 23, 1948, for the kidnap-slaying of Denver filling station operator Frank J. Ford. The stays of execution were based on the contention he was denied due process of law following his arrest two years ago in Kentucky.

Schneider, who also confessed killing two filling station attendants near Detroit, Mich., will be accompanied to the death chamber by the Rev. Sidney A. Hoadley, the new Protestant prison chaplain.

Former Superior Says Hiss Labeled 'Fellow Traveler'

NEW YORK, Dec. 12. (AP)— A former superior of Alger Hiss testified today that Hiss once was labelled in some government circles as "a fellow traveler."

One of Hiss' own character witnesses, Dr. Stanley K. Hornbeck, gave the testimony during cross examination. He is a former ambassador to France, and said that he had heard fellow workers describe Hiss as "a fellow traveler" some time between 1939 and 1943.

Mrs. Abbott, who had traveled to California to attend a funeral, was stricken by a heart attack.

Her husband and children were at her bedside when she died, friends said.

of the cold and held a little heat to the ground.

Amarillo had a low of 14 degrees Monday morning, Clarendon 18, Childress 23, Wichita Falls 30, Wink and Midland 29 and Big Spring and El Paso 33.

But temperatures rose considerably during the day — to a high of 42 at Amarillo, for example.

As the norther edged on southward late Monday, temperatures were falling gradually. Waco's noon reading of 50 dropped only five degrees by nightfall. San Antonio still had a fairly mild 52.

Central Texas readings were still in the low forties Monday night. Austin expected a low of around 35 degrees. In South Texas, the oncoming norther pushed temperatures into the fifties, from summery afternoon readings.

Brownsville, at the entreme south tip of the state, had 56 degrees Monday night—still mild but cool enough to show that a cold wave was headed for that balmy region.

Rain fell Monday night at Galveston, Houston and Beaumont. It had fallen earlier at Bryan, Fort Worth, Lufkin and Dallas, among a number of points.

NATION'S WEST, MIDWEST FEELS TINGLING COLD

(By The Associated Press)

Tingling cold was the keynote of weather for most of the nation's middle and western reaches Monday.

The picture was less violent than the week-end of tornadoes, gales, blizzards, fogs and icy rains which took 45 lives. But, except in the eastern third of the counery, conditions were pretty numb all over.

The mercury, which dipped to a bitter 27 below zero at Big Piney, Wyo., performed low register antics that distressed residents of the Southwest.

It was 13 below at Gallup, N. Mex., for example. Even Southern California had its zero readings—in the mountains—and water pipes cracked in freezing weather which hit much of the state.

The eastern third of the nation had milder weather, with widely scattered rains.

The windy violence which hit the plains during the week-end abated somewhat, and snowfall declined to flurries in Minnesota, Wisconsin and upper Michigan.

Four Dead In Crash

might still be found.

The plane, a two-engine DC-3, had circled National airport for about an hour, groping for direction by radar and radio. But some time before the crash all contact with the ground by means of these devices was lost.

The plane hit the water about in midstream, about half way between National airport and the Air Force's Bolling field.

The spot was not far from where 55 persons lost their lives early in November as a surplus Air Force fighter plane, flown by a Bolivian, sliced into an Eastern airliner.

Crowd Jams River Banks

When word of tonight's crash was flashed throughout the capital, about 49 ambulances rushed to the scene. The river bank was crowded with curious throngs, straining to see rescue operations through the fog.

An indication that many of the survivors were in bad shape came when Bolling Air Force hospital, to which they were taken, sent out for extra supplies of blood and plasma.

The District of Columbia chapter of the Red Cross rushed 16 units of whole blood to the hospital. The chapter also dispatched canteen and motor corp volunteers to assist the rescue and salvage workers.

Woman Unidentified

A couple of hours after the accident the dead passenger was still unidentified. She was "red-haired."

Persons on the river bank reported hearing moans and screams. However, they could not even determine the direction because of the sound distortions in the fog.

It was impossible to see anything on the river from shore, except the faint glare of the crash boats as they moved about.

The search was complicted by conflicting reports as to where the crash occurred. Some police cars and fire equipment rushing to the scene were sent in the wrong direction.

A crash boat from Bolling field finally found the plane by almost bumping into it as it felt its way through the fog.

Survivors Rushed To Hospitals

The boat crew set to work at once transferring the survivors to boats and rushing them to the hospital at the Bolling Air base. The first four to be brought ashore were carried on stretchers. These were followed by five survivors walking, some with blood streaming down their faces.

One of the first survivors to talk to reporters was Robert Hensley, a Navy man who boarded the plane at Norfolk, Va., enroute to Philadelphia on Christmas leave. He said he had a seat at the rear of the plane.

As the plane made its approach he said it bounced around a little bit. Passengers had been ordered to fasten their belts and the no smoking sign was on.

Side Was Split Open

"We couldn't see anything because of the fog. The left side of the ship was split open and I climbed out on the wing. That is the first I knew that we were on water. The ship was afloat and another passenger (identified later as Jeff Buchanon from the U. S. Worcester) and I helped get other survivors on the wing."

He said some of his fellow passengers were smashed up and he attempted to apply a tourniquet on the leg of one man. It was about 20 minutes before rescuers reached the ship, he said.

He and Buchanon cried out and the searchers could hear them but could not see them for a while. Hensley was treated for shock while Buchanon, who said he is 25 and from Laurel, Miss., suffered an injury to his right eye. Buchanon said:

"We had started what appeared to be a normal landing when the first thing you know we dipped straight down to the left and hit hard as hell. I crawled out through the side of the plane. It was all smashed to pieces."

Shortly before midnight, Col. Sydney Grubbs, Air Force officer in charge at Bolling field, said there were two or three persons still aboard the plane. They are presumed dead, he said.

The fact that the fuselage of the plane ripped open when it crashed in very shallow water enabled many of the passengers to escape, Grubbs said.

Fog was terrific, even on the ground. Many other airplanes were "stacked up" awaiting a chance to land. The crashed plane itself, during its hour of circling, almost landed once. That attempt failed when the plane's radio lost contact, it was reported, and the ship climbed for another try.

Then all contact was lost. Attempts to track it in by radar failed.

A short time later came word that it had been located in the river.

Mysterious Germ Blamed In Death Of Newborn Infants

GANDER, Newfoundland, Dec. 12 (INS)—Nine newborn infants, victims of a mysterious germ believed to have been imported by trans-Atlantic plane, have died in the hospital of the isolated airport community of Gander during the past few weeks.

A report on this northern Newfoundland tragedy was made today by Dr. James Paton, senior medical officer at the Sir Frederick Banting Memorial hospital at Gander, where all of the deaths occured.

The first death was that of a German infant, taken off a New York bound trans-Atlantic plane at Gander in late November.

The next day, another child, also from Germany, was taken ill over the Atlantic and when the plane on which it was aboard arrived in Gander, the child was removed to the airport hospital. It died within a few days.

Within the next week, Dr. Paton said, seven Newfoundland infants, who were confined to the hospital's nursery, also died of the unknown ailment. All of the victims were only a few weeks old, in some instances only a few days of age.

Texas Couples Seeking Marriage Deprive Louisiana Clerk Of Sleep

LAKE CHARLES, La., Dec. 12. (AP)—There's nothing more impatient than prospective brides and grooms from Texas, court Clerk Acton Hillebrandt said between yawns today.

It seems more and more Texas couples are coming to Lake Charles for marriage licenses due to the new state law requiring blood tests. All but three of the 14 couples who obtained licenses here over the week end were from Texas.

"So many of them get in here at night," he complained.

"I wish somebody would tell them that Louisiana has a three-day marriage license law. They call me up at all hours of the night and I tell them they have to wait 72 hours to get married after they get their license, so why don't they wait until my office opens at 8:30 in the morning."

His telling them after they get to Lake Charles doesn't do any good, Hillebrandt added. By the time he is back in bed they're around knocking on his door and pleading with him to waive the 72-hour waiting period.

"The law says the waiting period can be waived in emergency cases, but some of the boys from Texas seem to think it is an emergency just because they came all the way from Houston or San Antonio and just don't want to wait around three days to get married."

Hillebrandt was asked what constituted an emergency.

The clerk raised his head slowly and said, "My getting some sleep."

Audience Applauds Opening Program By Little Theater Group

By ROGER SOUTHALL
Avalanche Staff Writer

Proof once again that local talent can draw as enthusiastic response from their audience as professional players was manifested last night with the presentation of "The Male Animal" by the Lubbock Little Theater, Inc.

The presentation is the second of the current season. The play will be presented again at 8 p.m. today in the auditorium of the O. L. Slaton Junior High school.

Cast members evidently were told by their director to "enjoy yourselves on the stage," for they seemed to get as much fun out of playing their respective parts as the audience did watching them.

Real Comedy Presented

And for the most part, cast members kept their scenes up to the level of real comedy rather than mere slapstick.

Drawing laughs from the audience were Mallory Byrd, who plays the part of Cleota, the maid; Guy Wilson as Tommy Turner, the college professor; Betty Rhea Moxley as Patricia Stanley, a typical co-ed whose man problems are more provoking than any college trig course; and Bert McGinnis, jr., who played the part of Joe Ferguson, a former star football player who returns to his alma mater for a homecoming weekend.

Other Roles Given

Other good characterizations were turned in by Richard Kelisky as Ed Keller, a fire-and-brimstone breathing college trustee; Jeane Tinsley as Ellen Turner, wife of the professor, whose methods of holding her man frequently take a circuitous route; and Gerald Wayne Tippit as Michael Barnes, editor of the college magazine who starts all the fuss in the first place.

The part of Patricia Stanley was played by Betty Rhea Moxley instead of by Anne Eskin as had been previously announced.

Mrs. John Robert Moxley was director of the presentation, and Mrs. C. C. Caldwell was assistant director.

out of Communist hands.

The cost would be low — a most inexpensive investment to help stem Communism — the source said, although he mentioned no figures.

As for reforms on restive Formosa, the source said currency, land and other administrative advanecments had been made during the last six months. He said the government now was planning to push political reforms immediately. He said U.S. advice on the scene would be welcomed.

Armaments Needed

This source said that, while he was not fully familiar with arms stocks on Formosa, arms replenishment was urgent. (This is at variance with various reports from outside Formosa that the island is heavily stock-piled with military equipment.)

The source said the recent fighting had consumed vast quantities of war supplies and competent American military men on the spot could quickly check what was needed.

He concluded that there were many signs of changing American policy towards China which would lead to more positive action and boost Nationalist morale.

Earlier, in an interview, Premier Yen Hsi-Shan said any U.S. aid move would be extremely gratifying.

Tao Hsi-Shen, vice minister of information and close advisor of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, declared: "This news encourages us, to fight for Formosa is to fight for collective security of the Pacific."

High sources who refused to be quoted by name said the Nationalists had spent $200,000,000 (U.S.) of their dwindling hoard in six-months and were rapidly going broke.

They estimated the Nationalists would need at least $1,000,000 a day to carry on the war — and more if forces still on the mainland succeed in holding out.

(A Communist broadcast from Peiping said the Nationalist mainland armies were rapidly disappearign. It declared nearly all of Gen. Pai Chung-Hsi's army — estimated originally at about 25,000 — had been knocked out in southern Kwangsi while trying to flee to the island of Hainan in recent days.)

Desertions Admitted

(A Formosa dispatch acknowledged that many of Pai's soldiers had deserted).

Nationalist chiefs were heartened also by news that Gen. Chang Chun had arrived safely in Hong Kong.

Entirely unconfirmed reports in Taipeh said the 26th army, one of four in Yunnan, was still loyal to the Nationalists and was marching on Kunming for a showdown. Its commander and many officials of the Nationalist defense ministry are in the turncoats' hands in Kunming.

Nationalist authorities said they still were in radio contact with Chengtu, the erstwhile capital abandoned last week upon the Communist approach. The Chengtu garrison was reported still manning the defense.

Federal Egg-Buying Program Is Opposed By Majority Of Voters

By GEORGE GALLUP, Director
(American Institute Of Public Opinion)

PRINCETON, N. J. Dec. 12—The Federal government's egg-buying program may be popular with poultry farmers—but from the consuming public it gets the bird.

So does the potato buying program.

Toward the close of the last session of Congress the Senate Agriculture Committtee appointed a special sub-committee to look into the government egg-price support program and report back with recommendations.

To find out what the general public thinks about the program, interviewers for the Institute sounded the views of a nationwide cross-section on this question:

"The government in Washington is now buying up large quantities of eggs to keep the market price of eggs up and insure a fair income to poultrymen. What is your opinion of this government egg price-support program?"

Here is the vote:

Approve (good idea, sometimes overdone, all right if not wasted	25%
Disapprove (wrong, terrible, prices too high, food wasted, too costly, gov't. should stop interfering, etc.)	61
Neutral (part good, part bad)	4
No opinion	10

As price protection for farmers, U. S. government agencies have bought up hundreds of millions of dozens of eggs, which have been powdered and kept in storage, some in a refrigerated limestone cave in Kansas.

As of Sept. 1 the Commodity Credit Corp. owned $90,000,000 worth of dried eggs.

Potato Program Costly

The potato - buying program cost the Federal government $224,000,000 during the year 1948. The crop was unusually large and resulted in a surplus of 133,000,000 bushels. The Agriculture Department threatened to remove price support for Irish potatoes unless farmers control market and production more rigidly.

This year, however, the government is expected to have an earlier time with its potato program because the surplus is smaller and the grower's price guarantee is lower.

Here are the views of Mr. and Mrs. Public on the potato program:

"The government in Washington is now buying up tens of millions of bushels of potatoes to keep the market price of potatoes up and insure a fair income to the growers. What is your opinion of this government potato price-support program?"

Approve	30%
Disapprove	58
Neutral	4
No opinion	8

The issue of farm price subsidies is expected to be one of the major questions in the new session of Congress which begins in January.

The Brannan Plan

The cost to the consumer of subsidies, in the form of high prices, is one of the factors which led Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan to propose the so-called Brannan Plan. Under this plan, farm prices would be allowed to seek their own level, without any government supports. The government would then make up the difference to the farmer between the price he gets for his product and the parity price.

The Brannan Plan, which seeks to accomplish the double purpose of low prices to consumers but good incomes to farmers, has aroused a controversy in farm circles. A fight over the measure is expected in Congress if President Truman recommends the Brannan Plan in his message on the opening of Congress.

Body Of Pilot Is Found In Wreckage Of Fighter Plane

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Dec. 12 (U.P.)—The wreckage of an Air National Guard P-47 Thunderbolt fighter plane and the body of its pilot were found today on a farm one mile northwest of Georgetown.

State police said the body was "positively identified" as that of Lt. Robert T. Mankey, 26, a Syracuse university student.

Mankey, a flier with the 138th Fighter squadron, Air National guard, had taken off yesterday from Hancock Field, Syracuse, on a routine training flight.

An air and land search for the missing plane was started when the plane failed to report before its three-hour fuel supply became exhausted.

Supreme Court Upholds Rent Control Law

State Laws Not Upset By Ruling

By FREDERIC TUTTLE
INS Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12—The Supreme court ruled today that the federal rent control law is constitutional and retained validity of rent ceiling under which an estimated 14 million American tenants dwell.

The high tribunal's decision was announced in a single, brief sentence reversing the finding of a Chicago judge that the national rent law is invalid.

No vote was given on the decision, since it was announced merely as "per curiam"—by the court as a whole. The decision asserted:

"The judgment (of the lower court) is reversed."

The Supreme court's action means that all federal rent ceilings are legal and remain in effect until lifted by procedures set forth in the rent control law.

Housing Expediter Tighe Woods lauded the high court's verdict and said that the tribunal "in effect rules that the housing shortage growing out of the war still exists."

Strike Law Study Set

In another action, the high bench agreed to rule on the constitutionality of a Michigan law limiting the right to strike.

The law, which prohibits all strikes unless approved by a majority of the workers in a state-conducted election, was challenged by the CIO auto workers' union. The court also:

1. Held that an insurance company can sue the government to recover benefits paid an insured person who would have been able to bring suit against the government.

2. Ruled that the federal amusement tax applies to non-profit bathing beaches operated by local authorities.

To Settle Dispute

3. Agreed to settle a dispute over jurisdiction between the National Labor Relations board and the employment relations board of Wisconsin involving discharge of an employe from the Plankinton Packing Co., of Milwaukee.

4. Passed up an opportunity to decide whether a state can ban peaceful picketing that causes economic injury to a person or a firm not involved in a labor dispute.

In its rent decision, the high bench merely cited an earlier ruling in which it upheld the 1947 rent law as "a valid exercise of war powers" by Congress.

Powers Claimed Delegated

The Chicago ruling was handed down by Federal Judge Elwyn R. Shaw, who contended that in the 1949 rent law Congress had delegated powers to the local authorities in an illegal manner.

LUBBOCK MORNING AVALANCHE

Girlstown Plans Ceremony Today

GIRLSTOWN, U.S.A., Dec. 12. (Spl.)— The cornerstone of Plains residence, 32-bedroom home being constructed at Girlstown, will be laid in a ceremony at sundown Tuesday.

Rev. W. H. Hughes, pastor of the Whiteface First Baptist church, will offer a prayer. Notes by the director, newspaper accounts of events in Girlstown history, and photographs will be placed in the cornerstone by Miss Amelia Anthony, director. The cornerstone is to be opened 50 years hence.

Sundown is due at 5:39 p.m. Tuesday.

A member of every building craft of the trade unions is to be represented in work on the residence at Girlstown and all of the building crafts are to be represented at the cornerstone laying ceremony.

The director has stated visitors will be welcome for the brief ceremony. Open house, which would have been held Tuesday night if a wing of the building had been completed, is to be conducted at a later date.

Classes To Be Resumed At George M. Hunt School Today

Classes at George M. Hunt elementary school will be resumed on schedule this morning after they were dismissed at 12:30 p.m. Monday because of lack of sufficient heat in parts of the building, Preston E. Davis, principal, said last night.

The lack of heat was attributed to failure of a boiler burner, said Ishmael Hill, assistant superintendent of schools.

Repairs to the faulty heating equipment were made Monday afternoon by E. J. Wallace, schools maintenance foreman, and a crew.

Officials assured parents that the entire building will be adequately heated this morning.

School buses picked up children living on bus routes at 12:30 p.m. Monday and took them home. The upper north rooms of the building were affected by the boiler burner failure.

The U. S. Bureau of Reclamation estimates western American rivers could generate as much electricity in a year as 600,000,000 barrels of petroleum burned in steam plants.

Meeting Slated At Texas Tech Thursday

Study Of Need For Dairies Is Set Here

A meeting designated to interest Lubbock county farmers in establishing dairies has been called by County Agent D. W. Sherrill for 1:30 p. m. Thursday in the Texas Tech Aggie auditorium.

An outline of the milk supply in Lubbock, together with the amount of money spent for dairy products outside the city milkshed will be given those attending the meeting. Requirements for grade A milk plus pointers on stock care will also be reviewed.

Farmers Missing Money

Sherrill said the meeting is being called in an effort to get farmers of this area interested in dairy farming so that they might cash in on the thousands of dollars spent outside of Texas each month for milk coming into Lubbock.

Dr. J. J. Willingham, head of the dairy manufacturing department at Tech will discuss the milk supply situation here, while George Wilson of the Bell Ice Cream and Milk company will tell approximately how much money is spent in Lubbock for milk.

W. T. Hayden will tell about artificial breeding services offered in this area and Walter Gardner of the health department will give the requirements for Grade A products. Dr. F. G. Harbaugh, Tech veterinarian, will discuss diseases of cattle and how to avoid them.

Much Milk Shipped In

"Much of the milk consumed in Lubbock daily is shipped here from as far away as Wisconsin," Dr. Willingham declared, "And Lubbockites pay the taxes as well as the price of the milk into that state."

Both Willingham and Sherrill have expressed great interest in the establishment of small dairies in this region in order to supplement income of farmers who will perhaps have their cotton acreages cut next year.

"The city of Lubbock alone is consuming an ever-increasing amount of milk," Dr. Willingham asserted. "There are big profits in the dairy business here if farmers will only take advantage of them."

COUNCIL MEETINGS — Three Texas Tech dormitory counselors are shown above as they talk to their supervisor about house problems prior to a period meeting to discuss policies and activities toward and for the residents. Such meetings keep the counselors well-informed on campus matters in order that they may relay their information to all students living in the dormitories. Counseling Program At Tech Showing Impressive Results

By KENNETH MAY
Avalanche Staff Writer

Students do just about as they please in the dormitories at Texas Technological college. And the school is gaining in stature over the state because of it.

Dormitory supervisors seldom order a student to get quiet, radios are played as loud as the individual wishes, and little effort is made to restrain students from defacing walls and floors.

But if you belong to the teetotaler league, or perhaps a "Be Kind to Dumb Sophomores" club, there's no need to start playing cops and robbers with Tech officials. Because there just "ain't no such doings" in the dormitories. The students themselves see to that.

Students Handle Own Problems

The magis formula works something like this: Each dormitory has one superviser at the head of six or eight student counselors, all of whom endeavor to make other students feel that they are a part of the dorm organization and that the building belongs to them. Result? Less rowdiness and more study for the inhabitants.

Inaugurated a little over a year ago by Dean of Men James G. Allen, the counselors program, as it is called, has attracted statewide attention among other colleges. Many are planning to send representatives here to learn how the system functions.

To accomplish their purpose of quiter and cleaner dormitories, the supervisors place the problem on a fellow-student basis rather than an official-student plane. Persons are asked to talk lower because someone down the hall wants to study, not because loud noises are against regulations.

Make Students Welcome

"We try to make the student feel he is wanted at Texas Tech," Dean Allen stated. "When he is sure of that and realizes we are on his side, he automatically does a thing we ask him to do because he subconsciously feels we are a friend of his."

The plan does away with many problems before the students realize there is any problem with which to deal, Allen asserts. "If a counselor or supervisor suggests something which might improve a situation, most dorm students do them of their own volition because that same counselor has perhaps done him a favor a few days earlier."

Under the Tech program, one student counselor is stationed on each floor of each dormitory wing. It is his duty to welcome new students at the beginning of each semester, help them get acquainted around the dorm and campus and give them counsel should any problem arise. Weekly meetings are staged among the supervisors and they in turn hold sessions with the counselors.

In the case of freshmen, the dormitory supervisor himself has a personal conference with each as soon as the first grade reports are delivered each semester. In this way and others, an effort is made to make all the students feel the dormitory staff has a personal interest in their welfare and wants to help them. By the time these students are sophomores, most of them have the idea so deeply rooted within them that they help the system accomplish its aim, accord-

UN Jerusalem Decision Arouses New Dissension In Middle East

LONDON, Dec. 12 (AP)—The United Nations decision to internationalize Jerusalem has brought new dissension to the simmering Middle East.

In one camp were the onetime battlefield opponents and present occupiers of the Holy City—Jewish Israel and Arab Hashemite Jordan, now united in their defiance of the UN assembly resolution adopted Friday night.

In the other lineup, accepting UN internationalization as a "lesser evil," were the remaining six members of the Arab league—Egypt, Iraq, Saudi Arabia, Syria, Lebanon and Yemen. All voted in the UN Assembly to internationalize the Holy City.

There was no official indication of what action Israel or Jordan would take to prevent the proposed international regime from taking over. From both countries however, came threats even of armed action.

Dr. Daniel Auster, mayor of Jewish Jerusalem (the new city), said his government would fight, "if necessary with arms," any attempt to set up the international regime.

One of Jordan's political leaders, Ismail Bilbasi of the Annahda party, told a news conference his country would fight against the internationalization. Jordan controls the old walled city of Jerusalem containing most of the religious shrines.

King Abdullah's minister in Cairo, Baha Eddin Toukan, said his government 'does not accept internationalization" and has cabled UN Secretary General Trygve Lie protesting the decision.

But Azzam Pasha, secretary general of the Arab league, said the other Arab and Moslem states accepted the UN decision "with a feeling of satisfaction and relief" since Jerusalem "will not be under Jewish control."

In Tel Aviv, the Israeli capital, Jewish opinion appeared determined to block the international regime by any means short of armed force. Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion said no UN vote could alter "the historic fact that Jerusalem is an inseparable part of Israel and her eternal capital."

The Israeli parliament has already adopted a motion refusing any foreign or international regime entry to Jerusalem and declaring the Holy City will remain a part opponents of the internationalizaof Israel. In the UN Assembly had no armed forces at its disposal to enforce the plan if Hashemite Jordan and Israel refused to accede.

Opinion in Tel Aviv indicated two possible courses of action for Israel were shaping up:

1. A bilateral pact between the Jewish state and King Abdullah to preserve the present division of the Holy City into Arab and Jewish halves;

2. A possible proclamation of the Jewish-held part of Jerusalem as the capital of Israel before the UN can set up its international regime.

ATTACK BLAMED ON POLITICS

Oklahoma Solon Denies Payroll Charges Made By Drew Pearson

TIPTON, Okla., Dec. 12. (AP).—Rep. Victor Wickersham, (D.-Okla.), today denied any irregularities in his congressional payroll, as charged by columnist Drew Pearson.

"I haven't seen his column, but I'm not surprised at anything Pearson says," Wickersham said. "The people out here don't pay any attention to him. I've operated my office properly, and there's no need for any investigation."

Pearson suggested in his column this morning that the Justice department might look at Wickersham's payroll. He said the congressman from Mangum, Okla., is paying two men, James W. Taylor and Lloyd Matthews, from the public treasury although they are not working for him.

Names, Salaries Given

Taylor draws a salary of $7,720 a year from Wickersham, while Matthews has been paid $2,298 while working in Wickersham's Washington real estate office, Pearson reported.

Wickersham said neither one is now on his payroll, but that they formerly were—"and earned every penny they got."

"Jim Taylor has been my district manager for two or three years, and I paid his expenses out of my own pocket," the congressman said.

"I put him on the payroll for three months this fall, but he didn't make anything out of it. He's worked many months for nothing. He isn't on the payroll now, but he's still working for me. He goes around the district getting all the complaints and writing me about them—and any other details in the district."

Firm Denies Report

Pearson said Taylor is a salesman for the Herd Equipment Co. of Oklahoma City. However, a company spokesman said today Taylor is an independent dealer for the firm at Hobart, Okla., "and I hope you know the difference between a dealer and an employe."

Wickersham said Lloyd Matthews, of Clinton, Okla., "has worked for me as a clerk at times, and also has worked for my real estate firm, which is run by my brother-in-law, Paul Butterfield."

"He hasn't worked in my office for several months, and hasn't been on my payroll, either," he said. "I told the proper authorities when he went on the payroll and when he went off."

Pearson also mentioned Wickersham's payroll practices in his nationwide (ABC) broadcast last night.

Pearson's reports in the payroll "finagling" of J. Parnell Thomas preceded criminal charges against the one-time chairman of the House un-American Activities committee. Parnell, New Jersey Republican resigned from Congress last week after being sentenced to prison. He pleaded "no defense" to charges of accepting "kickbacks" from his employes.

Wickersham blamed the Pearson attack on "politics."

"I have some opponents coming up," he said, "and they're always springing something like this.

"I'm not surprised at anything Pearson says, either. I won't repeat what President Truman said about him, but I'm willing to stand on what those who know him best say about him."

Driver Leaves Car In Home, Boot Also

PLAINS, Dec. 12. (Special)—Yoakum county peace officers today had a good clue to help them find a motorist who drove right into a residence and then fled, leaving a friend asleep in the car.

The man ran afoul of the law here at 2 a. m. today when he made a new opening at the two story garage apartment of Odis Lusk, a service station owner.

He was driving a friend's car at the time. Deputy Sheriff Bob Wiley found the friend, a resident of Post, sleeping soundly. He was unaware that his vehicle was protruding several feet into Lusk's residence.

But the driver was gone. However, he did leave an interesting clue. Wiley found one of his boots.

Water Holiday For New York Planned

NEW YORK, Dec. 12. (AP).—New York City's millions were asked today to observe a water holiday next Friday in a "super effort" to conserve the dwindling water supply.

Water Supply Commissioner Stephen J. Carney announced plans for the holiday as he released figures to show 700 million fewer gallons of water in storage in the last 24 hours. The number of hours users would be asked to refrain from turning on their taps Friday was not announced immediately.

The loss occurred, Carney said, despite voluntary average savings of 153 million gallons and a light rainfall.

TREATIES MAY EASE HAZARDS

U. S. Seeks Increased Private Investment In Latin-America

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 12. (INS)—A State department official said today that the government hopes that a series of bi-lateral treaties will result in a greater flow of private U.S. capital to Latin-America.

The statement was made by Willard F. Barber, deputy assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, in a speech at Los Angeles Town hall.

He said that the most important obstacles to private investments by U.S. citizens in Latin-American countries are:

Inability to transfer earnings and capital, restrictions imposed on the operation and control of enterprises, threats of expropriation, and general political instability in some countries.

He indicated that the treaty on commerce and economic development signed last month with Uruguay would be a model for agreements which the United States would endeavor to conclude with other Latin-American governments.

Under the Uruguayan treaty, citizens of one country may set up and operate business enterprises, in the other on the same footing as citizens of that country.

They will be permitted to withdraw earnings on invested capital in equitable and adequate amounts, and, should their property be taken by the government of the other country for any reason, they will receive adequate compensation.

Barber said that guarantees proposed under President Truman's point four program would also aid in promoting U. S. investments in Latin-America. He declared:

"U.S. private capital is potentially the major external source of investment capital for development in Latin-America.

"Its importance lies not only in its contribution of funds but equally its contribution of technical, managerial and organizational skills necessary to put capital to effective use.

"The greater part of our own industrial technology has been developed by private organizations and can best be fostered abroad through private channels.

Barber said the U.S. has "a great momentum" which "could easily expand into Latin-America in proportions never before visualized."

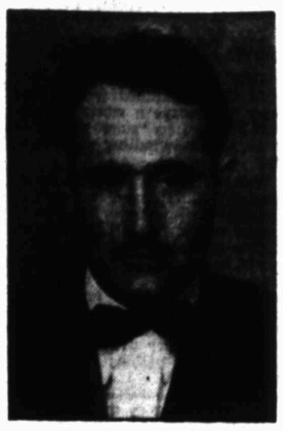

However, he emphasized that obstacles must be removed and guarantees must be provided to give U.S. investors an incentive.

Baptist Minister Takes Over As New Pastor In Lubbock

Dr. E. Lee McCormick recently was called as pastor of the Myrtle Drive Baptist church on the east outskirts of Lubbock.

Rev. McCormick began his duties as pastor of the local church several weeks ago.

He is a graduate of Wayland Baptist college, Plainview, and Christian Theological college, and holds an honorary degree from the latter institution.

During World War II, he served as assistant chaplain to the 55th Battalion of C.B's, and later served with Rev. N. J. Westmoreland, Dr. Garland W. Morrison, and others in the establishment and early work of the Southern Baptist convention in the state of Kansas.

Last January, Rev. McCormick was called as pastor of the Kellerville Baptist church of Kellerville, Texas. Two days after his arrival there, the church structure burned. The pastor and his congreation immediately set about planning a new building and raising funds for its construction. With $1,500 to begin with, he led the congregation in the erection of a new $30,000 edifice which was dedicated in August. It was entirely free of debt at the time.

Rev. McCormick came to Lubbock in September to enroll in Texas Tech to complete work toward his master of education degree. He was called to the pastorate of the Myrtle Drive Baptist church in October.

The new pastor and his congregation now are working toward the construction of a new church building at the corner of Myrtle Drive and East Fourteenth. It is hoped that construction can be started by March 1 and completed by the first Sunday in August.

The church has succeeded in paying off several debts recently. Sunday school and church worship attendance have almost doubled sinve Rev. McCormick assumed the pastorate of the church.

Four Wounded In Barricade Battle

MEADOWBROOK, Wash., Dec. 12. (INS)—Four men were wounded, one critically, today when a 60-year-old bachelor barricaded himself in an auto court cabin and "shot it out" with authorities.

Most seriously wounded was State Patrolman Paul H. Johnson, who was shot in the forehead with a .22 calibre bullet. He was taken to Providence hospital in Seattle after being given first aid at Nelem hospital at North Bend, Wash. His condition was described as "very critical."

Three Others Hurt

Also wounded were Gordon Peters, about 60, who will be transferred from Nelems hospital to Marine hospital in Seattle with a chest wound; C. F. Johnston, 64, shot in the face, and George Fitzgerald, 38, an arm wound.

The gunman, who gave his name as Walter Peden, was taken to King county jail in Seattle on an open charge.

All the wounded men but Officer Johnson lived at Ernie's Grove Auto court, where the gun battle took place. The scene is between Meadowbrook and North Bend, Wash.

Residents were being called to form a posse as word of Peden's capture was flashed.

Johnson Borrows Gun

The first hint of trouble came when Johnson entered a hardware store to borrow a shotgun to investigate two earlier shootings at the grove.

Deputy Sheriffs Gordon Sandell and Howard Rutan of King county expressed belief that the gunman was the same man who complained to the sheriff's office yesterday that his neighbors were plotting to kill him.

They quoted the man as saying he had barricated himself in his cabin Saturday night to "fight off" his "enemies," some of whom have long been dead.

Nancy Olsen, Paramount Girl Of The Year Gets Top Billing In New 'Union Station'

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
INS Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 12—The talk of the Paramount lot these days centers around 20-year-old brunette Nancy Olsen who is the girl of the year at that studio. Henry Ginsberg says that he doesn't want to do any boasting about her until her pictures are shown.

Nancy, who wears a big sparkler put on her engagement ring finger by Alan Lerner, gets top billing in "Union Station" with Wanda Hendrix and William Holden. Nancy will marry Lerner of the Lerner shops, and author of "Brigadoon," next year. He is a writer now at MGM, and the young people will choose a time when each has no studio date.

Fontaine Enoyjs Baby

Joan Fontaine, who was separated from her baby so many weeks, has now decided that the thing she enjoys most is taking care of Miss Debbie, who is starting to talk and walk. Joan is enjoying her baby while she can because she has a pretty heavy schedule for next year.

One of the most interesting pictures she'll do at Paramount is a psychological murder mystery now being prepared for her by Irving Asher. This follows "Mr. Anonymous," another movie set for her. Personally, I don't think Joan is happy in spite of this success in her career.

Own Career Wanted

Don't think for a moment being the daughter of Nicholas Schenck, and the niece of the much loved Joseph Schneck, hasn't its disadvantages. Marti Schenck has worked for months on her voice. She wants a career, but she doesn't want to get it because she's Marti Schenck. She wants it on her own merits.

So when Marti "Stevens" opens first at the El Rancho Vegas, in Las Vegas, later at the Mocambo, and still later in Florida, there will be nothing said that she is an heiress in her own right and the daughter and niece of two prominent men. Good luck, Marti, we're all pulling for you.

Money Worries Absent

Chit chat: Bobby Goelet, jr., who surprised his family when he eloped with Lynn Merrick, had nothing to worry about on the money question. He had previously inherited $100,000 from his late step-mother, Roberta Willard Goelet, and both his father and mother have given their blessing to his marriage.

Moreover, I am told he expects to make a bankroll on his first picture, "Rapture," and his father has enough confidence in him to give him another check to start a second picture in Rome.

Texas Prison Involved

An old-timer, Joe Rock, comes forth with an idea which he is so enthusiastic about that he wanted to tell me about it. He says he has bought a story based on the famous Huntsville prison in Texas where the prisoners have their own broadcasts and a rodeo at which they win prizes.

He has a releasing deal with Eagle-Lion, I believe he said, and and he wants to make the picture as a rehabilitation idea—part of the proceeds going to the Variety club, juvenile delinquency prevention societies and charities of that nature. He wants Lawrence Tierney for the lead.

He'll show actual scenes in this prison, and anybody as excited as he is over an idea should certainly be able to put it over.

Couple To Be Home

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Katie and Joe Brown will be home for Christmas. Joe left the cast of "Harvey" in London after 115 performances, and he's dead tired. Makes me tired just to think of it.

That cute Jimmy Durante is playing Santa Claus to the Henry Street Settlement house in New York. Do you think his beard will disguise his schnozzola? I hope not.

Margaret Whiting is one of the star performers for the San Francisco war wounded fund shows. They'll visit 14 hospitals, and give two shows a day. I call that very nice.

Jane Greer was at the 20th Century-Fox commissary paying a social visit. She looks wonderful since the birth of her baby.

U. S. Consul Denounces 'Kangaroo Court' Aspects Of Mukden Trial After Release By Chinese Reds

By HOWARD HANDLEMAN
Far Eastern Director, INS

ABOARD SS LAKELAND VICTORY, Taku Bar, Dec. 12.—Fighting U. S. Consul Angus Ward, still suffering from the effects of his "hellish" mistreatment by Chinese Communists, spoke bitterly today of the "kangaroo court" aspects of his trial in a Mukden court.

Ward and his Mukden consulate staff were free for the first time in 13 months from the threat of armed Communist guards as they rested aboard the sanctuary ship SS Lakeland Victory at Taku Bar off the north China port of Tientsin.

Ward and his party were released to the protection of the U. S. ship only after a prolonged wrangle with representatives of a Communist government that refuses to recognize given the existence of the American government.

Treatment Called Hellish

Ward described his treatment during the month he was in jail as "hellish" and said he lost 25 pounds before he was released.

The entire party, showing visible signs of the ordeal to which they had been subjected, were put to bed in limited quarters aboard the ship which is expected to clear the port late tomorrow or Wednesday.

But before he consented to retire, Ward continued to display his stiff Scotch-American backbone during the ticklish last minute negotiations for release of his party, including an infant child.

Party Held On Tug

They were held 20 minutes aboard the tug that brought them 50 miles down the Han river from Tientsin to the Taku Bar anchorage in near freezing weather while Ward insisted the Communist port officials put them aboard the ship before he would sign a release.

Ward's administrative officer, Ralph Rehburg of Rochester, N. Y., meanwhile, disclosed that American consulate buildings and other property in Mukden, had been abandoned without an official custodian.

Rehberg said British Consul L. Steventon, had told him he was unable to accept custodianship for the "American people." Steventon told Rehberg the Chinese Communists had declared:

"There is no such thing as an American government."

As result, Rehberg said the keys to the government building in the Manchurian city were "left on the table." His story was one of dozens told by Ward and members of his staff illustrating the twisted attitudes of Red authorities in China.

The American consul, his famed beard "whiter than it was six weeks ago," flatly denied that he had signed a "confession" to the trumped up accusation that he had beaten a Chinese servant in the Mukden consulate.

For the first time, Ward was able to tell his side of the story which has become one of the most celebrated and controversial incidents in American diplomatic history.

Legal Counsel Denied

He was denied legal counsel and refused permission to make legal statements, to question witnesses against him, or to present his own witnesses.

After what was described as the "kangaroo court" aspects of the trial, Ward was sentenced to six months and then oreded "deported."

Prior to his trial, Ward said he lost 25 pounds during the 28 days he was held in solitary confinement, much of the time in an unheated cell in near freezing temperatures. He was given only six slices of bread and a few cups of water daily.

Dispute Leads To Trial

The trial, in which several other members of his staff were also accused, stemmed from a dispute that ended with the resignation of a Chinese messenger over his wages. Ward said the messenger suddenly "assumed a position on the floor of the consulate office and began to moan."

Ward said the man had conferred with other Chinese but the consular official added:

"How much he was prompted I do not know and I refuse to hazard a guess as to whether it was a frameup."

Several times, said Ward, the messenger refused to accept his wages and leave pay, refusing to leave the building. Ward said he tried to lead the mesenger by the hand but that a brother of the Chinese struck him on the neck and shoulders. Rehberg came to Ward's assistance and sent the other Chinese downstairs.

Consul Holds Messenger

Ward said that when the messenger was released he threw himself down at the head of the stairs. The consul said he held the man by his wrists because he was afraid the Chinese "might throw himself down the stairs — about eleven feet."

During the wrangle over release of Ward's party to the Lakeland Victory, he and the skipper, Paul Sexton, climbed back down into the tugboat.

Ward angrily left the conference after threatening to take his party back to Tientsin unless the Reds permitted the staff to board the ship before the official release was signed. He told Sexton:

"Skipper, don't sign anything not completely a fact. This paper says we are aboard when we are only alongside."

Great Relief Felt

When the technicality was finally straightened out, Ward said getting onto the ship was like "you feel the day St. Peter lets you in."

The Pacific Far East lines vessel will weigh anchor for Kobe, Japan as soon as it finishes loading cargo. Then Ward and his wife expect to board the President Wilson Dec. 21st for the trip home, arriving in San Francisco Jan. 3rd.

Ward said that from November of 1948 until the day of his arrest he was confined with his staff to three compounds in Mukden under "house arrest" enforced by armed Communist guards.

Groceries Prove Valuable

They received fresh vegetables and meat from a Chinese marketman but their principal food was a year's supply of groceries Ward had shrewdly stocked, explaining:

"I'm scotch, I guess."

The consul insisted that "nobody ever got a confession out of me no matter what the Communist radio says." He declared Franco Cicogna an Italian employe of the consulate at Mukden, signed a written statement when he was so ill from a cold and lack of food he claims he does not know what he signed."

Shirley Temple Employs Special Guard For Home As 'Precaution'

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 12. (AP)—Shirley Temple said today she employs a guard to watch her home nightly in what she called "a routine precaution."

"With only a couple of women in the house I like to feel that I have this protection for the baby," said the 21-year-old actress.

Custody of her daughter, Linda Susan, 22 months, was given her when she divorced John Agar Dec. 5.

Miss Temple, who now has a housekeeper, said she has employed the guard since she and Agar separated in October, when she filed the divorce suit.

Use of guards or watchmen by movie notables who are wealthy or have small children is not uncommon. Miss Temple herself, when she was a child star, was protected by an elaborate alarm and warning system at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Temple.

AMERICAN MINIATURE — This new lightweight car, built to sell for about $500, was introduced in San Diego, Calif., by its designer, T. P. Hall. The car weighs only 775 pounds, has a top speed of 45 miles an hour and can get 45 miles to a gallon of gas, Hall says. It is built largely of aluminum alloy and plastic materials.

Fort Worth Firm Ordered To Refund More Than $500,000

FORT WORTH, Dec. 12. (U.P.)—The U.S. Fifth Court of Appeals is ordering the bankrupt Globe Aircraft Corp., here to refund to the federal government $583,527 received for the manufacture of training planes.

Oakley F. Dodd, clerk of the fifth court, today notified first Asst. U. S. Atty. A. W. Christian of the order in a letter from the court's New Orleans headquarters.

The decision casts aside a U.S. district court judgment and a ruling by bankruptcy Referee Glenn claim.

But despite the fifth court decision, the government will be unable to obtain more than approximately $190,000. That represents assets held by Burton B. Paddock, who was appointed trustee during bankruptcy proceedings.

Richard Simon, attorney representing Paddock, said the fifth court will be asked to reconsider its decision. If it refuses, he said, an effort will be made to take the case to the U. S. Supreme court.

GOP TAKES NEGATIVE VIEW

'Insolvency State' Suggested As Name For Truman 'Welfare State'

By WILLIAM THEIS
INS Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—A veteran GOP leader suggested tonight that Republican strategists tag the Truman program with something other than "welfare state" if they want to attract security-minded voters in 1950 and recommended they call it the "insolvency state."

The suggestion was made by Werner Schroeder, GOP national committeeman from Illinois, on the eve of the 23-member Republican strategy committee's meeting in Chicago.

National Chairman Guy Gabrielson and other campaign leaders met in New York over the weekend to work out 1950 finances. They will talk "grass roots" strategy tomorrow with representatives of the national committee, Senate, House, state central committees, state finance chairmen and governors.

Member Expresses Views

Schroeder is not a member of the strategy group which was appointed last spring after the big party fight at Omaha. But he thinks:

1. There has been a "definite pickup in party finances."

2. Republican margins of defeat were so slim in most states that there is no reason for "so much pessimism." He added good candidates and hard workers will get those few thousand votes."

3. The Truman program needs a label other than "welfare state."

Schroeder said the first time the phrase "welfare state" came to him he "struck it out." He added:

"I call it the insolvency state. That puts the emphasis where it belongs."

Negative Angle Is Stressed

Schroeder's point was that Republicans should pound at the deficit-creating costs of the Truman "fair deal" program rather than use a term which stresses its benefits. He said too many Americans have become security conscious.

One of the big campaign problems confronting Gabrielson and his lieutenants is that of how to reclaim the farm vote which swung heavily behind President Truman in 1948.

By apparent coincidence, the Farm Bureau federation is meeting this week in the Hotel Stevens where the GOP strategists also are convening.

Bureau Head Surprised

But Allan B. Kline, Farm Bureau president who was known in 1948 as a Dewey Republican, was surprised to learn the Republicans were to be in Chicago. Asked what he thought Republicans should do to get farm support, he said:

"I won't comment on that other than to suggest they study the program of the Farm Bureau federation. It's good for either party. If the Republican committee should call me in to ask for my views, of course I would go."

Kline made it clear he did not want anyone to get the idea he would use his bureau position in behalf of the GOP.

The strategy program has been arranged by Arthur E. Summerfield, national committeeman from Michigan. Summerfield became executive chairman of the group last summer after Thomas E. Coleman of Wisconsin resigned in protest against alleged lack of activity. How the new plans will be received remains to be seen.

Tech Program

ing to Dean Allen.

Increased intra-dormitory activity has also helped to spark the program to success, supervisors and counselors declare. Several of the dorms print their own newspapers and various sport leagues vie for honors. An inter-dorm competition program is in operation and the residents of various dorms often back their own candidates in campus elections.

Time was, also, when drinking students caused a lot of noise and tended to bring disfavor toward all Techsans. Now, according to Dean Allen, if a student drinks in the dormitory at all he does it in his own room so that the supervisors and other students never know about it.

All are asked not to drink, not because it is against the rules, but because it sets a bad example to perhaps a freshman down the hall, Allen asserts. There have even been cases where a boy's roommate did not know the other drank, he says.

That one example typifies the entire counselors program, the supervisors pointed out. But if a resident is asked to do something, care is always taken not to cause friction between him and others in the dormitory. He is told, usually truthfully, that others have not complained, but "for their sake, how about not making quite so much noise."

Still in the experimental stage, improvements are continuously made on the counselors program, but first year results have already assured its continued operation, officials declare.

"We just don't have any dormitory problems any longer," Dean Allen asserts. "College students are grown men and women, and when treated as such they will run their affairs better than anyone else can by telling them what to do."

Woman Required To Post Bond On Libel Charge Filed Here

Beulah Anne Woods, about 42, was arrested Monday afternoon and required to post trial appearance bond on a charge of libel—outgrowth of a divorce she was awarded from her traveling evangelist husband Guy N. Woods, a year ago.

The complaint was filed in county court Aug. 23 upon oath of Woods.

Malicious Statement Charged

It charged that Mrs. Woods "with intent to injure Woods, "did unlawfully and maliciously make, write, print, publish and circulate a malicious statement of and concerning one Guy N. Woods and affecting the reputation of the said Woods, to the tenor following:

"'I want it generally known and thoroughly understood that I divorced Guy N. Woods, Dec. 2, 1948, on the grounds of adultery. Any information other than this from anyone on this subject is a deliberate falsehood. My evidence is ironclad and open for investigation to proper persons. I regret I've been forced to send this statement out."

Records in the 99th District court of Judge G. V. Pardue show that Judge Pardue on Nov. 29, this year, entered a judgment upon his own motion "correcting and reforming" the docket, expunging from the record any notation to the effect that the divorce earlier granted in his court was "based upon grounds of adultery."

Amended Petition Filed

Mrs. Woods' complaint, filed in the 99th court Aug. 20, 1948, set up adultery as one of her grounds for asking for a divorce. Subsequently, in an amended petition filed Dec. 1, 1948, she confined her grounds to abandonment.

The bond was for $400, and was made returnable next Monday in the court of Judge Walter Davies, before whom she pleaded innocent of the libel charge Monday.

In the divorce decree, the court took cognizance of a property settlement and that no children had been born to the minister and Mrs. Wood.

Jaycees Set Date For Club Christmas Party At Meeting

At their regular monthly business session in the Hilton hotel Monday, Lubbock Jaycees voted to hold their club Christmas party next Monday night at 7:30 p. m.

Although the place of the party was not definitely set, the Jaycees hope to hold the party for members, wives and guests at the Cactus Inn.

A Christmas program featuring the Tech band and chorus was presented by the Jaycees at 8:45 p.m. Monday over KFYO.

Thursday, Jan. 19, was set as the date for the "Lubbock Man of the Year" award banquet.

R. S. Wilkinson presided.

Five Pleas Of Guilty Are Entered In County Court

Seven pleas —five of them of guilty—were entered in the county Monday.

Judgment filed showed that James Robert Pottenger, 28, and Francis H. (Only) Bager, 29, each was fined $75 and costs, as well as deprived of driver's license six months, on drunk driving charges; Leroy Cooper, 44, a negro, was fined $50 and costs for aggravated assault; Johnnie Lyons, 33, a negro, $25 and costs for check law violation.

Lloyd Burgess, 23, pleaded guilty of check law violation and was fined $25 and costs, a judgement showed.

Bonds for trial appearance were set for those who pleaded innocent: Joe Floyd Turner, 43, and Isaac Peterson, 26, a negro. Both are charged with drunk driving.

Rent Law Upheld

review, Solicitor-General Philip Perlman estimated that tenants of some 14 million housing units would be "left defenseless" under the Shaw decision.

Judge Shaw held that Congress overreached its constitutional powers in writing the so-called "local option" section into the 1949 law.

The local option section of the law delegates to local rent boards the power of recommending decontrol for their areas, subject to final approval in Washington.

The earlier decision referred to by the Supreme court held that Congress had the right to set up machinery by which rent controls gradually would be removed.

The current law expires June 30, 1950.

Today's decision had the effect of upholding the ruling of federal Judge Leon R. Yankwich of Los Angeles, who found the rent control law constitutional under war emergency owpers.

"First Needs First"

PLANS were given further polishing at conferences in Houston last week to seek two huge appropriations for University of Texas medical projects when the expected special session of the Legislature is held next month.

Specifically, the University regents did additional spade work in behalf of requests for $2,397,000 for the School of Dentistry and $1,350,000 for the Anderson Hospital for Cancer Research, both located in Houston.

Both of these are splendid institutions and doubtless deserve support. But one objection is pretty certain to be raised to the appropriations proposed. That objection is that neither would help to ease the present shortage of medical doctors. They make no provision for the training of more doctors—which is one of the most critical of the health needs of the state and nation today.

The University regents could expect more public and legislative support for any program they propose if it applied the principle of "first needs first."

The first need is more doctors. The present shortage is acute for time of peace, without considering the vastly increased needs a war would create.

After provision is proposed to remedy this condition, and not before, the Legislature should consider recommendations for such purposes as the dental school and cancer research hospital. No matter how important these projects may be, they are subordinate to the needs for more medical doctors.

Until the regents are disposed to recommend increased facilities where more doctors can be trained—and they have worked hand in glove with the medical "trust" in maintaining present shortages— their requests for appropriations for other projects should be rejected.

Water Comes First

THE dependence for survival of cities and nations upon the adequacy of their water supplies has been given dramatic emphasis by the near-famine in New York City.

The statements by some of the officials of that great metropolis that it faces the danger of becoming a "ghost city" for lack of water in the future may not exaggerate as much as might be imagined. Great cities and great nations of antiquity have disappeared so completely that not even the legends of them remained, simply because they ran out of water. Traces of a once-huge metropolis and a nation with millions of inhabitants were discovered in the Sahara desert of Africa not long ago. Even their names have been forgotten.

This does not imply uneasiness that New York City is threatened with a similar fate. New York still has enough water for a huge population, and probably will have as far into the future as anyone can pretend to see. But present experiences argue strongly that the New York metropolitan area may have passed the extreme limit of its population growth. Certainly no community can support growth beyond its assured water supply, and New York obviously has done that.

Perhaps increased supplies to sustain continuing growth can be obtained from other sources, with the Great Lakes as a possibility. But the more practical and plausible supposition is that the time must come—and may be at hand now—when the greatest metropolis the world has known will have to stabilize its population at a total no larger than those who can be assured of ample water.

That does not mean New York is likely to become a ghost city. It does suggest that New York is about as big as it is practical for any city to be.

Rip Van Winkle couldn't sleep for 20 years nowadays. He would have to get up and brag about the comforts of an electric blanket.

A small town is the one where no one ever criticizes a home talent show.

The Cameo

By VIRGINIA TEALE
Distributed By NEA, Inc.

(THE STORY: A valuable cameo is mixed up in the murders of Martin Falter, blackmailer, and Nell O'Neill, wife of Tom O'Neill, a wealthy artist. The cameo now is in the possession of Stephanie Smith, to whom it really belonged before Nell and Falter had it. Numbers in the bottom of the box puzzle Stephanie until she discovers these tell how to open the double locket. Inside the back of the locket is a paper written in Russian which may solve the case. Previously Stephanie had received a visit from the artist Andrey Yakov who said he had letters which would clear Hagar Blair, Stephanie's employer, of murder charges. He said he would exchange them for a chance to examine the locket. Stephanie tells Charlie Reddy, lawyer, she wants to talk to Hagar about it.)

HAGAR shifted uncomfortably on the course gray blanket that covered her bunk. Her back was propped against a lumpy pillow, and she was trying unsuccessfully to capture serenity by concentrating on a magazine story about a domestic triangle in Connecticut. Repeatedly, she found that she had read several paragraphs without absorbing an iota of their contents. She threw the magazine on the floor and slid off the bunk. She went to the door and stood looking out between the bars, her chocolate-colored eyes scanning the corridor.

"Hey! Where is everybody in this catacomb? Hey, Chet! I want to make a phone call! D'you hear me out there?"

She waited hopefully for an answer but the hall remained empty and silent. Muttering, she walked to the wash-bowl in the corner and turned on the faucet. Sluicing the cold water over her face, she burbled:

"Caged up like a perdition monkey. Wish I were a monkey, give me something to do—swing by my tail from the bars, get a little exercise!"

She blotted her face on a non-absorbent towel. "I always said I'd done everything there was to do except spend a night in jail and ride on a fire truck. Well, now all I've got to look forward to is a . . ."

She stopped mumbling as footsteps echoed in the corridor.

"Stephanie! And Reddy! Am I glad to see you! Come right in and sit down."

Chet, the guard, was grinning as he unlocked the door.

Stephanie hurried into the cell and threw her arms around Hagar: "Good news, Hagar!" She stood back and surveyed the older woman affectionately: "I think maybe you'll be out of here soon! Just wait till you hear what's happened!"

Hagar shook hands with Reddy and pulled him down to sit beside her on the bunk:

"Well," she demanded, "what's up? Have they found the murderer?"

HAGAR'S eyes didn't leave the girl's face as she listened to the account of Yakov's visit. Stephanie first related the Russian's questions about the cameo, then told how she had discovered the small bit of paper in the locket.

Hagar excitedly squashed her nose under her fist: "'The Cherry Orchard'? That's a play by Chekov, isn't it? Whole thing's probably a code of some kind. Did you bring the paper?"

Stephanie shook her head: "I hid it."

"Beat's me,' Hagar muttered. "Could be we're right up to our necks in some kind of international intrigue! But how could that have anything to do with the murders? Nell and Falter were both local people when all this began."

Reddy spoke: "I think Stephanie and I had better whip back to your house, Hagar, to be on hand when Yakov arrives with those letters. Chief Peters'll meet us there a little later. Right now, he's talking to Arnold Pfieffer in his office."

"Arnold Pfeiffer?" Hagar and Stephanie echoed the name interestedly.

"Yes. Seems the little fellow has sat around and hatched himself a theory. Hes now sharing it with the Chief."

"Y'know," Hagar said slowly, "I never thought of it before, but Arnold Pfeiffer might be in a position to know an awful lot about this. Dont forget, probably he put the cameo in my collection cabinet and left the silver box in my car after Falter's murder."

Reddy nodded. "Well, Peters can cope with him. The Chief's a pretty sharp psychologist underneath that bluff, extrovert manner of his." He turned and rested a hand of Stephanie's shoulder, "Wait here and visit with Hagar a few minutes. I'll come back for you soon as I've made a phone call—there's somebody who ought to know about this latest caper of Yakov's."

THE two women watched him walk through the door, leaving it open behind him. Hagar eyed the door slyly and spoke to Stephanie hoarsely from the corner of her mouth:

"Keep me covered, Butch, I'll make a break for it!"

Stephanie threw her a startled glance, but Hagar hadn't moved and was now staring with narrowed eyes at the opposite wall:

"Y'know," Hagar brooded, "anxious as I am to stop being a burden to the county taxpayers, I wonder if maybe it's a mistake to show Yakov that paper without investigating the angles. Maybe the FBI ought to be notified."

"We were thinking about the FBI," Hagar began, when Reddy returned.

"Coincidence department," Reddy declared. "So was I. There'll be quite a conclave at your house tonight, and we'd better get up there to receive the guests. Special Agent Lansing Trotter and Chief Peters will head the list."

Looking At Life -- By Erich Brandeis

ONE of the most peculiar interpretations of the efficacy of prayer came to me from a reader in Dayton, Ohio, this morning.

BRANDEIS

In a recent column I said that you cannot expect your prayers to be answered if you ask for material things.

My Dayton reader disagrees with me and writes:

"God always answers prayers, but sometimes the answer is No."

Here is another of those problems which cannot be proven by science or logic.

There is no use arguing about religion, any more than there is any use arguing about taste.

For centuries different creeds have attempted to convince one another and the world in general that only their views are the right views, that only their formula is the proper key to heaven.

So, whatever I say, whatever you may reply, is merely an opinion. If you differ from me in your approach to God, we may yet both be right. If we believe in God at all we are simply traveling by different roads, but to the same destination. The scenery along your road may suit your taste, that on mine pleases me best.

Maybe all prayers ARE answered — with either fulfillment or denial.

However, that is not part of the scenery I see on the road which I travel.

If your prayer is not answered — and you say that that means the answer is "NO", then that sort of argument to me seems rationalizing, pure and simple.

With that sort of belief anything is justifiable.

Let us say you pray to God for Success in a certain shady enterprise.

You fail. You get caught. You go to jail.

ACCORDING to my Dayton friend's interperation, you can simply say that you didn't hear God say "No", that He didn't speak loud enough, and so you blame the whole thing on Him.

So I repeat: Pray to God for the RULING MISUNDERSTOOD

Justices' Faces Red

By RAY TUCKER
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON, — Many readers have asked for comment on the Supreme Court's recent decision upholding the Patent Office's disbarment of a lawyer because he had included a ghost-written article in his successful application for a patent on a work-reducing, automatic machine. They are inclined to criticize the tribunal for condemning such a common practice among statesmen, officials and business executives.

Answer: The hullaballoo over this decision demonstrates once again the need for a publicity expert to keep this august and hard-working body of men from being misunderstood, and made to look ridiculous at times.

TUCKER

The court did not condemn ghost-writing as such. It could not have done so with a straight face because I doubt if there is a man on that bench who has not resorted to this device at some time or other in his career. As a matter of fact, most of their leg and mental work and preliminary writing of decisions is performed by their law clerks.

TIME: As one who has written speeches and magazine articles for numerous members of Congress and the Cabinet, and even for Franklin D. Roosevelt himself when I began the promotion of the original "baby bonds" in 1935, I can say that there is nothing harmful in this practice if not carried to extremes. Few public men have the time to do their own research and preparation of a speech or statement.

The more conscientious public officials, however, digest an aide's product translate it into their own language and really make it their own production before delivery. Only the demagogues do a parrot-like job, sometimes not reading the paper until they get onto their feet or the platform.

DECEPTION: But the ghost-writing in the patent application under consideration was, in the court's opinion, a "fraud" and a "deception." The lawyer persuaded a prominent labor official to sign an article praising the patent and refuting charges that it would be detrimental to union employes by depriving them of work. The ghost-writer subsequently demanded and was paid $8,000 for his contribution.

Moreover, as patent officials note, a rival company eventually had to pay more than a million dollars for infringement of the patent. These factors were set forth in the court's decision, but they were so obscured by legal language that they were generally overlooked.

A smart publicity man, however, would have been able to explain the decision in everyday terms, pointing out to reporters the sections of the document to which I refer, and thus saved Chief Justice Vinson's men from unjustifiable joshing. Their faces have been red ever since they gave the impression that they were trying to break up one of Washington's most ancient professions.

PRIVILEGES: "Is it true," asks G. K. of Concord, N. H., "that Stalin's newspapers have a bureau at Washington, and that his reporters are accorded the same news-gathering privileges given to American writers?"

Answer: Yes, the Tass Agency here, which serves Pravda and Izvestia, has a staff of six people. They have the privileges of the regular press galleries, Senate and House, and the right to attend press conferences held by officials from President Truman down. In fact, the Tass bureau here has lately been increased in number.

OFF-THE-RECORD: There is no official discrimination against them, with one exception. There are times when high officials give off-the-record material to provide correspondents with military, diplomatic and economic background.

Naturally, Russia's journalistic representatives are not invited to these affairs. However, Washington is such a whispering gallery that they undoubtedly obtain information of great value to the promoters of the "cold war."

In view of the restrictions placed upon American correspondents at Moscow and in all the "iron curtain" capitals, many of us sometimes wonder why the Red reporters should have such a free run of our Capital.

POINT: "Has anything been done to carry out President Truman's 'point four' program for the development of so-called backward countries?" inquires T. O. of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Answer: Not a thing, and I doubt if there will be any real government activity to promote this over-advertised scheme. Private companies, of course—oil, public utilities, minerals, etc.—have been investing and operating overseas wherever and whenever it was to their advantage.

In fact, it is expected that there will be an increase of American development of raw materials, water power, agriculture and railroads in certain Latin-American countries within the next few years. But the great difficulty, and it has not yet been resolved, consists of the legal and economic impediments which many countries place in the path of foreign investors.

The State department hopes to use its influence to eliminate these barriers in time, but so far it has not been too successful.

The overall fact is that, if conditions abroad are stable and prospects for profits good, American interests will go there without any need of official persuasion or assistance.

An old-timer is the one who can recall when it wasn't considered unusual for a family to have ten or twelve children.

A writer refers to "honest money." But the average person doesn't try to uncover a dollars past life .

The greatest need for a modern world is the old-style religion.

Believe It Or Not -

ON ANTI-MONOPOLY POLICIES

Sawyer Seeks To Aid Business

By THOMAS L. STOKES
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON — The Truman administration has embarked upon a somewhat delicate and difficult course in its newly espoused policy of education and persuasion to discourage unfair trade practices and monopolistic tendencies. This is being promoted by Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer.

STOKES

It is clearly a friendly gesture toward business and industry by Mr. Sawyer with undoubted political implications as a means of easing the antagonism in the business community toward the Fair Deal program. Of late the secretary has become quite a missionary with business on behalf of the administration's objectives.

Educational Program Planned

The policy, as enunciated by President Truman in a letter to his commerce secretary, is for supplementing existing anti-trust and anti-monopoly laws "by an educational and promotional program for improving compliance with legal requirements and fostering healthy competition."

Mr. Sawyer is not the first secretary of commerce during the new deal-fair deal era to seek some meeting ground with business in a conciliatory gesture. Even Henry A. Wallace and, before him, Harry L. Hopkins, sought co-operation with business when they occupied the same office. It was always difficult because of business hostility to New Dealism, as to Fair Dealism, and because of policies originating elsewhere in the government that were displeasing to business and industry. First among the latter, of cource, was the anti-trust activity of the Justice department, which had the support of the Roosevelt administration as it does of the Truman administration.

THIS proposed policy of coaxing and persuading business runs up immediately against anti-trust policy, now as always. In his own statement of his intentions, which seems somewhat broader than the President's letter, Secretary Sawyer said:

"The program to be presented to the President for his consideration will be designed to encourage legal and desirable practices, to discourage and bring about voluntary abandonment of illegal or questionable practices, and to clarify for the businessman the lines between what he can and cannot do legally.

"It is my observation, confirmed by recent nation-wide discussions with business groups, that while most businessmen want to obey the law and try consistently to do so, there is much unnecessary confusion at present as to what the law prohibits and what it permits.'

To work out a program, Secretary Sawyer has an inter-agency committee that will include Attorney General J. Howard McGrath and representatives of the Federal Trade commission and the President's council of economic advisers, among others.

Laws Claimed Clear

Attorney General McGrath, for one, does not agree that there is too much confusion as to, what the law prohibits and permits. He says the anti-trust laws are perfectly clear. The Justice department now will tell businessmen whether certain practices would be within the law, as a matter of guidance on something they propose to do, but it does not give anything like "advisory opinions" that would represent approval in advance of certain practices nor does it give an opinion on existing practices.

What businessmen have sought for a long time is some approval beforehand that would insure them against prosecution. When John J. Raskob, then an official of General Motors, became chairman of the Democratic national committee in 1928, he advocated "advisory opinions" by the Federal Trade commission. But he was promptly squelched by party leaders.

PRECAUTION in proceeding on the new program of education and persuasion was suggested by a staunch anti-trust advocate and champion of small business in Congress, Senator Ester Kefauver (D-Tenn). While he saw such a program as a great help to business, particularly smaller concerns which do not have trained legal counsel in the anti-trust field, he warned "at the same time, however, I wish to emphasize my belief that there are certain types of anti-trust problems which cannot be dealt with adequately by 'education.'

"Among these are dissolution actions and cases involving price-fixing, restriction of production, division of the market by similar practices which are generally known to be illegal. Cases of these types require the full and effective enforcement of the anti-trust laws."

In short, nearly everything.

Mr. Sawyer has cut out quite a job for himself.

TWO TYPES SLATED FOR USE

Britain Claims Jets To Provide Lead In Future Airline Traffic

By TALBOT HOOD
INS Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Dec. 10.—The British government, the aircraft industry and the airlines have developed two types of jet airliners which they claim give them a lead in commercial aviation of the future.

The first is the revolutionary straight jet powered by a gas turbine driving the plane through the air by the thrust from a jet of hot compressed gas. There is no propellor.

The second is the jet-prop, which uses part of the power from the gas turbine to drive propellors in the same manner as the piston engine now used in planes. There is also some propulsion from the jet of hot compressed gas.

Chief controversy rages around the straight jet. The De Havilland Comet, built for eventual trans-Atlantic service, is the only commercial type in existence.

According to government sources, the straight jet, boardly speaking, is decisively superior to the jet-prop at speeds in excess of 500 miles an hour. For extremely long ranges the jet-prop is superior and it also wings at speeds up to about 500 miles an hour on short and medium ranges.

A spokesman for De Havilland, who designed and built the four-engined Comet, the world's first straight jet airliner, frankly admitted in an exclusive interview with International News Service that there are immediate "bugs" which must be overcome before the plane can go into commercial service in 1952.

Specific Point Raised

Asked specifically about American contentions that De Havilland has run into trouble in providing adequate cabin pressurization at heights of 35,000 to 40,000 feet—which appear to be the best operating heights—and in carrying sufficient fuel—consumption is twice the conventional engine—spokesman said:

"I can't minimize the immediate problems which must be overcome, but we are making progress. The Comet will definitely be in commercial use by the end of 1952, perhaps sooner.

"Remember we have had only three months' test flying. Everything has gone very well so far. Never had an airliner flown so well in initial flights."

Future Route Given

Stressing that the Comet will operate eventually on the London-New York service, the spokesman said:

"Passengers will be carried at first on empire commercial routes—which are medium-length routes—so we and the pilots can get experience and operating know-how on a route less exacting than the north Atlantic.

"We must find the most economical heights and cruising speeds for fuel consumption."

Asked about charges that lavish fuel requirements would make it unsuitable for Altantic service, he replied:

"The Comet was designed specifically for the Atlantic run. We have already made quite a lot of progress in getting fuel consumption down. Constant research is in progress."

Advantages May Compensate

On the credit side of the ledger, aviation experts say there are advantages which may more than compensate for high fuel consumption. A 500-mile-an-hour service would result in less time in the air and permit more frequent service on busy routes.

Another advantage is almost complete absence of vibration, compared with the conventional piston engine, thereby cutting down passenger and crew fatigue.

The aeronautical correspondent of the British Broadcasting corporation, after his first ride in the four-engined Vickers Viscount, a jet-prop, commented:

"From now on, for me at least, piston-engined planes are as antiquated as hansom cabs. When I left the machine I was vastly impressed by three things: First, the quiet, silky, almost dreamlike travel that enables you to hear whispered asides made five yards away; secondly, the complete lack of vibration; and thirdly, the inescapable fact that non-jet air travel is doomed from the first time the travelling public samples the jet variety."

For a special dessert treat spread white layer cakes with date filling. To make the filling cook the dates in a little water until they are soft and can be mashed easily, then beat in a tablespoon or so of lemon juice and butter. Frost the date-filled cake with a rich chocolate icing.

Looking At Life

things that are God's and your prayers WILL be answered.

Speaking about rationalizing—a woman has just sued her husband for divorce because, she alleges, in the twenty-one years of their marriage he has taken only two baths.

The case has not yet come up for trial, but I am going to watch for the outcome.

Either that woman has a supernatural degree of patience, a very bad condition of her olfactory nerve — or a severe case of rationalization.

Incidentally, rationalization is responsible for many of our existing ills, including the whole precarious state of our present-day world.

Rationailizing, to cite an example, is when two jackasses are trying to prove to each other that they ain't.

Special Launching Tower Put Into Use For Pilot Training

WILLIAMS AIR FORCE BASE, Ariz., Dec. 12 (U.P.)—The Air Force began operations here today of an ejector launching tower that will hurl pilots through the air at 40 miles per hour to stimulate emergency escape from high-speed jet aircraft.

The 28-ton tower, the first of its kind installed for pilot training, was built by a former naval officer, Merril A. Mader, now a civilian engineer with the Allis-Chalmers company, Milwaukee. Mader said the tower has a standard jet plane seat mounted on a inclined track 100 feet high. The pilot, equipped with full flight gear, is strapped to the seat and shot into the air by explosion of a 37-MM. cartridge.

Mader said the pilot will travel 40 miles per hour to simulate will rise to a height of 50 feet subject to a pressure of 16 times the force of gravity.

The pilot is returned to the ground by a special braking mechanism on the track.

Condition Of Youngster Hurt In Shooting Is Improved

The condition of Robert Brackett, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Brackett of 2309 Thirty-Fourth, who was accidently shot in the abdomen Saturday night, is improved and he is resting well, attendants at St. Mary's hospital said late Monday night.

Big Bend National Park was so named because it lies in a huge U-turn in the Rio Grande in Texas.

Those scraps of soap which accumulate in the household can be put to use if the homemaker turns them into a cleaning and scouring paste. Shave or grind the scraps and dissolve in boiling water. Add enough whiting or powdered chalk to make a paste. Whiting is a fine chalk which cleans without scratching porcelain. It can be purchased at hardware, paint or drug stores.

Cotton

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Dec. 12 (AP) — Cotton futures moved lower today on liquidation, stimulated by uncertainty over the status of cotton crop controls program for next year. Widespread farmer protests over the way the acreage allocations have been determined, agitation for a change in the current farm legislation, and talk of a sharp slash in ECA funds next year all created nervousness over the situation for the next crop season. Losses extended to $1.20 a bale, although the market later improved on short covering and mill buying.

Cotton closed steady.

Colorado Landmark Destroyed By Fire

FLORENCE, Colo., Dec. 12. (INS)—Only a shell remained today of the Blunt building, landmark of half a century in the downtown section of Florence.

Flames broke out early this morning in the structure, causing damage estimated at more than $100,000.

Firemen from Florence, Pueblo, and Canon City brought the fire under control before noon, and a National Guard unit from Canon City helped prevent looting and kept crowds away.

The building was occupied by an appliance store, pool hall, barber shop, beauty shop, cafe and bar on the ground floor. Upstairs was a dentist's office, the law offices of Judge George H. Wilken and several furnished rooms.

Wilken's law library, considered one of the most complete of its kind in southern Colorado, was destroyed.

PRICE TO CONSUMERS AT STAKE

Battle For World Oil Market May Develop During Next Year

By SAM DAWSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—The world battle for oil is likely to center next year more over who is going to sell it, the Americans, the British or the Dutch, than over who is going to get it. And this fight is likely to cause increased bitterness here at home between the big and little oil companies, with the final price to the consumer very much at stake.

Several indications of the coming battle are included in today's news packet: the Trans-Arabian oil line is being pushed toward the Mediterranean; big U. S. oil companies expect to import more oil next year than last; a group of small operators complain that independent oil refineries here are being destroyed by oil pricing policies; the price of heavy fuel oil goes up in Chicago; some Pennsylvania crude oil prices rise; and talk of an oil loan to Mexico revives in Washington.

Companies Sought Control

During and immediately after the war the great battle was to get control of world oil supplies. American Oil companies invested huge sums in developing foreign fields, refineries and pipelines. World demand seemed increasing faster than supply.

Then, almost overnight, supply caught up with demand. Two things happened at about the same time: Oil from the Near East began to flow to the United States, and production in some United States fields was ordered cut back to prevent a glut of the crude oil market.

Independent oil companies sent up a howl against the flow of foreign oil to our shores at such a time. The big oil companies with foreign holdings into which they had poured a lot of money finally bowed to the storm and said they were cutting back their imports.

But recent testimony before the subcommittee of the House Small Business committee indicates that imports of oil and refined products this year will average 676,000 barrels a day, and that the companies expect to step that up during the first half of 1950 to about 850,000 barrels a day. Their plans are based on an anticipated increase in demand during the cold months ahead. They expect to use oil from their expensively acquired foreign fields to meet part of that increase.

Moreover, the big companies expect to use more and more of their foreign oil to supply world markets, and therefore export less from their domestic wells.

But they may be reckoning without the British. England has announced an all-out drive to sell oil from its foreign holdings in the dollar market, and a sharp battle for world's oil trade may develop.

Mexico Seeks Loan

Mexico once talked of getting $400 million from the U. S. government to develop its oil industry, counting on American zeal to have oil supplies handy in case of war. Now it is reported dickering for a loan of around $100 million.

Texas, which cut back crude oil production sharply to prevent oversupply of the market and consequent weakening of the price structure, is allowing a little more production for December, perhaps counting on the approaching cold weather to perk up demand.

But the narrow margin between high crude oil prices and the recently weakened prices for some refined products is bringing a protest from the Consumers Co-Operative association in Kansas City. The margin is so narrow that small refineries cannot operate without loss, the association president, Howard A. Cowden, contends.

Today, some Pennsylvania grade crude oil producers increase prices by 14 and 15 a barrel. This grade is prized usually for lubrication and is priced considerably above the all-purpose crudes of the southwest.
