VOTE AMNESTY TO JIM

SENATE "WIPES" OUT STAIN BY VOTE OF 19 TO 9

Spontaneous Reception Accorded Governor And Husband on Floor

PARNELL FOR IT

Galleries Crowded to Hear What Is Termed "Friendly Discussion"

AUSTIN, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Amnesty for James E. Ferguson was agreed upon by the senate today by a vote of 19 to 9 as the proper means to restore him to his political rights.

Senators who voted for the amnesty measure were: Berkeley, Fairchild, Floyd, Hardin of Erath, Hardin of Kaufman, Holbrook, Miller, Moore of Cook, Murphy, Parnell, Parr, Real Russek, Smith, Strong, Ward, Wirtz, Witt and Woodward.

Senator John H. Bailey of Cuero refused to vote and explained that while he wanted the impeachment bar removed from Mr. Ferguson, he did not believe it could be done by the passage of a general amnesty bill Senators Bowers and Lewis paired. All others voted "No."

Finally Passed.

On the heels of the vote the amnesty bill came up on engrossment by the senate, anxious apparently to get the matter out of the way, suspended the rules and finally passed the bill 21 to 6.

Senators voting in the negative on the final passage of the bill were: Bledsoe, Moore of Hunt, Price, Reid, Stuart and Wood.

Senators Bailey and Triplett were marked present and not voting and Lewis and Bowers were paired. All other senators voted for the bill.

The measure is designed to restore full political rights to James E. Ferguson.

Whether it will accomplish this is a moot question. Some senators maintain that it still requires a constitutional amendment to completely remove the impeachment bar placed against Mr. Ferguson by the senate in 1917, and that as soon as he attempts to run for office in this state, another court fight will be raised up to stop him on the ground that the action of the senate was contrary to the constitution.

Congratulate Jim.

When the final vote was announced, a spontaneous reception was held in the rear of the senate where Mr.

$10,000 Fire Hits Burkburnett School

BURKBURNETT, Feb. 10.—Fire of unknown origin broke out this morning at 8 o'clock in the beaverboard partitions of the rooms of the Central School annex, the "Long White Building" and destroyed almost the entire structure. Flames began near the west end of the one story building and the strong wind drove them over all the main rooms before the fire department could arrive. One west room occupied by the music instructor, Miss Otta Floe Hall was all that remained and it was badly damaged.

The loss in building and equipment is rated at about $10,000 with an insurance of $5,000.

It is not known yet whether the building will be replaced by a similar one or a better brick structure.

NYACK PLAN IN CITY ASSUMING DEFINITE FORM

Wichitans At Work For Big Mass Meeting To Be Held Sunday

"I wish I could tell you how greatly encouraged I have been by the response Wichita Falls has shown in this matter. It has been one of the finest I have had anywhere and I am sure it will mean much for you."

Thus did Dr. Sartell Prentice of Nyack, N. Y., thank a number of Wichitans last night for the efforts they were making in behalf of a local undertaking of the Nyack plan, a movement fostered by Dr. Prentice to bring about a spiritual and moral reawakening of the country. He spoke at some length at a meeting held Tuesday night in the Wichita Club, preceded by a dinner, and which was attended by a score or more men interested in the idea.

Last night's meeting was an outgrowth of one held last Friday night when Dr. Prentice introduced his plan here. As a result of the two, steps have been taken for the holding next Sunday afternoon of a big mass meeting of non-church goers at the Wichita theatre where Dr. Prentice will give the principal address. R. E. Shepherd was named chairman of a committee to conduct the necessary publicity work this week, while Judge P. A. Martin was drafted to write letters to mayors of a number of nearby communities, asking that territory surrounding Wichita Falls furnish its quota for the session.

Speakers will appear this week before the luncheon clubs and fraternal organizations; through the courtesy of H. S. Ford screen announcements of the Sunday meeting and its purpose will be made to movie audiences each day in the three theatres controlled by him; announcement cards will be placed in the hotel lobbies and other publicity steps taken.

Want Large Crowd.

The principal purpose is to get as large and representative a crowd as possible into the theatre next Sunday, where Dr. Prentice will have an opportunity to explain as only he can, the real motives and methods of procedure of his idea.

In the absence of J. T. Harrell, elected chairman of the central committee at the first meeting, J. C. Coffey, vice-chairman, presided Tuesday evening. Included in the list of those who attended and endorsed the plan were Mayor Frank Collier, Chief of Police George H. Hodgins, P. A. Rogers, H. S. Ford, T. F. Hunter and others.

BOOTLEGGING IN ENGLAND

Great Britain Has Its Prohibition Problem Due to Excessive Duty.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—England has a bootlegging problem, says the Westminister Gazette, which although small compared with America's, threatens to grow and may necessitate the adoption of special measures.

The trouble arises from the fact that the price of spirits in France is only about half that in England where the duty is very high. This encourages smuggling crews to run contraband cargoes across the channel in small motor boats and land them on unfrequented parts of the English coast whence they are taken to London and other large cities in motor lorries.

Flood of Wheat Is Weight For Prices

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—In a storm of selling orders today the wheat market found itself swamped. Proposals to prevent big fluctuations in price led apparently to the very thing which it was desired to avert and under a deluge of selling the market suddenly sank to 183 1-2 a bushel May delivery, 7 3-4 cents below yesterday's latest figures.

Wheat seemed to pour into the trading pit continuously throughout the day and notwithstanding liberal buying which at times developed, the close was only a fraction above the bottom level reached. Severe losses in rye and in corn and oats as well, took place in sympathy with the setback suffered by wheat.

Threatened government investigation of the recent course of the wheat market was an additional reason put forward to account for today's acute weakness of values.

BRITON TALENT A CLIMAX TO ARTISTS' NIGHT

Mrs. Stacy Fulfills Expectations Of Ability As Composer

$700 IS CLEARED

Musicians' Club In Delightful Concert At Junior College Tuesday

Carrying off high honors at the Musician's club artist's concert Tuesday evening at the Junior college, Mrs. Harwood Stacy, or Stella Stacy as she is known to the musicians here and abroad, who sing her songs, far fulfilled all expectations as to her ability as a composer when she presented two of her compositions, "Ashes of Roses" and "An English Song" to an enthusiastic audience.

Rev. Leslie Miller sang the numbers and Denza's "May Morning" with the marked ease and pleasing singing quality which characterizes all of his offerings. His interpretation of "Ashes of Roses" which was composed by Mrs. Stacy two weeks ago especially for his voice, was exceptionally fine.

Mrs. Stacy's songs reveal a rich and well balanced melody, are backed with a delicate accompaniment filled with unique turns of harmony. The "English Song" makes use of well defined and concise swinging accent which leads to a stirring climax. The accompaniments to both songs seem beautifully developed, but detract nothing from the theme of the song as the singer portrays it.

Studied Abroad.

Mrs. Stacy, who has studied for two two years in Paris and two years in Berlin from the world's masters, graduated from the Royal Academy at London with highest honors at the age of seventeen. She was awarded at that time a gold medal of merit for her outstanding work and creative ability. She has composed several highly successful songs during her studies abroad, and comes from a musical family, being a cousin to Hugh Bocquet, one of the foremost song composers in London at the present time.

Ensemble string players, soloists of voice, violin and piano; an excellent male quartet; a vocal duet and a dansense of the French ballet filled a well balanced program.

"Personality" marked the enjoyable offering of the popular quartet of male singers composed of Messrs. Vaughn Ray, Paul Von Allmen, Grover Bullington, Ivan Murchison and J. Sidney Pitman, known as "The Shrine Chanters." The group sings with per-

Guards Made Convict Dig His Own Grave, Then Shot Him, Mrs. King Testifies

"IS COLLINS IN CAVE?" ASKED AT AN INQUIRY

Court Told Victim Is Within Crevice, His Foot Trapped

REPORTER ON STAND

Correspondent Tells of Talking To Victim Within The Cave

CAVE CITY, Ky., Feb. 10.—(AP) Miners working in the Sand Cave shaft through which they hope to reach Floyd Collins, already imprisoned more than eleven days, struck comparatively easy going below the forty foot level today.

The shaft now is somewhat more than forty feet deep, H. T. Carmichael director of the work, said, but no measurement has been taken. Some dirt was mixed in with the rock uncovered this evening and workers expected to make faster progress for the next few feet before the strata changes.

No tests with amplifying devices to determine whether the cave victim lives have been made since early morning, when experimenters expressed the opinion that Collins still breathed, although much more slowly than yesterday.

Few at Cave.

There were fewer visitors at the cave today. Chief interest swung to Cave City where a military court of inquiry heard several witnesses relate what they had done and what had been done to their knowledge to aid Collins. The court met upon the call of Governor William J. Fields, to investigate all angles of the cave tragedy.

"The investigation was made because of charges by certain persons that others had not acted properly in the rescue work and on account of reports and stories that had been circulated in regard to the situation at the cave including a rumor that the entrapment of Collins migut be a hoax of some sort. The governor said the circulation of such reports was unfortunate, as they tended to impede rescue work.

"Stories reciting some of these rumors were sent out by various correspondents. In a statement issued in connection with the inquiry the governor mentioned the Associated Press dispatch on the subject.

The Dispatch said that some persons had expressed doubt that Collins was trapped in the cave but those "who actually reached Collins were firmly convinced his leg is caught so he cannot help himself. Skepticism and speculations among the spectators as to Collins fate were common, ac-

Opposition Crops Out For Warren

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Opposition to the nomination of Charles B. Warren of Michigan to succeed Harlan F. Stone, as attorney general has reached such proportions as to give some concern to administration leaders.

While the fight still is centered in the judiciary committee, some of the opponents are conducting a quiet campaign among senators generally. They claim a sufficient number of votes to prevent confirmation, but this is disputed by republican leaders.

Crevice Is Sought To Get Collins

CAVE CITY, Ky., Feb. 10.—(AP)—Strong fumes of banana oil tonight came through the bottom of the rescue shaft boring down toward Floyd Collins' prison and officials in charge of the work had strong hopes of finding a tunnel or crevic through which they might reach the imprisoned man by dawn tomorrow.

Further tests with the amplification device attached to the electric light wire leading down to Collins late today, gave what the physicians here asserted was absolute proof that Collins still is alive.

A series of raspy noises interrupted the regularly timed, faint rattle in the head-phones indicating, the physicians declared, that Collins was coughing or moving about.

The "breathing" sounds in the receivers, at the even rate of 20 times a minute, after the "coughing" sounds had ceased, dropped to 11 or 12 times a minute, indicating, physicians said, that Collins had fallen asleep.

The shaft tonight at 8 o'clock was something over 40 feet deep, according to unofficial estimates. The banana oil was sprayed down the original sand cave tunnel Sunday night, and the geologists and mining experts searched caves in the vicinity for scent-laden air but without avail. There has been a no'' cable down draft in the tunnel despite the rock slide which prevented rescuers from further attempts to reach Collins in that manner since early Thursday.

At 11 o'clock tonight, considerable progress had been made in the side of the tunnel through the mud and seans through which the banana oil odor was drifting and those in charge of the rescue work felt that Collins would be reached in a few hours.

WOMAN WHO PROBED PRISON TELLS CRUELTIES

She Is Member of Prison Advisory Board Named By Neff

NAMES THE GUARDS

One Was Discharged And Another Still Retained On The Payroll

AUSTIN, Feb. 10.—(AP)—A lone woman, for three years waging a battle against alleged brutality and graft in the state prison system, was the picture presented today to the legislative prison investigating committee by Mrs. J. E. King, chairman of the prison advisory board.

She told an amazing story of killings, neglect of sick prisoners, harsh and brutal treatment by guards and dtocors, and general inefficiency in the system.

This was the first time since her appointment as chairman of the board three years ago by Former Governor Pat M. Neff, that Mrs. King has had an opportunity to publicly present the evidence she unearthed. She said she had made this her life work, after discovering the true conditions and that she hoped to pursue the task until the prison system is cleaned up.

Native of Chile.

The grewsome death of Frank Chance, a native of Chile, who was shot to death by guards on one of the prison farms, as related by Mrs. King, set the committee members "aghast." It was charged Chance had been compelled to dig his own grave. Mrs. King declared the man was murdered in cold blood and that she had tried in vain to obtain the discharge of one of the guards, F. E. Hamilton, who was charged with complicity in the case.

Mrs. King received a letter from Chance asking her to come to the prison to save him, because he feared he was to be killed. According to the letter, the guards had taken Chance out in a field where they make him dig a hole, which they inferred was to be his grave.

"They asked me how tall I was," said Chance's letter, which Mrs. King read. "When I told them six feet, they ordered me to dig a hole six feet long as that was to be my grave."

Mrs. King hastened to the prison farm as soon as she could, but was delayed several days.

"When I arrived, Chance was dead," continued the witness. "He had been shot to death by the guards. His death was a cold-blooded, brutal murder. The guards explained they had shot him because he had threatened to kill a dog and they thought it their duty to protect state property by killing the prisoner.

Names the Guards.

"Think of such a thing happening in this age? The guards implicated in the affair were F. E. Hamilton and W. E. Dunman. I demanded that the men be prosecuted for murder and requested the grand jury to take it up. The only result was that Dunman was discharged. Hamilton is still retained."

Mrs. King said she found prisoners at the Clemens farm compelled to work in the blazing sun with the temperature from 103 to 106 and that Dr. C. C. Hampel, physician of this farm, refused to treat a Mexican with a broken jaw. She said she held Dr. Hempel directly responsible for conditions at this farm.

At the tubercular farm, she declared she found men sleeping in the dairy house where the milk and butter for the patients were kept. The beds at this farm were alive with bugs which fell to the floor when the matresses were lifted, she said. The officials at the farm told her this was soot.

"I never before saw soot with legs and crawling," she exclaimed.

For conditions at this farm, she declared Dr. L. H. Bush, prison physician, was responsible.

Strung Up On Ladders.

At the Ramsey Farm, she testified, prisoners were strung up on long ladders by their hands. She discovered this upon examinging the sore hands of a prisoner. He said he had been strung up until his hands "burst open."

She declared she had tried for years to have Captain N. T. Thornton, in charge of the Wynne Farm, removed for inefficiency and for the cruelties practiced there. When she brought his case before the prison commissioners, she declared Commissioner McKnight told her she was right, but that Thornton could not be removed at that time, and McKnight voted with Chairman J. A. Herring of the commission to retain Thornton, she testified.

The prison "bat," a leather whip, she characterized as a "terrible thing," which should be abolished. Asked by a member of the committee if discipline would be possible without it, she replied that solitary confinement was much more effective. A study of some of the best prisons in the country had led her to this conclusion, she said.

Bill Engrossed And Passed Including Increased Budget

AUSTIN, Feb. 10.—(AP)—The state system of caring for insane would be completely reorganized by the Wallace and Irwin bill which was engrossed and passed today in the house. The bill enacts the major recommendations of the Texas lee-mosynary commission appointed by the 38th legislature.

Earlier in the day the house passed the eleemosynary appropriation bill carrying a total of $7,787,910 for the next biennium, an increase of $808,-419 over the appropriations for the present biennium, but $100,350 less than the board of control recommendations. The bill includes $139,520 for the girls' training school at Gainesville, an item stricken from the senate appropriations bill. Opposition is expected when the house bill reaches the senate.

If the reforms in the Wallace bill are put into effect, Representative T. K. Irwin said, insanity in Texas would be reduced 50 per cent. Treatment of insane persons under supervision of trained psychiatrists is provided instead of incarceration as at present, it was said.

The bill changes the name of each item to "state hospital."

COLLINS

cording to newspaper men and the fact was also recorded along with the statements that any hint of a hoax was discredited by men in a position to speak authoritatively.

Reporter on Stand.

Testimony given today by William B. Miller, reporter for the Louisville Courier Journal, Lieutenant Robert Burdon of the Louisville fire department, and B. G. Fishback indicated there was no doubt in their minds that Collins was firmly trapped in the place where he had been visited by rescue workers. Miller, Burdon and Fishback all testified they had talked to Collins in the cavern.

Miller related how he had endeavored to free Collins by removing rock from around his waist. Burden told of finding food strewn along the passageway in the cave presumably he said, by those who had failed to reach the prisoner with it. The fireman also described to the court his efforts to free Collins by pulling him bodily from the hole with a rope harness. Fishback advanced a hitherto unrecorded theory that the victims foot was not pushed down into a crevice by a boulder but that the rock had fallen underneath the foot and had pinned it to the roof of the tunnel.

Sessions of the court were to continue untill all witnesses who had first hand information of rescue work were heard.

FERGUSON

Ferguson with his wife, Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson and their daughter, Mrs. George S. Nalle, had sat throughout the discussion.

The debate on the amnesty measure was characterized as a friendly discussion. The Fergusons sat just behind the last row of senate seats, in chairs especially arranged for them. Apparently they were unperturbed by the debate, though Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson manifested a deep interest as the argument went back and forth through three hours of discussion.

As the vote was announced, senators an dspectators rushed to Mr. Ferguson to shake his hand and congratulate both him and Governor Ferguson. Soon the two were surrounded by a throng of men and women, and Mr. Ferguson was busy shaking hands with both hands, beaming and calling his friends by their first names. Mrs. Ferguson held him tightly by the arm most of the time, and when the crowd of congratulators had begun to thin, she took him by the arm and they walked out of the senate chamber together.

Throughout the debate the galleries were crowded, all business in the capitol apparently having been suspended for what was considered one of the most interesting incidents of the legislative session. Practically all senators were in their seats.

Six Are Heard.

Six speeches were made. Senators Price, Wood and Bailey spoke for a constitutional amendment as the best means to remove the impeachment bar from Mr. Ferguson and Senators Ward, Woodward and Wirtz argued for the passage of an amnesty bill.

Senator Price recited the history of the efforts of the senate to arrive at a conclusion beginning with the introduction of the initial resolution by Senator J. Roy Hardin of Kaufman, which would commit the senate to some action down to the resolution by Senator Lloyd E. Price of Daingerfield, which was adopted by the senate and which would commit it merely to report the best steps to be taken. A committee was appointed, he said, and brought in majority and minority reports. The majority report recommended an amnesty bill and presented a draft of a measure for the senate to consider. A minority report by Senator Price advocated a constitutional amendment. It was on these reports that the subject came before the senate today.

The first vote was on adoption of the majority report and the second vote on final passage of the bill itself.

Senator Price, who opened the argument, insisted that legality of an amnesty bill was doubtful, while the effect of a constitutional amendment was sure.

"If there is a Rock of Ages for us," he said, "it is the constitution. If this legislature can strike down a part of it," referring to the lack of any pardoning power in the constitution in cases of impeachment, "then it is an invitation to subsequent legislatures to do likewise." That, he termed a dangerous precedent.

Senator Pierce B. Ward of Cleburne argued that the common law, applied in this case.

"Listen," he said, "this question has already been passed on by the people at the primaries and in the election."

Senator Walter C. Woodward of Colemand, summed up his argument by asserting that "the legislature has the right to legislate on any subject, great or small, provided it is not prohibited by the constitution or delegated to the federal government."

Objects To Buck Passing.

Senator A. E. Wood of Granger, who had introduced a resolution for a constitutional amendment, "hoped the senate would decide the matter according to the written law and not by what the senators would like for the law to be."

Senator A. J. Wirtz of Seguin, declared there was no doubt in his mind that the power to remove the impeachment disqualifications was vested in the legislature, "and we ought not," he said, "pass the buck to the people."

"I do not think you even want the people to pardon Jim Ferguson," he said, addressing proponents of the constitutional amendment plan, "because you do not say so in your resolution."

Senator Bailey, who was a member of the senate which impeached Mr. Ferguson, told the senate that he held out at the senate trial against disqualifying him.

"I said then," he declared, "and I say it now, that nobody could undo that disqualification except the people."

Senator Bailey explained that to be consistent he would refrain from voting on the special senate committee majority report recommending the enactment of an amnesty law.

On motion of Senator Wirtz the majority report was adopted, the rules were suspended and the amnesty bill was finally passed.

The Gallery Cheers.

The audience in the gallery apparently was composed of Ferguson friends and sympathizers. It applauded when Senator Price finished his argument. Lieutenant Governor Barry Miller announced that "I'll have none of that," and told the audience that another demonstration would result in clearing the senate chamber of visitors. It was effective.

Mr. Ferguson and Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, who were interested auditors on the senate floor, heard nothing but kindly words uttered for themselves during the three hours debate. There was no difference of opinion about the desirability of freeing Mr. Ferguson from his political disabilities. The only differences expressed was on the method.

The bill now goes to the house. Its probable fate there is "not known, but the constitutional plan has been proposed in a joint resolution by Representative John Veatch of Joshua, and concerted opposition against the amnesty plan is expected. Observers say its passage will not be as easy there, or as sudden as in the senate, though they think it will pass.

RATES FOUND REASONABLE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Express rates for the transportation and insurance of money, gold and silver bullion and securities were declared reasonable in a preliminary finding submitted today to the interstate commerce commission.

Latest Photos From Floyd Collins' "Living Tomb"

Above: Kentucky state guardsmen keeping sightseers from the entrance to the cave. Below: Al Maddox, who is seriously ill with pneumonia as a result of his heoric efforts to rescue Collins; "Skeets" Miller, newspaper reporter, who has repeatedly dared death in attempts to save the entombed man, and who succeeded in getting the first story of the mishap from the victim; and Dr. W. H. Howlett, who was brought from Chicago to go into the cave and operate on Collins. The plan was frustrated by the slide which blocked the passage. The map shows the situation graphically. 1—Collins lies trapped here indirectly connected with the world by an electric light wire. 2—The floor of the cave has risen between him and his rescuers, blocking all hope of getting him out by a natural passage. 3—The rescuers now are drilling a shaft down to where the prisoner lies. There is danger of the whole cave collapsing or of workers breaking through into some unknown cave and falling many feet. 4—Aided by the most modern machinery, the rescuers are digging the shaft and have it down more than 18 feet.

Confederate Home Quiz Finds Minor Changes Needed

Board of Control Agrees To Remedy Few Small Existing Evils

AUSTIN, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Conditions at the Confederate Veterans home, are not as bad as rumors indicate," it was announced today by Representatives Boggs of San Angelo, chairman of a special investigating committee after an all-day hearing. More than 50 witnesses were examined, mostly veterans.

At the lunch hour, the committee members conveyed to the veterans a message of cheer and good will from Governor Miriam A. Ferguson.

Should Make Inspections.

Several recommendations have been made to the state board of control by the sub-committee. Among them are: That the "buzzard's roost," one of the dormitories is a "fire trap;" a more sanitary system of dishwashing should be used; regular inspections by the board of control representatives; that meat orders be checked so that the board would be assured the veterans are getting the food purchased, and that the board take steps to stop the serving of over-roasted coffee.

Board to Help.

Assurance that the board of control would take steps to inaugurate reforms suggested, was made by S. B. Cowell, chairman. He said that the "buzzard's roost" is being used because there are so many applications for entrance and that an appropriation is now before the legislature to repair the home so that this building may be abandoned.

BRITON TALENT

sonality, arranging popular airs cleverly, making use of rapid and melodious enunciation which is humorously rythmic and perfectly understood. Many laughs were brought forth when the performers sang "Your Lips Tell me No, No," first "as she is written" then as a Wop song, and finally with black derbies and appropriate gestures, as a Yiddish selection.

To The Sublime.

From the ridiculous to the sublime went the program as Mlle. Delphyne Baluewa appeared in an elaborate billowy, ruffly, lacy creation of delicate pink and fuschia shades caught with tiny rose buds similar to those which formed the spray in her hands, and formed the dainty boquet in her hair. To the oldest known French dance melody, she danced in her matchless style two rare bits of old French art of the eighteenth century, creations of Mlle. Salle and La Camargo. Mademoiselle was forced to respond to a curtain call. She was accompanied by Miss Maude Minter Watts.

Floyd Ard, a finished artist still in his teens, played as a piano solo the intricate Hungarian Rhapsodie No. 10 (Liszt with beautiful execution and tone shading. So perfectly is the interpretation his own that it seems incomprehensible to the listener that the wonderful melody was ever gleaned by the young pianist from printed notes.

Stanley Raub, violinist of note, played beautifully three numbers, "Romance from 2nd Concerto" (Wieniawski), "Serenade Espagnole" (Chaminade-Kreisler) and "Schon Roemarin" (Kreisler.) The finished style, the perfect execution and interpretation of the artist were enhanced by some delicate work in harmonies in the second mentioned number. Mrs. A. H. Britain was at the piano.

The Ray sisters, Misses Adele and Juel, who are well known since their establishment in the city this season for their outstanding vocal work, gave a duet and a solo each. Miss Adele Ray with her lovely lyric soprano voice, sang Scott's "Winds In the South," a brilliant light number in which the singer with her charming personality, told of spring time laughter, and love singing high clear notes and tripping cadenzas with abandon and sweetness. Miss Juel Ray sang Bohm's "Calm As the Night" with her beautifully placed contralto voice, interpreting the song with rich sweetness. The duet number by the gifted sisters was a colorful Gypsy song, an adaptation of the famous "Fifth Hungarian Dance," by Brahms. Mrs. Felix Collard was at the piano.

Group of Ensembles.

Especially enjoyable were the two groups of string ensembles. Mesdames Jouette Bonner, O. E. Nicholls, Alfred Miller and C. R. Eyssen playing violins with Mrs. Harwood Stacy at the piano, opened the evening's program with "Adagio Cantabile" (Beethoven) and "Spanish Danse" (Mozkowski). The work of the group is notable for their unity, and for the depth of interpretation given their portrayals.

Mrs. T. B. Greenwood playing viola, Mrs. Lucile Brooks Huff at the piano, and Myron Ellis playing cello composed a string trio that added one of the artistic bits to the program giving Kreisler's arrangement of an old "Londonderry Air" which is known in song form as "Danny Boy." The sweetness of the melody and the work of the trio in its performance made the number a highly enoyable one.

Over $700 was reported from the ticket sales which will go toward the purchase of the grand piano on the Junior college stage, and the concert from an artistic and entertaining standpoint proved a more marked success than even the financial returns indicate. The program, which was arranged with care, proved enjoyable to all types of music lovers and unlike most amateur offerings, did not drag, but closed only too quickly, judging from the reluctance of the audience to leave the auditorium at the close of the final number.

There were few developments to hold the public interest, however. The jury entered quickly on its work is private, and in a short time announcement was made that the indictments had been returned.

Judge Jeffrey had not set the case for trial early this afternoon but was expected to do so shortly.

Exoneration Seen In Boy's Slaying

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 10. — City detectives L. F. Grasshoff and A. C. Goff will be exonerated by the grand jury which began an investigation of the killing of Henry Gish, 18-year-old high school boy Tuesday morning, according to freely expressed opinions of court house and city jail attaches.

Before the grand jury began delving into the killing, Mrs. Gish, mother of the slain youth, notified District Attorney C. M. Chambers that she did not care to appear before the inquisitorial body, that she had no witness to send and she desired as little additional publicity as possible.

"I don't think the officers, had anything against my son. I think they were doing their duty," Mrs. Gish said.

The boy was killed by the two detectives when he failed to obey their commands to stop his car last Thursday night. At the time he was driving an automobile which the officers were looking for as a stolen machine. They shot at the car he was driving when he speeded up at their command to halt. Declares Father Killed Man Who Wronged Daughter

C. M. Livingston On Trial For Grapevine Killing In 1923.

FORT WORTH, Feb. 10.—"I've got you—I'm going to kill you," was the exclamation made by C. M. Livingston just before he shot and killed Alfred Davis, 24, at Grapevine, July 1, 1923, according to testimony Tuesday morning in criminal district court. The witness who made this assertion was C. L. Dickey of Jackson, Tenn., who was visiting at the Davis home and who was in the automobile in which Davis was shot.

The automobile was parked in the business district of Grapevine when Livingston, now on trial on a murder charge, approached Davis.

Lewis Fullerton of Jackson, a second cousin of the deceased, also was in the automobile at the time of the shooting and gave testimony similar to that offered by Dickey.

"After the first shot was fired from a double barrel sawed off shot gun, Alfred fell over on the steering wheel," Dickey related. "Livingston turned to us and said: "you boys get out of that car—I'm going to finish him."

Following this remark another shot was fired, he said.

Miss Valda Livingston, former school teacher and daughter of the defendant, is to be one of the main defense witnesses. She has appeared in court with her 16-months-old baby who she says is the son of the man her father killed. At the time of his death Davis was facing seduction charges.

BEAUMONT, Feb. 10. — Twelve men, three white and nine negroes were injured, one white man, possibly fatally when a logging engine overturned on a low trestle near Milvid early this morning. Three of the men, John Vance, woods foreman for the West Lumber company, and a Mr. Witham, white, and one negro were brought to a hospital here for treatment.

Nine others were to be taken to Conroe.

Two Are Killed As Plane Tail-Spins

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 10.—Major Lee O. Wright of Lyons, Indiana, and Lieutenant Arthur L. Foster, whose parents live at Weir, Texas, were both instantly killed and their bodies burned in an airplane crash at Brooks field Tuesday morning.

The ship went into a spin at 500 feet and crashed within two miles of the field.

Major Wright, an ordnance officer, was a student and Lieutenant Foster was an instructor.

THROAT BRINGS A NOTE

It's Not The Vocal Chords That Make a Singer, This Professor Says

PARIS, Feb. 10.—The vocal chords have nothing to do with the production of the voice, according to Henri Frossard, preparator at the Sorbonne, the results of whose researches into the subject were read to the Academy of Science last evening.

Sound, the professor declared, is caused in the throat, not by vibrations of the vocal chords, but by vibration of the air in the cavities beside them; consequently the mechanism of the human voice, he holds, is comparable to the ocarina rather than to the accordion. Similar theory was formulated by Professor Savart a century ago, but was never pursued.

A committee of eight business men and bankers was appointed by the mayor to select the special policemen to be named from all factions and to be appointed by the mayor.

Woman Is Involved In Shooting Affray

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Chris G. Hupfel, son of John C. G. Hupfel, millionaire brewer, was reported recovering today from two head wounds inflicted by a woman who shot him down last night on Lexington Avenue.

Mrs. Kossera Spanaljowick, whom police identified as a sister to Dr. Milisoff, Serbian ambassador to France, who was arrested at the scene of the shooting, was being held. She denied allegations of witnesses that she fired the shots and Hupfel told police he could not identify his assailant.

He recalled, however, according to police, that threats had been made against him by the woman in letters which were entered in evidence in a legal action brought against him by her in 1923.

EVOLUTION SPELLED BACKWARD.

It is not just clear what results in science are to be looked for from the claim advanced by Sir Arthur Keith, anthropologist, that man is to become more like the lower animals in the future. But it is certain that such a theory cannot attain wide popularity. No one wants to sink to the plane of the animals, even for the sake of robust health and freedom from worry—the compensation promised by Sir Arthur.

Advocates of progress must be aggrieved by Sir Arthur's assertion that life tends to become rather less complicated than more complicated, because existence has been simplified by our ancestors. He believes that all the great problems were solved in the remote past, and that all we have to do now is to relax and take life away. This is quite enough to drive our "go-getters" to despair. It is almost equivalent to saying that we should be only as wise as our ancestors. But Sir Arthur, in truth, mainmaintains that we will do well to be a little less wise than our ancestors.

Descending to personalities, Sir Arthur insists that we all have "rooms to let," being "like people dwelling in a big house, but occupying only the cellar," all because we are supposed by him to have ten times as much brain power as we really need. The granting of our capacity does not soften the statement that we use only about one-tenth of our brains. The public prints and the cross word puzzle pointed to by Sir Arthur as corroborating his views. It is plain that he cares nothing for popularity. His most shocking statement is made when, in order to prove that we would all be better off with less intellect and more intuition, he speaks of woman as affording conspicuous examples of the correctness of his theories. "I mean it in no derogatory sense," asserts Sir Arthur apologetically, "when I say that women have a larger share of intuition because they have a smaller intellectual capacity than men. I do not suppose that we shall ever see a woman with the brain of a colossus."

This break will never be forgotten. But it should be said in extenuation of Sir Arthur's offense that under his theory of evolution, the most advanced types of humanity are the least intellectual. He seems to think the intellect a troublesome thing, of which man should wish to be rid. He indulges the optimistic belief that his theory is the correct one because a "hyper-intellect" occasions its possessor much pain, making him too conscious of his own littleness. He would have us small in order to remove that faculty which enlightens us as to our smallness. His reasoning runs counter to the philosophy that men are as great as their aspirations, but it is in line with the poetical thought that "where ignorance is bliss 'tis folly to be wise."

CHILD LABOR.

Although the child labor amendment has failed of adoption it is by no means dead. Submitted without a time limit for its adoption, an amendment to the Federal constitution can never be killed. In the opinion of authorities on this subject, even the two amendments submitted by our first Congress which were not adopted when ten others, forming the famous Bill of Rights, were added to the Constitution, are still before the States and might become parts of the supreme law of the land at this late day if ratified by the required number of state legislatures.

Should the states abuse the opportunity now offered them to deal with the problem of child labor without Federal interference, the Federal amendment is certain to be brought forward again. It has been defeated everywhere in the name of State Rights. None of its more prominent opponents has contended that the employment of little children in factories is a condition which ought to be preserved. Those who were foremost in attacking the amendment should now take the lead in urging the states to make adequate provision for the protection of their children.

THE SYMPATHY OF MILLIONS.

Floyd Collins of Cave City, Kentucky, practically unknown beyond the limits of his home county, is trapped in a tunnel by the fall of a boulder and becomes an object of the deepest sympathy to millions of Americans. The story of his gallant fight for life holds the most important position in hundreds of newspapers day after day. Rich men and poor men in the great cities rush for news stands to find out whether Collins has been rescued. His fate is discussed on western ranches, middle western farms, southern plantations and in far northern forests. It isn't curiosity that moves the millions but the noblest sentiments of the human heart. Collins' dreadful experience calls forth a striking demonstration of the spirit which makes existence worthwhile and mankind, with all its faults, a lovable race.

WHERE THE PEOPLE TALK.

A high official of the Bell Telephone company supplies the news that more than 2,250,000 telephones are in use in the New York territory served by the New York Telephone company, a net gain of 205,000 in 1924. This is not all, this high official of the Bell organization is positive that saturation is not in sight. And there is never a second on the island of Manhattan when the line is not busy.

BRUCE TAKES THE OTHER EXTREME.

Senator Bruce of Maryland, answering Senator Borah's criticism of France, goes to the other extreme. Borah having contended that we owe France nothing—not even gratitude—for her assistance in the Revolutionary war, Bruce argues that we owe her everything. He sees in the France of Louis XVI a nation of pure altruists, whose sacrifices of men and money established our freedom. The fact that gifts as well as loans were received from France by our struggling forefathers is cited by the senator from Maryland to prove that we still owe the French both money and thanks.

Now it is well enough to keep alive the memory of France's contribution to American independence, but the contention that American independence was a gift from France is simply absurd. Our forefathers, as British writers admit, had proved themselves unconquerable before France declared on their side. That declaration gratified but did not astonish them. France and Britain were ancient foes. Twelve years before the revolution, France had been forced to sign a humiliating treaty under which the greater part of her possessions in North America was transferred to Britain. The colonists had reason to expect and did expect that France would seize the opportunity afforded by their revolt to square accounts with her enemy. Individual Frenchmen early took part in the American struggle, but France did not go to war until Burgoyne's defeat had demonstrated the determination and strength of the colonists. Her aid was timely and of the highest value but it was not extended with the design of sacrificing her interests to those of the colonists. Her statesmen had predicted, after the French and Indian war, that the Americans, having tasted of power, would not rest content until they had achieved their independence. Their prediction was fulfilled by the revolution, and, as they had expected, that event resulted in a restoration, temporary though it proved, of the prestige of France.

The French gifts to the colonists were gifts of individuals, comparable—in nature, but not in amount—with the donations lately made by Americans for relief work in Europe. The government loans were repaid. The French government did not hesitate to ask for their repayment and the Americans did not dispute their validity. These loans meant much to the American colonists, but they must seem small indeed when compared with the sums advanced France by this country a few years ago. In paying them, our forefathers obtained liberal terms, but it never occurred to them to point out that they had more men in the field than France furnished and that the war was fought on their soil, and to argue, from these facts, that France was rather more indebted to them than they were to France.

FACTS FOR JONES.

Jones, the freight payer, thinks that he is overloaded. Is he? A survey by National Industrial Conference Board shows that national taxes decreased more than 27 per cent in the three years previous to 1924. In the same time state and local taxes increased 15 per cent. 1912 the combined debts of all American states and municipalities totaled less than four billion dollars. Now they total eleven billions, or one-half the entire national debt. Jones is reminded however, that the national wealth increased seventy-five billion dollars since 1912. If he failed to get some of the increase he must have been asleep at the switch.

ANOTHER BUILDING YEAR.

Now it is announced that the 1925 building plans equal the 1924 record and a federal survey shows no sign of slackening throughout the country. According to the survey, an extensive program calls for large public and commercial construction with the comment that our labor conditions are much better than they were last year.

This survey forecasts great building activity in many southern states and another big year for the city of New York. Labor, organized and unorganized, should be satisfied with conditions as forecasted by the federal experts responsible for the survey.

PRIDE AND CRIME.

It is recognized that the chief characteristic of most criminals is that of pride.

A man is proud to be known as a leader in crime, proud of his thuggism, proud of his skill as a gunman.

It is a well known fact that pride is one of the chief incentives to crime.

Newspaper publicity is sweet to the soul of the law-breaker.

The trouble is that crime is egocentric in its character. All criminals are individualists. They are at war with society. At the same time they care more for the plaudits of society than they are willing to admit.

One of the worst punishments of a criminal who has achieved some celebrity is to tell him that you have never heard of him.

It follows from this that one of the best cures of crime is obscurity. The criminal feeds upon notoriety.

Even when he is hung it is some consolation to know that he is in the spotlight. He is in the center of the stage and he rejoices that his passing is dramatic.

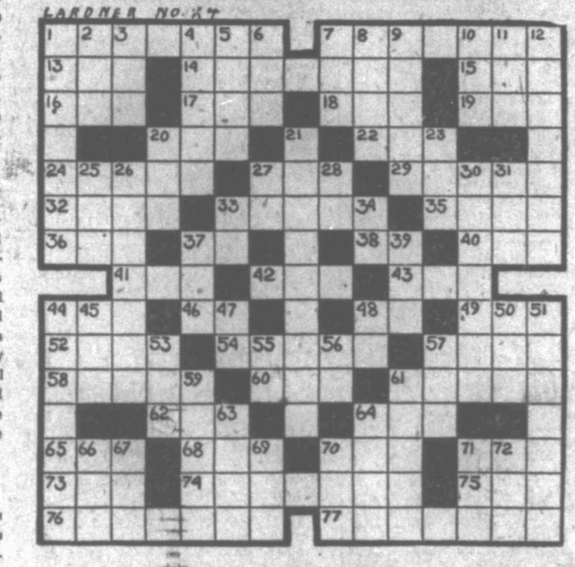

All religion is religion of the other fellow. Its object is to induce a man to have respect for the rights of others. Irreligion of any kind is egocentric. A man dwells upon his own importance. His chief complaint is that enough attention is not paid to him.

Everything should be done to bring the criminal to a realization of the importance of his fellow men, that he is to live for them and work for them, and not for himself.

Cross-Word Puzzle

How to Solve The Cross Word Puzzle.

Every number in the form represents the beginning of a word, reading either horizontally or vertically. If there is a black square to the left of the number, the word is horizontal; if above it, the word is vertical. Irrigation

Population Increased Through Irrigation.

You frequently hear discussions of the increase in population expected to occur when the irrigation project is colonized. Dr. Youngblood in his address before the chamber of commerce, gave some interesting figures on the subject.

He estimates an average family of five on each ten acres of irrigated land. With only 50,000 acres in the project, this would mean 25,000 people. The population of Wichita county is now probably considerably less than 100,000, therefore such an increase would mean a growth of over 25 per cent in the county.

It is a fact based on the colonization of the irrigation project of the west, that for each person who settles on the farms there will be about 2 1-2 people reside in the towns. These figures are from projects where either no towns or only small ones existed at the time the projects were colonized. Where a large town or city existed the ratio was considerably less than 1-2 1-2, probably nearer 1-1 1-2.

Based on Dr. Youngblood's figures of an increase of 25,000 in the farming population we should expect an increase in the combined population of Wichita Falls, Iowa Park, Holliday and Electra of close to 40,000 people.

This in our judgment is a figure not likely to be reached for many years yet. It will be a long time before the farm unit here will be as small as 10 acres. It is going to be some years before it will be as small as 60-80 acres. But even on this basis the population of the irrigation district would be increased from six to eight thousand with an increase of from nine to twelve thousand in the surrounding towns.

Our oil boom brought in many people. The development of the irrigation project will add a great many more.

MATTERS OF HEALTH

You may offer a cure
And many will buy it
Who need nothing more
Than restricted diet.

Indulging the stomach to punish the heart.

If you'd raise a grand boy begin with the grandfather.

Of sweets and such we eat too much—they make us fat and slothful.

In any city, nothing is of more importance than its children. The health of the children depends upon the purity of its milk supply and the purity of the milk supply depends upon the efficiency of the health department.

And the greatest of gifts
Is the snow when it drifts,
For red blooded people who play;
When they hover in droves
Over scorching hot stoves
There's always the doctor to pay.

Taking the baby to the movie annoys both the child and the audience.

If we'd think about posterity as much as we do about prosperity, succeeding generations would be both healthier and wealthier.

POEMS THAT LIVE

ON A GIRDLE

That which her slender waist confined
Shall now my joyful temples bind;
No monarch but would give his crown,
His arms might do what this has done.

It was my heaven's extremest sphere,
The pale which held that lovely deer.
My joy, my grief, my hope, my love,
Did all within this circle move.

A narrow compass! and yet there
Dwelt all that's good, and all that's fair.
Give me but what this ribbon bound,
Take all the rest the sun goes round!
—Edmund Waller.

More Truth Than Poetry

POETRY FOR THE PEOPLE.

If you cannot get a job,
Laugh it off,
Do not sit around and sob,
Laugh it off.
Work is always hard to do,
And it takes one's time up too;
Don't be worried, sad, or blue,
Laugh it off.

If a bandit steals your purse,
Laugh it off,
Many things could be far worse,
Laugh it off.
Deeds like this all bandits do,
And it possibly is true
That he needs it more than you;
Laugh it off.

If you've lost your only friend,
Laugh it off,
All our joys at last must end,
Laugh it off,
As we journey down the glade,
All our happiness must fade;
Life's a game that soon is played;
Laugh it off.

If the poorhouse looms ahead,
Laugh it off,
Once you're there you'll soon be dead,
Laugh it off.
Though you've landed in the ruck,
Do not ever lose your pluck;
Someone's always out of luck,
Laugh it off!

TACTFUL.

At least February knows when it has worn out its welcome.

NOT SO BAD AFTER ALL.

Trotzky must be wondering if there is any chance to get that New York trolley conductor's job back again.

EXCEPTION.

Mr. Nurmi's motto is not "haste makes waste."

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE ANSWERED.

What Today Means To You

By MARY BLAKE.

Aquarius.

Today's planetary aspects are, in the early morning, very propitious, but later on become less benign. A little before noon the conditions undergo a change, which, as the day grows older, becomes accentuated, and at sundown is positively adverse. Anything, therefore, calling for or demanding concentration or forceful effort should be done in the early part of the day. Thereafter, caution and ultra conservatism should guide your actions, and the less you do "out of the ordinary" will be productive of the best results. The vibrations indicate an unhealthy degree of introspection, and a proneness to become, not only pessimistic but disagreeable. Care should be taken to avoid both unconsidered speech and action.

A child born today will be very vivacious and full of life. It will be particularly immune rfom infantile ailments, and will develop along strong physical lines. It will be naturally always willing to take a dare and more vigilance needs to be exercised over this child to avoid accidents than measures taken to prevent sickness. Its disposition will be sunny and bright, whilst its character will, at all times, be firm. It will be very careful as to its choice of companions, but the friends it makes will give and receive quixotic loyalty. Today's child will be more ambitious in an outdoor sphere than in the pursuit of any business of a sedentary nature.

If today is your birthday, you are, in spite of many virtues, altogether too voluble. You are a more accomplished talker than you are a persistent doer. You have no mean opinion of either yourself or your abilities, and the mediocre condition of your material circumstances has not changed your opinion one jot or tittle. No matetr how many disappointments you experience, no matter how seriously your plans fail to materialize, you can always find an alibi and never realize—much less confess—that you yourself are to blame.

This attitude is most unfortunate, as, although your ability is not so great as that with which you have spontaneously endowed yourself, you have much natural talent, and with more action and less speech, you could travel far and accomplish much.

You are very affectionate and demonstrative, and are always willing and ready to make any sacrifice for those you love and for those who love you.

Successful people born on this date are: Benjamin F. Sands, naval officer that captured Galveston; Alexander H. Stephens, vice president of the confederacy; Melville Fuller, former chief justice supreme court; Alexander Herrman, universally known prestigidigitator; Thomas K. Edison, inventor; Franklin W. Hooper, scientist and educator.

Pantomime —By J. H. Striebel

Playing with Fire
The Story of a Social Climber
by Lucille Van Slyke

Something Chet had said once came back to her. She seemed to hear her former sweetheart's drawling voice: "Nobody can ever love you as much as I love you—and you can never love anybody as much as you love me."

She stirred uncomfortably.

"Maybe Quim doesn't love me as much," she thought with a little pang of regret, "Of course he loved Nannette's mother before he loved me—but he can give me lots more than Chet could—and—and—"

Suddenly, she jumped up to look down upon Quim's silvered temples and the unmistakably stolid, middle-aged look of him. She thought of Chet's dear boyish head and put her hand over her mouth to keep from screaming.

CHAPTER XLV.
Marked to Order

Hendrickson, tapping on the door, really saved her from making an hysterical fool of herself.

"Thornton on the wire, sir," she heard the secretary say.

She stood quite still, looking after her husband as his broad shoulders vanished through the doorway. His silvered temples might look pleasantly distinguished but his unmistakable bald spot looked just plain—old.

She shivered a little.

"Oh, Chet! Chet! what have I done?" she thought pitifully.

In her excited mood she was not remembering the real Chet who had so annoyed and irritated her by his lack of ambition. Indeed, if the real Chet had appeared to her at that moment, with the dust of his uninteresting trading upon his wrinkled everyday clothing and the rather stubbly, unshaved look that was apt to be his, Rosalie's superfluous little nose would probably have wrinkled fastidiously and she would have greeted him rigidly.

No, what she was really recalling was a certain glorious spring Sunday afternoon of this very year when Chet had come up to Normal school to see her and they had gone for a long walk through heavenly woods strewn with pine needles and sweet with trailing arbutus. They had rested in a sunny, sandy hollow, where Chet had stretched himself prone at her feet, burying his face on his crooked arm, and drifted off to sleep. She had sat beside him quietly until the sun was low, dreaming about the things she wanted him to do. Fine plans she made that day.

"I'll get him out of stupid old Emsville," she had thought. "Chet is so splendid looking when he takes the pains to be! If he was only in some decent business where he didn't have to go around looking like an ash collector!"

She had let her fingers twist themselves in his youthful mop of hair and when he waked up, apologetic, but shining-eyed from his rest, she had given him one of her rare, rare compliments.

"Chet, you've the best looking head of any man I know—I don't mean your face, you silly, so don't grin so—I just mean your head—your skull, I guess, I mean."

They had laughed together with the immoderate laughter of carefree youth. Almost it seemed to her that she could hear Chet's droll chuckle as he had answered.

"Give yourself time enough, Rose, and you'll get sort of crazy about all of me. The way I am about you," he added shyly. "For you can bet it's not just your head I love but every little bit of you."

No, it was an idalized Chet that she visualized. That she had given him up voluntarily didn't matter either. In this moment of self pity she longed for him as acutely as though death had snatched him from her.

"—dignity and discretion, indeed," she thought forlornly.

"Chet never scolded me like that! He loved me to say just what I thought! He didn't want me to go round all bottled up for fear of what folks would say!"

She went out of the room soberly, remembering dully, that it was time for Nannette's lessons.

"It's only on her account that Quim married me," she thought, most unfairly. "I'm really nothing but a governness, and a nurse maid and daren't say my soul's my own."

Nannette was sitting in a merry litter of innumerable paper dolls. Her pixie-like face lifted itself with a cheerful grin.

"Daddy all blown off?" she asked swinging her scissors. "I do think he is funny when he's mad," she added contemplatively. "He starts in scolding like everything, talking in terribly long words about how you ought to behave and what people will think if you don't behave and he gets you plumb mad—and when you get mad—why, he cools right off and begins kissing you and gives you something nice besides, mos' generally."

Her new step-daughter's diagnosis of her dad was positively uncanny!

Nannette's scissors snipped briskly at a paper lady.

"Here's one looks something like you, Rosy Lee. Isn't her coat perfectly sweet? It's—'duv-e-tyn edged with fox fur—'" the child read from the margin of the page from which she was cutting, "daddy," she called out to the man smiling at them from the doorway, "why don't you get Rosy Lee a coat like this?"

"Grand idea," he decided, linking his arm through Rosalie's. "I'm off for town," he added. "You girls get your duds on. I'll take you along."

Nannette's papers and scissors fairly flew.

"Only first," he screwed his lips thoughtfully, "you and I will go down stairs to talk with Stimson a minute. The fact is," he tried to make his manner perfectly casual, "the silver in the house was given by the Perry's—my sister took my mother's and grandmother's at the time she was married—I—er Stimson is packing it and we will send it back to Mrs. Perry, her maid left word with Stimson that she meant to put it in safety deposit for Nannette. So—when we get to town today I'll take you down to Tiffany's and you can choose the pattern you want. Stimson is making a list of what we'll need—we'll have it marked to order for you—"

Stimson's manner was irreproachable. One of the maids was helping him as he checked from a typewritten list. There seemed to the unsophisticated Rosalie to be an appaling amount of the dull red canton flannel cases, lying on the pantry shelves.

"Maybe Mrs. Perry wants the linen too," she murmured with embarrassment, "that's marked with—with—"

"Better pack that too," Quim was most casual. "We'll send out what you'll need for everyday, Stimson."

"You won't need to send any, Mr. Quimby, "the man servant answered. "Only a small part of the supply was in Mrs. Quimby's—" he coughed apologetically, "—things, most of it was bought last year when Mrs. Perry replenished things at the time the dining room was redecorated."

They drove in town in a rather cumbersome closed car. Nannette chattering with glee at the unexpected trip.

Rosalie had a rather nervous moment while they waited in front of an enormous apartment house in Park avenue for Quim's sister to come down to them. But Quim's sister greeted Rosalie as serenely as though she were not a penniless school ma'am whose elopement had flung her into the headlines. She was several years older than Quim, Rosalie found her assumption that Quim was a mere boy downright droll. They left Quim at his office, went about their silver choosing and went back up town at dusk for tea at "Aunty Dee's."

Quim strolled in about six, nodding to his sister. And when Nannette ran for her coat he said: "You're going to stay with Aunty Dee a few days, Nannie. I have to go back to Chicago tonight and Rosy Lee is going with me."

Forum Proposal Meets Endorsement Of Wichita Men, W. D. Cline Tells Women's Mass Meeting At Y. W. C. A.

"The men of Wichita Falls are heartily in favor of the Woman's Forum and their plans for a club house" stated W. D. Cline before the Wichita Falls Woman's Forum in mass meeting Tuesday afternoon at the Y. W. C. A.

Mr. Cline outlined plans as he had considered them, and suggested that they include the following features:

The accommodation of both women and men of Wichita Falls; American Legion, Y. M. C. A. members and Boy Scouts.

The erection of a large auditorium for the benefit of all, with a woman's building on one side and a building for the men on the other.

Behind the auditorium a large swimming pool for the accommodation of both men and women.

"If all of these different groups go together there is no reason why the enterprise cannot be a success. I say let's put a large amount of money in it and make it really worth the while," Mr. Cline stated.

"All women and men, no matter how young nor how old, need more exercise than the Wichita men and women get. The club needs a large and first class gymnasium and swimming pool with a trained and efficient leadership. If necessary the swimming pool can be divided, or it can be arranged so that the women can get the benefit of it on certain days and the men the other. That can all be arranged after the plans are made but I do think above all things the pool is needed."

Would Cover a Block

Mr. Cline stated that the building should cover at least a city block, and according to his idea, should be located somewhere in the vicinity between Kemp library and the court house.

Hubert M. Harrison, secretary of the chamber of commerce, who was to have spoken to the women but was detained, sent word that he was in hearty sympathy with anything that they might undertake and was at their service at all times.

The working plans of the club followed. Democratic principles were especially stressed, with good discussions from different members of the Forum. It was stated that all women of the city who wish to join might do so without being passed on by the board. Any woman in the city who is interested in any phase of the work is cordially invited to become a member. If a woman wishes to get the benefit of the lectures, but doesn't feel able to work in the Forum she may do so by paying the Forum initiation dues which are $3. This entitles the woman to charter membership and the benefit from the lectures of every department until October. If a woman so desires, she may work in three of the departments. It is requested that all women wishing to join send their names and their dues to Mesdames W. W. Silk and Hubert Harrison before Friday if possible so that they may get the benefit of the first Forum program.

Announce Lecture.

Edward Abner Thompson, noted dramatic reader has been secured by the program comittee of the Forum to appear on the first program, which will be given Friday evening at the Presbyterian church at 8 o'clock. He will read "Cyrano de Bergerac" by Edmond Rostand.

Mr. Thompson is one of the most finished and powerful readers on the American platform today. Although totally blind he has fought his way to recognition by sheer persistence and the unanswerable persuasion of superior merit. Once upon the platform he is a magician who wholly effaces himself by the perfection of his art. Critics say of him that he plays the roles of his characters with absolute freedom and abandon.

Mr. Thompson is a graduate of Bowdin college and of Boston university. He has been active in the school of expression in Boston for 20 years and has appeared at colleges, universities and before men's and women's clubs all over the United States. On his transcontinental tours he has visited nearly every state in the union, and the most lavish praise has been given him by presidents of leading universities throughout the nation. The press of the nation has been most generous in its praise of this accomplished master of expression.

Fair Ladies Delight in Gowns of Lustrous Silk

The sheen of lustrous silk and satin never fails to delight my lady fair. So-called practical fabrics must perforce be worn for everyday, but the silken gown will always give milady a thrill that woolens and prints cannot bestow.

Three smart gowns of silk and satin are illustrated today and all are distinctive. On the left I have placed an unusual frock of Ottoman silk in black and white. Its most unique features are the novel choker collar and the circular over skirt. The deep double cuffs, also cut in circular fashion, are also new as is the full vester that shows through the openings down the front of the frock. The cut of the white upper part of the dress gives it almost the effect of an Eton jacket.

The black satin, afternoon dress (center) is another interesting creation. Cut in a simple, straight line, it is gathered into a slightly draped effect on the left side, this drapery extending below the skirt hem. The sleeves are long and close fitting but are also made unusual by the deep, circular ruffles lined with white crepe and embroidered to match the trimming on the body of the frock in black, white and crimson disks.

The last dress (right) is a simply cut dinner dress of jade green crepe satin. Two scalloped rows of deep chenille fringe of the same color as the dress finish the bottom, and long ties of self material hang from the neck, are knotted in the middle of the back and are also edged with the chenille.

All three of these dresses hold suggestions for the woman who has a frock to make over for spring. The combination of the black and white silk in the first dress may suggest a way to remodel a frock combining either new or old materials for the result while the sleeve treatment of the one in the center and the fringe finish and tie of the other two may also be fruitful of ideas along this line.

PLAN EQUIPMENT AT SOUTH SIDE.

The report from the city council that stolen equipment from the South Side park would be replaced by that body made the Tuesday afternoon meeting of the South Side Civic league a memorable one.

League members who met at the home of Mrs. Josie Young, 2111 Bluff street, busied themselves with active plans for the preparing of the grounds to receive the new equipment to be provided. Now that the women have been relieved of the added expense of replacing the swings, slides, tables, etc., which have been so keenly missed from the park, the members have decided to turn their efforts toward the erection of a summer pavilion 20 by 28 feet square, so that children and mothers might have a shady place and a shelter from summer showers. Work on the pavilion is to begin at once, it was announced.

The next meeting will be held in March at the home of Mrs. H. O. Denham, 1423 Twenty-fourth street.

Members present included Mesdames H. O. Denham, W. R. Taylor, W. H. Lay, Fred K. Smith, Rufus Young, A. H. Bailey, C. R. Ribbs, W. D. Cook and R. Hibbs.

MUSIC STUDY CLUB WITH MRS. CLIFFORD.

Mrs. N. M. Clifford, was hostess to members of the Music Study Club at her home Tuesday morning when the club studied two separate topics under the leadership of Mrs. S. M. Goss, Jr., and Mrs. T. B. Greenwood: "Accessories in Music," and "Expression and Interpretation."

Musical numbers illustrated points in the lesson. Mrs. C. F. Tully singing "A Song of Thanksgiving" by Francis Allitsen with Mrs. McKnight accompanying. Mrs. Alf Miller played Aser's "Valse Rhuette," as a violin solo accompanied also by Mrs. McKnight. Homer's "Sheep and Lambs" was sung by Mrs. W. L. Parker with Mrs. O. B. Kiel at the piano, and Mrs. McKnight played a piano solo the first movement of Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata."

Members present included Mesdames Fred Barron, Jessie Bonner, C. E. Evensen, S. M. Goss, Jr., O. E. Nichols, T. B. Greenwood, O. B. Kiel, Alfred Miller, W. L. Parker, Robbins, McKnight, Harwood Stacy, C. F. Tully, Van Wormer and one guest, Mrs. Nannon, A. H. Bilbrin and guest, Mrs. Al Smith.

Complimenting Mrs. T. M. Kell of Los Angeles, house guest of Mrs. Nat L. Inge, Mesdames Inge and F. E. Thornburgh were joint hostesses with a lovely bridge party at the Thornburgh home at 1206 Monroe.

The home was beautiful in lavish Valentine decorations, hearts and kewpies playing a large part. The hearts were strung all over the rooms. The house was darkened and red lights glowed every where. Large floor baskets were filled with gorgeous bouquets of flowers. Small birch bark baskets filled with sweetpeas were given each guest as a remembrance. The tallies, score pads and pencils were all suggestive of Saint Valentine day.

In the games Mrs. Gannon was fortunate in winning high and was presented a venetian glass vase and Mrs. A. C. Ludlam was consoled for low and received hand painted curtain pulls.

Ice cream and heart-shaped angel food cakes were served to the following: Mesdames T. M. Kell, Robert Crawford, Harry Jones, Q. B. Lee, O. B. Kiel, Gould, Mark Walker, J. M. Simmons, Porter Oakes, W. R. Duke, Natta, Fred Kellogg, George Dobie, W. F. Weldon, C. M. Reid, George Reppy, Charles Bass, Tarleton Morrow, Leslie Humphrey, H. A. Allen, W. E. Maxin, Marian Fuller, Finley, A. C. Ludlam, Arnold, R. C. Hardin, Fred Couper, T. A. Hicks, Clifton Keeler, Fred Gates, Gannon, T. M. Conrey and Misses Billye Harper, Ethel Cobb and the hostesses.

VALENTINE BUNCO FOR EIGHT TABLES.

Mrs. J. D. Moubler entertained with a Valentine bunco party of eight tables which proved an attractive diversion for a group of girls and boys that were guests honoring Mrs. Moubler's daughters, Helen and Yvonne.

The approaching Valentine season furnished inspiration for the gaily decorated rooms and the dainty baskets of red heart candles which served as favors for the players.

In the games little Miss Mary Delaney won high score and was presented with a boudoir pillow. Miss Mary Collier was consoled for low with a georgette handkerchief.

Among the boys, Richard Delaney captured the honors, receiving a pair of cuff links. Grey Clay was presented with a silver pencil for low score.

Refreshments were served to Little Misses Helen and Yvonne Moubler, honorees, Mary Delaney, Peggy Durbin, Helen Perkins, Wilma Brown, Mary Agnes Riley, Camille Avis, Corinne Tucker, Margaret Helgeson, Margaret Norwood, Mary Collier, Lillie Graham, Elizabeth Lankford, Josine Woods, Cherilla Whitehill, Nell Duffy, Maxine Duffy and Rita Berglin.

IT'S HARD TO BELIEVE, BUT LOVE IS THE BASIS OF MOST NAGGING—HOWEVER, THERE'S LITTLE HOPE OF CURING A WOMAN OF THIS BAD HABIT, FOR A NAGGER NEVER ADMITS SHE NAGS.

A much harassed man wants to know why women nag. Oh, for various and sundry reasons, the principal one of which is love. This is a hard saying, and difficult of belief by those who are the victims of the nagger, but it is true, nevertheless.

The more the average woman loves her husband and children, the more she torments them. All of her thoughts and interests and anxieties are centered on them so exclusively that she cannot let them alone for a minute. She is just bound to be a special providence watching over them, guarding them, directing their every movement.

It is love, not hate, nor the desire to make herself disagreeable and a spoil sport, that makes a wife nag her husband for forty years about smoking; that makes her ruin every meal by telling him how bad everything he likes to eat is for his stomach; that makes her raise the same objection to his going out every time he puts on his hat; that makes her warn him every morning of his life not to get run over by an automobile; and to be sure to change his shoes if he gets his feet wet.

It is love that makes a mother nag her children about everything they do and leave undone; about sitting up late, and going out to parties; about short skirts and bobbed hair, and red flannel underwear; about the places they go to and the places they stay away from; about the boys and girls they run with; about their uprisings and their down sittings; about everything she knows, and doesn't know and suspects.

It is the overfond, overanxious wives and mothers who are the champion naggers and who drive their families wild with their incessant warnings, objections and advice. A woman who grants her husband and children any liberty of thought or action is either indifferent to them, or else a Solomon in petticoats, and feminine Wisheimers are few and far between.

Another reason why women nag is because they pin their faith to the moral taught by the parable of the persistent lady and the unjust Judge in the Bible. They have ascertained from personal experience that it works out in real life, and that you can worry people into doing almost anything. If you harp long enough on a single string it will get on any one's nerves, and he or she will give in to you to have peace.

Therefore, millions of women daily prove the efficacy of the nagging method in getting what they want. For it avails a man nothing if his wife is a nagger, to say with firmness and decision, or even with an oath, that he cannot afford a new car, and that he will not leave the comfortable, big old house on an unfashionable street to go to live in a cubicle in a smart apartment building.

The nagger monologues about the defects of the old car, and the old house until her words are like a swarm of mosquitoes continually buzzing about his ears, and of which he cannot rid himself. She throws the old car and the old house into his teeth, so to speak, at every meal. It is the last thing he hears at night and the first thing in the morning. She keeps everlastingly at him until finally in desperation he gives in for the sake of peace, and because he knows that if he doesn't, he will be nagged into a padded cell in a madhouse.

Another reason why women nag is because most of them have a very narrow range of interests. Hence they have to make the most of the ones they have, and this causes them to exaggerate the importance of little things. They cannot let bygones be bygones, and drop a subject and let it rest. They lack the philosophy that enables them to let a grievance become a closed incident and forget it.

This is why a woman will nag her husband about a bad investment he made, and on which he lost money twenty years ago, even if he has made a million by good trade since. It is why a woman will nag her husky, middle-aged man about eating highly seasoned food because he had a delicate stomach when he was a teething infant. It is why mistresses nag cooks out of the kitchen by telling them over every day of the world just what particular spoon to use in stirring the oatmeal, and not to forget to wipe out the sink.

Finally, women nag because they are human, and only the fewest number of people have the strength of mind to say a thing once and let it go at that.

A woman rarely does this. She feels that she strengthens an objection by repeating it a million times, and she accounts it unto herself for righteousness for never permitting her family to forget their mistakes, and for keeping their weaknesses ever before them. So she becomes that pest of society, and bane of the home, a nagger.

There is no more pernicious vice than nagging. A woman can have no possible fault that will so surely kill love and alienate her husband and children from her. There is no weapon like a jawbone for breaking up the peace and comfort of a home.

But there is little hope of ever curing any woman of this bad habit. For the nagger never admits that she nags.

"Ma" Hires Publicity Agent-Girl

By MARGARET STALLINGS
Record News Staff at Austin

AUSTIN, Texas, Feb. 10.—Governor "Ma" will give the women of Texas the inside dope on the business of being a governor through a series of intimate articles to be syndicated, publication of which will probably be started in a short while.

"Ma" has gone into the syndicate business in a very business-like manner.

Has employed a clever, red headed girl to write the articles—Clara Ogden Davis—one of the best known newspaperwomen in the state.

Clara came down to Austin the latter part of the week.

She Visits the Boys

Visited the capitol and announced to the boys in the press room that she was to be personal secretary to Governor "Ma"—headquarters—which to Clara means her typewriter—over at the mansion.

Listened in on the prison hearings and announced that she was "just aching" to write the story.

Spent several minutes telling us how Hugh Nugent Fitzgerald "raised" her in the newspaper business.

Not all roses along the way says Clara—but there's nothing in the world that quite equals it.

Visits the governor's office—and get in—which is something new for a news writer.

And while the news writers were all wondering how in the world Clara could give up her writing to be "personal secretary" to Governor "Ma"—the story developed.

Clara is to write the intimate, woman's angle of Governor Ma's life.

It is to be the governor's own syndicate and will appear under her name.

With Jim as the business manager—to arrange for the sale of the stories.

All of which means that Sunday supplements will now have an added attraction for the women of Texas—and for that matter women everywhere.

When Governor "Ma" buys a new spring bonnet—Clara will tell her story to the public—and add a description of the bonnet.

Will Write Her Up

How it feels to be a governor—and what a woman thinks of the problems that have heretofore been managed by a man—how she makes her work at the office fit in with her family life—all the little things that we've been wanting to know about our woman governor will be put into syndicated form.

News writers are in for a rest—Clara tells us that there are so many wonderful stories to write.

And she's going to write them.

Affairs of state will be handed to the newspaper men in interviews with acting governor Jim—"Ma" will talk to the women of Texas through her personal secretary—Clara Ogden Davis.

Mexican Is Killed In Auto Accident

Quick death came early Tuesday morning to Frank Jazos, a Mexican of this city, when the automobile in which he and his son were driving from here to Sherman ran off a culvert and overturned at a point eight miles east on the Henrietta road. Jazos died instantly when the machine pinioned him to the ground. His son, who was driving, was not injured.

The lights on the machine had gone out and the driver failed to note the culvert, he told officers from the sheriff's department who went to the scene of the accident.

The remains of the dead man were brought here and prepared for burial by the Merkle Undertaking company.

Violin Wizard Selects His Second "Ideal Girl," First Being Subject of "La Source" by Jean Greuze

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—When Mischa Elman, world famous violinist, was a student in Paris, he went one day to the louvre, greatest and most wonderful art gallery. He wandered around a while, interested in "Winged Victory," the matchless "Venus de Milo" and the mysterious "Mona Lisa." Then his eyes rested upon "La Source," painted enchantingly by Jean Baptiste Greuze. He gazed at it long and longingly.

"There," he said, "is my ideal girl."

The painting represents a maiden bearing upon her left shoulder a great vase, from which water is pouring, and is known to American tourists who happen to run across it on their hurried trips to the museum to see "Venus" and "Mona," as "The Girl With the Jug." Elman returned many times to the Louvre, and had eyes for nothing but "La Source."

Always Elman has carried the image of this girl in his mind.

"She is my ideal. I'll never marry until I find my ideal."

Of course, Greuze's model was no longer the girl pictured. He must find another like her.

He sought her in every country as he toured the world with his magic violin, playing before great crowds. Once, he thought, he found her. That was in 1917. He became engaged to this "ideal girl," Miss Mildred Stone, sister-in-law of another noted violinist, Rudolph Polk. But the marriage was not held.

Elman continued the search for his "ideal." Now, he thinks, he really has found her. He is engaged to marry Miss Helen Frances Katten, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Katten of San Francisco. They met while he was in Europe on a concert tour.

BREEZES! WHAT ARE THEY?

Though real Artic breezes romped down and paid Wichita Falls and Spud park a rather impromptu visit Tuesday afternoon the Spudder squad busted through its spring training antics just like a couple of 13-year-olds the morning after school closes for summer vacation.

Incidentally the squad's being cut down fast, not in number of athletes participating, but in avoirdupois poundage. Skipper Bud and Infielder Al White—that, as all closely informed Spudder fans know, composes the training gang at present—each must have worked off at least a pound apiece.

* * *

Tanner, with his rope skipping and medicine ball act, possibly has cut away four or five pounds since the opening of spring training Monday of last week. White is already nearly down to weight.

* * *

It's a unique and entirely different type of baseball training that's going on out at the park daily. There has been no cavorting around the diamond and outfield by prancing athletes in morning and afternoon sessions under the bright rays of a warm spring sun. Nor has there been any hitting practice. Reasons: Diamond and outfield not exactly ready yet for use; there ain't no warm spring spring sun rays, and there hasn't been any loose-armed boys to toss 'em over the plate for bludgeon work, anyhow.

WE SHOULD WORRY.

But the Spudders, the two of 'em, are rounding into condition speedily. Working out indoors, upstairs in the club house, with a gas stove lit and going full blast to keep their joints from getting cold and stiff, Tanner and White aren't letting such a small matter as chilly winds and cool weather keep them from getting into shape.

TRAIN LIKE FIGHTERS.

The Spud indoor training schedule calls for a mile run each day, a bit of boxing thrown in with a smattering of wrestling, rope skipping, medicine ball chunking and catching, shadow boxing, snatches of indoor catch with a baseball, all types of calesthenics from belly reducing exercises to aesthetic dancing, and then a battle with a hot shower tapering down to a cold one, and, brother, that shower can get co-o-ld all right, all right.

* * *

The above mentioned sounds like a prizefighter's daily athletic menu, but the skipper and Al will testify that so far it's shaking them into what will no doubt prove superb baseball condition.

LUIS, THE BULL.

Luis Firpo, the wild bull, is named correctly in the American sense of the slang usage of the word. Firp intends to label himself "world's heavyweight champion," meaning the successor to Dempsey's crown, all because he shoved the champ out of the ring during that memorable meeting of theirs.

* * *

Luis, the bull, holds that he should have been awarded the championship when Dempsey was aided in his return to the ring, and that now he should be heralded as the titleholder. But from Firp's own argument we would gather that not he, but Charles Weinert, well known fourth rater, is the real heavyweight champ. Weinert licked Firpo to a frazzle not so long after Firp "won" the title from Dempsey.

* * *

So many pilots tried to manage the Chicago White Sox the last several seasons that the Top O' Morn Lunacy commission decided not to shoot Wise Alex for stating that Eddie Collins this year is at a slippery helm.

* * *

Sports-page metaphors often stagger into strange clinches. The pre-spring baseball critics these days are calling Connie Mack's White Elephants the American league's dark horses.

DECISIONS IN CALIFORNIA.

It is rather amusing to watch the reaction of Californians to their new boxing law, which created a state commission and made decisions legal. Since the bill became effective there has been a general rush for the coast by boxers, who see as much gobi at the gate as the miners of '49. The first few bouts under the rule of the commission proceeded orderly enough. Then some of the decisions failed to please the crowds and the grumbling started. In San Francisco the other night Tommy Loughran, South Philadelphia Adonis, outboxed Buck Holly, a native son, in six rounds, but the referee gave a draw verdict. The storm broke, but quick action by the police prevented a riot and saved the official from being manhandled by the crowd.

The next step will be a general demand that the California commission appoint competent officials. The anvil chorus is due to sing its song of dissatisfaction into the ears of the commissioners.

THE REAL PERCENTAGE.

Joe Tiplitz ran out of his bout with Jack Zivic in Boston because the attendance was slim and his purse would have been correspondingly small. Tiplitz was figuring percentage. He looked over the crowd and decided the financial return wouldn't be worth the chance against the conqueror of Nate Goldman. He reasoned hastily to the railroad station. Yuss couldn't see beyond the walls of the hall. He couldn't calculate what percentage he would lose if he broke faith with the promoters. We don't mean percentage in honor, but in dollars and cents.

* * *

When the fact has been whispered Tiplitz will be suspended for a [illegible] and should deal severely with contract-breakers.

LONGHORNS BEAT BEARS

WACO, Feb. 10.—A long shot from the side by Carrie Nation, gave the Longhorns victory over the Baylor Bears tonight on the Baylor court. Indians Due to Find Freshmen Speedy Quintet

Meyer's Basketeers Give Horned Frogs Real Competition

TWO CONTESTS HERE

T. C. U. Frosh Have Grabbed Nine Out of Ten Games

That the Junior college quintet will find the pair of tilts with Dutch Meyer's T. C. U. Pollywogs Thursday and Friday nights on the Indians' court rather tough sledding is a foregone conclusion.

Wichita Falls sport lovers and basketball enthusiasts will be given the chance to witness one of the fastest teams in the state of Texas in action when the Pollywogs play here.

Fight Varsity Hard.

Meyer, formerly all-state basketball guard and a first-class all-around athlete during his college days, has developed a powerful machine from athletes of the Christian institution's freshmen. The T. C. U. varsity has been the surprise of the Southwest conference the current season, and at present is pushing hard on the heels of the Oklahoma Aggies and Arkansas Razorbacks, conference leaders. Incidentally, the Frogs happen to be the only club which has defeated the Oklahomans this year. But Dutch's Pollywogs very often have shown the varsity quint just how the court game ought to be played. Practicing with the Horned Frogs ever so often each week, the Pollywogs have proved a tough club off and on for the varsity five to beat.

Just the other day, the writer was in Fort Worth. Dropping out to the T. C. U. gym he found Coach Meyer all smiles, gloating over the fact that his frosh had held the vaunted varsity to a 20-20 tie the night before in a hot practice tilt. Those Pollywogs are no easy marks.

Won Nine Out of Ten.

The Pollywogs have captured nine of ten games played to date. They were nosed out by John Tarleton early in the season, and Meyer still holds that his club was far from form during that game. Wichita Falls fandom will remember that John Tarelton also beat Junior college by a close score. This apparently would rate the two clubs about even up, but besides being off color in that game the Pollywogs used a number of reserves, Meyer running in his regulars a bit too late to pull the contest from the fire.

For the ten games played, the Pollywogs have scored 279 points to their opponents 106. But one time did a team make more than 20 counters against the frosh, and, according to Meyer, the use of his reserves was the cause of this. Also, but on one occasion have the Pollywogs been held to less than 20 points.

Indians No Slouch.

The outlook doesn't seem very rosy for the Indians, but Junior college fans must remember that Mosley's men are no slouches themselves at the court game. Starting the season as a more or less green crew the Indians have rounded into a classy little club, one that can deal any of the junior college conference teams real misery.

The Indians may be handicapped by the absence of their star forward Riley Rawls who is suffering with an infected knee, but if he should manage to jump into shape by the time of the initial game they will no doubt present a formidable front to the highly touted Fort Worth club. Then, too, playing on the home court may prove a neat advantage for the Indians. But anyway you take it, both games ought to prove rattling affairs, with the outcome more or less in doubt until the final whistle.

Firpo to Name Himself World Heavy Champ

NICE, France, Feb. 10. — Luis Firpo, the Argentine heavyweight has rented a small villa in the outskirts of Nice and is said to have begun training for contemplated bouts. He has signed a contract for exhibitions at Monte Carlo but says his only possible serious engagement is a prospective bout with Tommy Gibbons in London in April.

It is said Firpo is meditating increasing his prestige as an attraction on the Riviera by assuming the title of world's heavyweight champion, taking the ground that he is entitled to it because Jack Dempsey was helped back in the ring after Firpo knocked him out of it in New York during their fight at the Polo Grounds.

Mr. and Mrs. Speaker motored to Corsicana from Hubbard, Speaker's old home. They will be house guests with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Marberry at an early entertainment in Mexia Wednesday.

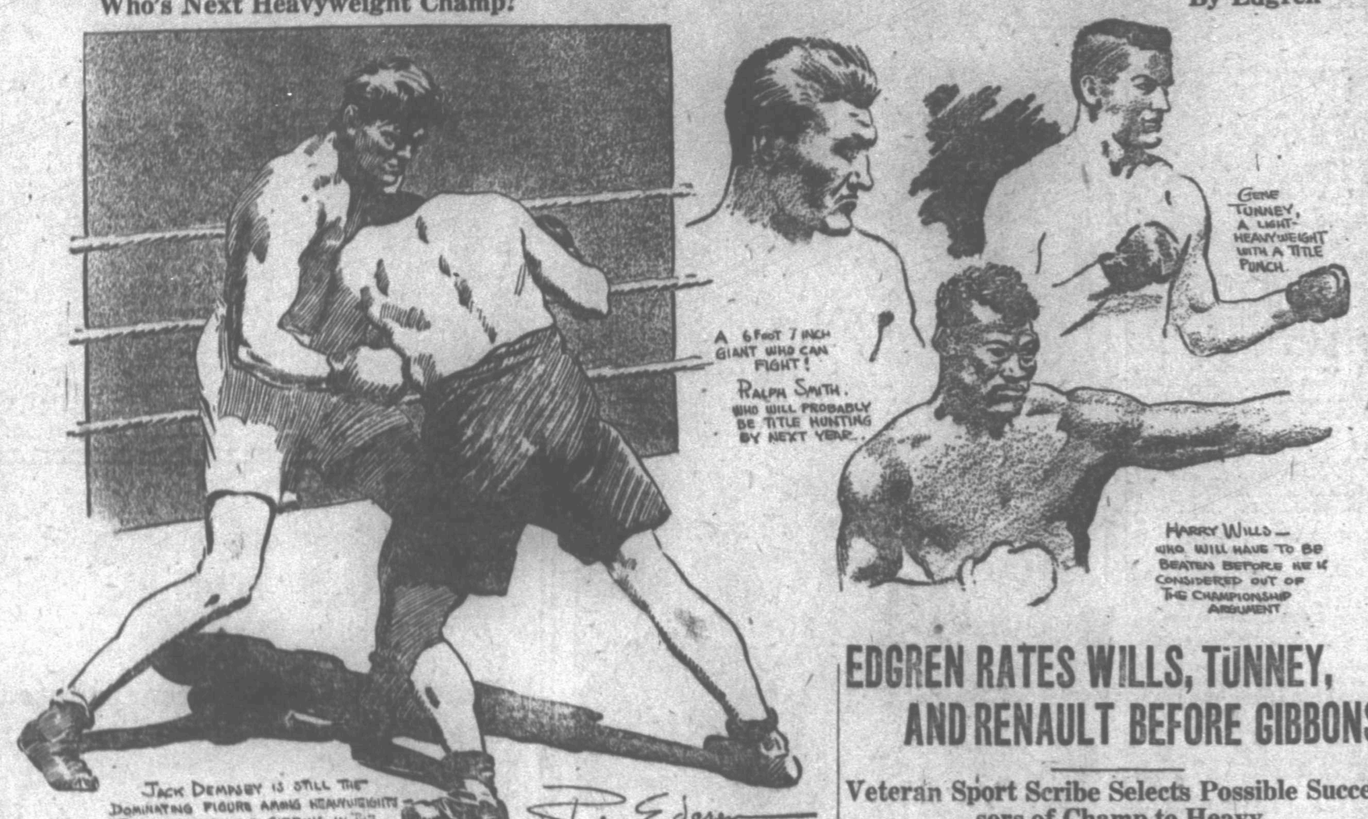

Speaker said he is optimistic over the chances of the Indians this year, but said he will not make any predictions until he has reviewed his young pitchers.

MACDONALD SMITH ARRIVES AT SAN ANTONIO FOR TEXAS OPEN

Officials Declare Field As Strong As Any Arrayed Anywhere—Cooper Shows Up Tuesday

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 10.—MacDonald Smith, California open golf champion, runner-up in the big British open meet of two years ago and runner-up to Al Watrous last week in the South Central Open, arrived here Tuesday morning for practice preliminary to competing in San Antonio's annual golf classic, the Texas open championship Friday and Saturday.

Smith had no sooner stepped out of the tournament manager's office at Brackenridge Park than in stepped Henry Ciuci, from the West Chester Golf club, White Plains, N. Y., a dapper little fellow who has been cracking 70 with regularity in Florida this winter and who finished in a tie for sixth place in the Texas open last year with a score of 290.

With Ciuci came James Martucci of Lake Hopatcong, N. J., whom Henry recommends as a young pro likely to grab his share of the big money in the week-end link festivities.

So the field grows daily. I. C. Brenner, vice president of the Golfer's Magazine, who motored in from the west, says the field is as large and as fast as any ever brought to his attention and he ought to know. Mr. Brenner has visited 2,800 golf clubs of the United States in the last four years and he expected to visit all 4,500 of them, then go back and check up on those that sprang up after he passed through.

Blakesley Coming.

Mr. Brenner brought word that Jack Blakesley of Globe Arizona, who holds the Wisconsin open title as well as the Arizona honors, is on the way to the San Antonio tournament.

Willard Hutchinson of Ponca City and Dick Grout of Oklahoma City, two husky Oklahoma pros, arrived together and signed up Wednesday morning.

Harry Cooper, the Texas state champion, from Dallas, arrived Tuesday.

All told, the check-up at noon Tuesday showed 101 pros actually on hand or on the way—most of them here—and 112 amateurs signed up for the amateur-professional best ball event. About half the amateurs are from out of the city and these together with the leaders of local amateur golfers will compete in the open also. Thus the field rapidly approaches the 200 mark.

Abe and George on Way.

George Duncan and Abe Mitchell, touring British professionals, will arrive on the Sunshine Limited from California Wednesday morning, Scotty Chisholm wired Tuesday. Mitchell, the longest driver in the world perhaps, was fourth in the Southern California open recently.

Larry Bromfield, seven times amateur champion of Colorado, is in. It's Dr. Lawrence Bromfield of Denver on the St. Anthony hotel register. Bromfield and three other Denverites—W. A. Matlock, Dr. T. L. Howard and Harry James—came on ahead of the rest of the Denver party, which will include Fred J. Bonfils, owner of the Denver Post, and Volney T. Hoggatt, editor of the Great Divide.

Numberless interesting matches are being played Tuesday among the stars practicing on the Park course, and these exhibitions will keep the golf fans busy throughout the week.

HOUSTON, Feb. 10.—Marvin Goodwin, is to stay on the job as manager of the Houston club of the Texas league. Following a conference between President L. Robertson and Secretary Ankenman last night Goodwin was informed this morning of his reappointment.

WEINERT BEATS SHARKEY

BOSTON, Feb. 10.—Charlie Weinert, Newark, heavyweight, won the decision tonight in his ten round bout with Jack Sharkey of Boston. Weinert weighed 184 pounds, Sharkey 188 1-2. Hudson-Essex Drubs Caseys By 28-12 Score

Landon-Hill Noses Iowa Park Cagers, 27 To 26

Hudson-Essex kept its slate clean by whipping the Knights of Columbus last night in the first contest of the weekly Commercial league double header on the legion court 28 to 12. In the second game, Landon-Hill took the Iowa Park quint into camp after a hard struggle that went into an extra five-minute session to decide the tilt by a score of 27 to 26.

Despite the absence of Captain Don Faichney who was ill, the hard fighting automobilers stepped off with the contest in fine style, Daniel, filling the big shoes of the captain did a fine job and left nothing to be complained about. He led the scoring by looping seven baskets for a total tabulation of 14 points. The flashing MacKeckney and his mate Allen, of the Hudson-Essex, flipped three baskets each for totals of six points, Levine and Powell, of the Caseys, each tossed a pair for four points. Coffey, also of the Caseys, played a nice game at guard. Park MacKeckney was at the helm for the Hudson-Essex.

The second battle was the best staged on the court this season and was filled with thrills from start to finish. Eight minutes of play had passed before the ice was broken by Metzger, Landon-Hill. There followed a see-saw game with first one team and then the other forging ahead. Four points was the largest lead held throughout the battle, each club held this margin once. Ross' complimentary pitch was the deciding factor of the game. Metzger was high point man by chunking six baskets from the court for a total of 12 points. Chubby Neal ran him a close race with five baskets and 10 total points. Hill looped four for the visitors.

Dempsey Seeks Fortune As Bait for Ring Return

Champ Wants Dignified Sum Of $1,100,000 To Fight

By DAVIS J. WALSH
I. N. S. Sport Editor.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—The rather dignified sum of $1,100,000, almost the size of the gate on the night Dempsey fought Firpo, has been set as the price of the champion's possible return to the ring, according to reports in circulation today. It is declared that Jack Kearns, noted collector of rare and well done coins, has demanded and will get that amount for his champion before the latter will step out, if at all, against Tom Gibbons and Harry Wills, during the impeding outdoor season.

At round three quarters of a million has been demanded for the Wills frolic alone, it is said.

Neither Tex Rickard nor those behind the financing of Henderson's proposed stadium would admit today that such was the case and not without reason. It is a violation of the boxing code in this state to quote fixed guarantees to any fighter.

Telegrams to Effect.

Friends of both promoters, however, were insistent that the terms quoted above were Kearns' own and professed to having read telegrams to that effect.

For the Gibbons bout, it was said, the Kearns demand was exactly $350,000 with the privilege of cutting in on the receipts above that figure. This, if true, would bring Dempsey at least $350,000 more than he received for giving Carpentier a rough push on the shoulder, the occasion in question being the last on which Rickard has made important money out of a heavyweight bout. The Dempsey-Kearns interests were outsmarted on that occasion. In this case, Kearns' terms, at least for the Wills bout, are almost ruinous. They would force Rickard, if that gentleman ever had any real interestin matching Wills and Dempsey, to build a new arena of a size quite beyond his usual pretentions. It would have to seat at least 110,000 and every chair have a well financed occupant for the promoter to reach the financial clear after paying Dempsey and Wills their price.

Will Forget Wills.

It is more than likely, therefore, that he will abandon any thought he may have had about this attraction and confine his attention to matching the champion with Gibbons at a more modest and consoling rate of exchange. In this event, Wills can be used as a smoke screen, literally and otherwise for the Gibbons-Dempsey build up and if the role appeals to him, Charles Henderson may be permitted the privilege of holding the bag.

SPORT SCRIBES SEEK STOP PLAYERS WRITING

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 10.—(AP)—James M. Gould of St. Louis, president of the Baseball Writers' association of America, appealed to the club owners of the American league today to discourage baseball players from writing so-called expert stories on world's series and other special baseball features.

Gould contended the stories were not written by the players themselves. President Johnson of the American league is in favor of legislation prohibiting the players from writing.

EDGREN RATES WILLS, TUNNEY, AND RENAULT BEFORE GIBBONS

Veteran Sport Scribe Selects Possible Successors of Champ to Heavy Championship

By ROBERT EDGREN

Heavyweights listed according to rank: Jack Dempsey, champion, Harry Wills, Gene Tunney, Jack Renault, Tom Gibbons, Quintin Romero, Charley Weinert, Luis Firpo, George Godfrey, Jim Maloney, Ralph Smith, Pat Lester.

Where is the next heavyweight champion coming from? The list of promising heavyweights is short and unimpressive. Today Jack Dempsey is shy of opponents. He hasn't had any ring work for a year and a half, and there's no immediate prospect of aheavyweight championship bout that would attract the attention a title bout must draw now-a-days before any promoter will bid for it.

It isn't likely that Dempsey will have a good match until some new heavyweight comes up. Those who promised to give him competition a year ago have faded out of the picture.

Tunney After Dempsey.

The biggest of these was Harry Wills, who probably ranks next to Dempsey today because he is, to a certain extent, an unknown quantity. Wills used to be able to fight, and he may be able to fight if he has a championship chance. He keeps in condition. Wills has lost much of his old speed, but he knows how to punch and can punch when he takes a chance. He is a giant in strength and size, a much bigger man than Dempsey.

When Wills slowed up he developed a new style of boxing. Instead of using that great left hand he had a few years ago he grabs, holds and hits. He seems unable to get away from his style, and unable to do anything when compelled to box without holding and hitting. If Wills was allowed to clamp one arm around Dempsey's neck or lock it under his armpit, and slug with the other hand, he might be dangerous to the champion, but it's a sure thing Jack Kearns would insist upon having the rules against holding and hitting enforced. Fighting cleanly, without holding and hitting, Wills wouldn't do much with Dempsey unless Dempsey had lost his speed too, in which case the bout would be a mauling match.

Next to Wills on Dempsey's trail I would class Gene Tunney, the light-heavyweight champion. Tunney told me a while ago that his ambition is to fight Dempsey, and that all of his matches are intended to give him the knowledge he will need to put his boxing skill and speed and punch against the heavyweight champion. He isn't in a hurry to rush out of the light-heavyweight class, but expects to grow out of it in another year. Tunney is over six feet tall, is lightly but powerfully built, with broad shoulders and back, good arms, unusually big forearms.

He is a real master of boxing, combining every kind of a punch with the skill to land it. He is one of the most intelligent boxers in the ring today. And he can punch. He knocked out Charlie Weinert in four rounds and fairly massacred Spalla, the Italian champion, when he knocked Spalla out last summer in New York. He knocked out Georges Carpentier with a terrific punch in the body, after Carpentier had landed several swinging rights on Tunney's head without even shaking him. He beat Harry Greb three times. Tunney is an ideal athlete. He lives and trains in the country, down the New Jersey coast, spends little time in New York, is a student of diet, training and condition and never gets out of shape.

Renault Has Slipped Back.

Just now he is down in Florida, training every day and getting ready for a summer campaign that is to put him up among the heavyweights. Only 25, he is likely to accomplish anything. Also, by the way, he is a war veteran, a volunteer in the Marine Corps. He learned his boxing in the Marines, won the A. E. F. light-heavyweight championship in France and beat Bob Martin, winner of the heavyweight championship, in a four-round decision bout. Tunney was born in Greenwich Village, New York City.

A heavyweight who looked good a year ago, and seemed in line for a championship fight, was Jack Renault. He had a good knockout record, had picked up a lot of Dempsey's ring stuff, was bigger than Dempsey and still fast, and seemed to be growing confident. But Renault has wilted this winter. He lost a decision in Boston to Quintin Romero, and made a poor showing a couple of weeks ago against Steenod, the ex-amateur. Renault has grown fat, slow and lazy. He eats too much and is fond of liquid refreshments. Last time I saw him he seemed bursting out of his clothes and his neck formed a roll above a collar that was choking him. Renault fought in

Gibbons Says He'll Box Luis and Madden

ST. PAUL, Minn., Feb. 10—Tommy Gibbons of St. Paul contender for Jack Dempsey's heavyweight boxing crown, has two important matches in prospect for the coming summer he announced here today on his return from New York where he discussed with Tex Rickard, promoter, the possibility of meeting Dempsey for the title.

Gibbons said he had agreed to fight Bartley Madden in New York early in May and Luis Angel Firpo in Detroit in May or early in June. The Firpo and Madden matches are a certainty if Dempsey does not agree to defend his title against Gibbons in June, the St. Paul heavyweight said.

TUNNEY AGREES TO MIX WITH DELANEY

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Negotiations are under way for a match between Jack Delaney, hard hitting Bridgeport, Conn., boxer, and Gene Tunney, American light heavyweight champion at Madison Square Garden February 26 as a substitute attraction for the cancelled bout between Paul Berlenbach and Tiger Flowers.

Tunney has already accepted terms but Delaney is awaiting the outcome of his fight at the garden Friday with Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRL BEATS FORT WORTH MARKSMEN

FORT WORTH, Feb. 10.—The marksmanship of Miss Fern Warden, central high school senior, means a trip for her to Camp Perry, Ohio, next September when marksmen from all parts of the United States meet in national matches.

Miss Warden proved her skill with a rifle yesterday when she outshot members of the Fort Worth Rifle and Pistol club at the 25 yard range. She scored 48 out of a possible 50, leading her nearest opponent, L. C. Turner by two points.

SEVEN NATIONS GO AFTER DAVIS CUP

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—The list of nations challenging so far for the 1925 Davis cup contest was increased to seven today when the United States Lawn Tennis Association announced France and Italy have filed formal entries. Ireland, Switzerland, England, South Africa and Australia previously announced their intention to compete for the trophy held for the past five years by America.

American League Session With Ban Harmonious One

Moguls Withdraw Offer To Build Monument In Capital

SCHEDULE COMPLETED

Exhibition Games By Loop Champs Banned After This Year

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Club owners of the American league, meeting with President Ban Johnson for the first time since the joint major league session when they publicly reprimanded Johnson for his criticism of Commissioner Landis' administration, voted today to withdraw their offer to build a $100,000 monument to baseball in Washington, D. C., and adopted a resolution prohibiting future spring exhibition games between contestants for the previous world series.

The club owners, after ratifying the 1925 schedule, also adopted a plan for a definite schedule for world's series games and ratified the proposal of the baseball advisory council that the club finishing fourth in the pennant race, should be permitted to participate in the world's series pool. The proposal to increase the pay of umpires in the world's series from $2,000 to $2,500 and in city series from $500 to $750, also was approved.

Harmonious Session.

The meeting, with President Johnson sitting in as the directing head, was harmonious in every respect, the club owners evidently trying to forget their action of two months ago in writing their famous letter to Landis rebuking Johnson and removing him as a member of the advisory council. Whatever President Johnson thought of the seven club owners who signed the letter to Landis, was kept to himself, although he may have spoken his mind individually and perhaps privately.

Action to prohibit exhibition games between world's series contestants was taken after the Giants and Senators, participants in the 1924 series had arranged an extensive schedule of games during their spring training. The action of the club owners today will not necessitate the cancellation of the Giants-Senators games, but no such games will be permitted in the future.

President Johnson, in his recommendations, said the games were arranged by the Washington and New York clubs without seeking to learn what the sentiments or wishes of the other clubs in the two leagues might be, and that the games had been announced as a "continuance of the 1924 world's series."

No Monument.

The offer to build the monument in East Potomac Park, Washington, was withdrawn in view of the fact that the proposal had met with opposition each time it came up in congress. It had been proposed to erect the monument, at a cost of $100,000, and on the monument the names of the most valuable players in the league selected annually, were to be inscribed. President Johnson said no alternative plan was proposed.

The new world's series schedule plan was proposed by Charles Ebbetts, owner of the Brooklyn club, and approved by the National league. It provides for games 1, 2, 6 and 7, in the 1925 series to be played in the city which wins the National league pennant with games 3, 4 and 5 in the American league city. The following year the series will open in the American league, rotating annually. The only change made in the Ebbets plan was a provision that the advisory council shall have power to change the schedule if it should happen that a city, in which Sunday baseball is not permitted should win the pennant.

Open Season April 14.

The action taken at the joint meeting in Chicago, last December, providing that first year purchase players might be sent out on option for two years without asking for waivers, was approved.

Every club in the league with the exception of Chicago, was represented at today's meeting, although not all of the club presidents were in attendance.

The American league will open its 1925 pennant campaign on Tuesday, April 14, the same date as the National league, and close October 4, a week later than the 1924 race, according to the schedule adopted today.

The world's champions Washington club will start the race by meeting the Yankees at New York, while Boston will open hostilities against the Athletics at Philadelphia. The White Sox will oppose the Tigers at Detroit and Cleveland will furnish the opposition for the Browns at St. Louis.

WISCONSIN MENTOR QUITS

Twenty three passengers and the motorman were injured when a trolley car burst off a trestle onto railroad tracks, in Hoboken, N. J. Officials say it is a miracle that no one was killed. The wrecked tram is shown.

Miss Ethel Comstock (above) of Chicago, drew $150 from the bank last August and began gambling in wheat. Her winnings now total about $50,000, it is estimated. Another woman, Mrs. Scott Durand, is reported to have "cleaned up" a million dollars in the wheat pit

He is seen (left) showing why bells mysteriously ring at seances. Actual seances are, of course, held in darkness.

Elimination of many of the costs entering into distribution, and the subsequent lowering of prices of necessities to the ultimate consumer, is the purpose of a national conference of business men in Washington. Merchandising methods are being inquired into at length. The photo shows the secretary of commerce, Herbert Hoover, leaving the U. S. chamber of commerce, with three prominent business men between conferences. Left to right: C. F. T. Whitmarsh, of F. H. Leggett Co.; J. J. Carty, vice president, American Telephone and Telegraph Co.; C. L. Alsberg, California chemist, and Hoover.

Representative Hamilton Fish, Jr., New York, avering that the high cost of living has hit cabinet members as hard as every one else, has introduced a bill in congress calling for an increase in salary for members of the president's official salary. He proposes to raise their pay from $12,000 to $17,500 a year.

East End Of Carey Section Adds Two Wells For 1,400 Barrels

Shaw-Rathke et al No. 1, Kunkel Best At 900 to 1,000

Roxana Completes No. 6 Well For Between 400 And 500 Barrels

NO EXTENSIONS

Shaw-Rathke Well Located Between Sun Pumper And White Big Well

Two more good completions on the east end of the Carey pool, south Archer county, while not adding more territory to the field, have boosted production probably 1,300 to 1,400 barrels. One of these alone, Shaw-Rathke et al's No. 1, Kunkel, south offset to the White well, is reckoned at between 900 and 1,000 barrels.

The Shaw-Rathke et al well, drilled in the northwest corner of a long 19-acre strip, south of the White Bros. lease, took 22 feet of sand at 1,34-56 feet, and was yesterday flowing by heads. It is located directly between the Sun company pumper and the big well of White Brothers.

Roxana's No. 6, Kunkel, on their lease, is between a 400 and a 500 barrel well from sand at 1,140 to 1,160 feet, with some water showing.

First Gas Found In Reagan County Field

SAN ANGELO, Feb. 10.—Gas was was roaring today from the Big Lake Oil company University No. 17 in the Big Lake field, Reagan county, estimated flowing from 40,000,000 to 60,000,000 cubic feet daily and the first commercial gas production of the field and the territory in general.

The new well, which is three miles west of Best, and 14 miles west and slightly north of Big Lake, struck the huge flow at 2,500 feet. It is running wild through a 10-inch pipe with 1,000 feet of open hole.

The terrific pressure had begun to tear up the rig and fire in the pasing Orient railway engines was being smothered as a precaution against igniting the gas. The well is but 6,700 feet north of the Orient tracks.

Whether the gas from this well, an entirely new sand for the field, will be used for fuel in drilling other tests in the Big Lake field could not be learned. The Big Lake Oil company has eight new wells going or starting, while the Texon Oil and Land company has four.

The gasser is located in the center of the northwest quarter of section 1, block 2, about 6,700 feet north of the Orient tracks, and midway between Big Lake Oil company No. 10 on the east and Texon Oil and Land company gorup one No. 3 on the east, both oil producers.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 10.—The cotton market was rather a quiet and narrow affair today, with limited trading and very narrow fluctuations, the extreme range not exceeding 17 points. While most of the day's developments were constructive the market was held back by the weakness in wheat which it was feared might cause a reaction in stocks and a sympathetically affect cotton as well.

The moderate advance of the morning was mainly due to favorable cables and the absence of any show of rain in the west on the weather map. The May position after gaining 9 points or about half a dollar a bale in the first part of the morning gradually eased off 16 points reaching the low point about the middle of the afternoon when that month showed a net loss from the previous close of seven points. A good rally in the final trading owing to growing anxiety over the drouth conditions in the west carried May up to a net gain of 6 points for the day.

At the start the tone was steady in sympathy with favorable cables and first traders showed gains of 6 to 7 points. The market continued to improve slowly after the opening until March traded at 24.38, May 24.61 and October 24.38, or 7 to 9 points above the close yesterday. The subsequent gradual decline carried March off to 2415, May 24.45 and October 25.26, or 12 to 16 points down from the early highs. The rally near the end caused active months to make new highs for the day at 24.30 for March, 24.62 for May and 24.42 for October, or a recovery of 15 to 17 points from the low. The close showed net gains for the day of 5 to 9 points on old crop months and 8 to 10 points on new crop positions.

Liverpool cabled that the Lancashire spinners had voted in favor of reducing working time to 55 hours a week effective February 16. This news and the weakness in wheat were the main causes of the reaction and the absence of rain in the west and the bidding of spot interests for double the amount of cotton in the certificated stock were the reasons assigned for the afternoon recovery.

Exports for the day totalled 34,121 bales.

TEXAS PRODUCE

AUSTIN, Feb. 10.—Hay markets continue to firm as low prices retard the inbound movement. STOCKS

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Violent fluctuations in high priced industrial specialties, most of which are reported to be under the control of powerful speculative pools, again featured today's erratic stock market. The main body of stocks turned reactionary after an early period of strength, although the price movement was by no means uniform. Trading was on a fairly broad scale, the day's transactions running well over 1,500,000 shares.

U. S. Cast Iron Pipe continued its sensational gain, scoring an extreme advance of 25¼ points at the record top of 230½. following its 19 points advance of yesterday and closing within 4 points of the top. The apparent scarcity in the floating supply gave rise to rumors that a "corner" existed, but these lacked confirmation and apparently were without foundation. The bear traders found it possible to borrow stock in order to make delivery on "short" sales.

A sharp rise in Mack Trucks, which touched a record top at 148⅝ and closed at 147¼, up 7⅛, was somewhat of a mystery, coming after the declaration of a regular dividend and a preliminary statement of 1924 earnings showing net profit of $18 a share on the common stock as against 21.70 a year before. Iron products was run up 15 points to 105 in the last hog rat trading.

Most of the so-called pivotal industrials lost ground. American Can showed a net loss of two points at 170 after having established another record top at 173. U. S. Steel common closed nearly a point lower at 126⅝ despite the publication of the monthly tonnage report showing an increase of 220,647 tons in unfilled orders as of January 31, which was slightly more than expected. Baldwin showed a net loss of 1¼ at 133¼ and losses of one to two points were recorded by American Smelting and Refining, American Woolen, Cuba Cane Sugar preferred and many others.

Independent strong spots again cropped out in the motors and chemicals. General Motors touched a record top at 79 and then reacted a point on profit taking. Hudson Motors closed 2½ points higher at 41¼ and Timken Roller Bearing attained new peak price at 44¾. Allied Chemical and American Agricultural Chemical common and preferred also reached their highest prices since 1923, or longer.

Low priced rails were again in brisk demand. Texas and Pacific was run up three points to a record top at 53 and Frisco common. Wabash common and preferred "A," Atlantic Coast Line and Southern Railway preferred, also moved to new high ground.

Call money opened at 4 per cent and then eased to 3½. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges eased slightly despite encouraging developments regarding international debts. Demand sterling ruled half a cent lower around 4.77¼ and French francs reacted nearly two points to 5.36¾ cents.

Jaywalking Will Be Banned By Traffic Cops Soon

Middle-Block Crossing Is Frowned Upon By Police Chief

The practice of crossing streets in the middle of a block to avoid delay at an intersection where a red crossing light may be burning is to be the next "traffic evil" to which the police will turn their attention.

Chief Hodgins has indicated that entirely too many Wichitans are dodging the lamps and imperiling their own and others' lives by taking the alley rather than the corner route.

With a corner "blocked" to north and south bound traffic, the east and west bound flow proceeds at a lively rate, and crossing the street in the middle of the block is fraught with considerable danger, the police aver. They propose to resort to drastic measures, if need be, to curb the practice.

Convinced that more are needed to properly handle traffic distribution in the down town district, the police department is to allow at least two more and possibly other left hand turns. At present, only one is permitted, that at Tenth and Lamar, but under the new arrangement, Eighth and Ohio and Seventh and Scott will also be included. Considerable agitation is also being made for a turn at Ninth and Lamar but the police have not decided definitely yet whether this can be granted.

The Eighth and Ohio turn has been found necessary because Eighth runs into a "dead end" at the union station; at Scott and Seventh the turn permits north bound traffic to proceed without running to Sixth and thus getting off the pavement, and at Tenth and Lamar the turn permits cars to enter the automatic controled zone from the south—something they could not do otherwise.

Vigilantes Planned.

Formation here of a vigilance committee such as is used in other Texas cities as a supplementary police force will probably be started the latter part of this month. Chief of Police Hodgins is considering the matter seriously, it has been passed on favorably by automobile dealers and members of the Wichita Falls Safety council and has, it is believed, the possibilities of becoming an important factor in law enforcement, especially as it relates to traffic conditions.

Under the plan as now being considered by the chief, each member of the safety council will be given special police powers and charged to keep a close eye on city traffic. If need be, the committeeman-officer may make an arrest on the spot, but the usual procedure will be merely a report to headquarters from which a full-time policeman will be dispatched to take such action as is necessary. This necessitates, of course, the obtaining of the offender's name, address and car number.

Active organization of the committee will be started after the visit here February 20 of Carl Smith, field representative of the National Safety council, who is to be in Wichita Falls on that date to discuss safety problems with the newly organized Wichita Falls Safety council.

COLOR CUT-OUTS

Sleeping Beauty

The Magic Hedge

The men with the prince tried to keep him from going near the palace, fearing some harm might come to him, but he rode bravely up to the high hedge, took out his sword, and was about to cut his way through.

To his great surprise, the thorny branches parted, making a path before him. As he stepped forward the branches closed again behind him, shutting him off from the rest of his party. There was nothing for him to do but go ahead.

When he had passed through the house he found himself in the palace yard, among the tall trees. There was a terrifying, ghostlike stillness about the whole place. The prince made his way carefully between the trees. Suddenly he stopped and drew his sword in alarm!

(What frightened the prince? Wait until tomorrow and see. In the meantime color his hunting suit and hat brown.)

Paternalism and Its Dangers for Democracy Told

W. R. Watkins Speaks To Members of University Club Tuesday

"The dangers of Paternalism in Democracy" was the topic of an address by W. R. Watkins, local attorney, before members of the University club Tuesday noon at the weekly luncheon at the Kemp hotel.

"The tendency of the average professional or business man is to 'father' the great multitude of common people by attempting to run their affairs through legal measures, many of which are selfish and serve only to complicate public affairs," Mr. Watkins stated.

"Public opinion is moulded to a great extent by the professional men of a community who feel that they know more, perhaps, about public affairs than any other strata of society."

"There is a danger in forcing false opinions on the little man by law and unscrupulous legislators often pass bills for their own benefit that really do not better the condition of the farmer or merchant or tradesman that they affect.

"Democracy certainly cannot succeed under this forced paternalism, and law and government should be left in their proper place.

"Education and religion are the foundation of the moral public welfare of this country, and the so-called common people can best be benefited by the education of their young people. The old ones are content to stay where they are."

In conclusion the speaker urged the instilling of love of country and a knowledge of governmental affairs into the minds of the people.

R. D. Sartin and J. S. Pitman were appointed by the president, Dr. J. W. Cantwell, to serve on the program committee of the club.

It was stated that the subject of the preferential primary election would be generally discussed at the next session of the club.

Judge P. A. Martin delivered the invocation.

The case of R. S. Towles, under indictment on charges of robbery with firearms, will be called for trial this morning before Judge H. R. Wilson in the 30th district court.

The defendant was arrested a few days after the Panhandle Filling Station at Tenth and Denver had been held up and robbed of a considerable sum late last December.

The case against C. H. Stewart and Bob Bandy, under indictment for theft in connection with the disappearance of a suit case from the automobile of a local man several weeks ago, will also be called today, it is believed.

MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN

No Plain Sewing

One Mother Says:

I want my daughter to sew and so like to do it; therefore, I do not force plain sewing upon her now when she is but a child. I encourage her to do pretty fancy work with bright colored silks and easy patterns. Each month I find improvement in her work and a wish to take up more intricate pieces.

Town Talk

DISCLAIMING any activity in support of the movement, Mayor Frank Collier is watching rather expectantly the efforts of the Gulf company and others to obtain a left hand concession at Ninth and Lamar. Commissioner Young and Chief Hodgins are being prevailed upon to grant a turn there and have intimated that they might do so.

The Gulf company is interested, of course, because of its filling station on the southeast corner of the intersection. Business has been considerably hampered by the left hand turn bar, and they have a legitimate kick.

Mayor Collier lives in the 900 block on Lamar and has observed rather ruefully that with the left hand turn knocked out, he can't get home from down town without going clear to Travis street and coming back.

"Go to 'er, boys," he told the Ninth and Lamar left hand proponents. "I'm not saying a word, but go to 'er."

Brake Tests for Automobiles to Be Made in City

Cars Picked Up At Random To Undergo Speed And Stop Inspections

Brake tests similar to those conducted here several months ago will be held Thursday and Friday of this week, it was decided Tuesday at a meeting of the Wichita Falls Automotive Dealers association, which is sponsoring the move. Scott avenue between Tenth and Eleventh will be used for examination which will be a part of the safety week campaign now in progress here.

Select Cars at Random.

Automobiles selected at random from the many cars in the city will be driven at a given rate of speed down the block. The brakes will then be applied at a certain point, and the distance required to bring the machine to a halt measured off. Through a scientific table already worked out, authorities will be able to tell whether or not the brakes on that particular car are capable of stopping it in proper distance.

Police Help.

Members of the automotive association and city traffic officers will conduct the tests.

The safety idea was the principal theme of Tuesday's meeting. A. E. Kelly, chairman of the safety committee of the Wichita Falls Electric company, C. W. Nolen, chairman of the automobile association safety committee and J. A. McFall, a member of the same committee, spoke on various safety features.

She Says:

"I Am Thin"

Her Friend Says:

"She is Skinny"

If she only knew that she could put on at least 5 pounds of good healthy flesh in 30 days she wouldn't be worrying about her peaked face, hollow cheeks and neck and run down looks.

She has tried Cod Liver Oil, but the ill-smelling, nasty tasting stuff upset her stomach and made her feel worse than before.

Doctors and good pharmacists know that Cod Liver Oil is full of vitalizing vitamines that make flesh, creates appetite, restores vigor, builds up the power to resist disease and chases away nervousness.

But it's horrible tasting stuff and every day fewer people are taking it for doctors are prescribing and the people are fast learning that they can get better results with McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets, which Smith Drug Co., Tipton Drug Co. and druggists all over the country are having a tremendous demand for.

It is a wonderful upbuilding medicine for skinny, backward children, especially after sickness and 60 tablets only cost 60 cents.

One woman gained 10 pounds in 22 days and if any skinny man or woman can't put on 5 pounds in 30 days your druggist will gladly return the purchase price.

But be sure and get McCoy's, the original and genuine Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablet.—Adv.
